Community Work, Livestock Scheduled To Be Taken On Second And Third Days Of Affair At College

AT LEAST 2,000 men and women are expected to attend the first day's program of the Second Annual Texas Tech Farmers' and Home Makers' Short Course tomorrow, according to H. J. Bower, professor of agronomy in the Tech school of agriculture.

With activities of the Federal Farm Board centering in Texas during the past several weeks, and features of the Monday program centering upon phases of agricultural marketing coupled with the wide publicity given the short course, this big attendance is anticipated. The short course will run for three days, closing Wednesday. Monday is given to marketing, Tuesday to community work and Wednesday to livestock.

"The very first thing on our men's program," states Mr. Bower, who is general chairman of the short course, "is the history and reminiscences of agricultural marketing on the Plains-Panhandle. This is to be given by J. D. Tinsley, agricultural agent for the Santa Fe railway. Following this

Shooting Echoes Basketball Game

(By Associated Press)

STANTON, Ky., Feb. 1. — Belgrade Harr, 16, high school student, is in jail here tonight, charged with malicious shooting with intent to kill at Winchester, Ky. Ernest Byrd, coach at Stanton academy, is fighting for his life with a bullet in his brain, all the result of an argument over admission to a basketball game here last night.

Physicians tonight said Byrd had little chance to live. Officers indicated the shooting charge would be changed to murder if he dies.

Harr said little about the shooting, except to give a short account to his father, J. A. Harr, superintendent of the Stanton Brick Co.

According to the youth's version of the affair, Coach Byrd owed him money. The boy said he went to the door of the gymnasium here last night, where Byrd was taking tickets for a basketball game, and asked Byrd to admit him and subtract the admission price for the alleged debt. Byrd refused, he said, and an argument ensued. Harr left, but returned and again asked admission. He said another argument followed at the conclusion of which the coach struck him and knocked him down. He then fired one shot, the bullet entering the coach's head above the left eye and lodging in the brain.

Negro Burned To Death By Mob For Attacking Young White Girl

(By Associated Press)

OCILLA, Ga., Feb. 1.—Overpowering Sheriff W. C. Tyler and his deputies early today, a mob took Jimmy Levine, negro, from the officers and lynched him 10 miles from town. The negro had been arrested about an hour before at Mystic, Ga., for attacking and slaying a 14-year-old white girl.

Sheriff Tyler who was roughly handled by a gang of 25 or 30 members of the mob when he resisted their efforts to remove the prisoner from his automobile, tonight said he had made little headway in investigating the affair. He expected to be joined tomorrow by Roy Foy of Sylvester, solicitor general for this district, when efforts probably will be taken to identify some of the mob.

Search All Night.

Sheriff Tyler and his deputies had found the negro in Mystic after an all-night search and immediately started for jail here. In the center of town, the mob met the officers. Sheriff Tyler refused to surrender the negro and a crowd gathered about his car, finally succeeding in taking him.

With the prisoner in their hands, the mob set out for the scene of the crime. Later the body was found on a blazing pyre of logs. Reports said the negro was beaten and his throat cut, after which the pyre was built. The logs and the negro's clothing were saturated with gasoline and a match applied.

Negro Confessed.

Sheriff Tyler said he was unable to identify any of the men who surrounded his car, as it was just before dawn and the light was poor. He said the negro had confessed to committing the crime.

The girl, daughter of a planter, was attacked and slain near her home yesterday and her body was found in a creek nearby. Sheriff Tyler said the assailant, after killing the girl, had dragged her body across a field to the creek where it was found. Her throat had been cut and her jaw broken.

Youth Is Charged With Holding Up Of Father's Bank

Nineteen-Year-Old Boy Is Jailed After Confessing Crime; Tells Officers Where $2,937 Is Hidden

(By Associated Press)

ROCKY HILL, Ky., Feb. 1— Carl C. Spillman, 19, was placed in jail at Brownsville tonight after a day in which he had robbed his own father, a bank cashier, fled with $2,937, told a long story of being enticed into the crime by two men and then made a clean breast of it and showed where he had hidden the money.

The youth, fleeing from Rocky Hill after holding up his father, Porter Spillman, 50, cashier, and sole employe of the small bank here, was halted 40 minutes after the robbery, on the Green River bridge near Bowling Green, by police from that town who were guarding the highway after learning of the robbery. A policeman recognized Spillman as the son of the cashier and grew suspicious.

Confesses Crime

When several hundred dollars was found in the machine the youth confessed, but he told a story of having been in Indianapolis the last ten days and said that two men whose names were

Voting Strength Slightly Stronger Than In 1929

(By Associated Press)

Although 1930 is a political year, the voting strength of Texas will show a slight increase over 1929, an "off year" politically, compilation of total poll tax payments in nearly a score of Texas cities indicated tonight.

Cities reporting gains over last year were in the majority, but the gains were comparatively small, and, on the basis of incomplete figures, will not run over 10 per cent for the state as a whole.

Executives to Allow Bolters to Take Part as Voters

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—The Texas state democratic executive committee today voted overwhelmingly to bar as candidates in the 1930 party primary persons who bolted the 1928 presidential nominees and at the same time opened the doors for participation as voters to the same erstwhile democrats.

A resolution directing that no one who scratched the democratic nominees in 1928 be permitted to participate in the primary as a candidate for state office, was carried 21 to 9 and the expression permitting the bolters to take part as voters went over 29 to 1.

Suspend Rural Aid School Injunction

Writ Held Up Pending Final Disposition Of Appeal By Fourth Court Of Civil Appeals; Claim Invalid

(By Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1.—The injunction against state officials spending any part of the $5,000,000 rural school aid fund was suspended pending final disposition of an appeal Saturday by the fourth court of civil appeals.

Judge R. B. Minor of the 57th district court granted the injunction against the state on the petition of Lillie Mae Mumme, a student of the Peach Tree school in Medina county, and her mother, Mrs. Louise Mumme, a taxpayer of the county, and he held the act of the last legislature authorizing the fund to be in violation of both state and federal constitutions.

Chief Justice W. S. Fly announced the court would take the injunction under advisement as to whether it would uphold the lower court or would revise the decision.

Prison Break Is Feared At Canon City With Blaze

National Guardsmen Assume Duty After Fire Causes Damage Of Over $10,000 To Tailor Shop In Pen

(By Associated Press)

CANON CITY, Colo., Feb. 1.—While national guardsmen and penitentiary guards manned guns on the prison walls to prevent the possibility of a break for liberty, firemen today conquered a fire started in the tailor shop of the Colorado state penitentiary, scene of a bloody convict mutiny last October, which cost 13 lives.

Warden Francis E. Crawford announced he was investigating reports that the fire was set by convicts, but declared there had been no attempt by prisoners to escape.

Damage was estimated by the warden at between $10,000 and $15,000.

Prisoners repeatedly have threatened to "burn down the whole penitentiary" unless William Green, deputy warden, was removed. Green is looked upon at the prison as the target for the prisoners' bitter animosity.

Four men were injured during today's fire, none seriously. Danny Reardon, a convict and one of the prisoners granted "good time" by Governor Adams recently for helping save state property during the October mutiny and fire, was stabbed in the arm during an altercation with another convict. Another prisoner fell from a ladder while assisting firemen.

Presiding Judge Hopes To Be Able To Submit His Charge Tomorrow; Last Witness Friend Of Brady

COURT ROOM, AUSTIN, Feb. 1. A short bald lawyer turned this afternoon to face the judge presiding here in John W. Brady's murder trial and announced: "The defendant rests."

"The State has closed," the 26-year-old prosecutor, Henry Brooks, said, in answer to Attorney Dayton Moses.

These statements ended the introduction of testimony 12 days after Brady, 59 and white of hair, pleaded not guilty to the charge that he stabbed his 28-year-old alleged intimate, Miss Lehlis Highsmith, to death.

Brady remained in his seat for a moment, seemingly as the spectators filed out in response to Judge J. D. Moore's announcement that court was adjourned until Monday. The judge hoped, he added, to have the charge ready by then, but he warned the jury that it might not be made up even then.

An old acquaintance, who had known Brady "in the judge's earlier and happier days," was the last and only defense witness in rebut-

Heavy Withdrawals Prevent Opening Of Doors; Business Men Attempt Plan To Pay Depositors

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1. — Fort Worth bankers and business men met tonight to evolve a plan to pay depositors of the Texas National bank, which failed to open its doors today after heavy withdrawals yesterday. Officials of the chamber of commerce participated in the meeting, which had as an additional object a plan for taking over the bank.

Those attending meeting expressed confidence the condition of the bank would be relieved and depositors protected in full within the next 72 hours.

Earlier today directors of the First State bank of Polytechnic, whose doors were closed by order of its officers at 9:35 a. m., announced affairs of the institution had been placed in the hands of the commissioner of banking of the state. Directors of the bank said this action was taken because of heavy withdrawals.

Mr. Groundhog, Greatest of Weather Prophets, to Make Appearance Today

BY THE time Avalanche-Journal readers have scanned their morning papers, his mind will have been made up.

And what is the decision?

With the break of dawn this morning, Mr. Groundhog cautiously poked his nose from his winter home in the earth and ventured forth, that is, if he runs true to his legendary nature.

If the sun were shining, according to the story that has been handed down through many years, Mr. Groundhog spied his shadow and scampered back to his hole, leaving the world with six more weeks of winter. But, if the day remains cloudy and the venturesome little animal catches no sight of his own likeness, then he will stay out to forecast a short winter and early spring.

Youth Crushed To Death At Woodrow As Car Overturns

Bert Sturdivant, Slaton, Killed At Sharp Turn At Early Hour Today; Raymond Maxwell Injured

Bert Sturdivant, 17, of Slaton, was crushed to death at an early hour this morning when the car in which he and Raymond Maxwell, 19, also of Slaton, overturned at a sharp curve on the highway near Woodrow, nine miles south of here. Maxwell was painfully scratched and his hand was seriously injured.

Bert Sturdivant was pinned beneath the steering wheel of the light delivery car in which the two were returning to Slaton from a dance at Woodrow.

Body Brought Here

The body was brought to the Lubbock Sanitarium by Luther Harris and Bob Harper, who were hailed to stop at the scene of the tragedy. The body was extricated from the wreckage by cutting away the top of the car. Physicians reported that the victim died of concussion of the brain, the entire back part of the skull being crushed in.

The youth was not dead when taken from the mangled auto, but a race against death lost when he succumbed about two miles before reaching Lubbock.

Brother At Slaton

The victim has a brother, Wyatt Sturdivant, who also lives at Slaton. His father's home is in Fluvanna.

The identity of the youth was not learned when he first was brought to the sanitarium, the only clue being piece of a meal ticket from a Slaton cafe. It was later learned that he was employed by Jack's cafe of that city.

Control Of Cotton Market Flayed By Farm Bureau Head

R. E. Overstreet States Activities Of Federal Farm Board Discredited; Talks At Meadow

Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

MEADOW, Feb. 1.—Determined effort of those in control of the cotton market to discredit the Federal Farm board, and all activity of that body towards strengthening cooperative marketing, caused the sudden downward swing of cotton prices last week, was the declaration made here tonight by R. E. Overstreet, of Lubbock.

Mr. Overstreet is a state director of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, which organization is nucleus around which is being organized the Texas Cotton Cooperative association. His speech here was before a gathering of the Meadow Local Farm Bureau Cotton association, at which 60 were present.

Drops $5 a Bale

"The fact that our cotton price could drop $5 per bale, at this time, when not another bale was produced, no consumption was recorded, no great amount of it was flooding the market," said Mr. Overstreet, "shows very clearly that the operation of supply and demand had nothing whatever to do with it. If so, why did the price break?

"So long as cotton is in control of that kind of a gang, or scheme,

New Capital To Build In Lubbock, Aim Of Jerry Clements; Election Will Be Held Here April 1st

TWO announcements, one by Mayor Harley D. Woods stating that he will not be a candidate for re-election, and the other by J. J. Clements, to the effect that he will be a candidate for the mayoralty, yesterday turned the spotlight of public interest onto the biennial municipal elections, set here for April 1st.

Mayor Woods, completing his first term in the chief executive's office, is withdrawing from public service, he said, due to the press of personal business. "I have enjoyed the work," he stated, "but it is impossible for me to consider offering for re-election. I can't spare any more time away from my business."

Clements Makes Statement

Abandon Hope For Tug Crew Members

Complete Details Of Gulf Tragedy Expected Today With Docking Of Barge At Port Arthur

(By Associated Press)

BEAUMONT, Feb. 1.—Little hope was held tonight that any of the crew of the Sabine Towing company tug Edgar P. Coney, believed lost during a storm in the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday, was rescued.

Complete details of the disaster were expected with the docking at Port Arthur, early tomorrow of the tug Asher J. Hudson, which tonight had in tow the ill-fated vessel's barge.

The Standard Oil tanker Liebre, which wirelessed yesterday first word of the sinking, arrived here today, but its master, Capt. T. A. Western, could add little detail to the first information he had given.

He reported having sighted the barge with its small crew about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and said his offer of aid was declined. When he called through a megaphone "What happened to your tug?" the reply "Lost with all hands" came back across the water.

Daniel Boone's Great-Great Grandson, Resident Of Lubbock, Possesses Same Pioneering Spirit

By SUTTON CHRISTIAN,
Avalanche-Journal Staff

POSSESSING much of that pioneering spirit so pronounced in the life of his distinguished great-great grandfather, W. T. (Tom) Boone, 79, 1713 Eighteenth street, came from East Texas to the then sparsely settled Lubbock county in 1895.

Like his celebrated ancestor, Daniel Boone, he wanted to explore the thinly settled areas.

Is Unpretentious

And more like Daniel Boone, he is unpretentious. Not until recently did his countless friends in Lubbock know that he is a great-great grandson of the daring pioneer signalized in American history.

"Here is an English coin (dated 1810) which was given to my father when he was a small boy in South Carolina by Nataniel Boone, son of Daniel," said Mr. Boone, who was interviewed at his residence in this city. "It was given to father with instructions that he pass it on to his first born son."

Born In Rock House

Tom Boone, grandfather of the Lubbock man, was born in an old rock house near the city of St. Louis, which was then the last sentinal of civilization on the Western frontier and where Lewis and Clark stopped for a brief rest while on their historical expedition. Daniel lived in a log cabin, separated a few feet from the rock house in which lived his son, Nathaniel, father of Tom.

Following the death of Daniel Boone, September 26, 1820, Nathaniel and his family returned to South Carolina. After growing to manhood, Tom Boone moved to Alabama and later to Mississippi, where James Boone, father of W. T. Boone, was born.

James Boone was killed in the battle of Vicksburg, Miss., during the Civil War. His six brothers survived the conflict.

W. T. Boone, who was 12 years old at close of the Civil War, was born in Okolona, Miss., where he was married. He moved to Ladonia, Tex., in 1881 and to Lubbock in 1895.

Story Of How William Fox Advanced From Shabby East-Side Childhood To Picture Magnate Is Real-Life Movie Drama; Film Croesus Fights Alone

Success Gained in Spite of Maimed Arm Handicap

BY GENE COHN
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.— William Fox, who has put his O. K. on thousands of thrilling cinema plots and hundreds of players, has lived to find himself cast in a drama which his boldest scenario writer whould have hesitated to invent.

And, as anyone who has followed the continuity of the past few weeks could tell you, it's being acted with sound—and not a little fury.

At first glance, one encounters a series of dazzling figures. They are written in millions and hundreds of millions. There are equally involved details of demands that trustees take over the vast Fox holdings, or that a receivership be declared. One or the most spectacular and giant collapses in film history is hinted, or openly charged.

Leaving to court action whatever may become of the litigation which has been slowly hemming in this amusement Titan, and backing him against the wall, the frouy drama and romance of the close-ups and long shots alike remain unchanged.

—According to His Lights

As they would say in one of Fox's own studios, "cut in" on a short, sturdy, humorous-eyed, fast greying man in one of those elaborate Park Avenue residences. If he walks to a front window, he can see dramatically reflected against the night sky the golden glow of Broadway's lights. As much as any man in America, he helped to put those lights there since most of them blare from the vast movie signs. Ironically enough, his very lights have come to taunt him.

To Broadway, and to all the Main streets of America, these lights symbolize amusement and release from the work-a-day. To those behind the lights, they represent business — huge business, organization and power.

The average theater-goer walks in and there are flashes upon the screen of a hero harassed by enemies and fighting back, inch by inch, from his corner. Again irony! For Fox according to his associates and his own statements, is like the hero of his veriest old-time thriller. He sees enemies closing in upon him. Money marts, in which he once spoke in terms of tens of millions, he finds closed to him. The "forces" of Wall Street, even as in his own films are pictured as remorseless wolves. And with his back to the wall, he cries out a perfect picture caption — "They warned me that the gods of Wall Street were proclaiming my doom, and that nothing on earth could prevent the money machine from mowing me down."

He's A Fighting Man

And so, according to the best traditions of the scenarios, the fight scene is arranged. Fight there is and will be, for this grey little man has been a scrapper since the days of short pants.

Now, let's cut back for a moment. William Fox is a son of the historic East Side. When he was a child, playing in the streets, a wagon knocked him down, so affecting his left arm that he barely could use it. It appeared to be withered. So the rough and burly youngsters from the neighborhood wouldn't let him compete in their games, or when he did they gave him little chance. All of which as modern psychologists explain gave birth to the desire for compensation in some other way.

He would show them! Handicapped in one direction, he would double his efforts in another. As a boy he took a job in a tailoring establishment. After several promotions he sought to get more money, but when the rise didn't come, opened a small shop of his own and with a few hundred dollars in savings bought a sort of shooting gallery-lantern slide hole-in-the-wall in Brooklyn, and thus started his amusement career. Admission was five cents and people saw pictures that actually had motion.

Wealth Grew Speedily

Within five years, Fox had a quarter of a million dollars and was buying up more theaters. It was while in the process of this expansion that he first encountered Big Tim Sullivan and the Manhattan Tammany crowd, for "Big Tim" owned two burlesque houses which Fox wanted to acquire. So having a business relationship with some of the Tammany boys he encountered for the first time Winfield Sheehan, who for years has been the production chieftain of the Fox concern —the man who launched some of the elaborate productions which put Fox into the biggest league company in the past few years; who introduced Murnau and Janet Gaynor and many another.

At the time, Sheehan was fire commissioner. There were the usual fire regulations to be considered and Fox had occasion to hold more than one discussion with him. Fox wanted to hire him, but Sheehan became the police commissioner of New York before he finally went with Fox.

With many theaters in his control and problems of distribution growing steadily, Fox suddenly switched from the largest of these units to one independent concern of his own and began to fight them. Thus he opened a way to film production, and his appearance in big finance began when he started his Fort Lee, N. J., studios.

How Trouble Started

From this grew all the financial involvements which now hang over his head. Great theater chains had to be organized and purchased; vast expansion programs had to be financed; the talking pictures came in. So it was just a few years ago, when the Roxy opened that Fox could talk carlessly of $20,000,000 theater chains and a $35,000,000 personal fortune. There have been theater purchases and expansions which since have run these figures far up the scale.

So, returning to the close-up there comes again the irony of the greying man who met the day he couldn't command the mere $35,000,000 needed to meet his short term notes. And this has been one of the critical points in the litigation which may or may not oust him as chieftain.

But even before the late market crash had reached its peak and started the cumulative snow-ball on its way down hill, harsh whispers were going about and clouds were gathering upon the skyline. Some of these "inside details" were more than passingly dramatic.

Entertained The Press

Last October, William Fox invited a group of newspaper men to his vast country place on Long Island. The occasion was the 25th birthday of his film life. The place was a charming club-house adjoining his favorite golf course. For Fox has become vastly proficient at golf —another of the compensations for his injured arm. He has perfected a one-armed stroke, and is very proud of once having made a hole-in-one.

The newspaper folk were more than ordinarily curious. They had heard the whisperings long before they arrived. They wondered, for instance, why Fox had not staged his anniversary on Broadway. The street had been gossiping. Fox had been in an auto wreck. He had been going to a golf course to play with Joseph Schenck, and another film figure; there had been a collision, the chauffeur had been killed and Fox had been thrown out and seriously injured.

Gossip said that the accident had affected his mind. So the 25th birthday was filled with ominous import. Fox showed the visitors about the vast estate; he outlined his plans for the future; he told of new theaters, and he was interviewed. And when everyone was seated about the table, he staged his dramatic surprise.

Drama Was Heightened

Suddenly, out of a clear sky, he laughingly admitted that he knew what was in the minds of the reporters and then asked them openly, "Well, do you think I behave, or talk or act like an incompetent?" It couldn't have been staged better in any picture.

Already the market slip had begun. And now the drama grew tenser—not only around Fox, but thousands of others. Those close to him will tell you that he held 660,000 shares of Loew Theater stock —part of an expansion plan: that he had bought it at 80 and paid 50 per cent of its value. When it slipped to 45, the call came for millions "to cover." Then for millions more and millions more, until ready cash went, and then properties ad then, loans and then notes on more loans.

From every corner came new troubles — deals where huge payments had been made, but full payment was still forthcoming. Fox turned to the banks, but money grew tighter. He says the financial holdout was deliberate At any rate, first the Class A and then the Class B stockholders moved upon him, some alleging mismanagement of the firm's funds, some merely urging a new management of affairs. Fox finds himself the unwilling star of the most spectacular drama of his career.

From his window, Fox sees the reflected glow of giant theaters, once his.

William Fox as he appeared the other day at court.

He began with a lantern-slide nickelodeon.

On the links, Fox once made a hole-in-one.

The market crash began the "fade out" of his own life drama.

Social success brings happiness. Without a certain amount of entertaining and mingling with other fellow beings, we get into a rut and miss out on life's greatest enjoyment.

A well appointed home makes for Social Success. Comfortable chairs, beautiful rugs, interesting pieces of furniture here and there, promote a peaceful charm, giving everyone that ease and cogeniality so much desired.

Amarillo Tri-State Fair To Present Passion Play On February 14 And 15

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

AMARILLO, Feb. 1. — The Frieburg passion play, headed by Fassnacht as the Christus and a company of 4 principals, will be presented in Amarillo for three performances at the municipal auditorium February 14 and 15 under the auspices of the Tri-State Fair, Wilbur C. Hawk, president of the association announces.

The bringing to Amarillo of this biblical masterpiece, which is not a motion picture, is considered by the fair officials as one of the outstanding achievements in their extensive program of entertainment.

Is Original Production.

When the Freiburg company presents the nearly 2,000-year-old drama there will be no tampering with dramatic terminology to make it conform to the twentieth century ideas, and the manuscript used in the presentation in Amarillo is the same used when the Pope Urban IV passed upon it in the thirteenth century. Prior to the thirteenth century all roles in the play were acted by monks who knew the lines by heart, but later a manuscript was written.

The Passion play is presented in reverence and is endorsed and supported by ministers the world over.

The Frieburg version of the play was first presented in 1624 when the liturgical mysteries were common everywhere on the continent. Through various transformations it has developed into the full story of Christ's entrance into Jerusalem, the last supper, His betrayal, the faltering judgment of Pilate, the grim march to the hill, the rude gaming of the ruffians at the Cross, the claiming of the Body and the resurrection.

Players Live Parts.

According to those who have seen Frieburg Passion play, the players live, rather than act their parts. Critics declare that the interpretation of the divine character by Adolph Fassnacht is nothing short of a miracle.

Generally the public has known only of the Oberammergau Passion play, which had its origin in the seventeenth century, whereas, the small community of Frieburg, located in the Black Forest in Baden, gave its first play in 1624 A. D., as thanks for escaping a plague which swept the community.

Americans have gone to Germany in great numbers to witness the Passion play and in 1922, the last time the Frieburg company presented its play in Baden 60,000 Americans saw it.

The Frieburg Passion play is now being brought to the people of Amarillo and the entire Plains section and will be the same as that presented in Germany.

Music will be one of the features of the attraction, 27 musical numbers in all, 12 of which are choral numbers.

Popular prices for the night performances will prevail, $1.00 and $2.50.

Added Facilities For Local Sewer Are Pointed Out

Adequate Equipment Needed At Disposal Plant For Potential Growth Here, Engineer Emphasizes

Need of added facilities at the city sewer disposal plant, located east of the Santa Fe tracks, to assure adequate equipment for potential growth of Lubbock has been emphasized by a chart compiled by H. N. Roberts, local consulting engineer.

The average daily flow into the disposal plant, according to a weekly record made recently by City Engineer M. R. Smith and compiled by Mr. Roberts, was 991,000 gallons while the daily average recorded in 1925 was 340,000 gallons.

Due To Industries

The rate of increase for the total has been 170,000 gallons per day, which represents an increase in population of 3,000 per year if the supposition were made that most of the added use of water is for domestic purpose. Much of the increase, however, has been due to new industries, said Mr. Roberts.

Weekly flow, according to the record, shows the following daily figures: Sunday, 800,000 gallons; Monday, 1,333,000; Tuesday, 1,112,000; Wednesday, 1,012,000; Thursday, 840,000; Friday, 850,000, and Saturday, 992,000.

Monday Leading Day

Monday, when laundries are most active, is the maximum day. Thursday is the minimum.

The hourly flow for Monday showed 37,000 gallons at midnight; 22,000 gallons, the minimum, at 7 o'clock in the morning; 78,000 gallons, when the incline starts, at 11 o'clock in the morning, and 90,000 gallons, when the peak is reached at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. From the latter hour there is a gradual decline until midnight.

"There are now two pumps in action at the plant and more are needed," Mr. Roberts said. "The plant is adequate for the present population, but added facilities will soon be needed for future growth."

One hundred and twenty-five acres of land, planted in feed stuffs, are irrigated by the disposal of water, and more acreage will be needed eventually, engineers point out.

Customs Chief Said to Have Private Bar

Reported to have been on the receiving end of $25,000 worth of champagne smuggled into this country, Herbert L. Pratt, above, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co., of New York, has been named in charges against several U. S. Customs authorities made by Dr. James K. Shields, center, Superintendent of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League. Shields was expected to lay before President Hoover a protest against the reappointment of Arthur F. Foran, upper right, New York Comptroller of Customs, who is charged with delinquency in enforcing dry regulations in his department. At the right you see the photograph represented by Shield's organization to be that of a bar found in Foran's hunting lodge when it was raided recently by federal agents.

Suckers Continue To Buy Stocks

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Although in jail here in default of $20,000 bond, fixed on a charge of using the mails to defraud, Lincoln D. Steele, oil operator, still is receiving money from investors in all parts of the United States.

Tom Donoghue, jailor, whose duties include opening of all mail and telegrams addressed prisoners, said that in one night Steele received six telegrams relating to his oil business. A number of messages, Donoghue said, informed Steele that money drafts were being forwarded for the purchase of oil stocks.

The charge against Steele was filed by Captain C. W. B. Long, investigator for the postoffice department, who said he had been investigating the case several months. Steele formerly operated in Dallas and Fort Worth, but had maintained offices in San Antonio since Nov. 1., the investigator declared.

It is charged that Steele guaranteed, through letters and pamphlets, that investors would realize a cash monthly dividend of 10 per cent on investments.

Matadors Invade Abilene Courts This Week

IN THE REALM OF SPORT
WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Beginning tomorrow night in the McMurry college gymnasium, the Tech basketball quintet is in for its severest test of the season as the Matadors begin their annual assault on Abilene. The locals play five successive games on as many nights and it's safe to predict that all three of their opponents for the week will be laying for them.

In their series here last week with Sul Ross, the Matadors showed clear signs of staleness and unless they have recovered during their recent rest the club stands an excellent chance to have its perfect record shattered during the coming week's engagements. The unavoidable necessity of packing just about two months' training into less than half that time, together with a strenuous January schedule is enough to work any basketball squad to the point of staleness.

Tech is favored to gallop over McMurry and A. C. C., but when the Matadors strike the Simmons Cowboys Wednesday night, the feathers are certain to fly. Cranfill's lads didn't exactly relish the sort of treatment they received at the hands of the Tech crew here recently and official reports have it that the story will be different when the Hands get their rivals penned up in the Corral at Abilene. For the second time we advise the arbiter in this game to keep his weapons of warfare close at hand.

Thus far the Matadors have waded through their schedule without a defeat. Eleven games have been chalked up on the win side of the ledger and there are nine more to go. Five games will be played in Abilene this week, two here with Canyon Feb. 10 and 11 and the season will close at Canyon Feb. 19 and 20. Thus it appears that the Crimson cagers are destined to hang up the best basketball record in the history of the institution. Last year Coach Payne's club won 12 out of 20 games and from all indications the present aggregation will surpass this mark easily. The four games with Canyon are certain to be tough for the Matadors, but from what we can gather, the Tech quintet has at least an even chance to break even with the Teachers.

Coach E. J. (Pinkie) Lowrey, Lubbock High school's track coach, tells us that the Westerner thinclads will have a tough job this year defending their county and district titles. Of the 14 men who were lettered last season, only four will be available for further service this season. At the same Lowrey finds that the majority of teams in this section will have their star backsters back. Such aces as Hooper of Olton, Nowell and Austin of Slaton are destined to go places when the annual meets come around this spring. Superior reserve strength pulled the Westerners through last spring, the locals winning their meets on third and fourth-place points.

That will be the only hope of Lubbock again this year, and unless a promising array of new material is available for Coach Lowrey, it will be plenty hard for the Gold and Black lads to come through up to standard.

Looks now like the 1930 Westerner football eleven will boast a varied attack if a flock of promising backs can make this possible. Captain W. D. Lawson is assured of his quarterback post; Moody Smith is practically certain to hold down a regular halfback berth and the other two positions are wide open. A pair of newcomers, who wore the colors of other schools last year, are likely to fit in with the schemes of Prnka and Morgan. Red Floyd, a speedy halfback with the Post Antelopes last season, is taking regular turns in the Lubbock backfield during spring training and he looks like a comer. Allen Johnson, a hard-working back who was on the Westerner squad in 1928, is another who should make a valuable ball toter. Johnson has put on about ten more pounds and the other day was shakin' his hips at would-be tacklers like a veteran. If he continues his kicking performance through the fall season, this lad is likely to draw a regular assignment in Lubbock's backfield. Long spirals from the foe of Johnson have furnished one of the several sensations of the spring training camp.

To make room for Floyd in the backfield, the Westerner coaches plan to shift Malcom Martin to the end position left vacant by Bob Rich. Defensively, Martin is capable of doing just about everything Rich could and he can receive that pellet like nobody's business. Watson and Blagg are the other squadmen working at the extreme posts, but on Del Morgan's basketball squad, there's a husky that may be turned into a wingman. This is none other than Melton McGeehee who labored throughout the past season at one of the guard holes. Past considering his build, Big Mac may prove the best bet to be found in the matter of filling the shoes of Yancey Price.

To find a blocker to take the place of Mims Watkins will be no small job but in O. H. Britton, the locals have a promising candidate for this post. Britton comes here from Dallas and he is a sweet blocker and tackler for his experience

But what of the guards and the center of the line, you are asking. We'll guess with you until some material shows up

Tech Five Faces Five Successive Games On Jaunt

McMurry, Simmons And Abilene Christian Quints Waiting To Turn Back Undefeated Paynemen

Texas Tech's undefeated basketball quintet invades Abilene this week to risk its unblemished season's record within the strongholds of the three colleges of that city on five successive nights.

