PRISON GUARDS CHARGED WITH BRUTALITY

RITA SLAIN IN WEDDING GOWN, WITNESS SAYS

Wewoka, Okla., Youth On Trial for Slaying Of Sweetheart

LOVE AFFAIR IS BARED

2,000 Fight for Place In Court to Hear Tale Of Tragedy

WEWOKA, Okla., March 10.—(AP)—Rita May Gosa, 17-year-old farm girl, was dressed for her wedding and was waiting for her parents to accompany her to the church when she was shot to death on Feb. 14 by her fiancee Erman P. Higdon, it was testified today at the opening of Higdon's trial for murder.

Details of the love affair between the girl and her youthful sweetheart, terminating in the killing at her home while her parents were attending church in a nearby village were related by J. M. Gosa, her father. Higdon is 22 years old and lived on a neighboring farm. He and the girl had been sweethearts two years, the father said.

Body in a Ravine.

Gosa told how Higdon had been left alone with the girl and how he came to the church with the word that Rita May was missing. He described the search for her and the finding of the body, a bullet through the heart, in a ravine near the house.

Nearly 2,000 persons fought for a place in the court room to hear the story. Never before had such a crowd attended a trial in Seminole county, and as a result Judge George C. Crump, before whom the hearing is being held, announced that tomorrow it would be transferred to a large tabernacle, erected several months ago for a union religious meeting. The tabernacle will seat 2,000 persons with standing room for many more.

There was no disturbance, the tension that characterized Higdon's preliminary hearing having apparently passed. A number of deputy sheriffs, however, mingled with the crowd as a precaution.

Boy Confesses.

Higdon confessed to W. A. Billingsley, county attorney soon after his arrest, but pleaded not guilty when arraigned. A jury was obtained just before the noon recess.

In the confession, Higdon said that Rita May told him while they waited for the party to form that she expected to become a mother and that he refused then to marry her. He said he shot her when she insisted and threatened forceful action when her parents returned.

Billingsley indicated by his questions to the jury that he would ask the death penalty. Insanity is to be the basis of Higdon's defense.

He Had 10 Cents 7 Years Ago, Is A Millionaire Now

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Seven years ago a man named J. R. Tucker walked through the streets of New York with but 10 cents in his pockets. It was his entire capital. Today his life was insured for $1,000,000.

Tucker, now a real estate dealer, with offices in Camden, N. J., and New York, was represented as being the youngest man in the United States to hold that amount of insurance. His financial rise began when he pawned his watch for train fare to Philadelphia, where he got a job as a riveter in the Camden ship building yards. Soon afterward he became a real estate salesman, six months later had organized his own firm, and in two years was rated a millionaire.

ARTHUR RICH IS FOUND GUILTY

Manufacturer's Son Is Convicted of Assault On Student Nurse

MASON, Mich., March 10.—(AP)—Arthur C. Rich, son of a wealthy Battle Creek manufacturer, was found guilty by a jury in circuit court today of criminally assaulting Louise Ling, student nurse, on May 25, last. Judge Charles Collingwood immediately sentenced Rich to life imprisonment in Jackson state prison. The jury deliberated 28 minutes.

Defense counsel requested stay of sentence pending appeal to the state supreme court, but the motion was denied.

Young Rich, with his parents, waited in the court room while the jury was out. He reeled when the verdict was read.

Together with Miss King and another couple, Rich went in an automobile to the Battle Creek Country club, where, the state charged, he attacked her. Several bruises about the face and a broken jaw which Miss King suffered were declared by the prosecution to have been inflicted by Rich. Testimony during the trial revealed that the party had been drinking and Rich testified he was too drunk to remember if he had struck Miss King.

First Telephone Conversation Was Appeal for Help

BOSTON, March 10.—(AP)—The first telephone conversation in history was years ago today, was an appeal for help. This story, related by Thomas A. Watson, associate of the inventor, Alexander Graham Bell, was made known for the first time today.

The two men, working in their little quarters in Exeter Place, Boston, had completed on March 10, 1876, unwittingly, the best telephone transmitter devised up to that time.

"When all was ready," Mr. Watson related, "I happened to be in Bell's bed room with my ear at the receiving telephone and was astonished to hear Bell's voice coming from it saying, distinctly: 'Mr. Watson, come here; I want you.'

"As he had no receiving telephone at his end of the line I couldn't answer him, but the tone of his voice indicating he needed help, I rushed into his room and found he had upset the acid of a battery over his clothes. He forgot his spoiled trousers when I told him how plainly I had heard his words and was jubilant when he went to the other room and heard how plainly my words came through."

JACKSON FINDS FEW TO AID IN RESPITE PLEA

County Officials Turn Down Requests to Write Governor

ASKS SHORT PAROLE

Mandate to Start Serving 25-Year Murder Term Received Here

A movement to secure a parole for Jack B. Jackson, under 25 year sentence for murder, has met with little response from Wichita county officers who have been asked by the sheriff's department to intercede with Governor Ferguson on Jackson's behalf. The latter seeks a 15 or 30-day parole in which to attend to some personal business matters before he goes to Huntsville to start serving his sentence. A plea to various county officers here, however, as in at least two instances has been refused. One of these was from County Attorney Wayne Somerville.

Former District Attroney James V. Allred who prosecuted the case has also refused to intercede as requested and Judge Guy Rogers, trial judge at the time Jackson's case was tried, stated Wednesday night that while he had not been asked to intercede he would refuse if the request was ever put to him. Numerous other county officials have been asked also, it is understood, to act in behalf of the parole.

Convicted Year Ago.

Jack Jackson was convicted about a year ago of the murder of W. R. Jones of Iowa Park. The trial court gave him a sentence of 25 years for the offense, this sentence being upheld successively in the higher courts through appeal and at last a motion for a rehearing which was denied only last Wednesday by the court of criminal appeals.

The mandate for Jackson's removal to the penitentiary was received in Wichita Falls Tuesday afternoon, according to District Clerk A. F. Kerr, who stated Wednesday that he turned it immediately over to Sheriff Fred Smith. Jackson will be held at the county jail pending the arrival of the state penitentiary agent to take him to Huntsville.

Liberty Denied.

Since Jackson's sentence and conviction for murder he has been a prisoner in the county jail. Something like six weeks ago a letter from District Attorney Ben Allred to Judge Rogers, called attention to the fact that Jackson had been permitted a degree of freedom not authorized by law for those under a murder conviction. According to his statement at the time, Judge Rogers refrained from issuing a court order transferring Jackson to the jail at Fort Worth only when he was assured by members of the sheriff's department that Jackson would be kept in his cell in the future. So far as is known, Judge Rogers stated Wednesday night, this promise has been adhered to.

White Welfare Workers As Well As Black Attend Service Held Wednesday Afternoon At Colored Baptist Church Here

"When a life is a real life of service, regardless of creed or color, it is recognized and tribute paid accordingly."

This, in the words of the colored minister conducting the services, was the klynote of the funeral Wednesday for Ella Duckenfield, negro welfare worker who died Monday, a victim of a pneumonia attack contracted in the service of stricken members of her own race. The funeral was held at St. John's Baptist church and was attended not only by a thousand or more members of the negro element here, but by a score or more of the most prominent social workers and society leaders of the white race in Wichita Falls. Floral tributes by the hundred from white and black alike were at the church.

Resolutions of regret from fraternal orders and from church organizations in which she had worked were read during the services; resolutions from other churches which had felt her influence and from the Washington school in which she had a great interest, heading its Parent-Teacher association, were also given.

Words of regret in telegrams and in person were given from state organizations in which she was a leader, and at her death came the message that her work among the negro race, done here in this city, has had national commendation.

"When a life is a real life and full of service, it is recognized, regardless of color or creed," declared her pastor, Rev. M. K. Curry, in the funeral oration.

Howard Dyer, deacon of the Baptist church, was master of ceremonies.

NEWSPAPER DRY POLL ATTACKED

Congressman Blanton Declares It Is "Misleading" Of True Opinion

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The prohibition question agitated congress again today with discussions in both the senate and house punctuated by bitterness and laughter.

Centering on the value of a newspaper poll in progress on the question of modification, the day brought forth introduction of a resolution calling for a nationwide referendum on modification, scriptural quotations, references to George Washington's beer recipe, a recipe for a Manhattan cocktail a lengthy poem entitled "Ode to a Cherry," criticism of the activities of enforcement agents, personal exchange between Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, and Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, another difference over senate rules between Vice President Dawes and Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri and mention of the cost of the congressional record.

The house expended approximately three and one-half hours on prohibition discussion with most of those present participating at various stages in the attack on and defense of the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

It was during this discussion that Representative Sommer, democrat, New York, introduced the resolution calling for a referendum on modification of the Volstead act which would be effected through a poll of registered voters in each congressional district by its representative in the house.

Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, insisted that newspaper polls were "misleading" and declared that "members who continue to drink in violation of the laws should be banished from congress and from the country."

"Then we wouldn't even have a quorum here," retorted Representative LaGuardia, progressive-socialist, New York.

SARTIN SCORES WALSH FOR HIS BRIDGE OPINION

"Reasonless Opposition To Construction" Flayed By County Judge

SAYS CONTRACT IS O. K.

Final Approvals To Be Obtained From Moody, He Believes

Verbal assurance of Attorney General Dan Moody to Judge A. H. Britain that the sale of the Burkburnett Bridge company's wooden toll bridge to Wichita county would receive approval of his department is relied on by those interested in the free bridge over Red river to remove final legal barriers to the matter.

Confidence was expressed Wednesday by both County Judge B. D. Sartin and Judge Britain that when the attorney general is presented the signed contract between Wichita county and the present Burkburnett Bridge company, he will give it immediate approval and allow work to start on the bridge. An opinion given in Austin Monday by L. C. Sutton, assistant attorney general to County Auditor E. P. Walsh, refused to approve the contract.

Is Put Up to Moody.

"The purchase of the bridge by Wichita county was put squarely up to Mr. Moody several months ago," Judge Sartin said, "and his verbal assurance given Judge Britain that the sale would be approved. In the face of that we are prone to regard the opinion delivered by Assistant Attorney General Sutton to Auditor Walsh as being without authority and in fact almost ridiculous."

Methods employed by County Auditor E. P. Walsh in presenting the matter to the attorney general's department before the contract for the sale of the bridge had been signed were roundly denounced by Judge Sartin, who declared that Mr. Walsh was working in direct and reasonless opposition to the commissioners court and those interested in the construction of the bridge.

The purchase of the toll bridge across the river has been an agreed solution of the litigation enjoining the granting of some $161,000 state aid to the construction of the bridge. Bids for certain bridge timber were

"I should like some brown bread and butter," she admitted. So it was arranged she should have some food today.

Other officers, however, said she was killed by a train.

He Sees Victory For Premier Briand

GENEVA, March 10.—(AP)—"M. Briand will push up over the line to an accord," said M. Paul-Boncour tonight at the end of a tense private session of the league of nations council. The session, which lasted nearly four hours, served as a climax to the most hectic of Geneva's thrilling days since the beginning of the present crisis over the reorganization of the council raised by the entry of Germany.

The pinnacle of the crisis was attained today because Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann courteously, but none the less decisively, informed the allied representatives that their mandate from the government and people of Germany did not permit German acquiescence in the creation of other permanent seats in the council simultaneously with the election of Germany.

Meantime, Mrs. King is filing all information for a personal investigation. Reports as she receives them are being forwarded to Colonel Walker Sayles, farm commissioner of the Texas prison commission

Mrs. King was indignant today over the state of affairs and declared that she is anxious to go over the ground herself. She has already obtained the dismissal of several men from the farm that is reporting the last mistreatment.

The letter to Mrs. King from the prisoners begged her to come to the farm and investigate conditions and to relieve them from brutal beatings with hose.

"Treated Like Mules."

"We have been treated like mules," the letter said in part, giving the names of the farm manager and his assistant.

"He is the worst of all," the letter continued in regard to one of the officials o fthe farm. "First, he is always drunk and he beats us in the field with a water hose until he leaves us half dead, just for the simple reason that a man can't keep up with the squad. In the building he comes in with a stick and goes to beating everyone who is within sight. When a man is sick he drags him out by the car and beats him till he can't move. He gets his horse whip and whips us and makes us run to the field."

GRANBURY, Texas, March 10.—Radicalism and a tendency toward revolutionary thought among farmers is growing apace under the "economical injustice" of the present agricultural situation, Colonel Clarence Ousley, director of the safe-farming association declared in an address here today at a more-cotton-on-fewer-acres meeting.

This is the gravest aspect of the cotton problem in the South, he said. He predicted South-wide bankruptcy if even approximately as much cotton is produced this year as last.

Colonel Ousley decried the system of farming "which has developed a large class of operators with no ownership in the soil who are easily misled by designing men who offer seductive methods of relief.

"It is the duty and now happens to be the golden opportunity for business men who have succeeded in life to use the utmost of their energy in helping to succeed," he declard. "It is a sin to permit such conditions to continue without active effort to relieve them. The agricultural welfare of every community in Texas is within the keeping of the bankers and merchants."

He referred to the findings of the national industrial conference board published last week, which called attention to radical political measures gaining a hold among farmers. Quoting from this report he said the actual earnings of the average American farmer in 1924 were only $730 as against earning of transportation workers at $1,572 and those in clerical lines at $2,141.

"It is not strange," he continued, "that a great body of people suffering such comparative discrimination in the rewards of industry turn to radical expendients. I raise the warning that if we do not contrive by sane business methods to improve agricultural conditions we may reasonably expect more radicalism from farmers than we have yet experienced.

Political Bubbles

By S. Raymond Brooks

AUSTIN, March 10.—Many verbal boquets have been laid on the altar of co-operation; but no more beautiful spirit of unanimity has ever been shown than by the present state office-holders. They are all pulling together to one objective. That is re-election.

There is but one break in the ranks. That is Dan Moody, and he is running for governor rather than re-election.

True, two state office holders have not yet formally announced, but their candidacy for re-election is universally expected. They are Associate Justice F. L. Hawkins of criminal appeals court, and Land Commissioner J. T. Robison.

Otherwise, they are all in the field.

With Governor Miriam A. Ferguson heading the ranks, all other present state officers have entered the race for another term. They include Lieutenant Goveror Barry Miller; Railroad Commissioner C. V. Terrell; Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher; Comptroller S. H. Terrell; Agricultural Commissioner George B. Terrell; State Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs. Houston Terrell's announcement Monday was the last of the list of "ins."

