Senate supports Roe vs. Wade amendment

■ The main legislation up for debate is a ban on late-term abortions.

By Laurie Kellman
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a rare referendum on Roe vs. Wade, the Senate went on record Thursday as saying the landmark abortion ruling established "an important constitutional right" and should not be overturned.

The nonbinding resolution, sure to provide fodder for campaign ads for the 2000 election, won near-party-line support from the Senate's Democrats, and eight Republicans joined them to ensure passage. It was added to a bill that would ban certain late-term abortions, which later passed 63-34.

"This is going to be an absolutely huge issue next year," declared Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif, of the Roe vs. Wade resolution. The abortion-rights supporter said: "Now we see the extremists in the United States Senate."

Republicans said the vote was irrelevant to the main legislation up for debate: a ban on certain late-term abortions sponsored by Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa. President Clinton, who has vetoed two earlier bans, also opposes the bill because it lacks an exception for women whose health is endangered by the pregnancy.

Once again the bill fell short — by four votes, if all 100 senators cast votes — of the two-thirds majority required to override a veto. Republican Sens. Connie Mack of Florida and Judd Gregg of New Hampshire — who both voted yes in last year's override attempt — were absent. So was Sen. John Chafee of Rhode Island, who voted no last year and earlier Thursday voted in support of Roe vs. Wade.

Santorum, whose bill includes an exception for pregnant women whose lives are endangered, described the debate as a moral attack on a brutal medical procedure that involves partially

Hutchison votes against resolution

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Kay Bailey Hutchison has long been a magnet for criticism for her views on abortion, drawing the ire of activists on both sides of the divide for positions that don't fall neatly into either camp.

But with her vote Thursday in the Senate's first-ever referendum on Roe vs. Wade, the Texas Republican appeared to clarify people's views of her abortion stance.

Her opposition to a resolution affirming Senate support for the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion pleased the anti-abortion forces that engaged in a high-profile fight against her in Texas. And abortion-rights groups said the vote offers conclusive proof that she is allied against their cause.

"Sen. Hutchison is not pro-choice, never has been pro-choice," said Kate Michelman, president of the National Abortion and Reproductive Rights Action League. "The good thing about her vote today is it clearly

Jury awards family $450K because of doctor's bad penmanship

Associated Press

ODESSA — A West Texas jury has ordered a doctor, a drugstore and a pharmacist to pay $450,000 to the family of a 42-year-old man who died after the pharmacist misread the physician's handwritten prescription.

Half of the judgment is to be paid by Dr. Ramachandra Kolluru, and the other half is assigned to an Albertson's pharmacy in Odessa and pharmacist Thomas Updyke, according to court papers.

"The doctor is disappointed, because he very strongly felt in his mind that he had written a legible prescription," said Kolluru's attorney, Max Wright of Midland, said of the Oct. 14 jury verdict.

Wright said his client may only have to pay $25,000, or his half of the difference between an earlier settlement by the pharmacy and the jury's judgment.

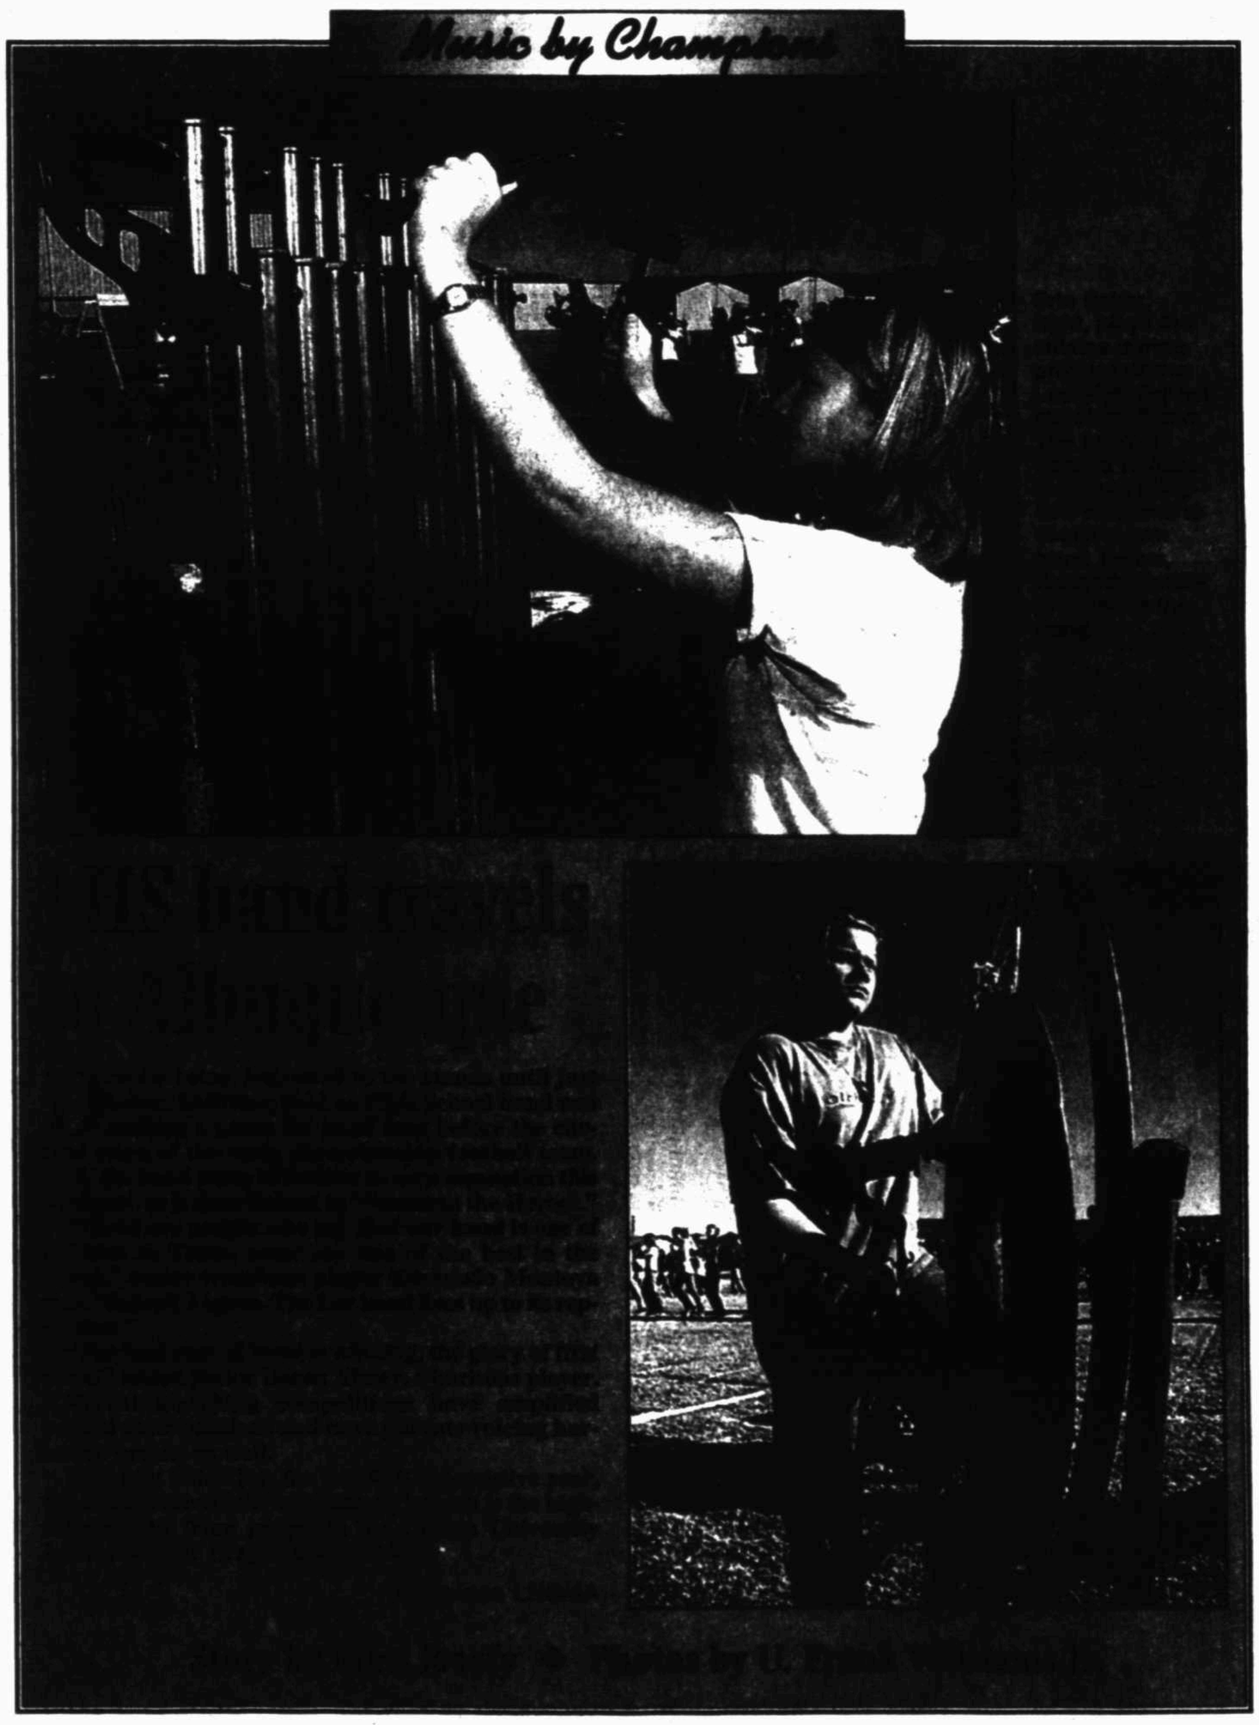
The attorney said he believes strong evidence was presented that the man's coronary disease killed him, not the medicine.

The family of heart patient Ramon Vasquez of Monahans contended in a 1997 lawsuit that he died in the summer of 1995 because he took an overdose of the wrong medication after Updyke misread an illegible prescription from Kolluru.

According to the lawsuit, the cardiologist's prescription called for 20 milligrams of the drug Isordil, used to treat angina, every six hours, but Updyke instead received a prescription for the same dosage of Plendil, which is used to treat high blood pressure. That drug has a much lower recommended dosage, only 5 milligrams per day, with a maximum dosage of 10 milligrams per day.

A day after Vasquez returned to his home in Monahans and began taking the drug, the father of three suffered a heart attack and died, the lawsuit claimed.

Updyke does not have a listed phone number. A pharmacist working at the pharmacy today said he is unfamiliar with the case.



Democrats eye Midland revitalization

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Efforts to revitalize the Midland County Democratic Party got under way Thursday with a visit from congressional candidate Isidro Garza, who is seeking the 23rd District seat currently held by Republican Henry Bonilla.

Michael Higgins, chairman of the Midland County Democratic Party, said the event was part of an effort to introduce more social events in addition to the governmental meetings held by the Executive Committee.

"We hope to have monthly meetings in a social setting, bringing in speakers," Higgins said. "We want to keep like-minded people together and be more cohesive."

Garza

He acknowledged that Midland is "basically a one-party town," with most Democrats voting in Republican primaries, something that Elections Administrator Pat Eastup said began in 1976.

"The first time more people voted in the Republican primary than in the Democratic primary was in 1976 when Jimmy Carter ran for president," she said after reviewing voting results from 1962 through 1980.

Higgins said that the party has created several positions to address different areas, the first of which are ways to recruit more Democratic candidates. When Michael Wallace was elected Justice of the Peace, he doubled the number of Democrats holding office in Midland County. Wallace joined County Commissioner Louisa Valencia as the only Democrats to hold elected office.

"Rather than take a shotgun approach, we plan to target two or three positions each election," Higgins said.

Other areas to be addressed include voter registration, fund raising, Democratic headquarters, precinct chair recruitment training, and publicity.

He also plans to attract more nation-

Midlanders ready to 'Make a Difference'

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Kindergartners at St. Ann's School got an early start on "Make A Difference Day" Thursday, presenting homemade toys and doggie biscuits to both the Lone Star and Midland branches of the SPCA.

"Make A Difference Day," begun in 1992 by USA Weekend magazine, will send Midlanders throughout town Saturday to work on various volunteer projects.

St. Ann's kindergarten class has decided to adopt the animal shelters, providing goodies not only for the animals in the shelter, but to the volunteers who help operate them. Different classes at the school are adopting different organizations or individuals this year. The school also is collecting items to be donated to the Rainbow Room for Child Protective Services and will receive $1,000 from the Wal-Mart Foundation.

"We wanted to choose something the children could do" said kindergarten teacher Mira Menzel. "They got to bake the biscuits and make the toys."

She added that she and the students plan to put up a poster with pictures of the animals in the shelters "and pray for them every day."

Susan Cronin, executive director of the Lone Star SPCA, said "I thought the idea was great. Education is so important to change the world for the animals."

She added that kindergarten-age is the age "to start to learn that animals are just like people. We try to stress that they're not toys."

The Dangers Of Daily Living

Some folks can find the smallest matters about which to worry. This futile exercise is shared by millions today, and we often worry so much that good health is thwarted and problems come. Maybe this little report will help you "shake those worries", and loosen up a bit. Someone has figured the facts and told us, "Do not ride in automobiles. They cause 20% of all fatal accidents. Do not stay at home. 17% of all accidents do occur at home. Do not walk on the street or sidewalks. 14% of all accidents happen to pedestrians. Do not travel by air, rail, or water. 16% of all accidents happen while folks are traveling in this manner." Yes, I know that entire report sounds trivial, but our list of worries probably does, too.

God says to you and me as worriers, "Therefore do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about its own things. Sufficient for the day is its own trouble." Matthew 6:34. Ask for God's help in prayer, look for ways to solve the problem or help the situation, and then let it rest. Someone has said, "Worry is interest paid on troubles long before it becomes due!" Now, go find a worry and deal with it!

SENATE: Issue has caused political discomfort delivering a live fetus before emptying its skull and killing it.

(From 1A)

"This is not an attempt to change or overturn Roe vs. Wade," he said. "At least we should be able to draw the line that when a child is in the process of being born, it's too late to have an abortion."

But Democrats declared a political victory based on an amendment to that bill, which passed earlier in the day. By 51-47, senators passed a nonbinding resolution that supports the 1973 Supreme Court decision that legalized abortion.

Sponsored by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, a third-term senator for whom the late-term abortion issue caused trouble in his 1996 re-election, the amendment reads:

"It is the sense of the Congress that Roe vs. Wade was an appropriate decision and secures an important constitutional right and such a decision should not be overturned."

Eight Republicans joined 43 of the chamber's 45 Democrats in support of it. They were Sens. Ben Nighthorse Campbell of Colorado, Susan Collins of Maine, James Jeffords of Vermont, Olympia Snowe of Maine, Arlen Specter of Pennsylvania, Ted Stevens of Alaska, John Warner of Virginia, and Chafee.

Two Democrats voted against the amendment, Sens. John Breaux of Louisiana and Harry Reid of Nevada.

To the rest of the Democrats, Harkin advised: "Don't be afraid of this issue" next year.

In a glimpse of stump strategy in 2000, when a third of the Senate goes before the voters, Harkin said in his floor speech that the vote on his amendment could turn the late-term abortion issue into a debate on Roe vs. Wade.

"It's about whether or not we believe Roe vs. Wade was a wise decision and whether or not women ought to have their right to decide their own reproductive health," he said. "It has everything to do with the underlying bill."

The Republican supporters of the late-term abortion bill virtually ignored the Harkin amendment and streamed to the floor to speak in favor of Santorum's measure — and against a "brutal" and "inhumane" medical procedure.

"It is time once again ... for members of the Senate to stand up and be counted for or against the most helpless human beings imaginable, for or against the destruction of innocent human life in such a repugnant way," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Frustration over the lack of a veto-proof majority showed in some corners.

"Just one time! Let's beat President Clinton," said Sen. Bob Smith, independent from New Hampshire. "He's won on everything. ... I'm sick of losing."

The late-term abortion issue also has caused Democrats some political discomfort.

Harkin was attacked in television commercials over the issue in 1996, and dropped sharply in the polls before recovering. More recently, the Senate's Democratic leader, Tom Daschle of South Dakota, and Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, got behind the measure before their re-elections in 1998.

During debate Thursday, another Democrat suggested he, too, might support the bill.

Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb., an abortion-rights supporter, told Santorum he was troubled by the procedure and "keeping an open mind" on his vote, after opposing the ban the last time around. Kerrey is among the senators up for re-election next year. In the end, however, Kerrey stuck with his 'no' vote.

defines her anti-choice views."

Bill Price, head of Texans United for Life, said: "It was a courageous vote ... She's never come this far."

The senator herself, however, refused to attach significance to a vote that its Democratic sponsor acknowledged was engineered as a wedge issue for the 2000 campaign — in which Mrs. Hutchison and a third of the Senate are up for re-election.

"These are political attempts to make people have tough votes," she said.

Mrs. Hutchison reiterated her opposition to a constitutional amendment banning Roe vs. Wade.

"I would not vote to repeal Roe vs. Wade as it stands today," she said in an interview. But she voiced her support for "reasonable" restrictions such as parental consent for minors, and bans on late-term abortions and federal funding — stances that have earned her a "zero" rating from NARAL.

Mrs. Hutchison said she voted against the non-binding resolution offered by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, because she disagreed with its findings.

The resolution reads: "It is the sense of the Congress that Roe vs. Wade was an appropriate decision and secures an important constitutional right and such a decision should not be overturned."

Voting for the resolution, which narrowly passed the Senate on a 51-48 vote, "would have wedded me to language that I could not say ... that I could support," she said.

Price, who led a grassroots effort that nearly succeeded in ousting Mrs. Hutchison from the slate of Texas delegates to the GOP national convention in 1996, said the vote "represents a change" in her thinking.

"I think that she was embarrassed by the very strong opposition to her at the 1996 convention," Price said.

While applauding her vote, Price suggested a willingness to mount another fight against her at the 2000 convention. "If she speaks out against the plank in the 2000 Republican Party platform and begins to insist that it needs to be changed, and if she continues her support of electing pro-choice Republican women to the U.S. Congress, then I think she'll face a lot of problems," he said.

Mrs. Hutchison said the vote she cast Thursday was independent of political considerations — or worries about troubles at next year's convention.

"I am calling these as I see them," she said.

Price suggested Mrs. Hutchison encountered trouble in the past because "she was sitting out there in that very dangerous middle ground where both sides were taking shots at her.

"It would serve her well, frankly, to move off the dime and begin to come to a clearer and firmer position on this issue," he said. "Like they say here in Texas, 'The only thing that you find in the middle of the road is dead armadillos."

DIFFERENCE: Wal-Mart, Home Depot sponsors

(From 1A)

Saverance, along with office pet Cinders, a Staffordshire terrier found abandoned in the county several months ago, used the visit to St. Ann's to stress to the children that dogs, cats and other pets are a long-term commitment that could last as long as 20 years, and that the pets need not only food, water and shelter but affection as well.

Several projects are sponsored by the Reporter-Telegram, Wal-Mart and Home Depot.

■ Volunteers are sought to help residents at Trinity Towers conduct their fall festival.

■ Volunteers are sought to join Habitat for Humanity as they build a house at 312 E. Spruce beginning at 9 a.m.

■ Home Depot is donating time and materials to clean up and make repairs at the Glory of God Church beginning at 8 a.m.

