Mayor to resign, accept COG post effective April 1

Mayor Troy Williamson announced Friday that he has accepted the position as director of regional services for the Concho Valley Council of Governments in San Angelo.

In making the announcement, Williamson said he will not seek another term as mayor in the May election, but will continue in office until the end of March. He will begin his new position April 1.

"It has been a priviledge to serve the citizens of Snyder," said Williamson. "I know the spirit of this city will continue to make Snyder a factor in the growth of West Texas into the next century."

Williamson said he and his wife, Barbara, will continue to have family and property in Snyder.

"Snyder is home to me and my family," he said. "It has been the home of the Williamson family for several generations."

Williamson was reared in Snyder and graduated from Hardin-Simmons University. He recently completed his master of public administration degree at Angelo State University.

He previously worked for Rinshed-Mason Co. in Detroit, Mich. and Demco Educational Corp. in Madison, Wis. prior to returning to Snyder, where he and his wife owned Williamson Auto Supply for 17 years. They sold the business in July of 1991.

Williamson has been mayor for six years and was a city council member for three years prior to that.

Local reps caution...

United Way pay deductions may not be reaching Snyder

Your United Way payroll deductions may not be going to benefit charitable agencies in Scurry County, members of the local organization say.

In a meeting held last week to reorganize the Scurry County United Way board, Chairman Jeff Fowler told representatives of the various organizations served, that although many individuals may be having money deducted from their paychecks to benefit United Way, those dollars are not coming to Scurry County but are going to the national organization.

"As a director of one of the five agencies who depend on United Way for a large portion of our funding, I'm very concerned that Scurry County citizens do not realize they may be donating their money to the national organization," said Claudia Fields, local director of the Noah Project.

Although still using the name of the organization, Scurry County United Way has not sent any money to the national organization in four years.

"We decided to disassociate with the national organization because we have never received any administrative assistance or funding from them," said Fowler. "We felt our money should stay in our county where it is needed most."

Local United Way representatives are encouraging anyone who donates to the organization through payroll deductions to ask their employer where the money is being sent. If the money is going directly to the national organization, the employee may want to reconsider donating directly to the local organization, they said.

A lack of participation and interest has hindered fund-raising efforts to meet this year's $60,000 local goal. At present, pledges have reached approximately $30,000, or one half of the goal, but only about $12,000 has actually been collected, according to Jeffrey Martin, treasurer.

First Western CEO sentenced in Dallas

DALLAS — A former Snyder resident, who headed a Colorado City savings and loan that failed, Friday was sentenced to 18 months in federal prison.

Neva C. Turner, former chief executive officer and executive vice president of First Western Savings and Loan Association, received 18 months confinement, without parole, with a period of three years supervised release on count one. She received five years probation on count two.

Turner had plead guilty on Sept. 27, 1991, to a two-count information charging her with conspiracy to commit bank fraud and bank fraud. First Western employees Roy and Katy Byrd and Marilyn Robers pleaded guilty to related offenses.

Judge Sidney A. Fitzwater handed down the sentences Friday. The Byrds also received 18 months confinement on count one. Katy Byrd received five years probation on count two. Roberts received five months confinement followed by five months at a community treatment center.

As part of a plea bargain, the defendants agreed to forfeit their homes as well as make restitution in the amount of $282,986.83.

Prosecutors said the defendants initiated a scheme to use First Western funds to make personal investments in the stock market and concealed the scheme through the use of internal check kiting and false journal entries. The loss to First Western was in excess of $500,000.

In May 1991, the Federal Bureau of Investigation seized over $102,000 as proceeds forfeitable to the U.S. government as a result of the fraud.

Commissioners work on 'shared' agreement

A work session to consider a new city-county shared services agreement saw Scurry County commissioners court discuss 911 and law enforcement dispatching Friday.

Sheriff Keith Collier met with commissioners in an effort to come up with ideas to present to the city council.

One possibility is to house all law enforcement agencies in one building and combine dispatching services. Collier said dispatchers, who generally are female, could serve as backup jailers to deal with female inmates in the county jail.

Collier said the police and sheriff's department would operate separately and maintain their identity. "It's a way to save some tax money," Collier said.

Work on various aspects of the proposed city-county contract will continue during the commissioner's 10 a.m. session Monday. In addition to 911 and dispatching, commissioners must also address ambulance service, solid waste disposal, seal coating of city streets, insect control, animal control and fire services.

The city and county have been working under the same basic contract since 1984. Last August, the city notified the county that it would terminate the contract, effective Sept. 10, 1993.

Other items on Monday's agenda include a request to advertise for proposals for trash collection for residents outside the city limits, and discussion of a Town Hall on economic development meeting set for March 15.

Physician to join hospital staff here

Kenneth L. Russell, M.D., who specializes in internal medicine, will join the staff of Cogdell Memorial Hospital in the summer.

"The addition of an internal medicine physician will allow us to continue to expand the depth of medical services we can provide to the people of Snyder," said Dr. Jim Burleson, Cogdell chief of staff. "The medical staff looks forward to working with Dr. Russell, who is well-trained and very personable."

Dr. Russell was born in Dublin, Tex. He completed undergraduate studies at North Texas State University in Denton and Texas Christian University in Fort Worth. He obtained his M.D. degree at the University of Texas, San Antonio.

He completed his residency in internal medicine at Methodist Hospital in Dallas in 1991. Dr. Russell was named Resident of the Year that year.

His wife, Nancy, is a certified critical care registered nurse. She has worked in intensive care units at Baylor Hospital in Dallas and in Brownwood.

The Russells have four sons, Jamey, 19; Steven, 18; Ryan, 15; and Kyle, 13. The family has been in Comanche since 1991.

Tim Lancaster, Cogdell CEO, said the hospital has been recruiting Dr. Russell for some time.

"We met Dr. Russell a couple of years ago while he was working in our emergency room before he moved to Comanche. We knew at that time we wanted him to come to Snyder. When things did not work out in Comanche for the Russells, we began talking to him again about moving to Snyder," Lancaster said.

Dr. Russell and his family are expected to move to Snyder by June.

His office will be located in Cogdell Medical Center, between the offices of Dr. Nussey and Dr. Cooper.

Walton will seek second full term

Place 5 incumbent Ann Walton filed Friday for a second full term on the Snyder public schools board of trustees.

She will be opposed by Fluvanna resident Janet Stribling, who filed on Feb. 15, the first day to file for candidacy in the May 1 elections.

"My main concern is for the children of Snyder schools, because they are our tomorrow. I want our young people to have as good an education as our children received in the 1960s and 70s," said Walton.

She said she was busy being a wife and mother and unable to serve on the board when her children were in school. She ran in 1988 "to ensure my grandchildren and other children had the opportunity to have a good education. I feel like I've got a little more time than most parents have to do this," she said.

She said the district is facing tough economic times, noting, "we don't want to sacrifice childrens' education but we can't let things get out of hand, either. We have some of the finest teachers in the world and we want to keep them."

Place 5 is one of two contested

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The legislative process is kinda like a house full of termites. You don't think much is going on until things start falling in on you."

State Sen. Bill Sims of San Angelo is one of our favorites in Austin. The West Texan is conservative and down to earth.

He may have provided the best comment to come out of the current legislative session.

Sen. Sims introduced two constituents who were working as interns in his office in the state capital. He went on to explain the history of his intern program:

"People used to raise heck with us because they thought we didn't do anything. So we had them come down here so they could see for themselves that we don't do anything."

This one happened in the legislature in Tennessee.

The assembly was debating a bill that would make the gray squirrel the official state animal.

One legislator arose to object. "I just want to warn my fellow legislators," he drawled. "that any animal that goes around burying nuts could be dangerous to this assembly."

Everybody and every town wants economic development, and Snyder folks involved in the process might borrow an idea that seems to be working in Shenandoah, Iowa.

The community will pay $5 to anyone who offers a lead on a company seeking to relocate. It then offers $50 if a prospect is invited to visit.

Should the company relocate, the tipster gets $20 for every full-time job created.

Last year the city collected 18 leads, and is about to close one deal that would offer new job opportunities.

RTC eyes possible violations by Bentsen's son

WASHINGTON (AP) — A son of Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen is being investigated by the Resolution Trust Corp. for possible violation of rules regarding management of the agency's property.

The investigation centers on whether Houston investor Lan Bentsen disclosed to the RTC that a company in which he was a principal defaulted on $54 million in loans inherited by the RTC.

The federal agency, charged with disposing of assets from the nation's failed savings and loans, is barred from doing business with individuals or companies that have defaulted on loans or caused loss of more than $50,000 to a failed thrift.

RTC officials refused to discuss the investigation while it is in progress. They also refused to discuss the settlement on the loan defaults they reached last month with Bentsen's company, Lan Bentsen Interests of Houston.

Bentsen referred calls to two Texas attorneys who represent a property management company, Sovereign National Management Corp., in which he owns a 35 percent stake. But he told the Washington Post, in an interview published Friday, that he was surprised by the RTC investigation.

"I go to great lengths to be sure I don't trip across these things," Bentsen told the newspaper.

Houston attorney Mark Metts, who represents Sovereign, said the RTC began investigating Bentsen's contracts last December.

At issue is whether the RTC was aware of the loan defaults involving Lan Bentsen Interests at a time when the agency was working with Sovereign.

Sovereign obtained numerous property management contracts from the RTC in 1987 involving assets of a handful of large failed Texas thrifts, including United Savings Association, First Heights Bank, San Jacinto Savings Association and University Savings Association.

The elder Bentsen's financial disclosure form shows he owns between $500,000 and $1 million of Sovereign common stock. There has been no suggestion that Lloyd Bentsen has done anything improper and spokesman Jack DeVore said the treasury secretary "never, never made contact with the RTC on behalf of his son."

Metts and another Sovereign attorney, Sandy Brown of Dallas, said the RTC should have been aware of the LBI defaults because Sovereign has been seeking since 1990 to clear up the issue.

Metts and Brown said that when the RTC implemented regulations in 1990 pertaining to conflict of interest, Sovereign quickly approached the agency to obtain a waiver.

"It became clear to us they were going to have a problem with that," Metts said. "We have taken a very proactive approach in letting the RTC know exactly what is going on."

In spring 1991, Sovereign's lawyers proposed an agreement that would have transferred all of Sovereign's RTC contracts to a new company in which Bentsen would have no ownership or interest.

Johnson will share love of painting with Kiwanians

Lifetime Snyder resident Darrel W. Johnson will be the speaker noon Wednesday as Kiwanis members meet.

Johnson will speak to the civic group about his love for painting.

"Actually my wife got me started. She encouraged me to pursue the art," Johnson said.

After only his second year painting and a few WTC courses under his belt, Johnson encourages more people to take up painting.

"I sometimes spend 12 to 15 hours in one sitting on a piece of work. I hope more people give it a try. It is good for your mind and body," he said.

Johnson paints in oils now, but said after he gets his technique down like he wants he might try other mediums.

"Annie Get Your Gun..."

Auditions slated next week for Ritz production in May

Ritz Community Theatre has selected the popular "Annie Get Your Gun" as its spring musical production and will be holding auditions this week.

The musical, originally produced by Rodgers and Hammerstein, will be performed in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre May 13-16, 20 and 22-24.

Auditions are scheduled from 4-6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday for principal roles only, and Friday from 7-10 p.m. for callbacks, other roles and additional singers and dancers. All auditions are to be held in the Fine Arts Theatre.

Principal men's roles include Col. William "Buffalo Bill" Cody, Frank Butler, Charlie Davenport, Sitting Bull and Pawnee Bill. Principal women's roles are Annie Oakley and Dolly Tate.

Important children's roles are Little Jake, age 8; and singers Nellie, age 9; Jessie, age 13; and Minnie, age 15.

In addition to reading during auditions, principals will sing a prepared selection of their choice, a cappella or providing their own accompaniment. A piano and a tape player will be available.

There are other roles for 12 men, seven women and two children, plus additional singers and dancers.

Thomas Fogleman will be the musical director, assisted by Ellie Dryden.

The music and lyrics of "Annie Get Your Gun" were written by Irvin Berlin and the book by Herbert and Dorothy Fields. The musical, starring Ethel Merman, opened at the Imperial Theatre in New York City on May 16, 1946 and ran for 1,147 performances.

The road company had Mary Martin as the star and the show ran four years in London.

The score, generally considered Berlin's best, contains the song which has become the professional anthem of entertainment, "There's No Business Like Show Business."

Other musical numbers include "The Girl That I Marry,", "Doin' What Comes Natur'lly," "Anything You Can Do," "They Say It's Wonderful," and "I Got The Sun In The Morning."

First black woman in space leaving NASA

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Dr. Mae Jemison, the first black woman in space, announced Friday that she will leave NASA after one trip to space and nearly six years with the agency.

Jemison, 36, said in her resignation letter that she was quitting the space agency to pursue interests in "teaching, mentoring, health care issues and increasing participation in science and technology of those who have traditionally been left out."

"I leave with the honor of having been the first woman of color in space, and with an appreciation of NASA — the organization that gave me the opportunity to make one of my dreams possible.

"The experiences of the NASA astronaut program have opened many doors, and provided a way to put my hard work and training to use for the good of others," she said in a news release from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Jemison has been at Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., on a visiting professorship since January, said Barbara Schwartz, spokeswoman for the Johnson Space Center in Houston. Jemison did not immediately return telephone messages left for her at Dartmouth by The Associated Press.

Terrie Williams, Jemison's spokeswoman in New York, also did not immediately return a telephone call.

Jemison's departure leaves four black men but no black woman among NASA's astronaut corps.

"We're going to miss her, definitely. We certainly will be looking for other culturally diverse people for the program," Ms. Schwartz said.

"We wish her well, but it's a disappointment, of course — we kind of feel like family. Once they're here, we hate to lose anybody," she said.

Jemison said she will keep living in Houston and will continue to support NASA, Ms. Schwartz said.

Jemison had been an astronaut since June 1987. She made her first space flight last September on an eight-day shuttle mission devoted to Japanese research.

The Chicago native won a scholarship to Stanford University, where she studied chemical engineering and African and Afro-American studies. She went on to medical school at Cornell University and, after receiving her degree in 1981, became a Peace Corps medical officer for Sierra Leone and Liberia.

