Tragic Death Setting

BY H. B. BURTON

CHICAGO, March 12. (AP) — "Hey Jake!' Play Hy Schneider in the fourth!"

Three men in a rakish automobile wheeled slowly by the corner of Randolph street and Michigan avenue last June, shouting their tip to a bustling little man with a "racing form" thrust in his pocket.

"Yeh," he shouted back, "I've got him." He stepped briskly down into a pedestrian subway of the Illinois Central railroad.

SETTING PICTURED

This is the second of a series of three stories dealing with the slaying of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago reporter, the dramatic setting at the scene of the assassination, and the stories of those who saw him die.

Did Not Finish

Hy Schneider, a gelding of the Valley Lake stable, did not finish in the money that day at Homewood race track, but he was the medium for a grim pay-off in the echoing cavern under Chicago's busiest boulevard, in the shadow of the public library.

For half way through the tunnel, there was the roar of a pistol and the little fellow dropped—dead. He was Jake Lingle, crime reporter for the Chicago Tribune.

And Hy Schneider, as police later reconstructed the murder, served to "put the finger" on Lingle—to identify him to a hired assassin who never before had seen his victim. That assassin, prosecutors now say, was Leo V. Brothers, St. Louis, who goes to trial for murder soon.

Confusion Everywhere

But the sunny June 9 that Lingle was killed, no one could point a

Fire attributed to sparks from a flu of an adjoining building caused damage to the one-story frame quarters of the Montgomery Storage and Transfer company at Main street and Avenue F.

Chopping a hole in the roof, firemen inserted small hose and soon extinguished the fire. The loss was estimated at $15.

Witnesses Are Called Before Jury Thursday

C. J. Coder And Lewis Hurst, Communist Organizers, Are Thought To Have Been Kidnaped From City Hall

Reporter Talks

Edmund Barr, Reporter Jailed For Contempt Of Court, Released After Revealing Name Of Informant

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, March 12. — Developments came slowly today in the grand jury investigation into reports that C. J. Coder and Lewis Hurst, communist organizers, were kidnaped from the city hall steps after their release from jail here last Thursday night and flogged. Hurst and Coder still had not been found.

The principal event during the day was the release from jail of Edmund Barr, Dallas Dispatch reporter, who previously had refused to tell the grand jury who gave him information on which he based a story written last Friday. Barr was sentenced to jail for contempt and fined $100. He said he "could not betray a confidence."

Ready To Answer

After a conference today with Sawnie R. Aldridge, attorney for the Dallas Dispatch, Barr sent word by Aldridge to Judge Grover Adams that he was ready to answer the question.

The name he gave in court under oath, and later to the grand jury, as that of his informant, was Norman Register, an assistant in the office of District Attorney William McCraw. Barr said Register had telephoned him concerning the kidnaping and that later he had talked personally with Register.

Both Register and District Attorney McCraw denied Barr's assertion, McCraw asserting it was "a figment of Barr's imagination."

Ku Klux Is Named

Barr, in his story, had attributed the kidnapping and flogging to the Ku Klux Klan. The grand jury was seeking the basis for this assertion. Register, in an interview, admitted he rented a building to the Klan, but refused to say whether or not he was a member.

Among witnesses heard by the grand jury today were Barr and

After 61 Years Without An Execution, Kansas Seeks Again To Restore Capital Punishment To State

(By The Associated Press)

TOPEKA, Kan., March 12. (AP)—After 61 years without an execution, the state of Kansas is preparing to restore capital punishment.

The electric chair will be used to cope with present day crime conditions if Gov. Harry Woodring approves bills passed by the legislature today making first degree murder and robbery with fire arms capital offenses, and providing for installation of a chair at the state penitentiary.

The governor, who is personally opposed to capital punishment, would not disclose what action he would take. However, he said recently he would sign the measures if they passed the senate with "overwhelming" majorities similar to the three-to-one vote by which they were adopted by the house.

On final passage in the senate, the bills received majorities of nearly three to one.

University Of Minnesota Students Are Suspended For Liquor Drinking

(By The Associated Press)

ST. PAUL, March 12.—Reports of drinking and bootlegging at the University of Minnesota farm school brought suspensions to 17 students today and a threat of investigation of the liquor situation at the University of Minnesota by the legislature.

Simultaneously University of Minnesota authorities announced they were investigating suspected liquor law violations near the campus. An official statement said "bootleggers and purveyors of liquor have been increasing their activities around the campus at a rapid rate," and President Lotus D. Coffman declared he wanted "a general cleanup" of the situation.

J. O. Christianson, acting principal of the farm school, an academic institution similar to a high school, ordered the suspensions.

There appearance preceded an announcement by Rep. Joseph A. Kozlak, Minneapolis, that he would introduce a resolution in the house tomorrow calling for a legislative investigation into the university liquor situation.

Bringing weird evidence that grim vengeance had had its play, Francisco Fimbres, rancher near Douglas, Ariz., has returned from the wilds of northern Mexico with the scalps of three Apache Indians whom Fimbres and his expedition killed while searching for his kidnaped son, held prisoner by the Indians since 1926. Fimbres' wife was murdered by the Indians at the time they made off with his child. This was his second expedition of revenge and he is shown here (kneeling, right) with his grisly trophies and some of his hardy band. He thinks the child, now about eight years old, is still alive.

Oil Well Out Of Control In Reagan Field

Oil Showering Through Steel Derrick To Drench Workmen In Pale Yellow Cloud; Being Forced By Gas

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANGELO, March 12.—Forty-eight hours after it burst its steel bonds at an undetermined point beenath the surface, the latest and largest of the world's deepest oil producers, Group Number One Oil corporation's No. 4-B University, in Reagan county, early tonight continued to flow out of control at a total depth of 8,587 feet. Oil of 61 gravity, forced by gas that gauged 66,000,000 cubit feet before the well was tubed, overflowed the cellar, was being piped aside and was showering through the steel derrick in a pale yellow cloud, drenching workmen in slickers and rubber boots.

Ascertaining, if possible, whether the oil was coming from behind the nine-inch casing or the seven-inch pipe, which was cemented at 8,050 feet, was the first problem to be solved and in an effort to do this the oil in the caller was being lowered by steam jet, being so light that pumps would not handle it. Pressure had been raised from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds in a further effort to establish a correct oil-gas ratio when the well blew out, the Bradenhead failing to hold, and it was thought most likely that either the seven-inch pipe parted or the cement gave away.

Nebraska Republican Stoutly Rejects President Hoover As A "Power Trust" Man And Not Acceptable

Tongues Wagging

Continues Speech By Saying, "We Need Another Roosevelt In The White House"; Makes No Recommendation

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The conference of political independents focused its attention on the 1932 presidential race in its closing hours today with a demand by Senator Norris for the election of a "progressive president."

Rejecting President Hoover, as a "power trust" man, the Nebraska republican also gave notice to the democrats that a candidate chosen on the platform offered by Chairman Raskob would not do.

Tongues Set Wagging

Political tongues were set to wagging by the Nebraskan's declaration that "We need another Roosevelt in the White House," but he mentioned no specific candidate and conceded inability of a third party to be successful a year hence.

When asked later if his reference to "another Roosevelt" meant Governor Roosevelt, of New York, prominently mentioned democratic candidate, Senator Norris smiled and said: "I never thought about that."

Speech Broadcast

The Norris speech, broadcast over the Columbia Radio systems, opened the final discussion of the conference—on public utilities, which Senator Norris has projected as the dominant issue of the next campaign.

Under the leadership of Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, the conference received proposals for a five-day week establishment of an economic council, and greater expansion of federal construction as aids for unemployment.

LaFollette also leveled criticism at the Hoover administration, and asserted the industrial, financial and political leadership of the nation had been broken down.

Boulder Dam Project, Greatest Of Modern Engineering Jobs, Started

(By The Associated Press)

LAS VEGAS, Nev., March 12. —A hard rock engineer today quietly started one of the biggest engineering jobs of modern history, the taming of the Colorado river.

Frank T. Crowe, construction superintendent, whose outfit, the Six Companies, inc., of San Francisco, has been awarded the $48,890,955 contract to build the Boulder dam and power houses, started the day by opening an office here. Then he went back to Black Canyon, where during the next six and a half years his job will be to build a dam 727 feet high, larger than any ever before constructed.

"We must have a place to eat and sleep before we can put men to work there," he said, and he spread out plans for the construction camp. "This starts at once, for while 80 per cent of our men, as set forth in specifications, will live in the government's Boulder City, we must have several small camps.

