Wheelchair-bound Reinato Olivas, 25, of Fort Stockton, finished Friday night's 5-kilometer race in 27.27 minutes — ahead of several other runners. This was Olivas's first race, he said.

A 5-kilometer race Friday night was the first for Reinato Olivas and the wheelchair-bound 25 year old wanted to make a point.

"In order to get other people to accept you as yourself, you've got to participate like other people," said Olivas as he waited for the 3.1-mile race to begin at a northwest Midland shopping center.

Olivas was among 180 runners racing to raise money for KOCV-TV, the Midland-Odessa area's Public Broadcasting station.

For the past two months, acceptance from other people — particularly employers — has not come easy for Olivas, who has been conducting a unsuccessful job search since receiving his degree in accounting from Angelo State University in May.

Olivas also earned a degree in economics from Texas A&M University in May 1986.

"The business people have skepticism toward you," said Olivas, who feels some prospective employers have turned him down because they don't think he can perform adequately as an accountant because of his handicap.

Until he finds a job, Olivas plans to use his spare time to become fit, he said.

Like most people, Olivas never thought he would be confined to a wheelchair, he said.

But five years ago, driving to his Fort Stockton home from Texas A&M University, Olivas' car collided with a tree near Llano after he fell asleep, he said.

Keeping fit is not easy when you're paralyzed from the chest down and have only one-third of your muscles to work with, Olivas said.

He started slow on his fitness kick — "jogging" one mile a day. Now he wheels about six miles each day, he said.

"You get use to pushing. It's like anybody starting out, it's hard at first," Olivas said.

Along with jogging, Olivas plays wheelchair basketball and goes sled skiing, trading his chair in for a sled at Durango and Breckenridge, Colo.

Friday night Olivas met his goal of finishing the 3.1-mile track within a half hour, timing in at 27.27 minutes. He also beat several other racers.

Race organizers gave the Fort Stockton native a five minute start.

Olivas said he doesn't find keeping motivated difficult and plans to run in other races.

"It's real easy to stay at home and do nothing," he said.

But for fitness aspirants he advised, "If you want to do it, you can go out and do it."

Khomeini: Warriors will punish U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Friday that Islamic "holy warriors" will punish the United States, which he blamed for the deaths of Iranian pilgrims in Saudi Arabia.

"When we fight for justice, they fight against us," Khomeini said of the United States. "The whole world, including the United States, can do what it likes. They are only creating problems for themselves."

The 87-year-old patriarch, appearing in public for the first time since hundreds of Iranian pilgrims died July 31 in rioting in Saudi Arabia, blamed America for the "action in Mecca," Islam's holiest city.

The Saudis said 402 people were killed in Mecca, 275 of them Iranian pilgrims, in rioting instigated by the Iranians. Most Iranians belong to the Moslem Shiite sect, which has been at odds for centuries with much of the rest of Islam, which is dominated by the Sunni sect.

"What the Americans are doing is nonsense," said Khomeini. "Islamic holy warriors will punish them."

Khomeini had already blamed Washington for the deaths in a written message read over Tehran radio the day after the riots.

His speech Friday was delivered from the balcony of his home in north Tehran and broacast on Iranian television, monitored in Nicosia.

The United States is massing warships in the region in a bid to protect Kuwaiti tankers from Iranian attack, but Khomeini did not mention the Persian Gulf, where the U.S. Navy has been escorting Kuwaiti tankers.

Iran accuses Kuwait of transshipping goods to Iraq, its foe in a nearly 7-year-old war.

Khomeini, whose speech marked the Shiite feast of Ghadir, devoted most of his remarks to theological points. He looked fit and spoke in a strong, unwavering voice.

He said countries that separate religion from politics are bound to have "tyrannical and despotic" rulers, but he mentioned no nation by name.

When Khomeini concluded his speech, the audience chanted "God, Until the Return of the Mahdi (prophet), Keep Khomeini Alive" and "War, War Until Victory."

Storm tears apart mobile home park

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

A Midland man said he tore the curtains off his windows to get a better look at a black cloud resembling a tornado that touched down west of his mobile home southwest of the city Friday night.

"I decided if I was going to be taken away I wanted to see it happen," said Jerry Hill, who lives at 156 Wildwood St. in the Westgate Mobile Home Park southwest of Midland.

Hill said he and three of his neighbors spotted the angry-looking black cloud around 8:45 p.m. Friday.

No injuries occurred during the storms that tore off the roof of a mobile home located in the same park, according to sheriff department reports.

The storm also threw a shed in the street and scattered other sheds and boats in the park of about 150 trailers west of County Road 1224 and about a half mile south of Interstate 20, a sheriff's dispatcher said.

Hill said his 10-foot satellite dish was thrown onto his patio and his camper was thrown into a storage shed adjacent to his mobile home.

Another resident nearby, Debra Young, whose sailboat was torn off its trailer bed and turned upside down, said, "It just got real scary out here.

"We could hear the walls on our trailer popping," said Ms. Young, who lives at 206 Westview Road.

Rick Davis, a National Weather Service spokesman at Midland Regional Airport, said a small tornado could have touched down at the park.

"This time of the year some of these thunderstorms will produce a real small tornado that lasts five minutes or less and is maybe only a foot wide," Davis said.

However, weather service radar is unable to spot funnels near the ground in the Midland area, he said, so no confirmation of the siting was available.

Trees and buildings reflect back into the radar, he explained.

"We do see storms over Midland," he said. However, to spot tornadoes, "We have to raise our antenna so radar energy will not be reflected back by trees and buildings," Davis said.

Davis said he called employees at the Department of Public Safety office — just north of the mobile home park — who reported they saw no funnel clouds but acknowledged "straight line winds" at 50 mph.

The storm that tore through Midland lasted about 45 minutes, but the weather service recorded negligible precipitation at the airport, which is located 10 miles west of the city.

TRC Chairman Wallace may be resigning

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace will announce Monday whether he will resign the commission seat he has held for 14 years.

"Mack Wallace has received an offer from a local law firm, which one it is I don't know," commission spokesman Brian Schaible said Friday. "He's going to consider that over the weekend and make a statement Monday."

Wallace was traveling in East Texas as Friday and could not be reached for comment.

If Wallace — a Democrat — decides to step down, Republican Gov. Bill Clements would name a successor to serve through the 1988 general election. Should Clements appoint a Republican, the new commissioner would be the first from the GOP to serve on the three-member panel since its inception in 1891.

The Clements administration would not comment on Wallace's resignation nor on his possible successor. "Everything is premature at this point," said deputy press secretary Jay Rosser.

Former state Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, said he is "absolutely" interested in the position, adding that he received a "basically favorable but non-committal" response from Clements' office.

"I feel like my background and expertise is in that area," said Emmett, the former chairman of the House Energy Committee who finished third in the 1986 GOP primary race for the commission. "I have a natural interest in this area."

A Wallace resignation would produce two races for the commission next year, as Commissioner Jim Nugent's term will expire. Besides Emmett, who has already said he would seek Nugent's seat, other possible Republican candidates or appointees include former Congressman Kent Hance and former Houston Rep. Milton Fox, said John Weaver, executive director of the State Republican Party.

Wallace, 57, has served on the commission since then-Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed him to succeed Byron Tunnell on Sept. 15, 1973. At the time, Wallace was general counsel to Briscoe and executive director of the Criminal Justice Council.

Some residents eligible for free locks, doors

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Residents who live in neighborhoods on Midland's burglary-prone east and south sides may be eligible for free deadbolt locks and secure doors, police announced Friday.

The Lock and Security Awareness Program will use $20,000 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds to purchase and install deadbolt locks and wooden, solid-core doors in about 50 houses, Cpl. Jim White, police spokesman, told reporters at a press conference.

The program, which kicks off Monday, is designed "to benefit people from low to moderate income levels," White said.

To be eligible, a resident must be a homeowner, be either on a fixed income or a low income and live within one of four specific "target areas."

Senior citizens who live alone automatically qualify, White said.

"Some of the doors some residents have now, they aren't strong enough to keep anyone out," White said, noting that most burglars get into homes by kicking doors open. "We have an inordinate amount of prowlers in the areas, too."

Casa De Amigos initially will screen all applicants, and a list of those that qualify will be reviewed by the police crime prevention unit, according to the agency's executive director, Lael Cordes-Pitts.

"We will try to take applications, group them 10 at a time, and will take care of as many as we can until the money runs out," Ms. Pitts said.

The program already has attracted attention at Casa De Amigos, a senior citizens' activity center located in one of the target areas, Ms. Pitts said.

Man charged with aggravated sexual assault

From Staff Reports

A 30-year-Midland man was charged Friday for allegedly sexual assaulting an 18-year-old woman and 13-year-old girl repeatedly during a 17-hour period which began late Wednesday night when the two were picked up near a local shopping center, police said.

Randal Jack Sims, 3223-A W. Storey Ave., was ordered held at the Midland County Jail in lieu of $150,000 bond Friday. He appeared before Justice of the Peace Robert Pine and was charged with aggravated sexual assault and aggravated sexual assault of a child, according to police.

The two victims were raped repeatedly at gunpoint after Sims allegedly picked them up near the Town and Country shopping center and drove back to his duplex, according to Cpl. Jim White, police spokesman.

After questioning by detectives, Sims was revealed as an acquaintance of the 13-year-old victim, a local junior high school student, White said.

Furr's set to buy Midland's Safeway stores

From Staff and Wire Reports

LUBBOCK — Furr's Inc., Safeway Stores Inc. and the Federal Trade Commission reached an agreement Friday clearing the way for Furr's to buy 59 Safeway stores — including the chain's two Midland stores — for $140 million.

Previously, the FTC had moved to block Furr's purchase of Safeway's El Paso division, a network comprised of 59 grocery stores and other facilities in Texas and New Mexico.

Commission officials said earlier this month the proposed purchase would substantially reduce competition among grocery stores in West Texas and New Mexico.

The consent order reached Friday permits Furr's, a Lubbock-based grocery chain, to acquire the El Paso Division, provided it sells 12 stores in New Mexico and Texas, said Jan U. Friederich, chief executive officer of Furr's.

The sale was for $140 million, said Susan Tichnor of the FTC's Washington office. Safeway's and Furr's officials would not confirm the amount of the sale.

Safeway went private in a $4.2 billion leveraged buyout last year.

Special envoy Philip Habib announces resignation

Habib

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philip C. Habib, in a surprise announcement, resigned on Friday as U.S. special envoy to Central America just as the nations there were taking the first tentative steps toward a comprehensive peace agreement.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Habib decided to return to private life because of the recent diplomatic gains.

But two other officials, insisting on anonymity, said Habib had disagreed with some aspects of administration policy toward the region although he was leaving without bitterness.

One said the administration rejected a Habib proposal earlier in the week that he visit Central America, including Nicaragua, in an effort to gain further insight into the regional peace agreement signed Aug. 7 in Guatemala City.

Among other measures, the agreement reached by Central American presidents calls for an end to U.S. aid to the Nicaraguan Contras and for democratic reform in Nicaragua. Two days earlier, President Reagan and House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, announced an alternate peace initiative for Central America.

Redman praised Habib's efforts in Central America. But the veteran envoy, 67, was never popular among the administration's more conservative elements.

Habib was one of the nation's most seasoned diplomats and his resignation apparently ends a State Department career that began in 1949.

"With the signing of the Guatemalan agreement and the adoption of the bipartisan Reagan-Wright plan, Ambassador Habib has decided that this is an appropriate moment for him to return to private life," Redman said. There was no announcement of a replacement for Habib.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Habib "has had a major influence on the peace process. He has worked tirelessly to promote a regional peace initiative and he has performed with great skill and dedication.

"His greatest tribute is the peace process we're now engaged in, and the president greatly appreciates his sacrifice and his many contributions over the last few years."

Critics have charged that the administration was committed to a military solution in Nicaragua and Habib was perhaps the most visible symbol of its stated preference for a negotiated outcome.

Since the spring of 1986, Habib had made numerous trips to the region, sounding out leaders on the possibilities for peace.

Redman seemed eager to avoid leaving the impression that Habib's departure meant a downgrading of the U.S. diplomatic effort. He noted that U.S. ambassadors from Central America will meet here for consultations Monday as part of a series of diplomatic initiatives linked to the Reagan-Wright and Guatemala peace proposals.

The spokesman said the United States also will provide the four Central American democracies — Honduras, El Salvador, Guatemala and Costa Rica — with $1 million to assist in regional negotiations.

Habib, born in Brooklyn, N.Y., of Lebanese parents, was not a typical diplomat, often presenting his views to colleagues with a bellowing voice.

But he won the confidence of a number of presidents and secretaries of state, serving as undersecretary of state for political affairs, assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs and ambassador to South Korea.

A decade ago, Habib was sidelined by a heart attack and left the foreign service. But in May 1981, early in Reagan's term, he agreed to become special presidential envoy to the Middle East.

Before becoming Central America envoy in 1986, he served as special envoy to the Philippines.

Foy Proctor will be honored as Oustanding Cattleman

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Ranch hands will compete for bragging rights at the Texas Ranch Roundup this weekend, an event that has made once-nameless cowboys as famous as their oil and cattle barron bosses.

The annual event, at which Midland's Foy Proctor will be honored as an Outstanding Cattleman, will feature competitors from 13 still-operating family-owned ranches. It is expected to draw 15,000 spectators at the Wichita County Mounted Patrol Arena.

"It's friendly, down-to-earth competition," said Sue Babb, a member of the event's steering committee. "The ranch hands like it. It's like seeing old friends again."

Nearly five acres of the parking lot at the rodeo arena were covered by canvas Friday as cowboys began pitching cook tents and digging cooking pits in the hard ground.

Ranch hands compete in events patterned after everyday ranching activities like roping and branding.

"It's not like a professional rodeo," Ms. Babb said. "The events are things they do on the ranch," she said.

Ranches also compete in a foods cook-off, a first lady contest and a talent competition.

The largest prizes go to the winners of the Top Ranch, Top Hand and Top Horse, Ms. Babb said and include boots, spurs, and a handmade saddle.

Tom Moorhouse, 41, has lived on the Moorhouse Ranch near Benjamin all his life. Without the roundup he would have been known in Knox County, like his brothers, as an outstanding horseman and rancher. But he won the Top Hand award at the first Ranch Roundup in 1981 and is now one of the event's most renowned personalities, Ms. Babb said.

Texas Gov. Mark White sent an engraved proclamation to the Top Hand in the 1985 roundup, Tom Blasingame.

The Pitchfork Land and Cattle Company of Guthrie is back to defend its 1986 title, Ms. Babb said.

The King Ranch team, which participated in the roundup for the first time last year, is eager to compete again.

"We enjoyed meeting the other cowboys and their families," said Buster Welch, King Ranch team captain. "We are bringing cowboys from another one of our camps to the event this year, so we're looking forward to the competition."

Four ranchers will be honored with Outstanding Cattleman awards, Ms. Babb said. The long-time cattlemen are Bryant Edwards, 93, of Henrietta; Watt Matthews, 88, of Albany; J.C. "Togo" Moorhouse, 82, of Benjamin; and Proctor, 92.

Proceeds from the event benefit the West Texas Boys Ranch in San Angelo, the West Texas Rehabilitation Center in Abilene, and the North Texas Rehabilitation Center in Wichita Falls, which joins Falls Distributing Co. in sponsoring the event.

Officials say man died year ago

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A man whose concrete-encased body was found inside a padlocked barrel was killed by a gunshot wound in the head about nine to 12 months ago, officials said Friday.

The body was found Wednesday in a 55-gallon drum with hazardous chemicals markings floating at the edge of Amon G. Carter Lake near Bowie, Montague Sheriff Glen Whatley said.

Officials said the drum had been in the water less than a month.

Preliminary autopsy results indicate that the body was that of a 5-foot-7-inch, 125- to 145-pound white male about 25 to 30 years old, Whatley said

The man, who had brown hair and a beard, was wearing blue jeans, lace-up ankle boots, an inexpensive gold necklace with a Texas-shaped charm, and a T-shirt with "Don's Paint and Body" on it, he said.

A fisherman discovered the drum, with a combination lock on its side, Tuesday lying on its side a dozen feet from shore, authorities said.

But it wasn't opened until Wednesday because exterior labels read "flammable" and "dangerous when wet" and indicated the contents were a hazardous chemical called calcium carbide.

Doctor out to teach about AIDS

By BRENDA WATSON

GENEVA (AP) — Dr. Jonathan Mann is the kind of person who is already behind schedule at 8:30 a.m. He sometimes can't close his office door because it supports a hanging suitcase, packed for his next trip to who-knows-where.

The Boston-born Mann, 40, heads the fastest growing program in the World Health Organization — the Special Program on AIDS, a disease that has stirred world alarm since it was first identified in 1981.

His task is to educate governments and populations about the dangers of AIDS, encourage them to take action against AIDS in their countries and advise them of strategies to fight spread of the disease.

WHO forecasts there will be from 50 million to 100 million AIDS virus carriers in the next five years.

"The travel burden is intense," Mann said in a recent interview. He said he is away from his wife and three children — twin daughters and a son — nearly half the time. "It's really a problem."

But he says he must travel to get across his message about global control of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. "It's important that some of the key messages be presented and they can't be presented in Geneva," Mann said.

AIDS attacks the body's immune system, wrecking its defense against disease. It has inspired fear and panic because it is fatal, there is no cure or vaccine available, and little treatment. Optimistic estimates say a vaccine is at least five to 10 years away.

