Market takes little stock in newest cuts

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock and bond prices plunged and interest rates rose on the nation's financial markets Friday, a sign that President Reagan's budget-cutting plans won't soon rid Wall Street of its pessimistic outlook for the economy, analysts said.

The activity continued the markets' summer-long slump. Analysts attributed the stock market's decline partly to market commentator Joseph Granville's warning in Paris that Monday will be "a blue Monday" on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which has fallen by about 20 percent since April, lost 11.13 points to 824.01 by the closing, with declines leading advances by a 10-1 margin. Long-term bond prices lost as much as 2 points, or $20 for each $1,000 in face value.

Commodity prices also fell sharply, with some livestock and precious metals prices off by as much as is permitted in a single session. The value of the dollar was lower in relation to most major' said George Handication that the budget will be reduced," said George Hanc, ction that the budget will be reduced," said George Hanc, chief that the budget will be reduced," said George Hanc, chief economist at the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Stock prices also tumbled in Europe, where Granville — who sent the market into a brief spin in January when he urged investors to sell — was spreading gloomy predictions about the American markets and the British economy. Brokers said, however, that Friday's loss of $1.6 billion from the value of London Stock Exchange-listed shares was due mainly to renewed fears of higher interest rates in England.

The Wall Street investment community seemed to take little comfort in Reagan's latest proposal for cutting federal spending by $13 billion and raising $3 billion in taxes to prevent a widening of the 1982 budget deficit.

"The perception in the markets is that the administration does have the resolve to carry through, but that congressional cooperation is more difficult to obtain with this second round of budget cutting," said Nick Marrone, assistant vice president and money-market analyst at Bank of New York.

While investors apparently saw little to cheer about in Reagan's nationally broadcast economic address Thursday, the president said Friday the stock market's decline was "not a verdict" on his newest economic proposals.

Wall Street — the collection of brokers, bankers, investors and economists centered in New York but scattered around the world — fears a ballooning budget deficit will mean higher interest rates and a weak economy.

But not all analysts believe deficit fears are the primary source of Wall Street's gloom.

Balancing act will require further cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Reagan declared "I'm sure not going to take the blame" for a plunge in the financial markets, chief aides said Friday the quest for a balanced budget by 1984 will require further cuts in Medicaid, Medicare, federal retirement and other benefit programs.

But the administration backed off plans to cut minimum portions in the millions of school lunches served across the country. Budget Director David Stockman said that proposal was "a bureaucratic goof that we're going to change."

Stock and bond prices plunged and interest rates rose on the markets Friday, an apparent indication that Wall Street wasn't much encouraged by Reagan's economic address to the nation Thursday night. The Dow industrials dropped 11.03 points by midafternoon.

Asked if he took the market's performance as a vote of no confidence, Reagan snapped "That keeps us even."

He said he wasn't bothered by falling stock prices "because I don't have any (stock)."

As to why the market was down, Reagan said "I don't know, but it started yesterday ... and I guess it's continuing on down. I don't know what the reason is, but I'm sure not going to take the blame."

"I'm going to go by the phone calls and telegrams that have been coming in since last night's speech, and they are running three or four to one and better in our favor," he said.

Stockman confirmed that the administration was withdrawing a plan to cut the minimum portions of meat, vegetables, bread and milk that schools must serve to children.

Meanwhile, Republican leaders said Congress likely will cut the defense budget next year by more than the $2 billion recommended by the president.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr, R-Tenn., said his colleagues "almost certainly" will go deeper. House Republican Leader Robert Michael of Illinois agreed, thought he said a proposal from liberal GOP members to slash $9 billion from defense goes too far.

Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan, Stockman and Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, met with reporters to amplify the president's pitch Thursday night for additional spending reductions.

The president recommended across-the-board reductions of 12 percent in non-defense and non-benefit programs, slashing the federal work force by 75,000 jobs, cutting back on federal loan guarantees and abolishing the departments of Education and Energy to achieve $13 billion in savings for the fiscal year thart begins Oct. 1.

Also included was a call for $3 billion in additional tax revenues through the elimination of "abuses and obsolete incentives in the tax code."

"When we first announced our economic recovery effort last February our national illness was clearly inflation ... This new round of reductions is simply one more initiative in that effort" to fight inflation, the Treasury secretary said.

He added that the hefty tax cuts Congress enacted this summer "would force us to live within our means. They would force us to continually examinie our spending patterns and to reduce or eliminate those programs which aren't necessary or aren't working."

"The spending suit must be cut to fit the revenue cloth that is now available as a result of the tax reduction that was voted and signed into law in order to spur a recovery of prosperity in this country," Stockman said. "The spending suit is still about 7 percent too big."

O'Neill welcomes Reagan's flexibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sounding a conciliatory note of his own, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Friday he welcomes President Reagan's "new flexibility" on Social Security and is willing to work with him on solving the system's long-range problems.

"I don't see how I can refuse the president," O'Neill said when asked about Reagan's call for a bipartisan commission. "I await further discussions with the president and his leaders."

Reagan suggested Thursday night that he, O'Neill and Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker appoint a 15-member panel to seek permanent solutions the huge retirement system's troubles.

In addition to further talks with Reagan and other GOP leaders, O'Neill said he must discuss the matter with other Democrats before giving final approval to the president's suggestion.

And he declared that any such commission must not be stacked with "those who would balance the budget no matter who they hurt."

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Social Security subcommittee, said in a floor speech that "we don't need another commission" and complained that "everyone has ducked the hard decisions" over financing the system.

But he added that he hopes it will work speedily "if the commission is created, and it looks like it will be."

With O'Neill talking about Reagan's "new flexibility," House Republican Leader Robert Michel expressed pleasure that O'Neill had "outlined a position of some conciliation."

And while O'Neill expressed some pleasure at the president's remarks on Social Security, he said he remains very concerned about the specifics of Reagan's plan.

Sandra Day O'Connor takes place in history

New Supreme Court member ready to tackle her new task

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, feeling "just great" about taking her place in history, is ready to begin work as the first woman on the Supreme Court.

As President Reagan and 500 other spectators looked on, Mrs. Connor was sworn in Friday as the high court's newest member.

On Monday, Mrs. O'Connor and her eight colleagues will begin a week of closed-door discussions on the more than 1,000 cases that have been building up over the summer.

The new justice has told reporters that she will be taking part in the conferences as the court gets ready for the Oct. 5 opening of its 1981-82 term.

The court has been asked to review, among other issues, the legality of denying pre-trial freedom to all people accused of certain crimes; a state law making it a crime to "promote" non-obscene sexual performances by children; and a case that followed the death of Kerr-McGee Corp. employee Karen G. Silkwood, who was active in labor organizing efforts at the plutonium plant

But Friday, Mrs. O'Connor and her family enjoyed one last day of pomp and ceremony, capping her transition from an Arizona appeals court judge to Supreme Court justice that began with Reagan's announcement of her selection last July 7.

With Reagan and his wife, Nancy, sitting in the front of the courtroom, Mrs. O'Connor swore her allegiance to the Constitution, and, in just a six-minute ceremony, ended a 191-year history of male exclusivity on the high court.

"On behalf of all the members of the court and retired Justice Potter Stewart, it is a pleasure to extend to you a very warm welcome to the court and to wish you a very long life and a long and happy career in our common calling," Chief Justice Warren E. Burger told her.

Texans celebrate swearing in of nation's first female justice

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Men "somehow have the edge" on political appointments even if equally qualified women are available, Chairwoman Jane Wells of the Texas Women's Political Caucus said Friday.

Ms. Wells, as well as representatives of several other women's and political groups, held a news conference to celebrate the swearing-in of Sandra Day O'Connor as the first woman justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

"This is an historic occasion for members of the caucus and for all Americans, women and men, who are dedicated to equality in American society," Ms. Wells said.

"While we are very proud of this accomplishment, we must not rest now," she said. "We must continue to strive for more opportunities for women until it is no longer an extraordinary event for a woman to gain such a position."

She said in Texas only 18 of 775 state court judges are women, and during Gov. Bill Clements' tenure only six of his 115 judicial appointments have been women.

There may be two reasons for the governor's appointment record, Ms. Wells said. One is that women "may not be doing a good enough job identifying potential candidates." The other is that many men also seek appointments, and "they have more experience at making the political process work."

"There are many qualified women, and very often men are no more qualified than women, but somehow they have an edge," she said.

Also, she said, "There are stereotypes of how women perform in various public offices," and Clements may be "more reticent to appoint" women. She added, however, "I hope Gov. Clements does not operate with that kind of attitude."

Educators fight cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Education leaders vowed Friday to fight President Reagan's attempt to cut even deeper into school programs and said they have the votes to block his plan to dismantle the fledgling Department of Education.

"We certainly intend to head him off at the pass, even though he's a pretty good cowboy," said Scott B. Thomson, executive director of the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

"President Reagan is on a course that will destroy public education," charged Bernie Frietag, vice president of the National Education Association.

Thomson and Frietag were among the leaders of a dozen school groups who called a news conference to vent their displeasure with Reagan's latest plans to scale down federal spending on education.

They said the new cuts he outlined Thursday night — when coupled with the 25 percent cuts he called for last spring — would amount to a $3 billion reduction in school and aid and lunch programs.

Although Congress refused to reduce education budget ceilings by the 25 percent Reagan called for last spring, the actual appropriations bills have yet to pass and the administration is still pushing for most of the cuts it originally requested. In theory, at least, the final appropriations could be substantially lower than the budget ceiling.

Congress weighs AWACS compromise

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG and BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia, its $8.5 billion arms purchase in congressional jeopardy, weighed Friday a compromise that would give Americans joint operational control of AWACS radar planes.

Several proposed revisions to the package, threatened with a congressional veto, emerged from an extraordinary meeting between three senators, a Saudi prince and President Reagan's national security adviser, according to participants who insisted on not being identified.

Prince Bandar bin Sultan said he would relay the proposals to his government and a reply is expected by Monday.

The principal elements in the proposed compromise, now being weighed by the Saudi rulers in Jidda, were:

— Joint crews in the AWACS to alleviate U.S. concerns that the planes with their highly classified electronic gear could be hijacked and delivered into hostile hands.

— Five years after delivery of the Boeing planes, scheduled for 1985, the United States would review the arrangement and decide whether to turn full control over to the Saudis.

— The United States would agree to equip the planes with advanced electronic gear withheld from the original package, equipment the government has not even included in AWACS provided to NATO.

Meanwhile, Reagan said Friday that senators opposing the sale "are literally doing away with our ability to continue to try to bring peace to the Middle East."

As he boarded a helicopter at the White House for a weekend at Camp David, Md., the president said: "We're talking now about planes that won't be delivered for 4½ years."

In that time, he added, "having kept faith with them, I believe they can be persuaded as they were in the Lebanon crisis."

The Saudis were credited with persuading Palestinians in Lebanon to accept a halt in hostilities with the Israelis during a recent flareup there.

Reagan said: "There would have been no cease-fire had they not heeded our plea and injected themselves into events" there.

Top administration officials, holding daily strategy sessions in the office of presidential aide James A. Baker III and on Capitol Hill, had concluded the package faced certain rejection by Congress unless significantly revised.

The element seen as essential to gaining the support of a majority of senators was strengthening U.S. control over the five Airborne Warning and Control System planes.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told reporters he understands the compromise would make "cosmetic changes" on who controls the planes and "that won't fly in my view" in Congress.

"Clearly what the Saudis want is to make it appear there will be Americans on board but command and control remains in the hands of the Saudis," Jackson said.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, was a key figure in the control issue and it was in his office that the meeting took place late Thursday. Also present were Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr., of Tennessee, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Richard V. Allen, White House national security adviser, and Prince Bandar, the son of Saudi Arabia's defense minister.

Prince Bandar said he would relay the substance of the discussions to his government and report its reaction at a later session.

Afterward, Ephraim Evron, the Israeli ambassador, met separately with Sen. Baker and registered his government's opposition to the sale as a threat to Israeli security.

Administration aides had advised Glenn that the Saudis were unlikely to accept joint crews for the AWACS.

Such a proposal "isn't a practical solution," the administration was quoted as telling the senator. Officials conceded to Glenn they had never broached the idea to the Saudis.

Europe welcomes word of arms talks

By DAVID MASON
Chief European Correspondent

LONDON (AP) — Western Europe gave a warm welcome Friday to the U.S.-Soviet agreement to begin talks to control nuclear missiles in Europe. But few observers were expecting a quick end to the arms race.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko announced Thursday that formal negotiations on European theater nuclear missiles will begin Nov.30 in Geneva.

America's allies in Europe, where anti-nuclear sentiment has been rising, have been pressing Washington to get the negotiations going, amid fears that the Reagan administration's strong anti-Soviet attitude might mean it was not prepared to talk.

Announcement of the Geneva talks was particularly welcomed in West Germany, where Chancellor Helmut Schmidt has been in serious trouble with the left wing of his Social Democrat Party on the missile issue.

Schmidt hailed the announcement of the Geneva conference and when asked by a TV interviewer if he expected substantive talks, he said, "That can be answered with an unqualified yes. Mr. Haig as well as Mr. Gromyko have both stated the two superpowers would use great efforts to insure these talks lead to success. At the same time I see in it a success for German policy."

The Frankfurter Rundschau newspaper said, "America has evidently learned from its mistakes. The anti-Communist rhetoric has suddenly gone." The Cologne Stadt-Anzeiger added that the announcement "will take some of the wind out of the sails of (government) critics."

British officials also welcomed the coming talks, without expecting any quick results. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher strongly supports beefing up the West's missile arsenal in Europe, in the face of calls for unilateral nuclear disarmament from the opposition Labor party.

The London Times said, "In the present low state of East-West relations it is something of an achievement for the Americans and the Russians to have agreed on a date...for the start of negotiations...The sight of the two superpowers sitting down together and trying to put a cap on the arms race will be reassuring especially to European nations. Nevertheless the real problems are only just starting. The positions of the two sides are far apart."

In France the Le Quotidien de Paris said, "It would be premature to consider this a sign of winding down of tensions...It shows nonetheless that beyond the bluster and verbal escalation, beyond the cold war speeches and vengeful communiques, the Soviet-American dialague remains, against winds and tides, the backbone around which hinges the ensemble of international relations."

The Belgian Belang Van Limburg said, "There is of course reason to rejoice that Washington has evidently realized that (its) cold war rhetoric has had a counter-effect in Western Europe. Washington begins to understand, one hopes, the unrest among Western Europeans..."

The Rotterdam Algemeen Dagblad said, "Anyone who expects concrete results is too optimistic. But one should feel glad that at least talks will be held. As long as they're talking, they won't fight."

The move toward the negotiating table has been long and tortuous.

America and her NATO allies decided in 1979 to meet a perceived Soviet missile threat by deploying 572 modern U.S. rockets in Western Europe, starting in 1983, and to seek talks with Moscow.

Soviet, Israeli ministers meet at United Nations

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Soviet and Israeli foreign ministers met at the United Nations in their first known contact in six years, but Israel's envoy said Friday that no progress was made toward improving relations between the two countries.

"I'm afraid I cannot announce that there is a thaw," Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir told Israel Radio the day after his 90-minute talk with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko at the Soviet U.N. mission in New York.

Moscow severed diplomatic ties with Israel in the wake of the 1967 Mideast war and Shamir said Gromyko told him the two countries were too far apart politically for these ties to be renewed.

The unexpected meeting made banner headlines in Israel but newspapers and political experts refrained from speculating on the significance of the event.

Shamir asked for the meeting, Israeli news reports said, and it was held over tea and coffee. Tass, the Soviet news agency, also reported the meeting.

The last known meeting between the two countries at the foreign ministers' level took place at the United Nations in 1975 between Gromyko and Allon.

The daily Maariv and Israel Radio said Israel gave President Reagan advance word of the latest meeting.

Stones open concert tour

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Rolling Stones, the British rock group that took the music world by storm in the 1960s, opened a 40-city U.S. tour Friday, drawing 90,000 fans with their driving, rambunctious music.

The famed British rock group received a thunderous standing ovation when lead singer Mick Jagger pranced onto the stage singing "Under My Thumb," one of the Stones' earlier tunes that helped rocket them to the top of the music charts.

Girls shrieked as the 38-year-old vocalist, dressed in a yellow quilted jacket, a red tank top and tight white trousers, then broke forth with "When the Whip Comes Down."

"It's great to be back," said Jagger. "It's sure good to be here." And that brought another roar.

"I came here to see a legend," said 20-year-old David Cahill of Seehonk, Mass., who drove all night to hear the group. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime occasion, and I wouldn't miss it for the world."

Police reported scattered fights at John F. Kennedy Stadium but no major violence as the concert opened. Capt. James Fe said 20 people were picked up on drug charges, four for disorderly conduct and two for drunkenness.

The concert began shortly before noon under blue skies and a warm autumn sun. George Thorogood and the Delaware Destroyers and Journey performed before the Stones.

The Rolling Stones...

...gather a mass of fans at Philadelphia's John F. Kennedy Stadium Friday. The stands — and the field — were nearly full as the Stones and several other rock groups began an afternoon concert. At left, Mick Jagger struts his stuff for the estimated 90,000 fans in attendance. A repeat performance is scheduled today.

Stones fans converge on Texas Stadium Friday

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Thousands of fans converged on Texas Stadium Friday after news of the Rolling Stones' Oct. 31 concert broke on Dallas radio stations.

The 60,000 tickets for the Cotton Bowl concert, which also will feature ZZ Top and the Thunderbirds, went on sale at 8 a.m., the same time concert information was delivered to the stations.

"We've had in excess of 20,000 people," said Mike Lott, Texas Stadium's vice president of operations. "It's been very orderly, very well-behaved. It's been a very well-controlled crowd."

By mid-afternoon, the ticket line had dwindled to 2,000 or so, he said, although "at its peak, we probably had 10,000 to 12,000 in line."

Lott said the only problem was overly anxious fans who couldn't wait to follow the signs to stadium parking areas.

"When they saw the line, they would park and run across the highway," he said.

The Stones originally were scheduled to play Dallas Oct. 22.

