Honduras ejects Nicaraguan diplomat

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Honduras has ordered a top Nicaraguan diplomat expelled for spreading communist propaganda, while Nicaragua, in turn, claims Honduran troops participated in an attack on one of its border towns.

The Honduran foreign minister, Edgardo Paz Barnica, on Wednesday accused Nicaraguan Charge d'Affaires Javier Aviles Ibarra of making his embassy "an agency of Marxist propaganda ... in favor of Sandinism," a reference to Nicaragua's ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front.

The diplomat was given 48 hours to leave the country.

Aviles Ibarra, at a news conference last week, criticized Honduras for allowing U.S. military operations and installations on its territory.

A Nicaraguan Foreign Ministry statement called the expulsion "unfriendly" and said it was "directed toward deteriorating still further the relations between the two countries and falls within plans of the North American administration to promote a climate of tension that makes possible higher acts of aggression against Nicaragua."

The United States aids the Honduras-based Nicaraguan Democratic Force, the larger of two groups fighting the Sandinista government. Another rebel group, the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, is based in Costa Rica.

Nicaragua charged Wednesday that Honduran soldiers and Honduran-based Nicaraguan rebels attacked the village of Santo Tomas del Norte in Chinandega provnce, 150 miles north of Managua, the capital.

A protest note from Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto said a 12-month-old girl was killed and a Sandinista soldier wounded in the attack Monday.

The note accused the Honduran army of "growing involvement" in cross-border attacks by the guerrillas.

A second note protested a rebel attack Tuesday night on the Montelimar military base, 37 miles south of Managua. Armed boats attacked, then headed off after government soldiers returned their fire, the ministry said.

A Defense Ministry source, who asked not to be identified for protocol reasons, also said two unidentified planes attacked the border post of Leymus, 210 miles northeast of Managua, early Wednesday.

In El Salvador, rebels and government troops fought Wednesday in two sections of the eastern province of San Miguel, according to military sources in the region who asked not to be identified for security reasons.

The rebels' clandestine Radio Venceremos said the military killed 10 civilians in one of the heaviest aerial attacks in months on Guazapa Volcano, a rebel-controlled area north of San Salvador. The army said a major weekend raid on the area was aimed at a "large concentration of rebels."

Col. Mauricio Guzman Aguilar, second in command of troops based at the city of San Miguel, said his forces were searching for 40 experts in sabotage and terrorism "who have been dispatched to obstruct the March 25 (presidential) elections."

Leftists are boycotting the elections, but have said they will not disrupt them.

The far-right Republican Nationalist Alliance on Wednesday asked the Central Election Council to reject a petition by the moderate Christian Democrats to disqualify the alliance presidential candidate, Roberto d'Aubuisson.

The Christian Democrats on Monday said d'Aubuisson was ineligible because it was commonly believed, and had been charged in "the foreign press," that he was behind the 1980 murder in San Salvador of Roman Catholic Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero. He also was accused of being the "intellectual author and promoter of the sadly famous death squads."

Armando Calderon Sol, the alliance's legal representative, said a party document submitted to the council says the Christian Democrat petition is intended "to revile and insult publicly ... the relevant personality and natonal prestige that ... d'Aubuisson has achieved as a political leader."

In Washington, government sources said the Reagan administration was trying to overcome congressional opposition to aid for the Nicaraguan rebels and Salvadoran army by tying new military aid to unrelated emergency money bills.

Administration officials proposed that the Senate Appropriations Committee attach about $90 million in military aid for El Salvador to a bill to send emergency food supplies to Africa, said sources, speaking anonymously.

The administration's plan would also tie $17 million in new funds for Nicaraguan rebels to a bill seeking $200 million in energy assistance for the poor, the sources said.

Skiing clinics for handicapped build mountains of confidence

By BOB DVORCHAK
Associated Press Writer

WHITE HAVEN, Pa. — Using special crutches and mountains of determination, amputees are learning how to ski at special clinics aimed at building confidence through sports.

"We can't give them back their limbs, but we can give the confidence to go out and live as normal a life as they can," said Allan Weinberg, executive director of The 52 Association, a non-profit group that supervises national learn-to-ski clinics for the handicapped.

"Skiing is a vehicle to build and restore confidence. It breaks down barriers that have been built up because of a handicap," Weinberg said Wednesday.

A four-day clinic concludes today at Jack Frost Mountain, where The 52 Association began its ski program 10 years ago.

The group was founded in 1945 by 52 New York business and civic leaders to care for disabled veterans. Its motto is: "Life does not end after a traumatic injury. It is only altered."

Amputee Kimberly Morrow, 7, of West Chester, Pa., works her way down a slope at Jack Frost Mountain near White Haven, Pa.

In 10 years, nearly 2,000 amputees have been taught to ski. About 400 skiers will attend clinics this year in Pennsylvania, New York, Utah and Canada, culminating with a championship race March 29 at Alpine Meadows in California.

Lodging, food, equipment, instruction and lift tickets are paid by the Southland Corp., which operates 7-Eleven convenience stores.

At Jack Frost, about 75 first-time skiers aged 5 to 57 came from as far away as Florida. Each skier going through the starting gate at a concluding race receives a certificate.

"It's a symbol of accomplishment. Just by going through the gate, you're a winner. You show that you have the guts to get up off the floor and achieve something. They're telling their parents and their friends, 'I can do it,'" said Weinberg.

"Skiing's an equalizer," he added. "Here, an amputee can do the same thing as a person with two legs. It gives them a feeling of movement, freedom and exhilaration, of the wind rushing over their face."

PUC attorney disputes need for TESCO rate hike

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Coming in the wake of a rate increase that took effect two months ago, another rate hike being sought by Texas Electric Service Co. doesn't sit too well with a lawyer for the Public Utility Commission.

"The PUC said TESCO hadn't proven their case for their original request (a $195 million hike sought in June)," said PUC Counsel Jim Boyle. "It's preposterous to come in and ask for that amount back."

The PUC granted $72 million of the June proposal and the hike began being felt with December bills.

Now, TESCO and two partners in a new utility consortium are seeking a $304 million increase that would result in an average 8 percent hike for business and residential customers across the state.

The companies that merged with TESCO on Jan. 1, forming the Dallas-based Texas Electric Utilities Co., are Dallas Power and Light and Texas Power and Light.

"If we had received the original amount, we wouldn't have to come back" so soon, said TESCO Customer Service Manager G.R. Gotcher. "Our requests are generally for what we feel we'll need for a two-to-three-year period."

Calling it "a hammer-to-the head" approach, Boyle said: "They're saying, 'If you don't give it to us now, we'll get it later.'"

TESCO generated a net income of $148.6 million in 1982, the last year for which profit figures are available. Had the company received the full $195 million sought in June 1983, it would have produced a 17.5 percent return on equity, according to Gotcher.

But the PUC's shaving of $123 million from that request left investors with about a 16 percent return, something he said resulted in lowered bond ratings because it wasn't high enough "to attract investors, maintain financial integrity and finance on-going construction."

One such construction project is the $3.9 billion Comanche Peak nuclear power plant that had an original price tag of $779 million. Noting that 17 states don't allow utilities to charge rate-payers for work-in-progress, Boyle called Comanche Peak "a white elephant" and said:

"I'm not aware of any of them that can't sell their bonds or that are in financial distress — and some of them are building nukes to boot. It's just an excuse to ask for more money."

Gotcher noted that money had to be borrowed for Comanche Peak and that lowered bond ratings result in higher interest rates.

"We're not asking rate-payers to pay for cost overruns," he said, "but primarily to pay the interest on borrowed money. It's cheaper than borrowing more money to pay (the bond) interest — which would compound.

"Rate-payers aren't paying for construction so much as they are for interest on the borrowed money."

Contrary to allegations several years ago that utility companies in Texas were selling excess power out-of-state, Gotcher said: "We serve only Texas and never have sold outside the state, except in emergencies."

One reason for that, he added, is that the utilities don't want to come under any more federal regulations than they're already under.

On the issue of generating capacity, Boyle said that while the TUEC consortium does confine sales within state boundaries, it produces "a 35 to 40 percent excess above the peak usage on the hottest summer day. It's sold to electric co-ops and occasionally to other investor-owned utilities in the state."

"A 16 percent or so return on equity may not be a Rolls Royce, but it is a Cadillac return. Regulated monopolies are much less risky than an industrial enterprise in a highly competitive market.

"For that reason, investors should and are willing to take a little less return. Below 14 percent would not be extremely attractive to investors, though."

The rate increase proposal officially goes to the PUC Friday.

Escapees' terror spree ends

MARION, N.C. (AP) — An escaped convict's habit of hiding in caves and holes led to his capture, ending his bloody 19-day rampage with a fugitive partner who had died hours earlier in a blaze of gunfire at an abandoned shack, police say.

But before it was over, their terror spree had claimed one more victim — a 63-year-old blind woman who became so frightened when her home was invaded that she had a fatal heart attack.

The two were wanted in another killing committed since they broke out of Fort Pillow State Prison in Tennessee with three other inmates Feb. 18, vowing never to be taken alive, police said.

But a haggard James Clegg, 30, of Bristol, Tenn., gave up meekly Wednesday afternoon when police spotted his boots sticking out from his hiding place under a garage behind a piece of plywood.

His partner, Ronald Lee Freeman, 41, of Knoxville, Tenn., was shot and killed just four blocks away around 7 a.m. after breaking into the blind couple's home.

"Hell, no!" Freeman shouted when officers told him to surrender, a witness said.

"Information from Tennessee indicated that (Clegg's) method of operation was to hole up until the heat died down," said North Carolina Highway Patrol Maj. E.D. Young, who directed the manhunt by about 100 officers.

Clegg, who was serving a life sentence as a habitual criminal, had hidden in holes and caves and covered himself with debris during previous escapes in Tennessee.

Blizzard-force winds drive snowstorm over Midwest

By The Associated Press

A snowstorm backed by blizzard-force winds gathered strength over the Midwest today, dropping the mercury to just above zero in Iowa and South Dakota amid gusts that made it feel like 30 below zero.

Record low temperatures were reached in Marquette, Mich., where it was 16 below zero, and in Buffalo, N.Y., where the early-morning reading of minus 4 did "not compare well" with a freak high reading of 76 degrees a year ago today, forecasters said.

The storm was forging slowly eastward after plowing through the Dakotas on Wednesday with 60 mph winds that cut highway visibility to zero. Drifts plugged up parts of Interstate 90 in South Dakota and forced cancellations of hundreds of events, including Ash Wednesday church services, across the state.

Roads were treacherous with the storm blamed for the deaths of two people whose car slid out of control on wet pavement in Iowa. In other states, officials warned against unnecessary trips.

Most of Iowa was under a blizzard warning today as the snow stretched from the Dakotas into Nebraska, northern and central Illinois, southern Minnesota, northern Indiana, northern Missouri, Wisconsin and Ohio.

This morning's temperature at Sioux City, Iowa, fell to 10 degrees, but winds of 30 mph made it feel like 32 below zero, Gordon said. It was 6 above zero at Sioux Falls, S.D., but the wind was blowing at 20 mph and made the temperature feel like 30 below, he said.

O'Bryan expects reunion with son

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Ronald Clark O'Bryan, scheduled for execution on March 31, said he is innocent of killing his son with poisoned Halloween candy and that he expects someday to have a "very fond reunion" with the youngster in the hereafter.

O'Bryan, 39, said the public was outraged by the death of his son, Timmy, and that the anger was directed toward him. As a result, he said, people "forgot the relationship...that I had lost a son."

"I'm not asking for sympathy," he said. "I'm asking that they understand the relationship...I loved Timmy very much.

"I got him his first bike. I put him on his first horse. I taught him how to fish. I wrestled with him in the back yard," said O'Bryan. "We had a very close relationship. Timmy's death was like someone reached in and ripped out my heart."

He added emphatically: "I had nothing whatsoever to do with the death of my son."

Asked if he expected to see Timmy again in the hereafter, O'Bryan said he did, saying it would be "a very fond reunion and a very loving scene."

Even though he feels his conviction to be unjust, O'Bryan said his case may serve society by helping parents be more cautious with their children.

O'Bryan's son died after eating some Halloween trick or treat candy that had been laced with cyanide. He said the tragedy helped parents realize how fragile is their children's safety.

"This is good," he said in an interview from the Texas Department of Corrections Ellis Unit, home of the state's Death Row. "Parents should always inspect their children's candy" and be careful with loot from trick-or-treat outings.

O'Bryan contends that the candy that killed Timmy was given him by a man during a trick-or-treat outing in Pasadena on Halloween, 1974.

Autry 'won't stop fighting for life'

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Death Row inmate James David Autry, with his scheduled execution less than one week away, has vowed he won't stop fighting for his life.

"I don't want to die and I'm not going to give up," said the 29-year-old Autry, known to fellow inmates as "Cowboy."

Autry, who was sentenced to die for the 1980 slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk, is scheduled to be executed by a poisonous injection before sunrise March 14.

Five months ago, Autry lay strapped to a hospital gurney with intravenous needles in his arms when U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White granted a reprieve 30 minutes before the lethal flow of chemicals was to begin at 12:01 a.m. Oct. 5.

In an interview Wednesday at the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit outside Huntsville, Autry said he still hopes that a stay will again block the execution.

"I try to get myself to believe that it (the execution) won't happen," he said. "I still hope the governor or the Supreme Court will stop the execution."

Autry's attorneys have asked the U.S. Supreme Court to spare their client's life, claiming his ordeal in the death chamber was "tantamount to torture" and arguing it would be cruel and unusual punishment to make him endure the agony again.

They've also asked the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to recommend that Texas Gov. Mark White commute Autry's sentence to life in prison.

Autry was taken into the death chamber about an hour before prison officials had the right to do so, his attrorneys have said.

If guards try to take him inside before midnight, Autry said, he will resist.

"I'll probably hold them up until 12 o'clock. I'm not going to volunteer to lay down on that gurney," he said.

Since his 1980 conviction, Autry has been sentenced to die four times. Three previous dates were blocked by federal judges.

"It gets worse each time. I try not to think about it," he said, adding that he spends his time writing letters to friends, reading and listening to the radio.

If his court-ordered punishment is carried out, Autry said he wants a 31-year-old Dallas woman to be one of five personal witnesses.

Chairman: Texas will back Mondale

AUSTIN (AP) — Although Sen. Gary Hart's Democratic presidential campaign rolled over Walter Mondale in northern New England, Texans won't be impressed, the state Democratic chairman says.

Chairman Bob Slagle, a leading Mondale backer, said the former vice president hasn't lost his Texas support. He said he expects Texans to speak for themselves when choosing the state's 200 Democratic National Convention delegates this spring.

"I really don't think Texas is going to let Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine dictate our politics to us," Slagle said.

But Hart's Texas campaign chairman, Congressman Martin Frost, was in a mood to celebrate Wednesday, the day after the Colorado senator overwhelmed Mondale in the Vermont primary for his third victory in a week.

"People in Texas are responding to Hart the way they are in the rest of the country. I think we'll win a significant number of delegates — perhaps the majority," Frost said.

Mondale won the first-in-the-nation Iowa caucuses on Feb. 20. But Hart took charge in New England, winning the New Hampshire primary, Maine caucuses and Vermont's non-binding presidential preference vote.

Frost, of Dallas, said in a telephone interview from Washington that Hart's string of victories has loosened the grip Mondale seemed to have on Democrats.

"We're getting tremendous response from all over Texas. A lot of people figure that Walter Mondale can't beat Ronald Reagan," Frost said.

Frost said Hart's organization hopes to name coordinators in all 31 state senatorial districts by next week, and said the Colorado senator will compete for delegates in every district.

The congressman also said Mondale's attacks on Hart during the campaigning in New England may hurt Mondale in Texas.

"He attacked Hart for voting against the windfall profits tax on oil and for voting for natural gas deregulation. He's trying to pit one region of the country against another. Hart's votes are right in line with Texans' views," Frost said.

Mondale backer Slagle said a big reason for Hart's early success is that he has capitalized on being the newcomer in the Democratic race.

"The average voter really doesn't sit down and think about who can win the presidency. They tend to like a new face who seems somehow disassociated from the government and past events. Then when they find out what the new face is all about, support starts dropping off," Slagle said.

Slagle also isn't impressed by Hart's New England victories, noting that the region traditionally "is almost solid Republicanism. No blacks, no Hispanics, no Texas farmers or ranchers have cast a vote yet."

While Slagle said Mondale's support among Texas Democrats remains strong, he conceded that Hart might be in a position to capture the nomination if he does well next Tuesday in primaries in Massachusettes, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, then later in a key state such as Illinois.

Nurse upset because she can't watch TV

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Convicted baby killer Genene Jones is upset because she can't watch her favorite television shows in her cell, the Bexar County Jail director says.

