INCORPORATE JUNCTION AND WATCH IT GROW!

The Advantages of Incorporation are Many, And Cannot be Estimated in Dollars and Cents. Think it Over Carefully.

The quesetion of incorporating this town will soon be up for consideration.

Like every question affecting the people there will be a division of opinion. A careful consideration of the subject will, in the judgment of many, result in the endorsement of the project.

Unincorporated, Junction is simply a community—lacking organization, having no more standing than any other unorganized town.

Junction is a growing, prosperous little city, and its people are entitled to every advantage obtainable.

Junction is a going concern with more than one million dollars invested capital. Every citizen has some share in this enterprise. No bank, or other business, would think of doing business without a well thought out plan of existence and operation, with someone in authority, some rules of conduct or by-laws.

Therefore, the people of Junction have decided to ask each voter to join in securing a charter for Junction.

There are but few towns of this size in Texas which are not thus incorporated—probably not more than ten or fifteen all told.

The opposition to incorporation is invariably reduced to only one question, that of taxes.

People seem to overlook the fact that a bonded debt cannot be incurred except by a vote of the people. Therefore if the town was incorporated, before it could issue bonds the voters would have to be consulted and their consent obtained.

Incorporation is the first step in orderly growth. When incorporated, streets may be kept in repair, sidewalks when built will all conform to rules as to width and elevation. All of this can then be worked out in a workable way.

Insurance rates can be reduced by complying with established rules.

What is now everybody's business will, after incorporation, have the attention of the officers elected by the people.

CARD OF THANKS

As it takes the night to bring out the stars, so it takes sorrow such as ours to help us to realize the value of the friendship of our neighbors and friends. And we take this method of thanking all those who were so kind to us in our great sorrow in the death of our darling husband and father.

Words are inadequate to fully express our gratitude, but so far as we are able to convey our thoughts we want you to know that we sincerely appreciate each and every remembrance, whether it was a message of love and sympathy, a gift of beautiful flowers, songs rendered and tributes paid, or the actions of those who came to the residence and worked with tireless patience and industry to lessen our labors and lighten our burdens.

Every act, deed and word of one and all will be gratefully remembered always.

Mrs. Beatrice Wright and Family.

READING PEOPLE BY APPEARANCE OF TOWN

At this season of the year we have with us many people from other cities and towns, drawn by our wonderful climate, rivers and scenery. A number of these people come here year after year to spend their vacations. It should be our business to see that nothing is left undone to make their stay with us as enjoyable and pleasant as is possible.

It has been said the character of a city's people is reflected in the city they builded for themselves.

If our city is marked by cleanliness, order and evidences a desire for constant improvements it will be readily seen that this city is a good investment.

The Eagle stands ready to assist in all efforts toward civic improvement.

Mrs. H. G. Peny has returned to her home in Carrizo Springs and was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. P. A. Hoggett, who will spend a few days before returning home.

LEAGUE BALL PLAYER HERE FOR HEALTH

Mr. Ross Young, formerly with the New York Giants, is at the McWright Camp. Mr. Young is accompanied by his mother whose home is San Antonio. Several months ago Mr. Young caught a severe cold which settled in his kidneys, causing his legs to swell. He had not been able to walk for some time prior to his coming here.

In talking with the Eagle reporter he said that he had only been here a few days but was able to walk around and knew that it was due to the wonderful climate, and that he expected to remain here till he completely regained his health and strength.

This is just another example of the fact that Junction is one of, if not the healthiest place in Texas. We are glad to have Mr. Young and his mother with us and hope he continues to mend in health, so that next year we may see his name listed with the Giants.

HUSBAND OF FORMER JUNCTION GIRL DIES

Word was received in Junction Tuesday that Mr. C. M. Barnes of Anauac, Texas died Monday night from the effects of a sun stroke.

Mr. Barnes was the husband of a former Kimble County girl, Miss Minnie Jetton. He is survived by his wife and four children.

Mrs. Barnes' mother, Mrs. L. H. Jetton, and brother, Clarence, left yesterday for Anauac. Messrs. Boyd and Terry Jetton left Wednesday to attend the funeral which is to be held at Hallettsville, Texas, Thursday, at 3 p. m.

ROCHELLE RECORD

This week we received the first copy of the new Rochelle paper and take this opportunity to congratulate the people of that vicinity as well as the publishers and wish them every success.

We are always glad to see a new newspaper for it bespeaks progressiveness upon the part of any community.

WORKING ROAD FROM NOXVILLE TO SEGOVIA

The Commissioners' Court of Kimble County working through their commissioner, Mr. Henry Bierschwale, is doing approximately two thousand dollars worth of work in the Eastern portion of Kimble County on the highway between Harper and Segovia. This improvement has long been needed by that community and we are glad the present court is assisting them in opening up this road. We are informed that the people of the Noxville community are considering the issuance of bonds for the purpose of the consruction of the road from the eastern border of Kimble County to a point near Segovia. This would open up the highway through a country that has long since needed a road to their county seat and would further be of great economic importance not only to the people of that community but to adjoining communities as well.