■ Christmas in April volunteers will be roofing at 2410 E. California.

■ The mural drawn by Churches in Harmony on the Community and Senior Services Warehouse at Scharbauer and Lamesa will be repainted from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

■ Casa de Amigos has gathered volunteers to paint addresses on curbs in south and east Midland. Volunteers are coming from Campfire Boys and Girls and from various churches. Casa officials say they need houses to paint, and those living east of Big Spring St., north of Florida and south of Wadley are urged to call Casa to request that their address be painted on their curb. Volunteers will gather at Casa around 8:45 a.m., leaving at 9 a.m. for the various addresses.

■ Chase Bank is sponsoring a "Global Day of Service" with volunteers planting trees at the entrance to the Confederate Air Force and Permian Basin Vietnam Veterans Memorial beginning at 10 a.m. with t-shirt distribution and tree planting from 10:30 a.m. to noon, ending with lunch and a lighting of the eternal flame at the memorial at 1 p.m.

■ March of Dimes volunteers will staff special tables at the Kmart store to provide information and materials to families whose uninsured children may qualify for the low cost insurance program, Children's Health Insurance Program. The tables will be at Kmart from noon to 4 p.m.

LHS: This year's show is called 'Summon the Heroes'

(From 1A)

The week before, at the Texas Tech Marching Contest, not only was the band declared first in 5A competition, it also was awarded the prize as the Overall Grand Champion.

On the heels of its successes, the band will now march its way to Albuquerque, N.M., to compete in the Zia Marching Fiesta. After fulfilling regular duties tonight at Memorial Stadium, the band will pack its bags and head for New Mexico at 1 a.m. to arrive before the 8 a.m. competition.

Unlike the past couple of weeks, this competition will include schools from places other than Texas, including New Mexico, Colorado and California.

"Our goal is to let the kids march and get some exposure to show the rest of the U.S. how great the Rebel Band is," said Susan Hall, co-president of the booster club.

"There will be seven judges who will be everywhere, in the stands, in the press box, watching the flags..." director Randy Storie explained. "There will be prelims and then finals. We're hoping to do real well. It's an incredible show."

This year's show, featuring music by John Williams, is titled "Summon the Heroes." The music includes themes from Indiana Jones, E.T. and Superman. In fact, the band even has a Superman running around on the field.

"The kids really like the music," Storie said. "We performed it for the sixth graders here in Midland and it really seems to entertain the crowd."

Last year, the band was renowned for its show that traveled 8,000 miles in support of the state championship football team. However, the band frequently makes state treks of its own.

"Every other year, we have the UIL state marching band contest. Every time we've gotten to go," Storie said. "We do trips like this to give us something to look forward to and challenge us during the years when we don't have state (competition), like this year."

"In the band hall, I've posted a saying 'Nothing we have done in the past will ever be good enough again.' It's hard to keep alive the reputation that the Lee band has, but we're going to do the work to come through and make it happen," Storie said.

Of course, the success is dependent upon that hard work every day after school. Tuesday, Paula Crider, director of the band at the University of Texas, was in town to give advice concerning the show.

"It's not what you're going to get from this band, but what you're going to become because of it. When I work with committed students like you, I wonder which one of you is going to use that commitment to find a cure for cancer," she said.

Maurene McDaniel, band booster publicity chairman, agreed, "If these kids are able to make the time to work this in, there's no telling what they can do. Band teaches incredible discipline."

"It's worth all the hard work," junior Natalie Hawks, a flute player, said.

She would be willing to put in even more work with the possibility of a big trip next year.

"If (Gov. George W.) Bush gets elected, we might get to go to the President's inaugural parade," she said.

Senior saxophone player Melissia Reeves points to a band motto: "The sun always shines on the Rebel band."

"That's talking about how we're always doing good; we're never in a dark cloudy area," junior saxophone player Chris Culley explained.

Despite the work, band members find a way to remain amused.

"Put yourself in a bus for seven hours with your friends ... not having fun is impossible," Montoya said.

DEMOCRATS: Garza feels country is divided by partisanship al and state candidates such as Garza, a retired captain in the U.S. Army Reserve and entrepreneur from Eagle Pass.

(From 1A)

His candidacy, Garza said, is the next step.

"There are several different phases in everyone's lives. We don't control what happens in those steps, many factors go into those changes. But if this is the step the Lord wants me to follow, representing the people of the 23rd District, it will happen."

His key concerns, he noted, are issues relating to poverty, the unemployed and underemployed, and protecting healthcare for the elderly.

The key platform in his campaign, he added, "is a return to the basic values ... When children are being taught in portable buildings, when our teachers are among the bottom fifth of the 50 states, when God is legislated out of any part of life, particularly in education, our schools, when many lives are taken through abortion because of convenience, it's no wonder we're having the problems we're having like in Littleton or with hate crimes like in Jasper."

He said he feels the country is being divided by partisanship, where "if the Democrats bring up an issue, the Republicans pound on it, and if the Republicans bring up an issue, the Democrats pound on it. What happened to the issue?"

He said he endorses a two-party system and, if elected, would take a leadership role in not only promoting bipartisanship and mutual respect in debate, but in returning conscience to the system.

"We make a lot of decisions based on political convenience, not conscience," he said. "The year 2000 is a good time for change, and to change for the good of our country — sticking to the principals taught by our parents, caring for those in the need and who have less. Then and only then will we have a better America."

Group brings dance to the youth, city

By Jeff Stevens
Staff Writer

Just one more day until the Dayton Contemporary Dance Company (DCdC) takes the stage at the Yucca Theater.

The 31-year old dance company will perform Saturday at 8 p.m., but Midland school children and Thursday night visitors to Coleman High School got an advance sampling of the troupe's fancy footwork.

"This dance is going to be wonderful, wonderful, wonderful," said the school's namesake, Viola M. Coleman after a brief excerpt from the program.

The DCdC dancers spent Thursday touring local schools and presented a lecture at a Coleman High School reception Thursday night.

"We've been well received and we're really happy about this," said DeShona Pepper, who has danced with the company since 1992.

She added that Midland children had been particularly receptive to the company and seemed to enjoy the presentations.

"They got to see a day in the life of a dancer," Ms. Pepper said.

The company, which includes 12 dancers, will continue touring schools today.

"I think this is going to be a wonderful opportunity for the Midland community to have such a talented group to come here and perform," said William Merritt, IV, youth development coordinator for the city of Midland, who was in attendance at the reception.

In addition to bringing culture to the desert of West Texas, the performance will serve a philanthropic effort as well. All proceeds from the performance will go toward the Coleman High School Scholarship, which provides Coleman graduates the means to attend post-secondary schools.

Midland Independent School District Board Vice President James Fuller added that even more than a scholarship fundraiser, the performance also is an educational experience.

"The business in which we are in is certainly education, but this is education of another kind. Every young person and every African American young person, in particular, needs to be exposed, needs to see the dance, hear the music and hear the poets and understand that they are very much alive."

Fuller and his wife, Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs President Robbyne Hocker Fuller, spearheaded the effort to bring the dance company to Midland. They also have been instrumental in bringing several other dance companies to Midland in the past.

"I think it's always important for our young people and adults to meet people from other parts of the country. Dance and music is a great place for them to meet," said Ms. Fuller.

She added that by bringing people from all walks of life to the dance recital, Midland's different cultures also will be united.

"When people meet in that way, it's a reunion. We will all come together under the umbrella of the performance," she said.

Tickets are still available for students at $10, as are some $20 adult tickets. Those tickets are available by calling 682-2864 or Coleman High School at 689-5000.

118 reported killed in rocket attack on Chechen capital

By Ruslan Musayav
Associated Press

GROZNY, Russia — Salvos of rockets slammed into a crowded open air market and other parts of Grozny, including a maternity hospital, on Thursday, killing at least 118 people and injuring up to 400, a Chechen official said.

Chechnya said the rockets were fired by Russian forces moving in on the capital. The Russian Defense Ministry in Moscow denied responsibility.

Bleeding bodies and severed limbs were scattered throughout the market after six rockets exploded in the stalls, which were crowded with shoppers during the early evening attack.

At least four other rockets slammed into other parts of the city, including one that hit a maternity hospital, Magomed Magomadov, a senior government official, said.

He said 118 people were killed and between 300 people and 400 people were injured. Many of the injured were in critical condition, he said.

Russian forces moved into Chechnya in late September to impose a security zone around the breakaway republic and to wipe out Islamic militants. Earlier, Russia had been bombing militant bases after the militants invaded neighboring Dagestan twice this summer and were suspected of bombing four apartment blocks and killing about 300 people.

But the Russian advance prompted fears that the two sides would repeat their 1994-96 civil war, in which Russian forces were battered by street fighting, and Chechnya was left devastated but with de facto independence.

At the market on Thursday, hundreds of terrified people, many screaming and crying, ran for cover as rockets exploded. Streets were jammed with people trying to escape. Some onlookers tried to help the wounded.

"It was dark and then, all of a sudden, the place was illuminated and something was sparkling in the air. Then we heard the explosions," Umar Madayev said.

Grozny's already overcrowded and poorly equipped hospitals were packed with the injured. A few doctors, working with almost no medicine, operated under the glare of kerosene lamps because the electricity was out.

The wounded lay in pools of blood in the hospital's dirty, dark corridors, as there were not enough beds.

Russian troops, meanwhile, closed in on Grozny, with tanks and armored personnel carriers reportedly within eight miles of the city. Chechen officials said some Russian soldiers had been spotted even closer.

Russia has repeatedly denied targeting civilians, despite Chechen claims that hundreds have been killed. Russia has said it is aiming only at the militants.

Just a few hours before the explosions, the government issued a statement declaring that "the fight against terrorists and bandits shall in no way turn into a fight against peoples of Chechnya."

Russian warplanes bombed Grozny repeatedly last month, knocking out communications facilities, oil refineries and other installations. As ground troops neared Grozny this week, the capital's outskirts shook from the concussion of nearby shelling, but none of the shells apparently hit the city.

Russian officials said Thursday that more federal troops had crossed the Terek River to take up positions outside Grozny, with forward units sitting on the city outskirts.

Russian military leaders have sent mixed signals about whether they intended to send troops into the capital.

But Deputy Defense Minister, Gen. Vladimir Toporov, said: "sooner or later, the troops will enter Grozny. If not troops, then the (Russian) authorities will."

North of Grozny, Russian aircraft and artillery on Thursday pounded Chechen positions in three settlements: Tolstoy-Yurt, Goryachevodsk and Petropavlovskaya. Six people were killed, and 10 were wounded in the raids, Chechen officials said.

Russian artillery shelled villages in the Nozhai-Yurt and Gudermes regions of eastern Chechnya, destroying about 60 houses.

Vakha Ibragimov, a spokesman for Chechen military headquarters, said 58 civilians had been killed and 200 wounded in the last day and night of attacks outside the capital. The figure could not be independently confirmed.

Locklar

CENTURY OF LIFE

W.N. "Newt" Locklar was guest of honor at a reception given in celebration of his 100th birthday. The event, attended by 75 friends and family members, took place Oct. 15 at the Best Western in Midland.

Guests at the party included Locklar's sons and their wives, three grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. The youngest grandchild, Cody Allen Watts, was a special guest. The baby was born last month, 100 years after Locklar's birth.

Locklar has lived in Midland since his family moved here in 1914. He worked as a farmer, and in 1988 was recognized by the Texas Agricultural Department for being the oldest producer actively farming in 34 counties. He worked for Gulf Oil Co. for 28 bears before retiring to become a full-time farmer.

Goree

YOU CAN GO HOME AGAIN...

Fern Dannelley Goree of Midland will be honored as Coming Home Queen during Howard Payne University's Homecoming festivities this weekend.

Mrs. Goree will be honored during HPU's alumni awards banquet today and during halftime of the football game Saturday afternoon.

She enrolled at HPU in 1944 and moved to Phoenix the next year to begin missionary service at Baptist Chinese Center. Later she completed her degree at HPU.

Mrs. Goree earned a master's degree from Michigan State University and worked as a psychiatric social worker for Michigan public schools for 20 years. Her husband, Jay Dannelley, was pastor and director of missions in Michigan until his death in 1975.

Mrs. Goree was vice president of the Baptist State Convention of Midland, president of the Michigan Baptist Foundation, member of the Michigan Baptist State Executive Committee and trustee of the Southern Baptist Convention's Foreign Mission Board. From 1982-93 she was a missionary in Botswana, where she directed a Bible school and helped start a Baptist church.

Mrs. Goree retired in 1993 and moved to Midland. In 1998 she married Bill Goree, former classmate at HPU, and together they were volunteer missionaries in Botswana for five months that year.

Garza

SERVICE AWARD

Felipe Garza of Midland will receive the Dr. Jose Rivas Distinguished Service Award at the Howard Payne University Hispanic Alumni Luncheon on Saturday. The luncheon is part of HPU's Homecoming activities scheduled for this weekend.

Garza, an administrator for Buckner Children and Family Services in Midland, attended HPU from 1975-77. He earned bachelor's (1984) and master's degrees (1998) in social work from Our Lady of the Lake University.

Garza has been with Buckner since 1982. In 1990 he was appointed as an adminstrator, becoming the first Hispanic to serve in that capacity in the Buckner system. His areas of responsibility include Midland, Odessa, El Paso and Laredo.

He served with the Texas Youth Commission for five years and was named "Outstanding Childcare Worker" in the state in 1982 by the TYC. In 1996 he was honored by the Mexican Baptist Covention for "lifetime achievement" in working with Hispanic families in South Texas.

Garza and his wife, Rosie, an HPU alumna, have three children.

KEEP ON COOKIN'

The Jerry King Cooking Team of Midland will travel to Lynchburg, Tenn., this weekend to compete in the 11th annual Jack Daniel's World Championship Invitational Barbecue.

Each of the 40-plus teams in the competition qualified by winning a state championship or sanctioned competition with more than 50 geams competing. The Jerry King Cooking Team qualified by placing at the Mayfest Cookoff in Eddy.

Categories for this weekend's event are pork ribs, poultry, beef brisket, whole hog, pork shoulder, dessert and Jack Daniel's sauce.

Autopsy reveals Big Spring jail inmate dies of seizure

BIG SPRING (AP) — A man died in his jail cell of a seizure, possibly linked to emotional distress or triggered by ingesting a toxic substance, according to an autopsy.

The report from the Lubbock County Medical Examiner's Office draws no strong conclusions about Kendall Ruffin's Aug. 24 death, which is still under investigation, District Attorney Hardy Wilkerson said Thursday.

Ruffin, 40, was under suicide watch for repeatedly trying to slash his wrists when he was found dead in his Howard County cell.

Ruffin died only a few hours after receiving a 99-year sentence for aggravated sexual assault. Authorities rushed to his cell after a neighboring inmate called out. Ruffin was found sprawled on his cot with a small pool of blood on the floor.

The dead man's underwear was laced through the bars of his cell.

Wilkerson had said after Ruffin's death that it appeared he ingested bleach. Investigators found small baggies in the floor drain in his cell, where bleach was used to fight plumbing odors.

The report makes no mention of bleach and states that toxicologic analysis was negative for "drugs of abuse, chlorine and heavy metals." But it does note there were injuries in his gullet and unidentified brown granular material on the mucous membrane.

"The whole thing could be triggered by the introduction of a noxious substance ... or emotional stimuli. Of course, the guy just got a 99-year prison sentence. That's pretty stimulating," Wilkerson said.

Justice of the Peace Marilyn Carson said she had ruled out foul play, but still was unclear whether the death was natural or accidental. She planned to meet with the medical examiner to discuss the findings.

The Texas Rangers also are investigating.

Netanyahus are questioned about boxes of 'pretty things'

By Ron Kampeas
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israeli police grilled former Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and his wife for nine hours Thursday, pressing them about the contents of dozens of boxes — some marked "Fragile, pretty things" — that police suspect contained gifts the couple kept illegally.

The questioning came a day after police raided the Netanyahus' home and office to cart away the boxes in a media event that allies of the controversial hardliner claimed was part of a "political persecution."

Most of the items in question had been in boxes in a storeroom at the Central Bureau of Statistics.

Police spokeswoman Linda Menuhin said the Netanyahus had been cautioned they were suspected of "holding items and gifts against the law." Police were reviewing each carefully packed item.

Menuhin would not detail the items, but TV and newspaper reports said they included silverware, menorahs, candlesticks, carpets, pictures, scarves and a gold letter opener that was a gift from Vice President Al Gore.

Civil servants are forbidden to keep gifts in Israel.

The Netanyahus' lawyers said the suspicions were groundless, and said the boxes were in the warehouse precisely because the Netanyahus were reviewing which items belonged to them and which belonged to the state.

"It was for temporary storage, between the phases of official and private life," lawyer David Shimron told Israel army radio.

Sarah Netanyahu supervised the packing when the couple prepared to leave their official residence in May, Israel army radio said. Some of the boxes were labeled "Mrs. Netanyahu."

Netanyahu waved briefly before he and his wife entered the Fraud Squad headquarters in the Tel Aviv suburb of Bat Yam at 10 a.m. on Thursday, his 50th birthday. They stayed until about 7 p.m. It was not known if they were questioned separately or together.

The searches extended from another investigation into allegations that Netanyahu accepted illegal favors from a cleaning and moving contractor, Avner Amedi, while in office.

Amedi never took payment during Netanyahu's term, and police suspect that he was expecting illegal favors in return. As soon as Netanyahu lost elections in May, Amedi submitted a bill for $100,000 to the prime minister's office.

Much of Amedi's work was at Netanyahu's private home. The Yediot Ahronot daily reported he polished the floors there weekly, even though the Netanyahus were living in the official prime minister's residence.

Amedi's lawyer, Yaron Rabinovitch, said the contractor had promised to provide information on the Netanyahus to the police as part of a plea bargain deal that would keep him out of jail. Rabinovitch said Amedi's information was particularly damaging to Mrs. Netanyahu.

"I believe Mrs. Netanyahu has a tougher legal problem than Mr. Netanyahu," Rabinovitch said.

Netanyahu, who froze peace talks with Arabs during much of his three years in office, lost a bruising election in May to a moderate, Ehud Barak. Barak campaigned on reviving the peace process, but also promised clean government after three years of scandals involving both Netanyahus — scandals Netanyahu said were mostly the invention of a liberal media.

Journalists were tipped off to Wednesday's searches in advance, while the Netanyahus were taken by surprise. Legislators across the spectrum said that was inappropriate.

"He is not guilty until proven so," Environment Minister Dalia Itzik, one of Netanyahu's toughest critics, told Israel television. "We must preserve his dignity."

Netanyahu has retired from politics, but some critics suggested police were settling scores with a prime minister who frequently clashed with the department.

"Half of the population in Israel would swear there is a witch-hunt against the Netanyahu family," lawmaker Reuven Rivlin of Netanyahu's Likud party told the TV. He called the investigation "political prosecution."

Newspapers quoted Mrs. Netanyahu as yelling at police, "You would not have behaved this way with Leah Rabin," — the widow of Yitzhak Rabin, assassinated four years ago by an opponent to his land-for-peace policies.

Rabin resigned from his first term in 1977, when it was discovered that his wife had maintained an illegal foreign bank account.

Police were stung by the charges of bias.

"Despite unmerited criticism, police will continue a determined investigation," a police statement said, noting that fraud squad boss Miri Golan had already received death threats because of the case.

