Commission Explains

City's Stand On Damage Suits

(Editors note: Following statement was issued this morning by the City Commission in answer to the many questions received by the members of the commission as to the city's stand on the recent damage suits against the City of Pampa in connection with construction work on the Hobart street underpass project.)

"In answer to numerous inquiries concerning the lawsuits filed against the City of Pampa by property owners on Hobart suing for specified amounts of damage to their property caused by work in progress on the Hobart street underpass project. The City Commission has employed the firm of Gordon, Gordon and Buzzard to defend the City in these suits and, if necessary, will employ other counsel to assist this firm.

"It is the intention of the City Commission to fully protect the taxpayers against paying any excessive sums for damages. We have instructed our attorneys to use due diligence in protecting the Pampa from all excessive suits for damages arising from the construction of the Hobart street underpass.

"Your City Commission is aware of their duties and responsibilities to see that this project is completed as soon as possible, so that there may occur the least amount of inconvenience to people doing business where this work is being done. In as much as the voters of Pampa have given this project approval, and voted bonds for this purpose, it is the duty of the City Commission to proceed with the necessary details for the completion of this improvement as speedily as possible.

"There have been numerous accidents and lives lost at the Hobart crossing and we regret sincerely that some people have seen fit to file, what your commission feels, are untimely, unjust and unreasonable claims against the taxpayers and the city.

"The City Commission, as well as the general public, has known for some years that a project of this type would be undertaken on the Hobart crossing, and that a considerable inconvenience would be experienced by the public as well as some property owners. However, damages before and during this construction as well as the improvements afterward must be considered. Therefore, the commission will be only too willing to listen to any property owners who may experience permanent damage to their property during the construction of this project.

"As in the past, the City Commission further extends its invitation to anyone to appear before it with a constructive suggestion concerning city affairs.

Parking Changes Approved On Second Reading

The second reading of the ordinance to make changes in parking in certain areas of Pampa was approved by the City Commission this morning.

The ordinance, No. 486, provides that no parking zones shall be established in the following areas: on the east side of Russell from Atchison to Foster; on the west side of Frost from Atchison to Foster; on the west side of Cuyler from Browning to Montagu.

Also included in the ordinance is the stopping of parking in alleys in the business area except for trucks engaged in loading and unloading and utility vehicles.

Also approved this morning was the second reading of Ordinance 487 which provides for the extension of the city limits to include section one of Boyd Annex. The annex is located north of Gwendolyn on property obtained from the Community Hotel Co.

The commission approved the signing of contracts with Jarvis Borne for water and sewer lines constructed by the developers in the section of their addition which was inside the city limits. The city agreed to sign contracts for the repayment of $1,260 for the water lines and $420.81 for the sewer lines.

Also approved was the repayment of $1,064.98 to Jarvis and Borne that was paid for engineering services on the paving of streets. The city repays the engineering costs when an addition is added to the city limits.

A contract to lease the site of a city water well, located on right-of-way of the Fort Worth and Denver Railway, was approved. The contract with the railway is for a period of 15 years and the city is to pay $20 per year for the lease.

Baghdad Has 'NATO Type' Concept

ANKARA, Turkey (UP)—The military committee of the Baghdad Pact nations has adopted a NATO-type concept of defense bolstered by U.S. promises of military aid, American sources said today.

The military committee was making its formal report to a meeting of the ministers of the five member nations and to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, sitting in on the crucial meeting as an official observer.

The American sources said the military committee had adopted the NATO concept that a Communist attack on one member would be considered an attack on all, even though the pledge is not specifically written into the pact.

And although the United States refuses to join the Baghdad Pact, Dulles' promise of "mobile" military support greatly strengthened its position. The members of the pact are Britain, Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan.

While the pact was meeting in Ankara's new parliament building, the Turkish minister of interior formally accused Communist elements of being responsible for the bombing of U.S. Embassy property Sunday night.

The ministry issued a communique shortly after police sources said 20 persons had been rounded up for questioning—two Lebanese, an Egyptian, a Yugoslav, five refugees of undetermined origin, and 11 Turks.

American sources said Dulles slept through the entire action and did not learn of it until the next morning when Premier Adnan Menderes formally expressed the Turkish government's regret for the incident.

Dulles pledge of military help to the pact nations was the same guarantee given earlier to the NATO nations. The technical difference is that the pact nations must first ask for help since the U.S. is not a member.

AIDS DRILLER—The Kappa Kappa Iota Sorority donated $35.20 to the Top O' Texas MOD No. 58 this morning, another step down from the crow's nest for Earl Davis, honorary driller of the well, who is located atop the derrick mast. ## Army's Jupiter Set To Carry New 'Moon'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—The United States may have a baby "moon" in the sky five minutes after the Army's Jupiter C missile is launched from here, probably this week.

The Jupiter C, if all goes well, will take just about that long to blast off from the cape, drop off three stages one by one, and send the final stage payload hurtling—parallel to the earth 300 miles up and at 18,000 miles into elliptical orbit.

That would be half the time the Navy Vanguard takes to do the job.

The Army was ordered in November to ready the Jupiter C for a satellite attempt, but it was not expected to come before another try with the Vanguard, which exploded on its pad Dec. 6 in the nation's initial satellite effort.

But the Navy rocket developed serious trouble during several attempts to launch it last week and apparently is being repaired. Another launching try is expected soon, but it is not known just when.

As in the case of the Vanguard, it will take about two hours to determine whether the Jupiter C has put its satellite into orbit.

The switch from the Vanguard to the Jupiter C for the satellite attempt was not planned in any sense and has nothing to do with a "race" between the Army and the Navy to put the first U.S. man-made moon into orbit with Russia's Sputnik II.

Still it is a change from the philosophy of using a highly refined and complex scientific instrument—the Vanguard—to do the job. The Jupiter C depends on comparative simplicity of design and sheer power.

Basically, the Jupiter C is a combination of the short range Redstone ballistic missile and 15 smaller solid fuel rockets, all of which have been flown time and again successfully and are in operational status. The entire assembly also has been test flown successfully.

Congress To Request More Power For Ike

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congress went to work today on a request to give President Eisenhower broad powers in helping America's allies beef up their atomic weapons arsenals.

Proposals for relaxing "unduly restrictive" provisions of the Atomic Energy Secrets Act to share nuclear materials and weapon design information were sent to the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee by Lewis L. Strauss, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC). The committee scheduled hearings on the proposal today.

At the same time Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy opened the door wider to seeking more missile and defense money. He said he "wouldn't hesitate" to ask for more if the 40 billion-dollar record peacetime defense budget proves inadequate.

It also was disclosed McElroy has no objection if military men give Congress their personal defenses on the state of the nation's defenses—even when in conflict with Pentagon policy. He specified only that officers be truthful as members of the "Defense Department team."

Senate Calls Fay In Labor Probe

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Rackets Committee warmed up its witness chair today for Joseph S. (Joey) Fay, former big-time East Coast labor racketeer and one of Sing Sing prison's most influential inmates.

Fay, now on parole from an extortion sentence, was expected to be called as probably the climactic witness of the committee's investigation of the allegedly violence-stained Operating Engineers Union (AFL-CIO).

It remained to be seen whether the 66-year-old former vice president of the union would do any talking about the charges of fund misuse and personal abuse.

Members of Local 542 of Philadelphia testified Fay ran their organization with a whip—hand strengthened by bully boys from his Local 825 of Newark, N.J.

Roy J. Underwood, who took over as president of Local 542 in 1948 after Fay went to prison, estimated that up to four million dollars "was put in the pockets of someone" while Fay was trustee of the local.

Stranded Driller Asks For MOD Contributions

Earl Davis, driller on the Top O' Texas MOD No. 58, is begging and pleading that persons drop cash into his little barrel at the base of the derrick which is located on the lawn of the City Hall. The new well must be drilled in aid of the March of Dimes and $2000 are needed to complete the 2,000 foot goal set for the well.

According to Davis, it is getting mighty cold and wet up there, and he and the March of Dimes need more money—a lot more money.

Persons who are concerned for the wet, cold, driller of the MOD well are urged to send in or call in their contributions. Calls will be taken at MO 5-5737 or MO 5-2515. Appeals for cash from the "driller" are being urgently made. He wants to get his feet back on the ground again, according to those who have communicated with him this morning.

The Kappa Kappa Iota Sorority came to his rescue to the tune of 135.20 which they netted at an apron party which was held last night in the City Club Room. Twenty of the 32 members were present at the affair.

Mrs. Charles Stowell is president. Mrs. John Woods made the presentation of the donations this morning much to the joy of Davis.

The Mothers' March last night under the direction of Mrs. E. A. Mack, chairman, assisted by Mrs. K. L. Green and Mrs. E. E. Sheldhamer, had late this morning turned in $2189 with other persons not yet checked in. A somewhat larger amount is expected to bring the total up a large amount.

The mothers were divided into six groups which marched from door-to-door in each block of the city to obtain donations to aid the polio fund.

A banquet will be held in the Palm Room Thursday night at 7:30 with tickets selling at $10 each. The proceeds will go to the MOD and persons, organizations, and groups are urged to buy tickets. The event is being given in order that oil men can help in the MOD drive.

Norman Henry, chairman of the industrial committee of the Chamber of Commerce, is directing the plans for the event. The Shrine Club will cater the banquet.

Senators Oppose Pay Television

WASHINGTON (UP)—A bipartisan group of senators introduced legislation Monday to put the Senate on record as opposing pay television for the time being.

The resolution would declare that the Senate believes the Federal Communications Commission should not permit pay TV, even on a trial basis, without specific authorization by law.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), chief sponsor of the legislation, told the Senate the FCC's authority on toll TV "is in doubt." He said the issue should be settled before large sums of money are invested.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said Sunday military men should not be questioned about "policy" decisions by the President or defense secretary, such as spending, but should "carry them out."

Other developments:

—Dr. Alan T. Waterman, head of the National Science Foundation, said mounting an all-out effort now to fly to the moon would be "premature." Much more research is needed, he said, before Americans can talk seriously about space travel.

—Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-N.M.) said the many-sided missile effort may "get completely out of hand" in consuming funds. He said by concentrating on fewer missiles "we could squeeze an awful lot of money out of the missile program."

Pact With Russia Hailed As Historic In East-West Relations

WASHINGTON (UP)—U.S. leaders today hailed the signing with Russia of an exchange pact embracing radio and television broadcasts as a possibly historic departure in improving East-West relations.

If all goes smoothly, authorities said it might be possible to arrange the first swap of radio-TV broadcasts dealing in international problems by this spring.

Some were frankly skeptical, however, whether after agreeing in principle to the exchange, the Russians actually would permit President Eisenhower and other U.S. officials to give their views openly over Soviet-operated air waves.

If the exchange does come about, U.S. officials said it could "blaze a new trail" to understanding between Russians and Americans that in turn could resolve the missile-tense cold war. Some congressmen were equally optimistic over potentialities of the agreement, which would open up a wide range of other cultural contacts barred at present.

Rep. John M. Vorys (R-Ohio) said once Russians learn more about Americans they will "disbelieve what the party line" tells them. "They'll know we are not warmongers and not a bunch of barbarians."

"I hope that rapid steps may be taken to give effect to this agreement," said Chairman Theodore Francis Green (D-R.I.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"The future of mankind may depend upon the outcome of a contest between the development of instruments of war on one hand, and the development of understanding and friendship on the other," he said.

Retiring Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zorublin, who signed the agreement Monday with Ambassador Arthur E. Goddard, said the agreement was a "new chapter" in the relations between the two nations.

But she added, "We're kind of worried now—it's supposed to rain today."

Mrs. Goddard said an engineer who inspected the area expressed belief the trouble rested in a sewer line lying about 14 feet below the surface.

The hole is now "fenced-in" by stakes and ropes. A fence originally placed there Sunday night fell into the hole during the night as the gaping area spread.

'Lavishly Entertained'

WASHINGTON (UP)—Evidence purporting to show airline executives lavishly entertained Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) members has been unearthed by House investigators, it was learned today.

While details of the evidence were not available, it was reported investigators for a House commerce subcommittee were examining the books of swank country clubs outside Washington and in Georgia. Sources said airlines were being checked to see what was spent on CAB entertainment.

One source said the evidence thus far was "as bad" as that dug up on the Federal Communications Commission. A subcommittee report charged FCC members with accepting color TV sets and other favors from broadcasters they are charged with regulating.

Snows Blanket Texas Panhandle

By UNITED PRESS

Snow up to 7 inches deep blanketed the Texas Panhandle today and sleet and rain fell at other points from the South Plains into North Central Texas and southward to the Rio Grande Valley.

Spearman, in the northeast corner of the Texas Panhandle, had a snow cover of 7 inches today and it still was snowing there. Heaviest fall was reported over the upper Panhandle where other sections reported snowfall of from 4 to 6 inches.

Six inches of snow was on the ground at Texhoma, Okla., 50 miles northeast of Dalhart on the Texas-Oklahoma border. The Department of Public Safety reported all roads open in the Texas Panhandle, but state highway 15 around Stinnett was icing and roads across the northern Panhandle were becoming slushy.

Forecasters predicted snow to push into the northern portion of North Central Texas by tonight with some points along the Red River to get up to 3 inches. Thunderstorms and rain were predicted for other sections of the state.

Channing, Tex., and Perryton both reported 4 to 5 inches of snow on the ground this morning. Canadian, Tex., had 1 inch.

Temperatures dropped to the lower 20s over the northern Panhandle. Amarillo, with less than half an inch of snow on the ground, reported a low of 26.

Clearing and much colder readings were predicted for tonight.

Pampa Gets 3 Inches Of Snow

A gold-front passing through the Top of Texas early this morning resulted in snow.

The white layer on the ground this morning brought smiles to area farmers and ranchers and the lack of wind aided motorists in that drifts did not develop.

Late this morning the snow had reached a depth of approximately three inches and additional snow and sleet was forecast for this afternoon. Moisture from the snow totaled .25 of an inch. Canadian reported one inch of snow on the ground early this morning and Perryton reported over four inches.

The low temperature recorded in Pampa last night was 29 degrees and the temperature stood at 35 degrees shortly before noon. The low forecast for tonight is 16 degrees.

Hole Appears In Front Lawn

HOUSTON (UP)—A gnawing hole spreading eight feet in diameter in a suburban Houston family's lawn, apparently stopped growing today by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Goddard faced a new danger—the prospect of rain.

"It hasn't gotten any larger," Mrs. Goddard said of the hole which appeared in the front lawn of her home last Saturday and has grown to a maximum depth of five feet.

But she added, "We're kind of worried now—it's supposed to rain today."

Mrs. Goddard said an engineer who inspected the area expressed belief the trouble rested in a sewer line lying about 14 feet below the surface.

The hole is now "fenced-in" by stakes and ropes. A fence originally placed there Sunday night fell into the hole during the night as the gaping area spread.

Compensation Suit Filed

A suit for compensation was filed in the office of the District Clerk by Carl R. Washington of Pampa against the Texas Employers' Insurance Association.

Washington claims in the suit that while he was employed by Pampa Foundry on Oct. 11, 1957, a clamp came loose from a mold while he was pouring hot metal. The molten metal struck his leg, he stated, and resulted in the total loss of the use of the leg and foot.

The suit states that the loss of the use of the leg and foot is permanent and Washington is asking for compensation in the amount of $35 a week for a total of 200 weeks.

