Prior To Court Hearing...

Settlement Reached In School Tax Suit

A suit challenging property valuations on the Snyder Indepedent School District's tax roll has been settled, District Judge Jim Gregg of Big Spring announced this morning.

Judge Gregg, who regularly presides over the 118th District Court, had been scheduled to conduct a hearing in 132nd District Court here this morning on a suit filed by Jonisue and Lawson Stiff, who were seeking to restrain the school district from certifying its tax roll until certain changes had been made.

Under terms of the settlement, the plantiffs agreed to take their complaint concerning oil and gas royalty valuations before the school district's board of equalization. In turn, the school district agreed to set bank values to meet state tax law requirements. These were the two major issues cited by the plaintiffs in their petition.

They had alleged that values for royalty owners were set in a different manner from those of working interests (producers) on oil and gas property in the district. They also had alleged that bank values were not properly established.

The suit was filed July 31 and a temporary restraining order issued at that time had expired on Aug. 10, the original date set for the hearing.

School officials indicated this morning that the district's board of equalization probably would hear the complaint on royalty valuations at a session in late September.

Members of the board of equalization, which include Kenneth Wilson, John Reed and Jerry Springer, had been named as defendants in the suit, along with Supt. Bill J. Hood, Tax Assessor-colloctor Ray Peveler and the board of trustees, which is composed of Bill Eiland, president, Jerry Rice, Bill Clayton, Bill Seale, Ted Crenwelge, Lillie Sullivan and Bill Voss.

Judge Gregg was to preside over the hearing because Judge Wayland G. Holt of the 132nd District was disqualified, since he owns some oil royalty in the school district.

Kurds Besiege Garrison

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Rebel Kurds poured heavy machine-gun fire "almost nonstop" into a besieged army garrison at Saqqez, the third city in Kurdistan Province to become a battleground in the Kurdish struggle for home rule.

Western reporters on the scene said the fighting Thursday in Saqqez was the heaviest so far in the 10-day-old flareup in the Kurdish rebellion for home rule that began in March.

The reporters saw a column of tanks moving toward Saqqez, Kurdish sources predicted the army would try to retake the city.

Jet Hijacked Over Libya

LARNACA, Cyprus (AP)—A gunman hijacked a jetliner over Libya today and the plane flew to Cyprus where the hijacker surrendered and the passengers disembarked unharmed, airport officials said.

The hijacker was identified as Mohammed Assmounah, 28, a Libyan student. Theodores Pappetron, director general of civil aviation here, said the Libyan asked for political asylum, but he did not say if it would be granted.

The plane, a Libyan airlines' Boeing 727, carried 60 passengers and nine crew members, airport officials said.

Auto Sales Booming Again

DETROIT (AP)—Due largely to heavy dealer price-cutting, auto sales are back to the boom times like those that preceded gasoline lines blamed for a long slump in new car deliveries.

Sales of the five U.S. auto producers for the period from Aug. 11 to Aug. 20 totaled a record 242,065 cars, compared with 199,634 in the period last year, according to company reports Thursday.

The 21 percent increase was the largest year-to-year gain for a 10-day period since March - before the gasoline crunch.

However, troubled Chrysler Corp., which did not offer its direct-to-customer $400 rebates until the last two days of the period, suffered a sales decline of 19 percent.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Walter Buckel of the Lamesa Press-Reporter says Dawson County farmers may have absorbed a $15 million blow from the weather the past week.

"In the early hours of Monday morning, an area south of Sands was battered with heavy hail. Last Monday afternoon the turbulence returned to take a heavy toll from west of Welch to the Caprock area. It was a terrible blow for the farmers in that strip--wiping out crops that held promise for a bumper year."

We understand that Scurry County farmers are keeping their fingers crossed. They escaped the hail which hit the Dawson area. Moreover, crops that look almost too good to be true appear to be in the making and the insect threat has been virtually nil. Of course much of the area cotton was planted late, and the farmers still have a lot of calendar-watching ahead because an early frost could cut the yield considerably.

Jim Cornish of the Post Dispatch reports that chamber directors there discussed Christmas season planning at a recent meeting.

"Why talk Christmas in August?" Cornish asks, and then answers his own question: "Because planning consumes so much down time, that's why."

Cornish said he raised the question of whether the "old fashioned Christmases we all used to know are gone forever. For example, try to fly Santa into Post for a pre-Christmas visit in a helicopter today and you'll be surprised at all the difficulties and restrictions.

"That raises another point. Do today's youngsters---and their parents---want to get involved anymore in a small town's Christmas plans? Merchants several years ago found out it was so difficult to get the high school band downtown on a December Saturday afternoon that they quit asking. The kids wanted to be a dozen other places."

Price-Fixing Suit Against OPEC Stalls

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A federal judge, rejecting a unique effort to stop oil price fixing, has ruled that United States courts do not have jurisdiction over "sovereign nations" that export oil.

U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk said Thursday he could not go forward with an antitrust suit filed against member nations of the Organizatin of Oil Exporting Countries because they are not subject to the U.S. Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

Hauk said each OPEC nation is entitled to protect its own natural resource, oil, for the benefit of its citizens through systems of taxation, royalties and buy-backs.

"The question is, do I have jurisdiction? The answer is that I do not," the judge said in a ruling that followed four days of testimony and legal arguments.

The suit, filed last December by the 900,000-member International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, sought an injunction to block the cartel from fixing crude oil prices.

OPEC quadrupled the world price of crude oil in 1973-74, and has rasied prices more than 50 percent in the past year. Increases in the price OPEC nations charge for oil generally are reflected in the cost of petroleum products to the American consumer.

Hauk said a decisive factor in his ruling was the plaintiffs' failure to prove that OPEC countries conducted business on U.S. soil.

"If the plaintiffs could show the sheiks came over here for any other reason than to buy boutiques in Beverly Hills and go to the gambling tables of Las Vegas, I would be inclined to say it was an excellent suit," he declared.

Hauk said he does not believe that the 13 nations of the OPEC cartel hold meetings solely "to fix prices to rip off the world."

Their gatherings, he said, are for discussion of taxes, royalties and buy-backs that will help each country to "preserve their natural resources."

"These are sovereign agreements to carry out sovereign acts to stabilize prices for their own sovereign benefit, not just for profit," said Hauk.

Attorney James Davis said the union would appeal. "The machinsts believe they are right and they want to go on," he said.

OPEC and its member nations were not represented in court during the hearings. At least four OPEC nations declared sovereign immunity in response to the suit, the State Department said.

Mexican Oil Continues To Stain Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Runaway Mexican crude oil creeped farther up the already oil-stained Texas coast today and Coast Guardsmen got a look Thursday at the potential mayhem uncooperative weather could cause.

Squalls packing winds up to 70 knots tore loose floating barriers protecting the two southerly passes into the ecologically-delicate Laguna Madre behind Padre Island.

