POLICE CHIEF FRANK BURNS warns Wichita Falls residents to keep a watchful eye on purported solicitors and house-to-house canvassers during this period of the year.

The warning is wisely made, and should be heeded by housewives of the city. Be sure the person attempting to gain entrance to your home or to secure information from you is not some nimble-fingered person trying to find out when your home will be vacant because of a vacation trip, or just how access might be had most easily to your valuables.

AS FOR the well known tribe of "foot in the door salesmen," they are more of an annoyance than a danger. They seek to sell their wares by a process of wearing down the resistance and patience of the housewives.

The writer knows one Wichita Falls business man who keeps a hefty bull dog just for such persons, as well as more dangerous prowlers that may come in the night. This dog lets no stranger enter the yard without command from some member of the family. It is an old custom, this keeping of a watch dog, and it has no equal when it comes to encouraging a persistent canvasser to "move on."

AN AUSTIN evangelist causes members of his congregation to toss their chewing tobacco, bathing suits, vanity cases and what not into a fire as an indication of their freedom from worldly sins and cares.

It is a rather spectacular stunt, but it probably adds little to the sum total of the world's religion or righteousness. The sinner is no better in a mother hubbard than a bathing suit, nor more righteous chewing gum than chewing tobacco.

EVERY resident of Wichita Falls should attend at least one program at one of the city parks during the summer. There is a lesson in good fellowship to be found at park gatherings which should not be missed, to say nothing of the inspiration and entertainment afforded by the average program.

Entertainments at Wichita Falls parks are surpassed by no other institution in welding together citizens of this city as a group.

MILK and ice fund contributions to date already total almost $300 more than the total amount subscribed last year during the entire campaign for the relief of needy Wichita Falls children. The Record News knows of no greater tribute to the generosity and kind-heartedness of Wichita Falls residents.

Money subscribed this year came at a time of dire need, but the demand for it also came at a time when funds were less ready than the period of comparatively high oil prices last season. Despite this, children of the city have been well provided for, and no needy case has been called to the attention of welfare authorities which has not been given aid so far as funds and provisions were available.

POLICE WARNING

Be Careful in Opening Home to Strangers, Says Burns

Warning to Wichita Falls residents to be careful about admitting strangers into their homes during the summer season was issued Saturday by Chief of Police Frank Burns.

Chief Burns has received a number of reports of men and women representing themselves to be employes of various firms, including newspapers, gaining entrance to homes on one pretext or another for no apparent reason.

"We know that in a number of instances these persons have no known connection with any firm, and while we do not know of any law violation, or any contemplated violation, it would be best for Wichita Falls residents to be careful about opening their homes to such people."

ROME ENRAGED BY BLOCKADE TRAIN TRAFFIC

Labor Outbreak in Vienna Brings Ultimatum To Austria

STRIFE THREATENED

Facists Announce They'll Force Their Trains Over Border

VIENNA, July 16. —The number of killed in Vienna is estimated tonight at 250; the wounded cannot be determined.

The palace of justice is still burning, the rooms being flooded with water and one ceiling after another caving in.

Vienna and outlying districts are under martial law. The police are instructed to quell further disturbances ruthlessly.

BERLIN, July 16. (AP) — The Frankfurter Gazette says that it has received reports from Innsbrueck stating that the Italian military command at Brenner on the Austrian frontier, has notified the Austrian authorities that if railway service were not resumed by tonight the Italians would send their trains in their own behalf over the Brenner. Pass to Germany under military escorts.

The paper says that reports also told of the concentration for manouvers of 10,000 Italian troops on the border near Brenner where the railroads pass and tunnel through the Tyrolean Alps are located.

LONDON HEARS REPORT OF ITALIAN ULTIMATUM.

LONDON, July 16. (AP)—An unconfirmed dispatch from Innsbrueck, received by the exchange telegraph from its office in Berlin says that what was described as an ultimatum has been sent by Italy to Austria, the Italian rail staff and troops would force them through.

The dispatch added that Italy was said to be hastening thousands of troops to a spot near the frontier, ostensibly for maneuvers.

AUSTRIAN REVOLUTIONARY LEADERS APPEASED.
By Universal Service.

VIENNA, July 16.—A peaceful agreement between the government and socialist leaders was indicated this afternoon by the publication of an extra edition of "Arbeiter Zeitung," the socialist democrat organ, instructing all strikers to resume work within twenty-four hours.

This was interpreted as meaning that the general strike, which isolated the city from the outside world, and completely paralyzed all normal activities, will be discontinued tomorrow.

Vienna Is Quiet.

The streets of Vienna, torn yesterday by riots which claimed 50 lives and filled the hospitals with wounded, are quiet today. Detachments of police reinforced by machine gun squadrons, occupy all the strategic corners on the pricipal thoroughfares.

Chancellor Seipel is still head of the Austrian government, despite persistent rumors that he and his cabinet have resigned. Socialist leaders are still in conference with the chancellor relative to restoration of complete peace.

Fears are expressed, however, that the cessation of the rioting is merely the result of the exhaustion of the rioters, and that they are only awaiting reinforcements from outside the city to begin more serious demonstrations.

Cash Is Secreted.

Austrian banks are transferring all their cash resources to Czecho-Slovakia as quickly as possible. Thousands of socialist manifestos brought to Vienna from Budapest have been confiscated by the police.

The city was in total darkness last night because of the general strike, but the public utilities are functioning today, and there is no lack of food.

Pigeons Released Over Ocean Lost in Fog

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16. Their failure to come back to their stalls after more than 24 hours had elapsed was taken to mean that man's mechanical bird may be more sure of its bearings in flight than the natural variety.

DEVICE OF EVIL

Phonograph Labelled As Devil's Device Of Iniquity

He told the boys they are "gambles" if they play marbles for keeps. They tossed their marbles in the tub.

Bathing suits, playing cards, chewing tobacco, vanity cases, and other forms of earthly temptation went into the fire, symbolical, supposedly of spiritual renunciation.

Through indulgence of the police, the preacher showed his applauding congregation some whiskey and beer and told how close to the capitol and university he had gotten it.

RED RIVER BRIDGE READY BY SEPT. 25

28 SPANS FINISHED

Isbell to Leave Today To Seek State Aid On Approaches

Construction of the Red river bridge connecting Wichita county with Oklahoma is 82 per cent completed and will be finished within 63 working days, J. M. Isbell, county engineer, reported Saturday to county officials.

Weather permitting, the bridge is expected to be completed September 25, Mr. Isbell said.

Span Each Day

On the bridge, which is of concrete construction, 28 spans out of 92 have been concreted and the workmen are completing one span each working day.

The bridge, 5750 feet long, will cost $303,000 when completed. This does not include the cost of approaches on the Wichita county and Oklahoma sides. Estimates on the cost of the Wichita approach are now being compiled by Mr. Isbell.

Construction of the structure was started June 29, 1926 by the Austin Bridge company of Dallas, the contractors. Progress on the building of the bridge was impeded during the latter part of 1926 for six weeks due to the inability of the contractors to obtain materials.

One-fourth of the cost of construction is being paid by the state of Oklahoma; one-fourth by Wichita county; one-fourth by the state of Texas and one-fourth by the federal government.

Conference at Austin

At the present time Wichita county is scheduled to pay the entire cost of the approach to the bridge from the Texas side. However, Mr. Isbell said Saturday that he would leave Sunday for Austin to confer with the members of the state highway commission in an endeavor to have the state pay part of the cost of the approach.

Boy Electrocuted By Hot Wire On Ohio Bridge

Bennie Livingston, 15, Killed By Shock; H. T. Fuller Dies in Auto Crash

Death took two for its toll in Wichita Falls aturday night when Bennie Livingston, 15-year-old youth, was electrocuted when he grasped a high voltage wire on the Ohio street river bridge, and H. T. Fuller, 33, was killed in an automobile crash, one-half mile west of the Browning air port on the Burkburnett road.

While playing on the bridge Livingston grasped the wire, suspended along the side of the structure. The youth fell backwards across a steal beam on the bridge as soon as he grasped the wire, remaining on the beam until removed by Texas Electric company employes.

Fuller who for the past six years has been chief mechanic of the Caro Motor Car company, in Burkburnett, was on his way to Burkburnett from Wichita Falls when his car crashed into a post on the edge of a culvert. The car turned over into a ditch.

Witnesses of the accident said Fuller, who was accompanied by his three-year-old son, was driving a Hudson sedan at a high rate of speed. The boy with the exception of a few slight scratches was unhurt.

Fuller was pinned beneath the car and sustained deep cuts about his face and the upper part of his body from broken glass.

There were three cars close behind Fuller's automobile. The occupants of the cars extracted him from the wreckage. Fuller was placed in one car which started toward Wichita Falls. A Hines ambulance was met a short distance from where the crash occurred and Fuller was placed in it.

Fuller's car was a complete wreck. Every pane of glass in the sedan was shattered into small pieces and the woodwork on the car was twisted and broken.

Fuller's body was taken Saturday night by the Hines Undertaking company to Burkburnett. From there it will be sent for interment to Quinnland, Texas, where Fuller formerly lived. In addition to his son, Fuller is survived by his wife, one brother, Charles M. Fuller of Burkburnett, and one sister, Miss Clara Fuller of Dallas.

Vernon Culpepper, 13, who was playing with Livingston on the bridge witnessed the accident. According to young Culpepper Livingston fell backward across the beam as soon as he grasped the wire.

Livingston was taken to the General hospital in a Hines ambulance where every means taken to revive him failed. Dr. F. R. Leach pronounced him dead at 9:35 p. m. of the Texas Electric Service company removed the body. He was rushed to the General hospital in a Hines ambulance where every means to revive him failed. Dr. F. R. Leach pronounced him dead at 9:35 o'clock.

According to Vernon Culpepper, the only witness, the two boys were climbing around over the bridge, one on one side and one on the other. Vernon was watching his companion as he reached to take hold of the wire and fell backwards without a word.

An alternating current passes over the wire suspended with the bridge making it impossible to determine the voltage received by the boy. The body was not badly burned.

A. E. Kelley and L. W. Goodwin of the Texas Electric Service company went to the scene of the accident as soon as notified by police.

Mrs. Ora Livingston, mother of the boy, did not know of the tragedy until after he was taken to the hospital. The body was carried to the Hines Morfuary where it is being prepared for burial.

Vernon Culpepper, companion of the victim, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Culpepper, 505 Lee street.

Funeral arrangements for Livingston had not been formulated Saturday night. He is survived by his father, Noel B. Livingston, oil field employe; his mother, Mrs. Ora Livingston, who lives in the rear of 403 Scott avenue, and two brothers, Delphus Livingston and Barney Livingston, of Wichita Falls.

Trans-Ocean Fliers Requested Not To Be Too Hasty in Sending "SOS"

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP)—A friendly warning to future transoceanic fliers to exercise the greatest care against giving erroneous reports when they are in distress was given today by Secretary Wilbur.

"This is a serious matter," the secretary said, commenting upon the distress call sent out yesterday by Earnest L. Smith and Emory Bronte, trans-Pacific fliers while they were 500 miles from the Hawaiian islands.

"I do not want to be put in a position of rebuking the men who made such a gallant flight," he added, "but it is highly important that men should realize they are imperiling future flyers when they give what amounts to erroneous information.

After the City of Oakland had sent a message that it was landing in the water, he said, the navy dispatched a number of craft to their rescue while several Pacific liners diverged from their course to join in the search and this was "an even more serious matter for passenger liners than it is for our own ships."

He added, however, that "we are delighted that these men got through and landed safely.

MOODY FACTOR FOR PRESIDENT

Texas Executive Seen As Demo Leader

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, July 16.—Gov. Dan Moody will be the controlling factor in Texas' share in the presidential nomination of 1928. He will stay out of the United States senate race, and will be unopposed for his second term as governor. These are regarded as political certainties, so far as indications now are binding on the developments of next July.

O. B. Colquitt, former governor, will make his race for the senate, apparently "on his own," without help or hindrance from the state administration which he supported last year.

Moody will lend no active support to any candidate in the many-sided senatorial race, his friends here as well as the long-range political prophets believe.

Colquitt In Race

Events of the past few days have crystalized the conviction that Moody has definitely turned from any thoughts of making the senate race. Governor Colquitt has committed himself to a race whether or not Moody might get in it. But his entry is taken as conclusive of his own belief that he will not have the governor as an opponent.

Moody's share in the selection of the 40 Texas delegates to the democratic national convention is the theme most discussed now. His leadership in the convention is acknowledged. It is believed he will head the delegation. Whether he will seek to prevent its being instructed for any candidate, he has not made known.

Moody's presence in the state presidential convention, it is agreed will not prevent, nor will it stand in the way of Texas nominating him for national democratic party honors.

In the complicated strategy by which Texas will try, at the same time, to keep from being tied to an unacceptable candidate and from being linked with a hopeless cause, it is expected the "favorite son" policy will be followed.

It appears probable the young Texas governor's name will be submitted in the national convention for consideration as the democratic choice for president. If this is done, Moody likely will be placed before the convention by some other than his home state.

Moody—Favorite Son

In this situation, Texas' vital importance in the next democratic presidential selection will be shown. Interest in Moody in the east, in the south and southeastern states, has lifted him far above the rank of the average state "favorite son." Prominent democrats have acclaimed him the coming leader of the party. The democrats, looking forward to an unprecedented situation when they try to give a two-third vote nomination to a candidate, may easily turn to Texas, the neglected stronghold of the party, for its leadership out of the impasse of several candidates with strength to block the others' nomination.

While he is certain to be in the spotlight of the national convention, if present, and his influence is certain to be felt there if he stays on the sidelines, Moody is said to have no longings for the senatorial race next year.

State Treasurer Charges "Padding" of Payroll

Evidence in $20,000 Discrepancy Turned Over to Attorney General's Department

AUSTIN, July 16. (AP)—State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher today referred to the attorney general's department what he considered evidence of "padding" of more than $20,000 in the payroll of a large state department for possible investigation by the Travis county grand jury, it was learned tonight.

The grand jury is to meet early next week. Although Hatcher was out of town and could not be reached tonight, the alleged "padding" is said to have been last year. The payrolls had been in possession of the treasurer for use in payment of warrants and in this way came under suspicion recently.

Three persons were indicted recently by the grand jury investigating alleged padding of some $6000 to $8000 in the state highway department payroll last year. The attorney general's department aided the investigation.

Specific instructions amounting to about $1300 were charged in indictments against S. C. Tomkins, former highway division chief clerk, and H. Joachke, alleged to have been a "dummy" on the payroll. A third defendant indicted has not been arrested.

City Sprayer Leads War On Tree Pests

Shade trees in Wichita Falls received their first dose of arsenic solution from the 90 foot stream of the new "Bear" sprayer recently purchased by the city on Saturday, and several thousand bugs are dead as a consequence, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks. The machine was manipulated by two men hired for its use, and dispatched insects in a highly satisfactory manner, it was said.

Trees near the railroad tracks on and around Broad street received first attention of the day. Special care will be given in case of web and bag-worm pests, Mr. Bunnenberg said.

HARD FIGHT ON FARM AID SEEN

Agricultural Relief Measure Big Political Isue

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Farm relief, that bugaboo that has troubled the sleep of republican leaders since President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill, again will be one of the dominant issues before congress when it re-assembles in December, political leaders declared here today.

Not only will the next session of congress be featured by renewed demands for some type of adequate legislation to aid the much deflated agriculturists but the very future of the Coolidge administration in its third term effort is seen at stake in the results of the farm relief battle.

This was the general reaction of political Washington to the northwestern agricultural conference at St. Paul this week where pleas for farm aid were militantly set forth.

Farm Leaders Confer.

With agricultural leaders in attendance from 14 middle western states, the St. Paul conference went on record for congressional action on the farm problem at the next session. Resolutions adopted by the conference were interpreted here as conveying a silent warning to President Coolidge that unless he get aboard the farm relief band wagon, the agricultural states will turn "thumbs down" on his alleged third-term aspirations.

Washington politicians of both major parties had been awaiting the St. Paul conference to test out the "real" condition of Coolidge sentiment in the middle west. So far they have not placed any too great reliance on the kindly remarks of guests who have been giving lip service to Mr. Coolidge after visits to the Black Hills summer White House.

The St. Paul conference was called by the American council of agriculture which includes the representatives of 49 agricultural bodies, principally in Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Montana.

Representative Meet.

For that reason agrarian leaders consider it representative of the major elements of the farming states.

The conference revealed that the staunchest backers of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which was passed by the last congress only to be vetoed by President Coolidge, are still battling for their pet measure.

Representatives Haugen and Dickinson, of Iowa, leaders of the house farm bloc, both spoke at the conference.

Because of the political nature of the next congress, which directly preceeds the nominating conventions and the presidential election, both anti-Coolidge republicans and the democrats are expected to again be willing to pass the McNary-Haugen measure and thus place the question of farm relief again on Mr. Coolidge's desk just prior to the national scramble for votes.

Hard Fight Seen.

That being the case the battle over farm relief between those who really want farm aid legislation and anti-administration people on one hand and the G. O. P. leaders on the other is expected to be keenly fought.

Deaths

Mrs. C. M. Metze, 38, died at a local hospital at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning following a short illness. The body was taken overland to Randlett, Okla., Saturday afternoon by the Merkle Undertaking company. Burial will be in Temple, Okla., Sunday afternoon.

BILLIE TOLBERT BAKER.

Funeral services for Billie Tolbert Baker, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Baker, 914 Fourth street, were held in Byers Saturday afternoon where the body was taken Saturday morning. The boy died at the home of his parents Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Keep Away from Calomel!! It is Quicksilver – Mercury

Never take calomel. It is mercury—a dangerous drug. If you are constipated, bilious, sick, headachy, stomach sour, meals don't taste right, hot days make you drowsy and lazy, take Dodson's Liver Tone. That's all you need.

Calomel salivates. That's why you have to take salts the next day to get it out of your system so it will not eat your bones. You have to stay at home to recuperate from the shock it gives you. No wonder Dodson's Liver Tone is so popular. All you do is take a spoonful at night. By morning you are cleaned out good, head is clear, you feel as light as a feather; you are not sick, no danger of salivation, and you can eat anything you want. Think of that.

Get the big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house so you will have it handy to take nights before going to bed.—Adv.

LINDBERGH TO GREET FLIERS

Atlantic Aviator to Meet Byrd at New York

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Colonel Charles Lindbergh, otherwise known as Lindy, will be the first to welcome the five trans-Atlantic flyers for whom he blazed the trail.

When the Macon, Mayor Walker's official boat, steams down the harbor Monday morning to meet the Leviathan at quarantine, and take off Commander Richard E. Byrd, his companions of the America, and Clarence Chamberlin who preceded them through the air to Europe, Lindy will be aboard.

His personal representative has arranged for him to be among the first to shake hands with his intrepid brothers-of-the-air.

Aboard also will be the mayor's welcoming committee, reporters and photographers. Mrs. Byrd will wait at the battery with Mrs. Walker and Rodman Wanamaker, financial backer of the America's flight.

The America itself, broken though it is, is coming back home with her crew and may be placed on exhibition here for a short time.

Martin and Gibbs To Resume Posts Monday

Judge P. A. Martin of the 89th district court, and Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs, both compelled to relinquish their benches during the week due to illness, are both expected to return to their courts the first part of this week.

Judge Martin suffered from an attack of blood poisoning, however physicians stated Saturday that he was improving rapidly.

Justice Gibbs who was stricken with a heart attack Friday while administering his court and was removed to a hospital, was taken to his home Saturday night. His condition is reported as improved with the probability that he will be over his illness by Monday or Tuesday.

Blemished Skin Clears Up Quickly

Sunshine and wind are not always so kind to us. When dainty complexions and hands are exposed to their burning and roughening effect they become freckled, tanned or discolored; usually in spots.

A minute's care will white the skin again. Simply squeeze the juice of two lemons into a three-ounce bottle of Orchard White, which you can get from your nearest store, and massage the complexion and hands with this lotion.

You will be delighted with the way it clears your skin and revives its youthful charm.—Adv.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD MEETING

Wichita County Association at Iowa Park

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, July 16. — The Wichita County Association of I. O. O. F. met last week at the W. F. George High school building with representatives from 13 lodges in attendance, more than a hundred members of that order being present. The president, W. P. Lewis, of Electra, presided over the meeting. A. C. Golden welcomed the visitors to Iowa Park in a short talk in which he discussed some of the principles of Oddfellowship. Marvin Dees of Electra made the response in the absence of the president of the Rebecca Assembly, Mrs. Adah Ramsey, who was on the program for the response. Encouraging reports were heard from the various lodges represented showing an interest in the work and the addition of new members.

The vice-president, W. B. McNeeley, announced that a group of children from the Oddfellows home in Corsicana will be in Wichita Falls Sunday and Monday, August 8 and 9. Sunday evening they will give a musical number at the Union meeting at Bellevue park, and Monday evening from 5 to 7 they will be guests of the Oddfellows at an old time basket picnic at Haven park when a short program will be given by the children. Mr. McNeeley invited every Oddfellow to Wichita Falls to see the children. From Wichita Falls they will go to Electra to attend the Lower Panhandle association district meeting which convenes in that city on August 10.

MEMPHIS SOCIETY

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, July 16.—Before leaving Saturday for Santa Anna, Cal., the 1927 Bridge club honored Mrs. Neil Stephens with a handkerchief shower and farewell party last Friday morning at the home of Mrs. Curtis Huckaby. Those present besides club members were Mesdames Jess Ballew, Edd Cubb, and Luther Grundy.

A family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Gibson last Thursday, July 7. All their children together with their grandchildren and the in-laws were present. Mr. and Mrs. Pete Gibson of Bells, Cal., Howard Gibson and Mrs. Leak of Shamrock, Jess Gibson and family, Ode Gibson and family, D. D. Bramley and family, Jim, Earl and W. L. Gibson, all of Memphis.

The Mizpah Auxiliary of the Presbyterian church met in regular meeting Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Luther Grundy with Mrs. Mary Helen McNeely as leader. After the business meeting the hostess served ice cream and cake to the following members: Mesdames C. D. Deany, James E. Bass, Conley Ward, Ewell Noel, Elmer S. Shelley, L. D. Pierce Jr., Jess Peddy, Arthur Young, Jr., Luther Grundy, Misses Mary Noel and Mary Helen McNeely.

Thursday evening, July 7, Miss Tetta Mae Hackworth entertained a group of friends with a slumber party in honor of her house guest, Miss Josephine Miller of Marlow, Okla. On Friday morning the girls went to the Pantime swimming pool for an early morning swim and sunrise breakfast given by Mrs. J. C. Wilson Jr. and Mrs. P. L. Hackworth. The following girls were present: Misses Mildred Cohen, Oneta Hollis, Avis Loard, Dorcas Ruth Wilson, Emil Brewer, Mary Etta Martin, Tetta Mae Hackworth, Josephine Hilley, Frances Denny, Alice Ruth McClaren, Nelma Bishop, Genevieve Williams, Willie C. Wilson, Grace Wilson and Mrs. Leon Collier.

The Y. W. A. of the First Baptist church met in regular meeting Monday night, July 11, at the home of Lucile Read with Mrs. Jet Fore hostess. After singing a few songs a business was attended to. Plans were discussed by which the Y. W. A. could make money to pay on the pipe organ. Then an attractive program on "Fidgeret," the Y. W. A. summer camp in North Carolina, was rendered with Bonnie Wood as leader. Each girl felt rather sad because it was the last meeting their councelor, Mrs. Jet Fore would be with them, since she is leaving this week for her new home in White Deer. As an appreciation for what she has done the girls presented her with a beautiful large picture. Mrs. Fore responded with a clever little speech. Dainty refreshments were served to some twenty members and guests.

A bridal shower for Miss Otta Greene was held at the home of Mrs. R. S. Greene Monday evening. The guests entered the spacious reception room where tables were arranged for playing "Hearts." After all guests had arrived progressive "Hearts" was enjoyed for a brief hour.

The gay laughter and chatter suddenly ceased when tiny Marie Cohen dressed in red crepe paper with a butterfly bow on her shoulder entered. Approaching Miss Greene she took her hand and led her into the dining room. The guests following to find the room softly lighted by red lights. From the chandelier red crepe paper streamers stretched to various parts of the room and even into the adjoining rooms. As Miss Greene followed to the end of the streamers she found her gifts, many lovely gifts of silver, linen, glassware, pictures, illuminum, etc. Red hearts were strung attractively about the room.

After the gifts were all opened and Otta had expressed her love and appreciation Miss Vernadine Jones rendered a beautiful solo, "Dawning," accompanied by Miss Shirley Greene. Iced watermelon cut into heart shapes proved to be a most appropriate and delectable refreshment.

Wishing for Otta all of the best things in life and declaring Mrs. Greene and Miss Shirley the most gracious of hostesses, the guests departed at a late hour.

One of the greatest surprises of her life came to Miss Otta Greene Tuesday evening, whose marriage to Mr. J. E. Roper was to take place Thursday morning, was a kitchen shower given by her Sunday school class at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Guthrie. The guests arrived early, parked their cars on other streets and turned out all the lights. Mrs. Guthrie called for Miss Greene to come for a little business talk. Soon she arrived in a simple house dress and house slippers. Mrs. Guthrie met her on the porch and as she entered the living room the lights were flashed on. Utter surprise beamed from every line of her face. When the merriment subsided Miss Shirley Greene gave a beautiful reading. Miss Greene was welcomed into the ranks of married women and little Miss Peggy Bowers dressed as a dainty little fairy invited Otta into the dining room where she was met by the fairy wedding cake. The cake was covered in white trimmed in pink and topped by two lighted pink candles. When opened it revealed a great number of useful and attractive articles for kitchen use.

A delightful serving of ice cream, pink heart cakes and pink and white mints was greatly enjoyed.

The home was artistically decorated with pink and white. Several former members of the class were present. Also Mrs. Ernest Lee and Miss Willie Guinn, the only two remaining local girls graduating from the same class with Miss Greene.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning, July 14, at the home of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Greene, was solemnized one of the most beautiful weddings of the season, that of their daughter, Miss Otta Lee, to Mr. J. E. Roper of this city. The home was fragrant with the aroma of roses and carnations, great vases of which were arranged artistically about each room. Green fern was laced along the railing of the stairs and drooped gracefully from the chandeliers. Soft lights played through the mass of green, adding an air of enchantment. A lovely wedding bell made of white satin ribbon hung in the doorway between the reception room and the dining room.

Mrs. Mac Tarver, accompanied by Miss Shirley Greene, sang "I Love You Truly."

Rev. A. L. Moore of Clarendon preceded the bridal couple down the stairway through the reception room into the dining room, Mr. Roper and Miss Greene stood in the doorway between the dining and reception rooms while the impressive ring ceremony was pronounced.

The bride was dressed in old rose georgette and carried a georgeous bouquet of red rosebuds. The groom's suit was grey.

Miss Shirley Greene played the wedding march during the ceremony. Mrs. Roper threw her bouquet from the stairway and it was caught by Miss Bess Pyle.

Miss Shirley presided at the punch bowl.

The newly weds departed immediately after the ceremony for a month's visit in Mississippi. Mrs. Roper's traveling costume was blue tweed with tan hat, slippers and accessories.

The bride is one of Memphis' most charming young ladies; her friends are numbered by her acquaintances. Her winning personality and sweet disposition have entitled her to a place of distinction in the entire county.

Mrs. Harvey Cooper entertained the 1917 Bridge club last Thursday afternoon, July 7. Mrs. Curtis Huckaby made high score and Mrs. E. H. Roberson made second high. A plate luncheon was served. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Curtis Huckaby, Thursday evening, July 21.

On Thursday of last week the second class Girl Scouts enjoyed a most delightful time in the new home of Miss Neville Wrenn. Captain Wrenn was assisted by Captain Ira Hammond and Lieutenants Wanell Hoffman and La Vern Bolick.

The girls assembled about 4:30 p. m. then supper was spread and enjoyed by all. Entertainment consisted of readings, games and tricks of all kinds.

Near 11 o'clock "Mr. Sandman" called the happy but tired children into dreamland and the next morning about seven o'clock the "Sunbeam Fairies" came peeping in to announce the delightful breakfast of bacon, eggs, toast and oranges.

Soon the girls prepared to leave for home declaring the occasion the most enjoyable possible, and with high hopes that other such times would come to pass in the near future.

The guests included Lula Fae Oren, Margaret Helen Ewing, Vallie Harrell, Pauline Turlington, Margille Sigler, Bettie Dale West, Dorothy Hart, Ione Drake, Ollie Murle Bean, Beatrice White, Georgene Sexauer, Frankie Bullock, Christine Graham, Helen Ruth Wiggins, Mary E. Dyer, Ouida Rice, Helen Boswell, Willie Freeland, Loreece Webster, Lola Mae Grundy, Veda Brown, Elizabeth Jameson, Vera Neely, Phaneiphia Gibson, Charlette Fore, Frances Ogden, Frances Wright.

Cottle County "Home Beautiful"

This is a picture of the "Home Beautiful" erected and furnished by the Federated Women's Clubs of Cottle county as a feature of their home education movement. The house is located at Paducah.

PADUCAH, July 16.—The Federated Women's clubs of Cottle county have been working for some time, on the idea of a "Home Beautiful," which would be practical, and within the means of the moderately well to do, in towns of Paducah's size.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Phillips, county chairman of "better homes in America," and Mrs. W. W. Carroll who has had considerable training in interior decorating, this idea was brought to fruition recently.

The object being purely educational and the finances of the clubs limited, the only way it could be accomplished was by the co-operation of the whole town, which was given 100 per cent.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Dumont, whose English cottage in stucco has just been completed, lent their home to the clubs for the occasion. Everybody including the merchants lent anything they had which would fit into the scheme. The ladies all worked at fitting it up, and took turns in receiving the several hundred visitors who called at the home.

The style of architecture of the house being English, the interior was furnished to correspond. An electric range, water heater, kitchen cabinet, in fact all modern conveniences were installed. Particular attention was given to harmony of color schemes. The idea that one can have a beautiful home with the same expense as an unattractive one was strongly stressed.

The house was built at a cost of $2500 on a lot valued at $500, and the retail price on the furnishings used was $1685.

The Federated clubs expended only $41.30 on the project, and the ladies are highly elated over the success of their venture.

Clarendon Boosters in Good Will Tour of South Plains Country

Special to The Record News.

CLARENDON, July 16.—The second of three booster trips conducted by the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce in the interest of the new Clarendon Municipal Junior college came to a close yesterday afternoon. The party in autos left Clarendon Wednesday morning carrying the Clarendon band. The departure from town was made in a rain but the entire crowd was so glad to see it that no mention was made of the mud that might have to be encountered to make the trip.

At Lelia Lake, the first stop, it was raining so heavy that no program was conducted and only literature on the college distributed. The next stop at Hedley was also made in the rain but a large crowd was attracted by the band and the Clarendon speaker told the mission of the party. The trippers then proceeded to Memphis where a good rain had fallen and were welcomed to the city by Claude Wells, president of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, who in turn introduced Chas. Dean of Clarendon who invited those present to a consideration of the Clarendon college when planning to send their children away to college.

Stop at Estelline

The next stop was at Estelline where Secretary Landres of the chamber of commerce of that city introduced Homer Mulkey of Clarendon who spoke for a few minutes on the college. Fred Story, Childress Post editor and president of the Childress Chamber of Commerce welcomed the party to Childress and introduced the Clarendon speaker after which the Clarendon band played a short concert and paraded on the streets of the town. A short stop was made at Kirkland where many students have come from to attend Clarendon college in the past few years, and the party moved on to Quanah. Attorney Welch of that city welcomed Clarendon before a crowd of about 400 people and introduced Charles Dean, the Clarendon speaker who explained the creation of Clarendon's college and invited all to send their boys and girls to it in the fall. The party next drove to Paducah where the night was to be spent and a band concert played that night. A large crowd gathered around the Cook hotel of that city to hear the concert and the Rev. R. N. Huckabey, a former student of Clarendon college now a resident of Paducah, urge his people to a consideration of this new college established in Clarendon. Several speeches were made by Clarendon men and it was 11 o'clock before the affair was over and the Clarendon delegation hustled to their beds after a hard day of driving and riding in the mud. After the Clarendon golf hounds tried out the Paducah course next morning the party drove to Matador, leaving about 9 a. m., where J. N. Murrell of that city welcomed the party and assured them that Matador was in sympathy with the movement.

Possibly the best and most enjoyable surprise of the entire trip was at Turkey where the chamber of commerce of that growing little city had lunch all prepared for the entire visiting party. This was the best welcome of the trip according to the unanimous vote of the delegation and a short band concert was played in honor of the town when the morsels of food no longer remained on the banquet board. John Sharp of the First National bank, Secretary Walker of the chamber of commerce, and Rev. J. B. Watson Methodist pastor, and Turkey ladies were responsible for this the most welcome reception that the delegation received on the trip.

Quitaque Visited

The next town visited, Quitaque, the delegation was treated to drinks at the City Drug store and afterwards a short band concert was played and Loran Naylor made the speech of the hour being a former Clarendon college student. The entire party agreed that Naylor did so well that he should speak at the next stop and he did, at Silverton. This was the last stop before returning home where a short concert was played on the streets for the benefit of the home folks and to tell them the success met with on the trip.

Clarendon citizens on the trip say that they could not have wished for more consideration from neighboring towns and predict a good year for the start of the new school this fall.

MEMPHIS ROAD WORK STARTED

Detour Orders in Force On Highway

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, July 16.—The first two miles of the thirteen and a half miles to be paved on Highway Five through Hall county has been blue-topped by the engineers, and it has been closed to travel. This two miles runs northwest from Memphis to the Donley county line. Traffic has been detoured by way of Sixteenth street, then across at the Memphis Poultry farm, and on north to the highway at the railroad crossing.

About all the paving machinery has arrived and a large part of it has been assembled for work. The V. P. Strange Paving company of Salt Lake City, Utah, who was awarded the contract for paving this 13 1-2 miles, has temporary offices and headquarters about finished, and have set July 25 as the day to begin pouring concrete, according to Mr. E. L. Prater, who has the contract for moving all cement, dirt, sand and gravel for the job. Mr. Prater just a few days ago bought a fleet of nine Ford trucks for carrying his part of the contract.

Even though Hall county has waited four years for this work of paving its part on Highway Five, it is the first county in this part of the state to begin paving.

The recent rains over the county will prove very helpful to the contractors of this paving project, as the ground was so hard it was difficult to prepare the grade for the concrete. A scorifier was ordered before the rain, but it is thought now it won't be necessary to use it.

The contractors expect to have the first two miles finished in about 40 days, and then they will push the work of paving south toward the river near Estelline.