No team has thus far been able to outscore the rampaging Matador sharpshooters and Coach Victor Payne will lead his pupils on his home town with serious intentions of running the club's winning streak to sixteen straight games.

But despite the success of the Crimson dribblers during their January home stand, the locals are fully aware of the test that faces them in the coming week's proceedings on the Abilene courts. Coach Payne will take his entire squad on the annual invasion of the college city.

Meet Indians First

Beginning Monday night, the Matadors will meet McMurry Indians, Simmons Cowboys and Abilene Christian Wildcats on successive nights. One game with the Cowhands comes Wednesday night and sandwiched in between the two-game series with each of the other two institutions.

Both Simmons and A. C. C. have suffered decisive defeats at the hands of the Tech basketeers in games played here last month, but these clubs are certain to attempt a revenge act on the Matadors this week. Coach Fats Cranfill and his Simmons cagers are making another headlong rush toward the Texas Conference title. Since appearing here, the hands have trounced three members of their loop. From Cowboy headquarters come warnings that the story will be quite different when the clubs mix Wednesday evening.

Dope Favors Tech

Dope favors the Matadors to win over all three of their Abilene adversaries, but the strenuous program mapped out for the week will test the Paynemen to the limit. For this reason the Tech mentor is taking a supply of reserves.

Following the series in Abilene, the Matadors will return here for a two-game series with the West Texas Teachers Feb. 10 and 11. The season will close at Canyon, Feb. 19 and 20.

Lynch Is Elected Coach At Amarillo

Former Amarillo Graduate To Return As Assistant In Football Season; Now Need Head Coach

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

AMARILLO, Feb. 1. — Howard Lynch, Amarillo high and Centre college graduate and at present principal of the Franklin, Ky., high school, was elected as assistant football coach of Amarillo high school by the school board last night. Lynch is the son of W. W. Lynch of this city.

The election, of course, is contingent upon Lynch's acceptance of the contract. It is known, however, that he is anxious to return to Amarillo.

While the head coach for the coming season has not yet been named, it is almost certain that the position, candidates for which have been reduced to less than a half dozen, will be filled early next week. The Quanah meeting of the football committee of the district today and the question of the new school buildings has taken most of the time of the board of late or the question should have been taken care of before now.

According to Superintendent McIntosh, Lynch will report with the opening of football training next fall. During the summer he will be working on his master's degree and attending coaching school.

Played Here Three Years.

Howard, "Bull" as he si known by intimates, was graduated from Amarillo high in the spring of 1919 after having played football here for three years during which time he had captained the team and was one of the outstanding students of the school.

Howard, "Bull" as he is known by 1921 which at that time was producing the country's greatest elevens. After serving his apprenticeship with the frosh team, he immediately made a regular position at tackle. Playing tackle with the Praying Colonels, he was selected "All-Kentucky" in 1922-23-24 and "All-Southern" in 1924.

Enviable Coaching Record.

After finishing at Centre was elected head coach at Franklin Ky., high school, where he has held the positions of principal and coach for the past five years.

Iowa University Gets Reinstated In Big Ten Group

Action Of Conference Faculty Committee Becomes Effective Immediately; In Good Standing

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. (AP)—The University of Iowa was reinstated to good standing in the Western conference today by the conference faculty committee. The reinstatement is effective at once.

The decision to readmit Iowa was reached after four hours and 25 minutes of discussion, the trend of which was not revealed.

While Iowa was reinstated, the action was not without qualification. In a supplemental statement to the one giving Iowa a clean bill, the faculty members flatly stated that they were not convinced that all evils had been corrected and advised Iowa authorities against applying for reinstatement to eligibility any of the athletes disqualified December 11, 1929. At that time 27 men, including 11 who still are in school, were banned for further competition.

Simmons Defeats Yellow Jackets

ABILENE, Feb. 1. —(AP)—Making clever use of their delayed offense, the Simmons University basketball team raced away from the Howard Payne quintet in the last five minutes of their game here tonight to win their third straight Texas conference victory.

Featuring Gibbs and Mareck, the Yellow Jackets showed unexpected strength to take a slight lead in the first half, and at the intermission the teams were tied with 15 points each.

Bob McCollum, Simmons forward, scored 19 points of his teams' points.

AUSTIN DOWNS SAINTS

SHERMAN, Feb. 1. —(AP)—Austin College defeated St. Edwards College by a score of 33 to 29 in its third conference game. The Austin College cagers suddenly dashed ahead in the last period and scored 18 points to overcome a 17 to 15 lead.

Veteran Ump Tells Of Courageous Moundwork

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth of a series of 10 articles in which Billy Evans recalls thrilling deeds he has witnessed in his 22 years as an American league umpire.

BY BILLY EVANS

Courage, as relating to baseball, is a peculiar thing to define.

It is my thought that many players classed as "yellow," sportdom's term for lacking in courage, are anything but that.

Perhaps no player in baseball is put to as severe a test as to courage than the pitcher. During a ball game he faces any number of situations that call for the best that is in him. Courage in a pitching sense may be likened to poise. When a hurler has pitching poise he gives his best under all conditions and accepts the bitter with the sweet.

Ordinarily, one would suppose that it would require a pitchers' battle to offer the greatest test for pitching courage or poise. That isn't the case, though very often pitchers' battles have a number of critical situations that call for the best the pitcher has to offer. Usually, a pitchers' battle is a game in which few men are on the bases and the hurlers dominate the game throughout, with but few critical solutions.

It has always seemed to me that it is an easy matter to pitch when everything is breaking your way, when your delivery is such that the opposition can do but little with it. On the contrary, it is my thought, that the pitcher who keeps plugging away, giving everything he has, when all the breaks are against him, is the fellow who shows the real courage.

Ehmke Surprised Critics.

In the 1929 World series, Howard Ehmke, decried by many critics as lacking courage, gave a most remarkable exhibition in the opening game. In a half dozen trying situations, he always managed to work his way out. Later in the series "Lefty" Grove and Rube Walberg, called upon as relief pitchers, hurled magnificently. Guy Bush, of the Cubs, showed real courage in stopping the Athletics in the third game, after Chicago had dropped the first two. These tare the more recent exhibitions of courageous pitching.

However, for the most courageous game I ever saw pitched, during the 22 years I spent in the American league as umpire, my memory goes back to the World series of 1923. The game was anything but a pitchers' battle but no game I have ever seen made the impression on me that this one did, courage alone considered.

Herb Pennock pitched the game. It was the sixth and final one of the series. It was a victory for the Yankees, carrying with it the championship. Pennock was found for 10 hits, including a triple and a home run. Yet so courageously did the slim southpaw pitch under fire that the New York Giants made only four runs.

Stamina Limited.

Pennock, not too strong physically, can stand just so much work. He had been used in the third game, beating the Giants, 4-2, after McGraw's club had taken the first two. In the fourth game, he had been rushed to the relief of Shawkey with the bases filled, stopping a big rally.

Despite the fact that Pennock had worked twice in three days, Huggins selected him to pitch the sixth contest. The Giants had to win it to stay in the series, while victory meant the world championship for the Yankees.

The Giants scored a run in the first, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. During that time Pennock had been batted hard in every inning. It seemed as if there were always two or three runners on the bases, but Pennock never weakened and despite the battering he was being subjected to, put thought and courage back of every ball pitched.

Never once did he falter. It was early apparent to him that he did not have his stuff, causing him to work carefully on every batter, resulting in his being in the hole much of the time. In the first six innings I feel I am conservative in saying, the Giants hit 10 balls on the nose but always directly at some fielder. McGraw's club had made only four runs, whereas a baschit in the pinch, sprinkled here and there throughout the six innings, would have resulted in three times as many.

Ralls Jackrabbits Down Westerners By 34 To 10 Score

Lubbock Dribblers Unable To Overcome 1st Quarter Lead Of Lovvorn Quintet; Ralls' Reserves In Play

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

RALLS Feb. 1.—Playing a whirlwind first half, the Ralls Jackrabbits defeated the Lubbock Westerners here tonight by a decisive score of 34 to 10, chalking up one more win to the ever increasing string of victories of the local quintet.

The Jackrabbits led the field at the end of the first period by a score of 22 to 4 and held Lubbock with their second string for the last half to only 6 pointers, Coach Lovvorn, of Ralls, used 12 men in the game while Coach Del Morgan sent in nine.

The last quarter was evenly matched, neither side scoring to any great degree.

King, Ralls center, was high point man with 12, while Sides, Lubbock center, followed with 8.

Nelson leaped six feet, 6 3-4 inches, a quarter of an inch better than the official mark set by Harold Osborne, Illinois and Illinois Athletic club star.

Coach Herman Phillips of the Butler team announced he would seek official recognition of the performance. Notre Dame won the meet, 71 to 15.

Six Home Games On 1930 Gridiron Program For Tech

T. C. U. Only Southwest Club On Matadors' Schedule; Proposed Staked Plains Loop Team Listed

That the football fans of Lubbock and its surrounding territory will be given ample opportunity to show their support for Texas Tech's football eleven in 1930 was revealed yesterday upon the release of the Matadors' gridiron schedule for next fall by E. Y. Freeland, director of athletics.

Six of the nine games carded for the Bull Fighters will be played on home soil and the first four engagements of the season will find the Crimson gridsters arrayed against invaders on Tech field.

Although there is but one Southwestern conference eleven appearing on the Matadors' 1330 program, athletic relations will be inaugurated with two institutions, neither of which have ever tied up with Tech in any sport. Texas Christian University, 1929 champions of the Southwestern conference, is the major game of the year for Tech. New Mexico A. & M., of Las Cruces, and the Texas School of Mines at El Paso are the new schools who will come here to battle the local collegians.

The 1930 campaign will mark the resumption of relationship with the West Texas Teachers of Canyon, the Buffaloes gaining back their old date on Tech's schedule.

All four of the institutions who were mentioned along with Tech as possible members of the proposed Staked Plains conference are included on Tech's schedule. These are Simmons, Howard Payne, Canyon and the School of Mines. In the event the loop is perfected before the season opens, it will be possible to award a championship in the first season of the circuit's existence.

It is understood that spring football training for the Matadors will be held soon after the new grid mentor is named for the institution. Several candidates for the post who are being considered have expressed their desire to hold spring training before the current school year is over.

Following is the 1930 schedule:

Sept. 27—Wayland College at Lubbock.

Oct. 3—New Mexico Aggies at Lubbock (Panhandle-South Plains fair).

Oct. 11—McMurry College at Lubbock.

Oct. 17.—Texas School of Mines at Lubbock.

Oct. 24.—T. C. U. at Fort Worth.

Nov. 1.—West Texas Teachers at Canyon.

Nov. 11.—A. C. C. at Lubbock.

Nov. 19. — Howard Payne at Brownwood.

Nov. 27.—Simmons at Lubbock (Thanksgiving).

PAMPA, Feb. 1. (AP)—Estelline and Borger high schools went into the Pampa invitation basketball tournament finals tonight after surviving tough going today. In the semi-finals Borger defeated Amarillo Yannigans 30 to 24 and Estelline won over Slaton 35 to 25.

Baylor Bears Drop Game to Arkansas

WACO, Feb. 1. (AP)— The Razorbacks of the University of Arkansas defeated the Baylor Bears on the Baylor court Saturday evening by a score of 27 to 21.

Arkansas led at the half by a lone point.

Despite the fine playing of Prewitt, the machine-like play of Wear Schoonover, and the fine playing of other Arkansas basketeers, the outstanding star on the court Saturday evening was Alford, the all-state high school star from Beaumont. He was a sensation from the opening whistle to the final shot and scored ten of Baylor's 21 points.

Admission Of Two More Schools In District Completes 9-Club Circuit; Football Schedule Given At Meet

Lubbock Westerners Will Play Five Home Games Next Fall; Attempt To Divide Teams Into Two Sections Is Overruled Vigorously

By ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

QUANAH, Feb. 1.—District One of the Texas Interscholastic League became a nine club circuit here Saturday upon the admission of Pampa and Childress to membership in the Class A organization.

Pampa automatically entered the Class A district and Childress was admitted through application of its school superintendent, A. W. Adams. A high school enrollment of more than 500 forced the upper Panhandle city to leave the Class B ranks.

Division Voted Down.

The 1330 gridiron campaign for this district will continue as in the past, members of the executive committee decided in their annual meeting here today. Motions for dividing the district into two sections were overruled vigorously.

The proposal of W. A. McIntosh, Amarillo superintendent, that the schedules for next fall be arranged according to the prospects for the various teams, was likewise voted down by school representatives. McIntosh favored a plan whereby the city with the brightest outlook be forced to play the hardest football schedule. Other teams were to have their programs worked out accordingly.

To Play 2nd Team.

After his proposed plan was disapproved by the committee, the Amarillo school head asked if he might be permitted to play his second team against the weaker teams of the district.

A unanimous answer came in the affirmative.

Few changes were made in the rules governing the district organization. It was agreed, however, that the dead line for eligibility reports be changed from May 15 to July 1.

Childress agreed to be the team this year to play no conference game on Thanksgiving day. This city is to receive a consideration from other clubs in the district for this action. An uneven number of teams in the district makes this action necessary.

Following a lengthy discussion on problems centering around school squads, it was voted to appoint a committee to investigate the situation and make recommendations on the matter. This body is composed of Supt. W. A. McIntosh of Amarillo; Supt. W. T. Lofland, of Vernon, and High School Principals H. Rider of Wichita Falls.

The 1931 meeting of the executive committee will be held in Amarillo.

Coaches from all nine schools in District One were present to work out the schedules for next fall.

Five Home Games.

Lubbock's schedule calls for the Westerners to play five of their conference games at home and four on foreign soil. Pampa, Amarillo, Childress, Quanah and Vernon will appear at Lubbock.

Following are the representatives present at the meeting: Chairman J. R. [illegible] and Coach Jim Bradford, C. [illegible]nahah; Supt. W. A. McIntosh, Prin. R. B. Norman, Supervisor Charles Rogers and Coach Russell Smith, of Amarillo; Supt. M. H. Duncan and Coach Henry Prnka of Lubbock; Prin. S. H. Rider, Coach Harry Holton and Asst. Coach W. J. Morris, of Wichita Falls; Supt. W. T. Lofland, Prin. J. V. Lyles and Coach Heinie Weir of Vernon; Supt. A. W. Adams and Coach J. R. Naylor of Childress; Supt. B. F. Dinsmore, of Electra; Coach Otis Mitchell, of Pampa; Asst. Coach Tharto Johnson of Plainview.

New Protest Rule Adopted At Meet

QUANAH, Feb. 1. (AP)—Admission of Pampa and Childress to class A competition in district one, adoption of a new protest rule and the working out of a schedule were highlights of the annual district one football meeting here today.

The new rule provides that if a player's protest is sustained by the district committee, the player will be barred from further competition but games in which he previously has participated will not be forfeited.

It was decided to determine the games in the district by the penetration rule used to decide bi-district ties. A proposal to split the district was abandoned.

The expected application of Slaton for membership failed to materialize.

District one schedule follows:

LUBBOCK HIGH

Meadowbrook To Hold County And City Tournaments

New Golf Course Schedules Busy Season; Number Of Events On Program For Enthusiasts In 1930

Golf enthusiasts who wield their mashies on the Meadowbrook course this season will be given plenty of chances for competition, according to an announcement of plans for the year made yesterday by W. G. McMillan, owner of the course.

A tournament for the selection of a city open champ and also a county open champ is on schedule for the season, Mr. McMillan said. A tournament to determine the champion of Texas Tech is also to be played on the course. Other events such as flag tournaments, office and company tournaments, handicap matches and the like are to be played.

Prizes To Be Given

Valuable prizes will be offered in the city and county open championship tourneys, Mr. McMillan said.

The course is in excellent condition for play, having had close care during the winter. A bermuda turf will be found over the entire course of 18 holes.

Campaign Conducted

A campaign is now being conducted for year's memberships, a limited amount being offered for sale at a nominal fee by the management.

Grailey Higginbotham, member of the Tech athletic staff, associate of Mr. McMillan, is to be in charge of the course during the summer and will act as pro for the course, giving instructions to those desiring them.

Awards Offered To High Gridmen

Premium Placed On Blocking And Tackling In Spring Training For Westerners; Squad Progressing

A silver statuette trophy will be presented to two members of the Lubbock High school football squad who distinguish themselves on the practice field during the current spring training session, it was announced late Saturday by Coach Henry E. Prnka.

A profound stickler for fundamentals the high school grid commander has placed a premium on blocking and tackling, the principles upon which sound football is based.

At the close of the four-weeks' training period the man on the high school squad who is chosen the champion blocker will be presented with the silver statuette, portraying a man in action on the gridiron.

Best Tackler To Get Trophy

Another trophy, identical with the one described above, will be given the candidate chosen as the champion tackler on the squad.

Both awards will be made according to Coach Prnka's selection. "It is entirely possible that one man be chosen as the most outstanding in both departments and be awarded both trophies. The awards will be on display in the high school trophy case some time this week.

The Westerners closed their first week of spring work Friday afternoon with a lengthy signal drill. Coach Prnka is giving the entire squad of 50 candidates an opportunity to show their wares and a large number of newcomers have shown marked ability.

Fundamentals Stressed

Thus far most of the time has been spent in perfecting fundamentals and instruction as to individual assignments. Just enough work has been given the squad to give the candidates a severe case of sore muscles, but this will be worked out within another week.

Eighteen-Year-Old Girl Tennis Star Is National Indoor Singles Champion

BROOKLINE, Mass., Feb. 1. (AP) Eighteen-year-old Mianne Palfrey, one of Brookline's five tennis-playing sisters, today became the women's national indoor singles champion by defeating Mrs. Marion Jessup of Wilmington, Del., a former holder of the title, 7-5, 6-2, here on the Longwood covered courts.

Mrs. George W. Wightman and Sarah Palfrey, Mianne's younger sister, retained their national indoor doubles title by overwhelming Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, and Edith Sigourney, Boston, 6-3, 6-2. The tournament's other champion, the national mixed doubles title, was successfully defended by Margaret Blake of Lenox and Richard Harte of Brookline, defeating Mianne Palfrey and Richard Murphy of Utica, N. Y., and Harvard university, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Shute Takes Leadership In Texas Open Golf Tourney

Muddy Course And Misting Rainfall Fail To Slow Pro

Young Ohioan Breaks Tie With Al Espinosa With Score Of Five Under Par; Faces 86-Holes Today

BY GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

BRACKENRIDGE PARK, SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1. (AP) — A muddy course and a misting rain failed even to slow up Densmore Shute, crack young Columbus, O., professional, as he continued his quest of $1,500 prize money in the Texas Open Golf tournament here today. Tied with Al Espinosa, Chicago veteran, at the close of yesterday's round, Shute took undisputed leadership of the money parade today.

Where he had a 68 in his first time around, the young Los Angeles open winner came back with a 69 today and found himself five strokes under par which is 71, as he faced the field in the final 36-hole grind tomorrow. His total of 137 was two strokes better than the 139 bagged by Espinosa for two rounds and three better than a pair of 140's held by Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., and Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis, tied for third position. Espinosa turned in a par 71 today.

Big Gallery Follows.

Shute, followed by a great gallery, stroked the same steady golf that marked his game yesterday. In 36 holes played he has gone over par just once. That was on the eighth hole today. The other 35 either have been birdies or pars. He sank an 18-foot put for a birdie two on the last green today. His card:

Out ..... 435 444 444—36
In ..... 344 534 442—33 69

As fine golf as the leader played under favorable conditions today, however, he could not match the dazzling pace set by a less heralded pair, Paul Runyan, Little Rock, Ark., and Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis. The two professionals each clipped four strokes from par with 67's.

McIntyre's 30 on the par 32 back nine is said to be a record for the links. The spectacular round put the Indianapolis star among the first four. Runyan had a 78 on his first trip.

McIntyre's card:

Out ..... 435 444 535—37
In ..... 294 544 322—30 67

Runyan's card:

Out ..... 335 444 436—35
In ..... 434 434 442—32 67

Other low scores included a 69 by Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., and 70's by Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn.; Ralph Guldahl, Dallas; Joe Lally, El Paso, Texas; Francis Schneider, Dallas, and Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y. All of the group were well within the running.

Pressing the leaders was Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., who put a 72 with yesterday's 70 to hold fifth place with 142 strokes. Billy Burke had 143, while Frank Walsh, Chicago; Joe Lally, El Paso; P. O. Hart, Wheeling, W. Va., and Ralph Guldahl, Dallas, were bracketed at 144.

Smith Falls Off.

Horton Smith, unattached, greatest money winner of the field, did himself no good by taking a 75 today. His two-day total was 147, just 10 strokes out of the lead. Bill Mehlhorn, unattached, had the same total and likewise had little chance of getting in the important money.

Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., also had 147.

Johnny Dawson, Chicago amateur, duplicated his 75 of yesterday to retain a slight lead over the Simonpure field. Lewis Levinson, San Antonio was a stroke behind him.

A select field of 64 will tee off tomorrow in the final 36-hole scramble for $7500 cash prizes. Scores of 155 or better gained entrance.

Scores Given.

The scores included:

T. S. Park, Houston, 40-40-80—161. Bill Strachan, Wichita Falls, Texas, (withdrew). Frank Tabor, San Angelo, Texas, 39-35-74—153. Willie Maguire, Houston, 41-37-78—152. Tom Penick, Austin, Texas, (withdrew). G. O. Nowell, Bryan, Texas, (withdrew).

Tris Speaker, Hubbard, Texas, (withdrew). Jack Burke, Houston, 36-35-71—145. Edison Steele, San Antonio, 41-36-77—158. Harvey Penick, Austin, Texas, 38-37-75—151. Joe Lally, El Paso, Tex., 34-36-70—144. Tony Butler, Corpus Christi, Tex., 37-34-71—146. W. A. Stackhouse, Hillsboro, Tex., 38-36-74—148. Tucker Bowles, San Antonio, 39-38-77—149. HOOKS AND SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

THEY PASSED UP FERRELL

Wesley Ferrell was a pretty good pitcher for the Cleveland Indians last year, his first season under the big top, winning 21 games, and most of them from the teams in the league that were hard to beat. And but for a slight error on the part of Yankee Scout Paul Krichell, this same Ferrell might have pitched those games in a New York uniform and the story of the American league race of 1929 might have been a different matter, indeed.

Ferrell was pitching for East Douglas, Mass., when Krichell was sent to look him over. On the day Krichell went out to watch the team, Ferrell was playing in right field. He had been struck on the throwing arm a few days before, and because of his hitting ability was placed in the outfield for the time.

Krichell saw Ferrell catch several flies in the outer garden and noticed that the young fellow ran in with the ball and lobbed it to the second baseman, rather than throwing it from his position.

"What's the matter with that fellow's arm?" he asked a man in the stands.

"He hurt it the other day and can't throw," was the reply.

Mr. Krichell packed up and went back to New York that night. He didn't want any pitchers with lame arms. Naturally Mr. Krichell has been kidded considerably about "that guy, Ferrell, with the lame arm who won 21 games for Cleveland last year."

He would enjoy reading this.

GIVING THEM BLACK BALLS

Bill Carrigan, who turns over the management of the Boston Red Sox to Heinie Wagner this year, made a little speech after a banquet the other night in Beantown, commenting on the changes of the game. "Everybody goes up and tries to bust that ball nowadays," said Bill. "The craze for home-run hitting has distorted values. Our old scheme was to get a lead of one run and hold onto it for dear life.

"In the old days we used to have a man sitting on the bench blacking the balls as fast as they were returned from the grandstand. In those days a dozen balls were the number ordinarily used in a game. We used to shave off the feathers and put them back into circulation. They didn't throw them out very often in those times.

WHITE ONES TO HIT

"As soon as we got a lead and the game was five or six innings old we had the blackened balls all ready to shoot into the battle when the other team went to bat. Needless to say the other fellows didn't break any batting records. But if we were behind, the Red Sox got all the white balls to hit at. But then they did the same thing all over the circuit. There are tricks in all trades.

Lamprecht Takes Golf Championship

New Orleans Niblick Artist Battles To Last Hole To Win Pan-American Tourney At Edgewater Park

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss., Feb. 1. (AP)—G. Fred Lamprecht, New Orleans, today won the pan-American amateur golf championship, defeating Jack Westland, of Chicago, French amateur champion, two up after a battle to the last hole of the final thirty-six.

Lamprecht's long game was superior to Westland's almost perfect short one. Lamprecht was two up after the morning eighteen. He increased his lead to three during the first of the afternoon round but in the last nine holes, Westland's short game became deadly and from then on it was nip and tuck.

Westland played a brilliant putting game faking ten one putt greens but he missed a short putt at a critical moment. His approach shots were straight and true but he couldn't overcome Lamprecht's long, hard driving game.

Cards for the afternoon round:

Lamprecht:
Out	543	536	544-39
In	445	354	355-38—77
Westland:
Out	563	454	465-42

Risko-Campolo Go Believed Assured

Madison Square Garden To Stage Semi-Final Bout Despite Decision Of N. Y. Athletic Commission

By EDWARD J. NEIL,
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—Little Johnny Risko may not be a fit opponent for big Victorio Campolo in New York state, but that doesn't mean the pugnacious rubber man from Cleveland will not have his chance to laugh last at the New York State Athletic commission.

Twice refused by the boxing fathers, who turned thumbs down a week ago on a battle arranged between Johnny and the mauler from the Argentine and then repeated the act Friday, Madison Square Garden still insists that it will stage that match. All that remains now is a conference or two before announcement is made that Campolo and Risko will battle in the semi-final to the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott extravaganza at Miami, February 27.

No Official Manager

Risko's agreement to this arrangement was received at the Garden today. Campolo, who has no official manager now aside from his brother, Phillipe, can not be spoken for officially until Frank Bruen, head man for the Garden in promotion of the Florida party, arrives here tomorrow, there is little question that the party will be arranged, if only give silent vent to the Garden's outraged feelings.

The signing of Risco and Campolo will complete the major card for the second annual Garden series in the Southland. Tommy Loughran and Pierre Charles of Belgium, will collide in the opening ten rounder. Negotiations to match Paulino and Jimmy Maloney in the semi-final have been dropped.

No Action Expected

No action is expected from the New York commission if the Garden insists on staging the Risko-Campolo match somewhere else. The commission objections that Risko is "too small," not generally agreed with by the experts who saw plump Johnny whip George Godfrey, Phil Scott, Jimmy Maloney, and Jack Sharkey, are not expected to create opposition among the Florida solons.

Final Rites Held For Joe Cantillon

HICKMAN, Ky., Feb. 1. (AP)—Requiem high mass for the soul of Joe Cantillon was said here today in Sacred Heart Catholic church by the Rev. Father Gettifinger.

Music was furnished by the children's choir, and there was a break in their voices as they sang for "Uncle Joe" as they called the veteran baseball player who died here yesterday.

Little church was crowded as the townspeople paid their last respects to the man who had been one of their neighbors for 20 years. Outside the church a group of negroes stood, also paying their respects.

The pallbearers were E. J. Stahr, W. C. Reed, Judge Carr of Fulton, R. L. Bradley, N. R. Holcomb and Dee L. McNeill, all close friends of long standing.

The body was taken back to the home to rest in state until Sunday night, when it will be taken to Janesville, Wis., where the final rites will be said all over the grave in the family plot next to that of his mother at noon Monday.

Buffaloes Swamp Sul Ross Quintet

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

CANYON, Feb. 1.—The West Texas Buffaloes won their eighth conference game tonight from the Sul Ross Loboes by a wide margin of 49 to 13.

The game was rather one-sided and few thrills came to the crowd. The Buffs lacked one point equalling their score of last night while the Loboes were held within six points of their score.

The Buffaloes' defense held the Loboes to three points in the last half of the game. The visitors resorted to a man to man defensive game but were unable to stop the onslaught of the Thundering Herd. The Buffaloes scored six points in the final 20 seconds of the game. Ward dropped a ringer as the final gun sounded.

Coach Burton used 13 men tonight, each showing like real Buffaloes. Ward and Newman tied for high points with 11 each. Sul Ross high point man was Hale with 4.

ROPESVILLE, Feb. 1.—Bewildering their opposition with a fleet offense, the Ropesville high school cagers defeated the Post Antelopes, 31 to 16, here Friday night.

West, Ropesville's elusive forward, scored 16 for high point honors.

The Ropesville girl basketeers lost to the Post sextette by score of 26 to 28.

Both squads of this city have already started preparations for the annual Hockley county tournament which will be held probably at Anton February 14.

Americans, Japs To Play Baseball

By C. P. WILLIAMSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 1. (AP) — An American-Japanese baseball game, whereby the Americans hope to regain the prestige in their national sport lost to the Japanese in the 1927 conference at Geneva, will be an outstanding sidelight of the London naval conference.

A group of American delegates and officials, including several members who were at Geneva when the American trounced at their own game, formed themselves into a "policy-steering committee" to plan the game.

Diamond scouts surveying the American delegation for prospective material have learned that all of the United States marines who are serving the group as messengers are baseball players, several of them pitchers. Also, several younger secretaries and advisers have promised to loosen their arms to uphold the baseball dignity of America.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION

Metcalfe To Run Again For Representative's Post

SAN ANGELO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Penrose B. Metcalfe, representative from the 91st legislative district, has announced for re-election, object to the democratic primaries. His decision to run again came as a result of petitions bearing 247 names of his West Texas friends.

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1. —(AP)—An impregnable defense, backed by good floor work and accurate basket shooting enabled John Reid's Texas A. & M. cagers to register a well earned 28-17 triumph over T. C. U. on the latter's court here tonight. It was sweet revenge for a defeat handed the Red crew by the Frogs at College Station and found the visitors making one of their most impressive showings of the present conference season.

T. C. U. seemed unable to hit its stride and was outclassed in every department. Flashing at times especially in the second half, the Frogs spurted up but in each instance the highly effective Aggie defense kept field goals few and far between.

Cotton Steady; Stock Rally Increases

Offering Smaller After Heavy Sales Of Past Two Days

Trade And Buying Readily Absorb Offerings Made In Saturday's Session; Liquidation Recorded

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—Cotton showed a generally steadier tone today. There was further liquidation but offerings were smaller after the heavy selling of the past few days and were readily absorbed by trade buying and covering. May contracts sold up to 16.66, making an advance of 20 points from yesterday's low level. There was some realizing which caused slight reactions later and May closed at 16.59, with the general market closing steady at net advances of 12 to 15 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 5 points. This opening bulge was checked by liquidation, but the trade was a considerable buyer and the market soon firmed up on week-end covering.

Offerings were light and the demand was sufficient to send the price of March up to 16.40 and October to 17.07 making net advances of about 16 to 20 points on the general list. Closing quotations showed reactions of a few points from the best.

Cotton Is Typical Week-End Affair

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 1. (AP) — Cotton today was a typical week-end affair with light trading and moderate price fluctuations due mainly to evening up. In early trading prices eased 9 to 10 points in sympathy with Liverpool cables and due to some long liquidation for over the week-end. Later the market rallied gaining 12 to 16 points on covering by shorts. The close was at or near the highest. May after dropping to 16.34 rallied to 16.46 up 12 points and closed at 16.45, or 15 points net higher for the day. The general market closed steady at net gains of 13 to 16 points.

