KOREANS START FIRES

Screeches of Those Burning Mingled With Thunderous Explosions

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The appalling nature of the Japanese earthquake, fire, and tidal waves, with the greatest loss of life and property of any similar catastrophe in modern times, continues to be told by meagre and unconnected press dispatches and private messages from foreign residents and tourists who survived the holocaust. But Europe still awaits the graphic story of how the earth shook to pieces and then consumed in flames Japan's capital and scores of towns around Tokio bay, including the great commercial port of Yokohama.

The loss of life is estimated at such staying figures, in some cases running into hundreds of thousands, that any certainty of the casualties is impossible, while communication with the devastated districts remain as it is.

70 Foreigners Dead.

On the whole, the news received today is of a more hopeful nature than any since the disaster, one authoritative message from a British naval official at Yokohama placing the deaths of foreigners at 70. Even this number of dead, which is small as compared with first reports, is large for a foreign colony of a few thousands and indicates that the loss of life among the native population may reach the highest reported figures.

The only official estimate is based on home office information from Tokio, that the loss of life there was 30,000, but Yokohama is known to have suffered much more severly than did the capital city, and the home office figures do not attempt to take into consideration the 100 miles of coast line towns and villages, after all in the path of the tidal wave.

All available information shows that Tokio and Yokohama were not

UNTOLD WEALTH IN RADIUM IS FOUND

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Discovery in Ferghana of what is reported as probably the world's largest deposit of radium, announced in Petrograd today by the Radium institute will prove a "tremendous advantage to science and a boon to the masses," it was declared at the New York Radium Institute today.

Belief was expressed that the price of radium as a result of this discovery might be brought to the point where it could be put into every hospital in the land and made available to the masses, whereas both scarcity and price make it prohibitive now. More than 30 states, it was said, have no supply of radium.

JAPANESE EMPEROR THANKS COOLIDGE

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—The message from Emperor Yoshihito of Japan, replying to President Coolidge's cablegram of sympathy was received today at the White House:

"Deeply touched by your profoundest sympathy and kindest offer in our appaling calamity. I beg you to accept my heartfelt gratitude to you and the American people."

Jellybean-Cop Fray Staged In Early Morning

White trousers and cottoleed hair mixed with blue coats and police billies when two "jellybeans" mixed it at Arthur's white kitchen about 2 o'clock this morning and police tried to interfere.

The row started in the back of the cafe and one of the white trousered combatants ran outside. In hot pursuit came the one who had received the lick that caused the trouble. Three city policemen were outside. The cops took out after the fighters. Other white trousers and flappers in evening dresses joined in the chase.

The police arrived at the front of the Merion hotel and caught one of the toreadors. The whole tribe of Wichita Falls most young gentry took sides for their fellow "beans" and the cops had a mob of raving young aristocrats surrounding them. "You can't take me to jail. You are not man enough. I am too well known here. All three of you pile on but I am not going to no man's city hall" the toreador said as his cottoleed hair got in his eyes and he kicked the cops' shin.

The rest of the tribe surounded the cops. Big ones and little ones, about 20 in all. From highpowered touring cars the flappers waved encouragements to the knights erants. The cops decided it wasn't worth the effort and turned the combatant lose. His friends put him in a car but not until he received the glories of a hero from his fellow "beans" and the flappers. He also took time to take a parting verbal shot at the cops, triumphant. No casualties.

COAL STRIKE IS NEAR AN END NOW THE BELIEF

All Principal Barriers Are Set Aside Announces Pinchot

UNIONS WIN POINTS

Few Unsettled Points Can Be Easily Handled, Says Governor

By The Associated Press.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 6.—All of the principal barriers to a settlement of the controversy which has shut down the anthracite mines have been set aside by agreement between the miners and operators, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania announced tonight, with the exception of the union demand for increase in pay greater than 10 per cent for day workers in the field and the further union demand for the "check-off" system for collecting union dues.

John L. Lewis, president of the miners' union, called tonight a formal meeting of the union's scale committee to be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow, to pass judgment on the situation. Both union officials and representatives of the mine operators agreed to meet Governor Pinchot again at 3 p. m. tomorrow for further negotiation.

Governor Pinchot's protracted attempt to bring operators and miners to an agreement upon the four points which he tendered as a basis of settlement of the difficulties, had been successful in part, he announced at the conclusion of executive sessions with them today. He gave out a summary of the situation, upon which Mr. Lewis would make no comment, but which S. D. Warriner, chairman of the operators' policy committee declared to be acceptable.

In it the operators were represented to have left out all of the demand for arbitration of wage scales.

The union leaders and the operators' group, the governor said, had agreed upon definitions for the various terms. The governor's original settlement proposal, he pointed out, had involved granting of the 8-hour day, full recognition of the union by the operators, a uniform increase of 10 per cent for all employes and the recognition of collective bargaining in the industry. It had been agreed that in establishing the 8-hour day that men whose working hours should be reduced would be given increases identical to those agreed upon for maintenance men who are being kept at work during the suspension of mining. It was further agreed, his statement continued that the anthracite conciliation board should make a study of wage rates, and recommend adjustments to the next joint conference between the union leaders and the operators' committee.

The operators' group were indicated to have accepted completely the governor's settlement proposal, having withdrawn the proviso that the wage increase be hinged upon an agreement by the union to submit the question of its modification to arbitration after one year. The union stand was practically unchanged, since Mr. Lewis and his assistants have sought increases estimated to range from 75 to 90 cents per day for the 100,000 workers employed on a day basis in the anthracite operations. The governor's ten per cent increase suggestion would give these men from 42 to 60 cents.

The union has likewise tentatively tended an agreement to limit the application of the "check-off" which is a system by which employers would be

BARS PART MOTHER AND BABE But Stern Law Deaf To Woman's Plea

A mother's love rings true when the child is behind prison bars.

This has proved true thousands of times.

Inversely that same mother love does not change when it is the mother who is in a cell instead of the child.

At the courthouse Thursday morning, the strange sight of a mother having to go to jail and her child remain outside was seen by a number of persons in the lobby.

A young mother who had been arrested by the police department in breaking up a neighborhood row Wednesday night. When the city officers heard the charges from the neighbors they were compelled to detain the woman. She said "I must take my baby wherever I go." The police officers listened to the woman's sobs and allowed her to take the chubby baby boy to the detention room.

The little fellow went into the dark room with its mother, laughing and enjoying the strange experience. When the lights were turned out the baby snuggled up to its mother in the dark room and never minded the pitchy darkness nor the lonesomeness of the narrow confines.

Thursday morning the woman was transferred to the county jail. Arriving at the courthouse lobby, officers told her the child could not go to jail with her. "But you won't take my baby from me," she cried hysterically as she kissed the little one and drew it closer to her. The officers told her a state law would not allow a mother to take her child to jail. "I don't care what you do to me but don't take my baby," the mother kept saying.

A crowd of men and women gathered around the officers and the mother. The pleas of the mother caused strong men to swallow hard and turn their backs to hide their emotions.

"Officer can't you let the woman have the child?" one of the men pleaded. One mother who witnessed the separation began crying and pleading for the other mother who was about to have her child taken away from her.

But the law had to be obeyed. The child was taken from her and turned over to a welfare society. The mother was taken up the four flights of stairs to the women's jail at the courthouse. She was seen taking a last look at her baby as she, between two officers rounded the first flight of stairs. Another step and around the corner as she lost sight of her baby, the mother broke down in tears and went to her cell alone to await further action of the law.

Nab Alleged Bank Wrecker At Houston

BOSTON, Sept. 6.—Joseph B. Marcino, brought here today from Houston today, to face trial on the charge of wrecking the First National bank in Warren last February admitted that he took $213,000 in securities from the bank, according to Assistant United States Attorney John V. Sullivan. Marcino declared he knew where the bonds are, and hoped that the bank would recover every dollar, Sullivan said.

Marcino explained his action, Sullivan said, by claiming that when he took the securities he "was pressed in his business ventures and for the time being had lost the use of his reason."

"I fully intended to replace the bonds," Marcino was quoted as saying, "and my only desire now is to aid in their recovery."

Marcino was brought here from Texas, where he was arrested after his expulsion from Mexico, by U. S. Marshal Ralph Harvin of Texas and Deputy Marshal E. Hutchins. He was arraigned before Judge Lowell in the federal district court late in the day on an indictment charging him with aiding an abetting Frank L. Taylor, former president of the bank in misappropriating the bank's securities. He pleaded not guilty, and after some argument among counsel was held in $25,000 bail. He was held in jail tonight as the bail has not been provided. Attorney Sullivan asked that bond fixed at $100,000, but counsel for Marcino argued that his client had surrendered voluntarily to the Mexican government and that the smaller sums was ample.

Originally there were two indictments against Marcino, the other charging that he had aided and abetted Taylor in embezzling the bank's securities. It was announced that this indictment had been dropped.

It has been rumored that the league will refuse to act because the Greek revolutionary government has not been recognized by the league or the countries belonging to it.

EXPECT COTTON CROP INCREASE

Recent Rains Make Farmers Hopeful of Better Condition

Farmers are hopeful of increased cotton production in Texas as a result of recent rains, which broke the drouth that has held sway for nearly two months, reports to the United States department of agriculture, division of crop estimates, indicate. A late frost and continued favorable conditions will make a larger fruit crop than had previouly been expected, it is stated. The federal department's cotton report for Texas, issued this week, shows a decrease in condition of 55 per cent, a drop of 16 points over last month's estimate.

Condition of the crop in the various sections of the state follow:

Northwest—If frost comes late more fruit will be made; worm damage is feared since rains, as much cotton opening prematurely. Increased yields are expected if favorable conditions continue.

North—Crop was fine until August drouth and hot winds caused shedding; early cotton is hurt badly, late is holding up well and much benefited.

West and West Center—Conditions are expected to improve since rains, but much of cotton is past blooming stage. Worms, however, are bad where showers have fallen and fear is felt for late crop. Picking is well under way. Irrigated sections being injured by leafworm.

Northeast—Perhaps one-half of cotton had opened prior to rains; the opening was premature because of drouth and high temperatures. Early picking was from small, immature bolls.

Center—The greatest damage has been from drouth, poor stands, weevil and worms. Little hope for top crop on account of weevils present. Before the rains few blooms or squares remained; the last month has been most severe. Some bollworms damage.

East—Drouth and hot winds had

TEACHER'S NIGHT SESSION IS HELD

The only night session of the teachers' institute in session here this week was held last night at the First Baptist church where Director T. H. Shelby of the state university and Prof. W. L. Hughes of A. & M. college made special addresses to a packed house.