Ms. Jones wrote a letter to director Paul Bailey this week after her personal television set was confiscated because of potentially faulty wiring.

The vocational nurse has been convicted of murdering an infant Kerr County girl with drug injections.

She faces another trial on Bexar County charges alleging that she administered a life-threatening injection to a month-old boy at San Antonio's Medical Center Hospital.

Certain inmates are allowed to possess personal television sets, Bailey said, "and Genene Jones is one of those inmates."

"She'll get her television set in due time, but we're not making any major effort to settle her in until we get the results of her hearing," Bailey said.

Mondale telling Southerners: 'I really need your help'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter Mondale, telling southerners "I really need your help," is accusing Gary Hart of being soft on civil rights, while the Colorado senator is aiming his words at President Reagan and sounding more and more like a front-runner in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Hart, too, acknowledged that southern votes have become crucial to maintaining his campaign surge, and he was appearing today before the Alabama Legislature followed by a meeting with Gov. George Wallace — just as his rivals have done.

Mondale, honing a new, tougher image in light of his three-in-a-row losses to Hart in New England, appeared before the Alabama Legislature on Wednesday and held his meeting with Wallace, the one-time segregationist who isn't endorsing anyone in the Democratic field.

Sen. John Glenn and the Rev. Jesse Jackson also have made similar calls on Wallace and addressed the state's lawmakers.

Hart, Mondale, Jackson and Glenn all are focusing on the South because of primaries in Alabama, Georgia and Florida on Tuesday — three of the nine states selecting delegates that day. The fifth candidate, former Sen. George McGovern, remained in Massachusetts where he is gambling on that state's primary.

Jackson was in Mississippi today after spending Wednesday in Illinois, where he hit Hart's "new ideas" theme. The only new thing about Hart, Jackson said, is that he "lowered his age and shortened his name."

He was referring to Hart's shortening of his name from Hartpence more than 20 years ago, and to earlier incorrect listings of his age as 46. He is 47.

Glenn, meantime, is appealing to southern patriotism to rescue his campaign with new television commercials airing in the South today. The ads stress his experience as an astronaut.

Non-praying sections suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public school classrooms might have to be divided into "praying" and "non-praying" sections under a proposed modification to a school-prayer constitutional amendment being debated in the Senate.

That's one change vote-hunting sponsors of the amendment are considering as they press their search for a compromise that can pick up enough support to win the two-thirds majority — or 67 votes — needed for passage.

The Senate today was entering its fourth day of debate on the proposed constitutional amendment to permit organized prayer in public schools, with leaders now predicting a test vote unlikely before next week. Opponents, led by Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., have vowed to delay a final vote on the issue until early June.

Backers of the prayer amendment have already revised the proposal once — spelling out that prayer in school could be either silent or spoken and specifying that the government could neither write the prayer that would be said nor force school districts to have a prayer period.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said the modifications improved chances for the amendment's passage, after conceding that the original school prayer amendment sponsored by President Reagan lacked enough votes for approval.

But Baker canceled earlier plans to try to schedule a test vote on the revisions on Wednesday and returned with other Senate leaders to the drawing board to see if further modifications could win even more votes for the proposal. The final vote is expected by both sides to be extremely close.

A Senate Republican official, who spoke only on the condition that he not be identified, said an addition now under consideration would spell out that school authorities who elect to have a spoken prayer period would also have to provide a place for students not wishing to participate — if they so chose.

A separate room, place or part of a room would have to be set aside for students who did not wish to pray at all or who did not wish to pray vocally, under the proposed modification.

Exact wording of the "non-praying" area provision has not yet been worked out, the official said.

With so many different ideas and revisions now floating around, "it will take a few days for it all to sink in," said the GOP official. "I don't think he (Baker) will force the issue at this point."

Baker said the rewriting process was continuing because "senators wished to see certain rights clarified."

STATE

Clear skies dominated Texas horizons before dawn today as a weak, dry cold front edged its way into the state.

The front, which curved from southeastern Oklahoma to the South Plains of West Texas, was not expected to have much of an effect on the state's weather outlook.

Ahead of the front, some high clouds were noted over parts of the Edwards Plateau and the eastern Trans Pecos.

Pre-dawn temperatures were mostly in the 40s. Readings at 4 a.m. ranged from 26 at Amarillo to 55 at Galveston.

Light and variable breezes were common across South and Southwest Texas, while southerly winds near 10 mph crossed most of North Texas. Behind the front, northerly winds around 15 mph were noted.

The forecast called for fair to partly cloudy skies through Friday. Slightly cooler daytime temperatures were on tap for Friday, along with a slight chance of light rain in far South Texas.

Northeasterly winds at 10 to 20 mph were forecast tonight and Friday along the Texas coast. Rough seas were expected tonight, along with widely scattered light rain showers along the lower coast Friday.

NATION

A winter storm wielding light snow but strong winds spread across the upper Midwest today from the Dakotas to Ohio, with blizzard warnings up in much of Iowa.

Winter storm warnings and travelers' advisories were posted as snow fell in parts of Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, Minnesota and Ohio. Snowsqualls off the lower Great Lakes added to the dangerous driving conditions in some places.

Temperatures plummeted in the storm area. The mercury dropped early today to 21 below zero at Marquette, Mich., a few hours after reaching a record low of 16 below zero. Buffalo, N.Y., broke a 101-year-old low temperature record when the temperature fell to 1 above zero.

Midland statistics

FORECAST

Fair tonight with a low near 40. Winds southerly at 5-10 mph. Fair and partly cloudy tonight with a high in the mid-70s. Winds southeasterly at 5-15 mph.

Iraq, Iran still fighting for oil field

By The Associated Press

Iranian fighters attacked Iraqi troops trying to retake the Majnoon Islands oil field early today, "killing or wounding" most of the advancing force, Iran reported.

Iraq, without mentioning Majnoon, reported a series of successful air raids Wednesday. It issued no reports on fighting today.

In Baghdad, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz asked Wednesday that Arab foreign ministers meet next week to discuss "the serious situation threatening the Arab region ... in the light of the escalating Iranian aggression."

In Moscow, the official Tass news agency said the United States was "grossly violating" international law by moving ships and planes to the Persian Gulf, "creating a grave threat to peace and international security."

Tehran Radio said Iranian forces "destroyed Iraqi forces stationed around Shahid Hamid bridge, situated inside southern Majnoon Island" during a five-hour attack early today.

"Most of the armored and mechanized Iraqi forces which took part in yesterday's counter-attacks were killed or wounded," said the broadcast monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

Iran punched across the border and occupied the Majnoon Islands and other Iraqi territory two weeks ago. The oil-rich islands, in the Tigris marshes 90 miles northeast of Iraq's port of Basra, are perhaps the biggest prize Iran has taken since the war began 3½ years ago.

Iraq announced Tuesday it was launching a counteroffensive to regain the islands.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said 850 Iraqi troops were killed in a battle for the islands on Wednesday.

Iraq said its helicopter gunships attacked Iranian positions along the border — downing two Iranian helicopters, destroying 11 enemy boats and scoring "direct hits in 85 infantry concentration spots" in the southern and central sections of the 730-mile battlefront.

Independent confirmation of the claims was not possible. Access to the war front is severely restricted for foreign reporters.

The proximity of the latest fighting to the Persian Gulf coupled with threats by Iraq and Iran to shipping there has increased international concern that major powers could become entangled.

The Tass report Wednesday said the United States has "arbitrarily established" a safe shipping zone and in doing so is "grossly violating the commonly recognized norms of law."

It cited the 1958 Open Seas Convention and the Chicago Convention on International Civil Aviation as the accords it deemed the United States has breached. The statement appeared to reflect the view of top Kremlin leaders.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said Tass was incorrect.

"The Soviets are well aware that the United States and many other nations share a concern for the peace and stability of the region, and for the maintenance of the right of free navigation in the international waters of the Persian Gulf," said Brian Carlson, the spokesman.

The United States and Britain have said they would not allow disruption of tanker traffic through the Strait of Hormuz at the southern end of the gulf, through which nearly 20 percent of the non-communist world's crude oil is transported.

In Turkey, a shipping official said Iraqi jets fired on a 15-ship convoy in the gulf last Thursday, sinking an Indian freighter and seriously damaging a Turkish vessel.

Two crew aboard the Turkish ship were reported killed in the air raid, said Turhan Eren of Zihni Shipping Co.

Britain's Foreign Office said Wednesday night that a British ship, the 19,200-ton Charming, was damaged in an attack on a convoy Thursday and that two crewmen received minor injuries. The London Times said the ship caught fire and was abandoned after being hit by an Iraqi missile.

The request for the Arab meeting was made in a note Iraq's foreign minister gave to visiting Arab League Secretary General Chadli Klibi, according to an official Iraqi annoucement.

Klibi flew to Baghdad on Tuesday and briefed Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on recent talks with other Arab leaders.

Iran, in a departure from Islamic law, decided to permit an autopsy on a body of an Iranian fighter allegedly killed by chemical weapons, an Austrian doctor said. The autopsy may help determine the "origin of injuries" said Dr. Herbert Mandl.

U.S. first protested Iraqi chemical warfare last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has known since last year that Iraq was using chemical weapons in its war with Iran, the State Department says.

State Department spokeswoman Kathleen Lang said Wednesday night that in 1983 the U.S. "expressed our concern on this issue several times directly to high level officials of the government of Iraq."

Ms. Lang said she would not characterize Iraq's reply or go into other details of the discussions.

Asked why the United States was now making public Iraq's us of chemical weapons, Ms. Lang said that "the level of evidence has become increasingly convincing."

"It had appeared until the current Iranian offensive that the diplomatic efforts we made may have been effective in dissuading Iraq from using chemical weapons," she said.

She noted that the United States on two occasions had publicized Iranian allegations that Iraq was using chemical chemicals — in a 1983 human rights report on Iraq and in a February 1984 report to the United Nations secretary general in a section on chemical weapons use in 1983.

Clinic builds confidence

Amputees ski with the help of outriggers — armband crutches that have a shortened ski tip on the end. Skiers lean on the outriggers for balance and control while going down hill.

One determined participant, Hugh Palmer of West Columbia, S.C., drove 15 hours to get on skis for the first time. Palmer, 28, had his left leg amputated below the knee 11 years ago when he fell on a saw in a lumber mill.

"It's the best feeling I've had since I lost my leg. It's the most fun," said Palmer, a parachutist, biker, weightlifter and water skier.

"Skiing enables an amputee to express himself in a different way. I'm hooked on it," he added. "When you get to the bottom of the hill, you look back and yell for the next person to make it. Everyone wants to see the others win. We push each other."

Another first-time skier was Michael Torri, 28, of Horsham, Pa., who has both legs amputated above the knee because of a birth defect. Torri adapted the plastic legs he had made for scuba diving to enable him to stand on skis.

"I do what I want to do, even though I may have to do it a little differently. It's just a little inconvenience," said Torri, an electrical engineer and father of a 15-month-old son. "I'm not handicapped. The rest of the world is. I don't know what handicapped means."

The sport is great therapy, according to Dave Fowler, 34, a ski instructor at Jack Frost and director of the national handicapped ski program. Fowler lost a leg after stepping on a land mine in Vietnam.

"The confidence they get from skiing carries over to everything else they do. Once they learn to ski, they start thinking about other things they can do," Fowler said.

Young heart, liver recipient recovering, wants to go home

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The 6-year-old recipient of the world's first simultaneous heart and liver transplant said tearfully she wants to go home to her sister and pet rabbit, but doctors said she has "a lot of ground yet to cover."

However the physicians at Children's Hospital said Wednesday that the little girl is recovering better than expected.

But Stormie Jones, coughing and crying in her wheelchair during her first meeting with reporters since her transplant operation Feb. 14, seemed to want nothing of the upbeat reports.

"Everything is awful," she said, sobbing that she wanted to go home to Cumby, Texas.

Dwarfed by cameras and microphones, Stormie quietly answered questions at the news conference as she clutched her pink dress and whispered love for her 9-year-old sister, Misty.

"It's very early to say for certain what her prognosis is, but we're very pleased," said her pediatrician, Dr. Basil Zitelli. "We feel she will be able to live a normal life. It's possible she could be in first grade in September. But we have a lot of ground yet to cover."

Zitelli said the risk of organ rejection is constant and that Stormie will be monitored carefully for the rest of her life.

"But, the risk seems to be getting less," he said. "It may be feasible for her to return to Texas and come back to Pittsburgh for checkups."

Stormie has been transferred from the hospital's intensive-care unit to a regular room, where nurse Sally Faulkner said she has made many friends.

Stormie Jones

But as Stormie emerged into the bright lights and clicking cameras, the blond, brown-eyed girl seemed frail and withdrawn, unaware of why reporters hung onto her every word.

Her mother, Lois, said Stormie doesn't fully understand that her heart and liver came from Katie Rebstock, 4, of Macedon, N.Y., who died in an auto accident one day before Stormie's operation.

As she smoothed Stormie's hair and patted her cheek, Mrs. Jones urged her daughter to smile.

"You don't want everyone to see you crying," she said gently.

But when Stormie tried to muster a grin, the tears began streaming down her face and she lifted her arms to her head to hide from the cameras.

Stormie has received hundreds of cards and letters from people as far away as Australia, Mrs. Jones said. "She even got Cabbage Patch dolls in the mail."

The girl was born with a rare disease that increased her blood cholesterol to dangerous levels, damaging both her heart and liver, Zitelli said. She would have died within a year without the transplant, according to her doctors.

The 16-hour operation has since restored her blood cholesterol to normal levels.

Zitelli said the wart-like bumps on her hands and in the creases of her joints — cholesterol deposits symptomatic of her illness — are slowly disappearing.

The pediatrician said he could not respond to questions about similar surgery for others suffering from the same disease. He said doctors will closely follow Stormie's progress to learn if the surgery will be repeated.

Mrs. Jones, however, said her daughter is no different from others suffering from the illness. Stormie's strength to endure the operation, she said, "comes from the Man upstairs."

Official testifies in derailment probe

MARSHALL (AP) — An Amtrak passenger train that derailed, killing four people and injuring 69 others, would probably not have gone off the tracks if the rail steel had been in good condition, a Missouri Pacific official says.

C.D. Barton, chief track engineer for Missouri Pacific, testified Wednesday in the second and last day of a probe by the National Transportation Safety Board, which is investigating the Nov. 12 derailment north of Marshall.

Barton said the tracks were in good condition and the rail would not have shattered unless it was defective. He placed the blame on the manufacturer, Krupp Stahl, a German company.

"In my opinion, the support of the rail and track was such that unless there had been something in the rail with a problem, it would not have broken," Barton said. "Or at least if it did break, that it would not have this shattering effect that we have."

Witnesses testified the rail exploded into at least 50 pieces and possibly more than 100. The rail was replaced about two hours before the passenger train passed over it.

Dog's owner recounts jarring situation

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — They say curiosity killed the cat, but it was an appetite for salad dressing that nearly did in a Carlsbad pooch — and it took the dogged efforts of several pup's best friends to bring a happy ending to a jarring situation.

It all started when Tharon Keyer arrived home from work recently to be greeted by "this horrible moaning, crying and yelping" from the cupboard.

There she found her 8-week-old German shepherd, Sierra, wearing a glass jar like a space helmet. Her head had become stuck after trying to lap up salad dressing in the nearly empty jar.

"After I had a laugh for about five minutes, I began to realize it wasn't so funny," because the dog's head was stuck tight.

Mrs. Keyer was afraid the dog could be severely cut if the glass were broken, but she also could see by Sierra's panting that she was running out of air — and time. So she grabbed the pup-under-glass, ran to her car and drove toward the Carlsbad Fire Department.

Then she spotted a fire truck and waved it down.

"The fireman was beside himself" — first with laughter, then with concern — she said.

He told her to put puppy and jar on the sidewalk, pulled out his pocket knife and began cautiously tap-tap-tapping to coax the glass off its furry captive.

At last Mrs. Keyer noticed a glass company around the corner, grabbed Sierra and dashed off.

Mauro Ortiz, a professional glass-scutter, said everyone in the store was startled when the woman burst through the door with the dog.

But he acted quickly, using his tools to cut the bottom out of the jar so Sierra could breathe.

Then off came the jar and out came a puppy that "took a big gasp of air," Mrs. Keyer said. "The first thing she wanted was a drink of water" from the store's drinking fountain.

Professor on final leg of voyage

PITMAN, N.J. (AP) — Determined to prove he can sail around the world without a compass, a retired geography professor is on the final leg of a stormy ocean voyage and should be home by May, his wife says.

