County seeks appraisal district records

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

An apparent conflict between the Aransas County Tax Assessor/Collector's office and the Central Appraisal District office is causing problems for the county tax office's collection of delinquent taxes and issue of tax certificates. The county has several times requested copies of the district's 1982 property appraisal cards to help clear up discrepancies in the county tax rolls and has not yet received them.

Tax Assessor/Collector Allena Jones said in an interview Wednesday, March 9, that she began requesting copies of the cards from the appraisal district office and its board of directors approximately a year ago. Her reasons stem from the fact that with the establishment of the central appraisal office, some property has been moved from one survey to another, some has been combined and some split up. In addition, the appraisal district used the Aransas County Independent School District's tax account numbers in the rolls, so she doesn't even have account numbers to refer to. She said she needs to compare information on the 1982 cards with her back records in order to determine if delinquent taxes are due or to run a tax certificate.

Jones said that she can't match current statements with her old records, which undermines her tax collection. Copies of the cards, she added, would reflect any changes and aid in collection.

Under the law, there is supposed to be one set of records, although the cards are public information and anyone who requests a copy may receive one.

Jones said she also runs into problems when taxpayers come in to pay their bills and ask about some of the charges, since the only information she has access to is a lump figure. However, she said, her biggest problem is that of delinquent taxes and tax certificates. Since the county tax office has deluged the appraisal district office with telephone requests for information on individual cases, the appraisal district office now requires requests to be in writing to keep interruptions in their work to a minimum. Jones said the written requests take from one to two weeks to be processed.

If getting this information is delayed, says Jones, and taxes can't be collected on time, penalties and interest must be waived in fairness to the taxpayer since it is not his fault. "I do not intend to write a tax certificate if I can't prove that there are not taxes due on that property," said the tax assessor/collector. The county loses out on delinquent taxes in the event of a mistake, which is all the more likely if the property records can't be traced back, she added. Moreover, her records are called upon as evidence in delinquent tax suits, but they can't be used in court if they can't be traced.

"I'm aware of the big job the central appraisal office had to do in setting this thing up," Jones said, "but I've worked in the tax office since 1962 and I also know what a collector has to do."

Jones said that the appraisal office has

Bids are let for Fulton bait stand

FULTON — The Fulton Town Council approved a motion to let bids on the new bait/concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier during its Tuesday evening, March 8, meeting. The deadline for concessionaire bids is 5 p.m. Tuesday, March 29.

A prospectus is available at the Fulton Town Hall and bids will be opened during a special meeting at 7 p.m. on March 29.

The council also took action to set up a special bank account for funds associated with operation of the stand.

Acting on a suggestion from Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline, the council approved a motion to donate $1,000 to the Council on Aging, which recently suffered a cutback in support funds. The donation will come out of a $1,500 general expenses budget allocation.

The town's proposed health inspector ordinance has been tabled pending further research and legal review. Also tabled is any further discussion of the town's proposed zoning ordinance until after the April 2 elections, and a report on the progress of Fulton's annexation drive, which will be given at the next regular council meeting.

A Katherine McLester-Elgin Dietz motion to grant a request from Fulton's municipal judge S.E. Hodges for $200 to cover the cost of certification was approved by the council. State law requires certification each year.

The council also approved a motion to give Town Secretary Lucille Hinson full-time pay for the full-time work she has been putting in before the elections. State election laws require the Town Hall to be open during certain hours and Hinson, who previously was a part-time employee, will continue to work full-time until shortly after the elections.

A special meeting to canvass election returns was called for April 4.

Hinson read a letter from Aransas County Tax Assessor/Collector Allena Jones to the Central Appraisal District's board of directors asking for copies of the 1982 property appraisal cards to facilitate the collection of taxes by her office. The council approved a resolution supporting Jones' request and it was decided that Casterline would write a letter to the board in support of it.

Fulton attorney Allen Lee told the council that since the Rockport City Council is changing its meeting nights to Tuesday, he would not be able to attend Fulton council meetings and suggested that the council might possibly consider securing another attorney.

Alderman Leslie Cole gave a report on the success of Oysterfest. Cole predicted approximately $7,500 will have been cleared for the fire department after expenses are paid. He said that the food booths enjoyed a brisk business and that most of the arts and crafts booths were satisfied too. The council commended the fire department and Oysterfest workers for a fine job.

Utility district to seek loan

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

LAMAR — Directors of the utility district serving Goose Island Lake Estates in Lamar approved a contract for repair of the district's water plant and turned their attention to securing an $80,000 loan to pay the costs of the project during a long meeting this past Tuesday night.

The contract, with Membrane Separation Technology — a subsidiary of Membrane Systems Inc. of Corpus Christi — was approved with modifications and subject to the district's ability to secure the loan and MST's securing of a performance bond on the project. Actual cost of the repair project, under a bid submitted to the Aransas County Municipal Utility District (ACMUD) No. 1 last August, is $68,000, but directors voted to borrow enough funds to cover additional anticipated expenses and any contingencies in the project.

The district is seeking to borrow money from South Most Savings and Loan, a Brownsville firm with which the district has had financial dealings and which holds title to some of the land in Goose Island Lake Estates through foreclosure on property mortgaged by the developer of the subdivision.

Bill Southern, one of the directors, said he had talked previously with a representative of South Most and the firm is willing to discuss loan terms.

The district will seek a loan under which payments over and above the monthly principle and interest payments may — at the borrower's discretion — be made each month.

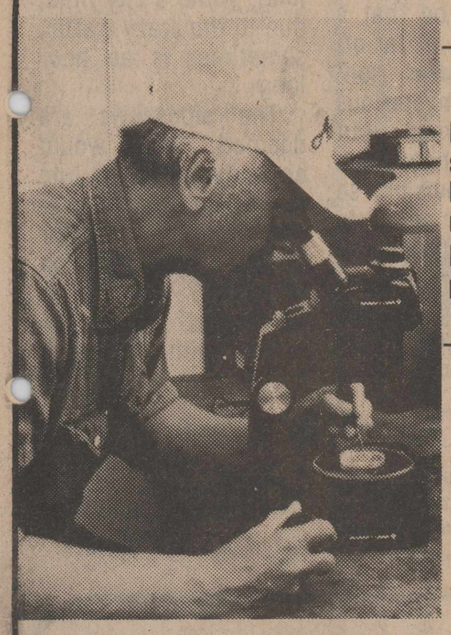

In addition to the $68,000 bid by MSI for repair of the district's water plant, the money borrowed from South Most is also expected to include an estimated $2,000 the district will pay for an inspection of the Lamar Water Supply Corp. system prior to allowing LWS to tie on to the ACMUD water system. In Tuesday night's meeting, Urban Engineers of Corpus Christi was selected to perform the inspection and certify the tie-in with the utility district.

The money borrowed from South Most also will be used to pay for installation of a connecting underground water line between the two water systems. The district went out for bids on the project and received two bids Tuesday night but after receiving new information voted to re-bid the project on new specifications.

Directors were notified Tuesday night of the resignation of Clem Williams as engineer for the district. Director Daughtry Roberts moved, and Southern seconded, acceptance of the resignation. A new district engineer was not named.

The district is borrowing money for repair of its water plant on the strength of an agreement to provide water to the Lamar Water Supply system once the plant is repaired. The district will use the money paid by Lamar to pay off the loan. A contract between the two water systems was approved in a special meeting late last month of the ACMUD. Directors were informed Tuesday night that Lamar Water Supply officials have approved the agreement.

Signs are disturbing in some pot case trials

Despite undisputed medical evidence that marijuana is more harmful to users than some believe, potential jurors in at least one Harris County "pot" possession case refused to consider assessing the maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

County Court-at-Law Judge Sherman Ross had to send all 18 potential jurors home because at least seven were disqualified after indicating they felt the maximum penalty is too harsh for possission of less than two ounces of marijuana.

There has been a nationwide clamor by members of a group calling itself the National Organization for Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORMAL) for repealing the maximum marijuana possession statute.

At least 12 qualified jurors must be available in such a misdemeanor case as possession of marijuana before prosecutors and defense lawyers eliminate potential jurors and the remaining six are empaneled as the jury.

One of the reasons for refusing to impose the maximum penalty in possession cases was expressed by about 14 of the 18 potential jurors, who said they or their friends had used marijuana.

The opinion expressed by these potential jurors does not necessarily mean it is shared by a majority of Harris County residents. However, it is a disturbing sign that some people are being influenced by claims that marijuana can be safely used.

The defense attorney in the case that had to be continued because of potential jurors' objection said those who disagreed with the maximum penalty included elderly and young people, black and whites.

The maximum possession penalty has been imposed many times in the past by Harris County juries. In at least one case, a defendant received a five-year sentence for possession of one marijuana cigarette. It is not known whether the sentence was carried out.

Attorneys pointed out, however, that the problem of opinion about marijuana possession is not faced often because misdemeanor possession cases in Harris County usually are usually settled by plea bargains or outright dismissals.

The defendant in this particular case claims he is innocent. He was arrested in a car in which marijuana was found, but he maintains it was not his and he did not know it was in the car.

Attorneys explains that potential jurors are sometimes confused into thinking they must commit themselves on which penalty they will assess before hearing any of the facts in a case.

In Harris County jury trials, it was emphasized, potential jurors are often disqualified if, without hearing specifics of a case, they say they cannot consider the range of punishment, from probation to maximum prison sentence.

Personal income up in Texas despite slump

Despite severe economic problems plaguing the state and nation, personal income has grown faster in Texas during the 1980s than in all but two other states, a detailed analysis by the Commerce Department shows.

Although widespread unemployment has been the rule rather than the exception in Texas since the recession struck, many workers who held onto their jobs are making more money than they did in more normal times.

Personal income, excluding farm income, increased 34.4 percent in Texas from the first quarter of 1980 to the third quarter of 1982, the most recent for which statistics are available.

Commerce Department analysts said the Texas increase was well ahead of the national rise of 24.8 percent. It was surpassed only by increases in Alaska, 42.2 percent, and Florida, 34.5 percent.

Trailing Texas were Oklahoma, 34.2 percent, and Louisiana, 31.6 percent.

Each of these top five states had large payroll hikes in construction, state and local government, according to the analysis. During the period measured, consumer prices nationally rose 20.1 percent, a slower pace than the jump in personal income.

Personal income is defined by the Bureau of Economic Analysis of the Commerce Department as the sum of wages and salaries paid by private industry and government before income tax deductions.

The analysis deals with non-farm income, which the Commerce Department believes is more reliable for keeping up with economic developments than farm income. Such income is subject to erratic changes that could distort accurate analysis.

With a 33.3 percent rise in personal income, the Southwest led all other regions of the country. Each southwestern state recorded a larger percentage hike than the national average.

The Commerce Department said increases in both durable and non-durables manufacturing, construction, mining, private service-type industries and state and local governments in Texas were well above the national average.

In each of these industries, the payroll increase in Texas ranked among the five largest in the nation.

States with the smallest percentage increases in non-farm personal income so far in the 1980s are Indiana, 15.2 percent; Michigan, 16.5 percent; Oregon, 17.2 percent; West Virginia, 19 percent, and Iowa, 19.3 percent.

All these states suffered sharp declines in construction payrolls and some declines in manufacturing because of the recession, according to the analysis.

One of those days

YOU'VE BEEN TO Marsh Harbor? You might just as well say you have been to the Bahamas because you have been to Nassau or Freeport. I have made an observation that may be offensive to inhabitants of the third largest city in the islands. Population about 3,700, Marsh Harbor, on Abaco, the Mainland to Out Islanders, has an extensive and well protected bay where boats may anchor, docks for a sizable number of boats and a couple of small hotels.

It is "headquarters" for sailors who roam the keys. Supplies, food, boat gear and whatever not found elsewhere may be found. Sailors hang out at the Conch Crawl. An extensive array of pigeon holes, alphabetically arranged are filled with mail and there is an exchange library. Take any book you want, but leave one. Penny Turtle, an attractive, witty English lady presides. Every rag sailor who has ever visited the islands knows her, but she goes them one better. Meet her once and your name is engraved on her mind forever, or at least it seems so.

More, I would submit that Penny kisses or is kissed by more sailors in the course of any single day than any woman on earth There are arrival kisses and departure kisses, and from some a kiss every time they enter or leave the door. Her mind is a storehouse of sailing lore, the comings and goings aboard boats. "Has a yacht named "Serena" from Corpus Christi been here?" I asked. I was inquiring about friends who'd left Texas a month or so earlier than Karakal. "Yes," she replied. "She left for the Exumas about three weeks ago."