"That's the beginning, and the first real job is the construction of a railroad down the canyon connecting the government railroad with the dam site. This railroad will handle all the equipment going into the canyon, and all the waste

Three Bull Circles Are Maintained In Lamb County And First Exchange Will Be In Next Three Months

(By Staff Correspondent)

AMHERST, March 12.—Lamb county has three bull circles, organized about two years ago, with the first exchange of bulls scheduled to take place within the next three months.

The circles were organized in the summer of 1929 and the animals cost approximately $200 each. Records show an average service of 40 per animal, D. A. Adams, county agent, says.

When the circles were organized Bailey county adjoining did not have a county agent. At that time two men from the county were included in one of the circles and two in another. Both groups were organized along the Bailey-Lamb county line.

The third circle is around Littlefield. Members of the circles are: W. M. Poole, B. O. Byerly, Steve Sullivan and H. W. West in one of the double-county circles: S. R. Little, G. W. Terry, A. E. Mann, and W. C. Quisenberry in the other. At Littlefield members are: J. W. Emfinger, C. E. Kemp, R. B. McWhorter and H. P. Bennett.

"Besides the bull circles we have probably 50 or 60 other animals," Mr. Adams said. "They are all good animals. The bull circle animals are all Jerseys."

Silver Tea Is Sponsored By Asbury Methodist Women Here Thursday

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

ALTHOUGH I'm not exactly sure why I'm always hunting up advice to offer women who want to reduce, here is some more. Jeanette Eaton, who is a former beauty editor and about whom I know exactly nothing more, advocates rhythmic dancing for those "who would like to keep their youthfulness without relinquishing either good sense or humor."

This form of beauty culture not only gives delightful recreation but training in rhythm and is an aid in preserving resilience of the skin, firmness and suppleness of muscles and in stimulating circulation, according to Miss Eaton, who suggests that if one presists she is likely to emerge from the class "a slim and flexible edition of her old self."

So now, all I have to do is to organize a class and prove that it works without too much effort and we'll all be sylphlike again!

FOR CHILDREN'S PARTY

THIS isn't an idea that I've tested and found true, but it sounded good, so I'll pass it on to those who give children's parties. Take several twigs and cover with silver or tinfoil; wire together to form a small tree. On each twig and in notches stick various colored gumdrops. Later on let the children pick off the candies. It makes a novel and pretty decoration, especially if placed on a mirror base.

IT WON'T WORK

SOME Parisians in a style show of evening wear the other day tried something new—bare feet for the mannequins, who wore high-heeled sandals and, whether or not the evening gowns received any attention, the toes had it that night.

Here was a new fad that certainly might be sensational and strangely enough, women, who are supposed to accept any innovation simply for the novelty of the thing, were none too anxious to accept this new style. And even the mannequins—suave, immaculate and all that didn't seem to enjoy the show any too well, unless they happened to have feet that were able to face the occasion and some of them did not.

Maybe I'm wrong, but I don't think this fad is going over so big. Tight ill-fitting shoes have been worn too long so that there are few beautiful feet left and no fad is going to last with women if it makes them appear less beautiful.

NON-SCRATCH ORNAMENTS

IF YOU are desirous of protecting the polished tops of various articles of furniture, cut pieces of soft felt from discarded hats, glue these pieces to the bottoms of vases, book-ends, lamps and such and then trim the felt even with the bottoms of the ornaments. These may be placed anywhere without fear of marring a polished surface.

IF WE could dispense with spring days during working hours it would be a great boon to office people. I don't think I ever saw any figures on lowered efficiency during days such as we are having this week but there probably are some for it certainly is lower.

Young men's fancies aren't the only ones that stray when the sun comes out and invites everyone into the open. Somewhere recently I read something disparaging about people who had the urge to grub around in the dirt in the spring but that's the sort of urge I have, anyway, and I'm mentioning it without apologies. There have been few springs in my life that I haven't taken a lot of flower seed out of bright colored packages and buried them for all time. Once these seed are safely covered with dirt they are never heard of again, but my desire for planting things has been satisfied.

OUR CITY PARKS

THERE seems to be more interest than usual in parks this spring and in a few more years we should have some actual beauty spots here. The park in front of the new high school out on 19th street is already beginning to be attractive since shrubs have been place in it.

The Lions club is making elaborate plans for beautifying a plot down near City Park and other parks are receiving improvements.

Women's clubs are being given an opportunity to place rose gardens, fountains or other improvements in these parks as a sort of memorial and they probably will do something. It will offer the City Federation or individual clubs an opportunity to erect a memorial of which the members can be proud and at the same time more beauty will be added to the city.

Anything that is done to beautify the town is not wasted effort. As a magnificent sort of thing, this country can't be excelled in beauty, but small plots need some embellishment and parks over the city will supplement the beauty of lawns and gardens about homes.

"Although I am only 22 years old, I have four babies to care for. Before my first baby was born my mother urged me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so terribly weak. Reveal Issues In Naval Pact

Limitation Of French And Italian Naval Programs Definitely Laid Down In Naval Accord Terms

BY KRANK H. KING

LONDON, March 12. (AP)—Limitation of French and Italian naval programs until 1936 is definitely, laid down in the terms of the British-Franco-Italian naval accord made public today.

But even more important than its technical provisions, in the opinion of the three governments concerned, the agreement brings European peace measureably closer and provides a point of departure for the disarmament conference at Geneva next year.

Programs Covered

The accord covers building programs for battleships, cruisers, aircraft-carriers and submarines in substance as follows.

Battleships — Both France and Italy are given the right to complete before December, 1936, two capital ships whose displacement shall not exceed 23,333 tons and whose gun calibre shall not exceed twelve inches.

Cruisers—Both nations agree that after completion of the 1930 class they will build no more big cruisers with armament larger than six-inch guns. In the small cruiser catecategory they agree that tonnage of new construction to be completed shall not exceed the tonnage which is replaceable in this category bebore December 31, 1936.

Aircraft-carriers — Each nation may build 34,000 tons in this category.

Submarines—Both countries agree not to include any submarines in the 1931 program and not to lay down any further submarine tonnage before 1933.

Maintains Superitority

The essence of the agreement is maintainance of the status quo in tonnage ratios, France retaining an estimated superiority of 150,000 tons.

The terms were made public here in the form of a memorandum to parliament by Arthur Henderson, the foreign secretary, and A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, who achieved the agreement in conferences with representatives of France and Italy.

When the accord is formally signed—a ceremony for which the date has not yet been set—the official text will be made public and become available for use at the Geneva disarmament conference. Negotiations among the interested powers, including the United States and Japan, as to the best method of associating the agreement formally with the London naval treaty signed last spring.

Firing Squad Ceases, Mexico Changes Against-The-Wall Policy On Killing

Central Press Correspondent

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, March 12.—Is the dramatic Mexican firing squad, which in past decades has played such a prominent part in Mexico's history, becoming passe? Because of a tendency towards lenience by the present Mexican government, and because of the prevalent state of internal peace, the past year did not see a single such execution, at least as far as has been made public.

Tales of executions of past years—many of them in graveyards because of the convenience of the burial that follows and because such a background appeals to the Latin imagination — sound strange as fiction. There have been few military executions in Mexico — they can probably be counted on the fingers of one hand—in which the unfortunate rebel has not taken his stance with firm step and has accepted his doom with the nonchalance befitting his turbulent career.

Galindo's Case

There is the case of General Celestino Galindo, who headed the "cristeros" or religious rebels in the state of Michoacan during the recent "cristero revolution." Galindo was captured about a year and a half ago by federal troops, and he owes his life to the "manana" spirit of his fellow countryman.

He was taken to a cemetery in a lonely Michoacan village. In accordance with the time-worn Mexican code of execution, he was given a last wish just before taking his final stance. His wish was to be permitted to live a few minutes longer. As such last wishes always are, it was granted. The fallen "cristero" leader smoked a cigarette, with apparent enjoyment. Twenty minutes passed, and no one seemed to be in a hurry to start executing. The general leisurely took his money out of his pocket and distributed it among the men who were to execute him—another custom usually observed at Mexican executions.

Slowly General Galindo walked to take his stance at the wall, and without any outward display of emotion he prepared to face his doom, when a dramatic deliverance caused leveled rifles to be lowered. A courier presented himself at the last moment with a message from General Saturnino Cedillo, commandant of the government forces charged with the campaign against the religious rebels, ordering Galindo's freedom, because his capture had taken place while a truce was in effect.

Farewell Cry

"Viva Crosto Rey!" has been the cry of many a cristero just before the crack of the life-ending rifles. "Long Live Christ the King!" That was the fervent cry of Father Aristeo Pedroza, "cristero" commander-in-chief, when he was shot to death in a hand-to-hand grapple with the execution chief, Lieutenant Maurelio M. Vasels, just outside the Arandas cemetery in the state of Jalisco.