"I sure am looking forward to him coming home," said Blanche Creamer, 63. She said farewell to her 68-year-old husband, Marvin, on Dec. 15, 1982, when he took the 45-foot steel-hulled Globe Star down the Delaware River to begin a 31,000-mile adventure.

Mrs. Creamer said Wednesday her husband was approaching southern Brazil and will end his 17-month trip on schedule.

"He's doing well, but not spectacular," said Mrs. Creamer, adding her husband and his crew of three have been battling strong winds on their voyage north along the coast of South America.

Creamer, who formerly taught at Glassboro State College in New Jersey, set out to prove to modern scholars that it is possible to sail around the world with almost pinpoint accuracy by using the stars and common sense.

Using fewer navigational aids than 10th-century Vikings, Creamer's voyage has taken him to Africa, New Zealand, Australia and the Falkland Islands.

He has had several brushes with disaster along the way, Mrs. Creamer said. Storms twice blew over the Globe Star near Tasmania, causing the vessel to take on water.

"The whole boat was knocked over," said Mrs. Creamer. She added that the Globe Star was designed to right itself, and did so.

While approaching the southern tip of South America, the boat's tiller broke, leaving Creamer without steering.

He left the Falklands for home Feb. 9, she said.

Before he began his trip, Creamer sealed a compass, sextant and radio equipment into a duffel bag on board in case of emergency. But he said the idea was not to use any of those items. If all goes well, the bag will be unsealed during ceremonies upon his return.

For the trip home, Dr. Edgar Gibson, 69, who was with Creamer when he crossed the Atlantic Ocean without navigational aids in 1960, is part of the crew that joined Creamer in the Falklands.

Actress' tip leads to teen-ager, missing toddler

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — The alert wife of comedian Dom DeLuise spotted a distinctive license plate and helped find a missing 3-year-old girl and the teen-age baby sitter accused of abducting her in a stolen car, police said.

The father of 16-year-old baby sitter Julie Marie Smith had speculated she fled to avoid testifying against a man accused of trying to rape her and force her into prostitution.

Carissa Eichman, who vanished Sunday from her suburban Oildale home, was unharmed when she was returned to her parents Wednesday.

Miss Smith was booked into juvenile hall in Kern County for investigation of kidnapping and grand theft for taking the Eichmans' car without permission, chief probation officer T. Glen Brown said.

Actress Carol DeLuise said she spotted a car with the license plate "EICHMAN" on Interstate 405 while taking her dog to be groomed Wednesday.

Mrs. DeLuise, who had read news accounts of the disappearance, said she pulled up on the driver's side and "I could see that it was a young girl, pretty much like the picture" in a newspaper.

With the tip from Mrs. DeLuise and the aid of a helicopter, officers from the California Highway Patrol officers located and stopped the car on Interstate 5 near Gorman, about 55 miles north of Los Angeles, said Lt. Ed Hocking of the Los Angeles County police.

Professor's killer set for parole

VACAVILLE, Calif. (AP) — An ex-graduate student being paroled after 5½ years in prison for killing his math professor will live in a southern California county, authorities said, as some residents voiced outrage at the state-ordered move.

Theodore Streleski, 47, who was to be freed today, said two months ago he was "absolutely noncommittal" about not returning to Stanford University to kill again.

"We are releasing him in as routine a fashion as possible," said Walt Lew, a spokesman at the California Medical Center in Vacaville.

"He'll have $200, and he will report to the parole agents who will take him down south," where he will live in an undisclosed "residential facility" and look for work, Lew said.

Streleski, an electrical engineer who spent 19 years pursuing a doctorate in mathematics, was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to eight years in prison for the 1978 beating death of Karel deLeeuw. The professor was attacked in his office and bludgeoned with a 2-pound hammer.

Streleski's parole release follows a month-long psychiatric examination by prison doctors at the Vacaville facility in central California.

Two parole officers were to take him to Orange County, where the state Corrections Department has ordered him to live.

Streleski had been scheduled for parole to San Francisco, about 35 miles north of the university.

That was changed, however, after he told reporters in January, "I am absolutely noncommittal on whether I will go back to Stanford and kill again."

Officials of the City of Orange say they oppose the release but are helpless to do anything about the move, which follows by a few months the release to Los Angeles of former San Francisco supervisor Dan White. White was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the slayings of San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk.

"We made our concerns known, but if Los Angeles couldn't do anything about Dan White, there's not much we can do about this," said Orange City Manager J. William Little.

City Hall received calls from at least a dozen residents more upset with the system than with their own safety, Little said.

Streleski said he killed deLeeuw in part because he wanted to make a "statement" about the way Stanford treats its graduate students. He also said he was angered by remarks made about his shoes.

THE BETTER HALF

"If romance makes the world go around, then Stanley's behavior may have a profound effect on our weather!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, March 9, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Amerigo Vespucci, the Italian navigator for whom the Americas were named, was born on this date. Also sharing your birthday: the State Department's James Buckley, mystery writer Mickey Spillane, actor Carl Betz, Joyce Van Patten, veteran Yankee Bert Campanaris and California Angels lefty John Curtis. Past disappointments will be forgotten in the face of wonderful new developments. A romance peaks in April or May. Love with a Virgo will be long-lasting. Do not let him or her slip away. A well-thought-out presentation lands an important client or contract. Devote more thought to financial planning.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Styles change. An old approach or attitude no longer works. Build a new relationship with great care. Someone who is suffering confides in you. Be supportive without becoming too deeply involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your hard work comes to the attention of someone influential. You may be thinking about changing jobs. Do not act too hastily. Those who love you respect your need for privacy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be versatile and you will win support for a pet project. See what your rivals are up to before showing your hand.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A conflict could arise between work and family obligations. Do not expect your associates to be understanding. Share your feelings with loved one. Keep expenses down by performing more services for yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Answers to important questions will be found in unusual situations or surroundings. Rely heavily on your intuition. Postpone making a major investment until you can obtain expert advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A friend or former associate will be happy to help you launch a pet project. Listen to suggestions from those with greater experience. You make a new friend this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A phone call makes you think twice about announcing a commitment or decision. Travel is best postponed. A close friend could be a source of important inside information. Romance looks fulfilling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be careful not to underestimate someone. Your ability to think fast when under pressure could mean a nice bonus. Home life becomes happier when you pay more attention to loved ones' needs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone could let you down. Do not judge too harshly. There could be a very good explanation. A candid discussion with mate leads to improved communication. Emphasize the need to pull together.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A marriage undergoes a change. You may want to move to another city to explore new employment opportunities. Mate or partner makes some excellent suggestions. Follow up on them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are fond of a new acquaintance but know that a romance is unlikely to last. Get better organized at work. A sense of humor helps you deal with any temporary delays.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A phone call reassures someone new that you want to do the right thing. Financial pressures ease if you cut spending. Entertaining at home need not be expensive.

Comic plays self on ABC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Paul Rodriguez struts like a young tough across the nightclub stage, a red bandana tied around his head.

"I'm looking forward to the Olympics coming to L.A.," he sneers. "I've never stabbed a Russian."

"Some people say to me, 'You're selling your race down the river,'" he tells the still giggling crowd at the Comedy Store. "I just want to buy the river. Then we'll discuss it."

Rodriguez may not be ready to buy the river yet, but he has a paddle — a starring role in new television situation comedy, "a.k.a. PABLO" — the first series from "All in the Family" producer Norman Lear in six years.

The first of six episodes during this second-season trial period was broadcast on ABC Tuesday night.

"a.k.a. PABLO" is about a young Mexican-American comic struggling against disapproval from his parents and, sometimes, his public.

Rodriguez said he was discovered by Lear's partner, Jerry Perenchio, who saw him on an early morning talk show fielding criticism from members of the Mexican-American community who took exception to his nightclub act.

The next day, he said, Lear offered him a part in a series about a Cuban family. Rodriguez said he turned it down because he is Mexican, not Cuban. Later, he said, Lear offered him the revamped, almost biographical role.

In the first episode, Rodriguez' television character, Pablo Rivera, is signed to do a situation comedy for ABC.

Rodriguez was born in Mazatlan, Mexico. His family moved to Los Angeles when he was a child. He said the humor was a response to his fear of the gangs in his neighborhood.

Rodriguez was about the same age as Freddie Prinze when the young Puerto Rican comic took his own life in 1977 at the height of the popularity of his series, "Chico and the Man."

Rodriguez said he was sad, then angry. "How dare he do this? He had everything, and he threw it all away.

"But now, Paul Rodriguez is much more compassionate to Freddie."

At 28, he says, "I'm more mature, older. I know where I came from and that gives me a pretty good idea of where I'm gonna go."

That direction, he hopes, will include movies, because "when you're on television, you're a celebrity, but when you're in the movies, you're a star.

"I guess I'm their Mexican comic. Someday I hope to be just a funny guy who happens to be Mexican."

To Trump Coup Tommy, it seemed that 1984 was the year of the bad trump break. It was nearing the end of the first quarter and he was still a winner — the last time that had happened was in the early 1960s. Readers will recall that Tommy performs brilliantly on those hands where the average player would go down because of a poor trump division. On run of the mill hands Tommy usually finds a way to get to a hopeless contract or to bungle the play.

Tommy could hardly believe his good fortune when he picked up this South hand. It was music to his ears when his partner first opened the bidding and then later raised his suit. Tommy checked on aces and settled in the small slam.

West led a diamond. East rose with the ace and Tommy made his first fine play when he jettisoned his queen under the ace to make sure of an extra entry to dummy. He won the diamond return in hand and a lesser mortal might have led a trump to the ace and a trump back to the king — and so have ended up down one.

Not Tommy. He cashed the king of spades and ace of clubs, then crossed to the ace of spades. When West showed out Tommy became a giant at the table. He discarded a heart on the king of clubs, ruffed a club, crossed back to the board with the jack of diamonds and ruffed another club. These plays had reduced his trumps to the same length as East's.

Tommy cashed the king of hearts and entered dummy with a heart to the ace. All hands were now down to two cards, and the lead was on the table. Declarer led a heart and, whether East ruffed high or low, he could not score a trump trick, for Tommy would overruff and take the last trick with his remaining trump.

Smart 'jocks'

In a number of old novels and movies, the high school football hero or basketball star typically is depicted as a clean-cut individual who, off the gridiron or court, excels in his studies, is a leader in organizations for youths and enjoys the company of the head cheerleader. He's a winner and a model for others his age.

Unfortunately that stereotype doesn't always exist in real life. More and more information about the negative aspects of both high school and collegiate sports has come to light in recent years, tarnishing the sports spotlight.

The stories of the athlete who holds a college degree and played "pro" ball but who can't read or the high school coach who has a winning team but no scholars are familiar to most of us. Some may be exceptions to the rule, but more often than not they're closer to accurate.

This week the Reporter-Telegram's sports department has given a revealing look at the other side of the sports horror stories: The "jocks" who double as scholars. It has been a refreshing look, particularly in light of all the negative publicity regarding high school and college athletics.

That publicity has included recent recommendations by the advisory committee on public education headed by Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot and others designed to de-emphasize high school athletics.

Any number of schools have taken steps to toughen eligibility requirements. One of the most recent is Temple University in Philadelphia which now requires basketball players to attend study hall at least once a week in order to play. That rule is the result of local and national publicity over the poor academic progress of some student athletes.

In the Texas situation, some of the recommendations by Perot's panel are exceedingly controversial for a state where high school football is king and those who question its value risk ridicule.

While we haven't always agreed with everything the Perot panel has recommended on athletics, it hasn't been unwise to draw public attention to the high school sports arena. because even though the high schools in Midland and most other communities around the state have their share of "jocks" who are scholars, too frequently that isn't the case.

Of course a lot of these scholarly athletes go on to fine college careers and eventually enter professions other than athletics. For some who aren't inclined to study, of course, professional sports may offer the best opportunity for immediate employment. But what happens when the pro teams are no longer interested in the poorly educated athletes? When they're a little too old or a little too slow to be effective on the field or the court? Often that's when the lack of an education becomes a tragedy.

There is, of course, a right way and a wrong way to handle advancement of students who obviously cannot make the grade. The wrong way is to destroy academic improvement as a means of eligibility for athletics. The right way is to keep athletics in its proper perspective in high school.

Athletics was never intended to be an end within itself. At the high school level, sports are designed to teach values such as teamwork and loyalty, to instill in students school spirit and the desire to win and lose in the correct way.

Neither was high school athletics ever intended to be more important than the overall education public school was designed to provide. College athletics isn't supposed to be merely a stepping stone to the pros with no academic development. When sports is elevated to that point, educational quality suffers and so do the athletes the schools are sending on to the difficult challenges of college and adult life beyond.

That isn't fair to the athletes or to society and that's what H. Ross Perot and other critics are saying.

What society needs is more athletes like those described in this week's series, not less.

Another View:

Proposal to junk

President Reagan has backed away from a proposal to plug national security leaks by means that were more likely to intimidate civil servants than to enhance security. But the retreat seems inspired less by concern for openness than by hopes that a reluctant Congress will accept a softened version of the plan. Congress should not be swayed.

In a directive last March, Mr. Reagan proposed two new tactics to safeguard government secrets: The first would impose lifetime censorship on federal employees with access to classified information, requiring them even after leaving office to submit anything they write for prepublication government review. The second would force any employee suspected of leaking secrets to take a lie detector test; those who refused could be fired.

The directive's supposed purpose was to protect national security. But lawmakers who studied it found little logic in the plan. They realized that the order would cover fiction, satire and opinion articles as well as secrets. And they asked what harm the plan was intended to prevent — something the administration has been unable to explain.

Congress recognized the president's directive to be censorship in security's clothing. By forcing thousands of past and present federal employees to seek permission before speaking out, the plan would grant considerable power to a sitting administration to determine what citizens can read and hear. Such a system would subvert the open government essential to democracy.

Alarmed, Congress voted last fall to suspend the plan while reviewing its constitutional implications. Now the president has decided to forgo a losing battle in favor of negotiation. A reasonable opening — and concluding — congressional negotiating position would be: Junk the March proposal entirely.

ART BUCHWALD

Monument hides secret of deficits

I climbed to the top of the Washington Monument the other morning to speak to the Great Economic Oracle. I placed a perfumed bowl of jellybeans at his feet.

The Master put one in his mouth. "They are very tasty."

"I grew them myself," I told him as I knelt on the dirt floor.

Art Buchwald

"What brings you all this distance, my son?" he asked.

"I am confused," I told him. "I came to find the secret of budget deficits."

The Master stroked his bald head. "There is no secret to budget deficits. If one spends more than one earns then one must borrow what one owes."

"I know that. But the question I came to ask is what does one do about a deficit that is so large that all the wise men of the land cannot agree how to cut it?"

"When the highest type of men see deficits they recoil at them. When the average type of men see deficits they half believe them. When the lowest type of men see deficits they laugh heartily at them."

"But how does one get the lowest type of men to become the highest?"

"It can't be done during an election year," the Master said, popping another jellybean into his mouth.

"Why not, oh wise one?"

"Because those who are responsible for the deficits will not admit they are bad, and those who take no responsibility need them to attack those who made them. It is written in the 'Book of Politics' that in an election year one talks about deficits, but one does not do anything about them."

"Why is that, Master?"

"Because to do something about deficits is to cause pain. And if one wants to rule one must promise not to cause anyone pain."

"If one does not do anything about deficits will there not be greater pain later on?" I asked.

"A wise ruler never mentions future pain when his throne is at stake."

"How long can one live with deficits before they cause pain?"

"Depending on the size of them, one year, maybe two, perhaps forever."

"Doesn't the ruler know that?"

"Yes, he does. But true words are not beautiful. And beautiful words are not true. Ruling a big country is like cooking a small fish."

"What does that mean?"

"I have no idea. But I like the sound of it."

"Master, can we get back to deficits? There are those who say in order to reduce them one must raise taxes and cut back on military spending. There are others who say one must cut out domestic spending and do nothing more to tax the people. Who is right?"

"It is this simplicity that makes the uneducated more effective than the educated when addressing popular audiences during an election year. You didn't bring enough licorice jellybeans."

"I'm sorry, Master. So it is your opinion that nothing can be done about deficits when a country is contesting for a new ruler?"

"Nothing of substance. One must think of the budget as a lovely river. The deficits are like the snow in the mountains that no one sees. Once spring comes, the snow melts and becomes a torrent of water and the river becomes a flood washing away everything that man has built, and there is nothing left but a depression in the land."

"You sound like Martin Feldsteen," I said.

"It's Feldstein, not Feldsteen," the Master said angrily. "And don't you forget it."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Call starts AID office 'cooking'

WASHINGTON — It's always a source of satisfaction when one of my exposes about waste and fraud in a government contract causes the bureaucrats responsible to mend their ways.

Jack Anderson

Now I've learned that a simple inquiry from my office was enough to cause the Agency for International Development to start cleaning up a messy situation in an expensive project.

