Dr. W.E. Barron, professor of educational administration at the University of Texas, was amazed at the financial resources of the local public school district, which he inspected during a survey of facilities.

The Snyder Consolidated Independent School District is virtually debt-free at this time, having retired the last of the bonds which financed the last major construction project in the late fifties.

"Your legal capacity for bonds now is about $16.3 million," Dr. Barron told the board of trustees Thursday night when he made an oral report on his survey of school facilities.

The school district is not likely to propose any bond issue anywhere near that figure, of course, but the subject came up during the discussion of needs in the various schools here. If any positive action is taken toward improving and expanding facilities, a bond issue will be required, however. And if one is proposed, you may look for a short-term issue. The bond market is so much more favorable for short term issues that nobody wants to issue any long term bonds if he can afford the shorter ones.

Remember Cesar Chavez, whose United Farm Workers Organizing Committee brought down the wrath of grape growers?

His No. 2 man, Larry Itliong, not only has quit the union but also has blasted it as a "monster organization."

The National Right to Work Newsletter says that dissension has hit the UFWOC because its vice president, Dolores Huerta, expressed utter contempt for the farm workers when she opposed secret ballots in union elections. The newsletter quoted her as saying that the farmer workers didn't know what an election was and that they didn't understand democracy.

A car pool has been organized by some 30 persons who will take special training at the Aileen, Inc., plant at Abilene in preparation for opening of a plant in Snyder. Mickey Nunley, Chamber of Commerce manager, said that officials of the company had indicated that they would employ around 20 persons for the initial training, but they hired 30 instead. They will begin their training Monday.

This initial group will launch the Aileen operations here and also help train additional personnel for the Snyder plant.

President Is Pondering Full Employment Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is spending the weekend pondering a full employment budget even as the Labor Dapartment reports unemployment jumped up to 6 per cent in November after a two months' decline.

White House officials in Key Biscayne, Fla., where Nixon is reviewing his fiscal 1973 budget, said Friday the President's decision is virtually certain to result in deficit spending.

Under the full employment concept, forecasts of how much revenue the government will have to spend are based on the theory that unemployment will not exceed 4 per cent. If unemployment exceeds that rate, a deficit results.

The unemployment rate has hovered around 6 per cent for the past year. It was 6.1 per cent in August, 6 per cent in September and 5.8 per cent in October.

The November jump in the unemployment rate—the ratio of job seekers to job holders—came even while the total number of working Americans rose to an all-time high of 80 million persons.

The White House called the increase in the unemployment rate unwelcome and Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said it was unacceptable.

In releasing figures on another economic indicator, the government announced the index of wholesale prices increased 0.1 per cent last month.

But Herbert J. Stein, new chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, noted that the index showed an overall decline for the three months of the wage-price freeze imposed Aug. 15 by President Nixon.

The index declined 0.2 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis or 0.3 per cent on an actual basis between September and November.

In other economic developments Friday:

—The Internal Revenue Service cautioned landlords not to raise rents unless authorized under continuing stringent regulations, and urged tenants to be vigilant about any rent increases.

The IRS told tenants they may refuse to pay added rent charges unless the landlord shows them records to substantiate the legality of an increase.

—The Construction Industry Stabilization Committee announced approval a week earlier of six new construction union contracts all containing raises in excess of Pay Board guidelines. They ranged from 9.9 per cent over 12 months for Philadelphia bricklayers to 56.2 per cent over 24 months for Delaware plasterers.

—The dollar fell to new lows on European exchanges on the heels of a British decision to stop supporting it. The Bank of England and other government banks in Europe had been buying dollars by the million to keep values from plummeting.

—Chrysler Corp. said it would raise prices of its 1972 cars a flat 3 per cent.

US Planes Hit Red Radar Sites

SAIGON (AP) — American fighter-bombers attacked three air defense radar sites inside North Vietnam, one of them 95 miles north of the demilitarized zone, the U.S. Command reported today.

In Cambodia, military sources said heavy enemy attacks forced Cambodian soldiers to abandon another town along Highway 6 and move into defensive positions.

The U.S. fighter-bombers were flying cover for other bombers that made massive raids Friday against war stockpiles on the Laos-North Vietnamese border awaiting shipment southward along the Ho Chi Minh trail.

The U.S. Command said results of the strikes by three Air Force F105 fighter-bombers 8, 85 and 95 miles north of the DMZ were not known. It said there was no damage to the U.S. supersonic jets.

Friday's raids took place near the Mu Gia and Ban Raving passes in North Vietnam, where U.S. sources say there is a big buildup of war supplies for Hanoi troops fighting in Cambodia and South Vietnam during the dry season.

The U.S. strikes raised to 85 the number of "protective reaction" raids inside North Vietnam this year. Although the full-scale bombing of North Vietnam was halted in 1968, Washington policy permits the strikes over the north as "an inherent right of self-defense."

In South Vietnam, a patrol of the U.S. 196th Brigade clashed with enemy forces 16 miles south of Da Nang and reported killing seven with support from helicopter gunships. One U.S. soldier was killed and one was wounded.

U.S. bombers also renewed attacks on North Vietnamese positions along Cambodia's northeastern front.

Associated Press correspondent Robin Mannock reported from Phnom Penh that the Cambodian forces had regrouped into a five-mile long enclave southeast of Kompong Thom, about 75 miles north of the capital, after losing 25 miles of Highway 6 to the North Vietnamese 9th Division.

Cambodian military sources told Mannock that the town of Taing Krasaing, 70 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, was abandoned Friday. Earlier, the towns of Baray and Kompong Thmar fell under a North Vietnamese counter-offensive that had beaten back a 20,000-man Cambodian task force.

Fund Set Up For Child Here

A fund has been established at West Texas State Bank for Hal R. Snider II, five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal R. Snider.

The child has recently undergone surgery for cancer at Santa Rosa Children's Hospital in San Antonio.

Due to a decision of the doctors to leave 10 per cent of a tumor so that the child would have use of his legs, he will require X-ray treatments and frequent trips to San Antonio for medical tests and further treatment.

Those wishing further information may call 573-2949. Contributions to the fund may be left at the West Texas State Bank at any time during banking hours.

East-West Wall Talks Deadlock

Associated Press Writer

BERLIN (AP) — The East-West Berlin wall talks deadlocked today.

There was no word when they would be resumed, although it was expected to be soon.

The West Berlin city parliament's Council of Elders met at the request of the Free Democratic party, which is seeking to block approval of the wall passage details as now formulated.

The Free Democrats, minor but pivotal partners in Bonn of Chancellor Willy Brandt's coalition, said they will not accept an agreement that limits West Berliners to only 30 visits a year to East Berlin or East Germany.

A party spokesman said such restrictions violated the letter and spirit of the four power deal on Berlin which the German talks are to implement.

City Hall spokesmen said they did not know when Ulrich Mueller, the western wall pass negotiator, would meet again with East German State Secretary Guenter Kohrt, or where.

They had met until 4 a.m. today.

Egon Bahr, the senior West German negotiator in the two-tiered talks, flew back to Bonn, the expected 11 a.m. signing of his agreement on Berlin access with the East Germans blocked by the wall pass impasse.

Bahr has made it clear that he will not sign the agreement he worked out with his counterpart, Michael Kohl, until the Mueller-Kohrt talks also are ready for initialing. This was Western pressure in response to the Communist side's declaration that both talk levels were completed as far as they were concerned and could be signed.

Bahr's return to Bonn put off day, since he said he would not deal on Sunday.

A joint East-West communique announced officially what had been apparent for some time, without confirmation: that the Bahr-Kohl Berlin access talks were finished but no signing time had been agreed on. It added that Bahr and Kohl soon would resume negotiating on a general traffic treaty.

Left hanging was the agreement signed by the United States, Britain, France and the needs German accord before going into effect.

Pressure on both German sides is bound to mount since it seems apparent that Bonn, as well as East Berlin, wants accord before next Wednesday and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in Brussels.

NATO has made its reception of Soviet overtures on European security conference dependent on the state and quality of the agreements on Berlin.

Harvest Lagging

Damp, cold weather has halted the cotton harvest almost before it got underway in the Snyder area.

The harvest, already late getting underway, has scarcely got "off the ground" because of a number of factors.

At the end of the week, few gins in the Snyder area were even open since there were virtually no prospects for any cotton to move from the fields. The Snyder Co-op Gin, which handles several thousand bales annually, had processed only 16 bales by the end of the week. If dry weather had prevailed, gins probably would have been busy over the weekend.

The Abilene Classing Office reported that only 4,700 samples of cotton had been classed for the week ending Dec. 3. This made a total for the season of 10,500 bales, compared to 242,000 bales at the same stage of the season last year.

The classing office reported that strength readings had been "very discouraging" so far this year.

Jaycees Set Yule Lighting Contest Again

Snyder Jaycees have announced that they will sponsor a Christmas lighting contest again this season.

Those interested in entering the contest and competing for prizes which will be awarded are asked to call the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office at 573-3558 and provide their names and addresses. Deadline for the entries will be Dec. 21.

There are two divisions of competition in the lighting contest. These include outdoor lighting and lighting with a religious theme.

First, second and third prizes will be awarded in each division.

The first prize in the outdoor lighting division will be donated by Texas Electric Service Co. First prize in the religious theme division will be a $25 savings bond to be awarded by the Jaycees.

War Charge Is Countered

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indian forces struck in East Pakistan today and the government claimed they were advancing rapidly in a drive to establish an independent state and force the 80,000 Pakistani troops there to surrender.

The Indians acknowledged, however, that they had lost some territory in fighting along the border of West Pakistan, 1,000 miles to the west. The Indian air force launched air raids against eight key airfields in West Pakisan.

India accused Pakistan of declaring war. Without mentioning any declaration, President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan of Pakistan charged that India had begun the war and in a broadcast told his countrymen it was time "to give a crushing reply to the enemy."

Furthermore, a dispatch from Rawalpindi, West Pakistan, said there had been no declaration of war by either side but that a proclamation in the government gazette declared: "A state of war exists between Pakistan on one hand and India on the other."

Defense minister Jagjivan Ram of India told a solemn parliament that Indian troops had lost some ground around Ferozepore, an Indian city on the border 200 miles northwest of New Delhi. He did not say how much.

Both sides claimed they were inflicting damaging blows to the other side's air force. Radio Pakistan said it had destroyed 36 Indian aircraft. India claimed it destroyed 33 Pakistani planes while losing 11.

A dispatch from Rawalpindi, West Pakistann said no formal declaration of war had been made by either side but that a proclamation defining contraband published in the government gazette declared: "A state of war exists between Pakistan on one hand and India on the other."

The Indian attacks included air raids on military airfields near the three major West Pakistani cities of Lahore, Karachi and Rawalpindi, the seat of Pakistan's government, Indian authorities said.

A spokesman in New Delhi, the Indian capital, said the Indian air force reported destroying a number of Pakistani planes on the ground in West Pakistan.

He said the Indian raiders met little opposition during their morning-long strikes, and that all of them had returned safely to their bases.

The spokesman said Indian air force planes also had been attacking military installations inside East Pakistan since early today, and that heavy fighting is going in most sections of the province. He said the thrust was aimed at helping the Bengali secessionists set up a government of their own inside East Pakistan.

He said Indian air force fighters and Pakistani jets engaged in numerous dogfights over East Pakistan and that seven Pakistani Sabre jets were shot down, four near Dacca and three near Jessore. The spokesman said no Indian planes had been downed.

But Radio Pakistan reported that 33 Indian planes were shot down in different sectors of East and West Pakistan.

UTEP Students Are Freed

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — The 38 persons arrested during a Chicano student-staged demonstration on the University of Texas-El Paso campus Friday, all made $400 bonds during the night and were released from county jail.

They were charged with disrupting campus activities, a crime under a law passed by the Texas Legislature.

Bert Hernandez, chairman of La Mesa Directiva - a group of 15 Mexican - Americans including representatives from the community, the University of Texas-El Paso student body and the UTEP faculty - has called another meeting Monday at 10 a.m.

He said those attending will discuss the university's alleged failure to meet four demands, submitted earlier to the administration.

He urged the students "not to let those arrested suffer for nothing."

One student demand was that Dr. Gary Brooks, vice president for student affairs, resign.

When the students' 10 a.m., Friday deadline passed, members of a campus Chicano organization, Mecha, stretched a banner across the front of the administration building.

"It said, "This property has been appropriated by the spiritual nation of Aztlan."

Aztlan is the name dissident Mexican - Americans use for parts of New Mexico, Arizona and Mexico.

Brooks tried to read a letter from UTEP President Dr. Joseph R. Smilie, who was attending a regents meeting in Austin, Tex.

The letter said Brooks would not resign, but that the administration is seeking qualified Chicanos for future administrative vacancies.

Brooks then asked the students to leave the area. When they refused, university officials called the police.

About 35 uniformed policemen moved onto the campus shortly before noon and began making arrests. A crowd of about 2,000 students gathered and there were some shoving incidents.

Most of those arrested were in the original small protest group, but some students from the crowd also were picked up.

There was no destruction of school property. Three policemen used mace in the crowd.

Police first loaded their prisoners into a bus, but it wouldn't start. Officers then transferred the prisoners to squad cars. There was some scuffling during the transfer.

More Campuses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — By a stroke of the pen, California may soon have 19 more state university campuses.

Senate Vote Is Set On Powell

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richmond, Va., attorney Lewis F. Powell, Jr., will be the first of President Nixon's two Supreme Court nominees to be voted on by the Senate.

The vote on Powell was set by the Democratic leadership for 4 p.m. Monday, but no time has been agreed on for voting on the nomination of Asst. Atty. Gen. William H. Rehnquist.

This is the way Democratic liberals opposed to Rehnquist's confirmation wanted it, but Majority Leader Mike Mansfield; D-Mont., said Friday he believed it would serve to ex- both nominations.

Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said that while he would have called up Rehnquist's nomination first, the job of the minority was to cooperate.

If the Republicans had tried to resist Mansfield's move, he said, "it would only have gotten the Senate into an unseemly squabble."

Supporters of both nominations had been reluctant to confirm Powell, who has no known opposition in the Senate, without assurances that attempts would not be made to stall a vote on Rehnquist.

Mansfield said that from soundings he had taken he did not expect a filibuster against either nomination.

He also said that he and Scott intend "to stay with these nominations until they are decided one way or another."

Scott said he hoped it would be possible to bring Rehnquist's nomination to a vote before the Powell, 64, a wealthy and prominent lawyer attorney who has served as president of the American Bar Association, has been nominated to suceed the late Justice Hugo L. Black who served on the court for 34 years.

Rehnquist, 47, a former Phoenix, Ariz., lawyer, would replace retired Justice John M. Harlan on the court. Opposition to his nomination has centered on his civil rights and civil liberties record.

If Powell is approved quickly, the confirmation will be in contrast to the Senate's rejection of two Southern conservatives, Judges Clement F. Haynsworth, Jr., and G. Harrold Carswell, nominated by Nixon for a previous vacancy on the high court.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who led the fight against the Haynsworth and Carswell nominations, is supporting Powell's confirmation. He predicted Friday night that Powell will make an exceptional Supreme Court justice.

But Bayh is opposing Rehnquist's confirmation and is believed to be behind the absence of a fixed time for a vote on his nomination.

Palatial Mansions

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Film stars are deserting their palatial mansions for modest and less expensive apartments, says real estate broker Mike Silverman in the National Enquirer.

Big Wells Has New Sun Plant

BIG WELLS, Tex. (AP) — A plant designed to process nine million cubic feet of gas daily has been completed and put into operation by Sun Oil Co. at a site two miles south of here in the Big Wells Field.

Sun, with approximately 50 per cent interest, operates the Dimmit County plant for itself and several other companies. All operators in the Big Wells Field have been offered the opportunity to participate.

Maximum plant capacity is 15 million cubic feet of gas daily. From the designed inlet gas volume of nine million cubic feet of gas per day some 21,000 gallons of NGPA propane, 15,000 [illegible] and 10,000 gallons of natural gasoline will be recovered.

Casinghead gas produced in the Big Wells Field is unusually rich, containing some six gallons of propane and heavier constituents per 1,000 cubic feet. The characteristics of this gas resulted in the plant being designed to employ a very simple refrigeration-condensation type recovery process.

Wallace Law Ruled Illegal

By BILL HENDRICK
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled unconstitutional a law devised by Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace to sidestep busing of school pupils to achieve racial balance in classrooms.

U.S. District Court Judge Sam C. Pointer Jr. described the law Friday as nothing more than a "freedom of choice option dressed in different clothing."

He said it conflicts directly with a desegregation plan he approved last September.

The Alabama law gives the parents of school children the right to require school boards to transfer their children to schools other than those they were assigned to if the parents feel the "time or distance of travel is so great as to risk either the health of the children or significantly impinge on the educational process."

In his ruling, Pointer said the statute took away one of the tools needed to establish and maintain a unitary school system because it gave parents an option as to which schools their children would attend.

"Such options have been previously ruled out for the Jefferson County (Birmingham) school system, at least until a unitary system has been in operation for a sufficient length of time to escape the tendency such option would have towards re-establishing a dual system," Pointer's decision said.

When Wallace presented the bill to the legslature in August, he said it was an effort to "make President Nixon carry out his promise" to oppose massive busing.

Pointer's ruling voids a November decision by Judge William Barber of Jefferson County Circuit Court, who ordered the county school board to enroll five pupils in the schools of their choice. The parents of the five pupils had filed suit in Barber's court for transfers for their children under the state law.

Barber's decision was appealed to the federal court by a group of Birmingham blacks and the U.S. Justice Department. Pointer was asked to remove the case from the state court and to vacate Barber's order.

Pointer said the five white children will be allowed to finish the fall term at the predominantly white school they now attend, but by the spring term, they must attend schools designated under the desegregation plan.

Wallace has said the antibusing law borrows language from the U.S. Supreme Court decision which authorized busing as a means of attaining classroom balance.

The high court had provided that an objection to busing had validity when busing risked the health or safety of a child or impinged significantly on the educational process.

Report Was Misunderstanding

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report from Moscow on a possible U.S.-Soviet joint manned space flight is the result of a misunderstanding of a routine statement, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials say.

NASA said Friday wire service stories from Moscow stemmed from misinterpretation of routine progress reports by a joint U.S.-Russian group meeting pursuant to a NASA-Soviet Academy agreement to design compatible spacecraft for astronauts of both countries.