National Guard Has Inspection

Headquarters and headquarters Battery 47th Field artillery Battalion, Texas National Guard, held their regular weekly meeting last night at the Armory east of city. A common inspection was conducted by the Battalion Commander, Lt. Colonel Dock A. Stuart and a staff team. The inspection included checking and observance of training, supply and maintenance primarily. Two new guard members were enlisted last night one is Pvt-1 Billy J. Willis a graduate of Pampa High School and former student of West Texas State and Hardin Simmons University who is now employed by the Magnolia Petroleum Co. The other new member is Corporal Donald D. Horton of Pampa who just returned from an active duty tour.

The local unit is selecting "Guardmen of the Month" the selection is based on appearance, military conduct and courtesy. The men selected for January are Sp-2 William L. "Buster" Brown of the First Platoon and Sp-2 Sidney A. Parsley of the Second Platoon of the battery. Headquarters and service batteries assisted the local March of Dimes campaign Sunday January 26.

The guardmen picked up donations as a result of the telephone conducted at Amarillo. The teams of guardmen were contacted and controlled by direct broadcast over KPND to radios in guard pickup cars.

Red Cross Meet Postponed

The meeting of the Council of Chapters Association of the American Red Cross which was scheduled for today at the Amarillo Air Force Base has been rescheduled for Feb. 5.

No changes are expected to be made in the program which will include addresses by Bob Izard, news director of KGNC radio and TV, and W. T. Ross, Childress.

Woman Fined On Theft Charge

Mrs. Doris Jean Carney, Pampa, pleaded guilty in Gray County Court today to charges of theft under $50. Mrs. Carney was seen by a witness outside the store as she left Hi-Land Pharmacy yesterday afternoon, carrying a portable radio. Local police officers arrested her shortly after the theft.

The complaint was signed by Lyell O. Gage, pharmacist at the drug store.

Mrs. Carney was fined $50 and costs.

SNOW

Inches was reported on the ground at the Walcott school northwest of Hereford. One inch of snow was reported both at Dalhart and Borger, and at Clayton. N. M. Forecasters said the snowfall had stopped early today in eastern New Mexico and skies were expected to begin clearing this afternoon from the west.

The snow in the Panhandle was brought by a combination of a cold front from the northwest and a low pressure system over the South Plains. It also brought sleet to the Lubbock area and rain was falling through North Texas and parts of Central and South Texas.

Rain Around Laredo
Rain was reported at daybreak around Laredo, San Antonio, Mineral Wells, Fort Worth, Dallas and Wichita Falls. Hereford, in the Panhandle, reported .43 of an inch of rain overnight. Wichita Falls had .10 from midnight to 6 a.m.

It still was snowing this morning over the Panhandle and more rain and a few scattered thunderstorms were predicted for other sections of the state. Clearing and colder readings were predicted to range from 15 to 25 over the Panhandle and South Plains, 25 to 35 in North Central Texas and 30 to 35 over the northern portions of East and South Central Texas.

In the early days of Austin, the high ground on which the main University of Texas campus is now located was a favorite camping spot for Indians. The University this year is observing its 75th anniversary.

Outbreak Of Death-Dealing Fires Sweep Across Nation

By UNITED PRESS

An outbreak of fires, including one of the worst blazes in Keokuk, Iowa, history, swept the nation, hitting hardest at the helpless, the children and the aged.

A United Press survey showed that at least 10 children have been killed in fires since Monday. There were 19 known deaths by fire across the nation. Among the dead were five elderly men in Des Moines, Iowa; a family of five at Hesmer, La.; a young mother and three children at Graysville, Tenn.; a mother and two children at Pilot Knob, Ind., and two children in Chicago. At Des Moines, a blaze started in a cafe kitchen and quickly spread into the upper floors of a "walkup" hotel, the Olympia, and the confusion of smoke and flames, five elderly men were trapped while firemen rescued 15 other residents from the second and third floors. Killed were Joe Ingersoll, 69, Melvin Allen, about 75, Orin Immel, 62, and Everett Dean Martin, 75. The fifth body was burned beyond recognition.

Wouldn't Leave House

Authorities blamed an open fire place for a blaze which destroyed a two-room frame home at Hesmer. The five Negro victims were Elgie Tippet, 24, his wife, Dorian, 22, and their children, Elgie Jr., 9 months, Bertha, 2, and Mary Lou, 3.

A garage worker, Jim Sneed, told officials he came upon the flaming home of Mrs. Frances Smith, 25, at Graysville, but was unable to gain entry either by a door or window. Sneed said he saw Mrs. Smith, a divorcee, and shouted to her that her house was on fire.

"She answered 'I know it' and made no attempt to leave," Sneed said. He heard the screams of the dying children, Sneed said, but was unable to do anything. The dead were Mrs. Smith, and her children, Aline, 8, Frieda Gail, 5, and William Augustus, 1.

At Pilot Knob, a mother died with two of her children when she ran back into her blazing home in an attempt to rescue them. Clyde Onstott, 38, said he was chopping wood in a shed nearby but did not know the house was on fire until he heard his wife, Mildred, 34, scream.

Another Tenement Burns

Police blamed the blaze on a defective flue, Mrs. Onstott and two daughters, Ella Marie, 4, and Ann Frances, 9, were killed. Three other Onstott children were reported in serious condition.

A fire Monday night in a converted flat on Chicago's South Side killed two sisters, Clara Hudson, 3, and Regina, 10 months. Authorities held the owner of the building who they said admitted the gas line leading into the building had been illegally tapped. Witnesses said an explosion preceded the fire.

The deaths of the Hudson children brought to 13 the number of persons killed in Chicago tenement fires since Jan. 20. Damages as high as a half-million dollars were estimated in the fire that destroyed two buildings in the heart of the Keokuk business district and damaged two others.

For more than four hours Monday night, fire departments from Keokuk, Fort Madison, Montrose, all in Iowa and Hamilton, Ill., and Weyland, Mo., combatted the blaze. Twice the fire was reported under control, only to flare up again.

The University of Texas, now observing its 75th year, will grant its 75,000th degree during the institution's annual Spring Commencement exercises.

ZOOMING MISSILE COST—How quickly the military picture can change is dramatized by the zooming curve, representing cost of our missile program, on Newschart above. In fiscal 1951, we allocated only 21 million dollars for missiles. The 1959 budget calls for 3,003,000,000 dollars. It is estimated that half the 1959 missile expenditures will be for the longer range ballistic type.

Why Doesn't GOP Say 'Check Record?'

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON (UP)—It would be a fair question to inquire why Republican members of Congress fail to challenge some attacks on the Eisenhower administration by means of the device which the late Alfred E. Smith found so handy in the political wars.

Smith, of course, was a master politician, proud of his policies and confident that they could withstand partisan attack. It was his habit to answer up personally when his public acts were challenged. In a gravely voice rich with the curbstone accent of New York's lower East Side, Smith would cite a challenge and exclaim:

"Let's look at the record!"

Business Slant Charged

Right now the Eisenhower administration is under a scattering fire of charges that it has no heart for the little fellow but is dedicated to the welfare of the fat cats of business and industry.

More specifically, the complaint is that the Republicans under President Eisenhower's leadership tend to put economy and tax relief ahead of human welfare; a heartless program without much vote-getting oomph.

If the charge be true, it could not be for lack of any willingness on the part of the administration to spend the taxpayers' money for the taxpayers' welfare.

A comparison of the spending record of the last five Truman years with the first five Eisenhower years seems not to support such a charge. The 10-year span covers the fiscal period 1950-59.

BRIDE CHOPS HAIR

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UP)—Miss Nguyen Thi Trah has, 18-year-old daughter of a Vietnamese landowner, cut off her hair in front of the guests at her wedding today to protest her forced marriage. Her father, who selected the bridegroom, jumped into a river flowing past his house in humiliation, but was fished out by the guests.

inclusive. Former President Truman made the budgets up to and including the fiscal year 1954.

In the comparative five-year periods, the Republican Eisenhower administration outspent the Democratic Truman administration by a score of $347.2 billion to $291.1 billion.

Five to Four

The budget lists by function nine major categories of government spending. The record will show that, on a comparative basis for the two five-year periods, the Eisenhower administration outspent the Truman administration in five categories. Mr. T. outspent Mr. E. in four.

Eisenhower topped Truman in spending for:

—Major national security ($219 billion to $181 billion).

—Labor and Welfare ($15.3 billion to $11.1 billion).

—Agriculture ($23.4 billion to $9.9 billion).

—Interest on the public debt ($36.3 billion to $30.5 billion).

—General government ($7.3 billion to $6.6 billion).

Truman was tops in spending for:

—International affairs and finance ($10.7 billion to $4.9 billion).

—Commerce and housing ($10.1 billion to $8.7 billion).

—Veterans ($25.4 billion to $24 billion).

—Natural resources ($6.6 billion to $6.5 billion).

Currency inflation which made goods dearer and the dollar cheaper was a factor in the higher Eisenhower spending achievements. That scarcely could explain wholly the comparatively high rate of spending under an administration which won office in 1952 with something quite different in mind. It could be that the Republicans do not brag about their spending record because they are not proud of it. They are in pretty good shape, however, to say: "Let's look at the record!"

Settled in 1764 by French fur traders, St. Louis, Mo., still is the largest raw fur market in the United States.

Body-Mind Drugs Combined For Benefit Of The Allergic

By DELOS SMITH
United Press Science Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Medical science has combined body-mind drugs for the benefit of the allergic. One drug is intended for the relief of an allergic attack and the other is used to relieve anxiety which goes along with an allergic attack.

It is a promising approach to a medical problem like the problem of which came first, the chicken or the egg? Some scientists argue that anxiety often comes before the allergic attack and thus is its cause. Other scientists feel the attack produces the anxiety which makes it worse.

Drs. Earl B. Brown and Thomas Seideman of New York's Montefiore Hospital tested the combined drugs by the scientifically favored "double-blind" technique in 97 allergic patients who ranged in age from nine years to 76.

Combination Used

The combination was of the synthetic hormone, prednisolone, which is a standard drug for the relief of allergic attacks, with hydroxyzine which is one of the newer of the "tranquilizing" drugs.

The 97 men, women, and children were in need of medicine to control a variety of allergic conditions from asthma and rhinitis (runny nose allergy) to hives. The asthma and rhinitis subjects were in the big majority.

The doctors divided identical vials into four groups. Into one group they put a week's supply of the combined drugs. Into a second and third group they put the hormone alone and the tranquilizer alone. In the fourth they put an inert substance, a placebo, which, chemically, should have no effect whatever.

All were in tablet form and looked alike. The vials were identified by code number and at the time the doctors distributed them to the patients, they had no idea of what patients were getting which drugs or the placebo. The patients kept a diary of their week's experience with the medicines.

Diaries Compared

These diaries when compared with the code numbers revealed that 75.6 per cent of the patients had had "excellent" results with the combined drugs but only 48.3 per cent had had such results with the hormone alone and only 32.1 per cent had had them with the tranquilizer alone.

The doctors, in their report to the American Academy of Allergy, said they had some indications that the tranquilizer might permit small doses of prednisolone to be as effective as large ones. They're now investigating that possibility.

METALWORKING: America's Greatest Industry

Manufacturers' sales in the metalworking industry again set a record—140 billion dollars in 1957. That was 4.8 per cent above the previous record—1956's $133,538,000,000. Ordnance is not included because the government does not reveal figures on it. But the classification accounts for only a small part of production for defense. Many defense items fall under other classifications, such as transportation equipment or instruments. Data are from the Office of Business Economics, U. S. Department of Commerce, with 1957 estimated by Steel Magazine.

First Methodist Women's Society Has Group Meetings For Missionary Study

CIRCLE ONE
Mrs. Travis Lively, 1012 E. Browning, was hostess to the recent meeting of Circle One of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church. Mrs. Walter Purviance led the opening prayer. Mrs. Clarence Lutes presided during the business session as plans were made for church visitation with invitations to become a member of WSCS. Announcement was made of the subdistrict meeting to be held in Miami on Feb. 11.

Mrs. A. F. Johnson continued the study of "Cross and Crisis in Japan." The three religions or ethics of Japan, Buddhism, Confucianism, and Shintoism were discussed.

The circle will meet next with Mrs. Loyce Caldwell on Feb. 5 with Mrs. Melvin Stevens as hostess. Those attending were Mmes. Luther Pierson, W. Purviance, Glenn Radcliff, Melvin Stevens, El McCauley, W. L. Rountree, Clarence Lutes, Loyce Caldwell, Frank Yealy, Clyde Medkeif, J. L. Colville, and the hostess, Mrs. Lively.

CIRCLE TWO
Mrs. Thelma Bray, was hostess to the meeting of Circle Two. Mrs. E. S. Williams read the scripture with Mrs. G. F. Branson offering the opening prayer. The discussion, "Cross and Crisis in Japan," was led by Mrs. Eben Warner, held on Jan. 29 with a Citizenship Breakfast at 9:30 with Circle Two and Three as hostesses. It was also announced that the Sub District meeting is to be held on Feb. 11 in Miami. Hostesses for the circle meeting on Feb. 5 will be Mrs. Atta Woods and Mrs. John Sweet, 310 N. Wynne. Mrs. W. R. Campbell, study leader, gave the devotional Matt. 18:15-20, followed by group singing, "The Church Is One Foundation." A film on Japan was shown. Mrs. Dosier led the group in closing prayer. Refreshments were served.

CIRCLE THREE
Circle Three met in the home of Mrs. Cleo Hoyer, 128 N. Sumner. Mrs. Don Cain, chairman, conducted the business session and gave the devotional reading from Boyd Reedy, missionary to Japan. Mrs. Paul Bowers continued the study of "Cross and Crisis in Japan," assisted by Mrs. L. M. Hicks, who spoke on the geography of Japan, and by Mrs. Lee Harrah, on the topic, "People of Japan." Mrs. Woodrow Adcock gave the closing prayer. Those attending were Mmes. J. L. Bain, L. L. Garren, Carlton Nance, Dick Stowers, W. H. Nichols, and Fred Myers. Mrs. J. B. Denson was a guest. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. L. M. Hicks, 1005 Mary Ellen.

CIRCLE FOUR
Mrs. Horace McBee was hostess to the meeting of Circle Four in the church parlor opening with prayer by Mrs. John Sweet. Mrs. Price Dosier announced that the WSCS general meeting would be held on Jan. 29 with a Citizenship Breakfast at 9:30 with Circle Two and Three as hostesses. It was also announced that the Sub District meeting is to be held on Feb. 11 in Miami. Hostesses for the circle meeting on Feb. 5 will be Mrs. Atta Woods and Mrs. John Sweet, 310 N. Wynne. Mrs. W. R. Campbell, study leader, gave the devotional Matt. 18:15-20, followed by group singing, "The Church Is One Foundation." A film on Japan was shown. Mrs. Dosier led the group in closing prayer. Refreshments were served.

Those present were, Mrs. W. L. Edminister, a guest, and 17 members, Mmes. George Walstad, Tom Cook, R. R. Lawrence, W. N. Osborne, George Casey, John Sweet, Atta Woods, Fred Thomas, C. E. Shellhouse, A. R. Killen, R. E. Hamm, W. R. Campbell, Price Dosier, Bert Robison, R. D. Morrison, and a special guest, Mr. Horace McBee.

