Warlords vow feud's end

Somalis celebrate promise; danger remains

■ U.S.-led forces wrap up first phase of mission to get food to starving.

Associated Press

MOGADISHU, Somalia — Tens of thousands of Somalis cheered and blew conch shells Monday to celebrate a promise by rival warlords to end their quarrel and reunite the capital that their armies had destroyed.

In the interior, U.S.-led forces wrapped up the first phase of their mission to get food to the starving by taking over Belet Huen, the last of eight hubs for the distribution of food and medicine.

For the first time in more than a year, Mohamed Farrah Aidid and Ali Mahdi Mohamed appeared publicly together at a mass rally of their followers and reaffirmed their pledge to end the division of the capital into spheres of influence.

But amid the smiles, promises and slightly off-key marching clan bands, the Green Line demarcation that Aidid and Ali Mahdi said had been torn down was still a very dangerous place.

Several journalists were harassed or fired upon by gunmen in the area. Not far from the rally, outside Mogadishu airport, U.S. Marines killed one of three bandits who tried to rob a Visnews television crew.

Civil war, drought and years of political unrest have produced a mass famine that has killed more than 350,000 Somalis and put 2 million more at risk of starvation. The rivalry among followers of Aidid, Ali Mahdi and other warlords has plunged the country into even

Broncos ax Reeves

A week after quarterback John Elway contended that Coach Dan Reeves should turn more responsibility for the Broncos' offense over to his assistants, Reeves wound up Monday yielding the entire coaching job in Denver. Reeves was fired following a 12-season stint that included six trips to the playoffs, three to the Super Bowl (all blowout losses) and a 1992 mark of 8-8 after a start of 7-3. Despite the return of the injured Elway on Sunday, the Broncos failed to make the playoffs when they lost to the Chiefs in Kansas City. "Life goes on," Reeves said./1C

Jury pools expand

DALLAS — Hundreds of thousands more Texans become eligible for jury duty next month under a new state law that lets court officials get names from lists of licensed drivers rather than registered voters. County clerks and the Secretary of State's office have scrambled to develop the broader lists. Many clerks have just sent out their first summons under the new law./4B

Greetings from IRS

WASHINGTON — Pity the poor letter carriers. Just as they empty their mail bags of holiday greeting cards and packages, Uncle Sam is about to fill them with income tax forms. The Internal Revenue Service said Monday that more than 107 million federal income tax packages will go in the mail starting Saturday. But the IRS added that many letter carriers will find their loads lighter later in the year. It expects 14 million taxpayers will meet the April 15 filing deadline by using tax preparers who return forms electronically, rather than by mail. That's 8 million more than last year.

U.S. bolsters Saudi-based fighter force

■ Pentagon sends two squadrons of warplanes to counter Iraqis.

By Michael R. Gordon
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The United States rushed Monday to build up its fighter force near Iraq, taking the unusual step of sending two squadrons of Navy warplanes to Saudi Arabia from an aircraft carrier off the coast of Africa.

The deployment of the Navy planes followed the downing on Sunday of an Iraqi MiG-25 by an American F-16. American officials said the Iraqi air force was flying patrols Monday. But the Iraqi planes steered clear of the air-exclusion zones in southern and northern Iraq, and the general view at the Pentagon was that Iraq was not spoiling for a fight with the United States now.

Before the air battle there had been a gradual reduction of American air forces in the Persian Gulf region, which may have emboldened the Iraqis to test the American ban on flights south of the 32nd parallel in southern Iraq.

An aircraft carrier had been shifted from the gulf to the coast of Somalia at

Bid to seal arms-reduction agreement picks up speed

GENEVA (AP) — The drive to wrap up a nuclear missile-reduction treaty before President Bush leaves office picked up speed Monday. Russian Foreign Minister Andrei V. Kozyrev offered to wager a bottle of whiskey on a successful outcome.

"We are making progress," Eagleburger said. "I can tell you we are working as hard as we can."

Kozyrev suggested his wager was still on the table.

Area retailers post strong Christmas season figures

By Mella McEwen
Staff writer

National reports indicate retailers across the country saw very strong sales during the Christmas season.

A random survey of local retailers indicates Midland was no exception.

At C.R. Anthonys department store, manager Jay Howell said, "We did quite a bit better than last year,' adding that the sales increase over last was in double digits.

Howell attributed the increase to "things being a little looser all over." In addition, he said, his store had a good merchandise mix. He added that items from throughout the store sold well, with men's and ladies' jeans and western-style clothing selling especially well.

Gang steals more than $8 million at armored truck depot

NEW YORK (AP) — An armed gang got the drop on a lone security guard at an armored truck company and stole more than $8 million from the vault, the FBI said Monday. It was the city's second-biggest cash theft.

The security man said he was watching television late Sunday in the command room of Hudson Armored Car Courier Service in Brooklyn.

"He felt a gun at the back of his head and a voice ordered him onto the floor," said FBI spokesman Richard DeFilippo.

The FBI said a significant portion of the loot was in new $100 bills, with serial numbers in sequence.

"The FBI would like to hear from anyone who sees new $100s sequentially numbered," DeFilippo said.

The guard said he was unable to see the robbers as his wrists and ankles were bound with wire.

"But judging from the sounds of voices, he thought there were five or six of them," DeFilippo said.

The guard eventually worked his legs free and triggered an alarm, which brought police.

Officers found the vault doors open and the robbers gone.

From shipping manifests, investigators determined that the robbers got four bags of cash totaling $8,268,680.07, DeFilippo said. He had no details about who the money belonged to.

The one-story, windowless building, which has no sign to identify its business or even its address, is in an industrial neighborhood of warehouses and small factories near the Brooklyn waterfront.

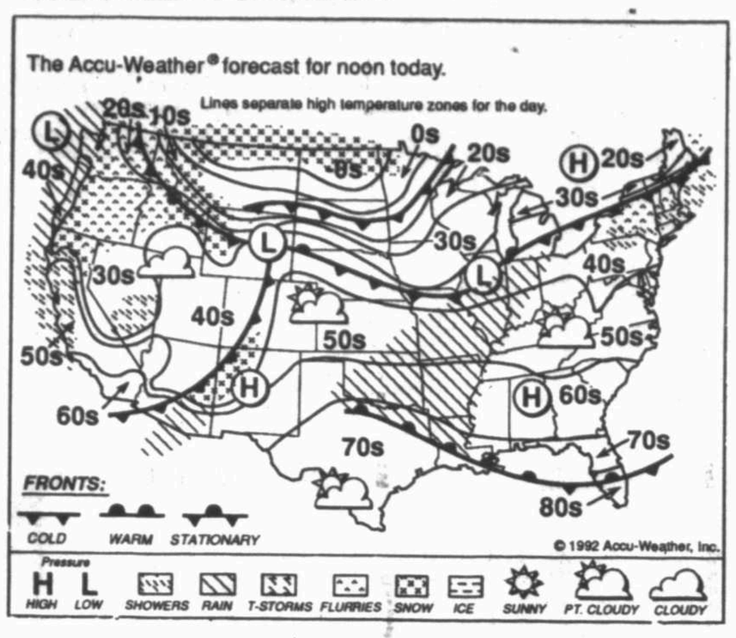
Company officials refused to speak to reporters.

The city's biggest cash theft was $11 million discovered missing on Dec. 12, 1982, after thieves broke into Sentry Armored Car. However, authorities later said a large portion of the money had been stolen over time by insiders.

On April 29, 1985, four armed men broke though a wall at a Wells Fargo terminal in lower Manhattan and drove off with $7.9 million in an armored car.

Six ski-masked bandits took $5 million in cash and $800,000 in gems from the Lufthansa terminal at Kennedy International Airport on Dec. 11, 1978.

WEATHER SUMMARY



Clouds, chance of rain on tap

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies and a 20 percent chance of showers with a high near 70 and south winds at 10-20 mph. Tonight should be cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain and a low in the lower to mid-50s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain and a high in the upper 60s.

After an overnight low of 46, Monday's high reached 65, compared to the record high for that date of 80 set in 1964. The record low of 9 was set in 1983.

STATE

Heavy fog shrouded much of Texas on Monday, cutting visibility to less than one-half mile in some places and snarling traffic both on the ground and in the air.

The fog was so thick during rush-hour traffic Monday afternoon on the east-west Woodall Rogers Expressway just north of downtown Dallas that the downtown skyline could not be seen.

Flights at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport and at Love Field in Dallas were delayed because of foggy conditions in several cities.

Tim Smith, a spokesman for American Airlines, said the carrier's flights were running about 45 to 50 minutes behind schedule. D-FW Airport officials were considering shutting down the airport Monday night.

Drizzling rain began falling late Monday afternoon in the Dallas area, further complicating rush-hour traffic.

Fog also was reported in South Texas and Central Texas. Little sunshine was noted Monday in the state; where there was no fog, skies frequently were heavily overcast.

Winds were southerly over North Texas in response to circulation associated with a surface high pressure ridge to the east that brought low-level moisture from the Gulf of Mexico.

Wind speeds ranged from 5 to 15 mph, with gusts over 20 mph at some locations. Temperatures were mild, with highs in the 60s, dropping only slightly to Monday night's lows in the 50s.

The National Weather Service said a major cold front is expected to hit later in the week, perhaps on New Year's Day, but conditions should be mild until then. Today, highs in North Texas are expected to rise into the 70s, with lows near 60.

In West Texas, mostly cloudy to cloudy skies dominated the weather picture Monday afternoon as subtropical moisture continued to flow into the state from the Pacific. Temperatures across the region were mostly in the 60s, but a few readings in the upper 50s were reported.

The weather service said there was a slight chance of rain through tonight in West Texas, with highs in the 50s and 60s and lows in the 40s and 50s.

In far South Texas, a warm front moved inland along a line from Corpus Christi to near Laredo. There was a break in the overcast skies, and temperatures rose into the 80s south of the front.

New fog was forming in South Texas on Monday night.

NATION

An intense low pressure system off the Washington coast produced heavy snow and high wind in parts of the West on Monday, and sleet and freezing rain iced highways in the East.

In Washington, 6 inches of new snow fell during the morning at Spokane with 4 to 5 inches over much of the northeastern part of the state. Other reports included 7 inches near Lake Wenas, 6 to 8 inches at Satus Pass, and 5 inches at Wenatchee, the National Weather Service said.

Four to 6 inches of snow fell overnight and during the morning across northern Idaho.

Heavy snow hit parts of northern California, with rain at lower elevations. More than an inch of rain had fallen in 24 hours at several locations along the coast.

Heavier rainfall for the six hours up to noon CST included 2.04 inches at Crescent City, Calif., and .97 of an inch at Shelter Cove, Calif.