Bottled water saves fisherman's life

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Laquidara's devotion to a brand o French bottled water assured him of a life preserver when his rowboat overturned in choppy waters off City Island.

The 43-year-old fisherman, of Long Beach, managed to survive his dunking Thursday by clutching a beverage cooler while his companion, William Lindemann, 35, of the Bronx, swam off for help.

"It's a good thing I drink a lot of Perrier," said Laquidara. "That cooler goes with me everywhere."

The men were fishing when their 18-foot fiberglass rowboat overturned in the wind. Lindemann left his friend with the cooler, then struck off for land. He hit the beach two hours later and called police.

Ninety minutes later, while a police helicopter and Coast Guard boat were still searching, Sgt. Howard Smith of the harbor unit called Lindemann's mother, Elizabeth, to check on his condition.

She told police to call off the search — Laquidara had just walked in the door, having been pulled from the water by a passing sailboat.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Like most people, Elias G. Stergiopoulos could use $1,600, but he says honesty means more to him than wealth.

Stergiopoulos, a native of Greece who operates a family run restaurant here, noticed a roll of bills on the floor of a supermarket as he stood in a checkout line Wednesday.

Stergiopoulos, 49, picked up the money and turned it over to an assistant manager who gave it to the police.

Police Lt. Jerry Barker said Thursday the money had not been claimed and that if no one comes calling in the next few weeks, there's a good chance Stergiopoulos will receive the money.

"It is in assorted denominations," said Barker. "There is no identifying characteristic. The person would have to be downright accurate in identifying it."

"I did this because I want to show my kids that money is not everything," said Stergiopoulos, who has been in this country 22 years and has a 16-year-old son and two daughters, ages 14 and 13.

"I need that money more than anyone else, but I feel that maybe the person who lost it needs it, too," he said.

WAUSAU, Wis. (AP) — Jeffrey Cooper says his attempt to provide a low-cost alternative for local mail delivery has been thwarted by the U.S. Postal Service.

"I got put out of business," Cooper, 29, said Thursday night, only three days after starting his Wausau Courier Service. "The Postal Service threatened to prosecute any business that gave me business."

Cooper, a former real estate agent, offered to deliver letters for businesses within the city of Wausau at 10 cents each. He had planned to limit the service to businesses during a two-month trial period, although future posibilities could include handling personal letters as well.

However, postal officials informed him that federal law permits only the U.S. Postal Service to deliver first-class mail.

Cooper said he contacted the Wisconsin Civil Liberties Union and planned to prepare a written account of the matter for the WCLU. He said he placed each letter in a plastic pouch, 5 inches by 16½ inches, and did not believe it should be considered first-class mail.

"It's been phenomenal," he said. "I never dreamed it would cause this much trouble. I thought it was a novelty."

GOP lawyer recommends redistricting alternative

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A lawyer for Texas Republicans said Friday that Senate districts should be based on the voting population, not census figures that include children and felons.

Jim George of Austin also told the Legislative Redistricting Board it should draw both House and Senate districts that show population growth and shifts that occurred since Census Day in 1980.

Democrats on the board, and its staff attorney, qwestioned George's interpretation that the Texas Constitution requires Senate districts based on the number of people who could qualify to vote.

Steve Bickerstaff, staff counsel, said court decisions had determined that total population is the only basis for apportioning state senators.

George said no such decision ever had been applied to the entire state.

"In one district we counted 14,000 convicted felons who cannot vote. ... That is hardly one-man, one-vote when all these people can't vote," he said.

George also said his proposal would "make black districts blacker and more likely to elect black senators." Hispanic districts would have heavier Hispanic concentrations, he said.

George Korbel of Texas Rural Legal Aid, a primarily Hispanic organization, said the proposal would be "disastrous" for minorities because it would pack them into fewer districts while predominantly Anglo, conservative suburbs would gain representation.

"It guts the liberal Democrats, that's what it does," Jim George said later of his proposal.

The board also heard Comptroller Bob Bullock's stand-in say Bullock would be leaving the California hospital where he is receiving treatment for alcoholism on Oct. 23 — five days before the board's deadline to draw new House and Senate districts.

Robert Spellings, Bullock's $10,000 consultant on redistricting, said Bullock could return earlier if the board wants to make its decisions before Oct. 23.

"With any adequate notice, I can have Mr. Bullock back here if the board decides to consider a plan," Spellings said.

Bullock is undergoing treatment at CareManor Hospital in Orange, Calif.

Charles Sullivan, executive director of Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants, urged that prison units be divided among as many legislative districts as possible.

"In our almost 10 years of experience with the Legislature, we have found legislators with the prison units in their districts to be at least open to our priorities," he said.

Sullivan said the exception is the legislator whose districts include the central administration of the prison system in Huntsville.

Blacks from Dallas and Fort Worth asked the board for greater influence in the Senate.

'Delayed' firing delays project

HOUSTON (AP) — As originally envisioned eight years ago, the South Texas Nuclear Project was supposed to cost $738 million and start producing electricity this year for people in Houston, San Antonio, Corpus Christi and Austin.

Instead, the latest cost estimates have soared to $4.6 billion — more than six times the original prediction — and the completion date has been rolled back to 1986.

In addition, the project has been mired in controversy, and the government last year fined Houston Lighting and Power, the controlling partner, $100,000 for intimidating inspectors into OKing sub-standard work.

But HL&P insists the latest development — the firing Thursday of Brown and Root Inc. as builders and engineers — was taken because of the delays and has nothing to do with the quality of the design or construction.

"We have always felt that the quality of this project was good," said electric company spokesman Don Beeth. "Our distress has been with the quantity of their work."

Beeth said HL&P "reluctantly came to the conclusion that despite Brown & Root's best efforts, their ability to attract and retain the types of nuclear engineering talent necessary was limited." He said officials had been considering the move for the past six months.

Bechtel Power Corp., which has built about 40 nuclear plants, will take over at the construction site, near Bay City, about 90 miles south of Houston. HL&P President Don Jordan said Brown and Root will continue to do actual construction work, but a Brown and Root statement was vague on that point.

"Brown and Root intends to cooperate fully with HL&P in making this change, and it has the question of its future role in the project under study," Brown and Root said.

The $100,000 fine was levied on the plant in May 1980 by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission after an 1,100-hour investigation.

The government also ordered HL&P to "show cause" why its licence to operate the plant should not be revoked. Three NRC officials have heard seven weeks of testimony in the licensing hearing, and it is scheduled to resume in Houston Monday.

Larry Sinkin, leader of the Citizens Concerned about Nuclear Power of San Antonio, said lawyers for his group will try to delay that hearing in light of Thursday's announcement.

"This is a long overdue response to mismanagement at this project. I don't think it's an adequate response," said Sinkin. "The real problems have been in construction and quality control, so removing Brown and Root from design engineering is not addressing the real problems."

Board on Aging approves grants

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Board on Aging approved Friday $36 million in grants to 28 regional agencies to provide services for the elderly, including a $701,570 grant for the Permian Basin Area Agency on Aging.

The funds, made up of federal and state matching funds, help provide nutrition, transportation, information referral and other services which vary from agency to agency.

The grants, which are authorized under the federal Older Americans Act, were approved contingent on further budget cuts that might be made by Congress. Those cuts would be shared on a pro rata basis among the agencies receiving funds.

Clements wants changes in alien program

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he wants changes made in President Reagan's illegal aliens program and he's sure Congress will make still other changes.

"We are probably a year away from any congressional action," Clements told a news conference. "There will be lots of hearings and lots of changes."

Clements said Richard Rubottom, his foreign affairs consultant, was correct when he told a University of Texas seminar Thursday that Clements still had reservations about the Reagan administration's illegal alien program.

Clements at first called the administration plans for illegal aliens "unrealistic and doomed to failure." Later, after a recent trip to Washington, Clements said Reagan's program had been explained to him in detail and he generally approved it.

"There are still minor differences," Clements said Friday. "There has been no final draft made yet. The Reagan concept is a very general plan."

Clements said the differences included sanctions and fines that might be levied on employers who hired aliens, the form of identification cards and the length of time to obtain a temporary visa.

"All of these are really open issues," he said. "They have not been presented to Congress, and I think Congress will make some significant changes."

He said he had talked with Mew Mexico Gov. Bruce King and found him "supportive" of the plan but had not had a chance to confer with the governors of California and Arizona.

He said the illegal aliens situation will be a main subject of discussion Oct. 5-6 when the four U.S. border governors meet in El Paso with the Mexican border governors.

On other matters, Clements said:

— His "insiders" have told him that former Gov. Dolph Briscoe had not made a decision to seek the Democratic nomination again, despite published reports.

— He has decided to support abolishment of the federal Department of Energy. "It could be an enormous savings in people and money, but I think Congress will make it very difficult to abolish," he said.

— He had his first physical examination in four years and was found "just great, a clean bill of health." He said he went to a doctor for treatment of a sore throat but the doctor refused to continue treating him until he had a physical.

Briscoe still considering governor's race

UVALDE, Texas (AP) — Former Gov. Dolph Briscoe said Friday he has not made a decision to run for Texas governor in 1982, but he is still considering it.

"I have not made any political decision at this point," Briscoe told Laredo radio station KVOZ from his Uvalde office. "I have some other commitments at this time, so I have not made any political decision. My position is the same as it has been for the past few years. I have not closed any doors concerning future political activity or future races. At this point, I have made no decision."

Briscoe responded to published reports that quoted "insiders" as saying he had decided to seek the 1982 Democratic nomination.

"My 'insiders' don't tell me he is going to run," Republican Gov. Bill Clements told a news conference. "They say he may or may not make this decision but there has been no decision at this time ... I have not discussed it with him."

Clements, who has informally announced he will seek re-election in 1982, said he was sure Texas Democrats would provide opposition.

"I really don't care if it is one or five candidates," he said.

Clements said he had polls showing how various possible Democratic candidates would run against him but he refused to divulge the results.

"All seem to run about poorly as the next," he said.

Last May Briscoe filed papers with the secretary of state designating himself as his own campaign treasurer for an unspecified political race. State law requires such filing before contributions can be solicited for any political race.

There have been numerous reports of the Uvalde rancher-banker contacting his former supporters to discuss ways Democrats could unite behind one candidate.

Briscoe was defeated in the 1978 Democratic primary by former Attorney General John Hill, who later lost to Clements.

Other Democrats considered possible gubernatorial candidates include Hill, Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong and Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler. None has announced his 1982 intentions.

Several to intervene in suit

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Three state representatives, a city councilman and a county commissioner are among a group of Mexican-Americans who have asked to join a suit contesting the Legislature's congressional redistricting plan.

State Reps. Albert G. Luna of Houston, Matt Garcia of San Antonio and Arnold Gonzales of Corpus Christi; San Antonio City Councilman Bernardo Eureste, Val Verde County Commissioner Ricardo Padilla and seven others filed a motion seeking to intervene in the suit on behalf of the state's Mexican-Americans.

Parkinson's disease sufferers band together

By MARIA VIGIL
The Tucson Citizen

GREEN VALLEY, Ariz. (AP) — The man was talking to the group about his experiences when he stopped abruptly in mid-sentence.

"This is one of the things that happens," he said when he could continue. 'My mind just goes blank on me."

The people to whom he spoke were not shocked or scared by what had taken place. They waited him out patiently and continued the meeting with business as usual.

For this group, such interruptions are part of its business. What brings this group together is Parkinson's disease, illness that afflicts its members and an estimated 1½ million others nationwide, most of them 60 or older.

Parkinson's has no known cause or cure. Often it starts with mild body tremors and ensuing listlessness. It can progress rapidly to advanced stages or remain at one level for years on end, but it is not fatal.

Victims suffer to some degree some or all of the following symptoms: slowness of movement and difficulty in starting movement; stiffness, rigidity and "freezing"; shaking or tremors that usually begin on one side of the body; loss of facial expression; difficulty in speaking and remembering, and restlessness.

These symptoms result from a disorder of certain brain cells that help to regulate body movements by releasing a chemical known as dopamine. Persons with Parkinson's disease lack the necessary amount of dopamine. Many take drugs that partly replace the chemical and help relieve symptoms.

But other problems often accompany the physical symptoms of the illness. Victims sometimes feel they have become a burden to family and friends. Some become impatient with themselves and feel worthless and depressed. Others may become inactive or apathetic.

Such reactions can put a strain on not only the victims of the disease, but their families and acquaintances as well. It is for this reason that more than 60 Parkinson's disease support groups across the nation — including three in Arizona — recently have formed. One such group is in Green Valley, the others are in Phoenix and Sun City.

"Some Parkinsonians tend to become closet cases because they shake or are in such poor physical shape. The group is one means we have to encourage them to live more useful lives," said Jean Bartling, wife of a sufferer and chairman of the local group.

Mrs. Bartling's husband, Melvin, started with symptoms of the disease some 12 years ago. As superintendent of construction for the California Water Co., Bartling's job required that he travel extensively.

"But it got to the point where I would have to drive for a couple of hours and then pull over to the side of the road to sleep," he said. "Some people in the office were asking me why I was shaking, and I wasn't even aware I was doing it."

It's not unusual for Parkinson's disease sufferers, their families and even their doctors to be unaware they have the disease, for it is among the hardest to diagnose, said Mrs. Bartling.

Raquel Welch suing National Enquirer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Raquel Welch is suing the National Enquirer for $42 million, claiming four articles printed by the tabloid caused the actress and her husband "shame, mortification and hurt feelings."

The articles printed in 1980 and 1981 reported that Miss Welch had been shunned by the movie industry, was fired from a film and had fought with her husband, according to the suit filed Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court.

The suit seeks $1 million in damages, $1 million for "lost employment and production opportunities" and $10 million in punitive damages for each of the four allegedly libelous articles. It was filed against Publisher Generoso Pope, Editor Ian Calder and writers David Wright, R. Couri Hay and Granville Toogood.

Marc R. Stein, who filed the suit, said Miss Welch's lawyers had demanded retractions of the articles, but none was published.

Andre Weinfeld, 33, a writer, producer and director whom the 40-year-old Miss Welch married last year, was portrayed in the articles as a violence-prone, manipulative man, the suit said.

The suit quoted one story as reporting: "Fading sex bomb Raquel Welch was fired from her latest movie ("Cannery Row") because she threw temper tantrums, made outrageous demands for changes in her script and acted like an indispensable superstar instead of a hopeful has been."

Irving Younger, the National Enquirer's Washington attorney was reached in Kansas City. He said he hadn't seen the suit, but the tabloid would fight it "vigorously."

"We will contest this vigorously and I suspect that one defense will be that the articles are absolutely true," he said.

The Enquirer recently has been the target of numerous celebrity lawsuits. The only suit that has gone to trial involved Carol Burnett, who won $1.6 million from the paper in March, a sum later cut in half by a judge. The tabloid said it would appeal.

Actor Cary Grant recently filed a $10 million suit against the tabloid, claiming the paper implied that his current wife pressured him into his fifth marriage.

Younger also said the tabloid would "undoubtedly deny the essential allegations" made by a Pontiac, Mich., chiropractor who filed a $20 million libel suit against the tabloid Wednesday.

The suit filed by John Cowan of Clarkston said a November 1980 article called chiropractors "smooth-talking charlatans," "greedy" and "bent on ripping off the public with their quackery."

Cowan was quoted in the article. His suit claimed the quotes were incomplete and taken out of context. It said his association with the story cost him patients and caused him "professional and personal embarrassment."

At 93, Ruth I. Moore of Akron, Ohio, may be the oldest practicing female attorney in the United States. Miss Moore, who does not have a formal law school education, started her careet in 1910 as a stenographer with a law firm. She studied law under the apprentice system and passed the state bar exam in 1925.

She may be nation's oldest practicing female attorney

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ruth I. Moore never graduated college and never went to law school. But now, at 93, she may be the oldest practicing female lawyer in the nation.

"I've never had much interest in housework," said Miss Moore, who handles probate and tax cases for the firm of Roetzel and Andress.

Nevertheless, she cares for a large house and fixes her own meals.

Miss Moore was the eldest of four daughters of a farmer and coal miner from Clearfield, Pa.

In 1910, when the family moved to Akron, Miss Moore took a job as a stenographer with the law firm, then known as Allen, Waters, Young and Andress.

She was promoted to legal secretary and became fascinated with the law when she began reading cases aloud to a partner who was losing his eyesight.

There was no law school in Akron, so Miss Moore studied at the office under an apprentice system common at the time.

"For a professional woman, she is a good role model," said Kathryn Vegso, a dean at University of Akron. "We look up to her. She moved ahead in the days when women weren't making such moves."

As a stenographer, Miss Moore attended the University of Akron part-time, earning two years' credit. In 1925, she passed the Ohio state bar exam.

She is the only surviving member of her family, and has a nephew, John M. Ulman, who recently retired at 65 from Roetzel and Andress.

But Miss Moore still goes to work several days a week to work on her cases. For now, she has no plans to retire.

"The Lord will decide that for me," she said.

Twelve-year-old recalls shooting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Twelve-year-old Kelly Cartier came through brain surgery with a clear memory of the man who shot her and killed her girlfriend, her father said.

Rod Cartier, a Lake Elsinore contractor, said Thursday that Kelly told him she remembers lying in the dirt after she was shot.

Kelly told her father she remembers the gunman "getting out of the truck, walking around the camper, throwing his gun inside and then driving off," Cartier said.

The shootings occurred Sept. 19 in the Cleveland National Forest as Kelly and Vanessa Iberri, also 12, searched for a picnic spot close to the site where they were camping with Vanessa's mother and her boyfriend.

Police are seeking Thomas Francis Edwards, 37.

Brooke Shields' mother trying to suppress nude photographs

NEW YORK (AP) — The mother of teen-age actress Brooke Shields has gone to court to try to suppress nude photos of her daughter at the age of 10.

A lawyer for the photographer is arguing that publication of the pictures can't harm the 16-year-old star, whom he called "the Lolita of her generation." And the photographer says Teri Shields consented to the pictures.