In the United States, AIDS is spread most commonly through sexual contact, the sharing of intravenous needles by drug abusers and from infected mothers to their children at birth.

As of Aug. 10, AIDS has been diagnosed in 40,051 people in the United States and claimed 23,165 lives, according to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

In Central Africa, AIDS is spread primarily through heterosexual contact.

In parts of the world where blood is not tested for the AIDS virus, AIDS is spread through blood transfusions.

When Mann came to WHO in June 1986, the AIDS program consisted of Mann and a secretary. Funding came from other WHO divisions.

Now, after 14 months, the program has its own $34 million budget and a staff of 25. Mann says the number of staff will likely be nearly doubled within a year.

"We've got to dominate AIDS instead of letting AIDS dominate us," Mann said. "Prevention is the number one issue. Treatment is a mop-up operation."

The words are characteristic of Mann, an action-oriented doctor turned public health official who was credited with helping control bubonic plague during a 10-year stint in New Mexico's health department.

Mann grew up in Boston and majored in history at Harvard. He said he still enjoys reading history. "I think a lot about the history of diseases and how they influenced society and culture, especially in Europe."

Mann had one year of college in France, where he says he spent much of his time visiting museums and traveling rather than studying, and where he met his wife, a Frenchwoman.

He went on to medical school, planning to become an eye doctor.

But during his first job after graduation, working in New Mexico for the Centers for Disease Control, he decided to make a career of public health.

"I've never been a pure researcher. I see a tremendous challenge in translating research findings into programs," said Mann.

He lived in New Mexico 10 years, working for the state health department for the last eight.

Mann says he sometimes draws on his experience with people's perceptions and fears about bubonic plague in working on AIDS.

He speaks fondly of his time in New Mexico and still sports a silver watchband and beltbuckle from those days.

But he said that after 10 years, he felt he needed a change so he took up an offer to spend a year in Zaire setting up an AIDS research facility under the auspices of the WHO.

Mann speaks fluent French and some Spanish — "as long as the discussion is about AIDS. I miss all the jokes, though."

Ritzy Dallas hotel hosts seminar for unemployed

DALLAS (AP) — Being down and out in a city of high-rollers has some compensations, as the YWCA proved by hosting a seminar for the jobless in the tony Mansion hotel, where a room for two can cost up to $255.

About 100 people were served by waiters in white jackets as they learned how to cope with the loss of a job at the "Life After Layoff" breakfast seminar Thursday.

"I told my wife this morning, 'We're getting all dressed up to go down to The Mansion with all the other poor people,'" said Jerry Hyduk, who was laid off from Mobil Oil Corp. in November.

Seated in the hotel's peach-colored Pavilion Room, surrounded by potted palms and mirrored walls, the job hunters got a taste of being down and out Dallas-style.

"I never got to go the The Mansion while I was employed. Now that I'm unemployed, here I am," said Carol John, who was laid off from a health-care company in March while 6½ months pregnant.

Picking the posh hotel for such a seminar was not to show the participants the good life presently beyond their grasp, say the event's organizers.

"The Mansion was chosen only because they met our budgetary needs," said Bonnie Stein, director of the YWCA Women's Resource Center.

The irony of holding seminar for the unemployed at one of the ritziest hotels in town was not lost on Ms. Stein.

"When somebody said, 'Let's use The Mansion,' I said, 'Are you kidding?'"

But she said The Mansion offered a comparatively bargain breakfast.

"A lot of people were surprised by it, but The Mansion offered us a better deal financially," she said.

The conference, featuring a panel discussion by four career counselors and a continental breakfast, cost $6 for YWCA members and $8 for non-members.

"I don't know how the seminar ended up here, but it's beautiful," said Elaine Cox, a two-time layoff victim and first-time visitor to The Mansion. "Maybe it's to make us feel better."

WALLACE

A Henderson County native, Wallace earned his law degree from Baylor University in 1953 and practiced law for four years before beginning a five-year stint as Henderson County attorney. He served as district attorney there for 11 years before joining Briscoe's staff.

Wallace has won three elections to the commission, barely avoiding a loss to Republican John Thomas Henderson in the 1984 Reagan landslide. He served two previous two-year terms as chairman of the commission, which regulates oil and gas and transportation in the state. He began his third term as chairman in January.

For years, Wallace has warned of growing U.S. dependence on foreign oil and of the possible return of OPEC-induced energy shortages and gasoline-station lines. He regularly testifies before Congress in support of a tariff on imported oil and other actions that he says would stimulate domestic production.

The transaction should be complete by Oct. 31, subject to an agreement to hold separate certain assets of the El Paso division until the 12 stores have been sold, officials for Furr's and Safeway's said.

"We intend to sell the 12 stores as quickly as possible," Friederich said. The sale would take place after the transaction is completed in October.

He said Furr's plans to consider hiring Safeway employees.

Stores to be divested in New Mexico are located in Alamogordo, Artesia, Clovis, Espanola, Hobbs, Las Vegas, Lovington, Portales, Roswell and Silver City. Stores in Fort Stockton and Pecos also will be sold by Furr's.

Furr's currently operates 105 stores in West Texas and New Mexico.

Eligible homes will be inspected by crime prevention Sgt. Lalo Camarillo, assistant coordinator of the program. Based on that inspection, Camarillo will then order the work done.

The contractor, Mark Simmons, will submit a bill to Casa De Amigos after the work is finished, White said.

Residents must live in one of four areas to be eligible for the program: From U.S. Highway 80 to Gist Street, and between Rankin Highway and Lamesa Road; from U.S. Highway 80 to Cloverdale Road and between Lamesa Road and Fairgrounds Road; East Golf Course Road to Front Street, and between Lamesa Road and Tilden Street; or, Big Spring Street to Fairgrounds Road and between East Wadley and Golf Course Road.

If the program is successful, another similar grant may be sought, White said.

According to statements taken by police, the women were attacked several times until daylight Thursday, when they were driven to a field outside the city limits. There, a gun was placed to the head of one of the victims before a passing pickup truck "made the suspect nervous," White said.

The victims were released about 5:30 p.m. Friday near the intersection of Midkiff Road and Cuthbert after they promised the attacker they would not tell authorities, White said.

According to police, the man repeated to the victims "If you tell the police, I will hunt you down and kill you."

Rebels accept Duarte's offer to discuss cease fire

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels on Friday accepted President Jose Napoleon Duarte's offer to meet Sept. 15 to discuss a cease-fire and how to end to the nation's 8-year-old civil war.

The announcement of acceptance, a day after Duarte made the offer, was the latest move in efforts to advance a regional Central American peace plan.

"He (Duarte) changes from one day to another, so we are answering very quickly in case he changes again," Ruben Zamora, a rebel leader, said in a telephone interview from his home in nearby Nicaragua.

Two meetings between rebels and the government in 1984 ended in deadlock. A third meeting in September 1986 was canceled by the rebels when Salvadoran soldiers refused to leave the area where the conference was to be held.

In another development, El Salvador's Foreign Minister Ricardo Acevedo Peralta announced Friday that the foreign ministers of the five signatories of the peace plan — El Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica — will meet in San Salvador Aug. 19-20 to organize working groups and begin working on its details.

The Salvadoran rebels, an alliance of the Democratic Revolutionary Front and the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, suggested in a communique accepting the talks that both they and Duarte's government be represented "at the highest level" in the negotiations.

They suggested the talks be over two days at the Roman Catholic Archdiocese in San Salvador and that Archbishop Arturo Rivera Damas act as a go-between in arranging them.

Duarte, in an address to the National Assembly Thursday, called on both the Salvadoran rebels and the U.S.-backed Contra rebels in Nicaragua to accept by Aug. 30 the conditions of the regional peace plan and open simultaneous talks on Sept. 15 with the governments they have been fighting.

The president did not suggest that talks between his government and Salvadoran rebels be contingent on talks between the Contras and Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

The Sandinistas have repeatedly refused to meet with the Contras, insisting instead on talking directly with the Reagan administration, which has been providing the Contras with financial and technical support.

The United States has also been supporting successive Salvadoran governments with money and military advisers in their war against the leftist insurrection that began in October 1979.

The regional peace plan was signed in Guatemala Aug. 7 by the presidents of El Salvador, Nicaragua, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica. It seeks a commitment to ceasefires in Nicaragua and El Salvador in 90 days and calls for: an end to outside aid to rebels, democratic reforms including freedom of speech and press, and an end to the use of any country's territory by guerrillas fighting another government.

In his address Thursday, Duarte also called on Cuba and the Soviet Union to end all aid to contending forces in Central America. He failed to mention the $1.5 million dollars a day in aid the United States is providing El Salvador nor a $100 million aid package the U.S. Congress approved for the Contras last year.

The Reagan administration has said it will seek to renew aid to the Contras when the funds run out Sept. 30 if it is not satisfied that progress has been made in regional peace efforts.

Duarte and Reagan administration officials have often accused Nicaragua's government of secretly providing weapons and logistical help to the Salvadoran rebels.

U.S. intelligence sources say there are up to 3,000 Cuban military advisers in Nicaragua. The United States has at least 1,100 servicemen in Honduras and a 55 military advisers in El Salvador.

Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega returned Thursday from a one-day trip to Havana, where he discussed the regional peace plan with Cuban President Fidel Castro.

A Nicaraguan government statement said "an important contribution to peace" in Central America would be the withdrawal of all military advisers and troops from the region, a point both Cuba and Nicaragua had not touched on before.

Human rights groups, including the Catholic Church, say an estimated 63,000 people have been killed in El Salvador since the civil war began.

The Sandinista government says 43,000 people have been killed in Nicaragua since the Contras started fighting in 1980.

U.S., U.S.S.R. join in drug, alcohol abuse fight

MOSCOW (AP) — Three Soviets with drinking problems met with recovered American alcoholics in a Moscow hotel this week as part of a joint effort to fight alcohol and drug abuse, an organizer said Friday.

"Americans and Soviets together are joining together to 'just say nyet,'" said J.W. Canty, a New York photographer who conceived of and raised the money for the joint U.S.-Soviet conference on alcoholism and drug addiction.

In July, Canty, 41, escorted four Soviet doctors on a tour of New York City parks to see American alcoholics and drug addicts.

The group, which also studied how Americans deal with the problems of alcoholism and drugs, was received by former President Gerald Ford and his wife Betty at their home in Beaver Creek, Colo.

Canty arrived in the Soviet Union two weeks ago and has been meeting with Kremlin officials on possible ways the superpowers could cooperate in battling problem drinking and drug abuse.

More than 100 South African strikers injured by police

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — More than 100 black strikers at two mines were injured Friday by police and security officers who used birdshot, rubber bullets and tear gas against them in the worst violence yet in the mineworkers' nationwide walkout.

In one confrontation, at the Optimum coal mine in eastern Transvaal province, police said they fired birdshot into a crowd of about 800 workers, some of whom were throwing rocks, injuring 13 strikers.

Another 14 miners were hurt in a stampede to escape the gunfire — the first reported use of live ammunition during the five-day-old strike — and 42 tear gas grenades lobbed at the crowd, police said.

Police said they had been summoned to the mine to investigate a complaint of intimindation by strikers. They said none of the injured strikers required hospitalization.

West of Johannesburg, at Anglo American Corp.'s Western Deep Level gold mine, 76 black strikers were injured Friday when police and security officers fired rubber bullets at a crowd of about 700 who refused to disperse and began throwing stones, mine owners said.

IT WAS the largest number of injured at a single mine in the strike called to demand a 30 percent wage hike and better benefits.

In another incident, the Trans-Natal Corp. alleged that five workers who defied the strike were hospitalized after being poisoned with insecticide at a coal mine east of Pretoria.

A university-based group of labor experts, in the first independent estimate of the strike's size, said 334,640 of the 509,784 blacks employed at 59 major gold and coal mines were on strike — a figure close to the National Union of Mineworkers' claim of 340,000.

The Chamber of Mines, which represents the targeted mining houses, said Friday the strike involves 40 percent of the black work force and affects 33 mines. On Thursday, the chamber had asserted the number of strikers had dropped to less than one-third of the work force.

The union said a strike ballot would begin Monday at diamond mines where it has declared a dispute with De Beers Consolidated. About 70 percent of De Beers' 9,500 miners are union members.

About 150 union members who struck Thursday at Rand Refinery, the main processor of export gold, returned to work Friday, management said. The plant had continued to operate with workers who did not strike.

GOLD PROVIDES South Africa with 60 percent of its foreign currency earnings.

Anglo American, South Africa's largest gold producer, said Western Deep Levels strikers carried machetes and gasoline bombs Friday.

Cyril Ramaphosa, union general secretary, said 78 miners were injured there, seven remained in the hospital and the company sealed off the mine, preventing union officials from interviewing members.

Union officials said the strikers were singing outside their hostel when police were summoned at 4 a.m.

Late Thursday, police fired tear gas and rubber bullets to evict 300 strikers staging a sit-in at an Anglo American gold dump reclamation facility. The union reported at least 19 men injured and 23 arrested at the ERGO plant, east of Johannesburg.

Police said one striker was hurt, but they confirmed 23 arrests.

Workers at ERGO joined the strike Wednesday and said Thursday they would remain in the facility, which has no sleeping quarters.

THE COMPANY accused strikers of sabotaging machinery and releasing five tons of sulphuric acid. It obtained a court order to evict them.

...Police said they fired birdshot into a crowd of about 800 workers, some of whom were throwing rocks, injuring 13 strikers...Another 14 miners were hurt in a stampede to escape the gunfire...and 42 tear gas grenades lobbed at the crowd, police said.

The union said police attacked strikers as they were gathered to discuss the court order. The union brought 19 injured workers to a news conference in Johannesburg. Several had eyes swollen shut and deeply gashed faces.

At least 145 strikers have been reported injured and 200 arrested since the 300,000-member union began the strike Sunday night.

Anglo American's gold and coal mines have been the most seriously affected of six major mining houses. The company produced 39 percent of South Africa's gold last year.

Peter Gush, gold and uranium division chief for Anglo American, denied union accusations that police were being used to break the biggest legal strike in the country's history.

"If striking workers behaved in a peaceful manner, security action would have been unnecessary," he said.

Union spokesman Marcel Golding blamed the strike-related injuries on "trigger-happy police and mine security."

BESIDES SEEKING a raise in what it says is an average black miner's monthly salary of $170, the union wants danger pay, longer vacations and other benefit improvements.

The Chamber of Mines on July 1 unilaterally implemented pay raises ranging from 15 to 23.4 percent.

The chamber said the average black gold miner's salary was about $250 a month before the increases brought them to $285.

Elsewhere:

— 20,000 black postal workers continued a wage strike that has disrupted mail service in many black towns.

— The black chemical workers' union said its 8,900 members at Sasol, the state-backed energy company, would strike Monday over a demand that May 1, the international labor day, and June 16, the anniversary of the 1976 Soweto riots, be made paid holidays.

Wyoming Supreme Court's ruling minces no words

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — You won't find "conclusory" between "conclusive" and "concoct" in Webster's New World Dictionary, but the Wyoming Supreme Court has ruled the word fit for courtroom use.

"After painstaking deliberation, we have decided that we like the word 'conclusory,' and we are distressed by its omission from the English language," Justice Walter Urbigkit said in a footnote in an opinion issued in a medical malpractice lawsuit.

"We now proclaim that henceforth 'conclusory' is appropriately used in the opinions of this court. Furthermore, its usage is welcomed in briefs submitted for this court's review," he wrote. "Webster's, take heed!"

While some feel that the legal world is already too cumbersome because of the legalese that fills court documents, Urbigkit sees the creation of "conclusory" a result of the court's desire to be concise.

The word appears to be a combination of "conclusion" and "illusory."

"It means the message is not justified by supported facts, which it assumes but doesn't state," Urbigkit explained.

Urbigkit said the word was created by his law clerk, whom he described as a linguist of sorts.

Cartoonist draws on daily life

TROY, Ill. (AP) — Give Joe Rollins a quiet place to think, and chances are he'll come up with a cartoon.

Odds are also good his creation will be related to his upbringing on a farm near Greenfield or to family life at his home on the outskirts of Troy.

Rollins said his experiences, not much different from your average father, make his two regular cartoons — "Joe's Corner" and "Harold and Pam" — funny.

"Joe's Corner" appears in the Edwardsville Intelligencer's FYI weekly supplement. "Harold and Pam" can be found in the Troy Times-Tribune. Rollins also has had cartoons published in Country People and Women's World magazines.

"I was raised in a rural area, and in my quiet time, I would always draw," Rollins said.

"I would draw from the time I got home from school to the time I went to bed. Everybody knew that was what I was doing."

Rollins, 29, first published an 11-page comic book in Young Ambassador magazine, a Christian publication, 14 years ago.

While Rollins has moved out of the country, the country hasn't moved out of him. He rents a farmhouse with a barn and a large back yard. It's there that he finds the quiet time, and the inspiration, for many of his cartoons.

His wife, Janet, and his three daughters, Amanda, Amy Joe and Jennifer, provide much of the fodder for the cartoons.

"I draw mainly family-style cartoons. I get a lot of ideas from my kids," Rollins said.

One cartoon, for example, is of a bulldozer pulling into a home to clean the children's bedroom.

"That one really hit home, and I've had several people tell me that really hits home, too," he said.

