

Lockney storm watchers inform town of severe weather

Despite the availability of sophisticated weather equipment on the South Plains, the best weather warning system Lockneyites have is the eyes of volunteer firemen and law enforcement personnel.

These cloud watchers are ready for action with the first approach of a dangerous cloud.

Fire Marshall Jimmy Kemp explains that a continuous blast of the fire siren, "eight to ten revolutions," is the signal that a dangerous cloud is approaching. "We'll probably do this twice," Kemp said.

Normally, persons have time to reach a cellar or basement after the siren sounds. However this is not always the case. The Lubbock tornado "just dropped out of the clouds."

If people believe that they do not have ample time to reach a cellar or basement,

Kemp explains that the safest place is "in a closet in the center of the house" and away from windows. Individuals should cover themselves with blankets to help shield against flying debris.

The fire marshal says that the two worst places for persons during a tornado is in a mobile home or a vehicle. Studies have revealed that a 100 mile per hour wind will overturn a mobile home, and virtually all tornadoes contain winds in excess of 200 miles per hour.

"You are safer in a ditch," than in a mobile home or vehicle," Kemp says.

CABLE TV WARNING

Verbal weather announcements will be issued over all cable television stations. A "pre-warning" is to be made that a storm cloud is approaching. Updated statements will be forthcoming concerning the movement of a dangerous cloud which may produce a tornado, hail or high winds.

Firemen and lawmen will feed messages to the cable TV system via telephone (Lockney Lions Club funded this system).

"We try not to get people needlessly alarmed," Kemp says of the warnings. However, the cloud watchers use a common sense approach and attempt to give early warnings.

Lockney Volunteer Fire Department and EMS service has 25 members. A minimum of "15 to 20" of these men will be available at any time to watch approaching clouds. In addition, the sheriff's department, police department and DPS troopers also are available to assist cloud watching.

Kemp says the spotters take different vantage points along the storm's path, "without being directly in front of the cloud. We need to be out 15 to 20 miles to provide good coverage"

"We will situate ourselves in four different directions from town. We will be east and west on Highway 70, north toward Lone Star and south toward Sand Hill."

WEATHER CLASSES

Firemen and lawmen have weather classes each year to become as informed as possible about severe weather. National Weather Service personnel and others who study weather continue to learn more about the causes of storms and early detection.

During a severe weather conference recently, Amarillo TV weatherman Steve McCaulley explained to the Lockneyites how such factors as dew point, heat index, humidity and other factors are involved in severe weather.

McCaulley pointed out to the group that "ninety-nine percent of the time," tornadoes emerge from the "back side of a cloud." Therefore, persons on the southeast side of the cloud normally have a better vantage point to spot tornadoes.

Rain and/or hail generally emerge from the "front part" of the cloud. "The bigger the hail (stones), the bigger the storm."

A tornado comes down with the updraft. Funnels are not always visible from clouds, sometimes being masked by a "debris cloud." Anytime there is a debris cloud, there is usually a tornado there.

Kemp states that individuals sighting a "rotating wall cloud should seek shelter immediately because more than likely it will put out a tornado." He points out that "white tornadoes are nothing more than the sun hitting a cloud and causing it to appear to be white."

The public occasionally mistakes a

"dust devil" or "whirlwind" for a tornado. However, the dust devils and whirlwinds usually emerge from the front of a cloud while most tornadoes are spawned from the back side of a cloud.

