LEADING ACTOR. Polls are consistently showing actor Ronald Reagan, above, leading with the majority of Republicans for next year's California gubernatorial primary. He is backed by the same hard-core conservatives who supported Barry Goldwater in 1964. Feeling is growing that only by bunching behind one opposing candidate can the moderates hope to keep Mr. Reagan from leading the Republican pack in California. — WFS Photo

Snyder Resigns, Underwood Is New Principal at Fulton School

At the regular meeting of the Aransas County Independent School Board Tuesday night, a number of changes in personnel were announced.

The resignation of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Snyder were accepted with regret. The Snyders came here several years ago from the Far East, where he had been engaged in teaching agriculture under the Point 4 program.

After teaching here for some time, he was promoted to principal at Fulton Elementary School while Mrs. Snyder was a teacher at Rockport Elementary School.

Snyder said that he must locate nearer to two older sisters whose husbands have become invalids, and who live near San Antonio. Snyder has taken a position as a principal of a school between Yoakum and San Antonio.

Wilburn C. Underwood, from Rockport Elementary succeeds Snyder.

Four new teachers were employed this week, also. They were Mrs. Ruby Rosco, who will teach the Rockport second grade; Miss Annette Berger, who will teach music in the high schools; Miss Lanet Baker, teacher of high school English and speech; and Mrs. Billie J. Hale, who will teach Spanish and high school mathematics.

Considerable discussion ensued over the lack of a Latin teacher. Sparked several years ago by requests from parents whose children wished to take up careers in medicine or related professions, the school here was fortunate enough to be able to employ a retired teacher capable of teaching this subject. Now, this teacher, John W. Sutherland, has resigned because of ill health, and extensive search by Supt. J. D. Gray has failed to uncover another Latin scholar.

It was the concensus that it

Cove Frontage Is Going Fast

On the strength of a possible heavy offshore oil play in the Gulf, by major companies, land leasing at Cove Harbor, Aransas County's industrial basin south of Rockport, has zoomed over 100 per cent in the past 30 days.

Not only have several of the present leaseholders entered into subleases with firms related to the oil industry, but applications for new leases from citizens in the area are awaiting official action by the Board of Navigation and Canal Commissioners, and cover every foot of waterfront not already leased.

Caspary-Wendell Properties, Inc., has also leased additional frontage, and entered into a sublease with the Baroid Division of National Lead Co., while Cove Harbor Enterprises is subleasing to the Milwhite Mud Co.

Teachers Raises Given Without Tax Increase

The Board of Trustees of the Aransas County Independent school District voted at their regular meeting to adopt the new state scale for teachers, recently passed by the legislature, and to pay $400 above that scale to its teachers, with minor adjustments to its teachers, to make equitable arrangements for all teachers. No tax raise is anticipated.

In actual practice, trustees said, this will mean a raise for all teachers here from $200 to $800 per year, depending on length of service and degrees held. Adjustments will be necessary to take care of beginning teachers, who were more or less overlooked in the bill, a compromise between the plan of Governor John Connally and that of the Texas State Teachers' Association.

In discussing the move with the trustees, Supt. J. D. Gray said:

"I have been working and studying for several weeks to determine how the new salary plan will affect us. I am sure you know that the compromise was a 'give and take' proposition.

"Textbook and teached retirement cost will remain a state responsibility as proposed by the TSTA, rather than a state-local joint sharing plan as proposed by the govenor.

"The salary increase incorporates most of the govern-

Loitering Ordinance Passed By City Council

Heeding frequent local complaints about loiterers blocking a portion of Austin Street sidewalks, the City Council, at it's regular meeting, passed an ordinance aimed at remedying this nuisance.

The ordinance says that no person shall sit or loiter in any street, alley, park or other public property in such a manner as would be reasonably likely to disturb, annoy, or frighten people of ordinary sensibilities, whether or not such people are actually disturbed, annoyed or frightened thereby, and provides a fine of not less than $10 nor more than $100 for such loitering.

