Marines take positions

Warplanes hit skies; troops' landing imminent

■ First mission will be to take control of seaport, airport at Mogadishu, U.S. officials say.

Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Somalis got their first look at U.S. power Monday when Navy warplanes roared over Mogadishu, and Pentagon sources said Marines would land at dawn Wednesday (9 p.m. CST today) to begin helping the starving people.

The 1,800 Marines standing offshore on three Navy ships are the vanguard of a multinational rescue mission in the war and famine-wracked nation. But Pentagon sources said most of the 28,000 U.S. soldiers and Marines committed to the operation might not begin arriving for several days.

Robert Oakley, a special U.S. envoy and former U.S. ambassador to Somalia, arrived Monday to meet with leaders of Somalia's warring clan leaders and with international aid workers to outline plans for the U.S.-led operation. He stressed that Washington envisioned a humanitarian effort and not a military one.

Oakley told reporters the U.N.-authorized operation would be the opposite of Desert Storm, the mammoth military campaign that dislodged the Iraqi army from Kuwait nearly two years ago.

"We hope it will remain a humanitarian operation all the way through, because the purpose is to protect

Court rejects abortion-curb law challenge

■ Justices' action represents a setback for abortion rights advocates.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court rejected a challenge to a Mississippi abortion law Monday, encouraging abortion foes but leading abortion-rights advocates to see "a frightening implication" for women nationwide.

The state law requires women to get counseling and then wait 24 hours before ending their pregnancies.

The justices, without comment, left intact a ruling that denied abortion clinic operators a hearing when they tried to block the law before it took effect last August.

At issue was how soon after such a law's enactment women may sue claiming it is an "undue burden" on their constitutional right.

Monday's action is not a decision on the merits of the Mississippi dispute and sets no national precedent. But it represented a setback for abortion rights advocates.

"It's hard to believe the Supreme

Bumbling baseball

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — For the first time since anyone could remember, baseball's winter meetings did not begin with a state of the game speech. There was no speech Monday morning at the Galt House because there was no commissioner to give it. Besides, there was no need for one because baseball's bumbling speaks for itself. Plainly put, the state of the game is a big, fat mess. Baseball is out of control, perhaps more than ever, and there's no one in control to right it./3A

Campbell's recall

WASHINGTON — Campbell Soup Co. is voluntarily recalling thousands of frozen dinners and cans of soup because some may contain small pieces of glass, the Agriculture Department said Monday. The soup and dinners were distributed to at least 33 states, Guam and Mexico. The problem was discovered when pieces of glass were found in bags of rice purchased from an outside source to be used in the soup and frozen dinners, USDA said. The recall involves about 332,000 frozen dinners and about 423,000 cans of soup./3A

LOS ANGELES — It's closing time, folks. After 11 years, NBC's hit barroom comedy "Cheers" is going off the air. The series, the longest-running comedy currently on television, will stop production at the end of this year, it was announced Monday. The final episode will air sometime in May. The final episode will be the series' 271st show. The executive producers said they haven't decided what form it will take.

Rule helps Texans keep auto policies

By Bob Mahlburg

N.Y. Times News Service

Insurers can no longer decline to renew your auto policy for a single accident that's not your fault..

After 20 years without an auto accident, retired Dallas businessman Raymond LaPlante discovered early this year that his insurance company would not renew his policy.

LaPlante had reported damage from two car break-ins and a dented door that he found on returning to an airport parking lot after a business flight.

None of the damage was his fault, he said, but his insurance company would not renew his policy, leaving him frustrated and angry.

Now, a new state insurance rule will help protect LaPlante and thousands of other Texas consumers from losing auto coverage in similar cases.

Under the rule, insurance companies can no longer decline to renew your auto insurance for a single accident that's not your fault.

The rule also blocks companies from dropping drivers who submit claims for a stolen car, weather damage such as hail, damage from colliding with a wayward cow crossing the highway, or a shattered windshield from a chunk of gravel.

Emphasis on live Christmas trees cuts its market niche

By Darren J. Waggoner

Staff writer

Keep Midland Beautiful's emphasis on purchasing live Christmas trees has had a mixed impact on local nurseries, but they say overall sales are brisk.

Bob Lanham, owner of Lanham's Nursery and Landscape Supply at 1402 Loop 250 West, said many people are choosing live trees that they can plant after the holidays because the prices are decreasing.

"A cut tree now is almost as expensive anymore," he said. "We ship them in from Washington state, which can be costly."

Christmas trees sold in West Texas tend to be more expensive because they have to be brought in from other states or other parts

Huge asteroid whizzes past, misses by celestial whisker

Moon to rise shrouded in dust, shadow

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the clouds cooperate, much of America will have the chance Wednesday to see an event that has thrilled and frightened millions over the years.

The moon will rise in eclipse, a condition that often shrouds the satellite in a blood red or coppery color because of the light filtering through the Earth's atmosphere.

Such a moon has been thought to portend the fall of dynasties in China, convinced Arawak Indians that Columbus was a messenger from heaven and disheartened the defenders of Constantinople, causing the city to fall in 1453.

"Nobody ever sees anything good in them," said astronomer Alan Fiala of the U.S. Naval Observatory, adding, "I don't

WASHINGTON (AP) — Look out, Earth! Toutatis is coming! Whoops! There it went. Whew!!

A 1-to-2-mile-wide asteroid zipped past the Earth at 11:35 p.m. CST Monday, missing the planet by just 2.2 million miles, a hair-thin margin of safety in celestial terms. A direct hit, say the experts, would produce a global disaster.

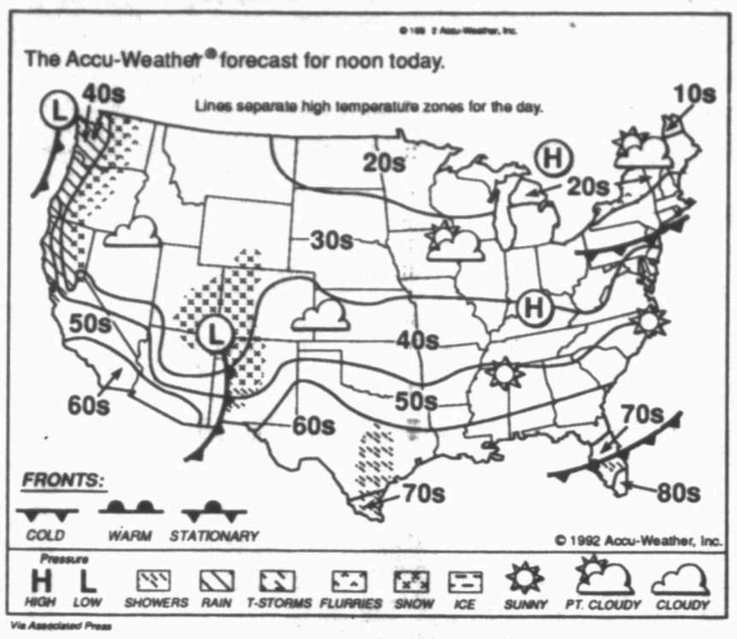

The asteroid was discovered in 1989 by a French astronomer and named Toutatis after a Gallic god called "protector of the tribe."

Astronomers say if it collided with the Earth, Toutatis could actually be destroyer of the tribe.

"It would be catastrophic if it hit the Earth," said Don Yeomans, a Jet Propulsion Laboratory research astronomer. "It would throw up enough material to shut down the sunlight and the plants would have died. It wouldn't have wiped out

DRUGS: 'Big man' to bring his message to city

rison said.

Ms. Morrison said that once the MHS students realized Creagh was coming to the Tall City, they said, "He's too good to just have him at Midland High, so let's share him with the community."

To that end, Creagh will bring his message about the dangers of drugs, alcohol and sex to students at both Midland and Lee High schools and freshman schools Friday. He also will visit with Midland College students on Friday.

On Saturday, the entire community is invited to hear him speak at two public rallies — 10 a.m. in the MHS auditorium and 3 p.m. at Carver Cultural Center. The rallies, and Creagh's talks — sponsored by Midland Independent School District — are being offered free of charge.

"It's hard to give up some of a Saturday," Ms. Morrison said. "But Milton Creagh is so dynamic. The kids who have heard him speak say he will make a difference in the lives of everyone who sees him.

"Primarily, I am going to try to spend some time working with kids to get them to see how significant it is to take the drug problem serious," Creagh said in a telephone interview from Stone Mountain, Ga.

"Everyone in America is sitting around waiting for someone to work on the problem when everyone has a piece of it. Parents have a piece of it. Kids have a piece of it. Businesses and churches have a piece of it. I try to get the community involved," Creagh said.

The nationally known motivational speaker, who speaks to 300,000 people in more than 30 states each year, said he attempts to bring parents and students "out of denial."

"Usually, the first thing I hear is drugs are not a problem here — maybe in Dallas or Houston, but not here," he said. "In reality, the 4½ years I have been on the road, I have not found one community without a drug problem."

Creagh said television newscasts tends to focus on drive-by shootings and drug dealers, rather than drug users.

"People tend to see urban cities in national news, and local news may not show the problem, either. Unfortunately, a lot of things happen in smaller communities and people don't get a feel for them. It allows people to be lulled into a false sense of complacency," he said.

And it's not the youth of inner cities who are abusing drugs the most, he said. "Studies for years have been showing that it's white students in suburban upper-class cities doing the most drugs. White, middle-class students from small-town America are second place for using dope ahead of kids in inner cities."

In addition to traveling across the country offering solutions to drug and alcohol and HIV problems, Creah has hosted his own weekly television shows in Atlanta, "In Effect" and "Atlanta Teen Talk."

He served as a 1991 Kellog Fellow in Resident and created PRIDE's African American Parent to Parent, a program to help parents raise drug-free children that is used in more than 100 communities nationwide.

"People and groups who have heard Milton is going to be here are coming from as far away as Alpine," said Ms. Morrison, who has heard one of the spesker's audiotapes.

"He doesn't just come out and tell kids not to do drugs, he tells them why."

Creagh said he has never been to Midland, but past experience tells him that "more drugs are being used than Midlanders realize. Kids are more willing to mention — in surveys — that they drink alcohol than smoke marijuana because the perception is that alcohol isn't that bad."

He said assuming alcohol isn't a serious drug is part of the problem.

"The sheer numbers of teens dying from alochol-related deaths says it is serious. Another part of the problem is that mom and dad may have a drug or alcohol problem," he said.

Creagh also discusses the dangers of sex and becoming infected with HIV. "Yes, I talk about sex," he said. "Studies indicate — of teen-agers in America — in slightly half of those having sex, one or both are under the influence of drugs or alcohol. This leads to increasing teen pregnancy and HIV infections spreading fastest in adolescent heterosexual teen-agers."

The speaker admits his talks are candid. "HIV is growing at a tremendous rate yet nobody seems to want to talk about it. You can't talk about alcohol or drugs without talking about sex. They are all co-related."

"Some people don't like the things I say. I don't care. I am going to tell students to say no to death. I meet some parents who don't like me telling kids dramatic or shocking stories, but they are real-life stories kids and counselors have shared with me."

Creagh said the name of the game is "declare a war on drugs."

"If a friend who can't swim is in a pool drowning and you are a good swimmer, you wouldn't think twice about jumping in. If you have the capacity to be a friend and a friend is doing something destructive, help pull them out. Like the drowning friend, a friend involved in drugs or alcohol ultimately may struggle against you and fight you, because they don't think they have a problem."

"It's time to quit waiting around for the school system or the Police Department to fix the problem. I can show some students and parents some common sense kinds of things to do — that don't cost money — that will get an individual on track. It's time to change perceptions about drugs and alcohol."

TREES: Local nurseries report overall brisk sales of Texas.

Planting live trees also reduces disposal and landfill problems, said Cindy Botes, executive director of Keep Midland Beautiful.

Cut trees at Lanham's, including Noble firs, Douglas firs and Scotch pines, start at $20. Live trees — some that are grown locally and the rest in New Mexico — begin at $50. Eldarica trees and Pinon pines also are available at Lanham's.

"I'm pleased with our sales thus far. They seem to be about even with the pace of last year," Lanham said.

Sales usually peak during the first weekend in December. Lanham's and La Casa Verde Nursery at 2615 N. Midland Drive reported booming sales last week.

But Trudy New, owner of La Casa Verde, said their live trees have not been very popular.

"Cut trees are much, much bigger here," she said. "They are always much more popular than the live ones."

The pre-cut trees at La Casa Verde range from $20 to $150 and are brought to the area from Oregon and Washington.

"We will also 'custom-flock' a tree upon request. It makes the tree look like it's been through a snowstorm," Ms. New said.

Custom-flocking costs $2 a foot for a light coating and $4 a foot for a heavy coat, she said.

Brenda Sosebee, manager of Enchanted Gardens, said their sales are down this year because they didn't bring in any live trees.

"It's our fault. We're in the process of changing owners and we didn't get them in," she said. "Last year we had 120 live trees."

But she said sales of the pre-cut trees brought from New Mexico are going well.

Prices for pre-cut Douglas firs at Enchanted Gardens start at $26 for a 5-foot tree to $30 for a 7-foot tree. Noble firs start at $34 for a 5-foot tree to $45 for a 6-foot tree.

City officials already have granted two special-use permits to groups selling Christmas trees. One of the groups is Oregan Trail Trees, which has set up shop at Western Auto on Andrews Highway and Midkiff Road, according to the city's planning department.

A permit request from Teen Challenge will be considered at the City Council meeting next Tuesday.

Profits from those sales are expected to be used to fund youth activities.

People buying pre-cut trees are advised to make a fresh cut on the stump and keep it in water. Trees can absorb up to a quart of water each day.

Before cut trees are sold, nurseries typically spray them down several times a day to keep them fresh.

deliveries of relief supplies, relief workers and relief recipients," Oakley said.

Aid groups say half the food donated for starving Somalis has been stolen by the gangs of gunmen who have held sway during a nearly 2-year-old civil war. An estimated 300,000 Somalis have died from starvation, disease and fighting this year, and 250,000 more are feared to be in imminent danger.

Underscoring the chaos, rival militiamen battled for a second day in Baidoa, one of the inland towns hit hardest by famine. A spokesman for the international relief agency CARE, Rick Grant, said at least 48 people were killed and 50 wounded Monday.

Grant said at least 28 and possibly 34 died in fighting Sunday between feuding clansmen.

Michael McDonagh, an official of the Irish relief agency Concern, said relief workers feared Somali militiamen would go on a last-minute spree of shooting and stealing.

"They know that come tomorrow the gravy train is over. The next 24 hours are going to be very crucial," McDonagh said.

U.S. troops and smaller contingents from France, Canada, Italy, Egypt, Turkey, Kuwait and other nations hope to impose calm so relief supplies can move into the countryside in safety.

American officials have said U.S. troops will fight if necessary. But Marlin Fitzwater, the White House spokesman, said Monday that the initial response from Somali warlords had been better than expected.

"Many of the problems we had feared most have not materialized," Fitzwater said.

Fewer young gunmen have been on the streets of Mogadishu in recent days, and there have been reports that many have moved inland to avoid foreign troops.

Kenya announced Monday that it closed its border with Somalia to prevent armed Somalis from seeking refuge. Ethiopia took the same step over the weekend. The two nations abut nearly all of Somalia's land frontier, which runs across thinly populated semi-desert.

U.S. officers in the Navy's amphibious task force said the first mission of the Marines off Somalia's coast would be to take control of the seaport and airport at Mogadishu. The Marines — who arrived in the area last week — will come ashore in helicopters and amphibious vehicles.

They will first secure the airport in Baidoa, 200 miles to the west, to pave the way for the Army's 10th Mountain Division.

Two Navy F-14s flew over Mogadishu, dropping orange flares to defend against any possible attack by militiamen armed with shoulder-mounted missiles. Pentagon sources said F-14s from the aircraft carrier USS Ranger flew reconnaissance missions over Somalia scouting for the Marine landing.

Cable News Network said a team of U.S. air traffic controllers landed about 30 miles west of Mogadishu on Monday to help guide in planes that will bring more troops and supplies once the Marines secure airfields.

Oakley, a former ambassador to Somalia, met with U.N. Special Envoy Ismat Kittani and with officials of international aid agencies. He said he would meet today with the two strongest warlords, Mohamed Farrah Aidid and his clan rival, Ali Mahdi Mohamed, who control halves of the city.

WHEW: Huge asteroid misses

everything, but millions and millions of people would expire."

Yeomans said Toutatis is on an orbit that carries it across Earth's orbit every four years, passing the planet at varying distances. In 1996 and 2000, the asteroid will miss by a wide margin. But in 2004, Toutatis passes within one million miles — about four times the distance between Earth and its moon.

That, said Yeomans, will be the closest approach for at least 200 years, the limit, so far, of the calculations.

Astronomers say, however, that Toutatis is not the only alien planetoid that the Earth needs to worry about.

"There are millions of truck-sized objects out there," Yeomans said. And there are thousands more of up to a third of a mile across. None of these pose a threat, because they would burn up in the atmosphere before hitting Earth.

But anything of a kilometer — six-tenths of a mile — or bigger wouldn't completely burn up in the atmosphere and could cause major damage on impact with the Earth.

Yeoman said Toutatis, when measured against a fixed point in space, was moving at more than 88,000 miles an hour as it flashed by the Earth.

The explosion of energy caused by Toutatis hitting the Earth at that speed would be difficult to imagine, experts say.

Eugene Shoemaker, a U.S. Geological Survey astronomer, said that an object the size of Toutatis would gouge out a crater more than 30 miles across. Some material would be vaporized, while dust splashed high into the atmosphere would remain there for long periods of time, blotting out the sun.

If the asteroid hit an ocean, giant waves would roar far inland on virtually all continents, and then bounce from shore to shore, sort of like what would happen if an anvil were dropped into a bath tub.

ECLIPSE: Moon to be shrouded

think people take them as evil omens anymore."

A total eclipse of the moon will be fully under way when the orb of the night sky rises along the East Coast, Fiala reports.

"Normally the Earth's atmosphere refracts enough light (during an eclipse) that you can see the moon. Usually it looks dark red or a shade of copper," he explained.

But this time, thanks to the lingering dust from the eruption of Mt. Pinatubo in the Philippines, "it could be darker red or blacked out, or a gradation," he said.

The eclipse begins at 3:59 p.m. CST, when the Earth's shadow begins to cross the moon. This is nearly the same time the moon will be rising for residents in the East.

Total coverage of the moon by the darkest shadow begins at 5:07 p.m. CST and continues for 1 hour and 15 minutes. The moon will be back to normal at 7:29 p.m., covering almost the entire United States before that.

Visibility of the eclipse depends on cloud cover, a potential problem in December's normally stormy weather, and the time of sunset in local areas. Western states, for example, will still be in daylight during much of the eclipse.

The total eclipse of the moon should be visible for at least a few minutes for people east of a line from eastern Texas to eastern Montana.

This is the first total eclipse of the moon since Feb. 9, 1990, though there was a partial eclipse last June 15. The next total eclipse will be June 4, 1993.

The effect of the dust from Pinatubo, which has provided spectacular sunrises and sunsets for more than a year, is the big question, Fiala said. The Philippine volcano blasted massive amounts of dust into the atmosphere in June 1991.

Because it's an eclipse of the moon, spectators can simply go outdoors and watch without worrying about the glare that occurs in solar eclipses.

They can watch without fear, that is, as long as they aren't worried about evil omens.

RULE: Insurance companies begin notifying drivers

(From 1A)

Insurance companies quietly began notifying Texas drivers of the change last month after the State Board of Insurance rule took effect.

"It's a small but very meaningful improvement in protecting consumers' access to reasonably priced auto insurance," said John Hildreth, regional director of Consumers Union.

However, the protection has its limits.

Insurance companies can still decline to renew a policy if you report two or more auto thefts in one year or suffer two or more accidents — even if they're not your fault.