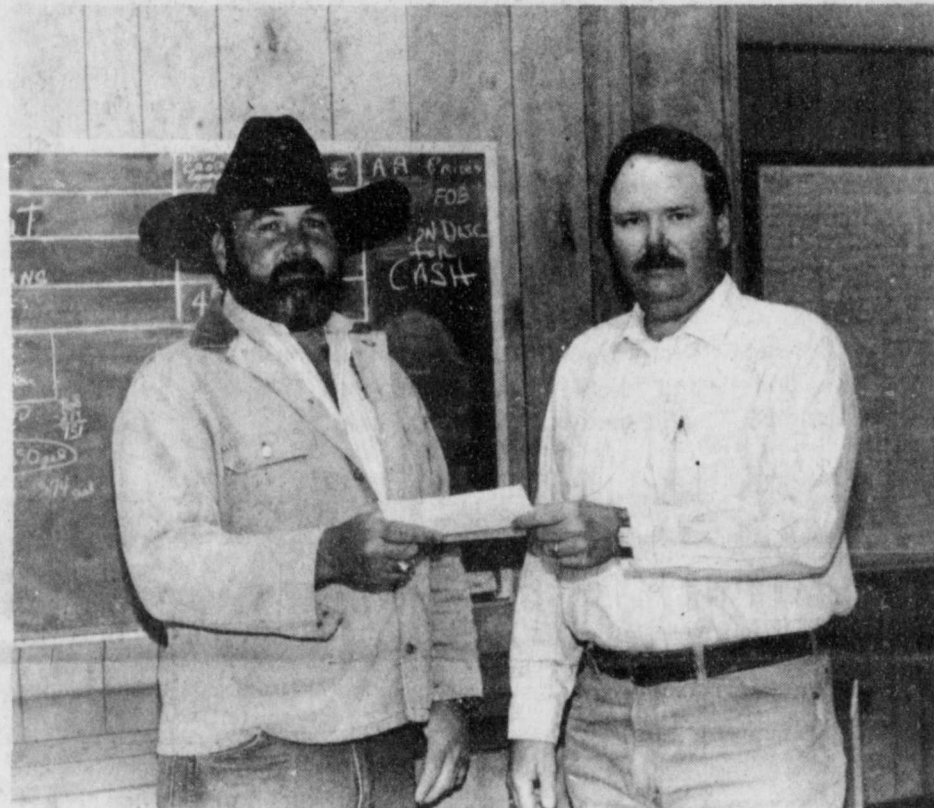

EYES ON THE CLOUD

Community residents are comforted by the fact that volunteer firemen and lawmen have their eyes trained on approaching clouds and will give them the earliest detection possible of approaching severe weather.

Firemen operate their vehicles in two-man teams. Four of the vehicles are equipped with radios so they can communicate car to car, or to the sheriff's office. Firemen also have two hand held walkie talkies for communication.

Firemen will use the suburban, the city and county fire trucks and the ambulance in their cloud watching. Keeping the fire vehicles away from the fire hall during severe weather protects the vehicles in case of a direct hit from a tornado and also gives the firemen radio units to communicate from.

Although it means leaving their families and home, the volunteer firemen are prepared to watch threatening clouds at any hour of the day or night.

DONATION MADE TO THE AMBULANCE FUND—Charles McQuhae, manager of the Lockney Cooperatives, presents Jimmy Kemp, chief of the Lockney Volunteer Fire Department with a check for $1000. The check from the cooperative raises the amount received for the purchase of a new ambulance to $16,730.00. Contributions from businesses, organizations and individuals are sought. Staff Photo

Lockney ISD rejects bids

The board of directors of the Lockney Independent School District met on March 29 to consider bids on a 15 passenger van.

Following discussion the board voted to reject all bids, at this time, due to the uncertainty of the state funding of local school districts.

"The board will reconsider advertising for bids at a later date," said Dub Hallmark, school superintendent.

Annual pre-school clinic slated Tuesday

The 40th annual pre-school clinic, sponsored by Athena Study Club, will be held on Tuesday, April 10, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The purpose of the annual event is to pre-register youngsters who will enter the Lockney school system for the first time in September 1990. Included in this category are children who will reach their fifth birthday on or before September 1, 1990, and who are attending school for the first time. Also, children who are six years old and have never attended school previously should be at this clinic.

As in years past, children will receive a physical examination, vision screening, dental exams and speech screening. Conducting the physicals will be Drs. W.J. Mangold, Gary Mangold, and W.E. Prater. Dr. Stewart Webb will conduct the vision screening, Dr. Ricky

Cross will examine teeth and Karen Quebe will hold the speech screening.

It is expected that regular immunizations will be available.

The entire clinic is free to all those who have children who will be entering Lockney schools in September 1990.

It is very important that parents bring the child's birth certificate and immunization records, school officials say.

In addition to being screened for health, vision, dental and speech problems, children will also be pre-enrolled in kindergarten. Pre-registration of children saves time for both parents and school officials in that youngsters may come to their first day of school with a minimum of fuss since all but the usual first of school paper work is filled out.

Also, by pre-registering, school officials will know the appropriate number of kindergarteners to plan for.