IT WAS ONE OF those days, a Sunday morning. I was alone aboard, attending a few chores, writing some letters and reading. Jim Weber, another Texan who'd joined me as crew the day before, and the skipper had dinghied ashore on errands of their own. Midday was approaching and lazing in the cockpit I occasionally glanced toward the dock, anticipating their return. I was thinking of lunch, peanut butter and sliced onion sandwiches. Shortly, Ron from "Princess Lee" laid alongside and informed me that "everyone" was at the Crawl. I climbed aboard.

Gathered at a big round table were captains and crews from "Zeeboot", "Slewfoot Sal" and Karakal, at least eight when Ron and I joined the party. Glasses were half empty. The talk was of boats, new experiences, old friends met, reefs, fish caught or speared with Hawaiian slings. Good talk. Boring, perhaps puzzling to a landsman.

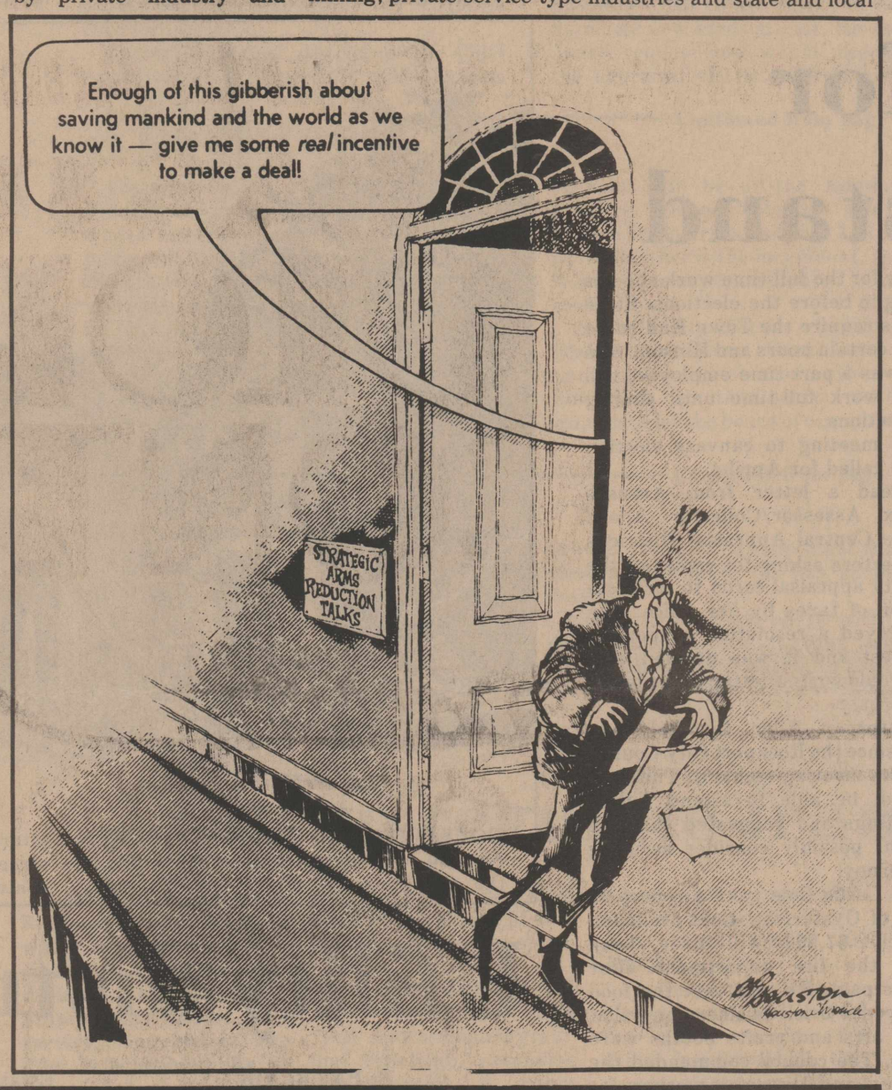

It was the lunch hour and the Crawl was beginning to fill. We ordered. Grouper salads, cracked conch, conch chowder and later ice cream. Indifferently we noticed an airline pilot come through the door. He stopped to chat with Penny and a few minutes later she approached our table. The flight to Florida had been cancelled. Tornadoes threatened South Florida and all airports closed. Tornadoes are all but unknown in the Abacos, but Florida weather patterns shape the weather here. Expect a mild edition to arrive here in about 12 hours. The skipper decided we would run to Man O War, about four miles, and a better protected anchorage. We made the run in less than an hour, sailing under the main sail alone and sometimes making seven knots.

THE FRONT ARRIVED sometime before two in the morning, the wind increasing and shifting from south to northwest. I slept. The skipper was up in the blink of a lash. The anchorage is crowded and we were close to the shore. He watched the wind shift and paid out more anchor rope. I learned that this morning. Aboard my own boat I am equally responsive to every sound and motion. Crewing aboard another boat, I sleep. A common trait I have noticed among others.

This morning there are white caps on our sheltered anchorage and the wind is at about 15 knots and gusting. The skipper listened to the Waterway Network on his ham radio and heard land and sea based hams exchange views of the wind and sea. Then a lazy breakfast in a gently rolling vessel. The skipper found it a good time to overhaul the outboard motor that powers the dinghy, and Jim, retired Air Force and so something of an engineer, stood by to kibitz. No engineer, I undid my typewriter.

Through a port I can see the wind is increasing. Seas break onto a rocky shore or into mango trees whose brown roots extend their tentacles into the sea. The breeze sweeping through the cabin unrolls the paper towels from their rack. I have rerolled them half a dozen times. Why, why bother? Haven't I said — one of those days.

Recently several members of the senior class and a few parents gathered together to discuss the school board meeting which will be held on March 14.

One purpose of this senior-parent meeting was to talk about the location of the graduation ceremony. These particular people were opposed to having graduation ceremonies in the auditorium and in favor of holding this ceremony in Pirate Stadium.

One outcome of this meeting was to survey the senior class again on the location of graduation ceremony. the survey will be administered to seniors during government class sometime this week. The school board will be informed of all of these results.

All interested persons are invited to attend the school board meeting on March 14 at 7 p.m. in the administration building.

The following letter is in response to an interview of new R-F Pirates head football coach Aubrey Schulz by Pilot reporter Leslie Abrams.

During the interview, you seemed to be well prepared and top-notch. My first impression was accurate. I read the feature story and I was very impressed! For once, the name Schulz was spelled correctly. The coverage was thorough, well-written and the information and quotations were accurate.

I haven't been exposed to the media since college, and in all candor, I admit I was apprehensive. Thank you for making my first interview as head coach a pleasant one.

Sincerely:
Aubrey Schulz

If ever a debate was needed by the public of the United States, it would be the concept the criminal courts operate under.

The thousands of children born in the United States every day soon grow up to learn that they may accept moral cowardice as part of their character by simply pleading innocent to any crime that they may commit and with the blessing of the court.

The concept of "innocent until proven guilty" is a one-sided concept and the scales of justice can never be balanced without a counterweight of "guilty until proving one's self innocent."

The alarming growth of this miserable attitude of conscience will soon become as deadly as a nuclear attack.

Until the victims of crime and their families are given equal consideration as that afforded to the suspect of a crime true justice cannot prevail.

Many will favor a change to improve the system but injustice is strong and there are many who will defend it.

Some of the knowledgeable Pilates of this world would like to see a change in the concept but will deceitfully wash their hands of it for many unworthy reasons.

In contrast is Judas, who lives close to the system but will sacrifice truth because it is above his understanding and fear of being exposed.

Public opinion has its ability to change bad conditions.

The problem of the tipped scale of justice has been with us too long.

My husband and I wonder how many residents here have noticed that The Rockport Pilot has been permitting free ads to be placed for "Lost and Found Pets." This way unfortunate pets need not be wandering, in many cases until the dog catcher gets them, nor starvation, nor the wheels of a car. The inception of this community service was three months ago. Most persons are more willing to care for a pet for a few days while waiting to see if an ad appears. On the other hand, if it takes no money out of their pocket, they won't mind running an ad for a found animal.

Persons would not hesitate to run ads at their own expense when the animal involved is of pedigreed lineage, but how many would bother to pay for an ad for someone else's well-cared-for mixed breed?

We have such a dog, a 15-year-old spayed female, that managed to get out of our fenced yard. After searching for our pooch, "Peppy," for three days we decided to run an ad in The Pilot, fully dreading the worst for "Peppy."

After giving "Peppy's" description to the ad taker, the reporter Pat Blair stated that she and her friend Judy Gove were certain they had found our pet outside Super D. The pair decided to make it their joint venture to care for "Peppy" until they could find her owners. Not only did they accept this responsibility, but took it upon themselves to take her to a vet about her arthritic problem. What a lucky dog! This story could have had a sad ending. Since Pat and Judy had plenty of pets of their own, we feel this was exceptional performance on their part and are deserving of more than our reward offered, but an award by Rockport for Good Citizenship, as well.

We would, also, like to mention our appreciation for the type of articles The Pilot runs which are refreshing in contrast to another publication's lurid stories on drunks and addicts. Vacationers usually flee their big cities to get away from such trashy reminders. Rockport has far more outstanding people of whom we can boast, so why bother with the few not worth mentioning.?

s/Mrs. Ann DeWalt

Editor's note: Pilot reporter Pat Blair, in an attempt to set the record straight, says she was mostly a go-between in the effort to get Peppy reunited with her family. The real credit goes to Judy and her sister Jackie who took Peppy in for the night.

The sideshows are doomed

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr farm reports on the death of sideshows this week.

Dear Editor:

I don't think it'll have any serious effect on economic recovery, but according to an article I read last night, sideshows are going out of business.

"There just aren't very many country bumpkins left who want to stare at freaks," a veteran circus worker said.

The decline of country bumpkins, if there ever were any, can be blamed on television. For instance, if you live in the smallest and most remote hamlet in the country and your TV set works, you can find out as soon as people in a big city that the Queen of England, on her first five days in this country, showed up in five different hats.

It used to be that a U.S. Senator in far-off Washington was considered a mysterious giant of a man, but most of them have been seen on television so often saying so little that we've discovered they're just ordinary people hoping to hold on to a good job for the rest of their life.

There are very few small-town people left, but there are lots of people living in small towns. There's a difference.

It should be understood that I speak here of country bumpkins, not city bumpkins. For all I know cities are full of bumpkins, some of them serving on city councils or working as grammar school principals. Occasionally one of them gets into Congress.

It no longer makes sense to say somebody was wrong by a country mile. If he was momentarily wrong, more than likely it was by a city mile. A country mile is about 60 seconds long, while a city mile, due to the crazy traffic, sometimes is an hour long.

The sideshows are doomed. Why would anybody pay to get into one when he can stay at home and see a better quality of freaks free on television? What's on for tonight?

Your faithfully,
J.A.

Attractors improve fishing success

Fish attractors produce the best results in ponds or lakes containing little or no natural cover, according to Billy Higginbotham, fisheries specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. As bait fish are attracted to the cover, crappie, bass and catfish follow. Several species of sportfish may use the attractors for shelter and spawning sites.

Brush or tire reefs are the two types of attractors commonly used in Texas. Brush attractors are the oldest and most popular type. Willow tops and discarded Christmas trees make excellent fish habitat when properly anchored. Additional brush is usually needed every two or three years to keep this type of attractor productive, especially for crappie.

Attractors made of hardwood trees last longer than willow or cedar tops. Limbs can be pruned so the trees are slightly off the bottom, providing relief and structure. Largemouth bass seem to prefer this type attractor.

Tire reefs are constructed by grouping tires together in various configuration. Holes should be drilled in the tires to prevent air pockets and allow the tires to sink easier. A tire reef will last idenfinitely without harm to the aquatic enivronment, Higginbotham says.

Attractors made from a combination of brush and tires often produce excellent results.

Baiting with soured corn or cottonseed cake generally increases the catch of catfish around fish attractors.

Attractors should be placed near underwater points and drop-offs. The size of each attractor is strictly up to the angler, but several small attractors placed at different depths usually give better results than a single large attractor.

Before placing a fish attractor in a favorite pond or lake, be sure to obtain permission of the owner. For public waters, check with the managing agency to avoid violations of regulations.

While fish attractors do not increase the number of fish in a body of water, they do concentrate certain species already persent. Therefore, the odds of filling a stringer are much better.

Shallow bays pose hazards

Bay fishermen who operate boats in shallow bay areas near here should be aware of a potential hazard to their motors' health.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Joe Martin said during winter and early spring dead grass and other aquatic vegetation sometimes "sheds" after cold fronts and the material collects on the water surface.

