NOTICE, DOG POISONER

I want to tell the person who gave our dog, "Skippy" the poison that took his life last Sunday afternoon a portion of what I (and other people) think about you. There is no form of crawling creature on earth that is lower than you are. You are a heartless, cruel, un-Godly person who wants to deprive a boy of his best friend by feeding him poison.

We loved "Skippy" very much, and thought he could almost talk. I wish he could have lived long enough to have told me who you are. You are by no means a Christian, and I hope you get your due punishment, because using poison to take a pet's life is a sin. You could also be fined up to $200 for willfully poisoning any domesticated animal.

CHAN HUGHES

k-k

Chan admitted he was mad when he wrote the above. He wasn't in too good a humor when he handed it to us and asked that it be printed. In fact, his hair stood up just like he'd had a crew cut. So, dog poisoner, if the above is not strong enough, we suggest you contact Chan.

k-k

The poison might have been intended for Skippy, but it might not have been. Trouble is if it was thrown down and left unwatched it could have been picked up by a child instead of a dog.

k-k

But we doubt if the above letter, or what we or others might think or say, will stop poisoning of animals. It's been going on through the ages.

k-k

We remember a few years back when Barton Carl of Goree was mad enough to bite nails because his child's pet had been poisoned.

k-k

Then later, a little dog that the I. V. Cooks had taught to "pick the fleas" off the pet cats went by the same method, and nobody held any good will toward the poisoner.

k-k

We think Chan is right in calling the person heartless and cruel, but because he is we believe, too, that published letters to the unknown person won't help much in deterring future acts. It does help, though, to kinda explode about the poisoning act.

k-k

The Mogul end was an expert at catching difficult passes, but he hadn't specialized in the ball-toting department. It was a tense moment at a kick-off in the Ballinger-Munday game with the Moguls receiving.

k-k

The kick-off went straight to this Mogul end, who snared it and started down field when a teammate hollered from the other side, "Joe, you don't want that ball!"

k-k

"No," said Joe Spann, "you take it," and he southpawed the ball almost the width of the field to his teammate, who went right on through for a touchdown.

k-k

Munday got beat in this regional game, but that little unheard incident that gave the Moguls a touchdown has always stood out with us.

k-k

Joe Spann will be on Mogul Field again next fall, but this time as assistant to Coach Troy Stewart. Our prediction is that if the playing team is as good as the coaching team, we'll see some real football next season.

Ground Observer Posts For County Being Organized

Organization of five ground observer posts in Knox County in the very near future was announced Tuesday by County Judge L. A. Parker following a conference with Air Force representatives.

Describing the establishment of the posts as a "vital step toward building an effective air defense," M/Sgt. Groce and S/Sgt. Schumaker said they will be located in Truscott, Benjamin, Knox City, Munday and Goree.

They indicated that these observer posts will go into operation immediately as full-fledged Ground Observer Corps units as soon as volunteers are available.

They stated that workers should come from the local area in order to be reasonably close to one of the posts, and urged that citizens volunteer to get in touch with Tom West of Benjamin, county supervisor.

In making the plea, Sgts. Groce and Schumaker pointed out that no previous special training is required. "A ground observer corpsman must be able to see, hear, and speak distinctly," they stated.

Observers report their observations to the filter center, which in turn tracks the aircraft on a large vertical map of the area and relays the information to a unit of the Air Force Air Defense Command. The command is responsible for providing fighter-interceptor planes in answer to warnings sounded by radar installations and members of the Ground Observer Corps.

FRENCH ACCENT

Cotton gets a French accent in this striking gown by Parisian couturier Patou. The noted French designer created the gown in an American fabric—Everglaze cotton satin in pastel pink—to present to the U.S. cotton industry's 1955 Maid of Cotton, De Lola Faulkner. The designer cuts the skirt in a slim column and works an enveloping drape of the cotton satin around this for a regal effect.

Texans Resign Federal Posts

Within the week, two Texans have resigned their posts in President Eisenhower's cabinet at Washington.

Several days ago, announcement was made that Robert B. Anderson of Vernon had resigned as deputy secretary of defense. Reuben B. Robertson, Jr., president of Champion Paper and Fibre Co. of Hamilton, Ohio, has been named to this post.

Wednesday it was announced that Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby had resigned as secretary of health, education and welfare because of "personal reasons of a high order." These reasons, friends believe, are because of the illness of her husband, former Governor William P. Hobby.

The president picked Marion B. Folsom, now undersecretary of the treasury, to succeed Mrs. Hobby.

He was born in Grayson County on October 2, 1872, and married Ollie Waldron on July 31, 1895. The couple moved to Seymour in 1900 and to the Gilliland community in 1910, where Mr. Miller was engaged in farming for many years.

COTTON DENIM AIDS IN MISSION WORK

Cotton denim is enabling a foreign mission to get more use from some of its educational material.

A church group in Memphis, Tenn., is making scrapbooks for use in overseas mission work with children. Instead of using paper pages, which the eager youngsters soon tear, this group is using sturdy cotton denim for the 12 by 18 inch pages.

The denim pages are filled with colorful pictures that are pasted on with ordinary glue and then shellacked.

Another first for Munday! This time it's potatoes.