Local student is finalist in IBM/Good Housekeeping contest

Tyler Bybee of Lockney is one of 10 national finalists in the IBM/Good Housekeeping "Tell Me A Story..." contest, a competition for family stories by children in grades K-6.

A student at Lockney Elementary School in Lockney, Bybee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louie Bybee. The finalists, along with their schools and their teachers, will receive an IBM Personal System/2 Model 25 computer and an IBM Proprinter II printer. Sponsored by IBM Educational Systems and Good Housekeeping magazine, the contest drew entries from more than 35,000 elementary school children across the nation after it was announced last fall. Judges narrowed the field to 10 students each from three categories: K-1, 2-3 and 4-6 grades.

The top winner in each category, their families and their teachers will be honored in May in Washington, D.C., where the three winners will tell their stories at an awards ceremony in the Russell Senate Office Building.

They also will have their stories published in the June 1990 issue of Good Housekeeping and will tell their stories at the National Storytelling Festival in Jonesborough, Tenn., next October.

The contest is the culmination of the IBM/Good Housekeeping "Tell Me A Story..." Celebration, a school language arts program that incorporated storytelling and the whole language philosophy of reading and writing.

Whole language acknowledges the natural progression from oral to written language, and the educational kit utilizes storytelling to develop and enhance these language skills.

"Like many teachers, IBM believes a whole language philosophy encourages creativity in the learning process," said James E. Dezell Jr., IBM vice president and general manager of IBM Educational Systems.

"We hope that this project not only has sparked the imagination and involvement of children across the nation, but also enhanced teachers' efforts to teach essential writing and reading skills."

The program included a comprehensive "Tell Me A Story..." educational kit mailed last September of each of the 70,000 elementary schools across the country. A lesson plan led their students through oral and written activities to prepare them to research and write their own folktales based on information they learned from their families and communities. These stories were entered into the national contest.

John Mack Carter, editor-in-chief of Good Housekeeping, said the program has strengthened family ties and will enrich communities.

"This program not only benefits America's children and schools, but also enriches the families and communities by preserving stories and traditions that might otherwise be lost forever," Carter said.

The contest was announced in the school materials and the October 1989 issue of Good Housekeeping.

Parent advisory council slates dinner meeting

On Tuesday, April 10, at 7:00 p.m. at the Lockney Elementary Cafeteria, a dinner meeting will be held. All the parents of students who have been to a Life-Management Skills Retreat are also invited. Everyone is encouraged to attend.

The students who have attended the retreat will be the special guests of this gathering. Some of the consultants from the Education Service Center Region XVII (Lubbock) who are also counselors at the retreats will be here to share with the group.

The Life-Management Skills retreat is designed to meet the needs of middle/high school At Risk students. State wide the migrant students are among the most likely to drop out of school. The demands and stress experienced by migrant youth on a daily basis have had an adverse effect on academic performance. Our local school district and PAC continue to work in providing the means to help all our students continue their path in educating themselves and becoming the best.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank each and everyone of you who has shown their care and concern for me during my stay in the Veterans Hospital in Amarillo by visiting, sending cards and especially your prayers. I am now recuperating from my surgeries in the Heritage Home in Plainview. Thank you again for your many acts of kindness.

W.E. "Bill" Thomas

Dear Editor,
If possible, would you print our request and assist us in locating people we've been trying to find for thirty-five years. We are a group of Korean War veterans that are attempting to contact several people we served with, before we all ship out to that big M.A.S.H. in the sky. Many have moved to new locations since we last communicated, and we've almost exhausted all our opportunities, except for this approach. We appreciate any advice or contribution to achieve our goal. We didn't give up then, and we won't give up now.

If anyone is related to, and knows the whereabouts of Jack R. Cole, with the 8228th M.A.S.H. and then-Co.I 27th Wolfhound Infantry Regiment. Please drop me a short note, or call me. Lee Bazzo, 744 S. Albertson Ave., Covina, California 91722, or call at (818) 339-7960.

If anyone fits the category above, please call or write to me anyway.