Justice Nathaniel Holman granted a temorary restraining order Thursday against sale of the pictures by photographer Gary Gross, saying, "The sale of large volumes of the photographs in question, including the nude photographs taken when she was 10 years old, would result in serious injury to Miss Shields."

But he said he expects an explanation from Mrs. Shields as to why she signed two releases at the time Gross snapped the pictures.

Gross contends he took the pictures in 1975 with Mrs. Shield's consent for a Playboy Press book entitled "Sugar and Spice." One photo shows Miss Shields in the buff, standing in a bathtub, her body covered with oil.

The court hearing involves a motion for a permanent injunction by Mrs. Shields against sale of the pictures.

Gross' lawyer, Richard Golub, claimed in court papers that Miss Shields, in her often steamy cinematic portrayals, "is no Shirley Temple."

"She is portrayed as a young vamp and a harlot, a seasoned sexual veteran, a provocative child-woman, an erotic and sensual sex symbol, the Lolita of her generation," Golub maintained.

Lolita was the title character of a novel in which a precocious child is enticed into a sexual liaison with an older man.

"These photographs," Golub argued at another point, "are of 'museum quality' compared to the unmitigated trash Brooke has involved herself in while climbing the vine of international stardom."

Miss Shields has played a child prostitute in "Pretty Baby," a girl discovering sex in "The Blue Lagoon" and the object of a young man's obsession in "Endless Love."

Convicted kidnapper Parnell given seven-year prison term

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Kenneth Parnell, a drifter convicted of kidnapping a little boy and charged with abducting a second child years earlier, was sentenced Friday to seven years in prison.

The balding 50-year-old stood in Alameda County Superior Court with his head slightly bowed and his hands folded behind him as Judge M.O. Sabraw imposed the maximum penalty in the Feb. 14, 1980, kidnapping of Timmy White in Ukiah.

Parnell still faces trial in the abduction of Steven Stayner, who disappeared from a Merced street in 1972 at the age of seven and says he lived with Parnell for seven years. He led Timmy to freedom.

Sabraw rejected leniency pleas by Scott LeStrange, Mendocino County public defender, but agreed to strike two prior felony convictions from Parnell's record, thus reducing Parnell's possible sentence by two years.

The judge said he imposed the maximum penalty to protect society, to discourage Parnell from committing a similar crime when he gets out of prison and to deter others from kidnapping.

Responding to defense contentions that White was not injured or harmed during his abduction, Sabraw said, "True, there is no evidence of physical violence, but we cannot conclude there was no harm to the boy regarding lasting emotional and psychological damage."

Parnell was convicted of abducting White as the youngster walked home from school and of holding him for two weeks at a remote one-room cabin in the mountains west of Ukiah.

Stayner, then 14, took White to Ukiah police March 1, 1980, telling them he didn't want the youngster to go through what he had endured for seven years. Parnell was arrested hours later at the downtown hotel where he worked as a clerk.

An Alameda County jury deliberated just 2½ hours before convicting Parnell in the White case on June 29. The trial was switched from Mendocino County because of pre-trial publicity.

Abuse alleged

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) — A judge said Friday that a man charged with killing 10 youngsters should be moved to another jail because of his complaints of abuse by guards and other inmates.

Clifford Olson told the Vancouver Sun newspaper Thursday that he had neither a bed nor running water in his cell at the Lower Mainland Regional Corectional Center in Barnaby.

Candace Tovar of Broadway's "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," left, and Kathy Williams of Belmont Racetrack, right, are both declared winners in the East Meets West Chili Cookoff. Jane Butel, of New Mexico, officiated the contest for the benefit of the Arthristis Foundation.

Ham radios aiding eye transplants

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — It was around Christmas in 1962, and word crackled over the "ham" radio from a blind amateur operator in Oklahoma City that a child in his city had severely burned his cornea.

Since then, Dr. Alson Braley's Eye Bank Network has been the ears for making more than 10,000 connections between donors and corneal transplant patients.

The figure is 10,002 to be exact. Braley found out Thursday that the 10,000 mark had been passed the day before.

Braley is a retired ophthalmologist and dedicated ham radio operator whose vocation and avocation led him to the create the network, which now has amateur radio operators in 60 cities across the country.

Twice a day they "meet" via the airwaves to exchange information on where eyes are needed for corneal transplants and where those eyes are available from donors.

"All we do is connect this eye bank with that eye bank," Braley said. "We make the contact. The eye banks work out the details."

An eye bank calls its local ham if it needs or has an available eye for a corneal transplant.

The network was born of Braley's frustration at not being able to locate corneas for patients who needed transplants.

"I became head of the eye department at the University of Iowa in 1950," said Braley, 75, who was chairman for 17 years. "When I first came we didn't have an eye bank here.

"We got one started with the help of the Lions Club, but one of the biggest problems was when you had an emergency, you didn't always have an eye available.

"I thought we might set up a teletype operation between eye banks, but that looked like it was going to be a very expensive thing."

So Braley, a ham operator from the age of 15, decided to put together a network of fellow hams in cities where eye banks were located.

On Dec. 20, 1962, 15 operators in seven cities checked in on the network for the first time. The first connection came a short time later when a Chicago eye bank shipped an eye to Oklahoma City.

"It was Christmas time, and a child had received a very severe burn to the cornea," Braley recalled. "And a blind amateur operator in Oklahoma City decided to check in because he'd heard us on the network."

Braley said the network handles only emergency cases, some of which are the result of burns or accidents.

"But the most common thing is when an ulcer of the cornea breaks," he said. The virus that causes cold sores can cause infections and ruptures of the cornea.

"Then it's a matter of minutes or hours" before a patient's sight is lost, Braley said.

Although the network was designed to serve eye banks in the United States, the hams have helped send eyes to places such as Paris and Hong Kong.

"But the most exciting one for me personally involved a fellow from northern Michigan, who only had one eye, and he had a perforated corneal ulcer," said Braley, who was treating the man at University Hospitals.

"I asked for an eye on the net and got one from Indianapolis."

Former prisoner now traveling puppeteer

By LARRY LOPEZ
Associated Press Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The children probably don't know it, but the rotund, bearded bear of a man in janitor's overalls they laugh at was once, by his own account, one of the most reviled men in America.

In fact, Job Matusow says, his lawyers once told him he could not sue for libel because he had no good character left for anyone to besmirch.

And Magic Mouse, the central character of Matusow's traveling road and puppet show, was born in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Matusow is still telling tales, but the yarns he spins for children now are different from the stories he used to tell from Sen. Joseph McCarthy's witness stand.

Matusow's first name wasn't always Job. It used to be Harvey, but he changed it to that of the biblical figure more than 25 years ago — the day his father died, his wife left him, his boss fired him and his lawyer told him was going to jail.

MAGIC MOUSE has been with him since the day in prison when a warden's Christmas tree was stolen, cut into little pieces and distributed to each inmate's cell.

Asked who had done the deed, inmate Matusow replied: "It must have been a magic mouse."

Now, the mouse lives in Angelville, along with Sir Tyrannosaurus Grape, a dinosaur allowed to come back to life as a grapebush; Sir Gawain, who became a school crossing guard after going broke in a search for the Holy Grail, and a host of others.

And it is Matusow who guides children there as "Janitor Job," in personal appearances, on radio broadcasts and in a pilot television program.

The children love him.

He and other members of the Magic Mouse Theater Companie received hundreds of letters from the schools where they have appeared, and the television pilot drew dozens of favorable telephone calls to a special number, even though it pre-empted "Sesame Street."

ADULTS ARE not immune from Matusow's charm.

In Houston, radio station KPFT's daily five-minute Magic Mouse broadcasts have spawned cult followings in Huntsville State Prison and at least one oil-equipment company, as well as in nurseries and schools.

And the clutch of actors, jugglers, clowns and musicians he has gathered into his troupe are working for love, not wages.

"We have more smiles-per-hour here than anywhere else," says artist Randy Harris, a painter who joined Matusow to play Randy Rainbow, Father Time and other roles.

Not everyone is beguiled. Columnist Jack Anderson reacted with a terse, "I hope not" when told a while ago that Matusow claimed Anderson's example had inspired him to become a Mormon.

Anderson knew Matusow from the McCarthy era, when Matusow first testified as an ex-Communist, then recanted the testimony, swearing that he had lied on the stand and been helped in it by Roy Cohn, an assistant attorney general who became one of McCarthy's top counsels.

Cohn denied helping Matusow, and Matusow was found guilty of perjury. He was sentenced to five years in prison.

AS MATUSOW tells it now, he left the Communist Party and joined the vocal anti-Communists — but intending from the start to expose his new allies in his new role as civil libertarian.

"It was kind of a double agent fantasy," he says, recalling how he went public in this role in 1955 with an autobiography entitled "False Witness."

"I wrote the first chapter on Jack Anderson's typewrtier in Drew Pearson's office," he says.

Sen. McCarthy and others quickly denounced Matusow, contending he was still an active Communist seeking to discredit the ranks of their militant forces.

A federal judge in Texas ruled tht Matusow had recanted his testimony to call attention to his book.

Anderson recalls that Matusow had at first been "an out-and-out vocal and enthusiastic McCarthy supporter," then switched sides — "he was one of those people who would swing from one extreme to another.'

Cantonese opera regains favor

HONG KONG (AP) — Cantonese opera, an almost forgotten art not too long ago, is gradually gaining popularity again in Hong Kong.

Theatrical circles attribute this to China's liberalization policy and the Hong Kong government's determined efforts to wipe out this colony's image as a culture desert.

Early this year, China sent Hung Sin-nui or Red String Girl, a near-legendary figure in Cantonese opera, to Hong Kong and she took this colony by storm.

Miss Hung's popularity in Hong Kong is partly because of her operatic talents and partly because of political reasons.

Red String Girl, 53, returned from Hong Kong to China in 1955, where she was humiliated by radical Red Guards, restored to a high position by their leader Jiang Qing, widow of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, and sacked on charges of working for the "Gang of Four."

Eventually, she was given a clean bill of health after the downfall of the gang.

Meanwhile, the government here has also tried hard to popularize the ancient art — an offshoot of the Peking Opera. Cantonese operas have been staged in almost every local art festival.

However, the popularity of Cantonese opera is still limited, mostly to elderly people. Young people complain that the operas are too lengthy, each usually lasting four to five hours.

Gefilte fish thrust into ethnic crossfire

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Gefilte fish has fallen on hard times in the Jewish state.

Spurned by the native Sabra generation as a vestige of Europe's ghettos, it is now the target of Israeli Sephardis, Middle Eastern or North African Jews who see it as a symbol of the Ashkenazi, or European, establishment.

Gefilte fish, which means stuffed fish in Yiddish, has graced the Sabbath dinner tables of European Jews for centuries. In America it is rivaled only by the bagel and the knish as the Jewish delicacy par excellence.

The dish was thrust into the ethnic crossfire last month by Raanan Naim, a strapping, 45-year-old farmer and Libyan-born Sephardi who had just been elected to parliament. During a quarrel over the apportioning of parliamentary committee seats Naim snapped: "If you serve us gefilte fish we won't eat it. I'm sorry but gefilte fish makes me puke."

The remark jolted the country, which had just gone through an election campaign scorched by the ethnic conflict. As Naim said later, "I could have spent 24 hours explaining my point of view. But I used one well-aimed phrase and everybody understood it."

Naim and fellow North African Rafi Edri, a Moroccan, were bitter at failing to win seats on the finance committee, where they believed they could work for a better lot for Sephardis.

Israel's parliament is far from reflecting the 55 percent numerical advantage of Sephardis in this country. The 120-member body has 34 Sephardis. The two major parties, Labor and Likud, combined have 27 Sephardic members among the 95 seats they control.

Not everyone was impressed Naim's succinct expression. The daily Maariv blasted his "hate-filled" turn of phrase and use of "disgusting images from the gastronomic world." Davar, official daily of Naim's Labor Party, reminded him that gefilte fish was "a working-class dish which deserves more sympathy from a member of the Labor movement."

Farm subsidy battles are brutal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Few legislative battles are as brutal as those fought over federal farm subsidies. Each time a major farm bill comes to the House or Senate floors, party labels fall aside as members realign themselves in sugar, peanut, tobacco, corn and soybean camps.

Sometimes, in the heat of debate, undocumented charges fly — such as last week, when Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., asserted that "two-thirds of the agricultural staffs of the senators think peanuts grow above the ground."

He pressed on: "Some of them may think you pick them from trees or in some way."

Heflin was later spotted making the rounds, handing out bags of peanuts to other senators.

An Artist's Prayer

Sunday
- Zephaniah 3:14-18

Monday
- Psalms 43:1-5

Tuesday
- Psalms 126:1-6

Wednesday
- Isaiah 66:7-11

Thursday
- Joel 2:18-27

Friday
- Nehemiah 8:9-11

Saturday
- Esther 8:7-17

A prayer does not have to be made of words. It can be the sketch of a pencil on a drawing board. This one expresses the thoughts and yearnings of the person whose soul grasped the pencil.

Here in your own newspaper you have encountered some unknown artist's depiction of the Christ! That artist's prayer can be your prayer . . . if it expresses your thoughts . . . your yearnings.

Such are the riches of our Christian faith that each one of us is strengthened, encouraged, empowered by the devotion of another.

That's why every week you will find us together in worship. We share our prayers. We share our Lord.

Book says shroud 'authentic'

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence strongly indicates the Shroud of Turin, a long-time subject of controversy, was the "actual burial garment of Jesus," conclude two researchers who say they approached the evidence with skepticism.

In "Verdict on the Shroud," a book to be issued Oct. 15 by Servant Publications of Ann Arbor, Mich., the researchers also say that the ancient cloth offers scientific evidence for Christ's resurrection.

The authors are computer engineer Kenneth S. Stevenson of Dallas, spokesman for a team of about 40 scientists who examined the shroud in 1978, and philosopher Gary R. Habermas of Lynchburg, Va., a project consultant.

However, not all the scientists involved in the Shroud of Turin research project are in agreement over the findings, and proof remains lacking.

"The converging evidence is not proof, but it does show that the literal, physical resurrection of Jesus of Nazareth is by far the best explanation for the physical, chemical, medical and historical facts," Stevenson and Habermas say.

Although some people may be shocked that the book concludes "an intervention of the supernatural" in formation of the image on the shroud, physicist Lawrence Schwalbe, a team member from the Los Alamos National Scientific Laboratory, adds in a foreword:

"Stevenson and Habermas have rightly remained cautious in their interpretation."

And noting that scientific conclusions about complex phenomena usually are "judgments of probability," a theory that offers the most likely explanation of the observed facts, they add:

"These probabilities strongly favor the authenticity of the shroud as evidence for Jesus' death and resurrection."

The scientists will hold a symposium on their findings Oct. 10-11 at Connecticut College in New Haven.

"Verdict on the Shroud" contains the team's technical findings, their significance, the varying hypotheses about them, and the recorded details about Jesus.

The 14-by-4-foot linen cloth, kept for centuries in Turin, Italy, was subjected to various sophisticated tests by the scientists three years ago. They have worked since to fit together the assorted results.

Stevenson and Habermas say a statistical analysis of the probabilities show, conservatively, that the odds are 83 million to 1 that the man buried in the shroud was actually Jesus.

The figures were determined by comparing the various details revealed in the shroud itself with the time, place, particular wound marks and manner of death recorded about Jesus.

"There is no practical probability that someone other than Jesus was buried in the Shroud of Turin," the authors conclude.

RELIGION

They also say the shroud's "evidence for the resurrection is so strong that if it is not Jesus' actual burial garment, then Christians might have to consider the possibility that someone else rose from the dead."

Four main features from the shroud are cited as evidence of the resurrection, including:

—Scientific tests found no evidence of decomposition of the body that was wrapped in the shroud, although pathologists are sure that the man it contained was dead.

—The facts indicate that the body was not removed from the cloth by human means "because the bloodstains are intact," anatomically precise from head, wrists, side and feet, but would have been smeared or broken if the cloth was removed by normal means.

—Although the cause of the image on the shroud remains scientifically uncertain, the most probable cause found was from a heat or light scorch from some "extraordinary occurrence" not explained by natural means.

—There is an amazingly close correspondence between the shroud's evidence and the gospel details about the resurrection and the associated historical data, including the impact on followers.

The Newspaper BIBLE

OH, FOR THE GOOD OLD DAYS!

The Lord pleads with you still: Ask where the good road is, the godly paths you used to walk in, in the days of long ago Travel there, and you will find rest for your souls. But you reply, "No, that is not the road we want!" I set watchmen over you who warned you: "Listen for the sound of the trumpet! It will let you know when trouble comes." But you said, "No! We won't pay any attention!" (Jeremiah 6:16-17)

Don't ever forget those wonderful days when you first learned about Christ. Remember how you kept right on with the Lord even though it meant terrible suffering. Sometimes you watched and sympathized with others suffering the same things. You suffered with those thrown into jail, and you were actually joyful when all you owned was taken from you, knowing that better things were awaiting you in heaven, things that would be yours forever.

Do not let this happy trust in the Lord die away, no matter what happens. Remember your reward! You need to keep on patiently doing God's will if you want him to do for you all that he has promised. His coming will not be delayed much longer. And those whose faith has made them good in God's sight must live by faith, trusting him in everything. Otherwise, if they shrink back, God will have no pleasure in them.

But we have never turned our backs on God and sealed our fate. No, our faith in him assures our souls' salvation. (Hebrews 10:32-39)

More turn to media with message

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Major Christian denominations, which for years have left television preaching up to individual evangelists, are now turning strongly to that media themselves to convey their message.

Their entry into the field, on a large scale and on denomination-wide bases in several cases, marks distinct policy shifts, embracing TV as a powerful instrument and aiming to enrich its content.

"A new opportunity," says the Rev. Jimmy R. Allen, president of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission, which has taken steps to launch a new, 105-station denominational network.

The Rev. Michael Dempsey, consultant for a planned, new National Catholic Telecomunications Network, says "we're adding another dimension to the church's work ... to reach out more effectively."

Besides the Roman Catholic and Southern Baptist ventures, involving multi-million-dollar projects, the United Methodist Church last weekend publicly launched a $25 million "TV Presence and Ministry" campaign.