"The prudent boater should keep an eye on his motor's discharge spout," Martin said. "If the thin stream of water slows or stops while your motor is running you should immediately turn it off and free the water intake."

From the pressbox

Contrary to published reports, America's team is not for sale. Tex Schramm, the Dallas Cowboys' president and general manager, has denied a story saying that ill health will force Clint Murchison to sell the NFL team he has owned since its inception in 1960.

It's been reported that Murchison's choice to succeed him was Lamar Hunt, who already owns the Kansas City Chiefs. But Schramm denied the story.

The denial seems plausible. Some time ago, when Murchison was asked to assess the Cowboys' value, he said, "It may only be worth, say, $30 million to a buyer, but perhaps $60 million to the guy that owns the franchise, me. So I'd say it's unsaleable."

When he coached the United States hockey team to a gold medal in the 1980 Winter Olympics, Herb Brooks was portrayed as a tough disciplinarian who exercised complete control over his players.

Brooks, now the head coach of the New York Rangers, recently was described as "a collegiate type with a perpetual twinkle in his eye." With that in mind, Brooks was asked why the producers of the television movie about the U.S. Olympic victory selected Karl Malden, a rather stolid actor, for the part of Brooks. "My wife wanted Robert Redford to play me," Brooks replied. Because your wife thinks you look like Robert Redford? "No," Brooks said. "Because she wanted to play herself in the movie."

The Toadfish is 'dressed to kill'

One fish found along the Texas Gulf Coast always looks like it's ready to go to the Officers' Club for cocktails.

It's the Atlantic midshipman, an unusually-marked member of the toadfish family, according to Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologist Artussee Morris.

"Midshipmen get their name from the luminous cells on their chest which resemble the buttons on a 19th Century naval midshipman's uniform," said Morris.

Morris said midshipmen are the only fish in North American inshore waters which have photophores, or cells which produce light from the fish's own tissue.

"This bioluminescence plays a role in the midshipman's mating courtship, and possibly for predator deterrence and marking of territorial boundaries," Morris said.

Vanishing deer subject of study

MATAGORDA — Biologists are trying to crack the case of the vanishing bucks on Matagorda.

The disappearing bucks are not greenback dollars but white-tailed deer. Instead of fingerprints and magnifying glasses, the biologists are using radio transmitters for their detective work.

The transmitters and tracking equipment were purchased through donations from the Dallas Ecological Foundation and the Houston Safari Club. Both organizations are active in wildlife conservation and have provided financial assistance for several Texas Parks and Wildlife Department programs.

Past studies of the movements of whitetails have shown that female deer usually are stay-at-homes, while yearling bucks tend to disappear from their home grounds shortly after reaching maturity.

Biologist Bob Carroll of La Grange said in a four-year study involving observations of freeze-branded bucks, researchers were unable to account for more than 90 percent of the bucks by the time the deer reached three and half years of age. "Home ranges of young bucks are relatively stable until the month prior to their first breeding season at one and a half years of age," Carroll said. "In some instances, bucks did not disappear until their second breeding season, but by the third breeding season only 5 percent of the branded bucks remained in the herd."

Carroll said the new study will consist of fitting 20 bucks and 10 does with radio transmitters. Each deer also will be freeze-branded and ear-tagged for positive identification in the field.

Carroll said the telemetry study should reveal whether the young bucks have high mortality rate or whether they move several miles away and attempt to set up their own territory.

"The fate of these young bucks needs to be determined so this phenomenon can be fitted into our deer management programs," Caroll said.

Opportunity is sometimes hard to recognize if you are only looking for a break.

Now it's time to learn about the yield curve

By SCOTT BURNS

For millions of older Americans, the proverbial "Good Old Days" didn't end in 1950. They stopped abruptly in 1982 when the monthly checks from money market funds began to decline. Since then, after years of worrying about "safety of principal," investors have had a new worry — stability of income.

As you can see from the figures below, stability of income is a major problem. The average yield on money market funds has been in decline since last June:

Nor are rates likely to rise much in the near future. For all the angst about the federal deficit, foreign debt defaults, etc., most forecasters expect short-term interest rates to remain low.

You can get a more telling idea of what this means by considering what happened to shareholders of the AARP U.S. Government Money Market Trust.

Formed less than three years ago, the trust quickly grew to over $4 billion in assets by offering older Americans a secure place to put their money while earning a high interest rate. At this time last year, for instance, the fund was earning at an annual rate of 12.6 percent. Indeed, the fund earned at better than 12 percent until early last August.

The fund still is exactly what it set out to be: a safe place for older Americans to keep their money.

The problem is that the yield is now less than 8 percent.

The impact of that decline is no minor matter. On a $40,000 account, a shareholder's monthly income declined from about $400 to $250, a drop of $150.

The point here isn't to single out one fund. What happened to AARP shareholders has happened to investors in all 226 taxable money market funds.

The difference, if there is one, is that while many money market funds are used to "park" money between other investments or held in IRA plans to accumulate retirement assets, a drop in interest income for most AARP shareholders is not an abstract event.

It means a decline in spendable income.

If you are one of those shareholders, or one of the millions of Americans who have benefited from high interest rates on 6-month bank certificates, short-term U.S. Treasury bills, etc., you now have only two choices: You can grit your teeth and endure low interest rates, or you can grit your teeth and learn how to use what investment bankers call "the yield curve."

Interest rates, according to theory, depend on two things: the creditworthiness of the borrower (if he doesn't need the money, he won't be charged much to use it) and the length of time the money is borrowed. Typically, the longer the period of time, the higher the interest rate.

The figures below show the yield curve for U.S. Treasury issues.

If you were to graph these figures, time vs. interest rate, you would have a relatively normal yield curve with rates rising as the maturity increased.

You may not like it, but that is "normal."

The yield curve that put more than $200 billion in the money market funds and had hundreds of ordinary savers calling their daily newspaper to find out the result of the latest Treasury bill auction was not "normal."

That curve, if you drew it, would be upside down, with the shortest maturities showing the highest interest rates. What millions of Americans must now face is that the riskless high interest rates they once enjoyed were an aberration.

Can anything be done to restore income to something like earlier levels?

Yes . . . if you take some risk.

The trick is to get the maximum increase in income with the least increase in risk.

As you can see from the yield curve above, you don't have to commit your money for 20 years to get most of the benefits of commitment. While the shape of the curve will vary from week to week, you can get a substantially higher interest rate by committing for two or three years. For instance, you can raise your income from 8.41 to 10.16 percent by moving from three months to three years.

Is it worth the risk?

It all depends. For millions of Americans, the extra income may be essential.

International trade scene is heating up says Paggi

COLLEGE STATION — The international trade scene has "heated up" considerably in the past several weeks, notes an economist in international trade and transportation.

Dr. Mechel Paggi, with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, emphasizes the continued move toward — and reaction to — protectionist trade policies among the leading players in the international trade arena have been the source of these recent developments.

"Latest participant in the growing number of countries turning to protectionist measures in response to problems in trade is China. After a breakdown in negotiations with the U.S. over a new trade agreement on textile imports, China announced it was halting approval of any new contracts for purchases of U.S. cotton or soybeans," Paggi says.

While analysts believe the short term effects will be minimal on U.S. trade in these commodities due to the relatively small purchases the Chinese were expected to make this year, the boycott could have a much more severe impact if it spreads to other commodities, especially wheat and corn, notes Paggi.

"Although the Chinese are obligated to purchase a minimum of 6 million metric tons of U.S. grain under the current agreement, their purchases totaled 9.3 million tons last year. Loss of the additional sales would be a severe blow to the U.S. agricultural export sector," he says.

In recent talks with Chinese leaders U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz failed to make significant headway toward resolving the difficulties, Paggi notes.

"It isn't likely a quick fix will be forthcoming especially since the issues are tied to disagreement over matters beyond agricultural trade, such as the U.S. position on arms sales to Taiwan," he adds.

The U.S. also is stepping up efforts to combat the agricultural trade subsidies of the European Economic Community (EEC).

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced details of a large subsidized wheat flour sale to Egypt, and Congress has come forth with new legislative initiatives intended to stimulate agricultural exports.

"USDA's wheat flour sale to Egypt amounts to 1 million tons and all but eliminates the EEC from the Egyptian flour markets. The sale is to be subsidized by providing U.S. flour millers with a sufficient quantity of wheat — around 22 million bushels from CCC stocks — to reduce the price to Egypt to $155 per metric ton. This is well below the price of $245 per ton used in the most recent Public Law 480 flour transaction with Egypt," Paggi says.

"Blended credit" terms being offered by the CCC will also be used to further enhance the sale.

New legislative initiatives beginning to surface include espanding the use of CCC stocks in "payment in king" export bonus plans, increasing funds for blended credit, and required marketing of U.S. dairy surpluses.

"It is hoped the expanded efforts to bolster exports will provide needed improvements without touching off retaliation from our competitors. We will have to watch the events of the next few months closely to determine what effects these new developments will actually have on agricultural export activity," Paggi adds.

Many are exempt from new dividend withholding law

On July 1, 1983, financial institutions — banks, savings and loans, credit unions, etc. — and corporations that pay interest or dividends must begin withholding 10 percent for federal taxes.

Many low income and elderly will be exempt.

Institutions which pay interest or dividends may choose not to withhold on smaller accounts — those paying $150 or less per year.

Many others will be exempt, but exemptions are not automatic, they must be requested.

Exempt from withholding on interest and dividends are:

— Those who paid little or no tax last year, specifically those whose tax liability was less than $600 for singles, or $1,000 for married filing jointly;

— Those who are 65 or older and whose tax liability last year was $1,500 or less for singles, or $2,500 or less for married filing jointly if either is 65 or older;

— Those who didn't have to file a return last year.

Those exempt may use the exemption certificate received from the payer of interest or dividends, or may pick up Form W-6, "Individual Certificate of Exemption," at IRS offices, or may order them from IRS by phone or by order form in tax packages. Those receiving interest or dividends from more than one payer should file a Certificate of Exemption with each payer.

Public hearing for fishery rules set

Proposed fishery regulations which will apply to commercial and recreational fishermen will be discussed at a public hearing March 15 in Port Aransas at the Community Center on Alister Street beginning at 7:30 p.m.

These proposed regulations were developed by the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council in cooperation with the New England, Mid-Atlantic, South Atlantic and Caribbean Fishery Management Councils and public review and comments are sought.

The swordfish fishery has expanded very rapidly. Scientific analysis indicates that swordfish harvest is near the maximum level which can be permanently sustained. Any further increase will deplete the swordfish resources. The councils are proposing a system that will limit fishing effort and catch by U.S. fishermen to its present level by establishing seasonal closures. Closures will only be implemented if total catch and fishing effort continue to increase. The proposed system allows each region to set the closure at a season most appropriate for that region, while still being fair to fishermen from all areas. Comment is sought on the appropriate season for a closure in the Gulf if it becomes necessary.

Substantial restrictions are proposed for foreign longline fishermen fishing in U.S. waters. No foreign longlining will be allowed from January 1 through April 30 in an area which measures 90 miles by 120 miles located approximately 100 miles west of Key West, Fla. For the period May 1 through Dec. 31, no foreign longlining will be allowed anywhere in U.S. waters of the Gulf of Mexico. Other seasonal closures are proposed for the Atlantic coast. Foreign fishermen must release all swordfish accidentally caught and will be charged a fee of $272 per fish for every swordfish which is dead when released. U.S. observers aboard all foreign vessels will insure compliance.

A summary of the proposed regulations may be obtained from the Gulf of ter — Suite 881, 5401 West Kennedy Boulevard, Tampa, Fla. 33609, telephone (813) 228-2815. Copies may also be obtained from the National Marine Fisheries Mexico Fishery Management Council, Lincoln Cen- Service, state conservation officers or state marine extension agents. Interested persons are urged to review a summary prior to the public hearing. The council and the National Marine Fisheries Service will accept written comments on the plan for those unable to attend the hearings to express their opinions.

Look for these symptoms in pets

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Dear Dr. Lutz,

I have a cat and a dog that have received their necessary inoculations. I am always worried that they will get sick and die from some condition there is no prevention for. What are some of the early signs of illness I should be aware of?

Signed, Mrs. Thomas

Dear Mrs. Thomas,

If your pet shows any of the following symptoms, have a veterinarian treat your dog or cat immediately.

