Italians Advance In Desert War, Despite Bombing Raids

Britons Believe Blitzkrieg May Be Called Off

Indications Are War To Continue Another Winter

(By The Associated Press)

STRONG Italian armored columns harassed almost continuously from the air, yesterday advanced through hot wastelands on the main British positions in British Somaliland and stepped up the tempo of the desert war by fiercely bombing the protectorate of Aden to highlight activity in the ever-spreading war of the Old World.

The British—stil lapparently depending upon the impersonal malignancy of the desert to cut down many of the invaders as always it has done—were active mainly with their aviation.

Through Another Winter

Signs that both Britain and Germany expect the European war to drag in stalemate through another winter shifted attention last night to the struggle in Africa and even there waiting tactics were indicated.

Although Nazi warplanes struck heavily in widespread raids on Britain Saturday, Britons were optimistic that the time had passed for a Nazi blitzkrieg attempt—perhaps forever.

This week would have been the most favorable for sea-borne invasion, because high tides would have swept Nazi barges farthest up British beaches. By the end of September, Britons say, enshrouding fogs and dwindling hours of sun will have thrown a protective mantle over the island kingdom and by spring when good weather returns, they add, Britain will be ready to take the offensive herself.

Nazi Warns Again

A hint that this optimism may be unwarranted came from Vienna, however, where Adolf Hitler's deputy for Nazi party affairs, Rudolf Hess, declared that "the moment is now at hand to break England's power even to the ruination of the entire empire."

Assailing Britain for spurning Hitler's "last chance" peace offer, Hess said the Axis partners, might was so overpowering that there could not be "the slightest doubt" about the outcome of their attack.

At the same time, the British admiralty disclosed that the 1,475-ton, ocean-going submarine Odin, with a normal complement of 50 men, "is considerably overdue and must be presumed lost." Britain now has admitted losing 12 submarines.

Houses Damaged

The British, reporting only damage "to houses" and unstated civilian deaths and injuries in renewed heavy German aerial assaults in which whistling bombs and machine-gun fire rained on scattered

Jim Farley Becomes Coca Cola Promoter

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 10. (AP)—The salesmanship ability that made James A. Farley the Democratic party's master politician for the past eight years landed him a job today as chief promoter of Coca Cola sales abroad.

He will take "at least a month's rest" after his retirement this month as Democratic national chairman and postmaster general, and then will become chairman of the Coca-Cola Export corporation.

A company spokesman here and a close friend of Farley in New York said the appointment would not interfere with "Genial Jim's" negotiations to buy the New York Yankees American league baseball club. The deal probably will be completed next week, the New York friend said.

He Likes Visits If His Leg Holds Out

DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 10. (AP)—Six year old Johnny Houchins is planning many happy visits with his grandmother—if his left leg holds out.

Residents Evacuate In Face Of Floods

FREED: Mrs. Louise Carpenter, 75, above, was found chained to a wall of an unfinished room in her son's frame cottage at Niagara Falls, N. Y. State police arrested her son, Gordon, 34, and his wife after the discovery.

(By The Associated Press)

CROWLEY, La, Aug. 10.—Evacuation of flood refugees in box cars to nearby LaFayette from this inundated southwest Louisiana "Rice Bowl" city was under way tonight.

An emergency organization at LaFayette, 25 miles away and itself drying out after high waters following days of torrential downpour, sent two trains of box cars to remove as many as 5,000 persons from Crowley, whose 10,000 normal population was swelled to 13,000 by nearby residents fleeing flood waters.

Steve Alford, state superintendent of police, assigned two divisions of his men to Crowley and two to LaFayette to aid the transfer.

Two To 8 Feet Deep

Water stood two to eight feet deep, except for a stretch along the railroad right of way. Refugees had been crowded into school houses and other public buildings for two days with short food and water supplies.

Coast guard boats were bringing bread and milk to refugees here and at Gueydan, where hundreds of persons were stranded, many of them French Acadians who speak only their native patois. Many of those at Gueydan had been evacuated by boat west to Lake Charles.

Cry For Help

Nobles Chambers, chairman of the Arcadia Parish Red Cross chapter, issued an urgent appeal for help.

"For God's sake send us help," he he said. "We need boats and food."

Miss Margaret Moore, field secretary for the American Red Cross at New Orleans said flood refugees in this section had increased to 13,000.

Rains since the Gulf storm of last Tuesday have measured up to 24 inches in parts of southwest Louisiana, and enormous crop damage is forecast by Louisiana State university extension workers.

Fleet Is Ready

From Jennings, La., came the statement that a fleet of 15 boats stood ready for movement toward Crowley for removal of the most urgent cases among the refugees.

The Red Cross activities at New Orleans included mobilizing of flatboats which could negotiate the bayous and backwaters of this section.

A second relief train was being loaded at New Orleans also, Red Cross officials announced.

Governor Sam Jones at Baton Rouge said all relief agencies had been co-ordinated under the Red Cross, and that everything possible was being done to insure quick relief.

In Washington the Red Cross announced that 11 disaster relief workers had been sent to the flood-

Decision Will Be Made On Food Stamps Monday

By H. I. KIEFER
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

MEMBERS of the City commission will meet jointly with the County Commissioners court Monday for a definite decision on whether they are willing to enter into a final contract to bring the federal food stamp plan to Lubbock.

This announcement was made Saturday following the return of a Lubbock delegation from Wichita Falls where members studied briefly the operations of the stamp plan there.

Expectation is, the officials said, that Monday's conferences will include a representative of the Federal Surplus Marketing administration under which the stamp plan is operated. He was directed to report here after application to establish the plan in Lubbock and Hale counties had been approved last week by the Department of Agriculture in Washington.

Decision Yet Uncertain

Some uncertainty was expressed Saturday, however, as to whether Lubbock has anything to gain from embarking definitely upon participation in the plan. This grew out of the visit to Wichita Falls by County Commissioners P. B. Penney, T. L. Holt and Ben Mansker, City Manager W. H. Rodgers, and Executive Secretary Joe Wilson of the City-County Welfare associations.

The returned officials were agreed that the plan has worked to excellent advantage in Wichita county.

They expressed the opinion that the same system of operation would work successfully in Lubbock county.

But, they emphasized, there are important differences in the plan as operated in Wichita county and as proposed for operation in Lub-

Victim Of Attack By Negro Dies Saturday

FORT WORTH, Aug. 10. (AP)—Mrs. Horton B. Allen, 19, victim of an attack at Grandview Thursday, died in a hospital here tonight.

About 45 minutes before her death Sheriff Oran Smith of Johnson county had left Tarrant county jail for an undisclosed destination with Tommy Harris, negro charged with criminal assault in connection with the attack.

Mrs. Allen, wife of a Grandview grocery clerk, was beaten and stabbed. She was delivered early today of an infant born dead. Four blood transfusions were given in an effort to save her life.

Harris was brought here soon after his arrest for safekeeping against possible mob violence. Sheriff Smith removed him to another jail.

Charges Hurled In Tax Hearing

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Booming voiced Senator Clark (D-Mo), long-time critic of munitions manufacturers, hurled into a congressional tax hearing today the charge that a proposed excess profits levy was "sugar coating" to make preferential tax treatment for defense contractors more "palatable" to the public.

John L. Sullivan, assistant treasury secretary, declared he did not believe the charge was true, stating that the levy on war profits had been planned prior to the time that the question of amortizing defense plant expansions was raised.

Could Expand Free

The amortization plan would permit corporations which expand their plants for defense purposes to deduct over a period of five years the entire cost of such additions. Under a House tax subcommittee recommendation, this plan would be coupled, in a single bill, with a 25 to 40 per cent excess profits tax and a provision repealing the Vinson-Trammell act's limitations of 8 and 7 per cent on the profits from warships and aircraft.

Inquiries of Sullivan at a hearing before both House Ways and Means and Senate Finance committeemen, developed a treasury estimate that

Prospects Good For Rain On Plains Today

Threatening clouds hung low over Lubbock at midnight, pointing their threats at a drouth condition only partially relieved by rains early this week.

The thermometer Saturday started back in the general direction of its position before the first showers fell Monday after a dry July. The mercury climbed to 98 degrees, more than 10 above the Friday high, at the main line station of West Texas Gas company.

A drop was expected today due to the clouded condition and accompanying breezes.

FDR Satisfied With Defense Work In U. S.

Inspection Made By Chief; Full Capacity Sought

(By The Associated Press)

BOSTON, Aug. 10. — President Roosevelt asserted today that "we are really getting into our stride" on the $10,000,000,000 defense program.

He told reporters that fact was demonstrated on his inspection during the day of the Portsmouth and Boston navy yards and the army arsenal at Watertown, Mass.

Chief Satisfied

At an informal conference outside the administration building at watertown, the chief executive was asked whether he was satisfied with what he had seen on the tour of vital New England defense projects.

"Very much, very much," he replied. "Things are going along awfully well. I'm very well pleased with all I saw today, and it shows we are really getting into our stride.

"I hope by late fall all the navy yards and army arsenals will be at full production. The cheapest way to produce war materials is to run at full production."

Near Capacity

Starting out early this morning for a personal look at defense installations, Mr. Roosevelt had seen work underway on submarines at Portsmouth, destroyer and and airplane tender construction at Boston, and the processing of steel into big guns at Watertown.

Before driving back from Watertown to the Boston navy yard to board his yacht Potomac and spend Sunday at sea, the president said he was glad to know the arsenal was operating at about 75 per cent of capacity and that the navy yards "also are working pretty near to capacity."

He shunted aside a question whether anyone within the administration had approached Wendell L. Willkie about a rapproachment on foreign policy.

Hasn't Seen Papers

Newsmen wanted to know whether the president had seen a statement by the Republican nominee in morning papers to the effect the certain persons had approached Willkie to suggest an agreement be

Contract Is Let For Girls' Dormitory At Texas Tech

RELIEF from congested housing conditions for women students at Texas Technological college was seen in the awarding Saturday of the contract for a new $400,000 dormitory to be completed by September, 1941.

W. G. McMillan, Lubbock contractor, presented the low bid of $253,400 for the general contract. Bids were opened when members of the Texas Tech board of directors met at the office of Wyatt C. Hedrick, architect, in Fort Worth.

Construction will start in a few days on the new building which will accommodate 365 girls, McMillan said.

Press Building Included

The board also approved plans for a $50,000 press building to house the college publications and public relations department. Plans for the building probably will be available next week, it was announced.

The press building will be constructed north of the new library building. It will be two stories and cover a floor space of approximately 40x105 feet.

Both buildings will be of Spanish architecture, matching other building on the college campus.

Other successful bidders on the dormitory were Roche Newton of Lubbock, plumbing, heating and ventilation $56,575; and Empire Electric company of Fort Worth, electrical wiring $17,488.

Location Given

The general contract was signed at the Saturday meeting by Joe T. Sneed, jr., of Amarillo, board president; W. T. Gaston, college business manager and board secretary, and McMillan.

The women's building will be situated approximately 300 feet south of the present women's dormitory and 120 feet south of the paved drive connecting with Fourteenth street at College avenue. It will face east and line up with the east wall of the present women's quarters.

In addition to housing facilities for the 365 students, there will be quarters for a supervisor, a large lounge and dining room and kitchen.

Like Men's Hall

The building will be identical with the new men's dormitory completed last year. Construction will require approximately 10 1-2 months.

Heating will be connected with the underground system in use for all other building on the campus.

Long felt need for additional quarters for women students will be at least partially met with the new building. Heretofore less than a fourth of the girls attending Texas Tech were housed on the campus. the present dormitory accommodating only 360 students.

College officials frequently have lamented the fact that girls have gone to other colleges because of the congested housing condition.

The three dormitories, two men's

Trail Of Crime Is Pieced Together

(By The Associated Press)

STILLWATER, Okla., Aug. 10.—Out of the muddled aftermath of a gun battle in which a woman was slain and two men wounded, officers pieced together tonight the scattered bits of a crime story reminiscent of "Pretty Boy" Floyd's day.

The shattered body of red-haired Jeanne Coffy, 30, widow of an ex-convict killed in a pistol duel three years ago, lay in an Oilton morgue as authorities sought to determine whether she died at the hands of police or her gunmen companions.

She was tossed from a speeding black sedan in downtown Oilton last night after a gunfight in which Police Chief Ben D Clark and one of Mrs. Coffy's fugitive friends, Bill Hall, 25, were badly wounded.

Farmer Kidnaped

Hall, who escaped from the Oklahoma state prison at McAlester, and Joe Lovelace 24 a fugitive from the Nebraska state prison farm at Genoa, later kidnaped a farmer and drove on to Perkins, Okla., where they were captured by two highway patrolmen.

Constable C. L. Irwin, who was with Clark when the officers shot it out at close range with the gunmen, expressed belief the woman was slain accidentally in the furious exchange.

Her body was torn by a blast from a shotgun carried by the fugitives, Irwin said, but an autopsy disclosed

Baby Who Had 'No Chance To Live,' Recovers Normally

By JACK B. KRUEGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

VAN, Van Zandt County, Texas, Aug. 10.—Vevia Marie Camper, 2 months old, spent the first night of her premature life in a cook stove oven and wears a doll dress 22 years old.

But if she draws into her infant soul nothing more than a spark from her guardian angel and namesake, nothing the years may bring can ever defeat her.

Here is the story of Vevia Marie, and it also is the story of Mrs. Vevia Swinney, 45:

Two months ago next week, in a tiny three-room farm house on a sandy road not far from Van, this infant girl came into the world—three months ahead of time. She weighed 2½ pounds.

Dr. James Montgomery looked at the wizened frame and despaired of keeping the child alive. He knew that the chances were a thousand to one. But Mrs. Swinney, a relative standing at the bedside, grimly thought otherwise.

Eyes alight, she asked if she might take care of the baby, seeing that all others had given her up for lost. She ordered someone to build a fire in the kitchen stove. Then she took the babe and placed it in the oven, cradled on a pillow. Next to the pillow she put a milk pan of

Challenge Made To Supporters Of Measure

Debate Will Be Resumed Monday In Upper House

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—A challenge to supporters of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill to submit the question of conscription to a referendum vote of the people was voiced today by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), a leader of Senate forces opposing the measure.

Contending, that popular sentiment definitely was against drafting young men into the army, Wheeler said that those who believed in the compulsory method ought to be willing to test the popularity of their views at the polls in the November general election.

Should Be Willing

"If the proponents of conscription feel that it is necessary to have the draft to save democracy, as they repeatedly have said, they ought to be willing to submit the question to the people because that would be the democratic way to ascertain the public viewpoint," Wheeler told reporters.

The practical difficulties of obtaining such a vote might be large but should not be insurmountable, he contended.

Wheeler's challenge came as proponents and opponents of the Burke-Wadsworth measure prepared for resumption of debate which began yesterday with a routine explanation of the bill by Senator Sheppard (D-Texas) and flared almost immediately into a heated controversy as to whether the United States was likely to be attacked in the near future.

Public Said Opposed

The Montana senator's confident statement that public sentiment was opposed to conscription was quickly disputed by Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, who said he thought the weight of opinion in favor of drafting men would begin to be felt heavily as debate progressed.

On the other hand, Senator Nye (R-ND), an opponent of conscription, said he thought that the Senate debate would build up so much popular opposition to the draft that even if he and others of like views were unsuccessful in defeating the measure it would almost certainly be compromised in the House.

Barkley said he was opposed to proposed compromises such as that outlined in a substitute bill by Senator Maloney (D-Conn).

Bountiful Harvests Expected In Texas After Farm And Ranch Survey Made

Prospects Are Bright Except In Panhandle; Rains Came Too Late

By L. C. SLOAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Capricious nature has blessed farm and ranch with prospects for bountiful harvest generally in Texas, a survey indicated today.

Bumper yields of hay and small grain were being stored to feed livestock. Record breaking corn crops have been made in many areas. Most ranges are excellent.

An outstanding exception to these conditions was in the drouth Panhandle where rains came too late and too light to help feed crops and ranges necessitated some cattle feeding.

The outlook for a cotton crop larger than last season's 2,846,000 bales was good at this critical growing period.

May Make Or Fail

The East Texas cotton crop can either make or fail yet, said Fred Fleming, Marshall AAA official.

"This crop will be entirely contingent on the climatic conditions for the remainder of the growing season," he said.

County Agent A. B. Jolley of Dallas said the same was true in the blackland farming area of North Texas.

In contrast to a predicted famine in unhappy Europe, Texas pantries were packed with home canned vegetables and fruits which were produced in such abundance as to find no markets in many areas.

None could say what the harvest would bring.

The state department of agriculture reported the war made price predictions impossible. Jolley believed the farmer would have to depend on government crop subsidies.

Ranchmen faced a brighter price situation than their dirt-farmer cousins.

Prices Hold Up

Fort Worth reported prices for cattle and calves had held up remarkably well on its market although some classes had declined.

Heavy steers which would have brought $10 two weeks earlier sold at $9.65 recently. Plain and common grades of cattle were down most with canner cows off as much as $2.50. Good calves, both steers and heifers, were around $9 as compared with the season's $11 peak.

Hogs sold above $6, a fair gain from the lows of a few weeks earlier. State agricultural officials predicted a bumper swine crop would accompany the larger corn production.

Ranchman have been contracting calves for fall delivery at $8.50 to as high as $10 per hundred with prospects that the animals will be in good flesh by then.

Other Prices Down

Although other sheep prices were down, lambs were slightly higher than a year ago at 6 1-2 to 7 cents per pound, San Angelo reported.

Ranchmen were able to hold their lambs and calves because of plentiful feed.

The wool market was revived during the week in anticipation of army clothing contracts. More than a half million pounds of 8 months, or short, fleeces sold at 28 to 31 1-2 cents a pound.

More than 35,000,000 pounds of wool have been sold, most of it during a burst of "war buying" in the spring. The bulk brought 30 cents a pound or more with choice lots as high as 36 cents. Texas this year will produce around 83,000,000 pounds, some as yet to be shorn.

Most Of Crop Sold

Fewer than a million pounds of an estimated 16,000,000-pound mohair crop remain unsold in Texas. Prices were around 40 cents for grown and 75 cents a pound for kid hair.

Highlights of reports by regions:

PANHANDLE—Despite one of the driest growing seasons in many years, there are a few bright spots in the agricultural picture.

Several thousand acres of potatoes have yielded as high as 200 sacks per acre and sold brought $1.25 to $1.50 per sack.

The Muleshoe area is producing its largest crops of tomatoes, beans and other vegetables. Alfalfa and feed crops are in good condition on irrigated tracts.

Rains To Help

SOUTH PLAINS—Rains came in time to help cotton and feed crops. Fields around Lubbock received nearly enough moisture to start germination of volunteer wheat.

WEST TEXAS — Cooler weather and light rains revived feed and cotton. Grass had been burning on some ranges but the quantity, as a result of a wet spring and early summer, more than offset such losses.

At San Angelo county equipment was pressed into service to assist farmers in building trench silos for the heavy feed crop.

Cotton prospects were the best in 20 years around Abilene with a bale an acre forecast if moisture conditions continue without a prolonged cloudy spell. Little milo was headed there and the market was $8 a ton.

Critical Stage

NORTH TEXAS—Cotton was in a critical stage, little damaged but needing ideal weather conditions from here on out. A promising turkey and pecan crop was in the making.

County Agent V. O. Teddlie of Sherman said recent dry hot weather had helped cotton in the section. He predicted a bumper corn crop and said pastures were in the best shape in years.

Many new trench silos were being dug in Tarrant county where cotton was above normal with practically no insect damage reported.

Picking At Peak

EAST CENTRAL TEXAS — The best corn, maize, hegari, hay and other feed crops in years were being harvested in many sections. Pastures were standing up well and livestock in good condition.

SOUTH TEXAS—Feed crops in the Houston area were the best in the memory of old timers. Pastures were in good condition. Livestock prices had been breaking for the last two weeks but still were higher than this time a year ago.

Nueces county, where cotton picking was underway, expected the crop to fall 20,000 bales below its 80,000-bale crop of last year.

Although rains set back picking the crop was reported in good condition and the yield better than expected.

Picking was at its peak in the valley.

Water Safety Instruction Will Start In City Monday; Roger Plaisted In Charge

Preparations are complete for the start Monday morning in city swimming pool in Mackenzie state park of a course of instructions to qualify new water safety instructors, according to announcement Saturday by K. N. Clapp, chairman of the water safety committee of Lubbock chapter of the Red Cross.

Roger Plaisted of St. Louis, examiner for the midwestern region and the Red Cross is due in Lubbock today to conduct the course, Clapp was advised. Plaisted has conducted water safety courses in Lubbock on previous occasions.

Enrollments Received

Instructions will be in progress from 9 a. m. until noon each day Monday through Saturday, Clapp said.

Twelve enrollments already have been received for the course, he added. Others desiring to enroll should leave their names with Clarence Mast, manager of the pool, or should be present when instructions start Monday morning, Clapp announced.

Those eligible for the instructions he said, must be 19 years of age or older, must already have successfully completed Red Cross swimming and life saving tests, and either must be instructors of water safety or have a place to instruct.

To Get Certificates

Those completing the course will be awarded certificates as water safety instructors, which is the highest obtainable from the Red Cross, Clapp said.

The course, he asserted, is in line with the Red Cross water safety program which is credited with having been a major factor in reducing drownings in the past 25 years from 10.2 in each 100,000 of population to 5.5.

However, there still is plenty of room for improvement in that record, Clapp declared. Last year, the related, more than 4,700 persons were drowned in the United States. Practically all were avoidable and would have been prevented, according to Red Cross officials, had the victim been possessed of even an elementary knowledge of swimming.

Electric Lines Are Considered

Lyntegar Electric Cooperative, Inc., serving seven counties with 690 miles of high line, has authority from Rural Electrical administration to set up a third section of 200 miles of high line to serve parts of the territory not already served, a statement from the office of Garland Pennington at Tahoka, superintendent, says.

The concern is now serving communities in Lynn, Terry, Garza, Hockley, Martin, Dawson and Borden counties, the latter three having recently been energized.

Three To The Mile

Under the proposed set-up, it will be possible for the cooperative to build high lines to serve not less than three persons to a mile, or a minimum income of $7.50 a month per mile, according to Edward P. Price, consulting engineer.

John Heck of Wilson is president of the board. Tom Garrard of Tahoka is attorney.

The statement issued by the cooperative, addressed to residents of the counties not now being served, says in part:

"The cooperative wishes to notify every one living in the territory being served by its lines, so they can take advantage of this opportunity to obtain electrical energy for their homes and places of business.

Millions Available

"The REA has available $100,000,000 for granting loans to cooperatives to build lines during the fiscal year, 1940-41, and as over $70,000,000 of this fund has already been set aside for other cooperatives, we wish to stress the importance of quick action on the part of all those who want electric service, so that the pre-allotment work can be completed as quickly as possible, and a request for the necessary funds be sent to Washington while there is money available.

"Due to the uncertainty of world conditions and the necessity for the U. S. government to spend large sums for armaments, we consider it advisable for all those who plan electricity in their homes to act now before it is too late. Get in touch with our offices at Tahoka as soon as possible."

Recently-Found Sword May Be Connecting Link In History Of La Salle Expedition

WOODVILLE, Aug. 10 (AP) — A rusty gold-hilted sword which may prove a connecting link in the hazy history of the ill-fated La Salle expedition or another early-day conquest in Texas was found recently in road excavations near here about a quarter of a mile from the banks of the Neches river.

The sword, discovered in loose dirt by a State Highway department engineer, had apparently been removed from the ground at a depth of about three feet by a construction scraper.

Although covered with rust, the fine metal of the weapon is remarkably well preserved. It is of rapier type, popular in France and Spain during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. A heavy steel pommel about three inches in circumference tops the hilt which is wrapped in heavy gold braid. A cross guard about a foot in length and an ornate steel framework provided protection for the swordman's hand. The slender blade is about 36 inches long.

Used In Dueling

The rapier was used more in dueling than in military combat, and was worn by officers and gentlemen. Ordinary soldiers were equipped with heavier sabres with sharp cutting edges.

This relic from Texas' early conquests will be turned over to state historians in an attempt to determine its origin.

Possibly the sword is a link in the history of the La Salle expedition, for among the band that set out from Matagorda bay with La Salle in an attempt to reach French colonies in Canada were several gentlemen who had volunteered to accompany the explorer in the new world.

Historians have been unable to find La Salle's burial place, but it is believed the explorer met his death at some "obscure spot on the banks of the Neches river" at the hands of his own men. Previous to his murder, his nephew and two followers were killed.

Origin Of Sword

Alonzo de Leon and Father Manzanet of Coahuila also headed expeditions along the Neches and established missions south of Nacogdoches between the Neches and Trinity rivers. Later in the seventeenth century, Don Domingo Teran de Los Rios and Father Manzanet conducted an expedition from Mexico to the Nacogdoches territory travelling along the Neches. The site of Fort Teran still may be seen a few miles up the river from the spot where the sword was found.

As these possibilities for the origin of the sword exist due to the competition between Spain and France in the East Texas territories, it is hoped it may throw some light upon obscure events in early Texas history.

Improvement Of Wheat Sought

(By The Associated Press)

AMARILLO, Aug. 10—A greater quantity and higher quality of Texas wheat will be sought by the Texas Wheat Improvement association, which recently established an office here under Frederick T. Dines.

Dines formerly was associated with Oklahoma A. & M. college, and was credited with improving wheat varieties in that state. The Texas A. and M. Experimental and Extension services will cooperate with the Wheat Improvement association's program, Dines said.

The program first was sponsored by the Amarillo Grain Exchange, seeking to reduce losses from poor quality or infected wheat. Other agencies now supporting the association are the Panhandle Bankers' association, Texas Grain Dealers' association, Panhandle Grain Dealers' association, and Texas Technological college at Lubbock.

Sponsored by the government a plant will be erected in Spain for the production of rayon, cellulose and staple fibre and will employ 3,000 men and 1,500 women.