Patches of filmy sheen, the least dangerous form of the spill, took advantage of the squall to seep through the Brazos Santiago Pass and past the damaged boom.

Q.-Why didn't school officials plublicly post a list of school supplies early enough to coincide with the school supply sales sponsored by local merchants?

A.-"There is no absolute supply requirement for each grade level at each school. Supplies vary from school to school by grade level," explained Superintendent Bill J. Hood. Students and their parents can learn of the specific needs during registration, at a time when school supply sales should still be going on, Hood added.

Inflation Up Another 1%...

Food Prices Level Off But Fuel Still Soaring

WASHINGTON (AP)—American consumers benefited from a leveling off of food prices in July, but this was more than offset by continued rapid rises in gasoline and home heating oil costs, the government said today.

As a result, consumer prices last month rose 1 percent, the Labor Department said.

The July increase, identical to that of June, marked the seventh consecutive month of inflation near or above the 1 percent mark.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that workers' average weekly earnings declined 0.3 percent from June to July when adjusted for inflation.

"Over the year, real average weekly earnings were down 3.9 percent," the report said.

Spendable earnings - what a worker with three dependents has left after Social Security and federal income tax payments - also fell last month. The 0.4 percent decline helped push spendable earnings about 4 percent below July 1978.

The price increases continued at the fastest pace since the early 1950s and could leave the nation with an inflation rate this year approaching 13 percent. Carter administration economists, however, say the worst of the price increases are behind and that more moderate increases are ahead.

Food and beverage prices rose a modest 0.1 percent in July, the smallest increase since July 1978.

"Beef prices declined for the second month in a row, and pork and poultry prices for the fourth consecutive month following substantial increases during the fourth quarter of 1978 and earlier this year," the report said. The price for eggs, a good meat substitute, fell 4.5 percent.

The increases were in fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, coffee, bread and cereal products.

Energy prices have been rising rapidly in the wake of the temporary Iranian crude-oil production shutdown and price increases by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

In July, energy was blamed for a 1.2 percent rise in the housing component of the index and a 1.8 percent jump in transportation.

The consumer price index stood at 218.9 in July. This means that goods that cost $100 in the base year 1967 now cost $218.90.

The index figure was 11.3 percent ahead of July 1978.

Tree Sitter Falls Short Of Record

RANDOLPH, N.J. (AP) — After 61 days, 21 hours and 56 minutes in a maple tree, Drew Rusnack thought he had a world record. But the 14-year-old has since discovered he went out on a limb for nothing.

Rusnack ascended to his backyard berth just after school closed in June. He plans to descent on Sept. 5, just three days before starting his freshman year to Randolph High School.

The aim was to topple the 61-day tree-sitting record recognized in the Guinness Book of World Records. On Thursday, Rusnack belatedly discovered that someone else cornered the honor in 1978 by spending half a year in a tree.

It's like shock," Rusnack said Thursday from his tarpdraped perch 20 feet off the ground. Even so, he refused to come down. "I said I was going to go through it and I'm going to," he said.

As for trying to break the newly discovered 182-day record, his father, Jack Rusnack, axed the idea. "He has to go to school, he just has to," the elder Rusnack said.

If He Runs...

Carter's River Cruise Preview Of Campaign

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—President Carter ended a week-long campaigning cruise down the Mississippi River that he says could be a preview of his re-election strategy.

Carter insisted to reporters that "I am not a candidate" yet. But he said that should he run, he would try to balance national advertising and big-city campaigning with visits like those he has made by the score in the last week to small towns he has not been to before.

The president continued his grueling round of speech-making and handshaking at the river's locks and dams late into the night and early this morning before docking under St. Louis' landmark Gateway Arch.

Carter jogged at midnight across Dam No. 25 at Linfield, Mo. where the sternwheeler Delta Queen paused while going through a lock. He shook hands with a crowd of several hundred there, then, after a few hours sleep, arose at 4:15 a.m. to address another crowd at Lock and Dam 26 in Alton, Ill.

Carter was up again at 6:45 a.m., awakened by the ship's bandleader, Vic Tooker, who played a chorus of "Oh, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning" on the steam calliope, whose whistles are located directly over the staterooms occupied by Carter, wife Rosalynn and daughter Amy. Tooker said the president had left a wakeup call.

As Carter arrived in St. Louis for a welcoming ceremony and a late morning flight back to Washington, a red, yellow, orange and purple hot air balloon floated behind the crowd and a fire truck spouted jets of water into the air.

WTC Planning 10-Year Event

The Western Texas College faculty was welcomed to the campus for the fall term and plans for a 10th anniversary celebration by the college were announced Thursday night.

The occasion was the annual faculty dinner, which was held in the WTC cafeteria.

Dr. Robert L. Clinton, WTC president, told the group that plans were being made for a celebration in November, the month when Scurry County voters approved creation of the college district in 1969. A full week of special activities will be held, with the high point set for Sunday, Nov. 18.

Dr. Clinton and R.C. Patton, president of the board of trustees, welcomed the faculty, and new members were introduced by Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president. Those returning to the faculty introduced themselves and their spouses.

Dr. Clinton announced recipients of five-year service pins. Present to receive their pins were Dr. Franklin Pruitt, professor of history and government, Elsie Anderson, assistant professor of mathematics; Dr. Gene McClurg, dean of occupational education and technology; and Joe Carter, associate professor of science. Others who qualified for the five-year awards but were unable to attend the dinner were Mary Pinkston, secretary in the office of the president and vice president; and Lee Burke, assistant professor of physical education.

fat in the bacon

Many taxpayers have learned to grin and bear it whenever they run across a news item reporting on Sen. William Proxmire's Golden Fleece Awards. These have been awarded for some time to bureaucrats responsible for wasteful expenditure of taxpayers' money.

The idea has been borrowed by two other members of Congress who think an occasional brickbat may help repeal a highly inflationary federal law known as the Davis-Bacon Act. It regulates wages on federally funded construction projects and, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, inflates construction costs--both private and public--by almost $3 billion yearly.

The new award is called "The Davis-Bacon Fatback Award", and the first one was awarded to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall to memorialize a cost overrun of almost $300,000 on a public works project in Oklahoma.

According to Rep. Tom Hagedorn (R-Minn.), who wants to repeal the Act, the contractor for a sewer and pumping station and retention pond to serve the city of Oklahoma City figures Bacon Act as administered by Marshall's department raised the cost from $3.5 million to $4.3 million--a 24 percent boost overall.

"Of that $820,900 difference, the contractor attributed $284,500 directly to the increase in wage rates, a 63 percent rise," Hagedorn said. "The remainder of the $820,900 difference was assessed to increased costs of materials and other expenses arising from construction delays while Oklahoma City was appealing the Davis-Bacon rates."

Rep. Hagedorn and John Erlenborn (R-Ill.) are cosponsors of the new award.