The talks in Moscow started Monday and are expected to last through next Monday.

"The purpose of the present working group session is to continue discussion of technical details of hardware compatibility and of a possible Soviet-American test mission," read a NASA statement.

Morton Inclined To Approve Pipeline Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton says he is convinced, at least so far, that an oil pipeline across Alaska will not endanger the environment and he is inclined to approve the project.

Morton said in an interview, however, that he could not issue construction permits for the pipeline—if that is what the administration finally decides to—until the Interior Department completes a court-required environmental impact statement and satisfies a court injunction blocking federal action.

The statement should be completed by about Jan. 15 for submission to the President's Council on Environmental Quality, said Morton. Then, he said, the Nixon administration would have to decide whether the statement was ready for submission to the U.S. District Court here. Morton estimated it might take the court another three or four months to review the statement before deciding whether the terms of last year's injunction have been satisfied.

Environment groups who oppose the pipeline project have said they might appeal lifting of the injunction if they regard the environmental statement as inadequate. Such an appeal, said Morton, could stall the issuance of permits as much as a year longer.

Seven oil companies in partnership as the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. have applied for Interior Department permits to build the pipeline across federal land in Alaska.

Early last year, when then-Secretary of Interior Walter J. Hickel was on the verge of issuing the permits, the environment groups got the District Court injunction requiring prior preparation of an environmental study.

The study, now nearing completion, had been expected in mid-December, but Morton said its release has been postponed 30 days at the request of Alyeska lawyers.

During a radio interview in Seattle last Thursday, Morton said: "As to the issuance of the permit, it looks as though it will follow very closely behind. I will consult with the President, I will consult with Chairman (Russell E.) Train (of the Council on Environmental Quality) and perhaps with some other officials of government, but we should be ready to issue a permit certainly before the end of January."

In a later interview Morton admitted making the statement but said "it was a mistake."

Completion of the environmental statement by mid-January, he said, "means we can issue or not issue a permit as the case may be.

"I am disposed to move forward with it," Morton said, but "going forward is moving it into the court," not authorizing immediate construction.

"I don't think you could expect the court to handle it in less than three or four months," he added.

The Secretary said his department has completed its analysis of environmental impacts, and "I'm pretty well convinced that this pipeline can be built with minimal damage to the environment if all the stipulations are complied with."

Fire Leaves 500 Homeless

BOSTON (AP) — At least one person was killed and 500 were left homeless today when a four-alarm blaze destroyed an apartment building.

Firemen searched the ruins on the chance that others may have been trapped.

They said that when they arrived, every window and fire escape balcony on the fourth, fifth and sixth floors was filled with people. Firemen rescued them with ladders.

Residents were given shelter in the auditorium of the nearby parochial St. Kevin's Junior High School, in the Roxbury section.

Five Arrested In Base Theft

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The FBI has arrested five men in connection with the theft of several thousand dollars worth of grocery items and other merchandise from Lackland Air Force Base, spokesmen said.

The merchandise was stolen from Lackland's commissary warehouse, the FBI said.

The FBI declined Friday to disclose the value of the stolen property, but an audit taken by Lackland officials indicated some $96,000 in merchandise was missing.

Agents said the investigation is continuing.

The men, ranging in age from 25 to 52, are all from San Antonio.

Snelson Is Governor For Day

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. W.E. Snelson of Midland was sworn in Saturday as "governor for a day," an honor traditionally given to the president pro-tempore of the Senate when both the governor and the lieutenant governor are out of the state.

The Senate president pro tem is the third man in the line of succession for the chief executive's post.

Snelson's wife and four young children were introduced to an applauding and nearly full Senate chamber. A 19-gun salute sounded outside on the capitol grounds.

Snelson signed proclamations commending his district, the 4H Clubs of Texas, the state for its training programs for visually handicapped persons, and expressing the wish that the legislature will appropriate money for the training of paramedical personnel in its medical schools.

A former educator and now owner of an advertising agency, Snelson was elected to the House in 1960 and then to the Senate in 1964.

He lost a close re-election bid in 1966 but returned to the Senate in 1968.

Snelson represents a district larger than 30 of the 50 states in the Union.

Personal Investigators Watching American Lives

He will talk to neighbors, former employers, bankers, the subjects themselves. If he comes up with one ounce of derogatory information he will check with others to affirm it or deny it. If it holds, it and the rest of your profile go into the Wichita branch files of Retail Credit Company, an Atlanta-based concern which controls 1,800 branch offices, 6,000 men like Fred Geist.

It's been a long afternoon in New Haven, Conn. Clem Evangeliste has checked apartment houses one after another in a frustrating pursuit of people who aren't home. The last call of the day is a single dwelling home of a young couple seeking auto insurance. There is no one home. But as he leaves, a young man drives up in a pick-up truck with a small sleep-in cabin built in back. He wears work clothes, a jacket, long hair, He says he is the subject, gives his birth date for confirmation.

The interrogation is routine, Evangeliste checking off the items on the report. He has previously obtained a copy of the subject's arrests for motor vehicle violations, including accidents. Items: Speak English well? Age and sex of children? At home or school? Employer? Kind of business? Time employed? Estimated worth? Estimated income? Is vehicle in poor condition? Business use of vehicle? School, work or depot? Annual mileage? Where is vehicle kept—street or garage? Driver under 25? Driving reputation questionable? Any accidents, fire or theft losses? Business, financial or employment reputation questionable? Personal-family reputation or associates questionable? Home or neighborhood environment questionable? Any driver impaired, physically or mentally? Any driver age 65 or over? Any driver drink to excess?

Then Evangeliste asks, "When was your last accident?" It's a shot in the dark. The young man says it was recently, on a turnpike. "What were the circumstances?"

"I was parked on the side of the road and another car hit me in the rear."

"Were there any charges?"

"Possession of drugs. They found them in my car."

"Did you use drugs?"

"Yeah, but that's over now. I'm in a program and I haven't used any in months."

"Were the charges prosecuted?"

"No, they were nulled. A lawyer had them taken off the books."

Evangeliste and the young man chat about drugs for a while, and finally the investigator takes his leave. The young man was honest about the case. When Evangeliste writes his report he does it in such a way to reflect the honesty, and emphasize that the young man is now in an anti-drug abuse program. It will be up to the insurance underwriter from there.

Clem Evangeliste works for Retail Credit Company also, and retail credit is the giant of the investigation field with $200 million in business a year, most of it in life and auto insurance reports.

Lindsay arrived in the world's largest city after attending the National League of Cities conference in Honolulu. The mayor, who will spend four days here, said he was particularly interested in learning about Japan's strict gun laws.

Fewer Students Taking Part In ROTC Program

By BILL KOSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says fewer college students are taking part in ROTC programs this year than at any time since World War II.

But officials believe a new attractive scholarship program should help provide enough ROTC officers for the proposed all-volunteer Army.

New Pentagon figures released Friday show 83,130 students signed up for Army, Air Force and Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps programs during the current academic year at college campuses.

Even though the anti-military feeling that prevailed on campuses in recent years has faded the total is down from previous years: 109,598 for last year, 155,947 the previous year, and 212,417 during the 1968-69 school year, according to Asst. Secretary of Defense Roger T. Kelley.

Kelley, the Pentagon's top manpower specialist said legislation signed into law by President Nixon Nov. 24 should provide added incentive for attracting the needed number of students to ROTC.

The legislation, which takes effect next year, increases the number of ROTC scholarships and boosts the subsistence allowance.

The number of full scholarships available to the Army and Air Force will be raised from 5,500 to 6,500 for each service. The number allotted to the Navy's quota will be 6,000, an increase of 500.

The value of the scholarships range from $500 to $3,000 a year, depending on the school. Subsistence pay for out-of-pocket expenses for cadets will be doubled from $50 to $100 a month.

At a news conference, Kelley said the enrollment figure is deceiving, and added that the important yardstick is the number of men actually commissioned each year.

While acknowledging the drop in enrollment, he said the armed services are shrinking and will need fewer officers.

"We're optimistic about our ability to provide officers for ROTC in the required number and the required caliber," he said when asked at a news conference if there is concern about reduced enrollments.

The Army, which draws about half its officers from ROTC, expects to commission 12,600 cadets as second lieutenants in June, but will only need 5,200. Officials said the remainder will be assigned to the reserves. Both Air Force and Navy also expect enough new junior officers next year.

At this rate, Kelley said, he is sure the armed forces will be more than able to fill their need for officers after 1973, when the Nixon administration hopes to end draft calls in favor of an all-volunteer force.

80 Articles Duty Free

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Residents on the Mexican side of the U.S. border will be able to buy a list of approximately 80 imported articles duty free on this side of the frontier for the next two months, the Mexican government announced today.

"We have agreed for the present to establish a program for 60 days and with that experience, especially during the Christmas season, we will be able to affirm these lists and quantities," said Gustavo Petricioli, assistant minister of income of the finance ministry.

The list of articles was not made public. But it was believed to include items residents of the border area usually go into the United States to buy. Stores taking advantage of the exemption must stock at least 50 per cent Mexican-made products.

The measure will take effect during the next few days, a government spokesman said.

Elimination of the import tariffs, which raise the prices of some imported articles as much as 10 times, is designed to incorporate Mexicans who live along the border into this country's economy and also to attract U.S. consumers.

Boards All But Halt Inductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inductions have all but been halted this month because local draft boards have been processing men ahead of schedule, Selective Service officials say.

A draft spokesman said Thursday orders to stop inductions are going out to states who have already reached their December quotas. He said the 10,000 men allocated for induction in November and December already had been notified.

The spokesman emphasized the order was not due to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' stay of inductions for Southern California young men. Douglas stayed the drafting until Jan. 6 pending a legal test of the draft extension law.

Special Session

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan called the California Legislature into special session starting Monday after the legislature adjourned its 1971 session today by rejecting the governor's tax increase bill.

The Republican governor branded the Democratic-controlled legislature "almost unprecedented in its irresponsibility."

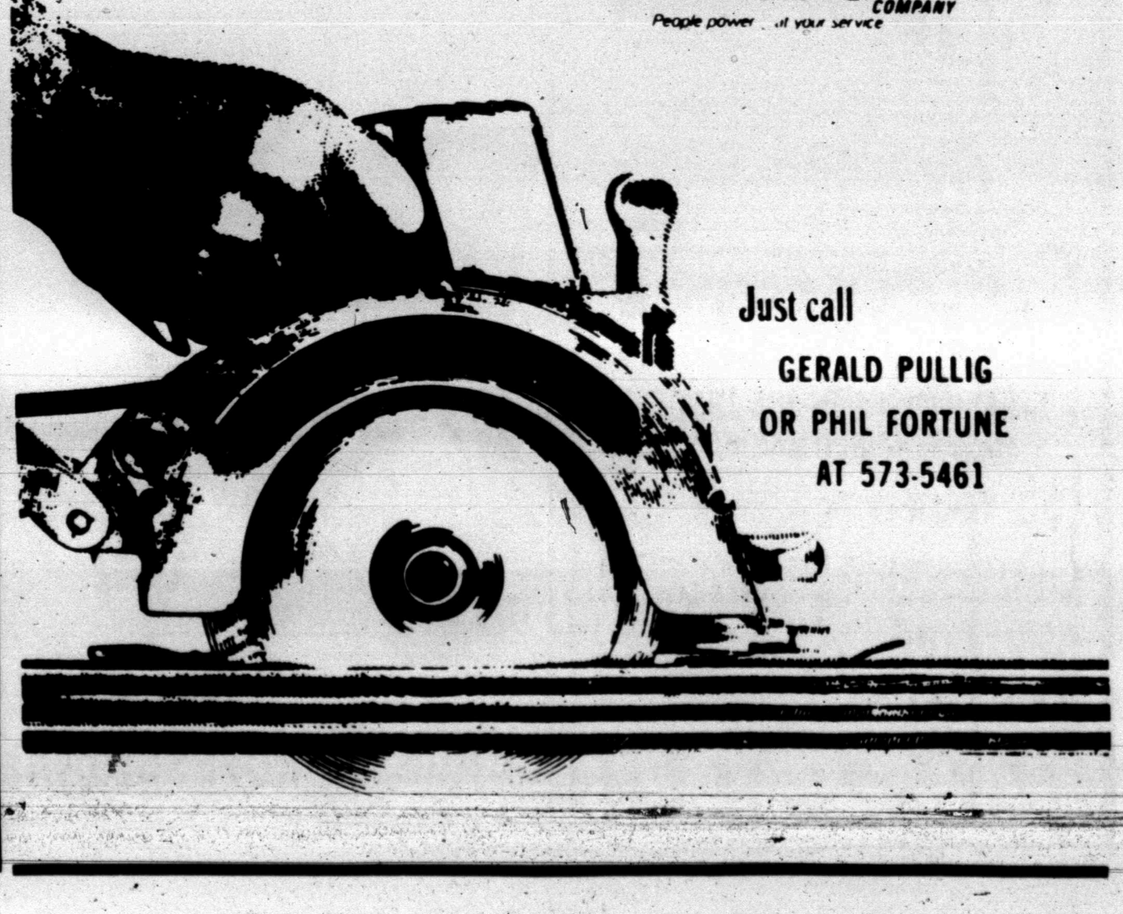

The regular session—longest in California history at 333 days—also rejected a reapportionment measure. The special session will deal only with the state's fiscal crisis: a $310-million budget deficit in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

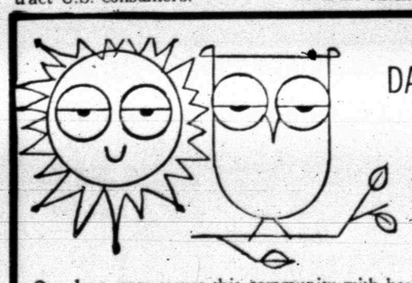

Reagan accused lawmakers of holding his tax bill ransom for his approval of legislative and congressional reapportionment bills—a price the governor wouldn't pay even though his position angered and embarrassed leaders of his own party in the legislature.

Although the 1971 session was of record length, it accomplished only one of its goals: partial reform of the state's multibillion dollar welfare system.

Reagan said adjournment without the tax bill would force his administration on Monday to start seeking outside loans to meet a $200-million cash shortage late this month.

Tot Faces 2 Years In Germ-Free Isolator

HOUSTON (AP) — David is a baby boy just 11 weeks old who faces living the first two years of his life in a germ-free isolator, cut off from the outside air which would bring him death.

David suffers from a severe immunological defect and his body won't produce the antibodies which could fight the germs which inhabit the world.

Doctors at Texas Children's Hospital in the Texas Medical Center revealed Friday the birth of David, only the second to be delivered under steril conditions and placed in a germ-free isolator in the United States and only the sixth such in the world.

[illegible] who handles the baby wears plastic gloves attached to ports in the side of the isolator. All of his food, clothing and other items are sterlized in a cylinder which can be attached to a supply isolator adjoining the unit.

Doctors say that David will have to stay in the germ-free atmosphere for two years before his body can develop its own defenses.

"We are studying the phychological implications very closely," one of the doctors said. "How is the child ever to know the plastic gloves are not mother's hands?"

"As long as the attitude of the person taking care of him is loving, he is not going to know whether it is human skin or latex. It feels about the same," the doctor said.

The parents, various doctors and nurses involved in the case all hold, cuddle and talk with David.

"He is even kissed through the plastic barrier," one doctor said.

The other American baby placed in a germ-free isolator did not have the serious immunological disorder however, it was discovered after precautions were made.

Because David's inability to fight infections is hereditary and because his parents had already lost an older brother at age seven months to the same disorder preperations were made. The family asked that their names not be released.

The specialists here said the baby was making enough progress so that he was allowed to go home for Thanksgiving, inside his portable isolator [illegible] probably will be allowed to leave the hospital for part of Christmas and New Years, they said.

Since the child is their first experience with sterile delivery and the use of the protective isolator here, the pediatricians are not sure how long he may have to remain in the unit.

They said based on one experience with immune deficient twins in Germany that David will need a germ-free environment for perhaps two years.

"Our big problem," one of the pediatricians said, "is that we have no experimental (animal) model of this disease. We don't know exactly what the basis of the defect is, so we can't induce an identical situation in an animal."

David's body is unable to manufacture antibodies due to an inadequate supply of white blood cells. Without antibodies to fight the hundreds of germs he probably wouldn't stand a chance of surviving in the usual germ-free atmosphere.

David was delivered Sept. 21 under sterile conditions by cae sarean section and was placed immediately into the protective unit.

Four other such germ-free deliveries have been reported outside the United States—two in England and two in The Netherlands.

While the German twins were not delivered in a sterile environment they were placed in protective ioslators immediately after birth.

The German youngsters gradually developed their immune capacities and now are well, the Baylor team said. Identities of the individual doctors were not disclosed due to regulations of the Harris County Medical Society.

The germ-free unit at Texas Children's Hospital is only one of two such systems in this country. The other is at the University of Alabama in Birmingham.

So far, the doctors know only that David does have the same severe problem which killed his brother.

"But we have a glimmer of hope," one said. "He is able to make a little bit of antibody. This makes us think he is like the German babies who did have a little bit of immunity and did outgrow the disease."

Without the germ-free isolator, no one on the Baylor team thought David had much of a chance.

With it, though, they are optimistic that he will survive the crucial first years of his life.

Political Contrast

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — There was a study in political contrasts in Wichita Friday night.

Sedgwick County Republicans paid $100 a plate for a beef dinner and a speech by Kansas Sen. Robert Dole, the GOP national chairman.

In another part of the city, about 800 democrats paid $1.25 for ham and beans and soup. And then the scheduled speaker didn't show up.

State Atty. Gen. Vern Miller was tied up in "a criminal investigation" and could not attend the dinner. Sedgwick County Sheriff Johnny Darr, one of the sponsors, also missed the meal because of the investigation.

However Mrs. Virginia Docking, mother of Gov. Robert Docking, did arrive and mingled with as many guests as possible.

Fund Release Is Urged

DALLAS (AP) — The National Association for Mental Health has approved a resolution urging President Nixon to release funds already authorized and appropriated for continued development in community mental health centers.

The action came Friday at the close of the association's annual meeting.