In the northern California mountains, 13 inches of new snow was reported at McCloud on Monday with about a foot at the town of Mount Shasta and 9 inches at Westwood, Chester and Mineral.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

BOLSTERS: U.S. beefs up force to counter Iraqis

(From 1A)

the request of the U.S. Central Command, and some Air Force planes had also been withdrawn from the region.

As a result, American warplanes were not patrolling the skies over Iraq at all times. Iraqi planes may have ventured south of the 32nd parallel when American planes were not in the vicinity, according to Iraqi communications intercepted by American intelligence.

But after Sunday's confrontation, the American military commander who is overseeing the enforcement of the flight ban from Riyadh, Maj. Gen. James F. Record of the Air Force, has sought to augment his force, and allied planes are again conducting round-the-clock patrols, according to military officials.

According to Pentagon officials, a squadron of F-18 Navy jets and a squadron of F-14 Navy fighters took off from the carrier Kitty Hawk and landed Monday at the sprawling air base in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, where the Air Force F-16 and F-15 fighters are based. Each Navy squadron has nine planes.

Meanwhile, the Kitty Hawk is steaming from the coast of Somalia to the Persian Gulf, carrying other Navy planes. It is expected to reach the gulf by Thursday or Friday, a Pentagon official said.

The Air Force has sent additional KC-10 tanker planes to Saudi Arabia to help refuel the Navy planes, Pentagon officials said. A Pentagon official said an additional Rivet Joint RC-135 plane that monitor communications and electronic emissions from enemy radars systems had been sent to Saudi Arabia. It could be used to relieve other electronic surveillance planes in Saudi Arabia or augment the complement of surveillance planes if tensions persist in the region.

In deference to the Saudis, who have not acknowledged that American, British and French aircraft are operating from Saudi bases, the deployments of American planes to the Saudi kingdom were not announced.

The American action came as U.N. officials said they had reached an agreement with Baghdad that would allow the resumption of relief supplies to the Kurds in northern Iraq. Those shipments were suspended when Iraq began pulling U.N. drivers from the relief trucks and blowing up the vehicles.

Jan Eliasson, the U.N. under secretary general for humanitarian assistance, said in an interview that he had reached an understanding with Nizar Hamdoun, Iraq's delegate to the organization, under which the United Nations would put armed guards on the trucks.

Eliasson said some arrangements still needed to be worked out but added that he expected the relief supplies to resume in a matter of days.

Washington, which had long viewed the absence of U.N. guards as a serious flaw in the arrangement between the United Nations and Baghdad, had planned to bring the issue before the Security Council this week unless a solution was worked out. Eliasson said the understanding on the armed guards was reached on Sunday.

The American military's decision to deploy the Navy planes to a land base in Saudi Arabia is highly unusual in terms of military doctrine. Without the complement of spare parts and maintenance equipment on the Kitty Hawk, the Navy planes will be be able to sustain operations for only a short period, said Norman Polmar, an expert on naval forces.

In addition, critics are likely to argue that the deployment undercuts the case for maintaining a large number of aircraft carriers.

"It goes against the basic Navy doctrine that the carrier provides the mobility need to put high-performance aircraft into the crisis area," Polmar said.

But proponents of a sizable fleet of carriers are likely to argue that the deployment to Dhahran shows some of the virtues of carriers. Because the carrier was relatively close by, Navy planes were able to get to Dhahran quickly. And the deployment also shows that the Navy is able to improvise on short notice.

The Navy planes are expected to rejoin the Kitty Hawk once it reaches the Persian Gulf.

A Pentagon official familiar with the classified reports of Sunday's air battle offered new details of the engagement. He said the American F-16 had shot at the Iraqi plane at a range of three miles, adding that the engagement took place at an altitude of 20,000 feet. Afterward, the pilots observed smoke rising from the wreckage of the MiG-25.

ARMS: U.S., Russian negotiators hit final crunch gal draftsmen and translators to work out texts in English and Russian for Bush and Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin to sign after New Year's.

Bush, vacationing in Beeville, was hopeful an agreement would be reached, White House spokeswoman Judy Smith told reporters there.

She said Bush would be briefed by Eagleburger on his return.

Hundreds of the deadliest nuclear weapons in the world — long-range, land-based missiles with multiple warheads aimed simultaneously at several targets — would be banned and stockpiles of U.S. and Russian strategic warheads would be pared to about one-third current levels.

It would be Bush's third major arms control agreement. In 1990, he signed an East-West agreement to cut troops and tanks in Europe. Last year, he signed a treaty with Russia to cut strategic nuclear weapons by about one-third.

But tough, technical questions must be resolved, including how many SS-18 silos the Russians will be permitted to retain and how bombers are to be counted under the treaty.

Eagleburger met at the Russian mission for more than three hours with Kozyrev and Russian Defense Minister Pavel Grachev, and then they had lunch together while experts from the two sides held a working session.

"We are encouraged by the way things are going," Richard A. Boucher, the State Department spokesman, said. "I think we are making progress."

Boucher said Eagleburger would have dinner with Kozyrev and that they would meet again on Tuesday.

Asked if he expected an agreement, Kozyrev said: "I am ready to bet a bottle of whiskey. We will do such work here to make it possible for our presidents to have the right decision after the negotiations here."

The foreign minister quickly amended his remark to say: "positive decision."

Eagleburger avoided any last-minute prediction, shooing reporters and cameramen from the meeting room so he and Kozyrev could get down to work.

CHIC: Influx puts squeeze on native Santa Feans find they can no longer afford to live in the city where they were born.

(From 1A)

"They're raising taxes and actually chasing people out," said Chavez, 77, a retired state employee whose property taxes have tripled in the past two years to $1,200.

City Councilor Debbie Jaramillo blames aggressive promotion of tourism.

"You're showing a ritzy, wealthy, highfalutin kind of town. Consequently, those are the kind of people that have come to live here," she said. "Today's tourists are tomorrow's residents — whether you invited them or not."

The population swelled from 49,000 in 1980 to 56,000 in the 1990 census. For the first time ever, Hispanics are not a majority.

The median price of a single-family home in Santa Fe has climbed to $135,000, 37 percent above the national average, according to the city. That's up from $112,000 or about 20 percent since 1988, according to the Santa Fe Association of Realtors.

Yet incomes remain 22 percent below the national average, with the median family income at $28,000.

Most jobs in Santa Fe are tied to the service industry or government. The city — which dates to 1610 — enjoys a growing reputation as an arts center, with a distinguished opera company. It has long been a haven for artists.

Peter Werwath, a housing consultant with The Enterprise Foundation in Columbia, Md., said many Western tourist spots are undergoing similar changes. But Santa Fe has suffered the most extreme cultural disruption he's ever seen.

"You have in effect a community that 50 years ago was very traditional, very Hispanic ... and that has been totally disrupted," Werwath said. "(There's been) enormous displacement of the original, old-time families. Their children cannot afford to live here anymore."

Werwath is working with the city on ways to create more affordable housing.

One possibility is a special tax on the sale of expensive houses — perhaps those costing more than $250,000. Another is a requirement that developers either include affordable housing in their plans, build it elsewhere or pay into a special fund.

Santa Fe hopes to spend $17 million over the next three years to create 700 units of low- and moderate-income housing. It has also bought an 850-acre parcel where it hopes eventually to develop 5,000 units for people of all incomes.

To discourage land speculation, the City Council recently approved a measure requiring developers to do something with rezoned land within two years.

The state Legislature also will consider a bill allowing property tax assessments to rise no more than 2 percent a year from their 1990 levels unless the property changes hands.

SEASON: Midland retailers report strong sales

(From 1A)

ibles were almost double year-ago sales, according to Pat Bass of the cooperative store. But she said a year ago the store had just moved to a new location "and people didn't know where we are."

She attributed the store's strong sales this year to customers' appreciation of hand-made items. "We did a big business in decorated clothing," she noted, as well as large decorations for homes.

Other strong sellers were gift items that were specialty items related to professions such as nursing or banking as well as items for a patio or yard.

"This year," she said, "people bought early and they bought big items."

Workers at Expressions, another cooperative store, noticed that shoppers "were enthusiastic, and so nice," according to Sharon Dunnam, who added that sales were "wonderful" at the store. And though shoppers started later, she said they seemed to know what they wanted.

She noted that, while customers seemed to purchase small items rather than large ones, the store had "exceeded what we thought we were going to do for the whole of December by the middle of the month."

A strong end-of-season finish boosted sales at Folgers Electronics, reported store manager Jim Shoup. He said, "Anything in small electronics was hot — small stereos, camcorders, VCRS, compact displayers, car audio — basically, anything in the small electronics category, we sold out of."

Small electronics such as Genie, Game Boy and Nintendo games, were also hot sellers at the Midland K mart, said assistant manager Rex Hopkins, as were dolls, board games and anything with Beauty and the Beast.

Hopkins added that this year, bicycles were a particularly strong seller.

All this, he said, will add up to the Midland store's best year ever, with sales increases in double digits over last year.

Hopkins said customers were more upbeat this season, began shopping earlier and were "more sure of what they wanted. The panic wasn't there this year."

Kathy Wurster, owner of Kids Only toy store, said "I think we did very well. We had a very good Christmas, better than last year." She said sales of dolls and stocking stuffer items were very strong this year, as were games for those of all ages.

She observed that "people were buying toys for adults this year in greater quantities than in the past. Most of my toys are very old-fashioned, and bring back memories of their childhood to adults."

She said she "gave it everything I had" to boost sales this year, including staying open as many hours as possible, and was busy right up to 5 p.m. Christmas Eve when she closed for the holidays.

Larry Luskey, manager of the Midland Luskeys Western Wear, said sales went very well this year. "Things are looking up for all of December and we're pleased."

He said customers seemed to be more upbeat this year, and came into the store with specific items in mind to buy. "If we had it, they spent the money."

At the Midland Sears store, Christmas sales began right after Thanksgiving and continued throughout the season, said John Marshall, store manager.

He said fashions "began selling right off the bat. Home electronics sales waited until December to take off."

He added that customers seemed to be taking more care with what they bought, which he said is reflected in the light returns and exchanges the store is currently seeing.

Marshall said sales in all departments of the store were strong and he estimates that Christmas sales will be up 10 percent over a year ago.

SOMALIA: Somalis cheer warlords' vow; U.S. wraps up 1st phase greater chaos and despair.

Aidid and Ali Mahdi had pledged on Dec. 11 to dismantle the demarcation line within 48 hours, but the warlords do not always control even members of their own sub-clans.

Still, tens of thousands of Somalis lined streets and clambered atop the roofs of gutted buildings to watch Ali Mahdi and Aidid clasp each other, give thanks to Allah and talk for about 20 minutes amid buildings their armies had destroyed.