Liverpool came in 1 to 2 points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 3 to 6 points. The market gained a point or two but eased on liquidation March dropping to 16.05, or 9 to 10 points down from the early highs.

Fairly Broad Demand Despite Liberal Receipts Around 11 Market Circuit

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 1. (AP)— (U. S. D. A.)—Livestock trade today around the eleven market circuit was featured by a fairly broad demand despite the fact that receipts continued liberal. Current prices at most markets were unevenly steady to 25c higher than a week ago with a late top of $10.60 at St. Louis. Offerings 774,000, a slight decrease from last week but 191,500 heavier than the corresponding period a year ago.

The sheep supply approximated 299,600 against 282,297 last week and 240,766 a year ago. Fat lamb trade throughout the week and a general decline of 25 to 65c was enforced. Most centers also reported moderate declines on matured classes of sheep. Choice fed woolen lambs of light weight topped at 12.75 on late days at Chicago.

Killing classes of cattle dull in face of a very sluggish dressed beef trade. Highly finished steers scarce and several market prices were forced to materially higher levels. Short fed steers close steady to unevenly lower while sharp price declines of 25c to $1 were put into effect on the rank and file of light yearlings and fat she stock.

Saturday Cattle Receipts Small

FORT WORTH, Feb. 1. —(AP)—A few mixed loads of common classes of cattle and calves made up the light receipts offered here today. No steers included in Saturday's trading. Cows ranged in price from $4.00 to $7.50; slaughter yearlings and heifers, mostly common, sold at $6.50 and $10.50. Common calves 5.00 and up to 9.00. Stocker cattle lacking in the day's trade.

Sheep values steady, not enough on hand to test values.

Rail hog top $9.50; truck hogs 9.50 and packing sows sold around 7.75 and 8.00.

Oscar Brothers, deputy United States marshal, is scheduled to leave this morning for Amarillo, where he has been ordered for a temporary stay by government officials.

He is scheduled to serve several writs in the Panhandle oil fields.

New Leaders Are Brought Forward In Brief Market

Advance Of Some Of Recent Favorites Is Impeded By Week-End Profit-Taking Sales Saturday

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. (AP)—The rally in stock prices increased in activity and breadth in today's brief session with new leaders brought forward when week-end profit-taking sales impedede the advance in some of the recent favorites. For the third successive day, the index of 90 leading issues set a new high record since the November 13 break. Total sales of 1,925,440 shares were the largest of any Saturday this year.

The ability of the market to "follow through" after crossing the highs reached on recovery in December led to active short covering, particularly in the public utility and motor shares.

The day's news failed to disclose any new developments in the business situation, but the generally cheerful character of the weekly reviews and the recovery in commodity prices, after the sharp break earlier in the week, had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment.

Western Union ran up 8 1-2 points to 212, American Telephone jumped nearly 4 1-2 points to 231 1-2 and then eased to 230 and International Telephone showed a net gain of 3 1-8 points.

New Evidence In Claims Presented

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The United States today laid before the mixed claims commission new evidence in the claims this country has lodged against Germany on the contention that German agents destroyed $35,000,000 of war supplies in America during the neutrality period.

The new evidence centers around the activities of Theodore Woznayk, at whose bench started the fire in the Kingsland assembling plant at Kingsland, New Jersey, January 11, 1917. Some of the claims arise from the destruction by that fire.

Robert W. Boynge, the American agent, submitted statements and documents from several witnessed to substantiate the contenion that Woznayk was a German agent. Previous evidence by Germany was to the effect that Woznayk appeared voluntarily after a futule 12-year search for him protested his innocence, and offered new testimony regarding the disasters on which the claims are based.

MISTLETOE

PRODUCTS ARE QUALITY PRODUCTS

Miss VeVerka Says:

"The foundation of beauty lies in good health. Not only good health, but the proper selection of diet is of paramount importance. Mistletoe quality Ice Cream and Mistletoe Butter are two supreme products, known throughout Texas for years. Their quality is proved, and I recommend them to be fitted into your diet."

Quality-

---- and What It Means

Quality is a word used by everyone, yet it is a word that cannot be duplicated. Mistletoe Creameries started growing some twenty years ago with the state of Texas, and since that time have "practiced" the word QUALITY, rather than just use it as a cloak for a shadow of a product. When the word "Quality" is practiced over a period of years, the products actually have QUALITY. We "practice" quality in our Ice Cream and Butter.

COLLEGE REVUE

How in the world some people make their classes without having "scorts is impossible to imagine. For instance: Did Floyd Woolridge ever go to history without Jack Durham, or Veta Stafford ever make an 8 o'clock on third floor of the Ad. building, without Hogue Williams, or has Martha Knight ever gone to a class without Buck Davis, and doesn't Bill Pry always see to it that Madeline Elliot doesn't cut any, and lately hasn't Foster Davis taken Elizabeth Pickett to all of hers? And yesterday morning "Red" Waller wouldn't let Virginia Nance go to Spanish until she consented to let him walk to the door with her.

STAFF POETRY

Members of the Toreador staff were entertained with a novel theater party last night by the girls of the staff. Guests assembled at 1520 10th street at 8 o'clock and were taken to the Rex theater. Members of the staff who were present, included: Sarah Price, Margaret Trigg, Eva Rob Watkins, Gladys Townes, Claudine Cook, Helen Coon, Fay Foote, Wayne Castleberry, Hal Lary, Warren Huff, Donald Boggs, J. A. Strange, Gordon Dickinson, E. B. Fincher, Bob Patterson, Gene Adair, Bill Sewell, Cannon Clements and J. W. Timmons Jr. Miss Blanche Walker of Amarillo was the special guest of the staff.

GEOLOGY MUSEUM

A mounted Buffaloe head has been added to the Geology Museum, according to Dr. L. T. Patton, head of the department. The head was presented to the museum by L. W. Fritz of Wichita Falls and came from the Goodnight ranch. The specimen was received through the aid of Clifford Jones, Spur, who is chairman of the Tech board of directors.

BAN CARNIVALS

Spirit May Be Curtailed In San Antonio Fiesta

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1. (AP)—The carnival spirit may be somewhat curtailed in San Antonio on Fiesta de San Jacinto week, April 21 to 26, as the city commission has voted to ban the usual carnival shows from the plazas of the city.

In the past the plazas in the business district have been the scene of revelry and merriment during fiesta week, as merry-go-rounds tent shows and game of chance stands drew thousands of merry-makers.

The shows were objected to by merchants, who said that they detracted from regular business.

BIFFLE IS FREE MAN

Two Juries Fail To Convict Man In Pantages Case

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1 (AP)—Because two juries failed either to convict or acquit Garland Biffle, law book salesman, of perjury alleged involved in his testimony on behalf of Alexander Pantages in the latter's assault trial, the perjury charges today were dismissed on motion of the state.

Biffle, in Pantages' trial for criminally assaulting Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, testified that he saw her, accompanied by Nick Duneav, playwright, enter the Pantages theater building the day of the attack.

Other trial witnesses and the girl and Duneav themselves, testified contrary to Biffle, asserting that the playwright was in a lawyer's office the afternoon of the attack.

The Vogue for Velvet

This Dutch Cap Turban From Bendel Is Chinese Red Velvet.

Jean Patou Enhances The Richness of This Black Velvet Coat By Furring It Heavily.

V
Jenny Chooses Black Velvet For the Princess Bodice Of This Evening Gown With Unusual Cut Decolletage.

THIS era of femininity in styles puts a premium on the velvet touch.

You may use the chiffon velvet, or grow extravagant and buy the old-fashioned panne velvet. Milliner's velvet fashions many a smart chapeau. Satin-backed velvet makes many of the most fashionable evening wraps.

This is logical. Velvet has a sheen to it, a softness to its nap, a regal sumptuousness to it even before it is trimmed with fur or light touches, that is quite in keeping with the luxury of the winter mode.

Again, velvet is tremendously flattering. Get a shade that becomes the wearer, use that shade in velvet and the lights and shadows that ripple through its surface throw corresponding soft lights upon her countenance, heightening its beauty.

In the third place, velvet now comes in the most gorgeous colors. If you want a costume delicate as the dawn, there is a velvet for it. If you want striking, hard, American beauty pink or jungle green, velvet answers the call. All of the off-whites now await the ring of wedding bells. Pastel colors are available for evening gowns. Beiges, grays, blues and all the everyday greens are on the market for touches to hats or costumes.

The result is that velvet is used extensively for gowns. It is used for many of the dressier coats and ensembles, for lounging attire when you want to feel queenly, and for evening gowns on gala occasions.

IN addition to velvet's high place as the medium for costumes, there remain innumerable other uses for this rich fabric.

Paris offers a sweet little fancy in the form of a white bridal set in velvet and Alencon lace, with the hip-yoke of the panties of the white velvet and the edges and straps of the lace brassiere of the white velvet.

Many evening slippers use velvet for bows, or for making the shoe itself. Velvet bows, sashes and flowers adorn some of the season's loveliest creations for the dance. The flowers made from velvet this year are too beautiful for description. A single rose may have as many as 10 shades of pink velvet in its make-up, giving it that natural gradation of coloring that distinguishes a real flower from an artificial one.

Velvet handbags are new and very pretty. Sometimes they are richly embroidered in cut steel or take an old-fashioned cross-stitch pattern worked out in color.

Velvet fashions many hats this season. In a year when becomingness is first consideration, flattering velvet comes into its own for framing the face.

Many beautifully-cut gowns this winter are of pastel tone, relying on their exquisite modeling to make them distinctive. It is not uncommon to have the only contrasting note in these gowns some kind of velvet flower.

I. BLANCHE LEBOUVIER creates this stunning evening gown of yellow silk chiffon with a single, huge, ruby velvet flower placed at the center front of the bodice.

The gown achieves the high waistline by use of horizontal shirring all around the figure. Its skirt is very uneven and very full. It is simple in effect, though very elaborately conceived. That splash of ruby-red velvet right in front is most effective.

II. LUCILE PARAY combines black and white velvet with a tiny black polka dot for one of the winter's smartest afternoon dresses. The manner of joining the two velvets is ingeniousness itself.

A draped, full skirt of black has a slightly uneven hemline. Over this a little bodice with tight waistline and fitted peplum is fitted. The peplum falls away, in cutaway fashion, from the waistline in front, with little ends tying in a bow at the waistline, over a shirred panel of the black skirt.

The cowl collar and deep, fitted cuffs of the black are two more touches of individuality. This frock buttons up the back, like a little girl's party dress.

III. FIGURED velvet is used most happily for this dressy afternoon frock made by Cyber.

Several shades of brown, checking a light beige background, increase the effect of light and shadows on this velvet. The little frock is made very simply, the fabric calling for no trim save its own pattern. It is cut with a basque effect, by use of a circular tier that joins the fitted bodice in a curved line.

A little scarf of the material can be wound around the neck or tied in a bow at the back. The sleeves are long and tight, with rows of shirring at the inside seam, giving fullness on the outside line.

IV. WHEN Jean Patou created one of the winter's most regal coats, he used black velvet and heightened its richness by furring it heavily.

This coat has the slim princess line, with exaggerated fullness below the tight waistline. The full skirt, moreover, dips almost to ankle length in the back, a line extremely good with frocks of similar line.

The sleeve is very feminine, with flaring cuffs ending the long, tight cut. Black fox is used profusely to trim this garment. The luxurious collar is a shawl shape and can be worn buttoned up or left open, as in the picture. Like many heavily-furred collars this winter, this one stands away from the neck slightly in order to give the hat room.

V. THIS Jenny velvet gown is princess in line, with an unusual cut to its decolletage and a flounced skirt of fine black tulle.

The decolletage is irregularly scalloped, with strands of strass threading it to hold all the points at attention. The top strand runs over the shoulder for straps and attaches in front to the bodice again.

The princess velvet bodice is cut in points at its lower edge and the tiered skirt flutes out from under these points.

VI. HENRI BENDEL uses a velvet for many of his smartest turbans this year. And one of his newest is this modified Dutch cap turban of Chinese red milliner's velvet, with a pert bow of matching velvet ribbon flaring towards the face from the back.

VII. BLACK velvet and black chiffon are charmingly combined in this formal evening gown created by Jenny. This designer, incidentally, makes use of velvet for some of her loveliest evening creations this season, using tulle, net, chiffon, lame or feathers for the skirt. This is the first season in many a one in which velvet has functioned in exactly this way.

The black velvet bodice pictured is cut away entirely in the back and held together by a band of strass embroidery which points up the back, to divide over each shoulder and attach itself to the front.

This bodice fits the body svelt1y, and is cut much longer in the back. Black chiffon is organ pleated onto this bodice, swinging so low in the back that it falls onto the floor like a train.

For some reason you can not sell home property in the city. You think your home is worth $7,000 or $8,000 and you try to sell it. You have to take $4,000 or $5,000 or keep it unless location is exceptional. Farm land is cheaper than it will ever be again, and a decent crop at fair prices will send it up $10 per acre. Do you have clear city property? The quickest way to get your value out of it is to trade it to our client for his Hockley county land. It is 12 miles north of Levelland in fine school district, with small debt of $12.78 per acre, long terms, 6 per cent, no blue weeds, not leased, $30 per acre. Your golden opportunity to unload. If you have clear stuff see us. Give you a mighty good trade.

Robs Father

said later to be fictitious, had promised him $200 to show them an easy place to rob a bank.

He said he had not taken actual part in the robbery but that he and one man had sat in the machine while the other held up the elder Spillman. Later under pressure of questioning, he admitted he had been alone and, accompanying officers to a place on the highway 20 miles from here, he showed where the remaining money lay under a pile of rocks, $2,185 in gold and silver coins and bills.

The Elder Spillman, who was grief stricken over the robbery, said he had not recognized his son. He had gone to the bank at 5 a. m., to build a fire and get ready for the day's work. A masked man entered, he said, pointed a pistol at him and forced him to lie face down on the counter while the money was taken.

Spillman called police shortly after the robber left and several hours later he was informed that it had been his own son.

Bolters

Dallas, self-confessed bolter of the presidential nominees in 1928, for a place on the 1930 primary ballot as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

Senator Love, one of the leading influences in the bolt that carried Texas for the first time since reconstruction days for republican presidential electors, said that the committee's action was "obviously void and would be so held by the courts."

"The remarkable thing is that they failed to bar negroes from participating in the primaries according to a law passed by the legislautre in 1927," Senator Love said. "But, they did take particular pains to bar Hoover democrats."

A delegation of negroes from Bexar county stood outside the door to the room in a hotel where the meeting was held, awaiting an opportunity to present a resolution which would give them the right to take part in the 1930 primaries. However, they did not appear before the committee to make known their wants.

The committee adopted a resolution offered by Winbourn Pearce of Temple, reciting that under the law the committee could not act this time to bar from the primary ballots candidates for nominations to state offices in the primary, since the law specifically directed that the committee meet on the second Mopday in June preceding the primary to arrange the official ballot, and amended by Maury Hughes of Dallas, reciting it to the sense of the committee that "any present of proposed application for certification who voted in the democratic primary in 1928 or participated in any of the primaries or conventions of the democratic party in 1928, and in the said primary or convention took the prescribed pledge to support the nominees of the party, and then broke his pledge and bolted the ticket and voted for the nominees of another party, that by doing so he forfeited his right to the support of the democratic party and forfeited his right to have his name placed on the democratic primary ballot in 1930," and directing that such persons be refused certification.

Daniel Boone

rive credence, through history and information relayed from generation to generation, to many stories pertaining to the life of the great explorer, the Lubbock man said.

It is said that Daniel Boone, then living in Kentucky, once remarked to his wife, "We'll have to move out of this country; we're being crowded by neighbors." The nearest family lived 30 miles from the Boone cabin.

Another story relates to his sense of justice. While he was an alcalde (judge) of a Spanish court in St. Louis, then in Spanish territory, a lawyer was pleading before him in behalf of a defendant. Judge Boone appeared stern and interrupted the lawyer's pleadings several times with questions. "But, your honor, "plead the attorney, patience waning. "I assure you that I am giving you the evidence in this case."

"I don't care anything about the evidence," said the judge, "What I want is the truth."

Dangers Braved

Another story concerns his chief delight—hunting. It was in Kentucky. He and a friend had braved the dangers of the Indian fighting ground for a hunting trip. The two had separated for several minutes. When the friend was returning to camp he saw on a cliff what appeared to be a vicious animal, emitting a terrible sound. He aimed his gun, but decided to go near for an investigation. It was Daniel Boone, covered with a bear's hide, and singing in joyful abandon out of happiness for being alone in the woods.

The Kentucky pioneer became a colonel in the United States service and signalized himself by his many daring exploits against Indians, and also by his extensive surveys and explorations in the State of Kentucky. He is said to have explored and aided in settlement of country from the Allegheny mountains to the frontier of Missouri.

Numerous towns throughout the nation are named in his honor.

When the frontiers began to advance westward across the mountains, the Boones—some under the leadership of their most venturesome member, others independently were ever in the vanguard.

Became Americans

The family was English in blood and inheritance but quickly became American in deed and spirit, giving generation after generation to American colonization and citizenship.

George and Mary Maugridge Boone, who came from England to America in 1717, are grandparents of Daniel Boone.

A reproduction of the first page of the Old James Boone Genealogy written in 1788, now in possession of the Historical Society of Wisconsin, reads:

"Our genealogy, or pedigree; traced as far back as had come to the knowledge of John Boone (the son of George and Mary Boone); written by James Boone (grandson of said George and Mary Boone).

George Boone, I. (That is the first we have heard of) was born in England.

George Boone, II. (Son of George Boone the First) was born in or near the city of Exeter in Devonshire; being a blacksmith; his wife's maiden name was Sarah Uppey. He died aged 60, and she died aged 80 years, and never had an aching bone, or decay of tooth.

George Boone, III. (Son of George and Sarah Boone) was born at Stoak (a village near the city of Exeter), in A. D. 1666, being a weaver; his wife's maiden name was Mary Maugridge, who was born in Bradninch (eight miles from the city of Exeter) in the year 1669, being a daughter of John Maugridge and Mary his wife whose maiden name was Milton. They (the said George and Mary Boone) had nine children that lived to be men and women; namely George, Sarah, Lauire, Mary, John, Joseph, Benjamin, James and Samuel, having each of them several children, expecting John, who was never married. The said George and Mary Boone with their family, came from the town of Bradninch in Devanshire, old England (which is a town at 8 miles distance from the city of Exeter, and 177 measured miles westward from London); they left Bradninch the 17, August, 1717 and went to Bristol where they took shipping, and arrived at Philadelphia in 1717, September 29); three of their children to wit George, Sarah and Lauire they sent in a few years before. From Philadelphia they went to Abington, and staid a few months there; thence to North Wales, and lived about two years there; thence to Oley in same county of Philadelphia where Sarah (being married) had moved to some time before. This last place of their residence, since the divisions made in the township of Oley and county of Philadelphia) is called the township of Exeter in the county of Berks: It was called Exeter because they came from a place near the city of Exeter. He the said George Boone the Third died on the sixth day of the week near 8 o'clock in the morning on the 27th of July, 1744, and Mary his wife died on the 2nd day of the week, on the 2nd of February, 1740 aged 72 years; and were decently interred in Friends Burying ground in the said township of Exeter. When he died, he left eight children, 52 grand children and 10 great grand children, living, in all 70, being as many persons as the House of Jacob which came into Egypt."

Of the nine children who came to America with their parents George and Mary Maugridge Boone descendants of six are now members of the Boone Family association, an international society which numbers over six hundred members many of whom are prominent in army, navy and professional circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Boone, of this city have three children, Miss Lalla R. Boone, teacher in the history department at Texas Tech who is now on a leave of absence; Harry C. Boone, Lubbock carpenter, and T. R. Boone, Wichita Falls lawyer.

Claim Brady Drunk.

He had seen Brady, he testified, at an Austin hotel earlier on the night of the killing, last November 9, and Brady was "very drunk."

The state, meanwhile, had rounded off its rebuttal by placing on the stand Dr. J. M. Loving, an alienist, who answered Brooks' long hypothetical question by saying a man whose actions were those described was sane, knew the difference between right and wrong "and the nature and consequences of his act."

This hypothetical question carried the meat of the state's case. Another hypothetical question, put to Doctors Joe and Goodall Wooten, was a symposium of the defense contention. To this questin the Doctors Wooten answered: "A man like that is insane." It was, in effect, "The evidence is that John W. Brady 10 or more years ago was a brilliant man with a great mind—a man of great promise. But he was defeated in a race to go back on the third court of civil appeals and began drinking bootleg liquor when and where he could get it."

Testify To Change.

"A great change came over him then—he grew morose and surly, abusive to his wife, cold and distant, at times, to his friends.

"He neglected an excellent law practice until he had practically driven away all clients. He became slovenly, where once he had been fastidious.

"He entered into an affair with a young unmarried woman here in the town where he had held high honors and where his wife of 30 years lived. This wife and his friends knew of his relationship and he knew they knew it.

"On the night of Nov. 9, 1929, he killed the girl."

The state hypothesis went like this: "The evidence is that John W. Brady did drink a considerable amount of bootleg whiskey. The evidence is that he went to the house of this girl earlier on that evening, left and went home in a taxi. He came back later though, with a long knife in his pocket.

Jealous of Girl.

"He met the girl coming in with two men. He had been drinking, but not to the extent that he was physically or mentally incapacitated. He was jealour, fearful that he would lose the girl to men nearer her own age, and he stabbed her.

"The police came to get him and he told them yes, they could go to the police station in Miss Highsmith's car, saying 'I bought that car two years ago.'

"On the way to headquarters some one mentioned the stabbing and he said, 'they can't do anything but file an assault to murder charge against me. I have the goods on all of them.'

"At headquarters he expressed concern about a cut finger he had received, wanted his family doctor to treat it, but finally consented to allow the city health officer to do so.

Talks of Football.

"On the way to the city hospital he spoke of a football game he had attended and in regard to his cut finger remarked, 'that's what a man gets for trying to be a sport.'

"After he got back from the city hospital he was told that the girl was dead. He turned to a police officer, whom he had recognized, and called by name all along, and said 'My —— Sam, don't tell me that.'

"He was grief stricken then, and broken in spirit."

The high point of the state's rebuttal windup this morning was the testimony of two boys, Odie Green and Otto Crider, who said they were in the second floor of the rooming house and heard Miss Highsmith scream.

Rushing to a front porch, they looked out through the screen and saw Brady and the girl struggling, they added.

Green swore that he heard Brady tell her: "I've been waiting for this chance." He saw the movement of the former judge's arm, he declared, and saw him lay the woman's figure on the sidewalk.

Tech Short Course Will Open Monday

Two Thousand Expected To Attend Second Annual Affair Here; Program To Last Three Days

will be a talk on regulating production by studying agricultural forecasts of the United States Department of Agriculture, which will be given by Dr. J. O. Ellsworth of the college.

"But it is the afternoon program which will be more closely related to the Farm Board activities.

"Dean A. H. Leidigh, of the school of agriculture at Tech, will explain federal farm relief and the program of the Farm Board in giving aid to agriculture.

Williams To Talk

"Following Dean Leidigh comes Harry Williams, one of the directors of the American Cotton Cooperative association, the $30,000,000 corporation formed by the Farm Board to handle the nation's cotton. Mr. Williams will offer the first speech to be given by any member of this organization in Texas since its creation. He will talk on the status of cotton marketing in Texas."

Wheat growers will also have their part on Monday's program, with R. F. Cooke, manager of the Texas Wheat Growers' association to speak on the status of wheat marketing in this state, and with John Manley, on of the three directors of the National Wheat corporation, another organization created by the Farm Board, also scheduled to speak.

Women To Have Program

The women's program for Monday also features marketing. Mrs. M. S. Hudson, of Hale Center, director of the Texas Farm Bureau federation will talk on "Our Opportunity." Home marketing problems are to be discussed by Miss Mamie Lee Hayden, extension specialist in home industry, Texas A. and M. college.

In the afternoon Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, director of the home community department of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will talk on "The Nation's Debt to the Farm Home."

Climaxing this first day will be the Farmers' Supper, to be held at the Hotel Lubbock, beginning at 6:30 p. m., and which is planned as an annual affair. Music for this affair is to be furnished by the Texas Tech music department, Prof. W. R. Waghorne, director. The Tech quartet will offer several vocal numbers, Miss Elizabeth Pickett is to play a violin solo, and Prof. Waghorne will lead in group singing.

President Paul W. Horn, of the college, will speak on the subject of "Social Fellowship," and will be followed by Mrs. Hudson, who speaks on the subject of "Community Progress." The principal address will be "Rural Welfare," by Mrs. Sewell.

Efficient and whole-hearted cooperation of the newspapers, county agricultural and home demonstration agents, officials of County Farm Bureaus, Texas Farm Cotton association field representatives and all Texas A. and M. extension workers in northeast Texas, has placed information regarding the Second Annual Texas Tech Farmers' and Home Makers' Short Course, to be held here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in the hands of numerous thousands.

Such information, it is believed by Texas Tech school of agriculture officials, will bring a total attendance of approximately 3,000 to the short course.

Names Mailed In

"As an idea of what this cooperation has been," H. J. Bower, professor of agronomy at Tech and general chairman of the short course, said, "every county agent on the plains has mailed in to us at least 30 names each, to whom programs of the short course have been sent. In addition to these farmers, the field men of the Farm Bureau Cotton association have mailed out several thousand programs to their members.

"Miss Louise Baird, Lubbock county home demonstration agent, and David F. Eaton Lubbock county agent, both have notified every member of 4-H boys and girls clubs in the county to be here for the special club program Tuesday at 6:00 p. m., when Mrs. Sewell will speak to them. Other county 4-H club boys and girls have been notified, also."

Evans To Preside

The club program will start with an athletic demonstration by the tumbling class of Dr. F. G. Harbaugh, of Tech. This session will be presided over by Sterling C. Evans district extension agent.

Tuesday's program will be featured by the address of M. H. Gossett, of Houston, president of the Federal Farm Loan bank, and by H. O. Lucas, Brownwood, president of the Texas Farm Bureau federation. Another drawing card on the men's program Tuesday will be the report of progress on one-variety cotton community projects in Texas, by Sterling C. Evans. On top of this will be two talks on grain sorghums by Don L. Jones, superintendent of the state experiment station here, and by Prof. C. H. Mahoney, professor of horticulture at Tech.

ANDERSON BURIED QUIETLY

CHICAGO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Without eulogy, without flowers—in the manner he chose — the Most Rev. Charles Palmerston Anderson today received the rites accorded the dead.

He was prelate of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of American and Bishop of Chicago, and, although his expressed desire for simplicity was carried out, throngs filled St. James Cathedral in silent testimony of reverence.

Clements To Seek Mayoralty, Woods Drops Out Of Race

Present Mayor Not To Seek Re-Election Because Of Business Reasons; Platform Outlined

while I have been as active as I could be in civic matters I have gotten a great deal more from Lubbock than Lubbock has from me. If I am elected as mayor I intend to serve the city's interests to the best of my ability and will carry into the City Hall the same business principles by which I operate my own concern."

For City Planning

Included in Mr. Clements' administration plans if he is elected are the projects of city planning, an oriented system of parks, and completion of the city's airport. "I favor getting the improvements which Lubbock needs to make a city," Mr. Clements asserted, "but I am opposed to adding to the tax burden. If I am elected I intend to have an administration which will be both aggressive and progressive but I expect to keep it within the bounds of reason and business economy at all times.

"I intend to pay particular attention to the bringing to Lubbock of new industries and new capital. Building a city here, as is being done, can be helped along a great deal through such a campaign and I hope to make it a successful one if given the opportunity to inaugurate it."

Tribute to Woods

Mr. Clements paid a tribute to the administration of Mayor Woods, adding that in the whole he expected to carry on to completion major projects begun under Mr. Woods if he is elected.

The candidate also goes on record in support of one of the proposed charter amendments to be voted upon at the same time the new mayor is elected. "I favor the passage of the amendment calling for a vote of the people, by two-thirds majority, before the municipal light plant can be sold," he said. "I don't believe any commission should be able, without permission on the part of the public, to sell any of the utilities."

Here Since 1923

Engaged in the general contracting business, which he entered after years spent in carpentering, Mr. Clements moved to Lubbock in September of 1923. Born in Smithville, Texas, he was reared in this state, but resided for a number of years in Arizona, Colorado and Old Mexico. He lived in Cisco from 1918 until 1921, going to Safford, Arizona, and later moving to Lubbock.

He is active in the First Presbyterian church and is a former president of Men-of-the-Church in that denomination. A member of the Lubbock Rotary club for the past five years, he is now completing a term as president of that organization, has served as a director of the Panhandle-South Plains fair for two years, is a director of the Board of City Development and of the Lubbock Community chest. He is married, has two sons and resides at 1808 16th street.

Woods Enjoyed Term

Mr. Woods, in announcing his retirement from the mayor's office, said he regretted withdrawing from public life, even for the present. "I have enjoyed every minute of my stay in office," he said, "and I feel that it was beneficial to me. I have been delighted with the cooperation given the commission and myself and am glad to report absolute harmony throughout the official organization. The city's business is in first class shape and I am sure will continue as such."

Mr. Woods said he regarded the mayor's office as an avenue for patriotic service and added that he hoped the new administration would carry on for a park system, a city plan, airport, paving and street lighting improvements as well as adding to the city's sewer and disposal plant which is needed at this time. Mr. Woods was elected without opposition in April, 1928.

Other Questions Up

At the same time Lubbock citizens ballot for mayor they will also elect two members of the commission. Terms of J. H. Hankins, utilities commissioner, and A. V. Weaver, street commissioner, expire. Friends of Mr. Hankins last night informed the Avalanche-Journal that he had authorized his candidacy for re-election. Mr. Weaver, in a statement last night, said that he would not run again. Holdover commissioners are John F. Bacon, finance commissioner, and Dave N. Leaverton, in charge of police and fire.

Mayor Woods said the commission would fill the city manager's position prior to the election. City Manager Gus W. McCleary resigned last week, but will hold the office for ninety days when his successor will take over the reins.

Several proposed amendments to the city charter will be voted on when the new mayor and commissioners are chosen. Chief among them are one which would require a two-thirds vote of the people before a commission would be empowered to sell the city light plant; one would make it impossible for a commission to issue more than $50,000 in warrants and a third proposes to make the city's paving law parallel to the state law. Other proposed amendments cover wording in the present city charter.

Robert E. Lee's Historic Birthplace to be Restored And Made a National Shrine; Looks Like Old Castle

By NEA Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Flying down the Potomac from Washington, an airplane tourist passes over Arlington, Mount Vernon, Gunston Hall, where James Monroe was born, Wakefield, birthplace of George Washington — and then, finally, passes over a great brick building shaped like a letter "H", set in the woods of historic Westmoreland county, Virginia.

This building, one of the first seats of culture and refinement in the old colony of Virginia, is about to be restored to its former condition and thrown open to the people of the nation as a permanent shrine.