Director Shelby speaking of the subject of "Equal Educational Opportunities" defended the higher educational institutions of the state. He said criticism of so much money being spent on higher education was unjust because if the state did not provide state colleges and universities many students would never be able to obtain higher educations. The speaker said the rural schools and public schools were as necessary as the higher institutions and that both branches should be combined and the attention of the lawmakers and public centered on them.

Prof. Hughes chose as his subject "Boys." Discussing boys as a problem and the potentialities of youth he showed just what could be done if the subject were handled right. He gave many helpful suggestions for interesting boys in school work and for solving the problem of discipline.

From 7:30 to 8 Mrs. Dr. F. R. Collard pleased the crowd with a pipe organ recital.

WORLD STATES LINE AGAINST ITALY'S STAND

Some Hope Is Seen In Compromise Plan Put Forth By Spain

NO DIRECT ACTION

Score of Americans Present In Chamber During Clash

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 6.—The storm over Italy's refusal to recognize the authority of the league of nations to regulate he dispute with Greece is giving no indication of deminishing. On the contrary, it shows signs of developing into a political typhoon of the first degree. Representatives of world states like Belgium, Sweden and Uruguay went on record today as insisting upon respect of the League covenant and as being unqualifiedly convinced that Italy should submit the controversy to the league for settlement.

The cause of world peace demanded it; the very life of the league itself was at stake, several of the statesmen declared before the league's council; if the covenant was defied, precious guarantees for the smaller nations of the earth would cease to exist.

The council again avoided taking direct league action on the Italian attitude towards the league, but endeavored to advance a compromise plan calculated to hasten solution of the Greek-Italian crisis through the collaboration of the league of nations and the council of ambassadors.

This plan was put forward by the Spanish member of the council, Count Quinones de Leon. It was not adopted, but the council agreed that the minutes of today's session should be forwarded to the Paris body for its enlightenment.

Salandra Refuses Acceptance

Signor Salandra, head of the Italian delegation, absolutely refused to accept all parts of the resolution presented, which engaged that Italy recognize the competence of the league to intervene, and even questioned the right of the council of ambassador to settle the question of general reparation, which Italy has demanded on Greece because of the murder of the Italian officers.

Among the suggestions made in the Spanish proposal was that league representatives should assist in the official inquiry into the assassination — and that the permanent court of international justice should decide the indemnity Greece must pay Italy.

Americans Present

United States Senators Swanson and McKinley, former United States Senator Hitchcock, Newton D. Baker, the former secretary of war, and two score other Americans squeezed into the crowded council chamber today and witnessed the proceeding of a meeting that lacked nothing as regarded dramatic incidents.

Lord Robert Cecil gave warning again that the competency of the league to intervene was in Great Britain's view certain, and he indicated very strongly that "more would be done about it."

The clear voice of Paul Hymans, the Belgian leader, rang through the chamber with the words that the issue involved was exceedingly grave for the future of the league. He was convinced that the covenant applied to

Local Red Cross Quota For Japan's Relief Is $3,000

The local Red Cross chapter will raise $3,000 for Japanese relief according to T. B. Chairman Smock said Thursday a meeting of the executive committee of the Wichita Falls chapter would be called soon. The committee will then plan a drive to raise the $3,000 quota.

This drive will be apart from the annual drive for the various welfare organizations which is made annually. Mrs. F. B. Gorsline, Jr., secretary of the Welfare league said Thursday. totally destroyed, the foreign residential district of the port city, which is on a high bluff overlooking the bay, having suffered comparatively little damage, while the residential suburban districts of Tokio also escaped. This would account for the few deaths among the foreigners there for on Saturday afternoon, few would have been in their offices.

Tokio Gone.

The destruction of Tokio extends over two-thirds of the metropolitan district of 15 wards, with the low-lying districts completely destroyed. These include, the slum districts of Fukagawa, the industrial section of Hongo, both on the right bank of the Sumida river; Asksusa, famous for its amusement parks; Kyobashi and Nihonbashi, which include most of modern Tokio where four or five story department stores and offices lined the principal thoroughfare, the Ginza This also includes Tsukiji, in which, before Japan was completely opened to the western nations, foreigners were compelled to reside. It recently has been occupied principally by missionaries, their schools and hospitals. During the summer most of Tsukiji residents are out of the city but the loss of property there has been heavy.

In other sections of Tokio—Azaba, Shiba, Akasuka, Yotsuya, and Ushigone—where the foreigners live in more or less isolated foreign compounds, consisting of a few western style houses built on small hills, the damage was by fire, which, because of the number of open spaces could be controlled. The foreign embassies and legations were widely scattered throughout the higher districts of Tokio, and a number of them, including the American embassy, have been destroyed.

British Embassy Safe.

The British foreign office tonight received its first news from its representatives in Japan in a message reporting that all the embassy staff were safe, but that building was uninhabitable, necessitating rebuilding.

Other messages received by the London agents of Japanese companies state that Tokio's "skyscraper" district escaped destruction.

HONOLULU, Sept. 6.—No other word but "hell" can depict the scene in Tokio during and after the earthquake, according to the Tokio correspondent of the Hawaii Shinpo, who today sent from Sendai, Japan, an "eye-witness" story of the disaster. No vocabulary, he declared, would suffice to describeitadequately.

"The first great quake came at 11:55 a. m. Saturday, last," the correspondent said. "It was without warning. Most of the buildings of Tokio collapsed at the first shock.

"The earthquake was preceded by a tremendous landslide along the Sagami coast. Fires which followed in the wake of the earthquakes were partly due to the incendiarism of Koreans who applied torches to fallen buildings.

"After the earthquake Tokio was a living hell. Crazed, horrified refugees stormed the park to escape the flames. Those who were too slow, or too weak from exhaustion and excitement were soon overtaken by the flames which engulfed them. The fire spread with remarkable rapidity.

"In the chaos pandemonium, children were torn from their parents and wives from their husbands.

The surviving populace ran wildly about, helter-skelter, their screeching mingling with the crackling of mountainous flames, explosions and other thunderous noises.

"In a short time thousands of bodies were strewn about the streets."

The correspondent said he reached Sendai only after a series of indescribabel adventures.

The entire fire department of South Amboy was rushed to the scene and calls were sent to nearby cities for additional apparatus. Just before the engines arirved several other box cars of powder exploded, bringing the total number to six. The pier and two of the barges were enveloped in flames within a few minutes of the first explosion, the cause of which has not been determined.

Several automobiles which were traveling along the river road when the explosion occurred were blown completely over and their occupants thrown to the ground, several of them said to be seriously injured.

Ambulances hurried the injured to hospitals, where it was said many might not recover.

the Greco-Italian dispute and he added

"The pact forms a precious guarantee for the lesser states and applicaton of its stipulations is essential to the maintenance of the new order of things, in the world, in which all countries have placed supreme hope."

Hialmar Branting, of Sweden, subscribed to the Belgian view. The Uruguyan delegate, Dr. Adberto Ganis declared that the competency of the league in such international questions, which affected the peace of the world, could not be disputed.

Clash Between Delegates

A clash occurred between Signor Salandra, and M. Politis in the course of the debate. Salandra had related how Italy sacrificed 600,000 lives of her soldiers in the great war and emphasized that the question in view involved Italian national dignity and prestige and declared that that was why Italy could not accept any decision by the league. He then added that M. Hymans and M. Branting represented countries where, happily, assassination was not resorted to as a political means to an end.

This brought M. Politis to his feet in a vigrous protest. He repudiated any accusation that Greece was guilty of such methods. He remarked that assassinations had occurred in the world's most civilized countries.

Adjourned

The council adjourned without fixing a time for the next meeting.

The resolution presented today will be forwarded to all the interested governments. It is reported that Constantine Skirmunt has telegraphed his home government recommending that Poland stand for application of covenant to Italy. The official attitude of France has not yet been disclosed.

TURKS NOW WANT HAREMS RESTORED

By The Associated Press.

ANGORA, Sept. 6.—Persistent efforts are being made in Turkey to restore the harem as a national institution. Polygamy was abolished more than a year ago by a resolution passed by the national assembly, but since then several unsuccessful efforts have been made to restore it to a legal status.

At the head of the current attempt to put through he assembly a resolution recognizing the harem as a national economic necessity is Selih Hodja, a teacher. The "old guard" in and out of the assembly, is rallying to his support.

Salih Hodja has introduced as member of the assembly five successive bills for the legalization of polygamous relations. But Mustapha Kemal, himself a monogamist, has opposed these measures and all of them have been voted down. The nationalist party as a whole is opposed to a reversion to the old domestic order.

There are pending a total of 11 separate demands by the union, only three or four of which might possibly be raised again in negotiations, though some of them are regarded as of secondary importance. These were not taken up in any executive session prior to tonight's partial agreement. Governor Pinchot indicated a belief that they could be handled without difficulty.

EXPLOSION HURLS MAN OVER 60 FEET

By The Associated Press.

LUFKIN, Texas, Sept. 6.—Thrown 30 feet, a man named Tooke was killed and another man, thrown over 60 feet, was seriously injured as the result of a boiler explosion this evening.

Tooke and his companion were firing up the boiler of the saw mill of the Wright Lumber company, nine miles northeast of Lufkin, according to the report, and coldwater was turned in, the explosion immediately following. A wooden support, eight by eight inches by ten feet was blown 150 yards.

Three Killed 27 Are Hurt In Explosion

SOUTH AMBOY, N. J., Sept. 6.—Three men and a boy were killed and 27 persons were injured, 15 probably fatal, by explosions tonight of thousands of cases of smokeless powder, which were being transferred from barges to freight cars on the banks of the Raritan river.

The explosion, caused by a cooking fire on one of the barges, rocked the entire countryside, blew automobiles upside down on the road and eveloped every one within 100 yards in a sheet of flame. Two of the men killed were Winston Taylor and William Trench of Newark. The third was unidentified. The boy, whose body has not been recovered, was blown into the river.

The powder consisted of a shipment of 168,000 cases belonging to the Atlas Powder company.

Captain Emery Foss of Addison, Maine, and Captain Robert Brown of New York, commanding the barges, said that sparks from a cooking fire on one of the barges blew across the docks, igniting several other barges, and finally the freight cars.

REFINERS WILL STICK IT OUT

Are Determined Not to Create Individual Price for Crude

No general movement among refiners to make individual cuts in the price of crude oil in North Texas territory is under way, and the refiners will stick it out at the present posted prices rather than muddy up the crude market with a wide range of quotations, it was indicated Thursday by several refiners interviewed.

