Seized American

KUWAIT — Iraqi police have seized at gunpoint an American bomb disposal expert working in a disputed and ill-defined border area, officials said, and the United States demanded his release Friday. The incident in an oil-rich strip between Iraq and Kuwait is the latest to raise tension between Washington and the Baghdad government, and it coincided with U.N. rejection of an Iraqi request to put off a visit by weapons inspectors. The Iraqi police took contractor Chad Hall away Thursday afternoon after arguing with him and two Pakistani workers over whether he was on Iraqi or Kuwaiti land, said U.N. spokesman Abdul-Latif Khabbaj./9A

Low-interest loans

Businesses in eight Texas counties, including Midland County, are eligible to apply for low-interest loans to help recover from the impact of excessive rainfall, hail and high winds that hit Texas between May 22 and June 12, U.S. Phil Gramm announced. The closing date for loan applications to cover damage is May 11, 1993. The Small Business Administration provides assistance to small businesses that have sustained economic or physical injury resulting from natural disasters. In addition to Midland County, other counties included are Andrews, Borden, Dawson, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard and Martin.

Documents missing

WASHINGTON — Prosecutor Lawrence Walsh questioned Ronald Reagan last summer in California about a possible cover-up in the Iran-Contra scandal, and highly classified documents used in interrogating the ex-president disappeared after the interview, sources said Friday. The FBI is trying to recover the material, which a Walsh aide packed in a suitcase and checked at curbside with an airline at Los Angeles International Airport, said sources who spoke on condition of anonymity./7C

Columbus plight

WASHINGTON — For decades, schoolchildren have been told of the heroic Christopher Columbus, an Italian explorer who sailed three Spanish ships to find a new route to India, and in the process "discovered" America 500 years ago. But as the Quincentenary celebration begins, critics of the Columbus legacy are decrying such stories as sentimental and romantic, and some want to paint the explorer as a perpetrator of crimes against humanity./5C

Energy bill draws good reviews from industry

By Jack Z. Smith
N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH — For once, independent oil producer Charlie Seely is happy with Washington.

He's beaming over Congress' passage this week of the National Energy Policy Act, which is expected to be signed into law by President Bush. The legislation includes $1.1 billion in tax breaks to encourage independent oil and natural gas producers to drill more wells.

"It's the first time we've had anything to smile about in a long time," Seely said. "It's been a long time since we've had anything come out of Congress in our favor.

"Now, I can go back to work," said Seely, a veteran oilman who operates more than 100 producing wells but has yet to drill one this year.

Sheriff Painter releases names of fired deputies

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Concerns voiced by Midland County jail inmates prompted an internal investigation that led to the firing of four jailers and the resignation of another, Sheriff Gary Painter said during a news conference Friday.

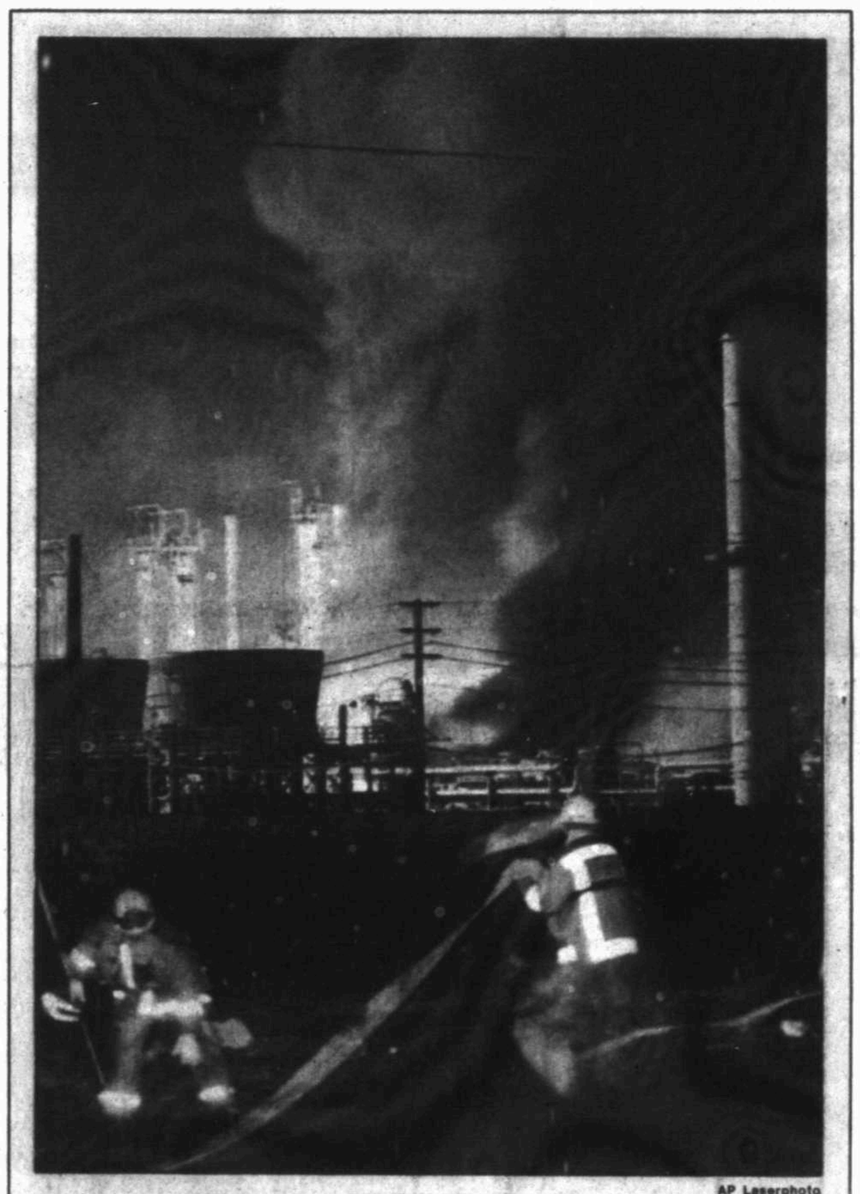

But the terminations "had nothing to do with any violation of the law. . . . It was a personnel problem," Painter said.

Painter released the names of those fired as a result of an open records request by the Reporter-Telegram.

The four terminated were Joey Odom, Adena Barron, Eddie Mancha and Lynn Pittman. The officer who quit was Lyndon Yarbrough.

Bush stands firm; Clinton rejects 'ploy'

■ Democrat says strategy of criticizing his anti-war efforts was cooked up in the White House by 'extreme right-wingers.'

By Karen Ball
Associated Press writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Bill Clinton on Friday rejected President Bush's criticism of his anti-war efforts two decades ago as a political ploy hatched by "extreme right-wingers." Bush declared, "I'm not going to back away from it one single bit."

Bush returned to the emotionally charged issue, shrugging off Democratic contentions that he is a desperate candidate resorting to smears in hopes of closing the gap in the polls just 3½ weeks before the election.

He decried "the liberal elite . . . trying to call me Joe McCarthy," referring to the senator who became notorious in the 1950s for unsupported charges.

"I said I didn't think it was right to be demonstrating against your country in a foreign land when soldiers are being held captive and soldiers are dying in Vietnam. And I feel strongly about it," Bush said.

Public chooses topics to study during debates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Koonce of Memphis, Tenn., is worried about affordable health care. Troy, Mich., resident Alvin Prevost is concerned about congressional inaction. Given the chance, they'd ask the presidential candidates about those issues.

What would you ask President Bush, Bill Clinton and Ross Perot if you had the opportunity? The Associated Press asked people what questions they'd pose.

Besides health care and Congress, subjects ranged from Social Security to racism to prenatal care to AIDS.

"The cost of health care increasingly takes more and more of our earning power and it's discouraging," said Koonce, a tour bus agent. "Every year, our insurance premiums are going up and up and up."

Prevost, a retired architect, said he believes congressional inaction is "the

EPA dismisses charges against 32 oil producers

Staff report

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has dismissed charges and fines against 32 oil producers who were charged this summer with illegally disposing of water in a playa lake near Hobbs, N.M.

"We feel this is the appropriate action on the part of EPA," said Harry Spannaus, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, which helped lead a concerted fight against the EPA action. "The fines never should have happened in first place." He

UTPB students petition for graduation changes

By Myra Lee Salcedo

ODESSA — As UTPB enrollment grows, the university needs to become more responsive to the students, and an immediate need is to change graduation conditions, according to more than 600 students.

"Packing students and their families into a stuffy gym really puts a damper on a ceremony we should remember for the rest of our lives," said a 1989 graduate of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

The student, who is now working on a master's degree, asked that her name not be used. "My family drove to Midland from Colorado to my graduation, and almost weren't ad-

B-17 crew reunites at Airsho'92

■ Airmen reminisce about their service in World War II.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The mission was also the cause: "Get the job done."

Win the war, crush the purveyors of evil, free the oppressed, preserve freedom, and go back home . . . if you survive combat.

That's what they did — the aircrews of the Eighth Air Force out of England during World War II and the Allies' other fighting units the world over.

Among the millions of soldiers, sailors, marines, and airmen in World War II were thousands of fighter and bomber crews, including John Scott's B-17 Flying Fortress crew, whose job was to do its bit to cripple Nazi Germany's industrial power by daylight bombing raids.

"I had the best crew that was in the group," Scott said of the 95th Bomb Group of the U.S. Army Air Corps' Eighth Air Force.

Scott's aircrew survived 25 missions from late 1943 into early 1944.

And five of the nine living members of that B-17 crew are in Midland this weekend to celebrate their lives and camaraderie and to attend the Confederate Air Force AirSho'92 today and Sunday at Midland International Airport.

Their goal was to survive mission after mission: to get on target, drop bombs, head home. The insurance against the attacking German Luftwaffe Focke-Wulf Fw-190 and Messerschmitt Bf-109 fighters were the B-17's own armament of .50-caliber machine-guns all around and escorting Republic P-47 Thunder-

Courthouse adds security

AUSTIN (AP) — The Travis County Courthouse is initiating security checks at all entrances to the building, using metal detectors, X-ray machines and armed deputies.

The checks, which started Friday at 7 a.m., are meant to eliminate weapons in the courthouse and reduce the threat of violence.

To funnel all courthouse visitors through two checkpoints, three of the building's five entrances are being closed.

A new security system already is in place at the Gardner-Betts Juvenile Justice Center for child custody hearings and other emotionally charged proceedings.

The courthouse annex, where almost all criminal trials are held, will not have a screening procedure until at least late this year, said Lt. Jamie Page, director of courthouse security. But he said deputies routinely patrol the annex.

Developers invite farmers to France

AUSTIN (AP) — High-speed rail developers are trying to lure Texas farmers to France to see the effects of the fast train system over there on agriculture and rural lifestyles.

Texas TGV, a private consortium of French and American investors, will provide all-expense paid trips for 60 landowners along the proposed high-speed train route.

The company has proposed a $6.8 billion high-speed rail system connecting Dallas, Houston and San Antonio with trains that could run 200 mph.

Many Texas farmers have vigorously opposed the project.

David Rece, president of Texas TGV, said if the farmers visit France they will see that such a rail system would not produce any undue hardships on livestock and agriculture production.

"The Texas farmers will have an opportunity to talk privately, one-on-one, with independent French farmers and ranchers so they can find out for themselves about the environmental effects of this alternative mode of transportation for Texas," he said.

Travelers would fly first to Paris and then take trips to visit farmers in Lyon, Tours and Le Mans.

Texas TGV will select Texas farmers from a drawing. Entry forms can be found in newspapers in the counties along the proposed rail route.

Librarians plan annual meeting

Staff report

Members of District 9 of the Texas Library Association are holding their annual meeting today at Midland College. Following registration and a 45-minute business meeting, members will have a choice of concurrent sessions to choose from.

Speakers include Betty Anderson of the Friends of Texas Libraries, automation consultant Chris Peterson of the Texas State Library, editors Doug Barnett and Tom White, educators Maridell Fryar and Larry Griffin and authors Mary Frances Beverley, Marguerite Crain and Frank Sampanero.

Following the meeting's adjournment at 1:30 p.m., conventioneers are invited to a reception at Pages and Prints bookstore in Plaza Center from 1:45-2:30 p.m.

OIL: Newly passed energy bill draws favorable reviews from producers

(From 1A)

Seely that the energy bill will provide an impetus to drilling by providing greater tax incentives to investors in oil and gas wells.

But they say the bill's impact could be substantially offset by the scheduled expiration Dec. 31 of tax credits for drilling for natural gas in coal seams and tight formations in which gas deposits are especially difficult and costly to extract.

The tax credits, which in some cases have more than doubled the amount of money producers receive for their gas, will continue to be allowed through the year 2002 for gas produced from wells drilled before the end of this year.

But the tax credits won't be allowed for new wells on which the drilling begins after Dec. 31, said John Swords of Dallas, national director of the energy tax practice of the Coopers & Lybrand accounting firm.

Under Section 29 of the Internal Revenue Code, a tax credit of at least 52 cents is allowed for each 1,000 cubic feet of gas produced from so-called "tight sands"— underground rock formations in which there are rich gas deposits, but they are difficult and expensive to extract because of limited porosity and permeability in the rock.

Union Pacific Resources Co., a large independent producer with 800 employees at its Fort Worth headquarters, is among those companies that have used the Section 29 tax credits extensively in drilling tight-sands gas wells in East Texas.

Section 29 also allows a tax credit of up to 94 cents for each 1,000 cubic feet of gas produced from coal seams. Companies such as Meridian Oil, which employs 450 at its administrative offices in Fort Worth, have used these tax credits extensively in drilling for coalbed methane gas in the San Juan Basin in northwest New Mexico.

Last February, when gas prices plunged to about 90 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, the tax credit roughly doubled the amount of money that some producers received for their gas, Swords said.

Approximately 20 to 30 percent of the wells presently being drilled in the United States are ones that qualify for the Section 29 tax credits, Swords estimated. Many companies are rushing to drill these wells before the year ends so they will be able to get tax credits for production from them, he said.

"Some companies are drilling 300 to 400 wells in a particular area, just to punch as many holes as possible in the ground in order to qualify for the credit," Swords said. "Normally, they might do 20 to 50 wells. But they're trying to beat the deadline."

A proposal to extend the Section 29 credits was dropped from a tax bill passed this week by Congress. Unless the credits are unexpectedly revived, their elimination will have a downward impact on drilling activity after Jan. 1, Swords said.

That could offset much of the gain in drilling activity expected to result from the energy bill passed by Congress, he said.

The National Energy Policy Act provides an estimated $1.1 billion in tax breaks for independent producers over a five-year period. The legislation reduces the impact of the alternative minimum tax, or "AMT," thereby allowing producers to take larger tax deductions for expenses related to drilling.

While not helping the major oil companies, the legislation "ought to be extremely beneficial to the independent producers," Swords said. "Now, instead of paying AMT when they drill wells, they'll have that money to invest in new exploration."

The Independent Petroleum Association of America calls the legislation "the first step on the road to recovery for American oil and natural gas producers.'

With the plunge in drilling activity in the past decade, the number of independent oil producers has fallen from 20,000 to 8,000, the association said. The U.S. oil industry has suffered a net loss of 450,000 jobs in that period, representing nearly 50 percent of the peak industry employment of 920,300 in February 1982.

The energy bill "could result in up to 7,000 new wells being drilled and some 40,000 new oil field jobs in the coming year," the IPAA said in praising the energy bill.

Snyder Oil Co. of Fort Worth, an independent producer that expects to top $100 million in revenues this year, is among the many companies that could be helped by the bill, but hurt by elimination of the Section 29 tax credits for wells drilled after Jan. 1.