It is the home of one of the most famous families in American history—the Lees of Virginia. And the campaign to preserve it as a memento of famous men and vanished days came to a climax when the southland celebrated on Jan. 19, the 122d birthday anniversary of the old family's most distinguished member—General Robert E. Lee.

The historic building is called Stratford Hall, and its story goes back 279 years, clear to the early days of Virginia.

Richard Lee, immigrant pioneer ancestor of the Lees, bought the land from the Indians in 1650. Stratford Hall was built just 200 years ago, by Thomas Lee, who was enabled to build it by means of a gift from Queen Caroline, wife of King George II of England.

In Stratford Hall were born Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, signers of the Declaration of Independence. Here, too, were born Lighthorse Harry Lee, brilliant military leader of the Revolution, and his great son, Robert E. Lee, military genius of the Confederacy.

Few homes in America have as distinguished a tradition as Stratford Hall.

It looks more like a medieval castle than a colonial home. Built solidly of brick, and surrounded by a cluster of quaint outbuildings, it shows its age plainly, and it has lost the splendor of the era when its owners were called the most wealthy in the south. The great brick chimneys that rise in clusters of four look like old military battlements—and so, in a sense, they once were, for from their balconies a lookout used to be kept for roving parties of hostile Indians.

Back of the mansion there is a magnificent view of the Potomac, 12 miles wide at that point, sweeping away to the blue cliffs that mark the eastern shore of Maryland. In front a road leads out to the King's Highway, which extends from Washington to the Chesapeake Bay, and a part of which the United States government is now converting into a memorial road.

Fittingly enough, the movement to restore and preserve Stratford Hall began in New England about a year ago, when members of the William Alexander, jr., chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy of Connecticut, signed the contract for the purchase of the place, raised funds for the initial payment of $5,000, and formed the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation to complete the payments, restore the mansion and grounds and convert the estate into a national shrine similar to Mount Vernon.

Just as Mount Vernon is governed and directed by a board of women comprising membership from each state, Stratford Hall will be governed by a director from each state—all of whom will be women—under the leadership of a national chairman. Assisting the women will be a national advisory board of men of national prominence. Among these latter are such men as Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, Governor Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, John W. Davis of New York and General R. A. Sneed, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans.

There remains to be raised approximately $200,000, which is being subscribed throughout the country through the efforts of volunteer workers.

Overstreet

or system, nothing we can do about curtailing production will help us any at all. The problem is to get the control away from such a system."

In analyzing happenings of the past week, Mr. Overstreet referred to the fact that both Carl Williams, cotton member of the Federal Farm board, and Alexander Legge, chairman, had been accused on the floor of the United States senate with pulling blunders.

Rumors Blamed

"Last Wednesday it was rumored in New York that the American Cotton Cooperative association was buying cottoon in Houston and asked if the cdoperative association was buying at that time. He denied this, of course, because it was the truth. His denial was wired into New York and the price broke.

"The next day, Mr. Legge was approached in Washington and was asked if the Farm Board was going to buy cotton and pay from $20 to $25 a bale above the market price.

"Mr. Legge replied, of course that the Farm Board was not going to buy cotton, never intended to do so and never would, but that as to whether the cotton association was going to pay more than the market he was sure they would not be that foolish.

"Because of these interviews both Mr. Williams and Mr. Legge were accused of making foolish statements. It was all done for the purpose of trying to ridicule and discourage and discredit the Farm Board and all of its efforts."

Modifications agreed to in changing the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association into the Texas Cotton Cooperative association were explained by Mr. Overstreet and his hearers were urged to do everything they could to bring about the creation of an independent unit of the cooperative on the South Plains with Lubbock as concentration point. This is logical, he stated, because of transportation concentration.

Advantages to cotton producers who are members of the cooperative, in having a unit in this region, would be the securing of grade and class of their cotton and checks for advances within three or four days, from Lubbock, while at present it requires from four to six weeks to complete such deals.

As soon as contracts are signed up to guarantee as many as 100,000 bales of cotton being handled, under the set-up for the cotton cooperative a separate unit can be established.

Fred W. Johnson, president of the Terry County Farm Bureau and chairman of the Meadow local organization, presided at tonight's meeting, which was held in the school building. C. E. Easterwood, secretary of the Meadow gin board reported a total of 2,680 bales of cotton ginned for the present season, with a profit recorded of $17,000. The Meadow association shipped 1,629 tons, or 27 carloads, of cottonseed and had 78,000 pounds of seed, about two cars, on hand now. One-third of the gin's seed handled for the season has been caught. The organization bought 1,619 bales of cotton and members shipped 1,031 bales.

Cost of ginning cotton by this plant ranged from $1.04 per bale to $80 per bale. The low figure came during a week when 351 bales were turned out and the highest when only one bale was handled in a week's time, proving, as explained by Mr. Easterwood, that volume lowers the cost per bale.

"We could have ginned 6,000 bales during the season so far, at the same expense," said Mr. Easterwood. "There have been 7,000 bales ginned in Meadow this year, by the town's three gins."

C. S. L. Miles, delegate to the Farm Bureau convention meeting at Dalla gave a report of the gathering.

H. J. Bower, professor of agronomy in the Texas Tech school of agriculture, announced the Short Course for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, explaining the comprehensive program and urging Meadow farmers to attend.

N. H. Payne, field representative for the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, and James Burroughs, of Lubbock, also made short talks.

Maximum Advance Scored by Wheat

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (AP)—Rebounding today from extreme setbacks suffered yesterday, wheat scored a maximum rise of 4 5-8c a bushel from the season's low-price record. A jump today in asking prices for Argentine wheat abroad, together with some enlargement of demand from European continental countries was reported, and consequent sharp upturns in Liverpool quotations furnished an immediate stimulus to buyers of future deliveries in Chicago. Besides estimates were current indicating that the world's acreage of winter wheat this season shows 1.1 per cent reduction compared with a year ago.

Wheat future deliveries in Chicago closed unsettled 1 1-2c to 1 3-4@1 7-8c per bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4@3-8c to 3-4c up, oats 1-2c to 3-4c advanced, and provisions at gains ranging from a shade to 15c.

Dawson Farmers Seek Long Staple

Better Grade Of Cotton Is To Be Raised In 1930, According To Plans; Gin Men Aiding Movement

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, Feb. 1—Believing that there is a greater demand for a longer staple cotton instead of the half and half type now being grown on the lower South Plains a number of prominent farmers, backed by Dawson county gins have started a movement here to banish the half and half staple and plant a better grade of long staple cotton in this section. One carload of seed has been ordered by one of the gins for distribution among the farmers of this section for their planting this year, while the Farm Bureau here is encouraging all of its members to plant the longer staple.

The agricultural department of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce is one of the sponsors of the move and County Agent W. W. Evans is also listed as a supporter. Better market prices for the annual cotton crop is one of the inducements being cited by those interested in the change.

Claim Senate Vote Will Aid Pro Law

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—Out of the hullabaloo over prohibition and its enforcement there emerged tonight the prediction by one of its ardent supporters, Senator Jones of Washington, that any congressional vote which results will strengthen rather than modify the Volstead act.

The house today heard the Eighteenth amendment arraigned by Representative Lehlbach of New Jersey, in answer to the speech there on behalf of the law on yesterday by his fellow republican from his own state — Representative Fort. Lehlbach challenged the preponderantly dry house to brand liquor drinkers as criminals, insisting that was the way the prohibitory law was meant to be enforced.

Fort had declared yesterday that the Volstead act left latitude for persons to brew beer or make wine in their homes, and that it did not make drinking criminal.

Moody Will Talk On Pen Proposals Over Radio Today

Program To Centralize And Reform State Prisons To Be Outlined By Governor From Dallas Station

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 1—Gov. Dan Moody tomorrow will resort to the radio to sell the people of Texas on his proposed penitentiary centralization and reformation plan now before the legislature. He will discuss the subject from the studio of Station KRLD, Dallas, owned and operated by the Dallas Times-Herald from 4:30 p. m. to 5:30 p. m., in the Adolphus hotel.

The plant has a capacity of 10,000 watts and all Texans who have a receiving set will be able to hear what he has to say.

Marks Precedent

It will be the first time a governor of Texas has resorted to the radio to reach the people in an effort to urge them to petition the legislature to act favorably on a plan of legislation advocated by him.

The governor will detail economic advantages of centralizing the plant within 20 miles of Austin as recommended by the majority of the prison centralization commission created by the legislature to make a survey of conditions and propose suggestions to the legislature.

Resume Consideration

The legislature will resume consideration of the seven distinct plans for reorganizing Monday. The senate probably will start consideration of the bills from the floor, while the house, unless some one interferes still likely will continue hearings on the six measures before it.

Britain's Cruisers Are Dropped From Building Program

Construction Cancelled To Cause Minor Sensation In Week-End Lull During Naval Conference

BY FRANK H. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Feb. 1. (AP)—The British government has dropped from its naval building plans two more cruisers than was realized this week when A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, made his announcement to the house of commons that the cruisers Northumberland and Surrey had been cancelled.

The information became public while the various delegations to the naval disarmament conference were at play over the week-end lull in negotiations, and caused something of a minor sensation in naval circles.

Plans Suspended.

Beside the two projected 10,000-ton ships mentioned by Alexander upon which plans were suspended before Prime Minister MacDonald went to Washington last autumn, the British admiralty today confirmed reports that two other cruisers, one of 10,000 tons and the other something under 7,000 tons, had been dropped from the 1930 building program.

These are "paper ships" and one of them—the 10,000 tonner— might almost be called a mythical ship, for the British official return of fleets for 1930 giving the complete building program does not list it.

The British government made no effort to characterize cancellation of these building plans as a gesture toward disarmament, but the British press today pointed to the government's action as such.

No Action Taken By Cotton Group

HOUSTON, Feb. 1. —(AP)—With members of the executive committee of the American Cotton Cooperative association on their way home tonight, interest among cotton men centered on a meeting of the committee scheduled for February 8 in Jackson, Miss.

The committee, which met here yesterday with Carl Williams, member of the federal farm board, adjourned without selecting a manager for the association or a permanent meeting place for the $30,000,000 organization.

VeVerka To Begin Lectures Monday At Dance Palace

Noted Authority On Matters Pertaining To Feminine Charm Will Tell Secrets To Women Of Lubbock

"NOWHERE could beauty schools attain the popularity they have in America," declares Eve Ve Verka, who is expected to arrive this evening to begin a five-day school of beauty, health, and charm under the auspices of the Avalanche-Journal. Her first lecture will be given Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Uptown Dance Palace, and other addresses will be made each afternoon through Friday at 2:30 o'clock.

"The ateliers of the famous beauty savants of the continent are limited to the great European capitals and the more exclusive watering places where only the elite assemble," continued Eve VeVerka. "The result is that our European sister finds her innate love of beauty stifled by its apparent unavailability to her. That is why I love to live in a nation like the United States where great public spirited papers like the Avalanche-Journal are constantly casting about for some means by which they can bring greater happiness to every woman regardless of her financial classification."

"I receive no greater pay in my work than the sincere little expressions of gratitude that follow me about by season's itinerary expressing appreciation derived from some of my lectures. It makes me feel that my years of devotion to my profession have been worth while after all."

Greatest Beauty in America

"Understand me, I have nothing against Europe. Nowhere, however, is beauty, health and charm so untrammeled by restrictions—so free and refreshing as here in America."

This remarkable woman whose fame as a beauty culturist and feminine adviser is internationally known, is just completing a triumphant lecture tour in which hundreds of thousands of women have come under her inspiring influence. She has lectured in nearly every city of size in the United States during the past few years and the premium on her appearances has grown to such an extent that the Avalanche-Journal feels that itself and the women of Lubbock are to be congratulated, for hundreds of cities are clamoring for inclusion on her booking list.

Every appearance of Eve VeVerka has won her thousands of new admirers. In a vibrant exquisitely modulated contralto voice, she delivers to her perplexed listeners solutions of their beauty and health problems in such a manner that no woman can hear her without being inspired with new hope for the full attainment of those things that are dear to every feminine heart. Her countless contacts with women who feel the unsatisfactory aspects of existence offer her innumerable opportunities to aid them and her years of experience have taught her how to point out to them the solution of their problems. A certain part of every lecture is reserved for questioning by her listeners, while for those who do not wish to state their questions in public, a personal question box will be provided near the door.

Eve VeVerka, as a beauty lecturer is unusual. Unusual, because in addition to giving her expert advice in the care of the skin, hair, nails and other attributes of charm, she also tells how to acquire that radiant personality so greatly admired by men and women alike. Her formula for the acquisition of real and lasting beauty is but the simple utilization of every capacity for higher living.

Eve VeVerka is a living example of her own teachings that the real

Variety Of Styles For Spring Wardrobe

Both beauty and comfort are suggested by the garments pictured, which are designed for the beginning of warm weather.

Lounging pajamas are gaining in popularity, and stripes are outstanding in this type of wearing apparel, such as is seen in the up-to-the-minute suit with wide trousers seen at the upper left. This one is worn with a long tassel of beads outlining the wearer's back.

In the center, a silk and wool suit is shown. The frock is of solid color, in a simple, sleeveless styling, with pleated skirt, and the kerchief cap and coat are vivid with color designs.

Quite interesting is the pajama ensemble modeled at the upper right. It has a tuck-in blouse and is worn with a big, floppy hat to shade the face from the sun. Terry cloth is being shown for beach pajamas, the white terry cloth being combined with solid white material.

Black Jersey Used

Black jersey, cut with a flare and a pointed bodice effect, makes the skirt of the sports frock in black and gray shown at the lower left. The waist is of gray crepe and boasts of a scarf collar which is cut in one piece with the front of the waist, and worn over the shoulder, falling below the hem of the skirt.

Afternoon styles often emuate the length of the evening mode, especially for formal wear. The one shown at the lower right is of blue and white crepe de chine. It employs the three-quarter length sleeves, normal waistline, and long, pointed skirt. Short or three-quarter length sleeves are both featured in the Sunday evening frocks, which are fashion's latest pets.

New Tech Faculty Members Honored With Event Here

Mrs. R. A. Mills Is Elected Vice-President Of Club During Business Meeting Preceding Program

By MARGARET TURNER
Of The Woman's Dept.

Outstanding among social events of the season was the reception given Friday night at the engineering building by the Tech Faculty club in honor of the new head of the textile engineering department, Professor Carl Brandt and Mrs. Brandt. Other guests of honor were Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Holden, Miss Jean Dorrell, Miss Mary De Bardeleben, O. A. Kinchen, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hicks, Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, Miss Mildred Bush, Nat Edmundson, jr., Mr. Perryman, Mrs. A. B. Strahil, Mrs. W. A. Whatley and Mrs. O. C. Corry.

Guests upon arriving were welcomed at the door by Mrs. F. A. Kleinschmidt and Mrs. J. O. Ellsworth, who escorted them to the receiving line composed of Dr. and Mrs. Paul W. Horn, Dean W. J. Miller, Dean and Mrs. James M. Gordon, Dean and Mrs. A. H. Leidigh, Miss Margaret Weeks, F. A. Kleinschmidt, J. O. Ellsworth and the guests of honor.

Business Session

Following the reception a short business meeting was held and Mrs. R. A. Mills was elected second vice-president to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Allen Carter. It was voted that the Faculty club cooperate with the Science club in bringing Dr. Howell to lecture here on March 5 and 6.

Th eprogram which followed was in the nature of an old time moving picture show of twenty years ago. A two-reel Charlie Chaplin comedy and an old time drama were shown.

Edgar Shelton Sings

Edgar Shelton sang two old favorites, "Why Did You Make Me Care?" and "Take Me Back to the Garden of Love." Accompanying the songs were illustrated slides which were made by a committee of engineering students under the direction of Miss Edna Houghton.

An amateur night was the second part of the program and consisted of a reading "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" by Barney Brady; a vocal solo, Olen L. Puckett and a trombone duet by Culver Hill and Earl Puckett accompanied at the piano by Miss Margaret Baskin. The entire program caused much hilarity.

Match Valentines

Partners for the refreshment hour were chosen by matching Valentines. The tables were beautifully decorated in the Valentine motif with a rare lace cover placed over red and tall tapers burning at each end. A background of hearts and cupids furnished an effective setting for the table which was presided over by Miss Margaret Weeks and Mrs. George Smallwood.

Dainty refreshments of cherry pie, coffee and whipped cream, salted almonds and Valentine candies were served by a committee headed

Veritable Flower Garden Is Chief Attraction At Elaborate Function Given By Members Of De Que Club

Official Colors Of Black And White, Are Favored For Decorations; Nine Pledges And Dates Are Introduced By Alvin Allison

By HOLLYCE SELLERS
Avalanche-Journal Woman's Page Editor

FLOWERS in profusion made a veritable garden of one nook of the mezzanine floor of the Hilton Hotel Friday evening when the De Que club, men's social organization of Texas Technological college, entertained with an elaborate, formal dance from 9 to 12 o'clock. Two hundred fifty persons attended.

Guests were greeted on the mezzanine floor by pledges of the organization and their friends, and then were introduced to the officers, the members, and the young ladies accompanying them.

The spot of greatest interest was the improvised flower garden, which was separated from the mezzanine proper by means of a trellis, entwined with wild smilax.

A gazing crystal added to the ornamentation of the garden, and palms, floor baskets, and vases of flowers were used in every appropriate place. Pale green lights gave additional charm to the effect.

At one side of the garden was a table covered with fern designs, overlaid with tulle. Attached to the cover at one side were two large tulle bows holding bouquets of white carnations, the official flower of the organization, and between the bouquets was written "De Que".

Centering the table was a punch bowl, surrounded with white carnations, and four white candelabra gave a pretty lighting effect. Punch was served with white frosted cakes adorned with the words "De Que" in black.

In Ballroom

On the wall of the Matador ballroom just below the orchestra's balcony was a lighted emblem against a background of smilax with a footing of potted plants. Other floral decorations stressed the black and white color scheme, and orange flood lights were used.

Pledges Introduced

At 10:30 o'clock the president, Alvin Allison, introduced the nine pledges of the group and their lady friends.

Two orange-colored lights were thrown upon the couples as they were introduced. When the men's names were called the young ladies pinned a white carnation on their coats.

Pledges and their guests were as follows: Lennis Baker, Miss Pearlie Mae Marshall; Harold Bettersworth, Miss Veta Stafford; Van Earl Sams, Miss Mildred Price; Delwim Lindsey, Miss Grace Smith; Clayton Lawrence, Miss Wayne Atcheson; Harmon Jenkins, Miss Pauline Lane; Russell Biggs, Miss Margaret Hervey; Joe Bievens, Miss Johnnie Jo Whitley; Earl Turner, Miss Genevieve Decket.

Members of the club are Alvin R. Allison, president; Frank H. Stone, vice-president; Robert Patterson, secretary-treasurer; Eugene Adair, sergeant-at-arms; Alfred Adkisson, Clarence Hodges, Leland Mast, Charles Adams, J. W. Timmons, Raymond Best, Arthur Waghorne.

Young ladies accompanying them were Misses Felice Dockray, Charlotte Elms of Ralls, Fay Foote, Marguerite Raysor, Blanche Walker of Amarillo, Alice Keaton, Fannye Sue Dunn, Nancy Collier, Lou Allie Owens, Margaret Everheart, and Wilma Parks.

K. N. Clapp is sponsor for the group, and Bailey Carroll is faculty advisor.

It is said by those in the know that plenty of lace trimming will be worn this coming spring and summer, and that flowers will blossom in every buttonhole.

Plans Completed For Play To Be Given Monday

Mrs. White Directs First Tragedy Of Sea Staged By Members Of Lubbock Little Theater

Players of the Lubbock Little Theater have held final rehearsals and the stage at the high school auditorium has assumed a briny atmosphere in preparation for the production of "The Ship," a three act tragedy of the sea, by St. John G. Ervine which is to be presented tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

This is the second play to be presented by the organization this season and the first tragedy since the staging of Eugene O'Neill's "Beyond the Horizon."

Different in its respect to many of the productions, this is the first maritime play to be given by this group in its five years of activities.

Mrs. T. A. White makes her initial appearance as director of a local Little Theater play, the cast of which includes several players who have taken prominent parts in the past performances. Mrs. White is well known in dramatic circles and those who have watched rehearsals are high in their praise of her ability to direct.

Leading Role

The leading role in the play is taken by Mrs. W. C. Rylander who as Old Mrs. Thurlow plays the part of the "ship of life" and with her philosophy of living, undimmed by years, aids her people to continue the voyage ahead.

C. J. Atchison takes the role of John Thurlow, a shipbuilder. Next to his love for the Yard is his ambition for his son to succeed him as a master shipbuilder.

The role of Janet, Thurlow's wife, is played by Miss Willie Pearl Dockray. Miss Dockray makes her appearance in Little Theater plays at this time. She has taken part in a number of college plays and is a member of Alpha Psi Omega, honorary dramatic fraternity, at Texas Technological college.

Refreshments For Afternoon Parties Reflect Personality of Hostess

Ice cream and cake? Never!

Not that people no longer like ice cream, but they like it dressed up—dressed up enough to go by another name. For the smart afternoon party of today, the refreshment plate must carry a note of individuality—must be given some original touch by the hostess which will cause it to be remembered by the guests.

This is the belief of Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth, president of Las Chaparritas club, girls' social organization of Texas Technological college. "The refreshments," says Miss Ainsworth, "express the personality of the hostess, and they are occupying more attention than ever before."

Quite unique, yet substantial were the refreshments served by Miss Ainsworth, Miss Faye Hunt, and Mrs. Ed Allen at a party given recently for Las Chaparritas members. Vienna sausage was used to garnish scrambled eggs on toast which was served with fruit salad on a lettuce leaf, toasted cheese rolls fruit cake with whipped cream and coffee.

Unusual Salad Course

Of quite a different type were the refreshments served by Miss Elizabeth O'Connell when she entertained at bridge recently. A half of a pear placed on a lettuce leaf was made to resemble a face by placing cloves in appropriate places for the eyes and nose, and using a bit of pimento for a tiny red mouth. A little lighted candle placed in one corner of the mouth resembled a cigarette, while a mayonnaise hat gave the finishing touch. This was served with cottage cheese sandwiches, hot tea, potato chips, and individual angel food squares.

Recipes As Favors

Again originality was achieved by Mrs. J. H. Bryan and Mrs. Calvin Henson when they entertained for members of the 1916 Needle club. They served Zwieback pie, while the recipes for the pie, copied in dainty folders, were used as plate favors.

Mexican Dishes Popular

Mexican dishes have proved popular at a number of social functions this winter. Sometimes an entire Mexican course is served, while at other times a Mexican dish finds its place in a course of a more delicate nature.

The Mexican theme was emphasized in decorations and favors for a bridge party given by the Pan-Hellenic society recently, and at refreshment time, chili was served in nests of rice with candied apples tinted yellow, red, and orange, and stuffed with cheese fondant. Toasted cheese rolls, watermelon rings and coffee completed the course which was followed by green ice with wafers in a variety of colors. The tables were lighted with red and orange tapers during the refreshment hour.

Little Theater

where he was quite active in amateur theatricals for seven years, takes the part of Jack Thurlow, the son.

Hester, the daughter, is played by Miss Lillian Hopping, a senior at Tech college, while the roles of Captain Cornelius and George Norwood are taken by James L. Gordon and Lennis Baker, respectively. Both young men have appeared in Little Theater plays here and although cast in minor roles they do splendid bits of acting.

In Country House

The first act is laid in a room in John Thurlow's country house, near the shipbuilding town of Biggport. The period is in the immediate future.

When the curtain rises the elder Mrs. Thurlow, her daughter-in-law and the granddaughter are discussing John Thurlow and his love of shipbuilding which amount almost to a mania. He is to bring a model of "The Magnificent" when he returns home that evening. This ship, which is soon to be launched, will be the swiftest and most comfortable vessel in the world.

The son, Jack, returns from a three weeks' trip to Europe and tries to lead the women to an understanding of living a "natural life." He desires to purchase a farm and live there with a friend he had met during the World War. The father arrives with the model and in the midst of his pleasure at its appearance learns of his son's refusal to enter the Yard. He becomes very angry but the elder Mrs. Thurlow promises to stand by her grandson and give him money with which to purchase the farm.

Second Act

The second act is laid in the living-room of Jack Thurlow's farmhouse. The Thurlow family and George Norwood, the daughter's fiance, are coming to visit Jack and Captain Cornelius. The captain disillusioned because of his experiences in the war, drinks to excess in trying to forget his memories.

John Thurlow offers Jack's friend a large sum of money provided he causes the farm to fail since he thinks his son will return to the ship-yard if he makes a failure of his year of "a better way of living."

The captain refuses to make the agreement but says he will take half as much and leave the farm entirely in the hands of the son. Jack learns of the bargain and is quite embittered towards his father. Their misunderstanding grows as the second act draws to a close.

Three Months Later

The scene for the third act is identical with scene one but a period of three month's time has elapsed. The father is ill and has been forbidden by a specialist to travel on "The Magnificent" as she makes her maiden voyage two days later. He insists that a Thurlow must be aboard and asks his son to make the trip.

Forced against his will but feeling bound to go the son finally consents. The ship leaves on its maiden journey to America and three days out strikes an iceberg and sinks and the son is drowned.

The father realizes that the ship which he thought unsinkable is gone and a dream of a life-time lost and with it comes the realization that he has been responsible for the death of his son.

Unusually Lovely Accessories To Current Mode Now Occupy Attention

BY MME. LISBETH

Now that the silhouette is no longer the burning question—it having been settled—smart women are turning their attention to details of the current mode. Such matters as shoes, hats, gloves, jewels, etc., are being seriously considered.

Illustrated here are several high points in the present favorites, with special references to shoes. On the left is a smart pair of daytime shoes with the low-high heel and an intriguing leather combination. The low-high heel is considerably more chic than the stalwart Cuban, which used to spell utility. It is low enough for comfortable walking, yet its curves and entire shape make for grace. Suede and kid are used much together, and laced oxfords have neat ribbon bows. There are usually three eyelets, sometimes four.

Stockings are darker than those worn in summer, of course, but are invariably lighter than the shades of the shoes or slippers with which they are worn.

In the center figure an interesting velvet ensemble for dressy afternoon wear is shown. The coat of this ensemble has a re-inforced lining for warmth, and satin lining harmonizing with the satin bindings on the skirt of the frock and the white embroidery on the blouse. The material is transparent rayon velvet.

With this formal afternoon costume, we find one-strap suede slippers used. Their decorations are two shades of leather.

Other accessories worn with this suit are a soft hat worn slightly "off the brow," with flexible "ears." The three-strand pearl necklace is also a favorite just now.

On the right a new use of satin and gold kid for evening slippers is illustrated. The bright green satin of the slippers was chosen for contrast with the white chiffon of the gown. This brilliant color note is repeated in the emeralds worn for necklace and bracelets. Contrast is considered very good, but there must be uniformity in its use for accessories.

New Government Starts Off Right

MADRID, Feb. 1. (AP)—The new Spanish government under General Damaso Berenguer capped its first days work today by settling the strike of university students. It was this strike which gave the first inkling of the crisis which resulted in the downfall of Primo De Rivera.

The Duke of Alba, new minister of education, was given credit for the settlement. He adopted a conciliatory policy and ordered prison authorities to release student leaders detained by the dictatorship. He conferred with the university officials and announced that classes would be resumed next week in the National University of Madrid.

The new government also decided to pardon Antonio Maria Sbert a student leader who was long the storm center of the differences between Primo and the university men. Sbert led the Madrid student demonstrations against the dictatorship in the spring of 1929.

beauty of every woman has its inception from within. External beauty, she teaches, is but a means to an end—that end is attained when perfect poise and vivid personality form a combination that is classified as charming, magnetic or captivating. Only through health can such a combination be obtained. A part of Eve VeVerka's lectures are devoted to the health of women—how to obtain it and how to keep it.

Extensive Program Offered

In her lectures Eve VeVerka will cover nearly every subject that vexes the well-bred woman who is ambitious to attain personal charm, social success or popularity, a well-poised and intelligent individuality, or that elusive sobriquet of being the possessor of a radiant personality.

Her subjects will be taken from the following: personality, magnetism, poise, health, beauty, charm, friends, more money, harmony, relaxation.

All lectures will be delivered in the Uptown Dance Palace and will be absolutely free and without obligation through the courtesy of the women's department of the Avalanche-Journal.

Milady Beauty Shop

By accepting the scientific beauty culture practiced by this Beauty Shop.

We are indeed happy to have qualified in every respect with the demands stressed by Miss Eve Ve-Verka.

Miss Eve VeVerka not only demands scientific beauty cultures that comply with the health laws of nature, but sanitation and careful work upon the delicate tissues of the skin.

The loveliness of the hair is brought forth not by formality in beauty culture, but understanding the prevailing conditions as they are, and recognizing neglects that are caused by careless individuals.

Beauty culture contributes many of the most important essentials that give added loveliness and personality to the individual. States Miss Eve VeVerka.

The moving of our Beauty parlor was for two reasons, the expansion of this shop and the addition of equipment demands a building with twice the floor area.

The WOMAN'S DAY

"Women remain childish to please men, and the men retaliate because they think that women are not capable of more meaty thought or conversation," according to Doris Fleischman in the current Ladies Home Journal.

Often it would appear that the crime of all crimes is to get old—that is, to look old. And there are those who would make us think it is pure perverseness to do so.

"Keep Young" is a slogan that is constantly dinned into us women. Watch that complexion. Fight the wrinkles. Keep away those gray hairs. Preserve the chin line. Keep your flapper figure, etc., etc.

It's positively no wonder that any woman who has passed her 29th birthday begins to feel like a 1904 motor car, and to wonder if any known agency can make her look like a this year's model.

And naturally, if it is such a crime to show age physically, why not be equally on guard against betraying tny evidences of mental age? If we must look like sub-debs, why should we converse like sages?

I suppose that ever since the first man said to the first woman, "Now don't trouble your pretty head about that," the beautiful but dumb tradition has held.

CHILDISH ADULTS

Now naturally men like youth—so do grandmothers. No one could ever deny its wonder or its loveliness. But only a short sighted woman believes that you can look 18 for two decades after you have passed the mark.

I do think many of us deceive ourselves more about being and looking young than we do anyone else. I think most women of today do act childish, that they are childish, and that they ought to grow up.

I'm willing to concede all that Miss Fleischman says, but I take exception to the implied meatiness of the average man's conversation.

I'm unwilling to agree that he is much more scintillating than his wife, or his sister. Many of them look quite helpless and struggle into painful silence when they start to talk about anything but business or their own particular line of work.

And a good meaty conversation about the grain industry or the selling of ladies' ready-to-wear garments, has, to say the least, only a limited appeal and a debatable social interest.

A LOST ART

The age we live in is not conducive to brilliant conversation or to maturity of thought. We have little time to observe life for ourselves, because someone always is telling us what to see, to read, and to hear, and how to react to it all.

In the average home, the members of the family do not converse much. They listen together to the radio, eat together, go places and do things together, but they seldom spend evening together just discussing the problems of the universe.