Hagedorn explained the origin of the fanciful "fatback" title. "When I worked on a farm in Minnesota," he said, "I knew one kind of bacon--the type you get from a trim, fat-free pig. When I came to Washington, I soon learned about another type of bacon that is not so fat free."

unexpected allies

"Politics," according to the time-honored cliche, "makes strange bedfellows." But seldom does there emerge a more unusual coalition than the organized opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the electoral college.

The amendment, authored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., would provide for direct election of the president by declaring as the winner the candidate who receives the most popular votes.

Under current system, each state has as many votes in the electoral college as it has senators and representatives in Congress, a formula that offers a built-in advantage to the less populous states.

As a result, opposition to Bayh's proposal during this year's Senate debate on the issue has been led by a pair of conservative Republicans from relatively rural states – Sens. Orrin G. Hatch of Utah and Strom Thurmond of South Carolina.

But their equally fervent allies in lobbying to defeat the proposed change include leaders of two well-known liberal organizations—Vernon Jordan of the Urban League and Howard Squadron of the American Jewish Congress.

Both groups want to retain the current system because its winner-take-all aspects have led candidates to concentrate their campaign efforts on the most populous states.

The proportion of black and Jewish voters in those states far exceeds the national average—and the organizations representing those constituencies are determined to maintain the system that gives them special attention.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

My husband and I went to a help-yourself salad bar the other night where he overindulged and I had to drive home.

He insisted he could do it, but anyone who ate that much lettuce couldn't even sing, let alone drive the car.

It's the restaurant's fault. You can't just lay out 10 vegetables, croutons, gelatin, three-bean salad, cold plates and chilled forks and expect people to exercise temperance.

Personally, I am a social salad eater who can go either way. If everyone has a salad, I'll have one, but I don't need it to have a good time.

My husband does not have that kind of restraint. We hadn't gotten inside the door before a waiter urged him to belly up to the salad bar. When he grabbed a large chilled dinner plate I knew it was going to be another one of those nights.

People at salad bars are a real study in human greed.

There's the secret salad eater. He gets two plates and acts like one is for someone else.

There's the one-salad-limit eater. He's going to nurse one salad all night so he slowly but painstakingly puts on a mount of lettuce, two dozen tomatoes, a sliced onion, ½ pound of bean sprouts, freshly ground pepper, a box of croutons and a pint of sour cream.

There's the diner who keeps going back to the salad bar again and again and hits the shrimp so often he becomes an embarrassment to his family.

On the way home, my husband observed, "You're sore, aren't you?"

"We can talk about it in the morning."

"Why can't we talk about it now?"

"Don't breathe on me. You smell like roquefort. All I can say is you certainly set some kind of example for your sons . . . pigging out on the salad."

"I told you. It was something to do until the food arrives."

"Why can't you sit around and eat bread sticks like Fred?"

"Are you saying I can't handle a couple of salads before dinner?"

When he starts going to the salad bar alone . . . I'll worry."

recession disputed

NEW YORK (AP) — According to those in the best position to know, the recession is here.

Economic forecasters, in fact, have all but stopped debating that question, and have turned their attention instead to the issue of how severe the slowdown will be.

Early in the summer, the staff of one financial magazine even held a tongue-in-cheek "first day of the recession" party.

To complete the consensus, the Carter administration swallowed its political pride and acknowledged in its mid-year economic review that 1979 would almost certainly go into the books as a recession year.

But the public apparently doesn't feel that the issue is so clear-cut. In a recent poll of a 2,511 adults across the country, R.H. Bruskin Associates, a New Burnswick, N.J., market research concern, posed the question "Some people say we will have a serious recession this year. Do you believe this?"

Only 45 percent of those surveyed said yes, while 36 percent disagreed, and 19 percent said they weren't quite sure.

At the moment recession seems to be a more difficult idea to grasp than some of our other economic worries. Inflation, by contrast, is something you can see and feel in your daily life. Energy problems are equally apparent to anybody who sat in gas lines a couple of months ago or is worried about heat this winter.

But a recession? There were 97.2 million people with jobs in this country at last count, and the unemployment rate has been relatively steady around 5.7 percent for the past year.

Money is available for lending, and even if mortgages are going from 11 or 11½ percent interest these days, the cost isn't all that expensive when you consider that the inflation rate is more like 13 percent.

The term recession itself is somewhat arbitrary. According to an old joke, a recession arrives when your neighbor loses his job; a depression is when you lose yours, and a panic is when your wife loses hers.

The offical definition, as applied by the National Bureau of Economic Research, is more impersonal - a recession occurs when the Gross National Product, after subtracting the effects of inflation and adjusting for seasonal factors, shows declines for two consecutive quarters.

As United Business Service, a Boston-based investment advisory firm, put it: "It is a case of not knowing you were somewhere until after you've left."

Where does all this leave your neighbor, you and your spouse? The Carter administration and many private economists are sticking with a prediction that this recession will be mild - unlike the last one, which extended from late 1973 to the spring of 1975.

If that forecast proves correct, the recession for many people will remain something remote and academic. If not, it could become very real for a lot of individuals long before it is officially certified.

Ready or not school is just around the corner. (Catch our back to school issue coming up Sunday). Mothers can finally enjoy the miseries of their soap operas in peace and dads will have an excuse to send the young'un to bed early so he can decide for a change whether to watch Carson or the late show.

The house will be quiet again and there will be lonely dogs all over town.

For the children, a whole new chapter of their lives will begin unfolding. The kindergarten kiddies have to give up their mommies, many for the first time but get to ride in the big yellow school bus so what the heck.

Many will be the junior high boy who discovers that some silly old girl he couldn't stand just last May has developed into quite a beauty. The girl will find that the young man, still four inches shorter than she, is not as obnoxious as she remembered.

High school is where life really begins for young people. They consider everything that came before as child's play.

Even the lowly freshmen have to be reminded daily by upperclassmen that they are the scum of the school. Still their chests swell with every thought of their new status.

Sophomores are convinced they are the Real Thing just like Levis and rock music. If they only knew how sophomoric they are. But blessed be the arrogance of youth. How quickly it passes.

Juniors are the most likeable and secure group in the esoteric society of adolescence. Somehow, being so deeply involved in every thing from basketball to band to algebra to romance makes them more open and affaable to those outside the peer group.

Seniors are the kingpins of the school and tend to swagger a bit. They can't wait to get out of school and be free at last. Everyone of them is convinced he will become rich, famous and travel the world when he graduates. And some do exactly that.

Lower Energy Drain With Window Shades

COLLEGE STATION—Window shades overcome "fuelish" windows to save energy during hot-weather months, says Pat Seaman, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

One-fourth of the energy used for heating and cooling in the United States - the equivalent of 1.7 million barrels of oil per day - is squandered through windows.

Only an uninsulated attic wastes more energy, she explains.

What does this mean in dollars and cents?