1. Loss of appetite.
2. Marked weight loss or gain.
3. Excessive water consumption.
4. Difficult, abnormal or uncontrolled waste elimination.
5. Abnormal discharges from the nose, eyes or other body openings.
6. Excessive head shaking, scratching, licking or biting any part of the body.
7. Loss of hair, ragged or dull coat — dandruff.
9. Limping or difficulty getting up or lying down.
10. Abnormal lumps on the body or extremities.
11. Lethargy.
12. Abnormal behavior such as sudden viciousness.

Your thinking is correct. If a veterinarian is presented a case in its early stages, the illness is usually corrected in a few days and without any complications, and at less cost to you.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pets, send them in to the Pilot, 1002 Wharf St., Rockport, TX 78382, and Dr. Lutz will answer them in the weekend edition.

Bon appetit!

By Ann Thomas

This week we have three candy - cookie recipes. These seem to be fun for children to eat — both young and old.

M & M CANDIES COOKIES
1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups (¾ pound) M & M candies

Cream shortening, sugars, eggs and vanilla thoroughly. Sift together flour, soda and salt. Add dry ingredients gradually to creamed mixture. Stir in ½ cup M & Ms. Reserve the remainder to decorate the tops of the cookies you have dropped by teaspoonsful on ungreased cookie sheets. Bake at 375° F. for 10-12 minutes.

Yields 6 dozen 2½-inch cookies.

GUMDROP COOKIES
2 cups brown sugar
4 eggs
1 cup nuts
1 cup chopped gumdrops (orange slice candies may be substituted)
2 cups flour
1 tablespoon cold water
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Beat eggs until foamy. Add sugar and water. Mix in flour, nuts and extract, then the gumdrops, which have been floured and spread thinly in pan. Bake in moderately heated oven.

Upon removal, ice cookies with 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar. Cut in squares and remove from pan.

BABY RUTH COOKIES
½ cup butter
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
2 Baby Ruth bars
1⅓ cup flour
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cut candy bars into small pieces. Cream butter and sugar until smooth. Beat in egg. Stir in other ingredients; chill.

Drop by half-teaspoonful on greased cookie sheet. Bake in moderately heated oven (375° F.) for 10-12 minutes.

Yields 75 cookies.

Hope you enjoy these. Until next week, bon appetit!

The love of humanity as such is mitigated by violent dislike of the next-door neighbor.

LaMaze classes offered in Rockport

LaMaze classes, designed to prepare both a woman and her husband for childbirth, are being offered in Rockport beginning Wednesday, March 16.

The first series of six classes — taught by Irene Anderson and sponsored by A.I.M. Home Health Agency here — will be held from 7:30-9:30 p.m. each Wednesday.

A second series of six classes, taught on Tuesday nights by Patricia Gambill during the same hours, will begin in about three weeks.

Purpose of the LaMaze class, according to Anderson and Gambill, is preparation of the woman and her husband through education for the birth of their child.

"We tell them what to expect, provide the woman with coping skills for labor and teach her body-toning exercises that help prepare her for labor," Anderson said. The course also includes nutrition for the pregnant woman and hospital procedures so she'll have some idea of what to expect in the delivery room.

Those who complete the LaMaze series receive a card, Anderson added.

She and Gambill emphasize they are not teaching "natural childbirth." The aim of the course is to prepare women so effectively for childbirth that, under normal circumstances, they will need no or very little medication.

But they also cover those circumstances that are not routine — such as Caesarean sections, Anderson said. "The purpose of these classes is to acquaint women — and men — with what to expect and how to cope," Anderson added. "It also emphasizes that childbirth is a natural, dignified experience in a woman's life."

Anderson and Gambill both asked women who wish to enroll in their classes to call them prior to the starting date of the class. Both women charge $35 for the entire series of six classes.

Anderson, a registered nurse presently employed by A.I.M., will teach her classes at her home, 823 N. Austin. She may be reached by phone at her office, 719-1372, or home, 729-9862. A.I.M. is presently sponsoring her in becoming certified through the American Society for Psychoprophylaxis in Obstetrics (ASPO).

Gambill, a registered nurse in obstetrics at Spohn Hospital, will teach her classes at Peace Lutheran Church. She was trained through the Corpus Organization for Parent Ecucation (COPE) and may be reached at 729-6494 or 729-3845.

When the music stops

By the Rev. Charles Fake
Pastor, First Baptist Church

Ever play musical chairs? The point of the game is simple: sit down when the music stops. Only one problem: one chair short. So, you've got to be ready to jump into a seat just as the music stops.

Oh, another little problem: you never know when the music is going to stop. You've just gotta be ready.

Remember Simon Peter? He's the apostle who followed Jesus the night he was arrested. When out of the clear blue sky someone suddenly asked, "Are you one of His?" a very nervous Simon Peter answered, "No."

The fact of the matter is, Simon knew Jesus well and loved Him greatly. Why the denial? He hadn't prepared himself for the question. Suddenly "the music stopped" and he was not ready.

The tests of life nearly always sneak up quietly and pounce upon us without warning. We have no time to "get ready"; we must "stay ready."

Jesus told us in words plain and simple: "You must always be ready, for you do not know that time the Son of Man will arrive." (Matthew 24:44 Phillips). Are you ready for His arrival?

"If you openly admit by your own mouth that Jesus Christ is the Lord, and if you believe in your own heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved." (Romans 10:9 Phillips).

Give yourself to Christ today; then you'll be ready should He come today.

Rev. Pafk watches Rockport — and Peace Lutheran — grow

"When I first came here, we had about 137 of what we call 'baptized souls'," says Rev. Wayne Pafk during an interview in his office. "Now we're up to about 167."

Rev. Pafk is the pastor of Rockport's Peace Lutheran Church, one of the younger churches in Aransas County. The Lutheran Parish is only about 12 years old here, he said; it was founded in 1971.

Like other Aransas County churches, Peace Lutheran is growing. Less than a year ago, a new office-educational facility was constructed to help meet the church's needs for physical expansion.

Another, more meaningful, sign to Rev. Pafk is that, when he first came to South Texas four years ago, he came as pastor not only of Peace Lutheran in Rockport but Trinity Lutheran in Refugio. This summer — because of the growth of the Rockport parish — he will become pastor full time of Peace Lutheran.

Rev. Pafk is a native of Akron, N.Y. ("a little town just outside Buffalo") and received his training through "the system": Concordia Lutheran Junior College in Ann Arbor, Mich., Concordia Senior College in Fort Wayne, Ind. ("a boys' school that trains you for the ministry") and Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Mo.

Wayne Pfak

"The total process is eight years," the minister added. In addition to his formal training, Rev. Pafk was pastor for five years of Grace Lutheran Church in Rockdale, in Central Texas. In 1978, the call was extended to him from the Rockport parish and he answered it by coming here in June of that year.

Rev. Pafk and his wife, Alta, observed their 11th wedding anniversary last December and have two children, Heather, 7, and Jon, 4. Alta is a University of Texas graduate and teaches third grade at Live Oak Elementary School.

Rev. Pafk is president of the Aransas County Ministerial Association, served for two years on the ABC Learning Center board of directors and served one year as chairman of the Aransas County unit of the American Cancer Society.

On Tuesdays, he goes to Refugio to take care of bussiness at the church there.

"I bought a 35 millimeter camera — I love to take pictures," he said. "And I like to work on the yard, and carpentry work — the past few years I've been reconstructing the inside of our house. And my kids are encouraging me to go jogging."

But he doesn't have time for that many spare-time activities, he said. Taking care of a parish that includes two churches in two cities keeps him pretty busy . . .

Every way of a man is right in his own eyes, but the Lord weighs the heart.
— Proverbs 21:2

Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind; it is not a matter of rosy cheeks, red lips and supple knees; it is a matter of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions; it is the freshness of the deep springs of life.

Youth means the predominance of courage over timidity, of adventure over the love of ease. This often exists in a man of 60 more than in a boy of 20. Nobody grows old merely by a number of years. We grow old by deserting our ideals.

Years may wrinkle the skin, but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul. Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear and despair — these bow the heart and turn the spirit back to dust.

Whether 60 or 16, there is in every human being's heart the love of wonder, the sweet amazement at the stars and the starlike things, the undaunted challenge of events, the unfailing childlike appetite for what-next, and the joy of the game of living.

You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair.
— Samuel Ullman

The Bible is like a telescope. If a man looks through his telescope, then he sees worlds beyond; but if he looks at his telescope, then he does not see anything but that. The Bible is a thing to be looked through, to see that which is beyond; but most people only look at it; and so they see only the dead letter.
— Phillips Brooks

Local church conducts stewardship campaign

A year-long "Stewardship of Life" campaign is under way at Peace Lutheran Church, according to the Rev. Wayne Pafk, pastor.

The campaign, which began in January, will continue through December and involves members of the church congregation in an examination of how their lives relate to God.

Special Lenten services at the church focus on "The Journey Back to God" and are being held at 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. every Wednesday through March 23.

The Lenten services, Rev. Pafk added, encourage the members of the congregation to "explore for themselves their personal relationship to God — "not how it should be, but how it is."

Potluck, art/craft show is scheduled

A potluck dinner and arts and crafts show will follow services Sunday morning, March 13, at Peace Lutheran Church on Market Street.

Dinner starts at noon and will be followed by the show featuring arts and crafts made by Winter Texans and other members of Peace Lutheran's congregation. The exhibit will include a talk by each exhibitor explaining his or her hobby.

Activities will be in the education-office building (parish hall) next door to the church.

When God wants a great work done in the world, or a great wrong righted, he goes about it in a very unusual way. He doesn't stir up his earthquakes or send forth his thunderbolts. Instead he has a helpless baby, born perhaps in a simple home and of some obscure mother. And then God puts the idea into the mother's heart, and she puts it into the baby's mind. And then God waits. The greatest forces in the world are not the earthquake and the thunderbolts. The greatest forces in the world are babies.
— E. T. Sullivan

For now they're dreams, but anything is possible

By PAT BLAIR

Can a stockbroker from Beaumont move to Aransas County and find happiness as a marine biologist?

If his name is Hugh Goodrich, the answer is, definitely, yes. "When I moved down here," Hugh said during a recent interview at his Fulton residence, "I had been a stockbroker about 16 years. I decided in the early '70s that wasn't a fun way to earn a living so I went back to school . . ."

The fact he was 44 at the time didn't deter him, and his wife, Jane, "is very understanding — very supportive." Moreover, it was the fulfillment of a lifelong dream — "I'd always wanted to be a biologist." In view of all this, neither he nor Jane have regretted the decision.

Hugh is a native of Michigan "but I never liked it up there — I came steadily southward, Michigan to Virginia to North Carolina to East Texas, finally to South Texas."

Along the way, 14 years ago, he and Jane met, married. Both had been married previously and, says Hugh, "we each had four children, so collectively we've raised a mob." All four of Jane's children still live in Beaumont and two of Hugh's are there. The other two, a daughter and a son, live in the Rockport-Fulton area.

The Goodriches have lived here seven years. "We moved here from Beaumont — which we both liked very much," Hugh says, "until Jane found Rockport — then it was curtains."

At the time, Jane was a photographer of children (she has more than 30 years' experience in the profession) and her work was being sponsored by the Corpus Christi Art Museum. As a result of this, she received an invitation from Jan Wendell to exhibit in what was then Rockport's first summer Art Festival.

"I found Rockport," says Jane, "and I went crazy. He (referring to Hugh) came down —"

"And he went crazy," Hugh finishes. "We didn't know how we were going to make a living . . ." But they went back to Beaumont, packed, got things in order — and came to Aransas County. They first bought what was then Helga's Art Gallery in downtown Rockport, then a short time later, they purchased the Moonshell. "Then we sold that a year ago," Hugh said, "and Jane bought Galatea."

By then Hugh had already accepted a position with the Texas Parks and Wildlife, a job he's held the past four years. "My title is 'technician'," he added; working out of the TP&WD Marine Lab in Rockport Harbor, he's currently involved in a shellfish program, sampling for shrimp in area waters. For two years he was involved in the department's redfish program, stocking St. Charles Bay with juvenile redfish produced in the TP&WD hatchery in Palacios. "We monitored their growth and survival," Hugh said, adding he's in the process now of studying the data that was gathered and writing a paper on the project.

Hugh notes his job doesn't leave him a lot of spare time, but when he gets a chance, he enjoys music ("classical, mostly"), reading (describing his taste in books as "eclectic"), gardening . . . A telescope in his living room gives him a close-up view of the Bay across Fulton Beach Road. "It's good for birding," he observed. He enjoys recalling the time, about a year ago, when he was working in St. Charles Bay and saw a flock of white birds. "I thought at first they were pelicans," he said, "but they didn't look like pelicans."