An execution that profoundly stirred the entire Catholic world was that of Father Miguel Pro and three confederates in 1927, for implication in the attempted assassination of President Obregon at that time. A bomb was thrown at Obregon, and Father Pro, his brother Humberto, Segura Vilchis, a young engineer and ardent Catholic, and a fourth prominent church figure, were executed for it. When Obregon was assassinated two years later, his slayer, young Jose Toral, faced the firing squad for the crime.

It is significant that Daniel Flores recently went on trial for the attempted assassination of President Ortiz Rubio a year after he shot the chief executive in the jaw. In former years Flores' execution would have been certain.

Mexico's new penal code, banning the death penalty for all except persons convicted of a military crime, has been before a revisory commission. The fate of the clause that forbids the firing squad has not yet been made public.

Mild Taste Of What Is To Come In Senate Revealed On Thursday

AUSTIN, March 12 (AP)—Indications of what is to come when the $200,000,000 state highway bond issue flashed in the senate today when Senator Woodul, author of the resolution, moved that it be set for special order next Wednesday morning. The motion was adopted.

Senator Greer was on his feet, as were other senators, with a motion to reconsider the vote. The Greer motion prevailed and Woodul withdrew his.

Woodul said he would ask that the resolution be taken up next Wednesday morning.

Senator Parrish asked if Senator Woodul held that bills or resolutions could be set ahead as Woodul had requested. Lieutenant Governor Edgar Witt, presiding, said the chair would withhold ruling on Woodul's proposal and rule on the question at the time the Houston senator proposed to take up his resolution.

The senate initiated a new order, adjourning at 11 a. m. until 9 a. m. tomorrow morning. It adopted a report of its caucus committee in which was outlined a program for committee meetings during the afternoon and tomorrow. The committee recommended that the senate adjourn tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. until Monday.

Senator Woodul of Houston told the senate Captain Frank Hawks had accepted an invitation of the senate to appear before it and would fly here from Wichita, Kan., to address its membership at 3 p. m. Monday.

Senator Moore of Greenville introduced a bill asking that election judge and other election officials be prohibited from betting on the outcome of elections.

Farmers Becoming More Interested

Twelve more drouth loan checks, three from St. Louis and nine from Fort Worth were received Thursday at the office of J. B. Shannon, in charge of applications from Lubbock county, it was announced. This brings the total number of checks received for federal crop production loans up to 95.

"This makes 19 returns out of the 21 applications we had sent to Fort Worth, up to Thursday morning when we sent eight more," Miss Ethel Hicks, assistant to Mr. Shannon stated.

Receipt of checks is stimulating the number of inquiries about how to secure federal loans according to Mr. Shannon.

Olton Puts In Its Rail Bid

SYMPATHIES of The Morning Avalanche are decidedly with Olton in the Lamb county capital's effort to secure a railroad. In petitioning the Interstate Commerce commission to change the proposed route of the Texas & Pacific-Northern—if construction of the line is approved—Olton is fighting for its rights and for the opportunity to go ahead.

About two years ago the Panhandle & Santa Fe proposed to build from Hale Center west to Parmerton, intersecting Olton. The proposal was defeated.

Olton has made efforts to secure a branch line connecting it with Plainview, or a branch line connecting it with Amherst or Littlefield. These efforts have likewise come to naught.

But the cruelest blow of all came when, in the ambitious proposal of the Texas & Pacific-Northern to connect Big Spring with Vega, Olton was the only important point in the territory affected to be missed by the proposed line.

For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with Olton and the Olton territory, some of the finest farm land in the South Plains area is therein contained. It's a good cotton country, a fair wheat country, a good feed country—as well as being adapted to poultry raising, dairying and stock-raising. Luscious fruits and vegetables will abound in the Olton section and all in all it is hard to beat anywhere in this great section.

Despite its rail reversals, Olton has gone ahead.

Its business men, its oldtimers and newcomers have builded, slowly, a commendable trading point with brick buildings, several churches and an especially fine school system. Olton proposes to to ahead—to build bigger and better—and it needs a railroad to do it.

The Morning Avalanche can see no reason why Olton shouldn't be included in the T&P-N route if that line is permitted. To be sure, the swing of the route would be a little wider, but we believe the added business at and through Olton would more than make up for the change. And what appeals to us is Olton's stand in the matter of the T&P-N—and every other line proposed to intersect it.

"We aren't trying to profit by bringing the railroad to Olton at the expense of some other town," the Oltonites say. "We don't want to profit that way. We want the road to go to every town on its proposed map—but we want it to come to Olton, too."

One cannot fall out with that kind of argument—and can't fail to support it.

PRESIDENTS AND POLITICS

It has been said that since the establishment of party conventions no great man has been nominated for the presidency, except by accident. This is true at least to the extent that national conventions usually come to a close with a large proportion of the people convinced that the party could have done better in the selection of a nominee.

But it is one of the traditions of American politics that truly great men seldom seek or have forced upon them high positions of public trust. They do not play politics, and the deep-seated instinct of political managers is to emphasize eligibility rather than ability. Politicians do not like men who have attained their eminence without serving their time at the political trade.

Is the best too good for the American voters? The result of giving preference to eligibility over ability is too often a compromise on mediocrity. "Dark horses" would be among the "also ran" in a free-for-all race.

There is this to be said in defense of the graduate of the school of practical politics: Only an experienced politician can handle congress, and it is often well from the people's viewpoint to have a man in the white house who can bridle that body. The most able executive in American business might, in the verpacular of the stage, prove a "flop" as chief executive of the United States.

The conventions of 1932 probably will maintain this tradition, barring accidents.

Practical Health Problems

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN,
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The common contagious diseases include measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, mumps, chicken-pox and German measles

The prevention of these diseases involves primarily the keeping away from people who have them. It takes from one to seven days for diphtheria to develop after the child has been exposed to it; from four to seven days for scarlet fever; from seven to 14 days for whooping cough; from 10 to 14 days for measles, and from 14 days to three weeks for chicken-pox, mumps and German measles.

It is, therefore, safe for other children if parents will be certain that their own children, when they have these diseases, are not permitted outdoors and in contact with other children until they have been pronounced cured and safe by the physician. If they have been exposed they should be carefully watched for the time mentioned.

In those cases in which there is a rash, as in measles, German measles and scarlet fever, enough time should elapse after the appearance of the rash to make certain that the child is not infectious for other children. The time required is usually two weeks in German measles, 10 days in measles and five days in scarlet fever.

In whooping cough, at least 21 days should elapse after the first appearance of the whoop before the child is permitted contact with other children and then only provided it has stopped coughing. In mumps, contact with other children should not be permitted for three weeks after the swelling has subsided.

It is important to remember that it is the excretions which carry the disease and that coughing, spitting, sneezing, discharge from an ear, or the scales from the skin which are contaminated with the excretions are responsible for the spread of the diseases.

It is possible to make children immune to diphtheria by the use of toxoid or antitoxin, and this is so safe that it has been adopted as a routine measure in most communities. Scarlet fever immunization is not usually advised as a routine measure, but is to be used when there is a certain history of exposure and evidence of susceptibility. For the other diseases there are no specific measures of prevention.

In general, the cultivation of health by proper hygiene is the most healthful measure for the prevention of disease. If the child attends school in a community where reasonable care is taken to prevent exposure in school, and if the parents exercise intelligence relative to the contacts made by the child outside of school hours, it is likely to be able to avoid much unnecessary infection.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

I thank God, whom I serve from my forefathers with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day; Greatly desiring to see thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy.—Timothy 1, 3, 4.

Governor Possibility

By CHARLES P. STEWART,
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March 12. — Gov. George White of Ohio does not look, yet, like a pronounced Democratic presidential hope for 1932. His name has been mentioned, but with no great emphasis. The gathering, March 5, of Jeffersonian national committee members in Washington, however, developed a crop of hints that the Buckeye executive may go into next year's convention with a pretty formidable following.

Many more considerations are back of the George White idea, in the minds of those who think White would make a strong candidate, than the mere fact of his Ohio gubernatorial victory last November.

Of course he had to win or he would not now be a possibility, but that is by no means the only asset his boosters claim for him.

SUPERFICIALLY Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland undoubtedly are the two leading Democratic prospects for the coming national campaign perhaps with the advantage beginning to trend slightly in Ritchie's direction.

This trend was one of the manifestations of the March 5 meeting. Previously the edge was in Roosevelt's favor. As it probably is unnecessary to say, they are rival wets, and wet sentiment appears gradually to have crystallized somewhat upon Ritchie as the more dependable of the two in this respect—not unnaturally, since he always has been unmistakably wet, while the New Yorker straddled as long as he could.

The shift from Roosevelt toward Ritchie was not general enough to rock the boat, but it was noticeable.

