

Memorial Day--'The Price of Freedom'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Paying tribute to America's war dead on Memorial Day, President Ford said today that "as long as there are lawbreakers in the world, we must have the strength and the resolve to stand up for what is right."

"It is the price we have always paid for being free," he said in remarks prepared for ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery where he planned to place a traditional wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

"It is the price we must be willing to pay in the future."

Earlier, Ford scheduled a meeting with his Economic Policy Board, headed by Treasury Secretary William Simon, to discuss U.S. international economic policy in preparation for the President's trip to Europe Wednesday. He planned to meet later with Attorney General Edward Levi to review Justice Department matters.

The Arlington service was his only scheduled public appearance of the day.

In an apparent reference to Americans who died in the Mayaguez incident, Ford said:

"So today, we pay tribute not only to a wartime dead, but to those who made the same sacrifice in keeping the peace. They have proven that the quality of heroism—of love of country and willingness to serve in time of troubles—beats just as strong in American hearts today as ever."

He asked for prayer for the safety of those still missing in action, and the solace of those who wait as well as those who mourn.

The world should know that the United States will not falter in its determination to achieve an adequate accounting of our MIA's (Missing In Action).

Although we live in a rapidly changing world, some things remain the same, he said. One is the need to maintain our military strength. For as long as there are lawbreakers in the world, we must have the strength and the resolve to stand up for what is right.

Ford said that "peace, too, can have its heroes. In our everyday lives the example we set in the kind of country we build, and the national character we sustain, we can erect the greatest monument of all to those we honor today."

They will not have died in vain—and their loved ones will not have suffered in vain if we vow to live our lives in the cause of honor, freedom and justice which they so gallantly served.

Legislature May Adjourn Late

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Legislature, due to adjourn June 2, may have to extend its 1975 session to consider the impeachment of Duval County District Judge O.P. Carrillo.

"I don't see any way we can finish before the end of the session," Rep. Dewitt Hale D.

Corpus Christi, said during the weekend.

Hale is the chairman of the special House committee considering an impeachment resolution against Carrillo, a member of a South Texas family engaged in a political feud with the surviving members of the late George P. Duke of Duval Parr's family.

The legislator who filed the impeachment resolution, Rep. Terry Canles, D-Premont, is aligned with the Carrillo faction and was a pallbearer at the funeral earlier this year of George Parr.

Arthur Mitchell, Carrillo's attorney, said he may call as many as 50 witnesses in his client's defense.

We might conceivably be able to finish taking testimony next week, but in view of the large number of subpoenas Mr. Mitchell has requested, we might not be able to finish it," Hale said.

Once all the witnesses have finished testifying, the 11-member committee will prepare articles of impeachment on all the charges brought against Carrillo. The committee will then vote on each individual article. If one or more of the articles are approved, they will be sent to the House which must come back into session to decide if Carrillo will be impeached. And, if the House votes to impeach, the Senate will have to come back into session to conduct Carrillo's trial.

The committee has voted to subpoena elusive rancher bank er Clinton Manges to testify, but Hale said he has not learned if Manges has been served with the order. Manges has aligned himself with the Carrillo faction in the family's feud with the Parrs.

The committee was to resume its hearings Tuesday night and Manges was scheduled to testify at that time. But Hale said he did not know if Manges could receive his subpoena in time to testify Tuesday.

Canales claims Carrillo and Manges conspired to remove elected county and school board officials from their offices in Duval County and replace them with allies of the Carrillo family.

Carrillo, who split with Parr's Old Party in March to form his own political machine, has been indicted by a federal grand jury for income tax evasion.

Al's Surplus Burglarized

Al's Surplus at 1900 W. Alcock was burglarized Saturday and two guns valued at $300 were taken.

Pampa Police Department officers are investigating. The missing guns include a 12 gauge shotgun and a target rifle.

No Viet Reservations Says Top Camp Official

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (UPI) — Donald MacDonald, the top civilian official at the largest refugee camp in the United States, said Sunday he has received assurance from Washington officials there will be no long-term encampment of Vietnamese refugees in relocation centers in the United States.

In a memorandum circulated among officials at Fort Chaffee last week and in a telegram to the State Department, MacDonald had said the least desirable of the options for handling the refugees would lead to an Indian reservation-type camp for lower class, unskilled Vietnamese.

MacDonald, who favors having nongovernment volunteer agencies find American sponsors for the refugees, said in the memorandum a risk path a path possibly to an Indian reservation of indefinite term. We haven't done well with real or simulated Indian reservations in the past.

The 56-year-old retired State Department official, who was called back to active government service to run the Ft. Chaffee refugee camp, said, "I have received assurances real firm that we will follow the traditional path using the volunteer agencies and that no long-term camps are anticipated."

Eleanor Green, public affairs officer for the State Department Refugee Task Force, denied any consideration was being given to establishing long-term encampment programs for the refugees. He denied officially denied, she said.

However, another Task Force official who toured Ft. Chaffee last week said he thought a decision had been made to send the hard-to-place refugees and those who cannot be admitted because of immigration and naturalization laws to the new camp at Indiantown Gap, Pa.

Leonard Chapman, director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said persons who did not pass security checks because they were convicted felons, drug addicts, subversives or prostitutes would not be allowed to relocate in this country.

Memorial Day Service

Nita Parsley, a member of the Pride of Pampa High School Band, played taps at 7 a.m. today as part of Memorial Day services at Fairview Cemetery. Included in the program, sponsored by many local veterans groups and civic organizations was a message from the Rev. Rick Wadley, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Letors, and honoring the gold star mothers present at the program.

Father, Son Drown In Lake Meredith

Terry Monroe, 28, and his 8-year-old son, Timothy, of Kismet, Kan., drowned early Sunday after the small boat they were fishing from capsized in the Bugbee Canyon area of Lake Meredith.

They were the first drowning victims of the year, bringing the total number of drowning victims to 29 since the lake opened in 1962.

R.S. Christian, Hutchinson County Justice of the Peace, pronounced the father and son dead at 1 p.m. at the lake.

According to a spokesman from the National Park Service (NPS), the bodies were found tangled in fishing line in about 20 feet of water under the boat.

Alice Allen, information director for the NPS at Lake Meredith, said that the man and son appeared to have been working with a trotline when the boat capsized.

Although investigators did not attribute the accident to rough waters, high winds reportedly had struck the area about 1:30 a.m.

Rangers discovered four capsized boats following the high winds, one of them the Monroe boat. Owners and passengers in the other three boats all were located and reported safe.

According to a report from an NPS ranger, Timothy Monroe was wearing a life preserver but it was not fastened correctly and was floating above his head.

Mrs. Monroe and three daughters had left the lake Saturday night with an Amarillo family, returning about noon

Bynum Fighting To Get Lobbying Under Control

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas legislators are fed up with state employees and appointed officials who spend more time lobbying than tending to state business, says Rep. Ben Bynum, D-Amarillo.

Bynum is the latest in a growing list of legislators involved in feuds with various state agencies. They say the agency heads failed to carry out legislative instructions, or used their positions to try to influence the outcome of pending legislation.

The time has come, Bynum says, to put an end to political involvement by persons who are on the state payroll.

He introduced an amendment to a lobby control bill to require anyone on state payrolls to register as a lobbyist if they tried, outside normal commit tee hearings, to influence the outcome of legislation.

This would not prohibit state employees from testifying for or against legislation in a public forum, but if they come around here in the dark of night, visiting members' offices and calling us off the floor, they ought to register as lobbyists," he said.

His amendment was rejected by the House.

Bynum's anger was aimed at Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie, who sharply criticized legislation backed by Bynum.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Amarillo, was more successful in curtailing the power of another state agency. Wyatt contended the Parks and Wildlife Department ignored a 1971 law calling for construction of a state park in Calhoun County.

Outstanding Senior Citizens

"Ladies and gentlemen Our Queen, Our King," announced Judge Don Cain Sunday afternoon prior to placing a crown on Mrs. Katie Vincent, who also received a kiss, and Joe Shelton, both Gray County pioneers. The event took place in the M.K. Brown auditorium.

Senior Couple Crowned

Each of Gray County's senior citizens is a king or queen in the eyes of this community, said Judge Don Cain Sunday afternoon before crowning Joe Shelton, 87, and Katie Vincent, 96 as 1975 outstanding senior citizens.

The coronation took place in the M.K. Brown Auditorium before a near capacity crowd.

"I've thought about doing a lot of things, but never about being a king," said Shelton. "This is the best country in the world—but this king business—I don't know what I'm supposed to do."

In appreciation of the honor, Mrs. Vincent, smiled and responded with, "I can't think I deserve it—but I'll accept it."

Shelton's parents were the first white couple to be married in Gray County. The "king" was reared on a Gray County farm after his parents homesteaded land here.

He has worked at farming including the thrashing rigs, ranching and for the railroad. For over 30 years he was head of the Pampa Independent School District buses.

"Now, at the age of 87, he works part time for Frasher Insurance Agency," Cain said.

A veteran of World War I, and a member of the Masonic Lodge, he is also active in the First United Methodist Church.

He helped dig the basement for the present building and served on the board of stewards for several years, and is an active member of the Men's Fellowship Class.

His service to the citizens of this county is never ending. He holds membership in the Gray County Historical Society and the Senior Citizens. He has assisted the American Legion with poppy sales and in placing flags on veterans graves for Memorial Day.

And he is a constant visitor at the hospitals and to the elderly who are lonely. Cain added in making the announcement.

The judge revealed the secret that Mrs. Vincent was reared on a plantation, which her family always referred to as a farm in Tennessee.

Four days earlier Mrs. Vincent had instructed a Pampa Daily News reporter not to call it a plantation.

"It was just a farm," she said. The daughter of the late Capt. and Mrs. J.T. Crawford, Mrs. Vincent came to Texas as an infant.

She spent her girlhood in Stevens County and was married to the late Wiley P. Vincent. The couple moved with their two small boys to the Pampa area in 1902.