At present many refiners are finding a slight relief in going out and shopping on the crude spot market for their supplies, buying small quantities at prices at which they can make a few cents per barrel, but no contracts are being signed, and none are showing a disposition to follow the leads of the Miller Petrofeum Co and the American Refining Co., who have made individual reductions in crude prices.

Refiners interviewed report that plenty of spot market crude at a price at which they can a little more than break even is available.

However, all efforts to predict the end of the present demoralized situation have been cast aside, and they have assumed the attitude that one guess is as good as another.

E. F. Griswold of the Griswold Oil & Refining Co., is of the opinion that there is no present relief in sight unless:

"The only thing that I can see that will put the oil industry of the Midcontinent field back on its feet until production in California ceases to be a menace to the general oil markets is a reduction of crude prices in these territories until it can be purchased and put on the market as cheapiy as California crude."

Mr. Griswold was of the opinion that crude here might have to be reduced to as low a figure as $1 per barrel before this could be brought about.

C. B. King of the Panhandle Refining Co., also saw no relief in sight, but his opinion that the average small refiner was continuing to exist through his ability to purchase spot market crude at a low figure indicated that the average manufacturer of gasoline still has a substantial alternative through the fact that the curata program has pinched the producer to the extent that crude oil can be purchased at nominal quotations.

NEW PRODUCTION INCREASE REPORTED

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The daily average gross crude oil production of the United States increased 19,400 barrels, totaling 2,261,800 barrels for the week ending September 1, according to the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute.

The daily average production east of the Rocky mountains was 1,391,800 barrels, an increase of 19,400. California production was 870,000 barrels, the same as the previous week.

Oklahoma showed a daily average gross production of 438,000 barrels, decrease of 4,550; Kansas, 75,150, decrease of 3,050; North Texas 98,900, decrease of 900; central Texas 261,550, increase of 11,850; North Louisiana 61,650, increase of 650; Arkansas 126,900, decrease of 1,850; gulf coast 102,500, decrease of 2,000; eastern 110,000, decrease of 1,000, and Wyoming and Montana 146,650, increase of 17,150.

Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports were 295,857 barrels, compared with 297,714 for the previous week. Daily average receipts of California oil at Atlantic and gulf coast ports 62,857 barrels, compared with 339,571 for the previous week.

There were no changes reported in crude oil prices for the major districts, midcontinent being quoted at $1,10 to $2.20 a barrel, although some purchasing companies have announced reductions ranging from 10 cents to 60 cents, according to the gravity; Pennsylvania crude, Bradford district, Pennsylvania, $3 a barrel and all other Pennsylvania grades $2.75 and gulf coast $1.

CALIFORNIA OIL IN MID-CONTINENT

Predictions that the tremendous output of crude in California would eventually "seep" into direct competition with Mid-continent refined products seems to be born out in a report to the effect that for the past couple of weeks the Mexican Petroleum company has been offering gasoline at 6 cents, f. o. b. New Orleans.

The continued downward trend of the group 3 market during the past week is believed to be at least in part caused by this competition. Group 3 refiners, already standing heavy losses, have apparently met the Mexican Petroleum's price, and plenty of gasoline is said to be available there for 6 1-2 cents.

BARNUM ON ADVERTISING

P. T. Barnum was a show man. He was a ballyhoo artist. A man of his type does not appeal to the conservative business man because of his exaggerated method. Yet Barnum knew how to get business and he made a lot of money in his line. He knew the art of interesting people; of picking out something that would strike a popular cord.

Once on a time he made this statement in a lecture on "The Art of Money-Getting":

"Above all, advertise. I say if a man has goods for sale and doesn't advertise them in some way, the chances are that some day the sheriff will do it for him."

To a man who told him he had advertised three times and got no results, Barnum replied:

"Sir, advertising is like learning—a little is dangerous thing."

It was the showman's habit of saying there was only one liquid a man could use to excess without being injured by it, and that was printer's ink.

These are the words of a showman, but a successful showman. And his statements of that day are backed by recent statistics which show that out of all the failures in business in the United States, 85 per cent of those who failed were non-advertisers.

Advertising has become a commercial necessity.

ONLY THE EMBERS REMAIN.

As far as a so-called Wilson man inheriting the democratic nomination is concerned, the condition is so chopped up that no one apparently can be labeled as a Wilson choice.

In a way Wilson was a political accident. A man of his temperament would not be elected president of the United States once in fifty years. The time, the reaction, the split in the republican party all conspired to turn the public mind to Wilson. As a candidate a Wilson type of man does not get the vote of that vast body of men and women who vote on impulse. But the man who voted for Wilson pretty nearly had a logical reason for it. And the impulsive minds are in the majority. They must be shown images. There must be something to wave a hat over.

Wilson is so distinct a type that it is but natural for him to select as his spokesman men of his own kind. Of course, the stress of the world war made any man of ability welcome. But today when Wilson wishes his ideas on the league of nation to go before the next democratic convention, he is most likely to choose a scholarly, self-contained, and carefully dressed gentleman. At present it apparently will be Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war and a gentleman of high attainments politically and professionally in his home state of Ohio. Probably Baker will do the orating.

Former Justice Clarke of the supreme court would be the most natural Wilson choice for president.

A good many persons confused the Wilson position three years ago at San Francisco. McAdoo was not the Wilson choice. If Wilson had felt it politic to express himself it is more than probable that Davis, the scholar and gentleman from West Virginia who represented America at London, would have been his choice. The reasons many persons thought McAdoo was the Wilson choice was because of the McAdoo marriage into the Wilson family. But temperamentally the two men are not alike. As a matter of fact McAdoo had taken over Wilson administration machine. It was an easy matter principally because Wilson is not a politician and was so immersed in the league of nations that he had no time for the details of a national political organization. McAdoo instead of being an heir apparent was, in fact, merely an intelligent boy, who picked up the overcoat that his father had neglected.

It is a fair prediction that McAdoo will get little support from Wilson personally in his 1924 political activity. McAdoo of course, will get much support from former Wilson administration men throughout the country. This is bound to happen because McAdoo was the leader in the thing of the Wilson war activity. And "many friendships were made among the men who directed the war from Washington." These men could get to McAdoo. McAdoo appointed Wilson men—many of them. McAdoo has a pleasing personality. Wilson was inacessible. What was more natural than for McAdoo to rise to the top as a leader of the practical end of the Wilson administration? The position he held still gives him a very considerable political machine. But the machine has been starved through lack of patronage and probably is not nearly in as good running order as it was in 1920.

Any political survey today is likely to rank McAdoo as distinctly weaker as a political factor than he was in 1920. Of course, just how weak or how strong he is will be determined by the strength of the men who will contest with him for the democratic nomination.

SHAKING HANDS WITH MEXICO

There is almost certain to be some sort of a party given at Mexico City in honor of the recognition of Mexico.

A very large dish in the affair should be taken by the state of Texas.

The Mexican mind is Latin mixed with Indian. Pictures and pomp mean much to such a mind. No matter how courteous the act, nor how well meaning the thought, the Mexican valuation upon one's feeling is largely determined by whether one attends his party and does him some personal honor.

Texas has an unique position in Mexico. Many below the border look upon Texas as more important than the United States as a whole. In Mexican history Texas constitutes an erring daughter, vigorous and venturesome, who eloped with a tall, thin young man wearing a starry hat and long coat tails.

Texas should rise to the opportunity. The beginnings of permanent trade relations are in the making. Texas politically and commercially should be quick to act if the governor can find time personally to accept any invitation to Mexico City, he should do so. He should take with him a representative party from Texas if such an invitation is extended.

Taking the International Law in Their Own Hands

THE BRIGHT SHAWL

These facts she gathered through the unguarded moments of Ceaza y Santacilla's talk and that of his intimates. Charles put these communications into contracted English sentences; in that way, even as against the accidental chance of being, at any time, searched, he could better convey their import.

He went as often as it seemed necessary, to the United States club on Virtudes street, where, together with his compatriots, but different from them in a hidden contempt, he gambled, moderately and successfully. His luck became proverbial, and, coupled with La Clavel's name his reputation soon grew into what he intrigued for.

His enthusiasm, he discovered, his high ardor, must be changed to patience and fortitude, the qualities which belonged to his temperament and years had to give place to those of an accomplished maturity; the romance of his circumstances deserted the surface to linger hidden, cherished, beneath all the practical and immediate rest.

He began to perceive the inescapable disappointing differences between an idea, a conception of the mind, and its execution. The realization of that, he told himself, the seduction of the lofty, the aerial, to earth, constituted success, power.

The spirit and the flesh! And the flesh constantly betrayed the highest determinations. How he resented, distrusted, the mechanics, the traps and illusions, of an existence on an animal plane!

CHAPTER XIV
Santacilla the Ruthless.

Of all the disturbing elements in Charles Abbott's present life, the one which, it had seemed, must prove most difficult, Santacilla and his friends, troubled him least. There was, in their jeering, a positive quality to be met; his own necessary restraint furnished him with a sustaining feeling of triumph, stability; in his control, the sacrifice of his dignity, his actual pride, damaged by La Clavel, was restored.

Seated, it might be, quietly against the wall, outside the immediate circle about La Clavel, the officers, the Spanish grandees, in Cuba for pleasure or for the supervision of their copper mines at Cobra, Charles would watch, study, Ceaza y Santacilla, finding in him the epitome of the Spain he himself hated.

What, principally, was evident about the officer with the heavy short neck the surprising red hair, and small restless blue eyes, was cruelty of an extraordinary refined persistence. He had, unexpectedly in his sheer brutal bulk, a tormenting spirit, a mental abnormality, rather than the to-be-looked-for mere insensate weight of his fist.

Santacilla spoke, even to La Clavel, abruptly, mockingly; his tenderest words, addressed to her with a sweeping disregard of whoever could overhear, were hasty, introspective rather than generous. More frequently he was silent, redly brooding.

It was evident to the most casual understanding that Santacilla was, by birth association and ideas, an aristocrat of the absolute type fast disappearing. It was his power that, in a world largely affected by the ideal of Christianity, he was ruthless: in an era of comparative humanity he was inhuman.

There was about him the smell of the slow fires of the inquisition, of languid murder, curious instruments of pain.

That, until he had known Santacilla, had been incomprehensible—a page of old history; but now Charles understood: he could see the heavy figure with a darkly suffused face hacking with a sword.

He was insane, Charles Abbott told himself: in other circumstances, he'd be soon convicted of a sensational murder, quickly hanged or put in an asylum. But in Havana, as an officer of the crown quartered on a people he held in less esteem than the cattle whose slaughter he applauded in the bull ring, nothing, practically, limited his mad humors.