Drug traffickers target Europe as U.S. use declines

By David Briscoe
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Illegal drug use is falling in the United States but rising sharply in Europe, U.S. officials say. The amount of drugs seized in Europe more than doubled this year as South American traffickers targeted the continent.

Barry McCaffrey, President Clinton's chief drug policy adviser, is holding a series of drug summits across Europe next week to address the problem. He is also pushing for a drug-free Olympics.

Anti-drug authorities classify 13 million Americans as current illegal drug users, compared with 25 million in 1980. Cocaine use has dropped the most dramatically, from 5.7 million in 1985 to 1.8 million, according to McCaffrey's Office of National Drug Control Policy. A current drug user is anyone who used drugs at least once in the past month.

Comparable statistics are not available for most of Europe, although surveys taken in recent years show cocaine use ranging from 0.5 percent of the population in Belgium to 3.3 percent in Spain. Ross Deck of McCaffrey's office, who has been meeting with European officials tracking drug use, said there is ample evidence that drug use is increasing across Europe although countries are only beginning to compile statistics.

"Cocaine is looking for new markets," McCaffrey said at a news conference Thursday, and it's finding them in Europe, where attitudes toward some narcotics differ from those in the United States.

The International Narcotics Control Board, in its latest report, cited increased demand for illegal synthetic drugs in Europe and said heroin use is up in some countries. It said preventing illegal drug use is difficult on a continent "where it is increasingly being viewed as an almost normal cultural phenomenon." It said cocaine use is not seen as a major public health problem.

The board, based in Vienna, Austria, said Europe is not only a major destination for drugs, including heroin, but an emerging producer of marijuana and illegal synthetic drugs such as "ecstasy."

McCaffrey said Americans need European help in stopping the flow of 700 metric tons of cocaine a year from Colombia, Bolivia and Peru, about half of which still ends up on U.S. streets.

McCaffrey leaves Sunday for meetings with officials in Britain, Belgium, Portugal and France.

He said his message will be that cocaine is not a soft drug and that Europeans should contribute more in the battle against narcotics from Latin America. He credited good police work by the Spanish and Dutch for much of a sharp increase in cocaine seizures this year, but he said the increase in busts every year for six years "is indicative of a changing problem."

McCaffrey said Europeans should contribute more to alternative economic development in the Andean region and step up efforts to stop drug production and money laundering.

"I want to make sure they get the point that they are now the target of a drug threat that is searching for new customers," McCaffrey said.

School bus, dump truck hit; 51 injured

CENTRAL BRIDGE, N.Y. (AP) — A bus carrying second-graders to a pumpkin hunt collided with a dump truck at a dangerous intersection Thursday, injuring 51 youngsters and adults.

One child was in critical condition, and three youngsters and an adult were in serious condition Thursday afternoon.

The bus was carrying 44 children, three teachers and four adult chaperones from Albany School No. 18 on a field trip to the Pumpkin Patch, a popular Halloween spot 30 miles west of Albany.

"The kids are going to be traumatized," said Sandra Bowles, whose 7-year-old granddaughter escaped injury in the crash. "They are so young."

The empty dump truck, registered to a construction company, was pulling a trailer when it struck the back right side of the bus.

The bus spun 180 degrees and rolled to a rest in grass about 500 feet from the point of impact. The collision caused the front end of the bus to dip onto the pavement, knocking the hood off the vehicle.

The truck was traveling on Route 7, which has a 55 mph speed limit. The bus was traveling on Route 30A, which has a 30 mph speed limit. At the intersection of the two roads, there is a flashing yellow light for traffic on Route 7 and flashing red on Route 30A.

Fire Chief Eric Johnson called it one of the most dangerous intersections in the area, although he said this was the worst accident he's seen in his 25 years with the department.

The bus driver, William J. Treacy, 79, and the truck driver, Edward Cook, 52, were not injured.

Schoharie County Sheriff John Bates said it did not appear that drugs or alcohol were factors in the crash, and no charges were filed.

Better service by airlines is definite need

Sometimes you can't get there from here — literally! And some Midland businessmen and businesswomen told the Texas Regional Air Service Task Force their concerns about air service into and out of Midland in a Wednesday hearing at Midland International Airport.

The biggest concerns appeared to be the need for direct flights to Denver, Colo. and San Antonio, increased El Paso airliner service, and regional service to Alpine or Ruidoso, N.M. Those all are legitimate concerns that need to be addressed.

Airlines determine their routes based largely on air passenger figures, so it stands to reason that if more passengers are flying out of Midland International more airlines will compete for that service.

The air service concerns hit home hard to Midland and other Permian Basin residents, evidenced by the wry comment of John Larson, vice president for the Power Systems Division of Midland's West Texas CAT, who noted that "You can drive faster (to Amarillo) than you can fly" by taking the present circuitous route to Dallas then back to Amarillo.

Of course, airlines determine their routes based largely on air passenger figures, so it stands to reason that if more passengers are flying out of Midland International more airlines will compete for that service. That is, after all, how the airlines think.

That point was addressed by Grant Billingsley of Wagner & Brown Ltd. who told those present for the Wednesday hearing, "What we would like is more people coming into this airport from the regional area, which would create greater demand going from Midland." That in turn would justify more flights out of Midland International.

It all fits together. The quest of Midlanders for better air service ties directly into Midland's effort to become a regional shopping center, which ties to the effort now under way for Midland to be identified as a regional center for sports (the Sports Complex now being voted on by Midlanders) and entertainment, which is directly linked with the effort to improve highways through such projects as "La Entrada al Pacifico."

The hearing Wednesday was important because until Midlanders make their wishes known, they must accept only what is grudgingly offered to them. Better air service here is definitely a need.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Oct. 22, the 295th day of 1999. There are 70 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 22, 1968, The manned spacecraft Apollo 7 returned safely, splashing down in the Atlantic Ocean.

On this date:

In 1746, Princeton University in New Jersey received its charter.

In 1797, French balloonist Andre-Jacques Garnerin made the first parachute descent, landing safely from a height of about 3,000 feet.

In 1836, Sam Houston was inaugurated as the first constitutionally elected president of the Republic of Texas.

In 1928, Republican presidential nominee Herbert Hoover spoke of the "American system of rugged individualism" in a speech at New York's Madison Square Garden.

In 1954, West Germany joined the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In 1962, President Kennedy announced an air and naval blockade of Cuba, following the discovery of Soviet missile bases on the island.

In 1973, Pablo Casals, Spanish cellist, conductor and composer, died in Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, at age 96.

In 1978, negotiators for Egypt and Israel announced in Washington they had reached tentative agreement on the main points of a peace treaty.

In 1979, the U.S. government allowed the deposed Shah of Iran to travel to New York for medical treatment — a decision that precipitated the Iran hostage crisis.

FBI enters CIA territory: Foreign countries

WASHINGTON — The CIA is not allowed to conduct operations on FBI turf: U.S. soil. No such restriction excludes the FBI from CIA turf: foreign soil.

When Louis Freeh took over the FBI director's slot in September, 1993, 55 agents worked in overseas offices. Now there are over 200 FBI employees overseas in what will be 37 offices at the end of this year, with six more pending for Asia and the former Soviet Republic. And those are just the advance forces. When something big occurs, FBI agents swarm on the scene. From June 1998 to June 1999, more than 1,000 FBI agents were sent abroad to pursue domestic leads.

Anderson

Kenya was the largest FBI crime scene ever processed, sources tell us. More than 1,100 FBI agents took up residence in a tent city to investigate the bombings. "Look at the major bombings in the last few years," our source said. "Each time the FBI is given immediate access, we solve the crime." An FBI agent from South Africa was the third person on the scene in Kenya. The embassy bombings case is still pending, though the FBI has many of the alleged culprits in captivity.

The FBI-CIA problem is one of overlapping jurisdictions, especially when those "jurisdictions" are other countries. Six years ago, at the announcement of the FBI's international expansion, CIA and FBI officials reportedly sat down agents from both agencies and told them, "You will learn to live together or you will pack your bags and go home."

The FBI and CIA do not share office space and have to be careful about what information they pass between offices.

The FBI is a criminal-investigation agency, whereas the CIA conducts intelligence-gathering for national security.

The FBI compiles facts to bring to trial in the United States, and because of strict judicial laws, it must be careful not to let CIA intelligence taint its investigation. The FBI is also cautious not to obtain evidence through a CIA agent who could then be subpoenaed. If a CIA agent's mission is exposed, he or she has ceased to be useful to the agency.

The FBI investigates criminal activity: the who and the how to bring the culprits to justice on U.S. soil.

The CIA identifies the organization: the who and the why to try and prevent it from ever happening again.

Unlike CIA operatives, FBI agents are never undercover. They are completely overt.

Here is how it works: If the FBI is tracking a criminal in the United States who was receiving many phone calls from a particular number in Russia, an agent will be sent to Russia to track down the number, the person making the calls and the purpose of the calls. But neither the FBI nor the CIA have the power of arrest or the authority to operate overseas.

The reality is clearly otherwise, as we witnessed with the apprehension of Mir Aimal Kansi, the murderer of motorists just outside the CIA headquarters in Langley, Virginia. A reward was posted, a tip received, and FBI agents tracked him down and captured him on the Pakistan-Afghanistan border in 1997, national sovereignties notwithstanding.

Midland got 11 extra years out of Christensen Stadium

I am glad we have a chance to get a new baseball stadium. Minor league baseball has been in Midland for 28 years. Many Texas cities (including Beaumont, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Waco and more than 10 others) have lost their Texas League baseball teams. We really do not want to fall into the category of these other cities and lose our team.

I have received many uninformed comments about the baseball stadium and I would like to set the record straight. It is not now nor has it ever been the current ownership's idea, or their greed that is pushing for a new stadium. The simple fact is that Major League Baseball set minimum stadium guidelines in 1991 for all Double-A baseball. These standards are established for the safety and convenience of the spectators and participants.

Midland is one of only two Double-A teams in the nation that has not built a new stadium or rebuilt an old one. We should applaud the RockHounds and the city of Midland for getting an additional 11 extra years of service (1991—2001) out of the old stadium. Do we want Midland to be known for having the worst Double-A stadium in the country?

We will lose professional baseball if we continue to ignore Major League baseball guidelines. We simply must have a stadium for the future. Our attendance for the RockHounds is ranked fourth highest in the nation per capita. With a solid RockHounds ownership group and staff along with a winning team and the prospect of a new stadium, I think you will see that the interest in baseball will become even more popular in the years to come.

Baseball is now and has always been a big sport in Midland. Within Midland County we have four outstanding high school teams and will soon have a team at Midland College. Please understand that Christensen Stadium will continue to be utilized for a large number of youth baseball games. There are more youth baseball players in Midland than any other youth sport.

Vote Yes for the new complex. I want to see another Minor League Player of the Year sporting Midland's name again.

Recent debate is over abiogenesis, not evolution

The creation/evolution issue can't possibly be decided by a series of 350-word letters. My suggestion for anyone who is interested in learning more about the subject is to discuss the topic with someone who is knowledgeable about both religion and science. It should be fairly easy to find someone with an advanced science degree (geologist, physicist, etc.) who understands most of the different aspects of the controversy at your local place of worship.

As for the recent letter writers, quoting evolutionists out of context hardly proves creation. Those letter writers have lost the distinction between abiogenesis — creation of life from unlife — and evolution, which is existing life changing over the history of the earth. Charley Reese made a similar error in a recent column, quoting astronomer Fred Hoyle's disbelief in abiogenesis (he believes life on earth came from space spores) as evidence against evolution, which Hoyle actually supports.

In the third paragraph of the most recent letter (Letters, Oct. 12) John Olliff castigates an earlier writer for assuming that the discussion is on "young earth creationism." In defense of that earlier writer, the assumption is usually made because creationists who believe in an old earth have no reason to doubt a central theme of evolution, descent with modification: They have God as the modifier. Furthermore, when old earth creationists allow the earth to be billions of years old, they relinquish a central tenet of conservative Christianity: That the King James Version of the Bible is absolutely literally true.

If Olliff accepts an old age for the earth, then he is to be commended for his ability to allow that God may have created the world on the timescale of His choosing. From there, it's only a short step to allowing God to have created the world in the manner of His choosing, however inconceivable it might be for us mortals that God could have planned our universe from a beginning billions of years ago.

Vision for city should reach into east and south sides

The paramount focus of Midland's Vision 2000 and Beyond should be inclusion of Midland's east- and south side in the fabled master plan for this city. Inclusion in the sense that the replicating of "Anchor Projects" in those areas of town will spur development long overdue, and will provide a quantifiable return on the tax dollars paid by those neglected residents.

Also with that investment a maintenance plan (long ignored by local government) should be developed to insure the sustaining of the improvement in the community. A plan which should include the refurbishing and utilization of seemingly abandoned government owned structures and possibly partially realizing some Vision objectives.

Finally, the abandonment of cronyism should be adhered to insure that competent personnel will be involved in the projects and not a warm body collecting a paycheck. That is needed along with a recognition that this area's residents make a significant monetary and social contribution to Midland.

Sportsmanship is lacking in our society

I graduated from Midland High School last year and have noticed something about our community in the five years that I have lived here. Right now with the campaign for a new sports facility, I thought that it is important for everyone to know how we are good sports.

In the student section at Midland and Lee High football games, students would begin to leave the stands in the last quarter of the game, especially when the team was losing. I thought, "Sure these students want to get out of here so that they don't have to see their team lose." But at the game of Midland High versus Cooper, I noticed that we have many great role models. We are supposed to show our students that their time is well spent in athletics. We show our support proudly … by leaving the game before it ends (approximately three-quarters of the fans in my section left with five minutes to play).

We have such good sportsmanship principles that we as a community can't even support our teams in the times of their defeat. But it goes further than that. The announcer at the game announced over the loud speaker that even at the Lee High School games it was hard to keep people at the game after halftime. We don't support our teams when they lose and we don't support our teams when they win.

The students see the others leaving so what are they to do? If everyone always leaves before the game is over, why do the players continue their game? But then, when I was attending a Jackalopes game, the fans didn't leave. They showed their sportsmanship by yelling at the referees and throwing items onto the ice. What a way to teach the younger members of our community to act.

Then to add to the arsenal of examples, there's the way that the Philadelphia fans acted when the Cowboy receiver, Michael Irvin, was injured and had to be carried away from the game in an ambulance. Even on the highest levels, we do not express good sportsmanship. Do we really need a new sports complex in the midst of our support? Maybe yes and maybe no, but we do need to vote.

One test should not prevent graduation

I just read the paper and was in complete dismay over what was on the front page: "Seniors must pass TAAS to walk stage" (Reporter-Telegram, Oct. 13). This came as a shock to me. I am a junior at Lee High School. I am getting ready to take the TAAS for the first time. I have been notified that students have to pass the TAAS before graduation, which I disagree with, but now they can't even walk across the stage with their classmates and friends?

I know a lot of teen-agers, including myself, who have horrible test anxieties, and cannot even do well on just a normal weekly test much less the most important test of our high-school lives. Most of these kids do very well on their daily assignments, but whenever the word "test" is heard, students tend to "freeze up." Also, I know when I am having a bad day, or I am sick, I can't concentrate on anything. People's moods and clarity of thought can have dramatic control over their test scores, jobs, and pretty much everything. What if a loved one died or you have the flu, how do you think you would do on a test?

It is unfair that a child can go through 13 years of school (including kindergarten), acquire all of the credits to pass, and yet still not graduate because of one test. Thirteen years is a long time, especially for children and young adults. I think that if students work that hard for that long, one test should not determine whether they should be able to graduate or not. I can understand having to pass to graduate, and going through at least 12 years of school and acquiring enough credits, but I don't understand one test determining a child's future.

Graduation is an important event. One of the most important events of students' or anyone's lives. People remember graduation for a lifetime. If students don't pass their TAAS, they don't get to have the memories that they should. The memory of people clapping and believing in you as you walk across the stage with the rest of your graduating class, and the memory of cheering your friends on, knowing that you will be soon after. But, instead, they get to feel like failures, and stupid teenagers.

Bradley likens goal to Kennedy's vow to put a man on moon

By Sandra Sobieraj
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Claiming the big ideas of this presidential race, Bill Bradley likened his goal of eliminating child poverty to John F. Kennedy's vow to put a man on the moon, and offered Thursday a $9.8 billion "wholesale rescue effort" for the poor.

The Democratic presidential candidate proposed automatic, annual increases in the minimum wage and expanded tax credits and child care subsidies. He also called for government programs to recruit 60,000 teachers into poor school districts and give children an after-hours school hangout seven days a week.

Even if these attempts to attack poverty's root causes proved faulty, Bradley at least wanted credit for trying — like, he said, President Kennedy did.

Launching America's race against the Soviets into space, Kennedy "didn't know what kind of fuel should be used in that booster or what kind of suit the astronauts should wear. He just knew we had to do it," Bradley told teachers, students and social workers at a church in New York's poor, Bedford-Stuyvesant neighborhood.

"Eliminating child poverty as we know it is a big goal," he continued. "But the first step is the commitment and I am making that here today."

An estimated 13.5 million American children live in poverty, defined by the government as a yearly income of $16,400 or less for a family of four.

As Vice President Al Gore, Bradley's rival for the Democratic nomination, likes to point out, that population has shrunk from 15.3 million when he and President Clinton took office in 1993.

Bradley sniffed at that achievement as "better than doing nothing."

"Child poverty is a kind of slow-motion national disaster," Bradley said, and should be treated with the same kind of "wholesale rescue" the government undertakes after hurricanes. "We don't fix a roof here and a window there," he chided.

Gore's office countered that Bradley was offering only warmed-over Clinton administration proposals.

"Senator Bradley is choosing to be an echo to Al Gore's voice in proposing policy that Al Gore has already been fighting for — the minimum wage increase, more teachers and tax credits for working poor," spokesman Chris Lehane said. The vice president has been an advocate on all three matters, though Gore's minimum wage proposal is not as sweeping as Bradley's.

In the candidates' back-and-forth on Thursday, Julian Palmer, spokesman for the National Center for Children in Poverty, sided with Bradley. "He's set a goal and made a commitment that Vice President Gore has not yet made. That's significant," Palmer said.

Bradley's pledge echoed Clinton's 1992 campaign promise — realized in 1996 by the Republican Congress — to "end welfare as we know it" and could prove as self-fulfilling, Palmer said.

Bradley proposed:

- Letting welfare mothers keep the child support collected for them — and currently kept — by states.
- Increasing the minimum wage by $1 over two years (a position he shares with Gore) but then writing into law an automatic annual increase indexed to growth in the nation's median wage. "No one who works full time, year round should have to live in poverty," Bradley said.
- Making more low-income working parents eligible for the Earned Income Tax Credit and increasing the amount of the credit due them.
- Making the Dependent Care tax credit (for up to $1,440 in annual child care expenses for a family with two children) fully refundable so that poor parents owing no income tax get the credit as a cash refund.
- Expanding by $1 billion — to $4.3 billion each year — the child care subsidies available through a block grant program that currently reaches 1 in 7 eligible children.
- Allowing people eligible for food stamps to apply for them at more accessible locations, such as grocery stores, and during more convenient "off" hours.
- Increased funds for Head Start to enroll an additional 400,000 children.
- A "Teach to Reach" program of student loan forgiveness for 60,000 college students, high school graduates and mid-career professionals who certify as teachers and commit to serving in poor urban or rural schools.
- National programs of after-school community centers to keep kids safe and productively occupied outside the normal school day, and "second-chance homes" where teen mothers can learn parenting skills and get job training and housing referrals.