CIRCLE FIVE
Mrs. W. S. Edeley was hostess to Circle Five. Mrs. Joe Shelton opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Fred Cary presided over the brief business session. Mrs. W. E. Abernathy, study leader, led the topic, "Cross and Crisis in Japan." Mrs. Abernathy was assisted in the discussion by Mrs. Shelton, who reported on "Great Beginnings." Mrs. R. W. Lane spoke on "Modern Japan" and Mrs. Fred Cary gave the topic, "Churches During World II." The meeting was closed with a devotional by Mrs. Marvin McBrayer. The group will be meeting next in the church parlor with Mrs. W. C. Scott and Mrs. McBrayer as hostesses. Sixteen members and one visitor were present.

CIRCLE SIX
Mrs. W. W. Adcock was hostess to the Circle Six meeting in her home, 1201 Williston, with Mrs. Vernon Langley and Mrs. Joe Kenworthy as hostesses.

The business session was conducted by Mr. James Smathers, chairman. The devotional was given by Mrs. Don Duggan. Mrs. Franklin Bell, study leader, introduced Miss Evelyn Carlton, who showed slides taken in Japan. The new study, "Cross and Crisis in Japan," was begun by Mrs. Bell. A sketch of the lives of two Japanese Christians were given by Mrs. C. F. Richardson and Mrs. L. D. Bolding.

There were 21 members, five new members and one visitor present.

RUTH MILLETT

I've been keeping house for a good many years and I haven't yet been able to figure out why it's so much harder to get a family off on Monday morning than on any other day of the week.

Why is it that it's always on Monday that a car won't start, that a school bus is lost, that the bacon burns, that the first shirt the man of the family puts on has a button missing, and so on?

Are our lives run at so fast a pace that the little bit of slow-down afforded by our weekends gets us completely out of step, and we find ourselves each Monday morning not quite ready for a brand-new workday week?

I don't know the answer. Maybe some of you other home-makers do.

All I know is that on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings everything moves 11 k.e. clockwork. On those days cooking breakfast and getting a family off to work and school is a breeze.

But Mondays are a different story. On Monday you can expect anything to happen — and some things always does.

Faces that look bright and cheery the rest of the week look glum on Mondays.

Routine that moves without a hitch on other days breaks down and hurry and confusion reign on Mondays.

For the average family, I suspect, getting back into the swing of things on Monday morning is almost as difficult and depressing as getting back to work after a two weeks' vacation.

Not that I want to give up the weekends, understand. It's just that it seems a shame that weekends have to be followed by Monday morning.

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Broiled chicken, parsley potato balls, broccoli with cheese sauce, garlic bread, celery, radishes, olives, raspberry cream cheese frills, coffee, tea, milk.

Harrah-WSCS Studies Japan

The second session of the study on Japan was held recently by the Women's Society of Christian Service of Harrah Methodist Church. Mrs. Burl Brown, study leader, had the worship service entitled, "The Church in Thy Name." The group sang, "Rise Up, Oh Men of God."

The worship center was arranged so that one end depicted the Christian religion and the other end that of Buddhism.

Mrs. A. L. Patrick and Mrs. Brown gave reports on "Protestantism in Japan," using several different topics in the discussion.

Mrs. Johnnie Pierce spoke on the subject, "Creative Christians in Japan."

Mrs. Brown explained the various articles of interest on the worship center.

Mrs. D. S. Buckner dismissed the group with prayer.

Other members present, in addition to those already mentioned, were Mmes. Ton Price, Henry Pigg, and P. D. Gross.

Stimulation is the key word to beauty for the mature woman, whether it applies to a facial cream, exercise or hair care. This attractive woman puts the word into practice when she uses a cream (left) which stimulates local circulation, tightens slack contours and smooths the skin surface. She applies it with upward and outward strokes. To both stay young and look young, she works exercise into her daily routine. Here, she uses a beauty stretch device (center) which is actually an elasticized rope that helps to whip up circulation and tone the muscles. The mature woman must give her hair extra care. A daily workout with a hairbrush, softening shampoos and color tint rinses all help to keep her hair pretty and alive-looking. A fine, non-sticky hair spray (right) keeps hair ends in place and helps to prevent dullness.

Years No Barrier To Mature Beauty, Stimulation Key Word To Youthfulness

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

The nicest thing about being a mature woman in these modern times is that you can possess the poise and charm that come only with years of living, without paying the piper in loss of beauty.

Years ago, a woman was at 40. Of course, lugging in the coal to light the stove, and boiling the wash for a family of 10 are scarcely aids to beauty. And there were few, if any, creams and lotions to soften roughened skin, and no leisure hours for the proper exercise to take the kinks out of a tired body.

Today, any woman who cares about her appearance can be attractive. Household chores have been cut to a minimum by thousands of time and energy-saving gadgets. It's a rare woman who can't find the time to do the necessary stretching exercises that will help her figure trim and stimulate blood circulation.

Most of us, now, can easily afford the minutes necessary to relax and stretch in a warm, sudsy tub, and to be rewarded by the tingly "good to be alive" feeling we experience as a result.

On every cosmetic and drug counter are innumerable products that help us maintain a youthful appearance. And every mature woman should avail herself of the added years of beauty they can bring.

There are creams that work overnight to replace the moisture in the skin and help tighten slack contours. It's wise to remember, though, when massaging cream into the face and neck, that upward strokes should always be upward and outward. Downward strokes will cause facial muscles to sag.

Joy in the very fact that you're alive is one of the best rejuvenators. And this joy will come often to any mature woman who realizes that she has kept herself looking lovely through the years. If you don't use every wile at your command, age will take its toll. It requires effort and a real interest in how you look to combat it.

It's not your skin alone that dries out with time. Your hair, too, will show a lack of luster if you don't work at keeping it soft and shining. Hackneyed though the advice may seem, don't use your hairbrush sparingly. The more you brush your hair, the more you stimulate the oil ducts that make it shine. Brushing won't ruin your wave. On the contrary, it will give it an added naturalness.

Use a softening shampoo, and if your hair is starting to turn gray and you don't like it, tint it. If your hair is already gray, take advantage of the many rinses available that make gray hair look lovelier.

If you're smart enough to use all the beauty aids at your fingertips, are careful of your good health, and dress simply and smartly — foregoing the frills of youth — you'll find that your age has added to your loveliness.

The charm and graciousness that come with maturity are incomparable assets when you couple them with a chic choice of clothing and a glowing, youthful appearance.

Water will boil at a lower temperature on a mountain than at sea level.

Then Peter's aunt told us how

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE
Peter's aunt is a friend of ours. She spent a recent holiday at his home. Among the other guests was the 2-month-old daughter of some neighbors.

After being fed, the baby was placed in her pink basket and put to sleep in the guest room. Later, Peter's aunt went to the room for her sweater.

Carefully, very quietly she opened its door. In the darkened room 7-year-old Peter was sitting on the bed beside the pink basket absorbed in rapt contemplation of the baby.

As she tiptoed toward him, he said in a hushed whisper, "Hurry up! Come and look at her ear. Just look at her fingernails. Did you ever see such little, tiny fingernails?"

Then Peter's aunt told us how

Wayside Club Has Luncheon Meeting

Wayside Club met recently for a luncheon in the community building with Mrs. J. S. Fuqua, president, presiding during the short business meeting.

A game session was held, following the luncheon and business session.

Mrs. Ford Cowan was welcomed as a visitor.

Members attending were Mmes. Paul Caylor, Clinton Caylor, hostesses; Mmes. Hack Sloan, W. F. Taylor, H. B. Taylor, Homer Taylor, Jack Osborne, W. R. Dunn, J. S. Fuqua, T. B. Rogers, Wood Osborne, J. L. Chase, and Kathy Taylor.

The look of marvelling tenderness on his face was suddenly replaced by one of panic. Flushing, he scrambled off the bed, whispering anxiously, "Don't tell anybody what I just said, will you? Don't tell them I was in here watching the baby. They'd laugh. They'd say I was a sissy or something."

His panic was justified. We do regard tenderness in the male sex as effeminate.

It is not effeminate. It is just love without any demand in it. It is a special sense of union with another person that gives us a feeling of his completeness as well as our own. In tenderness there is nothing of the effeminate man's dividedness, uncertainty and feeling of isolation.

Dr. Ian D. Suttie is a noted British psychiatrist. The Julian Press has published an American edition of his book, "The Origins of Love and Hate."

In it he writes, "The taboo on tenderness artificially differentiates men from women, making them bad comrades and throwing the women back upon dependence on their children."

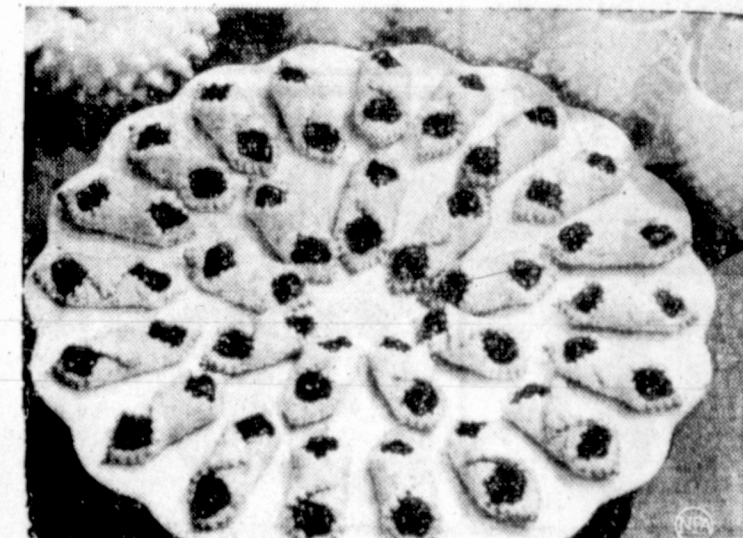

In the present state of this world, we have no right to make any little boy ashamed of tenderness.

We who do envy his openheartedness. We ridicule it because we have been made afraid of our own. As Dr. Suttie says, "The indulgences we have been forced to renounce we will certainly not permit to others."

We ridiculing parents, not Peter, are the real sissies.

THEY EVEN look like Valentine's Day. These party frills feature cream cheese in mix; raspberry jam's tucked in the center.

COOK'S NOOK

Raspberry-Cheese Frills Are A Valentine's Treat

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Snow-white cheese and love-red raspberry jam combine in frills for Valentines.

The dough, using rolled oats, faintly resembles rich pie crust. It is rolled thin and cut into squares which are filled with the jam. Served forth on a flat white plate, they make a beautiful tribute to the Queen of Hearts.

CREAM CHEESE FRILLS

(Makes 4 dozen cookies)

One cup butter or margarine, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups sifted enriched flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked), 1 8-ounce package cream cheese, raspberry preserves.

Beat butter and vanilla until creamy. Add flour, salt and oats; mix until well blended. Add cream cheese and beat until smooth. Chill thoroughly. Roll out on lightly floured board or canvas to 1/4-inch thickness. Cut into 2-inch squares with ripple edged pastry wheel or knife. Place on ungreased cookie sheets. Spoon 1/2 teaspoon raspberry preserves onto center of each square. Fold 2 opposite corners to center; press gently to seal. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 10-12 minutes.

On the less romantic side, but a recipe most people love, is hot garlic bread. Instead of butter, this recipe uses corn oil.

HOT CRUSTY BREAD

One-third cup corn oil, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 cloves garlic, thinly sliced, 1 loaf bread, Vienna or French.

Place corn oil in small bowl with salt and garlic. Let stand about 30 minutes. Remove garlic. Slice bread into thick, roll-size portions, cutting down to within 1/4-inch of bottom crust. Pull apart slightly and brush cut surfaces of bread with seasoned corn oil. Place on baking sheet in hot oven (400 degrees F.) and bake about 10-15 minutes.

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Broiled chicken, parsley potato balls, broccoli with cheese sauce, garlic bread, celery, radishes, olives, raspberry cream cheese frills, coffee, tea, milk.

Foreign Citizens Present Program

United Church Women of Pampa met Friday afternoon in St. Matthews Episcopal Parish House. Invocation was given by Rev. William E. West. Business was conducted by Mrs. Earl Casey, president.

Year Books were distributed and final plans were made for World Day of Prayer to be held on Feb. 21.

A trio, composed of Mmes. Reed Carr, Tommy Bryant, and Louise Stevens, accompanied by Mrs. Don Cain sang, "The House I Live In."

"Meet Your Neighbor," program theme, was given with the following foreign-born Pampa citizens, taking part: Mmes. Betty Thomson, formerly of Nottingham, England; Mrs. Elena Mayes of Madrid, Spain; Mrs. Gretel Specht formerly of Frankfurt, Germany; Mrs. Teresa DiNardini, formerly of Budapest, Hungary; and Robert Wong formerly of Hong Kong, China. They discussed conditions and customs of their countries.

Following the program, a Fellowship Tea was served from a table decorated with a floral arrangement and figurines. Refreshments of fruitcake, coffee and cookies were served to 72 guests with the ladies of St. Matthews Episcopal Church as hostesses.

meeting will be held on Feb. 21; at 7 a.m. meeting will be held in the First Methodist Church chapel for working people; at 10 a.m. meeting will be held in the First Presbyterian Church.

FROM THE HEART, FOR THE HEART—The American Heart Association points out that there are more than 20 forms of heart disease affecting over 10 million Americans, including 500,000 children. Nearly 180,000 persons die of strokes each year. In 1956, last year for which figures are available, heart and circulatory diseases were responsible for 53.9 per cent of deaths at all ages (see Newchart). The Association, in its month-long February campaign for the Heart Fund, has designated February 23rd as Heart Sunday, when volunteers in communities across the nation will stage a door-to-door appeal.

Adenauer Best Bet To Start Red Talks

NEWS OUTLOOK
By CHARLES M. McCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Watching operations closely. The reason: Trial publicity hurts enlistments.

Batista Next?
Diplomats believe President Fulgenzio Batista of Cuba may possibly be the next Latin American "strong man" to fall. Opposition to him is growing. Rebel violence at the eastern end of the island is increasing. Batista's strengths are that he still has the loyalty of the army and the national police, and that the opposition is split wide open politically. Navy loyalty is a bit shaky. Any sign of defection in the Army and Air Force would be regarded as the beginning of the end.

Toward The Summit
European diplomats still regard West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer as the best bet to start secret talks with Soviet Russia on reducing world tension. Llewellyn E. Thompson, Jr., United States ambassador to Moscow, has flown to Washington for consultation. But Secretary of State John Foster Dulles is attending the Middle Eastern Treaty Organization conference in Turkey. Adenauer is sending a top flight delegation to Moscow Thursday to resume trade talks. He has already made a firm proposal to Russia to start secret "de-tension" talks. Diplomats believe that the talks may start either through the trade delegation, led by ace diplomat Rolf Laht, or through Wilhelm Haas, German ambassador to Russia.

Resumption
On the diplomatic side, Washington expects talks between the United States and Red China, suspended since Dec. 12, will be resumed several weeks from now. The talks have been going on sporadically for two years in Geneva, Switzerland, between American and Chinese ambassadors. The United States believe the talks, though they don't get headlines, have deterred the Reds from attacking Nationalist Chinese island outposts and resulted in the freeing of numerous American prisoners. The Reds are shooting for American trade.