She was working as a general practitioner and attending graduate engineering classes in Los Angeles when she got the call from NASA.

Jemison speaks four languages and is trained in jazz and modern dance.

She had become NASA's most sought-after astronaut for public speaking engagements.

Nine earn cosmetology certification

Graduation was held Tuesday for students completing their training in cosmetology at Western Texas College. Nine students earned their certification, including seven from Snyder.

New Snyder graduates are Elizabeth Shelton, Mary Carillo, Anita Torar, Sylvia Trevino, Connie Miller, Chandra Tate and Tara Greene.

Others graduating were Denise Molina of Colorado City and Lonnie Starnes of Rotan.

Instructor for the class is Judy Border.

Cosmetology certification takes 12 months to complete and involves 1,500 classroom hours. Upon completion, graduates must pass the state examination in Austin.

Financial Focus

Many investors strive to achieve their income goals through the ownership of bonds — government, corporate and municipal. Individual bonds should play a role in most investment strategies; however, another method of achieving income goals is through bond mutual funds.

Bond funds offer diversification and professional management to individual investors. As you evaluate bond fund alternatives, the following questions can help you sort the good from the bad.

1. What are the risks? The objectives and risks of all mutual funds are specifically stated in the fund's prospectus. Ask to see published figures on the stability of principal and income.

2. Is the income fixed or variable? Fixed income doesn't change; it remains the same for each payment period. Mutual funds typically do not offer fixed income. The income is variable and will fluctuate up and down along with interest rates. Ask to see a history of highs and lows.

1. How is the income paid? If you require a monthly check, make certain you can get it. Don't rely only on the yield percentages quoted. There are several--SEC yield, current yield and total return. Ask specifically how much you can expect to receive on your first check. The amount may change, but if you're looking for a reliable check to meet living expenses, this will provide an approximate figure that you can use for planning purposes.

4. How does the income compare to similar investments? Although high income is desirable, excessively high returns may also be a warning of excessive risk. If a fund is paying considerable more than similar funds with the same objectives, ask to see the fund's last published investment portfolio and the restrictions that the prospectus puts on managers to control risk and buy quality.

5. How can I get my money if I need it? It generally takes just a phone call to the mutual fund or your broker to liquidate shares and receive the proceeds. The amount you get back, however, can be more or less than you invested, depending on the current value of the shares. The quality of the fund's investments determines how much your principal will fluctuate, along with many other factors. Ask to see the stability of the fund's net asset value over a meaningful period of at least five years.

Satisfactory answers to these questions do not guarantee satisfactory results, but they can help you identify your investment risks and find investments that meet your needs.

New Lubbock center would help whole region

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Imagine 4,500 new jobs — many with high salaries — hitting this city.

One thousand new homes would be needed immediately, city planners say. Almost 300 retail stores would spring up, airport traffic could quadruple, school enrollment would soar.

City planners foresee the effects rippling up the Texas Panhandle and into eastern New Mexico.

Word could come as early as Friday on whether Lubbock's economic dream is reality, or a bust, when the Department of Defense announces the location of four new accounting centers. Lubbock is among 20 cities — the only one in Texas — on the Pentagon's short list.

Mayor David Langston makes no bones about his feelings.

"We recognize this as a very large economic plum, and we want it badly," Langston said. "That message has been echoed off the walls of the Pentagon."

Rod Ellis, director of business development for Lubbock, said the accounting center would hire 4,000-4,500 high-skilled workers with average salary and benefits hitting $35,000. The gross payroll would be $140 million, Ellis said.

A sample of job openings includes 599 accountantsauditors, 425 budget analysts, 352 computer specialists and 377 safety and occupational health specialists.

Pentagon officials have told Lubbock leaders that 85 percent of the work force would be hired locally. The defense department expects to have to train workers wherever the centers are located, Langston said.

Statewide, the Texas Department of Commerce estimates the facility would boost the economy annually by about $547 million and generate an additional 3,392 spin-off jobs.

Most of those jobs, the commerce department says, would surface in West Texas.

"We view this as a unique opportunity for miraculous growth and progress for those of us on the Llano Estacado," Langston said. "It's undoubtedly the biggest economic development since Texas Tech University in 1925."

The 20 cities on the short list were chosen from 112 sites in 33 states. Other Texas cities that had expressed interest but didn't make the preliminary cut were Abilene, Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Texarkana.

Besides Lubbock, other semifinalists are Bangor, Maine; Cleveland, Columbus and Youngstown, Ohio; Denver; Indianapolis and Evansville, Ind.; Huntsville, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; Macon, Ga.; New Orleans and Shreveport, La.; Oklahoma City, Tulsa and Lawton, Okla.; Pensacola, Fla.; Saginaw, Mich.; San Bernadino, Calif.; and Southbridge, Mass.

Lubbock voters on Jan. 16 overwhelmingly approved a one-half cent sales tax that is helping finance the $88 million public-private incentive package the city offered. That package includes an 850,000-square-foot office complex that would be built across from Texas Instruments in North Lubbock.

The city can handle a boom, Langston says.

He pointed to a $50 million expansion already under way of the water and wastewater treatment plant. And the city this year will start buying right-of-way for an east-west freeway across Lubbock, he said.

Langston envisions people flocking from all over West Texas to Lubbock's new shops, restaurants, Red Raider football games and the almost-completed Omnimax Theatre.

But Lubbock wouldn't be the only beneficiary under Langston's scenario. The accounting center and spin-off businesses would bolster surrounding towns, too, he said.

All won't be lost if Lubbock does not win an accounting center when news is announced Friday or early next week, Langston said. The city already has gained a higher profile and a little economic momentum just for making the short list, he said.

Concurrent EMT classes planned

Western Texas College has scheduled three emergency care courses to be taught concurrently beginning March 29. The three courses to be taught include a 120-hour EMT basic course and two 56-hour courses including EMT Basic-Refresher and Emergency Care Attendant (ECA).

The courses will be taught on Monday and Thursday evenings through June 28 with the Refresher and ECA courses scheduled to meet 14 times during the three month period. Instructor Perry Westmoreland, owner/operator of Snyder EMS, will teach the three courses at Snyder Fire Department under the coordination of Sweetwater Fire Marshal Ralph Hendricks.

The EMT Basic course will cost $236 including textbook and liability insurance. Both the EMT Refresher and ECA courses will cost $80 each.

Registration deadline is Wednesday, March 24.

Students enrolled in EMT Basic or ECA will be required to apply to the Texas Department of Texas Department of Health for the EMT/ECA examination. (The test fee is $50 and is not included in the above listed fees.

Individuals wishing to enroll or needing further information may call 573-8511, ext. 390.

WTC judging teams compete

The Western Texas College meat judging team is competing this weekend in the Houston Livestock Show's Intercollegiate Meats Contest, an event the local squad won a national title in last year.

Under contest rules, the same team members as last year cannot compete a second time.

Team members winning the national title last year were Bay John Long, Rod Jeeter, Terry Leatherwood, Jimmy Kitchens, all of Snyder, and Mark Stansell of Fluvanna.

This group will be at Houston again this year, but competing instead as the college's livestock judging team.

Members of the new meat judging team are Tommi Whitley of O'Donnell, Kathy Hobbs of Utopia, Lanny Zant of Wilson, Hud Hudson of Colorado City and Jodie Ellis of Colorado City.

Coach-sponsor for both teams is WTC instructor Jim Judah, who says the '93 team has a chance to repeat as national champs this year.

The contest is comprised of junior colleges, small four year schools and technical institutes. Team scores are based on the performance of a four-member team.

The WTC Livestock Judging Team won first place recently against two other college or university teams at Sweetwater's National Hampshire Swine Conference.

Both male and female WTC competitors won "high individual" honors at that event. Jimmy Kitchens placed as the high individual at the contest and Jodie Ellis was the high individual in the women's judging division.

WTC competed against teams from Howard Collge and Texas Tech University, which placed second and third respectively.

In all, WTC team members placed as the top six individuals. Other than Kitchens, Bay John Long won second; Lanny Zant won third; Rod Jeeter won fourth; Hud Hudson won fifth; and Terry Leatherwood won sixth.

WTC announces art contest winners

The Western Texas College Art Department sponsored a high school art competition Feb. 27 which attracted more than 41 students.

Schools represented were Snyder, Hermleigh, Baird, Hawley, Wellman, Sweetwater and Merkel.

The competition was divided into two categories: two dimensional (2-D) and three dimensional (3-D) design art work. Also, freshmen and sophomore students competed against each other and juniors and seniors had their own category.

The winner in the 2-D category for the freshman-sophomore group was J.J. Tucker from Baird for "The Trade;" second was Steven Deitz from Merkel for "Exploding Colors;" and third was Jason Trussell from Hawley for "Un-Understand."

The merit winners were Jason Russom of Merkel for "The Fireman." Honorable mention went to Steven Dietz for "Mandy" and T.J. Tucker for "Lookout."

The winner in the 3-D category for the freshman-sophomore group was Ignacio Martinez of Snyder for "Shockazulu;" second was Shawn Wittie of Snyder for "The Cracked Pecan;" and third went to Stephanie Pascal of Snyder for "Man."

In the junior-senior competition, winner in the 2-D category was Wendy Hudman for "Alisha;" second was Chris Huddleston from Snyder for "The Indian;" and third went to Kristen Huff from Snyder for "White Hawk."

Merit winners were Wendy Hudman for "John;" and an honorable mention went to Matt Herweck of Hawley for "Trip Art #2" and Brandy Brazee from Hawley for "Apache."

The winner in the 3-D category for the junior-senior group was Vernell Kitchens from Snyder for "Cracked Up;" second to Robert M. Derman for "Robert's Dragon;" and third to Jesus Parra from Snyder for "Jesaurus."

The merit winner was John Flores from Snyder for an untitled mask. Honorable mention went to Christi Meadows of Snyder.

First baseball season opens for Hermleigh

The Hermleigh Cardinals begin their first-ever baseball season with a double-header against Abilene Christian High School Tuesday, beginning at 5 p.m. at Moffett Field.

Cardinal coach Don Tubb is pretty much starting from scratch with the program, as well as with his players.

"We've had 19 players come out." Tubb reported. "Some played Little League, some Pony League, but that's about as far as it goes.

"One of our strengths will be our quickness in the field. Most of these kids have played very little ball, but I've been pleasantly surprised at how quick they're picking it up. They are good athletes.

"A lot of the baseball knowledge will just come with experience," Tubb said. "We've only been practicing for a couple of weeks, so we're really just scratching the surface."

Tuesday's Game One starter is expected to be senior Chris Velasco. Other Cardinal pitchers include Bobby Smith, who will also get some time at third base, and Jimmy Digby, who will also play shortstop.

In addition, Velaso could get some playing time at the hot corner at third, Billy Luna is Hermleigh's projected starter at second base and Chris Lambaren and Brendan Blair are deadlocked for the starting nod at first base.

HHS outfielders include Joel Collier, Joey Sanchez and Chris Roemisch. Daniel Hermosillo and Buddy Atkinson will handle the catching chores.

Tubb expects his big sticks to be Velasco, Digby and Luna.

"They are all doing pretty well," Tubb said. "Billy Luna looks real good with a bat in his hands."

"I think Ira will be pretty strong," the coach said when asked about the loop race, "but other than that I don't know much about the district."

Ira, in its second year of baseball competition, and Loraine, last year's loop champ, are the favorites for the district's two playoff berths.

The district's other team is Westbrook.

The Cardinals will follow Tuesday's twin bill with a March 18 visit to Coahoma and an apperance at the March 25-27 Colorado City Tournament.

District competition begins April 20 for the Cardinals when they visit Ira.

Big Spring tournament...

Matadors hold off Snyder 8-6

BIG SPRING — The Snyder Tigers had the tying runs on base with no outs and the meat of the batting order coming up when Estacado turned a hard Reagan Key ground ball into a double play and Raymond House grounded to second to end the game.

Those three outs ended the Tigers' chances and gave Estacado an 8-6 win in the championship semifinals of the Big Spring Varsity Baseball Tournament Friday.

"We played well, overall," said Snyder coach Albert Lewis. "We made too many errors on defense and we couldn't come up with the timely hit. We're not driving in the runs when we need to."

The Tigers were to face host Big Spring in Saturday's 2 p.m. third-place game.

Lee Idom was expected to start on the hill for SHS.

Trailing 8-5, Snyder came to bat in the last of the sixth against Estacado. Centerfielder Chris Winter walked and moved to second on an error that also put pinchhitter Jimmy Henry aboard.

At the top of the order, John Clinkinbeard slapped an RBI single that plated Winter before the Matadors' twin killing and House's ground out.

Curt Rinehart took the loss for Snyder, working three innings, giving up four hits, three walks and six runs while fanning two.

SHS reliever Key went the final three, striking out a pair, walking none and giving up a hit and two runs.

Estacado's Roctrus Sanders was credited with the win. Sanders struck out six, walked four and allowed only two hits in five innings.

Zebbie Lethridge walked one, gave up a hit and a run in the sixth, earning the save.

The Mats took a 3-0 lead in the first. Kirby Mimms walked and moved around on an error that put Vernon Coleman on base. Lethridge followed with a base on balls and Tashani Bibbs got on with a fielder's choice that drove in Mimms. Ernie Grady got on via an error and Anson Lipps slapped a single before Snyder got a chance to bat.

Clinkinbeard walked and scored to open the SHS half of the first, but Snyder didn't threaten Estacado until the fourth when three runs scored.

With the Matadors leading 7-1, Snyder mounted its rally.

Greg McAden was hit by a pitch, Rinehart reached on an error, followed by doubles from Winter and Clinkinbeard to pull the Tigers to wihin three.

Snyder added a run in the fifth when DH Chris Mitchell, who walked aboard, moved to second on a passed ball, stole third and scored on a House ground out.

The loss drops Snyder to 3-5. Estacado is 4-1 on the campaign.

In other tournament action Friday, host Big Spring was eliminated from championship consideration in an upset by Abilene Wylie, 4-2.

Estacado will face Wylie in Saturday's 4:15 p.m. final.