Congress was commended in the resolution for "reaffirming its commitment to the concept of community mental health centers, as reflected in the addition of $10 million for children's services, $30.5 million for staffing funds and $15 million for construction funds in the current NIMH (National Institute of Mental Health) budget...."

Discussion Of Predator Control Set

Sheep and goat producers in Scurry County are encouraged to attend one of the upcoming meetings regarding a referendum on predator control proposed by the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association.

The meeting schedule is as follows: Dec. 13, Community Room of the First National Bank, Uvalde; Dec. 14, Rainbow Room of the Stephenville Savings and Loan Association, Stephenville; Dec. 15, District Court Room, Fort Stockton; Dec. 16, University Center, San Angelo State University, San Angelo; and Dec. 17, County Court Room, Fredericksburg. All meetings will begin at 2 p.m.

The meetings will be a joint venture by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the TSGRA, according to County Agricultural Agent Billy Roach. The role of the Extension Service is to explain the provisions of the Texas Agricultural Check-off Act of 1969. This will be done by John J. Seibert, Extension economist at Texas A&M University.

The district agricultural agent in each of the respective Extension districts will preside at the meeting and will explain Extension's educational responsibility as related to the check-off act. A representative of the TSGRA will explain the association's proposed referendum.

The proposed referendum will involve sheep and goat producers in 73 counties in the far west and west central areas of the state. These counties have 16,704 producers and 5,578,000 head of sheep and goats. According to the TSGRA, this is 81 percent of the producers and 97 percent of all the sheep and goats in the state.

If the State Commissioner of Agriculture certifies that the referendum be conducted, an election will be conducted by mail ballot next spring. A board of directors will also be elected at that time. If the referendum passes, maximum deductions will be 20 cents a head for sheep and 10 cents a head for goats. The assessment will be made on all animals coming off of pasture or producer-owned lambs going into feedlots.

Young, who is scheduled to land on the moon during the Apollo 16 mission in March, was wed to the former Susy Feldman in quiet ceremonies in Acapulco, Mexico. She works for TRW, Inc., here.

In interviews on Wednesday, Young told newsmen he was divorced five months ago from his first wife, Barbara.

Cavaliers Lose Game On Foul

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Calling time out was merely a technicality.

But, to the chagrin of the Cleveland Cavaliers, it was also a technical foul.

For when the Cavs, tied 90-90 with Buffalo and only four seconds remaining in the game, called time out, they forgot they didn't have any left.

And, under National Basketball Association rules, when a team does such things, it is slapped with a technical.

So Walt Hazzard calmly stepped to the foul line and shot the penalty basket that gave the Braves a 91-90 victory Friday night and snapped the Cavaliers' winning streak at five games.

In Friday night's other NBA action, Chicago walloped the New York Knicks 122-96, Milwaukee crushed Cincinnati 120-82, Los Angeles pounded Philadelphia 131-116, Detroit edged Houston 113-112, Seattle beat Baltimore 117-106 and Portland overpowered Golden State 115-107.

In American Basketball Association play Memphis turned back Utah 117-114 in overtime, the New York Nets defeated Carolina 134-122, the Virginia Squires upended the Indiana Pacers 128-121 in overtime and the Kentucky Colonels dumped the Dallas Chaparrals 105-91.

Buffalo failed to score a field goal until midway in the first period and trailed virtually throughout the game before Bob Kauffman, the game's leading scorer with 23 points, tapped in a rebound to tie it and set the stage for the Cavaliers' crucial miscalculation.

The Bulls, spoiling for a return match since losing to New York by a single point last Saturday night, made the most of it as they went on a rampage in the third period to open an unsurmountable 87-59 lead. Bob Love, with 29 points, led Chicago, which won its 12th game in 13.

Kareem Jabbar, Milwaukee's brilliant 7-foot-2 center, was home with a case of the flu, but the rest of the Bucks bugged the Royals without him. Bob Dandridge led their balanced scoring attack with 25 points as the Bucks cruised to a 60-42 halftime edge and coasted home.

The Lakers, moving within four victories of the all-time NBA winning streak, took No. 16 as they rallied after being down by as many as 17 points in the third period, Jim McMillian, Jerry West and Gail Goodrich combined for 101 points against the 76ers with McMillian hitting a career-high 41.

The Pistons, with Erwin Mueller taking over in the third period for injured Bob Lanier and tossing in 16 points, snapped a five-game losing spin by turning back the Rockets, led by Elvin Hayes' game-high 35 points.

Spencer Haywood scored 35 for the Super Sonics, 2 of them in the second half as Seattle pulled away from a 52-52 halftime tie to send the Bullets to their third successive loss.

Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks combined for 66 points as the Trail Blazers smothered a fourth-quarter Warriors rally that narrowed a 20-point Portland advantage to only two points. A pair of free throws by Wicks and two buckets by Gary Gregor sealed the triumph for Portland.

DEFENSIVE MANEUVER—The Snyder Bengal's Richard Gorman (43) and Tim Jones (23) try to tie up Lubbock High's Salazar (30) during the first round of the B-Team basketball tournament here Friday night. Also in on the action are Lubbock's Harjes (34) and Frant (44) and an unidentified Bengal (right). Snyder won 54-42 and met Abilene Cooper in the second round Saturday morning.

NY Giants Tackle Tough Redskins

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

San Francisco plays "holdon" to Kansas City's "catchup" while a raft of other clubs play "tune-up" this weekend as the National Football League continues its headlong rush toward the playoffs.

The 49ers, with a half-game lead over Los Angeles in the National Conference West, will be trying to preserve or improve the margin in Monday night's nationally televised (ABC, 9 p.m., EST) contest.

But San Francisco will be facing a stern challenge from the invading Chiefs, still hot on the trail of the Oakland Raiders, who lead the American Conference West, also by a slim half game.

Sunday's games have New Orleans at Los Angeles, Buffalo at Baltimore, Miami at New England, Oakland at Atlanta, Minnesota at San Diego, Philadelphia at Detroit, Cincinnati at Cleveland, Pittsburgh at Houston, the New York Giants at Washington, Chicago at Denver and Green Bay at St. Louis.

In Saturday's nationally televised (NBC, 4 p.m., EST) contest, the New York Jets, with Joe Namath back in the starting lineup, battled the NFC East-leading Dallas Cowboys.

The 49ers-Chiefs battle promises to be a high-scoring affair between well-balanced clubs. San Francisco's John Brodie will be aiming his aerials at Gene Washington, and while Vic Washington will be teaming with Ken Willard at running back.

The Rams, hoping to regain the NFC West lead, will be out to avenge their season-opening 24-20 loss to the Saints who, with a victory would raise their record to 5-5-2, insuring them of their best record since entering the league in 1967. They were 5-9 two years ago.

Buffalo finally won a game—its first after 10 straight setbacks this season and 17 winless games extending through last year—but now faces the AFC's strongest defensive club, the Colts, who lambasted the Bills 43-0 eight weeks ago and will be tuning up for next Saturday's divisional showdown with Miami.

The Dolphins, shooting for nine victories in a row, are also looking for a repeat of their first meeting with New England.

The Raiders and Falcons are both coming off losses a week ago and, while Oakland tries to maintain its pace in the AFC West, Atlanta clings to its slim hopes for an NFC West title.

Minnesota and Detroit will also be tuning up for their NFC Central showdown next Saturday. The Vikings' defense, the best in the conference, will be trying to shut down the Chargers' potent passing game.

The Bengals, with a 4-7 AFC Central mark, still harbor hopes of repeating as divisional champion and can take a major step toward that goal by knocking off the front-running Browns.

Washington will apparently be without Sonny Jurgensen again, giving Billy Kilmer the task of repeating the Redskins' 30-3 triump against the Giants in the Clubs' first meeting.

Denver shut out San Diego a week ago, and now sends its defensive unit against the Bears, who haven't scored a touchdown in two weeks.

Houston Astros Acquire San Diego Southpaw

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — After a zany four days of trades involving 43 players, what more could happen at the winter baseball meetings?

How about some more trades?

Baseball's moguls wound up a whacky week of swapping, exchanging 10 players in 10 minutes Friday, and capped the most prolific five days of dealing in the sports history.

The big name in the latest series of deals was Dave Roberts, San Diego's splendid southpaw, who moved to the Houston Astros for three minor league players—pitchers Bill Grief and Mark Schaeffer and infielder Derrel Thomas.

In other deals—all announced in lightning fashion interrupting commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who was talking to the press about technicalities:

The Minnesota Twins sent relief pitcher Tom Hall to Cincinnati for reliever Wayne Granger, then the Milwaukee Brewers traded center fielder Jose Cardenal to the Chicago Cubs for pitchers Jim Colborn and Earl Stephenson and center fielder Brock Davis.

The latest binge topped a week of exploding deals in which 53 players traded uniforms in 15 trades involving 18 teams.

Roberts appeared to be a steal for the Astros, who made another big deal last Monday to highlight the first day's activity.

In Roberts, Houston gets the National League's No. 2 earned run average pitcher. The 27year-old left-hander ranked behind New York's Tom Seaver with a 2.10 earned run average and had a 14-17 record for one of the worst clubs in baseball.

"We feel we got one of the best pitchers in baseball," said Spec Richardson, the Astros' general manager.

"If Roberts pitches like he did last year, I can see him adding many victories to our team."

The player coveted by the Padres in the four-player deal was Thomas, said Manager Preston Gomez, whose club has long been in the market for a quality infielder.

The switch-hitting Thomas, only 20 years old, hit .286 at Oklahoma City in the American Association last season.

Grief was 8-9 with a 3.61 earned run average and Schaeffer had a 2-7 mark and 5.79, both at Oklahoma City.

Granger, one of the key relievers in Cincinnati's 1970 pennant-winning season, had a 7-6 mark with Twins.

It was pure justice that General Manager Frank Lane of the Brewers completed the final deal of the hectic week. One of the game's big trade-producers, Lane just last October completed a 10-man swap in the World Series.

Who was the key man in Lane's deal Friday?

"All three," said the 70-year-old boss.

Davis, a backup center fielder, and Colborn saw some action for the Cubs last season. Lane said they'd probably get a shot with the Brewers while Stephenson will be sent to the club's minor league system.

The annual meetings concluded Friday as the National and American leagues held a joint session.

Out of that meeting, Kuhn presented some new information to the baseball writers, despite being interrupted two times by the trade announcements.

Johnson School Gets Grant

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs has a $195,000 grant from the Ford Foundation to support specific programs during the early stages of the school's development.

In operation only slightly more than one year, the LBJ School on the University of Texas Campus prepares graduate students for a wide range of policy roles in public service.

The foundation's grant, similar to public affairs schools at the University of California at Berkeley and at Harvard, will extend from the fall of 1971 through the spring of 1973.

Preliminary plans for the LBJ School will provide partial support for two groups of personnel:

—Nine faculty members required to conduct three interdisciplinary research seminars in each of the two years.

—Four senior research associates for the Bureau of Government Research as it embarks on plans to develop a substantial volume of user-paid contract research projects.

In addition, the Ford Foundation grant will help cover some editorial, publication, secretarial, computer-time, student travel and other expenses associated with the school's activities.

Now with 55 students, the LBJ School expects to reach its maximum enrollment of 200 in four years, and it is now in process of expanding the programs, faculty and staff.

Both Dean John A. Gronouski and Associate Dean Alexander Clark hailed the grant as coming at a "critical time" in the school's development.

"The Ford Foundation grant," Dean Gronouski said, "supplements state appropriations and thereby provides for a fuller realization of our plans and objectives."

Cold Continues Across Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The low pressure system that unleashed the first winter storm on the Southeast moved out into the Atlantic late Friday night and gradual clearing and continued cold was expected to follow today.

Snow, freezing rain and sleet pelted most of the northern reaches of the southeastern states Friday, and heavy rains fell on southern portions.

Accumulations of snow and sleet remained in northeastern Georgia, with as much as five inches of snow reported in many areas. Ice caused extensive damage to power lines in north Georgia towns and prompted Georgia Power Co. to rush 100 additional linemen into Augusta to help restore power.

Near blizzard conditions dumped the heaviest snow on record for this early in the year on upper portions of South Carolina and sleet caused widespread isruptions of power. Almost a foot of snow was reported. Gusting winds created hazardous driving conditions.

The North Carolina mountains were blanketed with as much as 17 inches of snow and at least five traffic fatalities were blamed on icy roads.

Several fatal accidents were blamed on icy roads in Tennessee and northeastern Alabama. Virtually all major highways in the northern portions of East Tennessee were blocked by stalled vehicles Friday.

Schools were closed Friday in areas of north Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina because of the weather.

The same low pressure system that chilled portions of the Southeast with a wintry blast unleashed violent thunderstorms in southwest Florida, wrecking a number of house trailers, uprooting trees and causing power failures in the Sarasota area. A few injuries were reported, none serious.

Meanwhile, light rain and freezing drizzle chilled the Great Plains from the Dakotas to northwest Texas and parts of the Rockies from central Arizona to Oregon.

Travel warnings were issued in northwest Texas, Oklahoma and in portions of Kansas because of foggy conditions and light snow. Warnings also were issued in eastern Nevada, Colorado, Utah and Arizona due to locally heavy snow.

Scattered light rain fell in the Pacific coast states, while cold winds blew occasional snow across most of the New England area.

Temperatures ranged from zero at Butte, Mont., to 76 at Key West, Fla.

Dallas Plumbers Get Raise

DALLAS(AP)—President Nixon's Construction Industry Stabilization Committee has approved a second wage increase for Dallas plumbers of 26 cents an hour, retroactive to Nov. 1.

The committee notification was mailed to plumber contractors before local labor leaders complained verbally and then sent a protest to Nixon and George Meany, AFL-CIO president, this week.

Earlier, area sheet metal contractors were given permission by the wage committee to give their workers a 40-cent wage increase that had been negotiated as the first increase in a new contract.

Still awaiting approval are raises for union iron workers, who had a 40-cent hike due Oct. 1; glaziers, 35 cents due Sept. 1, and floor coverers, 30 cents due Aug. 25.

A spokesman for the North Texas Contractors Association said wage increases for these three groups were scheduled for review Friday by the wage committee in Washington.

Tricia Makes NY Social Register

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon's daughter Tricia is a new listing in the New York Social Register, by virtue of her marriage to Edward Finch Cox of New York.

Cox, a law student at Harvard, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Cox of New York, also listed in the 1972 edition of the Social Register issued Friday.

Tricia is also listed in the Washington Social Register, since the occupants of the White House always appear there.

Another new name in the 1972 New York Register is Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, the former Pamela Digby Churchill Hayward. She and Harriman, former governor of New York and U.S. ambassador to Britain and Russia, were married Sept. 27.

Wide Tax Range

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state reports a range of $660 in the amount of local property tax revenue being spent per child, with the low of $30 in Wolfe County in Appalachia and the high $696 in Anchorage near Louisville.

AF Low-Level Flying Routes Are Announced

The world wide commitments of the 516th Tactical Airlift Wing (TAW), Dyess AFB, require continuous low level flying training. The highest possible degree of proficiency must be maintained and the 516th TAW aircrews must be current in all modes of aerial delivery. As a result, C-130 Hercules and C-74 Caribou aircraft are flown at low-level altitudes over the 'big country" on a daily basis.

These low-level flights may be scheduled between 8 a.m. and midnight, Monday through Friday, and less frequently on weekends. Daylight missions are flown at an altitude of 500 feet above the terrain while night low level activities are conducted at least 1,000 feet above any obstacle, man made or geographic, within three miles of prescribed track of the aircraft. Airspeeds will vary from 115 to 290 miles per hour.

All flights are made along specific routes which are approved by Tactical Air Command. Minimum distrubances of farms, ranches and communities is the primary consideration in selecting low level routes. Towns, local airports, resorts, hatcheries, and stocker pens are avoided when planning the routes and will not be overflown by C-130 and C-74 Aircraft under any normal circumstance. 516th officials emphasized that, even though training must be conducted at low level and high airspeed in order to be realistic, all possible precautions are taken to prevent disruption of local agriculture and community activities.

These training flights occur over the following counties: Knox, Haskell, Stonewall, Throckmorton, Shackelford, Bayor, Garza, Scurry, Fisher, Jones, Stephens, Mitchell, Nolan, Taylor, Callahan, Eastland, Coke, Runnels, Coleman, Brown and Tom Green.

Center To Help Ex-Convicts

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state's only treatment center to help former convicts return to society, Dismas House at Louisville, reports success in 75 per cent of its cases. It began operating more than a year ago.

FOR OCCULT STUDIES

AUM Seeking Accreditation

By TIM KLASS
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — The Aquarian University of Maryland—AUM—may be the first state-accredited school of esoteric arts and sciences in the country.

Robert Hieronimus, one of the school's founders, sees the project as part of an educational guerrilla struggle to gain acceptance for occult studies as a legitimate academic endeavor. In the meantime, he's willing to make some concessions to the Establishment.

"We can't call it the Aquarian University of Maryland," he said, citing official objections to the use of the term "university." Instead, the name is being changed to the initials AUM, a Hindu chant which means "One with God."

"We want it (accreditation) to infiltrate the other system," said Hieronimus, 27, a Baltimore artist known for splashing a profusion of occult symbols over walls, cars and human bodies.

He said the commune which provides AUM's facilities also opened a nursery in October, the second phase of "a cradle-to-grave educational system" ranging from yoga to Jung.

"They (the state Department of Education) think that accreditation is possible by February," Hieronimus said.

"I don't quite believe that, but with the astrological chart we've chosen, it's quite a possibility."

The school was incorporated at 4:59 p.m., Jan. 31, 1971, because astrologer Bradley Parker of Annapolis, Md., said the positions of the stars and planets at that time describe "public education along astrological and spiritual lines."

Dr. H. David Reese, an accreditation official in the Maryland Department of Education, said if AUM is "merely an institution which is going to have classes" without granting a certificate or degree, "that (state approval) could happen anytime." Reese said it would be up to other colleges and universities whether they would accept courses taken at AUM for credit under such an arrangement.

"Yoga and astrology are the two biggest courses," Hieronimus said, while indicating that spiritual meditation is expected of the more serious students.

"We're trying to teach man to look within to find answers," he said. "We live what we believe, and by raising our own consciousness we help others raise theirs," said the artist, one of about 12 members of the commune Savitria.

