EINSTEIN 'GREAT'

LONDON, Oct. 29. (AP)—Professor Albert Einstein, (below), German scientist, today took his place as one of eight figures in George Bernard Shaw's hall of fame, niches in which the playwright has assigned to "builders of universes." At a dinner last night in honor of Professor Einstein, Mr. Shaw, referring to him as "the greatest of our contemporaries" counted on his fingers as comparable to Einstein; Aristotle, Pythagoras, Copernicus, Ptolemy,' Galileo, Kepler and Newton. "And," he added, "I still have two fingers left."

OCTOBER RAINS BRING BOOST IN OUTLOOK

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IN DISTRICT SAID TO BE IMPROVED

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Oct. 29.—The heavy soaking rains which fell throughout this Federal Reserve district during the first week in October relieved the prolonged drought, left a good season in the ground, and created a brighter outlook for agriculture and business, the monthly business review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas issued today, stated.

"Farmers are now able to proceed with fall plowing and to complete the seeding of small grains," the review continued. "That portion of the small grain crop already sown has come up to a good stand and is growing rapidly. Late feed crops were benefited to some etent and reports indicate that cotton bolls are maturing more normally. The condition of livestock and their ranges, which had become critical in the drought-stricken areas prior to the rains, has been greatly improved. Grass and weeds on the ranges have started and with a late frost considerable pasturage should be available during the winter. The movement of livestock to market has been considerable reduced and prices have turned upward."

The review stated that trade in

HE WAS DOOMED FOR ARREST

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (AP)—When a stranger asked Prosperino Razzano to construct a bomb for him. Razzano thought it a good joke to humor him with a fake bomb but now he has some doubt about it.

At first reluctant he finally acquiesed when offered $100 down and $150 more on delivery. So he made a "bomb" of a length of rubber hose, several bits of broken tile an dfew old socks.

But when he delivered the bomb he found the stranger was Detective Eugene Canevari who had received information that Razzano was a bombmaker for gangsters. And when the detective found the bomb was a dud he arrested Razzano for obtaining money under false pretenses.

(By The Associated Press)

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 29.—Shattered bodies of 8 miners were taken today from the Wheatley Number 4 mine, wrecked Monday night by a violent explosion that was conceded by rescue workers to have cost the lives of all of the night crew of 29 men. No reports had been received on the surface as to whether any other bodies had been found at noon.

The bodies were identified as those of John McCauley, D. Lewis, Nick Zontic, Sr., J. P. Hammon, Tony Campbell, Ernest Fears, Tom Holt and August Mosco.

The first two bodies to be brought out were those of J. P. Hammon and Tom Holt.

Red Cross to Aid

A ray of comfort to stricken relatives of the victims was cast by the announcement of Red Cross representatives that $80 would be allotted for the burial of each victim.

Three more of the eight bodies were brought to the surface at 10:30 a. m.

The eight bodies found had been buried under tons of debris.

Jim Galmore, one of the crew which uncovered them, said one was identified as that of Joe McCauley, engine operator. The other bodies were in a condition to prevent recognition, although efforts were being made to identify them by brass discs carried on the persons of the miners.

Work Is Difficult

WORK IS ASKED FROM WOMEN

NEW JERSEYAN URGES WOMEN TO HAVE HOMES REPAIRED

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—An appeal to the women of the country to aid the president's emergency committee on employment in its work to aid the jobless was made today by Dr. Lillian Gilbreth of Montclair, N. J., upon taking charge of the women's division.

Dr. Gilbreth urged the women to help by having repairs made to their homes and by working through their various groups to assist the destitute.

Colonel Arthur Woods, chairman of the committee, said the National and Columbia broadcasting systems had offered their services to the committee as well as the motion picture industry through Will H. Hays.

Concrete examples of local efforts to aid the unemployed will be related over the radio, Colonel Woods said, in the hope that municipalities yet to adopt programs will follow the example of those which have relief plans in full swing.

LEADERS SURE ELECTION TO RUN TRUE

REPUBLICANS SAY THEY WILL SUFFER LOSS IN SENATE

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The seething period of claims and counter-claims immediately preceding election was well under way in the capital today as leaders concentrated on last-minute activities.

Republican leaders concede they will suffer net losses in the senate after the ballots are counted, but they profess themselves much encouraged by recent developments and confident a safe party majority will be maintained.

From the Democratic party headquarters last night came an interpretation of Secretary Wilbur's recent campaign speech which professed to see the cabinet member urging the defeat of insurgent Republican senators who have not cooperated with President Hoover.

It was Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, who said he took Wilbur's talk to be "really asking for the defeat of such Republicans as Senator Borah of Idaho, Senator Norris of Nebraska, Senator McMaster of South Dakota, Senator Pine of Oklahoma and numerous others whose attitude during the recent sessions of congress filled Mr. Hoover with grief."

Senator Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, came forward with the prediction of a senate "safely Republican."

The banker admitted he had been kidnaped but flatly refused to name the amount of his ransom. He was in a cheerful frame of mind but his replies to questions were guarded.

"How much ransom was paid?" he was asked.

Not To Tell

"I am not going to tell," Yocum replied.

"Were you released because you complied with the requirements of your kidnapers?"

"Were the letters to Mrs. Yocum dictated?"

"Well, they were sort of suggested to me."

"Are you going to do anything about kidnaping?"

Let Somebody Else

"Would you disclose details of your kidnaping if the authorities demanded?"

WET-DRY ISSUE NOT IN VOTES

BOTH CANDIDATES IN NEW YORK FAVORING DRY LAW REPEAL

BY RUSSELL HATHAWAY

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 29 (AP)—While the wet and dry question has been removed as a political issue between the major parties in the empire state, the size of the dry vote next Tuesday will determine largely whether the Republicans will be able to wrest control from the Democrats.

Until the ascendancy of Alfred E. Smith as governor, New York state was regarded as a Republican stronghold. But in recent years the Democrats have held a firm unbroken grip on the reins. This year, for the first time since the advent of prohibition, the Republicans, through their gubernatorial candidate, Charles H. Tuttle, former federal district attorney at New York, have openly advocated repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The Democratic party, since the days of Smith, has always been wet. Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, seeking re-election, had also declared in favor of repeal.

TWO OFFICERS, STOREKEEPER VICTIMS OF BATTLE TODAY AT CAMERON; ONE INJURED

SHOOTING TAKES PLACE AS QUARTET OF LAW OFFICERS COME UP TO STORE TO PROBE BURGLARY; STOREKEEPER OPENS FIRE

(By Associated Press)

CAMERON, Oct. 29.—Three men were killed and a fourth wounded today in a gun fight at a store here.

The dead: Ed Dunman, about 30, shot in the head; Guy Pope, deputy sheriff; R. B. Brady, 41, proprietor of the store, which is on the outskirts of town.

Sheriff L. L. Blaylock said he could give no motive for the shooting, nor could Deputy Sheriff Ray Robinson, who was wounded in the hand.

The sheriff said the officers—Dunman was a special officer of the Santa Fe railroad—were investigating the burglary of some Santa Fe cars and a warehouse, which occurred Friday night. They stopped at the store, Blaylock added, to talk to Brady, who ran into the store and began firing with a shotgun.

Fire Returned

Deputy Robinson, Sheriff Blaylock added, returned the fire with his pistol. Shooting four times.

Brady, the sheriff declared, turned the gun on himself after opening fire on the officers.

"I haven't the slightest idea," said the sheriff, "why Brady began firing."

Had No Quarrel

The storekeeper had no quarrel as far as he knew, Blaylock added, with the officers, who merely had stopped to "chat" with him "on their rounds."

Gene Smith, city marshal, said when he reached the scene of the shooting, Brady covered him with his gun and said:

"Gene I do not want to kill you, but I did not want to be taken by them."

Smith said Brady then placed the muzzle of a single-barrel shot gun to his own head and killed himself.

Smith said he believed Brady opened fire from a window of his store. Officers Dunman and Pope fell in the yard of the store. Brady was said to have reloaded his gun after firing once, killing Dunman with the second load.

Brady's head was partly blown away by the shot.

The bodies of Dunman and Pope were found within 15 feet of each other.

Pope was shot in the stomach and lived a few minutes, dying in an ambulance en route to a hospital.

DECISIONS ARE UPHELD TODAY IN COURT

MRS. BAKER'S CASE IS REAFFIRMED; HAWKINS CASE REVERSED

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Oct. 29—Clyde Baker, 22, convicted of murder in Jones county in connection with the death of her husband, Charlie Baker and sentenced to 15 years, lost her second appeal today when the court of criminal appeals re-affirmed the finding of the trial court.

Mrs. Baker had sought reversal on the ground the state had failed to prove her husband died from the effects of poison, alleged to have been sent him through the mail. In upholding the conviction, the court stated sufficient evidence had been introduced by the state to prove the allegations in the indictment.

Sent Him Pills

According to the statement of facts, Mrs. Baker allegedly purchased poison at a drug store in Stamford and mixed some pills which were sent her husband, inclosing a note, purported to be from his mother, which said she had learned he was ill and for him to "take a big dose of it."

Mrs. Baker then went home and went to sleep and her husband took a dose of the poison a short time after its arrival. He died a few minutes later. This occurred May 23, 1927.

Sentenced Reversed

Because the judge in his charge to the jury, called attention to the relative strength of the defendant and the deceased, the court reversed the fifty-year sentenced assessed Joe Hawkins for the slaying of S. M. Walker, in Crosby county. Walker was shot to death with a shotgun October 28, 1929.

The record disclosed the men had quarreled over a dog fight and Hawkins, pleading self defense, of-

He killed D. W. Hamilton, Fritts admitted, but he contended the shot was fired in self-defense after the elder Hamilton started into his house, saying he was going after a gun.

Fritts is charged with killing both father and son. He has been given one death sentence, but the case was reversed, and is under one life sentence. On cross examination here he admitted that he had been indicted for 16 felonies during the five years prior to the Hamilton killings. A Smashing Serial Of Football And Love

"MUD AND GLORY"

SYNOPSIS

Terry Malone, Princeton freshman, arouses the enmity of Red Thomas by his prowess on the football field. During practice, Terry sees Margot Blair and is anxious to meet her.

Red is also interested in Margot.

While playing, Red, furious when Terry tackles him, kicks Terry in the stomach.

Later, in a scrimmage, Terry evens the score and Red is carried out. Rumors about Red's entrance to Princeton and fabulous offers from other colleges add to the antagonism.

CHAPTER V

Terry blushed, hurried under the showers and jerked on the water. Yellow . . . yellow. . . .

"Say, that surely was a great tackle you made on Red," cried Burne, splashing under the showers and covering his body with soap suds. "Damned few men can miss a runner and then get him again. The coach was impresed," he continued, dancing under cold water. "You've got that quarter-back job sewed up in a little bag, and with Red at full-back we'll run wild."

"Yeah," commented Terry, indifferently turning off the water and pulling down his towel from the horizontal bar overhead. "That's great." Yellow . . . yellow.

When Terry returned from the showers, Red was slowly putting on his street clothes. Sonny Drayton was having a verbal battle with the referee who ordered him out of the game. Unable to get any satisfaction, he stamped out of the room. Players were leaving in groups of twos and threes. Terry planned to wait for Burne. He looked at Red. Dressed, Red sat in a corner near the door. There crept into his eyes the strange, distraught gaze so often seen in the eyes of a prize fighter as he sits crouching in his corner listening to his seconds and waiting for the first gong. His fists were slowing opening and closing and his foot tapped the floor impatiently.