COURT YARD BEING PUT IN CONDITION

Mr. Shockley, the yardman for the County, is keeping our courtyard in splendid condition and the commissioners' court has recently requested him to cut the weeds and grass and move the trash from around the courtyard. This last work is indeed commendable as the paper and other trash which has been collecting in the weeds and grass outside the Courtyard has to some degree, destroyed the appearance of our beautiful courtyard.

With this unsightly trash around the courtyard removed, will give visitors a better impression of the town, and also give them an opportunity to see the beautiful grounds inside.

Mr. Shockley has kept the courtyard in excellent condition, and with the supervision of Judge Randolph, has worked wonders with the shrubbery and trees.

ORGANIZED TRAIL AND TRAP ASSOCIATION

Working in collaboration with the officials of the Frisco Railroad, the citizenship of Sutton and Menard Counties have organized the Sonora-Menard Trail and Trap Association.

The purpose of this association is to provide suitable traps where livestock can be watered and fed at a distance of every seven miles between the towns of Sonora and Menard while said livestock are enroute to market.

We know of no good reason why we could not have a similar accomodation for our own livestock industry.

With the advent of motor driven vehicles and the ever increasing traffic over the highways leading to our shipping points, it is becoming a grave problem to get our livestock to market. If suitable holding traps could be obtained between this place and Menard our livestock could get to a shipping point in much better condition than they can be gotten there now, under prevailing conditions.

The Chamber of Commerce is taking this matter up with the officials of the Frisco Railroad and if the stockmen of the county will co-operate with them there is a good probability of being able to obtain the much needed relief in this matter.

R. M. (Bill) Cummins is attending summer school at San Marcos. Bill sent his Dad around to subscribe to the Eagle so as to keep in touch with what his friends are doing in his absence. We have missed Bill for he used to visit us frequently and look over our exchanges. We predict a bright future for him.

STATE BANK WILL BUY HUNDRED DAIRY COWS.

Local Institution Will Assist the Farmer and Ranchman in Diversification and Thereby Creating a Greater Prosperity.

The Junction State Bank of this city has offered to buy and sell on very liberal terms one hundred or more dairy cows.

The bankers of our country are realizing more each day that on the success of the farmer depends the progress of all business. In days gone by a farmer's credit rating was governed by the number of acres he had planted to cotton; the same means was used to figure the rating of the merchant that carried the farmers account, the bank that handled the merchant's account. This same method has been used for years untold. In former days this system was ideal and worked out to the benefit of everyone concerned, but of recent years it has worked a harpship upon everyone from the farmer to the consumer.

There is no set or body of men in the world more interested in the success of the farmer than the banker, for upon the success of the farmer depends his success.

To explain why king cotton has fallen from grace will make a book, however for the past few years the uncertainty of this crop as well as the uncertainty of what the price will be has caused everyone concerned to sit up over night and figure.

At all the meetings of the bankers held for the past year this has been the keynote of all discussion. At each of these meetings resolutions have been passed to encourage the diversified farmer.

The farmers are not responding to this effort as readily as they should.

The bankers all over the State are offering to buy milk cows, hogs, build and equip chick hatcheries, and in fact to finance most any effort being made by the farmers that have a tendency to progress.

They are daily turning a deaf ear to the man who insists on gathering all his chips in one basket.

The progressive farmer has realized long ago that if he made a success of his business, for after all farming is a business with him, he cannot afford to risk his whole year's work on the production of one article, whether it be cotton, corn, wheat or whatnot, but must insure himself against failure by dividing his efforts as well as his field. In other words it is the means of having the payday on the farm at least once a month instead of (maybe) once a year.

Naturally the merchant will be more willing to extend credit and sell at a smaller profit. To the banker it means instead of having to carry a man over from one bad year to another as has been the custom. The farmer and merchant will soon be on a cash basis.

If every farmer and ranchman in Kimble County would take time to discuss this with his merchant and banker it would not be long until every day would be pay day on the farm and ranch.

MAGIC POWER RUNS GREAT TEXAS RANCH

The magic power of electricity now churns the butter, brands the herd, cools the water and does nearly everything else on the 50,000 acre ranch of C. L. Martin near Mason in the Texas hill country.

Martin, who has seen the passage of the days of the mesquite wood fire, cut his great farm in on the power line of the West Texas Utilities Company and then invited an audience of 1,500 to aid him in celebrating the arrival of electricity in the heart of the old wild West.

From now on Martin will employ electricity, the apostle of the 20th century, for every activity which can be carried on without the aid of mechanical contrivances.

Electricity will keep his family cool in summer, it will shear his sheep, run farm machinery, boil his coffee, cook his meals, operate the vacuum cleaner and numerous other devices in his house, keep his ranch foremen in touch with his orders, and in general co-ordinate and dominate every physical activity of the ranch.

"The old order changeth, giving place to the new," and electricity takes its place, even in the wild West.

Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Cox of Clarendon are spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Hal Holland.