Mansfield Raps Transportation Bill; Measure Would Boost Shipping Costs

Consideration Starts Monday

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10. (AP)—The revived Wheeler-Lea transportation bill, scheduled for consideration Monday in the House, was sharply criticized today by Chairman Mansfield (D-Tex) of the House rivers and harbors committee, who argued it would greatly increase costs of shipping southwestern farm products to eastern markets via Gulf coast ports.

Several weeks ago the measure, which would place water carriers under control of the Interstate Commerce commission, was tabled in the conference committee composed of members of the House and Seante and apparently was doomed to remain there the remainder of the session. However, failure of Congress to adjourn early as once contemplated gave it a new lease on life, and it was reported out of the conference committee with what Mansfield said were changes "designed only to get a few labor votes."

Compromise Sought

"The conference report seeks to compromise with railroad labor unions to get enough votes to put it through," said Mansfield, explaining that as reported the bill provided that in any consolidation of rail carriers that might result by its enactment, the carriers must guarantee that no employes should be thrown out of work.

"It does not in any way lessen the fundamental objections I have always held to the bill. That is that the ICC would have the power to equalize the rates of water carriers with those of rail carriers. Members of the ICC have admitted they seek this if the bill passed."

Should coast-wise freight ships be forced to charge rates equal to those of railroads for hauling agricultural commodities from Gulf points to industrial centers along the North Atlantic seaboard, southwestern farmers would stand to bear the burden of the increased cost, Mansfield contended, with consumers generally sharing in the balance of the additional rate charge.

Lowest Costs

Texas and parts of Oklahoma now enjoy about the lowest transportation costs on farm products of any section of the country, he added, because of the ability to ship by water to New York and New England, at rates far under those levied by railroads. He estimated the savings on sending a single bale of cotton to New England textile mills by water was at least $5.

The Texan acknowledged that passage of the measure would mean an increase in business for east-west railroads in the Southwest, but maintained their gain would be offset in losses of north-south lines now hauling farm commodities to ports. He said provisions of the bill would leave unaffected most of the oil shipped coastwise to the east, particularly that transported by major oil companies in their own tankers.

Work On City Hall Soon To Be Started

Work on altering and remodeling the south side of the first floor of the city hall will be started within the next two or three days, according to information given by John T. Glover, local contractor who is to supervise the work.

A few days, he explained, will be necessary to assemble the men and equipment with which to do the work. It will require the tearing out of much of the present concrete floor in that portion of the building. The space formerly was used for Central Fire station and the floor is sloped for drainage reasons.

The city water, light, and tax departments are to be moved to the first floor so they can be more conveniently reached by the public with which they have dealings.

Glover is to supervise the alterations for $10 per day under an agreement with the city commission. He is required to supply most of the equipment needed for the work to be done.

Concert By Gordon Gaines Scheduled Thursday Night

A concert by Gordon Gaines, baritone, former student of Texas Technological college and now of New York, will be presented at 8 o'clock Thursday night on the lawn south of the administration building at Texas Tech.

Gaines is soloist at the Forest Hills Long Island Christian church. The last three years he has been studying singing with Edith White Griffing in New York and also has done work in theory and piano in the Julliard School of Music.

His Third Program

This will be his third program on summer artist course programs at Tech.

Gaines won a prize in a contest sponsored by the Texas Music Teachers association in 1934 at Galveston. The following year he sang the title part of Mendelssohn's Elijah in the annual oratorio of Texas Tech, singing the entire part from memory. Three years he was chosen to sing the baritone solos in Dubois' The Seven Last Words of Christ, presented by the college chorus.

During his first year in New York he sang in the St. Bartholomew church choir under direction of David McWilliams. The next season he sang in the Roxy theater with a male quartet known as the Variety Singers.

Presented In Program

Last Feb. 13 he was presented in a public program by the New York

GORDON GAINES

Singing Teachers association, which conducts auditions for young singers each year.

It was written in a newspaper following a concert by Gaines in Abilene that, "The evening's entertainment whirled by all too swiftly yet those who heard Gordon Gaines, baritone, in concert, feel certain that they have not heard of him for the last time."

Linking Of Slaughter And Duggan Pools Is Indicated As Cochran Test Is Staked

By JOHN B. BREWER
Special Oil Writer

Principal oil developments this week in the north part of the West Texas Permian Basin were the staking of a test in Cochran county northwest of a Hockley county well further indicating the linking of the Slaughter field in Hockley and the Duggan pool in Cochran county and starting of an east offset to a north extension to Slaughter production.

One well in the Slaughter pool was completed and two Terry county wells in the south extension to the Slaughter field from Hockley and a new producer one mile southeast of the main part of the Duggan pool were testing after acidizing.

Opening Is Promised

The chief wildcat development elsewhere in the Basin was the swabbing hourly of six to eight barrels of fluid, mostly high gravity, sweet oil, by Floyd C. Dodson's No. 1 Robert Wilson in southwestern Concho county the third day after acidizing to further promise the opening of a pool.

Ward-Pecos Petroleum Corp. No. 6-DE Pecos Valley, indicated opener of a new oil bearing zone below the regular pay in the low gravity area of the Pecos Valley pool in Pecos county, was killed after flowing an estimated 500 barrels of oil and a like amount of water daily, bottomed at 2,049 feet.

The Cochran county outpost staked was Magnolia No. 1 F. L. Woodley, 580 feet out of the southeast corner of subdivision 6, league 57, Oldham county school land. It will be 1½ miles north and slightly west of Magnolia No. 1-B Mallett in Hockley county, contributor to linking the Slaughter and Duggan pools, which flowed 78 barrels of oil in two hours through a one-inch tubing choke.

To Be East Offset

The Hockley county location was staked by the San Andres Production Co. of Dallas, No. 1 Mary McRae, 440 feet out of the southwest corner of labor 32-40-Maverick. Scheduled to be drilled with rotary to 5,000 feet, unless production is obtained shallower, it will be an east offset to Geo. Etz No. 1-A Caddell, north outpost to the Slaughter pool.

J. W. Murchison No. 7 Slaughter in the Slaughter field was completed at 5,050 feet with a daily potential of 416.76 barrels of oil and gas—oil ratio of 473-1. It topped the pay at 4,990 feet and was treated with 10,000 gallons of acid. Location is 440 feet out of the southeast corner of the lease in labor 47-37-Zavalla.

In Terry county, George P. Livermore No. 2 R. D. Glimp, 440 feet out of the southeast corner of section 8-X-psl, swabbed 10 barrels of oil in six hours on a natural test through 2-inch tubing set at 5,029 feet, one foot off bottom. It was treated with 1,000 gallons of acid, failed to flow and was preparing to reacidize.

Flow Is Reported

Western States Gasoline Corp. No. 4 W. G. Frazier, 440 feet out of the southeast corner of section 9-X-psl, flowed naturally an estimated 20 barrels of oil daily by five-minute heads every six hours. The flow was through 2-inch tubing set at 5,013 feet, with the total depth 5,021 feet in lime. After treating first with 1,000, then with 3,000 gallons of acid, the well flowed 165 barrels of oil in 16 hours. It was retreated with 6,000 gallons and again was testing.

Osage Drilling Co. No. 1 Ferdinand Moore in Cochran county flowed an estimated 10 to 15 barrels of oil hourly into the pits after treating first with 1,500, then with 3,000 gallons of acid. The flow was through a one-half inch choke on 2-inch tubing set at 5,038 feet, with the total depth 5,042 feet in lime. The oil was cut one to 10 per cent by basic sediment and water. No. 1 Moore is 547 feet from the south, 510 feet from the west line of the 769-acre Moore tract in league 53, Oldham county, school land.

Past 4,805 Feet

Osage No. 1 W. R. Blake, 1½ miles south of Atlantic No. 2 Boyd, a producer on the east side of the Duggan field, and 440 feet out of the northwest corner of labor 1-53-Scurry, had drilled past 4,805 feet in lime.

Sloan & Zook and T. N. Sloan No. 1 Waples-Platter in Yoakum county had drilled to 4,058 feet in lime, was to contract to 5,080 and standardize. It topped the solid lime at 4,730 feet, 1,177 feet below sea level, about flat with Shell No. 1 Waples-Platter, a small discovery pumper three-quarters of a mile to the southwest, and cemented 7-inch casing at 4,827 feet.

Texas-Pacific and Seaboard No. 1-A Midland Farms, wildcat in the southeast corner of Andrews county, in the northeast quarter of section 34-32-ln-T&P, swabbed an estimated eight barrels of sulphur water and 10 gallons of oil hourly after plugging back from 4,888 to 4,865 feet.

Gulf No. 5 Wristen Bros. on the east side of the Shipley Permain lime pool in Ward county, in the west quarter of section 18-5-H&TC, cored ahead below 9,000 feet.

Well Is Spudded

J. W. Ellis of San Angelo spudded No. 1 A. S. Burleson in Upton county, 1 3-4 miles southeast of production in the McCamey pool and 990 from the northeast, 330 feet from the northwest line of section 65-35-H&TC.

Henry Schooler of Big Lake estimated that his No. 1 Noelke-Halff in western Crockett county, half mile west of Soma No. 1 Noelke, a pool opener, would make five million cubic feet of dry gas daily after cleaning out to the bottom following three shots, the highest from 1,000-1,050 feet. The well is in the northeast corner of section 67-1-I&GN.

Forest No. 2 Moss in Ector county, west offset No. 1 Moss, one-mile east east extension to the Addis pool and 1½-mile south extension to the Foster field, topped broken pay at 4,060 feet and drilled ahead in pay at 4,139. It is in the southwest quarter of section 42-42-2s-T&P.

Stanolind No. 1-C Midland Farms in the southwest quarter of section 35-32-ln-G&MMB&A, one mile east of the North Cowden field, topped the Yates sand at 3,120 feet, the Yates frosted quartz grains at 3,150 and drilled ahead below 4,071 feet in anhydrite.

Ray Albaugh No. 2 John Robinson, northwestern Dawson county wildcat in the northwest corner of section 54-M-EL&RR, was underreaming 5½-inch casing to 5,315 feet to shut off 4,984 feet of sulphur water. Gas showed in the bailer. Total depth was 5,384 feet in lime.

M. L. Richards No. 1 Thelma Cole, Howard county wildcat in the northwest quarter of section 12-26-H&TC, 12 miles north of the Dodge-Denman pool, was abandoned at 2,970 feet in lime after striking a hole full of sulphur water at that depth.

Attention On Johnson Test

(Special To Avalanche-Journal)

SNYDER, Aug. 10—Attention in the Sharon Ridge oil field was focused today on Mudge Oil company's No. 3 Mrs. Alva Johnson (Grace Holcomb) test, located in the north half of section 142-97-H&TC, which was drilling plug after cementing oil string at 2,200 feet.

F. W. Merrick's No. 2 Dora Roberts test, northwest corner of the southeast one-fourth, section 130-97-H&TC, was drilling at 1,632 feet. Next to the No. 3 Johnson, which is the pool's next indicated producer, the Merrick test is attracting a considerable amount of attention.

Fishing Completed

One of the Sharon pool's two northwest extension tests, Ordovician Oil company's No. 1 Riss Bishop test, southeast corner of the northwest one-fourth, section 145, was drilling at 1,747 feet following the completion of a fishing job.

D. & R. Oil company is continuing cleaning out operations in their No. 1 W. F. Burney producer, located 330 feet from the north and west lines of the northeast quarter, section 143, with oiler bottomed at 2,460 feet, total depth.

Coffield & Guthrie were cleaning out Friday for a test on their No. 2 Sterling Williams et al well, located in the northeast corner of the southwest one-fourth, section 130. Test is bottomed at 2,475 feet.

To the northwest of Snyder, Coffield & Guthrie's No. 1 J. Wright Mooar test was drilling at 4,410 feet, in exceptionally hard lime. Test, located in the center of the northwest quarter, section 334-97-H&TC, is contracted to 4,500 feet.

Uncle Sam Has Little Trouble In Finding Recruits Here; 624 Enlist In 2 Months

A total of 624 young men have enlisted in the army through the Lubbock sub-district recruiting office since it was opened on June 8, according to information given here Saturday by Lieut. George T. Coleman, recruiting officer in charge.

The information was part of that prepared for submission to Col. C. McLaughlin of El Paso, commanding officer of the El Paso district of which the Lubbock sub-district is a part.

Inspection Planned

Lieut. Coleman said he is hopeful that Col. McLaughlin, a regular army man for 41 years who has risen to his present rank after enlisting as a private in 1899, will make an inspection of the Lubbock offices in the near future.

Of the enlistments since the Lubbock sub-district was established, Lieut. Coleman said, 183 were received during the first 10 days of August, 259 during July and 182 during June. The record is believed to be one of the best of any recruiting sub-district in the United States.

Unusual among the recruits accepted during the past week, Coleman said, was one measuring 6 feet, 5 inches in height, another measuring 6 feet, 4 inches, four sets of two brothers each, and one set of three brothers.

Holds Altitude Record

Jessie L. Love of Tulia holds the altitude record for the sub-district recruiting office thus far with his 6-feet-5, with Ralph Landers of Southland, an inch shorter, a close second.

The brothers enlisted were: Jesse, Lloyd and Morris Pate of Brownfield, all assigned to the quartermasters corps, Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio; Uthell and Alton Saunders of Lamesa, assigned to the medical department, Fitzsimmons General hospital, Denver; Donald and Truett Giles of Tahoka, sent to Lowery field, Denver; Elbert and Warren Adams of Memphis, sent to infantry, Fort Sam Houston; and Virgil and Loren Praley of Wolfforth. Virgil chose the field artillery at Fort Sill, Okla., while Loren went with the air service at Lowery field.

Experience of the sub-district office thus far has been, Coleman said, that only one out of four of the young men attempting to list fails to pass the physical examination. One of the most frequent causes for rejection, he added, is the indication of hernia.

Choose Own Branch

Those eligible for enlistment, he explained, are young men between the ages of 18 and 35, with parents' consent being required for those under 21. They are permitted to choose their own branch of service and their place of assignment among those in which vacancies exist, the recruiting officer said. Recruits may be assigned at this time to any one of 14 places within the eighth corps area, he added.

Operating under the Lubbock sub-district office, located on the second floor of the federal building, are station in Amarillo, Plainview, Pampa and Childress. Two men are stationed at Amarillo and one each in the other towns.

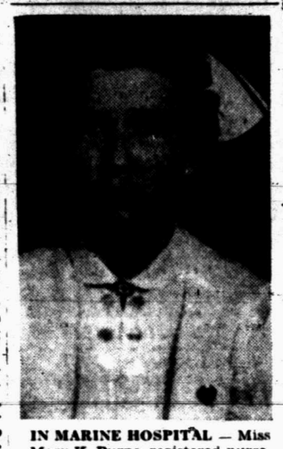

Two commissioned and five non-commissioned officers are assigned to the Lubbock office, representing an increase of three in the personnel since it was established. Members of the personnel are Lieut. Coleman, Lieut. J. T. Carroll, Sgts. E. O. Slater, Richard Novak, Jack Costello and Richard Strawbridge, and Corp. T. K. Morris. Sgt. Slater is chief clerk.

ASK FOR STAMP PLAN

DICKENS—The Dickens county commissioner's court has asked that the food stamp plan be adopted for the county. Spur Civic club has voted to cooperate and Congressman George Mahon was asked to assist.

Houston Cop Has Smile On Face, Peace In His Heart And Shine On His Gold Buttons

IN MARINE HOSPITAL — Miss Mary K. Burns, registered nurse, pictured above, has received an appointment to the United States Marine hospital at Memphis, Tenn. She was graduated from Slaton High school in 1934 and entered training at Lubbock Sanitarium School of Nursing in 1936 and was graduated in 1939. She has worked in the Swisher County hospital at Tulia and the Clovis Memorial hospital at Clovis, N. M.

HOUSTON, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—Officer T. J. Evans rode his squad car today with peace in his heart, a smile on his face and a shine on his gold-plated shirt buttons.

Those buttons cost Evans, a big man and jolly but not one to be trifled with $3 for the gold-plating—and nearly his job.

"Those buttons are real pretty," said Evans. "As far as I know I'm the only man in the department who's got 'em."

Took Off His Shirt

So pleased was Evans with his gleaming gold buttons that to protect them from the clawing hands of a drunk he was forced to subdue, he took off his shirt right before all the customers and Cashier Ruth Leo at the Chinese Village tavern then punched the disturber into submission.

Before he shoved the inebriate celebrant aside, stripped off his shirt and got the situation in hand, Evans had lost three of the gold-platers in the fight.

His superiors did not deem his shirt-shedding as proper for an officer of the law and Evans was recommended for immediate dismissal.

Up Before Superiors

Then the matter came before the civic service commission.

Commission Chairman William Marquat gave a hint as to his sentiments when he asked Police Captain J. E. Murray: "Under like conditions, with a guy pulling off your gold buttons, wouldn't you maybe yank off your shirt?"

Capt. Murray smiled.

"I might at that," he said.

"Case dismissed," Marquat ruled. "Evans goes back to work."

County Budget Is Completed

County commissioners court Monday is expected to set a date for a hearing on the proposed county budget, which has been submitted to the court by Joe Y. Boyd, county auditor.

The budget as estimated by the auditor lists possible expenditures of $303,280.55, which figure also represents the estimated total revenue for 1941 (made up of net current ad valorem taxes, delinquent taxes and other taxes and revenue, including penalties and interest on delinquent assessments).

The estimated expenditures would be $548.55 less than the current year's estimated expenditures of $303,829.10, but higher than the actual expenditures of $238,602.52 for 1939, Boyd said.

To Remain Same

The $548.55 figure also represents estimated decrease in revenues of 1940 and 1941.

Thus, Boyd arrived at conclusion the tax rate would remain the same—50 cents for the $100 assessed valuation for county tax purposes. That has been the rate since 1935.

In breaking down the 50-cent rate, it is found there will be a provision for a .0275 road and bridge levy, not provided in Lubbock county since 1931, but shaving of other funds will compensate, Boyd said. Automobile registrations substituted for the levy in those years.

The various funds:

Jury, .0550; road and bridge, .0275; general, .22; permanent improvement, .0950; library (part of the general fund), .03; park funds, .02; and the following interest and sinking funds, new courthouse, .0150; permanent improvement, .0175; road and bridge, .0025, and road bond, .0175.

Zone Meeting Of Lions Set

First meeting of the cabinet of F. V. Wallace of Dumas, district governor of district 2-T of Lions International, will be held at Hilton hotel in Lubbock Aug. 31, H. C. Pender said, in announcing a zone meeting of zone 5, region 3, the same day.

It will be a "model" zone meeting, with deputy governors and other club leaders, in attendance. At night there will be a dance and other entertainment.

Work Out Details

Details of the program are being worked out by a local group, headed by Pender, past president, and the governor.

Joe B. Nicewarmer of Morton, is zone chairman and Jim W. Peeler of Levelland, district deputy. Zone 5 includes Brownfield, Littlefield, Crosbyton, Lubbock, Denver City, Lamesa, Morton, Seagraves, Levelland and Seminole. Zone 6, in region 3 includes Dimmitt, Hale Center, Hereford, Olton, Petersburg and Plainview. T. A. Singer of Dimmitt is the chairman.

Ezelle Fox of Dumas is secretary. Deputy district governors are, G. G. Ordway, Amarillo, region 1; Henry F. Pipkin, Matador, region 2; Pascal Buckner, Big Spring, region 4; Harvey R. Gamble, El Paso, region 5.

Many Leaders Of Former French Government To Face Nazi-Influenced Court

Trial Will Be Held At Riom

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
BY MILTON BRONNER

With a Nazi-minded French puppet government dancing as the Hitler conquerors pull the strings, the stage is set for a mass trial of prominent French statesmen at the town of Riom.

It is a trial before a special high court constructed on the strictest Nazi model, a court from whose decisions there can be no appeal and which will seek scapegoats for the French debacle.

The court was convened Thursday for preliminaries, then adjourned until Tuesday when the trial proper will get underway.

The men to be impaled are three former premiers, Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier and Paul Reynaud; former Chief of Staff of the Army Gustave Gamelin, and former cabinet ministers Cesar Campinchi, Yven Delbos, Pierre Cot and Guy La Chambre.

From the standpoint of the puppet Petain government these men are guilty of having taken France into a losing war, although the charge will probably be that they allowed France to go unprepared.

From the standpoint of the Nazi masters, these men are guilty of having resisted the will of the fuehrer.

Leftists Are Targets

It is significant that all the accused except the soldier Gamelin are politicians of the Left, while the accusing government is made up of bitter men of the Right. Knives long whetted are now seeking blood.

French politics is and always has been vastly different from American. In Washington, leaders of the Democratic and Republican forces in the House and Senate may verbally in debate tear each other to pieces, but on the outside may be the closest of friends. That's almost unknown in France. Political hates lead to personal hates.

The big rich, the aristocrats, the ultra-conservatives, the playboy royalists, the anti-Semites, the admirers of Fascism and Nazism have dreamed of their hour and now it seems to have arrived. Old scores will be paid off. Old enemies will be crucified.

There's Leon Blum, for instance, the first Jewish premier France ever had. His father so loved France that, after the war of 1870, rather than live in a German-ruled Alsace, he moved to Paris.

In 1936 Blum accumulated many bitter enemies when he formed the famous "Popular Front"—a combine of the parties of the Left—which captured Parliament and led to his being premier. He committed the unforgivable sin of passing social legislation. Even more serious for French preparedness, however, was the 40-hour work law he passed. It will probably be this that will constitute the chief onus of the case against him.

1938: Hero; 1940: Scapegoat

Edouard Daladier as he sits on the bench of the accused will have the bitter reflection that in 1938 as an "appeaser" he was a French popular hero and in 1940 as premier who took France into war he is a villain.

Son of a French baker, he made his own way in the world. When many of his present enemies succeeded in dodging service in the last World war, Daladier as a non-commissioned officer spent four years in the trenches winning the Legion of Honor, the Croix de Guerre and three citations for bravery.

Paul Reynaud, the dapper, 62-year-old deputy for a Paris district, is another premier to be tried. Often a cabinet member, he assumed the premiership this year when Daladier fell. He bravely took over a losing war, but things had gone too far.

Gamelin Is Army's Fall Guy

General Gamelin will probably be the army fall guy for the lost war, just as French generals were in the war of 1870. Only a year ago Gamelin was still being lauded as the man who had been the brilliant chief of staff to Joffre at the Battle of the Marne and as the man who in 1925-8 squelched a serious rebellion in Syria.

Pierre Cot who has been minister for air in four cabinets and Guy La Chambre, who held a like post in three cabinets, will be held responsible for the fact that France was so weak in modern airplanes. Some of the very men who fought big expenditures for the air arm are now in the Petain government.

Cesar Campinchi, a fiery Corsican, had the misfortune to be minister for the navy in the Blum and Daladier cabinets. Delbos is a former minister of foreign affairs.

Lubbock County Boy Under Contract To Film Studios

BY OPAL McMAHON
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

A 14-year-old Lubbock county boy, W. T. Diviney, jr., is "under contract" to MGM and Paramount studios.

The contract doesn't involve any salary but merely places the boy "on call" in case those studios should want him for a role and bars him from signing a contract with any other studio.

Youth Sought For Role

Studio officials became interested in the youth as a possible actor for the role of Jody in the screen version of "The Yearling." They have had difficulty in finding someone to portray the 12-year-old fictional Jody.

W. T. ("They call me Bill," he says) went to Los Angeles in May with an uncle, Jim C. Whiteley, an attendant in a veterans' hospital in Los Angeles, who believed the boy talented in singing and dramatics. The youth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Diviney of route 4.

Placed In Studio

Whiteley placed his nephew in the Albright studio of dramatic, vocal and orchestral instruction, where "Bill" studied for eight weeks, then in the University Private school, where he studied as a member of a 67-piece orchestra. He plays string bass. The Albright school, which taught Shirley Temple, Deanna Durbin, Judy Garland and others of fame, registered the Lubbock county boy with a movie placement agency, Klages and Hagan.

Someone recognized a resemblance between a sketch of the anticipated appearance of "Jody" and the sandy-haired boy from Lubbock. A talent scout was notified. Bill submitted to make-up, voice and photographic tests—then was told he would be notified if needed.

Was Given Encouragement

Did they give him any encouragement?

"They gave me a right smart bit of encouragement," said the youth, who returned to his home Wednesday. He isn't staking too much on being called, however. "I'd like to be out there but if they don't call me I won't be disappointed."

If he receives no call, he will return to public school in Lubbock this fall. He will be a freshman student. He was a member of the Junior High school orchestra last year.

Bill's voice is changing at present, his father says. His father thinks his voice will settle down to a light tenor, possibly a baritone.

A Musical Family

The Divineys comprise a musical family. A quartet is made up of the father, Bill, Bill's eight-year-old sister, Viola Nell, and his 17-year-old sister, Irene. The quartet sings at singing conventions. Diviney is a dairyman.

While in Los Angeles, the boy sang one night at the Ciro night club and was called back for two encores.

He went to a pageant where there were several actresses. "I could have reached out and pulled Jane Withers' hair," he said, grinning.

In Los Angeles, the boy met the composer of Margie Adair. The composer is also a painter and he and the Lubbock youth decided to exchange pictures. The Los Angeles artist gave a pastel seascape to Bill, and in return is to receive a sketch.

The Divineys moved to Lubbock county from Briscoe about 15 months ago. Bill has three sisters, Cleyone, Viola Nell and Irene, and a brother, Cleve.

Report On Loan Fund Of Rotary Is Given

Eighty nine college students borrowed $3,841.50 from the Rotary club's student loan fund during the year which ended June 30, according to a financial report by Dr. James M Gordon, dean of Texas Technological college and chairman of the club's committee.

The club at the beginning of the year had over $2,500 on hand, in the bank and in cash; payments by students were $2,926.57 on notes and $157.82 as interest; service fees, $23, making total receipts, $5,627.98.