Ever since the Irish potato harvest got under way several weeks ago, the spuds were trucked from here to market.

But last week, arrangements were made for rail shipment, and so far as is known, this is the first shipment of potatoes ever to go out of Munday by rail.

Six refrigerated cars were spotted here last Thursday by the Burlington lines, and soon these were being filled with locally grown potatoes. The shipment came from the farm of Gene Michels, and was made by Renfro and Colvin.

Two cars were loaded and shipped out Friday, according to M. H. Dean, local Burlington agent. They were sent to Wichita Falls, where the cars were fully refrigerated, then diverted to Southwest Brokerage Co. in Dallas.

Four other cars were filled with spuds, also from the Michels farm, but were still on the tracks Tuesday morning awaiting shipping orders, according to Mr. Dean.

Cantaloupe Harvest

With the potato harvest about over, gathering of the cantaloupe crop was also started the latter part of last week. These were also being processed at the shed operated by Renfro and Calvin just east of West Texas Utilities Co.

Over two hundred crates of cantaloupes were processed and ready for shipment early this week. Most of this crop was coming from the B. E. Smith farm, it was stated.

Meeting At Goree Church Of Christ To Begin Friday

The annual gospel meeting for the Goree Church of Christ will begin on Friday evening, July 15, it was announced this week by church officials.

Services will be held at 8 a. m. and at 8 p. m. daily, the meeting to run through Sunday, July 24.

Wheat Allotments In '56 Not Reduced By 25% Underplanting

Wheat growers whose 1956 wheat acreage is as much as 25 per cent below their farm wheat acreage allotment will get credit for full allotment acreage in calculating future farm allotments.

In other words, Chairman T. H. Jones of the Knox Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee explains, if the farm's wheat acreage for next year's harvest is only three-fourths of the farm allotment, the future wheat acreage allotments established for the farm will be figured as though the full allotment had been planted. Heretofore reductions of more than 10 per cent were considered in calculating future allotments. Each year's farm allotment, the Chairman explains, is based primarily on the farm's wheat acreage for the previous 3 years. Under the new ruling, even if the wheat acreage is as much as one-fourth less than the farm allotment, future allotments will be calculated as though the full allotment had been harvested.

THE NEWSPAPER TOPS THE LIST

Alfred G. Peterson, who is president of the National Savings and Loan League, has this to say about advertising: "I feel that advertising is a very profitable investment. But we should not buy advertising blindly. We should give careful consideration both to the appeals and the media we use."

"The medium which tops the list is the medium that reaches the greatest number of people at the lowest cost. It is my opinion the newspaper is that medium. I place the newspaper at the top of the list because it reaches the local market. All of us are really conducting local businesses. We may be bound together into a national industry, but our spheres of influence are entirely local."

"The newspaper reaches precisely the people we want to reach."

Well spoken, Mr. Peterson!

THE FAMILY FARM IS STRONGER

Is the family farm a passing institution? John Bird, associate editor of Better Farming, doesn't think so. He tells why in a Reader's Digest article carrying the dramatic title, "They're Inventing the Drudgery Out of Farm Life."

His article deals with the enormous progress that has been made in getting farm jobs done swiftly, efficiently, and economically. He writes: "Mechanization is bringing fundamental changes to U. S. farm life. Going, at last, is the traditional dawn-to-dusk drudgery which has been the age-old lot of people on the land. The up-to-date farmer has evolved into a power-minded production engineer who is quick to acquire the latest labor-saving implements and who also invents many of his own. As a result, each hour of work is becoming more productive, life in the country is more enjoyable and the family farm is growing stronger than ever."

He also observes "Ask almost any farmer, 'What is your greatest labor-saver?' and he will point to his tractor or give it a fond pat. . . . The modern model is a compact, fast-moving power package that not only pulls heavy loads but also hoists, pushes, digs, cuts, pumps, shakes and carries."

Mr. Bird goes on to describe some of the other power-operated tools that American enterprise and ingenuity have brought to agriculture. The farmers of past generations just wouldn't believe such miracles could exist. Machines are revolutionizing agriculture as completely as they are revolutionizing industry.

A GREAT STORY

An association of dry goods and variety stores recently held a convention in Chicago. Its theme was: "Plan, Promote, Sell More Than Ever Before."

In a TV appearance Secretary of Agriculture Benson said: "Retail food prices now are lower than they were two years ago."

Speaking before an advertising federation, the head of a leading food manufacturing concern said: "We would be terribly remiss if we did not record the amazing jobs being performed these days by food distributors and retailers. . . . Their net profits, after taxes, on dollar sales will not work out to an over-all average of even 1½ per cent. They are masters of the art of fast turnover, which permits attractive prices to consumers."

These items all add up to one thing. Retailing today is about as competitive an operation as anyone can imagine. Every kind of store, from the national chains to family enterprises, is out for business. That means it is trying to offer lower prices, better service, more attractive advertising, or some other inducement to the public. And that, in turn, means that the average worker's take-home pay is buying more of just about everything—clothes, appliances, food, and so on.

American retailing has a great story to tell—and it's a story everyone can listen to his advantage.