The judge noted that the Vincents lived in Pioneer Cottage, now a State Medallion home or more often referred to here as the Vincent Place.

The Vincents also lived for a short time on a farm northeast of Pampa, not too far from where the Pampa Country Club now stands.

Their house was always filled with visiting friends and relatives as the Vincents loved people and Katie was one of the best cooks in the country, Cain said.

And we are told that Mrs. Vincent and her family moved to the Big White House on Atchison Street around 1915 where the original Yellow Rose of Texas rose bush is still growing.

Hers is such a full life and she still loves to visit friends and write. She keeps up with the news and enjoys watching the Dallas Cowboys on television, the judge said before placing the crown on the new queen.

Our Heritage and Horizons was discussed by Mrs. Paul Bowers who gave tribute to senior citizens as a part of the history of an early era.

"We are proud of you," she said. Rex McAnelly, master of ceremonies, looked over the crowd and announced, "You don't look like senior citizens."

The Rev. John Hansard of the Hobart Street Baptist Church, in closing, gave a rendition of Patrick Henry's, "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death."

Valuable Artifacts Shipped from Saigon

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — A cargo of vases, statues and other valuable artifacts that arrived here aboard a Vietnamese freighter has been taken into custody for safekeeping, Guam authorities said Saturday.

Gov. Ricardo J. Bordabene decided to take custody of the Tan Nam Viet cargo for safekeeping after fears of looting the vessel were sparked by rumors of valuables on board, a spokesman said.

Although Coast Guard and Guam government officials originally estimated the cargo of vases, statues, scrolls, books and manuscripts could be worth $150 million, Guam officials said a later check of more of the 54 boxes aboard the ship led them to believe the value was much less.

Generally the cargo looked like someone's household effects, said one official who saw the contents of eight of the boxes.

The Tan Nam Viet arrived here last Thursday with 600 South Vietnamese refugees aboard. She docked at a Navy pier where the refugees disembarked as well as some members of the ship's crew.

Weather

The weather forecast calls for partly cloudy skies today through Tuesday with a 20 percent chance of rain both days. The highs both days will be in the 80s, and the low tonight will be in the 50s.

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend, what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Whose Security?

The first of those fanfare tax rebate checks — some amounting to $200 — have been showing up in citizens' mailboxes. Ostensibly the receipt of cash will pump new enthusiasm into the sluggish economy.

The attendant propaganda is that rebate recipients should utilize the extra dollars to make buying decisions, thereby increasing market activity — which, if incontestable, is paradoxical. Here's why.

Along with the recession, as everybody knows, Americans are experiencing the strange mating with inflation. Inflation is supposed to discourage the spendthrifts and laud frugality.

When inflation was regarded as Public Enemy Number One in Washington, the politicians refrained from calling for a tax rebate. When concern shifted to recession they all climbed aboard the rebate bandwagon.

The postman's "gift" — which really amounts to a tiny return of property to the rightful owners — represents the change of economic policy priorities along the Potomac. Everybody is expected to do something like buy a new dress to revive the garment industry, or a lobster dinner to provide new incentive for the fishermen.

A lot of people, however, are unlikely to go along with the expectations. Instead of joining the "national purpose" they will seek it away, preferring to be personally frugal before surrendering to such exalted concepts as national salvation.

In all, the rebate is a negligible perhaps even Pyrrhic victory for tax payers. It is likely to get the economy moving very little if at all when real remedies would necessitate removing the government regulations that slowed the economy in the first place.

Still, there is one generalization that needs to be made. We can accept that few taxes means a healthier economy and more market activity. Why then do they ever entertain thoughts about imposing taxes in the first place?

Inflation's Impact

The bizarre thinking of those who would regulate the nation's economy never ceases to astonish. Of course it is predictable, but it is astonishing nonetheless.

At the Securities and Exchange Commission, the federal government's stock to police the wild and woolly market, they're vexed by inflation — as who isn't? So vexed are they that their chief accountant, John C. Burton says the SEC may soon require companies to report to the bureaucrats just how inflation is affecting them. Generously, Burton said companies might be permitted to make the mandatory disclosures in unadorned footnotes to their financial reports. And nobody has estimated how much this activity will cost.

But cost it surely will in additional paperwork, labor and material in additional bureaucratic processing. All of which will show up in increased prices for consumers to pay.

And just how is inflation affecting you?

Editor: The disturbing issue of gun control is cropping up again in a recent bill introduced by Sen. Edward Kennedy and co-sponsored by Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, calling for federal licensing of handgun owners and registration of their weapons. Sen. Kennedy describes this bill (Senate Bill S 1477) as "moderate," saying it should be supported by the National Rifle Association before there is a move for more stringent firearms restrictions. We should let our legislators know that we want NO compromise and NO gun control legislation!

Also, get this: There is an employee in the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, by the name of Mark Bornsky, who is a registered lobbyist for the National Council to Control Handguns, located at 4114 Davis Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. How about that as a clear demonstration of conflict of interest? We taxpayers are paying his exorbitant salary, yet he is betraying the American people by lobbying for gun control.

We must celebrate America's 200th birthday by having a new birth of freedom in our country. By our votes, we can and must remove all those pro-communist politicians who have betrayed the American people. Keeping in touch with our Congressmen and letting them know how we feel about current trends is our best defense. Let's make use of this privilege.

A Way With Words

Add to the disappointments of the Russians as ever to insult their old allies of World War II. The 30th anniversary of the German surrender in 1945 has generated fresh gusts of falsehood from Soviet propagandists who cannot bring themselves to acknowledge what really happened in the conflict they call the "Great Patriotic War."

According to speeches made in the Soviet Union recently, it was the Russians who beat the Germans almost single-handedly and then scared the Japanese into surrender. The Americans, British and French provided some limited help on "secondary fronts" in the Pacific, North Africa and Western Europe. The Victory over Fascism would never have been possible, they declare, were it not for the "Socialist ideology" which inspired Russian troops.

The Nazi Soviet pact which helped Adolf Hitler launch his war in Europe is brushed aside. Nothing is said of Joseph Stalin's urgent pleading with the Western allies to open a Western front that would take the pressure off his armies that had retreated deep into Russia. Facts can be unnerve for a Soviet historian.

Chairman Leonid Brezhnev got in a plug for détente in his anniversary speech, saying the World War II alliance proved that cooperation is possible between his country and the West. On the other hand, if the Russians are unwilling to admit how that cooperation helped save their skins 30 years ago, it is no wonder the West is suspicious about cooperating with them again.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE

Arithmetic of Welfarism

By WILLIAM RUSHER

The virtual bankruptcy of New York City is merely the nearest home of a series of similar crises, all of which suggest that the good old days of constantly expanding welfare legislation in democratic societies have about run their course.

The first welfare state to vote itself right over the brink into financial collapse was Uruguay, which up until 1973 was widely regarded as a model of what democratic socialism could do for mankind. In 1972, however, President Bordaberry found it necessary to permit a 94 percent rise in the cost of living to finance his country's old-age, child-care and other welfare programs. In 1973 he was forced to abolish congress and agree to military control of his administration, but, in the words

Apparently, however, the Western world's infatuation with welfarism wasn't going to be discouraged by any example as piddling as Uruguay; so next at bat was Great Britain. There, Labor and Tory governments have striven for thirty years to outdo each other in promises of what they would do for the voters — "free" medical care being only the tip of the iceberg. Today, as a result, Prime Minister Wilson is presiding over an inflation rate of 30 per cent per year — the highest in Western Europe, though, to be sure, not quite in the same league as Uruguay's.

Now, it appears, New York City is $600 million short of covering its budgeted expenses, and no bank will buy the city's bonds because they can figure out how they will be redeemed. Unlike Uruguay and Britain, New York City can't print its own money, so inflation is out as a stopgap. Mayor Beame is making the ritual trips to Albany and Washington, trying to saddle the state and federal governments with at least a part of the blame of the coming collapse, but nobody has explained convincingly why the taxpayers of Nebraska, Texas and California should chip in to finance (just for example) the City University of New York, the only tuition-free institution of its kind in the country, and one to which any New York high school graduate is guaranteed admission utterly regardless of his academic record.

The public's memory being notoriously short, Beame knows very well that not one New Yorker in 500 will bother to fix a large share of the responsibility for the current municipal mess on John Lindsay, the golden-haired faker who pranced through City Hall some years ago en route (he thought) to the White House. It is the contracts Lindsay recklessly signed with unions of municipal employees, guaranteeing peace in his time and financial ruin thereafter, that constitutes so large a part of the nether millstone of New York's current squeeze. Yet Lindsay is actually warming up, these days, to try for the Senate in 1976, on the ground that he can bring to running the federal government some of the dash and flair he displayed as mayor.

At the end of New York's road lie some very ugly consequences indeed — not only bankruptcy but street riots, inadequate police protection, and unattended fires — so ultimately the Republican politicians in Albany and Washington will give Beame whatever it takes to buy the time till their own terms run out, however little he and his profligate city deserve it. But who is going to bail out Uncle Sam, when the inexorable arithmetic of income and outgo begins to zero in on him?

Like Uruguay and Britain, the United States can postpone the day of reckoning to some extent by simply expanding the money supply — and like them, though not to the same degree, it has, of course, done so. Beyond that, the Ford administration and Congress are simply betting on an economic upswing that will increase tax revenues and thereby enable them to pay at least some of the bills. If that upswing doesn't materialize, or isn't big enough to save the day, America will be doled with enough stimulants to make it feel good through Election Day 1976 — and then, in 1977, we will all find out that two and two still make four.

It's Time To Call Halt To American Giveaways

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Disclosure of the CIA project to lift a Soviet submarine from the ocean floor in the Pacific made clear the extraordinary ocean engineering capabilities of the United States. These capabilities should add to the wealth of the American people, providing U.S. diplomatic representatives don't bow to the "Share the wealth" demands of dependent nations.