The stimulation of the cool shower was suddenly lost. Terry felt sick in the pit of his stomach, his head spun with fever and the roof of his mouth was parched.

Mechanically he got into his clothes, slapped on his black cap at a rakish angle in attempted bravado, looked at himself in the mirror as he fixed his necktie, and fought for time. Burne asked him to wait and Terry felt relieved. Burne was a slow dresser.

Still the fighting mad Red Thomas sat tapping his foot.

Burne was ready to go. With strained nonchalance, Terry walked with him out into a drizzling rain. The field house was practically deserted, with the last of the football men hurrying toward the gates. Yellow lights glowed through the mist along Prospect avenue. Behind them came the slow, deliberate steps of Red Thomas.

Here was the final show-down. Stepping on the field, Red grabbed Terry's arm, swinging him around. "Listen, Frank Merriwell, we're going to have this thing out."

A faint pink came into Terry's cheeks. He looked at Red's hand on his arm. "Please let go of that arm." His voice was cold and flat, unlike any voice Burne has ever heard. It made him shiver.

Red merely tightened his grip.

Burne was annoyed by the sudden turn of events. "What's up here? How about cutting out the bunk? Come on, Red, you're a big boy now. Take your hand away. Terry's liable to get peeved—"

Instead, Red's opened palm pressed against Terry's nose, almost forcing him off his feet. On the rebound, a swinging blow caught Red on the jaw and in a second flying fists filled the air, with the two athletes standing toe to toe, battling away.

"I'll knock the teeth down your throat," muttered Red, wading in with both arms working like pistons. Red's rain-soaked face was raw from Terry's flying fists and blood trickled from his lip. Terry put up a splendid fight, although his right eye colored and a body blow winded him. He crouched low, kept up his defense, ducked, sidestepped and covered up under the rain of hammer-like blows from Red's powerful fists.

Unable to stand the brutality of the fight, Burne Warwick tried to separate them. A wild swing from Red sent Burne spinning on the ground. Rubbing his jaw, he decided he had better stay out of it. He cheered for Terry. "Keep your face covered. Up with the defense, Terry. Let him wear himself out. Ouch! That was a knock-out, Terry. Get away! Rush him!"

Red was fully twenty pounds heavier than Terry and several inches taller. The sheer power of the big fellow was telling. A wicked blow thudded against Terry's head. He lost his balance in the mud and dropped to the ground, with Red Thomas jumping down on him. At this flagrant violation of fighting ethics, Burne again interceded. "Let him get up Don't be a mucker—"

Red's fist rattled on Burne's jaw and he stretched out on the ground, too dazed to move for several seconds. Jumping down on Terry, Red brutally drove his knee into his back. After all, he was the boorish schoolboy of fiction suddenly come to life. He jerked Terry's arm upward and twisted it behind him in the hammerlock.

Panting, raging, Red gloated over his battered victim.

"Take everything back, you dirty bum!"

"No!"

Red jerked the arm backwards.

"God, you're breaking my arm!"

Again he twisted Terry's arm, twisted it back, back, until the grinding pain forced him to cry out in terrible agony.

The sharp cry frightened Red. He jumped to his feet. Burne hurried to Terry's side, tried to lift him up, with his right arm encircling his neck. The left arm dangled helplessly at Terry's side.

"Damn you, Red," cried Burne. "You've broken his arm!"

"Oh yeah," said Red, rubbing his bleeding mouth with a handkerchief and washing the mud and rain from his face. "Serves him right. Tried to break my leg in scrimmage. The dirty bum. Serves him right."

With slow, deliberate steps, Red started off in the slaty autumn twilight.

Burne carried Terry to the street, hailed a passing automobile and rushed the injured athlete to the Infirmary. Settled in a white room, with doctors examining his broken arm, Burne looked at Terry. In his eyes he saw for the first time the beaten expression of one whose greatest aspiration was shattered by a blow of fate; the pitiful, helpless look of one who had lost the most cherished opportunity in the world.

Sonny Drayton looked at Terry with a mixed expression from which all the elements of admiration and approval were notably absent.

"So you're going to enter Yale as a freshman," repeated Sonny, tapping the table in a deserted corner of a celebrated bootleg joint on the East side of New York. "Going to Yale just because you don't click with Red Thomas. Well, well, well."

Sonny flourished the urbane manner of an impressive sophomore just off the boat from Europe. Then, in an unguarded moment, the real Sonny Drayton, a two-fisted athlete who would fight his way on the Princeton varsity as center, flared up. "Ah, where's the old fight!"

On the word fight, the proprietor, known to hundreds of college men as "Dan," stopped chewing on an unlighted cigar and his beaming red face had a worried expression. He watched the more aggressively excited of the two, Sonny Drayton, and debated with himself the advisibility of interceding.

Terry reached for a bottle of White Rock. As he leaned forward, Dan noticed that a sharp flicker of pain distorted his features. Terry raised his hand to his throbbing left shoulder.

"That damned arm," he winced. "Pains like hell when I raise it or suddenly reach for things. Drives me nearly crazy on rainy days." An ironic smile played in the corners of his mouth. "My little remembrance from Red Thomas."

"Aw, forget it," snapped Sonny. "It'll be alright soon. Just because you were forced to have it reset a couple of times and missed a year of school there is no reason for you to resign from Princeton and go to Yale."

"Better than returning to Princeton with Red Thomas a year ahead of me. Imagine my trying to make the varsity next fall with that guy in the backfield.

"I'm bigger now and stronger. The last few months on a ranch worked wonders. And you know how I am, Sonny. Never missed a fight in my life. No use arguing. I've just got to go to Yale."

Terry called for more cracked ice. Then turned to Sonny. "Yep, I'm going to be a Yale man, wear a big blue sweater some day, sing rough songs and have an affair with a Follies girl."

"I would suggest," snapped Sonny in his careless way, "that you go back to Andover and frolic with the prep school lads. You're too young to select a college; need some dope on yourself."

"Dirty crack," grinned Terry, turning to Dan, who hustled forward with cracked ice.

"Hope you boys are through arguing," chuckled Dan. "I don't mind a good fight myself but for the life of me I can't see any sense in messing each other up over colleges."

"But just get an earful, Dan", pleaded Sonny. "This sap was a freshman at Princeton last year, my roommate, and now he thinks he's going to enter Yale."

"That's not so bad. Lots of fine fellas come in here from New Haven. Lots of them. I like them as well as fellas from Princeton or Harvard. Yes sir."

The association has so far received about 1,280,000 bales. An increase in sales inquiries has been reported.

Texas has shown a marked increase in deliveries by farmers to the association, twice as many bales having been received as last year. This is considered of particular significance as Texas is the largest producing state of the belt.

CONSTANCE CUMMINGS, BLONDE AND BEAUTIFUL, IS NEWEST CINDERELLA OF MOVIES; GOES FROM CHORUS TO LEAD ROLE

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood seems to be overflowing with fairy godmothers these days—and they certainly are doing well by their little Cinderellas, too.

First it was Frances Dee, the extra girl who had more experience than Cinderella ever dreamed of when she was selected as Maurice Chevalier's leading lady. And now Constance Cummings, 20-year-old Seattle girl, has gotten the same kind of a break. She has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn to play opposite Ronald Colman in his newest picture.

Beautiful, blond Constance never stepped in front of a motion picture camera until a few weeks ago when she was asked to take a test for the part of Colman's leading lady. She didn't even have the extra experience that Miss Dee had.

Then how did she ever happen to be chosen for such a choice role? Well, it happened in this way. From the time she was a high school girl in Coronado, Calif., Miss Cummings had ambitions to become an actress. At first she took part in school plays. After her graduation she played two small bits with the Savoy players in San Diego. Then she went to New York in hopes of doing bigger things.

Scores as Understudy

During 1928 and 1929 Constance secured work in the choruses of several musical productions due to her ability as a dancer plus a beautiful face and perfect figure. Last spring she secured a small role in "June Moon" and understudied Linda Watkins, who was playing the lead. One day Miss Watkins was taken ill and Constance played her role for several days and thus was brought to Goldwyn's attention. A screen and voice test resulted and Constance was brought to Hollywood.

"I think Miss Cummings is one of the real finds of the year," Goldwyn told me. "If I didn't think she was exceptionally good I never would let her play the role of Colman's leading lady, nor would I have signed her to a five-year contract. Those two things speak for themselves."

If the past can be taken as any criterion, Miss Cummings certainly is due for a long ride in this film racket. It was Goldwyn who brought Vilma Banky to this country and it was as Colman's leading lady that she enjoyed most of her success. It also was Goldwyn who brought Lily Damita here from France and she got her start in a Colman picture.

Couple Charged For Blackmailing

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 29. (AP)—Roy St. Lewis, United States district attorney, said today he had filed Mann act charges against Mr and Mrs. C. W. Frame, alias C. W. Gould, charging they had used a Fort Worth, Tex., high school girl as a decoy in a scheme to blackmail wealthy men in Oklahoma City and Tulsa.

Lewis said the girl had come to Oklahoma City in response to an advertisement promising a secretarial position, representing that the advertisers were connected with a large Chicago department store. The charges followed a statement by the girl and questioning of an unnamed Tulsa oil man on whom it was alleged a blackmail attempt had been made.

Frame and his wife were held under $2,500 bond each.

Rhine Is Entrancing To West Texans; Nation Is Proud Of Famous River

Editor's Note: Below is another one of the series of articles being written by Sutton Christian and Allan Carney, former Lubbock newspaper men, who are on a tramp around the world. They left here July 18 and the article below was written during the latter part of September.

COLOGNE, Germany.—Directly connected by canal with the great port of Antwerp and flowing through the richest region of this wealthy empire, the Rhine River plays a momentuous role in the industrial program now under way in Germany.

The famous river is more than an institution in a land now struggling to regain its financial footing. Added to its scenic charms which attract thousands of tourists each summer are the transportation problems served by the stream. Taking its rise in the Swiss Alps, the river measures 825 miles in length and is navigable almost to its source.

All Germans and Rhinelanders in particular point with pride to their beloved river, its uses and the traditions woven in among its hilly banks. Cities located on the river are invariably distinguished thus: "Cologne ON THE RHINE" and so forth.

It was at Coblenz, the seat of the American maneuvers during the time of the occupation of Germany, that we boarded one of the numerous passenger steamers which make daily trips up the Rhine. No city in the republic welcomes visitors from the United States more than Coblenz. Beautifully situated on the left bank of the Rhine at the confluence of that river and the Moselle, this town of 60,000 inhabitants furnished the occasion for the recounting of innumerable yarns concerning the pleasurable association with American soldiers.

Seven hours were required to make the trip upstream to Mains, the birthplace of Gutenberg, inventer of the printing press. Between these two towns is to be found the most romantic part of the Rhine valley. Grandiese ruins of ancient castles and fortresses, destroyed by the French in 1689, still stand on the high cliffs overlooking the river. Countless historic relics.

Vineyards, producing a checkered effect on the slopes bordering the river, furnish the choicest of wines. And to this industry the inhabitants of the Rhine valley likewise point with unadulterated pride. Perhaps the main factor in the universal popularity of this region is the famous Menish wine. To tell a German that you have never heard of Steinberger, Johannisberger, Serg or any number of the most popular brands is to acknowledge rank ignorance in his eyes.