SOME OBSERVERS think Owen D. Young will prove to be near the top of the list of Democratic availables next summer. He certainly would suit big business, and big business is potent. Yet with Owen D. at the head of their ticket, how could the Democrats attack the G. O. P. on the power issue?—which obviously should be an essential detail of their 1932 strategy.

At any rate, at the present writing Governors Roosevelt and Ritchie and then Owen D. Young are entitled to regard themselves as Aunty Democracy's outstanding presidential possibilities. And, of course, Al Smith looms in the background of every calculation.

Young, indeed, has counted himself out, but his friends continue to include him.

Maybe it should be made a quartet, to take in former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri. Not that anyone really thinks he will be nominated, at his age, but he is so unconquerable a fighter that it is hardly safe to disregard him as a factor in any contest he declares himself in on.

AFTER THAT the muster roll simmers down to a list of mere bare possibilities—about two dozen of them.

Thus far George White simply is one of the two dozen.

Hitherto he has not even been one of the most prominently mentioned of these. He is a dry, for one thing, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas generally is spoken of as the leading dry candidate.

YES, GOVERNOR WHITE is a dry, but, curiously enough, it is a wet Democratic faction which began the talk in his favor at the March 5 gathering in Washington.

This group of wets argue that the wet movement in their own party's ranks has been permitted to gain momentum altogether too early.

Had it been permitted to simmer, they say, without undue stirring until just about convention time, perhaps a wet candidate could have been nominated on a wet platform—and, perhaps again, the south would have submitted, instead of bolting, to the tune of four or five states, as in 1928.

But the creation of an uproar already (say the worried wets) has so solidified dry sentiment that, should an out-and-out wet Democrat run for president on that issue, with President Hoover running for re-election as a bone dry the south probably will bolt the former as generally as it bolted Al Smith, the western states will be solidly against him, he will stand no more chance in New York than Smith did, and the G. O. P. will lick the stuffing out of him.

BUT AS TO GEORGE WHITE?

White is a dry, yes. Nevertheless, he is a 100 per cent "regular" Democrat. Even (his friends say) a wettish plank in the Democratic platform would not shake his "regularity"—so long as it is a Democratic plank, he will stand on it and stand by it.

This, be it understood, is the version of White's friends; not White's.

Assume, then (White's friends continue), that the Democratic platform does include a plank about as wet as the one suggested in Henry W Anderson's recommendation to the Wickersham commission—contemplative of an adaptation of the Swedish liquor system to this country's requirements.

Would George agree to it?

His friends are betting that he would, despite his dryness.

ONE CAN SEE how it might work—if President Hoover runs as a bone dry.

White should get the wet votes, as the best wet bargain obtainable. His friends insist he could hold the south, where they predict that a dripping wet would lose much of it. They are convinced he could make a strong bid for the dissatisfied west.

He carried Ohio—or his ticket did.

He is described as a picturesque, colorful character. He founded his fortune as a Klondike gold miner. There is said to be plenty of popular appeal about him. He would be a compromise to be sure, and compromises usually have their weaknesses. Still, to hear his friends outline their plan, it sounds as if the Buckeye governor might groom into quite an attractive presidential personality.

The quickest thing some people can do is sit down.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GINGER ELLA TOLLIVER, daughter of a minister and stepdaughter of the wealthy and indulgent former PHIL VAN DOORN, organized a Junior Country Club in the town of Red Thrush, Iowa, just to keep life among the younger set from becoming too dull. Accordingly, she purchased an old farm house and remodeled it.

BARD HOLLOWAY, a young artist who was hobbling around the country, stopped in Red Thrush. Attracted by Ginger, he agreed to stay and paint portraits and decorate the new club house. He gave the name "Jolie de Vivre" to the club, and he suggested sending to Chicago for NICOLO CALLENO, who could cook and sing and strum a guitar.

But Nicolo could not come. In his place there arrived three of his countrymen. ANGELO was a musician; PIETRO could cook, and VENITO could sing. Ginger took them on.

Bard began to realize he was in love with Ginger. He suggested leaving. But Phil, knowing Ginger, persuaded him to remain longer as the Tolliver's guest. But for Ginger's good she wrote to SPEED KENNEY, a farmer friend of Ginger's, and invited him to visit them. She felt he would give Bard some competition. Ginger thereupon invited PATTY SEARS to take care of Speed. But Patty wouldn't come, pleading loyalty to EDDY JACKSON. Whereupen Ginger went to Eddy about it. Getting his sister, she persuaded both Eddy and Patty to come.

And Eddy decided to ball things up by making life miserable for Ginger. Meanwhile Benito had made a trip to Chicago and returned with a plan to kidnap Ginger.

Speed and his sister arrive. Her name is COTTON, and she is not at all like the girl Ginger expected to see. Ginger was a little fearful that Cotton would prove very attractive to Bard. Eddy arranges for Bard and Cotton to be together. Patty he paired off with Speed, and Eddy stuck with Ginger. Speed, under a wrong impression, tells Bard that Ginger and Eddy are in love. Bard makes plans to leave.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIX

Bard got up quickly and tossed canvas and paints carelessly into the car. Jenky called to him to wait and have tea with her, but he shook his head.

Benito roared down from his attic window to come up and see the eggs in the doves' nest, but there was no heart in Bard for the marital wooing of doves. He flung himself into the car and bumped noisily off down the lane.

As he wheezed up to Doorndee, his eyes eagerly swept the group on the veranda—sought confirmation of his hopes in Ginger's eyes—denial of Speed's report.

Cotton and Patty were sitting cross-legged and cushions on the floor, with Speed lying full length between them, his head in Cotton's lap, her hand touching his hair. Ginger was with Eddy in the porch swing, and Eddy was reading jokes she could not control aloud.

Ginger's bright head was resting on her arm on the back of the swing, and though she looked up at sound of the Trap she did not smile. Whether he came meant nothing to her! The others ran joyously down to ride out to the garage on the flapping running-boards, but she remained quietly in the porch swing with Eddy.

From that moment, Bard devoted himself to the surprised and disconcerted Cotton with a great show of infatuation. His sudden perfidy had no apparent effect on Ginger, who was too low already to be further cast down. And curiously enough, although in the pressure of his attentions Cotton had now no further opportunity to force her own upon Eddy Jackson, Speed was still not satisfied and his sullenness increased by the hour.

Poor Patty, a prey to his politeness, lapsed into sorry speechlessness, while Cotton, under Ginger's gentle forbearance, watched and snubbed by Speed, publicly courted by Bard and teased by Eddy, developed a giggling hysteria which

Yet on the surface there was laughter and light talk among them, there was music for their dancing feet, there were gay games and boasted triumphs.

"Aren't they having fun?" said Father Tolliver fatuously. "I like a houseful of boys and girls. It's like the old life in the parsonage. What a good time they are having!"

"You thing so?" asked Phil drearily. "Seems to me I never saw a stupider crowd in my life. Everything's in a perfect mess, and nobody knows how it got there, nor how to get it out."

By Friday, she felt that she could not endure the strain another moment. The mock merriment had become funereal, and she told Ginger frankly that if she didn't get them all out of the house for a while and give her a chance to untie her knotted nerves, she was likely to go after some one with the butcherknife.

"All right," assented Ginger gently. "We'll go to Mill Rush right after breakfast and make it a day.

Large Attendance Seen At Kiwanis

Attendance was the feature of the weekly luncheon program of the Lubbock Kiwanis club Wednesday noon at the Lubbock hotel. More members were present at this luncheon than at any other held by the Kiwanis since the first of the year, R. J. Cheatam was in charge of the program.

Rev. J. O. Haymes, pastor of the First Methodist church, was the main speaker, talking on "Value of Civic Clubs and How They May Succeed." His talk was preceded by a violin quartet by Mesdames J. H. Tucker and Charles Hilburn and Misses Elitabel Tillory and Margaret Stone. They were accompanied by Miss Florence Anderson, pianist.

Dr. Haymes' talk was followed by a few remarks by D. E. Danewood, chairman of the attendance committee, who outlined how attendance may be increased.

M., last night, when the truck in which he was riding plunged down an embankment and overturned, according to word received here today. M. M. Seufert, also of Amarillo, and reported to have been driving the truck, was uninjured.

Recent rains in Brazil put roads in such bad condition that automobiles could not be taken from garages.

D. A. Adam, County Agent, Is Of The Opinion That Increase Will Be About 10 Per Cent For Year

By Staff Correspondent

AMHERST, March 12.—There will be very little increase in the acreage of crops in Lamb county for the year 1931 from those of the year 1930, in the opinion of D. A. Adams, county agent.

"I do not think we will have more than a 10 per cent increase, perhaps not that much," Mr. Adams explained. "Lamb county this winter has not had a big influx of people. There are a few new ones, of course, but not as many as in other years."