Supplies purchased were $17.82; loans, $3,841.50; balance at the end of the year $1,768.56.

Payments averaged $16.49 and there were 187 payments made. The fund is available to worthy students as directed by the committee in charge. The fund has been established a number of years.

WPA Finance Report Given

A total of $2,243,934 was spent on Work Projects administration projects in the 24 counties of Lubbock district during the fiscal year which ended last June 30, according to figures released Saturday by J. O. Jones, district manager.

Of the amount, according to the report, $884,512 was supplied by cities, counties, independent school districts and other sponsoring agencies and the remainder, $1,359,422, by the WPA.

The expenditures represented 3,899,981 man-hours of work for an average of 2,750 persons in the district during the year, the report showed.

Of the money spent by the Work Projects administration, $1,199,321 went directly to the workers in the form of payroll checks. The remaining $169,101 was spent for supplies, materials and equipment.

Variety Of Projects

Although most of the money was spent for the construction or improvements of highways, roads and streets, according to the report, other projects included those for public buildings, recreation, conservation, public utilities, educational classes, professional and service projects, sewing rooms, canning plants, sanitation and public health and the distribution of surplus commodities.

Typical of the professional and service projects continued in operation during the year was the Lubbock weaving project which has been subject of nationwide attention.

Expenditures for various of the major types of projects were reported by the district manager as follows:

Highways, roads and streets, $1,449,898; sewing rooms, $302,722; professional and service, $144,315; public buildings, $87,824; sanitation and public health, $66,930; recreational facilities, $49,743; public utilities, $37,875; distribution of surplus commodities, $35,455; directing recreational activities, $28,484; canning plants and other goods projects, $19,803; conducting education classes, $17,019; and conservation projects, $3,866.

Warning Is Offered On Parking In Alleys

If you have been parking your car in alleys, you had better cut it out.

Police Chief Don Reeder warned Saturday that members of his department have been instructed to be on the alert for such violations and to tag them.

The instruction were given, city officials explained, because of numerous complaints recently that alley congestion is becoming an irritating problem. A number of owners, according to the complaints, are parking their cars throughout the day in alleys. Other complaints were that trucks are being left in alleys longer than is reasonably required to load or unload.

Chief Reeder said the instructions to start issuing tags have been given both to beat and to prowl car patrolmen.

U. S. Congratulations Pour In On "Lady Of Sagamore Hill" On Her 79th Birthday

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 Congratulations from all over the nation are pouring in on "the Lady of Sagamore Hill," for an active, charming lady is 79.

The lady is the widow of the 26th president of the United States—Theodore Roosevelt.

Though she lives alone in the wide-porched rambling house on Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, Long Island, that once served as the summer White House—the widow of T. R. is not a lonely old lady.

Never has she known the emptiness of life felt by the woman who brings up a houseful of healthy children, and then sees them grow up and move away.

For soon after her children were grown, there were grandchildren who loved the rambling white house at Oyster Bay that has not been changed since active, dynamic Theodore Roosevelt filled it with his restless personality. And when they were grown—there were great-grandchildren, who also loved visiting their famous great-grandmother.

HER LIFE FOLLOWS LEISURELY PATTERN

This 79th birthday, Tuesday, was celebrated as each of her recent birthdays have been spent. Mrs. Roosevelt returned from Mortlake Manor, her family home in Brooklyn, Conn., where she has been spending the summer, to pass her birthday in the close circle of family and friends.

There was a birthday luncheon and a dinner with members of her family. Then a beach party, with a birthday cake presented by the people of the town, a party to which the local Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts came in uniform and at which the band of the Quentin Roosevelt Post of the American Legion, named for her son who was killed in the World War, played "Happy Birthday to You." After the cake was cut the townsfolk gathered around to shake the hand of the charming Great Lady and wish her well.

Once very active, Edith Kermit Roosevelt now leads a quiet life that follows a set, though leisurely, pattern.

She writes letters in the morning (she doesn't like to talk on the telephone) and in the afternoon she walks in her garden or sits in the sun remembering yesterday and contemplating tomorrow. At night she either sits and talks with some member of her family who has had dinner with her, or spends the hours before bedtime reading the books she feels will help her keep up with the world.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, at 79, celebrated her birthday with the colorful ceremonies that are becoming traditions.

Table Centerpiece Is Subject For Lecture

"The dessert may be used as a centerpiece on the able for the whole meal," Miss Clara Pratt told members of the Hardy Home Demonstration club Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. C. F. Hedges.

"If the dessert is thus used it may be served by the hostess. A bowl of fresh fruit or fresh vegetables may be used as an attractive dessert."

Mesdames J. S. Crofton of St. Louis, Mo., and J. F. Frooks of Fort Worth were guests.

Members attending were Mesdames W. A. Caraway, Berch Scott, Clyde Fowler, J. A. Brown, J. C Johnson and George Blackmon. The next meeting will be Sept. 13 with Mrs. Johnson.

A Mons Star stolen 10 years ago has just been dug up in a new garden in Gillingham, England, and claimed by the officer to whom it belonged, now fighting again.

Personals

Miss Mary Jane Nicholson of Topeka, Kan., is to arrive this week to visit with Mrs. R. A. Baldwin and Miss Florence Baldwin of Lubbock and Miss Doris Minor of Slaton. Miss Nicholson has appeared in voice recital here and is a June graduate of the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago.

Miss Ella Loyce Gentry of New York City is visiting her mother, Mrs. Ella Gentry of 1614 Avenue J, and her brothers. She is theater organist and piano accordionist in New York. For four years she was a pupil of Piedro Yon, organist at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

Miss Geraldine Schonerstedt of Aspermont, is visiting with Miss Genie Mayfield of 1914 Eighth street. She plans to attend Texas Technological college this fall.

Tyler Girl To Marry Mr. Chesley Aug. 18

Announcement is being made of the approaching marriage of Miss Dorothy Stuteville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Stuteville of Tyler and Leo Chesley of Tyler, son of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Chesley, former Lubbock residents who plan to return here to live.

The news was told at a twilight tea given by the honoree's mother in Tyler recently. The wedding is to take place at 4 o'clock August 18 at the First Baptist church in Tyler.

Dean To Appear On Conference Program

Dr. James M. Gordon, dean of arts and sciences at Texas Technological college, and several members of his family left Saturday for Estes Park, Colo., where Dean Gordon will appear on the program of the Hazen conference this week.

Between 60 and 70 college men were selected to speak on phases of counseling for college students. Edward W. Hazen established the conference several years ago. Theme this year will be "The Normal Student in His World."

Dr. Hornell Hart of the department of sociology at Duke university will speak each day.

Dean Gordon and Dr. Archie J. Bahm, assistant professor of philosophy and sociology at Tech, will have charge of a program on "The Student and Personal Morality" Tuesday morning. Other Texas speakers will include Dr. Umphrey Lee, president of Southern Methodist university; Dean Paul Schwab, Trinity university, and Dean A. C. Zumbrainnen, S. M. U.

Miss Allene Atkinson, secretary of the Tech YM-YWCA, is to attend. The week's conference is to open today.

Accompanying Dean Gordon were his wife; their daughter, Miss Betty Alice Gordon, and their son, Lynn Gray, and Mrs. Lynn Gray Gordon of Gainesville.

Park Programs Draw Interest

Registered participation in the city summer parks recreation project continues more than twice as large as in any previous year, according to report Saturday by Mrs. John W. Wilson, superintendent of the project which is supported jointly by the city and the Work Projects administration.

Registrations up to Saturday this year, she reported, totaled 4,764 individuals. At the same time last summer the total was 2,249, which set a record until then.

Is Less Complete

The amazing increase in participation is further emphasized, Mrs. Wilson said, by the fact that the registration this year probably is less complete than in previous summers. On several occasions, she explained, the number of participants has been so large that it has been impossible for the playground leaders to register them all.

The registrations by parks total: Pioneer, 1,020; Booker T. Washington, 1,012; Mackenzie, 950; Rollie C. Burns, 901; Carlisle, 725; and Mexican, 156.

A large part of the gain has been due to increased adult participation, Mrs. Wilson said. So great is the adult interest, she reported, that on one night each week in each park the grown-ups are given exclusive use of such games as volleyball, croquet, badminton, aerial darts, checkers and others requiring equipment.

Included among activities this week, she announced, will be the organization of a junior leaders' council at Mexican park Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Dr. C. B. Qualls, head of the foreign languages department of Texas Technological college, will preside.

Special Meeting Of Commission Slated

Special meeting of the city commission has been called for next Thursday night at 8 o'clock to take action on the long-pending city zoning ordinance, according to announcement Saturday by Mayor Carl E. Slaton.

Passage of the ordinance on first reading is virtually certain, officials believe, although some changes will be made from the document as first recommended to the commission. Perhaps the most important of the probable changes will be the designation of Nineteenth street as a business street between Texas and College avenues. As originally drafted, the proposed ordinance placed Nineteenth in a residence-apartment house zone.

Other changes likely to be made, officials believe, will be the enlargements of zones in which only one-family residences can be built. As originally drawn, the ordinance provided only two such zones, one in the western edge of the city and the other in the extreme southern part.

Two readings of the ordinance will be necessary before it can go into operating effect. If passed on first reading next Thursday night, it probably will come up for final action at the regular commission meeting Thursday afternoon, Aug. 22.

Texas Republicans To Open Convention Today; J. E. McDonald Will Speak

Many Democrats Are Expected

BEAUMONT, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—Texas Republicans will come to Beaumont Sunday to voice their approval of Wendell Willkie, and, they said tonight, there will be some Democrats here also to join the chorus.

More than 2,500 delegates and visitors will attend the state Republican convention Monday and Tuesday. Registration of delegates will begin Sunday afternoon and the young Republican executive committee will meet them also.

McDonald To Speak

State Agriculture Commissioner J. E. McDonald, a Democrat, announced in Austin today that he had accepted an invitation to address the Republicans Tuesday, discussing the domestic allotment plan for cotton marketing. McDonald said he would not discuss politics, that his agricultural views were open for explanation to any group which wished to hear them.

Democratic State Senator Paul Page, in a denunciation of McDonald's action, termed the commissioner "at heart a Republican."

L. C. Benckenstein, general arrangements chairman of the convention, was exuberant over McDonald's acceptance.

May Get Others

Benckenstein, veteran Texas G. O. P. leader, said "we look for a great demonstration of Willkie support and party enthusiasm."

He said he believed a number of Democrats who favored Willkie for president would be present as visitors and added that "the showing made at this Republican convention is highly important, as it will put a gauge on Texas as one of the key Southern states."

A principal speaker at the convention will be Republican Governor Ralph L. Carr of Colorado, who seconded the nomination of Willkie at the party convention in Philadelphia.

Benckenstein said the convention may have as other speakers Rep. Bruce Barton of New York and Joseph Weldon Bailey of Dallas.

Indians Plan To Pray Aug. 22, 25 For Rain

GALLUP, N. M., Aug. 10. (AP) — Runners sped over the Mesas of Hopi land today with the tidings that the snake clans would pray for rain in their annual snake dances on August 22 and 25.

Official setting by the snake priests of the weird ceremony was announced here through Roman Hubbell, member of a pioneer family of Indian traders.

Word relayed from the Hinterlands of Northern Arizona said the rituals would be observed on August 22 at the Hopi village of Mishongnovi and on August 25 at the villages of Hotevilla and Shipaulovi.

For weeks preparations for the dance have been going on in secret ceremonial chambers. The snakes—including venomous rattlers—have been gathered and are being tenderly tended to bear the tribe's prayers for rain.

Recent Bride Dies Of Gasoline Burns

BELTON, Aug. 10. (AP) — Mrs. Charles E. Polk, 20-year-old recent bride of a Bell county farmer, died last night of burns received while she was helping her husband refuel his tractor.

She was the former Helen Lee Barclay of Call, Newton county, Tex., who received her B. A. degree in April from Mary Hardin Baylor college. She was married in March.

A can of gasoline was spilled on her in the field where her husband was working, and she was badly burned about the head and arms.

Among the survivors are her mother, Mrs. R. L. Barclay and her grandmother, Mrs. Ida B. Fuller, both of Call. Funeral services will be held here.

Tanners of dog skins in Japan have organized the Dog Leather Trade Association to unify the new industry and control the soaring prices.

Two Jim Evans Meet Many Delays In Transporting Refugee Children To U.S.

Getting the three children of his friend, Jim Evans of Edinburg, Scotland, from their war-threatened home into America, is not as easy as it sounds, The American Jim Evans found out this past week. As a result of a letter from El Paso, he knows less about how to do it, than he did before, he says.

Some weeks ago he was asked by the Scotch Jim to take care of his three children, Maureen, 9 years old; Lois, nearly 7, and George 5. He agreed and a series of cables and letters passed between the two men. Recently came a cable which indicated a lot of red tape had to be taken care of, so the Lubbock man wrote the British consulate at Galveston. He was advised to take matters up with the American Committee for the Care of European Children in New York City. He wrote them, but received no reply.

Letter Received

Meantime he was asked to write to El Paso to a local committee of the group, the nearest one. This week he received by airmail letter from Mrs. W. L. Wulfjen, secretary of local information. He also was advised to contact Miss Mildred Hopkins, a state department of welfare worker in the courthouse. She likewise, was without direct information.

Two sets of forms were enclosed. He was asked to sign and execute them, returning all but one to El Paso.

The letter contained some information that may be of interest to others who contemplate taking care of a child. Evans said he did not know whether he could, at the present, meet the suggested expenses of the letters.

Letter Is Quoted

"A charge of $13 for head tax, visa fee and credit investigation is made for the first child and a charge of $10.50 for each additional child covered by the same affidavit.

"In addition, a charge of $50 for each child is required, to be paid into a trust fund. This fund is in the nature of a pooled insurance reserve which will be used to meet all contingencies respecting the care and departure of the children which may arise from failure of individual assurances of support after initial payment.

"The sponsor will be required either (a) to assume all costs of reception, care and transportation from the port of entry in the United States, or Canada, to the child's destination, or (b) he may elect to remit $75 to the U. S. committee, in which case the committee will assume all such costs of reception care and transportation from the port of entry in the United States to the final destination. It is pointed out there is no assurance as to which port of the United States or Canada the child will enter, the exact date of entry or how long it may be necessary to keep the child in a reception center for such purposes as examination and medical care, or for other reasons.

Cash Recommended

"It is for this reason the U. S. committee has fixed the flat $75 rate, which from the standpoint of the sponsor, is probably the desirable alternative whether he lives on the Eastern seaboard or the Pacific coast. The head tax and visa will be returned to the sponsor within a reasonable time if the child does not secure the visa.

"This amounts to in all, $138, for which all, or any part, you will receive an official receipt. However, according to advices from our national office, when it has been determined that the ponsor is unable to pay all, or part, of the above amount, the U. S. committee will endeavor to provide such funds. On the other hand, since the national committee has on file so very many applications from sponsors who can pay all these costs, it is quite possible they will take into consideration that when a sponsor offers to execute an affidavit of full payment, but professes his inability to make the immediate cash payment required, there might be some question regarding his ability to fulfill the longterm financial obligations of the affidavit. Therefore, may this writer suggest, if it is possible, through some arrangement with your friend, that your affidavit be accompanied with a remittance of $138. It may facilitate matters."

Prospects Good At Ropesville

ROPESVILLE, Aug. 10. (Special)—Look over the Ropesville section before you decide the greenest South Plains oasis.

Recent rainfall caught the cotton just when it was beginning to shed, and perked it up gratifyingly. Cloudy days right after rainfall prevented much further shedding, said E. L. Harris, manager of Locketville gin, which lies well within the Ropesville trade territory.

The Ropesville state bank, of which J. T. Edwards, teller of Lubbock National bank is president, and Lanan Bissett of Meadow is cashier, has averaged considerably more business the first six months of this year than for the entirety of 1937, greatest crop year of the Ropesville history. All departments of the bank have been strengthened and business is coming in from well outside the Ropesville trade territory, banking officials and depositors said.

Crops Compared

While the Locketville section will not make as much cotton as last year, it has been determined that the Ropesville trade territory as a whole will make twice what was produced in 1939.

Feed, too, is showing heavy yields. The early crop has made and rainfall has spurred the later crops.

The territory is as green as a golf course and cattle on the ranges and in feeding pens look fat and contented.

Few Farms Irrigated

Merchants over the section report business holding up well. Even the school kids have found employment with hoes—and the feed crops are just getting ready for general harvesting.

Ginners over the section are tearing out machinery, inspecting it for worn parts, making repairs and setting up again. Cotton ginning season is expected to be a bit earlier than last year—opening date being estimated from Sept. 1 to 15.

Chief topic of conversation seems to center on whether farmers will put their cotton in the loan this year. Lots of farmers apparently will produce as much as a half bale to the acre—or more. Few of them irrigate their crops and not many go in for one-variety cotton.

Barbers Point Air Base Is Considered

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 10. (U.P.)—The U. S. navy is considering construction of a new 2,700-acre airport at Barbers Point, near the Pearl harbor naval base, it was revealed today.

The proposed airport would supplement existing facilities at Pearl Harbor and Ford island, taking in 500 acres now used by the navy as an emergency landing field. It would involve transfer of a projected $1,000,000 radio station from Barbers Point to the vicinity of Wahiawa, farther inland.

Marriage License Bureaus Rushed

NEW YORK, Aug. 10. (U.P.) — The conscription bill gave love a great big hand today and crowded every marriage license bureau in the city in the biggest rush since World war days.

The Brooklyn bureau, which ordinarily issues 150 licenses on Saturday, was jammed with 500 couples. There were 200 couples in the Manhattan office which usually handles about 100. In the Bronx, the bureau cracked it record with 200 licenses and in Queens, the bureau decided to remain open three additional hours to handle the traffic.

MONTREAL, Aug. 10. (U.P.)—Edith Rogers Dahl whose personal appeal to Gen. Francisco Franco saved her aviator-husband from a Spanish firing squad, said today that she hoped to escape "Nazi and Fascist persecution" in Canda.

Mrs. Dahl, under contract to a local night club, said she came to Canada to get away from cranks who had been pestering by mail and in person. For two months, she said, the FBI had provided her with a bodyguard to protect her.

Mrs. Dahl's husband is an instructor at a Royal Canadian air force training school.

Indictments Naming Corporations In Defense Set-Up Expected This Month

Thurman Arnold Takes Charge

NEW YORK, Aug. 10. (AP)—Indictments before labor day involving some of the leading corporations of the country engaged in production of defense materials were predicted in informed legal quarters today as Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney general, took over temporary direction of a federal grand jury investigation into patents.

When Arnold, in a talk to newspaper men Friday, referred to "an economic fifth column" lurking behind the patent laws, even though he said it was not a malicious one, he created a sensation among business leaders.

Concerns Aware

Lawyers for many large concerns, however, had been fully aware for months of the Department of Justice's investigation into the alleged use of patents in restraint of trade.

The department itself, through several spokesmen, had made it clear that an integrated program, embracing investigation, prosecution and, eventually, changes in the patent laws was under way.

As early as last May, Joseph Borkin, economist in charge of the patent unit of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice told the New York patent law association:

"Since the passage of this (the Sherman anti-trust) act, patents have become on an ever increasing scale a major device to directly violate both the spirit and the structure of that act."

Oklahoma Gunbattle

also that she was hit by a bullet from Clark's rifle.

"They Killed Her'

"They killed her," Hall declared from his hospital bed here. "She was the only thing I ever loved. But by God I got one of them."

He referred to the gunfight in which Clark was knocked down by a shotgun charge in the chest and he himself was hit by three pistol bullets. The exchange resulted from an attempt by Clark and Irwin to question the gunmen about a robbery at Oilton earlier in the day.

Highway Patrolmen John Boyd and J. R. Butler captured Hall and Lovelace after putting two more bullets into Hall's body and shooting Bill Glimp, a Drumright farmer kidnaped by the gunmen, in the leg.

Hall Is Recovering

Despite his many wounds, Hall was reported recovering. Clark was said to be in a critical condition.

But the story wasn't finished yet. A negro booked as Henry Washington of Oilton, who officers said admitted he was with Hall and Lovelace in the Oilton fight, was arrested. He denied, however, that he fired any of the shots.

And Sheriff Lew Wilder of Sapulpa said he was investigating the possibility that Carl Dickinson, 24, who escaped with Lovelace in Nebraska, was in this vicinity and might have had a hand in the shooting.

Lovelace told officers Dickinson did not accompany him to Oklahoma but declined to say whether he was with him at Oilton.

Mrs. Coffy was the widow of Virgil Coffy. Ollie Melton is serving a 20-year term at McAlester for killing Coffy in a pistol fight at Asher, Okla.

It Takes 10 Minutes To Save One Cent

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 10. (AP)—The story of a man whose motto apparently is "a penny saved is a penny earned" was told today by two Lincoln detectives.

The man and his wife parked downtown near the officers' car and while his wife went into a nearby shop he stood for 10 minutes holding the necessary penny next to the parking meter slot but did not drop it in.

When his wife reappeared he put the coin back into his pocket and they drove away.

Food Stamp Plan

Two Types Of Stamps

For an understanding of those differences, officials explained, it is essential to remember that two kinds of food stamps are issued—one of orange color and the other of blue color. The orange stamps must be purchased. The blue stamps are given away under certain very rigidly fixed conditions.

In Wichita county, the blue stamps are given outright to certain groups of relief clients who are without cash income of any kind. No purchase of orange stamps is required by or for them.

But in Lubbock and Hale counties, according to the tentative contract, a purchase of orange stamps will be required before any blue stamps may be given to any person. The ratio of blue stamps to the orange would be higher in cases of extreme poverty under the proposed contract, but at the same time, as pointed out some orange stamps would have to be bought before any blue stamps could be given.

This question thus was raised by returning Lubbock officials:

Here's The Question

What is going to happen to those people who are wholly without income of any kind, who cannot buy orange stamps? Those people now obtain practically al ltheir food free from the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, a district warehouse of which is maintained here.

As recalled by local officials, the argument of the stamp plan agency is that no matter how poor relief clients may be, the community must provide them some help. The argument continues that it would be better to provide that help through the medium of purchasg orders for orange stamps, for which the city and county would pay. With the orange stamps the relief clients then would receive the blue stamps.

Conditions Different Here

That line of argument, according to officials here, does not stand up under the existing Lubbock conditions. They pointed out, for example, that only $146 was expended by the welfare association last month in providing direct relief for people on its roll. Those people obtained practically all their food free direct from the Surplus Commodities corporation, with perhaps a dollar or two in cash or bought food to tide them along through the month.

The city and county officials are going to want to know, they explained, how much they are likely to have to put out to buy orange stamps if the stamp plan is put into operation here. The officials reminded that the operation of the stamp plan will mean that the distribution of free surplus commodities will be discontinued.

Officials emphasized that they have not formed any prejudice against the plan. They expressed the opinion that conferences with the stamp plan officials may bring satisfactory solutions to all of those factors which appear to be problems.

They merely want to be as fully informed as possible concerning the proposition before they commit themselves to definite action, they declared.

French Not To Make Mistake U. S. Did

VICHY, France, Aug. 10. (AP)—The new French government is determined to do something to restrict the use of alcohol, but will not "make the same mistake the United States made through total prohibition," the French press declared today.

The newspapers said manufacturers would be permitted to continue making wines, cider, beer and alcohol distilled from hops and grape juices.

War Situation

areas, called the forays mere "terror" raids aimed at British morale.

The German high command, however, reported hits on such vital cogs in the British military machine as munitions and aircraft works, an airport and important docks.

Striking at potential springboards close to home, the British air ministry said, Royal Air force bombers carried out day and night raids on the Nazi-held chanel island airdrome on Guernsey and also inflicted "heavy damage" on German munitions factories, started fires on oil tanks in Holland and attacked Nazi communications, an airport and important docks.

RAF Still Busy

Striking at potential springboards close to home, the British air ministry said, Royal Air force bombers carried out day and night raids on the Nazi-held chanel island airdrome on Guernsey and also inflicted "heavy damage" on German munitions factories, started fires on oil tanks in Holland and attacked Nazi communications.

Looking also toward the winter, German propagandists have opened a campaign to lay blame for any famine on Britain's continental blockade.

Germans, they say, are assured of full cupboards but the rest of conquered Europe, especially Holland, Belgium and France, are being pinched.

May Be Feints

Despite the German optimism over the Reich's own supply and Nazi contentions that relaxation of the British blockade to help stave off starvation elsewhere would be no aid to Germany, independent reports on one important German food source, the Balkans' grainfields, do not bear out the Nazi optimism.

Egypt, suspecting that the Italian thrust in eastern Africa may be feints to distract attention from a major push across the Libyan frontier into the ancient land of the Pharoahs, kept her army at peak efficiency, ready to join the British if Italy makes a direct assault.

Crippling of the 29,150-ton British battleship Resolution under the pounding of Italian bombing planes in a sea-air fight Aug. 1 was reported, meanwhile, by the high command in Rome.

Stolen Honey Is Recovered By Bees

REIDSVILLE, N. C., Aug. 10. (AP)—H. D. Knight gathered 30 pounds of honey from a couple of his bee hives, which he keeps as a hobby.

The honey was placed in a tub and covered with a cloth.

'Cook Stove' Baby Lives

steaming water to keep the oven moist.

The time was about 7:30 p. m.

Every 30 minutes through that night and until 3 o'clock the next afternoon Vevia Swinney fed her charge—three drops of sugar water from a dropper.

Then, with the sun still at full strength, Mrs. Swinney wrapped up her meager burden and walked over the sandy hill the half mile to her own home, its unpainted three rooms squatting next a cotton patch.

On a little iron bed the baby was laid, and three quart bottles of hot water and fraying blankets were fashioned into Vevia Marie's second makeshift incubator.

Day by day the baby grows stronger, now weighing 3 pounds 3 ounces. She is fed a mixture composed of plain cow's milk and corn syrup, totaling three ounces, every three hours—day and night. And she cries and stretches and kicks like other children with a better start in lift.