An hour-long, kickoff program, originating at the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville and featuring entertainers and church leaders, was telecast via satellite to about 140 sites around the country.

The Roman Catholic Church and Southern Baptists, the country's two biggest Christian bodies, are moving to eastablish their own cross-country TV networks, using the latest satellite technology, but with a difference.

The Baptists plan a string of new low-power local stations for direct transmission via satellite to home TV sets. The Catholic network is to link up dioceses nationwide, both for internal church communications and also general programs to supply existing local TV or cable systems.

U.S. Catholic bishops, who approved the plan last spring, have allocated $4.5 million for start-up costs, and about 85 of the church's 171 dioceses in the country have indicated they will participate.

Scheduled to become operational in the fall of 1982, the network is to broadcast five hours daily, five days a week, the material going by satellite to diocesesan "receiving dishes." Each costs about $15,000. Each diocese also will pay a $5,000 annual fee.

Mark Hansen dreams of carving out a living

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Mark Hansen's idea of a dream would sound like a lot of work to most people. He wants to hike into the northern Minnesota woods with only an ax and a knife and carve out a living for himself and his small family.

For most who have that dream, it probably will remain just that. But Hansen could do it.

He is one of a handful of craftsmen in the United States and Canada who build birch-bark canoes, using the same methods developed by the Chippewa and Iroquois Indians centuries ago. His tools are a shaving horse, a knife, a draw knife and an ax.

"I get all my birch from loggers," he says. "I peel the trees down before they cut them. The cedar I buy from a lotter."

There are no nails, no rivets and no welds. The birch bark is lashed to the keel and the sides with spruce root, which also requires some foraging. The pitch used to seal the cracks also comes from the spruce tree. Hansen also makes paddles.

If a canoe is punctured, Hansen says he can mend it, depending on the severity of the puncture. "I can replace a sheet of bark on it and put it back in the water," he says.

Hansen, 28, is the descendant of Norwegian immigrants. He earns his living as a woodworker and a specialist in boat repair in Grand Marais.

He built his first canoe because, he says, "I needed a boat and I didn't have the money to buy one."

The design for the boat came from a book, "Bark and Skin Boats of North America" by Henry Chapelle.

He has built five canoes, ranging from 16 to 20 feet. Prices start at $1,000. Each canoe takes about two weeks, 10 hours a day, to build.

"I could hike into the Boundary Waters Canoe Area and come out with one of these in a couple of weeks," he says.

Hansen recently staged an exhibit at the downtown Minneapolis Public Library. Some 300 to 400 spectators gathered as he explained how Indians built and cared for their canoes, such as putting them under the ice in winter to shelter them from wandering bears and moose.

No one knows when American Indians began building birch-bark canoes. The craft flourished all along the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence Seaway, British Columbia and Alaska — "wherever there were birch trees," says Hansen.

"Some claim the Indians got the idea from the Vikings" who traveled to North America before it was discovered by Christopher Columbus, he recounts. "I don't believe that it's impossible for two different cultures on opposite sides of the world to have the same idea."

The birch-bark canoe "had as much importance in settling the Canadian wilderness as did the covered wagon," Hansen says.

Building the canoes using old methods "sort of fell in line with my interests," Hansen says. "I'm a history buff and I like to hang around with the old folks."

He says the others who make birch-bark canoes are elderly. One of them, Bill Hafeman, in Big Fork, Minn., has built more than 300 of them.

"I like to preserve history — the tools, the shelters and the vehicles — that the oldtimers used to use," Hansen says.

"I've always dreamed of going into the woods with a knife and an ax and carving out a living for myself," he adds. "One of these days I'll do it."

Pan Am: The big airline that is nose diving

Hearst Feature Service

NEW YORK — There was something about the name that evoked efficiency, romance, maybe a little foreign intrigue, definitely American know-how and modern times: PAN AMERICAN WORLD AIRWAYS. You couldn't help but think of the China Clipper, nifty stewardesses and supercool pilots; sleek skyboats flying down to Rio with Fred Astaire and winging it to say, Manila, with Sidney Greenstreet or Bogart. The spearhead of Western civilization seemed to be that Pan Am Clipper.

Can it really be all over for Pan Am?

Can one of the most prestigious names of technological enterprise be on the way out?

Maybe it isn't so. Not yet. But luck will have something to do with the outcome. Pan Am, once the world's greatest airline, is for the second time in six years on the flight path to bankruptcy. Despite acquiring National Airlines and its domestic route system, Pan Am is a lot smaller than it was in its heyday. It has sold assets for cash to support a swollen debt.

THIS JEWEL of American corporate enterprise got as winded as Chrysler, International Harvester and other heavy breathers in the mad race to stay competitive.

Three years ago, Pan Am was being hailed as a notable turnaround case, following a string of losses totaling more than $350 million in the first half of the 1970s. In that period, executives said the company was within two weeks of failure, and the stock slid to a one and three-quarter low during the 1974 economic plunge.

The subsequent business recovery produced black ink for Pan Am in 1977, the first of the decade. Business in 1978 was especially good, the stock peaked at 10 and a quarter (above book value for the first time in years), and the stage was set for Pan Am's takeover of National Airlines.

While the National acquisition was perhaps the single most important change in Pan Am's corporate history -- and the company did seem to go downhill fast from that point -- trouble began at least a decade earlier with the grand strategy of its founder, Juan Trippe.

TRIPPE WAS the model American entrepreneur, a dynamic mover. Despite an arrogant style that was to plague the company in its parlous years, Trippe demanded, and got, support from the U.S. political establishment in creating a near monopoly over international air travel. Pan Am returned the favor by helping to consolidate the U.S. business presence in Latin America and the Pacific.

By the late sixties the picnic was over. The world economy was beginning to stagnate, competition from subsidized foreign carriers replaced Pan Am's monopoly, and profit rates were coming under pressure. But Trippe didn't spot the new trend, or chose to ignore it. He committed Pan Am to buying a flock of jumbo 747s before anyone else, figuring that they made sense on Pan Am's long-haul route structure. And they were a great advertisement for Pan Am's image of American progress.

THE 747 represented a huge jump in productivity over the old 707, the first commercial jet flown by U.S. airlines. Carrying more than twice as many passengers, the 747 promised big profits to the airline that could fill it up. But productivity had its price, and the jumbo fleet required a massive load of debt.

The typical airline is what Wall Street people call highly "leveraged." That is, for the most part, it operates with other people's money -- borrowed funds, and very little equity compared to industrial corporations. About three-quarters of Pan Am's total capitalization is debt. That much debt makes it very difficult to borrow more -- unless you happen to be a public utility.

In fact, until 1978, it was possible to regard the airline companies as quasi-public utilities. The Civil Aeronautics Board regulated routes and fares, all of which discouraged competition and maintained some sort of a floor under profits and that mountain of debt. With deregulation and the end of de facto utility status, the debt seemed more awesome than usual.

For consumers deregulation produced generally lower fares even if service was lost to some localities. And the small regional carriers, employing non-union help, stepped in where the high-cost trunk airlines feared to tread. If Wall Street could make money off the regional boom, it also realized that the major trunk airlines had become "overcapitalized," risky investments.

THE ENORMOUS debt leverage that plagues Pan Am and the airline industry (Delta and Northwest are the notable exceptions) makes the breakeven point for the company rather high. It's a two-edged sword: Once the breakeven point is reached and debt service is covered, profits on equity investment can explode. But, if the company fails to find the passengers at a price that covers the debt and then some, well. . . creditors can be tough.

That "things were different" in the late sixties when Juan Trippe bought the jumbo 747s for Pan Am is perhaps obvious but nevertheless significant. Deregulation was just an academic theory then. Major fuel price increases were undreamed of, and the inflationary process that guaranteed smart returns on investment was still under control. The way to beat the system in the sixties was to take on more debt, buy real assets, trust in an expanding world economy and pay back lenders later with cheaper dollars.

'It slices, it dices, it makes julienne potatoes'

By FRED MUIR
Copley News Service

"It's new, it's improved, it's old-fashioned. It's the only product you will ever need." (From the song "Step Right Up" by Tom Waits.).

Mel Korey is half of the partnership that brought Veg-O-Matic, Kitchen Magician, the Food Glamorizer, the Pan-Caker, the Hula Hoe, the Miracle Broom and a host of other unusual products to television during the last 20 years.

Millions of Americans were raised on a diet of grade-B movies, interspersed with the fast-talking "Voice of Ronco." It proclaimed, "It slices, it dices, it makes mounds of julienne potatoes in seconds," as two hands, seemingly without an accompanying body, chop and slice and make radish roses.

Korey's company, Ronco Teleproducts Inc., brought the hard-sell, demonstration-style advertising of products to television and made it successful.

The company was recently listed by Broadcast Magazine as the 68th largest buyer of television commercial time. If 68th position doesn't sound impressive, realize that Ronco was ranked just behind Exxon and ahead of such household names as Trans World Airlines, Chevron, Ideal Toys, Alberto Culver, Toyota, Jordache, Dr Pepper, Goodyear, Faberge, Bordens, Black and Decker and Mobil.

In 1980, Ronco posted sales of more than $38 million through 13,000 retail outlets it contracts with. The number of outlets has been expanded to 23,000 and by the Christmas season will be up to 30,000.

Korey, executive vice president of Ronco, spoke in an interview of how the company rose from a team of two college kids hawking kitchen products at state fairs. Today it is a company whose shares are listed on the American Stock Exchange. In looking to the future, Korey talks about how television advertising has changed and why it will never be the same.

The company's advertising campaigns are remarkably simple — a quality rare among advertisers.

"Here's what it is, here's what it does, this is how much it costs, and this is where to get it," said Korey in describing the components and order of information necessary for effective advertising.

The style is that of a carnival hawker. That's where Korey, and his partner, Ron Popeil, got their start in the Midwest during the late 1950s.

Popeil's parents owned an Atlantic City, N.J., company that made small, inexpensive kitchen products that were sold by "demonstrators" at fairs or inner-city Woolworth stores.

Popeil brought Korey into the business, and the two of them traveled the fair circuit during summer vacations from college.

Then the Popeil company invented Veg-o-Matic.

"Did you ever notice how demonstrators will slice a cucumber so thin you can see right through it?" said Korey. "Well, there are two reasons for that: one is we want to show that the product is better than one already in your kitchen. The other reason is that produce costs us a lot. We had to make sure we could get 20 demonstrations out of a cucumber and 12 from a tomato."

But the Veg-o-Matic sliced or diced an entire vegetable at once, which made it too expensive to demonstrate at fairs. So the partners did the next best thing: They made a black-and-white television commercial of the Veg-o-Matic in operation. And, unlike most demonstrator products which cost $2 to $4, the Veg-o-Matic sold for $9.95.

"It's hard to get $10 over the counter," said Korey.

Korey and Popeil would arrive in small Midwestern towns such as Peoria, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa, line up a department or variety store to handle the products on a guaranteed-sale basis, and then buy some TV time.

Korey, just out of college, was working in a restaurant and "not making it as a singer." He laid down his only $1,800 on TV time to advertise the Veg-o-Matic, the Pancaker and the Food Glamorizer.

Two of the three items turned a profit during the first week, and Ronco was off and running.

That was the fall of 1964. By Christmas of 1965 the company posted sales of $400,000. A year later sales topped $1 million, and they doubled again the following year.

The only product that didn't sell was the Food Glamorizer. "I've had one for 17 years and it is still sharp. But it never made money for us on TV. I think it's because people didn't believe it was as good as it is," said Korey.

The company went public in 1969 with a $24 million stock offering. Korey and Popeil still control the company.

In the late 1970s the company began expanding into new products that could be sold in the summer months and balance out heavy sales in the Christmas season.

"People were coming to us with all kinds of products," said Korey. "The products we need must have mass appeal. It has to be a product that every person could use, or at least all women. And it has to be popularly priced."

In the past 20 years the company has at one time or another sold nearly 100 different products. None sold for more than $25, and most for less than $10.

"We see 1,000 new products a year, and really look at about 12 that have a possibility," Korey said. "Maybe three of those will make it."

One that didn't succeed was a taco maker. "The inventor couldn't believe that people in Pennsylvania weren't waiting with bated breath for a taco maker," Korey said.

Then there was the combination denture cleaner and milkshake maker. It didn't succeed, either.

One that was taken to TV but flopped was Dino's Brand Golf Balls, with 13 balls to the dozen. The commercial featured Dean Martin in a series of humorous situations in which he lost golf balls.

"After thousands of dollars of advertising, we sold a few hundred packages of golf balls" and abandoned the product, Korey said. "We lost sight of the fact that you have to have something to say in the commercial."

He said it would be impossible to duplicate what Ronco did, primarily because the television industry has grown so large and advertising time so expensive. He said it was not unusual to buy two-minute spots on some Midwest stations for as low as $5 each in the early 1960s. And often, if products didn't move in a particular week, the station manager would throw in a few days of free commercials.

"It's not as easy as it looked," Korey said. "When we first got started with Veg-o-Matic, there were 15 other demonstrators running around the country with the same commercial. We are the only ones left in the business."

Asbestosis victim is given new life

By DWIGHT CHAPIN
Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — It was on Labor Day, 1977, that Jim Vermeulen got sick.

He'd long been a laborer. A good one. A dedicated one. A dependable one.

They put him in a Fresno, Cal., hospital on Labor Day, 1977, and he almost died of what was diagnosed as chronic heart failure and double pneumonia. When he got out of the hospital, he wasn't old, dependable Jim anymore. He'd lost about half of his breathing capacity. He couldn't walk up a flight of stairs. He'd have to go to bed in the middle of the afternoon.

And he grew terribly depressed. The guy you once could set your watch by felt like time had stopped, and he couldn't handle it. He seriously considered suicide.

"I'm not sure why I didn't kill myself," he says. "I didn't chicken out. Something just said, 'Wait a minute!' "

Maybe it was the thought of what would happen to to his wife and his children and his 12 grandchildren. Maybe it was that he finally came to know and understand what was physically wrong with him. It wasn't heart trouble or pneumonia. It was asbestosis, a vicious scarring of the lungs that gradually makes it harder and harder for its victims to breathe.

Vermeulen had worked for 10 years (from 1957 to 1966) as a production coordinator at Johns-Manville in Stockton, Cal., a job that took him throughout the plant and exposed him over and over to asbestos. And the asbestos, he says, "stole my hopes, my dreams, my future."

But after he decided he wanted his life to go on, whatever the limitations, Jim Vermeulen began to fight. On every level he could, from workmen's compensation (he was offered and turned down a settlement of $8,932.50) to the federal bureaucracy. Mostly, it was discouraging. He found no matter how loud a "wounded worker" yelled, not many people listened.

But in July 1980 Vermeulen started the Asbestos Victims of America.

It's an organization with meager funds. Vermeulen does a lot of work out of a pickup camper and has to pay for things such as photocopies, postage, phone bills and gas out of $437 a month in Social Security disability payments.

But the AVA has given Jim Vermeulen new life. The media have been almost uniformly supportive, and there has been an outpouring of response from other asbestos victims and their families, people who, like Vermeulen, have asbestosis or lung cancer or mesothelioma, a cancer of the lining of the stomach or lung. There is no effective treatment for any of the three.

The letters Vermeulen receives are stark, jolting, incredibly moving.

A Nebraska schoolteacher writes to say he spent three summer vacations in California working at an asbestos concrete pipe plant and got sick. When he came back to Nebraska, the school board took the job away because he no longer could teach effectively.

A widow in Pennsylvania whose husband has just died of mesothelioma says, "I hope and pray to almighty God that I never have to witness such an agonizing death again."

The AVA (P.O. Box 559, Capitola, Calif. 95010; telephone 408-462-4442) recently formed a scientific advisory committee composed of eight doctors and scientists. Vermeulen says his first newsletter will be ready in a couple of weeks.

"When I started AVA," Vermeulen says, "I was concerned mostly about people who already had asbestos lung disease. Now I believe we've got to inform the uninformed, make people aware, try to spare them needless suffering and death.

Tourism viewed as a method of spurring Asia's economy

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The developing countries of Southeast Asia — already part of the world's fastest-growing holiday region — are planning to spend billions of dollars to attract more tourists.

Exotic cultures, lush tropical surroundings, fine beaches, nightlife and shopping opportunities continue to draw Europeans, Japanese, North Americans and Australians. And tourism officials say that new resorts and attractions now in the planning stage will add opportunities for Southeast Asian vacations for years to come.

The optimism runs contrary to recent studies warning of adverse affects of tourism on Third World cultures. Most governments in the region see tourism development as spurring their economies by creating new jobs and needed foreign exchange.

The five Association of Southeast Asian Nations — Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand — plus the colony of Hong Kong, earned $4.2 billion in tourism revenue last year, according to official figures, compared to $1.7 billion in 1975.

Baharuddin Musa, the Malaysian chairman of an ASEAN committee to promote tourism, recently referred to ASEAN as the "sleeping giant" of tourism. He said its members held an advantage over the more established tourist destinations since they can develop new attractions to maintain tourist interest.

Four ASEAN governments and Hong Kong are now building or planning new international airports.

Singapore, which led the region with 2.5 million arrivals last year, plans to build 17 new hotels, adding 12,500 rooms to the island state by 1985.

Hong Kong, vying with Singapore as a duty-free shoppers' paradise, had 2.3 million arrivals last year. Four hotels with 2,400 rooms have sprung up this year and another eight, with 3,000 rooms, should be completed by 1983.

Thailand welcomed 1.85 million visitors last year, and has its sights set on 3 million by 1986. It aims to transform the southern island province of Phuket with a number of beach resorts in the next 20 years.

Thai officials hope to develop the northern Chiang Mai area — which boasts ancient cities, hilltribe cultures and natural attractions.

Malaysia, a latecomer to tourism promotion, plans to spend $50 million on tourism by 1986 to boost last year's 1.4 million visitor total. The most ambitious of four projects is a beach resort at Langkawi — a collection of 99 islands off the northwest coast of the Malaysian peninsula.