Clean-Up
It won't be announced. But Tokyo says that the recent trials on brutality charges of Marine non-commissioned officers at the United States prison at Sasebo have touched off a clean-up of military brigs throughout the Far East. Base commanders, who rarely went near their brigs, are

"NIK-KNACK"—The Sputnik school of sculpture makes its appearance in Moscow's Central Exhibition Hall, with this work featured in the All-Union Art Exhibition. The rocket-launching figure, entitled, "To The Stars," was created by Russian sculptor Postnikov. Photo and caption material were received from an official Soviet source.

George Murphy—'US To Be Sputniked Again At Fair'

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The United States will be sputniked again by Russia at the Brussels World Fair unless Uncle Sam loosens his purse-strings, says actor-politician George Murphy.

Back from three days of meeting with Washington brass, Murphy said the Reds will blow twice as many rubles on the fair as the U.S.

"Our original appropriation was 15 million dollars," the dapper MGM executive said. "But it was cut to $11,800,000 with a big chunk being taken out of the entertainment program. We've been reduced from 2 million dollars to half a million."

"Robert Montgomery (the President's TV adviser) and I are on the entertainment committee, and we're doing our best to put on a better show than the Russians."

"But it is going to be a tough job unless our appropriation is enlarged."

Murphy was pulled into the situation as a member of the State Department's Committee on Cultural and Artistic Exchanges. He was briefed by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on his trip to the national capital. According to Murphy, Russia is sending the great Bolshoi Ballet troupe to Brussels along with their world-famous circus. Red China is contributing the Peking opera.

"So far the American National Theater Academy of New York has set up a program with a couple of ballet and opera stars," Murphy went on. "And Walt Disney is doing a thing on film."

It's Murphy's hope that Hollywood will ride to the rescue with stars giving their time for nothing.

"I'm attempting to get such people as Crosby, Sinatra, Como, Jack Benny, Bob Hope and Danny Kaye each to spend a week over there entertaining visitors from all over the world. The fair begins in April and runs for six months. Some 40 million people are expected to visit the exhibit."

"Most of the stars would donate their services. And it is my job to get as many people as possible to make up the small budget we have to work with."

Murphy hastened to explain that the bulk of the U.S. exhibit

Police Seek Drug Addict In Slaying

Police of three states today sought for questioning a former mental patient and drug addict who had not been considered dangerous until children found his mother's head in a church choir loft.

Her body, police discovered, lay on the kitchen floor of her home beside four cooking pots full of blood, a chisel, a kitchen knife and a piece of broken wine bottle.

Parochial school students discovered the head of Mrs. Edna Burns, 56, wrapped in sheets in a cardboard box in the choir loft of Immaculate Conception Roman Catholic Church Monday. Senseless writing, parts of poems, a dictionary and a deed to the Burns house also were in the box.

Police broke into the Burns home and found Mrs. Burns' body. will be devoted to our scientific, technological and cultural advances—and rightly so. But he adds that the entertainment factor is important, too.

They sent an alarm to police in Arkansas, Kansas and Oklahoma for Bobby Joe Burns, 30, the woman's son who lived at the house with his mother and father, Jesse A. Burns, a factory worker, and four other children.

Dr. Granville L. Jones, superintendent of the state mental hospital in Little Rock, said Bobby Joe was released last May 2 from the state institution after serving six months for "criminal observance" after a number of burglaries.

He also said Bobby Joe had a record of drug addiction, but that he was not considered "particularly dangerous."

WASHINGTON—American ambassador to Moscow, Llewellyn E. Thompson, following his return home for consultations, on the Russian drive for East-West talks.

"We can expect the Russians to do a lot of maneuvering. They will try to get in the strongest position possible."

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—Prof. George Kimble, head of Indiana University's geography department, on whether man will ever learn to control the weather:

"To judge from the indifferent luck many meteorologists have with their 12 to 24 hour forecasts, we are still far from understanding local weather, let alone controlling global weather."

Ruether Accuses Auto Big Three Of Price Fixing

WASHINGTON (UP)—Walter P. Ruether accused the big three auto firms today of rigging prices to insure fatter profits without regard for demand. He urged Congress to require major corporations to explain their need for price hikes before putting them into effect.

Ruether, president of the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers Union, also suggested that Congress set up an "independent office of consumer counsel" to protect consumer interests before all government agencies.

The UAW leader made his proposals in testimony prepared for the Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee headed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.). He denied that wage boosts for his union were responsible for the recent hike in car prices.

Prices have gone up $5 for every $1 advance in wages, Ruether contended. The UAW plans to seek a share of industry profits as well as wage increases during negotiations with auto makers this spring.

Ruether was called as the first witness as the subcommittee opened hearings on prices in the

Clerk Replacing Missing Money

HOUSTON (UP)—W. D. (Bill) Miller, Harris county clerk, deposited a $9,000 cashier's check Monday with county auditor S. B. Bruce to help cover shortages found in his office.

Miller, who protested he was in no way connected with the missing money, said he was depositing the money because the clerk's office was his responsibility.

"I am liable for this missing money and I want to do the right thing," he said. "As the amount of the shortages increase from time to time, I will increase my deposit with the county."

Bruce said his investigators have discovered a shortage of $25,625 so far and it is "entirely possible for the shortage to pass the $100,000 mark."

Miller said the check was drawn on his personal savings and said "I still say I am an innocent bystander in the case of trusted employees who went bad."

He said the check, along with a $7,000 cashier's check previously deposited by a clerk in his office and his $10,000 bond would total $26,000 or more than the discovered shortage so far.

First U.S. civil service examinations took place in July, 1883, for clerkships paying $1,000 a year.

Tricked Into Style

"Designers have to trick the American woman into being stylish," said Scaasi. "Look... it took people like me three years to get you women away from basic blacks and browns into bold colors. We just kept sneaking them in, until they caught on."

"You women are afraid. You're constantly rebelling against the new! It's so much easier to play the sure thing."

Scaasi, born in Montreal and trained in Europe, said the continental woman has a wholly different approach to clothes. "It's hard to define the difference," he said, "but if bustles came in tomorrow, the European woman would immediately change her posture, haul herself up straight and show it off. The American woman would wear the bustle with a slouch."

In Fashion Since 17

Scaasi has been working in fashion since he was 17, studying design first in his home town and then in Paris. He worked behind the scenes for the French House of Paquin before coming to the United States where he joined Charles James' firm.

Now he has his own wholesale business, specializing in dramatic clothes for late day and evening. He's unorthodox in his use of colors—combining orange and fuchsia, yellow with orange, or peacock blue with lime green, for some startling but handsome results. His clothes retail generally between $185 and $750 per costume. A few are higher.

Girl Sought For Killing Her Parents

LINCOLN, Neb. (UP)—Police today sought a girl, 15, and her young boyfriend in the slaying of her parents and baby sister whose shrouded bodies were found hidden in a chicken coop and another out building.

Authorities also sought to link the runaways, Carol Fugate and Charles Starkweather, 19, with the recent unsolved murder of a nearby service station attendant.

A preliminary autopsy showed two of the victims, Mrs. Velda Bartlett, 36, Carol's mother and her stepfather, Marion, 57, were killed by bullet wounds in the head.

The couple's daughter, Betty Jean, 2, died of a skull fracture and lacerations.

Police Capt. Joe Harbaugh said the victims were neatly wrapped in a quilt and blue-green wrapping paper and hidden in out buildings behind the Bartletts' home in Lincoln's Belmont area.

The bodies were found late Monday by a son-in-law of Mrs. Bartlett and Starkweather's brother. Carl and Starkweather, described as a "husky youth with light red hair," were believed to have fled in a dilapidated 1949 Ford.

Police speculated the triple slaying might be connected with the Dec. 1, 1957, murder of Robert Colvert, 21, a service station attendant who was killed by a shotgun blast on a lonely country road.

DETROIT — Henry R. Hall, South Bend, Ind., delegate to the United Auto Workers bargaining convention, on the reactions of Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) Harlow H. Curtice, General Motors president and L. L. Colbert, Chrysler president against the union's profit-sharing proposal.

Yarborough Favors Oil Depletion Allowance

HOUSTON (UP)—U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough told Texas oilmen Monday that oil is "the second most important segment of Texas economy" and said he favors retention of the percentage depletion allowance.

Yarborough told the oil forum that the oil industry is second only to agriculture in Texas. He also promised to study the five main problems now facing the industry.

Other speakers outlined the

Foreign Oil Problem

Flow of tax-free foreign oil into this country and the need for limitations of imports.

The need for passage of the Harris-O'Hara natural gas bill, largely removing gas from private controls by the Federal Power Commission, as "the last chance for realistic gas legislation."

A bill which would make it a crime for a producing or refining oil company to sell petroleum products at retail or to own any gasoline service stations. The measure was termed "absolutely ruinous."

A proposal pending in the Senate described as abolishing price competition throughout American business and industry.

A tax upon the 27.5 per cent depletion allowance.

Lloyd F. Thanhauser, vice president of the Continental Oil Co. and of the American Petroleum Industries Committee, said the "divorcement" bill barring producers or refiners from retail sales or service station ownership "would mean higher overall gasoline prices for the American motorist, flood markets in some areas and cause acute shortages in others."

Houston oilman Curtis Hankamer urged passage of the Harris-O'Hara natural gas bill because

'Torpedo Look' To Combat The 'Sack'

By PAT HERMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
PARIS (UP)—Fashion designer Pierre Balmain today fired a "torpedo look" into the Paris spring collections just when every one was wondering if the "sack" was here to stay.

At this halfway point of the week-long showings Balmain stretched the sacks seen so far into slick, slinky, low-waisted tubes which left bosoms and knees to the imagination.

The rounded shoulders made it a torpedo look for sure. And Balmain's broadbrimmed hats, like tin fish propellers twirling, clinched it.

Those Balmain cylinders could well start a game of "figure, figure, who's got the figure."

So far only youthful designer Pierre Cardin has come straight out in favor of the sack look and until today almost single handedly had rescued it from oblivion.

Several designers in the spring fashion shows have reverted to a more feminine look—Manguin, Gres, Patou and Heim—and the suspense was killing American buyers.

Yves Saint-Laurent, 22, successor to the late Christian Dior, is yet to be heard from. His collection is shown on Thursday.

American buyers must decide quickly whether to sack the sack look or to back it.

There is no precedent in America for peace-time regulation over the local production of a competitively produced commodity such as gas.

Wall Street Is Asking, 'Who Will Replace Young?'

NEW YORK (UP)—The big question in railroad and Wall Street circles today is: "Who will succeed the late Robert R. Young as head of his multi-billion dollar railroad empire?"

Informed sources discounted reports that Allan P. Kirby, Woolworth heir and long-time business associate of Young, would take over the chairmanship of Allegheny Corp., a holding company that controls the New York Central Railroad and other interests.

Young was board chairman of both Allegheny and the Central.

Kirby is president of Allegheny and will remain its "money man" but over the years he has always followed a policy of being a "silent partner" in the railroad empire. Young ran the show.

Young, 60, who took his own life in Palm Beach, Fla., Saturday, was taken to Rhode Island Monday in his private railroad car for funeral services and burial today at Portsmouth, seven miles from his permanent residence at Newport.

Kirby and Young had been together through thick and thin since the 1930's. With Kirby supplying the money and Young the leadership, the two men pulled a financial coup in 1937 when they bought the bankrupt Allegheny Corp. for million dollars. That holding company, put together by Cleveland's famous Van Sweringen brothers, controlled close to two billion dollars in railroad assets, including Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie, Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific and Pere Marquette.

RAYMOND KINDLING
YAZOO CITY, Miss. (UP)—Scott Nichols was in jail today because he started a fire to keep warm. He used a railway boxcar for fuel.

COSTLY RECOVERY

Sid Caesar, Imogene Coca Back Together; Still Funny

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Sid Caesar made his ABC-TV debut Sunday night in a half-hour format that seemed all too brief. It was a little like being served an appetizer and then denied the main course. I would say the evening was largely a triumph for Imogene Coca who was reunited with Caesar after a separation of four years and two other Caesar TV wives. There is something rather Chaplinesque about Miss Coca—the sad eyes, the dainty movements, the wispy air. It may sound precious but I thought her finest caper Sunday night was a feyish five-second introduction to a commercial during which she mimed a girl applying the sponsor's lotion.

Musical Spoof Revealing
Miss Coca's spoof of Patrice Munsel revealed another side of her comedic genius—her talent for the broad gesture. Caesar was less successful during the same routine when he tried to rake over Frank Sinatra.

Woman Is Switch Tender For Rail Firm

By DICK GROWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UP)—A five-foot, 118-pound member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen sees nothing strange about being the local group's single female member.

Mrs. Irene Ingison, 40, works as a switch tender in the New York Central system's freight train yards. She considers her job a most ladylike task. "Why not?" she said. "It's a woman's world."

The pert, red-haired trainwoman works at night. Mrs. Ingison's work consists of yanking those hand-operated rail switches that route the trains through the yards. Tender Hands
She wears trainmen's coveralls, T-shirts and boots. On tough days Mrs. Ingison gets worse than dishpan hands. "It's not exactly washing dishes," she said. "But it pays a darn sight more."

"Most women are flabbergasted when they find out what I do for a living. It used to kind of get me. But now I'm proud of it."

Mrs. Ingison, the mother of a 17-year-old boy, joined the railroad yard crew during World War II when able-bodied men in civilian dress were hard to find. Many other women also did.

Just One Of The Boys
Unlike the rest, Mrs. Ingison stayed on after V-J Day. "I've been doing this for nearly 14 years," she said. "It's a riot."

"There was the time I was working in a railroad yard shed and two bums stumbled in. They took one look and ran off yelling that the world was turning against them. Some people just can't stand change," she laughed.

"The train crews used to gawk and stare when they first saw me," she said. "Now they take it in stride. It used to make the fellows tone down their language. But not anymore. Now they think of me as just one of the fellows."

"MOON" MAN—A/IC Donald G. Farrell, 23, of Bronx, N.Y., will be the United States' first "moon" man. He will make a week-long simulated flight to the moon in a 425-foot "space cabin" at the School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph Air Force Base, Texas. Under the moon-flight conditions, Farrell will be strapped in a sitting position and will eat and sleep in this upright position.

On Bridge Jacoby

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service
Ace Gutowsky of Oklahoma City, former Oklahoma All-American and Detroit Lion star, is also quite a bridge player.

In today's hand Ace used the six of trumps to deliver a key block against a vulnerable game.

North's jump to three spades was a rock bottom minimum but he felt that two spades was inadequate and any other bid would get his side to game anyway. Actually three no-trump makes because of the spade break but there was no way that North could see this and certainly if game were to be bid four spades looked like the best spot.

West opened the king of hearts and continued the suit after Ace played the nine. Since dummy's queen of hearts was high at trick three it behooved Ace to trump in. Most players would ruff automatically with the four spot but Ace noted that the six might be a very important card if used right then and there.

Hence he did ruff with the six spot and now declarer had no way to limp home with the contract.

If he failed to overruff he was down automatically so he had to use his jack. Now the king-ten in the West hand became a sure trump trick.

If Ace had ruffed with the four declarer would have been able to overruff with the five and then finesse successfully against West's king.

An unqualified rave for "Blast in Centralia No. 5," the CBS-TV "Seven Lively Arts" show Sunday. It was hardest-hitting, most gripping, most deftly turned out hour of its kind I can recall in recent TV history. Big cheers for director George Roy Hill, narrator Jason Robards Jr., and an especially big one for Maureen Stapleton, one of our larger dramatic talents.