Same Proposition

For the past several years the cotton acreage in Lamb county has been about 108,000 to 110,000 acres. Grain sorghums have been averaging 115,000 to 120,000 acres.

This year's estimates all place about the same proportions of cotton to grain sorghums that other years have had.

There has been a good increase in wheat acreage. Last year it was estimated that the acreage harvested was approximately 35,000. In the fall the additional wheat acreage planted brought the total up to around 50,000 acres.

Sudan To Increase

Corn this year will probably run 25,000 acres or more. It has been less than that in other years. Sudan acreage will increase from 10,000 to around 12,000 acres.

In addition, alfalfa sown this spring will add about 1,000 acres and between 700 and 1,500 acres of soy beans will be put out.

The county has approximately 640,000 acres of land. Of this, the land now broken out will exceed this year 300,000 acres, probably going as high as 325,000 according to the county agent. Last year the total was slightly under 300,000 acres.

In the county there are 2,380 farms. Most of these farmers will not break out more than a few new acres of land, if any. There is no disposition to increase acreage to any extent.

British Navy Opens Warfare On Preying Chinese Pirates

HONGKONG, March 12. (AP)—The British navy has started open submarine warfare against Chinese pirates who prey on foreign and Chinese ships in the Bias Bay area.

Four new submarines have been sent from Britain to reinforce the two now operating against the searovers off the south China coast, last stronghold of the pirates. The new submarines are of the "P" class, the latest thing in underwater fighting ships.

McKechnie Expected To Bring Boston Crew To Front

Lubbock High Westerners Hosts To Three Schools In Track Meet Today

Braves Picked To Annoy Best Of Nationals

More Punch In Outfield Seen As Possible Worry To Other Teams This Season; New Men And Old Looking Good

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12.—The Boston Braves have no visible designs on this year's National League flag, but the consensus of the baseball-wise is that Bill McKechnie's crew will annoy the favorites before the season wears out.

None too easy to get along with at times in 1930, the Braves promise to be tougher this summer. If several newcomers perform as McKechnie has every reason to believe they will, the Tribe might easily climb a notch or two above its sixth place of the last campaign.

More punch in the outfield and infield chiefly will distinguish the club from that of last year. A couple of walloping new outfielders are on the roster, as well as a veteran first sacker who hit in the clouds in his native California. Little strength has been added to the mound corps, but it was a pretty good one all the time.

Wesley E. Schulmerich, who hit .377 for Los Angeles, and Robert (Red) Worthington, who had a .376 year with Rochester, already have been installed at left and right fields, flanking Walter Berger, who hit .310 last year and should go higher.

In addition, McKechnie has three veteran holdovers in Earl Clark, Randy Moore and Lance Richbourg.

The veteran Earl Sheely, drafted from San Francisco, where he compiled a .403 clubbing average to lead the Pacific Coast League, probably will beat Johnny Neun for the first basing job. With Fred Maguire a fixture at second and Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, the 38-year old youngster, ready for another big year at short, third base is the only uncertain corner of the infield. Buster Chatham, who held down the hot spot most of last year, is getting some strenuous competition from Bill Dreessen, a slugger from Springfield, Mass., and Bill Walters, recalled from Providence. Charles Wilson, a .300 hitter purchased from Rochester, completes the list of infield candidates.

Harry "Socks" Seibold, Willie Sherdel, Tom Zachary, Freed Frankhouse and Ben Cantwell from a veteran mound staff, with the agile Zachery the bell-weather. Zachery turned in 11 wins in 16 starts last season, and Sherdel won nine out of 16. To assist the group there are Ed Brown and Bruce Cunningham, both of whom saw much duty last season; Bill McAfee, obtained from the Cubs by trade, and Harold Haid, the former Cardinal, who was out most of the 1930 campaign with a bad arm. McKechnie expects Haid to stage a comeback.

Outstanding among the rookies in camp is Regis Leheny, a fine southpaw prospect from Pittsburgh. He blanked the Yankees for four innings in his first exhibition game.

Al Bool, obtained from the Pirates, may replace Al Spohrer, a fair hitter, as the club's first string backstop. Bill Cronin, Art Veltman, Roy Luebbe and George Treedwell are the other ambitious maskmen in camp.

Large Crowd Watches Houston Buffs Practice

HOUSTON, March 12. (AP)—Probably the largest crowd of rail birds Houston's history took advantage today's perfect weather to turn for the practice game between Buff regulars and rookies. The regulars won, 16-5.

The seventh inning was disastrous for Warnecks, righthander from Arkansas, the regulars combing his delivery for six tallies in that round. Eddie Hock and Guy Sturdy each hit a home run inside the park, and Puccinelli met the ball solidly for three bases.

Spudders To Practice On 2-A-Day Plan From Now On

WICHITA FALLS, March 12. (AP) Beginning tomorrow the Wichita Falls Spudders will adopt the two-a-day plan in the daily workouts, the weather man being very kind, and the first intra-camp game is scheduled for Sunday, Skipper Williams announced.

Arrivals today included Herbert Kelly, outfielder with Topeka in the Western League last year; Art Bradbury, on the Spudder catching staff last year; Fred Vincent, hold-over pitcher, and Roland Flinn, who won 17 games and lost nine with the Augusta Sally League outfit to which he was optioned.

Skipper Shano Gives Red Sox One More Week To Go

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 12. (AP) Manager (Shano) Collins notified his Boston Red Sox rookies today they had just one more week to "show me."

"And if some of you don't improve enough to interest me, you're going down the river," he told them.

The Red Sox squad, the largest one taken south in many years, was reduced to an even 40 today when Marvin Olson, infielder, was farmed out to the Buffalo International League club.

South Plains Stars May Be Seen In Meet

Levelland, Littlefield And Brownfield To Participate In Four-Cornered Meet With Westerners Today

Playing host to three South Plains schools, the Lubbock High school Westerners begin their third major sport of the scholastic year when they meet the track teams of Levelland, Littlefield and Brownfield in a four-cornered track and field meet on the Tech field and track this afternoon. The matches begin at 3:45.

Some of the best high school track talent of West Texas will be here today, among them George Norman of Levelland, Pete Carter and Smith of Littlefield and Goodpasture of Brownfield. Norman is picked by Pinkey Lowrey, Lubbock High track coach, to grab high honors today. He was a high point man in the district track meet here last spring and is a popular sprinter, jumper and hurdler in these parts.

Pete Carter of Littlefield takes part in the 440-yard run and will furnish Norman some keen competition in the hurdles. Goodpasture of Brownfield is a pole vaulter of no ordinary note.

The Lubbock team this year suffers from lack of seeded material, only one letter man, Capt. Vester Ritchie, reporting this season. Ritchie specializes in the high jump, and is a track man of ability. Charles Young is expected to go places for Lubbock in the mile run and Dalton Blagg is a favorite for the broad jump, though Norman of Levelland is picked to beat him.

The meet today is the first of a series of practice meets that will be held here. No admission will be charged. All events are to be staged on the Texas Tech cinder path and field.

Wrestlers And Boxers Engage In Semi-Finals

Eight Quarter-Final Boxing Rounds Thrill Large Body Of Fans Yesterday; Bouts Start Today At 5 O'Clock

Texas Tech's intramural boxing program advanced through eight bouts of semi-final rounds yesterday afternoon in one of the most attractive cards of the week. With semi-finals in wrestling scheduled for today, the remaining semi-final boxing bouts will be staged Saturday afternoon.

In what was the best fight of the day and one of the best so far of the season, Noel Teague of Lamesa and Hugh Anderson fought to a three-round draw. It was a bloody battle, with each fighter drawing his share of blood. The first round was rather slow and even. At the gong of the second Teague rushed his opponent and banged him about the ring for the entire period, easily winning the round. But it was a different story in the third round. With the tables completely turned, Anderson mauled the tar out of his enemy. Judges wisely decided in favor of a draw. The fighters were in the 155 pound division.

The others were of less ferocity but none the less interesting. Ward Ault of Mills, N. M., won a decision over Clyde James in the 145-pound class and Hazel won by forfeit over Bogan in the 140-pound division.

The only knockout of the evening was scored when McGrady knocked out Arthur in the second round. Ralph Ernest won a decision over W. M. Nott and Riggins defeated Stone by decision. Big George Langford and Greer Frizzell staged the only heavyweight bout, Langford winning the decision after three hectic rounds, but Frizzell went the route in good fashion. Cunningham won a decision over Woodburn in a neat fiasco in the 165-pound class.

The intramural fight program continues this afternoon at 5 o'clock with six wrestling matches and one boxing bout. The fisticuff will be between two lightweights and promises to bring out the best in each man. Boxing will continue tomorrow afternoon in the semi-finals for all weights. Finals will be held next week.

