ROAD CONTRACTS MADE AFTER TWO COURTS ACT

United States Again Insists Britain And France Pay Dec. 15 Installments

STIMSON NOTE FIRM IN CALL FOR PAYMENT

Message Takes Solid Stand But Leaves Method Of Exchange Open

TO ANSWER FRANCE

Secretary Disagrees With View That Loans Spent Largely in U. S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—The United States again insisted on payment of the Dec. 15 war debt installment, in its latest note to Great Britain, but left the way open to have it done in the manner considered least disruptive to world finance.

Made public tonight, Secretary Stimson's communication expressed confidence congress would "be willing to consider any reasonable suggestion" from the English "which will facilitate payment" of the $95,550,000 due a week from today. It also revealed informal suggestions have been made to Great Britain as to how the payment might best be met, but did not show the nature of the proposals.

U. S. REPLIES TO FRANCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—America's reply to France's second note appealing for debt relief was handed to Ambassador Claudel tonight by Secretary Stimson.

The note was formulated today in extensive conferences between President Hoover, Secretary Mills and Mr. Stimson.

It was believed that the communication undoubtedly insisted upon payment of France's Dec. 15 installment on her war debt.

Ambassador Claudel called at Mr. Stimson's suburban home, and the note was presented to him there.

The note was studied with interest on Capitol hill but leaders were cautious in commenting on the reference to the acceptability of a new form of making the transfer.

Congress Adamant

Those who did speak expressed the view that congress was adamant and not likely to consider any but the regular payment. Many, however, reserved comment to see what method of payment is proposed.

After a conference with President Hoover and Secretary Mills at the White House, Secretary Stimson tonight handed Ambassador Paul Claudel of France America's answer to his government's second request for extension of the moratorium.

It was believed to be of the same tenor as the note to Great Britain.

The reply to Great Britain said Mr. Hoover was ready to survey the international economic situation, and noted debt payments "have a very definite relationship to the problem of recovery."

Secretary Stimson said he welcomed the suggestion in the British note of Dec. 1 for a joint examination of the world economic situation in preparation for the international monetary and economic conference.

He expressed a belief "there are important avenues of mutual advantage which should be thoroughly explored," adding:

"Such an examination does not imply cancellation.

"In such an examination there would necessarily be consideration of other forms of tangible compensation available for the expansion of world markets for products of American agriculture and labor. And you will understand that the problem of foreign debts has in the American mind very definite relationship with the problem of disarmament and the continued burden which competitive armament imposes upon the entire world."

Stimson Disagrees

Stimson commented on implications in the British note that the money lent by the United States was spent entirely for destructive purposes and disagreed with that view.

"Of the amount expended in the United States by our debtors after we entered the war, both before and after the armistice, most of which was borrowed from the United States government on war and relief loans, less than one-third was spent for munitions and remounts," the reply said.

"Very large amounts were spent

Gov. Parnell Starts Campaign To Abolish U. S. Cotton Trading

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 8. (AP)—Charging the federal farm board has "done more to destroy the cotton market" than any other factor "except possibly the Grundy tariff act," Gov. Harvey Parnell today asked the governors of cotton producing states to join a movement to ask repeal of the farm board act as it affects cotton.

A cotton farmer himself, Governor Parnell telegraphed the other governors that he was convinced the only way "we shall see the return of happy days" is to get the government out of the cotton business.

Proposes Monthly Sales

He proppsed to the cotton states governors that they ask their senators and representatives to strive to bring about repeal of the act creating the board insofar as it gave the board power to handle cotton, and to require the board to sell each month a certain percentage of the cotton it now holds until the total is liquidated.

Governor Parnell said he opposed the appropriation of a "single cent" to the board or granting it any of the additional powers it yesterday asked of congress.

"Why should we spend more money or grant new powers to a bureaucratic organization which had the foolish conceptions that the farmer's problems could be solved merely by 'plowing up every third row of cotton,' 'slaughtering every 10th dairy cow' or 'limiting cotton production to home consumption'?" he asked.

"Ridiculous and Childish"

"Of course such policies are ridiculous and childish. But the entire program of the board as it affects cotton has been tragic and ruinous. Its activities, coupled with prohibitive tariffs, have almost destroyed the southern farmer.

"Our immediate need as I see it," he said, "is to get the government out of business and our immediate interest is cotton. Therefore, let us at once petition our representatives in congress to introduce appropriate legislation to abolish the farm board, to take the government out of the cotton business, and by legislative act to definitely dispose of the now existing surplus of cotton under government control.

Cut Competitive Selling

"I would suggest that such disposition be made over a period of two years by proportionate weekly sales between January and September of each year or so that a minimum of competitive selling would be offered during the harvesting period. Such sales, I think, should be of a public nature, advertised and offered in designated public markets."

As to restoring the farmer's foreign market, Governor Parnell said he was convinced it would be accomplished only by President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt's proposal for working out reciprocal trade agreements between this and other countries.

Wanderer Slain

A mysterious death ended the equally mysterious life of Walter Wanderwell, above, when companions aboard his schooner Carma at Long Beach, Calif., found him slumped over a table of South Sea maps, shot dead through the back. A professional wanderer, Wanderwell's name was revealed by justice department agents as Valerian Johannes Piecznyski, once accused of being a German spy.

SUSPECT HELD FOR SLAYING

Young Adventurer Blamed For Yacht Murder

LONG BEACH, Calif., Dec. 8. (UP)—William James Guy, carefree young adventurer, was cast in a slayer's role tonight as his police captors sought to link him with the dramatic midnight shooting of Capt. Walter Wanderwell, globe-trotter, wartime spy, and soldier of fortune.

Captured early today after a 48-hour search, the curly-haired Welshman was taken aboard the Wanderwell yacht Carma to re-enact for witnesses the events that preceded Monday night's killing.

But all four persons who saw or heard the mysterious stranger just before Wanderwell was felled by a shot in the back, and who heard Guy repeat the man's words under similar circumstances today, refused to identify him "positively." Unable to pierce Guy's wall of silence, beyond drawing denials and claims of an alibi from him—al-

Louisiana Liquor Law Void but Still Has Fangs

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8. (UP)—Louisiana's liquor law died today but district attorneys and sheriffs may still prosecute under it if they care to.

One section of the prohibition act, termed the "blind tiger" phase was not affected by the referendum voted against the Hood act in the last general election. Baker Hotel Receivership Sought by Milk Dealer

FORT WORTH, Dec. 8. (UP)—Although attorneys for the Baker company, owners of the Baker hotel properties in Dallas, declared the delay may injure the financial framework of the hotel system in Texas, Federal Judge James C. Wilson will rule next Wednesday on an application for receivership for the Baker company.

The application for the receiver was filed by the Dallas Milk company, which claimed the hotel has refused to pay for dairy products delivered between Sept. 1 and Dec. 7, amounting to $4,063. The Ben Keith Produce company, Fort Worth, joined in the application, claiming a $2,396 fruit bill was unpaid.

A denial that the company is insolvent or in any danger of becoming so was entered by counsel for the Baker company.

Pleas Offered by State In Cotton Rate Dispute

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—Pleas of privilege in the case of the state against the Texas and Pacific Railway company, brought in an effort to compel the railroad commission cotton rates on shipments from the Mesilla valley, near El Paso, to Texas ports, were presented in Travis county district court today.

The state alleged that the railroad has applied interstate rates to the cotton, these rates being less than the tariffs prescribed by the railroad commission. It was contended the railroad commission rates were applicable.

'U. S. NEEDS 5c BEER'

Matthew Woll and Medical Expert Testify For Wet Advocates

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Bootleg beer and "bottled highballs" were displayed before the wets and drys of the house ways and means committee today as another group of Volstead law madification advocates urged early legalization of non-intoxicating wines and lager.

It was the second of the six days of hearings on the Democratic sponsored modification bill providing for 2.75 per cent beer and legalization of wine. The proceedings were enlivened by witnesses and committee members to the delight of the large audience by discussions of how much alcohol is needed to produce intoxication.

Cellar Backs Highball

It was Representative Celler, Democrat, New York, who sponsored legalization of the "bottled highball" of 10 to 11 per cent alcohol, four of which he exhibited with the permission of J. M. Doran, commissioner of the bureau of industrial alcohol.

Two bottles of "bootleg beer," which he said was "good beer" and contained 5.2 per cent alcohol, were displayed by Frank Schwab former mayor of Buffalo, N. Y., representative of the Broadway Products association and Tonawanda Beverage company.

"You must have been over three per cent by weight," Schwab said, "to have real beer. How can we

Oil Ouster Suit Is Recessed Over Allred's Protest

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—Taking of testimony preliminary to trial of a suit brought by the state against 15 oil companies and two oil associations for alleged violation of the Texas anti-trust laws recessed today until Jan. 3 over the vigorous objection of Atty. Gen. James V. Allred.

Application for the recess was made by the defense to allow W. P. Boyd Jr., executive vice president of the American Petroleum institute, to take a rest. Boyd had been on the stand as the witness intermittently for the past five weeks. He had been under cross-examination by attorneys for the defendants during the last three days.

Postponement of the preliminary hearing was expected to delay the actual trial of the case in the Travis county district court until well into next year. The testimony and exhibits introduced at the preliminary hearing will be introduced at the main trial.

Attorneys for the institute stated Boyd's physical condition was such that he needed a rest and, although his condition was by no means serious, it was advisable that a lengthy recess be ordered. Boyd planned to return to his home at Teague tomorrow. Boyd did not ask for the recess and said that so far as he was concerned the preliminary hearing could continue.

Tarrant County to Sue Justices of Peace

FORT WORTH, Dec. 8. (UP)—Tarrant county will file suit for recovery of $5,295 allegedly due the county by Justices of the Peace J. H. Faulkner and Walter Prichard.

The sum represents fees collected in 1931, according to a report filed by County Auditor W. E. Yancy today. The report contends Faulkner owes $2,917 and Prichard $2,376 in fees collected in 1931, but which accrued prior to that year. The county's claim is based on a ruling by the attorney general that delinquent fees cannot be applied to payment of salaries of deputies unless current receipts are insufficient to pay the deputies and the office holder.

WINTER HOLDS GRIP ON TEXAS

Minimum Here Is 21, And 11 at Amarillo

Temperature in the Wichita area was 11 degrees below freezing early Thursday, the 21-degree minimum being within three degrees of the coldest weather of the current winter season. The dry and hard nature of the freeze threatened small grain crops of this county but no check on possible damage was available late Thursday.

The mercury climbed to 43 degrees Thursday afternoon but dropped to 26 at midnight. Clouds had gathered and a few falling snowflakes were observed.

(By The Associated Press)

Winter took a firm grip on Texas Thursday. From the Panhandle to the Gulf of Mexico its strength was felt.

In the vicinity of Corpus Christi, small craft were advised to stay off gulf waters, while truck growers were warned to protect their crops.

FERGUSON AND OTHERS MEET DEFEAT TWICE

Civil Appeals Tribunal Denies Writ to Halt Construction Work

ALLRED AIDS BOARD

$4,000,000 in New Highway Projects Are Awarded Thursday Night

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—James E. Ferguson and others, trying to restrain the Texas highway commission from awarding construction contracts, were defeated in two courts today, the supreme court and the third court of civil appeals.

After the state's highest tribunal refused to give the complainants a restraining order to hold up lettings until the plaintiffs could perfect an application for writ of error from a decision of the third court of civil appeals dissolving a district court injunction precluding the awards, the civil appeals court, resorted to again, overruled a motion to stay its mandate to permit an appeal to the higher court.

Contracts Awarded

The supreme court handed down its decision at noon. Two hours later attorneys for Ferguson were back in the appeals court pleading for a stay order. The appeals court turned in its adverse decision at 8 p. m.

Ten minutes later the commission awarded $4,000,000 worth of construction contracts, bids on which were received last week. The district court injunction had been issued on the eve of the advertised lettings. The commission tabulated the low bids but desisted from making awards. They withheld action after the third court of appeals decision of Tuesday, and again today until after the supreme court and the civil appeals had acted on the new motions.

Announcement that the awards had been made was made by Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer. W. R. Ely, chairman, and D. K. Martin, member of the commission had been here prepared to make the awards.

Charges Contempt

Ocie Speer, one of the attorneys for Ferguson and his co-plaintiffs, told the civil appeals court, in arguing his plea for a stay order, that should the contracts be awarded he would ask the supreme court to hold the commissioners in contempt after he had perfected his application for a writ of error to that court.

Speer was not in court tonight when the final decision was handed down. Ike White, another attorney for the applicants for a restraining order, represented that side of the litigation. Speer could not be reached for a statement.

Everything's O. K.," said Chairman Ely after the contracts had been awarded.

Ferguson, husband of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, governor-elect, was joined in the complaints by Bailey Hardy and John Chamberlain, they alleging that the commission had already contracted to pay in excess of available funds for the fiscal year ending next Aug. 31.

Lack Jurisdiction

C. M. Cureton, chief justice of the supreme court, in rendering a decision from the bench on the application for a restraining order, after previously conferring in chambers with attorneys on both sides of the case, said the court was without jurisdiction, that the matter would have to come before it in the regular way, on application for writ of error.

Under the law the plaintiffs would have 15 days in which to file a motion for a rehearing in the civil appeals court and 30 days from then to perfect an application for a writ of error, should the rehearing be denied.

Judge Disqualifies

Associate Justice Thomas B. Greenwood of the supreme court did not sit in deciding the application to file a petition for a restraining order, because, Chief Justice Cureton announced, he ascertained he was related to Hardy, one of the plaintiffs in the district court.

Arguing his application for a stay order before the third court of civil appeals, Ocie Speer, attorney for Ferguson and his co-plaintiffs, said that in event the highway commissioners sign the contracts it was sought to restrain them from letting he would ask that they be

Japan Determined To Pursue Policy In Manchuria, League Assembly Told

GENEVA, Switzerland, Dec. 8. (AP)—Defending the Japanese policy toward Manchuria, Yosuke Matsuoka told the League of Nations assembly today that the United Japanese people are so sure of the righteousness of their cause they are prepared to support it in the face of the severest penalties provided by the league covenant.

The Tokyo delegate made this statement after he had protested vigorously against a resolution which proposed to condemn Japan's military activities in Manchuria as incompatible with existing international treaties.

This resolution, Mr. Matsuoka declared, displayed an "accusing spirit which I deem altogether unwarranted."

Representatives of Spain, the Irish Free State, Sweden and Czecho-Slovakia had presented the resolution, which asserted that Japan had not acted in legitimate self-defense in Manchuria, that the establishment of the state of Manchukuo violated existing treaties, and that an international body, with the United States and Russia participating, should attempt to effect a conciliatory settlement.

Mr. Matsuoka demanded either that the authors of this resolution

U. S. INSISTS ON PAYMENT

Stimson Note Calls For Payment Dec. 15

for food, tobacco, etc., for cotton and exchange, for relief and surplus supplies sold on credit, for repayments of commercial loans, and for interest. Much of the food, tobacco, cotton relief and other supplies sold on credit were resold by the government for use of their own civilian population. In certain cases these supplies were actually resold and the funds turned into the treasury of the debtor governments.

"The amounts used to purchase exchange were in realty loans by the United States to the allied countries which were no doubt expended by them in part at least in countries other than the United States; they served to maintain the value of allied currencies. Some of the loans made after the armistice were vital to the recovery, and indeed, to the very existence of the borrowing nations."

The cabinet officer also said the British note seemed to overemphasize the influence war debts payments have had on world economy.

"In general it is our view that the causes of this depression lie in much more potent forces than these debt transactions," the note continued.

Cites League Paper

"We notice that similar conclusions have been indicated in the careful study published by the League of Nations entitled 'The Course and Phases of the World Economic Depression'."

It was pointed out by Secretary Stimson that the British note omitted service items in its inferences as to the difficulties of payments. He said American tourists spent approximately $3,400,000,000 in foreign lands between 1924 and 1930 and that immigrant remittances from this country for that period aggregated $1,495,000,000.

All this money, Secretary Stimson said, should be compared with the total receipts of $1,673,000,000 by this country on debt settlements for the corresponding time.

The American reply also disagreed with the contention that debt payments to the United States have drained the gold reserves of other countries.

"The gold holdings of the United States at the time payments upon these debts began were about $4,028,000,000 and they now stand at about $4,338,000,000," Secretary Stimson said.

Senator's View

He next commented on the gold situation in Europe:

"The main fault in the distribution of gold supplies seems to us to have occurred as between the different countries of Europe as the gold supplies of Europe increased from about $3,018,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1924, to about $6,963,000,000 at present; the distribution of which as between the countries of Europe cannot be attributed to forces originating in the United States."

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, said:

"In general I agree with the attitude expressed by the note. It is universally understood that the Dec. 15 payment is to be made but it is exceedingly difficult in advance to say that any new method for payment would be accepted."

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, said: "I believe that congress feels that the European debtors should either pay or default."

Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, said: "I don't think congress has any intention of agreeing to any revision or modification of the debts."

FRENCH PREMIER MAY RECOMMEND PAYMENT

PARIS, Dec. 8. (AP)—After Prime Minster Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and Premier Edouard Herriot of France had conferred more than four hours, it appeared tonight England was planning to pay the war debt installment due the United States Dec. 15, and that the French premier would recommend to parliament that France pay with definite reservations.