The treasurer's race promises to divide some of the interest with the governor's, in that it will be keyed more or less on the governor's campaign. J. R. Ball of Austin, and W. Gregory Hatcher, present treasurer, are so far the entrants. Mr. Hatcher, as has been pointed out at length, broke with the Fergusons before their inauguration. Now it is claimed Ferguson may support his opponent. Mr. Hatcher will disregard his opposition and hammer away at the Fergusons in his race, according to reports.

Then the attorney general's race, when it develops, is likely to also reflect the white light of the governor's contest. There will be a "Moody" candidate and there is already a candidate from close to the Ferguson camp, in Dwight Lewellyn of Dallas.

Rumor persists that George Christian, now first assistant attorney general in Moody's department, will soon get into the race. Representative T. K. Irwin of Dallas is also in the race.

FOR Acid Stomach PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach and relief will come instantly.

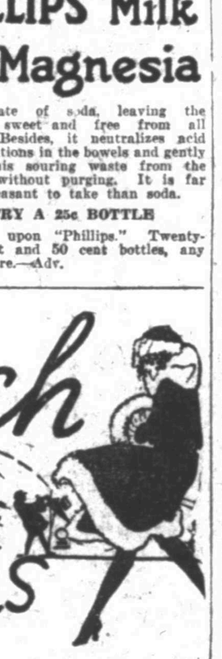

Better Than Soda

For 50 years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of carbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

JARDINE SEES BETTER TIMES FOR CATTLEMEN

Industry Has Had Stormy Time But Is On Way To Recovery

FORT WORTH, March 10.—(AP) The range cattle has gone through the fire since 1920 and has probably fared worse than any other major line of production, but liquidation of cattle now has gone far enough to assure some degree of stability for the industry as a whole and better times are ahead for it.

William Jardine, secretary of agriculture, brought this reassurance to the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association when he addressed their golden anniversary convention here today.

The country is sold down very much shorter on steers than once was; the trend in the market is toward the younger, lighter weight but high quality animal, the odds are beginning to favor the cattle raiser, so far as supply is concerned, but the situation has little in it yet to justify anything but careful, conservative procedure. There were further observations of the secretary after quoting exhaustive figures to illustrate each point thus summed up. The department of agriculture is fully alive to economic problems in cattle business of which there are several and is making every effort to help them solve them, the secretary said and pointed to extensive range studies conducted by the department in North Central Texas in 1921, in the Edwards Plateau region at Big Springs, Texas, at the Jonada range reserve in New Mexico, the Santa Rita range reserve in Arizona and the Great Basin experiment station in Utah.

The North Central Texas investigations show clearly Jardine said that low percentage calf crops have prevailed since 1920.

Factors that count most heavily in favor of a high percentage calf crop are proper ratio of bulls to cows; dropped during a favorable season; elimination of irregular and barren ty condition; breeding to have calves maintenance of breeding herd in thrifcows; and good condition of the range itself.

It has been shown at Big Spring, he stated, that it is possible, practical and profitable under normal conditions to fatten steers in this section, where milo and kaffir are produced.

New Trial Given Farello M'Junkin

AUSTIN, March 10.—Farella McJunkin, 17-year-old negro girl of Wichita Falls, was granted a new trial by the court of criminal appeals in a decision handed down Wednesday and which remanded her two-year manslaughter sentence imposed for the shooting of L. N. Carroll, Fort Worth and Denver switchman, last summer. The court held that the trial court had erred in refusing to charge the jury on the defendant's right to shoot to protect the life of one Banks, a negro boy who, testimony showed, was being beaten by Carroll just prior to his being shot by the negress.

Banks was slightly injured in the shooting when some shot passed through his hand.

Carroll died within a few hours after being shot through the head. The incident took place in a negro cold drink stand operated by the defendant in the railroad yards at Wichita Falls.

Jardine Gives The Test of Good Meat

FORT WORTH, March 10.—(AP) For the man who doesn't know good beef until he gets it between his teeth, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine's address before the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association convention here this morning gives some illuminating pointers.

Discussing a system of grading worked out by the department of agriculture, Secretary Jardine stated the plan of grading is very simple. The same three grade factors have been selected for both cattle and beef. They are conformation, finish and quality.

Conformation cover the general outline of contour of the live animal, the dressed carcass or the cut of the meat. Finish is fat. Quality in beef has to do with such matters as tenderness, flavor and marbling, and in the live animal with the external evidences of these real factors of quality.

T.U. OIL ROYALTY CASE IS DECIDED

Revenue Will Go Into Building Fund, Court Declares

AUSTIN, March 10.—(AP)—Oil royalties from University of Texas lands go into the permanent building fund as a result of the ruling of the Texas supreme court today. In the mandamus proceedings of the board of regents against W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer, the writ was granted and the act of the thirty-ninth legislature placing the royalties in the available building fund was held up.

This action, involving approximately $2,500,000 of oil royalties from lands in Reagan county, settled a controversy of long standing between Comptroller S. H. Terrell and Treasurer Hatcher. Hatcher held that the funds should go into the available fund according to the statutes and Terrell abided by the attorney general's ruling that the new law was unconstitutional. Exactly $1,594,562.15 has been held for a year in this litigation.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past 50 must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative, in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural, regular bowel movement even for those chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besids it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY
March 11, 1925

Miss Irene Andrews, secretary of the First Methodist church, dies as the result of an automobile accident near Decatur.

WYOMING

LONG live the king should be changed to long live the queen, or, rather until her term of office shall have expired and the dispensing of patronage falls into the hands of another. Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, according to the democratic state central committee of Wyoming has vendicated by her official career the wisdom of Wyoming, the first of the American commonwealth to extend suffrage to women.

Governor Ross was elected to fill the vacancy created by the death of her husband governor. She carried out his policies. She did not invent new policies. She listened to the advice of the democratic leaders. They knew what was good for the administration and for the democrats of Wyoming. Governor Nellie does not believe in the free use of the pardoning power. In fact, she does not believe that the pardoning power should be vested in a governor. These democratic leaders who call themselves the state central committee in the resolution they adopted, declare that Governor Nellie is a widow. She has two sons who are college boys. As has been said, she listened to the advice of the democratic leaders of Wyoming, leaders who could be trusted. Wyoming is a republican state, but a body of independent republicans break away at times and elect democrats to office. Now the democrtic leaders of Wyoming realize that they must cater to the independents who believe in sane law enforcement, low taxes, economical expenditure of public money; that a public office is a public trust and that if the democratic party of Wyoming hopes to keep a democrat in the United States senate and a democrat at the head of the state government, it is absolutely necessary to retain the confidence of the independent voters, and this must be done by honesty in office and integrity in all departments of state.

Senator John R. Kendrick is the democratic leader of Wyoming. He was born in Texas and rode the range of Wyoming in boyhood. He is one of the last of the great cow men and ranch owners of Wyoming. He was the first democrat to serve as governor of Wyoming, then the voters of the state elected him a United States senator for six years and gave him another term of six years in 1924. Senator Kendrick is a leader, a wise counsellor, and the woman governor of Wyoming has him for an advisor. Wyoming, while still a territory in 1869,, blazed the path for nation-wide woman suffrage by enacting an equal suffrage law.

Seattle, Wash., is to have a woman mayor. She defeated the democrat holdover for the nomination, and Seattle will be the first American city of the first class to place a woman at the head of the municipality. Many faces will disappear from the political picture this year. Many of the old political war horses are going to be forced to walk the gang plank in many American states. In presidential years the democrats exhibit themselves at their worst; in off years they get together and make their influence felt.

This is an off-year and the congressional elections and elections for United States senators are certain to furnish many surprises for the benefit of the press and the politicians, as well as people who read and think and those who just read but never think. There is an army of the latter type.

SHE WOULD BE A LAWMAKER

THERE are many lawmakers in the legislature. There are farmers. There are doctors. There are labor leaders. There are stockmen. There are some few bankers. There are three or more ministers of the gospel. Why not a trained nurse? El Paso democrats, or rather the voters of El Paso county, are asked to send a trained nurse to the lower house of the 40th legislature.

Miss Louise Dietrich of that city is willing. Nay, she is ambitious. Voters of her county will nomiate her in July. She has offered herself for the legislative secrifice, and she hopes that the voters of her county will nominate her in July. Having been associated with the Texas Nurses association for several years, and having worked with the Woman's council at Austin through two sessions of the Texas legislature, she says she has found a place of governmental activity in which she believes her experience and work would be of benefit to the people of the state, were she a member of the lawmaking body.

Again why not a trained nurse?

Why not a first aid director on the spot?

Why not a young woman who has looked in from the outside for at least two sessions. Why not a champion of the trained nurse industry? Why not an experienced nurse to give legislative aid and comfort to the trained doctors who are on the inside and the trained doctors who are very prominent in the third house when a legislature is grinding?

Who knows but an abundance will be needed next winter in the shadow of the Capitol building. This is a modern age and people believe in quick action. Preparedness is the thing.

SPYING OUT THE LAND

TEXAS is on the map of the world today and there are many strangers spying out the land, the choice spots in the wilderness that remain, the natural resources that await development and the soils which are adaptable to the production of all that mankind needs. R. L. Cooper, who makes Tulsa his headquarters, visited the state capitol the other day. He was on his way to the Big Bend country, in Brewster county. He was accompanied by a geologist and an engineer.

This is not his first visit to Texas. He located a short-line railroad in that section last year. He says the Fort Davis country has the finest climate to be found anywhere; that its mineral wealth is not only its only lure. Indeed, he predicted that in the years to come the Fort Davis section would contain the finest orchards to be found in the country, as it is an ideal fruit country and fortunes await those who are pioneers in the work. There are quick silver mines in the Fort Davis mountain section, and the geologists from other states are spying out the land where there are phosphate prospects.

Incidentially, this prospector from Oklahoma is said to be representing a capitalist from Minnesota, a gentleman who has gathered into his coffers some $60,000,000, and who is always interested in good things that are discovered in a virgin country ready for men and money to turn into cash raw materials and natural resources. Since the white man came to Texas, the Fort Davis country has been given over to the livestock industry, and many cowmen have made their millions in the grazing lands of that section of the state, many sheepmen have amassed fortunes and vast herds or flocks of goats, producers of meat and mohair, are found in the district.

Representative Claude B. Hudspeth claims this district as his own. For be it known, he was a cowboy before he became a statesman; a lawyer before he became a state senator and a banker before he became a member of the American congressman.

Now they are looking for oil in the livestock section of the Hudspeth district and the men who are backing the geologists hope to find it.

SAFE FARMING IN TEXAS

There is a mighty movement on for safe farming in Texas. Safe farming is scientific farming. Safe farming is diversified farming. Safe farming is the farming that produces food for the table and food stuffs for the livestock. Safe farming is the farming that is a maker of dividends. Colonel Clarence Ousley is the director of the Texas safe farming association. This, from his pen is to the point:

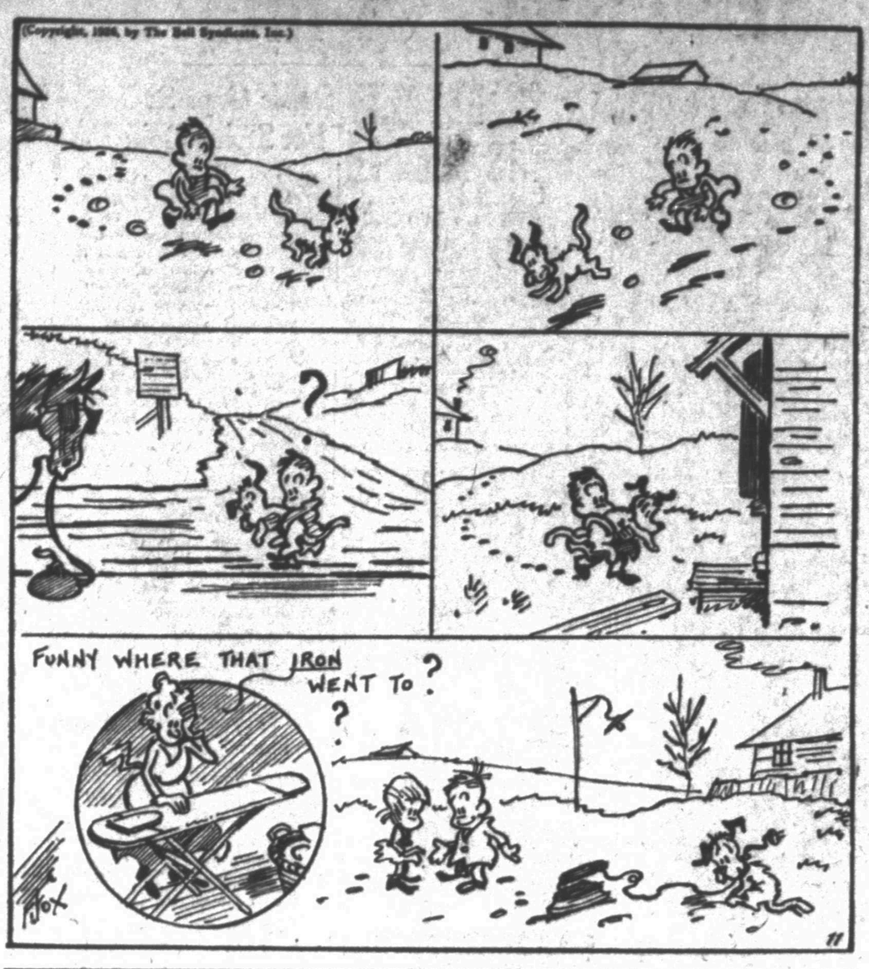

"Here is the best argument I have ever heard for safe farming in Texas: At a typical county seat in North Texas, the first week in February, a meeting was held, attended by about 200 farmers, bankers and leading business men of the town. Several addresses were made on the present cotton prices and the danger of further losses from another cotton crop. Finally the bankers present asked that all farmers who had corn in the crib of their own production to arise. Twelve men arose. After they were seated, he asked for all farmers who had meat in the smoke house of their own raising and curing to rise. The same 12 men arose. After they were seated, he asked that all who had money in the bank, which they did not borrow, to arise. The same 12 men arose."

Director Ousley is ominently correct. He has furnished the best argument for safe farming in Texas. There are farmers in Texas who fill their own cribs from their own corn fields. There are farmers who smoke and cure their own bacon. There are farmers in Texas who do not borrow from their local bank. It is an argument that should be placed in the scrap book of every farm household in Texas.

The GOLDEN COCOON

I only don't want us to begin hating each other straight off because of that hideous panicky sensation that we're chained together for life—Siamese twin fashion. That's the key to the whole snarled-up problem. Give people all the freedom they want, and they don't want it."

Molly shook her head. "But, you see, I don't care for you."