The Tigers' next appearance will be Tuesday when they come back to Big Spring to take on the Steers.

Cowboys visit White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys made Bill Clinton an "official" member of the world champions Friday, but coach Jimmy Johnson cautioned the president not to expect much playing time.

Clinton was given a game jersey with his name on it during the world champions' traditional visit to the White House.

"I will have to say one thing, though," Johnson told Clinton. "We have been able to observe you jogging. You're going to have to jog a little faster for that reserve quarterback role."

Clinton was clearly pleased by the honor. "I'm just going to sit around now and wait for my number to be called," he said.

The East Room of the White House was specially prepared for Friday's ceremony, where Clinton honored the Cowboys and their 52-17 Super Bowl victory over the Buffalo Bills.

AstroTurf, complete with hash marks and a goal post, spread across the floor amid the East Room's crystal chandeliers, gilt mirrors and portraits of George and Martha Washington.

"It's about time we had somebody with real popularity in here," Clinton told the crowd, which included members of Congress, White House staffers and congressional employees.

Clinton spoke for a few minutes and spent another 20 minutes mingling around the room, staying on even after the Cowboys had left.

"Four years ago, they were about 1-15 and four years later they won the Super Bowl," he said. "In the parlance of Washington, we call that deficit reduction."

On a more serious note, Clinton said. "I watched this team over the last year win the way I think Americans win best — they hung in there. They were strong, they were dedicated, they started a lot of games slow, and they always finished fast. And that's what we have to do as a country."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, like Clinton an Arkansas native, praised the president for his own brand of endurance during a rough-and-tumble campaign.

"You were an inspiration of all of the young players we have on the Dallas Cowboys," Jones said.

Bowhunters host monthly shoot

Snyder Bowhunters Association will hold its March shoot Sunday, beginning at 2 p.m., at the club's outdoor range near Ira.

Cost is $3 for individual shooters and $5 for families.

Johnson banned for steroid use

PARIS (AP) — Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson has been banned for life by track and field's world governing body after testing positive for steroids at a track meet in Canada in January. It was his second positive test in five years.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation's doping commission said Johnson's test showed an excessive level of steroid-related testosterone.

Basketball tourney set at HHS

A men's outsiders' basketball tournament is scheduled for March 19-20 at Hermleigh High School.

Entry fee for the tourney is $100 per team and is due by March 12.

First through third-place teams will receive T-shirts. The event is sponsored by the Hermleigh Booster Club.

For more information, or to register, contact Chip Roemisch at 863-2241.

Boosters set Monday meeting

Western Texas College boosters will meet Monday for a noon Dutch-treat lunch at Golden Corral.

Club members will discuss the annual WTC sports banquet, slated for March 26 at the college cafeteria. Nominations for officers will also be accepted at the meeting.

All booster club members are urged to attend.

Western Texas hosts rodeo schools

Lari D. Guy, the 1991 NIRA national champion breakaway roper, will conduct one class, while former WTC standout Jennifer Lee will be the instructor at the goat tying school. Lee, who currently competes for West Texas State University, was the 1991 NIRA Southwest Region goat tying champ.

Tuition for the breakaway roping school is $150 per student, $100 for just one day. The goat tying school's fee is $125 or $75 for a single day.

The schools will be highlighted by a jackpot goat tying and breakaway roping Sunday at 3 p.m.

A limited number of stalls will be available for $10.

A $50 deposit and proof of insurance is due by March 17. Checks should be made payable to WTC.

For more information contact WTC rodeo coach Bob Doty at Rt. 3, Box 505A, Snyder, 79549, or call Doty at 573-8511, Ext. 319, or 573-8912.

A&M may start season without Hill

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M likely will open its football season without star running back Greg Hill, awaiting word from the NCAA eligibility staff, Aggies coach R.C. Slocum has said.

"I fully expect Greg will miss some games to start the season," Slocum told a Reveille Club gathering Thursday in Houston.

Hill was one of four players suspended before the Cotton Bowl after receiving payment for work not performed on a summer job. The other three were wide receiver Percy Singleton and offensive linemen James Brooks and Darius Smith.

"We had varying degrees of duplicity," Slocum said. "Some of them may not miss any more games. One kid was barely involved."

Slocum spent little time addressing the issue Thursday.

"We had a summer job program that was not managed as carefully as it should have been," he said. "Our first goal when I took this job was to do things the right way, go by the rules and winning would come. We've done that.

"What we had was a frightening thing, because it could happen to anybody. I can't be in Dallas to see if some kid is showing up for his job."

Slocum also said he expects quarterback Jeff Granger to concentrate on baseball and not play football for the Aggies this fall.

Granger started A&M's first seven games last year and completed 44 percent of his passes before giving way to Corey Pullig, the freshman from Deer Park.

Granger, a left-handed pitcher, is 3-0 for the Aggies this spring with a 2.52 ERA.

Pipers trip 'Dogs, 11-4

HAMLIN — The Ira Bulldogs stranded 10 base runners Friday, falling to Hamlin, 11-4, in their 1993 baseball debut.

"We played well, but we lost," said Ira coach Lynn Cauley. "We left the bases loaded twice and we left two on base twice.

"We'd get up to bat in a situation like that, and we'd hit the ball hard, but it'd be right at somebody."

In addition, pitcher Wyatt Webster, who started for the Bulldogs and was saddled with the loss, and reliever Jason Hartley, each walked four.

"But," said Cauley, "We played a good game defensively. I was well pleased. Hamlin was playing their fifth game, so we're a little behind their schedule."

Senior outfielder Toby Haynes slapped a single and scored twice to lead Ira.

Senior shortstop Mike Hughes and Hartley, also a senior, each tagged a base hit.

The Bulldogs will make their home debut Tuesday when they host Post at 5 p.m.

Region 1-2A basketball...

Hornets, Cyclones make final

The Amarillo Highland Park Hornets made their intentions known early Friday. They were planning on being in the Region 1-2A championship game.

The Hornets scored 29 first-quarter points, while limiting Stamford to just 10, on their way to a lop-sided 79-42 semifinal victory.

Highland Park, District 1 champion, was to battle Memphis in Saturday's tourney final at 7 p.m. at Scurry County Coliseum.

The Hornets shot a scorching 63 percent from the field in the first half Friday, building a 43-22 lead.

Stamford could make only nine of 28 shots from the floor in the opening 16 minutes. The Bulldogs fell victim to a 19-3 run in the first five minutes of the second period, removing all doubt about the outcome of the game.

The Hornets', now 27-4, were led by senior post Luvirt Wells, who scored a game-high 30 points.

Teammate David Velasquez scored 15, including three 3-pointers.

Stamford's Chris Gardner, a junior pivot-man, hit 14 and Wayne Marsh chipped in 11.

Memphis' road to the championship battle started a little rockier, but ended up with a similar one-sided result.

The Cyclones led by a single point, 14-13, in the first quarter of their semifinal tilt with Haskell, before 6-5 senior Larry Johnson took over the game.

Johnson had 14 points by halftime, as MHS scooted to a 34-19 advantage at the break.

Johnson finished the game with 22 points on 10 hoops and a pair of free throws.

Jay Runnels added 17 points and long-distance threat, Jason Hughes, canned 10, including the Cyclones' two treys.

Haskell's Brian Brzozowski hit 12 points, followed by Jonathon Tatum's 10.

Memphis, District 2 champion, enters the title matchup with a 26-3 record. Haskell, runner-up in District 7, winds up the year at 25-8.

Spurs beat Jordan-less Bulls in OT

by The Associated Press

The Chicago Bulls, so accustomed to winning, thought they were over the habit of losing when Michael Jordan is out.

They were wrong.

Blowing a 21 point lead, the two-time NBA champions lost again without Jordan Friday night, falling 107-102 in overtime to the San Antonio Spurs at Chicago Stadium.

The loss came despite 39 points, 13 rebounds and 10 assists from Scottie Pippen.

That left Chicago at 1-6 over the last 61/2 years without Jordan, who is hospitalized with an infected corn on his foot. The one win came Wednesday night against Dallas, which has won just four games this season.

San Antonio got 29 points from Dale Ellis, including seven in overtime, and 28 from David Robinson.

"A win in a game like this can really turn you around," said San Antonio coach John Lucas, whose team trailed 35-14 in the first period.

"Dale played very well and it was the kind of game I have been waiting for from him this whole road trip."

In other NBA games Friday night, it was Charlotte 94, Portland 92; Boston 105, Detroit 101; Miami 109, the Los Angeles Clippers 105; Houston 105, Dallas 86 in Jim Jackson's pro debut; Milwaukee 109, Orlando 91; Phoenix 130, Sacramento 122; and the Los Angeles Lakers 101, Philadelphia 101-97 in overtime.

Rockets 105, Mavericks 86

In Dallas, Jackson's debut did little for the Mavericks, who have lost 13 straight and are 4-51.

Hakeem Olajuwon had 24 points and 11 rebounds as Houston won its ninth consecutive game. The Rockets used a 21-8 third-quarter run to pull away.

Snyder golf team tied for 10th at AHS event

ANDREWS — Coach Bob O'Day said Thursday that if his Snyder boys' golf team could place in the top 10 in the weekend Andrews Golf Classic, that he would be pleased.

He was halfway there Saturday after the Tigers fired an 18-hole 339 in Friday's opening round to tie them with Lamesa in tenth place at the tournament, which boasts a tough 27-team field.

Snyder senior Chad Jacobi shot a team-best 79 at Andrews Country Club, eight shots off the pace set by El Paso Coronado standout Greg Di Donna, and Monahans' Scottie Wade.

Coronado's team-total 302 was first at the tourney's halfway point, followed by a 305 from Lubbock Monterey, a 310 from Monahans, and host Andrews' and Midland Lee's identical 314s.

Snyder freshman Carl Strelecki shot a first-round 84, teammate Bryan Word, a sophomore, turned in an 87, junior Jeff Armstrong carded an 89 and freshman Page Patterson fired a 90.

LEGAL NOTICES

CAP ROCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE, INC.

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST:

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc., on the 12th day of April, 1993, and pursuant to Sections 16, 17, 37 and 43 of the Public Regulatory Act (Article 1446(c), V.A.C.S.) and the Public Utility Commission of Texas Substantive Rule 23.23(c) will file a Statement of Intent and Petition for Authority to Change Rates effective June 12, 1993, with the Public Utility Commission of Texas and all cities exercising original jurisdiction over its rates and tariffs.

Prior to filing, copies of the proposed revised tariffs and other pertinent data may be inspected at the office of Cap Rock Electric Cooperative, Inc., P.O. Box 700, Loop 214, Stanton, Texas 79782, Telephone (915) 756-3381. Upon filing, copies of the proposed tariffs and supporting testimony and other pertinent data may be inspected in the office of the Cooperative.

A Member Rate Advisory Committee, made up of customer representatives of different rate categories are participating with the Cap Rock board in making this announcement. Cap Rock Electric has had no rate change since 1991 and the proposed 5% increase will align revenues more closely with rising inflation. Streamlining this rate filing process and addressing all intervening parties through the staff of Cap Rock will save you, the Cap Rock member, approximately $100,000, compared to traditional rate filing procedures.

All of Cap Rock's customers will be affected by the proposed change. The proposed change will increase Cap Rock's test year revenues for that class. The expected dollar increase by class is: General Service, $737,266; Small Commercial, $782,942; Irrigation, $121,947; Industrial Service, $123,266; Large Commercial, $6,735; Cotton Gins, $64,316; and Security Lights, $6,598.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify Cap Rock immediately at the above listed address and telephone number. Inquiries should be directed to Mr. John Parker.

Grace Lutheran Church on College Ave. is now taking Bids on a new roof. For more information please call 573-8777 or 573-5183.

Bombing suspect's cohorts reportedly have disappeared

NEW YORK (AP) — A locker containing bomb parts and potential ingredients for explosives was rented by the same man who hired the van believed used for the bombing of the World Trade Center, according to published reports.

A federal investigator said the man, an illegal immigrant from Jordan who has been charged with aiding in the bombing, may have been left "holding the bag" by terrorist associates who disappeared, possibly fleeing to the Middle East.

A judge said another man charged with striking FBI agents investigating the bombing "may be involved up to his eyeballs" in the fatal blast.

Three people arrested by federal agents staking out a New York mosque may also be connected to the bombing one week ago, the FBI said.

Authorities searching a self-storage warehouse in Jersey City, N.J., seized bomb parts and more than 100 pounds of chemicals that could be used to make explosives, said the federal investigator, who has played a prominent role in the investigation. He spoke Friday to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity.

"We don't know if this was leftovers, something that was intended for another purpose, like building another device, or something that had been tried at one time and found unsatisfactory," a source close to the investigation told New York Newsday.

It has not been determined whether the chemicals — sulfuric, uric and nitric acids — were the same as those used in the devastating Feb. 26 blast.

Despite a week of investigative work, authorities still don't know what kind of explosives were used in the bombing — or exactly what the motive was.

Mohammed A. Salameh remained jailed without bail on charges of aiding and abetting the bombing. The FBI said Thursday it found bomb-making materials in an apartment linked to him.

Salameh also had rented the storage space searched Friday, Newsday and the Jersey Journal reported, citing government sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Friday afternoon, the FBI arrested three people outside a Brooklyn mosque after they stole a car from Logan Airport in Boston and drove south, said James Fox, the agency's New York chief.

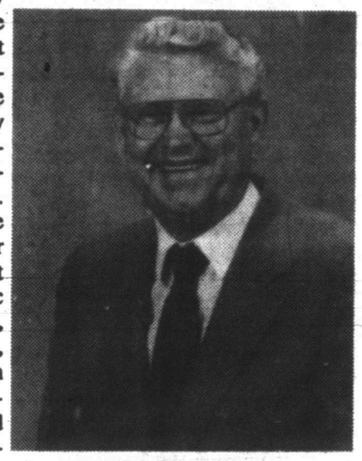

"We don't have sufficient evidence at this point to say it is connected with the bombing," Fox said in a TV interview. "It's just a possibility."