La Clavel was seated with Charles Abbott in the upper room of the Tuileries, when Santacilla slid into an unoccupied chair beside them. They were eating mantecados, frozen sweetened cream, and Santacilla dropped a number of battered Cuban coins, small in denomination, into Charles' half-consumed ice.

"If you were a man," he said, "you could break them up with your teeth."

Charles quietly put the plate away and lighted a cigarette. He smiled.

"But I'll bet you 20 doblons you can't break one," he added.

Santacilla replied that he was considering having Charles Abbott deported.

"You are so dangerous," he explained, with the grimace that served him as a smile. "I often consult with our captain-general. This Abbott,' he says; 'Aguamonte is nothing, but I am afraid of him. Abbott is wise, he is deep!' And then we think what can be done with you—a tap on the head, but not too hard and not far from the ear, would make you as gentle as a kitten. I have had it done; really it is a favor, since then you would forget all your trouble, the problems of state. You'd cry if I raised a finger at you."

La Clavel interrupted him to swear at his degraded imagination. "And the figure in the jota!" he turned to her. "You know that the Spaniards of birth have, as well as their own, the blood of the Moriscos. What they were, what the east is, with women I beg you to remember."

"This new treatment of women is very regrettable. I am a little late for absolute happiness; too, late, for example, to fasten your tongue with a copper wire to the tongue across the table from you. Lovers you see joined at last." Unperturbed, La Clavel found him comparable to a number of appalling objects and states.

"Coarse!" he replied. "You are a peasant, a beast, and what you say is merely stupid. There this Abbott is your superior—he has a trace, a suspicion, of blood. I am wondering," he was addressing Charles again. "It seems possible that you are as dull as you appear; there is more, perhaps, than meets the eye. Of course, if you are in love with this cow gone mad, a great deal is accounted for."

Suddenly he rose and walked to the table where a young Cuban exquisite was sitting with a girl darkly lovely. Santacilla leaned over and made a remark that drove the blood in a scarlet tide to the civilian's face. Then the Spaniard amazingly produced from his sleeve a ball of lamb's wool such as women use to powder their faces and touched the girl's nose lightly. He went to another table and repeated his act, to another and another, brushing all the feminine noses, and returned unchallenged, to his place.

"If I had been with any of those women," he related comfortably, "and the king had done that, there would have been a new king!"

"A lot of them will kill you some night," suggested a companion.

Santacilla agreed with him. "No doubt it will overtake me—if not here, then on the Peninsula. Some of my soldiers are planning to manage it; I knew them well, and I gave one an opportunity today; I stood with my back to him in the parapet of the twelve apostles for three, five minutes while he tramped and fiddled with his musket, and then I put him in a hole in the stone for a year."

CHAPTER XV.
The Fencer.

The other Spanish officer, Gaspar Arco de Vaca, Santacilla's closest companion, observed toward Charles an air of profound civility, and his pretence was more galling than Santacilla's morbid threats and exposed contempt. De Vaca was, in temperament and appearance, purely Iberian: he was of middle height, he carried his slender body with an assured insulting grace, and had a narrow high-boned face, a bigoted nose and a moustache like a scrolling of India ink on a repressed and secretive mouth.

Charles often encountered him in the fencing school on the Prado across from the Villa Neuva theatre. The officers of Isabella congregated there late in the afternoon.

The foils were not always covered; there had been some fatalities from duelling in the sala de Armas since Charles Abbott had been in Havana; a Cuban gentleman past 60 had been slain by a subaltern of 17, two officers quarreling over a grillo girl had sustained, punctured lungs from which one had bled to death.

The fencing master, Galope Hormiguera, an officer who had been retired from a Castilian regiment under the shadow of an unprovoked murder, regarded Charles without interest. Young Abbott was a faithful student, made all the required passes, had the appearance of mastery, but the essence of it was not in him. His heart, Horniguero frequently told him, was like a sponge; he wasn't tempered to the commanding of death.

At moments of rest his chest laboring and arms limp at his sides, Charles Abbott would stare up at the ceiling. Then, the clamor, the wicked scrape of steel, the sharp breaths, the sibilant cries that accompanied the lunges, would appear wholly incomprehensible to him: he'd want to break all the foils, and banish Horniguero to live among the wild beasts he resembled. He was deep in such a mood when De Vaca's considerate tones one day aroused him.

"Positively," the officer said, "you are like one of the heroes who held Mexico on the point of his sword or who swept the coast of Peru of its gold. And you are idle, for you see no one who can hold the mat with you."

A Bathroom Stool

One mother says:

My husband made a stool for the bathroom which we find very convenient for the little folks to use when turning on and off the lights, and at the wash bowl when they are washing their hands and face or cleaning their teeth. The stool should be about nine and one-half inches high, and the legs should project far enough and slant so the stool cannot be upset. A handhold in the top makes it easy to move about. SCIENCE AND THE HEN

European chemists have discovered that by selected feeding the color of poultry can be changed to vivid hues.

When I learned that the study of poultry
By science was being pursued,
I said to myself "Now I'll make some real pelf
From my frivolous Plymouth Rock brood.
No more they'll lay eggs in abundance,
When no one is willing to buy,
And not lay an egg, though I wheedle and beg,
When the price of that product is high.

"By care, ventilation, and diet,
These learned and studious men,
Will put a new zest in the obstinate breast
Of that low-feathered moron—the hen.
He'll teach her to keep up her average,
That her owner more profit may reap,
Whereas in these days, all the eggs that she lays,
Are but beggarly pay for her keep."

But alas! I was sadly mistaken;
The newspaper article said—
"One can give brighter hues, such as reds, greens, and blues,
To poultry if properly fed.
If fanciers give to their chickens
The viands that experts select,
The neat little pens, where they pasture their hens,
Will have quite a rainbow effect."

I care not for color in poultry.
I do not maintain them for show,
I want them to pay, and I want them to lay,
Not to look like a scene by Carot.
Let millinera dye them post mortem,
To serve the requirements of style,
But science would be of more service to me,
If it tried to do something worth while.

WHAT TODAY MEANS

By MARY BLAKE

VIRGO

Very benign aspects manifest making the day excellent for any form of work or pleasure. Bills and debts will be collected with great success. Increase in salary will be granted if sought in a diplomatic manner. Love, courtship and marriage will experience uninterrupted happiness this day.

A child born today will be proud and sensitive and prone to get into trouble.

Versatility is the key to your character if today is your birthday, and also i. gravest danger. Your success in life will not depend on your ability to do a thing well, but entirely on your strength and continuity of your desire to do it.

Like all versatile people, you have a broad horizon of different interests which are in a continual struggle for your attention, and they alternately stimulate and then paralyze your initiative by successive distractions of your attention.

You sense the hustling events of modern life with rapid, intuitive comprehension and you delight in analyzing and clarifying for future use all that goes on about you. Your memory is full, but kept in a very disorderly condition.

You are independent, self-reliant and always your own entertained and your own best friends. It is a great misfortune that others cannot know your thoughts as you know and enjoy them yourself, for many are missing more than you will probably ever tell them.

You are courageous and daring when these qualities can be assumed in grand manner—for there is both the actor and the poser in your nature. But sustained self-sacrifice interests you no more than it does the race in general.

If by some happy chance you do maintain your enthusiasm for any one thing, possible for something that keeps presenting you new and interesting difficulties—you may go a great distance and achieve a lasting fame.

There is one kind of success, however, that you cannot conceivably escape, and that is love. It is as much a part of you as your own soul, and at most times a far dearer possession.

Successful people born on your birthday are:

Ferdinand V. Hayden, geologist.
Edmund M. Holland, actor.

IRRIGATION

By A. M. McPHERSON
Consulting Engineer
Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

Into what sized farms should the surplus lands on the irrigation project be divided?

SILOS AND SILAGE.

Silage is one of the great feeds for dairy cows.

In 1875, Prof. Manly Miles, of Lansing, Michigan, excavated a shallow pit about 8 inches deep and piled in it chopped green corn, stalks and all, and covered the pile with dirt. This was the first silo and the first silage.

These shallow pits of course were unsatisfactory as most of the silage would spoil before it could be fed.

Silo construction has progressed greatly since then. They are now built mostly above ground and are constructed of such materials as concrete, wood, tile and brick. The essential idea remains the same however; green feeds can be preserved if kept away from the air.

As we have pointed out before green feeds are an essential part of the milch cows diet whenever maximum milk production is desired. Pasturing and soiling supply this during the growing season, but when winter comes dry feeds must be resorted to unless silage is available.

With a silo of proper capacity the dairy farmer can now supply his herd with the equivalent of green feed at any time of the year.

The invention of the silo, or rather the discovery of the principle, ranks in the minds of many practical dairy men as of equal importance with the cream separator and the Babcock tester.

RECENT RAINS HELD ALL CROPS

By The Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Texas, Sept. 6.—Rains in Texas during the past ten days have helped crops and broken the long and severe drouth the bi-weekly report of weather and crop conditions of the U. S. Department of Agriculture issued here today declares. The report covers conditions as existing August 31.

Late rains have covered practically the entire state, the county summaries show. Pastures and late crops have been somewhat revived. Summary of conditions for the various crops follow:

Wheat—Good rains in wheat sections will help in preparation of land for seeding. Acreage this fall may now be greater than expected.

Corn—Late crop benefited by recent rains; early is light, but in instances resulting better than expected.

Grain Sorghums—Have come out again since rains and may make three-fourths crop where not too badly damaged by drouth.

Hay—Prospects now good for a fall cutting.

Peanuts—Rains will help the crop; It was hurt by the drouth.

Rice—Rains have temporarily stopped harvest; new rice reaching mills in quantity. Threshing well advanced.

Broomcorn—Second cutting broomcorn now being harvested in valley, but much overripe account labor shortage. Dwarf sections hard hit by drouth.

Pecans—Nuts still dropping off; drouth and case-bearer have done much damage. Crop will be light.

Livestock and Pasture—Range, in most parts, improving and showing good prospects for winter grass because of rains; cattle holding flesh well.

Cotton—Recent rains have benefited late cotton; premature opening has been stopped. Not much hope for top crop. Rains may bring about renewed activities of weevil and worms. This now important factor.

TEXAS PECAN CROP 9,384,000 POUNDS

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 6.—The Texas pecan crop this year will reach 9,384,000 pounds, or over 20 per cent above the five-year average according to estimate, based on reports made Aug. 15 compiled by E. W. Cole of the state department of agriculture.