"Well, I've hardly given you time for that. I know it all sounds crude and raw. I wouldn't have spoken so abruptly, but I hated your going on like this—denying yourself the actual necessities of life, worrying over rent and milk bills, doing that beastly typing for those beasts of men. That most of all. I'm really pretty keen about you you know. . . ."

"I like you, too," Molly said, "but not that way."

"You'd come to."

She shook her head. "If I were to do what you ask, my life would lose all meaning—what little value it has left. It would be better I hadn't lived at all."

He went away directly, puzzled impatient—by no means convinced.

Two evenings later he appeared. "Get out the play," he ordered at once. "We're going to work on it tonight. Well, what's the trouble?" he added irritably, when Molly made no move to obey.

"It wouldn't be fair. Your helping me with the play means so much—more than anything else in the world, almost. And I can't do anything for you in return. I can't ever, you know. It's absolutely final."

"Oh, well, hang it all," he said, more irritably. "I'm not asking any pay, am I? I've done as much for plenty of other people without expecting—or getting—anything in return. Bring out the blessed play."

Molly brought it out.

"Queer about this man, Cochran—damned queer. . . ."

The scene again was Milly's little sitting-room; the time some weeks after the play had gone on. Eldredge shifted his paper under the reading lamp to get a better light on it.

"Why queer?" she said at last, when she could trust herself to speak.

"A politician who doesn't want anything—great Scott. Why, see here," he thumped the headlines impatiently, "only today he's turned down the highest office in the gift of the executive—who, if rumor's to be trusted, pretty well owes his job to him. No"—he shook his head sagely—"I don't understand half I know about it. Neither does anybody else. But my prophetic nose tells me there's something rotten at the home address of Hamlet!"

"Maybe he doesn't want anything," Molly ventured.

"Well, my theory is, he's only taking this startling and unheard of method to advertise himself. Next thing he'll be coming out for president or the Lord knows what. Clever—damned clever."

"It's too bad, don't you think, that we can't even conceive of a man's giving whatever talent he has to his country without wanting anything in return?" Molly suggested quietly.

"Yes—one might suppose in a nation of millionaires there would be a dozen men who would turn to politics as a science, an art, a recreation, even—just as others turn to collecting and the like. But, no, it's far more important we should have the latest assemblage of Napoleon's snuff boxes or some stinkly looking Madonna of Benvenuto Cellini. . . .

"I was at a little dinner last night given in this Cochran man's honor—guess that's what set me going about him. He seemed a quiet, unpretentious sort all right—spoke briefly. . . .

"By the way, the woman he is to marry was there, too—a charming creature, great favorite in Washington official circles, I understand. Great favorite with the old dowager, his mother, too—which is far more important!"

Who was this woman, anyway? What was she that she dared. . . .? "Charming," he had said. Rich, too, no doubt, cultured, of good family—everything that she, Molly, should have been. A great favorite, moreover, with his mother. . . .

Again and again she was beaten down, driven into a corner. She was on the point of deciding to go to Greg at once—near, oh so dangerously near in Washington. She would tell him everything, implore him for some life in common, even though it were secret. That other woman—what was she? But reason stepped in coldly to intervene. She knew he would never consent to such an arrangement, and besides there would be still a twofold danger of exposure; a danger all the more critical now that he was getting to be not merely a national but an international figure.

No, she must abide by her decision.

CHAPTER XXIX.

With spring came America's entrance into the war.

Among the amazing recessions and emergencies of that amazing period, nothing was more remarkable than the part played by a certain quiet man from the "wilds of the southwest." Abroad, no one was listened to with more respect, both for himself and for what he unofficially represented. At home, no one, with the exception of the executive himself, was more besieged, invoked, harassed.

The facts were too simple and obvious to be believed, and a thousand absurd and fantastic stories were abroad. Among these the rumor of his approaching marriage persisted.

The lady—Molly saw her picture often in the papers—was both a product and leader of Washington circles; daughter of a senator, youthful widow of a former cabinet minister. Rich, beautiful, admired—she had, it seemed, refused more than one brilliant offer. She was a frequent guest at the Cochran home, both in Washington and in the south.

In the press, the tragedy of Cochran's earlier marriage was dwelt on affectingly—for the benefit of a sentimental public, always more curious about a great man's intimate personal life than about his theories touching the advancement of the universe.

Arthur Bancroft's name figured frequently in the city papers, as a prominent club man, politician, financier. From the home sheets, Molly had gathered occasional items about Stephen. "Old Jim" Dilworth's stroke, "so long overdue," proved no boon to his son-in-law. He had tied up his money so hard and fast in trust for Susan that Renfro could not touch a sou of it without her consent. Whether this the casus belli, or whether—as was intimated in the final "grounds for action"—drink and a weakness for younger and slenderer ladies had been his twin of fenses; at all events, Mrs. Susan had sloughed him off. The affair had gone pretty hard with him. She had cut him off without a cent.

On the occasion of the New York premiere of Molly's second play, Myron Eldredge, who had been across again on special correspondence duty, chanced to be at home on leave. He had been in a training camp abroad, and expected to return soon to the front with a machine-gun battalion. After the performance they slipped into a quiet, downtown restaurant for supper. Eldredge saw some people he knew and excused himself to go over and speak to them.

"Shall I bring the entree now, madame?"

Molly started as the waiter spoke just behind her shoulder.

"No, not yet," she said, and glanced round the embankment of fountain and ferns which screened their table from the rest of the room. She wondered vaguely what had kept Eldredge so long.

The waiter bowed and withdrew to a small serving table opposite, where he seemed to be doing something at a chafing-dish. Raising her eyes presently to the mirror over the table, she saw that he was watching her intently. She had a brief, smithing impression of dark hair, prematurely white in patches, of a face once handsome but riddled and punctured with hard living—pale, too, with an unwholesome pallor. Then something leaped out at her from the mirror. Ironic, dark eyes held hers in a mocking challenge. While she watched, fascinated, the mockery traveled by slow degrees downward. The mouth drooped a little, also ironically, at the lower left corner. It was Stephen.

He finished at the chafing-dish and approached her. He drew a newspaper clipping from an inside pocket and laid it by her plate. "This may have escaped your attention," he observed in his most deliberate drawl.

Molly glanced down:

"ARTHUR BANCROFT DIES AT LONG ISLAND HOME."

"I thought that would interest you."

Molly shook her head. She folded the clipping and pushed it back to him. "Not particularly."

"No . . .?" He favored her with his most ingenuously appealing smile. "Then possibly the fact that I alone am left . . ."

"Stephen, what are you doing here—like this—a waiter?"

He winced. The unhealthy pallor deepened. She could see him in the mirror. But the next moment his head went up again with something of the old-time insolent bravado. "Well, it's all your fault, if you must know—your damned cleverness in outwitting us. It cost me the governorship and incidentally—Sue. That's what she'd married me for, you see . . ."

The head waiter appeared round the bank of ferns, and Renfro bent down, scribbled something on his pad as if taking an order. "There's my address. You'd letter tell me where I can see you tomorrow."

"We have nothing more to say to each other."

"I must beg to differ . . ." Again the naively engaging smile, the ironic drop to the lower left corner of his mouth. "Gregory Cochran, who hobnobs with premiers and presidents and emperors—marries again—the long lost wife supposed dead . . . The newspapers and the politicians, unless I'm greatly mistaken, will purchase that at a price. I'm giving you the first bid, that's all."

"I see—you want money."

Molly had been watching him in the mirror—with revulsion and pity and a certain deep sadness. There was more here than drink, more even than mental and moral disintegration. Those could not have worked so swiftly. Trembling hands, twitching muscles, the glassy film overspreading at times the mocking, dark eyes, told another story. Whisky was hard to get . . .

She glanced around the farms to make sure Eldredge was not yet in sight. Then she said: "Stephen, I'm sorry. I haven't a great deal of money, but I'd do anything I could to help you—not because of your threats, but for the memory of an old and once beautiful illusion. For the rest, you don't imagine anybody would publish such a story on the mere word of a waiter in a restaurant, a"—she made a slight pause—"drug addict."

The ironic droop at his lip changed to a sneer, almost to a snarl. "If he tries to marry this woman, you'll soon find out whether they'll publish it or not! Drug addict or not, evidence is evidence . . ."

"I think you'd better go now," Molly suggested, as she saw Eldredge crossing the room.

Eldredge, who was in the midst of explaining what had kept him broke off abruptly. "What's up? Seen a ghost?"

Molly nodded. "Let's go home," she said.

CHAPTER XXX

When he had gone, she telephoned at once to the railroad station. The next train for Washington left within the hour. Then she changed her dress, put a few things into a bag—ordered a taxi. Her mind had been already made up. She was going to Greg.

How many times she had been on the verge of it before, how sorely she had been tempted! Now that she was actually going it seemed absurdly simple and commonplace. She was going to Washington, going to Greg . . .

She arrived in the early morning. She strolled incuriously around the Capitol and the public buildings until the hour when she thought his office might be open.

Lyrics of Life
By Douglas Malloch

THE HEART MUST HUNGER

Some folks have pictures on their walls,
And tapestries adorn their halls,
And yet they never seem to thrill them,
For what are shelves, and books to fill them,
If you have never hungered for
A little print a year or more,
Nor thirsted for the sparkling verses
Of some old book beyond our purses?

I think, a thing to really own,
The long desire we must have known.
I think the thing we really treasure
Is not the quick and easy pleasure,
Is not the thing that you or I
Can go tomorrow noon and buy,
But something that our hearts has haunted,
We long have missed, and long have wanted.

Scorn not the rich, as some men do,
For riches may bring beauty, too.
But first I think that men must hunger,
Must have been poorer, have been younger;
And then I know that they will see
The beauty in the tapestry,
On painted slopes behold the greening,
And in the verses find the meaning.

And we who never own the art
At least have had it in the heart,
And so ourselves I do not pity,
For there are others in the city
More poor than that—the ones who own
The beauty they have never known,
The ones who have possession of it,
Who art can buy, but cannot love it.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. How can you tell a malarial mosquito from a non-malarial when it is biting?
2. Who discovered the vaccine for yellow fever?
3. What noted doctor gave his life in Cuba in the fight against yellow fever?
4. Who discovered that malaria is carried by mosquitoes?
5. Where does quinine come from?
6. What are five ways of guarding against malaria?

(Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.)

Quinine.

When quinine was first given to the world as a cure for malaria, the wise old gray beards as usual opposed it because it was something new. In spite of the fact that Louis XIV had been cured by quinine, and the Emperor of China, many people refused to believe in its value, just as they refused to believe in smallpox antitoxin. This is what the doctors said against quinine, and it gives a good idea of the superstitious state of medicine three hundred years ago: "It does not evacuate the morbific matter, and it breeds obstructions in the viscera and only binds up the spirits and stops the paroxysms for a time and favors the translation of the peccant matter into the more noble parts."

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to Yesterday's Questions.

1. Five plants yielding sugar are sugar cane, sugar beet, sorghum, sugar maple, and sugar date.
2. Coffee first came from Abyssinia.
3. Brazil is the greatest coffee producing country in the world.
4. Tea is grown in the Carolinas and is horticulturally but not financially successful.
5. Coffee is more consumed in America than tea.
6. Jerusalem artichokes (the root of a sort of sunflower) yield sugar.

The Old Home Plate

To the Sideshow Rollo went.
Right beside the big main tent,
There he saw a chap of note
Stick some swords down his throat.
"Huh!" said Rollo, "pretty slick!
But Ma does a better trick!
Since her teeth were pulled, I'll state
She puts in her mouth a plate!"

HERE COMES THE BRIDEGROOM
(By Claire Muriel Norros.)

"Could youse gimme a bite to eat, loidy?"

Lonesome Luke took off his tattered hat at the pretty young girl who had opened the kitchen door. He heard a burst of delicious laughter—then felt himself kissed on the cheek! Luke's jaw dropped in alarm and amazement.

"You darling!" the girl was tittering. "I wouldn't have known you! You're a scream! Come right in dear—the minister is waiting."

For a moment Luke thought of running away, but a whiff of air from the kitchen carried odors of cooking food. He followed.

A crowd of young people were in the rich furnished living room. They rushed forward laughing and trying to shake his hand.

"Wonderful, old chap!" they shouted "By George, that's good! Ha, Ha!"

A minister, smiling broadly and holding a small book, came forward.

"Look here!" shrilled Luke in alarm "Dis is goin' too far! Are youse all cuckoo? I'm just a poor bum who came here for a handout."

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" roared the assembly. "Isn't he clever, though?"

In spite of Luke's protests, the minister settled down to work and the ceremony was soon over. A tall, old gentleman, evidently the girl's father, took Luke's hand and shook it.

"An amusing idea," he chuckled. "When you told us you were going to be married in your masquerade costume we thought you were joking, Ralph. You're a scream in that outfit, my boy—look like a real tramp."

The telephone rang suddenly and he turned to answer it. His face paled.

"Good Heavens!" he cried. "There's a mistake somewhere. Ralph has just called from the police station—says he was arrested by mistake for a man the police call Lonesome Luke!"

So as to force himself to take more exercise, a physical culturist has his Phone placed where he must Climb for it.

Mr. Creager also said he hoped State Senator Real would be a candidate for the republican congressional nomination against Wurzbach. He predicted that a republican would be elected if "Ma" Ferguson is the democratic nominee for governor.

5 GOOD ACTS AT OLYMPIC

Music, Comedy and Color To Prevail In Bill Of Vaudeville

Linder and Starr in "Don't You Remember?" have one of the best acts seen here in a long time as a headliner for the Olympic theatre vaudeville bill opening today. It is one in which music, color and humor are mingled in a rare ensemble of entertainment. Both performers possess good voices and have the best in wardrobe and scenery.

Jack (Alone) Davis in "Character Comedians" is a versatile performer with an act consisting of a laughing concoction of sundry bits of humor and talk. He keeps up a running fire of foolishness that does just what it is intended to do—entertain the crowd.

In "It's For You to Decide," Royce and company have a musical combination decidedly out of the ordinary. Until recently Fred and Villa Royce have been known as a team, but they have now added Art Smith, a song writer and pianist of considerable note, and Fern McQuern, a singer and dancer of ability who rounds out an especially capable company.

Hip Raymond, the famous New York clown, who ran for long stretches at a time in the New York Hippodrome, is billed with his own company, including Mildred Maison. Hip has a sure-fire line of comedy prattle and comic antics that are declared to be the last word in amusement.

Mitchell Says Chiefs Sought To Hide Truth

New Inquisition Started Against Air Service He Declares

Article VIII.
BY WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Hardly had the ink became dry on my resignation before the war department, impelled by the general staff, began a new inquisition against the air service, to stamp out any further possibility of truthful evidence being given to congress on the miserable and disgraceful condition of our air defense.

