Supreme Court backs death penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, in a crushing defeat for opponents of capital punishment, ruled today that state death penalty laws may not be attacked as unconstitutional even though statistics indicate they may be applied in racially biased ways.

By a 5-4 vote, the justices upheld Georgia's death penalty law.

They said statistics showing that killers of white victims draw death sentences far more frequently than killers of black victims do not establish that the Georgia system violates the Constitution's equal-protection guarantees.

The closely watched Georgia dispute, perhaps the most important capital punishment case in a decade, had been hailed as the last sweeping attack against the death penalty.

Death penalty opponents fell one vote short of casting into doubt the fates of hundreds of the nearly 1,900 men and women on death rows nationwide.

Writing for the court's majority, Justice Lewis F. Powell said the statistical study of Georgia's death penalty system "at most indicates a discrepancy that appears to correlate with race."

Powell added: "Apparent disparities in sentencing are an inevitable part of our criminal justice system. ... Where the discretion that is fundamental to our criminal process is involved, we decline to assume that what is unexplained is invidious."

The ruling upheld the death sentence given to Warren McCleskey for the 1978 murder of an Atlanta policeman.

McCleskey's hopes to avoid death in the state's electric chair had been pinned on a study by a University of Iowa law professor, David Baldus.

In his study, Baldus examined every Georgia murder conviction from 1973 to 1978 and found that those who killed whites were 11 times more likely to receive the death penalty than were those who killed blacks.

Looking at the smaller number of cases in which the greatest jury discretion was exercised in sentencing, Baldus found that killers of whites were four times more likely to receive death sentences.

"The Baldus study does not demonstrate a constitutionally significant risk of racial bias affecting the Georgia capital-sentencing process," Powell wrote today.

Senior housing addition initiated

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Paperwork was turned in Monday by Senior Citizens Inc. officials which sets in motion the application process for 16 more one-bedroom apartment units for Golden Terrace Village.

If ultimately approved, this would raise to 40 the number of units available in Snyder's first housing area for senior citizens.

Project sponsors say "if everything clicks," it is possible the additions could go to the bid process by late summer. Some six months are then estimated for construction.

Using this "best case" estimate, the units might be opened to the public by early spring of next year.

The "pre-application" for these 16 units was submitted Monday to the Abilene-based regional office for the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA).

This application includes a preliminary architectural drawing for the project, drawn up by Cameron, Alred and Associates out of Fort Worth.

The 16 units would be constructed on a two-acre tract of land located just south of the current 24 units comprising Golden Terrace Village.

Senior Citizens Inc., the nonprofit entity which administers the housing area, already owns this property. It was included in the initial purchase of some 4.3 acres of land which comprises the project site just west of College Ave. and south of 37th St.

All of the proposed units in Phase II will be one-bedroom, sponsors note. They say this has been determined the "greatest need" since a waiting list is now in effect for the one-bedroom apartments included in the first 24 units.

One of these 16 units will be designed for use by a handicapped person.

Assuming a normal retirement income, rent for the one-bedroom apartments is some $205 monthly. The two-bedroom units rent for $249.

Price tag for the new 16 units is now set at $448,000.

The cost for the first 24 units was some $537,000 for actual construction and some $96,000 for the purchase of land.

The bid for the first 24 units was let in July of 1984, and the housing area opened to the public on July 14, 1985.

The construction cost of the project is being retired through a 50-year FmHA note which is McDonald's owner...

Director approved for chamber board

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce gained a new director Tuesday as Herbie Figueredo, owner-operator of the local McDonald's, was approved by a vote of the full board.

The action came during the April meeting of chamber directors, a session which also saw the board accept an independently organized group of local business owners as a new sub-committee of the chamber.

Figueredo's appointment came as a result of the resignation of L.C. Greene, former manager for Kmart here who has since moved to Odessa to accept a similar post with Wal-Mart there.

Figueredo's membership was proposed by the executive committee of the chamber and accepted unanimously Tuesday by the board.

In other action Tuesday, directors accepted the Independent Business Association as a new sub-committee of the chamber. Bringing the request was association chairman Keith Hackfeld.

He explained the group was formed to address the problems unique to smaller, independently owned businesses in Snyder.

He called it "merchants getting together to help each other," noting that plans call for its members to sponsor group advertising and promotions.

He said they would also attempt to bring in educational seminars aimed at helping the small business owner.

Membership in the group will require a $30 per month fee which will go toward projects and promotions planned by it.

Hackfeld said some 37 local businesses have already expressed an interest in joining the organization.

As part of the motion to accept the group into the chamber, directors also named director Donna Gray as its representative to it.

Reports were offered to directors also. These included:

—A report from Roy Baze updating the board on efforts to secure a prison facility here by the Industrial Economic Development Committee. He noted the effort is now directed toward meetings with individual members of the Texas Department of Corrections board. He said July or August is the soonest he expects word regarding Snyder's chances.

—A report from Jack Smartt, head of the government affairs

Most families can get by on a mere $120,000 a year. That's what the District of Columbia pays to care for a growing welfare family in the nation's capitol.

Jacqueline Williams and her family came into the news this week after the mayor of D. C. complained about the city's growing welfare burden.

Williams has 14 children and her 15th child is on the way. She has been pregnant almost continously since she was 16 and refuses to practice any type birth control. "I don't want to mess my body up with birth control," she said.

The city is paying $10,000 a month to house and feed Williams; her second husband, Leroy; and her 14 children.

The mayor has draw some criticism for his remarks but says, "Give me everything attitude is putting an overwhelming burden on (city) services."

The government might be better off to pay welfare mothers for "not producing."

America is where every boy can grow up to be president--or at least dream about it.

A recent poll of thousands of high school juniors and seniors has come up with some surprising results. Some 75 percent said they'd like to be the president of a company when they grow up, but only one in five said he or she would want to be the president of the United States.

One observer said it may mean that the nation is swinging more to the right and to business. Most likely, kids have no desire to be turned into a political punching bag.

Modern technology is great. We have created computers, wrist-watches, radios and video games so simple that only children know how to operate 'em."

Q. — How many people have been helped financially with programs at WTC through the Noah Project and are they presently helping anyone?

A. — The reference is likely to WTC's Image program, which is not directly linked to Noah Project although some women have been referred by Noah staffers to the college class. The Image program allows women to take college-level courses while simultaneously earning their GED high school equivalency diploma. The class is still offered and, to date, 102 women have gone through it, the majority of these having their tuition and books paid for through a college grant.