TEXAN TO HEAD EXPEDITION IN SCIENCE STUDY

Dr. John Karling Will Go Into Wilds British Honduras

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, July 16.—Dr. John S. Karling, graduate and former faculty member of the University of Texas, will lead an expedition into the wilds of British Honduras whose objetc will be to combine an assurance of the future "enting" supply of American gum chewers, and a study of the eating, living and raison d-etre of the unque tapir, or ant-eater of Central America.

Dr. Karling will bring back a number of baby tapirs to be placed at zoos in Austin and elsewhere in America.

His trip, a scientific expedition of international importance, will be one of high adventure as well for Dr. Karling will be the only white man in the part oy 15, who will spend eight months in the trackless wilds of an unexplored tropical country. This is to be the first of a long series of annual visits to Central and South America. Dr. Karling left Austin Friday on his way to Central America. He had visited his father, T. L. Karling, for several days. He will return to Austin next February, and has promised to bring a number of the baby tapirs back with him.

To Study Trees

The primary work of his expedition will be to make a scientific study of the sapodilla tree, from which the chicle for chewing gum is secured. Dr. Karling is now professor of botany in Columbia university, New York, and because of his firmly-established reputation in his field, he was selected by the tropical plant and research foundation of Washington to make the long series of experiments with the sapodilla tree.

He will attempt to find the cause for the dying of so many trees. He may reorganize the whole syster of "tapping" the trees to secure the chicle, so as to preserve the value of the forests.

Dr. Karling is taking a big collection of supplies with him. He will have motion picture camera and many reels of film, with which to record something of the wild life of the tropics. He will make pictures showing the life habitat and habits of the tapir.

The botanist will write a series of scientific articles for the National Geographic magazine dealing with his studies and experiments with the sapodilla tree.

Dr. Karling, after his graduation from the University of Texas continued his studies at Oxford university, England. Next year he plans to make other trips to the tropics to carry through his extensive span of experiments.

Other Expeditions

His is the third recent undertaking of more than national interest, undertaken by graduates and faculty men of the University of Texas. Two years ago, Dr. Carl Hartman left for a 20-year research in zoology in the study of the old world monkeys—the most exhaustive ever undertaken to gain scientific knowledge of the highly-developed animal. His research is under auspices of Johns Hopkins university.

Four years ago George Finlay Simmons, zoologist and ornithologist of the University of Texas, as curator of the Cleveland museum of natural history, commanded an expedition on the ship, "Blossom," into the unexplored islands of the Antilles, and over the anarctic seas in a study of the marine and bird life of an unknown region.

Trans-Atlantic Aviator Refuses to Wear "Sky-Piece"

Book of Adventure Stories, Printed in 1754, Arrives Here After 173 Years of Travel

The adventures of the "Adventures of Telemachus, The Son of Ulysses," a book printed in 1754 have led it to Wichita Falls where it is in the possession of Lawrence Pack, 1508 Eighth street.

Once rescued from a burning house and another time saved from being sold to a waste paper collector, the book written by the Archbishop of Cambray, the leader of the literati in old England, was obtained by Mr. Pack from his father, to whom it was given by his great-grandfather, who brought it to America when he emigrated to this country.

Following the custom in the early days when publishers catered to English and French readers, the contents of the book are printed in both languages. The French version of the story is on the left hand pages and the English version on the right hand.

One of the peculiarities of the book is the use of the letter "F" in place of "S." In the days when the archbishop was a leading novelist "S" and "F" were printed with the same figure, leaving the reader to determine which letter the figure represented.

Mr. Pack has entered the book in several "Old Relic" exhibitions held in connection with county and state fairs and as a result has been awarded blue ribbons, as first prize, at each exposition.

Attesting to the fact that publishers in the eighteenth century were good judges of paper stock is the fact that the stock in the "Adventures of Telemachus" in the twentieth century is in excellent condition. The pages are somewhat yellowed with age but otherwise the years that have passed by since it was published have not left their mark.

"The Adventures of Telemachus" is a sequel to the travels of Ulysses, who braved all dangers in his various trips. The language construction is coincident with that of the eighteenth century which is somewhat different from that of the present day.

Electra Police Chief Loses Final Fight Against Ouster

Appeals Court Denies Rehearing On Injunction; Case Up For Trial "On Merits" in September

Efforts of three members of the Electra city council to oust J. T. Taylor as chief of police and fire marshal were successful Saturday when the second court of civil appeals in Fort Worth overruled a motion for a rehearing on its action in vacating an injunction granted Taylor restraining the city of Electra from removing him from office.

The action of the appellate court is final insofar as the injunction case is concerned, Guy Rogers, attorney for Taylor, said Saturday, and just as soon as the higher court's mandate is received by Electra officials, Taylor will be removed unless the city council decides to retain him.

However, Mr. Rogers said that the case would come up on its merits" at the September term of the 78th district court, Judge W. W. Cook, presiding, in which tribunal the injunction was granted.

The September hearing will concern the legal right of the city council to remove Taylor.

If Taylor receives an adverse decision in the district court the case will be taken to the supreme court, according to Mr. Rogers.

The injunction restraining the removal of Taylor from office was granted May 29. In his petition Taylor sets but that according to an Electra city law he could only be removed from office by a unanimous vote of the council during his term of office, which was for two years starting December, 1924.

City Appeals Case

Through its attorneys, James Allred and Raymond Allred, the city of Electra appealed direct to the court of civil appeals from Judge Cook's action, setting out the claim that another city law existed which prescribed that the council by a majority vore could remove an officer when no charges of misconduct in office had been filed.

No charges of any kind were made against Taylor and he was removed by a three to two vote of the council.

Two weeks ago the appellate court vacated the injunction, Taylor's attorney filed a motion for a rehearing, arguments upon which were heard Friday by the court.

The order for Taylor's removal was passed by the city council during the early part of May, effective June 1. Tom Shook, an Electra officer, was appointed to succeed Taylor.

Mayor George D. Ragland and A. C. Rippy, commissioner, voted agains the removal and M. D. Goldsmith, George LeBus and C. R. Miller for it.

PLANE'S WRECK IS DISCOVERED

Ship Found at Mouth Of Amazon River

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, July 16. (AP)—The wreckage of an airplane found some time ago by a fisherman in the Amazon and taken to Para has been identified by an engineer as a Goliath, strengthening the belief that it was the plane of Capt. Saint Roman. The engineer said the machine was in rather good condition and must have made a fair landing as the wheels showed no damage whatever.

Capt. Saint Roman and a flying companion left St. Louis, Zenegal, May 5, for a flight across the Southern Atlantic to South America. They failed to appear at Fernambuco and an extended search was unsuccessful. French airplane experts have expressed the opinion that the plane found at the mouth of the Amazon river from its description was the one in which the missing airmen started their flight.

PAYS $15,000 FOR FREEDOM

Oklahoma Prison Fugitive To Be Brought Back

MINNEAPOLIS, July 16. (AP)—"Cadillac Jim" McGraw, also known as James Gellan, told police here today he paid $15,000 in good cold cash, to walk out of the state reformatory at Granite, Okla., but then admitted he is "prone to exaggeration."

"I had $17,000 when I went into that reformatory and it cost me every cent of it to get out, so I left there broke," McGraw told questioners, but he did not detail the manner of the expenditure.

McGraw, wanted in sever states for forgery and other affairs, is being held until police decide what to do with him. He has told police he robbed 17 banks in Oklahoma and escaped from the state reformatory with 80 years' imprisonment hanging over him.

Oklahoma Wants Him

Several urgent telegrams were received from Oklahoma authorities today requesting his return to that state and also discrediting his tales of numerous bank robberies with the suggestion that "Jim is fond of exaggerating." This McGraw admitted.

Another request for McGraw came today from the Iowa bureau of identification at Des Moines. Superintendent J. E. Risden wired that McGraw was wanted at Clinton, Ia., on an indictment charging assault with intent to kill.

With regard to this latter charge McGraw said he and two companions were en route to Chicago by automobile when two motorcycle officers stopped them and demanded they throw up their hands. McGraw did, he said, but one of his companions fired several times.

McGraw, who was arrested in an automobile loaded with shot guns and rifles on the eve, he said, of a bank robbery, he had planned at Center City, Wis., smiled when he saw telegrams from the Oklahoma state bureau of identification.

Wants to Go Back

"I'd like to go back there," he grinned, when he saw telegrams from the wardens of Oklahoma state reformatory and the state prison. "I'm sorry I left. They always treated me nice down at Granite. I shouldn't have walked out."

He told detectives he is willing to waive extradition to Oklahoma. McGraw will be returned to the Oklahoma reformatory at Granite, Okla., police said this afternoon. He escaped from the reformatory while superintendent of the bathrooms, a job to which he was assigned after being transferred to the reformatory from the penitentiary at McAlester, Okla.

MOVE WHOLE TOWN

Mississippi Valley Village To Be Placed Out Of Flood's Reach

WASHINGTON, July 16. (AP) Moving a whole town onto a high bluff a distance of half a mile and digging out another buried under an eight foot deposit of river mud and sand form two tasks of the Red Cross in its Mississippi valley flood reconstruction program.

Columbus, Ky., with 1000 population is to be set high and dry upon a bluff half a mile away as the river has been gradually undermining many of its buildings during floods in recent years.

Melville, La., is described by the Red Cross as virtually a buried city and parts of it are still under water.

SEVEN STATES AFTER WATER

Colorado River Project Is Bone of Contention

By Universal Service.

DENVER, Colo., July 16.—Amicable settlement of the Colorado river problem which has been the subject of interstate, federal and international controversy for many years was believed near following a conference here.

The conference was between Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work and the advisors appointed by him several months ago to investigate the allocation of water of the Colorado river, including erection of Boulder dam in Arizona and the Mexico claim to water rights.

At the close of today's meeting it was announced that a call would be issued for a conference of representatives of Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah at an early date. A tentative plan had previously been announced for such a meeting to be held at Salt Lake but the governors of Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico agreed today to issue the call to meet respresentatives of the four other states at Denver.

New State Treaty

"I am confident a new seven-state treaty will be ratified at this meeting," Governor Emerson said. "And I see in such a compace a clear way for logical and rapid development of the whole river project."

Secretary Work and Secretary of Commerce Hoover will be asked to attend the conference and invitations will be extended to congressional representatives of the states involved.

The advisory group which met with Secretary Work today have spent considerable time since last May in studying the whole Colorado river project.

They visited all of the proposed sites for dams the territory through the all-American canal would be cut and also the present canal district.

They found that the chief problems are those caring the silt situation in the Imperial Valley, dealing with the international question, and finding a location suitable for such a dam as is proposed as well as dealing with the flood danger.

"There is an imminent danger," said Secretary Work, "that sooner or later Mexico will take so much of the water that is carried from the Colorado river, through that country and into the Imperial Valley, that California will begin to suffer. This is true because Mexico is putting land under cultivation at such a rapid rate at the present time."

200,000 Acres Cultivated

Already Mexico has 200,000 acres of land under cultivation and is adding to it rapidly, Work said. With this acreage to irrigate she at times uses more than half of the water in the canal, leaving the smaller part for the Imperial Valley needs.

The dykes and levees which guard the canal in Mexico are all in good condition at the present time, J. G. Scrugham, former governor of Nevada state. It is a significant fact, however, that these dykes are cared for by the Imperial Valley.

New Translation of Bible Varies From Old in Story of Creation

CHICAGO, July 16(AP)—The story of the serpent that enticed Eve into committing the first sin is cast in modern language in the first American translation of the old testament, completed after three years' work by four noted American and Canadian students of ancient Hebrew. The work is to be published by the University of Chicago.

The classic example of concise writing held up before young penmen—the description of the creation of the world in 10 words—becomes 49 words in a compound sentence in the American translation. The 49 words, however, cover the same ground as the first four verses of the King James version.

The first sentence of the older version is: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

The new translation is: "When God began to create the heaven and the earth, the earth being a desolate waste with darkness covering the abyss and the spirit of God hovering over the waters then God said: 'Let there be light' and there was light; and God saw that the light was good."

One of those Los Angeles spiders who've been killing people with one bite must have come in here the other day and sneaked a nibble on my left lower extremity. But I'll wager that insect came up with an awful stomach ache.

Being all tangled up in the hay that way, I naturally missed the major festivities of the week, that house party our Spudders staged with the Houston Cardinals. This Punch Lapan must be a mad man who gets mad quick, the way they tell me he went after Johnny Kane and Johnny armed with a war bludgeon. Now I personally don't mind jumping a guy, providing that guy is a very little fellow and if he gets me riled (which is pretty hard to do), but I always look first and if he's got so much as an extra large tie clasp on, I stand away back and ask him to drop his weapons before he duels with me. Being of that disposition, it is not difficult for me to appreciate enthusiastically Mr. Punch Lapan's sortie against Mr. Johnny Kane and Mr. Kane heavily armed, as it were, with a large baseball bat—well, maybe not so large, but a baseball bat.

YUS

And they say the Old Trojan himself swung a few random knuckles. My, how good that would have done my heart to be there and see Santa Anna's pride and joy drop that infectious country boy smile of his and get all hopped up mean enough to bust somebody on the button. That would be a sure cure for astygmatism. No doubt, our three umpires who were present that day can see very much the better now. That is, if in the first place they were able to see anything of the fight at all.

* * *

VERY SORRY, INDEED

That was an unfortunate quirk that gave our Mr. Fussell such a lacing the day before when Houston bats bumped out a 6-2 victory. Now, if I had been there with the old moral support we would have won in a walk, in the end making it unanimous over the Cardinals. Perhaps you don't know this, but the eminent wronghander is MY pitcher and he can't work unless I'm on deck. I have kind of a hypnotic power over this guy and that is no sausage. When he's on the road, if I'm not along, he knows I'm over at Slick's indoor baseball emporium checking him ball for ball and strike for strike, which makes the effect on him all the same. But let him get an idea I'm not on hand pulling the left leg for him and he becomes worried. And a lefthander worried is liable to do anything absolutely anyTHING!

* * *

WHY is it—

Practically every gal figuring in a gun robbery is catechised as a "flapper bandit" and is described as "blonde, pretty, bobbed haired and defiant?"

And EVERY moll who happens to be the sweetie of a bootlegger's Friday is labeled "Queen of the Rum Runners?"

And every Hollywood extra who slices hubby's throat or talks some other guy into bumping him off is called a "movie star?"

And every skirt who figures in one of these, as the rest of feminity wubs it, "de-elicious" little scandals where the male catches the short end of the trick is termed a "Modern Eve?"

And every wife, even though she may be in reality the worst by far, is alluded to as the "better half?"

And the most innocent, doll-like, dumb, harmless young fluff comes with the rest under that caption, "Deadlier of the Species?"

* * *

LET'S ALL GET RICH

About this Dempsey-Sharkey fuss, "if you are going to put any money on the fight," writes Buster Martin, Wichita Falls heavyweight in New York, "I would advise you to put it on Dempsey. I have been watching Sharkey train every day and I don't see where he will have a chance with Dempsey as I don't think he is a third as good as the newspapers would make you believe he is." Now, gentlemen, you know where to place your coin.

WELL?

Several of the boys who saw that Matsuda-Reed wrangle at the stadium Friday night, tell me the Jap would have lost had he wrestled under Police Gazette rules, you know, the "button" and other jiu jitsu tricks barred. If that be true, somebody gave Reed a raw deal. Reed wanted to tackle Matty for the Jap's worn and dented welter title and he wanted to do it the Police Gazette way. Reed was perfectly right in such a demand, considering that it was under Police Gazette rules sans jui jitsu the Jap won the belt.

PAYNE TAGS IT ON BEARS, 7-5

Griffin Leads Batting Attack Against Messenger

By MACK TURNER

The Spudders continued on their merry way Saturday afternoon when they took Honus Mitze's merry macemen from San Antonio into camp and gave them a severe, 7 to 5 drubbing. The Spudders had a great day at the bat in the last innings when Andy Messenger weakened. George Washington Payne had no trouble in turning back the Bears.

Only six hits were made off the Spudder right hander, four of these being bunched in the second inning, and another being for a home run in the seventh. Payne had worlds of stuff and five of the Bears were turned back by the strikeout route.

San Antonio made six errors in the field and our old friend Ziggy Sears was the cause of no less than three of these misplays. Olle was the only member of the Bears who could get two hits off Payne. The Alamo City third baseman slammed out a single and a home run. Olle drove in two of the Bears runs and scored twice himself.

Pug Griffin, Lyman Lamb and Walloping Wally Swenson each collected two hits for the Spudders, Griffin and Lamb each getting a double. Griffin was the batting hero of the Spudders. The hard hitting center fielder drove in three runs and scored twice himself.

The two teams will hook up again this afternoon at three bells for one game. Joe Kiefer, short-armed Spudder right hander, looks like the opening pitcher for Wichita Falls. Bob Couchman looks like the best bet for the Bears.

Bears Get Rough Early

The first inning brought forth nothing but long flies to the outfield that were captured, but in the second inning the Bears found Payne for four tallies. Payne was hit hard and in rapid order for a few minutes, but he came out of it and settled down. Phipps started the round with a hot single through the box. Leslie slammed a triple down the first base line and Phipps romped home. Olle then rapped a one-baser to port that counted Leslie. Long crashed one to left that Jenkins almost caught, but it was a little too high and went for a double, Olle stopping at third base. Messenger flied to Griffin and both runners advanced, Olle scoring. Jenkins made a great running catch of Flaskamper's long drive to left, Long scoring after the play. Lamb handled Klien's fly to right for the third out.

In the third inning the Spudders started poking away at Messenger, but couldn't put over any tallies. Swenson beat out an infield hit to short. Tobin hit to Flaskamper who threw to second, but Philbin dropped the ball. Payne laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt that moved both men up, but LaFayette popped to Long and Turgeon fanned.

The Spudders again made a threat in the fourth inning, but again they failed. Griffin was safe when Olle threw wide to first. Lamb lined out to center. Jenkins drew a pass to first base. Benton struck out and Swenson forced Jenkins at second, Olle to Philbin.

Start in Fifth.

In the fifth the Spudders started their barrage on Andy Messenger and when the smoke cleared from the battlefield three runs had been sent over the plate. Tobin rolled out to Olle. Payne crashed a wicked drive to right field for a single. Froggy then crashed one to left for one base, and Sears fumbled the ball sending LaFayette to second and Payne scored. This blow came after LaFayette had drawn a life when Long dropped his high foul. Turgeon lined out to center. Griffin came through with a bullet like drive to left and again Sears errored on the ball. LaFayette checked in at the plate and Griffin went to second. Lamb singled through the box scoring Griffin. Lamb went out stealing for the third out.

The Spudders checked up a bit in the sixth inning, and then broke out all over again with four runs after Olle had stretched the bear lead with a home run over the left field wall in the seventh with none on.

Tobin started the big inning with a strikeout. Payne jabbed one at Messenger and was tossed out. LaFayette then started the belated fireworks by dumping a bunt down the third base line and hotfooting the ball out to first. Pete Turgeon drew his bat back half way to grand stand and let lose at a fast one, driving the ball into left field for one base. Sears then came up for the third time with an error on the ball. LaFayette stopped at third and Turgeon second. Pug Griffin then continued his great batting attack of the past few days when he crashed a double to the right field wall that scored Griffin. Tut Jenkins then leaned back and crashed a drive to the greenboards that was also good for two bases and Lamb scored. Benton then flied to Sears.

Sharkey Agrees To Fight For Rickard

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Jack Sharkey and his manager, Johnny Buckley, have signed a provisional contract with Tex Rickard agreeing to defend the heavyweight championship in 1928 if the Boston sailor defeats Jack Dempsey next Thursday and then dethrones Gene Tunney.

The contract is similar to one Dempsey has signed with Rickard, thus assuring the New York promoter of control of the heavyweight title program for at least one more year.

Dempsey Quits All Training Activities

SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 15. (AP)—Leo P. Flynn, manager of Jack Dempsey, announced today that the former champion would do no more boxing before his fight with Jack Sharkey in the Yankee stadium next Thursday. Flynn said Dempsey now was on "edge" and that he did not want to run the risk of having him go stale before the match.

SPORT a la CARTE by ROY GROVE

If Jack Dempsey gets past Sharkey on July 21 here's something to remember when figuring the ex-champion's chances in a return meeting with Tunney:

Dempsey will be facing Tunney this time after having engaged in a warm-up bout and Dempsey, in his only match as champion in which he was privileged to take part in a tune-up affair gave one of the greatest demonstrations of punching power and stamina ever offered by any heavyweight in history.

There is sincerity in the voice of the big bronzed man from the west when he informs you that he thinks the fact he went against Tunney last fall without first engaging in a warm-up fight was the most important reason of all for his failure to show any of the old Dempsey form.

While he has not said so in so many words, Dempsey considers the Sharkey bout a tune-up for Tunney.

That's why he feels that if he can get past Sharkey in good shape he will, when he opposes Tunney in September, be a vastly improved fighter over the one who lost to Gene a year ago.

Four times while he was champion Dempsey defended his title without first engaging in a warm-up bout. And it was in three of these four fights he met the toughest opposition of his career.

* * *

Georges Carpentier was the only man Dempsey met without taking part in a tune-up affair who did not give him a lot of trouble. And Georges, despite all his color and the fact the bout was billed as the "Battle of the Century," was nothing more than a frail light-heavyweight when he met Dempsey.

The champion did not test himself for Bill Brennan in 1920 and it was not until the twelfth and last round, that Brennan had set a torrid pace, that Dempsey was able to land one of his bone-crushing wallops that sent Bill to the mat to be counted out.

Dempsey's bout with Tommy Gibbons in 1923 was a tune-up for bigger things and Jack failed to land a single crushing blow on Tommy that afternoon out in Shelby, Mont. Tunney, the other man Dempsey fought without a preparatory bout to get his fighting parts in tune, simply punched holes in the once invincible champion.

The only bout during his career as champion for which Dempsey was privileged to engage in a warm-up battle was his brawl with the rough and ready Luis Firpo in 1923. And on that occasion Dempsey was good enough to batter the huge South American into unconsciousness after the most spectacular first two rounds in the history of the gloved sport.

His timing was perfect that night, his punching was murderous, his stamina something to marvel at and his courage unquestioned.

* * *

But even Dempsey's most staunch supporters hate to think what would have happened to the champion that night had he not stepped those 15 rounds under a blazing sun in Montana only two months before with Gibbons.

The Dempsey who battered Firpo to the floor was a 100 per cent improved fighter over the Dempsey who stepped 15 rounds with Gibbons two months before.

If Dempsey, free from the worries connected with defending a championship; free from the pestering Jack Kearns and his countless lawsuits; can, with months of systematic outdoor training, regain enough of his old form to get past Sharkey, he should be a better match for Tunney next September than he was a year ago.

SIMMONS IN BATTING LEAD

Ty Cobb's Pupil Amasses .402 Average

CHICAGO, July 16. (AP)—The major leagues now have acquired a midseason .400 hitter. Ty Cobb's pupil, Al Simmons. Today's batting average give Simmons a .402 mark, the first one since hot weather oiled up the pitchers' arms.

While striving to match Babe Ruth in the art of losing baseballs over the fence, Lou Gehrig neglected the humble one base hit, and lost his batting leadership to Connie Mack's young outfielder. Gehrig is regarded as Ruth's pupil. The two teachers, Ty and Babe, held their ground against the pitchers, sticking to their positions near the bottom of the first 10 hitters.

With the slugging example of New York before him in a home series, Harry Heilmann, Tiger star with the willow, picked up several points in his batting percentage, ing Wednesday's games, and stood in figures compiled today including just on the threshold of the select circle waiting for someone to falter.

Reuther Leads Twirlers.

An even break in his two games this week gives Dutch Reuther of the Yankees a pitching score of nine victories and two defeats for the best mark among the regular moundsmen. Ted Lyons' 14 victories for the White Sox top the list in that respect. His pal, Al Thomas finally pulled out his 13th victory after five failures and ranks second in games won.

Although Ruth is several home runs behind his best year, 1921, he has taken the edge on Gehrig in circuit drives, having thirty in games up to Wednesday, with Gehrig one behind. Tony Lazzeri has pushed his total up to 14 to give the Yanks all three leaders in slugging.

George Sisler, the ex-manager of the Browns, sprinted further ahead of his competitors in base stealing by holding his weekly average of two, besides picking up nearly 20 points in batting. Ty Cobb is one of the quartet in second place to Sisler in base stealing, with an even dozen.

Leading American league hitters: Simmons, Philadelphia, .402; Gehrig, New York, .393; E. Miller, St. Louis, .377; Bennett, St. Louis, .372; Schang, St. Louis, .371; Neun, Detroit, .370; Ruth, New York, .368; Meusel, New York, .368; Dykes, Philadelphia, .368; Cobb, Philadelphia, .358.

Frisch Goes Up.

The Pirate trio which has monopolized the top in National league hitting was caught in the general batting slump of this week and Frankie Frisch, the ex-Giant swapped for Rogers Hornsby, crashed through to take third place away from Clyde Barnhart of Pittsburgh. A 15-point drop struck all the league's leading hitters except Frisch, who, for the first time this year is hitting well above the other member of the trade, Hornsby.

Freddie Lindstrom has begun to pick out the good ones and today joined up his teammates among the first 10, making it a McGraw quartette there. If McGraw hadn't traded Farrell to the Braves, he would have half the leading hitters of the circuit on his club.

Hornsby, though, has moved into a tie for leadership in home runs, with Cy Williams of the Phillies, each getting one while Hack Wilson of the Cubs, failed to connect. On the other hand, Frisch stole four more bases to put his mark of 26 ten ahead of the field.

The two Pittsburgh hurlers who wear specs, Meadows and Hill, remain at the top of the league's pitching roster despite their setbacks by the fast traveling Cubs. Meadows has the best mark with 12 wins and three defeats but Charley Root of the Cubs has the most scalps, sixteen.

Reds Gain Standing.

The batting sensation of the week was the attack of the Reds who gained seven points to take third place in team batting just back of the Pirates and Giants who suffered slumps. The Reds a week ago were in seventh place as a clouting club.

Leading hitters of the National league: P. Waner, Pittsburgh, .374; Harris, Pittsburgh, .376; Frisch, St. Louis, .365; Barnhart, Pittsburgh, .359; Hornsby, New York, .353; Harper, New York, .351; Mueller, New York, .346; Farrell, Boston, .341; Lindstrom, New York, .340; Hendrick, Brooklyn, .338.

Louisville Win Over Indianapolis Cancelled

CHICAGO, July 16. (AP)—Louisville's 4 to 3 victory over Indianapolis in the first game of July 4th doubleheader was cancelled today and ordered replayed by President Thomas J. Hickey of the American association.

Indianapolis protested that a ball which was hit out of the park and then bounded back should have been credited as a home run. The Louisville club claimed that when the ball bounded back into the playing field it was in play and the runner should have only as many bases as he was able to take.

The umpires agreed with Louisville and Indianapolis finished the game under protest.

President Hickey's ruling said tha tthere was no rule covering the claim of the Louisville club and any fair ball hit out of the park was a home run.

If Lou Gehrig develops with the same stride as Babe Ruth in home run swatting that mark 59 made in 1921 will be shuffeled into the discard with other baseball records.

Gehrig, turning his twenty-fourth birthday, is bounding along Babe's record average. When the Babe set off his home run sky-rockets he was in his twenty-seventh year. Three years from heuce, "Columbia Lou" may get some place between 75 and 100 in the home run market.

* * *

When the Babe was 24 years of age he fired a smoke ball from the hill as one of the American league's leadingp itchers. That year he gained his reputation as a pitcher and not a home run hitter.

The saddest words of all—the Athletics down in the second division. They were out of the "Big Four" set several days ago. Once more proving ancient relice from the bone-yard, such as Tyrus, Zack and Eddie are not pennant material.

* * *

Financially, however, Connie Mack is not worrying. The A's will make more money this season than any time in the history of the organization. And the bank-roll has been known to cool many aches and pains.

Nobody becomes excited when the Yankees, Pirates or Cubs blow themselves to a prolonged inning streak, such as a dozen or so, but the Phillies are celebrating their recent run of four victories in succession. That's something to brag about, especially when Dazzy Vance is one who has been bowled over.

The Senators have another young pitcher who is qualifiying for the phenom class. Young Hadley disposed of Connie Mack's sluggers with three hits in a 2-1 victory.

When Walter Johnson and Stan Soveleskie faded out Bucky Harris was forced to bring out his recruits. He found a star in Lisenbee and may be as fortunate with this fellow Hadley.

The Braves and Giantss staged an extra feature in their last series. Benton started for the Giants in a game and was chased off the hill, but McGraw's side tied the score by doing the same when Hugh McQuillian and Kent Greenfield were unable to finish what they started for the Braves.

Rivalry on Manhattan Island has reached such a point that Brooklyn fans are collecting a purse to present to the Superbas if they finish ahead of the Giants.

The value of pitching increases daily. The White Sox could not win a game when they scored 12 runs because Connally, Cole and Jacobs were rattled for 14 by the Browns. Home runs by Sisler, Schang, Boone and Falk were made in the game.

FROM TEE TO GREEN

By BILL STRACHAN

How to hold the various sticks is of almighty importance, especially when you are in a tight place. The action of the right or the left wrist will get you out, or into worlds of trouble if you are unaware of the practical use of the grips.

* * *

During important tournaments you may have noticed the ease with which the professional golfer strikes his iron shots and noted how true the flight and the distance developed with such little effort.

That is due to the wrists' action and that wrist of the wrists decides whether the face of the club was opened or closed when the ball was struck.

The difference between the open and the closed face of a club is whether the stick is faced a bit out, away from you or toward you. The outward face produces a slice and the inward a hook.

This is done by twisting the right hand under the grip or putting it over, which, in turn, opens or closes the face at the time the ball is struck. The professional hook or slice is not likened to that of the learning player. His shot is either a tail-end hook or slice and does not break immediately after leaving the tee.

Bobby Jones Elated Over British Victory

LONDON, July 16. (AP)—Bobby Jones, in an interview today, said he had only a faint hope of winning the British open golf championship at St. Andrews again and that he regarded his victory as the greatest thing he had ever done.

"I would rather have done what I have done," he said, "than anything I have previously accomplished or am ever likely to."

July Too Hot Month For Sharkey to Train

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Jack Sharkey is finding New York in July a hot place in which to train for a fight.

After passing up work yesterday and going to Coney Island for relief from the heat the Boston boxer planned to resume work today in his roof garden quarters atop Madison Square Garden. Part of yesterday was spent in motoring, Sharkey's favorite pastime. However, he did not omit his morning four miles of road work in Central park.

D'FOREST SAYS IT'S EX-CHAMP

Opinions Vary On Outcome Of Jack-Jack Tiff

B YFRANKLIN GRANT.
Universal Service Staff Cor.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., July 16.—The giant intellects, flanked with cauliflowered ears, which are encamped in the shadows of Jack Dempsey's training camp, remain befuddled.

With the fight only five days away, and with the ex-champ tuned up by nearly three weeks of conditioning, there's a vast difference of opinion as to whether he can make the grade for Jack Sharkey, or only flounder into obscurity.

Jimmy DeForest, who trained Dempsey for the Willard brawl, and who has spoofed at his condition in all other camps, has connected with the idea that Dempsey is good enough to "take" Sharkey.

And Ben Smith, another eytrainer of the ex-champion, thinks ditto.

Both concede that Dempsey is a bit slower, and not the great gladiator that he used to be, but, as Smith tritely comments:

"If he was that, there wouldn't be any Sharkey fight; they would figure it out that he was a million punches too tough for Sharkey."

Still Can Sock.

Deforest says:

He's lost some of his speed. But he hasn't lost his walloping power. Nor has he lost his fighting spirit. He'll be fighting along when Sharkey will be wondering when they're going to toot the final whistle."

But there are gangs and still more gangs of newspaper blokes hereabouts who have gazed at Dempsey day after day and have concluded that his star has set; that the best he can do with Sharkey is to land a lucky punch.

"The old zip is gone; the old whoop-de-dee stuff that scared the opposition half to death isn't there anymore." They comment.

But it happens these are just about as many reporter persons who cling to an entirely different notion.

"What does he need lightning speed for with Sharkey?" They ask.

"As a speculator that Sharkey is greatly overrated. He's fast only in comparison with old men and dubs. Dempsey could lose about eight more speed notches and still be faster than Sharkey, the fight will prove it.

"This stuff about speed is pretty much the bunk anyway. A ring isn't big enough to permit much foot racing and if a guy is just a little bit agile he can catch up with Charlie Paddock in a ring.

Yes, Yes, Go On.

"Dempsey will go tearing into Sharkey and when he does all this talked about speed of Sharkey's will look silly. For a fellow can't use any speed backing up and that's what Sharkey will have to do or get run over.

"Dempsey still can punch. That's about all he had really at the beginning. It was enough to make him champion. It will be plenty sufficient to make Sharkey look for a soft spot on the carpet soon after Dempsey plants a few swipes into his ribs."

While all the feverish debate was going on, Dempsey was enjoying another day of rest by swatting innocent golf balls hither and yon on the links near these parts. He's become quite a golf addict and declares that when his punch throwing days are over he'll strive for a few championships with golfing sticks.

On to Birmingham! Spudder Fans Cry

Carl Williams' Boy Friends Burst Into Poetry, Statistics and Musical Prose—One Would Trade In Auto

The valient advance of Wichita Falls' Spudders into the realm where pennants are manufactured, and talk in the air of Dixie series conquests and the like have brought forth numerous noble effusions from the "dyed-in-the-wools," your Mister Rabid Fan of Wichita Falls.

Many epistles and alleged poetry about the Spudders have flocked into The Record News sports editor the past week while he lay abed nursing a poisoned foot and defenseless against this sudden flood of "literature" by mail.

C'Mon, Let's Swap.

For instance, there's a noble note from one Neal Powers:

"Dear Sir:

"Please advise at once, whether or not you would be interested in exchanging a ticket to Birmingham for one Dodge sedan with new rubber and in fair mechanical condition. The car can be inspected at any time you desire to do so. In the event you are not interested in taking the car in on a ticket, I have a lawn mower, various articles of household furniture, and an equity in a radio, which might be acceptable in lieu of cash.

"If you are not in a trading mood, then please quote your credit price (if any are to be sold on and cash price on a one way tickthis basis) on a round trip ticket, et; since, if I am compelled to pay cash, it will probably be necessary to buy transportation one way and take chances on being able to borrow the money, after arriving there, with which to buy a return ticket.

"Needless to say, your quotations should include the admission fees to the Birmingham baseball park on the several days Carl Williams et al. are transacting business in that city.