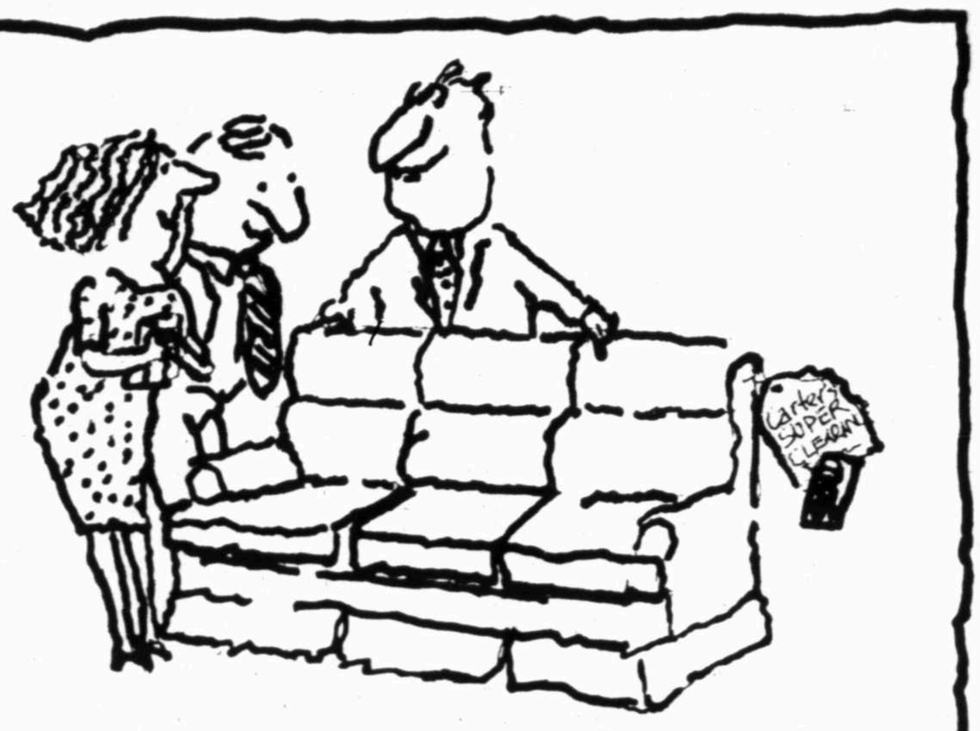

Mrs. Rollins is one of his biggest fans. After Rollins spends 1½ hours three times a week thinking of ideas and about 15 minutes drawing them, his wife looks through them and tells him which one she likes — and doesn't like.

"I usually draw four or five drawings, and she tells me which one works the best," he said.

Rollins hasn't had formal art training outside of high school. "I went for a half semester at Lewis and Clark Community College. I took an art drawing class, and I knew soon that wasn't really what I was wanting," he said.

What Rollins has learned has been from reading other comic strips in the newspapers each day. He said many of the strips consist of "stick figures" and rely heavily on words to make their point.

"Some of the cartoons rely on 80 percent words and 20 percent art. I don't go for words that much. I go about half and half."

Peacemaker hopes at least one Texan had change of heart

By JIM BRADY

John Longhurst

DALLAS (AP) — Nuclear missiles remain poised on the brink, and handguns still are household utensils in Texas, but John Longhurst leaves his two-year peace mission in the Lone Star State with a wistful sigh just the same.

"My goal is not to bring peace to the world," Longhurst, a thin, now slightly less pale 30-year-old Mennonite, said recently as he packed his car for the trip home to Canada. "That's not going to happen. The first thing that can happen is to change one's heart."

Texas has provided a unique episode for Longhurst, who arrived two years ago as a volunteer and recently ended his humble reign as director of the Dallas Peace Center, a church-supported, non-profit operation with aims that range from helping families find food to promoting nuclear disarmament.

While Longhurst arrived as just another anonymous outsider doing a stint in Big D, his is a rare breed in a city built on the harsh frontier of hard-boiled business. And as he left the peace center's ivy-hung interior, Longhurst said he would like to think he helped change a few hearts.

Along the way, an idealist whose only knowledge of Dallas was Larry Hagman's J. R., Cowboys football and JFK's assassination has expanded to include chiggers, mesquite cooking and another way of thinking.

"I wanted to have an experience," Longhurst said. "I've had it."

Longhurst was simply looking for something "meaningful" to do when he and his 28-year-old wife, Christine, moved to Dallas so she could earn her master's degree in sacred music at Southern Methodist University's Perkins School of Music.

IN WINNEPEG, Longhurst virtually was lost in a city where peace marches and anti-nuclear demonstrations are as common as boat shows and rodeos are here. But here, he said, a newcomer calling to volunteer in the close-knit, church-based peace community is likely to rise quickly.

At a speakers' forum, he mentioned he had some journalism experience on newspapers in Canada. Members of the peace center suggested he could try his hand with publicizing local activities.

"Up until then, we had done just this little 8-by-10 newsletter," said Sam Nance, chairman of the center's board of directors. "We were expecting maybe two 8-by-10 pages. Now, it's a full-blown newspaper. It's wonderful."

Instantly, Longhurst was the volunteer editor of The Dallas Peace Times, paid only $350 a month in living expenses through the Mennonite Voluntary Service. The newspaper reports 10 times a year about the activities of groups promoting human rights, nuclear disarmament, conflict resolution and racial harmony.

Back then, the paper's one-man staff also was pressed into front-line service. That's when Longhurst discovered demonstrations were different in Texas.

At anti-Contra demonstrations in Miami, Longhurst said, opposition crowds heaved bottles and rocks. At a North Dallas picket he attended, he said, the only thing passers-by cast were curious glances.

"This is a very career-oriented city," he said. "I don't find it disagreeable. It's just a city where everybody has a lot to do. Maybe it's not possible to arouse the passions in Dallas."

And downright disillusionments occurred as well. The peace center was conscientiously set up in a dilapidated former warehouse on South Harwood Street.

"WE WANTED to symbolically illustrate that peacemaking is an attempt to pursue better relationships wherever you are," Longhurst said. "It was a lousy choice."

Within six months, the peace center was broken into twice, and thieves carried off the center's meager tools against violence and oppression: a pair of donated typewriters and some office furniture.

Nevertheless, the center was relocated in October to a converted upstairs office above a food bank and day-care center in back of the Mount Olive Lutheran Church, at 3100 Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd. And the work continued.

Tangible progress is difficult to measure, say the center's supporters. The peace center's concern for converting the local weapons industry to non-violent pursuits has influenced the Dallas Human Relations Commission to create an Economic Diversification Committee. Peace center members helped bring about the Young Offenders program in the Dallas Juvenile Department, bringing offenders and victims face-to-face to work out restitution and reconciliation.

Longhurst said the newspaper has raised the level of consciousness about peace issues and helped a network grow: His referral list of organizations has grown from 26 to 40, he said.

But others admire the paper itself.

"It's not just a newsletter — it's a well-put-together newspaper," said David Marquis, a playwright and author active in the local peace community. "People around the country are bowled over to see that we have that kind of thing in Dallas."

A RECENT ISSUE had stories about Dallas women traveling to the Soviet Union, a profile about the volunteer lawyer for Proyecto Adelante, an aid center for Central American refugees and the usual mix of editorials, calendar listings and tidbits from other news publications about Contras, violent toys, consumer rights and the Constitution.

Sherion Stevens, a graduate student at the University of Texas at Dallas, went from intern to editor this summer to take Longhurst's place. Except for volunteer mailers, she is the staff.

"I didn't even know this place existed in November," she said.

Longhurst likes to say that while his wife moved to Dallas for a formal education, he got an informal one. His experience has included some poignant moments, such as the time he stood at a bus stop next to a Hispanic man. A police officer approached and demanded to see the other man's citizenship credentials. To Longhurst, he offered a friendly nod.

"The irony was not lost on me," he said. "I was an alien, whereas the Hispanic man in this policeman's eyes looked like an alien. But, in fact, he was the American."

Soon the Longhursts will be storing away their cottons and pulling out the woolens for a cold Canadian winter. But he said the noble experiment in Dallas will live on, and a friend will be shipping him the salsa that once scorched his northern palate.

In his farewell to readers, Longhurst reprinted words to a Peter, Paul and Mary song he said shows the "beaming promise — the promise of a better world":

"Light one candle for the wisdom to know;
When a peacemaker's time is at hand."

"This is a very career-oriented city. I don't find it disagreeable. It's just a city where everybody has a lot to do. Maybe it's not possible to arouse the passions in Dallas."

— John Longhurst, former director of Dallas Peace Center

Seaman's family 'treasure hunting'

By LILY ENG

Hearst News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — In his long years at sea, Rear Adm. William G. Gibson never saw the ship bearing the name of the City of Rio de Janeiro, but he spoke constantly about it. The ship — which smashed onto the rocks just outside San Francisco's Golden Gate 86 years ago — haunted him until he died three years ago.

Now, Gibson's family is carrying on his legacy by launching a venture to salvage the ship's treasure, believed by some to be worth more than $2 million in silver bullion, within the sunken vessel.

The Rio, which carried passengers and freight between San Francisco and Hong Kong at the turn of the century, sank in dense fog in 1901. The vessel apparently has been found by SEAGAMB, a company made up of six of Gibson's relatives and close friends. SEAGAMB is short for sea gamble.

Gibson, a Scottish marine surveyor who mapped San Francisco Bay, left behind a wealth of charts and clues to aid the search, said SEAGAMB spokeswoman Melodie Morgan, Gibson's great-niece. Family members found the material which Gibson had gathered, and studied it to find the location of the ship, Morgan said.

In 1986, SEAGAMB found a ship matching the 345-foot steamer's dimensions, with the help of an underwater remote-operated vehicle, or ROV, with a video camera mounted on it, Morgan said. The discovery was kept secret to keep treasure hunters away.

The company already has spent $50,000, including a lost ROV, searching for the ship that has been called the West Coast's Titanic. The company plans to invest another $1 million salvaging the ship's treasure, Morgan said.

The consortium, which believes the ship was secretly laden with silver bars in Honolulu before its final voyage, has asked California's State Lands Commission, which controls the sea bed, for permission to salvage the treasure.

"We are only bringing up the treasure and only entering the safe room on the ship," Morgan said. "We have an enormous stake in preserving the historic artifacts on board and in not disturbing the final resting place of the people who died abroad the Rio."

The Rio, built in 1878, is the underwater grave for about 125 people, said National Park Service historian Jim Delgado. His agency is opposed to any salvage operation involving the ship.

"We oppose the concept of treasure salvage from any chip," Delgado said, adding that the Rio de Janeiro was "of such vast importance historically and archaeologically, not to mention a tomb for those who went down with her."

Bank robbers couldn't seem to 'get it in gear'

BERLIN BOROUGH, N.J. (AP) — Three bank robbers just couldn't get it in gear.

After getting $1,410 in a holdup Wednesday, the three hopped into a getaway car only to find the transmission stuck in first gear, police said.

After a relatively low-speed chase, they gave up on the car and tried fleeing on foot.

They were captured in a parking lot in nearby Gibbsboro minutes after the robbery, police said.

During the robbery, two of the holdup men, dressed in business suits, drew handguns and ordered seven employees and six customers to lie on floor, said Detective David Smith.

Clements: Some thrift officials guilty of 'gross misbehavior'

AUSTIN (AP) — Refusing to back down from his criticism of the savings and loan industry, Gov. Bill Clements said Friday there had been "gross misbehavior" by some thrift officials.

Clements, who kicked off the controversy Monday by rapping federal efforts to keep ailing savings and loans open, said regulators should close more than 70 of the state's most troubled thrifts.

"There are over 70 S&Ls in this state that are insolvent, have a negative net worth, and in my judgment they should be closed," he said during a brief meeting with news reporters.

"In addition to that, there has been gross misbehavior by some of these people. So, that's what this is all about," the governor said.

Clements refused to name the institutions he thought should be shut down, however.

"That's on a published report. It's available to anybody who wants to go down there and get a copy of it," he said.

Reggie Bashur, the governor's press secretary, later said Clements is referring to a quarterly report by Sheshunoff & Company Inc., an Austin-based financial reporting service.

Bashur said the governor's office wouldn't make public the list because, "It wouldn't be appropriate of us to release a list that can be secured through this private firm."

Thursday night, during a live television program, "The Governor Reports," Clements warned Texans to be careful about where they put their savings.

In response to a question from a viewer, Clements said, "Our depositors here in Texas, our Texas citizens, should be very, very careful and prudent."

On the program, Clements also repeated his Monday criticism of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp., saying the FSLIC might eventually pay only 30 cents on the dollar in cash to depositors at failed thrifts and pay the balance in a note or bond.

Friday, the governor cut off questioning about the savings and loan industry, telling reporters, "I've said what I needed to say. We're not going to further explore all that."

The governor's renewed criticism comes after thrift officials had said Clements' doubts that the federal government would fully back deposits in troubled S&Ls had not sent customers scurrying to withdraw their money.

Most institutions had routine business activity, with a few reporting increased deposits. Some concerned customers made phone calls to their thrifts and there were isolated cases of unusual withdrawals, officials said.

"I believe the situation has been defused," said Todd Miller, president of Southwest Savings Association of Dallas. "What the governor said was so patently incorrect."

Winfrey to film Beaumont show

BEAUMONT (AP) — Talk show host Oprah Winfrey is coming to town, and eager residents are scrambling for tickets to the upcoming event.

Although the hall where the show is to be held next Tuesday seats 10,500, thousands more than that have been trying to get tickets, said KFDM-TV promotion director Ed Smith.

"The phone is ringing off the wall," Smith said. "Everybody loves Oprah. One lady just called and wanted her phone number, so she could ask her to lunch...One block of tickets is being given out in one of our malls, and I wouldn't go near the place. It'll be a stampede."

Ms. Winfrey's popularity in the Beaumont area is the reason for her visit. According to May ratings, she got a 70 percent share of the audience on Beaumont's KFDM.

When she heard about the ratings, she called the station and said she was coming to town because she wanted to say thank you to Beaumont.

"I've lived here 53 years, and I've never seen anything like it," Smith said of the huge interest in tickets. Smith said there would be no more extra space made available for the show.

"But there's nothing we can do," he said. "This is the biggest hall we've got, unless you folks in Houston want to deflate the Astrodome and bring it over here."

Ms. Winfrey is making the trip at no cost to the Beaumont television station, he said. She initially was bringing just an assistant, but now her staff of 15 will be in Beaumont for the show.

Gephardt: U.S. not 'trade patsies'

AUSTIN (AP) — Presidential candidate Richard Gephardt used tough talk on trade Friday to win a warm reception from delegates to the Texas AFL-CIO convention.

"Together we're going to change this country and change this world and let the world know that we're not trade patsies and we're not trade wimps. We simply want to be treated fairly," said the Democratic House member from Missouri.

Gephardt was the second of three Democratic contenders scheduled to speak to the labor meeting. Tennessee Rep. Albert Gore, Jr., D-Tenn., was well-received after his Thursday speech. Illinois Sen. Paul Simon speaks today.

"I come here today with a very simple prediction," Gephardt said. "In November of 1988 the Democrats are going to retake the White House and bring this country back to the people."

"And, by God, if Dick Gephardt is president, we're going to stand up for the workers of this country, not for the establishment of this country," he said.

Gephardt sprinkled his speech with the kinds of things labor delegates like to hear, and they responded with applause.

"To me, competitiveness doesn't mean American companies closing plants in America and going to countries abroad so they can get cheap labor to make their products. And neither does it mean to me giving top executives million-dollar bonuses and cutting the pay for American workers," he said.

"I'm not for the continuation of this one-way free trade that we've had in the past. I want fair trade in America. If Japan and South Korea can come here and, with ease, sell their cars, then I want our workers to be able to go there and sell our beef and our rice and our microchips and our steel and our computers," Gephardt said.

He also drew appreciative applause for backing an oil import fee, something he said is not popular in many parts of the country.

In a brief news conference after his speech, Gephardt said there is no front-runner in the Democratic race.

Asked about the chances of a House member making the leap to the presidency, he said, "There's clear precedent for it — 1880. James Garfield was the last sitting House member to be elected" president.

"I'm not wanting to be the new James Garfield, but clearly it can be done," he said.

Hightower knocks Reagan in speech to AFL-CIO

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower told labor delegates Friday that President Reagan has made good on his campaign promise to get American industry moving.

"He did. It has moved to Taiwan. It has moved to Central America. It has moved to South America and it has moved all around the world. But it's not moving right here in this country," he said.

Hightower, a Democrat and labor favorite, delighted the AFL-CIO convenion delegates by knocking Reagan several times in his speech.

"From Wall Street to the White House, a bunch of ideologues and ignoramuses are pushing down on this country a pernicious philosophy of greed, a philosophy that says, 'I got mine, you get yours. I'm rich and you're not,'" he said.

"Ronnie Reagan himself said it. He said a rising tide lifts all boats. Doesn't that inspire you? A rising tide lifts all boats. Think about that," Hightower said.

"What Ronnie and his friends haven't figured out is that not everybody has got a boat. Sure, his friends are out there in big, old yachts. They're eating fine pate and sipping that California cabernet right now. Most of us are splashing around in a leaky old inner tube, lucky to have a tall Bud and a Slim Jim," he said.

Rules would increase vehicle permits to minorities

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Minorities would have a better chance to obtain truck or bus permits from the Texas Railroad Commission under proposed rules Commissioner John Sharp outlined Friday.

Sharp told the Coalition of Black Democrats he soon will propose rules to increase the number of minority-owned carriers that hold commission permits.

"Of the more than 2,800 transportation certificates or permits issued by the commission that are now in force, only 109, or 3.8 percent, are Hispanic-owned and only 22, or less than 1 percent, are owned by Blacks," Sharp said. "That's simply not acceptable."