Garbage headed for Texas?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A barge carrying 3,000 tons of rotting garbage from Islip, N.Y., remained outside Louisiana waters today, possibly headed for Texas.

Last week, Louisiana officials ordered the barge away from its borders, saying the bales were oozing a brown substance into the water.

Lowell Harrelson, an Alabama contractor hired to get rid of the garbage, had been rebuffed at every port as he tried to get permission to dump the load in North Carolina, Alabama and Louisiana.

Guste said apparently no agency took charge of tracking the vessel once it left Louisiana waters Saturday. In letters Tuesday, Guste asked the Environmental Protection Agency and the Coast Guard to take on the job.

"Should the barge encounter rough seas, the possibility exists that the baled garbage may fall off the barge and pose a threat to coastal areas," Guste said.

"I urge the Environmental Protection Agency to monitor movements of the barge with a view towards protection of our coastal areas," said Guste's letter to EPA Regional Administrator Robert Layton Jr. in Dallas.

EPA spokesman Roger Meacham in Dallas said the agency could do little unless a law is broken.

Meacham said the EPA has warned Harrelson and others that dumping the garbage in the ocean without a federal permit would violate U.S. law.

He said the agency suggested that Harrelson seek permission from Texas authorities to dump the garbage in a landfill in that state.

Hector Mendieta, director of the Texas Department of Health's division of solid waste management, said Monday that several private and municipal dump sites in Texas could legally handle the garbage.

"We would monitor the operation to see that it is done properly. It has been on the barge for several weeks. It's kind of smelly and it probably has a lot of flies and mosquities," Mendieta said.

He said Texas dumps frequently handle similar loads.

"What's different about this is just the fact that it is from out of state and it's been exposed to the elements for such a long period of time and it has decomposed to some degree," he said.

Parents recall horror of attack

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — As Robert Voglino responded to his daughter's cries and saw a shark biting her, he thought she might need only stitches. But after he drove the shark away by pounding on it, she raised her right arm.

"There was no flesh left for several inches above where the elbow should have been," Voglino, of Kingsland, said Tuesday. "I grabbed the stump and told her, 'Let's go to shore!'"

As April Dawn Voglino, 16, ran the 75 feet toward shore Saturday, however, the 5-foot-long shark headed toward them again in the chest-high water.

"It was getting closer, and I had the impression it was going to attempt to swim past me and go for her again," her father said. "I grabbed one of its fins sticking out of the water and attempted to hold it while she got to shore.

"I had the fin in one hand, and was trying to get a hold on it underneath with the other hand. I held it, I think for about 20 seconds and then it jerked out of my hands and swam to deeper waters.

"By this time, April was in shallow water. We both collapsed on shore from exhaustion. By now, Beth and the girls realized that something was wrong and that we weren't just playing out in the waves."

Beth Voglino, April's mother, said, "I ran down to April and Robert. Robert was still holding onto her arm, but he was very weak. From that point on I used everything I had learned in a first aid class I had taken about three years ago.

"They told us to stop the bleeding with our hands — and it worked. They told us that no one else will know what to do, that we'd have to give instructions for everything. And that was true, too."

Other people on the beach gathered around to keep April warm, she said. Some brought blankets and towels, while others moved cars to block the wind.

"A young man named James stayed right by April's head the whole time, stroking her hair, and ready to give CPR if her breathing stopped," Mrs. Voglino said. "He was praying to Jesus the whole time."

A U.S Coast Guard helicopter flew the girl to Memorial Medical Center, where doctors operated for 45 minutes to control bleeding and amputate the part of the bone still protruding, Voglino said.

Pull plug on fraud

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials and Southwestern Bell plan to arm telephone customers with information they hope will pull the plug on fraudulent telemarketing schemes.

In a Capitol news conference Tuesday, Attorney General Jim Mattox announced a joint effort to crack down on telephone schemes and to educate consumers about the fradulent companies.

Texas is one of five states participating in the effort between attorney general's offices and Southwestern Bell, officials said Tuesday.

"The Federal Trade Commission estimates people are cheated out of $1 billion per year" through telephone schemes that often are operated out of state, Mattox said.

A pamphlet being distributed by Southwestern Bell offers consumers tips on how to protect themselves from fraudulent companies.

Lung infection needs checking

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — An X-ray showed a cavity in the upper left lobe of my husband's lung. After many tests, the doctors decided that he had a fungus infection. He's on Nizoral, but is very tired all the time and is concerned about the drug's effect on his liver. Is Nizoral a good choice for treatment?

DEAR READER — Pulmonary fungus infections can be chronic and difficult to treat. They often cause weight loss, cough and loss of stamina — in short, the complications of any longstanding illness.

Nizoral (ketoconazole) is an antifungus medicine used to treat a variety of yeast infections. Although it is a useful drug, it is toxic to the liver and can produce fatigue, dizziness and somnolence. Ask the doctor to re-evaluate your husband's current clinical state. Blood tests will show if his liver is being damaged.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I used to smoke, but quit recently. I seem to have some shortness of breath, and I wonder what exercise would help to improve my lung capacity.

DEAR READER — People who stop smoking will experience breathing difficulty for several weeks or months. However, most ex-smokers can anticipate a 10 to 20 percent improvement in respiratory ability. Be patient, let nature takes its course and exercise moderately (and regularly). If you are not better in a month, see a doctor for further advice.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently I discovered a sore, bony lump on the back of my head. I had one about 10 years ago and it disappeared by itself. Should I see a doctor about this?

DEAR READER — A sore lump on the back of the head can be simply a swollen lymph gland. Lymph nodes act as filters in the body. They swell up and become tender in the presence of inflammation or irritation. If you had a similar episode in the past, I think you can safely wait a few weeks to see if the swelling goes away. If it enlarges or doesn't disappear, see a doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My son had convulsions at age 2, when he had measles. Is this common or should he be tested for epilepsy?

DEAR READER — Some children have convulsions when they are ill. These are call "febrile convulsions" and usually do not return as the child grows. Your son's pediatrician is the best judge of whether further examination is necessary.

Dow Jones soars; market rebounds

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices have rebounded from their recent doldrums, responding to a drop in interest rates and pushing the Dow Jones industrial average to its second biggest daily gain.