Unfortunately, the U.S. State Dept. has accepted the idea that the wealth on and under the ocean floor is the "Common heritage of mankind." It is nothing of the sort, of course. Like wealth on land, mineral wealth on the sea bottom belongs to the energetic and technologically advanced nations.

It is cheering to note that prominent scholars are beginning to criticize the "common heritage of mankind" notion. For instance, Dr. David B. Johnson of Louisiana State University, a member of the U.S. delegation to the 1974 Law of the Sea conference in Venezuela, recently warned that the "common heritage of mankind" approach could be extremely costly for the U.S.

This warning was sounded by Dr. Johnson and Dr. Dennis E. Logue of Dartmouth College in a 74-page analysis of "U.S. Economic Interests in Law of the Sea Issues" which they co-authored for a recent conference sponsored by the U.S. Treasury Department and the American Enterprise Institute.

The "common heritage of mankind" concept of ocean resources control is favored by Third World Nations, whose delegates hold a majority of the votes and most of the key committee positions at Law of the Sea in an interview at LSU. An off-shoot of the United Nations, the Law of the Sea conference involves nearly 150 member-nations. The 1975 negotiations began this spring in Geneva, Switzerland.

Dr. Johnson expressed concern that "excessive reliance on this interpretation may more realistically reflect the common heritage of politicians — which is not identical to that of mankind — because centralization of production and distribution of revenues provides more political power than diffusion of benefits directly to the world's consumers."

Proposed international agreements on Law of the Sea lean heavily on revenue sharing and on international ownership and control of resources. Such control could be very costly to the developed nations, Dr. Johnson declared, because the less developed countries might want to restrict ocean resources production in order to work in conjunction with existing or potential land-based castles.

The establishment of restrictive international seabed regulatory authority by Law of the Sea negotiators would be economically undesirable not only for the U.S. but for the world as well, Dr. Johnson said, the restrictive policies now employed by less developed countries in regard to oil were extended to ocean resources, those same countries, as well as many developing countries would eventually have to pay much higher prices for the goods produced and sold to them by developed nations, he pointed out.

"From the viewpoint of U.S. welfare, we desire, at a minimum, more analytical sophistication, empirical investigation and negotiating astuteness than was manifested in the Russian Wheat Deal of 1973," Dr. Johnson said.

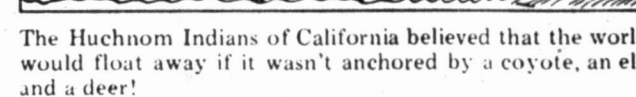

It is time that U.S. negotiators start thinking about the American heritage — the needs and opportunities of our people — and dwell less on the demands and political aspirations of the Third World regimes which want wealth transferred from the advanced states to the underdeveloped countries. For 30 years, America has been sharing the wealth with a variety of nations. It is time to call a halt to giveaways.

Little Terror

The grasshopper mouse may look gentle but he is an aggressive little fighter who has made his rodent cousins a staple part of his diet.

Bentsen At Work On Image

By RANDY FITZGERALD
Pampa News

Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — When Lloyd Bentsen of Texas was elected to the U.S. Senate five years ago, then-President Nixon thought of him as a conservative — an insurance millionaire who was nothing more than a closet Republican. Nixon even called Bentsen to the White House for "southern strategy" consultations.

But within the past two weeks Bentsen has pulled a series of calculated moves designed to win him plaudits from liberal critics and to exact swift plastic surgery on his public image, freeing him of any lingering Cold War warrior or Nixonite association problems.

For instance:
—He introduced legislation to prevent a President from appointing anyone from his election campaign as Attorney General, an obvious slap at Nixon's appointment of his campaign manager John Mitchell to that post. Bentsen says this bill would "take the department out of politics."

—He submitted a measure to prohibit every Secretary of State after Henry Kissinger from serving as both head of the National Security Council and Secretary of State as Kissinger presently does. Bentsen has been critical of Kissinger.

—And, most significantly, in a speech last week in New York, Bentsen endorsed diplomatic relations with Fidel Castro and his communist government in Cuba.

"They need our trade, our scientific know-how, our managerial expertise and our investments," said Bentsen of Cuba.

"We need their good will, their markets for our exports, and the raw materials that our industrial economy demands, including oil," Bentsen said.

Bentsen also urged that the

Grasshopper Mouse Has Cousin For Dinner

Rodents far outnumber all other mammals combined. For this reason they are one of the chief food sources for meat-eating animals. Their abundance is so great that one of their own kind, the grasshopper mouse, has made his rodent cousins a staple food.

I once witnessed a grasshopper mouse attack another rodent and came away with a sense of awe at the aggressiveness of this mammal. The victim was a common house mouse and could offer no real defense. The fight was over within minutes, the loser being hastily gobbled up by Onychomys torridus, the scientific name of this stubby-tailed creature.

Although insects and small mammals seem to be preferred as food, seeds will also be eaten if nothing else is available. Moist food is a must for the grasshopper mouse as he will die within a few days if food with a high moisture content is unavailable. Because of his need for moisture it seems odd that the southwestern deserts are the home of this rodent. But the more humid areas of our nation are completely devoid of this mammal.

Identification of the southern grasshopper mouse is not too difficult if one knows the characteristics to look for. The short, stubby tail is the most conspicuous feature. It almost appears that someone or something has lobbed off several inches of it. The belly is white and dorsal surface brown. The ears are large and mouse-like.

Although the grasshopper mouse is an uncommon animal, it is prolific, the female giving birth to several litters each year numbering from three to six young. The male does not involve himself in nest building or the rearing of the offspring.

These mice are nomadic, roaming freely throughout their range, never establishing a territory along American nature trails.

Comparing Costs Can Cut Funeral Expense

Making funeral arrangements for a loved one is a difficult and somber task, but it should be less difficult if you think about it ahead of time. This is a subject that should be considered also because of the large expense involved and in light of the findings of a recent study by the Federal Trade Commission.

The FTC survey in Washington DC pointed to several important points:

A variety of choices are available to a consumer when making funeral arrangements. Price information is available, but must be sought aggressively by the consumer.

One should also keep in mind that because of grief, people are very susceptible to needless added expense. So it's important to make funeral arrangements that are fitting, but not more than can be afforded.

The Better Business Bureau suggests that these matters be considered, if not by the person most directly involved with the deceased, by someone close. The best solution may be for someone who is a close friend or relative to make the preliminary arrangements. Then the one who is grieving can approve the arrangements before they are completed. This way the best arrangements can be made in keeping with one's ability to pay.

There are several matters that should be considered by whomever makes the arrangements.

"Is the funeral home you are considering reliable? Do you know anyone who has dealt with the home?"

What is the least expensive arrangement available? What is the most expensive? What constitutes the difference in services or caskets?

If one price including all arrangements is offered, find out exactly what is included. Get specific information about services or caskets that may result in extra cost, such as transportation of newspapers.

Ask the funeral home to show you funeral services before they are completed, before disclosing insurance or pension or government death benefits due the family of the deceased. Don't let death benefits influence the funeral director's price.

Local laws vary. Find out if a casket is mandatory. If not, a simple cardboard box is permitted. Local laws require burial in which to place the casket. This may be a requirement of some cemeteries, but not the jurisdiction.

Guerrillas Demand $1 Million Ransom

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (UPI) — U.S. ambassador W. Beverly Carter said today the lives of two Americans and a Dutch woman held captive by suspected Marxist guerrillas for eight days were still in jeopardy.

"We're in a delicate situation and we are convinced the three remaining hostages are in jeopardy," the ambassador told newsmen after receiving a message from the kidnappers.

The ambassador said reports that guerrillas had demanded a ransom were "totally inaccurate." Diplomatic sources in East Africa earlier said the kidnappers wanted $1 million for the release of their hostages.

The kidnappers Sunday released a fourth captive, Miss Barbara Smuts of Ann Arbor, Mich., who carried a total of six letters from the guerrillas — three addressed to President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, one to ambassador Carter, one to the U.S. embassy and one to the Dutch embassy.

She also carried letters from the three captives to their parents.

After reading his letter, Carter said the guerrillas made it clear that if "anything went awry (in negotiations) the lives of the three remaining captives" were in danger.

The ambassador said the kidnappers, suspected Marxist rebels from neighboring Zaire, had made no direct demands on the United States but he was aware of "demands on Tanzania." He did not elaborate.

He said the captives had been "given almost solicited care" and could communicate with each other. He said they had not been tied, bound or blindfolded during their captivity.

The ambassador planned a meeting later today with President Nyerere and Miss Smuts to discuss, among other things, whether the kidnappers full demands be made public. He said the President "was extremely concerned about the situation."

Miss Smuts rested today at the ambassador's residence. He said the parents of the remaining captives were expected to arrive in Dar Es Salaam in the next two days while Tanzania — in close cooperation with the United States — conducted all negotiations to secure their release.

Forty guerrillas, armed with automatic weapons and dressed in uniforms, kidnapped the four hostages last Monday from the remote Gombe wildlife reserve on the Tanzanian shore of Lake Tanganyika.

"This is the best news I have ever received in my life," Dr. Goodall said after Miss Smuts was freed.

Mansfield Wants Policy Aimed at Stability

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield says the United States would have to defend South Korea in the event of an invasion by the North, but otherwise should get off the Asian mainland.

Mansfield said, however, the U.S. should reject any temptation to retreat into isolationism in the post-Vietnam era.

Future policy, according to the Montana Democrat, should be aimed at assuring world stability through the mutual efforts of nations — including Communist nations — rather than by American military power.

Mansfield outlined his thoughts on the future of U.S.

foreign policy in an address prepared for the Georgetown University Law School commencement Sunday night and a Public Service Television interview to be aired Monday night.

America's first line of defense in Asia, he said in the PBS interview, should not be the mainland but "the island chain off the Asia mainland" — presumably Japan.