Mustangs Enter Ft. Worth Fat Stock Show Track Go

DALLAS, March 12. (AP)—Track Coach Jimmy Stewart said today a squad of seven men would represent Southern Methodist University at the annual Fort Worth Fat Stock show track meet Saturday. The Fort Worth event is the first track engagement of the season. Only three veterans are included among the seven, Davidson, Moore and Hobson. The others, Sprague, R. Smith, Walstad and Oliver, are serving their first year on the varsity. Sprague, 200-pound football star, was expected to make a serious bid for firsts in both the shot put and discus events.

Southwestern Louisiana Institute has four lettermen from the 1930 S. I. A. A. championship squad on its basketball team this year.

Jack Dempsey States He Is Through As Fighter; Makes Definite Decision

LOS ANGELES, March 12. (AP)—Jack Dempsey came out today with a statement that most ring critics have contended for several years—that as a fighter he is through.

"I have definitely decided to engage in no more fights," the former world's heavy champion said. "The old urge for battle is gone. I know that I could never be at my physical best if I fought again, and I feel that I could not justify the ambition of my friends were I to go back."

Dempsey said he had been "on the fence" over the matter for three years and that this statement is final. The financial success of the Manassa Mauler's tour of the country as a referee is believed as much as anything responsible for the announcement.

Joe Stripp Arrives For First Drill With Reds

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 12. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds regular infield today worked together as a complete unit for the first time this spring when Joe Stripp, third baseman, who has been ill with influenza took his initial practice. Heath was at first, Cucinello at second, Durocher at short and Jersey Joe at third.

Southwest Texas Baseball League Said Organized

VICTORIA, March 12. (AP)—The Southwest Texas Amateur Baseball league was organized here last night as an eight-club circuit, games to be played Sundays and holidays.

Tentative members enrolled were Port Lavaca, El Campo, Tivoli, Yoakum, Woodsboro, Edna, Goliad and Victoria. Cuero, Yorktown and Nordheim were considered as possible substitutes for some of the others.

J. T. Linebaugh of Victoria was elected president of the league and Chester Evans, temporary secretary.

The season will open April 12. Each club will be limited to 16 nonsalaries players and no new players may be substituted within five weeks prior to the close of the season. Each club will play 20 games. At each game, the home club will receive all gate receipts and the visiting team will pay its own expenses. Two paid umpires will officiate at each game. The next meeting of the league will be held here March 25.

Whitworth And Hardaway Arrive In Panther Camp

FORT WORTH, Mar. 12. (AP)—The arrival today of Dick Whitworth and Henry Hardaway boosted the total number of pitchers at the Fort Worth Cats' training camp to 21.

Dick Whitworth isn't yet the property of the Fort Worth club and it isn't altogether certain he will play baseball in any league this season, but the Austin brakeman thinks enough of the chances to come here and begin training. All of the complications, which have grown out of his being drafted by the Chicago Cubs, can't be solved until April 1, but at this time it appears reasonably certain that he will be back with the Cats again this year.

MacFarlane In Miami Victory With Whif Cox

MacFarlane Breaks Record In Shooting 30, Six Under Par, To Win Single Handed Over Sarazen And Farrell

MIAMI, Fla., March 12. (AP)—Willie MacFarlane scored a single handed triumph today to capture the championship of Miami's classic international four-ball golf matches for himself and Wiffy Cox, three up and two to go, from Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell, in a scheduled 18-hole play-off of their deadlocked 40-hole final match.

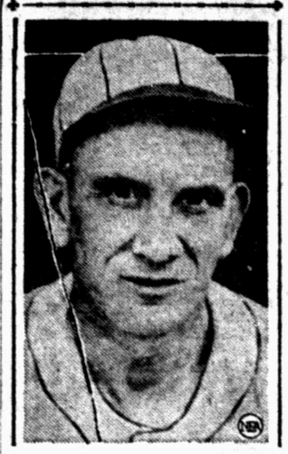

After making a record-breaking 30, six under par, for his first nine holes, Willie rested on his oars with Wiffy to halve the next five holes, lose one, and halve one to end the match at the 16th hole.

The victory was worth $750 each to MacFarlane and Cox. Sarazen and Ferrell, failing in their bid through 56 holes, to repeat their championship victory of 1928, took $500 each as their runner-up share of the four-ball classic's $5,000 purse.

A total of 102 free throws were made in the eight games in the opening round of the Southern conference basketball tourney.

All white boxing gloves are designated for use in Miami bouts this year to eliminate fouling.

After jumping away to a five run lead, the Dodgers saw their advantage fade in the fourth, when Babe Phelps was pounded for six hits and as many runs. The Phillies defense blew up in the eighth and ninth innings, however, allowing the Dodgers to count five runs.

O'Goofty's Quest For First-Hand Information On Lefthanders Seems A Bit Underhanded

BY JOE O'GOOFTY
Former Big League Pitcher

ST. PETERSBURG, March 12—As I go along on my tour of the southern training camps this year, where last year I was a pitcher for the Yankees, I am trying to pick up here and there a definition of a left-hander. Everybody, it seems, has something different to say about a left-hander, and most of it is bad.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson, the manager of the Dodgers, looked at me with open-eyed amazement when I asked him what a southpaw was the other day over at Clearwater.

"A left-hander?" he finally said when he regained his speaking voice, "Why, glug, glug—ah—er—grrrrr—ahem—brrrrr — bzzzzzzzzz—tzxxxxxxxx — vrmwzxywwwww!"

This reply, of course, left me some hat hors de combat. I asked him to amplify his statement. Knowing Uncle Robbie to be very verbose on occasion, I was somewhat puzzled by his reply.

But every time I asked him, he started talking Italian, French, Hindoo and Brooklynese in broken syllables.

"A left-hander," he replied, "is Wild Bill Hallahan, of the Cardinals, who beat me in a 1-0 game last year when we were in the thick of the pennant fight, and sent this man's ball team into a slump that never did get unslumped."

Well, well, there's always something to learn.

For Ginger's Sake

We'll have some people out to dance tonight and won't come home till midnight. We can't be any more miserable there than we are here, and you do need a rest."

Eddy cheerfully herded them into the cars—Cotton, as usual, in the Rattletrap with Bard, his own car continuing in its state of complete demolition—and they started out.

Immediately Bard was alone with Cotton he left off his show of devotion and lapsed into a moody silence, while she for her part seemed glad of a chance to relax and think quietly. For several miles they drove in silence.

"Excuse me for being so stupid, Bard," she said at last. "I do not mean to be rude but I feel very badly. Speed is just furious at me."

"Why?" he asked, not with any real interest in her troubles but because something seemed to be expected of him.

"I—don't know. I am doing exactly what he told me to, and heaven knows I am not enjoying it. But he won't speak to me."

Bard smiled at her. "You're a nice kid," he said. "Don't worry your head about it. After all, he's only your brother."

"But I can't bear for him—for anybody—to be so angry with me. I wish I hadn't come."

"So do I—I mean, I wish I hadn't."

They were wretchedly silent for a while.

"Tell you what," he said, pulling himself out of his depression and really wishing to cheer her up, "when we get out there, why don't you take him off by himself and make him tell you what's on his mind. He's probably got a peeve about some little thing and is just taking it out on you. Probably mad because Ginger is—so wrapped up in Eddy—or something. I think he would like to get a break there himself, but Eddy is such a hair-shirt nobody can get a word in edgewise."

"Speed doesn't want Ginger," said Cotton. "Whatever it is, it isn't that. You needn't think he's jealous of Eddy just because you are."

"Listen," said Bard dully, "I'm too low to argue. Have it out with Speed or not, just as you like. I don't care a tinker's dam, one way or the other."

In the rumble seat of the other car, Patty and Speed sat in complete and frigid silence. When a swerve of the car swung him against her, he drew himself up with a cold "Pardon me," to which the downcast girl could only nod a troubled head.

But in the front seat Eddy Jackson at Ginger's side kept up a breezy account of his plans for the day.

"It was a great idea, getting us out here alone," he said, "where we can commune with our inner souls and those we love best and what-have-you. Let's make a great old day of it. We probably won't see much of Cotton and Bard—I think I heard them planning to lose themselves in the woods. But we four'll jazz together and make it a day to remember."

Ginger turned sad blue eyes on him and said nothing.

Cotton had more than her share of determination and once she had fully made up her mind to a course of action it would require more than the mere maneuvering of Eddy Jackson to deter her. The instant Bard shook upon the door of the Rattletrap, she was out of her seat and running back to the Dido, and before Ginger had even turned the key in the lock, she had Speed's hand in hers.