Insurance firms lobbied to allow such exceptions, saying that not allowing policies to be dropped after multiple car thefts or hit-and-run accidents would encourage fraudulent claims. The final rule is a good compromise, said Jerry Johns, president of the Southwestern Insurance Information Service.

"It was a matter of the industry and the state board reaching decisions to benefit the consumer," he said.

Johns said that only a handful of companies have refused to renew policies when damage is not the driver's fault. But consumer groups contend that the practice is widespread.

"You file a claim and you're out," Hildreth said. Some policyholders are canceled immediately, and others are turned down for renewal.

State Insurance Department officials receive hundreds of consumer complaints each year but keep no count of how many are from drivers whose coverage was not renewed because of circumstances beyond their control, department spokesman Dana Palmer said.

LaPlante, a retired Dallas manufacturing executive, said his car was insured by Commercial Union Insurance Co. of Louisiana for more than two decades without a single claim before it was vandalized by thieves and damaged by a hit-and-run driver at the airport.

"When it came up for renewal in 1992, I got a 'Dear John' letter saying they were not going to renew it," he said. "I was very unhappy."

COURT: Justices reject challenge to law

(From 1A)

Court would be so heartless or blind to the injustice of allowing women in Mississippi to be used as human guinea pigs — to force them to bear the undue burdens of these restrictions and then require them to come back for relief," said Planned Parenthood lawyer Carole Chervin.

But Burke Balch of the National Right to Life Committee said it is now clear the court does not believe in "endless litigation over whether women have the right to know the facts about the development of the unborn child and about alternatives to abortion."

In other matters, the court:

■ Refused to reinstate the Iran-Contra convictions of former national security adviser John M. Poindexter.

■ Agreed to decide whether new congressional districts fashioned by North Carolina's General Assembly discriminate unlawfully against white voters.

■ Refused to kill a lawsuit against the Pentagon by a California lesbian kicked out of the Army reserves because of her sexual preference.

■ Steered clear of a Florida obscenity flap over rap, leaving intact a ruling that said the group 2 Live Crew's album "As Nasty as They Wanna Be" wrongly was denied free-speech protection.

In the Mississippi abortion case, a federal appeals court threw out a challenge to the state law last August. It noted the Supreme Court had upheld in June a Pennsylvania law that imposes similar counseling requirements and an identical 24-hour waiting period.

In that landmark decision last June, the justices said states may not outlaw most abortions or impose "undue burdens" on women's constitutional right to such operations.

The June ruling also gave states greater leeway to regulate abortions, eroding some aspects of the court's 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision.

In the Mississippi case, lawyers for three doctors and two abortion clinics in Jackson said regulations found to be lawful in one state might be "undue burdens" in another.

State of game: Bumbling, bungling Major League Baseball strikes out

By Ben Walker
Associated Press writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — For the first time since anyone could remember, baseball's winter meetings did not begin with a state of the game speech.

There was no speech Monday morning at the Galt House because there was no commissioner to give it.

Besides, there was no need for one because baseball's bumbling speaks for itself.

Plainly put, the state of the game is a big, fat mess. Baseball is out of control, perhaps more than ever, and there's no one in control to right it.

There was:

■ The incredibly dumb decision by owners to deny the Rev. Jesse Jackson a chance to talk to them about Marge Schott and the whole issue of racism.

■ The bungled Barry Bonds news conference, an embarrassing episode in which the San Francisco Giants stopped a news conference to sign him before it even started.

■ The ruling on Steve Howe, who was given an eighth chance to come back.

■ The free agent frenzy, with owners

■ Analysis

pleading poverty and then lining up to throw millions of dollars at Spike Owen and everyone else available.

■ The whole business of the Giants, and where they'll play in the future.

■ The power play that sacked commissioner Fay Vincent.

And, just when it seemed like things couldn't fall apart any further, owners voted Monday — by a 15-13 vote — to reopen the labor contract with players, a move that could lead to a lockout next spring.

What's going on here? Has baseball lost its way, or what?

"Um, well, I've been reading a lot about that lately," deputy commissioner Steve Greenberg said. "But I don't think so."

Still, it made for an odd scene when Greenberg walked into the press room Sunday night and had no idea that the Giants' $43.75 million deal with Bonds had not gotten done.

Or, in the midst of the whole controversy about Bonds' contract breaking, seeing Milwaukee owner Bud Selig — technically baseball's man in charge as chairman of the executive council — excuse himself to attend a Brewers' meeting.

Selig and the other owners met Monday afternoon to vote on the labor pact. Naturally, the starting time of the meeting was in doubt because some owners had mistakenly been given two different times.

"Decisions are getting made, it's just in a different way than before," Greenberg said.

But, as a prominent agent asked late Sunday night, "Who was the bozo who made the decision to tell Jesse Jackson that he couldn't come?"

Campbell issues recall on dinners, soups

WASHINGTON (AP) — Campbell Soup Co. is voluntarily recalling thousands of frozen dinners and cans of soup because some may contain small pieces of glass, the Agriculture Department said Monday. The soup and dinners were distributed to at least 33 states, Guam and Mexico.

The problem was discovered when pieces of glass were found in bags of rice purchased from an outside source to be used in the soup and frozen dinners, USDA said.

"Because of the potential hazard, we strongly urge consumers to avoid eating these products," said Donald L. White, associate administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service.

The department said it has received no complaints from consumers about any of the products. Consumers were urged to return any suspect products unopened to the store where they were purchased.

The suspect products were distributed largely in the Western states, although some products may be found in at least 33 states and Guam. Some of the product was also distributed to Elmendorf Air Force Base in Alaska, and a small amount was exported to Mexico.

The company is recalling four frozen dinner products and three canned soup products.

The product names, net weights, and codes, including recommended use-by dates and production code, that appear on the package or can are:

■ Swanson Mexican Style Combination Dinner (13¼ oz.) with codes: JAN 94 EST 4G A22; FEB 94 EST 4G BJ2; FEB 94 EST 4G BL2; FEB 94 EST 4G BP2.

■ Swanson Hungry Man Mexican Style Dinner (20 oz.) with codes: JAN 94 EST 4G A42; FEB 94 EST 4G BE2; FEB 94 EST 4G BM2; FEB 94 EST 4G BR2.

■ Swanson Budget Mexican Style Meal (10½ oz) with code: FEB 94 EST 4G BB2.

■ Swanson Hungry Man Boneless Chicken Dinner (17¼ oz.) with codes: FEB 94 P133 BD2; FEB 94 P133 B-2.

■ Campbell's Chicken with Rice Soup (10½ oz.) with code: OCT 94 P5 0562.

■ Campbell's Chicken Gumbo Soup (10¾ oz.) with codes OCT 94 P5 08E2; OCT 94 P5 08E3.

■ Campbell's Home Cookin' Ready to Service Chicken with Rice Soup (19 oz.) with code: OCT 94 P5 DAD3.

The code numbers may be on more than one line and may not be the only numbers embossed on the can or package.

Consumers with questions about the recall may call the toll-free USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-4555. The hot line may be reached from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. CST Monday through Friday.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Resist peer pressure and you will enjoy greater career or business success. Be a leader, not a follower. Early 1993 should find you setting your own goals and following your own timetable. In April, you feel strengthened by the love and support of those who believe in you. The financial outlook is especially rosy next summer. A special grant or endowment in the fall lets you continue work on an important project.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Kim Basinger, singer Sinead O'Connor, comedian Flip Wilson, flutist James Galway.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Today finds you in a great mood, with a fresh sense of purpose. You are ready to enjoy the best life has to offer. An intimate dinner for two could rekindle a lackluster romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lie low at work and wait for further developments. A complicated business maneuver will surprise your competitors and put you way ahead. Stick close to home tonight. Let loved ones know you care.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Adopt a more professional approach to your job responsibilities. Institutional bonds and group ties will help your career along. Handle important documents with special care.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You now think in terms of the whole, rather than in bits and pieces. Romance takes on a new glow. Concentrate on developing closer rapport with family members. Catch up on world events tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You benefit from viewing the past in a new light. Although your workload is heavy, the payoff is close at hand. The outlook for romance improves greatly when you reveal your feelings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An out-of-town visitor could play havoc with your work or business plans. Offer a sweet diversion! Communicating with a former employer could lead to a lucrative second career.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Working behind the scenes lets you conserve your energy. Guard secrets. Good timing is the key to your continued success. Pay bills promptly to protect your credit rating.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A hobby could turn into a profitable business enterprise. A child plays a key role in an important decision. A move to another town is pending. A college loan comes through.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A conflict between work and home could put a crimp in your social plans. A compromise will alleviate tension. Someone tests your loyalty — you pass with flying colors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not fret if a friend fails to keep a promise. There could be a very good explanation. Someone in the arts gets a vote of confidence. Romance moves into high gear.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A close pal will help out in an emergency. Return the favor as quickly as possible. Your creative talents begin to receive greater public recognition. Refrain from bragging.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do everything you can to promote harmony at your place of employment. Pool resources with your associates while looking for opportunities to gain new knowledge or skills.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are openminded, resilient and optimistic. They know how to enjoy life and are experts at getting people to look on the bright side. Their joie de vivre is truly infectious! Energetic and smart, these Sagittarians welcome new challenges. Born risk-takers, they may sometimes appear foolhardy. Do not expect them to waste time grieving over an occasional loss. They have many more successes than failures.

Opening lead: Jack of ◇

Are you proud of your skill as a declarer? If so, cover up the East-West hands and decide how you would play six hearts after the lead of the diamond jack.

It is unlikely that West would lead away from the king of diamonds against a slam, but it costs nothing to try the queen from dummy. As expected, East produces the king and your ace wins. You try the ace and king of hearts, and can coast home if the trumps break evenly. However, the fates are not kind. How would you play the hand if West shows out on the second heart? What if East is the defender with heart shortness?

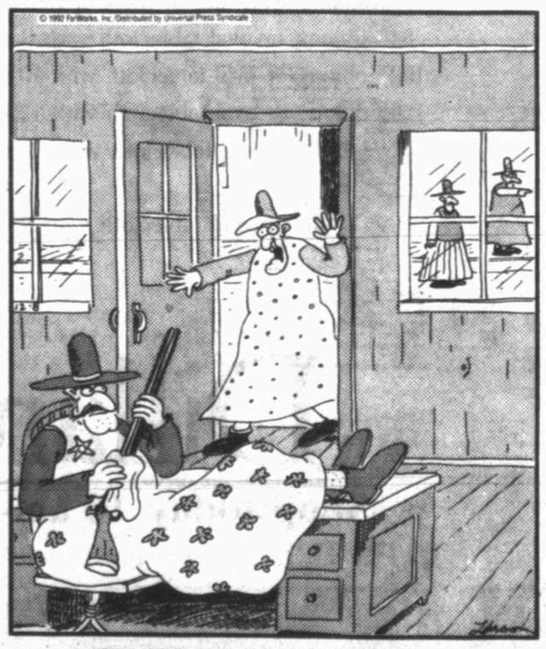

Since you must get rid of three diamonds from hand, you need to find the player with the long trumps holding four clubs as well. If East has the length, only one lie of the cards can salvage the contract—West's clubs must be specifically Q 9. The A K will pick up those two cards, setting up J 8 in dummy. You discard two diamonds on those cards, and your last diamond goes away on the fifth club. East can ruff that trick, but the defenders get nothing but their high trump.

If West has three trumps, your chances are better—any four clubs in that hand without the queen will land the slam. Lead a club from dummy and finesse the ten. Cash the ace, dropping the queen, cross to the king of spades and run clubs. Again, the defenders can get only one trump trick. Congratulations on your skilled declarer play.

Bolton impresses Dangerfield at cancer research benefit

MILFORD, Conn. — Soul singer Michael Bolton did his Rodney Dangerfield imitation in public again, but this time the comedian was in the room.

Bolton

"He does me better than I do me," Dangerfield said, cracking up the formally dressed crowd during a five-minute routine in the middle of a benefit for cancer research Sunday night.

The dinner was the third-annual benefit for This Close For Cancer Research Inc., a charity formed by Bolton's childhood buddy, the late Joel Brander, after he learned he had leukemia in January 1990. Brander died in February.

Bolton, whose songs include "To Love Somebody" and "When a Man Loves a Woman," said his dedication to the cause began as a favor to his old friend, but has grown beyond that.

"Everyone has been touched by cancer," said Bolton, who lives in nearby Westport. "I want to feel I'm contributing to people who are making breakthroughs — and will continue to make breakthroughs."

Dangerfield said he first became aware of the need to raise more money for cancer research about six years ago when his manager died of lymphoma.

"Then I became aware of it when Michael did an impression of me on 'The Tonight Show,'" he said. "He got more laughs than I did."

BALTIMORE — Nobel Peace Prize laureate Elie Wiesel says recent events in Germany and the Balkans have made him pessimistic about mankind.

Wiesel, an author who has written extensively about his experience as a Holocaust survivor, said Sunday he returned from a peace mission to Bosnia-Herzegovina last week discouraged about prospects for peace. He described the Balkans as an area of near hopelessness.

Sarajevo, he said, "is a city which today symbolizes isolation ... and total abandonment."

"We are entering a new century and, the way things are today, I am pessimistic about the next century," he said during a talk at Beth Am synagogue. "Look at what's happening in Germany. Once more, Germany is assaulted morally by the Nazis."

RADNOR, Pa. — What do the "Home Alone" movies have in common with "The Wonder Years" on ABC?

Daniel Stern.

Stern, the frizzy-haired burglar who teams with Joe Pesci to get their lame brains bashed in by Macaulay Culkin on the big screen, is the unseen voice of a grown-up Kevin Arnold (played by Fred Savage) on the television series.

"Most people think I'm kidding," Stern said in this week's TV Guide. "I tell them, 'Close your eyes,' and then I say, 'When I was 12 and growing up in the suburbs ...' And they go 'Wow, it really is you.' "

Stern is directing his first feature film, "Rookie of the Year," about a 12-year-old boy who can throw a 112 mph fastball, starring Thomas Nicholas.

NEW YORK — Morton L. Janklow has his name on a literary agency, Janklow & Nesbit Associates, and on a law firm, Janklow Newborn & Ashley. So where, one wonders, can it be found next?

Given Janklow's interest in the connections between law and the arts, an academic chair seems appropriate. He has established the Morton L. Janklow Professorship of Literary and Artistic Property Law at the Columbia University School of Law. Jane C. Ginsburg, an expert in the field and a member of the faculty, has been named to the professorship.

Janklow's clients include Danielle Steel, David McCullough, former President Ronald Reagan and Vice President-elect Al Gore.

HOLLY, Mich. — Don't ask Soupy Sales when he plans to retire from the comedy business.

Sales

"There's no heavy lifting," he said. "I haven't been making cars or running cranes. You've got George Burns, Bob Hope, Henny Youngman. You keep working, but you might not work as much, because I find in our business there is age discrimination."

Sales, in the Detroit area last week for several nightclub appearances, remembers getting his start in 1953 on the Detroit children's television show "Lunch with Soupy."

He's lived in New York the past 30 years but at age 66 has reduced his touring to about two weeks a month. He also likes playing guest disc jockey across the country when regulars are on vacation.

"Hey, listen, it's called, 'Paying the rent,'" he said. "And also, the subtitle is, 'Paying the alimony.'"

Sales said some clubs only want 18- to 49-year-old comedy acts these days.

"But that's where they're stupid, because when it's funny, it's funny," he said. "Funny has no age limit."

Sen. Bentsen makes smart Cabinet choice

Lloyd Bentsen, the senior senator from Texas who is said to be President-elect Bill Clinton's choice for Treasury secretary, is without question highly qualified to hold that important position, but Texans no doubt would hate to lose the senator's expertise and seniority in the U.S. Senate.

Since 1970 he has served Texans in the Senate and although he has been criticized for liberal votes on some issues, on business and trade matters he has supported essentially conservative positions. Bentsen now serves as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

One example of the senator's recent work is President Bush's much-touted North American Free Trade Agreement, which Bentsen has supported.

In fact, while in Midland just prior to the November general election that boosted Clinton to the Oval Office, Bentsen said the trade agreement should result in more higher paying jobs for Americans and an improved trade picture on U.S. petrochemicals shipped to Mexico.

Even while remarking on the trade bill's positive provisions, the senator was careful to note that getting the measure through the Congress is not going to be easy. That's one of our concerns if Bentsen is Clinton's choice for the Treasury job. Sen. Bentsen is an effective spokesman for major bills, which the North American Free Trade Agreement is, and we'd hate to see Texas and the nation deprived of his powers of persuasion.

Of course, Phil Gramm, Texas' Republican senator, also is supporting the free trade agreement and, thus, the state would still be assured of adequate representation even if Bentsen were to join the Clinton administration.

The fact that Clinton is considering individuals of Lloyd Bentsen's caliber for his administration, in fact, gives us assurance that the new president plans to choose his team carefully. That is good. He and the nation could certainly do worse than to have someone of Bentsen's financial expertise in the Treasury role.

OTHER VIEWS

World backed away from European-U.S. trade war

Last weekend (Nov. 21) the world backed away from an impending trade war.

Earlier this month the U.S. government, reacting to European farm subsidies, imposed a 200 percent tariff on European food imports, mostly French white wine. The U.S. action was uncalled for. Why punish U.S. consumers, and risk a trade war, over European actions?

Despite the U.S. mistake, the Europeans have resolved to come to an agreement with U.S. government officials over any trade disputes and to liberalize trade.

What led to this outbreak of common sense? Perhaps it was the memory of the last mega-trade war of the 1930s, which greatly contributed to the appalling depth of the Great Depression.

Thus though the road to free trade is bumpy, and we might drive off a cliff, all the major players now seem ready to drive carefully.

School financing is pennies on the taxpayer's table

For most Texans, the largest tax burden placed on them by the state comes in the form of school taxes, compounded by the County Education District tax.

With the various school financing proposals flying around Austin today, that reality has never been more clear.

Basically — under any plan — the state's poorest school districts will be given more money and the rest of the school districts, no matter how well they have managed their finances, will have less money as their reward.

And the taxpayer will be stuck with making up the difference.

Equalizing school funding is the mandate that cannot be argued; it has been ordered by the Texas Supreme Court.

The voters will ultimately decide what they believe the definition of equal financing should be.

It will not be a pleasant decision, but the alternative is even tougher to stomach; letting a judge decide.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, December 8th, the 343rd day of 1992. There are 23 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 8, 1941, the United States entered World War II as it declared war against Japan, a day after the attack on Pearl Harbor. In calling for the declaration of war, President Franklin D. Roosevelt called Dec. 7, 1941, "a date which will live in infamy."

On this date:

In 1776, George Washington's retreating army in the American Revolution crossed the Delaware River from New Jersey to Pennsylvania.

In 1854, Pope Pius the Ninth proclaimed the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, which holds that Mary, the mother of Jesus, was free of Original Sin from the moment she was conceived.

In 1863, President Abraham Lincoln announced his plan for the Reconstruction of the South.

In 1886, the American Federation of Labor was founded at a convention of union leaders in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1914, "Watch Your Step," the first musical revue to feature a score completely by Irving Berlin, opened in New York.

In 1949, the Chinese Nationalist government moved from the Chinese mainland to Formosa as the Communists pressed their attacks.

CHARLEY REESE

Decent ends don't justify indecent means

One lesson of the 20th century is that the most difficult thing for a human being to do is remain loyal to human decency.

In the comfort of home or office how simple — in theory — it seems to stand against murder, torture, brutality, and deprivation of liberty. Ask almost any of us if we condone these things and we automatically say no.

Reese

Yet, the ugly fact is that we often do. Most often we commit treason against human decency when we are seduced by a cause or an ideology. The history of the 20th century is not only a history of some of the greatest mass murderers and tyrants who ever existed — it is also the more squalid history of people who thought of themselves as decent while assisting these mass murderers.