However, the ordinance goes on to take care of some other situations that have become nuisances, as well. It extends the same prohibition to private property without the permission of the owner or person in possession thereof; or in any alley, street, or other public propery after being directed or requested by a police officer to move on, or in or on any private property in any manner, after having been directed or requested to leave by the owner or person in lawful possession thereof.

The new ordinance makes it possible to take this action against people guilty of such actions.

In other action, the council authorized Mayor Hollis Collum to sign a contract with McClendon and Associates to do the preliminary engineering in an effort to obtain a federal grant to upgrade the city sewer treatment plant and increase its capacity. Such action is necessary, councilors believe, because of the increased pressure on municipalities for better sewage treatment and lessening of pollution in effluents discharged by the sewage systems.

In other action, the Council heard a report from W. W. McClendon, consulting engineer for the city, on flooding in the south end of town, along Water Street. Property owners between Water Street and the bay are to be asked to grant the city easements for a ditch between Water Street and the bay, which, McClendon said, would cure the situation.

In other action, council members granted the request of Chief of Police Bob Hewes to attend the law officers conference scheduled soon for Corpus Christi, and also granted the request of Water Supt. Tom Shults to attend a water conference at McAllen.

Commissioners Transact Routine Business at Meeting

County Commissioners at the meeting Monday were A. Y. Wofford and W. B. Allen, with Jack Sparks and Raymond Owens absent.

They discussed plans for rehabilitation of the Palm Village marina, owned by William Blevins, and decided there was no objection to the plan, or to the proposed application for a permit to be made to the U. S. Engineers.

Monthly reports of fees collected were approved for Dowell King, Constable, Precinct 1; G. G. Gilson, constable Precinct 2; I. E. McLester, constable, Precinct Three;

G. D. Johnson, Justice of the Peace, Precinct One; E. B. Crawford Justice of the Peace, Precinct Two; H. W. Hampton, Justice of the Peace, Precinct Three; Joe Earl Hunt, sheriff; and W. E. Beasley, county and district clerk.

A bill for attorney's fees in the amount of $2500 was presented by Hobart Huson, the county's attorney in the boundary suit between Aransas and Nueces counties, and this bill was approved, along with payment of $100 for expenses incurred by Huson.

A letter was read from M. W. Cochran commending the court on its handling of the mosquito control program and recommending ways to obtain more money by increased taxation, which would enable the district to maintain better control of the nuisance.

A letter was read from W. H. Lehmberg, District Agricultural Agent on the interpretation of Title IV Civil Rights Act-1964, as it pertains to county extension agents.

C. L. Thomas was appointed to the convassing board, to assist in canvassing the absentee ballots in the Navigation District No. 1 election on July 10.

The commissioners then decided that, in future, the Lamar Fire Station would be used as a polling place, instead of the concession hall at Goose Island State Park.

A request for 35 Aransas County emergency identification plates was rejected because of lack of funds.

New Offices Of Navigation District To Open This Week

The new offices of Aransas County Navigation District will open this week, and the old building will be torn down as soon as practical thereafter.

Contained in the new building are offices for the superintendent and the navigation district secretary, Steve Atwood and Mrs. J. L. Baughman, and a conference room for the commissioners.

The building contains a little in excess of 1100 square feet. Of this, 500 square feet is devoted to the conference room; the two offices occupy approximately 400 square feet, and the rest of the space is taken up by the rest rooms, storage space and hallways in the air conditioned building.

Building superintendent in charge of construction was H. H. Dick.

The outside of the building is brick veneer, with Mexican brick, and aluminum windows and trim.

Across the top of the conference room are glued wood trusses, giving unimpeded floor space.

Interiors are finished in mahogany plywood, with vinyl asbestos tile on the floor.

A central heating and air conditioning system has been installed.

The building faces toward the marine laboratory, and occupies the space formerly taken by the concession that was built by Mrs. Charles Roe, Sr., a number of years ago.