The chief of the air service, on being called before the military committee of the house of representatives, had given good, straight testimony as to how the air service was being treated like a step-child by the war department, and how, if we expected to realize an aeronautical development commensurate with the money appropriated for it, the air service would have to be taken away from the army and put in a separate corps.

On my appearance before the house military committee, I had given further information along these lines, which proved conclusively that as long as the army or navy, with their retrogressive methods, had anything to do with aviation, the money turned over for its maintenance and development would be largely thrown away.

Army Has Organized Publicity Departments.

To counteract this, the war department turned out its bevy of professional testimony giversa, armed with lengthy documents prepared by well-trained clerks in the war department, telling how the air forces should be handled. The non-flying assistant chiefs of staff of various kinds went up and did their parrot-like stunt before the house military committee. This time, however, the house military committee knew more about aviation than they did, and raked them over the coals pretty severely. The idea of allowing these men, who had never been in an airplane, and who were completely prejudiced against the development of air power, the entire direction of our air policy, is at once dangerous and absurd.

Seeing the stand on which their arguments were built slipping from under their feet, the general staff, through its propaganda agency, called G-a, sent instructions out to all its posts and stations to keep down the air service, to give out information as to its feebleness and impotency in war, and strain every nerve to retain it as a part of the army, where it could be intimidated, muzzled and stunted.

Each branch of the army, infantry, cavalry, field artillery—has its own means of disseminating information about its aims and activities. This is done, in the case of the infantry, through the medium of the infantry association; in the cavalry, through the cavalry association; and the other branches employ similar channels. The air service, however, being beyond the pale of war department sympathy or even intelligent comprehension—except insofar as they are interested in keeping it down—has no such association as a semi-official appendage, and consequently the only way of getting information out is through the officers themselves.

Patriotic Officers Act.

The navy, on its side, has been even more successful in the intimidation and mental subjugation of air officers in its service, so that they cannot call their souls their own: while politicians, holding false ratings as pilots at the head of naval aviation, urge upon congress the appropriation of large sums, ostensibly for aviation, but really to bolster up the diminishing prestige of the navy, resulting from its shameful conduct and administration of aviation.

Progressive thought on aeronautics in the navy having been put in irons and safely stowed away, everyone who ventured to think for himself either removed from any possible sphere of influnce, or forced to become a plain "yes" man, everything seemed safe to the bureaucrats in that department. Not so in the army, however, a leavening influence still existed, of a number of a number of patriotic officers of long standing who believed that their oath of office, "to defend the country against all enemies, both foreign and domestic," held equally true against the insidiously enemy working within are armed services who threatened to deprive this country of what it needed to defend itself.

These officers continued to tell the truth about the air service. The war department, to stop this, instituted a regular espionage system inside the air offices in Washington—the same "old sleuth" methods were used that were employed by the secret service during the war.

A short letter, drawn up in the air office, expounding the views which the chief of the air service had himself expressed before the house military committee, was sent out to various peopl—members of congress and others—pointing out that support was necessary to obtain any constructive legislation in behalf of the air service during the present session of congress. The paper was innocent enough in itself and perfectly in accord with what all other branches of the service do officially, with the sanction of the war department; but when the least peep is heard out of the air service, it is a signal for much agitation and a quick application of the gag, so that no single flying officer knowing aviation and its needs will be able to give any evidence to congressional committees not dictated by the bureaucracy.

Securing Evidence.

A rule of the war department is that personal influence shall not be used to further legislation and that if such a thing is done, this fact shall be noted on the record of any officer responsible for it. This rule does not prevent the army and navy from keeping a permanent lobby constantly on hand to importune the military committees of both the house and senate.

Officers who are assigned to that duty by the bureaucracies make it their business not only to guide legislation in the way they desire it, but to prepare and distribute counter propaganda against any information brought it from outside sources. This general scheme, of course, operates to practically manipulate congress, preventing them as it does from obtaining testimony on all sides of the question at issue, as a result of the selection and instructions of witnesses who appear before it.

The war department, having received secret information from its detectives placed in the offices of the chief of air service that there still existed a little spirit in the army air service, started out to "get" the daring ones who still insisted on speaking their minds.

Under the guise of having the chief of air service himself investigate the matter, they sent a representative of the inspector general's department there, who went from room to room asking every officer in the whole establishment a set of questions, in an attempt to get them to aknowledge having talked about aviation to persons outside their office: this, according to the war department's interpretation o fthe aforementioned rule, rendering them liable for discipline.

Congress and People Being Hoodwinked.

Knowing full well who they aimed at before they went through this little formality, they lost no time in selecting as their targets Magors Arnold and Dargue, two of the ablest and oldest flyers, as regards length of service, in this country. Major Arnold was one of the first pupils trained in flying by the Wrights, the inventors of the airplane. He has consistently and continually led in the development of aeronautics in America.

These two officers, then, were singled out by the general staff to be disciplined and made examples of, in order to stamp out the rebllious idea that the air service should be developed; and in spite of the fact that General orders prescribe that such an offense as theirs is punishable only by a notation on their record, it appears that both these officers have been reprimanded and one of them is to be ordered away from Washington, it having been publicly announced that he is being removed for this specific action. To make it worse, the chief of air service, brow-beaten by his superiors, has been made to put these sentences into effeca, in order to conceal the real source of the inquisitorial action.

There is no question but that discipline has to be mantained in military organizations. Discipline is understood to be the unquestioning obedience of a junior officer or soldier to superior authority, but descipline must be bounded on knowledge and truth. Whn this is absent in superiors, discipline ceases. The ignorance and stupidity displayed by the general staff and the war department in their handling of aviation cancels their claim on the loyalty and support of the people under them, and their right to the confidence of the American people.

Conditions must be changed—they have passed far beyond the realm of national decency. The persecution of the air people has gone far enough. It has been more or less quietly borne by them for many years, but has now passed the limits of endurance. Not only the air people throughout the country but those desirious of seeing our national institutions maintained, must organize to put a stop to this disgraceful conduct of air affairs by the war and navy departments. These are strong words but true ones.

The lives of our men are being sacrificed by the ignorant and incompetent bureaucracy maintained by these departments. The vast sums turned over to them by the people are in many cases squandered and spent in other ways than those originally intended; and congress and the American people are being fooled and hoodwinked.

Major Arnold and Major Dargue, and their companion, Captain Montgomery of the air service reserve, wronged and mistreated by the war department, may be happy in the firm knowledge that they have benefitted their country and its national defense, in daring to stand for the best interests of the national security of this country.

The Yankee Senor' Screen Attraction At Olympic Today

Tom Mix in "The Yankee Senor" will be the attraction at the Olympic Theatre today.

This is the screen version of "Conquistador," the famous novel by Katherine Fullerton Gerould, and many of the scenes are in Technicolor.

It fell to the lot of the western ace to introduce the new color scheme at the Fox studio, and Emmett Flynn, directing Mix, has made the best possible use of the innovation.

"The Yankee Senor" is a colorful story of Old Mexico and affords Mix a wonderful opportunity for some splendid action. Many of the patio scenes are strikingly beautiful. There are numerous close-up shots of Mix and other members of the company.

The cast includes the vivacious Olive Borden, Margaret Livingston, Kathryn Hill, Martha Mattox, Francis McDonald, Alec Francis and others. Beautiful wildflower sequences were filmed in Wyoming. The Spanish hacienda scenes were laid in Southern California.

Superb Cast Here In Follies Revue On Palace Stage

The "Greenwich Village Follies" with its superb cast of revue stars, its feminine beauty bounteously supplied and its gorgeous production, will come to the Palace Theatre March 16.

The "Greenwich Village Follies" is famed above all else for the artistry and good taste which pervades the entire production. It possesses a singular quality of beauty that distinguishes it from all shows of this type. John Murray Anderson devised and staged this special edition of the "Follies" and he has succeeded in blending his lights and colors and costumes with a wizard hand, without sacrificing humor on the altar of beauty. Comedy has ever been a negligable spot in the armor of revues, but with the "Follies" it holds first place.

In the cast to appear here will be a number of revue notables among whom are Raymond Hitchcock, one of the best known comedians on the American stage, chief farceur; then there are Tom Handers and Arthur Millis, who are a veritable scream. Others in the brilliant cast are Claire Devine, Evelyn Hoey, Audrey Ridgeway, Myrtle Pierce, Lucille Peterson and a dozen more celebrities and thirty provocative artists' models of engaging charm and grace.

Positively, the first time to play this city.

Madge Bellamy In Fine Presentation On Mission Screen

Beautiful Madge Bellamy is co-featured with J. Farrell MacDonald in Fox Films, "The Dixie Merchant," which comes to the Mission Theatre today and according to advance reports Miss Bellamy has never had a role more suited to her sparkling personality.

In this delightful story of the South she is the beautiful and vivacious daughter of the shiftless old merchant—the only one in the family who dares boss him around. Then, too, she presents a hard problem for young Jimmy Pickett, son of the wealthy plantation owner for whom Jean Paul Fippany, the old merchant finally goes to work. Jimmy is avowedly in love with the girl—but can seem to gain no headway no matter what course he pursues.

As for the old merchant his love for his horse Marseillaise is the one outstanding thing in his life. In order to provide the little mare with every comfort he goes heavily into debt, neglects his family and finally almost loses his wife and daughter because of his erratic ways.

"HER MAN"

--By Beatrice Burton--

READ THIS FIRST.

SYLVIA STARR, who looks like a flirt but isn't one, is engaged to marry RANDALL PHELPS. He phones her one rainy afternoon at the library where she works and asks her to meet him to talk over a matter of great importance.

After Sylvia has awaited for him in the rain for almost an hour, he arrives upon the scene and tells her that he's in love with her best friend, FAY SHIRLEY, and wants to marry her!

Sylvia releases him from his engagement, greatly to the satisfaction of AUNT AGONY, who has brought her up. Aunt Agony, who was christened Agnes, would like nothing better than to have Sylvia marry PETER WILK, a bachelor some nine years older than Sylvia. Peter, who is not so good looking as Ranny, but twice as dependable, helps Sylvia through the dark days that follow her break with Ranny.

One afternoon she breaks a date with him to go for a walk with Fay, who isn't on speaking terms with Aunt Agony and is afraid to come to the house. Fay tells Sylvia that as time goes on, the less sure she is that she wants to marry Ranny, or anyone else, for that matter.

And she tells her, furthermore, that she is sure that Ranny cares more for Sylvia, still, than he does for herself.

"Has Eddie Asked Her to Go With Him?" He Asked.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER IV.

Sylvia jumped up and shook out the crushed folds of her short, full skirt with great energy.

"Listen to me!" she fairly rapped out the words, as she turned and looked down at Fay's flushed, sulky face. "If you've made up your mind not to marry Ran Phelps, that's your own party. Please don't try to drag me into it. And don't try to tell me that Ran ever cared two pins about me. He couldn't have or he wouldn't have banged me down hard the way he did!"

She caught her breath for an instant with the remembered pain of that awful night a month ago when he had "banged her down hard" and she had gone wandering around this very park, not knowing or caring where she was.

Fay lifted her big green eyes, with their circle of black velvety lashes. "All right, have it your own way, but I know what I'm talking about, all the samey!" she said and shrugged her thin, graceful shoulders. "I fell for Ranny and I got him away from you, for a while. But way down at the bottom of his heart it's you he cares about—"

"Does he say so?" Sylvia couldn't help asking that.

Fay tossed her head impatiently. "Of course not, silly!" she answered, "I still have him vamped to the point where he doesn't know whether he's coming or going. He still wants to make love to me all the time—but making love and being in love are two different things—and Ran's in love with you! You should have seen his face the day you sent his ring back to him! Hmm—" The green eyes narrowed to a single gleaming line.

She got up from the bench and, arm in arm, the two of them went on their way around the park, brave in its fresh new green.

They had almost reached the lilac walk for the second time when Sylvia spoke once more. "Fay," she began, "why do you tell me this bunk about Ranny? About his liking me?"

She knew Fay, and she knew that she had some deep, dark underlying reason for doing it. The only mystery was what that reason could be.

Fay flushed rosily so that all her freckles vanished for a moment.

"It isn't bunk—it's straight goods," she said, quietly. She stopped in the path for a second and turned her glove back from the watch on her wrist.

"Didn't you say that Peter Wilk was coming to your house for supper at 6 o'clock?" she asked, glancing sidewise at Sylvia.

"Yes."

"Well, its 10 minutes to 6," she went on. "You'd better be off in a cloud of dust. Go on, without me—I'm going to walk around for a while longer and think things out." And she pushed Sylvia away, with a little laugh of farewell.

At the entrance of the park 20 or 30 automobiles were parked, waiting for the turn of the traffic signal. At the very head of the line was a gray and red roadster that Sylvia knew well.

She had seen it parked in the street before the Shirley's big house scores and scores of times last winter. It belonged to Eddie Carter, the debonair and well-to-do young business man that Fay had thrown over for Randall Phelps.

He did not look like a discarded suitor today, however. A light felt hat was placed jauntily on the side of his slightly bald head, and there was a white carnation in his buttonhole. As he saw Sylvia he waved one hand in a yellow glove, and his tiny mustache lifted itself smartly above his teeth in a broad grin.

The traffic policeman's whistle rent the air and Eddie went roaring ahead into the misty green distances of the park. He turned his car toward the lilac walk.

Sylvia gave a little gasp of astonishment. "Well, I'll just bet he's going to meet Fay!" she said to herself. "So that's why she wants me to think that Ranny still cares about me! She doesn't want to marry him, so she thinks she'll wish him back on me! Well, just let her try it!"

Not for anything, so she told herself, would she go through the heartbreak and humiliation of the last four weeks—to have people pity her because she had lost her man to another girl—to have everybody know that he had grown tired of her—and worst of all, to give him up! It had been like tearing her heart out of her body.

No, she was through with Ranny forever and ever. She wouldn't even let herself think of him!

But she did think of him. She lay in bed late that night, long after Peter had gone home, long after Aunt Agony had begun to snore gently in the room across the hall, and she thought about Ranny Phelps and what Fay had said about him that afternoon.

As she lay there an automobile came quietly up the street and stopped opposite at the big house.

Then Sylvia did a horrid thing. She spied upon Fay.

Getting swiftly out of bed she ran to the front windows and peeped. In the moonlight, a big gray and red roadster gleamed smoothly as it stood at the curb in front of shirleys.

A man in a light felt hat, with a carnation in his button-hole, helped Fay out of that car. Together they walked slowly up to the porch and disappeared into its shadows.

It was a long time before Sylvia heard the red and gray roadster start and then hum softly away down the street.