The familiar stories of the inhuman cruelty and mass slaughter of Josef Stalin and Adolf Hitler are sickening; more sickening is to look back and see all the people who praised these monsters, defended them, made propaganda for them, excused their acts, and attacked, often viciously, those few heroes who told the truth about them.

These accessories to mass murder include many famous authors, journalists, artists, entertainers, politicians, businessmen, academics, and clergy.

It is not a case, as any survivors would have you believe, that these people just didn't know. They knew. In some cases, they just didn't care. In some cases, their zeal for ideology motivated them to lie. In some cases, they were just corrupt — bought and paid for by the tyrants.

This is not some phenomenon that occurred only in the past. It's happening right now. The arguments being advanced to supply credit and industrial technology to China — the last of the great mass murder governments still in power — are virtually identical to the arguments used to justify assistance to Stalin and Hitler.

One of the greatest barriers to success facing Boris Yeltsin in Russia and other reformers in the former communist countries are huge amounts of foreign debt. That debt consists of loans made by banks in democratic countries not to the reformers but to the previous communist tyrants.

It would be justice if Yeltsin and the others who replaced the communists repudiated the debt. Just, but not practical, because if they did, the democratic countries would quickly show Yeltsin that given a choice between a tyrant who pays his bill and a democrat who doesn't, they'll take the tyrant — and if necessary, help put him back in power, and lend him the money to buy the bullets with which to execute the reformers.

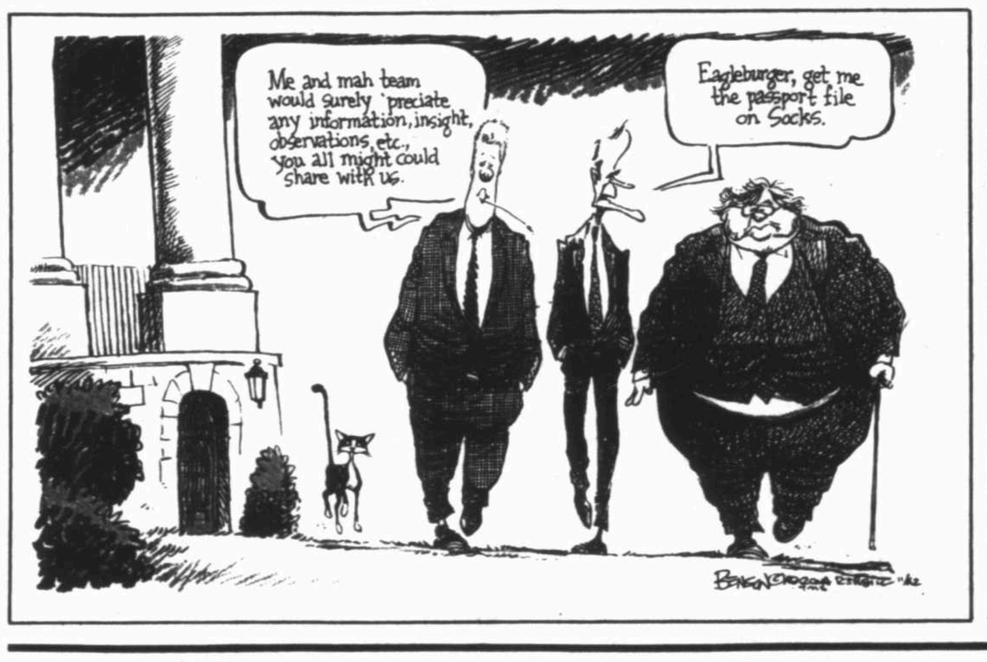

Of course the United States, Great Britain, France and Germany armed Saddam Hussein. They are now in effect arming the Chinese by saving the Chinese economy from the flaws of its ideological leaders. Never mind the millions of corpses in China and Tibet. Never mind the future crop of corpses the present policy will grow.

Few there are — a holy few — who have remain faithful to human decency. For most of us, it is all to easy to take a leave of absence from our conscience in the name of our cause or ideology. The leftist will justify leftist indecency; the rightist, rightist indecency; the nationalist, nationalist indecency; the religious, religious indecency.

We easily condemn Saddam Hussein's brutal treatment of Iraqis and just as easily condone our own brutal treatment of Iraqis. It's horrid if Saddam kills 1,000 Iraqis, but it's okay if we kill 200,000 of them. It's horrid if he denies his people a vote, but it's okay if we deny them food and medicine.

We are all most corruptible when we believe in some cause. The heroes are those who realize that bad means to a good end corrupt both the end and everyone connected with it. Corruption, too, is indivisible. We are either decent or indecent.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Intervention presents clash of principles

While supervising the "Vietnamization" of the Indochinese war, President Nixon declared that this country's policeman-of-the-world days were finished, kaput. But that was before Somalia, whose self-induced agony may soon have our men back pounding the beat. And being pounded in return? We can't tell, but apprehensions are rightly high.

Murchison

The very suggestion, from George Bush, of an American military presence in Somalia chills to the marrow.

Somalia — a venue many Americans couldn't find with a map and a ouija board — is umistakably a hard case. Somalians are starving other Somalians. An estimated 80 percent of food and supplies thus far shipped to Somalia from outside have been stolen or confiscated by local warlords. Thirty thousand American troops, by Bush's reckoning, might succeed in keeping the jackals apart from the gazelles while the latter gorge themselves.

He is right of course. We have the power. What we lack is the answer to a big, big question: What then?

Once we have fed the hungry, with that Christian charity the secularists dislike hearing about in public places, what then? We bring the troops home. But the warlords may come back. The starvation and bloodletting could resume. What then? Might we have to return?

The deeper one country wades into the affairs of another country — with generous or ungenerous impulses either one — the harder withdrawal becomes. The British went to India to trade and ended up owning the place. Look what happened to the Soviets in Afghanistan.

Somalia, to say the truth, probably needs new colonial overlords — the British, French and Italians used to run different parts of the country and do it fairly well — but the United States manifestly doesn't need new foreign dependents. There is almost an infinite supply of potential dependents, waiting for some nice superpower to pull their chestnuts from the fire. What about Bosnia-Herzegovina? Is there not a case here, equivalent to Somalia's, for American intervention? What of the ex-Soviet republics? Maybe we should free Northern Ireland from the British, Quebec from the Canadians.

Now and again a hard-pressed country's interests and our own interests will coincide. Kuwait's interest in expelling the Iraqis and ours in maintaining oil supply lines is the best recent example. More usual will be the fracases that are none of our business. Vietnam was a splendid example, and that was during a cold war. With the communist threat removed, few places outside the Western Hemisphere seem suitable for U.S. military intervention, or even for the stationing of American troops. Why Europe needs our continued military presence is a mystery to many of us. We are not policeman to the world.

And yet people are starving in Somalia. Are we to do nothing? If we do anything in Somalia, it seems to me, we should do it warily — and with fixed and stated objectives. The lack of stated objectives contributed mightily to the debacle in Vietnam. We didn't have any clear idea what it was we were trying to do. Nor had we any timetable. Our commitment was open-ended.

As a senior member of the United Nations, the United States might — might — commit its forces, in collaboration with other countries' forces, to the relief of the starving. But, if so, we should be plain about the limits of that collaboration. The danger to American troops must be minimal. Americans must not fight pitched battles with the rebels. The deployment must last only a few months. In other words, we have to answer clearly that basic question: What then? With the lives of Americans at stake, we can't make it up as we go.

Somalia, in the jet age as in the era of the ox cart, is halfway around the world. No vital American interest is at stake in the outcome of the civil strife. Except that of helping demonstrate to bad men the limits to good men's toleration of barbarism.

The existence of such limits is one of two competing principles at stake here, the other being the priority of U.S. interests over any one else's interests. Sometimes in real life, you can't stand on just one principle. You have to acknowledge both. But with exquisite, painstaking care.

Observer tells how to survive 'Eating Season'

Eating season has begun. It starts on Thanksgiving Day and runs all the way through New Year's.

A lot of people dread the coming of Eating Season and all those dinner parties because They know they are going to gain weight.

Grizzard

I don't have that problem. I could eat a pickup-truck load of food and still not gain weight.

The politically correct way to describe me is "lard-deficient."

The politically incorrect way to describe me is "The man's a walking two iron."

I'm not certain why I never gain weight no matter what I eat. Somebody suggested I had a high metabolism.

I went to my doctor, but he couldn't find one.

Somebody else suggested I might have a tapeworm, but the X-rays were negative.

That long thing going from my neck to my stomach was an undigested vermicelli noodle left over from the spaghetti dinner I had the night before — which also included buttered French bread and a pint of ice cream covered in chocolate sauce with whipped cream on top.

You're probably saying, "I could simply be in the same room with a pint of ice cream and gain four pounds. This pipe cleaner is trying to rub it in."

Not true.

Not only am I not trying to rub in the fact that I can soar through Eating Season with no weight gain, I also have some advice for those who emerge each year from Eating Season having put on the weight of the left side of a Little League infield.

Because I've never had that problem, I hereby offer these tips on how not to come out of the holidays with the fear that if somebody tied you to a stake in the ground with a rope, you easily could be mistaken for the Sea World blimp:

— Eat Standing Up at Holiday Parties: You've got your drink in one hand, which leaves only the other hand free to hold food, which means it's going to be difficult to pick up an entire smoked turkey. Sit down with a plate and both hands free, and the Sea World blimp couldn't get airborne with you in it.

— Chew Thoroughly and Swallow Before Putting Anymore Food in Your Mouth:

This will cut down on the amount of time you have to eat. I realize a piece of coconut cake goes great mixed in your mouth with four melon balls and a leg of lamb, but you've got to work with me here.

— Remember There Will Be Other Opportunities to Eat: Pigs don't know that. That's why pigs gorge. But you should know that, so get your head out of the sweet potato souffle.

— Don't Ask for Leftovers to Take Home for Your Dog at Seasonal Gatherings: You don't even have a dog.

— Don't Say to Yourself, I'll go on a Diet in January: Don't kid yourself. I looked up "before" in the dictionary and your picture was next to it.

— Don't Eat Anything Bigger Than Your Head: Sound advice, so put down that cheese ball.

Hoe handle here says, "Good luck."

Indian police clear rioting Hindu pilgrims from disputed holy site

By Ajay Singh
Associated Press Writer

AYODHYA, India — In a bloodless pre-dawn operation, Indian riot police cleared Hindu extremists Tuesday from the disputed holy site where they had demolished a mosque and began building a Hindu temple.

Police said 600 helmeted troops using bamboo staves and tear gas regained control of the site after a half-hour struggle with the militant pilgrims, who fought back with stones. A few people on both sides suffered minor injuries.

Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao's government has been trying to reestablish its authority over cities wracked by Hindu-Muslim riots following the destruction of the 430-year-old mosque on Sunday. More than 200 people were killed Monday in the nationwide riots.

The destruction of the Babri Masjid enraged India's Muslim neighbors, Pakistan and Bangladesh; prompted calls for Rao's ouster; and threatened widescale violence among India's 700 million Hindus and 100 million Muslims.

On Monday, the government announced a ban on fundamentalist groups. The army was ordered to take control of riot-torn sections of Bombay, India's business center, after 40 people died. Outraged Muslims stoned cars and trucks and stopped the suburban railroads that feed into the city of 8 million.

More than 160 other people were killed in almost every one of India's 32 states and territories, news agencies reported.

In Ayodhya, Police Superintendent Vinod Vir Singh said the police crept up before dawn Tuesday on the Hindu extremists from two sides, then called to them through loudspeakers to evacuate the site.

When they got no response, the police charged, he said. He expected the remaining pilgrims would leave.

"Now that the rule of law has been established, they will have to go," he said. "There is no question of a counterattack. They have understood the language of the law."

About 300,000 Hindus had converged on the town last week in order to destroy the temple.

After the operation, some of the policemen offered prayers to the Hindu idols that had been placed under an orange canopy on the newly laid temple foundations, Singh said.

By nightfall Monday, the Hindus had built a 1,225-square-foot brick platform and installed a metal statue of Rama, an incarnation of the Hindu god Vishnu.

Hindus believe Rama was born at the site, and that 16th-century Muslim invaders built the mosque after destroying a Rama temple there.

On Sunday, police did not interfere when the pilgrims had stormed the barricades and invaded the mosque. A Rapid Action Force that was stationed outside town turned around at a hastily erected roadblock.

Chief government spokesman S. Narendra said Monday the government was preparing a list of organizations that will be outlawed, including Muslim fundamentalist groups. Details will be released later, he said.

The unprecedented ban would cover the World Hindu Council, which led the attack on the mosque in Ayodhya, where 300,000 pilgrims assembled before the attack. The ban will empower the government to seize bank accounts. Banned groups will not be allowed to operate offices or hold public meetings.

The government will try to rebuild the mosque and will take "the strongest action possible under the law" against those who destroyed it, Narendra said.

The mosque dispute exploded once before in 1990, when about 1,000 people died after Hindus stormed the building. That unrest brought down the government of Prime Minister V.P. Singh.

Some Somali children may fully recover

By Randi Hutter Epstein
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — For Somalia's starving children, the U.S. mercy mission brings hope of survival. But even urgent feeding will not save some of them from permanent damage, health experts say.

In the worst cases, starving children and adults suffer from withered intestines. In this case they can only be fed intravenously, and this may not be available for all those who need it.

But with proper care, even skeletal children can be restored to health without brain, nerve or organ damage — although their growth may be permanently stunted. Most Somalis are normally slender and of average height.

"Unless someone is essentially dead, you have a fairly good chance of bringing them back regardless of how dehydrated or how malnourished they are," said Dr. Alfred Sommer, dean of the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health. "Only the most severe, those that are about to die within a day, may not be helped."

Dr. Joseph Warshaw, chairman of the department of pediatrics at Yale University, said he was doubtful relief workers could save children who can no longer take nourishment by mouth, unless they have access to intravenous feeding.

But the ones who do survive "will have a good outcome," he said. "That is why timing is critical."

Several months of starvation by itself will not cause brain damage, Warshaw said. But children who were chronically malnourished earlier in their lives may suffer such damage.

Yale's Sommer based his prediction on studies of hundreds of men during an eight-month famine in the Netherlands after World War II. The men did not suffer diminished intelligence or long-lasting organ damage, he said.

Warshaw said many American babies of mothers with an inadequate diets were born underweight, but "catch up almost completely" if properly nourished.

Dr. Michele Barry, an international health expert and associate professor of medicine at Yale, said nourishing starving children is a labor-intensive process that can take up to six weeks, beginning with giving children tiny sips of nutrient-packed solutions every two hours.

Famine victims are vulnerable to infections and their bodies lose the ability to absorb nutrients, she said.

Assaults increase as three Israeli soldiers shot dead in Gaza Strip

By Clyde Haberman
N.Y. Times News Service

GAZA — Three Israeli soldiers were shot to death on Monday while on patrol in the Gaza Strip, apparently by Islamic militants who drove up alongside their jeep and raked it with automatic gunfire.

It was the largest number of soldiers killed in a single attack in the occupied territories since the start of the Palestinian uprising against Israel five years ago this week.

Altogether this year, the Israeli army says, 11 soldiers have been killed in the territories, by far the highest one-year toll of the uprising and equal to the total for all the previous years combined.

The killings on Monday vividly underlined the tactical changes that have occurred in the last two years.

Mass protests and stone-throwing, the hallmarks of the insurgency's early stages, have increasingly given way to guns, with a rapid rise in armed assaults on Israeli civilians as well as soldiers, often on Jewish settlers in the occupied West Bank and Gaza. The army says there have been more than twice as many attacks involving guns thus far this year as in all of 1990 — 344 against 158.

In addition, the uprising, known in Arabic as the intifada, continues to turn in on itself, to the open dismay of many Palestinian leaders. While an average of two Palestinians a week have been killed by soldiers this year — 101 people through November, according to the army — far more, 223, died at the hands of fellow Arabs, usually after being accused of collaborating with the Israeli authorities.

The Gaza shootings cast a pall on the Middle East peace talks, which were already on shaky ground as they reconvened in Washington on Monday.

Palestinian leaders did not even want to show up. But they agreed reluctantly to go after getting no support on this score from the other Arab participants — Syria, Jordan, and Lebanon. Still, it is hard to find anyone willing to bet on a significant breakthrough, at least not until after Bill Clinton assumes the presidency on Jan. 20.

The glum mood was captured by the Israeli newspaper Hadashot in a long assessment of the present state of the revolt, which began in Gaza on Dec. 9, 1987, set off by a road accident that killed several Palestinians. "The fifth year of the intifada began with the euphoria of the peace process, and is ending with a feeling of routine that is leading nowhere," the newspaper said.

In Rome, where he was on a two-day visit, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin put blame for the attack on Monday on terrorist groups intent on bringing about the talks' collapse. But Israel will not pull out of the negotiations, Rabin said, because to do so would hand "a prize to those who would like to kill peace in the region."

Israelis had braced themselves for a spurt of violence timed to the anniversary of the uprising, but even though prepared, many were jolted by the latest violence in Gaza.

The army and local residents said the three soldiers, all of them on reserve duty, were patrolling in a jeep just before dawn when they were overtaken by a civilian car near the village of Beit Lahiya, at the northern end of the Gaza Strip. The car reportedly used its headlights to blind the soldiers. They did not return the fire as Palestinians in the car sprayed the jeep with automatic rifle fire.

Arab workers who were passing by said the assailants, who managed to escape, had shouted "God is great!" as they fired. Later, the Islamic movement known as Hamas, a powerful force in Gaza and a militant opponent of the peace talks, distributed leaflets taking responsibility for the attack.

The dead reservists were identified as First Lt. Hagai Amit, 24; Sgt. Maj. Shalom Tsebari, 38; and Staff Sgt. Udi Zamir, 23.

In keeping with its usual practice in such situations, the army announced that Gaza would be sealed off on Tuesday while soldiers hunt those responsible for what Lt. Gen. Ehud Barak, the chief of staff, called "quite a daring attack."

Right-wing opponents of Rabin and his Labor government quickly attacked him for, in their view, encouraging terrorist raids against Israelis with a series of concessions to the Palestinians since he came to power in July. Nonetheless, political commentators caution that Rabin, who also holds the post of defense minister, is vulnerable on the matter of domestic security. He won election as a tough-talking former chief of staff who promised to keep Israelis safe. Instead, the uprising violence goes on.

Homicide seminar to show crime-busting methods

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

ODESSA — Although the majority of murderers are related or known to their victims, that's not always the case. Sometimes a crime scene requires careful processing by investigators to determine a killer.

Modern techniques for dealing with such crimes is to be the subject of a homicide investigation seminar, held today though Thursday at Odessa College.

"It's going to deal primarily with serial-type murderer rapists situations, and homicides where the body is hard to identify (such as) from deliberate mutilation or decapitation," said Bill Cooksey, assistant professor of law enforcement/criminal justice at Odessa College.

Cecil Wingo, chief investigator for the Harris County Medical Examiner's office, will be the principle lecturer.

Wingo will discuss more than 30 cases of decapitation/ dismemberment homicides, many of which are unsolved.

More than 50 law enforcement officers and others in allied fields such as prosecutors and justice of the peaces are expected to attend.

Those attending will be able to discuss cases they have been involved with.

"We have asked each participant if they have their own unsolved homicide if they will share it," Cooksey said.

The seminar will center on new technologies that can aid investigators.

Knowing how to process crime scenes and use a pathologist's findings have become an intricate part of solving such crimes, Cooksey said.

"There has been tremendous technological advances on what can be told at a crime scene," Cooksey said.

"The scene quite often itself is the key to solving the case if processed properly," he said.

As a result, crime scenes must be worked correctly because "once it's gone, it's gone," Cooksey said.

The seminar will help officers approach crime scenes of non-routine murders where victims may be mutilated, decapitated, burned or buried, he said.

"The minute death occurs the body begins to deteriorate," Cooksey said.