GRASS ROOTS QUINION

WEST POINT, MISS., DAILY TIMES LEADER: "TVA rates are 'cheap' only because those of us who are TVA customers are subsidized by the rest of the nation. We should look beyond our own pocketbooks to see that there is no fairness to it. The authority pays no interest on its huge investment, pays no federal taxes, and makes only small token payments in lieu of taxes to state and local governments."

New Holstein, Wis., Reuter: "During the conflict between Joseph Stalin and Leon Trotsky for control of the Communist machine in Russia in 1924, a blueprint of world conquest was drafted by the Stalinites. Stalin wrested control from Trotsky and later had him murdered. This blueprint of conquest, according to Dr. Fred Schwarz, the noted Australian scholar on Communism, calls for the conquering of Asia first, then Africa, then Western Europe, then 'to isolate' degenerate and, if necessary, devastate the U. S.'"

—SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE TIMES—

WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY?

Is church membership essential? This is a good deal like asking if breathing is essential.

God designed the life of the fish in the water. He designed the life of man in the air. Just so, He designed the life of the Christian in the church. Man can no more live outside the church than a fish can live outside the water, or man outside the air.

The church is frequently referred to as the body of Christ. God "Put all things in subjection under his feet, and gave him to be head over all things to the church, which is his body" Col. 1:18. The church is Christ's spiritual body. The only way we can be in Christ is to be in his church.

Outside of Christ there is no salvation; there is no spiritual blessing and no hope. God "Hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ Jesus" (Eph. 1:3). Paul summed it up with these words, "For all the promises of God in him are yea, and in him Amen, unto the glory of God by us" (2 Cor. 1:20). This was his way of stating that all the promises of God are in Christ Jesus. But to be in Christ is to be in his church, which is his spiritual body.

We get into Christ at the time of baptism. "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Rom. 6:3-4). When we are baptized into Christ we are buried to the old life and raised up with him to a new life. Paul then says, "If we have become united with him in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection; knowing this, that our old man was crucified with him, that the body of sin might be done away, that we should no longer be in bondage to sin; for he that hath died is justified from sin. But if we died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live with him; knowing that Christ being raised from the dead dieth no more; death no more hath dominion over him. . . . even so reckon ye also yourselves to be dead unto sin, but alive unto God in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 6:5-11). Again Paul said, "Wherefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, they are become new" (2 Cor. 5:17).

Knox Prairie Philosopher Gets His Dander Up Over Report Of A Man's "Rising Above His Life On The Farm"

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek has a tinge of irritation in his letter this week. He'll get over it.

Dear editor:
What amounts to success in life is sometimes hard to figure out.

I got to thinking about this serious subject the other day after I read in a paper about the rise to success of a politician up north.

That is, the article said he was successful, and apparently he is, as he gets elected every time he runs for Congress and he works hard at his job and his opinion is sought by leaders in industry and government.

But what got me to thinking was the choice of language used in proving he was a success.

What it said was he "rose from a farm boy."

Right off, I'd like to tell you me and that writer differ considerably on our standards of measure. If he'd said he rose from the slums, or poverty, or from illiteracy, and got elected to Congress, it might make sense, but to lump farm boys in the same class, as though being a farm boy was something to rise above, demonstrates an odd viewpoint.

Understand, this doesn't make me fighting mad, not in this hot weather, as I happen to know there're a lot of Congressmen who went to Congress because they didn't have any land to farm and wasn't doing much of anything else at the time. In fact, the article would have made just as much sense if it had said he rose from a seat in Congress and became a successful farmer, and it might surprise you how many members of Congress would give up running for office if they had the security of a good farm.

Every once in a while you hear somebody, talking about a boy who grew up on a farm and

PINK BOLLWORM RESEARCH

Cotton cultural practices, a vital factor in the control of the Pink Bollworm, are being improved through research by Texas and U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologists.

Texas has been experimenting to determine under what conditions the pink bollworm can and cannot survive the winter in stalks or trash left in cotton fields. The highest rate of insect kill was achieved from:

1. Fall plowing to bury infested cotton bolls and trash in the warm humid areas of southern Texas.

2. Allowing stalks to stand overwinter and be plowed under in the spring in colder northern Texas. (This method has not yet received full approval of all entomologists, due to the varying climatic conditions.)

Records of the percentage of kill by early plowing under of the stalks showed a survival of only .04 percent in Port Lavaca fields. The rate was higher, 1.35 percent, at Waco.

In the colder regions, allowing stalks to stand through the winter and then plowed under in the spring proved effective under ideal weather conditions. Prolonged cold resulted in a pink bollworm survival of only .01 at Lubbock, .01 at Vernon and .03 percent at Chickasha, Okla.

Generally, spring plowing under of infested trash and bolls was less effective than fall plowing in all locations. Test plots at Waco and Mount Pleasant were studied where bolls and trash were allowed to remain on the surface of the ground. This method resulted in nearly 22 percent of pink bollworm survival.

The pink bollworm is the worst of all cotton insect pests. It is found in all cotton producing areas of Texas and in parts of Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas.

This research is only one phase of an intensive program through the cotton belt aimed at developing effective ways of controlling the pest. Rigid federal and state quarantine and control programs have only slowed its spread. Complete eradication is still a remote possibility.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Luke of Muenster spent the first of this week with Mr. and Mrs. Gene Michels and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Jungman, and other relatives.