"Sincerely yours,
NP-RY "NEAL POWERS."

Answer—Wild Bill Spencer already has offered a Dodge roadster. If I took the lawn mower the wife would put me to work on the grass. Might talk to you about a bedroom set, but think there ought to be a law against radio.s Anyhow, let's don't rush matters. Maybe New Orleans will come down the home stretch in a wild finish out front.

MANY HOME BREW.

Then there's a guy who waxes musical or something, but obviously fearing the worst withholds his name.

Effusion number two:

"Here's my idea of how the Spudders' farewell party might be—

"The Spudders nad a farewell party and every Mann Estell thinking of it. Lewis all in for he and LaFayette too much corn on the Cobb and they now have a Payne.

"You should have seen the Fitzgerald had when he went to the door to let Tobin and Turgeon get the last piece of Lamb in his Lapan Swenson got drunk (?) and catching Steengrafe around the neck said 'Williams by my own ittle tootsie?'

"The season being over, Kiefer announced that he was leaving immediately for parts more Airey.

"Griffin was Benton staying some where in Texas and Fussell be in Wichita Falls.

"Jenkins is off to his old home town; he's a Gardner, you know—

"Some party that!!

"A FAN."

Answer—I bet the cops broke up that party long before day light.

NUMERICAL BUG.

And then another guy, apparently a glutton for statistics, sits himself down and figures out something or other about our pitchers:

"In the Texas League pitching records to July 1 recently released there is a detail of information that is worthy of study by those fans who care to take the game seriously, for on the record to July 1 may be based a fair estimate of performance for the balance of the season.

There were 13 pitchers, pitching in at least 50 innings, who had an earned run average of less than four runs per game, which, after all, is the acid test of pitching efficiency.

The 13, lucky in this case, were in order of effectiveness:

	E.R. Av.
1. Williamson, Shreveport	1.71
2. Watt, Fort Worth	2.25
3. Penner, Houston	2.70
4. Frankhouse, Houston	2.79
5. Fillingim, San Antonio	2.97
6. Steengrafe, Wichita Falls	3.33
7. Shores, Waco	3.33
8. Elliott, Waco	3.42
9. Karpp, Shreveport	3.42
10. Carlton, Houston	3.51
11. Newman, San Antonio	3.69
12. Wachtel, Fort Worth	3.69
13. Jacobus, Houston	3.78

"Penner and Frankhouse of Houston are the real leaders, having pitched in twice as many innings as either Williams or Watt; and if Houston pitchers can maintain their effectiveness through the last half of the season in the same degree as in the first half, Houston is likely to cause plenty of trouble before the season ends.

"For Wichita Falls to secure its place in the Dixie Series, it will have to depend on keeping high its team batting average, as its pitching effectiveness does not quite equal that of Houston and Waco. Steengrafe is the only local pitcher with an earned run average under 4.00 per game; the other Wichita Falls pitchers appearing in the following order:

Fussell	4.14
Cobb	4.14
Estell	4.68
Kiefer	5.40
Payne	6.12

RALPH H. KING."

Answer: The past week's performance contradicts you. The Spudders have sunk lower in the batting averages than at any stage this season, yet have climbed further out front than at any time this season to date. Spudder pitchers, after a number of early season in-and-out performances on the whole have been pitching mighty tight ball. Another point about our hurlers: They chunk shut-out or near shut-out ball for several games and then when one of 'em has an off day he's a long ways off. The opposition then scores enough runs on him to win two or three ball games. It's nice to be that way instead of having 'em hitting you right along and beating you three out of every four instead of one out of every four.

PRETTY CLEVER?

Some other guy comes up with this (name it):

"The Texas league: You may talk about the ball clubs in classes from A to D but the teams here in the Texas league are the ones that interest me. There's the Buffaloes from Houston, who have stayed right in the race, but the best I can say for them is they'll end in second place. The Cubs from the town of Waco have played some real good ball, but I think they will be lucky if they finish third this fall. The Steers who come from Dallas sure yield some mighty sticks but they cannot win the pennant like they did in Twenty-six. And then the Bears from San Antonio is a team we always fear, but they cannot do much better than finish fifth this year. The Sports from Louisiana is a team that looks quite well, but will finish near the bottom. Just wait and time will tell. Then comes the Fort Worth Panthers, in other words the Cats. Their team is just about as weak as a bed without the slats. And the Shippers down at Beaumont are very strong it seems. Yes, they'll finish on the bottom holding up the other teams. Now, best of all are the Spudders who have stayed on top all year. Just boost them till September and they will bring you cheer. And when they've cinched the pennant and a team like Birmingham calls, you will see that flag a-waving in the City of Wichita Falls."

FROM NEW YORK.

Then there's a missive from Buster Martin in New York City, who says:

"Dear Blondy,

"I will write you a few lines this morning to let you know that I am feeling fine and I am awfully glad to see that the Spudders are still leading the league, as I am keeping up with everything down there through The Record News, as I am taking it.

"I would like to attend that Dixie series but am afraid I can't get away.

"But be sure and pull the boys over for me.

"I am as ever your friends,
"BUSTER MARTIN."

Answer: Been layed up in bed a few days, Bus, and couldn't help the boys, but they went on and won, anyhow, so you needn't bother about whether or not I pull them over.

DON'T RUSH THINGS.

J. A. Bates over in Brazos, Tex. inquires a salient few:

"Following are a few questions that I would like to have answered if you have time after keeping Wichita 'Spudders' on top, but first keep them on top.

"What will the railroad fare and Pullman trip cost to Birmingham?

"What would it be for two (man and wife).

"Will the Pullman be set out for sleeping quarters while there?

"Yours for a Spudder pennant.
"J. A. BATES."

Answer: It'll cost one guy about $55, man and wife just about the same. Who said two couldn't live just as cheap as one? Won't sidetrack cars and make hotel of them Railroad men still figuring on the price. May be able to make it less. Anyhow, the larger the crowd the less the cost. Also, to you let's wait a few weeks, maybe New Orleans will throw a spurt and if the Pels do we'll have to revise a few plans. I'd rather go to New Orleans; wouldn't you? Also, don't worry about me keeping the Spudders on top. They'll stay there of their own accord.

Matlock Boxes Edwards Friday

Ross Seeks Opponent For Veteran Jap

Jack Reynolds, tentatively scheduled to meet the winner of the Reed-Matsuda match, can not wrestle Matsuda, the victor, here this week, he notified Matchmaker A. B. Ross Saturday.

"But Reynolds said that after he had wound up two weeks previous booking through the middle west and east," declared Ross, "he will come a-running again after Matty."

Matsuda, long plagued by Reynolds and several other welter weight matsters who have claimed they can beat the veteran Japanese, says he is going back down the line and shut them up one by one. The past week, Matsuda beat the rugged Mike Reed of Los Angeles here although pre-match dope had it the Jap couldn't turn the trick. Matsuda ran out of a bout with Reed not long ago in California.

Meanwhile, Ross says he has wires out to Billy Hallas, Dutch Mantell, Basanta Singh and Ali Hassan, the Turk, seeking an opponent to put against Matsuda next Friday.

The bulk of the card, in fact, all but the main event has been arranged, Ross said.

The rough and tumble Jack Matlock mixes with Roy Edwards of Hollywood in an eight-round boxing bout, according to Ross. Dempsey Moore, the Wichita Falls amateur, tackles Bobby Burns of Houston, Texas, light heavyweight amateur champion, over the six-round route. There is to be a four-round curtain raiser, Ross said.

Two Paving Projects Before City Council

Two public hearings on pavement projects are scheduled for the regular city council meeting Monday night, according to announcement from W. E. McBroom, city clerk. Residents of specified sections of Pecan street and of California street are asked to appear.

An ordinance proposed several weeks ago relative to the regulation of bill board and sign posting on the roofs of buildings and over sidewalks on city streets will be given final reading at this meeting, Mr. McBroom said. A committee from the council met with engineers and others interested in the ordinance Wednesday of this week to draft an amendment to the original ordinance.

Helen Wills Wins As Dancer On Berengaria

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Men who returned on the Berengaria say that Helen Wills is as good a dancer as a tennis player; that "little poker face" doesn't play poker at all and is liable to trump her partner's ace at bridge; the women think she looks much more fetching in sport frocks than in long evening gowns.

STEENGRAFE AND FUSSELL TOP LEAGUE IN BOX EFFECTIVENESS

Spudders Recede to Third Place Tie With Cats in Team Batting—Jenkins, Turgeon, Moore Lead Run Getters

Randolph Moore of the Waco club leads the regulars of the Texas League again this week with an average of .375. West, also of Waco, close on his heels, is hitting .373 and leads the league in hits with 129. Jenkins of Wichita Falls is second with 122 hits. Gross of the Dallas club leads in stolen bases with 27. Miller's closest rival for home run honor is with 18.

The leading run-getters are Jenkins of Wichita Falls with 77, Turgeon of the same club with 72 and E. Moore of Fort Worth with 73.

The Waco club holds their lead in club batting and home runs and passes the rest of the league in his this week. Wichita Falls still leads in earned runs and San Antonio in stolen bases.

Steengrafe of Wichita Falls has the best pitching record among the regulars, followed next in order by his teammate, Fussell. Adkins of Shreveport has now won 12 consecutive games. E. Love of Dallas leads with 87 strikeouts.

.300 hitters club batting, and pitchers winning half or better of their games through Wednesday follow:

SAND LOT SLANTS

The Texas Electric company goes into another of those crucial Twilight league games this afternoon at three o'clock at Katy park. The league seems to have settled down into a race between the three teams that were carried over from the old Twilight league.

* * *

It will be a problem to select the pitchers for the game from the present stock. Gabe Harris right now looms up as the best bet with Conocos and Gabe might prove to be a mighty tough nut for the Kilowatts to crack.

* * *

Just who the Kilowats will use is not known for they have three men from who to make their selection. Bill Andres and Eddie Kollman now hold the inside track with Smoke Luphor a prospect.

* * *

Olin Harvey, of the Muny Gassers, missed a great chance to boost up his batting average Friday. The little Gasser shortstop crashed out a clean two base hit and then robbed himself of the blow when he overstepped first base and was thrown out.

* * *

The Conocos have a new pitcher in Claud Harris from T. C. U. Harris is one of the strange creatures in baseball that will not play Sunday ball so there will be no chance of giving the new player the once over in the Kilowatt game this afternoon. Harris is also a good outfielder.

* * *

Painter Dixon has returned to the Scotland Plumbers and is back on third base. Dixon is a veteran player and one that played a great part in the City league success of the Plumbers. Dixon is one of these old heads in the game that don't flash, but plays steady ball.

* * *

There is one ball player in the Twilight league that has been having plenty of tough breaks this year. Paul Whatley, Conoco infielder, has had more than his share of injuries. Paul is willing to swap off some slices of bad luck for some good ones.

* * *

Paul came up one afternoon with a spiked hand, next he came up with a pair of broken ribs, and now it is a misplaced thumb. Any one wanting to trade a good thumb for a slightly used one will see Paul Whatley at the Conoco office No. 1106.

* * *

There is only one pitcher in the Twilight league that looms up as anything near the strikeout class of Joe Randolph and that is Lefty Marvin Robertson. With the stuff that Robertson has one can see why he has a big strikeout record.

* * *

The Panhandle Longhorns journeyed to Burkburnett Friday afternoon and defeated that team 10 to 5. Cannon and Parker pitched against Douglas. The hitting of Bun Melear was the feature of the game.

* * *

Bun Melear's hitting being the feature of ball games is getting to be mighty steady and regular. This lad has been hitting the ball hard and often both on the road and at home.

Jones Greatest Of All Amateur Golfers, Gurgle British Writers

By ROBERT J. PREW
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 16.—"The greatest golfer of the age." That is how the London Daily Telegraph this morning characterizes Bobby Jones, whose smashing victory in the British open championship has left all Britain gasping.

Rarely has an American triumph in a sporting event here, won such wholehearted praise as Bobby's wonderful score at St. Andrews. There is not a discordant note. The champion's personal behavior is being lauded equally with his golf.

The Times says editorially:

"His victory is so essentially a personal, one-man triumph that it almost does away with any feeling of national disappointment which the defeat of our champions might naturally be expected to produce. From all points of view it can fairly be said that Bobby Jones' victory is almost as popular in this country as it will be in his own."

The Morning Post comments:

"In all her long history St. Andrews never saw better golf. It is a proud day for America as well as for Jones, who not only holds the cup but holds it by a score of six holes under his own and all previous records."

The Daily Mail says:

"Jones has established himself as the greatest amateur player the game has ever known."

And the Chronicle:

"It was really a runaway victory. Jones was acclaimed champion when only half of the field had completed the final round, and the scene at the finish when 12,000 people acclaimed him, has no parallel in British golf."

The Express declares:

"Jones was carried shoulder high because he proved himself the greatest player of his game the world could produce, and because he proved himself also a worthy, modest champion."

Fans, You Better Park 'Em Right

If you want to save your jack for that Dixie series you'd better not do any parking on the pavement at Spudder park, warns Traffic Captain J. H. Scott.

Some fans, says the noble captain, have left their vehicles on the highway blocking traffic in front of the orchard. Hereafter those fans are in heavy danger of being pinched and catching a traffic violation fine.

SPUDDERS INCREASE LEAD BY THREE GAMES IN ONE WEEK

Williams' Men Win Two Contests Each From Cats, Steers And Buffs and One From Bears

Wichita Falls' hustling Spudders remain eight and a half games in front of Houston, nearest pursuer in quest of the Texas league bunting, this morning as they gird their loins, so to speak, to continue their assault on the San Antonio Bears Sunday afternoon at Spudder park.

George Payne's 7-5 victory over the Bears in the series opener Saturday gave the Spudders their seventh win out of eight tries since their return home Saturday a week ago from a road trip.

The Spudders beat Fort Worth Saturday and Sunday, drubbed Dallas Monday and Tuesday, laid off Wednesday because of rain, lost to Houston Thursday, trimmed Houston in a double header Friday and yesterday beat the Bears.

This victory splurge gave the Williams outfit an advance of three games over their standing of Saturday a week ago. They came home with a five and a half game lead.

Arriving in time to take the crippled Howard Fitzgerald's place in center field, Francis (Pug) Griffin has been a salient factor in recent Spud victories, his big bat ringing out very timely on several occasions.

Joe Kiefer for the Spudders and the veteran Bob Couchman for the Bears, that's how they look in the pitching box today.

Fast Kentucky Mare Sold For Record Price

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 16.(AP)—A special to the Lexington Leader from Raceland park at Ashland, Ky., says the Three-D stables, through Trainer C. Durnell, purchased Handy Mandy from Hal Price Headley today for the reported price of $50,000.

She was coupled with Yeddo in the derby.

DEAL FOR FAST HORSE CONFIRMED BY OWNER

IRONTON, Ohio, July 16.(AP)—An attache of the secretary's office at Raceland track told the Ironton Tribune by telephone that Hal Price Headley, owner of Handy Mandy, and E. P. Waggoner of the "Three D stables" closed a deal for Handy Mandy last night.

The Tribune was told that the price was understood to be near the $75,000 mark.

No official confirmation of the sale was obtained, but the attache assured the Tribune that the information was authentic.

WELL, WELL, JAKE

Can you imagine this:

Uncle Jake, one of those Dallas sports columnists, says the Spudders are weakening, have taunt faces, worn eyes and nerves and are ready to crack, writes Cedric Hamlin, Wichita Falls follower, to brother Harold.

Yessir, can you imagine that? What have they got to be taut and worn about? As a rule a guy can't crack unless he's worrying about something. And the Spudders eight and one-half games in front of the rest of the world just naturally haven't a care in all creation.

RUST IN GRAIN FIELDS, REPORT

Wheat Price Quits Slump On Rust Report

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, July 16.—A revival of black rust reports from the American and Canadian northwest checked the early slump in wheat today to new lows on the movement and brought about a good recovery. All deliveries were higher for the day. Houses with eastern and northwestern connections bought and forced short covering for over the holiday.

Liquidation and carried corn down to the lowest levels in several weeks, but this grain also rallied, although finishing moderately lower. Oats were easier and rye strong. For the week wheat showed a loss of 4½ to 5½c; corn was 1⅝ to 5¼c down, oats 2⅝ to 2½c lower and rye 6⅛ to 7c off.

July wheat opened at $1.41¼@1.41⅜, dipped to $1.40⅞, rallied to $1.43⅛ and closed at $1.42⅞@1.43. September opened at $1.39½, dropped to $1.38½, rallied to $1.40⅝ and close dat $1.40⅝@1.40½. September corn opened at $1.01⅝@1.02¼, dipped to $1.00⅝, bulged to $1.02⅝ and closed at $1.02⅝@1.02½.

The seaboard reported but moderate export trade in wheat. Liverpool closed ⅝ to 1⅛ pence down.

Locally wheat finished 1¼ to 1⅝c higher, corn ⅛ to ½c off, oats ⅛ to ¼c lower and rye ¼ to 1⅛c up.

At the close corn showed a steady tone. The commission house buying that entered the pit on the break was of good character. The corn crop has experienced favorable weather the last week, but the plant is still dangerously late and absolutely requires the best of conditions for many weeks to come.

Oats met liquidating pressure in the early hours, and while fair buying was uncovered the market was unable to recover completely.

Rye acted better.

Prices of Truck and Fruit Lower With Heavy Local Supply Offered

Heavy Shipments From Wichita Valley Indicated In Bell Peppers and Green Beans

Large supplies of fresh fruits and vegetables, largely produced locally, brought a reduction in market quotations on these items during the week. Citrus fruits are quoted higher, due to an increased demand from New York City, according to the Wichita Produce company. Quotations on fresh apricots and plums are down as much as $1 per crate and cantaloupes were listed at $2.50, a substantial reduction.

In vegetables, bell peppers are coming into the market in large quantities locally and a record crop is predicted with shipments to outside points to exceed all previous years. Green beans are also being produced locally in quantity, they being distinguished from outside varieties by their large size. Squash, cabbage, white potatoes and bell peppers are listed for a slight reduction. Beets, carrots, tomatoes and mustard are slightly higher.

Shipments of produce from Colorado will begin the coming week, due to scarcity here. The first shipment will include radishes onions, mustard greens, turnips and tops. Colorado cabbage and green beans will be included.

Butter and cream declined several cents each, with milk quoted at the same price.

Fireless Gas Range To Be Demonstrated

That the women of America have been freed from drudgery by modern inventions is common knowledge. Still men must eat and most husbands insist that a fair portion of their meals be cooked.

And now comes the Bailey-Moline Hardware company with an announcement of a demonstration of a new fireless gas range which adds hours to the leisure of the modern housewife.

Special demonstrations of this new range, the Chambers Fireless Gas range, will be conducted at the Bailey-Moline store all next week under the supervision of R. W. Barraclough of the Chambers company factory.

Attractive cook books containing many recipes and suggestions for cooking better meals will be given free to everyone visiting the demonstration next week.

According to Mr. Barraclough, the use of this new range which "cooks with the gas turned off" makes it possible for the woman of the home to spend an entire afternoon visiting or shopping and return and serve a delicious and perfectly cooked meal which has been cooking on the fireless range during her absence.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)— Heavy week-end profit taking checked the advance in prices in today's stock market, but not until after a dozen popular rails and industrials had been lifted to new highs. Trading was only moderate in volume due to the absence of many large traders, the day's sales aggregating about 725,000 shares.

Reports of revolutionary disturbances in Vienna were practically disregarded as a stock market factor, although they caused some uneasiness in banking circles where detailed reports were eagerly awaited. The day's business news was generally favorable in character.

Speculative interest in the railroad shares, which have been under accumulation lately on expectations of increased freight traffic and official approval of pending consolidations, centered in Erie common, which advanced more than two points to 61, a new high record for all time.

Industrials were more irregular, with such recent favorites as Steel common, General Motors, Allied Chemical, American Smelting, Radio, Baldwin and Texas Gulf Sulphur showing small net recessions.

Oil shares, which have been sluggish for weeks, developed several points of strength. Atlantic Refining, Pan-American B., Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil, Texas Pacific Land Trust, and Union Oil of California were the leaders.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet, with fluctuations narrow and irregular. Demand sterling held steady just below 4.85¾ and French francs were quoted slightly lower around 3.91 cents. Japanese yen rallied 7 points to 47.20 cents.

Profit-Taking Well Absored On Wall Street Stock Market During Short Session Saturday

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, July 16.—Profit-taking was well absorbed in the two hours of trading on the stock exchange today. A number of leading market interests were absent from the street because of the weather. Big campaigns are under way for constructive operations in stocks next week. Railroads should be conspicuous in the upturn. Erie and Atchison are two of the favorites. Erie today steamed past 60 to a record new level on buying for First National interests. The prediction made by George F. Baker years ago that he would live to see the day that Erie would take its place among the premier railroads of the country will soon come true. Erie will reap tremendous benefits from the vehicular tunnel and bridge to Jersey.

Cotton and wheat were strong. Wheat was sold at times on the last government report showing an increase in prospects for spring wheat. World review of the wheat situation does not disclose any improvement of consequence in supplies and should the American spring wheat and Canadian crop deteriorate a substantial advance would be witnessed as the market is believed to be heavily sold. Heavy buying went on in cotton. The cotton market may run away. Weevils are worse than in 1923 and will do untold damage and coming at a time when the world needs a large crop. The crop is estimated at under 13,000,000 bales; possibly 12,000,000. The white commodity is in a position where it could raise to 25 cents a pound. Cotton in Alexandria rose 100 points on Friday. Strength was due to prospective scarcity of long staple cotton in the United States. The best people in the cotton trade are receiving reports from reliable sources in the south that boll weevil are more numerous than in 1923—in which year it is estimated they destroyed 5,000,000 bales. The big play is understood to be in the December option. Quiet prevailed in foreign exchange.

Tobacco stocks were in demand with a demand for Liggett & Myers and tobacco products. A 100,000-share pool has been formed in Liggett & Myers composed of insiders at St. Louis and a group of bankers in Chicago, Detroit, Richmond, Winston Salem, Richmond and New York. Syndicate members in the pool claim that Liggett & Myers carries more hidden assets than any other tobacco company. Directors are about to declare a 25 per cent stock dividend following ratification of the increase in capital stock on July 21. Part of this pool was instrumental years ago in putting the old American tobacco up 200 points in six months.

Baldwin lost one point, although unconfirmed officially, it is said the Baldwin plan or reorganization has been agreed upon and is ready for announcement. Resumption of buying occurred in American Can on prospects of big earnings next year. Arnold Constable featured the store shares by rising two points. General Electric sold up to 120 on active trading.

Railroads were in excellent demand. Southern railway was one of the leaders and higher prices prevailed for such stocks as Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago Northwestern, Reading, Frisco and Ontario & &Western. Profit-taking developed in New Haven, but Atchison remained around its present high prices.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NE WORLEANS, July 16. (AP)—Continued rains in the delta and forecast of showers over Sunday brought a spurt of buying in the cotton market today which set new highs for the season of all active new crop months. The close was steady with net gains for the day of 27 to 35 points.

Liverpool came in better than due and first trades showed gains of 7 to 11 points. The movement continued upward until gains of 15 to 18 points had been shown. At the end of the first hour, however, favorable reports on the progress of the Texas crop brought a reaction which sent October down to 18.02 and December to 18.26, 8 to 11 points below early highs.

A promise of more rain brought a quick rally which kept prices moving upward until the end of the session with October as high as 18.36 and December 18.61, 33 to 34 points above the previous close.

Realizing in the final trading caused a recession of 5 to 6 points.

Exports totaled 17,224 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Continuance of showery or rainy weather in the south, with increasing apprehensions of boll weevil damage, appeared responsible for active general buying and a sharp advance in the cotton market today. Prices for all positions made new high ground for the movement, October contracts selling up to 18.54 and March to 19.10, or 30 to 39 points net higher on the general list. October closed at 18.50 and March at 19.02. The general market closing steady, at net advances of 19 to 34 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 2 to 17 points on higher Liverpool cables and reports of showers or rains in the eastern belt. The initial figures attracted a good deal of realizing and there were setbacks of a few points after the call, but offerings were readily absorbed, and the market later advanced on a broadening demand which seemed to include trade buying as well as covering, and buying by commission huses.

Both Liverpool and the continent were credited with buying presumably on an increasingly serious view of unfavorable features in the new crop outlook and the extent of the demand which absorbed heavy week-end realizing, suggested that something of a crop scare had developed.

July sold up to 18.05, and December to 18.78 while May advanced to 19.22. Closing prices were within 3 or 4 points of the best on most positions.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 105,000 bales against 62,000 last year.

Snakes Found In Casket When Body Is Exhumed

Residents of Whisler, Ohio, were justly proud and satisfied with the beautiful cemetery that graced the top of a hill just outside the city until a short time ago.

While exhuming the body of a woman who had been buried in the regular way in a casket in the ground for, at least, 30 years, there was found among her bones as many live snakes as would fill a half bushel basket—within her skull quite a large snake was resting peacefully and contentedly.

The sexton of the cemetery further stated that this was the only body ever removed from the cemetery within his recollection. This is only one of the many reasons why there are now almost four hundred community mausoleums in Ohio.

Industry About to Return To Normality

By STEVE STEVENSON.

Optimism over the apparent upward trend toward the return to normality of the production end of the oil industry prevailed among operators during the past week.

With reports that Seminole had about reached the peak of its production and that the output from other fields was being regulated with a view of decreasing production, operators saw in the signs that it would not be long before the slump had passed.

Further optimism prevailed with reports coming from the marketing centers that stocks of gasoline and other refined oils were decreasing and that the demand was greater than the supply.

In the Wichita Falls section the optimism of the operators was manifested by the fact that the decrease in pipe line runs was less during the past week than the previous week. Operators were more inclined to "turn loose" the past week than at anytime during the past few months.

More locations were announced during the week than in any week for the past several months. Most of the locations were made by independent operators.

The peak of the Seminole production it is expected will be at 500,000 barrels a day. This mark was nearly reached during the past week.

Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Coleman, NE corner NW of 33-7-5, six miles south of Maud, in Pottawatomie county, is drilling in lime at 4153 feet, and has 400 feet of 39 gravity oil in the hole. The Viola was topped at 4055 feet.

In the Gresser Logan area, between Marshall and Lovell, Roxana Petroleum corporation's No. 1 McCully, SW corner NE SE of 30-19-4w, made 2360 barrels in the 24 hours ended Saturday morning. It is producing from a total depth of 5989 feet in the second Wilcox sand.

The Indian agency at Muskogee is mailing out a list of leases to be offered for sale on August 1 at Muskogee. A total of 88 tracts will be offered for lease, and nine Seminole county tracts will be sold outright. No sale was held in July.

Shankel and others' No. 1 Yates, section 58, which had a showing of oil at 1255 and 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas at 1280, is shut down at 1450, still making some gas. Eight-inch pipe is enroute from two points to Owens & Caldwell No. 1 Mills, northwestern Val Verde county wildcat, where 1,500,000 fet of wet gas recently was struck at 2527 feet.

Kokomo Petroleum company's No. 1 Collins, in Eastland county, Texas, had the pay from 2928 feet, and was shot with 100 quarts after which it is making head flows every three hours, and estimated daily output is 75 barrels of 40 gravity oil, and it is making 2,000,000 feet of gas.

H. A. (Hub) Meyer, assistant in charge of marketing to the vice-president and general manager of the Prairie Oil and Gas company, is a visitor in the Panhandle field.

Prairie Oil and Gas company is putting in 282 feet of 24-inch "stovepipe" casing in No. 2 Gober, in section 16, block 1, of G. & M. survey, in southeastern Moore county. The stovepipe casing was needed to get by quicksand. It was furnished by Barry J. Sullivan of the Union Tank and Pipe Line company.

Prairie Oil and Gas company has topped the lime at 3780 feet in its No. 1 Landergin, in league 310, bock 46, of Capital Lands survey, and near Vega, in Oldham county. Casing was to be run at once. This is a very important wildcat for the Panhandle area.

Deep Rock Oil company and associates are fighting cave below 3400 feet in No. 1 Lyman and Balfour, in section 9, block 2, of G. & M. survey, near Channing, in Hartley county. Officials want to get this cave cleaned up and set pipe at 3500 feet. They report that the well had a small show of oil around 3375 to 3390 feet. The well is in lime, having passed through green shale from 3345 to 3360 feet, and had brown shale way up the hole.

H. D. Streater, secretary-treasurer of the Barton Torpedo company of Tulsa, is a visitor in the Panhandle.

Dudley W. Moore, southwestern manager of the Iron Trade Review, and representing the Petroleum Register, has been a visitor in the Panhandle from Tulsa.

J. L. Ferguson, district geologist of the Amerada Petroleum corporation, is spending considerable time in eastern New Mexico, where the Amerada is working.

Fred G. Phillips, a brother of Waite Phillips, noted wildcatter, has been made president of the Gilliland Oil company, succeeding P. J. Hruley.

WILDCAT FAILS

Important Failure In Panhandle Section Chalked Up

AMARILLO, Texas, July 16.—A very important failure in the wildcat area of the Texas Panhandle has just been chalked up.

It is the Douglas Oil company's No. 1 Beauchamps, in section 112, block 44, of H. & T. C. survey, which found a hole full of water from 4062 to 4065 feet. It will be plugged as a failure. This test located south of Dumas, is 506 feet below sea level.

NEW TEST FOR COKE COUNTY

Well Scheduled For Crockett August 1

SAN ANGELO, July 16—The drill bit will go into the ground for two new West Texas oil tests, one in Crockett county and one in Coke county, before Aug. 1, according to information received here. Each of the tests will go to 3000 feet, unless oil is found at a higher level.

The Joe B. Blakeney ranch in southwestern Crockett county will get one of the tests. Moving of materials to the ranch began Monday. J. F. McMannon of San Angelo is making the test. He has awarded the contract to B. L. Agnew & Sons who have drilled a number of wells in the Reagan county fields.

The test will be located in the center of the southwest quarter of section 26, block Q3, T. C. Ry. Co. survey, eight miles east of the Pecos River and about thirty miles southeast of the Yates field in Pecos county. The test will be 12 miles north of the Owens & Caldwell No. 1 Henry J. Mills, wildcat gasser in northwest Val Verde county. The test will be drilled on a block of 9000 acres which is said to have one of the best looking structures in that area.

The Coke county test is to be drilled by W. H. Brown of Pittsburgh, Pa., and associates, on land owned by W. L. Foster, Sterling City ranchman and banker.

This test is located 150 feet north of the south line and 150 feet west of the east line of section 149, block 2, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey, 15 miles west of Robert Lee. Mr. Brown and associates have a block of 8762 acres out of the Foster land.

More Time Given To Complete Gray Well

AMARILLO, July 16.—The J. C. Nudingate No. 1 Chapman, in section 52, block 25, of H. & G. N. survey, in the McLean sector of southeastern Grady county, was drilling at 2200 feet. The fee owners have given Mr. Noudigate additional time in which to complete the well.

Empire Gas and Fuel company at No. 1 Cubine, in section 36, and the first test started after M. M. Travis completed No. 1 Back, in section 44, early in the summer, is below, 3000 feet and apparently has missed the Travis sand. It is still showing some oil from 2715 feet.

Near Alanreed, the Purple Sage Oil corporation's test has reached contract depth at No. 1 Johnson, in section 6, of Rockwell county school lands survey, and in Gray county, but plans to keep on drilling. Present total depth is 3204 feet in an eight-inch hole, and bottomed in granite wash. The 8 1-4 inch pipe was set at 2800 feet. It had a show of oil in lime from 2660 to 2740 feet. W. H. Clayton of Denver, president of the Purple Sage, spent several days in Amarillo, and arranging for the drilling ahead. The company has a 6000-acre block.

Amerada Officials Visit San Angelo

SAN ANGELO, July 16.—San Angelo and the West Texas oil fields were visited this week by officials from the Amerada Petroleum company of Tulsa, Fort Worth and Shreveport this week. They went over holdings in this section with C. J. Wohlford, who is in charge of their operations here. N. T. Isenberger, as well as other members of the staff stationed in the district office here, made the trip.

Those in the party included J. M. Lovejoy, general manager; Sidney Powers, chief geologist; A. M. Blow, head of the land department, all of Tulsa, and J. Hostterman of Shreveport, district geologist; F. B. Plummer, chief geologist of Texas and H. E. Marsh, head of the land department in Texas, each from Fort Worth.

Gas Tax Collections In N. M. Increasing

The gasoline tax collections in New Mexico are increasing steadily, due to the five cents a gallon charge, figures from Santa Fe show.

For the first half of 1927 the collections showed a gain of 70,289.13 over the same period of 1926, when the gasoline tax was but three cents.

Total gasoline tax collections for the first half of 1927 amounted to $398,706.80 and for the same period of 1926 they amounted to $328,417.17.

SEMINOLE NEAR 500,000 MARK

Production Close to Half-Million Barrel Mark

TULSA, Okla., July 16.—The Seminole field's production is rapidly nearing the 500,000 barrel mark, the output for the 24 hours ended Thursday morning being 476,832 barrels from 586 wells. This is an increase of 12,961 barrels over the previous day's output which was 463,871 barrels from the sema number of wells.

The largest increase is in the Earlsboro pool where the total output was 142,598 barrels, or a gain of 11,432 barrels; the Bowlegs pool including the I. T. I. O. well in 1-7-6, made 207,155 barrels, an increase of 2919 barrels; Seminole City pool decreased 366 barrels, its total being 95,593 barrels, and Searight pool which made 31,486 barrels decreased 1024 barrels. The three gusher producers made as follows:

Independent-Margay No. 8 O'Dell in 4-9-5, 12,010 barrels, (No. 2 the south offset to No. 3, is drilling at 4280 and should reach the sand shortly); Amerada No. 2 Cowden, in 4-9-5, made 13,200 barrels, and No. 1 this farm made 9840 barrels, and in addition to this, approximately 2000 barrels went on the ground; The I. T. I. O. No. 1 House, in 1-7-6, made 12,482 barrels.

Pipe Line Capacity

The total daily pipe line capacity of the field is 433,000 barrels, divided as follows:

Barnsdall, 15,000 barrels; Consolidated Pipe Line, 4000 barrels; Empire Pipe Line, 50,000 barrels; Gulf Pipe Line, 46,000 barrels; Independent Oil and Gas company, 4000 barrels; Magnolia Pipe Line, 23,000 barrels; Mid-Continent Pipe Line, 15,000 barrels; Oklahoma Pipe Line, 90,000 barrels; Ozark Pipe Line, 16,000 barrels; Pure, 15,000 barrels; Prairie Pipe Line, 50,000 barrels; Shaffer Oil and Refining, 8000 barrels; Sinclair Pipe Line, 60,000 barrels; Texas Pipe Line, 16,000 barrels; Tidal, 14,000 barrels and White Oak Refining, 3000 barrels.