A gay little toast of Ranny's popped into her mind:

"Here's to the girl who's mine—all mine!

"She dances and bets and smokes cigarets,

"And I'm told sometimes she goes out and forgets

"That she's mine—all mine!"

"And that's the kind of a girl she is, all right!" said Sylvia to herself—"that's Fay and no mistake; and that's the kind of girl that suits Ranny right down to the ground!"

The following Sunday, early in the morning, Fay called up. Aunt Agony answered the telephone.

"And upon my soul and body, I do believe it's Fay Shirley!" she said indignantly to Sylvia. "She tried to change her voice so I wouldn't know it, but I did, never fear! She's rush in where angels fear to tread, wouldn't she? The nerve of a brass monkey—that's what she has!"

Fay was having a few people in for supper that night, so she said, and wanted Sylvia to come.

"Just the old crowd," she explained. "Now please don't high-hat me and refuse to come—you've got to meet Ranny some time or other, and you may as well get the dirty deed over with. Come at 6 and bring Peter with you, please!"

After 10 minutes of heated argument Sylvia promised to go.

"That's my idea of no way at all to spend a perfectly good evening," Peter said when Sylvia broke the news to him that they were going to a party. "I suppose they'll have a radio going full blast and a lot of queer stuff to drink—"

Peter never drank and he hated noise and excitement—all the things that were the breath of life to Fay's "crowd."

"But I'll go," she said, "with you."

At 6 o'clock Sylvia was all dressed and waiting for him to come. Aunt Agony had gone out for supper with his sister, Sarah, and to church afterward.

The house was very still and peaceful in the twilight. Upstairs a faucet dripped into the bathtub—a cozy little sound.

Sylvia stood looking at her shadowy reflection in the dim old mirror above the parlor mantel-piece, and thanked fortune that she was pretty—especially pretty tonight, for Ranny's eyes. She had put on a dress that he had always liked, a soft purplish gray thing that was something the color of those flirt's eyes of hers. At least Ranny had always said that Sylvia had the eyes of a born flirt.

The front door bell shreiked through the silent house.

"Hello, Peter!" Sylvia began as she flung open the door, and then her voice seemed to choke in her throat.

For the man who stood there in the moth-brown twilight was not Peter at all, but Ranny Phelps! He stood there looking at her, with not a word to say for himself, twisting and twisting his hat in his hands.

Sylvia felt as if her heart turned completely over, at the very sight of him. But she managed to trill out a gay, careless little laugh.

"Got the wrong address, didn't you?" she asked, lightly. "The party's across the street at Fay's house!"

Ranny nodded. "Yeah—I know that," he stammered, "but she—she sent me over to borrow that big punch bowl of your aunt's. I—I guess she thought it'd be easier for us to meet away from the rest of the crowd—for the first time, you know—"

"Don't be silly, Ranny!" Sylvia broke in, and was surprised at the sharpness in her own voice. "Why should we mind meeting each other?"

As she turned to go back to the dining room for the old Sheffield punch bowl that had belonged to Great Grandmother Starr, she made out Peter Wilk's tall, lean figure swinging toward them through the dusk of Bleak street.

"Here comes Strong-Ankle," remarked Ranny, who never walked any place where he could ride. "I hear he's been stepping you lately. Is that so?"

It was on the tip of Sylvia's tongue to say "Why should it matter to you who's 'stepping' me?"—but she did not.

For Sylvia, who had been brought up in the Old School by Aunt Agony, was something more than a Perfect Lady! She was a Good Sport as only the modern girl knows how to be one—and it was not good sportsmanship to rub it into Ranny that he had treated her badly.

So she simply said, "Yes, I've been seeing quite a lot of Peter," and walked to the edge of the porch to wave her hand to him. She smiled faintly at Ranny over her shoulder, and in the half-darkness those flirt's eyes of hers were as unfathomable as violet lakes.

Sees Coolidge In Behalf of Debs

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—After a talk today with President Coolidge, Representative Berger, socialist, Wisconsin, said he had "good reasons to believe that the president would restore the rights of an American citizen to Eugene V. Debs, the socialist leader.

When Debs was released from Atlanta penitentiary after serving part of a term imposed as a result of his utterances during the world war, his citizenship rights were not restored.

He now is planning a visit to Bermuda and although no passport is required for such a trip, he has been fearful that objection might be made to his return to American shores.

Representative Berger interceded with the president today on behalf of the socialist leader. White House officials declined to predict what action would be taken.

COL. COOLIDGE IS WEAKENING

Condition of President's Father Reported Less Satisfactory

PLYMOUTH, Vt., March 10.—(AP)—The condition of Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the president, who has been ill at his home here for several months, was less satisfactory today, his physician, Dr. Albert W. Cram of Bridgewater, announced.

While there is no immediate cause for anxiety, the physician said, Colonel Coolidge has suffered more pain since Saturday than in the previous weeks of his illness and his condition was being watched very closely.

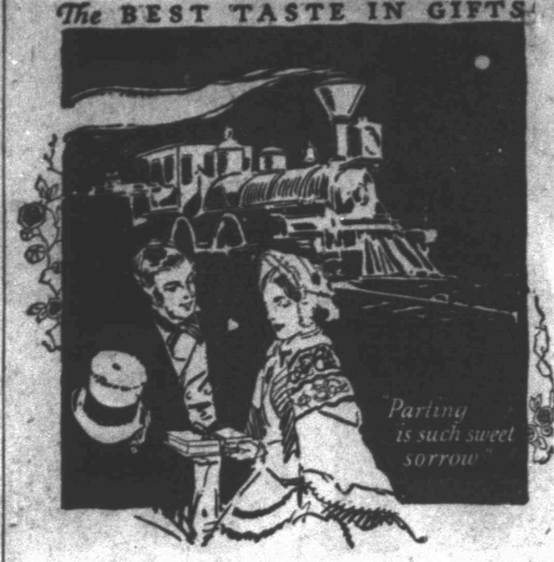

The father of the president, now more than 80 years of age, lost the use of his legs as an aftermath of a heart affection from which he has suffered for several years.

With a deep snow blanket covering the countryside and filling the roads efforts of the county authorities and Colonel Coolidge's neighbors have been directed toward keeping open lines of communication with Ludlow, the railroad point 12 miles distant. Today with the news that the sick man's condition was less satisfactory these efforts were renewed.

Directly in front of the Coolidge house the snow has drifted to a depth of five feet and the estimated depth on the level in the surrounding country is four feet.

Dr. Cram has driven from Bridgewater by sleigh on most of his visits, but occasionally has used the automobile with which the mail is carried from Ludlow.

FARM LEADERS ARE JUBILANT

Relief Seekers Pleased With Progress On Draft Of Bill

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP) With the draft of their bill nearing completion, farm relief leaders of the middlewest expressed satisfaction tonight at the progress they have made sinc invading Washington, a week ago.

The house agriculture committee continued hearings today on the plan of the delegation to have the government levy on agricultural interests an equalization fee for insurance against losses on surplus crops.

It was indicated that the bill would follow the lines of the McNary-Haugen measure which passed the house but failed in the senate at the last session and the Dickinson bill, pending before the committee with some added features such as provision for a contract mtehod of placing the cotton crop.

"Although there will be modifications," said Georgy N. Peek, chairman of the committee of 22 appointed at he Des Moines farm relief conference, "we will not alter our essential recommendations. Under our scheme the government would not go into business, it would work entirely through existing agencies, such as the farmrs' co-operative organizations and there would be no price-fixing."

At the hearing today members of the agriculture committee challenged William Hirth, chairman of the corn belt committee to prove that the farmers weer solidly back of the plan for federal intervention to dispose of surplus crops with assessment of an equalization fee. Mr. Hirth insisted that they were.

Names of the farmers living on farms where they prairie dogs are a menace were secured by lists collected from the schools in the various districts. Official letters continue to be mailed from the county sheriff's office notifying the farmers that the poisoning must be used.

TEXAS GRAIN YIELD FAR TOO LOW, SAYS U. S. REPORT

HOUSTON, March 10.—(AP)—Low production of grains in Texas last year and the consequent inability of farmer to supply their own needs is commented on in the March crop report of the U. S. department of agriculture issued here today by H. H. Schutz, crop statistician.

In some counties growers who sold their corn had to buy it back later at increased prices and the crop was almost a failure throughout the state, the report said.

Remarkable Brain Operation Frees College Student of Tumor Which Induced Desire to Commit Suicide

Large Section of Skull Is Removed By Physicians And After Healing Process Sets In It Is Then Replaced On Youth's Head

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP) Oscar Flicker, 18, who before his illness was a freshman at the College of the City of New York, returned to his home in the Bronx today after an operation in Johns Hopkins hospital at Baltimore which is considered a triumph in brain surgery. A tumor on his brain, described as being the size of a baseball and which in its early stages induced a desire to commit suicide by leaping out of a window, was removed. The operation necessitated the removal and replacement of a large sector of his skull.

The tumor was at the right rear side of his brain. A six-inch triangular sector of his skull was lifted and the tumor removed. During the operation it was necessary to inject air pressure to save his brain from dying. The removed section of the skull then was returned temporarily until it was certain that the healing process was satisfactorily underway. Then the skull sector was reset permanently.

Gives Advice to Expectant Mothers

"I ADVISE all expectant mothers to use Mother's Friend," writes Mrs. Wesley Miller, Hudson, Mich. "I have had nine children. With my first three I suffered for 24 hours. Beginning with the fourth I used Mother's Friend and was sick only 15 minutes. Since then I have had five and was only sick about 10 minutes with each."

Mother's Friend is the formula of an eminent physician and has been a positive blessing to thousands of expectant mothers for over three generations. Used daily, externally, it soothes the nerves and muscles as month follows month. Finally it makes childbirth a joy!

The mothers who praise Mother's Friend the most are those who did not use it with their first baby but through its use with the second, were able to realise its almost unbelievable results.

Mother! Insist on Mother's Friend—the same as used by our mothers and grandmothers—don't wait—start using tonight—and meanwhile write Bradfield Regulator Co., Dept. 34, Atlanta, Ga., for free valuable booklet "Motherhood and the Coming Baby" (sent in plain envelope). It tells how Mother's Friend can help you during expectancy and at childbirth. This booklet also tells you many other things you want to know. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all druggists everywhere.

Perkins-Cullum-Stump Test Apparently Opens New Big Well

SHAPPEL AND OVERBY MAY BE ECLIPSED

Considerable Trading Expected to Develop Today Result of Well

Another new pool of the Shappel and Overby class for the northeast Holliday district is apparently assured by the showing reported at a late hour Wednesday night in the Perkins-Cullum and Stump No. 1, Dutton, located in the center of block 11, League 4, Denton county school lands, about two miles east and north of the Shappel production in south Wichita county.

The well, while not bailed down, was reported swabbing considerable oil from two feet of sand at 1,811-13 feet, and was regarded as a sure good producer although an estimate as to its potentiality was not ventured by the owners.

The well is located just on the south side of the ditch along the Holliday-Wichita road, about a quarter of a mile west of the Simms lone small producer on their Dutton lease completed last year.

The Perkins et al test is taken by operators here as virtually assuring another of the extraordinarily prolific areas such as the Shappel and Overby pools nearby and is expected today to be the basis for considerable trading.

HARRY HINES RESIGNS FROM CONSOLIDATED

Will Operate Privately Now; Was Vice President

The resignation of Harry Hines as vice president of the Consolidated Oil company, effective as of March 10, was announced Wednesday from the offices of that company. The desire of Mr. Hines to continue his operations in north Texas in his own name was assigned as the reason for the resignation. He will remain a director in the company and will retain his stock, it is understood, merely retiring from active work with the company.

Mr. Hines, or "Harry" as he is known over the north Texas oil fields, has been a vice president of the Consolidated Oil company since its entrance into Texas in July, 1924, at which time the holdings of Knight and Hines were taken over. They have been eminently successful in their north Texas wildcatting, having the discovery of the Ragle pool, one of the most prolific areas in north Texas to their credit. Their holdings here were sold more than a year ago to the Texas company for a consideration considerably in excess of $1,000,000.

Mr. Hines is one of the old time operators of north Texas, and has made many friends here during his connection with W. T. Knight and the Consolidated company. His new offices will be located in 419-21 Perkins-Snider building, it is announced.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and rundown that she was not able to do her housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and said to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grandchildren, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Okla. Girl Loses Right to Oil Land

SUPULPA, Okla., March 10.—(AP)—The verdict of a district court jury awarding Patience Depriest title to rich oil bearing land in the Cushing Shamrock field involving several millions of dollars was set aside late yesterday by District Judge Fred A. Speakman. A new trial was ordered.

Judge Speakman said the jury had not followed his instructions in returning the verdict on Feb. 21. The jury, he said, disregarded his caution that if evidence showed there were closer relatives than Patience Depriest to the original holder of the allotment her claim was invalid.

The lease has been in effect several years and title to the property has been attacked unsuccessfully several times. The lease is operated by the Mid-Continent Petroleum company, Pierce Oil and Gas company and the Magnolia Petroleum company.

IOWA PARK MAN TALKS ON CARE OF THE TEETH.

HOLLIDAY, March 10.—At regular Tuesday morning assembly, Dr. A. B. Carter of Iowa Park gave a lecture on the care of the teeth.

How Doctors Treat Colds and the Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsilitis, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, works or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger.

Get a family package, containing full directions, only 35 cents. At any drug store.—Adv.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

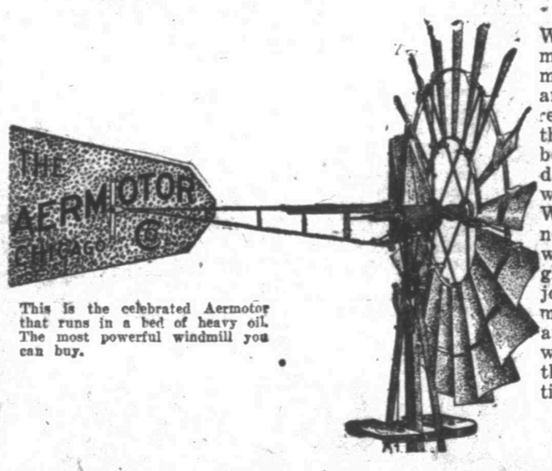

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is musy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.—Adv.

UNJUSTIFIED MEDDLING

A botanist announces that he has found a means of putting fruit to sleep

I am not one to scoff or jeer at science,
It is one magic art which I revere;
I always place the most profound reliance
On those who choose to make it their career.
But now and then I can't help nurse the notion
(And haply, when you've read this, you will, too)
That there is quite a bit of wasted motion
In certain things that science seeks to do.

