Governor Sterling Faces Charge Of Conspiracy

China Denies Agreement On Armistice

Declaration Upsets Hopes Of Peace In Manchuria; Council Delegate Rejects Proposition

Japanese Evacuation Must Be Included In Any Proposal To China, Representative Says; Dr. Alfred Sze Working On Plan To Be Presented To League Council For China

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Nov. 20.—Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations, emphatically declared tonight that he had not agreed to an armistice in Manchuria as the League secretariat had announced earlier in the day.

His declaration upset belief that both China and Japan had accepted a proposal to create an international commission to investigate the whole Manchurian problem, and that meanwhile hostilities would cease.

Dr. Sze said he had not accepted and could not accept, even in principle, any proposal for a commission of inquiry without provision for Japanese evacuation.

Working On Plan

Under his instructions from Nanking, the Chinese delegate said, he is quite unable to take any such step. He explained he was working on a plan of his own which he hoped to present to the council tomorrow.

Officials of the League secretariat told newspaper men after today's secret council session that the Chinese delegate had agreed, in principle, to the council's scheme of procedure.

Tonight's announcement from Dr. Sze placed him in apparent contradiction to secretariat officials.

It was explained in authoritative quarters that the misunderstanding arose through misinterpretation by some members of the secretariat of the Chinese attitude.

China has a plan which includes both armistice and a commission of inquiry but does not assent to continued operation. Japan has a plan, to which 12 members of the council agreed in principle, which apparently makes no reference to

TOKYO, Nov. 21. (Saturday.) (AP)—The Tokyo government today instructed Kenkichi Yoshizawa, its delegate at the League of Nations council meeting in Paris, that the so-called Manchurian armistice with China is unacceptable.

Assault Case Here Results In Conviction

Jack Godfrey Is Sentenced To 30 Days In Jail And Given Fine; Case Echoes Kangaroo Court In Lockup

Jack Godfrey, alias Godwin, was convicted of aggravated assault and battery and sentenced to 30 days in jail in a county court trial Friday which echoed a city jail kangaroo court trial in which Godfrey was convicted and punished with 20 lashes. Godfrey, 25, also will be required to pay the $22.50 of court costs.

L. A. Wallace, 51, a federal prisoner held on a counterfeiting charge, was the complaining witness. His face showed bruises and one of his eyes was swollen almost shut. He also told of severe injuries to his back. Godfrey and Wallace engaged in a fight inside the jail Wednesday night, shortly after the former was placed in the prison charged with drunkenness.

Given 20 Lashes

Testimony indicated Godfrey's conviction on a charge of stealing a $20-bill from another prisoner in kangaroo court, and administration of 20 lashes to Godfrey on the mock court's order, led to the altercation in which Wallace was beaten severely. The missing bill later was found in the jail and returned to the owner.

Wallace testified Godfrey accused him of "squealing" because Wallace had been a witness against him in the kangaroo court proceeding. After Godfrey had cast epithets at him, Wallace said he struck the younger man. Collective testimony was that the two were separated, that Godfrey later was struck on the head by a med-

Tech Homecoming Is Well Attended

Texas Technological college alumni, ex-students and students Friday night rounded out their annual home-coming program with an all-college affair at the Lindsey theater, a dance and a club dinner.

The majority of the former students came from the Panhandle-Plains and eastern New Mexico sections. No official check could be made on the number here, but reports from the college indicated a good attendance of the former students.

At the Lindsey theater program, Mayor J. J. Clements presented Coach Pete Cawthon and his 1931 squad a loving cup from the theater. A special football picture was shown. Principal event of the day was the football game between the Tech Matadors and the New Mexico university team. Informal events last evening included a dance at the country club by the De Que club. The San Souci, girls' social group, entertained with a club dinner. Dances were held at the Hilton and Lubbock hotels.

Finance Drive To Be Renewed

Local Scout Leaders Gather Friday Night And Plan For Campaign; Churches Are To Be Enlisted

Local scout officials, meeting Friday night at the city hall, unanimously decided to renew their finance campaign and to urge Lubbock churches to adopt the Boy Scout program as part of their organization. Both moves are designed to enable more boys to take part in Boy Scout work.

"The scout program is definitely religious," said Scout Executive D. T. Jennings, "and belongs in the church as much as a young peoples' department. Although religious, the program is non-denominational and works as well in one church group as in another."

Support Pledged

Dr. Jack M. Lewis, pastor of the First Presbyterian church and chairman of the Lubbock Ministerial alliance, attended the session and pledged his support of the new program before the alliance. He was confident that the ministers would accept the scouting program as a part of their work among boys.

"We are not asking the churches for financial support or sponsorship, but for adoption of the scout

Wall Street Under Heavy Guard Following Threats

Explosion Of 1920 Is Recalled As Precaution

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20—Threatening letters signed "communist" moved police to place an almost unprecedented guard over the financial district today.

Around the house of Morgan, the U. S. sub-treasury and other buildings crowding the money mart of the world, moved heavily armed plainclothes men, a trebled uniformed force, and police automobiles bristling with shotguns and one-man machine guns.

Others Threatened

Besides officials of J. P. Morgan & Company, those who got the threatening letters included Harvey D. Gibson, banker and chairman of the city unemployment relief committee, officials of the stock exchange and of the Bankers Trust company.

A vigorous denial a communist had sent the letters came from headquarters of the communist party of America. Isreal Amter, district organizer, said whoever signed them was "a police agent and a stool pigeon" and that the missives were "an open provocation by the authorities."

HIGH school bands from all over the South Plains will be invited to take part in the big Santa Claus parade, to be held here on December 11, and to compete for prizes in the parade band contest. Beautifully decorated floats from Lubbock and neighboring cities will also be placed into competition in connection with this greatest of all Christmas spectacles.

There will be no advertising in the parade. The event is non-commercial. It is a pageant depicting Christmas and will offer this territory a wonderful opportunity to view, first hand and without charge, the Spirit of Christmas

Triple Slayer Launches His Murder Defense

IDABEL, Okla., Nov. 20. (AP)—Inspired by the birth of a son to resist the state's efforts to send him to the electric chair for a triple slaying which he previously had admitted, Charles Draper, 32-year old farmer, launched his defense today with a plea of not guilty to three murder charges.

At the same time, he asked District Judge George T. Arnett to appoint M. F. Hudson and Thomas Finney, Idabel lawyers, to defend him, saying he was without funds. The court named Hudson, Finney and I. C. Sprague, another Idabel attorney, as defense counsel.

From his jail cell, where he has been spending much time reading the Bible, Draper was taken to the courtroom in handcuffs by three deputy sheriffs. He had nothing to say except when he made his plea and requested appointment of attorneys.

Sale Of Tickets Tops 2,600 Mark

Sale of tickets to the Amarillo-Lubbock high school game at Amarillo Thanksgiving day have passed the 2,600 mark, but buying has slowed up because the remaining 350 seats alloted to this city are either on the goal line or behind it.

Approximately 150 student tickets remain to be sold, said E. J. Lowrey Friday night. The adult tickets are on sale at Bowen's Hilton drug.

"We are trying to get additional tickets," said Lowrey, "but I doubt that we will. Some of the people now standing back because the remaining tickets are not in good locations may find themselves without reservations for the game."

Electrocution Accepted As Cause For Shamrock Death

SHAMROCK, Nov. 20. (AP)—Wheeler county officers said today they were ready to accept as accidental the electrocution of Dave Bowers 30, whose body was found in the Red River north of Shamrock Sunday. Who removed the body from where the electrocution occurred half a mile south of Twitty and threw it from the highway bridge into the river, however, was still a mystery, they said.

Southern Methodists Call On Political Leaders For Stand On Prohibition; Funds Asked

Ministers And Lay Leaders Of Methodist Denomination Are Asked To Contribute Money To Aid Bishop Cannon

(By The Associated Press)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 20.—Southern Methodists of the Alabama conference today heard a call from Bishop W. N. Ainsworth for a statement of position on prohibition by southern political leaders.

At the same time, it was learned, ministers and lay leaders of the church are being asked to contribute funds to defend Bishop James Cannon, jr., against charges of violating the corrupt practices act in the 1928 presidential campaign.

Last Monday Bishop Warren A. Candler warned preachers of the South Carolina conference to "stick to their jobs and leave politics alone."

Unity Is Urged

Bishop Ainsworth told the Alabama conference unity of southern leadership could "save the nation for sobriety." He said the church was not concerned with party politics but added it did not mean to surrender the ground gained in prohibition.

"We want a statesmanship in the south," he said, "that will not truckle before the lash of any leader whose purpose in politics is to relieve the country of what he is pleased to call 'the damnable affliction of prohibition.'"

He said opponents of prohibition are "now maneuvering for a strategic position in politics with the church forewarned to keep out.

Wichita Falls Man Declares Wheat Prices Will Go High

AMARILLO, Nov. 20.—Frank Kell of Wichita Falls, one of the southwest's leading millers, said in an address before 250 Amarillo business men today that "wheat is a good buy at present prices, and there is every indication that prices will go higher."

"Russia is almost entirely out of the market," Kell said. "Reports from the southern hemisphere indicated that the wheat export will not be large as last year. There will be a reduction of 7,000,000 acres in our crop in 1932." Kell cited many upward trends in business to substantiate his statement that business conditions were improving.

Mrs. Thompson was the more severely burned. She suffered injuries to her head, face, neck, arms and hands. After emergency treatment they were returned to their home. Rix ambulance brought them to the hospital.

The fire department was called, but the flames had been extinguished when the trucks arrived. Damage was slight.

State Expects McKee Appeals

District Attorney Says That He Will Oppose Leniency On Part Of Governor Sterling For Dawson Killer

The state is expecting an appeal to Governor Ross Sterling by relatives and friends of Ira McKee, Eastland county man who was sentenced to death in the electric chair at Lamesa Thursday by Judge Gordon B. McGuire, T. L. Price of Tahoka, district attorney, said yesterday.

"Any attempt on the part of McKee to secure a commutation of the death penalty will be resisted as far as this office is concerned," Mr. Price said. "Two times the superior court passed on all legal phases of the trial and I do not think that that there should be any executive clemency."

Taken To Prison

McKee was sentenced to die January 8, 1932. He was taken once to Huntsville by Sheriff Gus White and Mr. Price said he expected the party would arrive there late Friday afternoon.

"We took every precaution we could think of to prevent any attempt being made to secure his release by an attack upon officers who were taking him to the court from the Dallas jail," Mr. Price added. "We had reason to believe that such an attempt might be made. We knew that once he got inside the court room he was safe."

Annual Red Cross Roll Call Will Be Held In City Today

Annual roll call campaign of the Lubbock county chapter of the American Red Cross will be conducted here Saturday, the Rev. Walter P. Jennings, local chapter secretary, said Friday. Lubbock women will canvass downtown streets Saturday selling membership buttons in a drive the local quota of the national organization.

"The Red Cross did a world of good in the South Plains area and particularly in and around Lubbock last year when the drouth was on," the Rev. Mr. Jennings said, "and here is an excellent opportunity for us to reciprocate."