The former office and warehouse was erected approximately 20 years ago, and has been through several hurricanes since that time.

It is to be demolished, as the warehouse space needed will be furnished by a new metal building constructed next to the marine laboratory.

Lions Elect New Officers

The local Lions Club has elected officers for the coming year, with Charles Maslonka chosen as president. Other officers are C. E. Frenzel, first vice president; Roy Hunsinger, second vice president; Joe Earl Hunt, third vice president; Raymond T. Jackel, secretary-treasurer; Elva Mullinax, lion tamer; and Ray Longino, tail twister.

Directors are Donald Meek, Edward L. Drummond, Charles Garrett, N. C. Vandergriff and Eugene Carter.

Jackel, Hunsinger and Carl M. Osborn were delegates, also, to the District 2A-3 convention at Weslaco, and reported that it was decided to send the Texas A&I College Marching Band of 85 members to the International Convention in Los Angeles, July 7-10, to publicize South Texas and to represent the counties in the district, which include Aransas, San Patricio, Nueces, Kleberg, Jim Wells, Jim Hogg, Zapata, Starr, Brooks, Willacy, Cameron and Hidalgo counties.

Osborn is also slated to be the local club's delegate to the Los Angeles convention. Osborn has attended every district convention since joining the club in 1950, and has had a record of perfect attendance.

He said all Lions Club members in South Texas are soliciting donations of $1 or more to defray the band's convention expenses.

NO FATAL ACCIDENTS HERE LAST MONTH

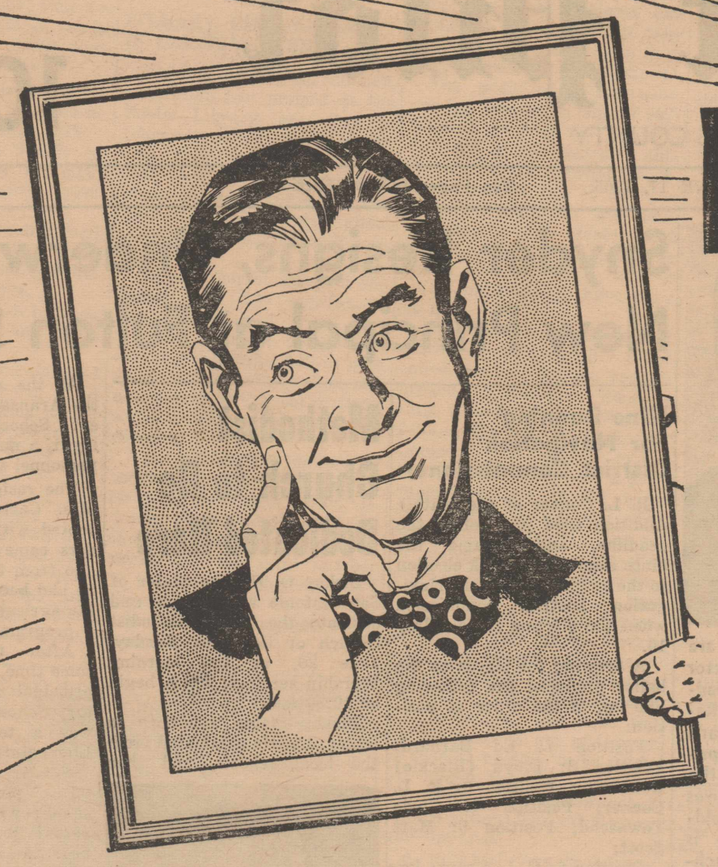

During May, 1965, there were no fatal accidents of any kind in Aransas County, and only three in which property damage occurred in territory outside the city. Damage in all three totaled about $500.