Sharp said the rules he will propose to the three-member agency would allow the commission to give special consideration to minorities and minority businesses seeking operating permits.

Under current commission rules, applicants for bus and truck permits must show a need for a proposed service in a particular area that is not being met by existing carriers. Although a minority applicant still would have to show that need, the commission could declare existing services inadequate under the proposed rules if the applicant proves that no other minority firm is providing the service.

Minorities, like other applicants, would have to show the commission they have the necessary capital, personnel, equipment and expertise to do the job, Sharp said. Minorities also would have to convince the commission they would comply with the agency's rules and state law, and provide safe transportation services, he said.

"I'm committed to the principle that all groups in Texas share in economic development opportunities that will carry Texas forward in the future," the commissioner said.

Seminars will be available to teach minority businesses how to apply for transportation permits if the commission adopts the rules, he said.

Although the "concept is valid," the proposed rules could hurt carriers who now provide services in areas where more competition is not warranted, said Robert Floyd, president of the 1,400-member Texas Motor Transportation Association.

"I think the idea of increasing minority participation can be a good one, but at the same time...a dilution of the current permit process could be negative to those people already in the industry," he said.

Floyd said his association will study the proposal closely and offer suggestions to the commission.

Sharp said he will propose the new rules to the other two commissioners later this month.

"If regulated transportation is to survive into the next century, all segments of Texas must participate," he said.

Lawmaker presents slides which North couldn't show panel

SUGAR LAND (AP) — A slide show that Marine Corps Lt. Col. Oliver North couldn't show Congress was shown here to about 400 people, courtesy of U.S. Rep. Tom DeLay.

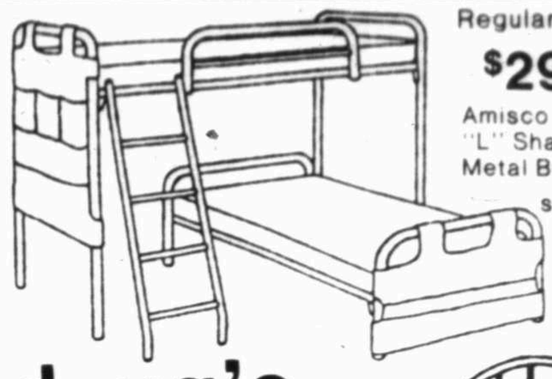

DeLay was among 56 members of Congress who made copies of the slide show that North was prohibited from showing during his appearance before the congressional Iran-Contra panel.

During the slide show Thursday night, DeLay read from North's reports that accompanied the presentation. North did not attend the event.

The two showings were conducted at the Kaneb Oil & Gas Building in Sugar Land near Houston.

Most of those in attendance Thursday were pro-North and pro-Contra. Shouts of "liar," "Communist" and "go back to Cuba" assailed the few opponents.

DeLay, however, reminded the crowd they must abide by democratic methods and not be rude to dissenters.

Mountains hit by storms

Associated Press

A few thunderstorms developed in the Davis Mountains of the Trans-Pecos and some isolated light showers were scattered over the Hill Country Friday, but the rest of the state had generally fair skies.

The Panhandle had west to southwest winds near 10 mph, while light and variable winds were common across the South Plains, the western Edwards Plateau, the Trans-Pecos and far West. The rest of Texas had south to southeast winds at 5 to 15 mph.

The weekend forecast in North and South Texas called for mostly clear skies with hot days and warm nights. Lows should be in the upper 70s except for lower 80s on the coast; highs should be in the upper 90s and lower 100s.

Isolated afternoon and evening thunderstorms were likely in West Texas through the weekend, with mostly sunny days and fair nights.

NATION

Two people died on slick streets as heavy rains drenched parts of Illinois and Michigan on Friday, while a lingering tropical depression forced forecasters to post flash flood warnings for southern Mississippi and Alabama.

The Chicago area received 9.2 inches of rain in 24 hours, a record. The heavy rains flooded roads leading to Hare International Airport, and two major airlines severely curtailed operations.

At least 300 cars were stranded as water levels hit 6 feet on some expressways in and around Chicago.

A truck driven by a 35-year-old man went out of control after hitting a flooded patch of expressway, and the man was thrown through his windshield and killed.

Showers from the same front dumped heavy rain on Michigan, Iowa and Missouri.

One person was reported killed in an accident in Trowbridge Township, Mich.

In Alabama, three days of heavy rain increased flood damage on the Gulf Coast, mainly in outlying areas where high water closed some roads, weather officials said Friday.

Motorists on Dauphin Island reported some roads impassable because of high water. With rain continuing Friday, the island had already received 14.54 inches of rain over 48 hours.

Elswhere, a tornado watch was posted for parts of North Dakota as heavy thunderstorms developed, and street flooding was reported in Minot.

Cowboys face Chargers tonight

SAN DIEGO (AP) — It's doubtful that many NFL coaches' employment status has turned on their teams' preseason exhibition record. Neither Tom Landry nor Al Saunders have to worry about where they will be working after tonight's preseason opener for the Dallas Cowboys and San Diego Chargers.

However, scores of players on both teams' rosters will be dressed to impress and trying to keep their jobs.

"We'll use a great number of players. Our objective is to see players we haven't seen yet in game situations," Saunders said. "Hopefully, the players we have identified as ones to make contributions will win the battles while they are in," he said.

THE REAL question for the injury-riddled Cowboys is who will be healthy enough to play when the regular season starts next month.

After posting a 7-9 record last year — their first losing mark since 1964 — the Cowboys are under a microscope. Can the 1987 Cowboys can expect to do better?

"I thought we could do it this year," Landry said of compiling at least a .500 record. "It was a big blow when we lost Mike Sherrard (with a broken leg). We had great hopes for him. We thought he could be a Pro Bowl player. Losing players like him will make it that much harder.

"I think we can still be on the right side of .500," he said.

AS A ROOKIE last year, Sherrard caught 41 passes for 744 yards and five touchdowns. He broke his leg in a non-contact play during a scrimmage against San Diego earlier this month.

In all, 22 players in the Cowboy camp are injured and 15 starters are expected to miss at least some of the regular season.

San Diego, which is coming off a 4-12 campaign which saw the resignation of Don Coryell as coach at the midpoint of the season, is holding back some of its best-known and most productive players Saturday night, including quarterback Dan Fouts (back strain); running back Gary Anderson (recovery from ankle surgery) and linebacker Chip Banks (Achille's tendinitis). All are expected to be ready for the regular season.

SO, WHAT ABOUT the score of Saturday night's game?

"Certainly, we'd like to win the football game," Saunders said. "Of course, if we put our subs in earlier than Dallas, the outcome will not be a realistic evaluation of what we have accomplished."

But preseason records don't mean much, he said.

"Last year, we were 3-1 in preseason and lost in overtime to the Rams. Tampa Bay was 4-0 in preseason (and 2-14 in the regular season)," Saunders said. "The preseason record is not a barometer of how the season will go."

In the case of his battered, bruised and broken Cowboys, Landy can only hope Saunders is right.

Bosworth inks for $11 million

Bosworth

SEATTLE (AP) — Brian Bosworth signed an $11 million, 10-year contract package with the Seattle Seahawks Friday, joining a team he once said he wouldn't play for and giving them an added boost into the upper rank of NFL contenders.

"I'm ecstatic about being in Seattle," Bosworth told a packed news conference after the signing Friday. "I'm excited about this opportunity. A childhood dream has come true today. Now it's time to get down to work."

The signing, announced by Seahawks spokesman Gary Wright, capped negotiations that began June 12, when the Seahawks won the rights to draft the All-America linebacker from Oklahoma in the NFL's supplemental draft.

He brings to the Seahawks, who missed the playoffs last season despite finishing with five straight wins and a 10-6 record, the potential to be a dominating force inside. Bosworth joins a linebacking corps that already includes Pro Bowler Fredd Young and two promising rookies — Tony Woods and Dave Wyman, the first two picks in the regular draft.

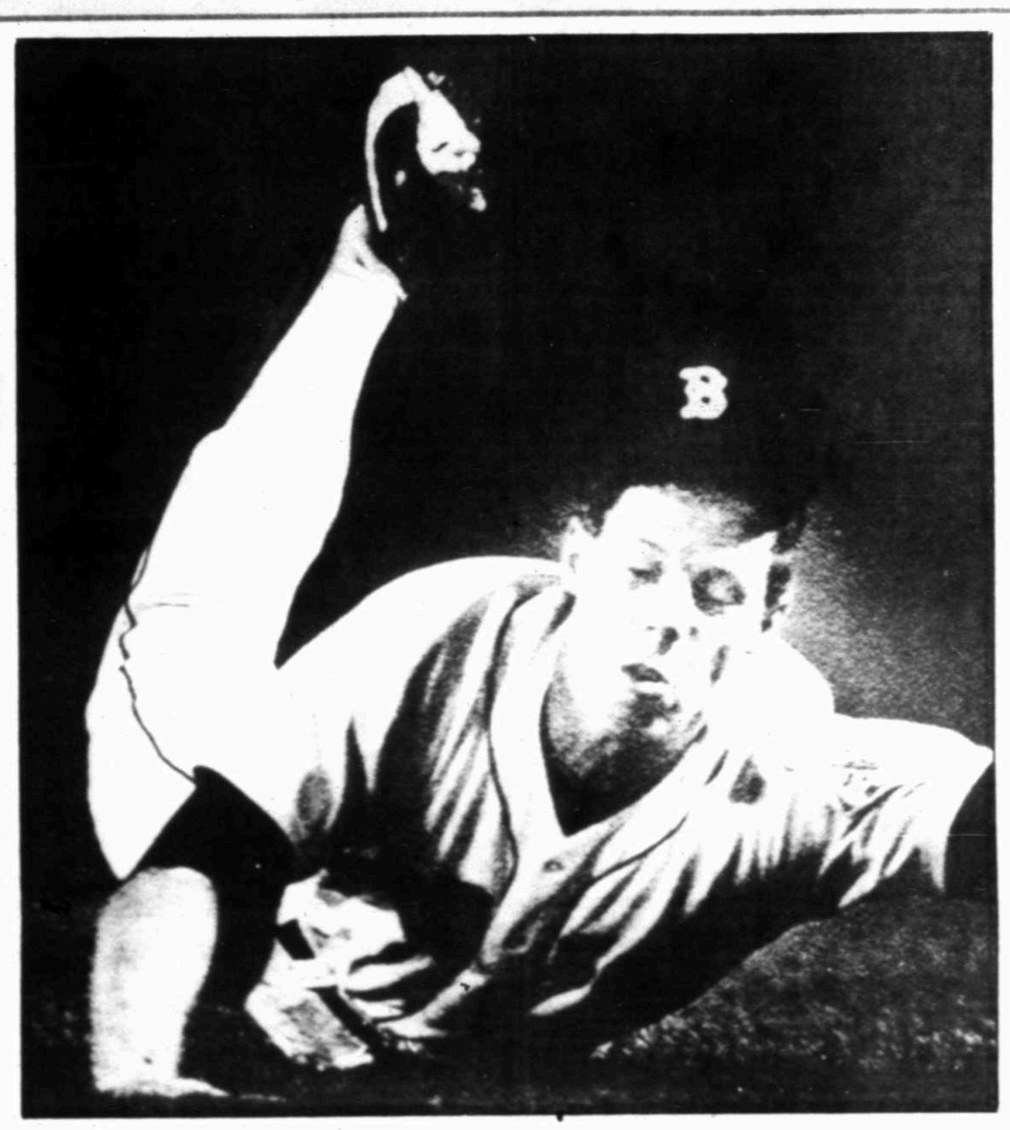

But Bosworth downplayed any immediate contribution he might make.

"I have a lot of catching up to do before I make any kind of bold statements," he said. "It'll take a while to get in football shape. I'm way behind. I'm in shape running-wise and lifting-wise, but I'm not in football shape."

Bosworth's deal, a series a 10 one-year contracts, reportedly includes a $2.5 million signing bonus that would pay him $500,000 immediately and distribute $500,000 payments each year from 1997 to 2000. His yearly salaries would start at $300,000 and would go up in $100,000 increments until 1996, when he would receive $1.2 million.

The package makes Bosworth the highest-paid defensive player in the NFL.

Curt Warner, who signed a $5.21, five-year deal in the off-season, is currently the highest-paid Seahawk.

Angels win return home

From Wire Reports

SAN ANTONIO— Midland's Angels reeled off their fourth straight win, defeating San Antonio, 5-1, before 2,207 Texas League fans here Friday night to eliminate the Dodgers from the Texas League West second half pennant chase.

With 15 games left, San Antonio trails the front-running Angels by 16 1/2 games.

The Angels return to Midland and Angel Stadium against second place El Paso at 7 p.m. today. It is the opener of a five-game series and 10-game homestand.

Midland, which outscored the Dodgers 26-3 in the last three games here and took a 21-6 lead in the season's series, struck early when Doug Jennings walked in the first and came home on Reggie Montgomery's grounder to the pitcher's box.

Midland made it 3-0 in the second. Norm Carrasco singled and scored on a Jim Thomas hit and then Jennings doubled home Thomas. Jennings had 11 rbi during the series.

In the third, Stan Holmes and Montgomery singled and the run scored on Mike Brady's grounder to short.

Doug Davis wrapped up the scoring in the sixth when he drove his fifth homer over the right field fence with two out.

Steve McGuire, 4-3, baffled the Dodgers into the seventh when he loaded the bases with one out and a run came in on an error. Miguel Garcia came out of the bullpen to douse the fire by whiffing Jose Mota and then retiring Mike Ramsey on a fly to center.

Garcia earned his fifth save with his one-hit relief job.

Charlie Hough five-hits Red Sox as Rangers split

Associated Press

BOSTON — Knuckleballer Charlie Hough pitched a five-hitter and Geno Petralli homered and drove in two runs Friday night as the Texas Rangers beat the Boston Red Sox 9-4 Friday night for a split of their doubleheader.

Boston won the opener 9-3 with Mike Greenwell's tie-breaking triple sparking a six-run rally in the seventh inning.

Hough, 12-8, hurled his seventh complete game. He had lost four of his previous five decisions. Al Nipper, 7-10, lost in his return from the disabled list and remained winless since June 28.

Parrish, O'Malley and O'Brien each had three of Texas' 16 hits.

Wade Boggs and Sam Horn homered for the Red Sox. Boggs hit his 20th homer in the sixth and Horn's seventh homer pulled Boston within 5-4 in the seventh.

Petralli hit his fourth homer with two outs in the eighth.

In the opener, Bruce Hurst won his career-high 14th game. Hurst, 14-6 overall and 11-1 in Fenway Park, gave up nine hits in his 13th complete game.

After Bob Brower's sacrifice fly put Texas ahead 3-2 in the top of the seventh, the Red Sox rallied against starter Bobby Witt and three relievers.

Dwight Evans hit his 27th homer in the ninth off reliever Mike Loynd.

Royals 7, Tigers 5

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Steve Balboni and Danny Tartabull hit home runs and Rookie Kevin Seitzer went 2-for-3 with two walks and raised his average to .333, second-best in the American League to Wade Boggs. Tartabull drove in three runs as the Royals stopped Detroit's three-game winning streak and continued Walt Terrell's road miseries.

Since May 31, 1986, Terrell is 4-16 away from home. This year, he is 8-2 at Tiger Stadium and 1-8 on the road.

Black, 5-6, took a four-hitter and 6-2 lead into the eighth but left after Kirk Gibson led off with a double and Alan Trammell singled.

Dan Quisenberry got the final two outs for his eighth save and first since June 6.

Brewers 6, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE — Dale Sveum hit two homers and drove in four runs and Paul Molitor extended his hitting streak to 29 games.

Sveum's three-run homer capped a five-run rally off Eric Bell, 9-9, in the third inning and he led off the sixth with his 17th home run. Molitor kept the longest hitting streak in the majors this season going with a leadoff single in the seventh.

Terry Kennedy hit his 14th homer leading off the Orioles' seventh, his first home run in 37 games since June 23.

Twins 6, Mariners 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Kent Hrbek and Tim Laudner hit home runs and Bert Blyleven, 12-9, pitched six-hit ball for eight innings. Hrbek hit a 463-foot solo homer in the sixth off Mike Morgan, 10-12, for a 4-2 lead. Hrbek tied a career high with his 29th home run.

Gary Gaetti's second double of the game drove in two Minnesota runs in the eighth. Laudner's 15th homer put the Twins ahead 3-1 in the fifth. Seattle's Ken Phelps hit his 19th homer in the sixth.

Indians 6, Yankees 5

NEW YORK — Brook Jacoby's second solo home run of the game snapped an eighth-inning tie and for the Yankees' season-high fifth straight loss.

New York has dropped seven of its last eight games. Jacoby and Brett Butler each had three of Cleveland's 13 hits as the Indians won their third in a row.

Jacoby tied the score 5-5 with a home run in the sixth. He connected in the eighth for his 23rd homer off reliever Brad Arnsberg, 1-2. The two home runs, Jacoby's first since July 30, were the only hits allowed in 4 2-3 innings by Arnsberg.

Mattingly hit a two-run homer, his 20th, in the first inning after Willie Randolph singled. Randolph, activated from the 21-day disabled list before the game, went 2-for-4.

Blue Jays 3, White Sox 2

TORONTO — John Cerutti won his eighth straight decision and combined with Tom Henke on a four-hitter.

Cerutti, 9-2, gave up four hits, three of them in the third inning, in eight innings. He struck out seven and walked one. Henke finished for his 26th save.