Earlsboro Pool

Tidal Oil company's No. 2 Watkins, SW corner NW NW of 9-9-5, Earlsboro pool, topped the Wilcox sand at 4311 feet, and in to a total depth of 4326 feet made 2810 barrels. This well may be given a shot.

Barnsdall Oil company's No. 4 Pack, SW corner SE SE of 10-9-5, is at a total depth of 4392 feet in the Wilcox sand and made 2765 barrels.

Gypsy Oil company's No. 2 Carter, SE corner SE NW of 11-9-5, is at a total depth of 4374 feet in the Wilcox sand and made 1400 barrels.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 3 Holmsley, center north line SE SE of 11-9-5, is at a total depth of 4288 feet in the Wilcox and producing 3880 barrels.

Barnsdall Oil company's No. 1 Winton, NW cornew NW NE of 14-9-5, topped the Wilcox sand at 4316 feet, and total depth of 4318 feet has water. Fishing for tools is in progress.

Carter Oil company's No. 5 Frazier, SE corner NE NW of 3-9-6, Searight pool, is at a total depth of 4424 feet in the Wilcox and made 595 barrels.

Varnsdall's No. 1 Cudjo, SE corner SE NW of 31-9-6, Seminole City pool had a hole full of water, and has been abandoned, at a total depth of 4329 feet in the Wilcox sand.

Bowlegs Pool

In the Bowlegs pool, Atlantic Oil Producing company's No. 3 Fleet, SW corner NE NW of 23-8-6, topped the Wilcox sand at 4302 feet and at eight feet in has 1000 feet of oil in the hole.

Prairie Oil and Gas company's No. 1 Bowlegs, NW corner SW NW of 22-8-6, topped the Wilcox at 4293 feet, and is in to a total depth of 4391 feet and has a hole full of water. It is shut down. This well had 300 feet of oil in the hole from the Simpson topped at 4360 feet.

New Mexico Offering To Supply Denver Gas

Word from Denver and Pueblo says that a new proposition is being offered in a gas line from the San Juan basin of northwestern New Mexico, where some 15 gas wells are said to be making 280,000,000 feet a day. This line to Pueblo would be much longer than from Amarillo-Panhandle, and Panhandle gas men state that it would cost more to pipe gas from New Mexico than from the Panhandle area.

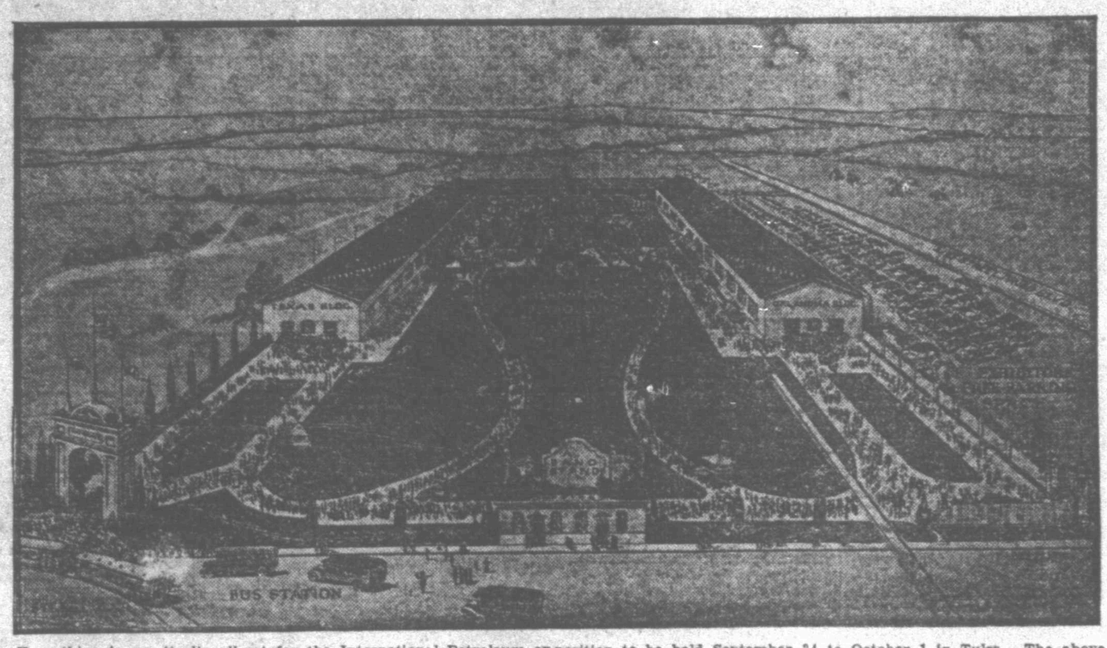

The Amarillo-Panhandle gas line is a three-parte proposition, the Prairie Oil and Gas company producing the gas; the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, helping to finance it, and which controls one of the largest consumers on the line, viz: the Colorado Fuel & Iron company, and the Public Service company that would distribute it.

PLATEAU OIL HAS INCREASE

Gulf Brings in 500-Barrel An Hour Gusher

SAN ANGELO, July 16.—Upton and Reagan counties furnished the big features of oil development this week on the Edwards plateau of West Texas, Gulf Production company bringing in its No. 2 John Lane in Upton for 500 barrels the first hour—initially the county's greatest gusher—and Group One Oil corporation (Texon) No. 1B university in the Reagan county proven area striking oil at 6270 feet, the deepest in Texas. Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas company purchased 470 acres two miles east of Del Rio on the Southern Pacific railroad as a site for its tank farm of 25 80,000-barrel tanks, to which the Illinois Pipe Line company, another subsidiary of the Ohio Oil company, will lay a 140-mile pipe line from the Yates field in eastern Pecos county.

Gulf's No. 2 Lane, seventh producer in the southeastern extension of the Burleson pool in Upton county, about mid-way between Hurdle and McCamey on the Orient railroad, was pinched in late in the week to 80 barrels an hour, all the oil for which storage was available and that the Humble pipe line could handle. The well blew in Sunday from 1957-64 feet, filling two 250-barrel tanks the first hour, and almost immediately was brought under control. It is 330 feet from the south line and 1650 feet from the west line of section 3, G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey, and a quarter-mile south of the Orient railroad. Approximately two miles to the northwest, Dixis Oil company's No. 26 Burleson deepened from 2240 feet, after swabbing off 2205 feet of oil. It offsets Roxana No. 16 Bowen on the south and Dixie No. 20 Burleson on the west and was expected to be completed late in the week.

The third producing horizon in the Reagan county field as well as the deepest in the state is a probability through the striking of oil in Group One Oil corporation's No. 1B university. At 6365 feet, the well stood 1200 feet in oil and was making an estimated 100,000 cubic feet of gas. Sand was appearing in the cuttings. Oil was struck when the drill passed from the Permian into the Pennsylvanian formation. Before being carried deep, No. 1B produced around 100,000 barrels of oil from the 2400 and 3000-foot levels. From these horizons, the entire field, controlled entirely by the Texon Oil and Land company and its subsidiaries and the Big Lake Oil company, has produced around 24,000,000 barrels of oil since the Texon in May, 1923, drilled in the discovery Santa Rita well. A third pay would add inestimable value and longevity to the field, which probably is not over one-fourth depleted from the present formation. The second location south of the Orient railroad, No. 1B is in the extreme northwest corner of the southwest quarter of section 36, block 9, university land. It is maintaining a 5 3-16-inch hole—casing of that size having been landed at 4450 feet.

Save for the steady drilling of several tests which will define further the extent of the Yates dome, and the spudding of Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental's No. 3B Yates, the situation in eastern Pecos county was quiet, with production of nine Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental producers pinched in to around 4000 barrels daily. No. 3B Yates is north and west of Allsman & Bell's first producer in the bed of the Pecos river that forms the boundary between Pecos and Crockett counties. The second river bed test, two miles upstream from the first one, had drilled to 150 feet. Marland No. 1A Yates, western offset to the first river bed well, was fishing at 360 feet. McMan-Marland No. 1 Yates was running 12 1-2 inch pipe to 350 feet. California company No. 1 Yates, 2900 feet northwest of Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 2B Yates, nearest producer, had drilled to 709 feet and was preparing to run 8 1-4-inch casing. Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental No. 5A Yates, eastern offset to No. 1 Smith-Taylor, was drilling at 955 feet. No. 7A Yates was rigged up and the location was being cleared for No. 8A.

H. D. Camp's No. 1 Willeke Bros., seven miles west of San Angelo, in section 4, Blind Asylum survey, was underreaming 150 feet to lower 8 7-4-inch casing to further test a showing of oil with gas struck at 738 feet. On Monday the well bailed three barrels of oil, as it did on Friday and Saturday of last week. Apparently the pipe was set too low, shutting off the oil showing when it partially shut off the water.

Marland Chief Scout Is Transferred

AMARILLO, July 16.—J. Hoyt Lewis, chief scout for the Panhandle district of the Marland Oil company of Texas, is being transferred to San Angelo to hold the same position there.

Lewis came with the Marland from Oklahoma, and he was the Marland's first scout in the Panhandle. His work here covers a period of 26 months. In addition to being a likable fellow, a good oil man, he is a successful fisherman.

The Great Plains Drilling company in No. 1 Elvins, in section 15, block Y2, of T. T. survey, in southwestern Hutchinson county, is probably one of the largest gassers in the Panhandle. M. H. Cox, drilling contractor, estimates it good for 140,000,000 feet, and making more gas each foot of new hole drilled. It found gas in a 10-inch hile and 8-inch tools were run at 2700 to 2760 feet, with the 6 5-8-inch pipe set at 2738 1-2 feet, and most of the gas was shut off with the six inch. The gas is dry, but when stripped reveals a satisfactory gasoline content.

Arena Company to Drill 3500-Foot Well in N. M.

AMARILLO, July 16.—The Arena Oil company has spudded in its initial test in the northeast corner of the northwest of 18-12s-31e, in southeastern Chaves county, New Mexico. It is to be drilled to 3500 feet. It is three miles east of the Caprock and 25 miles north of the Skelly Oil company's small producer in eastern Eddy county, and in the Maljamar area.

Martin Yates, one of the pioneers in the Artesia pool, with J. F. Hinkle and W. A. Nicholas, both of Roswell, are the officers and directors of the Arena company.

MAY PURCHASE OIL RIGHTS

Pecos County Fee Owners May Get Preference

SAN ANGELO, July 16.—A legislative act giving to fee owners in Pecos county preference rights in buying back the mineral rights to lands effected by the relinquishment act may be a just solution of the suit by the state of Texas against Ira G. Yates of San Agelo, the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental Oil companies, which are developing his property, filers on the land and others.

This is the opinion of R. J. Randolph of Austin, assistant secretary of state, who was in San Angelo Wednesday, combining business with a vacation trip by automobile. As an assistant attorney general to Dan Moody for two years, Mr. Randolph filed the state's suit seeking to recover all mineral rights under part of the Yates land on the ground that the relinquishment act is unconstitutional. Under this act the state relinquished its fifteen-sixteenths interest to the land owner by reason of his service in causing the property to be developed.

The latest step in the case has been the overruling of the defendant's plea of privilege, seeking a change of venue from Pecos county, thus leaving jurisdiction in the district court of Travis county at Austin, where the suit was filed. An appeal has been taken. Meanwhile there is pending before the supreme court a mandamus proceeding brought by O. W. Greene, San Angelo oil man and representative of the Plymouth Oil Co., seeking to require J. T. Robinson, land commissioner, to grant a permit on other lands in Pecos county owned by Mr. Yates.

While here Mr. Randolph secured a copy of the San Angelo Standard of Sunday, Oct. 31, in which the first flow by Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental's No. 1-A Yates, Pecos county discovery producer, was reported to have been on Friday, Oct. 29. The date that commercial production was obtained has an important bearing on filing by two parties on the Yates land, the law providing that after production has been obtained on state school land, university or blind asylum land a person may file on not over 1000 acres within a mile of the well. According to the records, Mr. Randolph reported, a Mr. Holland of Fort Worth, representative of the Transcontinental filed on 2400 acres of the Yates land, including the discovery well, on Nov. 8, 1926. On or about Dec. 3, W. H. Ward of Houston filed on 80 acres off the north end of the 2400-acre tract, which is the vacant strip known as section 34 1-2.

The rights of respective filers have not yet been settled and whether Mr. Holland's filing will be invalidated because he filed on more than 1000 acres is a question not yet decided. An apparent conflict in the statutes is the fact that the law providing for permits to drill excepts lands on which the state relinquished fifteen-sixteenth of the mineral rights. In the event the relinquishment act is held nconstitutional, the whole mineral rights would revert to the state, and permits to drill on such lands would not be permissable.

Mr. Randolph was accompanied by Mrs. Randolph and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Randolph of Huntsville They were the guests of Mrs. W. F. Compton, their sister, at 1405 South David street. Joe Randolph is steward of the state penitentiary at Huntsville. Madisonville is the former home of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph. En route to San Angelo they stopped at Kerrville, where their son, Bobbie Randolph, a high school boy, is attending Doc Stewart's camp on the Guadalupe river.

Utah Well Drilling At 1500 Feet in Gas

AMARILLO, July 16.—W. H. Holmes and John W. McGee in No. 1 State, in the northeast corner of 14-15s-10e, near Price, in Carbon county, southeastern Utah, is drilling below 1500 feet in the second McElmo sand, and making close to 1,000,000 feet of gas. It had this pay at 1400 feet and at 1432 feet picked up 250,000 feet of gas, and at 1500 feet it found 300,000 feet more

25 Per Cent of Corpus Christi Pipeline Laid

SAN ANGELO, July 16.—The Humble Pipe Line company has laid about 25 per cent of its line from McCamey in the West Texas oil fields, to Corpus Christi, it was announced in San Angelo this week by U. S. Morris of Durant, Okla., who has been in this section with the Humble concern during the last three years.

Work is now starting on the laying of a 10-inch line from Kemper, in the oil fields, to Corpus Christi, he announced. Work should be well under way by the last of the week. This work is being carried on from two division points, one of them Rock Springs and the other Hondo.

The Humble has four machines laying 12-inch pipe on the line at the present time, the Humble representative said.

Five Banner Wells Are In Hutchinson County

AMARILLO, July 16.—Every oil field has its banner wells and the Hutchinson county area of the Panhandle area has five leaders.

Dixon Creek Oil company has the best of them all, its No. 1 Smith, in section 14, block Y, of M. & C. survey, which was completed March 29, 1926, for 400 barrels initial. A year later it was shot and made 5800 barrels initial and it held up above 5000 barrels a day for six months. To July 1, it had produced a total of 1,409,000 barrels.

Dixon's Creek's No. 10 Smith, in section 11, same area, has produced over 1,00,000,000 barrels. It came in July 26, 1926 and made 3000 barrels initial.

Cockrell-McIlroy Oil company No. 1 Cockrell, in section 1, block B-3, of D. S. & E. survey, made 503,960 barrels from April 20 until June 30, this year.

Third Oil Sand Found On Hospital Structure

A third oil sand has been found on the Hospah structure, in McKinley county, of northwestern New Mexico.

The Midwest Refining company No. 1 in 1-17n-9w, the discovery well in that area, and which was drilled ahead, found a gas and oil show in the Tocito sand at 5540 feet. The other formations are the Mesa Verde at 1531 feet, and the lower Mesa Verde at 1579 feet. The three are estimated as good for 300 to 500 barrels a day.

Midwest's No. 2, in the northeast of 2-17-9w, has been temporarily abandoned.

Colorado Gas Users Objecting to Cost

Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Denver are anxious to obtain natural gas, but they are objecting to the minimum cost that would be charged in piping gas from the Amarillo-Panhandle field.

Consumers in the Colorado cities do not want the producers, transporters and distributors to start to make a profit right away, and they are trying to discount the excessive cost that will accrue in building from the Panhandle field to the three cities.

Louisiana Man Pays Penalty For Slaying

KILBY PRISON, Montgomery, Ala., July 16. (AP)—Calmly and deliberately Clyde Reese Bachelor walked to the electric chair at the state penitentiary here this morning to pay with his life for the murder of his father-in-law, Judge Lamar Smith in Wetumpka August 30, last. He was given the first of two shocks at 12:43 o'clock and pronounced dead by prison physicians at 12:52 o'clock.

NEW OIL POOL LOOMS IN GRAY

Production Found South Of Granite Ridge

AMARILLO, July 26.—Oil has been found south of the granite ridge in southeastern Gray county, and a new pool may be looming.

The St. Clair Petroleum company No. 1 Crews, in section 9, block 25, of H. & G. N. survey, located northeast of Alanreed, but also claimed by McLean as in its area, which shut down several days ago at 2974 feet, to test, succeeded in bailing 10 barrels of oil in a 19-hour period. The production is coming from the granite wash.

It is the plans of the St. Clair officials to have the Crews well drilled deeper in search of larger production. The elevation of the well is 2761 feet, making it 213 feet below sea level at its present total depth.

The M. M. Travis well in section 44, same survey, and the discovery of the McLean area, was 161 below sea level.

The St. Clair well has been the topic of much discussion and close watching lately. After finding gas at 2250 feet, which was estimated as high as 8,000,000 feet, but which ranged around 2,500,000 feet, it found showings of oil field reports gave the first pockets as black and inert, but the last bailings showed it to test 41 degrees corrected.

The importance of the St. Clair well as the first to find oil that far south of the so-called granite ridge is such that all of the major companies are keeping their scouts near it.

Grass Roots Test

The Grass Roots area of Hale county in the South Plains field, located half way between the Panhandle and West fields, was the scene Friday of a big gathering of oil men and farmers.

The occasion was the spudding of the L. L. Donnell Petroleum company No. 2 Millican Ranch, in section 21, block B, of R. M. Thompson, being 100 fete north and west of the No. 1 estimated a three to five-barrel well from 407 to 423 feet, but now shut in.

The citizens of Hale Center, who are calling themselves the "Second Borger of the Plains," had charge of the barbecue and extended invitations to folks in towns of Lubbock, Hale, Swisher, Randall, Potter, Carson, Hutchinson and other areas to attend. The invitations were generously accepted.

Mrs. Donnell and John Kegans of Tulsa, the latter being the man who drilled in the first well on the Mullican Ranch, had charge of the spudding of the No. 2 well, with an F. W. Axtell spudding machine.

A. S. Mims in No. 1 Richter, located 1200 feet from the south line and 600 feet from the east line of section 17, block 1, of John Glynn survey, is drilling below 200 feet. He spudded in July 12, setting 12 1-2 pipe at 165 feet. He is using a Star drilling machine.

The exploration company has temporarily abandoned No. 1 Fee, in the center of the southeast of E. survey, Hale county, where it had just completed a rig.

The Exploration company has a rig on the ground for No. 1 Dinwiddie at 1320 feet from the north line and 150 fet from the east line of section 70, block M-11, of A. B. & M. survey, in Swisher county.

The same firm plans other tests in the Grass Roots area of Hale, Swisher, Motley, Floyd and adjacent counties.

Plainview people vied with Hale Center folks in attending the spudding ceremony, and Plainview business men are inclined to dispute Lubbock's claim to being the oil capital of the South Plains area. First oil, they say, was found in Hale county.

Oil Pioneer Asserts West Texas Oil Territory Only Scratched

SAN ANGELO, July 16.—The oil possibilities in West Texas were given another boost this week by a pioneer in the oil industry. The possibilities have just been scratched and big development is certain to continue, believes Capt. J. F. Lucey of Dallas, pioneer and wealthy oil operator. He is head of the Lucey Petroleum company and formerly was head of the Lucey Manufacturing company at Houston.

He made a visit to San Angelo in 1924, but made no buys in the oil fields. He said this week he did not think then that this would make a real oil field. Since, however, he has invested his money in West Texas fields. He mentioned San Angelo's growth and pointed out that this, the largest of the oil field cities, should continue to be headquarters for the West Texas oil fields.

Capt. Lucey was in San Angelo with L. E. Doan of Shreveport, independent oil operator and former president of the Doan Oil company. They are visiting the Yates Field in Pecos county, where Capt. Lucey owns royalties. He also has royalties in the Hendricks pool in Winkler county and the Chalk shallow pool in Howard county.

Morton Wildcat in Moore County Watched With Close Interest

AMARILLO, July 16.—The Morton wildcat northeast of Dumas, in Moore county, and approximately 35 miles away from the nearest production in the northwest corner of the present proven area of the Texas Panhandle, is more closely watched now than ever before.

This important test, No. 1 R. W. Reeder, in section 191, block 8T, of T. & N. O. survey, was shot with 120 quarts late Friday night. It made one spectacular flow over the crown block, and immediately subsided, due to the hole bridging. The Independent Torpedo company shot the well.

The task of cleaning out the bridge so the well can "do its stuff," will do as an "oiler" should be known.

A visit to the well showed that the Morton and company was putting down a water well directly west of its producer, and another water well is being drilled due east by other parties.

Seven Movies, Three Sing-Songs, And Vaudeville On Park Program

Seven free pictureshows, three sing-songs and one big vaudeville night have been announced on city park programs for the coming week by William H. Ward of the park department. Mr. Ward predicted record-breaking crowds due to the postponement of all programs last week on account of the weather.

The vaudeville program will be in six acts, with the Gordon Shay orchestra playing between acts and for different feature numbers. Marion Riesby, the "bird boy," will open the entertainment with several whistling selections and will be followed by Scott Alday, billed as the "Harmonica King." Hawaiian steel guitar music will be given by A. L. Thompson.

One Ace Drama.

A one-act drama will be included on the program with members of the Sunshine players in the cast. The last number will be arranged by Wichita Falls Camp Fire girls and will feature vocal and instrumental musical numbers. The program will start promptly at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at Bellevue park, according to the announcement.

Sing-songs are to be held at Bellevue park Tuesday night, at Sibley-Taylor Thursday night and at the Grant street park Friday night. Alva Wiligus, community song leader, will be present at each place to lead the singing.

Fine Sheep and Cattle On Wichita Valley Farm

Wichita Valley clover-fed lambs topped the Fort Worth stock market 50 cents on the hundred above everything else this past week—and were bought immediately by Armour Packing company.

A few of the sheep are now grazing on the farm of J. A. Kemp five miles southwest of Iowa Park are shown above in a sweet clover patch. Gearnsey Hereford heifers are shown in the other picture as they were taken on Mr. Kemp's farm.

In a letter to Mr. Kemp from Tom Wallace, head sheep buyer for the Armour company, was this following statement:

"The feed of sweet clover these sheep have had makes very firm meat, the kind that will always bring the best price. Fort Worth packers will always be glad to buy sheep of this kind, and will pay the very top price every time."

The lambs were graded "strictly choice."

Creamery Names New Superintendent; Expansion of Diary Trade Predicted

I. W. Traxler has been named superintendent of the plant of the Producers creamer company, 1209 Indiana, according to an announcement by W. D. Curtis, manager of the company. Mr. Traxler is an experienced creamery man, having been previously employed by the Freeman Dairy company, Flint, Mich., one of the largest concerns of its kind in that state. Prior to that time he was employed as plant superintendent and bacterologist for four and a half years in Kansas City. He is a graduate of the dairy manufactury department of the University of Illinois.

The employment of Mr. Trexler, stated Mr. Curtis, is but one of the steps in the further development of the Producers Creamery company.

A laboratory for conducting scientific tests made in the finest of plants will be added soon.

Wichita county, Mr. Curtis asserted, will have a great future as a dairy and produce section due partially to the influence of irrigation. The situation today compares with that of Wisconsin a number of years ago. The county is ideal for milk production and then supply of local milk is constantly increasing. The immediate prospect is better than for several years, he said. Pastures look good instead of burned as in former years and water tanks are full. The stock is also in an excellent condition. Mr. Curtis just returned from a trip through the producing section here.

THIEVES STRIP CAR.

Recovery of a Ford coupe owned by Miss Pearl Reynolds, 1410 Fourteenth street, was reported by Deputy Sheriffs W. J. Duncan and R. D. Morris Saturday afternoon. The car was stolen Saturday morning and was discovered at Texas and Elm streets. The car had been stripped of its tires by the thieves.

Merchants Give Prizes For Forum Tournament

Wichita Falls merchants have donated attractive prizes for the bridge benefit party at the Woman's Forum club house Tuesday morning, July 19, according to announcement from the committee. The party will be held in the club house as the first public event since its completion this week.

Business concerns offering score prizes are: Perkins-Timberlake company, The Hub, McClurkan's and the Lehrack Ice Cream company.

BY EUDORA GARRETT.

Long ago some poet penned a sentence that has been applied to womanhood in general ever since. The implication of the sentence is a qualifying one,—as though woman's talents were all bound up in one,—as though she hid her light under a bushel and that the bushel were that same cradle rocked by her hand,—and that could do nothing else.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd, secretary of the Texas-Oklahoma fair association, is one to believe that the poet's "hand that rocks the cradle" may not only rule the world, but that it can be turned to multitudinous other accomplishments as well. And Mayor Shepherd's opinion is one to be considered, as it is based on facts,—facts gleaned from his experience with work done by Wichita Falls women in the annual fair.

More Enthusiasm.

"The women of this city are more than wonderful in the interest taken in the exhibits each year, and their enthusiasm is far greater than the men's," he declared.

"They take hold of whatever they are to do, work with it for weeks ahead of time, stay with it during display week, and make a tremendous success, no matter in what line they attempt it.

"The success of our fair is in a large part due to the way they get behind every phase of the woman's department or any committee work they are given to do and push it over the top," he added. This is the spirit that makes a success of anything, Mayor Shepherd asserted, and it is particularly true of co-operative work in which many people are involved as in the case of the Texas-Oklahoma fair.

New Opportunities.

Women are going to be given a greater opportunity than ever this year to "show what they can do," both in the way of exhibits and executive management, Mayor Shepherd said. Many improvements have been made in the buildings which will add to the interest of all taking part as well as to the comfort and convenience of the visitors.

The entire art building is being redecorated and rearranged for a more adequate housing of the various exhibits, and premium lists have been revised to include new divisions of art work with attractive prizes offered in each division.

In this connection the fair secretary stated that men were just now beginning to "catch up" on what women were really interested in.

"Why we started out offering prizes for crochet and knitted sox,— and realized suddenly that women weren't knitting any more and that crochet was made by grandmothers!" he declared.

"Then it was up to us to hold new conferences with the other sex to determine just where their interest lay—anad we believe we are finding out more each year."

Women's Department.

The 1927 women's department, under the direction of Jack Barnard, will include four main divisions, domestic science, domestic art, farm women's clubs exhibits and plants and flowers. In addition, many other divisions of the exhibition are open to the competition of what was once called "the weaker sex," with indications that several cash awards will inevitably go to members of this same sex.

The knitting, patching, darning, crocheting and such have all been relegated to an "Older Women's Department," following the decision of masculine managers that they were out of date in supposing all women to be concerned with what their mothers were. In their place is now found such entries as boudoir pillows, pajamas, ribbonzine lace bed spreads and decorated card tables. That talent continue through manifestations change was verified by the secretary, who was lavish in his praise of the exhibits produced in these and other new lines.

"After all, we always find the greatest characters in the world among the women, even though we never realize quite what they can do until it is shown in some such way as these contests offer," Mayor Shepherd concluded. "And I am anxious that they take more interest than ever this year and really 'show the men' what can be done with one of the finest departments of the entire fair."

Music And Musicians

BY MME. COBINA WRIGHT.
Famous Songstress and Society Leader.

(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service.)

NEW YORK, July 16.—My old friend Fortuno Gallo is an example of a man who with musical sympathies and ideals, has after years of patient striving and perservance attained the goal of his ambitions—an opera house of his own in New York. Those who stroll past Broadway and 54th street see a building rapidly nearing completion. It represents more than a mere structure of bricks and mortar. It marks the fulfillment of a lifework as testified by the inscription—The Gallo Theater.

Gallo's Opera company has long been a feature of the pre-musical season in the Metropolis where before the year's activities are in full swing, he has taken possession of the Century theater with a company of picked singers and presented several weeks of opera at popular prices. The balance of the year was devoted to a trans-Continental tour which reached many of the outposts of the country as well as the leading cities of the land. In my opinion Fortuno Gallo has done more than any one individual to foster love of opera throughout the country, and he has undoubtedly brought this form of music not only to the masses but to localities where it is seldom if ever heard.

Looks Toward New York.

Gallo confided to me a year ago that though he felt he had accomplished a great deal he would never be really happy until he had secured a musical foothold in New York, the center now of the world's music, and the Gallo theater is the result.

Mr. Gallo says that the new edifice will serve a combination of purposes. It will house his opera company while in New York, and it can and will be utilized for operettas, concerts and recitals. The grand opening is scheduled for September when the San Carlo company, in its Sunday best will officiate.

As for the theater itself, let the dynamic Mr. Gallo tell you about it in his own words.

"The auditorium is in Italian renaissance which is the dominating theme throughout, the color scheme being a combination of blue and ivory with a touch of turquoise ornamented with gold. In gentle contrast, the draperies will be old rose and gold, the carpet of the same design in a field of blue. The winscoting, and chairs will be stained walnut trimmed with blue and gold. Five aisles will afford every facility for two on the aisle, and particularly elaborate and extensive are the promenades and rest rooms designed in order to promote a social and convivial atmosphere."

Wagnerian Walkuere.

A walkuere is among us, not however clad in armor and brandishing a spear, but bearing in her arms a gift from the medical profession of Germanay to the sufferers of America. Her name is Johana Gadski whose "Ho Yo to Ho!" has re-echoed in the hearts of wagnerites for nearly a quarter of a century, and who has just arrived in America for a short visit to join her husband, Hans Tauscher, leaving behind her in her charming home in Berlin her daughter, Lotte, now Mrs. Ernst Busch, whose two little sons have completely captured the heart of the noted wagnerian singer.

Madame Gadski tells me that though she is in New York only for a brief visit she is returned again in the autumn for her New York recital which her many admirers will be glad to hear will be an entirely classical program. A tour of the country will follow.

But I must tell you of the cure she has discovered.

"Upon returning to Berlin from the United States early in May," says Madame Gadski, "I learned of the remarkable new cure for diabetes taken in tablet form, discovered by Professor Von Noorden of Frankfurt university, regarded as the foremost specialist of this dread disease in Europe. His writings on the subject are known to medical authorities throughout the world.

She'll Peddle Medicine.

"My personal acquaintance with the man to whom the world distribution of this medicine had been entrusted, enabled me to secure the representation for the United States and Canada, but I accepted only after having read hundreds and hundreds of convincing letters which Professor Noorden had received from all parts of the country, begging, nay imploring him to put his discovery on the market at once.

"Among them were letters from persons in all walks of life proclaiming aid they had received in using this remarkable remedy. I also had an opportunity of seeing for myself how representatives of other European countries were bending all their energies for securing these rights but promising to lift the import duties on this product.

"My plans were quickly made. They were to secure a large quantity of these tablets as quickly as possible and to sail for America immediately. This I was able to do through the co-operation of the laboratory which worked night and day making these tablets for me. Indeed I may say that I am proud to be the first to bring this magical diabetes cure to the American people."

U. of T. Dean First Texan Honored As Director In P.-T. A.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 16.—T. H. Shelby, dean of extension, University of Texas, has just received notice from the headquarters of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers of his appointment as chairman of the national committee on citizenship. Dean Shelby has accepted this appointment and thus is the twelfth man in the United States to become a member of the board of managers of the national congress, and the first man from Texas to whom this distinction has come. It is felt that he has brought honor to himself, his city and his state by accepting this post.

Tribute to Congress

In speaking about the matter Dean Shelby said:

"I am deeply sensible of the honor and the responsibility of this appointment. There is probably no organization in the United States that is in better position to render service of an effective sort in developing higher ideals of citizenship service than is the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. This is true because no other organization, to so large an extent, focusses attention upon the child and attempts to accomplish its work during the plastic period of childhood. The truth of the statement that one 'former' is more effective than two 'reformers' was never better shown than this particular matter. Childhood and youth are the years when ideals can be made actual in the life of human beings.

"Definite citizenship training by participation in life situations in the school and community activities is more effective. The carrying of it out in ways that will make it functional calls forth all the sympathy, love and ingenuity of which those in control are capable. The child in the school must be regarded as a young citizen and not merely a citizen-to-be and all agencies the home, the school, the church and organized social life of every sort must work together for maximum results."

National Board

Other men on the national board are Dr. Randall J. Condon, city superintendent of schools, Cincinnati, O., who is know all over the United States as the president of the department of superintendents, N. E. A., and who came to Texas to the meeting of that body last February, is fifth vice president; Walton S. Bittner, University of Indiana, Bloomington, manager of bureau of education extension; Dr. Bird T. Baldwin, Iowa research station, Iowa City, Ia., manager of the national bureau of child development; J. W. Faust of the National Recreation and Playground association, New York City, national chairman of recreation; Dr. A. B. Meredith, state department of education, Hartford, Conn., national chairman of safety; Dr. Luther Weigle, Yale university, New Haven, Conn., national chairman of the new department of spiritual training; Dr. D. A. Thom, Boston, Mass., national chairman of mental hygiene; Dr. Ward C. Crampton, New York City, national chairman of physical education; E. C. Mason, Winchester, Mass., chairman of the national endowment fund; and Joy Elmer Morgan, Washington, D. C., national chairman of congress publications.

Pretty American Maid Introduces New Fashion Mode For London

By GERTRUDE LADY DECIES
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 16.—King George and Queen Mary have been busy with their social functions in Scotland this week before returning to the south for the Goodwood and Cowes regattas, so, with no definite court functions on the calendar, the hostesses have been able to give a number of private entertainments, and there have been as many as 20 or 30 parties a night.

The strict social round will be resumed next week, when the monarchs give a huge garden party in Buckingham palace grounds.

* * *

Ambassador and Mrs. Houghton will be among the first to leave London this year for the highlands of Scotland. They again will take Lenox Lodge in Haddingtonshire, and will entertain there continuously until the fall.

* * *

Lady Cunard, who proved herself the season's most lavish and most important American hostess, had a brilliant climax to her activities this week when she entertained King Fuad of Egypt at dinner at her town house. No fewer than 100 guests attended the party, which ranked as the most important event of the week. Her musical program was under the personal direction of Sir Thomas Beecham, who arranged a number of madrigals for entertainment of the royal visitor.