At the World Trade Center, investigators, repair crews and other workers observed a moment of silence at 12:18 p.m. Friday — exactly one week after the bombing, which killed at least five and injured more than 1,000 people. One man remains missing.

Steel braces were installed to shore up the underground garage where the bomb exploded, creating a crater five stories deep. The twin 110-story towers, the world's second-tallest buildings, are expected to remain closed for a month.

Salameh, 25, a resident of Jersey City, was identified after authorities traced a piece of a van's axle found in the blast wreckage to a truck rental agency. He was arrested Thursday shortly after trying to get back a $400 deposit he had placed to rent the van.

GEORGE STEWART

George Stewart

1923-1993

Services are set for 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the First United Methodist Church for George W. Stewart, 69, of Snyder with Dr. Wylie "Buff" Hearn, pastor of the church, and the Rev. David Robertson of Big Spring officiating. Burial will be in the Hillside Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Stewart, a resident of Snyder since 1954, died at 12:55 p.m. Friday in Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

Born on Sept. 4, 1923 in Strickler, Ark., Mr. Stewart married Shirley Holdeman in 1942. He was was a member of the First United Methodist Church.

A member of the Methodist Men's Class, he served on various church committees and worked with the United Way. He served as district chairman for the Boy Scouts and headed up the American Cancer Society in Snyder.

In 1981 Mr. Stewart retired as district manager for C.E. NATCO in Snyder. After his retirement, he did oilfield consulting work and taught numerous oilfield technology courses throughout the state. He authored a book entitled, "How To Be A Successful Oilfield Salesman."

He was a member of the Society of Petroleum Engineers and the American Institute of Mechnical Engineers.

Mr. Stewart was active in the Snyder Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute, and was an avid duplicate bridge competitor. During World War II, he served in the Seabees in Guam.

Survivors include his wife, Shirley Stewart of the home; one son, Jeff Stewart of Austin; two daughters, Charlotte Mitchell of Lockney and Karen Stewart of Austin; one sister, Evelyn Folck of Lyons, Kan.; and six grandchildren.

Friends are contributing to the American Cancer Society and the First United Methodist Church.

Police note one arrest

Snyder police made one arrest and filed an unrelated report for theft Friday.

Police arrested a 24-year-old man for driving while intoxicated at 11:45 p.m. in the 2800 block of Avenue E.

At 8:48 a.m., Fran Bowden reported a typewriter stolen from Western Texas College. A report for Class B theft was filed.

At 4 p.m., police entered a case as closed. The case dates to Sept. 7, 1991 when Thomas Cartwright reported a burglary of a residence. The property has been recovered and the owner requested no further action.

SO makes arrest

races on the board. Place 1 incumbent Glen Clarady is being challenged by Joe G. Hernandez. Currently, Place 4 incumbent Billy Bob McMullan is running uncontested.

Filing continues at Snyder ISD Administration Building through March 17.

Walton was elected in May of 1988 to fill an unexpired term for Ben Wilcox. She successfully ran again in 1990.

She has previously served on the Scurry County Child Welfare Board and has been active in band boosters, PTA and other school-related organizations. She is a member of First Baptist Church.

She and her husband, Wayland, have five grown children, who all attended Snyder schools.

for the Concho Valley Council of Governments, Williamson will be in charge of landfill planning, 911 and economic development for a 13-county area.

Williamson is past president of Region 3 of the Texas Municipal League (TML), is a current board member of the state TML board in Austin and is a trustee of the TML Group Benefit Risk Pool.

He serves as second vice president of the West Central Texas Council of Governments (WCTCOG), is a member of the WCTCOG Economic Development Board, the WCTCOG Private Industry Council and a member of the Hardin-Simmons University board of development.

He is a member of the Goal Coats and the chamber of commerce, where he once served as a board member. He is a current member of the Kiwanis and past lieutenant governor of Division 22 with the Kiwanis.

He and Barbara are both active in Colonial Hill Baptist Church, where Troy serves as a deacon and Sunday school director and she serves as Sunday school secretary and WMU director.

Barbara is past president of Martha Ann Woman's Club and the American Business Women's Association and is a member of Atheneum Study Club. She is a past member of Snyder Garden Club.

They have three grown sons, Stephen, Dean and Dale.

United Way

Snyder Child Day Care Center Director Shirley Fritz said many people may not realize how much the agencies depend on United Way funds.

"At the center, we are currently serving 58 children whose parents can't pay full cost of child care. If that money doesn't come in, 40 of those children will have to be dropped," she said. "If they drop, that could mean their parents will have quit work because of a lack of child care, and if they can't work, they have to draw welfare. We have some parents who are going to school who may have to drop out of school to care for their children. So the cost to the economy would be greater than the cost of the allocations if the goals are not met."

In an effort to revitalize the local United Way organization, it has been proposed that at least one member of each charitable organization receiving the funds serve as an active member on the board. Currently these agencies are Noah Project, Oil Patch Foster Parents Association, Scurry County Boys Club, Snyder Child Day Care Center and Snyder Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

"The local organization would like to get things rolling once again in Scurry County and be able to fund all agencies requesting assistance next year," said Mike Sanders, spokesperson for the Oil Patch Foster Parent's Association. "This can only happen if you get behind this worthwhile program."

An effort to make the community more aware of United Way is being planned, as well as another concentrated effort to collect funds to make this year in Scurry County a success for the United Way and the people it aids.

Your Birthday

March 7, 1993

Improvements in both your social life and material affairs are strong probabilities for the year ahead. But don't be swayed by this: Extravagance could get you in trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) As of today, new life and vitality could be breathed into an old alliance that once was active and until now has been dormant. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Pisces' Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Involvement in domestic projects could be your most pleasurable outlet today. You'll enjoy doing things for your home or for your family.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your enthusiasm for activities of a fun or social nature will be aroused easily today. Instinctively you'll even know how to turn responsibilities into a game.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're dedicated to those you love today, and you will try very hard to help them fulfill their desires, regardless of whether their need is material or emotional.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you think your ideas are better than those of your companions today, you won't be reluctant to bypass or override them, yet you'll do so without creating ill will.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your inner resolve is very strong today, especially when materially motivated. Without calling attention to yourself, you'll intensely pursue your objectives.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something exciting may develop today that could have a positive effect on elevating your hopes and aspirations. It might also include an ambitious friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You can successfully handle competitive developments today if you keep a low profile. The less obvious your intentions, the more likely adversaries will let down their defenses.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Some of your friends may get a bit confused today when they get a lot of input from others, but not you. You'll find that a barrage of ideas serves to stimulate your thought processes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are in a good achievement cycle, so it is important to set a meaningful objective for yourself today. It could be something quite challenging from which others have been backing away.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to be very appreciative of everyone and everything you encounter today. Your attitude will set a good example for companions who will find your company inspiring.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If a friend is in need of assistance today, you're apt to be the first to volunteer to help out. Doing things for others will be extremely gratifying for you.

March 8, 1993

In the year ahead, you might enter into a profitable association with a friend who is both idealistic and sharing. This person may initiate the endeavor, but you could be the one who benefits the most.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unless it is absolutely necessary today, don't involve partners in your important affairs. They could turn out to be a hindrance rather than a help. Major changes are ahead for Pisces in the coming year. Send for Pisces' Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is one of those weeks where you should get a running start, or else your tasks and responsibilities could pile up on you, causing a logjam that will be difficult to dislodge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Friends will resent it today if you butt in and attempt to manage their personal affairs. On the other hand, if they try to do this to you, you're apt to be even testier.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try not to be too rigid today regarding the position that you take on domestic issues, even if you feel that you are right. There's a possibility you could actually be wrong.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you keep an open mind, there is always something you can learn from someone else. Unfortunately, you might not be a good student today, which you could later regret.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before plunging into an arrangement today that requires an investment on your behalf, be absolutely certain that you know everything there is to know about the deal.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Decisions which you're forced to make under pressure today aren't likely to be wise or beneficial. Don't let outside factors set your timetable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, it's important that you know your assets as well as your limitations. Be careful, or else you might get involved in something that is beyond your talents or capabilities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A tip from a well-meaning friend could cost you money, rather than making it or saving it. If you're looking for inside information, seek a better informed source.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you fail to achieve your objectives today, it is likely to be due to your erratic methods and procedures. Have a fixed plan in mind instead of improvising as you go along.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone with whom you've crossed swords recently still has a chip on his or her shoulder. If you run into this person today, don't give him or her any flimsy excuses to start an argument.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Involvements you have with friends today concerning money must be handled with extreme care. If not, someone might feel shortchanged, and it could be you.

How to cope with urinary incontinence

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from urinary stress incontinence. The problem is embarrassing and uncomfortable. Kegel exercises have been recommended. Can I handle this myself or does a gynecologist have to be involved? Is there an alternative to bladder suspension?

DEAR READER: Stress incontinence is an extremely common affliction that has been estimated to affect up to 30 percent of adult women. Marked by involuntary leakage of urine, incontinence may occur during laughing, straining, sneezing — even walking or standing. The condition is caused by the age-related weakening of muscles that control the flow of urine; this can be worsened by multiple pregnancies and other anatomical abnormalities, such as a "dropped womb" when the uterus sags into the lower pelvis.

Many experts believe that 90 percent of stress incontinence can be cured or significantly improved, without the need for adult diapers. Although surgery (to re-suspend the uterus and bladder) is often required in extreme cases, most women can be helped by exercises.

Several years ago, A.H. Kegel, an American gynecologist, invented a set of exercises which, by strengthening the muscles of the pelvic floor, improved women's continence. Kegel exercises are simple, safe and easy to perform; they can be taught by any experienced gynecologist. Basically, the exercises, performed several times a day, consist of tightening the muscles around the vagina and anus.

Nonetheless, some women have difficulty mastering the exercises. This leads to frustration and non-compliance. Recently, a new product has been introduced to simplify the performance of Kegel exercises. Femina cones, manufactured by Dacomed Corp., are plastic, tampon-shaped weights that are inserted into the vagina for a few minutes twice a day. The mild effort of holding the cones in place strengthens the pelvic muscles; this sensory biofeedback helps women to perform Kegel exercises.

If you are interested in more information about Femina cones, call the Dacomed Corp. toll-free, 800-328-1103.

To give you further information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Vaginal Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

'Peaches' movie may become TV show

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Jon Lovitz will recreate his role as a baseball talent scout for the Rockford Peaches when last summer's hit movie "A League of Their Own" premieres as a TV series next month.

Penny Marshall, who directed the movie, will direct the first episode. Lovitz and Garry Marshall, who played the team owner (and the director's brother), will guest star.

The series will pick up the story of the Peaches — a World War II-era professional women's baseball team — where the movie left off, said a spokesman for TriStar Television, which is filming six shows as a summer replacement series for CBS.

Depending on how it does, it may be picked up for the fall season.

Helen Waddell Wyatt of Rockford, who played second base for the Peaches, says she and her teammates are delighted that interest in the team continues.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1993 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: As we know all too well, people are robbed, raped or murdered every day because someone left a window unlocked — or a door open.

A week ago, a mother and her 11-year-old child were both raped on my block. That very night, my 16-year-old son had left his window open and our back door unlocked.

This morning, he left the front door unlocked. Nothing I can do can make him wise up to the potential danger of his carelessness. He loses his house keys about once a month.

Also, I am pretty sure it was one of his friends who stole all our Christmas presents out of our house.

INDIANA MOM

DEAR MOM: If you are "pretty sure" one of your son's friends stole your Christmas presents, it's time to have a long, serious talk with him about the kinds of friends he has. At 16, your son is still a minor and, from what you say, he is far too irresponsible to carry a set of keys to your house.

Since you have not mentioned the boy's father, I am assuming that you are a single mother. Your son needs a "father figure" — someone he respects and will listen to. Is there a male in your family who can be a positive influence in his life? If not, perhaps a clergyperson can help you. Also, there is a well-established and reputable nationwide organization called Big Brothers of America. It should be listed in your local telephone directory. If it is not listed, write to: Big Brothers and Big Sisters of America for the location of a chapter near you. The address is: 230 N. 13th St., Philadelphia, Pa. 19107. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: You wouldn't believe how bored I get listening to people complain that they are overweight. Every time I open a magazine, a diet ad pops out at me. But what about the poor unfortunates who need to gain weight? I've never seen an ad for that (other than steroid ads).

I eat three good high-calorie meals a day, plus unnumbered "good-for-you" snacks, but I'm still what I like to call thin — and what others like to call skinny. I've been to doctors and I have no problems, so they say.

My mom has told me since I was younger that I'd grow out of it. Now she says my legs, hips and arms will fill out after I've had my first child, which I'm not planning to do for at least another five years.

I'm sure all the people who say they wish they could lose weight are saying, "I wish I had your body." Well, they don't have my body. They can always lose weight in some way or another, but how do you gain? Any suggestions? Please answer soon.

"D" IN WHITMAN, MASS.

DEAR "D": I could make many suggestions on how to gain weight, but in the interests of your overall health, the most important one would be to find a well-schooled nutritionist, preferably one who is registered with the American Dietetic Association, for a balanced, healthy diet that will help you put on some pounds.

DEAR ABBY: One of our patrons would greatly appreciate a copy of the poem you published several years ago. It begins, "Oh, heavenly Father, make me a better parent ..."

She said she had read it in your column about 20 years ago. If you could supply it, she would be extremely grateful.

CONNIE SHAIR, LIBRARIAN,
ALTADENA, CALIF.

DEAR CONNIE: The item is titled "A Parent's Prayer." It was written by the late Garry C. Myers, the founder of "Highlights for Children," a wholesome, educational monthly magazine — now in its fourth generation. And here it is:

A PARENT'S PRAYER

"Oh, heavenly Father, make me a better parent. Help me to understand my children, to listen patiently to what they have to say and to understand all their questions kindly. Keep me from interrupting them, talking back to them and contradicting them. Make me as courteous to them as I would have them be to me. Give me the courage to confess my sins against my children and ask their forgiveness when I know that I have done wrong.

"May I not vainly hurt the feelings of my children. Forbid that I should laugh at their mistakes, or resort to shame and ridicule as punishment. Let me not tempt a child to lie and steal. So guide me hour by hour that I may demonstrate by all I say and do that honesty produces happiness.