Chairman John Snyder said he thinks the new legislation could provide his company benefits of anywhere from $500,000 to $2 million annually by reducing the impact of the alternative minimum tax.

A $2 million gain would provide enough money to drill up to 10 additional development wells in the company's Wattenberg Field operations in Colorado, he said.

On the negative side, the company could find it less beneficial to drill some gas wells after Jan. 1 if the Section 29 tax credits are not extended. Snyder said 220 of the company's 4,000 producing wells presently benefit from Section 29 credits that can boost income by more than 20 percent from wells that qualify for it.

Highs to reach upper 70s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for sunny skies with a high in the upper 70s and southeast to east winds at 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be clear with a low in the mid-40s.

Sunday is expected to be sunny with a high around 80.

After an overnight low of 45, Friday's high was 88 compared with a record high for that date of 92 in 1965. The record low for today's date was 38 set in 1990.

STATE

It was clear and cool over much of Texas on Friday, but upper-level clouds from Pacific hurricane Winifred hung over the southern third of the state.

The clouds were moving into central Texas by mid-afternoon, while warm, dry air prevailed over the north. Winds across eastern portions of the region were from the south at 10 mph, increasing to 15-20 mph in the central and west.

North Texas temperatures ranged from 70s to the low 80s in some portions.

Moisture from the hurricane spread a layer of high clouds over south Texas. Temperatures reached the 70s over the far east, while the rest of the region had highs in the low to mid-80s.

Southerly winds increased during the day to 10-15 mph.

The forecast for south Texas called for partly to mostly cloudy skies, with some showers and thunderstorms appearing today.

NATION

Rain extended along much of the East Coast states Friday, causing flooding in South Carolina, and snow fell in Montana.

At midday, showers and thunderstorms extended from central New England across the lower Great Lakes and into Virginia. Rain was scattered along the coast of the Carolinas and over the upper Great Lakes.

Seven to 9½ inches of rain late Thursday and early Friday caused flooding in southern South Carolina. A freight train derailed where tracks had been washed out and two people died when their car plunged into a washout on a rural highway.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

RACE: Candidates battle before debates

(From 1A)

"I'm standing with American principle," Bush declared in Cincinnati, winning applause from the national Fraternal Order of Police, which had just given him its endorsement.

Clinton, in Kansas City, Mo., preparing for Sunday night's debate, pointed to published reports that said Bush's latest line of attack was designed at an Oval Office meeting.

The Democrat rejected Bush's contention that he was expressing what was "in my heart" when he made a campaign issue of the Democrat's anti-Vietnam War activities and 1969 trip to Moscow.

"It is now obvious. . . . Far from speaking from his heart, he was speaking from a prescribed political strategy cooked up in the White House by Robert Dornan and other extreme right-wingers," Clinton said, referring to a conservative California congressman.

"He turned the Republican convention over to the far right for two days; now he's apparently going to turn his campaign over to that," Clinton said. "It's very sad."

In a television interview earlier Friday, Bush again expressed concern about Clinton's role in anti-war protests while studying at Oxford University in England.

"I just don't think it's right to demonstrate on foreign soil or mobilize demonstrations, I believe that's the word he used, against your country's policies from foreign soil," Bush said, appearing on ABC's "Good Morning America."

"I think it's a question of judgment and character, not a question of patriotism," Bush said.

Clinton, in turn, said, "I was against the policy of the government, not against my country."

Leading in the polls, Clinton brushed off the impact of the Republican assault, calling it a last-ditch bid to get the election off the economy.

"The issue for most Americans is what are we going to do the day after the election," Clinton said. "And it's not surprising that Mr. Bush doesn't want to talk about that because of his record and because he hasn't had any proposals until the eleventh hour."

In his ABC interview, Bush said he was satisfied with Clinton's explanation of student travels to Moscow two decades ago if his Democratic rival had been truthful.

White House spokeswoman Laura Melillo said Bush, along with White House chief of staff James A. Baker III and Dornan, discussed raising the Moscow issue against Clinton during a White House meeting.

The Los Angeles Times reported that the attack on Clinton sprang from an Oval Office meeting Tuesday among Bush, Baker, Dornan and three other Republican congressmen.

B-17: Crew reminisces about WWII service

(From 1A)

Pilot John Scott and his B-17 Flying Fortress aircrew flew eight of their 25 missions over Europe in "Superstitious Al-o-ysius," a B-17 Flying Fortress assigned to the Eighth Air Force in England during World War II.

bolt fighters with their wing-mounted .50-caliber machine-guns.

Up at altitude, "You weren't worrying about Mom's apple pie and 'Hurrah' for the USA," recalled Francis "Pat" Brady, the B-17's co-pilot. "Get our job done and get home. That's the first thing you do."

The Eighth Air Force, which suffered heavy losses in crews and in its Flying Fortresses and B-24 Liberator heavy bombers, prided itself in never turning back, Brady said.

"A formation of airplanes that took off to bomb a target was never turned around due to enemy action," Brady said. Heavy weather or unforeseen circumstances, such as engine failure, may have caused bombers to turn around, "but the enemy never turned us around and sent us home," Brady said.

The five members of Scott's crew in Midland this weekend are:

- Scott, a 70-year-old retired Eastern Airlines captain from Ocala, Fla.
- Brady, a 71-year-old retired U.S. Air Force pilot from Sun City, Ariz.
- Frank Hawk, a 71-year-old jeweler in Midland, who was the crew's bombardier.
- Harold Thornhill, a 69-year-old retired pig farmer from Grassy, Mo., who was the tail gunner.
- Lincoln "Andy" Anderson, a retired 77-year-old Presbyterian minister from Great Falls, Mont., who was the crew's aerial engineer and top-turret gunner.

Not attending the reunion were the crew's navigator, John Gill of Elverson, Pa.; the ball-turret gunner, Richmond Dillon of Pasadena; the two waist gunners, Marvin Semler of Fairborn, Ohio, and Wingert Walker of Newberg, Ore., and the radio operator, the late Leonard "Pappy" Karvala of Stambaugh, Mich. Karvala was, at 43, the crew's "old man."

Eight of the Scott's aircrew's 25 bombing missions over Europe were in the B-17 "Superstitious Al-o-ysius," which was ditched in the North Sea by another crew on the bomber's 16th mission.

"It's amazing the faith the pilots and rest of the crew had in the airplane," Hawk said of the B-17. "It proved to be real stable and easy to fly" and formidable. Following a mission, Hawk recalled counting more than 200 bullet holes in the plane that brought the crew home.

Hawk said that the 95th Bomb Group's motto at the group's home field at Horsham near London was: "Let's get the bombs on the target."

In 1943 and early in 1944, the powerful P-47 Thunderbolt, armed with eight wing-mounted .50-caliber machine-guns, "carried us through the bombing over Europe," Scott said. The P-51 Mustang "came in late" in the war.

"The P-47s were the ones that protected us . . . in the main part of the air war," Scott said.

There was mutual respect between the fighter pilots and the B-17 aircrews, Hawk said.

"I never remembered anything where they (fighter pilots) claimed to be hot pilots," Hawk said.

And there was a measure of respect among "enemy" and "friendly" airmen.

"I had no animosity toward" German pilots, Anderson said. "It was just getting a job done."

Anderson recalled a particular mission "in the clouds."

"And the German fighter came over the top of us, and he waved at me, and I waved at him."

There was no time for either to shoot.

As in World War I, there was chivalry in the air over Europe in World War II.

Scott said that there was "an unwritten rule that if you were in a B-17, and you were not going to be able to make it back," the pilot would drop the landing gear.

"When you dropped your gear and started descending, the German pilots would not come in and shoot you," Scott said.

Rather, they "would circle and follow you down until you landed somewhere. They would not shoot at you," Scott said.

But, he lamented, in 1943, a crippled B-17 pilot in the 100th Bomb Group dropped his gear and started down.

"The German pilot came by and sat on his wing for awhile, and (the B-17 gunners) proceeded to shoot him out of the air," Scott recalled. "And that got back to the Germans, and from then on, the 100th Bomb Group didn't have a chance."

Thereafter, Luftwaffe pilots would single out 100th Bomb Group B-17s to avenge the death of their fallen comrade.

"From then on, they tore the 100th up every time they went up." They had violated the code of honor.

In the war in Europe, "We lost a lot more airplanes, but we fought a (relatively) clean war," Scott said. "We had warm beds and hot meals to come back to after we went on a mission. The people in the Pacific didn't. They had a different war. We fought a gentleman's war. In the Pacific, they fought a dog-eat-dog (war), I guess."

In contrasting World War II to the Vietnam War, Scott said that "I don't think there were too many people interested in the Vietnam War to fight. They had no goal. They were fighting, in my opinion, for one reason: because the country had started back into a depression, and this was the only thing to bring it out."

World War II was "completely different," Anderson said. "The attitude then was 'Let's get the job done.' We had a job to do."

SHERIFF: Painter releases names of dismissed deputies

(From 1A)

specific reasons or allegations that led to the investigation.

"As soon as it (what prompted the investigation) was made known to us, it was taken care of," he said.

During the investigation, three of the "officers chose to make false statements" and were fired about a week and a half ago. Another jailer was terminated because of "violation of policy" and for "questionable judgment." A fifth officer resigned.

The officers worked for the Sheriff's Department from two to six years.

"What they did, they were disciplined for. They paid the price," Painter said.

What the officers did will be the subject of questions on Monday by County Commissioners, who are concerned about legal liabilities, County Judge Charles "Bro" Seltzer said on Thursday.

Seltzer said he did not know what led to the terminations.

"It's none of their business," Painter said of the commissioners' curiosity.

"I work for the people of this county, and I'll continue to work for them" and not the commissioners or others, the sheriff said.

Painter also said the news media "has blown this thing out of proportion."

"The news media has been perpetuating it . . . on the verge of being libelous for things put on the air," Painter said.

Painter declined to expound on circumstances that led to the investigation, as requested by the Reporter-Telegram because "The information requested is contained within each terminated employee's personnel files and is exempt from disclosure under the employee privacy provisions" of the open records act, he stated in a written response.

UTPB: Students push for graduation changes

mitted due to overcrowding. They finally got to stand in the back row of the balcony and couldn't even get a picture of me with a zoom lens. I remember my graduation for all the wrong reasons."

The student allowed that she graduated at a time when the university held only one commencement ceremony per year. In response to the overcrowding, the university added a fall graduation several years ago. Unfortunately, fall graduates face the uncomfortable dilemma of donning cap and gown and attending the ceremony before they take their final exams.

"If you fail a final, and don't graduate, then you get to tell all your friends and relatives who watched you 'graduate,' 'Sorry, it was just a practice. We have to do it all over again'," said a UTPB senior who brought stacks of signed petitions to the Reporter-Telegram. "And," she said, "the crowded conditions haven't changed."

One petition circulated around the campus asked students if they would like to see fall graduation changed from Dec. 12, before final exams, to Dec. 19, after final exams.

"This would allow candidates for graduation to spend time with family and friends on such a memorable occasion," the petition reads.

A second petition asks students to sign in support of relocating the ceremony from UTPB to Ector County Coliseum.

"Many students at UTPB are pleased with our new four-year status. . . . Many dreams will and have been accomplished. The image of our university must be exemplified by our graduates. This is why a petition to change our locations for graduating students is vital at this time," reads the second petition.

The petitions were presented to to Carol Mahan, assistant to the president, on Sept. 18.

Students circulating the petitions said they contacted Ector County Coliseum and were told they could rent the site for the Dec. 19 date at the cost of $900.

Some students have said they would be willing to pay additional student fees to improve graduation conditions.

Edwin Sharpe, UTPB interim president, was out of the office Friday and not expected back on campus until next week. He was not available for comment.

Ms. Mahan said that she was "uncertain of the outlook" of the graduation ceremonies and suggested UTPB spokesperson Teri Brooks could reply. Ms. Brooks said UTPB registrar Nan Goodwin could better answer questions concerning the issue. Ms. Goodwin could not be reached.

EPA: Agency drops charges, fines against 32 oil producers said the fines were dismissed without predjudice.

The fines of $60,000 to $125,000 arose from alleged illegal disposal of produced waters into the New Mexico Laguna Quatro Playa Lakes (brine lakes), which according to the EPA, were actions in violation of the federal Clean Water Act.

Although such produced water disposal actions were properly permitted by the New Mexico Bureau of Land Management (BLM), the EPA theoretically voided all such permits and retroactively administered fines back to early 1991 without due notice or coordination with those charged, or those of the State of New Mexico, or BLM authority.

According to EPA officials, of the 38 producers originally charged, charges were dismissed on three who were not involved in any discharge activities and 29 were dismissed of all charges without prejudice due to lack of clarity of the EPA charge.

Spannaus said six of the operators had chosen to pay fines in order to be protected from potential future lawsuits by environmental groups.

Spannaus said the PBPA lead an effort to obtain a dismissal of the unjust charges. He also noted that efforts of both New Mexico senators Republican Pete Domenici and Democrat Jeff Bingaman, U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock, Secretary of Energy James Watkins and DOE Deputy Secretary Linda Stuntz were without question, salient to achieving a successful conclusion on this issue.

Grass fire rages west of Glasscock County

Staff report

GARDEN CITY – A grass fire raged over two to three square miles of west Glasscock County Friday evening, according to Sheriff Deputy Fred Schroyer.

Fire units from the Glasscock County Fire Department, the Greenwood and Northeast Midland volunteer fire departments and the Midland Fire Department fought the blaze that began about 4:30 p.m. and was doused by 8 p.m., officials said.

The fire appears to have ignited when a truck stopped to extinguish an electrical fire that spread to the grass, officials said.

The fire was located north of State Highway 158 and west of State Highway 137, officials said.

QUESTIONS: Citizens choose queries they would pose at debates

(From 1A)

most serious thing" and he believes a president could solve the problem. "Harry Truman did it," he said.

Here are 15 questions from a range of citizens:

1. Koonce: "How would you as president make certain that I as an average income person can continue to afford quality health care?"

2. Prevost: "As the leader of the country, can you get Congress to do something ... deal with the problems of the country rather than their own political agendas?"

3. Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., the only member of the Senate defeated in a primary this year: "During your first 100 days in office, what three things would you do to stimulate the economy?"

4. Dexter Rowland, utility company executive, Atlanta: "What would make you more effective than your counterparts in getting your programs through the Congress and actually into existence?"

5. Oradell Henry, retiree, Des Moines, Iowa: "Will you see that Social Security funds are sept separate from other federal money?"

6. Shirley McShepherd, community service agency program director, Meridian, Miss.: "What efforts would your administration make that would address the long-term concerns of low-income people in terms of housing, education and jobs and help alleviate hard-core poverty?"

7. Sen. David Boren, D-Okla.: "What do you think will determine America's ability to be a leader in the next century and what would you do to provide those assets and increase our competitiveness in world markets?"

8. From Earl Delk, electrical engineer with an auto manufacturer, Dublin, Ohio: "Would you support or oppose limits on the number of vehicles that foreign-owned automobile companies can sell in the United States or that their domestic manufacturing subsidiaries sell domestically or export to other countries?"

9. From Semellah Abdullah, psychologist, Chicago: "Why is there such a disparity in the aid given to European nations and Israel as compared with that given to Somalia, Ethiopia and Haiti? Would you change that? What have you done to eliminate racism and the unfair treatment of people based on their skin color?"

10. From James McDonald, graduate student in public administration at the University of Missouri: "It seems that at a time when the global marketplace is becoming increasingly competitive and the need for a skilled, well-educated work force is increasing, funds to pay for a college education are getting increasingly scarce. Why is that? What is your plan to help college students pay for their educations and why is it superior to those of the other candidates?"