The utmost reserve was maintained in British official quarters regarding what Mr. MacDonald told M. Herriot, but it was emphasized neither government had irrevocably committed itself to any course so far as payment is concerned.

The French premier, however, got the impression that Britain will make the $95,550,000 payment due the middle of the month.

Cabinet to Decide

There was no irrevocable commitment on the part of the British because the due date has not arrived and the cabinet must make the final decision.

The French refrained from any commitment because Premier Herriot has parliament on his hands. He must convince parliament it is advisable to pay. The premier was represented as feeling that failure to pay would isolate France and would prejudice the British and French efforts to obtain a final settlement.

There still was hope here that some sort of arrangement to suspend the December payment might be made. This was indicated by a report in the lobbies of the chamber of deputies that Mr. MacDonald and M. Herriot had sent a message to President Hoover asking him to make a last effort to effect suspension. Attempts to elect a verification or denial of this report from an official British spokesman brought forth no reply.

The belief there still was a possibility of postponing the payment due the 15th was strengthened by a statement from M. Herriot to the chamber of deputies in which he opposed general debate on the debt question Saturday.

"To institute debate before Monday put us outside the field of discussion," the premier said.

Public Feeling Explained

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, asserted "we have reason to believe the government, in accord with the British, is continuing the discussions."

An official communique on the MacDonald Herriot meeting said:

"The two governments have explained to one another the state of public feeling in Great Britain and in France. In a very exhaustive exchange of views they have considered their position in regard to the Lausanne agreements, and they have examined the difficulties arising out of the payments due Dec. 15.

"While reaffirming their independence of action in dealing with this matter, they have affirmed their common determination to continue to act in order to obtain by international cooperation the measures calculated to promote the economic restoration of the world."

An official British spokesman interpreted this communique as expressing the desire of Britain and France to maintain the Lausanne agreements, under which German reparations virtually were eliminated. As long as the Lausanne agreements are maintained, the spokesman said, the situation with reference to France's war debt to England will be unchanged. Premier Herriot was represented as being pleased at this result, as it meant that France will not have to make any payments to England before the two nations have made a final agreement with the United States.

STATE AWARDS HIGHWAY JOBS

held in contempt by the supreme court after he gets his application for writ of error before that tribunal.

Allred Backs Commission

James V. Allred, state attorney general, who has handled the responsibility for action of the commissioners in awarding the contracts should they act.

Allred had informed the commission immediately after the third court of civil appeals dissolved the district court injunction last Tuesday that, in his opinion, it was free to execute the contracts.

Commissioners Present

W. R. Ely, chairman, and D. K. Martin, member of the commission, were here today prepared to award the contracts. On advice of Allred they withheld action until the supreme court decided on the application for a restraining order, and, after the plaintiffs went back to the civil appeals court for a stay order, they still refrained from making awards with the litigation in that status.

The temporary injunction was granted in district court on the eve of an advertised letting of $4,000,000 in construction, the applicants claiming the commission already had contracted to pay out of the highway fund in excess of its probable income for the fiscal year ending on Aug. 31, 1933.

though he admitted quarreling with Wanderwell—detectives said they would go through the scene aboard the Carma again tonight. They hoped that darkness would stimulate members of Wanderwell's "cooperative" adventure crew to a clearer recollection.

Tells of Trouble

Found in an abandoned, vacant house in Los Angeles, Guy told of an altercation with Wanderwell which he claimed started when the mariner and his blond wife, Aloha Wanderwell, deserted them at Panama after getting passage money from them.

"I finally caught up with him in Los Angeles after working my way to the states," Guy said. "I went to his hotel and found two men who were about to sign up for another of Wanderwell's cruises. I told them what had happened to me and warned them to have no dealings with him."

"Wanderwell came in and I told him he owed me $200 for the passage money. He promised to meet me at the police station the next day and pay me, but I didn't keep the appointment. I had entered the states illegally and I was afraid he would make trouble for me.

"But I didn't kill him. I had dinner Monday night in Glendale and went to bed early."

Alibi Upheld

Guy's alibi was tentatively corroborated by Mrs. Isabel de Larme, who told police that Guy dined with her and her husband Edward, free-lance aviator, the night of the slaying. The latter also will be questioned, officers said.

Wanderwell, who with his wife has been through scores of adventures in all parts of the world, was planning a cruise in the Carma to the South seas when he met death. Sixteen young men and women, including Edward Montagu, son of the ninth duke of Manchester, had paid $190 each to accompany the Wanderwells.

Cuthbert Wills, engineer, of Hastings, England; Marian Smith, Rockmart, Ga.; Mary Park, Saugus, Mass., and Edmund Zoranski, Wilmington, Del., cameraman, were in the main cabin when the "man at the porthole" appeared.

Charges Filed

They took their seats on the craft today and Guy reluctantly spoke the words they said their visitor spoke that night.

"Is the captain in?" Guy asked, on promptings of police.

"Yes, are you the electrician?" Wills responded.

"No, but I know a lot about electricity."

Wills escorted Guy down the companionway, just as he had the man at midnight.

The play ended at this point. That night, the man continued to Wanderwell's cabin. A shot was heard, and the quartet in the cabin rushed in to find the captain dead. The mysterious stranger was gone.

Suspicion of murder charges were lodged against Guy to hold him while police continue their investigation. He also may be held for federal authorities for alleged illegal entry, it was said.

Woman's Whistle Regains Stolen Birds, Jails Man

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8. (AP)—When Mrs. Grace Abbott whistled calls, three canaries in a flock of 46 convinced Municipal Judge T. B. Reed that their names were "Algy," "Pretty Boy" and "Sweetheart." So the judge sent them back to Mrs. Abbott's home, from which they were reported stolen Nov. 24. At the same time he sent Luigi Maragliano to a cell where no bird song will gladden his heart for 30 days. Maraglino's whole aviary had been brought to court for the test.

withdraw it or that it be put to an immediate vote.

"I'm afraid," he said, "that the handling of this resolution may—I even think it will—entail consequences perhaps not intended or anticipated by its authors."

The assembly's response to this protest, which was made as a point of order, was postponed until tomorrow.

In discussing the unity of Japan, the Tokyo delegates upheld the course taken by the Japanese military authorities.

"The whole nation," he said, "is solidly behind the military leaders, who have acted as they should. There are 65,000,000 of them. Do you think all of them have gone mad?"

One development of the day's debating which was looked upon as significant was the support given by Canadian and Australian delegates to the plea for a program of conciliation made yesterday by Britain through foreign secretary Sir John Simon.

Highballs Shown In Beer Hearing

compete with bootleg beer with 2.75 per cent beer?"

Woll Asks 3.20 Beer

"If the alcoholic content is 3.20 per cent by weight and the tax is fixed at $5 a barrel," said Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, "then I feel that the United States is in sight of a tremendous reversal of psychology and in sight of a tremendous increase in employment." He added:

"The nation needs a good five-cent glass of beer."

In arguing for his "bottled highball," Representative Celler, said:

"We are a nation of hard whisky drinkers, prohibition to the contrary notwithstanding. We have been consuming 160,000,000 gallons of liquor yearly under prohibition."

Sees Big Revenue

With a tax of four cents an ounce on his "bottled highball," he said, the revenue return "on a conservative estimate will be $600,000,000 yearly." The estimated revenue of $200,000,000 from legalized beer and $30,000,000 from wine, Celler estimated, would be insufficient to overcome the treasury deficit.

The dignified but humorous Yandell Henderson, professor of applied physiology at Yale, startled the committee and audience once when he said "An average man can drink a pint of whisky without harm," but he quickly changed the statement to one that "three highballs" could be taken by the average man in a day without harm.

Compares Drinks

But Professor Henderson drove home his point that "four per cent beer is so diluted as to be virtually non-intoxicating," and added "beer of about four per cent is not appreciably more intoxicating than an equal volume of coffee." Later he also added "tea."

He produced a liter measure and a small bottle of water to illustrate before the committee, his contention of the decreasing effects of spirits as they are diluted.

"If a man pours four per cent beer into his body," Henderson said, "its effect would not begin until he had swallowed a relatively enormous quantity. Beer and wine are generally taken with and after meals. On the other hand, cocktails and highballs are usually taken before meals. The absorption is rapid and the effect great."

By legalization of beer, Owen T. Cull, Chicago, general freight agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad, said, the railroads of the country would be benefited annually by an increase of $80,000,000 in business.

LUNCH FUND CLOSES TODAY

Between $300 and $500 Needed for Kids

school children until the end of school!

Gifts came in at a merry clip Thursday, for a total only 25 cents short of $300 for the day. The total for the fund jumped to $1,348.03. It is hoped that gifts today will be sufficient, with the matinee to be given Dec. 24 by the Majestic theater, to assure the continuation of the program until the end of the school year. Between $300 and $500 is needed as a minimum to reach the goal.

Oil Men Contribute

Fred Sehmann, Wichita Falls oil operator, turned "messenger" for the benefit of the fund and brought in checks for nearly $200, practically all of which was given by Wichita Falls oil operators. Mr. Sehmann visited around with his friends, and as usual found the oil men among the most willing to contribute and among the most generous of Wichita's citizens. Bith this year and last year the oil men of the city have been among the leading contributors.

Checks for $50 came in from Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Ferguson, the Petroleum Producers company and the King Royalty company. The United Producers company added $25 and T. O. Shappell $10. The Wichita Produce company and personnel chipped in $22.50 and Shelomi Temple, Daughters of the Nile; The Ben Franklin P.-T. A. and C. W. Snider added $10 each. Numerous other contributions, ranging from 25 cents to $5, were turned in.

Friday will be the final day for public contributions, and this newspaper again asks that those who can aid these children turn in their gifts today. Acknowledgement will be made by The Record News and Daily Times of all contributions.

No Overhead—No Red Tape

The operation of the school lunch fund is simple. There is no overhead or red tape. Cases are investigated by members of the P.-T. A. Deserving children are put on the lunch list with the approval of the principal of the school. Contributions are entirely voluntary and the appeal for funds is made only through the columns of the two Wichita daily newspapers, there being no other organization or medium for the aid of these children.

A 5-cent luncheon, consisting of vegetables and bread and occasionally meat, is given each child and in especially needy cases, a 5-cent bottle of milk is added. Contributions may be handed or sent The Record News and Daily Times, or given to Lester Jones, treasurer of the fund, at the Wichita State bank.

The mercury dropped to 30 degrees at Dallas, according to the U. S. weather bureau down town, but the municipal airport reported 25 degrees. They are about five miles apart.

At San Antonio freezing weather which had been forecast did not materialize, as a blanket of clouds protected against winds sweeping down from the north. The official minimum was 43 degrees.

Houston reported a low of 45 degrees with a forecast of slightly colder. It was cold and raining with the thermometer standing at 50 degrees in Galveston. Beaumont reported a minimum of 51 degrees and Austin about 50.

The thermometer at Corpus Christi ranged between 50 and 60 degrees, and the forecast called for rain and probably sleet with much lower temperatures.

There wa slittle change in the temperature at El Paso, which reported a minimum of 39 and a maximum of 65.

ALTUS, Okla., Dec. 8.—Program for the annual Jackson county teachers meeting to be held in Altus Saturday at the city auditorium has been announced by W. H. Dunsworth, county superintendent of schools.

C. M. Howell, secretary of the Oklahoma Education association, from Oklahoma City will be the principal speaker during the morning session.

The principal address during the afternoon session will be by C. M. Richards, president of the Southwestern State Teachers college at Weatherford.

School superintendents who are to make short talks during the afternoon session are Hugh M. Eley, superintendent at the Humphrey school; L. L. Chisum, Ozark; J. ... Riley, Olustee; J. Fred Eager, Blair.

S. E. Spann, superintendent of the Martha school, is president of the Jackson County Athletic and Oratorical association, and will preside at the meetings.

Music will be furnished from 10 a. m. until 10:30 a. m. by the Altus school.

A business meeting will be conducted as the closing session of the meeting. This business meeting is particularly important since it is the only meeting at which changes may be made in the constitution and bylaws of the Jackson County Athletic and Oratorical association, which governs interscholastic contests among the schools of the county.

Practically all teachers from all schools in the county are expected to attend the meeting.

BLAST BLIGHTS YULE SPIRIT

Somber Wreaths Appear As Gayer Signs Spread

MADRID, N. M., Dec. 8. (AP)—Fourteen sombre wreaths today appeared among the gay red and green wreaths of the Christmas season.

The "town of Christmas tinsel" has forgotten that the yuletide nears. Every year people come from miles around to see the "town of Christmas tinsel."

The street decorations were in place yesterday morning as roughly dressed miners waved their lunch pails to wives in doorways, promising they would finish the wreaths when they returned from the Morgan-Jones mine where they were killed in an explosion. For each there was a sombre wreath today.

The fate that stalks every miner overtook them before they had time after reaching the inside depth of the mine to lay down their lunch pails and pick up their shovels.

In a morgue today there are 14 bodies. Outside there are many green and red wreaths but there also are black wreaths. There will be no yule in the "town of Christmas tinsel."

BROTHERS VIE IN COURT SUIT

Members of Stark Family In Legal Battle

HOUSTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Brother was arrayed against brother in a suit for alleged commissions in excess of $1,500,000 on trial today before Judge Ewing Boyd in district court here and involving one of the wealthiest family groups in the South.

A. M. H. Stark, with Miss Jessie Irby, sued his brother, W. H. Stark; his sister-in-law, Mrs. Stark; his nephew, Lutcher Stark; and E. W. Brown Jr., and Lutcher Brown. The litigation involves the sale of 86,000 acres of timber land in Jasper, Newton and Sabine counties, in 1917, to R. W. Wier, Houston lumber man, by the Stark-Brown interests.

The plaintiffs claimed that by a verbal agreement they were entitled to recover all over a stipulated price per acre that Wier agreed to pay for the land. On the other hand, the defendants contended no such contract existed.

It was said the trial probably would require a week or more.

Unique Horse Show Staged in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8. (AP)—A horse show is being staged in an art gallery here and its sponsors promise more color than any other horse show ever had. The theme is "The Horse in Art," and the 540 exhibits include everything from horseshoe nails to fancifully designed merry-go-round horses. There are paintings, drawings, engravings, etchings, tapestries, carvings and statuettes. There are horses of stone, marble, metal, porcelain, glass, wire and even straw. But it's a show without a stableman and baled hay.

President Extends R. F. C. Loan Period

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—In a formal proclamation, President Hoover late today extended the period under which the reconstruction corporation may make loans to relieve destitution and expedite public works until Jan. 22, 1934.

The act creating the reconstruction corporation included a proviso to the effect that loans might be made under this session "at any time prior to the expiration of one year from the date of the enactment hereof."

The act was signed by the president last Jan. 22.

It also provided, however, that "the president may from time to time postpone such date of expiration for such additional period or periods as he may deem necessary, not to exceed two years from the date of the enactment hereof."

In his proclamation the president extended the lending powers of the corporation for an additional year or until Jan. 22, 1934.

Texas Pipe Line Company Moves Fort Worth Division Office Here

The removal of its offices of the North Central Texas division from Fort Worth to Wichita Falls was announced Thursday by the Texas Pipe Line company here.

The move in transferring the department here was made in order to centralize operations in the North Texas territory now under the direction of O. R. Burden, superintendent for all North Texas.

The move transfers to this city J. B. Haden as assistant superintendent to Mr. Burden. Mr. Haden will be in charge of all field operations in the north central division which includes Stephens, Young, Haskell, Coleman, Shackleford, and practically all territory south of Olney, and adjacent fields.

Mr. Haden, who is one of the oldest Texas company men in point of service, has been with the Texas Pipe Line company since its organization approximately 30 years ago and is widely known throughout all fields in the mid-continent. Before the consolidation of the Fort Worth headquarters about one year ago with the Wichita Falls office he was superintendent in the former city. Roy T. Lockhart, chief clerk in the office, has also been transferred to the local headquarters.

The transfer of the Fort Worth office will mean that practically all operations of the Texas Pipe Line company in North and the North Central Texas divisions will be under the supervision of Mr. Burden's office here.

The Panhandle and northern tier of counties which include Wichita, Wilbarger, Cooke, Montague, Archer and Clay, known as the Wichita Falls district, is continued under H. A. Basham, assistant to Mr. Burden.

This is the second important removal of oil offices here within the past month. The King Royalty company of Wichita Falls recently purchased the Dixon Creek Oil and Refining company of Amarillo and established operating headquarters here.

H. A. Matthews, Shappell Oil company employe residing in the Valley View community, suffered a broken leg Thursday night when he overturned his light automobile in averting a collision with a truck. The car overturned between Valley View and Iowa Park when Mr. Matthews swerved his car suddenly to avoid a truck, which he stated was approaching without lights. The truck did not stop, he told attendants at the Hargrave-Walker hospital. Mr. Matthews was en route home from the hospital at the time with medicine obtained for a member of his family who is ill with pneumonia.

Lumberman Testifies In Texas Man's Theft Trial

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 8. (AP)—Russell Slade, Palo Alto lumberman and a prosecution witness in the grand theft trial of Eldridge S. Price, Dallas, Texas, oil promoter, admitted under cross-examination today he paid Price $2,000 after seeing the "dry wells" at Beeville, Texas.

Price is charged with the sale of allegedly worthless oil stock in the Beeville field to a group of Californians, who contend an examination of the property showed it contained only two dry wells.

The defense, in turn, contends although the property is not now producing it is a potentially valuable oil development.