The project — building several modern bakeries in Egypt — was planned in 1977, when bread riots shook the Egyptian government. The bakeries would assure Egypt of a plentiful supply of bread and eliminate the need for the costly subsidies that are straining the government's resources.

After more than five years and the expenditure of some $20 million, the bakeries are still not in full production. The chief beneficiary of the AID project so far has been the American Export Group, a Washington-based contractor AID hired to build the bakeries.

Recent cable traffic between the State Department and the AID mission in Cairo shows that the bureaucrats are finally worried about the American Export Group's costly handling of the contract — if only because of what one cable called "the inevitable publicity." They're afraid AEG's overpricing of spare parts will cause AID the kind of embarrassment the Pentagon has suffered because of the widespread publicity over its outrageous spare parts overcharges.

"You are probably aware of the recent domestic political flap over DOD (Defense Department) procurement of spare parts and tools at exorbitant prices," AID headquarters cabled the mission in Cairo. The cable added:

"We were telephoned by Jack Anderson's office and, from the specificity of the questions asked, must assume that they either have or have been read (a cable) which raised questions as to quantities, prices and the apparent inclusion of two entire bakery lines disguised as spare parts."

The cable goes on to complain about the contractor's apparent failure to provide "clear and verifiable prices" for its spare parts, and accuses the company of marking up the prices it pays the manufacturers for the parts, thus padding the bill AID finally gets.

"There has been some chatter in cables about a 45 percent reduction," AID's cable continued. "We consider this to be meaningless, because a 45 percent reduction on a price which already contains a 300 percent markup, still leaves a cost which (we) find unacceptable."

Actually, 300 percent apparently was a modest markup for the American Export Group. An internal AID memo seen by my associate Lucette Lagnado indicates that AEG charged $25,200 for panel boards that cost the company a little over $2,000. "The AEG shipment of 39 panel boards were overpriced by $23,641 per unit, or a total maximum overpricing of $922,032.93," the memo notes, and suggests that "a bill for collection may be appropriate in this particular situation."

Another memo states: "We find diesel generator parts to be excessively overpriced, as are injectors, voltage regulators, radiator caps, radiator hose clamps and exhaust clamps."

In a written response to my inquiry about the overcharges, an AEG official said it is "utter nonsense to highlight just one item out of a complete system." What is relevant, the statement said, is the total price for the entire system — and AEG's bid was $1 million lower than the closest competitors.

Footnote: There's a glimmer of hope that AID has belatedly come to the conclusion that it must come clean about the Egyptian bakeries contract. The same cable that worried about my telephone call warned that "we can only protect the agency from criticism if all of the cards are dealt face up."

One year ago: President Reagan denounced Soviet Communism as "the focus of evil in the modern world," and rejected as "a very dangerous fraud" calls for a nuclear freeze without additional Soviet arms reductions.

Police report Beirut's lowest overnight casualty figure since last summer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Police said today that Beirut had its most peaceful night in seven months, with only three people injured in scattered fighting, as rival militias appeared to be honoring to a cease-fire.

The casualties occurred as Christian and Moslem militiamen traded occasional volleys of rocket-propelled grenades and gunfire across the "green line" between Beirut's Moslem west and Christian east. Police said it was the lowest overnight casualty figure since last summer.

Fighting has significantly decreased in Beirut since President Amin Gemayel on Monday acceded to Syrian and rebel demands and scrapped the troop withdrawal accord signed by Lebanon and Israel last May 17.

Two Beirut newspapers claimed today that Israel plans a surprise pullback of its troops in southern Lebanon in order to sabotage reconciliation talks involving factional leaders of Lebanon's civil war.

Both Al-Sharq and the Daily Star said a pullback would ignite a new round of civil war.

The pro-Syrian Al-Sharq said the pullback would be Israel's retaliation for Gemayel's cancellation of the troop withdrawal pact.

Liberal politician ambushed in hotel

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

Kiichi Miyazawa

TOKYO, March 8 (Thursday) — Kiichi Miyazawa, 64, widely regarded as the most likely successor to Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, was wounded in the head and arm Thursday by an assailant who had lured him to a hotel room on the pretext of meeting one of Japan's religious leaders.

The assailant, waiting in a guest room of the New Otani Hotel, slashed Miyazawa's forehead with a ashtray that was in the room and hit him on the arm and in the side of the head.

The attacker then tried to commit suicide by slashing his own neck and both wrists with a pocket knife before hotel employees subdued him, police said.

The suspect, who was identified as Hirosa Higashiyama, 54, of Sapporo, was arrested and taken to a police hospital.

Dr. Yojiro Seki of Toranomon Hospital, where Miyazawa was taken after the attack, described the politician's injuries as minor.

Miyazawa will remain hospitalized for a week to 10 days for examination, the doctor added.

The assailant, who was identified through a driver's license he was carrying, had no known ties with political organizations or gangs but reportedly once been convicted for intimidation.

Under interrogation, he told police he had been asked to attack Miyazawa by a man whom he refused to identify, police said.

Miyazawa, accompanied by a secretary, had gone to a guest room at the New Otani Hotel at 8:55 a.m. Thursday after receiving a call Wednesday afternoon from a man who said that Nikkyo Niwano, chairman of the Rissho Kosei-Kai, a large Buddhist laymen's association, wanted to meet him at 9 a.m.

Government not funding Juarez school

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — The Mexican government has reneged on a promise to provide funding for an often financially troubled agriculture college in this border city, according to students, who claim their money is going to a smaller, less qualified school.

Students aired their allegations Wednesday, one day after they had an altercation with the director of the smaller agriculture school over which facility should be federally funded.

A student leader, Alfredo Aguirre, 25, charged that the federal government had budgeted 150 million pesos for the Hermanos Escobar agriculture college this year. But to date, no money has arrived, he said.

The government of Chihuahua state has loaned the school 14 million pesos to help keep it afloat financially, but Aguirre said that money is not sufficient.

He said students are growing sorghum and selling it just to be able to afford toilet paper for the southeastern Juarez school.

A group of about 600 students on Tuesday went to the director of a smaller Juarez agriculture school known as "escuelita," or "little school," to obtain information on how much money the government is providing it, Aguirre said.

A "short scuffle" broke out when the director, Estrado Meraz, refused to provide the information, Aguirre said. Meraz also is the federal agriculture department's local representiative in Juarez.

A jar of bottled water was knocked to the floor during the scuffle and Meraz and some students fell and were cut by broken glass, Aguirre said.

Students from the Hermanos Escobar college, which has an enrollment of about 1,500, contend the federal government is providing more funds for the escuelita than for their school. They say the policy is unfair because the Hermanos Escobar college is the only valid agriculture school in Juarez.

The escuelita, a spin-off of the Hermanos Escobar college, was formed about two years ago after similar financial problems hit the larger school.

Aguirre said three students, two teachers and the student-supported director of Hermanos Escobar are to discuss the alleged lack of funding Monday with Ignacio Mercado Flores, a subsecretary of the federal agriculture department.

Mercado Flores could not be reached for comment Wednesday. His secretary said he was not in his office.

Aguirre said Meraz has filed a complaint against some of the students allegedly involved in Tuesday's scuffle. He added that the students planned a counter-complaint, alleging that escuelita students slashed the vehicle tires of some of the directors of Hermanos Escobar after Tuesday's altercation.

The college, where annual tuition is $20 for those who can afford it and nothing for those who cannot pay, has had financial troubles for several years.

In the spring of 1982, students held 15 million insects and the school director hostage for five days in an attempt to get more money for the institution.

Aguirre said students hope the federal government will provide the school's funding after Monday's meeting. But, he said, "if the federal government doesn't respond, the students will take action."

Students end school takeover

MIETNO, Poland (AP) — More than 400 teen-age students ended their takeover of an agricultural school under threat of a police assault and gathered today in a nearby church, a local priest said.

Th students, who had been angered by the removal of Christian crosses from their school, left the building late Wednesday night when authorities threatened an assault by the feared "Zomo" motorize riot police, said the priest, who declined to be identified.

He did not say how many of the police had been concentrated near the school, but a convoy of three police trucks and three jeeps was seen approaching the village Wednesday night.

Some 3,000 students from the Stanislaw Stazik agricultural school and other local schools gathered overnight and in the morning at the Transfiguration Church in the nearby town of Garwolin, a second priest said.

The Stazik students had occupied their school Wednesday morning after a three-month dispute over the crosses, which Communist authorities removed from the walls of the school located 40 miles south of Warsaw.

The provost of the church in Garwolin, the Rev. Henryk Bujnik, said the crosses had been in the Stazik school since it was built in the 1920s. The school's 600 students study meat production.

The students attempted to march from the school to the church after the threatened takeover, the second priest said, but were blocked by the helmeted riot police.

The students, aged 15 to 20, slipped through fields and backroads to Garwolin, he said.

There were no reports of injuries or arrests in the incident, the most significant student unrest since Communist authorities declared martial law and suspended the outlawed Solidarity labor federation in December 1981.

Rebels, Bulldogs facing strong competition

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Midland Lee and Midland High will get a chance to test their baseball skills and gain valuable playing time this weekend when they co-host the 1984 Tournament of Champions at Cubs Stadium.

Two of the teams coming into town for the tournament have had highly successful programs the past few years: Lubbock Monterey and Dallas Thomas Jefferson.

The Monterey Plainsmen are the TofC defending champions and have an impressive record of 680-165 under 24-year coach Bobby Moegle. In 1981 they were the Texas 5A state champions and last year went on to win the District 3-5A title. In the playoffs Monterey eliminated Lee in a best-of-three bi-district series before being knocked off by El Paso Burgess in regionals.

The Thomas Jefferson Patriots have long been one of the best teams in the Dallas area. In 1977-82, they won both their district and city championships and made it to the state quarterfinals in 1980-82. Last year they finished second in their district and were eliminated in bi-district by Plano.

Amarillo Tascosa is the third team coming into town for the tournament. In past years the Rebels have been competitive, finishing third in the TofC in both '81 and '82. In 1981 they won the Amarillo City Tournament.

THOMAS JEFFERSON and Monterey open the tournament at 10 a.m. Friday and each team features a strong returning lineup from last year's teams.

"We have six starters back," said Moegle. "Our players have good talent and a desire to win. Kevin Short was a 10 game winner last year but we don't have a proven No. 2 pitcher. Mike Eckles and Todd Hunt are the best prospects for No. 2 pitcher.

Other players back for the Plainsmen are Jimmy Simpson, catcher; Scott Smith, shortstop, Curtis Hogan, left field and Phil Edwards, designated hitter.

Patriot manager Gerald Turner is in his 14th year at Thomas Jefferson and has a record of 307-141.

Turner tabs pitching and six returning starters as his team's strong points.

On the mound, the Patriots have Rodney Jinks providing the experience and two young players as back up: Sophomore left-hander Mike Moserey and right-handed freshman Morris Moss.

MIDLAND LEE will face the winner of the Monterey-Thomas Jefferson game at 3 p.m.

The Rebels have several players back from last year's District 4-5A runner-up team. Sergio Ochoa returns behind the plate and there are three lettermen back in the outfield, Steve Woodlee, Dennis Matta and Robb Walker.

"We should have a very good hitting ball club," said Johnson, "but our weakness is a lack of pitching depth with no proven No. 2 pitcher.

"Bryan Willis should be our No. 1 pitcher. Also, our infield is inexperienced but has good ability. We're very unsettled at first and third but I feel we have good potential with more than adequate experience to build around."

MIDLAND HIGH and Amarillo Tascosa will meet in the second game of the tournament at 12:30 p.m. Neither team had a sparkling season last year. As Bulldog manager Tim Whalen put it, "we started off slow and then tapered off." But both teams are optimistic this season.

Of the five teams, Tascosa is probably the one with the least amount of practice time because of the unpredictable weather in the Panhandle.

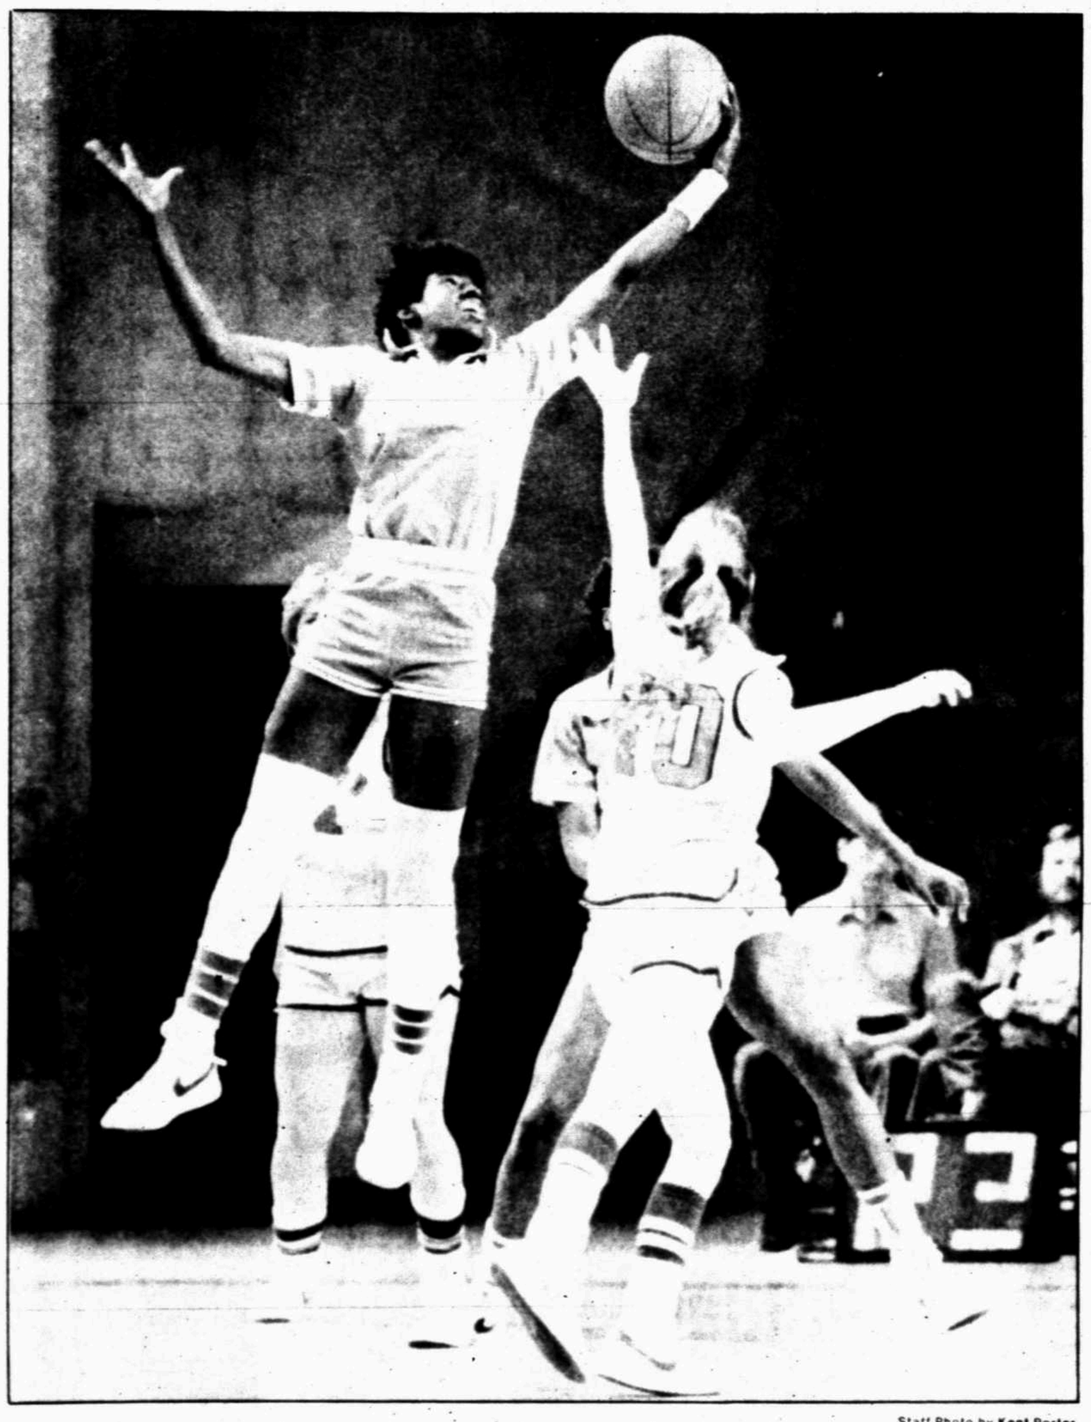

"Tascoas is going to be a good team if they've had a chance to get out," said Whalen. "I remember one year Stan Moore (Amarillo manager) said, 'let's go play in the gym where we have a chance. They have a hard time getting people in shape."