After being down about 20 points at mid-morning Tuesday, the Dow Jones average of 30 blue-chip stocks shot up 66.47 points to close at 2,337.07. The gain was second only to a 69.89-point jump to 2,390.34 on April 3.

Billionaire places blame at the top

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — American business problems can be traced to the corporate offices, not on the assembly line, where workers for too long have shouldered the blame, Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot told a gathering of judges, lawyers and public officials Tuesday.

"The problem is at the top," Perot said during the opening session of the 44th Annual Judicial Conference of the 5th Judicial Circuit.

He said U.S. workers have been blamed unfairly for being less productive than their Japanese counterparts.

Management decisions that affect working conditions and plant efficiency, product design, engineering and marketing all play a major role in productivity, he said. New attitudes and new business strategies must be developed to deal with foreign competitors.

A crucial holdup play

By James Jacoby

Three no-trump is a good contract, and South judged well to bid it. He might have exercised a bit more science by cue-bidding three hearts to give North a chance to show biddable spades, but he feared that North would not be able to bid no-trump. Having leaped to three no-trump, South had plenty of work to do. Two aces had to be forced out before he could take nine tricks, and it was imperative to keep East off lead at the crucial moment.

When East put up the heart queen at trick one, declarer casually played low. That was curtains for the defense. A heart was returned, won by dummy's jack. South was now able to go about his business without a worry. East would hardly have opened with a weak two-bid in hearts with two outside aces, so it really didn't matter who won the first ace. If it happened to be East, then he could not also hold the other ace, and that card could be forced out in due course with no danger. The only problem that could possibly arise with this defense would be if East had boldly bid his hearts with only five cards. (It's not recommended, but we've seen it happen.)

East did miss a chance in the defense. At the first trick he is better advised to simply play his heart nine on the eight. Declarer will now be compelled to capture that trick with the 10. If South first attacks diamonds, West will take the ace and continue hearts, setting up that suit in the East hand before the club ace has been dislodged.

AIDS test for sexual assault victims proposed by lawyer

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Sexual assault suspects should be tested for the AIDS virus so authorities can file additional charges — possibly even murder — against those who test positive, a prosecutor says.

But Alan Nudelman, supervising deputy district attorney in Santa Clara County, acknowledges that legislation or a statewide referendum may be needed to make his proposal legal.

And civil rights advocates oppose Nudelman's idea, saying such mandatory testing for the AIDS virus is an invasion of privacy.

State law allows the prison term of someone convicted of a sexual assault to be increased by five years if he is proven to have transmitted venereal diseases to his victim.

It would be illegal to do that in cases involving acquired immune deficiency syndrome, however, under a state court ruling last week that mandatory testing for the AIDS virus is prohibited by a 1985 California law.

"It's absolutely untenable to take the position that you can punish someone for transmitting syphilis, gonorrhea or herpes in the commission of a sexual assault, and not prosecute for the transmission of AIDS," Nudelman said.

Nudelman and Harry Stangel, commander of the San Jose Police Department's sexual assaults unit, have proposed that AIDS testing be added to the blood tests already routinely administered to sexual-assault suspects.

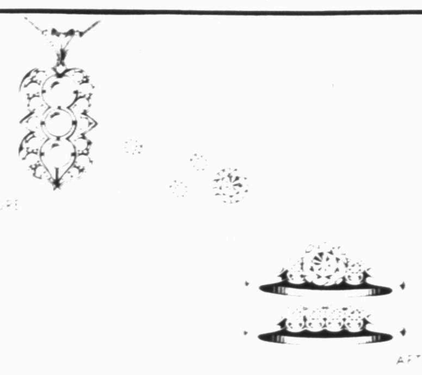

Those found to have transmitted the virus to their victims could have years added to their penalty, and could face murder charges if the victim contracted AIDS and died within three years, Nudelman said.

Last week's ruling by the 4th District Court of Appeal in San Diego came in the case of a homosexual man who bit two San Diego police officers during a demonstration, then protested when police drew blood for testing for the AIDS virus. The court disallowed the blood test.

Prosecutors who wanted to stiffen the assault charges against the man if he did have the AIDS virus say they haven't decided whether they will appeal the decision to the state Supreme Court.

"Right now, based upon the rulings at the Court of Appeal, it's either going to take some action by the Supreme Court, or it's going to take some legislation to cure what is clearly a very, very substantial shortcoming in the current state of California law," Nudelman said.

SOME OF THE THINGS DISCUSSED HERE MIGHT SHOCK YOU.

But not if you follow these tips for working around electricity while working around the house or on the job.

- Keep ladders and trimming tools away from overhead wires.
- Call an expert if your electric meter or fuse box needs to be moved.
- Don't dig if you suspect there are underground wires—call us first.
- Make sure you're clear of all wires when installing an antenna; think about where it might land if it falls during installation.
- Make sure all tools that run on electricity are properly grounded and treat them with respect.

We don't mean to alarm you. But too many people become accident statistics simply because they forget to be cautious around electricity. And that's the shocking truth.

Secretaries Pray for Patience To Make It Through Their Day

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A word about Secretaries' Day: We hear about it a month in advance through ads for cards, candies, flowers, restaurants, etc. I try to ignore it until it arrives, then I dread that day when attention is showered on the secretary.

Why the secretary? Since the birth of this day, I've been dined, flowered, candied and carded — and I must say embarrassed to death.

How about spreading the glory? Let's make it National Employees Day. Pick a day to send all employees a card, give them a flower or bring in a treat — even a warm handshake for a job well done. It would mean so much.

JUST A SECRETARY
IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR ABBY: I hate National Secretaries' Day. My boss feels obligated to take me to lunch, and I feel obligated to go. He's a nice man, but all he talks about is himself. How boring! I'm sure there are secretaries who would be thrilled to go to lunch with their bosses, but I'm not one of them.

GIRL FRIDAY IN FLORIDA

DEAR ABBY: Last year, I received a corsage — addressed to the secretary of the president of this company. It must have been a promotion dreamed up by a florist. Never mind that I am a male secretary. The corsage was beautiful — and I wore it!

MOREY IN MANHATTAN

DEAR ABBY: Please print this message to my boss on National Secretaries' Day, but don't use my real name or town: If you want to show me how much you appreciate me, skip the lunch and flowers and give me a raise.

MONEY TALKS
IN SACRAMENTO

DEAR ABBY: I am hosting a retirement party for a woman who has been my devoted secretary for 34 years. I heard that you published a prayer for secretaries several years ago. I would like to read it at the dinner.