Tuberculosis Association's Fight On Dread Disease Reviewed By Ogle

By J. R. OGLE
President, Wichita County Tuberculosis Association

If the citizens of Wichita county could all know as much about the activities of the Wichita County Tuberculosis association, what it is doing and is accomplishing, as that small band of workers and directors that make it possible do, or even if most of the articles in the press were read, acquainting the public with the work, it might not be necessary for us to attempt this most earnest appeal to the citizens to rally to our support, if we are to continue our work here during the full year of 1932. We get along with so little, that it would seem a pity if we had to give up, when there are hundreds of families every year in our midst crying out to us for advice, help and instructions. Think of the vast numbers benefitted through us, and of the increasing numbers who have gone to the state sanatorium.

It is our policy to remove from our mailing list, those names who have failed to contribute, to our knowledge for three successive years, and if only one in five or more make a contribution, it would appear that our citizenship does not appreciate the work being done as a whole sufficiently for us to carry on. We are doing everything possible this year to supplement our fund, as we cannot continue to borrow in order to do this work, and if our people that have received these seals, and who we have every reason to feel are most friendly to our work, will only respond immediately with such sums as they can pay, I am sure their gifts will not only make it possible to continue, but to bless and serve more people and preserve more life than can be imagined.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul; skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

Be sure, good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get them two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

VET PAYMENT FIGHT OPENS

Several Developments Noted in Bonus Dispute

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Those for and against reducing the sums America pays to her veterans today got down to business.

First, Democratic house leaders said they did not expect the regular veterans committee to take any action this session on President Hoover's recommendations for cutting $127,000,000 a year from veterans benfits.

Then, the joint congressional committee named to study all veterans laws with an eye to economy met, elected representative McDuffie, Democrat, Alabama, chairman and decided to begin hearings tomorrow.

Afterward, Representative Patman, Democrat, Texas, took the house floor to urge again immediate payment of the adjusted compensation certificates. The bill he sponsored to do this passed the house and was killed in the senate last session.

At the same time, Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, chairman of the subcommittee that will handle the veterans administration bill, said he saw no way his group could reduce the annual billion dollar expenditure on veterans unless congress changes the law.

SOVIET SPURNS BRITISH NOTE

Russia Refuses Apology For Printed Article

LONDON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Disclaiming any responsibility, the Soviet government has refused Great Britain's demand for an apology for accusations against the British intelligence service published in the Moscow newspaper Isvestia, official organ of the Soviet administration.

Information about the Russian refusal was obtained today from a high authority. The British protest concerned accusations by Isvestia that the intelligence service instructed agents in Riga, Latvia, to prove by "real or bogus documents" that the recent hunger marchers' demonstrations in Britain were directed from Moscow.

The soviet ambassador, it was learned, took the position that his government could not be held responsible for articles printed in Izvestia, as responsibility was vested in the editorial board. This board, in the Soviet view, is not an official body and Isvestia itself is an official publication only insofar as it circulates the government's proclamations.

It was understood that the Soviet ambassador refrained from expressing agreement with the Isvestia article to which Britain objected.

Capt. Anthony Eden, under secretary for foreign affairs, revealed in the house of commons yesterday that the British government had demanded an apology.

How One Woman Lost 10 Lbs. in a Week

Mrs. Betty Luedeke of Dayton writes: "I am using Kruschen to reduce weight—I lost 10 pounds in one week and cannot say too much to recommend it."

To take off fat easily, SAFELY and HARMLESSLY—take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water in the morning before breakfast—it is the safe way to lose unsightly fat and one bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Get it at Allison's Drug store or any drug store in America. If this first bottle fails to convince you this is the safest way to lose fat—money back.

But be sure and get Kruschen Salts—imitations are numerous and you must safeguard your health.—Adv.

Life Insurance Medico Sees Need For Education in 'Fine Art Of Drinking'

Anticipating Repeal of 18th Amendment, Doctor Suggests Americans Start Getting Away From 'Mule'

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Immediate education in the "art of drinking" was urged tonight by Dr. William Muhlberg of Cincinnati, former member of the Harvard university faculty.

"It is not too soon to begin educating people who want to drink in the art of using alcoholic beverages," he says. "In fact, such education is a definite responsibility of all organizations interested in public health."

Dr. Muhlberg, as medical director of the Union Central Life Insurance company, is here to attend meetings of the medical committee of the life insurance association

Suggests German Plan

In discussing the possibility of a change in the prohibition laws, he urged that Americans interested in the consumption of alcoholic beverages adopt a plan of drinking such as is used in the best families in Germany, where drinking for the most part is done with meals.

Dr. Muhlberg believes that a properly controlled distribution of alcoholic beverages may even result in better health, provided people are taught to drink moderately.

He believes, too, that any educational campaign should consider such points as when, how and what to drink. He said it is just as important to teach people who are going to drink, anyway, how to drink as it is to tell them what and how to eat.

"We know," he said, "that abstemious persons have good life expectancy ordinarily, but it is interesting to notice that authorities now are tending toward the belief that moderate drinkers do also, and it is probable that they are just as good risks as the abstemious persons. It is the higher brackets that cause trouble.

Can Be Fine Art

"It would be difficult now for that generation which has learned to drink 'mule' gin and other bootleg products to change its drinking customs immediately, but there is no reason why the succeeding generation should not be entirely sane about drinking.

"As a matter of fact, I think we will become less drink-conscious and when we do drinking will be done sensibly.

"Mothers especially must teach temperance and practice it, and I think they will. Those who must use alcoholic beverages must be made to realize that drinking really can be a fine art."

Mr. Muhlberg believes that the amount of alcohol imbibed should be limited to one ounce a day, which, he says, corresponds to one quart of light beer, half a pint of light wine, or two ounces of whisky or brandy.

Stewart, who was en route from Brackettsville to San Angelo, escaped uninjured.

RAILS SUBMIT EQUALITY PLEA

Document to Coolidge Gives 7-Point Program

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—The railroads, tooting for a clear track to prosperity, delivered a bulky document to Calvin Coolidge and associates today.

It contained the story of the railroads' plight, a plea for "equality and opportunity" and a seven-point program intended to rescue the nation's gigantic network of steel and rolling stock from a situation called grave.

Counsel Speaks

Alfred P. Thom, general counsel for the association of railway executives, spoke for the railroads of the country in presenting the statement to the national transportation committee, headed by Coolidge.

Summarized, the recommendations were:

"1. Amend the Reconstruction Finance corporation act so as to permit loans to railroads upon certificate of the Interstate Commerce commission that a proposed loan is, in its judgment, adequately secured or that the past record of earnings of that carrier and its prospect for future earnings furnished reasonable assurance of the applicant's ability to repay.

"2. Repeal the recapture provisions of the section 15A of the interstate commerce act, which requires a railroad to give the government one-half of its earnings above 6 per cent.

Vehicle Regulation

"3. Federal and state regulation of commercial vehicles operating over the public highways.

"4. Federal government should retire from oppressive taxation, and government subsidies to various other agencies of transportation in competition with the rail carriers should be discontinued.

"6. Enactment of federal legislation as to railway consolidations or unifications, to encourage voluntary consolidation under proper supervision.

"7. Relaxation of existing regulations of the railroads in order to enable them more nearly to meet the competition of other agencies of transportation, and application of similar regulations so far as applicable to these new forms of transportation so as to bring about equality of opportunity."

Wages Discussed

The seven points did not cover the question of wages, now a moot one, but elsewhere in the statement, Thom said:

"The railroads wish to emphasize the gravity of the problem confronting them and their investors and the public, in what they believe is the serious maladjustment of railroad wages. They regard the present level of railroad wages as unjustified and profoundly injurious to the public interest."

The Coolidge committee was formed by saving banks and insurance companies to investigate the troubles of the railroads and survey all forms of transport. It is expected to suggest legislation at the conclusion of its labors.

Smith on Committee

Other members of the committee are Alfred E. Smith, Clark Howell, editor and general manager of the Atlanta Constitution; Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company, and Bernard M. Baruch, financier.

Thom said that as a result primarily of the depression, but also because of highway, air, water and pipe line competition, traffic and earnings of railroads have declined steadily since 1929. He said freight traffic in the first eight months of 1932 was 49 per cent under 1929. He added that net operating income for the first nine months of 1932 was 79 per cent under three years before.

"It is submitted," he said, "that if the restrictions imposed on the railroads are wise, and in the public interest, their competitors should be similarly regulated."

Parts of the program will be pressed at the short session of congress, Thom indicated.

Stephenville Man Heads Ice Makers

DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Mount Taylor of Stephenville was elected president at the closing session today of the 42nd annual convent of the Southwestern Ice Manufacturers association.

H. G. Terry of San Antonio was elected vice president and P. A. Weatherred of Houston was renamed secretary-counsel. New directors chosen were Allen Guinn of Mineral Wells, Knox Lee of Marshall, Ray Ariedge of Stamford, Rudolph Eckhardt Sr. of Houston and Carl Sapper of Galveston. Held over were B. S. Beaman of Houston, O. T. Clark of Fort Worth, F. Ostermueller of Dallas and P. E. McChesney of Beaumont.

To the executive committee was left selection of the 1933 convention city. Houston and Galveston had extended invitations.

Speakers today were Terry, chairman of the management section of the association, John Marshall of Houston and Weatherred.

Amarillo City Expenses Cut in Half for Year

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—Amarillo's city budget for the year shows that operating expenses have been cut in half.

Expenditures for the year ending April 15, 1933, will total $411,477.19, compared with $755,912.72 in 1930-31, and $673,055.63 in 1931-32. Present operating costs, however, are $30,000 a month, or $360,000 a year.

Mayor Ross D. Rogers said a large part of the saving was brought about by the elimination and consolidation of offices.

"Every department is operating with the least number of employes without impairment to service," he said. "Further savings will be put into affect wherever, and whenever, possible."

Woman Saves Diamonds In Robbery Attempt

SAN ANTONIO, Dec. 8. (INS)—Slugged and severely wounded by a young man who was on a "business call" at her home this morning, Mrs. Leota Mowers saved a bag of diamonds, said to be of great value, in a brief but violent struggle.

The young man who was about 20 years old, came to her home on pretenses of having a business proposition to talk over. Mrs. Mowers was knocked unconscious during the course of the struggle.

She regained consciousness and found the diamonds undisturbed in a hiding place. It is believed that the intruder was frightened from the house by passersby.

Masterly Review Given By Roy J. Daniel At Forum

Roy J. Daniel was the guest speaker following the luncheon of the literature department at the Woman's Forum clubhouse Thursday, giving a colorful story of Philip Guedalla's "Wellington," the outstanding non-fiction publication of 1931 and a biography chosen by the Literary guild in December of that year.

Arthur Wesley's school days were interestingly discussed; as a boy, Mr. Daniel stated, he did not measure up to the standard of scholarship set by his older brother Richard. He was a poor student, especially in Latin. A running commentary told of the three years he spent at Eton, and how after that time his mother went with him to Brussels for study of French.

"He was a tall gawky 17-year-old, at that time," the speaker said. "His mother was worried over what he would do in the world and herself chose soldiering for his profession. So at the age of 18, he became a commissioned officer in an Irish regiment with a commission equivalent to second lieutenant in the American army."

The young man's career started when he came aide to the lord-lieutenant of Ireland and borrowed $500 to keep up his social standing; an amount he paid back when he became major general. His political work in the Irish house of commons at the age of 20 appealed to him no more than soldiering; he became at captain in 1871, was stirred by the French revolution and then burned his fiddle, (he had loved playing it), making up his mind to become a real soldier. At 24, as a major, he took his regiment to Belgium to defend a threatened advance.

Major Wesley, as he was then known, was aristocratic in his ideals of the rule of government and the ideals of the French republic were repugnant to him. On being sent to India to become seaport general in Calcutta, he purchased (on credit) a military library and his studies then were probably the foundation of the plans that finally led to his plans for Napoleon's defeat.

While he was in Calcutta, his brother Richard was sent to India as governor, and Arthur found Richard was spelling his name Wellesley; he began spelling his in the same way. Richard made Arthur the commander in chief of the military forces in India, but when in 1801 the governor sent another man as commander of an expedition to Egypt, Arthur, who about this time became Sir Arthur Wellesley, became estranged, wishing to be sent himself.

His rapid rise in the military world was noted on his return to England. His brother was threatened with impeachment in India and Arthur became a tory in politics to assist his cause in England.

Plans Napoleon's Defeat

As military adviser to the English cabinet, Wellington first conceived a plan whereby Napoleon could be overthrown. In accordance with his plans, his army of 15,000 was sent to Portugal. Mr. Daniel drew a magnificent picture of the British infantry in scarlet uniform, lined up on a high ridge waiting the enemy attack, stating that this was Wellington's plan of battle. He gave orders his men should wait for the cavalry charge, fire and then use the bayonets.

Following his successful encounter in Portugal, he was sent to Spain, and pursuing the same tactics, drove the French over the Pyrenees, then invaded France. He was Lord Wellington now, and to his credit, the speaker said, he never underestimated Napoleon. Wellington stated that Napoleon's presence on the battle field was worth 40,000 men.

With the restoration of the monarchy, Wellington was sent to Paris as ambassador; France became restless and afraid of Wellington's assassination, England offered to send him to America; he refused and was sent to Vienna to take the place of the general sent to America.

"The spring came slowly in 1815," Mr. Daniel said; "that spring when Napoleon escaped from Elba." The high point of his review was given in his description of the battle of Waterloo. Wellington hurried to Brussels calling for English soldiers. He went into the battle with 63,000 men and 156 guns; Napoleon had 70,000 men and 266 guns. But as usual Wellington waited for the attack, riding his famous horse, drawing up his men in squares. As night came on, at the last of that famous battle, one could almost see the old guard thrown in by Napoleon and the end of the battle with the French crushed and defeated.

Wellington was at that time 46 years old, in the prime of his life, trim of figure and handsome. England honored him as a hero. He was made commander in chief of the army of occupation.

Wellington's life to its end was depicted in striking language by the speaker; his audience was held by the picture he drew of the great soldier.

Business Meeting

Mrs. H. B. Patterson introduced Mr. Daniel charmingly, stating that in his case it was not true that "a prophet is without honor in his own country."

"He is one of our most useful citizens," she said; "a teacher, a lecturer and a statesman."

Mrs. C. N. Alexander presided in the business meeting when reports were heard from officers. Mrs. J. J. Perkins, treasurer, reported $37.70 made from the book stall in the annual forum flower show. Mrs. Newton Maer spoke of the intensive drive for the cook book sale, urging that each forum member buy one book and sell one book so that the club might meet its obligations.

The table, arranged by Mrs. T. A. Hicks and Mrs. Grover C. Johnson, was a beautiful white Christmas scene. A snowy pathway ran the length of the three tables, bordered with snow sprinkled evergreens, and tall red tapers burned at the four corners. Exceptional simple dignity made it unusually attractive.

Covers were laid for Mesdames W. N. Maer, Frank Hoover, J. E. H. Railey, Opie R. Dunn, John Prewett, E. T. Duff, H. D. Fillers, G. D. Fox, C. D. Shamburger, Homer Lee, J. L. Jackson Jr., H. A. Decker, S. B. Faulkner, J. M. Hemby, A. O. Basham, J. J. Hagan, T. B. Gilbert, Nolan Horton, Earl Stuckey, H. E. Morrow, T. J. Brock, Grady England, Fletcher B. Pope, Thomas Reese, Ola G. Hamlin, C. N. Alexander, H. B. Patterson, J. J. Perkins, L. N. Cason and the speaker, Mr. Daniel.

Henry O'Malley, commissioner of fisheries, estimates that the number of anglers in the United States who fish for recreation exceeds 4,500,000.

Life insurance premiums paid in Florida this year amount to $23,975,822, an increase of nearly $800,000 over 1931.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

If the day of the wealthy farmer has been a little shadowy in the past few years, the day of the rural woman has dawned in a new glory. Reports made at the Wichita County Federation held in the Central Christian church in Burkburnett Tuesday and echoes from the T. F. W. C. in Corpus Christi in November, were to the glory of the rural women of Texas.

Literary clubs, of course, have magnificent objectives. Study of any cultural subject is a new richness for mind and spirit and that richness trickles through from the students to other people.

But to know that Wichita County clubs reported 225,000 containers of food products put up this year—with 450 women taking part in the work, speaks of woman's ability to cope with economic depression. These 450 women have also carried five young people through university courses with scholarships they maintain.

Cultural clubs are maintaining scholarships. Education is counted as preparation for life and in the past few years, college education would have been impossible to many girls and boys had it not been for groups of organized women. The D. A. R. has had the maintenance of scholarships as one of its objectives for years.

The importance of the home demonstration work and women's enthusiasm for it is shown by the fact that there were 900 delegates to the short course at A. & M. college this last summer and 500 visitors. Miss Horton, the state demonstration agent, spoke of this in her report at the T. F. W. C. in Corpus Christi.

In a beautiful talk made to the writers department of the Woman's Forum a short time ago, Mrs. A. H. Carrigan talked on early days in Wichita and told of her first Christmas here. One remark she made sticks in my memory. It is this: "One of the cherished traditions of our community is that we have shown unlimited faith in our fellowman until he is no longer worthy of it."

Rural women, united in home demonstration club work, are showing unlimited faith in the future of the community.