The Bulldogs have finished second in the Tournament of Champions the past two years and would like to shed the brides maid image. They have eight returning lettermen: Doug Daehling, pitcher/shortstop; Mike Timlin, pitcher/outfield; Steve Wootan, pitcher/infield; Jeff Magness, catcher; Chris Herbert, infield; Keith Clay, outfield; Mike Boswell, first and Darren Thorpe, infield.

"Our strengths are more pitching than last year and our infield has depth at every position," said Whalen. "Offensivey we won't score as many runs as last year but we should play better defense."

And, at Amarillo, Moore said, "Our major strength is experience. We return six starters and all pitchers. We should have a good hitting and fielding club. Our major weakness is consistency in pitching. If we can evelop consistent pitchng before district play starts, we will be competitive."

Odessa, McLennan use same scripts to gain finals

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Odessa College and McLennan Community College used the same scripts to advance to tonight's Region V Junior College Women's finals, running up imposing early leads and then choking off determined comebacks in the late stages of play.

OC dispatched Western Conference foe Howard College 85-74, after leading 36-11 at one point in the first half, while McLennan employed a devastating press to build up a 16-point margin and then parried Western Texas' late comeback for an 83-76 win at the Langford Chaparral Center Wednesday night.

The women settle their championship at 7 p.m. while the eight-team Region V men's tournament embarks on a three-day run with games at noon (Ranger JC-Amarillo College), 2 (McLennan-Western Texas College) and 5 p.m. (Odessa College- Texas State Technical Insitute) and at 9 p.m. (Howard College-Grayson).

Howard and McLennan, champions of the Western and Northern conferences, respectively, are the top seeds.

MCLENNAN, in the finals for the second time in three years, trailed 20-14 just passed the midway point of the first half when McLennan's baseline press began to take its toll. The Highlassies from Waco ran off streaks of 11 and 12 points to forge in front 45-28, seven baskets coming on forced turnovers or infractions.

"We wanted to get Western Texas running," said Coach Charlotte Mason, "and the press accomplished that. But with the 30-second clock, I knew the game was a long way from over."

After losing to Clarendon in the first round last year and Howard in the finals two years, Mason is anxious for vindication. "We can play with these teams out here," she said defiantly," only she wasn't sure before the Howard-OC game which one she wanted to meet in the final. Well, she wanted to meet both.

"Odessa beat us by three points in the Big Spring tournament and Howard beat us in the Region finals two years ago."

"Whichever it is," she assured, "It will take guts and mental toughness to win it."

Six-one Vicki Gentry of College Station led McLennan with 23 points, 15 coming in the last half when WTC battled back to trail 67-64 with 7:22 left. WTC was behind 62-49 with 12:55 left in the game.

Rita Martin, who deserved much of the credit for the success of the press, scored 18 points.

SIX-TWO Clara Campbell scored 22 points to lead Western and it was the press that took the Dallas lass out of the game. WTC enjoyed good success in lobbing the ball inside to Campbell for the easy basket. The press kept the Dusters from getting over midcourt, or even in bounds. Late in the first half, WTC looked like a thoroughly frustrated and demoralized team.

"I've got a lot of respect for the WTC girls and Coach Joe Cushing," said Mason, a Wayland Baptist College product in her fifth year at McLennan. "They never gave up and they made a remarkable comeback."

OC Coach Ken Hefner says he expects to see some of the McLennan press tonight. "They used it against us at Big Spring in the Howard tournament. It was very effective the first half and then in the second we got some easy baskets off it."

OC, once the nation's No. 1 ranked team and now No. 4, had lost to Howard at Big Spring in the final Western Conference game of the season, but there really wasn't any doubt about this one. After trailing 36-11, the mere fact that they were able to trim the difference to 67-62 with 6:39 left as accomplishment enough.

"AT BIG Spring, the were fighting for a playoff berth," explained Hefner. "While we had already clinched the conference championship."

Sharon Cain scored 24 points to lead Odessa while Sharon Blair had 22. For Howard, after missing her first six shots from the field, Terri Moore, Waco, led the way with 25 points.

Hefner, however, thought the job Cain did on HC guard Janene Berry was the key to the game. "Early we had good momentum and were getting into the passing lanes. We disrupted their offense and they had to hurry their shots and took some when they were out of their range."

As for tonight, Hefner worries, "McLennan has so much quickness up front and they use their bodies to influence your play and they are such great shooters. They have five kids who have nothing but wheels. Early in the year they were ranked among the top five in the nation.

Meloche ends skid

By The Associated Press

Gilles Meloche knows just how the New York Rangers are feeling these days. But he has no sympathy for them.

Meloche ended his own slump Wednesday night, stopping 29 shots as the host Minnesota North Stars downed the Rangers 6-3. It was the first victory for Meloche in five weeks and his 20th of the season, marking the sixth straight season he has won at least 20 games.

The Rangers, meanwhile, are winless in five games, 0-4-1, and are 0-5-3 on the road, a streak that began with a 4-4 tie in Bloomington, Minn., Feb. 9. They are in danger of falling out of the race for the top spot in the Patrick Division — the Rangers trail the first-place Islanders by seven points.

"We totally dominated those guys," said Meloche, a 13-year veteran who hadn't won a game since Jan. 27, failing to win his 20th six times.

"It's a relief. It's been a long, hard month," said Meloche. "You start pressing a little in a slump and you wonder what's going on."

Canucks 4, Jets 3

Tony Tanti scored two power-play goals to set a club record and the Canucks moved three points in front of Winnipeg in the race for the third spot in the Smythe Division.

Both goals by Tanti came on low backhands and gave him 16 power-play goals on the season, one more than the mark shared by Ron Sedlbauer (1978-79) and Stan Smyl (1982-83). Tanti now has 41 goals.

The victory was Vancouver's fifth in seven games as the Canucks try to avoid meeting powerful Edmonton in the first round of the playoffs. The Canucks are three points ahead of Winnipeg, which has played five fewer games.

Maple Leafs 8, Devils 4

Jim Korn, who was recently converted from defense to left wing, scored his first NHL hat trick, giving him seven goals in five games since the switch in positions. Walt Poddubny added two goals for homestanding Toronto, which has won only twice in its last 10 games. The Devils had a three-game winning streak snapped.

"Some of them were good goals and some of their weren't," Korn said. "But if you work hard, you're going to get some lucky goals."

Capitals 4, Whalers 2

Washington continued its fine defensive play, limiting Hartford to 23 shots as goalie Bob Mason, late of the United States Olympic team, won his second game in as many starts. It was a club record 40th victory for the Capitals, who are two points behind the first-place New York Islanders in the Patrick Division.

Oilers 7, Black Hawks 4

Jari Kurri, who had only two goals in his last seven games, struck for three as the Oilers won their 10th game in the last 11. Kurri scored twice in the third period on setups by Wayne Gretzky, who had three assists. Mark Messier also had three assists and Paul Coffey contributed a goal and two assists.

Steve Larmer scored twice for Chicago, which blew a chance to leapfrog over second-place Detroit in the Norris Division.

Lobos defeat Utes, 56-45

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — New Mexico Coach Gary Colson is confident his team is now playing with house money in the Western Athletic Conference post-season basketball tournament.

The Lobos stayed alive in the tournament with a 56-45 win over Utah Wednesday night. New Mexico now joins regular season champion Texas-El Paso, Brigham Young and Wyoming in the four-team semifinal round Friday in El Paso.

The victory over Utah also improved New Mexico's overall record to 23-9 and, according to Colson, should ensure the Lobos of a post-season tournament bid, no matter what happens this weekend.

Colson conceded New Mexico easily could have been overlooked by the NCAA or National Invitational Tournament had it lost to Utah, a team that finished with an 11-19 record.

"It would be hard for me to believe that they (NIT) wouldn't take us," Colson said. "And if we do well in El Paso I think we have a good shot at getting into the NCAA."

Sixers get revenge

By The Associated Press

After winning three out of four games on their West Coast road trip, the Philadelphia 76ers believe they may be coming out of the doldrums.

"If we can go 3-1 on the road, we should be able to play much better at home," Julius Erving said after the defending National Basketball Association champions beat the Los Angeles Lakers 113-105 Wednesday night. "A lot of it should carry over."

"I thought it was a good win for us," guard Andrew Toney said. We've been struggling and maybe now we'll get out of this rut we're in."

"Before the game, I had a very good feeling and mentioned it to the players. It came true," added Coach Billy Cunningham, who has seen the 76ers fall 9½ games behind the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division. "We played exceptionally well. We are together as a ball club. Everyone is going in the right direction."

Nets 106, Bucks 110

Albert King scored 12 of his team-high 20 points in the fourth quarter as New Jersey won at Milwaukee to extend its winning streak to seven games.

After King's jumper with 7:14 left gave the Nets a 94-87 lead, the Bucks could get no closer than three points.

Celtics 117, Jazz 106

Boston rolled over visiting Utah as Larry Bird had 26 points, 14 rebounds and nine assists one day after missing another game with a stiff back.

Mavericks 115, Cavaliers 103

Rolando Blackman scored 22 points as Dallas beat visiting Cleveland for the first time in eight tries since joining the NBA four years ago.

Mark Aguirre scored 14 of his 18 points in the first quarter when the Mavericks, now only a half-game behind Utah in the Midwest Division, took a 31-25 lead they never relinquished.

Pistons 107, Hawks 93

At Pontiac, Mich., Isiah Thomas and Bill Laimbeer had 22 points each, while Laimbeer had 18 rebounds and Thomas 15 assists as Detroit handed Atlanta its sixth consecutive loss.

The Hawks, who got 24 points from Johnny Davis, trailed by as many as 19 points in the third quarter, but they cut the deficit to 95-90, with 4:35 left in the game. The Pistons then scored six points in a row to rebuild a comfortable margin.

Suns 123, Rockets 110

James Edwards scored nine of his 29 points in the decisive third quarter and Maurice Lucas added 11 of his 17 in the same period to help Phoenix pull away from visiting Houston.

Ralph Sampson scored 28 points to lead the Rockets.

Georgia needs bigger miracle than last year

College Basketball

By The Associated Press

If the Georgia Bulldogs want to stage another miracle run to the Final Four, they'll have to get started soon.

Georgia struggled to subdue another set of Southeastern Conference Bulldogs Wednesday night, overcoming a five-point deficit in the second half to beat Mississippi State 52-49 in the opening round of the conference tournament in Nashville, Tenn. Next up for 17-11 Georgia is third-ranked Kentucky tonight.

Last year, the Bulldogs used their surprising run to the SEC tournament championship as a springboard to the Final Four. But their shaky effort against 9-19 Mississippi State made them look like an even bigger longshot this year.

"This was one of the poorest games we've played in which we won," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham. "State deserves credit for making us play poorly."

Following a sloppy first half, Durham laced into his team in the dressing room.

"We were trying to get them fired up," he said."We felt we didn't play as well as we are capable of playing. But we won the game.We had 11 worse than that."

Georgia hit 16 of 20 free throws and put away Mississippi State behind reserves Horace McMillan and Donald Hartry, who replaced ineffective stars Vern Fleming and James Banks.

The game was filled with mistakes by both teams — State had 20 turnovers and shot only 47 percent and Georgia had 18 turnovers and shot 44 percent.

"Georgia has a lot of firepower around the perimeter against the zone, and we had to go to the zone when we got into foul trouble," State Coach Bob Boyd said. "This was a factor."

In the other SEC opener, Vanderbilt belted Mississippi 77-57 behind Phil Cox's 14 points. Vanderbilt meets Auburn today, while Florida faces Tennessee and Louisiana State takes on Alabama.

In other tournament action Wednesday, Colorado, which didn't win a regular-season Big Eight game, upended Iowa State 65-62, and Tom Alfaro hit a 20-foot jump shot with three seconds left to lift Kansas State to a 41-39 decision over Nebraska.

Kansas State plays Kansas and Colorado opposes top-seeded Oklahoma, the sixth-ranked team in the country, in the semifinals Friday night in Kansas City.

In the Western Athletic Conference quarterfinals, it was Wyoming 40, Colorado State 36 and New Mexico over Utah 56-45. Wyoming plays No. 9 Texas-El Paso, the regular-season champion, and New Mexico goes against Brigham Young Friday night.

In the Big East's qualifying game, Providence rode a conference record 20 rebounds and 19 points by Otis Thorpe to a 59-55 victory over Seton Hall. The Friars take on second-ranked Georgetown, the No. 1 seed in the tourney, tonight, while St. John's plays Boston College. Today it was Syracuse-Connecticut and Villanova-Pittsburgh.

Congress moves to halt more oil mergers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is moving rapidly to halt further oil company mergers in the wake of Standard Oil Co. of California's proposed $13.2 billion takeover of Gulf Corp.

The Senate Energy Committee is to hold hearings in April on a recent spate of attempts by oil companies to buy other companies. Similar hearings in the House are planned for March 21.

But supporters of anti-merger legislation who lost a pair of votes last week in the Senate vow to try again, before any hearings, as soon as debate finishes over a constitutional amendment on school prayer which is now consuming floor time in the Senate.

"The horse will be out of the barn unless we do something now to stave off this hemorrhage of mergers which are in the works," said Sen. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, the ranking Democrat on the Senate Energy Committee.

An effort a week ago by Johnston, traditionally an oil industry supporter, to declare a six-month moratorium on any mergers among the top 150 oil companies was defeated on a 52-42 vote.

But that was before Socal on Monday announced its proposed acquisition of Gulf in what would be the largest corporate merger in U.S. history. Texaco's decision last month to buy Getty Oil Co. for $10.13 billion, which has already received preliminary FTC approval, had been the largest.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., an oil industry supporter who led the fight last week against the anti-merger efforts by Johnston and Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, acknowledged Wednesday that the Socal-Gulf deal "is fanning the fire" for a congressionally ordered ban.

"I don't particularly care for these mergers, but I have reservations about any legislation that would prohibit them just in one industry," he said Wednesday. "We don't want to end up having just a few oil companies, but there is a lot less concentration in the oil and gas industry than in the auto and steel industries."

Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio, became the first House member to directly address the issue on Tuesday, introducing legislation that would forbid any merger activity among the 20 largest domestic oil companies.

But congressional officials said they expect a flood of similar bills by the time the House Energy fossil and synthetic fuels subcommittee holds its scheduled March 21 hearing on the issue.

"It's a good election issue," said one House source who asked not to be identified by name. "The slammer is going to come down on this, and everyone and his brother is going to want to jump on the train."

Officials in both the House and Senate said there is plenty of time to block both the Socal-Gulf takeover and the Texaco-Getty deal, which is still at least 60 days away from final FTC approval, as well as any other mergers in the offing.

Several other companies — among them Atlantic Richfield, Sun, Phillips Petroleum, Union Oil and Superior — are widely rumored as merger candidates because of depressed stock prices that make acquiring oil reserves through corporate acquisitions much cheaper than exploring for new reserves.

"If all those takeovers occur," Johnston said, "there's not going to be any money left for exploration."

He complained that the mergers are "using up billions and billions of dollars" that otherwise might go toward new drilling, only because "Wall Street cowboys are out to lasso themselves a filly at a cheap cost."

Johnston's bill, which aides said is now being redrafted to win more support, would ban any acquisition involving the 150 largest companies by forever denying them any future government oil leases or pipeline rights-of-way.

"That reaches down to a lot of small companies that most people have never heard of," Nickles complained.

Soft drink firms in rating war

Diet Coke, Seven-Up battle for third place

By the Los Angeles Times, Washington Post News Service

Coca-Cola Co. rented New York's opulent Radio City Music Hall Wednesday to claim that its diet Coke has displaced 7 Up as the nation's No. 3 selling soda pop.

But the claim was disputed — even before Coca-Cola could make its announcement — by a squad of Seven-Up Co. executives who flew in from headquarters in St. Louis armed with numbers of their own.

Industry analysts generally agree that diet Coke, introduced only in 1982, has been immensely popular, finishing fifth in sales in 1983 behind regular Coke, Pepsi-Cola, 7 Up and Dr Pepper, but some suggested Wednesday that Atlanta-based Coca-Cola may be jumping the gun a bit in claiming the No. 3 spot for the diet drink.

Ronald Morrow, an analyst with Shearson-American Express, did not rate diet Coke third, but said that it "has picked up a lot of share," and predicted, "When we see the latest numbers, I believe they'll be No. 3."

The battle for soft-drink sales has heated up in recent years, with the companies bringing out an array of new sugar-free, caffeine-free and salt-free drinks. They are also stepping up advertising.