Between 40 cents and $1.40 is added to fuel and utility bills each year, according to government experts, for each square foot of single-pane glass in a typical home.

For a home with fifteen three by five foot windows, this can add up to as much as $315 each year that is spent on energy -- but lost.

That's like throwing money out the window, Ms. Seaman points out.

THE PROBLEM

The problem is that glass is an excellent conductor of heat.

In summer, the blistering sun penetrates through the glass causing heat build-up in the home.

Heat build-up equals more air conditioning equals more energy to cool a home.

THE SOLUTION

Window shades form a barrier against heat flow - substantially more so than venetian blinds or draperies, the other two common interior window coverings.

Standard, inexpensive, light-colored, opaque window shades can "barricade" the flow of heat, the specialist continues.

During the summer, sunlight is deflected by a drawn shade and kept out of the room resulting in dramatic energy savings - all summer long.

HOW TO SPLASH SUMMER HEAT GAIN

During the hot, sunny part of the day, pull the shades down, particularly in windows along the southern and western side of the house, which receive the potent concentration of sun.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is another hand from "Masters and Monsters". It is from a supposed team of four match with the Hideous Hog sitting South at table one and becoming declarer at five spades.

East's ace of diamonds took the first trick and he led the queen of hearts to dummy's ace. A spade lead came next and now the Hog was on a tough spot. East had started with just one diamond and two spades, but he surely needed eight hearts for his heart bid. How could the Hog avoid the loss of two more tricks?

He worked it out by means of losing the right trick. He led a club to dummy's king and a second club back to his ace. Then he played his deuce of trumps.

East had to win and lead a heart. The Hog ruffed in dummy, while discarding a club from his own hand. Then he led a low club from dummy and ruffed it. This set up dummy's last two clubs for diamond discards and five spades made.

At the other table the bidding started the same way, but instead of passing five spades, West went to six hearts. North doubled and South opened the king of spades. It was ruffed in dummy, a diamond was led to the ace, the last spade ruffed and two rounds of diamonds were led. North wasn't going to ruff with the ace of trumps so East got rid of his two clubs, bumped the ace and king of trumps together and had stolen his impossible slam.

Can't Countenance Seniors' Discounts

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I'm all for taking care of our old people and giving them every possible break. But I think giving every person who reaches age 60 or 65 lower rates for transportation, haircuts, entertainment, etc., is just plain ridiculous!

I have friends and relatives who are loaded with money, but because they're "senior citizens" they take advantage of all these reduced rates and laugh about it.

I would like your opinion—and the opinion of others.

POOR WORKING STIFF

DEAR STIFF: Most senior citizen rates are intended to attract the senior citizen's business as well as give a break to older folks living on a fixed income.

To separate those who need it from those who don't, and then exclude those who don't, would be a horrendous task. Not to mention the inequities that could result.

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance of mine is about to give birth. She is married, but the baby is not her husband's. He married her when she was six months along, knowing the baby wasn't his, but he loved her anyway. (The baby's real father just took off.)

My question is this: After the baby is born, what should I say to her husband? Would congratulations be appropriate under the circumstances? Or do you think it would be in poor taste? After all, everybody knows he didn't have anything to do with it.

CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: Congratulations are indeed in order. If not for the achievement, for showing himself to be more of a man than the baby's natural father.

DEAR ABBY: I had a friend who would have been 84 tomorrow. She was struck by a car and died instantly. She had no family and left no will. She had quite a bit of money that she wanted to go to her favorite charities, but she never got around to putting anything in writing. Consequently, the state will get it all! She had some valuable furniture and jewelry which was auctioned off. The state will get the proceeds and strangers will have her precious personal possessions.

She told me that she wanted to be cremated, but since she left no instructions, she was buried.

I am 41, and have learned a valuable lesson. Death may not be a pleasant thought, but it is inevitable and can come without warning, so I have made all my wishes known in writing—with copies to several relatives and friends. Even if things have only sentimental value, if no specific provisions have been made for their disposition, the public administrator can (and does) throw all personal items away. (Letters, pictures, etc.)

Last year this happened to over 6,000 people in Los Angeles alone. If only one person reads this and does something about it, I'll feel that my friend did not die in vain.

BROKENHEARTED IN L.A.

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: I agree with your suggestion but, in order to be absolutely certain that one's wishes are carried out, a lawyer should be consulted.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Theft Probed

A felony theft report is under investigation by city police officers.

Complainant in the case is H.D. Strickland, 310 35th St. He told police yesterday that approximately $221 worth of stereo tapes had been stolen from him.

The matter was reported at 1 p.m.

The Department of Commerce says Americans each consumed 14.9 pounds of chocolate and other candies in 1978. The figure is down from 15.4 pounds per American in 1977.

Bulk may help

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a barium test of my colon because of increased peristalic action after being overseas several years. The only information on the X ray was two small polyps but the X-ray technician made a comment that I had an extremely long veriform appendix.

Although operations are discouraged now, I wish to avoid this possibility as a senior citizen. I have averaged one or two peristalic upsets a year unrelated to the appendix as far as I know. A quick recovery has prevented me from losing a single day's work.

Is there a diet or other health habits you can advise that might shrink the appendix or keep it in a healthy condition? My many physical activities include jogging.

DEAR READER — There is no solid information on diets that you can use to prevent appendicitis. Nevertheless, the advocates of increased bulk in the diet claim that such diets prevent appendicitis. As evidence, they cite the relative infrequency of attacks of appendicitis in cultures where the diet includes a lot of bulk, particularly cereal fiber.

I gather from your comment about increased peristalic action that you mean you have intermittent attacks of diarrhea. How the increased fiber in your diet would influence this I'm not certain and probably the best way to find out is to try it. In some instances, when the individual doesn't have enough bulk in the diet, increased amounts relieve this problem. That's because a spastic or irritable colon not only causes constipation but it can cause intermittent attacks of diarrhea.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-8 about diarrhea and its usual causes. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, a few rare people have sensitivity to gluten found in all cereals except corn and rice. I doubt that's your problem but it means that if you decide to try an increased amount of bulk in your diet that you might need to approach this cautiously.

Incidentally, individuals who have developed the capacity to jog long distances sometimes do have diarrheal episodes associated with the jogging itself.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have very fine, thin hair which will not take a permanent wave. My fingernails split and have rough ridges on top. I take a daily vitamin plus iron. I would like to know if there is some vitamin I should be taking that would help my condition.

DEAR READER — Probably not. Taking more vitamins and minerals than your body needs will not improve your health or the condition of your body.

You might review what you're eating in reference to your protein intake. If you're on a protein-deficient diet, it can affect your hair and your nails.

Beyond that, as far as fingernails are concerned, you'd be surprised how many women have fingernail problems because they use fingernail polish. In some instances it may be the polish itself and in other instances, it's the reaction to the strong chemicals in the fingernail polish remover.