This will mean about 208 carloads of pecans will be shipped this year, he pointed out.

The heaviest pecan crop on record was the 17,000,000 pound production of 1919.

EXTENSIONS OF MAN.

We call this the age of machinery. It is really the age of man, plus machinery. The machine is but an extension of a man.

The telescope, for instance, is the human eye amplified till it sees distant worlds.

The microscope is the same eye intensified to mark the minute.

The camera is an eye so comprehensive and so disinterested that it misses no detail.

The telescope bestowed the infinite on man, the microscope the infinitesimal, the camera compels both infinite and infinitesmalsmal sit for their pictures. The telescope gave us the heavens, the microscope the earth, and the camera a perpetual passport to explore each at our leisure.

The human arm early sought to extend its reach. The man who flung the first stone added yards to its range, he who fitted the first arrow to the first bow multiplied those yards. Incidentally, he not only added the animal kingdom to his cave menu but he also paved the way for the wickedness or such an extension of the propulsive power of the human arm as is represented by a long range gun shelling a city from a distance of 70 miles. The first man who cracked a nut with a stone anticipated the intensified human first symbolized by the trip hammer, and the hand which first grasped pebbles on the beach foreshadowed the clutching hand of the giant steam shovels that dug the Panama canal.

Extension in human legs began with the first slice from a tree trunk that served as a wheel, took dominion over the waters with the first stick used as an oar and received another impetus with the first rag or hide that was used as a sail.

Then man was inspired to put the latent leg power of fire into the stomach of his vehicle. And the steam engine gave him Seven League Boots.

Next he dreamed of what his spirit has and his body lacks wings. The internal combustion engine fitted him out with a pair. Incidentally, it freed his fire-driven leg-power from the thralldom or rails by making the freely ranging automobile.

The telephone a child of the ...graph., flung the carrying power of the human voice and the listening power of the human ear over thousands of miles of copper wire.

Hertzian waves and Marconi extended throat range and ear range over unchartered space. The wireless has multiplied human voice voltage by the algebraic x.

And not content with all these enormous extensions of ourselves we immortalize our movements in motion pictures and petrify the sounds of our voices—and in instruments which imitate our voices in phonographs, thus reinforcing and revivifying that huge force for the over-extension of our minds, the printing press.

But, our inventions are only toys to distract us from worthwhile things if they are but improved means to unimproved ends, making easy trivialities that were only too easy before. The present task of man is to match the tremendous amplifications of his senses with corresponding expansions of his spirit.

Machines are a mockery of the souls that should soar freely to the infinite, the ideal and the abstract are by their agency held prostrate by the practical. An unworthy deification of mere devices and a canonization of the concrete is the danger of an age which accomplishes mechanical miracles.

To master matter, to fight against being mastered by it, is the only wirthy goal of the future's inventive genius.

Heart and Home Problems Solved

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl nearly seevnteen and will be a junior in high school this year. I have been going with a boy whom I like very much. He lives next door to me and I think he likes me as much as I do him. He ha been writing to a girl who is away visiting and she is soon to return home. Although he has asked her to go places with him she has never accepted his invitations, but she has let him go home with her from a few parties.

I know he likes her and I would like to have him like me better than he does her. Sometimes he tells me he thinks more of me, but at other times I don't think he does. When she returns I want him to go with only one of us.

Please advise me what to do when this girl returns.

COCOA COLA.

There is not the slightest reason why the boy should not go with you, and the other girl as well. If you want to spoil your friendship with him, the quickest way will be to interfere with his going with the other girl. He will want to feel independent and if you try to arrange his affairs he will like you the less for it. Simply leave the matter to him and he is more apt to be faithful to you. It would be most unwise to let him think you are jealous.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I am a girl of fifteen and have a girl friend the same age. She tells people everything she knows. I have a boy friend and she tells him things I said to break up our friendship and he tells me about it. He now thinks I am angry at him. He is a sweet boy and I am not angry at him. Shall I quit the girl? I don't like her anyhow, and I have several other girl friends.

ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

Since the girl has proved false to you, I would advise you to drop her. Do it tactfully, however, or she may do all she can ot hurt you. Speak to her as you have always done, but choose some other girl for your close friend. If you speak to the boy and do not appear unpleasant, he will realize that you are not angry at him.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I care for a certain girl too much to give her up. I met her six months ago and have been going to see her very regularly. I gave her my phone number to call me up when she wanted me to come to see her. One Saturday night she called me and said I could come Sunday. I went and on Wednesday after that she got a letter from a girl stating if she ever heard of her speaking to me again she would beat her.

The girl I care for is angry at me now. I have tried in vain to win her back and she won't speak. What would you advise me to do?

THANK YOU.

You are given little choice in the matter since the girl for whom you care refuses to speak to you. Since you mean so little to her that she will let a threat stand in the way of her friendship with you, my advice is to forget about her as quickly as possible.

Perhaps it would be just as well to ignore the girl who is jealous this time. If she repeats her offense, tell her you will turn her letter over to the police. She has no right to threaten people in that manner.

Dear Mrs. Thompsun: I met a fellow two months ago. He asked to correspond when he left. He dropped me a card and I wrote a letter back, but that is all I heard of him. Would it be proper to write again, or wait for an answer.

FORSAKEN.

Wait for an answerand do not write again unless it comes.

More Phones in Dallas Than Any Southern City

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 8.—The new Dallas fall and winter telephone directory now being delivered shows a listing of 46,168 pounds of ink were used in its manufacture.

The circulation of the Dallas telephone book is 58,000 and in addition to being given to Dallas subscribers, it is sent to other telephone offices all over the United States.

The new directory shows a net gain of 1,600 telephones for the city over the last directory published six months ago. The large gain indicates a rapid increase in the population of the city.

LUCKY LUCY

Lucy was lucky because she was brought up by a really sensible mother, who didn't care if she bobbed her hair or put a dab of tint on her cheeks, so long as she got her lessons in school and scalded the dishes in boiling water.

She was allowed to express her temperament (to a certain extent) in the choice of her clothing and her arguments were always listened to—good or bad.

Lucy's mother was almost as popular with the boys who came to the house, as Lucy herself.

In other words, Lucy's mother aided rather than hindered her in getting the most enjoyment out of life.

Mothers should watch out for the big things in life for their daughters, and not cramp the girls by criticising their attempts at beauty and expression.

Treat your daughter in such a manner that she will be sorry when you go off on a vacation. If you have made her bottle up all her emotions during the year—she is apt t oexplode with joy at your absence.

Soap Will Exterminate Leprosy, Says Scientist

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Illinois.—Soap is the greatest enemy of leprosy and if economic conditions could be change so that everyone could afford to be clean, and education create in them the desire and knowedge of hygiene, leprosy, would soon cease to be a great scourge and become one of the rare diseases, Dr. Arthur W. Stillians, professor of dermatology at Northwestern University, announced in an article just published.

The author arrives at the conclusion that to eradicate leprosy in this country the first object of the attack must be on the popular fear of the disease. "It seems the greatest difficulty in the isolation of lepers in the United States is finding them, their fear of being branded as lepers being so great that those who suspect the nature of their disease will hide, at any sacrifice, rather than come into the open," says Dr. Stillians.

"As for the victims of the malady, occupational therapy is of benefit, it has been found. Kindness and encouragement put hope into their hearts and their condition improve, as a consequence. Because leprosy in its early stages is not recognizable in port of entry examinations of immigrants, the problem of its control is a problem for the whole world."

He concludes by saying: "Could the nations cease wasting wealth and energy in wars against one another and present a united front against the common enemies of the human race, leprosy would certainly be conquered."

Quite The Thing

The simple, tailored lines of the coat frock recommend it for early fall wear. The one illustrated is made of navy blue twill, a commendable choice of materials, insuring good wearing qualities even if the frock receives hard wear. This is especially important when it is the choice of the college or business woman.

The slim, straight line silhouette is again emphasized, but the uneven hem is omitted. The front is very straight and coatlike but the back is semi-fitted. A single large bone button fastens it at the left side and a single button also finishes the turnback cuff on the plain coat sleeve. A high rolled collar and revers give the distinguishing touches to the frock. The popular fur trimming and embroidery are also absent and the frock depends for its smartness on faultless tailoring and stitching.

Some of the frocks built along the line of the illustration have short, detachable capes which make them an even more practical garment as the cape, when worn, gives the appearance of a suit.

For the first cool days of autumn this frock would be a most desirable addition to one's wardrobe.

San Antonio Exports to Mexico Are Very Large

By The Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept., 6.—San Antonio's supremacy as a shipping point for exports into Mexico is shown by a recent statement issued by Consul General Alejandro Lubbert, Mexican consul at this place. Industrial Arts College Busiest Place in Denton

DENTON, Texas, Sept. 6.—The College of Industrial Arts is the busiest place in Denton. The county teachers' institute of more than 200 public school teachers is being held daily in the auditorium and classrooms of the college buildings, more than 80 workmen are busy on the campus and in the instructional and the residential buidings making repairs and improvements, and the members of the administrative staff are busy making plans for the opening of the 21st annual session of the college Monday, Sept. 17. Dean E. V. White will complete this week the schedule of the classes for the fall quarter. Assistant Registrar Robert J. Garner, of Rusk, Texas, has arrived and assumed his duties. Registrar Walker King and Mr. Garner are receiving the help of Dean Jessie H. Humphries and a staff of stenographers in conducting the correspondence with parents and students about the opening of the college.

When asked about the probable attendance at the opening of the college, Registrar Walker King, said: "Assurance fees already paid by prospective students, together with correspondence wth parents and students who are interested, indicate that there will be a record-breaking attendance at the opening of the college this year. It is certain that the attendance will be between 1500 and 1600 students and probably not fewer than 1700."

Painful Rheumatic Swellings Disappear

Discoverer Tells Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Allenrhu Completely Banishes All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENRHU, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed druggists everywhere to dispense ALLENRHU with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment. Palace Drug Co., and Central Drug Co., will supply you. Mail orders accepted.—Adv.

Lefty Johns Hurls Cats To Farewell Win, 8-2

CATS SLAUGHTER OSBORNE BUT YOUNG DICK MORGAN COMES IN AND STOPS FUSS

Morgan Shows Makings of Good Hurler and Is Given Glad Hand; Goldie Rapp's Brain Gets Clogged and Tavener Is Robbed of Sure Hit; Cats Say Farewell.