There were no clothes for Vevia when she was born. Her resourceful nurse dug down in a trunk and found a dress—a doll dress her own little girl, now dead, had owned 20 years ago. The doll dress fit. Now Vevia has other dresses, all made of plain cotton but sewed by Mrs. Swinney's knowing hand. One yard of batiste makes six dresses.

Out For Fresh Air

Every day when the weather is fair Baby Vevia (pronounced Viva) is placed near an open window through which the sun is shining. For 30 minutes, with a cloth over her, the baby has its sun bath.

"Children are not made to be cooped up—they get strong when they can get out in the open," Mrs. Swinney says.

That's why, on some days, the babe is bundled into a bushel basket and carried to the fields, protected from the sun by a piece of tarpaulin, while Mrs. Swinney picks tomatoes.

"The baby never has knocked me out of a minute of work," Mrs. Swinney explains. This work includes milking three cows twice a day.

"It is, you might say, nothing short of miraculous," Dr. Montgomery, who goes by every week or so, says.

One Ray Of Hope

"The only ray of hope I saw for this child was that she cried and moved actively when she was born. Even so, it is a miracle."

The miracle is something else to Mrs. Swinney. "Providence won't let die what someone wants to live bad enough.

"The instinct God Almighty gave me showed me how to take Vevia and make her live. I always wanted to be a nurse and daddy wouldn't let me. I was a premature baby myself.

"Someday if I ever collect enough of this world's goods, I'm going to build a big place and take 24 babies and keep them from the time they're born 'til they're three weeks old.

"Girl babies are my favorite. We had one, but we lost her. I'm going to adopt Vevia if I possibly can."

Question Unsettled

That question is unsettled. Mrs. Tommie Camper, Vevia's mother, is Mrs. Swinney's second cousin and has six other children, the oldest 13. The father did have a WPA job but hasn't now. Their eighth child died.

Monroe Swinney, 50, like his wife born to the soil of this East Texas country, takes kindly to little Vevia. At first he didn't cotton to the idea of taking in the baby, because things are pretty hard on the farm now. "We're just poor folks out here," he says.

He and his wife and two sons, now 18 and 19, have plenty to do with their 10 cattle, four horses, pigs an' chickens. The farm in 1928 made better than $3,000 on cotton alone, but $600 is a good year nowadays, he says.

He is shyly proud of his wife and her knack for making stricken things prosper. "Once we had a calf that broke its leg. Most times you shoot the calf. But she wouldn't allow that and put splints on its leg, and trussed it up in a tow sack. Pretty soon the calf got well."

Mrs. Swinney added the details: "I used to take the cow and make her kneel down and then hold the calf's head while it suckled her. It was too heavy to hold up to the cow standing up."

Monroe Swinney, red of face and bristly of beard, glances down at his bare feet and asks only one thing.

"We need a nipple, like the ones they have on bottle for dolls. The regular size is too big for Vevia, and that's all they have here in Van."

'Grandma' Is Too Old To Enjoy Birthday

TULSA, Aug. 10. (AP)—"Grandma" Martha Lay, who says she's 113 years old, had a birthday today but was too feeble to leave her bed at the county home.

In the past, this had been her biggest day of the year, posing for newspaper photographers, cutting cake and receiving attention from the other old folk. There was a cake today, with 113 candles, but "Grandma" showed little interest, nurses said.

Catholic Paper For Military Training

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10 (AP) — Declaring that "undoubtedly this country needs a compulsory military training program," the Catholic Standard and Times denounced the Senate military affairs committee for failing to exempt theological students from military service.

"Clergymen, teaching and nursing brothers, seminarians and students in divinity schools should be guaranteed exemption in the bill; the exemption should not be camouflaged by listing them as conscientious objectors, which very definitely most of them are not."

Germany Wants Atlantic Base

BY J. W. T. MASON
United Press War Expert

New implications of Germany's hope to control Dakar, capital of French West Africa and the most favorable trans-Atlantic base for an offensive against the western hemisphere, are contained in an announcement by the French government of changes in colonial administration. A statement issued at Vichy says France's African colonies are to be consolidated in larger units, except the port of Dakar, which is to be administered separately.

There is no logical reason why the capital of French West Africa should be given this special status. It is explained at Vichy as "indicating greater German activity there" which points directly to the move having been made under German pressure.

Known Last Week

Arrival of German technicians at Dakar became known last week. This action, coupled with the quick subsequent proclamation of an independent administration for the great African port which offers secrecy for German plans there, can be interpreted as Germany's first answer to western hemisphere defense plans.

It will not escape German notice that simultaneously with these happenings at Dakar, American marines are now being moved from Quantico, Va., to Guantanamo, Cuba. Dakar is directly opposite the West Indies. If Dakar fell into German possession after the war, Hitler would possess an air and naval base of first rank on the South Atlantic within seven to eight hours of the West Indies by bombing and fighting airplane squadrons.

Bathurst Nearest

Seizure of a West Indian base by a hostile force operating from Dakar would constitute an initial threat against South America, the Panama canal and the Gulf of Mexico coast of the United States. The necessity for observing future German intentions at Dakar thus becomes a strategic problem for the western hemisphere, as a consequence of France's surrender to Germany. It gives the western hemisphere a direct interest in the redistribution of African West Coast colonies after the war.

The nearest observation post to Dakar is Bathurst, capital of the small British colony of Gambia, bordering French West Africa on the Atlantic coast. Bathurst is 100 miles south of Dakar and within easy striking distance. Great Britain would be as much concerned as the western hemisphere if Dakar were to pass under German control because it might be used to command the sea route to South Africa.

Was Belligerent

Farther south of Dakar is Liberia, the negro republic formed early in the last century, under American influence. Should Germany succeed in annexing Dakar and turning it into a major fortress capable of supplying a hostile force for crossing the Atlantic, Liberia could possess value as a possible flanking base. Monrovia, the capital, has an excellent harbor and there are other ports well protected and having deep water that could be advantageously developed for naval and air uses.

During the World war, Liberia joined the Allies as a belligerent and expelled many Germans who had sought refuge there after the loss of German African colonies. The Liberians are willingly susceptible to American influences and would not interpose objections to plans that might be considered essential at some future time for serving western hemisphere military interests.

The fact that the United States has such possibilities of gaining defensive outposts on the West African coast is a matter for strategic study in association with German interest in Dakar. The Germans will have to take it into consideration if they hope to make Dakar a striking post for the western hemisphere action.

Charges Hurled

the tax would yield $190,000,000 net on corporation earnings this calendar year. An earlier estimate by congressional tax experts was $300,000,000.

"Drop In Bucket"

"When the president proposes spending four or five billion dollars every time he gets back from a week-end," Clark exclaimed, "$190,000,000 is a drop in the bucket, isn't it?"

"Yes, it is," the treasury official replied.

Clark then suggested that the tax was "sugar-coating to get the public to swallow the amortization plan for munitions plants."

"Crap Shooters" Are Nabbed By Police

A raid in 200-block Eighteenth street netted police a dozen negro "crap shooters" early Saturday morning.

At midnight all except two had paid fines, the other two were held in city jail. Fines aggregated $53.

Theft at the R. E. Hardburger residence of 1921 Thirteenth street also pointed to guilt of a negro. Mrs. Hardburger said a negro domestic left her service almost simultaneously with $73.25 worth of varied articles. She listed a graden hose, a hoe, two suits, a pair of shoes, linens, underwear and shirts.

Mrs. J. B. Lacy of 1814 Avenue M reported theft of a woman's bag, containing women's clothing and a .45 caliber pistol, from her automobile parked at the residence.

A $30 watch was stolen from H. C. Bowlin of 1908 Avenue O, he reported.

B. L. Wooddell Is Attacked By Steer

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SNYDER, Aug. 10 — B. L. Wooddell, Texas Highway patrolman of Lubbock, was attacked with injury by a wild Brahma steer that knocked out four teeth for C. D. Ferguson of Tyler this afternoon.

A crowd of 3,600 rodeo fans were brought to their feet as the steer deviated from its accustomed role in the fourth annual Scurry county rodeo.

The final performance tonight attracted 4,000 persons from West Texas, eastern New Mexico, Arizona and southern Oklahoma. The rodeo opened Friday with a mile-long parade.

J. M. Stewart is honorary president of the Scurry County Rodeo association, with J. J. Koonsman president and J. C. Dorward vice president.

Members of the highway patrol district office in Lubbock took part in the parade.

Lubbockites To Go To Officers' Meet

Several Lubbock law enforcement officials are expected to attend the semi-monthly West Texas Peace Officers association Tuesday in Claremont, it was indicated Saturday night.

Sheriff Tom Abel and his deputy, Cap Moore, Police Chief Don Reeder, and members of the Texas Ranger force and the Texas Highway patrol plan to attend.

The group will choose new officers for the coming year, the election having been postponed from the June 11 meeting because of summer political races. B. L. Parker, Lynn county sheriff, is president and District Attorney Truett Smith is secretary. Both reside in Tahoka.

The association, organized 13 months ago, has done much to halt cattle thefts and serves as a clearing house for information concerning law violation throughout West Texas.

Sheriff B. J. Smith of Kent county will be host to the group.

reached between the two candidates on international policy.

"I haven't seen any papers since yesterday morning," Mr. Roosevelt responded.

Noisy but relatively skimpy crowds turned out as the president drove about the Boston area. But his route from the navy yard to the arsenal lay along the scenic Charles river and touched a mere corner of Boston proper. At Portsmouth, people by the thousands had jammed every street.

Has Big Crowd

It was in New England that the biggest crowds of the 1936 campaign showed up.

To an inquiry whether operating defense establishments at full production meant three shifts, the president responded that it would depend on the article produced. Three shifts would be cheaper in some instances and not in others, he said.

The navy yards are using a third shift, he said, primarily to eliminate bottle necks in production of specific items.

Other members of the board at the meeting were Spencer A. Wells of Lubbock, vice president, J. M. West of Houston, Tomas G. Pollard of Tyler, Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie, Milburn McCarty of Eastland and Charles C. Thompson of Colorado City.

The board opened bids of 11 contractors from Amarillo, El Paso, Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Angelo, in addition to that of McMillan, only Lubbock bidder.

One relief train enroute here from the west was blocked by washout on the Southern Pacific lines but officials said repairs would be completed today. There was no other means of exit from the city except by boat.

To prevent epidemic two public health officers arrived by coast guard cutter today to chlorinate water supply. Dr. J. A. A'Hara, president of the state board of health, termed the situation "desperate."

I am truly grateful to my many friends for making it possible for me to take the lead in the race for County Judge of Lubbock County, against two very worthy opponents. I have malice toward no person, but covet the friendship of all. I fully realize that no one person has the popularity to elect himself, and it will only be through the invaluable cintinued assistance of my friends that I shall be elected.

A vote for G. V. Pardue is a vote for a man who will give the County honest and efficient service as a servant of the people. The office of County Judge will at all times be open to every citizen, and it will be with pleasure that I shall welcome you with your problems.

Your County Court under my administration will be so conducted that each person coming before the Court on a criminal charge will receive justice coupled with mercy where mercy is warranted, rather than cruel treatment. Special leniency to the first offenders will be my policy, and my purpose will be to build citizenship.

Much thought should be given to the problem of delinquent juveniles in this County. I have an organization in mind, to which I promise unstinted service, which will reclaim a greater portion of the delinquent youth of this County to a higher and nobler life of useful citizenship, by giving it the advantage of training in Government, Citizenship and true Christian association.

It is upon this basis that I solicit the vote of every citizen of Lubbock County.

Joint Installation Of New Officers For American Legion Posts To Be Held

Many Expected For Ceremony

The largest assembly of new officers of American Legion posts in the history of the 19th congressional district is assured for Lubbock Monday night, according to announcement Saturday by Chas. Whitacre, district commander, and A. I. Glassman, retiring commander of Allen Bros. post here.

The occasion will be the joint installation of the new officers at which Lou Roberts of Borger, state commander, will officiate. Ceremonies will be in the home of Allen Bros. post, 910 Texas avenue, which will be official host on the occasion.

Many To Be Present

He has been advised, Whitacre announced, that virtually the entire slates of new officers of at least eight posts outside of Lubbock will be on hand for the installation.

The posts from which acceptances have been received, with their retiring commanders, Whitacre announced as follows: Brownfield, C. T. Edwards; Crosbyton, John L. Parker; Hale Center, Tom Greenwood; Littlefield, Otto Jones; Plainview, Jack Walker; Post, W. S. Duckworth; Seagraves, Amos Harper; and Spur, A. M. Walker.

Expectation is, according to the district commander, that several posts from which formal acceptances of the invitation to be here have not been received will be represented. He and Glassman joined in an invitation to new officers of all posts in the district to join in the ceremonies, regardless whether they have accepted.

Chow-Line Feed

The program, Glassman announced, will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock and will include a chow-line feed. Clark Mullican, local attorney and past commander of the local post, will speak briefly. Roberts then will proceed with the installation.

From Lubbock, Roberts will go to Snyder to participate in the dedication of the new post home there Tuesday night. Whitacre and several members of Lubbock post will accompany him. The new home there replaces, one wrecked by flood and wind several months ago.

New officers of Allen Bros. post who are to be installed are: J. Louis Murfee, commander; E. Kelley Nail, first vice commander; C. E. Luce, second vice commander; Earl Teague, third vice commander; D. C. Weeks, adjutant; Durwood H. Bradley, service officer; Rev. Jeff D. Welch, chaplain; Lester B. Parks, sergeant at arms; Dr. C. B. Qualia, historian; Alex McDonald, mess officer; and Ralph Bedford, finance officer.

Retiring officers are: Glassman, commander; W. T. Strange, jr., first vice commander; Murfee, second vice commander; Bradley, third vice commander; Grady West, adjutant; Ben Kucera, service officer; Welch, chaplain; Hugh Slagle, sergeant at arms; H. L. Allen, historian; McDonald, mess officer; and Paul Hardwick, finance officer.

Cudahy Leaves For America

LONDON, Aug. 10. (AP)—John Cudahy, U. S. Ambassador to Belgium who created a sensation in London by advocating that the United States feed Nazi-occupied countries, left by plane for Lisbon today en route to the United States, to which he had been called home to report to President Roosevelt.

London newspapers, which have been attacking Cudahy bitterly for remarks he made in a recent interview, headlined the news of his recall and reprimand yesterday by the state department.

The Daily Mail today quoted Cudahy as saying "I do not retract one word from what I said."

The Daily Mail quoted a friend of Cudahy as saying "Mr. Cudahy knows he is to be censured and that may mean the end of his diplomatic career.

"In these circumstances it is likely that instead of remaining in the United States, he would come back to Europe to help with relief work, in which he is deeply interested."

The Daily Mail said Cudahy himself said:

"I have done my job and I return to the United States with reports of great efforts being made by Great Britain that should inspire my countrymen.

"I leave confident that this little country of yours will defend itself to the last man and woman and will never be conquered."

Radio Operator Talks With Byrd's Party

ROSWELL, N. M., Aug. 10. (UP)—Mrs. Louis Falconi, Roswell amateur radio operator, reported today she made contact with the Byrd antarctic expedition last night and carried on an hour's conversation with the crew of the snow cruiser which is being used to explore the South Polar region.

Mrs. Falconi, who operates amateur station W5ZA, a 700-watt transmitter, said the contact with the cruiser's station, KC4USB, was very clear. Among those with whom she talked was Dr. Louis Simms, physician of the Byrd expedition.

"Dr. Simms said he was not allowed to give the exact location of the snow cruiser at the time of the contact," Mrs. Falconi said.

ANOTHER SLUGGISH WEEK

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—The stock market today ended another sluggish week on a moderately rising note.

As on Saturday's recovery session, issues of industrial companies that stand to benefit from the huge domestic rearmament program were principally favored. While many leaders failed to respond, gains for selected issues ranged from fractions to a point or more at the close.

Spot news of a stimulating nature was scarce and brokers attributed further market improvement largely to the fact most sellers apparently had withdrawn, thus necessitating the lifting of bids by those who believed the list was in shape to stage at least a good temporary comeback.

Business developments were fairly encouraging and hopes seemed to have revived in financial quarters that Congress was getting ready to push through a defense tax measure that would be more to the liking of manufacturers who are in line for armaments contracts.

The lack of any great buying rush was again blamed on the murkiness of the European war picture and fears Hitler, at any moment, may decide to strike at England with all his military might. Most thought an all-out invasion, if successful, could result in an uncomfortable market shock.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished at 43, adding .3 of a point to the .4 rally of Friday. The composite was up .1 on the week. Activity showed relative improvement in the comeback. Although being far under the break-even mark for commission houses, transfers of 180,260 shares were the best for a Saturday since June 22. They compared with 121,960 a week ago.

General Motors was one of the star performers with a jump of 1⅝ at 48⅝. Westinghouse was up as much. On a riasable turnover International Paper preferred pushed ahead 2⅛. Lesser improvement was retained by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Briggs Mfg, Baldwin Locomotive, Great Northern, Sears Roebuck, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, Kennecott, United Aircraft and Sperry.

Interest Is Shown In Second Primary

Two weeks remain before the August 24 Democratic primary and a faint sign of interest had been shown Saturday, according to records in the office of Ed D. Allen, county clerk.

Fifty-six persons had requested ballots sent them at out of town addresses in order that they may vote in absentia. Seven others had marked ballots in Allen's office.

Candidates will start filing expense accounts Monday for the second primary. Their statements must be filed in the clerk's office by Friday night.

Printing of Lubbock county ballots had been ordered by the county executive committee before canvassing Saturday of first primary returns Saturday in Austin by the state executive committee.

Aug. 21 is last day for absentee voting.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—Cotton futures came to life today after announcement of the new crop loan terms.

Prices moved irregularly with near months off 6 points and distant up as much.

October dropped 13 points at the outset, below December, but quickly steadied when a large spot house bid for several thousand bales at 5 points over December.

Most traders felt the loan rate, approximately $1 a bale over last year's basis, made forward months more attractive. This led to lively transferring from October and December into May and July by Bombay accounts, trade and Wall street interests.

Worth street was a little disappointed over the week's business, with prices trimmed on several print cloth constructions. Encouraging, though, was continued government buying, principally in ducks and heavy coarse yarn goods.

No exports Friday season so far 19,620 bales. Port receipts 11,499; port stocks 2,468,798.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 10 (AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths-inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 5 points lower at 10.05 cents a pound; average for the past thirty market days 10.28 cents; middling 15ths-inch average 9.86 cents a pound.

Trumpet Player's Wife Is Suspected

NEW YORK, Aug. 10. (UP)—Mrs. Phillip Hernandez, 27-year-old wife of an orchestra trumpeter, was held in $2,500 bail today for hearing next Tuesday on a charge of stabbing her husband with a knife.

Hernandez, also 27, refused to file charges. He is in Staten island hospital being treated for scalp, neck and face wounds.

According to the charge, the couple quarreled last night when Hernandez, formerly a trumpeter in Dave Appollon's orchestra, appeared in several motion picture shorts, and recently has been playing in a Staten island night club.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Aug. 10 (AP)—Good rains over a large part of the corn belt and a more bullish estimate by the government on the size of the 1940 crop today drove corn prices down.

Early losses were more than a cent a bushel as traders started selling heavily. However, the sellers encountered orders to buy at around the bottom of the decline and prices later rallied in somewhat lethargic dealings.

Corn finally finished the day ⅛ to ½ cent below Friday's finish, Sept. 81, Dec. 56⅛@56, wheat was unchanged to ¼ up, Sept. 73¾@74, Dec. 74⅞@75, oats ⅛ to ¾ off, and lard 2 points lower to 3 higher.

The official government estimate on the 1940 corn crop was a disappointment to the trade because it said the loss by heat and drought was only seven per cent. Unofficial guesses had been much higher. Rains fell in Illinois and moisture was promised for Ohio and Indiana, where drouth has been in effect for many days.

Many Religions Are Tabulated

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10. (AP)—The census bureau today listed 256 religious denominations in the United States, with 55,807,366 members.

This count—nearly half the population—was based on 1936 statistics, have just been completed. The count was made by correspondence with officers of the different denominations.

The membership total was about a million larger than a similar count in 1936, which showed 54,576,346. No major shifts were shown among major religious branches, however.

Economies forced on churches by the depression, while not shown in membership figures, were demonstrated by a $518,953,571 calculation of total church expenditures in 1936. In 1926, the total was $817,214,538.

Values Drop

Value of church edifices also dropped from $3,839,500,610 in 1926 to $3,411,875,467 in 1936.

The largest single denomination was Roman Catholic with 19,914,937 members.

Other large denominations included: Jewish, 4,641,184; negro Baptists, 3,782,646; Methodist Episcopal church, 3,509,763; Southern Baptist convention, 2,700,155; Methodist Episcopal church, South 2,061,663; Presbyterian church in the United States of America, 1,797,927; Protestant Episcopal church, 1,735,335; Northern Baptist convention, 1,329,044; United Lutherian church in America, 1,286,612; Disciples of Christ, 1,196,315; Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, 1,192,553; and Congregational and Christian churches, 976,388.

FSA MAN TRANSFERRED

LITTLEFIELD—Hugh L. Huff, an assistant Farm Security Administration supervisor here, has been transferred to Midland as county supervisor.

THREE'S NOT A CROWD—Not in this case. A horse is almost a necessity with Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Edwards, above, of Big Spring. Edwards is co-manager of the Big Spring Cowboy reunion and rodeo which will hold its seventh annual show Wednesday and Thursday. Mrs. Edwards, always as enthusiastic as he, is one of the leaders of the "rodeo widows," the unit which sees to it that sponsors are royally entertained when in Big Spring for the show.

Regulations On 1940 Farm Benefit Payments Offered

Regulations governing the benefit payments under the 1940 farm program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, which prohibit the splitting of benefit payments in any manner different than under the soil depleting crops, have been sent to all landlords and tenants in the county by the county committee, C. E. Lilley of Slaton, chairman, announces.

Last year considerable trouble was had because of the splitting of payments between landlords and tenants and complaints filed with the committee resulted in an investigation by the AAA from Washington. Adjustments are now being made by landlords.

Regulations Pointed Out

In a letter authorized by the committee, Chairman Lilley pointed out the following regulations:

"1. All benefit payments in 1940 shall be divided between the sharecroppers, share tenants and landlords in the same proportion as the soil depleting crops are divided. Side trades or contracts cannot be accepted under any condition.

"2. Any rental agreement between the landlord and tenant whereby a bonus of any kind is charged in excess of the regular rental is a violation of the regulations.

"3. Any reduction in the number of tenants below the average number of tenants on any farm in the last three years that would increase the landlord's share of the benefit payments is a violation of the regulations.

On Basis Prescribed

"4. Benefit payments cannot be divided on any other basis except on the basis prescribed by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

"If any person files a complaint relative to violations of the above regulations, it will become necessary to cancel both the tenants' and landlords' 1940 government payments and all future payments until such violations are corrected."

"Safe Truck Driver" Summoned To Court

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 10. (UP)—Lee Phelps, 41, "the nation's third safest truck driver," was anything but happy today. He will have to appear in municipal court tonight to answer a charge of reckless driving that brought to an end his record of nearly 19 years without an accident.

Phelps' right rear hub cap clipped the left front fender of a car driven by Leo Simpson, 39. The two men got out to argue about it, and police decided they could settle the argument in municipal court.

District Boxing Tourney Takes Spotlight Here Monday And Tuesday Nights

Golden Gloves Stars Dominate In TAAF Field

Boxing fans will be treated to the second big amateur ring show of the year tomorrow night and Tuesday night—a show that will rival, if not excell, the annual winter Golden Gloves demonstrations—when simon-pure mitt-pushers of the Plains gather here for the first annual Texas Amateur Athletic Federation district tournament.

ENTRIES ACCEPTED MONDAY

To the boxers: Entries will be accepted up to 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, at the downtown gymnasium, 1012 Main street, where weighing in and physical examinations start at 2 o'clock. All boxers must report there between 2 and 5 o'clock, and at Sportarena by 7:30 o'clock.

To the fans: Tickets on sale up to 5 o'clock Monday afternoon at Hotel Hilton lobby ticket booth, and Hotel Lubbock drugstore. Fights start at 8:30 o'clock each night at Sportarena.

The tournament, in which numerous Golden Gloves champions and contestants are entered, will resemble the famous Golden Gloves meets in every respect save the name, with winners in each division earning a shot at the state title in San Angelo instead of Fort Worth.

Fifteen Bouts Per Night

While the number of entries so far registered for the Lubbock District tournament do not approach the number of fighters in the 1940 Golden Gloves, for various reasons, the quality of the fighters entered in the TAAF meet should more than make up for lack of quantity.

At that, however, enough have entered to provide a two-night show of approximately 15 bouts each night. Nearly 40 boys have entered.

The time of year, of course, cuts down on the number. Schools are not in regular session, many are working at jobs that do not permit time off for boxing, and many are on vacations out of the district.

Those who have entered, however, have devoted more than usual time to preparing themselves. Better facilities have been offered for training purposes, and the boys have worked harder. They should all be in "good shape" this week.

No less than seven former Golden Gloves champions, including three 1940 champions, have signified their intentions of going after additional titles at the Sportarena tomorrow night and Tuesday night.

Lebow, Steen Return

Curtis Lebow, the scrappy lad from Abernathy who twice on the flyweight title in the District Golden Gloves here, has moved into the bantamweight class, where he will compete with the 1940 GG champion, W. D. McCarty of Littlefield.

Howell Steen, rocking, socking welterweights that includes two former champions, James Stotts of Slaton and Jack Lovin of Lubbock.

Other former champions are Harry Bell, former bantam champion from Slaton, now in the featherweight class, and Bob Ritchie, Lubbock, winner of the 1938 lightheavyweight title who has been fighting on the Altus Junior college teams for two years, as a heavyweight.