The three-year-old spiritual group rents a 3½-acre estate in a pleasant, wooded section of Baltimore near Pimlico Race Track and less than 15 minutes from the downtown area. Relations with neighbors and local officials are good, according to Hieronimus, who recently designed a campaign poster showing Aquarius, the water-bearer, pouring from his jug the name of William Donald Schaefer, a Democrat recently elected mayor of Baltimore.

Savitria, which means "house of the sun" in Sanskrit, occupies a refurbished, 60-year-old mansion with 27 rooms and provides a converted carriage house for AUM. Hieronimus, his wife Vicky and their infant son Plato live on the top floor. The bottom is given to the school coordinator's office and classrooms.

A large meditation room Hieronimus said would accommodate 85 persons consists of a circle of three stuffed couches and several purple school desks and a variety of cushions forming a smaller circle inside.

He said one of the biggest problems is getting younger students, those 18-29 years old, to view occult studies as a serious intellectual challenge rather than an academic plaything.

Courses range from numerology, tarot, Kaballah, extrasensory perception and the "lost continents" of Atlantis and Lemuria to more conventionally accepted courses such as Jungian psychology, Eastern religions and 19th century existentialism.

Esoteric studies were included in the Baltimore Free University in early 1970, but a split between spiritual and activist elements led to separate Aquarian University classes the following summer with an enrollment of about 200 and fees of $3 for registration and $2 per course.

Ghost Fleet Asleep With Its Memories

BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — Out in the mists of Puget Sound the ghost fleet, home from war, sleeps with its memories.

Veterans of sea battles that have reddened American history, they are mothballed, technically. But actually they are dead, or dying, robbed even of the gender "she" men have always given the vessels that carried them to sea.

Armed with nothing more lethal than the cutlery in their galleys, the cocooned warships at the naval base here are referred to only by name; sexless, graying survivors waiting for death. Only their names will live.

The battleships, last of their breed, dinosaurs of the sea: Missouri, where the savage war that began for the United States 30 years ago at Pearl Harbor was finally to end; New Jersey, mothballed a second time after duty in Vietnam.

The carriers: Hornet, an ancient name in the Navy, she picked up an Apollo crew once but now lies flightless, spent and hulking at the dock; Bonne Homme Richard, a name written in blood by John Paul Jones.

And the drones, the faceless trekkers that transported the troops to Iwo and Leyte and Okinawa, the cargo vessels that plied back and forth from Tedium to Boredom with their homely cargoes of shoes and C-rations and toilet paper.

Home now, alone, shackled to the shore, their ports welded shut like blind eyes. The stripped masts of the ranked destroyers stand above them like crosses in a graveyard marking the end of a ship's core, her soul.

The fir trees along the shore stand mute sentinel as though in respect, while an experimental hydrofoil, the new Navy, flaunts her youth in a feathery wake past the clustered hulks. Even the ferry, threading its way through the islands from Seattle, seems to flout her freedom at the fleet, moored so far from the sea, its very vitals cannibalized by the shipyard workers searching for parts to repair the ships of the living Navy.

The yard rings with the din of ship's work, but the waterfront where the mothballed ships lie chained and warped to each other is still, with the melancholy of a nursing home.

"It's kind of sad," said Capt. Alan Dougall, commander of the 185-man caretaking crew of the 102 ships stored here. "It's as if they were tugging at their lines asking, 'Why can't we go to sea? That's what we were designed for'."

Maybe some will. The Jersey made it, briefly. For years a salt tablet lay symbolically in the watch officer's stand-up desk in the once sweltering engine room, a token gift from the last gang that banked her boilers to those who would one day relight them. But it is chill there, now. Footfalls echo and are gone. So is the tablet, someone's souvenir.

When alive, at sea, a ship is a fugue of sound: the pulse of the engines deep in the ship; the creak of her bulkheads as she powers through a sea; a bosun's pipe and "now hear this" over the squawk box; voices of sailors bound up with their ship on a nation's purpose.

Eyes closed, one's ear imagines. But eyes opened there is no sound, and one looks through one hatchway, and the next and the next and on into empty shadows.

"Are your lips dry yet?" asks Lt. Cmdr. B. R. "Bunny" Love, the fleet's security officer. Dehumidifiers preserve the interiors of the ships that are so tightly sealed they're even dustless.

Love leads the way topside. The salt air has a tang. The hatch clangs shut, steel echoing against steel through the ship. Then silence.

"Ghosts? Well, it gets kind of spooky at night," says a sailor padlocking the gate at the foot of the gangway. The ships are checked periodically, and it's a favorite trick to initiate a newcomer by sneaking someone on board to bang on the pipes when he's making his rounds.

During the Korean War, the Navy demothballed ships in 30 to 60 days. But now the enemy of the ghost fleet is time. In the age of missiles, who needs a cruiser, and one pushing 30 years old at that?

But you never know. So the Navy husbands its reserves in graveyards at Vallejo, Calif., San Diego, Norfolk, Philadelphia, Boston, Charleston, Orange, Tex., and Pearl Harbor as well as Bremerton.

Meanwhile, the ships wait, like a forgotten child's toy, a folder in a file cabinet, unremembered except in the minds of the men who knew them.

"Occasional crewmen want to go aboard their old ship," said Dougall. But he tells them the ships are sealed and the Navy doesn't want to incur any liability for letting someone aboard.

Former sailors also write asking for a souvenir such as the steering wheel or a porthole cover, but things like that are turned over to the naval curator in Washington who stores them dutifully away in case posterity ever wants reassurance that, yes, there once was a Quincy or a New Jersey or a Pittsburgh.

"If the ship has teak decks, we even save a couple of pieces of that," Dougall said.

Perhaps the most famous teak of all is the foredeck of Missouri, where Japan signed the surrender. There's a plaque marking the spot, and more than 170,000 visitors a year board the queen of the ghost fleet to view it.

But at night she, too, is alone. Her silhouette is broken only by an alarm light to warn the night watchman if she should suddenly start taking water.

Her huge 16-inch guns, that could throw a shell as far as the snowtops of the Olympic mountains in the distance, are capped and point innocently across the Navy Yard towards the town's business district beyond the gate.

She was due for a trip soon, a tow by tugs a few hundred yards down the shore to drydock for bottom painting. Then back again, to wait her time.

Perhaps because of her history, Missouri will be allowed to live. As a monument, a relic in the attic, but to stride the sea, as in her days of glory?

It's hard to imagine. The ships of Bremerton lie moored to the past.

Just how deeply in the past came up the other day when someone found a pinup in Missouri's forward turret. Some of the younger sailors showed it to Love for identification.

"I couldn't recognize her," he said.

Congresswoman Bella Is Seeking Action

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

The Speaker. Does the gentlewoman from New York desire to be heard?

Mrs. Abzug. Yes, Mr. Speaker.

. . . frequent Congressional Record entry.

"So the Speaker takes my arm and tells me, 'Bella, you have the respect of a lot of the members here.' I said, 'Listen, Carl, I don't want respect. I want action'."

. . . interview with Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — The congresswoman's beat-up sedan rolls down Manhattan's East River Drive past the 59th Street bridge, which disappears into dirty gray smog halfway to Queens.

The city seems grimier than usual. The poisoned air, hunkering down under a temperature inversion, seeps right into the skyline's gently decaying masonry.

But the congresswoman is in a good mood. Slouching under another of her famous floppy-brimmed hats, Bella S. Abzug, easily the most-publicized freshman in the House of Representatives, goes over the morning papers like a playwright scanning opening-night reviews.

There are two mentions in the Times and a separate story in the News. Four radio stations have called for telephone interviews, one of them as she was getting out of bed at 7:30 a.m.

Before the day is out she will give interviews to two street reporters for local radio stations, do most of the talking on a 45-minute live radio program, hold an impromptu news conference after a meeting at police headquarters, and fly to a women's political gathering in Detroit, where there will be more coverage.

"These guys come to me," she says defensively to a newsman in the car. "I don't ask for it." The simple truth of her statement is enough to make publicity-hungry politicians weep.

Publicity has followed Mrs. Abzug since even before she descended on Congress last winter. In less than a year she has become so well known that political humorists give her equal billing with Martha Mitchell, and headline writers refer to her by her first name only. "Bella Bellows" was the head on the News story.

Hers is an irresistible news story. A struggle of titans. In this corner Bella Abzug, daughter of a Russian immigrant butcher, Jewish mother, woman labor lawyer, charter member of the peace movement, defender of women's rights, possessor of a sharp, raspy, Bronx-accented voice that could cut marble. And in the other corner the august, clubby, male-ruled, Southern-dominatedn pro-military House of Representatives. It is as though Carrie Nation had come to life as a politician instead of a prohibitionist, hacking away at hallowed congressional taboos instead of the woodwork in a gin mill.

On her first day in office, Bella wore an "Uppity Women Unite" button, introduced a resolution calling for an end to the Indochina war by July 4, 1971, demanded a seat on the all-male Armed Services Committee to fight the Pentagon from within, and addressed a crowd of fans on the Capitol steps as they yelled, "Give 'em hell, Bella."

Since then she has insulted the House leadership publicly, addressed antiwar demonstrators even as police were preparing to arrest them, and by turns has enraged her enemies and nettled her allies.

By any traditional measure, the House is a lopsided winner. Bella didn't get the Armed Services seat. The Indochina war still goes on, and old men still run the House, occasionally rubbing it in by summarily killing one of Bella's bills without a vote.

But in a perhaps fairer sense, Bella could be said to have fought the House to a draw, because though it has not changed, neither has she.

"Everything that I do I said I was going to do," she says. "You know what I mean? I went out there and I campaigned and I said the Congress needs an activist, needs lots of activists, doesn't need clubhouse politicians."

A clubhouse pol she isn't. She won her first try for public office, unseating 14-year Rep. Leonard Farbstein, himself a clubhouse regular, in the Democratic primary. Then she beat Republican-Liberal Barry Farber, a radio talk show host, in the November election.

Most freshmen quiet down once they get inside the House, and save their rhetoric for their home districts. Not Bella. Once, angered when Speaker Carl Albert killed one of her resolutions on a point of order, she appealed to rank-and-file House members to overrule him, a parliamentary manuever considered so insulting that it hadn't been tried in years, and has not succeeded in decades.

Bella was sore at not being allowed to argue against the point of order. "I wanted to say to him, 'You son-of-a-bitch, you should have allowed me to give my argument even if you're going to rule against me'," she says. Albert's reaction? "He said, 'I didn't realize you wanted to be recognized'," Bella recounts. "I said 'C'mon'!"

Another time, during the May Day antiwar ruckus last spring, Bella and three black congressmen addressed a crowd of demonstrators on the Capitol steps. With Albert's approval and over Bella's protest, police arrested them and hauled all 1,200 off to jail by the busload.

Although a judge later threw out virtually all the charges as baseless, Bella's support of the protest enraged House traditionalists. On the House floor the next day, Rep. Joe D. Waggenner Jr., D-La., said "the participating members of Congress should have been arrested, too." Rep. Robert M. McClory, R-Ill., said, "Those members of this House who supported this mob that came and disgraced our Capitol themselves should answer for bringing this disgrace and humiliation upon this body."

House courtesy dictates that on the floor one addresses even his worst enemy as "the distinguished gentleman from. . . ." To insult the Speaker or suggest that a fellow member ought to be arrested are parliamentary gaffes equivalent to bringing a dog to a funeral.

Jones Is Candidate

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Bill Jones, an independent oil operator and businessman of Odessa, said Friday he is a candidate for the Democratic's party's nomination as lieutenant governor.

He said his slogan would be: "Friends, we pay for it, let's have a voice in it."

Jones told a Capitol news conference he planned to campaign the state in a mobile home trailer telling voters that Texas needs "a clean sweep of public offices" in 1972.

Jones, 53, who said he worked for Gov. Preston Smith in previous campaigns, said he felt present state officials had become "too relaxed in office" and should be replaced. However, he said he would not specifically endorse anyone in the governor's race.

He said he had made a three months tour of the state and "I believe all of these people will vote their convictions in 1972 and destroy the powers of greed and the ivory towers of 'special privilege' that have been built over the years."

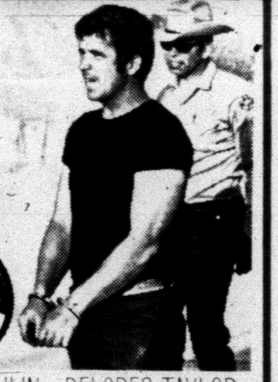

Jones said he believed, "There is a growing awareness of our disastrous course which has made us appear so feeble and helpless that two or three professional politicians presume to think they can control the votes in this state."

Jones said he had $250,000 "pledged and in the bank" to make the race.

Jones is a native of Mills County and presently is president of the A-1 Construction Co., Odessa, an oil field construction firm; an independent oil operator and has real estate interests at Marble Falls and Kingsland in addition to stock holdings in "five or six" insurance companies. He made an unsuccessful race for state agriculture commissioner in x956.

He is a former city councilman of Kermit and was an assistant to the county attorney of Erath County in 1938.

OPERA HOUSE RE-OPENS—The Colorado City Opera House, newly renovated and refurnished, will be re-opened Monday night as the Colorado City Playhouse presents the musical "Pecos West" there. The show is to run five nights with curtain time at 8 each evening.

'Pecos West' To Re-Open Opera House At C-City

COLORADO CITY—The Colorado City Opera House, built in 1899 for touring road shows, will have a grand re-opening Monday night at 8 o'clock when the Colorado City Playhouse presents "Pecos West."

The new show is scheduled to run Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Reservations may be made by mail or by calling 728-3743 in Colorado City. Tickets are $2.50 each and all seats are reserved. Members of the Snyder unit of Ranch Headquarters Association who wish to attend may make reservations by calling Mrs. Wilson Connell at 573-2846 or Mrs. G.A. Parks, Jr., at 573-7108.

The Colorado City Playhouse was organized through the cultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce there and has produced numerous plays including four musicals. Those performances were presented in school auditoriums. In April of 1969 the group obtained from the City of Colorado City a long term lease on the Opera House building, which was at that time a two-story rooming house. Renovation began in May 1969. Partitions and upper and lower floors and windows were removed, leaving only the shell of the original theater. Renovation of the building was done by members of the theater group with the exception of the new roof and installation of the stage curtain. Seating capacity is 160 and the decor is that of an opera house at the turn of the century.

"Pecos West" was written by Macon Sumerlin and Ernest Sublett of Abilene. It is a musical about Judge Roy Bean's "Law West of the Pecos".

Dallas Raid Is Success

DALLAS (AP)—Officers swept across Dallas Friday night in a major drive against heroin dealers.

The raid began with a massive run on Lee Park, where as many as 350 persons were seized. All but 24 were released by midnight. Of those charged, 15 were arrested in the park and nine others were arrested on warrants.

Lt. Gene Taylor, head of the Dallas police narcotics unit, said he had 132 indictments against 80 persons who allegedly had sold heroin and other illegal drugs to four undercover officers working in the field for the past five months.

Police said several pounds of marijuana and some LSD were seized. Some of the illegal drugs, wrapped in plastic bags or in match boxes, were found scattered on the ground, under shrubbery and in trash barrels.

Those picked up in the park were taken before Peace Justice Robert Cole. The ones not in possession of illegal drugs or wanted on other charges were released.

Taylor, who said he told his men to arrest all those in the park, called the raid highly successful.

Most of the park arrests were teen-agers or young adults, about 30 or 40 were girls ranging from age 15 to 18. About 60 to 70 boys ranged from early teens to late 20s.

Police said drugs were found on nine males and two females.

As the 85 detectives, sheriff's deputies, federal agents and uniformed police moved in, people in the area began screaming, "Cops, cops. Get out of here."

A helicopter with a searchlight hovered overhead while the detectives, shotgun-carrying, riot-trained police and their dogs moved through the park.

Taylor said 16 of those named in the inglictments had to be arrested last week after it was learned they had discovered the identity of one of the detectives and reportedly were planning to murder him.

There were no injuries, nor were police pelted with rocks and bottles as has happened in the past.

Feedgrain Shipments Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Total feedgrain shipments by the United States and the four other major exporters increased in the past fiscal year, but this country didn't share in the added exports, officials say.

The Agriculture Department said reduced supplies of corn caused by the Southern Corn Leaf Blight caused U.S. shipments of feedgrains to decline almost 150,000 tons.

The department said that corn exports dropped by 2.8 million tons but that increased shipments of sorghum and barley helped keep the decline at the 150,000 top level. It said the U.S. shipped a total of 19.1 million tonsin feedgrains.

Argentina was the next-highest exporter of feedgrains with 7.3 million tons followed by Canada, Australia and South Africa, the department said.

Canada took the biggest slice from the increased exports, accounting for 2.6 million of the 4.9 million increase. The total exports for the fiscal year was estimated at 32.8 million tons of feedgrains.

Brandt, Pompidou Agree

PARIS (AP)—Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany and French President Georges Pompidou agreed today to deal with the United States in a coordinated manner on monetary and commercial problems.

French spokesman Denis Baudouin told newsmen after the two Brandt-Pompidou discussions that both also hoped that "realistic exchange rates" could be agreed upon soon.

They also expressed hope that immediately after an international monetary accord, the economic and monetary union of Europe would take a big step forward.

In their coming talks with President Nixon, therefore, Brandt and Pompidou "will present an attitude or proposals that are coordinated between them," said Baudouin.

They recommended the central banks of all the Common Market countries, and those who seek to join it, stay in close contact in order to defend the parities which will have been decided upon.

German sources said Brandt told Pompidou Friday that West Germany had no objection to Pompidou acting as spokesma for the six Common Market countries when he meets with Nixon.

They said, however, that no settlement is expected at the Azores meeting, or in a later meeting between the United States and the other nine most wealthy Western nations.

West Germany and France have been arguing about the extent to which the franc and the mark would be revalued against the dollar.

Suit Filed

SHERMAN, Tex. (AP) — A Fannin County couple, Mr. and Mrs. William Chambers, have filed a $200,000 lawsuit in 15th District Court here in connection with the electrocution of Mrs. Chambers' parents and brother.

The suit alleges the father, mother and brother of Mrs. Chambers were electrocuted July 7, 1970 while installing a television antenna at their home in Ambrose, Tex.

The suit claims the Grayson-Collin Electric Cooperative of Van Alstyne was negligent in installing power lines at the home.