As with the massive health insurance plan he proposed earlier, Bradley's anti-poverty plan would be paid for out of the federal budget surplus.

Governor pushes for legalization

CARRIZOZO, N.M. (AP) — The cyclist focused hard on the deserted road ahead as he pumped his way up a steep slope amid the scrub-covered mountains of southern New Mexico. The sun was just coming up, and he was on the last leg of a five-day, 430-mile journey.

But Gary Johnson had barely broken a sweat.

The Republican governor and triathlete has never attempted an uphill battle he thought he couldn't win. That goes for his latest cause: trying to convince anyone who will listen that drugs should be legalized.

Johnson, 46, is a former drug user who now gets high on nothing more than his own endorphins. He has shocked politicians in both parties by becoming the nation's leading proponent of the legalization of such drugs as marijuana, cocaine and heroin.

Johnson doesn't drink or smoke, and has a bet with colleagues about who can survive longer without cake, cookies or colas. He insists his athleticism and position on drugs are not contradictory, saying legalization would curb drug-related health problems by controlling dosages, frequency and paraphernalia.

"Drugs are a bad choice. They're a handicap," he says. "But does that warrant putting that person in jail or putting a felony on their record for the rest of their lives?"

Johnson says drugs should be regulated and taxed much like cigarettes and liquor. He envisions a scenario in which marijuana would be legalized first, followed by more dangerous drugs such as heroin and cocaine, which would be available by prescription, only for addicts.

Johnson admits he doesn't have a specific, detailed plan, but says he wants to start a debate on the issue.

In his home state, which last year led the nation in drug-induced deaths, Johnson's views on drug legalization have been labeled crazy and irresponsible by both Democrats and Republicans.

His own public safety secretary insists Johnson's crusade has crushed the morale of law officers fighting the war on drugs. U.S. drug czar Barry McCaffrey has ridiculed the governor as "Puff Daddy Johnson" and rushed to New Mexico earlier this month to denounce Johnson's position.

Where others see dissension, Johnson sees progress.

"If this were a wacko idea," he says, "then it wouldn't be going anywhere, there wouldn't be any attention given to it at all."

A millionaire who made his fortune in the construction business, Johnson ousted New Mexico's longest-serving governor in 1994 to capture his first elective office.

The next year he vetoed a record 200 bills. He later became the first New Mexico governor to be held in contempt of court when he failed to halt a welfare program he implemented without legislative approval. He has also become one of the country's most vocal champions of school vouchers.

State Democratic Party chairwoman Diane Denish says Johnson's leadership style mirrors his approach to fitness: He is competitive, unrelenting and prefers to work alone.

"He's an athlete who has not been part of teams, and that's very much how he operates in government — as a single competitor," Ms. Denish says.

For Johnson, the idea that criminalizing drug use is wrong began taking shape in high school, when he tried marijuana despite the warnings of teachers and police.

"What we learned was what everybody learned — that, hey, you smoke marijuana and you are going to go crazy," he says. "Then, there are my friends that actually began smoking pot, and it wasn't the bogeyman."

Little-known White House budget negotiator: partisan, but flexible

By Anne Gearen
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — One level below the surface, a lot of the real work in deciding where the government's money is spent gets done by people like loyal Democrat Jack Lew and loyal Republican Wayne Struble.

Here's how Struble describes their proceedings: "Every day he would come in and say exactly what he had to say, and I would say exactly what I had to say. ... It got to where we could say each other's lines. But after we dispensed with that back and forth, then it was serious."

He was talking about the 1997 negotiations that ended in a budget-balancing deal between the Democratic White House and congressional Republicans.

But the description fits the minuet under way these days on Capitol Hill between Lew, who is President Clinton's little-known budget director, and Republicans such as Struble, staff director of the House Budget Committee and also a behind-the-scenes operator.

Lew, a veteran Democratic aide who worked on Capitol Hill and in party politics before going to the White House at the start of the Clinton administration, is leading budget-bargaining talks that began Wednesday at the Capitol.

Clinton wants several billion dollars more than Congress has so far provided for hiring teachers and police officers, foreign aid and other programs. The president also wants to kill provisions helping the oil, mining and other industries that the administration considers anti-environmental.

Apart from a brief tenure as a private lawyer, the 44-year-old New York City native has worked in politics, government or government-related think tanks for his entire career.

Lew is married, with two children, and known throughout the administration as an observant Jew who prefers not to work on Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath. Even Clinton, who routinely calls staffers at odd hours, tries not to bother Lew on Saturdays.

Lew took over as head of the White House Office of Management and Budget last year, after serving as the green-eyeshade group's No. 2. As the deputy to then-budget chief Franklin Raines, Lew was a front-line negotiator in talks that produced the 1997 budget accord.

Earlier, Lew was an adviser on the failed 1994 Clinton health care overhaul and the launch of the AmeriCorps national service program.

Lew worked 14 years for congressional Democrats, including a stint as a senior policy adviser to the late House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill Jr., D-Mass. In that job, Lew was on the opposite side of divided government in Washington, working for a top Democrat in a Democrat-led Congress while Republican Ronald Reagan was in the White House.

Lew represented O'Neill in negotiations that overhauled Social Security in 1983 when the program was facing bankruptcy. Much of the rancor in this year's budget discussions has focused on whether either side will dip into the Social Security surplus to pay for other programs.

"Jack has been at the heart of budget policy-making and the budget wars, really, for the last 15 years, or more than that," said Jake Siewert, a White House spokesman who knows Lew well. "No one has been more involved at the detail level, and now sort of from the broader level than Jack. ... He's seen it from the congressional side, and he's seen it from the White House side."

Lew is the fourth budget director to serve in the Clinton administration, after Leon Panetta, Alice Rivlin and Raines, who left to head the home mortgage company Fannie Mae.

Lew, a Harvard graduate who also holds a law degree from Georgetown University, is known as a serious student on sometimes arcane budget matters, said Robert Greenstein, head of the left-leaning Center on Budget and Policy Priorities.

"He's not someone who's on talk shows every Sunday," said Greenstein, referring to weekly public affairs television programs that frequently feature administration officials. "He's someone who is invaluable to the administration in putting the budget together behind the scenes."

Gumbel tees off on former 'Today' partner

NEW YORK (AP) — Bryant Gumbel may be a golf buddy of his former "Today" show colleague Matt Lauer, but don't expect him to tee up with Katie Couric anytime soon.

Gumbel, who returns to morning television on CBS' "The Early Show" on Nov. 1, appears to take a few shots at his former "Today" partner in a profile to be published Sunday in The New York Times Magazine.

While talking about his canceled CBS newsmagazine, "Public Eye with Bryant Gumbel," Gumbel brings up Ms. Couric's experience on an earlier NBC show, "Now," which became part of "Dateline NBC."

"I wish I was quick enough to remember at the time but, you know, Katie had a prime-time magazine fail under her," he said.

Referring to his supposed difficulty in getting along with people, Gumbel said: "I've had one assistant for 18 years. Somebody who shall remain nameless went through five in five years. I had one makeup and hair person the whole time I was at NBC. Somebody who shall remain nameless went through three or four."

Ms. Couric, Gumbel's partner at the end of his 15 years on "Today," sent word through a spokeswoman that she "respectfully" declined comment.

Gumbel, in a telephone interview, said he did not intend to single out Ms. Couric in pointing out that other network stars had been on unsuccessful magazines. He wouldn't say who he was referring to in his comment about personal assistants.

"If I wanted to refer to anyone in particular, I would have named them," he said.

Gumbel said that he found the idea that he was attacking Ms. Couric amusing, and that there wasn't "any evidence" that the two didn't get along.

"I even said in the article that I never said a bad word about Katie and I'm not going to start now," he said, "and then suddenly people want to write that I've said all these bad things."

About Ms. Couric and Gumbel, the article quotes a former staff member at "Today," who is not identified, as saying: "I don't think either one of them wanted to spend one minute together."

The Times also said that several former colleagues believe that Gumbel cannot accept Ms. Couric's status as the leading personality in morning television.

"Of course, I don't think that's correct," Gumbel said.

Libby Parsons discovers her husband's alive. He has their son and is living a happy life while she's doing time for a crime that never happened — his murder. She's told by a fellow inmate, a disbarred lawyer imprisoned for murdering her husband, that she can publicly kill her husband and walk away a free person. The reason: double jeopardy.

But can she do so in real life in a criminal court of law?

"It's fun watching as I understand it, but it's not the law," said Assistant District Attorney Teresa Clingman of the Midland County District Attorney's office. She has not seen the movie "Double Jeopardy" currently showing at Hollywood Theatres 10.

"It's not the same criminal episode," Ms. Clingman said. "A different set of facts and circumstances and circuitous. It makes great fiction. But the only thing you couldn't be convicted of is the original killing again."

Ms. Parsons received bad advice from her fellow inmate, Ms. Clingman said, adding: "A lot of times people in prison because they have nothing else to do sit around and read the law, but they don't necessarily know what the law is, and we refer to them as jailhouse lawyers."

"Good movies, bad law," said Texas District Court Judge John Hyde, who has seen "Double Jeopardy" starring Ashley Judd and Tommy Lee Jones. It's inaccurate.

The Fifth Amendment says, "nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb," and the Texas Constitution says virtually the same thing. But that doesn't mean offense in the generic sense.

"What she did in the movie is not an identical act of crime. ... She was wrongfully convicted the first time, but after she gets out, finds that he's alive, stalks him," and if she were to premeditate his murder and carry out her plan, she would not be "protected under the double-jeopardy clause. There's no get-out-of-jail-free card in that instance."

Texas District Court Judge Jody Gilles concurred.

"Double jeopardy protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction. And it protects against multiple punishments for the same offense."

Applause for Revenge

Unexpected success of 'Double Jeopardy' gives studio head message about the power of women

N.Y. Times News Service

To Sherry Lansing, the chairwoman of Paramount, the underlying message of the unexpected success of "Double Jeopardy" is a simple one: don't underestimate the power of the female audience. Especially if a film involves revenge by a woman against her venal husband.

In the thriller, Ashley Judd plays a woman falsely imprisoned for murdering her husband who has actually run off with her best friend. They've also taken her young son. When Ms. Judd's character is finally paroled from prison, well, watch out.

The film received modest reviews. But in its first two weeks it unexpectedly soared at the box office and was No. 1, grossing nearly $50 million so. In late September, the film even beat out the highly promoted "Three Kings," the comedy-drama about three soldiers seeking a fortune in the Persian Gulf War.

Ms. Lansing, as well as Leonard Goldberg, one of the film's producers, said they realized that "Double Jeopardy" had struck a nerve with female viewers when during test screenings women began shouting, "Go, girl, go!" as Ms. Judd began hunting down the villainous husband who framed her.

"It played like a rock concert," said Ms. Lansing. "The audience just loved it. It was delicious to watch."

Goldberg, whose television partnership with Aaron Spelling produced series like "Starsky and Hutch" and "Charlie's Angels," said, "I don't know what it is about us guys, but women in the audience seem to love the fact that this is a woman who's been wronged, becomes resolute, and nothing will stop her from seeking revenge and getting her kid back." The movie, he said, was especially popular among women in the Midwest and South.

"It's unusually strong in the middle of the country," said Goldberg. "Actually the ultimate drive in the movie is not so much revenge but getting her kid back."

The film, written by David Weisberg and Douglas S. Cook, also stars Tommy Lee Jones as a burned-out parole officer seeking to hunt down Ms. Judd's character. It was directed by Bruce Beresford, who has directed films like "Tender Mercies" and "Driving Miss Daisy."

Ms. Judd said she took the role for two reasons: to work with Beresford and to play a role that reached beyond the way women were often depicted in film. "It goes way beyond the traditional roles and behavior of women in movies," she said. "And there's a wonderful adrenaline rush connected to the revenge drive."

Ms. Judd, daughter of Naomi and sister of Wynonna, said that on a personal level female empowerment issues were not especially new for her. "I grew up with role models of women

Midland Reporter-Musicgram

By Rob Hunt

I am often asked if there are any living composers still writing "classical" music. My answer is an enthusiastic, yes, though I can't say that living composers — at least good ones — are writing music that sounds like Tchaikovsky.

Hunt

Contemporary art music has its own sound influenced by such modern phenomena as pop music, ethnic music, computers and so on. What it retains of the "classical" tradition is an interest in larger, more sophisticated forms, the sound palette of the symphony orchestra (sometimes in combination with electronic instruments) and the musical inventory covering a millennium from which composers draw inspiration and to which their music constantly refers.

That this rich repertoire is unknown to most people is not surprising. Since the death of Beethoven, serious music audiences have become increasingly reluctant to accept music of their own time. One of the problems is the difficulty in presenting a satisfactory performance of a new piece, since the unfamiliar is always more challenging than the commonplace. As our orchestra prepares this week's performance of the opera "Carmen," I am reminded that the orchestra members who played the premiere in 1875 pronounced the work unplayable!

If the first exposure to "Carmen" was less than enjoyable for the musicians, it was downright irksome for the audience, who found both story and music vulgar. Within a year, however, "Carmen" was being performed widely and was well on its way to achieving the enormous popularity it enjoys today.

There are compositions being written in our lifetime which will become standards of the classical repertoire in the future. If you're interested in recent creative efforts in the classical tradition, check out a well-stocked record store the next time you are in a big city. Names like John Adams, Christopher Rouse and Alan Jay Kernis are likely to command great respect in the next century. Links to the past may be heard in Adams' "Harmonielehre," which summons up the cosmic sweep of the 19th century Mahler symphonies. Influences of popular music are evident in Rouse's "Bonham," which pays tribute to the great rock drummer (John Bonham of Led Zeppelin, whose son, Jason, also was a drummer).

Just remember to give any new work multiple hearings. A great work of art sometimes reveals its pleasures only to the most patient and humble.

JEOPARDY: Issue is seldom simple in court of law of raping a woman on Jan. 1, 1999, who is acquitted. That person rapes the same woman on Jan. 30, 1999. He can be tried for the Jan. 30 rape because of the following: "Same woman, same offense, different time."

Nancy Cravens, a paralegal at C. Kirk and Williams, has seen the movie and questioned the story's feasibility when dealing with the parole officer (Jones).

"Where are you going to find a parole officer ready to give up his career to help her?" Ms. Cravens asked, adding that in real life, when Ms. Parsons violates her parole, she'd be sent back to prison where she would "have to call an attorney and get somebody to prove that's him (her husband)" so she could go back to court and be acquitted.

She did feel that the situation Ms. Parsons finds herself in — serving time for her husband's murder that never happened — is not an unlikely premise with a person who establishes multiple identities.

"It could happen," Ms. Cravens said. "He's a con artist."

As for the movie, Ms. Cravens said, "I just thought it would have more action than it did. The advertising and the movie critics said it was thrilling, that you'd be on the edge of your seat. Tom-my Lee Jones did two movies — 'The Fugitive' and the one with Wesley Snipes (U.S. Marshals) — that were action packed. I thought this was supposed to be like those. But it didn't have as much action."

'I don't think any legal scholar would disagree on the movie 'Double Jeopardy.' It is not double jeopardy to do what she had in mind.'
— Texas District Court Judge John Hyde

When double jeopardy comes up in a court of law, the issue is seldom simple. Gilles has had one case in his seven years on the bench.

"At first blush it appeared the matter had previously been disposed of in another court and was being raised again in this court, but in the final analysis, it was two separate offenses," Gilles said.

Hyde has seen "claims of double jeopardy and some of them have been successful. But double jeopardy is really a complex concept even for the United States Supreme Court. Twice in the last 10 years the United States Supreme Court has changed the ruling affecting double jeopardy.

"For many years the prevailing case was a case called Blockberger. Then somewhere around 1991-1992, it changed in a case called Corbin. Then within the last three or four years, they changed their minds again.

"My point is, even though the wording is simple in the Fifth Amendment and Texas Bill of Rights, situations make the application of that rule very complicated, and even legal scholars on the high court have difficulty establishing a simple rule and applying that rule to those fact situations."

As for the movie, Hyde said the film contained "an intriguing story line" and "interesting characterization.

"I thought the acting was good. ... She is very resourceful and a remarkable survivor. At least the character in the movie is. Ashley Judd is a good actress. I like her. It's a good action movie."

Hyde chuckled as he expressed one concern about the film. "I think I saw too many women in there taking notes, and it disturbs me."

Double jeopardy based in fact not fiction means in a criminal court of law the same crime, the same time, the same set of circumstances, and the same causation. And it's a tricky business, even for the experts.

As Hyde said, "Double jeopardy is an evolving rule that over 200 years later legal scholars and noted jurists have trouble defining and applying very simply. But I don't think any legal scholar would disagree on the movie 'Double Jeopardy.' It is not double jeopardy to do what she had in mind."

Ladies, put those pens away.

'I just thought it would have more action than it did. The advertising and the movie critics said it was thrilling, that you'd be on the edge of your seat. I thought this was supposed to be like those. But it didn't have as much action.'

TBS sets record with network premiere of 'Michael'

N.Y. Times News Service

TBS Superstation's network television premiere of the 1996 comedy "Michael" Sunday, Oct. 10, earned a 5.5 household rating and delivered 4.3 million households, making it basic cable's highest-rated and most-watched theatrical of the year to date.

In addition, the movie's immediate encore presentation (10:15 p.m.), garnered a strong 3.3 rating. The premiere performance of "Michael" also ranks as basic cable's third highest-rated broadcast network premiere title to date, behind the Superstation's August 1998 premiere of The American President (6.6) and September 1997 premiere of Dumb and Dumber (6.4).

The Superstation now claims seven of basic cable's top-10 theatricals in 1999, including Striptease (5.3), Vegas Vacation (4.3), Sister Act (4.2), The Shawshank Redemption (4.1), Total Recall (4.1) and Star Wars, Episode IV: A New Hope (4.0).

"Michael" was also the week's highest-rated movie and fourth highest-rated program on basic cable. The movie drew 3,517,000 adults 18-49 and 3,843,000 adults 25-54, making it basic cable's second highest-rated program and highest-rated movie of the week among those key demos.

With "Michael" leading the pack, the Superstation posted strong prime time gains in ratings and key adult demos. The Superstation's prime time rating for the week is up 10 percent over the same week last year (2.2 vs. 2.0).

who did exactly what they wanted to do and when they wanted to do it," she said.

Ms. Lansing has made several successful "women seeking revenge" films before, notably "The First Wives Club," the comedy in which three older women turn the tables on their husbands and boyfriends who drop them for younger women.

"You're striking a chord here, some strong primal need where women are no longer the victim," Ms. Lansing said. "These movies are really about female empowerment."

Special set due for anniversary of 'The Wall'

N.Y. Times News Service

—December 1999 marks the twentieth anniversary of Pink Floyd's epic concept album "The Wall." To commemorate the event, EMI Records are releasing "Is There Anybody Out There? The Wall Live" on Wednesday, Dec. Presented in a unique 2 CD, limited edition casebound book, with new artwork by Storm Thorgerson, it will include extra tracks not previously available on CD.

"The Wall" is one of rock music's seminal albums. Conceived and written by Roger Waters, produced by David Gilmour, Bob Ezrin and Roger Waters, it confounded conventional wisdom to reach number one around the world, spawned the multi-platinum single "Another Brick in the Wall (Part 2)" and introduced Pink Floyd to another generation of fans. Over the next two years "The Wall Live" was performed in Los Angeles, New York, Dortmund and London.