Hearty Cheers Ring As Young Italian Diplomat Is Received By New York; Guards Find No Trouble During Day

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Hearty cheers went up from crowds along Broadway, a paper snowstorm filtered through the fog, thousands of guards looked in vain for signs of trouble and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy smiled his appreciation of New York's 87-minute reception today.

The visit of Premier Mussolini's traveling proxy was marked by spontaneous enthusiasm for the black-whiskered young diplomat by the thousands who formed his unofficial reception committee.

As the man who came to America to discuss world problems with President Hoover left by train for Philadelphia, he gave a snappy Fascist salute and said:

Moved And Amazed

"I am moved and amazed by New York. The welcome touched me deeply. The city stirs my soul.

"I see these great buildings, these masses of people as a symbol of great power—a power for good. It is stupendous and a beautiful sight."

The heaviest police guard New York ever has mustered for a distinguished guest watched over the Italian official, whose visit had been threatened with possible anti-Fascist demonstrations.

Two Arrested

As the reception was in progress two men were arrested for pasting more than 1,000 posters derogatory

Lindbergh And Giant Air Queen Are Welcomed On Latin-American Flight

(By The Associated Press)

CIENFUEGOS, Cuba, Nov. 20. (By Pan-American Airways Radio to Miami)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh piloted a new queen of the skies on her maiden commercial voyage today into Latin-America, but after a late arrival here, decided to remain overnight instead of proceeding to Kingston, Jamaica, as scheduled.

Colonel Lindbergh, flying Pan-American Airways' giant American Clipper, did not wish to risk a night landing at Kingston with his 33 passengers. The seaplane took off from Miami one hour and 45 minutes late this morning, due to last minute motor trouble. It settled down in Cienfuegos bay too late, in Lindbergh's opinion, to continue the flight. He will resume the voyage tomorrow to Kingston and Cristobal, C. Z.

A gala welcome, with most of the city's populace joining for a first glimpse of the celebrated aviator, was accorded the Clipper and her passengers and

Restriction Of Oil In Field Declared A Price-Fixing Act And Names Several Officials

Debt Owed Humble Oil Company By Governor Is Cited As Is Present Connection Of General Jacob F. Wolters As The Attorney For The Texas Company; Former Stockholder

(By The Associated Press)

SHERMAN, Nov. 20.—Charges against Governor R. S. Sterling and Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters of conspiracy to restrict oil production in East Texas as a price-fixing measure, in restraint of trade, were contained in an amended petition for injunction filed today by counsel for E. Constantin, the Brock-Lee Oil company and others with Federal Judge Randolph Bryant.

The petition attacked proration orders promulgated by Governor Sterling and General Wolters under martial law regime in the East Texas oil field as well as the new Texas conservation law, as being unconstitutional because they deprive the plaintiffs of their property "without due process of law."

Receives Petition

Judge Bryant received the amended petition by mail from Joseph W. Bailey, jr., of Dallas, attorney for the Brock-Lee company, and immediately forwarded it to Tyler to the court clerk.

In a lengthy exposition of alleged grievances, the petition recited that Governor Sterling's personal representative, Cullen F. Thomas, signed the "world oil stabilization programme" drafted at the oil stabilization conference in Oklahoma City, Sept. 11; that the announced purpose of that program was to curtail oil production to a figure within the market demand "to secure for producers a fair price for crude oil, for refiners and distributors a reasonable return and to produce more royalty and rentals for farmers and steady revenue for the states" of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Agree To Limit

It alleged that at this conference representatives of the governors of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas and the regulatory commissions of those states agreed to limit Texas oil production to 902,000 barrels daily, Oklahoma production to 546,000 barrels daily and Kansas, 110,000 barrels daily.

Alleging an agreement, combination and conspiracy between Governor Sterling and General Wolters with the Humble Oil & Refining company and the Texas company, the petition recited that Governor Sterling formerly was a stockholder and director of the Humble company; that he now owes the Humble company "in excess of $400,000 and less than $1,000,000, the exact amount unknown;" and that Gen-

Cold Wave Is Forecast For Plains Areas

Saturday Temperatures Will Fall Steadily With Snow In Panhandle, Reports Declare; Warning Is Issued

Winter's forces Friday night were being marshaled in the north for a concerted move against West Texas Saturday and tonight.

Stock warnings were urged by weather observers who forecast a cold wave Saturday and Saturday night with strong northerly winds. Partly cloudy weather with snow flurries in the north portion is slated.

Warning Issued

Warning of the approaching cold weather came as South Plains and Panhandle residents were preparing for another stretch of mild autumn temperatures. The most serious threat of winter thus far this season came Thursday night, but proved a dud. Bright sun-rays drove back the cold Friday and forced the mercury to a maximum of 63 degrees, 28 degrees higher than the minimum registered between 6 and 7 a. m., yesterday. Thursday's maximum temperature was 59. The reading at 6 p. m. Friday was 52 degrees.

A 20-year late frost record has been set this autumn. Minimum temperature recorded thus far is 33 degrees, said Don L. Jones of the state experiment farm. That reading occurred last week.

Sunday is booked as fair, but colder in southern West Texas.

Las Leales Club To Entertain At Annual Reception Here Tonight

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

THE advice of Mrs. Caroline Paschal, Louisiana woman who has been married 11 times, may be good. Somehow, I have a feeling that she has put out trite but good advice and yet, except that which is platitudinous, I can't feel very enthusiastic about what she may have to say to younger women.

Any woman of 63 who has been married 11 times surely is lacking in discrimination, to say the least. She has a marrying complex or something but it can't be this thing called love that causes her to take on a new husband every few years.

* * *

Mrs. Paschal is quoted in a newspaper article as telling girls to "Beware of the liar who wants to fondle and kiss you, falling on his knees and swearing undying love" and to "Keep your sweetheart at your finger's end—if he is worth while he will wait and think more of you." And most of us want to add one of those well known "Oh Yeahs" to all of that because one doesn't have to marry 11 times to put out the advice. Mrs. Paschal undoubtedly has a lot of experience and she may be able to judge men—but I doubt it all, because in this same story she says she is going to divorce this 11th man because "he is simply another 'Soldier of Fortune'." If one learns anything in 11 marriages, it seems to me she might discover something about a man's type before the marriage comes off.

And to all of this, my married friends probably will be doing some laughing and suggesting that I try matrimony and see how little I know about men. That is the difficulty about not having tried a thing. Someone can always suggest you are wrong and you can't bring out statistics and examples and prove your point.

BLUE FOR SPRING

PERHAPS you are one of these individuals to whom brown lends a sort of melancholy cast and who has been forced to resort to green in every piece of new clothing this fall. And it may be that you, too, have searched somewhat hopelessly for something blue. If so, here's the good news. Your outlook for spring is blue!

That is the information sent out by the Textile Color Card association, blues stand first and foremost, preferably with a purple cast.

Some more on colors may be of interest; Reds for spring have either a yellowish or orange cast, or they are unmistakably apple red. Greens are apt to be olive rather than bluish. Pinks come into their own, some of them shading from a deep pink to a cherry tone. There are three new purples, but there is nothing oldish about these shades, for they all have a lively bluish tone.

Creamy champagne tones, shading into light mocha, are new, and added to them are a lot of new light grays and shell tints, and a rich opaque white that is off-white in the latest modern version.

Among the things that have gone out of date this year, we are glad, is the debutante slouch. No debutante does it. Moreover, it just isn't done by the rest of us—provided we know what is what. And someone comes out with a way to learn to sit down gracefully—without unnatural effects. The ideal chair for practice is the ordinary dining room chair, we are told, for anyone who can sit on one of these and look graceful, has acquired the art. If you don't believe that, drag a chair out in front of the long mirror and give it a trial.

Even in hard water, dirty dishes are easy to wash

But before washing them, you must soften the water with Mel'o. Soap and soft water never make scum. In soft water no dirty ring forms around the dishpan. Dishes sparkle in soft water and grease is cut.

Water softened with Mel'o is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. Mel'o makes soap more effective, saving from ⅓ to ½ the amount ordinarily used. Use Mel'o wherever you want soft water. Get it at your grocer's.

Rubio Writes For The Press

Mexican President Tells Of Advancement Of His Nation Since Start Of Revolution In November, 1910

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written for the Associated Press by President Pascual Ortiz Rubio on the occasion of the twenty-first anniversary of the Mexican revolution, which began November 20, 1910, and which led to the overthrow of the Porfirio Diaz regime).

BY PRESIDENT PASCUAL ORTIZ RUBIO

(Written For The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20. (AP) — The twenty-first anniversary of the Mexican revolution has transcendental importance to Mexico as it means the new government has come of age. The revolution has reached the equivalent of manhood.

It has passed the period of resort to arms and force, and today there is not a single problem of military character in the country.

The continuity of the revolutionary government, uninterrupted since the middle of 1914, is evident proof of its solidity and political consolidation.

We no longer are hesitatingly groping for guidance and well wishes of the people toward solidification and orientation in carrying out the innovations and reforms necessary, because this has been accomplished; we know now where we are going and which road to follow.

The economic transformation of the nation having been realized, our efforts now are focused on the humanization of labor conditions, and toward the fairest possible distribution of wealth, which goal is indispensable in accomplishing the economic and social equilibrium of our people.

A basis of national economy and security founded more on work and results than on aleatory riches has been established, and we now are progressing toward nationalism of a pacific character, shorn clean of aggressiveness and inspired alike by duty to the people, an aim of searching ourselves for realization of our needs and developing of our essential qualities, in order to succeed in occupying our own modest position and contributing our share to the progress and betterment of the world.

The revolution has passed its infant and adolescent stages. It has entered its majority and its goal now is to work with force and patience for the ample development and betterment of the republic, to succeed in realization of the necessities and aspirations of the Mexican people.

Prisoner Says He Took Rap For Another

HOUSTON, Nov. 20. (AP)—John Belois, handcuffed to a United States deputy Marshal, was taken to the Galveston county jail today when he was unable to make $7,500 bond set by U. S. Commissioner Winston McMahon on a fugitive charge sworn out the same day Belois testified against F. Leon Bouknight, acquitted on a charge in connection with the murder of W. L. Edwards, Houston aviator.

"I took the rap on something I didn't have a thing to do with," Belois said.

He said he saw raiders enter the house of his sister in Kansas City and there smash a still. "She had a baby 11 or 12 months old, I couldn't let her take the rap.

"Anyway, I went into the house during the raid. I insisted on them taking me."

Belois said he made $2,500 on the charge, which was set for trial a month after the raid. His lawyer assured him, he said, that he could beat the case.

"No, I didn't appear," he said, "I went on to California.

"Sure," he said, "I can locate that lawyer, and I can beat the case."

Grocery Supply Taken Thursday

A supply of groceries for an average family was stolen late Thursday night or early Friday from a Red and White grocery at 2407 Sixteenth street, after glass was broken from a front window.