Only one other heavyweight is entered so far, Roy Priolo, 212 pound ex-Amarillo High school champion, of Amarillo, but one or two others may enter before fight night. Noth-

Jaycees Top Twilight National Loop Play

The Jaycees edged past the Public School Faculty to take the second half National division lead in Business-Professional twilight softball play the past week, it was revealed Saturday as tentative plans for deciding the city championship were announced.

There is a possibility that the Faculty will tie the Jaycees for the senior circuit title, however, the Teachers having a postponed game to make up with the A.B.C. Current standings find the Jaycees ahead by one-half game.

Tech Faculty Leads

No more contests are scheduled in National division play this week, the season being declared completed. There is another week of competition in the American division, however, two games to be played Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons. It is likely that there will be individual league Shaughnessy playoffs in each division, then an inter-division series to decide the city twilight titlist.

American league standings were not available, but Texas Tech Faculty, winner of the first half chase, is leading. The Lions won the National division first half pennant.

North's All-Star Gridders Triumph, 14-7

Maley, Spencer Carry Brunt Of All-Star Win

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Writer

AUSTIN, Aug. 10. — A 31-yard run by little Wally Spencer, the wraith of Corsicana, and some consistent passing and plunging by Dallas' towering Red Maley brought the North a 14-7 victory here tonight in the annual All-Star game climaxing the Texas High School Coaches association coaching school.

Seven thousand fans turned out to see the first football game in the nation and they witnessed an exhibition of glittering runs, sensational passing and superb line play as 48 youngsters, who have finished their high school eligibility, put on the sixth annual gridiron show that marks the start of the schoolboy campaign in Texas.

It Was Warm

They played in 85-degree temperature.

The teams battled through a scoreless first half but early in the third period Walton Roberts, pint-sized back from Tyler, flipped a 34 yard pass to Buddy Hawkins of Nacogdoches to carry to the South 41 yard line.

Two off-side penalties set the South back 10 yards, then Spencer cut over right guard for a touchdown. Hawkins kicked the goal.

Passing Combine Clicks

The North got another on the opening play of the fourth period. A passing combination of Maley to Sleepy Harris of Breckenridge began to click. First it was for nine yards. Maley then got a first down on the South 22 with a tackle plunge and passed to Harris to carry to the seven. The next completion was taken by Harris on the one yard line and Maley crushed his way across for the touchdown. Maley kicked the goal.

Leo Daniels, probably the best all-around player on the field, then staged a drive for the South that brought a touchdown in sensational fashion. Gaining the ball on the South 43, Daniels passed to Harold Stockbridge of Austin (Houston) for 13 and flipped another to Lincoln Roman of Reagan (Houston) that carried the North 17.

Daniels raced around left end for seven and the North was penalized five for off-sides. Daniels got two at guard, big Jim Wright, Sulphur Springs' mighty guard, downing him. Daniels then flipped to Stockbridge for a touchdown. Ollie Clark of Taylor kicked the goal.

McKnight Bests One-Armed Ace— Dalby Defeats Denver City, 11-5, For District Crown

Following the one line set by H. C. Burrus' bases-loaded home run in the record inning, Dalby Motor Freight powered their way to an 11 to 5 decision over Denver City's Humble Oilers at Fox Park last night.

The district softball championship and right to participate in the state meet at Abilene beginning August 25 is the reward Dalby earned by the victory, their third of the tournament and second over the Oilers.

Dalby Counts Six

Denver City jumped off to a one-run lead in the first inning by playing ball the cunning way. Moe Bridges walked and advanced on Red Burrow's next hunt. Shorty Martin seored him with a single.

Dalby countered in the second with power pure and simple, power that showed six runs across the plate before two were out. Dick Green walked and Horace White was given first on catcher's interference. After Jack Thompson struck out, Charley Presley singled the bases full.

Hits First Ball

The Burrus picked on the first ball Cunningham pitched, lined it into deep right center for four runs. Olen Reed followed with a single, E. J. McKnight doubled him to third and Winfield Breedlove scored him with a fly to left field. McKnight then scored on a passed ball.

The Dalbys added another in the fourth on Burrus' single, an error and a long fly by Mc-

Hubbers Defeat Borger, 5-1; Play Two Today

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BORGER, August 10. — Walter Gorski and the Lubbock Hubbers got revenge over Benny Franklin and the Borger Gassers here tonight with a 5 to 1 victory in the series opener.

Gorski gave up eight hits, but scattered them so effectively that Borger made little use of them, scoring once in the last of the ninth inning when it seemed Gorski had a shutout in his hip pocket.

Franklin Is Loser

Scoreless until then, Borger got its lone counter when Scopetone singled, Keaton drew a walk, Stu Williams singled to score Scopetone from second.

One of the largest crowds of the season saw tonight's game, in which the Hubs jumped on Pitcher Benny Franklin for five telling blows, and as many hits. Lubbock scored once in the first inning when Steve Niedziela singled through second, scored on two Borger errors.

In the fifth, Lubbock scored four times to ice the game. Niedziela drew a walk and Drake singled. Schweda flied out and the runners advanced after the catch. Hajduk drew a walk, filling the bases.

Watkins Hits Homer

Boyd Watkins then lined a powerful blow to center field. The ball got under the light standards, and the blow went for a home run inside the park, clearing the sacks.

Jerry Soule went in for Franklin, and held the Hubbers hitless and Best crack overheard at the Hunt-Ritchie ringside Friday night (along about the ninth round, and it sounded like a feminine yell from the left field bleachers):

"You'd better walk him, Ritchie!"

About all there is left to say about the state championship bout is that Babe Ritchie quit fighting for his state title along about the fourth round—and started fighting for his life.

It was the worst beating ever handed a champion since Joe Louis whipped James Braddock. Hunt fooled everybody by being in such fine shape, enabling him to finish strongly, and Ritchie surprised everybody by hanging on, literally, as long as he did. It was the roughest brawl we've seen, with gloves, since the Paiooka-Balonki series started.

FOR A DIFFERENT brand of boxing, and on a considerably higher plane, than you have been seeing of late, we give you the Lubbock District Texas Amateur Athletic Federation tournament, starting tomorrow night at the Sportarena. You liked the Golden Gloves tournaments for three years—you will like the TAAF meet just as well, because, in this district at least, it is being conducted along Golden Gloves lines, which are the most inabusive and straightforward lines in the world of sport.

AS YOU MAY SEE, if you peruse the regular story in today's paper regarding the TAAF meet, numerous Golden Gloves stars are returning to the ring tomorrow night, as pure amateurs, to give you two hours each night of stand-up-and-take-it fighting. The boxing itself may not be of the most scientific brand, but it will be interesting.

The world's largest coaching school—a title held for half a decade by Texas Tech's coaching school—came to an end at Austin last night when the hand-picked high school grid graduates of the North met a similar team from the South of Texas. At the writing, score of the game has not come in, nor is it of much importance just now.

Probably the most popular instructor and demonstrator at the Texas High School Football Coaches association coaching school last week at Austin was Russell T. "Dutchy" Smith, line coach at Texas Tech.

The "head men" at the coaching school were Homer Norton of A. & M., Dutch Meyer of T. C. U., and their respective assistants and demonstrators.

But no newspaper story or comment coming from the coaching school failed to mention Dutchy Smith, and the interesting manner in which he taught and demonstrated line play with four of his Texas Tech hands. Dutchy got more mention, of the exciting type, than any other of the nine men on the staff. Dell Morgan, former Tech, Alabama Poly and now Rice line coach, was on the staff, and he got fine notices, too.

ASSISTING Dutchy were Line Captain Primo McCurry, guard; A. B. "Red" Murphy, former star tackle, the new coach-elect at Littlefield High school, Rex Williams, great center for two seasons, now bound for pro ball with the New York Giants, and Robert Duncan, end who'll be around in profusion this season.

In the Austin American, Scribe Wilbur Evans wrote, under the heading, "Mr. Smith Goes To Town," as follows:

"Most enthusiastic lecturer on the program was Dutchy Smith, bald Texas Tech line coach, who really gave the fellows their money's worth with some good dope on line play.

"Too, he had some very worthy demonstrations of his system in (McCurry, etc., named above).

"Smith talked with so much vim that he was beginning to be a bit hoarse even before the opening day program was finished."

WRITING for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, our old sidekick Frank Tolbert, "covering" the coaching school, said:

"Dutchy Smith . . . continued to be one of the leading attractions. For two hours today he lectured on blocking assignments in his train-caller voice, illustrating his points with some rugged maneuvers by Texas Tech athletes in crimson uniforms.

"Primo McCurry . . . made a large impression on the assembled coaches . . . McCurry helps illustrate the fiery lectures of his coach, Dutchy Smith. And muscular, 195-pound Primo throws his blocks and tackles so emphatically as to keep the critical audience in an awed uproar all of the time.

"Dutchy Smith is hoarse from his eloquence in his demonstrations.

" 'Dutchy acts as if the season has already started,' said one coach.

" 'Smith is a great line coach,' commented Homer Norton, Texas A. & M. coach."

So you see old Dutchy was getting along fine.

We had a long letter from Goober Keyes, Lubbock High mentor who has been attending the school. From the letter:

"Pat (Farris) and Joe (Tyson), are running on the first eleven (the North team, in practice before last night's game) and Pat is the best of the North tackles.

"Of course, I have no right to criticize any coach, much less Coach Meyer of T. C. U., but they have Tyson running at left halfback and I think he is out of position."

So if the Norths didn't come out right last night, maybe there's a reason.

Auto Racing Programs Called Off By Gaither

This afternoon's semi-monthly activities at the Auto Speedways have been called off.

Announcement of cancellation of the regular Sunday afternoon auto races was made by Promoter N. C. Gaither Saturday. Unless something unexpected turns up, the races will not be resumed as they were presented for awhile, Gaither said.

However, if there is enough interest the junk car derbys might be resumed, the promoter said. Lack of attednance was given as a reason for stopping the programs

In American Derby— Mioland Cops $62,000 Race

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Splashing through a sloppy track in a driving rain, Mioland galloped to a three length victory in the $62,000 American Derby at Washington park today to throw the three-year-old championship into a perplexing puzzle.

Mioland, owned by Charles S. Howard of San Francisco, led from start to finish. Sirocco, winner of the Arlington classic, finished second, and Weigh Anchor third, four lengths back of Sirocco. Gallahadion, winner of the Kentucky Derby, finished fourth after running last most of the way, with Super Chief fifth in the five-horse field.

The race lost much of its appeal by the last minute scratching of Bimelech, Col. Edward R. Bradley's potential three year old champion of 1940. An hour before the race, a terrific thunderstorm drenched the racing strip and thousands of spectators jammed under the stands. Most of the 35,000 received a soaking, nevertheless, since a strong wind blew the rain under the stands.

William Hurley, trainer of Bimelech, decided aaginst sending his three year old into the race because of the sloppy track. Mud was fetlock deep along the rail, and only a few seconds before the race started the rain broke in a deluge.

Mioland, fourth in the Kentucky Derby, and second to Bimelech in the Preakness, never was headed, with Jocky Johnny Adams piloting him to victory. Mioland splashed over the mile and one quarter route in 2:05 4/5.

HEAD OF THE HOUSE

SCOTTSBLUFF, Neb., Aug. 10 (AP) Everett Stone, Scottsbluff High school principal, scored a hole-in-one on the 135-yard hole at the Scotts Bluff Country club.

And why isn't he bragging about it around the house?

Well, Mrs. Stone scored an ace earlier in the season on the same course, but on a longer hole.

Paulger Victim In Open Finals

Mrs. J. R. Farmer, Meadowbrook club player, successfully defended her Lubbock Women's City Open golf championship yesterday with a 3 and 2 victory over a fellow club member, Mrs. Ruby Paulger, at Lubbock Country club.

Apparently nervous at the outset, Mrs. Paulger dropped the first four holes of the championship round to Mrs. Farmer, then rallied to make a match of it until the fifteenth hole.

Widener Cops Consolations

Mrs. Cliff Widener won the championship flight consolation final with a 1 up, 19 holes victory over Mrs. A. G. Finnell. It was the second extra hole match for Mrs. Finnell, who had to go 20 holes Friday to win a semi-final match.

Mrs. Guy McAfee won the first flight with a 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. E. A. Henry, and Mrs. Olan Key took consolation honors in that flight with a 1 up, 19 holes, victory over Mrs. Homer Hall.

Crawford Is Winner

Second flight honors went to Mrs. Bob Crawford with a 2 and 1 victory over Miss Mildred Boone. Mary Jarrott won the consolation, 3 and 2, over Mrs. Wright Kerr.

Mrs. Ernest Ohnemus won the nine-hole flight title with a 4-up win over Mrs. Oliver Thomas, the consolation honor going to Mrs. Barnie Rushing who defeated Miss Joyce Halsey, 1 up.

Prizes were awarded all winners and runners up at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

MEN'S OPEN ANNOUNCED

A City Open golf tournament for men, it was announced last night, will start at Lubbock Country club on Monday, August 19.

Definite plans for the event will be announced later, said Ted Tipps, spokesman for the tournament committee of Hubert Allen, Charles Akey and Tipps, but it was believed officially that qualifying for the tournament, running at least two days, would begin on August 19. All amateur golfers of the city would be eligible to compete.

The temperature in Massawa, Eritrea, does not drop below 70 degrees during winter.

Pampa Drubs Loboes, 16 To 4, In Opener

PAMPA, Aug. 10. (Special)—Manager Grover Seitz' Pampa Oilers scored in every frame except the second tonight in handing Lamesa a severe licking, 16 to 4.

Factors in the final outcome were Rex Dilbeck's seven-hit hurling and the 17-hit barrage the Oilers bounced off a trio of Lamesa moundsmen.

"Natural" Arranged For Wednesday Night Wrestling With Detton-Abbott Meeting Clements-Powell Team

A "team" match that is just what the doctor ordered as far as wrestling fans are concerned has been arranged for Wednesday night's tug and groan proceedings at the Sportarena.

In two of the corners will be the "heroes" or "peepul's choices"—Dory Detton and Ace Abbott. Opposing these two popular gentlemen of the ring will be the "villains" in the case—Chuck Powell and "Big Train" Clements.

Occasion for the squaring off of the participants as they are was brought about by the last two matches at the Sportarena. In both instances, Detton and Powell were matched in the climaxing main event. And each time, the Birmingham bad boy was awarded violently protested decisions over the likeable Salt Lake City grappler.

Blood flowed in profusion as an ending to both matches. Detton blaming "Big Train," who happened to be refereeing the contests, with the smelly endings. Last week, the spectators got their ire and dander up and it was some three minutes before they would allow Clements to leave the ring, forcing him back into the square to exchange a fistic flurry with the angered Detton.

So, come Wednesday night Promoter Sled Allen will offer a knock down, drag out program that should surpass either of the other two wild engagements seen here the past two weeks, perhaps as good as any presented by the tug and slug boys in the past three years.

The main go will be for two out of three falls or two hour time limit. The winning team must win two out of three falls to take the decision, in other words, pinning both opponents to constitute a fall. The first member thrown must leave the ring and the fall continues until the other member of the team is thrown, or until the other team is pinned.

A curtain raiser offering a 20-minute time limit or one fall prelim will inaugurate the program. On it, Lobo Brown and Art Beicher, both of Amarillo, will tangle.

Promoter Allen announced that there would be no advance in prices, women to be admitted for 5 cents, men for 44 cents general admission, 65 cents for ringsides, tax included in all cases

Broadview Set For Tourney

One week from today, Broadview golf course will toss its first tournament—a one-day affair in which all amateurs of Lubbock and the South Plains are invited to participate.

Competition will be over a 27-hole medal play route.

The first nine holes will be the qualifying round, starting at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning and closing at 12 o'clock noon.

Awards To Winners

Players then will be arranged in flights according to qualifying score, sponsors expressing belief that enough participants would be on hand for five complete flights.

Winners and runners up in each flight will be awarded prizes. Entrance fee of $1 will be assessed. The layout will be open to entrants from Thursday on through the tournament.

In excellent condition, the course boasts the best sand greens and as clean a fairways as can be found on the South Plains, said Sled Allen, manager.

Allen mailed invitations to players and clubs of the surrounding area yesterday afternoon. However, any golfer is welcome at the club and to participate in the tournament, he said.

Sox Score In Second To Smother Odessa

AMARILLO, Aug. 10. (Special)—A big 10-run second inning coupled with L. D. "Lefty" Surratt's eight-hit hurling tonight gave Amarillo's Gold Hose an 11 to 2 decision over the cellar bound Odessa Oilers in the opening contest of a two-game stand.

With errors slowing but not marring play, the Sox jumped on Parmenter and Schulze for 11 base blows, the Oilers matching the winners in most instances with the exception of the costly second.

Meadowbrook Club House Plans Formal Opening

Public Invited Wednesday

Formal opening of the new Meadowbrook Club house, fine new edifice on the north border of Mackenzie State park, has been scheduled for Wednesday, August 14.

The "formalities" begin at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening, and continue until midnight, with a dance on the terrace being the main event. Ross Edwards and his string swing band will provide the music.

But persons interested in inspecting the new club house, and the new grass greens at Meadowbrook Golf club, are invited to come out any time in the afternoon. Festivities begin at 7 o'clock, and refreshments will be served the guests, announced W. G. McMillan, owner-manager of Meadowbrook Golf club and supervisor of the Meadowbrook Club house.

Recreation Center

While the two—the Meadowbrook golf course and the Meadowbrook Club house—are separate and distinct, one being in Mackenzie Park, the other on ground leased by McMillan, they will cooperate in golf, as well as in other events. The clubhouse will also be the golf clubhouse. In addition, the clubhouse will serve as a recreation center for persons not interested in golf, but parties, dances, and the like will be permitted "by appointment" only. It will not be open from night to night, but will be "rented" for private parties on pre-arrangement with the management.

The spacious clubhouse, pictured at the left, surmounts a hill overlooking Meadowbrook Golf club. From its grand terrace, which makes up three thousand square feet of concrete, polished dance and dining floor, seventeen of the 18 greens on the course may be seen.

The clubhouse itself contains a number of rooms as follows: A large reception room, or lobby, along one side of which runs the "counter" behind which are racks for golf clubs and bags, the concession stand, and the place of registration; on the opposite side, doors leading to the men's and women's locker and shower rooms and the check room; on the front, or west side, the main entrance and windows, and on the east side, doors leading to the terrace, from which are two exists and entrances to the golf course below.

Plenty Of Lockers

The men's and women's locker rooms contain 166 steel lockers, appropriately divided and arranged; showers and toilets. Large water heaters and tanks provide for hot and cold water in baths and lavatories. Opposite these spaces, across the reception room, and back of the rack room and concession room, the workshop for Professional Joe Bihl and back of that, the living apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lee. Lee is proprietor and general manager of the clubhouse.

From the main entrance westward and to right and left are parking spaces for several hundred automobiles.

McMillan has announced that the new grass greens at Meadowbrook would be open to the public early in September.

Six Teams Vie For Right To Enter Playoff

Participation in the state playoff with the Texas title as their ultimate goal, six scrapping squads of the South Plains tee off this afternoon in first round play of the annual District TAAF baseball tournament at Fox Park.

With two contenders drawing first round byes, today's program will be a double feature starting at 2 o'clock. And a good crowd of the diamond faithful is expected to witness the city's only baseball entertainment for the day.

Teams Bolstered

Teams seeking the championship—all boasting players widely known in this section—will include the Lubbock Sandies, Lubbock Dr. Peppers, Ropes, Lubbock Seven-Up, Richmen and Wolfforth.

Members of the Lubbock County Amateur league which flourished more or less successfully through the season, these contenders now are bolstered by additional players and should offer pitching performances on a plane comparable to much of that seen in the West Texas-New Mexico league. Two no-hit, no-run games in addition to several sensational strike-out jobs have been reeled off at the College avenue and Fourth street orchard thus far.

Peppers Are Favored

Tangling in the opening contest at 2 o'clock will be the strong Dr. Pepper crew, pre-tournament favorite, and Ropes, which finished only a notch behind the bottlers in regular league competition.

The nightcap finds Seven-Up mixing it up with Manager Fred Rich's boys. The Sandies and Wolfforth drew first round byes and will not see action until Wednesday. Tournament officials explained that

Big Swimming Event On At Lakes Today

What promises to be one of the largest swimming meets ever conducted at Buffalo Lakes will get under way at 4 o'clock this afternoon, provided all towns invited send teams, lakes officials in charge of the promising event announced Saturday afternoon.

According to C. D. Roberts who is handling arrangements for the affair, teams of five or seven swimmers will be at the Lakes from Amarillo, Pampa, Oklahoma City, Carlsbad, N. M., Clovis, N. M. Anthony, N. M., El Paso and Lubbock.

In all, 27 events have been carded. The Southwestern Swimming meet, name applied to the competition event, will be unfolded in the regular swimming portion of the lake near the bathhouse. Ribbons will be awarded first and second place winners, said Roberts.

Those representing Lubbock include Charley Pitts, Mr. and Mrs. Brice, Sue Dow, James Merriman, G. G. Green, Roy Houk jr. and Roberts. There will be no advance in admission prices.

Marble Bests Jacobs For Eastern Crown

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 10. (AP)—The end of the rival empire today for Helen Jacobs, four-time National champion, and one of the few women believed capable of retiring Alice Marble, queen of the world's tennis courts.

Her game ready and her strategy carefully planned, she took the field against Alice, hoping to end the ruthless domination of the blonde Californian but Alice won with ridiculous ease—6-1, 6-0.

In the day's other headliner, National Champion Bobby Riggs was far from good, but even then he was far better than Henry Prusoff, winning 6-2, 6-2, 6-1 in a thoroughly uninteresting semi-final struggle.

The victory sent Riggs into tomorrow's final against Don McNeill, Oklahoma City's National clay court and Intercollegiate champion.

REMEMBER
To Repack the Wheel Bearings

Here's something to check for your car's summer service. Have you had the wheels packed from time to time? They need it if you want the bearings to last. At this time of year especially just ordinary greasing isn't good enough. They need the special Ford lubricant we carry. It doesn't drip in hot weather. Bring your car to us for a lubrication. Front wheels repacked costs only 75c this month! Rear wheels also need packing on later models.
WITH EVERY WHEEL REPACKING JOB WE MAKE A FREE INSPECTION OF THE STEERING MECHANISM.
It's important that you have the tie-rod, drag link, spindle bolts and bushings and steering connecting rod inspected periodically, especially if you drive frequently over rough roads. Here's your chance to have expert service FREE.

"Business As Usual"
Election years needs must be. Then they are over. Prices go down. Then go up. Congress fights—then drink and make up. Every war has its end. Every tyrant reaches his Waterloo. The Fifth Column comes, but it has to go.
Real Americans may differ, but most of them will die in defense of Liberty.
The part of wisdom on the part of all is to face these emergencies with the head up and do "Business as usual."

Dalby Wins Title

Knight. Thompson doubled, Presley walked to open the sixth and both scored on errors and passed balls.

Thompson ended the contest as Burrus had started it with a seventh-frame home that scored Dick Green ahead of him.

Eight Hits Scattered

McKnight gave up eight hits, but scattered them adequately. After their first-inning marker, the visitors scored no more until the fifth, when Red Burrow singled across two that had been loaded on with walks. Two more scored in the final inning on two singles and the only two Dalby errors of the game.

Cunningham started for the Oilers and was beaten for the second time by the Dalbymen. Brooks McNeal relieved him to pitch the seventh.

Fielding of near-sensational vintage, featuring the throwing of Jack Thompson and Charley Presley and the one-handed fielding stabs of Lefty Bettes, enlivened the game and helped keep McKnight out of trouble.

The all-district team: 1b—Lefty Bettes, Dalby; 2b — Red Burrow, Denver City; ss — Dewey Adair, Denver City; 3b—J. B. White, Central Labor; sf — Jack Thompson, Dalby; lf—Charley Presley, Dalby; cf—H. TAAF Boxing Meet the tournament would be suspended until Wednesday night so as not to conflict with the District TAAF boxing tournament scheduled at the Sportarena Monday and Tuesday nights.

Play Dallas Winner

Play will be under the double elimination plan, necessitating that a team lose twice before being eliminated from the running.

Winner will meet the winner of the Dallas district in the first of a series of inter-district and inter-city series that will ultimately decide the state champion.

Boat Club To Present Carnival Next Sunday

Lubbock Boat club, whose members may be seen capering over the waves at Buffalo Lakes almost any day, have announced plans for a big Water Carnival next Sunday afternoon, Lubbock and Slaton boating enthusiasts to participate in putting on the show.

Harold Humphries, commodore of the club, announced that a total of eight races were scheduled plus two exhibitions that should be of interest to South Plains residents who seldom have a chance to see water sports.

Master of ceremonies for the carnival will be Wiley Walker and Gene Sullivan of KFYO. The two playing and singing comedians will entertain between races. Starting time for the program will be 3 o'clock.

First prize winners will receive loving cups, second and third place winners medals. There will be six boat races, an aquaplane race and water ski race. Exhibitions also will be given in the latter two events.

Boxing Tournament

ing has been heard from the 1939 and 1940 district Gloves champions, Fats Mitchell of Lockney and Linard Buck of Morton, but they may show up at the last minute.

No light heavyweights had been registered last night, but it was believed at least two, possibly more, would show up for weighing in and physical examinations Monday. It will be necessary for two or more to enter before a champion will be recognized in any weight division.

Several newcomers, and former contestants in Golden Gloves tournaments who are just as anxious to win as the champions include the scrappy Gerald Fincher of Girard, a featherweight, Junior McLaurin, outstanding lightweight of O'Donnell who almost won in his division last winter; Callaway Jolly of Tahoka, a welterweight who promises to make things tough for Lovin, Steen and Stotts; Woody Culpepper, G. H. Rushing and Joe Stone, of the Littlefield CCC, and Dale Odom, fighting footballer of Lubbock High.