Mr. Bunger of the Bunger Motor Co., Kerrville, is in the city for a few days. Mr. Bunger is a practical fisherman, so naturally he comes to Junction occasionally to try his luck.

CARD OF THANKS

Language does not adequately express the sentiments of the human heart. We cannot speak our deep emotions, neither can we write them on paper. Feeble as it is, it is the best method we have of expressnig our gratitude to the multitude of friends who have been so thoughtful, kind and considerate in our time of deepest sorrow.

We wish it were possible to tell each and every one who gave assistance and consolation, just how much we do appreciate it. We cannot, however, and the most we can say is to offer our heartfelt thanks to each and every one of you.

The messages of love and sympathy, the beautiful flowers, the words of consolation, the tributes of praise for our beloved husband and father, the assistance of every one during his last illness—all of these will be forever remembered by us with grateful hearts.

Sincerely yours,
Mrs. Lula Beasley and Family.

O. E. S. HAS BARBECUE AT ROOSEVELT

(Delayed from last week)

Saturday afternoon the Roosevelt Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, installed the officers for the ensuing year with Mrs. A. L. Mudge as installing officer. Mrs. Hal Holland, past Matron, presented the retiring Matron, Mrs. Eva Ragsdill, with the past Matron's pin and Mr. Hal Holland, Past Patron, with a Masonic emblem, in behalf of the Chapter.

At the close of the meeting barbecue, bread, pickles, cake and iced tea brought the afternoon to a pleasant close.

Clean Teeth

The doctors and dentists will pull your teeth, if you don't watch out! They say that focal infections will ruin the health, which means that an abcessed tooth may send its poison into the blood and joints and cause the latter to get stiff and lame. Or bad digestion and poor health may come from bad teeth.

In the book of Job there is a line which says: "I escaped with the skin of my teeth." It isn't generally supposed nowadays, that the teeth have skin—however the care of them is very important. The cleaning of teeth is an age-old practice, although the methods have varied in different parts of the world at different times.

The first tooth brush used by the ancients was the "chew stick," a twig about the size of a carpenter's pencil, with one end beaten to a soft fibrous condition. This "chew stick" not only cleaned the teeth but also gave the gums a general and beneficial massage. Primitive people in some parts of the world still use this type of tooth brush.

An old time implement to keep the teeth clean was a strip of linen cloth. Tooth powder came into use in the seventeenth century. A burnt cork preparation became popular because the black charred cork whitened the teeth.

Modern bristle brushes are practically always made of hog bristles, the first grades of which come from the cold, bleak region of Russia, Siberia and China, where half-wild hogs are abundant. Apparently the thinner the hog, the longer and stiffer are the bristles.

The best type of tooth brush handles are made of pyralin, which lends itself admirably to the uses of tooth brush manufacturers, because it is hard, waterproof, flexible and thoroughly sanitary. Hundreds of thousands of pyralin tooth brush handles are in daily use and they have taken the place of the old form of beef bone and other animal substance.

HOME TOWN THOUGHTS

A newsboy has to call out his papers to sell them on the street, and a merchant also needs to call out his goods by advertising to sell them in a store.

The people who spend money needlessly away from home, should not complain if their home town fails to advance as they would like to see it.

Good sidewalks in a town are an important factor in helping that community to march along the road to progress.

RUNNING WATER IN THE FARM HOME

"With the rural women of America saying they had rather have running water than any of the other farm home utilities in their homes, this is one of the first places that a farmer should invest his money, it seems to me," Professor D. Scoates, head of the agricultural engineering department, A. & M. College, said in a recent discussion of the home water supply.

"A very complete system of running water, including a bathroom and sewage system, does not cost considerable. But even one of the most expensive systems that could be installed in a farm home would not cost as much as a good automobile."

Running water in a home can be put in on the installment plan if that is necessary, Prof. Scoates said. He explained that he meant not necessarily buying the equipment on the installment plan but rather buying outright certain parts of the equipment and installling it and later buying additional parts for installation. "A carefully planned outfit can thus be installed without it costing any more than doing all the work at once. This, of course, will call for careful planning and seeing that none of the parts must be torn out when new parts are put in."

The first thing to be installed should be the kitchen sink, this to be connected with outside drain so the waste water poured into it may run off. A very satisfactory sink for the kitchen may be purchased at a moderate price and this should be connected with the proper fittings, including goose-neck trap to prevent foreign materials from getting into the drainage line and stopping it up. The water from the kitchen sink should be conducted away from the house through tile, a satisfactory outlet being provided so it may drain away freely and not become stagnant to breed mosquitos and become unsanitary.

Bringing the water from the source of supply to the kitchen is a procedure that depends upon the type of supply used. If there is an elevated cistern, gravity may be used. If the cistern is too low for gravity, a small pitcher pump will pull the water to the kitchen sink. If the source of supply is a deep well, pump at the well will be necessary. In case funds are not sufficient to permit installing large overhead tank, an ordinary barrel tank erected over the kitchen will suffice, but this should have an overflow pipe to tell when the barrel is full.