Wingo will discuss how a pathologist can help interpret evidence at such crime scenes, Cooksey said.

"Medical examiners in one sense are a whole lot like archaeologists," he said.

Cooksey said the Permian Basin community will benefit from the recent hiring of a medical examiner, Sparks Veasey.

Wingo will discuss technologies such as DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) testing for identification and body fluids analysis; how to differentiate between homicides, suicides and natural deaths that may mimic one another; and precautions to take if a victim had or is presumed to have had the AIDS virus.

Even if a murder investigation is routine, where the assailant is already known, processing the crime scene remains important, Cooksey said.

"That officer needs to learn how to process that crime scene because that still needs to be proven in court," he said.

Sexual abuse charge stuns town, bishop

■ Reports that an O'Donnell priest molested children leaves the town, area searching for answers.

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — A West Texas Catholic bishop, stunned by a television report that a dying O'Donnell priest molested parish children, on Monday invited phone calls from those who feel they've been victimized.

Bishop Michael J. Sheehan said two abuse experts will help the Lubbock diocese counsel people who say the Rev. Rodney Howell abused them.

"I am shocked to hear the allegation that this sexual abuse may have taken place in our diocese," Sheehan said.

"I know we have done all we knew how to do in order to prevent it. I can only pray that those who say they have been the victims of such injury will come forth and, by the grace of God, benefit from the healing ministries we offer."

WWL-TV in New Orleans last week aired statements from people claiming Howell and his brother — Jerry Howell, a former Catholic priest — molested them and dozens others at a school for the deaf in the 1970s.

A therapist, attorney, parents and alleged victims all said in the report the Howells forced the children to masturbate and sometimes raped them. Rodney Howell brought Hispanic children from Texas to the school in New Orleans on visits, according to the report.

Jerry Howell denied the allegations. Rodney Howell, who has served in West Texas parishes for 28 years, is comatose with cancer at St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock.

Sheehan said he found the complaints against Rodney Howell, 60, hard to believe.

"He's a very sincere man who has always worked with the poor, particularly the Hispanic poor," Sheehan said.

Another priest has taken over St. Pius X Church in O'Donnell, a 250-member parish about 50 miles south of Lubbock.

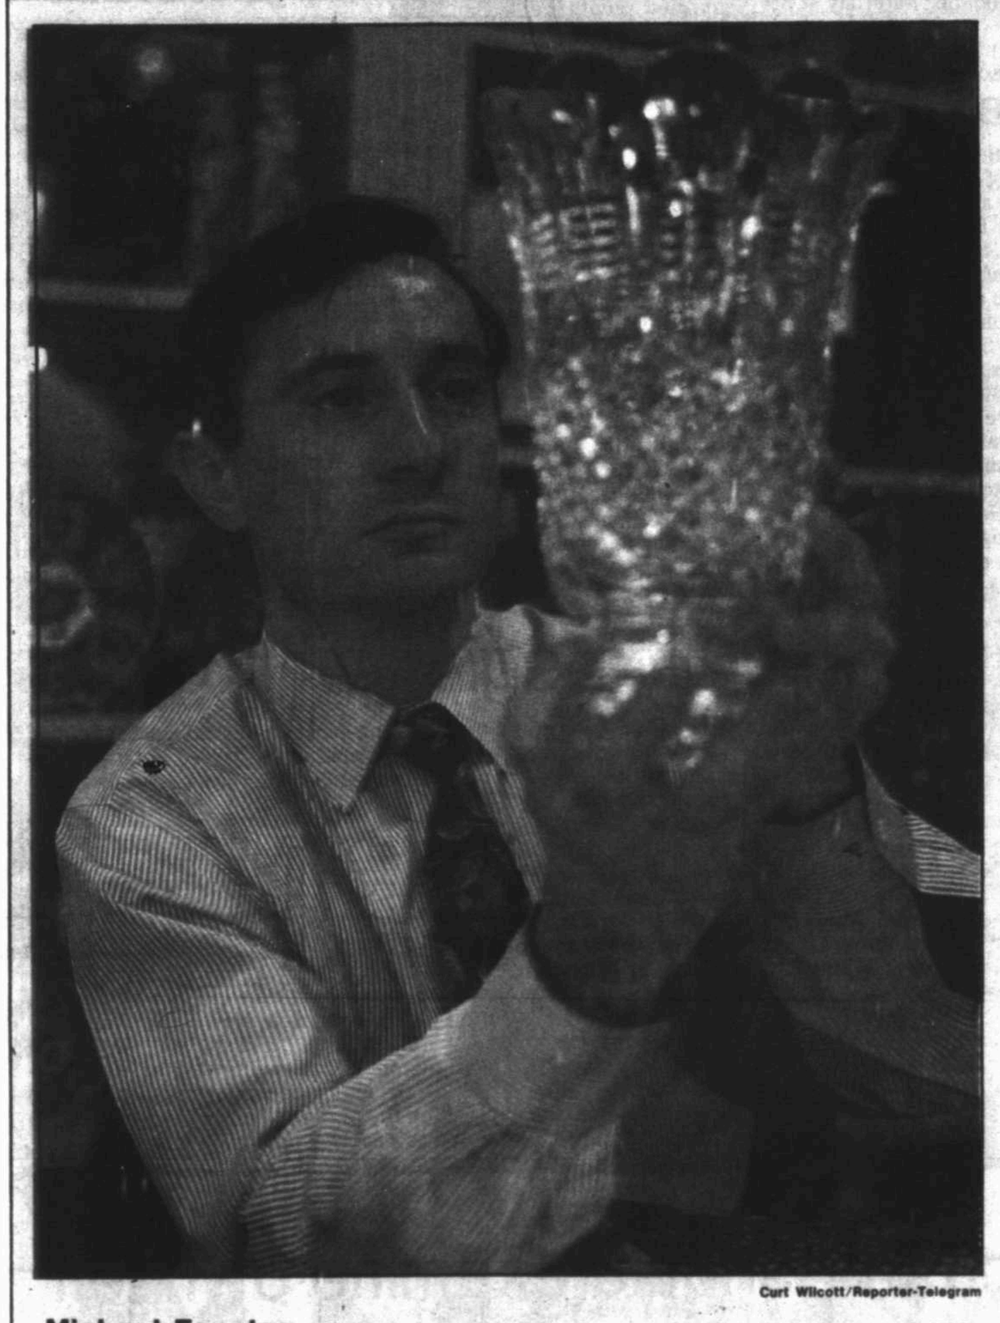

News of the sexual abuse complaints stunned parishioners whom Sheehan visited Sunday.

"There was surprise, shock and many tears," he said. "I want to reach out with spiritual and emotional counseling."

Sheehan said Catholic officials have been in touch with Lynn County authorities, but no charges have been filed.

In Minneapolis Monday, attorneys made opening statements in the trial of a former priest charged with molesting a 15-year-old girl in 1987. James R. Porter also is accused of molesting dozens of children in Minnesota, Massachusetts and New Mexico before he left the priesthood in 1974.

Life dream is crystal clear for craftsman

By Allen E. Howland
Assistant city editor

As in many "company towns" around the world, in the small city of Waterford in southeast Ireland, many youngsters dream of going to work for the major employer in town — the crystal factory that has made the town of 40,000 synonymous with the world's finest glassware.

For Michael Fanning, becoming a master craftsman and designer for the Waterford Crystal factory is a childhood dream come true. The master wedge cutter was in Midland Monday, part of a three-week tour of the United States.

An artistic child with a flair for sketching and painting, Fanning landed a job as an apprentice cutter at age 15. Learning from masters who had worked at the factory since it was re-established after World War II, Fanning focused on wedge cutting, the more intricate of the two types of hand-cutting used.

"You can express yourself more in design and decoration with wedge cutting," Fanning said, in comparing the method with the flatter-wheeled rheintour cut.

Waterford is best known for the richly cut, intricate designs of its wedge-cut vases, bowls, giftware and trophies. Handcrafted Waterford trophies are presented to sports champions around the world, including golf, tennis, soccer and American football. Waterford artisans create the Vince Lombardi trophy given annually to the NFL's Super Bowl champion.

Using carborundum ceramic cutting wheels, the apprentice would finish the design begun by the master craftsman, cleaning the sand from the rough cut form. In the last five years, the development of industrial diamond wheels has re-

STANTON — Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders, standing sure and gentle under bright lights, had but one wish like the old cowboy who yearned for one last grand roundup.

"I wish I could do it all over again," said Saunders, the retiring sheriff of Martin County, "but it's not in God's plan."

Saunders, who is rounding out his 40th year as sheriff, was joined on Monday night by more than 500 people, including a score of active and former Texas sheriffs and many other lawmen, in celebrating his service to Martin County.

"I'll be here. Call me," he told the peace officers. "I'll help you."

As community folks and others gathered about him under lights in the chilly, night air, Saunders expressed his appreciation and gratitude.

San Jacinto captures statewide 'hooray for excellence' contest

Staff report

San Jacinto Junior High School has been named a winner in Diamond Shamrock's "Hooray for Excellence" contest.

The school's science department will be featured for its tree planting project in a radio commercial to be aired during the broadcast of the 5A football championship game.

San Jacinto was the only winner in all of West Texas and the Panhandle. Statewide, only 10 submissions were selected.

The winning audiotape used a talk show format with local personality Linda Bond as the host. She interviewed Ann Murphey, San Jacinto science teacher and Christa McAullife fellow, and students Laura Hamblin and Nick Masten.

Tape participants detailed a project that raised money and awareness for the positive ecological benefits of tree planting.

"We are extremely proud of the excellent science program in place in Midland schools, especially at San Jacinto. Ann is a recognized national leader in innovative science instruction," said Jan Artley, coordinator of science instruction for Midland Independent School District.

Winners receive $500 to be used for educational purposes at the campus.

" 'Hooray for Excellence' received many outstanding tapes from all over the state, from big cities and our smallest towns, high schools, junior highs, and elementary schools. We are satisfied that one thing

Furr's chain pays $50,000 fine to SEC

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal stock market regulators Monday accused a Lubbock, company and its chairman of violating federal securities laws when the cafeteria chain converted from a limited partnership to a corporation last year.

In a civil lawsuit filed a federal court in Washington, authorities accused Furr's-Bishop's Inc., and its chairman, Michael Levenson, of making false and misleading statements in public filings relating to the conversion in February 1991. Federal law requires companies that sell their stock to the public to make full and accurate disclosure of developments that could affect the firm or its stock.

Without admitting or denying the allegations, Levenson agreed to settle with the Securities and Exchange Commission and pay a civil penalty of $50,000.

SHERIFF: Saunders ends tenure

gratitude.

"I've done the very best I know how to do," Saunders said after he and his wife, Billye, were honored by words and gifts in the Martin County Community Center. "I love you. God bless you."

Moments earlier, lawmen had escorted the 67-year-old Saunders and his wife from the Community Center to the outdoors, where two additional gifts were being prepared for them: a new Buick Park Avenue sedan and a 6-year-old standard-bred quarter horse, Sesqua.

The sedan was parked and awaiting the couple under the pavilion. Presently, Scott Welch and Don Braly drove up in Saunders' buggy, which was being pulled by Sesqua.

Earlier in the evening, Saunders was inundated with more laurels, both in words and in gifts coordiated by the Dan Saunders Appreciation Day steering committee. Gifts included a $5,000 check for a vacation.

His other gifts included a Billy Cook saddle, which County Judge Bob Deavenport described as a "great piece of work."

Doyle Bailey, representing Texas Gov. Ann Richards, quoted the governor in honoring the sheriff: "There is no higher calling than that of peace-keeping."

Gordon Johnson, executive director of the Sheriffs Association of Texas, cited Saunders as the states' "longest-tenured" sheriff and called him a "friend to all peace officers," a man of compassion and kindness, and a "man of God."

Ector County Sheriff Bob Brookshire, president of the 42,000-member sheriffs association, read a letter from President and Mrs. Bush. The Bushes said Saunders represents a breed of lawman who put the "well-being of others before their own."

Denton Hines, a Midlander who shared childhood days with Saunders in the Lenorah farming community north of Stanton in the 1920s and 1930s, said Saunders' obvious talent since childhood was his "peace-keeping abilities," even over arguments over who had "the best horse" or the "smartest dog."

Saunders, who does not holster a sidearm, "solves crimes and keeps the peace with his weapon — the telephone," Hines said in noting Saudners' ability as a negotiator, peacekeeper, investigator, console, and counselor.

Hines said Saunders grew up in an era in which "teachers not only taught the three Rs (reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic), they taught the Golden Rule."

Hines alligned Saunders with a biblical passage: "Blessed is the peacemaker."

Lamesa lawyer R.B. Snell characterized Saunders as a "professional" sheriff who is knowledgeable in matters of law enforcement, efficient in performing his duties, and courteous in dealing with people. Saunders is a lawman who represents sterling qualities required of a good sheriff: strong in character, calm in storms, servant of the people, dependable, and courageous."

Snell said, "It doesn't matter how fearsome the task may be," Saunders will muster the courage to take on that task.

Texas Sen. John Montford of Lubbock, in presenting Saunders with a Texas Legislature resolution honoring him for his distinguished career, said Saunders is a mirror of the spirit of Texas: pride, ruggedness, hard-working.

Texans represent the work ethic and the "spirit of the people who get up early in the morning and eat dust. We raise our crops and raise our cattle," Montford said.

Don King, secretary-general manager of the Fort Worth-based Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, thanked Saunders "for doing so much for us for 40 years."

And Sheriff-elect Mike Welling, who presented the sheriff with a Jerry Bob Taylor woodcarving of Saunders and his old horse, Rocky, expressed his love for the sheriff.

"Dan has always been here for us," said Welling, who has served with Saunders for 12 years as a deputy sheriff.

"He has treated us like people. He was always there to shake your hand and drink a cup of coffee with you and go with you out there to work a durned family disburbance or a turn-row dispute or, if it became necessary, to work a homicide. But he never backed off."

CRYSTAL: Craftman's art begins with glass

duced the former two-step process to a single procedure, said Fanning, 33.

Although his primary job for the past eight years has been designing new crystal pieces, Fanning continues to cut prototypes himself, when necessary. In developing new, more-contemporary crystal designs, Fanning often finds himself working with the wheel to achieve the exact effect he is seeking.

Starting with a cardboard form to indicate shape and glass thickness, one of the company's seven designers sketches out a carving design while the glassmakers hand-blow each blank. Working with globs of molten glass heated to 1,400 degrees Centigrade, the glassblowers create the basic shape of the finished product before putting the red-hot glass into the wooden forms where it is blown into its exact shape and thickness.

After a day or more of cooling to ensure that the glass does not crack, the designer will pass the drawing of the cutting pattern and the blank piece to the cutter. A single piece can take as long as two months to craft, Fanning said.

No machines are involved at any point in the Waterford process, in contrast to most modern crystal that is blown or cut by machine.

The Waterford factory on the River Suir in rugged southeastern Ireland was founded in 1783 but was forced out of business in the mid-1800s by oppressive British tax policies. Following World War II, several Eastern European glassmakers worked with Irish backing to revive the long-dormant Waterford legend and resumed combining litharge, potash, ultra-white silica sand into crystal.

Fanning's appearance at a day-long Waterford signing event at Driscoll's Gifts Inc. on Andrews Highway, was one stop on a three-week tour that marks his first visit to this country. About all he has seen of the United States, he said, is department stores, airports and hotel rooms.

Among the stops in the last two weeks have been Bloomingdale's in New York, Wannamaker's in Philadelphia, and stores in Boston and Washington, D.C. Fanning said sales at Driscoll's — the only independent, non-chain store outlet on the semi-annual tour — have been as active as any location.

DEAR ABBY

Committee for pastor should examine ownself

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am serving on a pastor search committee for my church and have given the job a lot of thought and prayer. A church friend told me that a few years ago you had a wonderful letter in your column concerning the search for a new pastor. If you know which letter I am referring to, will you kindly run it again? I read and enjoy you daily in The Arizona Republic. — J.C. HUMBLE, GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR MR. HUMBLE: I recall the letter. It was submitted by the Rev. C.W. Kirkpatrick, Union Church of Christ, Ludlow, Mass.

DEAR ABBY: One of the toughest tasks a church faces is choosing a good minister. A member of an official board undergoing this painful process finally lost patience. He'd watched the pastoral relations committee reject applicant after applicant for some fault, alleged or otherwise. It was time for a bit of soul-searching on the part of the committee. So he stood up and read a letter purporting to be from another applicant.

"Gentlemen: Understanding your pulpit is vacant, I should like to apply for the position. I have many qualifications. I've been a preacher with much success and also have had some success as a writer. Some say I'm a good organizer. I've been a leader most places I've been.

"I'm over 50 years of age. I have never preached in one place for more than three years. In some places, I have left town after my work caused riots and disturbances. I must admit I have been in jail three or four times, but not because of any real wrongdoing.

"I've not gotten along well with religious leaders in towns where I have preached. In fact, some have threatened me and even attacked me physically. I am not too good at keeping records. I have been known to forget whom I baptized.

"However, if you can use me, I shall do my best for you."

The board member looked over the committee. "Well, what do you think? Shall we call him?"

The good church folks were aghast. Call an unhealthy, trouble-making, absentminded ex-jailbird? Was the board member crazy? Who signed the application? Who has such colossal nerve?

The board member eyed them all keenly before he answered, "It's signed, 'the Apostle Paul.'"

Abigail Van Buren's column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

Bullet train wants Clinton's support

By Max B. Baker
N.Y. Times News Service

Supporters of Texas' high-speed rail system are lobbying President-elect Bill Clinton for federal aid for the $6.8 billion project as its opponents in state government are saying the project should be derailed.

Texas High Speed Rail Authority officials are contacting people with connections to the incoming Clinton administration in Little Rock and Washington, hoping to move the bullet train project to the forefront of Clinton's public works agenda.

The rail authority has even asked that Clinton's staff send a representative to its board meeting later this month to be briefed on the bullet train project.

"We are working on several different fronts on contacting Clinton-Gore folks," Sam Goodhope, acting director of the rail authority, said last week. "We have had contact with folks that we know ... can get this project to the forefront of the attention of the administration."

But Texas Railroad Commissioner Bob Krueger predicts that the Clinton administration, which campaigned for more money for public works projects as a way to spur the nation's economy, won't be bamboozled by this project.

"They haven't been able to fool any investors into it," Krueger said last week. "I think Clinton is looking for the best and the brightest.

"The project is an incredible boondoggle. I am in favor of high-speed rail, but you can be in favor of the car but not the Edsel," he said.

The drive for public support also runs counter to the impression of many observers, who felt that Texas TGV Corp. planned to build the rail system without public assistance.

Officials involved in the project say this is a critical year for the bullet train. Texas TGV Corp. won a 50-year franchise in May 1991 to build the $6.8 billion project to connect Dallas, Houston and San Antonio with trains capable of reaching 200 mph.

But its ride, in recent months, has been especially bumpy.

Last month, the project received a one-year extension on a deadline to raise its first $170 million toward building the system — $30 million in cash and $140 million in equity commitments. Texas TGV Corp. was supposed to provide proof of financing by Dec. 31. But the firm, blaming bureaucratic delays, had raised only $45 million by November.

There is also talk in Austin of having the Railroad Commission take control of the project away from the Texas High Speed Rail Authority in 1993 instead of 1995 as scheduled, high-speed rail officials said.

As a result, Goodhope and others have been on the fast track to find help. The authority has asked representatives for Clinton and Vice President-elect Al Gore to attend a High Speed rail authority meeting Dec. 17. The meeting will be monitored by several other states with proposed bullet trains, including Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Agents arrest man on cocaine charge

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Customs officials said Monday they have arrested a man at Houston Intercontinental Airport who is accused of swallowing 115 pellets containing more than two pounds of cocaine.