CAUSING CONCERN. North Dakota Livestock Sanitary Board has called on Washington to ask Canada to refrain from importing cattle from European countries where foot-and-mouth disease have occurred, to prevent spread to North Dakota cattle. Canada's next major import of cattle will be from France this fall, when 120 full-blood Charolais head, as above, will enter Canada. However, the French breed will spend a period of quarantine on Grosse Ile in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. — WFS Photo

PANT PANDEMONIUM. When U.S. pop singer P. J. Proby split his pants during his performance in Stockholm, Sweden, police moved in to escort him from the stage. By then, however, the damage had been done not only to the pants, but to the young ladies in the audience as well. It seems they were swooning all over the hall. — WFS Photo

Texas Joins Special Fall Teal Season

Texas will participate in a special nine-day experimental teal hunting season this year, according to J. Weldon Watson, executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

This state-wide season will be conducted to evaluate the effects of an increased harvest on teal which normally pass through Texas prior to the opening of the waterfowl hunting season.

The season will be open to hunters holding a "teal hunting permit" and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has set the period of Sept. 4 through Sept. 12 as the dates for this experimental season. The daily bag limit will be 4 teal with a possession limit of 8. The number of permits will be unlimited and will be issued upon application to the Parks and Wildlife Department, John H. Reagan Building, Austin, Texas, during the period from June 25 through Aug. 2. Applications can not be accepted after Aug. 2.

Each hunter participating in this special season will be required to have the regular Texas hunting license and Federal duck stamp, in addition to the "teal hunting permit."

Watson pointed out that the primary purpose of this season will be to determine if teal can stand the additional hunting pressure, to study the effects of the shoot on other ducks and to collect information concerning the hunters' ability to identify various waterfowl.

Identification of the teal will be aboslutely necessary as the season on other waterfowl will be closed and possession of other species will be considered a violation of the law.

Firemen and Auxiliaries Meet Jointly

Last Thursday firemen and auxiliary members from Fulton and Rockport held an intramural meet at the Rockport fire station, at which time pumping teams from the two departments competed in races.

The Rockport ladies team turned in a time of 26 seconds, without competition.

The men's teams from Fulton and Rockport tied in the first race, with a time of 30 seconds. In the second race, Rockport won with a time of 23 seconds, ten seconds better than that of the Fulton team.

Trophies, given by Glass, Sorenson and McDavid Insurance Co., were presented to the winning teams, and will be on display. These trophies may be kept for three months, after which a second meet will be held, this time at Fulton, and the trophies will then pass to the winning teams of that meet.

After the races, cold cuts and soft drinks were served by the Rockport Department to 60 guests.

Lamar's department was unable to take part.

PRESBYTERIAN CIRCLE 2 HOLDS MEETING THURSDAY

Presbyterian Circle 2 met at the home of Mrs. L. W. Hight last Thursday. Mrs. Fred Brundrett opened the meeting with a prayer.

Sixty-two visits were reported, with 70 cards sent out by circle members. After business was discussed the lesson, "The Church in Daily Life," was moderated by Mrs. Edward Setterbo. The monthly emphasis was given by Mrs. Hight.

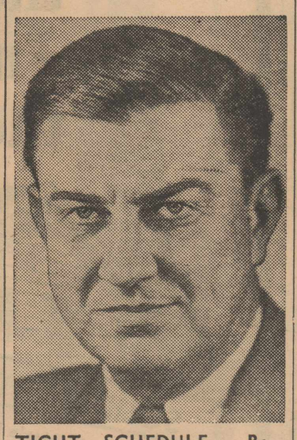

Refreshments were served.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Atwood spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Atwood and children in Houston. Friday night, they attended the Ringling Bros. Circus at the Astro Dome. The largest attendance in the circus' 95-year history, 40,357—was at this performance.

On Saturday the Atwoods attended the Houston Natural Gas Engineer annual barbecue, with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Atwood.

Jeffrey Stewart of Wheat Ridge, Colo., is spending the summer with his grandmother, Mrs. Earline Ballou, while his mother, Mrs. Ken Stewart is on a ten-week tour of Europe. Mrs. Ballou met Jeffrey in Houston last week, when he arrived by plane from Colorado.