Many See Ghost Light; Sheriff Still Skeptical

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer

SARATOGA (AP) — There seems to be little middle ground in these parts when it comes to a discussion of the "Ghost Road Light," a luminous ball which some people have seen hovering near this Southeast Texas town in the heart of the Big Thicket.

"I've been here 42 years and I've never seen the light," says Sheriff Billy Payne of nearby Kountze, whose job it is to control lovers, sightseers, beer-drinkers and pot-smokers who come here hoping to see the light.

"It's a hoax," the sheriff says flatly.

But hundreds of other witnesses, including law enforcement officers, have reported seeing it on the lonely dirt road between here and the ghost town of Bragg, seven heavily wooded miles away. It only appears at night - and only some nights - those who have seen it say. Most witnesses said it was very humid when the light appeared.

"I saw it in the middle of the road. Then it went into the woods and burst into sparkles," said Mildred Bracken of nearby Honey Island. "Then it went out like that," she added with a clap of her hands.

Other witnesses say the light, described in varying colors, has darted, jumped, floated and sometimes hovered stationary among the tall loblolly pines standing close along both sides of the road. Some say it has chased them.

"It came down the road traveling right toward me and then went off the road through the woods and disappeared," said Harold Nicholas, 49, of Saratoga. "It was about the size of a person's head, maybe a little larger. It was real bright. It was orange and looked like the light of a train. It made no noise."

H.K. Pitts, 48, of nearby Warren, was a deputy sheriff in 1965 on patrol along the remote road when he said he spotted the Ghost Light.

"It was 2 or 3 in the morning. I was driving slowly, easing along with my lights out, when I saw what appeared a light approaching the back of my patrol car."

Pitts said even though he only saw a single light, he assumed it was from an approaching car. But when he turned around to investigate, he found no car. He found nothing.

"It disappeared," he said.

There have been several scientific theories offered to explain the light - a college professor from Beaumont once surmised it was caused by swamp gas; others say it could be auto headlights being refracted by the moist atmosphere.

Rob Riggs, assistant publisher of the Kountze News-Visitor and officer of an Austin-based research group, the Institute of Applied Harmonics, has written articles in his newspaper theorizing the mysterious light is caused by disturbances in the earth's geomagnetic field.

But no rational explanation for the phenomenon has ever been proven, and in the absence of a scientific solution, legends have flourished.

Some witnesses say the headlight theory is unlikely beause the road is "as straight as an arrow" and they claim they have seen the light when there were no other vehicles in the area.

The road used to be a railroad track between Bragg and Saratoga, until Santa Fe abandoned the run in 1934 and removed the rails when the town of Bragg itself was abandoned. The only remaining building is the old Bragg Hotel, which is in an advanced state of ruin.

Before the tracks were lifted, one of the engineers was murdered.

"Some people say the light is the murdered engineer haunting the area," said Archer Fullingim, retired publisher of the Kountze News.

Kountze Mayor Winfred G. Birdwell said the legends have been passed down by generations and "everyone who came along added a little bit to it."

Union Official Denied Parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Parole Commission says Joseph Tonelli, former president of the United Paperworkers International Union will have to serve more time on his embezzlement conviction.

The commission denied Tuesday the 71-year-old Tonelli's request for parole from his sentence of a year and a day. He is now scheduled to be released Nov. 14. Tonelli pleaded guilty last year to helping embezzle $33,000 from the union and said he received $9,500 of the stolen funds. He also pleaded guilty to obstructing justice by rewriting union diaries.

Soviet Dancer Defects

By HENRIETTA LEITH
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— Alexander Godunov, a star of the Bolshei Ballet, is leaving his wife behind to pursue "new areas of dance" as the first major dancer with the internationally renowned Soviet troupe to seek asylum in the United States.

Godunov's request for asymlum was quickly granted by immigration officials Thursday and the State Department said he had gone to stay with "private citizens" at a location it would not disclose.

His personal and professional plans were not known immediately.

The tall and powerfully built Russian, noted for the speed and dramatic impact of his dancing, was appearing with the Bolshoi here when he won asylum. The Moscow-based troupe is to leave New York this week for performances in Chicago and Los Angeles.

Godunov, 29, who once said the American public "is a public that understands ballet," was the third major male dancer in two decades to defect from a Soviet company.

Mikhail Baryshnikov and Rudolf Nureyev defected from Leningrad's Kirov Ballet to become international stars. Both have appeared in American movies - Nureyev in a film biography of Rudolph Valentino and Baryshnikov in "The Turning Point" - and Baryshnikov has been named director of the American Ballet Theater, effective 1980.

Godunov's defection stunned Bolshoi officials and the company's American producers, said Lillian Libman of Nederlander Producing Co. She expressed the "great regret" of both organizations.

Julius Caesar was born in 102 BC.

Denney Family Buying Two Local Businesses

The Sunshine Shoppe has been purchased by the Charles Denney family and their purchase of Caroline's Catering Service is still in negotiation, but is expected to be completed on or before Sept. 1.

The Denneys, with daughter Sonya and son Tom, are moving here from Orange, Calif.

Mrs. Denney, however, is a native of Snyder. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Audry Head.

Denney, a native of the Levelland - Littlefield area. In California he was a high school coach and distributive education teacher. He has also coached at Levelland, taught in Aspermont, and been a principal in Smyer.

Mrs. Denney said the decision to permanently move back to Snyder was made about a month ago when she came here to attend a 25th high school reunion.

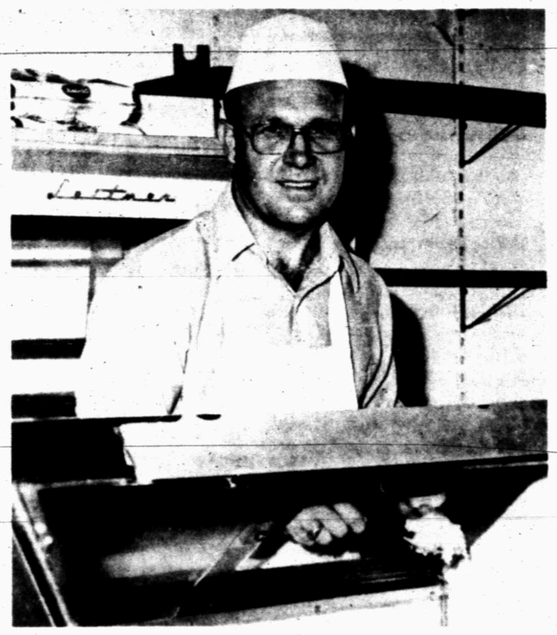

"We came here on vacation and Chuck, he's been wanting to move back here forever, started looking around," said Mrs. Denney. "He's always wanted to be in the food business and he's always wanted a business of his own. This was an opportunity for him. They (the businesses) were for sale and we were here."