"Reduce, I pray, the meanness in me. May I cease to nag; and when I am out of sorts, help me, Oh Lord, to hold my tongue. Blind me to the little errors of my children and help me to see the good things they do. Give me a ready word for honest praise.

"Help me to treat my children as those of their own age, but let me not exact of them the judgments and conventions of adults. Allow me not to rob them of the opportunity to wait upon themselves, to think, to choose, and to make their own decisions.

"Forbid that I should ever punish them for my selfish satisfaction. May I grant them all their wishes that are reasonable and have the courage always to withhold a privilege that I know will do them harm.

"Make me so fair and just, so considerate and companionable to my children that they will have genuine esteem for me. Fit me to be loved and imitated by my children. Oh God, do give me calm and poise and self-control."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand another "twin story"? I, too, have an identical twin sister, and although we never dressed alike, we were constantly mistaken for "the other one" — even as adults.

After we were both married, my sister moved to another state. Last summer, my husband and I were vacationing at a popular resort, and at one point, in the presence of several strangers, he impulsively grabbed me and gave me a very passionate kiss! A man I had never seen before witnessed it — and he kept staring at me to the point that I noticed it and it made me uncomfortable.

A year later, while I was visiting my sister, she introduced me to her boss. It was the same man who had seen my husband lay that kiss on me! When he saw that there were two of us, he burst out laughing. Then he confessed that he had assumed that what he had seen was my twin sister cheating on her husband!

THE OTHER TWIN

* * *

DEAR READERS: I laughed at this: "A mother hen, having some difficulty keeping her chicks in line, declared, 'If your father could see you now, he'd turn over in his gravy.'"

Houston man claims $12.6 million jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) — Tem Vuth is a man of little words.

Perhaps it's the result of growing up in war-torn Cambodia, dashing from city to city to escape the reign of terror there in the late 1970s, and dreaming of a better life.

Or perhaps it's the realization that those dreams have come true — because of six little numbers.

"America is a very great country," Tem said Friday, as he claimed the first payment of his $12.6 million lotto jackpot.

Tem, a Houston automobile mechanic, matched all six numbers in Wednesday's Lotto Texas drawing. State Comptroller John Sharp on Friday presented him with a check for $638,936, the first of 19 yearly payments.

Tem, 29, said he has bought $25 to $50 worth of tickets for every lotto drawing, and that he purchased 60 tickets for Wednesday's.

He said he watched the drawing on television with his wife, who is pregnant with their first child. When the winning numbers sounded familiar, Tem fished through his 60 tickets and found the winner.

"It was kind of exciting," he said. The winning numbers were 11-13-17-31-40-44.

Texas' latest lotto winner said he plans to spend his prize money on new cars for himself and his 55-year-old father. Tem said he will also buy a house, so that he and his wife can move out of their "very old apartment."

Although Tem had no comment about whether he would quit his job at Western Auto, he said his father, who works as a groundskeeper at Houston's Hobby Airport, will retire.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Mrs. O.P. (Ruth) Tate can trace her roots in Scurry County back to May 1, 1892 when her grandparents, George and Ellen Eastman, arrived here from Comanche County.

Since that time, either the Eastmans or one of their descendants have lived and worked on various quarter-sections of the land 12 miles northwest of Snyder in Block 97.

The family's continuous ownership and operation of the land has been recognized by Rick Perry, Texas secretary of agriculture, who presented Ruth and her husband with a certificate from the Family Land Heritage Program.

The Tates were in Austin in January for the presentation, along with representatives of other families who were also honored.

This certificate is limited to families who have worked their own land for 100 years continuously. It does not count if someone else works the land for them.

The Family Land Heritage Program was first organized 19 years ago. The Tates think they may be the first in Scurry County to receive this recognition.

The original homestead encompassed two quarters, but the Tate farm isn't that large today.

When her grandfather died, Ruth said the surviving children each received a quarter section as did his wife. Ruth's father, Charlie Eastman, took care of his mother and her part of the farm as he was the youngest child and was not married at the time. When Ellen Eastman died, Charlie inherited her quarter section also.

A FAMILY TRADITION — O.P. and Ruth Tate's roots in Scurry County can be traced back several generations. Ruth and her husband continue to live and work on a portion of her grandparents', George and Ellen Eastman, original homestead staked out a century ago. O.P.'s parents, O.P. Sr. and Nellie, moved to the county in 1926. The Tates were recently recognized by the Family Land Heritage Program for a century of continuous ownership as well as working the land the Eastmans first homesteaded. (SDN Staff Photo)

Reports of "free grazing" brought George Eastman and his older sons to Scurry County in 1891. Ruth said they picked their land because of existing fences. George Conroe had one to the southwest and J. Wright Mooar had one to the north. The only fence between there and Snyder was a "drift fence" to keep cattle from straying.

He and his sons set up temporary "headquarters" there while they studied the land and the grazing situation.

Eastman returned to Comanche County until following year when he gathered the rest of his family including a younger son, Charlie, for the journey to their new home.

The Eastmans brought a small herd of cattle with them. However, they encountered a drought soon after arriving. Two years later, all they had left of the original herd was two cows, four yearlings, a bull and an ox.

Besides grazing cattle, Ruth said her grandparents "broke sod" and eventually planted cotton and feed.

To prepare the land for planting, Ruth said her grandparents used a horse to pull the plow. They also hauled lumber from Colorado City to build their first home, which featured two six-foot ceilings and an upstairs and downstairs section. The kitchen was located on the side, but it did not have an upstairs.

The Eastmans had eight children, but one died while very young. They had also taken in another child to raise and Ruth said her grandmother was always careful not to show partiality to her own children.

Of all the children, two older girls had remained in Comanche County for some time because one was a school teacher and the other stayed to finish school.

Ruth recalled that when gas was first introduced in Snyder, people began selling their wood stoves. That's when Charlie bought his mother the wood stove which the Tates still have in their home. O.P. has refinished it. In its heydey, many meals were prepared on it, but today Ruth uses it for storage.

When new, the stove featured a hot water heater on the side. Later, that stove was replaced with a kerosene one.

Ruth's grandparents attended the Baptist church near Fluvanna for many years. Later, they joined the Mooar Creek Baptist Church after it was organized.

Ruth's dad and her aunt, Ruthie Davis, who lived to be 101, were charter members of Union Baptist Church.

Ruth recalled that her grandmother used to wash clothes for the inmates at the jail. Her (Ruth's) dad would ride to town once a week to pick up and deliver the clothes.

He sometimes also rode to Snyder to pick up the family's mail. She said he was often sent on errands because the family considered her dad "too young to work."

She recalled one instance where he rode to Snyder to mail a letter, but returned home without mailing it. "He never forgot that experience," she said.

These additional facts about the Eastmans were culled from "Footprints Across Scurry County."

"Water had to be hauled for the household and baths were taken in the wash tub. The parents usually took a bath, followed by the children. Then the water was poured on fruit trees and vegetables.

"Neighbors had to help each other for any of them to get by. Ellen was considered a good 'doctor substitute' and aided with many births as well as other illnesses among neighbors.

"Much of the property of the Eastmans still belongs to their descendants. Part of the land and minerals of Section 301 belongs to the children and grandchildren of Ruthie Davis. O.P. and Ruth Tate...own and operate Section 289, 300 and 301 where they have made their home. The Jack Jones family (the Tates' younger daughter) also lives on the place where their children are the fifth generation to live on the land."

Though normally a long-lived people, Ruth said her grandfather died of typhoid fever on Nov. 16, 1908. Her grandmother died on Dec. 2, 1923.

Charlie Eastman took care of the family farm until he was in his eighties. Preferring to live alone rather than in a nursing home or with Ruth, his only child, Charlie lived in a small house near the Tate home until his death in 1981 at the age of 93. He had been born on Feb. 18, 1888.

The Tates have lived on their part of the family farm since 1964, but they actually assumed ownership in 1956.

Ruth was born on the family homestead about one mile southeast of the Tate home. It was near the site where her dad had built the family's first three-room home. In later years, he built another home using wood from Arah Schoolhouse.

She attended the Turner Schoolhouse which was also where her mother — Emily Melvina (Mell) Thompson — had taught before she married Ruth's dad — a school trustee for many years.

Ruth met O.P. after he leased a quarter-section of her family's land in 1948, located near where she was reared. A native of Scurry County, his parents, O.P. Sr. and Nellie Tate, settled in the county in 1926 and once owned a service station and a grocery store here.

Ruth and O.P. dated for two years before marrying in 1950. They have two daughters and five grandchildren.

Ruth's maternal grandparents, Will and Kate (Bowen) Thompson, moved to Snyder in 1906. He was farming in the Pyron area at the time, but had decided he wanted to become a businessman. Though he maintained his farm land, Ruth said he also owned and operated a drug store located in the old Stinson Drug building.

Ruth said he was considered "crazy," not only because he moved to town, but also because he established one of the first irrigation wells in the county.

Thompson also owned other buidlings in Snyder at the time. In the early 1900s, he built a seven room home — then considered a mansion — on 37th Street for $2,500.

Ruth recalled this story about her maternal grandfather. She said they always liked Coke, but one day she said he saw what happened to a spoon when it was accidentally dropped into some of the drink. After that, he never let his children drink any more Coke, she said.

She said her maternal grandmother, Kate Thompson, was among the first to plant and successfully harvest peach trees. She said they watered the trees with "used water." No water was ever just thrown away, but was instead used to irrigate their trees. Ruth said her grandmother was known not only for her peaches, but for her peach cobbler as well.

Her dad also bought one of the first tractors — a Moline — in the county.

No stranger to farm work, Ruth is experienced in all aspects of cotton harvesting.

"I've always worked alongside O.P. I started out pulling cotton in a sack. Then they bought a stripper, followed by a module builder and the self-propelled stripper they now have."

With the earlier equipment, Ruth said she was often the one who had to trample the cotton as it was being stripped from the fields. The work was hard and the ride bumpy, she said. The self-propelled stripper is "much easier to operate."

When Ruth's children were young, she, her husband and a neighbor decided to show their children what cotton stripping was like when they were children.

"Our children were very excited and couldn't wait to tell their teacher that they had stripped cotton by hand. But when one of the teachers remarked that she didn't know they were so poor that they had to strip by hand, it deflated their eagerness," she said.

In addition to farming, the Tates are very active with U&F Water, which provides water for many people living in the county. O.P. served on the steering committee which organized the water cooperative. Later, he was a member of the board of directors and today he manages the operation while Ruth keeps the books. U&F held its 27th annual meeting on Feb. 16.

"It's a real asset because without it some people wouldn't have any water," she said.

All their children grew up doing U&F work. Today, a daughter and son-in-law, Jack and Barbra Jones, help read the meters. Another daughter and son-in-law are, Darlene and Jerry Beard. Grandchildren include Hollie and Ty Jones and Jennifer and Jeremy David Beard.

The present Tate home was constructed from former school buildings, including Travis Junior High School, which was added to a four-room house they moved to the site. Later, they added an office area.

O.P., who is a carpenter like his brother, J.P., has done much of the work himself. "He made a carpenter out of me too," Ruth said.

Their home is filled with things he has made, starting with their keepsakes. An example is a chandelier in their living room made from the wagon wheel of an old family wagon.

A crosscut saw over their mantle belonged to O.P.'s grandfather. He has placed mirrors in old horse collars. He also makes clocks. One of Ruth's favorites is a large grandfather clock.

To qualify for Family Land Heritage Program recognition, Ruth said they had to send in an application, complete with copies of all deed records.

"We had seen other counties recognized over the years," Ruth said. "So we decided to submit our application. We had to look up all the abstracts and record every time the land changed hands."

They completed their application last summer.

Of the 85 families recognized, Ruth said 84 attended. Pictures were displayed from the various counties during the presentation.

"Farming is very special to me," Ruth said. "There is just something about working the land. I've plowed with O.P. and I was the only 'boy' my dad ever had," she said.

"My dad always said that he could think better when he worked by himself. I get a more balanced perspective because of the continuity of ownership. I'm very honored that my ancesters cared enough to keep the land in the family," Ruth said.

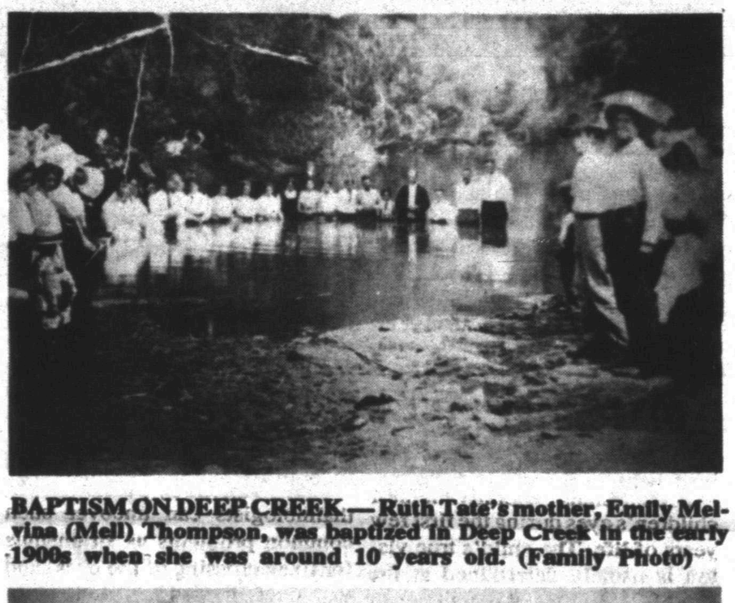

"O.P. has contributed to the land also," she said. "Our daughters have said they want to keep the land, too. We'd like to think that our grandchildren will feel the same way."