Mrs. Bill Hertel and Henrietta were business visitors in Wichita Falls last Saturday.

Post Office Department Salutes TWA

Washington, D. C.—E. George Siedle (right), Assistant Postmaster General of the United States, presents a special citation to Trans World Airlines for the company's attainment of a subsidy-free operation over both its domestic and international routes. Accepted by TWA Board Chairman Warren Lee Pierson (center), and President Ralph S. Damon, the citation expresses the appreciation of the United States Post Office Department for "the services rendered by the United States air transport industry in delivering the mails," and takes special recognition of TWA's Thirty Years of Service. The citation is signed by Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

MIXING CLEAN AND TREATED WHEAT CAN CAUSE TROUBLE

Wheat treated with any compound containing mercury should not be mixed with clean grain and offered for sale through regular trade channels. Word comes from the United States Department of Agriculture that a number of cars of treated wheat have been seized by the Food and Drug Administration and points out the problem is a serious one. The report refers to "pink wheat" a term used to describe wheat which has been treated with a mercury compound. Mixing such wheat with regular wheat makes the entire lot subject to seizure since it may not be disposed of for human food or animal feed use. Seizure would result in considerable loss to the owner or handler.

All wheat producers should be particularly careful to see that no treated wheat is mixed with regular commercial wheat being sold from the farm or stored on the farm or in commercial elevators.

Treated or pink wheat should be used only for seed or disposed of in a manner so there is no chance of it becoming mixed with commercial grain. And finally, the USDA report to the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, says the wheat may be held for seed under seal and bond and the Food and Drug Administration indicates that it may be necessary for one of their inspectors to follow the treated wheat into the field at seeding time to insure that proper disposition is made of it.

Neither Rain Nor Hail

Red Fowler, local R.F.D. mailman, got an English car—with a right-hand drive so he can stuff mailboxes from behind the wheel.

"It's great!" Red reports. "But it would work a lot better if all box holders would follow regulations. A mailbox should be 40 inches high, on the right of the road... within reaching distance from a car window. If one is knocked down, the owner should make repairs pronto."

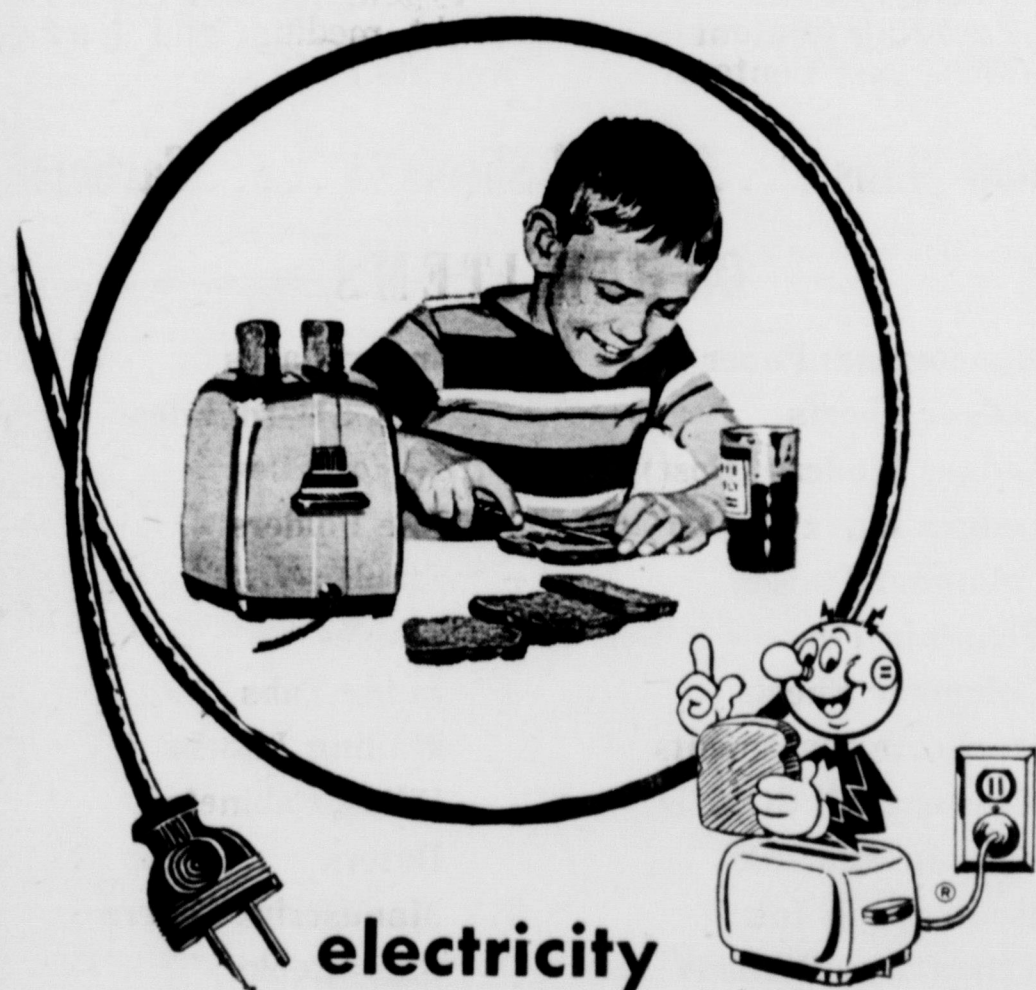

Come to think of it, Red is pretty good about his obligations—delivering packages, supplying stamps, cashing money orders—saving us trips to the Post Office. Let's fix up those boxes so he can get his chores done fast.