The Malaysian government has earmarked $20 million for Langkawi and hopes to attract $55 million in private investment for the area, which will have 1,095 hotel rooms.

Cindy Holder, in wheelchair, appears pleased with an out-of-court settlement awarded her Friday in Dallas. Mrs. Holder and her husband Dennis, behind wheelchair, were awarded $3.8 million dollars, averting a lawsuit they filed after Mrs. Holder was injured in a skyride mishap at the 1979 State Fair of Texas.

Suit settled out of court

DALLAS (AP) — A woman paralyzed from the shoulders down when a Swiss Skyride gondola at the State Fair of Texas fell to the midway almost two years ago agreed to a $3.8 million out-of-court settlement Friday of her suit against the fair, operator and manufacturer of the ride.

Cindy Holden, 22, of Long Grove, Iowa, had sought $11.6 million, contending that the State Fair of Texas, the operator and the manufacturer had been negligent in the skyride collision Oct. 21, 1979, that killed one man and injured her and 16 others.

Attorneys for both sides agreed to a settlement Friday that includes a cash payment and long-term benefits. The manufacturer, Von Roll Ltd., also agreed ask that all skyride operators put wind monitoring devices on the rides so they can be turned off in windy weather.

"I'm really happy. I was getting pretty nervous," Mrs. Holden said Friday. "I don't think any amount of money can replace what I lost, but it helps out paying the bills."

Jeff Lynch, an attorney for ride operator Steck & Staph Attractions, said the two parties had been negotating a settlement since Labor Day when lawyers held an all-day session.

Windle Turley, Mrs. Holden's attorney, said his client had also asked the State Fair of Texas to pay for amusement ride safety seminars, but that fair officials refused.

"We think the State Fair could of afforded to do it. Cindy was so upset that they wouldn't," said Turley. "She said she plans to use the money to finance five years of safety seminars and to buy a house designed for easy access for the handicapped."

Several witnesses testified the ride operated in dangerously high winds on the day of the accident, that a safety switch had been purposely deactivated and that the operator did not use the emergency stop button.

Two engineers testified that there were four occassions during the accident when the safety switch should have shutdown the ride. An engineer who works for the manufacturer testified that the safety circuit switch had been tripped during the accident.

The accident happened when one gondola became stuck on a tower and three others plowed into it, sending two of them crashing to the midway, officials said.

Mrs. Holden was a passenger in one of the cars that fell.

"Everybody awas yelling and screaming. There was a big bang. All of a sudden, it was silent. And then I realized we were falling," Mrs. Holden said during her testimony Monday. "All I remember is falling."

During two hours of dramatic testimony Monday, Mrs. Holden told jurors how her life had changed since the accident.

"My feet can't walk, my hands can't grasp. I can't unbutton a button, zip a zipper. Every morning, I'm dizzy when I get up. I have headaches most every day," she said.

Krum man indicted

DENTON, Texas (AP) — A 28-year-old Krum man has been indicted in connection with the hit-and-run deaths of a man and his two young daughters.

Clifford Ray Shropshire, whom police charged with murder after his arrest Sept. 10, was indicted Thursday on three counts of involuntary manslaughter and three counts of failure to stop and render assistance.

Shropshire remained in Denton County Jail Friday in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Prosecutor Fred Marsh said his office decided on the lesser charge after examining all the evidence in the case.

"That's why we took so long," he said. "We were trying to be fair to the defendant."

Involuntary manslaughter, a third-degree felony, carries a prison term of two to 10 years and a maximum fine of $5,000.

Judge wants venue change

MARLIN, Texas (AP) — The judge scheduled to hear the trial of three law enforcement officers charged in connection with the drownings of three black teen-agers said Friday he would move the case out of his jurisdiction.

In a letter to the Marlin Daily Democrat, State District Judge Thomas Bartlett said he has "notified the parties that I will order another change of venue on my own motion."

The trial was moved here from Groesbeck on a motion filed by both the defense and prosecution.

Glamor weekend offers OU-USC, Lions-Huskers

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

What could be the most glamorous weekend of the college football season comes up Saturday, headlined by the clash in Los Angeles of this week's top two titans — No. 1-rated Southern California and runnerup Oklahoma.

If that isn't sufficient to whet one's appetite, you can turn to Lincoln, Neb., where third-ranked Penn State visits No. 15 Nebraska; or to Austin, Texas, where fourth-ranked Texas entertains No. 14 Miami of Florida under the lights; or to Palo Alto, Calif., where Stanford and John Elway entertain eighth-ranked Ohio State and Art Schlichter; or to Jackson, Miss., where No. 12 Mississippi State meets Florida in an early-season Southeastern Conference showdown between the teams many people think might be the two best in the SEC.

Not satisfied yet? How about sixth-ranked UCLA at Iowa, upset winner over Nebraska two weeks ago; or Navy at No. 7 Michigan, which clobbered Notre Dame last Saturday; or Boston College at ninth-ranked North Carolina, whose Kelvin Bryant has scored 11 touchdowns in two games.

Rounding out the schedule for The Associated Press' Top Twenty, No. 10 Alabama is at Vanderbilt for a night contest, No. 11 Brigham Young at Colorado, No. 13 Notre Dame at Purdue, No. 16 Washington at Oregon, South Carolina at No. 17 Georgia, No. 18 Arizona State at Washington State and No. 20 Southern Methodist at Texas Christian. Fifth-ranked Pitt and No. 19 Clemson have the week off.

Reports from Southern Cal indicate that a crowd of 92,500 could turn out at the LA Coliseum to see the Trojans tackle Oklahoma. These are annually two of college football's giants and they are scheduled to meet again in 1982, 1987 and 1988.

IF YOU like winners, this is where it's at. Oklahoma's Barry Switzer has a record of 84-9-2 and his percentage of .895 in the best in the history of college football. USC's John Robinson is second among active coaches — behind Switzer, of course — at 52-8-2—.855. Oklahoma had last week off after beating Wyoming 37-20 while Southernn Cal has turned back Tennessee 43-7 and Indiana 21-0.

"I don't like the open date," Switzer says. "We need to play. That's the only way our young players can improve. I think we would have had just as good a chance to beat Southern Cal last week as we do this week."

How much of a chance is that, Barry?

"Southern Cal always has great athletes. Everywhere. Even their managers are talented. They are probably faster, stronger and can carry more ice than ours."

Be serious, Coach.

"I don't think that in the 16 years I've been in Oklahoma any team presented the challenge that these people do. I think the key to the whole situation — and what frightens me when I look at them — is that their offensive linemen are giants. Our six sophomores, our young defense, are going to have to play far above the abilities they possess at this time."

NEBRASKA HAS defeated Penn State the last two years — they meet once more in 1982 — but Coach Joe Paterno thinks the Nittany Lions' chances are better this time.

"There's no question that we will be a better team and a better-prepared team against Nebraska this year," says Paterno. "Two years ago we were unsettled in several places ahd last year we were coming off a night game at Texas A&M. That's not to take anything away from Nebraska, which had two good teams, but we have a better team this fall than we did in 1979 and 1980."

Unlike Switzer, Paterno liked Penn State's open date after a 52-0 rout of Cincinnati two weeks ago.

"There's no question that the extra week of practice has been important," he says. "It's like having an extra week of preseason practice. That week has given our coaching staff a chance to re-evaluate the squad."

On the other hand, Nebraska's quarterbacking has given Coach Tom Osborne "a lot of sleepless nights. It's the strangest situation I've ever had. In the past, we've had quarterbacks who audibled well and who knew the system. One time against Florida State, Nate Mason ran the wrong way and made a 15-yard gain.

"I have trouble handling that. I'm not built that way. Ited sophomore Turner Gill in reserve.

MICHIGAN Coach Bo Schembechler says he wasn't convinced he had a good team until the Wolverines' 25-7 triumph over Notre Dame last week. "They were a real down team (after losing to Wisconsin). They were crushed. But then they got out on the practice field and got down to work," he says.

"I still don't think this team is as good as some people thought (No. 1 preseason). I still think it's going to be a topsy-turvy season."

Schlichter and Elway suffered ankle sprains last week but both are expected to come out firing when Ohio State visits Stanford.

"I don't see it as a game of individuals," says Stanford Coach Paul Wiggin. "I hope we can interpret it as the Stanford team vs. the Ohio State team, because that will ultimately decide the game."

GERRY FAUST, Notre Dame's rookie coach, found out last week that "losing is tough and it humbles you quickly. It could be a blessing in disguise. I hope it makes us a better team and a better staff. I don't want to be humble again."

Georgia's defending national champs had their 15-game winning streak snapped by Clemson last week. Like Clemson, South Carolina will be out for revenge after dropping a 13-10 squeaker a year ago. "We believe that South Carolina's defense is even better than Clemson's," says Coach Vince Dooley.

TCU-SMU tangle at Fort Worth

Bears to begin SWC title defense

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Baylor Bears open defense of their Southwest Conference football championship Saturday against the Texas Tech Red Raiders, a team that has Walter Abercrombie's number.

Abercrombie, the senior tailback, has a career average of 95.5 yards but didn't get it against the Red Raiders, who have held him to 35, 12, 19 yards per game.

"This will be the last time I've played against those guys and this will be the game they remember me for," said Abercrombie. "Last year Tech was very physical. They just shut off our insider running game."

BAYLOR was a 10-point favorite for the 7:30 p.m. Parent's Day kickoff.

In other games, Southern Methodist was a 10-point favorite over Texas Christian in Fort Worth; No. 4-ranked Texas was a 7-point nod over Miami, Fla., in Austin; Arkansas was a field-goal choice over Ole Miss in Jackson; Rice was a 14-point underdog to Louisiana State on the road; and the Texas Aggies were 10-point favorites over Louisiana Tech at College Station; and Houston was a three-touchdown choice over Utah State.

"WE WANT this game really bad for Coach (F.A.) Dry and ourselves," said TCU senior quarterback Steve Stamp, who threw five touchdown passes last week to earn The Associated Press Back of the Week award nationally.

"If our defense can just hold SMU to 21 points, I think the offense can outscore them."

It will be a classic confrontation of run versus pass.

With running backs Eric Dickerson and Craig James, SMU has two 100-yard gainers to rely upon.

Stamp's passing to mercurial wide receivers Stanley Washington and Phillip Epps has yet to be stopped.

DRY HAS never beaten SMU Coach Ron Meyer and this is his fifth try.

In Waco, the Bears were eager to start their regular season.

"Tech will give us all we want," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "They always have, and I'm sure they always will."

He added, "We're anxious to start playing for real...We're anxious to see how we stack up in the league."

Teaff said, "I've always been a fan of (Tech quarterback) Ron Reeves. I grew to admire him when we recruited him both as a person and an athlete."

Steve Stamp...'We want this one for Coach Dry.'

Reagan shocks Stanton, 28-8

By MIKE CRUVER
R-T Sports Writer

BIG LAKE—Reagan County turned three first half fumbles into 21 points, then turned to a rubber band defense to record a 28-8 non-district Stanton here Friday.

Coach Richard Davis said, "We bent all night long, but never broke. Time after time we held them off."

Stanton threatened midway through the first period when Kevin Newman picked off a Mike Ortiz pass to put Stanton in business on their own 45.

Behind the running of Newman, the Buffaloes marched down field until Bobby Barnhill was hit hard and coughed up the ball on the Reagan 32. Perry Cox recovered for the Owls, who proceeded to put together an 11-play 68-yard drive to paydirt. Fisher did the honors, struggling nine yards for the score. Torn Burleson added his first of four extra points with only 40 seconds left in the first quarter.

FIVE PLAYS later, the Buffaloes fumbled the ball again with Newman losing the handle on a pitchout and Brad Armstrong scooped it up at the Stanton 47. It took the Owls nine plays to deposit the ball in the end zone with Fisher scooting in for his second TD, this one from a yard away.

On the next series for Stanton, Hazelwood was hit hard by Joe Armstrong and fumbled the ball away on the Owl 48 with Armstrong making the recovery to put the Owls in business 52 yards away from paydirt.

After two carries by Burleson moved the ball to the 35, the Buffalo defense stiffened. Facing a third and 10, Burleson burst up the middle and raced to the nine before Marizolaquaniello made the touchdown saving tackle. Fisher, switched from tailback to quarterback since last season, then shook off four arm tackles, refusing to go down as he barged seven yards up the middle for the Owls' third score.

With 4:37 left in the half, Stanton mounted a serious drive. In 13 plays the Buffaloes moved from their 37 to the Owls' three. At that point, the Owl defense stiffened, stopping two plunges by Newman, knocking down a pass before Burleson intercepted a pass at the two with three seconds in the half.

STANTON came out blazing in the third quarter and quickly moved on the running of Newman and Hazelwood with the big play a 23-yard scamper by Hazelwood to the Reagan 35. Again the Owls braced and Stanton's Scott Church attempted a 40-yard field goal with a strong wind at his back. The kick sailed to the right.

Stanton finally scored late in the third quarter on a 72-yard drive in 19 plays. Hazelwood registered the TD and zigzagged from sideline to sideline for a 30-yard jaunt then hit Tommy Esparza for two points as Stanton cut the margin to 13 with 2:30 left in the third quarter.

Stanton had one more opportunity to score, taking over on their own 43 with 4:21 left, the Buffs hiked to the Reagan 19 where the Owls held on downs. Then, Reagan retaliated with an 81-yard drive for a score on a 24-yards from Fisher to Mitch Dorsey with 10 seconds left.

Fort Stockton frustrates Lamesa, 21-7

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

LAMESA — Through the first three quarters of play Friday night the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes weren't even in the ball game. Everything they tried to do against Fort Stockton ended in failure giving the Panthers a 21-0 lead.

But in the fourth quarter, new life seemed to surge through the Lamesa players and, though they didn't win the game, they made a respectable showing by scoring a touchdown and threatening on two other occasions. The final score, 21-7.

It didn't take long for Fort Stockton to establish the early game dominance. On their second possession, the Panthers marched 67 yards in 14 plays with quarterback Jerry Gray getting the touchdown from one-yard out with 1:34 remaining in the first quarter. Joe Salmon booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Four plays later following a Lamesa punt on fourth-and-18, the Panthers were on the march again, this time running seven plays covering 56 yards. At 8:46 left in the half, fullback Trent Huckaby scored on an 11-yard run and Salmon followed with his second PAT kick.

The final Fort Stockton touchdown came with 4:33 to go in the half following a punt return by Ron Reeger to the Panthers' 43-yard line. On first-and-10, second string halfback Mark Dunn cleared the line of scrimmage and sprinted 57 yards for the touchdown. Salmon kicked the extra point giving the Panthers a 21-0 lead.

It was at this time that the Golden Tornadoes showed the first sparks of life, not much, but some. They managed to pick up a pair of first downs to increase their half total to three and bring their rushing yardage out of the negative. Still there was no score and the half ended at 21-0.

The third quarter was a series of stalled drives for the Golden Tornadoes but they were gaining momentum and causing Fort Stockton a serious problem — fumbles. The Panthers gave up the ball twice before the quarter ended, both times in their own territory.

It was early in the fourth quarter when everything started falling in place for Lamesa. The Tors took advantage of a third second half fumble by the Panthers and compiled a 47-yard drive in four plays at 8:25 remaining in the game. Tailback Steven Alexander took the ball across the goal line from one yard out on a pitch from quarterback Sam Hansard. Clay Everhart kicked the extra point.

The touchdown was set up by a 41-yard pass from Hansard to Robert Gomez to the three-yard line.

Immediately following the touchdown, Lamesa lined up about 15-yards from the ball and made a charging run at the Panther coverage unit. The onside kick went to Lamesa's left and it was recovered by Tors' Mike Schafer on the Fort Stockton 49-yard line. The recovery was Schafer's third of the game.

Lamesa began a second drive to the goal line and at one point had a first-and-goal on the Panther four-yard line, Fort Stockton dug in and held the Golden Tornadoes on four running plays and took over the ball on its own one.

Even though there was little to no hope of winning the football game, Lamesa's defense came out and held Fort Stockton to three downs and punt. The Golden Tors tried for a second touchdown, but time ran out with Lamesa eight yards from the goal line.

The victory upped Fort Stockton's record to 3-1 on the season (1-1 in division 2AAAA) while Lamesa fell to 0-4.

On the night, the Panthers rushed for 205 yards, a tribute to the Golden Tornadoes defense considering Fort Stockton had 202 yards in the first half on the ground, and passed for another 19. Halfback David Richardson led the way with 73 yards while Dunn added 65.

For Lamesa, Alexander rushed for 32 yards, Steven Archer for 29 and Hansard for 23 for a game total of 84 yards. Hansard completed eight of 24 passes with one interception for 116 yards. His top receiver was Gomez with two catches for 55 yards.

Badgers win, 19-12

Badgers hold big edge in stats

SEAGRAVES—McCamey's Badgers won the battle of the statistics by a wide margin but for a time it looked as though Seagraves might win the game. A third period touchdown finally gave McCamey a 19-12 win here Friday night.

Jerry Stacey went five yards to widen a 13-12 halftime lead into the margin that would stand up the rest of the game.

Statistically, it was all McCamey, rolling up a 20-6 first down edge and 322 yards to 178 offensively. But it was in doubt all the way.

Seagraves took a 6-0 lead less than two minutes into the game when tailback Daniel Suniga raced 28 yards for a touchdown. With 7:02 to go in the first period, Clay Lindsey fired a 28-yard TD strike to Stacey to tie it at 6-6.

McCamey went in front in the second period when David Stevens recovered a fumble in the end zone and Jodee Stevens kicked the game's lone extra point. Seagraves countered before intermission on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Clay Mahler to Benny Laney.

Longhorn ticket distribution policy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The University of Texas has decided to continue its policy of distributing football game tickets to players despite published reports last year that several players had sold their tickets in violation of NCAA rules.

Ticket manager Bob Rochs investigated two possible revisions in the policy but concluded the alternatives presented as many problems as the original policy.

So, Texas players will continue to sign for their four complimentary tickets when they pick them up the week before the game, and the seat locations will be recorded in Rochs' office.