"With such a start, a system can be built up from time to time until a very fine sysem of running water in the house has been provided."

Synthetic Women

It is a world to see how commonly we are blinded with the collusions of women, and more enticed by their ornaments being artificial than their proportion being natural. I loathe almost to think on their ointments and apothecary drugs, the sleeking of their faces and all their slibber sauces, which bring quasiness to the stomach and disgust to the mind.—John Lyly.

Liking Nature

There appears to be no end to my liking for nature; whether a tree is so leafy that it reduces the whole heavens to a few blue eyes, or whether the twigs are as thin and bare as the birds' legs that use them—it is all the same to me.—W. H. Davies, In Later Days.

TEACH 'EM TO SWIM

Every boy and girl should be taught how to swim. It is an essential part of education. Those who live in towns where there are no swimming places are in the most danger, because they are sure sometime to go to summer resorts by lakes or rivers or the ocean, and there they will try the various water sports, with serious danger in many cases.

It is a very simple thing for children to learn this art, and swimming is one of the most healthful of the outdoor sports. Many colleges now require ability to swim as an essential before graduation.

The children who go off by themselves to swim in places where there is no supervision by older people are in serious danger, and a great number of accidents occur each year from this habit. But ability to swim does not mean that people can disregard caution. Those who go far out in deep water take some chances, particularly when they go alone.

CHILDREN AND THE HOMES

Secretary Hoover, in a preface to the guide book of the Better Homes in America campaign, remarked that children should receive practical training in the problems of home making. In these days when the children have to be amused so much of the time, and when many of them are irresponsible, it may not seem wholly easy to accomplish this result.

It is a wonderful thing when the children can be interested to help in keeping up a home place. Every child whose home has room for even a tiny garden or back yard, should have a few flowers and vegetables of his own, for which he becomes responsible. If he is rewarded for successful handling of them, he should learn to feel satisfaction in doing something for the home which has done so much for him.

ELECTRIC POWER FOR HOME USE

"The application of electrical power to home use has received enormous expansion," said Secretary Herbert Hoover in the annual report of the Department of Commerce made recently. "The number of homes served has increased in six years from 5,700,000 to over 15,000,000. The number of farms served is expanding rapidly, and in some states, such as California, farm electrification far exceeds that in any other locality in the world.

"This transformation, it may be said at once, has increased the productivity of our workmen beyond those of any other country; it contributes to our maintenance of high real wages and to the reduction of human sweat; it relieves the home maker of many irksome tasks and adds immeasurably to home comforts."

KERRVILLE PREPARING FOR SHEEP AND GOAT CONVENTION

The writer had occasion to visit Kerrville the first of this week and found it busy as a bee hive preparing for the sheep and goat raisers' convention, which is to be held in that city July 19, 20 and 21.

Mr. Charles Mason, president of their Chamber of Commerce, says that preparations are being made to make this the most successful as well as entertaining convention ever held in Kerrville, and to this end they are sparing no expense.

STOCK RAISERS OPEN ATTACK ON WOLF PACKS

The mournful howls of the wolf packs, which have struck terror in the hearts of many a cattle and sheep raiser in the Big Bend country of Texas, soon may be stilled.

A wholesale wolf extermination campaign now is under way in the highland country of Texas, and since its inauguration more than 2,000 wolves have been poisoned or shot. State and federal wolf hunters are rapidly clearing the country of these destructive enemies of the stockman with traps and poisoned baits.

The wolves range in size from the small gray coyote to the huge golden black Texas lobo, which attains an enormous size, some specimens weighing 200 pounds. "Old Blackie," huge she-wolf which eluded capture for ten years and did damage estimated in excess of $30,000 to the live stock men of the section, recently fell a vistim of the trapper. The huge wolf, coal black in color, with whitish green eyes, was caught by a section, recently fell a victim of her cubs and used it as a trapper who first captured one steel trap. She was taken alive, and several of the larger zoos of the country are seeking to get her as a specimen.

Baits composed of poison enclosed between two pads of pork hvae been distributed throughout Brewtser and Presidio counties by the hundreds of thousands.

In the last few years the Texas highlands have yielded to civilization of a sort, and pure bred live stock is being raised here. The Highland Hereford bait to lure the dam into his Raisers' association, the Highland Sheep Raisers' association and the Highland Poultry association have developed into active and constructive organizations. Where a few years ago sheep were unknown, cattle were numbered by the score and poultry was known only by pictures, there are now hundreds of thousands of sheep, herds of cattle that recall memories of the Old West, and the poultry industry has assumed proportions undreamed of by the West Texans.

NOTICE

It appearing to the Court that certain livestock have been, at various times, staked on the Public Highways, streets, alleys and public grounds of the town of Junction, and it appearing that the staking of such livestock on the streets, etc., as above mentioned, is in violation of the stock law of the said town of Junction;

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED BY THE COURT, That all parties be and they are hereby prohibited from staking any livestock, such as cows, etc., on the public highways, streets, alleys and all public grounds in the town of Junction, Kimble County, Texas, and the Sheriff's Department is hereby instructed to see that this order is enforced. The Clerk of the County Court is hereby instructed to cause a notice of this order to be published in the Junction Eagle for two consecutive issues of said paper.