Never trust a Moose or Diablo in TL pennant race

Battles

Manager Max Oliveras took his Midland Angels on safari into the skeleton-littered jungles of the Texas League West 10 days ago and tonight he brings 'em back alive.

It has not always been thus.

El Paso may border on the land of Fiesta and Siesta to sun-seeking tourists, but for Midland Texas League franchises it's a graveyard of bleached and decaying hopes. For the morbid, the mourning grounds are just beyond Dudley Field's right field fence in the zoo where the elephant's graveyard is located.

For Midland teams with dreams, San Antonio has been more of a nightmare than a festival town. They talk about the carefree air of the River Walk. In Midland's baseball past, it's just a place where you can drown in plain sight of after-dark strollers.

But Oliveras performed his Frank Buck act and the Angels are back and still well and hopeful.

WHEN MIDLAND embarked on the road trip, the Angels and Diablos were entangled in a two-weeklong, no-daylight struggle. Cynics didn't see how the teams could roll around in the dirt like that much longer and predicted by the time the Angels returned to Haloed Ground in Hogan Park, Midland would just be playing out the string.

Midland not only emerged from El Paso still in the race, but tonight returns from five more days in San Antonio in good health to begin a 10-game homestand against El Paso and then San Antonio.

What pennant contender could ask for anything more?

Still, let's not get ahead of ourselves. There's a little matter of history to be reviewed.

MEMORY OF the 1978 pennant race continues to haunt. Midland had just disposed of El Paso in the opening game of a series in the season's fading days. Lee Smith had come out of the bullpen, just like he does nowadays at Wrigley Field, and slammed the door on the Diablos with a two-inning, no-hit nail-down job. The Diablos were 3½ back, obviously out of it.

The next evening, the temptation to gloat over the grieving Moose Stubing was too inviting to pass up. Fraudulent condolences were brushed aside by Moose in what was deemed as a courageous, but sad attempt to present a brave front.

The Diablos manager gave it the old Custer, "Send us more Indians" line, observing with a straight face, "If we can win the next five here, we can still pull it out."

THE BRAVADO prompted no laughter, maybe just a little smirk. Moose didn't seem to realize he was playing in our backyard. Neither did his team. They not only won the next five, but finished with nine straight wins and the pennant.

Moose had been managing in El Paso for years and before that played on an El Paso team with Jim Spencer and Randy Hundley that set the league record for home runs back in the 1960s. He knew the Texas League and he knew what could happen.

The following year, Midland opened the final week of August with a 22-0 win over El Paso here, leaving the Diablos what should have been a hopeless 6½ games behind.

When Moose reasoned the next day, "If we win four of five here and then sweep the Amarillo series..." I didn't laugh. I half suspected he might pull it off.

THIS TIME, for a change, he was wrong. Midland hung on to win the second half West by four games over San Antonio, but even that failed to even out the injustices of the past. They simply discovered new ways.

San Antonio won the first half by .003 percentage points over Midland by simply ignoring rainout obligations.

For the season, Midland finished five games ahead of the Dodgers in the standings. If there were an Oral Roberts in Tulsa, there wouldn't even have been a playoff.

The league office, however, decreed, that despite all the claims of subterfuge and obvious superiority of the offended party, the entire best-of-three playoff series would be played in San Antonio.

Strange things can happen in a pennant race, and, as far as Midland is concerned, usually do. And at this time of year, home field advantage is of little comfort, especially, if like Moose, the other guy doesn't know when he's beat.

Redskins pass first exhibition test, 23-17

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ricky Sanders and Art Monk each caught touchdown passes Friday night to lead the Washington Redskins to a 23-17 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers in the preseason opener for both teams.

With Washington leading 16-14 early in the second half, Sanders slipped behind Harvey Clayton and grabbed a 14-yard pass from Doug Williams to cap a 77-yard, 9-play drive.

Pittsburgh, plagued by three third-quarter fumbles, could manage only a Gary Anderson field goal in the second half. The Steelers did drive to the Washington 48 in the final minutes, but an illegal motion penalty wiped out a first-down pass from Steve Bono to Danzell Lee and Pittsburgh did not threaten again.

Monk's touchdown, on a 54-yard pass from starting quarterback Jay Schroeder, gave Washington a 13-7 advantage in the second quarter. Pittsburgh regained the lead on a 77-yard touchdown pass from Bubby Brister to Charles Lockett, but the Steelers' offense sputtered the rest of the way.

Schroeder completed 11 of 17 passes for 160 yards while playing only the first half.

Pittsburgh starter Mark Malone played the first quarter and completed 4 of 6 passes. Brister was 7 of 10 for 137 yards.

Steve Cox gave Washington the lead for good by kicking a 56-yard field goal as time expired in the first half to make it 16-14.

Six plays after Pittsburgh's Lupe Sanchez fumbled the opening kickoff, Jess Atkinson kicked a 27-yard field goal to give the Redskins a 3-0 lead.

The Steelers bounced back by driving 61 yards in 13 plays. A 14-yard pass from Malone to John Stallworth on third and 7 from the Washington 19 kept the march alive, and three plays later Earnest Jackson scored on a 1-yard run.

The Redskins pulled within 7-6 on a 32-yard field goal by Atkinson early in the second quarter, then regained the lead when Monk slipped behind Pittsburgh cornerback Chris Sheffield and caught the ball in stride for a touchdown.

The Steelers needed only one play to move back on top. Working from his own 23, Brister threw to a wide open Lockett, who caught the ball near the left sideline at the Washington 40 and sprinted into the endzone.

After an exchange of punts, the Redskins drove from their own 19 to the Steeler 38. Cox, the Redskins' long-range field goal specialist, then drilled his 56-yarder with room to spare.

Ashby sparks Houston

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Alan Ashby hit a two-run homer and Bill Doran had a two-run double, highlighting a five-run Houston first inning and leading the Astros to an 8-4 victory over Atlanta Friday night.

Gerald Young reached base to start Houston's first on a fielding error by first baseman Gerald Perry and Charlie Puleo, 5-5, walked Billy Hatcher.

Doran then drove home both runners with a double off the right-field fence that eluded Dale Murphy.

Ashby hit his 11th homer of the season over the center-field fence, scoring Doran and giving him a career-high 50 runs batted in for the season.

Kevin Bass singled, stole second, went to third on a single by Denny Walling, and scored Houston's fifth run of the inning on Craig Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Houston added runs in the fifth inning on Walling's single and in the sixth when Doran hit into a bases-loaded double play, scoring pitcher Bob Knepper, 5-13.

The Astros made it 8-4 in the eighth on Doran's RBI infield single.

Knepper pitched 7 2-3 innings and allowed 11 hits. Jeff Heathcock and Dave Smith finished, with Smith earning his 20th save.

Atlanta's Albert Hall doubled to right-center field to open the game and scored on Murphy's double.

The Braves got another run in the fifth when Glenn Hubbard singled, was sacrificed to second, and scored on Paul Runge's single.

Runge's hit a solo home run in the seventh and Dion James had a run-scoring triple in the eighth for the Braves' final two runs.

Cardinals 8, Phillies 4

ST. LOUIS — Willie McGee's three-run homer snapped a fifth-inning tie and the Cardinals broke Philadelphia's five-game winning streak.

The win gave first-place St. Louis a 5½-game lead over New York in the NL East, and snapped a two-game losing streak.

McGee's home run, his ninth of the season, came off starter Bruce Ruffin, 9-9, in the fifth with Tommy Herr and Jack Clark on base to give St. Louis a 7-4 lead. The homer gave McGee a career-high 84 runs batted in.

Schmidt's home run, a two-run shot with Chris James on base, was his 23rd of the season and 518th of his career. It was Schmidt's first home run since July 26, a span of 16 games.

Expos 4, Pirates 3

MONTREAL — Pinch-hitters Reid Nichols and Mike Fitzgerald hit consecutive run-scoring singles in the eighth to give Montreal victory Pittsburgh.

With the Pirates leading 3-2, Tom Foley hit a two-out double in the eighth off reliever John Smiley, 3-3. Nichols followed with a single to left to score Foley and took second on the throw home. Fitzgerald then singled to right to score the winning run.

Bob McClure, 6-1, pitched 1 1-3 innings in relief for the victory.

Hubie Brooks gave the Expos a 2-1 lead in the fourth when he hit his 10th homer of the season.

Cubs 6, Mets 1

CHICAGO — Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer and Scott Sanderson defeated the Mets for the second time this week. With the Mets leading 1-0, the Cubs scored four runs in the fifth off rookie John Mitchell, 3-5. Dave Martinez led off with a misjudged double to left, was sacrificed to third, and scored on Leon Durham's sacrifice fly. Moreland capped the rally with a homer following a double by Andre Dawson and an intentional walk to Jerry Mumphrey.

Dawson and Mumphrey hit homers on consecutive pitches in the seventh off reliever Jeff Innis. Dawson's homer increased his league-leading total to 36 and tied him with Montreal's Tim Wallach for the RBI lead with 99.

Reds 2, Padres 0

SAN DIEGO — Ted Power pitched three-hit ball over eight-plus innings and Kal Daniels hit a two-run double in the fourth inning as Cincinnati beat San Diego in the first game of a twi-night doubleheader.

The Reds failed to score despite bases-loaded situations in the first and second innings, and stranded eight runners in the first three innings against Eric Show, 6-14.

Medication may help golf game

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Inadvertently, the medication Steve Jones takes to control a rapid and irregular heartbeat may be helping his golf game.

And if Jones keeps up his hot scoring, his colleagues on the PGA Tour might start clamoring for some of the drug Jones needs to stay alive.

"I hope they don't have drug tests here. I've got a lot of drugs in me," Jones said Friday after posting the day's best score, plus-13, in the second round of The International golf tournament.

Jones went to a double dose of the medication after he continued to experience a rapid heartbeat during Wednesday's first round. It didn't work.

"It doesn't seem to help me," he said. "There was no difference. When your heart races at 145 beats per minute, you notice it."

Already fatigued by the medication, he's reluctant to ask his doctor to increase the dosage again.

"ANY MORE might slow my heart down so much I'd get too tired," he said. "I was dragging out there by the ninth hole. I didn't think I was going to be able to finish. My wife got me half a sandwich, and that gave me some energy.

"Maybe the medication slows me down. I have a tendency to swing too hard up here. But I can't swing hard, I don't have the energy. So maybe it helps."

Jones, 28, a native of Yuma, Colo., and a graduate of the University of Colorado who currently resides in Phoenix, has put together two solid rounds here. If this tournament were being scored by the traditional stroke-play method, he would have had rounds of 68 and 67 and would be carrying a 4-stroke lead into the third round.

UNDER the International format, however, he'll be all even with the rest of the field on Saturday.

Jones said he's playing with confidence and is "getting a good feel for this course." On Friday he had five birdies, two bogeys and an eagle when he holed out a sand wedge from 70 yards on the par-5 14th hole.

But he admitted some apprehension at having to play again on Saturday.

THE FIRST round was split here, with half the field playing Wednesday and the remainder Thursday. Jones played on Wednesday and then took Thursday off.

"The day off helped me," he said. "I needed the rest. I would love to play every other day."

When this tournament ends, Jones will enter a Denver hospital for shock treatment aimed at restoring his heart to its normal rate. If that doesn't work, he may eventually have to face open-heart surgery.

Torrance, Longmuir share Benson lead

YORK, England (AP) — Scotland's Sam Torrance and Bill Longmuir shared the lead after Friday's second round of the $300,000 Benson and Hedges International Golf Tournament.

Longmuir had a 3-under-par 69 and Torrance had a 70. Both were at 9-under-par 135 after 36 holes.

West Germany's Bernhard Langer shot a 67 to tie Barry Lane at 136, one shot behind the leaders. Langer made six birdies and only one bogey, when he miscalculated the wind on the 10th hole, put his tee shot over the green on the 174-yard hole.

U.S. surges past 200-medal mark

By BARRY WILNER

Pan Am Games

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The powerful Cuban and U.S. baseball teams kept rolling through the Pan American Games and into a head-on confrontation, while the United States surged past the 200-medal mark Friday, winning all six swimming events.

The Cubans hit seven home runs, giving them 14 in four victories, and Omar Ajete pitched a one-hitter in a 13-1 rout of Venezuela. Next up for the Cubans on Saturday is the U.S. team, which ripped Netherlands Antilles 14-1.

"The game tomorrow against the U.S. is the most important for us in the tournament," Cuban Manager Higinio Velez said. "Not because of any rivalry but because the U.S. team is the best team we have to face. In order to win the gold, we will have to beat the U.S."

Cuba didn't win any gold and took just one bronze in the first 11 events Friday. But the United States got nine gold medals, 11 silver and a bronze.

That pushed the U.S. total to 219 medals, 90 of them gold. Canada moved ahead of Cuba in total medals. The Canadians won two gold, one silver and five bronze Friday, giving them 98 medals. The Cubans have 95, but their 46 gold are 28 more than Canada has gotten.

Americans finished 1-2 in all five individual swimming races and took the women's 400 medley relay, in which Costa Rica's Silvia Poll won her sixth medal when her team was third.

BASEBALL

Ajete had a perfect game for 6 2-3 innings in a game shortened to seven innings because of the 10-run rule — a game ends when a team is at least 10 runs ahead after seven innings. He then walked Jose Garcia and shortstop Luis Ulacia was given an error on a groundball when he went for a force play at second base but made a bad throw.

Miguel Castaneda then blooped a single to right field, ending the no-hitter and shutout. But right fielder Jorge Garcia threw out Luis Borjas at third base to end the game.

"It was a very difficult play," Velez said. "The right fielder was too far back and the second baseman was too close to second base.

"The most important thing for our pitchers is to win the game. Of course, a perfect game is a feat and we would love to have had it."

Tino Martinez has had a hot bat here. The first baseman from Tampa hit a two-run homer and a triple, knocking in three runs. Martinez is hitting .647, with 11 hits in 17 at-bats and 17 RBI. Larry Gonzales of West Covina, Calif., also had a two-run homer.

"He's on a cloud," Coach Ron Fraser said of Martinez.

SWIMMING

Susan Habermas of Gaithersburg, Md., won her second gold medal of the meet, winning the women's 200 individual medley. Habermas also was on the victorious U.S. 800 freestyle relay team.

Tom Williams of St. Charles, Ill., set a Pan Am record of 22.55 seconds in the men's 50-meter freestyle heat. The world record is 22.32, set by American Tom Jager on Thursday at the Pan Pacific meet.

"This was my final race of the season and I'm well set up for the Olympic year," Williams said.

Tami Bruce of San Diego, who had won the 400 individual medley earlier, took the women's 800 freestyle. Andy Gill of Orlando, Fla., got the gold in the men's 100 backstroke. Bill Stapleton of Edwardsville, Ill., won the men's 200 butterfly.

The U.S. women's relay team of Holly Green of Gainesville, Fla., Lori Heisick of Edina, Minn., Janel Jorgensen of Ridgefield, Conn., and Sara Linke of Walnut Creek, Calif., set a Pan Am mark of 4:12.92.

Poll increased her Pan Am medal collection to three golds, one silver and two bronze. And Hilton Woods won the first Pan Am medal for the Netherlands Antilles when he was third in the 50 freestyle.

WRESTLING

Ken Chertow of Huntington, W. Va., was disqualified for delaying the start of a match with Ecuador's Galo Legarda and is out of the games.

U.S. wrestling officials protested the decision made by mat chairman Orestes Molina of Cuba, but the protest was denied.

Chertow, competing in the 125.5-pound freestyle category, did not appear for the match announcement or the second call. He came running onto the mat just before the referee declared a forfeit. But when Chertow paused to tie his shoelaces, Molina disqualified him.

Chertow had been in the warmup room.

SHOOTING

Another disqualification stripped the U.S. Virgin Islands of its first Pan Am medal ever. Bruce Meredith, silver medalist in men's free rifle, was declared ineligible to compete for the Virgin Islands because he competed for the U.S. team last year. International rules require a two-year period between representing two different countries.

SOFTBALL

The U.S. men won their sixth straight game , routing the Dominican Republic 10-2 as Mike Singer of Stockton, Calif., had three hits and drove in two runs.

DRUG TESTING

Canadian swimmer Sally Gilbert, whose drug test showed traces of a banned substance contained in a cold medication, will not be punished, the Pan American Sports Organization president said.

"The case of the Canadian girl is over," Mario Vazquez-Rana said. "There is really nothing there."

"Now I can concentrate on swimming and only swimming," said Gilbert, 17, who won a bronze medal in the 800-meter freestyle relay.

DeBusk sets pace at LaJet

ABILENE (AP) — University of Texas golfer Andrew DeBusk retained the lead at 66-71-137 Friday in second-play of the LaJet Amateur golf tournament at Fairway Golf and Racquet Club.

But teammate Todd Franks of Fort Worth furnished the dramatics with his second-round 66. He eagled the 528-yard, par-5 14th hole with a pair of three wood shots to 12 inches and made the tap-in. That combined with six birdies and hitting 17 greens made his day.

Lost in the individual efforts was the dominance of Oklahoma State in the tournament's six-year history. Watts, last year's winner, hopes to follow former teammate Scott Verplank as a repeat winner. Verplank won in 1982-85.

Two more rounds will determine the champion and the winner of a sponsor's exemption in this year's Southwest Golf Classic on Sept. 24-27.

Woman sues Houston police

HOUSTON (AP) — The woman being sued for alleged libel and slander by two Houston police officers who scuffled with members of the New York Mets has filed a countersuit seeking unspecified damages.