The London concerts were recorded on a 48-track mobile studio so choosing the best from the shows was a massive task for Pink Floyd's producer James Guthrie. The final touches are now being made, and the tracklisting finalized.

THE MOVIE GUYS'

Black Gold Review

A gusher: good to excellent

Dry well: Fair to poor

By David R. Allen, MC drama instructor, and Tim Jebsen, MCT executive director

This week we review "The Story of Us," starring Bruce Willis and Michelle Pfeiffer and directed by Rob Reiner. Tim was unable to review this movie about marriage, so we asked Katherine, David's wife, to fill in for Tim.

KATHERINE: "The Story of Us," that opened around the country recently, tells the story of a couple in the middle of a marital crisis - sort of a reversed "When Harry Met Sally." The difference is that instead of seeing the characters grow together, we watch them grow apart.

DAVID: While not a total loss, "The Story of Us" is a disappointment. Badly miscast, Bruce Willis and Michelle Pfeiffer give it the old college try as they compress 15 years of marriage into ninety minutes. Unfortunately, Willis, whose recent stint in "The Sixth Sense" proves that he is more than an action star, fails in a role that was obviously written for Billy Crystal. Similarly, Pfeiffer's role was written for Meg Ryan. Essentially, they are wearing roles that just don't fit.

KATHERINE: I found Willis convincing in this non-action role, but agree that Pfeiffer was poorly cast. The script was so trite, that in places I was bored. Many scenes, mainly those spent with friends, did little to advance the action. I did appreciate the tug between humor and strife that most people deal with on a daily basis. Many of the issues presented, such as neglecting to look at situations through the eyes of the other, are common, human foibles that we all share.

DAVID: I agree that the movie does have a few good laughs, and presents an interesting, if not totally accurate, picture of a marriage in trouble. The writing by Alan Zweibel and Jessie Nelson, however, leaves the tale a bit one-sided. Willis' character is given enough laugh lines to make us like him, but Pfeiffer's character spends most of the movie whining. This nerve-jangling behavior becomes almost unbearable. The result is that the movie's conflict seems to be more about her problems than his or even theirs. Of course, that could just be my male-centric perspective.

KATHERINE: That could be right, David. As a woman, I know that we are generally thought to deal with problems verbally, by talking them out rather than internalizing them? Sound familiar? Zweibel and Nelson fall into the trap of using gender-specific stereotypes. They forced Willis' character to joke about the marital problems instead of confronting them, just like a stereotypical man. Likewise, the stereotypical female behaviors they forced on Pfeiffer's character seem whiny, when she is really dealing openly with the conflict. Perhaps a more balanced view of the characters would have made a better film.

DAVID: Finally, one must ask if Reiner is losing his directorial touch. The fact that almost every emotionally charged scene between the couple ends in a shouting match reflects a once revved-up imagination stuck in neutral. "The Story of Us" gets a conditional gusher from me, along with the warning that some people might find the frank discussions of sexuality contained in the movie upsetting.

KATHERINE: I, too, give it a conditional gusher. It's not a great film, but it was kind of interesting. I find it comforting to see other people, even if they are on screen, dealing with "stuff" and humanness like I do all the time. At least I'm not alone!

Midland Reporter-Theatergram

By Pamela C. Allen

"It was a dark and stormy night..."

... full of murder, fear, humor and special effects when the Pickwick Players took the main stage at Midland Community Theatre with one-act versions of four of Edgar Allan Poe's tales: "Tell-Tale Heart," "Bernice," "Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "The Fall of the House of Usher." The audience, particularly the vocal-school-age students from Ft. Stockton, enjoyed watching their peers on the Cole Theatre stage in "Night Chills — Tales of Adventure and Horror."

Justin Tate did an admirable job portraying Poe as he introduced each of the stories from his second-floor study. I particularly loved the gigantic raven like structure that graced the top of the two-story set. Its looming presence added a bid of shadowy gloom to the proceedings.

The Pickwick Players is a performing troupe comprised of students with an interest in some phase of theater. In this age of slasher movies and "in your face video games," it might be hard for an actor to relate to Poe's type of horror stories without becoming campy about it — chewing the scenery, so to speak.

All in all, the various casts took it serious enough to overcome this. The problem I found in all but a handful of the speaking parts was their inability to slow down when delivering lines so we could follow the dialogue. This was very obvious in the actors attempting any kind of accent.

The rugs on the floor presented another problem. Actors sometimes forget that they are playing everyday people. When you walk into a room and kick the rug so the corner folds over itself, what do you do? The normal reaction is to kick it back. Don't sit their looking at it. It makes the audience look at it, too.

The best cast overall was the one in the "Fall of the House of Usher." Lead by Matt Hinkley, as Usher, there was strength in the whole group. Very chilling special effects gave that production the most notable reaction from the audience. A good scare was had by all.

Still onstage at Cole Theatre is "Sylvia" by A.R. Gurney, which plays through Sunday in MCT's Mabee Theatre II. This delightful comedy about marriage and what can best be described as a midlife crisis takes us to the Manhattan apartment of Greg and Kate, played by Corby and Janet Considine. It is always fun to watch Midland's answer to Hume Cronin and Jessica Tandy, even when they muffle a few lines.

The single set design creates not only the apartment, but a big city skyline that works effectively when Greg is in the park with the dog, accurately played by Bobbie Sickler, a sophomore at Midland College. She has either studied her own dog — Tessie — too closely, or has a life we don't know about! Ms. Sickler's authentically dog-like actions were lots of fun to watch on stage.

The fourth member of the cast is Keith Fitzgerald, who plays three separate roles including a woman. Fitzgerald is a talented, versatile actor and someone to watch in any play. However, he needs to learn that unless he's playing the Sharon Stone role, a woman (and especially a lady) in a skirt doesn't sit on a couch with her legs open!

The show is definitely full of adult humor and language, but nonetheless quite funny. Those who relate to the middle-age crazies and are looking for some good laughs, can find them by calling the box office (682-4111). There may be a waiting list on this one.

Pamela C. Allen, a 14-year member of the Midland Reporter-Telegram staff has been involved in all aspects of live theater since 1963 from finding props to producing. She has served in a number of volunteer capacities at Midland Community Theatre. She is not involved with any of the productions mentioned in this column.

Production notes: "Sylvia," co-produced by ARCO Permian, on stage at Cole Theatre, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., 8 p.m. today and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets: $10. Waiting lists for today and Saturday. Check ticket availability for Sunday. Call: 682-4111.

Volunteer finds 'career' with RSVP

By Lana Cunningham

Delivering newspapers fell right into Earline Cox's lap of experience. As a wife and young mother of two children in the early 1970s, she and her husband published a weekly newspaper in northern Colorado. The job also involved publishing and delivering an area recreation guide.

When the job of delivering a monthly senior newspaper came up at Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), director Saul Herrera mentioned it to Mrs. Cox as a volunteer opportunity. "I said I could do that," Mrs. Cox recalled with a laugh.

It's not often she turns down a call from RSVP. Moving to Midland in July 1994 to be near a son, Mrs. Cox soon signed on at the agency that coordinates seniors' volunteer efforts. She started out by working on bulk mailings for other non-profits. She then moved up to assisting Herrera by working on the computer where she compiles volunteers' hours each month. Recently, when the opportunity came for RSVP to earn money by delivering "Senior News" each month, Mrs. Cox saw a way to use her experience.

"Senior News" is published in Waco, and RSVP is paid for delivering it to 22 places in Midland and Odessa. However, more locations are being added and additional drivers are needed, she noted.

"We take it to all the grocery stores, Wal-Mart, Walgreen's and a lot of restaurants. It's free and it has good information in it for anyone, not just seniors," she said. "If anyone needs extras, they can just holler. They can get any amount they want from RSVP."

Delivering the papers also gives Mrs. Cox time to visit with grandson Layton Cox, who helps her each month. "I want him to get into the spirit of volunteering all his life. I'm starting him off early."

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

After a long-time career in publishing — both a newspaper and a recreation guide — Earline Cox has put her skills to work delivering a monthly senior newspaper for Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

She enjoyed the many years spent living in the Colorado High Country near Rocky Mountain National Park. From 1971 to 1974, she and her husband published the weekly paper. She was responsible for writing obituaries, laying out the Want Ad pages, shooting the negatives and taking the pages "over the pass" to the press.

She also sold advertisements for the paper. "I took some people's first advertising dollar they had ever spent," said the woman with a beaming smile. They also published and delivered "The Fun Guide," which outlined recreational opportunities throughout the area. After selling the newspaper, Mrs. Cox continued to operate an office supply store until 1992, when she decided it was time to retire.

There were few opportunities for volunteering in that small Colorado town. But when Mrs. Cox joined RSVP, she did so with the intention of serving others. Like the other volunteers, she soon discovered other benefits came with the job.

"I didn't know then that the other benefits were going to be so great," she said. Listening one morning to a group of seniors explain why they enjoyed being involved with RSVP, Mrs. Cox boiled down the reasons to:

- They enjoy the camaraderie of others;
- They get pleasure out of serving people;
- They are grateful for what they have as compared to how much other people need.

With her eyes sparkling, Mrs. Cox related some of her experiences with the organization.

"RSVP was a wonderful way to get acquainted after I moved here. It's good for seniors to interact with friends," she said.

And there is a lot of interaction. "We're so old we don't care if we're politically correct. I'm in a group called the Minute Men — we can be called at a minute's notice to come do a job. We're not going to call it Minute Persons. And when someone gets out of line, we joke that he had better straighten up or we'll lower his wages."

RSVP's mission, other than to place people 55 years of age and older in rewarding volunteer jobs, is to provide ongoing recognition for their work. That "recognition" is what many of them enjoy. "That means parties — and I like to party," she said.

Those "parties" include a summer hamburger cookout, a Valentine party and an annual volunteer recognition luncheon in December. "For all the work we do, we get treated nice too," she said.

Mrs. Cox is impressed with the caliber of volunteers involved in non-profits throughout the city. As the office person who keeps track of all the volunteer hours in the computer, she sees each one's background.

"Oh, the talents these seniors bring. We have people who have worked with oil companies, in banks, in education and other areas of the community." And the number of volunteers is edging upward to the magic number of 500.

Last year, the volunteers' hours totaled 39,728. Figured at $8 per hour these people contributed $317,824 of work to the community. Mrs. Cox said the number of hours will be even greater this year, and will be announced at the December luncheon.

Even with a son nearby, Mrs. Cox discovered other benefits to living in the Tall City. "This town intrigued me from the beginning, when my son first moved here. I've learned that Midland is the best kept secret for senior retirement. The health services here are wonderful. It's the right size town. There's easy access for seniors to get around."

The city delivers, just as Mrs. Cox did years ago and still does with RSVP.

Age alone does not make driver unfit

By Henry F. Page, M.D.

Dear friends, roamers and countrymen, lend me your ears:

The purpose of this column is not to bury senior drivers, but to liberate those capable of maintaining their independence.

Page

Instead of the "good ol' days" when Grandpa, cataracts and all, could hitch Old Dobbin to the shay and journey to town holding Grandma instead of the reins, the poor man now must use both hands to control a 100-horsepower contraption replete with bewildering buttons and gadgets, plus deal with other drivers in other such vehicles speeding down multi-lane highways.

To cope with all this, he needs sharp eyes with good peripheral vision; adequate hearing; a limber neck; good reflexes, and a mind unhampered by medication, able to comprehend the ever-changing situation.

The possession of these necessary attributes depends on one's physical and mental condition, whether one is middle-aged or in his or her 90s.

Using age as a defining factor in qualifying for a driver's license just does not make sense. The legal profession still awaits the result of research underway to identify those various areas that constitute high risk on the road.

At long last one state, Missouri, has passed a law that — without mentioning age — requires drivers who might be impaired to prove competence behind the wheel or lose their licenses. It allows those who know a possibly unfit driver to report the person's condition confidentially, thus requiring him or her to take a driving test.

Due to the population explosion, the number of elderly drivers will triple by the year 2030 because society depends on mobility for access to friends, family, employment, etc. What alternatives to the automobile exist? Public transportation in many towns — including Midland — is grossly inadequate and society is only beginning to recognize the mobility needs of the elderly. Repeatedly requesting assistance further lowers one's sense of dignity.

Many retirement centers supply their own transportation for shopping, doctor visits and entertainment.

Education regarding this problem is a basic first step for both elderly and the public. Just as people plan retiring from work, they should plan on retiring from driving. The transition can be eased in part by privilege modification, such as requiring wearing of glasses or restraints from night driving. Motor manufacturers should make "elder friendly" cars rather than rockets for juvenile Barney Oldfields. Wide, safe roads that are well lit, with large street and traffic signs are a necessity.

Keep the old folks mobile as long as safely possible, bearing in mind the cost of ceasing to drive — financially, socially psychologically and emotionally. Be ready for the onslaught of elders, which is coming, ready or not.

Individually speaking, why wait for an accident to create a crisis situation? It takes a big man to know when to hold and when to fold, and a bigger one to make sure he does it:

FAMILY MATTERS

Internet addiction affects whole family

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I don't know if you've ever heard of this problem before, but my wife is on the Internet 24/7.

She says that she's just talking with friends who she has met and that they're all just having fun. She says that they are like a support group for her since "you won't ever talk to me." How can I talk to her if she's always talking to them?

May

I also think that it's a lot more than that, because she won't let me see what she's writing and gets mad if anyone tries to see. I don't think that husbands and wives should have secrets.

The kids have said that she's not doing things that they ask her to do because she's "too busy" on the computer too.

I want to know if you can be addicted to the computer. Something is really wrong, because when I try to get her to stop and do things with us, she gets really mad and flat-out refuses.

What can I do about her? OFF LINE IN BIG SPRING

DEAR OFF LINE: You seem to have good reason to be concerned.

Computer addiction is becoming a definite problem for some people. Like many addictions, it is primarily an impulse control disorder. Some people have great difficulty in stopping or changing their computer behaviors. They often deny their actual usage level and most likely are not even aware themselves of how much time they are spending on the computer.

The Internet provides many interesting and educational options; however, it does have the potential for abuse. Research literature shows many examples of people finding their "perfect match" in chat rooms and then arranging to meet these "matches" — sometimes with tragic consequences.

I believe that it is completely inappropriate for married people to try to solve their marital or sexual problems over the Internet. These conversations are just like "bar talk" without leaving your home, and have the same intent.

Set aside some time to discuss your concerns with your wife. Make sure it's a time when you can talk at length without interruption. Share your observations with her and then request that the two of you go to marriage counseling.

In cases like these, there is almost always something more amiss than just the fact that a person is spending too much time on the computer. The fact that she hides the screens from you is a strong indication that something is being said that she wants to keep secret.

A professional will help you two make the distinction between "addiction" and "companionship/romance." Such a distinction helps determine the nature of the problem and guides the therapy.

If she refuses, consider talking to a computer expert about how to retrieve copies of her correspondence off the computer. You may need to have hard copies of what is being said in order to get her attention. Like any addiction, computer addiction includes denial of the problem that is so strong that the person often must be concretely confronted with his or her actions.

Do something about this situation. Such behavior is harmful to your wife, to you and to your children. She is neglecting all of you while pursuing her own interests. I have seen too many cases where otherwise rational, reasonable people will have an affair — emotional or sexual — with someone they have become intimate with through Internet conversations. These situations usually have had disastrous results.

This needs to be stopped before your wife is in over her head — both in potential addiction and potential relationships outside the marriage.

THE FOLLOWING PARENTING TIPS FOR COLICKY OR FUSSY BABIES IS PRESENTED BY THE CENTERS FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES:

- There is no one solution.
- Colic and fussiness usually begin in the first few weeks after birth and usually go away at about 4 months.
- Put the baby in the car and drive.
- Put the baby in the car seat and place the car seat on top of a running drier. DON'T LEAVE THE BABY UNATTENDED, since he or she might fall off the dryer.
- Place a bottle of warm — NOT TOO HOT!! — water on the baby's tummy.
- Walk the baby and don't stop walking.
- Take turns staying with the baby if you have a partner.
- Let your partner have time with the baby while you get out of the house.
- If all else fails, there is a crib simulator that simulates being in a car. Call 800-NO COLIC for more information.

DEAR ABBY

Secret to lasting marriage given: Make love, not war

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: May I give you an "upper" for the day and offer some advice for newlyweds? Make love every day!

We're in our 60s, married nearly 50 years, and we still make love every day. Our children can attest to it.

Van Buren

What is making love? It's a smile across a room, a hug, a kiss, a pat on the behind, a "special look." Oh, yes, it's also having sex — but it's so much more. As you get older, the sex and passion may diminish, but the rest won't as long as you remember what your love is all about.

True, we've had arguments and serious disagreements through the years. Who hasn't? I even asked — no, I TOLD him once in a fit of anger that I wanted a divorce. Know what he did? He gave me "that look," didn't say a word. All I needed was "that look" that says it all. "We're in this for better or for worse, for a lifetime, and most of all," it says, "I love you."

So, young people, if you make love every day and welcome God into your marriage, it will last. — STILL LOVING AND ENJOYING IT, HOT SPRINGS, ARK.

DEAR STILL LOVING: After nearly 50 years of happy marriage, I'd say you were quite an expert. I have been married for more than 60 years, and I adhere to your philosophy. Your letter is a day-brightener, and I thank you for sending it.

DEAR ABBY: I have many friends and relatives in their 40s and older who find themselves alone and still wanting to enjoy dining out. They sit alone in crowded restaurants and feel out of place.

What would it take for the restaurant to have a table for six with "one, please" dining together? It would make it a lot more fun and increase business.

This evening, I saw a dear friend feel uncomfortable entering a restaurant alone. She has lived in this town 12 years and her husband died recently. I also saw this happen 30 years ago when my uncle passed away and my aunt tried to keep up their weekly routine. Dining alone took all the fun out of the adventure.

Abby, please ask restaurants to consider this. It will make these people feel special again. — KATHLEEN IN SEDONA, ARIZ.

DEAR KATHLEEN: That's a great idea; however, it's not a new one. I'm told it's traditional in Germany, Austria and northern Italy. It provides a gathering place for people who prefer to meet and converse in some place other than a bar. The owners of Rockenwagner, a restaurant in Santa Monica, Calif., have found their "community table" (a Tuesday night event with a special menu) so successful they're replicating it in their second location. More restaurants should follow suit.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to offer another solution to the woman whose neighbor uses her hose and water to water his lawn and shrubs.

Install a turn-off valve on the water line inside the house. She can then shut off the outside water unless SHE wants to use it. It's a good idea, anyway, to shut off this water in extremely cold weather. — DONNA F., WEST CHESTER, OHIO

DEAR DONNA F.: I heard from several readers who told me that inside shut-off valves are usually located in the basement, and that turning it off is a simple procedure. However, I live in California and do not have a basement — so I called my plumber. He informed me that this is not usually inside a house, so it may be necessary to have one installed. I'm sure it would pay for itself over time in the form of reduced water bills.

Abby shares her favorite recipes in two booklets: "Abby's Favorite Recipes" and "Abby's More Favorite Recipes." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 per booklet ($4.50 each in Canada) to: Dear Abby Cookbooklets I and II, P.O. Weather forecast

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE, England (AP) — Physicist Lewis F. Richardson (1881-1953) was a pioneer in applying mathematical techniques to predicting weather. In 1922 he published "Weather Prediction by Numerical Process." But Richardson's system had a drawback. It often took him three months to calculate and predict the weather for the next 24 hours. Only the advent of electronic computers after World War II made Richardson's weather prediction methods practical.