The loot included: Six buckets of lard, a can of coffee, a box of oatmeal, two cans of beans, two jars of raspberry preserves, a jar of jelly, a box of soda crackers, a ten-pound sack of sugar, a five-pound sack of corn meal, two 12-pound sacks of flour, a box of soap chips and two pounds of cocoa. Money in the store's cash was untouched.

Guilty pleas to theft charges were entered in justice court Friday by a Mexican and a white man. Mike Guna, the Mexican, paid $15.95 for theft of snuff, perfume and other articles from a Hurlwood store. Albert Welsch of Barton community paid $20.25 for theft of three automobile light bulbs, two light sockets, eight wrenches, a tire pump, a screwdriver and a box of tire-patching. Judge H. K. Porter heard the cases.

Marriage Of Prominent Pair Ends In Reno Divorce Court

RENO, Nev. 20. (AP)—The marriage two years ago of Miss Ann Cannon and Smith Reynolds, uniting two of North Carolina's wealthiest families, has reached the Reno divorce court.

Mrs. Reynolds filed the suit yesterday, charging Reynolds, son of the late tobacco magnate, with extreme cruelty.

The marriage took place at York, S. C., November 16, 1929, when both were in their teens. Differences caused them to separate a short time thereafter.

Submarine Nautilus Sunk Off Norway Coast Friday

BERGEN, Norway, Nov. 20. (AP) — The polar submarine Nautilus, in which the expedition of Sir Hubert Wilkins proceeded to the Arctic last summer, was sunk off the coast here today.

Woman Retaining Club Membership

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 20. (AP) Mrs. Gifford Pinchot retains her membership in the Pennsylvania council or Republican women but is no longer a director.

Her resignation was accepted last night and Mrs. William Anderson Aspinwall named to succeed her.

Mrs. Pinchot resigned yesterday for the second time within two days. Her first resignation as "a protest against overloading the board with organization members," was followed yesterday morning by her re-election.

The second resignation reiterated the charge of favoring organization as opposed to independent members for positions on the directorate. This, Mrs. Pinchot said, was clearly shown in the election to the board yesterday of Mrs. Clarence A. Beck, Easton.

Cowhands Set For Big Turkey Tilt

(Special To The Avalanche)

ABILENE, Nov. 20. — Annual Homecoming of Simmons University alumni and ex-students will be held here Thursday, November 26, with a football game between the Cowboys and Texas Tech scheduled as the main feature of the day.

The day's celebration will begin with class re-unions in the morning. The Cowboy band will play a concert at Mary Frances Hall and registration will be made at that place. At noon an old time barbecue will be held for all students, exes, and friends. Preparations are being made by "Sandstorm" Charlie Brown, Clarence Cowden and Lance Sears, cowmen, to feed 1,500 people at the barbecue.

Annual Dad's Day exercises will also be held. The Dad's club will meet before noon to organize for the coming year. Bert E. Low of Abilene is now president.

The annual Thanksgiving game between the Cowboys and the Matadors will being at 2:30. Several hundred fans from Lubbock and the Matador band will make the trip here. Simmons is preparing for the biggest football crowd of the year, probably 8,000 people.

Lamesa Tornadoes Prepare For Game With Floydada Hi

LAMESA, Nov. 2.—With less than a week to prepare, Lamesa is setting her stage for the scene of the District Two, Class B, High School football championship game, which will be played here on Turkey Day, according to arrangements recently completed between the officials of Floydada and Lamesa schools, the participants in this tilt.

The Floydada Whirlwinds are champions of the northern half of the District by reason of their defeat of Littlefield last Wednesday, by the score of 14 to 13, while the Golden Tornadoes of the local school have successfully met all opponents and turned them back for the title of the southern half title.

According to the dope Floydada is tooting to win, although Coach McCollum of the local eleven is fast whipping his new and inexperienced squad into condition, with the hope of making a splendid showing against the visitors. McCollum started this year with an inexperienced team, all of which has not had more than two years of football, and most of the players out for the first time this year. While Barksdale of Floydada has several veteran players with his squad. Comparative scores of the two teams show about an even match, with perhaps the edge going to Floydada, it being pointed out that they have played stronger competition than the Tornadoes.

It is reported that a large number of fans are moving down for the Turkey Day festival, and will be greeted with a turnout of all Lamesa for the game.

Tahoka Loses To Antelopes, 32-8

TAHOKA, Nov. 20. (Special) — Tahoka's high school Bulldogs made a desperate attempt to win a ball game today, but the Post High school Antelopes were superior and the final score was 32 to 8, favoring the visitors.

Captain Stevens made Tahoka's lone touchdown and Walker tackled Hawthon, Post fullback, behind the goal line for a safety.

Lloyd, halfback, and Key, end, led the Post scoring with two touchdowns each. Quarterback Speck made the other counter.

McMURRY WINS

ABILENE, Nov. 20. (AP)—After a spirited first half battle, the McMurry Indians this afternoon ran wild to defeat the Sul Ross Teachers College Loboes, 34 to 7, to stay in the running for the T. I. A. A. Western divisional title.

University of California has chosen as coach of its hockey team Phil Stevens, who coached the Oakland Sheiks to three California league titles in a row.

Picadors Play Final Home Go Of Year Today

Morganmen Open With Simmons Frosh At 2:30 This Afternoon; May Be Last Game Of Season Here

So far as is known this morning, the last football game on local soil for 1931 will be played this afternoon when Del Morgan's Texas Tech Picadors meet the Simmons University freshmen gridsters at Tech Field. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 o'clock.

The Matadors may play a post-season game for charity or for entertainment but nothing definite along this line has been announced. Should Lubbock High defeat Amarillo next Thursday, the Westerners may appear before home folks in a bi-district game, otherwise the football season for Lubbock fans ends today. It is thought that a fairly large crowd will be on hand for the Tech-Simmons game this afternoon.

The Abilene squad arrived last night by bus and may work out for a short time this morning. The Picadors topped off their week of preparation yesterday afternoon in a general workout in which several plays to be used today were stressed.

Introduce Big Game

The game will act as a sort of introductory affair for the Thanksgiving Day game at Abilene between the Simmons Cowboys and the Matadors. A special train probably will be run to Abilene carrying several hundred Tech students and townspeople for the game. The train is to be sponsored by the Tech Chamber of Commerce and a number of the students, with the sanction of the school and athletic council.

When they defeated the West Texas Buffalo Yearlings at Tech field last Friday night by a 44 to 0 score, the Picadors gained considerable recognition and respect, enough to overcome a feeling that the team was not strong enough to face tough competition, on the part of Lubbock fans.

Probable Lineups

Coach Morgan announced as his probable starting lineup for today's game, Gilmore and Gilmore of Olney, ends; Woodrow Wilson of Mexia and Carlton Luper of Houston, tackles; E. Trice of Snyder and Weldon Moore of Athens, guards; Elmer Fortner of Sherman, center; "Red" Rowe of Livingston, quarterback; Floyd Tuck of Alabama and McElroy of Dallas, halfbacks, and Roy Morris of Seymour, fullback.

Early in the game, Morgan is likely to send in another team, one of almost equal strength and potentiality. Malcolm Martin of Lubbock and Wayne Larsen of Amarillo will go in as ends; Red Barrett of Sulphur Springs and G. Morris of Seymour, tackles; Roy Curfman of Electra and Melton McGehee of Lubbock, guards; Priddy of Gainesville, center; Pool of Brady, quarterback; Dowell of Royce City, fullback, and Crittenden of Paducah and Turner, halfbacks.

Steers Defeat Gentlemen 6-0

Centenary Weakens At Wrong Time And Texas Pass Attack Scores Lone Touchdown For Another Victory

(By The Associated Press)

SHREVEPORT, La., Nov. 20. — Fighting desperately to gain an even break in this season's games with Southwestern Conference teams, the Centenary College Gentlemen weakened for a moment under Texas' aerial attack and lost, 6 to 0, in one of the best fought games of their season.

Twice in the second quarter Centenary fought back the Longhorns as they tried to score through the line, once holding them on the six-yard line and again on the one-yard line. The Texans learned a lesson and the next time they got within scoring distance a pass, Koy to Price, for 29 yards brought a touchdown. Blanton missed the kick for extra points.

Continuing to wage an even battle in the line, Centenary in the second half reversed the tables and threatened to score. The passing combination of Smith to Murff brought 28-yard gain and took the ball to the Texas 27-yard line. With an end run, pass and fake pass, the Gentlemen took the ball to the Texas five yard line. There they lost a chance to score when Nolan fumbled for an eight yard loss and a pass was incomplete.

Texas exhibited great power in its backfield but weak blocking enabled Centenary to stop most line plays for small gains.

Excellent punting by Cameron offset many Texas gains, one punt going 80 yards.

Attendance was established at 8,000.

Sixteen trees have been planted in the road leading to the Ohio State university stadium in honor of the university's first eleven and her five all-America players.

Notre Dame-Southern California Tilt, Harvard-Yale Game Hold Spot Upon Nation's Grid; Mustangs Meet Sailors

Ramblers, Harvard And SMU Favored In Big Games

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP)—The outcome of the 1931 race for the championship of American college gridirons hinges upon the battle between Notre Dame's football army and Southern California's powerful Trojans at South Bend tomorrow.

It dominates even a day in which two of the nation's most colorful rivalries, Yale-Harvard at Cambridge and Stanford-California at Pala Alto, have gripped popular interest and imagination to a greater extent that usual.

Notre Dame May Win

The odds are distinctly in favor of Notre Dame. It has a brilliant attack led by all-America "Marchie" Schwartz, a great line and, equally as vital, at least two reserve elevens capable of maintaining the sensational tempo of team performance. The possible loss of several backfield replacements, in addition to Pullback Melinkovich, does not loom as a cause for enxiety at South Bend.

Southern California, with an all-America blocker in Erny Pinckert and an all-star candidate in Orville Mohler, flashy carrier, seems equipped to put the Hoosiers to their most severe test. The Trojans have strengthened the flanks by putting Johnny Baker at one end. If this helps bootle up the Notre Dame running attack, the game may turn into an aerial circus.

The climax of one of the gridiron's most spectacular personal rivalries, involving Captain Barry Wood of Harvard and Captain Albie Booth of Yale, features the 50th tussle between these ancient foes.

California vs. Stamford

Out on the Pacific coast, California's come-back under "Navy Bill" Ingram has developed at least an even chance for the Bears to overthrow Stanford.

Among the few other undefeated arrays figuring in the national spotlight, Southern Methodist, is picked to hand the Navy another jolt in their intersectional contest at Baltimore. Tulane, the tidal wave of the south, should have comparatively little trouble disposing of Sewanee. Tennessee, co-leader in Dixie, has an off day.

Northwestern, headed for the Big Ten title, is favored to keep its slate clean against Iowa.

Morrison Makes Plans For Navy Contest

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20. (AP)—Seeking still more heft against a team already far outweighted, Coach Ray Morrison of Southern Methodist University tonight said he would use two 196 pound linemen at the halfback positions against the Navy tomorrow.