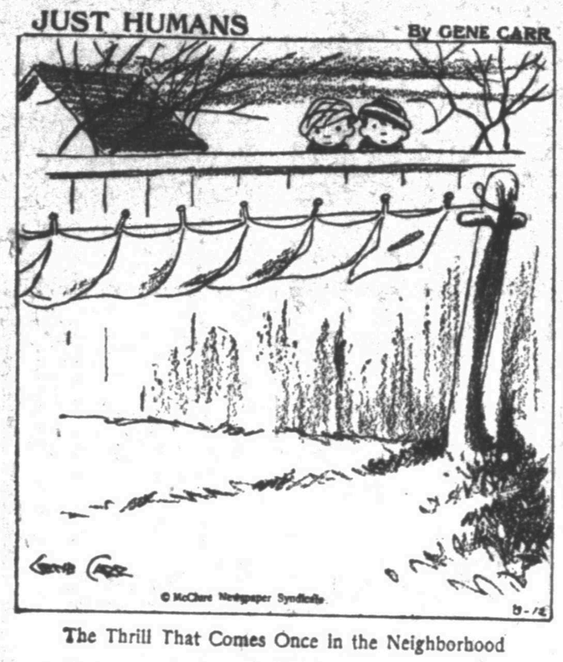

A botanist, I read, has just succeeded
In putting fruit to sleep, and I contend
That all the many years of work that he did,
Produced a quite unnecessary end.
Fruit does not bite, or scream or romp or riot,
It's never mean, nor crabbed, nor morose,
Fruit, waking or asleep is always quiet,
So why should it be rendered comatose?

I think this man might better bend his labors
In forcing sleep on cats; he even might
Attempt to lull to rest my next door neighbors
Who sometimes sing till twelve o'clock at night.
And when that task has been accomplished, maybe
He'll mix some form of scientific brew
Which may perhaps bring slumber to our baby,
A thing, we freely own, we can not do.

When I was young, and something of a felon,
I've often, from some perfect stranger's farm
Purloined a large and lusky watermelon,
But never did it cry out in alarm.
Fruit can not roar or howl or bawl or bellow—
No possible disturbance can it make,
It merely blooms and grows, and waxes mellow,
So why the dickens can't it stay awake?

Yannigan and Regulars Mix In First Practice Game of Season

Brainerd Crew Sinks Bodie Aggregation In Peppery Battle 5 to 1

Seven-Inning Affair Wednesday Afternoon Brings Out Nice Fielding and Some Long Distance Hitting

By MACK TURNER

The Spudders opened their Yannigan-regular games at Spudder park Wednesday afternoon when a team led by Skipper Brainard larruped an aggregation headed by Ping Bodie by the score of 5 to 1. It was a seven-inning affair. With the opening, fans settled back to watch a pitcher's battle between Rip Wheeler and Jim Roberts, both of whom worked over three and one-half innings and then gave way to fresh moundsmen. The score was 1 to 0 in favor of the Bodie clan at this juncture.

The tying run was scored by the Regulars off Gray in the fifth and four were rushed over the pan in the sixth. The play was filled with nice bits of fielding on all hands.

The first bit of scoring feature was that of Patrick Martin in left when he raced over into left center and took in Pete Turgeon's line drive in the first inning. Pete Lapan also turned in a great catch in the sixth inning to take another drive from Turgeon, when he went to the right field wall Brainard, Turner, Kerns, and De Fate dick Daviscourt, who is fondly remembered here for his kittenish antics, is said to be a perfect lady beside Mantell.

Skipper Fred pulled the Ripper out of a bad hole in the second inning and prevented a score. Turner tossed out Bodie for the first out. Lapan lined a double to left center and Martin hit one over second base for a single, Lapan taking third, Schroyer smashed a hot one to Brainard who turned it into a double play with a fast throw to Turgeon.

The first score came in the fourth inning when De Fate beat out a hit to Turner and took second when the throw to first went wild. Freddie Boone then slapped a double into left that scored De Fate. The next three men went out on easy flies.

Waters claims some fine victories himself, having hogged a lot of attention and space in some of the big eastern centers. He had Matsuda guessing for awhile last Tuesday and his friends are willing to bet he'll put Mantell down while the latter is getting his face composed. If Waters beats Mantell tonight he will be in line for another crack at Matsuda, the Japanese terror.

Vincent-Meyers

In the semi-finals Lee Meyers who has been booed and hissed from the ring on past occasions taken on Jack Vincent, light heavyweight champion of Oklahoma. Vincent has wrestled here on several occasions and has never met defeat. The fans are praying that he'll give Roughhouse Meyers a taste of the medicine he has been doling out in such large quanities.

The card is one of the fastest and best Manager Ross has provided in some time and that's saying something.

BROWNE, RYAN GO TO FINALS

Dixie Tennis Championship To Be Settled At Tampa

TAMPA, Fla., March 10.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan of Santa Monica, Cal., and Miss Mary K. Browne of New York, advanced to the finals in the women's Dixie tennis singles tournament here today.

Miss Ryan defeated Mrs. Louise Raymond, New York 6-3, 6-1 and Miss Brown beat Mrs. Hildegarde Taylor, Boston 6-3, 6-2.

Headrick A. Wins Jackson Tourney

ALTUS, March 10.—Headrick A class boys won the final basketball game of the Jackson county tournament Saturday night when they defeated the Friendship A class boys by a score of 15 to 18.

Humphreys A class girls, Prairie Hill B class boys, Friendship B class girls, Hendrick junior boys and Pleasant Point junior girls were winners in the different classes of the tournament and received pennants for the 1926 winners.

Approximately 300 students took part in the tournament last week when 53 games were played.

Spudder Notes

Alex Metzler was the only Spudder to report to camp Wednesday and he got down to business without delay. He took his regular turn in the morning batting practice and in the rookie game slapped out a double and a sacrifice in three times at bat.

Metzler is in fine shape and ready to go. He aired into Wichita Falls about 1:30 Wednesday morning. Metzler's reporting leaves three outfielders yet out of the fold. This trio, is, Kerr, Lamp and Trexler. Mezler was one of the sensations of the league the latter part of last season and much is expected of him in the fight for an outfield berth.

Word was received from Suds Sutherland yesterday which read: "Hold everything, will be in Wichita Falls on 11 o'clock train." Suds failed to make his appearance at the close of the afternoon practice, but is expected in at any time. George Distel is also expected to park his new lizzie at the clubhouse sometime today.

To Bob Wiley, hard hitting young rookie third sacker, goes the honor of being the first Spudder rookie to drive a ball over the wall. Wiley landed on one in the morning batting practice and planted it in the pasture behind left field. Wiley has been hitting hard at all times, but this is the first one he has lifted over the fence.

Pitchers Cannon and Mayfield were released by the club Wednesday afternoon. Both of these youngsters failed to make the grade but Skipper Brainard said they showed promise of later development. Both of them are right-handers.

Mule Washburn, slugging first baseman, and Jess Waters, right-handed pitcher, who have been laid up in the hospital with flu are out of bed and back on the field. Dick Morgan was also in uniform in Wednesday afternoon's practice.

Pitcher Hill of the right hander brigade, has been limping about the park for the last few practices with a sore leg. He injured his right leg recently and it has not healed up as yet.

Ping Bodie has found a member of the club that can make as many "wise cracks" as he in little Pete Lapan. With both Pete and Bodie busy the railbirds are kept in a good humor.

Skipper Brainard continued to drive the ball over the wall in the practice sessions and is lining them out. It seems when the big chief starts with one drive he hits another soon after, or this has been his habit thus far in the training season. Ping Bodie also lifted one over Wednesday afternoon.

SENATOR AXE TO FALL

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) Manager Harris is sharpening up his pruning knife to trim the budding 1926 Washington Senators' lineup with indications that he will keep but seven of his rookies. Ten pitchers, three catchers, six infielders, five outfielders and Joe Harris will likely form the crop with which he hopes to harvest another world's series.

His big four pitching staff will be Walter Johnson, Coveleskie, Reutner and Bush with Marberry, Ferguson and Ogden in reserve which means that for the three remaining vacancies on the mound, Harry Kelly, Jim Lyle, Ray Joyce, Irving Hadley, Larry Schacht, Hal Smith, Bill Morrell, "Hookie" Thomas and Art Humphrey will be candidates. Ruel, Tate and Severeid will be the backstops and the other posts are being discussed at the Tampa training camp.

WALKER TO FIGHT.

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, and Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., were matched here today to meet in a 10-round decision bout at Scranton on May 17.

WILL WATERS BE ABLE TO FLOW OVER MANTELL?

That's Question To Be Decided On Tonight In Arena Match

Finish Match: Teddy Waters of Childress vs. Dutch Mantell, Columbus, O.

Jack Vincent, Lawton, Okla., vs. Lee Meyers, Houston, 45 minutes.

American Legion stadium, 812 1-2 Scott street. Time 8:15.

Will Teddy Waters, snappy young welterweight of the mat art, be able to put Dutch Mantell, one of the best, to the mat. That is the question which agitates local wrestling fans and will be answered with tonight's exhibition of the grappling science. Waters made a big hit with the fans in his last two exhibitions when he gave a fine account of himself with Matty Matsuda, welterweight champion of the world and with Lee Meyers.

Mantell Is Formidable.

Mantell, himself, has a formidable reputation, not only on account of his cleverness, but because he plays the rough stuff and if he can't get 'em any other way, he frigirtens 'em to death. Mantell is said to be the roughest and toughest man who ever hit the mat or hit it with an opponent. In fact, Dick Daviscourt, who is fondly remembered here for his kittenish antics, is said to be a perfect lady beside Mantell.

Waters claims some fine victories himself, having hogged a lot of attention and space in some of the big eastern centers. He had Matsuda guessing for awhile last Tuesday and his friends are willing to bet he'll put Mantell down while the latter is getting his face composed. If Waters beats Mantell tonight he will be in line for another crack at Matsuda, the Japanese terror.

Good Eye Not The Only Thing Needed

BALTIMORE, March 10.—(AP)—A good "batting eye" depends not entirely on good vision, says Ty Cobb, recovering in Johns Hopkins hospital from an operation for the removal of an ocular growth.

"Don't put too much stress upon the eyesight when speaking of hitting," the Detroit American league manager warns. "I remember one afternoon in New York, I had been having trouble with my left eye and was doubtful about getting into the game. I couldn't see a thing out of that eye. Finally I decided to play —and I made four hits.

"No, it isn't all vision. You must have a free and easy position at the plate. You must walk into the ball. You must have confidence. You must tighten up at the impact of the bat with the ball."

Hunter, Richards Win in Florida

CLARENDON, March 10.— The Clarendon Golf club has increased its membership to 50, and recently leased and improved a new course. This is the 60 acre tract of the Bugbee land northwest of the college. A nine-hole course has been completed and much interest shown in the recreation.

Valley League to Open Thursday

HARLENGEN, Texas, March 10. With five teams playing, the Valley baseball league will open its season on Thursday, April 1, when Brownsville plays at Weslaco and Edinburg plays at San Benito, Harlengen remaining idle the first day of the season, according to the final schedule, announced by Billie Burnett, secretary of the league.

Games will be played every day of the week except Saturdays and Mondays, and the season will last until June 10.

HAUSER O. K. AGAIN

PHILADELPHIA, March 10.—(AP)—Participating in his first real ball game since April, 1924, Joe Hauser, star first baseman of the Athletics, out all last season with a broken knee cap, came back strong yesterday, knocking out a triple and a single in a practice game at Fort Myers. He ran bases well.

BRAVES FEEL BETTER

BOSTON, March 10.—(AP)—The Braves feel a lot better today as a result of their 6 to 1 victory yesterday over the Yanks at St. Petersburg. Babe Ruth failed to get a hit, but caught hold of two of Wertz' pitches for wicked fouls which landed two or three squares from the ball park.

The Red Sox at New Orleans put on a nine-inning scrap in which the yannigans downed the regulars, 6 to 5. Fred Haney made two doubles.

Indians, in Training Camp, Boil With Hope of Comeback

TRAINING CAMP NEWS

FORT WORTH, March 10.—Ralph Head, Panther pitcher, who was one of the best hurlers in the Texas league in 1924 and is expected to have a big season ahead, may take up spitball pitching again under the ruling of the league which permits each club to carry two spitball pitchers. Departure of Joe Pate leaves only one, Paul Wachtel, on the Cat roster.

Working out today, Head repeatedly moistened the pill and fired it at Doc Smith, working side-by-side with Wachtel, while Manager Atz viewed the operation thoughtfully. In the minors, Head had an excellent spitball, but it was barred when he went to the Phillies.

Atz didn't get excited over Head's wide-breaking spitters, but neither did Head.

"Sure, I can throw a spitball," he said. "Threw one for five years," and that was all he would say.

The Texas league is the only class A circuit and one of the few minor leagues that permits the damp delivery. Good spitball pitchers are hard to find and hard to beat when found.

Only the battery men worked out for Fort Worth today. Worth field was heavy from the morning rains. Infielders would have needed mud chains.

Atz, anxious to have his pitchers in shape, gave them an hour of it. A jog around the cinder track completed the workout.

Wayne Windle, shortstop, arrived at noon from his home.

HOUSTON, March 10.—(AP)—Ken Penner, the 28-year-old right-handed pitcher who won 19 and lost six games with Wichita of the Western league season, arrived in Houston today, closing the ranks of the Buffaloes. All players on the roster are now accounted for with the exception of a recruit pitcher.

It is probable that Bill Killifer, Cardinal coach and former manager of the Chicago Cubs, will lead the St. Louis invasion at West End this week-end. There will be about 25 players on the squad, most of whom are former Buffalo players.

MINERAL WELLS, March 10.—(AP)—Training camp activities for the Dallas Steers are practically at an end for the 1926 season, as only five men of the club were left when the team went over to Breckenridge today to play the high school team of that city in the second game of the season.

Before he left Mineral Wells, Snipe Conley said he believed his club, at the end of the second stanza of training in Dallas, would be able to stampede any other aggregation in the Texas league.

The workouts here have been thorough and have served to show up great potentialities in the men on hand. And the physical culture and baths of this watering resort have helped to put the team in superb physical trim.

EXPORTER ROSTER IS COMPLETED WITH DELL

BEAUMONT, March 10.—with receipt of a telegram from Wheezer Dell, asking for transportation, the Exporter roster became complete. Dell had declined his contract sent earlier this season but an exacting message this morning asking his intention brought the answer as outlined above. Guy Dunning, Hal Diviney, Bert Lewis and Paddy Regan are all absent, but all have wired the probable date of their arrival which will find the entire squad on hand by next Monday.