Mrs. Arthur Glasgow has been another important American hostess this week. Dinner guests at Moncorvo house on Tuesday included Princess Alice, the countess of Athlone and Lady May Cambridge, niece of Queen Mary. The princess and her daughter will leave next week for a hunting trip in southwest Africa. Other guests were Lady Maud and Lord Carnegie, Lord Allendale, Lord and Lady Greville, and the duke and duchess Ovvul.

* * *

Arrivals at the Savoy this week include Fred W. Shibley, president of the Bankers' Trust company, and Mr. and Mrs. John Ringling.

Fred Stone, the actor, and his daughters, are vacationing here.

Charles Levine, the trans-Atlantic air flight passenger, gave a party at the Savoy, in the grill, in honor of Fraulein Thea Rasche, now en route to New York on the Leviathan.

Flowers have made their appearance in London as sleeves on evening frocks. Miss Enid Taylor, of Philadelphia, whose mother gave a party for her this week, wore a white picture frock with tiny puffed sleeves entirely composed of miniature artificial flowers. When these flower sleeves are intended for debutantes' frocks and tiny blossoms suggesting a victorian bouquet are generally used. For older women, roses or peonies may form the sleeves.

Well-Well-Well! Elinor Glyn Rises to Defense of Mere Mr. Husband

NEW YORK, July 16.—Mme. Elinor Glyn dressed herself in a French pink negligee suitable to the pink and yellow decorations of her hotel suite. She sat down to write an article on how American women are "soignee."

She was interrupted for an interview. Tired from the voyage that landed her from England three days ago, and very warm even in the cool grandeur of her hotel, she nevertheless abandoned writing and spoke her thoughts:

"The American woman is more 'soignee' than any other woman in the world. Two months abroad—my first trip in three years—have convinced me of that.

"How I wish the word soignee could be printed as the French pronounce it—swanyeh! It implies everything from beautiful grooming to charm of manner. It is irresistible to men who don't understand it, but sense it. And speaking of men—"

"I am working on a legitimate play that will prove how much of 'it' an American man can have. There is no man, no husband, more wonderful than the American. I am very serious about this play. It will be based upon my story of 'It.' I have been given every encouragement to produce it next season."

There were pink and yellow gladiolas in huge vases. Cards were attached. They gave the famous English writer a new idea.

"Modern women do not appreciate the gallantries of men the way they once did. Flowers, books, candy, they once meant romance. Now they are more or less like 'letters of digestion,' as the French say, or 'bread and butter' tokens, as we say.

"But simplicity will become stylish again. Modern young people have their own very good ideas, developed from our changed life. Girls, I will admit, marry with their subconscious minds retaining the idea that if they don't like marriage there is always divorce.

It's like taking an apartment and before taking it making sure that it has a fire escape. Divorce is the fire escape after marriage.

"I'm for everything modern. We're progressing all the time. In ten years we'll have a wonderful marriage system, and I'm not saying it will include trial marriage, birth control nor any particular quality other than true love.

"To newlyweds—I adore them—I say: Use your wits. Use your intelligence. Be agreeable. Make compromises. Then you will be happy.

"Girls should make the most of their beauty parlors and win their men with personal charm—not sex appeal. Thousands of people have sex appeal without charm. I am disgusted at the 'mingy'—that is a British word—youths who think they can acquire 'it' by acquiring sex appeal.

"Men must learn that the most emancipated girl loves to find a man who could make her obey him if he chose. Man should still be the master in happy married life, but the thread of his guidance should be a delicate and sensitive one. No woman should try to rule."

WOMEN DOCTORS TOO MANY.

England has too many women doctors, according to medical authorities there. A single advertisement for one produced 18 applicants for the two positions of senior and junior medical officials at a children's hospital in London, the salaries being only $600 and $600 a year. A similar advertisement for the post of house physician at the General Hospital in Sutherland attracted only 12 male applicants and 38 women, all of whom had held hospital positions for periods of from two to 50 months. All women but one were university graduates, 23 had English qualifications and 21 Scottish. Of every three men and women medical graduates in Ireland, it is estimated that two must emigrate to find fields for their activities. In Scotland the proportion is higher. Many of them come to America.

Adventures In the Shops

GOING ABROAD?

THERE'S no reason why you shouldn't step from the gangplank in the smartest of Paris chapeaux—that would mean one in velvet, satin or felt. The millinery department of Perkins-Timberlake shows beautiful new models in these fabrics with especial stress on velvet. For velvet accessories of all kinds are good now, and it is ultra fashionable to wear velvet hats with sheer, light dresses. Most of these new hats are soft and collapsible, which makes them ideal for packing.

P. B. M. COMPANY sponsors two new types of French panties and you'll be sure to sponsor at least one of them when you see the little yoke which not only looks and feels well, but fits so smoothly under a dress. One is cut circular, the other achieves just enough fullness through a box pleat—these last are the "Shoestring Panties" because their back is gathered with a silk shoestring. White pussy willow, with yellow-centered daisies embroidered here and there, is one of the daintiest of the new models.

Now to turn to P. B. M.'s fall hats. Stunning Knox felts in new beige shades are la derniere cri. Such famous designers as Hattie Carnegie show felts with even lace afternoon gowns and some of the new models have lace insets, so felt has usurped the formal world as well as the informal.

MILLER-FERGUSON Company is putting on an immense closing out sale. The drastic reductions are due to the fact that on August first it will be necessary to close the main floor for a few days in order that the plumbing in the building may be remodeled. This will save any damages to their store and the people of Wichita Falls are benefitting by the prices in this big sale—they're the best we have seen and Miller-Ferguson is doing an immense business on this record-breaking closing out sale.

THE Universal Portable Electric Oven-Cooker will mean as much to housewives as the Industrial Revolution did to the world! For the Universal operates from any electric outlet, using less current than an electric iron, and cooks an entire meal for an average family with very little attention from the cook. It is so nice to have leisure or time for performing other duties while dinner is cooking and to have the kitchen always cool and pleasant.

Picnic parties, too, will gain good things to eat from the advent of the Universal Electric Oven-Cooker. Home-cooked food may be easily carried in it in autos and a delicious meal served warm on the outing. Tourists will find the oven-cooker eliminates the chance of an unappetizing lunch in the dirty little cafe which is "the only one in town."

This cooker cooks roast crisp and brown outside and rare or well-done inside according to taste—it does not merely steam food. The bread, biscuits, cakes and pastry are baked to just the desired golden brown. Its price is only $10 and you'll find it at the Texas Electric Service Company.

DO YOU PROFIT BY WHAT YOU READ?

THE ideas expounded in great literature are the ideas master minds have conceived from a close study of life and the people living it. Life and character do not change, yet many of us never think of applying the knowledge we gain from the gems of literature to our own lives.

Robert Barrett Browning, in his poem, "The Statue and the Bust," warns us against vacillation. These lines carry a lesson for most of us "And the sin I impute to each frustrate ghost, is—the until lamp and the ungirt loin." Don't dream life away, take a step now toward hope's realization and success. A savings account at The North Texas Building and Loan Association is a sure beginning. Ask to have the association's various accounts and investments explained to you at 822 Scott Street. Listen to Browning's message and don't procrastinate.

BE IT ever so humble, there's no place like home" and if you have elected home as a vacation site, you may be wiser than the many who have been bitten by the mosquito "Wanderlust." In no other place is it possible to so thoroughly relax or be so pleasantly indolent as right at home. With an extra portion of ice in the refrigerator you can have iced-this and iced-that whenever you want it and be really more comfortable than the friends who are doing arduous mountain climbing or blistering painfully by the sea.

The Wichita Ice Company's new station, at Ninth and Brook, which opened last Tuesday, has already proved itself a great, strong link in the chain of friendly service this company has built through years of reliable and courteous service in Wichita Falls. Take advantage of this new convenience on the way back from town — it's much cheaper and healthier to buy the clear, pure product of the Wichita Ice Company than to allow food to spoil.

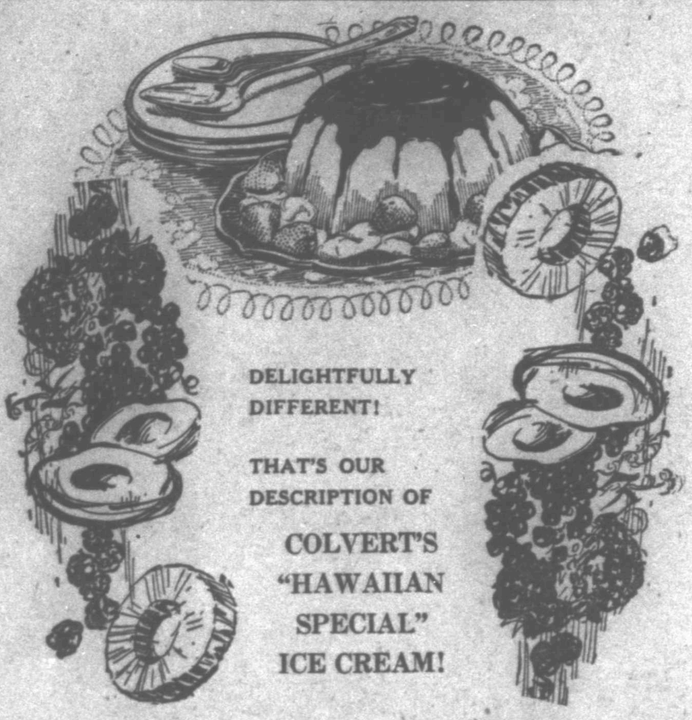

SEND your kodak films to Merrill Ellis' Studio in the Kahn Building. Here you run no risk of having your choicest snaps ruined by careless developers, for individual care and attention are given to the work. This service may be had through the Wilford Harrison Drug Store and, though you'll find the work superior, it is as swift as any (eight hour service) and costs no more.

PROOF OF LIFE MILLION YEARS AGO DISCOVERED AT FREDERICK

SCIENCE BASES DATA ON FIND

Implements of Uncounted Years Ago Located

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Discovery of man-made implements that are associated authoritatively for the first time with fossilized prehistoric American animals identified with the pleistocene period is described in two articles in the current "natural history," the publication of the American museum of natural history.

These articles, describing the results of excavations made in southwestern United States for the Colorado museums, were written by Dr. J. D. Figgins, director, and Dr. Harold J. Cook, honorary curator of palentology of the Colorado museum. While both authorities refrain from denoting exactly how long ago the pleistocene era took place, recent physical discoveries have proved that this prehistoric age must date back at least 1,000,000 years.

Definite Data.

Never before has such definite geologic evidence been presented of the existence of human life on this continent 1,000,000 years ago. Dr. Cook's article, written throughout in conservative manner, concludes that the following comparatively bold statement:

"While other instances have been reported of the finding of evidence of mankind associated with extinct animals in America, nowhere has the evidence of antiquity been so clear-cut and conclusive as this."

Three distinct discoveries have been made during the last two years.

The first of these, found 20 feet below the surface near the home of Nelson J. Vaughn, in Colorado, Mitchell county, Texas, in May, 1925, brought to light the fossilized skeleton of an extinct species of Bison. Lodged in the ribs of the animal was a complete arrowhead or spearhead, evidently shaped by human hands, but not similar, either in workmanship of later periany other arrowheads of later periods found nearer to the surface of the earth.

Prehistoric Camel.

Further evidence that these excavations belong to the pleistocene era was presented by the discovery of the teeth of two extinct species of horse and a large camel. The Bison, Dr. Cook says, is unique among types found in America, with characteristics strongly suggestive of Asiatic relatives and indicative of Asiatic origin.

The second discovery, found in the summer of 1925 12 feet below the surface at Raton, N. M., and excavated in April, 1921, by Dr. Figgins and Dr. Cook, consisted of the fossilized parts of another extinct species of Bison and a deer-like animal, both killed by arrow-points fashioned by human hands. Investigations proved that these implements were superior in workmanship but older than those found at Colorado, Texas.

Found at Frederick.

Finally, what is thought to be the oldest specimens were discovered near the sand and gravel pits of A. H. Holloman in Frederick, Tillman county, Oklahoma. These discoveries were investigated by the Colorado museum in January, 1927. Among the remains of certain extinct animals were found several weapons made of flint and stone as well as five pestles or grinding stones.

Two large stones, bearing the marks of human shaping, were thought to be grave markers, but careful search failed to reveal any evidence of human remains. That these relicu are older than the mammoths or giant elephants that once roamed this continent was proved by the fact that many mammoth skeltons were unearthed all at various levels above the pleistocene relics, but the lowest mammoth remains were still eight feet higher than the implements of human workmanship.

Dr. Figgins points out that valuable specimens must have been lost when unearthed by workers in the sand and gravel pits, their presence unknown, they were carried away with the material to be ground up and used in industrial construction work.

WHAD'YA MEAN—BILL?

LONDON. — Apparently benefited by attendants' experiments with what corresponded to a monkey gland operation, Old Bill, famous Zoo parrot, laid an egg on her 100th birthday.

Old Bill was christened years ago, before her sex was known.

She exhibited no surprise at the sudden resumption, after years, of her oviparous activities, but seemed proud of her feat.

Skeptics scouting the gland story, predicted her early death. It is common for many species to make a final effort to reproduce their kind.

WIFE GOES ON STRIKE.

LOS ANGELES. — The well-known way to a man's heart must be appeased. According to the the testimony of the harassed Mr. Melendy, he was cheated of his meals. "My wife went on a cooking strike and for months never prepared my meals. Then one night when I returned home I found a bountiful dinner prepared for me and my wife met me at the door saying: 'Daddy, this is your last supper.' She walked out on me with that."

After all a man isn't a camel and can't take a month's supply of nourishment at one meal. The judge granted him a divorce.

A CATASTROPHE.

CHICAGO—When the neighbors complained that sleep was impossible, due to Miss Kate Finegan's 25 cats, a sympathetic judge promised them justice. He interrogated Miss Kate and learned that each one of these cats was a pet; she couldn't think of getting rid of a single one! The judge ordered her to pay a large fine or get rid of the felines. Upon due deliberation she decided that perhaps, after all, they were a nuisance, and could be given away.

PENALTY OF HERO DREAM.

Last Landmark of Frontier Passes

GUTHRIE'S LAND OFFICE IN THE PALMY DAYS, AND THE TENT CITY FROM WHICH GREW THE PRESENT METROPOLIS. INSET, A PORTRAIT OF MRS. FREDRIKA POST, LAST TO HOLD THE CLERK'S POSITION IN THE GUTHRIE OFFICE.

By HARGIS EARLYWINE
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1927.

GUTHRIE, Okla., July 16. (EFS).—One by one the old landmarks of the frontier in Oklahoma and the west are disappearing Now another is to be added to the long list—a landmark that is the very heart of much of the old lore identified with the opening of Oklahoma territory on April 22, 1889.

The latest to go is the United States land office, at Guthrie, Okla., to be closed and discontinued by executive order on June 30, 1927.

Records and what little business remains for the office will be moved to Washington and housed in the general office of the department of the interior.

Final decision to discontinue the office at Guthrie marked defeat for citizens of Oklahoma, who made a campaign to keep the office in the state. The campaign, begun when the first announcement of the plan to close the office was made, was continued until the final order was issued from Washington. This order followed a survey, showing that practically no business was being done by the office—and what little was being done could be accomplished from the general office at Washington.

Mrs. Fredericka Post, clerk at the Guthrie office, probably will be taken to Washington with the records, as she knows the business as pertaining to Oklahoma probably better than any other person. She has been connected with Oklahoma land offices since 1901.

She was first attached to the Kingfisher office, but when that office was discontinued and consolidated with the Guthrie office, in 1907, she was transferred to Guthrie.

Major N. D. McGinley, picturesque in Oklahoma history, is registrar at the Guthrie office. He has held the position since 1921. Many men prominent in Oklahoma history, including C. M. Barnes once territorial governor of Oklahoma, are listed among the former registrars.

Began in 1889.

The Guthrie office was opened for business at noon on April 22, 1889, when the famous "run of '89" was made into Oklahoma territory. The building had been constructed in the heart of that great plain to be opened to settlement on that day. It was the only building for miles.

When the pistol shots sounded for the "run", government agents were on duty at the land office, ready to register claims and issue deeds and titles.

From that day on the land office, figuratively and actually, did a landoffice business, with the city of Guthrie building up around the shack. Land claimants stood in line for hours and days in front of the tiny building, waiting for a chance to file their claims. Many were the squabbles and fights that came to surface among those squatters—to be settled on the very threshold of the building.

I. N. Terrel shot and killed a claim jumper from the door of the land office. Just an example of what the old building saw.

Of course, the old wooden shack was not retained through the years but those who knew the building remember the land office in its original form. In recent years the office has had a large room in the modern federal building at Guthrie.

The land office is the last of 11 which handled the claims for free homes at the various territory openings in Oklahoma. Perry was the first to be consolidated with the Guthrie office. This occurred in 1902, and was followed by the transfer of the Enid office to Kingfisher, 1902; Oklahoma City to Guthrie, 1905; Mangum to Guthrie, 1906; Kingfisher to Guthrie, 1912; Woodward to Guthrie, 1915.

Science of Aviation Adds Scores Of New Words To English Lexicon

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Take a trip to any flying field and you find yourself unable to speak the language.

You're an American and so are these flying men, you say. Surely all Americans speak good old "United States."

You do maybe, but do the aviators?

As a matter of fact, it's a highly technical English in which they converse.

That's because with aviation suddenly and overwhelmingly injected into our national activities during the past year or so, the men who fly have developed a specialized terminology that is little short of a foreign tongue to the average American citizen, like you and me.

When the men around a hangar get to chatting among themselves, the layman might easily imagine himself in Egypt or somewhere.

What's more, aeronautical experts are very particular about their vocational vocabulary. Great is their chagrin if the uninitiated uses a flying term in the wrong sense or doesn't use one when he should.

For instance, never ask an aviator what plane he is "driving." Goodness me, you're thinking of an automobile, and you'd probably get a nasty look and scorn too too deep for an answer.

An aviator, my dear, "flies" a plane and does nothing else. Just think of what a bird does and you'll have it right.

How news writers do peeve aviators when they get flying terms all mixed up! And the best of our writers will make mistakes.

A Special Tongue.

But more and more is this special tongue creeping into our established language and pretty soon, if this flying business keeps up as it has started, we'll all be talking about "navigators," "flat spins," and "trogues."

So you might as well look up an aviator and get posted.

You'll want to know par example, that "pilotage" as distinguished from "aerial navigation" means flying over land and steering a straight course by the topography —trees, lakes, rivers, roads and such.

"Aerial navigation" is flying over the sea where you have only moon, stars, the sun, delicate instruments, and Lady Luck to guide you.

"Dead reckoning points" are not as awful as they sound. They have nothing to do with disintegration, but are locations, predetermined, marked off on a course and arrived at mathematically by figuring the air speed of a plane in flight over a given distance with a known wind. Quite complicated at that, isn't it?

There are all sorts of "spins" in the aviator's jargon. A "flat spin" for instance, is a highly undesirable position that an aviator finds himself in when he turns abruptly without "banking." In aero combat, it is often deliberately used to confound the enemy.

"Flat spin" is one of the terms that is creeping into our language with its aeronautical meaning extended to the doing of ordinary life.

Some New Terms.

Thus does a "flat spin" indicated that some one is annoyed, puzzled, or flabbergasted.

"Tail spin" is an example of the way those who don't know what they're talking about can put a real aviator in a "flat spin."

For with modern planes there "ain't no sech animal" as a "tail spin." This is an erroneous designation for a spinning nose dive, and if the plane is of the latest design with the center of gravity well forward, there can be no spinning nose dive.

A drop to earth from several feet caused by losing flying speed due to leveling off too soon is called "pancake." A "pancake" usually results in a violent, bumpy landing and may end in a crash.

"Side slip" is not hard to guess. It's a sidewise movement of the plane in air off the natural course of the flight.

That funny word "Trogue" means the reaction of a propeller which makes the machine turn about its longitudinal axis in a direction opposite to that in which the propeller is actually revolving. How's that for a complex one?

"Stream line refers to the shape of anybody that offers resistance to the air through which it passes.

"Banking" is a common enough expression. Anybody who has ever been to bicycle races or auto races around an oval knows how the track slopes up at the outer edge to keep the racer from toppling over.

Or watch any bird with wings spread in the sky. See how it makes a turn, dipping one wing gracefully in a natural movement. That's what the pilot does when he "banks" his plane. New highways are being built that way around curves to make them as fool-proof as possible.

3000 TO VISIT FARM SCHOOL

5-Day Course at Bryan Opens July 25

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, July 16.—Numerous speakers of state and national prominence, experts in various phases of agricultural and home demonstration work and educators of outstanding records are on the program for the eighteenth annual farmers' short course to be held at the A. & M. college of Texas July 25-30. They will appear at the various group meetings and conferences during the five-day period of the course.

The program prepared, announcement of which has been made by Director Charles H. Alvord of the agricultural extension service under the auspices of which the short course is held, is a comprehensive one. Agricultural and livestock courses, with group sessions for those especially interested in agronomy, horticulture, poultry, dairying and other phases, are in store. Special group meetings for farm boys and girls, for farm women and for various associations that convene here during the short course, have been arranged.

3000 Expected

Greater interest than usual has been indicated in this year's sessions and expectations are that the attendance will reach 3000 or more. The low rates offered by the railroads will make it possible for those who live even at great distances from College Station to attend at nominal cost.

F. M. Law, Houston banker, president of the board of directors of A. & M., and Dr. W. M. N. Splawn, president of the University of Texas, are among the speakers who will appear on the general program for adults to be held in the evenings. Speakers who will address the general meetings in the mornings include:

Dr. B. Youngblood, bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture, and director of the Texas experiment station; and Homer D. Wade, Stamford, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and secretary of Texas Conservation association.

Former Governor Pat M. Neff, John A. Norris, chairman state board water engineers; A. K. Short, conservation and terracing agent, Federal Land bank, Houston; and Homer D. Wade are among the speakers who will address the water conservation and utilization conference to be held July 29.

Speakers for the Texas Jersey Cattle club and dairy group meeting include Dr. E. A. Flowers, president of the club; Dean E. J. Kyle of the school of agriculture, and Charles H. Alvord, director extension service, A. & M. college.

Holy Men of India Do Penance By Sleeping On Beds of Nails

By Universal Service.

BOMBAY, July 16.—The life of a holy man in India is not always a bed of roses; often his bed is one of nails.

Holy men are plentiful in India. Anybody can be a sadhu by growing long hair, smearing his body with ashes and paint, and cultivating a faraway look. Consequently they are so numerous that the genuine ones among them must do something to impress the multitude.

Many of them fast for long periods. Others bury their heads in the ground. Some make long pilgrimages by rolling themselves along the ground, but most of them choose the bed of nails as a means of paying penace for the past or of acquiring merit for the future. One sadhu had suspended his trolley-bed from the branch of a tree, as befits one who has already half-way to heaven. He had been sitting in his perambulating bed of nails for seven years, traversing the banks of the holy rivers of India. He hoped to continue his torturous way until there was no more holy ground to cover or until his soul passed over the border.

HERMIT LIVES IN TREE'S TOP

Former College Professor Back to Nature

By Universal Service.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, July 16.—Back to nature for 40 years, and much of this time spent in a treetop, D. Oran Steinbarger, formerly a college teacher, is the most sociable hermit in Ohio's 88 counties.

He was famous for a short time as illustrator for a number of national magazines. This came as reward for long studies in art, and came at a time when national magazines were few in comparison to present-day floods of literature. Friends still point to double-spreads in magazines of the late eighties.

Had Consumption

Physicians declaring that Steinbarger contracted consumption in New York art academies said he must take to the out-of-doors to save himself.

He lives in a triangle of woods north of Springfield about 11 miles. In a giant elm he has a platform for reading, eating, sleeping, drawing. There he has entertained U. S. army officers, politicians, plains scouts, great educators. He pulls himself into the tree top by ropes bound about a small chair. A counterweight in the tree-top comes down to make the ascent a matter of little difficulty for the 70-year-old recluse.

Blue arrows painted on tree trunks help the motorist to Camp-aloft where Steinbarger liyes.

He is a graduate of the preparatory department of Wittenberg college, and was a faculty member of the art school here when it flourished in the late 80's.

Now a Squatter

Friends bring food to him in the terrible cold of winter; his little field supplies him with fresh vegetables in summer.

Formerly of a family that owned the fattest valley lands in this section, Steinbarger is now nothing but a squatter on the land of an indulgent farmer.

He keeps his faith in mankind and God, has regained his health, preaches out-of-door life for all seasons. He declares that seclusion from city life and contact with the multitude means nearness to nature for him.

He welcomes all visitors to Campaloff and entertains them with his own sprightly comments on politics, religion, education and farming. He's a nephew of Dr. Isaac Funk, founder of the Literary Digest and the Funk & Wagnall's dictionary.

Whitman as a Prophet

FORMER Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York is one of the brilliant lawyers and astute Republican politicians of the east. This is what he said in the city of Houston, "Democratic chances in the next election look mighty slim to me."

Is Whitman a prophet? He said that young Theodore Roosevelt would overwhelm Al Smith at the polls and retire Smith to private life. Smith buried Roosevelt at the polls.

Two years sped by. Then Whitman said Ogden Mills would overwhelm Smith at the polls. Mills was sent to the slaughter house.

Whitman said that Charles S. Whitman would overwhelm Joab Banton, a former Texan, in the race for district attorney of New York. Joab defeated Whitman by 125,000 majority.

Before Banton had won his big victory, Whitman had said that no living Democrat could defeat James W. Wadsworth for re-election to the United States senate. On election day Judge Robert S. Wagner, Democrat, sent Wadsworth back to his palatial estate in the Genose river valley.

These were minor prophecies on the part of Whitman. They failed. Perhaps the former governor of New York is of the opinion that Calvin Coolidge will be renominated and re-elected. He may be right, but there is no "sure thing" in American politics.

Sheffield On the Shelf

AMBASSADOR James P. Sheffield tendered his resignation to President Coolidge, and it was promptly accepted. The Mexican post will remain for the time being in the hands of H. F. Arthur Schoonfeld, understudy of the late ambassador.

President Calles made life miserable for Sheffield. This American ambassador was between the devil and the deep sea. Americans have an investment of $1,300,000,000 in Mexico and something like $400,000,000 of the sum total represents oil and land investments.

Calles has a program. It is confiscatory to the last degree. Sheffield would not stand for it. He does not believe in a policy of confiscation at home or abroad.

Now Obregon may be the successor of Calles and the man who succeeds the late ambassador will have another tough job cut out for him. Obregon is a politician. He believes in Mexico for the Mexicans. He has small time for Americans. He is said to have a stock of common sense and he may take the back track.

So This Is Texas

PLACE Roger O'Mallia on the top of the world. He has broken all records. He went without sleep 150 hours and found the last two hours the hardest for him to keep awake. Roger panted for fame. He panted for a place on the front page. He read of Col. Lindberg going without sleep while hopping across the Atlantic. Then he decided to let the world know what an O'Mallia could do in the non-sleep line. "What fools these mortals be." Now Roger has thrust his mug into the public picture gallery. And his ambition has been gratified. Next.

Speaking of the Busses

DESPITE motor bus competition the Texas rail lines took in $11,386,661 pasenger revenues during the first four months of 1927, an increase of $110,965 over last year's corresponding period. Gains were showed in all classes of revenues, the largest being freight, which yielded $69,223,720 or more than $11,000,000 increase over 1926. Business is not on the blink in Texas. Prosperity is more than holding its own. Bumper crops are coming.

Good News for the Hog Raisers

ACCORDING to a bulletin issued by the federal department of agriculture a larger than usual advance in prices of well finished medium and light weight hogs during August and September is indicated by present conditions in the hog situation. Hog marketings according to the makers of the bulletin, during the remainder of 1927, will be influenced to a considerable extent by the development in the corn belt situation in the corn belt states.

Moreover the bureau of agricultural economics cautions producers to remember that the corn crop next year will very probably be larger than this year's crop, and that a production of hogs for the country as a whole about equal to that of the past three years, seems to promise the best returns to the producers of both corn and hogs.

Wherever well filled cribs and smokehouses are found on a farm, the owner of the farm finds it easy to keep the wolf from the door. He is a wise man. He has arranged to live at home.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, July 16. (EFS.)—Princess Alexandria Kroptokin, who is in Newk York writing articles for magazines and Sunday supplements, professes to be amazed at the lack of thought which American women give to their clothing. Not lack of thought, perhaps, for they certainly devote hours to selecting suitable garments, but lack of ingenuity, lack of taste, accordng to her. It is of the greatest importance, says the princess, to see that the other garments harmonize with the dress.

A woman should, she says, avoid wearing an ensemble of the same shade, but she should either have them all of the same basic color of not more than two colors which are supplementary to each other. And at the Park Lane, where she was having luncheon, her own personal effects seemed to prove her contention. Her garments were subtly matched as to make a striking effect as a whole.

The other day I went into the bookshop of the Brevoort and asked for Ruth Suckow's "Iowa Interiors." The salesman brought out the volume saying its price was $2.50. I counted out the amount and was about to pay him, when he exclaimed: "Oh, wait a minute," and scampered off to return immediately with a dog-eared volume of the same work. This, he explained, was a slightly used book and could be had for $1. As it was in fairly good condition, I took it. Just why this man should go to this trouble to sell me something less than half as expensive as what I originally wanted to buy, I am at a loss to understand.

Evidently people were bent on being kind to me that day, for that same night I had a blowout, while along the Boston Post road in Mamaroneck. Having no spare tire, I stopped at a repair station to have it fixed. I was in a hurry, and couldn't afford to waste the time ordinarily needed to repair the inner tube, so, as I was going to buy a new inner tube soon anyway, to put in the tire I would be forced to buy, I asked the mechanic not to bother with repairing the old tube, but to sell me a new one. I explained that I was in a hurry, that I would use the old one later. But was he pleased at the idea of selling me a new inner tube?

Not he! Saying that it would take but a minute to fix the old tube, he put three patches on it in a remarkably short space of time, assembled the tire and put it on the car. For his pains he charged 75 cents, whereas he could have had five times that much.

One of the meanest, and at the same time the most inexplicable men in New York is the guard who stands at one of the gates in Grand Central station. He is a monstrous fellow with a face that one instinctively recognizes as belonging to a low sort of person. He absolutely refuses to let anyone go through to the departing train without a ticket. Naturally this is a common enough custom—the going through without a ticket—I mean, husbands, bidding their wives goodbye, sweethearts seeing their young men off on a trip and so on.

But this guard will permit nothing of the sort. According to him, there is a rule of the company against the practice. So he flatly refuses to pass anyone through. He will, however, remark that his partner who stands to the left of him will pass you through. And sure enough. This latter will. Just what this sort of system is for I am unable to understand. But it is worked habitually. There is a steady stream of non-passengers through the one gate; the other remains closed to all but ticket holders.

On the subway the other day an amusing little incident was enacted by a small girl-child and a couple of rabbis. These gentlemen are often seen in the subway, and usually excite some comment among the other passengers. They wear long beards.

One of the pair wore a large-size child's black straw hat. It had a ribbon on it with a small tail at the rear of the wide brim. The expresion of the wearer was never anything but sad. Both of them, whenever they looked at each other, appeared about to start crying.

The child was sitting across the aisle on her mother's lap. She giggled greatly at the gentlemen of the long beards; finally got an inspiration.

She wiggled her fingers outward from her chin to indicate an hirsue adornment then cried "beaver!" The passengers were convulsed at this nifty. But the Hebrew pair never changed their doleful expression.

The House Boat -:- By Montague

It was really a pleasure to hear what the tow boat captain nd the helmsman of the barges said a s they swung off on their way.

We are not living in a house boat any more. It was, as we expected when he hired it " cradled on the blue waters," and convenient to the sloop we had bought in order to teach the children to sail. It was entirely surrounded by gently murmuring wavelets, which are supposed to be conductive slumber. The view from its deck on clear days was extremely attractive. But there are disadvantages about a houseboat. This particular one had practically all of them. So ,after a week's trial we restored the craft to its owner. He demanded the whole season's rent, and got it. If he had been an expert in psychology he could have got a premium out of us for taking it off our hands. But he was kindly and easy going man, so he didn't do as well financially as he might have done.

We had looked forward to living on the house boat through the winter. It seemed such a delightful way to spend the heated term, sitting up on a canopied deck looking out over the water, and now and then taking a plunge and a swim. The families we saw gathered about the table at meal time looked so happy and contented. And then there was the thought of the song of the waves lulling one to sweet slumber at night. The more we thought of it through the winter the more enthusiastic we became, and the more eager to engage the first attractive looking house boat which we found in the spring.

Our boat was attractive. She was shiny with paint and gay with bright canopies. She had a little boat suspended to davits on her side and a whole locker full of flags to hang out on festal occasions. It seemed quite unnecessary to make any inquiries about her conditoin. A man who would pay so much money for paint and varnish certainly could not neglect the rest of the craft.

So we took her, and moved in, after purchasing appropriate furniture. Our first unpleasant discovery came when two of the children who had been dangling their legs over the deck were swept overboard by the wash from a passing steamboat. They made a commotion about it, and it was little trouble to rescue them by twisting a boat hook under their collars. But they were so charmed with their experience that after that they began falling in intentionally and we had to put linyards on them to make sure they could keep above water till we heard their calls for assistance and came to pull them out.

The next difficulty was with the mosquitoes. The boat was screened, and we supposed that this would keep them out. It probably did not protect us against outside mosquitoes, but down somewhere below decks was a mosquito hatchery which communicated with the inside of the boat through chinks in the floor. Just as twilight the young and hungry mosquitoes would rise through these chinks in swarms. The only way to baffle them was to light smudges which drove us out on the roof, and kept our eyes smarting long after their embers died. We held many family counsels and sought the advice of many mosquito experts about ways and means to get rid of those miscreants, but as the only effective method appeared to be burning down the house boat we gave it up and let them bite.

It was about the third evening, at approximately seven bells that the ground tackle parted. We did not notice it at the time, for it parted gently, having probably rusted away. We were considerably surprised when we looked out of the window in the morning to notice that we were in the midst of totally strange scenes. We were still more astonished when he heard the noise of a steamboat whistle which seemed to be in a terrible temper directly behind us. Looking out we discovered that we were in the path of a towboat behind which were some seven or eight barges. The tow boat had stopped, but the barges, not being equipped with brakes were forging steadily along toward us at the rate of about three miles an hour. Three miles an hour is not a fast pace, but a barge loaded with gravel when it hits an object while travelling at that speed doesn't do the object any particular good.

The tow boat seemed to think that we had power, and could get out of the barges way. But he was wrong. All we could do was hope. We managed to hope so hard that only one of the barges hit us, and beside carrying away the entire front porch, together with a hammock and four chairs, it did no great damage.