Dina Shore and NBC-TV did well by guest Frank Sinatra in the "Chevy Show" Sunday—the half-hour I caught was a charmer. CBS-TV's "Twentieth Century" dip into "The Face of Crime" was another plus achievement Sunday. Am I getting soft?

If you watch CBS-TV's "The $64,000 Challenge" next Sunday, check the face of contestant Larry Rivers. He looks like a younger version of the show's emcee, Ralph Story.

The channel swim: CBS-TV's "Phil Silvers Show" and "Mr. Adams and Eve" will swap time periods three weeks from now. Gale Gordon, who used to play the high school principal on the "Our Miss Brooks" series, joins the cast of NBC-TV's "Sally" starting Feb. 16. "Sally" will be buried by NBC-TV after March 30.

Bob Cummings and the cast of his NBC-TV show are taking a two-week break from filming his series to cater in a play, "Holiday for Lovers," at a new playhouse in Palm Beach, Fla. ABC radio has a special American Heart Assn. one-shot coming up the evening of Feb. 14 that'll feature Frank Sinatra, Rosemary Clooney, Bob Hope, Doris Day, Jimmy Durante, Helen Traubel and Alfred Hitchcock.

Why Go To South Pole Anyway?

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—The epic trek of Dr. Vivian Fuchs across the dismal frozen desert that is the Antarctic continent has raised the question: Why do people want to reach the South Pole?

In the case of veteran adventurers like Dr. Fuchs and Sir Edmund Hillary, both of whom did it the better way—across the surface of the ice—there is probably only one classic answer, the same one as to the why-climb-Everest question: Because it's there.

Aside from the scientific observations they made along the way, plus the political implications of their having set foot on the territory involved, there is little doubt that both of these men and their parties thrill in winning a man-against-nature struggle.

Spurred Easy Way
They could have flown in. That's the way the men and equipment at the U.S. base on the Pole got there. Fuchs and Hillary spurred the "easy way."

A New York columnist, commenting on Dr. Fuchs' expedition, said that getting to the South Pole was a "hopelessly non-useful" thing.

Is there any reason why we should want to go there? There is for me. Maybe you could call it a quaint reason, or too cute, or maybe romantic. But the very geographic strangeness of the place, with its built-in daylight saving, beckons me.

I'd like just once to stand on the spot from which every earthly direction you turn your eyes is north. Standing there, with the world at your feet—well, at least, revolving around your feet—you would be at one with all the peoples of the globe in the matter of time. All of the time zones narrow right down and converge into nothingness at the point of the Pole.

Two Days at Once
With a nod to the gods of whimsy, it would be nice to stand there looking along the International Dateline, letting it bisect you, and reflecting that your heart was in Tuesday while your appendix was still in Monday, as far as the map-makers were concerned.

A trip around the world down there could be accomplished in 80 ticks of your watch by circling the Pole afoot, passing through all time zones. Since there are no sky events to record passage of time, it must be kept by clock, set at an agreed-upon standard.

The U.S. base at the Pole uses New Zealand time, putting them 17 hours ahead of New York time. But selection of that time zone is an arbitrary decision, as is one I am making here. The zone is an arbitrary decision.

Curious to see what answer would be forthcoming, I phoned the Hayden Planetarium here, got an astronomer on the wire, asked what time it was at the South Pole, and got this answer: "Ha-ha-ha-ha."

The state of Washington, named in honor of the first U.S. president, is the only state to be named after a president.

Coach Asserts

Sport Supremacy To Be In Basketball

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (UP)—High school basketball is the answer to United States world supremacy in the sport, St. John's coach Joe Lapchick asserted today, and there's no possibility of Russia or anyone else "catching up" in the near future.

"Those extra four years are the reason that our boys retain their edge in international competition," explained the one-time sky-scraper of the original Celtics. "It gives us an edge which, plus a superb level of intercollegiate competition, figures to keep us on top."

Lapchick, a modest man who still calls "em as he sees 'em, figures that the five poorest players on our Olympic team could win the title at the international games in Rome in 1960.

English Teacher Coached
"It used to be that anybody at all taught high school basketball," Lapchick said. "They'd take the English teacher, as example, and tell him to buy a book and coach basketball."

In those days, he continued, the big boys who were to awkward to "move," were slotted to the sidelines because the "coaches" didn't know what exactly to do with them.

"Then we had the 'goon' period," added Lapchick, who coached the New York Knickerbockers for nine years before going back to St. John's last season. "They were basket-hangers. But today, with the four-year jump the big boy is being given in high school, the goon is gone and those big boys are really fine athletes."

Russia and most of the other nations have made a few coaching importations, Lapchick detailed, but "on the whole they're still in the teaching-out-of-a-book stage."

Perfection on the Increase
The difference in professional basketball, as compared with pro basketball just a decade ago when Lapchick first entered the cash ranks, is indicative of the overall increased and ever-increasing perfection of the game in the United States.

"Back in those days," Lapchick recalled, "almost any good college team could beat a professional team. There wasn't that great a difference between the collegians and the pros. But the college player of today is so good that with a bit of pro experience he is a fantastic athlete. Today the college clubs can't compete with the pros because of that little added edge."

There also is the added factor that the pros play so often, a grind which drove the ailing Lapchick out of the professional game.

"The strain is terrific because the pros play three times as many games a season as the collegians," Lapchick said. "This way I get to relax once in a while."

Archer, Russo Offered Repeat

NEW YORK (UP)—Welterweights Jimmy Archer and Danny Russo were offered a Feb. 24th return match today because of Monday night's bruising TV 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena in which Archer won a split decision.

Archer, former New York stevedore, gained a lead in the early rounds with his two-fisted attack to head and body that Brooklyn Danny was unable to overcome with his stronger finish.

Optimist Sluggers To Host Fort Riley Team Tomorrow

Campanella Injured In Car Wreck

Tomorrow night Pampa boxing fans will be treated to one of the highlight evenings of the season as the Optimist boxing club will host a team from Fort Riley, Kans. in the Boys Club Building at 8.

The Pampa Boxers have suffered only one team loss throughout the season, that being to Clovis, N.M. in the first meeting between the two teams. The Pampans later defeated the Clovis squad in matches held in Pampa and additionally have won bouts with Herford, on two occasions, Memphis, Dyess Air Force Base and Dumas.

In the recent Amarillo Regional Golden Gloves tournament the Pampans walked away with five championship titles. Winners in the High School Division were Kenny Powell at 106 pounds and Lucky Dunham at 112 pounds. Open division champions were Gary Wilhelm at 136 pounds; Bobby Wilhelm at 160 pounds and Jesse Ring at 147 pounds.

At the auction, two dozen pies were sold with the purchasers allowed to slam the pie into any spectator or wrestler in the house. As all the pies were sold for good prices many of the local citizens received them through the air and a few of the wrestlers stepped up for seconds.

In addition to the pies, Mrs. Merle Kenner had sold cake and donated a total of $75 made from the sales. She also baked cakes

Abdon Torres, 112, pounds, 1956 Fifth Army Champ
Leon Thompson, 119 pounds, 1956 and 1957 Fifth Army Champion and All-Army semi-finalist.
James Hutchison, 125 pounds, 1956 Fifth Army Champion and 1957 runner-up.

Richard Jackson, 132 pounds, 1956 Fifth Army runner-up.
Fred Byrd, 139 pounds, 1956 and 1957 Fifth Army Champion; 1956 and 1957 All-Army semi-finalist.
Fred Elliott, 147 pounds, 1956 Fifth Army Champ, and A-11-Army semi-finalist.
Eddie Kitchen, 165 pounds, 1957

1st Infantry Division Champion.
Loomis Oglesby, 178 pounds, 1957 1st Infantry Division Champion.
John Coleman, heavyweight, 1957 1st Infantry Division Champion.

Numbered among the well-known boxers who will be appearing for Pampa will be both Bobby and Gary Wilhelm, Charles Snyder, and Ring. Outstanding fighters from surrounding towns will also be on hand to battle for the Pampa squad.

Following tomorrow night's matches the Pampa team will travel to Fort Riley for return bouts with the service squad.

As for the matches themselves, Sandy Scott won the opening event over Tommy Phelps through a disqualification and Killer Joe Christie took the second over Bob Giegel in two out of three falls.

The main event went to George and Sandy Scott over Iron Mike DeBise and Tommy Phelps in the first two falls of the tag match event.

Held each Monday evening at 8:30, the wrestling is sponsored by the Pampa Shrine Club. The pie-throwing was an annual affair by which the Shrine Club makes its donation to the March of Dimes drive.

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (UP)—Los Angeles Dodger catcher Roy Campanella broke his neck early today when his automobile skidded on a slippery street and crashed into a light pole.

Doctors at Glen Cove Community Hospital placed the jinx-ridden catcher on the critical list immediately after X-rays indicated the extent of his injury.

The broken neck was the latest and most serious in a series of injuries that has plagued Campanella, since he began his career in major league baseball more than 10 years ago.

First reading of the wet X-ray led doctors to believe Campanella had a broken spine. But a subsequent reading disclosed that his neck had been fractured.

Campanella was alone and driving his own automobile when the accident happened in the early morning darkness.

The automobile overturned and Campanella, was pinned beneath its wreckage. Attendants in a police ambulance had to extricate him.

Campanella, who three times has won the National League's "most valuable player" award, has had a brilliant but unlucky career since he began playing for the Dodgers in 1948. He won the awards in 1951, 1953 and 1955.

In recent seasons, he has been hampered by hand injuries. He had bone chips removed from his right hand after the 1956 season but still was hampered in 1957 when he batted .242.

To Meet Plainview Bulldogs In Harvester Field House At 8p.m.

By CHARLES CULLIN
Pampa News Sports Editor
THE PAMPA HARVESTERS make a stab to tie for the leading role in the district tonight as they host the Plainview Bulldogs in Harvester Field House for the top 3-4A encounter of the week.

Leading the district, the Bulldogs are the only team in the race undefeated in conference action. Their wins have come Monterey, 72-51; Lubbock, 83-58; Amarillo, 51-46; Palo Duro, 83-67; and Borger, 55-53. Through the entire season the Plainview cagers have amassed 19 victories against a single loss. The lone blemish came from the Palo Duro Dons in a pre-season clash, 66-61.

AT PRESENT the Harvesters are tied for second place with the Borger Bulldogs, having suffered their single loss in loop action to the Bulldogs in a 69-63 fray. Pampa's conference victories have come over Amarillo, 66-61; Palo Duro, 75-63; Monterey, 59-48; and Lubbock, 80-58. For the season, the Harvesters stand at 17-2.

In district scoring Plainview has average 68.8 per game compared to 70.6 for the Harvesters. Defensively, they have allowed 55 points per game while the Pampa squad has allowed 59.4 per game.

In the height department Plainview takes the nod, having 6'0" Bill Taggel as the shortest man on the starting five. Bobby Grace at 6'6" ranks as the tallest and plays a major part in the backboard action for the Bulldogs. Others are Stanley Morrison, 6'5"; Bill Reeves, 6'2"; and Jimmy Don Rich, 6'1".

Tonight's game with the Bulldogs will be preceded at 6:30 by the Shockers meeting the Plainview "B" team. Game time for the Harvester game is 8:30.

Probable starters will be:

Duke Hands Mountaineers Their First Defeat Of Season

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer
West Virginia's first defeat of the season was attributed today to a "home court jinx" and "the Carolina air" among other things, but the plain, unvarnished truth is that Duke's inspired Blue Devils simply out-fought and out-ran the mighty Mountaineers.

By upsetting top-ranked West Virginia, 72-68, at Durham, N.C., Monday night, the Blue Devils snapped the Mountaineers' 14-game winning streak and maintained their record of never having lost to the West Virginians in Duke's indoor stadium.

Harris Put It On Ice
Forward Bob Smith, individual high scorer with 24 points, almost pulled the game out for West Virginia by registering 16 of his points in the second half. Guard Bobby Joe Harris finally put Duke ahead to stay, 60-59, however, with six minutes left and the Blue Devils ran their lead to seven points with a minute and a half left.

West Virginia, which earlier this season had snapped North Carolina's 37-game winning streak, thus fell from the ranks of the unbeaten. The only perfect team left in the major college ranks is St. John's, winner of all nine of its games.

Duke's victory over the Mountaineers, however, was only one of many upsets which marked Monday night's activity.

Unheralded Houston toppled sixth-ranked Oklahoma State, 70-64, ending the Cowpokes' 12-game winning streak at Houston, Tex. Georgia Tech engineered another upset in beating 10th-ranked Kentucky, 71-52, to move into a tie with the Wildcats for the Southeastern Conference lead.

Ohio State edged Purdue, 75-73, and Northwestern turned back Minnesota, 85-76, in a pair of Big Ten games.
Xavier of Ohio won 76-65 over LaSalle of Philadelphia and North Texas State earned a 59-57 decision over favored Tulsa, while Marquette defeated Toledo, 58-55.

Wheaton College, the nation's No. 1 small college basketball team, crushed Wayne State University, 88-54. Elgin Baylor's 23 points sparked Seattle to a 75-67 triumph over Santa Clara.

In other games, Georgia defeated South Carolina, 84-63; Seton Hall humbled St. Francis (N.Y.), 79-74; Mississippi State defeated Southeastern Louisiana, 75-61; Alabama crushed Howard, 105-44; Idaho State beat St. Mary's (Calif.), 70-58, and Arizona (Tempe) State topped West Texas State, 88-80.

HAVANA (UP)—Pitcher Pedro Ramos of Cienfuegos has been chosen most valuable player in the Cuban Winter League. Ramos also pitched for the Washington Senators.

Government Jobs

We wouldn't have a government job for anything in the world. We're not fooling. Regardless of the honor and prestige even such paltry employment as civil service jobs seem to endow, we simply couldn't go along. There are so many wonderful things in life that we marvel at the way so many men and women surrender to the temptation of security and ease within the confines of a political sinecure.

Look at what can be done by people working in free enterprise. Ignorance can be overcome. So can drudgery. Jobs related to manufacturing and service provide all kinds of things that people need and want. There is a wide open field here for the advancement of civilization. Contrast this to anything the government can provide. All it can offer is a career which saddles itself upon the productive energies of the entire populace without offering any improvement to the populace. However menial and lowly a government job may be the fact remains that it is basically a parasitical position, deriving its longevity upon the use of taxation and hence upon the use of force and violence. And this is true at all levels of government from the federal bureau down to the local post of dogcatcher.

What does government do? It produces nothing. It simply confines the abilities of people generally under the guise of protectionism. It restricts, limits levels off, socializes, confines, prevents and punishes. How any person with even a modicum of ambition can stomach such a job beats us.

But there are millions already employed by our tax money, and millions more eager for political favor, for political appointment, for political emoluments. Actually it's astounding. To think that free American citizens have come upon such evilly dependent days.

Then, too, look at the demands still other people constantly make of their government. Every evil to which human life is subject, is trotted over to some bureau with the demand that the problem be solved. And this is true whether the evil has to do with poverty, ignorance, human associations, personal habits, culture, or just plain human cussedness.

"Something's got to be done" is the public cry, echoed and amplified by the government employees themselves. "There's got to be a law." And the use of force is envisaged as the simple panacea for all human ills. "We'll make the world over in our own image," is the political credo of our times. "Nothing succeeds like compulsion."

What is the matter with us as a people? Where do we find the fervor that causes us to negate the principles of our civilization as we idly cling to fantasies of a better life invoked by clubs and guns and bayonets? And how can people recognizing that government is only force, flock in such numbers to the hiring halls of organized coercion? Especially, how can this occur when the rewards, both personal and financial, are greater elsewhere?