Thanks Again,
Lee Bazzo

To the Voters of Floyd County

Thank you very much for your confidence and support in re-electing me as District Clerk. I will continue to do the duties of the office to the best of my ability.
Thanks again, Barbara Edwards

Ford and Young recite marriage promises

Rachelle Kay Ford became the bride of Randall Carl Young on Saturday, March 31, in the First Baptist Church of Lockney. The couple recited their marriage vows before the Rev. Richard Craven, pastor of Baptist Temple of Lubbock, during the evening ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Ray and Ann Ford of Lockney and Russell and Teresa Young of San Angelo.

The ceremony was performed before an altar highlighted with a twin heart brass candelabra accented with white bows and ivy foliage. Brass baskets of silk flowers, made by the groom's grandmother, flanked the arrangement. The aisle and pews were marked with white bows. Completing the setting were hurricane globes adorned with greenery and white bows, which were placed before the stained glass windows.

Musical selections for the wedding included Roxanne Hennagan, sister of the bride, who vocalized "The Wedding Song", "The Vows Go Unbroken (Always True To You)" and "The Lord's Prayer". The bride's mother sang "We Wish You." "Household of Faith" was also presented, as a duet. Accompaniments were by Lucy Dean Record of Lockney, organist, and Zelda Ellison of Lockney, pianist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of white imported satin. The bodice, with basque waistline, was encrusted with hand-beaded pearls and sequins on embroidered lace and featured a sweetheart neckline. Short puffed on or off the shoulder sleeves were also applied with handbeaded pearls and sequins on embroidered lace. A full satin skirt edged with applied embroidered lace flowed to a semi-cathedral train of cascading tiers of fluted organza ruffles and embroidered lace. Her imported headband of pearls and sequins, with cascading sidespray of flowers, was finished with a pouf and two-tier fingertip rolled edge veil of silk organza tulle.

Following tradition, the bride carried her grandmother's handkerchief and pearl necklace as something old; something new was a Bible topped with the bridal bouquet of silk flowers; something borrowed was her dress and veil, and something blue was her garter. She also placed pennies in her shoe minted in the year of their birthdates.

Matron of honor was Roxanne Hennagan of Denver, Colo., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Kristy Hestwood of Dallas, Jeina Byrom of Abilene and Shandra Bybee of Lockney. They wore tea length dresses of country blue moire cotton with scooped necklines and three quarter leg-of-mutton sleeves. The deep v-back was accented with self covered buttons and a large bow at the basque waist. They carried bouquets of blue, peach and white silk flowers, made by the groom's grandmother.

Flower girl Heather Hennagan of Denver, Colo., niece of the bride, wore a dress similar to the bridal attendants in peach moire cotton.

Acting as best man was Billy Harris of Dallas. Groomsmen were Ricky Womack and Todd Martin of San Angelo and John Debuty of Dallas. Seating guests were Randy Ford of Plainview and Russell Ford of Lubbock, both brothers of the bride.

Nephews of the bride, Brandon Hennagan of Denver and Tate Ford of Plainview, served as ring bearers.

Male attendants were attired in dove gray full dress tuxedos with blue cummerbunds and ties. Their silk rose boutonnières were also made by the groom's grandmother.

Candlelighters were Rance and Ryan Ford, brothers of the bride, of Lockney. Guests were registered by Lisa Galindo of Little Rock, Ark., sister of the groom.

A reception followed the ceremony in the garden room of the First Baptist Church. Assistants for the reception were Heather Smith of Lubbock, Karen Ford of Lockney, cousin of the bride; Darla Ford of Plainview and Carrie Ford of Lubbock, both sisters-in-law of the bride.

The bride's table was draped with a white satin overlaid with white lace. Highlighting the table was a heart shaped tiered cake with peach orchids and blue bows and topped with a musical bride and groom. Crystal and brass appointments completed the setting.

Country blue was used at the groom's table, which held trays of cinnamon rolls, pecan tarts, fruit and cheese. Brass appointments were used.

Special guests at the ceremony were: Maynard and Mildred Agee of Friona, aunt and uncle of the bride; Leonard and Pearl Young of San Angelo and Katherine Kidd of San Antonio, grandparents of the groom; and Wes and Coline Byron of Clyde, friends of the bride.

Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, the couple will reside in Dallas.

A 1986 graduate of Lockney High School, the bride attended Angelo State University and Lippert Court Reporting College. She is currently attending Court Reporting Institute of Dallas. She is also a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority.