TIGHT SCHEDULE. Between now and July 1, Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. is faced with the seemingly impossible task of organizing the new Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Commission's purpose will be to halt job discrimination through Title VII of the Civil Rights Act.

In the busy yards of Rockport Yacht and Supply Company big boats are being built at a fast clip. Some of them will stay nearby in the rich waters of the Gulf of Mexico; others will go to far away places.

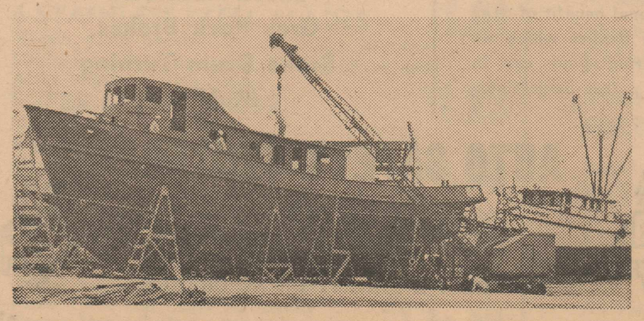

Right now, for example, RYSCO is building a 15-boat fleet of 72-foot shrimpers destined for South America. At the same time, the company is spending its physical facilities to keep up with its rapidly growing business.

RYSCO has found the South Texas coast a good place to build and grow. Excellent year-round climate, a pleasant place to live, friendly people, good labor supply, good transportation and a plentiful supply of dependable electric power — these are some of the advantages RYSCO enjoys here.

Such advantages are typical in this growing area. That's why South Texas is thriving industrially and why we, through the Arm for Industry program are encouraging the communities we serve to seek further growth through self-improvement and development.

In the words of RYSCO's vice president, John P. Mitchell:

"Your Arm for Industry program has made South Texans industry-conscious and is helping build community attitudes that are helpful to any industry. We appreciate the work CPL is doing and especially want to thank you for the technical assistance and other help you have given us."

LIBRARY CIRCULATION IS CLIMBING HERE

Wth the coming of summer, circulation has jumped at the Public Library, according to Librarian Mrs. Clara Brymer, who says that during May, 1512 books were borrowed. These included 163 adult fiction; 171 adult non-fiction, and 63 seven-day books of both types.

Juvenile borrowers read 866 fiction and 288 non-fiction, Mrs. Brymer said.

Books added to the shelves last month totaled 545 in both adult and juvenile fiction and non-fiction, with most of those added belonging to the latter category.

This brings the number of books accessioned in the library to more than 14,000, although due to with drawals of damaged and old books from circulation, the total number of volumes probably does not exceed 12,000 at the present time, Library Chairman J. L. Baughman said.

A CAT'S CURIOSITY. This cat heard someone say, "Watch the birdie," and as any curious kitty would do, he decided to take a peek to see what birdie they were talking about. But, to kitty's disappointment, there was no trace of a feathered friend. Well, just goes to show a cat can't trust hardly anyone anymore. — WFS Photo.

might be necessary to drop the subject from the curriculm. Gray said that in pre-resignation only eight students had indicated willingness to take Latin I, with a few more than that registering for Latin II.

The position of counselor, created two years ago is still unfilled, he told the trustees, for lack of an applicant able to meet the somewhat exacting standards set. It was the Board's feeling at the time the position was created that unless a top man could be found for the place, that it would be better to have none at all.

In other business, Board President Dr. H. F. Elliot called for a vote on repairs needed at Rockport Elementary School, after being informed that O. J. Beck and Company had agreed to do the work for cost, plus a $900 supervisory fee if the work ran between $6,000 and $12,000, with revisions either up or down, if the work was more or less than those limits.

Dr. Elliot pointed out that under similar circumstances, at the old high school, Beck's work had proved satisfactory. Board member Ottie Mundine pointed out that the summer was advancing and that the work needed to get underway as soon as possible to be ready for school this fall. Mundine and James B. Jackson voted for the action; Thomas Rogers was opposed.