I hope you can find it. Thanking you in advance, I am ...

IN OIL
IN MIDLAND, TEXAS

DEAR IN: You are also "in luck." Here it is:

PRAYER FOR SECRETARIES

"Dear Lord, help me to do my work well; to have the memory of an elephant, the patience of a saint and the hide of a rhinoceros. And when the boss asks me to stay late to type a three-page letter that absolutely must go out today, and he doesn't get around to signing it until tomorrow, please help me to keep my mouth shut.

"Dear Lord, never let me lose patience, even when the boss has me searching the files for hours for something that is later discovered on his desk!

"Help me to have the knowledge of a genius, although my education is limited to high school and secretarial training.

"Help me to understand and carry out all instructions without any explanation.

"Let me always know exactly where my boss is and when he will be back, even though he never tells me when he leaves.

"And Lord, when the year ends, please give me the foresight not to throw out records that will be asked for in a few days, even though I was told emphatically, 'Destroy these — they are cluttering up the place!' Amen."

Aliens' AIDS testing sought

DALLAS (AP) — A plan to screen illegal aliens for AIDS when they apply for legalization is being considered by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, an INS official said.

Those testing positive for exposure to the deadly virus woud be barred from the country, said William Zimmer, director of the INS regional processing center in Dallas.

An AIDS test is not currently a part of regulations requiring aliens who apply for legalization under the new immigration law to submit to a blood test for sexually transmitted disease.

Zimmer said Tuesday the INS wants federal public health authorities to declare acquired immune deficiency syndrome a loathsome, contagious and dangerous disease. With that classification, those who apply for legalization could be tested for exposure to the virus that causes the illness, and banned if they test positive.

Federal regulations exclude aliens from entering the United States on seven grounds, five of them involving health, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Public Health Service said Tuesday.

AIDS is not now on that list, but changes are being considered in that area, said the spokeswoman, Ellen Casselberry.

The issue is under consideration at INS headquarters in Washington and is being discussed with the Department of Health and Human Services, said Zimmer, whose Dallas office is one of four INS regional processing centers in the country.

"We feel in the INS that AIDS should be part of the dangerous and contagious diseases, but we're having difficulty with the help of the surgeon general's office in designating it as a dangerous disease," Zimmer said.

"The surgeon general has to make that call," he said.

Because aliens applying for legalization already must submit to a blood test for other sexually transmitted diseases, Zimmer said it would be logical to screen applicants with AIDS tests.

INS spokesman Duke Austin in Washington said the INS as an agency won't take a position on the AIDS testing requirements until the Public Health Service rules on whether it is an inadmissable disease.

"It's not our responsibility to make that decision. They're the ones evaluating it," he said. "It's their provision of the law. We certainly don't want to legalize people with AIDS."

As many as 3.9 million aliens nationwide are expected to seek legalization under provisions of a sweeping immigration reform act that became law last year, said Stephen Martin, commissioner of the INS southern regional office based in Dallas. The year-long amnesty period begins May 5.

Dallas immigration attorney Marcos Ronquillo said he has no problems with aliens being tested for AIDS.

Testing for tuberculosis is part of the alien screening process.

Man surrenders after he's granted live air time on TV

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A man accused of pulling a shotgun on a police officer eluded police all day Tuesday, but finally surrendered after being allowed to accuse his wife — in a live TV interview — of being unfaithful to him.

Erich Beitzel, whose age was unavailable, turned himself in Tuesday night after being interviewed live during the 10 p.m. newscast of KVIA-TV in El Paso, authorities said.

He was charged with aggravated assault on a peace officer and was being held in El Paso County Jail under $6,441 bond.

Police officer Daniel Christman said Beitzel pointed a shotgun at him when he responded to a complaint of a family fight at the Beitzel residence about 8 a.m. Tuesday.

After Beitzel's wife was taken from the house, a police tactical unit stormed the house, but found only the shotgun, officials said. Beitzel eluded arrest until his appearance on the TV interview.

During the TV interview, Beitzel said his wife was having an affair with a Silver City, N.M., police officer, whom he identified by name. He said he was being persecuted because the officer was friends with El Paso police.

Former SMU players cooperating with FBI's investigation of agents

NEW YORK (AP) - Four former Southern Methodist football players are cooperating with FBI agents in investigation of alleglations that a sports agent threatened to harm a player if he signed with another agency, Newsday reported.

Former SMU players Jerry Ball, Ronald Morris, Jeff Atkins and Terence Mann have been questioned about the activities of sports agent Norby Walters and his associate, Lloyd Bloom, the newspaper reported Tuesday.

The FBI is investigating allegations that Bloom threatened to break Morris' hands if he dropped Walters and Bloom as his agents to sign with a different sports agency.

Walters and Bloom are executives of World Sports and Entertainment Inc., whose clients have included musicians Miles Davis, Luther Vandross and Janet Jackson. The firm began representing athletes about two years ago.

Walters and his firm have filed lawsuits against several top college athletes, charging them with breach of contract. Documents in the court cases indicate that NCAA rules may have been violated when Walters gave the players money while they were still eligible to play in college.

In a telephone interview with Newsday from his home in Beaumont, Texas, Ball said Morris told him that he had been threatened by Bloom.

"On two occasions, Ron told me that Bloom said he was going to break Ron's hands," Ball said. "Then he (Morris) said, 'Well, I'm going to have a tape made. When he (Bloom) calls back, I'm going to get him to threaten me again,' and he (Bloom) did. And the reason he did was because Ron signed with (sports agent) Sherwood Blount."

Cougs' Tyner leads All-SWC golf team

DALLAS (AP) - Houston's Tray Tyner heads the 14-man All-Southwest Conference golf team released Tuesday.

The senior from Beaumont captured his first individual title of his career Sunday in winning the SWC medalist championship at the 62nd annual SWC spring tournament. Tyner tied an Atascocita Country Club course record with a 6-under par 65 in Saturday's second round and carded an 11-under par 54-hole total of 202 for the tournament.

Tyner was one of five unanimous choices to the All-SWC team in a vote by the conference's golf coaches. The others were Rice's Jon Christian, Texas' Bob Estes, Texas A&M's Roy Mackenzie, and TCU's Gavin Munro.