The groom is a 1986 graduate of Lakeview High School in San Angelo. He attended Angelo State University and graduated from Elkins Institute of Computer Drafting in Dallas in 1989. He is employed with the United Parcel Service in Dallas.

Pre-nuptial courtesies given for the couple included the rehearsal dinner, hosted by the groom's parents at the Plainview Country Club; a bridesmaid luncheon, given by Sheryl Bybee of Lockney; a lingerie shower, given by Karen Ford; a homemade shower, given by Shandra Bybee, Sarah Fitzgerald and Heather Smith; and a bridal shower, given in the home of Mrs. David (Pat) Prizzell.

Keep Salmonella out of egg basket

A few simple guidelines can help keep salmonella, a food-poisoning bacteria that is linked to eggs, from spoiling this year's Easter activities.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

- * Use only clean, uncracked, fresh, properly refrigerated graded eggs.
- * Avoid raw and undercooked eggs.
- * Discard eggs that are cracked.
- * Serve hot egg dishes promptly.

Walser celebrates 102 birthday

Over 100 friends and family members gathered at the American Legion Hall in Hereford, on Sunday, March 25, to celebrate the 102nd birthday of C.R. Walser.

The affair was hosted by his children, Guy Walser of Summerfield, D.C., and W.H. Walser and Leatrus Clark, all of Hereford, and their spouses. Assisting them were his grandchildren and great-grandchildren and their spouses.

Attending from Lockney was granddaughter Betty Hayes, her husband, Cleatis, and their son Cody. Attending from Aiken were the Hayes daughter, Devra Arjona, husband Johnny Arjona, and their children, Tye and Holly.

Mr. Walser has 102 descendants and six generations were present at the party. The youngest present was 12 month old, Lauren, who is Walser's great-great-great-granddaughter.

Walser was born in Montague County, Texas, on March 26, 1888. He was the ninth of 13 children born to Samuel Lafayette and Matt Ingram Walser. The Walser family moved to Montague County from Hardeman County, Chillicothe, Texas in 1903.

While in Hardeman County, his older brother, the late S.L. Walser of Hereford, married Laura Lance in 1906. On Dec. 12, 1908, Charlie Walser married Della Lance (Laura's sister). In 1912, the two families moved first to Jericho (Donley County) then to McLean (Gray County) and to Deaf Smith County in March of 1917. Both families bought land and settled northwest of Summerfield to farm.

While living on the farm, Charlie Walser had a threshing machine run by a steam engine. In 1921, he bought the first combine sold in Deaf Smith County.

Walser served as deacon in the Summerfield Baptist Church and instigated the first rebuilding of the original frame building which was torn down to make room for a new one. He also served several terms as a Summerfield School trustee.

Following his wife's death in 1974, he continued to live alone until he was 98 when his son, D.C. Walser moved in with him.

Care Center Capers

By Jane Martinez

Hello again! Hope that everybody has had a good week, as for us here at the Care Center we have had a good week. We would like to share our new residents with you. Marylou Bullock, Isabel Gonzales and Bettie Counts. We would like to welcome them to the Care Center. We would also like to thank all of our volunteers for being able to be with us this week. Also, I would like to thank Margie Hernandez for calling bingo this week. Well, I guess this is all of the news for this week.

Now for our weekly happenings. Monday, we had our morning exercises, we then had singing with Rock Creek Church of Christ. After dinner we went on the bus ride. We traveled to Plainview, we went to Wal-Mart and we were treated at McDonalds. Thank you McDonalds for treating our residents. On the bus this week were Lottie Stewart, Lennie Gilbert, Liller Garrison, Faye Sams, Marylou Bullock, Bessie

Jackson, Olga Applewhite, Zerah Meriwether, Bettie Counts, Lurany Hunter, Roy Hunter, Augustine Rivas, and Adolfo Burrell.

Tuesday, we had our morning exercises, we then had devotional with Main St. Church of Christ. After dinner, we had some popcorn. I would like to thank Bessie for taking time out of her crocheting to make the popcorn for the residents.

Wednesday, we had balling throwing, we then had devotional with the Methodist Church. After dinner, I had some paper work, and some decorating to do.

Thursday, in the morning, I did some of the lady residents hair. We also had devotional with the Baptist Church.