Also entered to date are Flyweights Sonny Kaiser of O'Donnell, Loyd Cole of Littlefield and Cleatus Lebow, younger brother of Champion Curtis, from Abernathy; Bantamweights Castillo Isidro of Lubbock and Martin Jimenez of Idalou; Featherweights Louis Countess of Idalou, Burford Bradshaw of Littlefield, Wayne Boyd of Lubbock and Jack Blackburn of Littlefield CCC; Lightweights Billy Buck of Morton, brother of the fighting Buck brothers, John and Linard; Raymond Joe Reed of Hale Center, Roy Belk of Kress, and W. D. Stockton of the Lamesa CCC; Middleweights A. L. Anderson, Jr., of Amarillo, Edgar Belden of Lubbock and Red Myers of Littlefield CCC.

A delegation of boxers from Snyder, first to enter the tourney, and three or four more from Amarillo are expected. Pampa and all North Plains boxers are eligible to compete in the Lubbock District tournament by special arrangement with state officials of the TAAF, since no district tournament is to be held there.

Winners in the Lubbock tournament will go to San Angelo a week later to compete for state championships.

Ginners Hold Meeting Here

Cops Called To Make Youngster Take Bath

NEW YORK, Aug. 10 (AP)—It took a police emergency call to quell 12-year-old David Hershkowitz' tantrum over his mother's request that he take a bath.

David really put on a show. Folks from all around his east side neighborhood came to watch the spectacle of a husky lad standing perilously close to the edge of a third-floor fire escape and shouting to his mother:

"If you won't leave me alone, I'll take a jump."

Floydada Man Named Leader

Lon M. Davis, Floydada ginner and civic leader, was elected president of directors Saturday in Hilton hotel, following the election of five directors of the association.

Meeting was "the largest we have ever held, I believe," said George Simmons, of Lubbock Cotton Oil mill, who headed the committee on arrangements. Morning session was held in Palace theater.

Holmes Elected

R. D. Holmes, Lubbock ginner, was named vice president and B. B. Baron of Lubbock, secretary-treasurer. He succeeds Horace H. Hawkins of Plainview. The three, with R. E. Patterson of Lockney and J. W. McDonald of Lamesa, were chosen directors.

Principal speaker was John C. Thompson of Dallas, executive secretary of the Texas Cotton Ginners association, who made a report of association activities the past year, including results secured in representing the association before Congress. He also defined the present status of ginners and gin employes under the federal wage and hour law and social security.

W. S. Posey of First National bank, welcomed the visitors when they met in the theater in the morning. L. L. Thompson of Amarillo talked on cotton burr ashes.

Ginners Hopeful

The meeting adjourned for lunch at the hotel, with the business session following. President Davis and Secretary Hawkins made reports of the year's work.

Ginners discusssed crop conditions and were inclined to be hopeful of results from recent rains.

SURGERY VICTIM IMPROVING

SLATON, Aug. 10. (Special) — Miss Grace Wheeler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Wheeler of Lorenzo and a teacher in the public schools of Whitharral, underwent major surgery Friday morning in Mercy hospital, in Slaton. Her condition late Saturday was satisfactory, said surgeons.

Hale Attorney Will Move To Lubbock

Joe Sharp, native of Hale county and twice elected Hale county attorney, will resign his assistant attorney generalship effective Sept. 1 and move to Lubbock to become a law partner of former District Judge Homer L. Pharr, the Lubbock attorney announced Saturday.

Sharp has rented a house at 1920 Twenty-second street and his wife and 7-year-old daughter were here briefly disposing of household goods for it.

Sharp, who was appointed by William McCraw, then attorney general, to his post, has served almost four years in that capacity, being attached to the department that handles matters for the state liquor control board.

He was graduated from Plainview high school, attended Wayland college and Texas Technological college, and obtained his law degree from Cumberland university.

Scout Executive To Return From Trip

Preparations for Boy Scout activities in South Plains council during the autumn, winter and spring will gain momentum with the return Monday of Jack O. Stone, council executive, to headquarters here, according to report Saturday by H. F. Gilley, field executive, who has been in charge of council headquarters.

Mr. and Mrs. Stone are scheduled to return today from a two weeks' vacation trip in the north and east.

One of the events this week, Gilley said, will be the second session of a scout leader's training course in Seagraves High school Thursday night. J. F. McCullough, superintendent of schools there, is director of the course.

Gilley also said that one of the events of the Lubbock district cubs' picnic in Mackenzie state park Friday night was the presentation by Bates Witt of ribbons each member of the "Giants," which won the baseball championship for cub pack 10, sponsored by Junior High school, in a recent tournament. Another event was the graduation of Joseph Patton, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. T. Patton, from cub jack No. 1 into scout troop No. 8, sponsored by the American Legion.

People who spread rumors in England have been nicknamed "chatterbugs."

Attention Is Concentrated This Week On Late Summer Weddings

The Woman's Angle
by Margaret Turner

SOME folks talk to express their thoughts, and some talk to conceal their thoughts but too many just talk to keep from thinking.

THANKS A LOT

The greenest grass that ever grew,
The landscape of most gorgeous hue,
That fish of most gigantic girth
On this or any other earth,
Were on those cards that came from you and you and you.

MARRIED WOMEN'S JOBS

SHOULD the married woman work? Seventy thousand women—members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs — have launched a campaign to prevent discrimination against married women workers. There are about 20 women in the local club who probably will do their bit in peppering the country with circulars and letters should the matter become red hot again. Right now conscription and other defense measures have the attention of the congressmen.

Married women claim they have a right to work. Arguments of the federation based on a survey of a cross section of its members were made public only recently. They reveal that the federation's married members work, not to satisfy a whim, but because they need money to support parents or relatives, to improve their standards of living, to educate children, get out of debt or to save for their old age. Some work because their husbands lost their jobs, became ill or wanted help in their business.

ONE of their strongest defenses of the married woman's right to work is their contention that by working they have more money to spend on household equipment, electrical appliances and clothes and thus increase business. Thinking over a list of married women of our acquaintance, we checked and double checked that one.

During the depression many women took jobs to maintain their homes which might have been lost otherwise with the curtailment of their husband's earnings. In doing that they later purchased repairs and household equipment to a greater degree than would otherwise have been the case. They hired household help, thus relieving the unskilled labor market.

So far as The Woman's Angle is concerned, we hope the drive to make jobs safe for married women is successful. The married members in the Lubbock Business and Professional Women's club are capably filling positions, many of them being in departments that give them opportunities to employ both married and unmarried women which they do, making the choice fifty-fifty as much as possible.

SCATTERINGS

MRS. FRANK MACKEY has as her guest her sister, Mrs. J. Frank Norris, jr., of Dallas and now we know what is meant by identical twins—they are very attractive young women . . . We know no person so busy he or she can't take an occasional, unrushed hour in which to do exactly as he pleases. . . . Prettiest hat we saw last week was worn by Miss Myrtle Dunn, a wide navy with small pearl buttons trimming the band . . . The new trend in women's sports shirts is a man's shirt. Which probably will give the males something else to fuss about and secretly appreciate. . . . Theory of the name Dixie is that the term originated in Louisiana before the Civil war. A bank issued a ten dollar bill on which was engraved a large DIX, the French word for ten. The bills, widely circulated throughout the South, were called "dixies," hence the South was known as the land of Dixies or Dixie land.

WISH women wouldn't sing "I Dream of Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair" . . . Unforgettable walk: That taken early one morning in New Orleans . . . There is a four minute version of "Gone With the Wind" that is being passed about in offices and stores which is slightly clever and slightly dull. . . . Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor are to be co-starred in Ethel Vance's "Escape." . . . In a letter from Alaska last week came a little cross from Mrs. William Corwith, national president of the American Legion auxiliary. . . . Mrs. W. A. Jackson of Houston brought jars of fig preserves to Lubbock friends when she stopped here briefly Wednesday and Thursday. She put the fruit up herself, after gathering it from trees in her backyard. . . . Thanks to somebody's generosity and the Hardy family's third anniversary, we have been eating birthday cake baked by Baldridge's and bearing a little music box. . . . Mary Leidigh refused any places of honor in her sister Katherine's wedding Monday, insisting she will be too busy taking pictures of the ceremony to be in it.

SUCCESS STORY

THAT story, "Penny Serenade," published as the novelette in an August woman's magazine, has netted its author, Martha Cheavens, former Baylor University student, the pretty sum of $29,500. She sold motion picture rights for $25,000. Miss Cheavens had two stories appearing in August magazines. Her brother, Dave Cheavens, is Texas editor for the Associated Press. She lives on Long Island.

New Prohibition Party Makes Plans For Campaign After European War Ends

Babson Is Head Of 1940 Ticket

CHICAGO, Aug. 10 (AP)—The new Prohibition party has begun a campaign looking ahead to the day when the war ends, and it hopes to emerge from the reaction as the nation's great conservative party.

Under the leadership of its presidential candidate, Roger W. Babson, economist, of Massachusetts, it has broadened its program from mere opposition to liquor until it embraces a wide range of economic and social objectives.

Babson is campaigning actively in the 35 states where his name will appear on the ballot next November. He hopes to poll 1,000,000 votes. In 1936 the party's candidate, D. Worth Colvin of New York, received 300,000.

Major Parties Assailed

Predicting eventual revulsion to the policies of both Democratic and Republican parties, Babson likened the nation to a "hungry mule between two bales of sawdust."

"After the war there will be lower prices and less work," he said. "When the reaction comes, the New Prohibition party will be ready to receive the voters into a conservative party. Otherwise they would have to turn to the Socialists or Communists."

Babson started his campaign tour the last week of July with a swing from New England to California. Also active in the campaign was Edgar V. Moorman of Quincy, Ill., candidate for Vice President.

"Our new fight is not for the return of the 18th amendment, but for a nation of character," Babson said. "We know our only security lies in courage and self denial, and we hope to change the country's point of view."

In the party's expanded platform are the beliefs that the labor union movement has reached its peak, the WPA and RFC are fundamentally wrong, commercial vice and gambling should be wiped out, integrity in government is fundamental, and block booking of movies should be abolished.

Babson and Moorman were nominated at the party's national convention here in May. Three hundred delegates, mostly gray-haired veterans of the dry crusade, attended the three-day session in a hotel ballroom.

C. E. Hunt Pioneer In More Ways Than One; He Blazed Many Business Trails Here

IN an office with the sign 'Superintendent' on the door at Lubbock sanitarium, a modestly-dressed man with thinning gray hair sits at a desk.

If a 'First Citizen' of Lubbock were to be designated, he would probably be entitled to as many votes as anybody. For C. E. Hunt holds the distinction of more 'firsts' than any other man living in Lubbock today.

He was a partner in the first electric light plant in Lubbock; he operated Lubbock's first dairy; he was the first wholesale grocer in Lubbock; he worked as an operator in the first telephone system here; he sold the first bakery bread in Lubbock and the other things that he holds the distinction of being first in here are too numerous to mention.

Born At Estacado

His father, the late, beloved Geo. M. Hunt, for whom a Lubbock grade school is named, came to the Plains in the early eighties and C. E. Hunt, born at old Estacado two years later, July 19, 1886, has seen the transition of this area from a frontier civilization into its present modern era.

He carried the mail in a two-wheel mule-drawn cart from Lubbock to Meadow nearly two score years ago; a trip that required all day and one that may be made now in less than an hour. He drove on the first bus line from Lubbock to Plainview and made the almost unbelievable record in those days of two round trips in one day!

His father built the first house on the Lubbock townsite in 1890, and C. E. Hunt has lived here continuously ever since. His father operated the first hotel here, the old Nicolett, recently razed. He is probably the only person who has spent 50 consecutive Christmases in Lubbock and he can look back on the days when Christmas was a long-talked event for the people of this vast prairie domain.

Listening to C. E. Hunt reminisce on Lubbock's early days is one of the most interesting things you have ever heard. He can tell you about many of the events which have transpired in Lubbock's history. He can tell you about how, as a youngster, he used to watch herds of antelope roam the prairie which is now in the vicinity of Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets and Avenue Q. He can tell you about the vast prairie fires which used to sweep the South Plains ranges to create as great a menace to life and property as the great forest fires of today.

He can well remember the rumble of heavy freight wagons through the streets of Lubbock and the coming of the first train is an indelible memory. He saw the first automobile in Lubbock; the first airplane and purchased one of the town's first radios.

Schooled At Canyon

Starting to school in the Canyon school, seven miles east of Lubbock, Clifford Earl Hunt secured all of his education in Lubbock county schools with the exception of a business course in Draughon's Business college in Fort Worth in 1904. He attended school under P. F. Brown and George R. Bean, two of Lubbock's early school teachers, in a little one-room schoolhouse located about Fifteenth street between Avenues K and L.

When he was still a youngster in high school, Cliff Hunt and Harry Graham established Lubbock's first electric light plant and Hunt dug all the holes, set the poles and strung the wiring for the plant. He started the little putt-putt gasoline engine to give Lubbock its first electric current. Recently he visited the old Nicolett hotel and saw some of the original wiring he installed more than 35 years ago.

Worked First In Store

Returning from his business college training at Fort Worth, young Hunt went to work as a bookkeeper in the Lubbock Mercantile company, operated by K. and Geo. Carter and A. A. Peoples.

On October 18, 1906 he was married to Miss Dora Lee, daughter of the late E. Y. Lee, pioneer South Plains ranchman. They have two children, Miss Elva Mae Hunt, who resides with her parents at 2005 Sixteenth street; and Howard E. Hunt, classified advertising manager of the Avalanche-Journal. Another son, Julian, died at the age of 8 years on Feb. 13, 1917.

In 1907, Hunt moved to a farm and started Lubbock's first dairy. For the next two years he milked 30 cows twice daily and delivered milk to 100 customers in Lubbock. In those days, 100 milk customers was some business, he'll tell you. Besides that he managed to farm 40 acres of feed crops.

Lived Briefly In Slaton

C. E. Hunt sold out the dairy and his next business was with a lumber company and at that time Lubbock had more lumber yards than anything else. There were approximately 20 yards here during the 'railroad boom' era. He spent a short time at Slaton with the Houston Lumber company, returning to Lubbock several months later. Along about that time "the lumber yards started selling to each other" and Hunt went into the grocery business.

Having operated a grocery store for a brief period several years before, Hunt became one of the leading wholesale grocers of the Panhandle-Plains area and served little grocers as far away as Bronco, Gomez, Southland, Crosbyton and other points. He operated the store several years and his brother, A. G. Hunt, bought an interest.

With Sanitarium 21 Years

He sold this interest in 1919 to join the staff of the Lubbock sanitarium. On March 10, 1919 he became associated with the sanitarium as business manager but his duties consisted of telephone operator, secretary, bookkeeper, collector and errand boy. Drs. A. R. Ponton, J. T. Hutchinson and O. F. Peebler made up the staff of the 30-bed hospital at that time. Since that time the sanitarium has been expanded twice until it now has 100 beds and plans are being studied for even greater expansion which will almost double that amount.

In 1925, Hunt was named superintendent of the sanitarium. He directs all of the buying, employment of personnel and other similar duties.

Hunt is one of the leaders of hospital circles in Texas and has served as president of the Northwest Texas Hospital association in 1930 and the Texas Hospital association in 1937-38. He is a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators, the American Hospital association and the American Protestant Hospital association. He was one of the seven incorporators of the Group Hospital Service, Inc., and is still a director of that organization.

C. E. Hunt took his Masonic work nearly 30 years ago in the Lubbock lodge, then housed in a two-story frame structure, the lower floor of which was occupied by the Citizens National bank just as it is today. He is one of the few Masons in Texas to serve his lodge as Master for two terms. He is a Shriner and past president of the Lubbock Shrine club.

Hunt, whose father came to the South Plains as a Quaker but later joined the Methodist church, was secretary and treasurer of the building committee for the construction of the First Methodist church here.

Does Much Civic Work

He served the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development in its early days as director several terms and is at present secretary-treasurer of the Panhandle-South Plains Fair association.

He is a charter member of the Lubbock Optimist club and is serving his second term as secretary-treasurer.

Besides his brother, A. G. Hunt, Clifford Hunt has three sisters living in Lubbock. They are: Mrs. Geo. C. Wolfforth, 2304 Broadway; Mrs. Warren A. Bacon, 1802 Broadway; and Mrs. F. E. Wheelock, 1216 Broadway.

Four Are Received Into Bridge Club

Four new members and three special guests played bridge with Rendezvous club members when Mrs. Fraser McGuire gave a bridge-supper Friday night at Hotel Lubbock. Visitors were Mrs. Dan Salkeld of Quanah, Mrs. Bennie McWilliams of Denison and Mrs. Bob Gregory.

New members were Mrs. Vance Swaim and Misses Lois Hall, Louise Douglas and Margaret Turner.

Others present were Misses Opal McMahon, Lalla D'Spain, Minnie Hazel Gore and Mrs. Weston Parris.

Miss Nella Nettles Weds Mr. Moreland

Miss Nella V. Nettles and J. D. Moreland were united in marriage by Rev. N. S. Daniel recently at the Methodist church in Meadow. Vows were spoken before an altar of greenery and roses.

Miss Marcille Brown played the traditional wedding marches. Mrs. F. C. Copeland sang, "I Love You Truly," (Bond) accompanied by Miss Brown.

The bride who wore a frock of soldier blue with black accessories was given in marriage by her father, E. D. Nettles. She wore a corsage of gladioli and talisman roses.

Bride Is Attendant

Miss Edith Poole of Benjamin was the bride's only attendant. She wore a frock of wine with navy accessories and a corsage of sweetpeas and carnations.

Clifford Moreland of Ropesville, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Mary Jo Moreland, sister of the bridegroom, served as flower girl and Don Code Copeland was ring bearer. Ushers were Paul Nettles and Joe Burleson.

Mrs. Moreland is a graduate of Meadow High school and Mr. Moreland is a graduate of Ropesville High school.

Club Party Is Given At Ford Residence

Mrs. Vernice Ford, 3013 Twentieth street, was hostess to the Amuz-U Bridge club Friday afternoon. Guests were Mesdames Vance Apple and Noel Stalnaker. Members attending were Mesdames M. Ed Allen, Bob Stokes, G. G. Aycock, Virgil Williams, Carl Gilliam and Miss Erma Dene Hefner.

Mrs. Stokes scored high and Mrs. Stalnaker was second high in the games.

The club will meet Aug. 22 at 2:30 p. m. with Mrs. Gilliam, 1309 Avenue R.

Edward Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Williams, has gone to Memphis to accept a position at John Gaston hospital. He will enter the University of Tennessee Medical school as a junior student this fall.

MY WIFE KNOWS

. . . the secret of keeping a man happy and contented—serve him plenty of good food and keep the food and cooking bills at a minimum. On our limited income, she provides the best foods on the market. How? That's not hard. Foods just taste better when they are cooked electrically in their own natural minerals and juices.

Before you buy any range, see the new Westinghouse "CHIEFTAIN." It's the biggest buy that we have ever offered for your approval.

MEALS ARE EASY

. . . when you cook electrically. Automatic meals just seem to cook themselves. There's less fuss and muss . . . less scrubbing and scouring . . . less time and effort spent in the kitchen. Expensive? My goodness, no! If it was, we certainly could not afford it. On the contrary, our new Chieftain is the biggest bargain we have ever bought.

Visit our office and see the new Westinghouse "CHIEFTAIN." Our representatives, A. G. Stalnaker, Dan Castles, and L. S. Thorne, Supervisor, will be glad to show you why you'll be better satisfied with a Chieftain electric range.

Court Aid Hits Divorce "Habit"

DETROIT, Aug. 10 (U.P.) — For a "Friend of the Court," Edward Pokorny has hard theories on some legal proceedings, particularly divorce cases.

Pokorny, who has been Friend of the Court of Wayne county for the past 23 years, stoutly insists that one separation, "except in the gravest of cases," is sufficient.

So convinced is he that "divorce is becoming a habit to some people," Pokorny is formulating a law, which he plans to present to the legislature, holding the quota of divorces to one per person.

"Divorce may be the so-called safety valve of society," Pokorny said, "but there comes a time when even a good safety valve must, of necessity, be shut off."

Supporting his contention that divorce gets to be habit Pokorny pointed to the Wayne county court records, which reveal that separations are being sanctioned at the rate of approximately 6,000 a year. The records also show, he said, that 75 per cent of the divorced persons re-marry and some as many as three and four times.

He admits that "everybody makes mistakes" but holds that there is no justification for making these mistakes over and over at the cost of society.

Pointing to Michigan's habitual criminal law as an example of a crime deterrent, he explained that he hoped his statute would serve the same purpose.

"What we need is a divorce deterrent and our one-divorce plan may be just what we are looking for," he continued. "Exceptions will be made for adultery, but there would be safeguards such as requiring two witnesses and every effort made to prevent collusion."

He said he has thoroughly discussed his proposed bill with authorities in Milwaukee, Wis. and Cleveland, O.

Aid In Erection Of Courthouse Sought

MATADOR, Aug. 10.—Federal aid for erection of a new courthouse for Motley county may become available through Works Projects administration instead of Public Works administration, according to M. T. Clements, with Voelcker and Dixon of Wichita Falls, architects.

Clements said he believed between $35,000 and $40,000 could be obtained, to be used with the $80,000 bond issue voted two years ago. By the time the vote was taken PWA funds had become exhausted.

The matter is to be taken up with the commissioner's court, it was indicated.

Kiddies Start Early Up Littlefield Way

LITTLEFIELD, Aug. 10.—Editor John A. Price of the County Wide News gasped when he opened his postoffice box the other day and found in it a letter addressed to "Santa Claus, North Pole."

The letter, from a little girl, said she wanted a sewing machine, and an iron. She also said she wanted a tricycle and a doll for a baby sister.

AIR SLOWS THEM DOWN

The earth would be pelted to pieces by meteors if it were not for the layer of atmosphere around it. Friction, caused by air resistance, burns up most of the "shooting stars" before they reach us.

Hollywood On The Loose..

Even Harpo Marx Has Gray Hairs In Red Wig From Worries

BY PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10 — Behind the screen: Authentic news is lacking about that long conference between Edsel Ford and Louis B. Mayer. I know that Metro has been figuring on a film biography of Henry Ford. Hollywood prefers to believe, though, that Mayer was asking whether the Dearborn manufacturer could turn out a thousand Mickey Rooneys.

A suburban theater, long closed for remodeling, has resumed operations with a particularly unfortunate billing on its marquee. The picture is "Opened by Mistake" . . . Warning to the Warners: You'd better begin taking precautions now against the double-billing of "Opened by Mistake" with Bette Davis' new picture, "The Letter."

Maurice Chevalier seems to have lost every franc from his long and thrifty saving, and Italians now are enjoying his Hollywoodish villa at Nice. But he'll find plenty of new chances in American pictures. Herbert Wilcox wants him to co-star with Anna Neagle in "No, No, Nanette." . . . Most of the finest players, directors and musicians of France will be refugees in this country. Some are coming here on money and low-pay contracts cabled by shrewd talent agents.

Is Hitting Snag

THE Marx Brothers' picture, "Go West," has been hitting production snags, especially in the budget region. The comedians are so worried about these money troubles that when Harpo took his red wig out of storage the other day he found a lot of gray hairs in it. . . . Now that Paul Muni has been dismissed by Warners, his beards are being cut down to fit John Garfield.

Mad At Ameche

PARAMOUNT bosses say they're really mad at Don Ameche, who walked out on a picture after being loaned for it by his own studio, and that he'll be sued for about $175,000 in damages. . . . The western star, Charles Starrett, hopes he has found a way to get out of horse-opera into heavier drama. He bought Rocklen Stuart's novel, "Iron Men," about an immigrant who becomes a tycoon of Great Lakes commerce, and is peddling it with his own services as the lead.

Deserve Shelter

I WISH the Motion Picture Relief Fund would get that home for indigent movie veterans built and occupied. The old-timers of this business, especially the has-beens of the silent era, deserve not only security and comfort but also shelter for their self-respect. Not a week passes in Hollywood now without the engagement of a flock of old stars and featured players for some new movie. Their parts may be only one-day atmosphere bits, for $8 or $10, but there always are stories about how these oldsters, broke and discouraged have been rescued from obscurity and are being given chances for a come-back. It's cruel exploitation.

Hope Is Choice

CASTING about: Bob Hope, back from that record-smashing personal appearance swing on which a million fans saw him, is Samuel Goldwyn's choice as the star in a remake of "Whoopee," done in 1930 with Eddie Cantor. . . . Gary Cooper's next will be "Sergeant York," which also will mark Jesse Lasky's reentry in production. . . . John Barrymore has pushed back his stage tour with Elaine and remains at 20th-Fox for "Falling Star." . . . "Nice Girl" is the title for Deanna Durbin's flicker in the autumn. Incidentally, her producer, Joe Pasternak, has been conferring with the George Temples and lunching with Shirley. . . . Bette Davis will be loaned to Goldwyn for Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes," but not until next year.

And That's Curtiz

MIKE CURTIZ recently got an impudent communication from a stranger, and by registered mail. It began with criticism of his direction and ended with a request for $500. Curtiz was furious. He said, "Next time I read a letter like this, I won't even open it!"

One For Jeanette

JEANETTE MacDONALD and Nelson Eddy are co-starring in "Bittersweet." Recording a song for the picture, Eddy gargled a couple of notes and spoiled a take. "Where's Allan Jones?" asked W. S. Van Dyke, the director. "Is he busy right now?"

"Maybe we could get him," said Miss MacDonald. "But how about Lawrence Tibbett. I'm sure—"

"Now you've got something!" exclaimed Eddy. "Tibbett and Grace Moore — the perfect team for this picture."

Johnny Apollo Back At Texan

LAUGHS and a goodly share of tense drama is promised theatergoers at the Palace today in the filming of another of the Hardy family series, this one, "Andy Hardy Meets Debutante," being as fresh in its viewpoint and as new in its appeal as though it were the first picture ever filmed of that popular family.