To the outsider there are no signs of distress on the Rhine valley. Industry and commerce are flourishing. One fellow passenger on the river steamer, an Oxford student who hails from Calcutta, was likewise impressed with the rapid strides made by the Germans since 1918.

Concluding an extensive tour of Europe, this scholar had come into Germany after a sojourn in Austria.

"The industrial conditions in Germany are nothing short of remarkable," he said. "These signs of recovery are in sharp contrast to what I have just seen in Vienna, where poverty is apparent on all sides. I cannot help but congratulate Germany in her ability to reconstruct after the war."

Another example of the German's pride and loyalty to the Fatherland was encountered in the person of a middle-aged native of Frankfurt.

One of his first exclamations was, "Don't you think this is all very beautiful?"

"Yes, very beautiful" was the answer.

"But don't you think this is the most beautiful country you have ever seen?" he insisted.

They did not know of the whereabouts of the other until a few days ago.

FLAMING YOUTH APPEARS IN GRAND OPERA IN CHICAGO; JAZZ HAS PART

BY E. M. CIPRIANI
Central Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A grand opera of the present day, interpolated with jazz, yet drawn on a famous story of yesteryear, will be given for the first time by the Chicago Civic Opera company this season. The composer is Hamilton Forrest, a young American of Chicago.

The name of his opera is "Camillee." Forrest drew his inspiration from the old tale of Alexandre Dumas, fils, but with a twentieth century vision brought his theme down to the present day. "Camille," with a modern complexion, will be different. It is predicted.

Modern Complexion

First, it portrays this decade.

Second, one scene will be replete with song hits from the worried world of jazz.

Third, the language of "flaming youth" will be used in the book, the first time that sedate grand opera will have been doctored with such oral verbiage.

But Forrest's "Camille" will have one true traditional operatic stairsby, one real operatic ingredient—a death scene in the final act. Also after all, despite his radical departure from the old world of opera, Forrest will cling to one aspect of the old school.

New Stage Treatment

Incidentally the play will be given an entirely new treatment in staging. The opera will be in three acts and four scenes, the first act being divided. The first scene of act one will be subdivided into four parts, the changes taking place in full view of the audience.

Mary Garden, famous prima donna, may appear in the title role at the premiere. She has expressed a desire to help put over this new work by an American composer, and probabilities are that her wish will be granted.

Meanwhile, music critics are eagerly awaiting the appearance of "Camille" at the footlights. If successful, "Camille" may inspire other works among American composers.

It is pointed out by Cameron that 200 prospects will be canvassed in the drive. At present the organization, after five years of constructive project work, has maintained 200 memberships.

APPROPRIATION FOR ZRS-5 INCLUDED IN NEXT BUDGET

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29—Secretary of the Navy Adams said today an appropriation for construction of the ZRS-5, the second of two navy super dirigibles, had been included in the navy budget to be presented to congress in December.

David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics said the navy had asked for an appropriation of $1,500,000 for construction of the ship. The total appropriaton sought for navy aircraft, Secretary Ingalls said, was approximately $32,000,000.

Under the contract with the Goodyear Zeppelin Corporation of Akron, O., the department was allowed thirty days from date of completion of the ZRS-4 to decide on construction of the ZRS-5. It is expected the ZRS-4 will be completed in April or May, 1931.

Secretary Adams said that inclusion in the budget for request of funds to construct the ZRS-5 did not necessarily mean the navy would order it built.

WILBUR URGES GOP SUPPORT

SECRETARY SAYS VOTES TO DECIDE BUSINESS RECOVERY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Election of a Republican congress November 4 to cooperate with President Hoover in bringing about business recovery was urged Tuesday in a radio address by Secretary Wilbur.

Speaking over the National Broadcasting Chain, the secretary of the interior asserted: "if we were to seek the world over for that man most competent to help us in our present situation we would find him in the White House."

"Two years from now," he added, "we can shift captain and crew if it seems wise, but now we must not commit the folly of defeating ourselves by paralyzing our leader. The test I ask you to put to yourself when you vote for a senator or congressman is this:

"Will he support President Hoover in every effort to carry our country through the difficult years ahead or will he block the game? Which do you want, guided progress or increasing confusion?"

Dreiser Mentioned For Prize

Theodore Dreiser, left, American novelist, is being prominently mentioned, in Stockholm, as a likely winner of the 1930 Nobel prize for literature. Dr. Bosch, right, privy councillor and chairman of the Chemical Trust of Germany, has been nominated for the Nobel peace prize as the most outstanding scientific engineer of this generation. Because of the general prosperity in Sweden the prizes will have a record value of $46,350 each.

Schoenhair Claims New Speed Record

AKRON, O., Oct. 29. (AP)—A new world record for a 1,000 kilometer airplane flight over a closed course was claimed here today by Lee Schoenhair, noted distance flyer, after he covered the distance in 3 hours and 47 minutes. This is an average of about 165 miles per hour. The world record, held by Fernand Lasne of France, is 154.29 miles per hour.

Citizens of the town of Goose Creek, Tex., plan to change the name to Southport, believing the latter more dignified.

GLIDING IN AMERICAN STYLE IS AIM OF MICHIGAN STUDENTS IN GLIDING

ANN ARBOR, Mich., (AP)—Development of an American style of gliding is sought by the University of Michigan student glider club.

Organized two years ago with six members, the club now has 84, and four gliders. There have been four crackups, the results of which were confined to damage to the glider. In addition to the student glider activities, Roswell E. Franklin, assistant professor of engineering, is doing extensive work on glider construction.

"We have been experimenting," he says, "with the American type of glider in an effort to build one which will suit the temperament and needs of the American people. Practically all the gliders built in this country today are designed after the Geman glider.

"Germany has hills from which they glide to the valleys below America has hills of this type, but they are not within close enough range to permit any extensive use, and furthermore the American people are not of the temperament, nor have they time to take a vacation of two or three wekes to glide.

"They want speed and excitement and they have turned to towing by auto for this pleasure. Towing naturally requires a stronger, more reliable ship and this is the ship we have developed. Airplane towing was developed as a means of testing the performance of the gliders."

Prof. Franklin designed and built the Glider in which Capt. Frank Hawkes was towed across the United States.

Estate Gas Range Will Do

LEONA RUSK IHRIG

"Its Performance—under any condition—is Constant and Reliable—" says Mrs. Ihrig of Avalanche-Journal Cooking School

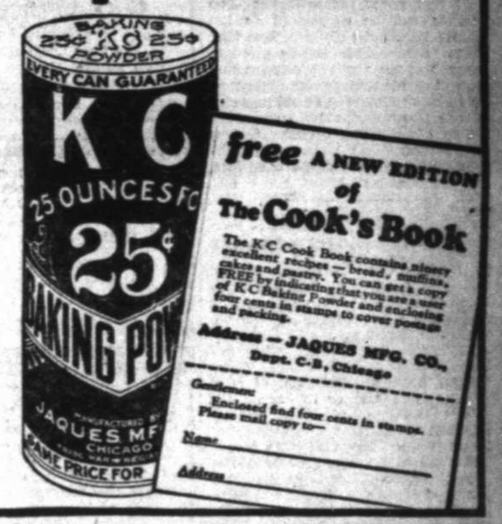

For one and all—inexperienced cooks, expert cooks—there's no range like the Estate. For only the Estate has the "double-boiler" oven—everything you bake in it comes out uniform in shape, in color, in texture. And, if you like, you may have it insulated—the Heat-Retaining Oven, that keeps the heat in where it belongs.

Of course, Estate has many other exclusive features that you'll appreciate, such as: Therm Estate Oven Heat Control, that keeps watch over the baking time and temperature; oven racks that slide in and out like cabinet drawers; Rigidraw smokeless broiler pan; stay-cool door handles; easy-to-clean, one-piece cooking-top; convenient utensil drawer; vitreous enamel finish, inside and out, with every nut, bolt and hinge concealed.

GAINES-ANDREWS LINES SURVEYED

(By Staff Correspondent)

SEMINOLE, Oct. 29.—Through an agreement between the county commissioner's courts of Gaines and Andrews counties, the south county line of Gaines and the north county line of Andrews will be surveyed from the eastline of the two counties, west of the New Mexico state line.

Robert Estes, of Midland, well known West Texas surveyor, has been secured to make the survey, R. W. Pittman, county judge of Gaines county, said.

To Establish Points

"Mr. Estes will work from the established corner at the northeast corner of Gaines county, with Terry county, south to the southeast corner of Andrews county. He will then establish the half way point between the two corners and will survey west.

"Both counties have agreed that a half way point between the two corners will be considered as the county line. Both of us believe that there is more than the required 60 miles between the two corners and we will divide any surplus there may be in more than the 60 miles width of the two counties."

The county line between Gaines and Andrews has never been definitely agreed upon as a settled line, Judge Pittman said.

Guardian Named For Aged Princess

PARIS, Oct. 29 (AP)—A French court today decided that a judicial guardian should be appointed to supervise the property of the 73-year-old Princess Marie Charlotte Constance de Broglie, who last month married Prince Louis Ferdinand D'Orleans-Bourbon, 41.

"It is necessary to defend the great fortune of the princess against disquieting convetousness," read the decision. Under its provisions the princess will be unable to use any part of her fortune for the benefit of her husband.

The court also charged there were certain irregularities in the marriage of the couple, which took place at a London registry office.

How I fry fish . . .
. . without smoke
[and with an improvement in the flavor]

1 I prepare the fish. Then I put Crisco into a cold frying pan. To cook the fish without smoke or scorching I fry slowly. I use enough Crisco to partly cover it. It does not require the constant attention frying would if I were to use only a little fat.

2 I put the frying pan over low heat. As soon as Crisco is melted, I put in a small piece of bread.

3 As soon as the bread starts to brown, I put in the fish. Cook slowly until the fish is nearly done; then turn to brown the other side. With plenty of Crisco in the frying pan, I can turn the fish easily without breaking, if I wait until it is almost done.

4 I strain the Crisco back into the empty can through cheese-cloth or a fine sieve. Then I can use the Crisco for the next thing I want to fry. Crisco doesn't carry the flavor of one food to the next. Furthermore, Crisco itself tastes sweet and fresh, just as it comes from its air-tight can. And, when you come to think of it, should you ever fry in a fat you are unwilling to taste?

COOKING SCHOOL NOTE by Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig

In the cooking school I conduct under the auspices of the Avalanche-Journal I stress modern methods of cooking. Naturally, then, I use and recommend CRISCO—for it's a modern shortening. Mrs. Leona Rusk Ihrig.

OIL TARIFF IS PREDICTED BY LUCEY

INDEPENDENT OIL MEN HEAR OF PLANS IN BANQUET

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 29.—Capt. . F. Lucey of Dallas, in an address at the banquet of the Independent Petroleum association Tuesday said he believed a bill placing a tariff on exports of crude and refined oils to this country would be passed by congress. He declared he could see no reason for many delegations in congress objecting to a tariff on oil from foreign countries.

He declared, however, objection must be expected from many quarters. The public may be expected to object to a tariff on oil, he said, because there are many users of oil to every producer of the commodity. He added there may be expected opposition from some of the larger oil concerns engaged in the importation of oils from foreign countries, but he intimated that source of objection might be negligible.