Friday, I was not able to be at work, so I want to apologize for not being there. But I do think that the residents had a good time in bingo. Well friends, I do think that this is all I have for this week. Until next week, so long!

Household tips to reduce waste

Preserving our environment is one of the most important actions we can take for our children. Recycling helps. But first, reduce your waste through source reduction.

What is source reduction? It's simply generating less waste for disposal or recycling. Our grandparents called it "thriftness."

Source reduction is the top waste management priority of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and many states.

Here are some quick and easy tips for practicing source reduction in your household.

1. Use products with minimal packaging so there's less waste for disposal or recycling.
2. Find other uses for materials you normally toss in the garbage. Empty bread bags and butter tubs make excellent, reusable containers for school lunches and leftovers.
3. Write on both sides of paper, instead of automatically pulling out a new sheet. Use the back sides of junk mail for your grocery list or children's drawing.

paper.

4. Reuse materials like wrapping paper and shopping bags. You reduce waste and save money.

5. Repair household goods if possible to help extend their useful life.

6. Find opportunities to say "no thank you." When shopping for a few items at the store, take the sales receipt but leave the bag behind.

7. Use concentrated products or mixes where water is added such as juice concentrates, detergents, and fabric softener. Avoid frills and wasteful decorations.

8. Help someone in need and donate unused furniture, appliances, toys and clothing to local charities, rather than hauling them to the trash.

9. Start a backyard composting pit. It's easy to build and turns your coffee grounds, grass, leaves, plant clippings and other organic waste into fertilizer for your garden.

10. Share your source reduction tip with your friends and family. Teach your kids at an early age to practice source reduction.

Aufill and Jackson recognized as Tandy Technology Scholars

LaDora Aufill and Shea Jackson were recognized as Tandy Technology Scholars. Aufill was named an "Outstanding Math/Science/Computer Science Teacher School Awardee" and Shea Jackson was named a "Top 2% Academic Awardee."

Tandy Technology Scholars, a program designed to recognize academic excellence, especially in the areas of mathematics, science and computer science, announced awards totaling $350,000 in cash stipends and scholarships.

One hundred students and 100 teachers became the first group of Tandy Technology Scholars when they were named at a news conference April 4 in Washington, D.C. Lauro F. Cavazos, Secretary of Education, was joined by numerous education leaders to congratulate these outstanding students and teachers.

In addition, the top two percent of each participating high school's senior class was recognized for overall academic excellence. This was based on work done in grades 9-11. More than 15,000 individuals will be recognized for their academic achievement by the Tandy Technology Scholars program at school awards programs.

More than one-third, a total of 8,059, of all the secondary schools in the United States participated in this major education initiative, which is funded by Tandy Corporation and administered by Texas Christian University.

"We are extremely pleased with the overwhelming response in this initial year. We believe that this is the largest single awards program to honor both students and teachers," said John V. Roach, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Tandy Corporation.

The Tandy Technology Scholars program is a national program open to students and teachers in accredited high schools throughout America. The finalists were selected by a panel of educators and approved by a National Advisory Council.

The outstanding mathematics, science or computer science student and/or teacher at each participating high school was recognized. From these nominees, semi-finalists and finalists were selected. Teacher finalists received checks for $2,500 each. Student finalists received cash scholarships for $1,000 each. These scholarships may be used at the college or university of the student's choice.

"The Tandy Technology Scholars program exemplifies the growing spirit of cooperation between business and education, and the initiatives of business to become involved in and to help resolve issues of national concern," Roach added.

Aimee Green attends 1990 Young Leaders Conference

Aimee Green attended the 1990 National Young Leaders Conference sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council. Founded in 1985, the Council is a non-profit, non-partisan educational organization committed to recognizing youth and providing them with a "hands-on" civics learning experience in the nation's capital. "We firmly believe that by touching one life, the National Young Leaders Conference enriches thousands more. Scholars return to their home communities charged with the lifelong duty of leading all Americans to better understanding their rights and responsibilities in this participatory democracy," express Council Co-founders Barbara Harris and Richard Rossi. Joining the council in its commitment to educational excellence is the Honorary Congressional Board of Advisors comprised of over 300 members of the United States Congress.