By BILLIE SMITH

Lefty Johns was in good form yesterday, the Cats taking the deciding game of the series and the last they play here this season, 8 to 2. Bob Osborne, the Spudder youngster from Paris was batted hard in the early innings, while his wildness mixed with errors and timely hits caused him to retire in the fifth inning in favor of Dick Morgan from Lubbock of the Panhandle-Pecos league. The rally netted the Cats five runs and more than enough to win the game.

Johns Stingy.

Only good work on the part of the Spudder base runners and a slackening up in the defense by the Cats gave the Spudders their two runs. Johns let the first man up in the third inning get safe by walking Bischoff. He kicked Osborne's grounder around the infield long enough to permit the Spudder pitcher to reach first and Bischoff second. A sacrifice by Bescher, a sacrifice fly by Coombs and Weiss' double scored the two runs.

Outside of this, the midget Panther southpaw was never in serious danger. He kept the six hits well scattered, as only in the eighth did the Spudders collect two in one inning.

The Cats started on Osborne in the second inning and continued the onslaughtment till the fifth inning when he was chased from the mound after walking the first three batters up in this frame and allowing orders to get in by a pair of hits and Barrett's error.

Morgan Gets Good Hand.

Morgan stepped into the battle after Rapp's single had settled Osborne's future. Morgan allowed Calvo to single and score two more runs in this inning but from here on out he held the Panthers to a trio of blows, one coming in the sixth, seventh and ninth. Incidentally Morgan struckout such batters as Stump Edington and Clarence Kraft, and walked only one batter.

Walking one batter was a feat in itself, considering the way Umpire Fanning was calling them yesterday.

In the ninth stanza Goldie Rapp, who has been the center of a daily razzing attack by Spudder fans during the Cat series, pulled what might be termed one of the prize boners of the season. Fans think that because Rapp acted as field captain of a major league club during part of this season, he should be more able to pull these so-called super-human stunts.

Rapp's Mind Doesn't Work.

Rapp was on first at the time, having arrived at that station on a clean single. Tavener hit a short fly just back of second, which looked as though Coombs would catch. However, just before reaching the ball, Coombs stopped and picked it up on the bounce. Meanthne, Rapp thinking Coombs had caught the ball, dashed back for first and was an easy force-out at second. Rapp's misjudgment robbed the sterling Panther shortstop of a hit, and a player with a clubbing average of Tavener's size needs all the blows he can muster.

Hoffman's double, Haworth's single and a sacrifice by Tavener, scored the first run for the Panthers in the third, and a double by Johns and a single by Kraft scored one in the third, and a double by John and a single by Calvo scored another in the fourth.

Edington and Kraft worked Osborne for passes to begin the fifth and the bases were clogged on Hoffman's single to right. Barrett booted Haworth's grounder, allowing Edington and Kraft to score. Rapp singled to right scoring Hoffman. Morgan came in and Tavener sacrificed. Johns flew to Weiss, Haworth scoring after the catch. Rapp scored on Calvo's single to center.

Williams Forced Out For Season

Red Williams, the young Spudder outfielder secured from Paris of the East Texas league, late in August, is out of the lineup for the rest of the season. Williams was operated on yesterday for appendicitis, and reports from a local hospital have it that he is resting easy. Williams was forced out of the game several days ago with a sprained ankle and had played in only two games since his return to the lineup. However, up to this time he had been playing great baseball.

Through Edgren's Eyes —By Edgren

FIRPO'S EASY MONEY CAMPAIGN WAS A FLIVVER.

Luis Firpo's easy money campaign didn't turn out well. It got Firpo plenty of trouble and little of money. Gents who had offered Luis purses and percentages for flattening setups were hard to find when the money was due and there were other complications that might have been avoided if Luis had been possessed of a manager like Jack Kearns, for instance.

Kearns knows several things about fighting and managing fighters. He gets his fighters into shape, and he gets their money for them. Having Kearns for a manager is one of the greatest advantages Dempsey has over Firpo. If Kearns had been managing Firpo, the Argentine scrapper, Luis wouldn't have been gallivanting around the country a month before fighting for the world's championship, wasting his time boxing tenth raters. He'd have been in the training camp, working under direction of Jimmy De Forest or of Kearns himself, with the best heavyweights Kearns could hire to wallop with him every day.

Firpo hasn't learned a thing through boxing dubs. If anything it has hurt his chances with Dempsey. He has accustomed himself to the action of the slow heavy footed, clumsy boxers who were satisfied to try to last a few rounds, and who never went after Firpo.

FIRPO HAS HAD LONG RING EXPERIENCE

Firpo will find Dempsey's action in the ring surprisingly different.

There's one thing about Firpo, however, that isn't very well known. Firpo is not a novice with only two or three years ring experience. He was fighting in Buenos Tires in 1914, and at that time was taking on occasional bouts at clubs, and traveling with a boxing tent circus, taking on all comers.

It's true he was just a big, strong boy, and knew very little about boxing. He didn't meet other boxers who had any skill worth mentioning, except a couple of wandering American middleweights who found the picking easier in South America than at home.

Still, he traveled around Chili and the Argentine quite a bit, meeting local heavyweight boxers, and he had some experience in fighting. When he came to New York the first trip Firpo was champion in his own country and thought he knew all about boxing. He soon found that he didn't know any more than the average amateur in this country, and so he began to learn. He won his fights in better style as he went along, and the Firpo I saw beat Willard down wasn't at all the clumsy novice he has been pictured. Firpo is big but fast, and he moves gracefully. He isn't either slow or clumsy. He doesn't "club" with his right hand; he drives it straight or with a slight hook. He can use the left if he wants to. He was coached to use the left to block Willard's right, and Willard never put that right cross or the right uppercut on Firpo's chin in seven rounds. It doesn't look as if he is altogether a dub.

Firpo's strongest fighting point is that he trades punches. When the other fellow leads Firpo shoots a punch with him, at the same instant. It takes a quick eye to do that. It makes Firpo dangerous even to Dempsey.

DEMPSEY'S DEVOTION TO HIS MOTHER.

One hears a great many remarks about the unpopularity of Jack Dempsey. I've often heard men say "I hope somebody comes along and knocks his block off."

Then they usually explain that they never saw Dempsey, but just formed their opinion of him from what someone else told them.

A couple of years ago Dempsey bought a very fine home in Los Angeles, remodeled the house and grounds, decorated and furnished the place and turned it over to his family. His mother and family, sister and brothers have been living there ever since, and Jack stays there when not traveling. It is a large house and the grounds, all lawns and trees and flowers, take up half a block.

A short time ago I said to Dempsey: "Jack, I should think you would have bought a smaller home. When you stop fighting you'll have a pretty big place to keep up."

"Well," said Dempsey, "I did intend to get a small place, but while I was looking around I took my mother for a drive one day, and stopped in to see two or three places the real estate men told me about. When we went into this one my mother was so delighted that I went right down and bought it. Then I put the carpenters and decorators to work and improved and furnished it as well as I could. "My mother worked hard all her life. We've always been poor. She never had anything before—just poverty and a large family and hard work. She's growing pretty old. I don't know how long she has to live, but I made up my mind as soon as I began to make a little money that I'd give my mother everything she can want as long as I have the chance, and make up for the hard years. She's happy and that's all I care about.

"Afterward—well, I don't care for money for myself and I don't care whether I have anything or not. I can always work on a ranch."

This little story is as characteristic of Dempsey as any other you'll ever hear. More so, perhaps, for it's true.

CALIFORNIA NO SLOUCH ON ATHLETIC STADIUMS

On a recent trip along the Pacific coast, I stopped a day at Berkeley, California, to see the great new football stadium now being built. Strangely there has been little news given out about this, the finest stadium ever built in the world's history, except, possibly, the Pentalic marble stadium at Athens.

The University of California is building it on its own grounds, in Strawberry Canyon, above the university buildings. I never saw anything in the stadium line to equal it as an engineering and architectural feat.

First the builders built a large concrete tunnel for Strawberry creek, which now flows through this deep beneath the stadium floor. The football field is filled in over the tunnel. Drains all over the fields connect with the tunnel below so that the football gridiron can be dried almost immediately after the rain. Sandy soil was imported for the ground, to be covered with black earth and turf. The hills were cut away to form the stadium slopes; rock blasting and steam-shovels doing the work.

To provide ventilation there is a great gateway at the western end, where the trade winds blow, and huge ventilators are built all around the playing field in the concrete walls just above the level.

In some stadiums foul air has caused a great deal of trouble.

The stadium will seat 72,000, and there is room for thousands more around the broad platforms within the upper walls. Eighty-five thousand will see the California-Stanford game in November.

Yale, Princeton and Harvard men will notice that football is no longer a monopoly of the big eastern colleges.

WILLS' ACTION ENRAGES CHAMP

Declares He Will Not Fight Black

By The Associated Press.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 6.—Harry Wills, negro challenger for the world's heavy weight championship, will never have a chance to win the title while Jack Dempsey is champion. The title holder made this declaration tonight after receiving word that Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills, had instituted legal action in an attempt to stop the Dempsey-Firpo match at New York, September 14.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, left immediately for New York, upon receipt of a message from Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest. Kearns said he had been summoned to make an affidavit for the champion and himself explaining their connections with the fight.

Dempsey was fighting-mad when word reached him that Mullins was endeavoring to stop the match with the Giant South American because of Dempsey's failure to meet Wills first. He became further enraged after Kearns had communicated with Rickard, and the situation was explained.

"This means that Wills never will get a chance at the title while I am champion," Dempsey said. "He doesn't deserve a chance after such tactics. I had intended taking him on if I still held the title after meeting Firpo, but I will not do it now under any consideration. There is no chance for either Mullins or Wills or their lawyers stopping my bout with Firpo. I am confident of that."

Kearns, before his departure, said he was not worrying over any legal action that Mullins might undertake. He said the only situation that concerned him was preparing Dempsey for Firpo.

Dempsey today started to ease up in his training, reducing his boxing to four rounds instead of the customary six or eight, and eliminated the work of attacking the heavy leather filled swinging dummy. The champion's workout, outside from his usual morning run, and the boxing, consisted of a round each of shadow boxing, tugging the chest weights and pounding the light punching bag.

Manager Kearns explained the reduction by saying Dempsey was ready to enter the ring tomorrow and that he did not care to risk the danger of having the champion become too finely drawn.

The champion displayed characteristic speed and aggressiveness in his boxing.

The main event features Lee Morrisey in a ten round go with Jimmie Carroll of Fort Worth. The semi-final has each scrappers as Kid Snyder, a fast Burk lightweight and Dick Bowers. A six round go between Bill McKinney of Burk and Kid Kosse of Wichita Falls is carded as a preliminary.