The alternatives that were considered were to require persons receiving a player's ticket to sign for it at a will-call window the day of the game, or to mark the tickets with a "player's stamp" and inscribe the player's name on them.

The NCAA adopted the will-call policy in 1975 but dropped it the next year because of hassles that developed when people tried to claim their tickets.

"I talked to all the other conference schools and we were doing basically what they were, so we didn't change," said Rochs.

"I've been here for 35 years," he added, "and anything, anything, you devise, someone can figure out a way to beat it if they really want to.

Howsam forecast demise of Reds

By BILL WEURDING
Copley News Service

It happened nearly five years ago, but the image of Bob Howsam standing there remains as vivid as the words he had to say.

The president of the freshly crowned world champion Cincinnati Reds wanted to celebrate his team's awesome four-game sweep of the New York Yankees.

He wanted to savor Cincinnati's second consecutive World Series title. He wanted to just shake hands, slap backs, guzzle champagne and enjoy the moment to its fullest.

Howsam also wanted to feel his Big Red Machine would continue to dominate baseball for years to come, but therein was the problem.

THIS WAS 1976, not only the year of the Reds, but also the year of the first re-entry draft. Free agency — top players seeking the top dollar elsewhere — multi-year contracts — teams getting dismantled — chaos — Howsam could see it all coming.

So, when it came time for Howsam to tell the millions of television viewers his feelings that day, he stunned them by doing exactly that.

"What you have just seen is the last great team built entirely through the farm system," Howsam said, "and I find that very sad."

LATER THAT winter, Howsam's speech at the Reds' victory dinner carried the same theme. And the joyousness of the occasion suffered when the club's top executive had to stop during his talk to wipe the tears from his eyes and clean his glasses.

An emotional overreaction? A conservative unable to handle any radical changes in baseball? A pessimist predicting doom based on unjustified fears?

Some may have thought so of Howsam at the time, but not for long. Almost immediately, the demise of the Big Red Machine began taking place.

Left-hander Don Gullett was the first to depart. When healthy, he was the Reds' best pitcher. He went 91-44 during seven seasons with Cincinnati.

BUT THEN, following that '76 World Series, he went into the free-agent draft and wound up a millionaire with the Yankees.

Others from that potential Reds' dynasty, unable to get the money they wanted in order to stay, soon followed. Pete Rose landed in Philadelphia. Fred Norman moved on to Montreal. Joe Morgan went back to Houston, then moved on to San Francisco.

Additionally, some of the others as Tony Perez, Pat Zachry, Pedro Borbon and Will McEnaney were traded. Today, only five originals remain, and some of them may not be around much longer.

The remainder are Johnny Bench, Dave Concepcion, George Foster, Dan Driessen and Ken Griffey, still a formidable bunch but not an awe-inspiring machine.

"This ballclub is not the club it was," conceded Manager John McNamara. "The Reds in the mid-70's had the most complete lineup I've ever seen as a major league coach or manager. You wonder if there will ever be another club assembled like that again.

"WHILE THIS club doesn't have the awesome, consistent power it once had, though, it still has power. It also has character, integrity and the desire to win still ingrained, and I think we've proven that again this year."

True the Reds continue to be found contending up near the top of the standings.

Yet, at the same time, they appear a team headed for still more changes.

For openers, Concepcion, Griffey and outfielder Dave Collins are unsigned and eligible for free agency this fall. Next year, Bench, Foster and third baseman Ray Knight can play out their options and move on. In 1983, it will be Tom Seaver, and in 1984 it will be Driessen.

In other words, a Cincinnati organization that so far has maintained a policy of avoiding extravagant, guaranteed contracts is faced with a tough decision. Does it continue refusing to guarantee contracts at the risk of losing its top players year after year? Or, does it abandon its principles in order to remain competitive?

REPORTEDLY, Concepcion is seeking a guaranteed five-year pact worth about $$1 million per year, but neither Kapstein nor Wagner would discuss any details from their session.

Reportedly, both Griffey and Collins also are seeking five-year, guaranteed contracts in the $$4 million neighborhood, but their chances of getting it from the Reds are said not to be good. In Griffey's case, the guarantee he wants is the major hangup. In Collins' case, both the amount and the guarantee is the problem.

Meanwhile, McNamara ignores these extra-curricula problems that swirl all around him and goes on about his business of trying to win games.

"I don't care how much or how little a man is making, and I don't want to know," he said. "My only concern is putting the best ballclub I can on the field for each game. Playing out options — free agency — it's just become another part of the game."

True. And it's been tearing apart teams since, just as Howsam feared.

Andrews defeats Lake View, 21-15

SAN ANGELO—Andrews Mustangs raised their record to 4-0, surviving a mild fourth period scare by the Lake View Chiefs late arriving scalping party, for a 21-15, District 4-4A football victory here Friday.

Keith Brooks ran for one touchdown and threw for another while wide receiver Floyd Cornejo was on the business end of a couple of touchdown bombs as the Mustangs built up a 21-0 lead after three periods.

Lake View then got its aerial circus going and struck on two touchdown passes, both from quarterback Drew Whipple to wide receiver Ed Scott for 16 and 70 yardsto make it close.

Andrews scored in the first period when Keith Brooks flipped a 35-yard pass to Cornejo and Brad Boynton kicked the point. In the second period, Brooks went 16 yards for the TD, but the Mustangs failed to get the extra point.

It was a 30-yard strike from quarterback Mike Gonzales to Cornejo and a two-point conversion rush by Brooks that gave Andrews its 21-0 bulge.

The Mustangs held a 310 to 286 edge in overall offense, but five Mustang interceptions played a big role in the Andrews victory.

Former Chisox hurler pleads guilty on cocaine

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Chicago White Sox pitcher Francisco Barrios pleaded guilty Friday to a charge of possession of cocaine and was fined $1,000 and ordered to serve a year's probation.

Barrios' conviction can be expunged from his record, said Circuit Court Judge Eugene E. Campion, on Barrios' request if his sentence is satisfactorily completed.

Campion imposed the sentence on Barrios, 28, under a special provision for first-time offenders. He also ordered Barrios to continue outpatient treatment at a suburban alcohol treatment center.

Barrios will try to resume his career as a professional athlete, his attorney, Mark M. Barnett, said following the court session.

Barrios pleaded guilty "to demonstrate that he rehabilitated himself and to demonstrate good faith," Barnett added.

Barrios, who joined the White Sox in 1974, was unconditionally released from the team earlier this month due to continuing arm problems caused by a torn rotator cuff.

His problems with the law began June 22, when Barrios was arrested at a downtown nightclub following a brawl and charged with disorderly conduct, said William J. Frost, assistant state's attorney, who prosecuted the case.

When Barrios was taken to a police lockup, two packets containing less than a gram of cocaine fell from his wallet, Frost said. He was then charged with possession of cocaine and the disorderly conduct charge was subsequently dropped.

Barrios said little during the court hearing, except to waive his right to a trial and to a presentencing hearing. His attorney told Campion that Barrios entered the sub-

Los Angeles Times

LAS VEGAS – By the ninth round, a curious chant went up from the corner of Sugar Ray Leonard. "Dee-fense!" shouted his crowd. You would have thought this was the Orange Bowl and the fans were imploring the Dolphins to top the Steelers.

But, the incident served to point up one of the dilemmas of sports today: offense sells tickets; but defense wins games.

Ultimately, of course, it was offense which won for Sugar Ray Leonard the other night. But it was his defense which had set up the situation, had stopped the running game, so to speak, of Thomas Hearns.

The boxing game, as all games, is built on the lore of the awesome attack. "The Manassa Mauler," "The Brown Bomber," "The Astoria Assassin" are nicknames we remember, not "The Shadow," or "Ruby Robert," or "The Orchid Man." We want John L. Sullivan offering to lick any man in the house, not young griffo daring you to knock a feather off his shoulder. We want "The Four Horsemen," not "The Seven Blocks of Granite."

IN OTHER sports, they tinker with the rules in desperation to increase the scoring, emphasize the attack. You got 10-man baseball in one league to take the pitcher out of the batter's box. In football, offensive linemen can do everything short of pulling a knife to stop the defensive charge. Yet, the pitchers overpower the hitters, and "D" takes you to the Superbowl, not the opposite. Tennis has become a baseline game, serve-and-volley at the net gets you nowhere.

In boxing, the last pure offensive fighter we had in the title was Sonny Liston. Sonny was the German Army of the sport. But Muhammad Ali defused him so neatly, he quit in his corner in one fight and toppled on his back for a 10-count in another. Come to think of it, the German Army didn't do much better either.

WHEN YOU think of the great champions of boxing history, the one everybody agrees on, you tend to find the skilled defensemen. Jack Johnson, for example. James J. Jeffries was "The Boilermaker." But Johnson beat him into a tea kettle with superior footwork, hand work and speed. Dempsey, who could reduce 250-pound bulks to beaten masses, was made to look futile by the ring generalship of Gene Tunney.

Muhammad Ali, of course wrote the book. If ever anyone took the defensive skills and refined them into greatness, he did. The rap on Joe Louis -- and its bum one -- is that he was such a superior offensive fighter, people tend to suspect he must have been slow, unskilled, or beatable. He wasn't. Boxers could go 15 rounds with Louis. But, you notice, they lost.

However, the Biblical injunction, "He who lives by the sword, dies by the sword," is a sports truism. The interceptions kill the passer. The stolen base overcomes the home run.

ONE OF the virtues of relying on defense is, it makes you necessarily more courageous. There is an element of the bully in the guy who sets out to beat your head in quickly. Frequently, he is not even equipped for a long hard struggle. The Germans were licked as soon as they had to dig trenches. The defensive fighter, on the other hand, is as skilled in retreat as he is in attack. He's dug in, patient.

Patient won the fight for Sugar Ray Leonard Wednesday night as much as his right cross. Thomas Hearns is an obliterator. When his blitzkreig failed, he proved moderately adept at getting out of trouble, but, ultimately, he got impatient again.

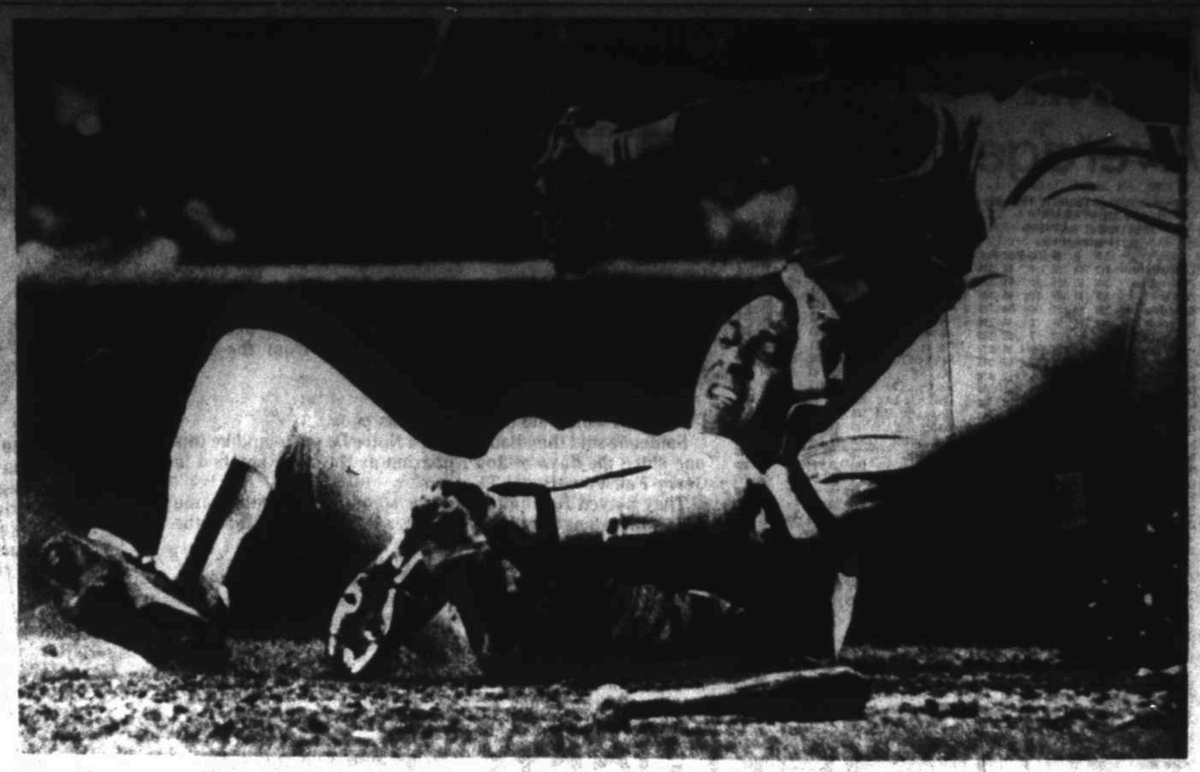
Jimmy McLarnin was a great welterweight of the past who began his career as a superior boxer, then, discovering he had a devastating punch, he remodeled his style, began to knock people out in the first round. Then he ran into a Billy Petrolle and a Barney Ross who neutralized his big-punch offense. And he went back to being a crafty boxer and prolonged his career.

TOMMY HEARNS might do this. Tommy Hearns was a hit-and-run fighter in his amateur days. He briefly tried to go back to it Wednesday night in the middle rounds. But, it's not like roller-skating. You can forget the nuances.

The sad reality is, anyway, no one would pony up $15 million to see two light-bag artists go at it. Sugar Ray Leonard needs a Hit Man in that other corner to sell. He needs a Roberto Duran fresh out of a tree limb in a Central American jungle. Even the real Sugar Ray needed the LaMottas, Basilios and Fullmers to sell tickets in Peoria. Ali needed the Listons, Fraziers, and Foremans. But, he could turn a parish priest into Jack the Ripper with his pre-fight propaganda. Because, he knew he had to.

If the Hit Man now becomes the Dance Man, he may fare better against S7gar Ray. But 40 million people won't be around to watch it.

Maybe boxing has to do what football, baseball, and even basketball had to do -- find some way to hobble the defense. Maybe they'll have to outlaw the zone defense, make them play man-to-man. Give the Hit Man in the tableau a penalty shot a round. If people want to see tap dancing, they can dust off some old Bill Robinson movies, or even Ray Robinson's.



Boston Red Sox' Tony Perez is tagged out at home by Cleveland's Ron Hassey while trying to score from third on a pop fly in American League game.

Martin appeals to Bowie Kuhn

New York (AP) - Oakland A's Manager Billy Martin, still angry that managers, coaches and trainers were not going to receive extra money for baseball's divisional playoff series, appealed to commissioner Bowie Kuhn Friday for a resolution of the problem.

The appeal was made in the form of a telegram from Martin's attorney, Eddie Sapir, to Kuhn. A similar message was sent to American League president Lee MacPhail.

"On behalf of Billy Martin and his coaches and pursuant to the uniform manager's contract, paragraph 5 and major league rule 45 ... it has come to my attention (that) Billy and his coaches inadvertently and illegally were excluded from (the) distribution pool proceeds (contributions) from (the) miniplayoff series," Sapir's telegram to Kuhn began.

"In that regard, Billy personally and in behalf of his coaches, appeal to you in your capacity as commissioner of all baseball to take necessary action to bring about (a) fair and equitable resolution for (the) distribution of receipts from (the) miniplayoff series as provided under major league rule 45 ... " the telegram added.

The strike settlement in July provided that players would receive 60 percent of gate receipts from the first three games of the divisional playoffs. But managers, coaches and trainers who received their salaries during the 50-day player walkout, were not included.

Martin has threatened that he and his coaches would boycott the AL Championship Series and the World Series to protect the exclusion.

"It wasn't our idea to strike," Martin said. "We shouldn't be penalized."

Meanwhile, the dispute between the two leagues and the Umpires Association over the number of umpires to be used for the divisional playoff games drew closer to resolution, according to Richie Phillips, attorney for the umpires' group.

After a half-hour phone talk with MacPhail and National League President Chub Feeney, Phillips said, "I can't give you any details of what transpired except to say that we moved closer to a resolution of the dispute.

SWC race heats up with two tilts on tap

Texas Tech's 28-21 win over New Mexico last week wasn't the longest game ever played. It only seemed like it. But as far as Jerry Moore was concerned, it didn't matter. It was a victory and he was happy to escape the aerial bombardment of Robin Gabriel with a win, especially after what happened at Colorado a week before.

And Washington State left the Boulder Buffaloes in a state of shock with an upset win, just win it seemed Colorado Coach Chuck Fairbanks finally had it going in his third season since returning to the Big Eight from the New England Patriots.

But that's the kind of season it has been.

Someone said they hadn't seen a Notre Dame team like this one since the days of Joe Kuharich as the Irish bombed in Jerry Faust's national TV debut.

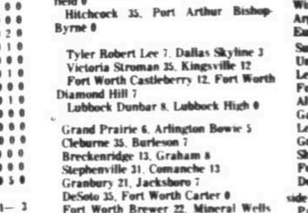
They played Hail to the Victors so often during the game that it threatens to replace the Notre Dame Fight Song as the national favorite.

At least, TV commentator Frank Broyles stopped short of calling Faust a "high school coach." But he did note that Notre Dame in not resorting to the drop back pass when way behind was not the way to catch up. What did he expect, Faust probably never was behind at Moeller High in Cincinnati from whence he came, but he'll learn.

It hasn't been a good year for sticking with the favorites or giving points and this week promises another round of surprises...

In the SWC....

Texas Tech plus 10 over Baylor—Bears should win, but neither has been consistent enough to spot anybody 10 points.



SMU plus 10 over TCU—Frogs havt lose nine straight to Ponies and have a fine passer in Steve Stamp, brother of former MC cager Scott Stamp, but tailback tandem of Craig James and Eric Dickerson should enable Mustangs to control the ball and keep it away from Stamp.

Texas minus 7 over Miami—One poll has Horns No. 1, which makes this pick a bad risk.

LSU minus 14 over Rice—Clock struck 12 for Cinderella right after last year's Owl win over Houston.