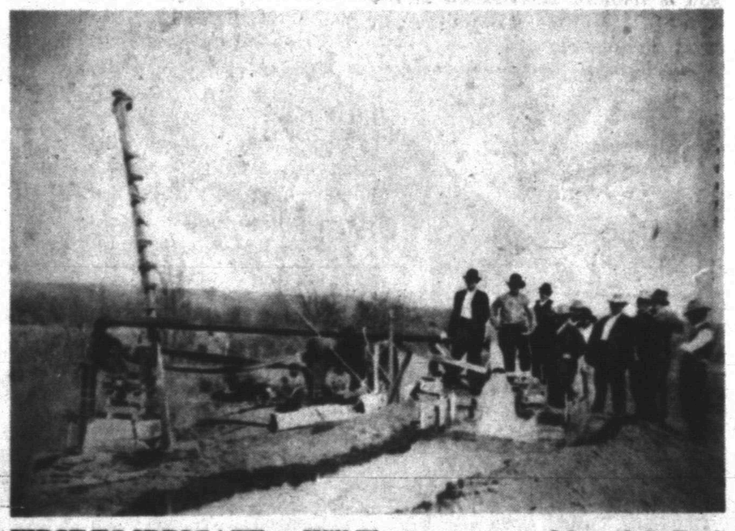

FAMILY TREASURE — This wood-burning stove has been in the O.P. and Ruth Tate's family for several decades. In its heyday, her grandmother, Ellen Eastman, cooked many a meal on it, but today the Tates keep it as a momento of her grandparents' early days in the county. (SDN Staff Photo)

Yogurt has achieved respectibility since the Dark Ages and is now enjoyed in various ways

By Marialisa Calta

Nowadays, with yogurt sold in every imaginable flavor and color, and frozen yogurt as common as shopping malls, it's hard to remember that back in the culinary Dark Ages, yogurt was a bit suspect. It was considered "health food" and then, by the 1960s, equally suspect "hippie food" (suspect, that is, unless you happened to consider yourself a hippie).

In these enlightened times, however, yogurt is everywhere. It is sold in all shapes and sizes, "Swiss-style," "fruit-on-the-bottom" style, plain, fruit-flavored, and packaged with colored sprinkles or granola-like toppings.

Being somewhat of a purist (my husband says "food snob") I like my yogurt as natural as possible. I avoid so-called "Swiss-style" yogurts, which are made with artificial binders and stabilizers. I favor yogurt flavored with honey or sugar (I'm not a TOTAL purist) over the stuff made with artificial sweeteners; I think they impart a distinctive chemical taste. I try to buy yogurt made with "live active cultures," which aid in digestion. And I also look for added Lactobacillus acidophilus. (On a trip to Mexico many years ago I was the only person in our party of three to consume acidophilus tablets daily, and the only one to avoid "Montezuma's revenge." It may have been a coincidence, but I've been an acidophilus fan ever since.)

— Avoid overheating yogurt or heating it too quickly, which kills the helpful bacteria. When cooking, bring yogurt to room temperature and then, rather than adding it to a hot mixture, add a little of the mixture to the yogurt, warming it gradually. Then stir the warmed yogurt into the hot food. (If you are baking, the heat will kill the bacteria, but you still get the benefit of the calcium and protein.)

— If yogurt in salad dressing, dip or cold soup thins too much, chill for an hour or two and it will thicken.

— If yogurt in a cooked food thins out, thicken it by adding arrowroot, cornstarch or flour (1 to 2 tablespoons per cup of yogurt) dissolved in a small amount of cold water. Add this to the mixture and cook, stirring, over low heat, until thickened.

— Once opened, keep unused yogurt tightly covered. If liquid collects on top, simply stir it back in.

ORANGE BREAKFAST CRUNCH WITH YOGURT

Topping:

- ¼ cup margarine or butter, melted
- 1 ¼ cups wheat germ
- ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon grated orange peel
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon

Base:

- 8 ounces yogurt, any flavor
- ½ cup chopped prunes, raisins, dried apricots or mixed dried fruit

Make topping: Heat oven to 350 degrees. Melt margarine or butter in a 13-by-9-inch baking pan in oven, 3 to 4 minutes. Remove from oven and add wheat germ, sugar, orange peel and cinnamon. Mix well. Bake 10 to 12 minutes until deep golden brown. Cool; store tightly covered in refrigerator up to 3 months. Serve on yogurt and fruit (below), or on pancakes, waffles, toast, English muffins or oatmeal.

Yield: 2 ¼ cups.

Layer ¼ cup of topping with yogurt and dried fruit in cereal bowl. Serve immediately.

Yield: 1 serving.

Recipe developed by The Quaker Oats Co., Chicago, for Kretschmer Wheat Germ.

YOGURT CHEESE

- 8 cups plain (low-fat, non-fat or whole milk) yogurt

Line a colander or sieve with several layers of damp cheesecloth. Set the colander over a bowl and pour in yogurt. Cover yogurt by tying up ends of cheesecloth with a bag tie. Place a 3 to 4 pound bag of beans on top. Allow yogurt to drain at room temperature 8 to 12 hours, depending on desired thickness. (You can discard the liquid or use it as a substitute for milk or water in breads and muffin recipes.) Store covered in refrigerator, up to one week. Use as you would cream cheese.

Yield: about 2 cups.

Recipe adapted from two printed in "The Moosewood Cookbook," by Mollie Katzen (Ten Speed Press, 1992), and "The Stonyfield Farm Yogurt Cookbook," by Meg Cadoux Hirshberg (Camden House, 1991).

SALMON SPREAD:

- 2 cups yogurt cheese (recipe above)
- ¼ pound Nova lox bits
- pinch of salt

The day before serving, gently combine yogurt cheese, lox and salt. Refrigerate for 1 day. Serve with crackers or toasted bagels.

Yield: generous 2 cups.

Recipe contributed by Sharon L. Marshall of Boston, Mass., for "The Stonyfield Farm Yogurt Cookbook," by Meg Cadoux Hirshberg (Camden House, 1991).

YOGURT PIE:

- 2 ½ quarts non-fat plain yogurt, made into 5 cups of yogurt cheese (recipe above)
- 5 tablespoons sugar (or more, to taste)
- 1 ¼ teaspoons vanilla extract
- 1 9-inch graham cracker crust, baked and cooled
- fresh or thawed frozen berries, peaches or pitted cherries, for topping (optional)

In a medium sized bowl, gently combine yogurt cheese with sugar and vanilla. Beat lightly with a whisk until well blended.

Turn into prepared crust. Cover tightly and chill. Top with fruit, if using, and serve.

Yield: 8 servings.

Recipe from "The Moosewood Cookbook," by Mollie Katzen (Ten Speed Press, 1992).

HEALTHY SALAD DRESSING WITH YOGURT

- 1 cup plain low-fat, non-fat or whole milk yogurt
- 1 tablespoon Dijon mustard
- ¼ teaspoon black pepper
- ½ teaspoon salt (optional)
- ¼ cup fresh parsley
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 fresh scallions, chopped
- ½- ½ cup red wine vinegar
- 10 green olives, with pimentos (optional)

Blend all ingredients, except olives, together in blender. Store, covered, in refrigerator. Stir in olives, if using, right before serving.

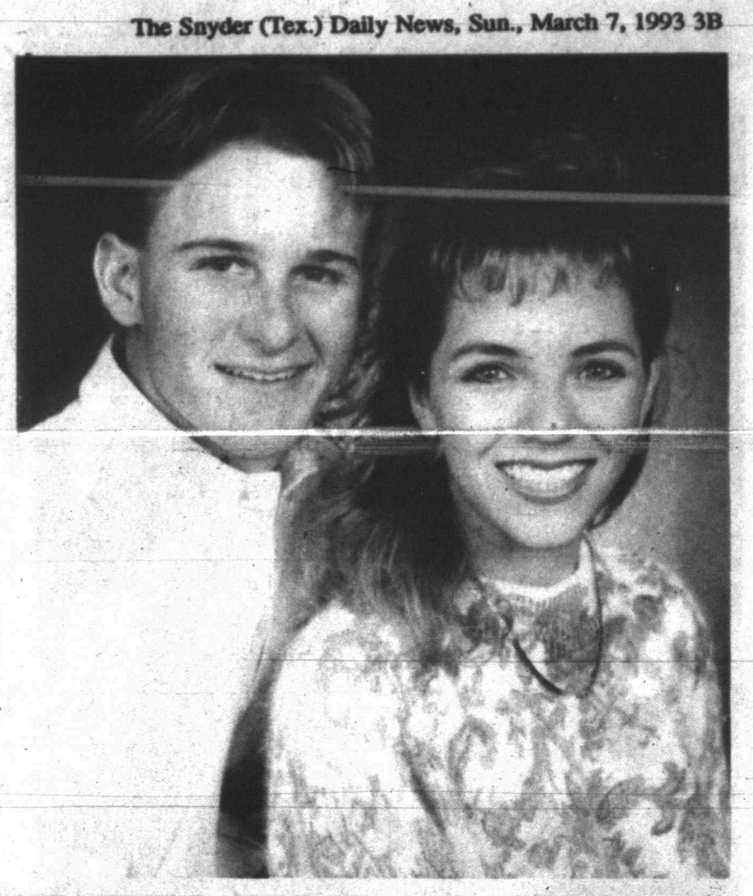

Yield: 2 ½ cups.

Early vision care prevents future problems

By ANNE EDELSON
For AP Special Features

Children may see the world through rose-colored glasses but undetected vision problems can make their view prematurely dim.

Early medical screening of babies' eyes can help uncover vision problems before children's eyesight is permanently damaged. Children's vision systems develop during the first eight to 10 years of life. The earlier a problem is detected, the easier it is to treat.

Pediatricians generally monitor children's eyes during the first few years of life. The child's true vision is usually determined at the age of 31/2 years, when they can read an eye chart.

Examinations should test babies' ability to fix on and track objects, as well as the alignment and overall health of the eyes. If a problem is suspected, an examination by a pediatric ophthalmologist might be recommended.

Pediatric ophthalmologists are typically board-certified, general opthalmologists with an additional year of subtraining in all aspects of the examination of children's eyes and pediatric eye surgery.

Examinations by pediatric ophthalmologists can uncover such common problems as strabismus (or fixed crossing of the eyes) and tear duct blockage.

Often strabismus can be corrected with the use of prescription eyeglasses. An eye patch, perhaps worn in combination with eyeglasses, may be recommended if strabismus is accompanied by amblyopia, which is a loss of vision in the crossed eye commonly known as lazy eye. Patching the straight eye forces the brain to relearn seeing through the crossed eye.

Strabismus should be corrected; misaligned eyes can affect the ability of the brain to use the eyes as a unit and can increase the risk of developing amblyopia. If patching and eyeglasses prove ineffective, strabismus surgery to increase or decrease the tension of the eye muscles may be recommended.

Surgery for strabismus is done on an outpatient basis; there is no visible scarring and patients rarely need to wear a patch or use eye drops afterward.

Obstructions of the tear ducts generally are due to a blockage at the end of the duct that channels tears into the back of the nose for elimination.

With no place to drain, tears well up on the eyelids, lashes and cheeks. Bacteria within the tears frequently cause a puslike discharge.

To promote a cure of a tear duct blockage, the ophthalmologist may prescribe antibiotic eyedrops and a special eye massage.

The majority of tear duct blockages resolve themselves without further intervention within the first year. But if the condition does not improve at that time, a minor surgical procedure known as a "probing" may be suggested.

This article was written in collaboration with Dr. Mark Steele, a clinical assistant professor of ophthalmology at New York University Medical Center.

Average Tokyo child has 411 toys, survey says

TOKYO (AP) — A study of children here found many could stock their own toyshop. The kids averaged 411 toys that together cost $1,530.

The Product Science Research Institute says its survey counted related toys individually, such as each car in a toy car collection. And the study of children up to the sixth grade was limited to 59 volunteer families, so the results were not scientific.

Still, it's hard to disagree with the institute's conclusion: "Children have a surprisingly large number of toys." One sixth-grade boy had 1,736.

The institute's chief researcher, Keiko Nagata, attributed the numbers to Japanese women averaging a record low 1.53 children each. That means there are fewer children to be doted on by the generous "six pockets" of the typical child's parents and four grandparents, he said.

The research center is financed by the Sezon Group, owner of department stores and supermarkets.

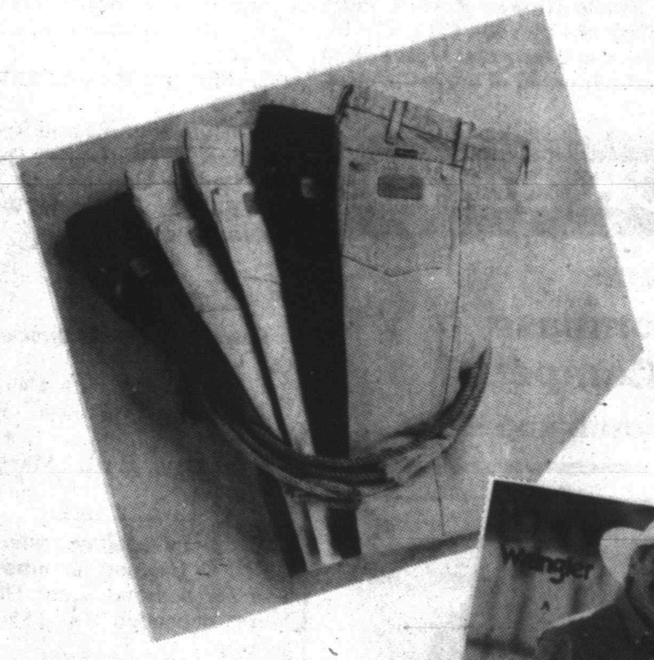

'Eyes on the Prize'

SOMERS, N.Y. (AP) — Pepsi-Cola Co. says it is distributing copies of the Emmy Award-winning documentary, "Eyes on the Prize," to some 22,000 schools and community groups nationwide. A study guide is included with each video.

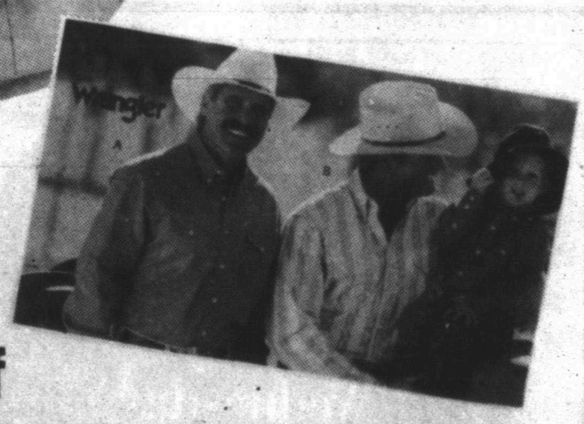

The two-hour video was edited directly from the original production, which aired on Public Broadcasting Service television stations. It is an overview of the civil rights movement, focusing on the years 1954 to 1965. It includes interviews and archival footage.