BAYLOR BEARS GETTING READY

"Beat A. & M. and Get Texas" Is Bruin Motto for Coming Season

WACO, Texas, Sept. 6.—The Baylor Bears, southwestern conference football champions, will begin their training season early next week, Coach Bridges has already mailed out letters to every eligible grid athlete and expects to have a squad on hand the first day that will number well above 00.

Just a week after the varsity training camp opens, the cub team will start their fall training under the guidance of Guy B. "Cop" Weathers, for three seasons an All-Southwestern guard and one of the smartest football men in the southwest.

Beat A. & M.

In Coach Bridges' letter to his athletes he states that the following will be his motto for the coming season: Get Texas.

"Beat A. & M. and Get Texas.' "We have the makings of a good team, and by hard work and fight we can again get the championship title for Baylor again."

The Bears lost nine letter men by graduation last year, and that number all were stars, five of them being members of the All-Southwestern eleven. Bradshaw, Weathers, Crosby, Tanner, Kirk, Blalock, Burch B. J. Pittman, Strickland and Adams will be missing when Coach Bridges calls the roll next week.

Of the letter men that will be present Captain "Country" Williamson, Anderson and Fullinghim head the list. Fullinghim is a former Decatur college player, while Anderson and Williamson have played for a number of years under Bridges. Ralph Pittman, who promises to make some one hustle for an All-Conference full back position this year will also be back, as will Sniper Connally, Howard Hertzog and Jew Goodman.

The Bear coach is depending much on Strickland and Struppa of last year's cub team to fill the places left vacant by Wesley Bradshaw and B. J. Pittman. Both of these players played sensational football on the Cub team and are expected to do the same this year. Bear Walker, a former Waco high star is the strongest candidate for center. He will be flanked on both sides with such players as Anderson, Hartzog, Goodman, Biggs, Williamson, Meharg and Miller. Fullinghim will hold down one end while the other position will be eligible to such players as Connally, Bowers, Nash and Meers.

Bill Coffey a former North Texas high school star, who has played with such teams as Childress and Vernon is the most formidable candidate for the quarterback position. Coffey is a small man, but handles a team well and is a wizard at returning punts. Coach Bridges is sweet on Coffey and plans to make a first string player of him.

San Antonio Has Figure Chance To Win Says Ruggles

By The Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Sept. 6.—San Antonio tonight remained the only club in the Texas league with a mathematical chance to overtake Fort Worth, the league leaders, according to William B. Ruggles, league statistician.

"Following today's victory over Wichita Falls, Fort Worth holds an eleven game lead over the Bears," Ruggles said. "The Panthers, however have 12 more games to play, while the San Antonio club has only 11, as it loses forever from its scheduled the three rained-out affairs in Galveston. Should San Antonio win all of its games and Fort Worth lose all the Bears could win with a percentage of .576 against .571. All games would have to be played to accomplish this result."

To the sheriff or any constable of Wichita county greetings:
You are hereby commanded to summon Geo. Daves by making publication of this citation once in each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the Eighty-Ninth district court of Wichita county; to be holden at the court house thereof, in Wichita Falls on the first Monday in October A. D. 1923, the same being the 1st day of October A. D. 1923, then and there to answer a petition filed in the Thirtieth district court on the 24th day of May A. D. 1923 and transferred to the Eighty-ninth district court in a suit, numbered on the docket of said court No. 14387-C wherein Catherine Jenne Daves is plaintiff and Geo. Daves is defendant and said petition alleging that plaintiff and defendant were legally married in Wichita county, Texas, on June 3, 1920; that after the marriage of plaintiff and defendant, plaintiff treated the defendant with kindness and forbearance to the best of her ability discharged every duty imposed upon her by the marriage vow, but the defendant being unmindful of his obligations and an able bodied man failed and refused to work and provide for this plaintiff and the child born to that union, towit, Juanita, a girl, born on August 27, 1921, and the defendent's failure and refusal to work and make any provision for the comfort and maintenance of the plaintiff and their said child constitutes the grossest and most inhuman treatment, because this plaintiff with her said child has been forced to work, has worked and is now working at the City Laundry to earn a livelihood for herself and her said child. That throughout said marriage defendant has never lived with plaintiff more than ten months and never more than three months at one time, but has been a worthless shiftless person who would travel from place to place and do nothing, and that when he was with plaintiff he has been unkind and has frequently cursed this plaintiff and abused her, and is a man of intemperate habits and addicted to the use of whiskey when it is available and has frequently become wholly intoxicated and while in such condition would curse and abuse this plaintiff and would otherwise conduct himself in a manner well calculated to and which did wound the feelings and alienate the affections of this plaintiff and the further living together of plaintiff and defendants as husband and wife has now been rendered wholly insupportable. Defendant is wholly unfit to have the care and custody of the said child, and plaintiff asks that its custody be decreed to her. Defendant is able to work and from time to time does work but has been spending his money wholly upon himself and in riotous living. He is able to and should be required to pay into this court for the support of the child of plaintiff and defendant the sum of at least $10 per week and plaintiff asks that an order be entered requiring the defendant so to do until said child is Predicts $1 Wheat.

By International News Service.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 6.—Advising farmers not to hold for another season, Frank W. Mondell conferred with members of the Washington and Idaho committee of the corporation.

Patrons Play Fair With the Youngsters

Just because your children have rosy cheeks and bright eyes, don't make the common mistake of taking it for granted that your youngsters must be perfectly well. What do you know about eyes, throats, ears, teeth, lungs, hearts, etc.?

These helpless little children are dependent upon you to save them from the lifelong unhappy consequences of neglected health and neglected education. Do not let sickness keep your boys and girls from getting the education they will need in future years.

Make sure that your children are in fit condition to go back to school. There are four things at least to do immediately.

1.—Eyes.—Children who cannot see clearly are under a constant nervous strain which is bound to effect their health. Have your children's eyes examined by a competent eye specialist.

2.—Throat.—Have your children examined for adenoids and diseased tonsils. Total deafness and many serious illnesses often come from neglecting this danger zone.

3.—Ears.—Thousands of children are thought dull in school because they cannot hear distinctly. If anything is wrong with your child's hearing consult a specialist.

4.—Teeth.—Much sickness comes from decayed teeth. Physicians say that poison may be carried in the blood from the tooth to other parts of the body. Take your children to a dentist.

Send your boys and girls back to school this fall as healthy as possible. the day is not far off when these youngsters of ours will be the backbone of the nation—Make them strong!

Eliminate so much of the middleman's profit. Reduce the cost of living. Lower the family expense budget. One of the great items of the family expense is life and accident insurance. Put this on an actual cost basis, by joining the local mutual aid life and accident association recently organized by leading citizens of the county.

In this way save many dollars to each member of the family that may be used to educate the children, buy a home, or save for old age.

The Wichita Home Insurance company is now the largest mutual life and accident insurance company west of Fort Worth in Texas. This organization has recently made the following announcement:

"Every person accepted for insurance is classified according to his age:

Class AA Ages 50 to 69
Class A Ages 35 to 50
Class B Ages 10 to 35
Class C Ages 0 to 10
Class D Ages 10 to 55

The last class covers accident insurance.

1,500 members are to be included in each group, thus always assuring $1,000 Insurance. The insured agrees to pay $1.00 for each dea and $1.00 each six months for the expense fund.

Only healthy white men, women and children of good moral character living in Wichita county are accepted. Under this plan insurance may be had at actual cost.

Conflicting Movements Reflect the Play of Opposing Forces

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Conflicting price movements took place in today's stock market, reflecting the play of opposing speculative forces. Prices generally showed a firm tone during the morning but realizing sales came into the market later, cancelling many of the earlier gains. The averages showed little change on the day.

Speculators for the decline offered the oils freely on reports of additional gasoline cuts on the Pacific Coast and continued increase in production, but they made little headway. Pan-American issues each dropped about two points, but recovered half of their losses later.

Independent steels were bid up sharply on reports of further inquiries for the product from Japanese sources, but further gains were not maintained.

Rails were somewhat sluggish.

The report of a new high record of car loadings in August was counteracted by a compilation of the July earnings statements showing combined net income in July at the rate of 4.93 per cent annually as against 5.47 in June and 4.12 in July of last year. Nickel Plate issues were again strong.

Davison Chemical fluctuated within a narrow range of five points closing at 5 1-4, up to 1 1-4. The New York stock exchange which investigated the violent fluctuations of the stock on August 30, when a jump of 20 points was followed by a decline of 22 points, announced today that the market movement of that date was "entirely the result of an enormous public speculation in the stock and in no way due to manipulation.

Foundation company dropped 3 1-2 points on selling attributed to fear of possible losses in Japan, where the company had contracts, but recovered about half of its loss later on publication of a report by the company that the full dividends for 1923 had been earned in the first seven months of this year.

Call money opened at 5 per cent but declined to 4 1-2 before the close. Time money and commercial paper rate were unchanged.

Trading in the foreign exchange market slackened somewhat with slight recessions noted in the principal European currencies. Demand sterling sold around $4.51 3-4 and French francs around 6.54 cents. German marks touched another net low at 2 1-4 cents a million.

KEMPNER ON STAND IN RATE PROBING

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN Texas. Sept. 6.—The railroad commission today continued to receive testimony to support application of the Texas Farm Bureau association for elimination of compressing-in-transit regulations on cotton shipped to Texas ports for export. F. R. Daizelle, traffic manager of the Houston cotton exchange, occupied the stand virtually all day, testifying in support of the cotton association contention.

By agreement, I. H. Kempner of Galveston, was permitted late today to give his testimony in Galveston's petition for equalization of cotton rates with the port of Houston, though the commission has not completed the main hearing on counter application of the cotton association and of Texas railroads which are asking that cost of compressing-in-transit on cotton be assessed on shippers. The hearing will be resumed Thursday morning.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A continuation of yesterday's buying movement sent prices here above the 26 cent level in the cotton market today. December deliveries sold at 26.27, making an advance of 79 points from the previous close and of 106 points from the low price reached on the reaction of Tuesday.

December, closed at 26.08 with the general market closing firm at net advances of 55 to 80 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of 16 to 33 points on overnight buying orders and a further broadening of general demand, which was evidently promoted by the continued firmness of Liverpool, re-iterated reports of a better tone in Manchester, unfavorable crop advices from the eastern belt, and reports that large Japanese interests had been good buyers of spot cotton in the southwest late yesterday. There was considerable hedge selling on the opening advance, probably against the reported spot business, also a good deal of realizing. This caused the early demand and caused reactions of 15 to 20 ponts during the middle of the day on renewed buying by brokers with good trade and speculative connections. October sold up to 26.28 and January to 25.95, while March touched 26.12, making net advances of 72 to 79 points, after which there were modern reactions under renewed realizing.