Our hearts go out to the young people coming through today's government schools. They are being urged, abetted, bribed and pampered to attempt a government career. The propaganda calling for more people in government is almost at flood stage.

We often think of that ancient precept put forth in the scriptures. "Those who live by the sword shall perish by the sword." To bring it up to date, it could be paraphrased: "Those who live by government coercion shall perish by their own device."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES
The Unions' Remedy For Unemployment

The leaders of AFL and CIO have one easy remedy for unemployment. It is to increase wages and take the increase out of profits. That sounds very fine to those who are going to get the increase.

Their argument is that the workers do not have enough dollars to buy back what they produce. But the workers buy back very little of what they produce. A man who is producing certain parts of an automobile doesn't want to buy back the part he is producing. He wants to buy the whole automobile. If the automobile cannot be made without that part and he has an exclusive monopoly in producing that part, he can stop the whole automobile from being produced because he wants so much for that one part that others will not buy the automobile. To a certain degree that is what is happening in the automobile business today and causing unemployment.

Profits Going Down
What the union "educators" do not explain is when profits are going down as they are now at present wages, how they can be further decreased by increased wages. In fact, only a few efficient companies make profits. Many of them lose money. They seem to think that more jobs can be sold the more costly they are. Nothing else can increase sales on that basis.

Now, the National Chamber of Commerce is issuing an "Economic Intelligence" bulletin. In it they show:

- (1) Average Hourly Earnings in Manufacturing from 1950 to 1957
- (2) Compensation of Employees (By billions)
- (3) Corporation profits (before taxes) (By billions)
- (4) Net corporation profits (after taxes)
- (5) Consumer Prices

They used the figures from the Departments of Commerce and Labor.

Listing the above classifications by number in order to get them in one column, they are as follows:

|     | 1950  | 1954  | 1st Half '57 | % Chg  |
|-----|-------|-------|--------------|--------|
| (1) | 1.17  | 1.58  | 2.00         | +42.0% |
| (2) | 11.1  | 11.5  | 12.0         | +4.0%  |
| (3) | 40.9  | 43.9  | 45.9         | +5.0%  |
| (4) | 22.1  | 21.9  | 21.9         | 0.0%   |
| (5) | 105.8 | 116.3 | 121.0        | +13.7% |

The Economic Research Department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States writes: "Average hourly earnings in manufacturing went up over 40 per cent from 1950 to 1957. Weekly earnings in manufacturing showed a comparable rise. Total compensation of employees increased from about $154 billion in 1950 to $241 billion in 1956. In the third quarter of this year the wage bill was running at $257 billion, a rise of $103 billion, or 66.6 per cent, since 1950. Meantime, even in the boom years, corporate profits have never reached the 1950 after-tax peak level of $22.1 billion."

In the whole period consumer prices rose by nearly 18 per cent, and since 1955 by 5.7 per cent. The rise in wages in manufacturing and the rise of total compensation of employees would have been physically and arithmetically impossible without these price increases. None of these stubborn facts are even mentioned in the AFL-CIO pamphlet. How anyone can conclude that the rise (no rise) in profits caused the rise in prices is beyond comprehension. But even slick paper is very patient.

Entrepreneurial Differential Costs
"This AFL-CIO pamphlet, like so many political attacks on business, picks out a few situations which seem to prove what was wanted in the first place. Possibly, this derives from a fundamental anti-profit animus, as well as from anxiety or bargaining strategy. At any rate, it is a serious attack on our industrial system and, in fact, on any system of private enterprise and free market pricing."

"In most industries, be it steel, furniture, agriculture, retail trade, airlines or others, there are likely to be (1) low-cost producers, (2) high-cost and marginal producers, (3) a few even submarginal and (4) others between the lowest and highest-cost producers."

"...Possibly, these companies all make an identical product, say, carbon steel. It sells at a fairly uniform price. The marginal producers, with costs equal to the selling price are just breaking even. A few companies (sub-marginal) may be making losses; and others may be making profits, with some making very large profits as a per cent of sales or on invested capital."

"Larger profits of a few are the reward for effective cost control and, possibly, effective promotion, merchandising and quality improvement."

"Our growth and strength depend heavily upon these low-cost producers. They should expand. Their above-average profits suggest that they are using human and other resources with skill. They are meeting free-choice human demands."

Smaller Nations In Doubt Of Status With US

By RAY TUCKER

SYDNEY, Australia. — When is a world alliance against Russian Communism not a world alliance? The heads of state and diplomats throughout the world, especially of the smaller nations, do not know where they stand on this question as a result of Secretary Dulles' attitude. Specifically, they do not know what aid or protection they will obtain from the United States in the event of an attack by Moscow's forces.

It is for this reason that so many members of the lesser pacts, by comparison with NATO, favor an attempt to come to terms with the Kremlin, thereby displeasing Dulles. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan voices their desire far more clearly than does the U. S. Secretary of State.

In answer to queries by pro-West members of the Baghdad Pact, METO, SEATO and ANZUS, Dulles insists with great emphasis that he does not contemplate a system which will tie together those loose and scattered groupings of anti-Moscow nations.

CONFUSES DIPLOMATS — But in the same breath, he advises them that there will be more effective "liaison" and an attempt to co-ordinate military, economic and political policies. He explains that this objective will be achieved through consultations, and by attaching mutual representatives to all these alliances.

Thus, Dulles will explain Washington's or NATO's plans to a member of other organizations by calling in the ambassador to the U. S., or the American representative at Bangkok, Thailand, SEATO headquarters will speak for Dulles there.

To many foreign diplomats, this arrangement amounts to a working agreement among the several anti-Communist groups. Otherwise, they ask, what is the purpose of "more effective liaison, consultations and an exchange of agents," such as Dulles contemplates.

But he advises them, and with considerable heat, that their conclusion is wholly incorrect. This is not the first seemingly legalistic exposition by Dulles that mystifies our Allies.

AUSTRALIAN CRITIC — One severe critic of Dulles' diplomatic legalism is Richard G. Casey, Australian Minister for External Affairs and former Ambassador to Washington. In his opinion no "piecemeal" opposition to Russia's aggressive aims can be successful in peace or war. If Moscow is repelled on one front — by NATO in Europe, for instance — it will assume the aggressive on another section.

The Kremlin has used this strategy twice already. When balked in Western Europe, Stalin helped to provoke the conflict in Korea. When stalemated there by United Nations forces, Moscow began the Middle East maneuvers that have resulted in establishment of beachheads in Syria and Egypt.

The United States has assumed major responsibility, military and financial, for erecting barriers against further expansion. Yet a Russian thrust into this oil-rich crossroads of the world would be an equally serious menace to the members of every other alliance which Dulles refuses to tie together.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

A distressing letter comes from a reader, Mrs. R., who says that she is allergic to dust, silk, kapoc, cigarette smoke, perfume, soap and "food." She also writes that she has a great deal of difficulty with shortness of breath.

It is apparent that the writer of this letter is in a pretty bad way. Whether all her symptoms are the result of an allergy or not is uncertain, although it does appear that she is allergic to an enormous number of substances. But I cannot believe that she has trouble from all kind of food.

The problem is certainly complicated, and the correspondent must resign herself to many studies, tests and, probably, difficulties in management.

ASSUMING that allergy is involved in her difficulties I shall make a few general remarks about the subject.

First, allergy is defined as an increased sensitiveness to some foreign protein. This protein can be contained in foods, inhaled in the form of pollen from the air, obtained from such things as weeds, lacquer or almost anything with which one comes in contact.

If only one kind of food is causing an allergic reaction the difficulty can be controlled by avoiding that food. In some cases, however, a person may be sensitive to wheat or milk, both of which are used in the cooking and preparation of so many foods that a real problem exists.

The management of food allergy is difficult. The first problem is to find out what food, or foods, are at fault.

Sometimes simple dislike may give a clue. The patient herself may be able to tell from sad experience what foods (like shrimps or strawberries) always give trouble.

THE HISTORY of reaction is important. In other words, a person ought to know pretty well what he or she has eaten at a meal

Mac's Get-Rich-Quick Ideas While In Europe

By HENRY McEldore

VALENCIA — Half of we Americans who come to Europe for a visit, either long or short, soon find our heads filled with get-rich-quick schemes.

Thousands of us, for example, have dreamed of making a mint out of drive-ins. There aren't any in Europe, and we figure that motorists would swarm to a quick-service place, especially if it had lots of carhops wearing brief, attractive clothes.

Motels are another feature of the American landscape that Europe doesn't boast. There are a few scattered here and there, but even the best ones are like ours or fifteen to twenty years ago, and motels with free TV, swimming pools, and air-conditioning are unheard of.

Goodness knows Europe could use a few motels, or any other kind of reasonably-priced, comfortable inns. Unless the traveler stays at a de luxe or first-class hotel, he drops down to establishments which would distress even an old-time snuff drummer.

Why some enterprising gent with cash hasn't built a string of motels along the highways of Europe is a mystery.

They wouldn't have to be the lavish creations of America. Let them advertise a combination tub and shower and hundreds of motorists would book rooms out of curiosity.

A chain of coffee and hamburger joints across the face of Europe is my own pet project. I have yet to see any European who, once he has tasted a hamburger, didn't smack his lips and want more. And the hamburgers the European gets are European hamburgers, not like ours. Give him a chance to buy hamburgers on toasted buns, with relish, tomato, pickle, mustard and everything else to put on them, and he'd eat steadily all day.

Serve the hamburgers with a big cup of real coffee and — well, you'd wear out ten percolators a week.

Another project that only the lack of cash prevents me from introducing to the Old World is the Five-Minute Car Wash. Or has it been reduced to the Two-Minute Wash since I've been gone? A European adores their cars. They watch over their cars as if they were helpless babies. I am sure that a car wash would have the "Standing Room Only" sign out most of the time. And there is no scarcity of cars. Traffic is as bad as it is at home, and I imagine that a European man hates to wash a car just as much as does his American opposite number.

Cafeterias are another American creation that Europe would go for. All this talk about a European wanting to spend two hours over a meal is not true. The few quick-service restaurants — nearly all are in railroad stations — are jammed all the time. Given the chance, a European can gulp his food as fast as any stenographer perched on a drugstore stool.

If any millionaire wants to launch these projects, I'll be happy to be cut in for half. I'll even do a little car-washing, car-hopping, bed-making, or hamburger trying at the start!

Apparently self interest has led which was followed by hives or other signs of food allergy.

Skin tests of various foods are commonly used, but are not always completely reliable and it requires an expert to interpret them.

Trial diets, which include or exclude suspected foods are often helpful in finding the foods responsible. A food diary in which a record is kept of the foods eaten at each meal may be of help.

In a problem such as that presented by Mrs. R. so many substances are involved as to make it quite difficult. She can hardly avoid all of them: neither is it likely she can be desensitized to so many things.

Perhaps she has exaggerated or is overoptimistic. In any event she certainly needs a lot of help.

Only Montana and Texas have more acreage devoted to farms than does Kansas.

'Atomic Anxiety' More Complicated

(Science Today)
By DELOS MITH

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—To complicate further the atomic anxiety overhanging the world, two research scientists have demonstrated an extraordinary attraction of algae for Cesium-137.

Cesium-137 is a radioactive isotope of the rare metallic element and is one of the critical products in the fall-out from atomic bomb explosions and of the waste products of atomic power reactors.

It is critical because its half-life is 26.6 years and because it dissolves in water. Thus, water contaminated with Cesium-137 would be likely to remain contaminated for a long time.

Algae Cleans Water
Louis G. Williams of Furman University, Greenville, S.C., and H. D. Swanson of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, tested the ability of algae to decontaminate Cesium-137 contaminated water. The species of algae, Euglena,

Stokowski-'US Is In A Cultural Renaissance'

By DOC QUIGG

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—"There is an intense musical creative heat in America now—I believe we are at the start of a great growth, a renaissance, of cultural life," Leopold Stokowski, commonly known as Stok, the proprietor of what may be the best known set of hands in the country. He spread them wide in a maestro's gesture as he made that statement.

"Look at this," he said, hefting a looseleaf book. "I receive scores from all over the world, and these are my notations of thousands I have studied. There's an extremely talented young generation of composers arising in the U.S. and Canada. In the last 10 or 12 years there has been a marked growth of our composers."

Orchestras Spring Up
"A second evidence of the musical renaissance is the fact that orchestras are springing up all over the country. I conduct the Houston Symphony Orchestra, but there are two others in the same city. Many cities have three orchestras."

"And another thing—I notice more and more talented individual artists, instrumentalists and singers."

Stokowski began waving his eloquent hands before symphony orchestras as a conductor more than 50 years ago and has put there is water there is algae and water is susceptible to contamination by Cesium-137 originating from fall-outs and the operation of atomic power reactors.

But algae is food for fish—it is the base of the food pyramid of all the inhabitants of water, many of whom are prime food for mankind. So, rather than lessening atomic anxiety, the demonstration can only complicate it. Radioactive Cesium-137 could get into the base of the pyramid and work its way upward through the bodies of water creatures and end up in man.

ACTION NEVER CAME SO BEAUTIFULLY PACKAGED

... or offered so many new ideas about driving pleasure! CHEVROLET has blended bold new styling with brilliant advances in riding comfort and engine performance to come up with a BEAUTIFULLY MOVING THING.

There's an unmistakable sense of action in the style of this new Chevrolet. You see it in the bold way the windshield rakes back at the corners, in the deeply sculptured gull-wing rear that looks like the very shape of motion. Even the way that trim, slim steering wheel feels in your hand tells you there's potent performance in this package!

Just twist the key. This one snaps awake and into action on a moment's notice, and puts out the kind of performance that puts pleasure into driving. V8's with up to 280 h.p. supply the action. Full Coil suspension and a new body-frame design turn that action into a smooth, sweet-handling ride. If you like Chevrolet's looks, wait till you sample its life! Your Chevrolet dealer will arrange it.

Children's Dental points up both the need and the means for prevention and control. Teeth are designed to last a lifetime. Yet nearly half the population over 40 has or needs artificial dentures. In a country with the finest dental know-how in the world, our dental health is scarcely a candidate for honors.

RUTH MILLETT

"I wish you'd tell my parents", writes a 16-year-old boy, "that they are unreasonable and old-fashioned. I'm the only kid my age I know who has to be in at a certain time. All the other boys stay out as late as they want to. Their parents don't even know when they get in at night."

"Maybe you can persuade them that I'm old enough to go and come as I please and stay out as late as the rest of my gang."

Not me. Every time I pick up a newspaper and read about a gang of teenagers being picked up by police at two or three or four o'clock in the morning for stealing hubcaps or breaking street lights or blowing up mailboxes or whatever, I wonder what kind of parents they have to let them roam the streets all night.

And, I'm sure, that is the first thought that occurs to most adults. Of course, you'll argue that just because a boy is out riding around at three in the morning it doesn't necessarily follow that he is going to do something that will get him into trouble.

It doesn't. But the chances of a crowd of teenagers getting into trouble are certainly higher in the early morning hours, when there's nothing to do but ride around and try to think up something exciting, than in the before-midnight hours when there is plenty of legitimate amusement open to them.

And there's another thing that rarely gets mentioned these days. Health—need to get plenty of sleep. Teen-agers—purely for the sake of their kids are home and safe for the night under their own roof.