How fortunate America is, in spite of the depression, a depression that extends to Europe also, where, as Miss Ethel Luise Webb stated in her talk at the county federation, rural people, being often descendants of the serfs, accept a low standard of living. Rural people in America are the bone and sinew of the country. Without their success, we can have no success.

And speaking of Miss Webb's talk, we were amused by another statement she made. "Automobiles," she said, "are used much less than in the United States. They are much smaller. In England many three-wheeled automobiles are seen, due to the per wheel base of taxation." Perhaps if we had more three-wheeled automobiles, we would not travel so fast. But doubtless four wheels would be required here, just as three lights are required. Ours is the home of the brave and fearless state highway patrol. (No, they did not catch me without lights.)

We have no barefooted women carrying tremendous burdens along our highways. Woman in America, still holds the throne. Labor devices are just beginning to find their way into rural Europe. In America, demonstration clubs report on labor saving devices installed as a part of their objective.

The rural woman has found her place among the stars. Well poised, well educated, making the most of everything found on the farm, she has been the farmer's salvation for three years, and year by year, she will continue to advance.

Mrs. R. E. Stewart presided in a short business session, when plans were completed for the Christmas play, "A Christmas That Is Different," which will be presented Dec. 15 at the Sam Houston school.

Mrs. C. G. Arnold installed new officers with a beautiful candle lighting ceremony. Mrs. John B. McMahon, teacher and Mrs. R. E. Stewart, retiring president, received lovely gifts from the class and Mrs. Stewart presented each of her officers with a small gift. Gifts were exchanged from a pretty Christmas tree.

The Christmas decorations reached the high point in the pretty tree and the holiday colors were also used in the plate served to one guest, Mrs. Cecil Singleton and to members, including Mesdames Roy Thompson, John B. McMahon, R. E. Stewart, T. A. Flannery, Alvin Lawson, C. E. Martin, J. H. Hallmark, Horace B. Lindsey, R. C. Wood, C. F. Arnold, Henry Coger, J. H. Fine, John Singleton, Earnest Britton, J. H. Chas. H. Tennyson, Zundelowitz instructor explained "Peace Through Education." Our Children

By ANGELO PATRI

THE UNTRUTHFUL ONES

Little children have some difficulty in keeping fact and fantasy apart. To them they are very close. They look about alike to the eyes of childhood because those eyes have not functioned in the world of reality. It is not hard to know that sort of untruth and to set it right. The difficult sort is that which appears or rather continues to appear on through adolescence.

When an adolescent tells you any kind of a story to head you in a direction that renders him safe, when he lies to you in cold deliberation, you have the right to fear for his condition. He needs immediate attention. First, try to find what the lies are for. What does he want to do that he knows he should not, or perhaps cannot do? What is he trying to get away from and what is he trying to get to? If you can get to the bottom of that you may be able to do something for him, or her.

Many times these adolescent children are in the grip of sex urges that they know nothing about. The little instruction they have received is not enough to carry them through the terrible onrush of feeling, sensation, whatever you choose to term it, that besets them. In their endeavor to maintain themselves in any degree of comfort they make mistakes, then lie out of them as best they can because they are afraid to tell the truth. There is no use in telling them to tell you the truth and you won't blame them. They are ashamed, afraid, inarticulate.

When you find yourself in such a fix as this, waste no time. Go to the specialist. Find the one who knows adolescent children. Try to find a specialist who is serving in a hospital or clinic where such young people are treated. Tell him or her the story and put your afflicted child under treatment. Lies are indications of a pathological condition. All the scolding in the world won't help them. You need the skilled psychiatrist, neurologist, physician.

Sometimes fear drives children into telling lies. That sort of lie is as easily detected as the other. Try to find what sort of fear is troubling the child and do your best to remove it. If you cannot find the fear and you see that the child is suffering from it, take him to the specialist and have him treated for it. There is no time to be lost when adolescent children suffer from such ills. Sympathy is all very well but what is needed is skilled and prompt treatment.

Little children are easily handled as a usual thing. Even among them we find the psycopathic liar. You will know him if he comes your way. His stories are not imaginative fairy tales, not the defense gesture of helpless childhood, but the tales of fear, distress, oppression and outrageous prowess. Take that child to the doctor.

There is no cause for alarm when a little child strays from facts. Set him right by saying, that is the fairy story. Tell me the real one. But when untruthfulness continues on into adolescence, call the specialist.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

DEGREES FOR MIDDIES ASKED

Annapolis Graduates May Be Bachelors of Science

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Henceforth ,the navy wants Annapolis graduates to have the right to place the letters "B. S.," after their names, indicating that the degree bachelor of science has been conferred upon them.

As it is, those who finish four years at the naval academy get only diploma to show they have completed a training course that is rigorous in more ways than one. The high rank they may acquire later goes before their names, not after.

Behind the request by Secretary Adams is a story that means grief to many youngsters who enter Annapolis in the future visualizing themselves as Admiral So-and-So, in due time.

The navy is oversupplied by officers. It was necessary to get a bill through congress last session to commission all the graduates of 1932. At that time it was understood that only about half the class of 1933 and classes to follow would go to sea with the rank of ensign. For the rest, the diploma, goodbye and God bless you.

Adams outlined this situation in a letter to congress and said the department felt the bachelor of science degree would aid those turned away.

Chairman Vinson of the house naval affairs committee has introduced a bill to carry out the request.

BROKERS LOANS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York federal reserve member banks for the week ending Dec. 7 were announced by the federal reserve board today as $392,000,000, an increase of $39,000,000 over the preceding week.

The loans for the week ending Dec. 9, 1931, were $690,000,000.

No More Piles

How to End Terrible Agony Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why ctuting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of success in even the most stubborn cases that Allison's Drug Store and all good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today. They must end your Pile agony or money back. —Adv.

U.S. Has Canceled Half Of Debt By Cutting Agreed Interest Rates

History of War Time Lending Shows Borrowing Nations Agreed to Pay 'Actual Cost' of Money

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—When the United States began lending money to the allied powers, there was a tacit understanding that they should pay as much interest as the money cost the United States. That seemed only fair and was agreed to. A fact which not every one knows is that Great Britain, France, Italy, and the other debtor nations gave as evidence of indebtedness, demand notes for the money they received.

William G. McAdoo was secretary of the treasury in that disturbed period, and the persons with whom he dealt were the several ambassadors of the allied powers. They walked into his office and received at his hands treasury warrants for various sums. Congress would authorize a given amount and the treasury would advance it as needed. The ambassadors would come to the treasury with, as it were, their expense accounts. These were stupendous bills of munition factories, automobile factories, commissions handling purchases of food for the armies overseas, and a thousand and one other accounts. They might be for a million dollars. Oftener they were for 20 or 50 million. And invariably the treasury warrants were drawn and the money handed over. This was America's part in the war.

Public's Money Used

The money to pay these bills was drawn from the American public. First came the first liberty loan, to be succeeded by others, as the cost ran up, the cost not only of financing the allies but of putting our own enormous army on the battlefields over which Napoleon, Louis XIV, Tilly and Wallenstein, Gustavus Adolphus, and all the other great captains of continental history had fought.

The rate of interest on the first liberty loan was 3½ per cent and the demand notes given by the ambassadors called for an equal amount of interest to be paid as the debt ran and, on demand, in full.

The treasury has made estimates of what the total debt would have amounted to had that rate of interest been adhered to. Even had only that small rate which the treasury paid for the use of the money been paid, in turn, by the allied debtors, the total of debt due today would be about $18,000,000,000 instead of $11,000,000,000 which is now claimed.

Price of Money Rises

As the war continued the cost of money, like the cost of everything else, rose. People of that generation will, prhaps, remember how the suit of clothes which now costs $20 required $75 to possess in those troubled years. Wheat rose to the phenomenal price of $3.40 a bushel—a price which had not been known since the hundred years war. It became necessary for the government to fix a price upon it to prevent its soaring still higher. The same conditions caused the price of money to rise too. The next loan took a higher rate and each subsequent loan cost more and more money.

The terms of the original bargain were that the allies should meet that cost. In consideration for the use of the money, they were to pay the United States what it cost the United States, to hire the money from the American people. The American government asked no profit, no usufruct on the funds—not even the bookkeeping cost of making the transfers. All that was the straight reimbursement of the cost to the treasury.

When the cost of money to the treasury rose to four per cent it was the understanding that the allied borrowers should pay that 4 per cent if and when they came to pay their debt. Had this been adhered to the sum due from them would not be the $11,000,000,000 claimed but rather something like $21,000,000,000.

It was necessary for American business corporations to expand their plants in order to manufacture the munitions and other material required to win the war. To do this they needed money and had recourse to the usual and normal method of issuing stock and bonds. Large capital issues were declared by boards of directors and, knowing the importance of keeping these companies afloat, the public subscribed liberally to the issues. But the laws of competition were not abrogated and, with so many companies competing for money, the price of money hire inevitably rose.

All Cost Not Charged

So acute did the situation became that the government was forced to adopt two extraordinary measures. First, it placed an embargo on the export of funds. People were not permitted to lend money outside of the country and were not even permitted to ship gold in payment of debts owed abroad. The federal reserve board organized its gold export committee and any person desiring to ship gold had to get a permit from this body before doing so. Permits were difficult to obtain.

Next, the capital issues committee was organized. This body scrutinized every proposed issue of bonds in the United States and influenced the rate of interest and even vetoed issues which it thought were less than imperative. It brooked no competition with the biggest bond seller, the treasurer. But the war corporations had to have money. So the war finance corporation was created with the vast sum of $500,000,000 in a revolving fund to lend to corporations engaged in industry essential to the prosecution of the war.

All of these things are listed as incidental parts of the cost of the loans to the allies for which no charge was made.

Half of Debt Canceled

Even with these bodies holding the interest rate down, the cost of money continued to rise and more and more had to be paid for the successive liberty loans. Had the allies been charged that cost they would, indeed, be heavy debtors. At 4½ per cent the allied debt would today be not the $11,000,000,000 claimed, but something like $23,000,000,000. Still the rate went up and 5 per cent had to be paid for money. The treasury asked no moratorium from its creditors, the American people. It paid the coupons on the nail. Had that cost been passed along at 5 per cent the debts owed by the Europeans would not be the $11,000,000,000 claimed but in excess of $27,000,000,000.

The treasury short term notes and certificates of indebtedness which had to be issued to raise money to clinch the victory cost up to 6 per cent.

But, in the refunding treaties, all of these rates were written down, wiped out or canceled completely, and a new low rate substituted. Moreover the demand notes were exchanged for 62-year notes.

By reducing the original agreed interest rate, the United States already has canceled more than half the debt!

Woman Pays for Shoes That Produced Corn 'Crop'

SEATTLE, Dec. 8. (AP)—Corns on your feet have no legal standing. Miss Margaret Rebhahn, sued by a shoe store for $7.50, told a Seattle judge she refused to pay for her shoes because they caused corns. The court gave judgment to the dealer, remarking he had given a pair of foot-pinching shoes to charity himself, last week. Shoe dealers, he added, would end a chaotic life if every one adopted Miss Rebhahn's plea.

Mississippi farmers in the 28 delta and border delta counties this fall planted 1,755,710 pounds of winter legume seed for soil building purposes.

Portland, Ore., city officials are going to quit paying insurance on the city's fire stations. Vigilance, like charity, begins at home, they figure.

George Bernard Shaw declares the substitution of "Mr. Roosevelt for Mr. Hoover won't make any difference to anybody." Evidently the eminent playwright hasn't met Dolly Gann.

The Rise of the Radicals

AS THE count of votes cast in the presidential election continues, it becomes evident that the minor parties got a larger share of the total than was at first supposed.

Reports from all but one-twelfth of the nation's election precincts show that the seven minor party candidates got, altogether, upward of a million votes.

Of these, the vast majority—more than 806,000 were cast for Socialist Norman Thomas. Approximately 70,000 went to the Communist, William Z. Foster, with the remainder scattered among Prohibition, Liberty, Socialist-Labor and other smaller groups.

Now all of this, to be sure, comprises only a small fraction of the total vote. Something like 36,000,000 Americans went to the polls; the proportion that wanted a sweeping change in our social and economic set-up badly enough to vote for a minor party candidate is only about one in 36. America, quite clearly, is still overwhelmingly conservative.

But there is a bit of an object lesson in the figures, just the same. The radicals may be few, but they are far more numerous than they were four years ago.

In 1928, for instance, all of the minor parties together polled fewer than 380,000 votes. Thomas got 267,000—only about a third of his 1932 total. And when you take into account the undoubted fact that in many machine-ruled cities thousands of Socialist and Communist votes simply were not counted at all, it becomes clear that radical strength increased very rapidly during the last four years.

This, of course, does not point to a Socialist or Communist administration in the near future. But it does constitute a warning which those who guide the nation during the coming years must heed. Hard times have tripled the number of those who no longer believe in our capitalistic system. If a cure for hard times is not found, that number might easily be tripled again, and yet again—and then where would we be?

A Greek Pays His Debt

PERICLES KOSKORIS, 45, an American citizen and a resident of New York, is known as Perry. He conducts a shoe repair shop. As an adjunct or annex he has a clothes cleaning establishment. Perry was a soldier in the world war. Twelve years ago he landed on the New York dock, penniless, without friends and unable to speak the English language. He is not rich but he has prospered. He loves the land and the flag of his adoption. He has a heart. On Dec. 1 he invited 200 unemployed persons to a free breakfast. Every morning since the 1st he has fed 200. He will continue the feeding until the first day of January. Christmas day a year ago he furnished 275 families of unemployed men turkey dinners.

He is "a furriner," from the south of Europe. He had all the handicaps on his arrival. He has worked hard and saved some of his earnings. His motto may not be "In God We Trust." His practice is to feed the hungry and do his share in paying the debt he owes Uncle Sam.

Christmas is coming. It may be a cheerless Christmas for many. "Go thou and do likewise."

A "Compliment" Repaid

THE film fans of Russia, according to recent cables, are being enthralled these days by a movie dealing with the allied anti-Bolshevik expedition to Archangel in the winter of 1918-19. American troops took part in this expedition, and the movie shows them as brutal terrorists given to assaults on women, looting, the murder of children and similar Hun-like practices.

One contingent of American soldiers in this film, however, sees the light. Under the leadership of an ex-Russian it revolts, seizes an armored car and joins the revolution.

This film evidently represents about as complete a misunderstanding of America as one could find. But before we grow too indignant, we might remember that turn about is fair play. Our own movies have certainly exhibited revolutionary Russia in a thoroughly cock-eyed manner; is it surprising if the Russian film-makers return the compliment?

Sane View of War Debts

IN ALL of the current hullabaloo over the foreign debts, one of the sanest comments seems to be that made by Senator Borah.

Senator Borah, who has advocated a world conference on debts, disarmament, reparations and world economic problems generally, insists that the war debts are only one source of the world's troubles; and he declares:

"It is unfair to ask American taxpayers to contribute their part for the removal of these causes and leave behind causes which will make their contributions wholly ineffective."

This is good, sound sense. If this nation has to make a heavy financial sacrifice to contribute to world recovery, it can do it; but it ought not to be the only nation called upon to take such action.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(Don't you remember? I was the kid with the drum!)

That there is no divorce in the Philippines, poor things!

That Oklahomans can drive a car in New York City without a chauffeur's or operator's license. (Fency Thet).

That in Hollywood you can buy a machine to make cobwebs.

That many shop windows underground of the Grand Central Station have mesh wire instead of glass windows. This is to insure a better circulation of air in the subterranean passages.

That the cost of the kiss in the movies has wilted. They now consume less time and less film footage—both costing heavy money.

That 77,118 Americans were killed in the Big War. During the eight years following, 137,017 Yanks were killed here by autos!

That Chicagoans say Halstead St. is the longest street in the world, longer than Broadway. Them's fightin' words, Chicago!

That in Washington's day it was all right to drink tea from a saucer, and when Queen Elizabeth first used a fork, a clergyman sermon'd against the use of it in church, saying that it was an insult to eat with instruments when "God gave us fingers to eat our meat!"

That Capt. Kidd, the first of the ace hijackers and tough guys (away back in 1690), was a minister's boy!

That the original letter "A," created by the Phoenicians, was upside-down, to indicate the head of an ox. (Ox me another!)

That Morris Gest was once a wave in a burlesk show. He had to lie under a green sheet and bounce up and down to make waves.

That it's about time some writers threw themselves in the wastebasket. (Come outside and say that, you heckler, you!)

That a $20 gold piece is worth only $17.60 in Canada.

That ten of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence were born in Massachusetts. (And Boston is so strict!)

That one wag clears up the sitcheeayshun by reminding us that there are two classes of people; those who are money-mad, and those who are mad because they haven't any. (A merciless truth!)

That the British postoffice has equipped all branches with pens that will not rust, bend or sputter. (Oh, America!!!)

That ten paroled prisoners voluntarily returned to Pennsylvania penitentiaries because of the depresh!

That the warden's pockets were picked of $450 at the dedication of the new million-dollar prison at Delaware Co., Maryland. (Haw!)

That science says that the Sahara desert is the original cradle of man. (No wonder he's thirsty!)

That his admirer suggests that Ben Bernie, whose band plays it so well, be called: "The Peanut Vendor." (Chestnut vendor, I'd say!)

That a baseball game at Nitro, W. V., recently was umpired by two umpires—one named Wright and the other Wrong.