Conversation is an art—a very highly developed art, one that flowers in an atmosphere of leisure, among those intensely interested in the arts or in causes, or in student days. Being articulate and exact is not a casual accomplishment.

If you want to know how badly most of us express ourselves, just withdraw from the conversation around you at your next party, and listen instead. Or tune in on what is broadcast in railway trains, among shoppers, or between acts at the theater. You'll find that there isn't much meaty conversation being used this season.

There are head-hunters in Burma, Siam, New Guiana, Africa, Borneo and many other places in the world. The practice survived in England as late as the middle ages.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

BY MADAME RUBINSTEIN

The proper kind of respiration must be part of your regime to combat age. And for respiration we have learned much from the Hindu Yogis, who have studied the subject for hundreds of years, and who do wonderful things with breathing. The Yogis believe that the air contains a substance which they call "Prana," which acts as a marvelous elixir of youth, a revitalizing force. The Yogis have reached such a mastery in their methods of filling the body with air that they can inhale enough at a time to sustain life for several days.

The Yogis say there are three kinds of breathing: deep breathing, mid breathing and upper breathing. Mid breathing and upper breathing are about equally bad. Deep breathing is the best. It comes from the diaphragm, and is also called diaphragmatic breathing. But not one of these breathings is complete by itself. You must have what they call the complete breath, a combination of all three.

The complete breath is done in this way. It is best to take it when you are lying in bed in the morning, or stretched out on the floor. Begin by pushing the stomach out as you breathe in, then pull the breath up through the ribs and finally draw it still further up until it has filled the lungs wholly. Begin by taking only one or two complete breaths at first, but increase gradually though very slowly, from week to week, until you have taken, each morning, as many as you have time for.

Also stop during the day, especially when you are in the fresh air, and take a few complete breaths frequently. A good way to make sure that you have filled your lungs fully is to raise your shoulders slightly, so that the upper corners of the lungs feel free.

"Youth rides on the breath" when you breathe deeply and correctly—or, rather, completely. For air is the first essential of life. Man may live weeks without food, days without water, but only a few moments without air.

Wear your waistline where it is most becoming and you will be smart.

Blackface Comedy Is To Run Gauntlet In Kiwanis Minstrel, "The Jollies Of 1930" To Be Given Thursday-Friday

FIRST NIGHTERS will get a chance to see blackface comedy in all its phases Thursday night of this week when members of the Lubbock Kiwanis club will present their 1930 minstrel, "The Jollies of 1830." The show will also be given on Friday night.

With Lubbock business and professional men holding important roles in a program filled with only mirth and comedy and 16 beautiful co-eds of Texas Technological college furnishing the pulchritude in a beauty chorus, those witnessing the performances are certain to receive their money's worth, peeks into the rehearsal room at the Lubbock hotel each night during the past week indicate. And from reports of the ticket sales groups, upwards to eight or nine hundred will see the show.

Mullican is "Head Man"

Judge Clark M. Mullican, president of the club, is to throw aside his legal attitude for the evening and preside over the program as interlocutor for the blackface group which is said to be the cleverest home-talent assortment ever to appear in Lubbock. G. C. Jenkins, R. L. Ellison, H. A. Wellmaker, F. A. Kleinschmidt, R. L. McKnight, Edgar Shelton, Vaughn Wilson and Tom Garrard comprise the list of front row and end men while George Meiser, Harry Blocker and the Kiwanis quartette, the names of which are being kept secret, are balladists in the show.

Tech co-eds who are to appear in the beauty show under the direction of Miss Zella Reigel, physical education instructor, are: Misses Rawls Long, Margaret Rayzor, Edna Kane, Francis Gunn, Mary Beth Sheely, Melba Mae Tatum, Louise Garrison, Margaret Boskin, Evelyn Rutherford, Dorothy Wilson, Mary Francis Gale, Alice Green, Marion Meriwether, Ruth Little, and Louise Pressgrove.

Comedy is Varied

Chris Ming of Houston, director and producer of the show declares that the program will offer everything that could be asked in a musical show. Tap dancing, jigging, vocal selections (terrible and awful), comedy skits and other features are being rehearsed nightly by the cast of the show. Besides the regular comedians and the chorus girls, some thirty or more members of the club are to comprise the second and third rows of the show as white minstrels lending their voices in the ensemble numbers and taking part in other phases of the program.

The show will open with the regular old-time minstrel gathering to be followed by special numbers and climaxed by a musical comedy and grand finale.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have been reading your letters every night and I would like you to advise me what to do. I am a girl of 15. I have been going with a boy about four or five months and he has asked me to marry him. He has promised to give up all bad habits for me. I think we can live together and be happy. My mother has given her consent.

"Do you think he has proposed too soon, or that I am too yung? My boy friend is 22 years old, and he seems very much in love with me.

I think you are altogether too young, dear, and cannot see how your mother can have consented to your marriage. A girl of 15 is not physically developed to marry.

And another thing, better let the boy friend get rid of his bad habits before you marry him. Those promises to quiet down if the girl friend will marry a man are usually "applesauce."

LONESOME AND BLUE: Boys of 19 and 20 are not usualy interested in girls of 16, my dear. The only way to attract them is to find out what interests them most and post yourself on those things. Friendliness usually calls out friendliness in others. Lonesome. Persevere and try to like people sincerely, and I am sure you will win the friends you crave.

LARRY: Why not ask the girl outright what is the matter, Larry, and insist upon knowing? Tell her you don't want to force your attentions on her, and if she is through with you, it is all right with you. You can get along without her. Best to know just how matters stand, isn't it?

NINA JEAN: Your boy friend is too young to be serious with girls, and naturally likes to go with a girl who is allowed to get out. Seems to me, from your letter, that you are altogether too frank in telling him how you love him. Let the boys do that. It is their privilege and they seem to prefer it that way. Don't bill and coo a lot, either. You'll feel silly in a year or so when you no longer care for him. That's not telling you your affection is puppy love," is it?

ORPHAN GIRL: Tell your boy friend that his love is not worth much if he doesn't have faith in you. And if he had faith he wouldn't be jealous. And enjoy the love of your friend without agonizing about "bringing his love closer" to you.

"DEAR LIVING AND LOVING: We are two bachelor school teachers, ages 32 and 35, who have been teaching for eight and ten years, respectively. We have had our fling and are now ready to settle down. We have fallen in love with two high school boys who are our pupils, but we wonder if we could hold their love through the years to come.

"We are both good looking and young for our ages, and we are sure we would make them good wives. Please advise us.

"DICKIE AND DUCKIE."

Are you spoofing, girls? It would be in much better taste and with much more likelihood of happiness for both you and the boys for you to adopt them than to marry them. You would probably have to support them anyhow, as few high school boys are able to support wives, and they should go to college, anyhow. Why not pick on men your own age, if you are ready to settle down? Don't want to be dubbed "cradle snatchers," do you?

TINY: I either answered your letter or one very similar a short time ago, Tiny. I wonder why your boy friend is so determined never to marry? He has no reason to be jealous if, after being attentive to you for some months, he neglects you for several more. It is a heartbreaking situation for you as you care for him, and the best thing would be to make up your mind you will not give up your other friends for him, but will discourage him when he comes back. It is very unfair of him to want you all to himself and to be so affectionate and lovable when he has no intention of being anything but a friend, and a somewhat elusive friend at that.

LONESOME AND DISGUSTED: Don't leave home unless you have to, dear. Forget your troubles by cultivating the art of conversation. If you are interested in other people and show it and try to learn about them you will make friends and forget to be quiet. Many people like others who are quiet, especially if they are responsive.

Your sister can't fight all by herself, so just refuse to have any arguments with her. She is just self-centered, interested only in her own boy friends and their affairs.

LONESOME RO: Worrying won't bring the boy friend back, dear, and makes you look "terrible," as you say, so why worry? I think he was silly to act the way he did, and that you have a right to be angry with him and expect him to apologize, unless you flirted with the other boy to make your boy friend jealous. In that case you owe him an apology.

LONESOME LITTLE EL: As long as you are willing to play doormat the boy friend will walk on you, El. He's apparently that kind of a chap. Suppose you fool him and purposely go away when he expects you to be at home. And don't fret if it makes him mad. If he can't see the justice of your actions, he isn't the boy to make you happy.

FRIENDS IN DISTRESS: Your friends are too young to marry, dear, and should not be encouraged. The boy would have to be 21 and the girl 18 to wed without their guardians' consent. Tell them to try to be patient until they are a little older.

Famous Violin Is Used By Zimbalist In Concert Work

Efrem Zimbalist has more violins than any other virtuoso in the world, his collection including the famous "Lamoureux" Stradivarius. The artist who appears at Texas Tech on Tuesday February 4th uses them all, taking them "out for exercise" in regular turn so as to keep them in "singing and in good voice". Likewise, he varies his instruments in concert, according to his program and the fitness of the various violins at the moment.

Pet Fiddle Returned

Last summer one of his pet fiddles, stolen over a year before, was returned to the violinist at his summer home in the hills, near New Hartford today, after traveling 50,000 miles.

The violin is a Lorenzo Guadagnini, one of the rarest of the 18th century Cremonas. Similar ones have been bought for $25,000 by collectors.

Zimbalist's Guadagnini was taken from his dressing room in a Los Angeles concert hall. Soon after, a musician offered it for sale to the Chicago representative of Rudolph Wurlitzer, the collector of old violins from whom Zimbalist bought his pet one. The police were called.

News Cabled Him

The glad news was cabled to Zimbalist. He was then in Australia on tour. He asked his wife, Alma Gluck, who was about to leave New York to join him, to pick up his violin at Chicago. But the Los Angeles authorities wanted it for evidence and when Alma Gluck reached Chicago the violin was on its way west again.

Mrs. Zimbalist sailed for Australia leaving instructions to forward the fiddle when the law was through with it. This was done in due course.

Didn't Reach Him

It was thought that it would reach him in Sydney, Australia, but the guess was wrong. Zimbalist had left by the time his violin arrived. After cable consultation and custom house red tape it was shipped to Tokio. Here it missed him again and was sent on to Singapore. Again it missed. And so it continued on its journey to Shanghai, Hongkong, Manila, Calcutta, Bombay, Madras.

They always missed connections. At last word was received that Zimbalist was returning to Australia for a few more concerts. Surely they would make connections there. The violin was shipped post haste to Sydney again. But the Australian return concerts did not include one at Sydney. Thus Zimbalist continued to Europe—and, fearing the possible loss of the violin if it did any more independent traveling, it was ordered back to the United States.

So back from Australia the violin was shipped, then to Chicago and then to New York. Its owner beat it back by some weeks.

Finally last August the violin, in a case covered with more labels than a Cook's tourist's trunk, was delivered to its delighted owner.

Lamb Is Unique
Dawson County Freak Is Born

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

A. H. Merrick, Dawson county farmer, today displayed the talents of his flock of sheep, when he exhibited a six-legged lamb born on his farm three days ago. The lamb was natural in all respects except on the right side was a third pair of limbs with the pedal extremeties pointing the wrong way.

"He was dead when I found him, but I wish he could have lived so I could see which way he was going to walk," Merrick said, when he brought the unfortunate wool manufacturer to Lamesa.

Wide Variety Of Pictures Offered In Lubbock This Week

Newspaper Story Palace Offering Beginning Today

"Big News" Filled With Action And Furious Thrills

THE inner sanctum of a big newspaper plant, the fascinating locale of "Big News," a new Pathe all dialogue picture which will be the feature attraction at the Palace Theatre starting today.

On the efforts of the paper to land a story hitting at the activities of a liquor and narcotic ring is hinged rapid fire action in which thrills are said to be fast and furious.

Cast Is Strong

Robert Armstrong, stage and screen favorite, will be seen in the leading role of "Big News," with Carol Lombard playing opposite him. Others who fill important characterizations in this exciting drama are Sam Hardy, villian de luxe of many recent pictures, Warner Richmond, Herbert Clark, late juvenile leading man of the New York stage, Cupid Ainsworth, plump favorite of vaudeville, Tom Kennedy, Louis Payne, Wade Boteler and Charles Sellon.

Gregory La Cava, who directed many of Richard Dix's most successful pictures, handed the megaphone on "Big News," which was adapted for the screen by Jack Jungmeyer and Walter De Leon from "For Two Cents," a stage play by George Brooks."

"Four Feathers" Lindsey Feature Beginning Today

Richard Arlen, Fay Wray And Clive Brook Star

MORE THAN 60,000 feet of film were exposed in order to record the thrilling scenes that comprise the African portion of "The Four Feathers," one of Paramount's chief bids for motion picture supremacy during 1928-29.

A year of the most dangerous and painstaking sort of effort was spent in capturing this part of the screen version of A. E. W. Mason's famous novel by Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack, who also have offered the motion picture, through Paramount, "Grass" and "Chang."

Animals In Film

Thousands of Fuzzy-Wuzzys, rulers of the Red Sea Hills of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, as well as hundreds of wild animals, appeared before the camera during the making of the location of Mason's "British bible of courage."

Included among the featured players in this production are Richard Arlen, Fay Wray, Clive Brook, William Powell, Theodor von Eltz, Noah Beery, George Fawcett, Noble Johnson and E. J. Ratcliffe. "The Four Feathers," comes to the Lindsey Theater for a four-day run beginning today.

The U. S. Bureau of Standards estimates that the earth weighs six sextillion (6,000,000,000,000,000,000) tons.

EXCITEMENT SUBSIDES

TYLER, Feb. 1. (AP)—Excitement caused by the Van oil field's first real gusher subsided tonight after the Pure Oil company's Maugers number one, located one and a half miles north of Van on the Maugers farm, was brought under control and was mudded down. The well came in without warning at 2,700 feet and was controlled with difficulty.

Three Outstanding Movie Players To Appear At Lindsey

All-Talkie "Behind The Make-Up" To Show Thursday

THREE outstanding moving picture players will appear on the Lindsey screen when "Behind the Make-Up," Paramount's new all-talking drama, with Hal Skelly, William Powell and Fay Wray, opens its three-day engagement here on Thursday next.

"Behind the Make-Up" is a strange story of two vaudeville performers, one a great artist with a dominating personality, the other a clever comedian with an inferiority complex. The artist, played by Powell, pushes himself to the fore in all the pair undertake. When the applause is heavy, Powell takes the bows; when there is a question of routine, Powell decides it; when the comedian, Skelly, falls in love with a girl, Powell steps in and takes her away.

Love Conquers All

Yet Skelly loves Powell; gives up everything for him, even the girl. As they rise to fame, Powell's name is outstanding, Skelly is a lesser light. Then Powell dies. Skelly, left on his own, is helpless at first. The girl, Fay Wray, is broken-hearted. It seems that neither of them can go on without Powell to direct them. When they finally break the spell of his personality, Skelly finds that he is a great performer himself and Fay Wray finds that she really loves the comedian, although the magnificence of Powell still holds her.

"Behind the Make-Up" was adapted from the popular story by Mildred Cram, which won a wide reading in the magazines. The drama is the central theme and is acted against an ever-changing background of scenes, backstage and front, qualit old New Orleans and brightlight New York. Some excellent shots show the making of a sound moving picture.

Stage Production On Palace Screen Starting Tuesday

'This Thing Called Love' Story of Modern Life

THE SUCCESS "This Thing Called Love" attained on the speaking stage should insure a brilliant success for this smart Pathe comedy in dialogue picture form which comes to the Palace on Tuesday next. Edmund Lowe and Constance Bennett are featured.

As a stage play it was one of the season's big successes. The amazing situation that have been worked out in this picture by the author, centering on the idea of a modern marriage in which the wife stipulates that she is to receive a salary and that neither wife nor husband is to be denied other lovers, provide a great deal of entertainment and much amusement.

Cast Brilliant

Constance Bennett and Edmund Lowe head a brilliant cast. Miss Bennett plays the part of the wife Lowe, as the husband who has just come from Peru where he spent 15 years in mining ventures, is seeking a real home, but accepts this arrangement believing that he can arouse his wife's jealousy and win her over to the good old fashioned idea of married life.

Others in the cast include Zazu Pitts, Roscoe Karns, Ruth Taylor, Stuart Erwin and Carmelita Geraghty.

"Red Hot Rhythm" On Program This Week At Palace

Kathryn Crawford, Alan Hale To Be Seen In Film

FIVE NEW classics of melody and one riotous comedy song are introduced to the public for the first time in "Red Hot Rhythm," Pathe's new syncopation special featuring Alan Hale, which will be on view at the Palace Theatre on Friday next.

The songs, music and lyrics which were written by that well known team, Walter O'Keefe and Bobby Dolan are "Red Hot Rhythm," "At Last I'm in Love," "Out of the Past," "When You're a Part of Me," "My Idea of Heaven" and "The Night that Elmer Died."

The last named, a mirth-ballad of unequalled calibre, is sung by Ilka Chase, stage and screen comedienne, while the remainder are sung by either Walter O'Keefe or Kathryn Crawford. This little musical comedy and screen favorite is particularly fetching in "My Idea of Heaven," a song and dance number in which she is supported by a bevy of 50 beautiful chorus girls.

"Red Hot Rhythm" is an original story by Leo McCarey, who also directed, and William Conselman who supervised its production. Dialogue of a particularly snappy order was contributed by Earl Baldwin and Walter De Leon.

Beet Company to Plan Beet Farms

AMARILLO, Feb. 1. (AP)—The American Beet Sugar company of Denver expects to cooperate in experiments in irrigation projects for raising sugar beets along the proposed Amarillo-Las Animas line of the Santa Fe railway in order to enlarge its source of supply of beets and also the sale of its by-products including beet pulp, to farmers and stockmen in southern and south western Colorado.

This statement was made by Elisha Gee, vice-president of the company, who came to Amarillo as a witness in the proposed Santa Fe construction program hearing.

"Our company is interested in development of an irrigation project known as the Mutual Smith project near the proposed Santa Fe line," he explained. "There is at present very little beet acreage south of the Arkansas river.

"Of course we will follow and assist in experiments in beet raising all along the line, so far south as is practical. We want to increase our source of supply."

HAS 'DISTINCTIONS'

Midland Has No Free Mail Delivery And Postcards

MIDLAND, Feb. 1. (AP)—Midland has two "distinctions" believed to put it in a class by itself.

It is one of the largest cities in the country without free postal delivery, and it is the largest city, tourists say, to have no colored post cards for sale.

Both handicaps will be removed. Sidewalks being built will insure the postal delivery, while the chamber of commerce has arranged photographs of Midland scenes for postal cards.

CHICKS TAKE TO AIR

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 1. (AP)—Three hundred and fifty baby chickens consigned to a poultry establishment here made the trip from Brownsville, Texas, in a Pan-American Airways passenger plane. The chicks suffered no ill effects from the 4 1-2 hour ride.

Turns Of A Bookworm

Book News Notes For This Week

Two Attacks

NOT EVERYONE is satisfied with our modern American civilization. Two extremely bitter protests are now on sale: "Our Business Civilization," by James Truslow Adams, Albert and Charles Boni; $3), and "This Ugly Civilization," by Ralph Borsodi (Simon and Schuster; $3).

Mr. Adams, surveying the American scene, finds it badly out of joint. We are, in truth, a nation of dollar chasers, he says. We have no culture, our spiritual values have been submerged marterial prosperity is our only goal. It is high time that we adopted a new and finer scale of values; but Mr. Adams does not seem to have much confidence that we will.

Mr Borsodi blames all of our troubles on our factories. We have a factory civilization, he says, and it is supremely ugly; therefore the only thing we can do is abolish most of our factories.

Mr. Borsodi is serious about it. Let each citizen, he says, install in his own home all the modern machinery he can lay hands on; then let him grind his own flour, weave his own cloth, can his own vegetables and, in short, make, himself, nearly all of the things that he now buys ready-made.

Such a procedure looks appalling. But Mr. Borsodi thinks that if the same care were taken to devise compact one-man-run machines for the home (which is now taken to devise them for the factory, the job could be done quite easily—and we would all be much happier.

You'll probably disagree with both of these writers. You'll find their books stimulating, just the same, even if you run out of [illegible] worth examining at all.

Story of Magazines

"A History of American Magazines" [illegible] written by Frank Luther Mott. It reveals [illegible] as a biographer's "occupational psychosis" station in the field of literature. As far back as 1708 the Philadelphia Monthly had run a serial biography of Washington.

The most familiar magazine of the period covered in Mott's book was, perhaps Godey's Lady Book, which constituted a history of manners, taste and costume.

It passed out in 1898, after a successful hat manufacturer—an early New York "angel" named Sibel—had sunk a fortune trying to resuscitate it.

Tours U. S.

Bertrand Russell, the great English philosopher, has sailed for England after a lecture tour that took him into every section of the country. Before he left he debated with John Cowper Powys, taking the affirmative side of the question that Modern Marriage is a failure. Heywood Broun was chairman of the debate. Also before Mr. Russell left he signed a contract with Horace Liveright for two more books. Marriage and Morals has now gone into three large editions.

Brain's History

The development of the human brain, the organ of the mind, is discussed by Dr. Frederick Tilney in "The Master of Destiny."

He takes the reader back 50,000,000 years to the human brain's beginning, which he thinks was some time "long before there were any apes." He traces the brain's evolution through the prehistoric men and warns that modern civilized races are squarely facing the problem of extinction, like that of their ancestors, unless they find a better way to develop their thinking organs.

He believes that instead of being perfect, the human brain is probably only about half-developed and suggests knowledge can be improved by, 1, the abolition of war; 2, recognition of evolution, and 3, abolition of "success" as the highest goal, substituting for it "mastery of self."

Two Crimes

"The Lost Child" by Rahel Sanzara is a powerful narrative with deep psychological preception. "The Maurizius Case" by Jacob Wasserman is a slower moving story, but likewise one of psychological probing and furthermore of exhaustive characterization.

Reminiscent of a Russian tragedy, "The Lost Child" concerns the dolesome effects of the disappearance of [illegible] Anna Scheffel on relatives and friends and chiefly upon Fritz, [illegible] brother and murderer. Obsessed in violence, Fritz apparently inherited some inner force that caused him to kill the girl without losing the cheerful docility of a simple peasant.

"The Maurizius Case" is not a mystery tale but a study of justice and of repressed, inhibited passions of Germany. The son of a stern, inexorable prosecutor rebels against discipline to settle for himself the conflict between what is law and what is right and to obtain justice for an innocent weakling convicted of killing his wife.

Both are forceful novels of tragedy among the Europeans.

"Oregon Detour" Treats Small Town, Farms And People Who Live There With Understanding And Sympathy

WHEN an American novelist undertakes to write a story about people who live on farms or in a farming community he generally begins by soaking a bandage in some soothing liniment and binding it carefully across his eyes in order that the dreadful sights that he is about to gaze upon will not harrow his soul too greatly.

The novelist, in other words, "writes down" on this subject. He can imagine no fate more dreadful than life close to the soil. So all of his characters are either sensitive folk who are condemned, by a cruel fate, to waste their lives in the soul-killing drudgery of the farmland, or brutish clods who don't even know that their lives are sodden and wretched.

Escaped Attitude

When Nard Jones sat down to write "Oregon Detour," however, he was able to escape from this attitude. He had the good sense to see that there are compensations to an existence that takes its roots in the open fields, that concerns itself with growing wheat and ripening fruit and waving corn. He is not condescending toward the people he writes about. He does not think that their tragedies are altogether due to the fact that they do not live in great cities.

In brief, he writes of them with understanding and sympathy—and, be it added, with a good deal of genuine ability. The result is that "Oregon Detour" is a good book. It recounts the tangled life stories of half a dozen people in a small town in the Oregon wheat belt, and it makes it plain that these people are where they are because they want to be there. They are nourished by their contact with the earth. Their lives are hard and, in some ways, limited; but they are dauntless and uncomplaining.

All in all, "Oregon Detour" is worth your while. It is issued by Brewer and Warren, inc.

Shelia Kaye-Smith Has Alluring Book

"Three Against The World" Is Of Old England

SHEER beauty should not be analyzed. And the foremost characteristic of Sheila Kaye-Smith's "Three Against the World," is just beauty. . . but a two-fold one: of picture and of feeling.

Her knowledge of the English countryside and its people has been proved repeatedly. Her ability to put that knowledge into words that hold and haunt has also been proved, but never, I think, more effectively than in this new book of hers. To read "Three Against the World," is to live in that softly alluring corner of the old island where meet the fields of three counties, Surrey, Kent, and Sussex, and to see it with her eyes, so much clearer and more penetrating than our own. Unlike many other novelists, she does not spread out her descriptions of that nature to fill pages with print and our minds with boredom.

Brothers Main Figures

The main figures of her story are two brothers, Leonard and Nigel Furlonger, and their sister, Janet. The story starts with the return of Nigel, the younger, from a three-year term in prison, earned not because there was anything of the criminal in him, but because he was innocent and trustful and ambitious, and thus could be made the victim of men less scrupulous than himself. From his state of mind much is to be gathered about what prisons do to men, whether they belong in them or not. But this is almost beside the case. That experience of Nigel's merely serves to set a hostile world in motion against a family which, on account of its aloofness and self-sufficiency, has never been popular. And this hostility on the part of a world that will not understand serves in its turn to knit more closely the natural ties between those three.

Encounter Love

Subsequently we encounter the love between Janet and Quentin Lowe as well as the timid, groping, unselfconscious love of Nigel for little Tony Strife. But far above these two loves rises that which binds Janet and Nigel and Leonard together. Let me add right here, however, that there is nothing Freudian about this greater love. In fact, I hesitate to call it love, this word being used in so many bewildering ways, and so frequently abused. What holds those three together is an absolutely clean and normal and wholesome devotion that knows of no other desire but to make the other two happy, or to spare them pain. It is in the picturing of this devotion, without a single false touch, without any suggestion of sickly sentimentality, that the author rises to her highest levels. And it is the quiet, soul-satisfying beauty of this devotion that makes us almost forget how full of heart-wringing pathos the story is when viewed in its entirety.

"THREE AGAINST THE WORLD," by Sheila Kaye-Smith. E. P. Dutton & Co., Price, $2.50.

Farmers Must Be Members In Order To Receive Aid

Payne Says Federal Action Is Only To Cooperatives; Individual Farmer Cannot Secure Loans

Several farmers who are not members of a cooperative marketing organization are of the opinion that they can obtain the benefits derived under the operation of the Federal Farm Board, according to a statement made Saturday by N. H. Payne, field representative of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association.

"Following the meeting in Dallas," said Mr. Payne, "the impression obtains in the minds of some cotton farmers that they do not need to belong to a cooperative group. Several have come to me desiring to take advantage of the Farm Board's help in financing their cotton.

Must Be a Member.

"While modifications were made in by-laws of the Farm Bureau Cotton association, in changing it to the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, in accordance with the purpose and aim of the Farm Board anybody and everybody must be a member of some cooperative organization recognized by the board, before any assistance can be given.

"It is not the intent to loan money to individuals, but to organizations sufficiently large that they can handle many thousands of bales of cotton. Otherwise there could be no hope of accomplishing orderliness of marketing."

APPLICATION DENIED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today declined to postpone or transfer to Michigan a hearing set for Dallas, Tex., Feb. 8, in which beans was one of the commodities to be considered as to rate making. Michigan bean growers had asked a change of location or a later date.

The Only Hope Possible To Improve Quality Of Cotton On South Plains Is Through Cooperative Marketing

"Hog-Round" Basis Of Sale Will Prevail Unless Paid On Class And Staple, Says R. E. Overstreet

"There is no reason why we can not have a central marketing center for the South Plains region at Lubbock, if the people of this section who are interested will get behind the new cotton cooperative set-up," is the statement of R. E. Overstreet, state director of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, upon his return from Dallas.

"I think there were many wonderful changes made," Mr. Overstreet continues, "and lots of headway accomplished for cooperative marketing."

Changes Were Logical.

In speaking of the decision to modify by-laws and constitution of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, in forming the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, and in changing the name of the former, Mr. Overstreet stated that these things were logical and necessary and gave the cooperative a greater scope.

In changing the name of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association, much misunderstanding and conflict between action and purposes of the cotton marketing group and the Texas Farm Bureau Federation will be eliminated, is Mr. Overstreet's opinion, if a sufficient number of members join to give this section at least 100,000 bales of cotton to handle. With this number a distinct unit would be formed on the South Plains and all settlements made in Lubbock, instead of in Dallas. All financing would be through Lubbock banks and dealings of the association would be directly with the Farm Board.

December Prices To Texas Farmers Better Than Those Of Whole Nation

Prices to Texas farmers in December were nine per cent above those received by farmers of the nation as a whole according to Dr. J. O. Ellsworth, head of the department of agricultural economics at the Texas Technological college. Farm prices were 144 per cent of the pre war level compared to United States farm prices of 138 per cent.

The favorable position is accounted for by the relative importance of the prices of cotton and beef, both of which are higher in price than many other farm products. "The favorable position of Texas farmers considers price only and does not help the farmer who had a low crop yield, or has no livestock to sell," says Ellsworth.

Comparison Is Made.

The average farm price of 144 per cent in December to Texas farmers compares to 152 per cent in November and to 159 per cent in December, 1928. The relatively low position in December, 1929, was largely because of the drop in the price of cotton from 17 cents in October and 16 cents in December. The price of cotton was 18 cents in December, 1928.

Other commodities which show a lower price compared to December, 1928, are beef, veal, sheep, cows, horses, chickens, turkeys, milk, butter, cotton seed and wheat.

Commodities showing an increase in the 12 months include hogs, eggs, corn, potatoes and hay.

Carnegie Institute May Sponsor Conference At Tech

Dallas Conference May Be Removed To Lubbock Soon

Banner Attendance Expected At West Texas Historical Meet To Be Held Here In April; Interest Is High

POSSIBILITY that the annual Texas Technological college conference on International Relations, set for April 4 and 5, may be augmented by a regional conference of the same nature sponsored by the Carnegie Institute, was being discussed this week by interested persons at the college here.

Invitation on the part of the Carnegie Institute to move the Lubbock conference to Dallas has been received but was rejected on the ground that the program set for Lubbock is an annual affair in which a number of West Texas schools and organizations are participating. Upon rejection of the invitation the Carnegie Institute replied that it might be possible for its regional session to be transferred from Lubbock to Dallas and merged with the meeting here.

Program Undecided

Awaiting decision of the Carnegie people in the matter, nothing is yet being done here toward preparing a program of the conference in April.

The program for the West Texas Historical Association which holds the sixth annual meeting at the college on April 5, has not been completed but a temporary one has been announced as follows.

Judge R. C. Crane, of Sweetwater, will give the history of the organization of Fisher county. Roy Holt, superintendent of schools at Eldorado, will discuss the Fence Cutting War. Professor L. F. Sheffy of the West Texas State Teachers college, of Canyon, an authority on many matters of history in West Texas, will read a paper.

Abilene Man To Be Here

Judge Fred Cockrell of Abilene, will deliver an address on the political campaign of 1892 in West Texas. Dr. P. C. Coleman, of Colorado, who practiced medicine in the early days when he had to cover a territory of 150 miles radius, will also tell some of his experiences.