Suzzanne Bonacci is seeking actual and punitive damages for embarrassment and damage to her reputation after police officers Randal Gary Gresham and Dale Bristley filed a lawsuit last month against her, members of the baseball team and its management, according to a lawsuit filed Thursday in district court.

She also wants the suit against her to be dismissed and the police officers to pay her court costs and attorney fees.

Ms. Bonacci testified on behalf of Mets players Ron Darling, Tim Teufel, Bob Ojeda and Rick Aguilera concerning a scuffle outside a Houston nightclub July 19, 1986.

During the trial in January, misdemeanor charges of hindering arrest were dropped against Ojeda and Aguilera. Darling and Teufel had been charged with felony assault but ended up serving one-month probated terms for resisting arrest.

Dick DeGuerin, attorney for Ms. Bonacci, said he filed a cross-action so citizens will know they can come forward and testify against Houston police officers without fear. DeGuerin also represented the Mets players during the court proceedings.

Meanwhile, officers Gresham and Bristley are seeking $10.2 million in damages from the four players, Ms. Bonnacci and the Mets club and others connected with the team. The case is pending.

Beware of Grant's Bears

Baylor rebuilding again

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

WACO (AP) — History shows that Baylor Coach Grant Teaff fields some of his best football teams when it is least expected.

The Bears are not expected to challenge for the SWC title in 1987, so beware.

Teaff, who has been at Baylor 15 years, turned down a lucrative offer from Southern California to remain in Waco.

"I love this school and just couldn't go although it was for a lot more money," Teaff said.

Teaff, the senior coach in the SWC, cites sparse experience on defense as one good reason not to pick the Bears to win it all.

"Defensively, we lost everyone except tackle Russell Sheffield, who suffered an ankle injury in the off-season," Teaff says.

BAYLOR was 9-3 last year and gave Colorado a 21-9 beating in the Bluebonnet Bowl. The Bears lose 18 senior starters from that team.

On offense, Teaff believes the Bears could be powerful, particularly by mid-season after quarterback Ed Lovell has time to settle down.

"We have a pretty good base on offense and Joel Porter is perhaps the premier offensive tackle in the league," Teaff says. "The big question is what kind of success will we have at quarterback.

"We have some quality young people at quarterback and we should be a pretty decent football team by the time conference play starts."

As Cody Carlson's backup last year, Lovell threw only 41 passes last year and completed 19 for two touchdowns.

"Ed has a lot of talent," Teaff says. "He just doesn't have a whole lot of game experience. He's a quarterback we can win with."

SHOULD Lovell falter, the challenge will come from freshman Jay Mapps, who entered school in January, from redshirt freshman Brad Goebel and freshman Ricky Vestal of Cypress Creek, rated one of the top high school quarterbacks in Texas in 1986.

Senior Matt Clark, who also is the team's short-yardage quarterback, returns and leads a corps of good receivers.

Baylor will have some tough running backs in junior Charles Perry and sophomore Jeffrey Murray, who gained 459 yards last year.

They will run behind a beefy frontline anchored by Porter, whom Teaff says is a legitimate Lombardi and Outland award candidate.

The Bears are hurting on defense. Sheffield underwent major surgery when he broke his ankle in an off-eason training drill.

The three starting linebackers will be replaced by three sophomores.

All-Americas Thomas Everett and Ron Francis, two prime NFL draft choices, are gone from the secondary.

Baylor has another Francis on defense. James Francis, Ron's younger brother, is expected to blossom into a star at linebacker.

THE KICKING game should be adequate with Terry Syler and Mark Mahler.

"We have a big job ahead of us," says Teaff.

Baylor doesn't have Oklahoma on the schedule this year and that helps.

The Bears host Louisiana Tech on Sept. 5 then travel to Missouri and Nevada-Las Vegas on successive weekends before opening their conference season at high noon against Texas Tech on Sept. 26.

"A big plus for us is that the players on this squad have been part of a winning program," Teaff says. "If we get off to a good start you never know what might happen. We could be a lot better than people think."

Which is normally the case when Teaff has what the experts claim is a rebuilding year.

SMU nixes Duke's Butters as new AD

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University President Kenneth Pye says he hopes to appoint an athletic director search committee next week when he takes office.

But Pye said Thursday he didn't expect to hire anyone until October and quelled speculation that Duke athletic director Tom Butters is being considered for the job.

"He hasn't indicated he is interested at all," said Pye, a former chancellor at Duke. "I haven't asked him whether he is interested. I don't consider him a candidate."

Pye said that although he has discussed the SMU situation generally with Butters, he hadn't offered him the position and probably won't ask him if he's interested.

"If he volunteers, I'm available," Pye said. "The same is true of Mr (Joe) Paterno, Mr. (Gene) Corrigan, Mr. (Dick) Schultz and a lot of other people. But there are some good people who are interested I think."

SMU has been without an athletic director since December, when Bob Hitch and football coach Bobby Collins resigned.

NOW APPEARING BARBARA HUMPHREY

The best way to describe this beautiful, blonde entertainer is style. And maybe energetic, sensitive, animated, creative, flirtatious, and last but definitely not least, talented.
Miss Humphrey's repertoire extends a vast selection of material from the 40's to the 80's. Perhaps her forte is the gusty blues and jazz tunes of such greats as Billy Holiday, Fats Waller, Nat King Cole, Dinah Washington and Gershwin. But her style translates equally as well on renditions of her favorite Motown artists: Sam Cooke, Marvin Gaye, Odis Redding and Aretha Franklin, not to mention such country greats as Patsy Cline and Hank Williams. Barbara loves to sing the soulful sounds of the 80's from artists like Whitney Houston, Anita Baker, Al Jarreau and Sade. Undoubtedly though, Miss Humphrey shines her brightest when performing her own original material. Lyrically moving and musically "finger-snappin' and foot-tappin'" good.

Raiders begin search for quarterback

Associated Press

It's time for Rusty Hilger to demonstrate that he can return the Los Angeles Raiders to their customary place among the NFL's elite.

The third-year quarterback from Oklahoma State, who has been designated by Al Davis and the Raiders' hierarchy as the man to restore a passing attack to the team, will start for Los Angeles against the San Francisco 49ers tonight. Coach Tom Flores says Hilger will play at least a half.

"I've been aware of this since Day One in training camp. I don't think anything's going to change except that now the performance is going to speak for itself," says Hilger, who has played in just six regular-season NFL games, completing 23 of 51 passes, one for a touchdown.

"Practice is one thing, but taking it on the field is another."

NFL

THE RENEWAL at the Los Angeles Coliseum of the one-time San Francisco Bay Area rivalry is one of nine games Saturday night as the first full weekend of the NFL exhibition season gets into full swing. But most fans are likely to see a lot of unafamiliar faces as coaches try to find out who among the 100 or so players on most rosters are NFL material.

"You'll see a lot of numbers and a lot of faces, so make sure you don't lose your scorecard," says New York Jets Coach Joe Walton in a comment that could stand for most coaches.

In other Saturday games, Cincinnati is at Tampa Bay; St. Louis at Cleveland; Buffalo at Atlanta, Indianapolis at Detroit, Minnesota at New Orleans, Philadelphia at the Jets; Dallas at San Diego and Denver against Green Bay in Tempe Arizona.

SUNDAY, Chicago is at Miami in the first NFL game to be telecast by ESPN and the Super Bowl champion New York Giants are at New England in a game to be telecast nationally by ABC.

In Los Angeles, the focus will definitely be on Hilger as Marc Wilson, who shared the job with Jim Plunkett in last year's disappointing 8-8 season, seems to be fading into oblivion.

"Because of his need for game experience, we'll probably give Rusty a full half in each game, and maybe even let him play further in the final game," Flores says.

The game will also mark the debut of three new wide receivers — Mervyn Fernandez and Chris Woods, signed by the Raiders from the Canadian Football League during the off-season, and James Lofton, a seven-time Pro Bowler acquired from Green Bay.

THE 49ERS, who beat Kansas City 20-7 in the Hall of Fame game last Saturday, will probably go without starting quarterback Joe Montana, who aggravated a strained chest ligament in practice Wednesday. Coach Bill Walsh, who says Montana would play if it were a regular season game would be replaced by Steve Young and Bob Gagliano.

In Cleveland, St. Louis Coach Gene Stallings will be more concerned with the problems of his team, which finished 4-11-1 last year, than concentrating on the Browns, who finished 12-4 in the regular season and lost the AFC title game to Denver in overtime.

"Our situation's a little different from Cleveland's," says Stallings.

"I've looked at them just very little, to be very honest. We've got to decide who's going to make our 45-man squad. I know winning is important. We're going to try to win, but not to the extent that we're going to play our veterans all the time."

South Korea upset

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Thailand upset South Korea 2-1 Friday to qualify for the semifinals of the fifth annual Ghafar Cup Asian Tennis Championship.

Lee Jin-ho put South Korea ahead when he disposed of Thanakorn Srichapan in straight sets 6-1, 6-4.

New York practice switch creates giant problems

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N.Y. (AP) — The NFL champion New York Giants temporarily switched practice sites, bringing some 2,000 fans to Briarcliff Manor High School and a giant headache to local police.

"I don't care if they're there, I just want to know," said Police Chief Arthur Johnson, who learned about the switched practice session thanks to a several-mile long traffic jam.

Cars were parked haphazardly and created a situation so that "if someone got hurt, even a player, we couldn't get an ambulance through," Johnson said.

Johnson said he understood the situation Saturday, when the team moved from Pace University's Pleasantville campus, their usual practice site, because heavy rains made the field too muddy.

What Johnson wasn't ready for was a repeat of the traffic mess on Tuesday.

Johnson said Hulmes agreed to notify police a day or at least several hours in advance so proper measures could be taken.

Senegal, Griffin to make amends

AUSTIN (AP) — Senior defensive backs Gerard Senegal and Tony Griffin will not be allowed to be team captains and will have to perform 10 hours of community service as punishment for leaving a restaurant without paying, says Coach David McWilliams.

Senegal and Griffin are among eight senior starters. UT usually has four captains, selected later in the fall.

"A lot of people don't understand what taking away a captainship means, but it's a big blow for a player to know he won't ever be a captain during his career," McWilliams said.

JIM MURRAY

Open Letter: Baseball's integrity hangs in balance

Murray

To: The Commissioner of Baseball, 350 Park Avenue, New York City, N.Y.

Dear Commissioner:

It must be as obvious to you as it is to the rest of us that we, as a nation, are in a posture of headlong morality these days and have been since Watergate.

None of the old-fashioned verities, the good old American gamesmanship, let the buyer beware, and protect yourself at all times in the clinches prevail anymore.

People do unspeakable things on stage, people say unconscionable things in films, but that's art.

Baseball is not art, commissioner. Baseball, like the White House, the chancery, automobile manufacturers and oil companies, has to be above reproach these days. It's the way America is going. You can't sell snake oil anymore and you can't turn speedometers back. In my business, you can't even accept Christmas gifts.

BASEBALL, it seems to me, is slow to catch on to the new morality, Commissioner. Baseball seems to think it's still 1910 and the old laissez-faire attitudes still prevail. Baseball is getting a bad rep. Baseball is coming into focus as an enterprise that's still too free.

You know what I'm referring to. That pitcher flipping an emery board out of his pocket and being found in possession of a piece of sandpaper, batters being accused of corking their bats.

Now, this was considered just a part of the grand old game in the past. You got away with what you could. Ty Cobb sharpened his spikes right in the dugout, for crying out loud. A guy got killed with a pitched ball.

The spitball got outlawed right after that but it was allowed till well into the '30's. Any pitcher who came into the game with it was allowed to finish his career with it.

Of course, it didn't disappear. With the spitball outlawed, pitchers had to find another way to gain an advantage over the batter. They came up with Vaseline, hair tonic, thumbtacks, sandpaper, emery boards, belt buckles and nail files.

It's ironic, Commissioner, that, in the old days, pitchers didn't need any artificial aids to scuff up baseballs. They were already scuffed.

THAT'S because, in the Depression days, owners didn't throw baseballs out of the game just because they came up with a speck of dust on them or the hitters didn't like the way they sounded. That cost too much. A ball stayed in the game till it got out of round or the stuffing began to leak out of it.

I remember the old-time catcher, Ernie Lombardi, telling me once that, in the era of hard times when he caught, by the sixth inning the ball was so scuffed and dirty, you couldn't help throwing a curveball with it.

Today, you'll see a third baseman — or the pitcher himself —kneading the ball to loosen the cover, separate the seams and make a breaking ball easier to throw. A brand-new, glistening-white, smooth ball just slips out of the hand with no rotation on it.

So, pitchers feel persecuted. They feel the ball is souped-up, so are the surfaces that turn ground balls into base hits, and the elements are against them.

The distinguished Washington columnist, George Will, took note of the dichotomous position of baseball when he pointed out that when you cheat at cards or dice, you are a crook. When you cheat at baseball, you are a "competitor." You are stopping that guy from keeping food off your family's table.

We used to admire guys who broke the rules to win. Maybe we still do. Maybe that's why Ollie North became a folk hero. Jesse James, too.

But, what about the new morality? Does baseball have to join it? Baseball and football have historically winked at rules infractions. An outfielder traps a ball on a short hop and pretends he caught it. A lineman holds his man so much that the game had to get skin-tight jerseys to aid in enforcement. The hidden-ball trick is legal, but is it moral?

EVEN IN courtrooms, the surprise witness, that staple of late-night television, is no longer with us. You have to furnish the defense with a list of your witnesses and what they will testify to.

Covert is out. We even have to tell our enemies what we're up to now. Remember when Knute Rockne suited up a guy in a wrong jersey in practice to confuse USC? That's a no-no now.

Baseball is already struggling with its image as a hotbed of drug abuse and now it comes into focus as a congress of cheats and liars.

There is no doubt a batter will use a corked bat if he can get away with it. If nothing else, it will give the batter a psychological lift, like a placebo, whether it works or not.

Will the modern public view this with chuckling tolerance, a boys-will-be-boys attitude? I don't know.

Corking the bat smacks of marking the cards, boiling the dice. Like to see Babe Ruth's record broken by some guy wielding a cork-filled bat, would you?

The integrity of the game is at stake. Next, somebody will be wondering if Roy Hobbs used a corked bat.

Hollywood has never been able to deal with baseball except as an entity manipulated by an outside agency, usually supernatural —angels in the outfield, a mystery substance concocted by a university professor, a player under contract to the devil.

BASEBALL itself is always terrified it will turn out to be manipulated by some outside agency, too. Someone like Arnold Rothstein.

In other games, they cheat. Track athletes use steroids. Baseball's cheating has always seemed more whimsical than criminal. But times, they are a-changing. I can remember when I thought that "inside information" was what Wall Street was for.

I guess if you can't have illegal substances in your body—you can't have them on the equipment either.

So, it's the kind of a world where there's no part for W.C. Fields anymore.

What do you do? Put the bats, like the baseballs, in charge of the umpires so there'll be no tampering? Suspend a guy for a year? For life? Not in an era when multiple murderers get community service sentences.

You could do what they do in golf. Put everybody on the honor system. Ballplayers are a company of honorable men, too. Aren't they?

Collins seizes lead in Seniors

RANCHO MURIETA, Calif. (AP) — Bill Collins shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take the first-round lead at the $360,000 Rancho Murieta Senior Gold Rush golf tournament.

Collins, despite a bogey on the first hole and a double-bogey on the fourth, when he hit three trees, played the front nine in 2-under-par 34.

"It's tough to see your drive coming out of that hole," Collins said of the 431-yard par-4 No. 4 hole. "I made it in six two days in a row."

Dale Douglass and Bob Brue are one shot back at 4-under-par 68. Orville Moody, Roberto DeVicenzo and Ken Still are two off the pace at 69.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, the leading money-winner on the Senior Tour, was tied with Butch Baird and Lee Elder at 70.

Charles Coody, Bob Charles and Harold Henning were tied at 71, and Don January and Bruce Crampton were tied with six others at even-par 72. Arnold Palmer and Doug Sanders each had 2-over 74s.

DeVicenzo's 69 gave him the Super Seniors lead for players 60 and over, four strokes ahead of Charles Sifford, who shot a 73.

"I played real well today," said DeVicenzo, who won the Super Seniors competition in June's Mazda Senior Tournament Players Championship and last week's Seniors Classic. "It's been a long time since I've hit the ball so long.

"I feel I'm a young man. Winning the whole tournament won't mean much to me, but (it will) to other people."

Collins, whose only Senior Tour victory was at the Greater Syracuse Seniors Classic in 1982, had a solid round despite the double bogey.

Collins was 2-over after six holes, but eagled the seventh when he hit a solid drive and pitched in from 85 feet with a sand wedge.

He added two birdies before hitting a two-iron off the tee on the 11th hole, chipping to within 2¼ feet and putting in for a birdie, putting him 3-under-par.

Farmer's life on land his piece of 'paradise'

By DONNA FIELDER

DENTON (AP) — The house is half hidden by an ancient cedar and the collapsed remains of the front porch.

A refrigerator and stove rust in appliance purgatory near the door.

The yard is testimony to 70 years of never discarding anything that might bear some future use: buckets, planks, dozens of tires, wire cable and half a dozen aged vehicles. Bodies of exhausted farm equipment stand like monuments to the 160-acre farmstead's past.

John Davis, 85, calls it Paradise Hill.

Davis lives alone. He never married.

"There was a couple of redheads...one of 'em was a peach. Somebody took her away from me."