A proposal was then presented from the Texas Scenic Company on installation of draw curtains to be placed in Junior High School rooms to cut down on the noise factor. The cost per room was estimated at $195 each, and Supt. Gray told trustees that if this worked, it was by far the most economical method by which this nuisance could be remedied.

Another proposal came from Daugherty Roberts, local head of the Tenneco Oil Co., who requested school bus service to the plant. The plant is less than three-quarters of a mile from the established bus route and hense, under school policy, ineligible for bus service.

However, Roberts said the people at the plant were willing to pay the $20 cost per month which would be entailed in sending the bus to the plant, and the trustees approved this change.

Charles LaBounty, of the First National Bank, presented the bank's bid to be school district depository for the next two years. On deposits of from one to three months duration, the bank will pay one per cent interest; on deposits from three to six months, interest will be 2¼ percent; and on those deposited for six months or more, interest will be paid at the rate of three per cent. The Board accepted this bid.

TEACHERS RAISES—

or's wishes, except that the increase will be immediate, rather than over a ten year period. Teachers with considerable experience and a master's degree will gain more under the compromise than under the TSTA plan. Teachers with little or no experience will gain less.

"Our 'local Fund Assignment' will increase $16,476, while the additional salary cost on excess teachers will be approximately $1296.

"On the basis of the current average daily attendance, we will earn an additional full time principal and three classroom teachers, but plan to employ only one of these teachers.

"Based on these findings, we can pass the raise on to the teachers at little cost locally—$17,772 minus $17,000, or only $772. I was pleasantly surprised when I came up with this analysis. Of course, what helps us is the increased average daily attendance while we only have to employ one more teacher.

"This does not take into account the counselor, a position created some time ago, and provided for in the budget. There is an additional provision in the new law whereby schools may participate in a $5,000,000 appropriation to increase salaries wherever they wish, as long as it is for a regular professional unit, and as many as ten per cent of the professional units are raised."

Gray said that it was the intent of the legislature to make it possible for schools to give additional raises to young teachers with little or no experience.

"Under the formula of the law", he said, "the state would allow $1400 and we would have to provide $822, which would make a total of $2222. This could be prorated on an equitable basis to those teachers receiving only small raises under the new law."

Gray said this would affect approximately 17 local teachers.

"If we adopted this plan," he continued, "the approximate grand total cost to the school for all salary raises would be approximately $1494. From a percentage sandpoint in our overall budget, this amount would be negligible.

"I have been going to meetings where this salary raise has been discussed. Most schools plan to follow the program outlined above, but practically all of them will have to raise taxes."

"We will not need to raise taxes at all to provide our teachers with this raise. Any raise that may be needed will be caused by some other factor."

Gray said that the District had lost a little more than $1,000,000 in oil and gas valuations, but, although the equalization board had completed its hearings, it was not yet known exactly what had been gained locally from other sources.

"I hope we will be able to end our fiscal year with a sizable balance to keep the tax rate as low as possible," he said. "We are working on the budget at present and plan on presenting it at the July meeting. My goal is no tax increase at all, but I am unable to say for sure yet. I will say that conditions look pretty good at present."

The Board approved the provision allowing use of the additional funds available to give raises to the teachers of short service, as well as adopting Senate Bill 4, the one in which the overall raises were given.

Local Artist Reconstructs Military Post

Working from a faded sketch made almost 125 years ago, Miss Lorna Hamilton, a student at the Rockport School of Fine Arts, has produced a likeness of one of the forgotten military posts of Texas—old Fort Inge, built near the present site of Uvalde.

The original sketch was made by Seth Eastman (later to become famous for his Indian paintings) while he was a second lieutenant on the Texas frontier, about 10 years after the post was founded in 1849 by Capt. Sidney Burbank and two companies of the First Infantry.

Eastman's sketch of the Fort, (which was named after Lt. Z. M. Inge, killed at Resaca de la Palma), shows several buildings and a line of enlisted men's quarters, almost indistinguishable from the trees of the Leona River bottoms where the fort was built.