Air Quality Is Checked By Texas Tech Monitor

LUBBOCK—An experimental air quality monitoring station has been set up on the campus of Texas Tech University by the Air Pollution Control Services division of the Texas State Department of Health.

According to Dr. Duane Johnson, environmental health specialist with the state health department, the portable station is a prototype being used to equip similar monitoring stations for measuring air quality in every major urban area in the entire state.

"Once all these monitoring stations are set up," said Dr. Johnson, "we will be able to gather scientifically accurate data concerning levels of air pollution in each particular city. This, in turn, will enable us to more effectively determine what can be done to improve air quality."

He explained that the monitoring stations will thus serve as "yardsticks" to measure existing levels of air pollution as well as to evaluate subsequent efforts made to remedy poor air quality conditions.

Dr. Johnson said much of the equipment being tested has only recently been developed and is of the latest design available. Texas is a leader among the states in environmental quality control, and we want to keep it that way," he said. "For this reason, we are striving to develop the best possible methods and equipment for environmental quality testing and improvement such as in this air quality monitoring station."

The prototype station will remain on campus through Tuesday (Dec. 7). It is situated behind the Texas Tech creamery building on campus across from the Speech Building and east of the Agricultural Engineering Building.

"We want everyone to see what Texas is doing in the area of environmental quality control," said Dr. Johnson. "All students, faculty members and the general public are invited to personally visit the station and view the equipment."

He added that interested persons may visit the station any time on Sunday (Dec.5) as well as on Monday and Tuesday.

Chemistry Award Is Presented

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Dr. Bruno Zwolinski, director of the Thermodynamics Research Center at Texas A&M, has received the $1,000 Southwest regional award of the American Chemical Society.

The award was presented Friday, the final day of the society's 27th annual Southwest regional meeting.

Zwolinski was honored for "meritorious contributions to the advancement of chemistry." He has authored more than 200 technical publications.

Public Not Taking Vaccine

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The National Center for Diseases Control says the public does not seem to be taking advantage of recently introduced measles vaccines.

Cases of measles are up 225 per cent from 1967-68, when the vaccines were first made available on a large scale, the centersaid Friday.

"Many epidemiologic investigations have shown that the overwhelming majority of the cases this year occurred in unvaccinated children," a center report said.

During the 1970-71 disease reporting year, it said, there were 77,682 measles cases in the United States—up 73.8 per cent over the previous year.

Duffy Daugherty is in his 18th season as Michigan State football coach.

Stubblefield, Reeder Exchange Wedding Vows

MRS. RONALD RAY REEDER

Miss Lee Ellen Stubblefield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester L. Stubblefield, Brownwood and Ronald Ray Reeder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reeder of Fluvanna, exchanged marriage vows November 27, 1971 at 4:00 p.m.

The Rev. Skip Blancett, brother-in-law of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony in the First Baptist Church. The altar was centered with a basket of white gladiola and chrysanthemums flanked on each side with Kenta palms. Apricot satin bows entwined with greenery marked the family pews.

Miss Claydene Anglin, organist, accompanied Mrs. Candi Morris who sang "A Time For Us" and "Whither Thou Goest".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a slim line empire organza gown with a high neck and long sleeves with cuffs. Vertical bands of lace extended from shoulder to hemline. Lace bands were repeated on neckline, cuffs and hemline. The cathedral length lace edged mantilla was topped with lace petals centered with organza rosettes, accented with seed pearls designed and made by the bride's mother.

She carried a white Bible topped with a Japhet orchid and white Elegance carnations.

Mrs. Gayle Blancett was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a mint green alaskine dress with an empire waistline, short sleeves and a chapel length train. Her picture hat was banded with green velvet ribbon with streamers. She carried a bouquet of apricot colored Tropicana roses.

The bride's mother wore an ivory knit crepe dress with gold accessories. The groom's mother wore beige embossed knit with beige accessories. Bride's grandmother, Mrs. Polk Lankford of Vernon, wore a green knit suit with coordinating accessories. Their corsages were of Tropicana roses.

Steve Duagherty of Fluvanna served as best man. Jim Woods, brother-in-law of the groom, and Jerry Stubblefield, brother of the bride, served as ushers.

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table, laid in white satin was centered with a silver candlelabra with a bouquet of apricot Tropicana roses at the base. Other appointments were of silver and crystal.

The tiered cake which was topped with a cluster of apricot roses was served by Leigh Ann Barr. Mary Lou Harris of San Angelo served lime punch. They were assisted by Connie Reeder, sister of the groom, Patricia Nunn of Beeville presided at the bride's book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will reside at 1915 Coleman, Apt. 1, Snyder, Texas. For going away the bride chose a flared skirt and matching vest of beige velvet with a cream colored satin blouse. She wore the Japhet orchid from her wedding bouquet.

A 1969 graduate of Brownwood High School, the bride attended Howard Payne College and Angelo State University. Her husband attended Angelo State University and is currently employed with Ritz-Craft in Snyder.

The bride was feted with a miscellaneous shower in the home of Mrs. Bob Newton, 1708 Broadmoor Drive. Hostess for the occasion was Debbie Kelsey. Mrs. Ernest Morris was the hostess for a kitchen shower honoring the bride. Another shower for the bride was held in the Fluvanna Community Center. The bride's aunt, Mrs. Robert Ator, entertained with a rice bag party.

Make A Mincemeat Wreath For Your Holiday Coffee

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

MORNING COFFEE
Scrambled Eggs and Bacon
Mincemeat Wreaths
Fruit Cup Beverage

MINCEMEAT WREATHS

Almonds go into the dough and are also used for the decoration.

1 package (13¾ ounces) hot roll mix
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup diced roasted almonds
2 cups prepared mincemeat
Melted butter
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
Dash of salt
1½ tablespoons milk
¼ cup mixed diced candied fruits

Prepare hot roll mix as package directs, adding granulated sugar, lemon rind and ¼ cup of the almonds. When dough has risen to double in volume, turn out onto lightly floured smooth surface. Divide in half and roll each half into a 14 by 8 inch strip. Spread mincemeat onto both strips. Starting from long side, roll each jelly-roll fashion, then shape into ring and seal ends together by pinching with fingers. Brush tops with melted butter. Let rise. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for about 25 minutes. Cool about 10 minutes. Combine confectioners' sugar, salt and milk and spread over "wreaths." Decorate with remaining almonds and fruits.

Raising Quads Is More Fun

DALLAS (AP) — Raising quadruplets is four times the fun of raising one child, says Mrs. Clifford Ward, whose quads were born here last May 1.

"If you are going to have children, I've found it much more interesting and enjoyable to raise them in multiples, and I've tried it both ways," she says.

Before she gave birth to two sons and two daughters last spring, Mrs. Ward had a son and a daughter.

Poem About Christmas

THE NIGHT OF THE CHILD. By Luise Putcamp Jr. Word Books, Waco. $1.50.

Luise Putcamp Jr., a former Texan now living in Connecticut, will be remembered well by many as the author of last year's Christmas story, "The Christmas Carol Miracle."

The book had a good sale and was published by hundreds of newspapers as The Associated Press' Christmas story.

Her new book, published just as the holidays [illegible], is very different.

It is a poem about Christmas, designed to be read by individuals, by families, or by other groups including Sunday School classes. Music being written now will turn it into a cantata.

Miss Putcamp also has published "Sonnets for the Survivors and other Poems."

Although no longer a Texas resident, Miss Putcamp considers the state a sort of home. She graduated from high school in Phoenix but shortly thereafter came to Texas, spending several years there, largely in Dallas.

Her husband, Robert H. Johnson Jr., is a former Associated Press Texas chief of bureau and now is general sports editor for the AP, stationed in the New York general headquarters. She is former book editor for the Dallas Times Herald and copy editor for the Dallas News.

The new book actually was begun in Salt Lake City when her husband was chief of bureau there 14 years ago. It has had a remarkably good advance sale.—The AP.

A Story Of East Texas

IT REALLY HAPPENED IN EAST TEXAS. By Robert M. Hayes. Branch-Smith, Inc., Fort Worth. $4.95.

If anyone knows East Texas, it must be Bob Hayes. He estimates he has travelled 750,000 miles in that region looking for stories as staff writer-correspondent for the Dallas Morning News.

In this new book he has distilled all the color and fun of this vast region into short, crisp stories.

Some of them have been told before—in fact all of them. But it is Hayes' storytelling art that make them a new joy.

A large number of them are "inside" stories-like the time a traveling president had a stand-in imitate him so the president could eat breakfast.

MR. AND MRS. BILLY SULLENGER

Blocker, Sullenger Wed In Double Ring Ceremony

The home of the groom's parents was the setting for the wedding of Dolores Ann Blocker and Billy Jay Sullenger, Thursday, Nov. 25 at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard (Ed) Blocker of Rt. 1, Snyder. The groom is the son of Mrs. G.K. Fambro and the late Jim L. Sullenger Jr. of Snyder.

Rev. James Zedlitz, minister of the United Pentecostal Church performed the double ring ceremony before a votive candelabra entwined with English Ivy flanked by baskets of white mums.

Traditional wedding music was played before and during the wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white street length bridal gown covered with lace. A crown of lace and pearls held her shoulder length veil.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations entwined with pearlized orange blossom leaves on a pearl covered white Bible.

Miss LaDonna Blocker served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a pale blue dress, a gift to the bride on her thirteenth birthday, and a small blue headpiece. She carried a bouquet of blue carnations.

Alfred Smith of Waco, a former Snyder resident, and cousin of the groom served as best man.

The bride carried out the tradition of something old, a Bible belonging to Mrs. Ralph Price, aunt of the groom, who carried it at her wedding fifteen years ago; something new, her bridal gown and shoes; something borrowed, her crown and blue garter.

She also wore pennies minted in the dates of their birth in each shoe.

The reception table was laid with a lace cloth over blue with appointments of crystal and silver. The table was centered with a prayer candle encircled with blue carnations.

Mrs. Jimmy Sullenger of Ft. Worth, and Mrs. Tom Valentine of Lubbock presided over the table.

Mrs. Faye Sullenger registered guests.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a pale blue dress, fashioned by her mother.

The bride is a candidate for graduation in January from Snyder High School.

The groom is a Snyder High School graduate and attended the AMTC University in Kansas City, Missouri.

Wedding guests were from Snyder, Lubbock, Fluvanna, Waco, and Ft. Worth.

The couple will reside west of town on the Lamesa Highway.

At Jarahdilla in Spain, guests stay in quarters occupied by Holy Roman Emperor Charles V during his retirement.

Girl Scout News

The national magazine for Girl Scout adults, the GIRL SCOUT LEADER, publishes a monthly question-and-answer page called "Problem Clinic." Each month a new question is presented, and the following month a sampling of answers (usually no more than six or eight letters from all over the U.S.A.) is printed.

For the first time, a letter from Snyder was published in "Problem Clinic" (September, 1971, issue) and it was written by KAREN STEWART, a Cadette Girl Scout in Troop 266. Karen's letter answered a leader's question, "How can I help the girls in my troop develop Scouts' Owns that are really meaningful, really inspirational to every troop member?" (A Scouts' Own is a special inspirational occasion, not a [illegible] carried out by the girls in a troop; thus the name, "Scouts Own".)

Karen's letter, as published in the LEADER magazine, offers this solution:

Let the girls agree on a theme. Then each girl can write a poem, sing or play a song. You might discover new talents or unrevealed interests. As for the theme, what about fall leaves, snow, flowers, America, songs—patriotic or modern and meaningful—the seasons of the year, giving, love, peace, progress, poems—original or otherwise—art, hobbies, pets, family, what you're thankful for?

Brownine Troop 116 (Esther Thompson and Rosa Alarcon) had their Brownie Investiture on October 29th. Fifteen girls received their Brownie pins and seven girls received a star for being in Brownies one year.

We went on a hike on November 12th. Everyone had fun. Mrs. Essery, Mrs. Gaona, and Mrs. Alarcon were some of the parents who accompanied the girls.

Cadette Troop 42 (Mrs. Bill Campbell and Mrs. Windle Biddle): Our troop has been busy lately working on our challenge preps. We had parties for the opposite patrols on October 26th and on November 2nd.

We want to thank the Chamber of Commerce for inviting us to help at the Labor Survey.

We have planned in our last two meetings for a Bazaar sale as a money making project. Our troop will be having the Bazaar the 4th and the 11th of December. We are also having a Bake Sale at two local grocery stores at the same time of the Bazaar. Come one, come all—to our Bazaar and Bake Sale!

FISH AMANDINE

An American version of a French recipe.

4 (about 1 pound each) whole fish, cleaned and trimmed
Salt and pepper
½ cup (¼ pound stick) corn oil margarine
½ cup sliced almonds
Lemon wedges and parsley sprigs

Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper. In a large skillet melt margarine; add fish. Fry on medium low heat, turning as necessary, until lightly browned and fish flakes easily with a fork—about 10 minutes. If fish is fried in 2 batches, keep cooked fish warm in a low oven while rest is being fried. Add almonds to skillet; cook gently until golden; pour over fish. Serve at once garnished with lemon and parsley. Makes 4 servings.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG

In most cases, the portable electric drill is the first power tool used by the do-it-yourselfer.

And with good reason. It's easy to handle, even for a novice. It's versatile. It can be brought to the project.

Once used only for drilling holes, the tool is pretty much the same basic machine it always has been. The big difference is that there now are dozens of accessories that can be attached to it for a wide variety of tasks.

Most companies now put out drills which have shockproof housings. In time, all such drills probably will have that built-in protection. In the meantime, be especially wary about using ordinary drills (or any other electric tool, for that matter) in damp locations, especially when your feet are on wet ground or a wet floor or your hands are wet.

For the average user, drills come in quarter-inch, three-eighths of an inch and half-inch sizes. The quarter-inch drill is suitable for most household purposes, the half-inch for heavy duty work, and the three-eighths of an inch obviously a kind of in-betweener.

The size doesn't refer to the size of the hole that can be drilled but to the maximum size of the bit shank that can be inserted into the chuck, the jaws that hold the bit in place. Thus, a quarter-inch drill is one that takes bits that have shanks of any size up to a quarter of an inch.

In selecting a drill, it is important to choose one that feels "right" in your hand. If it feels uncomfortable, it's not for you. That's why, if you are buying a drill for someone as a gift, be sure to have an understanding with the dealer that it can be exchanged by the recipient, if necessary.

The trouble some persons have driving in nails and screws, especially in hardwoods, would be eliminated if they would take an extra minute to drill pilot holes to receive the fasteners. The hole naturally must have a smaller diameter than that of the nail or screw being used. It will make the drive-in operation easier and faster; more important, it will prevent the wood from splitting.

To drive a succession of nails or screws, stick the wood with the point of an awl at each desired location. Drill all the holes at once and then drive in all the nails and screws. Incidentally, in drilling a hole, place the bit of the drill into the awl indentation before the motor is started. If the motor is started first, the wandering bit may damage the face of the stock.

Accessories that can be attached to a drill include sanders, polishers, wire brushers, grinders, saws, paint mixers and literally dozens of others. If you are a first-time purchaser of a drill, you should consider one of the kits which contains several of these accessories as well as a supply of bits.

(Sweating windows and walls are among the 35 house problems discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

Lives Of The Custers

TENTING ON THE PLAINS. By Mrs. George Custer. University of Oklahoma Press, Norman.

The widow of Gen. George Custer turned out to be his greatest press agent. But that is not why she wrote "Tenting on the Plains." She wanted money.

Mrs. Custer, after the general was killed at the Battle of the Little Big Horn June 25, 1876, seemed in financial troubles.

She wrote "Boots and Saddles" in 1885. It brought great acclaim but very little money. She she wrote "Tenting on the Plains" hopeing it might be a financial success. It was published in 1887, and although it was widely read, it is doubtful that it, either, brought her much cash.

The new publications, a set of three books, covers the Custers' lives from their marriage in 1864 until his court-martial in 1867, but does not mention the trial. "Boots and Saddles" tells of the period just before the general was killed.

Still a third book was written by Mrs. Custer, "Following the Guidon," telling of the period of greatest activity of the general against the Plains Indians. —The AP.

Case Histories Of Tax Claims

TAX TIPS AND TAX DODGES. By Frederick Andrews. Dow Jones Books. $1.95.

Here's a handy little travel guide for your next voyage through IRS country. Unlike most tax guides, which are sober stuff indeed, this one is entertaining besides being eminently helpful.

The volume consists of selections from a weekly column in the Wall Street Journal. It doesn't deal in theory and hypothetical cases, but matters that were thrashed out between tax payers and revenuers in Tax Court.

Whether the taxpayers won or lost, whether their claims were esoteric or prosaic, these sprightly case histories taken as a whole have broad applicability to citizens wrestling with questions of where and how to deduct and what reasoning will be acceptable to the tax men.

Results are often remarkable. Take the man who claimed a loss on diamonds he said he had hidden in his garage to keep them away from his estranged wife. The garage burned. The claim was unsupported. Hopeless? The Tax Court accepted it.

But a physician's deduction of his golf fees on the contention that the links brought him patients and referrals were disallowed as a business expense. On the other hand, an ice fisherman whose uninsured car broke through the ice was allowed a loss claim.

It's good to know that expenses of special schooling for a retarded child are deductible, but that those lavish Christmas tips you press into seasonally outstretched palms are not. And so it goes—neatly compartmentalized into sections like "Alimony and Taxes," "Finding a Tax Shelter at Home," tax aspects of commuting, charity, and many others.

The "dodges" of the title are frequently astounding, though taxpayer ingenuity runs into IRS imperviousness as often as not.

Associated Press

The 1974 U.S. Open golf championship will be played over the West course of the Winged Foot Golf Club at Mamaroneck, N.Y.

A COOK'S REPUTATION can be built on a steamed cranberry pudding, yet the secret to success with this holiday favorite is yours for the trying. Plenty of fresh ruby red cranberries, convenient packaged mincemeat and a judicious eye on the clock while it steams in the oven are the chief ingredients for this dramatic dessert. Serve warm with hard sauce; add a bright garnish of candied cranberries.

Fresh Cranberry Steamed Pudding

Cranberry bread pudding stuffing is a delicious way to stretch the holiday bird should the need arise at your house when we all expect spur of the moment guests for meals.