Not surprisingly, Atlanta-based Coca-Cola took advantage of its Manhattan convocation to unveil a new advertising campaign for diet Coke, featuring such personalities as Miss America Vanessa Williams, comedian Bill Cosby, singer Paul Anka, basketball star Julius Erving and a Cabbage Patch doll.

No. 2 Pepsico Inc., meanwhile, responded to the Coca-Cola challenge by announcing that it has signed singer Lionel Richie to compose and sing a Pepsi theme song, and to appear in television commercials next year.

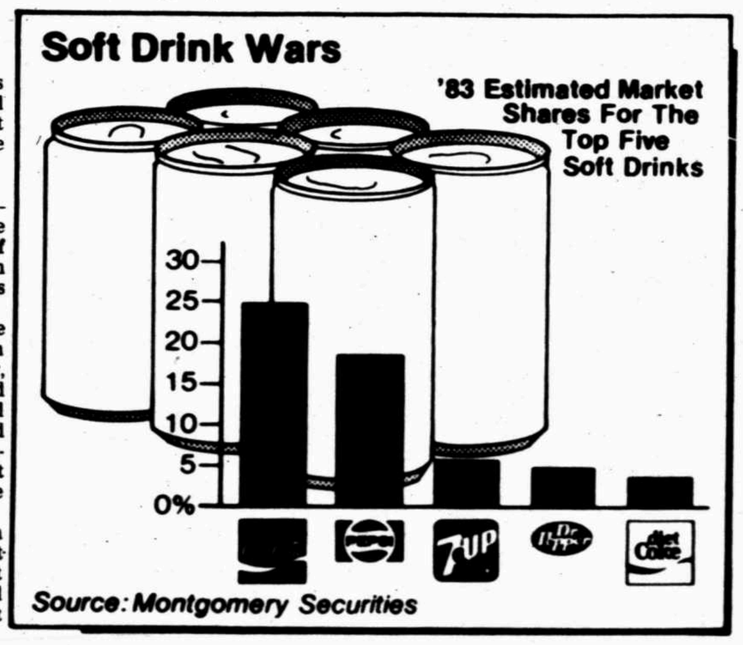

The Purchase, N.Y.-based company would not divulge the dollar amount of the contract, which is good through 1985, or whether it was worth more than the $5.5-million contract that the company signed with superstar Michael Jackson to sing and dance in two recently released Pepsi ads.

Emmanuel Goldman, who follows the beverage industry for Montgomery Securities in San Francisco, said that diet Coke is "selling at a faster rate than 7 Up" and predicted that its sales would surpass 7 Up this year. He cautioned, however, that "What you have here is excellent growth by diet Coke, but part of it is due to cannibalism" by taking sales away from Coke's other diet cola, Tab.

Goldman calculates that diet Coke sold 256 million cases in 1983, compared to 333 million of 7 Up. But he expects diet Coke to sell 375 million cases this year, compared to 350 million for 7 Up. On the other hand, he said, Coke's Tab, which sold 191 million cases last year, will likely sell only 160 million this year.

Coke ranks first in market share, Goldman said, with 24.8 percent of sales, followed by Pepsi, 18.1 percent; 7 Up, 5.4 percent; Dr Pepper, 5 percent, and diet Coke, 4.1 percent.

At Coca-Cola's gala gathering, which was attended by so many of its bottlers and personalities promoting its products that an analyst called it "a sales rally," Brian G. Dyson, president of Coca-Cola USA, conceded that diet Coke's 1983 sales figures trailed 7 Up. But Dyson insisted that "current sales" boost his cola drink above 7 Up.

This chart shows the estimated market shares for the nation's top five soft drinks. Coca-Cola Co. claimed with great fanfare that Diet Coke has become the third largest selling soft drink in the United States, during a New York news conference. However, Seven-Up Co. executives flew in to argue that 7-Up is still No. 3.

Braniff delays common stock sale

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff Inc. announced Wednesday that it is postponing the public sale of shares of its common stock.

Company officials said the sale was being delayed because the company was unwilling to sell shares of its common stock "under current market conditions, given the greater than anticipated booking demand for the company's airline service."

Braniff began flying again on March 1. It had shut down for almost two years after filing for bankruptcy protection in May 1982. The airline was revived last year by a $70 million investment by the Hyatt Corp. and reorganized with the approval of most Braniff creditors and the bankruptcy court.

The down-sized airline flies to 18 cities and is based at Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Company officials said Braniff has doubled its reservation staff in order to meet demand.

Stock market mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, struggling to stabilize after a three-session decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down more than 27 points in the last three sessions, slipped another 1.46 to 1,142.17 by noontime today. Gainers and losers were evenly balanced among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said prices of many stocks had fallen to the point where they began to attract buyers looking for "bargains." But they said interest-rate worries continued to weigh down the market.

Concerns about the federal budget deficit have driven interest rates higher in the credit markets lately.

Today Martin Feldstein, economic advisor to President Reagan, said a declining dollar could exert further upward pressure on rates by discouraging foreign investors from buying U.S. debt securities.

Separately, the Conference Board, a business research organization, said its index of consumer confidence fell in February after five consecutive months of increases.

K mart rose ½ to 30⅛. The company reported a strong earnings gain for the quarter ended Jan. 25.

The NYSE's composite index rose .11 to 89.20. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .24 at 207.31.

Volume on the Big Board came to 34.44 million shares at noontime, against 42.38 million at the same point Wednesday.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Do entrepreneurs thrive on stress?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — Who is the entrepreneur, that person who faces perpetual challenges, who courts risk, who deals every day with an overload of stress, who works long hours, who awakes at night with a burden of worries?

Seeking an answer, a Midwest entrepreneur club once polled its members to learn some of the attributes which make people go into business for themselves, and stay in business in spite of the difficulties.

What they found was embarrassingly little, too little from which to draw any profound conclusions. So diverse were responses they uncovered only one clue. Most entrepreneurs, they concluded, had strong mothers.

Though other studies have developed additional notions of what makes a person go into business and stay there in the face of obstacles, the entrepreneur's personality is indeed an elusive thing.

It is known, of course, that they are self-motivated, goal-seeking, self-confident, hard-working, mentally active individualists. That much can be reasoned from the evidence.

But what other clues are there to determine what makes these people run?

Seeking to add to understanding, The Center For Entrepreneurial Management developed a profile of its membership that adds some dimensions. Among its findings:

— The independent way of life is not so much genetic as it is learned, and the first school for entrepreneurs is the home. More than a third of respondents came from homes where one parent had been self-employed.

— The self-employed person is brash, with almost a compulsive need to be right. For example, Steven Jobs and Steven Wozniak created Apple Computer when their project was rejected by their former employers.

The Jobs-Wozniak experience is a common one. Joseph Mancuso, president of the New York-based center, reasons: "The need to be right very often turns rejection into courage and courage into authority."

— Many entrepreneurs are people who have moved from their original environment or who have had to struggle to fit into society. Their answer often is to turn hard work and enthusiasm into successful business enterprises.

— The enterprising adult first appears as the enterprising child. As children, people in business for themselves often collected coins or stamps, delivered newspapers, mowed lawns or shoveled snow.

"The paper route of today could be the Federal Express of tomorrow," says Mancuso.

Much more was revealed. Entrepreneurs often are the oldest children in their families, have supportive spouses, are risk-takers but not gamblers, and enjoy money but — more importantly — dislike working for someone else.

Should you continue with such an analysis you might get no nearer to the answer. Better to accept them, perhaps, than to figure them out, as Chemical Bank recently sought to do with the help of Research & Forecasts Inc.

Surveying the field, they found that 76 percent of small-business owners worked at least nine hours a day, that 25 percent put in 11 or 12 hours, and 11 percent more than 12.

In spite of this, the reality differed greatly with the wish. No less than 75 percent of those interviewed — a total of 1,047 — said they wished to work 8 hours or less. And 33 percent of them said they preferred fewer than 7 hours.

Asked how many days a week they worked, more than 30 percent answered 6 or 7 days. Asked how many days they would like to work, 63 percent said 5 days, and 23 percent said 4 days or less.

About 80 percent conceded that they were under a moderate or a great deal of stress, but 22 percent of them said stress was basically beneficial rather than detrimental.

Asked why, the 210 respondents who liked stress said overwhelmingly that it made day-to-day life more interesting and that it raised their productivity.

Who are these people, and what makes them tick? Maybe it is easier to accept than to understand them. Perhaps it is better simply to accept them for what they are. That is, self-employed people.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

If bonds are registered owners notified by mail

By BILL DOYLE

Q. A friend told me that when a bond she owned was called for early redemption she received a letter well in advance of the "call date." She says she turned in the bond and received its face value on the call date.

My experience was just the opposite. A bond I owned was called and I lost more than six months' interest before I found out. Why did my friend get a letter and I didn't?

A. Your friend's bond, most likely, was in registered form — with her name on the bond and her name and address on the issuer's record books. When a registered bond is called, owners are notified by mail.

If you friend's bond was in bearer form, without her name either on the bond or the issuer's books, she wouldn't have been notified by the issuer or its paying agent.

However, she might have an arrangement with a bank or brokerage house to notify her of bond calls. Most banks and brokers will provide that service, for a fee.

Arabs double refinery capacity

MANAMA, Bahrain (DPA) — Arab oil producers have more than doubled their refinery capacity in the past decade, the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries said Tuesday.

Capacity has risen from 1.6 million to 4.2 million barrels per day, it said, and the increase now enables the Arab countries to refine nearly one-third of the oil they produce.

ECISD board member tells of football's importance

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

A school board member testified Wednesday that the importance of football is a key wedge blocking the Ector County Independent School District from adding a third high school.

One major criticism of the system's desegregation efforts has been that its only southside high school, Ector High, was converted to a junior high. All southside high schoolers ride buses to the district's two northside high schools.

Testifying during the first day of a hearing in Midland federal court, board member Vickie Gomez told the court that "feedback" opposing the dilution of district football talent by adding a third high school was the political reason why this move had not been made.

Ms. Gomez said sentiment was that the district would end up with "three Big Springs," ending its history of West Texas gridiron supremacy. In response to a question about the board's concern for maintaining academic excellence, she said "We have never discussed (being) too competitive academically."

The district is maintaining that Ector could not hold the number of students necessary to support a full program. Its present capacity is between 1,300-1400, while Permian and Odessa High Schools both accommodate more than 2,000.

Under cross-examination by ECISD attorney Jack Tidwell, Ms. Gomez agreed reopening Ector High would mean relocation of the students attending junior high there under the present plan. In the aftermath of the Jan. 21 rollback, she — the only minority member of the board ever elected — called chances of a bond issue passing to build a new school "slim and none."

The district has financed two schools and an administration building without a bond issue, she noted.

"I think there is presently a need, in my opinion, for a third high school," she testified to Joe Rich of the U.S. Justice Department.

The Committee for Redress, Unity, Concern and Integrity At All Levels, represented by Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund attorney Norma Cantu, has filed a proposed plan which calls for three high schools.

Board member Mickey Jones testified earlier, "The kids just wouldn't fit" if the district followed the guidelines of the CRUCIAL plan and used three high schools for grades 9-12. He also pointed to the expense and the need for a bond issue.

Superintendent Bill Holm would not comment on the role retaining football prowess played in the district's decision to go with two high schools housing more than 2,000 students apiece. Ms. Gomez said the district would be needing a third high school "in the very, very near future."

Assistant Principal Joe Rutledge, who has been with the school district 20 years, indicated that space restrictions have hindered the development of some programs at Permian High.

Rutledge, who worked in the southside schools for 17 years as a coach, teacher and assistant principal, was transferred to Permian a year before the first desegregation moves were made by ECISD following the court's August 1982 order. This week's hearing is the result of an appeals court reversing the first decision and sending the issue back to federal district court.

Figures offered as evidence Wednesday showed small numbers of minority students enrolling in the higher level courses at Permian. Minority participation in band has also decreased since the Ector students were moved to the northside high schools.

"As a black, yes it concerns me," said Rutledge, "As an educator, it concerns me."

During questioning by Tidwell, Rutledge said there had been no racial uprisings in his school since 1982. Knocking on wood, he said, "we haven't had it yet."

ECISD not found in contempt

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

More than nine hours of testimony, and a motion for contempt of court against the Ector County Independent School District, kicked off Wednesday's desegregation hearing in Midland federal court.

Judge Harry Hudspeth denied the motion of attorney Norma Cantu that the hearing be called off and the district be found in contempt, which she made after discovering that registration for Phase II of the district's magnet school program was going on even as the hearing proceeded.

Representing the Committee for Redress, Unity, Concern and Integrity at All Levels, the attorney from the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund charged that the district had not gotten its desegregation plan going as quickly as the courts had ordered.

The order, approved in August 1982, which the district is following pending the outcome of this hearing, gives the district two years to implement the magnet schools, noted Jack Tidwell, the ECISD's attorney.

A wide range of witnesses — including national desegregation expert Dr. Elmer Tossie and Dr. Clarence Kron of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin — took the stand as CRUCIAL presented its case to Hudspeth. The judge has been instructed to make a ruling by April 1.

CRUCIAL wants the voluntary magnet school approach supplemented with mandatory assignments to ensure integration.

Curriculum experts need to be called in "to start from scratch" at identifying needs of the students and teachers in the system and a "tri-ethnic committee" needs to be formed to give the district input on the schools' needs, insisted the CRUCIAL attorney.

The school district is operating under the order approved by retiredJudge Fred Shannon, which was reversed on appeal. The ECISD is using magnet schools at the elementary level and busing at its secondary schools to accomplish desegregation. Its case is almost entirely based on the 1982 order.

The U.S. Justice Department agreed to this order and their case is basically in support of the school district's plan.

West Odessa Parents for Quality Education, not concerned with the desegregation issue, claim westside children are being bused to a greater extent than other ECISD students to bring the district within the standards.

Tossie explained to Justice Department attorney Joe Rich that, although the high schools are desegregated, students suffer when they are moved to another school.

"You are dealing with a community that for years and years has been concerned about the attention they get," he said, insisting that there was more to education than classes. "They don't have anything else to rally around."

Tossie called the large numbers of west Odessa students bused "excessive busing."

Kron, an expert on school administration and social systems now teaching at UTPB, said, "I've seen a district in the U.S. that has pushed for integration of the schools." The professor called for the community to inspire the changes that can lead to integration of the schools.

He stressed the importance of the "social mix" of upwardly mobile students with the socially or economically disadvantaged in aiding minorities in improving their scholastic achievements. Supporting programs to help minority students adjust at early ages, Kron said "High school is probably the poorest place to prevent this kind of deficiency."

"It's not like instant soup," he said. "It's something that takes some time to do."

All witnesses testifying Wednesday were called by Ms. Cantu for CRUCIAL's case. She plans to bring two witnesses today, with the ECISD planning to bring 18 to the stand. Bill Bednar, attorney for the west Odessans, said he had two witnesses to bring before Hudspeth.

Board hopeful files last minute

From Staff Reports

Filing deadline for local elections passed Wednesday evening and the starting lineup is set. Only one person waited until the last day to file for the April 7 election.

A. Joseph Reed was the last-minute filer for Place 4 in the Midland Independent School District race. He is opposing Bobby G. Williams Sr. and Don R. McCarty. Place 4 was held by Gary Hopper, who died last November in a plane crash.

Place 3 for MISD board of trustees is being vacated by Ann Page. Seeking election are Fred M. Newman and James Ramsoure.

The mayor's race remains with two candidates: incumbent G. Thane Akins and challenger Frank Lasater.

Place 4 on the City Council sees incumbent Steve Davidson going for a second term with no challenger. Place 5 is being vacated by Tom Sloan and has drawn three candidates: former aviation director Col. Wilson Banks, Bart Hotchkiss and Raul Salazar.

Midland College board candidates have been assured of re-election as no one filed to challenge them. Jack Huff is going for Place 7 again, Ralph Way for Place 8 and board president Kenneth Peeler for Place 9.

Only one place on the Greenwood ISD board of trustees will see any action. Archie Blackwell is fighting incumbent Charles Gardner for Place 5. Incumbent James Brooks has filed for Place 3 and incumbent Ted Benton for Place 4.

The two incumbents on the Midland County Hospital District Board of Directors are the only two that filed. Pat Estes, who serves as secretary, and Tevis Herd, who serves as president, are seeking re-election.

Midland, Odessa tax rebates up from March '83

From Staff Reports

When looking at the sales tax rebate checks mailed to Midland and Odessa for the month of March, the figures are above those from March 1983. But when comparing on a year-to-date basis, the two cities are slightly below where they were at this point in 1983.

Figures released by State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office show Midland received $511,522.48 this month, up from $405,987.10 in 1983. Checks for the year since January total $1,954,322.68, down 3.19 percent from last year's $1,999,990.28.