Is Recent Convert

Captain Lucey declared he is a recent convert to the policy of a tariff on oil, that a few years ago he was opposed to the measure. But he declared conditions have changed and that in his opinion a tariff now is very desirable. He said that during the years when it appeared the oil resources of this country might be exhausted and when Atlantic coast refineries were dependent largely on Mexican crude oil for their supply he opposed the tariff. However, since modern refining methods and modern drilling methods have practically removed every danger of any exhaustion of the supply in this country, he is in favor of the tariff.

W. E. Talbot, of Dallas, Republican nominee for governor of Texas, was another speaker at the banquet. He urged that Texas people support Texas grown and Texas manufactured products. Talbot said he was wearing a cotton suit of clothes made in Texas and from Texas grown cotton. His shoes also were Texas made shoes and every other article of his wearing apparel was manufactured in Texas. He declared his complete clothing represented an expenditure of $20.35 and that his suit of clothes cost only $15.

Ross S. Sterling of Houston, Democratic nominee for governor, was slated to address the meeting but could not be present. He sent a telegram, however, in which he emphasized his support of the proration program in Texas and a proper tariff on imported oil and oil products.

C. V. Terrell, member of the railroad commission, spoke briefly in support of the proration movement in Texas and declared the railroad commission was interested in the enforcement of proration only insofar as it was necessary to prevent waste and insofar as it was to the interest of all the people of Texas. He declared the commission was not interested in whether proration boosted the price of oil.

Tom E. Cranfill of Dallas, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas, spoke on the subject "A United Texas." He said the association was doing all it could for the good of all the people of Texas. He described the independent in the oil industry as a very sick patient and that the association was doing all in its power to revive the industry. He declared the oil industry is the biggest money crop in all the state of Texas.

Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls and one of the most widely known independent operators of Texas, acted as toastmaster.

ARMY COUNTER IS REVEALED ILLEGAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (AP)—Football students had the problem "when is a touchdown not a touchdown" before them today as well as the growing speculation that all is not as well as it might be in the football relations of Yale and Army.

Officials at Yale announced yesterday after a review of motion pictures of Saturday's Army-Yale game that Tom Kilday, Cadet halfback, had scored an illegal touchdown in putting Army in a position to gain a 7-7 tie. They claim that the pictures, viewed in private by Head Coach Mal Stevens, Line Coach Adam Walsh, Tad Jones, Dean Clarence Mendell and Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale athletic association, showed that Kilday was knocked over the goal line from behind by Stecker, a halfback mate, after he had been stopped short of the goal in a charge from the Yale one yard line.

At the same time, Yale officials said they expected to do nothing about the situation and would accept the official decision giving Army the touchdown.

"Long Struggle Nearing An End"

"Few Bottles of Argotane Have Done Me More Good Than All Else Combined," Says Amarillo, Mother

"I've had a long, hard struggle with ill health, but by the help of Argotane I have found relief at last," said Mrs. L. M. Mansell, residing at 1610 Buchanan Street, Amarillo, Texas.

"I had gall bladder trouble and indigestion so bad for two years that my life was miserable, but I'm a whole lot better since I began taking Argotane, and medicine that is doing so much for suffering people can't be praised too much. I've spent lots of money trying to get some ease but it's the truth, two bottles of Argotane has done me more real good than everything else I ever took combined.

"When I first began it I couldn't eat anything without it hurting me. Any of the heavy or nourishing foods sour on my stomach and I would be very bilious. I was fearfully nervous and when I fell asleep at night the least noise would wake me. My head would get so dizzy at times that I would reel.

"What caused me to take Argotane was reading so many statements about others in the papers and now I'm talking Argotane every chance I get. I can eat just anything I want and enjoy it and never feel the slightest bad effects from it. I sleep every night, and as to my gall bladder it never bothers me."

Genuine Argotane may be purchased in Lubbock at the Bowen's Drug Store. Adv.

The Oven is half the recipe

Every woman appreciates the importance of mixing the ingredients of a recipe in exact proportions. Failures in baking or roasting are seldom caused by mistakes in preparing the recipe. Equally important, however, is time and temperature allowance for each recipe. In the old type oven, temperature control is largely guesswork.

With a Modern Gas Range, you need never hesitate to try out an unusual recipe. The Oven Heat Control measures heat as accurately as you measure the ingredients of the recipe. And the oven is insulated to utilize all the heat you pay for in baking or roasting. There's a smokeless broiler that's really smokeless. Beautiful as it is useful, a Modern Gas Range changes "luck" in cooking to leisure in cooking. See the new models now on display. Get the facts first hand!

Dance Goes On

Business may remain in the doldrums, unemployment may stick at an appalling figure and the breadlines may grow longer and longer; nevertheless, the nation is still sound. A female "social director" in New York announces that debut parties for the daughters of Park avenue millionaires will cost $40,000 apiece this winter, hard times or no.

All of this ought to be immensely encouraging, especially to those who fondly believe that prosperity will return overnight if the people who have money will only spend it freely. Forty thousand dollars is a good deal of money, even on Park avenue. Think of the starving florists, confectioners, jewelers, specialty shop proprietors and dressmakers who will benefit through this Park avenue generosity.

Nor is there any sense in being unduly critical about it. After all, a girl is only young once. It is distressing to imagine the disappointment that would assail the daughters of wealth if their coming out parties had to be curtailed; even more distressing to think of the emotions of fond mothers whose desires for ostentatious display might have to be thwarted. All is for the best, and the dance must go on.

However, it is just possible that there may be, here and there in this great land, men who will be slightly disturbed by this business. Human nature is sadly afflicted with envy, and the father of a family who has to stand in line for a bowl of soup on a cold winter evening might, just conceivably, feel somewhat bitter about it all.

For the fact that Park avenue will have its $40,000 parties this winter suggests that there may be, somewhere, a fundamental inequality in our noble American civilization. It is uplifting to reflect on the multitude of chances which America offers her poverty-stricken children; but the keen edge is taken off that reflection by the spectacle of $40,000 parties that are thrown in a city where many thousands of people are only a few paces away from actual starvation.

It is better, perhaps, not to think about it all. For if one does, one is apt—nay, certain—to come to the conclusion that there must be something wrong with an economic and social system which produces such glaring, stupid and unjust contrasts between extreme wealth and extreme poverty.

Against Sport

A couple of college football teams were playing a night game, under the floodlights, in New York the other day. One team tried a forward pass. An end, close to the sidelines, made ready to catch the ball; then a newspaper photographer snapped a flashlight, the end's eyes were dazzled and he failed to make the catch.

Officials descended on the photographer wrathfully, loudly denunciatory. But the photographer calmly remarked that they ought to play in the day time, if they didn't want to be bothered by flashlights; and it seems to us that there is a good deal of justice in his remark.

Night football was not designed for the players, but for the spectators. When a college football game is played at night it is a pretty fair sign that it is a spectacle rather than a sport. A photographer who disregards the players' convenience in order to get a picture is not sinning against the sport half as much as the official who scheduled the game for the evening to begin with.

Old Ironsides is to be sent soon from Boston to Chicago for a visit. Just to show the old frigate, perhaps, that she hasn't seen her toughest battles yet.

Even if Wickersham's proposal to the racketeers is carried into effect, the chances are great some will win immunity because of rheumatism or lumbago.

THE PLAINSMAN Says:

That Girl on Broadway says any girl can marry the man she wants but most of them prefer to marry a man somebody else wants.

HERE'S a letter that came to The Plainsman in Monday's mail. It was signed by the mother who wrote it but she asks that her name not be used. The Plainsman is glad to respect her confidence and also make a report on his findings in the case. Here goes:

"As it doesn't seem to bother The Plainsman if he gets a lot of mail, I am going to have him print this and give his opinion on this subject of passes to the football games.

"It has been noticed on attending the games here that there are out-of-town people who have and have had more passes to the games than they really need and some mothers of the high school team are at home because of the dollar.

"Now I don't want to grumble, but it does seem that the mothers take care of sprained ankles, bruised shins, big joints and other injuries, besides cooking the very best grub that they can get for them and should be rewarded with a pass to see their boys play.

"We know there is no one more interested in these boys than their mothers. Please tell us what you think on this subject.

"The Parents of one of the Westerners".

Lady, I thank you for writing that letter.

Let me say I agree with every word you have said and I've got a report that I think you'll like.

M. H. Duncan, superintendent of schools, is a pretty swell fellow when you get to know him. He just has so many details to think of that sometimes he overlooks some of them, just like everyone else does. But he's for your idea too, don't forget it.

THE Plainsman had just finished reading your letter when Doctor (I call him 'doctor' and he calls me 'professor') Duncan walked in the office. As soon as he read that letter he said:

"We'll have a ticket for the mother of every Westerner when the Sandies come down this week to take their licking. I'll give Coach Franks the tickets and he can give each of the boys one to take home to their mothers. We want the mothers to know we're for them as well as for their boys!"

So there you are, lady, and I hope you enjoy the game. I hope your boy will play the best game in his life with you in the stands looking on. As far as I am concerned, I'm going to be working in the press-box but I'll be pulling for those Westerners just as hard as you are. Write this column again sometime. The Plainsman can't get too many letters.

SPEAKING of the Westerner-Sandie clash, some of the local folks are forgetting that Lubbock is playing host to Amarillo Saturday.

Two years ago, when the Sandies were here, the center section was reserved for the visiting fans from Amarillo. Last year, when Lubbock played at Amarillo, the folks up there reserved the best seats for the Lubbock fans who traveled a long way to see the game. Similar reservations have been made this year and, strange to say, a few of the local backers have kicked on it.

The Plainsman believes thinking folks will agree with the school authorities in offering the best seats to our guests. That's just common courtesy. Anyway, Lubbock and Amarillo bit back and forth at one another for so many years it's refreshing to note that they've quit acting like spoiled kids and have decided to grow up.

* * *

That Man on Avenue Q says the husband of the average movie star is about as well known as the vice-president.

IF there's anything that makes The Plainsman weary it's public and private arguments about prohibition and if there is anything that makes him more weary it's the prattling which emanates from some quarters about "the wet press of the country", and "printing the wet propaganda".

* * *

Maybe these paid agitators know what they're talking about, but if you'd like the opinion of a shirt-sleeve newspaperman, who is in the harness every day, it's just a bunch of hooey—this howling about 'the wet press' and the newspapers being 'subsidized by the booze forces'.

* * *

Sure, there's wet propaganda being sent to every newspaper in the country. But in case it might not be otherwise mentioned, the dry forces are also mailing propaganda to every paper. The wise, fair editor takes all propaganda on both sides and shoves it into the same wastebasket. He prints the news of prohibition, like the news of everything else, and lets it get at that.

* * *

All this prattle about 'the wet press' is nothing short of assinine, as The Plainsman sees it. All lawyers are not wet, all lawyers are not dry. There isn't a profession under the sun which is all wet, or all dry. Nobody takes time out to scream about "the wet bar association" or the "wet medical society", so why specialize on "the wet press"?

Pardon me for getting hot and bother but every time I see it I get the heebie-jeebies.

Greater Agitation For Five-Day Working Week If John Frey Is Named Labor Secretary, Rodney Dutcher Says

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—If John P. Frey becomes the next secretary of labor succeeding James J. Davis, the country is likely to hear a lot about the five-hour day which some labor leaders propose as the most adequate remedy for unemployment.