He made the announcement after the Mustangs had gone through a long signal drill after their arrival. Marion Hammon, tackle, will start at one of the halfback positions and Captain Alfred Neeley, guard, the other. Travis at quarter and Mason at fullback rounded out his backfield.

Sam Houston Tigers Winners In District 13 Title Game

HOUSTON, Nov. 20. (AP) — The Sam Houston Tigers and the John Reagan Bulldogs battled to a scoreless tie today in a bitterly fought defensive game. The tie game clinched for the Bulldogs not only the city championship, but gave them the championship in district 13 as well.

The Bulldogs threatened to score three times in the first half, while the Tigers' only threat came in the final period. First downs were 11 to 7 for the Bulldogs.

Baylor Entertains Horned Frogs In Southwest Conference Feature Today

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Nov. 20—While Southern Methodist, Southwest Conference leader, is at Annapolis battling Navy tomorrow, Texas Christian and Baylor share the conference spotlight at Waco.

It is a crucial game for Texas Christian—a team with three wins and one conference deefat. Texas Christian must trounce Baylor to retain even a chance to tie undefeated and untied Southern Methodist for the current championship. A defeat for Texas Christian and Southern Methodist will automatically become conference champion regardless of the outcome of the final conference game November 28 between Texas Christian and Southern Methodist.

While the Christians are sending their deceptive running attack against Baylor at Waco, the University of Arkansas will be closing its conference schedule against Rice at Houston in the only other conference game.

Texas defeated Centenary in a non-conference game today. Texas A. and M. will remain idle until Thanksgiving day.

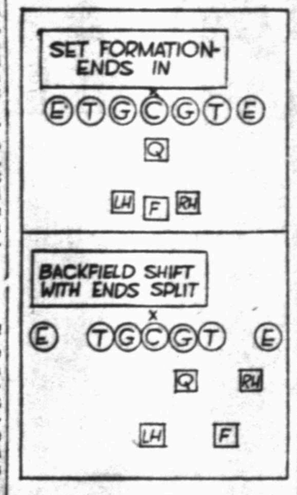

Texas Christian is due to open with a daring offense against Baylor since it is a make or break game for the Fort Worth school. Baylor is expected to rely on a sound overhead game. Both have all to win and nothing to lose. The Christians attack will be centered around Oliver, Denn's and Spearman, coupled with a passing attack. Baylor will rely on the brilliance of Alford and Harris to score against the Christians.

Arkansas, without a conference victory this season will make a strong bid for its only win against Rice with Homer Ledbetter, conference scoring leader, in the feature role. Rice will feature Jack Frye from a Notre Dame running attack.

Football ABC's

In your football rambles from stadium to stadium this fall you frequently will bump into the term, "splitting an end." But don't make the mistake of asking if they had to shoot him.

The term can be explained simply. Splitting an end means placing him apart from the rest of the line in offensive play. Split ends play from three to six feet wide of their tackles, usually moving out on shift plays. Punt formation also calls for the ends to be split.

In the Notre Dame system of backfield shifts, the ends split with practically every backfield shift. For running plays to either flank, it adds power to the attack and enables the end to get down the field the better to block in the secondary defense.

The current Northwestern eleven, while schooled almost entirely in the Warner methods by Coach Dick Hanley, employs a new line shift that calls for the ends to be split.

TOMORROW: The Warner System.

International Sunday School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic: Paul in Rome Scripture Lesson: Acts 28: 16:24, 30, 31

International Sunday school lesson for Nov. 22.

Acts 28:16. And when we entered into Rome, Paul was suffered to abide by himself with the soldier that guarded him.

17. And it came to pass, that after three days he called together those that were the chief of the Jews: and when they were come together, he said unto them, I, brethren, though I had done nothing against the people, or custom of our fathers, yet was delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans.

18. Who, when they had examined me, desired to set me at liberty, because there was no cause of death in me.

19. But when the Jews spake against it, I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar; not that I had aught whereof to accuse my nation.

20. For this cause therefore did I entreat you to see and to speak with me: for because of the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

21. And they said unto him, We neither received letters from Judaea concerning thee, neither did any of the brethren come hither and report or speak any harm of thee.

22. But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, it is known to us that everywhere it is spoken against.

23. And when they had appointed him a day, they came to him into his lodging in great number; to whom he expounded the matter, testifying the kingdom of God, and persuading them concerning Jesus, both from the law of Moses and from the prophets, from morning till evening.

24. And some believed the things which were spoken, and some disbelieved.

30. And he abode two whole years in his own hired dwelling, and received all that went in unto him,

31. Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching the things concerning the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness, none forbidding him.

Golden Text: I can do all things in him that strengtheneth me.—Phil. 4:13.

Time: Paul's first Roman imprisonment, A. D. 61, 62.

Place: Paul's hired house in Rome.

INTRODUCTION

Two years and several months elapsed between the last lesson, Paul's arrest in Jerusalem, Acts 21: 27-39, and that which we now study. Some of the experiences of those years are recorded in Acts 23: 1 to 28: 15. A few days after Paul's arrest and the riot in Jerusalem, Lysias sent him to Caesarea, to Felix, the Roman governor, for safe keeping. Misunderstanding the character and connections of Paul, this unscrupulous man held him for two years, hoping to be paid for his release. After two years Felix was succeeded by Festus. On his first being along the famous Appian Way. A delegation of Christians from Rome met Paul at Appii Forum (the Market of Appius), and further along, another delegation met him at a place called The Three Taverns, so that he felt almost as if he had reached home. No wonder "he thanked God, and took courage." Though as a prisoner, he had reached Rome, the goal of his long desire.

PAUL IN ROME AT LAST, Acts 28:16

Paul's hope was thus finally realized, but in how different a manner from that of his dream. He came as an ambassador in chains, a prisoner waiting upon the pleasure of Nero. But, although a prisoner, bound always to a soldier by a chain, he was given a measure of freedom in that he was permitted to rent his own quarters in the city, instead of sharing the conditions of a prison camp. And so we are to think of him in the first period of his experiences in Rome. He was greatly restricted, but as this lesson discloses, he lived a full life and was a powerful voice among many in Rome and far abroad in the two years and more that followed.

PAUL AND THE ROMAN JEWS, vs. 17-29

It has been pointed out several times that wherever Paul went he first sought out the Jews in their synagogue, if there was one, and preached the gospel to them. In Rome he was not free to go to them, but he sent for them to come to him. And he did not delay. Three days after he arrived at Rome he called them. Paul explained his presence there as a Roman prisoner. In his explanation several points are to be note: (1) That he was delivered up to the Romans although he had done nothing against the Jewish people or their customs. (2) That the Roman officers found no cause of death in him and would have set him free had it not been for the Jews. (3) That he appealed to Caesar for self-protection and not because he had any accusation to make against his people. (4) That in reality he was prisoner because of his devotion to the hope of Israel.

The Jewish leaders replied that they had received from Jerusalem no word against him, and would like to hear his message, since they knew that his "sect" was everywhere spoken against. Accordingly, on another appointed day a large number came, and Paul expounded to them the Christian teaching concerning the Kingdom of God, and from the law of Moses and the prophets sought to show them that Jesus was the Messiah. From morning until evening he read passage after passage and told the story of Jesus, trying to persuade them to believe on him and the fulfilment of God's purpose in their nation.

PAUL A PRISONER IN ROME

Luke closes the book of the Acts with only a general reference to the fact that Paul remained two years in his own hired house in Rome preaching and teaching. But a reading of the epistles of Paul tell a good deal about his experiences there, although incidentally visit to Jerusalem, which was only three days after his arrival in the province, the Jewish leaders requested him to have Paul brought to Jerusalem for trial, aiming to kill him on the way. This petition was denied, but the Jews were invited to appear against him at Caesarea, which they did some ten days later.

FESTUS

Festus proved to be another politician, anxious to feather his own nest. It was important that he gain the favor of the Jews at the beginning of his regime, and, accordingly, instead of dismissing the case, he thought to send Paul to Jerusalem (as the Jews had requested) for further examination. After two years of political dilly-dallying, Paul exercised his right as a Roman citizen by appealing to Caesar. And there was nothing left for Festus to do but send him to Rome. Read the story of the voyage beginning with Acts 27.

FROM CAESAREA TO ROME, Acts 27: 1-38

"The voyage from Caesarea was made by ship, and the winds proved exceedingly unpropitious, so that instead of reaching Rome before the close of navigation in the fall, they were shipwrecked on the island of Malta, and forced to remain there three months. Paul's courage, wisdom, and presence of mind were very conspicuous in all the difficulties and dangers of the voyage and made a great impression upon the centurion and all the ship's company.

THE SHIPWRECK, Acts 27: 39-44

Dr. David James Burrell once wrote, a graphic "log" of Paul's voyage, one entry of which is as follows: "Wrecked on the coast of Malta. We were wakened at midnight by the lookout calling 'Land ahead!' soundings were taken; twenty fathoms; then fifteen. Cast anchor and awaited the break of day. The crew intending to take possession of the boats, Paul interposed, warning the captain that unless they remained all would be lost. His advice was taken; the ropes were cut, setting the boats adrift. Paul, the landsman, was now in practical command of the ship. After long fasting all partook of food. In the morning, finding ourselves at the entrance of a bay, it was resolved to run in. The ship went aground and was at the mercy of the pounding breakers. The soldiers, being answerable with their lives for the prisoners, would have killed them to prevent their escape; but the centurion in charge forbade it. Each for himself, now! Many, leaping out, swam ashore. Others betook themselves to boards and broken pieces of the ship. So it came to pass that all escaped safe to land."

THE JOURNEY TO ROME, Acts 28: 11-15

The voyage to Rome was in classic regions, stopping three days at Syracuse, passing the headland Scylla and the whirlpool Charybdis, and landing at Puteoli, near the modern Naples, where Paul was able to spend a week with Christians. Thence by land to Rome, one hundred and forty miles distant, most of the journey. We have already seen how he began with the Jews, and we may believe that some of them came back to hear him many times. We know also that he wrote several letters to churches and individuals extending his pulpit over a broad area, among them being Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon. And what greater ministry could he have performed anywhere than to give to the ages the spiritual wealth of these masterly discourses? Surely the Lord who led him to Rome gave also to him their timeless message.

PAUL'S DAILY MINISTRY IN ROME, Verse 31

Concerning the daily ministry of Paul among those who visited him, Luke uses four words worth remembering. (1) He preached. (2) He taught. (3) He preached with boldness. (4) He spoke unhindered ("none forbidding him"). His chains really became his freedom, for had he not been a prisoner the Jews would, no doubt have made trouble here as elsewhere. Rome would not and the Jews could not forbid him. Knowing Paul's spirit, we are not surprised that he should have written from Rome in the tones of victory, "I can do all things in him that strengtheneth me."

Extortion Is Being Probed

Longview Farmer Tells Story Of Being Forced To Go To A Bank And Withdraw $3,000 Under Death Threat

LONGVIEW, Nov. 20. (AP)—Sheriff Martin Hays today was investigating a charge by W. L. Matthews, Gladewater farmer made wealthy by oil money, that he was forced to go to the First National bank of Longview last Monday, draw $3,000 and turn it over to two men under pain of death.