When he got closer, he saw they were whooping cranes — about 30 of them. "I was looking at 40 percent of the entire population of the earth's whoopers in one flock!" he said. It was, he confessed, just a little mind-blowing . . .

Birds, not just whoopers, are one of Hugh's interests — but so are quite a few other things and he quickly starts the list: "living things in general," electronics, science, numbers, boats . . .

He denies, however, that he is an expert in any field. "I'm always suspicious of people who characterize themselves as experts on anything," he said. "And I probably never would be an expert on anything, because I'm fascinated by a lot of things."

His latest interest is the 43-foot trawler-yacht he and Jane bought recently and brought to Rockport this past weekend. Currently named the "Bobell III," the craft is due a name change says Hugh, who plans to re-register her as tne "Galatea — it's a good name for a shop or a boat."

Present plans call for getting the boat shipshape — then taking off cruising — although that won't be for a while yet. Neither he nor Jane are sure when or where they'll be going . . .

In the meantime, Hugh got a Coast Guard captain's license last year and is now "looking at chartering — possibly catering to the birding crowd."

Right now, they're dreams. But for a stockbroker who became a marine biologist — anything is possible.

Waltz cited for failure to yield

Raymond G. Waltz of Petersburg, Mich., was cited for failure to yield right-of-way following an accident about 2:24 p.m. Monday, March 7, at the SeaAire Shopping Center.

Police said Waltz was attempting to pull onto Hwy. 35 from the shopping center parking lot when his vehicle was in collision with a trailer being towed by William F. Durbin of Akron, Ohio.

No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Education registration deadline is near

The registration deadline for Rockport-Fulton High School's summer driver education course is March 17. Students must also have paid the $95 lab fee by that date. Those students who pay the fee after the deadline will be placed on a list in order of date of payment of the fee.

Birth certificates to verify students' ages will be requested during the month of April. Classes will begin June 1.

The time frame for completion of the course will be extended this year since simulator equipment will not be used. As a result, a full six hours of behind-the-wheel driving time is required for each enrolled student — twice the previous amount required.

For more information contact the assistant principal at RFHS at 729-5473.

Sherman Ferrell

He doesn't just toy with ideas

Sherman Ferrell doesn't just toy around with ideas — he builds them. Ferrell is behind the appropriately-named Creative Carpentry, which is just that.

Ferrell has built several unique projects including the covered wagon salad bar at the Back 40 Steakhouse. He not only built the wagon but each of the wagon wheels, which took him just as long as the main part of the project.

He built a cabinet in his home which contains 28 etched glass panes. The cabinet sits atop a counter and utilizes ceiling lights which he has incorporated to light it. Ferrell did all the etching himself.

His talents extend to other areas as well. He built a gazebo in back of his Copano Ridge home and also attractively enclosed an above-ground swimming pool. He extended a small porch in back of his home to a large sundeck with a walkway around the house. In addition, he turned an old, unused closet into a display case for china and other objects.

"He never ceases to amaze me," says his wife, Jane. "What anybody can dream up, he can make."

Ferrell had an auto garage in Tulsa, Okla., for 30 years before moving down here. During that time he made cabinets and did other carpentry work for members of his family. Later he began doing work for friends and did most of the steps and fences around garbage units in Key Allegro when he moved here. In addition, he has renovated several rental houses "which were almost beyond repair."

Other projects include chairs and a table made from pipe, a floating duck feeder, a boat dock, paddle boat ramp, a chandelier in his gazebo made out of wood and mayonnaise jars, picture frames and just about anything else one can dream up.

Ferrell gives estimates on proposed work. His phone number is 729-7709.

4-H publication is now available

Texas 4-H families can now subscribe to their own 4-H publication, the Texas 4-H Standard.

The Standard is available to 4-H families for a $3 yearly subscription, says Kathy Farrow, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The November-December 1982 premier issue initiated a new communication piece and will enable 4-H families to have the latest information about 4-H opportunities plus an exchange of ideas from other county 4-H programs, says Kathy.

The Standard will be issued six times a year. Content will include editorials from the state 4-H leader, highlights from county and club 4-H programs around the state, ideas for fund raising, feature stories about outstanding volunteer leaders and their work with young people, highlights of state activities and schedules of contests, awards, programs and other 4-H events.

The magazine also has a fun page for younger family members plus other feature sections designed to help make the 4-H experience more meaningful to the entire 4-H family.

Advertising is also accepted by the Standard from anyone who wishes to make their business or products known.

Kathy notes that the Standard offers unique educational opportunities to 4-H members in learning journalistic procedures and skills. Additionally, 4-H clubs that have reporters to provide 4-H club news to their local newspapers now have an opportunity to write for the Texas 4-H Standard. Writing for the Standard may help some young people decide on journalism as a possible career choice.

2 drown in boating accident

The bodies of two Rockport men — Robert Edward Gummer, 39, and John Virgil Forrest, 31 — were recovered Wednesday morning, March 9, from an Aransas Bay channel after they apparently drowned in a boating accident Tuesday.

"All we can do is speculate they got caught in the (Tuesday's) high winds," Aransas County Deputy Sheriff Lee Wagoner said Thursday morning following the incident. Wagoner said the Coast Guard was still investigating the mishap and sheriff's officials were waiting on that report.

The bodies were recovered between 7:30 and 8 a.m. Wednesday from the Big Bayou area off Taylor Island, Wagoner said. They were taken to Marshall Funeral Home

Wagoner said the two men left Cove Harbor just south of Rockport "sometime around 9 a.m." Tuesday morning, reportedly to fish around the Mud Island area.

Officials said they were expected to return around dusk and were reported missing, Wagoner said, "shortly after dark" Tuesday.

Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Larry Fontana said the Coast Guard launched a "light search" for the 14-foot aluminum fishing boat at dawn Wednesday.

The bodies were reportedly recovered within minutes of each other, Forrest's by the Coast Guard and Gummer's by a shrimp boat. Gummer's body was taken by the shrimpers to Cove Harbor, Fontana said. He added the bodies were about a mile apart when found. Fishing tackle, boat cushions, oars and other gear were reportedly found in the water near where the bodies were recovered.

The boat itself was recovered intact about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, according to Coast Guard officials.

The Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office is investigating the incident.

Memorial services were held for Forrest at 10 a.m. Friday, March 11, in Sacred Heart Catholic Church with Rev. Gregory Deane officiating.

Forrest had lived in Rockport 11 years and was a welder. Survivors include his wife, Paula, of Rockport; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Forrest of Rockport; four brothers, James Forrest of Dallas, Joe and Mike Forrest of Rockport; and Jerry Forrest of Corpus Christi; and two sisters, Mary Ann Evans of Rockport and Cathy Forrest of Freeport.

Graveside rites for Gummer have been set for 9 a.m. Saturday, March 12, in Rockport Cemetery with Rev. Deane officiating. A native of Corpus Christi, Gummer had lived in Rockport since 1979 and was active in Scouting and an Eagle Scout. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

He is survived by his wife, Kathy, of Rockport; two sons, Ryan Neal Gummer of Rockport and Scott Edward Gummer of Corpus Christi; and his father, William A. Gummer, and stepsister, Diane Rossman, both of Pleasanton, Calif.

Arrangements were under direction of Marshall Funeral Home of Rockport.

said that they don't have time to run extra copies of the appraisal cards. In addition the board of directors of the appraisal district office decided that if the county needs the records, they may have them at 25 cents per copy — a figure which would cost the county roughly $6,500. Jones said that county officials are not willing to pay that price, but have offered to bring their own copy machine to the appraisal district office and copy the cards themselves using either county or appraisal district personnel at county expense, which they say would be cheaper.

Central appraisal district office Chief Appraiser Jack Groseclose said that his office has never refused Jones' requests for copies of appraisal district records. He said in a telephone interview Wednesday, March 9, that appraisal district officials told Jones and Rockport City Administrator Herman Johnson that they could have copies several weeks ago.

However, Groseclose said, the appraisal district office is preparing to go on a computer-assisted appraisal package in late spring or early summer. He said the appraisal district has offered the old property cards to the county at no cost or duplicate new cards at cost. He says to fill Jones' request now would interfere with the appraisal district office's assessment procedures.

The office has been the object of complaints, Groseclose said, due to the lateness of last year's tax rolls. He said that it would take several weeks just to organize the records before they could be copied — time which would delay getting the appraisal list to the various taxing entities on time.

He said the appraisal list must be turned over to the appraisal review board by May 15 or shortly thereafter and must be certified before turning it over to the taxing entities, which he expects to do sometime in July. "If we're delayed at all," he said, "it will delay the release of those rolls."

Absentee

Elections for two of the three places on Fulton's city council are contested: Place 2 where incumbent Katherine McLester is being challenged by Gary LaBerge and Place 3 where incumbent Isabel Gutierrez faces opposition from Lynelle Hunt. Pat Loflin is running unopposed for re-election to Place 5.

Absentee voting in Fulton's elections will be at that city hall.

Absentee voting in the school board elections will be at the Administration Building. Dureen McCain and Horace Naquin are in a race for Place 7 on the school board; neither is the incumbent. In Place 4, William Buckley is unopposed in his bid for re-election.

In the utility district elections, Wilton Bluhm and Steve Shenk are running unopposed for re-election to the seats they now hold on the board. Although a candidate for the board of directors must be a property owner — though not necessarily a resident — of the district, only residents of the district — who need not be property owners — may vote in the election.

Absentee voting will be at the ACMUD office on 8th Street in Lamar.

Those eligible to vote absentee in any election are any qualified voter who will not be in Aransas County on election day; or any qualified voter age 65 or over who is physically unable to go to the polls.

During open forum, audience member Gary LaBerge asked for the council's cooperation in building a permanent town float which could be stored and used from year to year.

Cole said that it would cost at least $4,500 to build one and Lee added that the council could budget funds for this purpose if it desired.

Cole said he would check with the fire department to see if they would be interested in participating in the project.

He warned that the biggest problem would be finding a place to store the float, and Casterline said that it may be possible to rent some unused space at the Aransas County Airport.

Proposed city charter

City to regulate franchise holders

Editor's note: Voters in Rockport's city elections will also cast ballots in a special election this year: deciding for or against a proposed city charter. As a service to our readers, The Pilot is publishing the 12 proposed charter articles in our weekend edition.

If Rockport voters adopt the proposed city charter this year, among the rights that will be given city officials is the right to regulate public utilities operating within the city.

This right is set out in proposed Charter Article XI — Utility and Public Service Franchises and Licenses.

ARTICLE XI Utility and Public Service Franchises and Licenses

Sec. 11.01 AUTHORITY

(1) The City shall have the power to buy, own, sell, construct, lease, maintain, operate and regulate public services and utilities and to manufacture, distribute and sell the output of such services and utility operations.

Sec. 11.02 ORDINANCE GRANTING FRANCHISE

(1) Any ordinance granting, renewing, extending or amending a public service or utility franchise must be read at two separate meetings of the City Council and shall not take effect until thirty days after the final reading. Within fifteen days following the first reading of the ordinance, the text of the ordinance shall be published once in a newspaper designated as the official newspaper of the City, with the expense of such publication borne by the prospective franchisee.

(2) No franchise shall be granted for a term of more than twenty years from the date of the grant, renewal or extension of any franchise.

(3) No franchise may be exclusive.

Sec. 11.03 TRANSFER OF FRANCHISE

(1) No public service or utility franchise is transferable, except with the approval of the City Council. However, the franchise may pledge franchise assets as security for a valid debt or mortgage.

Sec. 11.04 FRANCHISE VALUE NOT TO BE ALLOWED

(1) Franchises granted by the City are of no value in fixing rates and charges for public services or utilities within the City and in determining just compensation to be paid by the City for property which the City may aquire by condemnation or otherwise.

Sec. 11.05 RIGHT OF REGULATION

(1) In granting, amending, renewing and extending public service and utility franchises, the City reserves unto itself all the usual and customary rights, including, but not limited to, the following rights:

(a) To repeal the franchise by ordinance for failure to begin construction or operation within the time prescribed, or for failure to comply with terms of the franchise.

(b) To require all extensions of service within the City limits to become part of the aggregate property of the service and operate subject to all obligations and reserved rights contained in this Charter. Any such extension is considered part of the original grant and terminable at the same time and under the same conditions as the original grant.

(c) To require expansion and extension of facilities and services and to require maintenance of existing facilities to provide adequate service at the highest level of efficiency.

(d) To require reasonable standards of service and quality of product and prevent rate discrimination.

(e) To impose reasonable regulations and restrictions to insure the safety and welfare of the public.

(f) To examine and audit accounts and records and to require annual reports on local operations of the public service or utility.