From where I sit, obligations always work both ways. For instance, I figure that I'm obliged to respect your right to enjoy your favorite beverage—be it coffee, tea, beer, buttermilk or whatever. Why? Because I'd expect you to do the same for me. The Golden Rule should be followed "to the letter" by everyone.

The Junior group, consisting of six girls and two boys, sang two numbers, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Preston Sheard.

The two delegates, Mrs. Catherine Jones and Fay Jones, whom the WSCS sent to the Training School for Negroes in Amarillo, gave very interesting reports on the week of training. Rev. Rutherford and Mrs. Preston Sheard also attended the Training School. Mrs. Sheard's report on Christian Leadership was outstanding.

Following the program everyone was asked to go to the recreation hall where punch and cookies were served to fifteen members and the guests, by the hostesses, Mrs. G. R. Elland, Mrs. P. V. Williams and Mrs. Walter Sherrard.

Seek Greater Wool Use

Stumberg (center) of Sander, Texas, was elected chairman of the Bureau's Board of Directors. Flanking him are W. H. Steiwer (left) of Fossil, Oregon, president of the American Wool Council, and John H. Breckenridge of Twin Falls, Idaho, president of the National Wool Growers Association.

NEW YORK, N.Y.—Programs designed to increase markets for wool in the U.S. will be intensified during the coming year, it has been announced following the annual meeting of the Wool Bureau, Inc.

Leaders of the wool growing industry have voted to expand nationwide wool promotion efforts, and step up the national consumer advertising campaign for wool.

Steve L. Stumberg of Sander, Texas, a former vice-president of the American Wool Council and past president of the Texas Sheep & Goat Raisers Association, has been elected chairman of the Bureau's Board of Directors, succeeding Jan H. Moolman of Middelburg, South Africa.

Three new members were seated on the Board of Directors of the Bureau. They are John H. Breckenridge of Twin Falls, Idaho, president of the National Wool Growers Association; C. B. Ball, chairman of the Australian Wool Bureau, and Walter Horrobin, chairman of the New Zealand Wool Board. Re-elected to the Board were W. H. Steiwer of Fossil, Oregon, president of the American Wool Council; L. F. Hartley, chairman and South African member, International Wool Secretariat; R. G. Lund, New Zealand member, International Wool Secretariat, and Mr. Moolman.

A steadily improving outlook for wool in the United States was predicted at the meetings. The brightening sentiment is evident at diversified levels, the Bureau reported, noting a rise in mill consumption of apparel wool, an increase in new orders for civilian apparel fabrics, and a sharp resurgence of wool fabrics in many markets.

BY THE SEA

There are some colorful sights down by the sea this summer when beach belles like these appear in glamorous cotton swim suits. At left, a pyramid striped cotton suit has a matching skirt in the same brown and yellow design. At right, a vivid Italian stripe cotton brightens the scene in brilliant red and white. Both the sheath and the bloomer style cotton suits are designed by Jantzen. Cotton prints are favorites for swim suits this year in a wide variety of patterns.

LET'S TALK LIVESTOCK BY TED GOULDY

Midsummer Cattle Movement Resumes Heavy Proportions

FORT WORTH—Searing summer sun that scorched pastures and threatened some promising crops over much of the Southwest started the cattle and calves rolling to market this week in normal heavy seasonal numbers. Prices on grassy cattle and on calves weakened all down the line with 50 cent declines general and some sales fully $1 per hundred off.

Despite the weaker fed cattle market across the Corn Belt, the small numbers of fed steers and yearlings that arrived at Fort Worth sold steady to strong, and some supplementary fed grass steers were a bit higher. A shipment of Montague County fed grassers sold at $21.25, and several loads of their mates sold earlier had brought only $21.

Comparative prices at Fort Worth Monday: Good and choice fed steers and yearlings $19 to $22.50; medium and plainer kinds $11-$18. Fat cows $10-$13; canners and cutters $6-$10; bulls $10-$14. Slaughter calves $10-$19; stocker steer calves $21.50 down; steer yearlings $19.50 down; and stocker cows $8-$12.

Lots Of Feed In Making; Low Hog Prices Seen
Butcher hogs topped at $18.50 to $18.75 at Fort Worth Monday, a gain of 25 cents over last week's close. Sows at $11 or $16 were steady to strong.

On nationally circulated agricultural tip-sheet that originates in Washington says some observers are fearing a $12 top on hogs next winter when the big crop in the making goes to town. It quotes others as saying something like $15 hogs is in prospect.

While that $12 figure looks too bearish, it is a fact that if the weather is kind for the rest of the crop season the feed grain production, especially corn and grain sorghums, is going to be tremendous.

Some forecasters say if the crop makes next winter could bring $1 to $1.25 corn, with more "free corn" available from acreage planted outside quotas.