Miss Hamilton's artist's eye has dissected Eastman's dim drawing, and her facile pen has produced two black and white sketches that agree amazingly well with a written description of the fort made in 1850 by First Lt. J. M. Barton, acting assistant quartermaster of the post.

Troops, with a little help from hired labor, erected buildings of a very temporary nature. In 1850, these consisted of the commanding officers quarters; two duplex officers' quarters; two blocks of quarters for enlisted men and store houses for quartermasters and commissary supplies. Officers' quarters and ware houses had shingle roofs; those of the enlisted men were thatched.

Lydia Spencer Lane, who reached the post as the bride of Lt. William B. Lane, of the U. S. Mounted Rifles in 1854, said in her reminscences:

"The post was dilapidated. . . . A beautiful little river, the Leona, ran just behind the quarters, which were built of logs and almost ready to tumble down. We moved into a vacant house of four rooms; the kitchen was behind it, and was in advanced stage of decay. A high wind might easily have blown it over."

The Lane's furniture consisted of two carpets, enough pretty chintz for curtains in two rooms; six hard wooden chairs bought in Corpus Christi on their way west, a bedstead, center-table, a cook stove (the most valuable and highly-prized of their possessions).

Pay for a first lieutenant was $93 a month; more would have been useless, for there was nothing to buy; no stores nearer than San Antonio, so the commissary bill and the servant's wages were the only bills, and the Lanes saved money!

Fish from the Leona, where there were six and seven pound bass; deer, wild turkey, quail and ducks palled on the palate as there were so few soldiers at the post that beef was issued only once or twice a month and was really a treat.

William Henry Chase Whiting, another second lieutenant destined to become famous, passed through Fort Inge a year after it was built, and took note of the paucity of troops. An engineer, charged with the duty of locating a string of new forts, he saw Inge about the same time Eastman made his sketch and the description was written by Barton.

"This post", Whiting said, "near the head of the beautiful Leona, is justly regarded as one of the most important and desirable positions in Texas. No station on the line possesses so many peculiar advantages . . . On a great inland route of commerce, at a point where the great military road to El Paso del Norte leaves the road to Eagle Pass, in a country celebrated as the richest and most desirable, in point of wood, water and soil, west of the Colorado, surrounded by beautiful scenery, capable of supplying the wants of the troops many times over, it is pre-eminent as a military site. In a state of constant warfare and constant service, its garrison has onerous duties, and, on the present line, above all others, demands strong forces and constant supplies . . . at the very least, 200 well-mounted men, with extra horses."

Far from having the force recommended by Whiting, Brevet Lt. Col. William Joseph Hardee had 70 men, counting officers, some of them absent, and the Indians were giving him a fit. He wrote Major George Deas, Assistant Adjutant General in San Antonio that three private horses and two public horses and three mules were stolen from under the eye of a sentinel, who fired at the thieves.

In extenuation, he said:

"I felt as secure here from robbery by Indians as if I had been in San Antonio. I have a working party on the Frio; another is working on the river above me; the hay contractor, with his workmen is in another direction; hunters and fishermen are out constantly—almost daily—yet not a sign of Indians has been discovered in the neighborhood since my arrival.

"My own tents and the tents of my men are about 100 yards from the stable; two trusty non-commissioned officers sleep within the enclosure; a sentinel guards the horses, who cries the hours regularly; the guard house is nearer the stable than the tents; the horses are all fastened with chain halters, which cannot be broken off without noise, and yet, I regret to state, horses have been stolen despite these precautions."

In a grim postscript, added some time later, he says:

"Lieutenant Neill has just returned, and I am happy to inform you that he overtook the Indians and recaptured the horses and mules. He killed one Indian, and badly wounded another, who was tracked some distance by his blood. There were only two Indians in the party . . ."