Comedy, of course, is an important goal of all the Hardy pictures and this one does not fall short of the idea.

In Love With Pictures

The story begins in Carvel with Mickey Rooney, as the ebullient Andy, falling in love with magazine pictures of a glamorous New York debutante. His secret is surmised by his high school sweetheart, Ann Rutherford, and one of his school chums and he becomes the victim of some vigorous heckling for being so silly as to lose his heart to a girl he doesn't know. He answers their taunts by boasting, not very truthfully, that he really knows the glamor girl and that if he could just get to New York he would bring back a picture of them together to prove it.

Fate, in the person of Lewis Stone, as Judge Hardy, steps in by transporting the whole family to New York, where the judge is to fight a legal case involving the financial welfare of the Carvel orphanage, and Andy is forced to make good his boast.

Hilarious Situations

How he does it, employing an etiquette book published in 1881, a swank night club, a top hat too big for him and General Grant's tomb, makes for situations that are hilarious.

Judy Garland, who appears with Mickey for the third time, is a lovely foil to the comedy of Andy and the glitter of the New York scene. She plays a sub-deb who admires Andy and helps him to eventually meet the debutante, and contributes two song numbers, "Alone," and "I'm Nobody's Baby."

The other members of the cast include Fay Holden, Sara Haden, Cecilia Parker and Diana Lewis as the glamor girl.

A great performance is turned in by the popular Tyrone Power in "Johnny Apollo," which opens today at the Texan. And lovely Dorothy Lamour is the girl in the case who falls hard for Johnny.

Whole Future Crashes

When the story opens Power is an idealistic college man, but he doesn't remain that for long. For when the banker father he idolized (played by Edward Arnold) is sent to prison for embezzlement, the boy's whole world crashes about his ears.

Spurned by his wealthy friends, broke and unable to get a job because of the stigma against his name, the young man assumes an alias, Johnny Apollo, and joins the mob of Mickey Dwyer, played by Lloyd Nolan. It is here that he meets Dorothy, who is Mickey's girl, and she understands and loves him regardless.

The boy works tirelessly to free his father who has turned against him because of his underworld connections.

Reminiscent of "The Lost World," the production, "One Million B.C." comes to the Cactus theater today.

It deals with the cliff dwellers, who are divided into the rock and shell clans, and their fight for existence.

Conrad Nagel relates the story to a group of visitors who come upon his cave. It is the supposed history of the two clans, separated by a forest infested by prehistoric creatures. One tribe lives in continued dissension, while the other goes about its daily existence serenely. Victor Jory becomes an outcast, is taken into the other group where he falls in love with Carole Landis, who brings the factions together. Lon Chaney, jr., and John Hubbard also are in the cast.

Wilds Of Minnesota May Turn Sanctuary

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 10 (U.P.)—The proposed Quetico-Superior international forest for the preservation ofg a vast wilderness sanctuary in northern Minnesota and Ontario, appears to be nearing reality.

Members of the Quetico-Superior committee, appointed by President Roosevelt in 1934, are seeking an agreement with the Minnesota Arrowhead Association on certain controversial phases of the plan.

As proposed by the Quetico-Superior committee, the program would embrace both the Rainy Lake and Pigeon River watersheds. The Arrowhead group considers the Rainy Lake watershed sufficient.

MEAT CUTS BY RANK

Men cut their meat in accordance with their station in life in the Ireland of the third century. Fine steaks were for kings; heads for physicians; shanks for jesters, jugglers and chess players; shins for musicians and masons; broken bits for servants; the fat underside of the shoulder for strong, skilled workers.

Grain Men To Stage Meeting In Amarillo

Panhandle grain men will meet Monday in Amarillo at the Herring hotel to discuss improvement of the quality of wheat with E. A. Miller, College Station, extension service agronomist, who has been holding a series of meetings in the Panhandle-Plains section the past week.

Miller will cooperate with the recently formed Texas Wheat Improvement association, of which P. T. Dines is executive director. Better selection of seed wheat will be discussed, among other subjects. Ten other meetings are planned for the week in the North Panhandle.

"River's End" Has Thrills Of North

"RIVER'S END," an action-jammed picture from the pen of James Oliver Curwood, makes its debut at the Broadway theater today.

Starring Dennis Morgan, George Tobias and Elizabeth Earl, the picture relates the story of River's End, Dodge City of the north, hideout of murderers, where civilization ends and adventure begins.

Sent After Murderer

Handsome Sergeant Conniston, of the Mounties, is sent out to bring back John Keith, wanted for murder. The chase leads the officer beyond the farthest reaches of civilization along a trail two years long and a thousand miles wide. There, when the hunter and the hunted meet, the two discover the striking resemblance in their appearance, and a gripping drama begins.

And at the end of the trail is the girl, fearfully awaiting the winner, wondering whether it will be her sweetheart or her brother.

Morgan turns in an excellent performance in his dual role as the officer and the hunted man and Miss Earl gives promise of becoming another star on the screen horizon.

Fast and funny situations emerge from the comedy-drama, "Torrid Zone," current attraction at the Lyric. The picture is tripled starred with James Cagney, Ann Sheridan and Pat O'Brien.

The story is laid somewhere in the banana belt. O'Brien, as head man for a big fruit company, is the big shot of Puerto Aguilar, and runs things pretty much to suit himself. Chief thorn in his somewhat tough side is Cagney, as the ace plantation boss, who refuses to be run. When the story opens, Cagney has just given notice that he is quitting and going back to the States. O'Brien has to swallow his pride and bribe him to stay, because he is badly needed. In a fit of temper over this situation, O'Brien goes into the Hotel Nacionale bar, and finds Miss Sheridan cheating the patrons at cards after wowing them with a torch song. He orders the chief of police to arrest her and send her back to the States.

But Miss Sheridan likes the tropics and she also likes Cagney, of whom she has gotten a brief glimpse, so she escapes from the boat just before it sails and stows away on the fruit train that is taking Cagney back to his plantation job. Arriving there, she finds some competition. Helen Vinson, as the beautiful and dissatisfied wife of another one of the plantation bosses, is also interested in Cagney, in a large way. As for Cagney himself, he is too much harassed by the depredations made on the plantations by a group of guerilla bandits during his absence, to give much time to romance.

Elizabeth Earl and Dennis Morgan, appearing in "River's End," now on at the Broadway.

Florida Beach Sands May Yield Minerals

TAMPA, Fla., Aug. 10 (U.P.) — A prosaic future may be in store for the shores of Florida. The bathing beauties may give way to mine shafts and smelting plants. The glistening sands may be broken to tiny pieces and washed out to sea—and all for a few minerals.

Prof. W. B. Phelps is the man to blame for the possible change in the state of things. For more than a year he has been studying the sands of the Sunshine State, and has discovered that they contain appreciable quantities of four valuable minerals—zircon, ilmenite, rutile and monazite—all rare and all useful in our present-day industries.

Spotlight Turned On Women In Tech's Feature Offering

Prison Theme Is At Arcadia

TURNING the spotlight on women, their lives and what they do with them, "The Women," starring Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford and Rosalind Russell, and based on the popular Broadway stage play, opens today at the Tech theater.

The story, dedicated to the amusement of men and women alike, shows the fair sex in all its moods and with all of its foibles.

Loses Hubby Through Gossip

In the picture, Miss Shearer, happily married for eight years, finds it impossible to continue life with her husband after she discovers from idle beauty shop gossip that he has become enamored of a perfume salesgirl, portrayed by Miss Crawford.

Goaded on by Miss Russell as the gossiper, she finally goes to Reno to seek a divorce and the custody of her little daughter.

Following the divorce the husband marries the other woman and Miss Shearer returned to New York.

During the next year she discovers that all is not well in her former husband's home and that his new wife is carrying on an affair with a cowboy radio crooner.

Decides To Fight For Him

Realizing that she should have fought in the first place, she decides to stage a late campaign to win him back. Cleverly she tricks Miss Crawford into an admission of her infidelity.

Others in the all-women cast include Mary Boland, Paulette Goddard, Phyllis Povah, Joan Fontaine, Virginia Weidler, Lucile Watson, Florence Nash, Muriel Hutchinson, Esther Dale, Ann Morris, Ruth Hussey, Dennie Moore, Mary Cecil, Mary Beth Hughes, Virginia Grey, Marjorie Main, Cora Witherspoon and Hedda Hopper.

A real he-man's picture is that which is offered at the Arcadia today, "Each Dawn I Die," with James Cagney heading a cast which also includes George Raft, Jane Bryan, George Bancroft, Maxie Rosenbloom and Stanley Ridges.

Framed And Sent To Jail

The plot finds Cagney as a reporter on a newspaper opposed to a gubernatorial candidate. He is framed on a manslaughter charge and goes to jail.

There he meets Raft, doing a life sentence. Raft becomes friendly with him through Cagney's keeping silent when a man is killed, apparently by Raft.

The latter asks Cagney to tell the warden that he, Raft, killed the other inmate pointing out that Cagney could thus win favor with the parole board and Raft would have a chance to get away.

Raft, convinced of Cagney's loyalty, returns to prison and during a jail-break forces the guilty man to confess.

Joan Crawford, Norma Shearer and Rosalind Russell will star in "The Women," opening today at the Tech.

James Cagney and George Bancroft in a scene from "Each Dawn I Die," now at the Arcadia.

Anne Shirley and Carole Lombard as they appear in "Vigil In The Night," coming to the Lyric Wednesday.

James Cagney and Ann Sheridan have the top roles of "Torrid Zone," opening today at the Lyric.

'Outlaw' Best Bucking Bronc

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Aug. 10 (U.P.)—It is not the wild horse but the gentle one that has "gone bad" that makes the best bucking bronco for the western rodeos.

Cowboys say all horses have the bucking instinct, but a wild horse is too badly frightened to buck to the best of his ability. And besides he just doesn't know how.

A wild horse is seldom able to throw a professional bucking-horse rider, but a high caliber trained bucker can cause the pros plenty of trouble.

Three of the hardest bucking horses of all time—Ole Coyote, Steamboat, and Midnight — were gentle farm horses who "went bad."

The work horse often "goes bad" after getting tangled in barbwire, having a loose saddle dangle under his belly, or after a "smart aleck" has spurred his shoulders.

A trained bucking bronco does not tire himself by fighting the hostlers like a wild horse and therefore is able to exert more energy after leaving the chute.

Different horses have different styles of bucking and a top-notch rider must know all the varied tactics used by the broncos.

One horse may come out of the chute on a dead run, going halfway across the arena before coming "undone." To combat the sudden halt, riders often spur their mounts as they leave the chute—thereby taking the horse's mind off everything but bucking.

Some horses squat in half-sitting positions as the rider mounts and when the chute opens leap high into the air.

Other buckers, called "spinners," will buck in a close circle, turning either to the right or left.

The "straight-away," high-kicking horse bothers the riders most because he is just plain rough, tough and stout. When he reaches the highest point of his jump he kicks the hind feet upward as he starts down with the fore feet.

Italy is smaller than New Jersey.

Farmers Ask Loans On Wheat Harvested

Seventy-eight farmers have asked loans on wheat in warehouses and two on wheat in farm storage, for the 1940 crop just harvested, said C. T. Wasson, county Agricultural Adjustment Administration administrator.

Loans cover approximately 45,000 bushels, valued at $32,000. Average loan per bushel is 65 cents.

Here's Today's Movie Test

By ROBBIN COONS

1. "Nights" is a lucky word in movie titles for the girl in the picture. Can you name three "nights" in which she has appeared? Where was she born?

2. Flora Robson's portrayal of Queen Elizabeth in "The Sea Hawk" is not her first enactment of the role. (a) In what English-made picture of several years ago was her Elizabeth impressive? (b) What currently famous English movie stars played the romantic leads?

3. (a) What trio of girl singers is making a movie with what trio of male comics? (b) Name two other girl trios, famous but now disbanded.

4. What have these players in common Dean Jagger, Mary Martin, Clark Gable, Tyrone Power, Ann Miller?

5. What is the metropolis in "City for Conquest"? (b) "City That Never Sleeps"? (c) From what best-selling novels were the movies taken?

Count 20 points for each question correctly answered. A score of 60 is good, 80 is excellent and 90 or above colossal.

Romantic Roles All Right For Others But Ann Sheridan Prefers Some Fast Action

By ALEXANDER KAHN
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 10.—If the world wants to see Ann Sheridan play romantic roles, that's perfectly satisfactory with her, but she prefers to see action pictures herself.

"I like moving pictures that have a lot of fast moving action," said Ann. "Maybe that's because I don't move so fast myself."

She Likes A Laugh

And to prove she doesn't move so fast herself, Ann was relaxing near a fan on the set of Warner Bros.' "City for Conquest" as she talked. Others may want to see "Oomph," glamour or sex appeal when they go to the movies, but not when Ann pays her money at the boxoffice.

"I like thrills and I like to laugh. I laugh at anything on the screen that's even a little bit funny. I'll drive across town to see a picture if I think it might have some comedy in it."

"It takes cleverness to be really funny, don't you think?" asked Ann, who admits she has not played any comedy roles yet.

Is Easily Pleased

"I'm one of the most easily pleased movie fans," she confessed. "I never got over being a fan. I could swoon at Bette Davis. I still like to see and listen to Bing Crosby. And I sit in awe of Paul Muni. I always forget that I know Eddie Robinson personally when I see him start something crafty on the screen. And I always get a big kick out of the moment when Gary Cooper stops acting lazy and comes to life with a bang that knocks the villain into the ash heap."

Ann doesn't say much about "Sheridan," as she calls herself, on the screen.

"I go to see 'Sheridan' once or twice for every picture she's in. Sometimes I go to see pictures like 'Torrid Zone' and 'Angels with Dirty Faces' several times. And I always say to myself, 'That "Sheridan" is a lucky kid to be up there with Cagney and O'Brien.'

"But I'm not puffed up about that 'Sheridan' person. I think she can become a better actress. In fact, I'm taking steps."

A most natural and pleasant person is that "Sheridan" girl.

Nolan County Will Be Served By REA Lines

SWEETWATER, Aug. 10 (U.P.) — Nearly 1,000 Nolan county farm families will enjoy the benefits of electric service when a power line to serve seven communities is constructed under a $287,000 grant from the Rural Electrification Administration.

The system will join rural lines serving Jones, Taylor, Callahan and Shackelford counties. The Nolan county network will cover 395.5 miles, of which more than 100 miles already has been surveyed and staked.

Insurance Policies On Wheat Are Taken

Sixty-three wheat insurance policies for the 1941 crop in Lubbock county have been taken by producers, according to Charles T. Wasson, administrator of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, as compared with 18 policies last year.

Final date for making application for insurance is Aug. 31, said Wasson. Insurance must be applied for before the crop is planted.

DECISIVE POST

At one time railroads had no signals. When engineers met on a single track, they had to argue it out. Later a post was erected midway between stations and the first engine to pass it went forward, while the other backed up.

Old Melodies Are Featured

MIDWAY theater's top offering for the present week brings three fine stars together today in "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Topping the cast are Tyrone Power, Alice Faye and Don Ameche.

Irving Berlin's score for the production is, of course, without parallel. It took the Shakespeare of syncopation 27 years to write it, and every one of the 28 songs used wholly or partially in the picture, topped the hit parade of its era. They are the mileposts along rhythm's conquest of mankind from the Barbary coast to Carnegie hall.

Starts With Small Band

In the brilliance of "Alexander," one remembers that Power starts with a small band in a honky-tonk. Ameche writes the tunes which Miss Faye sings. Love smolders, flares, cools, blows up and is rekindled over the years for Tyrone and Alice.

History moves before the eyes with the reminiscent melodies of Berlin as a gentle guide through the plot.

Such a story framework—the career of a young musician and the girl who sang the nation's love songs—two hotheads quarreling and parting, forgiving and finding love again through the music that was their life—is novel and scintillatng.

A fine cast was sent in with the stars, including Jack Haley, Ethel Merman, Jean Hersholt, Helen Westley, John Carradine, Paul Hurst, Wally Vernon and Ruth Vernon.

Don Ameche, Alice Faye and Tyrone Power form the starring combination for "Alexander's Ragtime Band," now showing at the Midway.

Texans Should Halt Tax Remission Racket; Charge FDR Mixing War, Politics

Millions Lost To State

There's No Fairness In It

ANNOUNCEMENT by the automatic tax board the other day that the state ad valorem tax rate is to be reduced from 77 cents to 69 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation made an almost incidental reference to one bit of information which should cause most of the taxpayers of Texas to rise on their hind legs and howl.

That information was that more than $681,000,000 in property on the tax rolls of Texas is escaping state taxes completely. It is property which is not contributing one thin dime to the support of the state government. The money the state should be collecting upon it is being remitted to the counties in which it is located.

Let's consider for a moment just how much this $681,000,000 actually is.

It represents more than 16 per cent—nearly one-sixth—of all the property assessed for taxation in Texas.

On the basis of the 69 cent rate, it would produce approximately $4,800,000 in revenue.

If taxes were paid upon it as upon other property, it would mean that the state tax rate could have sliced by another 10 cents on the $100 of valuation, and that the state's financial position would be even better so far as the next and future years are concerned than it is now.

The $681,000,000 in valuations is 34 times larger than the approximately $20,000,000 in Lubbock county on which state taxes are paid.

It is larger than the combined valuations of every last one of the approximately 45 counties making up the South Plains and the Texas Panhandle plus more than 40 additional counties extending southward beyond the Texas and Pacific railroad and eastward to a line between Wichita Falls and Abilene.

HISTORY of this tax remission business cannot be detailed here. Perhaps it can be dated most accurately from the Galveston flood. People of that stricken city were permitted to use state taxes for rehabilitation and to build their sea wall. That was right and wise. At least twice since then the sea wall has saved the city from worse storms than that of 1900.

But have you ever heard of a really worthy cause without attempts being made to tie rackets to its coat-tails? That happened after the Galveston disaster. Because taxes were remitted there, remissions were sought elsewhere. Every time a new remission has been approved, it has made the job easier for other counties seeking a similar gift.

The pretext invariably is that something is contemplated to benefit larger areas than the county for which a remission is sought. Therefore, the argument is that the state should help in financing whatever project is contemplated. An aggravated case in point is Harris county, the wealthiest and most populous county in Texas. Harris county tried to get and still may get remission of state taxes to help construct a drainage project. True, several counties will be helped by the project. But why in heaven's name should the whole state of Texas foot most of the bill for an undertaking which will benefit only a very small area and which will benefit Harris county and Houston most of all?

Harris county isn't the only offender. There are a lot of them. They appear in every legislative session. They will appear in that of next January, although every attempt will be made to disguise them.

Some may get over. Some assuredly will get over and the problem will continue to grow unless and until taxpayers rise in such righteous indignation that a stop will be put for all time to come to this kind of racketeering.

The One-Minute Sermon

Yet the children of thy people say, The way of the Lord is not equal; but as for them, their way is not equal.

When the righteous turneth from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, he shall even die thereby.

But if the wicked turn from his wickedness, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall even die thereby.—Ezekiel 33; 17 through 19.

You Have Heard A Lot About Them; Now Here's All The Story

The Sect Called "Jehovah's Witnesses"

Storm center throughout America is the oddly aggressive group of religious zealots calling themselves Jehovah's Witnesses, and called everything from Communists to Fifth Columnists, by their opponents. This penetrating article describes the rise of the Witnesses from an obscure sect to a militant world-wide effort.

BY WALTER LECKRONE
NEA Service Correspondent

ON many an American doorstep this summer has appeared a zealously persistent missionary with a strange warning that the end of the world is at hand.

Unless the door slammed shut he opened a portable phonograph, played recorded speeches that were burning denunciations of religions, churches, governments, business, and the flag of the United States as symbols of Satan's power on earth.

Most Americans hold at least one of those in reverence. So Jehovah's Witnesses, who revere none of them and never hesitate to say so, have been a storm center, especially with patriotic feelings rising higher because of events abroad.

The American Civil Liberties Union has listed at least 40 mob attacks on them in a few recent months. They have been beaten, stoned, jailed. Their literature has been burned, their children barred from schools for refusal to salute the flag, themselves cut off relief rolls for refusal to pledge allegiance to the United States.

IN GERMANY, CONCENTRATION CAMPS

UNDER persecution, partly invited by their own uncompromising intolerance of all other beliefs, they have grown in 50 years from an obscure little sect into a full-fledged religious movement that is perhaps the most militant and aggressive in the world. In America they are attacked as Nazis, as Communists, as "fifth columnists." In most other nations they have been banned as subversive influences. In Germany they toil in concentration camps by thousands.

Their belief is simply a literal interpretation of the Bible as prophecy rather than history.

At any moment, they say, the great Battle of Armageddon will begin, in which the forces of Satan will be pitted against the forces of Heaven. Satan's forces will be defeated, and every human who has failed to accept Divine protection will be killed. Then the dead of all past ages will return to earth, and be judged. Those who had no opportunity in life to accept the Truth may be pardoned. The others will die again, permanently. All persons now living who have accepted the true belief, however, will never die, but live on through countless ages in an earthly paradise, in which there will be no sin, no poverty, no toil, no death.

Two prophets have led them. Founder was Charles Taze Russell, a Pittsburgh haberdashery store owner. From boyhood he was obsessed with an abnormal fear of an old-fashioned hell of fire and brimstone; when he was 17 he went about Pittsburgh on Saturday evenings writing with chalk on walls, warning all persons to attend church next morning.

For a time he became an infidel, and then after profound study decided the Bible threatened no such punishment as he had grown to fear. He became pastor of a small local group, eventually pastor of 1200 congregations of his converts.

Isolationists Are Worried

(The National Whirligig)

BY FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Subbing for Ray Tucker)

SENATE non-interventionists opposing the conscription bill are finding it necessary to do one of the most delicate egg-walking stunts they have attempted in many a moon. Privately, most of them conceded that some sort of a conscription program is desirable to develop an adequate trained reserve. But they dare not admit that, for fear the bill's supporters will make capital of it.

The real, underlying force in the opposition is a firm, almost fanatic conviction—a near obsession—that the New Deal leaders are trying to build a realistic war picture in the United States, to carry the President through in November.

Many of them are convinced that New Deal politicos are not above involving the country in war, if that appears necessary to win. They fear that possibility considerably more in connection with Japan than with Europe. They insist that the State Department wants war with Japan, on the theory that it is coming sooner or later and now is the best time.

STRATEGY: But they can't risk saying that, either, because of the inevitable charges of irrationalism and seeing ghosts; and the fact that most of those opposing are also congenital anti-New Dealers, subjects them to the charge of prejudice.

Their objective is to limit specifically the number of men the President may call into active service at one time. They complain bitterly that, as the bill now stands, the President could conscript the full 12 million men in the 21-31-year-old class, and turn the nation into an armed camp before election day. War or no war, they say, that would have a powerful effect on voter psychology.

So the non-intervention strategy program is one of restrictive amendments wherever possible. In that way the hope is to do one of two things: either hamstring the bill to such an extent that the House will not accept it at all, or tie the President's hands sufficiently to make the conscription program impotent for any possible political use.

SHRINKAGE: The complete stall in the much advertised aviation building program for the Army and Navy air services, which Defense Procurer Knudsen has feared would break into a Congressional indignation storm at any moment, is tentatively settled, backstage. All Knudsen has to do now is to get legislation to make the settlement stick.

The difficulties began when Congress went overenthusiastic on anti-profiteering and pruned down the profit limitation on aircraft from 12 per cent to 7 per cent.

Seven per cent sounded generous enough to Congress, but the statesmen didn't stop to find out what it really meant. Computation of profits varies according to what is included in cost of production. Treasury regulations disallow many items of normal operations disbursements, notably social security taxes, promotion, advertising, expenses of executives in dealings with the government. Thus, those items have to come out of the contractors' 7 per cent profit. So does a 2 per cent income tax.

The 7 per cent profit finally evaporates to near zero, and still there is no allowance for building expanded plants which the aircraft industry says are not needed, except for handling these government contracts.

MOVEMENT: Knudsen and the aircraft industry leaders have been round-tabling for weeks, trying to achieve a compromise solution.

Very quietly, he had a paragraph slipped into a recent Military Appropriations bill, on its way through the House, repealing the 7 per cent limitation, and reinstating the old 2 per cent. It may be weeks, however, before that finally becomes law, and in the interim the protest-squalls are gathering, because no aviation orders are being placed.

As a temporary stop-gap, Knudsen and the aircrafters have worked out this solution: The companies will accept "informal orders", giving them advance estimates of what they believe the planes will cost. The government agrees to pay them a "fee" which is 7 per cent of the estimated cost. The manufacturer then builds the planes at naked cost, receiving the "fee" in lieu of profits. Included in "cost" will be plant expansion allowances, and various other items not generally conceded.

Attorneys, lobbyists, and manufacturers alike are not sure it really side-steps the legal difficulties; but it gets production started and by the time any challenge of legality can be made, the profit limitation should be back to the old 12 per cent level.

DAMPER: Nine out of ten politicians, voters and men in the street take it for granted that the "power-trust issue" against Wendell Willkie will be a dominant spearhead of the Democratic campaign. The Willkie strategists, however, do NOT think so; they believe they have it stalemated in advance, and they are cockily confident that the Democrats will not dare to play it.

The secret is that any power-trust drum thumping against Willkie hinges, necessarily, on the issue of public versus private ownership. There has always been plenty of poison to throw at private censorship. The Willkie strategists, however, have some large and well-prepared doses of counter-poison ready to hurl back at the New Deal stumpers. They consist of simple, specific cases and records of publicly owned power ventures, sponsored by the New Deal, which have fizzled frightfully—some to the extent of being latent scandals.

Lumping fizzles together with successes, the Willkie-ites claim the average of efficiency for New Deal publicly owned power projects is far less than that of private power companies. The most notable illustration of vulnerability is the Little TVA project in Nebraska, sponsored by the loudest of the anti-power trusters, Senator George Norris. Neither Norris nor the New Deal strategists care to have the campaign spotlight turned on that fiasco, and all hands are likely to think twice before they precipitate an issue that might so result.