(g) To require the franchise to restore, at franchisee's expense, all public or private property to a condition as good as or better than before disturbed by the franchise for construction, repair or removal.

(h) To require the franchise to furnish to the City, within a reasonable time, at the franchisee's expense, a general map outlining current location, character, size, length, depth, height and terminal of all facilities over and under property within the City and its extraterritorial jurisdiction.

(i) To require compensation, rent or franchise fees to be paid to the City.

Sec. 11.06 REGULATION OF RATES

(1) The City Council has the power to fix and regulate the rates and charges of all utilities and public services, consistent with State statutes.

(2) Upon receiving written request from a utility or public service requesting a change in rates, or upon a recommendation from the City that rates for services provided by or owned by the City be changed, the City Council shall call a public hearing for consideration of the change.

(3) The City, public service or utility must show the necessity for the change by any evidence required by the City Council, including, but not limited to, the following:

(a) Cost of its investment for service to the City.

(b) Amount and character of expenses and revenues connected with rendering the service.

(c) Copies of any reports or returns filed with any State or Federal regulatory agency within the last three years.

(d) Demonstration that the return on investment is within State and Federal limitations.

(4) If not satisfied with the sufficiency of evidence, the City Council may hire rate consultants, auditors and attorneys to investigate and, if necessary, litigate requests for rate changes, the expense of which shall be reimbursed to the City by the franchise.

Sec. 11.07 LICENSES

(1) The City shall have the power to license, levy and collect fees in order to license any lawful business, occupation or calling subject to control pursuant to the police powers of the State of Texas and for any other purpose not contrary to the Constitution and laws of the State of Texas.

INSIDE TV

BY CHRIS COLBY

CLOSEUP — "Anything that starts out 'Once upon a time' grabs me," says Jeff Conaway, starring as the dashing Prince in "Wizards and Warriors." "Doing this show is like being in the middle of the best fairy tale I ever read. I love being a real hero. There aren't enough of them around for kids to admire these days." For the limited CBS series, Jeff really had to brush up on his horseback riding and swordplay ...

Susan Blakely hates cigarettes, but she had to light up for three of her TV roles. As Eva Braun in "The Bunker," she puffed away on little French cigarettes; as Frances Farmer in "Will There Really Be A Morning?" she chain-smoked and in "Rich Man, Poor Man," she was a heavy smoker ... Billy Moses, Cole Gioberti of "Falcon Crest," is the son of actress Marion McCargo. He loves sailing and tennis, is blond and stands over six feet, is single AND available.

FOCUS — Al Corley, out of "Dynasty" for badmouthing the show, has landed a running role in the new "Bare Essence" series for NBC ... And, for that same series, Genie Francis dropped eight pounds for her role as Tyger Hayes ... Joan Collins is wanted during "Dynasty" hiatus time for a role in "The Sword," a feature to film in India and Spain ... David Cassidy has been hanging around barns lately, that's because he's seeing a cute femme horse trainer ... That Gary Coleman is some great guy. Not many kids his age could go through as much pain and discomfort and always come up smiling ... Pam Dawber ("Mork and Mindy") has signed an exclusive deal with Paramount TV for her production company to develop comedy and dramatic series ... "Fame's" Valerie Landsburg is seeing a lot of rock musician Jimmy McVay.

COMING EVENTS — Make a note now! The long-awaited "Thorn Birds" airs Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday beginning March 27 via ABC ... Ernest Borgnine joins Stephanie Faracy, Harvey Korman and Peter Scolari in "Carpool" now filming in and around the Los Angeles area. Comedy airs at a later date via CBS ... Dorothy McGuire's is another big movie name capitulating to the small screen. She starts for ABC in "Ghost Dancing," the story of an impoverished widow frustrated by the lack of water to her ranch, who dynamites a city-owned reservoir. Her actions create unanticipated reverberations within the power structure of her small community.

MARQUEE

By J.T. YURKO

Broken families — whether from divorce or death — is ripe material for filmmakers. "Kramer vs. Kramer" handled the subject with as much taste and talent as any recent movie, "Six Weeks" saw the death of the child, and "Without a Trace" resorted to kidnapping to insure familial drama.

If you don't recognize "Six Weeks" it's because the movie didn't last six days in release, even with Dudley Moore and Mary Tyler Moore in starring roles. "Table for Five" was penned by the same author, and the same fate may await this film as well.

Jon Voight stars as a divorced father who decides to take his kids on a "little vacation," which turns out to be an ocean-going voyage to Egypt. This is a voyage of learning for both parent and children. The dad learns he really hasn't been much of a father, and the kids realize that they aren't as well-adjusted to the divorce as they thought.

Although this is enough material for a three-handkerchief movie, the death of the mother is intended to have viewers reaching for extra-absorbent towels.

"Table For Five" is certainly ripe with good intentions, but few of them pan out. Seltzer's story tries earnestly to be emotion-stirring, but crosses the line from sentimental to mawkish a touch too often. All the performances, however, are first-rate, especially the three children — all newcomers to the screen.

TABLE FOR FIVE, from Warner Bros., Directed by Robert Lieberman, written by David Seltzer. Starring Jon Voight, Marie Christine Barrault, Richard Crenna. Rated 'PG' ★ ★

The script is really TV-movie fare, but there's a clever case of camouflage going on. Since the film is set in the exotic locales of Greece, Turkey and Egypt, cinematographer Vilmos Zsigmond has a chance to pull out the stops on postcard scenery. Most of it is beautiful but extraneous.

The film ends on a rather preposterous note, and all the good intentions are swept away into one more beautiful panoramic shot. "Table For Five" has a few genuinely moving moments, but scenery and sentimentality end up sinking this voyage.

SOAP BUBBLES ..... by Seli Groves

TELESCOOPS: John Wesley Shipp will hoist anchor and depart his role as Kelly on "Guiding Light." ... Set to appear on "Ryan's Hope" is a familiar actress from another series. The lovely lady who left soaps for a while to pursue other interests, will assume a key role in this daytime drama. We'll be able to tell you who she is right after all the contractual details are worked out.

TRISTAN ROGERS

A THORN IN HIS SIDE? Australian-born Tristan Rogers (Scorpio, "General Hospital") doesn't know it yet, but he could be getting a few calls for help in translating some of the more colorful slang expressions that may be heard on "The Thorn Birds" when that ABC miniseries debuts March 27. "The Thorn Birds" is set in Australia and the language is peppered with an occasional Australian idiom whose meaning may be known only to a hardy "Down Under" native; hence the possible need for Tristan's assistance, if necessary. By the way, John deLancie (the charming Eugene Bradford on "Days of Our Lives") appears in "Thorn Birds" in the role of the wealthy and witty Alistair McQueen. John also appeared in the night-time version of "Scruples," based on a novel set in boutiques, boardrooms and boudoirs. "Scruples" will soon debut as a new NBC daytimer.

SOAP SCRAPS: Kim Delaney (Jenny, "All My Children") was named one of TV's six most beautiful women. The other five are news anchor, Jessica Savitch; Priscilla Barnes, "Three's Company"; Joan Collins, "Dynasty"; Linda Gray, "Dallas" and Debbie Allen, "Fame." ... Daytime stars are lighting up the night-time soap scene, to wit: Genie Francis (ex Laura, "General Hospital") is Tyger Hayes in "Bare Essence." Also in "BE" are Jaime Lyn Bauer (ex Lauralee, "Young & the Restless") and Michael Woods (ex "Texas") ... Meanwhile Jack Coleman (ex "Days of Our Lives") picked off the plum role of Steve Carrington in "Dynasty." ... Lisa Eilbacher (ex "Young & Restless"), who won her share of plaudits for her work in "Winds of War," will be co-starring in a new night-timer, "Ryan's Four," debuting next season.

"GENERAL HOSPITAL" COUNTDOWN: "GH" made its debut April 1, 1963. This column will be part of the series' 20th anniversary celebration. We'll start featuring exclusive interviews with several of its top stars in the weeks ahead. They'll share personal reminiscences of their experiences on the soap. Stay tuned.

MEDICINE CHEST

Your Professional:
Troy True, Reg. Pharmacist

What is the name of the new drug for severe acne, and does it really represent a breakthrough? — L.P.

It's called Accutrane, and the manufacturer claims it is a breakthrough for a good reason. Here's why. Based on the drug studies conducted, there was a 90 percent improvement in patients whose cystic acne had not responded to previous treatment. Side effects do occur. Up to 90 percent of the patients experienced inflamed lips and 80 percent of the patients had other drug-associated skin problems. Accutrane requires a prescription and periodic checkups while taking it.

How did people clean their teeth before toothpaste was invented? — G.T.

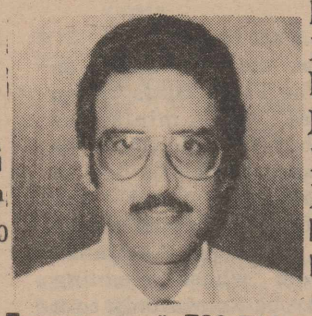

Tooth powder was used, but in early England teeth were brushed with the bark of an evergreen shrub and the dentifrice was the powder of a burned rabbit's head. Tell that to your children the next time they complain about brushing their teeth!

I take several medicines at the same time to control my high blood pressure and Parkinson's disease. Can any of these medicines cause dizziness when I get up from a chair? — L.H.

Both medicines could cause this problem. In addition, drugs used to treat emotional disorders can cause dizziness. Your physician should be informed of this condition.

Dear Debbie

DEAR DEBBIE:

My 16-year-old son returned from a high school victory party last weekend totally drunk. In fact, he was so bad off that he couldn't even hide the fact. I have never seen him like this before, so I don't think that he is a teenage alcoholic, but I'm concerned about how he established social patterns at this stage of the game. I know a lot of alcoholics start early. What do I do with my son?

MOM

DEAR MOM:

Just because your son was drunk only once does not mean that there are no trouble signs at present. The problem, very often, is not that teenagers drink steadily; most only drink once in a while. When they do drink, however, they tend to take in a great deal. The result of this level of intoxication can get them into trouble. I am sure you are familiar with the story of how a drunk teen got into an accident, or into a fight. The best way to stave off any future drinking problems is to talk about drinking and its effects now. Ask your son why he got drunk. Drinking can be for fun and drinking to excess may be because of ignorance or foolishness. If it seems to be a way to cope with emotional and personality problems, you may want to discuss the problem with someone who is versed in teenage drinking. Start by calling AA. I do, however, suggest that you refrain from throwing a teenager into a therapy group consisting of adults. Try to find something for people his age. Of course, an open line of communication between you and your son is of primary importance.

DEAR DEBBIE:

Can it be that I'm adopted and don't even know it? My older brother keeps saying that I was found in an alley. This really upsets me and I'm too ashamed to ask my parents. How can I find out if he's telling the truth?

BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED:

I suggest that you start off by overcoming your timidity and asking your mother and father. If you present your question maturely, they will respond openly. I might add that my older brother told me that my parents bought me from the garbage man. My parents confirmed that I was their natural and beloved child and although my brother never stopped teasing me about it, I never let on that it didn't really bother me anymore.

WINE NOTES

* Those interested in German wines might be interested in a new wine from that country, being called a "Vins de Pays" style, dry to semi-dry and relatively low in alcohol. Named "Landwein," it is typical of and named after the local region where it is grown. Germany has had a record harvest, so these simple, light "country-style" wines should be plentiful and low in cost on the American market.

* For fans of Italian wines, there are three new delights to try: Fratelli Oddero 1978 Barolo is a dry, dark and robust wine of a superior vintage, costing about $14. Nuova Cappelletta 1980 Barbera (about $5) is sturdy and full-bodied, while the Nuova Cappelletta 1980 Grignolino is a lighter, fruit-scented red, costing about $7.

* A total of 260 million gallons of California wine was shipped to market during the first nine months of 1982, an increase of 200,000 gallons over the previous year, with table wine shipments continuing their steady increase, up 1.9 percent for '82.

* A first release for Los Vineros Winery also proved a medal winner, their Santa Barbara County Blanc of Cabernet Sauvignon 1981. Made from 100 percent cabernet grapes, the wine has an herbal-like varietal character which should suit cabernet fans perfectly. Bottling was limited to 1,500 cases and the retail price is about $4.50.

* Two excellent wines released from Fetzer Vineyards this fall are their 1981 Barrel Select Mendocino Chardonnay ($8), and Fetzer 1979 Home Vineyard Mendocino Cabernet Sauvignon ($8.50). The Fetzer Chardonnay has a fresh appley fruit given complexity by French oak aging; the Cabernet is dry, elegant and well-structured for aging.