That Firpo, the "wild bull of the Pampas," has a hobby. He not only collects but makes dresses for dolls. (Heavens, a thithee!)

That sweet foods and drinks are tasted with the tip of the tongue; bitter things with the back of it. (That's why you often gag.)

That nitrogen iodine is so sensitive (a most touchy explosive) that it will go off when tickled with a feather!

That Bach, the composer, had 20 children and 11 became musicians. (Can you imagine being a neighbor when they practiced?)

That Beau Brummel, who set the fashion standards for a generation, was slovenly in his dress during his last 20 years.

That John Chambers, 13, a newsboy of Lebanon, Ind., sells so many papers he has bought his parents a house!

That the Pathfinder argues that many of the men who go around bragging that they are self-made men should be apologizing, instead.

That there have been more Vice Presidents of the United States than there have been Presidents.

That the names of 20 of the 48 states ends with "a."

That Admiral Byrd took ice-boxes with him to the South Polar regions to keep his provisions from freezing too solid.

That a good way to spend your time and all the nickels you can spare, is to hang around that 1c Cafeteria near 6th on the north side of 43rd Street, and hand them to hungry men there.

That spinach (ugh!) came from Arabia, and we would just as soon, it would go back there.

And that Los Angeles keeps more cows than any large city in America. A census revealed 30,000. (Not counting movie actresses).

Driver of Auto to Face Murder Hearing Dec. 14

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Dec. 8.—Dec. 14 has been tentatively set as the date for the preliminary trial for H. H. Harris, 35, who was arraigned before J. N. Caddell, justice of the peace, in Mangum on a charge of murder filed as the result of the death of Bob Mabera, 50, when the automobile occupied by the two men overturned in the Eastview community in Greer county last week.

The information filed by Greer County Attorney Hollis Arnett charges Harris, while engaged in the commission of a felony, with driving a motor vehicle at such a high and dangerous rate of speed and in such a reckless, careless manner as to cause the car to overturn, partially wrecking the car and throwing Mabera, who was riding with Harris, from the car and killing him.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

CATCHING LIVE COUGARS—The capture of a cougar is fully as dangerous as that of a tiger or lion in the orient, but Bob Bakker of Libby, Mont., has succeeded in capturing 202 of them alive during the last 10 years, and never suffered accident or injury. Bakker's methods are ingenious however. After he gets the cougar treed he just climbs the tree himself and lassoes it in true western style. His ranch is equipped to care for the wild beasts until they are disposed of to circuses, zoos and animal shows. The cougar, or American lion, as it is usually called, greatly resembles the panther and leopard in habits, size and ferocity.

DANCED OVER 1,200,000 MILES—R. G. Huntinghouse of 4616 North Clark street, Chicago, estimates that during the 56 years he has conducted his dancing academy he has danced a total of over 1,200,000 miles. During his daily grind of 14 hours he has averaged 66 miles a day on week days and 15 miles on Sundays—a total of almost 22,000 miles a year.

PARIS LOVE

by NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

SYNOPSIS

Alacia Sayers' fat, middle-aged, midwestern mother had continued the manufacture in France of the Europa, a new motor car, when her husband died 10 years previously, and she was now worth $60,000,000. Alacia had been worrying because Alfredo Santini, a gigolo who sometimes drove racing cars, was in constant attendance on her mother. Then Alacia fell in love at first sight with a handsome young Frenchman and did not learn until later that he was Armand de Pas, Prince d'Orsant, poverty-stricken pretender to the French throne. She lost her pearl necklace and went to Piron's to buy an imitation. Ramon Caberso and another salesman, members of Santini's jewel thief gang, had substituted a valuable necklace for one tagged 1,000 francs. An accomplice was delayed getting it, and it was this one Alacia chose. Ramon tried to dissuade her and Alacia became indignant. The manager called another salesman, and Alacia was amazed to see Armand, who completed the sale. Armand told her later that an American aunt had left him more than a million dollars on condition that he had "made good" at the age of 30. He was now 29. Three friends of the aunt, Colonel Bradley, the Paris Prefet de Police, and M. Piron, were to decide whether he got the bequest. While a guest at dinner, M. Piron admired Alacia's pearls and she described their purchase. They went to a jeweler friend of Piron who said they were worth a million and a quarter francs. When Alacia reached home she found a beautiful black poodle, a gift from M. Piron. She heard a woman screaming at the door.

INSTALLMENT XV

Alacia pushed her way through the crowd of servants that had flocked into the hall at sound of the screaming voice, and found herself face to face with a strange young woman whom Jean was trying to prevent from entering the house.

"What does she want?" Alacia demanded.

"She insists upon seeing Madame!" gasped the big Breton. "And when I told her Madame was not in, she called me a liar and started all this uproar."

"Bring her inside and shut the door," Alacia ordered, "or we'll have the police on our hands!" Then, when her command had been obeyed, she turned to the white-faced girl who was silent now but still trembling from her violent outburst.

"What is it you want?" Alacia demanded severely. The girl gave her a sullen glance and indicated the servants with a gesture of her head.

"I had to make them let me in," she said hoarsely. "I had to! Are you his sweetheart?" She added with apparent irrelevance.

It was an awkward sort of question, Alacia thought quickly. Whose sweetheart did the girl mean, and what did she want, anyhow? Her dress was tawdry and she smelled abominably of cheap perfume, but she was both pretty and young.

"Perhaps you had better see me alone for a moment," said Alacia in her indifferent French. "There must be something important on your mind."

"Is Mademoiselle wise to allow her?" Jean intervened, respectful but wary, since the girl's nails had left a nasty mark on his cheek.

"I'll chance it," said Alacia briefly, "I can always ring if I need you." Then she led the way into the small drawing room, beckoning the girl to follow, and closing the door behind them. Max, the poodle, instantly electing himself guardian of his new mistress, growled menancingly and was ordered into a corner from which he watched mistrustfully.

"Don't be afraid," Alacia said to the girl. "No one is going to do you any harm if you behave yourself. Now sit down and tell me what you came for." The newcomer looked at her in awe as she obediently sat on the edge of a chair, and then, to Alacia's complete discomfiture, suddenly burst into a flood of tears.

"Please!" cried Alacia. "Don't do that, please! Tell me, who are you?"

"I am called Victorine," the visitor said, "that I suppose, means nothing to you? "Alacia shook her head.

"I have never heard of you," she declared. Her visitor accepted this with an eloquent gesture.

"It is you he loves!" Victorine then announced miserably. "And now that I've seen you, I can't blame him! You are beautiful, and young and you have everything. Even innocence, perhaps! Yet from the way he has spoken of you at times, I thought you were just another rich old woman he was making a fool of!"

Relief and fear swept Alacia in a wave of mixed emotion. Certainly it was not Armand of whom this girl was jealous! But eliminating him, only one other interpretation of her visit opened, and that was too repugnant to consider. Perhaps, after all, the girl had made a mistake and come to the wrong house.

"I don't think any friend of yours is in love with me!" Alacia said gently. "And I honestly believe you confused me with some entirely different person." The girl raised a tear-stained face, a flash of her former anger gleaming in her big black eyes.

"Don't tell me he doesn't come here," she said, "because I know better! I've followed him more than once, to make sure! He's here all the time. I'm talking of Santini." Alacia drew a long breath and attempted a natural laugh.

"Why yes, of course he comes here," she admitted, "but not to see me. I give you my word, Mademoiselle, that he is not the slightest bit interested in me, nor I in him. He comes here as a friend!" The girl remained entirely unconvinced.

"You don't speak frankly," she accused. "Have you a sister, perhaps, or a mother?"

"I have no sister," said Alacia promptly, "and my mother is Monsieur Santini's employer, as you'd be aware if you really knew him as well as you claim to." The girl laughed unpleasantly.

"Oh, I know him well, never fear!" she said with bitterness. "So your mother 'employs' him, eh? How, may one ask, does she employ him?"

"If you are going to take that tone," said Alacia quietly, "I shall have the servants put you out."

"Try it!" replied the girl, growing insolent again. "Try it again —they failed the first time!"

"The police, then!" said Alacia, standing her ground. Miraculously all the swagger went out of the little poule, and her manner became quieter.

"Tell me!" she begged. "Pour l'amour de Dieu, Mademoiselle! Let your heart melt! I am a woman and I love him. He belongs to me, and I have suffered. I have to know what he's doing, or I shall die of the suspense. There have been plenty of other women, but up till now, he has always come back to me. Yet this time it wasn't only that he beat me, for I am used to that—no, there was something which told me—je ne sais pas exactement pourquoi—that he meant to marry. Marry some rich woman, of course! Mademoiselle, I beg of you to tell me the truth. If your mother is just his patronne, surely it can do no harm to tell me so?"

"I understand," said Alacia, infinitely sorry. "Santini is a professional driver for motor races. My mother has engaged him to drive for us in the Grand Prix de Monaco." Victorine's whole expression changed at this and her eyes opened wide with astonishment.

"Grand Dieu!" she breathed, "the Europa? So that's who you are!"

"What do you know about the Europa?" Alacia flashed at her. But the girl was not to be hurried. She thought long and deeply before replying, tracing the design on the rug with the toe of her shabby shoe.

"Mademoiselle," she said slowly, at length. "Now I know something about you. It is you who arrange the reclame of that beautiful car is it not?" Alacia nodded, wondering what on earth could be coming now.

"You treasure the Europa, do you not?" Victorine went on in an even, unhurried voice. "Eh bien, you have been very just to me, Mademoiselle. You have been gentille when I have been rough and unpleasant. You have not treated me like common mud, but received me, so I am going to tell you something, even though it means betraying one very dear to me. Santini is going to throw that race."

"What?" exclaimed Alacia. "Are you sure? What makes you think so?"

"Never mind I know!" said the girl, shaking her head. "I have said enough already. If you love your beautiful car and its reputation, don't let him drive it for you. He will kill me if he finds out I have told you, but he will do that perhaps, in any event, sooner or later, so je m'en fiche! And now, Mademoiselle, I'll go. I am glad, really glad to have been here, even though I've made trouble for you."

"At least you know that you have no grounds for jealousy," said Alacia with a smile. The girl smiled back at her for the first time; an infinitely weary, worldly-wise smile, with a hint of humor in it, too.

"No, I have no grounds for jealousy," she said, "because now I thoroughly understand who it is that he runs after. And even if he marries your mother it will not be for love, so I will surely have him back again shortly!"

And before Alacia could reply to this paralyzing remark the girl had walked quietly from the room, closing the door behind her. Alacia, scarcely knowing whether to be angry or amused at the colossal impudence of that last remark, made no attempt to detain her.

"Tiens, tiens and a couple of aliens!" she said aloud, "just exactly what am I supposed to say to that?"

Luckily there was no need to say anything. The outrageous visitor was gone, carrying her imperishable swagger back to the boulevards which had rubbed her defensive armor to such a brazen polish, and Alacia, pacing the room, tried to think clearly.

Foremost in her mind was the conviction that by whatever means and at whatever cost, her mother must be disillusioned about Santini. It was unbearable that Kate Sayers should go on trusting him, and something must be done. But what? Her daughter had already been brutally frank about the man and that frankness had accomplished nothing. Alacia almost wished that Kate Sayers had been present during Victorine's visit, for certainly it would have been difficult to cherish many personal illusions after that revelation. But the fact remained that the story of Santini's cheap amours would lose conviction in the mere recounting, and eventually Alacia decided to warn the servants into silence about the incident and to bide her time.

But the charge which Victorine had brought concerning the Monte Carlo race was quite another matter. If there was the remotest truth in what his discarded sweetheart claimed and Santini really intended throwing the race, action must be taken quickly. But again Alacia found herself at the end of a blind alley. After all, what proof of his intentions had the girl offered? Suddenly it occurred to Alacia that she did not know where to get hold of Victorine again, and was not even aware of her last name. Suppose that she, Alacia, were to wire the racing authorities at Monte Carlo that a wild girl whose name she didn't know had dropped in out of a clear sky and made such a charge? A pretty fool she'd look if it proved unfounded! But the Europa was practically her own car. To have the race thrown would be the worst kind of disgrace, and it simply must not happen!

On the other hand, to find another good driver at this late date was not an easy matter. To begin with, he could not possibly be familiar with the car. The complicated mechanism of the Europa required considerable experience before it could be handled to the best advantage and besides, all the famous professionals were assuredly already booked up by now, most of them with their privately owned entries. And it was absolutely necessary to secure some one with daring, nerve, skill. Suddenly Alacia stopped abruptly in her pacing.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

Dr. Cary Grayson

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—That short statured, navy medico, Admiral-Doctor Cary T. Grayson, who undoubtedly holds within his memory recollections that could add a vital volume to the library of Woodrow Wilsoniana, has taken aboard another strange job for a doctor of medicine.

He is the first of his specialized profession of healing the running of a presidential inauguration.

By all signs "Doc" Grayson is going to have a time of it up to and including March 4 next. As chairman of the Roosevelt inaugural committee in Washington he will have little chance to keep that close eye on fast horses in his own stables. That is what Cary Grayson would rather do than almost anything else.

Inauguration of Democratic presidents has been a parity in party experience since the battle-laden 60s. When President Wilson came in for his first term, there was a great show. His second term was ushered in with far less pomp because of the world war crisis that overhung that hour. It was not a month later that the United States entered the struggle.

Celebration Spirit

Governor Roosevelt will assume office in the midst of another great crisis, world-wide in effect. Yet there is already among Democrats and a lot of other Washington folk a demand for a non-depression betting for the Roosevelt inaugural.

Wishes of the president-elect naturally control inaugural ceremonies to a degree. Yet Governor Roosevelt hardly can set his face sternly against making a real Democratic jubilee out of his entry into the White House. And it is up to Grayson to work out a prescription to fit the case.

As not only physician but close friend of President Wilson, he demonstrated high diplomatic skill in trying circumstances.

Purely Non-Professional

At first blush Grayson's selection for the inauguration job suggested his return to the post of ranking naval aide and personal physician to the president. Governor Roosevelt soon set that notion aside, disclosing that he would have no house physician.

The explanation is easy. From the hour his recovery from a stroke of infantile paralysis started, Roosevelt has seen bent on showing all interested persons that he had little need of medical care. He never had a doctor on call at Albany.

He made his wide western swing of the campaign against the judgment of political advisers, offering himself as prime evidence that he was fit to shoulder presidential burdens. Obviously, a White House attending physician could have no place in his scheme of things.

RUM SEIZURES BRING PLAINT

Canada May Discontinue Aid to U. S. Drys

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Canadian cooperation in preventing liquor smuggling to this country may end, Canada has informed the United States, if the latter persists in making 12-mile limit seizures of rum runners.

This warning as handed to Secretary Stimson by Minister Herridge last Monday, in a vigorously-worded protest against the seizure of the Canadian vessel Mazel Tov when the latter was 11 and a half miles off the Massachusetts coast. This seizure, after being declared invalid in the lower federal court, was upheld by the first circuit court of appeals as properly made under the 1930 tariff act, which authorized seigures within a 12 mile limit off shore.

The Canadian contention is that it can not recognize that the tariff act has any force outside the three-mile territorial jurisdiction of the United States, and that in negotiating the existing anti-smuggling treaty or convention between the two countries it was understood "that there would be no disposition by the authorities of the United States to seize a British vessel "except within the limits set forth by that convention, a distance that can be traversed in one hour by the suspected vessel.

"Accordingly," continued the note, "it would seem that the seizure of the Mazel Tov and its forfeiture, if continued, would not be justified by international law or by the terms of the convention and that it would be directly contrary to the understandings of the parties which formed the basis of the agreement embodied in the convention."

The note became public today when Secretary Stimson sent it to the supreme court, before which the Mazel Tov case now is on appeal.

Should the United States insist, said the note, that it has a right to enforce the tariff act beyond the one-hour sailing limit, the ensuing conflict of views would render worthless the treaty between the two nations and "would tend to frustrate" the cooperation by which Canada has curtailed and, insofar as Canadian vessels are concerned, almost eliminated "the contraband traffic on the coasts of the United States."

WOCC Protests To State Budget Group

Special to The Record News.

SAYRE, Okla., Dec. 8.—A request for reconsideration of its action in eliminating the appropriation for vocational agriculture instruction by Governor Murray's budget reduction committee was forwarded to J. B. Perky, state director of vocational agriculture training, for presentation to the budget committee by W. J. Hilburn, manager of the Western Oklahoma Chamber of Commerce.

Attention was called to the fact that there are over 60 other departments of state government and 43 separate state institutions, a number of which could be spared with less injury to agriculture than vocational instruction. Milburn also called attention to the danger of lowering the standard of intelligence among farmers, if vocational agriculture training is eliminated from the schools, and to the necessity for keeping the standard as high as possible for the protection of the government. The Western Oklahoma Chamber of Commerce does not oppose a reduction of the appropriation for vocational agriculture teaching, in line with reductions for other educational work, but does oppose a complete discontinuance of such teaching, Milburn stated.

Murder Fugitive Free After Facing Police

DETROIT, Dec. 8. (INS)—A murder fugitive from Huntsville, Texas, was sought here today after he had twice walked in and out of Detroit police headquarters unrecognized.

The fugitive is Robert Johnson, 31, alias Robert Clark, alias Leon Williams. He is also wanted for breaking jail at Fort Bend, Texas.

He was arrested in a vice raid, and released for lack of evidence. Later he read newspaper accounts of a sarch for Robert Clark, a missing bookkeeper. So he sauntered into police headquarters again, and was again released as "not wanted."