Frey is secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor and lately has been the most prominently mentioned among those being considered by President Hoover for the Labor Department post. At the recent A. F. of L. convention in Boston he offered the five-hour day resolution. In a report to the metal trades department he suggested that industry should run on the basis of two five-hour shifts, five days a week. If employers did nothing toward stabilizing employment, the report said, there might arise a strong demand for government regulation for that purpose.

Frey is a distinctly conservative labor leader. The most likely reason for his appointment as secretary is thought to be that while his ideas are not sufficiently radical to worry anyone he is not reactionary or selfish enough to arouse as much opposition as two or three other labor leaders who have been suggested for the job. If he has small breadth of vision, he is at least considered honest, sincere and industrious. As chairman of the federation's resolutions committee he used to be Sam Gompers' right-hand man at conventions, but he was ill during the Portland convention in 1923 and Vice President Matthew Woll grabbed that place and held it subsequently. He is a fierce opponent of public ownership and a strong believer in cooperation between labor and capital. He is a Republican, but has not used his position as a labor leader in political campaigns. He would be delighted to get Davis' job. He is 69 years old.

Folks in the Labor Department thought for a while Hoover might name Woll, who is not exactly popular with the progressive element in the labor movement. But lately labor people here have heard that Woll was making too much money to be able to afford the honor, considering the uncertainty of tenure after 1932.

Both William L. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters' Union, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, have been considered. Each has been described as the hard-boiled type of labor leader. Each has actively supported Republican campaigns despite the A. F. of L. non-partisan policy. Each now heads a seriously weakened union.

Hoover once had the idea of replacing Davis with W. N. Doak, vice president and Washington representative of the railroad trainmen's brotherhood, to take office March 4, last year. But the other three railroad brotherhoods objected and the idea was dropped, although Doak has since been mentioned as a possibility.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation for about 35 years, has been urged by printers' and other unions, but is not considered seriously.

There has also been some talk of Meyer Bloomfield, a lawyer and industrial relations specialist of New York City.

The progressive labor element has no hope of seeing the appointment of anyone whom it would consider especially satisfactory. Its leaders are almost unanimously in favor of Miss Grace Abbott, head of the Children's Bureau and an internationally famous social worker. They also recommend such men as President Charles P. Howard of the International Typographical Union, Secretary Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor, President Sidney Hillman of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Secretary Thomas F. Flaherty of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks.

Diet and Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D., Author of "THE HUMAN BODY"

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A pamphlet on the "Hygiene of Women," by Dr. Luis Hunt Peters, revised by Dr. Logan Clendening, can be obtained by sending 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of The Lubbock Daily Journal.

TRICK WAYS OF REDUCING CONDEMNED

THERE ARE a number of trick ways proposed for reducing weight. One lately famous is the Hollywood 18-day diet. I mention it only to condemn it. Quick reduction cures are unsatisfactory and wasteful.

Dr. Clendening

Another one that does not depend entirely on the idea of the "sudden spurt to leanness" is the no breakfast cure. To go without breakfast indefinitely. It is difficult to see why it should have become popular. Or even that any logical person would approve it.

In the first place, it does not necessarily cut down the total nourishment for the day at all. The no breakfaster works through the morning, using up energy and getting more and more hungry, and then at lunch, with a consciousness of temptation well resisted at breakfast, gorges lunch enough for two meals.

Then, again, the scheme provides that during the period of the day when the greatest amount of energy is expended, there is no food to draw on. At night, however, after a hearty dinner, you expend for 12 hours the smallest amount of energy in the 24 hours. Two-third of the time you are asleep, with the food being absorbed and deposited without interference.

One of the less famous dietary schemes, Gallsch's, is founded on exactly the opposite plan. The idea of the Galisch cure is that most of the food is taken early in the day and almost none in the evening, so that during the night there is less food to be absorbed, that is, during the period of absolute bodily rest.

Adapted to the American schedule, a modified Galisch diet would be as follows:

Breakfast: Half an orange, one egg and one piece of toast without butter, one cup of black coffee.

Lunch: Meat and vegetable, a little sauce, potato salad and dessert.

Supper: Cup of beef broth (no caloric value), slice of bread and butter, salad without dressing, cup of black coffee, stewed fruit.

That diet is not difficult to keep on. There are about 1,000 to 1,500 calories in it—distributed as one-fifth at breakfast, two thirds at lunch, and the rest (about one-sixth) at supper.

Variety is easily obtained. Any fruit may be substituted at breakfast for the orange. A piece of bacon or small portion of fish can be substituted for the egg. A vanila wafer can be substituted for the stewed fruit at night, or a gelatine dessert.

The important principal of eating the small meal at night and the large ones in the daytime is the thing to emphasize.

GAINES LAKES ARE PROVING VALUABLE

By Staff Correspondent

SEMINOLE, Oct. 29—For years the salt lakes in Gaines county were just so much land, fit for nothing except to look at and admire the salt or alkalai.

Now these salt and sulphur lakes are bringing in real money to the land owners.

With between 70 and 80 percent of the county leased for oil or gas, oil company scouts have begun to look at the salt lakes as possible locations for blocks of acreages.

Getting Revenues

"Owners of these salt lakes are now getting 50 cents a month rental and some of them are getting from $10 to $12 an acre royalty," R. W. Pittman, county judge, said. "That is more than the land has been worth the past few years.

"Gaines county has over 1,500 sections of land. I guess there are about 20 or 25 sections in lakes. I think a good deal if not all of the lakes have been leased."

Cedar lake, on the east side of the county, is one of the largest salt lakes in West Texas. It covers around ten or twelve sections of land.

In New York

With Swan

Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, Oct. 29—Oh, ho . . . and have you heard that Manhattan's swank parties now have pigmy golf courses rigged up on the dance floors of hotel rooms where dinners are being given?

And just the other night, by way of further variations on the golfette theme, one of New York's more original hostess allowed her guests to select their seats at the table by making trick golf shots.

The Lilliputian golf idea on the dance floor, however, threatens to become quite a vogue. Many of the steppier swank folk are wearied of the average dances and jazz bands and seek innovations. The floor—as reports of the event come to me—is covered with some rough material and chair legs, table legs and such are part of the scheme of hazards. The game is played over the floor and about the room itself.

The matter of selecting seats is worked out by teeing at certain numbered locations, the person who achieves the goal most easily getting that number at the table. When lovely ladies are likely to be one's partner, the competition for best score is, quite apparently, keen.

And while on the subject of vogues and such — it seems that the skyscraper influence has overtaken men's socks. One clock arrangement actually has clocks designed as replicas of the famous cloud-touchers of New York. Clock designs as a matter of fact, are going to become too fussy for the likes of me.

Everything from an oriental suggestion to a Venetian candlestick may be found upon an assorted collection of hose that passed before my astonished gaze in a Fifth avenue shop the other day.

I'm waiting for holes in the heel to become fashionable. And then will I swagger?

Which further reminds me that milliners and hat dealers are all hot and bothered by the persistence with which beret popularity hangs on. Just a season ago the hatters were weeping because men wore no hats at all—that is, rather, thousands went about the streets bare-headed. And how they go about in berets—here, there and everywhere.

And the women appear to find the beret habit similarly incurable. Just the other night, I saw a woman in evening dress swing into a theater premiere—wearing a white beret.

What to do — cry the milliners. Not since the famous cloche hat scare of a few seasons back have they been faced by such a calamity. Any of the girlies will remind you of the time when cloche hats fairly deluged the world and no one would buy expensive hats.

This year, what with economy waves and depression, the beret seems to fit the pocketbook as well as the head.

The cloche situation was met, by the way, through a national advertising campaign and the calling in of a very expensive publicity consultant.

And also, by the way, have you noticed that the Saturday Evening Post has finally succumbed to cigaret advertising? With the understanding — so they tell me—that it will not refer to women smokers.

But, thanks to women smokers, the mere men have won several victories in New York. For years there was a rule against smoking in one of the largest restaurant chains. These were frequented largely by working women and girls who announced flatly that they intended to smoke or eat elsewhere.

Women, having more courage in such matters, soon won the battle. Men now also smoke in these cafes.

The University of Illionis finds that the average person speaks 30,000 words a day, and it will be a grave disappointment to Mr. Coolidge to learn he is not even average.

When Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, said recently that he would welcome a coaching job at Sing Sing, just to get away from alumni criticism, he was no doubt aware that many of his men would die for their Alma Mater.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Back to the town the Tinies went. The friendly Travel Man soon sent wee Scouty to a boat dock for some tickets on a ship. Said he, "It's time we're leaving here to seek new sights to bring us cheer. We're going to Valencia. You'll all enjoy the trip.

"The town is pretty as can be and lots of quaint sights you will see. Now, hurry up there, Scouty. Soon as you return, we'll go." "I'll hurry just as best I can," wee Scouty cried. And off he ran. He bumped into a fat man and the whole bunch laughed, "ho, ho!"

"Well, goodness me," the man cried out. "What is this racing all about?" "I'm very sorry," Scouty said. "I trust that you're all right. I didn't mean to bump you, sir, and ne'er again will it occur." "That's all right," said the man. And Scouty ran right out of sight.

He came back in an hour or so and shouted, "Well, we're set to go! I got five dandy tickets and the boat we'll ride's a beaut. It sails in just a little while." The Travel Man, then, with a smile, said, "Come, we'd best be going. I can hear the whistle toot."

The trip on board was lots of fun. The Tinies watched the engine run and then, before they knew it, their fine water trip was o'er. They watched the boat slide to the dock. It didn't even seem to rock. And then the Travel Man cried out, "Come on, boys, run ashore."

And so they did and shortly took a walk and Clowny cried, "Oh, look! What is that wagon load of folks? They all seem full of cheer." The Travel Man replied, "That's a religious picnic on its way! You'll likely see a lot of those. They're common, over here."

(The Tinymites hear a serenade in the next story.)

"Well Albie durned!" said the visiting team as Yale's coach sent Mr. Booth into the game.

PLAINVIEW MAN PRAISED AS BREEDER

HEREFORD JOURNAL IS HIGH IN PRAISE OF WEYL HERD

PLAINVIEW, Oct. 20—(Special)—Headed by one of the best bulls of the entire breed, the Hereford cattle herd of Fred Weyl's of Plainview has been acclaimed one of the finest in West Texas by Alton Walker, vice-president of the Hereford Journal of Kansas City who visited in this section recently in the interests of his publication and the promotion of the Hereford breed.

Fred Weyl, according to Walker, has one of the best cow herds in West Texas. He is the only breeder of Hereford cattle in Hale county, and at the head of his herd is one of the best bulls of the breed—son of a Prince Domino Mischief cow, and a grandson of Superior Mischief. Weyl purchased the animal from the C. O. Keiser Estate paying a thousand dollars for him as a calf last year.

Weyl is one of the leaders in this section who believes that a beef cattle herd of some size on every farm in West Texas will help to further stabilize and balance farm income along with a diversification of field crops, and the practice of fairying which is highly developed in this section.

RICH GOLD STRIKE FOUND IN PANAMA; IS 50 INCHES WIDE

PANAMA, Oct. 28 (AP)—A rich gold strike was reported today to have been made recently in the Remance mine of the Panama Corporation, Ltd.