11. From Ellen Dadisman, Florida Rehabilitative Services spokeswoman who specializes in children's issues, Tallahassee, Fla.: "What would you do to ensure that every woman has access to prenatal care and family planning services?"

12. From Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, Washington: "Given that none of our major economic competitors — Japan or Western Europe — use tax dollars or vouchers for private schools, does it make sense for America to adopt such a plan?"

13. From state Rep. Joseph Courtney, Democrat, Vernon, Conn.: "What is your plan for defense diversification and conversion into nonmilitary products?"

14. From Jon Schladen, Dover, Del.: "In reducing the deficit, where would you concentrate."

15. From Tim McFeely, executive director of the Human Rights Campaign Fund, a Washington-based homosexual rights lobbying group: "More than 150,000 people have died of AIDS in America and the government is spending approximately $800 million to find a cure. What would you do in the next four years to find a cure for AIDS?"

Education board calls for $3.6 billion spending hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Education recommended Friday that the Legislature increase school spending by about $3.6 billion over the next two years.

That would include extra funds for higher teacher salaries and a longer school year for some students.

The board's recommendation is about $3 billion more than state leaders have said will be available to add to school spending in 1994-95.

Gov. Ann Richards said in a letter to Meno that the state may be able to provide an additional $645 million for public education and stay within available revenue.

The board delayed considering another $1.7 billion funding request that would cover inflation and growth in student population so Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno and staff could take another look at the figures.

The legislative recommendations, approved 10-2, include additional professional development for teachers and would total an estimated $3.6 billion over two years if fully implemented by lawmakers.

The board said it could cut $1.4 billion from those recommendations by trimming staff development and extra classes for students who could be at risk of being held back a grade.

As approved Friday, the board's recommendation would:

— Provide 30 additional instruction days in 1993-94 for students in kindergarten through second grade who are low-income and limited in English, and for students in third and fourth grades who have not mastered the state basic skills test.

The less-costly plan would add 30 half-days for all eligible students in first grade the first year, then add second-graders the following year.

The classes would be required for eligible students if school districts chose to offer them. The current school year is 180 days long.

— Raise teacher salaries 9 percent annually to reduce the gap between Texas teacher pay and the national average. Texas' average salary is $30,034 and the national average is $36,428, said Texas Education Agency spokeswoman Della May Moore.

Judge issues less stringent limits on protest

HOUSTON (AP) — A state judge who imposed a limit on protesters outside Houston abortion clinics during the Republican National Convention has modified the restrictions in a new order.

State District Judge Eileen O'Neill granted a temporary injunction Thursday that bans protesters from demonstrating on the sidewalks surrounding Planned Parenthood and 10 other abortion clinics. It also prohibits protesters from coming within 10 feet of anyone who seeks access to the clinics or their parking lots.

It allows up to six individuals to demonstrate and counsel women near the clinics, but prohibits them from using sound amplification devices and requires them to stop counseling if asked by the client.

'What she's (judge) doing there is purporting to regulate the activities of speech and press, rather than just prohibit it. So that is a step in the right direction. However, that is not enough to save the injunction from being unconstitutional.'

—Richard Schmude
attorney

"What she has done is create a perimeter and say if you have something to say, you have to say it in a normal tone of voice. That's what this order is fundamentally about: It's about respect," Kathy Patrick, attorney for the clinics, said.

The ruling supersedes a temporary restraining order Ms. O'Neill issued in August that expired Sept. 3. The restraining order had prohibited protests from within 100 feet of any clinic door or 25 feet from any client or worker.

But Richard Schmude, the attorney who represents one of the defendants, Rescue America, said he was surprised by Ms. O'Neill's new ruling.

"What she's doing there is purporting to regulate the activities of speech and press, rather than just prohibit it. So that is a step in the right direction," Schmude said. "However, that is not enough to save the injunction from being unconstitutional."

Grand jury refuses to indict rape suspect

AUSTIN (AP) — A woman expressed outrage over a grand jury's refusal to indict a rape suspect who wore a condom at the woman's request.

"I was raped by a man and now I'm being raped by society," the woman said.

But the suspect, Joel Rene Valdez, 27, said the woman consented to having sex.

"She's the one who gave me the condoms. If she didn't want to, why would she give me the condoms?" he said.

Valdez told police he had sex with the woman after hiding in her apartment. The woman said she asked the stranger, who was carrying a knife, to wear the condom because she wanted protection from sexually transmitted diseases.

After the no-bill by the grand jury, police filed a burglary charge against Valdez stemming from his entry into the woman's apartment. He is being held in lieu of $10,000 bail.

Valdez said he resents the new charge. "When they told me (the charge was) burglary, I couldn't believe it," he said from jail. "I don't think that's right."

The woman said she feels relieved that Valdez remains jailed, but that the incident has turned her life upside down. She moved from her home and has spread her belongings and pets among friends. She also plans to buy a gun.

"No one is ever going to touch me again. I'd rather be dead than go through this again," she said.

"It's really unfortunate for her because she was able to protect herself. Now, that protection is being used against her," said Lynn Thompson Haas, executive director of the Austin Rape Crisis Center.

"Just because she asked not to be hurt doesn't mean she's consenting. Where could this lead? If a victim makes any request, is it consent? It sets a dangerous precedent," she said.

Prosecutors were surprised at the no-bill but would not discuss why the grand jury reached that decision.

Candidates duel over federal agency

AUSTIN (AP) — Railroad Commission candidates Lena Guerrero and Barry Williamson continued dueling Friday over Williamson's record as head of the federal Minerals Management Service.

Williamson, a Republican, said Ms. Guerrero's accusations that he mishandled the agency were off base and that he made significant improvements there.

"Guerrero is once again leading with fiction and ignoring the facts," Williamson's campaign said in a statement.

Ms. Guerrero this week began airing TV commercials that cite a U.S. House committee report that was critical of the agency Williamson headed from 1989 to 1991.

The Minerals Management Service is responsible for collecting royalties from companies that lease federal lands for mineral development, including oil and gas drilling. The Railroad Commission oversees the oil and gas industry in Texas.

Ms. Guerrero's campaign followed the commercials by referring to a 1991 U.S. Interior Department report that raised concern the minerals service was "undercutting federal revenues by accepting bids on offshore oil and gas tracts that may be too low."

Chuck McDonald, Ms. Guerrero's press secretary, said the scrutiny shows Williamson did a poor job.

"Barry Williamson cheated the American taxpayer out of money they were rightfully due," McDonald said. "The public record of his 'Washington experience' clearly shows that he failed to collect royalties, undersold oil properties, failed to enforce fines and generally ignored the needs of the taxpayer."

Williamson's campaign said Ms. Guerrero was distorting his record to divert attention from the controversy over her academic background and failure to obtain a college degree as she had claimed for 12 years.

The Republican said he worked to correct problems that had existed at the minerals service before he took over.

"Before Williamson arrived as the fourth director in seven years, the agency had been repeatedly criticized by Congress. Williamson consistently worked to improve the agency," his statement said.

In other developments Friday:

— Supreme Court Justice Oscar Mauzy again questioned his Republican opponent's use of a law clerk in completing requirements for a master's degree.

Mauzy said Craig Enoch, chief justice of the Dallas-based 5th Court of Appeals, "has been less than candid with his explanations of his taxpayer-financed master's degree."

Enoch acknowledged that he used a state-paid briefing attorney to help him research and write a thesis for the degree.

Mauzy, a Democrat, questioned why Enoch spent campaign funds for a 1991 trip to the masters program at the University of Virginia law school. "If he believed the use of state employees, state equipment and state time was justified, why did he pay his expenses to the University of Virginia out of campaign expenditures?" Mauzy asked.

Enoch released a statement Friday quoting Virginia law professor Daniel J. Meador as saying "a judge may use his law clerk or legal assistant in research."

It quoted Meador as saying it was a common and "entirely proper" practice for judges in the graduate program to use research assistants as Enoch did.

Iraqi police seize American in ill-defined border area

KUWAIT (AP) — Iraqi police have seized at gunpoint an American bomb disposal expert working in a disputed and ill-defined border area, officials said, and the United States demanded his release Friday.

The incident in an oil-rich strip between Iraq and Kuwait is the latest to raise tension between Washington and the Baghdad government, and it coincided with U.N. rejection of an Iraqi request to put off a visit by weapons inspectors.

The Iraqi police took contractor Chad Hall away Thursday afternoon after arguing with him and two Pakistani workers over whether he was on Iraqi or Kuwaiti land, said U.N. spokesman Abdul-Latif Khabbaj.

Associates of Hall in Kuwait, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Iraqis put a gun to his head, ordered him into his car, then forced him to drive away with them.

U.N. observers, banned under Security Council cease-fire regulations from acting as police officers, did not intervene.

The area where Hall was grabbed had been part of Iraq but was returned to Kuwait in May under the findings of a U.N. commission. Baghdad still considers it Iraqi territory.

Lacking signs of demarcation, it has been the site of previous seizures of Westerners by the Iraqis and clashes as recent as this week between Kuwaiti and Iraqi police.

"We are trying to do whatever we can for his release," said Khabbaj. "We know the border is not marked, that is why we have those problems around here."

Hall, in his 50s and from the Houston area, was working with Environmental Health Research and Testing of Lexington, Ky., which is helping clear hundreds of thousands of tons of ordnance left over from the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

Richard A. Boucher, the U.S. State Department spokesman, said in Washington that the United States had demanded Hall's release. U.S. Ambassador to Kuwait Edward W. Gnehm said the embassy also was working through diplomatic channels to try to secure Hall's freedom.

At the United Nations, Iraq's U.N. ambassador sought to ease tension with the United States. Nizar Hamdoun told reporters Hall "is safe and in good health," and he said he hopes the incident will not turn into a major crisis.

Hamdoun said he had no instructions yet from his government about Hall's detention. But he added that he hoped "things could be resolved through diplomatic means rather than to get into any situation whereby a crisis may emerge.

"I don't think that we are interested in that," he said.

A U.N. assistant secretary-general, Kofi Annan, summoned Hamdoun on Friday to press for Hall's release.

Hamdoun confirmed U.S. reports that he was working through diplomatic channels to resolve the dispute but declined to elaborate on the private conversations.

The Polish ambassador in the Iraqi capital, who looks after U.S. interests, said the government there told him he would get a report today.

The incident coincided with the United Nations' rejection of an Iraqi request to delay sending a team of weapons inspectors to Baghdad next week. The Iraqis wanted the trip put off until after the U.S. presidential election Nov. 3.

There was no indication the border incident was connected. In the past, the central government in Baghdad has not always been aware of arrests by its forces along the border.

But the next few weeks are widely seen as sensitive, with speculation Baghdad could choose to provoke President Bush in the run-up to the election.

U.N. creates 'no-fly' zone

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Rebel Serbs reportedly carried out air attacks on two Bosnian cities Friday even as the U.N. Security Council imposed a ban on military flights over the former Yugoslav republic.

In voting Friday to establish a "no-fly" zone over Bosnia, the Security Council rejected enforcement measures such as aerial patrols or orders to shoot down violators.

Rebel warplanes bombed the northern Bosnian town of Gradacac eight times, Croatian radio said. It said air attacks also were carried out in the northern town of Jajce, which has been without power and water for three months.

Elsewhere in Bosnia, rebel Serbs launched a new round of ethnic purges in the north and drove thousands of Muslims and Croats from their homes, U.N. officials said.

With winter approaching, the push to bring food and water to Sarajevo has taken on added urgency. For a second day, U.N. troops escorted utility crews trying to restore electricity and water service.

But bad weather hampered the week-old international airlift of food. Only four flights were able to land in Sarajevo on Thursday, a fraction of what is necessary to stave off starvation and sickness.

"The people are living in miserable conditions," said Mik Magnusson, spokesman for the U.N. peacekeepers in Sarajevo. "You have no heating. Food is extremely limited now."

"Many people clearly have nothing and are living on the handouts from neighbors, maybe a bit of sugar," he said. "There is no running water and no toilet facilities and no electricity."

More than 14,000 people have been killed in Bosnia since Serbs rebelled against a vote in February by majority Muslims and Croats to secede from Serbian-dominated Yugoslavia.

The Serbs are trying to carve out their own republic within Bosnia, possibly as a prelude to uniting with Serbia.

The Muslim-led government in Sarajevo wants to preserve a single state with decentralized authority. Croats, while nominally accepting the Muslim-led government, also seek greater autonomy.

Although the three warring groups have been accused of purging areas they control of other ethnic groups, the international community has blamed the Serbs most for creating concentration camps and committing atrocities.

In Geneva, the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said Bosnian Serbs began new expulsions of non-Serbs this week around the northern city of Banja Luka and opened a camp 20 miles south of there.

Spokeswoman Sylvana Foa said 6,500 ethnic Croats and Muslim Slavs driven from Serb-controlled areas reportedly were being held in an open field surrounded by barbed wire. She said about 20,000 non-Serbs had fled the city in recent days.

"The situation in Banja Luka and surrounding areas is deteriorating," she said in Geneva. "The expulsion of people from these areas is being carried out systematically and with enormous repression."

She said the camp is apparently a transfer point for people being loaded on buses headed for Travnik, a city to the south controlled by Bosnian government forces.

The director of the Bosnian government's refugee bureau in Croatia, Mosadik Borogovac, said 50 to 100 people were killed after being taken from a bus en route to Travnik. He said young men who could be drafted into the Bosnian army are routinely killed in areas that are routinely killed in areas that are "ethnically cleansed."

In the town of Kljuc, Serbs gave the remaining 4,000 people — mostly Muslims and some Croats — 24 hours to get out of town Thursday, triggering a mass dash to Travnik, Foa said.

Scientists create first birth-control vaccine

By Vijay Joshi
Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India — Scientists said Friday they have created the first birth-control vaccine for women, one that is effective for an entire year with a single injection.

Preliminary tests suggest that the vaccine may act by preventing the fertilized egg from sticking to the wall of the uterus.

It is the first birth-control device that makes use of a woman's immune system. All other methods either physically block contraception — such as condoms, diaphragms, IUDs and sterilization — or use steroids and hormones that are foreign to the body — such as the pill or Norplant.

Other researchers welcomed the news.

"This is a very good vaccine," said Dr. Rosemarie Thau of the New York-based Population Council, a non-profit research organization. "It may not be in its optimal form, but it certainly shows that a birth-control vaccine can work."

She said that the precise action of the vaccine wasn't known, and it is possible that it acts by preventing fertilization of the egg. If true, that could alleviate the concerns of anti-abortion activists who oppose contraceptives that act after the egg is fertilized.

Such concerns have provoked opposition to the so-called French abortion pill. Even when used as a morning-after contraceptive, as reported earlier this week, the pill acts after the egg has been fertilized.

The vaccine's inventors, who have conducted clinical tests for seven years, believe it is safe, effective and reversible. But it will be several years before tests are completed and it can be sold in India.

"We have proved that the vaccine does indeed protect women without any side effects. That's a very important milestone," said Dr. Gursaran Prasad Talwar, a leading immunologist conducting the vaccine project.

Talwar's team was spurred on by India's desperate need for an answer to the rapid population growth, which is seen as the biggest hurdle to this country's emergence from poverty.

Thau said Population Council scientists and others in several countries including the United States also are trying to create a birth-control vaccine, but so far none has claimed success equal to that announced by Talwar.

"He is the most advanced. Nobody else is near Dr. Talwar," Thau, the director of the Population Council's Contraceptive Development program, said in a telephone interview.

She said her group and Talwar, a senior scientist of the New Delhi-based National Institute of Immunology, regularly exchange information on the progress of their research.

The vaccine has been successfully tried on 174 women in India, said institute spokesman Suresh Chandran. The vaccine starts wearing off after one year.