The above is a true, full and correct copy of an order passed at the regular term of Commssioner's Court, held at Junction, Texas, June 13th, 1927, as appears of record in the Minutes of said Court, and this notice is given in pursuance of said order.

Witness my hand and seal of office, this the 13th day of June, A. D. 1927.

ICE

lessens the risk of Baby's Second Summer

MORE intelligent use of ice has done more than any other one thing to reduce infant mortality during the dangerous summer months.

The fateful second summer is no longer the worry to mothers that it once was. They have learned that the simple precaution of protecting Baby's food with steady and plentiful use of ice is "the ounce of prevention."

Milk must be kept ice-cold all of the time, not part of the time. That prevents bacteria from developing and making the milk unfit for Baby's use.

For a few cents a day you can keep Baby's milk constantly fresh and pure with ice. Remember also that a nickel's worth of ice will save a dollar's worth of food, for the whole family.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF GREAT WEALTH

Speaking in the world's greatest center of wealth, Rev. Dr. Simons, pastor of All Souls Unitarian church of New York, told his audience that men who amass great fortunes and show no sense of social responsibility have not played fair. Many of these men would probably say that they made their money by their own effort and ability, and are entitled to use it as they see fit.

Dr. Simons, however, remarks that no man gets rich alone, for his wealth is a social product. He pointed out how much of their wealth depends upon the conditions surrounding them. Also much of it is due to the co-operation of their associates and workpeople.

The people who are successful in business get the benefit of the favorable conditions produced by American education and intelligence. Hence when people acquire wealth, it seems fitting that they should return some portion of that wealth to the community as a recognition of the benefits and co-operation they have received.

Public sentiment does not approve of the man who uses wealth solely for his own pleasure. A man would be likely to make more money, if he would show a spirit of generosity to the community. This course makes it easier for him to get generous co-operation from his workpeople and the public.

If wealthy people take their savings and invest them in their own business so as to employ more labor, they of course confer a benefit on the people. And yet so much money is needed to promote various activities for the benefit of the community, that the wealthy people who contribute generously to such enterprises are greatly admired and are amply rewarded. When they also return some share of their property to the community causes through legacies contained in their wills, their memory forever cherished for nobility of character.

Texas Building Increases

According to the monthly building review of the F.-W. Dodge corporation, building and engineering contracts in Texas during May amounted to $21,586,900, an increase of 5 per cent over April. The interesting part of this report is that of this sum for building, 35 per cent was for residences, 28 per cent for public utilities, 16 per cent for commercial buildings and 9 per cent for inductrial projects. While the amount contracted for industrial enterprises was slightly in excess of the general average of the country, it was much below the expected in the state that it is on the era of an industrial awakening. Texas is just now in need of a concerted drive for small industrial enterprises. A state-wide survey to show just the kind of enterprises that should be made profitable in the various sections of the State should be helpful in stimulating industrial projects.

Farms Over-Taxed

That farms of the country are greatly overtaxed is shown by a recent report of the National Industrial Board. During the past three years, says this report, agriculture paid 33.1 per cent of its net profits in taxes, or about three times the proportion paid in the pre-war years of 1912, 1913 and 1914. That farming has been burdened by excessive taxation is reflected in the fact, quoting the report, "that in 1920-21 taxes collected from farms amounted to nearly six times the total net profits from all farms. In 1921-22 there was considerable improvement in the agricultural situation generally, but taxes still absorbed 77.7 per cent of the net profits. Since then the burden has grown lighter from year to year until in 1925-26 only 30.4 per cent of the total agricultural net profits had to be paid out in taxes." There is little wonder, under these conditions, that farmers are complaining.

Gas Utilities Enlarging

The Lone Star Gas Corporation has purchased the gas properties owned by the Texas Company in Central West Texas and is extending its service so that each community will have plenty of gas for industrial purposes as well as for home consumption. The cities and towns of Abilene, Moran, Clyde, Baird, Putnam, Cisco, Eastland, Sedgwick and Crystal Falls are on the system of more than 250 miles. It is only a matter of a year or two until practically every progressive Texas community will be using Texas natural gas if the rates are kept reasonable for the service.

Panhandle Wheat Harvest

The Wheat harvest of the Pandandle is well under way. The crop is light, ranging from ten to twenty-five bushels to the acre, due to the prolonged drouth in that section. It is selling around $1.35 a bushel. The oats crop of Central Texas is about harvested and is being marketed at from 45 to 50 cents. In most sections good rains have fallen in time for planting a forage crop and cotton is growing off nicely. Those farmers who are practicing general diversification and tryng to make the farms produce most of the things on which their owners live, are not quickly discouraged over any one short crop.