No miracle, but 'Omega' finds success

N.Y. Times News Service

"Fight Club" ultimately won Hollywood's weekend box office brawl, taking in just over $11.13 million to finish No. 1 in final figures released Monday.

But another film — Trinity Broadcasting Network's "The Omega Code" — also scored a small victory in its quest to become a force in Hollywood.

"The Omega Code," with a plot reminiscent of the biblical book of Revelation and a mission to lure evangelical Christians to the movies, garnered an impressive $7,622 per-screen average while totaling $2.28 million to finish No. 10.

"The Omega Code" opened at about 300 theaters nationwide while the mega-hyped "Fight Club" debuted at about 2,000. "Fight Club's" per-screen average was roughly $5,500.

"It's great," said Stephan Blinn, associate producer and screenwriter of "The Omega Code." "We set out with our goal to be the No. 1 independent movie for the weekend and the No. 1 film in per-screen average and we did both. It was cool to also crack the Top 10 overall. That's something we hadn't made a goal."

While "The Omega Code's" first per-screen take is certainly respectable, it pales in comparison to that of "The Blair Witch Project," which astonished experts last summer with a whopping initial per-screen average of more than $56,000.

But many major Hollywood films have opened — and later won Oscars — with a smaller per-screen average than that garnered by "The Omega Code." "L.A. Confidential," for instance, opened two years ago to critical raves and a per-screen average of $7,152.

Finishing behind "Fight Club" at this weekend's box office was "Double Jeopardy," with Ashley Judd and Tommy Lee Jones. It ranked second, with a total box office of $10.13 million and a per-screen average of $3,450. "The Story of Us," featuring Bruce Willis and Michelle Pfeiffer, was third, with a total take of $9.75 million and a per-screen average of $4,506.

Meanwhile, "The Sixth Sense" will undoubtedly break the $250 million mark this week. The Bruce Willis film, which finished eighth over the weekend, has a total box office so far of $249.92 million.

Rebs, Cougars bring 2-0 marks into 4-5A battle

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

The only two teams with spotless district records — Midland Lee and Abilene Cooper — will put their 2-0 marks in District 4-5A on the line at 7:30 tonight at Memorial Stadium.

LEE
Abilene Cooper at Midland Lee

The game will give one team the inside track to the District 4-5A title. The other team will have to return to must-win mode for the final two Friday nights of the regular season.

Last year, Cooper and Lee tied Permian at 5-1 in loop play. It is a certainty that neither team will be willing to share title rights this time around.

"They have every reason to play this game," Parchman said. "The winner of this will have a chance to win the district championship. This is not a ho-hum type of deal."

For Midland Lee, a perfect record seems to be the only thing that matters. So far this season, Lee has outscored its opponents 301-77 or by an average of 32 points.

Last week, the Rebels, ranked No. 1 in the state by just about everyone and ranked No. 1 in the nation by USA Today, were tested like no other

Purple Pack has real chance to break long jinx against Permian

While running through District 4-5A:

The Last Jinx: Every team in the district has now broken the so-called "Permian Jinx" except Midland High. The Bulldogs have lost 25 consecutive games to Mojo dating back to 1973. There have been some very close calls during that span, but the streak is still intact.

Williamson

MHS has never beaten Mojo in Odessa, the site of tonight's game between the two teams and since 1974 (a 6-3 Permian win on a blocked punt in the last seconds of play), the Bulldogs have never been closer than 15 points when playing Permian in Odessa. The closest game was a 50-35 Permian win in 1984.

With Permian reeling in an 0-2 start in district play, the 1-1 Bulldogs look to have a real shot of ending this streak tonight if they show up with all guns blazing.

Well, One More Jinx: The two Midland schools have never swept the two Odessa schools in any single season. Odessa has swept the Midland schools eight times. If MHS and Lee both beat Permian in the next two weeks, Midland would produce its first

Bulldogs seek 1st win vs. Permian since '73

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

ODESSA — A quarter century has passed since Midland High has beaten Odessa Permian, and the Bulldogs chase the ghost once again at 7:30 tonight at Ratliff Stadium.

The last time MHS defeated a Mojo team was back in 1973. Since then, the Bulldogs have lost 25 consecutive games to Permian's Panthers.

But 1999 has seen some strange happenings around District 4-5A play and MHS has several reasons to think that this might be the night that "The Streak" comes to an end.

Rarely has MHS entered a game with Permian where the Bulldogs own a better overall record and a better district record. MHS is off to a flying 6-1 start to the season and owns a 1-1 mark in 4-5A. Permian is reeling at 3-4 and 0-2 with back-to-back losses to Abilene High and Abilene Cooper.

The past history of this game doesn't seem to bother MHS coach David Browning.

"We're through talking about past history," Browning said. "We're playing in the present. There are no more gimmies in this league. There used to be and Midland High was it. That's not the case any more.

"We need to win this game to keep our playoff hopes alive. Our goal was to win 10 games this season. We can't do that, but we can't win nine if we don't win this one. Every game in this district is a battle. And with only five district games, every game is really important."

Midland High at Odessa Permian

Permian coach Randy Mayes, however, feels his team is just a few plays away from being at the top of the league this year.

"In the Cooper game, we played a very good first half and we had drives of 12 and 15 plays. We didn't do that in the second half. We were a hair away from executing two big plays.

"This is a team capable of executing like any other team. It doesn't take much to change the results. We have to understand the old adage that four or five plays in a game decides the outcome."

So, what will the two teams try to accomplish tonight when they hit the field?

"I know it sounds like an old cliche, but we have to execute, play an error free game, have great concentration and limit big plays," Browning said. "Everyone knows about (wide receiver) Roy Williams, but they also have

Dallas' Cunningham isn't having many happy days kicking

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Two of Richie Cunningham's five missed field goals this season have rattled the right upright. Two others were from the excusable distances of 48 and 51 yards.

While those details might help the Dallas Cowboys kicker justify his lousy 3-for-8 start, he wants no part of it. His job is to put the ball through the uprights and so far this season he hasn't done it very well.

"Close isn't good enough," said Cunningham, the only NFL kicker who has missed more than he's made. "I've got to perform better for my team."

Cunningham came into his third season having never missed consecutive field goals. He's done that twice.

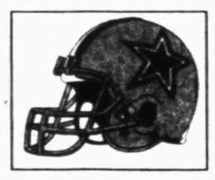
He also had never missed two in a game. He did that this past Monday in a 13-10 loss to the New York Giants.

"It isn't like I'm hitting the mascot all the way on the left and I don't know what's happening," Cunningham said. "I feel solid mechanically. The ball's just not going through."

Coach Chan Gailey has remained supportive, saying Cunningham's track record has earned him time to work out of this slump. But that time could expire if he doesn't improve starting Sunday against Washington.

"He's got to get out of it," Gailey said. "He's shown he can do it. We'd like him to get back into that mode as quick as possible."

The first sign of Cunningham's problems was in the opener, when his game-tying extra point in the final seconds bounced in off the left upright. He tried his first field goal the next week and made a 23-yarder. He later missed from 47 yards.



The following game, Cunningham was off on his only attempt, a 24-yarder. It was the first time he'd ever missed from closer than 38 yards. Still, few noticed as Dallas cruised to a 3-0 start.

His problems became big news the last two weeks because the Cowboys needed him and he didn't deliver.

A struggling offense that has lost sight of the end zone has been close enough for Cunningham to try five field goals. He's missed three and Dallas lost each game by three points.

Cunningham has never been through anything like this since failing training-camp tryouts in Dallas in 1994 and Green Bay in '96. He missed only three kicks as a rookie in 1997 and six last season.

"I think it's frustrating more than anything else," he said. "I had hoped to be in a better situation. The thing now is to go out and get ready for the next one."

Cunningham said a new rule that requires fresh-out-of-the-box balls on all kicks isn't a factor because those are the only kind the Cowboys use in practice. It was even that way before the rule.

Yet, he sure was a lot more accurate when he was booting those broken-in

WORLD SERIES

Unfamiliar Faces

1999 World Series features new faces, different stadium from last Series between Yankees, Braves

By Ben Walker
AP Baseball Writer

ATLANTA — A lot has changed since the New York Yankees last came south for the World Series.

The old stadium is just a parking lot now, with painted lines where the basepaths used to be. Jimmy Key and Cecil Fielder are out of baseball. Mark Wohlers and Marquis Grissom are out of Atlanta.

"I don't think we're going to spend a lot of time figuring out what's the difference between now and 1996," Braves pitcher Tom Glavine said Thursday.

Glavine will start against Orlando "El Duque" Hernandez, MVP of the AL Championship Series, in Game 1 Saturday night at Turner Field.

The addresses have switched, and so have the attitudes going into a rematch of the '96 Series, won by New York in six games.

"That team wasn't sure if it was good enough to beat the Braves," said pitcher David Cone, one of 11 Yankees left from that club. "We had never done it before. Now we have the experience to know what we can do."

First baseman Tino Martinez said: "That year we were the underdogs. We wanted to win, but this year we expect to win."

Chipper Jones is one of only eight Braves still remaining.

"We're a lot closer as a team, we're a lot tighter," the third baseman said. "We didn't have a lot of injuries '96, we didn't have a lot of adversity."

The Braves' only setback came that season after they won the first two games of the World Series at New York. Back home, in the final three games ever at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, they lost three in a row to the Yankees.

In the pivotal play of the series, Jim Leyritz hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning on a hanging breaking ball

WILLIAMSON: 'Dogs will finally beat Mojo

(From 1C)

sweep of Odessa. Lee and MHS have both beaten OHS this year.

Big and Small: It's looking more and more like Midland Lee will go the Big School route in the state playoffs. To do that, both Odessa High and Permian would have to not make the playoffs and that is looking more and more like a probability.

So, while Lee may be changing brackets, there may be more state shuffling between the Big and Small School brackets. For instance, if Arlington Martin makes the playoffs this year, and it's beginning to look like it will, Duncanville will change this year to the Small School bracket. If Seguin beats Austin Bowie this week, that will probably mean that powerful Austin Westlake will end up in the Big School bracket instead of the Small School like last year.

Revenge? It's a little strange, but no one is talking much about the fact that Cooper kept Lee from having an undefeated season last year. The fans may not remember, but the Lee coaches and players remember. This has more meaning than just the surface feature of both teams being 2-0 in district play. Lee should have something to prove in this one, including sole possession of first place. Lee had to share the district crown three ways last year despite winning a state championship.

We were a perfect 3-0 last week in the 4-5A Picking Game and now stand at 26-7 (.788) overall. Here's how this week's games go down.

Midland Lee 38, Abilene Cooper 18: OK, everyone is saying Lee will go undefeated in District 4-5A. The Rebels will, but they play this one with some heart. This is Lee's chance to exact a little revenge — and at home. Lee leads the series by a narrow 18-17-3 margin, but is a meager 1-3-1 in the last five games against Cooper.

Midland High 21, Odessa Permian 20: Expect a close one, but expect the Bulldogs to break the jinx that has lasted since 1973. If MHS expects to break the drought, this appears to be the year to do so. Permian leads this series 37-3 and enough is enough.

Abilene High 30, Odessa High 14: This has to be a scary game for the Eagles. OHS leads the series by a 33-27 count, and the Bronchos have won 10 of the last 11 meetings with the Eagles. AHS' last win against OHS came in 1994 and that was by a 7-6 margin that knocked the Bronchos out of the state playoffs.

LEE: Rebels, Cougars fight for 4-5A lead

(From 1C)

but still prevailed 40-26 over Abilene High.

This week don't expect Lee to let up. If for no other reason, the Rebels will be up for this one because the Cooper loss last year spoiled Lee's chance at a perfect season. In fact, the 21-14 loss to Cooper at Abilene's Shotwell Stadium was the Rebels only loss in the last 23 games. The Rebels have a 15-game winning streak.

"We feel a little embarrassed that we didn't play better last year," said John Parchman, who is 1-2-1 in his four years against Cooper. "We have to make amends."

That is probably just what Randy Quisenberry didn't want to hear. The No. 1 team in the nation has a chip on its shoulder and is ready to unload it on the Cougars.

Quisenberry, in his first season at Cooper, has taken the Cougars from a 2-2 non-district mark to two straight wins to open loop play.

"We are pleased right now," said Quisenberry, who replaced Randy Allen at Cooper. "We are not pleased we have to play Lee, but we are pleased."

However, he knows his team will have to step it up a notch if it expects to go 3-0.

"They are averaging about 500 yards a game," Quisenberry exaggerated slightly. Lee is averaging 475.7 yards. "Nobody has slowed them down offensively. Nobody has even come close. When they (the Rebels) put in the fourth or fifth strings, other teams come close. They have backs sitting on bench that could be starting for a lot of people.

"You will have to score lots of points or go on long time consuming drives where they can't touch the ball.

Quisenberry also talked up the Lee defense.

"They have four or five people for many of the positions on the front seven" Quisenberry said. "It would be nice to have four period, much less than four who can play."

Quisenberry has been known to talk up his opposition in the past, and it seemed that way about Lee's defense. However, when asked if his running back Tremaine Diles could repeat last week's 46-carry, 243-yard effort, this is what he said.

"The offensive line thought it could dominate Permian's front four and we just went with it. I don't think we can dominate Lee's front four."

Diles, known as "The Stickman" in Cooper circles, has been a surprise of sorts in district play, rushing for 379 yards in two district games. His 46 carries last week was the second most in district history.

"He doesn't look flashy, but when the dust settles, he has five or six yards," Parchman said.

Diles might have to for Cooper to win this game although he shouldn't expect to better Lee's Cedric Benson, who torched Cooper's crosstown rival — Abilene High — for a district record 348 yards last weekend.

Benson, a junior, has 1,417 yards this year. That is 42 percent of Lee's offense. Not bad for a player who has not played nine quarters (over two games) this season.

"The thing that scares me is that everyone says Benson is better than last year," Quisenberry said. "That is hard to fathom."

Here could be another thing that is hard to fathom. This should be the toughest test Benson has had this season. Cooper gives up 137.5 rushing yards a game. The Cougars have also only given up 100 yards to a rusher twice (neither came in district).

Want two more reasons? Twice Benson has been held under 100 yards in a game since becoming Lee's No. 1 tailback four games into the season in 1998. One time came against Cooper last year (he was held to 84 yards). And against OHS, which Quisenberry coached last season, Benson barley topped the century mark. He had 102 yards.

Should Cooper come close to either of those marks, they might have a chance. The Cougars, of course, won the matchup last year. OHS almost did the same.

Saying it and doing it are two different things. For Cooper to stay perfect, they will have to do both. Just ask Abilene High.

COOPER NOTES: Diles leads the team in rushing while Elliot Strader has thrown for 721 yards and seven touchdowns... Casey Fields is the team's No. 1 receiver with 333 yards and six scores... Cooper is 1-2-1 against Lee since 1995 (Parchman's first season as head coach at Lee) but is 1-0-1 in Midland... Cooper ranks last in offense (totaling 264.3 yards a game) and is fourth in defense (allowing 256.8 yards)... The Cougars have the longest streak of postseason appearances in 4-5A — seven.

ABOUT LEE: Benson has rushed for 100 or more yards in 12 straight games. He is one of two players to score in every game this season (MHS' Jimmy Smith is the other)... Lee is second in the district in defense (allowing 243.1 yards a game)... Lee is 3-0 versus Quisenberry coached teams...

LOOKING FOR THAT NO. 1 RECEIVER: Lee has shown it can throw the ball a bit, but it is safe to say it is looking for a No. 1 receiver. The Rebels still have not had a receiver top 100 yards in a game. Only two have had more than 50 in a game (Cedric Benson and Clint McNutt)...

HELLO, BIG SCHOOLS: Midland Lee is expected by most to qualify for the UIL playoffs. Assuming the Rebels do so, their Magic Number to clinch a spot in the Division I playoffs is 2 (No. of Lee wins or losses by Odessa Permian and Odessa High). How nice would a spot in Division I be? Lee could face San Angelo Central, El Paso Franklin and Arlington Martin in the first three rounds. By the way, Lee has already defeated all three teams this season...

LAST YEAR'S GAME: The Rebels put the ball on the ground eight times (losing two). They also added an interception to give away the game 21-14. Cooper threw for 192 yards and two touchdowns.

Houston-area Class 4A game takes center stage

Associated Press

The annual grudge match between La Marque and Texas City is as big as ever this year, as the two perennial Class 4A powerhouses are ranked No. 2 and No. 3 in the Associated Press high school football poll heading into this week's showdown.

Both teams are undefeated entering Friday's game at La Marque, and the outcome likely will decide the coveted District 23-4A championship again.

Other 4A games include No. 1 Stephenville at Joshua, San Antonio Sam Houston at No. 4 Schertz Clemens and Mesquite Poteet at No. 5 Dallas Highland Park.

In 5A, No. 1 Midland Lee hosts Abilene Cooper, No. 2 Lewisville hosts Grand Prairie, No. 3 Austin Westlake visits Austin Bowie, No. 4 Copperas Cove plays at Waco and No. 5 South Grand Prairie hosts The Colony.

In 3A, No. 1 Sealy plays at home against Sweeny, No. 2 Atlanta travels to Queen City and No. 3 Newton plays at Buna.

Braves go with Glavine in Game 1

By Paul Newberry
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Tom Glavine shrugs it off as no big deal. It's just his turn to pitch.

In this case, though, his turn to pitch means he'll start for the Atlanta Braves in Game 1 of the World Series on Saturday night.

Manager Bobby Cox, not wanting Glavine to have an 11-day layoff between starts, picked his two-time Cy Young winner to go against New York's Orlando Hernandez in the opener at Turner Field.

Glavine is followed in the Braves' rotation by Greg Maddux (19-9), who worked Game 1 for the Braves in the division series and the NL championship series. After the series shifts to Yankee Stadium, Kevin Millwood (18-7) and John Smoltz (11-8) will take the mound.

"It's not like I'm the ace or anything," said Glavine (14-11), who struggled much of the season and finished with his highest ERA (4.12) since 1990. "It just happens to be my turn to pitch."

In the first two rounds of the playoffs, Atlanta used a rotation that began with Maddux, followed by Millwood, Glavine and Smoltz.

If Cox stuck with that alignment for the World Series, Glavine would have gone 11 days between starts. He last worked a week ago, pitching seven scoreless innings to beat the New York Mets in Game 3 of the NLCS.

Glavine might have pitched Game 2 Sunday night, but the left-hander wouldn't have been available for Game 5 in New York — assuming, of course, the best-of-7 series lasts that long.

Lefties tend to have an advantage at Yankee Stadium because the power of right-handed hitters is negated by cavernous left field, where it takes a 399-foot shot to clear the wall in the power alley. Left-handed hitters, on the other hand, can take advantage of the short, 314-foot porch in right.

"It's his turn to pitch, No. 1," Cox said, explaining his decision to use Glavine. "And this ensures he will pitch in New York, where left-handers are supposed to have a slight edge. I didn't do it for any other reason."

Other ramifications of Atlanta's rotation: Smoltz will be available for relief duty in the opener, while Millwood, the team's most consistent starter, pitches Game 7 if the series goes the distance.

"It makes me feel good that our management and our team has that amount of confidence in me," Millwood said. "Even if it does go that far, we'll have a lot of people ready for that game. I'll just go first."