ILLNESS WORRIES CHAMPS

PITTSBURGH, March 10.—(AP) Manager William McKechnie is concerned over the condition of Captain Max Carey and First Baseman Geo. Grantham of the Pirate squad now in training at Paso Robles. The skipper is not fearful that the two men will not fully recover from their present indispositions, but afraid they will not have time to get into trim for the opening of the season.

Carey is recuperating at a St. Louis hospital from an attack of grippe, while Grantham is at Paso Robles suffering from shoulder muscle trouble which fails to respond to treatment.

GRAY FOR THE REDS

CINCINNATI, March 10.—(AP) A brilliant future was predicted for the Cincinnati Reds by Commissioner of Baseball Landis, who watched the team in two practice sessions at Orlando yesterday.

"If this team signs Eppa Rixey as I am sure it Will, I think the Reds will make an interesting race of it. I was much impressed with the form shown by Pipp, Emmer, Christensen and some of the young pitchers. When Rixey joins the club the pitching staff will be one of the best in the league.

TIGERS GET BUSY

DETROIT, March 10.—(AP)—Taking advantage of warmer weather the advance squad of the Detroit Americans went through the stiffest workout in the ten days they have been in their Augusta camp yesterday. Thus far Harry Heilmann, heavy slugging outfielder, is the only member of the outfield corps in camp and none of the infielders have shown up, forcing pitchers and catchers to take turns in the field for practice sessions.

Additional members of the squad are expected to arrive momentarily to take part in the daily drill.

RECRUIT A SESATION

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Alphonse Thomas, the former Baltimore hurling ace, was the principal attraction at the Chicago Sox training camp at Shreveport yesterday. He displayed his stuff for the first time in a warming up session before the dazzled eyes of Manager Collins.

Willie Kamm, third sacker—the most expensive in the circuit—reported yesterday. The Chicago Cubs had another practice game at Catalina Island with the make shift lineup walloping the regulars, 11 to 1.

Donahue, the old big league star; Red Held, from Pacific Coast and Western league, and H. Daly, from the California State and Pacific Coast leagues. Tom Erwin of Dallas, on the reserve last year, completes the list.

Donahue last year was with the Western league. The ninth man not under contract, probably will be a well-recommended arbiter from the American association, Mr. Roberts indicated.

"However, if the right kind of offer should be made, and I should be assured of the wholehearted support of the faculty, students, and alumni, I would accept."

NO NEW COBBS FOUND YET IN SPRING CAMPS

Wealth of Material, But Nothing of Brilliance For Majors

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—If any new comers to major league baseball ranks this spring have been showing symptoms of becoming second Cobbs, Speakers, Hornsbys or Johnson, the report thus far from correspondents on the southern battle fronts have failed to indicate it.

This is not because of any lack of rookie material, as much of it is promised. Glowing reports of the work of some of them have drifted northward this week, with the conditioning campaigns in full swing over the area from Catalina Island, Cal., to Tampa, Fla. On the whole, however, the critics with the various clubs have found little to startle them into telegraphing the rhapsodians or of praise usual to this stage of the baseball season.

Dodgers Well Fixed.

Brooklyn, which is doing as much if not more rebuilding than any other major league club, seems to have found a partial solution to its pitching problem in the form displayed by two new comers. One of them, Douglas McWeeny, from the Pacific Coast league, is not in the rookie class, however. He was up with the White Sox for some time and is apparently ready for a comeback. Ray Moss, right hander obtained from Memphis by Brooklyn also is displaying ability.

Sox Have Good One.

The White Sox, reports indicate, are placing high hopes on Alphonz Thomas, pitcher who was a big factor in Baltimore's seventh straight pennant victory last season.

Other new faces prominent in the training picture so far include Joe Buskey, shortstop with the Philadelphia Nationals; Al Tyson, outfield product of the Louisville, American association and who is counted upon by the New York Giants to fill the center field berth; and Clarkson, a Giant pitching prospect from the Virginia league.

duly advertised for by the county over a period of several weeks as required by law, and the bid of the bridge company to sell its bridge for an approximate $20,000 accepted in the due course of time by the county commissioners. It was a proviso, however, in the sale contract that the bridge company was to retain operation of the structure as a toll bridge during the period of construction of the free bridge. With the purchase of the wooden bridge by the county there was an agreement also that W. T. Willis et al, owners of the toll bridge would remove their objections to the construction of the free bridge and automatically dissolve the litigation at present in its way.

Is Not Signed.

It was at first intended to have the sale contract signed by the county commisioners last week, but through various unforeseen circumstances this was delayed and Judge B. D. Sartin carried it with him to Dallas last Monday to secure the signatures of Mr. Willis and others. Through unforeseen circumstances the contract was not signed and Judge Sartin returned to Wichita Falls Tuesday night, leaving the sale contract in the hands of Joseph Weldon Bailey, Jr., attorney representing the bridge company who will get it signed and forward it to Wichita Falls.

Once signed and back in Wichita Falls Judge Sartin and Judge Britain will take it to Austin to present to the attorney general, who, both of them state, is thoroughly cognizant of its details, and has assured them that he will approve it.

The visit of County Auditor Walsh to Austin Sunday was authorized by the county commissioners at a special meeting last week, when his expenses were granted to accompany Judge Sartin and County Engineer Isbell there to meet with the state highway commission and the attorney general on the matter. When circumstances delaying the signing of the contrac toccurred Saturday and Sunday there was an understanding, according to Judge Sartin, between him and Mr. Walsh that the county auditor would not leave until the contract had been arranged.

Goes to Austin.

Mr. Walsh, however, who has protested persistently from time to time at various phases of the bridge construction deal, made his departure Sunday and Monday morning presented to Assistant Attorney General Sutton the substance of the sale contract, securing from this official an opinion that the contract would not be valid inasmuch as authorization could not be given for the expenditure of county funds for material on a project at least two years away.

What other developments the next few days will bring forth on the matter is the subject of considerable speculation. The county commissioners will meet today and it is not regarded as unlikely that the meeting will be made an occasion for a repeawl of an old feud between them and the county auditor. Considerable indignation is known to have been expressed by members of the court over what they term the unwarranted and unauthorized action of Mr. Walsh. It is their belief, however, as expressed Wednesday, that in the face of circumstances the opinion of the assistant attorney general is practically valueless, and that there will be no further hitch when the signed contract is presented to Mr. Moody himself.

NATIONAL CAGE TOURNEY NEAR

University of Chicago To Be Host At Great Basketball Tilt

Nation wide preparations are being made by teams all over the United States to make the eighth annual national interscholastic basketball tournament to be held in Bartlett gymnasium, March 30 to April 3, eclipse the ones held in the past. The officials in charge in their effort to make this meet an improvement over the one of last year have delegated to themselves a task of no small proportion, for these tourneys which originated in 1917, have been increasing in size and national character, being climaxed by the 1925 cage classic which proved to be the greatest basketball event ever staged in the history of the game. Forty-two teams representing 33 states, including 31 state champions journeyed to Chicago to compete for the national title last year. Wichita, Kan., proudly carried this title back home to float over the Jay Hawker state for, at least, another year.

Interest Is Keen.

National interest this year has been even keener than last year as evidenced by the fact that hundreds of letters have been written to the officials at the University of Chicago from teams in every state of the Union, demanding entrance to this meet. District and sectional tournaments, preparatory to the state finals, are now being held in 45 states of the Union to determine what teams will enter the 1926 cage classic. It is expected that 40 teams will be invited with a representation of 35 state champions. Other teams to complete the list will be selected from the winners of such events as Tufts college New England tournament in which the best team of that section of the country participate. The University of Pennsylvania tournament which decides the best team of the Atlantic seaboard will send a representative.

South Represented.

The winner of the cotton states tourney which returns as their champions the best high school team of the South, the Rocky Mountain tournament which is conducted for teams from ten of the western states will undoubtedly send teams. With all the state champions and the winners of these inter-state meets coming to the national tournament, the cream of the basketball world will congregate at Chicago to engage in spirited intersectional competition every day during that week.

Elaborate plans have been made for the entertainment of the boys, including a number of features that are new.

Allen to Teach In "Floating School"

WICHITA, Kan., March 10.—(AP)—Announcement of the appointment of Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas and publisher of the Wichita Beacon, to the chair of journalism on the faculty of "The University Afloat," was received here today from the University Travel Association, Inc.

Besides conducting lectures in journalism Governor Allen is to write the story of the trip as it progresses and his story will be syndicated for newspapers in the United States.

"The University Afloat" will consist of 450 American college students, now being registered from all sections of the country. The faculty, headed by Dr. Charles Thwing, president of Western Reserve University, will comprise about 50 educators and men who have attained success in their professions. The ship will sail from New York Oct. 2, 1926, to be gone eight months and will visit more than 30 foreign countries.

Fifty colleges are co-operating in arranging the tour under the sponsorship of New York University. Ninety courses of study will be available and students will be given credit for a full years work.

About 60 per cent of the time will be spent on ship board and the remainder in visits to foreign universities and in first hand study of the customs and people of the countries visited, Mr. Allen said. Besides the educational advantages of such a trip, he asserted, much benefit will accrue in forming of international friendships.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, March 10.—(AP)—The cotton market was rather quiet most of today's session. Although prices opened slightly higher in sympathy with good cables and because of the rain in the belt they turned reactionary after the early gain of five to 10 points. The easier tone was due to the final phases of the liquidation of the March position in the northern market that month going out at noon there at 19.50. Although March will continue to be traded in locally until March 25, attention will now turn to May, the next active month. Prices weakened steadily on the near positions and the later months eased off moderately in sympathy. At the lowest of the afternoon March showed a decline from the early high of 28 points and later positions losses of 15 to 25 points. The close was a trifle above the lows showing net losses to the day of 23 points on March and losses of seven to 13 points on later positions.

At the start Liverpool cables were better than due and first trades showed gains of five to six points. The weather map showed much rain in the western and central portions of the belt and prices improved as a result until May traded at 18.17, July at 17.63 and October at 16.77 or five to 10 points above the close of yesterday.

Following the early spurt prices turned reactionary and kept on the downgrade throughout the session, reaching the lows near the end with March at 18.34, or 23 points under high, May at 17.92, July at 17.40 and October at 16.62, or 15 to 25 points below the highs. Prices rallied a few poins right at the end and the close was steady.

Exports for the day totaled 17,600 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The March contract in the cotton market passed out in an orderly manner today at 19.30, the noon price or three points under last night's close. It maintained to the end its premium of 56 to 57 points over May. Other months showed a comparatively narrow range and a downward trend, with final prices five to 12 points net lower and the tone barely steady.

The opening market was steady and 12 to 6 points higher. Buying by the trade, Wall street, commission houses and Liverpool on steady cables and further active covering by March shorts, seemed to come mostly from foreign sources. This carried March contracts up to 19.38, May to 18.82 and October to 17.37, the market at these levels showing four to seven points net advance.

News was bearish, however, and brought about later selling pressure under which March contracts sold as low as 19.20 before mid-day. The lowest levels on other months were reached in the late afternoon following pressure from New Orleans interests and local selling due to favorable weather reports from the south, a very poor demand for cloths in the Worth street district according to reports reaching the market and a further easing of spots. May sold as low as 18.63 in the last hour and October 17.24, with the close only a few points up from the lowest.

It was calculated that notices of intention to deliver on March contracts would aggregate close to 30,000 bales of which notices on 5,400 bales have been issued thus far including 12 today.

Exports 17,600, making 6,154,844 so far this season. Port receipts 20,563. U. S. port stocks 1,307,093 bales.

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—Stock prices made further recovery in today's market with the strength of the standard industrials as one of the distinguishing features. Early trading showed some irregularity, but the surprising action of the Perre Marquette directors in not only raising the annual dividend from $4 to $6 but also in declaring an extra of $2, started a new forward movement in the afternoon.

The recovery continued through the late trading despite the marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4½ per cent. Trading picked up in volume the day's sales aggregating 1,637,400 shares, as against only 1,275,300 yesterday.

U. S. Steel common closed 1¾ higher at 125¾ despite the decrease of 263,917 tons in the unfilled orders for February. In view of the high rate of operations during that month, the tonnage report was actually regarded as favorable. The weekly steel trade reviews reported that consumption was holding at a relatively high level while mill operations were around 90 per cent of capacity.

Perre Marquette was depressed as low as 86¾ in the early trading on selling inspired by Wall street rumors that no special dividend would be declared today but the stock soared to 88¼ after the directors action became known closing a point below that figure. Several motors were bid up briskly at the expense of an overcrowded short interest which had been attracted by recent announcements of price cuts.

Mack Truck was run up 3 points to 125¾, closing near the top. General Motors closed 2¾ points higher at 125 after having touched 126¾ and Pierce Arrow preferred, White, Stewart-Warner and Fisher Body advanced about a point or two. Rubber stocks also showed substantial gains.

Allied Chemical was bid up over eight points to 130½ closing a point from the top on what appeared to be a resumption of buying by the pool which had operated in the stock before last week's drastic reaction. Famous Players jumped over five points to a new high level for the year at 125½ on reports that the dividend had been earned twice over last year.

Copper shares also took on a new lease on life on predictions of higher red metal prices. American Smelting advanced nearly four points to 130½ and Howe Sound was bid up 1¾ to the highest price on record at 35¾. Cerro de Pasco advanced over a point and most of the others improved fractionally.

Equipment started upward but ran into heavy realizing. American Locomotive falling from 109½ to 103¾, off 2¾ on the day and Railway Steel Spring showing a net loss of 1¾ at 66¾ after having been as high as 68¾. American Sugar Refining showed a net decline of 1¾ at 74¾, after having sold a point below that figure, on publication of the annual report showing earnings of $339 a share for 1925.

Rails were stimulated into activity by the Perre Marquette dividend action. Atlantic Coast Line soared over seven points to 230¾ and Chicago Northwestern, Rock Island, the Erie issues, St. Louis-Southwestern, Southern railway and several others advanced a point or more.

Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Demand sterling ruled slightly higher around $4 83 13-16 but French francs sagged a few points to around 3.64 cents. Norwegian kroner rallied 10 points to 21.63 cents and Polish sloty jumped 25 points to 13 cents.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Despite temporary sharp setbacks, the wheat market today scored a material advance. Buying for houses with eastern connections became notably active and export demand for North American wheat broadened out. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, ½ to ¾c net higher; May (new) $1.50¾ to $1.50¾ and July $1.39¼ to $1.39¾ with corn ¾ to ⅞c up, oats at a shade to ⅝c gain, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 2c.

Action of corn and oats prices paralleled the changes in wheat market. Oats established a new low price record for the season. Continued sharp interest by corn traders was shown in prospective grain legislation at Washington.