Colonel R. P. Smythe of Plainview, who helped lay out and organize Hale county, and who is called the father of Plainview, is on the program. Judge R. A. Kinder, also of Plainview is on the list of speakers. Judge Kinder was district attorney of a territory in 1888-1890 that reached from Baylor county to the New Mexico line and for a similar distance north and south.

Dr. John C. Granbery, head of the Texas Tech history department, and Dr. W. C. Holden, a member of the same faculty are expecting a record attendance because of the local interest in the program. Dr. Holden, who has been very active in the planning of the program, announced that several other "old timers" will be asked to speak.

Dr. W. A. Jackson, head of the department of government at the college, is in charge of the International Relations conference.

Mr. Average Farmer:

You have a farm plant worth, say, $20,000 on the open market and with a $10,000 mortgage against it. You have five years in which to pay the mortgage and IF YOU LIVE you will do it. It is being done all the time.

For an additional investment of about $100 per year the mortgage will be paid whether or not you live. This would be accomplished through the medium of a Five Year Term Policy. If you live, the mortgage will be paid out of your earnings. If you die, it will be paid from the proceeds of the policy.

For a further investment of about $400 per year, your wife would have a cash settlement of $2,000 to cover the expenses of your last illness and also a certain income of $100 per month for 20 years after you are gone.

That is to say, Mr. Average Farmer, that for an investment of about $500 per year you secure that your wife will not be burdened with the mortgage, she will have the ready cash that is so essential at your death and she will have a steady income for 20 years after you are no longer here to support her.

And, by the way, if you should become totally and permanently disabled, you would have no further premiums to pay and the insurance would continue in full force to maturity.

Tell us your age, the amount of your mortgage and the number of years it has to run and we will quote you exact figures to suit your individual case. No obligation on your part.

Sincerely yours,

Huge Bridge To Enrich West Coast; Golden Gate Span To Open Vast Wealth Of Redwood Highway "Empire"; Has Spread Of 4,100 Feet Over Waters Of The Bay

By NEA Service

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 1—Spanning San Francisco's famed Golden Gate and linking the city with seven counties, the recently begun Golden Gate Bridge is expected to materially increase the wealth of the Redwood Empire by further opening inland territory.

This bridge will be the largest suspension bridge in the world, it is said. From Fort Point, San Francisco, it will throw its central span 4100 feet or more to Lime Point, Marin county. Its single deck structure wil lbe strung on cables three feet thick 200 feet above tide level.

This engineering feat, one of the most gigantic ever undertaken in the United States, had its inception some 10 years ago. Hardy motorists who traveled the roads out of San Francisco up the mountains into the redwood districts came back with reports of a wonderful land that only needed good roads for development.

And so the Redwood Highway association was formed and from that nucleus of motorists sprang the foundation that pushed through that famous California highway which stretches from San Francisco, through the interior of California, up into Oregon.

Heavy Traffic Caused Bridge

The interior of California along this highway began to develop. And with this development traffic commenced to increase. Traffic over the highway and its connecting system of lateral and parallel roads grew to tremendous proportions and each of the eight counties north of San Francisco bay profited by it.

As this traffic grew, the necessity for a short cut across the bay was realized and a ferry boat organization was formed which did a rushing business. So rushing in fact that it pressed the company to take care of it.

Some idea of the extent of travel through this district may be gained from the traffic figures of this ferry company. A six month's survey of 1929 shows: May, 121,976 passengers; June 140,495; August, 157,705; September, 127,706; October, 99,384.

On top of this, figures compiled by the California Highway Commission reveal that the general average traffic increase over the northern portion of the Redwood Highway during the past 12 months has been 67 per cent, with a 212 per cent increase of out-of-state

Noted Engineers Build It

This large increase of traffic, and the fact that the ferries were hard pressed to accommodate it, was the basis for building the Golden Gate Bridge.

Such famous engineers and authorities as Joseph B. Strauss, Ralph Mojeski and Alfred Lilenthal have put their approval on the project and work has already been started under the direction of Strauss as chief bridge engineer.

Preliminary estimates set the cost of the bridge at $27,000,000, part of which will be collected in taxes and the remainder in tolls.

A three-cent tax has been levied. This assesment is to defray preliminary costs, including the test borings, which cost $29,940. Retirement of the bonds and all other expenses will be taken care of by the tolls.

Not Harmful in War

The foundations for the two towers, the exact location of which will be determined by the borings, will be set in approximately 48 feet of water on the San Francisco side and on the rocks slightly above tide level on the Marin county side.

The depth of the Golden Gate between Fort Point, San Francisco and Lime Point, Marin county where the engineers have fixed the bridge site, averages 300 feet. Because of this fact, coupled with the swift currents of the Golden Gate, army engineers agree that demolition of the bridge in time of war would not impede navigation.

After this bridge is opened—actual construction is expected to start within a year—the Redwood Empire, composed of the counties of San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma, Napa, Lake, Mendocino and Humboldt, in California, and Josephine in Oregon will benefit by a direct connection between San Francisco and Grants Pass, Ore., over the Redwood Highway. Markets will open up more and business in general is expected to benefit by this short cut across San Francisco bay.

Dickens County May Hold County Seat Election

Political Situation Turns Active In Section This Week; Seek To Move Seat From Dickens To Spur

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SPUR, Feb. 1. — Politics is the chief topic of discussion in Dickens county. The possibility of a county seat election being held this year is causing most of the talk. Dickens is and has been since the county was formed in 1891, the county seat, but Spur is the largest town in the county and is also the chief trading point. In past elections Spur advocates have been unable to muster the required majority to move the site of the county seat, but are more optimistic than ever this year.

The county commissioners' court has not taken any definite action either way. The present courthouse is inadequate and run down. A good many are of the opinion that a new courthouse must be built or extensive repairs made on the present one.

Bain Announces.

Judge Kenneth Bain of the 110th judicial district made his announcement this week seeking nomination as district judge. A. J. Folley also made his announcement to run for district prosecuting attorney. Judge Bain and Mr. Folley were appointed to these offices by Gov. Dan Moody when the district was created last year.

For county offices, several announcements have been made in the last month. O. C. Newberry, Afton county judge, is asking the nomination for a second term; Robt. Reynolds is seeking re-election as county and district clerk; J. R. Landers, Spur attorney, is canvassing for the office of county attorney; Mrs. C. C. Cobb is seeking re-election as county treasurer, and A. B. Hogan is seeking a second term as county assessor. No announcement has been made so far in regard to the sheriff's office but it is thought that O. E. Barber will try to succeed himself. Frank Speer, county school superintendent, has been in office four months. He has made no announcement as to his intentions.

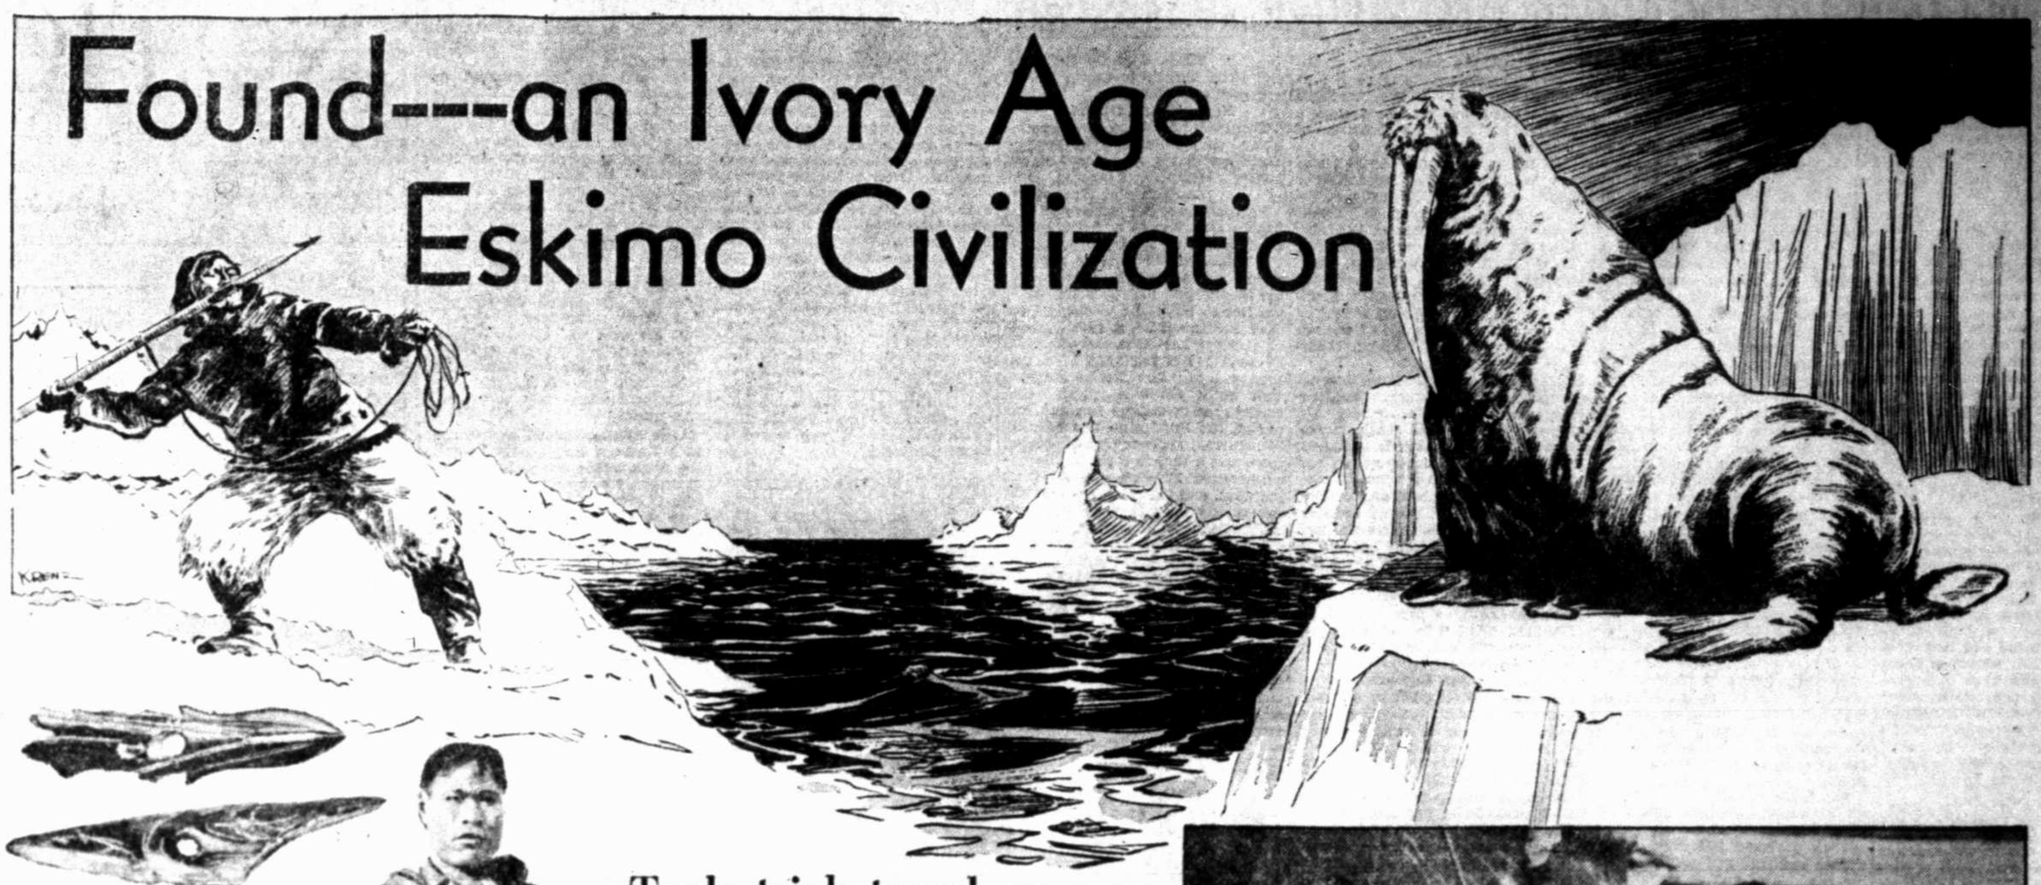
Found---an Ivory Age Eskimo Civilization



Which came first—the chicken or the egg . . . the walrus or these finely-carved harpoon heads of walrus tusk ivory? . . . For prehistoric Eskimos hunted the walrus to make spearheads of its tusks to hunt the walrus to make more spearheads.

Is he of the same race of a people of dead prehistoric people? . . . A present-day Eskimo holding a walrus tusk . . . similar to those which his artistic ancestors of prehistoric days made into beautiful tools.

Tools, trinkets and weapons carved out of walrus tusks give science a new clue to the mysterious migration of prehistoric people from Asia to America and give one more blow to the belief that man originated in the new world

A typical Eskimo family of the Kotzebue region in western Alaska . . . where the "Ivory Age" culture flourished and died . . . leaving just enough traces to provide science with its newest puzzle about antiquity.

Intricate, curved lines carved on this ivory slab . . . prove to science that prehistoric Eskimos were superior to their modern descendants. . . . Present-day Eskimo art is simple, straightlined.

By FRANK THONE

JUST below the Arctic Circle, on the bleak tundras of northwestern Alaska, flourished one of the New World's oldest and greatest cultures.

Buried under the frozen earth and heaps of accumulations are the remains of an "Ivory Age." Perhaps before or while the Mayas built their cities and temples in Central American jungles, expert craftsmen in the desolate polar wastes were fashioning, out of walrus tusks, tools, weapons and trinkets of exquisite beauty.

A leading discoverer of this unique ivory culture is Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of physical anthropology at the National Museum in Washington. He has just returned from Alaska, bringing a large additional collection of the handiwork of this ancient people whose artistry arouses the enthusiasm of professional anthropologists.

There is nothing else like it in the world, Dr. Hrdlicka says. The first substantial hint of the existence of this culture came in 1926 when the Smithsonian anthropologist visited Alaska in an effort to trace the paths of the ancestors of the Indians and the Eskimos from northern Siberia into North America. Here and there he found finely carved specimens of ivory incised with conventionalized figures and curved line designs which had been excavated from old refuse heaps by the Eskimos.

Where did they come from? They were recognized to represent a culture far superior to that of the present-day Eskimos and Indians of Alaska, the craftsmanship of men with Arctic ideals and a delicacy of technique far beyond merely every-day demands. Dr. Hrdlicka's excavations, matched by those of Diamond Jenness, a Canadian anthropologist of note, led him to conclude that this culture is of considerable age and the work of a highly intellectual people.

ANOTHER member of the National Museum staff, Henry B. Collins, Jr., entered the Alaskan field in 1928 and followed Dr. Hrdlicka's route to the Bering Sea. Working at St. Lawrence Island that summer and again in 1929, Collins excavated frozen refuse heaps where prehistoric men had lived, and dug out of the earth many specimens of the ancient carved ivory.

Returning last summer Dr. Hrdlicka was able to secure hundreds of new specimens of the fossil ivory culture, all in a good state of preservation, which represent almost fully the mechanical arts of these people. For years, it was learned, objects of this kind had been unearthed by the natives and sold to dealers as old ivory, to be used in the jewelry trade, with no suspicion of their scientific value.

As now arranged at the National Museum the objects suggest the array of polished steel instruments in a surgeon's office. There are numerous styles of very beautiful axes, picks, awls, drills, needles, daggers, gouges, scrapers, with which the ancient workmen plied their trades. There are also many adzes, wedges and objects, the use of which is uncertain. All are most dexterously designed as tools.

The axes and similar instruments are "hefted" or balanced correctly, in itself evidence of a high culture level. Some of the adzes were fashioned from ivory sledge hammers. Evidently ivory was valued material, to be used over and over again.

Beyond this nothing is known for certain about the vanished people. Their bones and the remains of their habitations, if anything remains, are buried far under the frozen sands and have not yet been discovered.

The physical geography of the region has changed and obliterated all traces of the ancient habitations as well as burials. Consequently nobody knows where to dig for them and some fortunate discovery must be made before it will be practicable to excavate. Northwestern Alaska is not a field where scientists can dig at random in the mere hope of finding something.

But the carved ivory pieces themselves, Dr. Hrdlicka says, furnish clues for reconstructing a startling picture of ancient days in the Far North when the human race was establishing its footholds on the American continent.

THE climate probably has not changed materially. It is now cold and stormy with short summers and long, cruel winters. The landscape is dreary and unstimulating.

This is the sort of environment in which one would not expect to find a high culture level. Ordinarily under such conditions men have all they can do to keep body and soul together. The most they develop is a purely utilitarian culture evolved to meet the demands of life. Art is the product of kindlier climates where man has leisure, security and plenty.

The very existence of art means that man has mastered his environment. This gives the first clue to the nature of this early people. They must have had both time and conditions for the development of their artistic culture. There must have been an old high stone age civilization somewhere in the Far North.

Furthermore, ivory carving is not likely to have been an isolated phenomenon, for artistic culture does not develop that way. Art is an expression of higher mental activities. It does not exist independently of such social institutions as religion and law, and it affords a fair measure of the development of these.

Consequently it is fair to assume, Dr. Hrdlicka believes, that anthropology stands on the brink of a major discovery and that in the years to come the frozen tundras of the northermost lands surrounding the Bering Sea with its islands will yield more and more wonders. These ivory pieces are merely the beginning of the story of this strange, seemingly vanished people.

It is really, Dr. Hrdlicka says, a high polished stone age culture, but instead of stone the workmen used ivory; and because of the very nature of the material their artistry improved. The ivory, imperishable, relatively easy to work, and taking a beautiful polish, was just what was needed for their growing ideals of beauty.

WHO were these prehistoric artisans? This question must remain unanswered for the present, although there are some indications which point to their probable origin. First, nothing has been found which shows an evolution of the remarkable culture in that environment. The most exquisitely carved objects are the oldest. But cultures do not drop out of the sky or spring from the earth fully formed. They come only with slow, painful evolution.

In this case it is evident that the artistry must have been evolved elsewhere and brought to the Bering Sea region bodily. The one place from which it could have come was northern Asia, just where in the vast territories of northern Asia remains to be determined.

It was a coastal as well as land culture. Its presence in the northernmost parts of the Bering Sea is a further strong evidence that this was the path of immigrants into North America, a position Dr. Hrdlicka long has maintained.

The theory has been that native groups in Siberia, pushed farther and farther eastward and northeastward by the pressure of populations and the retreating game, finally came to the ocean and following this to the end of the land.

But on a clear day they might see the outlines of new land over the water. So they came, a comparatively few at a time, but over the course of many centuries, if not thousands of years. And they carried their dialects, cultures and institutions with them.

THE Eskimos of today have an ivory culture which bears strong evidence of having been inherited from this first great artistic era, but it shows considerable devolution. Life has been too hard for the Eskimos to reach again the level of their predecessors or ancestors.

The Eskimo ornamentation, for instance, is distinguished by straight lines, simple geometric designs, and natural—instead of conventionalized—representation of animals, scenes, etc. There are no curved lines. And the difference between an artistic curved line and a plain straight line graven on ivory or stone is a great difference in the eyes of the anthropologist.

The National Museum collection contains also many tools for use in making nets, ornately decorated fish spears, spoons, knives, and kitchen utensils, and purely ceremonial objects ornamented with human or animal figures which show delicate carving and polishing. There are figures of fish and mammals with many conventionalized details of design.

The precise age of this ivory culture, says Dr. Hrdlicka, cannot be determined from present evidence.

"All we can say," he says, "is that it is very old." It is older than any other human remains found so far in those parts of the New World.

The migrations of the Asiatic people into America must have been very slow, requiring hundreds of generations, to reach the distribution found when white men first came to America. The main routes they followed were doubtless those along the coasts.

Some of the aboriginal immigrants invaded also the interior of the continent by way of the Yukon and other rivers. In an effort to retrace these paths, Dr. Hrdlicka, accompanied by Dr. George Maly of the Charles University of Prague, Czechoslovakia, this summer made another journey to Alaska.

A part of this trip was rather adventurous. For over 1500 miles the pair traveled in an open 18-foot craft. It was a journey in almost continuous daylight, but through fog and frequent rains and storms.

ONE of the main facts ascertained definitely on this journey by Dr. Hrdlicka is that there is no line of demarkation, either physical or cultural, between the Indian and the Eskimo along the Yukon. Both shade into each other.

The scientist was looking especially for ancient burials. These were difficult to discover, yet some were found that antedate anything in this line found on the river before. He carried on his work with the full knowledge of both the whites and the natives and was aided by their co-operation.

The skeletal remains collected tell an interesting story of the migrations and perhaps evolution of the later people of the Far North, but shed no light on the very ancient culture or on the earlier migrations. The possibility of finding really ancient remains is very remote, Dr. Hrdlicka says, because of the changing coasts and banks of the rivers along which the people traveled.

Only a rare accident would reveal graveyards thousands, or even hundreds of years old, in the rocky foothills or the jungle flats of the present stream.

Along the lower Yukon the scientists found a culture that was marked by a profusion of stone implements of bone and antler, but essentially Eskimo. In the middle area the variety of implements decreases, but two new types make their appearance, showing the shading off into Indian culture. These are bilateral stone axes and tomahawks. Pottery was of the same poor quality along the whole river, with little difference in form and decoration.

DR. HRDLICKA was able to get on friendly terms with the natives by giving medical treatment, explaining his purposes, dealing with them as he would with his own people, and by paying for all specimens brought in.

The greatest difficulty of all, Dr. Hrdlicka says, was to get normal, full-blooded natives. These are becoming scarce along the river, especially in the middle regions where the transition is most marked, and in a few years will have disappeared altogether, leaving only a mixed blood population.

The living natives along the great waterway afford few clues to the ancient dead, their pioneer ancestors in this far northern land. These are likely to remain for years an inspiration to the imaginations of archaeologists and to make northern Alaska a great archaeological hunting ground in the near future.

The existence of the high and rich fossil ivory culture, says Dr. Hrdlicka, is one more conclusive blow at the contentions of the still sometimes encountered opinions that men originated in America, or came from some mythical "lost Atlantis," or crossed the southern Pacific in their frail canoes. Here, he says, is an obvious proof of migrations into the New World of Asiatic peoples.

"Club-A-Month" Policy Followed On Tech Campus Fifty-One Organizations Are Active In College

Nine Social Clubs Holding Forth; All Named

PRESIDENT HOOVER with his "commission-a-month" plan would feel perfectly at home on Tech's campus with its "club-a-month" policy. In Bible days when a few people gathered they called it a prayer meeting, but out at Tech when the students gang together they call it a club and give it a Spanish name.

Greek letter fraternities are barred at Texas Tech college. Of that there can be no doubt because the constitution forbids such organizations. Yet one does not have to be on the campus many minutes to discover that while there are no fraternities in name, still there are clubs in any degree and number one might wish.

Nine Social Clubs

There are nine social clubs in Lubbock whose memberships are made up largely of Texas Tech students. Of course some of them have not been recognized by the college yet and one of them never will because it is the Theta Kappa Omega fraternity, a national high school organization. Some of the boys have graduated, however, and are attending classes at Tech college.

Then there is the Centaur club presided over by Orval Burroughs and purely social in nature. Thomas Taylor is vice-president; Bill Sewell is secretary and Lonnie Langston, Tech professor, is the sponsor.

Has Regular Pins

Alvin Allison is president of the De Que club, recently organized; K. N. Clapp is one of the sponsors and H. Bailey Carroll, Tech professor is the other. Members kept their names a secret until recently when they gave a formal dance and introduced their pledges. Their pins are not unlike fraternity emblems and are encrusted with seed pearls.

Los Toros include among their members several students of the college and Prof. Charles Mahoney, of the department of horticulture at Tech, is sponsor of the Wrangiers whose requirement is that its members must have attended some college at one time or other.

The College Club is not on the list of approved clubs but its president, Carl Pfluger, is a student of the institution and many of its members are attending or have attended Tech. Pledges are required to have been in college two years.

Howard Heads Silver Key

The Silver Key gave an elaborate dance recently and is planning for other dances. Dr. W. J. Howard is president of this organization which is made up mainly of college students.

The Stag Bridge club of which Thord Dockray is president and Los Gauchos, presided over by Frank Stone with George Berry for vice-president, and sponsored by W. C. Long are the last two boys' social clubs. The latter forms the Tech pep squad for boys during football season.

There are three clubs on the campus which are purely social in nature: Sans Souci, Las Chaparritas and Les Cigales. Miss Geraldine Smith is president of the Sans Souci club while other officers are vice-president, Miss Lucille Moxley; secretary, Miss Mary Snyder and the sponsor, Mrs. R. M. Chitwood, assistant dean of women.

Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth is president of Las Chaparritas club; Miss Frances Ford, vice-president; Miss Sarah Michie, secretary, and Mrs. H. H. Griffith, sponsor. Miss Dorothy Rylander is president of Les Cigales club.

Not All Are Social

Not all of the organizations have as their aim that of entertainment. There are some clubs who have sophomoric intentions of reforming the campus and creating a democratic atmosphere.

We find the Association of Women students, presided over by Miss Lizzie Belle Clements, with Miss Lois Cooper, vice-president while Miss Marjorie Ann Ainsworth records the doings. There are 17 representatives to the council. Its stated purpose is "to discuss matters of interest to women students for mutual help and benefit and to promote on the campus all worthy undertakings, organizations, movements, etc., of the student body."

Offer Prize For Song

The boys have an organization somewhat similar called the Tech Chamber of Commerce. They have tried for two years to get someone to write a pep song for the college even offerings as an inducement a reward of $25 but so far they have kept their money and continue to meet on the second and fourth Wednesdays in the month. Homer Maxey is secretary of the organization.

Las Leales, another girls' club, is a fellowship organization whose purpose as stated in the constitution is "to promote fellowship among women students and to create lasting friendships and to create a desire to take advantage of worth while things." Miss Eufaula Wise is president of the club; Miss Lizzie Belle Clements, vice-president; Mrs. Billie Pearl Eubanks, secretary while sponsors are Dr. Paul W. Horn, Dean James M. Gordon, Dean Mary M. Doak and Dean Margaret Weeks.

Seek National Affiliation

Members of the Woman's Forum have an ambition to become united with the national association of mortar boards. This club tries to give every woman student a part in some extra-curricula activity so her interests may be broadened. Miss Margaret Willis, an engineering student, is president; Miss Kate Pressley, vice-president and Miss Nell Goodloe is secretary of the organization.

The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. come in this group. Warren Huff is president of the former, James Whitesides, vice-president and Donald Boggs is secretary. The purpose of the "Y" is "to promote the growth of students in Christian faith and character" while the girls have as their stated purpose "a fellowship of those who, regardless of religious affiliation, are seeking for reality." Miss Margaret Cooper is president; Miss Lellese Haye, vice-president; Miss Lizzie Belle Clements, secretary and Miss Lois Cooper is treasurer.

These two organizations meet once a week.

Scholarship Recognized

Some of the clubs which were organized in the early days of the college's existence are of an educational nature and are certainly worth while but do not attract a great many students because of scholastic restriction.

In this group comes the Pi Gamma Mu, a national organization which encourages the study of social sciences, Dr. John C. Granbery has been sponsor of this club since its formation on the campus. H. C. Hervey is president, Miss Mamie Wolffarth, vice-president; Miss Sylva Wilson, secretary. Meetings are held the second Friday of each month in room 214 of the administration building unless otherwise announced.

The Math club promotes interest in mathematics for student and faculty and meetings are held the second Thursday in each month. Samuel H. J. Womack is president; Miss Laurene Bussey, secretary and Dr. Erle Thompson is sponsor.

Mock courts are held and cases of misdemeanor tried when members of the Pre-Law club meet the first and third Wednesdays of each month. Alvin Allison is president; Lankford Shaw, vice-president; Donald Boggs is secretary.

Robert King is president of the Pre-Med club; Miss Lucile Houston, vice-president; and Helen Jackson, secretary.

Languages Encouraged

There are three clubs on the campus whose aim is to stimulate interest in the study of languages. The S. P. Q. R. is a Latin club. Hubert Hopper is president and Mrs. William Dingus, sponsor. Capa y Espada is composed of Spanish students and William Nelle is the president and Mrs. W. B. Gates sponsor while the French club is named Los Joueuse and its main function thus far has been to present plays in the original.

The Sock and Buskin gives those who feel a call to the legitimate stage a chance to become disillusioned before leaving college and even gives those a chance to develop plays who are interested in dramatics. Warren Huff is president; Miss Lillian Hopping, vice-president; Miss Kate Pressley, secretary, and Miss Ruth Pirtle, sponsor. Another dramatic club is the Thespian club whose purpose is to afford practice and experience in interpretative art.

Others Have Activities

Other campus organizations are Arena Ritas, girls' pep squad, which is led by Miss Nora Cocke; the band, directed by Prof. Harry Le Maire, which meets each Monday and Thursday for practice; the Choral club, sponsored by Prof. W. R. Wagnern; Los Peterenas girls' glee club, directed by Mrs. Carl Scoggin; the Home Economics club; the Aggie club; and the Student Council, which has representatives from the four schools.

The Tech Rifle club has as its aim the promoting of rifle shooting as a sport; the Clogging club does what its name suggests and the Womans' Athletic association, sponsored by Misses Johnnie Gilkerson and Zella Riegel, promotes health and good sportsmanship.

Home Towns Organize

There are nine home-town, county, and state clubs on Tech campus. These are Dallas, Amarillo, Lamesa, Lubbock, Memphis, Oklahoma, Scurry county, Tarlton and Waco clubs.

But wait there are others yet! The Bobbin club fosters a spirit among the students of textile engineering; the Debate club is one of the forceful organizations in the college; the Engineering society is similar to the Bobbin club; the Geological society furthers interest in the study of geology; the Museum society is sponsoring the founding of a college museum; Las Hermanas is a club which develops social spirit among girls in College Inn and Annex A, the Press club has recently been revived since it was discovered there was a vacant room in the administration building one night in the week, and the Southern scholarship society attracts those who have brilliant scholastic records.

Didn't Woodrow Wilson have something to say once about the danger of extra-curricula activities in American colleges becoming the main show and the curriculum like the shide show in a circus? But wait a minute folks because we aren't through yet. Since this story was started there has been another club organized at the college. This one is a golf club and Herschel McParland has been named president.

Contract Is Let For Repairs On Tech Dairy Unit

J. J. Clements Is To Rebuild Structure Damaged By Fire Recently; Total Loss Not Determined

Contract for repairs on the part of the dairy barn at Texas Tech destroyed by fire early last Tuesday morning was let last week to J. J. Clements, local builder, and a crew of workmen started rehabilitation of the building Friday.

"The departments of animal husbandry and dairy products manufacturers are suffering from lack of equipment until workmen have time to rebuild milk, wash, boiler and sun rooms, and repair damage to the half of the main barn where cows were staunched which was badly damaged by the fire," said Prof. W. L. Stangel, head of the department of animal husbandry "although buildings will be in practically as good shape as they were before the fire within a few days."

Insurance Covers Building

"There was sufficient insurance to cover the buildings but much of the equipment belonging to the department of dairy products manufacture was not covered by insurance," said Prof. K. M. Renner, head of that department. "The total loss in equipment has not yet been determined but the loss was considerable.