Glavine takes the same sort of mentality into the opener, knowing his previous postseason starts were just as crucial even though he didn't pitch until Game 3.

In the division series, Glavine allowed only two runs in six innings against Houston, and the Braves went on to a decisive 5-3 victory in 12 innings. He followed up with a strong performance against the Mets, a 1-0 victory that gave the Braves a commanding 3-0 advantage in the NLCS.

Glavine has pitched 12 straight scoreless innings in this postseason.

"To be honest, I fully expected to pitch Game 3," Glavine said. "I thought Bobby would just roll it over and I would pitch the first game on the road like I did against the Mets and Astros."

The Yankees don't have a 30-homer man in their lineup, but they do have two players — Derek Jeter and Bernie Williams — who hit above .340, as well as four 100-RBI producers.

"Their lineup is full of patient hitters with some power," Glavine said. "If you have a bunch of 50-homer guys, that means they're free swingers and probably easier to strike out. These guys don't strike out. They put the ball in play and make you work harder."

In Atlanta's four previous Series appearances this decade, Glavine pitched the opener once. He threw a complete-game four-hitter in 1992 for a 3-1 victory over Toronto.

The most memorable Series performance came three years later, when he allowed only one hit in eight shutout innings against Cleveland in Game 6. The 1-0 victory gave the Braves their only championship of the '90s.

Glavine is 4-3 with a 1.75 ERA in seven Series starts.

"I'm excited to be pitching Game 1," he said. "Other than that, it's just one game."

Midlander White, son land 750-pound fish

Staff Report

CABO SAN LUCAS, Baja — Midland's Jim White and son, Dan, have a fish story of one that didn't get away.

On a recent vacation trip to Cabo San Lucas on the tip of the Baja Peninsula, Jim and Dan landed a 750-pound marlin, one of the largest ever reported in the fishing rich waters. The catch came on Oct. 10.

Jim White said, "We were fishing on the Blue Marlin, a fishing charter, and the captain told us that the largest he had ever seen was 520 pounds and he has been doing this for 20 years. Another charter captain said that the largest he had seen was just over 600 pounds."

The marlin was 14 1/2 feet long and it took the Whites six hours to land the monster.

"My son Dan (who lives in Abilene) hooked him at 8 a.m. and we hauled him in at 2 p.m. Dan and I took turns during the six hours. After three hours for each of us, we were both exhausted.

"We set up our charters before we went and were scheduled to go again the next day but we had to cancel it. We were worn out. We did go again a couple of days later and had some good luck. We caught a 165-pound striped marlin, but released it, so we really aren't sure of the exact weight. We also caught six 20-pound Dorados (dolphin) and one 5 1/2 foot black tipped shark while fishing on the Checkmate charter."

Deep sea fishing wasn't new to the Whites.

"I've been to both Mazatlan and Kona, Hawaii," White said. "In Kona, I caught a 155-pound marlin that was 9-foot long. That one took about 45 minutes to land. Dan caught a nice sailfish in Mazatlan but nothing close to this one."

Will the Whites be doing this again soon.

"I would love to," Jim White said, adding, "but give us a little time to rest up."

SERIES: Players say '99 has nothing to do with '96

(From 1C)

from Wohlers in Game 4. The long drive sailed over the glove of left fielder Andruw Jones.

"That was a mistake that he hit it," Jones said after Thursday's workout. "But I don't remember that stuff. That was 1996 and this is 1999. I'm hoping things go differently."

The defending champion Yankees are trying to win their third championship in four years. Atlanta is hoping to win its second title in the '90s — and avoid becoming the first team to lose four World Series in a decade since the New York Giants from 1910-19.

The Braves won two of three at Yankee Stadium in July during interleague play. But slugger Ryan Klesko, who homered twice in one of those games, said that won't have much effect on what happens in October.

Klesko said the results from 1996 won't play a role, either.

"I think we've changed a lot more than they have."

To be on the safe side, however, Klesko planned to watch tapes Thursday night from that other World Series with the Yankees. He was limited to a lone single in 10 at-bats in that matchup.

Cone will start Game 2 for New York against Greg Maddux. When the series moves back to Yankee Stadium, it will be Atlanta's Kevin Millwood against Andy Pettitte in Game 3 and then John Smoltz vs. Roger Clemens in Game 4.

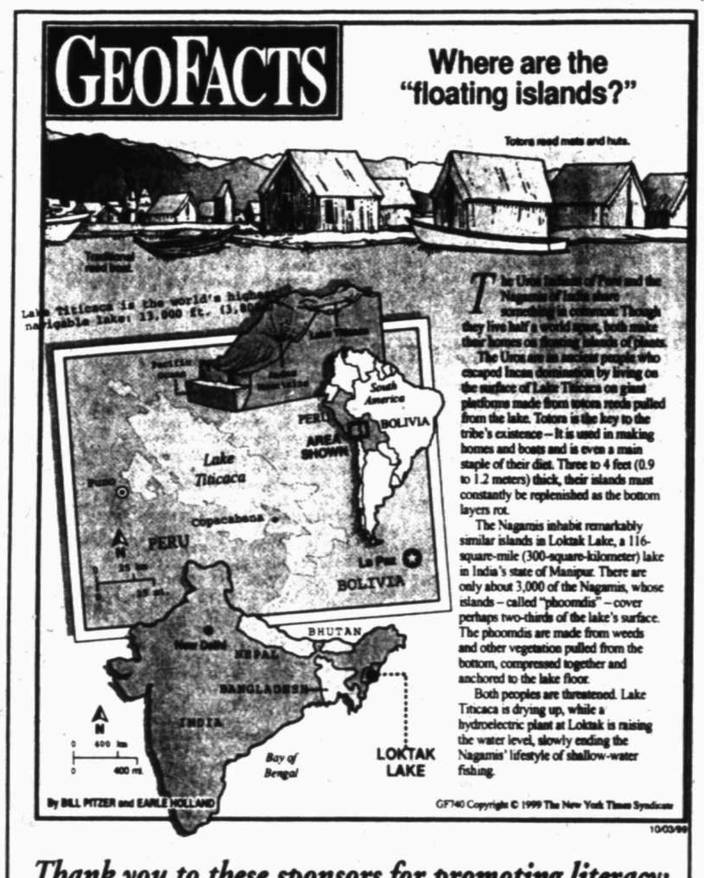
Among the pitchers missing from 1996 Series are World Series MVP John Wetteland and Key from the Yankees and Denny Neagle, Steve Avery and Wohlers from the Braves.

Gone from the starting lineup in Game 1 that year are Grissom, Mark Lemke, Fred McGriff, Jermaine Dye and Jeff Blauser from the Braves — catcher Javy Lopez is injured — and Wade Boggs, Mariano Duncan and Fielder from the Yankees.

"There's not a whole lot of guys left on the teams," Maddux said. "All that matters now is 1999."

GEOFACTS

Where are the "floating islands?"



The Uros of Peru and the Nagamese of India share something in common: Though they live half a world apart, both make their homes on floating islands of plants.

The Uros are an ancient people who escaped Incan domination by living on the surface of Lake Titicaca on giant platforms made from totora reeds pulled from the lake. Totora is the key to the tribe's existence – it is used in making homes and boats and is even a main staple of their diet. Three to 4 feet (0.9 to 1.2 meters) thick, their islands must constantly be replenished as the bottom layers rot.

The Nagamis inhabit remarkably similar islands in Loktak Lake, a 116-square-mile (300-square-kilometer) lake in India's state of Manipur. There are only about 3,000 of the Nagamis, whose islands – called "phoomdis" – cover perhaps two-thirds of the lake's surface. The phoomdis are made from weeds and other vegetation pulled from the bottom, compressed together and anchored to the lake floor.

Both peoples are threatened. Lake Titicaca is drying up, while a hydroelectric plant at Loktak is raising the water level, slowly ending the Nagamis' lifestyle of shallow-water fishing.

Fall injures Caminiti

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros third baseman Ken Caminiti, who missed 79 games this season with a calf problem, sustained three fractures in his lower back after falling from a deer blind during a South Texas hunting trip.

The accident happened early Wednesday near Laredo. Caminiti was expected to remain at Methodist Hospital in Houston through Friday, then spend the next eight weeks recuperating.

The Astros used the disabled list 16 times during the season. The barrage began before spring training when outfielder Moises Alou sustained a season-ending knee injury after reportedly falling off a treadmill.

Also on Thursday, team doctors said surgery successfully tightened ligaments in the throwing shoulder of right-handed starter Scott Elarton.

Both Caminiti and Elarton are expected to be ready for spring training.

Chiefs harass Case into 2 big pickoffs

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — As expected, the Kansas City Chiefs didn't generate much offense against the Baltimore Ravens. They didn't have to.

The Chiefs turned two interceptions into touchdowns, including a 56-yard score by James Hasty, and cruised to a 35-8 victory Thursday night.

Kansas City (4-2) had 80 yards in the first half and only 132 yards through three quarters. Elvis Grbac threw two touchdown passes to Tony Gonzalez and the defense did the rest, completely frustrating Baltimore quarterback Stoney Case in the process.

Hasty's touchdown made it 14-0 in the third quarter, and that was enough to dispatch the Ravens (2-4), who lost their second straight under first-year coach Brian Billick.

The conservative game plan of Chiefs coach Gunther Cunningham worked to perfection — thanks to a defense that came within four minutes of the team's first road shutout in 23 years.

After Grbac connected with Gonzalez for a 22-yard touchdown with 12:37 left, Donnie Edwards picked off Case's pass and lateraled to Reggie Tongue, who went the final 38 yards for a 28-0 lead.

That ended the night for Case, a hero earlier in the year but the recipient of jeers from the crowd of 68,771. Case was 15-for-37 for 103 yards before being replaced by Tony Banks.

The Ravens broke the shutout with 4:05 left, thanks to a pass interference call that covered 35 yards. Errict Rhett scored from the 2, ruining the Chiefs' bid for their first road shutout since a 19-0 victory over San Diego in 1976.

Hasty had two interceptions in a game for the first time since 1988.

MHS: Permian boasts good receivers tandem

(From 1C)

Desmond Hill, who has speed and plays on both sides of the ball. And you always have to stop the sweep when you play Permian because that has been their forte for years."

Williams, who has struggled with an injury this season, has still caught 24 passes for 332 yards and four touchdowns. Hill has caught 28 passes for 327 yards and three touchdowns.

Quarterback Justin Whitaker, the second leading passer in the district has completed 77 of 147 passes and needs only 80 passing yards to break the 1,000-yard mark for the season.

Mayes, too, expects a major battle and thinks the game will be close.

"We can make no mistakes. It will be that close," Mayes said. "Obviously, the way Jimmy (Smith) has been playing, we have to get him stopped, but we can't over-do the focus. All our kids have played against (quarterback) Laynce (Nix) in different sports and know what kind of an athlete he is. And I know the four guys coaching the defense. I know that defense is getting coached."

MHS' Jimmy Smith is coming off a 190-yard effort against Odessa High and wide receiver Lamar Hickey is beginning to step up his game after catching three passes for 96 yards and two touchdowns.

Nix threw for 115 yards and two TDs against OHS. The offense is beginning to put up some numbers after two lackluster offensive weeks.

"Lamar Hickey is coming to the front and that is really good to see," Browning said. "(Tight end) Randy Gardner, (center) Cotey-Joe Cswaykus and (tackle) Robert Covington are all playing very well."

The Midland High defense has given up only 89 points this year, trailing only Midland Lee's 77. But MHS has been outscored 34-48 in district play.

The Purple Pack defenders need to put together two good halves of football.

"(Middle linebacker) Mike Neu has been consistent all season and (defensive end) Michael Glasscock is coming off his best game of the season," Browning noted. "(Defensive tackle) Corneil Ellis and (defensive back) Colter Lange have given us a boost."

BULLDOG BITES: Smith, who is taking on more and more of the offensive running duties, has scored 13 touchdowns and has scored in every game this season... Linebackers are the name of the game on defense. Mike Neu (75), Matt Bose (60) and Chris Hicks (38) lead the team in tackles. Corneil Ellis also has 38 tackles... Should MHS beat Permian, it would set up a monumental meeting with Abilene High next week at Memorial Stadium with a playoff berth probably on the line... Punter Justin Smith is averaging 43.9 yards per punt and he can make mouths drop with the hang time he produces on towering boots... Lamar Hickey has now caught 19 passes for 269 yards, but he also has seven rushes for 64 yards, averaging 9.1 per carry... Colter Lange, who had five interceptions in MHS' first five games, has not had an interception in district play...

balls.

"There's definitely something different about them, but not enough of a difference," he said. "I feel like I should've made every kick I've tried. I don't want to use the new ball as a crutch."

It's not the balls, it's not mechanical and it's not mental.

Whatever "it" is, Cunningham is ready for it to go away.

"I'm just going to continue doing the things I do," said Cunningham.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Oct. 22, 1999:
You express yourself with candor and direction this year. Others listen to you, especially when it comes to spending. Creativity surges to the forefront; others are clearly impressed by you. Your charisma speaks; others respond. If you are single, a love affair could have enormous impact. Be sure you are seeing this person realistically, however. If attached, you might enter into a euphoric phase together. First, however, you'll have to work out a domestic issue. Remodeling or a residential move is possible. ARIES can challenge you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Carefully express what is on your mind. Pick and choose your company. By midday, your energy picks up. A friend reminds you of some fun plans. You could easily lose your temper. Be careful! Tonight: You're top dog.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Reach out for others. Have an important talk. Both your imagination and your libido go wild. Realize where others are coming from. Take time to understand a boss. An authority figure may have a lot to share. Tonight: Take some personal time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Take time to establish better understanding with those in charge. Communication flourishes as you learn more about a good friend or a close tie. Aim higher and be more confident that you'll reach your goals. Schedule a meeting and decide on a pending seminar. Tonight: Where the gang is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Learn to flow with moodiness rather than fight your feelings. Discussions reveal a lot about what is happening on a creative level. You discover that a boss really does have your best interests in mind. What sounds like a dream, financially, might require more research. Tonight: A must appearance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Take time with a key figure in your life this morning. Discussions prove to be unusually productive. Finally, you can handle a money matter successfully. Things fall into place just as you would like them to. Make calls. Tonight: Don't let anything hold you back.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★★ Let others take the ball and run with it. You might receive some interesting financial information; by using it, you can make headway. Trust your moneymaking skills; listen to your inner voice. Another needs your time and concern. Tonight: How about a lovely dinner for two?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Plunge into work; discussions can help you financially. Don't back off from an important premise. Let others make the first moves for now. A lot more is going on than you realize. Be careful, however — do not risk a relationship or money agreement. Tonight: Make it your pleasure.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ You have high energy and are full of ideas and vitality. Another has very different opinions than you; you could end up disagreeing. Remember what is important professionally; don't lose sight of your objectives. Arrange office discussions in the afternoon. Tonight: Out with a coworker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ A heartfelt discussion produces results, whereas being defensive or guarded will backfire. You are building greater trust with family and a close friend. A call puts a huge grin on your face. Happiness is close by. Tonight: Kicking up your heels.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Communication is very important, although you could easily get frustrated. Think about what another suggests financially. Though it might sound like an excellent idea, there may be more going on here than you realize. Tonight: Head home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Build carefully and get to the bottom of a money matter. You discover that another is in agreement about a business plan. Together you structure stronger security and more potential growth. Make calls in the afternoon. Tonight: You could be surprised at your temper!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Get an early start on the day, and you'll succeed. News from a distance is important. You gain a new perspective. Don't let another persuade you into taking a money risk. Make a must meeting; don't be surprised if it turns into a TGIF celebration. Tonight: Go with the flow.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
1♣	2♣	Dbl	2◇
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♠

When this deal was played in a national team championship, East showed impressive faith in partner's bidding and opening lead to come up with a superlative defense.

West's cue-bid of clubs was a major-suit takeout, and North's double showed values. South elected to gamble on partner having stoppers in both majors and essayed three no-trump.

Had West led a low spade, this hand would have been consigned quickly to the annals of lunacy at the bridge table. But thinking there was a possibility of finding North or South with a singleton king of spades, West elected to attack with the ace of spades! The fate of the contract hung in the balance.

To East it was obvious that South's jump to game was based on a long running club suit. That meant that West had no quick entry to hand and that unless the spades could be run, declarer would have nine tricks. There was only one way to accomplish that — East jettisoned the king of spades under the ace!

That made life easy for West, who had also reached the same conclusion about the playing strength of the closed hand. Unless the jack of spades was coming down, there was no hope. So West continued with the queen of spades, and when East's jack appeared, the defense ran the first six tricks.

Hollywood madam goes bankrupt

LOS ANGELES — A month after leaving prison, former Hollywood madam Heidi Fleiss has filed for bankruptcy.

Ms. Fleiss listed debts of more than $269,000, including $115,000 owed to lawyers, in a court filing Wednesday. She also said she owed $85,000 in back rent and inventory from her Santa Monica lingerie store, Heidi Wear Inc.

Ms. Fleiss, 33, was released from a federal prison in September after serving more than three years on charges related to her Hollywood call-girl operation.

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — What's a seven-letter word for embarrassed political figure? M-A-N-D-E-L-A.

Nelson Mandela used a Scrabble metaphor Wednesday to wrap up a speech before the Palestinian Legislative Assembly that ran twice the expected time.

"Twenty-two points, plus a triple word score, plus 50 points for using up all my letters," he said, smiling at a bewildered assembly of politicians who are not familiar with the American game. "Game over. I'm out of here."

The former South Africa president spoke for half an hour in support of the peace process with Israel.

The Palestinians, who regard Mandela as a symbol of freedom and self-determination, frequently applauded. They also were puzzled, however, by his farewell.

NEW ORLEANS — A coroner has classified the death of Bobby Sheehan, bassist for the Grammy-winning rock band Blues Traveler, as an accidental drug overdose.

Sheehan, 31, had heroin, cocaine and Valium in his system when he was found dead in his home two months ago, toxicology tests showed.

"It's very sad," Coroner Frank Minyard said Wednesday. "This guy had a bright future."

Sheehan and three high school friends formed Blues Traveler in New York in the mid-1980s. Led by harmonica virtuoso John Popper, they built up a national following. The hit single "Runaround," which won a Grammy in 1995, catapulted sales of the band's album "Four" past the 4 million mark.

Sheehan moved to New Orleans in 1996.

LINCOLN, Neb. — Tobacco whistle-blower Jeffrey Wigand says the movie "The Insider" takes some liberties with his story, but is essentially accurate.

In one scene, the former Brown & Williamson executive is portrayed as hitting golf balls at a driving range while a burly man watches him.

"Did that happen? No," Wigand said Wednesday.

But Wigand said the movie starring Al Pacino as "60 Minutes" producer Lowell Bergman accurately portrays the kinds of threats he and his family faced after publicly addressing health and smoking issues in 1995.

Wigand was in Nebraska to give speeches on his experiences. He said he is donating his speaking fees to his nonprofit organization, Smoke-Free Kids, based in Charleston, S.C.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The St. Jude Children's Research Hospital plans to open a cancer clinic for children in Lebanon, fulfilling a dream of founder and Lebanese-American Danny Thomas.

"It was always his dream to bring science and technology to Lebanon," John Moses, vice chairman of Memphis, Tenn.-based St. Jude and head of a delegation that is negotiating the Beirut project, said Thursday.

The clinic will be set up in association with the American University of Beirut, which has one of the leading medical centers in the Middle East.

Moses, whose grandfather is Lebanese, said the clinic will be open to Lebanese and Syrian children.