He said the United States would have to defend Korea, however, because of treaty commitments and its troops stationed there.

Mansfield said he hopes the U.S. will make arrangements to reduce or remove the 40,000 American troops in South Korea over a period of time "so that we would not be bound through the use of approximately two divisions stationed in Korea to the future of that country."

At Georgetown, Mansfield emphasized he does not endorse a post-Vietnam isolationist policy. He said "it is possible to withdraw from Indochina without seceding from the world."

He said it would be "a step backward if we were to ever from what became an excessive, one might say, an obsessive international involvement to an extreme of disengagement."

That danger has been intensified, it seems to me, not only in the post Indochina atmosphere of disillusionment, but because we are in the midst of a serious economic situation at home.

Parents Say Babylift Took Not Orphans

DENVER (UPI) — Friends of Children of Vietnam, responsible for transporting 400 orphans out of Vietnam to new homes in the United States during Operation Babylift, has been charged with taking children out of the country who were not orphans, overcharging and not caring properly for the children.

Cheryl Markson, executive director of FCVN who will meet with Gov. Richard Lamm and state officials Tuesday to discuss the problem, said the charges are "ridiculous."

Fire Rages Through Paint Plant

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — A fire raged for two hours through a large paint plant today, touching off numerous explosion and forcing the evacuation of some 3,000 persons. At one point officials feared the blaze might ignite a propane tank.

Residents of a 15-square block area near the Rust-oleum plant who were ordered out because of the blaze began returning to their home before the evacuation could be completed.

Voice of America News Now Reflects US Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government officials say the tax-supported Voice of America has abandoned its tradition of uncensored reporting and now manages the news to reflect U.S. policy.

"I would hope the people who work for VOA understand that they work for the government of the United States of America," Deputy Director Eugene Kopp of the U.S. Information Agency told a House Government Operations subcommittee last week.

The hearing confirmed that the VOA — prompted sometimes by the U.S. embassy in Saigon — censored or suppressed from its overseas newscasts much news about the fall of allied Southeast Asian governments.

Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., who chairs the subcommittee, questioned whether the VOA, in its role as "the official policy announcer, can at the same time be accurate, comprehensive and reliable."

The credibility of this government and its leaders depends on the credibility of our communications."

But Kopp said VOA staffers must be "policy sensitive" in their work.

"I think we have to understand," he said, "that the VOA is part of a government information service, and that is to be distinguished from a private information service."

The VOA, he said, "is perceived overseas as the official voice of the U.S. government."

Miss Williams Wins Contest With Essay

Linda Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, Groom, won first in the recent essay contest sponsored by Pampa Lodge No. 480 Knights of Pythas.

A student at Panhandle High School, she was presented a $25 saving bond by B.B. Altman Jr., secretary of Pampa Lodge, at a awards program at Panhandle High School auditorium. Her essay will be entered in the state contest at Houston June 8 to 11. Ronnie Williams and Miss Marilyn Ann Biggers, both students at White Deer High School, placed second and third in the contest.

The judges were Mrs. Betty Truly, 2122 N. Banks; John English, high school counselor; Mrs. Rex McAnnelly, 2000 Charles; and Robert Ellison, 608 Plains.

C.M. "Peg" Whittle, a past chancellor commander of Pampa Lodge No. 480, accompanied Altman to Panhandle for the program.

Report from America Outdoors for the Elderly

WARNER, N.H. (UPI) — Virginia Taylor thinks the world pays too much attention to youth and leaves the elderly to decay in front of nursing home television sets.

"There are many funds for all different youth movements. But there aren't enough places for the elderly to go," she said.

So she and Martha Nobel, a geriatrics specialist and descendant of Alfred Bernhard Nobel, founder of the Nobel prizes, formed a small nonprofit corporation to turn her little tree farm along the Warner River into an outdoor recreation area for the elderly of New England.

Dozens of old people showed up for the dedication and opening picnic April 30. They wandered among the trees, looked at the stream—still too chilly to wade in—and listened to the birds.

Old people who hadn't said two words to each other talked about the trip nonstop for days before and afterward, Miss Taylor said.

"Everybody talks about getting kids out of the city to see what a cow looks like. Some old people have never seen a cow either," said Dorothy Richmond, a board member of the Waterloo Corporation of Environmental and Humanistic Studies, the group's formal title.

Some of Miss Taylor's neighbors were unenthusiastic. Their complaints led town officials to call a public hearing by the zoning board May 22 to consider what permits Miss Taylor needs and may or may not be granted, plus allied worries about the strain on town facilities which could be imposed by the elderly guests.

"The town is concerned about the cost of cops to search for people who wander away and get lost, and people tumbling into the river and having to be pulled out by the fire department, and whether the toilets can handle all the people," said third selectman Charles Richmond, Dorothy's husband.

He said the state Water Supply and Pollution Control agency assured him the soil could handle the sewage.

But pending town action, no parties of elderly may visit the area.

There's nothing fancy about the facilities. There are a few dozen acres of rather sandy land, covered with grass, trees and seedlings, a little ridge, a fireplace and picnic tables on the gentle slope toward the river, and a 30 by 60 foot shelter roof built on old covered bridge pilings.

Miss Taylor, a professional photographer specializing in medical subjects, is filling in her time planting 6,000 trees. She's trying to turn the property into a tree farm and wildlife sanctuary as well.

"The more you plant trees the more pleasant it is," she said. "It's just a place where you can come down and take a walk, and wade in the river in the summer," she said.

Molded bras, originally made of polyester or nylon and spandex, now are available also in warp knit nylon fabrics to provide a silky feeling.

New bodysuits cut and shaped like dresses are made from a stretch fabric of nylon and spandex.

Katz-Gold Vows Exchanged Sunday

MRS. PAUL NICHOLAS GOLD
...nee Miss Marilyn Susan Katz

The marriage of Miss Marilyn Susan Katz and Paul Nicholas Gold was solemnized at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, May 25 in Corpus Christi.

The bride is the daughter of Herbert L. Katz, 803 N. Nelson, Pampa and the late Mrs. Katz.

Rabbi Kelman Appel, officiated for the double ring ceremony. Wedding selections were "Trumpet Voluntary" and "Time in a Bottle."

The bride was presented in marriage by her father. She was attired in a jersey candlelight gown featuring a V-neckline trimmed in tiny pearls. She wore flowers in her hair and carried a nosegay of peach roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Myron Aftergut, 2724 Aspen, Pampa, served her sister as matron of honor and bridesmaid was Mrs. Lewis Gold, San Antonio. Bridesmaids were Ms. Julie Thobae and Ms. Melissa Weiner, both of Austin. Each wore a jersey peach colored dress and carried peach roses and wore flowers in their hair.

Miss Stephanie Aftergut was flower girl.

Sammy Gold, Corpus Christi, served as best man and groomsmen were Dr. Lewis Gold, San Antonio, Harold Gold, Austin and Jack Gold, Corpus Christi.

The doubled-ring wedding cake, decorated with fresh flowers of peach and blue, was served by Mrs. Bill Moore Jr. The reception was hosted in the Petroleum Club. Mrs. Steven Dittinger poured punch.

Following the San Antonio wedding trip, the couple will reside in Dallas.

A 1975 graduate of the University of Texas at Austin, the bride is presently employed by a Dallas law firm.

The bridegroom, a 1974 honor graduate of UT, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He is presently a law student at Southern Methodist University.

FIRST BAPTIST WOMEN

The Sarah Short Mission Study Group met Wednesday, May 21, at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Ed Langford, 1926 N. Faulkner.

Mrs. Alfred Cross, chairman, was in charge of the meeting. She encouraged the group to bring unused eyeglasses to the church to aid in the Rio Grande River ministry. This is the May mission action project.

After a short discussion and a letter from Mrs. James Short, missionary to Mexico, being read, the group decided to name themselves the 'Sarah Short Mission Study Group.' Mrs. Short serves with her husband in Mexico City. She attended Pampa High School and is known by some of the group members.

Mrs. Cross informed the group that the June Royal Service study will be a luncheon and study on June 4. An activity for school age children is being planned to enable all mothers to attend. A nursery is always provided.

Miss Claudia Everly gave the "Call to Prayer" and Miss Vada Waldron voiced the prayer for missionaries having birthdays on this date.

"A Tramp for the Lord," by Dorrie TenBoom, was reviewed by Mrs. George Warren. She will continue to teach from this book when the group meets again June 18. Mrs. Carl Smith will hostess the meeting in her home at that time.

Members attending were Mrs. Hugh Peebles, Ray Miller, A. N. King, Onis Price, Powell, Warren, Smith, Cross, and Langford and Misses Claudia Everly and Vada Waldron.

Mrs. Palmer Will Head El Progreso

An "Apple Tree" motif was used to install officers of El Progreso Club at a recent covered dish luncheon. Mrs. Glen Dawkins hosted the annual affair.

Comparing each officer and each member to certain parts of the tree, incoming officers installed are Mrs. Ralph Palmer, president; Mrs. Bruce Riehart, vice president; Mrs. Hugh Peebles, secretary; Mrs. Max Presnell, treasurer; and Mrs. Kermit Lawson, reporter.

Mrs. Palmer appointed committees for the year and Mrs. Presnell presented the budget.

During the business meeting with Mrs. Roy McMillen, president, presiding, it was reported that books had been presented to three outstanding seventh grade history students by the club.

The program theme for 1975-76, "The American Gazette," based on the small town newspaper, was outlined by Mrs. Bruce Riehart.

Members attending were Mrs. R. L. Bray, D.V. Burton, J.F. Curtis, O.K. Gaylor, Veri Hagaman, Kermit Lawson, Roy McMillen, J.G. Morrison, Carlton Nance, Ralph Palmer, Hugh Peebles, Tom Perkins, Max Presnell, Glenn Radcliff, Bruce Riehart, Quentin Williams, and one guest, Mrs. Alvie Bell.