India's population could bypass China's early next century by growing from 875 million people to 2 billion, according to a new study by the Washington-based Population Crisis Committee.

"Our population is the highest priority problem. It decimates whatever progress we make," said Talwar.

When he announced plans to work on the vaccine in 1974, he was called a crackpot.

"But I also received some bouquets," he said. "It will now be our endeavor and hope that before the decade closes we will have a vaccine that is usable and affordable."

The Indian government's 40-year-old family planning program has floundered because of its concentration on sterilization.

Because it is irreversible, sterilization appeals primarily to older women who have completed childbearing, said Gurdayal Chadha of the Family Planning Association of India.

He said condoms and pills are not easily available in villages, which form 70 percent of India.

The main element of the vaccine is beta-hCG. When it is injected into the body it triggers the production of antibodies to hCG, or human chorionic gonadotropin, a hormone essential in sustaining pregnancy.

Once the antibodies neutralize hCG, which is produced only after fertilization, the fertilized egg is unable to stick to the uterine wall and is ejected in regular menstruation.

Talwar's team found that beta-hCG can be produced in several ways, including extracting it from the urine of pregnant women.

Hitler's headquarters turn tourist attraction

GIERLOZ, Poland (AP) — In a bizarre bit of Polish entrepreneurship, Adolf Hitler's fortress in the deep forests of northeast Poland — Wolf's Lair — is being turned into a resort of sorts.

There's a hotel housed in former officers' quarters, a gift shop and dancing until 2 a.m. at the "Hitler's Bunker" disco. Locals can even lease the site for weddings.

The project makes some uneasy, despite the operators' insistence it won't become what one German newspaper called a kind of "Nazi Disneyland."

In Poland, which has gone capitalist with a vengeance, a business opportunity can be far more compelling than the burdens of history — or questions of taste.

The president of Wolf Lair Co., Tadeusz Waszynski, doesn't brood about the site's dark past. "Let the historians ponder it," he says. "This place is a unique tourist attraction."

From Wolf's Lair, the Nazis' eastern front headquarters in what was East Prussia, Hitler propelled the Reich's war machine for nearly a thousand days, starting in June 1942.

The complex, 130 miles north of Warsaw, had bunkers with walls 30 feet thick, and a 300-acre net of camouflage that was changed with the seasons. In underground war rooms, Hitler conferred with senior aides like Martin Bormann and Hermann Goering.

Wolf's Lair is also where Hitler had his closest brush with assassination. On July 20, 1944, Col. Claus von Stauffenberg planted a bomb during a staff conference. But the meeting was moved from a bunker to a barracks due to the heat, and Hitler escaped death.

Much of the fortress is in ruins. There are immense piles of reinforced concrete from bunkers tumbled by the explosive charges of fleeing German sappers nearly five decades ago.

The complex is being leased by a small consortium of Polish and Austrian investors with holiday properties elsewhere in the region. Local authorities could no longer afford to maintain it.

The investors have put more than $150,000 into the project so far, but manager Ryszard Stunza says they expect it will be several years before they turn a profit.

Poland has other troubling tourist sites. There has been difficult discussion about how to meet the obvious need for accommodations and services for those visiting the Auschwitz concentration camp.

Lee loses 2nd straight

Rebs' 21-14 loss to OHS drops Lee to 1-2 in district play

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Why Odessa High always seems to give Midland Lee fits nobody knows, but it happened again Friday night at Memorial Stadium, with the Rebels suffering from the conniption variety.

Lee lost its second straight District 4-5A football game as Erik Hartman flawlessly guided the OHS offense and the Broncho defense stunted its way into the Rebel backfield all night in a 21-14 upset.

The Lee loss comes on the heels of a 44-34 defeat at San Angelo last week and drops the Rebels to 4-2 overall, and a scary 1-2 in district. OHS, meanwhile, upped its mark to 3-4 and 1-2.

"It was a big, big win. We needed it after the way we've been struggling lately," said OHS head coach Bill Barron.

"What a job Erik Hartman (57 rushing yards, and 8-of-15 passing 76) did of leading this offense. The thing about Erik as a quarterback is his dad gum capability to get the job done. He did all the things we needed him to do and he did it while not making any mistakes.

"Defensively we used multiple formations and stunted various people from various directions. We felt we had to make them throw the football or we'd never be on the field offensively."

And that's exactly what the Broncs did. Stacking the line with eight men, OHS' defense shot the gaps into the Lee backfield, acting the proverbial monkey wrench in the works of the Lee offensive machine. When the Rebs did try to throw, completing 5-of-15 for a mere 38 yards, the OHS defenders were quick to pressure Lee quarterback Courtney Turner.

But the play that set the tone and gave

ODESSA — Odessa Permian still has to walk through District 4-5A's lion's den over the course of the next month, but old Mojo is beginning to look like its old self.

Permian blasted Midland High by a 56-0 score at Ratliff Stadium Friday night, handing the Bulldogs what is believed to be the school's second worst thrashing in history. The worst came also this year in a 57-0 loss to Midland Lee a couple of weeks ago.

Permian was relentless, rolling out 454 rushing yards and scoring on six of seven possessions with its first team for a 42-0 margin with 9:02 still left to play in the third quarter. Permian reserves took over after that.

Meanwhile, the Mojo defenders notched its third consecutive 4-5A shutout, allowing the Bulldogs a meager 42 yards rushing and 86 passing yards. The Permian defense also hauled in three Bulldog interceptions.

Midland High's losing streak climbed to 15 with the loss, but few teams would have put the plug on the Mojo offense on this night.

Mustangs drop Steers, 17-7

Turnovers spell doom for Big Spring Steers

By Joe Wyatt
Staff writer

BIG SPRING — The first one set up an Eric Langehenning field goal and the second one thwarted Big Spring's final drive. But all of them bunched together is what turned the tide in Andrews' 17-7 victory here Friday night.

Turnovers.

Big Spring leads District 3-4A with 29 of them.

But the takeaway title presently belongs to Andrews, which padded its league lead to 26 Friday at the Steers' expense.

The Mustangs came away with seven — count 'em, seven — turnovers and used the miscues to start no fewer than seven possessions inside Big Spring territory.

"We watched films of their (Steers) games, like against Lubbock High, where they turned the ball over around seven times," said Andrews defensive back Heath McBeth, who set the tone when his first of two interceptions set the Mustangs up at the Steer 28-yard line midway through the first quarter.

"I was just out in the flat and it came right to me," McBeth said. "It was like a big burden was lifted off our shoulders. After that we started to play like a team."

And Jay Sawyer started to roam through the Big Spring backfield. Andrews' 179-pound defensive lineman ended Big Spring's last two possessions in the first quarter with fumble recoveries.

"We knew they could fumble the ball, but we didn't think they would fumble that many times," Sawyer said. "I just saw the balls come free and fell on them."

Twice. Yet that was just half the battle. Andrews had four fumble recoveries in all, two in each half. And McBeth and Josh Lujan each picked off Big Spring quarterback Wes Hughes in the fourth quarter.

"What can you say?" asked Dwight Butler, Big Spring's bewildered coach. "We don't coach them (turnovers) and

BIG SPRING — In the ever crazy world called District 3-4A, Friday night's Andrews-Big Spring contest could be summed up with one word — typical.

Andrews took advantage of seven, count them, seven Big Spring turnovers and used superb field position to move atop the district with a 17-7 win over the Steers. The Mustangs move to 6-0 on the year and 2-0 in league play while the Steers dropped to 2-3-1 and 0-1-1.

"It was a crazy night," Andrews coach W.T. Stapler said. "We had no consistency on offense. If not for the turnovers, they probably kick our lungs in."

Big Spring coach Dwight Butler agreed.

"We turned the ball over too many times," Butler said. "It's been that way all year long. We're very discouraged about that."

The Steers have now turned the ball over 29 times this year, tops in the district.

"Our defense played great," Butler said. "But every time we got something going, we'd turn the ball over."

Two of the Steers' miscues led to 10 of the Mustangs' 17 points. If not for the turnovers, the game might have ended as a scoreless tie.

Eight of Andrews' 14 drives began in Big Spring territory but the Steer defense rose to the occasion almost every

NLCS: Wakefield's performance a key to Pittsburgh's Game 3 win

(From 1C)

"He was having a lot of fun, and we were just along for the ride," Van Slyke said of Wakefield. "Some rookie, huh?"

The Pirates had been shut out at home for 31 straight postseason innings by Atlanta, and even manager Jim Leyland all but admitted the series was over if they didn't win this one. The pressure on Wakefield — who had pitched only 13 games in the majors — was huge.

So was his performance.

"It's exciting to finally have a dream come true," Wakefield said.

The Pirates had been shut out at home for 31 straight postseason innings by Atlanta, and even manager Jim Leyland all but admitted the series was over if they didn't win this one. The pressure on Wakefield — who had pitched only 13 games in the majors — was huge.

So was his performance.

"It's exciting to finally have a dream come true," Wakefield said.

The first rookie in nine years to start an NL playoff game, Wakefield pitched a five-hitter for the first complete game by a Pirate since Bert Blyleven against Cincinnati in the series clincher in 1979. That was the last time Pittsburgh made it to the World Series.

Until Wakefield's remarkable performance, the Pirates didn't even look like they'd make it to Game 5 of this series. Now, they've not only proved they could score against Atlanta at home in the postseason, but also that they could win.

"I'm not one to show a lot of emotion, but this was very special to me," Wakefield said. "For the manager to show so much confidence in me to pitch me in Game 3 of the playoffs ... it was very exciting. If I had any poise, it was the confidence I have in myself."

The Pirates, who stopped their scoreless streak on Don Slaught's solo homer in the fifth, will ask ace Doug Drabek to tie the series Saturday in Game 4. The Braves counter with John Smoltz, who beat Pittsburgh 5-1 in Game 1.

"We're still in the driver's seat," said Sid Bream, who hit one of Atlanta's two solo homers. "Nobody on this club's going to lose sleep over what happened. This isn't going to affect us at all. We have Smoltz and Steve Avery going, we're happy with the situation we're in."

Van Slyke certainly wasn't. In a deep funk with only one hit in 11 at-bats and criticized for a lack of production, he doubled to start the Pirates' sixth off Tom Glavine and scored on Jeff King's one-out double, making it 2-1.

The lead didn't hold up, but neither did Glavine, a two-time 20-game winner who's yet to pitch like one in the postseason — even after Ron Gant got him back in the game with a tying homer in the seventh.

Glavine, 4-0 against Pittsburgh this season but only a 1-4 pitcher in the postseason, got into trouble again in the seventh when Gary Redus — 3 for 3 with a walk — singled with one out. Jay Bell doubled him to third.

Van Slyke didn't get a hit but he didn't need to, sending a deep drive to right field on a two-strike pitch from lefthander Mike Stanton that allowed Redus to score easily. It was Van Slyke's first RBI of the series and only his seventh in four playoffs.

"He (Stanton) made me look real bad in Atlanta, and I was trying not to strike out," Van Slyke said. "I was able to get the ball up and almost hit it out."

The lead was safe with Wakefield, the first Pirates rookie starter in the playoffs since John Candelaria in 1975 and the first overall since Philadelphia's Charles Hudson in 1983.

"We tried everything we could to get something going against him," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. "We tried moving up in the batter's box, everything. Obviously, it didn't work."

The two homers were only the fourth and fifth allowed all season by Wakefield, a former minor league first baseman who didn't starting pitching fulltime until 1989. He's 19-4 overall this season — 10-3 with Class AAA Buffalo, 8-1 in the regular season with Pittsburgh and 1-0 in the playoffs.

"He threw a great game," David Justice said. "But it's behind us. Now, we're looking forward to beating Drabek."

The homers were nearly all the damage Atlanta did to Wakefield, who baffled the Braves with dipping, darting knuckler after knuckler — even after Atlanta recruited 50-year-old minor league pitching coach Bruce Dal Canton to throw knuckleballs in batting practice for two days.

Otis Nixon tried to get Atlanta back in it, doubling after two quick outs in the eighth, but Wakefield, who struck out three and walked one, got Jeff Blauser to ground out. The Braves went down 1-2-3 in the ninth.

Wakefield, ignoring jeers of frustration from Terry Pendleton and other Braves from the Atlanta bench, didn't knuckle under to the pressure. He beat the Braves not only with his knuckler, but his glove. He twice speared line drives up the middle and another time threw out the lead runner at third on a bunt.

"The one thing that had disappointed me was the Pittsburgh Pirates weren't playing like the Pirates," said manager Jim Leyland, whose team looked flat and uninspired in losing by a combined 18-6 in the first two games at Atlanta. "Tonight, we did. We played the defense we can ... the defense we usually play."

"We finally showed why we've won 96 games," Van Slyke said. "We're a good team, but we haven't been showing it."

Just as they have for five straight playoff games, the Braves took the initial lead as Bream homered with two out in the fourth on a knuckler that stayed up around the belt. Bream has homered in three straight playoffs, with the Pirates in 1990 and against them for the Braves in 1991 and '92.

Wakefield nearly was out of the inning the pitch before, but Slaught couldn't hold a foul tip on a 2-2 pitch. Slaught made up for the foulup one inning later with his homer, the first Pirate run at home in the postseason since the eighth inning of Game 1 of the '91 playoffs.

REBELS: Lee loses 3 of 5 fumbles

(From 1B)

the Bronchos a lead one snap into the game was crafted by Roe Hubbard. The senior fullback took the ball on a straight dive off right tackle then cut outside to daylight and an 80-yard touchdown run.

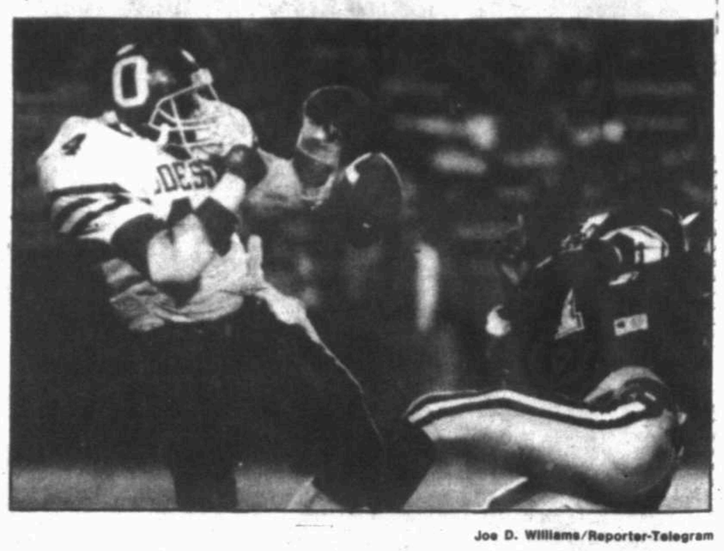

"I just hit the hole and tried to run as fast as I could. We got the blocking we needed and controlled the line of scrimmage. After a big play like that, it lifts everybody up," said Hubbard, who was the game's leading rusher with 106 yards on 12 carries.

After the teams traded punts, Lee took over at the Broncho 40-yard line and got its offense rolling. The Rebs converted a fourth-and-one at the OHS 31, then Turner scrambled for 17 yards. On the next play, following a procedure penalty against Lee, Turner ran the wishbone option to the left, faking to diving fullback Scott McLeod then turning up for a 13-yard TD run to tie the game.

In the second quarter, Lee's Undra Graves ran back his fourth kick return for a score this season, and third on a punt, as he handled Albert Seybert's 45-yard punt and took it 63 yards to put the Rebels ahead 14-7.