"No one will be turned away for their inability to pay," he said.

St. Jude Children's research hospital was founded in 1962 by Thomas and others. The entertainer died in 1991.

SPEAKE, Ala. — One of the stars of "Crazy in Alabama" won't be at its world premiere this Friday in Birmingham.

Lucas Black's other role — left guard and nose guard for the Speake High School football team — is more important.

"This is my first year to play varsity football," said Black, the 16-year-old actor who made a name for himself in the 1996 Oscar-winning movie "Sling Blade."

"We don't have too good a record, but it's been fun. I don't think I need to miss a game to go to that premiere," he said. "Besides, I know what happens in the movie."

While he enjoys making movies, Black said he prefers hunting, fishing or playing sports.

"Crazy in Alabama," based on Mark Childress' best-selling novel of the same name, is a coming-of-age story about a boy nicknamed Peejoe, played by Black, and how he comes to the aid of his eccentric aunt during the 1960s. Melanie Griffith plays the aunt.

Futures rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil futures rose Thursday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, though trading remained stuck in a narrow range.

Light sweet crude for December delivery rose 13 cents to $22.61 a barrel, as traders looked for news to push the market in one direction or the other. Inventory news from the American Petroleum Institute and the Energy Department earlier this week was largely contradictory.

Mixed finish

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks wobbled to a mixed finish on Wall Street Thursday, rebounding from steep losses wrought by IBM's warning that worries about the Year 2000 computer bug are hurting hardware sales.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended with a loss of 94.67 at 10,297.69. Earlier in the session, the Dow had dipped 213 points. IBM accounted for nearly all of the decline.

Broader stock indicators rallied late in the day and ended mixed. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 5.82 to 1,283.61, and the Nasdaq composite index rose 13.82 to 2,801.95.

Stocks plunged at the start of trading in a selloff attributed almost entirely to IBM's disappointing forecast. The company said after the close of trading Wednesday that potential buyers of IBM's network and database servers are postponing purchases until after the start of the new year, when concerns over Year 2000 computer bugs are fully resolved.

Dollar falls

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar fell slightly Thursday against most major currencies, dampened on a quiet trading day by the morning fall in the stock market.

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 105.86 yen, down from 106.50 late Wednesday. The euro was quoted at $1.0820, up from $1.0752.

Stocks plunged as low as 210 points during the day, mostly because IBM announced that Year 2000 computer bug concerns are hurting hardware sales. The market recovered some ground late in the day.

Soybeans sink

Soybean futures plummeted to their lowest closing level in a month Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade as rain brought much-needed moisture to parched growing areas of Brazil.

Brazil's weather also influenced another commodity, sending coffee futures falling by 5 percent. Elsewhere, natural gas prices rose sharply.

After a poor showing on Wednesday, soybean prices slid further Thursday due to a combination of reasons.

The market plunged immediately lower after weekly export sales were reported to be less than anticipated — 732,000 tons, down 35 percent from last week.

Forecasts for rain in northern Brazil, which have rocked the soybean market periodically this month, sent the price spiraling further.

Soybeans for November delivery fell 8 1/4 cents to $4.79 3/4 cents a bushel.

Coffee futures lurched lower after a report by Salomon Smith Barney that said the worst of the Brazilian drought is over in coffee-producing regions.

The report said enough rain had fallen in the previous 48 hours to help the coffee trees recover from the extended dryness.

December coffee fell 4.80 cents to 90.60 cents a pound on New York's Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange.

Unemployment continues to drop

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Unemployment in Midland and Odessa continued to decline, according to statistics released by the Texas Workforce Commission Thursday.

The commission's Odessa-Midland metropolitan statistical area (MSA) posted an unemployment rate of 7.6 percent in September, down from 8.1 percent in August but above the 6 percent posted a year earlier.

The City of Midland's unemployment rate dipped to 6.6 percent from 6.7 percent in August but is above the 4.6 percent last year.

"(The numbers) seem to be fairly typical of this time of year, with school starting up and the exiting of summer job holders and summer job seekers from the market," said Labor Market Analyst Bob Crawley. "There is nothing outside the normal seasonal trends."

He added that local unemployment has not only returned to pre-summer levels but are actually lower than pre-summer rates in the 8 percent range.

"It's lower because jobs have been created and also because people have left the market," he said.

The Odessa-Midland labor force dropped to 126,565 from 127,275 in August and is below the 128,451 last year. The number of employed residents also dropped, to 116,888 from 117,019 in August and from 120,718 a year go. The number of unemployed residents also dropped, to 9,677 from 10,256 in August but is up from 7,733 last year.

"From April through the current month, the labor force and employment are both down," observed Crawley. "The reduction in the labor market, with the dominance of the mining industry there, was to be expected."

The good news, he said, is that the mining sector, which includes the oil and gas industry, has not only stabilized but added 100 jobs from August to September. Mining employment rose to 11,400 in September from 11,300 in August but is down 1,100 or 8.8 percent from 12,500 in September 1998.

The sharpest gain was in the local government sector, which Crawley attributed to the return of non-contract school employees — bus drivers, janitors, kitchen staff — when school resumed. Teachers and administrators, who have contracts with school districts, are considered employed during the summer months.

Among the commission's 27 MSAs, Odessa-Midland ranked 22, just below Laredo's 7.4 percent unemployment rate. The lowest rate in the state was in Bryan-College Station, 1.7 percent, followed by Austin-San Marcos with 2.2 percent, Lubbock with 2.6 percent and Dallas and Fort Worth-Arlington with 3.1 percent each.

Statewide, the rate was 4.5 percent, inching up from 4.4 percent in August. But the rate remains the lowest for the month of September since 1979. The state's total unemployment rose by 2,100 to 463,700 in September from 461,600 in August.

Hoarding in Hawaii

AP Photo

Verna Adaro of Kunia, Hawaii, shops for rice at a supermarket Thursday as talk of a dockworkers strike led residents to strip store shelves of items such as rice, milk and toilet paper. Workers on the islands of Kauai, Maui, and Hawaii, voted unanimously this week to give the union strike authorization powers. Workers on Oahu, who make up the bulk of the union's 500 members, were scheduled to vote Friday.

Threat of dock strike spurs panic buying in Hawaii

By Jean Christensen
Associated Press

WAIPAHU, Hawaii — Hawaiians are stripping store shelves of rice, Spam, toilet paper and other items for fear of a dockworkers strike that could cripple a state that gets 90 percent of everything via ship.

The 507 members of the International Longshore and Warehouse Union Local 142 are demanding a new contract with the state's four major shipping companies.

So far, dockworkers on the islands of Kauai, Maui and Hawaii have authorized a strike. The Oahu members, by far the local's largest contingent, vote Friday. Union leaders could call a strike any time after that.

If the dockworkers strike, ships that arrive in Hawaii will sit in port without being unloaded. And if the walkout drags on, shipping companies will stop sending vessels on the five-day journey from the West Coast.

Since the voting started, residents have swamped Hawaii supermarkets.

"They've got us by the throat," said Shirley Oshiro, 61, a retired schoolteacher who found rice but no toilet paper. "It's like we're getting ready for a hurricane."

Gina Agpaoa went to the Sam's Club warehouse to stock up but found bare shelves. Rice and toilet paper were long gone, and gallons of milk were going fast. She grabbed Spam and Vienna Sausages.

The Wal-Mart in Hilo limited customers to 24 rolls of toilet paper, one bag of rice, two bags of disposable diapers and six cans of infant formula. "We're trying to make sure as many people as possible get the supplies they need," assistant manager Seni Kaseli said.

Hawaii's docks shut down for five months in 1949 and 100 days in 1971 because of a West Coast strike.

The dockworkers union wants a contract similar to the three-year, 8 percent wage increase West Coast stevedores received this summer. Contract talks are set to resume Saturday morning.

"We are not expecting a strike," said Paul Stevens, senior vice president for Matson Navigation Co., whose subsidiary, Matson Terminals Inc., is one of the four shipping companies involved. "We want to keep the commerce to Hawaii flowing. We're not digging in here at all."

Union local President Eusebio Lapenia also sounded optimistic. "Don't panic," he said. "We're going to give it our honest effort to try to come to some kind of agreement."

But because of a work slowdown at the docks last week, there is already a backlog at the harbor, with four ships sitting unloaded.

The strike threat comes just as the islands are recovering from a nine-year economic slump. Tourism is up, as are real estate sales and construction.

"A whole lot of things are finally moving in the right direction," said Michael Sklarz, an economist who is chairman of the state Council on Revenues. "You can't say anything positive about a strike."

The effects of the hoarding alone could be far-reaching. The Ala Moana Shopping Center and its 200-plus tenants on the outskirts of Waikiki will have to close if the mall can't enough toilet paper and cleaning supplies to meet health codes, general manager Dwight Yoshimura said.

In the meantime, people like Althea Kahai are preparing for life without rice. "There's always potatoes or poi," she said.

Cigar trend goes down in flames

By Sheryll Poe
N.Y. Times News Service

AUSTIN — The cigar craze has burned itself out.

Cigars had enjoyed a trendy revival in the late 1990s, in part due to glossy magazines like "Cigar Aficionado," which featured hot Hollywood stars like Demi Moore and Sylvester Stallone smoking stogies.

But for 1999, analysts predict a 10 percent fall in sales of premium cigars. Three cigar companies — JR Cigar Inc., General Cigar Holdings and Dimon Inc. — reported quarterly revenues down significantly from the same period in 1998. Holt's, another cigar company, saw its stock downgraded by Prudential Bache.

"People with extra money, the techies, today they like martinis, jazz and cigars, tomorrow it's cars. They get bored too easily," said Charlie Guluzian, owner of the Cigar Palace in downtown Austin. "The trend was because of the economy."

The cigar business crested in 1964, when Americans were smoking 9 billion yearly. By 1992, government health warnings had caused the industry to fall some 77 percent, to 2.1 billion cigars yearly.

Then, suddenly, things changed. There was a 14.6 percent jump in sales in 1994, followed by a 31 percent rise in 1995. In 1996, sales of premium, hand-rolled cigars jumped 67 percent. In 1997, they leaped another 30 percent.

The Cigar Association of America didn't compile figures for 1998. But, two years later, retailers and cigar manufacturers report that fewer people are lighting up. The "cigar great awakening" was bound to crash, said Gerald Celente of Trends Research Institute in Rhinebeck, N.Y. The boom was marketing-driven, rather than consumer-driven, and reality couldn't sustain the imagery, he said, especially among women.

"It's very unfeminine, and they stink," he said. "Despite all the hype and the glossy advertising, women were never going to become cigar smokers en masse."

Cigar smoking has a heavy "repulse factor" that makes cigar smokers a nuisance at parties and restaurants, Celente said.

That isn't slowing down Guluzian. He plans to open a 10,000-square-foot Cuban club called Club Bolivar in December. The club, to be located above the Cigar Palace, will feature cigars from the store. A yearly membership will go for $5,000. Guluzian said he has already had enough commitments from potential members to assure the club's success. Mark Tiedeken, manager for Market Wine & Spirits in Round Rock, said he has a lot of longtime customers. "Our sales are increasing," he said, "but the trend part is over."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

There are strategies to reduce taxes on investments

By Eric Tyson

Q: I've contributed to retirement accounts but don't understand how investments outside such accounts are taxed. Can you please explain that as well as how to cut those taxes?

A: Interest that is paid on bank accounts, bonds and dividends paid by stocks are all generally taxable. The exception is the interest paid on some types of bonds. U.S. Treasury bonds, for example, pay interest that is state tax-free. Municipal bonds, which are issued by state and local governments, pay interest that is federally tax-free and also state tax-free to residents in the state the bond is issued.

Tyson

Then there is the taxation on your capital gains, which is the profit realized when you sell an investment for more than you originally paid for it. Investments held one year or less generate short-term capital gains, which are taxed at your normal marginal rate. Profits from investments held longer than 18 months are long-term capital gains, on which taxes are capped at 20 percent for those in a tax bracket of 28 percent or higher, and 10 percent for those in the 15 percent tax bracket.

For investments purchased after Dec. 31, 2000 and then held longer than five years, the long-term capital gains rate drops to 18 percent for those in the 28 percent tax bracket and 8 percent for those in the 15 percent bracket. In addition to holding your nonretirement investments for the long term to benefit from the lower capital gains tax rates, there are other strategies to reduce the taxes on investments exposed to taxation:

If you're in a high enough tax bracket (federal 28 percent to 31 percent, or higher), you may find that you come out ahead with tax-free investments (such as money market and bond funds). Tax-free investments yield less than comparable investments that produce taxable earnings. But because of the difference in taxes, the earnings from tax-free investments can end up being greater than what you're left with from taxable investments. In order to do the comparison properly, subtract what you will pay in federal as well as state taxes from the taxable investment.

You can also invest in what I call tax-friendly stocks — companies that pay little in the way of dividends reinvest more of their profits back into the company. If you're investing outside of a retirement account, unless you need income to live on, minimize your exposure to stocks with dividends. Be aware that low-dividend stocks tend to be more volatile.

Also consider investing in small business and real estate. The growth in value of a business and real estate asset is not taxed until the asset is sold. Even then, with investment real estate, you often can roll over the gain into another property so long as you comply with tax laws. However, the current income that a small business and real estate produces is taxed as ordinary income.

Q: When some people talk about high investment prices, they say it's like "tulip mania." What does that mean?

A: Over the years, various investment fads have come and gone that have driven some investment prices to ridiculous extremes. Probably the most famous mania of them all was the tulip bulb — you know, those flowers that you can plant in your home garden. A botany professor introduced tulips into Holland from Turkey in the late 1500s. Residents let a fascination with these bulbs turn into an investment feeding frenzy.

At their speculative peak, the price of a single tulip bulb was the equivalent of more than $10,000 in today's dollars. Many people sold their land holdings to buy more. Documented cases show people trading a bulb for a dozen acres of land! Laborers cut back on their work to invest. Eventually, tulip bulb prices came crashing down. A trip to your local nursery should show you what a bulb sells for today.

Chance at fighting Tyson grants Norris' old dream

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS — Orlin Norris finally is getting a fight he wanted a decade ago.

"I felt like I could beat him 10 years ago," said Norris, who will fight Mike Tyson on Saturday night. "Nothing has changed."

Norris' attitude might remain the same, but a lot has changed in 10 years for the two fighters, especially for Tyson.

In 1989, Tyson was the fearsome undisputed heavyweight champion. Now he is 33 and making yet another comeback. He is a fighter who maintains the power of his glory years, but whose fast hands and quick feet have been slowed by time and inactivity.

Tyson, however, remains an attraction, a man held in the harsh glare of a celebrity built on his boxing achievement and his out-of-ring problems.

"People love Mike Tyson," said Dan Goossen, president of promoter America Presents. "They love to see him win. They love to see him lose."

"He has done so much for the game, and I think he deserves a lot of the attention he gets," said the 34-year-old Norris.

Tyson was a 12-1 favorite to win the 10-round match in the MGM Grand Garden.

A decade ago the odds against Norris would have been similar to the 42-1 odds that favored Tyson against James "Buster" Douglas on Feb. 11, 1990.

Douglas, who knocked out Tyson in the 10th round in perhaps boxing's greatest upset, was the first choice for this bout. Tyson is fighting for the first time since he knocked out Francois Botha on Jan. 16 and served 3 1-2 months in a Maryland jail for assaulting two motorists after a minor accident.

Douglas, however, was rejected because of his poor physical condition. The attraction of Douglas to the people who guide and sell Tyson's career was his chin, which had grown increasingly fragile.

The attraction of Norris is that he does not pack a big wallop. Most of the 27 knockouts on his 55-5 record came through attrition.

Another factor that probably helped Norris get the fight is his size. He's built like Tyson, who could use a dominating performance at this point of his career. Norris is 5-foot-10, while Tyson is listed at 5-11 1-2, but appears shorter.

Tyson weighed in officially Thursday at 223 pounds, which was his weight for the Botha fight. Norris weighed 218 pounds, two pounds less than when he stopped Pele Reid on June 26 in his only fight in 12 1-2 months.

Norris has a crafty style, one that can frustrate an opponent and also bore a crowd.

In October 1989, Norris had a 22-1 record, but because of his style he was not in the heavyweight championship mix. He won eight of his next 10 fights, outpointing former heavyweight champion Greg Page in 1989 and future champ Oliver McCall in 1990, and losing a decision to former champ Tony Tucker in 1991.

In 1991 he shed more than 20 pounds to enter the 190-pound cruiserweight class. He won the WBA title in 1993 and lost on an eighth-round knockout by Nate Miller in 1995.

For much of his career, Norris has boxed in the shadow of younger brother Terry, who was a flashy junior middleweight champion.

Norris will try to frustrate Tyson for 10 rounds. Botha did it for most of five rounds, winning all of the first four on two cards and three of the four on the third card. Then the South African got a little too cocky late in the fifth, dropped his guard and was knocked out by a right to the jaw.

"Botha fought Tyson the right way," Norris said. "Botha did a lot of things right. He impressed me, more or less, as a boxer. He didn't stay in front of Tyson until the last round. Botha used the jab, he used his right hand and speed. My job is not to get hit with the big shot."

The Showtime telecast will begin at 11 p.m. EDT. Tyson's fight probably will not start until the World Series game ends, but it is not expected to start later than midnight.

Mediate, Faxon lead at Disney

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Tiger Woods has no intention of coasting through the rest of the year.

Rested and determined to complete what already has been a terrific season on a high note, Woods shot 66 Thursday to trail co-leaders Rocco Mediate and Brad Faxon by one stroke after the opening round of Disney's National Rental Car Classic.

Playing for the first time since the Ryder Cup a month ago and ending a layoff of seven weeks from 72-hole tournaments, the world's top-ranked player fashioned a 6-under-par score with seven birdies and one bogey in soggy conditions on the Palm Course at Disney World.

With victories in two of the last three tournaments this season, Woods can become the first $6 million man in golf. He's won five PGA events in 1999, including his second major title, and isn't ready to rest on his success.

"I want to end on a good note. It's been a great year. I've won six times worldwide, and I've come close in other majors. I just want to keep playing well and hopefully chalk up a couple more victories."

A late-afternoon downpour held up play on the Palm and Magnolia courses for nearly two hours. Forty-three players were still trying to complete the round when play was suspended for the night.

Vijay Singh joined Woods at 6-under. Steve Elkington and Mike Springer, who didn't finish, were 6-under through 16 and 13 holes, respectively.

John Huston, Bob Tway and Scott Verplank were among a group at 67 to trail by two strokes. Hal Sutton and Ernie Els were among those bunched at 4-under 68.

Mediate's round consisted of five birdies and an eagle on the Magnolia course. Faxon played the Palm, finishing with seven birdies and no bogeys for a share of the lead.

Although Mediate said he putted as well as he has in a long time, he missed from inside 10 feet on each of the last three holes.

"You always remember the ones you missed," he said, adding the longest putt he had for par all day was four feet. "Everything else was in or just about in. Which is good. You don't have many of those days. At least I haven't."

Woods began his round with three birdies and a bogey on the back nine of the Palm course. He added four birdies on the front, including a 60-foot chip on No. 2, to close on the leaders.

Besides playing well, a highlight of the day for Woods was being paired in a group for the first time with ex-college teammate Notah Begay, who shot 70.

"It was great. It was a lot of fun getting to talk to him about his two victories this year," Woods said. "It was great to relive some of the old days."