Denney said the family had planned on eventually settling in Snyder but decided not to pass up the chance of buying the two businesses they found available.

"I got to looking around and saw these two businesses and I pulled the trigger early," he said.

The family began its operation at the Sunshine Shoppe Tuesday. That business will be managed by daughter Sonya.

The Sunshine Shoppe was purchased from Donna Fowler, and Caroline's Catering Service will be purchased from Caroline Hurt.

The conference will begin at 7:30 p.m. each evening and on Tuesday through Thursday there will be morning meetings beginning at 10.

Pastor Mahan has ministered in the city of Ashland for nearly 30 years. He has traveled extensively throughout the United States and England preaching the Gospel. He is editor of a quarterly newsletter and sends out hundreds of messages on tape each month.

"Rev. Mahan will be preaching on the exalted Christ and the glory of the Cross," says Barry McKinney, pastor of Grace Baptist.

Hospital Board Approves Report

The board of directors of D.M. Cogdell Memorial Hospital met last night in regular session and approved Hospital Administrator Cy Miller's financial report.

The ledger showed total liabilities and net worth of the hospital to be $2,955,112 as of July 31.

Besides Miller, the meeting was attended by County Judge Preston Wilson and board members John Jarrell, Sam Cross, Roy Kidd, and Rex Robinson.

At the beginning of the 18th century, 20,000 pounds of tea annually were imported into Britain; by the end of the century tea imports had reached 20 million tons.

But Little Known In Cities...

Electric Co-Ops Vital Part Of Country Living

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rural electric cooperatives may be vital parts of rural life but overall they ring a bell with less than half of all Americans, according to a new poll.

The survey results were released Thursday by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association. It was conducted last spring by Public Interest Opinion Research, a survey firm based here.

Bob Nelson of NRECA said the poll showed rural electric co-ops were much better known in rural and suburban areas than in cities. That may be natural, he said, because the thrust of the electric co-ops since they began in the 1930s has been to provide power to sparsely settled rural areas.

The poll involved telephone calls to 800 adults nationwide, scientifially selected to respond to a series of questions developed by the research group in cooperation with NRECA.

"A great many Americans still can't specifically identify the three major segments of the nation's power supply industry - investor-owned, municipally-owned and rural electric cooperative utilities," NRECA said of the results.

"But those who can, by a substantial margin, believe that rural electric cooperatives are making the best effort to hold down rates on electric service to consumers."

Overall, the survey showed that 63 percent of those asked had heard of municipal power systems, 47 percent of investor-owned companies, and 43 percent of co-ops.

Regionally, rural electric co-ops were recognized by 52 percent of the people in the South, 48 percent in the Midwest, 43 percent in the West and 27 percent in the North.

Narrowed to those who knew of rural electric co-ops, people interviewed said 2 to 1 that cooperatives are "the most cost-efficient source of power supply" and cited as reasons "consumer involvement in rate-setting and decision-making," the NRECA said.

On an overall basis, including the entire 800 surveyed, the poll showed that "64 percent of the people felt costs of electricity are too high with most of the blame attributed to inflation, high fuel costs and fuel scarcity," it said.

"Another 31 percent said costs were 'about right', 1 percent said they were too low, and 4 percent weren't sure."

"About three-fourths of those polled said they believe the present amount of environmental, rate and other regulation by the government should be decreased or held at the same level. Only 18 percent said regulation of the electric utility industry should be increased, the NRECA said.

Some 35 percent in the survey said they favored cutting back on energy use "even if it meant an economic slowdown" while 58 percent said they favored the production of enough energy to maintain the present economic growth.

Says Bob Krueger...

Mexico Not to Discuss Payments For Oil Spill

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Mexican government will not discuss payments the United States wants for at least part of the damage caused to the Texas coast by the oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico, according to Texan Robert Krueger of the State Department.

The former congressman from Texas, recently named to the newly created post of U.S. coordinator for Mexican affairs, said the Mexican government was informed Wednesday of U.S. interest in opening discussions on possible damage payments.

"One matter that we suggest be included in the discussion is the question of liability and possible alternatives for dealing with claims for compensation of clean-up costs and any damages that may have occurred to property and resources," Krueger said at a news conference.

A statement released by the Foreign Ministry in Mexico City late Thursday said there was no basis in international law making Mexico responsible for damage claims.

"The Mexican government is not prepared to begin conversations with the United States on the theme of responsibility and eventual claims for possible damages to another state, persons or goods resulting from the accident," the statement said.

The statement also said "There is no basis in international law to recognize the existence of a legal international responsibility on the part of the government of Mexico or Petrolees Mexicanos (Mexico's oil monopoly)," the statement added.

"This is the government's position for the moment," a ministry spokesman said. He would not elaborate on the statement.

The oil spill has been described by Mexican officials as an accident which was not the result of negligence.

President Carter acknowledged earlier this week that there was no way that Mexico could be compelled to pay.

Krueger did not say directly that the United States would seek financial damages from Mexico. Questioned about U.S. intentions, Krueger said, "I would be surprised if we simply assumed that we were hoping to pay for the whole thing."

The Panama Canal was formally opened in 1920.

Pagano Case Shows Cause For Vigilance

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—The trial of the Rev. Bernard T. Pagano, a Roman Catholic priest accused of robbery, showed "the weakness of the criminal justice system and why we have to be vigilant at all times," a defense attorney says.

"The worst thing that could happen is that an innocent person could be convicted," added Dennis Spivack, estimating Pagano had had a 40 percent chance of conviction before another man confessed to the "Gentleman Bandit" robberies.

Five charges of armed robbery and one of attempted robbery against Pagano were dropped Thursday when Ronald Clouser, 39, of Brookhaven, Pa., pleaded guilty to three charges of second degree robbery in the holdups.

Pagano, 53, still faces an attempted - robbery charge in Pennsylvania. It was not immediately known what would happen to that case.

Pagano's trial was halted Monday when Clouser confessed to involvement in the crimes. Seven witnesses in the case had pointed out Pagano as the man who displayed a small chrome-plated revolver and demanded money.

Defense attorneys contended the witnesses were unduly influenced by newspaper photographs of the priest.

Churches Aid In Planning Of Olympics

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Several denominations are launching special ministries at this resort center in connection with next February's Winter Olympics.

They're being coordinated by an ecumenically staffed Religious Affairs Committee, headed by the Rev. J. Bernard Fell, a United Methodist pastor.

It is the first Olympics at which religious groups have been officially invited to assist with the planning.

An inter-Lutheran project there, backed by the four Lutheran denominations belonging to the Lutheran Council in the U.S., named the Rev. Karl Cron of Plattsburgh as full time coordinator.

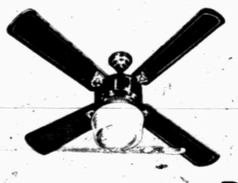

Wine drinking was introduced into Britain during the Roman occupation, and vineyards were planted by the invaders in Hampshire during the third century.