Davis has raised cattle and hay on a farm a few miles west of town most of his life. He still works from sunrise to sunset: hand-cranking his 1940 Oliver tractor, hauling hay, gathering pecans from a large orchard, tending 25 head of Hereford-red Angus cross cattle and an elderly bull.

"He's about 20 years old, I guess," Davis says. "I never was so attached to an animal. If he gets too old, I'll take him to Fort Worth. But I'll cry all the way."

The Art of Friendship

Friendship is an art.

It is rather easy, as someone observed, to attract people and be attracted by them and develop acquaintances. But it takes an artist to keep the process going until deep friendship happens.

"If friendships were easy," declared Andrew Greeley, "there would be a lot more of them in the world."

And developing deep friendship is not easy because it is an art, and no art comes quickly or easily. Aristotle contended that "The business of every art is to bring something into existence, and the practice of any art involves studying how to bring this something into existence."

Friendship, as an art, demands patience. Many could-be friendships never happen because people get in a hurry to develop closeness and intimacy. Friendships that rush into intimacy are seldom lasting ones. In our hurried and mobile society we have placed "rush" stickers on the package of friendship without also stenciling "fragile" on it.

Ralph Waldo Emerson gives comfort and courage.

"Every artist was once an amateur."

LIFESCOPE

Have You Been Taken Hostage And Don't Know It? Lifescope Says, "Accept Your Freedom While You Can!"

Do you not know that the law has dominion over a man as long as he lives? What shall we say then? Is the law sin? Certainly not! On the contrary, I would not have known sin except through the law. For I would not have known covetousness unless the law had said, "You shall not covet."

But there is something else deep within us, in our lower nature, that is at war with our mind and wins the fight and makes us slaves to the sin that is still within us. In our minds we want to be God's willing servants but instead we find ourselves still enslaved to sin.

A servant of the Lord must not quarrel but be gentle to all, able to teach, patient, in humility correcting those who are in opposition, so God can perhaps bring them to repentance, so that they may know the truth, and that they may come to their senses and escape the snare of the devil, having been taken captive by him to do his will.

Yes, when we were children, (before we knew about Jesus) we were in bondage to laws and rituals, for we thought they could save us. But when the right time came, God sent His Son, born of a woman, born as a Jew, to buy freedom for us who were slaves to the law . . .

Jesus said, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon Me, because He has anointed Me to preach the gospel to the poor. He has sent Me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord!"

So Christ has made us free. Now make sure that you stay free and don't get all tied up again in the chains of slavery. Now we should behave like God's very own children, adopted into the bosom of His family, and calling to Him, "Father, Father."

Taken from Rom. 7, II Tim. 2, Gal. 4, Lk. 4, Gal. 5, Rom 8, The New King James and The Living Bible.

Catholic theologian accepts award

CHICAGO (AP) — Roman Catholic theologians "are having a difficult time and feminist theologians are in an even more precarious situation," Catholic theologian Elisabeth Schussler Fiorenza said in accepting the 1987 U.S. Catholic Award.

Ms. Schussler Fiorenza, who teaches at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, Mass., received the award from the monthly U.S. Catholic, published by the Claretian Fathers and Brothers.

Billy Graham going to China

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham will make his first trip to mainland China next month, speaking at churches and universities in Shanghai, Nanjing and Beijing, a spokesman for the preacher said.

Roger Flessing, who helps produce Graham's television specials, said Wednesday that the visit will include a series of speeches and official meetings built around a trip to the birthplace of Graham's wife in Jiangsu Province.

Ruth Graham, daughter of American missionaries to China, spent the first 17 years of her life there. Her father, Dr. L. Nelson Bell, was chief surgeon at one of the largest Presbyterian mission hospitals in the world.

The Grahams will be accompanied by their eldest son, the Rev. Franklin Graham of Boone, who heads World Medical Mission, a Christian relief agency.

Graham, 68, has preached in more than 60 countries around the world, including the Soviet Union and most of Eastern Europe. He said he was looking forward to meeting Chinese Christians.

The two-week visit to China will begin Sept. 18 in Shanghai.

Dates for world's end refuted

NEW YORK (AP) — A Lutheran study report objects to claims that approximate dates can be calculated for the end of the world and the second coming of Christ.

"Our Lord did not say when he would return," says the paper prepared by the Lutheran Council's division of theological studies, criticizing a view called "millenialism."

Promoters of this belief hold that "all current history is in a 'countdown' stage toward the end and that the end is imminent," says the study document. "The Bible is understood to provide a calendar of the crises leading up to this end."

The document, prepared over three years, says millenialists manipulate numbers found in the Bible in their calculations.

However, the document says "we should be careful not to reject the reality of the hope" in God's eventual victory at the end of time.

The Continental Singers

Singers mark anniversary

The Continental Singers and Orchestra, an internationally recognized Christian singing group, will perform at 7 p.m. Thursday at Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave.

Centered on a theme of "Let There Be Praise!," the program celebrates the 20th anniversary of the group while integrating a portion of "elijah," a powerful new musical that explores the life of one of the Old Testament's most well-known prophets.

The two parts of the program reflect, says Ken Waggoner, executive vice president of Continental Ministries, "Our need to praise God as we see him make the impossible possible in our lives."

The existence of the Continental Singers, Waggoner says, "is a testimony to God's power. It's literally a miracle that a ministry like ours has lasted for 20 years. In gospel music ministry, some groups barely make it 20 months let alone 20 years."

Cam Floria, Continental Singers' president and the producer of the program, says, "The purpose of any ministry or, in the case of the Old testament, any prophet is to communicate God's word and point the people of their generation to God's glory. Elijah did it in his time. The Continentals have been doing it for the past two decades, and, we hope, in the decades to come."

The public is invited to the free performance. A love offering will be taken.

The group, which features 25 vocalists and a 10-piece orchestra, will perform in all 50 states and 32 countries in 18 tours in 1987. Auditions will be held after the concert for those interested in touring with the Continentals as vocalists, instrumentalists or technicians.

Inexperienced man named to water board

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Although Buck Jim Wynne III concedes he has virtually no expertise in water regulation, the governor's appointee to the Texas Water Commission said Friday that also means he'll approach the job with an open mind.

"I don't really have any expertise," said Wynne, 31, a Dallas lawyer who has been serving as the governor's legislative counsel. "But the other side of that coin is that I don't have any preconceived notions about water regulation and water resources management and water development. So I go into all of these issues with an open mind.

"And I think that is what the governor is looking for: somebody who will take a fresh look at everything."

Gov. Bill Clements Thursday appointed Wynne to replace Ralph Roming of Bovina, whose term expires at the end of this month. Wynne, who has some experience in Dallas city government, will serve on the three-member commission until Aug. 31, 1993 if the Senate confirms his appointment.

"Because I have been associated with the governor for so long, I am going to be responsive to his concerns, and hopefully he will be responsive to some of mine," Wynne said.

Wynne said the governor wants to set up an interim task force to study water resources management in the state.

"(Clements) is very, very interested in water as a very important, really a paramount, natural resource in this state," he said. "And he really wants to make sure that that resource is managed properly."

Ken Kramer, spokesman for the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club, said the environmental group is willing to give Wynne the benefit of the doubt even though the appointee has no experience in water regulation.

"We don't know much about him and don't really have an opinion on him," Kramer said. "We are willing to give him a try and see how he does."

Wynne has served as a member of Dallas' municipal Planning and Zoning Commission and as chairman of the city's Subdivision Review Committee. He also was a member of the State Government Affairs Committee of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce.

He received a biology degree from Tulane University in New Orleans and his law degree from Southern Methodist University.

Doctor may resume limited practice, judge says

HOUSTON (AP) — A suburban physician who had his license revoked after one of his patients died may resume limited practice, a federal judge ruled Friday.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Hughes ruled Dr. Hugo Ramirez may offer obstetric and gynecological services, but not surgery, said Ramirez' attorney, Robert Newey.

Ramirez' license was revoked by the Texas Board of Medical Examiners on July 24, following the death of one patient and the lengthy hospitalization of another. Both underwent fat removal surgery March 27 at his Pasadena clinic.

On Friday, Hughes ruled Ramirez could practice pending the outcome of a Dec. 1 trial on legal issues Ramirez raised over the revocation, Newey said.

Ramirez has challenged the board's authority, and claims it did not follow proper procedures in revoking his license, Newey said.

Paul Gavia, an attorney representing the board, criticized the judge's decision.

"He is a threat to the public, and not just through liposuction (fat removal), but through care of other patients," said Gavia.

Newey said the Friday ruling was only a partial victory for his client, because Ramirez may not offer routine surgical procedures as part of his practice.

"His entire professional career has been in OB and GYN and without the ability to do surgery, requirements that that practice has, his ability to practice effectively is very limited," said Newey.

Newey said Ramirez had not decided what to do, and planned to think the matter over before deciding.

Shortly after the two cases of infection were reported, the board met and ordered Ramirez to abstain from performing the procedure.

After a formal hearing, a hearing examiner submitted a report to the board which claimed substandard hygiene existed in Ramirez clinic, as well as wide deviations from accepted practices in liposuction, or fat removal.

Pilot who neared Reagan's chopper loses license

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Federal authorities Friday revoked the license of a pilot who flew dangerously near President Reagan's helicopter, and an Army spokesman said the pilot may be an AWOL soldier.

George Polich, a spokesman at Fort Lewis, Wash., said the Army was attempting to locate Pvt. Ralph William Myers, 32, declared absent without leave on Aug. 3.

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater identified the pilot as Ralph W. Meyers of Lake Oswego, Ore. However, the Federal Aviation Administration spelled the name "Myers" and listed the hometown as Bingen, Wash. The company that rented the plane said the pilot's name was spelled "Myers."

Myers was released early Friday morning after Secret Service agents from Los Angeles questioned him about Thursday afternoon's close call.

"At this point in the questioning, they could find no basis on which to file criminal charges," Fitzwater said.

The spokesman said he knows of no steps to increase security at the ranch, saying, "You can't close down the skies."

Fitzwater, who was with the vacationing president on the helicopter, said, "At no time was he in any danger."

White House Chief of Staff Howard H. Baker Jr., however, told reporters, "I suppose there's a fair amount of danger when a plane comes that close to a helicopter."

Fitzwater said the U.S. attorney in Los Angeles, Robert Bonner, "continues to review this case and will be making judgments in the future if there is any indication that charges should be filed."

Myers apparently had no idea what he had done until he landed 125 miles away and was greeted by the Secret Service, according to a woman who drove Myers and a passenger from the plane to a terminal building at the John Wayne Airport in Orange County, Calif.

"I think he was just confused," said Barbara Geving. "...They got in the van and said, 'We're in trouble.'

"He (the pilot) said they were coming along the coast from San Francisco and cut in too close while looking for John Wayne Airport and a Marine helicopter began following them."

The Myers the Army is seeking was a member of the Nevada Air National Guard from 1980 to 1983 and worked as an aircraft maintenance mechanic, Polich said. In 1983, he converted to the Army Reserve.

On June 16, 1986, Myers went on active duty with the Army and was assigned to Fort Lewis as medical specialist, Polich said.

Myers lived on the base and "simply failed to show up for work on Aug. 3," Polich said.

"Our information shows that between 1980 and 1983, he worked for the Reno Flying Service," the spokesman continued. "At some point, just prior to coming on active duty, we believe he was employed as a pilot with Harlan Jones Contractors in White Salmon, Wash."

The Army gave Myers' birthdate as Sept. 14, 1954. The rental forms the plane's pilot filled out in Vancouver, Wash. listed the same birthdate, according to the rental company.

The pilot of the Reagan helicopter, Marine Col. Michael Glenn, said the airplane came to within 200 to 300 feet of the helicopter at an altitude about 150 feet below it as the helicopter approached the ranch on Thursday. He said he did not think the aircraft were on collision course, but nevertheless went into a gentle climb and right turn and notified the FAA.

Glenn had been warned of the plane by a Secret Service helicopter on the ground at Reagan's ranch. The Secret Service, in turn, had been alerted by Santa Barbara airport officials who were monitoring radar.

According to the FAA, federal restrictions bar pilots from flying below 4,000 feet above sea level when over Reagan's ranch about 20 miles north of Santa Barbara.

This ceiling is raised to 5,000 feet when Reagan is in the area. The restriction applies to about a 10-mile radius.

With Reagan on the copter were Baker, National Security Adviser Frank C. Carlucci, personal aide Jim Kuhn and White House physician Dr. John Hutton. First lady Nancy Reagan traveled to the ranch separately after visiting her mother in Phoenix.

"I was with the president on the helicopter and I had no inkling that there had been any incident at all," Baker said. "...It wasn't until I got back to the hotel here in Santa Barbara that I was told about the incident. Then I called the president and told him about it.

"...The president was not aware of the incident. He did not seem particularly upset when he found out about it."

Fitzwater said that "according to the FAA, the pilot committed several serious safety violations, including careless and reckless operation of an aircraft."

"The question of intrusion into the airspace is an FAA civil matter and that is the basis on which they are revoking his certificate," he said.

Prosecution reveals Lonetree's confessions

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — After portraying Sgt. Clayton Lonetree as pro-Soviet, military prosecutors on Friday began playing their trump card: sworn confessions in which the Marine says he passed secrets to the KGB.

Special Agent David Moyer of the Naval Investigative Service said under questioning from the military prosecutor, Marine Maj. David L. Beck, that Lonetree made the statements freely during interrogations Dec. 24 in Vienna and Dec. 25-29 in London.

The confessions, which say the former Moscow Embassy guard funneled secrets to the KGB through a Soviet spy named Sasha, came under attack during pre-trial motions, as the defense tried unsuccessfully to destroy the government's case by throwing them out. The statements are the prosecution's strongest evidence.

Defense lawyers Michael Stuhff and William Kunstler contended the statements were taken illegally, but the military judge, Navy Capt. Philip F. Roberts, ruled they could be admitted as evidence.

Moyer testified Friday that Lonetree was read his rights before each interrogation, and that Lonetree never tried to stop the questioning or seek advice from a lawyer. The defense had said the interrogations of Lonetree were tainted by information the NIS received from intelligence agents — believed to be CIA — who interrogated Lonetree before he was advised of his rights.

Under cross-examination by Stuhff, Moyer said some suspects being interrogated will make false incriminating statements.

He also said that during the interrogations, NIS agents for a time focused on Lonetree's wish to go after Sasha and a KGB general by working as a double agent for the United States.

The defense contends Lonetree turned over nothing of value to the Soviets but maintained contact with Sasha because he took it upon himself to play the role of a double agent.

Earlier testimony Friday came from Marines who knew Lonetree in Vienna, where guards at the U.S. Embassy were said to be alarmed by Lonetree's obsession with the Soviet Union.

Lonetree's room at the Marine house was like a shrine to Russia, decorated with such things as a Soviet flag, posters, books and statues, said J.R. Muldowney, a former Marine who served in Vienna with Lonetree.

"It occurred to me when I walked in his room that I wasn't walking into the room of a Marine," Muldowney said. "There wasn't anything American in the room. It was kind of hard to focus on anything other than the Soviet Union when you walked in there."

Other testimony indicated Lonetree thought the KGB was "neat" and a better intelligence agency than the CIA. Before his assignment to Europe, Lonetree expressed a desire to work for the KGB, former barracks mate Cpl. M.J. Lavato said.

Lonetree went to Vienna after serving as an Embassy guard in Moscow, where his love for a Soviet woman is said to have seduced him into spying.

Witnesses acknowledged under cross-examination from the defense that Marines coming from other foreign posts frequently would spend a lot of time talking about those posts and showing off the memorabilia they had acquired.

Once Lonetree was in Austria, testimony indicated, he began collecting such Austrian souvenirs as a flag and beer steins.

The defense said bringing up Lonetree's Soviet memorabilia is merely a ploy by the prosecution to prejudice the eight Marine officers sitting as jurors in the court-martial, the first ever of a Marine charged with espionage.

The 13 counts faced by the 25-year-old St. Paul, Minn., man could put him in prison for life if he is convicted.

Alleged overdose kills Rivers' husband

Rosenberg

Rivers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Producer Edgar Rosenberg, the husband of and occasional fool for comedian Joan Rivers, was found dead in his hotel room Friday, apparently of an overdose, police said. He was 62.

Rosenberg apparently died of an overdose of Valium, said police Detective Gerald Wartenby. Officials were alerted to the situation when Rosenberg's business manager called him at the Four Seasons Hotel on Friday morning and received no answer, Wartenby said.

Hotel security officers entered Rosenberg's room at 11:30 a.m. and found him lying on the floor next to his bed. Police said a note also was found at the scene but would not divulge its contents.

"Rosenberg, who suffered a major heart attack in November 1984 and underwent quadruple bypass surgery, has been in poor health recently and greatly depressed," said Richard Grant, a spokesman for Miss Rivers.

Grant said Rosenberg was hospitalized in Ireland last week for gastrointestinal bleeding, and was in Philadelphia for meetings. He was to return to Los Angles on Friday and enter Cedars-Sinai Medical Center today, he said.

Grant said there would be no immediate statement from Miss Rivers. "It's just a little bit too much for her right now," he said.

In January, Rosenberg was hospitalized at UCLA Medical Center after a mild heart attack. He quit a five-pack-a-day cigarette habit after his brush with death in 1984, when his quadruple bypass surgery was preceded by a massive heart attack. Miss Rivers canceled shows to stay at his bedside.

After his 1984 heart surgery, Miss Rivers commented on her relationship with Rosenberg.

"I fell apart. The first three weeks were a nightmare beyond anything I ever encountered," she said.