Texas A&M minus 10 over La. Tech—Surely the Aggies wouldn't let us down.

Elsewhere...

Oklahoma plus 4 over USC—It's for No. 1.

Nebraska minus 4 against Penn State—Cornhuskers have Lions' number.

UCLA minus 11 over Iowa—Hawkeyes in letdown after intrastate battle.

Boston College plus 15 1/2 over North Carolina—Kelvin Bryant was better than Famous Amos last year and has 11 touchdowns already this season...but 15 1/2 points against BC...

In the NFL....

Last week we were 7-0 on spreads in the pros, but don't bet on it happening again.

Dallas minus 10 1/2 against New York—Giants overconfident.

Houston minus three over Jets—Jets having problems and Oilers will be another one.

Atlanta minus 2 1/2 against Cleveland—Junior Miller due for a big game.

San Diego minus 3 against Denver—Somehow we have the feeling we are giving away too many points too many times.

Oakland minus 2 over Detroit—Raiders are Super champs and better start behaving like it.

Miami minus 2 1/2 over Baltimore—Can that be right, only 2 1/2 points?

Kansas City plus 2 over Seattle—At last, points for my side.

Giants' rookie blanks San Diego

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Al Holland, making his first major-league start, pitched a four-hitter for eight innings and Dave Bergman belted his fourth homer as the San Francisco Giants blanked the San Diego Padres 3-0 Friday night.

Rookie Steve Fireovid, 0-1, scattered nine hits in seven innings, giving up two Giants runs.

In the fourth, Enos Cabell doubled, went to third on Jack Clark's single and came home on a double-play grounder.

Bergman hit his homer to right field with one out in the seventh to make it 2-0. Milt May singled in the ninth, went to third on a single by Bergman and scored on a groundout for San Francisco's final run.

Holland, 7-5, whose last start came with Phoenix in the Pacific Coast League two years ago, gave up San Diego's fifth hit to open the ninth and was replaced by Greg Minton, who earned his 18th save without allowing a hit.

Holland struck out three and walked two in his first start after 103 major-league relief apperences.

Carlsbad strikes late to whip Artesia, 30-3

CARLSBAD (AP) — Carlsbad erupted for three touchdowns in the final 5½ minutes of the game Friday night and went on to take a 30-3 win over rival Artesia in a meeting of southeast New Mexico powers.

The game was still up for grabs midway through the final period, with the Cavemen, now 3-1, holding on to an 8-3 lead. But suddenly the Carlsbad offense exploded as Terry Wallace pulled in a 20-yard scoring pass from Greg Williamson to start the assault.

Andrew McGough added another score moments later when he returned an Artesia fumble 50 yards for another score and Sam Alcorta pulled in a 29-yard scoring strike from Jim Townley to wind up the scoring for the Cavemen, who went into the game as the No. 2 ranked AAAA team in New Mexico.

Artesia, 1-2, and ranked No. 2 in Class AAA, got its only points on a 41-yard field goal from all-purpose star Scott Runyan.

Carlsbad finished with 270 yards rushing and 106

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Matthews drove in five runs with a homer and a single and Mike Schmidt smashed his 28th home run, powering the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Friday.

Matthews' homer, his ninth of the season, came in the seventh inning with two out and scored Lonnie Smith and Pete Rose, who had both singled.

Schmidt's major league-leading 28th homer of the year came in the fourth inning off losing pitcher Ken Kravec, 1-6. The long blast to center field scored Matthews, who had walked leading off the inning, and tied the score 2-2.

The Phillies scored two runs in the fifth when pitcher Dan Larson walked and went to third on a double by Smith with one out. After Rose struck out, Matthews singled to left, scoring both runners.

PHILADELPHIA collected its last two runs in the ninth. One scored when Cubs catcher Jody Davis made a wild throw to third on a steal attempt by Garry Maddox. The other came home on Ramon Aviles' infield single.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the first on singles by Ivan DeJesus and Bill Buckner, and a balk by Larson. Chicago added a run in the third when DeJesus and Buckner again singled, and Leon Durham hit into an RBI forceout.

Larson, 3-0, pitched seven innings and scattered seven hits before Ron Reed hurled the final two innings.

The game was played in a constant drizzle and was delayed 57 minutes in the top of the eighth inning.

Parrish sparks Expos, 6-3

MONTREAL (AP) — Larry Parrish drove in four runs with a double and two singles and Bill Gullickson fired a two-hitter for seven innings as the Montreal Expos defeated the New York Mets 6-3 Friday night.

Gullickson, 6-8, lost his shutout bid in the eighth inning when pinch-hitter Ron Hodges doubled home Doug Flynn, who had reached base with an infield single. After Frank Taveras walked, Jeff Reardon replaced Gullickson and gave up a two-run triple to Dave Kingman.

The Expos held a 2-0 lead before breaking the game open with a four-run seventh inning. A single by Terry Francona and Chris Speier's walk chased starter Pat Zachry, 7-13.

Reliever Ray Searage then walked Gullickson, loading the bases, and Warren Cromartie and Rodney Scott followed with RBI singles. After Dawson grounded out and Gary Carter flied out, Parrish stroked a two-run single off reliever Mike Marshall.

Parrish had given Montreal a 1-0 lead in the fourth when his two-out double off the glove of center fielder Lee Mazzilli scored Dawson, who also had doubled.

Parrish delivered another run in the sixth with a sharp bouncer to the mound off Zachry's leg. Before the Mets' pitcher found the ball, Parrish was safe on the infield single and Rodney Scott scored from third.

Dodgers' Hooton blanks Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — Burt Hooton pitched a four-hitter and Dusty Baker knocked in two runs Friday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Houston Astros 3-0.

The loss cut Houston's lead in the National League West to 1½ games over Cincinnati, which beat Atlanta 10-2.

Baker, who extended his hitting streak to 12 games, drove home the game's first run with a single in the first inning and Hooton retired 16 Astros in a row after yielding a triple to Jose Cruz to open the second.

After Cruz's hit, Hooton did not allow another base runner until Tony Scott reached first on an infield hit off Hooton's glove with one out in the seventh inning.

The Dodgers chased Vern Ruhle, 4-5, with two more runs in the eighth inning on an RBI single by Landreaux and a sacrifice fly by Baker.

Hooton started the inning with a double, took third when Dave Lopes reached first on Craig Reynolds' throwing error and scored on Landreaux's hit. Lopes then came home on Baker's sacrifice fly.

Houston had a chance to even the score in the second inning when Cruz led off with a triple to the left field corner.

But Hooton, 11-6, got himself out of trouble by striking out Denny Walling, catching Cruz off third base on a grounder back to the mound by Art Howe and striking out Alan Ashby.

Dodgers shortstop Bill Russell left the game after the sixth inning when he aggravated a foot injury.

The victory was Los Angeles' second victory in as many nights after ending a five-game losing streak against San Francisco.

Pirates nudge Cardinals, 5-4

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eddie Solomon won his eighth game and singled home the tie-breaking run during a four-run Pittsburgh rally in the fourth inning, leading the Pirates to a 5-4 triumph over the St.Louis Cardinals Friday night.

The loss was St.Louis' fourth in a row and seventh in eight games. Combined with first-place Montreal's 6-3 victory over the New York Mets, the defeat dropped the Cards 2½ games behind in the National League East.

Solomon, 8-5, allowed eight hits and four runs in 7 1-3 innings. He gave up a double to Keith Hernandez with one out in the eighth and was charged with St. Louis' fourth run when George Hendrick singled off reliever Kent Tekulve.

Cowboys favored by 11 in game with NY Giants

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys were 11-point favorites to whip the New York Giants Sunday in what has shaped up as a revenge National Footbal League game for the hometowners.

The Cowboys think the Giants cost them the National Conference Eastern Division title last year with a 38-35 upset at East Rutherford, N.J.

Dallas and Philadelphia each finished with 12-4 record but the Eagles won the National Conference Eastern Division in the fifth tie breaker — most points.

Dallas has the No.1 rusher in the NFL in Tony Dorsett, who is averaging 7.6 yards per carry. Projected over the full season it would be the NFL's best since 1934 when Chicago's Beattie Feathers averaged 9.94 yards per try.

It's Dorsett's best start as a pro and he can give thanks to an off-season conditioning program which has made him a finely tuned machine.

He sprained an ankle and bruised some ribs Monday in the 35-21 victory over New England but should be in top shape by kickoff time in Texas Stadium.

Reds rip Braves, 10-2

ATLANTA (AP) — Ron Oester and Ray Knight smashed homers as the Cincinnati Reds, winning for the ninth time in 11 games, belted 14 hits in a 10-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves Friday night.

Mario Soto, 10-9, scattered eight hits in going the distance. Tommy Boggs, 3-12, was the loser.

Putnam, Rivers pace Rangers win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Pat Putnam's three-run homer and Mickey Rivers' four hits — two doubles, a single and a triple — carried the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Friday night.

Putnam capped a two-out rally in the third inning with his eighth homer of the season to score Al Oliver and Buddy Bell ahead of him.

Oliver reached first on a fielder's choice and moved to second when Bell walked. Putnam then lined a fastball by Twins' starter Al Williams, 6-9, over the right field fence.

Charlie Hough, 3-1, went 6 1-3 innings for Texas, allowing five hits and two runs before being replaced by Steve Comer, who earned his sixth save.

Hough gave up an infield single to Rob Wilfong in the first inning but then retired 12 consecutive batters before Gary Ward reached base in the fifth on a wild pitch after striking out.

The Twins scored twice in the seventh to knock out Hough. Rookie Kent Hrbek's double scored John Castino and Ward to trim the margin to 4-2.

Leon Roberts drove in both of Texas' other runs with a single in the second inning and another single in the ninth to score Jim Sundberg, who had tripled.

Mariners making pitch

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Seattle Mariners are the latest team to rear its head and threaten the Kansas City Royals' bid for an American League playoff berth.

Tom Paciorek and Bruce Bochte each cracked home runs to back Floyd Bannister's seven-hit pitching Friday night as the Mariners defeated the Royals 8-3 for their fourth straight victory.

"We're just scoring runs and keeping their running game down," said Bannister after helping Seattle beat the Royals for the third straight time. "That's the key, especially in this park (Royals Stadium)."

The loss was the fifth in seven games for Kansas City, which began thge the night with a half game lead over Oakland in the AL West.

"I wish I knew the answer. We're just struggling to score runs," said Kansas City catcher John Wathan. "It seems like whenever we get behind by five runs or so, we just can't catch up like we used to."

Seattle closed within four games of Kansas City with eight to play, raising the possibility of a late Mariners charge.

"We're just looking at it one game at a time, never looking ahead," said Bannister. "We're not getting carried away, but we're realizing that it's a possibility."

Bannister, 8-8, struck out five and walked two.

The Mariners pounded 16 hits off three Kansas City pitcher, including starter Jim Wright, 1-3.

Seattle took a 1-0 lead in the first on singles by Julio Cruz and Dan Meyer and Paciorek's double play grounder.

Bosox smoking as Yaz homers

BOSTON (AP) — Carl Yastrzemski belted a two-run homer and rookie Rich Gedman drove in the tie-breaking run with his third hit Friday night as the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-4 behind the relief pitching of Bob Stanley.

It was Boston's ninth victory in the last 12 games, all at home.

Yastrzemski, winding up his 21st season at the age of 42, got the Red Sox off to a fast start by drilling his seventh home run of the season and No.426 of his career in the first inning. The shot into the right field seats moved Yastrzemski into a tie with Billy Williams for 16th place among baseball's all-time sluggers.

Gedman scored the tying run in the fourth after the Indians had gone in front 4-3 in their half of the inning. He singled, took second on a passed ball, moved to third on a long fly to center and scored on Dwight Evans' two-out single.

Carney Lansford, the American League batting leader, doubled in the fifth and scored on Gedman's double down the right field line.

The Red Sox scored their other run off loser Wayne Garland, 3-7, on singles by Evans, Lansford and Dave Stapleton in the third.

Stanley replaced starter Bruce Hurst with two out in the fourth and allowed only one single the rest of the way, improving his record to 10-7.

Cleveland scored a run in the second on Bo Diaz's double, a wild pitch and a double play grounder after a walk. The Indians added three in the fourth on singles by Toby Harrah and Andre Thornton, a double by Alan Bannister, Rick Manning's RBI grounder and Tom Veryzer's single.

O's McGregor muffles Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) — Southpaw Scott McGregor fired a six-hitter, striking out a career-high 11, and the Baltimore Orioles defeated the New York Yankees 1-0 Friday night.

McGregor, pitching his seventh complete game, outdueled Yankees lefthander Tommy John, 9-7, who allowed nine hits.

The game's only run came in the fifth inning. Doug DeCinces walked with one out and after Lenn Sakata flied out, Al Bumbry beat out a roller in front of the plate for a single. Rich Dauer followed with a single to right, scoring Dempsey.

McGregor, 12-4, was in trouble in the first inning when Bobby Brown singled with one out but was picked off, then Dave Winfield doubled and Lou Piniella walked. But McGregor struck out Reggie Jackson to end the threat.

In the eighth, Rick Cerone pinch-hit a triple with one out, but McGregor retired Willie Randolph and Brown on groundouts.

The Orioles lefty allowed only three other singles.

The win was the third straight for the Orioles, who are chasing Detroit, Milwaukee and Boston in a bid for the second-half championship of the American League East. The Yankees, first-half division champions, lost their sixth in seven games.

Ominous Nicklaus 4 strokes back

Pate charges into Fame lead

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jerry Pate, the jaunty guy who leaped into a pond after winning in Memphis earlier this year, fashioned a 3-under-par 68 and took over the second-round lead Friday in the $250,000 Hall of Fame Classic.

Pate, one of six American Ryder Cup players competing in this late-season event, put together a 36-hole total of 134, 8 strokes under par for two trips over the famed No.2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club course.

Jack Nicklaus, seeking an end to a year-long winless string in his last American start of the season, remained in a challenging position at 138, 4 strokes back, after an erratic 71.

Nicklaus, generally considered the finest player the game has known, had a double bogey, two bogeys, two birdies and an eagle in his round of par.

"IT WASN'T quite as good as yesterday, but I feel like I played very well," said Nicklaus, who hasn't won since taking his 17th major professional title in the 1980 PGA.

"I'm certainly in reasonable position," he said. "If I can play well over the next couple of days, and there's no reason why I shouldn't, I should be somewhere around the lead when the tournament's over.

"I've played pretty well all year, even though I haven't won. And I'm playing very well right now. I'd love to finish the year off by winning one here. I'd hate to waste playing well."

Morris Hatalsky, the first round leader, and Tim Simpson shared second at the tournament's halfway point, 2 strokes back of Pate at 136. Hatalsky came back from three consecutive bogeys to match par 71 in the mild, sunny weather, and Simpson birdied his last hole to finish off a 68.

Bill Kratzert and Keith Fergus were another stroke back at 137. Kratzert had a 70 and Fergus closed up with a 66.

RAY FLOYD, trying to make up some ground on absent rivals in the race for the leading money-winning spot and Player of the Year honors, had another 70 that left him at 140. Lee Trevino, inducted into the Hall of Fame earlier in the week, had a 73 that left him at 144.

Although he's played well, Pate said he was still feeling he effects of the trans-Atlantic flight back from England and last week's Ryder Cup competition.

"I'm just kind of tired," he said. "It's a five-hour time difference between here and there, and I'm waking up at 5 or 6 every morning, and then when you have to wait around until 1 o'clock to play, well, I'm just tired."

He dropped a 35-foot putt on his ninth hole to turn at 1 under, chipped close to save par on the next two holes, scored from 10 feet on the next, birdied his 16th from 18 feet, then saved his 2-shot lead with a 15-foot putt after driving into the pine trees on 17.

Robinson blames LA's Lasorda for trouble

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Manager Frank Robinson of the San Francisco Giants said Friday that a fight between Giants' fans and Los Angeles Dodger outfielder Reggie Smith wouldn't have happened Thursday night if Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda had kept his players in line.

"If Lasorda would keep his club in the dugout, it wouldn't have happened," said Robinson of the fight which sent Smith into the stands to tussle with the fans. "But he's got his head in the TV camera. If the players had stayed in the dugout, it wouldn't have happened."

Thursday night's off-field events, which resulted in nine fans being arrested, began in the sixth inning of what turned out to be a 7-3 Dodger victory over the Giants.

Lasorda complained to a security guard about an obnoxious fan sitting behind the Dodgers' dugout.

"He was harassing our ballplayers," Lasorda said. "He was calling 'em names. A fan don't have the right to do that. I got a security guard, which is the right thing to do. I told him to go get that guy, he's harassing our players. If you don't, we'll have problems."

Problems were right. Smith sauntered out of the dugout, apparently to see what all the fuss was about, and that's when the brawl really got started.

Smith said the heckler challenged him. "He said to me 'If I come down onto the field, my company will lose a $40,000-a-year employee. If I break your neck, you guys may lose the pennant race.' "

Smith said the man, later identified by police as Michael Dooley, 37, of Menlo Park, then threw a plastic souvenir helmet at him.

"He whizzed the thing at me and I went after him," Smith said.

Red Sox gain home field edge

NEW YORK (AP) — The Boston Red Sox will have the home-field advantage if they finish tied for the lead with either the New York Yankees or the Detroit Tigers in the American League East second-season race, the league office said Friday.

In the event of Detroit and New York ending tied for first, that playoff game would be played in Detroit.

AL President Lee MacPhail said a coin flip in his office Thursday had determined the draw. A three-way tie among the clubs would require another draw to determine the order of the playoffs, MacPhail said.

WHY FALL IS THE BEST TIME TO PLANT TREES, SHRUBS AND BULBS.

It's always better to plant outdoor trees, shrubs and bulbs during the fall when they are dormant. These plants, when dormant, will channel all their energy toward establishing root growth that will greatly benefit their ability to gather nutrients in the spring and become greener, healthier plants. You'll also find a much greater selection of these plants in the fall. For spring shade and landscaping beauty, plant your trees, shrubs and bulbs in the fall!