GRACE BIBLE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Grace Bible Baptist Church meeting at 2207 Ave. R, 2 blocks north of town square is a new kind of church. It is a new doctrine and practice. Yet it is new only because the old has been lost. We are returning to the old doctrines of the Reformed Baptists. What were the Reformed Baptists and what did they believe?

Reformed Baptists were those Baptists in England during the early 1600's who were influenced by the doctrines of John Calvin and the Reformed churches of Europe. They believed in a Sovereign God who created the universe and is still in control of it. They believe that God created man without sin, but that man disobeyed God and became a sinner who was unable to save himself. They believed that God chose a people for His name from fallen mankind, and Christ died for them and accomplished their redemption. The Holy Spirit effectually calls them to Christ. All these truths are incorporated in the London Baptist Confession of Faith of 1689 and the Philadelphia Baptist Confession of Faith of 1742.

The Grace Bible Baptist Church holds these truths as Biblical.

There will be an open Bible discussion period at the 10:00 Service Tuesday thru Thursday. We welcome all Faiths and Love all those who love the Lord Jesus Christ.

Insect Blamed For Mishap

An insect flying into a car through a rolled-down window and striking the driver in the face was cited as a possible factor in a one car accident in East Snyder this morning.

Injured was Linda Fisk, 28. Police officers investigating the wreck reported Mrs. Fisk had told them she lost control of her car when temporarily distracted by an insect that had flown into the vehicle and struck her in the face.

She was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Police said the Fisk vehicle, a 1970 AMC Gremlin, hit a utility pole in the 200 block of East Highway about 6:50 a.m. The car was heavily damaged, officers said.

Mrs. Fisk was transported to the hospital by Galyean Ambulance Service.

Inventory May Account For Poison Vial

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police were hoping today that an inventory by an exterminating company would account for a vial of a rare, but deadly poison still believed missing from a burglary last week.

Two persons were arrested Thursday in connection with the theft of the safe that held the chemical.

"They said they didn't know what they had," said police Sgt. John Ratliff. He said charges were being prepared against the pair late Thursday.

HERE WE GO AGAIN--Quarterbacks Roger Staubach, left, of the Dallas Cowboys and Terry Bradshaw of the Pittsburgh Steelers will be leading their teams into action for their final 1979 pre-season trials in a rematch of Super Bowl XIII, which will be nationally televised (NBC) at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Final Pre-Season Test For 'Pokes

Cowboys Rebout Steelers

IRVING—The Dallas Cowboys conclude their pre-season schedule here Saturday night by entertaining Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh in a rematch of last season's 35-31 classic.

The Cowboys evened their pre-season record last week (2-2) by coming from behind to beat the Houston Oilers, 16-13. The previous night Pittsburgh downed the New York Jets 27-14, stretching the Steelers' winning streak to 11 games in regular, post and pre-season play.

Kickoff for Saturday's nationally televised (NBC) game will be 8 p.m.

The Cowboys have won four of five pre-season meetings with the Steelers since the series began in 1974. The Steelers won in 1974, 41-15. In regular and post-season play the series is tied 10-10, although the Steelers have won the last three meetings, including Super Bowl X and Super Bowl XIII. Pittsburgh and Dallas meet again this year on Oct. 28 in Pittsburgh.

"I don't think our players will be looking for revenge next week because what are you going to win?" We want to get better," commented Dallas Coach Tom Landry of Saturday's game. "We've got to be better than we were against Houston and if we are better then we've got a chance to open the season on a plus note. The Steelers are a good test for anybody."

Of the Houston game, Landry said, "The win was the most positive thing I saw. Offensively we had a good game in the second half. Defensively I thought we played well the whole game. We had no help defenisively the first half because the offense just wasn't moving the ball."

Dallas held the Houston rushing attack to 103 yards. Harvey Martin was the leader with four tackles, two assists, three sacks for 32 yards in losses, a forced fumble and a pass defensed. Rookie Bruce Thornton had the other trap. The leading tacklers were Randy White and Randy Hughes, each with five solos and three assists.

"Offensively we're very rusty," added Landry. "The starters haven't played much. That's the reason I left them in so long and the reason Roger played the whole game. He needed the playing time. He hasn't played much this summer and you could tell, especially in the first half. He wasn't reading well or throwing well. All you need is exposure when you're doing that, so we left him in the whole game."

Landry praised the efforts of running back Alois Blackwell (17 carries for 48 yards and two touchdowns), Drew Pearson, tackle David Stalls and Thornton.

Chiefs Storm Through Vikes

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The best thing about the National Football League's exhibition season is that a team can build on its successes or forget about the lack of them.

Coach Marv Levy's Kansas City Chiefs plan to do some building following their 25-0 thrashing of Minnesota Thursday night.

The Vikings plan to do a lot of forgetting.

"Winning this way is very healthy for a team like ours, which hasn't experienced winning for a few seasons," said Levy, who watched his club finish its pre-season at 3-1. "But that doesn't insure winning in the regular season."

The defending NFC Central Division champion Vikings, winless in four exhibition contests, hope Levy is right.

"The only consolation we have now is that we're 0-0," said Minnesota quarterback Tommy Kramer, who was sacked four times and has yet to produce a touchdown.

"There's no excuses when you play like that," said Coach Bud Grant. "When you play as bad as we played and have a team execute as well as Kansas City did, it's going to show up in the score."

In four games, Minnesota has managed only 19 points - one touchdown, thrown by John Reaves, and four field goals.

Until now, Minnesota hadn't gone winless in pre-season since going 0-5 in 1961, its first season.

The Chiefs, who had the second-worst record in the NFL last season, rushed for 186 yards. But it was their passing game that destroyed the Vikings.

Mike Livingston started for Kansas City and completed eight of 10 passes for 96 yards and an 18-yard TD toss to Larry Dorsey.

Rookie Steve Fuller played the second half and connected on eight of 10 with two touchdowns - a nine-yarder to Tony Samuels, and one of 16 yards to Mike Williams on a field soaked by three days of rain.

"I never expected it to be this easy, but the footing was terrible and the receivers definitely had the advantage," said Livingston.

Kramer hit on 14 of 23 passes for 158 yards before being replaced by John Reaves in the fourth quarter. Kramer got the Vikings into scoring position only once, and then kicker Rick Danmeier shanked a 34-yard field goal attempt.

Grant, who has had only two losing seasons since taking over the Vikings in 1967, found a glimmer of hope.

The contest kicked off the final weekend of exhibition contests, giving each coach one last look at his team in game action before next Monday's roster cut from 50 players to 45.

Action continues tonight with Cleveland at Washington, Philadelphia at Miami, Detroit at Baltimore, Houston at New Orleans, New England at Denver, and San Francisco at Seattle.