One man was held as a suspect while another was sought.

Matthews said he was intimidated after he had been lured to a room in a Longview hotel and given instructions as to how to obtain and deliver the cash.

His assailants, according to his story to officers, told him if he reported the case to officers before five days they would kill him.

Officers said one of the men, working through a second person, lured Matthews to the hotel by telling him he wanted Matthews to meet an old friend. Once in the room, Matthews faced a gun, and was given orders to get the cash, officers were told.

One of his assailants, officers said, trailed Matthews to the bank, watched the transaction and covered Matthews until he had proceeded to a given point and delivered the cash.

"Go to Jack Barton and tell him you want $3,000. If he asks any questions, tell him you want it to gamble with," officers quoted Matthews as describing instructions from his assailants. Barton is vice president of the First National bank.

Matthews, elderly farmer, followed instructions and kept the matter to himself, finally going to Justice Leo Bradshaw to whom he told the story, he told officers.

Carrying out the Argentine theme which they have planned for this year's programs, the members of the Spanish club heard a discussion of "The Products and Industries of Argentina" at their meeting this week.

The speaker was Carl Patterson, who spoke with first-hand knowledge, since he is a former resident of South America.

Jewell Bolton, Crosbyton, gave a report on the life of Florencio Sanchez, Argentine novelist whose book, "La Gringa," the club is studying. Woodson Jones made a talk on the setting and characters and summarized the first chapter. Chapter two was discussed by Margaret Lindsey.

Other entertainment included games, and songs led by Lois Freeman. Miss Bolton played piano accompaniments.

Mr. Shoemaker said that he believed that the money would be raised without any trouble.

After a parade through the downtown streets by the Lubbock delegation and lunch, the visitors are to gather at the Herring hotel where they will be met by Amarillo cars which will carry them to Butler field. The cars also will bring the Lubbock boosters back to the Herring after the game.

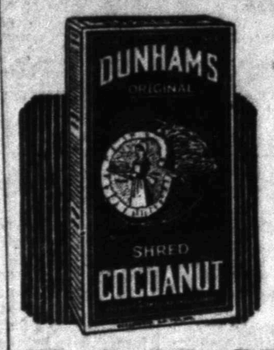

"Lubbock has always been courteous in her treatment of Amarillo grid fans and we are glad of this opportunity of reciprocating," the advice from Amarillo said.

BEAUTY IS NOT JUST A GIFT

For every woman who inherits beauty, there are five who win charm and good looks. Without health, there can be little natural beauty. And a serious handicap to health is constipation.

This widespread ailment often causes headaches, listlessness, sallow skins, pimples—undermining both health and beauty.

Yet constipation can be overcome by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. This delicious cereal provides "bulk," which gently clears out the wastes. And Vitamin B to tone up the intestinal tract. The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce.

Try two tablespoonfuls daily—usually sufficient for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

ALL-BRAN supplies iron for the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Irrepressible Mr. Walker

BACK from Europe scarcely long enough to change his shirt, James J. Walker, wise-cracking mayor of New York, will go to California to intercede in behalf of Tom Mooney, convicted as the result of the famous Preparedness Day bomb plot, who is seeking release from jail.

Although it has never been conclusively proven that Mooney is guilty of the charge upon which he was convicted and although efforts to aid his fight for freedom are generous and high-minded, Mayor Walker, in our opinion, has plenty to do in New York. Tin Pan Alley's contribution to administrative politics has a big job—if he ever accepts it—in cleaning up around his own back door.

While Mayor Walker has pursued his happy way, hither, thither and yon, the investigation of graft in Gotham has gone steadily onward, enveloping municipal magistrates, police officers and minor officials in its slimy trail. Instead of being interested in what is going on in his own bailiwick, the irrepressible Mr. Walker has skipped along, a beret on his head, representing this country unofficially in various parts of Europe and giving rise to the question abroad, "What kind of people are those Americans, anyway?"

The more the average Plains citizen sees of New York and of Mayor Walker the more confessed he becomes. It's hard for him to understand out this way just how people can put up with Mr. Walker.

But it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. Such monkey business makes us all the more satisfied with our own neck of the woods.

LAGGING AIR DEFENSE

Again the United States army air corps is under fire. Capt. Frank Hawks, who holds several air speed records, finds fault on the score that the army is behind both commercial aviation and the British royal air force in point of fast planes. In his opinion the average army plane is obsolete both as to speed and model.

A civilian plane set a record of 286 miles an hour at the Cleveland air races and commercial planes have recently added 30 miles an hour to their cruising speeds but the fastest army planes go only about 200 miles an hour. British army planes in the corresponding service have a speed of from 200 to 215 miles per hour.

Responsibility does not rest with the air corps, which is doing the best it can with the limited funds placed at its disposal by congress. Fast planes will replace obsolete types when congress decides that air defenses should supplant obsolete land and water defenses. Is it still contended anywhere that fast planes are less effective than certain types of land and water defenses?

Slow planes may be better than no air defense at all but to equip the country's defenders by air with obsolete ships is to place them at the mercy of the enemy as well as to make them less effective defensively. Money spent for other than the fastest planes is money misspent.

Practical Health Problems

VENTILATION OF SCHOOL ROOMS

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THROUGHOUT the United States school boards and commissions are concerned with the problem of proper ventilation of schools.

The matter is important not only from the health point, but also as it concerns economics and the ability of the children to work satisfactorily. The fact that bad air may have a bad effect on human health and comfort has been recognized for more than 2000 years.

It was as first thought that the only bad air was air which contained more carbon dioxide than it ought to and less oxygen than outside air. The point of view is that the chief purpose of ventilation is to remove the excess of heat given off by the human body so as to maintain an atmosphere that will be comfortable—cool but not too cold.

The final report of the New York Commission on Ventilation indicates that the essential problem of ventilation, except where the air contains poisons or odors due to imperfect combustion or industrial processes are concerned, is a physical and not a chemical problem that affects the skin more than it does the lungs.

This, of course, must be added the fact that the bad air tends to take up odors from the human body and if the room is not properly ventilated, and may thereby become so unpleasant as to diminish appetite and even produce nausea. Mechanical experts have invented all sorts of devices to ventilate rooms properly and the outcome of all of their experiments and the development of fans for forcing air into rooms.

Because scientists and experts in hygiene began to demand 30 cubic feet of air per minute, the state of New York in 1913 appointed a commission to investigate the problem of ventilation. The studies include not only tests made in the laboratory but also additional tests carried on in schools.

The commission now is convinced that auditoriums holding 100 people or more, large offices, workshops and industrial establishments where excessive heat or moisture or dust or poisonous fumes are produced require fan ventilation. In certain workrooms where outdoor noise or dust or odors may make it undesirable to keep the windows open, fan ventilation may be required. In most places, however, window ventilation seems to be entirely satisfactory and cheaper and is to be preferred for school rooms.

It is recognized that occupied rooms in schools should have a temperature about 68 degrees Fahrenheit; corridors, gymnasiums and shops should have 60 degrees Fahrenheit; swimming pools and adjacent rooms, 75 degrees Fahrenheit.

What Other People Think

The organization of the House is in the laps of the gods.—Rep. John N. Garner of Texas.

As long as the will of man forces an unnatural economic adjustment upon the world, the world will not succeed or prosper.—Ramsey MacDonald, premier of England.

There's an industry called bootlegging in America.—George Bernard Shaw, Irish dramatist and author.

Apprehension Is Shown

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—It took hints of the growth of anti-foreign feeling in China to convert the state department to an idea that Japan's Manchurian policy may really have elements of danger in it to folk a long way outside the area of the disturbance it has been creating for some weeks past.

There is not much doubt American diplomacy has inclined to the view that Manchuria would be more useful to civilization under Japanese domination than as part of the Chinese republic, which may ultimately settle into some sort of permanent order, but has shown little promise of it thus far.

The region is China's certainly. Still, what is now the United States formerly was the American Indians'. Nevertheless, the white men took it away from them, and it is a much better country now than it would have been if the Indians' right to it had been respected; they were not doing anything useful with it, anyway. The Chinese have not done much of anything useful with Manchuria; the Japanese will, if they gain complete control over it.

THIS, IN BRIEF (although there is no one who can be quoted authoritatively to such an effect), is quite definitely understood to be the view the Washington administration has taken of the recent far eastern situation.

It is quite consistent with the attitude of the state department, which has hardly been in a position (in view of the Kellogg treaty) to say in plain terms that it sympathized with Japan's evident purpose to effect a grab, and yet surely has given no evidence of sympathy with the Chinese, in their alarm and indignation over the fact that a grab so obviously is being effected.

At the same time, Secretary Stimson cannot for a minute rationally be suspected of thinking that the islanders should be given a free hand to stir up a row calculated to endanger occidental (including American) interests and even lives throughout all China.

PRESIDENT HOOVER, of all persons in high authority, is quite aware how serious an affair a Chinese outbreak against foreigners, regardless of nationality, can become—having himself, with Mrs. Hoover, been among the Americans in Tien Tsin at the time of the Boxer troubles.

Europeans (Americans also class as Europeans in the Orient) who visit China merely as tourists, get little idea of the perils of such an uprising, for the simple reason that they see only the treaty ports.

Now, there is no doubt that a very small force of well-drilled, well-armed western (or Japanese) troops can hold their own against almost an indefinite number of Chinese, provided their food and ammunition hold out. In the interior, however, it is impossible for a little body like this to keep its line of communications open.

A coast or navigable river town is a different thing. Assured of adequate supplies by boat, a single regiment of American marines, for example, could dig itself in on any Chinese water front and remain in safety for years.

But there would be no sense in a performance of the kind.

Access to the interior is essential, for purposes of trade and development—and with the interior on an anti-foreign rampage, it is too dangerous to venture into.

THE JAPANESE, it is true, can afford to wait.

Having seized the principal ports along the Yellow and China seas, they can settle down and stay for a generation if necessary, certain that the interior dwellers will have to come to terms sooner or later, to resume their traffic with the outside world, when the invaders will be right on the job to levy tribute on it.

Other countries' merchants do not care to have their activities tied up in this fashion to serve Japanese purposes.

A war in Manchuria would not necessarily be so bad.

It would not last long. The Japanese forces probably would be in full possession now, but for the necessity to move slowly on account of League of Nations protests. That part of China is comparatively thinly settled and can be policed. As soon as the Japanese have accomplished this, opportunities for the trade are likely to be better for other nationals than they were before—for awhile, until the Japanese get the country more fully colonized, when it may be presumed that they will take discreet steps toward crowding others' business out of it.

YET IF the islanders do proceed with the acquisition of Manchuria, it is plain that they must do it without spreading an anti-foreign prairie fire throughout the whole country to the south of the Great Wall—or they will not be able to do it much more to Secretary Stimson's liking than to the liking of international statesmanship at Geneva.

Geneva has the preservation of the League of Nations' credit to think about. Clearly there will be very little left of it if Japan takes Manchuria in spite of the League's objections.