Customs agents questioned Carlos Alberto Garcia Lopez, 30, because he acted suspiciously after he arrived Saturday on a flight from San Salvador. He consented to an X-ray examination, which revealed the pellets filled with 2.2 pounds of cocaine.

Lopez, who is from Colombia and was on his way to Valencia, Spain, passed the last of the balloons Monday at a Houston hospital, Customs spokeswoman Judy Turner said. He was charged with aggravated possession of a controlled substance and was being held in the Harris County Jail on $300,000 bond.

The cocaine was wrapped in a rubberized material that was tied at both ends. The pellets were about 1 inch in length.

"We haven't had a cocaine swallower in a while," Ms. Turner said, adding that customs agents more often arrest people who have swallowed balloons of heroin.

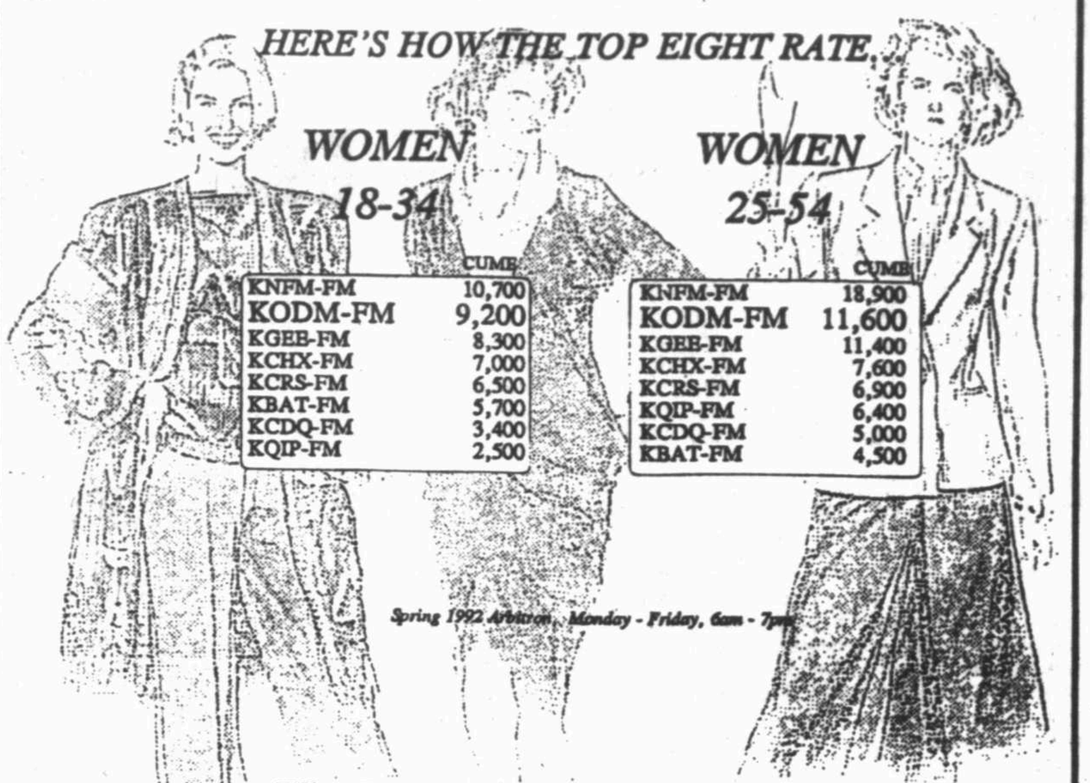

"It's an extremely dangerous method of smuggling," she said. A person could die if an ingested pellet breaks, leaking a massive amount of drugs into the system, she said.

"I think everyone finds it revolting to think of a "swallower,"" she said.

Customs agents said they have seen a significant increase in the amount of heroin entering the United States through Texas and in the number of arrests at U.S.-Mexico border ports involving people who ingest drugs.

At Houston Intercontinental, agents said they have seen an increase in heroin smuggling but they have not made a cocaine seizure involving a "swallower" for several months.

Advance Medical Directives

FREE TO THE PUBLIC

Thursday, December 10
7:30 P.M.

Women's and Children's Hospital Auditorium

Presented by:
Blake Hansen
Attorney at Law

A time may come when you or a member of your family becomes seriously injured or critically ill. In the midst of your shock and grief, you may be asked to make difficult decisions about the intensity of medical care being administered, or about whether to withdraw "life sustaining" treatment and change the goal of treatment from cure to comfort.

Because it is harder to make decisions on these complex issues when you are under stress, it is important for you to know about the levels and types of treatment available and to discuss the kinds of treatment you would want to use before you are called upon to make these decisions.

Mr. Hansen will address patient rights in relationship to advance medical directives, responsibilities and health care choices. A question and answer session will follow the lecture.

For your convenience, free babysitting is available, so call 334-8297 today for your reservation for this informative no-cost health lecture.

Ceremonies mark 51st anniversary of Pearl Harbor attack

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — Survivors of the attack on Pearl Harbor recalled the horror they felt as they watched Japanese bombs claim the lives of those around them 51 years ago Monday.

And people attending ceremonies elsewhere spoke of the lessons learned since the Dec. 7, 1941, attack: lessons in luck, planning and equality.

"The number seven, no matter where I see it, brings back memories," Jack Walsh, 69, of Mesa, Ariz., said at a ceremony in Phoenix. "It's supposed to be a lucky number. Well, maybe it is, because I got through the whole war."

The attack came without warning. It killed 2,403 Americans, wounded 1,178, and plunged the United States into World War II.

"Have you ever smelled burning flesh for 10 or 20 years?" asked Ed Mahoney, a former medic who is now president of the Phoenix chapter of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association. "It just lingered (in my nose.)"

Adm. Robert J. Kelly, commander of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, told those gathered at the USS Arizona Memorial that the most important lesson from Pearl Harbor is that being prepared to defend freedom is the best way to preserve peace.

"At no time is this more relevant than at this very moment," he said. "Encouraging as it is, the world is still very much unsettled, and dangerous."

His talk was followed by a minute's silence, broken by a fly-over by Hawaii Air National Guard jets. The memorial spans the sunken battleship Arizona in which 1,102 officers and crewmen are still entombed.

This year's ceremonies were low-key compared to last year's 50th anniversary observance, which included a visit by President Bush.

Elmer Breeze of Mission (front) and V.F. Scribbner of Pharr throw a wreath over the side of the USS Jesse L. Brown in Port Isabel Monday.

Bush this year laid a wreath at the U.S. Navy Memorial in Washington, saying, "On that long ago day of infamy, brave boys became men, and brave men became heroes."

Bush announced that two new ships will be named in honor of the dead at Pearl Harbor: an amphibious dock landing ship, USS Pearl Harbor; and a destroyer, the USS Ross, for Capt. Donald Ross, a Medal of Honor winner at Pearl Harbor who died earlier this year.

Joseph Sumner, who was aboard the USS Honolulu, on Monday attended a ceremony with about 100 people in Lexington, Ky.

"I came out of the Navy ... and carried it (his war memorabilia) all to the attic and let it be," he said. "I thought I'd really buried it."

"I guess it was only when I went to the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., that I realized what was buried inside me."

About 720 people attended the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association national convention in Little Rock, Ark.

A ceremony at the National Park Service's Arizona Memorial Visitor Center in Hawaii focused on the role minorities played in the then-segregated U.S. military.

Samuel Bishop, a mess attendant on the USS Bagley and one of the few blacks on deck during the attack, spoke of the changes he saw in the treatment of blacks during his military career.

"These changes did not come overnight and they did not come without conflict," he said.

Two dozen men, some shivering from freezing temperatures in Denver, others trembling from age and poor health, thanked God that they survived the attack and prayed for the safety of Somalia-bound U.S. troops.

Tony Jioia, 79, made a trip from Lake Tahoe, Nev., to Phoenix for Monday's ceremonies.

He was manning an anti-aircraft gun the USS Pennsylvania at the time of the attack. "I think we hit one Japanese plane," he said. "We never got a chance to get frightened."

Astronauts work camera, receive laser signals

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts focused their computerized military camera Monday on Madagascar and a Hudson Bay island and received laser signals from an Air Force ground station.

The crewmen logged their second successful laser test as the space shuttle flew over the Hawaiian island of Maui, on the mission's 82nd orbit.

They said their laser receiver got signals for about two minutes, but they did not see any of the green light beamed up at them from an Air Force optical lab on Maui.

Two other tries Monday were unsuccessful. The shuttle laser receiver, mounted on a cockpit window, registered nothing during transmissions from the Air Force Malabar Test Facility in Palm Bay, Fla., and from Fort Sill in Oklahoma.

The Army wants to see how well lasers can convey navigation data to a spacecraft. That information currently is transmitted via radio, which is less secure than lasers.

Discovery's five astronauts have been hampered by bad weather since they began work on the laser and camera experiments Thursday. They spent their first day in space, last Wednesday, dispatching a secret satellite for the Pentagon.

One of Monday's laser tests had to be scrapped because of heavy fog at a laser-sending station near Albuquerque, N.M.

And clouds Monday prevented the astronauts from photographing intended targets in Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula, Morocco and Mozambique. They chose clearer locales instead.

Before putting the military camera away for the night, the astronauts snapped shots of the Golden Gate Bridge, Panama Canal and airports on California's Santa Catalina Island and in Denver and Concepcion, Chile.

"It was by far the best pass we've had," said astronaut James Voss.

The camera system, a Naval Research Laboratory project, is designed to provide the latitude and longitude of photographed sites. Such information would be a boon to astronauts, who often can't tell what they're photographing.

In another Defense Department experiment, the astronauts powered up a unit containing an antibiotic and biodegradable polymer. Researchers want to see how the medicine, encapsulated in the polymer, reacts in weightlessness so they can develop better time-release drugs on Earth.

Discovery's seven-day mission is supposed to end Wednesday afternoon with a landing at Kennedy Space Center.

Explosion traps eight coal miners in Virginia

NORTON, Va. (AP) — An explosion rocked an underground coal mine early Monday, trapping eight miners about a mile inside. One miner crawled to safety, authorities said.

More than 12 hours after the 6:15 a.m. blast, rescuers had traveled less than a third of a mile into the mine and hadn't been able to communicate with the trapped miners, said Harry Childress, chief of the Virginia Department of Mines, Minerals and Energy.

Relatives gathered at the mine in the heart of Appalachia to await word.

Among them was the sister of 30-year-old Brian Owens. "I'd say if he's feeling like we are, he's scared to death," said Melissa Honaker.

"You think you're going to come out of there every time and you never know when it's going to blow up."

The miner who crawled out had been working closer to an entrance than those trapped, said Mike Abbott of the state Division of Mines office in Big Stone Gap. He suffered burns.

Eighteen rescue squad units converged on the mine near the Guest River, about five miles outside Norton, a city of about 4,000 people in the southwestern corner of Virginia.

Storm unleashes tornado, rain, snow on California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A storm hit California with heavy rain, snow and wind Monday, spawning a tornado, derailing railroad cars, closing freeways and Disneyland and flooding homes. Two deaths were blamed on the weather.

The tornado touched down in San Diego County, destroying three carports at a mobile home park in Carlsbad, the National Weather Service said. Funnel clouds also were sighted in the Rancho Cucamonga and Upland areas and in San Diego County.

Up to 30 inches of snow fell in the Sierra Nevada. Snow closed schools in Oregon and Nevada.

Heavy rain undermined the track on an overpass south of downtown Los Angeles, causing four freight cars of a train to derail, Southern Pacific Lines reported.

One of the cars contained sodium hydroxide, which the railroad described as a moderately toxic material, and the California Highway Patrol shut down a section of the nearby Harbor Freeway in both directions as a precaution.

The section of the freeway linking downtown to the Los Angeles Harbor was expected to remain closed until Tuesday morning, the CHP said.

California water officials said the storm was a step — but only a step — toward ending the state's lingering drought.

■ Local weather 2A

"This is encouraging. There's a beginning of a snowpack in the mountains," said Dean Thompson, spokesman for the state drought center. "But it's a long way from what we need."

Average rainfall at statewide mountain recording stations is still only 68 percent of normal since October, Thompson said.

Heavy rain fell throughout the Los Angeles area. The National Weather Service reported a half-inch of rain in just 15 minutes in Woodland Hills and 5.28 inches by midday on Topanga Summit, overlooking Malibu.

In the Sierra Nevada, the storm had dumped 30 inches of snow at Donner Summit and Mammoth Lakes, 23 inches at Echo Summit, 17 inches at Dagget Pass, 16 inches at Meyers, and 12 inches at Incline Village, the weather service said. The Heavenly Valley ski area reported 48 inches during the weekend. Schools were closed around Lake Tahoe.

The California and Nevada highway patrol reported dozens of accidents on both sides of the Sierra.

Along the storm's projected path, winter storm watches were posted for Tuesday over southern Utah, the northern half of Arizona, northwestern New Mexico and the mountains of southwestern Colorado.

Up to 3 inches of snow closed schools and snarled traffic in Portland, Ore. The snow fell on top of ice that formed Sunday. And another storm watch was issued for Tuesday for the mountains of Oregon and Washington as a new storm rolled in from the Gulf of Alaska.

In Malibu, fire trucks pumped water out of streets and about 200 firefighters helped residents put up sandbags as small creeks overflowed, said Los Angeles County fire Capt. Steve Valenzuela.

"This is Lake Malibu you're standing in," said actor Larry Hagman as a foot of water lapped around his Malibu home. The house and two cars were slightly damaged.

Thousands of morning commuters were stopped by up to 2 feet of water flowing across two freeways in central Los Angeles. Most lanes of the Long Beach Freeway and Santa Ana Freeway were closed just southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

Los Angeles authorities closed roads through a San Fernando Valley flood control dam area where dozens of people were trapped in their cars by February flash flooding.

Disneyland was closed because of flooding on nearby streets and Knott's Berry Farm was closed because of the rain, spokesmen said.

Time out

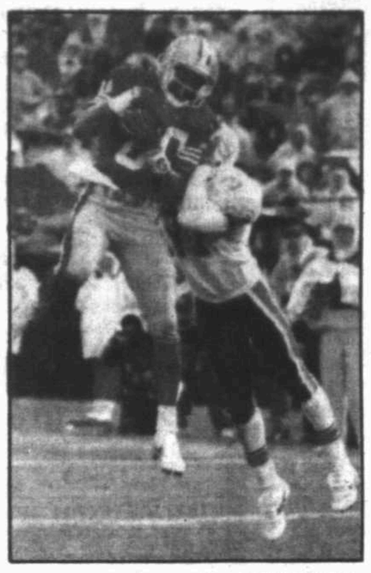

TOKYO — There will be a slight time out now for Nebraska before it sets out to meet Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

Coach Tom Osborne says the players need to hit the books after missing a week of school for a real away game — the No. 11 Cornhunkers' 38-24 victory over Kansas State in Tokyo on Sunday.

The offensive show before 50,000 mostly Japanese spectators in Tokyo Dome gave Nebraska the Big Eight championship, its 24th consecutive nine-win season (9-2) and its third trip to the Orange Bowl in five years.

Jerry Rice with a TD ...record-breaking 101

Durability Rice trait

By Dennis Georgatos
AP Sports Writer

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Behind all of Jerry Rice's high-profile statistics and records stands another remarkable, if overshadowed, aspect of the receiver's career: in eight years with the San Francisco 49ers, he has never missed a game.

But his durability just begins to tell the story of how he became the league's alltime leader in touchdown receptions six years faster than Seattle's Steve Largent, whose mark Rice eclipsed Sunday with his 101st touchdown catch in a 27-3 win over Miami.

"He has all the natural gifts that go along with getting in the end zone," said executive assistant R.C. Owens, known for his leaping "Alley Oop" catches for the 49ers during the 1950s and early '60s.

"He has three gears, and by the time he's in his third gear, most guys are still shifting out of first."

Rice, the 49ers' top draft choice in 1985 out of tiny Mississippi Valley State, caught the record-setter from Steve Young with 8:56 left. He beat J.B. Brown on a 12-yard slant pattern.

"No way that defensive back could've separated me from that ball," said Rice, who admitted the pressure of the record chase had taken a toll on him.

"Now, I can go out next week and have fun on the football field."

For Brown, though, getting beaten by Rice was nothing to be ashamed of.

"He's had a lot of victims in his career," Brown said, adding, "I knew they'd find a way to get him the ball. Rice is unquestionably a great receiver. I take my hat off to him."

And at 30, he's still in his prime.

"There's going to be an astronomical number of touchdowns when he's finished," guard Guy McIntyre said.

Rice, who as a youth used to catch bricks tossed by his father as the two built houses in Mississippi, said he'd like to play for years to come.

"As long as the game is still fun to me, I'll enjoy going out weekly and playing the game," Rice said.

The touchdown reception record could just be the beginning for Rice.

During Sunday's game, which was played in a heavy rain, Rice had seven catches for 79 yards, including his eighth TD reception of the season.

He also became the ninth player in NFL history to go over 10,000 receiving yards in a career. Rice has 10,037 and is behind Lance Alworth, ranked eighth with 10,266.

Rice boosted his career reception total to 593, moving into the top 10 alltime, ahead of Fred Biletnikoff, 11th with 589, and he ranks fifth on the alltime touchdown list (106 receiving and rushing scores) behind Lenny Moore, in fourth with 113.

On the season, Rice has 965 receiving yards.

Chaps fall to OC

■ Odessa College puts a major 88-67 conference bruise on Midland College.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

ODESSA — Just four days after one of the most well-rounded wins in Midland College basketball history comes one of the most well-rounded losses in recent memory.

Everything that could go wrong did for the Chaps in an 88-67 loss to the Odessa College Wranglers.

The loss dropped MC to 13-3 overall, 1-1 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play. OC remains unbeaten in conference (2-0), and raises its overall mark to 15-1.

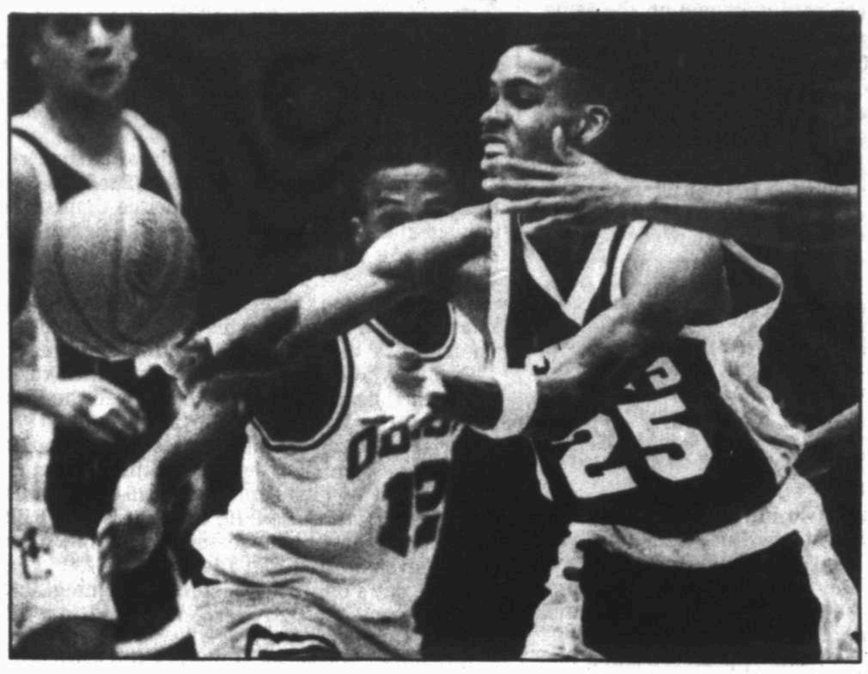

In other WJCAC games Monday, South Plains opened league play with a 72-55 win over New Mexico Military, and Howard downed the West Texas State JV, 114-64.

MC head coach Steve Green said the loss was virtually unequaled to anything he has experienced in almost five years of junior college coaching.