No stunting for Lee

By Kate Woods

Does Lee Horsley do his own stunts on "Matt Houston"? I thought he might since he seemed pretty athletic in "The Sword and the Sorcerer." — T. G.

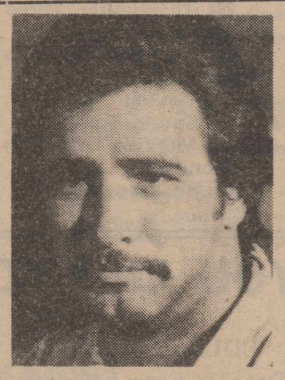

Horsley may be athletic, but he has a stunt double, Jimmy Nickerson, for most of the dangerous stunts on the show. All stars have doubles if they and their producers have any sense.

NAME'S THE SAME — Can you tell me if there is any connection between the Paul Newman movie "The Verdict" and an old Peter Lorre movie of the same name, which I have not seen but have heard about? — R.K.

There's no connection other than the same title. The Lorre movie was a 1946 crime thriller directed by Don Siegel ("Invasion of the Body Snatchers," "Dirty Harry," etc.) in which Sidney Greenstreet played a "has-been" Scotland Yard inspector trying to outwit Lorre.

SENSITIVE QUESTION — Some years ago there was a made-for-TV movie starring David Janssen and Angie Dickinson. In it Janssen played a laid-off aerodynamic engineer who was an alcoholic and eventually died on his front lawn. I say it was called "A Senstitive, Passionate Man," but all my family and friends disagree. Help — J.K.

What do they know?

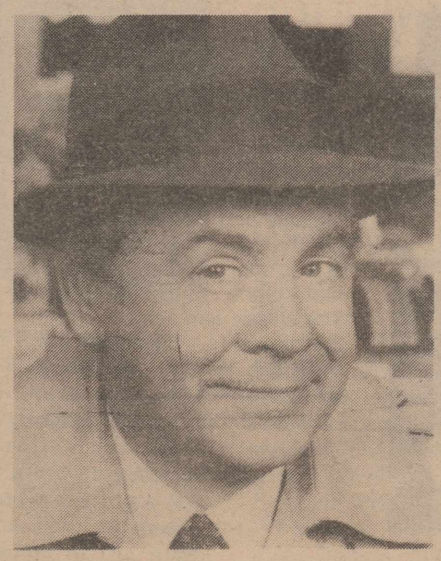

Lee Horsley

That was the title of the 1977 depression-drama.

HANKS A LOT — Tom Hanks recently guested on "Family Ties" as Elyse's brother. What was the name of the series he starred in last year in which he and his roommate wore dresses? — K.R.

Tom Hanks and Peter Scolari were Buffy and Hildegarde on "Bosom Buddies."

ACE CRAWFORD

Tim Conway stars in the title role of "Ace Crawford, private eye," a new half-hour CBS sitcom, making its debut on TUESDAY, MARCH 15.

Soap Beat

It's a cat's life for 'AMC' star Bonkers

By Connie Pas$alacqua

Some soap stars claw their way to the top. Others are groomed for stardom. But "All My Children" 's latest star got his job for mere catnip, which is pretty cheap considering the incredible fan following he has collected after being on the show only four months. He's Bonkers, the first soap star of the feline persuasion.

Daytime-TV's latest sensation even had his role created especially for him. The cat's owner had the "AMC" scriptwriters arrange for Bonkers (who is called by his real name on the show) to move in with and be the confidante to Daisy Cortlandt (Gillian Spencer).

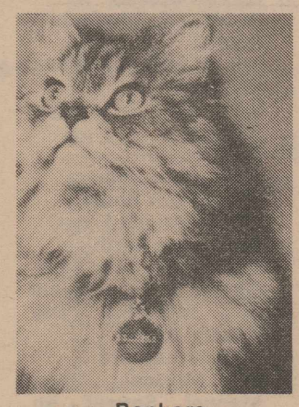

What power does Bonkers' stage mother — "AMC" executive producer Jacqueline Babbin — have over the show's writers?

"It's nepotism of the worst kind!" she jokes

Everyone at "AMC" agrees that Bonkers leads a pampered life. He's got the best dressing room, which happens to be Miss Babbin's well-appointed office.

"Eat your heart out, Susan Lucci!" she says referring to the superstar-status actress who has played Erica Kane since the show premiered 12 years ago.

While the other actors report to the studio at 7 a.m., Bonkers usually arrives at noon and goes directly to dress rehearsal. After a short break, Bonkers is brushed and goes straight into taping without having to go through the hassle of makeup or a costume change.

Bonkers

Bonkers, a Persian, was born with a fluffy white coat, which changed to gray when he and Miss Babbin moved to California from New York in 1976. While there, Miss Babbin produced such award-winning TV-movies as "Sybil" and became a vice president of ABC Entertainment.

Now back in New York, Bonkers shares a West Side apartment with Miss Babbin and Azzie, a beautiful Burmese. When asked why she cast Bunkers in "AMC" instead of Azzie, she says, "Azzie is an East Side cat who looks down on anyone who works."

YOU AND YOUR HEALTH ...by Peter J. Esse, M.D.

'COLD-PHOBIA'

Dear Dr. Esse: I confess to two weaknesses: a fear of the common cold and absolute hypochondria about being in crowds during epidemics.

I admit I'm a cold-phobic. I think it goes back to my grandfather dying of pneumonia that started out as an ordinary cold. It made an impression on me when I was a youngster.

Is there anything to do about it? Is there anything new in treating colds? — Mrs. T.

Dear Mrs. T.: I recall one patient who felt he was dying of colds most of his life. He, too, feared pneumonia. Yet, he lived into his mid-eighties and died in an auto accident.

Whether it's cancer, heart disease, colds or any other ailment, fears are often misplaced or premature. All we can do is take proper precautions in fighting disease — whatever it is. As for colds, I suppose you've heard of the usual remedies. (Antibiotics are of no value in lessening the severity of colds — they're only good for use in complications.)

There's no reason to keep away from movies or doing your shopping — just try to stay away from anyone who is sneezing and coughing all over the place. Sometimes that's not possible. All you can do is cross your fingers and hope for the best.

When a cold comes on, get into bed for a few days (for your own good, and not to spread it around), take aspirin, hot drinks, soup, stay out of drafts and keep warm. If fever continues, better have it investigated.

Otherwise, Mrs. T., there's not much else you can do — except have faith that the cold isn't going to do you in.

ROCK ON

By Ethlie Ann Vare

UPDATE

Here's a new marketing approach. "Rock 'N' Roll City" is a tape (not an album) that features Mike Love of the Beach Boys, Dean Torrance of Jan and Dean, the Association and Paul Revere rerecording some favorite oldies. Their versions of "Da Doo Run Run," "96 Tears," "Sealed with a Kiss" and others are for sale only at 8,300 Radio Shack stores... The Jefferson Starship make a rare television appearance on American Bandstand on March 19.

MTV subscribers will get a chance to see Roger Daltrey in "McVicar" on March 13. The film features a wonderful Who soundtrack, but got little theatrical distribution... Chrissie Hynde (the Pretenders) and Ray Davies (the Kinks) had a baby girl in London.

Bo Diddley will make his acting debut in "Trading Places," a new film featuring Dan Aykroyd and Eddie Murphy... Rick Springfield, who has left "General Hospital," will star in a movie called "Traveling Light."

Ska band Madness has been signed to Geffen, the Midas-touch record label. David Bowie leaves RCA to sign with EMI; his new LP is being produced by Chic's Nile Rodgers.

Bryan Adams

REVIEWS

Musical Youth — "Youth of Today" (MCA) — Now here's an interesting phenomenon — bubblegum reggae. The prepubescent Musical Youth have covered the Mighty Diamonds' "Pass the Koutchie" (marijuana pipe) as "Pass the Dutchie" (cooking pot) and made a hit of the expurgated version. But if it introduces more people to the Jamaican backbeat, it can't be all bad. In fact, for little kids, they sound pretty good.

Bryan Adams — "Cuts Like a Knife" (A & M) — Good-looking Canadian singer Bryan Adams got some recognition last year with "Lonely Nights" and "This Time" from the new album is getting airplay. Adams' gritty vocal style is halfway between Tom Petty and Frankie Miller, and he is a dynamic live performer. But his material is a tad too predictable and formulaic to get excited about.

Refunding $$$ and Sense ..... by Victoria R. Fleming

A miraculous event occurs about this time of year in the world of refunding. I've been witness to it for years now but it always amazes me and charges my battery. After the end-of-the-year doldrums, new forms of every size and color and for all types of products suddenly appear everywhere. Newspapers and Sunday supplements are loaded and drugstores to supermarkets have fat new pads to choose from. This year it seems that manufacturers are offering higher value refunds, whether cash or coupons, and forms are prettier and much more attention-getting. So find them, but only take a few for yourself and trading. Refunding is obviously profitable for companies make it profitable for you!

Q. What if I'm still having difficulty finding particular forms?

A. More and more companies are now providing write-for-form information on the cardboard backings of form pads than I've ever seen before. That's where I get the details to pass on to you. So check out stores carefully, trade with family, friends, or pen pals, snap up all publications, and watch this column for write-aways.

Slim helps kids' health

Slim Goodbody

"Slim Goodbody's Top 40 Health Hits," a series of 26 one-minute spots educating children about their bodies and health habits through song, airs daily on Nickelodeon, the First Channel for Kids.

Twenty-nine-year-old John Burstein, who plays Slim, is already known to the elementary school set through his appearances on "Captain Kangaroo" for the past five years. As Slim Goodbody, he dresses in a bodysuit with painted bones, muscles and organs. He covers a specific health episode in each segment, performing such songs as "Fabulous Food," "Vital Vitamins" and "Muscle Motion."

A puppet disc jockey opens each segment introducing Slim along with one of his five backup bands. They're made up of a diverse set of puppet characters and play a range of musical styles from contemporary rock (the Muscle Tones) to disco (the Circulators).

"It's a very busy minute, well-packed with carefully blended entertainment and information that focuses on physical, mental and emotional health. We cover all aspects of nutrition and exercise and we get the message across — whether it's telling kids to use a tissue when they sneeze or to eat fruit for vitamins," Burstein said during a recent interview in New York.

The concept of Slim Goodbody was conceived by Burstein when he worked aboard New York's Floating Hospital Ship almost 10 years ago. Realizing then that children knew little about the workings of their bodies, he began writing lyrical songs to teach them.

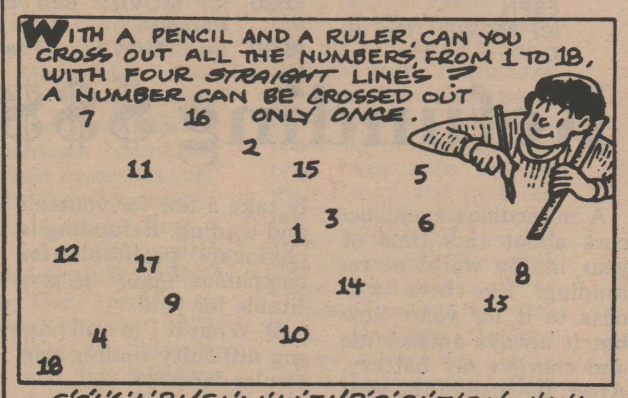

The spots were originally shown on "Captain Kangaroo" and were moved to Nickelodeon in an attempt to capitalize on the cable channel's large viewing audience. The series is underwritten by Kraft.

"There's been a fitness revolution in the country in general. People now feel more of a sense of responsibility for their own health. On this series, we're giving kids a head start on making the proper choices about their health. We want kids to get into the right health habits," Burstein said.

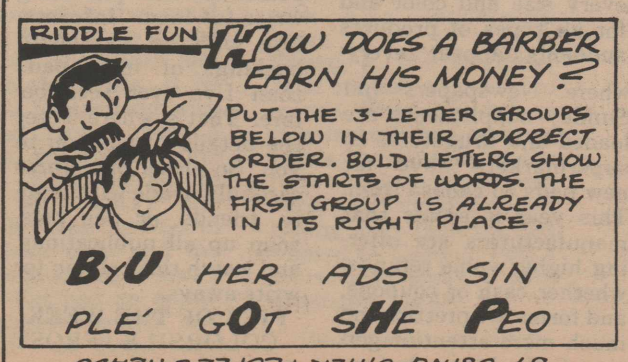

"I think we're reaching a lot of young people with these spots. I already have a built-in audience from 'Captain Kangaroo' and now Nickelodeon is giving me a lot of exposure."