Arkansas junior John Sadie was named on eight ballots. Receiving seven votes each were Arkansas junior John Daly, Houston sophomore Jaime Gomez, SMU junior Russell Beiersdorf, and Texas senior Todd Franks. A&M's Randy Wylie was named on six ballots. There was a tie for the 12th and final position by Arkansas junior Chris Little, Baylor senior Steve Shields, and Texas senior Kyle Coody with three votes each.

Texas A&M coach Bob Ellis earned the consensus vote of his peers as the SWC's Coach of the Year.

Longhorns leading women's tournament

SUGAR LAND, Texas (AP) - Texas' Lady Longhorns took a 16-stroke lead into today's final round of the fifth annual Southwest Conference women's golf championship.

In second place was defending champion Southern Methodist, with Texas Christian another 12 strokes back after Tuesday's second round. Texas A&M was another nine strokes back, at 628, followed by Texas Tech at 634.

Texas broke the 300 mark for the second consecutive day on Tuesday, shooting a 299 to go with Monday's total of 292 at the Sweetwater Country Club course.

The top four positions in the individual standings belonged to Texas after two rounds. Sophomore Kate Golden fired an even-par 72 to tie teammate Jenny Germs Tuesday at 147.

Germs, who broke par Monday with a 2-under 70 performance, turned in a second-round 77 but managed to hold on to a share of the lead. Lisa DePaulo, the only senior on the Texas squad, shot 78 Tuesday and is now in sole possession of third place individually at 148.

Junior Sue Ginter, the SWC's defending champion, encountered difficulties over Sweetwater's back nine and ballooned to 77 for the day. Still, Ginter holds a 36-hole score of 149, tying SMU's Tami Henningsen for fourth.

BASEBALL

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth has fined Seattle Mariners owner George Argyros $10,000 for congratulating Padres manager Larry Bowa.

Argyros, who is trying to buy the San Diego team and sell the Mariners, had been ordered by Ueberroth to avoid any contact with Padres personnel until both transactions were completed.

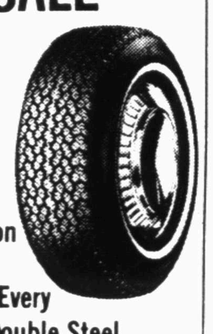

The fine stemmed from a telephone conversation between Argyros and Bowa on Thursday following the Padres' 3-2 win over the Los Angeles Dodgers in 10 innings.

Rangers break losing streak with 6-4 victory over Orioles

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - "The weight of the world isn't off our shoulders yet, but it's a start," 39-year-old right-hander Charlie Hough said after pitching the Texas Rangers out of a nine-game losing streak with a 6-4 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

Hough went the distance Tuesday in squaring his record at 1-1, allowing 10 hits while walking three and striking out seven.

"I didn't have a very good knuckleball early on, and I got away with some mistakes," Hough continued. "Maybe I was just due to win one."

He bested Oriole left-hander Mike Flanagan, who also went the distance and allowed seven hits, three of which were home runs by Ruben Sierra, Larry Parrish and Scott Fletcher.

Sierra's homer, his first of the season, was a three-run shot in the first that gave the Rangers a 4-1 lead.

"I was sure happy to see those early runs," said Hough, who gave up two hits, two walks and hit a batter in the first inning, giving the Orioles a run. "The way I was pitching, I figured I'd need all the runs we could get."

Hough retired the side in order in only two innings and threw 149 pitches.

"Charlie had six days off before tonight," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said. "I wanted him to stay in the game. I've seen him get guys out with nothing pitches and I've seen him will guys out."

Valentine made a trip to the mound in the ninth after the Orioles had scored a run to make it 6-4, had a runner on second and Fred Lynn at the plate representing the tying run.

"I wasn't going to take him out unless he told me he was on his last leg," said Valentine. "He told me he could get the guy out, so I told him to go get him."

Hough fanned Lynn to end the fourth longest losing streak in the franchise's history.

"The thing that really showed the kind of champion Charlie is was in the fifth," said Valentine. "With runners on first and third and no outs, he keeps them off the board. That turned it around for us."

Orioles manager Cal Ripken Sr., who was thrown out of the game in the ninth for arguing a strike call by umpire Greg Kosc, said Flanagan "needs to learn how to pitch nine good innings instead of eight."

The Rangers got only four hits off him after the first inning. After Parrish's solo homer in the third, Flanagan retired 12 batters in a row. Fletcher homered leading off the eighth after Flanagan threw a pitch behind Fletcher's head.

"We played very good, aggressive baseball tonight," said Valentine.

Tigers host Pecos Thursday; Monahans downs Lamesa, 6-5

Monahans clipped Lamesa 6-5 in the only 2-4A varsity baseball game played Tuesday night.

Other contests - Pecos at Snyder and Big Spring versus Fort Stockton - were postponed until Thursday because of rain.

The makeup will have Snyder's Tigers facing two of the top teams in the district on consecutive days. Coach Albert Lewis' bunch will entertain Pecos, a team tied for second place in the district, at 7 p.m. Thursday, then bus to Andrews to meet the frontrunning Mustangs on Friday at 7 p.m.

Pecos comes into Thursday's game with a 4-2 loop record, tied with Big Spring. The Eagles are 10-7 for the season.

Snyder is 2-4 in league competition and sports a .500 season average of 8-8. The Tigers are coming into the game following a 13-10 win over non-district opponent Brownfield.

Andrews is 6-0 in district play and 14-6 for the season.

Monahans' 6-5 win over Lamesa left both of those teams tied for fourth place in the 2-4A race with 3-4 records.

Astros stun Atlanta Braves

by The Associated Press

Houston Astros Manager Hal Lanier is a realist.

"You don't come back very many times with that many base hits with two outs to win a game in the last inning," Lanier said after Houston scored four runs in the ninth inning to defeat the Atlanta Braves 7-6 Tuesday night.

Alan Ashby started the inning with a solo home run. Then after two were out, the fun began for the Astros.

Paul Assenmacher walked Bill Doran, bringing on reliever Gene Garber. Billy Hatcher, who extending his hitting streak to 14 games, singled Doran to third, from where he scored on a single by Phil Garner.

Glenn Davis singled in Hatcher and an intentional walk to Kevin Bass loaded the bases, setting the stage for Denny Walling's game-winning single.

"It was a great comeback. We don't give up," said Garner, who scored on Walling's hit. "He (Garber) usually gets me out, but tonight I got ahead of him. It was a good pitch, but I waited on it."