The United States not being a member of it, the League may not especially matter to Secretary Stimson, and maybe not the Kellogg treaty, either, but a Chinese anti-foreign uprising will be no more favorably regarded in Washington than by old world statesmen.

UNIMPAIRED RESOURCES

To look upon stock market quotations as measures of national wealth is to go looking for trouble.

Security prices may shrink without there being a comparable loss of national wealth.

The wealth of a country lies in its consuming capacity for goods and services, and in the means it has provided, or which nature has furnished it, to produce what is needed.

This does not mean that the United States is no poorer as a result of two years of falling security prices. It is poorer in purchasing power but none of the other elements of national wealth have been lost.

The present situation is not so much a question of lost national wealth but of non-production or non-use of national wealth. National wealth is not smaller but economic waste in the form of unemployment of labor and capital is greater.

National resources are unimpaired. If living standards have been lowered by necessity, they will return to their old high level as soon as business gets back on its feet. Consumer demands, damned up by lost confidence, must eventually break loose. When they do the unemployment situation both for capital and labor will be on the way to self-solution.

It was a mistake ever to have accepted inflated stock market prices as a measure of national wealth. It is just as serious a mistake to look upon deflated values in that light.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Rich old MRS. JUPITER is robbed and murdered during the engagement party she gives for her secretary, MARY HARKNESS. Mary's scapegrace brother, EDDIE, is supposed to have been upstairs at the murder hour. Only Mary knows this.

Mary's fiance, DIRK RUYTHER, advises her to keep still about having arranged to admit Eddie secretly until he can locate the boy. Mary prevents a maid from telling BOWEN of the Star about the unknown visitor. Dick telephones that he had a call from Eddie and will take Mary to see him that afternoon.

Dirk oversleeps and Bowen drives Mary to the rendezvous. Eddie is killed by a car as he crosses the street. He mumbles about a fly before he dies. Weeks pass and INSPECTOR KANE drops the case, believing Eddie the murderer. When Mary protests, Kane tell her both MR. JUPITER and Dirk believe the same.

Leaving the police station Mary meets Bowen, who tells her there is a racetrack gambler called THE FLY to whom her brother owed a large sum of money.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

Mary gave her promise readily enough. She was thoroughly angry at Kane anyhow, and grateful to Bowen. Apparently he was the only person besides herself who cared enough to dig up the truth about her brother's death. Even if his interest was partly selfish, she was grateful to him just the same, in the present sore state of her feelings. If he did not want Kane to know what he was doing, she would gladly comply.

Bowen seemed pleased by her trust in him, and his eyes began to glitter with the zeal of the newshound hot on the trail.

"I think we're on the track of something," he told her, "but let me tell you this, my dear girl, before we go any further—if we don't keep our mouths pretty tight shut, we take a chance of getting what Eddie got. If we go after this guy to win, we've got to play a cagey game. How's your nerve?"

"I don't know," Mary faltered. "I never tried anything like this before."

"Well, we'll have plenty of time to think of that later." Bowen brushed it away, sorry for having aroused her fears. That might be a tactical error. Better leave her in ignorance of the danger, perhaps, or she might weaken and spoil the whole show.

"What I want to find out now is—" He broke off as the fearsome-looking waiter came to take their plates away. Bowen sat thoughtfully turning a salt-cellar in his fingers. "Mike," he said, suddenly, "sit down a minute, will you?"

With an apprehensive glance toward the kitchen, Mike sat down boneslessly on the edge of the chair.

Mary became aware of a stale and unpleasant odor as of yesterday's food caught in the folds of his greasy black coat, and radiating from him like an aura. But she did not flinch. If she were going to play Bowen's game she must not show the white feather merely because a waiter neglected to wash.

"Look here, Mike," Bowen lowered his voice, "I want to get the lowdown on a crook known as The Fly. Ever hear of him?"

Mike thought, then shook his head.

"You can talk in front of this lady. She's O. K.," Bowen reassured him. "We've got a little private vendetta on, this lady and I. Kane flopped on it, and we're going out after this bird ourselves. That is, if he's still around town. That's where we want you to help us."

The waiter's expression remained inscrutable. Mary thought his eyes held a gleam of interest as he looked her over carefully, but she could not be sure. No doubt he had plenty of reason to hate the pompous Inspector, and it was clear that he and Bowen were on a friendly footing.

"I think maybe—he's dead," he offered after a bit.

"Dead? When? How long ago?" Bowen asked excitedly.

"Oh, long time. Maybe 10 years," the waiter explained.

"Oho," Bowen snorted. "Not this guy! He was very much alive no longer than two weeks ago. Where did you know him? Sure you got the name right? Fly!" He looked about vainly for a specimen of the species by way of illustration. Finding none, he gave an imitation of a soaring insect, ending with a fatal smacking of his palms together.

Mike giggled appreciatively, "Sure, sure!" he said.

"Where did you know him, up in the Big House?"

Mike shook his head.

"Would you know him if you saw him? Would he know you?"

"Maybe. I dunno."

"What was his name? Do you remember?"

Mike considered.

"I forgot. His name The Fly. That's all I know."

"What was he up for, housebreaking, or what?"

Here the waiter's phlegmatic manner broke and he became excited.

"You better lay off that guy, he is a tough egg!" he warned.

"Ever—kill anybody?" Bowen asked quietly.

"Plenty. They not catch him for it. He is smart guy. Good lawyer, lotsa dough. Yeah!"

A depressed silence held his two hearers. Encouraged, Mike continued to build up the man's reputation. Though his tone was one of deep scorn, his admiration was plain. It was the humble craftsman praising the artist.

"They pull him in two, three times—the Deestrict Attorney go for him. They get nothing on him. They can't hold him. Always he goes free! Ah, he is a bad guy, that one! Yeah!"

Bowen stirred, stretched, yawned, gave every evidence of dismissing the subject. Following his lead, Mary withdrew her fascinated gaze from the waiter's sombre countenance, which had gleamed for a few scant moments with geniune emotion, and made preparations to go. Mike jumped up.

"Oh, by the way," Bowen called, "you remember what you were talking to me about the other day, Mike? Well, I've got it all fixed for you. Give you a letter in a day or two, and you take it up to Shay and he'll fix you up. Nice place,

Universe May Go On Living Forever According To Mathematics Discovery

Associated Press Science Editor
BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP)—New mathematics indicating the universe possibly may go on living forever was presented to the National Academy of Science at Yale University today.

The scientific idea for years has been that inevitably creation is bound some day to freeze up, a form of universal death, not only for earthly life but for all forms of energy.

The new manthematics was explained by Dr. Richard Chace Tolman of California Institute of Technology. He is one of the best known mathematicians in the world.

The old "heat death" theory is based on undeniable facts that matter rapidly is being converted into heat, light, and the other forms of radiation, and the thermo-dynamic laws which seem to prevent a reversal of this running down hill process.

Dr. Tolman has created some mathematical "models" of creation in which this seemingly impossible reversal takes place. He said these models are not real universes, but are partly analogous to actual facts, each one differing from present known realities in some significant respect.

If radiation, that is light and heat, start converting themselves back into solid matter, the universe which now is running down can some day again renew its youth. In one model Dr. Tolman finds this mathematically possible provided matter changes into radiation fast enough to maintain a certain necessary equilibrium or balance.

Three meals a day is not sufficient for the young men who attend Yale—five is nearer their requirement. Thus Dr. Yandell Henderson of Yale commented on feeding experiments. Babies, he explained, need meals about every two hours, and it may well be that the habit of restricting youth of three regular meals begins too young.

George O. Squier, Washington, said equipment to carry radio programs over electric light wires to homes is ready for practical use after 10 years of research.

Shrine Plans For Speed Foundation

CLEVELAND, Nov. 20. (AP)—The Shriners of North America will back a five-year plan to wipe out the difference of 142 miles an hour between the American and world's air speed records.

Formation of a $16,000,000 aviation speed foundation to bring the world's speed championship back from England to the United States was announced here last night by Robert A. Bishop, Morris E. Miller and Ralph K. Kex, prominent Shriners who incorporated the speed foundation in Ohio.

During the next five years, the foundation will sponsor development of high experimental racing planes. An advisory committee of technical matters will be chosen and "the best available pilot" will be selected to make the experiments.

The goal will be to exceed the world's record of 408.8 miles an hour made by Lieut. G. H. Stainforth of the Royal Flying Corps. last September in winning the Schneider cup for Great Britain. The American record is 266.6 miles an hour, set by Lieut. Alford J. Williams at St. Louis in 1923.

The 8,000,000 Masons in the country will be asked to contribute $2 each to finance the experiments.

Possibility Of Compromise In Gas Fight Is Predicted

City Attorney E. L. Klett sees possibility of a compromise between gas company officials and the city, he said Friday, while discussing a probable second conference between the city and counsel for the West Texas Gas company and the South Plains Pipe Line company.

An audit and appraisal by the companies of their books and properties is expected within about 30 days, making the second conference possible in about a month.

City commission held no formal meeting this week, although several commissioners, Mayor J. J. Clements, City Manager W. H. Rodgers and other members of official circles conversed Thursday afternoon and Friday morning at the city hall regarding the city's fight for reduced rates for natural gas. The city recently ordered the city accountant to make a preliminary examination of the utilities' books.

that 'speak' of his. Got this dump beat a mile."

The waiter's face crinkled with pleasure.

He bowed rapidly from the waist.

"Yeah? Yeah? Good boy! You come up and see me when I am up there." He included Mary in his nod of inititation. Mary smiled. How changed he was, when he was like this, from the gloomy, suspicious man he had seemed at first!

Did it matter so much to him, then, just a job in another speakeasy? She judged this was what Bowen had arranged for him.

Bowen laid his change on the bill, and handed it to Mike, who refused it handsomely. Bowen insisted.

"I'll tell you what you can do for me, if that's the way you feel," he said. "Keep you ears open up at Shay's—you're liable t hear something. Shay's is The Fly's old stamping ground, I hear. If he's still in town you'll see him around there, unless he's hiding out. All I want you to do is tip me off if you see him—I want to get a look at him sometime."

Mike showed signs of distress.

"You bring the cops?" he asked fearfully.

"No, no, no! Mike, have I ever pulled a fast one on you? Well, you can trust me. You know that."

Mike said "Sure, sure," and appeared reassured. He looked curiously at Mary. "What he do?" he asked interestedly.

Bowen looked solemnly at Mary. "He did this lady a very great wrong," he said impressively. The strange little man's eyes rested on her, glittering with interest. Mary felt her cheeks grow warm. What was he thinking, anyhow? Then she reflected that it was probably better to let him draw what inference he would than tell him too much about her affairs.

"You not find him for Kane?" he asked suspiciously.

"No!" Bowen denied for her. "And if Kane finds out about this, I'll beat your head off! He'd gum the works—if he hasn't done so already."

They glanced through the clouded glass of the high front windows at a leaden sky which still dripped rain.

"Ever play the horse, Mike?" Bowen asked, casually.

Mike spread his hands. "Some times. No good. I lose much money."