"Speed," is he said firmly paying not the slightest heed to Ben and Jenky waving gay greetings from the porch, nor to Benito booming a welcome from beside a bird-house in the wood; no heed to Pietro gazing up from the open door of the cellar where he spent a great deal of time looking after what he called his fruit sirups and ciders, nor to little Angelo capering clumsily about them under foot. "Speed, you come with me. I have something to say to you."

Speed withdrew his hand. His manner was politely cold. "I'm sorry. I must help Ginger unpack the car."

"I'll do th at," volunteered Bard stiffly. "You run along with Cotton and whatever she's got on her mind—take it off."

Speed gave him a look of strange intentness. "I don't care what Cotton's got on her mind," he said furiously. "Whatever it is, you can bet it's damn well trouble for somebody."

"Oh, be a sport," said Bard in a friendly low voice. "That poor kid's all cut up over the way you're acting. First time I ever saw a girl pay any attention to her brother's opinion, and you're darn well not worth it, if you ask me. Go along—give her a chance to relieve her mind."

Speed gave him another strangely searching look but grudgingly permitted Cotton to regain her hold of his hand and lead him away toward the swings.

Even while they were carrying the basket from the car up to the cottage, Eddy was making his plans for the day's aggravations.

"We'll need more butter and cream," he said. "I'll hitch up Mrs. Carter to the buggy and we'll send Cotton and Bard over to Blake's for them. Speed and Pat can catch fish for our supper, and you and I'll make up a list of those we want to invite tonight."

"I don't want to fish," muttered Patty driven at last to desperate protest. "Speed—Speed's an awful pill, Eddy," she added apologetically. "He hasn't said a word but 'Pardon me' for the last two days. I—I don't think I can stand it much longer."

Reward Offered At Littlefield For Conviction

LITTLEFIELD, March 12. (Staff Special.)—A reward of $100 has been offered by the city commission of Littlefield for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who ran down and seriously injured Joe Mabrey, motorcycle officer, the night of February 25.

Mabrey, a former member of the Lubbock police department, has been here for five or six months and is very popular. He sustained broken bones in his right leg and other injuries and was taken to the Lubbock Sanitarium where he spent several days under treatment before being brought home.

The officer was struck by a "hit and run" motorist, who made his getaway.

Over-Production Of Oil Is Found By Federal Committee

WASHINGTON, March 12. (AP)—The federal oil conservation board in its efforts to assist the hard pressed oil industry has encountered a problem of over-production heretofore unknown in the history of the petroleum business.

Figures gathered by the board show approximately 3,000,000 barrels of oil are produced daily in the United States and approximately 300,000 barrels are being imported from foreign fields controlled directly or indirectly by American companies.

MEXICAN CONSUL DIES

What's Wrong with Texas?

Nothing's wrong with Texas, except too many of us get up in the morning at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, button a pair of Ohio suspenders to a pair of Chicago pants, put on a pair of Massachusetts shoes, wash in a Pittsburgh tin basin, using Cincinnati soap, and a cotton towel made in New Hampshire, sit down to a Grand Rapids table, eat pan cakes made from Minneapolis flour spread with Vermont syrup and Kansas bacon fried on a St. Louis stove. Buy fruit put up in California, seasoned with Rhode Island spices and sweetened with Colorado sugar, put on a hat made in Philadelphia, hitch a Detroit mule fed on Oklahoma gasoline to an Ohio plow and work all day on a Texas farm covered with a New England mortgage, and at night we crawl under a New Jersey blanket to be kept awake by a bull dog, the only home product on the place, wondering all the time, where in the hell all the money went in this wonderful state of ours . . . still we're not a pessimist or a fanatic, although we do suggest that you buy your coffee—

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 12. (AP) — Cotton developed fair activity in today's trading, and prices fluctuated rather sharply. Lower cables than due and unfavorable foreign advices generally caused an early decline of 10-12 points, but there was a sharp rally later in the morning on active general trade buying including buying for foreign account which caused prices to advance 18-20 points from the early lows. In the early afternoon prices eased off 3-4 points from the best on realizing. The market continued steady in late trading, keeping within the previous range but near the highs, being still supported by good trade buying. The close was near the top the general market being called steady at net advances for the day of 8-10 points.

A private domestic mill consumption estimate for February made the total 431,000 bales or a daily rate of 20,100 against a daily rate in January of 18,900.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 12. (AP)—A further decline in cotton at the opening today in response to lower cables and a bearish interpretation of consumption figures was followed by rallies on trade buying and covering. May, after selling off to 10.75 under early pressure, advanced to 10.98 and closed at 10.92, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 6-9 points.

According to the New York cotton exchange service consumption of lint cotton of all growths in the country for February 431,000 bales compared with 454,000 in January and 495,000 in February last year. The daily rate in February this year was placed at 20,100 bales against 18,900 in January.

Bulk of the demand in the market here was attributed to trade buying and offerings were comparatively light after the close of Liverpool. Exports today 43,965 making 3,288,943 so far this season. Port receipts 32,936. U. S. port stocks 3,933,204.

ed tonight with committees appointed to carry on the work in a permanent organization. Immediate attention will be directed to formulation of a legislative program for the next congress in which the independents hold the balance of power.

Public utilities, tariff, unemployment, agriculture and the return to representative government were the topics assigned to committees.

Thirteen senators, republicans and democrats, were appointed to the committees. Senator Norris, Borah, of Idaho; LaFollette, and Cutting, republicans, head four of them, and Senator Costigan, democrat, Colorado, is chairman of the other.

The power discussion developed an attack on Owen D. Young, New York, another democratic presidential possibility. Edward N. Nockels, representing the American Federation of Labor, referred to him as "the guiding genius of the radio trust."

"It will be carved out of the walls of the canyon and will be part tunnel almost all of the way. It will be main line construction throughout, probably double tracked, because while we are pouring concrete we must carry more traffic than the main line of the Southern Pacific leading out of San Francisco."

This line, he said, will cost about $600,000 and must be completed before the four diversion tunnels are started.

He revealed that between 200 and 300 men will start the work, and the total number employed on the project by the middle of April will be 1,000.

Stock Prices Suffer As Dividends Grab Day's Attention Of Market

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, March 12. (AP) — The speculative fraternity's mind was on poor earnings statements and unfavorable dividend decisions today, and stock prices suffered.

Tobacco, amusement, rubber and a handful of utility issues kept their heads above water, but rails, electrical equipments and diversified assortment of other industrials weakened. The turnover was 2,500,000 shares.

Part of the morning damage done the carrier shares was repaired. New York Central, after breaking 3 points to the new 1930 low of 110 5-8, cut its loss in two, and Pennsylvania reduced a much smaller maximum decline, while Atchison actually closed 3 points higher. The extreme drop was by Pittsburgh and West Virginia, off 9 points, although Nickle Plate, another Van Sweringen property, lost 8.

Westinghouse broke 4 points on publication of last year's earnings and the shrinkage in backlog, recovering a fraction of the loss. U. S. Steel sagged a point to 142 1-4, a new low for the decline, while American Can, Radio, General Electric, Union Carbide, Sears Roebuck, Electric Power and Light and Montgomery Ward ended the day from 3-4 to 1 1-2 lower.

Jake Lingle

finger at the slayer. There was confusion as Lingle crumpled to the concrete flooring. Pedestrians milled about the body, but paid little heed to the fleeing slayer.

Patrick Campbell told police he had seen Lingle enter the west end of the subway with two men. As they approached a news stand at the foot of a stairs leading to the east side of Michigan avenue, one of Lingle's companions stopped for a newspaper, then ran up behind Lingle and shot him.

Just 20 feet ahead of the reporter was Dr. Joseph Springer, a former coroner's physician who knew him intimately. He turned and saw "a man" fall. At the time he did not realize it was his friend Lingle. A blond man ran past him, he said, vaulted a fence at the eastern end of the subway and disappeared.

He agreed with Campbell that the slayer was between 27 and 32 years old, about 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighed about 160 pounds, had light brown hair, blue eyes and wore a medium gray suit and a straw hat.

Out of the confusion of vague witnesses came mainly the story that a "blond slayer" was the assassin—and Leo Brothers, is a blond. What more the state has against him has not been announced.

(Tomorrow's story will take up the manifold theories which have been advanced as the reason why Lingle was killed.)

Dallas Jury

Register, Police Chief Claude Trammell, Police Captain Jess Bonner, Desk Sergeant C. E. Plant and Jail Sergeant Harry Trammell. Attending the grand jury investigation were Ranger Sergeant M. T. Gonzaullas and Ranger J. P. Huddleston, assigned to the kidnaping case by Governor Ross Sterling.

George Clifton Edwards, attorney for Hurst and Coder, who reported he was abducted with his clients but was released unharmed, still was in Eastland, where he was conducting a lawsuit.