Just when it looked like Lee was going to take control of the game, though, disaster struck. With 2:48 to go in the first half, linebacker Mario Carrasco pressured Turner in the pocket and stripped the ball from him. After Brock Sotelo recovered the ball to give it to OHS at the Lee 33, Barron sent in a trick play.

Backup quarterback Sammy Gonzales went in at halfback, took the ball on the halfback option to the right side and hit Bryan Jones to knot the game again. Lee almost trailed at halftime when the Rebs muffed the following kickoff, but a 29-yard field goal try by Tim Tolbert with 1:12 left averted that turn of events.

Joe D. Williams/Reporter-Telegram

Odessa High's Mario Carrasco (44) pulls the ball loose from Midland Lee quarterback Courtney Turner in the second quarter.

In the third quarter the Reb offense struggled not only with the Bronchos' stunting, but the loss of starting center Chris Evans, who was injured early in the second quarter. Unluckily for Lee, Hartman did not struggle.

OHS gained its second possession of the second half at its own 43-yard line with 6:53 to go in the third period. From there, it was all Hartman.

He connected with Anthony Magana for 13 yards on the first play, then ran for five yards before Bobby Thomas busted a 19-yard run on a draw play. Hartman then found Jones for a 12-yard reception, and ran the final 15 yards of the drive on a scramble into the Rebel end zone for the game-winning score.

"We saw on the films that we could do to them what Angelo did to them and put it in the game plan. Then we executed the game plan to perfection," Hartman said.

"You have to score more than seven point offensively to win ball games," said Lee head coach Earl Miller, who watched his Rebels lose three of five fumbles. "You have to be able to have a little ball control. They deserve to win. They were just a better ball team than us tonight."

MOJO: Cooper next on list for Bulldogs

(From 1B)

"They're a good team. There is no question about that," said MHS first year coach Ronnie Reeger. "We just don't match up well with them. Permian has it going and are on top of their game right now. They're in the position that we hope to be in someday."

Permian marched for scores the first five times they had the ball for a 35-0 lead with 3:04 left in the first half. Midland High's Corey Emerson stripped the ball from Tyree Ephriam on Permian's next possession at the Permian 46 to set up Midland High's deepest foray into Permian territory. The Bulldogs moved to the 18-yard line before time ran out in the half.

Powerful Permian running back John Williams rushed for 179 yards and two touchdowns on runs of 23 and 69 yards. Other than that, Permian just used eight backs, six of which scored. Gerrod Bergen also scored twice on runs of two and 22 yards.

Permian now has an open date before jumping back into the fire with a road trip to Midland Lee, a 21-14 upset loser to Odessa High Friday. Permian coach Tam Hollingshead still doesn't think the trip to Midland will be any easier for his squd.

"I don't think the loss by Lee will make our job any easier," Hollingshead said. "This district is tough from top to bottom. We have an open week to prepare for three contenders down the stretch and it is very important how we handle this week off."

On the third consecutive shutout, Hollingshead said, "Well, that's the way we try to be at Permian High School. If you play good defense, you know you are going to be in the game. We take great pride in our defense."

Michael Gilbert led the MHS rushing game with only 13 yards while Roy Coats had 12. Quarterback Johnny Parades completed seven of 19 passes for 86 yards, but did suffer the three interceptions. Coats also caught three passes 33 yards and Roy Ratliff caught two for 38 yards. Krist Lundberg had two catches for 25 yards.

The Bulldogs got off on the wrong foot early. The MHS offense couldn't move the chains on their first three possessions, allowing Permian to score from 42, 60 and 44 yards on its first three possessions while the Bulldogs had failed to crack their own 20-yard line.

Midland High, now 0-6 on the season, will host Abilene Cooper next Friday. Cooper defeated San Angelo Friday, 35-17, to remain unbeaten in 4-5A play at 3-0. Cooper owns wins over Abilene High, Odessa High and San Angelo. The Cougars still have MHS, Permian and Lee left on its district schedule.

Lawnmower Man suspended from Friday's game

DALLAS (AP) — The high school kicker who mowed an opponent's field so he could have a better kicking surface was suspended from Friday's game, his coach said.

Eric Smith was required to sit out South Grand Prairie's game against Euless Trinity because of his unusual pregame ritual before last week's game against Weatherford, coach David Thompson said.

"We felt like it was the thing to do," Thompson said. "It was one of those things that was funny, but then it was not funny. We wanted to encourage him not to do it again."

Smith decided to mow a section of Weatherford's field after noticing on game films that the grass was higher than he preferred.

He is used to kicking off his school's artificial turf.

Two nights later, he kicked a 42-yard field goal and two extra points in South Grand Prairie's 33-23 victory.

Darling, Guzman start Game 3

N.Y. Times News Service

ALCS

OAKLAND, Calif. — Ron Darling has been here before, but insists the experience is more rewarding the third time around. Darling, who will be the A's starting pitcher in Saturday afternoon's third game of the American League playoffs against Toronto at the Coliseum, is a veteran of two pervious postseasons with the New York Mets.

"I was real young then," said the 32-year-old right-hander who was with the Mets in 1986 and 1988 postseasons. "I really didn't understand it. When the games came, I tried to pitch my best, of course.

"But this time I am trying to soak up all the atmosphere, to really enjoy these playoffs."

Maturity is not the only reason Darling has been able to revel in the postseason. He feels the difference in the approach of the two organizations comes into play.

"They really stress family here," said Darling. "When we left for the airport there were four buses for the players, wives, children, and the front-office people who are real important to the organization. With the Mets, it was just one bus, only for the players, families were not included. Oakland wants to give everyone the opportunity to relish the experience. It's great."

Of course, the A's players and front-office people will enjoy the experience a whole lot more if the A's can win the best-of-seven series, currently tied at a game apiece. Darling will have his hands full, not only because of the Jays hitters, but also because his pitching opponent is Juan Guzman.

The 25-year-old Dominican was 10-3 last season after arriving in Toronto in June. He was off to a sensational 12-2 start this year before stiffness in his shoulder, initially experienced on a July 23 game against the A's at the Coliseum, eventually put him on the disabled list.

He was just 4-3 after returning, but served notice last Thursday that he is ready. He gave the Tigers just one hit over eight innings.

"I feel 100 percent better now," he said.

Darling, whose self-deprecating sense of humor has made him an A's favorite, admits that the 25-year-old Guzman might have the edge in physical skills.

"If you put Juan into a computer, bells start ringing," said Darling. "If you put me into a computer, the computer spits me out. Fortunately, baseball is not played in a computer."

A's manager Tony La Russa says he is confident in Darling's ability, whatever digestive problems the computers might have.

"He has excellent control," said La Russa. "And when he is rested he has plenty of fastball. Right now he is the starter for Game 3 and Game 7, which says a lot. I just feel when he takes the mound we have an excellent chance to win."

Darling was 15-10 with the A's year, and included in that ledger was a pair of two-hit shutouts over the Blue Jays.

"You always feel better pitching against a team you have had success against," said Darling.

The A's traded for Darling last August, and worked hard to resign him over the winter.

Ozona rallies to foil Buffs' bid for loop win

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

STANTON — For nearly 38 minutes Friday night, the Stanton Buffaloes were well on their way to their first District 6-2A win.

That was until a skinny quarterback sparked his sleeping Ozona Lion teammates for a come-from-behind 22-21 win.

Trailing 21-7, Ozona's 144-pound quarterback Justin Castro tossed a pass between two Stanton defenders to Chris Sanchez, who raced 57 yards to cut the Stanton lead to seven points.

Two possessions later, a 56-yard punt pinned the Buffaloes at their one. The Buffaloes were not the same after that.

"I have to say that was the momentum shifter in the game," said Ozona coach Don Payne.

Stanton, 3-3, 1-2, was smothered by the Ozona offense during its last two possessions and Castro's interception return to the Buff 15 setup the winning score.

On the winning drive, Castro first fired a bullet to his tight end to the Stanton five.

Two plays later, running back Michael Faye fought his way in from a yard out to cut the Stanton lead, 21-20.

Payne then opted for the two-point conversion. "There was never any question about it. When you climb back like that, you go for the win," Payne said.

The win almost didn't come as Castro was nearly sacked, and at the last second, pitched to Jason Yeager, who crossed into the end zone.

"That kid is a tremendous player, he always seems to make something out of nothing," Payne said.

"Pain" was what Stanton coach Bill Grissom and his troops were feeling after the tough loss. "They did what it took to win," said Grissom. "That long punt put us in a hole and were never able to get out of it," he added.

"I can surely symphazize with him," said Payne of the Stanton mentor. "We lost one like that last week to El Dorado."

Before the uneventful fourth quarter, the Buffaloes, had pretty much taken the roar out of the Lions' offense. They had contained Faye, who is Ozona's breakaway running back.

The passing game, however, haunted Stanton all night. "We knew they were going to pass. We just didn't want them to beat us on the long plays," said Grissom.

Oh, but they did. On Ozona's second possession of the game, Castro, from his own 11-yard line, threw across the field to a wide open Sanchez, who then out ran the Stanton defenders for the game's first score.

Later in that period, it seemed that the Buffs were going to trail by 14 when Castro again went to the air and found Yeager for a 65 yard scoring pass. But the touchdown was called back because of a holding call against the Lions.

The penalty killed the drive and the Buffaloes had excellent field position at the Ozona 46. It took Stanton four plays to score as Ricky Lucas scored from one yard out for the tying score.

Stanton went on to score two unanswered scores. The first on a 46-yard pass from Ortiz to Eric Martel, who caught the ball in stride and blazed into the end zone.

The second score came late in the third quarter when Lucas finished off a 4-play, 45-yard drive with a one-yard plunge and a 14-point lead.

The Stanton defense then did its job as they forced the Lions to punt the ball away on their first four possessions of the second half.

The loss puts preasure on the Buffaloes, who can't afford to lose the rest of the way.

"The way the district is balanced, two losses may not be that costly," said Grissom.

Coach Payne agreed. "It's just like last week. We should have beaten Eldorado, but they came back and got us. This district is very competitve and balanced this year. I don't see this thing being decided until the very end," said Payne.

For Stanton things don't get much easier as they travel to Coahoma next Friday.

AREA FOOTBALL REPORT

Rankin wins

ELDORADO — The Rankin Red Devils closed out their non-district football campaign with a 4-1 record here Friday, as they defeated Eldorado 14-12.

Rankin, in District 8-A, opens league play next Friday when it travels to Wink.

Estacado nails Lamesa, 39-20

LUBBOCK — Lubbock Estacado's Matadors were off to a slow football start, but got well for the District 2-4A opener here Friday night with a 39-20 win over the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes.

Lamesa got 209 yards rushing from back Corey Kelly, but it wasn't enough to halt the Matadors, who put 20 points in lights in the second quarter for a 26-14 lead at the half. The Tors lead 7-6 at the end of the first quarter.

Estacado is now 2-3-1 on the season and 1-0 in 2-4A play. Lamesa falls to 4-2 and 0-1.

Lamesa jumps back into the district war Friday when the Tors travel to Frenship.

Mustangs climb to perfect 6-0

EL PASO — It took only one half for the Midland Christian Mustangs to remain unbeaten at 6-0 and open TAPPS district play with a 46-0 victory over Northeast Christian Academy here Friday.

The Mustangs scored 46 points in the first half, ending the six-man contest quickly where the game is called when a team is leading by 45 points.

Wes Adams scored two touchdowns for MC while five other Mustangs got in on the scoring.

The Mustangs are well on the way to defending the TAPPS state championship MC won a year ago.

STEERS: Big Spring visits Sweetwater next time. Andrews entered the game averaging 420.2 yards a game on offense but picked up just 184 against Big Spring, 147 of that coming on the ground.

Big Spring stuffed Andrews' running back Jonathan McDonald, allowing him just 36 yards on 14 tries for an average of just 2.5 yards a carry. McDonald, the district's leading rusher, was averaging 9.2 yards a carry.

On the flip side, the Steers were averaging 336.6 a game but could muster just 152 against the Mustangs front seven.

"Our defense was the hero of the game," Stapler said. "They did make some stands."

Things started badly for the Steers as quarterback Wes Hughes fumbled the ball on Big Spring's first play from scrimmage. The Steers recovered but the tone for the game was set.

"We just played defense like we always do," Andrews linebacker Chase Gore said. "It was the same (defense) we've been running all year, they just didn't pick us up."

Gore, along with Heath McBeth and Jay Sawyer, kept Hughes busy all night long. McBeth picked off two passes while Gore collected a pair of sacks and caused one fumble.

"It was a good win for us," Gore said. "The field position really helped us out. We were hoping to keep the defense off the field so it could rest. We just need to take care of our business the rest of the way."

A very defensive and error-prone first half yielded just three points, that coming on a 28-yard field goal by Andrews kicker Eric Langehenning. But the game was far from over.

Big Spring fumbled the ball away on its first possession of the second half and the Mustangs rumbled 31 yards on 10 plays to go up 10-0. Xavy Emiliano scored from a yard out on a drive that lasted over three minutes due to two Mustang holding penalties.

But Big Spring put together its best drive of the night on the ensuing kick off, going 80 yards on 11 plays that consumed four minutes, 10 seconds of the third quarter. Duane Edmonds scored from a yard out but the bulk of the drive came on a 47-yard pass from Hughes to tight end Oscar Cervantez.

The Big Spring defense forced Andrews to punt on its next series and seemed to have the momentum it needed, but Oscar Valencia fumbled the ball right back to the Mustangs. Andrews moved down to the Big Spring 11-yard line but came up short on fourth and 12.

But two plays later, McBeth picked off his second pass and Andrews moved to the Steer 3-yard line before McDonald fumbled on first and goal.

With 3:19 remaining in the game, Hughes tried to move the Steers down the field but 10 yards later his fourth-and-seven pass fell incomplete.

Emiliano scored two plays later on an 11-yard run to put the game out of reach.

"We didn't look too good in the first half," Emiliano said. "But in the second half, we got things working better."

Even with the Steers' slow start, Butler remains optimistic.

"We're not out of it yet," Butler said. "We still had a chance to win this game. I don't have a reason (for the turnovers). I wish I did."

Andrews plays host to Pecos Friday night while things don't get any easier for Big Spring. The Steers travel to Sweetwater Friday.

TURNOVERS: Big Spring coughs it up seven times

(From 1B)

the kids don't practice them. We'd probably pay good money if somebody would tell us how to put a stop to them.

"Every time we'd get something going we'd turn the ball over. We're very disappointed by it."