"We were just unable to do it," Green said. "The big guys were frustrated because the guards couldn't do their job, and everybody was just out of sync. We shot 38 percent in the first half."

The Wranglers keyed on MC sophomore forward Demeitreus Drew, forcing the Chaps to take more shots from the outside, but that didn't work either. Drew shot just 4-of-9 from his inside slot; MC's three guard rotation of Terrance Rone (7-18), Luis Cambraia (1-9) and Corey Tubbs (0-3) combined to hit just 8-of-30 shots from the outside. A fourth guard, Richard Edwards, finished 2-of-2 in a limited role.

"The other guys just couldn't step forward," Green said. "They couldn't take advantage of what was given them."

Brian Adamcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland College's Kirk Ford (25) tries to pass through Odessa College's stiff press as OC's Troy Anderson pursues the ball.

Added Cambraia: "They had good guards on us, but our offense beat us. We got in some trouble with their press and missed a lot of shots."

OC's full-court press kept the Chaps at bay for the majority of the game. Although the Wranglers converted just four points off MC turnovers, the Chaps never were able to shake the effects of the pressure once they got to the offensive end of the floor.

"It kept us out of sync, if we ever were in sync," Green said of the OC defense. "It was very frustrating."

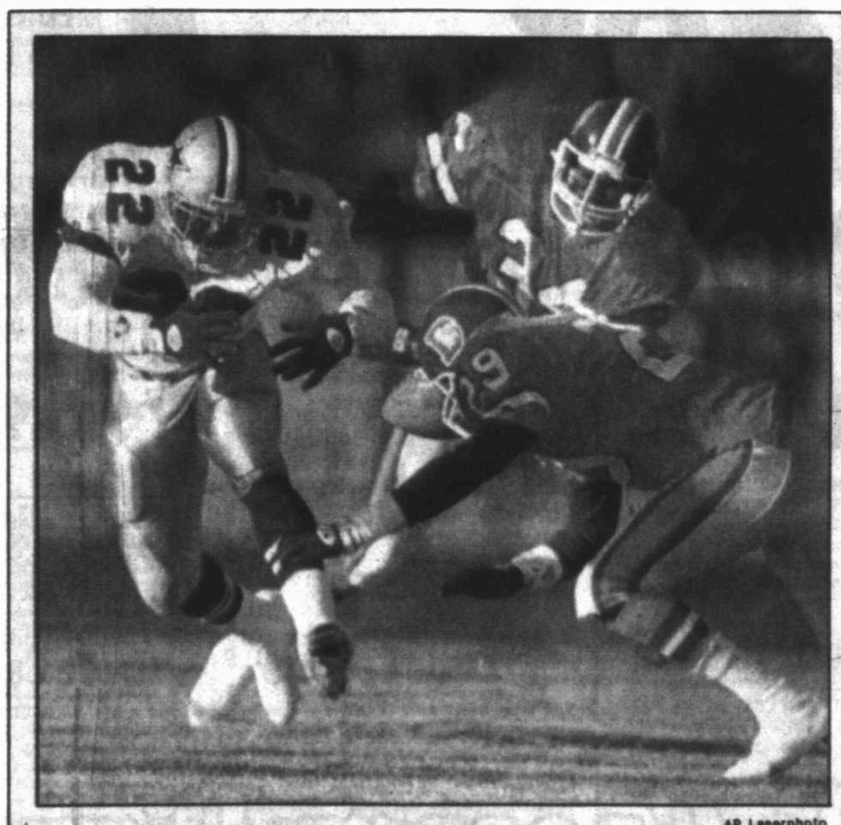

Two things the Chaps knew going into the game were they would have to shake OC's press, and then beat them inside in order to have any chance to win. They did neither.

"I think that the press kept the (Chaps') inside (game) from happening," a smiling OC head coach Dennis Helms said. "Once we got into it (press) we were effective with it.

"And we were pretty much able to do what we wanted to offensively until we decided we didn't want to play anymore."

Larry Johnson (25 points) led an OC team that shot 48.3 percent from the field, compared to a season-low 35.6 percent for the Chaps. Rone was high-point

Dallas running back Emmitt Smith (22) loses ball here against Denver, but the Cowboys went on to vault into the NFL playoffs again.

Cowboys are back again

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — It was business as usual at Valley Ranch on Monday with hardly a stir created by the fact the Dallas Cowboys are in the NFL playoffs for the second consecutive season.

"It's no big deal," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "We expected to be in the playoffs when the season began."

The Cowboys outlasted Denver 31-27 on Sunday to build an 11-2 record which is good enough for a wildcard ticket to the playoffs.

Johnson said in training camp the Cowboys expected to play in the NFC championship game this season.

"That's our goal, nothing less," Johnson said.

Dallas needs a victory against Washington on Sunday or a Philadelphia loss to clinch its first NFC East title since 1985.

Prep teams face four tests today

Staff report

Three of Midland's high school basketball teams will be playing at home tonight after a weekend of hitting the road.

The Midland High and Midland Lee boys had a successful trip to El Paso over the weekend, bringing home four victories with both teams sweeping Ysleta and Riverside.

Midland High is now 5-1 on the season with three consecutive victories heading into today's 8 p.m. Chaparral Center meeting with Class 4A Lubbock Dunbar.

Lee remains unbeaten at 8-0, but is the only team again on the road today with an 8 p.m. trip to Lubbock Coronado, a team that also has playoff hopes.

The Midland High girls are now 8-2 on the year with a second place finish in the Concho River tournament in San Angelo. MHS lost to Class 4A Plainview in the finals. Plainview was a 5A playoff team that eliminated the Lee girls in bi-district play last season.

The Lady Bulldogs will host Class 4A Andrews at 6 p.m. at Chaparral Center as part of a rare boy-girl doubleheader.

The Lee girls, now 5-5 after a 2-1 record in the Brownfield tournament over the weekend, will host the Lamesa girls at 8 p.m. today in the Lee gym. Lee missed one game in the Brownfield tournament due to bad weather Saturday.

Among District 4-5A teams, Abilene Cooper's boys stand at 7-2 for the year while Abilene High is 5-3. San Angelo is off to a cool 0-6 start. The Abilene High and San Angelo girls have been successful with 6-3 starts, but Odessa High is 8-2 and Cooper 5-5.

Bears give, Oilers take

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Chicago Bears gave until it hurt Monday night, just as they've done all season.

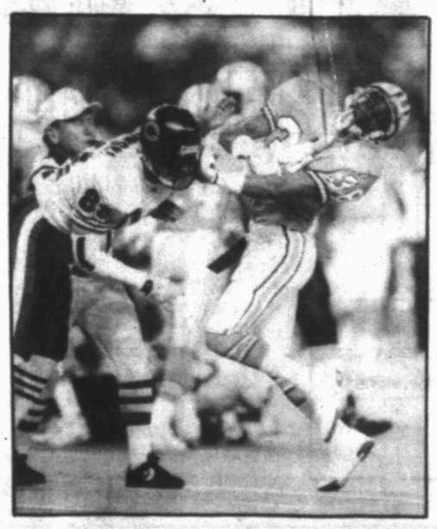

The Houston Oilers, feeding on Chicago turnovers, roared to a 24-7 victory, aided by a 26-yard interception return by Bubba McDowell and Webster Slaughter's 6-yard touchdown catch following a fumble recovery.

The Oilers (8-5) remained in the running for an AFC wild-card playoff berth and the Bears (4-9), continuing to wilt under their own miscues, lost their sixth straight game.

Houston did no more than copy what other teams have done to Chicago this season. The Bears have lost 26 turnovers and the opposition has produced 17 touchdowns and two fields goals from the errors.

Baseball suffers major jolts on two winter meeting fronts

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Baseball was jolted twice Monday when the Rev. Jesse Jackson came to the winter meetings to chastize the sport for racism and owners voted to reopen their labor agreement, which may lead to another work stoppage.

On perhaps the most unusual day in the 92-history of the winter meetings, the sport's tumultuous racial and labor problems completely overshadowed the trade talk and signings that usually dominate the traditional off-season get-together.

Jackson, responding to racial slurs allegedly made by Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott, came to the hotel where all of baseball had gathered and said he and his Rainbow Coalition would seek to speed the sport's integration of its executive suites. A report released Monday showed 17 percent of front-office employees are black, up 1 percent from 1991, but just 21 of 534 executives and departments ahead among the clubs were black.

"Forty-five years after Jackie Robinson, it's time for owners to grow up and join the real America," Jackson said from a podium in the press room.

After his news conference, Jackson met with a baseball delegation headed by Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, chairman of the ruling executive council.

"If we cannot talk to them, we will meet them in a real sense at the turn-

Ceremonies mark 51st anniversary of Pearl Harbor attack

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — Survivors of the attack on Pearl Harbor recalled the horror they felt as they watched Japanese bombs claim the lives of those around them 51 years ago Monday.

And people attending ceremonies elsewhere spoke of the lessons learned since the Dec. 7, 1941, attack: lessons in luck, planning and equality.

"The number seven, no matter where I see it, brings back memories," Jack Walsh, 69, of Mesa, Ariz., said at a ceremony in Phoenix. "It's supposed to be a lucky number. Well, maybe it is, because I got through the whole war."

The attack came without warning. It killed 2,403 Americans, wounded 1,178, and plunged the United States into World War II.

Adm. Robert J. Kelly, commander of the U.S. Pacific Fleet, told those gathered at the USS Arizona Memorial that the most important lesson from Pearl Harbor is that being prepared to defend freedom is the best way to preserve peace.

Bush this year laid a wreath at the U.S. Navy Memorial in Washington, saying, "On that long ago day of infamy, brave boys became men, and brave men became heroes."

Bush announced that two new ships will be named in honor of the dead at Pearl Harbor: an amphibious dock landing ship, USS Pearl Harbor; and a destroyer, the USS Ross, for Capt. Donald Ross, a Medal of Honor winner at Pearl Harbor who died earlier this year.

Joseph Sumner, who was aboard the USS Honolulu, on Monday attended a ceremony with about 100 people in Lexington, Ky.

"I came out of the Navy ... and carried it (his war memorabilia) all to the attic and let it be," he said. "I thought I'd really buried it."

"I guess it was only when I went to the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., that I realized what was buried inside me."

About 720 people attended the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association national convention in Little Rock, Ark.

A ceremony at the National Park Service's Arizona Memorial Visitor Center in Hawaii focused on the role minorities played in the then-segregated U.S. military.

Samuel Bishop, a mess attendant on the USS Bagley and one of the few blacks on deck during the attack, spoke of the changes he saw in the treatment of blacks during his military career.

"These changes did not come overnight and they did not come without conflict," he said.

Two dozen men, some shivering from freezing temperatures in Denver, others trembling from age and poor health, thanked God that they survived the attack and prayed for the safety of Somalia-bound U.S. troops.

Tony Jioia, 79, made a trip from Lake Tahoe, Nev., to Phoenix for Monday's ceremonies.

He was manning an anti-aircraft gun the USS Pennsylvania at the time of the attack. "I think we hit one Japanese plane," he said. "We never got a chance to get frightened."

Astronauts work camera, receive laser signals

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discovery's astronauts focused their computerized military camera Monday on Madagascar and a Hudson Bay island and received laser signals from an Air Force ground station.

The crewmen logged their second successful laser test as the space shuttle flew over the Hawaiian island of Maui, on the mission's 82nd orbit.

They said their laser receiver got signals for about two minutes, but they did not see any of the green light beamed up at them from an Air Force optical lab on Maui.

Two other tries Monday were unsuccessful. The shuttle laser receiver, mounted on a cockpit window, registered nothing during transmissions from the Air Force Malabar Test Facility in Palm Bay, Fla., and from Fort Sill in Oklahoma.

The Army wants to see how well lasers can convey navigation data to a spacecraft. That information currently is transmitted via radio, which is less secure than lasers.

Discovery's five astronauts have been hampered by bad weather since they began work on the laser and camera experiments Thursday. They spent their first day in space, last Wednesday, dispatching a secret satellite for the Pentagon.

One of Monday's laser tests had to be scrapped because of heavy fog at a laser-sending station near Albuquerque, N.M.

And clouds Monday prevented the astronauts from photographing intended targets in Michigan's Keweenaw Peninsula, Morocco and Mozambique. They chose clearer locales instead.

Before putting the military camera away for the night, the astronauts snapped shots of the Golden Gate Bridge, Panama Canal and airports on California's Santa Catalina Island and in Denver and Concepcion, Chile.

"It was by far the best pass we've had," said astronaut James Voss.

The camera system, a Naval Research Laboratory project, is designed to provide the latitude and longitude of photographed sites. Such information would be a boon to astronauts, who often can't tell what they're photographing.

In another Defense Department experiment, the astronauts powered up a unit containing an antibiotic and biodegradable polymer. Researchers want to see how the medicine, encapsulated in the polymer, reacts in weightlessness so they can develop better time-release drugs on Earth.

Discovery's seven-day mission is supposed to end Wednesday afternoon with a landing at Kennedy Space Center.

Explosion traps eight coal miners in Virginia

NORTON, Va. (AP) — An explosion rocked an underground coal mine early Monday, trapping eight miners about a mile inside. One miner crawled to safety, authorities said.

More than 12 hours after the 6:15 a.m. blast, rescuers had traveled less than a third of a mile into the mine and hadn't been able to communicate with the trapped miners, said Harry Childress, chief of the Virginia Department of Mines, Minerals and Energy.

Relatives gathered at the mine in the heart of Appalachia to await word.

Among them was the sister of 30-year-old Brian Owens. "I'd say if he's feeling like we are, he's scared to death," said Melissa Honaker.

"You think you're going to come out of there every time and you never know when it's going to blow up."

The miner who crawled out had been working closer to an entrance than those trapped, said Mike Abbott of the state Division of Mines office in Big Stone Gap. He suffered burns.

Eighteen rescue squad units converged on the mine near the Guest River, about five miles outside Norton, a city of about 4,000 people in the southwestern corner of Virginia.

Storm unleashes tornado, rain, snow on California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A storm hit California with heavy rain, snow and wind Monday, spawning a tornado, derailing railroad cars, closing freeways and Disneyland and flooding homes. Two deaths were blamed on the weather.

The tornado touched down in San Diego County, destroying three carports at a mobile home park in Carlsbad, the National Weather Service said. Funnel clouds also were sighted in the Rancho Cucamonga and Upland areas and in San Diego County.

Up to 30 inches of snow fell in the Sierra Nevada. Snow closed schools in Oregon and Nevada.

Heavy rain undermined the track on an overpass south of downtown Los Angeles, causing four freight cars of a train to derail, Southern Pacific Lines reported.

One of the cars contained sodium hydroxide, which the railroad described as a moderately toxic material, and the California Highway Patrol shut down a section of the nearby Harbor Freeway in both directions as a precaution.

The section of the freeway linking downtown to the Los Angeles Harbor was expected to remain closed until Tuesday morning, the CHP said.

California water officials said the storm was a step — but only a step — toward ending the state's lingering drought.

■ Local weather 2A

"This is encouraging. There's a beginning of a snowpack in the mountains," said Dean Thompson, spokesman for the state drought center. "But it's a long way from what we need."

Average rainfall at statewide mountain recording stations is still only 68 percent of normal since October, Thompson said.

Heavy rain fell throughout the Los Angeles area. The National Weather Service reported a half-inch of rain in just 15 minutes in Woodland Hills and 5.28 inches by midday on Topanga Summit, overlooking Malibu.

In the Sierra Nevada, the storm had dumped 30 inches of snow at Donner Summit and Mammoth Lakes, 23 inches at Echo Summit, 17 inches at Dagget Pass, 16 inches at Meyers, and 12 inches at Incline Village, the weather service said. The Heavenly Valley ski area reported 48 inches during the weekend. Schools were closed around Lake Tahoe.

The California and Nevada highway patrol reported dozens of accidents on both sides of the Sierra.

Along the storm's projected path, winter storm watches were posted for Tuesday over southern Utah, the northern half of Arizona, northwestern New Mexico and the mountains of southwestern Colorado.

Up to 3 inches of snow closed schools and snarled traffic in Portland, Ore. The snow fell on top of ice that formed Sunday. And another storm watch was issued for Tuesday for the mountains of Oregon and Washington as a new storm rolled in from the Gulf of Alaska.

In Malibu, fire trucks pumped water out of streets and about 200 firefighters helped residents put up sandbags as small creeks overflowed, said Los Angeles County fire Capt. Steve Valenzuela.

"This is Lake Malibu you're standing in," said actor Larry Hagman as a foot of water lapped around his Malibu home. The house and two cars were slightly damaged.

Thousands of morning commuters were stopped by up to 2 feet of water flowing across two freeways in central Los Angeles. Most lanes of the Long Beach Freeway and Santa Ana Freeway were closed just southeast of downtown Los Angeles.

Los Angeles authorities closed roads through a San Fernando Valley flood control dam area where dozens of people were trapped in their cars by February flash flooding.

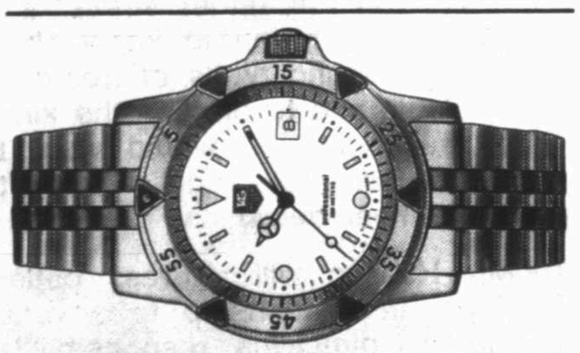

Disneyland was closed because of flooding on nearby streets and Knott's Berry Farm was closed because of the rain, spokesmen said.

Time out

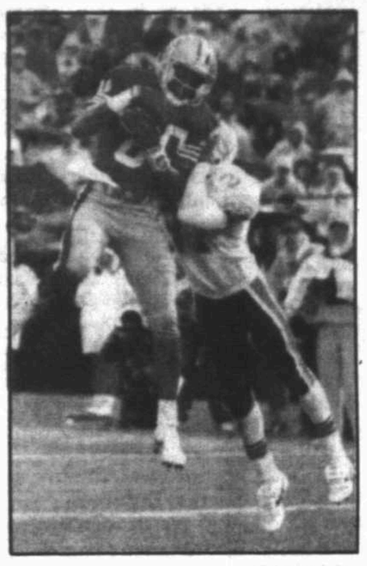

TOKYO — There will be a slight time out now for Nebraska before it sets out to meet Florida State in the Orange Bowl.

Coach Tom Osborne says the players need to hit the books after missing a week of school for a real away game — the No. 11 Cornhunkers' 38-24 victory over Kansas State in Tokyo on Sunday.

The offensive show before 50,000 mostly Japanese spectators in Tokyo Dome gave Nebraska the Big Eight championship, its 24th consecutive nine-win season (9-2) and its third trip to the Orange Bowl in five years.

Jerry Rice with a TD ...record-breaking 101

Durability Rice trait

By Dennis Georgatos
AP Sports Writer

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Behind all of Jerry Rice's high-profile statistics and records stands another remarkable, if overshadowed, aspect of the receiver's career: in eight years with the San Francisco 49ers, he has never missed a game.

But his durability just begins to tell the story of how he became the league's alltime leader in touchdown receptions six years faster than Seattle's Steve Largent, whose mark Rice eclipsed Sunday with his 101st touchdown catch in a 27-3 win over Miami.

"He has all the natural gifts that go along with getting in the end zone," said executive assistant R.C. Owens, known for his leaping "Alley Oop" catches for the 49ers during the 1950s and early '60s.

"He has three gears, and by the time he's in his third gear, most guys are still shifting out of first."

Rice, the 49ers' top draft choice in 1985 out of tiny Mississippi Valley State, caught the record-setter from Steve Young with 8:56 left. He beat J.B. Brown on a 12-yard slant pattern.