Prof. Renner also stated that what equipment that was absolutely necessary for conduction of the dairy manufacturers work at this time would be ordered and replaced immediately but on account of a shortage of funds all equipment would not be replaced until an appropriation of funds from the state had been secured.

Marrs Decries Act On Appropriation For Rural Schools

State Superintendent Says Injunction Is Greatest Calamity Ever To Befall Educational System

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—The injunction granted at San Antonio prohibiting disbursement of the appropriation for rural and high school tuition is one of the greatest calamities which has ever befallen public education in Texas, S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, said in a letter addressed to all county and city superintendents.

"If this decision is correct Texas can never have an efficient school system until the constitution is amended," Mr. Marrs said. "If all the money appropriated by the state must be distributed per capita there will always be weak schools. In a democracy there should be equality of opportunity, and equal money does not give an equal chance to the boys and girls in rural districts.

To Keep Students

Pending outcome of an appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals Mr. Marrs directed that high schools should not dismiss the transferred high school pupils, as it is believed the legislature can make a new appropriation to pay the tuition. He said it was possible the legislature may give relief also in the case of transportation and bonuses for consolidation.

"But the state aid schools that are expecting to receive money to pay salaries of teachers will be disappointed if the injunction is sustained," he said. "I sincerely hope that all such schools will carry on as late as March 1, 1930. I am making this appeal to the teachers as I know the large majority of them are patriotic and earnestly desire the welfare of our schools. It must be distinctly understood, however, that no debt can be carried over to be paid from the income of a succeeding year, and the teacher must be willing to donate services for the extra time, if the injunction is eventually sustained by the higher courts. I am confident that the citizens of many communities would be equally patriotic, and, if necessary, raise a sufficient amount by private subscription to pay the salaries of the teachers. Let us not fail the children in this crisis."

City Park Budget Of $4,200 Is Requested By Board

First Direct Steps Toward System Is Made; County Parks In Good Shape

City Commission Will Likely O. K. Board Proposal

Two Of Lubbock's Five Park Sites Are Improved; Plans Made To Improve Others In Due Course Of Time

By CHAS. C. WATSON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

HERALDING the first direct step in Lubbock's efforts at park improvement, a budget has been submitted to the city commission by the park board calling for $4,200 for improvements during the year 1930.

While this budget has not yet been adopted by the governing body officials state that it is reasonably safe to say that it will be. No direct appropriation has ever been made for parks in the city heretofore and those in charge of the work have had to carry on with no view to certainty that their suggestions would be carried out. With the budget of several thousand dollars the board will be able to plan a procedure that will tend toward a definite goal.

Two Sites Improved

The city of Lubbock at this time has five park sites. Two of them have had improvement work while the other three have been more or less left untouched. One of the sites is located between 7th and 8th streets and is one of the partially improved areas. Trees have been planted and grass set out. Another site has ben purchased near the Highland Heights addition, just southwest of O'Neall Terrace. The latest addition to the city's park system is site for negro playground on the outskirts of the city and southeast of the negro quarter.

The best equipped ground is what is know as the City Park in northeast Lubbock with its Tumble N swimming pool. Here trees and grass have been set out and some playground equipment has been added.

A park board, composed of C. H. Mahoney chairman; J. B. Maxey, K. N. Clapp and Mrs. C. F. Stubbs, was appointed by the city commission during the early part of 1928. Since that time this committee has been working on the problem of parks and playground space. Mr. Mahoney has stated that while no parks are located in the central section of the city, this condition will not happen again as the city now has purchased sites in widely scattered areas. This work is expected to dovetail with a definite city plan to be adopted in the near future by the commission.

Acreage Is Near 200

The area of all park sites in Lubbock is approximately 200 acres, enough for a city many times the population of this. Officials have pointed out that all sites have been provided with water facilities and that with the coming year all of them would be made as attractive as possible from the viewpoint of beauty and as a matter of pride to the city for recreational centers.

Aside from the improvement work on parks the city also has done some work toward beautifying the grounds around the city incinerator northeast of Lubbock. Trees have been planted here and the surrounding grounds are kept clean at all times.

Approximately 2,000 trees and shrubs were set out last year by the city park board and this year is expected to see even greater activity with acceptance by the commission of the proposed budget.

County Supports Four Parks, Say Local Officials

Chief Recreation Ground, Located Near City, Pays Its Own Way Through Its Golf, Fishing Features

WITH its chief park self-sustaining Lubbock county is adequately supporting its four recreation centers, members of the Commissioners court say.

The Lubbock park, located three-fourths of a mile east of the courthouse, has been maintained during the last three years from proceeds of two amusement attractions—golf and fishing. A nine-hole golf course, accentuated in beauty by green turf, winding patchs lined with Chinese elms, and an imposing lake invites lovers of the sport throughout the year.

Located on a cliff overlooking the course is the community club house, which provides a meeting place for civic organizations.

The park covers eighty acres of land, 35 of which are leased by the Panhandle South Plains Fair association.

During season shores of the lake are literally lined with devotees of the piscatorial sport.

A levy of 20 cents on the $100 tax assessment in the county goes into the permanent improvement fund, of which the park fund is a subdivision.

Fund Is Reported

The aggregate fund for all parks in the county at close of business January 25, according to a report from J. Y. Boyd, county auditor, was $3,247.08. Funds of each park follows: Lubbock, $2,351.63; Idalou, $163.09; Shallowater, $44.20 and Slaton, $268.14.

Maintenance for the parks is provided out of the general fund of the county.

County commissioners who supervise the various parks are N. A. Payne, Lubbock; W. L. Brashear, Idalou; L. C. Denton, Shallowater, and J. T. Pinkston, Slaton.

Manila To Observe "Humiliation Day"

Anti-Filipino Demonstrations In California To Be Protested In Sunday Observance

MANILA, Feb. 1. (AP)—All Manila will join in the observance Sunday of "national humiliation day" as a protest against anti-Filipino demonstrations at Stockton, San Jose and Watsonville, Cal.

Manila today was placarded with posters calling the populace to the services Sunday on the Luneta public square. The call to observe "humiliation day" said "we must protest vigorously but peaceable."

One thousand students of the University of the Phillipines met and adopted a resolution of protest against the attacks upon Filipinos in California. Permission for them to parade was denied by the mayor.

Police vigilance was increased, especially in the Tondo District of Manila, where many of the native laboring class live. There was talk in the district of gangs organizing for reprisals against Americans.

Wichita Man Tells About Trouble

Lost Steadily And Couldn't Find Relief; Every Sign Of Indigestion Is Gone After Taking Orgatone

The remarkable experience of C. N. Ritter, residing at 2102 Kemp Blvd., is another striking evidence of the extraordinary merits of Organtone. In speaking of his long time suffering from indigestion and headache and subsequent relief, Mr. Ritter said:

"I am telling all my friends about Orgatone and all of my family are taking it after seeing what it has done for me."

"My trouble had been growing worse instead of better, all the time," he continued. "It was almost impossible for me to eat a meal without suffering from gas and sour stomach afterwards. I began losing weight and have fallen off until I only weight one hundred pounds, a way below my weight, and could not find anything to relieve my pain or build me up."

"After I had suffered month after month without getting any better, some one gave me a statement on Orgatone that convinced me and I started taking it. As I have said before, I have gained in health and strength and I haven't felt a sign of the old indigestion trouble since. I have taken Orgatone only a few weeks so far, but from the way I have improved already I am glad to recommend it to everybody."

Genuine Orgatone may be obtained in Lubbock at Bowen's Drug Store. (adv.)

Organized Defense For Man Planned

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1. (AP)—An organization, composed of preachers, lawyers and the general public, with the announced aim of establishing a defense for Pete McKenzie, convicted slayer of Detective Chief Sam Street, has been formed here.

The group will concentrate on proving McKenzie insane, when he faces a second sanity hearing in 94th district court.

"We are a group of San Antonio citizens interested in justice and fair play who have banded together to raise funds with which to defray all necessary expenses in connection with the approaching McKenzie trial," declared the Rev. W. H. Joyner, director and treasurer of the organization.

A finance committee, composed of the Rev. Rolfe P. Crum, Mrs. H. C. Carter, and Col. J. B. Good, has been elected. Plans are under way for an active campaign to raise finances.

Another Building Material Put On Free Tariff List

Proposed Levy Of 8 Cents Of Hydraulic Cement Is Eliminated From Hawley-Smoot Bill By Senate

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—Another major building material was restored to the tariff free list today by the senate, when it voted 40 to 35 to eliminate from the Hawley-Smoot bill a proposed levy of eight cents a hundred pounds on hydraulic cement.

Reunited after several splits in their respective groups, the democrats and republican independents—who have been generally successful in striking out tariff increases on industrial products—proved too strong for the cement duty advocates. They adopted an amendment by Senator McMaster, republican independent, South Dakota, to retain the product in its present free category. Both the house and senate finance committee measures proposed a rate of eight cents a hundred pounds.

Twenty-four democrats, 15 republicans and the one farmer-labor Senator Shipstead of Minnesota supported the free list amendment.

Ban Of Mexican Immigration Is Sought By Group

Proponents Of Restriction Open Fight In Support Of Johnson And Box Bills To Limit Aliens

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. (AP)—Proponents of Mexican immigration restriction opened their fight in support of the Johnson and Box bills today before the house immigration committee, with testimony by Francis T. Jones, director general of the United States Employment service, that there was no need for Mexican farm labor.

The session was marked by almost continuous clashes between the witness and Representative Free, republican, California, who assailed Jones as a "propagandist and theorist" and charged he was "misleading the committee with a statement that is not true."

Unemployment Cited.

The employment service head testified there was "considerable unemployment" throughout the country particularly in New York state, which, he said, was due to its proximity to the stock market.

The dispute broke out after Jones assailed a request from Harlingen, Texas, for 5,000 laborers to help harvest farm products. The employment service sent in 165 workers, but only 25 men were hired, he testified.

"Why don't you be honest about this?" Free demanded, "why don't you explain that between the time the 5,000 workers were requested and the time the 165 men were sent in there was a frost that ruined the crop in the valley around Harlingen?"

Declares Honesty.

"I am being honest," shot back the witness.

From this point on Free and Jones repeatedly engaged in sharp dispute, and Johnson had to bang his gavel time after time to restore order.

Jones insisted there was a sufficient supply of white labor in the country to fill the needs for seasonal labor in the Southwest, while Free contended white labor could not be induced to work in the heat of the fields.

Chester H. Grey, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said his organization had gone on record against raising a barrier against New World immigration until a fact finding commission had made a study of the situation. Restriction of the alien supply, he added, would force the farmers of the border states into the production of other crops in which there was already a surplus and which would compete with other sections of the country.

PLAN RECORDS ON COW

Lockney Vocational Youths To Determine Status

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LOCKNEY, Feb. 1.—Fifteen members of the vocational agricultural class of Lockney High school are starting a project whereby they will determine whether or not the cows on their home farms are being kept at a profit or a loss. According to D. E. Turner, head of the vocational agriculture department, thirty cows are to be tested an an accurate feed and production record will be kept. A butter fat test is to be made once per month. Efforts will be made to determine what kind of feed will produce butter fat at the least cost and a survey will be made to determine the value of proper cattle breeding relative to milk and butter fat production.

Besides the cow-testing project, members of the class are experimenting and studying; the feeding and improving of livestock and poultry, the maintaining of soil fertility, the improving of plants, and controlling of diseases of livestock.

THERE she is, puffing a rhythmic tattoo of impatience, power in her massive wheels, speed in her glistening pistons, vibrant with the will to break records . . . Locomotive No. 1930 of the Prosperity Unlimited. She has no destinction; only a direction . . . that follows the tracks of progress to rainbow's end. All aboard! No, not all aboard. The shirkers and cynics and pessimists and faint-hearted may stay smugly at home. The cars will be filled with our best of all good fellows . . . the smiling, courageous team-workers.

A whistle from No. 1930 splits the air with a promise of bounteous gifts to those who believe in their country, their traveling companions, their opportunities and themselves.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience.

But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.—James, 1, 2-4.

THE MODERN JUGGERNAUT

AT the top of this page, and two columns to the right, you will find an artist's conception of a modern juggernaut. A moment's study of the portrayal, coupled with a brief scanning of the news columns for proof, and you'll agree that the grade-crossing is one of America's most serious national questions.

With one underpass on Broadway and another, on North Avenue H, under construction, Lubbock will soon be fairly well protected against the evils of this modern juggernaut. There are, of course, other grade crossings in and near the city but, with the exception of the Denver's switch across Avenue H—which shrewd politics permitted against all good judgement—there are none of much importance. It is the city's job to keep it that way.

Every so often, for one reason or another, there is some agitation to open this, that or the other street for traffic across a rail line. The Avalanche-Journal believes in the interest of the many—as opposed to the wishes of a comparative few—care should be exercised in such requests and a decided stand against the modern juggernaut be taken and held to in Lubbock.

BUILDING ROADS

No more significant fact and welcome news has come out of Asia in years than the report that the road mileage on that continent increased one and one-half times last year. Roads mean civilization, contact with the outside world and a broadened outlook. They mean that civilized America as well as in isolated and unknown Central Asia.

Department of commerce figures give the world's road mileage as 3,016,281, of which 38.7 per cent is in the United States. Of the 1,200,000 miles of new road constructed last year the United States built 132,662, Asia 596,999 and Africa 57,000.

There is a vast difference between road construction in Asia and Africa and road construction in the United States. In those undeveloped countries primitive roads are unwinding where there were no roads before. Vast areas were isolated for lack of roads connecting them with the outside world. Road construction in the United States today means paving, widening, straightening, leveling and shortening old highways and parallel routes, but relatively few new highways opening up unsettled territory.

America is as far ahead of Asia in highway construction as a 50 foot concrete speedway is ahead of a one-way course created by plowing the earth from two gutters to the high crown between them to be dusty in summer, muddy when it rains and impassable in winter. The automobile took Americans out of the mud. Transportation is just taking Asia into it.

The 167,000 miles of hard-surfaced roads and hundreds of thousands of miles of other improved highways in the United States represents a great amount of wealth expended on them and produced by them.

THE WAR ON INSECT PESTS

To fool the hen and to persuade the flower to bloom have been some of the wonders wrought by electricity. An artificial dawn awakes the hen, sets her to pecking earlier than the sunrise, and more food in her gizzard means more eggs for the poultrymen. Electrically lighted greenhouses are used to force plants to a quicker, richer blooming than natural light would give.

Now the insect world is to be lighted up to the destruction of some of the pests that infest orchards, fields and gardens. Many a clumsy moth has gone to its death in the flame of a lamp or candle, but never before has wholesale killing been planned through such means. Such creatures are most readily attacked, not in the winged state, but in the cocoon or as larvae. To catch them on the wing will be a triumph for science. A method has been evolved.

Electric light traps will be placed in the orchards to lure the female moth before she lays her eggs in the heart of the apple blossoms. Success will depend to some extent on the time of day when she emerges from cocoon and the length of time that elapses between her birth and her egg-laying. If she does not come out in the full light of day and is attracted by the incandescent traps, her fate and that of her innumerable progeny is sealed.

Electrocution may halt the destructive march westward of the Japanese beetle which has already crossed New Jersey and is now wintering its front ranks in Central Pennsylvania. A plan is under consideration to place a chemical, known to attract this voracious insect, in large electrified cages wherever it concentrates.

Eventually moths, mosquitoes and other harmful insects will be exterminated by devices of man's invention and the farmer's lot will be easier and life will lose some of its little annoyances.

THE "NEW FREEDOM"

Back of the so-called emancipation of woman lie some economic factors that may well receive the attention of the philosophers. The new freedom in thousands of cases appears to entail mostly the obligation to shoulder burdens.

A government bureau investigating conditions of women workers finds that 30,000 families investigated received more than a quarter of their support from women workers. In thousands of cases, wives and daughters were the sole support of the families. In a group of 17,000 unmarried women reporting on questionnaires, one-fifth were supporting families unaided.

At times when unemployment is prevalent the number of women in industry and trade increases rapidly. The mischance that throws the man out of work thrusts his wife into shop or factory or office.

The far-reaching influence of such markershift needs careful consideration. In the problem are involved questions of drift from country to city; of increase in flat-dwelling and decline of home-owning and others of still greater import.

It isn't so very difficult to love your neighbors if you must depend on them for a living.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

OLD JOE GRUNDY UNIQUE EXCEPTION AS LOBBYIST, CARAWAY DISCOVERS

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—To Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway it, one would think putting match to a bunch of currency was only the second silliest way of getting rid of money—that the 10 per cent silliest way was to spend it on lobbyists, in an effort to influence congressional legislation.

The Arkansas senator doubtless is right as to money spent on the sort of lobbyists his investigating committee has had most of its fun with recently.

What he evidently forgets is that the lobbyists who did furnish him and his fellow inquisitors with so much entertainment were the kind who had no more sense than to be caught, which, in itself, was sufficient proof that they were not very slick lobbyists.

True, as someone is sure to remark, old Joe Grundy was one of the Caraway committee's witnesses—and old Joe is a smooth article, if ever there was one.

Indeed yes; but the committee had no fun with old Joe. Old Joe had fun with the committee.

Ordinary rules do not apply to old Joe Grundy, anyway.

The type of lobbyists concerning whom Senator Caraway speaks so scornfully really are not worth a picayune. They even lack the acumen to cover up their own tracks and avoid smearing everything up with thumbprints. High class lobbyists are too clever to be recognized as lobbyists; otherwise they could not properly be described as high class lobbyists. Inasmuch as Senator Caraway himself cannot spot them for what they are, how can he tell how much influence they are exercising?—they may be influencing him, for all he knows.

Old Joe, however, was in a group all his own as a lobbyist—until three or four weeks ago, when Governor Fisher wished a toga onto him and he became Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania.

Certainly Senator Caraway will not say that old Joe's lobbying failed of results; the tariff list is full of them.

Old Joe was as far superior to concealment as the next grade of lobbyists below him is superior to footmarks and thumbprints. He rather liked to have folk recognize his handiwork, in fact. He was proud of it.

Yes, old Joe was an exception.

There is the lumbering breed of lobbyists who ought to operate under cover, but can't learn how and are caught, such as Senator Caraway refers to.

There are the really crafty lobbyists who perfectly appreciate that they need to keep under cover and who do keep under cover, and whom Senator Caraway neglects to take into consideration.

And there was old Joe Grundy, who could easily have kept under cover had he chosen, but was so good that he did not have to.

Old Joe, hearing that a senate lobby committee was doing some investigating, decided that he would enjoy being investigated; so he called in and insisted on it.

The joke finally, was on him, in a way; for the committee investigated him into the senate.

Old Joe did not want to be a senator. He had far more important work to attend to as a lobbyist, but he made such a hit under investigation that there was no escape for him. Pennsylvania would not take "no" for an answer.

But that was an accident, same as being run over by an automobile, which is liable to happen to anyone, no matter how foxy.

Medical Adviser for Central Press and The Avalanche-Journal.

ONE OF REDUCING RULES IS TO EAT MORE SLOWLY IN SMALLER MOUTHFULS

Slowly Down Eating Habit

"Dear Doctor: Although I am as fat as a rat's tail, yet I enjoy reading your articles on reducing. They are fine. You hit the nail on the head each time but there is one thing you do not stress, and that is when you say that the fat person is, with few exceptions, a big eater, you don't say that he or she gets through with his meal just as quickly as the skinny fellow does!—"B."

You've evidently missed some of my articles, H., because I have spoken of this point. You're right, it's true. And they not only get through the meal at the same time the skinnies do, but they frequently get through before, and will have eaten six times the number of calories! Not long ago I was watching a very fat girl dining in a restaurant. You should have seen the size of the mouthfuls! A pretty girl, too—that is, her face was pretty (a little too fat).

One of the rules in reducing is to eat more slowly, take small mouthfuls and chew until the food is a liquid; and not to put any more food on the fork, or whatever implement is used, until that is swallowed. This automatically slows down the eating. By slow eating, one gets the feeling of satiation on half the food that fast eating gives. According to this line of reasoning, then, the underweighter should eat more rapidly. Is this true? Yes. This doesn't mean that they should swallow food unmasticated, but to chew more rapidly and make more rapid arm movements, and talk less while eating and pay a little more attention to the job at hand.

You need our instructions on gaining, H. Why not send for our pamphlet on the subject? See column rules.

Mrs. C.: Trench mouth is due to a specific germ, named fusiformis Vincenti. As is usual in the germ family, the capitalized word in its name means its discoverer, and the other tells its shape, so this germ is fusiform (spindle-shaped) and was discovered by a research worker named Dr. Vincent. Trench mouth is also known as Vincent's Angina (angina: to choke).

The infection generally begins in the tonsils, forming a membranous film which may extend to the surrounding parts and attack the tooth sockets and gums, and has a great tendency to ulceration.

The symptoms, as you can imagine, are those of an acute sore throat. The disease is accompanied by headache and general malaise—"rotten feeling" expresses this—and a temperature. The thing of which it is said, even your best friend won't tell you (which is untrue—halitosis—is present six plus.

There is a special medication for the disease, which Bloodgood states will cure 95 per cent of the cases. It is sodium perborate. Bloodgood also states that he has seldom seen a trench mouth without the association of decayed teeth and pyorrhea, and he believes that these conditions invite the germ.

City Employes In Lamesa Are Kept Busy

LAMESA, Feb. 1. (Special)—Employes of the Lamesa city water department have been over-taxed during the last ten days by demands of citizens whose water pipes burst following the three weeks freezing spell here. Water has been shut off by the department every night to allow them to speed up the work of repairing mains and pipes in the private homes. Plumbers have also been working over-time to aid in the repair work.

Today's Poem

"BONNIE WEE THING"

Bonnie wee thing! cannie wee thing
Lovely wee thing! wert thou mine,
I wad wear thee in my bosom,
Lest my jewel I should tine.
Wishfuly I look, and languish
In that bonnie face of thine;
And my heart it stounds wi' anguish,
Lest my wee thing be na mine.

Wit and grace and love and beauty,
In ae constellation shine;
To adore thee is my duty,
Goddess o' this soul o' mine!
Bonnie wee thing, cannie wee thing,
Lovely wee thing, wert thou mine,
I wad wear thee in my bosom,
Lest my jewel I should tine.

Fire Prevention Committee to Be Formed in Texas

AUSTIN, Feb. 1.—The creation of fire prevention committee, in order that Texas' present annual fire loss of 400 lives and $30,000,000 property destroyed may be cut to the minimum is urged in letters which J. W. DeWesse, state fire insurance commissioner, has mailed out to chambers of commerce over the state.

A model ordinance, creating these committees, which would be composed of a leading man and woman of the community, and the fire chief and city fire marshall, is sent along with the letter for adoption by the governing body of the city in which the chamber is located. The committee, under this ordinance, would be an official body, its members sworn in for definite periods of time. It is empowered to set up from its membership a special fire inquest committee to work with the fire marshall in determining origin of fires.

Suggests Study

The letter suggests that the chamber of commerce make a study of fire costs in the community, and predicts that this annual loss will be found to exceed the chamber's annual budget.

It points out that the property owner, not the insurance company, is the real loser in a fire, since the insurance company merely repays premiums which it has been collecting from the owner.

The aid of the fire prevention department of the state insurance commission is offered to those communities who desire to set up fire prevention committees of their own.

JUDITH CAMERON, typist in a New York publishing house, marries her employer, ARTHUR KNIGHT. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, 18, in Paris, and a son, JUNIOR, 16, at school.

A honeymoon in Bermuda is interrupted by a cablegram that Tony is on her way to America. Judith and Arthur sail to meet her. When Knight brings his daughter home, the girl ignores her stepmother. Later she tells Judith she must leave the house. Knight overhears and compels Tony to apologize.

ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight has helped through college, calls on Tony. He calls frequently and one evening when Tony refuses to accompany him to a dog show Judith goes. Tony, left alone with her father, tells him spitefully it is Judith and not herself whom Craig comes to the house to see. Knight denies this angrily.

Tony surprises Judith by asking her to have lunch in town with her next day. Judith keeps the appointment and is met by Andy Craig, who explains Tony asked him, too, to meet her. The two are together when Tony arrives half an hour late with her father. She is artful enough to make Judith's and Craig's protests sound unciminating. After Knight has gone Judith goes to his office to explain. She is told by his secretary he cannot see her.

There is a reconciliation after Knight arrives home. He tells Judith they are to entertain a group of his business associates next week at a theater party. Judith buys a beautiful gown for the occasion. When she tries it on Arthur praises her extravagantly. Tony overhears and next day Judith finds the dress riddled to bits.

The frock is duplicated and the theater party proves a success. When Judith and Arthur reach home after 3 a. m., a call comes that Tony and an escort are held in a police station charged with reckless driving. Knight brings his daughter home and Tony pours out her wrath upon Judith.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

Tony as usual (when she made up her mind to do so) demoralized the household next day.

Arthur Knight insisted he could sleep and did not want to go to bed after he had followed his rebellious daughter into the house at 4 o'clock in the morning. Judith persuaded him to go upstairs and lie down if only for an hour.

She lowered the window shades in his room, closed the door softly and came downstairs again. At seven she went to the kitchen, told Cora not to start breakfast until she had further instructions, and cautioned the servants to be very quiet.

Judith drank coffee, ate toast and returned to her weary vigil. All she had been doing, it seemed, for hours, was to wait.

At 8:30 she telephoned the publishing office and left word that Mr. Knight would not be in his office until later in the day.

Half an hour afterward Judith heard her husband moving about. She went upstairs and found him shaving. He looked as though he had missed most of the night's sleep and yet the few hours of slumber had been restful.

Judith retraced her steps downstairs and was back in 20 minutes, carrying a breakfast tray.

As Arthur sniffed the aroma of hot coffee and French toast his face lighted up.

"Here," said Judith, "I'm going to set it out on this stand. Come on, now, Arthur. Eat your breakfast while it's hot."

"You ought not to go to all this bother—"

She hushed him with two fingers on his lips.

"No bother at all for me," she insisted. "And still less for Harriet. She won't have to clear the dining room! I brought the food up, Arthur, because we don't want all the servants hearing about last night."

"No," said her husband ruefully, biting into a crisp piece of toast. "They'll hear enough about it anyhow. Lord, Judith, what am I going to do with Tony?"

"Is there—going to be any legal action?"

Knight shook his head.

"Weren't any charges against her," he said. "But that's not the worst of it. Do you know who it was she was out with?"

"That scoundrel Mortimer! Remember—theh same fellow Helena said she was running around with in Paris. I won't have it, Judith! I tell you this has got to stop! It's an outrage."

Judith tried to interrupt but Arthur Knight was wound up.

"Why, the fellow's married! Got a wife and child right here in New York—and my daughter joyriding with him at three o'clock in the morning! Tony's going to stop this—she's going to quit this kind of thing or leave this house!"

"Did you see the man?" Judith asked.

"I certainly did," Knight snorted. "And I gave him a piece of my mind he'll not forget soon, either. And after that I told Miss Tony a thing or two—"

Judith shook her head.

"I don't believe threatening her is going to do any good," she said.

"What will do good?"

"I don't know," Judith admitted frankly. "How did it all—happen last night?"

She was prepared for the worst and wanted to have it over with. It would be better for Arthur to tell the whole story and get it out of his system.

He repeated what he had learned at the police station. Tony and Mickey Mortimer were both there when he arrived. Mortimer had been locked up and was waiting release on bail. Tony was at liberty to leave but had no way of reaching home except to wait for her father's arrival. Mortimer was held for exceeding the speed limit and driving while under the influence of liquor. The policeman who had made the arrest reported the car was making 85 miles an hour.

"Just imagine, Judith," said Knight, his voice sinking to a husky pitch. "Imagine going into a police station to get my own daughter—!"

Judith was deeply sorry for him.

"But don't you think it will be a lesson for her? Tony must have been ashamed and embarrassed as much as you."

That's the trouble! She didn't seem to care a bit until I began to tell that good-for-nothing what I thought of him. Then she was positively uncontrollable."

Judith refilled her coffee cup. In excitement Arthur Knight was forgetting about breakfast.

"Judith," he said, "won't YOU try to handle her? You know better what to say to her than I do."

"Oh, but Arthur—"

"Yes, I know what you're thinking and what you're going to say. But nothing that I tell her does any good. Why, Judith, it wasn't a week ago that Tony promised me on her word of honor to be home every night at 12 o'clock and stop her nonsense.

Judith hesitated.

"You know I'd do anything I could," she said guardedly, "But Tony doesn't like me. I'm afraid I haven't the slightest influence with her."

"Try it, Judith, please talk to her."

She didn't want to promise, but neither could she disregard the appeal in Knight's voice.

"I'll—do what I can," Judith told him.

"Will you talk to her today?"

It might as well be done once and for all.

"I'll try," she agreed, and with this promise Arthur Knight was satisfied.

He said he thought he had managed to keep the affair out of the newspapers but in this he was mistaken. There was no mention of Tony Knight's name, but even the most conservative morning journal carried a couple of paragraphs to the effect that Mickey Mortimer had been locked up for speeding and intoxication the previous night.

Evening newspapers printed larger headlines and added the information that Mortimer had had with him a brunet companion whose name was not being divulged. The most flamboyant copies of the tabloid press appeared with headlines about "Millionaire Playboy Jailed," reprinted photographs of Mickey, of his attractive wife in her stage days and of their two-year-old daughter, Gloria Mortimer playing in the sand at Palm Beach.

It was all humiliating for Arthur Knight.

After he had left the house Judith tried to rest. She lay on the bed, closed her eyes, but sleep would not come. After what seemed like a long while she arose, dressed and went downstairs and hunted for Sandy.

Strapping a leash to the dog's collar, she set out for their morning walk.

What was she to do about Tony?

It would have been better for Judith Knight's welfare if she had spent that minutes pondering what Tony might do to her and how she could defend herself. She had heard Arthur's denunciation the night before and thought that the girl was merely hysterical.

At 12 o'clock Judith was home again. A second time she carried a breakfast tray up the stairs and knocked softly at Tony's door.

There was no answer. She knocked again.

"Who's there?" came a drawling monotone.

"It's Judith," the girl answered. "What do you want?"

Judith pushed the door back and stepped across the threshold. She saw Tony lying on the bed, the coverlet pulled carelessly about her. Tony had raised herself on one elbow and was looking at her with half-shut, blinking eyes.

"Food!" Tony moaned as she glimpsed the tray. "Take it away! I thought you might want something, Tony. It's 12 o'clock."

"Don't care. Never want to eat food again."

"Couldn't you drink some coffee?"

That seemed to sound better. Tony studied the proposition for a moment. Then she said:

"Give me some coffee."

Judith poured a cupful of the steaming beverage and carried it to the girl. Pulling herself up she sat cross-legged on the bed, the younger girl sipped the drink.

Judith sank to one of the two spindle-legged French chairs, and wondered how in the world to begin. Finally she said:

"Tony, I want to talk to you."

"Yeah? Three guesses what about!"

"Oh, you know what it's about as well as I do. I guess there's no way but to come directly to the point. Your father feels terribly about what happened—"

Before she could finish the sentence Tony straightened up and interrupted.