Made in a casserole dish or loaf pan with prunes, celery and seasonings, this stuffing is also delicious cut into slices and made into sandwiches with cold sliced turkey, chicken or ham.

CRANBERRY BREAD PUDDING STUFFING

(Makes one 2-quart casserole or one 9x5x3-inch loaf)

8 cups ½-inch bread cubes, lightly toasted
1 cup fresh cranberries, halved, rinsed and drained
½ cup pitted chopped prunes
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion (1 medium)
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
1-3 cup butter, melted
3 eggs, well beaten
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed chicken broth OR 1½ cups rich chicken stock

Mix together toasted bread cubes, cranberries, prunes, celery, onion, salt and poultry seasoning. Sprinkle with melted butter and toss to blend. Spoon mixture into heavily greased 2-quart casserole or 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Beat eggs and chicken broth until well blended. Pour mixture over bread. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 hour or until firm. Loosen edges and unmold. Cut into slices and serve with chicken or turkey.

Indian Art

PLAINS INDIAN ART FROM FORT MARION. By Karen Daniels Petersen. University of Oklahoma Press, Norman. $9.95.

Most casual observers of Indian art of the pre-1875 era seem to feel that most such paintings were confined to non-Plains redmen.

For one thing, the art that has been depicted under cliffs all over Texas generally is so far off the roads that few see it. Any other art, such as that on tepees, was too soon destroyed.

But gathered now is a whole picture book of Indian art created under somewhat unusual circumstances.

The works were done by Plains Indians taken from their homes and imprisoned in Ft. Marion in Florida about 1875. It was not a prison of cells, but the Indians had little to do. So most of them, encouraged by authorities, began drawing and painting.

The paintings actually were a form of writing—each detail had some meaning. But as whites grew more interested, the Indians sought to make their work more understanable to outsiders. The quality improved.

The author long has been interested in the various Indian arts. She includes considerable textual matter about the individual artists, a key to the detail meanings and some photographs of the Ft. Marion Imprisonment.—The AP.

Bingo Illegal

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The state's highest court, the Court of Appeals, has ruled that bingo—whether for charity or anything else—is a form of lottery and therefore illegal under Kentucky's constitution. The 1970 General Assembly had legalized bingo for charity in certain counties.

Designer Says Play Structures Should Leave Room For Fantasy

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is it a rocket? Is it a dollhouse? Is it a fort?

It's all three of these things, plus many more, if it's playground equipment created to appeal to the imagination of children. And that's the way it should be, says Jerry Lieberman, whose designs are included in an exhibit of play structures here.

"Playground equipment shouldn't say what it is; it should be an abstraction so children can fantasize—it's an important part of their development," explained Lieberman as he watched laughing kids scramble up, over and around the colorful geometric shapes on display at the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Center.

"Take my Cityscape, for instance," he said, pointing to a series of windowed hexagonals of various heights and colors, connected by pipelike tunnels. "Small kids will play quietly in the ground-level buildings. For older ones it's a jail, space capsule or house, and others will crawl from one unit to another playing tag, or just use the buildings for activities like climbing."

Until recently, he says, playgrounds have been "sort of architectural monuments—a lot of stone pyramids, generally designed by architects and usually bland in color. Why can't play structures be bright? Children are very responsive to colors."

In other cases, he points out, planners just level a surface, buy equipment and place it in an area, providing a playground that has no flexibility. Instead, he adds, the recreational structures are generally units that can be set up in various ways, depending on the needs.

"I don't want to suggest that this is the answer—we've barely scratched the surface—but s a step in the right direction," he says. "This type of equipment is extremely flexible so that it can be put together to fit the requirements of its location, large or small, and address itself to the needs of the community, either educationally or numbers of children.

"The requirements of the ghetto community are different than in suburban areas in terms of learning experience," continues Lieberman, who calls his designs "recre-educational" and thinks that youngsters can learn while they are being entertained. Often alphabet and number games are embedded into the fiberglass walls of his structures.

The designer, who points out that children like to be in enclosed space, also thinks that equipment should involve use by many of them at once. "When a kid's got to queue up in line to go down a slide it's a very unsuccessful experience. Children should learn to do without their parents and have an interrelationship with each other."

It was just such parental participation in play that a few years ago led the father of three youngsters to concentrate on designing play equipment. "We lived in Manhattan and I got tired of going to Central Park and pushing my kids on swings and see-saws," he recalls. "I was getting more exercise than they were and I didn't think it was a creative experience for them."

Lieberman, who has designed for playgrounds all over the country, began by looking for available industrial structures, such as an underground storage tank, to which he added windows and other modifications to make it suitable for play. He got more and more involved and now starts from scratch on his designs.

"First I draw a very rough picture of the idea," he relates. "Then I refine it and try to develop it, sometimes making a cardboard model. Then I make a working structure to find out if it does what it's supposed to do."

Often he tries it out on his own children, who range in age from 5 to 10, using as a testing ground the backyard of the family home on Long Island, where he now lives.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q.—Soon I will be finishing our basement into three rooms—an entertainment center, a workshop and a laundry. It gets quite cool there during the winter. What kind of heat should I use and how much will it cost?

A.—I haven't the faintest idea. And neither does anyone else who hasn't inspected your premises and doesn't know the entire situation. Among the factors to be considered are the size of the rooms; the kind of heat used for the house and whether it can be extended into the basement; whether the furnace can handle the added burden; what you mean by "quite cool;" and how many hours during a normal day it will be necessary to heat the basement. Your heating dealer or local utility company should be able to offer you advice after sending a man to look things over and give you estimates on installation and operation costs. It may be that three separate electric units will fill the bill.

Q.—More than a dozen trees on our property were destroyed this year by some kind of disease. I have heard that such losses are tax deductible. Is this so?

A.—In most cases, the loss of trees and shrubbery from tornados, hurricanes, floods and the like is tax deductible. Losses from plant diseases and insects are not.

Q.—We expect to repaint the stucco portion of our house. The stucco is in excellent condition, but we want to change the color of it. Can we use the same kind of paint on the stucco that we used last year on the wood trim?

A.—If, as is likely, the trim paint was oil-based, the answer is "no." Stucco contains cement, and cement contains alkali, which attacks oil paints. Use a latex paint designed for exterior masonry.

Q.—Can you tell me whether a pigmented stain is better than one without pigment?

A.—Heavily pigmented stains usually are more durable, but they hide most of the wood's grain texture. Lighter bodied stains permit the grain to show.

Q.—Painted my house a year ago. It now has a lot of wrinkles in it. Looks almost like leather. What causes this?

A.—The most common cause of this condition is the application of a too-heavy coat of paint. Were you trying to put it on thickly because you wanted to be sure one coat would cover?

Grandchild Is Source Of Pride

HOUSTON AP - A Wisconsin researcher says the role of the grandchild in our society is significant because the child is a source of pride and comfort to his grandparents.

Dr. Vivian Wood of the School of Social Work, University of Wisconsin, says she arrived at this conclusion after making studies of 257 grandparents.

Eyes Come To Aid Of Person

NEW YORK (AP) — Eyes come to the aid of a person in danger, even though his body may not react, reports the Society for Visual Care.

This phenomenon of suddenly improved vision is caused by additional adrenalin released by the contracted pupils and, unfortunately, lasts only a short time—until the danger disappears. For long-term improved vision, the society recommends regular and thorough eye examinations.

Peter Fonda will star in the film and is scheduled to be in Morocco in February for rehearsals. The film will be Wise's first since he completed "The Andromeda Strain" a year ago.

Cool, Damp Weather Slows Cotton Harvest

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP)—Cool, damp weather over much of Texas again has stopped or slowed field activities, especially in the west and on the plains. The cotton harvest has just begun in these areas and dry, open weather is needed, said John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The state grain sorghum harvest is virtually complete with the crop about average. Late rains helped the yield in the plains and west.

Harvesting of soybeans and peanuts was slowed by the weather. Soybean yields are generally good. The peanut crop was damaged by late cool rains.

The vegetable harvest in the Winter Garden and Lower Rio Grande Valley is past the peak. Seeding of onions and other vegetables, is about complete. Carrots are being harvested on the High Plains. Citrus picking is active in the Valley, noted Hutchison.

District agents reported.

PANHANDLE: Wheat is making excellent growth and is providing fine grazing. The sugar beet and carrot harvests have been active although moisture slowed operations. Livestock conditions are good.

SOUTH PLAINS (Lubbock) Dry, open weather is needed for the cotton harvest. Cool, wet conditions are causing delays. Harvesting of sorghum and soybeans is nearing completion. Yield are good. Wheat is making excellent growth and providing good grazing.

ROLLING PLAINS (Vernon): Recent freezes have conditioned the cotton crop for stripping. Sorghum and peanuts harvesting is about complete with yields about average. The guar harvest is on. Grains are making good growth and providing excellent grazing.

NORTH CENTRAL: The cotton harvest is about over. Yields have been average. Harvesting of sorghum is complete. Farmers are about to finish planting grain. Early grain is progressing well and are providing good grazing. The short pecan crop is about half harvested. Ranges and livestock are in top condition, the best in years.

NORTHEAST: Moisture over the area helped wheat and oats which are providing good grazing. Harvesting of cotton, sweet potatoes and vegetables is about complete. The pecan crop is average. Ranges are good.

FAR WEST: The cotton harvest is gaining momentum. The lettuce harvest is completed around El Paso and land leveling is on for alfalfa. Grains are making good growth and some are being grazed. Ranges are good.

WEST CENTRAL: Moisture helped grains which are providing excellent grazing for livestock and deer. Rust has been found on some oats. Livestock are in good shape and lambing is in progress. Pastures are providing good forage.

CENTRAL: Light rains fell but several counties still need moisture. Harvesting is about over except for a few peanuts and pecans. Grains are providing plentiful grazing.

EAST: Scattered rain helped grain and ranges. More moisture is needed. Wheat and oats are making good growth but some pastures are below average. Livestock conditions are good.

SOUTHEAST: With the cotton harvest completed, stalk shredding and plowing are underway. Some soybeans and pecans are being harvested. The peanut harvest is complete and yields were good. Pecan yields have been poor. The second cutting of rice is complete and yields were low. The fall calf crop is good.

SOUTH CENTRAL: One to two inches of rain fell over the area, delaying a few harvest operations. Only a little cotton remains in the field. The pecan crop is about 70 per cent harvested and yields are poor. Wheat and oat plantings are about complete.

SOUTHWEST: More moisture is needed. Grains are making good progress. The pecan harvest has been completed with light yields. Some harvesting of peppers, cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage, carrots, spinach, broccoli, cauliflower and lettuce goes on. Vegetable planting is active.

SOUTH: Oat planting is active. Peppers are in fair supply. The citrus and cucumber harvests are general. Seeding of vegetables is on with onions, spinach and cabbage coming up. Pastures are providing good grazing and livestock are in good condition.

Turner Resigns

AUSTIN, Tex. AP - A.C. Turner, present chairman and member of the State Board of Pardons and Paroles since 1955, has resigned effective next Feb. 1, said presiding Judge John F. Onion of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

The resignation leaves one year remaining on Turner's present term. Onion will appoint a successor to serve from Feb. 1, 1972 to Feb. 1, 1973.

Turner has been the appointee of the presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals for three terms, Gov. Preston Smith and Chief Justice of the Texas Supreme Court Robert W. Calvert also appoint one member each to serve on the board.

After his retirement Turner plans to live in Huntsville. He has been a state employe for more than 40 years and has served on the board since 1955.

Texas Building Up 36%

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Last year's predictions that 1971 would be "an exceptionally good year" for construction in Texas" were justified, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

"The most dynamic segment of the construction industry, new dwelling units authorized, was up 36 per cent over permits for the comparable reporting period for 1970, but non-residential construction, with values up 10 per cent, made an unexpectedly high showing, too," the report said.

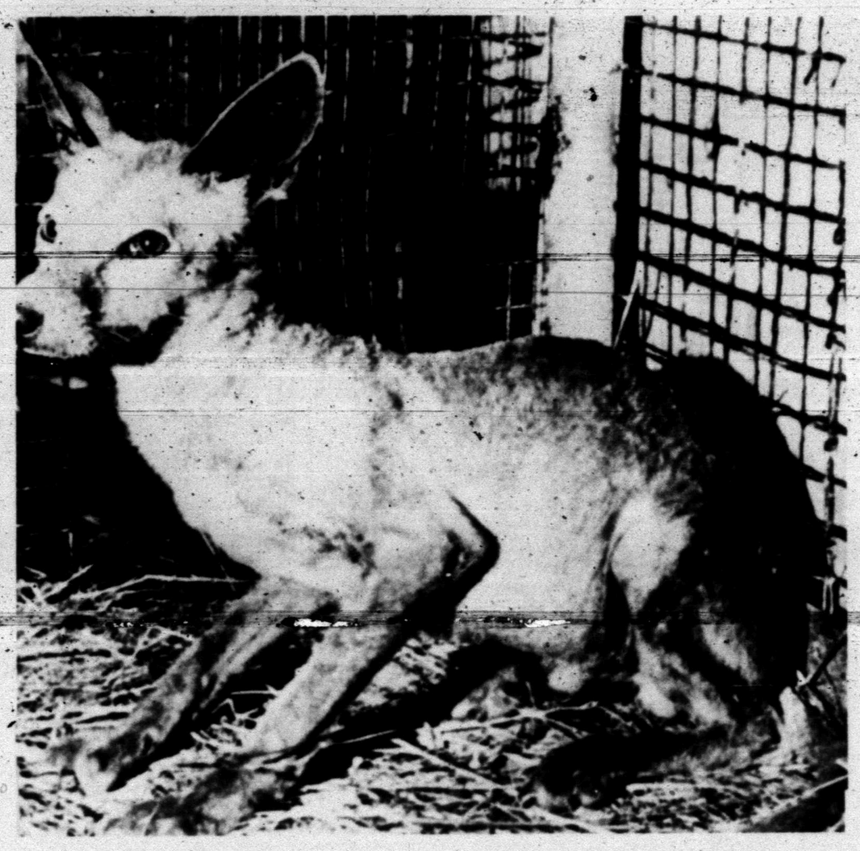

Dr. Stanley A. Arbingast, bureau director, said the number of new houses and apartments authorized in Texas urban areas should reach well over 100,000 by the end of the year.

"If the present rate of authorizations continues, the number will probably top 115,000," he said.

The Houston metropolitan area leads in new units authorized through October, with 27,545, Dallas follows with 24,619 and Fort Worth ranks third with 7,540.

"Significantly," Arbingast said, "the number of duplexes authorized is almost double that for 1970. The increase in this type of dwelling is due to the desire of developers and owners to make more effective use of land as prices for lots continue to escalate. Furthermore, many families, especially young couples and older couples, prefer to own duplexes because they can live in one unit and rent the other."

Arbingast said new apartment construction "continues dynamic," with 55,153 permits by the end of October.

Continuing Education: College For Everybody

Western Texas College's Department of Continuing Education has been created on the premise that the college belongs to the community.

It is a place where needs and desires of the people in the communities served may be satisfied, regardless of the age or academic background of the individual.

College officials said some residents had advised that "I voted yes on the bond issue, although my youngest child is already in a senior college." Or, "We think the college is good for the town and we know it can serve our graduating seniors."

Although this is considered a good reason for voting for the college bonds, college officials hope that many adults voted for them because they wish to receive personal enrichment from the college and because they intend to participate.

Whether a person seeks college credit hours for a degree, attends for some certification purpose, or simply wishes to enjoy gaining knowledge and skill in his field, or a new field, the college will seek to be of service in offering the course after working hours under qualified instructors using modern materials, techniques and equipment.

Generally, a minimum of 10 persons is needed to support a class in continuing education. However, if a person desires a particular course, the college will assist in getting enough people interested for the class.

At present there appears to be sufficient interest to offer the following beginning in January, 1972.

1. Personal and small business income tax reports.
2. Techniques in Geneological research.
3. Wood carving.
4. Art - painting and drawing.
5. Basic adult education (for those who did not progress beyond grade 8 in regular school).
6. Introduction to Anthropology.
7. Conversational Spanish.

Should one wish to enroll in any of these, he should contact the Continuing Education office at the College by calling 573-8511 ext. 209. Should one desire some study not listed here, the college would like to know. Some suggested areas are: Public speaking, needle work, floral design, gardening, slide rule, interior decorating for the home, music, voice or piano.

Ohio Girl Wins Teenage Title

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "I can't think very well. I can't think at all. It's unreal."

Those were the words of Colleen Fitzpatrick of Columbus, Ohio, as she won the Miss Teenage America title Friday night at the Tarrant County Convention Center.

"Oh, thank you," gushed the blue-eyed, brown-haired, high school junior as other candidates crowded around her. The first to reach her were her mother and her predecessor, Miss Rewa Walsh of Anaheim, Calif.

Rewa hugged the tearful Miss Fitzpatrick and said: "I just wish I were you."

The daughter of Harry Fitzpatrick of Columbus, Ohio, and Mrs. Dorothy Fitzpatrick of Lancaster, Ohio, Colleen sang "Wouldn't It Be Loverly," in the talent competition.

As Miss Teendage America, the 5-foot-6½, 130-pound high school junior received a $10,000 scholarship, 100 shares of stock from the sponsoring companies and a $5,000 minimum for a year of personal appearances on behalf of the pageant.

Asked her plans for the next year, she replied, "I probably will travel a lot and that's what I want to do." Colleen said she plans to attend Ohio University on the scholarship and will major in voice or dentistry.

Mary Ann Grabavoy, 17, of Aurora, Ill., was first runnerup; Valerie Brewster, 16, of Memphis, Tenn., was second runnerup, and the lone blonde among the four finalists, Barbara Mills, 15, of Dallas, Tex., was third runner-up.

Miss Las Vegas, Martha Ashcraft, and Miss St. Louis, Michelle Marshall, were given special awards for friendship and leadership respectively. Contestants vote for those awards.

The four semifinalists eliminated earlier in the evening were Debbie Risko, Cleveland, Ohio; Debbie Solle, Orange, Calif.; Gail Hannah, Seattle, Wash., and Debi Zeller, Tucson, Ariz.

The musically oriented pageant was nationally televised.

Conservationists To Discuss Oil, Gas Prices

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Until recently, oil and gas conservationists were supposed to have little to say about prices.