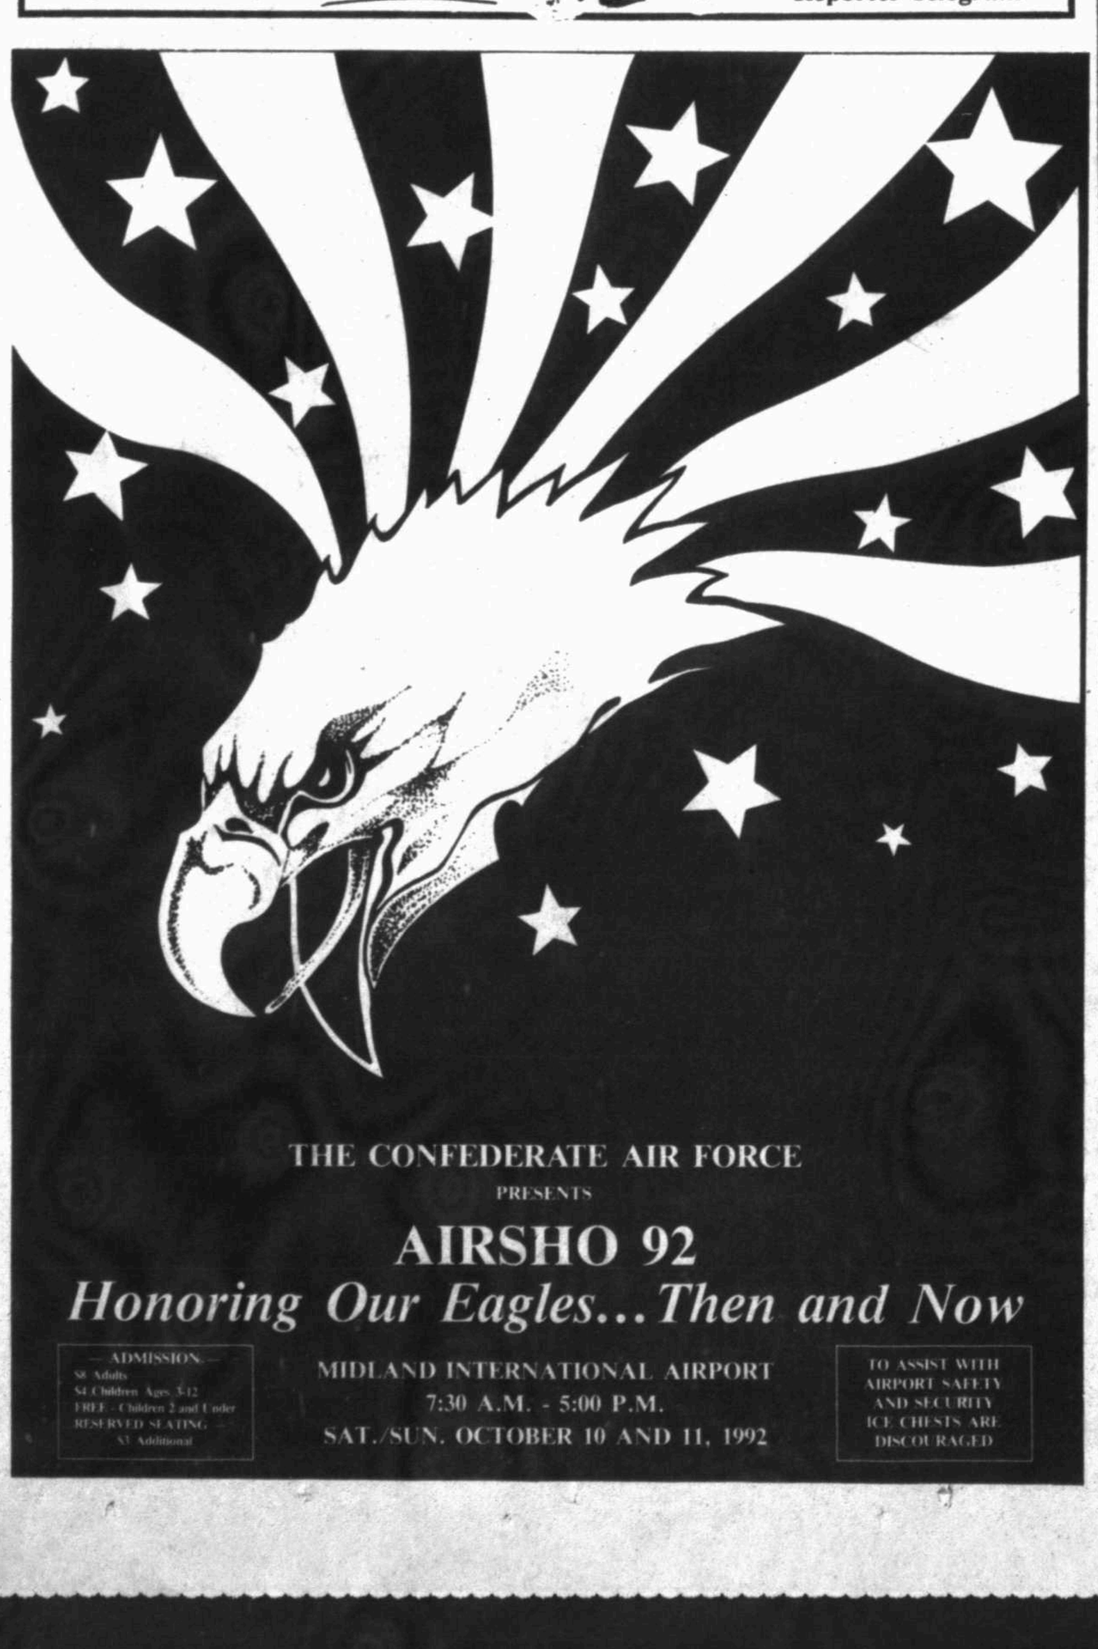

And yet Butler, whose team is now 0-1-1 in district play, knows it might have been far worse had his defense not risen to occasion after occasion. The Steers forced the Mustangs to come away empty on six of seven drives in the first half and Andews led just 3-0 at the break. And three of those marches started in Big Spring's end of the field.

But the Steers, who never punted the ball in the second half, turned the ball over on four of their six second-half possessions, scoring once on an 11-play, 80 yard drive and stalling on another drive when a pass fell harmlessly on a fourth and long try.

But Andrews, the league's offensive kingpin with an average of 420 yards a game, managed just 184 total yards against the Steers. And that means Andrews needed just about every one of the turnovers is got.

The Steers' 80-yard scoring march was eight yards longer than Andrews' three scoring drives altogether. The three began at Big Spring's 28, 31 and 13-yard lines, respectively and add up to 72 total yards.

Rockies to name boss after Series

Colorado GM says his man will be in place by draft day

Associated Press

DENVER — A decision on the Colorado Rockies' manager won't come until after the World Series, general manager Bob Gebhard said Friday.

Gebhard is committed, however, to reaching a decision prior to the expansion draft on Nov. 17.

"We've been asked (by major league baseball) not to make any major announcements before the end of the Series," Gebhard said Friday. "Somehow Marge Schott didn't get that message."

Schott, owner of the Cincinnati Reds, on Thursday told general manager Bob Quinn that his contract won't be renewed. That announcement came three days after manager Lou Piniella quit.

"Obviously, the sooner the better," Gebhard said. "But I don't want to pin myself down into making a decision before I'm comfortable we've got the right guy. Anytime between the end of the Series and the draft."

Gebhard said he is aiming for an early announcement so he can sit down with the new manager and get input about the manager's current organization that might prove insightful in the draft, as well as reach a consensus on a coaching staff.

Sources say the Rockies have narrowed the field of candidates to four: Bill Virdon, Tom Trebelhorn, Ron Gardenhire and John Wathan.

Gebhard is close-mouthed about the process.

"I have completed the first round of interviews," he said. "I'll do the second round of interviews with a select group before the end of the World Series. I feel very comfortable with the people I've interviewed, whatever that number is."

To date, the Rockies are about halfway through evaluating talent on the 26 existing major-league teams in preparation for the draft.

"We've gone through 14 organizations — 1,611 players — with our scouts so far," Gebhard said. "It's an exhaustive process. And I've read so many mock drafts, I'm not sure we're not ready to starting drafting today."

Each existing big-league team will protect 15 players but, unlike the NFL's Plan B list, the identities of those players won't be made public. "The players won't know whether they've been protected, either," Gebhard said.

After losing a player, National League teams can protect three more and American League clubs can protect four between rounds.

■ More Sports/8B

The first two rounds will end when every team has supplied one player. The third round will end after each National League team has lost a player and eight American League teams have lost a player.

The Rockies and the Florida Marlins will emerge with 36 players apiece. Free agents aren't eligible to be drafted, so they don't have to be protected by their clubs.

The list of protected players will be released to the Rockies and Marlins 16 days after the World Series ends.

Trading is allowed the day after the draft, and Gebhard said don't be surprised to see the Rockies and Marlins make pre-draft deals to select players they'll then trade away.

"We'll try to put together as good of a club as we can (for next season) but not lose sight of our long-range goal — that of developing a solid foundation of young players," Gebhard said.

"People keep telling us we need to draft sinkerball pitchers, but we'll be drafting curveball pitchers, too," he said. "The dimensions of Mile High Stadium (where the Rockies will play their first two seasons) and Coors Field (which they'll move into in 1995) are different, but we won't be looking specifically for players who'll fit in those ballparks.

"We know we'll need a center fielder who can cover a lot of ground in that big outfield in Coors Field, but we're looking for the best ballplayers, period."

Rodriguez leads Seniors Gold Rush

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Senior PGA Tour all-time leading money winner Chi Chi Rodriguez fired an opening round 4-under-par 68 Friday to take a one-shot lead in the $500,000 Raley's Senior Gold Rush.

Two-time defending champion George Archer (34-35) and John Paul Cain (35-34) trailed the 56-year-old Rodriguez (34-34) by one stroke. Six other golfers were at 2-under 70, two strokes behind the leader.

Texas tries to extend streak to four over OU

Associated Press

DALLAS — The most wanted man in Oklahoma is Peter Gardere and he's never robbed a bank or swindled a savings and loan.

Gardere leads the Texas Longhorns (2-2) against the No. 16 ranked Sooners (3-1) on Saturday in the 87th revival of their Red River rivalry with a chance to do something no quarterback has ever done: beat Oklahoma four times.

"It would be special but this is another year with two different teams," Gardere said.

Center Turk McDonald, who also has been on three winning teams against Oklahoma, admitted "it's one of those things you can't keep out of your head. It would be quite an accomplishment."

'There have been some great memories from this series. It should be exciting walking down that ramp.'

— UT head coach John Mackovic

On two occasions, Gardere has thrown touchdown passes in the last two minutes to claim victory from the jaws of almost certain defeat.

Last year safety Bubba Jacques returned a Sooners fumble 30 yards for the game-winning touchdown with 13:30 to play.

Oklahoma Coach Gary Gibbs has been on the losing end of all three Gardere victories since he took over from Barry Switzer.

Gibbs said Gardere not only bugs him but he has respect for him.

"He doesn't have a great completion percentage but he always makes the clutch throw," Gibbs said. "It looks like they have more big-play ability right now. They're creating more big plays offensively than they have in the last couple of years."

Oklahoma linebacker Reggie Barnes, who is from Grand Prairie, Texas, said he's tired of losing to Texas and facing the homefolks.

"I don't want to end my career at the University of Oklahoma not beating Texas," Barnes said. "The way we've lost in the last three years hurts the most. I'd rather it be total domination by either team than to have it come down that way. I think we've always been prepared well enough for them and played well. It's just been freak things."

Oklahoma rated a 10-point favorite over the Longhorns in Saturday's regionally televised border war.

Texas coach John Mackovic will get his baptism of fire in the rivalry.

"There have been some great memories from this series," Mackovic said. "It should be exciting walking down that ramp."

Oklahoma is led by junior quarterback Cale Gundy, the third most efficient passer in the nation and holder of numerous Sooner passing marks.

Two years ago Gundy questioned Gibbs playing calling as the Sooners lost.

Injury absentees spoil weekend in college football

Associated Press

When they take attendance at some of Saturday's major college football games, there will be some prominent absentees.

No. 18 Mississippi State begins life without quarterback Sleepy Robinson, the Southeastern Conference's leading rushing quarterback. Robinson's college career ended when he tore a ligament in his left knee against Florida, leaving coach Jackie Sherrill without his most potent offensive weapon for Saturday's game against Auburn.

No. 19 UCLA has more trouble than that. The Bruins will be without linebacker Arnold Ale and wide receiver Sean LaChapelle, two of their best players, when they face No. 11 Stanford.

Oklahoma State opens the Big Eight season against No. 14 Nebraska, without three players — receivers Shannon Culver and Bert Milliner and quarterback Gary Porter. All are missing after being suspended for the game by coach Pat Jones.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 1 Washington entertains No. 24 California, No. 2 Miami is at No. 7 Penn State, No. 3 Michigan is home against Michigan State, No. 4 Tennessee is home against Arkansas, No. 6 Alabama plays at Tulane, No. 8 Florida State entertains North Carolina, No. 25 Clemson visits No. 10 Virginia, No. 12 Georgia entertains Georgia Southern, No. 13 Notre Dame is at Pittsburgh, No. 15 Syracuse is home against Rutgers, No. 16 Oklahoma meets Texas, No. 17 Georgia Tech is at Maryland, Oregon visits No. 20 Southern California, Illinois is at No. 21 Ohio State, Lousiana State plays at No. 23 Florida, and Texas Tech visits No. 25 North Carolina State.

The college football weekend began Thursday night when No. 9 Colorado defeated Missouri 6-0.

Robinson's season-ending injury at the end of a 21-yard run, robbed much of Mississippi State's enjoyment of its 30-6 romp over Florida last week.

"Anytime you lose a great athlete, it's going to take a lot out of your offensive team," Sherrill said.

Backups Greg Plump and Todd Jordan move in as replacements. Together, in limited action, they have minus six yards rushing compared to 135 for Robinson, who was second in total offense in the Southeastern Conference last season.

"We won't change the schemes at all," Sherrill said. "We may emphasize different plays than we emphasized, but the scheme will not change. You can't change 10 other people because of one."

How about two?

UCLA, jolted in the season opener when starting quarterback Wayne Cook went down, lost Ale, their best defensive player, with a broken leg, and may be without LaChapelle, one of their best offensive players, after he suffered a cracked rib in last week's 23-3 loss to Arizona.

"When you lose your best offensive and defensive players, that is not good," coach Terry Donahue said. "We've got a lot of games left. We've got to repair and patch the best we can."

Complicating Donahue's task is that UCLA faces Stanford, which is coming off an emotional come-from-behind victory over Notre Dame.

Porter, Oklahoma State's freshman quarterback, looked like a yo-yo last week, being sacked 10 times in the Cowboys' 13-11 loss to Texas Christian. He'll have a chance to recover this week, suspoended by Jones after breaking an unspecified team rule.

Jones also left two receivers, Culver and Milliner, home, making things even tougher for his developing offense.

"As you learn about 'em a little more, I think there's probably degrees of optimism," Jones said of his offense. "This is not going to be the team of '88 (which included future pros Barry Sanders and Hart Lee Dykes)."

Tarkanian opens Spurs' first practice

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Spurs embarked on a new season Friday with a new coach and a lot of new players.

The first two orders of training camp business: getting to know each other and working on defense.

"My stress is always on defense — defense and a running game," said Spurs coach Jerry Tarkanian. "I've always felt that a consistent good team has a good defense."

Tarkanian, the former UNLV coach entering his first NBA season, said one of the biggest differences between college and professional basketball is preseason preparation time.

"The difference is what we did today would have been wonderful if we had four weeks of this, but we have one week," Tarkanian said after working with the team for two hours on defensive fundamentals.

The Spurs play their first preseason game on Oct. 16 against the New York Knicks. The regular season opens Nov. 6 at Sacramento.

Only seven players from the 1991-92 season are on the San Antonio roster this year, and one — starting forward Terry Cummings — is expected to be out most or all of the season recovering from knee surgery.

Tarkanian said he expects returning players David Robinson, Sean Elliott and Antoine Carr to be team leaders and hopes to rely on guards Vinny Del Negro and Lloyd Daniels in the backcourt.

"I'm going to take my time through the training camp. We're going to go little by little," Tarkanian said.

"We have eight exhibition games, and we're going to try to build our defense the right way," he said. "If we build it the right way then I think we have a chance of getting better as the year progresses."

Among the veterans joining the Spurs are Larry Smith and Dale Ellis. Sidney Green, Greg Sutton and Willie Anderson are the other players returning from last season.

Robinson made a quick exit from the first camp session, but had said Thursday afternoon he was looking forward to the season, especially now that his agents and Spurs management have worked out an interpretation of a salary clause in his contract.