At any rate it looks like a big year for feeding livestock and poultry coming up in the next 12 months and that the feeder will have to couple good management with good judgment to make it a really big profitable year.

Feeder Calf Buyers Showed Little Fear

Along this line it is noteworthy that feeder calf buyers at the Hereford calf sale June 30, and the Angus calf sale July 8 at Fort Worth were anything but timid.

Top two loads of Hereford calves sold at $24 and $24.25, the higher figure for a load from Turner Greenwade, Clifton, Texas, and the $24 figure bought a load from Herman Carr of Weatherford, Texas.

A week later in the face of a stronger feeder market the Angus calves did even better. Top lots of feeder calves sold at $25, the highest prices in well over a year at Fort Worth.

Lots of Angus calves at the high figure were consigned from the R. E. Pratt ranch at Sulphur Springs and the H. D. Ranch at Alvord. (Those fancy calves from Sulphur Springs in Hopkins County had a lot of folks looking at them and many people unfamiliar with the giant strides East Texas cattlemen are making in improvement of quality were flabbergasted. The same surprise was noted in some of the Hereford calves, especially one lot from Eastern Oklahoma that almost copied a championship.)

Lambs Open Weak To 50 Cents Lower Monday

Slaughter Spring lambs of good to choice kinds sold at $18 to $20.50 at Fort Worth Monday. Medium and lower grades sold from $10 to $17, a few culls under $10. Feeder Spring lambs sold from $13 to $15. These prices were 50 cents under last week's close, with spots off more.

Yearling lambs and older sheep sold steady. Fat yearling lambs cashed at $14 to $15, and the medium and lower grades sold from $8 to $12. Old ewes $4 to $5. Old bucks around $3.50 to $4. Old wethers $7 to $10.50, and two-year-old muttons $12 down.

Blue Tongue Reported In West Texas Sheep

The San Angelo Standard Times reported last week some outbreaks of blue tongue reported in some West Texas areas, and some cases in the Fort Stockton area. Vaccination can be a help in controlling this malady if done in time, and losses can be severe in some cases.

TRANSFERRED TO ARIZONA

Lt. Gerald Morrow, son of Mrs. Freddie Morrow, has been visiting with his mother and other relatives and friends the past week. Lt. Morrow has just completed five weeks of gunnery at Laughlin Air Force Base in Del Rio. He has been transferred to Luke Air Force Base in Phoenix, Ariz., where he will fly the F-84F fighters.

P. V. Williams was a business visitor in Dallas the first of this week.

NUMEROUS FACTORS ENTER INTO SUCCESSFUL COTTON DEFOLIATION

The ever-increasing use of machines in the harvesting of cotton has also increased the use of defoliants and desiccants. The success or failure of the job, says Fred C. Elliott, extension cotton specialist, depends on several factors. These include the characteristics of the chemicals and the rate and volume applied; method of application; climatic conditions, especially moisture and temperature, cultural practices, such as fertilization and plant density and the varieties grown.

Under conditions of normal growth and with dew plentiful, Elliott says calcium cyanamide should give good results.

The material should be applied when plants are wet with dew and remain in leaf moisture for at least two hours and preferably four.

If dew is not present and with lower soil moisture and windier conditions, the specialist says amino triazole, Endothal and the various chlorates work better. Good to excellent results have been obtained from a mixture—half the recommended rate of amino triazole with one of the water soluble defoliants also applied as a spray. This new material acts as a growth retarder and will be available for use this year.

As desiccants for use in connection with stripper harvest, Elliott recommends the use of "Penta" formulations or Cotton Defoliant 713-D. These materials are suggested for dry conditions where the sub-soil moisture is low and the plants small. These materials should not be used if harvesting is to be done with a spindle type picker, and only after 90 percent of the bolls open.

Elliott suggests to any cotton producer interested in detailed information on cotton defoliation, a visit to the local county agent's office. Ask for a copy of L-145, Cotton Defoliation Guide in Texas. The leaflet has recently been revised. It may also be obtained from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station.

News From The U. S. Congress

Congressman Frank Ikard

Hearings are now being held before the House Foreign Affairs Committee on Article 7 of the "Status of Forces Treaty" which makes American troops based in NATO Nations subject to criminal procedures of the courts of the country where the troops are based. We also have a similar treaty with Japan. Under this treaty, the troops stationed in foreign countries who are parties to this treaty can be tried for any crime that they might be accused of in the courts and under the laws of that foreign country. There unquestionably should be revisions made in the treaty and this provision modified. Our military personnel serving abroad certainly must not be allowed to avoid punishment of any crime they might commit, but even more important, they are entitled and must be assured the guarantees of the type of justice which this country would provide for them and which we guarantee to all our citizens. It is absolutely wrong that this Nation should require its youth to go abroad for the purpose of helping maintain freedom in the world and at the same time refuse to guarantee to these American soldiers the very freedom which they seek to preserve. Immediate action needs to be taken here in the Congress to correct this intolerable situation.

It is too early, of course, to evaluate the work done by this session of Congress; however, as the session comes to a close, it is evident that during this session we have seen less partisanship than at any other time in recent years. Generally speaking, most issues have been presented strictly on their merit and without any effort generally to bring out what are generally considered to be strictly partisan votes. The result has been that the work of the Congress has been carried on much smoother and with fewer of the pointless personal and partisan issues consuming as much time as they have in the past. There is no question but what the country generally has profited by this attitude.