So don't talk to me about old-fashioned parents. My firm conviction is that there aren't ENOUGH old-fashioned parents.

Chapped hands in chilly, wet weather can be avoided. Always put on gloves before going outdoors and use hand cream lavishly during the cold months.

PTA Unit Guest At Wedding Ceremony

(Special to The News) SHAMROCK. The Northward PTA met Tuesday afternoon in the school cafeteria for its regular meeting with Mrs. Wallace Fields, president, presiding at the business meeting.

It was announced that the district Spring convention will meet in Shamrock the first week in April in the new school building.

Mrs. Edward Pagan urged each member to pay the poll tax. Mrs. Robert Lee's and Miss De-lla Cowan's fifth grades; Mrs. C. Woods' first grade and Mrs. M. Burwell's second grade rooms were room-count winners, by having the most parents present, and received a $2.50 award.

The program was presented in the form of a marriage ceremony. Superintendent Kenneth Laycock officiated at the rites uniting Miss Public School (Mrs. Turman Smith) and Mr. Community (Fred Thompson, president of the Chamber of Commerce.) Stuart Tisdale of the school board gave the bride in marriage. Mrs. Chester Tindall represented the home and was the objector to the wedding.

Others on the program were Mrs. Raymond Zeigler, (Well-Balanced Curriculum); Mrs. C. T. Cane, T. Bramon (extra Curriculum); Coach Bill Lallaker, (Sportsmanship); Van Orrick (Leadership); Mrs. Jimmy Blakemore (Citizenship); Mrs. John Cutlers, School Nurse, (Health Program); Mrs. George Beatty, (Nutrition); Mary Bledsoe (Unity); Mrs. Edward Pagan (Responsibilities); and Mrs. Fields, achievements.

Refreshments were served by the committee. Mrs. Valta Garbel, Charles Sanders and Johnny Sherrod. Sixty parents attended.

Socialist Aims Known

When the big change comes and all of us are held in total thrall to "Big Brother," at least our conquerors will be able to claim with clear conscience that their plans were known beforehand. Socialism is engulfing America. But it has not crept up upon us unannounced.

The plans and purposes of the welfare state schemers have been revealed repeatedly. And just in case some of the finer points of what is being planned have escaped you, here are a few quotations to stimulate your recollection:

"People are too damn dumb to understand." (Harry Hopkins while principal advisor to President Franklin D. Roosevelt.)

"It has already been suggested that business will logically be required to disappear. This is not an overstatement for the sake of emphasis: it is literally meant." (Tugwell, governor of Puerto Rico.)

"To take control of industry and government, abolish the present capitalist system and build a worker's republic." (Trippette, while head of the Office of Price Administration, OPA.)

"The government will gradually come to own most of the United States." (Adolph Berle, while assistant Secretary of State.)

"All owners of stocks, bonds, mortgages, land, buildings or equipment shall be required to surrender them in return for Commonwealth Bonds." (Porter, while head of the War Labor Board.)

"The government will provide the market and say what and how much is to be produced." (Durr, head of the Federal Trade Commission.)

"Having once captured the government and shelved the Supreme Court, we Socialists would nationalize as many large industries as we could chew. We would do it peacefully, if possible, and otherwise, if necessary." (Blanchard, while a specialist in the U. S. State Dept.)

"The whole capitalistic shell game can sink and be damned. Tell them we have got a war on—a war to establish a worker's government." (Sifton, during World War II, a key member of the Department of Interior.)

"Ownership will become more and more divorced from any active part in the business of society. The owners will cease to be necessary." (Olds of the Federal Power Commission.)

"The government can't take its heavy hand off of business after the war." (Former vice-president, Henry Agard Wallace.)

"Society will have to devise methods that would refuse individuals the right to make what use they wish of their own labor and property." (Mrs. Evelyn Burns, chief author of the National Resource Planning Board in the board's report for post-war America which President Truman urged be accepted by Congress.)

"Congress will surrender to the administration the power to tax, direct when and how the money is to be spent." (Hansen, of the National Resource Planning Board.)

"Conditions are too grave in the world at this time to put a Congress in control of the purse strings of this country." (President Harry S. Truman in the Jefferson-Jackson Day address, February 19, 1948.)

There are reams of similar material. Nor has the trend which began in earnest during the many terms of office of FDR been materially altered despite the party change which occurred in 1952. While it is true that all governments tend to grow in size and power, and equally true that any government is apt to flirt with socialism as an egalitarian ideal, it would seem that the American government has grown larger than the formula prescribes and in a more rapid manner.

At least, the American people can never say they weren't warned. A million patriotic Americans have been sounding the tocsin of alarm for these past several years. Yet, the day will come when a great many people one tell us these things?

Well awoken as from a trance and say: "Why didn't some-

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

The Union's Remedy For Unemployment

I want to continue to quote from the "Economic Intelligence" bulletin issued by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States on the question of whether striking labor unions benefit mankind. Under the heading of "What Price Earnings?" they write:

"The AFL-CIO pamphlet directs its attack particularly at the low-cost, successful enterprises, denouncing them with vigor. It asks this question: 'Why do corporations want such high profits?' Then answers its own question by saying: 'Increasingly, corporations want consumers through higher prices, to pay the cost of new factories and new equipment.'"

"Now, it is the function of competition and consumers in a free economy to set prices. Certainly, it is not the function of a labor union or government to determine prices or profits."

"While competition may never be perfect or all-pervasive in every situation, competition does dominate the American economy far more than does monopoly. The changing relative positions of firms in an industry from time to time show this to be true. Furthermore, we have strong anti-monopoly and anti-trust laws. Where monopoly is present it is the function of government to enforce competition."

"It is true that a few corporation executives sometimes say that they need to have prices adequate to finance expansion. This, by itself, is the wrong way to put the issue, for it can, and surely will, be misinterpreted."

"First, businessmen do not desire a higher price or a lower price, but a profitable price. They know full well that if costs permit, lower prices rather than higher prices may produce larger total profits. They also know that it is not profit 'per unit' of output that is important, but total profit and the rate of return on capital invested, including working capital. Furthermore, they have very little control over the prices they actually charge. Corporations may quote prices, but they cannot make them stick if consumers balk or competitors undercut."

"Second, we should always distinguish between profits retained for expansion and profits necessary to make up for inadequate depreciation allowances. The latter are not profits at all (except for tax purposes) but purely a technical result of inflated capital replacement costs."

"Third, and much more important, let it be stressed that it is the function of competition and freedom of entry to discipline the market and govern prices. When profits are unduly high for a spell such a situation encourages expansion of existing companies and new entrants into the industry. Profits below normal, for any length of time, encourage the retirement of some of the assets and resources from the industry. Expansion or contraction of the industry, as the case may be, operates on the supply side of the market to establish a new equilibrium price and volume of output."

"Now, if corporation executives and the stockholders in highly successful enterprises are willing to forego dividends and use the fund to expand the enterprise, such funds do not come out of the hides of the consumers, but rather are the result of superior management and foregone dividends. Prices still tend to be fixed at the marginal cost of production—the costs of the marginal producers. This fact needs to be continuously re-emphasized. That prices tend to be governed by the costs of marginal suppliers is a condition of efficient social use of resources. It is an idea inherent in all economic analysis. Nevertheless, it sometimes seems to be forgotten."

"Finally, business executives, as well as others, ought to understand the nature and character of the entrepreneurial differential costs and profits. They should never be driven into the position of apologizing for profits or the profit system. If a competitive system of free enterprise, freedom of consumer choice and freedom of occupational choice is to be maintained, profits must be allowed to perform their essential social functions."

"And if low-cost competitive producers and their shareholders wish to plow back earnings into new and improved facilities, this too is a matter of free choice. It can hardly be considered an anti-social act—unless private investment has now somehow become immoral or unnecessary."

The Boston Tea Party occurred Dec. 16, 1773.

Secret Meetings Of Power Are Also Found In US

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — Some weeks ago a number of our fellow citizens foregathered near a tank town called Apalachin, just north of the Pennsylvania line and a look and a holler west of Binghamton. They were attending a steak-fry and behaving in a genteel, law-abiding way. However, New York State Police floundered in invading the home of Joseph Barbara, the host, with no pretense of an emergency nor any legal writ.

Ever since, that god of our idolatry, The Press, including the narcotic weeklies that excite passion and distort opinion, has been hollering "Mafia." This term implies that people of Italian parentage and culture have criminal tendencies. There is no such thing as the Mafia in this country. The resort to this expression is a wretched trick of a journalism that would not dare do the same to any other element of our society.

The New York cops did not find a pea-shooter at this steak-fry. No firearms, no sawed-off pistols, no blackjacks. No narcotics. No dice. Yet the next morning the story squawked all over the papers and, in one quirk of editorial judgment, the photograph of Frank Costello appeared in the center of a line-up of five faces, with a leering observation in the text that Mr. Costello wasn't there. The other four had been there. Not to imply that I am going steady with Mr. Costello. I did discuss this with him and he said, "But Harry Truman wasn't there, either. I was home with my wife. Why pick on me?"

I note a suspicious distinction between the treatment of this revival of an ancient social rite and the performance of our journalism in relation to other big, secret assemblies.

In 1908, a group of rich conspirators sneaked down to Jekyll Island, off the coast of Georgia, and organized the Federal Reserve which to this day permits persons absolutely unknown to the American people to jiggle the price of the dollar and the value of our savings, pensions investments and money-in-pants. This was arranged by Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island, whose daughter was the mother of the present crop of Rockefeller brothers. The world never heard a word of it until, years later, the story broke with a dull, powdery puff. Our people are just too dumb to understand such things. Nevertheless, when the Federal Reserve hiked the interest rate last summer wiping out billions of theoretical values day after day, that was a direct consequence of the secret meeting of private citizens on Jekyll Island. And actually, those people from Wall Street did sneak down there. They used false names even among themselves, they did the whole business on the sneak, and there were foreigners among them.

A number of similar clambakes within the last three years have been much more portentous than the breakfast at Apalachin. There is not a wisp of evidence that Barbara's guests were an underworld chamber of commerce, but even if I assume that these fellows were manipulating a world market in heroin, loaded dice, lopsided roulette wheels and illicit behavior by pretty females, I find the case less ominous to all of us than the potentials of last year's tip-toe meeting at St. Simon Island, close by Jekyll Island.

This one was attended by Arthur Hays Sulzberger, the publisher of the New York Times, and Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution both pretentious journalists who for this meeting divested themselves of the only titles that give them any public importance, however spurious. They smothered a story that deserved loud journalism.

Last fall, Henry Luce convoked an International Klavern near San Francisco attended, so AP said, by "500 capitalists from 61 nations" under the aegis of "Time-Life International and the Stanford Research Institute," whatever those may be. Luce's Time Magazine did not refer to his part in the deal, but his Life Magazine did. But who the hell is Luce? When I was last in Rome, he convened a "conference" of an odd bunch called the Bilderberg Group, with Paul Hoffman as the principal American speaker. I chased Hoffman for days and he haunted the leaky old Palace where Luce pulled it off, but I never caught up with Hoffman and he sent me word that he had kept no notes of his speech. Luce's wife was our ambassador in Rome then and the Embassy underwrote the show.

Very quietly, soon before the "Time-Life International and Stanford" etcetera conclave, old Cyrus Eaton, of Cleveland, who is rich, headstrong and perverse, convened an impudence at Poughkeepsie, Nova Scotia, his summer home, attended by a lot of Russians who might not have been welcome in this country. This also was confidential and an independent, private party. And since then we have had the "report" of "special studies" of the Rockefeller Brothers' Fund. All these are portentous only good, but these giants of mere wealth and magazine power could do us much worse harm if their activities get out of control than any bunch of uncouth loafers holding a secret steak-fry.

The Rockefeller Brothers are nonentities without their money. Eaton is just a man without portfolio. And my knowledge of Luce and his wife and of his journalism does not recommend him for unlimited confidence.

The Doctor Says

By Edwin J. Jordan, M. D.

Mrs. R. has written that pneumonia is prevalent in her neighborhood. She is somewhat confused about the different varieties and asks which are the most serious.

I cannot in a single column discuss all the different kinds of pneumonia, though probably the three most important are: lobar pneumonia, caused by any one of several different germs or mixtures of them; and the various viral pneumonias.

Furthermore, a virus disease such as Asian flu may be complicated by any one of these three types of pneumonia. Indeed, in a great influenza epidemic such as that during the first World War, most deaths were the result of

The American Way

JUST AN OLD FOGY
By GEORGE PECK

Many times I've been accused of being an old "fogy," that I'm still living in the good, old "horse-and-buggy" days, that the parade of progress has passed me by. And why? Because I still believe in the cardinal virtues that in times gone by contributed so much to the welfare, prosperity and happiness of the American people.

And now I'm again leading with my chin, in the full knowledge that once more I'll be bringing down on my balding head, a heap of recriminations from my "do-gooder" friends (?) who believe, or who pretend to believe, that things for its citizens that they can and should do for themselves—the things which they formerly did and by so doing created the world's greatest civilization.

Russia has beaten us to the draw by launching Sputniks, number one and two. In the opinion of some of our bureaucrats at Washington, the answer to this challenge is to appropriate more tax-money for missile research and development, and to have the Federal Government give aid-to-education. They see in Russia's Sputniks an opportunity to trot out the so often spurned "Federal Aid To Education" and at long last foist it on the several States.

Their argument is that Russia is turning out more scientists than the U. S. A., and that it is necessary for the Federal Government to give aid to the States if we are to catch up and pass Russia in the "Production of Scientists Race." But this, in the humble opinion of this scribe, is not the answer to the problem. It ignores the basic reason not only for this nation's failure to turn out scientists, but experts in most of the other professions.

And that basic reason is "progressive education" which over the past two decades has blighted the nation's educational system—which has succeeded in practically eliminating personal responsibility, competition and initiative from the minds and hearts of our public school, high school and college students. The theory of "progressive education" is that all students must be given equal rewards for unequal performances—no student must be flunked because it would give him or her an inferiority complex for life. Yes, I'm an old "fogy." I still believe as did my father and my grandfather that the primary purpose of education is to prepare the adolescent to fight the battle of life. Life is a struggle and if struggle is eliminated in the schools, how in the name of all that is holy, can our schools carry out their proper function of readying the student to cope with the struggle he must face as an adult?

Our educational system is sick—very sick. The Administration's scheme of appropriating money for helping the States bring forth more scientists would treat only the symptoms—not get at the root of the disease. It would fall short of the mark.

During the past several years I've talked with hundreds of employers, both large and small. Their experiences dovetail with my own. The chief concern of the young American high school or college graduate seeking employment (the product of "Progressive Education") is not an interest in the opportunities offered for advancement, but rather chiefly, if not exclusively, a concern as to the number of vacations with pay, sick leave, unemployment compensation, the number and length of coffee-breaks, and how soon he can be retired on pension. It doesn't enter his mind to find out just what his duties are to be and to figure how he can make his fair contribution to the success of his prospective employer's business.

In other words, the graduates of our schools today, have been transformed from self-reliant lovers of individual freedom, scoring interference with their personal and private affairs, to learners relying upon government largesses and acceptance of government dictation in each and every phase of their activities.

Yes, I'm an old fogy. I recall the time when the home and the school worked together to so discipline the growing child that when he grew to manhood he was able to take his place in society as a constructive and productive citizen. "Progressive Education" has changed that and until we discard that debilitating system, no amount of money dished out by Federal Government is going to give this nation the scientists and experts needed to keep America strong and secure.