"I want to play," Robinson said. "That's my job, and that's what I love to do."

Elliott said it was strange seeing so many new faces at practice.

"It's different. I've got a lot of guys running at me I don't know who they are. I mean, I know who they are, but it's not the same as having a familiar face in practice," Elliott said.

Elliott said the returning players will be busy learning Tarkanian's new system.

"I felt like a goof ball out there today fumbling around. So it's going to take me a while," he said.

Carr, who Tarkanian said lost 20 pounds during the off-season, said he likes Tarkanian's coaching style.

Lakers to donate preseason ticket sales to storm victims

HONOLULU (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers, in town to open their NBA training camp, will donate $1 from every exhibition ticket sold to to Hurricane Iniki relief.

Lakers General Manager Jerry West said Friday he expects the team to donate at least $15,000 since Blaisdell Arena holds about 7,500 people for basketball.

The Lakers end their Hawaii camp with games Oct. 16-17 against the Portland Trail Blazers.

"This shows our commitment to coming back here and having this be our home away from home," West said.

West challenged others individuals or companies to match the team's donation, and Mayor Frank Fasi was quick to do so, saying he would give a dollar for every ticket purchased.

Cook's Vegas lead grows to five strokes

Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — John Cook, who knows something about letting "sure things" get away, is taking nothing for granted despite a bulging five-shot lead in the Las Vegas Invitational.

"I still have to shoot under par on the weekend if I'm going to have a chance," Cook said Friday after a 10-under-par 62 placed the outcome of this five-day event in his hands alone.

"You have to come out and attack. If you don't, somebody is going to run right over you," Cook said.

But it was Cook himself who did the running away Friday in ideal playing conditions in the third round of this long-term, 90-hole tournament.

PGA Vegas

Already assured of the best season of his 13-year PGA Tour career and now poised to make it one of the great ones, Cook completed a rotation over three desert resort courses with an effort that matched the best score on the tour this season.

He birdied eight of the first 10 holes on the new TPC at Summerlin and had himself in position to make a run at a score in the 50s.

The easy-going, self-deprecating Cook, however, said no such thought ever crossed his mind.

"I'm not that good. I'm not that smart. I'll leave that sort of thing to Chip Beck," he said, referring to only the second 59 in tour history, compiled by Beck in this tournament a year ago.

Cook went 9-under for the day with an 18-inch tap-in for birdie-4 on the 13th, then lost any chance he may have had for a sub-60 score when he missed the green and bogeyed the next hole.

Birdies on two of the last three holes, however, put him through three rounds in 196, a distant 20 under par and, possibly, within reach of the tour record of 31 under par for a 90-hole tournament, set in this event a year ago.

But that is not in his plans.

"I think it will take something in the mid-20s to have a chance, maybe the high 20s," he said.

So, despite his big lead, Cook still has work to do over the next two rounds if he is to avoid a repetition of the erratic finish that cost him the British Open title earlier this year.

Bulldog JV falls

The Midland High Bulldogs' Junor Varsity lost its first game of the season Thursday, 20-14, to the Odessa Permian JV.

The Bulldogs' got an 85 yard punt return to take a 14-7 halftime lead. Jeremy Kimball also scored on a 50 yard touchdown run for MHS.

But Permian's Scott Moore grabbed a 52-yard touchdown pass from Mike Nichols with 42 seconds remaining in the game to complete their come-from-behind win.

MHS falls to 4-1; Permian now stands at 3-1-1.

Thurman sinks ace

John Thurman recorded an ace Friday on Hogan Park's 140-yard, No. 22 hole. Thurman's feat, accomplished with an 8-iron, was witnessed by Charles Goodson, Rick Dean and Al Feeser.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEE

DID LOT'S WIFE TURN TO SALT?

BIBLICAL SCHOLARS DISAGREE! SOME ARGUE THAT THE EXPRESSION ".. BECAME A PILLAR OF SALT" WAS MERELY A CURRENT SLANG PHRASE MEANING SHE DROPPED DEAD OF FRIGHT! (GENESIS 19:24-26)

"SHE-DID-TURN-TO-SALT" SCHOLARS QUOTE ARCHEOLOGISTS WHO HAVE AUTHENTICATED THE GENESIS ACCOUNT OF A DOWNPOUR OF "BRIMSTONE AND FIRE". ABOUT 2050 B.C., NEAR THE DEAD SEA, AN EXPLOSION OF SULPHUR AND HOT SALT ERUPTED INTO THE AIR WITH A FORCE EQUAL TO A MODERN DAY ATOMIC EXPLOSION AND LOT'S WIFE, LAGGING BEHIND HER FLEEING FAMILY, WAS CAUGHT IN THE DOWNPOUR, COVERED WITH THE HOT SALT, AND THUS DIED. TO THIS DAY, BIZARRE SALT FORMATIONS CAN BE SEEN IN THE AREA!

LOT'S WIFE — SALT OR NOT? IT'S A QUESTION STILL OPEN TO DEBATE!

NEXT WEEK: THE LORD'S DELIGHT!

■ Mission Fair slated

The Outreach Council of St. Luke's United Methodist Church will hold a Mission Fair at 11:45 a.m. Oct. 18 at the church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

The 13 area organizations being represented are A.M.O.S., Casa de Amigos, Hospice, Boy Scouts, Recording Library for the Blind, Children's Clinic, Habitat for Humanity, Permian Basin Shelter for Battered Women and Their Children, Methodist Mission Home, High Sky Children's Ranch, Christmas in April, Senior Services and Samaritan Counseling Services.

Mission awareness is the focus of the event.

■ Court justice to speak

Nathan Hect, Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, will be speaking at the dedication ceremony of the newly remodeled sanctuary at Christian Church, 2608 Neely.

The ceremony will be at 2 p.m. Sunday. Hect also will be the speaker at the church's 10:45 a.m. service.

Hect graduated with honors from Yale University in 1971 and Southern Methodist University School of Law in 1974.

He was district judge, 95th Judicial District Court in Dallas County, from 1976-'81. Hect has been in his present position since January 1989.

■ Joint revival planned

Victory Center and the Jesus Way Church are hosting a joint revival Monday through Wednesday at Victory Center, 4001 W. Illinois Ave.

Jerry Murphy, one-time leader of the Murphy's Outlaws gang, will be the speaker.

For many years this gang was viewed as responsible for much of the criminal activity in the Permian Basin, said a release from the church.

Victory Center's pastor, Allen Thompson, invites the public to hear Murphy speak. for more information or a ride call 694-3034 or 689-2503.

Services begin nightly at 7:30 p.m.

■ Recovery group set

Life Unlimited Christian Center, 4224 E. Loop 338, will sponsor a co-dependent recovery group for 14 weeks beginning at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

This support group is designed to help individuals who grew up in emotionally repressive, dysfunctional families by using the 12-step approach in a Christian context.

Instructors will be Mike Taylor and David Mitchem. Both have experience in the area of codependency support.

For more information call the church, 1-362-1911 or 550-0005.

■ Workshop scheduled

The Rev. Rodger Stevens is presenting a workshop entitled "A Fresh New Voice for the Challenges of the Nineties" Wednesday at the Permian Church of Religious Science.

Stevens

Stevens, a musician, parent, former school teacher, professional baseball player, coach and businessman, is the author of "New Age Answers for Age Old Questions," "Neverendingdrop" and a book of poems, ""Bootstraps and Jumpercables."

A graduate of the Religious Science School of Ministry, Stevens said he uses analogies and metaphors to bring reality out from behind the veils for a personal glimpse at life.

"We owe it to ourselves, our children and to all of life, to take an honest look at our priorities," said Stevens.

The workshop is open to the public. Donations will be accepted. For more information call 684-4230.

■ Anniversary upcoming

White's Chapel Church of God in Christ, 1106 E. Cherry Lane, is celebrating its 32nd anniversary Sunday.

Ex-disc jockey sells 'Jesus music' collection to college

ELGIN, Ill. (AP) — A small Christian college now boasts what it believes to be one of the largest collections of religious rock 'n' roll.

"Overall, contemporary Christian music is one of American music's best kept secrets," Frank Edmondson, the former owner of the collection, said recently.

Edmondson, a former disc jockey who began collecting the "Jesus music" records he was spinning in the early 1970s, in August sold more than 3,000 tapes and records to Judson College.

It was, he said, a treasure trove for scholars looking for the roots of a music movement that has become a major industry, sporting stars like Amy Grant and BeBe and CeCe Winans.

"I just had to ask myself, is it of better use here? I'm glad that it's in capable hands," said Edmondson, who lives in the Dallas suburb of Carrollton.

Judson College, a liberal arts school associated with the American Baptist Church, paid about $7,000 for the collection, which will be archived and then made available for scholars, said Lynn Hammerlund, music librarian at the school.

"There is a major movement in Christian music," Hammerlund said. "People are just starting to study it. It's a major industry right now."

The collection includes early work from Larry Norman — described by Edmondson as the "poet laureate of Jesus music;" Agape, one of the first rock bands to come out of the Jesus music movement; and from artist Randy Stonehill.

John Fawcett, head of public services at Wheaton College, another Christian school not far from Judson, said Judson was lucky to have attained the collection.

"It's one of very few collections of primary source material," Fawcett said. "Even when they (early tapes and records) were available for sale, they weren't the type of things libraries were buying."

Christian music arose from the Jesus Movement, which sprang from the California's counterculture in the 1960s, said Fawcett.

"A lot of people in that movement began feeling dissatisfied with traditional church music — traditional hymns, formal style," he said. Musicians "took rock styles they were familiar with and Christianized them."

It was a trend that "moved gradually into a huge business," he said.

Hammerlund said Judson's collection is one of the nation's three largest. Another large collection is located at Baylor University, in Waco and the third is in private hands, she said.

Not everybody is celebrating Columbus Quincentenary

By Karen E. Quinones Miller
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — For decades, schoolchildren have been told of the heroic Christopher Columbus, an Italian explorer who sailed three Spanish ships to find a new route to India, and in the process "discovered" America 500 years ago.

But as the Quincentenary celebration begins, critics of the Columbus legacy are decrying such stories as sentimental and romantic, and some want to paint the explorer as a perpetrator of crimes against humanity.

One is Karen Fogliatti. The soft-spoken teacher from Detroit is part of a small group encamped on the east steps of the U.S. Capitol, taking only water or an occasional glass of juice, to protest the Columbus Day holiday.

She has lost 27 pounds in the past eight weeks, Fogliatti said, "to express my deep concern, and to reflect on what these last 500 years since Columbus have meant to people of color and other oppressed groups in this country."

The all-white band of fasters is just one of a multitude of groups — many of them Native Americans, African-Americans, and people of Hispanic descent — staging protests of the Columbus holiday.

The counter-Columbus movement has put a distinct damper on what once was envisioned as an extravagant celebration of the historic landing.

Cities that have historically marked the day with parades and other events are finding less public enthusiasm, and some downright hostility, this year.

In San Francisco this month, the traditional coronation of "Queen Isabella" was marred by protesters who disrupted the event with catcalls.

Several other demonstrations — or "alternatives to celebrating the Columbus Quincentenary" — were announced last week.

— In Berkeley, Calif., city officials declared that Oct. 12 would be celebrated as Indigenous Peoples Day rather than Columbus Day.

— In Washington, the National Congress of American Indians is holding a rally Sunday to mark the 500th anniversary of the day beforethe arrival of Columbus.

— In Nevada, elders of the Western Shoshone nation will hold a rally at a nuclear test site 65 miles northwest of Las Vegas on land the tribe claims to own by treaty.

— The League of Indigenous Sovereign Nations, a new political organization of allied Indian nations in the United States, Canada, and Central and South America, is planning a demonstration Monday at the United Nations in New York to demand a voting seat for Native Americans in the General Assembly.

"To us, the landing of Columbus signifies the creation of the 'big lie,'" said Benito Torres, spokesperson for the league. " People have been told that he was this magnificent incredibly brilliant white man who brought civilization and religion to savages. But this is just a cover-up and whitewashing of his policies of genocide, racism, and exploitation of people."

Rev. Emory Searcy Jr., executive director of Clergy and Laity Concerned, said at a press conference announcing some of the alternative celebrations, "It is important for all races to be aware of what happened 500 years ago."

"African Americans need to know what happened to the Arawak Indians who greeted Columbus when he got of his ship." said Searcy. "He wrote in his journal that they were generous, kind, and hospitable ... and that with just 50 men he would be able to subjugate them and make them fine servants. That was the spirit of Columbus."

There is support in other countries for the counter-Columbus movement.

In Warsaw, 50 Polish youths wearing Indian attire demonstrated outside the U.S. and Canadian Embassies on Friday to protest the Columbus holiday.

Representatives from a host of Latin American countries have visited the fasters on the steps of the Capitol.

One of the fasters is Brian Willson, who gained worldwide recognition in 1987 when his legs were severed by a train as he sat on railroad tracks at a U.S. naval station in California to protest U.S. intervention in Central America. The current fast began Sept. 1, the fifth anniversary of Willson's accident.

"It starts getting to you when you realize that your country was founded on genocide," said Willson.

Until the war in Vietnam, where he served for about six months, he supported the U.S. government, Willson said. "But when I saw all the dead mothers and children in the villages that we bombed I said, 'this can't be what I'm about,' and I knew I couldn't support it," he said.

Because of his medical condition — he also suffered brain damage as a result of the train incident — Willson began to take a soybean-based soup fifteen days into the fast.

On Tuesday, all the fasters will again be eating solid foods. The Columbus Day celebrations will be over, and so will the accompanying demonstrations and rallies. But for some, such as Torres at the league of Indian nations, the cause will continue.

"Our agenda does not end on Oct. 13," Torres said. "Our agenda is to create trading pacts and treaty unity among the indigenous nations and force the U.S. to recognize the sovereignty of our people."

Three die as floods wash out South Carolina roads

ALLENDALE, S.C. (AP) — Flash floods washed out roads and bridges Friday and caused a train derailment that closed a highway. Two people died when their car plunged into a washed out road and a baby was swept to its death nearby in Georgia.

The driver of a school bus with a half-dozen children on board managed to stop just before the edge of the large road washout where the fatalities occurred. "It's just a miracle that school bus didn't go in it," said Hampton County Coroner Gordon Rhoden.

Seven to 9½ inches of rain fell Thursday night and Friday morning as thunderstorms rolled along the Georgia line about 70 miles south of Columbia, the National Weather Service said.

More than two dozen roads were closed in Allendale, Bamberg, Hampton and Colleton counties because of flooding or washouts, the state Highway Department said.

"The roads are out, the bridges are cracking," said the coroner's wife, Brenda.

Long-distance telephone service to Sprint customers in parts of four states was disrupted when a switching station flooded.

Crews worked into Friday night to restore service to North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, spokesman Steve Dykes said. He did not know how many customers were affected. Meanwhile, calls were rerouted to other carriers.

In some neighborhoods near downtown Fairfax, water covered front porches. People rowed to their houses in boats.

George and Helen Bowers fled at 3 a.m.

"When the water is up to the second mattress on your bed you know you're going to have damage," Bowers said. "It's gonna take a lot of struggle and a lot of work to get back to where we were. By the grace of almighty God we'll get through."

Bowers estimated at least 20 families left his neighborhood. Dozens more fled from elsewhere to shelters at churches and schools. About 40 homes in the Fairfax area were evacuated, said Betty Polk, Hampton County emergency director.

A couple drowned when their car and two others plunged into a creek that washed out a culvert along a rural road in Hampton County, creating a 40-foot-wide hole, Rhoden said. The two were trapped in their car when it was swept downstream in about 20 feet of water before it lodged against tree stumps, Rhoden said.