J. J. Calderwood, general manager of the mine, said the vein was a massive one, 50 inches wide, and was discovered on the fifth level of the workings about three weeks ago. He estimated the vein would assay from $200 to $1,000 per ton.

Another Arrested In Sutton's Case

DENVER, Oct. 28 (AP)—A piece of carpet, believed by police to be from the car of Ray Sutton, New Mexico prohibition officer missing for two months, caused the arrest today of Harold G. Gibbs of Newton, Mass.

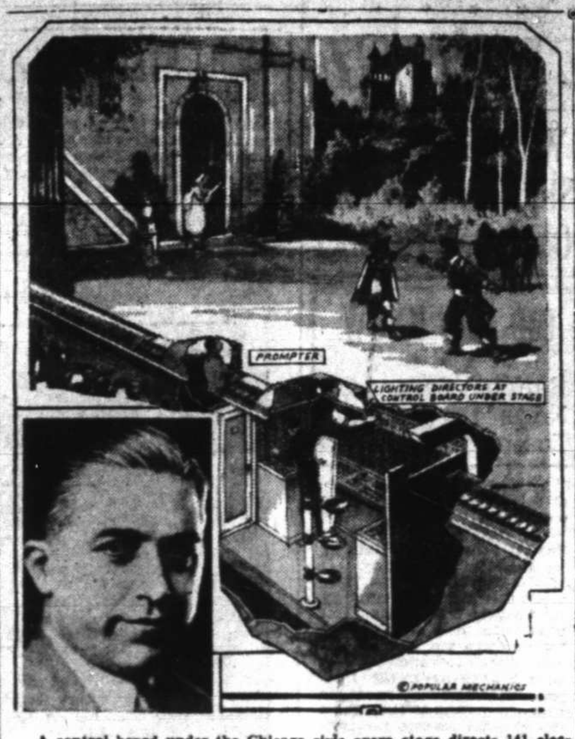

The carpet was found in Gibbs' possession here. Police said Gibbs boasted to companions that he was a fingerprint expert sent from the east to investigate Sutton's disappearance.

Police fingerprint experts said records showed Gibbs has many aliases and was charged with robbery at Seattle, Wash., where he was known as Harold Davis.

Sutton's car, covered with brush, was found abandoned in a New Mexico arroya a few days ago. Federal officers declined to say how the carpet was identified.

American tourists will spend in France this year at least $175,000,000, according to estimates.

MOOD OF OPERA AUDIENCE IS SWAYED BY LIGHTS THAT FOLLOW MUSIC CUES; CALLED WORLD'S GREATEST SYSTEM

A control board under the Chicago civic opera stage directs 141 electrical circuits in a lighting system producing effects appropriate for a particular scene. J. A. Tweddle (inset) is chief electrical director.

CHICAGO, (AP)—Principles of the radio tube and photo-electric cell are used by the Chicago Civic Opera company to operate what is called the greatest "theater-lighting system in the world.

With the development of apparatus used here, says J. A. Tweddle, chief electrical director, stage lighting has risen from the field of technique to the field of art.

Color tones have been brought to equal the sound tones of the orchestra's music in disposing the audience to proper receptivity for operatic effects.

"A series of experiments during the past summer has shown that, by the use of our color tones, we can create almost any mood in the audience out beyond the footlights," Tweddle said.

"We can irritate it with reds, and mollify it with blues and ambers and grays."

The control board is operated by one man from a pit beside the prompter's box beneath the stage. The stage picture is reflected to him by a series of mirrors.

Sitting before dials arranged in octaves, like an eight-console pipe organ, he follows cues on a musical score and produces lighting effects by turning a maze of dials, lightly, as an organist caresses keys.

A whole set-up of gradually growing light effect may be built up on the smaller dials, in advance of the cue, and the whole released, when the cue comes, by a master dial. The series of effects is thus produced automatically.

All throwing of old style switches is eliminated by the use of "thyratron" tubes connected with the dial board. The system and apparatus was worked out by the General Electric company and is the only one of its kind.

Experiments are being made in use of photo-electric cells similar to those used for television.

An ultra-violet ray is to be directed from the ceiling of the theater across the path of the conductor's baton in the pit and trained on a photo-electric cell.

The movements of the baton across this ray are transmitted to the second orchestra back-stage by the photo-electric cell, giving the exactly proper beat upon which the two orchestras may be perfectly synchronized.

CITY PLANS TO WIDEN AVENUE

BAD CORNER TO BE CUT AT 19TH; TO AID CONGESTION

The city is preparing to widen Avenue T south of 19th street, through McCrummen's park, in order to avoid a bad corner and to take care of constantly increasing traffic, it was announced today.

At present there is a slight jog in Avenue T, the part north of 19th street being slightly west of the section south. Completion of the new high school is expected to greatly increase traffic on both streets and the wider trafficway will assist in relieving a congested condition, city officials said.

FATHER'S GROUCH AND MOTHER'S TEA TIME HEADACHE ARE TO BE STUDIED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—Father's morning grouch and mother's bridge-tea headache are soon to be objects of a national study to determine how they affect the school grades of their children.

After focusing on the American child at the president's White House conference on child health and protection, the national searchlight of investigation will swing to the parents.

Morning parental grouches and their effect on offspring are among many subjects to be discussed by representatives from five big organizations meeting here November 24 immediately after the White House conference. As a result of this meeting it is hoped to distribute to parents over all the country, by radio and inexpensive booklets, expert advice on how to solve problems relating to their children.

The organizations represented will be the American Library association, National University Extension association, National Education association, and National Parent-Teachers as well as the United States office of education.

Bud Roberds, local aviation enthusiast, who has been taking lessons in flying from Ben Branson, pilot for the South Plains Air Transport company at Lubbock Municipal field, made his solo flight Friday, Mr. Branson said today.

"Bud made two solos Friday afternoon," Mr. Branson added, "he made them after about six and a half or seven hours flying."

Mr. Branson has five or six regular students at the field and in addition had about as many others who take lessons whenever possible. He spends about three or four hours a day in giving instruction, in addition to his transport services.

NEARLY 5,000 TICKETS SOLD FOR WESTERNER-SANDIE BATTLE

RECORD CROWD IS ASSURED FOR GAME AS DUCATS GO; LOCALS TO BE IN BEST CONDITION

NEAR SELL OUT REPORTED BOTH HERE AND AT AMARILLO; PLANS STARTED TO CARE FOR CROWD OF NEARLY TEN THOUSAND

While ticket sales mount toward the 5,000 mark and while football fandom of West Texas grows more excited with each passing hour, the Lubbock High school Westerners drill steadily on as they do their part in preparing for the invasion Saturday of the Amarillo Golden Sandies. The teams meet on the Texas Tech athletic field Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in the feature game of the district for the week.

Ticket agencies at Lubbock and in Amarillo report a near sell out already, with many requests for seats that have been reserved several days since. Local high school officials are preparing to assemble enough bleachers to make a complete "bowl" if the demand for tickets continues. A crowd of 10,000 or more may be here for the game. Pasteboards to the game are on sale here at the Lubbock and Hilton hotel drug stores.

To Be In Shape

The Westerners, after a rest of two weeks from games will be in tip top condition for the game Saturday, unless injuries in practice this week bring about changes. The work of several regulars who have not been in the best of shape in the last few games is noted with satisfaction by Coaches Frnka and Keeling. Milton McGehee, stellar guard, who was injured in the Childress game, has not been able to do extensive practice until this week, but is looking good in the tough scrimmages on the Fair Park field now. O. H. Brittain, who was out for nearly three weeks with an injured shoulder, is back in practice and looking good. He is due to see considerable service against the Sandies, though he is not listed as a member of the starting backfield.

Lawson Recovering

Captain Dub Lawson, quarterback, after a seige of sickness, is showing up good in practice and is due to play most of the game against Amarillo. The other captain, Mina Watkins, will undoubtedly be the starting fullback. Moody Smith is the probable starter at one of the halfback positions, but the other is not definitely established yet. Mack Scoggins may get the call, though Ovie Teal is the favorite. Both are great ball carriers and are the heaviest men in the backfield.

Line positions are apt to conform to previous lineups. Malcolm Martin and Bill Ed Watson are choices for end position, with Archie Brawley and Carroll McCasland favorites for the tackle posts. Melvin Grigg and Milton McGehee are likely to start at the guard stations, with Bob Crawford at center. Other men likely to see service in the line against Amarillo are Rosser Abbott at guard and Lewis Spears at tackle. Leon "Cotton" Welch has been showing up good at guard and may have a chance to display his wares under conference fire Saturday.

SANDIE CENTER

Towering in the center of the Amarillo line will be found Raymon Glass, below, star pivot man of the Sandstorm eleven. Glass has given his opponents much trouble in the previous games this season and Saturday Lubbock fans will have a chance to see what he can do with Bob Crawford and the Westerner forwards when the two teams meet on Tech Field.

SLATON TACKLES TAHOKA FRIDAY

SLATON, Oct. 29.—(Special)—The Slaton High Tigers will have their third conference game of the season on Friday afternoon when the Tahoka High Bulldogs come to Slaton.

The Slaton eleven defeated Idalou, 34 to 0, in their first conference tilt, and tied Brownfield, 0 and 0, in the second. The Tahoka team was defeated by Brownfield, 7 to 6, early in the season, and later lost to Lamesa, 19 to 6.

In a non-conference bout last Friday, the Slaton team lost to ton should defeat Tahoka and La-Spur, 40 to 0. In the event Slamesa, a second game with Spur would probably be played later, if Spur wins in that section of the district.

Big Spring Wins From Lamesa Team

BIG SPRING, Oct. 29.—(Special)—Taking every match, Big Spring golfers defeated Lamesa Sunday afternoon at the Country club links in an inter-city tournament. The local golfers had a margin of 61 points at the end of the five matches. The following results were posted: Whitesides and Barron defeated Rose and Nix, Lamesa, six points; Richardson and Croft defeated Barnard and White, two points; Akin and Brewer defeated Alexander and McCall, 15 points; Currie and Stephens defeated Powell and Surface, 17 points; Northington and Latson, defeated Hollingsworth and Lavender 21 points.

Changes Awaited In Cubs Lineup

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. (AP)—Long awaited developments and changes in the Cub baseball family are expected to start tomorrow when Manager Rogers Hornsby returns to establish his winter headquarters.

Since his elevation to the managership September 26, Hornsby has refused to affirm or deny rumors of wholesale changes in the team's personnel but from tomorrow on, announcements of changes are expected to be numerous, if not shocking to the baseball world.

The status of Captain Charlie Grimm, regular Cub first baseman for the past six seasons, is one of the outstanding question marks in the minds of Cub fans. Rumor has it that Grimm is to be traded or sold and that Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cardinals will succeed him.

Fordham Issues Micks Challenge

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. (AP)—The Daily News says Major Frank Cavanaugh, football coach at Fordham college, has issued a challenge to Notre Dame, to play a post-season game, providing both teams win all their remaining games.

Rockne may or may not have the best attack in the country, he said, "but I feel sure I have the best defense plus a pretty fair attack and if Notre Dame wants to claim any title they'll have to beat us first."

Kansas Player Is Ahead In Scoring

BALDWIN, Kas., Oct. 29. (AP)—Although Jack Roberts, Georgia fullback, leads football scorers of the country's more prominent schools, his season's record has been bettered by Kermit Lange, fullback for Baker university, Methodist school here.