English designer Laura Ashley and two Americans, Dominick Avellino of Dominick and Britta Luhrs of Cinnamon, have been signed for The McCall Pattern Company's Designer Shop section. Ashley's fashion approach favors Victorian and Edwardian clothes.

Mrs. Harden Installed President

Officers of Wilson PTA were installed recently at the final meeting of the year. Louise Walker, vice president of City Council PTA, installed president, Mrs. Shirley Harden; vice president, Lou Terry; secretary, Ann Newsome; treasurer, Lois Harris; historian, Loretta Flaherty; and parliamentarian, Linda King. Council Representatives of the unit are Tommy Beck and Mary Duval.

Mrs. Jeanie Cone, who opened the session with a devotion, was honored and presented a past-president pin.

Outgoing president, Linda King, was presented a gift certificate.

After the business meeting, L.C. Davis, principal, gave an assessment of the school year.

Nearly 91 per cent of all newlyweds decide together on their honeymoon destination, according to a 1974 survey.

Warriors Boot Washington For Title

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors, who wouldn't say die, ruled as champions of the National Basketball Association today with four straight victories over the Washington Bullets, who couldn't stay alive even with a 14-point lead.

The Warriors ended the best-of-seven championship series by coming from behind for a 96-95 victory over Washington on the Bullets home court Sunday. Golden State became only the third team in NBA history to take the title on a straight four-game sweep.

The new champions also did it with a substitute coach. Assistant coach Joe Roberts directed them most of the way in their Sunday comeback after Al Attles was ejected for rushing onto the court as a fight threatened when the game was only 3:38 old.

It was fitting that Golden State had to dip into its bench for a coach. The Warrior reserves proved the difference in the surprising whitewash of the Bullets for the crown.

Brilliant Rick Barry led the Golden State scoring with 20 points for a total of 118 in the four games, but his teammates from off the bench contributed 32 decisive points Sunday. For the series, they outscored the Bullets 102 to 61.

Barry paid tribute to them in a dressing room abuzz with a mixture of champagne and sparkling burgundy: "It takes a lot of character for individuals to sacrifice for their team but that's the kind of team this is. We have a young team that's supposed to lose its poise and get rattled but we never did."

They came from behind in the final two semifinal playoff games against the Chicago Bulls to qualify for the championship showdown and then in three of the four games against the Bullets made up deficits of 16, 13 and 14 points for their astonishing triumph.

In Sunday's contest, they seemed momentarily disorganized by Attles' ejection and fell behind 30-20 at the end of the first quarter and trailed 36-22 in the second period. But in the best Cinderella tradition, they closed the gap to 52-48 at halftime and to 73-70 after three quarters. They also lapsed eight points behind in the final quarter with only 4:44 left, then tied the contest 92-92 with Wilkes and Beard hitting for vital baskets. Beard's driving layup put them ahead 94-93 and then three Bullets blunders in the hectic final minutes nailed down the victory.

With 1:33 remaining, a Washington pass went out of bounds. Thirty seconds later, Bullets substitute Dick Gibbs missed an easy lay-up after breaking clear with a length-of-the-court pass.

Then with the Warriors desperately holding to their one-point edge, the Bullets got possession on a Golden State 24-second violation. But the inbounds pass bounced off the knee of Wes Unseld and rolled into the back court for a turnover.

Beard made it 95-93 on a free throw with 19 seconds on the clock. A Phil Chenier shot from the baseline missed and Beard was again fouled in a penalty situation and hit the last of three from the foul line with nine seconds to go for the clinching point.

Unser Indy Champ

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — There was no champagne shower for Bobby Unser Sunday.

Instead it was good, honest Indiana rain and it turned the Indianapolis Motor Speedway into a slithering skating rink on which race cars had neither traction nor direction.

Unser led for only 11 of the 175 laps run in the 59th million-dollar auto classic, but they were the important ones, because they were the last laps before that Hoosier downpour forced a premature end to the 500-mile race.

Unser, 41, and now living in Albuquerque, N.M., but from a starstruck racing family from Colorado, took the right track to get the win. And he had the racing luck to tie his brother, Al, with two victories apiece in this holiday auto race, at the same track on which their brother, Jerry, was killed in a practice accident in 1959.

Unser's luck came first when a collision between Tom Sneva and Eldon Rasmussen on turn No. 3 spilled debris on the track.

"I took the low side of the track and that turned out to be the right one," said Unser, running second at the time. "I just looked for daylight to drive right through and I made it. But it was a very close call."

The leader at the time, Wally Dallenbach, also took the low side on the grass. But he found only darkness and no daylight.

"We picked up some debris," he said, "and it gave us a slow leak in a tire, which caused handling problems. We got some dirt in the engine and we couldn't go flat out in the turns. The engine had to run lean and that caused it to blow. We had it all put together. It was going so good, I couldn't believe it."

The lead changed hands 13 times in the race, run at the slowest speed since 1966. Unser was clocked at 149.213 miles per hour, and there were five leaders. Gordon Johncock, A. J. Foyt, Rutherford, Dallenbach and Unser.

Foyt, the favorite who was trying for his fourth triumph in the race, was snake bit. He had a 45 second pit stop once when debris from a spin by Mario Andretti forced him to change three tires. He also had to coast halfway around the track, losing speed all the way, to his pit once when he ran out of fuel on the backstretch.

Glumly and speechlessly, he stormed out of the car in his garage after he had finished third, one lap behind Unser, limped to the hospital, and was scheduled for X rays because of an apparent back and leg ailment which developed during the race.

Unser will pick up somewhat more than $200,000 of the million-dollar purse at a victory dinner tonight, with runner-up Rutherford, third place Foyt, and fourth place Pancho Carter receiving the next best checks.

Carter drove a surprising race, in a car which was badly shredded Thursday when he hit the wall. His crew rebuilt the machine, stealing parts from another vehicle, in order to put it in the race, and they had to tinker with the handling for the first three pit stops before they had it going well.

"The way I'm going," said Carter, rookie of the year in 1974, "I should win this race in the next couple of years."

LITTLE LEAGUE TONIGHT — Although there's no guarantee Little League action tonight at Optimist Park will be as heavy as in this earlier-season photo, eight teams will play. In the National League, it's Cabot vs. Dixie 6 p.m. In the American League, games are One Bull vs. Citizen's at 6 p.m. and Rotary vs. Cameron at 8 p.m. In Babe Ruth, Bank and Cree meet at 6 p.m., while Grant and Ford battle at 8 p.m.

BUFFALO FALLS, 3-2

Flyers 1 Game From Stanley Cup Crown

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Is Dave Schultz the Broad Street Bully of the Philadelphia Flyers or an elegant scoring leader who is going to help lead his team to the Stanley Cup with goals instead of punches?

"I don't know, I do what helps the team," said Schultz Sunday night after scoring two goals and almost getting a third as the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Buffalo Sabres 5-2 to take a 3-2 edge in the National Hockey League Finals.

Schultz set a record for penalty minutes both in the regular season and this year's playoffs before he scored his first goal of the post-season games with what he called a "luck" shot.

Schultz was deep in the left corner of the Buffalo zone when he took a shot from that bad angle and the puck rolled down the arm of goalie Gerry Desjardins and into the net.

After the Flyers made it 3-0 with two more goals in the same period, the defending Stanley Cup champions put the nationally televised game out of reach with two in the second period. One of those was a breakaway goal by Schultz who waited until he was almost on top of Desjardins before pushing in the puck.

"I really am just trying to do my job," Schultz said adding that the first goal was a "luck goal. I usually miss those and fall on my face."

It was Schultz' first goal since last March 9 and the first time this season he has had two goals in one game.

Schultz, who was in the unique position of having more goals than penalties in the game, said: "The only time I want to fight is when somebody is looking for it. That's my job. But if nobody is challenging you, ..."

"I've played just as well in other games, just as hard," he said. "What's the difference? It's nice to get goals but as long as you win, what's the difference?"

But then Schultz got back into the "enforcer" role he portrays on the ice.

"I don't know if I get that big a thrill out of scoring. I really think I get more of a kick beating the hell out of somebody — if it helps the team."

Sabres Coach Floyd Smith agreed with Schultz about one thing. "The first goal by the Flyers was luck," he said.

But Smith promised things would be different when the series resumes Tuesday in Buffalo where the Sabres have won their two games.

"I definitely think all of you should make reservations here for Thursday night," when the seventh game would be played if the Sabres win Tuesday.

Giants Nose Cubs

UPI Sports Writer

The Golden State Warriors have proved the experts wrong, and now a few of their buddies, the San Francisco Giants, are getting similar ideas.

The Warriors, not very highly regarded at the start of the season, wrapped up the National Basketball Association's championship Sunday by beating the Washington Bullets in four straight games and it left at least one member of the Giants wondering if lightning couldn't strike twice.

The Giants, picked to finish no higher than fifth in the National League West in most preseason polls, won their seventh game in a row Sunday by defeating the Chicago Cubs 9-7 and are now only four games out of first place.

"No one gave the Warriors a chance and yet they won the whole thing," said Giants' shortstop Chris Speier Sunday after leading the Giants to victory over the Cubs. It was Speier squeeze bunt single that scored Gary Matthews with the final run of a seven-run fifth inning rally which enabled the Giants to overcome a 7-1 deficit. Speier also touched off the rally with a single.

"The Warriors are a young club with a couple of key veterans," added Speier. "In that regard we are very much alike. Also, the Warriors showed that you win in any sport with a total team effort, and that's the way we are playing now. Sure, it might sound like wishful thinking, but now we know we can win and I don't think we are being unrealistic in thinking we are solid contenders."

The Giants fell behind 7-1 by the fourth before mounting their winning rally. A total of 11 players went to bat in the fifth and seven different men drove in a run each. Bobby Murcer added a homer in the seventh inning for an insurance run.