In Allendale County, water 4 to 5 feet deep in some places washed out CSX railroad tracks in the Duck Branch community before two engines and 15 cars of a 91-car freight train derailed, said Alma Maner, a spokeswoman for the town of Allendale.

No one was injured, but there was a small leak in one tank car, and rail cars were scattered along adjacent U.S. 278 and in a creek, state health department spokesman Thom Berry said.

Texaco refinery smolders in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Escaping gas continued burning Friday at a smoldering Texaco refinery where an explosion felt 15 miles away rocked the harbor area, shattered windows and chased hundreds of people from homes.

"My first impression was it was like an earthquake," resident Elvira Jiminez said, who was awakened by the blast and fled her home.

In Illinois, a gas pipeline exploded Friday and killed one of 30 people working in the area.

Sixteen Los Angeles refinery workers were hurt slightly but there were no deaths.

The cause of Thursday night's blast in a hydrogen processing unit at the 100,000 barrel-per-day refinery wasn't determined, Texaco spokeswoman Kelly McAndrew said. No damage figure was available.

The units are used in the manufacture of gasoline and diesel fuel.

The refinery, the second largest of Texaco's four domestic refineries, was expected to be shut down indefinitely. "Until we find out what the damage is, we won't know," Mrs. McAndrew said.

Trading in Texaco stock was halted briefly Friday on the New York Stock Exchange. By the end of the trading day, it had fallen by $2.12 per share to $60.25. The news of the explosion also drove crude oil and product futures higher on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The fire that followed the blast was being allowed to burn itself out.

"They are letting off residual gas and there is a flame. They can't tell us how long it will take to burn off. If we put it out, there could be another explosion," city fire spokesman Paul Gutierrez said.

The explosion damaged several buildings at the 350-acre refinery.

The blast sent sheets of flame skyward and clouds of black smoke rose over the harbor area 20 miles south of downtown. Residents within two miles were evacuated to shelters for about five hours.

Texaco spokeswoman Barbara Kornylo said emissions were monitored throughout the fire and toxic levels never reached the danger point. "As it turned out those levels were way below the threshold for us to have a cause for concern," she said.

At Elwin, Ill., a pipeline exploded while it was being moved to make way for highway expansion, John Barnett said, a spokesman for its owner, Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.

Barnett, speaking from Eastern Panhandle headquarters in Houston, said company workers had uncovered about 100 feet of the pipe when it ruptured. The cause of the accident was unknown, he said.

"I could see a spray of gas going straight up and going into the wind," Rhonda Morrell said, who was driving on nearby U.S. 51 at the time. "I thought it was going to blow. I turned around and headed back. Just as I did, I saw it shoot up."

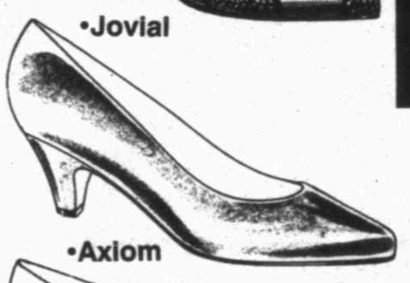

The explosion blew a truck off the road, seriously injuring a man inside, said Lewis Mahoney, spokesman for St. Mary's Hospital in Decatur. Three other people, two of them firefighters, were treated for less serious injuries, he said.

State police Sgt. Richard Kaelin said the flames had died down by 11:30 a.m., leaving a few minor grass fires.

Pornography jury convicts teacher

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — The former Phillips Exeter Academy drama teacher charged with possession and distribution of child pornography was found guilty Friday night of all charges.

The 12-person Federal District Court jury of eight women and four men reached its verdict after four and a half hours of deliberation in the case of the former teacher, Larry Lane Bateman.

Bateman admitted on the witness stand on Thursday that he had possessed numerous pornographic picture books and videotapes featuring young boys and teen-age boys. He had denied sending child pornography through the mail.

The 51-year-old Bateman, who was dismissed by the prestigious New Hampshire prepatory school after his arrest on July 16, was convicted of one count of possession and two counts of interstate shipment of child pornography. He was also convicted of a fourth count, forfeiture, under which he must surrender his video equipment. The maximum sentence facing Bateman is 10 years in prison and a fine of $250,000.

Bateman said of the verdict: "I expected to get zapped but not zapped on all four counts. At least I have some time to get my life in order."

Sentencing was set for Dec. 7. He is free on $10,000 bail.

Bateman's conviction on the possession charge seemed inevitable in light of his testimony on Thursday, but his conviction on the distribution charges apparently surprised some of his supporters, who thought the government's chief witness lacked credibility.

Contra classified documents missing after Reagan interrogation, cover-up suspected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutor Lawrence Walsh questioned Ronald Reagan last summer in California about a possible cover-up in the Iran-Contra scandal, and highly classified documents used in interrogating the ex-president disappeared after the interview, sources said Friday.

The FBI is trying to recover the material, which a Walsh aide packed in a suitcase and checked at curbside with an airline at Los Angeles International Airport, said sources who spoke on condition of anonymity.

When the aide tried to retrieve the suitcase after the flight to Dulles International Airport outside Washington, it couldn't be found. Some of the lost material is categorized at the "codeword" level, the most sensitive classification that can be put on government documents.

Walsh and his aides had flown to California to accommodate the former president, who didn't want to come to Washington to be questioned, the sources said.

Reagan gave videotaped testimony in 1990 as a defense witness in the trial of ex-national security adviser John Poindexter. But until this summer, Reagan had never been questioned about his own role in a possible cover-up.

Mary Belcher, a Walsh spokeswoman, said she believes the suitcase containing the classified documents was stolen, but declined to elaborate. Reagan's lawyer, Theodore Olson, declined immediate comment. Both refused to confirm that Reagan had been interviewed.

An Aug. 14 Justice Department letter accused Walsh's office of a "flagrant violation" of security rules and of taking two weeks to report the missing suitcase. Two sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed the contents of the letter.

Knight-Ridder Newspapers first revealed the letter's existence in Friday editions, saying a Bush administration source provided it in hopes of embarrassing Walsh.

Walsh brought his nearly six-year investigation to a close Sept. 17, but has three pending court cases — the trials of former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and former CIA official Duane Clarridge, plus the re-trial of former CIA spymaster Clair George.

Friday in federal court, prosecutors said they will seek a new indictment against Weinberger to broaden charges he participated in a Reagan administration cover-up. Weinberger was indicted in June on charges of withholding 1,700 pages of notes detailing discussions of 1985 arms-for-hostages deals with Iran, which Weinberger maintains he knew nothing about.

Senate probes into CIA-justice cover up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Intelligence Committee is investigating whether the Justice Department colluded with the CIA to hide information about illegal loans to Iraq, the panel's chairman said Friday as he convened a second day of secret hearings.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., summoned the head of the Justice Department's Fraud Section, Lawrence Urgenson, to testify under oath behind closed doors regarding his dealings with the CIA in the case. The panel also heard for the second day in a row from officials of the intelligence agency.

"We have far more questions than we have answers," Boren said at the start of the hearings, which were hurriedly and unexpectedly convened before the Senate adjourned for the year. He said the panel had voted Thursday to issue subpoenas, if necessary, so that it could continue its probe.

The New York Times reports in Saturday editions that CIA officials told the panel they deliberately withheld information from federal prosecutors investigating the loans to Iraq. That would contradict earlier CIA statements that the misinformation was an honest mistake.

The Times, quoting unidentified government officials who attended Friday's hearing, told the intelligence committee that a senior Justice Department official had urged the agency to put out incomplete, misleading information. The Justice Department denied the allegation, the newspaper said.

After the three-hour session, Boren suggested that Attorney General William Barr order up an internal investigation — as CIA Director Robert Gates has done — to determine whether the department acted properly in the case.

The investigation was focusing on CIA letters sent last month to the Justice Department and the U.S. attorney in Atlanta, he said. In the letters, the CIA provided misleading information about its knowledge of an Italian bank's role in illegal loans to Iraq. The CIA subsequently admitted the information was incorrect.

Small quakes give prediction strong support

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mild earthquakes shook a remote stretch of the San Andreas Fault this month, slightly bolstering the likelihood that the government's first official quake prediction might come true.

"Among some scientists, there is a little bit more hope (the predicted quake may happen), but I'm pretty reserved. I'm not a gambling person," U.S. Geological Survey geophysicist John Langbein said Friday.

Based on the regularity of moderate quakes roughly every 22 years since 1857, the agency predicted in 1985 a quake measuring 6 on the Richter scale was 95 percent likely near Parkfield, Calif., during a 10-year period centered around January 1988.

The prediction will flop if the quake fails to happen by the end of this year. As the deadline approaches, the Geological Survey has faced inside jokes dubbing the project the "Porkfield" earthquake experiment.

The agency has spent nearly $19 million on the project, considered the world's premier experiment in earthquake predictions, said Langbein, chief scientist.

Since Oct. 1, devices called creep meters detected slight slippage measuring less than one-twentieth of an inch on a 20-mile-long segment of the San Andreas Fault near Parkfield, a tiny town halfway between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Seismic activity, while mild, has been at the highest levels in two years, the Geological Survey said Friday in its weekly quake report.

Jury finds AIDS activist innocent of drug charges

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A jury Friday acquitted an AIDS activist of illegally dispensing pain-killing drugs to people suffering from the deadly disease.

Alfredo Martinez-Garcia said he hopes the verdict will tell government officials they need to change their priorities.

"The state should be helping people, not prosecuting them," Martinez-Garcia said. "That's what this is all about."

Martinez-Garcia was charged with giving morphine and codeine to a police informant posing as an AIDS patient. The state said his actions were illegal because he is not a doctor and does not have a pharmaceutical license.

Martinez-Garcia, director of an AIDS support group, admitted breaking the law. He said he gave out the drugs because his clients were too poor to buy them and couldn't get through government red tape. He said he would change his tactics in the future.

Prosecutor Royellen Wehrle said she wasn't disappointed by the verdict.

"It was a hard case," she said. "I felt sympathy, too, and I'm the prosecutor, so I can understand that the jury would."

Wehrle had argued that giving out drugs without a license was dangerous.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Paying close attention to detail will help you snatch victory from the jaws of defeat. Your keen eye spots what everyone else has missed! Good timing is key to greater financial success. Realistic goals and consistent performance will make 1993 a banner year. You gain a job advantage by relying on your instincts and emphasizing your experience. You are able to boost your income and enjoy a more comfortable lifestyle. Marital ties deepen.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Helen Hayes, rock singer David Lee Roth, country singer Tanya Tucker, actor Ben Vereen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Trying to handle too many jobs at one time could be hazardous to your health and career. Step back and take inventory. A family problem will be solved when cash flow improves.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow the advice of a loyal adviser who encourages you to be more positive about your choices. You gain a better understanding of technology that could help you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A strong physical attraction could become overwhelming if you let it dominate your feelings. Try to keep passions under control. A sibling may need to talk about the past.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Rely on your own instincts and judgment. Although other people may mean well, their advice could be way off-base. Take time to make certain your offspring are following through on chores.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be diplomatic in a delicate situation involving a partner. You could say the wrong thing at the wrong time if you speak too forcefully. A doctor or therapist can help you develop better habits.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) : You are in a good position to protect your assets, or add to them. Keep in touch with longtime friends. A mix-up in travel arrangements could prove frustrating.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A work deadline looms ahead. You could face a real dilemma. Do whatever you can to avoid rushing around at the last minute. Getting better organized will help relieve tension.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): While you are trimming everyday expenses, think about trimming your waistline, too. Paying attention to an inside tip could help you open new financial doors.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Try not to get boxed into a tight position. Maneuvering your way out could prove difficult. Your communication skills are way above average; use them to best advantage.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take a low-key approach to social activities. You will get much farther if you do not force issues. Act confident without being pushy. Get several bids if remodeling your house.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If possible, postpone signing business documents or a financial agreement until another day. Seek out people who have inspired your confidence in the past.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A situation is not as bad as it seems. You have options you have not even considered. If you are both energetic and a good student, find out more about a career in medicine.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are practical, charming and loyal. They like to do one thing at a time and can become irritable if frequently interrupted. Although these Libras sometimes seem too critical, you can bet that their suggestions are constructive!

French preview Madonna's 'Sex,' say she owes taxes

PARIS — Madonna, who caused a flap by throwing her panties to the premier when she was last here, might have to hand over something harder to part with: back taxes.

She's back in Paris to promote "Sex," a pictorial account of her fantasies. Book sales got a boost a day before her Thursday night arrival with a report it might be censored.

The 25,000 copies, which go on sale here Oct. 21, were given the onceover by the Interior Ministry, as is routine for all foreign publications.

"Sex" was examined and deemed acceptable to the French public.

The daily newspaper Liberation reported Friday she owes more than $2 million in taxes, interest and penalties dating from her two French concerts in 1987. In the audience was Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac, then France's premier, who was on the receiving end of her doffed panties.

Liberation said Madonna's laywers are to meet soon with tax officials to try to erase the debt.

BALTIMORE — Rosa Parks, who helped spark the civil rights movement when she refused to give her seat on a Montgomery, Ala., bus to a white man, said her new book sets the record straight about the incident.

Parks

History, she said, too often maintains "that my feet were hurting and I didn't know why I refused to stand up when they told me. But the real reason of my not standing up was I felt that I had a right to be treated as any other passenger. We had endured that kind of treatment for too long."

She made her comments Thursday while promoting her book "My Story."

"I felt that people have written their own versions of my story and I want to set the record straight," said Mrs. Parks, 79.

EDINBURG — A radio station is urging listeners to trade in recordings by Sinead O'Connor for "better music from better artists" to protest a performance in which the singer tore up a photo of the pope.

KBFM-104 is offering to give listeners who bring in their O'Connor CDs or cassettes a recording by another artist.

Response to the offer first announced Wednesday has been good so far, said program director J.D. Gonzalez.

"Yesterday, right off the bat, we picked up about 20 of them," Gonzalez said Thursday.

KBFM will send what it collects to the National Ethnic Coalition, an organization of ethnic and heritage groups. The group's president has said he will donate $10 to charity on behalf of each person who sends in one of O'Connor's recordings, Gonzalez said.

The exchange offer was prompted by O'Connor's performance last week on NBC's "Saturday Night Live," which she concluded by slowly tearing up a picture of Pope John Paul II while saying, "Fight the real enemy."

TEMPE, Ariz. — Rockers Bon Jovi returned to their roots for their first performance as a group in four years — a nightclub.

Bon Jovi

"I couldn't stay out of these bars, they have nothing but good times for me here," lead singer Jon Bon Jovi told the crowd at After The Gold Rush.

Thursday night's unscheduled club date was the first of three for the New Jersey band to promote its upcoming album, "Keep The Faith."

The group opened with the Beatles' "With a Little Help From My Friends" and segued into their hit, "You Give Love a Bad Name."

The band played its other hits, with the fans singing along, then went into songs from the new album including "Bed of Roses" and the title track.

Bon Jovi's press agent, Paul Wasserman, said the group wanted to play the club dates because that's where they began.

Bon Jovi's last album was recorded six years ago, although members of the group have done solo projects since then.

NEW YORK — Interested in visiting the Mandrell sisters?

All it takes is a drive down the road just outside Nashville, says Barbara Mandrell, one of the close-knit trio.

"Irlene bought 5½ acres down the road from us, so she's our next-door neighbor," Barbara says in this Sunday's Parade magazine. "Louise lives nine miles away, but she's on the road so much, we don't see her often enough."

Barbara Mandrell survived a car wreck eight years ago, escaping with a concussion, a broken leg and other injuries.

"I'm a tough cookie," she said. "I'm back to my kicking, ornery self."