It was really a pleasure to hear what the tow boat captain and the helmsman of the barges said as they swung off on their way. No one who has made a study of the possibilities of human speech it was a revelation. But the tow boat had by this time resumed its control of the procession, and the treat was soon over.

After signalling to shore for some time we managed to secure a small harbor motor to tow us back to where we came from. He charged us $10 a mile, and the trip was eight miles long. We declined to pay the $10 on the ground that it was a little exhorbitant. Happy, the boatman, was a royal good fellow, who knew how to sympathize with fellow boatmen in distress. He reduced the charge to nine and a half dollars a mile.

We got new and dependable ground tackle when we got ashore and resumed the old carefree life. But the third night after our little jaunt we noticed that the waves which had formerly been murmuring outside were now murmuring all over the lower deck. This meant of course that the craft had sprung a leak, and all hands manned the pumps. The pumps were slow to respond, and when they did respond they were just able to keep the boat at the water level. The slightest relaxation of our efforts would drop us an inch or two. When we redoubled them by effort beyond our power to sustain more than a minute we would get her up an inch or two.

We threw every thing we could think of overboard in order to lighten ship, and sent the children ashore in the small boat. But it was no use. Gradually the water crept around us till the only thing to do was to swim for it.

There are people, I know, who really enjoy houseboating and there are houseboats which are thoroughly enjoyable. But we are not that kind of people and we didn't have that kind of a houseboat.

WIFE EVADES KIDNAPPERS.

Efforts are being made in India to stop the abduction of Hindu wives by Mohammedans in the religious war between the two sects. Recently the nineteen-year-old wife of Nabib Chanra Nath of Kalikatala, Bombay, thwarted an attempt to kidnap her while her husband was away from home. While she and her two children were staying with her mother-in-law, she was told by Rasanali Joardas, described as a "good natured Mohammedan," of a plot to steal her and marry her to a Mohammedan. The woman hid in a neighbor's home, just before the Mohammedans raided her home. They set fire to a hay stack as revenge, then followed her to her hiding place, but she escaped and secreted herself in the home of a leading citizen of the village, who routed the pursuers and kept guard over her until her husband returned.

NOSE POWDER BARRED

Powdering of noses has been barred by many factories in Europe where large numbers of girls are employed. The move is to reduce waste of time. In one factory it was noticed that one stenographer, otherwise very efficient, stopped working 15 times in one hour to powder and beautify her nose. The average girl, it has been calculated, powders her nose four times an hour, taking two minutes for each operation. When several hundred girls are employed on a special task, the loss of time is very costly, say experts. Some employes balk at the efficiency idea, saying the experts forget feminine psychology, and that when it comes to getting out work, a woman with a well-powdered nose is worth two that are overheated and have shiny noses.

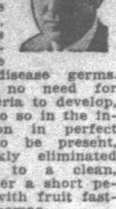

PORRIDGE 730 TIMES A YEAR.

Protesting against too liberal allowances of porridge and sleep, 174 male inmates of the poorhouse near Govan, Ireland struck and walked in a procession five miles to the Govan council chamber to air their grievances. The men carried banners, one of which bore the words, "Inmates of Govan Poorhouse get porridge 730 times a year." One speaker told the council that he had been inside Barlinnie prison, not for a criminal offense, and found that the food there was far superior to that in the poorhouse. The inmates had to be in bed in summer time at 8 o'clock, while prisoners had till 9. Conditions in the poorhouse were worse than those meted out to murderers and other criminals in prison, he declared. The council agreed to appoint a special committee to inquire into the allegations.

INTESTINAL PARASITES.

Our intestines always harbor a multitude of parasitic organisms, such as lactic acid bacteria, and those which produce normal fermentation. These are vegetable growths and are essentially necessary for the changes which must take place in both the small and large intestines.

Besides these helpful bacteria, many other types generate in unhealthy feces. These are classified under disease germs. There is positively no need for these harmful bacteria to develop, and they can not do so in the intestines of a person in perfect health. If found to be present, they can be quickly eliminated through changing to a clean, wholesome diet, after a short period of treatment with fruit fasting and frequent enemas.

Bad mixtures of food are mostly responsible for producing the soil in which these harmful microorganisms develop. Much of the food material from an improperly combined meal will pass into the intestines without being thoroughly digested and assimilated. This kind of feces, containing only partially digested food particles, furnishes the most nutritious soil for the development of bacteria.

There is another entirely different class of intestinal parasites, which is called the animal endoparasite. This class includes the beef worm, bladder worm, which develops into the tape worm, pin and thread worms, and many other worms of different sizes and shapes.

Most of these worms get into the body directly through food contains the eggs from which the worms develop. The bladder worm first grows into the tissue of some animal, and if the meat is not thoroughly cooked before it is eaten for food, these worms attach themselves to the lining of the membranes of the intestines and develop into tape worms.

These worms grow a head, neck, and various oblong joints or segments. Each of these segments is able to produce its own eggs, so many tape worms may develop from one single strobilus or adult tape worm.

The heads of these worms take their nutriment from food, and consequently this is taken away from the patient harboring them. The patient often becomes thin and anemic, with an almost ungovernable appetite.

These worms will often let go if the patient will take a long water fast of from two to three weeks. If the worms can not be detached by this starving process, the patient should take one of the numerous tape worm remedies, which he can secure from his druggist. These remedies will make the tape worm let go and the whole worm will pass out with the next movement of the bowels.

Pin worms with children can be removed within a few days by giving the child two daily enemas until the worms are entirely washed away.

Questions and Answers.

QUESTION: Young mother writes: "Why do you recommend the use of raw milk instead of the pasteurized? I had always thought the pasteurized milk best to use because they claim this process kills the germs. Besides, it is almost impossible to get raw milk in this locality."

ANSWER: I consider good certified milk to be the best for all purposes except in localities where the laws are not strict and inspection rigidly enforced. Pasteurization does very little harm to the food value of milk, and many authorities claim that the epidemics from contaminated milk have been entirely stamped out wherever the law compels the pasteurization of milk.

QUESTION: Z. Y. X. writes: "I feel very nervous and depressed, also always have a red nose. What do you suggest?"

ANSWER: Overcome constipation and intestinal poisoning as this is no doubt what makes you nervous and also causes the red nose. Take an enema each day until you learn enough about diet to correct your trouble.

QUESTION: M. J. writes: "Please tell me what causes the arms to go to sleep and get numb at night. Is this because of high blood pressure?"

ANSWER: If you know you have high blood pressure you have doubtless answered your own question, as this does cause the arms to become numb. Valvular leakage of the heart is also sometimes responsible for poor circulation and numbness in the arms.

On Being Too Careful

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

THEY told me the other day that a big, full-blooded friend of ours had broken down at the age of forty-three and was in a sanitarium.

* * *

This is not a remarkable bit of news unless you know the circumstances.

* * *

The big fellow was one of the famous oarsmen of his time on the crew of an Eastern university. His father's income was sufficient so that our friend has never worked. He has been a traveler, a fisherman, a big-game hunter. His first and almost his only real concern has been to take care of his physical well being.

* * *

And he goes to smash at forty-three.

* * *

The father, on the contrary, works every day as the president of an important business in a highly competitive field. He is still hitting on all six cylinders at the youthful age of eighty-one.

* * *

There is something to think about.

Lord Leverhulme, the great English manufacturer, in a recent letter to a friend, quoted this story of Gladstone:

* * *

"During the early coaching days, Gladstone used to inquire from the coaches that went out of London through Barnet and St. Albans, whether it was not hard on the horses, and whether the alternative road, which goes through Slough and is fairly level, was not better.

* * *

"And he was surprised to find that the horses on the Highgate road lasted half again as long as the horses on the level Slough road. From which he drew the inference that it was variety and change, collar-work at one point and no collar-work at another, that was best for the health of a horse, and in his experience, best for the health of a man."

* * *

Gladstone himself was that sort of worker. He knew not how to take relaxation and exercise, but he made no effort to spare himself when it came to work. He carried a tremendous load all his life and was sufficiently youthful in old age so that he took up the study of a new language a year or two before the end.

* * *

I have no quarrel with the folks who "look after themselves," as the saying goes, who are always cautious not to overwork or be overtired. They doubtless live quite comfortably, but I think they deceive themselves if they imagine that they are going to outlive those who work hard and long.

* * *

The man who throws his whole self into his job seems somehow to draw new strength and energy from its uphill and downdale exactions.

* * *

The Fable of The Knowing Pal Who Tipped Off Her Star Recipe

"I Am Simply Present to Feed Him his Cue and Demand Encores."

In a shaby street there dwelt two Flappers who had their Traps set and baited.

"Come on, Boys!" is what it said over the Door. They were at the Age when they lived on Nut Sundaes and Thrills. All respectable Males who could talk back and who kept their Hair combed were more than welcome.

One of the Girls was a grand little Piece of Work and she had a slew of uppety-up accomplishments but for some reason her Turnstile did not check as many Visitors as that of her Chum across the Way. The other Girl might not have copped off many Prizes at a Beauty Contest and it had been remarked that her Piano-Playing was Punkadora and yet she caught a majority of the Fussers.

One Day as the two Friends were chatting, the one who had the Looks let out a Bleat.

"Why it is," she asked, "that you continue to stand Ace High with a lot of the Lads who seem to have passed me up? I know I am counted more of a Beaut than you; my Musical Education cost twice as much and I have got you sewed up in a Sack when it comes to Correct English, yet you draw the Bunch. Where do I Stub my Toe?"

"Dearie, I hate to let any one else in on a Snap, but I suppose I must," replied her Companion. "I will admit that as a Grammarian you are a Peachamaroot, but do you ever stop to consider the Topics that you spring on your Young Men? You sit in front of them and you tell them what a Bother it is to Shop all Afternoon and what Girls you saw down town and whata Time your Mamma has been having about a Second Girl and how Grace said something that just made the other Girls shriek.

"For a whole Evening you Trombone about your own Affairs. Of course, Common Politeness requires the Gentlemen to throw on the Fixed Smile and pretend to Follow you, but he is Bored to Extinction and then Some.

"He doesn't care much for what she said and then what you said to her. You never can win a Home by sitting around and talking about yourself and the other Maudes, Myrtles and Maries."

"And how do you put it across?" asked the other.

"Oh, I suppose I don't know a Thing about the Male Sex, do I?" asked the Popular One with a Squint. "From the Minute that any Charley-Boy shows up at my Work-Shop, I talk about Him and naught else. I make him tell me about his Clothes, and how he has his room fixed up. I repeat all that I ever heard any of the Girls say about him. If I can't recall a good Philopene, I Fake one. Anything to keep him Warmed Up.

"I throw the Limelight on him all Evening. He has the Center of the stage and makes all the Hits and gets all the Gardenias. I am simply present to feed him his cues and demand Encores. Sometimes it is hard work to Boost all Evening but I seldom fail to land him.

"When he gets up to go at 11 o'clock, he is swelled all out of Shape. Naturally, he thinks I am just about the Main Lady of the whole Works and he is back to see me again next Evening."

"But we are not Orientals," said the Good Looker, proudly. "If theere is to be any Flattering or Incense-Burning let the Men do it. I do not believe that Modern Women should put Man on a Pedestal."

"Some day I will single out one and take a Strangle Hold on him," said her Friend in a confidential Whisper. "And when I do, he won't stay up on any Pedestal more than Twenty Minutes. You get me?"

"I begin to see the Light," said the other, thoughtfully. "Watch me apply the Ointment."

Moral: It is better to hold back a few Kinds of Conversation for those long Evenings at Home.

RUMOR LINKS NORMA TALMADGE'S NAME WITH DIVORCE COURT

BUT SHE'S YET DENYING ALL

Papa Schenk's Mighty Fine Hubby, She Says

By LOUELLA O. PARSON
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, July 16.—"Trelawney of the Wells," known by everyone who attends the theater as one of Arthur Wing Pinero's most delightfully whimsical plays, is to be filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company. "Trelawney of the Wells" is of particular interest to the people throughout the country for it was while appearing on the stage in this play, that John Drew was stricken and died in San Francisco.

Possibly you may think "Trelawney of the Wells," from this is a man's play. You are wrong—there are seven important characters. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, however, will concentrate on the woman's role. Norma Shearer, you see, is to be given this as her next starring vehicle.

Irving Thalberg, in making public this literary acquisition, further states that Sidney Franklin will direct Miss Shearer. Mr. Franklin has just finished "Quality Street" with Marion Davies, and he is a director who knows sets and costumes. "Quality Street" is, of course, laid in the empire period while "Trelawney of the Wells" is in a mid-Victorian drama.

Waltz To Be Filmed

"The Blue Danube," the waltz of so many romances in fiction and on the stage, is to have its chance in the movies. A scenario has been written around this famous waltz, which has been set apart by Cecil DeMille as a DeMille special. Paul Sloane, who recently signed a new contract, is writing the scenario and getting ready to direct it.

The story, by John Farrell, deals with conditions in Austria before and after the war. Let's hope there isn't too much war. We wouldn't like to think of the peaceful "Blue Danube" getting involved with cannons and trenches. Leatrice Joy is mentioned as the heroine in "The Blue Danube."

Constance to Europe

August first will see Constance Talmadge aboard the Olympic sailing for Europe to join her sister, Norma Talmadge, in Paris.

Connie's vacation will last for two months or longer. The rumor that Norma established a residence in Paris to get a divorce from her Husband, John Schenck, still prevails. Mr. Schenck answers all inquiries in the same way that Norman answers those who questioned her before she sailed abroad. "If Norma can find a better husband than I am," said Mr. Schenck, "I won't stand in her way." Norma said: "If I can find as good a husband as I've got, I'll think about a divorce later." That doesn't sound like divorce, does it? Anyway, Mr. Schenck would also have to establish a residence in Paris to make such a thing possible. Connie has not been abroad since she went with Capt. Alastair McIntosh, on her honeymoon.

San Antonio Profits Thru Water Works

SAN ANTONIO, July 16. (AP)—Municipal ownership seems to be paying as far as the San Antonio water works are concerned a report recently prepared on operations for the last year show. The report indicates that the city made many improvements in service, more customers and cut the rates materially and at the same time earned profit of $107,332.64, an increase of more than 300 per cent over the earnings for the previous year, which was the first year of municipal ownership. The increase was ascribed to increased operating efficiency.

Texas Woman, Ninety, Tells of Abe Lincoln

SAN ANTONIO, July 16. (AP)—Mrs. Pricilla Didlake of this city, celebrated her ninetieth birthday recently by telling numerous anecdotes of Ambraham Lincoln, whom she knew before the war in Bloomington, Ill. Mrs. Didlake, a southern sympathizer during the war suffered much from her northern neighbors, but had only good words to say for Lincoln. The expression of kindness and sadness on his face, even as a young lawyer, she said was his most outstanding characteristic. She can remember how Lincoln and Douglas frequently sat up most of the night talking with the district judge before the two lawyers became political enemies.

Bank Figures Climb Through New Branch

SAN ANTONIO, July 16. (AP)—Immediate results of the opening of a branch of the Dallas Federal Reserve bank here recently incently included an increase of $400,000 in San Antonio bank clearing on the first day. According to Miers Crump, managing director of the bank the new institution will greatly facilitate the financing of agricutural operations in this district.

The presence of the bank has made necessary a revision of the rules of the San Antonio Clearing House association and according to bankers will greatly simplify clearing operations.

ADD PERILS OF PARKING.

VALPARAISO, Ind. — W. W. Huntington, a piano tuner living near the heart of the business district, has solved his personal parking problem.

For a long time he couldn't park his car within two blocks of his home. Other motorists always contrived to be there first it seemed.

Several journeys to court in an effort to keep a little space clear, at least in front of his driveway, availed him nothing.

Today the curb space in front of his home is strangely clear. And the reason—Huntington, sitting peacefully smoking on his front porch, carelessly balances a loaded rifle on his knees.

WELL, FISH MAKES BRAINS.

OSTEND, Belgium.—Fish-eating ability of Americans attending the International Rotary conference here has caused a fish famine. Normally the Ostend fishing fleet can satisfy its fish-eating visitors, but supplies have been far from sufficient on this occasion.

"Tender Hour" at Majestic Has Fast Moving Theme

"The Tender Hour" opened at the Majestic last night to a delighted capacity house, and after seeing it this reviewer can say without reservation that First National has turned out a picture which contains all of the ingredients which have gained for George Fitzmaurice the reputation of being an ace among directors.

Beautiful Billie Dove and the ever-popular Ben Lyon have fairly surpassed themselves in the leading roles. Splendid performances were given all the way down the line in the cast, notably in the case of Montagu Love and Alec B. Francis, who have important parts.

The theme of the wealthy American father marrying off his daughter for the sake of a foreign title is widely deviated from in Carey Wilson's original story, upon which "The Tender Hour" is based.

It is for the title and more money that Billie Dove, as Marcia Kane, is married off to Grand Duke Sergei, played by Montague Love. Then Ben Lyon, as Wally McKenzie, the youthful lover, who, through the duplicity of the father, is believed by Marcia to have died, appears in her bridal suite immediately after the ceremony.

Despite the suggestion of gentleness in the title, the story is one that teems with drama, with suspense and even with thrills, and the tender hour of love which finally comes to beleagured souls after storm and stress compensates for the tense emotion evoked during the course of the drama.

George Fitzmaurice is essentially an artist, having at one time been a portrait painter. "The Tender Hour" gives ample evidence of his masterly knowledge of detail, composition, grouping, lighting, et cetera.

In this new picture he had tremendous—almost elemental—incidents upon which to develop the fine production that has resulted. Love in its grosser as well as in its most beautiful forms: drama which comes close to the border of melodrama; some humor to relieve the strain of continuous suspense and scenes which are brilliant with pagenatry; Likewise he was afforded possibilities for excellent character depiction.

It is a picture that, once seen, will never be forgotten.

STARS CARRY PLAYS ACROSS

Comedies With Actors Of Ability Win Cash

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Speaking of writing plays—and every one who isn't writing certainly is talking about writing them — the comedies possess a definite claim to successful distinction this season. The high-pressure dramas—the shows with a wallop—win in more spectacular fashion, to be sure, but the comedies with class get there, too, albeit less glamorously.

Surveying the hits of the year—and they may be surveyed without summoning a civil engineer or even subjecting the naked eye to strain—the comedies are clicking sweetly.

Melodramatic smashes, like "the Spider," and "Broadway," are accompanied by cheering in the streets as when a heavyweight comes to town on battle bent.

Lightweights of Stage.

The comedies are the lightweights of the stage, but lightweights may wax wealthy in their quiet, courteous fashion and outlast the big fellows. James J. Jeffries was playing small-time vaudeville when last observed, while Bennie Leonard retired from the stage with enough to take care of himself and mother, too.

That finely spun figment of imagination called "The Play's the Thing" has been drawing crowds like a murder trial for seven months. All there is to it is conversation, and much of the conversation is nonsense—but such nonsense! Maybe, it is as meaningless as a juggler keeping six silver balls balanced on a jet of water; but there is cleverness in the technique and the spheres sparkle and Holbrook Blinn is demonstrating that he is more than a "bad man"—and what would you? Anyway, the toll it has taken approximates $250,000, and neither the play nor its audiences are exhausted yet.

Barrymore Star.

In similar style, Ethel Barrymore has attracted quite as much attention in "The Constant Wife," another comedy of conversation, erected on a high plane in a rarified intellectual atmosphere. Utterly illogical many find the plot of this to be, but those who thrill to it are seeking entertainment, not logic. In truth, they want to get away from the realm of reason, and they seem to find "The Constant Wife" not only a novelty, but an oasis. Miss Barrymore has not found so pleasant nor so permanent a setting for her art in, lo these many seasons.

Jeanne Eagels slipped out of the "rain" after four years of that stormy melodrama to reveal herself as a comedienne of a higher order in "Her Cardboard Lover," another Frohman production. Critics did not toss their toppers above the horizon on this somewhat denatured adaptation from the French, but even so the townsfolk rose to it in numbers. It well may be that the desire was to see what raw-tongued Adie Thompson would do with a theme so distantly different, but whatever the impetus, they came and paid to come and are still coming and paying. So what boots it?

Jane Cowl—Flapper.

Jane Cowl, who made herself immortal in "Juliet," is repeating gaily as a flapper, modishly mature in "The Road to Rome," and this, too, is a drama that makes the serious minded grow light headed. Frivolous at times to the verge of folly, at other times heavy with pacificist propaganda, the situation seems to call for an operation immediately. It did so seem at the premiere, but after glancing over the box office report the producers wisely decided to defer operating and the patient is progressing famously financially.

"The Play's the Thing," as Shakespeare said and Molnar repeated, but each of these four plays possesses a star of first magnitude. The Misses Barrymore, Eagles and Cowl and Mr. Blinn may be pardoned if they shake their heads and murmur:

"The star's the thing!"

So, aspiring dramatist, if it's a comedy, hitch it to a star for safety's sake.

Young Prima Donna

To Myrtle Schaaf of Buffalo, belongs the distinction of being the youngest prima donna in grand opera. At the age of 18 years she has played leading roles for the St. Louis Municipal Opera company and now she has been accepted by the world famous Metropolitan organization.

HOBOES RIDE IN MOTOR CAR

"Side-Door Pullmans" No Longer Popular

By Universal Service.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 16.—The red gods of adventure sound their call now through the rattle of a flivver rather than through the rumble of a freight car. And, as a result, the railroad hobo has been added to the list of vanishing Americans according to W. F. Kirk, superintendent of western lines for the Missouri Pacific railroad.

"A few years ago I counted as many as 112 hoboes on one train," said Mr. Kirk. "But today it is a rare thing to find more than one or two stealin ga trip south in the winter or northbound in the hot days. Many a long train of freight cars winds through the southwest without carrying a single hobo."

Two deserted cities stand as memorials to the passing hobo. They are the Roost near Falls City, Neb., and Red Man's Park near Van Buren, Ark.

"A few years ago the Roost and Red Man's park—so called because only Reds were permitted to light there—were gay cities in the hobo world," says Mr. Kirk. "It was a bad night when fewer than 100 bums were not congregated at one of these famous western haunts. Here they planned their winter and summer vacations and fought out the economic battles of the country. Now these places are as deserted as boom towns of the western plains."

Mr. Kirk believes the general railroad offensive against hoboes has been one of the chief factors in their disappearance. Often more than 100 would be rounded from a train, he says.

Driven from the railroads the knights of the road turned to the motor car. Now they follow the highways rather than the ties, begging the rides they once stole. A large number of them travel in their own cars—dilapidated vehicles which they have purchased for a few dollars. Often a group of motor car hoboes will have a car in common. Parties of gasoline hoboes are common sights now in most of the tourist camps of the west.

TALMAGE STAR AT OLYMPIC

"Venus of Venice" Is Comedy-Drama

If you were an impulsive little madcap, fallen under the domination of a wily crook and driven into a life of thievery along the canals of Venice—and you wriggled from the grasp of the police into the protecting arms of a handsome American artist—and he took you into his home "to give you a decent chance"—and his fiancee arrived unexpectedly and found you together—what would you do?

This is just one of the difficult situations in which Constance Talmade finds herself in "Venus of Venice," her latest comedy drama, which is the current attraction at the Olympic theater, and which will continue showing through Wednesday.

Produced by Joseph M. Schenck for First National release in the lavish manner that has come to be an accepted characteristic of Constance Talmadge pictures, "Venus of Venice," is hailed by critics as being well on the way to an even greater success than "The Duchess of Buffalo" and "Her Sister From Paris."

The story is one of a charming little madcap who, dominated by a crook, pursues a course of thievery among the canal gondolas with reckless abandon, her escapades plunging her into the companionship of an American artist, with unforseen consequences of a most exciting nature.

Appearing opposite Miss Talmadge, in the role of the romantic American artist, is Antonio Moreno. And Marshall Neilan's direction of the picture further establishes him as a master in the screening of stories of the "Constancesque" type.

COYOTE FOR CAL

Wolf Puppy to Be Put In White House Menagerie

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 16. (AP)—A baby coyote is destined to be the next addition to the summer White House menagerie and Mrs. Coolidge, who saw the pet today is anxiously wondering just what the result will be.

Informed by a neighbor, Mrs. Ray Sanders, that the three-months' old coyote would be tendered her, Mrs. Coolidge expressed some astonishment. Her feelings were relieved, howevr, when Mrs. Sanders picked the animal up in her arms and showed it to Mrs. Coolidge.

"Why, it's tame enough now, isn't it?" Mrs Coolidge asked.

"Yes, but I want to wash it up first," Mrs. Sanders replied and Mrs. Coolidge hastened to tell Rebecca, pet raccoon, and the two White House dogs to be on their toes when the coyote arrives.

Australian Industries In Move For Tax Slash

By Universal Service.

SYDNEY, July 16.—All sections of industrial, commercial and financial Australia are combining in a campaign for tax reductions. Representations will be made to Mr. Bruce, when he attends the adjourned premiers' conference here July 21, pointing out the imperative necessity of a lightining of the burden of the levies.

Several branches of industry are said to be facing financial embassassment as a result of too-heavy taxes. Traders in the meat export industry assert that a crisis is impending. Several works have closed and a number of exporters have gone out of business with losses amounting to more than $15,000,000.

NEW GAS FOR PLANES' USE

Fuel For Air Hops Made Of Lighter Weight

TULSA, Okla., July 16. (AP)—Within three days two manufacturers of gasoline have announced the development of a special aviation gasoline which they claim is much lighter in weight than ordinary gasoline and capable of producing more mileage per gallon.

It has a greater weight lifting capacity through increased number of revolutions of the propeller per minutes, the producers say.

Research work started in the laboratories of the oil companies here coincident with the first announcement of preparations for a trans-Atlantic flight. Today the Skelly Oil company announced that a final test yesterday showed that its new gasolie was perfected. A test flight was made to Eldorado, Kan., and back, a disance of 260 miles. The pilot and a passenger were in the plane and the trip each way was made in an hour and 45 minutes.

Eighteen gallons of the new gasoline were used, which means slightly more than 14 miles came from each gallon.

The Chestnut and Smith corporation announced several days ago that it, too, had perfected a new gasoline that had been submitted to a similar test and had been found entirely practical.

Pilots in the national air reliability tour tested this gasoline in their flight from Tulsa to Omaha last Sunday and approved it.

The two gasolines are said to be made entirely of gas vapor which comes from nearly every oil well. This vapor carries with it extremely light hydrocarbons.

Emby Kay, superintendent of natural gasoline production for the Skelly Oil company, explained the feature of the new gasoline today.

"It weighs but five pounds to the gallon, while ordinary gasoline weigh 6.6 pounds," he said. "This is an important factor for long distance flying. Volume doesn't matter so much, for there are many places aboard a plane for gasoline storage if the weight can be discounted.

"The new gasoline has a low end point. It burns smoothly at high altitudes. One of aviation's problems has been to overcome the decreasing number of propeller revolutions when the plane is flying at a great height.

"The new type of gasoline does this, actually increasing the number of revolutions under these conditions.

"By increasing the number of revolutions the speed of the plane and its weight-lifting capacity is increased, of course."

Both oil companies are working to perfect this new type of gasoline for automobile motors, it was announced. In the past, natural gasoline has been considered too light for ordinary use, but excellent for blending.

ALL FOR A PRINCIPAL.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Entering the third year of his "alimony martyrdom," Sam W. Reid, wealthy Glenn County rancher, denied he was enjoying his long, self-imposed imprisonment for refusal to pay alimony to his divorced wife. "I have spent two years in jail on behalf of a principle," Reid muttered through the bars. "I am willing to pay $50 a month for the upkeep of my daughter, but I'll not pay one cent to support my former wife and her husband if I have to stay in jail the rest of my life."

Corncobs produced in this country this year will weigh about 20,000,000 tons.

Dodge Brothers Introduce Fast Four-Cylinder Car

Several pages have turned recently in the history of Dodge Brothers, but what appears to be by all odds the most important, is being revealed today.

The company is bringing out what it claims is the fastest line of four cylinder cars in America, entirely new in every way. Prices range so far below those at which Dodge Brothers cars have always sold that the success of the new line seems assured from the start.

Dodge Brothers have been a major factor in the industry since their first car was built in 1914. The car became so popular that within an unthinkably short time the company's sales mounted to third in the industry. Less than six weeks ago Dodge Brothers brought out their remarkable new line of sixes and within a month had it established on a production basis equal to that of many large companies which have been making sixes for years.

But today's is probably the most remarkable announcement Dodge Brothers ever made—the fastest fours in America—priced to sell in tremendous volume.

Coming from Dodge Brothers this announcement is particularly significant. Dodge Brothers' reputation has been built around the dependability and rugged construction of its cars. Speed has never been a factor in their sale. Nor will it be made the paramount issue in marketing the new cars, it is said, although it is obviously a feature upon which the public will focus much attention.

Built with the distinctive beauty and completeness of appointment that characterizes custom-built cars, the new line is of the type that should sell readily on appearance as well as performance. The fact that the cars are capable of going 25 miles on a gallon of gasoline, at average touring speed, should also add greatly to their popularity.

HIGH QUALITY HUPP DEMAND

Sales Reveal Success of Raising Standards

The success of the Hupmobile Six—its sales already have surpassed 60,000 cars—is attributed by Hupp officials to the company's policy of adding 10 per cent to standard practice high quality throughout the car.

"To the admittedly high standards we have always demanded, an extra 10 per cent in materials, workmanship and general manufacturing costs has been included to this car, without adding a cent to its purchase price," points out Frank E. Watts, chief eginner.

"Results of this added quality are seen in the car's beauty of finish and completeness of equipment—above all in its performing ability and the ease, smoothness and quietness with which it operates. Hupmobile believes, and the volume of its sales definitely indicates, that buyers are demanding the dependability and relief from high maintenance costs that can be assured only through extra quality.

"That is why we pay the higher price for A grade materials, instead of B or C grade, and why we maintain our own inspectors at the sources of our materials to check their quality, as well as rechecking them in our own laboratories. That is why Hupmobile assumes the extra cost of more exacting workmanship, insisting on remarkably close tolerances and a greater number of more rigid inspections throughout every process of manufacture.

"We have invested a quarter a million dollars in a complete, modern heat treating plant of our own to make sure that every heat treated part has in it the exact content that our specifications demand.

"We insist on this extra quality because we know it assures the owner of greater value from his car tha ncan possibly be secured if merely standards are followed."

PROHIBITION AGAIN.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Dr. Edward A. Weiss, a well-known Pittsburgh surgeon, would keep his relatives temperate. He left a fund of $50,000 to be used in preparatory education of nieces and nephews, provided they have not touched liquor or tobacco for a year prior to entering school.

NEVER DARE A COP.

CHICAGO.—Miss Annie Allen came by the corner of Madison street and Michigan avenue, just as Police Sergeant John Howe was arresting Frank Patch. Patch was objecting to his arrest, and the sergeant was taking steps, when Miss Allen intervened. "You are a brute to treat that poor man so roughly," said Miss Allen. "Is that so?" replied the sergeant. "Lady, you're a lady and I'm a cop. I know my business and you mind yours. In other words, lady, on your way." "I will not," said Miss Allen. "Then I'll have to take you along," said Sergeant Howe. "I dare you," said Miss Allen. "I never take a dare," replied the sergeant, and he didn't. The charge was disorderly conduct.

Sun Inn, Canterbury, England, mentioned by Dickens in "David Copperfield" was recently offered at auction, but was withdrawn because the highest bid was only $17,000.

BETTER CARS BEING BUILT

Manufacturers Include New Improvements

By RAY PRIEST,
Universal Service Automobile Editor.

DETROIT, Mich., July 16.—Talk of a price war that floated through the motor car industry early in the year, today has given way to interest which tends toward a program of building motor vehicles so much better mechanically and from a beauty standpoint that the prospective buyer will ignore the price differential as far as his pocketbook allows.

The last few months have seen finer automobiles produced than were offered for several years back.

Reo and LaSalle started the ball rolling with major improvements. The flying cloud specifications show that it is very nearly the ideal automobile of the engineers in the New York Society of Automotive engineers group. The prize winning paper on the ideal motor car in a contest conducted by the New York group gave specifications almost identical with those actually used by the Reo.

LaSalle Wins Prise.

The LaSalle was hailed in the fine car field as a more flexible quality automobile, its power and ease of handling were outstanding from a mechanical standpoint, while its beauty was unquestioned.

Chevrolet previously had made a beauty appeal to the masses and the sales success since has proven the desire of the public for this type of car.

Shortly afterward came the improved Dodge four, then the Dodge six which set a new mark for Dodge Brothers in both mechanical and beauty requirements.

Nash was quick on the sales trigger with its entirely new cars in all three lines.

The new cars were much better looking and improved with a greater consideration for the driver. Their sales success is best indicated by the following report from Kenosha:

Production at Top.

"Production at all Nash plants at top speed following introduction of new series. Company is shipping over 700 cars a day but orders are greatly in excess of this figure."

C. W. Nash, president, stated in a report to a board of directors that he has every confidence in the business outlook for the rest of 1927, giving among his reasons the remarkable reception accorded the new models and indications he say of the company making vigorous and profitable progress.

At the same time the directors showed their confidence by voting an extra dividend of fifty cents a share based on the second quarter earnings of the company.

Today Dodge offers another new four cylinder powered car which is claimed to be the fastest four cylinder line of cars in America.

A New Hudson.

Hudson also announces a new line of cars for which a new elasticity and new economy are claimed. Hudson engineers state that their new motor is a major engineering achievement and offer it to the public on its performance claim.

Dodge improvements are all toward making the car faster and still easier to handle.

The new "124" motor brought out May 1 furnishes power for the new line of cars. It develops 40 horse power on the brake test which is one horse power for every 68 pounds of weight in the new sedan.

The gear ratio has been changed so that the engine speed is slower than before, permitting higher sustained speed without vibration. The steering gear ratio of the new line is 13 to 1. The cars can be turned in a circle with a radius of about 19 feet. Further ease of handling is obtained by the new steering knuckles fitted with ball bearings.

Single Plate Clutch.

The clutch is of the single plate type. Pedal action is soft and gentle. The sliding gear transmission is again of the standard type.

The cars are distinctive in their beauty and completeness of appointments. Twenty-five miles to the gallon of gasoline is claimed.

A greater economy for the new Hudson is readily seen by the fact that the lowest grade of gasoline causes the best of performance.

The motor is essentially of the high compression type. The engineers have completely eliminated spark knocks by the new motor. The unique construction of combustion chambers partially removed from the cylinder proper, entirely eliminates spark knocks and fuel detonation, say Hudson engineers.

Single Port Manifold.