"That's what I call a real team effort," said Speier.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh nipped San Diego 6-5 in 11 innings. Los Angeles downed St. Louis 7-3. Cincinnati defeated Philadelphia 4-3. Atlanta topped New York 6-3 and Houston edged Montreal 8-7 in 12 innings.

New York nipped Texas 5-4 California downed Boston 6-1. Minnesota beat Milwaukee 7-2. Kansas City clobbered Baltimore 9-1. Detroit topped Chicago 4-1 and Cleveland blanked Oakland 6-0 then lost 6-3 in American League games.

Pirates 6 Padres
Pinch-hitter Ed Kirkpatrick hit a one-out bases empty homer in the 11th inning to give the Pirates a victory over the Padres. Rennie Stennett and Al Oliver contributed run-scoring triples to the Pirates' attack.

Dodgers 7 Cardinals 3
Jim Wynn drove in four runs with a double and a homer and Joe Ferguson added a pair of homers to spark the Dodgers' triumph over the Cardinals. Don Sutton, with ninth inning relief help from Jim Brewer, won his eighth game.

Reds 4 Phillies 3
Cesar Geronimo collected three hits, one a three-run double, and George Foster hit his seventh homer as the Reds handed the Phillies their sixth straight loss. Clay Kirby went 7 2-3 innings and received credit for the victory while Jim Lonborg suffered the loss. Bob Boone homered for Philadelphia.

Braves 6 Mets 3
Earl Williams collected a three-run homer and two singles to lead the Braves to victory over the Mets. Buzz Capra, who had been bothered by a split finger on his pitching hand, worked 6 2-3 innings to receive credit for the triumph while Jerry Kosman suffered the loss.

Astros 8 Expos 7
Doug Rader had five hits, including a double that touched off the winning rally in the 12th, as the Astros nipped the Expos. Rader cracked his third double of the game with one out in the 12th and scored on successive hits by Enos Cabell and Skip May. Cesar Cedeño homered for Houston while Pepe Mangual connected for Montreal.

Carner Edges Rankin For Defender Money

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Joanne Carner credits a fishing trip, and some tips from Gardner Dickinson with helping her win her first golf tournament of 1975.

After a week at a trout-stocked river and a lesson last week from Dickinson, Mrs. Carner came from behind Sunday to win the $40,000 American Defender Golf Classic on the first extra hole in a playoff with Judy Rankin.

Her six-foot putt for a par on the first extra hole gave her a $5,700 victory check after Mrs. Rankin missed a 10-footer.

At the end of regulation, the two were tied at 10-under-par 206. Mrs. Carner carded a 69 Sunday while Mrs. Rankin posted a 71.

Jan Stephenson, last year's LPGA rookie of the year, finished third with a closing round of 68 that put her a shot behind the two leaders. It was her best finish since joining the pro tour.

At 209 was Carole Jo Skala, who fired a closing 68. Jocelyne Bourassa, who finished with a 68, and Carol Mann, who had a 9, were at 210 and Sandra Palmer and Kathy Whitworth were in a group at 211.

Unable to do better than second in her previous outings this year, Mrs. Carner spent a week fishing after Atlanta's Lady Tara two weeks ago. "It seemed to get me revived," she said. "I didn't even think about golf. I put it out of my mind."

Then she got a lesson from Dickinson, a long-time mentor, last Tuesday, and headed for North Ridge Country Club, site of the American Defender.

"I played better in practice rounds than I've hit the ball in three years," she said.

Both hit straight drives on the 362-yard par four that doglegs to the right — and then put their second shots about 10 feet to the right of the green.

Mrs. Rankin had a bad lie, however. Her ball was in ground under repair, and she dropped it into an even worse spot, a hole.

From there, she chipped about 10 feet from the hole. But the putt lipped the cup and spun out, putting the pressure on Mrs. Carner.

Battery Powered Auto May Be Mode of Future

By ROBERT P. STUDER
Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — The man kisses his wife goodbye, picks up his briefcase full of business papers, and walks out to the garage. He unplugs his automobile from the recharger, flicks on a switch and tools his silent, smogless electrical car down the street toward the rapid transit depot.

The air is crisp and clear, with just a hint of brown fumes gathering on the horizon.

On the way to the office the electrical rapid transit bus, our businessman tries to line up his thoughts for the picture-phone conference meeting he has scheduled for 9:30.

"It sure beats having to fly back East and waste all that time..." he muses. "Imagine, we used to have to get together at some central point for our monthly sessions. Now, all we have to do is dial a conference call and we can talk back and forth and see each other on the large screen and examine the charts..."

Something out of George Orwell's "1984"?

Not really. You missed it by a year. That's the way a group of law, community planning, industrial, transportation, energy and educational experts see it in a study they conducted for the California Department of Transportation, results of which have just been released.

Among their predictions: — Battery-powered automobiles will begin to serve as an economical replacement for today's internal-combustion engines by 1983.

— Private cars will be banned from the centers of California's major cities by the same year.

— Free rapid transit will be available to residents of California's major cities by 1985.

The CALTRANS "Delphi Study" was made to identify the likely major trends in society and transportation over the next 30 years, Edward F. Dolder, who directs future planning for the Department of Transportation, explained.

It was intended to help make certain that California's Transportation Plan, now being put together from designs drawn up by 41 regional transportation planning agencies, can keep pace with California's changing needs and values.

The Transportation Plan is scheduled to go to the state Legislature next year.

Dolder said that results of the department's future research can be used to compare different transportation policies and to sort out the department's planning and funding priorities in the years ahead.

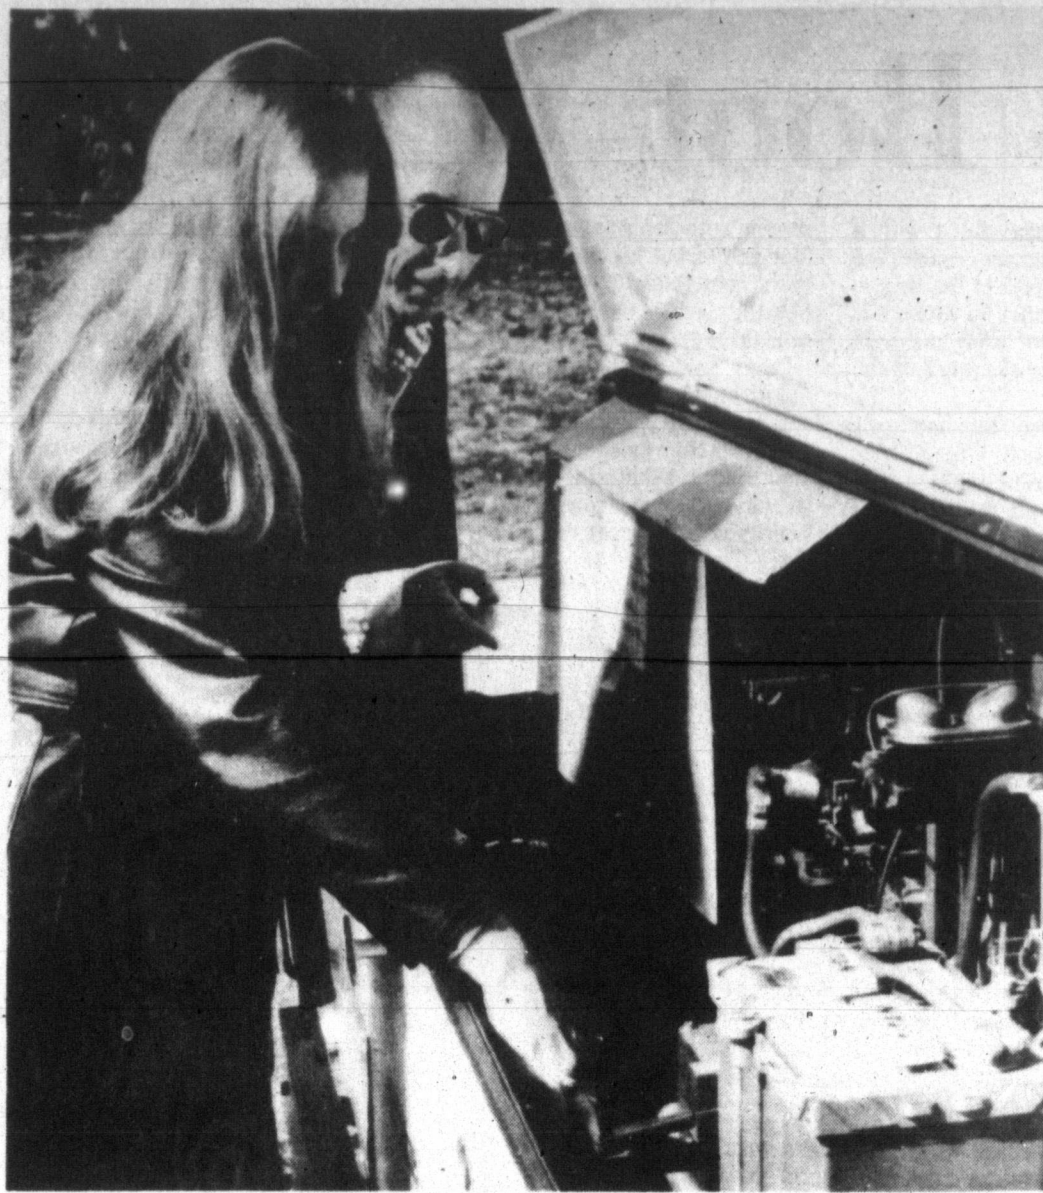

"For example," he said, "50 per cent of those employed at the turn of the century will probably be working a four-day or shorter workweek, with different patterns of work and leisure travel from those familiar to us today. We would be planning for that possibility right now."

What are some of the other trends that will affect transportation in the year 2000? The Delphi forecast sees:

— Demand for public mass transit will be almost three times as great as it is today, while three times as many persons will oppose freeways.

— Air pollution will be less than half of the problem it is today.

— Electronic communication will replace the need for about 25 per cent of the trips being made today.