Pellagra and Food

Dr. Joseph Goldberger, a pellegra authority in charge of field nutrition of the U. S. Public Health Service, stated in Dallas last week that absence of gardens, milk cows, fruits, and in many instances meats, on the farms of Texas is responsible for an unusual amount of pellagra in farm communities. There were 735 deaths out of a total of about 15,000 cases last season. The vitamines present in milk, butter, vegetables, serials and fruits, all of which can be produced on Texas farms in abundance, are essential to health, a clinching argument for "living at home."

Bus and Truck Regulation

Beginning June 15, the Texas Railroad Commission took over the control and regulation of Texas bus and motor truck lines. While it is announced that for the present existing lines and rates will not be interfered with, there exists a general fear that the new law will practically remove competition between bus and railway lines at the expense of the people who pay the bills. Let it be hoped that transportation and traffic costs may not increase.

Enterprising Texas Town

Slaton, through its Chamber of Commerce, wired Lindbergh on his arrival at Washington asking him to visit the town, but as yet the invitation has not been accepted. We would be willing to wager that this was inspired by Slaton's enterprising newspaper and that if it should be accepted, Lindbergh would be given an opportunity to do some flying stunts at Slaton's county fair.

Lindbergh's Telegrams

The enterprising telegraph companies profited by Lindbergh's achievement. They urged members of civic clubs, chambers of Commerce, organizations and individuals to wire him congratulations on his arrival in this country. The result was the reception of 52,000 telgrams, requiring the services of 12 messenger boys for their delivery, some of the messages being signed by thousands of people. Texans contributed their quota.

Watermelon Crop

Drouth and hot winds have cut short the melon crop in South Texas. The Missouri Pacific lines say they will handle only about 1,500 cars out of the section south of San Antonio, or about half the number expected. These melons are grown around Poteet, Pleasanton, Pearsall, Dilley and the Artesia Wells districts. In other parts of the State where watermelons are grown extensively the crops are reported good, and better prices are expected.

New Fruit Region

A company is opening a new fruit district in the Donna section, the first plantings being 7,500 citrus trees, 4,500 grape vines, 1,000 fig trees and 1,500 currant bushes. The soil has been studied scientifically and is well adapted to the various fruits. Texas will soon be rivaling all other countries in fruit production.

Newspaper Men's Paradise

The Kerrville Sun has made it possible for newspaper men of Texas to have a delightful vacation in the Hill country near Kerrville without the expense of hotel bills. That enterprising paper has erected a cottage on the Guadalupe river and has invited newspaper folks to come and stay in it without charge. The climate and scenery are wonderful, but not more so than the generosity and thoughtfulness of Salter Brothers, owners of the Kerrville Sun.

THE WIDE AWAKE TOWN

A bright and progressive town expresses its alertness and enterprise in many ways, particularly by the spirit of enterprise in business, by displaying clean and modern looking stores and well kept business buildings.

But it takes money thus to keep a town looking up to date. If the large part of the people of that town are spending a good deal of their money elsewhere, there is a lack of income and business sufficient to keep a town up with the times. The result is to discourage business men from making the improvements that they desire. If you want Junction to have this bright and progressve appearance, spend your money at home.

SEEK TO ELIMINATE HARMFUL CATTLE GRUB

Washington, June 7.—Experiments in elimination of the cattle grub, a parasite that is causing loss to the live stock and leather industry amounting to millions of dollars annually, is being urged in connection with an expansion of the fundamental research work of the United States Department of Agriculture. President Coolidge was asked Monday to recommend an enlargement of the department's appropriation for next year, to the end that a section of the country may be adopted for carrying on experiments.

Estimates of the department show that the loss due to the cattle grub ranges between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 a year. Fully half of the domestic herds are affected by grub, which causes damage in the form of small roles to the 1,000,000 hides on the annual market. The parasite causes a waste of more than 25,000,000 pounds of leather each year, all of which is a loss to the live stock industry. Other than this, the grub acts as an irritant that dimishes the meat supply and, in the case of dairy cattle, the flow of milk. Experts of the Department of Agriculture have been studying the problem for some years and it is believed effective remedies have been found.

At the close of the afternoon fruit salad in aspic, potato chips, wafers, olives, iced tea plain cake and brick ice cream were served. The plate favors were funny little ladies sporting feather fans.

The out of town guests were Mrs. Gordon Stewart of Sonora and Miss Fae Taylor of Mertzon

LOOT!

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

From Piracy to Poverty

AFTER Captain Avery had captured the Great Mogul's ship, the Gunsway, with its rich cargo, the news of his exploit was not long in reaching England and almost overnight he became something of a national hero. Perhaps it is not to be wondered at that the English should fail to feel pained because a Moslem ship had been his victim but it is curious that Avery's raids on English shipping should be forgotten so soon. At any rate, the most extravagant stories were spread about. One was that Avery had taken the Mogul's daughter with him to Madagascar where he had married her and was living in royal state, the father of several little princes and princesses!