Odessa's rebate check was for $538,948.74, compared to $384,192.46 a year ago. The year-to-date total hits $1,937,512.71, down 6.40 percent from last year's $2,070,056.61.

The rebate checks were for sales made in January and reported to the comptroller's office in February. The cities mail the sales tax to the office, and each city's 1 cent tax is rebated.

The Odessa finance director noted that comparing March of this year with March of 1983 is like comparing apples with oranges. At the end of 1983 reporting procedures were changed. Businesses turning in their sales tax on a quarterly basis were required to begin sending in the taxes each month. Thus, 1983 March checks reflect a fewer number of reporting outlets.

Deposits average $17,081 per person

From Staff and Wire Reports

Among the nation's counties, Manhattan (New York County) is first in bank deposits with an average $63,682 per person deposited in banks and San Francisco is in second place with an average of $39,449 per person.

Midland County, with $17,081, is in fifth place, according to the just-published 10th edition of the Census Bureau's 1980 County and City Data Book.

Other data found in the book states that the most populous county in America is Los Angeles, with 7.5 million

Loving, Texas, with only 91 people.

New York County, better known as Manhattan, averages 64,400 person per square mile compared to less than one person per square mile in Alaska.

Some 39 percent of San Francisco residents use public transportation for commuting to work, second behind New York City where 56 percent of the people use buses, trains and subways to get to work.

Only 11 percent of Los Angeles residents use public facilities to get back and forth to work.

Montgomery County, Md., ranks sixth at $28,987 among jurisdictions with the highest median household income.

Monitour, Pa., has more physicians per 100,000 people than any other city. San Francisco is in 12th place nationwide with 612 physicians per 100,000 population and Baltimore 16th with 537.

The county with the fourth highest enrollment is Harris, the Texas county in which Houston is situated. In fifth place is Kings County, N.Y., which is Brooklyn. There's nothing wrong with wanting to live forever

Lately, I've been reading about life-extenders: how, possibly, to live so long that you outlive your wisdom.

There's ambivalence in growing older. You want to keep on living, since who knows if you'll ever get another chance at life on Earth or if somehow you'll ever re-experience this life. The problematic ideal is knowing just when is the optimum time to shut your system down. But the old body has a way of taking care of that decision.

The other day, as I was standing in another line of youngsters and oldsters, one gray-haired fellow turned to another and lamented: "This business of getting old isn't worth a damn."

One of the gentlemen had just recovered from a massive heart attack and seemed so pleased at the state of his improved health.

The other referred to the ailments, afflictions and inconveniences of growing older too, too soon.

"I thought it was just a gentle slope," he said wryly. "I didn't know all of a sudden there was a drop like falling off a cliff."

A while back, after I had turned 39 again, a gal named Mary responded to my dirge that "I didn't think I'd ever grow old, at least not this soon." Said she in her wise way: "Well, Edwin, it's your turn."

That will prod you honestly to recount your birthdays and to recall William Shakespeare's Seven Ages of Man in his "As You Like It." ("All the world's a stage, and all the men and women merely players.") The great playwright characterized the stages of life:

—I. The infant, mewling and puking in the nurse's arms.

—II. The whining school-boy, with his satchel, and shining morning face, creeping like snail unwillingly to school.

—III. The lover, sighing like furnace, with a woeful ballad made to his mistress' eyebrow.

—IV. The soldier, full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard, jealous in honor, sudden and quick in quarrel, seeking a bubble reputation even in cannon's mouth.

—V. The justice, in fair round belly with good capon lined, with eyes severe and beard of formal cut, full of wise saws and modern instances.

—VI. The pantaloon, with spectacles on nose and pouch on side...and his manly voice turning again toward childish treble, pipes and whistles in sound.

—VII. Second childishness, and mere oblivion, sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything.

At whatever age, man keeps plowing along until life is interrupted by ever-looming death.

In the meantime, there's nothing really amiss about wanting to live forever in fortune and good health.

The inimitable Maurice Chevalier put it this way: "Growing old isn't so bad when you consider the alternative."

Lawmaker wants U.N. aid in finding survivors

HOUSTON (AP) — The author of a resolution asking that United Nations delegates seek Vietnam's aid in searching for survivors of a sunken American drilling ship says rescue efforts have been hampered by a lack of diplomatic relations.

Rep. Bob Whittaker, R-Kan., said the fact that most of the 81 missing crew members are Americans and Chinese has also impeded progress.

"The Vietnamese are very distrustful of the Chinese," Whittaker said. "Thirty-six of these men (the ship's crew) were citizens of the People's Republic of China."

Whittaker's resolution, also sponsored by 21 other congressmen, asks that U.S. delegates to the United Nations seek Vietnamese aid in the search through the secretary-general of the United Nations.

Whittaker said the search "has been thwarted by authorities in Vietnam." He introduced his resolution last week.

The ship, the Glomar Java Sea, sank Oct. 25 in a typhoon. The wreck of the vessel was found lying in 300 feet of water in the South China Sea, 60 miles south of China and 200 miles east of Vietnam.

Officials with the owner, Global Marine Inc. of Houston, have said prevailing winds would have blown lifeboats toward the Vietnamese coast.

A Marine Board of Investigation which held a hearing in January to determine the cause of the sinking asked crewmen's relatives not to lose hope that some may have survived the sinking. Board members said some survivors may be found in Vietnam.

Kenzie and Gertie Morris check out the sinkhole that is threatening their daughter, Louise's, trailer home in Hardin. The hole started out seven feet deep but only as wide as a dishpan, and has become a seven-foot-wide pool of muddy water.

Mobile home being threatened by sinkhole

HARDIN (AP) — A police officer drops by Louise Morris' house every day to make sure that the sinkhole which has been growing in her back yard is under control.

What started out as a hole seven feet deep but only as wide as a dishpan consumed enough of Mrs. Morris' yard during the past two weeks to become a seven-foot-wide pool of muddy water.

"I hope it's stabilized now, but nobody knows for sure," said Mrs. Morris, 55.

She discovered the hole behind her mobile home about two weeks ago, when her 8-year-old granddaughter, Jackie, went in the back yard to feed the cat.

"Jackie came running back inside and yelling at me to 'Come look!'" Mrs. Morris said.

She said the hole began gobbling chunks of dirt and grew even larger when heavy rains came.

"We don't know where all that dirt went," said Mrs. Morris' father, Kenzie Morris, who owns the land on which the mobile home is located. Morris, 89, said he and his daughter are waiting for investigators to come up with an explanation.

But Kirby Griffin, a soil scientist with Liberty County Soil Conservation Service, said he won't know what caused the hole to form until the water goes down.

"It just may be one of those flukes in nature, such as a cavity that formed from a depletion of ground water. It can also be caused by oil wells," Griffin said.

Morris said a well was drilled on the land before he bought it.

Sheriff indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas sheriff has been indicted by a federal grand jury in Houston on charges of giving false testimony in a civil rights investigation of another sheriff, the Justice Department said.

Fires started in vacant home

From Staff Reports

In burgalry complaints to city police during the past 24 hours, K.C. Light of Austin said about $8,000 damage was done to a vacant house at 2500 Harvard sometime in the past three months.

A rear door had been pried to gain entry, several fires were started throughout the house and a wine bottle was found on the floor. Nothing appeared to be missing, however.

An employee of Bimmer's Restaurant, 111 N. Colorado, told officers $150 was taken from the cash register Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning. Entry was gained by breaking a window in the rear door.

Six fire department units responded to a fire in the bedroom of an apartment occupied by James Landsaw at LaCasita Apartments, 2900 W. Illinois, shortly before 5 p.m. Wednesday.

A child playing with a cigarette lighter is believed responsible for the 5 p.m. blaze, which did moderate damage to the bedroom and caused heavy smoke damage to an upper floor. Firemen spent an hour at the scene and used 50 gallons of water extinguishing the blaze.

EDB found in generic cake mix

AUSTIN (AP) — A generic yellow cake mix found in an Austin supermarket contained the highest levels of EDB yet found in Texas foods, the state health department says.

Nine other products also were determined to have higher than acceptable levels of the chemical, officials said Wednesday.

Neil Travis, chief of the department's Bureau of Consumer Health Protection, said the yellow cake mix contained 29,000 parts per billion of ethylene dibromide, EDB, a chemical suspected of being a cancer-causing agent.

For a product such as cake mix, the recommended maximum level is 150 parts per billion, officials said.

Officials of the state Agriculture Department said the product already should have been taken from grocery shelves. It was one of 10 found to have higher than acceptable levels of the chemical, Travis said.

The generic cake mix had the code number DEC1184C and as manufactured by the Gilster-Mary Lee Corp. of Illinois. It was found at an H.E.B. store in Austin, Travis said.

Travis said the manufacturer told Texas officials and the federal Food and Drug Administration they had fumigated their mill area two days before the batch was packaged in December 1983. The company said it used a combination of EDB, carbon tetrachloride and another chemical, Travis said, adding that it was an acceptable method of fumigation.

Man who refused breath test convicted of DWI

From Staff Reports

A 35-year-old Odessa salesman who refused to take the Intoxilyzer test for drunkenness nevertheless was convicted in Midland County Court-at-Law for first offense of driving while intoxicated (DWI).

The three-man, three-woman jury deliberated one hour and five minutes Wednesday before finding the man guilty of DWI on Dec. 9, 1983, according to James Zane Brazell, prosecutor. The defendant elected to have Judge Willie DuBose set punishment. The judge sentenced the man to 30 days in County Jail but suspended that sentence and placed him on probation for two years, fined him $350 and ordered him to attend DWI School at Midland College.

The defendant, who lives in Midland, was arrested by Texas Department of Public Safety Troopers Ken Pittman and Matt Andrews, as he was driving eastwardly toward Midland on U.S. Highway 80 about 12:50 a.m.

Brazell said the man, who was driving a pickup, weaved across the reflective dividers at a stop light near the OIME Inc. plant, drifted toward the DPS patrol car and almost forced the car off the highway.

"They weren't pursuing him right then," Brazell said.

Within the next mile, the pickup weaved five times into the shoulder of the highway, and the DPS troopers then stopped the driver, he said.

The driver declined to be tested for his blood-alcohol level.

"I'd been told you can't pass the breath test if you had anything to drink,'" Brazell said the man testified.

He said the defendant, who was represented by Odessa lawyer Michael McLeaish, said he had drunk "little more than one beer in little more than two hours" at the Blue Max bar in Odessa earlier that night.

Maximum punishment for first offense of DWI is a jail term of 72 hours up to two years and the imposition of a fine ranging from $100 to $2,000.

Tax protestor's daughter allegedly kills herself

ODESSA (AP) — A woman whose militant tax protestor father was killed in a gunfight with police apparently committed suicide by shooting herself in the chest, authorities say.

Linda Kahl Holder, the 36-year-old daughter of Gordon Kahl, was found dead Tuesday morning in her 1976 car on a dirt road about 10 miles west of Odessa, sheriff's Deputy J.M. Mitchell said.

She was found by a man checking fences on his property, Mitchell said. A .38-caliber revolver was found on the seat of the car and she was pronounced dead by Peace Justice R.G. Hungerford, who ordered an autopsy.

A sheriff's department spokeswoman who refused to give her name said an investigation into the death was continuing, "but it's a pretty cut and dried thing. It looks like suicide."

Authorities would not rule on the cause of death until after an autopsy was conducted Thursday, the spokeswoman said.

Ms. Holder's father was a member of Possee Comitatus, a militant tax protest organization, and was once a resident of Crane.

He was the subject of a nationwide manhunt last summer in connection with the killing of two U.S. marshals in North Dakota.

Kahl was accused of shooting federal marshals Kenneth B. Murir, 53, of Fargo, N.D., and Robert Cheshire Jr., 32, of Bismarck, N.D., on Feb. 13, 1983, during an attempt to arrest him near Medina, N.D., on a probation violation charge.

His probation stemmed from a 1977 Midland federal court conviction on income tax evasion.

The 63-year-old Kahl was killed in a gunfight with police in the hills of northern Arkansas June 3, 1983.

Taste test finds pancake syrups de-'lite'-ful

By LINDA ANDERSON

Stacks of light, fluffy pancakes dotted with melted butter and smothered with syrup — what could be more all-American, down-home, stick-to-your-ribs, tummy-soothing than that?

Unfortunately, pancakes (or flapjacks, hot cakes, griddle cakes or whatever name is used) with butter and syrup can also help cause good 'ol down-home, stick-to-your-ribs fat.

Aunt Jemima, a product of Quaker foods, a long-time leader in pancake-and-waffle business, has introduced "Aunt Jemima Lite," a syrup advertised to have "1/3 less calories" than regular syrup. (Although the syrup has 1/3 less calories, it isn't a no-cal syrup, just lower-cal.)

Television commercials for this new product show people who taste two different syrups and pick Aunt Jemima Lite over their "regular syrup" because it is supposedly much thicker and richer. I can't resist a challenge like that.

We compared Aunt Jemima Lite with regular Aunt Jemima syrup and Log Cabin syrup (from General Foods) for flavor, thickness, price and advertising accuracy. All three syrups were taste-tested by adults and teenagers. (The 3-year-old tester also sampled all three, but they were all "Aunt Jemima Lite" to her.)

The first surprise I discovered was none of the three syrups are labeled "maple syrup." Both regular Aunt Jemima and Log Cabin contain "maple sugar syrup (2 percent)," according to the labels, and all three contain natural and/or artifical flavor (which I guess means maple flavor). But none of the three are described as "maple syrup," and for good reason — none of them taste like maple syrup.

In price, the three products were identical — $1.29 for a 12-ounce plastic bottle. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

None of the testers could really see a difference in thickness of the three syrups either, although one teenager said she thought the Lite was "a little thicker, but not much."

In the taste test, the adult male and one teenage tester chose the Aunt Jemima Lite over the other two brands by a very slim margin. The other teenager liked regular Aunt Jemima best and the adult female chose Log Cabin. All of the testers said they could detect very little difference in the tastes of the three syrups.

Aunt Jemima Lite is advertised as having "1/3 the calories" of regular syrup. That sounds wonderful, but according to label information the syrup still has 60 calories per two tablespoon serving. (How many people really use only two tablespoons of syrup when eating pancakes? Two tablespoons of sryup is barely enough to wet the top of a stack!)

One other strange item I discovered when I checked ingredients listed on the three syrup's labels was the Lite syrup, which is supposed to be lower in calories than the other two, lists sugar syrup as its first ingredient. Federal regulations require ingredients to be listed on labels in descending order with the largest amount listed first.

All three syrups tasted fine, but none are considered "maple," the traditional flavor for pancake syrups. And none of the three tested seem to be better in any way than the other two.

Although the principle of eating fewer calories and thereby reducing weight and/or becoming in better physical condition is a fine one, I cannot understand why lower-calorie pancake syrup can have much effect on such a program. Aunt Jemima Lite syrup, while it tastes fine and has 1/3 fewer calories than regular syrup, isn't that much "lite"-er and still contains enough calories to be fattening. Pancakes alone are fattening. And if a person is going to eat pancakes (or waffles, for that matter) with syrup, why bother with a lower-calorie syrup? How much difference can it make?

BETTER BUSINESS

Home 'improvement' often rip-off

By LINDA TRUITT

It's that time of the year again. Already, door-to-door solicitors are approaching homeowners and offering to pour asphalt, repair roofs or spray trees.

Unfortunately, every year some homeowner or small business is taken by these itinerant workers because they believe their sales pitch. Don't let the victim be you.

The usual pitch is materials were left over from another job and you will be charged a fraction of what the job is worth. What usually happens is the job will be done incorrectly or incompletely and the materials will be of inferior quality. And you can be certain your check will be cashed quickly to avoid having you stop payment on it.

In recent years the schemes have varied. Several years ago, two men went door-to-door and convinced homeowners to have their wood shingle roofs sprayed with a substance represented to be linseed oil. The sales pitch involved scaring the homeowner into believing the likelihood of fire was greater if the shingles became dry or cracked. By paying $450 to have his roof sprayed, the homeowner was guaranteed the fire risk would be dramatically reduced.

Other schemes involve house painting with paint that washes off after a big rain, installing "lightening rods" made of cheaply fabricated metal dipped in metallic paint and using worthless chemicals or crankcase oil to seal roofs and driveways or even spraying trees for bugs.

This year, as in the past, asphalt is a big seller. Most of the time the asphalt is poured directly on the ground with no preparation such as a caliche foundation. And even though the worker will indicate he is giving you a bargain, the price is always higher than what would be charged by a legitimate paving company.

The usual price quoted is $1 per square foot. A local paving company would probably charge about $5 per square yard. Just this week, one local citizen paid $1 per square foot for a new asphalt driveway that was poured incorrectly and will have to be repaved.