Port receipts today 15,923. U. S. Port stocks 237,260. Exports today 1,000; making 341,522 so far this season.

Fort Worth Livestock.

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 6.—No special activity was noted in the performance of the fat cattle market Thursday, but there was a fairly good demand for all kinds and the trend of prices was generally steady. Receipts were moderate, around 3,700 head of cattle and 1,000 calves being available. Fat steers, selling early, went at $8.75, but better cattle cleared later at $7.50. The top on stockers was $6. Several cars of good south Texas calves reached $6. Less than a dozen cars of steers were on the market. Most of the run was disposed of in fair season at rates that were steady, but this trade was not active. A range of $4.50 to $5.50 caught most of the receipts.

Sales of cows were in line with Wednesday's decline of 10 to 15 cents, and the market made moderately good progress. Heifers and yearlings were disposed of on an unchanged basis and the call was good. Bulls were wanted, good odd lots selling up to $3.75 and $4.00. One carload in the southern division, went at $3.00.

Buyers were talking of a lower market for calves, but everything selling on the morning rounds went at rates that were steady. Quality was no better than the recent average. Most sales on the rank and file of the supply made a range of $4.50 to $5.50.

Based on the sale of six cars of choice steers at $6, the stocker market was fully steady. There is a broad demand for desirable stocker cattle and receipts are falling short of the call.

Up to noon the hog market had not been established, buyers waiting until late in the day before starting, partly on account of bad markets at rival points and pointly due to the fact almost half of the run was not here at a seasonable hour. Firs bids were 25c lower, with 1,800 head on hand. Shippers were not participating. When sales were finally made, they were 25c to 35c under the Wednesday close. The top was $9.25 and most sales made a range of $8.75 to $9.10. On pigs the market was fully steady. A few extra choice pigs went to packer buyers at $7.25 Good stockers sold from $6.75 to $7.00.

Only a few decks of sheep and lambs appeared as fresh receipts, but sales included several decks that arrived late Wednesday. The market was steady on lambs, but sheep prices averaged 25c to 35c under last week's

WHEAT PRICES RALLY SLIGHTLY

Show Weaker Tendency on Early Market But Come Back

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Wheat prices developed rallying power today after a weaker tendency early. Some enlargement of commission house buying appeared to be based in a measure on prospective demand for flour to be shipped to Japan. The close was steady at the same as yesterday's finish to 1-4 cent higher, with December 105 3-4 to 105 7-8 and May 1.11 1-4@3-8 to 5-8. Corn finished at a range varying from 1-8 cent decline to 1-4 cent advance, oats 1-8 to 1-4 cent up and provisions 2 to 5 cents gain.

Wet weather and unfavorable crop reports from half a dozen states, Ohio and Nebraska inclusive, gave firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions went higher in response to a large decrease showing to have taken place lately in stocks of lard.

TEACHERS JOIN STATE'S GROUP

Decision Unanimous — Ellis Features Day With Address

The District Teachers' institute being held here at First Baptist church, Ninth and Burnett streets, voted unanimously to affiliate with the State Teachers' association after an address before the general assembly yesterday morning by R. T. Ellis, Fort Worth, secretary of State Teachers' association.

Ellis advocated better teachers, higher education and better equipment for both teachers and students. He talked of the many problems the teacher's had to contend with, and the poor equipment of many schools.

W. S. Donoho, professor of English, School of Industrial Arts, Denton, gave a review of the School of Industrial Arts, and of the progress being made in developing students in those subjects that will be of great benefit in up building of cities, towns, communities and homes.

The committee on resolutions, composed of C. E. Davis, Quanah; J. F. Kemp, Seymour, and E. J. Woodward, Burkburnett, adopted resolutions proposed Wednesday. They were: indorsement of S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, attitude in the text book case; the county unit plan, keeping county superintendents out of politics; the educational survey; the interscholastic league.

The invocation by Rev. Fred T. Dotson, rector, Church of the Good Shepherd formally opened the session. There followed song service. At 11:30 o'clock there was a sectional meeting.

Hattie Nell Mercer of the Fairview district and Georgia Lansford, home demonstration agent, Wichita county, gave demonstrations on serving luncheons in primary schools. Practically all of the primary teachers attended.

The courses were four in number and were as follows:

1.—Parents prepare and send cooked food; parents send food to be cooked; penny lunches, usually soup and crackers; funds by school board for prepared lunches.

The institute has been in session since Monday morning and will finish the courses by today noon, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon.

The institute this year has been pronounced a complete success, and with a larger attendance than previous conventions.

Following is the program during the morning:

9:00— 9:10—Invocation, Rev. J. W. Loving.
9:10— 9:30—Singing.
9:30—10:15—Address—Professor W. L. Hughes.
10:15—10:30—Recess.
10:30—10:45—School Exhibits at the Texas-Okla. Fair—R. H. Henry.

Shelby reviewed the work being accomplished by the district teachers' institute now in session at the First Baptist church here.

SCHOOL TAX SUITS TO BE FILED 26TH

Suits against those who have not paid school taxes on lands and property lying within the limits of the Wichita Falls independent district will be filed in district court after Sept. 26, it was announced at the office of the city tax collector Thursday.

A number of school taxes are delinquent and these have only the next two weeks to pay the assessments or be prosecuted. More than 300 suits are now pending in the 78th district court against those who were delinquent with their city taxes. These suits are to come up this term of court. Since the filing of the suits by Edgar Mann, former city attorney, more than 75 of the 300 defendants have paid off.

"We hope it will not be necessary to file as many suits to collect the school taxes as we did for the city taxes. All those who have not paid up by Sept. 26 will force us to have to prosecute them through," Judge Raley at the city tax collector's office said Thursday.

The jury deliberated from 9 Thursday morning until 4 in the afternoon, then announcing they could not get together on the verdict. BIG RACING PILOTS WILL BE AT FAIR

The best automobile races ever scheduled in North Texas will be part of the program of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition to be held here Oct. 1 to 7 inclusive. Several race drivers of international repute will take part according to C. H. Verschoyle secretary of the association.

Cash prizes totaling $1,500 will be awarded winning pilots. Added prizes from different car manufacturers will attract many drivers.

According to reports from other cities where fairs are being held automobile racing is drawing huge crowds. Several records have been broken this year, and several of the record breaking drivers have signified their intention of taking part in the local races.

WORKMEN STARTING STEEL GRANDSTAND

Steel workmen were put to work yesterday erecting the steel skeleton for the grandstand at the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition grounds. Steady progress is being made in remodeling the various buildings. The grounds during the fair this year will be greatly improved over last year, according to C. H. Verschoyle, secretary of the association.

The vast territory the exposition has to draw from insures a larger crowd and every effort is being put forth by the fair association to take care of the visitors.

The chamber of commerce is aiding the fair association and will have a large number of rooms listed where visitors to the exposition can be assigned for accommodations.

RAMBLING MEDICOS MUST REMIT TAXES

Itinerant physicians are going to have to pay the $50 annual tax required by statute if any practitioners under this category are found in Wichita Falls, it was learned at the office of City Tax Collector W. R. Hyer Thursday.

The county and city tax collectors have both been informed that chiropodists, oculists, veterinarians, or other practitioners who go from place to place and have no set place of business are failing to pay the $50 tax. Unless such physicians can show they have paid the tax in some other Texas city this year the amount will be collected from them, the tax officials said Thursday.

An enforcement of the law against itinerant physicians by the city attorney's department would bring a number of such persons in the courts should they fail to comply, officials said Thursday.

Resident physicians are exempt from the tax against itinerant physicians. The statute was passed to make the traveling practitioners who pay no taxes on property in Texas pay some kind of a tax.

Wilkes Bond $1,000.

An examining trial for Carroll Wilkes arrested a few days ago by local officers on a charge of possessing whiskey for the purpose of sale was held before Justice O. L. Gibbs Thursday and bond placed at $1,000 to await the action of the grand jury.

A quantity of choc beer is being held by officers to use as evidence if a bill is returned against Wilkes by the grand jury.

MATE OF STEAMER COLLECTS RARE COINS

By The Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 6—G. W. Darnell, mate of the Conness Peak, a cotton steamer running out of Houston, is a collector of coins. During his many years at sea he has come into possession of thousands of coins and bills, some of them of great value, and some of them practically worthless at the present rate of exchange.

Darnell has obtained pieces of the current coinage in every port he has visited in many years of seafaring life. Part of his collection he keeps at his home here; but so fond of his hobby is he that he has a smaller collection with him on his ship at all times.

The only port ever visited by Mr. Darnell where the American dollar was not at par was Guanta, Venezuela, where there were a cocoanut grove, a dock and a customs house. The place was not accessible to a railroad. The medium of exchange at this place was the bolivar. Three American dollars was the equivalent of two bolivars. The most valued medium of exchange, however, was old shoes, shirts, or other articles of clothing.

Darnel has collected a large number of German notes. Among the specimens of German money in the possession of the sailor are a 10,000-mark note on the Reischsbank of Berlin, a counterfeit 50-mark note on the Reischsbank, a 100-mark municipal note issued by the city of Bremen and not good any place else. Some of the large number of German notes in the possession of Darnell are printed on very cheap print paper, while others are printed on very fine silk thread paper.

SHIP BOMBING IS BASIS FOR NEWER PLANS OF DEFENSE

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Important conclusions on problems over national defense were expected to result from the study begun today by army and navy experts of the sinking of the obsolete battleships Virginia and New Jersey by army airmen yesterday off Cape Hatteras. That big strides have been made in marksmanship and equipment since the sinking of the surrendered German warship two years ago appears to have been demonstrated at once to the satisfaction of those who observed the bombing spectacle yesterday which marked the beginning of the scrapping of American war craft required under the naval limitation treaty.

Army air officers who observed the operation from the transport St. Mihiel, were reported to have regarded it as demonstrating the possibility of concentrating air forces at any important point along the coast to ward off an enemy attack. The marksmanship demonstrated in bombing from the extreme altitude of 10,000 feet, the second important element in the test, also was said to have been gratifying to the army observers who included Assistant Secretary of War Davis, General Pershing and other officers.

School Board Controversy.

HOUSTON.—The question of whether a special election must be held to elect successors to "hold over" members of the school board of the Houston independent school district has been submitted to the attorney general's department at Austin for ruling by County Judge Bryan. It probably will be some time before the controversy over board members is settled, it is stated.