PBS in the spotlight

Nova looks at the Bermuda Triangle, scene of many mysterious disappearances.

The deadly Triangle

Since 1945, hundreds of ships and planes, and thousands of people have vanished without a trace in an area of the Atlantic Ocean off Florida known as the Bermuda Triangle. On Tuesday, March 15, Nova investigates the mystery surrounding these strange disappearances in "The Case of the Bermuda Triangle."

It's reported that an avergae of four boats and two airplanes set off into the Triangle every month — and never return. Some pilots are said to avoid the area because their instruments unaccountably stop functioning there.

These events have led some people to think something powerful, sinister, or perhaps supernatural is lying in — or perhaps under — that part of the Atlantic.

Is there a reasonable explanation for these strange reports and events? Nova traces some of the most famous reports, searching for clues, testing theories and finally penetrating the mystery of the Triangle.

Nova is produced for PBS by WGBH Boston and is funded by public television stations, the Arthur Vining Davis Foundation and the Johnson & Johnson family of companies. "The Case of the Bermuda Triangle" is a production of the BBC, produced by Graham Massey.

Popcorn Video

By James Smethurst

Howard E. Rollins Jr. as Coalhouse Walker in "Ragtime."

Once again, it's sports tournament time on ESPN. All this week, the network will cover the first round of the NCAA basketball championship. On Saturday, March 19, for instance, you will be able to see games 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Many interesting items will be on USA's "Night Flight," Friday March 18. One is a videotape of pop, avant garde, new music composer Robert Ashley's semi-opera "The Lesson." If all those modifiers don't make much sense to you, what they mean is that Ashley covers a lot of bases.

His pieces mix theater, song and pop culture with a sense of humor. Memorable lines from other recent efforts include "Listen Buddy, they don't sell fine wines in half-pints."

Another item that will probably be good for a laugh will be an interview with Grace Slick. Whatever you think of her as a musician, you have to admit that she's one of the most off-the-wall people walking around loose. Afficionados of Miss Slick's quirks will recall when she donned a buffalo head in 1976, saying that she could hardly wait for the bison-tennial.

Finally, there will be a performance by the Irish rock band, the Boomtown Rats. Though sometimes described as a punk band, the Rats are a little on the tuneful side when compared to, say, Adrenaline OD or Fear. They are one of the most popular bands in the world outside the United States.

"American Baby," seen on CBN and SPN, will focus on infant nutrition in its March 16 show. Jo-Ann Heslin, co-author of "No-Nonsense Nutrition for Your Baby's First Year," will join host Judith Nolte in answering questions most frequently asked by new parents about their child's nutrition, including when to start their infant on solid food.

A couple of shorts about March 13 movies on HBO:

"Ragtime" — E.L. Doctorow's best-selling novel is simplified to what had only been one story out of many, eliminating much of the charm of the book. The character of Coalhouse Walker (Howard E. Rollins Jr.), who is the focus of much of the film's action is well-played. The rest of the cast is so-so.

"Superman II" — Much more fun than its predecessor. This film doesn't take itself seriously in the least, which is exactly the attitude that should be taken when you bring a comic book to the screen. Christopher Reeve plays the Man of Steel with wit and self-mockery.

Movie Nostalgia

By Marie Iandiorio

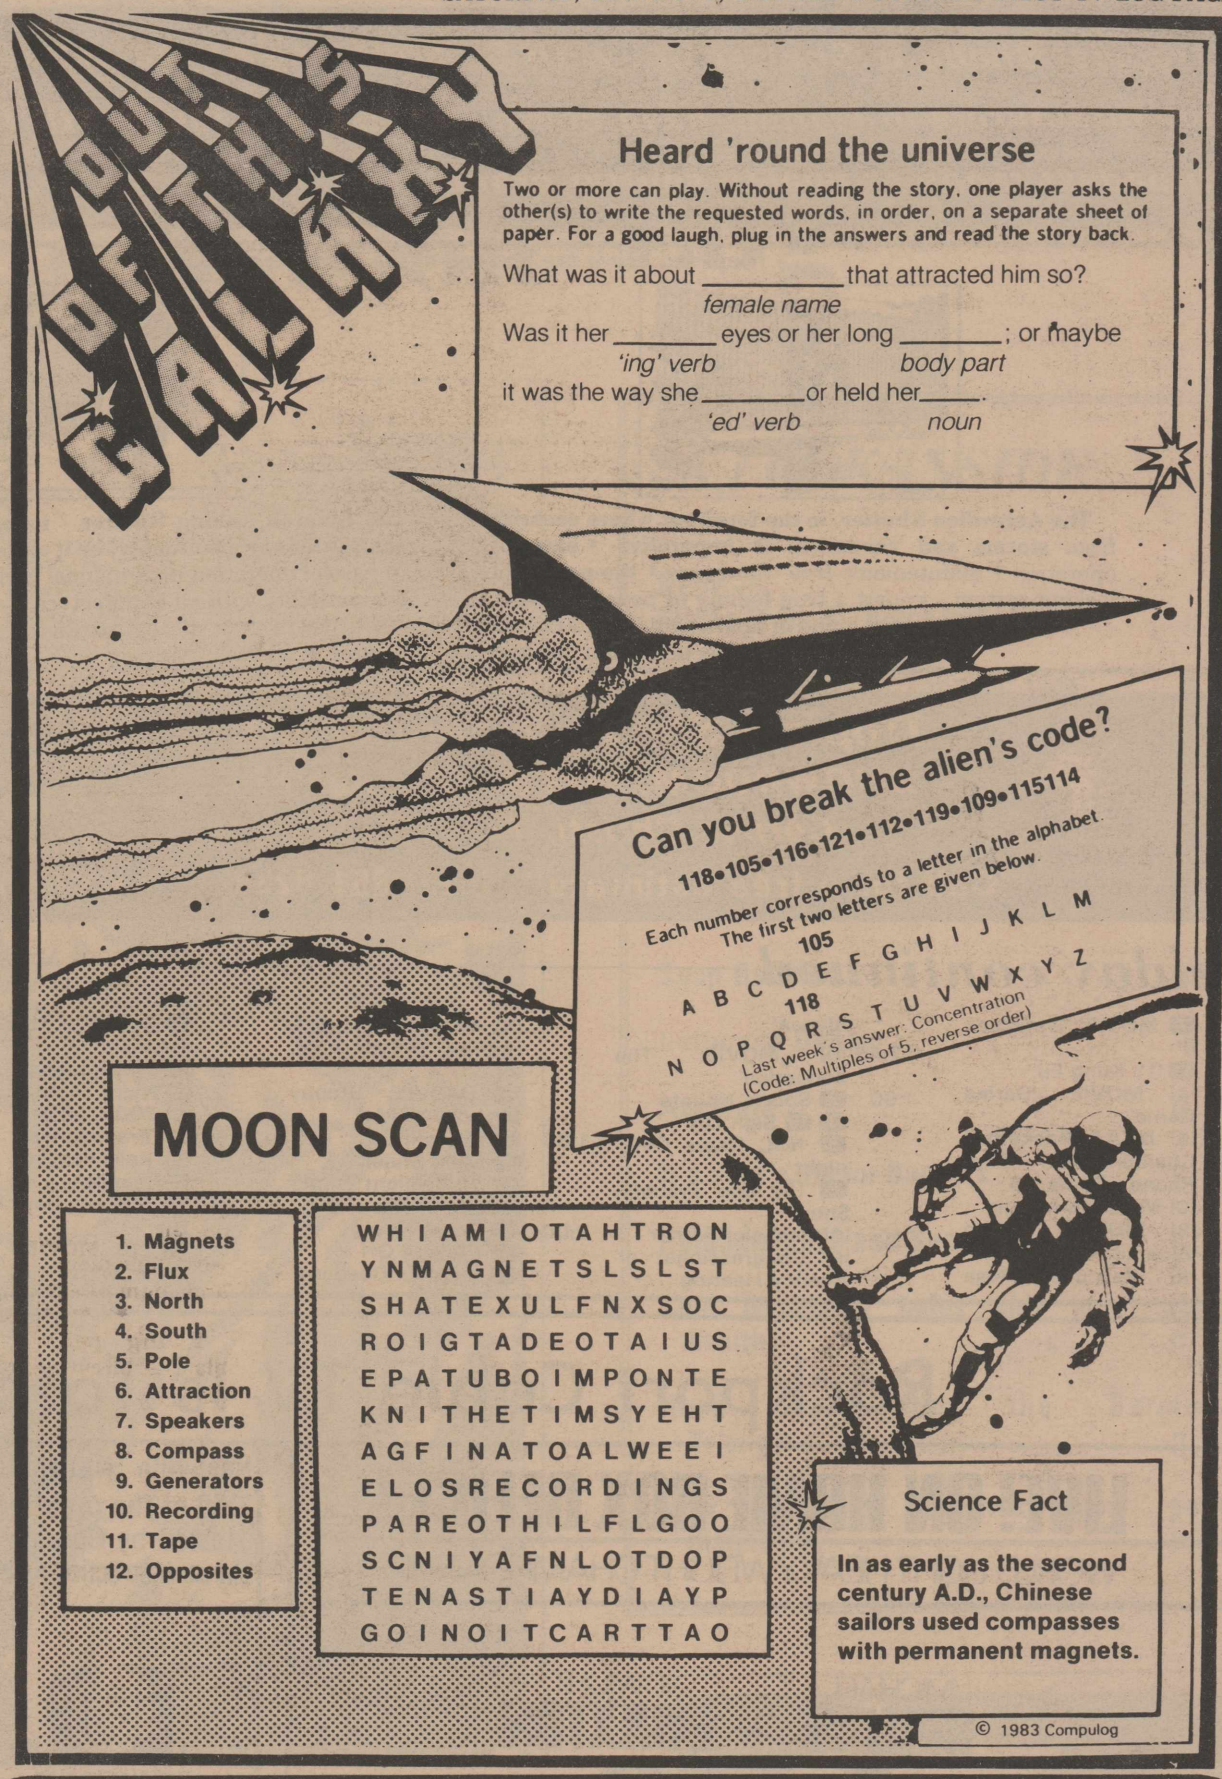

The king of rock 'n' roll, Elvis Presley, made many films in his career. By and large the films were flimsy and corny, but they served as a fine basis for Presley's songs and production numbers.

One of the finest films was made in 1957 by MGM. In it Presley starred as a hotheaded Southerner who was serving time for manslaughter. While in jail he was taught by cellmates to play guitar and sing the blues. When he was released, he attained fame and fortune and a classic swelled head.

The film itself is famous for featuring the definitive Presley production number, the dance version of the title song. To this day it remains one of the top rock 'n' roll classics of all time.

Question: Can you name this film?

Answer: "Jailhouse Rock"

MEDIA MONITOR ..... By Steve K. Waltz

New medical dramas get good diagnosis

Considering that NBC's "St. Elsewhere," despite its good reviews, is doing poorly in the ratings and that "M*A*S*H" is now off the air, one might wonder what kind of future medical dramas have on the tube.

By the looks of shows in development at the three major networks, medical series do have a strong tele-pulse.

CBS, buoyed by the mild success of "Trapper John MD" and looking for a product to replace "M*A*S*H," has commissioned "Houston MC" from MGM. The pilot, which will be shot on location at NASA in Houston, concerns the world of space-age medicine and its applications to large and small medical centers.

ABC has two development projects that have been given the series go-ahead — "Ryan's 4" and "Trauma Center."

"Ryan's 4," which will have a spring debut, is from Henry Winkler's production company and will star Tom Skerritt and Lisa Eilbacher ("Winds of War"). It's a contemporary medical drama in the "St. Elsewhere" mold.

"Trauma Center," which may air in the late spring, is from 20th Century-Fox. The studio has constructed a functional, advanced mini-emergency room complete with all the state-of-the-art gizmos. Lou Ferrigno heads the cast of medical personnel who must try and save the lives of people who need immediate treatment or else face death. Sounds like an updated "Emergency."

There's also been talk of making "Shocktrauma," a TV-movie that starred William Conrad on an ad-hoc network last year, as a series as well. But that may take awhile.

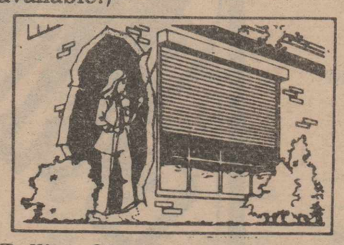

Moreover, Great Britain will give us a black medical comedy called "Britannia Hospital," starring an all-star English cast. It will feature cloning dramedies and Frankenstein-like experiments by members of the lunatic staff.