Tevis Herd Run scheduled Oct. 3

The Tevis Herd Run for Your Health marathon sponsored by Midland Memorial Hospital is scheduled for Oct. 3 and will feature two and 10-kilometer runs as well as a one-mile run for boys and girls 12-and-under.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m. and the first race begins at 9 a.m. For those full of beans, the races will be spaced far enough apart so that runners, should they desire, may compete in both the two-mile and 10-kilometer events, which will be held at Green Tree Country Club.

Entry fee is $5 and all registrants will receive an MMH Run For Your Health t-shirt. Registration forms are available at the MMH public relations office or contact John Holt (685 1540). First, second and third place prizes will be awarded in the boys and girls divisions while the top three finishers in the men's and women's divisions will receive awards. Competition is scheduled for men and women in the 14-under, 15-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59 and 60-and-over divisions.

In addition, the overall first place male and female winners will be announced.

MSA places players

Ken Gordon, president of the Midland Soccer Association, said Friday that all children who have signed up for soccer have been placed on a team.

However, not everyone has been notified as to which team they are on because there is a shortage of coaches. Gordon says volunteer coaches are needed and those interested in coaching a soccer team in the MSA should call 697-5798.

Women's cage league

An organizational meeting for a Women's Basketball League is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Oct. 14 and a meeting for the adult Coed Volleyball League is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Oct. 15 at the Park Center YMCA.

The Men's Over 30 basketball also will return to the scene this winter with a meeting slated for 6:30 p.m. Nov. 2 at Park Center.

A Teenage Coed Volleyball League also will be formed with information on games and fees to be determined at a 6:30 p.m. meeting Nov. 3.

Some of the classes offered at the Park Center in October include Women's Fitness, Girls gymnastics, karate and baton.

Midland Runner's Club

The Midland Road Runners Club will hold its second race Oct. 31, the first annual Trick Or Treat Trot. The run will begin at 8 a.m. at the Hogan Park Activities Building. Races will be five and 15 kilometers. Prizes will go to the first five finishers, male and female, in each event.

Preregistration is $5 and race day registration is $6. T-shirts will be given all participants. Special Father-son and Mother-Daughter divisions are scheduled.

Rod Gerald fights bad forgery

DALLAS (AP) — Football stardom that came in a transition from offensive plays at a southside high school to a star quarterback spot at Ohio State has faded quickly for Rod Gerald, as he fights a forged check charge.

Gerald said Wednesday he wants to take a lie detector test to convince authorities he is innocent of a store owner's accusations. He had surrendered to Dallas police only the day before and is accused of passing a worthless $350 check to a southside grocery store. If convicted, he could face up to a 10-year prison term.

Coaches said Gerald is one of the best high school football players ever produced by Dallas' public schools.

Langer leads Hope golf by three strokes

(Compiled from R-T wire services)

West Germany's Bernhard Langer fired a six-under-par 65 Friday and took a three-stroke lead at the halfway stage of the Bob Hope British golf tournament at Rickmansworth, Eng., with a 132. Petere Ooserhuis, Sandy Lyle, Manuel Ballesteros and Warren Humphreys were tied for second. Langer jwants to finish in the top four here to gain exemptions to major U.S. tournaments next year. "It was like stepping into a five-star world when I played at the World Series this year," said the blond German. "I loved every minute of it, but I don't want to go to America full-time just yet."...

Chicago Cubs' broadcaster Lou Boudreau chided fans for not attending games even though the club still could win the second-half title in the National League East. The Cubs have averaged only 3,368 fans per game for four games on their final home stand of the season. Only 2,555 watched Thursday's 10-9 victory over the New York Mets. "The fans have been crying for a championship, and the Cubs have a chance to give them one. I don't understand why the crowds have been so small this week."...

Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan, who owns the fastest time for the indoor mile, said he would wear his "Discover Ireland" T-shirt in the Fifth Avenue Mile despite a protest from the BBC, which purchased TV rights from ABC. The BBC said the shirt was "blantant commercialism". "Sure, the shirt is commercial, but it's legitimate," Coghlan said...

At last report, Ruly Carpenter said his Philadelphia Phillies were still for sale, but only at the right price, probably between $30 and $40 million. After selling the Philadelphia 76ers Thursday Eugene Dixon was asked if he was interested in buying another team, Dixon said he was a member of the Bill Giles group which is bidding for the Phillies, "But I have to begin to wonder whether Ruly does want to sell. A decision was to be made, July 28, I believe was the target date. Now it's two months later, and I have to question what's going on. The date has been moved and moved and moved and here we are entering the month of September. You have to question whether the Phillies really are for sale."...

Roberto Duran meets Luigi Minchillo at Las Vegas today as he continues on the comeback trail after a walkout loss to Sugar Ray Leonard. "I'm ready for this guy (Minchillo), but I'm continuing fighting only so I can fight Sugar Ray Leonard again. You know I'm taking this fight seriously, though. I have to." Minchillo, the European junior middleweight who comes into the bout with a very respectable 33-1 record with 20 knockouts....

Coy Bacon, 38, a 14-year NFL vet, sent home Thursday by Washington Redskins' coach Joe Gibbs for disciplinary reasons, was waived Friday. The problems included Bacon missing team meetings and reporting late for practice. Last month, he walked off the practice field and did not return until accompanied by an assistant coach...

Phillies infielder Pete Rose has been summoned to court next month for his role in an altercation with two heckling fans at St. Louis' Busch Stadium. Rose was cited for disturbing the peace after he allegedly pounded his bat on top of the dugout during Thursday night's 14-6 victory over the Cardinals. One of the fans charged that the Phillies' first baseman was attempting to swing at him, but Rose said he was only trying to frighten the fan, who was shouting obscenities at him.

Police said the altercation began when some fans began throwing beer at the Philadelphia players when they came in from the field after the eighth inning. One of the fans began shouting at Rose and then tried to get at Manager Dallas Green. "I know he wanted me to come in there (the stands), but I wasn't about to do that," Green said. Two fans were dragged from the stadium by police and security guards after a lengthy struggle. One police officer and one fan were treated at a local hospital for minor injuries...

LOS ANGELES — Here's a story that is as American as Mom's apple pies.

Two young men grow up together in Oklahoma City. They're gifted athletes who wind up playing quarterback for rival high schools. They meet in the state finals with one team winning in overtime.

They're both recruited by the same university, Oklahoma. One quarterback enrolls at OU, the other decides to play for USC.

A few years later, Oklahoma meets USC and the quarterbacks renew their friendly rivalry before 90,000 fans and a national television audience — a showdown between the nation's No. 1 (USC) and No. 2 (Oklahoma) teams. The scenario is a little schmaltzy, but it will sell. There's only one problem with the whole idea. It might not happen.

Kelly Pehips is the Oklahoma man who stayed home. Scott Tinsley is the Oklahoman who went West. Phelps will be the starting quarterback for Oklahoma in Saturday's game here. Tinsley is the No.2 quarterback for USC and, unless starter John Mazur falters or is injured, he probably won't play.

"When I first came to USC, I looked forward to playing against Oklahoma," Tinsley said, "and a lot of people back home ask me why I'm not starting. They just don't understand. The coaches are making the decisions and I'm behind them 100 percent. If I'm needed, I'll be ready to play Saturday."

TINSLEY, a junior, came into the season as USC's most experienced quarterback. He got his experience when Gordon Adams was injured in the ninth game against Washington last year. Tinsley finished up for Adams and started the final two games, a loss to UCLA and a win over Notre Dame. Then, he competed for the starting job in spring practice with Mazur and Jim A4rivey.

Coach John Robinson has repeatedly said that Tinsley has leadership qualities and is an excellent competitor. But he wasn't regarded as a strong-armed passer.

"When I first came here, I felt I knew how to manage a team, but it took a while to gain the physical ability to m$ke the throws that are necessary in college football," Tinsley said. "But, wh3n we came into fall practice, I felt I could make every throw they asked me to make. I think I played as good as I've ever played.

"But they decided to go with John and that's fair. I'm not here to gripe and complain. I'm here to help this team win. Even though I'm not starting, I'm not down on myself at all."

There is no mistaking that Tinsley is from Oklahoma. He still has that flatlands twang and punctuates his sent3nces with "shoot," or "Yes sir," and "No sir."

He said that he and Kelly Phelps went to the s$me grade school, but then parted company. Tinsley went to Putnam City West High School in Oklahoma City, and Phelps to Putnam City in the same school district. "We were rivals, much like ¾SC and UCLA," he said.

Tinsley's team never beat Phelps', but they had some stirring battles including the state high school championship game in 1977, when Putnam City beat Putnam West, 21-14, in overtime.

"Some people say it wa the greatest high school game ever played in he state of Oklahoma," Tinsley 4ecalled fondly.

PHELPS, WHO'LL share the quarterback job with Darrell Shepard against the Trojans, is not renowned for his passing. But Tinsley said that Phelps was a good passer in high chool.

"He has probably lost some continuity in his passing because they don't stress it that much at OU," Tinsley said. "Kelly is a clutch player and he can really get to the corner quickly. He's really fast and consistently runs the 40 in 4.5."

Tinsley said that he has never regretted his decision to come to USC. He likes the campus, the coaches and the entire atmosphere.

"The beach is my favorite part of L.A.," Tinsley said. "There aren't too many b3aches in Oklahoma. Or, I should say there are lots of beaches, but not lots of water."

Tinsley said that his girlfriend, Debbie, a student at OU, will be here for the game along with approximately 20,000 Oklahoma fans.

DALLAS (AP) — An attractive card of non-conference games faces the Southwest Conference this weekend, as well as conference matchups between Texas Tech and Baylor and SMU and TCU. Texas hosts Miami in a battle of nationally-ranked and unbeaten teams, while Arkansas takes on Mississippi at Jackson, Rice is at LSU, Texas A&M hosts Louisiana Tech and Houston returns home to play Utah State.

Here's Saturday's lineup, as all nine SWC teams are in action for the second straight weekend:

Miami, Fla. (2-0) at Texas (2-0) 7 p.m. — Two of the nation's outstanding defenses have carried both teams high into the rankings — Texas fourth and Miami 14th. It is the second straight SWC opponent for the Hurricane, who defeated Houston 12-7 last week. Texas defense led its 23-10 victory over North Texas State last week with tackle Kenneth Sims getting four quarterback sacks. UT soph John Walker ranks fourth among SWC rushers, 23rd nationally at 117 yards a game and will split tailback duties with recuperating A.J. "Jam" Jones. Texas is No. 2 nationally in total defense and rushing defense, but its average yield of two yards per play leads the nation. The Hurricane starts seven seniors, three juniors on defense.

Texas Tech (1-1) at Baylor (2-1) 7:30 p.m. — SWC opener for both could be run vs. pass, Bears blitzing Louisiana Tech for 303 yards last week and Tech last in SWC pass defense with yield of 350 yards per game. Baylor emphasized passing last week in effort to loosen up defenses for '80 rushing champ Walter Abercrombie and No. 2 rusher Dennis Gentry with Quarterback Jay Jeffrey hitting 14 of 21 passes. Tech's Anthony Hutchison has replaced Abercrombie as SWC rushing leader at 154 yards per game to rank eighth nationally. Former Baylor end ('60) Jerry Moore makes first trip to alma mater as opposing head coach, while Baylor's Grant Teaff was long-time assistant at Tech. Bears have won last two meetings to take 20-16-1 series lead, while Tech has 12-9 advantage in SWC play.

SMU (3-0) at TCU (1-1) 7:30 p.m. — Game matches several national leaders, including top SWC runners against top SWC receivers. SMU's Eric Dickerson and Craig James second and third in SWC rushing and 12th and 19th nationally, with both over 100 yards in last five games. Frogs' Stanley Washington nation's No. 1 receiver with eight catches per game for 309 total yards, teammate Phillip Epps a top long threat and Quarterback Steve Stamp second nationally in passing efficiency with 70 per cent completions. SMU's Russell Carter eighth in nation in interceptions with four in three games as Mustangs lead SWC with ten thefts. Series is a deat heat--28 victories each with seven ties.

Arkansas (2-0) vs. Mississippi (3-0) at Jackson 7:30 p.m. — One of two games this week involving SWC in battle of undefeated teams. Arkansas gained 38-7 victory over Northwestern last week. Arkansas used three Quarterbacks — Tom Jones, Bill Pierce, Brad Taylor — in rolling to SWC season high of 569 yards total offense. Razorbacks lead SWC and seventh nationally in offense, second in SWC and 13th nationally in rushing, also seventh nationally in defense and eighth in pass defense. Gary Anderson SWC's ninth-leading rusher at 82 yards a game as Razorbacks have subbed freely in first two games (for instance, eight players have scored points, but Hogs have only six TDs)...Ole Miss leads series 14-13 or 15-12, since 1914 game was disputed.

Rice (0-2) at LSU (1-2) 7:30 p.m. — One of the SWC's most active rivalries. Tigers hold 32-13-5 series lead over Rice, with 19-2 advantage at Baton Rouge. Rice coach Ray Alborn is changing lineup after 0-2 start, starting freshman Kevin Trigg ahead of Antonio Brinkley at running back and giving junior cornerback Terry Neely first start. Tigers recovered from opening losses to Alabama and Notre Dame to take 27-24 win over Oregon State at home. Tiger quarterback Alan Risher guided 80-yard drive in final two minutes for come-from-behind victory. Freshman RB Eric Martin has 80 yards on nine carries and Jesse Myles has 93 on 19. Senior receiver Orlando McDaniel good at the bomb, has 21.4-yards-per-catch average over career. veteran tight end Robert Hubble has but one reception in two starts. backup tight end Deron Miller leads team with four catches.

Louisiana Tech (1-2) at Texas A&M (1-1) 7:30 p.m. — The Aggies are back home after trips to west and east coasts netted 1-1 start. Second straight SWC foe for pass-happy Louisiana Tech after falling to Baylor, 28-21, in game which produced over 600 yards in air game. A&M led Boston College 12-7 before Aggie errors helped BC to 13-12 win. A&M back Earnest Jackson one of five SWC runners with better than 100-yard average. Tailback Johnny Hector seventh in SWC at 90.5 per game. Louisiana Tech Quarterback Matt Dunigan hit 29 of 53 for 307 yards against defending SWC champ Baylor. Bulldog kickoff returner Ronnie Williams, fourth in nation with 34.2-yard average, Aggie Billy Cannon No. 2 in SWC with 21.6 average.

Utah State (2-1) at Houston (1-1) 8 p.m. — The main question for both teams is quarterbackk — for Houston, Lionel Wilson replaces Audrey McMillian, whose shoulder separation ended his season early for second straight year; for Aggies Chico Canales is out with back injury. Cougar offense shut out in 12-7 loss to Miami last week. Cougars third in SWC total defense, second in rushing defense, third in pass defense and have allowed foes to convert only three of 25 third downs into first downs. UH offense built around running of Eddie Wright and Allen Polk, while Lonell Phea ranks second in SWC receiving with four catches per game . Aggie speedster Fred Fernandes is the biggest threat to UH defense after catching a 39-yard pass and returning a punt 63 yards for touchdowns in 31-18 victory over Weber State, while Maurice Turner rushed for 120 yards.

Rams, Pastorini agree to two-year contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Quarterback Dan Pastorini was signed to a two-year contract Friday by the Los Angeles Rams, team owner Georgia Frontiere announced at a hastily called press conference.

Don Klosterman, Rams general manager, then announced that the National Football League team waived veteran defensive end Fred Dryer to make room for Pastorini on the roster.

The press conference at the Rams' downtown ticket office was delayed for more than an hour as lawyers for the club and Pastorini ironed out details of the contract.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Pastorini's still-valid contract with the Oakland Raiders, who cut him last summer, reportedly will pay him more than $1 million over a number of years.

The Rams, in waiving Dryer, apparently will have to pay him $220,000 for this season. He earlier had been told he was going to be waived, but pointed out he had a guaranteed contract.

Pastorini, 32, said he was grateful to get another chance to play football. A 10-year NFL veteran who played most of his career at Houston, Pastorini was the Oakland starter at the beginning of last season but suffered a broken leg, opening the door for Jim Plunkett's comeback.

"I'm here to help the Rams in any capacity I can," said Pastorini. "How I'm used is up to (Coach) Ray Malavasi.

"First of all I gotta get in shape. Unfortunately, I've had a layoff. I don't look at this as proving myself; I look at it as picking up where I left off.

"I didn't have to play football," Pastorini continued. "I could have sat back for three years and collected my money (from the Raiders). I love football."

Signing Pastorini and cutting Dryer appeared to clear up two problem areas for the Rams, off to a 1-2 start. Regular quarterback Pat Haden was generally ineffective in the two opening losses, then was hurt in the victory over Green Bay last Sunday.

The seldom-used Jeff Rutledge is the Rams' No.2 quarterback, with rookie Jeff Kemp the third stringer.

Klosterman said of Pastorini's ranking in the line, "That's up to Ray Malavasi...Pastorini's talent will dictate."

Pastorini had a tryout with the Rams last week. Negotiations appeared to have ended with no agreement Thursday, but came alive again Thursday night.

Pastorini is a 51.5 percent career passer who has thrown 101 touchdown passes and 147 interceptions in his career. He has passed for 17,778 total yards, and his best year was in 1979 when he threw for 2,473 yards and 16 TDs to help the Oilers gain the playoffs.

O'Grady in action

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Sean O'Grady, whose court battles have overshadowed his ring battles since his last fight, will meet John Wolf Morgan of Houston in a 10-round bout Saturday night.

It will be O'Grady's first fight since April 12, when he scored a unanimous decision over Hilmer Kenty of Detroit in Atlantic City, N.J., to win the World Boxing Association lightweight title.

The Oklahoma City boxer, who is 75-2 with 65 knockouts, had his title taken away by court order a month ago following a dispute between Empire Sporting Club and New York promoter Bob Arum over promotion rights.

Earlier this month, Claude Noel of Trinidad won the vacant WBA lightweight title by defeating Rodolfo "Gato" Gonzalez.

O'Grady "should have taken that fight with Noel instead of taking this one with me," said Morgan, 25, of Houston.