Two marching bands, from the city's two rival sectors, greeted each other warmly, then played drums and a motley array of other, mostly untuned, instruments.

The day was also symbolic for foreign troops. On the 20th day of their mission, 240 American and Canadian troops swooped in helicopters into Belet Huen, near the Ethiopian border, to seize the final food distribution center targeted by Operation Restore Hope.

"We passed the word yesterday that anyone that has a weapon parallel to the ground is a threat and will be dealt with," said Lt. Col. Carol Mathieu, the Canadian commander of the operation.

Hundreds of Somalis watched as 200 members of the 2nd Battalion of the 87th Infantry Regiment, based in Fort Campbell, Ky,. and 40 Canadian soldiers landed in Belet Huen aboard 10 UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters.

The troops flew into Belet Huen's dirt airstrip from Beli Dogle, a town about 100 miles west of Mogadishu that has become the operation center of the U.S. Army's 10th Mountain Division, based in Fort Drum, N.Y.

By week's end, 800 Canadians are to be in Belet Huen and the Americans will pull out for other tasks.

The U.S.-led coalition now controls the ports and airports at Mogadishu and Kismayu and six interior towns. From distribution centers in the interior, it plans to rush small mountains of food to stricken communities in the famine belt.

President Bush, who is to visit Somalia for New Year's, has said he hopes the United Nations will take over the mission and that U.S. troops could start returning home by Jan. 20, when President-elect Clinton moves into the White House. But other sources have predicted American troops will be in the starving Horn of Africa country much longer.

The security problems that forced the foreign intervention continued to plague Mogadishu. Visnews cameraman Jimi Matthews and soundman Leon Malherbe, both of Johannesburg, said they were confronted by three armed Somalis as they approached the gate of the international airport.

Matthews said one of the bandits put a pistol to his head and demanded his camera while another fired a rifle at Marines and Pakistani soldiers manning the gate, about 50 yards away.

The Marines returned fire, killing one of the Somalis. Malberbe said a bullet scraped his arm as he sought cover.

In a similar incident, gunmen tried to steal camera equipment from a three-man CNN crew. A U.S. Marine patrol passed by but refused to stop, saying it wasn't their mission to get involved, the journalists said. Italian soldiers finally came to the crew's rescue.

Taking the Somali town, Italian style

By Mark Fritz
Associated Press writer

GAILALASSI, Somalia — With espresso in their canteen cups and cognac in their meal rations, the Italian army cut a stylish if rather leisurely swath through Somalia, an old colony with a long memory.

As part of the U.S.-led force trying to feed the African nation's poor, the Italians were assigned to journey to this town, secure it and make sure food and medicine can be safely delivered.

Part of the convoy got lost on the way. A truck driver fell asleep and smacked into a tree. Vehicles broke down. There were more than a few rest stops in the blazing heat, as well as dips into rations including pasta, pate and cognac.

Small contingents of U.S. Air Force, Marines and Army assigned to help out grimaced, griped and grinned under the blazing sun as the 45-vehicle armored convoy lurched from Mogadishu to Gailalassi, spanning the 100-mile trip in a numbingly tedious 14 hours on Sunday.

"Geez, this is the slowest convoy I've ever been in," said U.S. Army Spec. 4 Kevin Buckner, during one of innumerable delays along the rutted, bumpy road to Gailalassi.

During one delay, Italian Maj. Gennaro Fusco skipped up to a reporter and offered a sip from his canteen cup of the richest espresso this side of Sicily.

"We'll get there, if my men don't kill me first," laughed the officer, a grin splitting a jaw covered with three days growth of beard.

The convoy slowed to another halt as it neared Gailalassi, this time so two truckloads of Italian media could zoom to the front to capture the "taking" of the town, where residents waved and offered no resistance.

When it was all over, Italian Gen. Bruno Loi insisted all went well and defended the length of the journey, which was hampered by rough roads and slowed by four civilian aid trucks.

"The mission has been successful," he said. "It was a good performance, considering that the maps were outdated and the roads were bad."

The Italians were the most controversial addition to the multinational force trying to make eight Somali regions safe for food deliveries after widespread clan fighting and looting.

Italy colonized much of what is now Somalia in the 19th century. It relinquished the territory in 1960 in the face of an independence movement that was broad-based compared to the fractured chaos reigning now.

Italy also helped finance the dictatorship of Gen. Mohamed Siad Barre, whose 21-year rule ended in January 1991 in civil war, leading to today's factional chaos.

"The Somalis hate the Italians," said Abdi Sulyam, 26, as the convoy snaked through his village of Garsolo.

Actually, the Italians are disliked largely in regions controlled by forces most opposed to Siad Barre's regime. Somalia still contains many Italian city names; in some regions Italian is the second language.

U.S. Marine Maj. Dan Lizzul, whose parents were born in Italy and who married an Italian woman while stationed in Naples, was assigned as a liaison to the convoy.

"We had dinner with the officers before we started, you know, wine and a coffee liqueur," said the Bronx native. "It was nice."

The journey was a bit of a chore for U.S. Army Lt. Jim Worthington.

He said his unit spent two days before the march waiting for the Italians to decide how to go about it. Worthington, a stocky, no-nonsense bulldog of a man, said his unit had to counsel the Italians on spreading out the convoy so they wouldn't be an easy target.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Positive thinking and extra creative effort will get you past any roadblocks you now encounter. Your ability to make the right decision quickly earns you high marks next March. Early May could bring a promotion or raise. Happy romance will make the summer of '93 truly memorable. Wedding bells could peal in late fall. Travel for business or pleasure before the winter holidays.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actors Jon Voight and Ted Danson, singer Marianne Faithfull, actor Denzel Washington.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Child-related problems, mostly connected with finances, will be your main concern. Investigate new business opportunities. Being part of a foursome could be lots of fun this evening

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Romance takes a back seat to career. Spending must be kept within reasonable limits. Look for bargains, but purchase only those items that are practical.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Are the bills mounting up! Stay on top of them. At work, avoid pushing for quick decisions or changes. Make a clear distinction between the love of power and the power of love.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Higher profits may be enjoyed when a hoped-for merger becomes reality. Now is the time to form new professional and personal relationships. A health club membership helps you get back into shape.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Competitive friends will spur you on to greater accomplishments. Avoid any arm-twisting maneuvers at work. New friends will add pizzazz to your social life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Those engaged in wheeling and dealing must watch their step. Do not put up a lot of money for a creative project without first securing additional information.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friction could develop between you and a colleague. Working independently may be the answer. Practice preventive medicine; keep dental or medical appointments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your usual method of doing things needs to be re-evaluated. A partner may not give in to your demands. Great patience is required. Postpone important signings and meetings until tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may have all the work you can handle now. Share the load by learning how to delegate to others. Your way with words magically opens new social doors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Setting clear goals neutralizes moodiness. Avoid taking business detours that could lead to financial loss. Postpone signing legal documents until after the new year.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A debt may come under discussion. Stay calm and you will be able to work things out. Let your creative instincts take over later today. Show your artistic side to higher-ups.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Routine obligations claim more of your time than you would like. Let your partner take the initiative in business or romance. An investment is going to pay off now.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are serious-minded but cheerful, determined to get all they can from life. The longer they are in school, the more self-confident these shy youngsters will become. Although thrifty with themselves, these Capricorns tend to be very generous with friends and family. Rewarding personal relationships are just as important to them as a fulfilling career. Loyal and well-organized, they make model employees. Count on them to rise swiftly through the ranks.

Opening lead: Ace of ♠

How good were the players of yesteryear? It took Howard Schenken about 10 seconds to come up with the winning play on this hand from a team match almost 50 years ago.

After a forcing two-bid and two cue-bids, North-South reached the excellent contract of six hearts in quick time. West led the ace of spades, ruffed by Schenken, who cashed the ace of hearts in no time flat. When East discarded a club, the rest was easy.

The jack of trumps was covered by the queen and taken by the king. Another round of trumps was drawn, leaving West with the master trump. Declarer simply started running diamonds. West could ruff any time that defender chose, but declarer had the rest of the tricks.

What if West had shown out on the ace of hearts? Declarer would still have run the jack to East's queen. East could force declarer to ruff another spade, but declarer would ruff, cash the ten of hearts, cross to the ace of clubs and draw the last trump with the king of hearts. The rest of the tricks could then be claimed.

To appreciate Schenken's rapid analysis, consider what happened at the other table, where the contract and opening lead were the same. Declarer ruffed and led a low heart to the king and could not recover. Declarer tried to concede a trump by continuing with a low trump to the jack, but after winning the queen, West simply forced declarer with another spade. That left South with a bare ace, while West held the guarded nine. Down one.

Springsteen, Bon Jovi join in jam session; Connick released

ASBURY PARK, N.J. — Bruce Springsteen and Jon Bon Jovi showed up at a nightclub early Monday to perform with Southside Johnny.

Springsteen joined Southside Johnny in a jazzy rendition of "The Fever," written by Springsteen. Later, Bon Jovi launched into Southside Johnny's "I Don't Want to Go Home."

Springsteen

Bon Jovi

The three, all New Jersey natives, appeared together for "Long, Long Time" and finished the show at the Stone Pony club with Sam Cooke's "We're Having a Party."

"It was an awesome show," said Jack O'Callaghan of Brick Township.

NEW YORK — Crooner Harry Connick Jr. was freed Monday after spending the night in jail for trying to take an unlicensed, unloaded automatic pistol onto a plane.

Security guards at Kennedy International Airport found the 9mm gun Sunday in Connick's carry-on bag when he "voluntarily indicated he had a weapon with him," said Richard Piperno, a spokesman for the Queens district attorney.

The Grammy-winner told authorities the pistol was a gift, said Sgt. Stephen Prospero, a spokesman for Port Authority police.

The pistol was found as Connick was about to board a TWA flight home to New Orleans. He was taken to jail and held overnight in a cell.

Connick, 24, said nothing during a brief arraignment Monday. He was charged with fourth-degree criminal possession of a weapon, a misdemeanor, and released on his own recognizance.

Connick faces a maximum punishment of up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

ASPEN, Colo. — John Denver and actor Harry Hamlin were among celebrities who appeared at a variety show to raise money for repeal of Amendment 2, Colorado's new anti-gay rights measure.

Hamlin drew applause Sunday when he welcomed about 400 people on behalf of those who want the amendment to "disappear from the face of the Earth."

Actor Anthony Zerbe also appeared and said: "The way to deal with it is to repeal it."

John Oates was in the audience but didn't perform. Liza Minnelli backed out of the show in observance of a boycott of Colorado.

The boycott has gained momentum since voters approved Amendment 2 on Nov. 3. The measure prohibits governments in the state from passing laws barring discrimination against gays.