Pollution-free Van

A Battery-driven van capable of speeds up to 50 miles an hour and easily charged by being plugged in at night is now being tested by the California Department of Transportation.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

TUESDAY, MAY 27

Your birthday today: Pragmatism becomes a reality of your lifestyle. Welcome anything that is direct and discard frills. What you hang onto from the past is burdensome. Break the pattern and simplify any sort of holdings. Relationships face rough situations and deserve every bit of care you can give them. Today's natives are often firmly against tradition, want to transform basic situations.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Hold your temper (your words, too) until you're sure of what's going on. Differences of opinion won't cause quarrels or future trouble provided they're handled right today.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Postpone formal bids, applications or journeys regardless of everyone's impatience. Expect heavier work because of recent lapses, and increased responsibility.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Money comes into question again, especially if it's up to group management. Keep your own resources intact, interest earning, and stay out of current speculations.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You can't gain by being irritable as you balance private enterprises against external demands. You'll please no one but yourself now, so a direct approach is best in the long run.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Do it yourself courteously whenever you can. Skip travel and official procedures where feasible. Grin and bear it! There's still plenty of work to keep you busy.

Although barely 20 years old, the resort community of Freeport on Grand Bahama Island attracts more than 300,000 visitors annually. Only the Bahamas' capital of Nassau draws more vacationers each year.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Much as you'd like to guide all of those around you, it's necessary for others to learn from their own experience in this day of little progress. Play it safe now.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: By enforcing your preferences at home or on the job, you might get present compliance but lose future cooperation. Check for hazards; make corrections.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Treat machinery or electrical items with extra care. Older people compound difficulties or recurring doubts. Protect your health; avoid excess. What's done today endures.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Speculative ventures are out of the question. What is normally considered conservative is now somewhat of a high risk. Choose accordingly. Costs may increase.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You have more energy and persuasive ability than usual but not enough to give you any fast results. Sideswipe conflicts over money. What happens today has lasting results.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Set goals and priorities early. Work alone and away from public view until you're far enough along to compete or face your critics. Later hours are great for firm planning.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Thrift and common sense get you through the day in good order. Disagreement over values generates discussion or strong opinions that shouldn't be taken as permanent.

Red Cross News

By LIBBY SHOTWELL
Executive Secretary ARC

We have a new hospital volunteer, Mrs. A.W. Skewes of 2345 Aspen, who will work with our ladies serving juice and delivering flowers and cards.

One of our ladies was in an Amarillo hospital and when she came home, she called and said, "Libby, why don't the ladies in Amarillo visit the hospitals and help those who are out of town." I told her that the Red Cross Volunteers in Amarillo worked at the VA Hospital. We really are appreciated.

The Disaster workers are planning to close out the Lefors disaster next week. Betty Moody and Doris Teague will be in Pampa Tuesday and Wednesday, so please get your expense vouchers in so they can be paid by the Red Cross. Most Red Cross vouchers were made for 30 days and the time is almost out or it is out, so please get your vouchers in.

The Red Cross office will be closed Memorial Day, so please call us at our home if you have an emergency. Phone at my home is 669-3814.

There will be a Red Cross Multimedia First Aid Class next Thursday and Friday in the City Club Room with Randol Nichols, FAI, teaching the class. The time is 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. for four nights on Thursday and Friday evenings. This class will be taught for the C.B. Radio Breakers Club, but others from the community may take the class if they wish to. The cost of the textbooks are $2.60 but the instruction is free.

Please register only on Thursday and Friday for the city swim pool in the Red Cross swim classes. Mrs. Ralph Esson will be in charge of the swim classes at the City Pool this summer.

Cancer Link in Texas

Pampa News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Cancer rates in industrial areas of Texas are significantly higher than in non-industrial areas, according to a major federal study.

National Cancer Institute researchers discovered, after geographically charting the frequency of cancer deaths over a 20-year period, that industrial areas of Texas have measurably high cancer rates than other sections of the state.

A map released by the researchers reveals three areas of the state where the cancer mortality rate is the highest — the Beaumont - Port Arthur area, Houston - Galveston - Texas City, and the San Antonio region.

In a four-year research study, they found that bladder, liver and lung cancer were more frequent in regions with large concentrations of chemical factories like the Port Arthur to Texas City section of the Gulf Coast. High rates of lung cancer were discovered near areas specializing in metals production, as in Houston.

Much of the information used in compiling this study came from the death certificates of cancer victims across the continental United States during the period 1950-69.

The cancer charting maps, which will be distributed to health officials in Texas next month, reflect data prepared on 34 different types of cancer found in white males and females throughout the United States.

"What we have here," said cancer researcher Dr. Joseph Fraumeni, "is a whole new series of clues to the origins of cancer."

Only recently has evidence been found that cancer can be caused by environmental imbalances like auto pollution. For decades, the bulk of federal funding for cancer research went to the study of virus agents as the chief cause.

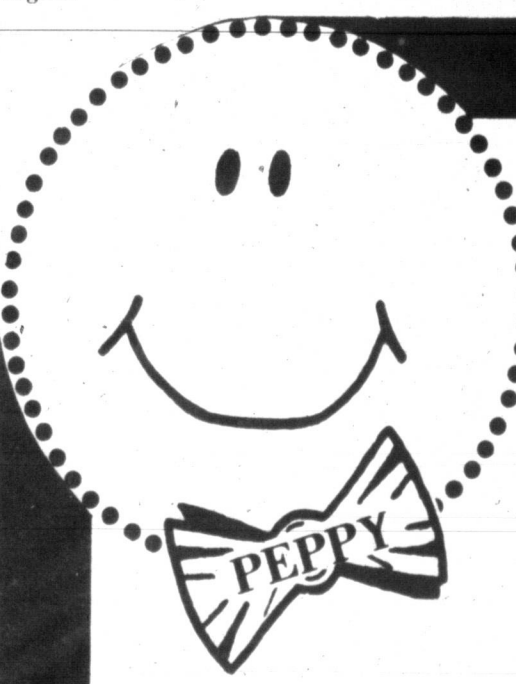

"It's, of course, a political decision," said one Cancer Institute researcher. He pointed out that linking cancer to industrial pollution tends to elicit strong protest from the lobbying arms of the industries affected.

One of the states with the highest overall cancer rate was

New Jersey, where every county in the state made it to the top 10 per cent in the national bladder cancer ratings. New Jersey has a large chemical industry.

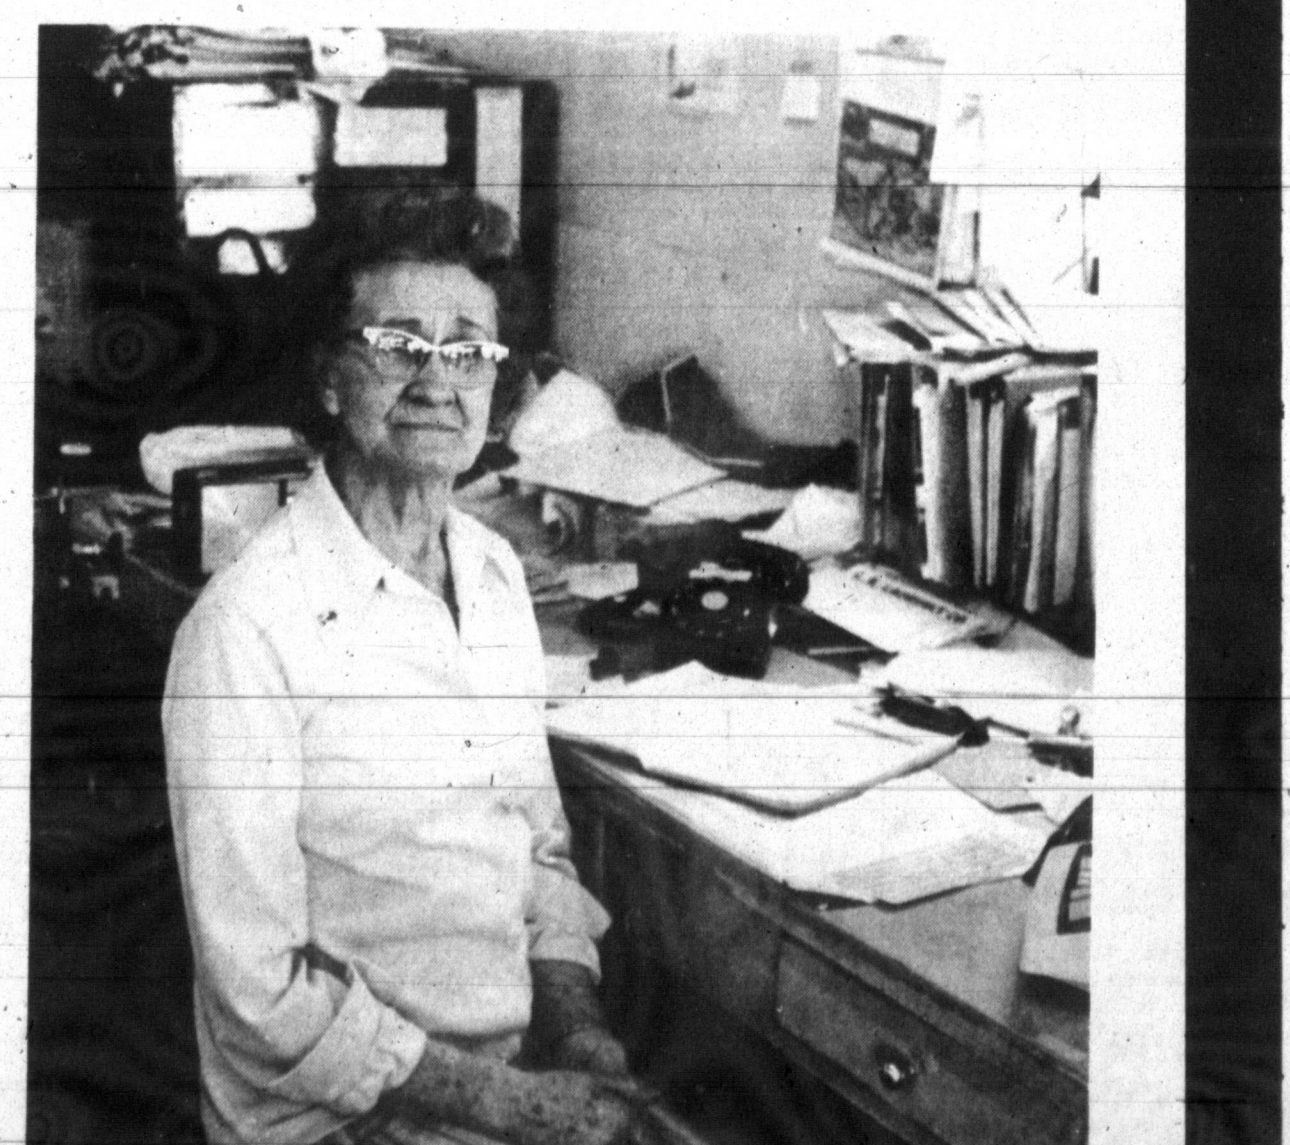

National Cancer Institute Researchers have complained recently about a shortage of money for cancer prevention programs, cutbacks which have also affected research by the Environmental Protection Agency and the National Institute for Environmental Health Sciences.