Relaxing on his laurels

By Phillip Alder

The Senior Life Master was sitting by the fire, resting after his Saturday morning class.

One of his younger students went over and said how much he was enjoying the lessons.

Thank you for your kind words (replied the SLM). Lewis Carroll had the right idea when he said that the reason they're called lessons is that they lessen from day to day — or, in your case, from week to week.

While you're here, let me tell you a story.

The SLM grabbed the young man's sleeve as he tried to leave.

Look at this deal (the SLM continued). South was Courtney Featherstonehaugh-Phipps, playing with Hortensia Fortescue-Farnsworth, his fiancee.

After winning the first trick with the heart king, Courtney noticed that he had a safety-play available in the club suit. He cashed the club king and led the club three to dummy's ace. If East had had jack-fourth of clubs, this would have produced four tricks in the suit. Here it was an unnecessary precaution.

Now Courtney finessed the spade jack. But West won with the king and continued hearts, leaving Courtney with no way to produce a ninth trick.

"My silly darling," lamented Hortensia. "You need two spade tricks for your contract. You must assume the clubs are breaking 3-2. Cash the K-Q of clubs and then lead the 10 to dummy's ace. Next, take a spade finesse. It loses, but you get back into the dummy by overtaking your club three with my six. The second spade finesse works and you are home."

Beware the unsafety-play, young man.

Polly's Pointers

By Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — My brother loves cheesecake and would like a chocolate cheesecake for his birthday. Do you have any recipes? — ANNE

DEAR ANNE — Here is a recipe for an easy and delicious cheesecake that's based on a cheesecake mix. It doesn't even need to be baked, so you can whip up a chocolate cheesecake in just the time it takes to chill it.

Butter the bottom and sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Stir together the graham cracker crumbs from one 11½-ounce box of no-bake cheesecake mix with ⅓ cup sugar, ¼ cup cocoa powder and ⅓ cup melted butter. Press this crumb mixture onto the sides, bottom and ½ inch up the side of the prepared pan. Stand about 17 vanilla wafers around the sides of the pan with the rounded sides out, pressing the bottom edges of the cookies into the crumb mixture. In a bowl, beat together 1½ cups cold milk, the cheesecake filling mix and ⅓ cup cocoa powder for 3 minutes or until thickened. Pour into the prepared pan. Cover and refrigerate until firm. Refrigerate leftovers. This cake will make 10 to 12 elegant and delicious servings.

My thanks to the Hershey Foods Corporation test kitchens for this recipe. Hershey now makes a European-style cocoa, also known as Dutch-process cocoa, that tastes excellent in this recipe.

And Happy Birthday to your brother! — POLLY

Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Hemingway has breast surgery redone

NEW YORK (AP) — Mariel Hemingway says she had her silicone breast implants removed and replaced with saline ones because of the possible health risks.

The star of television's "Civil Wars" had her breasts enlarged for her role as a doomed Playboy Playmate in the 1983 movie "Star 80."

Clint Black home with message for brass

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — There was no backup band, sound system or even a real stage, but U.S. troops in Somalia who turned out to hear country star Clint Black didn't seem to mind.

Black toured checkpoints, base camps and the city's port Thursday, playing to whooping crowds of troops and urging Washington to bring the GIs home.

"I'm going to get on my soapbox on national television and see if I can reach someone with brass ...," he said, then caught himself as the troops started cheering.

"The brass pen set," he finished.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

As I was climbing the steps at the Scurry County Coliseum recently, in order to watch the magnificent Royal Lipizzaner stallions (and wasn't Snyder wonderfully fortunate to be able to host them?), a guy hollered out to me from the stands, "Hey Mills! Now that you're a Big-Time Arthur, you're gonna start wearin' a fancy hat?"

I was, at the time, wearing my black felt Australian Bush Hat.

Now, I'm not going to identify this man by name, but he did look a whole heackuva lot like Charlie Johnson.

I had to laugh at Char--uh, the guy's question.

The first hat I ever wore was the first day of school, 1965. I was in the ninth grade. I wore white vinyl go-go boots, a mini-skirt, and a white vinyl visor cap. It turned out to be a good choice, because it caught the eye of the gorgeous Bill Beckerich.

Of course, about nineteen other girls caught the eye of Bill Beckerich that day, none of whom were wearing hats, but that's another column.

The summer I was sixteen, I discovered a "dollar only" bin, and bought four different pairs of sunglasses in four different colors, with four matching visor caps. (First job; I had money then.) I was kinda cute in those days, and I seem to recall getting lots of compliments from the boys.

The only reason I didn't wear hats throughout my twenties is that I was too broke to buy them, and there didn't seem to be many in the stores. But in my thirties, I discovered a mall boutique that carried lots of them, and I bought three or four in different colors that I wore with various outfits when I went to give a speech or teach a seminar.

Once, while I was speaking to a local group, there was this lanky guy hanging out, taking pictures. From the back of the room, he said, "You know, you look really good in that hat." I said thanks, and he said, "I wish more women had the courage to wear hats. I think it's really attractive." I mumbled something, and he said, "Could I take your picture sometime while you're wearing your hat?"

I rolled my eyes dramatically, elbowed the woman sitting next to me at the dais, and said, "Who the heck is that joker, anyway?"

She gave me a sideways, appraising glance and said, "that's my husband, Harley Bynum."

Woops.

Harley did indeed do a photo shoot of me in various hats, and one picture turned out so good that it wound up gracing the covers of some 100,000 copies of my novel, "Darkroom," and advertising Harley's name all over the country and in PX's overseas.

Then one day ... I discovered my reason for living: the men's hat department. Wow! Talk about choice! The fedoras were the first to catch my eye — don't you think guys looked so sexy in them back in the forties in those old movies? Well, I do.

Women, it seems, really love hats, and many of them would wear them, but they lack courage. Maybe they're afraid somebody's going to holler out at them in some crowded stadium somewhere. I encourage them anyway, all the time: try it, I say. It's loads of fun.

Then came my Australian bush hat ... and who knows what I may uncover next?

Oddly enough, I understand that there are a number of female mystery/suspense writers who like to wear hats as a sort of trademark. Odd. I don't know if it's some kind of defective gene, or if they think they're supposed to, but I don't care. I've ALWAYS loved hats.

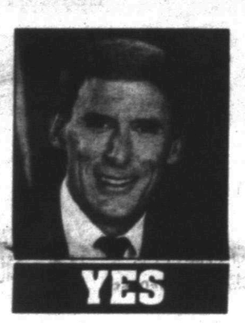

Why else do you think I would marry a cowboy?

Presidential Line-item Veto?

U.S. Sen. Dan Coats (R-Ind.) is a member of the Senate Armed Services and Labor and Human Resources committees. He introduced legislation in the 102nd Congress that would authorize the presidential line-item veto.

Should the president be allowed the power of a line-item veto?

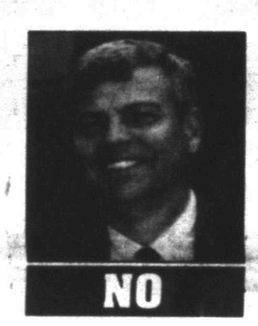

Yes. A line-item veto would simply allow the president to highlight wasteful spending buried in huge appropriations packages and send it back to Congress. If Congress chose, it could override that presidential veto, and the money would be spent.

The goal of a line-item veto is simple — to shed light into the dark corners of the budget process. A presidential line-item veto would require the supporters of a project to justify it on the floor of the House and Senate. It would help take congressional spending deals out of the back room and expose them to scrutiny and discussion. This is a power our current president had and used when he was governor of Arkansas. This is a power he should have today.

What would be the impact of a presidential line-item veto?

One government report found that $70 billion might have been saved in the last half of the 1980s if the president had had this veto over the excesses of Congress from pursuing projects that cannot be justified in public debate.

There are many temptations in Congress. One of the strongest is to buy a handful of votes with billions in wasteful pork. But that approach is old and tired and will not move mountains of accumulated debt. A line-item veto would allow an activist president to expose congress' hidden and common abuses of spending. It isn't a total solution — but at least it would leave waste no place to hide.

Glenn Abney is chair of the department of political science at Georgia State University in Atlanta, Ga. He is the co-author of "The Politics of State and City Administration" and "The Line-Item Veto in the states: An Instrument of Fiscal Restraint or an Instrument for Partisanship?"

Should the president be allowed the power of a line-item veto?

No. The main argument for a line-item veto is that legislative bodies lack fiscal discipline. However, it is important to note that the current budget deficit has resulted from presidential tax and budget proposals. In the 43 states where the line-item veto exists, governors frequently have used it for partisan goals, rather than fiscal responsibility. The veto also can result in gridlock and has the potential for making government less disciplined. By assigning fiscal responsibility to the governor, the veto encourages legislatures to add more "pork barrel" to appropriations bills. The framers of the U.S. Constitution believed in co-equal branches of government. A presidential line-item veto could promote executive dominance and violate constitutional restrictions on lawmaking.

What would be the impact of a presidential line-item veto?

Having a line-item would not mean that the president would get to use it. State Legislatures have found numerous ways to limit a governor's use of the veto. For example, legislatures can lump expenditure items together or place the specifics of appropriations into committee reports beyond the reach of the veto. A line-item veto would not contribute significantly to solving our deficit problem. Unfortunately, most federal spending is not discretionary spending, which is subject to the veto, but instead, is a result of "uncontrollables" such as interest payments. The deficit problem facing our nation is largely one of leadership. Discussion about a line-item veto only deflects the public's attention away from the real issue.

5 YEARS AGO

The Dermott school building was relocated at its new site next to the Cornelius-Dodson House on the Scurry County Coliseum grounds.

Kim Mitchell was named winner of the 13th annual Scurry County Spelling Bee. Other winners were Vanessa Kimmell, second; James Graham, third; Brandi Doyle, fourth; and Brooks Pratt, fifth.

Bill Schiebel mailed a birthday card to his brother, Richard, the same one he had mailed every year since 1942.

10 YEARS AGO

Terry T. Hefner joined the Snyder office of the Soil Conservation Service as a soil conservationist. Erwin Pavlik was the SCS director. She moved to Snyder and her husband, Joe Hefner, was named new executive director for the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service here.

Berlin H. (Howard) Ray retired from Exxon Company USA with over 32 years service.

One hundred-sixty members of the Scurry County Producers Association announced eight new directors. They were Don Tate, Leon Sterling, Bob Pollard, Milton Stephens, David Kattes, Carl Williams, Morris Head and Morris Light.

Native of Snyder, Ty Kelley and his wife, LaRue, were featured in a country and western, "family entertainment" show.

Walls Industries, Inc., reported net sales for the year 1977 were $40,401,014 with net earnings of $3,093,768 or $1.97 per share.

Agriculture was the spotlight for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Banquet held at Scurry County Coliseum. Reagan V. Brown, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, was the keynote speaker.

Bryan Lewallen of Snyder and Lisa McLeroy of Gail won Midwest-Electric Cooperative's Rural Electric Youth Tour Contest. The contest was supervised by Edwin Jackson, Midwest's member services director.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Ritz Board of Governors, I want to publicly express our gratitude to the elders and congregation of the East Side Church of Christ for their donation of auditorium seating for the Ritz interior renovation.

In addition to the financial savings that will be realized by their generosity, their support and belief in the Ritz theatre project for Snyder is most appreciated and rewarding.

With this donation, the elders and members of the East Side Church of Christ will help to make "Puttin' on the Ritz" a reality to be enjoyed for this and future generations.

Sincerely,
Mike Thornton,
President,
Ritz Board of Governors

Dear Editor:

The management and employees of Grimmett Brothers, Inc., would like to thank Perry Westmoreland, Randy Davis, Jamie Baldwin, Sabrina Cross and Terry Miller of Snyder EMS for their superior teamwork on our employee Dick Phillips this past Thursday.

Because of their excellent abilities, Dick Phillips is still alive.

The people of Scurry County are extremely fortunate to have such a professional and dedicated group of people in a time of need.

Thanks again,
Ray Max Grimmett

Dear Editor:

Our high school basketball team was involved in a playoff game last night (Tuesday, March 2) in your town. Six of us were going to fly to Snyder for the game but, after calling three automobile dealerships, we were unsuccessful in locating a rental car.

I called the chamber of commerce to see if they could help with our transportation situation and within one minute Alicia had arranged for one of your Gold Coats (Betty House) to pick us up at the airport and transport us to the coliseum. Mrs. House even asked her husband to bring his vehicle so we wouldn't be so crowded.

After the game, Alicia and Sandra (from the chamber) took us back to the airport.

I just wanted to express my thanks publicly to the wonderful citizens of Snyder!

Sincerely,
Jessica Shierry

Dear Editor,

Once again, it appears that some of our state leaders are playing a shell game with the people of Texas. The Texas Legislature is expected to vote some time this month on a sex education bill known as Senate Bill 20 which is sponsored by Mike Moncrief of Fort Worth. The bill will require every school district in Texas to teach sex education for grades K-12.

The bill is supposed to allow each school district the right to establish its own curriculum and to provide for parental input. Parents will also have the right to remove their children from the sex education classes if they oppose the curriculum.

The purpose of the bill is to combat the growing problem of teen pregancy and sexually transmitted diseases. In 1987, the legislature established the Adolescent Pregnancy and Parenthood Advisory Council (APPAC) to advise the legislature on ways to combat the problem.

APPAC is co-chaired by Snyder's former state representative, Larry Don Shaw. Shaw's APPAC council advises the board of the Texas Department of Human Services, Texas Department of Health and the Texas Education Agency on adolescent pregnancy issues, and reports its recommendations to each regular session of the legislature.