The theme of the National Young Leaders Conference is The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today. Throughout the six day conference, the scholars met with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

Highlight of the program included a breakfast panel discussion led by prominent journalists at the National Press Club, welcoming remarks from a Member of Congress on the Floor of the United States House of Representatives, and a government relations forum comprised of lobbyists from various corporations and public interest groups. A visit to a diplomatic embassy and a State Department briefing were also included among the week's activities.

Miss Green was introduced to Senator Lloyd Bentsen, Senator Phil Gramm and Representative Bill Sarpanis or members of their respective staffs. Culminating the National Young Leaders Conference is The Mock Congress on National Service in which the scholars assume the roles of United States Representatives by debating, lobbying, and voting on proposed volunteer service legislation.

AIMEE GREEN

Child labor violations cost all Texans

In light of recent child labor law infractions discovered by the U.S. Department of Labor, Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers of the Texas Employment Commission has admonished Texas employers to refresh their knowledge of the rules concerning hiring minors.

"Texas employers received more citations than employers in other states during the D.O.L.'s recent sweep," lamented Nabers. "Considering the fact that Texas is facing such monumental problems with illiteracy and student drop-out rates, employers and parents in our state need to reaffirm a commitment to abide by these laws which were, after all, opportunity for a good education."

Employers should be aware of these basic guidelines:

NON-AGRICULTURAL JOBS:

- (1) Youths 18 years or older may perform any job, whether hazardous or not, for unlimited hours;
- (2) Youths 16 or 17 years old may perform any nonhazardous job, for unlimited hours;
- (3) Youths 14 and 15 years old may work outside school hours in various nonmanufacturing, nonmining, nonhazardous jobs under the following conditions:
 - (a) no more than 3 hours on a school day,
 - (b) no more than 18 hours in a school week,
 - (c) no more than 8 hours on a non-school day,

- (d) no more than 40 hours in a non-school week,
- (e) work may not begin before 7 a.m., nor end after 7 p.m., except from June 1 through Labor Day when evening hours are extended to 9 p.m.
- (f) 14 and 15 year olds who are enrolled in an approved Work Experience and Career Exploration Program (WECEP) may be employed for up to 23 hours in school weeks and 3 hours on school days (including during school hours.)
- (4) Fourteen is the minimum age for most nonfarm work. At any age, however, youths may deliver newspapers, work for parents in their solely-owned nonfarm business (except in manufacturing or on hazardous jobs) or gather evergreens and make evergreen wreaths. Children of any age may perform in radio, television, movie, or theatrical productions. There are, however, state regulations concerning child actors which must be followed. Employers in this industry may obtain a copy of the rules and regulations by contacting the State Office of the TEC, Office of Special Counsel.

FARM JOBS:

- (1) Youths 16 years and older may perform any job, whether hazardous or not, for unlimited hours;
 - (2) Youths 14 and 15 years old may perform any nonhazardous farm job outside of school hours;
 - (3) Youths 12 and 13 years old may work outside of school hours in nonhazardous jobs, either with parent's written consent or on the same farm as the parents;
 - (4) Youths under 12 may perform jobs on farms owned or operated by parents or, with parents' written consent, outside of school hours in nonhazardous jobs on farms not covered by minimum wage requirements.
 - (5) Minors of any age may be employed by their parents at any time in any occupation on a farm owned or operated by their parents.
- For information concerning what constitutes "hazardous" and "nonhazardous" jobs, employers should contact their local Wage-Hour office of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Lockney school libraries are staffed fulltime with long-time aides: Charlotte Brock, at high school, has nine years of experience; Emma Collins at junior high has nine years of experience and Naomi Johnston at elementary school has 19 years of service. In addition, the Lockney I.S.D. employs Carolyn Courtney, a certified librarian, on a part-time basis. Mrs. Courtney holds a bachelor and master degrees and has done postgraduate work in library science at the University of North Texas.

The Lockney school libraries contain not only books but many audio-visual materials such as film strips, videos, cassettes and slides. They qualify as Library Media Centers. The main objective of the school library is to support school curricula which are designed to make students self-supporting, self-governing, self-educating, and contributing members of society. By using the library the student is able to find information independently on any subject of interest.

Instruction in library/information skills takes place in a one-to-one situation between the library media specialist and the student as well as in large group sessions. The library curriculum is intended to produce an adult who feels at home in a library setting, recognizes the potential for continuing his education through use of libraries as an active informed citizen.