Dale Murphy's solo homer and Glenn Hubbard's three-run double had helped give Atlanta a 6-3 lead going into the bottom of the ninth.

In other National League games, it was the New York Mets 9, Pittsburgh 6; the Chicago Cubs 5, St. Louis 4; San Diego 3, Cincinnati 2; and Los Angeles 11, San Francisco 8 in 10 innings.

Hatcher had two hits in the game, giving him nine straight games in which he has had two or more hits.

Al Hall doubled to lead off the Atlanta first and eventually scored on Gary Roenicke's sacrifice fly. Murphy then hit his third homer of the season.

Padres 3, Reds 2

Garry Templeton's two-out single in the eighth scored Steve Garvey as San Diego edged Cincinnati. Rob Murphy, 2-1, gave up an infield single to Garvey with one out, then struck out Benito Santiago and walked Marvell Wynne before Templeton delivered the game-winning hit as the Padres snapped a four-game losing streak.

Brewers' streak ends; ready to begin again

by The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Brewers have a new goal - to start a one-game winning streak.

The Brewers' major league record-tying burst of 13 straight victories at the start of the season ended Tuesday night with a 7-1 loss to the Chicago White Sox.

"Now we can get back to reality," Milwaukee Manager Tom Trebelhorn said. "We've got to go after one in a row."

The Brewers, who rallied to win eight of those 13 games, trailed 5-0 after three innings and could not come from behind again. Greg Walker and Donnie Hill hit home runs and Joel Davis and Jim Winn teamed to check visiting Milwaukee on seven hits.

Milwaukee set the American League record for consecutive victories from the start of the season with triumph No. 12 Sunday against Texas. The Brewers tied the major-league mark of a 13-0 start, set by Atlanta in 1982, by beating the White Sox on Monday night.

Despite their great start, the Brewers hold just a two-game lead in the AL East over the New York Yankees, who extended their winning streak to eight by beating Detroit 3-1 Tuesday night.

In other games, Boston trounced Kansas City 8-0, Cleveland beat Toronto 5-0, Texas defeated Baltimore 6-4, Minnesota beat Seattle 6-1 and California got past Oakland 8-5.

Red Sox 8, Royals 0

Roger Clemens, after missing all of spring training in a contract dispute and then losing his first two games of the season, flashed his 1986 form with a three-hitter against Kansas City.

Clemens held the visiting Royals hitless and had retired 16 straight batters until Frank White led off the seventh inning with a single. Clemens, 1-2, struck out six and walked one.

Dwight Evans homered and drove in four Boston runs and Bill Buckner had a pair of two-run singles.

Department proposes foreign worker rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign workers would be allowed to harvest wheat and corn but prohibited from working in cotton and soybean fields or helping with the milking under rules proposed by the Agriculture Department.

The proposal, announced Tuesday, involves definitions of fruits, vegetables and other perishable commodities that will be used to carry out the Immigration Reform Act passed by Congress last year.

Officials said the rules would help determine eligibility for temporary legal status of alien workers involved in seasonal agricultural jobs in the United States.

The proposal, which is to be open three weeks for public comment, is expected to attract a wave of protests from some agricultural interests that would be barred from hiring foreign workers, mainly migrants or temporary help from Mexico.

Al French, a USDA farm labor specialist, said the proposed regulations would prevent most farmers from employing alien workers. When grain producers are counted, about 78 percent of the farms that hire workers would be barred from employing foreigners.

The 1982 Census showed that about 850,000 farms had hired workers, either full or part time, he said. But those included all hired workers, not just aliens.

"We had received considerable comment from the livestock and dairy industry" wanting the rules to include them for alien workers, he said. But those have been excluded, and "I expect we'll hear about that."

On the other hand, all plant crops grown for human consumption would be approved for the alien work force, French said in an interview. Corn is a commodity that is expected to stir controversy because it is mostly a livestock feed in the United States, he said. However, much of the grain is exported to countries where corn is important as a food grain.

New federal regulations, including the definitions, are being drafted and will begin to take effect next month. A general amnesty is provided for aliens who can prove continuous U.S. residency since Jan. 1, 1982.

The law also provides several avenues allowing legal work in the United States by alien farm workers who have a history of helping with fruits, vegetables and other perishable products.

Qualified aliens who performed seasonal agricultural services in the United States for specified periods of time before May 1, 1986, would be allowed temporary legal status.

The language of the law defines seasonal agricultural services as "field work related to planting, cultural practices, cultivating, growing and harvesting of fruits and vegetable of every kind and other perishable commodities, as defined in regulations by the secretary of agriculture."

Under the proposal, "other perishable" commodities that meet the definition of fruits and vegetables, the seasonal field work requirements or "critical and unpredictable labor" demands, include: Christmas trees, cut flowers, herbs, hops, horticultural specialties, Spanish reeds, spices, sugarbeets and tobacco.

Field crops such as wheat, corn and rice would be among the commodities qualifying for seasonal alien labor.

Excluded from the definition would be commodities that "are not produced as a result of field work, or for which production and harvesting do not entail critical and unpredictable labor demands," the USDA said.

These include: farm-grown catfish and other aquaculture products, birds, fur-bearing animals and rabbits, hay and other forage and silage, honey, horses and other equines, livestock of all kinds including animal specialties, poultry and poultry products, trees, soybeans, sugarcane, wildlife and wool.

French said USDA has has "heard from all over the country about farmers with long-time employees who are coming forward and asking to be legalized." It may turn out that "we've been underestimating the number of alien workers" all along, he added.

The proposed rule will be open for public comment until May 13. Comments can be sent to Al French, Acting Special Assistant for Labor Affairs, Office of the Assistant Secretary for Economics, Room 227E, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250. The telephone number is 202-447-4737.

Commodities

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-value commodities such as citrus, raisins and walnuts are getting some of the largest export subsidies allocated under this year's special program to make U.S. products more attractive in world markets, an Agriculture Department listing shows.

Congress authorized Targeted Export Assistance, known as TEA, in the 1985 farm law. It allows $110 million a year through 1988 and $325 million annually in the two succeeding years.

Under the program, private commodity groups serve as the main promoters, with USDA picking up half the cost. But other federal assistance programs have been used to fortify the sales efforts, including credit packages to encourage foreign buyers to shop American.

Undersecretary Daniel G. Amstutz said Tuesday the 1987 projects, 36 in all, include horticultural products, feed grains, rice, wheat, meat, poultry, seafood, cotton, wood products and other high-value items.