Fifteen minutes after he had departed the police record clerk found his fingerprints identifying him as the Texas fugitive.

All cruisers and scout cars were ordered to watch for him.

Four Old-Timers Of Archer County

Above is shown a quartet of Archer county citizens who came to this section before the county was organized, more than 50 years ago. Each has contributed much to the colorful history and tradition of Northwest Texas with active lives that have aided in the development of their community. From left to right they are Mike J. Baughman, 78, who was first postmaster of Archer City; James S. Scott, 81, first county and district clerk of Archer; W. O. (Bud) Covington, 76, early-day cowboy and rancher; and Newt J. Jones, 78, Texas ranger and rancher.

Four Early-Day Settlers Of Archer See County Grow In Half Century

Quartet Who Were Young Men When Northwest Texas Was Barren Plane Led Interesting Lives in Pioneer Era

Special to The Record News.

ARCHER CITY, Texas, Dec. 8.—Four old-timers of Archer county, men whose pioneer spirits helped to forge civilization from the rugged wilderness of Northwest Texas, recently "got together" at the courthouse here and had their pictures made.

The four are Mike J. Baughman, 78; James S. Scott, 81; W. O. (Bud) Covington, 76, and Newt J. Jones, 78.

Each has resided in Archer county for more than 50 years, and have seen this section grow, slowly but surely, from a wild expanse of prairie and mesquite into a prosperous land of well-kept farms and ranches, industrious cities and towns.

Each of these pioneers have played important parts in the development of this section through the years of the past half century. Each has contributed his fulsome share in molding the Northwest Texas of today.

Adventurous Lives

They lived in an adventurous day of this section and it was adventuresome lives they lived.

The activities of the four were varied. One was Archer City's first postmaster, another was a Texas ranger, two were cowboys and later ranchers.

Mike J. Baughman was the first postmaster of Archer City and the others were patrons of the office over 52 years ago. Mr. Baughman, a native of South Carolina, moved to Archer county in 1877 and settled near where the town of Archer City now stands, where he was connected with the Hatcherson supply store, the only store for hundreds of miles west of Henrietta. He was appointed postmaster in 1878, prior to the laying off of the town in 1879 and the organizing of the county in 1880.

James S. Scott was the first county and district clerk of Archer county after the organization of the county in 1880. Mr. Scott, a native of Illinois, moved to Texas in 1877 and settled in Archer county where he was associated with his brothers-in-law, E. P., E. W., and Doc Harold in the ownership of the famous Bar-X ranch that at the time comprised the major part of Archer county, with headquarters located near the center of where the town of Archer City now stands.

Bought First Lots

Mr. Scott purchased the first lots sold when the town was laid off in 1879, and built the first residence in the town. He introduced the first barbed wire in the country by fencing a large area of the north side of Archer county, that afterwards embraced the T-fork, "99" and "96" ranches. The wire was freighted over land from Fort Worth in wagons drawn by oxen. After the Harold brothers sold the Bar-X ranch in 1883, Mr. Scott organized the Scott, Morgan and Lemon company and established horse ranches in Archer, Clay, Wichita and Greer counties and continued the L-Bar brand purchased from the late Burk Burnett and others. This horse herd was considered the largest in the United States. Mr. Scott is still a stock farmer of Archer county.

W. O. (Bud) Covington, a native Texan, came from Tarrant county in 1878 and settled in Archer county as foreman of the "O—X" ranch, owned then by Bob Melton, lying on the Onion creeks in the east part of the county. Bud Covington was known for many years throughout the cattle country of Texas and the Indian territory, where he handled herds as foreman for Bob Melton, and afterwards for Melton, East & Harold Bros., as a typical cowboy. On account of his flowing red hair and handsome features, he was called "Booger Red," by his associates. Mr. Covington retired from active ranch work a few years back and now lives in Archer City where he has a beautiful home.

Judge of Cattle

Newt J. Jones, a native of Texas, came to Archer county in 1878 from Montague county. Mr. Jones was a member of Capt. June Peak's Texas Rangers, located at Fort Griffin, that looked after the peace and order of the territory east of the Pecos to Red river. Jones was located on the Bar X ranch in 1878 and afterwards located his own ranch on the west fork of the Trinity. He introduced the first short horn cattle in Archer county and for many years has been given credit for being the best judge of beef cattle in this section of the state. He is still active in the ranching business in Archer county in connection with his son-in-law, J. L. O'Keefe.

INDIANS TO GET BUFFALO MEAT

Yellowstone Park Herd To Be Reduced

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Dec. 8. (AP)—Staple diet of their ancestors, but only an occasional delicacy during the past half century, buffalo meat again this winter will be issued to Indians of the Northwest to supplement diminished larders.

While to the youth among the tribesmen, perhaps, this Christmas present of Uncle Sam means only a full stomach, to their elders it conjures recollections of ancient glories, forgotten prowess with spear and arrow behind thunderous hoofbeats on the open plains when the buffalo were plenty and the Indian free to hunt them.

Now, except for those carefully guarded in Yellowstone park and other public and private preserves, the buffalo has gone and the Indian settled down to less thrilling pastimes.

But the great herd in the western park is outgrowing its range and about 350 of the 800 head must be disposed of. Most will be butchered and turned over to the Crow and Blackfeet Indians.

Beef Cattle Make Maize Valuable to Ranchman

LEVELLAND, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—One hundred beef cattle harvested 100 acres of maize for G. C. Hughes of Pep and also paid him $800 for doing the job, he told W. T. Mages, county agent.

He turned 100 head of cattle that averaged 750 pounds each, into the field the first of September and on Nov. 1, they had gained a little over 100 pounds each. He said if he had harvested the maize and hauled it to town after threshing he would not have made the harvesting expenses. The yield this year was light.

'Technocrats Figure And Chart To See Machination of Industry In Time

Scientists Work for 12 Years Graphing and Studying With View to Foresee Age of Productive Perfection

By DOROTHY RUSSELL
United Press Special Correspondent
(Copyright, 1932, by United Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 8.—A new word has suddenly come into the English language—the word "technocracy."

Only a comparatively few weeks ago it was virtually unknown.

Today at the Bankers club, in conference rooms of Wall street, in the salons of Park avenue, in Greenwich village, and in college cloisters, it is a dominant subject of conversation.

"Technocracy" is a new social and economic theory bound up in one.

It takes into account the vast extension of the productive power of labor brought about by improved machinery and tremendously increased use of energy. It figures how amazingly man's capacity to make and grow the things he requires or can use, may grow through the machanization of industry and agriculture. It looks into the future and sees still further expansion of this power to produce, always with production increasing and the required amount of man power per unit of production decreasing.

Efficiency Compared

Technocracy finds that 100 years ago it took one man and two oxen six hours, 40 minutes to plow an acre of ground. Today one man with a two-plow tractor plows an acre in one hour 10 minutes. Technocracy says that right now a self-guiding tractor can be built with which one man can plow an acre in five minutes.

The technocrats find that 100 years ago it took 710 men one hour to make 40,000 bricks. Today modern brick making machines with one man to operate it produces 40,000 bricks in an hour.

For 12 years a group of researchers and scientists, chiefly engineers, have been working quietly, almost secretly, gathering masses of figures, charting them out on graphs, and trying to project by mathematical formula, the answer to the riddle of where all this is leading. They have named themselves "technocrats."

Their answers thus far are not reassuring. Many of them contend that the proof is positive that unless something revolutionary is done immediately, a debacle which would make the present depression look like glorious prosperity, is just around the corner.

The word "technocracy" is coined. The reader will not find it in the dictionary. It was suggested, Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch of Columbia university explained, by the word democracy.

But it has no affiliation in essence with democracy, the technocrats hasten to explain. Democracy, they believe, is one of the outworn institutions which will require radical modification if it is to survive at all.

Word Defined

The closest thing to the word "technocracy" one can find in the dictionary is "technology." Funk & Wagnalls' standard dictionary defines it as "a theoretical knowledge of industries and arts, and application of science to the arts."

Professor Rautenstrauch, an important technocrat, gives the technocrats' own definition.

"Technocracy," he said, "is the method of arriving at decisions by processes employed by technographers."

The technographers' methods are the compilation of a mass of statistics and analyses from all sections of the country on such subjects as the development and use of machine power as opposed to man power in industry; the relation of production to consumption; cost to wages and profit; employment to production and profit, and many other related factors.

With these facts as material, the technographers plot on their graphs and charts the rate of growth and the future developments trend of these and allied subjects.

The result is the first scientific analysis of the problems of unemployment, over-production, capacity for consumption and industrial finance available.

The conclusions which are being drawn are challenging the attention of some of the most important industrial, financial and economic leaders of the country.

West Texas Cattle Driven 100 Miles to Pastures

FARWELL, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—The V. V. N. ranch, south of Farwell, is driving 1,350 head of cattle to winter pastures in Terry county, a distance of about 100 miles. The overland cattle movement is one of the largest in this section during the season. About 1,200 head will be left on the ranch, which is the property of W. H. Fuqua of Amarillo.

Catarrhal Deafness May Be Overcome

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be overcome in many instances by the following treatment, which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost.

Secure from Allison's Drug Store or your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add ¼ pint hot water and a little sugar. One tablespoonful four times a day should quickly relieve distressing catarrhal head noises, clogged nostrils, difficult breathing and dropping mucous, and improve hearing. All victims of catarrhal deafness or head noises should give Parmint a trial.—Adv.

STEERS FACE BIGGEST TEST TODAY IN REGIONAL TITLE TILT

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

The Regional Games

The two class B regional games to be unreeled before Northwest Texas fans today and tomorrow will pit two teams with great records against teams that have nothing in their past history of which to brag, but whose present strength is unquestioned.

The Gilmer Buckeyes of East Texas, two-time champions of their region and a team that has not been defeated in four years of conference play, today will go against the Steers of Graham who have done nothing in a championship way the last few years, but who have always been powerful.

The Olney Cubs, who also have won two regional titles, and in addition five straight district titles, will clash here Saturday with the McLean Tigers, a team hitherto very little known for its championship prowess, but which this year has blossomed out in full strength.

On the face of the records, Gilmer is a heavy favorite to knock the Steers' ears down, and Olney is a sure winner over the McLean team. But it happens that past records don't decide championship football games. League officials are contrary about that. They insist that to win a football game a team must make touchdowns, or, both contestants failing to make points, the winner must make a certain number of 20-yard zone penetrations, or first downs.

Past records of a team, however, do serve several purposes. They inspire the holders thereof to play great football in order to keep them intact. They inspire the other team to play great football in order to knock the record holders off their vaunted pedestal. And third, they make the prediction of the outcome gosh derned hard for the humble sports writer whose duty it is to tell the subscribers before the game just how its all going to pan out.

In the approaching Gilmer-Graham conflict, for instance, the records point out Gilmer as a distinct favorite over Graham. A team able to boast an undefeated record over a four-year stretch would be the logical choice as a winner by nine out of 10 sports writers. Such a record is almost convincing. But in this particular case it is not quite convincing enough. The tide swings in favor of Graham when one considers the caliber of opposition both teams have met this year. Neither, it seems, had to exert itself to any degree to win its district championship, but both stepped outside its district for harder games, and therein comes the test. Gilmer went down before a weak Tyler team 13 to 6. It is true that several of Gilmer's stars didn't play in that game on account of injuries, but if Gilmer was really as strong a team as its record indicates, even a crippled bunch of Buckeyes should have held Tyler to a closer score.

On its side of the ledger, Graham stepped out of the class B conference and battled the Cleburne Yellowjackets, certainly a more potent class A contender than the Tyler team. The score was 6 to 0 in favor of Cleburne, and the Graham boys did a great job in holding it that low. Again, Graham invaded the strong class B district No. 4 and defeated Olney 6-0—and Olney is rated as good if not better than most class A teams in this section.

So the Rambler is picking the apparently underdog Graham team to beat Gilmer today. We are laughing Gilmer's record right in the face.

On the other hand, we are not laughing at Olney's. We believe the Cubs will win their championship battle here Saturday with McLean. McLean has not convinced us, either by past records or this season's record, that it can rate as favorite over a record-holding team, as Graham does. The Panhandle class B circuit's history is not any too well known here, but we'd wager sight unseen that no class B team in the whole Panhandle had to wade through such a stiff district schedule as did the Cubs. We figure that when the Olney Cubs won their district championship they won also their regional.

Useless Information

Oklahoma City and Tulsa are now in the Texas (?) league.

Babe Didrikson is no longer an amateur.

Jinx Tucker believes Waco will get the Longview-Wichita Falls franchise.

Who cares?

Attention Olney

A. J. Dobson, veteran football enthusiast, writes from Shamrock as follows:

"Friend Rambler:

"You might suggest to that bunch of Wichita fans McLean has gathered a bunch of boys from the sand hills and shinery of the 'prairie chicken' country of this section that will give the bunch of Olney toughs a real scrap and if they want to see a real ball game they had better arrange to be there. I will be driving 180 miles to see the game.

Lindale Team Slips Up on Bowie, 20-18

Special to The Record News.

BOWIE, Texas, Dec. 8.—Playing his second string half of the game, Coach Little and his Jackrabbits got slipped up on and beaten 20 to 18 in a warm-up game here Wednesday afternoon by Lindale, a small rural school near here.

Friday night the Bunnies meet Buffalo Springs at the high school gym. Buffalo Springs beat Sunset here 46 to 20 last Saturday night and Bowie beat Sunset 31 to 18 the night before, so it looks like the Rabbits will be busy scoring a win over the Clay county boys.

GILMER PLAYS AT GRAHAM

Championship Bout Slated To Start at 2:30

By FRED THOMPSON
Record News Sports Editor

The Graham High school Steers face their biggest test in the Young county seat's particular circuit of the class B conference today when they go against the Gilmer Buckeyes of the East Texas piney woods in quest of the championship of region No. 2 of the Texas Interscholastic league.

The victor will be champion of all Northeast Texas and part of Northwest Texas, region No. 2 extending virtually to the Louisiana line to the east and embracing all intervening counties. The Graham region includes four districts, five, six, seven and eight. Graham, champion of district five, defeated Commerce, district six titleholder, last week at Graham 33-6, while Gilmer, champion of district eight, defeated Rockwall of district seven, regional champions last year, by a one-touchdown margin.

Steers Ready to Go

Coach Pat Knieff of Graham yesterday pronounced his team in excellent physical condition for the fame, and confident that it would turn back the invading Buckeyes.

The Gilmer crew, en route to Graham with several busloads of fans and rooters, stopped yesterday at Mineral Wells for a light conditioning workout. The team and fans were expected to proceed to Graham this morning.

The game will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

On the verge of capturing their first regional championship, ardent Graham boosters on the eve of the game were highly enthusiastic over the Steers' chances of victory. The Steers were knocked out of the district running in 1930 by the then-powerful Nocona Indians, and last years produced a powerful football team only to fall at the charge of the mighty Masonic Home team of Fort Worth, which then was a class B organization. The Masons also had been in the same district in 1930 but had been eliminated in a moment of overconfidence by the Weatherford eleven, which later was defeated by Nocona.

This Is Graham's Year

This year, with the Masons safely out of the way in the class A loop and having defeated the Nocona team, which again was powerful, the Steers are gunning for the laurels for which they have waited so long. Under the guiding hand of Coaches Knieff and Deacon a fast, deceptive, and alert backfield has been developed along with a driving, low-charging line that is rated highly in class B circles.

The brunt of the running attack probably will be borne by Jack Wheeler, elusive and shifty runner, Kimbrell, red-headed first year man who has developed sensationally, Dempsey Parsley and Whatley, each of whom shares in the ball carrying and blocking duties.

Fans at the game are promised two contrasting methods of offense, the Graham team relying on accurate handling of the ball through a series of swift, deceptive plays, while the Gilmer crew will depend on an orthodox running attack featuring off-tackle smashes, relieving the monotony with a deadly aerial game said to be the best in East Texas class B football. The Gilmer ball carriers are said to be supported by one of the finest defensive and offensive lines in the team's section.

Look What Could Happen

A Graham victory today and an Olney victory over McLean in the region No. 1 title battle to be played at Wichita Falls Saturday would bring all available class B honors for an immense territory embracing all Northwest and Northeast Texas, the Panhandle, and far West Texas to two scrapping Young county teams situated only 25 miles apart.

The Graham-Gilmer game will be squarely in the middle of the spotlight today, as all other high school teams in this section, with the exception of Olney, have folded up for the season after being eliminated in their quest for higher honors than their districts afforded. A record crowd is expected at the Young county seat, and accommodation for one and all at the athletic field has been assured, according to Stanley H. Peavy, Graham superintendent of schools.

Tomorrow the spotlight will shift to the Olney-McLean battle which will be played at Coyote stadium here. The local chamber of commerce and a horde of volunteers have been working on extensive plans for the game and a capacity crowd is expected.

One feature of the Wichita game will be the presence of a number of girls' pep squads and bands from schools in the surrounding territory. These will parade through the business section Saturday morning and will stage a giant pageant between halves at the game, in the same manner this attraction was presented last year at the Masonic Home-Clarendon regional game here.

Eight Pep Squads Assured

Late yesterday the presence of seven out-of-town pep squads and the Wichita Falls pep squad at the game was assured, according to P. S. Richardson of the chamber of commerce athletic committee. Schools announcing definitely their representatives would be here included Graham, Burkburnett, Olney, Electra, Henrietta, Walters, Okla., and McLean.