Rosenberg had managed his wife's career during most of their 22-year marriage. They have one daughter, Melissa, 19, and lived in Beverly Hills.

Memorial services were scheduled for Sunday at the Wilshire Boulevard Temple in Los Ageles.

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Willie Nelson might prefer a round of golf to a party while on tour nowadays, but still, don't ask him to change his clothes.

The nasal Texan, in town for a Friday gig at the Jackson County Fair, balked at first when someone recommended he play a round at the Arbor Hills Country Club.

The club has a strict dress code, but Nelson decided to go ahead. He teed off with 11 members of his entourage, and club members didn't seem to mind his black T-shirt and cut-offs, said assistant club pro Brian Liberati.

"I think a lot of the members kind of liked it," said Liberati, adding some got pictures and autographs. Nelson owns a golf course in Austin, Texas, and told Arbor Hills members he's replaced partying with golf on tour.

Liberati said he didn't know Nelson's score.

"He had a pretty decent swing," he said. "A lot of the guys did. You could tell they'd played some golf."

ODON, Ind. (AP) — Rear Adm. John Poindexter comes from a big family, and they're all going to help roll out the red carpet for President Reagan's former national security adviser during the Old Settlers Festival.

The guest list includes Paris Poindexter, a retired patent counselor from North Carolina; Roger Poindexter, president of a California wood products company, and Dr. B.K. Poindexter, a dentist.

"It looks like it's going to be a whale of a day for Odon," said Richard Poindexter, a cousin who runs the Poindexter and Son Funeral Home.

Poindexter said Tuesday's guest list also includes the admiral's mother and two sisters, and possibly his brother, Chris, president of the Baltimore Power and Light Co. Nuclear Power Division.

John Poindexter, 50, grew up in Odon, but left for the U.S. Naval Academy when he finished high school in 1954.

Residents closely followed his testimony last month before the congressional panel investigating the Iran-Contra affair. Poindexter admitted he kept information from the president about money going to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels.

Poindexter will get an award and a street will be named for him, but he won't get all the glory. Raymond Roy Myers, owner of the Odon Clothing Co., will be grand marshal of the parade.

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — He's still hospitalized, on oxygen and in a wheelchair, but John Huston is restless.

The 81-year-old director of such classics as "The Maltese Falcon" and "The African Queen" is taking an active role in the production of "Mr. North," a film being directed by his son Danny, his press agent said Friday.

"Every day when his son comes up he goes over every detail of the picture," said Ernie Anderson, Huston's press agent.

Even so, Anderson said, Huston complained Thursday of going "stir-crazy" in his room. He was taken with his oxygen, by wheelchair, to the hospital courtyard, where he was allowed to sit outdoors.

Huston is executive director of the movie, being filmed in Newport, R.I. He was hospitalized after he collapsed in late July.

He continues to recover from the bronchopneumonia that complicated his ongoing battle with emphysema, Caroline McCurry, spokeswoman for Charlton Memerial Hospital, said Friday. There is no word yet on a release date.

CHICAGO (AP) — The city's huge Picasso sculpture turned 20 on Friday, sporting a 6-foot medal for service as "an all-around good statue."

The City of Chicago Medal of Honor with its red-white-and-blue ribbon was dangled from the 50-foot steel sculpture by two cherry picker trucks on Thursday in preparation of the celebration.

"It's been an all-around good statue for the city of Chicago," said Margaret Johnson of the mayor's office of special events, noting the medal presented Thursday is usually reserved for "heroic deeds and outstanding persons who deserve recognition."

But she said the sculpture, which has suffered two decades of rude jokes, puzzled looks, Midwest winters and decorations of athletic gear from the city's Bears, Cubs and White Sox fans, deserved the prize.

"The Chicago Picasso is a sculpture of civic prominence. It is tantamount to a civic icon," said Neal Benezra, curator of 20th century works at the Art Institute of Chicago.

The hoop-la, complete with birthday cake and ice cream Friday, might have surprised some of those on hand for the Chicago Picasso's unveiling Aug. 14, 1967.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — A 10-year-old boy who claims the record of being the youngest person ever to fly a plane across the United States is back in California on the last leg of his round-trip journey.

Christopher Lee Marshall and flight instructor Rowe Yates touched down Thursday in their single-engine Piper Warrior after a flight from Phoenix, Ariz.

Falwell trying to stop church foreclosure

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The euphoria of a rousing fund-raiser led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell has evaporated in failure as a Baptist church on Friday faced almost certain foreclosure.

Falwell, the Moral Majority founder who now is trying to keep the PTL television ministry going, visited Center Road Baptist Church in suburban West Seneca on June 28.

He led a service in which he challenged, cajoled and pleaded for $35,000 to meet overdue payments on the church's mortgage. He pledged $1,000 himself; others put $20 bills into baskets.

At the time, church officials said they received more than $35,000 in cash and pledges.

"Do you suppose it would be permissible to say, "Whoopee!" the Rev. Barney R. Lee, pastor of the 500-member church, said afterward.

A more subdued Lee said Friday half the pledges have not materialized, among them $2,000 from Falwell's Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va.

"We have put all the money raised so far on our first mortgage. We're still $16,000 to $17,000 short," he said.

A hearing is set for Monday in U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Buffalo.

Lee said he hopes The Permanent Savings Bank and bankruptcy Judge Beryl E. McGuire will regard the money raised as intent to make good on the debt, thus averting seizure and sale of the property.

"But as far as a solution, we needed to get all we went for," Lee said. "We could lose the church on Monday."

The church had hoped paying the mortgage would demonstrate to other creditors — it owes about $250,000 — that it is able to meet its obligations.

Center Road declared bankruptcy four years ago. Lee blames too rapid an expansion for the church's woes.

He said many of his parishioners are poor and unemployed, and "may have pledged in the fervor of the moment."

"I'm sure at the time they were intending to make a donation," he said. He added that he still expected to receive the donation from Lynchburg: "They've probably been busy with other things."

Falwell spokesman Mark DeMoss was out of town and available for comment Friday.

Permanent's vice president of lending, Richard Schueckler, said Friday the hearing will determine if the church should be forced into a repayment schedule.

He said the outcome is impossible to predict, but added that if the church ultimately cannot pay, the bank has no choice but to foreclose. The judge could maintain the church's present status, he said, in which case little would change.

Falwell is no stranger to church rescue efforts. In January 1986, he stepped in as an acting pastor at the bitterly divided Bangor, Maine, Baptist Church after its pastor publicly confessed to adultery and resigned.

After four months, Falwell announced that his "spiritual rescue mission" was a success.

Lee said he has not spoken to Falwell directly about the church's continuing problems.

"He's been busy, but his secretary has been updating him on everything that's been happening to us," Lee said. "I don't know how much more he can help. He has his hands pretty full."

Justice has idea of judicial review

PHILADELPHIA TODAY

Jacob Hiltzheimer met with five of the street commissioners at Thompson's Indian Queen Tavern on Fourth Street and enjoyed a drink of punch. He spent the evening with commissioners Boys, Geyer and Pancake. Perhaps the gentlemen were celebrating an article in today's Pennsylvania Herald praising the daily improvements on the city streets.

CONFEDERATION TODAY

Lacking a quorum, Congress did not meet today.

CONVENTION TODAY

After some preliminary discusssion, Caleb Strong (Mass.) moved that tax bills and appropriations should originate in the House, leaving the Senate free to amend. George Mason (Va.) seconded the motion and a fight was on. Nathaniel Gorham (Mass.) urged passage; Gouverneur Morris (Pa.) opposed. Hugh Williamson (N.C.) favored the motion, but thought the issue might be placed in a better perspective if it were postponed until the Senate's other powers were more carefully defined. John Rutledge (S.C.) seconded Williamson's motion; the Convention voted postponement, 6 to 5.

Next, the delegates considered the executive vote power and the authority of Congress to override with a two-thirds vote in each house. James Madison (Va.) moved that both the executive and Supreme Court should have veto power, with a two-thirds vote of each house to override if either branch vetoed a law. James Wilson (Pa.) seconded the motion. James Francis Mercer (Md.) approved, but in part because he "disapproved of the doctrine that the Judges as expositors of the Constitution should have authority to declare a law void." On the other side, Charles Pinckney (S.C.) opposed the motion, and Elbridge Gerry (Mass.) pointed out that a similar motion had already been rejected. Shortly, this motion also was voted down.

Gouverneur Morris expressed his regrets that the motion was defeated. He favored an absolute veto power by either the executive or judicial branches, which he thought would act as a strong barrier against legislative instability. John Dickinson (Del.) agreed with Mercer that the judiciary should not have a veto power. Roger Sherman (Conn.) distrusted the power of a one-man executive over the many in Congress. Daniel Carroll (Md.) wanted the issue postponed until the executive branch was better defined. Gorham, Rutledge and Ellsworth, growing impatient, opposed postponement. The motion to postpone lost. Then Williamson moved to require a thee-fourths vote to override a veto. This motion passed.

The veto power remained as the principal topic for the remainder of the day. Madison was concerned that Congress would pass "joint resolutions" to avoid a veto since it would not fall under the definition of a "bill." His concern was not shared by many members. But the body concluded its business today by voting to allow 10 days rather than seven for the executive to return a bill.

DELEGATES TODAY

George Washington spent the evening "at home" and wrote Marquis de Lafayette. He promised details of the Convention when it ended early next month, congratulated Lafayette on his work in the French Assembly, and discussed European affairs.

James Madison wrote his fellow Virginia delegate to Congress, William Grayson, asking him to support the appointment of Maj. George Turner to a position in the Northwest Territory's government.

Roger Sherman (Conn.) wrote Henry Gibbs to order chinaware for his wife.

LOOKING BACK
Judicial Review

The doctrine of judicial review of laws is not spelled out in the Constitution. Rather, the doctrine was formulated by Chief Justice John Marshall in the landmark case of Marbury v. Madison in 1803, in which a law passed by Congress was declared unconstitutional. Yet, while judicial review is not embodied in the Constitution, the delegates did discuss the issue on several occasions.

Mercer and Dickinson argued that judges should not have the power to declare a law unconstitutional. After all, as few as three judges (a majority of the five needed to determine a case) can overturn a law passed by as many as 535 representatives and senators elected by and responsible to their constituents. Further, there is no opportunity of appeal from such a decision.

Throughout the Convention, delegates had stated that the judiciary would have and use the power of judiciary review. This assumption had the tacit acceptance of a majority of the members.

Finally, the idea of judicial review was inherent in the idea of a written immutable Constitution separate from, and above, statute law. Without the judicial check, the legislative branch instead would have functioned like the British Parliament which determined the British Constitution by the laws it passed.

The historical Shepherd House, which was built shortly after the Oklahoma land run of 1889, was moved Thursday to a new exhibit site in Oklahoma City.

Oklahoma landmark house has new home

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The wooden house that may have been the first two-story house built in Oklahoma has a new home.

Workers loaded the tiny house on the back of a truck at the Oklahoma City Zoo on Thursday and moved it downtown to become part of the '89er exhibits at Harn Homestead.

The Shepherd House was built shortly after the land run of 1889 by George T. Shepherd. It measures 13 by 25 feet and is 18 feet tall and contains a parlor, a kitchen and two bedrooms.

The Shepherd family lived there until a larger home could be built.

The house had been at the zoo since 1970.

Soldier planning reunion

POTEAU, Okla. (AP) — A man who served under Lt. Col. Oliver North in Vietnam is trying to have a reunion of soldiers who were in North's Marine platoon.

Randy Herrod, who saved North's life during a battle, is hoping to have the reunion Nov. 11 in Oklahoma City, said Don Barnes of Poteau.

Herrod once dragged North to safety during a firefight after North was knocked unconscious by a grenade.

Later, North returned the favor by flying back to Vietnam at his own expense and testifying on Herrod's behalf. Herrod had been charged with 16 counts of murder in connection with a battle and eventually was acquitted.

Prior to and during North's testimony before a select committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair, Herrod helped raise money for North's attorney fees.

Police officer transferred

ATLANTA (AP) — The commander of the police agency which investigated drug-use allegations against prominent Atlantans, including the mayor, has been transferred to an administrative post.

Public Safety Commissioner George Napper said Thursday that Maj. Herman Griner will move from head of the Special Intelligence Section to the Field Operations Division, where he will aid in staff work and planning of police activities at next year's Democratic National Convention.

Napper refused to say if the transfer was related to the investigation of allegations by Alice Bond, wife of former state Sen. Julian Bond, that her husband, Mayor Andrew Young and other prominent residents had used cocaine.

A federal grand jury investigating the charges has cleared Young. No report has been made yet on Bond or any others.

Maj. Julius Derico, a former commander of the Office of Professional Standards, will replace Griner. Derico has headed the police precinct at Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport since May 1986.

Turkeys quarantined

BORCULO, Mich. (AP) — An outbreak of avian influenza has prompted the quarantine of 60,000 turkeys, officials say.

Dan Torrington, vice president for farm operations at Bil-Mar farms, said the outbreak is limited and is the first of its kind in Michigan.

About 17,000 dieseased birds have been destroyed, said Dwight Schwartz of the Michigan State University college of veterinary medicine.

The disease does not affect humans. Alone, it is rarely fatal, but poultry weakened by other conditions could be killed by it, Schwartz said.

The influenza strain was detected about six weeks ago through routine testing, and Bil-Mar officials have taken measures to deal with it, Schwartz said.

Bil-Mar officials said Thursday the disease probably came through migrating ducks.

Man wanted to go to jail

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Samuel Porter tried to break into jail, and succeeded, authorities say.

Porter, 45, of Pittsburgh, showed up at Allegheny County Jail about 1 a.m. Wednesday and asked the desk officer to put him in a cell overnight, Officer Mike Byerly said Friday.

When the officer refused, Porter angrily demanded entry, said Warden Charles Kozakiewicz. The officer again refused and ordered Porter to leave or be arrested, he said.

Porter left the building, but he threw a rock through the warden's office window, Kozakiewicz said.

A sheriff's deputy arrested Porter for disorderly conduct. He was arraigned and was being held Friday on $150 bond.

Byerly said authorities don't know why Porter wanted to go to jail.

Quake shakes Fox Island

WASHINGTON (AP) — A moderate earthquake shook the Fox Islands in the Aleutian chain off the coast of Alaska early Friday, the U.S. Geological Survey reported.

The Survey's Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., measured the quake at 5.3 on the Richter Scale, Survey officials said.

They said that it was not felt in any inhabited area and caused no reported damage.

The center of the quake was about 870 miles southwest of Anchorage, the Survey said, and occurred at 7:40 a.m. Alaska time (1:40 p.m. EDT).

'Name A Project' winners announced

By JAMILAH OWENS
Staff Writer

"Child abuse effects almost every neighborhood, be it rich or poor, and there is a definite need for a program in our area that will prevent its continuence," said Carol Steele, executive director of the Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program, at a reception held Friday to honor winners of the CAPPS' "Name A Project" contest.

According to Ms. Steele, the task of organizing such a program began in the fall of 1985, when the Midland United Way formed an Ad Hoc Committee to study the resources available in the community to combat child abuse and the gaps in service and program coordination. In the summer of 1986, she said, the United Way created a task group to study the community and regional needs.

Ms. Steele said that with additional input from professionals representing agencies and organizations already dealing with child abuse, the task group became a managing board under the auspices of Midland's Family Services. Family Service is a United Way agency that offers counseling for families and individuals.

The task group, she said, defined the community needs and services that should be offered.

According to the report, there were five main focuses: public awareness of the problem of child abuse and neglect in the community; education for professionals who deal with abuse problems; an identification program to detect high risk parents; a group to encourage and create opportunities for collaboration and cooperation among community services dealing with the problem; and a program of information and referral on child abuse prevention and treatment resource in the community and region.

In May 1987, the program became a reality, Ms. Steele said. "At present, the Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program's goals and objectives are to coordinate and increase the available resources in the region and community that address child abuse and neglect.

"The programs that we are developing are to aid the child in protecting himself, to expand the professional's awareness, increase communication between all Permian Basin resources and to assist first-time and high-risk parents with knowledge of normal child development, " she said.

"The program's aid is to stop the cycle of child abuse from one generation to another and to give all children the secure childhood needed for their full development to become physically and emotional healthy adults," Ms. Steele concluded.

Ms. Steele's avid views about helping prevent child abuse were echoed by the winners of the contest. They included first place winner Dena Gray of Odessa for Permian Basin CAPPS, second place winner Mary Cazell of Midland for SCAN (Stop Child Abuse Now) and third place winner Warren Newsom of Midland for HELP (Healthy Environment for Little People), who was not present.

Mrs. Cazell, 30, said that her reasons for entering the contest reflected her profession and personal status. Mrs. Cazell, a pediatric and nursery nurse at Midland Memorial Hospital who has a 2½-year-old daughter, Lauren, is having infertility problems. She said "We want another child real bad and when I work at the hospital sometimes and I see a lot of people just having babies, babies, babies. And with a lot of them, you just wonder about their home environment and hope for the best. It just makes me hopeful for well-being of these children."

Said Mrs. Gray, a 27-year-old mother of three: "I was very surprised I won first place...I just thought that anything I could do to help the child abuse program would be appreciated, so I entered the contest.

"I thought that the name Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program was just a bit long, so I shorten it and came up with Permian Basin CAPPS. And I won," she said.

Prizes, which included Texas American Bank T-shirts, tickets for the entire family to a Midland Angels baseball game and movie tickets, were given courtesy of the bank and awarded by Charles Grimes, president of the Texas American Bank.