"You can stop right there! You're not going to lecture me. Listen, didn't I tell you a few hours ago who's to blame for all this and I'm going to put a stop to it? Didn't you hear me say that?"

"But, Tony—"

"No? Well you'll be finding out soon enough, so don't let this worry you."

Judith knew that she had failed. "But won't you listen to me?" she begged. "Don't you see I just want to help you?"

"Oh you do!" sneered the girl on the bed. "Want to help yourself you mean. Get me out of the way so you can dig deeper into father's dough! I've understood that all along from the beginning. Makes you sore because I slipped through your graft doesn't it?"

Judith moved her lips to speak

but Tony went ahead:

"Listen, my blond friend," she said. "Ever since you've been in this house there's been trouble. You've turned my father against me. You've got him so he suspects everything I say or do. You make him think what you do is perfect and everything I do is a sin. And now if you'll take my advice you'll clear out! Because let me tell you, Miss Snoopy, that things will happen you're not looking for. And what's more, you'll go! Now get out of here and let me sleep."

It was no use!

Without a word Judith arose, left the tray where it stood and went out of the room. Then she shut the door behind her, leaning against it weakly for a moment and clenching her hands so tightly they colored at first red and then white.

"Oh, God," she prayed, "don't let me hate her so!"

Crossing the hall into her own room, Judith paced back and forth, back and forth for several minutes. She was tired, nervous and overwrought. At last, thoroughly exhausted, she crept to the bed and fell asleep.

The situation in the Knight household became unbearable. For two miserable days the atmosphere was alternately tense with impending drama or nerve-wracking in its silent gloom.

Arthur stormed at Tony. At times the girl stormed back and at other times she wept. She had been forbidden to take out her car. In retaliation Tony refused to leave her bedroom.

Judith felt like a lost soul, wandering between the two. She was aware that the younger girl's antagonism toward her had crystalized. Vaguely she understood the danger and yet she did not think of the one likely spot where Tony Knight could strike—and strike sure! This was unfortunate.

She could not tell if Tony communicated with Mickey Mortimer or not but believed she did. There was a telephone extension in the girl's room. Moreover, Tony was resourceful and she was rebellious.

Judith, foreseeing no end to the wretched state of affairs, began to face new terrors. Things could not go on much longer. She was afraid Tony would commit some horrible act of revenge—perhaps go away with Mortimer!

It was these thoughts which drove Judith Knight finally to her lamentable course of action. She telephoned to Andy Craig.

It was the morning of the third day Tony had kept to her room. The idea came as a sudden inspiration while Judith was checking over household accounts for the week. She sat at her writing desk, neat pad of paper before her and pencil in hand; but instead of copying figues and adding them in tidy columns, Judith was making odd little squares and circles and then blackening them.

Andy Craig!

As though a sudden ray of light had come pouring through the window, writing Andy's name in letters of gold and scattering the desolation, Judith sat up very straight in her chair. Of course Andy was the one person to whom to appeal.

She hurried downstairs, passed through the living room into Arthur's study and shut the door carefully behind her. Then she took down the telephone receiver and called the number of Hunter Brothers.

Quite recklessly she asked to speak to Andrew Craig and then, when she heard his voice, announced, "This is Judith."

The young man's tone expressed surprise.

"Well—good morning! I feel highly honored."

Judith was in no mood for light pleasantries.

"Listen, Andy," she said earnestly. "I've got to see you. Just as soon a spossible! It's very important."

"I hope nothing—"

"No. I can't tell you anything at all just now. It's something I'm sure you can help me with, though. If I come in at noon can I meet you somewhere?"

He assured her that was possible and said he was leaving the office at 12 o'clock.

"Then I'll meet you anywhere you say at that time. Where shall it be?"

Craig urged her to set the meeting place herself. Judith thought swiftly.

"Let's make it that 'Rookery' place that Tony took us to. It's quite near the Hunter building. You remember?"

Yes. Craig remembered. He said he would meet her there at 10 minutes past 12 o'clock. Judith replaced the receiver of the telephone satisfied.

She was waiting in The Rookery when Andy Craig's towering six feet loomed in the doorway. He scanned the room, found her and went over to the table at which she sat.

After that Judith and the young man sat in serious conversation for nearly 40 minutes. The girl did most of the talking. She reviewed the turbulence of the home which she had just left. Craig listened and now and then interrupted to ask questions.

At the close of the conversation, just before they got up to leave, a silence fell between them.

"I don't know how much good it will do, Judith," Andy said finally. "I'm not very hopeful but I'll try."

Apparently this answer was what Judith had been waiting for.

"Oh, but I'm sure you can do it!" she told him eagerly. Her face brightened and she smiled. "It's time to be going now," she added, and both of them arose.

Craig paid the check and the two stepped out on the street. They turned and walked away together toward the right.

They were an attractive looking couple together. Judith, trying to fit her steps to the swinging strides of the man, chatted gaily now that the serious business of the interview was ended.

It was not, however, because the man and the girl looked so attractive together that a third person, a man on the opposite side of the street, paused to watch them.

The man was Arthur Knight. He was walking from the opposite direction and he had been just in time to see Judith and Andy emerge from The Rookery, hesitate an instant and then start off together down the street.

As his eye first lighted upon the pair Knight started. He slowed his steps stopped and then stared across the street. Obviously, without the slightest chance for doubt, he saw his wife laughing and smiling into the eyes of Andrew Craig.

Something like a gray shadow crossed Knight's face. He continued walking, finished his errand and returned to his office.

At home that evening before the fireplace he asked in the quietest, most casual manner in the world:

"Did you run into town to amuse yourself today dear?"

His wife smiled serenely, and answered with a negative shake of the head:

"No—I was home here all afternoon."

Chrysler Speaks To Dodge Dealers

New Cars Presented With New Price List; Head Of Corporation Says Auto Industry Is Sound

Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of the Chrysler Corporation yesterday interpreted indications in the building industry, the automotive industry and national road building as proof of fundamentally sound business conditions in the United States. Approximately 1150 Dodge Brothers dealers, district managers and representatives from all parts of the country—one of the largest gatherings that ever attended an annual Dodge Brothers dealer convention—heard their chief's optimistic views.

"By the first of next May the volume of building in the United States will be greater than it was for the same period in 1929; the automobile industry will have to build 3,000,000 cars for replacement alone and the road building appropriation is more than double that of last year," said Mr. Chrysler.

Announcement of the prices on the new Dodge Brothers six and the eigth-in-line given at the meeting by Mr. Matheson was greeted by a deafening acclaim. The prices are as follows.

	Six	Eight
Phaeton	$875	$1145
Roadster	855	1095
Sedan Four-Door	865	1145
De Luxe Coupe	855	1125
Business Coupe	835	----

All prices are f. o. b. factory.

The dealers were entertained Friday night at a dinner and vaudeville entertainment in the Statler Hotel. Most of the dealers will remain in Detroit all day Sunday for conferences with factory officials demonstrations in the new cars and the signing of dealer agreements.

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

Winter is a poor time in which to test the economic efficiency of an automobile. Conditions at this time are such as to demand the use of more gasoline and oil and to put a greater strain on the moving parts of the automobile than is ordinarily the case.

Buying a new automobile today, therefore, requires consideration of this point, in order to judge it fairly. Unless the engine is operating at the proper temperature and the streets are dry and there is no heavy wind to speak of, the motorist trying out a new car will find that what the dealer or salesman says of its fuel consumption may not be exactly true.

This, however, isn't their fault. It's the fault of the weather.

Even after the motor has been warmed up, it will not be as efficient, so far as burning fuel goes, as it can be in summer. For the carburetor will feed more gasoline into the combustion chambers and the fuel mixture will be heavier than that of summer. It is the proper way for winter, but it also means more costly operation.

Of course, the difference is slight, but if it concerns the purchase or decline of a new automobile, it must be taken into consideration when the bargain is being made.

One of the accepted places for testing a new car is the steepest hill in or around town. But if there is the least bit of snow on the ground, or the street is wet, it is quite unfair to the auto dealer to make a comparison between his statements about the car and its performance at the time on the chosen incline.

For the rear, or traction, wheels may slip while climbing the hill and so use up much of the energy that should have gone into the forward motion of the car instead. The driver may feel that he is putting on too much gas in order to make a hill, while all he may be doing is trying to overcome the slipping of the wheels on the snow or slushy pavement underneath.

Or, on coming down, he may be disappointed at the failure of the brakes to hold the car back properly. But while the brakes may be holding tight, the gripped wheels may still be slipping over the wet pavement.

Therefore it is necessary to consider these factors in judging the performance of a car—the condition of the street and its probable effect on the car's movements.

If a dealer permits a prospective buyer to take a new car home and try it out for a few days, he may submit himself even further to unjust criticism. For then the driver has a chance to try the car out in heavy traffic and that, even in summer, furnishes a poor basis for comparison.

Traffic in winter is slow, stops are many and long, the motor idles longer under a heavier mixture and gears are shifted more often. To be sure, this traffic will test the shifting ease and pickup of a car better than any other, but it is a poor criterion for judging economy.

Even in summer the weather must be considered when a new automobile is being tested for performance or economy, with a view toward its purchase. For the pranks of the weather may belie the sincere statements of any salesman, even though his figures are based on scientific accuracies.

Sir Jagadish Chandra Bose, noted Hindu scientist, maintains that the hearts of plants and animals respond identically to stimuli.

Sign-Free Roads Urged To Prevent Auto Accidents

Dangers Of Methods Cited By U. S. Bureau; Curves And Grade Crossings Are Marked Places

By NEA Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — Roadside advertising on huge billboards which obscure the view and attract the attention of the motorist from his job of driving is dangerous to human safety, is the opinion of Dr. L. I. Hewes, deputy chief engineer of the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

"We know that outdoor advertising on private property interferes with highway operations, that it mars the scenery, and that at times it is even dangerous," he says.

"Outdoor advertising screams loudest on the most densely traveled roads. These are the expensive roads built and maintained and largely operated by the state highway departments. These are the roads where the operating job, already difficult, is growing constantly more difficult. There is constantly better maintenance—dust is eliminated, detours are improving, washouts are repaired with convincing dispatch, snow is removed with constantly increasing efficiency.

"Yet, it is on these roads that rural advertising thrives and confuses the driver.

"Obviously a driver needs his whole attention on the road and crossing signals when approaching a grade crossing. Any advertisement may distract him. Similar provisions with similar exceptions, apply to highway intersections and sharp highway curves.

"There is in the legislation much variation. No state absolutely prohibits the display of advertising within public view of the highway. In fact, one state makes it a misdemeanor to remove advertising signs from the right of way.

"There is, in the newer laws, a marked evidence of the recognition of danger at curves and at railroad grade crossing. Many state laws forbid signs along the highway within a distance varying from 300 to 1000 feet of such crossings. Some states weaken, however, and permit legal officers to tolerate signs even within the danger limit when judged not obstructive to view.

"It would seem that highway officials could demand that the rural right of way be entirely free of any outdoor advertising whatever. To eliminate further the advertising nuisance, wider rights of way would help."

PAMPHLETS ARE OUT

Laws On Motor Vehicles In Texas Are Published

AUSTIN, Feb. 1. (AP)—Ten thousand pamphlets containing an up-to-date compilation of all Texas laws relating to motor vehicles, highway traffic and automobile registration are off the press and several hundred already have been distributed.

L. G. Phares, chief of the State highway patrol, who supervised issuance of the 175-page pamphlet, said the booklets would be supplied any person requesting them.

The State Highway department is preparing a classification of automobile license numbers by counties. Police officers particularly have requested that information so they may ascertain quickly from what county an automobile comes. These pamphlets are to be printed to the number of 7,500 and will be furnished on request.

The national park at Hot Springs, Arkansas, was the first one created in the United States. It was established in 1832.

Freeze Is Rather Costly to Towns

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 1. (AP)—Recent freezing weather cost Port Arthur home owners approximately $75,000 in bursted pipes, water meters and hot water heaters, according to a survey by plumbing companies.

It was said to have been the greatest financial loss from cold ever experienced here. D. Hinrichs, city plumbing inspector, said at least one house out of every ten had bursted water pipes.

Colorado Reports $3,500 In Damages

COLORADO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Loss to the city of Colorado due to frozen water mains was placed at approximately $3,000 by H. L. Htuchinson mayor. Pipes buried two or more feet under ground froze and burst during the January cold. Some loss also was suffered by residents, pipes in many homes having burst.

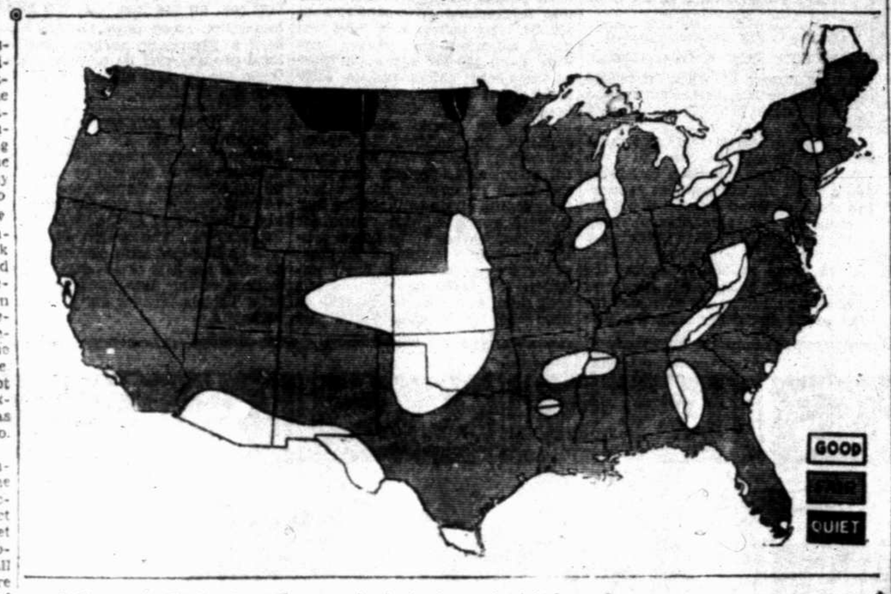
Business Seems To Be Moving Along About As Usual In United States, Survey Of Nation Shows; Retail Trade Continues Pace; Market Crash Is Ineffective



(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The dismal predictions concerning the business outlook which were so frequently heard immediately following the stock market crash failed to materialize. Instead, trade and industry seem to be moving along about normal, with volume at the beginning of the New Year only slightly under that of a year ago.

In his monthly business review published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Frank Greene, reports that wholesale and jobbing trade and industry in December quieted somewhat more than was the case a year ago. But retail trade although reduced somewhat by a severe winter storm, he adds, kept up a fairly good pace as regards volume, with some doubt existing as to whether dollar expenditures were quite as great as during the like months a year ago.

Phenomena Absent

"In looking forward to the coming year's business," Mr. Greene says, "one who remembers what occurred in the old days as a direct result of a big break in the market is impressed with the relative absence of many phenomena once all too familiar. For instance, compare the autumn of 1929 with that of 1907. In the latter year, following the stock market break, there came a currency panic, closing of banks and a heavy volume of failures of brokerage concerns. In 1929 this latter phenomena was almost entirely absent despite an enormously larger public interest in the market. One reason possibly for this was the longer time taken in the market liquidation last autumn, another the warnings issued from time to time another the very long margins insisted upon.

"Another feature that has come sharply to mind has been the remarkable mobility displayed by industry in reducing operations to avoid rolling up of burdensome stocks. A notable absence of these latter is very generally noted. The year closed with a good deal of sobriety, but with a quietly cheerful feeling visible, part of this undoubtedly due to the wonderful rally made in November under the personal direction of the president and the heads of America's biggest business interests."

Year Sets Record

With reference to business in 1929 Mr. Greene observes that "while many new records were established, the year's leave-taking was not quite as pleasant as was most of its visit. This has resulted in a slight scaling down of the gains earlier shown, but the year set up some records that may not be equalled for a while at least.

"This was particularly the case in steel output which, according to the Iron Age estimates, gained 8.4 per cent while pig-iron output increased 11.2 per cent, both of these new high records. Pig iron's smaller gain of 5.8 per cent over 1923, the previous record, shows that there were also giants in other days.

Automobiles Break Records

"The automobile industry likewise broke all records, with an estimated gain for the year of about 25 per cent, while bituminous coal output gained 4.9 per cent and anthracite production 1.7 per cent.

"Other important gains, these mainly for 11 months, were coke production, 14.7 per cent; lake ore shipments, 20.7 per cent; cotton consumption 9.3 per cent; electricity output, 12.8 per cent; lake freight traffic, 6.9 per cent; gasoline production, 15.7 per cent; crude petroleum production, 12.5 per cent; rubber consumption, 9.4 per cent; and car loadings, 2.4 per cent. Copper shipments gained 5.9 per cent; lead shipments 4.8 per cent; and silk deliveries, 9.4 per cent.

Public Utilities Gain

"In the ten months' records we have a gain in public utility gross earnings of 3.5 per cent, in net of 16.9 per cent; in railways a gain of 4.3 per cent in gross, and of 12.8 per cent in net; in railway freight traffic of five per cent, and in shoe production of 5.1 per cent.

"Industries showing decreases include building permit values, which were 9.4 per cent less, and cement production, with a 2.9 per cent undetermined percentages. It will be seen here that building and kindred trades were all of them within the shadow of earlier overbuilding or higher money rates. These later have definitely disappeared.

Bank Clearings Up

"In financial lines for the full year, bank clearings gained 14.9 per cent and debits 15.5 per cent, new capital issues decreased a small fraction, and failures fell off 3.2 per cent while liabilities increased 21.4 per cent. New York Stock Exchange sales of stocks gained 22.2 per cent and bond sales 2.7 per cent.

"In retail trade for the year, mail-order sales gained 25.8 per cent chain-store sales 15.1 per cent, the two combined gained 20.1 per cent and department store sales increased about three per cent. Regarding this matter of chain and mail-order gains, it may be said that these figures cover all stores this year and last. Indentical store sales gains may be smaller than above.

"Crop results in 1929 were not especially enlivening. The seven leading cereal crops yielded, in the aggregate, ten per cent fewer bushels and five per cent fewer dollars, this latter calculation based on December 1 agricultural department prices in both years.

"The total value of 50 leading crops, $8,580,528,000 was the largest since 1925, gaining $85,000,000 or one per cent over 1928. The lowly potato crop was valued at $469,000,000 as against only $251,000,000 in 1928, a gain of 8 per cent on a decrease in yield of 23 per cent. The secret of this was a value per bushel due to the shorter yield. Another "lowly" crop, the peanut, showed a high-record yield as did its colleague onions, the two crops reaching new totals of production but both being well down the scale in value.

Silver production in the United States for 1929 was 69,937,000 ounces.

About 5,000 parrots have been imported through Brownsville annually.

Endurance Run Of Chrysler Record

World Mark Set By Stock "65" Sedan In 53,710 Mile Run Without Stop; Represents 69 Days

What is happening under the hood when an engine drives a motor car 53,710 miles without a stop?

This world's endurance record set by a Chrysler "65" stock sedan on the Avus Speedway near Berlin recently, represented 69 days, two hours and three minutes of continuous engine operation, during which time the car traveled a distance of more than two times around the world. No other car has covered a distance near this mark under similar operating conditions.

In this long grind of almost ten weeks, each piston traveled 22,748 miles up and down inside the cylinder, operating in a "roadway" only 4 1-4 inches long. The crankshaft turned over 169,567,744 times and there were 508,703,322 explosions on the pistons of the engine. Each wheel of the car made 36,472,204 revolutions.

The engine of the car gave such proof of its quality workmanship that German motor engineers will inspect the mechanical parts and check the general condition of the car. Their findings will be recorded for educational and industrial purposes.

POPULATION GREATER

Dawson County Expected To Have Over 10,000

LAMESA, Feb. 1. (Special)—The county election in 1930 in Dawson county will probably see for the last time candidates announcing for the joint office of county sheriff and tax collector. Should the 1930 census show a population of over 10,000 for Dawson county it would mean that the offices will be divided, according to Phillip Yonge, county judge. The 1930 census count will not effect the election this year in that respect it is believed.

ON AUTO ROW

NEW EIGHTS SHOWN

Activities on auto row during the past week have featured the initial showing of eight cylinder automobiles at three Lubbock motor concerns, two of which were demonstrating the first eights to be manufactured in their particular lines. The other displayed an improved eight which has been in the higher class field for some years.

Orders Are Taken

A new Oakland Eight made its appearance at Scoggin-Dickey Motor company and experienced a successful showing as did the new De Soto eight at Caprock Motor company. The latter has previously been heralded as the "Mystery Eight." Both concerns report that numerous orders have been taken for the new machines but the agents have been unable to fill all of these thus far. Sale of eight cylinder machines under $1200 brings what is considered by many a new era in the automobile industry.

NEW HUDSON SHOWN

Hub Motor company is the concern showing an improved line of 1930 Hudsons and Essex cars. Some of the most attractive jobs in the city are on display at this agency on Main street.

PLAN AUTO SHOW

Several prominent figures on auto row have started plans for another automobile show for Lubbock in 1930. Last year's exposition held at the Uptown Dance Palace was a howling success and local dealers are anxious to stage a similar event this spring. Close followers of business conditions here are of the opinion that the present era of depression will be lifted before the trees begin to put on leaves.

NEW CARS SOLD

Twenty-seven new cars have been delivered by Kuykendall Motor company thus far in January, according to an announcement made yesterday by J. V. Spikes, sales manager of the local agency.

NEW MAN HERE

A new automobile executive joined the ranks of Lubbock motor leaders last week when M. T. Birch, formerly a pominent member of the automobile dealers' fraternity at Wichita Falls, came here to take charge of the local Oldsmobile agency. C. L. and D. A. Davis will retain their connection with the concern and the business will continue to operate under the name of Davis Oldsmobile company. C. L. Davis, former Oldsmobile manager, recently assumed the managership of the Magnolia wholesale station for this territory. Mr. Birch will assume the managerial role of the Oldsmobile concern and retain the same force that has been employed by the old organization.

KUYKENDALL AT CHICAGO

G. P. Kuykendall, manager of Kuykendall Chevrolet company in this city, spent last week in Chicago where he attended the national automobile meeting and also the national automobile show, which has recently started its westward move from its starting point at New York City.

OPENING SOON

Formal opening for the new organization will be announced in the near future, Mr. Birch announces. Two carloads of new cars are en route and the entire building is to renovated.

Kent Buick company reports the sale of new cars to the following: G. L. Tuve, Marquette sedan; Southern Crude Oil company, Buick sport coupe; A. G. Glassen, Buick sedan.

PLOWS UP WATCHES

Nineteen Timepieces Found By Farmer Near Wichita

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 1. (AP)—Nineteen gold or gold plated watches have been plowed up on the S. N. Reed, farm, two miles west of O'Brien, Haskell county. Indications were they had been buried some time.

Officers believe the watches were hidden by burglars who had robbed a jewelry store, although there was no record of such loss in nearby towns.

New Auto Dealer Takes Charge Of Oldsmobile Firm

M. T. Birch, Former Dealer In Wichita Falls, Moves To Lubbock; Davis Bros. To Retain Stock

M. T. Birch, former Wichita Falls automobile dealer, has acquired the controlling interest in Davis Oldsmobile company of this city and has arrived here to take charge of the local motor car concern, it was announced yesterday by company authorities.

Prominent in Wichita Falls automobile circles for the past five years, Mr. Birch comes here with a long experience in the retail motor car business. The new dealer will assume the managerial role in the new organization but D. A. and C. L. Davis will retain their interest in the concern.

Force Is the Same

The entire force of the old organization will be retained, Mr. Birch said yesterday, including the sales, mechanical and clerical departments.

The sales staff includes C. C. Arnold, sales manager; Chas. McCook, H. S. Bright and H. H. Bailey. The mechanical department is in charge of A. H. McCook and Miss Agatha Gore will hold her position in charge of the bookkeeping department.

Orderly Readjustments In Business, Finance And Industry Are Features Of District's Status, Survey Reveals

Valley Truck Crop Damaged By Cold; Rangers Covered Cause Losses To Cattle; Finances Better

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 1.—Orderly readjustments in finance, business and industry during December were outstanding developments in the eleventh federal reserve district, according to the monthly report of the Dallas reserve bank, issued today.

Cold weather did considerable damage to truck crops in the Rio Grande Valley while on the livestock ranges cattle suffered some shrinkage, but losses were light, the report said.

Finances Better

Most notable among readjustments was that noted in finacial quarters. Member bank borrowings at the Federal Reserve bank, which during the current year, 1929, reached the highest point since 1922, were reduced from $30,876,816 on Nov. 30 to $13,290,916 on Dec. 31. While there was a temporary increase after the turn of the year, loans had fallen to $12,943,005 on January 15, 1930, and on that date were $7,353,579 less than on the same date in 1929.

"The high level of these loans during the fall months which consisted principally of borrowings of reserve city banks resulted from the cumulative effects of financial developments in eastern markets," the report said. "Easing of money rates in these centers, increased demand for commercial paper and bankers' acceptances, and the improved bond market enabled these banks to rearrange their portfolios, to reduce their indebtedness at the Federal Reserve bank and to place themselves in a position to meet the normal demand for credit during the coming year. It must be borne in mind, however, that member bank deposits reflected a further slight decline in December and were considerably smaller than a year ago.

Production To Be Cut

"Since early fall it has been increasingly apparent that the district's agricultural income would be materially lower than in either of the two preceding years due to the smaller volume of production, but the situation was accentuated by the gradually declining price of the principal commodity—cotton. The immediate effect of these factors was seen in the reduced consumer demand which in turn had a reflex action upon distribution at wholesale. The retailers in rural sections have directed their attention to the disposal of excess merchandise with the result that new purchases at wholesale have represented nearby requirements. Furthermore, reports indicate that this policy is being adhered to more closely at present than for some time past, which will tend to maintain the soundness of business.

"Despite the fact that the readjustment period coincided with the period of financial strain incident to year-end settlements, commercial failures reflected an increase which was smaller than usual at this season. During the last four months of the year both the number of defaults and the volume of indebtedness involved were materially below those for any corresponding period in ten years.

39 Businesses Fail

There were 39 business failures during December compared to 37 in November and 52 in the same period in 1928. Indebtedness involved in December amounted to $1,035,110 against $437,538 in November and $839,868 in December, 1928.

"The rains and snows during the past month were beneficial to growing crops and in most sections of the district have left a good surface and subsoil season in the ground," the report said. "Fall sown grains generally have done well but reports from some localities indicate that the hard freezes during the latter part of December and the first half of January have damaged oats to a considerable extent.

"Conditions of ranges in the eleventh district during the past month reflected the usual seasonal decline, but conditions in Southeastern Arizona and the Southern half of New Mexico are considerably better than a year ago. In Texas, while the rains and snows were beneficial to ranges and left an ample supply of moisture in the soil, the cold weather during December and the first half of January held back the growth of range vegetation and as old range feed was short in certain areas, some feeding was necessary. While cattle suffered some shrinkage during the cold waves they have remained in good flesh generally and losses were light."

Building permits at principal cities for December were valued at $7,151,906 against $5,308,963 in November and $9,755,378 in December, 1928. Valuation of permits issued during 1929 was 6.7 percent less than in 1928.

Needs Businesses

Andrews Asking for Two Stores

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ANDREWS, Feb. 1.—Andrews county, one of the most picturesque counties in Texas, from the historical standpoint, has the distinction of being without either a hardware or dry goods store.

Years ago Andrews county was a cattle center of about 2,000 population. In recent years it has dwindled to about 600 population. But the finding of oil in paying quantities in the central part of the county has given the impetus for a sudden rebirth.

Business houses of all kinds are making their homes in Andrews, the county seat, but no hardware or dry goods concern has yet arrived. The Andrews chamber of commerce, recently fomed, is searching for such businesses, and report many favorable inquiries.

CONSIDER CONTRACTS

Directors Of New Railroad To Meet February 15

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 1. (AP)—Directors of the Gulf and West Texas railroad will meet in San Antonio about February 15 to consider contracts that must be closed before construction of the new railroad can be started, according to R. W. Morrison, president.

Meanwhile, cities along the route of the proposed new line are completing subscriptions to a fund of $1,500,000 for the road. Already $1,000,000 has been subscribed for.

Death Discloses Man with Wealth

Wichita Falls Man's Death Reveals Estate Of Over $350,000; Owns Much Land In Texas Counties.

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 1. (AP) The first revelation that the late E. L. Carter was wealthy was disclosed by the filing of his will disposing of a $350,000 estate. He lived in a two-room house at Electra, near here, since 1913, and led a simple life, doing his own housekeping. He died in a Wichita Falls hospital.

Relatives who came here to close his affairs were astonished to learn he had left a sizeable fortune, according to C. P. Engelking, an attorney. The proprty, all of which has not been traced, included land in Dallas, Tarrant, Wilbarger, Archer and Hale counties, Tex., and in Virginia. There also were two automobiles which Carter used to visit his scattered properties.

Most of the estate was bequeathed to a sister in Virginia and to nieves and nephews. Three women who had cared for him during illness, also were remembered.

The will directed that Carter be buried in a metal casket in Virginia and authorized the erection of a $10,000 monument.

Scurry Farmer Is Convinced About Diversification

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SNYDER, Feb. 1—Giles Garner, pioneer farmer of West Texas has absolutely proven that poultry as a diversification project will pay big dividends.

Garner, whose farm is two miles west of Snyder on the Dal Paso Cavern highway, in 1924 established a mark for other wheat farmers to shoot at when he won a world's production per acre championship with an average of 84.15 bushels per acre. His total average over a period of 15 years in Scurry county he places at 20 bushels per acre and deducting all expenses estimates his net profit at $25 per acre. His 1929 wheat exceeded 5,000 bushels.

Takes Up Poultry

Mr. Garner's latest experiment has been with poultry when last spring he received 2,700 White Leghorn pullets which with his buildings represented an expenditure of $10,000. The pullets that were ten weeks old when they arrived here were from 250-300 egg hens, some of the baby chicks costing $2.50 each. Upon arrival here they were housed in model California type houses with several original conceptions in building innovation planned by Mr. Garner. With careful attention to feeding and care, the flock commenced to get into their laying stride with results that he was swamped with orders for eggs, many West Texas hotels taking the weekly output of 20 cases at the top market price. The foundation for 10,000 laying hens has been laid and Garner expects to have one of the most model and productive poultry ranches in the entire section. More houses are to be built as quickly as spring opens up. The experiment has been watched here by county farmers who are now sold on the idea that the best foundation stock pays. Garner has been a pioneer in various agricultural projects and he believes poultry is the greatest and safest bet of any one of them.

LAREDO, Feb. 1. (AP)—In celebration of reopening of the Mexican consulate at Laredo, after being closed for nearly a month during which time commercial interests here suffered loss of much trade with Mexico, a motorcade of business men, under auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will visit Monterrey, Mexico, on February 4.

It is expected at least 50 automobiles will comprise the goodwill party, and at least 200 representative business men will make the trip to meet with business men and residents of Monterrey and promote further commercial relations.