Many others were expected to announce definitely they would attend. Among those expected to send other delegations were Vernon, Grandfield, Okla., Newcastle, Seymour, Jacksboro, Crowell and Nocona. Several of these will be accompanied by bands.

The pep squads and bands will meet on the lawn of the courthouse here at 10:30 Saturday morning, and will be given free tickets to the game. They will then form for the parade through the business district.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the Kemp and Holt hotels and at Renfro Drug store No. 1. The price is 50 and 25 cents until 6 p. m. tonight, when they will be hiked to 75 and 35 cents.

PEP SQUADS NEEDN'T BE ACCOMPANIED BY BANDS

Some school pep squads in this vicinity have not made plans to attend the Olney-McLean game because the school superintendents were under the impression they had to be attended by a band, according to P. S. Richardson of the chamber of commerce athletic committee.

The pep squads need not be accompanied by a band to receive free tickets to the game, Mr. Richardson said. Schools without bands may send their pep squads just the same. Those that do have bands, however, are urged to bring them along.

Can Gilmer Get Through This Mighty Graham Line Of Stampeding Steers?

The stout Steer wall of Graham that has thrown back all opposition, and a few of Coach Knieff's backfield who will tote the leather against Gilmer today when the Steers battle for the regional class B championship, were snapped by The Record News cameraman as they went through the final phases of preparation for the battle.

The star Steer forwards of Graham have been rated one of the best aggregations of linesmen ever to perform in northwest Texas class B circles. Reading left to right, the picture shows John Wheeler, right end; Jarnagin, right guard; Colwell, right tackle and captain; Butler, center; Bigham, left guard; S. Parsley, left tackle; and Walker, left end.

Now take a look at the bottom row. On the left is "Red" Kimbrell, fiery-haired halfback who is hard to stop on a spinner. Next is Jack Wheeler, quarterback, a fleet runner and accurate passer. In the middle is a close-up of Captain Colwell. To his right is Dempsey Parsley, snapped as he plunged down the field as if he meant business, and he usualy does. At the extreme right is a close-up of Jarnagin, bulky, good natured tackle who is some scrapper in a game.

It might pay you to see these boys in action today. The game starts at 2:30.

Greenville Meets Corsicana, Reagan Plays Corpus In Quarterfinals Today

CORSICANA, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—The Greenville and Corsicana High school football teams went through final workouts here today in preparation for their quarterfinal intersectional football game tomorrow.

The Greenville squad arrived early in the afternoon and had their drill first. Neither Coach Henry Frnka of Greenville nor Coach John Pierce of Corsicana would name a starting lineup.

A large delegation of Greenville rooters was expected by special train by game time.

CORPUS READY FOR REAGAN

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Dec. 8.—The Corpus Christi football team went through its final workout here today in preparation for the game Friday with John Reagan of Houston in the quarterfinal round of the Texas Interscholastic league football race.

A hotly contested battle is predicted although the dope points out the Corpus Christi lads as underdogs.

CURTIS GETS SHOT AT TITLE

Jack Reynolds to Defend Mat Crown Tonight

Jack Curtis will reap the reward tonight in Govro arena for his brilliant work in the local wrestling ring when he gets a shot at the crown by Jack Reynolds, welterweight champion, in their main event battle on the regular weekly card. Curtis has been a consistent winner in Wichita Falls and has been stopping the best that could be brought here against him.

Fans will need no introduction to Jack Reynolds. The champ has wrestled here many times in defense of his crown and has never failed to give a very pleasing exhibit of his wares.

On the semifinal will be Dick Raines and Sol Slagel, two of the fastest heavyweights in the business. This 45-minute scrap should present plenty of thrills.

Sol Slagel met Humberto here some weeks ago and put on a whale of a scrap with the Mexican.

Raines will be remembered as the fellow who gave Billy Edwards such a tussle a couple of weeks ago. Raines gave the fans an exhibition of some plain and fancy strong man stuff they will long remember him for, as well as a display of some dazzling wrestling.

There will be another preliminary.

Caras Ties Veterans In Billiard Tourney

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—Young Jimmy Caras, who learned to handle a billiard cue almost before he knew his alphabet, today shot his way into a tie with two veterans for leadership in the national pocket billiard championship tournament.

Playing a conservative style of billiards to win his second match, the 21-year-old Wilmington, Del., star, turned back James Mills, San Jose, Calif., 125 to 76, in a battle between the two youngest competitors in the tournament. Caras ran out the game in 19 innings.

Pasquale Natalie, Chicago veteran, also won his contest to join Caras and the defending champion, Ralph Greenleaf, in the three-way deadlock for the lead. Natalie outlasted Walter Franklin, Kansas City, 125 to 73, in a long-drawn-out battle that ran 26 innings.

Although not so brilliant as in his first conquest over George Kelly, Philadelphia, young Caras was complete master of Mills after the West coast youngster had put together his high run of 32 in the second inning. Caras also had his best inning in the second, pocketing 27 before missing.

Chocolate Fights Labarba Tonight

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—At least one-third, possibly more, of the confusion that has settled over the head of the featherweight division can be cleared tomorrow night with the third meeting of Kid Chocolate, recognized in New York state as king of the 126-pounders, and Fidel Labarba, Los Angeles. They are matched for 15 rounds in Madison Square garden for the title.

Twice in the past the slender, glistening negro boy from Cuba has met the bulldog charges of Labarba, once the champion of the flyweights, with honors even. But that was before Chocolate hammered down Lew Feldman here a few months ago to take over the mantle in these parts that Bat Battalino dropped on the weighing-in scales a year ago.

While Chocolate's title rights are restricted to the confines of New York state, his claim for general recognition is considered the best that has been put forward.

The Cuban has held his ground in top-notch competition with the best of the lightweights, Tony Canzoneri, Jackie Berg, Al Singer, and the rest. He has run wild through the mediocre featherweight field, and found few genuine foes among the 126-pounders. Chocolate dropped a close decision to Battalino before increasing weight forced Bat into the lightweight class.

Texas Declines Offer To Play Tennessee

AUSTIN, Dec. 8. (AP)—The athletic council of the University of Texas today decided to decline an invitation to meet Tennessee in a post season game to be played at Dallas the latter part of December.

Dr. W. E. Metzenthin, chairman, said the council decided it would interfere with the orderly conduct of the athletic program and would seriously disrupt basket ball practice, since several football players also are members of the basket ball team. Metzenthin also stated the team was not very anxious to play and that several members were down in their studies and must go on a "study spree" if they were to maintain their eligibility.

In addition, Koy, fullback, and Stafford, halfback, two of the team's mainstays, have been invited to play in the East-West game. The council did not feel like asking them to decline this invitation and would not consider pitting Texas against Tennessee without their services, Metzenthin said.

SOONERS TURN TO BASEBALL

New Members Long to Get In Dixie Series

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 8. (AP)—A Dixie series with Tulsa or Oklahoma City in it was the dream of Oklahoma baseball fans as they tried to realize fully that the two Sooner teams have become members of the fast Texas league circuit.

The two Oklahoma clubs first tried to crash the Texas league in 1927. Their "secession" from the Western league brought a trial before the national board of arbitration, which rebuked the Lone state management for accepting them as members.

However, in 1909, 1910 and 1911, the Oklahoma City club was in the old Texas circuit and finished second one year and seventh twice.

The new Texas league is more compact than the Western. The longest jump will be either from Tulsa to San Antonio or Tulsa to Galveston, and either is 200 miles shorter than the distance from Oklahoma City to Denver.

Within the last two decades all the southwestern cities have grown rapidly and the prospects for large crowds in the Texas loop was a factor considered by both the Texas league management and the Oklahoma club owners.

LINCOLN MAY RE-ENTER WESTERN

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 8. (AP)—The Lincoln Star today said the transfer of Oklahoma City and Tulsa to the Texas league pointed to the return of Lincoln to the Western league.

The newspaper said John (Jack) Holland, would own and direct the Lincoln club and let his son manage affairs of his club transferred to the Texas circuit.

The Star said arrangements already had been made by Holland with President Bob Russell of the Nebraska state league for removal of Lincoln from the league's territory. It said the terms presumably involved an agreement binding the Western to purchase a specified number of players from the Nebraska league and that President Russell would call a meeting soon to relocate Lincoln's franchise in another Nebraska city.

Turkey Plans Third Annual Cage Tourney

Special to The Record News.

TURKEY, Texas, Dec. 8.—The third annual basket ball tournament for boys sponsored by Turkey High school will be held here next Friday and Saturday, Dec. 16 and 17.

Some 30 teams have been invited to participate, and a large list have already accepted the invitation.

Team winning first place will be awarded eight gold basket balls; the winner of second place, eight silver basket balls and to the winner of third place the tournament ball.

Competent officials will be secured and Coach Homer A. Pool, and others in charge, are endeavoring to make this the best tournament ever held here.

The United States ranks as Germany's best customer for musical instruments.

Trojans Prepare For Passing Duel

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 8. (AP)—A football battle of the clouds was in prospect as Notre Dame completed its Arizona preliminaries and packed to move on to Los Angeles. Southern California and Saturday were just around the corner.

If the Ramblers and Trojans find they can not carry the ball against great forward walls, and they are not sure they can, they will throw it. Then the air will be filled with munic and forward passes.

Although Southern California has been practicing for days in secrecy, no confidence is violated when it is said Coach Howard Jones has had his Trojans practicing for hours on forward passes—going both ways—offense and defense.

A modern Homer, Quarterback Homer Griffith, is the key man in the plans of Troy and Coach Jones wishes he had two Homers. It is not possible for Griffith to play the full game under the exacting demands of a Jones coached quarterback.

Southern California probably will start with one novel condition prevailing for a game with Notre Dame. The Trojans have one of the strongest lines in their history, so strong in fact that it has overflowed into the backfield. Of the starting backfield quartet, two members opened the season as linesmen, Bob Erskine, former tackle and end, and Kenneth (Red) Bright, ex-center.

The practice at Southern California has tapered off until it has developed into more of a vocal than physical exercise.

The advance sale has reached 95,000, within 6,500 seats of capacity. Speculators who did their football shopping early were asking and getting 100 per cent profit on choice seats.

BABE TO KNOW BY SATURDAY

A. A. U. Official Completes Investigation

DALLAS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Lawrence di Benedetto, chairman of the registration committee of the Southern Amateur Athletic Union, announced today after an investigation that his committee would rule Saturday on the eligibility of Miss Babe Didrikson to participate further in amateur athletics.

Di Benedetto conducted a hearing behind closed doors today and expected to take his information before the registration body in New Orleans. Other members are Dr. A. Magabgad and Claude Simons.

At the investigation Miss Didrikson, under oath and before a notary public swore that she did not sanction an advertisement quoting her as endorsing a certain make of automobile and Gordon Perry, owner of an automobile agency here, swore she did not authorize him in any way or form to use her name in connection with any praise of the car.

Perry also swore Miss Didrikson was shown the advertisement before it appeared in any publication and that she refused to approve it but that he sent it to the New York agency which handles advertising for the car.

Di Benedetto planned to leave tonight for his home in New Orleans.

SALARY LIMIT PLAN OPPOSED

Club Owners Disapprove Of Heavy Penalties

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 8. (AP)—The highly controversial subject of a salary limit among the minor baseball leagues and drastic penalties for its violation tentatively was passed up today by the National Association of Professional Leagues in convention here.

The matter has predicted lengthy arguments all week and before the national meeting today, it was believed a pay roll limit with penalties for violation would be adopted almost unanimously by the 13 smaller circuits.

But when the subject was presented on the floor of the convention, a fresh outbreak of argument seemed almost certain, so officials accepted a motion to pass over this phase of recommendations until the next session at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Opposed to Penalty

A survey among the magnates revealed they were not so much opposed to adoption of the salary limit itself as to the penalty provided by the executive committee for its violation.

Under the resolution presented for consideration of the committee "any club" guilty of any violation of the salary limit rule adopted for its classification shall, if the violation be not corrected within three days of notice of such violation, assign the contract of or release unconditionally the player on such club who receives the highest salary paid by such club. If more than one player is receiving an equally high salary then the player to be released or assigned shall be determined by lot.

In addition thereto a club "guilty of violation of the salary limit shall be fined 20 per cent of the maximum monthly salary limit allowed for each club in its classification," the fine to be paid into the National association treasury.

Additional Punishment

In addition the committee recommended a salary affidavit, signed by the player and the club president, be attached to each contract. The signing of a false affidavit by a player would make him liable to a penalty or a fine or to being placed on the ineligible list two years, or both.

It was believed these penalties would be softened a little at conferences tonight to arrange to bring the entire matter onto the floor some time tomorrow.

The National association adopted amendments to its constitution so that a new governing body will comprise an executive committee of three members, one from class AA, one from class A and the third from classes B, C or D. In addition there shall be a president, vice president, who will serve as chairman of the executive committee, a treasurer and a secretary to be appointed by the president. These offices will be filled tomorrow.

Meeting Time Changed

Among other things, the association voted to change its meeting time to the third Wednesday in November each year; refused to raise the protective limits of all classifications; to raise from one to two per cent the amount of cash consideration paid for the assignment of a player contract; to take three per cent from the gross gate receipts of all postseason series, including playoffs and various other minor changes.

The convention also passed a recommendation that each club be required to post with the league president at the start of the season a check or surety bond equal to two weeks pay of the ball club and a like amount with the National association. This is to protect players and creditors in case a team should pass out of existence before the close of the season. The question will be brought up again tomorrow.

FIDDLERS TO HOLD CONTEST

Annual Competition Slated At Amarillo Saturday

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—In the days of Mother Goose lived a monarch named Cole, familiarly known as a "merry old soul." When his court needed livening up, or he was in a mood to throw a party, he merely "called for his fiddlers three," and the gayety began.

Wilbur C. Hawks, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, who cannot command as did the medieval king, threw out the challenge:

"Say, old man, can you play the fiddle?" in calling seasoned exponents of the ancient art to participate in a benefit contest for the Amarillo Fat Stock show Dec. 10.

And the response from champions of "Sally Goodin" and "Arkansaw Traveler," "Yes, young man, both ways from the middle," echoed from the slopes of the Rockies in New Mexico across the Texas Panhandle to western Oklahoma. They are entering in such numbers that King Cole's merry shade will probably turn sour when he gazes upon the anticipated three-score fiddlers who will entertain Mr. Hawk and his patrons.

Age Limited

The fiddling contest is an annual affair. This year's event will be the largest ever held in West Texas where "fiddling"—not virtuosity—is a perennial art. Eliminations to select county winners have been required in past years, but the approaching contest will be open.

Fiddling has no age limit in West Texas, where many youthful players have increased their earnings performing at country dances. Former contests have been won by young competitors. But in order to limit competition to old-timers this year, no one under 40 years of age will be admitted.

Most of the old-timers who learned with resined bow to "pick out" the strains of old tunes without tutoring, object to youngsters competing as unfair. Many of the "kids," they charge, have taken violin lessons and are able to "doctor" up familiar tunes to better please modern jazz audiences.

The most popular numbers among fiddlers still are "Wagoner," "Billy in the Low Ground," "Forked Ear," "Leather Breeches," "Black-Eyed Susan," "That Girl I Left Behind Me," "Old Paint," "Rye Straw," and "Turkey in the Straw."

Although the fiddle always has been the favorite instrument among cowboys, and West Texas has produced some of the nation's greatest fiddlers, very few of the tunes were inspired by range life. "Old Paint" is an exception among the favorites. It is true, that many cowboy songs are "fiddled" by West Texans, but they don't make good contest numbers.

Jackson County Women Preserve 90,401 Quarts Of Food In Past Year

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Dec. 8.—Ninety thousand four hundred one quarts of food have been canned by 414 Jackson county women who are members of the different units of the Federation of Farm Club Women, according to the annual report which has just been compiled by Miss Edith Huffer, county home demonstration agent.

Included in this account is 18,681 quarts of fruit, 43,495 quarts of vegetables, 11,488 quarts of meat, 5,628 quarts of preserves and 11,109 quarts of pickles.

Two hundred forty-five beeves and hogs were canned and a large number of fowls made up the 11,488 quarts of meat.

In addition to the large amount of canning done these women made 1,517 pounds of cheese including 65 pounds of yellow cream cheese and 1,452 pounds of American cheese.

Neighbors, friends and relatives of many of the club women were assisted in canning. Reports received showed that 9,161 women were assisted or given instructions in canning.

Several of the canning demonstrators in addition to canning their budgets sold canned products. They found a more ready sale for canned products than for fresh vegetables.

Mrs. John Bauman of Victory sold 125 quarts of corn for 20 cents per quart and 423 quarts of okra and peas for 15 cents per quart making a total of $88.45.

Six hundred thirty quarts of canned products were sold at 15 cents per quart for Mrs. J. W. Robinson of Ozark. She received a total of $94.50 for products sold and helped to can 1,348 quarts for other people, including eight families, and gave 19 demonstrations in her community on cheese making, hominy making, meat canning and the canning of fruits and vegetables.

Mrs. N. D. Barnes of Ozark canned 144 quarts of beans and 168 quarts of corn for $1 per dozen when the purchaser furnished jars, lids and rubbers receiving a total of $26. She sold other canned products which were not reported.