Organizers of the benefit expected to raise more than $50,000 for the repeal effort.

OKLAHOMA CITY — A magazine in Garth Brooks' home state has named him Oklahoman of the Year.

Jeanne Devlin, editor of "Oklahoma Today," said Monday that Brooks was chosen as the magazine's first recipient of the honor because "he personifies the emergence of country music as a serious market force and at the same time he has retained his Oklahoma values."

Brooks lives in Nashville, Tenn. He grew up in Yukon, a suburb of Oklahoma City. His parents now live in nearby Edmond.

"Just to be raised in Oklahoma puts you on the board in the game of life," Brooks told the magazine in the issue due out this week.

"Don't be afraid to go anywhere in the world. If you were raised in Oklahoma, you were raised with all you need," Brooks said.

MIAMI — Club owner Paul Montana is seeking divorce and alimony from supermodel Ashley Montana, saying she is pregnant by another man.

"She is with child and does not dispute the fact it is not Paul's," his attorney, Louis J. Terminello, said Monday.

The couple married in April 1990 but separated early this year. Terminello said Ms. Montana's baby is due in about three months.

The Montanas lived in Miami Beach while together. Montana, 25, still lives there, but his wife, cover girl for the 1991 Sports Illustrated swimsuit issue, has moved to New York.

Ms. Montana, 28, has 20 days to respond after she is served with the divorce petition filed Dec. 22, and the divorce could become final any time after if the split is uncontested, Terminello said.

But the attorney said the two "are far apart on the issues," primarily financial, and he expects a divorce trial. Montana estimates his wife has earned nearly $1 million since their marriage. He is part-owner of The Whiskey clubs in New York and Miami Beach.

Clinton's Iraqi test shows U.S. resolve

Saddam Hussein's latest "test" of the resolve of President Bush and the United Nations in regard to the "no fly zone" in southern Iraq should let him know that nothing has changed. Iraqi fighter pilots who challenge the ban will be confronted and chased across the 32nd parallel or shot down, as was one of two Iraqi aircraft in the Sunday clash.

There's little doubt that Sunday's incident was a test of Bush's resolve as his presidency is nearing its end. Through the years Hussein has shown that he will continually challenge authority and will use every opportunity that presents itself to test U.S. leadership again and again.

President-elect Bill Clinton has supported "efforts to bring Iraq into compliance" with the prohibition on flying its planes below the 32nd parallel. Clinton had better be firm in his commitment to that mandate because it's more than likely that he will also be tested by Hussein after being sworn in as president in less than a month.

During the past several weeks, Hussein's actions have indicated that he is getting ready to challenge U.S. resolve in regard to his tyrannical bullying in the Middle East. First it was his massing of troops just outside the Kurds' save-haven enclave. Now his fighter pilots are challenging the United Nations resolution on the "no fly zone."

To his credit, Bill Clinton says, "This is part of a series of tests of international resolve to bring Iraq into compliance with the United Nations resolutions. Saddam Hussein is mistaken if he believes the United States or the United Nations lacks that resolve."

If Hussein perceives the Clinton administration as wavering on the no fly resolution, he will undoubtedly attempt to cause as much havoc as possible. Then this irritating fly known as Saddam Hussein will be in Clinton's soup.

Balancing books will be Clinton's first job at hand

Bill Clinton wants to "help" the economy. The Secret Service should whisk him to the nearest mall for a dose of reality.

All the good parking is taken. Stores are packed with an unbelievable number of people making an unbelievable amount of purchases. Visa and MasterCard both report charges this year are 16 percent higher than last Christmas.

The recession has run its course. Fears of further layoffs are subsiding. Unemployment lines are shrinking.

The economy grew by 3.9 percent in the latest three-month period. Most economists were shocked by the strength of this improvement.

The best thing President-elect Clinton can do now is stay out of the way and let the economy grow on its own. Working on long-term solutions will be better for the country than trying to devise some short-term fix.

Clinton should reconsider his call to spend $30 billion to stimulate the economy. Such an expenditure will only deepen the deficit and ignite inflation.

All things considered, the nation is in pretty good shape. Look at the anvils that landed on the economy in the last four years. A worldwide recession. Deep cutbacks in defense spending. Earthquakes and riots in California. Hurricanes in Florida. The collapse of the Soviet empire. A war in Kuwait.

All these blows were absorbed by the mildest recession in 25 years. Not that the economy is perfect. Poverty is a stubborn enemy and many state governments are struggling.

California and New York City suffer from the flight of companies to lower-taxed states; sadly, West Virginia is not on those companies' list of low-tax states.

But overall, the private sector is firing on all eight cylinders.

Clinton should concentrate on fixing that part of the nation's economy that is already in government control. The federal budget now consumes 24 percent of the U.S. economy.

Balancing the government's books would be a real big help — for Clinton and the economy.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Dec. 29, the 364th day of 1992. There are two days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 29, 1890, the Wounded Knee massacre took place in South Dakota. Some 300 Sioux Indians were killed by U.S. troops sent to disarm them. About 30 soldiers were slain.

On this date:

In 1170, Archbishop Thomas Becket was murdered in Canterbury Cathedral in England.

In 1808, the 17th president of the United States, Andrew Johnson, was born in Raleigh, N.C.

In 1813, the British burned Buffalo, N.Y., during the War of 1812.

In 1837, Canadian militiamen destroyed the Caroline, a U.S. steamboat docked at Buffalo, N.Y.

In 1845, Texas was admitted as the 28th state.

In 1851, the first American Young Men's Christian Association was organized, in Boston.

In 1913, the first movie serial, "The Adventures of Kathlyn," premiered in Chicago.

In 1934, Japan renounced the Washington Naval Treaty of 1922 and the London Naval Treaty of 1930.

In 1940, during World War II, Germany began dropping incendiary bombs on London.

In 1957, singers Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme were married in Las Vegas, Nevada.

In 1975, a bomb exploded in the main terminal of New York's LaGuardia Airport, killing 11 people and injuring several dozen others.

In 1989, playwright Vaclav Havel was elected president of Czechoslovakia by the country's Federal Assembly, becoming the first non-Communist to attain the post in more than four decades.

Ten years ago: Nevell Johnson Jr. died one day after he was shot by a police officer during an arrest at a Miami video arcade. The shooting of Johnson, who was black, sparked three days of racial disturbances.

Bush's pardon saves nation grief, money

Thundering and smoking, the judicial locomotive was bearing down on Caspar Weinberger just as George Bush snatched him and half a dozen other supposed Iran-Contra conspirators from certain doom. Foiled by this Christmas Eve exercise of the presidential pardon power, Special Prosecutor Lawrence Walsh stamps around and denounces presidential "misconduct."

Murchison

Mr. Walsh, Mr. Walsh, would you just go away and leave us alone? As Cromwell said to the Long Parliament, you have sat long enough for any good you have been doing.

The president, bless him, was resoundingly right to pardon Weinberger and the others. Had all Bush's presidential deeds been marked by this kind of fortitude and forthrightness, Bill Clinton right now might be toiling over Arkansas' next state budget instead of laying plans to overhaul America.

Walsh's caterwauling can't obscure various significant facts. One is that the Weinberger persecution, after six years of Iran/Contra, is especially gratuitous and mean-spirited. Cap Weinberger, patriot and public servant, opposed the arms-for-hostages deal. Yet Walsh, just before the election — a mere coincidence, we're all certain — got him indicted as a cover-up artist.

Weinberger asserted on television Sunday that the special persecutor was trying to coerce him into implicating his former boss, President Reagan. This would have been fun, wouldn't it? — the indictment and trial of an ex-president.

I can see it: the sudden knock on the Reagans' door; a blur of uniforms and television cameras. Then, "Mr. President, you have the right to remain silent, you have the right to an attorney ... " In due course, the trial, before the inevitable all-Democratic jury in Washington, D.C. The hungry looks from jurors, prosecutors and reporters. Ah, for a bite out of his hide, an ink smudge on his place in history!

It makes you wonder, if you haven't been wondering all this time: Does Special Persecutor Walsh have any sense of perspective? What is all this about? How many of us — besides the special persecutor and his staff, I mean — benefit from a six-year-long pursuit which already has cost the taxpayers $33 million and has yielded only penny-ante convictions (e.g., Oliver North for the way he financed his home security system)? Iran/Contra is Dickens' Jarndyce vs. Jarndyce, the Chancery case that dragged on so long, nobody could remember how it started.

Walsh counter-asserts that all of us, including presidents, are under the law. Bless the man, even we non-lawyers know this. It's plain old English jurisprudence, dating back at least to Magna Carta.

There are two problems nonetheless with Walsh's application of this venerable and valuable principle. One is the difficulty of proving what he hasn't been able to prove despite a near-exhaustive investigation. How was Walsh, absent a confession, going to nail Reagan?

The other problem is the intensely political nature of the Iran/Contra mess, which had to do much more with politics and foreign policy than with law. The president and Congress differed significantly on our policies toward Iran and Nicaragua. Congress, to express its viewpoint, took political action; that is, it passed laws.

If laws were broken, as clearly some were, they were chiefly political laws — tokens of partisan exasperation — and not even necessarily constitutional.

If Iran/Contra still plagues us, it is partly the special persecutor's fault, partly the fault of the American people for never rising above ambiguity on this whole matter. Won't it be a happy new year if finally we do so rise: long enough, anyway, to cry with one accord, "Enough already!"

CHARLEY REESE

A priority check keeps life on even keel

In honor of the Christmas season, here are a few thoughts to ponder:

The news business is about ephemeral matters. Governments come and governments go. Crises arise and are replaced by new ones. Today this guy is famous and tomorrow someone else. This fad or scheme or idea is popular and then it fades.

Reese

Sometimes you ought to go to the library and read old copies of newspapers on microfilm. I mean newspapers published 50 or 60 or 70 years ago. What you will find is that the only things that have changed are names and dates, but the old stories are essentially the same as the contemporary stories — crimes, sports, fads, fashions, alarms, political promises, and so forth.

Better yet, to get matters in their proper perspective, follow the example of the old samurai. When you wake up in the morning, imagine your own death. Really think about it. Visualize it. If you can do that, you'll get a freebie. A near-death experience without the pain and expense. Like people banged up in a terrible accident, you will find your priorities have shifted. Things you thought were important will not seem that big a deal. Little things you used to ignore take on new significance.

In my own backwoods way, I have always held this to be the bedrock of philosophy: if you're alive and ain't hurting, be glad and grateful. Don't let trivial matters spoil this great but temporary experience of being alive. And remember, nearly everything is trivial.

And don't fall into the ego trap. I've met people who carry the destiny of the universe on their shoulders, people who act as if the fate of mankind depended on them. Naturally, they are not very happy people. They are tense, anxious, in a constant state of agitation and turmoil. The destiny of the universe and the fate of mankind are God's business. Let him worry about it. He doesn't need your help or suggestions.