"I see you have. Ever hear of a horse called La Mosca?"

"La Mosca? The Fly—eh?"

"You've got the idea."

"No, that is a new one."

"Never mind. How would you like to go down to the tracks—when's your day off? Friday?" Bowen took out his wallet, extracted from it two ten-dollar bills and a five, shoved them across the table. "I hope the office covers me on this. If they don't I'll be around eating off you, Mike, till payday."

But Mike was retreating from the proffered money as if it were fire.

"Listen, this is on the level!" Bowen protested. "Take it. You don't have to do a thing but play the horses, and keep your ear peeled."

"Yeah? What I do?"

Mike drew the money toward him, pocketed it in one swift movement, and listened hard.

"Find out where the Fly is. He won't be around the tracks, probably, but he's been there lately, and they'll know where to find him. They all know me down there. They wouldn't tell me, and they can smell a dick a mile away. But you can nose around and get the low-down where I'd get the boot, and maybe a bullet in the gizzard. See?"

Mike nodded.

"Also, you might find out who owns this La Mosca filly. May be just a hunch of mine, but it strikes me funny— You go down, Mike, and I'll be around and buzz you on it; see what you find out."

"O. K." said Mike.

"And be careful. Remember we haven't got anything on this guy—yet. But we're going to have. And when we get him we're going to get him right. So watch your step. He thinks he's safe as a church, so you're in no adnger, unless your foot slips."

There was a moment's pregnant silence. Mike turned his back on Mary and leaning toward Bowen poured out a flood of rapid whispering.

"Hey, wait—take it slow!" Bowen objected. When the snake-like hissing subsided the reporter relaxed and waived him away.

"Oh, no, on, no!" he answered, "that's all right. Well, see you Saturday. Don't forget what I told you."

The waiter bowed deeply to Mary, in unexpected fashion, and scuttled away.

"What did he say?" Mary asked fearfully, unable to restrain her curiosity.

Bowen's left eyebrow perked quizzically.

"He was apologizing because he was unable to do the job for us—bump him off."

"Oh, good heavens!" Mary grasped.

"He said he would be charmed to oblidge a lady, but reminded me that he was not available for that sort of thing now. The Baumes' laws, you know. Fourth time and out. If he gets in trouble once more, he goes to prison for life."

Mary laughed from sheer nervousness.

It was still raining, but they were both anxious to get out of the place. Never had fresh air smelled so sweet.

"I'll get you a taxi," Bowen offered, but Mary shook her head.

"I'll take the bus at the corner."

"Sorry I haven't an umbrella for you. Take this, anyhow—it'll keep you dry getting on and off, and you can give it to one of the flunkeys when you're done with it. It's none of mine."

Mary looked down at the coat he laid over her arm. It was an English make, well worn. Hastily she opened it and examined it with shaking fingers. Stitches here, where a seam had ripped.

"But—this is my brother Eddie's coat! Where did you find it?" she gasped.

"Why," stammered the startled reporter, "I found it in the upper hall of the Jupiter house that night of the murder. It was hanging over the stair-rail. I thought one of the newspaper men had left it there, so I took it home with me."

Many Cans Are Distributed From Lamesa To Farm Homes

LAMESA, Nov. 20 — According to reports coming from county home demonstration agent, Miss Roselle McKenny, 1,550 cans have been distributed through this office to farm homes in the county, for Lamesa citizens who wish canned products put up on the halves. This trade has made it possible for some who would not buy cans to conserve food for use this winter, Miss McKinny states.

Cotton Fairly Active Trading Evident Livestock Cattle Receipts Show An Increase Grain Reports Show Wheat Demand

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Cotton again eased off moderately today with fairly active trading. After a steady start with gains of 2 to 3 points on good Liverpool cables the market turned easier. Depressing influences included considerable December liquidation and later weakness in stocks and grain. There was also more or less hedge selling which was absorbed by trade buying on the scale down. Prices eased off slowly all morning and by early afternoon showed losses from the early highs of 11 to 12 points. The market was active but weak all afternoon owing to continued December liquidation and weak stocks and grain and made new lows in late trading 13 to 16 points below the highs. The close was steady at or near the lows showing net losses for the day of 9 to 12 points. Liverpool is due tomorrow 4 penny points down on New Orleans.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 20. (AP) — A slight advance at the opening of cotton today in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables was followed by a renewal of the decline, which carried prices gradually off to 6.16 for January, or 12 points net lower.

January closed at 6.12, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 9-11 points.

The Rev. Walter P. Jennings, pastor of the Lubbock First Christian church, and members of his church were hosts to the sessions, which began Friday at 10 o'clock. The program was opened in the afternoon at 1:30 and members of the state team, who also spoke at the banquet, addressed the assembly. The meeting was one of a series of about 350 schedules for this fall throughout the United States. The work of the church in the home field and also in the foreign field was outlined to pastors and lay workers and leaders.

A similar session will be held at Amarillo Monday and Tuesday the group will meet at Wichita Falls.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20. (AP)—Cattle receipts at eleven markets totalled 13,100 compared with 12,250 last Friday. Trade at most markets resolved itself into largely a clearup affair with only a limited supply of short fed steers and yearlings offered at steady prices. Majority of short feds bulked within a spread of 5.00 @8.25. Stockers and feeders were scarce with values steady to weak. Most replacement steers were of quality to sell at 4.00 @6.25. Demand centered largely on stock calves and stock yearlings.

Hog arrivals numbered 92,500 against 102,800 last Friday. Trade was generally steady to weak with top prices ranging from 4.40@4.75.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 20. (AP) — Hogs 400; market 10 to 15 higher, mostly to small killers; rail and truck top 5.25, including one load choice 246 lb. fall butchers; better 190-230 lb. truck hogs 5.00@5.25; packing sows scarce.

Cattle—2,400, including 200 calves; all about steady; trade poorly tested in slaughter yearlings, fat cows and bulls; slaughter steer sales 3.85@5.75 including two loads fed cattle at latter price; butcher cows 2.50@3.85; better grades fat yearlings lacking, butcher heifers around 3.00@4.50; strong weight low cutters with cutter end 2.00@2.10; sausage bulls 2.00 @2.25; slaughter calves mostly 3.75@4.50; bull sorts 2.50@3.00; good mixed stock calves 5.35 and some stock cows 2.15.

crew here.

Similar celebrations are planned along the route as the colonel plies his way across the Miami-Kingston - Barranquilla-Cristobal route for the first time. The route has been followed by Pan-American planes for some time, but Colonel Lindbergh, technical advisor of the flying company, has not flown it before.

Colonel Lindbergh radioed tonight he would spend tomorrow night in Kingston, delaying one more day the arrival of the American Clipper at Cristobal. He made this decision in view of a request by the people of Jamacia that he and the passengers on the seaplane attend a celebration there tomorrow night.

Wall Street

real terrorist's was not overlooked by police, but they were taking no chances. They remembered the disastrous Wall street explosion of 1920 in which a dynamite-laden wagon, halted in the street near the subtreasury and Morgan's offices, blew up, killed 34 persons out for their noon-day lunch, and injured 400 others.

From police headquarters came word another motive influencing authorities' action was that one of five men, arrested five days ago with a large quantity of dynamite and charged with a plot to blow up a barge, was quoted as saying it was to have been the "opening gun" in a drive against capitalist.

Professor's Psychology Class Gets Off To A Running And Firing Start

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 20. (AP)—Prof. John B. Morgan's psychology class got off to a running start.

Memory courses were the subject of the professor's talk.

"Memory courses," he said, "are fakes."

William Chamberlain, a student, took exception. "Did you ever hear of the Roth course?" he asked. "My uncle's an official in it."

"It never did me any good," said Edward Whelan, another member of the class.

"Well, replied Chamberlain, "a course is no good unless you start with something."

"Do you mean I'm dumb?" asked Whelan. "I'll see you outside."

"No you won't," yelled Chamberlain, as he pulled out a pistol and started firing when the whole class followed.

"And now, children," said the professor when the whole class noticed that the belligerents were grinning, "this was just my yearly stunt to give the class a test on observation."

Oil Conspiracy

eral Wolters is a regularly employed attorney for the Texas company. This circumstance, it asserted, placed Governor Sterling and General Wolters in such close and intimate relation with the two companies that they were disqualified from the action and judgment in matters of oil field administration.

Authority Exceeded

Governor Sterling was charged with exceeding his authority in declaring martial law August 17 in the East Texas oil field, the petition denying that a "state of insurrection, riot and tumult" existed.

Further, it alleged that no efforts were made by military authorities to "suppress riot, turmoil, civil commotion, bloodshed, uprising, destruction of property or any other form of violence" but that they sought only to restrict the production of oil wells.

This, the petition claimed was "a sham to cloak an attempt to exercise arbitrary executive power." Damages totaling $100,000 were asked.

Others Named

The amended petition, in addition to making Governor Sterling and General Wolters defendants, named Adjutant General W. W. Sterling, Attorney General James V. Allred and the three members of the Texas railroad commission, Pat M. Neff, Lon A. Smith and C. V. Terrell.

The original injunction petition, under which Judge Bryant granted a temporary decree on Oct. 13, did not make Governor Sterling a defendant. That suit was set for hearing Oct. 29 at Tyler, then was postponed until Jan. 4 at Tyler, for hearing before a three-judge federal court.

General Wolters was cited to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for failing to heed the injunction, but his case was set for hearing in connection with the injunction plea itself.

The Brock-Lee company sought permission to produce oil in amounts up to 5,000 barrels daily from each of five wells in the East Texas field.

Methodists

beat the preachers and churches of the country into silence. Nothing would so please these politicians as to see the church busied about mansions in the skies and letting the White House alone next year."

He asked if southern politicians would present a solid prohibition front "or betray us."

First public notice of the appeal on behalf of Bishop Cannon came from Montgomery residents who received letters asking for money. Later Charles A. Warden, a Presbyterian investment broker of Washington, said he had been appointed treasurer of the fund sponsored by friends of the bishop.

Response Cordial

The communications asked for money "to help defray the expenses necessary to employ competent counsel and to meet charges in the trial and to assist in meeting similar attacks upon him (Bishop Cannon) to destroy his influence as a prohibition worker."

Warden declined to say how much had been collected but said the response had been "cordial."

Bishop Candler, in closing the South Carolina conference at Sumter Monday, told the preachers: "I have never known a single vote to be changed by a preacher's talking and often the church is harmed by a minister meddling in politics."

Assault Case

icine bottle thrown by Wallace, and that a second fight ensued.

County Commissioners court Thursday ordered the trial held in corporation courtroom at City hall, as Wallace is a federal prisoner and a United States peace officer was not available to transfer him to the courthouse and return him.

Dennis Patton, youthful defense attorney, attempted to show that Wallace had been the aggressor and a kangaroo court regulation that a man challenged need not fight unless he desired was cited, resulting in objections by County Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson.

"I don't think the laws of the state of Texas need to be suspended by reason of rules and regulations made by a bunch of jail birds," the prosecutor declared. The objection was sustained though the testimony subsequently was pierced in as jail inmates were queried.