The Willkie advisers have seen to it that the Democratic leaders know their intentions. It may damper the power issue considerably.

NEW YORK
By Richard Waldo

SO far as the FBI is concerned the books on the Nazi emissary, Dr. Westrick, are about closed, partly because his operations are known to the last detail, partly because Westrick is going home. He departs as he arrived, via San Francisco, Yokohama, Vladivostok, Moscow to Berlin—15,000 miles out of his way in deference to the British blockade.

His activities in New York made the headlines late, and long after big businessmen had grown bored with the subject of trade or no trade with post-war Germany, which was Westrick's chief mission here. Whatever his report to Der Fuehrer, the controversy which is scheduled to become a bitter and acrimonious issue in trade circles will probably take into account the following: Before newspaper notoriety put the kibosh on his wanderings, our industrial concerns were eager to pump information from him. For months Standard Oil has had no inkling of what is to become of its vast holdings in Belgium, Holland and France, still less information on plants scattered throughout the Reich. The problem is the same for the Export Division of General Motors, for the Texas Corp., for Underwood Elliott Fisher, for a minimum of 500 industrial concerns whose foreign holdings are apparently sunk without trace.

Dozens of Wall Street bigs, whose visits to and from Westrick escaped the reporters, are now hep to the Nazi economic angle. The U. S. capital investments within the Germanic circle are not lost permanently, providing there is a resumption of trade as soon as the war is over. All of which puts our industrial Who's Who in a spot, and is the forerunner of a bigger issue than Colonel Lindbergh, its first public champion, suspects.

Book Furnishes Chuckles And Belly Laughs

"Geese In The Forum" Is Lampoon Classed As A Novel

"GEESE IN THE FORUM," by Lawrence Edward Watkin; (Alfred A. Knopf, New York).

LAWRENCE EDWARD WATKIN, whose tongue is very handy at popping in and out of his cheek, must have chuckled when he called his new book a novel. This impish, and at times even scathing, book is called "Geese in the Forum," and it is a lampoon, not a novel, even though it contains the framework of the latter. And Watkin, who is a teacher of dramatics and English at Washington and Lee, is lampooning the middle-sized colleges of the South.

Ostensibly the book is the story of a youngster named Johnny Burgess whose roommate at Harvard has a wealthy father and a cold and lovely sister. Johnny marries Sister on the rebound for Anne, who thought she wanted Johnny to be a preacher like his father, but who married a loose-moraled novelist herself. Also on the rebound. Then Johnny goes to Beauregard to teach history—Johnny's father-in-law is a trustee of Beauregard, and shortly after Johnny lands there his Uncle Jack becomes one. Uncle Jack is one of those homely as an old shoe men, the delightful type of yarning Southerner who gives the impression of being too lazy to breathe, and actually makes money hand over fist.

Strands Are Mingled

Several strands are mingled from here to the end. One is the effort of Johnny's wife to remake him in her image. Another is the effort of father-in-law and Uncle Jack to make Johnny the president of Beauregard. Still another is the process by which Johnny sees the futility of these efforts, the beauty of being a good teacher, and the necessity for preserving his integrity by defending education against educational rackets. Late in the proceedings Watkin twists things violently and gives his hero the right girl.

So much to get the skeleton out of the closet and buried. The worthy part of "Geese in the Forum" is the take-off on the booming Dr. Burkholder, president of Beauregard; the delightful twinings of University politics; the persistent misunderstandings of Johnny's Yankee wife; the whorls of gossip which twist through the book; Uncle Jack as a gentle caricature of certain Southern characteristics—these and many other things. There are many chuckles and a lot of belly laughs in Watkin's book, which is as different from "On Borrowed Time," its predecessor, as it could be.

Lubbock County Herd-Testing Reports Being Issued; Field Trip Is Planned

K. M. Renner To Lead Talk On Tuesday Jaunt In Area

By J. SAM LEWIS
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

First monthly report of testing of Lubbock county dairy herds by D. M. Carrell, who became field man on July 1, for July work has been prepared and is being issued from the office of C. C. Jobson, county farm agent. At the same time plans for a field day to be held Thursday were announced.

In the 11 herds of members of the Lubbock County Dairy Herd Improvement association, 79 of the 320 cows on test averaged more than 40 pounds of butterfat for the month. Average production was 647 pounds of milk or 30.4 pounds of butterfat for the month.

State Average Given

June figures show the state average as 505 pounds of milk and 22 pounds of butterfat.

Twenty-seven cows had more than 50 pounds butterfat production. A cow owned by Sam J. Paschall produced 102.1 pounds for the peak. Paschall had 11 cows in this group; B. C. Wells eight, J. R. Jenkins, one; R. L. Burdette, five; Clay Fuller, two.

There were nine first calf heifers who produced above 35 pounds of butterfat. Of these, Burdette had one, Fuller one, Wells two and Paschall five.

24 Records Completed

Twenty-four cows have recently completed milking records of from 265 to 305 days. Production ranged from 6,000 pounds of milk to 10,927 pounds. Five of the cows had over 10,000 pounds. Butterfat ranged from 307 to 399 pounds for the period. Jenkins owned two of the cows, Burdette 12, Fuller four and Wells six.

High July herds were: Sam J. Paschall, 56 cows, average milk production, 816 pounds, butterfat, 40.8 pounds; Wells, 39 cows, average milk production, 788 pounds, butterfat, 38.3 pounds; Fuller, 18 cows, average milk production, 639 pounds, butterfat, 30.8 pounds.

Schedule for Thursday's trip to a number of the herds, is as follows: meet at federal building at 8 o'clock, go to L. A. Howard farm near Idalou to inspect the Shorthorn herd; to Texas Technological college at 9:30 o'clock to inspect equipment and records; to Glen Blackmon farm near Shallowater at 10:30 o'clock to inspect breeding and herd sire work; to Burdette farm northwest of Shallowater at 11:15 o'clock to inspect breeding work and blood lines. Lunch will be served there at noon.

In the afternoon, inspect the Paschall farm for feeding and culling work; to Wells farm to inspect breeding and culling.

Renner Leads Discussion

K. M. Renner, head of the dairy manufacturing department at the college, is to discuss various phases of the work on the trip. County Farm Agent Jobson and N. C. Fine of the department of animal husbandry at the college will make the trip.

Persons interested in dairying are invited to go along, said Jobson. Business men who own farms on which there are dairy animals are particularly invited to go with the party.

In commenting on the association work, Carrell said:

"Mid-summer in this area is a most difficult time for proper feeding. If a man has good pasture, he depends upon it too completely. If he has little or no pasture, his cows will lack sufficient feed, or the feed bill is excessive while the feed is cheapest. As a result, cows go into the changing fall conditions in poor flesh and with lowered production at a time when butterfat is highest.

"Our dairymen are looking forward now to try to store a year's supply of the new feed crop. A herd will need approximately six tons of silage, three tons of bundles and two tons alfalfa per cow, for a year. This allows sufficient roughage for a normal number of calves and heifers. Grain needs will amount to approximately two tons per cow, made up of three or more grains with ground heads or grain and cottonseed meal, usually the most ample and cheapest."

Texas A&M Cow Has Fine Production

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 10. (U.P.)—C. N. Shepardson, head of the Texas A. and M. college dairy husbandry department, said today that a registered Holstein cow of the college-owned dairy herd has set an impressive milk production record over a 365-day period.

Paulantha Aggie Posch, junior three-year-old Holstein, milked three times daily, gave 16,551 pounds of milk with 582.4 pounds of butterfat, which is nearly three and one-half times that of the average dairy cow, according to U. S. Department of Agriculture figures.

Testing was supervised by the Holstein-Fersian Association of America, Battleboro, Vt., in cooperation with the college.

Conservation Of Feed Is Urged

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FORT WORTH, Aug. 10 — Now that there's a lull between Texas primary elections, bankers, merchants and civic leaders can do no more effective political work, according to M. E. McMurray of the Texas Dairy Products association, than to join county agents and other agricultural workers in their campaign to see that farmers, dairymen and ranchers place as much of the feed crop now growing into trench silos as possible.

To do so will insure a supply of highly nutritious feeds which, due to climatic conditions, may not be available next year. Tests have proven conclusively that feeds placed in trench silos may be kept indefinitely without deterioration and is automatically insured against fire and rain loss, as well as rodent damage.

Other Arguments Given

Other arguments which may be advanced to dairymen and others are:

1. Feed put into trench silos will go two to three times as far as dry feed.
2. As a substitute for green pasture it has vitamins not found in dry feed.
3. It is especially suitable when pasture is not available because of its water content.
4. It requires no investment; any farmers with his own tools and team can build a trench silo suited to his needs—one ton or a thousand ton capacity.
5. It has equal value as a maintenance feed or a fattening element.

Particularly is the trench silo program applicable to the state's dairy program which is attracting a great deal of attention at this time. Dairying in Texas can never be successful without cheap and nutritious feeds. Talk trench silos until this year's feed crop is back in the ground.

Mrs. Wilkinson--And Just About All Of Memphis--Approves Cotton Stamp Plan

BY GRANT McGEE
NEA Staff Correspondent

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Aug. 10.—Last year Mrs. Lillie Mae Wilkinson of Memphis had a mighty hard time buying any cotton goods at all for her brood of five daughters and a son.

This year Mrs. Wilkinson says she is having an easier time buying about three times as much.

Every three months Mrs. Wilkinson can go down to the Memphis auditorium and be handed a bunch of stamps that will buy $4 worth of cotton goods. That makes $16 a year.

So Mrs. Wilkinson thinks the first cotton stamp plan, inaugurated here in Memphis last May 7 by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, is working out very well.

Lots Of Smiles

The FSCC, Memphis merchants and the whole cotton industry are just about as well pleased.

Mrs. Wilkinson's experience has been duplicated in hundreds of relief families in Memphis and Shelby county. They're buying considerably more cotton for the simple reason that the stamps can't be exchanged for other goods.

Ernest Nalle, chief of the cotton and food stamp office, predicts the plan will increase the disposition of cotton goods in the city and county by about $300,000. The FSCC originally figured the increase would be about $180,000.

Figures Given

Here are the figures:

From May 7 to May 31 the FSCC office caused $29,869 in cotton stamps to be distributed.

In this period 7821 families received stamps, buying $8293 in green stamps and obtaining $21,576 in brown stamps. Brown stamps are issued free on the basis of a dollar's worth of free stamps for every dollar's worth of green stamps bought. But brown stamps are given free to relief families certified as being unable to purchase green stamps.

From June 1 through June 22 green stamps issuel totaled $1414, with $1855 in free stamps being distributed to 599 families.

Thus, in the first two months of operation, a total of $33,138 in green and brown stamps was distributed among 8420 families, with the stamps being exchanged at stores for cotton products almost as soon as they were received by clients on public assistance rolls.

Point To Proof

Because clients buy or receive their stamps only once in each three-month period, there is a natural slackening after the first month in each quarter. Days on which stamps are given out have been staggered to hold up as steady a distribution as possible.

The stamp office can handle 100 applications an hour. Only in the early days of each quarter is such a rush anticipated.

Nalle and merchants alike describe the plan as "doing the work" of cutting down cotton surpluses, and they expect its success to continue.

Some stores have made a specialty of building up cotton business. Their advertising and window displays are aimed at needs of the stamp clients.

Survey Being Made

Analysis of business since May 7 among stores accepting the cotton stamps is under way to determine whether the plan has increased the sale of cotton goods to low income groups in addition to the exchanges for stamps.

V. G. Lane, wholesaler and chairman of the merchants' committee which aided in setting up the stamp plan, says he has heard only enthusiastic support for it since its inception.

Against a relief case-load of more than 14,000 as the third quarter of the year opened July 1, Memphis relief officials believe the fact that 8420 families already are participating is major proof the stamp plan has succeeded.

Says Nalle: "To me the best proof is that other cities are writing in for details of the plan and how it operates."

Mrs. Lillie Mae Wilkinson displays some of cotton goods her family has received under stamp plan this year, while daughter Betty Jean, 10, displays small amount typical of what Memphis family was able to buy in former years.

Calf Crop For 1940 Will Be Under 1939

The 1940 calf crop will be a little under that of last year, according to Fred Snyder, rancher, who said he had talked to ranchers from all over West Texas. Dry weather last summer and fall was responsible for the shorter crop, he said.

Increased activity in the sale of calves during the past 10 days was reported. Steer calves have been sold at from 9 to 10 cents a pound and heifer calves at between 8 and 9 cents. Sales are for fall delivery.

Pastures have been improved, particularly in Cochran county, where he operates, Snyder said. Two and three inch rains greatly benefitted grass.

All plantations in the Barbados were ordered by the Government to devote five per cent of their arable land to soil crops this year.

Encampment For Farm Boys To Be Held At Ceta Canyon

Between 300 and 325 club boys from the 19 counties comprising state extension service district 2, will hold a third annual encampment at Ceta canyon, east of Happy and northeast of Tulia, starting Monday and closing Wednesday afternoon.

Lubbock county boys will meet Monday morning before 9 o'clock at the federal building. Monroe U. May, assistant farm agent, said he expected 25 boys from the county to make the trip. There will be club leaders with them. County agents and assistants, headed by K. J. Edwards, district agent, will be in charge of the camp.

Lubbock Men To Speak

Registration begins at 10 o'clock Monday. Lubbock men will speak, including W. T. Strange, Dr. W. M. Craig and Dr. C. J. Wagner. Mose Hood, boy scout leader and four of his scouts will give a life saving demonstration. C. Hohn, soil conservation specialist; E. M. Regenbrecht, swine specialist; G. C. Gibson, dairy specialist and A. L. Smith, cattle specialist, will speak on their work to the boys.

Following registration Monday there will be a get-together until lunch. At 1:30 o'clock an assembly will be held with L. L. Johnson, state club leader, speaking and Strange will talk. Hood will demonstrate his first aid work and there will be target practice and swimming in the afternoon.

To Have Evening Program

Supper will be served at 6 o'clock with an evening program starting at 7:30 o'clock.

Tuesday morning a 6 o'clock swim will start the program, with breakfast at 7 and assembly at 8:30. Gibson, Regenbrecht and Smith will talk. Usual events will be held in the morning. In the afternoon Dr. Wagner will give a health talk and a baseball game will be staged at 2:30 o'clock. At the evening program Gibson and Hohn will speak and Dr. Craig will give an illustrated talk.

Wednesday morning the usual morning program of swimming and target practice and recreation will be held.

Lubbock Farms Are Measured

Measurement of Lubbock county farms to check compliance with the 1940 Agricultural Adjustment Administration's farm program is 85 per cent complete, according to C. T. Wasson, county administrator. Reports and field notes are being checked against aerial maps in the office in the basement of the courthouse and figures then recorded on farm plan records.

"Probably 45 to 50 per cent of the farms we have checked so far show from one to five acres of cotton overplanted," Wasson said. "That seems to be a practice in this section.

Checking On Surplus

"We are starting to recheck where those overplanted have destroyed their surplus. Just as rapidly as we check compliance and find everything to be correct, we can certify the cotton acreage to the state office."

Not to exceed 10 per cent of the farmers with sorghums have over planted.

Approximately 200 cotton parity applications, approved by the county AAA committee, have been sent to College Station. Others are being sent as rapidly as possible. The delay now is largely because of over planting.

There are 2,751 work sheets this year, covering approximately 475,000 acres in crop.

INADEQUATE OUTPUT

Although the United States has produced about 10 per cent of the world's tungsten in recent years, it consumes 20 per cent of the world's output. Most of this difference is secured from China and British Malaya.

HIGH CONSUMPTION

Each year, America blast furnaces consume enough raw materials in the form of ore, coke, limestone, etc., to cover a city square block one and one-third miles deep. Weight of this pile would be 114,000,000 tons.

Because of the reduction in revenues expected as a result of the European war, the Philippine government plans to curtail spending for public works.

BUILD AT LITTLEFIELD

LITTLEFIELD.—E. B. Luce of Littlefield is building three rent houses on his property in the south part of town, facing highway 51, the road to Levelland. Each house will have four rooms and bath. H. A. Collins has started construction of a rent house near the high school.

Lecturers Are Chosen For Air Conditioning Course

COLLEGE STATION, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—Officials of the second annual Air Conditioning Short course, which will be held at Texas A. and M. college, today announced speakers for the event which will be held August 15-17.

Heading the staff will be Dr. F. E. Giesecke, professor emeritus of heating and ventilating engineering at the college and a world authority on the subject.

Other lecturers include Dr. C. P. Yaglou, department of public health, Harvard university; C. F. Boester, Purdue university; Prof. C. L. Larson, head of the mechanical engineering department, University of Wisconsin; A. B. Banowsky, United Gas Co., and Bert Fisher, Payne Heater Co., both of Houston; and Fred Rabe, of Fort Worth.

Subject matter to be covered at the meet includes radiant heating and cooling to skin temperature, comfort and all phases of the young but booming industry.

The course is open to the general public, officials said, and lectures will be held in the mechanical engineering building on the college campus.

Lamesa Farmer-Ranchman Improving His Property

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

LAMESA, Aug. 10.—In an effort to save the soil of his farm S. N. Allen, who operates a four-section ranch 14 miles southeast of Lamesa, has given up large scale cotton farming and turned to livestock raising. When Allen purchased the ranch in 1937 he found 500 acres in cultivation and 700 acres of severely eroded abandoned land that was formerly used for cotton growing.

In December 1938, Allen began cooperating with the soil conservation CCC camp at Lamesa in an effort to install a complete conservation program on the place. The 700 acres of abandoned land was given protection from grazing in order to let the grass come back. The land is gradually being revegetated by the natural seeding of grasses. In the mean time Allen is grazing a limited number of sheep on part of it and states that they do a good job of keeping the weeds down.

Over 500 acres on the Allen ranch are still in cultivation and some cotton is grown on this area. A lot of the cultivated land is used for production of feed crops, however, as a part of the livestock farming system.

All the cultivated land is now farmed on the contour and terraces have been constructed on most of it. The terraces are planted to sorghums or some other soil-conserving crop each year and a yearly rotation is practiced by Allen. Erosion on this land has been almost completely checked under the present treatment.

"I observed the effect of erosion many years ago and have spent most of my life building up the land rather than depleting it. I am doing everything possible to hold and distribute all the rainfall on my farm and ranch in order to build up the soil, prevent erosion and to get a greater net return from my investment," Allen stated.

Place Well Fenced

The four-section ranch has all been fenced and cross fenced, sheep proof. Two and one-half miles of pipeline have been laid on the ranch in order to furnish numerous watering places for the livestock.

The ranch is divided into one cultivated field and five pastures. Water is distributed to nine different places in the pastures by pipeline. The distribution of watering places over the pastures encourages livestock to graze all areas uniformly.

Contour furrows are being constructed on much of the pasture land at the present time in order to hold rainfall and aid grass growth. Diversion terraces also have been constructed in many places to carry water from gully heads and spread it over more level areas of the pasture as a part of the water conservation program on the Allen ranch. Runoff has been practically eliminated on the place and this combined with controlled grazing and conservation farming practices has converted the farm into one of the show places of the soil conservation demonstration work in Dawson county.

Women Are Mentally Lazy In Politics

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—A woman professor at the University of Pittsburgh believes the average American woman has a lazy attitude toward politics and is inclined to rely on her husband's advice as to how she votes.

Dr. Rosalind L. Branning, one of the few women instructors in political science, deserted the ranks of her sex to make the charge, but tempered it by asserting that both men and women should make a deeper study of politics.

"Too many women are prone to vote only on the advice of others," Dr. Branning said. "Here in America, where women have a voice in the government, they should take an active interest in politics."

Dr. Branning dispels the impression that politics is a dry subject. "Politics can be just as exciting as any other subject," she said. "The idea that it is dull is due to a lack of understanding."

Dallas Policeman Is Tied To His Work

DALLAS, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—One Dallas policeman found himself tied to his job.

In the early morning just before dawn the officer drove his squad car behind a garage to watch for a thief reported to be walking that direction.

Sleep overcame the officer and he was found by fellow-workers who came by in another car. The man was snoring loudly, his feet propped up on the steering wheel.

One of the officers in the second squad car quietly reached in and tied the sleepers shoe laces to the wheel. Then he got back in his car and turned on the siren.

When the dozing officer awoke with a start, he jerked his feet down and officers were reluctant to give quotes of what the man said.

Miner, 75, Works In Pits After 65 Years

OLYPHANT, Pa., Aug. 10 (U.P.)—Hugh J. Lynch thinks he is the oldest active miner in point of service in the United States. The 75-year-old anthracite worker has been employed at mines for the past 65 years.

Lynch was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, and began working in a mine at the age of 10. He mined coal there until 1888 when he migrated to America.

He has dug coal in Iowa, Illinois, Alabama and Indiana, and worked at a salt mine at Kanapolis, Kas. He is now employed as a stone mason at the Grass Island Shaft of the Hudson Coal Company.

Woman Has Aided Soldiers 79 Years

BRYAN, Aug. 10 (U.P.)—Mrs. W. S. Stuart has aided soldiers from 1861 to 1940.

The 86-year-old woman recently turned in to the Red Cross here three pairs of woolen gloves she knitted in 10 days, destined for relief to soldiers in the European war.

At the age of eight she helped her father mold bullets for Confederate men of arms and in the last World war, she knitted, sewed, made surgical dressings and nursed during the influenza epidemic in the enlistment camp at Texas A. and M. college.

The May storm in Chile caused over $20,000,000 damage in the Valparaiso area alone.

Pastor Russell, Jehovah's Witnesses founder.

followers of the belief now insist it is a long, slow process, going on today, but imperceptible to the eyes of any except the initiate.

Counsel for defense in the Russell divorce hearings was Joseph Franklin Rutherford, a Missouri lawyer who campaigned with William Jennings Bryan in 1896, rose rapidly in the Russell movement. Since Pastor Russell died in 1916, Mr. Rutherford has been the sole prophet, spokesman and leader of the group.

Sentenced to 20 years in Atlanta federal prison in 1918 for urging young men in army camps to resist military service, he was released after serving nine months.

BOOK SALES 150,000,000 COPIES

A BRILLIANT orator and a shrewd publicist, Judge Rutherford, as he calls himself, built the organization far beyond the dreams of his predecessor. He claims a sale of 150,000,000 copies of his books in the past 10 years, reports the organization has distributed 309,000,000 pieces of literature.

He has spoken frequently over vast international radio hookups, at one time had more than 1000 broadcasts of his recorded speeches running weekly over 300 radio stations—all paid for at commercial rates.

Literature is produced in a huge Brooklyn printing plant owned by the organization. A printing plant in Magdeburg, Germany, has been seized by the Hitler government; one in Berne, Switzerland, has been closed for violation of a Swiss law forbidding attacks on any religion.

Sale of books alone is estimated at $40,000,000 in the past 10 years, and Judge Rutherford often is charged with reaping large profits, which he denies. Employes in the Brooklyn plant, numbering some 200, are paid $15 a month, plus board and lodging. Salesmen, who hawk the books from door to door, are members of the group, get no commission. The enterprise is exempt from taxation as a religious project.

In 1930, feeling the end was near, Judge Rutherford, for $75,000, purchased an old Spanish mansion at San Diego, Calif., had the deed recorded in the name of King David, Biblical conqueror of Goliath, and announced that King David, Joseph, Samson, and other Bible personages were soon to come back to earth and live there.

"I purposely had the grounds landscaped with palm trees and olive trees so these princes of the universe will feel at home," said Judge Rutherford.

Pending their return he lives there himself, but not without incident. One morning, he said, a seedy character approached and said:

"Hello, Judge, I'm Daniel."

"I saw at once that he was not," said Judge Rutherford, and he still awaits the Biblical claimants to the home.

Structurally, Jehovah's Witnesses is comprised of three non-profit corporations—the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, of Pennsylvania; the Peoples' Pulpit Association, of New York; the International Bible Students Association, of London, Eng. Judge Rutherford says they solicit neither money nor members, although contributions to the cause are freely made by followers.

DENIED USE OF FAIR GROUNDS

LAST month the Ohio department of agriculture, alarmed by the growing frequency of mob outbreaks against the Witnesses, cancelled a contract permitting them to use the Ohio state fair grounds in Columbus for their international convention. They had met there twice before without incident, but in more peaceful days.

The Witnesses asked the federal courts to compel the state to let them use it fair grounds, but the courts refused.

Within three weeks they produced a petition signed by 1,689,000 names, asking Gov. John Bricker to grant them use of the grounds. Governor Bricker already had letters from signers withdrawing their names on the grounds that the solicitors for their signatures had been vague, or not completely frank in obtaining them. He refused to intervene.

The convention, consequently, was moved to Detroit.

Conventions consist of hour after hour of sermons for four to six days, short business sessions at which cut and dried approval of measures already decided upon by the high command and usually already printed for distribution, is voted by members.

Then the members start back to their homes, in ancient jalopies, on foot, or hitch-hiking, stopping at every house along the way to warn the inhabitants of Armageddon, sell them Judge Rutherford's books, try to make converts.

Primer To Help Cut Illiteracy In CCC

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10 (U.P.) — A new textbook has been added to CCC camp libraries which officials believe will enable illiterate enrollees to learn to read and write within three months.

Education Commissioner John W. Studebaker said that existing textbooks "have proved quite unsatisfactory" and that the new issue would meet the "peculiar educational needs of CCC enrollees."

"The subject matter in elementary readers has not been addressed to the mature minds of CCC young men," he said. "Texts written to teach English to foreign-born adults likewise have proved unsuitable in many instances for the average CCC boy."

Director Howard W. Oxley of the CCC education office said that three out of every 100 enrollees are unable to read or write. Approximately 80,000, however, have been instructed in these studies since the corps was organized, he added.

The new book was prepared by Oxley's office in conjunction with the office of education.