CAB Had Strong Support In Allocating Air Route

By HENRY McLEMORE

LA ESCALA — A man is never too far away to be scolded by a woman—not even if he is in this little Spanish seacoast town and the lady is in Center Junction, Iowa.

LA ESCALA must be a good 4,000 or more miles from Center Junction, but Mrs. G. E. McNeilly of that city took time off from watching the tall corn grow the other day to scold me by airmail.

pneumonia rather than flu itself. I shall confine myself to a discussion of lobar pneumonia. This infectious disease of the lungs, caused by a germ called the pneumococcus, was formerly one of the great disease killers, but is now relatively uncommon as a cause of death.

LOBAR PNEUMONIA, when typical, starts suddenly with a severe chill generally lasting from 15 to 30 minutes or so. Shortly after the beginning of this chill the temperature begins to rise and the patient complains of headache and general pains.

Often pain in the chest or side, similar to that of pleurisy, is present. A dry painful cough sets in early. The breathing becomes shallow and rapid.

By the second or third day (unless steps have been taken earlier to bring about relief) the typical signs have become established. The expression is anxious, cold sores are present on the lips or nose, the breathing is rapid and the patient often complains of severe pain in the side.

By this time sputum coughed up is slightly tinged with blood. The temperature tends to hover around 101 and 105 degrees.

Until recently the condition remained about like this for about seven to ten days when, in favorable cases, a crisis occurred and rapid improvement set in.

TODAY the situation is utterly different. Treatment of lobar pneumonia with either a sulfa preparation or antibiotic, or both, usually brings remarkable improvement. The symptoms generally clear up rapidly. The temperature drops, the cough disappears, the pain is relieved, the breathing becomes slow and normal and one does not have to wait for "the crisis" which was formerly the time of decision.

The use of the treatments now available have lessened the chances of dying from pneumonia from about one in three to one in 20 or less. This is one of the most amazing revolutions which has taken place in the treatment of any disease in recent times. However, early diagnosis and treatment are still important. One should be alert to the possibility of lobar pneumonia as a complication of flu or some other acute infectious or weakening disease.

Her letter reached me via New York today and she isn't at all satisfied with my coverage of Spain. Here are portions of it, with occasional replies by the scolded one:

"Dear Wandering Sir: For shame to waste a column on your dog—or even your wife (write about them when you get home)—while you still have not exhausted all the interesting things about Madrid!"

"Have you described the loitering lovers in the parks or on the streets in the evening? Just how many different ways can a couple walk shoulder-to-shoulder and whisper sweet nothings?"

(Mrs. McNeilly, I try not to observe lovers on park benches. Snoopers used to give me a fit when I was a courting, spooning fool!)

"Have you drained dry the subject of shops? The egg shops, fish shops, fruit shops, vegetable shops, camera shops, glove shops, basketry shop, linen shops, leather shops, book shops, wine shops, watch shops, doll dress shop, silver shops, or the ten thousand and one other shops?"

(I haven't drained dry the shops, but the shops have drained me dry! That'll happen to a man if he travels with his wife, Mrs. McNeilly. I now run from shops and avoid them as if all the clerks had the bubonic plague.)

"Have you mentioned the well-mannered children on the streets, the women on the streets selling lottery tickets, the large herds of sheep walking along the streets of the city, the elegant horsemen before the Ritz Hotel?"

(Not only well-mannered children, but the cutest, best-dressed children in Europe, and that is saying a lot because European children, who aren't dressed to resemble their parents in miniature, look like children not stunted adults.)

"And the people—the gracious clerks who usher you to the door and bid you a pleasant 'adios'; the gallant, flattering gentlemen who drop a kiss on the hand of departing feminine guests; the precious, self-effacing, hard-working, uncomplaining housemaids; the caretakers of the formal gardens ever pruning and ever loving the beauty of their work."

(You're right about the people, Mrs. McNeilly. A proud people, and a reserved people but gracious, kind, and courtly, from dicker to duke. That hand-kissing seems to get all American women who come to Europe, and I am going to give it a try when I get home. I have been practicing it on Mary, and it's right good fun. Sort of a slow way to get tired, perhaps, but a start anyway.)

Pampa Boxers Host Fort Riley In Sportsman Club Tonight

To Feature
All-Army
Champions

Pampa's Optimist Club boxing team will engage in the roughest matches they've had this season tonight in the Sportsman Club as they host the Fort Riley squad in a 15-bout card beginning at 8.

The team from Fort Riley boasts a wide array of ranking champions, including four Fifth Army title holders and three 1st Infantry Division champs.

Among the group from Kansas three sluggers rank as the most outstanding, having gained the semi-finals of the Fifth Army elimination.

Pampa's boxers should offer stiff competition, however, having lost only one team match during the present season, that being to Clovis, N.M. in the first battle between the two teams. In the recent regional meet in Amarillo the Pampa fighters swept five championship titles. Open Division winners were Gary Wilhelm at 136 pounds; Bobby Wilhelm at 160 pounds and Jesse Ring at 147 pounds.

A rundown on some of the top ringmen from Kansas is as follows:

Abdon Torres, 112, pounds, 1956 Fifth Army Champ.

Leon Thompson, 119 pounds, 1956 and 1957 Fifth Army Champion and All-Army semi-finalist.

James Hutchison, 125 pounds, 1956 Fifth Army Champion and 1957 runner-up.

Richard Jackson, 132 pounds, 1956 Fifth Army runner-up.

Fred Byrd, 139 pounds, 1956 and 1957 Fifth Army Champion; 1956 and 1957 All-Army semi-finalist.

Fred Elliott, 147 pounds, 1956 Fifth Army Champion, and All-Army semi-finalist.

Eddie Kitchen, 165 pounds, 1957 1st Infantry Division Champion.

Loomis Oglesby, 178 pounds, 1957 1st Infantry Division Champion.

John Coleman, heavyweight, 1957 1st Infantry Division Champion.

Some of tonight's tentative matches are:

Pampa vs. Ft. Riley

Blaze Garcia - Abdon Torres 112

Walley Nelson-Leon Thompson 118

S. Darden-James Hutchison 126

Gary Williams-Richard Jackson 130

Gary Wilhelm-Fred Byrd 135

Bobby Wilhelm-Fred Elliott 147

Jerry Argovitz-Eddie Kitchen 175

Gene Stepp-John Coleman 175

Carl McClure-Loomis Oglesby Hvy.

Some of the top fighters from surrounding area towns will be competing with the Pampa team in order to fill out the card with the Kansas fighters.

The Optimist boxers are coached by Ollie Wilhelm, Ben White, Oren James and Cliff Dunham.

The coaches expressed the view that the Fort Riley team would far excel any other team that has been hosted in Pampa this year.

Harvesters Unseat Plainview, 64-57

Gain Tie For Leading Role
In District 3-AAAA Race

By CHARLES CULLIN
Pampa News Sports Editor

Pampa's Harvesters battled to a tie for the leading role in District 3-AAAA as they broke the Plainview Bulldogs' conference winning streak, 64-57, in Harvesters Field House last night.

Before a capacity crowd of 2500 Coach McNeeley's cagers fired 44% from the field and trailed only one time during the game as they unseated the Bulldogs from their undisputed possession of the first place spot.

In the opening minutes of the first quarter the Harvesters jumped to a fast 11-4 lead before the Bulldogs' offense first caught hold and the margin narrowed to 18-12 by the end of the initial quarter.

Going into the second the Plainview quintet displayed its biggest show of power as they outscored the Pampans 16-13 and jumped ahead 26-25 for their only lead during the evening. As the second quarter dwindled, however, the Pampans again clamped down and ended the half leading 31-28.

In the third quarter the Harvesters hit six of 11 attempts to outscore the Bulldogs 16-10 and pushed their lead going into the final period, 46-38.

With over four minutes remaining in the game the Harvesters slowed the pace considerably and held to their margin of victory although the fired-up Bulldogs pushed the margin to within four points several times during the final minutes. In the fourth quarter Plainview attempted 10 shots while Pampa tried only three.

Both teams managed to pour through 21 field goals but again the Harvesters emerged on the long end of the bonus shot department, outscoring the Bulldogs, 22-15. As Plainview became more anxious the fouls became numerous and Pampa managed to gain 14 points off free throws in the last quarter while scoring only four from the field.

The Harvesters' 6'6" center Mack Layne paced the scoring attack while gaining high-point honors for the evening as he poured in 17 points during the game. Layne tossed six field goals in 14 attempts for 42 percent. Following were Coyle Winborn and Bill Brown with 14 points each, Ray Stephenson with nine and Charles Minor with eight.

In spite of the over-all height advantage of the Plainview team, Pampa's Layne and Winborn got the best of the rebound game throughout the contest.

For the Bulldogs Bill Taegal ranked high with 16 points, followed by Bill Reeves with 15 and Bobby Grace with 14.

In other 3-AAAA action last night the Borger cagers turned back Palo Duro to throw the loop leadership into a three-way tie. Plainview, Pampa and Borger all stand with one loss in conference play.

Next on tap for the Harvesters will be the Amarillo Sandies Friday night there to begin the second half of the district season.

Shockers Roll Over
Plainview 'B' 47-32

The Pampa Shockers chalked another victory last night as they rolled by the Plainview "B" team, 47-32, in Harvesters Field House.

Scoring evenly in the first part of the game the Shockers had gained a slim one-point lead at the end of the first quarter but bounced out in the second period to end the half with the wide margin of 25-13.

In the second half the Plainview cagers held the Shockers closer, scoring 11 points to 13 for Pampa to go into the final quarter trailing 38-24. Rounding out the last period of action the Shockers out-pointed Plainview 9-8 and handily held to their margin of victory as they finished the game with the 15-point lead.

Craig Winborn sparked Pampa's offensive attack and tagged top honors with 17 points. Akin ranked high for the Plainview five with 12 points.

The game put Coach Terry Culley's sophomores at 14-5 for the season. Next on tap will be the Amarillo Yarnigans there Friday night at 6:30, prior to the Harvesters-Sandies game at 8.

GUESS WHO?—And chances are that Roy Hoff, attendant at Chicago's Lincoln Park Zoo, doesn't have to think twice to figure out who's playing games with him. The paw belongs to Heinie I, a 36-year-old chimpanzee who's extending an affectionate hug for a gift of grapes that Hoff has just passed into the cage. The zoo proudly claims that Heinie is the oldest chimp in captivity, but the five-foot-two simian refuses to act its age, and dances around its cage with such abandon that workers recently had to rewire the cage's sagging metal door.

Groucho Causes Sunday TV Program 'To Flip It's Lid'

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—Not since Dec. 7, 1941, has a quiet, sleepy Sunday afternoon so suddenly and completely flipped its lid.

The trick was turned by an old trick-ster named Groucho, the gabbiest, grumpiest, brashiest, and insultiest of all the Marx brothers. What he did was go on a hitherto sedate, proper, and learned television program as a panel member and be himself.

The result was half an hour of wild spoken buffoonery in the old-time Marx brothers tradition with the verbal fireworks furnished entirely by the leering Groucho. "The Last Word," a CBS program devoted for two years to explaining the English language in a serious atmosphere of erudition with overtones of highbrowism, just fell apart into something wondrously confused.

Always Quips
Marx is a compulsive joker who never stops—onstage or off—firing away with quips irreverent on all subjects. His performance last Sunday was completely spontaneous, unrehearsed and unabashed—hilarity.

He called Dr. Bergen Evans, the moderator, "Bergie." On one occasion, he turned to panelist John Mason Brown, the talented and learned drama critic, and said: "All right, John, give us an expert, professional opinion—or better still, give us your own."

The whole performance made one wish for more rough-and-ready comedy on TV by comedians who have gumption enough, and wit enough, to be disrespectful of everything. Indeed, it was on this subject that Groucho had his one serious moment.

Blames Sponsors
The subject was restraints put on comedians nowadays by pressure groups in such matters as dialect humor, and Groucho said the whole fault was with the TV sponsors who get timid when "maybe 12 people write in" in protest. Then he was asked to name the great comedians remaining on Broadway.

"There are none!" he said sternly. He paused, then added: "Will Rogers couldn't make a living today, if he were alive. I'm serious about that. If he made fun of Congress today the way he used to, they'd run him out of the country."

Someone remarked that the only dialect comedians use now seems to be to hillbilly and ventured the opinion that that was because the hillbillies don't have a lobby. Groucho was off in a zany haze again.

"The ones that live in hotels have," he said sublimely.

'MD International' Dose Of Strong, Rewarding Medicine

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK (UP)—"MD International," presented on NBC-TV Thursday night, was pretty strong medicine. And pretty rewarding medicine.

Filmed over a period of 79 days at such stops as Korea, Hong Kong, Burma, Nepal, Lebanon, Ethiopia and India, "MD International" was a one-hour survey (minus a painless commercial) of American doctors at work.

I watched it twice (once last week at a preview) and found it engrossing both times around. I guess the answer lies in a happy combination of things: a camera with a feeling for composition and the essentials of a shot; a clean narrative free of the tired slush that gums up so many TV documentaries; and what seemed to be a sense of dedication to the job at hand.

It was a tasty example of honesty and intelligence at work behind the camera eye. And that means a low bow to David Lowe who produced and directed it.

Gamey for the squeamish
Some of it, I imagine, was fairly gamey for the squeamish—an operation upon a heart, another upon an eye with a brutally close shot of the lens being removed, a small girl with her back deformed by tuberculosis of the bone, a shot of a leg stump.

But there was never any feeling that this sort of material was being injected into the program for sensation's sake. All of it seemed a legitimate visual explanation of just what each doctor's work was all about.

There were, I would say, only two dull moments during the show. Both of them took place when the camera left the arena of the bedside. One was a brief and dull interview between Dr. Charles Malik, Lebanon's foreign minister, and a young girl doctor. The other was a talk by Ethiopia's emperor, Haile Selassie, in his native language.

However, this is carping. "MD International" was a shining and humane document. I'm sure NBC-TV will repeat it.

Vacation from Murder
CBS-TV's "Climax" took a vacation from murder and mayhem Thursday night and unboxed a trim one-hour drama, "Sound of the Moon."

The play starred Vera Miles, a neat, blonde package, in the role of an airline stewardess who is going deaf. Miss Miles' despair in the face of her ailment and her final acceptance of it was worked out pretty believably. And for a change, "Climax" forewent a crashing, splashing climax.

Royal Dano and Hoagy Carmichael turned in creditable performances, along with Miss Miles.

The channel swim: CBS-TV's next big Dupont spec is beginning to look like "The Prisoner of Zenda"—the date is in May. . . . NBC-TV's "OmniBus" had to cut out 26 minutes of new routines from its "Suburban Revue" last week because they couldn't coax star Bert Lahr into using the new material. That's why "Suburban Revue" was so strangely unsuburban.

Susan Douglas, star of CBS-TV's "Guiding Light," is expecting her third little light in July. . . . according to the latest Nielsen survey, the highest rated daytime show on the air is ABC-TV's "Woody Woodpecker."

The mighty have fallen dept.: Elvis Presley finished 20th in a field of 21 for male vocalist honors in "Playboy" magazine's 1956 poll. Terry O'Sullivan, who left CBS-TV's soap, "Search for Tomorrow," two years ago to concentrate on nighttime TV drama roles, returns to the daytime show Jan. 30 as leading man again.