The late Gen. Lewis W. Walt, who saw combat in four wars, told me once: "People said I was brave but I never was. I just left it up to God whether I would live or die and went ahead and did what had to be done." One such thing was pushing a field gun up a hill in an exposed position while four machine guns were firing at him. But, you see, Walt didn't have to worry about whether he would get hit or not — he only had to worry about getting the gun up the hill.

The Buddhists have another way of saying the same thing: do your best, but don't worry about the outcome. We have control over whether we do our best or less than our best. We have no control over the outcome. We should learn to be concerned about what we can control and to be unconcerned about what we can't. Of course the only thing we can control is ourselves.

The Christmas season celebrates the bearer of a simple but profound message: love others as you love yourself; treat others as you wish them to treat you. If the human race could manage those two things, we could dispense with a lot of locks, firearms, police, courts, prisons, psychiatrists, social workers and all the other paraphernalia spawned by human misbehavior. Of course, as a human race, it seems we can't.

But as individuals we can. If somebody loves you, you have wealth. If you can do a kindness for another person, you have power.

Your car will end up in a junk pile; your house will decay; your money will eventually be spent; your clothes will rot; somebody else will wear your jewels; people who know you by your reputation or position will forget you before the sun rises twice on your grave.

But love and kindness last. Those are important, not this trivia we write about everyday.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

President-elect's policies takes new look

WASHINGTON — Bill Clinton's selection of Tony Lake and Sandy Berger to head the Conceptual Frameworkers Union down in the White House basement sends an unmistakable signal to the world: The foreign policy of the United States will be a far cry from the one denounced Oct. 2 by candidate Clinton in Milwaukee.

Safire

In that speech, which might have been titled "It's Foreign Policy, Stupid," Gov. Clinton attacked a Bush "policy that embraces stability at the expense of freedom" and called for one "that lights fires in the hearts of millions of freedom-loving people around the world."

The primacy of Clinton's National Security Council staff in foreign policy was underscored by the designation of Warren Christopher, a Weltanschauung-free negotiator, as secretary of state. He will be traveling a lot, leaving the administration of the department to his deputy, an experienced pension-fund manager.

"We need bold new thinking to guide us in this new era," declaimed Christopher, who thereby showed he needs a bold new speechwriter to steer him away from the cliches of an old era. The bolding secretary of state should also resist alarmist insertions from Al Gore about "the very destruction of our planet's life-support system."

Let us assume that Clinton's four foreign-policy addresses, culminating in the Lake-Berger Milwaukee speech, form the basis for his vision of America's shouldering of responsibility in the single-superpower world. Also assume that his choice of James Woolsey to head the CIA, heartening to hard-liners, is evidence of his desire to refocus that agency's mission and to make its product more usable.

What this means is that the Democrats have recovered from their generation-long Vietnam trauma and have returned to the Wilson-FDR-Truman-Kennedy-Johnson view of the American burden, or at least a multipolar version thereof.

That stunning, historic turnabout has had an immediate effect: Because Clinton publicly supported intervention in Somalia and air cover and arms for the besieged Bosnians, President Bush — after calling the latter "reckless" — felt politically free to send our troops to Africa and at least make threats to the aggressive Serbs. (Bush and Clinton forget only the endangered Kurds.)

Intervention is in. Although the Pentagon qualifies that with "We do deserts, but we don't do mountains," our military establishment — part of Washington's dovecote for a generation — now goes along with global burden-bearing, provided it is short and solitary and not nasty or brutish.

Much of this new readiness to enforce law or establish order may be to justify the continuance of big budgets, but the Joint Chiefs are effectively buttressing intervention on behalf of the new idealism — as espoused by the Vietnam dissenter Bill Clinton.

If the former liberal doves and conservative hawks are now human-rights bedfellows, where will the opposition to intervention come from? Though isolationists are presently unelectable, the law of ideological compensation is ineluctable.

The first opposition to be heard from is respectable. As Gerald Seib reports in The Wall Street Journal, the conservative Sens. Hank Brown of Colorado, Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming and Robert Smith of New Hampshire voted against the resolution urging force against the Serbs; 18 of the 22 senators who voted nay were Republicans. A conservative Democrat, Rep. John Murtha of Pennsylvania, was skeptical about involvement in Somalia.

Certainly there should be voices demanding to know: "What are we getting into? Who is making what secret commitments? Under what principles? Why can't regional powers take on or share the burden? How do we measure success, limit risk and end involvement?"

But if all does not go well somewhere, these seekers of clear definitions and goals will be joined, perhaps overwhelmed, by the "troubadours of trouble," in Clare Luce's phrase: isolationists of the resentful right, Perot protectionists, diplomatic accommodationists, and old New Left peaceniks now lying quietly in the weeds.

The Clinton foreign-policy consensus is creating a vacuum, and politics abhors a vacuum. Unreconstructed interventionists know which side we're on — active engagement to stop mayhem and promote democracy — and we're waiting to see who emerges to lead the side of determined detachment.

Bush warns Milosevic; forces stop people fleeing Sarajevo

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The United Nations on Monday sent more peacekeepers to try to contain Bosnia's war amid warnings by President Bush of intervention if the Serbs provoke violence in other Yugoslav republics.

In Geneva, U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali met with leaders of the former Yugoslav republics. Despite agreement that the Balkans were threatened with conflagration, there were few concessions for peace. Bosnia's president indicated he was preparing a new military offensive.

The contingent of 33 U.N. military observers and soldiers sent to the republic of Macedonia was the advance force of the first preventive U.N. operation — one aimed at keeping violence in Bosnia from spilling over.

A force of about 800 troops eventually will be deployed, mainly along Macedonia's northern border with the Serb province of Kosovo. Massive unrest has been predicted if persecution of Kosovo's 1.7 million ethnic Albanians continues.

Like the Macedonian deployment, the warning by Bush, contained in a letter released to The Associated Press on Monday, was meant to prevent war's spread.

The letter, sent last week to Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic and to Yugoslavia's military chief, Gen. Zivota Panic, said the United States might help enforce a ban on Serbian flights over Bosnia, and would respond if U.N. troops in Bosnia were attacked.

"In the event of conflict in the Kosovo caused by Serbian action," it added, "the United States will be prepared to employ military force against the Serbians in the Kosovo and in Serbia proper."

Were warfare to spill into Kosovo, it could spark a wider Balkan war that could involve Albania, Macedonia, Bulgaria, Greece and Turkey.

Diplomatic efforts to end the violence continued. Boutros-Ghali met Monday with leaders of the former Yugoslav republics in Geneva and was scheduled to fly to Sarajevo on Thursday.

In the Bosnian capital, U.N. peacekeepers stopped 452 people trying to flee the besieged city overnight through a U.N.-controlled corridor at the airport, U.N. spokesman Mik Magnusson said.

U.N. officials said allowing people to leave through United Nations-controlled territory would indirectly contravene the organization's mandate in Bosnia because it might be seen as partial toward one of the factions.

Magnusson, of Iceland, said the United Nations had no choice but to prevent residents from using the airport as a safe corridor out of the city.

Most of the detained people were Sarajevans trying to flee the growing hunger and cold in the snow-bound city of 400,000. Others were smugglers, and 56 were soldiers.

Nineteen flights with humanitarian aid landed in Sarajevo on Monday and four U.N. land convoys brought food and other aid to Bosnia. But there were fears that much of the food was not reaching the needy.

U.N. spokesman Peter Kessler said he thought at least 70 percent of the food was diverted after reaching Sarajevo warehouses controlled by local officials. He did not elaborate.

The Bosnian government appears to be massing arms and soldiers on a mountain overlooking Sarajevo to prepare for an offensive, "possibly even to liberate Sarajevo," said U.N. spokesman Fred Eckhard.

Iraq warns retaliation for shooting

By Mona Ziade
Associated Press writer

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iraq on Monday vowed to retaliate for the downing of one of its military aircraft by U.S. F-16 fighters patrolling southern Iraq.

Many Arab analysts speculated that the two Iraqi MiGs that flew into the zone below the 32nd parallel were probing the allied air shield protecting Shiite Muslim rebels. Others suspected the MiGs veered south by mistake.

The remnants of Iraq's air force — an estimated 170-200 of the pre-Gulf War strength of 700 — is generally considered to be in poor condition because of U.N. economic sanctions imposed after Saddam's army invaded Kuwait in August 1990.

The Pentagon said the Iraqi pilots ignored verbal warnings to get out of the zone then "turned to confront the U.S. aircraft." Two F-16s shot down one of the intruders. The other fled.

The official Iraqi News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, quoted Baghdad's state-run Al-Jumhouriya daily as saying: "This insolent aggression ... was not justifiable because our aircraft attacked nobody."

An Iraqi military spokesman said the planes were on a routine patrol, and said Baghdad reserved the right to retaliate "in the appropriate manner and at the appropriate time."

The U.S. aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk is currently off Somalia, so the American F-16s probably flew out of Saudi Arabia, where about 80 American combat jets are deployed.

Pentagon offiials said Monday the Kitty Hawk would redeploy to the Persian Gulf in response to Iraqi attempts to penetrate the zone over southern Iraq.

Sunday's interception was the first known clash between Iraqi aircraft and allied fighters over the no-fly zone declared by President Bush in August to protect Shiite rebels from air attacks.

Israel admits 10 wrongly deported

JERUSALEM (AP) — Families of 415 Palestinians deported to a freezing no man's land appealed Monday to a U.N. envoy to help bring their kin home. The army, meanwhile, admitted 10 of the men were expelled by mistake.

There was no "legal decision pending to deport" the 10 Palestinians, but all are suspected of hostile activity and some could face trial and long prison terms if they return, the army statement said.

The announcement did not say when the men would be allowed home. The Association for Civil Rights in Israel demanded their immediate return.

The emotional meeting with about 50 relatives in the West Bank town of El Bireh capped a day in which U.N. envoy James Jonah heard Palestinian leaders demand the return of the deportees and a bereaved Israeli father plead for an end to violence.

Jonah told the Palestinian families he was dispatched to "ask the Israeli government to change its mind" and comply with a U.N. Security Council resolution demanding the 415 expelled men be returned from Lebanon.

But Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel said he told Jonah the deportees abetted fundamentalist violence, and that Israel would not reverse the decision to expel them.

Aysha Kiswani, a widow, told Jonah that her sons Mohammed, 28, and Amjad, 25, were among the Palestinians forced into exile by Israel in reprisal for the killings of six Israeli servicemen.

"The army took both of my sons, your excellency, while they were praying in the mosque," Ms. Kiswani said, tears streaming down her cheeks. "They are not troublemakers. Now I have no one to watch over me. I want them home."