Charges "Frame-Up"

"Death to all lynchers and kidnapers" was the slogan embodied in a lengthy statement issued late today by George J. Papcun, of El Paso, styling himself secretary of the Trade Union Unity League of Texas.

His statement charged that the kidnaping of Hurst and Coder was an "open frame-up" and asserted there was "no doubt in the committee's minds that the two were brutally flogged and cold-bloodedly murdered or else are being held prisoners' because of their espousal of "full social, political and economic equality for the negro masses; and against deportation of foreign born workers, especially Mexican workers."

Papcun said a southwest-wide search for Coder and Hurst had been conducted since Saturday by the league and three crews of men, working in cars out of Dallas, San Antonio and Kansas City, had been searching for clues as to the fate of the two men.

Missing Man

to tell some one where he was going," M. B. Dresser said Thursday night.

Was Very Restless

"Father has been very restless since my mother's death in 1928. Once, about a year ago, he went to Houston and was gone four days; but before he went, he told one of the neighbors of his plans," Mr. Dresser explained.

Both city and county officers are searching for the missing Dresser. No foul play is suspected.

Unemployment Relief Given Donation From Washington

WASHINGTON, March 12. (AP)—A total of $52,819,245 was allocated today by Secretary Hurley for river and harbor works and surveys in all parts of the United States as a contribution to unemployment relief.

The allotment will leave a reserve of only $9,300,000 of the regular $60,000,000 appropriation made by congress.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, March 12. (AP)—Fair demand continued on the cash grain market here today with prices practically unchanged.

Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Wheat, No. 1 hard of any protein 77 1-2 @80 1-2c.
Corn, No. 2 mixed71@72c; No. 2 white 74 @75c; No. 2 yellow 72 1-2@73 1-2c.
Oats, No. 2 red 42@42 1-2c (No. 3 white delivered Texas group one points 41 1-4@42 1-4.)
Barley, No. 2 56@57c.
Sorghums, No. 2 milo per 100 lbs. 1.22 @1.24; No. 2 kaffir 1.19@1.20.
Cane seed, bulk country run red top, per 100 lbs., according to type, germination, origin and clean-out, 2.25@2.45.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 12. (AP) — Grain prices receded late today from early upturns. Wheat bulges failed to hold in the face of persistent heavy receipts and of auspicious winter crop conditions, as well as beneficial moisture in spring wheat territory, especially Canada and North Dakota. Corn fell back with wheat, although corn receipts were the smallest in a long while.

Wheat closed irregular at 1-2 cent decline to 1-8 to 1-4 advance, corn unchanged to 3-8 up, oats 1-8 to 1-2 higher, and provisions showing to 2 to 12 cents decline.

Legislature

which would give the legislature authority to exempt any industry from payment of taxes for ten years. Ray said this would greatly encourage industries to establish in Texas, ultimately would greatly increase taxable values and would be a boon to industries now struggling to get started.

Propose Gradual Scale

A constitutional amendment was introduced by Representative Barron of Sherman which would give the legislature authority to levy an income tax on individuals and corporations on a graduated scale.

The third constitutional amendment was by Representative Dowell of Lulling. It would provide for a constitutional convention, the first since 1876.

An attempt to revise the house rules to permit committees to hold executive sessions struck a snag when Mrs. Rountree of Bryan and Holder of Lancaster, newspaper publishers, opposed it on the ground it would exclude newspapermen. When argument on the rule threatened to take up considerable time the rule was withdrawn. Mrs. Rountree said the public was entitled to all information concerning the actions of public officials and that newspapermen, accorded the privileges of the house, also should be admitted to all committee hearings.

House Adopts Rule

This view was supported by several members, although opposed by Representative Graves and others who said the committees often discussed problems where it might be embarrassing to members to have their views disseminated by the press.

The house adopted a rule which will permit committees to report on bills to within 72 hours of the end of the session. The senate also has adopted rules to permit committees to function after expiration of the second 30-day period, set aside in the constitution for committee hearings.

Representative Burns of Brady introduced a bill to provide for the redistricting the judiciary. This has been recommended by Governor Sterling.

The house and senate free conference committee on the bill to allow county school trustees to issue warrants to pay teachers' salaries reached an agreement and probably will report tomorrow.

Former Illinois Solon Is On Trial In Supreme Court For Possession Of Liquor Found In His Office

WASHINGTON, March 12. (AP)—Flat denials that he was a drinking man and that the trunk containing 24 bottles of liquor dry agents found in his office January 19, 1929, was his own were made today by Edward E. Denison, former Illinois representative, in testifying at his trial on charges of possessing liquor.

Denison took the stand in the District of Columbia Supreme court after the government had ended its testimony and after Justice Peyton Gordon had denied a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal based on the contention the government had failed to make out a case.

Baggage Mixed

Denison testified his baggage and that of his nephew, Charles E. Lane, jr., St. Louis, who accompanied him on a trip to Panama in December 1928, got "all mixed up" when they disembarked at New York.

He said he had purchased an army locker trunk in Janama and some dishes for Mrs. John Layne, of this city, whom he described as the wife of a former secretary, and his sister, Mrs. Charles E. Lane, St. Louis, and the latter's daughter.

Upon arriving in New York he said, it was bitter cold and he left hurried instructions with the transfer company to ship the army trunk to Mrs. Layne in Washington. The dishes had been placed in that trunk, he said, adding he did not know Mrs. Layne's address and had it sent to his rooms in the house office building.

Discovered Liquor

Dry agents went to the office three days after he arrived and found liquor in the trunk delivered. Denison denied at the time, he said, that the trunk was his as it bore the name "B. B. Dawson" on one end. He said his trunk, a similar make, had his name on it on a paper card.

This trunk was produced in court, and the defendant identified it as the one he purchased in Panama.

Denison said his trunk was found in New York by his nephew, who remained there some time after landing to visit a friend and that Lane later took it with him direct to his home in St. Louis.

After communicating with the Lane family and learning his nephew had taken the trunk west he said he wrote the boy's father to open it. He said this was done, and many broken dishes were found.

William E. Leahy, chief defense counsel, asked the defendant if he used liquor.

"I do not," was the reply.

"Are you a drinking man."

"I am not. I don't say I've never tasted it in my life. I've tasted it, but I never drink it."

Among the witnesses who testified Denison's character was beyond reproach were Senator Glenn, of Illinois, and Representative Yates, Illinois; Lea, California; Burtness, North Dakota, and Thatcher, Kentucky.

Two Hundred Chinese Perish When Coastal Steamer Sinks Wednesday

SHANGHAI, March 12. (AP)—More than 200 Chinese perished last night when the burning Chinese costal steamer Pachi exploded and sank sixty miles north of the mouth of the Yangtse river.

A revenue cruiser and native boats picked up 180 of the approximately 400 persons aboard. Those rescued had leaped into the sea from the flaming vessel.

The explosion occurred when some of the 100 Chinese soldiers aboard threw cigarette stubs into the cotton cargo. Flames whirled through the hold, and a second blast followed.

The cruiser patrolling near the Pachi, steamed to her aid when she was seen afire but before the cruiser arrived an explosion killed many passengers on the Pachi's fore deck.

The captain anchored the Pachi, but almost immediately another explosion blew out her stern, thrownig most of the remaining passengers into the water.

Native boats joined the cruiser in taking survivors from the sea.

Those left aboard the Pachi were drowned as the vessel sank quickly.

Former Publisher, Once Rated At More Than $3,000,000, Near Broke

LOS ANGELES, March 12. (AP)—Eugene V. Brewster, former magazine publisher who said his wealth once was rated at $3,000,000 is hoping a stroke of good fortune will save his few remaining thousands.

Brewster and his third wife, Corliss Palmer, film actress a few years ago, are living—contentedly, they said—in a three-room cottage in the rear of a larger house in Hollywood which they own and rent. The cottage is furnished with paintings and other objects of art collected from all parts of the world.

"Everything I have is mortgaged and I will lose all if I do not raise some money soon," he said. "I venture to say if I could sell everything for what I paid for it and pay off my debts I would be worth $50,000. I used to be rated at $3,000,000."

Brewster was found in his modest home by reporters who sought to question him about his marriage to Miss Palmer. He said they were married at Ensenada, Mexico, in 1926, after he had obtained a Mexican divorce from his second wife, but that since some courts in this country had declined to recognize Mexican marriages, they would go through another ceremony here within a few days.

"We will get married all over again in order that Corliss' interest in my estate will not be jeopardized," he said.

"I love "Bruce" just as much as ever," Mrs. Palmer said, adding that she planned a second attempt at a motion picture career. They were playing backgammon.

Brewster's hope of getting a new start lies in a novel he has written and is seeking to have published. He represents several authors who are attempting to sell their work to motion pacture companies.