Despite the ever-present danger of Indian attack, occupancy of the fort was somewhat irregular. In April, 1851, troops were withdrawn, but the fort was reoccupied in July of the same year. Again, in 1855, the garrison was transferred to Fort Clark, but was returned to Inge again in 1856, and there was one troop of cavalry there when the Civil War flared. After the war, Fort Inge was reoccupied until finally abandoned March 28, 1869.

During the years of its occupancy, a surprising number of the officers stationed at Fort Inge went on to greater things. We have already mentioned Eastman and William Henry Chase Whiting. Besides becoming renowned for his Indian paintings, Eastman died a brigadier general. Whiting became a major general in the Confederate armies during the Civil War. Charles J. Whiting (no relation to the first) served at Fort Inge as a captain about 1955, and was eventually promoted to the rank of major.

Hardee became a lieutenant colonel and corps commander in the Southern armies during the Civil War; the Neill Hardee mentioned was apparently Lewis Neill, who died in January of the next year.

Barton is a little harder to trace, but the only one in Heitman's "Historical Register of the United States Army" that seems to fit is Seth Maxwell Barton, rather than James M. Barton. S. M. Barton, whose regiment was the same as J. M. Barton listed by some contemporary researchers, became a Confederate Brigadier General.

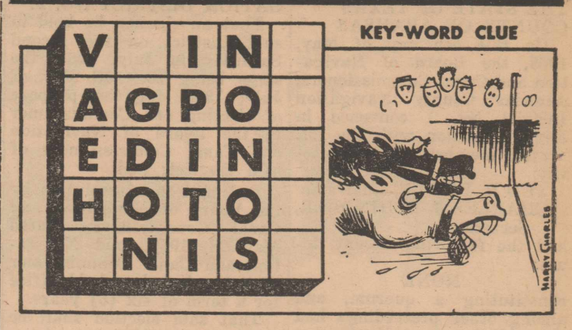

Lt. Dabney H. Maury, who later rose to be a Confederate major general, served at Fort Inge with Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, Jr., the elder son of Jerome Napoleon and Susan May (Williams) Bonaparte, and the grandson of Elizabeth Patterson, the Baltimore beauty whose romantic and short-lived marriage to Jerome Bonaparte, youngest brother of French Emperior Napoleon I, was the talk of social circles of the early 19th century.

Graduated from West Point in 1852 and commissioner in the United States Mounted Rifles, Jerome Bonaparte was stationed on the Texas frontier from January, 1853, until March, 1854, serving alternately at Fort Inge and Merrill. His letters from the Texas posts, preserved among the Bonaparte Papers of the Maryland Historical Society, throw considerable light on the life and duties of army officers of the place and period He later resigned and went to France, joining the Army of his kinsman, Napoleon III, but eventually returned to this country and married.

Other men of note that served at Fort Inge were Capt. James Oakes, later promoted to U. S. brigadier general; Richard W. Johnson, who retired as a major general to become a wealthy resident of St. Paul; William W. Lowe, who attained the rank of major general in the U. S. armies; Abraham K. Arnold, a winner of the Congressional Medal of Honor; and Robert C. Wood, Jr., who became a lieutenant colonel of the Mississippi cavalry in Confederate ranks.

James Madison Hawes and George H. Stewart were others who served at Fort Inge that became Confederate brigadier generals; Charles H. Tyler rose to the rank of a Confederate colonel; John B. Hood, who, when he commanded Fort Inge, was only a lieutenant in the U. S. Cavalary became a full Confederate General; and we must not forget one other, a visitor, but the greatest of them all, Robert E. Lee, beloved general of the Confederacy, and a very great gentleman, indeed.

"walks" right over bumps and trouble
Independent front suspension takes the "truck" out of truck ride. It smooths rough roads, protects truck, driver and cargo from excessive jolting. And on Chevrolet pickups it's a proved system with millions of miles of user experience behind it. Try it out on one of Chevrolet's great Fleetside or Stepside pickups. It's one of the big reasons that Chevrolet is first choice with pickup users from coast to coast.