On Saturday, it will be Chicago at St. Louis, Tampa Bay at Cincinnati, the New York Jets against the New York Giants, Atlanta against Green Bay at Milwaukee, Wis., Buffalo at Oakland, Pittsburgh at Dallas and San Diego at Los Angeles.

Snyder Looks Good In Scrimmage

Coaches Like Tiger Effort

SAN ANGELO—Fort Stockton's Panthers took their first possession and marched up the field across the paystripe with apparent ease here last night - but couldn't do it again, or again, or again.

Snyder's offense began with a sputter, but came on later in the scrimmage - both team's first for the 1979 season.

The Tigers will host top-seeded AAAA club Abilene Cooper next Thursday in the final scrimmage before opening up pre-district warfare against Midland Lee in Snyder Sept. 7.

"We were a better football team when we finished than when we started," understated Tiger head coach, Mike Jenkins. "We were a little hesitant at first," he added, citing an unseen Fort Stockton double-wing offensive attack and hesitancy in his own athletes as two of the reasons. "Every kid played better every time the ball was snapped. I thought effort was the key. If I was to mention any one thing, it would be effort."

The teams worked with all units - first, second and third - during the two-hour workout which was originally to be held at Midland, but moved here when rains beset Midland Stadium hours before. As a result, the junior varsity teams did not scrimmage.

"I was pleased with all of our units," said Jenkins. "They all played hard and got better. It was just a real good scrimmage for us."

The Tigers did a lot of switching in and out, utilizing, for instance, several different ends and running backs on the "first team."

"We are trying to formulate the strongest lineups that we can. We try to look at all the kids. This will help us (later on) get the right kids in the game at the right time."

Pass blocking, line play and defensive pursuit were areas where Snyder looked especially good, once the Tiger wheels got rolling. The veer option was "a little inconsistant, but that's normal," noted the coach.

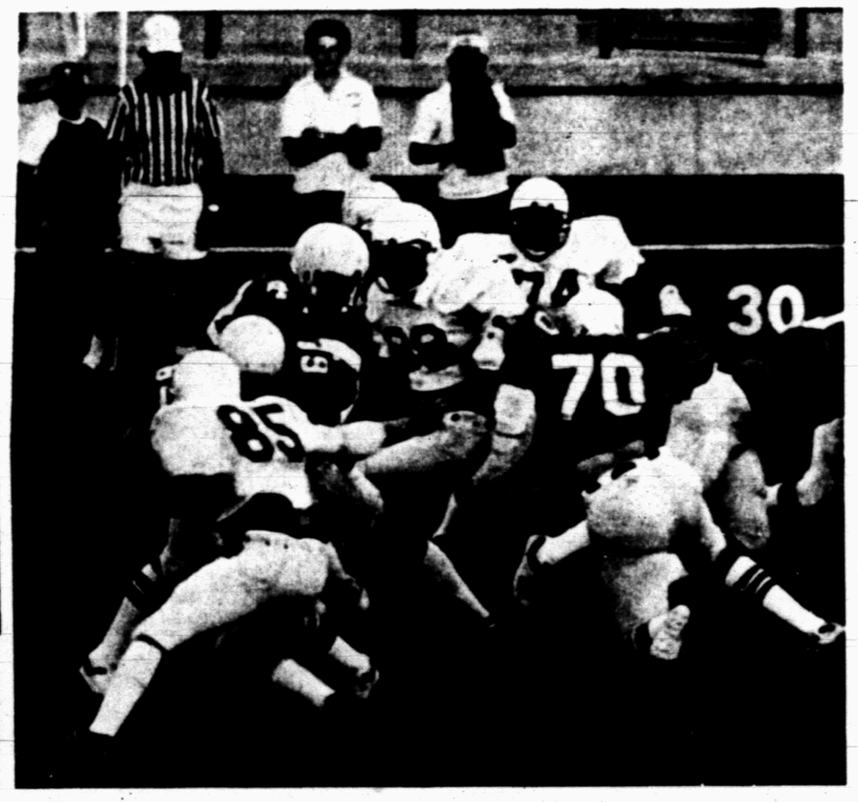

Snyder scored twice and Fort Stockton managed one "touchdown" in the scrimmage, though it should be explained that penalties - though acknowledged - were not marked off. Snyder scored on a 70-yard pass play from quarterback Mike Roemisch to Thomas Selmon, and on a Roemisch 57-yard run that showed good blocking and running finesse.

Knight Supporters Are Speaking Out

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Bobby Knight, Indiana University's basketball coach, has Hoosiers from Gov. Otis R. Bowen to summer students rallying to his support in the aftermath of his conviction for assulting a Puerto Rican policeman.

Bowen, commenting on the six-month sentence imposed on Knight in absentia, said he thought the coach was "railroaded a bit," and added "clemency would be in order."

"It is my intention to get in touch with the governor of Puerto Rico and see what can be done about it," said Bowen, reached at a educator's conference in Seattle.

FINDING THE BALL--Tiger defenders John Igo (85), Tony Degrate (88) and Sam Willis (74) zero in on a Panther ball carrier during scrimmage action between Snyder and Fort Stockton yesterday. Orioles Defense Cools Rangers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Manager Earl Weaver got the maximum performance from his shortstop platoon after studying his trusty statistical sheet for the slightest of clues.

Kiko Garcia had not collected an extra base hit in 14 games and was without a run batted in for 15 games, while Mark Belanger had been hitting .310 since July 21.

But it was Garcia who started, and he responded with a key double and a three-run homer before Belanger came in on defense to preserve a 6-5 victory over the Texas Rangers Thursday night.

Weaver relies heavily on how a batter does against a particular pitcher. His figures showed that Belanger was barely hitting .100 lifetime against Texas starter Fergie Jenkins, 13-10, and Garcia was 2-for-3. That was enough for Weaver.

Garcia doubled following a first inning walk to Al Bumbry, and both runners scored on infield grounders. In the second, Garcia rapped his fifth homer - and first since June 23 - to make it 5-1.

Belanger took over the shortstop spot in the eighth, and in the ninth he showed why he is an eight-time Gold Glove winner as the best at his position in the American League.

With one out and Jim Sundberg heading for third base, Belanger went behind the second base bag to haul down a high chopper by Mickey Rivers and throw out the speedy runner.

Rivers hit a home run off Scott McGregor, 9-4, in the fifth but the Orioles got it back in the sixth on an RBI single by Dave Skaggs.

Astros Rep Found Dead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) —Herb Elk, 48, director of media relations for the Houston Astros baseball team, was found dead of apparent natural causes Thursday night, officials said.

Elk had been staying with the team at the University City Holiday Inn hotel prior to a three-game series starting tonight against the Philadelphia Phillies.

A night manager at the hotel said Elk's body was found in bed after his colleagues noticed him missing. The body was taken to the city morgue.

A spokesman for the medical examiner's office said the cause of death appeared to be natural causes. Elk's body was scheduled to be examined today.