Mrs. A. R. Jarvis of the Red Top club also reported having sold a sufficient amount of canned foods to purchase her clothing for the winter.

Vandals Destroy Food Stored for Poor Families

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich., Dec. 7. (INS)—Nearly 3,000 bushels of vegetables grown and stored for needy families on Ford farm plots near here were destroyed with a strong acid by vandals, it was revealed today.

Ford officials said the acid had been poured over a 150-foot long ditch in which the vegetables were kept. The discovery was made when several families called for their rations.

Romantic Novels Most Popular At Women's College

DENTON, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—That modern girls are romantic regardless of modernistic fads and frills has at last been proved, according to the librarian at Texas State College for Women. More than one-third of the books checked out of the college library are of the romantic fiction class.

Approximately 200 two-week books are checked out daily, one-third fiction, English literature coming next, followed by autobiography, biography and memoirs of women. Books mentioned by lecturers on the campus are usually in wide demand immediately following the appearance of the speaker. Interest in the mystery story, which has been so strong in the past, appears to be waning in comparison with other years.

Among the most popular modern authors are Hemmingway, Atherton, Kipling, Baum, Aldrich, Bromfield, Priestly and Norris. Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street" and Willa Cather's "Death Comes for the Archbishop" are ever popular.

King Confused After Reading Murray's Letter

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 8. (UP)—Gov. W. H. Murray today directed the attorney general to investigate "a murder of a man alleged to have been committed by three men," in Wagoner county.

Confused by what he termed Murray's "specific instructions," Atty. Gen. J. Berry King wrote the clerk of the county to find out "what the governor is talking about."

"There was recently committed in Wagoner county a murder of a man, alleged to have been committed by three men," wrote the governor.

"Their trial is to come up some time this month. I want you to send one of your best deputies to assist in the prosecution."

"I shall appreciate it if you can find out what the chief executive is talking about and will let me know so that I can endeavor to carry out his directions," King wrote the court clerk.

COURT GETS LIBRARY

AMARILLO, Texas, Dec. 8. (AP)—Federal Judge James C. Wilson has been granted a library in Amarillo for the first time since the court was created here. The expensive library will be locked in Judge Wilson's office, but will be open to local attorneys when court is in session.

FOOD SECTION---MENUS---RECIPES---HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Russian agricultural production in 1932 seems likely to fall far short of the official plans for the season, says the department of agriculture.

"HAD CONSTIPATION SINCE BIRTH OF MY FIRST CHILD"

Then Mrs. King Discovered ALL-BRAN

We quote from her voluntary letter:

"I have suffered from terrible constipation since the birth of my first child—9 years ago! I have tried everything and nothing had any lasting results. Very reluctantly I tried your 'ALL-BRAN' with no faith in it at all. Much to my surprise, I have not had to take any medicine since starting to use ALL-BRAN, 4 months ago."—Mrs. Doris Eyre King, 16 Abbey Road, Oxford, England.

Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN contains two things which overcome constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Certainly this is more natural than taking patent medicines—often harmful. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Just Heat And Eat

EVERYONE is familiar with the canned foods which are ready to heat and eat such as Beef a la Mode, Chicken a la King, Chop Suey, Hungarian Goulash and Lobster Newburg, but did you know that a whole new line of succulent stews, curried dishes and other ready dishes have recently been put on the market, and are now purchasable in most places at the majority of chain and independent stores?

Variety Available

The first of these new products were Lamb Stew, Irish Stew and Beef Stew, and these were followed by Curried Beef with rice and vegetables, Corned Beef Hash and Kidney Stew. There were a Chicken Curry and Irish Stew already on the market, but otherwise these curries and stews are new.

All the preparation of these new ready dishes is carried out, of course, under the inspection of the United States Government. The vegetables are thoroughly washed in water, peeled and cut by machine, and the ingredients for each can are weighed and measured separately to insure uniformity of contents. Peas, carrots, potatoes, celery, onions, and a rich gravy made from meats, stock and bones, all form part of these delicious stews.

While the stews are ready to serve without any additions, up to fifty per cent of water can be added if desired. In fact, if the contents of the cans are removed before heating, the addition of some water is probably an improvement.

Delays in the delivery of merchandise have been found to constitute 30.9 per cent of the complaints received by the larger stores in New York City.

In the fiscal year 1932 the department of agriculture inspected and certified 282,408 cars of produce at shipping points and examined 53,241 cars at terminal markets.

NAPKINS MAY HAVE INITIALS

Most Formal Size Is 30 By 36 Inches, Says E. Post

By EMILY POST
Author of "Etiquette, the Blue Book of Social Usage"

My Dear Mrs. Post—Will you please tell me in detail just the proper way of finding one's place at a formal dinner, where place cards are used—especially when the guests number very many?

Answer—Walk around the table reading names until you come to your own. (In private houses the butler is supposed to tell each guest entering the dining room "at the right" or "at the left," which keeps you from making the entire circle of the table).

My Dear Mrs. Post—What is the proper size for dinner napkins? How high should the monogram be and just where should it be placed? Should a person whose initials are R. A. McC. have all of these in a monogram?

Answer—The largest and therefore the most formal dinner napkins are 30 by 36 inches. The monogram, 1½ to 2 inches square, is placed in the center of the napkins. The typical formal dinner napkin is 26 inches square, and in many modern houses napkins as small as 22 inches square are used for dinner. Both these have monograms in the corner, 1 to 16 inches high. All the initials would be in best taste for a monogram on a formal table cloth. On the other hand, McC would be equally proper if you prefer.

Dear Mrs. Post—Does it make any difference at which side of the table a woman sits in a dining car on a train?

Answer—There is no rule. She chooses her place according to whichever way she prefers to face. Most Americans prefer facing forward. On European trains the majority prefer facing backwards.

My Dear Mrs. Post—(1) When one couple is invited for dinner, naturally the woman guest is served first. But is the hostess next or the man guest?

Answer—The procedure is to begin with a woman guest and then go on around the table without skipping. But if things are not being passed, for example, if the host is carving, he would help the woman guest, then his wife, then the man guest.

BRITAIN FIGHTS OIL CONTRACT

Anglo-Persian Treaty May Go to World Court

LONDON, Dec. 8. (AP)—Great Britain has notified Persia that unless cancellation of the Anglo-Persian Oil company concession is withdrawn within a week this country will refer the dispute to The Hague court.

Capt. Anthony Eden, under-secretary for foreign affairs, informed the house of commons of this development today.

Reference of the issue to the world court, he said, would be as a matter of urgency, and in submitting it Great Britain would request the court to indicate the provisional measures which ought to be taken to preserve British rights.

Persia cancelled the concession a week ago, charging that the company had failed to make royalty returns agreed upon.

SUNSET, Texas, Dec. 8.—A barn, some corn, peanut hay and other feed were destroyed by fire on the Miles Greenwood place two miles northeast from Sunset Sunday afternoon. This store has been burglarized several times this year. From $100 to $300 worth of merchandise has been taken at a time. Other stores in Sunset have been molested very little during the year.

HAPPY MEETINGS

"... at that I hate to leave, it's really home to me"

"... they met in the classified columns..!"

It was not the sort of a home that one could pick up on the auction block . . . or even contrive one's self on short notice. It was the result of years of development in supplying home comforts. But Evans was leaving town and had to sell. What a stroke of good fortune for Carr to find such a home ready to step into.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—An unexpected increase of approximately 750,000 bales in the government crop report over last November estimate had little apparent effect on cotton today. The report pointed to a crop of 12,727,000 bales compared with 11,947,000 as of Nov. 1.

Prices sold off rather sharply before the report, leaving the market in a strengthened technical condition and an additional decline of 6 to 8 points following its publication evidently brought in considerable trade buying and covering. This checked the decline at 5.53 for March contracts or about 21 points below yesterday's closing quotation and the volume of business tapered off during the afternoon with the market holding generally steady. March recovered about 16 points at its low, closing at 5.69, with the general closing steady at net declines of 3 to 8 points.

The opening was 7 to 13 points lower in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. In addition to rather active pre-bureau liquidation there was considerable southern selling, while there was also selling here through houses with Liverpool and continental connections.

The pressure continued until business was suspended to receive the government report and proved sufficient to send prices off to 5.48 for January and 5.71 for March or about 14 to 15 points net lower. When business was resumed there was a flurry of additional liquidation which sent the market off to 5.43 for January and 5.66 for May or about 21 per bale below yesterday's closing quotations, and carried the price of March contracts back to within a point of the lowest price touched by that position on the break of last June.

Offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying which seemed to be for both foreign and domestic account, at these figures, however, and closing quotations showed rallies of about 15 to 20 points from the low west.

The report of the bureau showing ginnings of 11,631,361 bales prior to Dec. 1, was also above expectations.

Liverpool cables reported Bombay buying and trade calling on the decline in the early market there. Exports today 34,948 making 3,446,813 so far this season. Port receipts 31,545. U. S. port stocks 4,825,446.

Futures closed steady, 3-8 lower. Dec., 5.56-60; Jan., 5.59; March, 5.69-71; May, 5.80; July, 5.90-91; Oct., 6.07; spot quiet; middling, 5.75.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 8. (AP)—Cotton ruled steady in more active trading today as the market dipped moderately and then recovered in the face of a final government estimate for a 1932 crop of 12,727,000 bales, 780,000 bales more than was indicated last month and about half million bales above general expectations. The response to the crop estimate and also the large ginnings figure to Dec. 1 was considered very slight and at the close futures were only 3 to 4 points down net for the day.

The opening was active but easier as Liverpool cables came in about 11 points worse than due. Private cables said the market was lower on stronger sterling and weakness in Egyptian and Manchester cabled the turnover in clothes and yarns was small. First trades here showed losses of 8 to 11 points in sympathy with the weakness in cables, and prices continued to ease off after the start on pre-bureau liquidation. January dropped to 5.49, March to 5.56 and May to 5.85 down 12 to 17 points from yesterday's close.

Prices then rallied 5 to 7 points and at the time the market recessed to receive the bureau January was trading at 5.50, March at 5.62 and May at 5.73 or 9 to 11 points below the previous close.

When trading was resumed prices eased a little further on liquidation and some selling by ring traders and January declined to 5.35, March to 5.47 and May to 5.56 or 15 to 16 points below the pre-bureau prices and 24 to 26 points under the previous close.

The market soon rallied on covering and trade buying, however, and was steady all afternoon, gradually advancing during to fai rtrade buying and shorts covering until March traded as high as 5.71 and May at 5.81 or 24 to 25 points above the lows of the morning. Prices held within 2 points of gain at the end and March closed at 5.68 or 3 points net down for the day and may at 5.78 or 4 points net down.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 4 to 5 points lower to up.

Port receipts 21,946, for week 222,635, for season 5,085,746, last season 5,510,507. Exports 30,948, for week 207,304, for season 3,414,381, last year 3,643,694. Port stock 4,774, 927, last year 4,663,424. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 156,824, last year 151,-165. Spot sales at southern markets 31,-242, last year 23,569.

CHICAGO COTTON

CHICAGO, Dec. 8. (AP)—Cotton closed 5-7 points net lower on crop months today and 3 points net higher on October. The final government crop estimate showing 12,727,-000 bales, against 11,947,000 last season, was larger than expected and caused a further slight break in prices to new low records for the season on most months. The market rallied sharply on trade and commission house buying on the theory that the worst of the new news was out. Rain fell over the southern section of the belt western Georgia and most of North Carolina the western half of the belt experienced freezing temperatures. The forecast is for generally clear and cold over the entire belt.

Stock Market Back-Tracks To Rut Of Sluggishness, Waiting Debt News

By JOHN L. COOLEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 8. (AP)—The stock market today cut back to the slow-motion performances that characterized trading a week or two ago.

Net changes were irregular and fractional, after five hours of sluggish fluctuations. A tabulation showed more declines than advances, but the averages, made up of pivotal issues, finished exactly at Wednesday's final level.

Obviously, the market was awaiting definite and official developments in connection with the foreign debts. Since the question was reopened immediately after our election, Wall street has felt that Great Britain would pay on schedule; hence it might be that any official announcement to that effect would prove to have been "discounted." The real problem, in the opinion of the most financial observers, centers around eventual disposition of the whole debts issue, and even with next Thursday's bills met, it is pointed out, the matter in all probability can hardly be called closed.

United States government securities looked best in the bond market, although the highest grade corporate obligations reflected a slightly more confident demand. Cotton stood up rather well against a higher Dec. 1 crop estimate than had been expected in most trade quarters, and wheat closed steady.

Stocks that had extreme moves of much more than a point were exceptional. Du Pont, U. S. Steel and Bethelehem preferreds and a few less important issues lost one each on the day, but pressure on none was very insistent. Coppers dragged down a bit, reflecting recent heaviness of metal prices which has in turn been a reaction from uncertainties as to whether the stalemated international conference would reach an agreement. Oils were dull and motors lacked the energy to follow up an early rise. Steel common, National Biscuit, Baltimore & Ohio, Loew's, Safeway Stores, Standard Oil of New Jersey and North American were balanced by narrow net advances in American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Sears Roebuck, American Can and Westinghouse. Business amounted to 704,921 shares.

General Motors Corp. featured its monthly sales statement with some light on its inventory position, disclosing that stocks of cars were at their lowest recorded level. November sales to dealers totaled only 2,405 units, or less than half the October volume, while American consumers purchased 12,780 cars against 26,941 in October; imminence of new models had to be reckoned with in considering the figures. An increased demand would quickly bring an expansion in manufacturing activity.

The Bank of England's weekly statement showed an increase in circulation and a drop in reserves, while the ratio of the latter to liabilities fell to 33.7 per cent against 41 per cent a week ago. The Bank of France also stepped up circulation and acquired a little gold. Sterling was heavy after its recent advance; francs held around the gold point.

Currency circulation, which has been making less than seasonal increases, rose $21,000,000 in the week ended Dec. 1. Monetary gold stocks were up $14,000,000 and member banks were able to reduce their discounts below $300,000,000, the drop approximating $10,000,000. The New York Reserve bank sold a small amount of government securities, but the system's total was unchanged.

New York City member banks reduced loans and investments by $109,000,000, paring "all others" loans $52,000,000 against a rise of $27,000,000 in the security item. They sold both U. S. government and other securities and demand deposits were drawn down but the changes were influenced by month-end requirements.

JONES LISTS OIL PROBLEMS

Indutry's Needs Outlined In Rotary Talk

Recommendation of means for stabilizing and energizing the oil refining business was combined with a history of that industry in a talk before the Rotary club Thursday noon by Roy B. Jones of this city.

Mr. Jones declared that a satisfactory solution of the problem now facing oil refiners demands that allowable production be fixed at the legitimate market demand; strict adherence to such allowable rulings; posting of a fair and reasonable price on crude oil, and of the allowable production offer at that price; curtailment of refinery runs to avoid a surplus of gasoline; and closer inspection of gasoline, and strict enforcement of the gasoline tax.

The speaker reviewed the tremendous advance in the volume of crude oil production and of refined products in this country since the advent of automobiles. Before such motors as those now used in automobiles were invented, he said, only 5.4 gallons of gasoline was refined from each 42-gallon barrel of crude oil. But with a greatly multiplied demand for gasoline, the average yield of that commodity today is 20 gallons from the 42-gallon barrel.

Changes in refining processes to get a greater percentage of gasoline were made necessary by the development of automobiles, Mr. Jones explained. Production of the present gasoline requirements on the old scale would have entailed the manufacture of other products in such amounts that an outlet would have been impossible to find. Cracking plants have been perfected to permit the isolation of a maximum amount of high grade fuel gasoline.

While in 1899 each barrel of crude oil produced 24.2 gallons of kerosene, only 2.2 gallons of kerosene is taken from the barrel of crude today.

Temple, Okla., Girl's College Thesis Wins Her Post As Tutor In Spain

Theses written by graduate students may as a rule bring no appreciable reward other than the degrees for which they strove—but Miss Lucy Tandy of Temple, Okla., considers that a thesis written at Norman, Okla., last spring to gain a master's degree in Spanish has brought her genuine good fortune from another angle.

Miss Tandy is a cousin of Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk of Wichita county. She has lived in Temple for many years, and finished high school there before taking the A. B. and A. M. degrees at the University of Oklahoma. A few months ago she was a secretary in the extension department of the university. Now she is living in the home of Senor and Senora Gimenez Caballero at Madrid, Spain, engaged as tutor of their children for at least this scholastic year.

Concluding her research work in Spanish last spring under a one-year fellowship, Miss Tandy chose Senor Caballero as the subject of her thesis. He is the editor of the "Spanish Gazette" at Madrid, a paper which corresponds closely to the "Saturday Review of Literature" in this country. Besides that, Senor Caballero is the author of several books, and is a frequent contributor to leading literary magazines of his country.

The Temple girl's thesis not only aided in obtaining the degree, but attracted such attention that a copy of it was sent to the Spanish man of letters. After reading it, he wrote Miss Tandy, offering her the hospitality of the Caballero home at Madrid, and seeking to engage her as tutor for his children. She accepted the offer, and left on Oct. 12, sailing from New Orleans.

While crossing the Atlantic, Miss Tandy observed (by letter) that practically all third-class passengers on her vessel were Spaniards returning to their homeland after having failed to obtain employment in America.

Arriving in Spain, and after a short time in Madrid, she further observed that while Spanish women excited little attention, "the men of Spain are alert, well-dressed, and attractive—just like the men in the United States."