Times have changed, however, and oil and gas prices are expected to figure prominently Monday and Tuesday in discussions at the annual meeting of the 33-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

About 600 state, federal, and industry representatives are expected for the semi-annual forum on oil and gas conservation matters.

Gov. Preston Smith, D-Tex., the commission chairman, will be absent, but the governors of five other states have indicated they will be here for at least part of the meeting.

Fear of developing oil and gas supply shortages apparently has prompted a change in the thinking of some members of the commission.

"We might as well face it, price has become a conservation factor because there is a lot of $4 and $5 oil to be found," said one conservationist as he prepared for the Biloxi trip.

"And I say that knowing it traditionally has been a taboo to talk about prices at the compact."

The commission can be expected to reaffirm earlier resolutions calling for strict oil import controls and for clarification of federal regulation over gas producers.

Resolutions the past couple of years have contained stronger language but they have avoided direct references to prices. Biloxi could bring a change.

Governors scheduled to be here are John Bell Williams, D-Miss., David Hall, D-Okla., Stanley K. Hathaway, R-Wyo., Bruce King, D-N.M., and Calvin L. Rampton, D-Utah.

Also expected are Gov.-elect William Waller, D-Miss., and Williams' predecessor, Paul Johnson, a former chairman of the commission.

Discussions on oil spill preparedness programs and compatibility of the offshore oil industry and the marine environment are scheduled for Monday technical sessions.

Gene P. Morrell, director of the Interior Department's office of oil and gas, also is to speak before the commission's new Environmental Protection Advisory Committee.

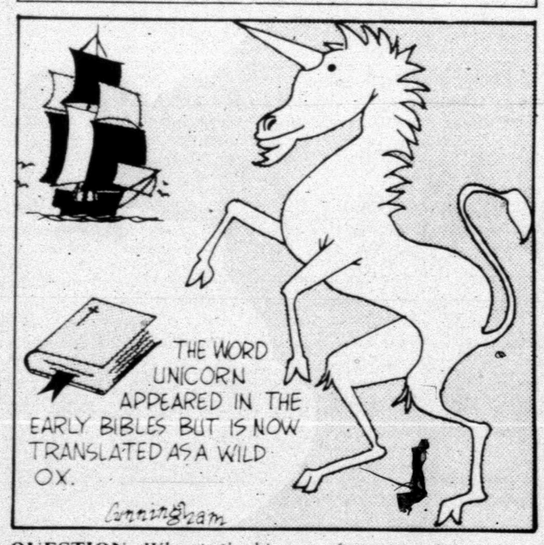

Tuesday speakers include T. D. Barrow, president of the Humble Oil & Refining Co. of Houston, and Commissioner Pinkney C. Walker, the Federal Power Commission's newly designated official observer for compact meetings.

Prices are the major item on the Sunday agenda of a group of independent operators who will be holding their annual meeting preliminary to the opening of the compact's sessions.

The liaison committee of cooperating oil and gas associations represents about 20 state and regional trade associations for independents. The chairman is Clinton E. Engstrand of Wichita, Kan.

"The agenda is an important one in that it will concentrate on the current campaign to increase crude oil prices," said the official call for the liaison group's meeting.

A Junior Editors Quiz About UNICORNS

QUESTION: What is the history of a unicorn?

* * *

ANSWER: Long ago, voyages to distant lands were lengthy and dangerous undertakings. Travelers came home from these trips with many fantastic tales of the wonderful sights they had seen. Frequently, they talked about mythical animals which were strange and horrible.

Sailors told of encountering sea serpents, man-eating creatures which were 200 feet long and 20 feet thick. Mermaids, with long, green hair and shiny scaly tails were supposed to lure sailors to their doom. The ancient people believed in dragons that breathed fire and griffons which were a cross between a lion and an eagle. From Greece came the story of the centaur which was half man and half horse. These centaurs were supposed to live in the mountains of Thessaly.

Travelers in India brought back stories of the unicorn. According to the description, the unicorn had the body of a horse, the hind legs of an antelope, the tail of a lion and the head of a goat. Each unicorn had a single long twisted horn, set in the middle of its forehead. The horn was supposed to have the magic power to detect poison. The unicorn was adopted in Scottish heraldry as a supporter of the royal arms, then it became a part of the British coat of arms.

Complaint Division Opened

HOUSTON (AP)—A small office in the Criminal Courthouse houses the Harris County Sheriff Department's newly created commercial fraud and consumer protection division.

"The response has been absolutely tremendous," said Sheriff Sgt. Marvin Zindler.

Most days citizens have lined the hallway outside the door waiting to air their complaints about everything from a Palm reader to a canned ham that did not weigh as much as advertised.

"Criminal charges are now being filed in cases where consumers believe they have been swindled which before were considered civil matters," Zindler said.

"Sheriff C. B. Kern felt there was a great need for the division because of the vast amount of complaints his office has been receiving."

He said the complaints ranged from reports of crooked roofing contractors to phony exterminators.

"Of course, most contractors, exterminators, car dealers carpet salesmen are honest," Zindler said, "but the sheriff wanted to protect the consumers who are swindled by con men. They seem to prey on the elderly and poor minorities."

Zindler said persons now are filing criminal charges, usually felony theft by false pretext, when they believe they have been swindled.

"Mainly we are going after the con men who come to Houston to make a quick buck and leave," he said. "But we have made some cases against salesmen of established car dealers, roofing contractors and carpet salesmen."

Zindler said 35 to 50 swindling charges were filed in the first two weeks out of 200 complaints that were received from citizens.

He said those filed include a charge of burglary against a persons who repossessed furniture by allegedly breaking into a home while the occupants were away, and a charge of robbery by firearms against two used car salesmen who allegedly repossessed a car from a couple at gunpoint.

A roofer was charged with a misdemeanor theft by false pretext after a 71-year-old woman reported she paid him $25 as a down payment on a $200 roofing job. She said the roofer failed to show up for work on the roof for more than six months although she repeatedly called him.

"The majority of businessmen in Houston are honest," Zindler said. "The division has received a lot of calls and letters from them. They want to see the crooks and con men caught just as much as anyone else."

Auto Makers Document Advertising Claims

By MALCOLM M. CARTER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Auto manufacturers have responded to a federal order to document advertising claims by filing big books of charts, graphs, diagrams and thick jargon.

"Number 4, 5 and 6 body mounts are of variable rate (flower pot design)," one section of a new publication informs the consumer, "to provide maximum noise vibration isolation over all road conditions."

This assertion was the Ford Motor Co.'s way of substantiating its claim that its LTD is "so strong and well built it's quieter than some of the world's most expensive cars." The explanation ran 132 pages.

The jargon is typical of the material in loose-leaf notebooks published by Ford and six other automakers in response to a July order by the Federal Trade Commission. The volumes are available in FTC offices.

Ford assembled a cluster of noise level test results for comparison with Rolls Royce, Jaguar and others.

"The noise property directly measured in these tests is the Octave Ban Sound Pressure Level expressed in decibles (db)," Ford explained. "The reference value is 0.0002 microbar."

The consumor will find Chryser's prose no less puzzling.

Defending its claim that "unibody construction" has "extra strength, extra quiet and long-lasting" qualities, Chrysler said "the cowl and hinge pillar structure improvements made to increase lateral rigidity" were among "many localized improvements over the prototype design."

Consumers wishing to know how American Motors' Matador compares in total head, shoulder, hip and leg room with other cars can find the information in documentation for a claim that the auto "has more room inside than any or its size."

American said its Matador had 398 of an unspecified measure in contrast to 391 in Plymouth's Satellite.

Volkswagen, which has claimed there were "89 ways to tell a new one from an old one," listed 90 ways. Its list begins with "new cylinder heads" and ends with "multiple plug in engine compartment for diagnosis."

Another manufacturer faced with a list was General Motors Corp., which claimed Chevelle had 109 advantages "to keep it from becoming old before its time."

The list started with "big, new Power-Beam headlights," then moved to "15 exterior colors," No. 13; "curved side windows," No. 28; "back-up lights," No. 76, and "balanced wheels and tires," No. 107.

The two-inch-thick GM book also included a six-page report from Scott Research Laboratories, which observed no "attempt to deceive," as documentation for a filmed advertisement maintaining that juice in glasses mounted to the side of a Buick Electra will not spill.

Consumers, who have shown little desire to see the volumes since they became available last Wednesday, have until Dec. 15 to plunge without an appointment unto the world of exhaust emission, torque and mileage tests.

Kentucky is spending $41,000 to finance a program for prevention of sickle cell anemia, a hereditary disease among Negroes.

IN HONOR SOCIETY—Gary Don Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Lloyd of Andrews and grandson of Mrs. Bama Murphy of Snyder, has been initiated into Alpha Chi, a national honorary society, at Sul Ross State University. A biology and mathematics major, he also is a representative in the Sul Ross student government.

A state Corrections Department study rates two-thirds of Kentucky's county jails as either poor or very poor. Only 6 per cent were ranked as good.

Agnew Says Economy Vigorous

NEW YORK (A) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says the "doomsday dispatches" of many Democratic presidential hopefuls are unwarranted and that the nation's economy is vigorous and "aimed at enhancing the strength of our free enterprise system."

Agnew urged the National Association of Manufacturers in a speech Friday to ignore the "pall-bearer polemics" of the "would-be economic morticians," and to renew their faith in the economy.

In "the hills and plains of middle America," the vice president said a visitor "would find, upon feeling the pulse of that part of the national economy which can be measured, that the patient is not only well, but vigorous and headed for the best days of his life."

He singled out Sens. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Henry M. Jackson D-Wash., and said their pronouncement on the economy were "unwarranted by an impartial examination of the facts readily at hand."

Agnew said the adjusted Gross National Product rose at an annual rate of 3.9 per cent from the second to the third quarter of 1971 and that housing starts in the third quarter "were at their highest rate in history."

He said the administration was seeking "prosperity with peace...the reality of economic strength based on a sound dollar...and the continued primacy of the American system of free enterprise."

Texans' Income Dips 3%

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Estimated personal income in Tex as dipped 3 per cent in October but was still 7.6 per cent above the October 1970 level, a business survey showed Saturday.

During 10 months of 1971, prices rose an average of 4.5 per cent nationally over the January-October 1970 level. Meanwhile, estimated consumer income in Texas for the 10-month period rose 7 per cent.

"Texas residents, as a group, had an increase in their purchasing power of approximately 2 per cent," said Dr. Francis May, professor of business statistics at the University of Texas.

In a report for the University Bureau of Business Research, May said retired persons and others on fixed incomes "suffered a decline in real income."

"The results of Phase I bring real hope to this group that their distressing loss of purchasing power will be lessned in rate, if not eliminated," May said.

Inflation was slowed by Phase I of President Nixon's economic program, he said.

"Whether these favorable results in slowing the rate of inflation can be continued in the future depends on the success of Phase II controls," May said.

The state's overall economy remained sluggish in October with most major barometers of business activity showing declines or no gains.

Boldt Promises To Get Pay Board Moving

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pay Board source reports that Chairman George Boldt, criticized by some for weak leadership, has angrily asserted himself and promised to get the board moving toward settlement of major policy questions.

"He really got his back up and laid down the law," said the usually reliable source.

Boldt reportedly told the other 14 members of the tripartie labor-management-public board at its latest meeting that from now on he would personally determine how board policies are to be applied in specific cases.

Boldt will consider only major policy questions, and that Boldt himself will decide where to draw the line between policy and application, the source said.

"Fly-specking of regulations has got to stop," Boldt is quoted as telling the other Pay Board members. "We've got to get on to the issues."

The board met for three days this week but accomplished little beyond calling the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee to account for approving roughly 450 retroactive pay raises and scores of new contracts with raises far in excess of pay board guidelines.

Boldt, 67, a U.S. District Judge from Washington state, began his duties as chairman of the Pay Board behaving very much as just another public member with a gavel in his hand, the source said.

He voted along with other public members in the first Pay Board decisions, but later began abstaining in cases where his vote was not needed to break a tie.

The power he has reportedly claimed for himself would put him in a position similar to that staked out by the chairman of the Price Commission, C. Jackson Grayson Jr., who rules for the other six commission members on specific applications for price increases and leaves only large policy questions to the full commission.

Even as Boldt sought to make it clear who was in charge on the Pay Board, the board itself was swinging its own weight with the stabilization committee.

The committee was appointed by President Nixon last March to hold the line on construction industry pay raises.

After the committee revealed quietly last week that it was allowing scores of pay raises above the 5.5 per cent general guideline set by the board, the board said it was temporarily giving power to rule on construction pay hikes to the Internal Revenue Service.

On Friday the construction committee broke its usual silence to issue a brief statement saying it believes it is operating within its authority and looks forward to a meeting with the Pay Board next week "to resolve any misunderstanding."

Transplant Patient Marks Anniversary

HAZEL PARK, Mich. (AP) — Don Kaminski celebrated the third anniversary of his heart transplant operation by winning the daily double.

"I can do anything anybody my age can do," the 41-year-old Kaminski said Thursday. "I can eat anything, I smoke and I drink."

Kaminski, the second-longest living heart recipient, said he's been playing the ponies at Hazel Park Race Track since it opened in 1949.

His $2 ticket on the daily double Thursday netted him $17.20.

Voter Turnout In Black Precincts To Decide Race

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Louie Welch, seeking an unprecendented fifth consecutive term, faces young attorney Fred Hofheinz Tuesday in a city runoff election with both men acknowledging the outcome could be determined by voter turnout in black precincts.

Late returns in the Nov. 20 general election put Hofheinz in the runoff and gave the city council its first black member in history when Judson Robinson, a Negro real estate dealer, defeated incumbent E. L. Miller.

There are no black candidates in the four races on the runoff ballot.

The race has national significance in that Welch now is first vice president of both the National League of Cities and of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. His election to the fifth term could lead him to the presidency of both organizations next year.

In hopes of offsetting the anticipated strong black support for Hofheinz, Welch says he wants to get out "the white voters who went fishing, watching football and went deer hunting" in November.

Hofheinz carried 90 per cent of the black precincts in the general election, and Welch got only 8 per cent.

Less than half of the city's 520,000 eligible voters turned out in November. Welch received 101,763 votes and Hoffheinz 100,080. Among the four other candidates in the race, former City Councilman Robert S. Webb received 14,690 of the 19,206 votes cast but declined to endorse either Welch or Hofheinz in the runoff.

Because of the lack of Negro candidates, the short ballot and the Tuesday, rather than Saturday election day, political observers feel the vote will be even smaller this time.

Welch said he would have won without a runoff if even half of Houston's registered voters had gone to the polls.

Hofheinz, 33, son of Roy Hofheinz, owner of the Houston Astros and one time mayor of Houston, says 54 per cent of the electorate "stated they wanted a change." He has hit hard on such issues as pollution and mass transit.

He also contends Welch has been in private business on the side for eight years and the nation's sixth largest city needs a "fulltime mayor."

Welch says his "winning team" has avoided most of the urban crises faced by other metropolitan areas, has maintained the lowest tax rate of any major city in the nation and has dropped its crime rate.

Welch made Police Chief Herman Short an issue in the general election, saying if Hofheinz was elected he would fire the chief. Hofheinz has refused to say whether he would fire Short, who has been the object of much criticism by blacks who accuse his officers of mistreating Negroes.

There is a runoff for one position on the Houston School Board. In that one, Mrs. Karl Kamarath, wife of a Houston architect, faces Mrs. Irene Lewis, a housewife.

The election of Mrs. Kamarath would give the so-called liberal slate all seven positions on the board with six of the members favoring the reinstatement of Dr. George Garver, who was fired last August as the $42,000 a year general superintendent of the nation's sixth largest independent school district.

The exception is the Rev. D. Leon Everett, a black minister who sided with three conservative holdovers for a 4-3 vote to fire Garver.

In the councilman at large runoff, incumbent Frank Mann faces insuranceman Jerry McGee. In the runoff for controller, incumbent Roy B. Oakes, 71, is challenged by political newcomer Leonel J. Castillo.

Weevil May Be Controlled By New Cotton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says a new breed of cotton may hold the key to biological control of the boll weevil.

Tests show that Frego bract cotton, a mutant discovered in Arkansas in 1940, is capable of reducing the insect population by 66 to 94 per cent.

The cotton is not of high enough quality for commercial use, but Dr. Johnie M. Jenkins, an Agriculture Department geneticist, says the cotton possibly could be bred into high quality cotton within five years.

Frego cotton has unusually narrow, twisted bracts which are not suited to the weevil's egg-laying habits. Bracts, the leaflike structure surrounding the cotton buds are broad in normal cotton.

The department said tests show the narrow twisted bracts seem to disorient the female weevil so that she spends about eight times longer than normal moving about the plant. This reduces the time in which the insect can lay eggs, the department reported.

The greatest advantage of the mutant cotton, the department said, could lie in reducing the amount of pesticides needed in agriculture. About 40 per cent of all agricultural insecticides are used for cotton insect control, and boll weevil control alone accounts for 30 per cent.

Dr. Jenkins says it is unlikely the boll weevil will be able to rapidly adjust its egg laying habits to Frego cotton because this adjustment would involve a change in the insects' inherited behavior pattern.

If the insect were able to adjust, he said, then normal bracted cotton would perhaps be safely planted.

Meets With Sato

TOKYO (AP)—Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City has told Prime Minister Eisaku Sato that two of his main problems as chief of the United States' largest city are garbage disposal and insutrial waste.

Lindsay also met with Foreign Minister Takeo Fukuda and Japanese shipping industry executives. He told the shippers he hoped they would include Brooklyn as a port of call when they start containerized service to the U.S. East Coast next summer.

DID MARS ONCE HAVE VOLCANOES?—Scientists at Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Cal., said today features in this Mariner 9 photograph of a 70-mile wide crater atop a mountain on Mars suggest it is a volcanic collapse crater. They pointed to the multiple concentric fractures on the western rim and numerous rimless craterlets in support of the theory. The mountain is located near Nocus Gordii (the Gordian Knot) and was photographed Nov. 28. (AP Wirephoto)

Dust Storm May Scrap Mission Of Mariner 9

By BILL STOCKTON
Associated Press Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — If the thick dust cloud hiding Mars doesn't diminish in the next 10 days, scientists say, Mariner 9 could fail in its primary mission of photographically mapping 70 per cent of the planet.