In five games Lange has scored 85 points, with 13 touchdowns and seven points after touchdowns. His high game record was last Friday night against McPherson college when he lugged the ball over the goal line six times.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

With Collier Parris
Journal Sports Editor

The state executive committee of the Texas Interscholastic League may have started something when it met Monday and revoked the 10-semester rule which it passed early this year. By declaring the rule not in force any more this season, high school players heretofore held ineligible will be allowed to take part in conference games, and there are several schools whose star players were knocked out by the new rule.

* * *

It all started when several high school officials of the state, representing Class A as well as Class B schools, protested that enemy teams were playing men who were ineligible according to the 10 semester rule, which states that no player can compete who has been in school more than 4 years. When district committees failed to agree and recommended that certain schools be ousted from conference races the matter was referred to the state council, which saw that the easiest way to get out of the mess was to declare their new .10 semester rule not in force until next year.

* * *

But what about those teams who have adhered strictly to the new rule and have withheld two or more of their best players? Now that the rule has been revoked and the players declared eligible for the remainder of the season, some of the teams who have been defeated, due in part to the absence of the men they had previously counted upon to bear the brunt of the attacks, are going to raise a howl. In District Number 1, Class A, for instance, Wichita Falls, Electra, Quanah, and Pampa started the season with men who were later declared ineligible in accordance with the 10 semester ruling. Therefore they could not play in conference games, and each team has been defeated. Class B schools of this district, which have figured rather prominently in the recent furore, are in the same boat, though these schools have been slower in observing the new rule.

In all fairness, it appears that the state committee acted rather hastily in annulling the rule which has caused so much disturbance. Once installed, the rule should have been enforced all the way, for it has caused considerable inconvenience. It seems that the committee tried to find the easiest way out of a hole, and got itself in a hole just as serious. 'Twould have been easier, and would have been displaying a greater courage to stick with the rule, though it was another mistake to institute the 10 semester rule without allowing at least a year to pass.

Enough upsets occured in the football program of the state and southwest last week-end to give the scribes something to write about for a long time. Like the rest of them, we missed five guesses like nobody's business. The Aggies were due to stop Arkansas, Texas should have been more than enough for Rice, and Baylor was given the benefit of the doubt over Centenary. The latter was the least surprising, for the Gents have power, and a jinx over Baylor. The others were upsets. Too much newspaper publicity to the effect that the Steers were pointing to S. M. U.; untrue reports that Rice was the doormat of the conference, and a big bonfire an hour before the game were the reasons given for Rice's ability to beat Texas by Coach Clyde Littlefield. And we might add that the parading of Queen Whoosit, and her elephantine mate had something to do with it.

Two high school guesses went haywire when Breckenridge thumped Cisco and Abilene tied Ranger. But so did everybody's, so we're not worried. We just missed five out of twenty at that.

* * *

The nearer the time comes to the Lubbock-Amarillo clash the more we are worrying about that two bucks we've promised to help buy a gold football with if Lubbock wins.

If more than 1,000 tickets to the Westerner-Sandie game are sold in Amarillo two special trains will be required to bring the fans to Lubbock Saturday morning. Fifteen hundred tickets have been sent to Amarillo, and reports have it that they are going fast. It is most probable that two trains will come, for it is thought that at least a thousand townspeople will come, besides the students. Section C of the west side stands have been reserved for them, which is one of the courtesies freely given to the visitors, and rightly so. When the game was played last year in Amarillo, the middle section was reserved for Lubbock fans.

TECH SEEKS REVENGE

MATADORS TO STAMP OUT LAST LOSS

VETERANS ARE BACK IN LINEUP; CANYON TO HAVE HOMECOMING

Encouraged by the return of George Langford and Rip Vinzant to the line, Texas Tech's Matadors are doing full time duty on their practice field this week with the grim purpose of spoiling the West Texas Teachers' Homecoming next Saturday when they meet the Buffaloes of Canyon in the feature attraction of the annual Homecoming Day program.

Egged on by the memory of the 20 to 0 defeat handed them last season by the Buffaloes, the Matadors will make a desparate stand next Saturday as they attempt their third victory of the present season. Already they have done better than the Matadors of 1929 in that they have won two games this season. The 1929 Tech team won only one and that over the Wayland College Jackrabbits who slipped up on the Matadors in the first game of the current season to snatch a 6 to 0 victory.

Injured Ones To Play

Three of Coach Pete Cawthon's regulars were out with injuries in the early part of the week and the major portion of the entire varsity was suffering from minor cuts and bruises as a result of the game in Fort Worth last Saturday against the Southwest Conference champions, T. C. U.'s Horned Frogs. C. A. Doose, starting fullback in previous games, was confined to a local hospital early in the week but it is thought that he will be able to play Saturday. Cliff Yeager, reserve fullback, is out this week with an injured knee, and it is doubtful if he is able to play Saturday, even if he is needed. Lawrence Franz, regular halfback and alternate quarterback, sustained a nasty cut about the mouth last Saturday and was not able to practice early this week. He should be ready to go Saturday, however.

George Langford's presence in the line this week after an absence of nearly a month adds considerable strength to the team. He is the heaviest man of the team, and a necessity at tackle. A faculty ruling made him ineligible just after the season opened, but the same faculty reconsidered and reinstated him in time Saturday to take part in the game against the Frogs. Rip Vinzant, a regular end, who was knocked out in a game here two weeks ago, is able to be back in harness and, though weak, promises to be in shape for the game Saturday. He suffered a broken collar bone, smashed shoulder in the game with the Texas Miners and has not been able to wear a uniform since.

Texans Lose Out In First Polo Tilt

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29. (AP)—The Rainbow polo team of San Angelo, Texas, lost the first game of a three game series to the Mexican civilian team, Anahuac, by an 8 to 5 score at the Polo Club of Mexico Tuesday.

The second game is scheduled for Tuesday and the third for Saturday when President Ortiz Rubio will present a silver cup donated by the Bank of Mexico to the winners.

EAST, SOUTH AND FAR WEST ELEVENS WIN MOST OF INTERSECTIONAL TILTS; SOUTHWEST CLAIMS ONLY ONE VICTORY

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A check-up today on the returns from intersectional football games played so far this season revealed the east, south and far west with a winning average of .500 or better.

The east has won 17 and lost 11; the far west's record is two victories and one defeat; and the south has 10 wins and 10 losses to show for its intersectional welfare to date.

Southerners Stronger

Largely because they have been unable to hold their own with southern adversaries, the middle western standard bearers have 19 defeats as compared with 15 victories. The Midwest has done well in its conflicts with the east. Having broken even numerically and won the more important games, but has only two victories and eight defeats in its warfare with the south.

The south, on the other hand, has won only two out of ten from the east, several of the smaller teams of the south having been sent out of their class in such cases as Furman vs Army and Hampden-Sidney vs Cornell.

Southwest Wins One

The Southwest, although represented by powerful teams, had only one major victory and three defeats to show for its outside activity principally because the southwesterners chose to tackle such teams and Notre Dame and Purdue. Southern Methodist retaliated last Saturday by stopping Indiana in conclusive fashion.

The Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast regions, constituting the far western section, scored when Oregon beat Drake, and Colorado University trimmed Missouri, but Nebraska turned back Montana State.

Some of the most notable victories of all were those turned in by Notre Dame, for the middle west, over one team from the southwest and three from the east. Also noteworthy were the victories of Northwestern over Tulane, Vanderbilt over Minnesota and Georgia over Yale.

Several games have ended in ties, among them the Stanford-Minnesota and Chicago-Mississippi affairs.

Roettger Bought By Cincinnati Reds

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 29 (AP)—Walter Roettger, outfielder of the New York Giants, was purchased today by the Cincinnati Reds, it was announced by President Sidney Weil who said the deal was strictly a cash consideration.

The footballs will be given, in addition to many other prizes offered the team, in the event they win, and are made possible by the business men of the town, who are standing behind the team. Mason, said to be the class of the southwest, is an exceptional passer and punter and a terror in a broken field, specializing in long, weaving runs from the safety position. The Steers must stop this 'Pony Express' before they can hope for a victory, dopesters say.

DAILY MARKETS

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (AP)—Disappointment over unfavorable trade news, including a decline in railroad car loadings, brought selling into the stock market during the quiet earlier trading today. Losses ranged 2 to 3 points in the leaders.

U. S. Steel sagged to 148 3-4, off 3 1-2, but firmed from the low level. Further pressure against Eastman Kodak caused a drop of more than 8 points. Allied Chemical, Auburn Auto and Colorado Fuel tumbled 4 to 5 and Atchison and Westinghouse 3. Bethlehem Steel, Johns Manville, Du Pont, J. I. Case, North American, Union Carbide, Loew's and United Aircraft lost about 2 points.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent.

Cotton Market

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 29 (AP)—Unfavorable Liverpool cables had a reactionary effect on cotton here today causing first trades to show a loss of 8 to 12 points.

Reports of considerable hedge selling in the north by large interests as a result of the recent advance caused a further decline before the prices again started up.

December eased off to 11.37, January to 11.50 and March to 11.75, or 17 to 19 points below yesterday's close. Shorts covering led to a rally of 8 to 10 points but at the end of the first hour the market again became easier.

Liquidation by recent buyers caused the market to continue nervous and erratic and forced December to trade down further to 11.35 and March to 11.71, or 19 to 21 points below yesterday's close. Trading held fairly active.

The decline attracted more or less trade buying and some price fixing by the mills and towards noon prices rallied to 11.47 for December and 11.85 for March, or 11 to 14 points above the lows.

At noon the market was steady at these levels. There appeared to be only moderate hedge selling.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (AP)—Cotton opened steady unchanged to a decline of 14 points, but soon weakened under increased selling which included southern hedging as well as realizing or selling for a reaction after yesterday's advance.

Some stop orders were uncovered on the decline which forced the price of December contracts off to 11.37 and May to 11.95, or about 20 points below yesterday's closing figures. The disposition to take profits on recent purchases was probably prompted by the relatively easy showing of Liverpool and an idea that the advance of about 150 points from the low levels of the month had brought in rather freer southern offerings.

The early decline extended to 11.36 for new December and 11.93 for May or about 22 to 24 points net lower, but offerings seemed to be fairly well taken on this setback and the market became less active later in the morning, with the undertone steady. The setbacks seemed to bring in some fresh commission house buying as well as covering and a further trade demand which was reflected by rallies of several points from the lowest. At midday December was selling around 11.45 and May 12.02, or about 10 to 13 points net lower on the more active positions.

WHAT! NEVER HEARD OF A GEODUCK? THEN YOU'RE BEHIND

OLYMPIA, Wash., Oct. 29—It's legal to hunt geoducks again—providing one uses a "clam gun" instead of a shotgun.

For the geoduck—or gooey duck or goeduck, as you prefer—doesn't have wings, and never has been known to quack. Some say he's a clam. Others say not. But anyway, he wears a gigantic clam-like shell and lives deep in the mud.