One of the main qualifiers is that a sponsor be able to identify an unfair foreign trade practice and how it adversely affects U.S. exports. Another is "the organization's willingness to contribute resources to the joint project."

About $45 million of the $110 million was allocated to commodities grown mostly or exclusively in California: avocados, California and Arizona citrus, cling peaches, kiwifruit, pistachios, prunes, raisins, table grapes, almonds, navel oranges, walnuts and wine.

The U.S. Meat Export Federation received $7 million. Other major cooperators included: Cotton Council International, $6.8 million; Florida Department of Citrus, $7 million; National Peanut Council, $4.5 million; National Sunflower Association, $3 million; U.S. Feed Grains Council, $2.8 million; U.S. Poultry & Egg Export Council, $6.5 million; U.S. Rice Council, $3.5 million; and U.S. Wheat Associates, $3.1 million.

Greater share

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in Japan get a much greater share of their incomes from government benefits than do their counterparts in the United States and the European Common Market countries, an Agriculture Department report says.

"Analysis of government assistance in Japanese agriculture shows that in 1982-84 the value of government programs and border intervention equaled about 69 percent of Japanese farm income, about two and a half times the level in the United States and two times the level in the EC (European Community)," the report said Tuesday.

Levels of farm assistance varied among commodities. Japanese grain and dairy producers were the most heavily assisted, the report said. Next came beef, pork, soybean and sugar producers., Poultry and citrus producers were the least helped by government.

Blueprints given without clearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blueprints for U.S. diplomatic missions were given to foreign contractors without security clearances in Moscow and the Middle East, raising chances that the plans fell into the hands of terrorists or hostile intelligence agents, a congressional study says.

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, released the report on the eve of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee hearing scheduled today on security breaches at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

The chairman of the panel, Rep. Dan Mica, D-Fla, and the ranking minority member, Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Maine, visited Moscow this month and said Soviet workers had implanted so many listening devices in a new U.S. Embassy office building there that it may have to be torn down.

The GAO report dealt primarily with plans to build a new $9 million embassy in Beirut, the war-torn Lebanese capital where three American buildings were damaged severely by truck bombs in 1983 and 1984.

Seventeen Americans died in a truck bomb attack on the embassy April 18, 1983, 241 U.S. servicemen were killed in a similar bombing of Marine barracks at Beirut airport Oct. 23, 1983, and 14 people, including two Americans, died at the U.S. Embassy annex in another bombing Sept. 20, 1984.

Blueprints for sensitive buildings in Washington, such as the White House, Pentagon, State Department and CIA, were classified to keep them out of the hands of terrorists or hostile intelligence agents, the report said.

But the State Department "did not know how many copies of blueprints were in existence for any of its overseas projects since the prime contractors are not required to provide this information and blueprints can readily be reproduced or photocopied."

A State Department response included in the GAO report said the government tightened procedures last fall amid growing concern about the security of U.S. embassies. The department response also emphasized that blueprints for sensitive sections of the buildings were held tightly, and that work on those areas was done under U.S. supervision.

In April 1986, eight Lebanese contractors received copies of the blueprints for the planned Beirut embassy. A month later, State Department security officers rejected a proposal to screen the contractors since the plans already had been distributed and "the ability to conduct investigation in Beirut was severely limited," the report said.

As a result, it said, "only the successful (bidder) would be screened."

Plant dismantling angers residents

SAXTON, Pa. (AP) — A pioneer nuclear plant, built 25 years ago at the dawn of the nuclear power age, sits mothballed behind a locked fence, its fuel gone and its control room gutted. It's ready for dismantling, but townspeople are wary about that sort of pioneering.

The owner, General Public Utilities Corp., wants to take down five structures this year and ultimately remove the reactor vessel to purge the site of radioactivity. GPU says the deteriorated buildings pose a risk to workers and are costly to maintain.

But some residents want the company to wait until the radioactivity decays to less potent levels and more is known about dismantling nuclear plants. They also lack faith in the company because it failed to inform them about radioactive leaks in the 1970s.

"Dismantling these things is a very new procedure. We did our bit for nuclear power. Let them learn someplace else," said Ernest Fuller, 42, a computer consultant who lives in nearby Six Mile Run.

"I don't trust General Public Utilities. They have a poor record," Fuller said. "There's no rush. Every year they wait is that much less potential for possible harm to workers and the community."

The Saxton station, the fifth in the country built by a utility, was sort of a nuclear plant with training wheels. Its 7-megawatt reactor, a dwarf to modern furnaces that churn out 100 times more power, operated from 1962 to 1972 and trained operators for GPU's plant at Three Mile Island, near Harrisburg.

The Saxton reactor was one of the first to test plutonium as a fuel. It also controlled the nuclear reaction with boron, a chemical that absorbs neutrons, which are the bullets that split atoms to release energy.

This rural central Pennsylvania hamlet, a former rail and coal town, beamed with pride at the experimental station on the West Branch of the Juniata River. Visitors were routinely taken on car tours past the domed plant.

To this day, some of Saxton's 814 residents speak favorably about it.

"We welcomed it with open arms," said Olin Horton, 65, a former mayor and head of economic development for the local Chamber of Commerce. "We were more than happy to have that plant after the coal industry went bust. It brought us into the 21st century."

After outliving its purpose, the reactor was mothballed, shut down permanently to be guarded and monitored. Its fuel was removed and buried in South Carolina.

But a controversy surfaced after the 1979 accident at Three Mile Island.

Tax ban's fate is uncertain

AUSTIN (AP) — House leaders are unsure of the Senate fate awaiting a proposed constitutional amendment that would prohibit personal or corporate state income taxes unless voters give their permission.

"It's been over there before and they haven't taken any action on it. I would hesitate to forecast," House Speaker Gib Lewis said after representatives voted 106-35 Tuesday to approve the amendment.

Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, sponsor of the proposal he said would give voters the final say, called it "a fair compromise." But he declined to predict what senators would do.

Schlueter said that under the proposal, any income tax plan placed before voters first would have to pass both the House and Senate. That means voters would know precisely what kind of tax they would be paying, what the rates would be and what deductions would be allowed if they appoved it, he said.

"This allows the people to find out what is going to be in an income tax before the Legislature passes it in the dark of night — which is the only way (without the constitutional amendment) it would pass if it could pass," Schlueter said.