The exiled Palestinians have been living in a tent camp in a barren strip between Israeli and Lebanese forces since Dec. 17. Lebanon refuses to admit them, saying it does not want to be a dumping ground for people expelled by Israel.

Both Lebanon and Israel have blocked aid agencies from providing supplies, and the men lack food and fuel.

On Monday, Israel rejected a French request to send relief through Israeli-held territory, and told Paris to go through Lebanon, said Oded Ben Ami, a Rabin spokesman.

Hanan Ashrawi, spokeswoman for the Palestinian delegation to the Mideast peace talks, said delegates told Jonah they believe the deportations were "very arbitrary and obviously collective punishment, without any evidence or charge."

"In a sense this proves our point," Mrs. Ashrawi said after the army statement about the 10 mistaken deportees.

As part of their battle over who is responsible for the expelled men, both governments have also said they will not let Jonah reach the Palestinians through territory under their control.

At the tent camp, dubbed the Jerusalem Camp for Rapid Return, expelled men said they did not expect Jonah's mediation to end their 12-day-old ordeal.

One of the Palestinians, wounded last week by gunfire when deportees tried to force their way back to Israeli-held territory, was in serious condition Monday.

Environmentalists sabotage whaling ship

REKEFJORD, Norway (AP) — An American environmentalist group sabotaged a whaling ship in the Arctic Circle, to protest Norway's decision to resume commercial whale hunting, the group said Monday.

Police said the 71-foot Nybraena, used in hunting whales for research, was found nearly full of water Sunday at its berth in the Lofoten Islands.

The Sea Shepherd Conservation Society, based in Los Angeles, said four of its activists, including group leader Paul Watson, sabotaged the ship on Saturday as "a Christmas gift to the whales of the North Atlantic."

"This should be a clear message to Norway that renegade whaling will not be tolerated," Watson said in a telephone interview from Amsterdam, Holland. "We are trying to deliver a message that we can find their boats, even in the winter."

The Nybraena's skipper, Jan Olav Olafsen, said pipes had been loosened by "people who are knowledgeable about ships and motors," allowing water into the ship, the news agency NTB reported.

Olafsen said the ship's electrical system was damaged, but that the vessel should be ready to sail in about two weeks.

Inspector Elisabeth Kaas of the Lofoten Police Department said no decision would be made on whether to file charges until an investigation is completed.

Norway gave up commercial hunting after the 1987 season under pressure from international protests and threats of boycotts. Earlier this year it announced the hunt would resume next year, defying a ban by the International Whaling Commission.

Norway says the whale hunt is a tradition essential to the economies of some coastal villages.

Watson said Sea Shepherd plans to confront Norwegian whaling ships at sea if the commercial hunt resumes.

After the sabotage in the small port village of Steine, police urged whale hunters to keep a close eye on their vessels. Some skippers decided to sleep aboard their ships, news reports said. The Lofoten Islands are located off northwest Norway.

Grand jury indicts Alabama governor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. Guy Hunt was indicted by a grand jury Monday on charges of taking $200,000 from his inaugural fund for personal use. He vowed to fight the charges and serve the remaining two years of his term.

The 13-count felony indictment included charges of theft, conspiracy and ethics violations. It said Hunt conspired with his inaugural fund accountant, Gene McKenzie, and two former aides.

The grand jury said it had returned four indictments, but the others weren't immediately available. A lawyer for McKenzie said the accountant also had been indicted, but didn't have details of the charges against him.

Hunt went to the Montgomery County Jail on Monday to be booked and fingerprinted, then was released on his own recognizance. He was the eighth state governor this century to be indicted while in office.

'I'm totally innocent. I'm going to fight. I'm going to serve out my term.'

— Gove Guy Hunt

"I'm totally innocent," he said as he left the jail. "I'm going to fight. I'm going to serve out my term."

Hunt became the first Republican elected governor of Alabama in more than a century when he was voted into office in 1986. He was narrowly re-elected to a second four-year term in 1990. State law prevents him from seeking a third consecutive term in 1994.

The indictment didn't specify what Hunt allegedly did with the $200,000, which was supposed to have been taken from the fund for his first inaugural in 1987.

Earlier, his press office issued a blistering statement calling the case a political concoction by a Democratic attorney general. But the statement later was withdrawn.

Hunt remains in office. Under Alabama law, public officials charged with crimes retain their offices until conviction.

Hunt's moneymaking preaching trips and other financial matters had been under scrutiny for months.

George Beck, one of the governor's attorneys, said Hunt would plead innocent at a Jan. 20 arraignment.

"We think there's some basic misunderstanding about the accounting for these funds," Beck said. "Hunt did not expend any funds without first getting the advice of an accountant and an attorney."

McKenzie, who reported to the jail with Hunt, did not comment.

Alabama Attorney General Jimmy Evans, who has been directing the grand jury for more than six months, also did not immediately comment.

The grand jury met initially in June to review whether Hunt violated Alabama's ethics law by using state aircraft on trips in which he accepted nearly $10,000 in offerings for his service as a Primitive Baptist preacher.

The grand jury was formed after the Alabama Ethics Commission voted in September 1991 that Hunt may have violated the ethics law with his preaching trips.

U.S. reduces funds for AIDS prevention programs

By Robert Pear
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The federal government has notified states that it is cutting money for AIDS prevention programs, and as a result many states are reducing services even as they face a rising demand.

State officials have protested to the Bush administration. Federal health officials said that they were considering the protests but that there was little they could do because Congress had limited the amounts available.

The federal officials say $129 million is available for grants to states for AIDS prevention next year, compared with $143.7 million this year and $159 million in 1991. They said the states were getting less money because Congress had earmarked more for private "community-based groups," but state officials disputed that reading of the law.

The dispute is developing now because federal health officials have just begun notifying states of how much money they can expect.

Dr. M. Joycelyn Elders of Arkansas, president of the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials, lamented what she described as a "shrinking federal commitment of resources to states" for preventing spread of the AIDS virus.

In the last two years, she said this month in a letter to Congress, requests for counseling and testing have increased more than 30 percent, but many states have been forced to operate with 20 percent less federal money, so there are often waiting lists for those services.

President-elect Bill Clinton has chosen Dr. Elders to be the next surgeon general of the United States. He has not commented directly on the cuts. But in a campaign speech in Jersey City, N.J., on Oct. 29, he said, "I want to increase federal funding for research, prevention and treatment" of AIDS, and he complained that "large-scale prevention efforts have been invisible, at least at the national level."

While Clinton, after his inauguration, could order adjustments in the prevention budget, he could not make substantial increases without asking Congress to appropriate new money for fighting AIDS.

Federal money accounts for the vast majority, at least 75 percent, of state spending for AIDS prevention programs, which include testing, counseling, education and partner notification.

Report: Walsh to seek Weinberger testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran-Contra prosecutor Lawrence Walsh is considering calling Caspar Weinberger before a federal grand jury to testify about others in the scandal, including President Bush, according to sources close to the investigation.

Walsh said Monday that he would return shortly to Washington, but refused to say what his plans are. Yet the sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that he is likely to call former Defense Secretary Weinberger and ex-CIA official Duane Clarridge as witnesses before a grand jury here.

Both men received Christmas Eve pardons from Bush for their conduct in arms-for-hostages deal.

Before the pardon, neither man was called as a witness because they were being investigated by the grand jury. They eventually were indicted and were awaiting trial when they were pardoned.

"There's nothing more that I can tell him, and this is just a form of harassment," Weinberger said of the prospect of being called before a grand jury.

Area citizens make wishes for new year

By Katherine Poteet
Staff writer

It's that time of year again.

Christmas and all the wrapping paper is gone and the new year is only a few days away. It's time for the resolutions, the "I'm going to . . ." list, the wishes for 1993.

Some wish on a international level, for world peace and harmony. Others are more personal, to lose weight or make peace with a family member.

There was no lack of 1993 wishes from a group of Midlanders polled Monday.

World strife was on the mind of Scott Baggett, salesman at Matney Shoebox.

"I want world peace and prosperity for everyone," he said.

His co-worker Tony Taylor wanted an end to world hunger.

"And, that Midland would get a lake," he added, laughing.

Peace and harmony was at the top of Lillian Gross's list.

"I wish everybody would respect everyone else," said the secretary at Security State Bank in Big Spring. "Nobody respects anybody anymore, especially children. A lot of problems would be

Hughes ready to grab reigns

By Myra Lee Salcedo

She was born in Odessa, but raised in Midland since kindergarten, so it seems only right that Reagan Hughes is representing both cities as well as various other counties as the reigning Miss West Texas.

The newly-crowned beauty queen also has earned the distinction of being the first woman from Midland to represent West Texas at the Miss Texas Pageant in 20 years, according to local pageant coordinator Michael Lamberti.

And to add another another star to her tiara, Reagan also won first place in the talent competition at the pageant singing "Think of Me" from the broadway musical "Phantom of the Opera."

"I'm excited about being the first in a longtime from Midland to do this," the 18-year-old said. "It all happened so fast."

The 1992 Lee High School graduate, who is a freshman majoring in music — vocal performance — at Baylor University, managed to come home to Midland on her Christmas break, participate in a wedding party and take top honors in the pageant.

"I was very nervous at the pageant. Competition was really tough. Lots of girls there had already been to the Miss Texas pageant," she said.

Nerves aside, Reagan is no stranger to the limelight. She was named Miss Lee High School, Homecoming Queen, Miss Permian Basin Fair and Downtown Lions Club Queen during her high school years.

Midlanders may remember her singing "I Can't Say No" as Ado Annie in LHS' musical production of "Oklahoma" last year.

Now Reagan will be working with fitness trainers, dieticians, image consultants and interview coaches to prepare for her shot at the Miss Texas crown in July. The Miss Texas Pageant in Fort Worth is the stepping stone or preliminary to the Miss America contest.

"I will be spending a lot of hours working out, watching my diet, and keeping up on current events for the interview," she said, noting that pageant judges attempt to test contestants' poise by switching from political to personal questions.

"They may ask about a Clinton policy and then: 'What color best describes you,' " Reagan said.

The judges are so attentive to poise that Reagan got second place in the interview competition partly for "holding onto

In-school nurses become cheap health care cure

■ Nurses want legislation to insure proper training for mushrooming health care epidemic.

HOUSTON (AP) — School nurses who say they are on the front line of providing primary medical care to children want the Texas Legislature to ensure they are properly trained for the job.

A survey by the Texas Association of School Nurses shows the number of children Texas school nurses see each day has more than doubled in the past two years.

"What now is occurring is the school nurse is the primary healthcare provider," said Shirley Schreiber, president of the Texas Association of School Nurses. She supervises 54 nurses in San Antonio's Northside Independent School District.