Shaw states, "If you want to deal with teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases, we've laid out a plan based on scientific facts and common sense." Shaw explained APPAC's plan to me in a recent phone conversation. The plan calls for a state law requiring every school district in Texas to teach sex education for grades K-12. It calls for campus clinics in every district where students can receive testing and counseling for pregnancy and sexually transmitted diseases without parental consent or knowledge. The plan includes making condoms available for students upon request, and it would require every teacher and counselor to have three to six hours of sex education training.

The legislature is not required to accept APPAC's prevention plans; and indeed, Moncrief denies that his Senate Bill 20 is related to the APPAC report. However, there can be no doubt that the bill is the first step in putting the APPAC plan into action.

There is also no doubt that the legislature, the Texas Education Agency and APPAC have been working together and preparing the sex education plan since 1987. Everything is in place and the one thing now needed is a state law to put the sex education plan into the classrooms of Texas.

Mr. Moncrief just happened to introduce Senate Bill 20 at the needed hour and the TEA just happens to have the curriculum already published and ready to go. In fact, the TEA has sent copies of the curriculum to every school district in the state, of course, not knowing that Moncrief was going to introduce Senate Bill 20 which requires the teaching of such material. I have seen the TEA curriculum and it follows very closely the APPAC plan as outlined by Shaw.

Here is how the shell game is working. Senate Bill 20 allows each district to use a program developed by the Texas Education Agency or the local district can use one of its own choosing as long as it meets the requirements of the state program, including instruction on pregnancy prevention, HIV/AIDS prevention, and substance-abuse prevention. Local districts will find it more convenient to use the already published TEA materials which will be made available to each district at twenty dollars per set which is far below the market value of other publishers. Senate Bill 20 also requires the TEA to collect and maintain data on the program in each district.

Yes, local districts will be allowed to develop their own materials as long as it meets state requirements. Yes, parents can inject their own ideas into the program as long as those ideas agree with state requirements. Under which shell shall we find local control of this sex education program which will be mandated by state law?

Moncrief, Shaw and others in Austin have stated the problem and have recommended a plan to combat the problem. They have not stated what the estimated cost will be nor have they presented any evidence showing that sex education programs now being in various districts in the state are showing any significant results in reducing the problem of student pregnancy.

In Snyder, where sex education has been taught for several years, there has been no significant decrease in the problem of student pregnancies according to some who have worked with the program. Administrators admit that there is still a big problem existing in the district.

Texans have no reason to believe that the sex education plans of the legislature, APPAC, and the Texas Education Agency will produce any significant results in the war against the sex-related problems. However, we have every reason to believe that their plans will eventually have a significant impact on the pocketbooks of the taxpayers of Texas.

Is it any wonder that concerned citizens of our state are contacting their state senators and representatives and voicing opposition to Senate Bill 20?

Group launches opposition fight

AUSTIN (AP) — The battle being fought over school finance may soon resemble that of a Nielson's rating contest, as the state's political leaders take the issue to television.

A Republican-led group, calling itself Texans Against Robin Hood Taxes, said Thursday it will spend half a million dollars to campaign against a share-the-wealth school funding plan that voters will vote on May 1.

Tom Pauken of Dallas, a leader of the group, said the effort will include radio and television ads and bumper stickers reading, "Vote No!"

Meanwhile, Democratic leaders have begun their own campaign to sell the school funding proposal to voters.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Gov. Ann Richards, said a bipartisan committee of lawmakers, education officials and business leaders had met with the governor and with Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock to map out a strategy.

The governor has not said how much money will be spent on the campaign, but officials said it will come complete with — what else? — television commercials.

The proposed constitutional amendment on the May ballot would allow the state to shift some local property tax money from wealthier to poorer school districts.

Richards and other supporters of the plan have said it must pass if the state is to avoid a court-ordered June 1 cutoff of state public education money. They have warned that would mean closing schools.

But Rep. John Culberson, another leader of Texans Against Robin Hood Taxes, said Richards is using the threat of school closure to get the plan passed.

He noted that the Legislture would still have 30 days after the election to pass another proposal.

"The importance of this grassroots effort is to educate the public that there are other choices available," said Culberson, R-Houston.

Pauken said the governor is trying to sell voters a tax increase when there are other ways to solve the problem. He said taxes could go up more than $1 billion a year under the proposed constitutional amendment.

"There are plenty of sensible alternatives available to the governor and the Legislature to address the problem short of this massive tax hike," Pauken said.

Employees test positive for tuberculosis

HOUSTON (AP) — Tests have revealed that more than 40 deputies who work in the Harris County Jail have tested positive for tuberculosis, but there are no active cases of the disease among employees of the overcrowded jail, authorities say.

Although none of the deputies had active cases, officials pointed out Thursday that the bacteria that causes the disease can linger undetected for up to three years without causing symptoms.

But because the testing program was voluntary, it is not known how many of the deputies received follow-up treatment that would prevent onset of the disease.

Health officials said other tests, such as X-rays, are required to positively identify tuberculosis, but a conclusive reading must be followed by a six- to nine-month treatment regimen.

Jim Sullenger...

Snyder native recalls recent evangelistic visit to Russia

Jim Sullenger, a Snyder native, returned from an evangelist campaign in the former Soviet Union. He was so inspired by the people's interest in the Bible, that he is recruiting others to make similar trips.

Sullenger, the son of Juanita Cochran of Snyder, has served for the past 51/2 years as the minister of the Hamilton Church of Christ in Central Texas.

Since his return from Central Russia last fall, Sullenger has made numerous speaking engagements, including reports to three Church of Christ congregations in Scurry County — Fluvanna, Eastside and 37th Street.

When the walls of Communism came down in Eastern Europe, missionaries armed with the Bible are now officially welcomed.

Sullenger found this in the campaign that lasted a month starting last Oct. 14. "So many other gospel preachers have been coming back to the U.S. and reporting on the work in Russia, but it's hard to believe until you experience it personally."

Sullenger said the past two years have seen many doors of opportunity open for the spread of God's Word. His work was in the cities of Ufa, Catherineburg and Kazan.

Sullenger was part of a 21-member team from the Park Heights Church of Christ led by Charles Whittle. During the month, 94 persons became Christians.

In each city, public Bible lectures were held with the general public invited by letter, newspaper, poster and radio advertising.

Unlike America, educational institutions were eager to have the Bible taught as part of the curriculum. Seminars were conducted in some 25 universities as well as many public elementary and high schools.

Five universities expressed interest in formalizing agreements with one or more Christian universities in the United States to continue these types of lectures. One university wants to explore the possibility of adding a theological faculty.

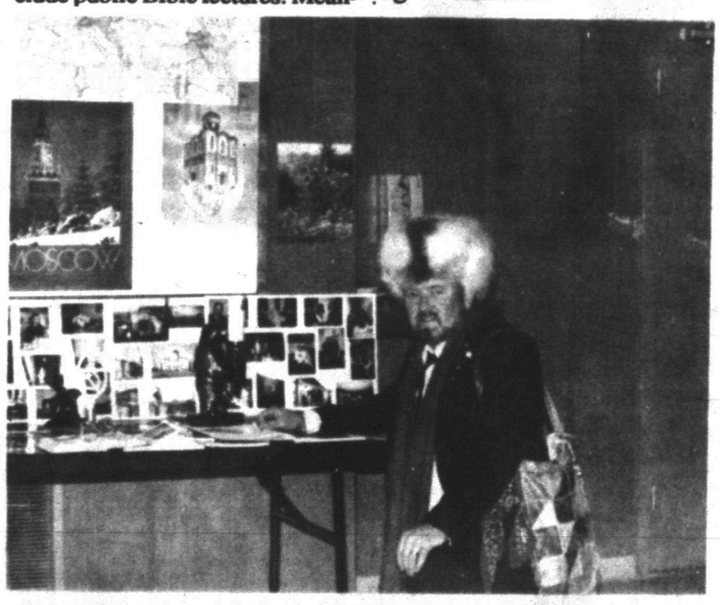

Sullenger and others are planning to make return trips to continue their work. One Snyder resident, Tom Stinson, will be part of a group that will leave for Bulgaria on March 31 for six weeks. Stinson is a deacon at the 37th Street congregation in Snyder.

Sullenger plans to return to Ufa for scheduled campaigns that include public Bible lectures. Meanwhile, Sullenger is speaking to other congregations trying to recruit additional workers.

"It is truly unbelievable what the Word of God is doing in the lives of the people of Russa," Sullenger said. "Many of them are absolutely on fire for the Lord and it is seen in their great hunger for the Gospel, and in their desire to share it with friends and family."

Sullenger is a 1965 graduate of Snyder High School. He earned his bachelor's degree from Texas Christian University in 1969 and his master's degree from TCU in 1971.

He graduated from Sunset School of Preaching at Lubbock in 1980, and then preached in Delta, Colo., for four years before moving to Hamilton.

Snyder ISD sponsors annual Spring Roundup next week

Snyder public school district is sponsoring its elementary school Spring Roundup for kindergarten and pre-kindergarten children beginning Tuesday.

Pre-registration for children who will be eligible to attend kindergarten or the program for 4-year-olds will be held at the First Baptist Multipurpose Center.

Children who will be 5 years old by Sept. 1 are eligible to pre-register for kindergarten. Also, any child who has not previously attended public school, but will reach age 6 on or before Sept. 1, should pre-register. Children who will be 4 by that date are eligible to pre-register for the 4-year-old program.

In addition, any 3-year-old child suspected of having a delay in the areas of motor development, language development, or intellectual development is eligible for screening.

"Pre-registration is important in helping children get off to a good start in their school career," said an SISD spokesperson. "Attendance in kindergarten and in the program for 4-year-olds is voluntary; however, the educational benefits from regular attendance include building self-esteem, attaining the motivation to achieve academic potential, decision making skills, getting along with other children, and learning responsible behavior.

Children who attend East, Stanfield and West Elementary Schools will register Tuesday. Children who attend Central and Northeast will register Wednesday. Hours are 8 a.m. to 5:45 p.m.

First Baptist Multipurpose Center is located at 2600 Ave. Q.

Parents or legal guardians must bring their child's official birth certificate or legal proof of age and immunization records.

For more information, contact your child's elementary school or call Margaret Presswood at 573-9364.

SPRING ROUNDUP

•WHAT: Pre-kindergarten/Kindergarten Roundup

•WHO: For all children eligible for kindergarten or the four year old program in the Snyder district, 1993-'94

•WHEN: 8:00 A.M. - 5:45 P.M. March 9-10

•WHERE: First Baptist Church Multipurpose Center, 2600 Avenue Q

•ELIGIBILITY: Children must be 4 or 5 years old on or before Sept. 1. Parents or legal guardians must bring to the registration their child's official birth certificate or legal proof of age; immunization records for oral polio vaccine (OPV), diptheria/pertussis/tetanus (DPT), and measles/mumps/rubella (MMR); proof of income to qualify for free and reduced lunch and a Social Security number if available.

•INFORMATION: For more information, contact your neighborhood elementary school or call Margaret Presswood at 573-9364.

Bloody tragedies unite Texans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bloody tragedies in two central Texas cities since 1991 have united area residents, says the congressman who represents both communities.

Rep. Chet Edwards, D-Waco, says the bloody siege unfolding near Waco and the 1991 cafeteria massacre in nearby Killeen prompted citizens in both places to rally around the victims and their families, donating blood and offer other help.

"I think that what you've seen in both cases, the outpouring of support and sorrow, says more about the character of our area than the sad actions of two people," he said Thursday.

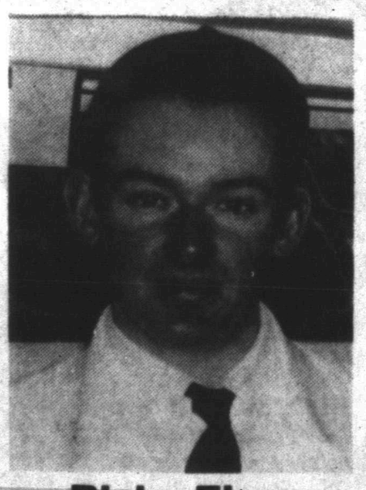

Edwards made a speech on the House floor praising as "modern-day heroes" the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents who lost their lives or were injured in Sunday's gun battles with the Branch Davidian sect.

Seventh Day Adventists frustated at association with cult

WACO, Texas (AP) — Seventh-day Adventists are tired of being associated with David Koresh and say he may be part of biblical prophesy.

"The Bible says there will be those who falsely claim to be Jesus Christ," Shirley Burton, spokeswoman for the Seventh-day Adventist Church, said from the denomination's main office in Silver Springs, Md. Thursday. "He could be fulfilling that part of the scripture."

Koresh, who claims he is Jesus Christ, leads the Branch Davidian sect, which fought federal agents with machine guns Sunday. Four federal agents and a reported 10 cultists died. The standoff that followed entered its sixth day Friday.

The sect split from a Seventh-day Adventist congregation more than 60 years ago and has been long disavowed by the mainline denomination, which has 7.2 million members worldwide.

"They're not affiliated with us in any way," said Larry Guinn, pastor of the Seventh-day Adventist Church of Waco, the largest of three Seventh-day Adventist congregations in this Central Texas city.

Guinn said many in his congregation have felt "numb" over the past few days when news accounts link the church to Koresh.

The Branch Davidians were formed by Victor Houteff, who was thrown out of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in 1929. Houteff eventually moved his followers to Waco.

Noah Peniston of Waco, one of a group of about five or six families that he said operate a Davidian publishing house, said the sect also disavows Koresh and his violence.

Koresh was thrown out of a Seventh-day Adventist Church in Tyler in 1981, Ms. Burton said, because of his "other attitudes towards women."

"Whittlin's fun, unless you're the stick."

"It seems everybody wants a piece of you these days. Even the people you'd least expect...like your bank. But at AmWest Savings that's just not so. Take their Freedom Checking℠, for instance. They don't charge for every check you write. There's no monthly service charge. You get a free ATM card with free access at any AmWest ATM location. They even give you free traveler's checks whenever you need 'em. Fact is, you get a whole lot more out of an AmWest Freedom Checking℠ account than you put into it. That's good enough reason for me to put my money on AmWest. How 'bout you?"