I have a very limited number of a document containing the Prayers offered by the Rev. Peter Marshall at the opening of the daily session of the Senate from 1947-1949. If anyone would like a copy of these Prayers, I would be glad for them to drop me a note and to furnish a copy as long as my supply lasts.

Visitors from home this week were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ward.

Texas Farm And Ranch Values Up Two Percent

Purchase price of Texas farm and ranch land in 1954 was two percent more than in 1953, or an average of $70.20 an acre.

Although this slight gain represented a new price level, the number of sales dropped to the lowest level since 1940 and the acreage transferred was the smallest in land market record history.

"Continued drought, decreases in agricultural prices, acreage allotments and 'tight' holdings of land tended to depress land market activity," William G. Adkins, agricultural economist at Texas A. & M. College, explained. Fewer Veterans Land Board purchases and modifications of that program helped push the sales volume down.

Attempts to enlarge units, demand for irrigated acreages, mineral activity and urban and industrial development were factors tending to increase market activity.

Adkins reported that owner-operators were the principal buyers in 1954 and farm size continued to grow. Tenants made only 10 percent of the purchases. "Family-type" farm units continued to be in strong demand, bringing premium prices.

Land price increases were most significant in the Panhandle wheat, High Plains cotton and Lower Rio Grande Valley areas. Price declines were notable in the Upper Rio Grande Valley irrigated area, the Post-Oak country and in the Rolling Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Welborn and Gaston and Mrs. Clayton Wren and Erwin were visitors in Walters, Okla., last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Combs and LuAnn spent several days last week with relatives and friends in Plainview and Amarillo.

Little Cathy Fancher of Dallas visited her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Price, several days last week.

None of us believe in making our own shoes. If we did, we couldn't wear them. They would be either too big or too small. We depend upon a shoemaker—a specialist—to do the job, and pay him for his skill and his work.

With hundreds of different kinds of insurance on the market, only a specialist can successfully guide you in building an adequate insurance program, one which fits you, your property and your pocket book.

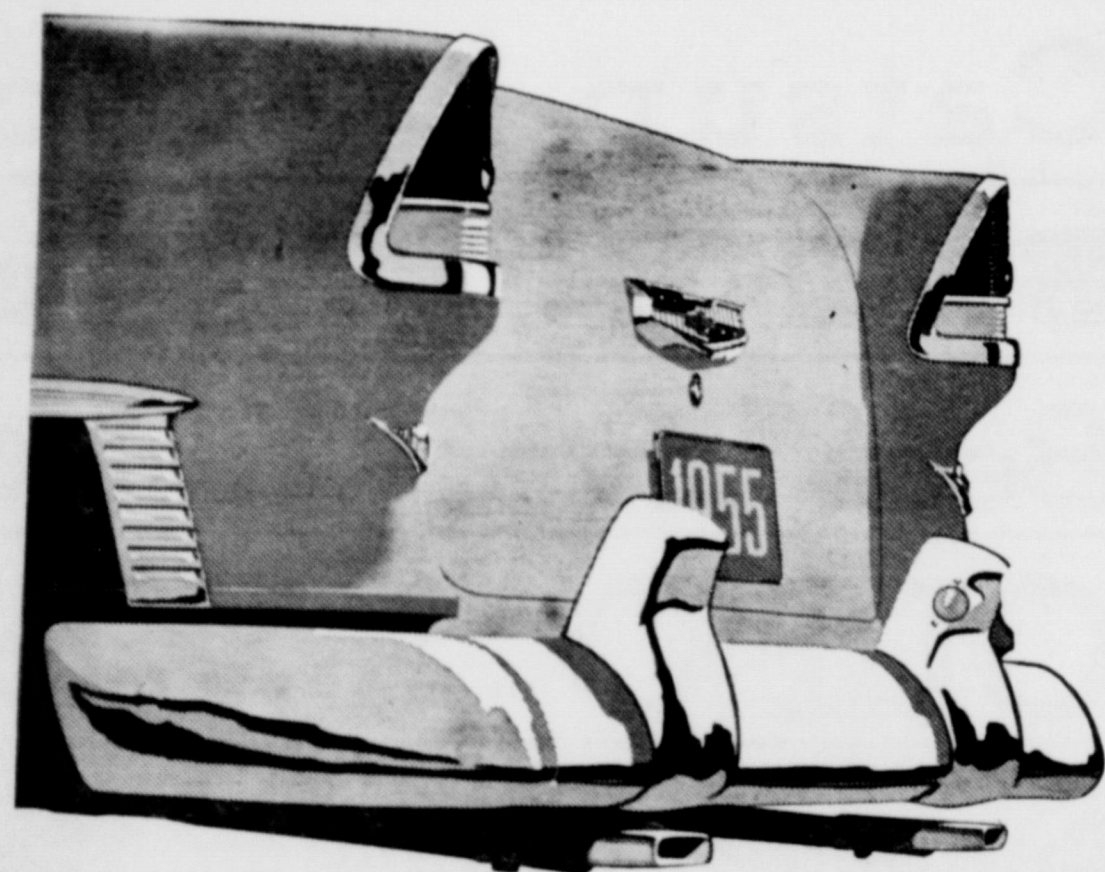

The PINCH of an insurance policy too small for you is infinitely worse than the pinch of a misfit shoe. For a satisfactory "fit" call me today.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Holle,
M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

AUSTIN—The present trend to "do-it-yourself" results in a lot of happy hobbyists but "do it yourself" in case of illness is foolish and dangerous, declared Dr. Henry A. Holle, Commissioner of Health. Too many of our citizens, when indisposed, jump at conclusions as to what is wrong with them and go to the drug store for a bottle of advertised medicine.