"The dust storm might be with us for a large part if not all of the nominal three-month mission of Mariner 9," Bradford Sith of New Mexico State University said Friday.

"The over-all clearing since orbital insertion (Nov. 13) has been very small, maybe even so small as to be insignificant."

Dan Schneiderman, Mariner 9 project manager, said a week to 10 days remains before major decisions about abandoning the mapping mission must be made.

The dust storm, which began in September, has obscured the planet except for the south polar cap.

However, another scientist said computer enhanced photos of the area near Mars' equator indicate volcanoes may have flared there as recently as one million years ago.

The scientist, Harold Masursky of the U.S. Geological Survey in Flagstaff Ariz., said the possibility of volcanic activity should be the prime target for study if the Mariner 9 flight plan is changed.

Masurky, Smith and others spoke at a briefing at the California Institute of Technology's Jet Propulsion Laboratory where the spacecraft is being controlled.

Of features seen dimly through the dust, Masursky said, "As a tentative conclusion we would say it indicates strongly these features could be volcanic calderas."

A caldera is a large basin in the summit of a volcano.

Masursky left open the possibility the volcanoes might still be active. Even if they aren't, their existence in the recent geologic past could mean Mars is an internally changing and evolving planet.

If volcanic activity is still present, it would imply the presence of heat, water and other chemicals, all considered necessary for the evolution of life.

Masursky said reaction to his idea has ranged from "agreement to skepticisim to outright disbelief."

Mariner 9 is expected to send data back to earth for up to a year. But after 90 days, the planet moves father away from earth and the amount of data that can be received falls off quickly.

Astronauts Are Taking Russian

By PAUL RECER
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A number of astronauts have been taking Russian language courses, but it was preparing them for talk with Soviets on the ground, not in space, the chief of the American astronauts said Friday.

Donald K. Slayton, head of the flight crew operations office at the Manned Spacecraft Center, said astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, John Swigert, Joe Allen "and a whole bunch of other guys" were taking the lessons, "but it has nothing to do with potential crew assignments."

A Houston newspaper said today Stafford was taking the course to prepare for a joint U.S.—Soviet space flight.

Slayton denied this emphatically.

"We were proposing that Stafford go along on this Russian trip," said Slayton, referring to a current meeting in Moscow of a group of U.S. and Soviet engineers. Everybody at the Manned Spacecraft Center who was a candidate for the trip took the course, he said.

Fourteen American space engineers made the trip and are currently meeting with members of the Soviet Academy of Sciences to work out details for a compatible space docking system. They are also studying the possibility of a joint U.S.—Soviet space flight to test the system. But a space agency spokesman in Washington said Friday that even after the technical details were completed a second agreement would have to be worked out before the mission was possible.

A space agency spokesman said the Russian language course taken by the astronauts and engineers lasted six weeks and included a vocabulary of only about 600 spoken words.

"The purpose of the course was so they could at least ask for a glass of water," said the spokesman. "It certainly would not equip them to communicate with a Soviet crew in space."

The Houston Post, in a story prepared for today's editions, said Stafford was preparing to command an Apollo spacecraft which would link up with an orbiting Soviet space station.

The newspaper said the spacecraft to be used would be a modified Apollo moon mission craft and would carry two astronauts. The newspaper said it would dock in space with a Soviet Salyut space station manned by two cosmonauts. Such a possibility was suggested here last summer at an earlier meeting of Soviet and UMS. space engineers.

Self-Analysis Is Important

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: For sometime I have been reading your column and now have decided to ask for help and some suggestions.

I am in my middle 30's, married, no children, and have recently moved to the West Coast. I have an MBA (master's degree in business administration), and was earning a substantial salary as a midmanagement executive back East. I detested my job and finally one day, just quit and moved out here.

I want to find a new career before it is too late but one which will be exciting, interesting and actually do some good. I expect to earn less to start but do not mind because I have enough confidence in my ability and proclivity to work hard that I expect eventual advancement. I have traveled extensively and am willing to do so again. My overriding goal is to find a career that offers me a chance to do something that has meaning.

Where would you suggest that I look? I really do not know where to turn to find myself and to select my new vocation. I realize this letter is incomplete in many details, however, I thought that you would have some answers. If you print this, please change enough of the facts so that it will not be recognizable. My wife always reads your column and I do not want to worry her with this type of letter. Thank you for your consideration and help.

--READER AT CROSSROADS

The 19th century British poet John Clare made a nearly universal observation: "If life had a second edition, how I would correct the proofs."

In rewriting your life, you have thus far quit your job without prospects or advance planning (unwise) . . . moved to one of the nation's highest unemployment areas (a handicap) and are trying to shield your wife from problems which concern her too (misplaced pride?). Unfortunate, but spilt-milk lamenting is a waste so let's examine the . . .

THINGS GOING FOR YOU. These include education, valuable experience, ambition, realistic attitude, and probably a wealth of talents you don't suspect. Even the fact of your unemployment can be viewed as an advantage.

This is one of the rare periods in your life that has afforded you plenty of free time to probe the true nature of your needs and goals.

YOUR FIRST TASK is self-analysis. Search inward to define your strengths and deficiencies, wants and dislikes, needs and satisfactions - your preferred way of working - your rainbow's end. Professional counseling and testing (see below) may be the quickest method for you, if you can afford it and can select skilled counselors. If not, professional help is by no means mandatory.

The diary approach is one simple method (you write everything you can recall from childhood on and cull pertinent facts later). A variation is to simply list on paper all your achievements. An achievement is anything that you're proud of and enjoyed. Achievements take place in all areas of life – school, business, hobby, parenthood, military or community service, etc. List failures too – get them out in the open so you can sidestep replays.

Ask your spouse, family, close friends (those who know you well) to write an imaginary letter about you to a 3rd person who doesn't know you. Their insights can be revealing. Your target is to pinpoint your personal "building blocks." Building blocks are foundation talents that can be arranged and rearranged in a variety of ways. Once you recognize that you are a good organizer . . . or enjoy doing things for others . . . or prefer working in small groups . . . you can juggle your building blocks to suit a host of different jobs.

UNTIL YOU DO YOUR HOMEWORK on "knowing yourself," you aren't ready for a list of people-serving occupations, such as hospital administrator, or substantial-accomplishment occupations, such as architect. Remember the cat's answer to Alice in Wonderland when she asked: "Would you tell me, please, which way I ought to go from here?" "That depends a good deal on where you want to get to."

Hierarchy Shakeup Enacted

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has enacted a major shakeup in the Roman Catholic hierarchy in Spain.

The Vatican announced today that the pontiff had named the archbishop of Barcelona, the Most Rev. Gonzales Martin, as archbishop of Toledo and hence Spanish primate.

Vicente Cardinal Enrique y Tarancon, the former primate, became archbishop of Madrid.

Vatican observes noted that Archbishop Martin takes over the post of overriding ecclesiastical importance in the Spanish hierarchy, while Cardinal Tarancon assumes the post of greatest political importance.

Some sources said Pope Paul wanted to move a more liberal figure into the primate's see of Toledo and also wanted to ensure that the capital see of Madrid did not go to a staunchly pro-Franco prelate.

Madrid Auxiliary Bishop Jose Guerra Campos, an ardent supporter of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, had been in line to succeed the late Madrid archbishop, Casimiro Morcillo Gonzales.

By moving Archbishop Martin out of Barcelona, the Pope solved another problem. Barcelonans have long been pleading for a Catalan to be their bishop and the Pope gave them one, the most Rev. Narciso Jubany Arnau, transferred from the cathedral church of Gerona.

Big Yams

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — If somebody offered to buy five pounds of sweet potatoes from W. W. Skidmore of Blossom, he might have to split one.

Skidmore, a retired rural postman, dug his own sweet potatoes this fall and turned up one that weighed seven and a half pounds. Another went five and a half pounds.

Two Wells Logged

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Wildcatters had a bad week, logging only two gas finds and no oil discoveries, the Texas Railroad Commission reported Saturday.

One wildcat gas well each eas drilled in the San Antonio and Corpus Christi districts. Wildcats are wells drilled in previously unproved territory.

The commission said 52 oil wells and 13 gas wells —counting the discovery wells — were drilled in Texas the past week. Totals for the year are 3,858 oil and 972 gas well completions, compared with 4,147 oil and 1,249 gas wells a year ago.

A total of 128 wells was plugged, including 48 dry hols.

Cars, Coal And Stocks Top Business News

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — New auto industry price hikes, another setback for the coal industry and a rising stock market highlighted business news of the past week.

The Price Commission, continuing its adjustments under Phase 2 of President Nixon's new economic program, granted Ford Motor Co. permission for a 2.9 per cent price increase and told General Motors it [illegible] price [illegible] per cent.

Although all the figures weren't in, it appeared that the government's program of controls had cut price hikes originally scheduled for this year by the auto industry by about 40 per cent.

Among major corporations announcing approved increases were International Harvester, which makes trucks and farm machinery, and International Paper, a newsprint producer.

Old Ben Coal Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, was told by the Price Commission that it could not pass on to consumers the cost of a new coal industry labor contract approved earlier by the Pay Board.

The contract provided for wage and benefit increases of about 15 per cent in its first year, but the Price Commission said the amount of the wage increase beyond 9.6 per cent would be inflationary if passed on to consumers.

The Senate voted 86-4 this past week to extend the President's economic control powers to April 30, 1973. In the same bill it approved retroactive payment of most wage increases held up by those controls. House approval was still needed.

The stock market scored new gains during the week, adding onto a rally of nearly 18 points it chalked up at the close of the week before. Analysts credited investor optimism about the outcome of international monetary talks for much of the gains this past week.

The Dow Jones index of 30 industrial stocks rose 13.14 points this past Monday, slowed to a 1.61-point advance Tuesday, but shot ahead 14.67 points Wednesday amid reports of progress in the final session of international monetary talks at Rome.

The United States and its richest trading partners, the so-called Group of Ten, had met in Rome to discuss issues including American requests for upward revaluation of foreign currencies and foreign requests for a devaluation of the U.S. dollar in terms of gold.

In other developments of the week:

—East and Gulf Coast workers returned to their jobs Monday, some for the first time since Oct. 1, in obedience to court orders obtained by the Justice Department.

—The nation's major railroads asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for an "emergency" 2½ per cent surcharge on freight rates to cover current costs and "wages in particular." They said the action was taken in leu of seeking general freight rate increases.

A toll bridge between Louisa, Ky., and Fort Gay, W.Va., has been bought by both states for an aggregate $300,000 and now is toll-free.

Decision Made To Buy Corn

WASHINGTON (AP) — A greater-than-expected corn crop that caused prices to plummet is behind the government's decision to buy up an undetermined amount of corn, says new Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz.

Announcing the decision Friday, Butz said the record crop of more than 5.5 billion bushels was caused by farmers reacting to the threat of corn blight, which heavily damaged crops last year. The blight did not materialize to the degree expected this year.

Butz said the dicision, combined with the commodity loan program and the recent sale of corn to the Soviet Union, would give farmers a wide choice of alternatives in getting rid of this year's excess crop.

Despite the fact no decision has been made on how much corn will be bought, Sen. Jack Miller of Iowa, ranking GOP member of the Agriculture Committee, said the announcement was "the best news Corn Belt farmers have had for a long time." He said the announcement was proof Nixon intends to live up to his promises to help farmers share in the nation's wealth."

Initial outside comment to the proposal varied.

The president of the Iowa corn growers association, Roscoe Marsden, said his first thought at hearing of the undisclosed amount was: "It might not mean much."

"When you don't give an exact figure, you can't rely upon any permanent boost in price," he said.

Gordon Ropp, executive director of the Illinois Agricultural Association, says: "The President has made some good sound decisions toward improving income in rural areas."

The price of corn last week was between $1.05 and $1.10 per bushel. The government currently guarantees farmers $1.35 per bushel on half their acreage, but the price on the other half is subject to market vagaries.

Sundaco Under Injuction

FORTWORTH(AP)—Sundaco Inc. is under a permanent injunction today which prohibits them from operating Cooks Discount Department Stores on Sundays.

The injunction was granted Friday by District Court Judge Walter Jordan after both the state and Sundaco waived their right to a second jury trial.

Lawyers for Sundaco said they will appeal the injunction.

Jordan said the Sundaco operations has been "nothing but a sham and subterfuge by which Sundaco Inc. operates as an agent or condoit for Cooks to operate on Sundays in violation of Article 286A."

The article is part of the state's so-called "blue laws" barring sales of certain items on successive Saturdays and Sundays.

Sundaco Inc. had been leasing Cooks on a one-day basis.

Plenty Parking

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Officials of the new Dallas-Fort Worth Airport which will open in mid-1973 are doing their best to prevent parking problems.

More than 17,000 spaces will be available compared to 9,000 at Dallas, Love Field.

NERVE ENERGY

If all parts of the body receive their proper amounts of nerve energy, transmitted from the brain without interference en route, your body will function at maximum health. Oftentimes, however, the stresses of daily activity, bodily jolts or sudden twists will cause one or more of your spinal vertebrae, which serve to protect the spinal cord, to slip ever so slightly out of normal position and become subluxated.

Subluxated vertebrae cause an impediment in the amount of nerve energy flowing through one or more nerve trunks emanating from the spinal cord. When the part of your body served by the affected nerves received an abnormal amount of energy - -either too much or too little - -it is unable to function properly.

The chiropractor, by careful examination of his patient and making skilled adjustment of the spine, helps to restore the troublesome vertebrae to their proper positions, thereby eliminating the cause of nerve interference.

With the spinal cause of nerve interference corrected, premitting unimpeded flow of nerve inpulses, your body then is capable of using its own mighty restorative powers to return its affected parts to full health.

Preserve and protect your health through chiropractic care - the most modern, most efficient way to perfect health!

'Should I forgive and forget?'

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: After 14 years of what I thought was a good marriage, my husband [I'll call him "John"] asked me for a divorce. [We have three children.] He said he had fallen in love with a woman he works with and wanted to be free to marry her.

I went to pieces. I had no idea John had ever looked at another woman. [He isn't the type.]

I told him I wouldn't stand in his way. He moved out, but I couldn't bring myself to go to a lawyer about a divorce. The next two weeks I hardly ate or slept. [I lost 12 pounds.] Then all of a sudden John came home!

He said he couldn't go thru with it, he still loved me, and if I could forgive and forget he would spend the rest of his life trying to make it up to me.

Now, my problem: Even tho all the time John was gone I kept hoping and praying he would come back, when he finally did, I was so hurt inside I couldn't turn off the bitterness and hate, and turn on my love.

How can I forgive and forget? I really love him.

TURNED OFF

DEAR TURNED OFF: If you want to get over your hurt, you can. Don't dwell on the past. What's done is done. God heard your prayers. Now, pray for the strength to really forgive and forget. Time and a forgiving attitude will do wonders for you. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am a college student [female] who is tired of hearing about all the bright, well-educated young women who are stuck in dull, low-paying jobs because they are women. I don't believe it.

For example, you seem to have made a successful career for yourself in the field of journalism, which has more men than women. Have you encountered much sex-prejudice thruout your career? I mean, do you think, being a woman, you had to work harder to get to the top?

AMBITIOUS

DEAR AMBITIOUS: I encountered no sex-prejudice at all. In fact, I think being a woman gave me a natural advantage. And doesn't the role of "Mother Confessor" more naturally belong to a woman?

DEAR ABBEY: My boy friend [I'll call him "Victor"] is 21. Same age as myself. My problem is his hang-up about eating in front of my family!

I know it sounds crazy, but he says he gets nervous and feels funny when he eats at my house because everybody watches him. [They do not. It's just his imagination.]

Last Thanksgiving I invited Victor to my house for a one o'clock dinner. We were having lots of relatives, and I wanted them to meet Victor. He declined the invitation, but said he would come AFTER dinner.

He came at 3 p. m. and had to leave at 5 p. m. because he was "hungry."

We are planning to get married, and I would like to know when he is going to get rid of this ridiculous hang-up? Or will he have it all his life?

When we eat out, he is just fine. What could be the matter wtih him?

NEW JERSEY GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Victor is probably self-conscious because he's unsure of his table manners. Ask him to level with you, and if that's the case, offer to teach him. And if it isn't, don't marry Victor until he has overcome his hang-up. [It would be hard to explain the groom's absence from the bridal dinner.]

CONFIDENTIAL TO VICKI: To some girls the no-bra look is one big bust. To others it's a flop.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

UT Regents Set Enrollment Control

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — University of Texas regents Friday set new enrollment controls for UT-Austin, told professors to teach more and cut students and teachers out of the process for choosing new presidents for UT campuses.

The regents for the first time set a quota on the number of students who can transfer to UT-Austin as juniors or seniors—a practice of many who start their education at junior colleges.

A quota of 3,900 upper division transfers each year was set—500 more than the actual number moving to UT-Austin in the current school year.

The regents said they wanted to stem "a substantial increase in upper division transfers anticipated in future years."

UT—Austin has about 40,000 students.

A limit of 5,500 entering freshmen plus 1,300 freshmen and and sophomore transfers was continued.

Faculty members at all general teaching campuses in the UT-System, including Austin, El Paso and Arlington, were given an average teaching load requirement of 12 class hours per week.

UT-Austin faculty members teach an average of less than nine hours a week, while those at UT-Arlington and UT-El Paso teach substantially more. The usual college course is taught three hours per week.

Dr. Stephen Spurr, UT-Austin president, said his school wanted a teaching standard of three courses per week but could live with the new requirement.

Many exceptions were provided, such as lighter loads for teachers of graduate students, department heads and those supervising graduate theses and dissertations.

All faculty will teach at least one class, said Dr. Kenneth Ashworth, vice chancellor for academic affairs who was chiefly responsible for the plan.

The regents approved a rule change eliminating the traditional procedure of setting up student-faculty committees to recommend candidates for president of individual UT campuses.

The job will be done by a selection committee composed of the chancellor, the deputy chancellor for administration, the two top vice-chancellors, two regents and three institution heads. Final selection is made by the board of regents.

Chancellor Charles Lamaistre said the new system would provide "a better review of the candidate's opportunity for success and also allow the candidate a more complete exposure to the several constituencies whose confidence he must maintain."

Bob Binder, UT-Austin student body president, said the move gies the chancellor "autonomous power" to select "robots and slaves to be presidents."