Provisions were easy influenced a good deal by lack of trade.

STOCK-A-DAY

Chile copper is a holding company controlled by the Anaconda Mining company. Through the Chile Exploration company, its operating company, it produces copper at a rate claimed to be the lowest of any company in the world. It has ore reserves calculated to last 125 years at present rate of production. The properties of the company consist of about 10,400 acres in the providence of Antofogasta, Chile.

The company has a productive capacity of about 230,000000 pounds of copper annually and has equipment to handle 22,000 tons of ore a day including railroads, crushers, leachers, leaching plant, an oil handling plant and owns the Chili Steamship company.

Capitalization consists of $109,776,500 outstanding in stock of $25 par value. Funded debt totals $35,000,000 in 6 per cent bonds convertible into common stock at $35 a share. In 1924 earnings were equal to $2.59 a share. Cost of production in that year was 7.99 cents a pound of copper. An increase in the price of copper of 1 cent a pound would mean additional revenue of over $2,000,000 a year. Net income in the first 9 months of 1925 was $8,878,883 or 2.02 per share. Cash and securities held by the Chile Exploration company on Nov. 30, 1925, totaled $9,727,700.

The present dividend rate is $2.50 per share a year.

SOUND SENT ON LIGHT WAVES

Transmission Demonstrated At Massachusetts Tech School

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 10.—(AP)—Transmission of sound on light waves has been successfully demonstrated at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A new field in radio transmission is believed by authorities to have been opened with particular value in strictly in directional sending of speech or signals.

D. C. Stockbarger, instructor in physics, who developed the idea, conducted experiments yesterday before a number of experts and students. He showed the range of transmission to be limited only by the intensity of the light source used and the directional quality by the diameter of the beam of light.

Explaining his theory, Mr. Stockbarger said he found that by means of an apparatus which he had constructed he could send messages great distances by means of an extremely powerful searchlight so focused as to maintain a narrow beam throughout its range.

The Silver of the moonlight . . . . the Amber of the surf-swept beach

Dear Sir:—

Grey is King in fabric-shades for Spring. And The Silver King is the Kuppenheimer Silvertone.

These Kuppenheimer Silvertone Greys, in woolens and worsteds for Spring, are remarkable greys—borrowing their delicate and exquisite hues from the silver of the moonlight.

Next to King Grey, in Popularity's Court, comes Prince Brown, as expressed in Kuppenheimer Ambertones. And such browns! Tans, siennas, burnished coppers, deep and mellow ambers . . . taking their tone from the hue of the surf swept sands.

In the Silvertone and Ambertone colorings available in KUPPENHEIMER GOOD CLOTHES this Spring, you have the season's smartest and handsomest fabric shades.

These new Grey and Brown shades are available in all the Kuppenheimer Young Men's models for Spring.

SILVERTONES and AMBERTONES
BY THE HOUSE OF KUPPENHEIMER

The Mayfair Young Man's Sack

If you want to see a perfect marriage of Right Style and Right Fabric . . . see the new Kuppenheimer Mayfair Sack, tailored in one of the Silvertone or Ambertone Spring shades.

The Mayfair proves that a man doesn't have to dress like a bookmaker to appear young and sprightly. For the Mayfair is buoyant but not blatant; extremely modish without being immoderately extreme. Smart but not smart-aleck.

In either Silvertone or Ambertone fabrics, The Mayfair is a style to subtract years while adding personality.

D. 1926, the same being the 5th day of April, A. D. 1926, then and there to answer a cross action filed in said court on the 3rd day of March, A. D. 1926, in a suit numbered on the docket of said court No. 17697-C, where-in Modern Woodmen of America, defendant, by its said cross action made the following parties defendant: Cordelia Woodhouse, J. DENY APPEAL OF WHITFIELD

Must Serve Term of 25 Years for Murder Of His Wife

Robert Whitfield, confessed slayer of his wife, Mrs. Bess Whitfield, in this city last summer must serve the 25-year prison sentence imposed by a jury in the 89th district court, the court of criminal appeals ruled Wednesday in affirming his sentence.

Exceptions were made by the defendant to the conviction in which it was alleged by Whitfild that his confession was obtained through duress and coercion. In his trial Whitfield took the stand and asserted he had been taken by officers to the spot where his wife's body was found, a rope placed about his neck and threats of death made against him if he did not confess to the murder. Officers named in the charges made categorical denials of all the allegation when they were called to the witness stand.

The Whitfield case for a time assumed the status of an unanswerable mystery. The body of the woman was found under a tree in the negro park just back of the ball grounds. It was unidentified for a full day but through a long examination that failed to shake his assertions of innocence. After a week of questioning he made several signed statements in which he said he had shot his wife as a climax to a long series of domstic quarrels.

Featherstone Gives His Prexy Speech

A short talk expressing encouragement to the club and hope for its progress during the year was made at the regular meeting of the Optimists club meeting Wednesday afternoon at the Kemp hotel by Solon Featherstone, president who was recently elected.

The following committtes were appointed to carry out the work under his regime:

—Extension: Thomas R. Glass, chairman; Bert King, George M. Holt and Dr. Fleta Woolsey; membership: W. S. Burke, chairman; M. B. Whatley, Bryan Lovelace and W. R. Reeves, Jr.; boys' work: Buck Greever, chairman; Claude Miller and N. W. Buchman; fellowship: J. V. Allred, chairman; J. D. Hall, Ralph Hyer and W. U. McCutchen; classification: Ed. H. Dyer, chairman; B. L. Morgan and Ed. Bumemberg; house committee for boys' home, J. Floyd Friberg, chairman; O. G. Stevens and B. B. Craft; boys' committee for the home; J. D. Bright, chairman; and W. G. Braley.

The club expects to have a hundred per cent attendance April 14, it was announced Wednesday.

Miss Karma Yeager was introduced to the club as the "Optimist Girl." She takes the plac eof Miss Katherine Kilander who is studying music this year in New York.

A musical program was given by Mrs. J. S. Pitman who gave two readings and a musical reading with Mr. Pitman at the piano. Miss Minnie T. Baker sang two numbers also with Mr. Pitman accompanying.

Another $50 Cut In Hudson Cars

Telegraphic announcement was received Wednesday by Frank Queisser, manager of Wichita Hudson-Essex, local distributor, of another drop in Hudson-Esnex cars, effective March 11. The announcement reads, "a $50 price cut on Hudson-Essex, applying on Hudson brougham, Hudson coach and Essex coach." This is in addition to the tax reduction made Feb. 27. The new prices quoted in the announcement are "At Your Door;" no freight, tax, handling and sundry other charges, and is for cars equipped with front and rear bumpers, electric windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, transmission lock (is build in), radiator shutters, motometer, combination stop and tail light.

Mr. Quesser says the growing demand for Hudson-Essex cars has forced the expansion and production of Hudson-Essex factory to the second greatest factory in the world in closed cars, which enables them to make drastic reductions from time to time.

Fire Experts Talk Before Lions Club

In addition to the regular fire fighting equipment of the city, Wichita Falls needs an aerial track to fight possible fires in tall buildings, according to Percy Bugby, field engineer of the National Fire Protection association, who is here from Boston, when he made a talk before the Lions club Wednesday at noon at the Kemp hotel. Mr. Bugby called attention to the fact that there was one possibility of fires in this city because of wooden shingle roofs that are used in many of the residences.

G. N. Golton of Austin, state fire marshal, also made a short talk when he congratulated Fire Chief J. L. McClure of this city calling him second to none in the state.

Hubert M. Harrison general manager of the chamber of commerce appealed to the Lions club for financial assistance in promoting the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition.

Camp Fire Girls Plan Radio Party

A radio party has been planned by the Pokam Camp Fire Girls for the evening of the Camp Fire birthday, March 17, according to announcement following a meeting of the Fire at the home of their guardian, Mrs. Anna Barnhill.

Aline Eiter, president, was in charge of the business session that was held. A report was given by Majorie Vincent, representative to the Girls' Council. Arrangements were also made for a candy sale to be held Saturday.

Girls present for the meeting were: Linnie May Baggett, Lucile Hibbs, Marjorie Vinucent, Winifred Hudgens, Charlie Mae Ebner, Lois Brackett, Margueriate McBee, Nora McMillan, Katherine Kiersey, Aline Elter, Lenorah Smith, and the guardian, Mrs. Barnhill.

MOVE SMALL BUILDING

Actual work of moving the small wooden buildings off the corner of Eighth and Lamar avenue to permit the construction of the new $1,000,000 Medical Arts building there was begun Wednesday, when rollers and jacks were placed under a small restaurant which has hitherto occupied that corner to skid it back 150 feet to face on Lamar avenue. It is expected that excavation work on the site will begin within ten days.

The Old Home Town

Mrs. Walter Robbins is reported ill in a local hospital.

Mrs. Ida Cahill is ill at her home, 1808 Huff.

Judge A. H. Britain is confined to his home at 1400 Garfield with a severe attack of influenza.

Judge Claude Mercer of Louisville, Ky., is the guest of his brother, Frank L. Mercer this week. Judge Mercer is considering locating in this city.

Rev. and Mrs. L. Bowman Crayens of Kidd-Key college who have been in this city in the interest of the college will leave this morning for Sherman.

The condition of James V. Allred who underwent a tonsilar operation Saturday is reported to be much improved and he is expected back at his desk within the next day or so.

Ford Bradish of Breckenridge, chief geologist for the Landreth Production corporation, is in the city, and expects to come to Wichita Falls in the near future to make his home. He was a guest at the Lions club Wednesday at the weekly luncheon.

A rehearsal for the birthday Grand Council Fire will be held Thursday afternoon at 4:15 at Camp Fire headquarters. All Camp Fire girls and Guardians are requested to be present, as the success of the council fire depends to a great extent on the rehearsals the executive announced.

Welty Begins His New Canal Survey

A survey of the territory to be irrigated by the proposed Holliday canal to north Archer county from the Wichita county irrigation canals has been begun by P. A. Welty, engineer of the Wichita County Water Improvement district No. 1, according to announcement made Wednesday. It is expected to complete the work within a short time. Two parties of surveyors have been placed in the field.

The survey is being made for the purpose of detemining the boundary lines of a water improvement district to be organized embracing the irrigable area under the proposed canal, which will be constructed in event the district is organized and the necessary bonds voted. It is regarded as possible at irrigation headquarters that an election will be called immediately following the completion of the survey to organize the district and raise the organization expenses.

The organization is sponsored by the Y. W. C. A. and works under it as the mother association. Plans were made for a kid party to be held later in the month, and it was voted to alternate the meetings from social, educational and business to give a variety to the program. Any girl who is a student in a business college is eligible for membership, it was announced.

Rose Martin, president, was in charge of the club, Ilene Dunway is secretary.

Perkins, Et Al, May Have Big Producer

Late reports from the Perkins-Cullum-Stump No. 1 Dutton, about two miles south of the Shappel pool, north of Holliday, south Wichita county, Wednesday night estimated the well as good for between 200 and 300 barrels in its incomplete stage with the indication that it would start flowing before morning. MUSIC AND FUN ON AT MAJESTIC

Vaudeville Bill Offered This Week One of The Season's Best

A rollicking, laugh-a-lot combination of comedy, music, dancing and color was uncorked here Wednesday at the Majestic when the current vaudeville bill stepped out to command a place as one of the best of the year.

From first to last it is a balanced and pleasing ensemble of wholesome fun, tuneful music, glittering color and artistic dancing.

Plenty of Dancing.

As a climax, Hubert Kinney and ifve girls provide one of the best acts of the kind brought here this year. The whole bunch can dance, which they do in plenty to an accompaniment of gorgeous costumes and excellent music. Kinney himself, a lithe and supple youth with a healthy slimness, kicked himself in rythmic speed all over the stage, but his work was little less difficult and amazing han the intricate steps the girls of his troupe executed.

For low brow comedy, Blanche and Jimmy Creighton in "Mudtown Vaudeville" can't be excelled. There is a skit based on the ever popular theme of a home town entertainment. They dress in rube parts and have a running fire of chatter that had the audience holding its sides with laughter most of the time. It's a clean and thoroughly enjoyable number.

Wilfred Clark and his company in "Now What" is a comedy skit wrapped around a trifling husband—or rather two of 'em, a couple of irrascible wives, an apartment, surreptious 'phone calls, pretty clothes and all that. Something funny is going on every minute of the 15 or 20 required for this excellent number.

They Can Sing.

Harmony, the pure D kind that only a capable male quartet can turn out is provided by the Temple Four, billed as "Three Jacks and the Ace of Spades." The ace is the knockout of the evening with his subterranean bass, his stove-black face that wipes off easily on his ammaculately dressed comperes, his red suspenders and his eccentric steps. They sing in a way that calls for encore after encore and the audience Wednesday night would have kept them busy all evening if they could have accepted.

The bill opens with Booth and Nina in a bicycle act that ends up in percipitous drop from a lofty perch to a cushion of springs on the stage below. A petite girl, some amazing antics on the bike and a little comedy patter make up the number.

City Is Praised For Fire Records Being Made Here

G. N. Holton, state fire marshal from Austin, is high in his praise for the steps Wichita Falls has taken to reduce fire hazards and for the low record made last year. He expressed this praise Wednesday morning before a meeting of city officials and the fire prevention committee of the chamber of commerce. Others who spoke at the meeting and complimented the city in this connection were: Percy Bigbee, Boston, field engineer of the National Fire protection association and S. W. Inglish, Dallas, manager of the Texas Inspection bureau.

Attending the meeting were the following members of the city's official family: Mayor R. E. Shepherd, commissioners Frank Queiser, J. H. Patton, Oran Jones and P. B. Curd, Fire Chief McClure and Assistant Chief Habern.

Members of the Fire prevention mittee present were: Horace Robbins, chairman; J. B. Marlow, J. C. Ward, and J. W. Lyle, P. A. Rogers, John P. Marrs, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, J. W. Williams of Williams-Dwyer Co., and Mr. Darden of Mytinger and Walker.

"Your fire record is most excellent," declared Mr. Holton, "and your community interest in doing away with fire hazards is worthy of highest praise. You are deficient, however, in the matter of shingle roofs and I am surprised to find that you have no aerial truck for use in case some of the taller buildings of the city should take fire."

TRAVIS RESERVES MEET.

A regular meeting of the Travis school Girl Reserve club was held Wednesday afternoon at the school with the following program: devotional, Drucilla Taylor; report from girls' council, Juanita McAda; skit, "Ode to Health," by Katherine Bird, Jennie Dubose, Annie Howard, Drucilla Taylor, Juanita McAda, Edith Hearn, Ella Wingfield, Thelma Brewster.