It is true that Avery sailed for Madagascar, and one incident of the voyage showed that he lacked even the proverbial "honor among thieves," which the usual pirate leader possessed. He had called the captains of the other vessels in the pirate fleet aboard his ship and explained to them that for safety's sake it were better to have all the booty placed upon his ship. They agreed to this. Then Avery altered his course, slipped away in the night and his too-trusting confederates never saw him again. He immediately sailed to the West Indies and, upon his arrival at New Providence in the Bahamas, bribed the governor with 20 pieces of eight and two of gold to get him a pardon.

It was impossible for Avery to sell his plunder—including many diamonds and other gems—without being questioned, so he prepared to return to Europe. In the north of Ireland he disposed of his ship where the crew dispersed and Avery went to Dublin. But here, too, he found it difficult to dispose of his jewels, so he decided to try his luck in England. He settled at Bideford under an assumed name and through a friend opened negotiations with merchants in Bristol.

Some of these merchants came to see him, took some of the diamonds and a few gold cups and returned to Bristol to dispose of them. At first they sent him a small amount of money, promising to pay him in full when the goods were sold. Avery waited in vain for full payment. Then it began to dawn upon him that there were others besides himself who knew the fine art of "double-crossing." He began writing pleading letters to the merchants and from time to time they sent him a few shillings—hardly enough to provide him with food and lodging. Finally he fell ill and died. Of all the vast fortune he had once had, there was not enough to buy him a coffin in which to be buried. During all the time he was living in extreme poverty in the little cottage in Bideford the stories of the "Grand Pirate" who was reigning as a king in Madagascar were being told and retold all over Europe. So it was proved again that "Piracy does not pay."

Monday Junction was visited by a much needed rain. From all reports the rain was general throughout the entire west and southwestern portion of the State, assuring a good corn crop in the farming districts, especially so in the Panhandle.

ENTERTAINS

Last Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Frank Patterson entertained with a bridge.

After a number of interesting games table prizes, boxes of dusting powder, were awarded to Mesdames H. O. Patterson, Dorothy Westmoreland and Miss Fay Taylor.

Iced fruit punch and pineapple delight with Shasta daisy plate favors were served to Mesdames C. R. Stevenson, U. D. Kindrick, Pierce Hoggett, Ellis Brown, Lester Hodges, H. O. Patterson, Dorothy Westmoreland, Nancy Vaughan and Leon Durst of Kansas City, Miss Hazel Taylor of Mertzon and Miss Fae Taylor.

ELECTRIFICATION AND THE FARM LOAD

An English economist has declared that if electric power were utilized to its full capacity 10 per cent of the population would be sufficient to produce the crops of the country. That electrification of the farm has not been used to anywhere near its capacity has supplied the rural problem of the serving industry. The difficulty all along has not been to bring the farmer to electricity, but to bring electricity to the farmer at a rate he could afford to pay.

"PROFITS IN POULTRY"

A few years ago the raising of poultry on a commercial basis was looked upon by a great many of our citizens as they look on wood hauling as a profession. Oh, it is well enough if the old woman wants to raise a few for home consumption. But my time is too valuable in the field to devote any of it to such a trivial project. Could be heard by almost any head of a family. Conditions have changed. The Old Woman, who so busily engaged herseif in the raising of chickens and turkeys had to come to the old man's assistance when the note came due to pay off the loan that he had borrowed to hold his cotton or to pay his interest to the Federal Land Bank. It reminded me of a stop, look and listen signal to see these men stand in wide eyed astonishment and wonder how it all happened that the old woman could have made more from her poultry than he could with his 50 acres of cotton. But, finally he had to admit that it was a fact. It was indeed humiliating for him to have to admit this and at first he wouldn't tell anyone but just a few of his closest friends. Then, his friend admitted that the same thing had happened at his own home, that his wife had payed off the mortgage on their place by raising and selling poultry and eggs. At last, the news became spread over the country in general. The old man began to help the old woman a little on the side being always cautious to not let anyone catch him helping her rustle the turkeys or in any way working with them. In fact, he really wanted to be a partner with her when the time came to cash in on the earnings. Time came and went. Some few of the men began to get bold enough to want to get in on the ground floor with the old woman, especially on sales day, and at last this hypocritical, superstitious idea that was so prevalent among the men folks disappeared and now the most of them are trying to claim the renown, honor and distinction from their wives, of being the Chief Poultry raiser around about the place. And, the old woman is good enough to let them in on it. Claim all the honor of being big chief. But really she is too big hearted and generous. She should probably tell them to take a back seat.

The question is often asked yet in many places, "What breed of poultry must I select?" There is no one breed that is so much better than another. Of course in selecting a milch cow you would not select a Hereford. If selecting a race horse you would not select a Clydesdale because these are the beef type and draft type of animals. If raising chickens for the market the Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red and Black Minorca seem to be well adapted to this section of country. They are popular breeds because they are a dual purpose chicken; they lay very well if given any attention the year around and weigh very well when put on the market. While, if selecting a breed of chickens to produce the most eggs, one of the light types would be preferable. The Leghorns and Anconas are the most popular of the egg type of chickens. A white Leghorn hen has the world's record for egg production; the hen produced 361 eggs in one year's time. These two breeds of chickens are egg type as the Jersey and Holstein are the milk type of cows.