"It's overwhelming," said Donna Morin, a nurse at the Pasadena school district's Mae Smythe Elementary School.

The school nurses' group is lobbying the Legislature to require a registered nurse for every 1,000 students.

"As school budgets get tighter, school districts could decide tomorrow they can't afford registered nurses," Ms. Schreiber said. "And that's scary particularly when we're looking at the needs of children now."

Her association surveyed campuses representing about 60 percent of Texas' student population. It showed a jump in the number of students seen daily by school nurses from 198,980 in 1990 to 515,599 in 1992.

The strain on the nurses is exacerbated by federal laws that no longer let public schools cluster "medically fragile" children in one building. Consequently, more school nurses are handling such time-consuming daily procedures as catheterizations, gastric tube feedings and breathing treatments.

"My concern is we've got kids who have seizures all day long," said Jane Tustin, who oversees 39 nurses assigned to 59 campuses in the Lubbock schools. "Teachers end up being responsible because I don't have a nurse in every building."

School nurses aren't only being asked to play doctor, but also social worker as school budgets are tightened, nurses say.

"Sometimes we can pick up on it because they're a frequent clinic visitor, and you ask them what else is going on," Ms. Morin agreed. "Sometimes we find out the lights were turned off (at home), and they haven't had electricity. School nurses have always done an awful lot of social work."

Ms. Morin and Janet Bartlett, who serves elementary schools in El Paso's Ysleta school district, keep a supply of spare clothing and shoes for children who need more than a bandage.

Senator recognizes MADD efforts

Staff report

Representatives from U.S. Sen Phil Gramm's office and Mothers Against Drunk Driving will participate in a ceremony Wednesday to recognize local holiday drunk driving awareness campaigns.

Jennifer Crabtree, regional director of Gramm's office in Lubbock, and Judy Norwood and Louise McCollum of the Midland and Odessa MADD chapters will recognize area law enforcement for their "outstanding contributions to curb drunk driving during the Christmas and New Year's holiday."

The ceremony will begin at 9 a.m. at Midland International Airport.

Ms. Crabtree also will read a letter from Gramm praising "the coordinated efforts of government, law enforcement and citizen groups to keep Midland and Odessa streets free of drunk drivers."

"It is encouraging to see the team effort undertaken by government agencies, private industry and local communities to work towards Drunk Driving Awareness and the eradication of the preventable accidents caused by drunk drivers," Gramm said.

Joining Ms. Crabtree, Ms. Norwood and Ms. McCollum for the ceremony will be Midland Police Chief Richard Czech, Ector County Sheriff Bob Brookshire, Lt. L.D. Adams of the Texas Alcohol Beverage Commission and representatives of the Midland County Sheriff's Department and Department of Public Safety.

MADD reports that more than 1,249 people were killed and 33,856 were injured in Texas in alcohol-related accidents in 1991.

Under Texas law, first- and second-time DWI offenders can be fined up to $2,000 and jailed for up to two years. People who are convicted a third time can be fined up to $2,000 and sent to prison for as long as five years.

Artists decry cultural trade barriers

EL PASO (AP) — Arts groups and artists in El Paso want president-elect Bill Clinton to help ease the way for cross-border cultural exchanges which they say are hampered by red tape and bureaucracy.

The artists say simple exchanges of art or performing groups are often stymied by Mexican customs, the Internal Revenue Service and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"We're an international city. There should be a free flow of arts and artists," said Alejandrina Drew, director of the El Paso Arts Resources Department. "Right now, that's not at all how it is."

Drew has asked the Greater El Paso Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Arts committee to start a letter-writing campaign to persuade Clinton to include cultural exchange provisions in the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Rambling from holiday thoughts to unbridled lust

More rambling thoughts from a semi-tangled brain that somehow survived one more Christmas without drinking eggnog or eating sweet potatoes:

Ott

— Thanksgiving Day without turkey and dressing is a fiasco. But it's not the same with Christmas. For whatever reason, the so-called traditional meal just isn't as important.

— One of the nice things about being a lameduck president is that you can pardon your political cronies without worrying about the flack you are going to take from the news media.

— Such an action, however, can damage your place in history.

— My all-time favorite opening line to a rock song: "It's been 14 days since I don't know when."

— If you have a really warped sense of humor, you might want to watch "Mystery Science Theater 3000" Saturday mornings on the Comedy Channel.

— Here's a handy quote to remember when things start going bad for you: "Life is a foreign language; all men mispronounce it."

— Agatha Christie once said, "Every murderer is probably somebody's old friend."

— Maybe so, but can you imagine admitting out loud that Charlie Manson was your old childhood buddy?

— One of life's most helpless feelings is watching your commode overflow and realizing there is not a thing in the world you can do about it. For what it is worth, pressing down real hard on the toilet seat doesn't help.

— Best description I've ever heard for unbridled lust: "Full harmonal flight," as in, "They were clearly lovers in full harmonal flight."

— One reason the divorce rate is so high these days is because we unrealistically expect marriage to be one continuous "full harmonal flight."

— Sorry, folks, it just doesn't happen. That "flight" starts losing steam about six months after the wedding.

— It has always seemed hypocritical to me that everyone gets terribly concerned about feeding and housing the poor at Christmas time, but once the holiday season passes we forget all about them.

— You know "It's a Wonderful Life" has aired too many times when even Jimmy Stewart admits he is tired of it.

— I can't help but wonder if those couples who wear identical outfits in public realize just how silly they really look.

— I'm always amused when people say, "Gary, why don't you write a book?" I want to reply, "Oh, sure, I'll do that this afternoon, right after I find a cure for cancer."

— You know how some people just get on your nerves for no apparent reason? "Regis and Kathie Lee" are like that for me.

— No one asked, but if I had to choose between Jay Leno and David Letterman, I'd vote for Letterman.

— I know it's foolish, but for some reason I always get the feeling that a black-and-white movie has more "artistic value" — whatever that is — than one done in color.

— I know we'll probably never experience another full-fledged oil boom here, but it sure would be fun if we could have, say, a little mini-one where people would start throwing cash around again, flying to Vegas on the spur of the moment, tipping waitresses a hundred bucks on a $25 tab, that sort of thing. Hey, why not? There's nothing wrong with dreaming.

— It is always sad to read obituaries during the holiday season.

— Maybe I'm becoming a crusty old man, but I find public displays of affection — particularly among couples who have been married for more than six months — rather nauseating.

— It is in very poor taste to allow your dog to lick the face of a guest, especially if that guest happens to be me.

— Playing golf in late December is a sure-fire reminder that living in the southern half of the nation isn't all bad.

— And, finally, here's one more quote for the road: "To know is nothing at all; to imagine is everything."

At Wit's End

O Christmas tree, your time has come and gone

Bombeck

Editors: Erma Bombeck is taking a week of vacation. This column originally appeared on Dec. 27, 1979.)

Women! You say you hate crowds?

You say there are always kids underfoot and demanding husbands, and you never have the house to yourself?

Have I got a solution for you. Take down the Christmas tree.

You'll never know what isolation is until you stand in the middle of wall-to-wall pine needles and announce, "This tree has to go."

Your husband will return to work two days early. The children will return library books, visit a shut-in, get a paper route or sign up for a meat-packing plant tour. The dog will go outside and shiver for four hours.

It's the same every year. I stand it as long as I can. Then one day I walk across the floor and realize that a careless spark from my knees rubbing together could send the entire living room up in flames.

It's amazing how, in just one short week, a Christmas tree can go from a religious experience to the pits.

Those soft green branches that you buried your face in for the pine scent are now Acupuncture City. The needles that turned brown and fell to the carpet have gone to that big forest in the sky – taking the smoking vacuum cleaner with them.

The bird that chirped when you plugged it in, giving a lighthearted sound to Christmas, was choked to death by a mob during the first eight hours. What is left of it hangs limply from the branches, strangled by its own plug.

The cranberries and the popcorn have dropped collectively into the carpet, where they have taken root and will continue to reproduce long into summer.

The string of lights that your husband carefully placed on each bough now has no beginning or end. It has simply lost its plug and fused itself into one long strand.

Nothing comes off as easily as it went on. Even the little hooks on the bulbs cling to the branches while you are left with a hookless bulb in your hand.

Suddenly, there is a crunch underfoot. It's a pulverized candy cane. From out of the woodwork come five people all wanting a share of it.

They don't have to know it's five years old.

Energy department rules plutonium storage safe

AMARILLO (AP) — Storage of 20,000 plutonium weapon cores at the Pantex Plant for the next six to 10 years poses no "significant" environmental threat, according to an Energy Department environmental assessment released Monday.

Pantex, located about 17 miles northeast of Amarillo in Carson County, is the nation's primary assembly and disassembly plant for nuclear weapons.

Bush's hunting area becomes a popular spot

By Euardo Montes
Associated Press writer

BEEVILLE — President Bush is undoubtedly the area's most famous hunter, but he's not alone in choosing this South Texas town as his hunting grounds.

Hunters from throughout the state flood Beeville each fall and winter to search out the right prize of quail, dove or deer.

"We've always been a hub for South Texas because we have such a variety" of game, said Dewayne Bowman Jr., president of the Beeville Chamber of Commerce.

"They wear camouflage, and get up early, shoot all day and then come back," said Pete Patel, manager at the Esquire Motel.

Bush began his traditional post-Christmas quail hunt near Beeville Monday.

Bowman, whose office at his business, Dewayne Bowman Distributor Co., is decorated with two boar's heads and a deer head, said hunters generate a "very sizable and substantial amount of revenue" for the area.

Motels and restaurants are usually the beneficiaries of the influx, which begins with the opening of dove hunting season in September.

ARTS: Mexican sanctions stifle cultural exchange cultural trade, local artists and arts officials said in a story published in Sunday's El Paso Times.

For more than 20 years, Mexico has strictly governed the importing and exporting of art and artifacts to ensure Mexico's treasures are not lost to foreign collectors.

But the strict enforcement can cause problems.

Juarez Museum Director Jose Lizarraga pledged never to exhibit American artists works again after El Paso tried to loan him 15 paintings. Mexican customs forced him to wait four hours and pay $300 to a customs broker before it would allow the paintings to enter the country.

"They made me to pay for something we used to do ourselves," he said. "Now we simply can't afford to bring in artists from the United States."

Mexican customs spokesman Sergio Martinez said Lizarraga could have avoided the charge by consulting high-ranking customs officials. Martinez said a museum can avoid the costs with good-faith agreements with customs authorities.

On the U.S. side, the Immigration Service and the IRS also put up barriers, Drew said.

Any performer coming into the United States must be deemed an "extraordinary performer" by the Immigration Service. A presenter in the United States must prove there is no performer in the United States with the same skills as the foreign performer, Drew said.