If someone comes to your door wanting to make repairs, first find out if they have a permit from the police to sell door-to-door. If they do not, contact the police immediately.

Next, verify the business address. Most door-to-door solicitors will use the address of an answering service which may not have a permanent address for the solicitor.

Last, ask for references. If it is claimed materials were left over from another job, tell the solicitor you need to verify his story. Don't just talk to the person over the phone; go look at the completed job.

As a final note, many itinerant workers ask for money in advance to buy materials. Unless you are sure the workers will come back, don't give them any money. Many homeowners have been stuck with uncompleted jobs after paying in advance.

More women entering medical profession

Hearst Feature Service

When a 30-year-old female chief resident in obstetrics and gynecology at Stanford University announced last summer that she was pregnant, her department chairman not only called her pregnancy "presumptuous" and a "disservice" to colleagues and patients, he also said he would no longer consider accepting female residents in his program.

The chairman's words outraged the entire university. He has since recanted and resigned his chairmanship. But his initial comments highlighted one reaction in a male bastion to the unprecedented influx of women into medicine.

Nationally, the number of women entering medical school has risen from 8 percent in the first-year class in 1961, to 14 percent in 1971, to 28 percent in 1981 — a 250 percent increase. One-third of the 1982 entering class at Harvard was female, and 42 percent of the University of California at San Francisco's 1981 entering class was female.

Between 1970 and 1980, women have taken 65 percent of the newly-created first-year class positions in American medical schools. By 2000, they will be in their 40s and will profoundly influence medicine.

The immediate problem, say many professionals, is the women have not yet made it into the teaching and administrative jobs in medical schools in large numbers.

Horse schooling shows planned

The Midland Spring Dressage Schooling Show will be presented at the West Wind Farm on North Midkiff Friday and Saturday and the Hunter Jumper Schooling Show will be Sunday.

The 1984 horse show judge will be Heather Irbinskas of Tucson, Ariz., and the artistic judge will be Everett Bingham of Midland.

The show will begin at 3 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

New to the 1984 season is the "National Kur Championship," awarded to all levels. The competition will be judged by two judges — a technical dressage judge and an artistic judge. "Kur" is a category of freestyle riding, with accompanying music.

Classes will provide training-level through third-level categories, flat classes and freestyle.

The Hunter Jumper Schooling Show will begin at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, judged by Haynes Stephens and Barbara Magruder. The show will feature categories such as Chicken Hunter, for novice horses and riders judged by jumping over a low fence; Equitation Over Fences, in which rider is judged on ability to ride over a series of jumps; Mar-Tex Medal, in which the rider judged on "pleasure-type" riding and riding over fences; Hunter, in which horses are judged on quiet and even ability to jump a series of fences; Jumper, in which the horse in judged on jumping ability; and Flat Classes, including categories such as Leadline, for those who have not ridden, trotting and Dollar Bareback, whereby the rider sits on a dollar and the jackpot is awarded to the contestant who sits on a dollar the longest.

DEAR ABBY

Surgical relief available for impotent men

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from "Better Than Ever," whose sex life was improved by therapy despite her 44-year-old husband's impotence following surgery: Although the letter didn't describe the therapy, one option to overcome impotency should be publicized — surgical implantation of a penile prosthesis.

There are many types of penile prostheses being implanted by specially trained urological surgeons, but the most natural is the Scott inflatable type, which has been in use since 1973.

Impotency can be caused by diabetes, vascular disease, paralysis, medication for hypertension, radiation therapy etc., but far too often these patients are told that their impotence is either "all in their heads" or something they must learn to live with.

Unfortunately, many health professionals hesitate to discuss penile implant surgery, which is neither new nor a fad. I am a registered nurse, and the urologist for whom I work has given many requested interviews to the media on the subject, but few were publicized. (He was told that although the subject is important and interesting, it's too "risque" for the general public!)

Abby, do you think that publicizing an operation that can help restore a man's ability to perform sexually is too "risque" to publicize? — BARBARA C., ORLANDO BEACH, FLA.

DEAR BARBARA: No. The news of Dr. F. Brantley Scott's invention appeared in my column in 1973. (A wealthy South American businessman sent a cable from Brazil saying he wanted to fly his private jet immediately to see Dr. Scott in Houston!)

Surgeons everywhere are now performing penile implants. Interested parties should ask their urologists for the names of surgeons who specialize in it. Or they should contact their county (or state) medical societies.

DEAR ABBY: A teen-age girl wrote, "My boyfriend, Roger (not his real name), is in big trouble with my parents because they caught him in my room at 2 a.m."

In your response you said, "Roger had better respect your parents' rules or his real name will be 'Mud.'"

Since you obviously were making a pun on the name of Roger Mudd, you should have spelled it with two "d's."

Incidentally, Abby, do you know where the expression "Your name will be mud" originated? — HISTORY BUFF

DEAR BUFF: Yes. John Wilkes Booth, the actor who assassinated President Lincoln, broke his leg while making his getaway. The doctor who set Booth's leg was Samuel Alexander Mudd.

DEAR ABBY: In this rather smallish community, where everybody knows everybody else's business, there is no one I can ask this question of for obvious reasons.

Can a divorced man marry his ex-wife's niece? She is the daughter of his ex-wife's sister. Since the divorced man is no longer related by marriage to this young woman, and they never were related by blood, I can see no reason why they could not be legally married. Or would it be considered incestuous? — SMITTEN IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SMITTEN: Arthur Groman, my California "legal eagle," says, "Regarding incestuous marriages: According to California Civil Code Section 4400:

"'Incestuous marriages. Marriages between parents and children, ancestors and descendants of every degree, and between brothers and sisters of the half as well as the whole blood, and between uncles and nieces or aunts and nephews, are incestuous, and void from the beginning, whether the relationship is legitimate or illegitimate.'

"Laws vary from state to state, but I would be astonished if any state were to describe a marriage between people related only by a former marriage as incestuous."

(If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

New tobacco ad campaign smoking-hot issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging that a tobacco company's campaign to reopen discussion about smoking and health will mislead the public, three national health groups are calling for an end to the project.

The organizations said Thursday that the advertising campaign by the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., of Winston-Salem, N.C., should be halted because it leaves the erroneous impression that there are doubts about the ill effects of smoking.

The American Cancer Society, the American Heart Association and the American Lung Association jointly opposed the tobacco company's planned series of advertisements concerning smoking and health.

Reynolds announced last month that it will place ads in newspapers and national magazines which call for "an open debate" on the causal link between smoking and diseases.

"We want to try and substitute rational discussion for the emotionalism currently surrounding smoking," said Edward A. Horrigan Jr., company chairman. "By stating our position on these issues, Reynolds Tobacco is adding another dimension to the tobacco industry's communications effort."

Dr. Gerald P. Murphy, president of the cancer society, said the campaign is an "elaborate and subtle attempt of the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. to make something that is not reasonable seem as if it were."

"The first Reynolds ad in what will be a series states that some may 'question our motives'," Murphy told a news briefing. "The American Cancer Society strongly urges every citizen to do just that."

The health groups blasted the campaign, saying it is designed to raise doubts among consumers about the relationship between smoking and such conditions as cancer and heart and lung diseases.

Dr. Antonio M. Gotto, heart association president, said "the relationship between smoking and heart disease is beyond scientific dispute. We are appalled that an attempt is being made to reopen the case against cigarette smoking by questioning the scientific evidence."

Exhibit ends Sunday at Museum of Southwest

Sculptor Lincoln Fox stands in the Museum of the Southwest's Stables Gallery with his work "Victorio's Dream."

From Staff Reports

Closing Sunday at the Museum of the Southwest in the Stables Gallery is the exhibition "Lincoln Fox — Sculptor: Ten Years of His Work."

Born in Morrilton, Ark., in 1942, Fox was raised in San Angelo, where his lifelong fascination and affinity with Native American philosophy began. At The University of Texas at Austin, he began his career as an artist. Initially he worked as a painter, but soon discovered that, through sculpture, he could better express himself and his philosophy.

He continued to sculpt while enrolled in the masters program at the University of Dallas. However, it was not until he pursued his master of fine arts at the University of Kansas that he learned to cast bronze, a technique which changed his artistic career.

When asked several years ago why he choose to be a sculptor, he replied, "First of all, I'm a sculptor because it's part of me. It's natural and was never preconceived. I thought at first that I wanted to be a painter, my paintings were good and they sold, but this was before I discovered sculpture. The transition of physical form to sculpture is more immediate than in painting; I simply couldn't help myself."

In all of his work, Fox is striving to capture, describe and communicate the spirit of man. To him, the American Indian, with whom he feels a spiritual harmony, is the most pleasing symbolic medium for his message. Their myths and legends are especially attractive because of the openness of expression they allow. Fox cautions against misinterpretation of the pervasive Indian imagery, saying, "I create symbols of man, endowed with their cultural traits. Symbols thus created, although visually bound to the Indian, are first and foremost symbols of man."

An important inspiration for his work is the dreamworld and its images. One of Fox's best known and most critically acclaimed sculptures, "Victorio's Dream," on display at the Museum, is one of a series of seven pieces dedicated to the subject of dreams. Fox has become fascinated with the freedom afforded by dreams as opposed to traditional themes and subjects. He repeatedly concentrates on the dreamworld because he believes that the symbols of dreams are universal in significance and timeless in duration, thereby reaching and affecting a greater audience.

Fox admits to having been influenced by Michelangelo, Rodin, Brancusi, Henry Moore, Leonard Baskin and Marion Marini. He says that each, like himself, broke away from realism specifically for the purpose of heightening emotion and capturing the spirit or vitality of the subject. This distortion of proportion can be seen in such Fox pieces as "Transformation," "Love Flute," "Winter Shaman" and the "Duck Catcher." All are in the Museum exhibit.

Since the late 1960s, Fox has participated in almost 70 exhibitions across the United States and Canada. He has been honored with one man shows at the Smithsonian Institution, the Kennedy Galleries, New York City, and numerous museums and galleries throughout the Southwest. Prince Charles is among those who collect his work.

In 1978, 1980 and 1981, Fox was included in invitational shows at Midland College. The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum has commissioned several sculptures for its permanent collection.

A member of the National Sculpture Society and the National Western Artists Association, Fox was a founding partner in the Shidoni Foundry, Tesuque, N.M.

All works are for sale and proceeds go to the Museum. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Record 'love letter' to singer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kim Fields, who stars as Tootie on NBC's "The Facts of Life," has her first record out and it's a love letter to superstar Michael Jackson.

The record, "Dear Michael," was written especially for her and produced by Hal Davis and Elliot Willensky. Davis wrote "I'll Be There" for the Jackson 5, and Willensky wrote "Got to Be There," Jackson's first solo hit.

Miss Fields and Jackson's sister, Janice, are close friends and occasionally spend the night at each other's homes.

Senile cataract starts at 35

Senile cataract appears to have an earlier onset in certain African areas than in other parts of the world, with incidence becoming significant in the 40-to-50 age group. A recent report from Nepal indicates that in a certain population group there, cataract apparently starts at about age 35.

Local museums host Smithsonian events

From Staff Reports

The Smithsonian Institution will share some of its vast educational resources with Midland area residents Saturday through Wednesday. The Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and the Museum of the Southwest will host a five-day series of events which features lectures and seminars highlighting current Smithsonian research.

The series is being brought to Midland by the Smithsonian National Associate Regional Events Program, part of the institution's membership organization. There are about 2 million Smithsonian Associates across the country, more than 2,000 of whom live in the Midland area.

"We hope to provide members and the public with a first-hand glimpse of Smithsonian research activities," says Charlene A. James-Duguid, program manager, Smithsonian National Associate Regional Events Program. "At the same time, we hope to foster a greater awareness of the many supurb museum exhibitions and activites available at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum and the Museum of the Southwest the year round."

In addition to the two museums, co-sponsors for the program include the Midland Hilton, EAA Aviation and the Institute of Lifetime Learning-American Association of Retired Persons.

The schedule is:

— Saturday, "Treasures of the Smithsonian," 7 and 8:45 p.m. Ms. James-Duguid will present a slide-illustrated lecture on the Smithsonian's best known treasures, including the Wright Brothers' flyer, the first ladies' gowns and the Hope diamond. Italian harpist finally makes it to Carnegie Hall

ROME (AP) — After years of "pushing and pleading," Italian harpist Elena Zaniboni steps on the stage of Carnegie Hall on Friday for her New York debut and what the organizers call the first solo harp recital in the 92-year-old theater.

"I want to demonstrate that the harp is a good solo instrument," she said before leaving for New York. "Just as it was popular in ancient days, I am sure it will regain its popularity some day."

Mrs. Zaniboni, 45, compares her long effort to establish the harp as a "satisfying solo instrument" to the late Pablo Casals' contribution toward making the cello a popular solo instrument at the turn of the century. .

Her Carnegie Hall recital comes nearly three years after her appearance at Milan's La Scala Theater for the first solo harp recital there.

"The most difficult part of my career and music-making is to convince concert organizers that a solo harp recital can be just as exciting as a piano or violin recital," she said.

Young artists competition winners will be guest artists for symphony

The 1984 National Young Artists Competition performing winners will be the guest artists for the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale's sixth Subscription Concert set for this weekend.

Concerts are Friday at Odessa's Permian High School Auditorium and Saturday at Lee High School Auditorium. Both performances are at 8 p.m. The Midland performance is sponsored by Petroplex Savings of Midland.

Held this January in Midland, NYAC hosted a field of 61 contestants from throughout the United States. The annual competition, which rotates between Midland and Odessa, includes college and secondary school divisions. Both have piano, strings and wind instrument categories. The college division also includes a voice category. Each year, the four selected as performing winners return to play with the symphony.

This year's performing winners are Gloria Justen of Houston, violin; Helen Sim of Scarsdale, N.Y., piano (both in the secondary division); Judy Stone of Chicago, Ill., cello; and Richard Dowling of Houston, piano (both in the college division).

The program will feature Miss Justen in a performance of the allegro moderato movement from Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto in D, Opus 35; Miss Sim, the moderato movement from Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2 in c minor, Opus 18; Miss Stone, Variations on a Rococo Theme for Cello, Opus 33 by Tchaikovsky; and Dowling, Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in e-flat.

In addition to the NYAC winners, the performance will feature trumpet soloists Thomas Fairlie and Dale Sterling in Vivaldi's Concerto for Two Trumpets in C. Fairlie and Sterling are members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony and the Lone Star Brass Quintet.

Single admission tickets will be sold at the door.

'Much Ado About Nothing' opens

ODESSA — The 16th annual Odessa Shakespeare Festival begins tonight with Stephen F. Austin State University's production of "Much Ado About Nothing."

Production times are Thursday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and a morning matinee Friday at 10:30 a.m. at the Globe of the Great Southwest.

"Much Ado About Nothing" pits a determined bachelor, Benedick, against the man-hating Beatrice. As with many of Shakespeare's women, Beatrice possesses a quick wit and great beauty. When Beatrice and Benedick come together, the result is a most unlikely romance.

Next up will be Juan de Alarcon's classic Spanish comedy "The Truth Suspected" performed by The University of Texas at El Paso March 15-17 at 8 p.m. and a 10:30 a.m. matinee March 16. Ruiz, a contemporary of Shakespeare, spins the tale of a young university student whose penchant for lying lands him in much trouble as he woos his bride to be. He discovers too late he has wooed the wrong woman.

Closing out the Globe's festival will be Shakespeare's "Othello," a tragedy of love, jealosy and revenge, performed by North Texas State University March 22-24 at 8 p.m. and a 10:30 a.m. matinee March 23. At the center of the action are Othello, a Moorish prince, Desdemona, his beautiful and faithful wife, and Iago, Othello's "friend" whose manipulations destroy Othello and Desdemona.

Admission for each production is $7 for adults, $4 for students and senior citizens or with a Globe Season ticket. For reservations and information call the Globe, 1-332-1586.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD WANT AD
1. IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, it's better to start your advertisement with the location.
2. BE CLEAR. Readers react more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. One of the most important considerations of any advertisement is to include the price.
3. MAKE IT EASY for the reader prospect to reach you. ALWAYS INSERT your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time to have prospects contact you.
4. THE GREATEST READER RESPONSE can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe. The thrifty 15 day plan is best and costs less per insertion. There are also special monthly rates for those who want to keep their name and offers before the public each and every day. Cancel when you get results, the charge will be the rate earned at the time of cancellation.
5. PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good classified ad.
6. CLASSIFIED READERS ARE already interested in buying used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are in the market to buy. Give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.
7. WANT ADS THAT FAIL do so not through any lack of readership, but because they are often quickly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.
8. TO PLACE YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in The Midland Reporter Telegram where you reach the active Classified market.