Cancer researchers have been urging Congress to a toxic substances law that would authorize the EPA to create a testing program for new chemicals before they are marketed. Such a bill died in the last Congress.

Home Builders Supply

GLADYS ROBINSON

Gladys Robinson, owner of Home Builders Supply at 312 W. Foster, said she remembers when she came to Pampa because it had just rained and "I was up to my ankles in mud."

Eleven years later she and her husband, the late Rob Robinson, opened Home Builders Supply.

"I believe we were the original glass shop in Pampa," she said.

The firm now deals in glass, paint, tools, wallpaper, mirrors, storm doors and hardware items.

Mrs. Robinson said that most of her customers are "individuals who redo a room at a time."

Cairl McAnally, who came to work for Mrs. Robinson in 1967, offers help to the do-it-yourselfers who come in the store.

"He's got the best eye for colors I've ever seen," Mrs. Robinson said. And she described him as being an excellent painter, capable of advising the customers.

Serving Pamperns who decorate their own homes has resulted in a very steady flow of business for Home Builders Supply, Mrs. Robinson said.

"Our population is ever changing, but the attitudes of the people in the name as it ever was and they are just as friendly as always," she said.

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

May 25, 1775:

Aboard HMS Cerberus, which departed Spithead April 20, three British generals arrive at Boston. Senior among them is Sir William Howe, who has been named acting commander of the British army in America, succeeding General Thomas Gage. Howe is widely known for his indecisiveness, but by Eighteenth Century standards he will perform comparatively well in the colonies. Sir Henry Clinton, Howe's second in command, will distinguish himself at Bunker Hill, and will succeed Howe in 1778—serving as commander-in-chief for four years. John Burgoyne, a sometime playwright and known for his deep interest in his troops, will be forever known to history as the man who commanded British forces at the second Battle of Saratoga in 1777—perhaps the most decisive, and most telling, British loss during the war.

Viet Pilot Settles As $2-an-hour Helper

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Former South Vietnamese Air Force pilot Nguyen Duy Thuan now is a $2-an-hour carpenter's helper and he's glad to get the work.

Thuan, 29, also is thankful he, his wife, Nguyen Thi Muoi, and their two children escaped from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport on April 28 as Viet Cong rockets poured in.

Thuan was the first Vietnamese refugee family to arrive in San Antonio. They landed on May 14. Three days later he landed a job.

He already has obtained a Texas driver's license and arrangements are being made for his 8-month-old son, Nguyen Duy Dui, to receive an artificial eye. The baby lost one in an accident before leaving Vietnam.

"We're getting along very well," said Thuan, who is living with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis. "My wife feels very good over here. She likes the United States. My son probably will have glass eye in about two weeks. We probably won't have to pay anything." The Davises, sponsors of the family, are arranging for the eye operation, Thuan said.

The former first lieutenant and cargo plane pilot said his minimum-wage job was satisfactory for now but he hopes to find higher paying employment later. He said he lost his pilot's documents while escaping but had moonlighted in carpentry, electrical wiring and plumbing while in the air force.

"I make $2 an hour, minimum, and eight hours a day and five days a week. I get $320 a month," he said. "I don't think that's very good for me, but it's a first step, you know."

Thuan said he has encountered no resentment since arriving in Texas. "The people at work are very friendly. Both of them are Mexicans. They are very friendly. Some of the Mexicans don't speak English very well so now I'm starting to learn Spanish. It's easier than English."

The rest of the Thuan family speaks no English, he said, but they'll learn.

Texas Technical Institute To Offer Boot, Shoe Class

Approval of a new program for Texas State Technical Institute: Mid-Continent Campus, is announced by the Texas Education Agency in Austin.

Boot and Shoe Operations will be offered this fall, according to Dr. Fred O. Lanphear, manager of instruction at Mid-Continent. The Amarillo campus is the only post-secondary school in Texas to schedule this course, and is one of the few in the nation.

The decision to offer a multiple-option boot and shoe program was made after a survey within a 200-mile radius of State Tech recently revealed 64 job openings. An advisory committee of 13 members then consulted with Mid-Continent administrators on opportunities, needs, and curriculum.

Bob Ross, Amarillo, will be program chairman for the course. He is a member of a long-time family of boot and shoe makers and repairmen in the Panhandle area. An instructor at Mid-Continent Campus, he has played a key role in the research and preparation of the program.

The three-option course is to include: (1) boot and shoe repair, a nine-month program of self-paced, multiple exit instruction offering a certificate of completion; (2) bootmaking, a one-year program offering a certificate; and (3) boot and shoe operations, a six-quarter program including the complete BSR curriculum and nine months of the bootmaking course, offering an associate degree upon completion.

Students will be trained in all types of boot and shoe repairing, leather refinishing, small business management, and such electives as small item construction (belts, billfolds, purses), leather tooling and saddle and tack repairing.

Survey on Southwestern Farms

Wives Want Less Kids, More Leisure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A survey of Southwestern farm wives indicates that they want fewer children, more vacations and leisure time, in addition to a decision-making role in family life.

The survey was made by the research department of Estech, Inc., Chicago, the chemicals sub-holding company of Es-mark, Inc., and released in Washington.

"Views and attitudes of rural distaffers have taken a perceptible turnaround in the past five years—showing a more sophisticated approach to modern living and a growing awareness of their involvement in the world about them," the researchers said.

Southern Democrat To Seek Presidential Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Terry Sanford, one of the first of the "New South" Democrats, Thursday will become the sixth formal candidate for the party's 1976 presidential nomination.

The 58-year-old former North Carolina governor, now president of Duke University, came to prominence in the 1960's by repudiating the traditional segregationist politics of Southern Democrats.

He hopes to make his impact in the 1976 primaries by directly challenging Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, who trounced Sanford in his own North Carolina presidential primary three years ago.

The Sanford campaign will be keyed to a series of "Citizen Assemblies"—open public meetings at which voters will be invited to speak out on issues and offer proposals for solutions to problems. Sanford—or what his campaign literature describes as "one of his closest associates"—will attend the assemblies to listen to citizen sentiment.

Followup meetings will be held later to try out Sanford's proposals to deal with problems raised in the original assemblies.

Under the management of Jean Westwood, Utah Democratic national committeewoman and former head of the national committee, the Sanford

The survey covered a nine-state area—Arkansas, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and Wyoming.

"Less than 11 per cent of the 900 wives, aged 24-44, who were surveyed indicated that they had no interest in participating in business discussions and decisions," it said.

A similar study conducted five years ago showed the percentage to be well above 33 per cent.

"A matter of vast importance to the present-day farm wife is family planning. The majority of those involved in the survey—61 per cent—noted that the ideal number of children was two or three. Only 6 per cent expressed a desire to have five or more."

The 1970 survey showed a total of 43 per cent wanting big families of five or more.

"An unprecedented number of farm wives are taking paying, non-farm jobs today. Of the group, 31 per cent are holding down fulltime positions, as opposed to 15 per cent in 1970."

Estech sees today's Southwestern farm wife quite content with her life style—few really put any emphasis on leaving the rural community for city life. Also, 68 per cent hoped their children would remain in farming.

"Education for their children?"

"A desire was expressed by 69 per cent of these farm mothers to see their youngsters receive higher education. Some were anxious that they attend an agricultural college."

"These were the ones who were quick to recognize the good opportunities that await such graduates in agribusinesses—food processing, wholesaling, retailing—as well as becoming agricultural scientists and engineers."

"Today's farm wife is knowledgeable, forthright and independent," Estech concludes.

Scholarship

Felecia Lemon, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Wayne Lemon, 506 W. Oklahoma, was recently presented a $500 scholarship from The Top O' Texas Kiwanis Club. The presentation was made by Sam Motley, president. Miss Lemon plans to attend Clarendon College where she will major in accounting.

Jackson Predicts Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted Saturday he has hit on a formula that will win him the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination—a well-known face, $10 million, a "charismatic" wife and a strategy focusing on delegates elected at the congressional district level.

"It's a totally different ballgame," Jackson said in an interview, comparing the new campaign to his previous dismal effort. "In 1972 I had a 6 per cent recognition factor. Now it's 60 per cent. I think I can win it."

He conceded he lacks charisma, but predicted his attractive wife, Helen, will "fill the charismatic gap" by campaigning for him.

Jackson indicated his basic strategy in the 1976 primaries will not be finalized before July 1, when each state will have submitted delegate selection plans to the national party.

He believes he is strongest in the major northern industrial states which together hold a total delegate strength of 1,111.