The patented design of the single port Hudson manifold giving equal distribution of gases to all cylinders whether the engine is cold or warm makes starting easy. The engineers state that the new motor actually converts hitherto wasted heat in Hudson motors to useful power.

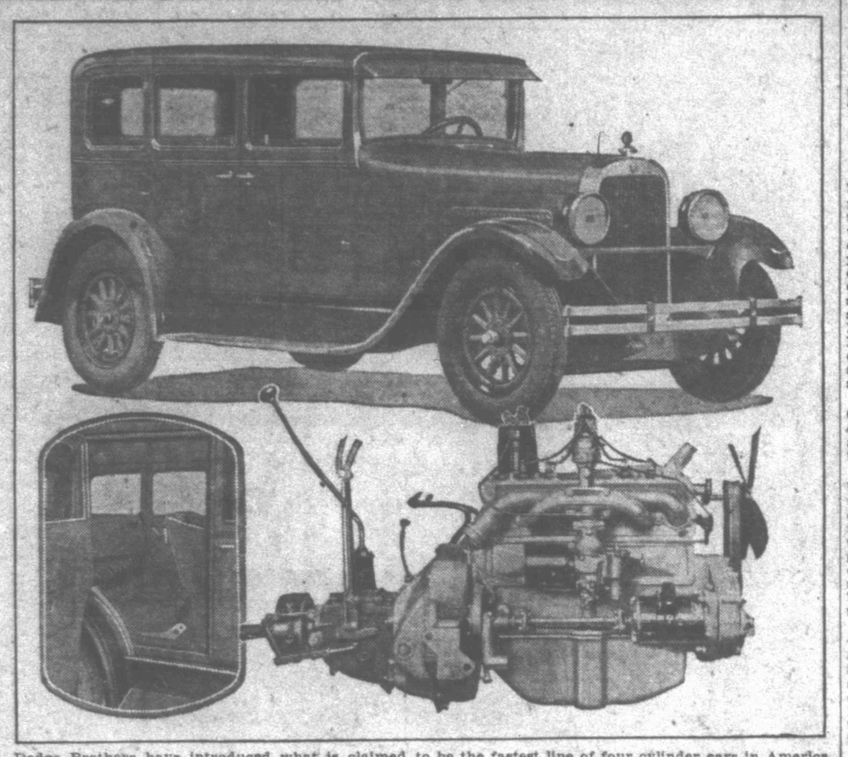

Hudson engineers offer the following three points as evidence of the outstanding superiority of the latest Hudson achievement:

1—It is a high compression motor, yet it burns low grade fuels with complete absence of fuel detonation and spark knock.

2—Its acceleration and sustained power at high speed sets a new mark in these respects for cars of Hudson size, yet it performs with the smoothness of a steam engine without a trace of roughness which has heretofore been the chief objection of high compression types.

3—It actually shows better efficiency and clearer combustion with low grade fuels than conventional power plants produce with expensive special and anti-knock mixtures.

Dodge Introduces Fast Four

Dodge Brothers have introduced what is claimed to be the fastest line of four cylinder cars in America. The new cars are said to be capable of going 25 or more miles on a gallon of gasoline at average touring speed and will be sold at prices materially below those at which Dodge cars of corresponding types have been sold.

NASH MODELS ARE APPROVED

Endorsement Is Shown In Record Breaking Sales

Sweeping aside all precedent in public favor the three entirely new series of Nash cars displayed throughout the country last week were given the greatest public reception ever accorded in the eleven years' history of the Nash Motors company. Outspoken approval and enthusiasm were voiced by thousands who crowded the Nash showrooms from New York to San Francisco and from Winnipeg to Palm Beach, and the public endorsement was made in the substantial form of record-breaking sales.

"The crowning achievement of C. W. Nash," was the statement expressed by public and dealers alike in almost every section of the country.

The lower and more sweeping body lines, the mechanical refinements, and the stunning new color combinations, were accorded unstinted approval by those who thronged the showrooms, and even greater amazement was expressed over the almost unbelievably smooth performance of the cars by those who had an opportunity to drive them.

"So emphatic and so overwhelming has been the public acceptance of the new Advanced Six, Special Six and Standard Six series," and E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash Motors compay, "that this will be by far the biggest July in the history of the company."

Telegrams, voluntary and spontaneous, from distributors, gave authentic reports of the reception on announcement day. These messages, coming in from all sections of the country, soon made it apparent there was no doubt about the public attitude, whether the cars were viewed on Broadway, New York, or Phoenix, Arizona.

NEXT TO GODLINESS.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Going camping for the summer is a bit of a nuisance if you have to take your bath house along. Bath houses are at par at Southampton; they cannot be begged, borrowed or stolen, and arrangements for them must be made as far ahead as one season at least. The 400 feel justly indignant, but they must have their bath, no matter what the cost.

Studebaker's Proving Ground Has Large Speed Bowl

All roads look alike from 7000 feet in the air, as indicated by the airplane view of Studebaker's 800 acre proving ground near South Bend, Ind.

Something of the magnitude of this outdoor motor car laboratory is indicated in the fact that the pilot had to take his plane to an altitude of 7000 feet (almost a mile and half) in order to bring the entire proving ground within the scope of the camera's lens.

The various features of the proving ground can be clearly distinguished. In the upper left is the three mile speed bowl, encompassing most of the east half of the tract. As far as appearances are concerned, the rest of the roads winding through the 800 acres of hill and meadow land might offer as smooth going as the speed track. Save for the gravel loop around three sides of the proving ground and the steep grades of the hill roads, however, few rougher roads could be found. They are merely winding tracks, roughened by constant use and providing the engineers with the opportunity to cream thousands of miles of the hardest kind of travel into the span of relentless endurance tests that are a regular part of the proving grounds work.

Cabriolet Coupe Is Smart Model

The "70" Willys-Knight Cabriolet coupe which made its appearance on the motor mart a short time ago, has quickly won a place of distinction among the smart cars, answering as it does a two-fold purpose, for it can be a roadster in the summer months and quickly converted into a completely closed vehicle in the winter or inclement weather.

This model is conspicious for general lines of construction which gives it a tone of style and smartness. It is finished in a two- tone blue with black fenders and grey removable top. The spacious windows in the doors can easily be raised or lowered and the top folded back, thus affording the occupants either an open car or a closed model. The rear deck of the Cabriolet coupe contains a rumble seat of generous proportions, providing ample room for two additional passengers.

The unholstering and lining is of dark grey grain leather. The woodwork is inlaid Circassian walnut with the instrument board finished to match. A touch of brightness is given by the nickled windshield posts. The sun visor is of the same material as the top.

Nash Motors Company Declares Dividend

At a meeting of the directors of the Nash Motors company held July 8 a quarterly dividend of $1 per share and an extra dividend of 50 cents per share were declared on the outstanding common stock of the company, payable August 1 to stockholders of record at the close of business July 20, 1927.

The company reported that for the second quarter of its 1927 fiscal year, covering the three months ending May 31, 1927, after deducting expenses of manufacturing, including depreciation, selling and administration, and providing for local taxes, and state and federal income taxes, net income amounted to $5,566,-281.08. This compares with net income for the second quarter of the 1926 fiscal year of $6,010,-824.45. Total net income for the first six months of 1927 fiscal year amounts to $9,491,735.20 as contrasted to $10,148,332.61 for the first six months of the previous fiscal year.

With reference to the condition of the company and outlook for the future, President Nash expressed himself as feeling very optimistic with regard to prospects for increased Nash sales and the soundness of business in general. "Among the reasons establishing this optimistic attitude," stated President Nash, "is the remarkable reception accorded our new models everywhere."

Whippet Is Maintaining Position in Class

Although the production of the Whippet Six is scarcely past the first six months stage, the general acceptance of this car on the part of the motor buyers of the nation is an indication of the high position this car has won in the light six cylinder field. Willys-Overland officials declare in pointing out the unusual sales figure reached up to July 1.

The Whippet line of light sixes was produced by Willys-Oevrland following the success of the four cylinder whippet which has set a sales mark of over 110,000 cars in its initial year of production.

This car was brought out to satisfy the demand for a six cylinder car which embraced the same economy, power, speed, safety and stability features of the four cylinder Whippet. The immediate acceptance of the Whippet Six is cited by Willys-Overland sales officials as an indication of their wisdom in presenting this car.

100,000 Mile Oakland Furnishes Record Trip and 500 cities and towns in the

Exactly five months after the 100,000 - mile Oakland sedan left the Oakland factories at Pontiac, Mich., it returned from a grueling road trip of more than 21,000 additional miles through 37 states January 31, returned at noon on June 30 to the factory where thousands of employes joined the mayor of Pontiac and the executives of the Oakland Motor Car United States besides trips into Mexico and Canada.

The car, which left Pontiac on company in a ceremony of welcome at the main office building.

The car was first run on a treadmill for 100,000 miles in the showroom of the Richards-Oakland company, Detroit, and then was sent on a great swing throughout the country, the route resembling a gigantic figure eight. The eastern loop was made first and then the western loop. When the Oakland had reached Chicago on the home swing, it was decided to make still another loop of 5000 miles which kept the car in the southeast for an additional month.

FINE CATTLE IMPORTED TO START PRIZE HERDS IN FOARD COUNTY

DARIY STOCK TO BE HELPED

Clubs Combine Resources To Finance Project

BY MACK BOSWELL.
(Special Correspondent, Record News.)

CROWELL, July 16.—The culmination of six months' effort on the part of farmers of Foard county, bankers of Crowell and County Agricultural Agent Fred Rennels was reached this week with the importation of 37 registered cattle which put into operation a new organization, the only one of its kind known for the advancement of dairying. The organization which is composed of 24 club members with four separate boys' and girls' clubs in the one organization, represents a combined calf club and bull circle and dairy experts state that the plan is the best they know of in quickly establishing foundation herds at a minumum of expense. Fred Rennels, county agent, was the originator of this unique plan and with county-wide assistance it was put into operation.

Diversification Practiced.

Foard county, from a natural standpoint is very widely diversified in agricultural and livestock products and has long been famous for its Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus cattle and beef production has been and is yet one of the leading industries of the county, however for the past few years as the ranches have been sub-divided into smaller tracts and settled by farmers who have had to intensify in their livestock production, the dairy cow has gained in popularity. As the farmers of the county produced more cream and dairy products the value of good dairy cattle and need of more good dairy stock was very keenly felt.

For the past few years some of the farmers who kept dairy bulls made an effort to get registered stock, but that was all. No attempt was made to buy bulls that were out of registered of merit stock however the registered Jersey bulls that have been used have done much to raise the standard of dairy cattle and there are some extra good grades in practically every part of the county, and on several farms there are some good registered cattle.

Farmers Co-operate.

A few of the farmers in four communities came to the conclusion that through co-operation it would be possible to raise the standard of their livestock in their communities at a minimum of expense. They fully decided that they wanted to raise Jersey, so with this in view and with the assistance of County Agent Fred Rennels and the assistance of the two banks of Crowell, a plan was adopted to form a bull circle and calf club combined in order that there might be some foundation herds started quickly over the four communities. The bull circle plan was first discussed but on account of the necessity of more cows on farms in the communities to insure the success of the bull circle plan, it was decided that a combination of the calf club and bull circle would best fit the needs of the communities interested. The plan was to buy some good registered bred heifers of as good production as possible, and in connection with these to also purchase four registered Jersey bulls of the very best breeding obtainable.

These animals are owned by the Boys' and Girls' Agricultural clubs of the four communities however their parents are interested with them and will have control of the bulls for the club members.

Dairy Club Formed.

The four communities making this move are Margaret, Rayland, Thalia and West Rayland. There are six dairy club members in each community. Each has a registered Jersey heifer and a 1-24 interest in the four Jersey bulls that are owned co-operated by the four communities. The males will be handled just as any other bull circle and will be changed as the occasion demands to prevent the danger of inbreeding and to strengthen the herds as they are changed. By this plan eight to ten years of bull service will be secured for the price of one bull. A reasonable service fee will be charged with half of it going to the keeper and the other half going to the club members.

There are some restrictions on the members entering this club. Each signed an agreement stating that they would care for their heifers to the best of their ability. They also agreed to go by the regular rules generally used by bull circles in caring for their males. They also agreed to a regular plan of transfer of individual interest in the males. Each member agrees to show his heifer at any county or community fair or show when practical to do so.

Clubs Responsible.

The method of financing places the club members on their own responsibility in paying for their stock. In as much as it is usually impractical to attempt to make young heifers pay for themselves in the short time that loans are made, it was decided to try a new plan of financing. Each member has planted five acres of cotton, the proceeds of this cotton after picking and ginning have been deducted will be applied to the note until it is paid. If for any reason the crop does not produce enough the first season to retire the note the member will continue to plant the five acres and apply the proceeds to the note until it shall have been fully paid.

On arrival to Crowell the club members drew for their heifers. Each heifer had a tag tied on her with a number and her price, a corresponding number was placed in a hat and each member drew a number from the hat and took the heifer bearing the number drawn.

The very greatest care was exercised by County Agent Rennels in the selection of this stock. The assistance of two of the best Jersey authorities in Texas was secured in making the selection, the two men being D. T. Simons of Fort Worth, field man for the American Jersey Cattle club and Prof. Geo. P. Grout, head of the dairy department of Texas A. and M. College. Rennels made a trip through North Central and South Texas with the above men and selected the cattle in those sections.

Both Mr. Simons and Prof. Grout were very well pleased with the quality of the animals secured. In speaking of the shipment, Mr. Simons said "Foard county has four of as good bulls as were ever shipped to West Texas and great results should be obtained from them."

Fine Bulls Bought.

The bulls are all out of register of merit cows with exceptionally good records of production. Each one is also an excellent individual carrying type and conformation and descending from some of the greatest Jersey families in the world. They are "line bred bulls" selected so that they may be exchanged profitably oe with the other without any probability of decreasing the value of their progeny.

One of the bulls is sired by a son of Xneia's Sultan out of a Jersey volunteer dam. The dam of this calf is sired by a double grandson of Golden Ferns Noble. This makes him a double bred noble bull. Lilac's Noble Champion, another bull in the importation, was sired by Syria's Anna's Lad, and is out of You'll Do's Golden Lilac. This bull's dam made a register of merit record of 599 pounds of butter and 10,929 pounds of milk at three years and nine months of age. Bosnias' Aristocrat of O, another bull is out of a dam that produced 460 pounds of butter at a junior two year old. D. T. Simons states that another bull in the importation is out of the best cow he knows of in Collin county. This bull's dam was sired by Blossoms Noble, a line bred Noble and the sire of this calf was by a son of Noble of Oaklands.

Heifers Distributed.

Thirteen bred heifers were distributed to the members and eleven open heifers. They run a very uniform type showing that they are well bred. They are granddaughters of Eminet Oxford You'll Do, Noble of Oaklands, Bright Prince and Combination Premier. Nine other heifers in the shipment were distributed to farmers over the county.

The affair of the club will be managed by a committee of seven men. They are composed of J. C. Taylor, Thalia; I. W. Middlebrook, Margaret; T. F. Lambert, Rayland; M. L. Cribbs, West Rayland, keepers of the bulls in their respective communities; T. N. Bell of the Bank of Crowell; M. L. Hughston of the First State bank of Crowell, and Fred Rennels, county agent. The boys and girls will have the advice of this committee on all their problems and nothing will be left undone to insure this move to be a success and be profitable not only to those directly interested but to the entire community.

Boys and Girls Club

The boys and girls of the four clubs have one organization of their own with the following officers: Jerry Young, West Rayland, president; Russel Taylor, Thalia, vice president, and Nelma Lambert, Rayland, secretary-treasurer. Members of the organization meet from time to time to discuss their work and advance methods of their own as well as receive expert advice on the care of their stock. All members are very enthusiastic over the project and not a member voiced dissatisfaction with the calf he received. It would be very difficult to find a more energetic and progressive group of youngsters than there are in this organization. All are reporting splendid success with the cotton acreage so far and most of them believe that they can easily take care of their note.

The club members are: Margaret club—Cecil Ray Moore, Earl Orr, Charlie Haselaff, Jack Russell, Walter Hysinger, Lane Middlebrook. Rayland club — Nelma Lambert, Annise Davis, Merle Robers, Carl Lawson, Quincy Rutledge and Robert Abston. Thalia club—Russell Taylor, Willie Catto, Charlie Wisdom, Raymond Phillips, Reggie Pattillo and Hamp Pattillo. West Rayland club—Homer Cribbs, Paschal Belew, Harrell Scales, Frank Farrar, Jerry Young and Loyd Whitton.

As a result of this importation, interest has so greatly increased all over the county that it is likely that other importations of pure bred Jersey will be made soon.

County to Benefit

Foard county as a whole will greatly benefit from this move and this importation which will serve to start foundation herds is a very strong beginning for the improvement of the dairy industry in this section. "It is impossible to estimate the value of a move of this kind," said T. N. Bell, one of the bankers of Crowell who helped finance the move. "Figuring very conservatively we will have 48 head of registered animals from this one importation within the next 12 months, after that they will come so fast that they will be hard to keep up with."

"The importation of the registered heifers within itself will be a wonderful help to Foard county and will serve to more quickly establish foundation stock than with the importation of bulls alone however the improvements resulting from the imported bulls that have the production in their breeding that these four have will mean thousands of dollars to our county in the future," said M. L. Hughston of the First State bank of Crowell and who assisted in financing the project.

Farmer For Plan

J. F. Long, for many years a farmer of Foard county and now a merchant of Crowell, and president of the Foard County Chamber of Commerce, stated: "Probably the greatest value to be received from this move will be the results of the continued improvement in our dairy herds from crossing the grade cows of this section with these fine bulls and one can readily see the great increase in milk production that is bound to result." "There are very few instances now of cows in this section producing any more milk than their mothers but when the grade cows of Foard county are crossed with these bulls that have such wonderful production in their breeding, there is bound to be a large increase in the average production of the cows of this section."

Tom Beverly, prominent sheep man and Hereford breeder of Foard county, voiced the sentiments of many old timers of this section when he said, "This is the biggest and best move that I have seen put over in Foard county in the 20 years that I have been here."

PONTIAC CUTS PRICE ON CARS

New Factory Now In Complete Operation

Price reductions of $30 to $50 on all passenger models in the Pontiac line effective July 15, due to the economies effected through the completion and operation of its enormous new factories at Pontiac, Mich., together with the increased volume of business, is announced by the Oakland Motor Car company.

"These price reductions are possible because of the greater facilities afforded through a $15,000,000 expansion program," says W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales. "The new plant for building of Pontiac cars exclusively, was completed in April and is now in the full swing of operation. While it was anticipated that the improved manufacturing facilities would bring about more efficient operation and permit reductions in production costs, it was not expected that such a substantial price reduction would be made possible in so short a time."

The fact that the huge Pontiac plant reached maximum production within 60 days after its completion is one of the rare achievements in automotive history and is responsible in a large way for the price reduction so soon after its completion. It was the largest single industrial construction contract awarded in the United States last year and the largest single automotive project ever completed at one time. It afforded large savings by virtue of almost immediate full productivity from so great an investment.

Numerous and large economies also were expected of this new factory which ranks as the "last word" in modern precision motor car manufacture. Through the use of miles of modern progressive conveyers, innumerable electric hoists, hundreds of improved automatic machines, single handling of all parts and assemblies and vertual transfer of manual labor to machinery, new economics in production costs were developed that quickly made a price reduction possible.

Oakland enjoys the advantage of few expensive transportation costs of materials and parts. The Fisher Body company plant which builds bodies for Pontiac sixes, adjoions the Pontiac factory and a conveyor brings the bodies from the Fisher plant to the new Pontiac assembly line effecting a tremendous saving. These anad many other economies are contributing to the production of automobiles at less cost and this saving, according to Oakland Motor Car company officials, is being passed on to the buying public through this price reduction.

Spanish Movie Star Possesses Two Air-Cooled Franklins

Among the prominent motion picture stars of Hollywood are owners of Franklin Six air-cooled automobiles is Dolores Del Rio who has two of them. One is a town car which she uses practically every day in going to and returning home from the studio and for social affairs. The other is a touring car which she takes on location trips.

Senorita Del Rio is with Inspiration Pictures, Inc., and among her starring vehicles are "What Price Glory", "Carmen" and "Rerurrection". During the screening of these productions the actress used her touring car on many rough location trips. There were journeys to the mountains, over very rough and steep grades, others through long desert stretches with the mercury trying to break the top out of the thermometer, according to her director.

"I am thoroughly satisfied with my Franklin cars", she told Ralph Hamlin, president of Franklin Motors Inc., Franklin distributor. "I have depended on them day after day and have never missed an appointmeht nor been late because of the cars.

It will include colored orographical, geological, meteorological and economic maps on a larg escale.

CHICKEN THIEF TRAP WORKS.

ELKHORN, Wis.—There are Edisons who live and die, their praises unsung. One inventive genius in this town recently built a home-made burglar alarm on his chicken coop, and by this simple expedient won for himself the reward of $100 offered for the first capture of local chicken thieves. Lyle Stevens, our hero, captured a stranger coming from his coop with an armful of poultry. Calls from the road tipped him off to another capture—that of the thief's wife. A double victory for the amateur inventor. Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, for, it was they, pleaded guilty.

EARLY TO BED.

SIOUX CITY, S. D.—Curfew shall ring tonight, or it shall not ring tonight. And if it rings, is 9 o'clock too early, or 11 o'clock too late?

The whole village of Canistotos, S. D. is terribly upset over the action of the board of education in ordering that new teachers' contracts contain a "curfew" clause. The contracts would provide that all teachers be in their homes not later than 11 p. m., except Friday and Saturday. "Too early," said the teachers. "Not early enough," said the conservative element. And the battle still rages.

Florabel Flutter's Abroad

Verses By Berton Braley

Drawings By George J. Kerr

1

WHEN Florabel Flutter reached Paris (by air)
She gave a quick glance at the Boulevards there,
Looked over an arch and a palace or two,
And then (as, of course, you'd expect her to do),
She hopped in a taxi and went on her way
To shop in the shops of the Rue de la Paix.

2

AS Florrie was strolling through one of the places
Where mannikins march with such airs and such graces,
The customers thought her a model, no less,
And promptly exclaimed, "What a smart little dress!
It's reeking with chic, if you know what I mean!
It's only in Paris such frocks can be seen!"

3

THE modiste said, "Mademoiselle will allow
We copy ziss model?" and made a deep bow.
Said Florrie, "Why, sure—you can copy it. Shoot,
As long as your customers think it is cute.
But give me in payment a nice Paris frock,
Most any new model that you have in stock."

4

"ENCHANTED!" the Costumer said, with a smile,
And gave her a dress of most ravishing style.
So Florrie is wearing a new Paris gown,
While thin women wonder and fat women frown,
Because that "chic frock" which Miss Florrie displayed
Looks tacky on them when it's finished and made.

5

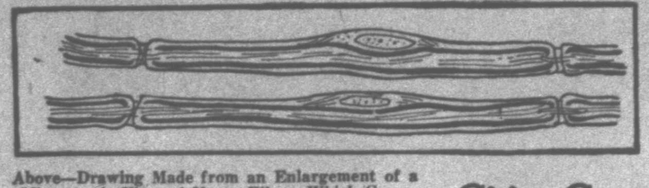

SAYS Florabel Flutter, "Be this understood:
Here's one of the times when I think I am GOOD.
I've got a new dress that's a knockout, a darb,
In even exchange for a sample of garb
That cost me six dollars and seventy cents
At 'Cohn's Grand Street Bargains for Ladies and Gents!'"

Latest Facts from Science, Mechanics and Invention

What NOISE Does to NERVES

Tests with Gas Masks Show How the Continual Din of Cities Compels Workers of All Kinds to Use Greater Energy, Make More Mistakes and to Tire Out Quickly.

Testing the Effect of Noise on a Typist by Using a Gas Mask to Carry the Breath to Measuring Instruments Which Record the Amount of Energy Consumed, the Operation Being Timed with a Stop Watch.

NOISE has become such a factor in modern civilization that it is today a real menace to the nerves of the "world and his wife," compelling scientists to join forces in a campaign for quiet. Thus the United States Bureau of Standards is co-operating with public utilities and industrial corporations to take the noise out of cities in the hopes of improving nerves in general. The noiseless automobile motor of today is a shining example of how noise can be eliminated even in the case of a high-power device subject to all the jolts and strains of the average highway. It is the most universal source of power and at its best is today a modern example of silent performance. Scientists of the Bureau of Standards have faith that research can add silence to the desirable attainments which must be credited to modern engineering.

Dr. Donald Laird, of Columbia University, recently staged a two-week's experiment to determine the effect of the noise of a modern city on a worker who was using brain and fingers at the same time. He discovered that a typist working in a very noisy room will not make more errors than when working in a quieter place, but will use as much as twenty per cent more energy because of the strain, with consequent earlier fatigue, and, as the day advances, progressive slowing down in output. The experiment is described as follows in Popular Mechanics:

For two hours each day a skilled typist wrote the same letter over and over, while noise machines produced the clatter of typewriters and duplicating machines, the intermittent ringing of telephone bells, rumble of traffic in the street, an occasional blaring auto siren, and a phonograph from time to time reeled off a disturbing dialogue. While she worked, a gas mask, fitted over nose and mouth, carried her breath to measuring instruments in an adjoining room, where every fifteen minutes a test of the oxygen and carbon-dioxide content was made to measure the energy consumed. All the while an observer, armed with a stop watch, timed the period taken to write each letter, to insert the paper in the machine and later remove it and the pauses between operations.

For the first few days the experiment was carried out in a room lined with sound-absorbing material so that the noises produced by the machines would be deadened. Then the typist was moved to a room lined with brick walls so that every sound would be reflected and multiplied as it reverberated again and again.

In both rooms the subject declared she was not particularly disturbed by the usual office noises, typewriters, telephones, conversation and the rumble of distant traffic, but the occasional blare of the auto horn caused her to make mistakes. Despite her belief that the increased noise was not especially disturbing she collapsed on the second morning in the brick-walled room before the two-hour period was over.

The scientific apparatus showed that her report on how she felt was not an accurate index of what was really happening, for, while there was no perceptible difference in the number of errors made from day to day, the carbon-dioxide count showed a twenty per cent increase in energy consumed trying to concentrate in the greater din, and the stop watch showed a steady loss in output.

In the quieter room her speed increased steadily during the two-hour period, so that she worked at the highest rate toward the end. But in the noisy room, after the first forty-five minutes, speed began to fall off. Even the time taken to remove a sheet and replace it with another increased when there was noise and confusion in the room.

On the final day of the test, the noise machine was turned off and she worked in absolute quiet, even her typewriter being of a noiseless kind, but the output for the day did not differ materially from that in the moderately noisy room, indicating that up to a certain point noise does not interfere with work.

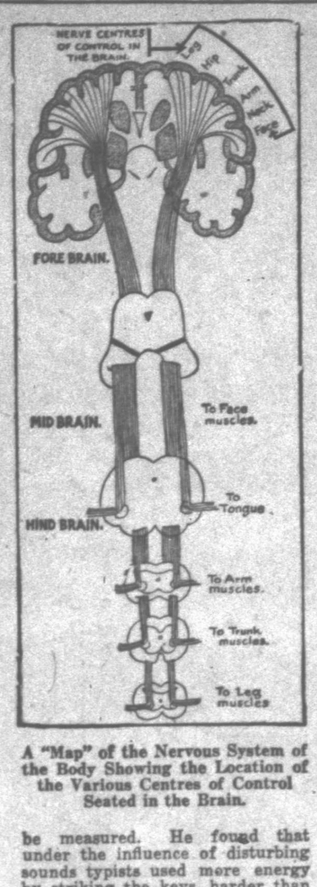

To check the results obtained with his skilled typist, Dr. Laird performed a similar, though briefer, experiment with several girls of average ability and found they were still more susceptible to disturbance. On the average, they consumed thirty-five per cent more energy in trying to concentrate against the disturbances.

Other scientists who have been investigating the relation of noise to slowing down of work have had similar experiences. Dr. Linus W. Kline, of the Harvard psychological laboratory, tied strings of tin cans together and dragged them across the floor while his students tried to concentrate on a mental problem. He found the noise interfered appreciably with their ability.

Another experimenter, Dr. John J. B. Morgan, of Columbia University, rigged up a typewriter so that the pressure applied to the keys could be measured. He found that under the influence of disturbing sounds typists used more energy by striking the keys harder than they normally did.

Workers in machine shops and similar places, where excessive noise is a daily routine, eventually become more or less deaf, but recent experiments show that others in far less noisy places have their hearing impaired merely through fatigue of the ears. In tests made at the University of Wisconsin with a watch mounted on a traveling carriage, it was discovered that students could not hear the ticking as far when they concentrated on a mental problem as they could when their minds were at rest, and that strenuous physical exercise had the same effect. Diminished hearing power, it was found, would give warning of approaching fatigue some time before the body began to feel the effects of too much exercise.

Even in sleep, Dr. Laird discovered that the ears are active. The passing of a street car or the blowing of an automobile horn raises the blood pressure instantly, even though the sleeper does not wake.

Is the Bicycle Coming Back?

BICYCLING is now enjoying a small revival. Although "century runs," "bicycle heart" or the "non-hygienic seats" do not worry doctors today, it is foolish to assume that the bicycle is as dead as the dodo.

No clothier now carries bicycle suits, and the once popular "makes" of wheels have now given way to motor cars, yet the bicycle continues to sell. Flocks of jaunty wheelmen may never again throng highways as they did in the old days, but the wheel is still used in the suburbs, small localities and on the college campus (especially since several institutions of learning have barred the auto). The old "bike" rack, which once graced the sidewalks in front of business houses has disappeared, but here and there can be seen standing or reclining against the curb the wheel of a juvenile enthusiast.

The wheel still plays an important role in the lives of most American boys. And six-day bike races and other meets continue to draw crowds.

According to the United States Government report, the number of bicycles manufactured in America dwindled from 480,000 in 1923 to 287,500 in 1925, a decrease of 40 per cent, though the number of factories declined in number from 3,100 to 1,850, and the value of their product shrank from $17,000,000 to $11,300,000, or 32 per cent. But the bicycle trade, the Pathfinder says, now reports increased business and is optimistic that the wheel is staging a small comeback. Some persons regard the bicycle as an adjunct to the motor car. Many workmen ride bicycles to work because it saves time, does away with the search for parking space and provides good exercise.

The bicycle is reputed to be one of the safest and most economical of vehicles known to transportation.

An ingenious Japanese, for example, who resides at Preston, Calif., has hit upon a new method of carrying a child on a bicycle.

With This Child-Carrying Device, a Japanese Living in California, Finds the Bicycle an Economical Means of Transportation.

Fastened upon the frame of the machine at the rear of the seat is a wooden box which affords comfortable accomodation for the youngster. One notices that the father, to protect his little daughter from the sun, has attached to the rear end of the box a tubular socket, to receive the handle of a parasol.

The Massachusetts general hospital at Boston prescribes it for patients. Some women have taker up bicycling in an effort to reduce.

The Boy Scouts recognize the healthful exercise afforded by the bicycle by incorporating a wheel test in their activities. Last year nearly 109,000 merit badges were awarded for cycling.

In Europe, where auto maintenance is costly and autos are comparatively scarce, the bicycle remains very popular.

False ROOFS to COOL Motor CARS

A FALSE roof for automobiles has been newly patented by John W. Harvey, of Denver. It is designed to promote Summer comfort in motoring. It is a wooden frame covered with the same sort of waterproof material that is commonly used for auto tops, the stuff being tacked on, and is of the same dimensions as the vehicle top, upon which it is mounted, providing an air space between the roof of the car and the false roof.

Hinged at one side to the roof of the car by means of hooks which engage slotted brackets fastened to the car roof, it is secured at the other side by turn-buttons that engage slots in corresponding brackets. When it has been swung down into position, the buttons are turned to lock it fast. To remove the false roof, it is necessary merely to release the turn-buttons at one edge of the car top and the hooks at the other edge.

The false top is slightly curved lengthwise to conform to the curvature of the roof of the car, and the above-mentioned waterproof covering is extended to form side-flaps overlying and concealing the fastening devices.

A pad of felt, removably secured by strap-engaging studs to the forward end of the roof of the vehicle, is extended over the entire car top, and is meant to be saturated with water. Air circulating in the space between the car roof and the false roof, while helping to cool the inside of the car, promotes evaporation from the pad, with an additional cooling effect. Incidentally, the false roof shades the roof of the car, repelling the heat of the sun's rays.

VACUUM CURE for Diseased TEETH

WITHIN very recent years it has come to be known that many serious troubles, such as rheumatism, are caused by pus-sacs at the roots of teeth, the existence of which may be entirely unsuspected. These abscesses, breeding a continuous supply of harmful germs, discharge the latter into the blood stream, the effect being a poisoning of the system.

Commonly, when such a condition of things becomes known, resort is had to the drastic expedient of pulling the teeth, even though they be perfectly sound.

A better way to deal with cases of the kind is suggested by Robert Fust, of Glogau, Germany, who has newly obtained a patent on his process in the United States. It consists in drilling a hole through the tooth into the socket and sucking out the pus by the use of a vacuum.

After drilling the hole, the dentist clamps upon the tooth the nozzle of the suction device, which is held in place by a spring clip. The clip is enclosed by a rubber tube which makes an air-tight joint upon the tooth.

To the rubber tube is connected a glass pipe, the lower end of which passes through a stopper into a bottle. A second glass pipe, passed through the same stopper, is connected by a rubber tube with a rubber bulb.

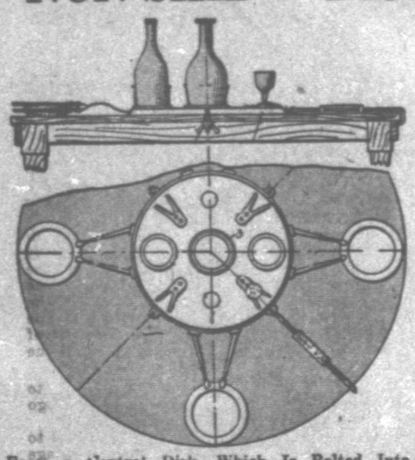

Pressure on the bulb forces the air out of it through a valve. When the bulb is released (with closing of the valve), a partial vacuum inside of it makes a suction which draws the pus out through the drill-hole and into the bottle.

Spiral springs keep the rubber tubes dilated, and likewise the bulb for better resistance to squeezing.

"NON-SKID" DISHES for SHIPS and DINING CARS

From a Central Disk, Which Is Bolted Into Position on the Table, Extend a Number of Arms Ending in Double-Spring Clamps for Gripping the Dishes.