"No way that defensive back could've separated me from that ball," said Rice, who admitted the pressure of the record chase had taken a toll on him.

"Now, I can go out next week and have fun on the football field."

For Brown, though, getting beaten by Rice was nothing to be ashamed of.

"He's had a lot of victims in his career," Brown said, adding, "I knew they'd find a way to get him the ball. Rice is unquestionably a great receiver. I take my hat off to him."

And at 30, he's still in his prime.

"There's going to be an astronomical number of touchdowns when he's finished," guard Guy McIntyre said.

Rice, who as a youth used to catch bricks tossed by his father as the two built houses in Mississippi, said he'd like to play for years to come.

"As long as the game is still fun to me, I'll enjoy going out weekly and playing the game," Rice said.

The touchdown reception record could just be the beginning for Rice.

During Sunday's game, which was played in a heavy rain, Rice had seven catches for 79 yards, including his eighth TD reception of the season.

He also became the ninth player in NFL history to go over 10,000 receiving yards in a career. Rice has 10,037 and is behind Lance Alworth, ranked eighth with 10,266.

Rice boosted his career reception total to 593, moving into the top 10 alltime, ahead of Fred Biletnikoff, 11th with 589, and he ranks fifth on the alltime touchdown list (106 receiving and rushing scores) behind Lenny Moore, in fourth with 113.

On the season, Rice has 965 receiving yards.

Chaps fall to OC

■ Odessa College puts a major 88-67 conference bruise on Midland College.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

ODESSA — Just four days after one of the most well-rounded wins in Midland College basketball history comes one of the most well-rounded losses in recent memory.

Everything that could go wrong did for the Chaps in an 88-67 loss to the Odessa College Wranglers.

The loss dropped MC to 13-3 overall, 1-1 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play. OC remains unbeaten in conference (2-0), and raises its overall mark to 15-1.

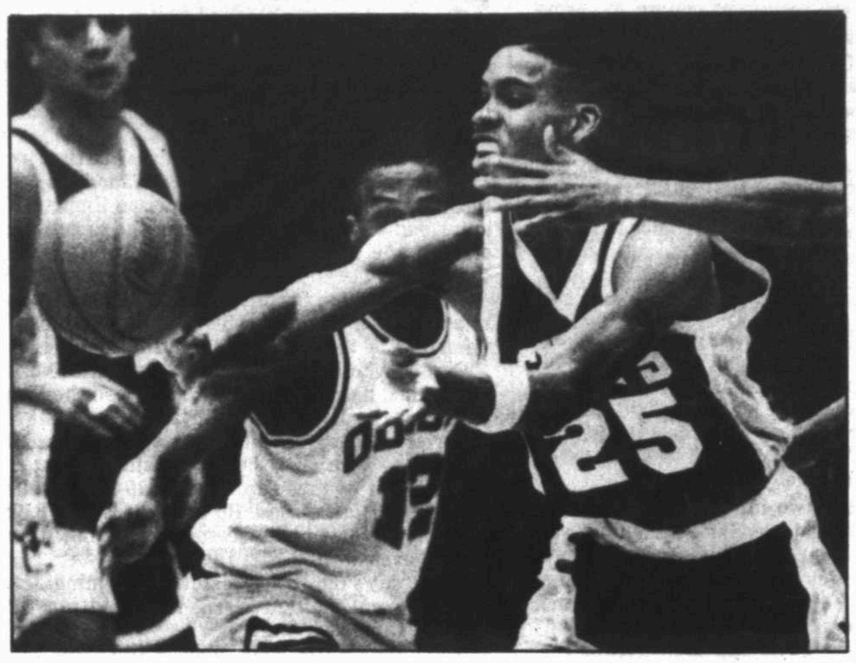

In other WJCAC games Monday, South Plains opened league play with a 72-55 win over New Mexico Military, and Howard downed the West Texas State JV, 114-64.

MC head coach Steve Green said the loss was virtually unequaled to anything he has experienced in almost five years of junior college coaching.

"We were just unable to do it," Green said. "The big guys were frustrated because the guards couldn't do their job, and everybody was just out of sync. We shot 38 percent in the first half."

The Wranglers keyed on MC sophomore forward Demeitreus Drew, forcing the Chaps to take more shots from the outside, but that didn't work either. Drew shot just 4-of-9 from his inside slot; MC's three guard rotation of Terrance Rone (7-18), Luis Cambraia (1-9) and Corey Tubbs (0-3) combined to hit just 8-of-30 shots from the outside. A fourth guard, Richard Edwards, finished 2-of-2 in a limited role.

"The other guys just couldn't step forward," Green said. "They couldn't take advantage of what was given them."

Brian Ademcik/Reporter-Telegram

Midland College's Kirk Ford (25) tries to pass through Odessa College's stiff press as OC's Troy Anderson pursues the ball.

Added Cambraia: "They had good guards on us, but our offense beat us. We got in some trouble with their press and missed a lot of shots."

OC's full-court press kept the Chaps at bay for the majority of the game. Although the Wranglers converted just four points off MC turnovers, the Chaps never were able to shake the effects of the pressure once they got to the offensive end of the floor.

"It kept us out of sync, if we ever were in sync," Green said of the OC defense. "It was very frustrating."

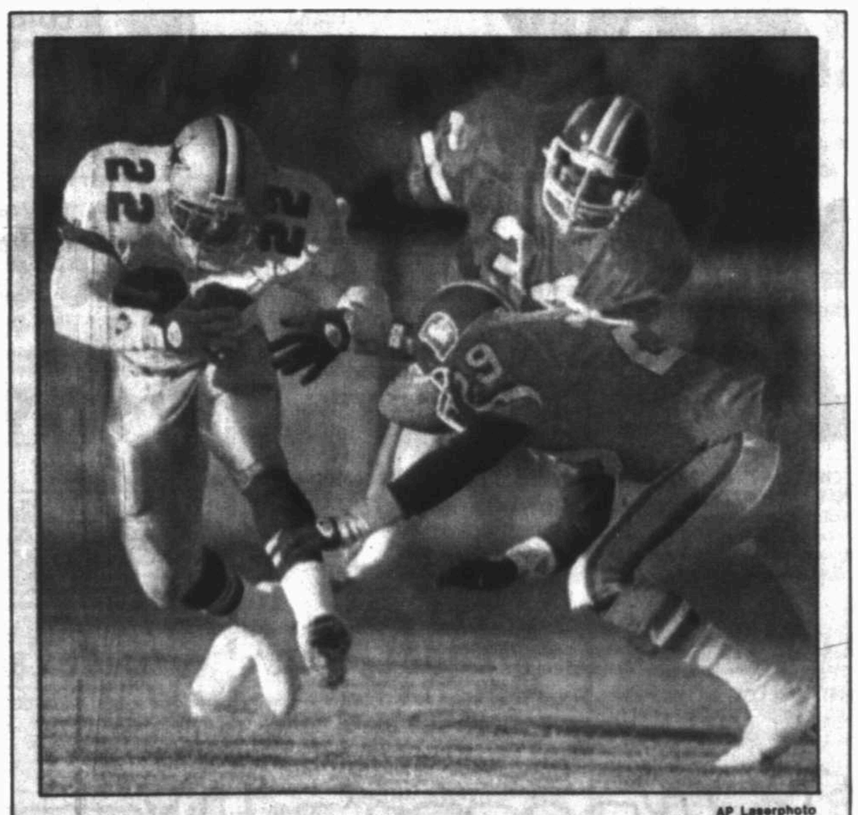

Two things the Chaps knew going into the game were they would have to shake OC's press, and then beat them inside in order to have any chance to win. They did neither.

"I think that the press kept the (Chaps') inside (game) from happening," a smiling OC head coach Dennis Helms said. "Once we got into it (press) we were effective with it.

"And we were pretty much able to do what we wanted to offensively until we decided we didn't want to play anymore."

Larry Johnson (25 points) led an OC team that shot 48.3 percent from the field, compared to a season-low 35.6 percent for the Chaps. Rone was high-point

Dallas running back Emmitt Smith (22) loses ball here against Denver, but the Cowboys went on to vault into the NFL playoffs again.

Cowboys are back again

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — It was business as usual at Valley Ranch on Monday with hardly a stir created by the fact the Dallas Cowboys are in the NFL playoffs for the second consecutive season.

"It's no big deal," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "We expected to be in the playoffs when the season began."

The Cowboys outlasted Denver 31-27 on Sunday to build an 11-2 record which is good enough for a wildcard ticket to the playoffs.

Johnson said in training camp the Cowboys expected to play in the NFC championship game this season.

"That's our goal, nothing less," Johnson said.

Dallas needs a victory against Washington on Sunday or a Philadelphia loss to clinch its first NFC East title since 1985.

Prep teams face four tests today

Staff report

Three of Midland's high school basketball teams will be playing at home tonight after a weekend of hitting the road.

The Midland High and Midland Lee boys had a successful trip to El Paso over the weekend, bringing home four victories with both teams sweeping Ysleta and Riverside.

Midland High is now 5-1 on the season with three consecutive victories heading into today's 8 p.m. Chaparral Center meeting with Class 4A Lubbock Dunbar.

Lee remains unbeaten at 8-0, but is the only team again on the road today with an 8 p.m. trip to Lubbock Coronado, a team that also has playoff hopes.

The Midland High girls are now 8-2 on the year with a second place finish in the Concho River tournament in San Angelo. MHS lost to Class 4A Plainview in the finals. Plainview was a 5A playoff team that eliminated the Lee girls in bi-district play last season.

The Lady Bulldogs will host Class 4A Andrews at 6 p.m. at Chaparral Center as part of a rare boy-girl doubleheader.

The Lee girls, now 5-5 after a 2-1 record in the Brownfield tournament over the weekend, will host the Lamesa girls at 8 p.m. today in the Lee gym. Lee missed one game in the Brownfield tournament due to bad weather Saturday.

Among District 4-5A teams, Abilene Cooper's boys stand at 7-2 for the year while Abilene High is 5-3. San Angelo is off to a cool 0-6 start. The Abilene High and San Angelo girls have been successful with 6-3 starts, but Odessa High is 8-2 and Cooper 5-5.

Bears give, Oilers take

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Chicago Bears gave until it hurt Monday night, just as they've done all season.

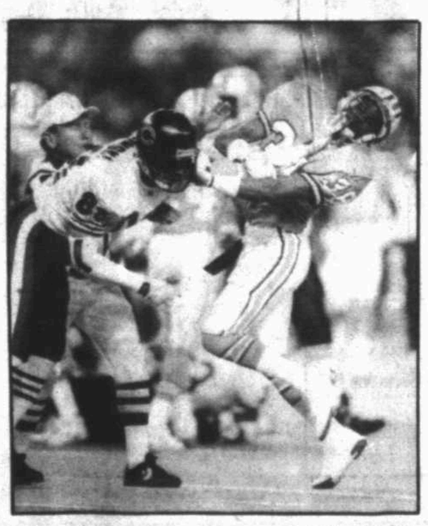

The Houston Oilers, feeding on Chicago turnovers, roared to a 24-7 victory, aided by a 26-yard interception return by Bubba McDowell and Webster Slaughter's 6-yard touchdown catch following a fumble recovery.

The Oilers (8-5) remained in the running for an AFC wild-card playoff berth and the Bears (4-9), continuing to wilt under their own miscues, lost their sixth straight game.

Houston did no more than copy what other teams have done to Chicago this season. The Bears have lost 26 turnovers and the opposition has produced 17 touchdowns and two fields goals from the errors.

Baseball suffers major jolts on two winter meeting fronts

Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Baseball was jolted twice Monday when the Rev. Jesse Jackson came to the winter meetings to chastize the sport for racism and owners voted to reopen their labor agreement, which may lead to another work stoppage.

On perhaps the most unusual day in the 92-history of the winter meetings, the sport's tumultuous racial and labor problems completely overshadowed the trade talk and signings that usually dominate the traditional off-season get-together.

Jackson, responding to racial slurs allegedly made by Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott, came to the hotel where all of baseball had gathered and said he and his Rainbow Coalition would seek to speed the sport's integration of its executive suites. A report released Monday showed 17 percent of front-office employees are black, up 1 percent from 1991, but just 21 of 534 executives and departments ahead among the clubs were black.

"Forty-five years after Jackie Robinson, it's time for owners to grow up and join the real America," Jackson said from a podium in the press room.

After his news conference, Jackson met with a baseball delegation headed by Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, chairman of the ruling executive council.

"If we cannot talk to them, we will meet them in a real sense at the turn-struggle into a 10-0 halftime Oiler lead with his theft and Brad Muster's third-quarter fumble was recovered by Ray Childress, setting in motion the same scenario.

Chicago's record losing streak was eight games in 1978 and they've lost six games in a row five times, most recently in 1989.

After trading defensive punches through the first quarter, the Oilers finally took a 3-0 lead on a 19-yard field goal despite the anxious demands of Oiler fans wanting a touchdown on fourth down from the Bear 2-yard line.

Cody Carlson's third-down pass to Slaughter got the Oilers a 16-yard gain for a first down at the Chicago 29 and a 10-yard pass interference penalty against Lemuel Stinson put the ball on Chicago's 6-yard line.

But two incompletions and a 4-yard gain by Lorenzo White was all the Oilers could muster before Al Del Greco's kick. Still, White broke the 1,000-yard mark for the season.

The game appeared headed for a 3-0 halftime when McDowell stepped in front of Willis' pass intended for Neal Anderson and ran down the sidelines 26 yards with 44 seconds left in the half. It was the first touchdown of McDowell' four-year career.

JOLT: Season in jeopardy

stiles in the opening week of the season," Jackson said. "We will meet them in the Congress and in the hearing rooms."

Minutes later, owners completed a four-hour meeting and voted by the narrowest of margins — 15-13 — to reopen the collective bargaining agreement with the Major League Baseball Players Association, which had been scheduled to expire on Dec. 31, 1993.

The key economic parts of agreement now expire on Jan. 11. Management's chief negotiator, Richard Ravitch, said owners didn't plan to lock out players again, but would not rule it out.

"Neither party will give up its legal options," Ravitch said.

Meanwhile, the Barry Bonds situation remained unchanged. His record $43.75 million, six-year contract with the San Francisco Giants still remained a tentative deal because he negotiated it with the incoming owners, not the present owners.

Free agent Joe Carter, a former Midland Cub, chose his new home over his old one, agreeing to re-sign with the Toronto Blue Jays.

Carter, who helped take Toronto to the World Series, had decided it would be between the Blue Jays and the Kansas City Royals.

Carter, 32, is from the Kansas City area. He listened to both sides before picking Toronto.

Carter hit 34 home runs with 119 RBIs and a .264 average last season. He has at least 100 RBIs in six of his last seven seasons, including stints with Cleveland and San Diego.

In the day's only other significant signing, Lou Whitaker and the Detroit Tigers agreed to a $10 million, three-year deal.

And dozen of free agent players also were waiting for the midnight EST deadline for clubs to offer salary arbitration. Among the ones offered arbitration by early evening were Robin Yount of Milwaukee, Joe Carter of Toronto and Steve Howe of the New York Yankees.

Free agents not offered arbitration generally can't re-sign with their former teams until May 1. Players offered arbitration can continue talking with their old teams through Jan. 8, and have until Dec. 19 to accept or reject the offer.

Still, business as usual hardly seemed important on this day. After speaking with reporters, Jackson met with a delegation that included Selig, Atlanta Braves chairman Bill Bartholomay, Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf, National League president Bill White, Pittsburgh Pirates director Douglas Danforth and California Angels executive vice president Jackie Autry.

"The meeting was congenial but inconclusive," Jackson said. "We shall seek to meet with the body of owners ... at a date yet to be determined that is mutually agreeable."

Jackson said that if owners failed to develop a minority hiring plan by opening day, there would be selective boycotts of stadiums and pressure put on Congress to repeal baseball's antitrust exemption.

"The power positions ... are essentially off limits to blacks and Hispanics," Jackson said. "What we want from baseball owners is a plan — team — to show where blacks and Hispanics are in the pipeline."

Baseball's labor situation remained as unsettled as the racial turmoil. Donald Fehr, the head of the players' association, said he didn't know when the union would be ready to start negotiations.

"The mere fact that this step was taken makes a confrontation possible," Fehr said.

Owners still remain unhappy with salary arbitration and free agency, and are nervous because the average salary passed $1 million for the first time last season and television networks say they will pay far less after the current $1.057 billion contract with CBS expires after next season.

"We are not seeking a confrontation," Ravitch said. "We want to be able to make some change in the player compensation system."

Baseball was interrupted by strikes in 1972, 1980, 1981 and 1985 and by lockouts in 1973, 1976 and 1990.

DALLAS: Redskins picked

the battle for homefield advantage in the playoffs. The 49ers are 11-2 but have the tiebreaker edge because of a better conference record.

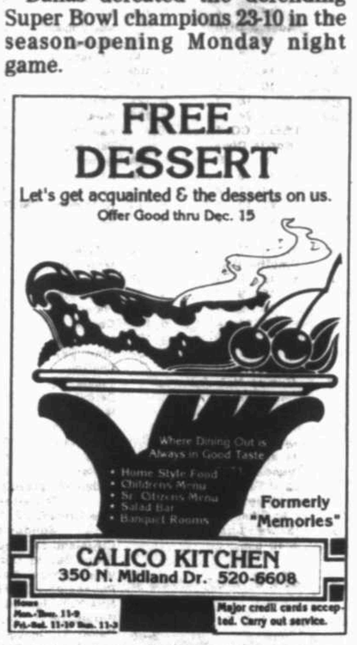

"To be in the playoffs is great but we want to sweeten the pie by winning the division and the homefield advantage," said wide receiver Michael Irvin, who caught two touchdown passes against the Broncos.

Running back Emmitt Smith, who tied a club season record with his 16th touchdown, said the Cowboys need to turn up the burner for the last three games against the Redskins, Atlanta and Chicago.

The oddsmakers have decided Dallas doesn't play so well on the road. They made the Cowboys field goal underdogs for Sunday's game in Washington.

Dallas defeated the defending Super Bowl champions 23-10 in the season-opening Monday night game.

It's a good day for Duke

Associated Press

DURHAM, N.C. — Duke returned to No. 1 and gave Coach K. No. 300.

The Blue Devils (3-0), who earlier in the day regained the top spot in the rankings it held all last season, crushed Northeastern 103-72 Monday night.

It was Mike Krzyzewki's 300th victory in 410 games at Duke, the team he has coached to five straight Final Fours and consecutive national championships.

It was expected Duke would have trouble getting ready for the Huskies (1-1) just two days after it beat then-No. 1 Michigan 79-68 in one of the biggest early-season matchups ever. There wasn't that much trouble, however, as the Blue Devils built a 10-point lead just over 5 minutes into the game and stretched it to 50-29 at halftime.

Top 25 Roundup

No. 6 Michigan 92, Det. Mercy 77

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Chris Webber scored 13 of his 24 points in the first half and pulled down 14 rebounds as No. 6 Michigan breezed past Detroit Mercy 92-77 Monday night.

Tony Tolbert had 22 points for Detroit. Tolbert won two letters at Michigan before transfering to Detroit and sitting out last season.

No. 7 Seton Hall 65, Miami 56

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Terry Dehere scored nine points in a 19-0 second-half run and No. 7 Seton Hall avoided one of the biggest upsets in Big East history by ralling from a 12-point deficit to defeat Miami.

Seton Hall (5-1, 1-0) held Miami (0-3, 0-1) to one field goal for the final 11:41 and converted 17 of 22 free throws down the stretch in finishing the game with 25-4 run. Miami made only one of its final 16 field goal attempts.