Raising chickens for the market does not seem to pay such large dividends as raising poultry for the eggs. In fact it seems as if there is twice the money in raising chickens for the eggs than in raising chickens for the market. Eggs are a commodity that will sell for cash the year around. The cause for the present low prices of Texas eggs is the quality rather than the quantity. Nice, fresh, clean, infertile eggs will bring a premium price anywhere on the market.

When people bring a low grade of cotton to town they expect a low price, and when they bring a low grade of eggs to the market they can expect the same thing.

People will gather eggs in and crate them of all sizes, ages, sorts and descriptions. But if they were buying them the first thing that would be asked, "are they fresh?"

There is money in poultry. A hen will pay more interest on the amount of money invested than any other thing. People do not think anything about paying from seven to ten dollars for a goat or sheep and if they make 75 to 100 per cent profit in a year's time, they consider they have done fine; while one dollar or one dollar and a half invested in a hen will make three hundred per cent profit in one year's time.

One thousand hens properly housed and attended to will clear the owner over and above expenses $3,000 a year. Of course if everybody quit all their crops and went into the poultry business this could not be done. But according to statistics there are 20,000 farms in the South that do not have a chicken on them, and when we reach the standard quality, our eggs will be open to Eastern markets and will command a price that will be fair to the producers.

In next week's issue I will write some more on this subject.

I. W. Ellis is in Brownwood for treatment. We hope he is doing better by now.

Uncle Harve Jackson left for Brady Sanitarium the first of the week to undergo an operation.

This county was visited by another good rain this week. Crops are in excellent condition. The farmers who have planted broom corn seem to be fortunate as the crop is splendid and the price was never bettter.

W. D. Stewart has been real sick this week but he is doing nicely now.

Mrs. G. T. May has returned from Yoakum where she has been to attend the graduation of her niece, Selma Hensley. Selma is now a trained nurse and has her a position as head nurse of the Yoakum Hospital.

NOXVILLE NOTES

(Crowded out last week)

Our vicinity was the recipient of another haif-inch rain last night which will serve to keep ranges in the splendid condition it has been in this whole year.

Mrs. A. T. Whetstone returned Tuesday from San Antonio where she had spent a week with her daughter, Miss Alma, who is attending Draughon's Busineess College there.

The Methodist revival commenced here Friday night; Rev. Perry Black of Oregon is doing the preaching. Rev. Smith, pastor of Harper Methodist church, is conducting the song service. Rev. Black is a man of deep consecratoin, a convincing speaker and has traveled extensively in the interest of religious work. He preached three interesting sermons Sunday to large and attentive audiences. Let's all give our best efforts to make this meeting a success.

Rev. William Bierschwale was a pleasant visitor at church services Sunday.

Work has begun on a portion of our road between here and Harper. Let us keep this good work going until we get this Old Cow Trail converted into a highway. Of course, the first move for us to make is to get the gates down and the road laned then take whatever steps are advisable to get a highway. Our money has been expended to help build roads in other precincts and we rejoiced with them when they got those long-needed roads. Now we are confident that they are willing to help us build a road if only given an opportunity. Getting this Austin-Junction highway is of vital interest to every Kimble County cisizen. Let's go after it!

Miss Olivia Moore, who is attending Draughon's Business College at San Antonio, is home on a two-week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Moore.

Mrs. Paul Jones has gone on a several week's visit with her sister, Mrs. Willie Pape, who lives on a ranch near Doss.

A. T. Whetstone received a hundred ewes Sunday which he purchased at Harper.

Miss Edna B. Taylor of Harper spent the week-end at the Coffey ranch.

The demand for mutton goats and sheep has been strong the past week, several buyers having been in the neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Whetstone and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whetstone were week-end visitors on the Cobb ranch.

Jack Collins, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Dillard Stapp, happened to an accident Wednesday in which he sustained very painful injuries. His father, with a number of others, was helping repair the arbor for the revival meeting. They were burning the old trash when in an unguarded moment the little fellow walked thru a pile of hot embers. He was rushed to Harper to Dr. Birt, who gave first aid and since been taken to Kerrville several times and is reported to be on the road to recovery at the present writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edgar of San Antonio are visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Moore this week.

Miss Cook, who is a student at Westmoreland College at San Antonio returned to her home last Tuesday after a two week's visit with Miss Irene Whitworth at her ranch home.

Mrs. W. W. Parker has been on the sick list the past few weeks. Her many friends are rejoicing over her recovery.

Mr. Norwood, who represents the Southland Life Insurance Company, with headquarters at San Antonio, was a Noxville visitor last week.

Mrs. Maggie Jobes of Junction is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Walter Parker.

More and Better Poultry

Texas needs more and better poultry, for these thrifty little citizens of the farmyard are factors in wealth that no farmer can afford to overlook.

A flock of pure-bred chickens on the farm will help materially in providing a sure living at home.

Let's have more and better chickens on the farms and in the back yards of this section.