ENJOYMENT of meals at sea or in a dining car may be seriously impaired if the plates, glasses, and other items of table service are caused to move about by the motion of the ship or train. Hence the idea, conceived by an Italian inventor, Ignazio Savio, of Genoa, and newly patented in America, of an "anti-rolling table," on which such requisites for eating are so secured that they cannot "skid," according to this Italian inventor.

Suppose the case of a round table for four persons. To its center a metal disk a couple of feet in diameter is fastened by a bolt which is secured beneath the table by a wing-nut.

In the middle of the disk is welded to the latter a cup-shaped receptacle to receive a water-bottle. On opposite sides of this receptacle are two of size and shape to hold other bottles.

On the two opposite sides are small receptacles to hold salt and pepper boxes.

Thus provision is made for one central receptacle and four others surrounding it. In the spaces between are spring holders, riveted to the central disk, each having a cleft to retain the stem of a glass. Under the spring of the holder, the glass is fixed, but is readily removed and replaced.

From the central disk extend in four outward directions four pairs of slender steel arms, each pair gripping with double spring clamps two plates, one on top of the other. When one plate has been used, it is removed, leaving the under plate available for the next course.

To get rid of the apparatus, the nut is unscrewed, the bolt removed, and the disk with its attachments fixed by the same nut beneath the table. Thus disposed of, it is always ready for use.

What the Inventors Are Doing

AN improved contrivance for operating "cowl" ventilators of automobiles has just been patented by Joseph H. Bourgon of Detroit. Ordinarily such ventilators are opened and closed either by a handle below the instrument board or by a rotatable knob projecting through the latter. In use, the apparatus requires for the driver an awkward attitude with change of position, whereby control of the car may be momentarily lost with danger to the occupants. The new invention does away with this difficulty by an arrangement which enables the driver to operate the ventilator with his foot.

A fire-engine unit designed to be carried on a motorcycle sidecar or other vehicle, which can be quickly set up, throws about seventy-five gallons of water a minute. There is a reserve tank for extra fuel, affording sufficient for four hours' continuous pumping. It is operated by a two-cylinder gasoline motor.

An electric fire-alarm system, patented by a Canadian inventor, consists chiefly of a fuse box in which cocoa butter melts at ninety-four degrees Fahrenheit, completing a circuit to ring a gong.

A pocket card case is so arranged that a push of the finger exposes a card, simplifying its removal and saving the trouble of opening a closed container or tearing out of a book. It can be operated by one hand.

A novel and ingenious trundle toy has just been patented by Rocco Recatti, of St. Louis. It is a jointed figure which, seated on a stick, energetically moves its legs and arms and nods its head, while its feet, connected to pedals, appear to drive a wheel for locomotion—all of this performance accomplishing itself automatically when the toy is trundled along.

* * *

Umbrellas are carried from the top instead of the grip handle by means of a disappearing strap patented by an English inventor. This prevents the ribs from opening up part way when not secured by the catch at the bottom. The umbrella is but twenty-two inches long when closed, and, when open, the strap is hidden.

Convenient for housewives is a shelf for foodstuffs, proof against invasion by ants and roaches, which has been newly patented by Frederick W. French, of Oakland, Calif. Two brackets screwed to a wall are each of them so formed as to provide a receptacle for oil, with a socket beneath the receiver, and tightly hold the end of a metal arm.

Why Aviators Suffer from "Snow Blindness"

AFTER several years of flying an aviator may find that his eyes need care. The malady is termed "snow blindness," although it is caused not by snow but by the effect of the sun's rays on minute particles of dust and moisture in the air, each acting like a tiny mirror.

Moreover, the axis of vision of the normal eye is so constructed that it is normally parallel to the earth's surface, and the light received into the eye is that reflected by objects on the surface. The eye is perfectly adapted to its usual environment and is desensitized over its lower portion. At great heights, unnatural light of equal intensity enters the eye from all angles, and tends to deaden its upper unprotected portion.

New goggles now tested at the New York Navy Yard removes these dangers, according to The Scientific American. They are much larger than those used in the past. A system of ventilation is provided so that the eye is kept cool in its cup, while still shielded from the wind. The lens of the goggle follows the contour of the face, and is sage green in color, having two-thirds of the transmission of clear glass. The lens allows the pilot to distinguish color but prevents the transmission of the injurious infra-red and ultra-violet rays of the sun.

What Life Brought at Last to the Girl Who "Had Everything"

Was It a Broken Heart or Crushed Ambition That Raised the Deadly Draught to Mary Lygo's White Lips?

MARY LYGO is dead.

The "girl who had everything" has succeeded, after three attempts in destroying herself.

A quick gesture in a Hollywood apartment, an upturned cup of poison thrust between white lips, a scream, the clatter of breaking china on the floor and Mary Lygo met the one friend she wanted to meet—Death.

It came in a gentle sleep, this death she had thrice sought. Friends stood about her, whispering "Irene, Irene," in ears that never were to hear again. She was Irene Goodall to them, as she had been to her parents in Akron, Ohio, years ago, before she heard the call of fame and fortune and danced across the footlights to success—and bitter regret.

Hers is one of the tragic romances of the small town girl blinded by the lure of the bright lights—one of the tragedies that are thrown into the scale against the successes. A typical story of the wide-eyed, beautiful girl from a moderately comfortable family—a story that sometimes takes the right road to success and happiness and sometimes takes the left road to disaster and death.

Mary Lygo took the left road because the sunshine and long years of work that beckoned from the right could not obliterate the figure of love that danced mockingly along the other.

New York claimed Mary Lygo at a time when the Ziegfeld Follies were reaching the height of their popularity. She had heard of them, had witnessed performances in her home town and later in Chicago and was fascinated. In those days to be a chorus girl meant, to her, to be an actress. She wanted to be an actress.

She got her chance in a little road show that passed through Akron. She went to Chicago and her parents moved there, too. The show broke up, but she prevailed upon her mother and father to permit her to return to New York with other members of the cast and seek work.

Always a beautiful girl, with the graceful carriage and regular features demanded of beauties who graced the ensembles in New York, she encountered comparatively little difficulty in obtaining an opportunity. Morris Gest gave her a dancing part in "The Wanderer." She was an instantaneous success and soon she reached the climax of her ambitions—a place in the great Follies.

Life, it seemed to her, could hold little more.

Then came love, beckoning down the left road. Gordon Thorne, son of a fabulously wealthy Chicago family that had founded one of the greatest mail order businesses in the world, saw her and was swept off his feet by her beauty. He sought to meet her and did. He was just about to be divorced. Soon he would be free.

They went for long auto rides after the show closed, rolling over the green Westchester hills where romance bursts from every blossom and the wind in the trees croons a lover's song. Each night Gordon Thorne met Mary, and each night saw him bring some gift more valuable than the preceding night. And each night he brought a new story of love—and a new plea.

Mary listened to his protestations and felt the thrill of romance within her. She cared for Gordon Thorne, loved him, in fact, and each night, as he lavished attentions upon her, she came to care more for him. If only they could be married! But he must wait for his divorce.

Then came the first step up the left road.

Mary found herself in her own apartment, filled with beautiful furniture, rare antiques, priceless books—$5,000 worth of books valued at $50 each—wonderful clothes, everything a girl could want. She had her own motor at her disposal, she had unlimited credit with great shops. She was a figure in the smart places—she was Mary Lygo, betrothed to the wealthy and handsome Gordon Thorne. She was, in fact, the envy of scores of girls about her and her head was held as high as her heart was light.

But the Thorne divorce had not progressed as it had been scheduled to progress. In fact, it soon became known that Thorne was still living with his wife. But Mary, swept away by the intensity of her love for him, forgave that. She forgave all—if he would only come to her when he could.

Then came a scene in Chicago. Mary Lygo made her first attempt at suicide in a Chicago hotel. The Thornes were having a party in the same hotel, Mrs. Thorne and Gordon. Mary went to the telephone and called up the Thorne apartment. She asked Gordon to hurry to her room. He complied, never suspecting what was to come. He knew Mary was in the same hotel, had expected to see her when the party became sufficiently interested in itself to allow him to slip away.

He found Mary alone and inquired what prompted her to send for him. She demanded that he carry out his promises of marriage. He attempted to remonstrate with her and she went into another room of her suite and closed the door. Presently Thorne heard a low moan. He threw open the door; then reeled back, as if struck in the face.

Slumped forward in a chair in the other room was the semi-conscious form of Mary Lygo, blood streaming from her left wrist.

Thorne summoned aid and then picked her up.

A long slash across the large vein in her arm told the pitiful story. She had attempted to end her own life in a fit of despair.

Soon members of the Thorne party were on hand, Mrs. Thorne at their head. She took one look and then returned to her apartment, packed her effects and removed to another hotel. Thorne, in the meantime, had given out a statement to the effect that he had been passing the Lygo apartment door and had heard a moan. He rushed in to find Mary crumpled in the chair, her wrist slashed. That Mrs. Thorne had taken exception to the situation, he dismissed with a wave of the hand.

A few days later Mrs. Thorne entered suit for divorce and shortly thereafter Thorne was free.

In the meantime, Mary Lygo was recovering. Soon she was well again, and Thorne was seen with her as before. Mary was happy. "Gordon is free to marry me—and has said he will." She planned the marriage for one Spring day, but Gordon returned home late that morning and slept until after the license office had closed.

After that they drifted apart. She tried to hold his love, and for a time he appeared to have renewed his determination to wed her. They even went, with a beautiful girl friend of both, to the license bureau—and there the tragedy that really broke Mary's spirit and caused her to abandon all hope fell upon her.

Instead of marrying Mary, Thorne married the beautiful girl friend.

Mary attempted suicide. This time she took an overdose of sleeping powder, but the attempt was unsuccessful. She was found and resuscitated before the potion could complete its evil work.

She brought suit against Thorne for $100,000, charging breach of promise. Thorne fought the suit, denying that he had promised to marry her or had entered into any form of contract with her. In the end Mary, heartbroken and dispirited, settled for approximately $8,000, closed her luxurious Chicago apartment and went to Hollywood.

There she re-adopted her maiden name of Irene Goodall and sought work. She received a minor part here, a "bit" there, barely managing to eke out a living.

Mary Lygo found that as Irene Goodall she was wholly dependent upon her looks and her ability for a living. She had no reputation, no name, because she had left the name of Mary Lygo behind. She hated the name, feared it. She hated its associations, cried out at the mention of the tragedies it had brought her.

She had been Mary Lygo, darling of Broadway. Her dancing feet had carried her pretty face into fame and fortune as Mary Lygo. She had struggled as Mary Lygo; why shouldn't she struggle as Irene Goodall? Why shouldn't she give her parents someone to be proud of—Irene Goodall, motion picture actress—instead of someone to fear for and worry over—someone like Mary Lygo, musical comedy favorite?

Thus she reasoned, and thus she adhered to the name of Irene Goodall, although Mary Lygo might have obtained quicker recognition.

Then she was given a good part, but failed to make the success of it she had of her stage roles. The old Mary Lygo had died somewhere along the left road. The fire was gone, the ambition, the charm that had made her the toast of Broadway seven years before.

In the meantime, Thorne had been divorced and married again. Mary heard little of him. He made no effort, she said, to get in touch with her. Their romance was considered a buried chapter in both their lives.

Then came the word of Mary's successful suicide attempt, her third.

"Poor thing!" a shocked Broadway said. "Grieving to her death over broken ambition or love?"

Perhaps she was. But her roommate in Hollywood had another story about Mary Lygo—not so romantic, perhaps, but plausible.

"She was crushed," said Florence Atkinson to those who sought some word of Mary's last hours, "not because of love, but because, for the first time in her life, she saw the shadow of failure."

So ends the left road for the "poor little girl who had everything."

Hounded by Threats from Fanatical Buddhists, Thurston, the American Magician, Will Sail for the Orient and Divulge the "Rope Trick's" Secret to Perplexed Priests.

THREATENED by secret societies, hounded by Government emissaries and condemned by fanatical Buddhists in every part of the world, Howard Thurston, celebrated American magician, is going to India to lift the veil of secrecy and fear from the famed old mesmerisms of the world's most mysterious land.

Half a dozen times within the last year, or since he began using the famous Indian rope trick, Thurston has been threatened by secret Indian societies. Half a dozen times condemnation has been heaped upon his head by high priests of certain Indian cults because, they assert, he "violated faith" in bringing to America this mystic trick. And at least three times he has been "formally requested" by representatives of the Indian government to omit the trick from his repertory "for the good of international feeling."

The magician has ignored the threats, laughed off the condemnation and politely refused the requests. Once initiated into the Yogi cult in a famed Indian principality and pledged to secrecy for ten years, Thurston kept his promise of silence for that period before revealing the things he learned to the world. Now, he says, he has bought the right to give this strange sorcery to the world with ten years of secrecy, and he will NOT resign the privilege.

Moreover, he proposes to carry his magic into the very inner shrine of magic, to return to India with the tricks that he took out of that land of sorcery and explain his mastery of them. He will teach them the fundamentals that they do not know, he says, and then perform the tricks that are, to them, but myths.

For more than twenty years, efforts have been made to establish the authenticity of the Indian rope trick. Many scientists have made a thorough investigation of the illusion, but none has been able to find anyone who actually has seen one of the Indian yogis perform the trick.

Thurston attributes this to tradition. He believes that the Hindus have become so convinced that it is possible for their high priests to do anything that they do not hesitate to place implicit faith in anything they are told by these men. Having been told that the rope trick has been performed, the lower classes cherish the illusion as stark fact. Hence the prevalence of the belief that such a trick is possible.

Thurston makes no claim to magic in his illusion. In fact, he coined the word "illusion" to apply to his own performance. He admits the use of devious mechanisms, but challenges his audience to explain the method, or the manner of mechanisms employed. He also defies them to detect any hint of mechanical assistance in the performance. He has offered large rewards for such detection, without result.

Aware that the smoothness of his magic deceives the eye, he is going to take this age-old, yet brand-new, trick to India and show the yogis their own myth converted to a legitimate, practical illusion.

Not only will the American magician carry the rope trick back to old India, but he will supplement it with such products of the yogi arcana as the levitation trick, the trick of "sawing a woman in half" and several other illusions, gleaned by the magician from his months in India.

Thurston's story of his searches for the yogi rope trick is a remarkable one. He went to India as a young man and began his hunt. Far into the northern mountains he made his way, reaching Khyber Pass without having found the information he sought. Turning back, he proceeded to the province of Darjeeling, where he obtained an audience with the grand yogi of a monastery high up in the mountains and cut off from all ordinary human contact.

There, after much persuasion, he succeeded in prevailing upon the high priest to admit him to the sect and he at once took up the studies necessary for qualification. It was only by demonstrating his incipient powers of magic that Thurston succeeded in converting the priests to his wishes. They believed he possessed strange powers and were reluctant to deny him.

It was at the monastery that Thurston obtained his first contact with the rope trick. While the illusion practiced there was not the trick he had been seeking, it was as near an approach to it as he had found, and he determined to master it with the idea of carrying it to an even greater degree of skill.

Accordingly, when he returned to America several months later he was accompanied by Abdul, a member of the sect, whose duty it was to instruct the magician in all the mystic rites of the fraternity. Abdul remained constantly with Thurston for many months thereafter, or until the magician was considered to have mastered all the intricacies of the ritual connected with his new estate.

The period of instruction ended a year ago, and Mahomet, another and greater priest of the cult, was sent from India to initiate Thurston into the inner arcana, the final rite in his long succession of ritualistic study. To his surprise, one of the benefits of this admission was the divulging of the full details of the rope trick as it is now practiced in India, or as it is said to be practiced by the cloistered yogis.

Shortly thereafter Thurston offered the trick to his American audiences for the first time and immediately his troubles began. His first intimation that there was anything amiss was when he received word from Darjeeling monastery informing him that he was violating "the faith" and cautioning him to reveal none of the inner secrets, either of that trick or any other illusions he had learned abroad.

Then came a letter of warning from an Indian society, and a few weeks later an Indian dignitary in Baltimore communicated with him and asked him to make a full report on the nature of his illusion and the means he was taking to protect its secrecy. The magician replied that his trick was purely for entertainment purposes, but that did not satisfy the alarmed Hindus who had seen the trick in America and feared their high priests would be offended thereby. Another note, more curt than the first, suggested that the trick be discontinued and intimated that serious disturbances might result if the requests were ignored.

Again Thurston paid no heed to the warning. He proceeded with his performance for another week when, upon arriving at his theatre one night, he discovered that the Hindu boy who had been appearing in the act, scaling the rope and otherwise lending atmosphere, had disappeared, leaving a brief note explaining that he dared not go on with the performance.

Nothing daunted, Thurston called upon another boy in his troupe, but a few weeks later that boy also disappeared and it was necessary to obtain a third. In the meantime, all manner of notes, some threatening, some cajoling, continued to pour into his office from alarmed Hindus.

Now Thurston, convinced that he can establish the authenticity of his illusions, even with the Hindu priests whose displeasure he has incurred, will bundle up his tricks and go to India to give the mystics a lesson in latter-day mesmerism that will outdo even the strange illusions of ten centuries ago.

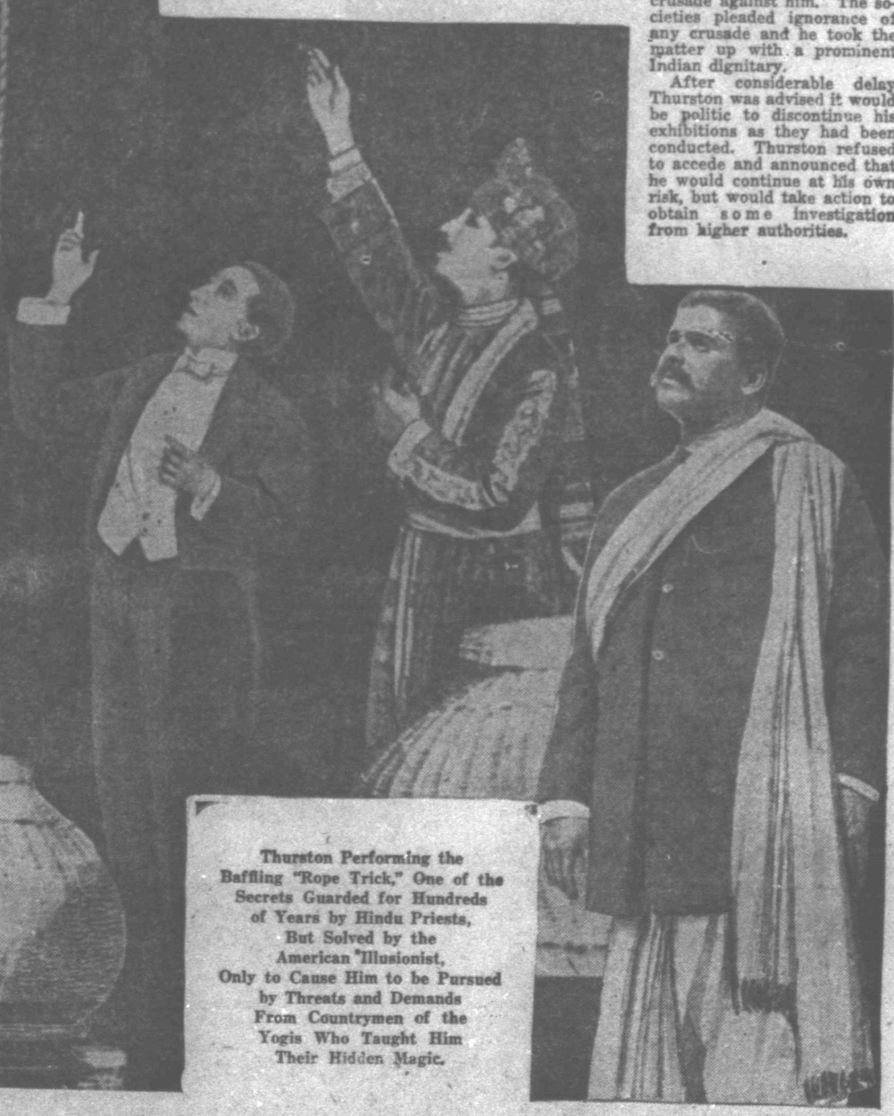

The magician, believing that the time had come when he was entitled to do a little protesting on his own hook, got in communication with representatives of the Hindu societies in New York and demanded some explanation of the crusade against him. The societies pleaded ignorance of any crusade and he took the matter up with a prominent Indian dignitary.

After considerable delay Thurston was advised it would be politic to discontinue his exhibitions as they had been conducted. Thurston refused to accede and announced that he would continue at his own risk, but would take action to obtain some investigation from higher authorities.

Apparatus for ascertaining weight. 7. What you like to do when you are tired. 8. The legal profession. 9. Name used as a sign of agreement or acknowledgment. 10. A kind of fish.

A Trick for Two Hands

WITH no other "apparatus" than the ten fingers of your two hands you can easily entertain your friends with a trick performed in the following manner: Put your two hands together with the palms and fingers opposite to one another, as shown in the left half of the accompanying drawing. Now make your explanation with a line of talk something like this:

"My thumbs represent two friends, my index fingers are two lovers, my middle fingers stand for the villain, my third fingers are a man and wife, and my little fingers are enemies."

Now as you proceed to the next step you say:

"First, we must get rid of the villain."

This you proceed to do by bending your two middle fingers down until they are between your palms.

"Now," you continue, "the two friends are to be parted," and you do this by separating your thumbs.

"Even lovers can be separated," you go on to explain and indicate it by separating your first fingers.

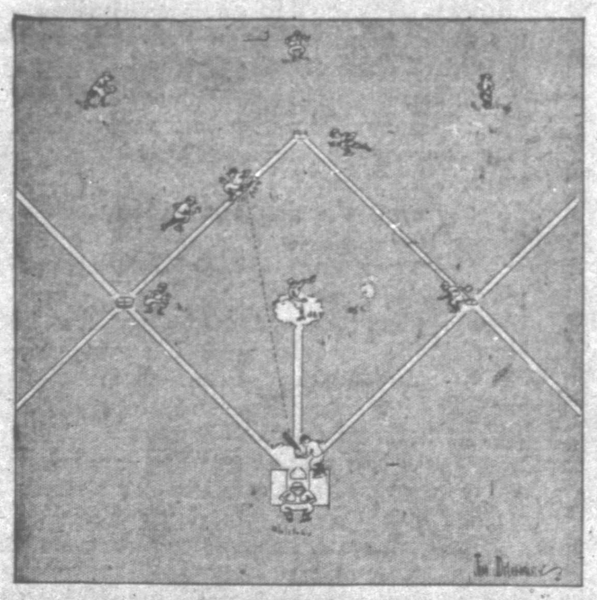

"Enemies also can be parted," you exclaim, as you part your little fingers.

Now you are ready for the last part of the trick, which you explain as follows:

"But you can't part a man and his wife without showing up the villain."

You easily prove this to your friends by having them try it themselves. Then they will find that it is impossible for them to separate their two third fingers without raising their two middle fingers (the villain) which were bent down.

A Real Baseball Problem

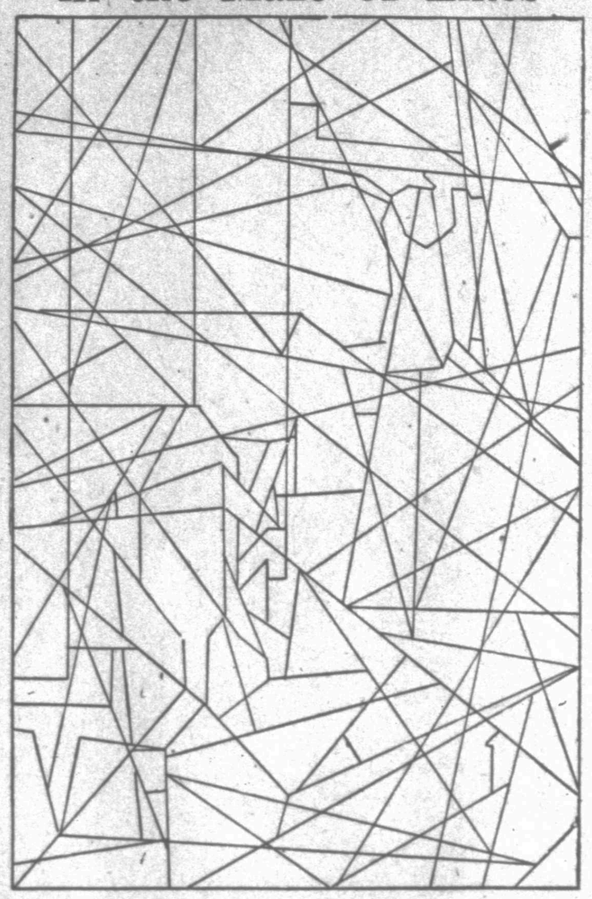

AN exciting scene in the last half of the ninth inning of the baseball game last Saturday between the Beansburg Buffaloes and the Hickstown Tigers offers a good puzzle problem for mathematical fans. At this stage of the game Beansburg was at the bat, with two men out, the bases full and the score a tie.

Jones, the third baseman, had a lead of twelve feet off of second. The next man came to bat and got a hit which looked like a single-bagger. At the crack of the bat Jones, an eleven-second man, dashed for third at top speed, but when at a point twenty-two feet from second the ball hit him and the umpire called him out.

Now, figuring the average speeds as constant speeds, how fast was the ball traveling when it hit the Beansburg third baseman?

Find Two Animals Hidden in the Maze of Lines

What Is the Answer?

DID the lobster turn red because it saw the salad dressing?

* * *

Did the jelly-roll because it saw the apple turn-over?

* * *

Did the fence-rail because it saw the shell-fish?

* * *

Did the gum-drop because it saw the sun-set?

WHAT on earth do all these lines mean that cross one another in such a seemingly crazy fashion? Cut out the drawing and turn it around and around, studying all the lines as you do so to see if you can discover whether or not they form the outlines of any objects.

You should be able to find two well-known animals. Shade in very lightly the outlines with a pencil. Then you can color the drawing to suit your fancy.

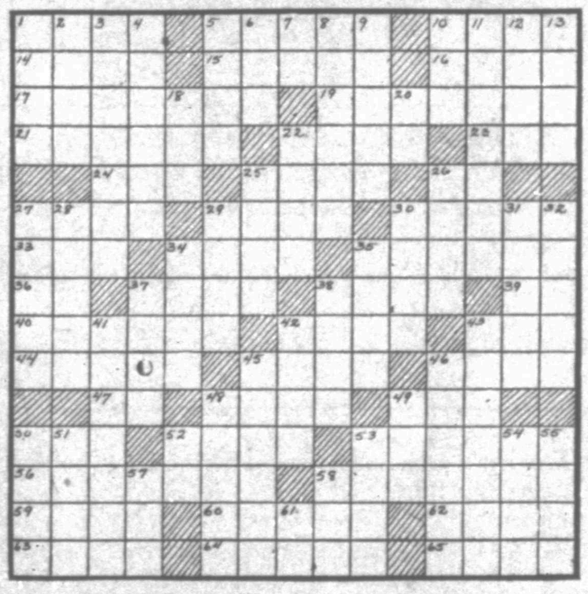

What Is Wrong with This Picture?

THE other afternoon Mrs. P. Palington Zoop gave a tea on the grounds of the Four-Leaf Clover Country Club, the accompanying sketch of which was made by one of her friends who is an amateur artist. Quite a number of errors appear in the drawing; in fact,, if you study it closely you should be able to discover as many as thirteen mistakes.

Write down the artist's errors as you discover them, then keep your list and compare it with the list of mistakes which will be given next week.

Doctor, How Could You! By FANNIE HURST

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

The doctor was one of those fortunate men who come into their own during their lifetime. A magnificent own! A reaping of praise and appreciation for a life of service.

What did the doctor say?

What was the climax to all those years of brave working to serve the world?

"Ah," thought the little wife at his side, "doctor, how could you!"

PEOPLE said how splendid it was that the doctor had come into his own during his life-time.

And what a magnificent own!

At sixty-eight, certainly about the best known, the most dearly loved, the mostly deeply revered bone-surgeon in the world, was the magnificent, broad-shouldered, shaggy-headed man at the head of two great research institutes. He was noted at home and abroad for the wonders of his seemingly boneless fingers.

Fifty years of that lifetime had been devoted to the study, the practice and the experimenting of ways and means to alleviate the pain and suffering of human beings afflicted with bone, hip and joint diseases.

And as Dr. Beerbohm often half whimsically said himself, when God made human beings in such vast numbers it was inevitable that all of them should be perfect and it was his job to try and fix up the damaged and imperfect "seconds".

But that was just one of the doctor's grim and rather gruff jokes. His hands, when they descended to touch a human body, were hands of mercy, hands that seemed reverent with the fact that they were in contact with the mystifying fabric of human flesh that covered bones so miraculously wrought that even his skill could not entirely comprehend them.

It behooved the doctor to indulge in grim jokes. His days were so long, so relentless and so devoted to the sorry spectacle of human suffering.

Neither were his nights free from it.

Even after his great eminence had carried his name and his fame to the four corners of the earth, he was never known to refuse a night call. True, in his kind of work they came seldom enough, but his wife had stories to tell of winter night rides, perilous trips across lakes after dark, motor races along wet mud roads! Stories that she never dared to tell in the presence of her husband.

She was a gray little woman, sixty-seven when the doctor was sixty-eight, with an ashes-of-roses, frail prettiness to her that indicated past and more glowing beauty, and a little way of sitting with her frail hands quite helplessly open in her lap, as if waiting for some one to place something in them. Possibly it was the attitude of a woman whose arms had always been empty of children. She had never had any.

It was when he was sixty-eight that a testimonial dinner was given him by his friends, admirers and members of his profession that was to go down in the history of testimonial dinners.

Twenty-two hundred worshippers turned out to do him honor at a great public function held in the grand ball room of one of New York's most elaborate hotels.

It was an occasion of occasions.

The dinner menus carried a reproduction of a famous artist's portrait of the doctor.

The great mass of dinner guests rose to their feet and cheered as he and his ashes-of-roses wife entered the banquet hall.

It was indeed the coming into his own of a great man during his lifetime.

For two hours after dinner, speakers chosen from the peaks of their walks of life paid tribute to him.

Men in industry who knew of the doctor's secret philanthropies.

Brother scientists who owed much of their skill to what he had taught them.

Anecdotes were told of his gruff and heavily kind manner in the clinic.

A clergyman of international fame described the unflagging courage of the great man. His deathless enthusiasm. His capacity for sympathy. His ability to refuse to let the spectacle of so much suffering crush or discourage him.

This last quality almost every speaker dwelt upon at length.

His will to carry on. To forge ahead. Never to relax in his fight against pain and suffering.

There were moist eyes in the ball room that night.

And through it all, grim, boyish in his embarrassment, sat the doctor—his fine, shaggy head bowed for the first time that any one at the array of tables before him remembered having seen it.

The enconiums bursting around him like rockets were plainly painful to him. His small, pretty wife, two round spots of color out on her pale cheeks, sat as if tranced by the splendor of the thing that was happening to him. From time to time, speakers paid her polite tributes and turned to bow to her and then the spots of color flooded all over her face.

Finally there came the time when her husband must rise to his feet. Known throughout his profession as a forceful and trenchant speaker when his subject had to do with his work or when he lectured in clinic, this was an occasion which made strange and terrifying demands upon his oratory.

The great man, the big, shaggy, gruff creature, was emotionally swept off his feet.

It was one thing to carry along from day to day, meting out service the best one might. It was another thing to be called upon to face group-appreciation that fairly engulfed one. Where the doctor had expected to be mildly bored and rather foolishly the target, he found himself almost too moved to speak. Tears clogged his voice. There was a moment in the great ball room when every one paused, so to speak, with a lump in the throat.

All except the doctor's wife.

She was too terrified. As her husband rose to his feet, it seemed to her that the room swam up around her like a billowing ocean of white shirt-fronts and the frills of women's frocks. She thought for a horrible moment she might faint. She clutched at her napkin. She clutched at the table edge. She almost clutched at her husband's coat tails.

Why—why—it was too awful. . . .

The doctor made what was structurally probably one of the worst speeches of his life-time, and yet curiously enough what was probably the most effective.

It had a climax.

At first he talked haltingly and kept taking swallows of water, which was more and more terrifying to her, because it showed he was not sure of himself. After a while, however, he went along fairly well. He went on to say a few gruff and rather humorous things that took the edge successfully off the emotional tendency of the crowd. He stirred up quite a laugh or two. He took a good-humored poke at a confrere or two, and then he led up to the subject of courage that had been emphasized by so many of the previous speakers.

For the first time his wife, sitting by, began to relax sufficiently to hear what he was saying. He had his bearing all right. He was not up to mark, that much was obvious, but there was no longer the mortal fear in her heart that he might not get through with it. Yes—he was talking of courage, now—she was calm enough to listen.

". . . . and you people, viewing the great big fraud of me standing here before you, talk to me of courage. Why, gentlemen—why, ladies—what if I were to tell you that for the last forty years of my life, there has been scarcely a night when I have not come home from my day's work and laid my head down on my arms and cried like a baby. Cried like a baby for release! You hear me, release from the torture of beholding so much misery—"

Why, what was her husband saying—he must not tell these people that—they knew not that side of him—she must yank his coat tails—she must—

"I've wanted to throw up my job at least once a day for at least fifty years. I hate it. I dread it. I detest it because it hurts me so. I'm a coward. I detest to see pain. It un-nerves me. I tell you, I've wanted to throw over my work forty times three hundred and sixty-five times in forty years.

"I'd have done it, too. Two or three times I did. Ran away like a whipped coward and had to be dragged back. You know what saved me? Ladies? Gentlemen?"

She must—she must yank his coat tails—this was too terrible —

"I'll tell you what saved me. This little person you see seated here on my right. I've come home whining to her, broken-hearted to her, licked to her, night after night after night. I've cried in her lap. I've begged her to release me—I've reneged, I've bullied, I've abused, I've threatened her, if she kept me to the grindstone.

"I've wanted to give up. I've been licked and she wouldn't let me surrender—she's taught me the beauty of service. Taught me to give.

"She's driven me on. She's my success. She's been relentless in her fight. She's the great surgeon. I'm her slave. She's the one with courage. I'm her disciple. Her spirit is sweetness and light and has shown me the way."

"Gentlemen—this isn't my dinner—it's this little person here—she's the soldier you've been celebrating—she's the secret of me! Rise, all of you—bow to her—rise, all of you—"

Why—why—she was fainting after all—shame on the doctor—she was fainting after all—and here they were bringing her around in time to clutch to the doctor's coat tails and give a weak-kneed bow to the cheering throng. Doctor—how could you!