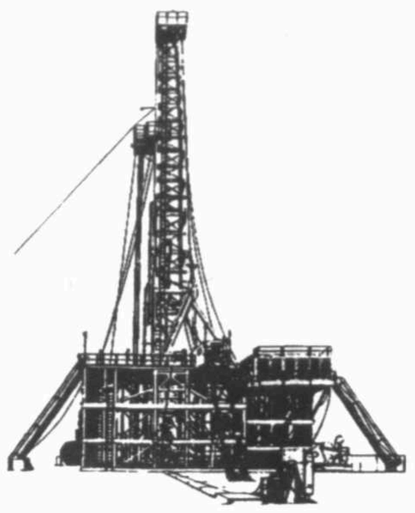

No. 2 Kansas 91, Emporia St. 56

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Eric Pauley scored 14 points and keyed an early second-half run that carried No. 2 Kansas past Emporia State in the first game between the schools in 45 years.

Pauley converted underneath and added two dunks in a three-minute span, helping the Jayhawks (3-0) open the second half with an 18-4 tear.

No. 25 Nebraska 86, Citadel 46

LINCOLN, Neb. — Freshman guard Jaron Boone scored 15 points to lead four Cornhuskers in double figures as No. 25 Nebraska overwhelmed The Citadel.

OLD TOWN MIDLAND

"Old Town Midland" remembers when:
The Scharbauer Hotel stood at the corner of Wall & Lorraine where the Hilton now stands and was the social center of Midland. Old time ranchers gathered there every morning for coffee and to discuss ranching. On one such morning, one charter member came in late and was greeted with, "Hi Tom, it's sure a pretty day, ain't it" Tom replied, "That's whats the matter with this country, too many pretty days." As usual, ranchers were needing rain.

Ideal Quiz

Adcock's Ideal Cleaners adds secret ingredient for success

Adcock's Ideal Cleaners offers the very best in quality dry cleaning.

We can meet all your dry cleaning needs. In addition to our regular service, we also offer something you may not know about. So here's Adcock's Ideal Quiz:

1. Have you ever had a fire in your house?
2. Has your refrigerator ever died while you were away?
3. Has your child ever thrown up on your favorite bed spread?
4. Did your brother-in-law ever borrow your car and smoke cigars in it all weekend?
5. Are you in the used car business and would like to have your new cars smell like new?
6. Did your pet ever get mad at you and take it out on your drapes, rugs or furniture?
7. Did you ever go fishing and forget to take the fish out of the trunk of your car?
8. Did your Mother-in-law ever spill her perfume on your best hunting jacket?
9. Did a skunk ever get loose in your house?

If the answer to even one of these questions is yes, then you need to know about our Ozone machines. This equipment will completely and thoroughly remove odor from clothing, leather, plastic, furniture, drapes and automobile upholstery. In fact, odor can be removed from any material.

In our new dry cleaning plant we have built a room especially for odor removal using the ozone method. Ozone is an element created in nature by lightning and naturally destroys odor. We can create it by using Sonozaire generators, safely and efficiently. Odor is not masked, but completely removed.

Our ozone machines are completely portable. If you've had a fire or other problem in your house, a disaster in your car, a refrigerator failure in your camper or motor home, we can help you. These machines work miracles in grocery store problem areas, institutional facilities and sick rooms. If you've had a party, guests who smoke, or have recently quit smoking yourself and want your home clean smelling and odor free, this machine can do it. We are the area distributor for Sonozaire ozone machines. We will be glad to give you a free, no obligation estimate for odor removal. Call (915)684-6697.

We love our new shop located at 315 Dodson in "Old Town Midland," two doors north from our old location. We've been here 40 years and hope to be here 40 more. We like what we do, and you will too.

If you liked our quiz today, tune in next time for "all about drapes," presented by Adcock's Ideal Cleaners and Drapery Service.

Van Pearcy states: New law could affect savings

More and more individuals are retiring earlier through forced retirement or individual choice. When this occurs, the new retiree, who has participated in a qualified retirement plan, typically has the option to choose a guaranteed monthly income in the form of annuity payments or a lump-sum distribution of the entire retirement account balance. What to do?

"Because of the various investment decisions and tax consequences associated with retirement distributions, anyone facing retirement should consult and interview a few professionals before committing to either choice," advised Van Pearcy. "Once a selection is made, it is generally irreversible."

Van Pearcy, Midland's Edward D. Jones & Co. representative, has been working with West Texans for several years in the retirement planning area. Van was born and raised in Andrews. He received his bachelor's degree in Economics and his m master's degree in Business Administration from the University of Notre Dame. Van and his wife own the building on West Cuthbert, where he operates his Edward D. Jones & Co. investment planning services.

"Most retirees choose the lump-sum distribution," Van stated. "Beginning January 1, 1993, lump-sum distributions will be transferable directly to an IRA rather than the recipient having to take receipt of the distribution. If the retiree selects to receive the distribution paid directly to them after January 1, 1993, the lump-sum distribution will be accessed a 20% withholding tax."

Because taxes are eventually due on retirement funds as money is withdrawn, some retirees elect to pay the taxes all at once and be done with it. There is possible special tax treatments associated with this choice, but the distributions must satisfy several criteria. Before making any decisions to pay all taxes up front, talk to a knowledgeable professional who understands the options available and their consequences.

Rollovers into IRAs generally offer the most options. The entire distribution does not have to be rolled over. Any portion received however, is taxed on ordinary income plus any applicable penalties and is not eligible for any special tax treatment.

"Penalties may be imposed for improper rollover of funds. The true purpose of penalties is to ensure that these savings are protected to be used during retirement years."

--- Van Pearcy

"Rollovers of lump-sum distributions into IRAs are simple but must be done carefully by someone who is familiar with IRAs rollover regulations," Van said. " Given the changes that will go into effect in 1993, extra care should be taken. Penalties may be imposed for improper rollover of funds. The true purpose of penalties is to ensure that these savings are protected to be used during retirement years."

If you are considering retirement within the near future, take time to explore your options. Don't let a hasty decision claim your retirement dollars. Feel free to stop in or call Van Pearcy if you need some conservative investment help.You'll find Van is personable, caring, knowledgeable and has a non-pressure approach about investing your hard-earned dollars. Cotton Patch features creative gift selections for anyone on your list

Turn your Christmas shopping into a unique and fascinating experience at Cotton Patch Collectibles where original gift ideas will bring joy to everyone on your shopping list.

The exceptional handcrafted gifts are not matched by other specialty stores so you can be assured that your selections will be one-of-a-kind!

"The selections are different than anywhere else in town and they're not duplicated," said Brenda Rawlins, a patron who has turned to Cotton Patch for the quality of handcraftmanship for over 3 years.

Owners Pat Bass and Woo King have kept patrons like Brenda returning by continuously updating their selections with new items that appeal to a variety of tastes and professions.

For that special nurse in your life, Cotton Patch has recently expanded the creative clothing and jewelry designs to include themes for nurses. The latest distinctive collection of Tattered Treasures by Laurie also features the Nurse Feel Better doll.

Teachers are always held in esteem around Christmas time, and as usual, Cotton Patch has a large selection of gifts for teachers. T-shirts, earrings, button covers, tote bags, note pads and decorations for the desk are added daily in a medley of school themes.

To make sure her classroom is artfully decorated, Richi Hargrove of Midland comes to Cotton Patch for new and unique ideas. "Pat and Woo are always very nice and helpful," said Ritchi. "Cotton Patch is a great place to go and share ideas for the classroom."

Special designs for men are artfully displayed in an assortment of Christmas ties or handcrafted wood. Wood creations include a carved wood domino set, cap hanger and a "honey do list" carved into a hammer design. Sports alarm clocks that talk while playing "Reveille" are a welcome addition to Cotton Patch's vast gift selections.

The unparaelleled gift selections include memorable gifts for children too! The colorful assortment of hairbows and children's jewelry are cleverly displayed on handcrafted wood hairbow hangers, and they compliment the expanded assortment of children's clothing.

Children's imaginations come to life in a superbly illustrated personalized book that features their name on every page as the main character.

With Christmas just around the corner, a barrage of resplendent Christmas clothing has filled the racks at Cotton Patch. Beautiful appliqued and handpainted vests, sweatshirts, tuxedo shirts and T-shirts adorn the holidays with bright colors and designs.

A Christmas outfit is not complete without a holiday apron for festive cooking. An original Christmas apron is the perfect compliment with the "Symphony of Flavors" cookbook for that special cook in your life.

With gifts that capture the essence of the holidays, your shopping can only be complete with warm thoughts for the heart like those found in "Little Bits from the Heart," a calender of special sayings for each day of the year that offers monthly encouragements for teachers, sisters, secret pals and parents.

Express your thoughts with meaningful handcrafted gifts from Cotton Patch Collectibles this Christmas. With so many new items arriving daily, like the china painted pottery and the cotton boll mugs and glasses, you're sure to find the perfect gift.

Can't find that perfect gift? The combined talents of Pat and Woo may be able to fill that special order, so call 689-3432 for customized gift alternatives.

Cotton Patch is located at The Courtyard, Loop 250 and N. Midkiff. Forecasts fuel rally

Forecasts for colder weather in the Northeast and Midwest fueled a rally in heating oil futures at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Light sweet crude oil for January delivery gained 24 cents and settled at $19.18 a barrel; January heating oil was up 1.32 cents at 55.54 cents a gallon; January gasoline was .69 cent higher at 52.11 cents a gallon; and natural gas for January delivery was 2.8 cents lower at $1.957 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Treasury bills

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to the lowest level since last month. The Treasury Department sold $12.2 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.29 percent, down from 3.31 percent last week. An additional $12.3 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.37 percent, down from 3.46 percent last week. The three-month bill rate was the lowest since they sold for 3.27 percent on Nov. 23. The six-month bill rate was the lowest since they averaged 3.31 percent on Nov. 9.

Dollar falls sharply

NEW YORK — The dollar fell sharply in extremely thin trading on world currency markets Monday. Gold prices rose slightly after falling overseas. On the New York Commodity Exchange, gold bullion for current delivery settled at $336.10 a troy ounce, up 40 cents from Friday. Republic National Bank said gold added 40 cents an ounce to a late bid price of $336.00. Analysts said the dollar sold off overnight in foreign markets, and the selling continued when trading shifted to the United States. "The dollar fell like a rock," said Marc Chandler, an analyst with the advisory firm IDEA. "Thin market conditions exacerbated fund managers' selling of dollars," and the U.S. currency sunk to its lowest levels in a month, he said.

Dow forges ahead

NEW YORK — Stock prices kept their yearend rally going Monday, posting new highs for several broad market indicators in a mood of enthusiasm over the economic outlook. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 12.15 points on Friday, rose another 18.65 to 3,307.33. Though the Dow remains below its June 1 closing peak of 3,413.21, most other, broader gauges of market trends have been steadily hitting record levels of late. Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 9 to 5 in the daily tally on the New York Stock Exchange. Big Board volume came to an estimated 217.70 million shares as of 4 p.m. EST, against 227.41 million in the previous session.

TWA to emerge from bankruptcy

■ Owner Carl Icahn relinquishes control, but agrees to provide financing, guarantee certain pension payments.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Trans World Airlines owner Carl Icahn has agreed to provide financing for TWA and to guarantee certain pension payments, clearing the way for the airline to emerge from bankruptcy court protection, officials said Monday.

Icahn agreed to provide $200 million in financing to TWA and up to $200 million in contributions to TWA's existing pension plans.

If the pension plans are terminated, he would pay up to $240 million more over eight years to the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corp., the federal agency that backs pension plans.

Under the plan, Icahn — who has owned more than 80 percent of TWA — would relinquish control of the airline upon final approval of the agreement by the bankruptcy court, which is expected in about 30 days.

After it emerges from bankruptcy, TWA's creditors will own 55 percent of the company and its unionized employees will own 45 percent.

The agreement came in weekend bargaining with the government as well as TWA creditors and unions. The airline came under heavy pressure to reach a deal because of a looming cash shortage.

"We will come out fighting fit," said Robin H.H. Wilson, one of TWA's two management committee members. He said he expects TWA to emerge from bankruptcy protection in the spring of 1993.

Icahn said, "Our infusion of $200 million into the airline, if used wisely, combined with the concessions made by the unions and the creditors, should bring about a TWA that will not only survive, but will prosper, in a very troubled industry."

TWA's reorganization plan, to be submitted to the bankruptcy court Jan. 12, would reflect the elimination of more than $1 billion in debt as well as wage and benefit reductions of about 15 percent, totaling about $660 million over three years, which were agreed to in September, TWA officials said.

The dispute over the under-funded pension plans had been the last major obstacle to the sale of TWA to its creditors and employees.

In October, the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corp. dropped its demand that the carrier first settle its $1.2 billion pension fund shortfall. In the agreement announced Monday, Icahn would guarantee certain pension payments if the plans are terminated, reducing the liability of taxpayers that would occur if the Pension Benefit Guarantee Corp. had to back the entire loss.

Also Icahn would provide an infusion of cash to the airline — $50 million immediately followed by $150 million when the bankruptcy court approves the transaction — to keep the company operating. Those funds would be turned into a two-year loan with an interest rate of one percentage point above the prime rate, Wilson said.

"You're going to see a more competitive and aggressive TWA, ... but prudence will always be a watchword," Wilson said. He declined to detail TWA's operational plan because it has not yet been filed with the bankruptcy court.

Asked whether the plan involved any mergers with other airlines, Wilson said, "The plan calls for us to go it alone."

TWA filed for protection from creditors under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act earlier this year after it was unable to make massive interest payments on money Icahn had borrowed to buy the airline in the 1980s.

A U.S. bankruptcy judge last week extended a Nov. 30 deadline for the airline to file its own reorganization plan after TWA lawyers and the airline's unsecured creditors said they needed more time to reach an agreement with the federal pension agency.

Jeff Schlesinger, president of Call Home America, stands inside his company's headquarters in Austin. The firm began by selling 800 telephone service to parents of students and families of truckers.

Long-distance chic: your own 800 number

By Evan Ramstad
Associated Press writer

AUSTIN — For three years, a little company named Call Home America has been selling 800 service to parents of college students and families of flight attendants and truckers.

Giants like Sprint and MCI soon joined in and personal 800 lines have quietly become one of the fastest-growing niches in the phone business.

"They've really expanded the market," Jeff Schlesinger, president of Call Home America, says of the competitors that now dominate it.

"We literally sell thousands a month," said Richard Goulet, a Sprint marketing director for business and 800 services at the company's Kansas City headquarters. "It's phenomenal."

From virtually none in 1989, there are now 1.5 million households, or nearly 2 percent of the nation's phone customers, with personal 800 numbers, according to a recent study by Yankee Group, a Boston-based technology research firm.

But some analysts and phone company executives think the market is still relatively untapped.

"I think it could really skyrocket in the years to come," said Peter Hampton, analyst at Yankee Group.

The firm's study found interest in the product in nearly 15 percent of U.S. households with phones, more than 12 million customers. But Hampton said that potential depends on phone companies' ability to spot new customers and willingness to market the product.

For instance, AT&T has not even printed a brochure on the personal toll-free service it launched in July, called Signature 800, and the other phone companies spend small fractions of their advertising budgets on it.

"Right now the best advertising is word of mouth," Goulet said.

Personal 800 service is designed to be a better value for customers who receive at least three collect calls or have six credit card calls per month.

The companies charge a monthly fee, ranging from $3.75 by Call Home America to $5.50 by AT&T, along with a per minute fee ranging from 19 to 26 cents. New phones are unnecessary.

U.S. consumer debt rises 2nd straight month

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans took out their credit cards again in October, pushing overall installment credit to its first back-to-back increase in a year, the government said Monday.

Consumer debt outstanding rose 0.4 percent, at a seasonally adjusted annual rate, after a 2.4 percent increase in September, the Federal Reserve said.

Economists said that's a sign Americans gradually were regaining their optimism in the economy just before the start of the crucial holiday shopping season.

"The consumer seems more confident. He seems to be more willing to go out there and put down some money," said economist David Wyss of DRI-McGraw Hill, a Lexington, Mass., forecasting firm. "But I don't think we're out of the woods yet. There's still a chance this recovery could stall out again, as have the last two."

Before the latest gains, consumer credit had been down for eight straight months and for 13 of the previous 16 months. The last back-to-back increase came in September-October 1991.

Gasoline prices fall 1.08 cents a gallon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices fell more than a penny a gallon over the past two weeks, continuing a trend caused by overproduction, an industry analyst said Sunday.

The average nationwide price for all grades, including tax, was 118.32 cents as of Dec. 4, said Trilby Lundberg, who surveys 12,000 stations nationwide twice a month.

The price reflected a 1.08-cent-a-gallon drop from two weeks ago.

The average prices for gasoline sold at self-service pumps was 112.51 cents a gallon for regular unleaded, 122.17 cents for mid-grade unleaded, 130.22 cents for premium unleaded and 114.19 cents for regular leaded.

At full-service pumps the price was 139.57 cents a gallon for regular unleaded, 146.57 cents for mid-grade unleaded, 154.83 cents for premium leaded and 147.05 cents for regular leaded.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Investor has question on self-directed IRAs

By Bill Doyle

Doyle

Q: I plan to retire in April. Most of the money in my retirement plan has been used to purchase stock of the company for which I work. When I retire, I plan to roll over that company retirement account into an individual retirement account. To do that, must I first sell the stock?

A: There is no Internal Revenue Service rule saying you must, but some brokerage firms would want you to do so.

IRS Publication 590, which spells out IRA regulations, specifically mentions rolling over "cash or other assets." That leaves no doubt government regulations permit stocks to go the IRA rollover route.

When you have an IRA with stocks in it, it's called a self-directed IRA, the presumption being you pick the stocks and run the account. The logical place to have a self-directed IRA is at a brokerage.

The biggest part of brokerage income results from commissions on buying and selling securities. With visions of commission sugarplums dancing in his or her head, it's natural for a broker to prefer that you sell the stock in your company retirement plan and buy the same stock or other stocks for your IRA.

However, you don't have to do it that way. Find a brokerage willing to accept stocks in an IRA. You'll have to pay annual IRA fees and, perhaps, some other charges. But you will duck fat commissions.

And get your present retirement account into the rollover IRA via a trustee-to-trustee transfer, with everything going from the trustee of your company retirement plan directly to the brokerage, without you touching those assets. That way, you will avoid the new 20 percent withholding tax due to take effect in January on lump-sum retirement plan distributions received — even for a short time.

Q: If I put common stocks in my IRA, will I be earning anything other than the dividends the stocks now pay?

A: Your IRA will earn whatever dividends the stocks pay during the time those stocks are in the IRA. Those dividends might be equal to, higher or lower than the dividends now being paid. Keep in mind that dividends on common stock can be raised, lowered or omitted depending on a company's financial health.

Besides dividend income, the market values of stocks in an IRA can rise or fall, just as they can when held outside a retirement plan.

Q: Having passed age 70½, my mother will be required to make withdrawals from her self-directed IRA in which she holds stocks. Her broker says the withdrawals must be in cash. Is that true?

Mother wants to keep her stocks and would prefer to take the withdrawals in shares of stock and then own the stock outside the IRA. She says she feels that would be better than selling the stock and repurchasing it.

A: Your mother is correct. The method she wants to use is far superior to the broker's. My suspicious mind comes up with the thought that broker is motivated by the commissions he would collect on the transactions.

IRS rules do not prohibit IRA distributions in kind — the withdrawal of securities, rather than cash.

Perhaps the brokerage firm has its own in-house rule to that effect. If that's the case, you mother should consider transferring her IRA — with the stocks intact — to a different brokerage.

Q: I am 64 and have $100,000 in my IRA. If I withdraw $20,000 before I become 70½, will I have to make systematic withdrawals based on $80,000 after reaching 70½? Or will I be allowed to take out smaller amounts each year, because I withdrew $20,000 earlier?

A: After passing age 70½, you will be required to make withdrawals based on your life expectancy or the joint life expectancy of you and your IRA beneficiary, based on the balance in your account the previous Dec. 31. No adjustment will be made because you made a large withdrawal before turning 70½.