Four jail inmates, including the kangaroo court judge, and a former prisoner, who temporarily lost the $20, appeared as witnesses.

From the stand, Godfrey denied he had been guilty of the theft for which he was subjected to 20 licks, administered by another prisoner, and said when he was placed in the jail Wednesday night for drunkeness he intended to thrash Wallace. When accused of the stealing, Godfrey was imprisoned for fighting. He was released Saturday. He had served 14 days at Amarillo for vagrancy, he said, and last had worked regularly as a cafe cook at Liberal, Kan., in September.

Trunk Murder "Racket" Halted

A profitable new "racket" was nipped in the bud by Sheriff's deputies in Phoenix, Ariz., when they closed the doors of the house in which Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd killed her two friends, Mrs. Agnes Ann LeRoi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson. The owner of the house, which is shown above, was charging admission to the curious. The sign advertising the spot is shown at lower left, and a part of the curious throng at lower right.

Forty-Eight Of Those Who Declare Intentions To Wed Are Among List Of Mysteriously Missing In This County

MORE than 940 people have filed notice of intention to marry in Lubbock county but 48 of them never came back for the licenses.

Attaches at the county clerk's office cannot explain definitely why any one of the licenses sought was not issued, but they have their ideas. However, your guess is about as good as anyone's.

The first application not followed with issuance of a license is that of a Joplin, Mo., youth and his Springdale, Ark., sweetheart. Across the top of the application is written, $1 due." That was in July, 1929, and the dollar still is due.

In another instance, this statement was written on an application by a clerk: "Both parties are under age—parents and guardians must sign." The parents and the guardians signed; but the license has not been issued.

One of the unclaimed licenses was applied for by a woman. Her prospective husband at that time lived in Snyder. Street addresses of two Lubbock applicants who have not claimed the license they sought show that they lived across the street from each other. Proximity may have flourished their romance, but the mute record in the county clerk's office does not explain why some one else received their marriage license.

All the uncalled-for tickets to matrimony were sought by white persons except two. One Mexican and his senorita never came back. He lived in San Antonio and she in Hidalgo county. A negro failed to get the license he wanted. Perhaps the dice fell wrong, for, penciled on the application, is the word "charge."

The younger couples—under 30 years of age—lead the list of un-claimed licenses. One man of 40 and a 35-year-old woman have not returned.

First application was made July 18, 1929, and since that time 472 have filed "intentions."

to Grandi on automobiles and shop windows along Broadway. They pleaded guilty and will be sentenced tomorrow.

"If you are not safe in New York, I'm going to move," said Mayor Walker. "The only fear I have is that you might stay too long and with your charming manner change the political aspect of this city."

He praised Grandi as a soldier and statesman, and pinned the medal of the City of New York on his breast.

Grandi replied by saying the flags of Italy and America were joined in the cause of peace and solidarity of nations.

Non-Political Movement For Highway Construction Starts

DALLAS, Nov. 20. (AP)—Meeting at the behest of William T. Wheeler of Fort Worth, manager of the Texas Highway association, persons from several sections of Texas today launched a non-political movement seeking a state bond issue for highway construction.

The issue would be about $300,000,000 about $112,000,000 of which would be used in taking up county bonds.

The bond issue, the delegates explained, would be sought also as a tax reduction measure. The bonds would be paid from the present four cent gasoline tax, under the groups plan.

Hiram Johnson Denounces Hoover Foreign Policies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. (AP) — Senator Hiram Johnson, around whom are clustering expectations of many anti-Hoover Republicans, returned from California today unsparingly denouncing the Hoover foreign policies, but saying never a word about possibility of his seeking the presidency next year.

Vigorous as ever and "feeling fine," Senator Johnson avoided politics and political conference in his first hours here. His arrival, however, coincided with a new declaration for President Hoover by Senator Moses, of New Hampshire.

Trial Of Two Is Started For Slaying Of Mexicans

ARDMORE, Okla., Nov. 20. (AP)—Trial of William E. Guess and Cecil Crosby, former deputy sheriffs, on murder charges resulting from the killing of two Mexican students last June, moved rapidly today after Governor Murray had taken a hand to settle a dispute among attorneys at the prosecution table.

A jury was completed at noon and the state rested late in the day after calling eight witnesses, including Salvador Cortes Rubio, who saw his two fellow students, Manuel Garcia Gomez and Emilio Cortes Rubio, shot to death after they had stopped their car on an Ardmore street late at night.

Kearns was slain at Timber Acres near Humble October 24.

Sino-Japanese

evacuation and it is understood the Japanese have no intention of evacuating under present circumstances.

The vagueness of this scheme and the fact it has not been put in writing were advanced as reasons for the misunderstanding and it was explained officials were anxious to announce an agreement, even if it were of the most general and most undefined character.

League authorities were unavailable to clear up the conflict. The theory was advanced that it explanation might lie in the vague undefined state of the council's proposal.

The terms of armistice and the conditions under which the investigating commission would investigate were left to tomorrow's open meeting of the council, according to secretariat officials who told of the supposed agreement.

The armistice decision, as they reported it, was regarded in some circles as a victory for Japan. In other quarters there was a tendency to look upon it as a far-sighted move from which tremendous good for the whole world might issue if the inquiry succeeds in restoring good feeling between the two far eastern peoples.

The proposal does not obligate the Japanese to withdraw their Manchurian army while the inquiry is going on, but it was understood that the Japanese representative intimated that his country's troops might be retired if conditions in Manchuria improved and evacuation seemed safe for the lives and property of Japanese nationals.

League Backs Down

Thus Japan has maintained her original position and the League council, which requested last month that Japanese troops be withdrawn into the railway zone in Manchuria, has reconsidered the stand it took when it first began consideration of the Manchurian problem.

In broad lines, and with the details entirely undefined as yet, the proposed plan calls for acceptance of a military armistice to be indefinite in duration, and the creation of the investigating commission as quickly as possible to examine the Manchurian dispute in all its aspects.

Already there has been much speculation regarding the personnel of the commission which, some authorities suggested, should consist of six members—two political, two legal and two military experts—headed by an American. It was believed that the commission would have almost unlimited powers to investigate the far eastern problem and to report recommendations.

Galveston Bay Is Searched For Body Of Missing Man

GALVESTON, Nov. 20. (AP) — Motorcycle Officer J. C. Japanese Dead Being Mourned

First Trainload Of Casualties From Wednesday's Nonni River Battle Arrives; Mourners At Station

BY JAMES S. OLIVER

(Copyright, 1931, By The Associated Press)

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Nov. 20. (AP) The bodies of 19 Japanese dead, the first casualties of Wednesday's Nonni river battle, together with 80 wounded soldiers, arrived here by train today. A group of weeping women met the train.

It was a day of mourning in the Japanese community. No previous announcement was made of the arrival of the train but the news leaked out and the crowd of mourners, with a military guard, was at the station when it pulled in.

At the headquarters of General Honjo, Japanese chief of staff, it was said total casualties of the battle were not known but it was believed that trainload represented less than half of them.

Owing to the breakdown of the field radio station which is accompanying the advancing Japanese troops there was no news of developments in the region of Tsitsihar and beyond. Frequent cutting of telegraph wires between Taonan and the Nonni river bridge prevented ordinary communication between here and Anganchi.

The Japanese have radio equipment at the village of Tahsing, just north of the Nonni river, but this station is now out of touch with Japanese troops, except by courier.

Japanese official reports said that since the Nonni river detachment advanced to Tsitsihar, Chinese troops have been concentrating at Tungliac-Paiyintala, west of Chenchiatun. A possibility of trouble exists because West Manchuria is practically cleared of Japanese troops.

Tech Professor Is Speaker Friday In A. B. C. Luncheon

"Manchuria today is the Alsace-Loraine of Asia," Prof. H. C. Pender of the department of government of Texas Technological college, told members of the American Business club Friday in Hotel Hilton as he described the present Manchurian situation. Mr. Pender's talk was in connection with the club's study of international relations.

Reviewing the present trouble between China and Japan, Prof. Pender declared that the tangle constitutes the supreme test for the League of Nations and the future of the league lies in its actions on the case which is the most important to be brought before the group. It is the greatest crisis in the league's history, he said.

Would Lose Prestige

"The league is considering the advisability of a diplomatic boycott on Japan," he continued, "this would hurt the prestige of the existing government and would probably bring about the substitution of a less militaristic regime. If the league fails of force Japan out of the Manchurian tangle, it will lose its prestige.

"China technically owns Manchuria by treaties of 1921," he said as he told of the Russian lease and Japan's claims after the Russo-Japanese war. "But for the past several years the foreign influence has dominated the country. Russia is in no position to fight because she would have to sacrifice her five-year plan if that fails, communism is doomed to go also. Russia would go into the conflict with the greatest reluctance."

Little Billie Jo Davis favored the club with three readings after which Miss Verona Hull, psychologist, of Los Angeles, gave a short talk on applied psychology, pointing out that the mental attitude is necessary for success in any line.

R. J. Keller presided in the absence of President Walter Ruffner. W. S. Reese was admitted as a new member.

The club voted to stage a charity dance, bridge and forty-two party at the Hilton on the evening of December 11 to create funds for their Christmas charity donations.

Stude Statistics In Dawson County Show Large Total

(By Staff Correspondent)

LAMESA, Nov. 20. — More pupils of Dawson county schools actually live in Dawson county than are supervised by W. T. Webb, county superintendent of schools.

This is shown by the records of Mr. Webb's office. There are under the supervision of the county superintendent, or in the independent school districts in the county, 4,042 pupils.

Actual scholastics, residents of the county, number 4,053.

The difference, Mr. Webb explained, is caused by the fact that there are a number of districts along county lines, with pupils in more than one county and supervised either by Mr. Webb or the other superintendent.

"Take for example," the school leader said, "Ackerly. It has 164 pupils, but they come from four counties, Dawson, Martin, Borden and Howard.

"Of the 164, about 65 are actual residents of Dawson county. The rest are from the other three counties, about 30 to 35 in each county.

A number of children in Dawson county south of O'Donnell, go to that school. The southern edge of O'Donnell is in ths county and the remainder, including all of the business section, is in Lynn county.

Rainfall Near O'Donnell Assures Planting Moisture

(By Staff Correspondent)

O'DONNELL, Nov. 20.—More than enough rain has fallen in this part of the South Plains to insure fall planting of grains, according to farmers here.

Since Armistice day from an inch to better than two inches of rain has fallen within a radius of 15 to 20 miles of O'Donnell. The fall extended over into Borden county to east of Gail. The rain there the night of November 13 is reported to have averaged two inches. In some parts of northwest Borden county the crops have been very short for the past two or three years, due to lack of moisture.

The territory here is in parts of four counties, Borden, Dawson, Lynn and Terry and in all of these sections the rainfall was good, reports indicated. The rain slowed up picking of cotton to some extent. Many farmers who had piled cotton in the fields instead of hauling it to town, took advantage of the letup in picking to haul to the gins.