This ignoring of the existence of physicians and relying upon self-diagnosis is a bad gamble with ill health. For these persons, for all practical purposes, have isolated themselves as far as medical service is concerned.

In fact, they persist in this ignorant or careless complacency until they become acutely ill, when at last they call for professional medical service—which frequently is too late.

It is indeed too bad that so many persons deliberately raise a barrier between themselves and the family physician. Considering him only as supplementary aid when the situation gets personally out of hand, there are literally thousands who through delay have made it impossible for medical science to render its best service and thus were penalized by a protracted illness, a chronic disease, or the premature termination of life.

It follows that many people, with great profit could surrender this "do it yourself" idea and appreciate the physician for what he really is. When his abilities are more generally given an opportunity to be applied early, when his advice on living habits is sought, and when he is considered as the only person to be relied upon to conserve health and treat illness, then, and then only, will the present remarkable service that medical science stands ready to give be afforded its maximum opportunity for good.

Mrs. J. W. Henderson of Olton visited in the home of Mrs. Freddie Morrow, and other relatives over the week end. They also visited Mr. and Mrs. Deon Martin in Abilene.

TRAVELER

Maid of Cotton De Lois Faulkner picks a trim, wrinkle-resistant cotton suit as one of her smart travel fashions. The blue-eyed Oklahoma girl knows a good travel costume when she sees it, for she already has covered thousands of miles on her tour in behalf of the cotton industry. Still ahead of her is a trans-Atlantic flight on a BOAC airliner for a month's visit in five European nations.

THE DEBT IS OUTLAWED

John hadn't made any payment on an open account of his grocery bill for two and one-half years. He was not a dishonest man, but was just a poor manager. After several years, the groceryman sued for the bill.

John's attorney interposed the defense of the statute of limitations, and the groceryman was denied judgment. Yet there was no question but that John owed the money. One may ask why the laws permit such a defense as the statute of limitations, or out-law an otherwise valid claim.

The groceryman slept on his rights. He should have acted sooner. The courts cannot be used for processing stale claims. Proof of such claims is more difficult. One litigant might wait for the only adverse witness to die, and then sue. Memories grow dim and sometimes are modified to fit the desired views. So the law says it is no injustice to force a litigant to act within a reasonable time, whereas, if he doesn't, injustice is more likely to happen.

Practically all actions have time limitations. With some it is very short, as some claims against a municipality require that notice to the municipality must be given within ten days after the accident. On the other hand there is a 25 year limitation applying to some types of claims involving rights to real property.

Even criminal actions must be brought within a certain period, usually two to three years. An exception is a murder charge, which may be brought at any time.

Lawyers use the word "laches" in certain cases to indicate that the litigant slept on his rights and should be denied relief since "equity aids the vigilant."

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts because the facts may change the application of the law.)

Back in 1924, I was editor of the Cisco Daily News and my good friend, the late E. H. Whitehead, assistant high school football coach, did some spare-time reporting.

News was rather scarce. One night there was a burglary and, a few nights later, another. So Whitehead linked the two as the work of one man and gave him the name of Burglar Bill.

There was a whole series of robberies and the News soon had the town jittery about Burglar Bill.

The publisher of the News had lived in Cisco only a short while. One morning when Whitehead didn't have time to bring his news writeups to the office before going to school, he left the front door unlocked and the publisher volunteered to go out to Whitehead's house and bring the news items to me.

When the publisher came out of the house and started to get in his car, two officers drove up and placed him under arrest. A neighbor had seen him go into the house and figured he was Burglar Bill. The suspect protested vigorously but was escorted to the police station. There, he established his identity and was set free.

And when he got back to the News office, he gave the editor these instructions:

"No more stories in the paper about Burglar Bill!"

Add to the list of things that irk me:

For a man to wait patiently in an office for half an hour to see an executive, at last go in and hardly start explaining his proposition when the phone rings and the executive talks for 10 minutes and by that time has forgotten what the visitor had told him. So the visitor starts over—and the phone rings again and another 10-minute conversation follows.

I think that when a man calls in person and waits his turn, he is entitled to the courtesy of being given precedence over just anybody who exerts only enough energy to take the receiver off the hook and dial a number.

Recent guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Ballard were Mr. and Mrs. Don Jacobs and children of Truscott, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Struck and children of Goree, Mr. and Mrs. Pate Meinzer and children of Benjamin, Mrs. Bill Guier and children of Mill City, Ore., John Cole and Glenda, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Cole of Vera, Kenneth and Donnie Cole of Bentley and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Williams and little daughter, Sue, of Big Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Fuller and children of Weatherford were recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Proffitt, and other relatives here and in Goree.