The proposed constitutional change also would require the Legislature to return to voters if lawmakers wanted to raise the rates after an income tax was approved.

Opponents argued that the Legislature now has the power to enact an income tax if needed.

Motel sign, rural fence hit by truck

A Florida truck driver sustained minor injuries in a one-vehicle traffic mishap Tuesday which also damaged a local motel's highway sign and a county resident's fence.

The wreck occurred at noon Tuesday some 3 miles southeast of Snyder.

According to Department of Public Safety highway patrol reports, Virgil Alan Gillmer of St. Augustine apparently lost control of his 1980 Peterbilt tractor-trailer rig while driving west bound on U.S. Highway 84.

The rig veered off the north side of the roadway and struck a fence owned by Don Schattell of Rt. 2, Snyder and a sign owned by the Purple Sage Motel before coming to rest.

Gillmer's injuries were described as minor cuts and bruises.

Criminal trespass charges filed after Tuesday report

Police and county sheriff's deputies logged two misdemeanor arrests in response to calls late Tuesday night.

At 10:54 p.m., officers responded to a call from a resident of the 1300 Block of 20th St. reporting an unidentified male subject attempting to break into a residence at 1309 20th St.

Sheriff's deputies took a 17-year-old male suspect into custody at that location on charges of criminal trespass.

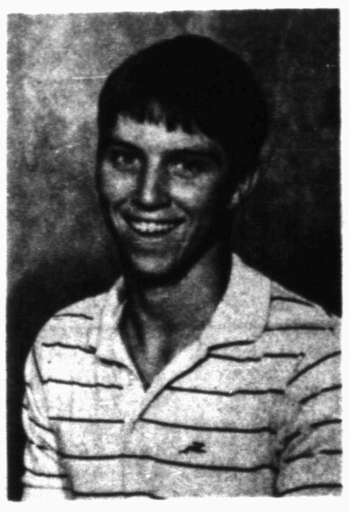

A 19-year-old Snyder man was jailed on charges of misdemeanor assault, escape and public intoxication following a call to a domestic disturbance in the 1400 Block of Ave. M at midnight.

The suspect was taken into custody there for allegedly assaulting a woman and for public intoxication.

He reportedly broke free from officers at the scene and fled on foot.

He was picked up a short while later near the intersection of 20th and Scott St. after a resident of that area reported a man wearing handcuffs standing at her back door.

He remained in custody Wednesday morning pending a hearing and bond setting.

JAY MAYO

Mayo elected class senator

BROWNWOOD--Jay Neal Mayo of Snyder was elected as a junior class senator on Howard Payne University's Student Association Senate during a recent campus-wide election. Mayo will serve in that capacity during the 1987-88 school term. He currently serves as sophomore class senator.

The senate, elected by the student body, functions as the official voice of the student body and acts as a liaison between the students and the university administration.

Mayo, a 1985 graduate of Snyder High School, is a sophomore in Howard Payne's Douglas MacArthur Academy of Freedom honors program. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Mayo of Snyder.

Plaintiffs are not surprised by ruling

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Martha Laird was not a bit surprised by an appellate court's ruling that the government can't be blamed for her son's death from leukemia 30 years ago despite nuclear tests near her former home.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver on Monday overturned a 1984 decision that the federal government negligently failed to warn residents of southern Utah, southern Nevada and northern Arizona of radiation hazards from above-ground nuclear blasts at the Nevada Test Site from 1951 to 1962.

"They're never responsible for anything, are they?," Laird, a plaintiff in the case, said Tuesday from Carson City, Nev. "I'm very disgusted, but I'm not surprised."

In striking down the ruling by U.S. District Judge Bruce Jenkins of Utah, the three-judge panel held that the government is immune from claims for injuries suffered as a result of an official decision.

In a similar ruling filed Friday, the 10th Circuit also said that the government cannot be held liable for failing to warn southern Utah uranium miners of radiation dangers.

In that 16-page decision, a three-judge appeals court panel affirmed a Utah federal judge's finding that the United States cannot be held liable for keeping miners ignorant of radon dangers in the Marysvale-area uranium mines 36 years ago.

In July 1985, U.S. District Senior Judge Aldon J. Anderson granted summary judgment to the federal government, ruling failure to warn the miners of the hazards was a government policy decision and was therefore protected.

Jenkins' ruling went the other way. He presided over a 13-week trial in 1982 in which 1,200 plaintiffs contended that fallout caused friends and family members to sicken or die from cancer and other maladies despite official assurances the fallout was not dangerous.

The judge chose 24 claims representative of different forms of illness. In 1984, he issued a 500-page ruling that government negligence led to the cancers of nine people and awarded their families $2.6 million.

However, the appeals court ruling said the government could not be held liable because of the discretionary powers given to the now-defunct Atomic Energy Commission.

Presiding Judge Monroe McKay wrote in a concurring opinion, "Until Congress amends the discretionary function exception to the (federal Tort Claims Act) or passes a specific relief bill for individual victims, we have no choice but to leave them uncompensated."

Plaintiffs' attorneys have vowed to appeal the ruling as far as the U.S. Supreme Court, and at least two Utah politicians say they will seek congressional action to compensate families for fallout-related injuries or deaths.

Government attorneys on Tuesday declined to comment on the appellate decision.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, whose fallout compensation legislation failed in the Senate in 1985, said an appeal to the high court would be a "very difficult way to go."

"We need legislation that can resolve these terrible problems," he said.

Laird, 62, lived with her family on a ranch just 80 miles north of the test site from 1951 to 1958. She said government officials never acknowledged the danger of radioactive fallout.

But she recalls how dozens of above-ground detonations sent roiling red clouds of radioactive fallout on prevailing northwesterly winds.

American jailed on spy charge

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An Iranian court sentenced an American who confessed to spying for the CIA to 10 years in jail, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported today.

Jon Pattis, 50, a telecommunications engineer for Cosmos Engineers, of Bethesda, Md., was arrested in June 1986 while working at the Asadabad communications center 200 miles southwest of Iran's capital, Tehran.

In an interview broadcast by Iran's state television in October, Pattis confessed reporting to the CIA through his company about Iranian military activities, oil production, inflation and the distribution of foodstuffs.

He also said he provided information on the Asadabad center and a warning system that was supposed to protect it against attacks. His arrest came after an Iraqi air raid on the center temporarily knocked out Iran's communications with the outside world.