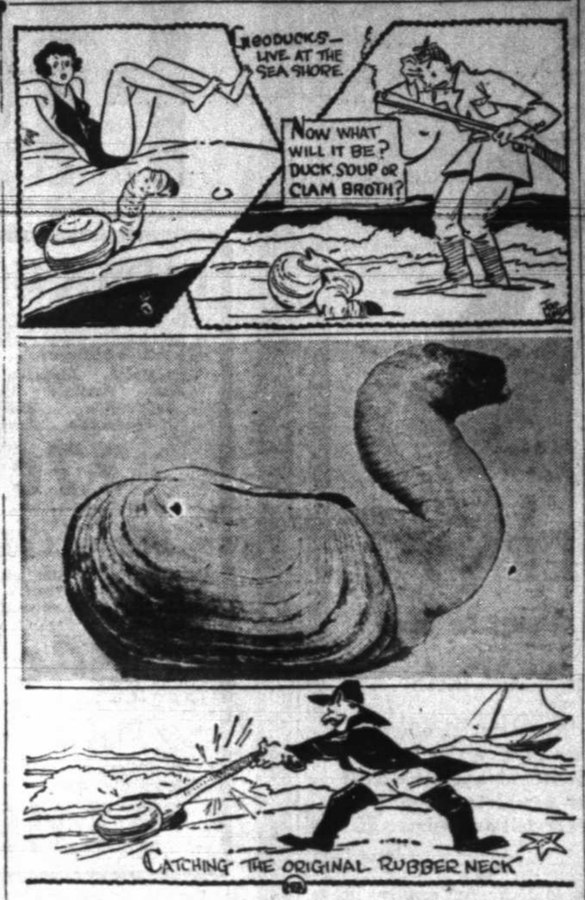

The creature is indigenous to Puget Sound. Its shell is eight or more inches long. Its tough, muscular neck is capable of extension from three to six feet.

Only in an extremely low tide can the geoduck be hunted. He burrows deep in the sand, out beyond the average low tide. And one needs be handy with a shovel to get the quarry before it quarries through the mud to China.

Long before the white man came, the geoduck was a delicacy with the Indians. Whites learned to relish them as chowder, fried, ground up or as a bouillibaise. Two heavy layers of skin are removed from the neck and the neck is eaten.

Ever since the white man's coming, the geoduck has been the source of much raillery. Visitors insist there can be no such animal; stories of geoduck digging are taken as native kidding. But they are real.

For several years geoducks were protected by state law. Now, their numbers increased, they can be dug in specified seasons.

Above is a photo of a geoduck—the strange Puget Sound bivalve with a neck that stretches like a rubber band. The sketches tell their own story.

COURT DECISIONS

fered testimony that Martin had a hoe in his hand and Hawkins feared Martin was going to attack him with it.

"Malice Aforethought" Again

Failure of an indictment charging assault with intent to murder to charge "with malice aforethought" does not constitute reversible error, the court held in affirming the conviction of Jeff Small, sentenced to 12 years imprisonment for an attack on Rufus Bashful, in Harris county. The indictment read "will malice aforethought" instead of "with malice aforethought."

Although the court had previously held that the "with malice aforethought" phrase was not essential to an assault indictment, today's ruling was made under the revised murder statute and was held of importance for that reason. Small's sentence was re-formed, however, to place his sentence undr the indeterminate sentence law of from 2 to 12 years.

Finding no error in the record, the court affirmed the 99-year sentence assessed Joe Dunwoody for the murder of J. H. Richey on December 31, 1928. On a previous appeal, Dunwoody won a new trial because the indictment failed to specify "with malice aforethought." The slaying was in Donley county. In the appeal acted on today, his attorneys had pleaded former jeopardy.

MINE VICTIMS

face. The slope is littered with debris.

J. B. Hylan of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, rescue work-director, replaced Galmore and seven others with a fresh crew of 15 and prepared to hasten removal of the bodies, F. K. Bare, mine superintendent, led the new crew into the workings. Hylan gave orders to have the bodies wrapped and tagged with the names of the victims as learned from their disc numbers and as a double precaution against erroneous identification instructed that each miner's cap be kept with the body.

Woman Comforts Her

At the mine top those who could not crowd into the engine room shivered about a great fire. One woman was weeping and another comforted her.

"You have a son in there?" she asked.

"Don't cry—I have a son and husband down below."

Relatives of the entombed miners remained near the mouth of the mine throughout the night, staring anxiously at the pit cars as they came to the surface. One, a little boy, ventured too near the mouth of the mine early in the night, and was orderd by a guard to return behind the ropes apparating the spectators and rescue workers.

"I'm waiting for my father," he said.

The boy was told by the guard his father would return soon, and with tears in his eyes, replied: "I know, but he's already late for supper."

COLLECTIONS NORMAL

Collection of school taxes so far this fall has been "normal or probably better," A. C. Jackson, collector, said today. He added that he had not checked up with previous years to see what the expected increase was.

There has been a better collection of delinquent taxes fro mother years than there has been for some time. Rush to pay taxes is not expected to begin until about the holidays or the first of the year.

BUSINESS DATA

both wholesale and retail channels had continued on a considerable scale than a year ago but that September business showed a substantial improvement over August. The department store sales in leading cities were particularly improved, 39 per cent over the previous month and but two per cent less than in September, 1929. The comparison with a year ago was the most favorable in several months.

"Distribution of merchandise at wholesale again showed a heavy decline from a year ago; yet the increase over the previous month in some lines was more than seasonal in character," the review recited. "This was due in part to the fact that merchants bought very sparingly early in the season and have found it necessary to replenish stocks at frequent intervals as the season progressed. Despite the fact that business is at a low ebb there are some indications of returning optimism and a strengthening of the undertone of confidence."

Loans At Highest

A sharp upturn in the commercial loans of reserve city banks was regared as a significant development in the financial situation, these loans early in October reaching the highest point since the last days of February.

"The daily average of net demand and time deposits rose from $820,361,000 in August to $830,125,000 in September, but the increase was considerably less than usual at this season," the review stated. "Federal Reserve Bank loans to member banks reflected a gradual decline during September and remained comparatively stable at around $10,500,000 during the first half of October. On October 15, these loans amounted to $10,578,327, which reflects a reduction of $4,297,497 during the six-week period and was $19,370,639 lower than on the same date in 1929. Liquidation during the past six weeks has been general throughout the district."

The decline in construction activity from a year ago but the September activity, as measured by the valuation of building permits issued at principal centers, was 13 per cent smaller than the proceeding month and four per cent below September 1929. Shipments and new orders for lumber reflected a slight improvement over the previous month but the production and shipments of cement reflected a substantial decline as compared to both the previous month and the corresponding month last year.

Corruth Refuses To Waive Extradition

H. A. Corruth, for whom a warrant charging removal of mortgaged property out of the state had been issued, is being detained at Phoenix, Ariz., and is fighting being returned to Lubbock county. Vaughn Wilson, county attorney, was advised today by sheriff C. H. Wright of Phoenix.

"Corruth will not sign waiver," the county attorney was advised in the message.

Unless he can be induced to sign a waiver, the county will be forced to sign extradition papers and present them to Governor Moody and seek to have Corruth returned, it was explained.

The man was charged with taking a mortgaged automobile out of the state without permission, Mr. Wilson said.

TWO PERMITS ISSUED

Two building permits issued today by the city building inspector, brought the total for the week up to $6,025 for seven permits.

October permits number 23 and amount to $30,571, while the 229 permits for the year amount to $1,374,501.

Permits were issued to D. N. Leaverton, Jr., for a 4 room house at 2305 25th, to cost $2,500; to Walker Jackson to move a house at 2502 Avenue H.

PROHIBITION IS BIG STUDY OF COMMISSION

HOOVER ENFORCEMENT GROUP CONFRONTED WITH PROBLEM

By Francis M. Stephenson

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. (AP)—The variance of conditions prevailing under the prohibition law in different sections of the country is proving a problem to President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

Not only do the multitudinous prohibition reports now in the hands of the ten men and one woman on the commission show varying results in scattered sections of the nation but they reveal fluctuating conditions in the same localities.

To Seek Early Answer

Despite the problems besetting them, however, there is evident a determination within the ranks of the commission members to get the job of reaching a decision on the prohibition question over with as early as possible. There is every expectation here that the report—or reports—will be ready for consideration by President Hoover and congress before the end of the year.

The marked fluctuations are among the surprises encountered in the commission's long investigation. Some of the members concede privately that their views on prohibition conditions have changed, although none says whether this change has been for or against the ten-year-old dry law. Moreover, they concede their views change back and forth as new reports shed new light.

The members are spending their recess period digesting these prohibition reports. The reports are so voluminous that the index alone consumes 146 typewritten pages. On November 5, the day after the congressional election, the commission reassembles and the adoption of a report on prohibition is the order of business.

worked out without anybody being put on the spot."

Yocum said he did not know where he had been held prisoner, the number of his captors nor their nationality. He was blindfolded most of the time, he said.

The banker said he was dropped from an automobile near Atkinson in Henry county early this morning. He believed he was held a prisoner near Atkinson as the automobile had not traveled far before he was released. He said he did not know whether he was held in a house or not.

THREAT MADE ON CHICAGO CHILDREN

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. (AP)—Carl Sundberg, vice-president of the Orsdevry corporation, today told of receiving demands for $50,000 on threat of harm to his three young daughters. A communication fashioned from letters clipped from newspapers two weeks ago told Sundberg to "get $50,000 immediately" and that instructions would follow. His children are being carefully guarded and private detectives are attempting to trace the origin of the communication.

"SPRUCE UP AND CREATE JOBS," SAYS COL. WOODS IN APPEAL FOR RELIEF OF UNEMPLOYMENT; COMMUNITIES CAN AID

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Spruce up and create jobs, a request comes from Colonel Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee.

In a radiocast address last night, Colonel Woods appealed to individual American families to provide work.

Fix Up Homes

"Let us all spruce u pour homes," he said. "Make the little repairs that are needed, do that little job of painting that we thought about so long, fix up the odd corners of the yard, replace the worn out or broken parts that halt the smooth running of the household.

"Let us all spruce up our homes," communities. We can give work to hundreds of thousands by improving shabby playgrounds, unsightly vacant lots, dirty streets and by cleaning up all those community black spots that have annoyed us as conscientous citizens so long."

Colonel Woods announced that three additional leaders in their fields had accepted places on his committee. They are Dr. Lilliam Moller Gilbreth, doctor of engineering and consulting engineer on management, who will direct the women's division of the committee; Porter Lee, president in 1929 of the national conference of social work, who will gather information on the welfare aspects of unemployment; and Bryce Stewart, employment statistician.

Seward Prosser, New York banker, has announced that many of the younger executives in Wall Street are rallyng to the support of his emergency committee, formed to raise $150,000 a week to provide jobs for unemployed heads of families.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has announced plans for the construction this winter of 14 double houses on his Pocantico Hills estate at Tarrytown, N. Y., to be rented to his employees at a nominal rental. They will cost $15,000 and upward each.

LAMESA C. OF C. PLANS DRIVE FOR PLANTING TREES

LAMESA, Oct. 29—(Special)—An effort is being made by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce to have planted 10,000 shade trees in Dawson county next spring, according to officials of the organization. Though nature has denied the Plains of Texas a natural growth of shade trees, the soils and climatic conditions cause them to do well on the South Plains, and many thousands of trees put out by farmers and city residents are thriving at this time.

OPENS UP BAKERY

BROWNFIELD, Oct. 29—(Special)—B. T. Hawkins and Guy Cherry of Quitaque have opened up a new bakery here to be known as the Brownfield Bakery. V. E. Mixon, a former cafe owner here, is manager.