The performer's application must be approved by the Immigration Service's Northern Service Center in Nebraska.

"The immigration papers have become tougher," Drew said. "You have to prove how great (the artists) are. There are some magnificent Mexican artists, though, who don't have the resumes to prove their greatness."

And performers also have to file earnings statements with the IRS, which can take up to 30 percent of the highest-paid performers' earnings.

solved if we just thought of our fellow man. And, that goes especially for my kids."

Her husband Wayne, a electrical technician at Texaco Inc. in Midland, wished for something on a more work-oriented level.

"I wish oil prices would go to $25 a barrel," he said.

A group of eighth-graders made wishes on a personal note.

"I wish me and my boyfriend, Trey Slawson, would go out for a long time," said Meghann Fairchild, a student at San Jacinto Junior High School.

Amanda Rios, a student at Fort Stockton Middle School in Fort Stockton, wished the same thing for her and her boyfriend, Brian Luna, and she also wanted to move to Midland.

"There is a lot more to do here than in Fort Stockton," she said.

"I wish I could go back to school with all my friends," said Amanda Nixon, who recently transfered from San Jacinto Junior High School to Goddard High School.

Both Ian Fleming and Jeff Lanning, salemen at Footaction, wished for cars and their co-worker Kerry Carroll, who is getting married in June, wished for a good marriage.

"I just want to get through my first year at Howard College okay," said Melissa Bennett, who will be a freshmen next year.

Lee High School senior DeeAnn Adams was hoping to finish high school and enter college next year.

"I'm joining the Coast Guard next year and I hope I make it through training," said Angie Williams, saleswoman at Jerry's Perfect Pets.

Her co-worker Michelle Miller said her wish was "to move from my apartment to a house."

Cecil Jamison, who was watching his wife's store, Silk Plus, made his 1993 wish simple.

"I want to win at Lotto," he said.

both sides of her chair before she relaxed and let go," her mother, Debbie, said.

Her father, Paul, said a lot of hard work goes into preparing for the interview, talent, evening gown and even the swimsuit competition.

He said contestants, when competing, "must be flawless."

"It was more pressure than I expected, and you only have that long to make an impression," Reagan said, snapping her fingers.

Britton & Company, image makers in Odessa, will travel with Reagan to Fort Worth to do her hair, nails and makeup. Janee's Evening Wear in Midland and Benjamin Studio of Photography in Odessa, have also supported Reagan.

Now she will need to raise about $10,000 to pay for coaching and training on her way to vie for "a good deal of scholarship money" and numerous prizes.

As Miss West Texas, she received a tiara, two plaques, and a cocktail ring with a crown-shaped setting designed for the pageant winner by Sonya Haney of Sonya's Gallery of Designer Jewelry and Fine Art in Odessa.

A former runner-up in the Miss West Texas pageant, Ms. Haney said she really put her heart into creating a unique ring. "When I designed the ring, I thought how I would have felt getting a ring like that."

The 44th annual Miss West Texas Pageant was presented Dec. 19, sponsored by the Odessa Jaycees at the Globe of the Great Southwest Theatre. Sixteen area contestants, ages 17-24, competed from cities, including Monahans, Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, San Angelo and Dumas.

With her eye on the prize, Reagan will return to college where she said she is succeeding academically thanks to "the best high school in the world."

And what will it be like returning to Baylor University as Miss West Texas? "My friends are all proud of me. They were praying for me. They'll be so excited. This is a wonderful time for me."

The family requests memorials be directed to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Inc., 1275 Lake Plaza Drive, Colorado Springs, Colo., 80906.

Allen receives kosher award

Movie director Woody Allen, who often found himself in a pickle during 1992, now will have a glass replica of the marinated cucumber.

Pickle Packers International (PPI), the trade association for North America's pickle and pickled pepper industry, annually bestows the Glass Pickle Award to a popular personality who got into the most prominent predicament of the year.

By an overwhelming margin of 2 to 1, Allen was selected by consumers and members of the press for being involved in "one of the most prolonged and publicized parental 'pickles' to ever hit the papers."

According to PPI spokesperson Jamie Kay, Allen was nominated for his "questionable judgment in following the script of his last movie 'Husbands and Wives,' a bit to closely. Since then, the situation has turned from not kosher to downright sour and is now a raging family feud. Woody Allen and Mia Farrow are up to their necks in pickle brine. Both have a bitter dill — uh, pill — to swallow."

In the close battle for second and third place, Sinead O'Connor pulled ahead of Dan Quayle for the first runner-up spot. Ms. O'Connor's act of tearing up a photo of the pope on a televised "Saturday Night Live" show garnered her the first runner-up award.

Police look for suspects

Staff report

Police are still looking for two suspects in an aggravated robbery early Monday morning.

According to a police report, officers were dispatched to the residence at 507 S. Tyler at 1:13 a.m. in reference to a robbery. Upon arrival, officers found six victims who said the suspects held them at gunpoint while taking an undetermined amount of money and jewelry. The suspects hit two of the victims in the head with a .25 caliber semi-automatic weapon. None of the victims were taken to the hospital.

The suspects also fired 30 rounds of bullets in the front yard, six rounds hitting the suspects' vehicle, a 1977 Oldsmobile. The suspects then fled on foot.

None of the victims' names were released.

The suspects are described as a black male, 24, 5 feet, 5 inches, 130 pounds, wearing a blue ski cap and black pants and a black male, 25 years of age.

Chaparral fulfills car care for 1993

With every New Year comes new resolutions to lead a more fulfilling life. Chaparral Wash & Lube takes the stress out of car maintenance with quick, carefree service at an affordable price - so for peace of mind this New Year, turn to Chaparral Wash & Lube.

According to Leon Jeffcoat, owner of Chaparral Wash & Lube, a regular maintenance schedule is good insurance against expensive car trouble in the future. Leon recommends a minimum maintenance schedule every 3,000 miles or every 3 months. The professionals at Chaparral Wash & Lube take the worries out of car care.

Drive up to the drive-through lube center and let dedicated employees like C.C. Banks check over your engine. With a smile on his face, C.C. (known as Chief) pops the hood of your car and begins a thorough examination. In just 10 minutes, C.C. has checked the battery, power steering, transmission and windshield-washer fluids. After replenishing your cars natural fluids, C.C. places your car in the hands of the car cleaning experts.

"After a car is washed, I go over it carefully. I touch up anything that may have been missed," said Guillermo Portillo, who's been with Chaparral since 1984. "We want to make our customers happy, and the way to do that is to do the best possible job."

A full-service car wash begins with a wash by gentle cleaners, chamois brush and soft water. Long-time dedicated employees are on hand to vacuum, hand dry and clean windows for the finishing touches. This full-service car wash is part of the oil change and lube package with prices starting at $19.50.

"For one low price, you can be assured of a quality oil change and car wash!" said Leon.

Enjoy the benefits of a spotless car by bringing it in weekly. With prices starting at just $8.95, the car care experts pay special attention to detail to keep your car in tip-top condition.

Long-time employees like Pete Franco and Gilbert Guiterrez add to the professional staff at Chaparral. "My responsibility is vacuuming the vehicle thoroughly. Once I'm done, I check everything again - ashtrays, under the seats and so on," Pete said.

Leon and his employees share a commitment to excellence. Their fine attention to detail has earned them a reputation as the best car wash and oil change service in Midland.

Let Chaparral Wash & Lube help keep your car running smooth and clean in 1993 without any hassles or worries. To start off the New Year with a thoroughly cleaned car, Chaparral also offers a complete detail service. A thorough cleaning under the hood, hand waxing, carpet and upholstery shampooing, interior dash and door treatment and tire treatment will make your car look new again. Prices for this ervice start at $59.95.

Stop in and fill up with Texaco gasoline and receive a discount toward the wash. Fill up with more than 18 gallons and the wash is free.

For fast, friendly service, visit the car care professionals at Chaparral Wash & Lube located at the corner of Big Spring and Scharbauer or call 682-8013 for more information.

Mark Zimmerman (front) has returned for the exceptional service at Chaparral Wash & Lube for 3 years. C.C. Banks (left) and Leon Jeffcoat, the owner, are commited to providing total car care to customers.

Label with Care

Comet Cleaners educates consumers on mislabeling

Nearly 60 percent of consumers have had their clothes damaged during laundering even when they followed the care label instructions, according to a 1988 survey by the International Fabricare Institute. Nearly 40 percent of the damaged garments were attributed to faulty care labels.

"Drycleaners have a responsibility to protect consumers from mislabeling," said Paul Graves, General Manager of Comet Cleaners. "Public awareness will help the consumer to buy clothing that will last a long time."

According to Paul, the IFI is a worldwide institution that tests fabrics and garments to help protect consumers from inferior products. The IFI recently presented their concerns about mislabeling to Congress.

"We will continue to work on the issue and educate the consumers," said the institute's Alice Laben.

An article by the IFI revealed that although the Federal Trade Commission established a Care Labeling Rule in 1972 requiring that all textile garments sold at retail in the U.S. carry a permanent care label, manufacturers do not always follow the rules. Further problems occur because a garment need only have instructions for one care method and need not warn against alternate methods.

"We're the professionals and we've been told how to take care of the garment, but the FTC requires that we follow the care instructions on the label," said Paul. "The mislabeling sometimes leads to failure and a damaged garment."

The IFI/FTC database for the month of Sept., 1992 contained 208 care label failure records. Domestic made garments comprised 41.8 percent and imported 51.4 percent.

Although consumers most often fault the cleaners in these circumstances, the IFI warns that if the care instructions are followed and the article fails to withstand the prescribed method, the resulting damage is the responsibility of the manufacturer and the garment should be returned to the retailer.

Another article revealed the top problems were: solvent-soluble dye, water soluble dye, pigment prints and polystyrene.

"We want the care back in care labels," is the theme for the IFI. As the IFI works with the FTC to actively enforce the Care Label Rule and take action against the manufacturers who repeatedly use faulty care labels, Comet Cleaners is working to help educate consumers.

Professionals like Paul, who has been in the business for 18 years, have the knowledge and expertise to provide the best care for your garments. "Comet Cleaners cares about their customers, and we'll do our best to provide quality drycleaning and laundry service," said Paul.

A Comet Cleaners professional is always onhand at any of the three locations at 2606 Midland Dr., 3108 W. Cuthbert or 2106 N. A to answer your concerns about the proper care of garments. Or call 689-9723 for further information.

DEAR ABBY

Couple's years of blessings become bounty for needy

DEAR ABBY: This letter is long overdue. George and I celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary last April and we used a suggestion we read in your column. We had a lovely party at the Chicago Corinthian Yacht Club, and our invitations read: "Your love and friendship is the only gift we need. However, if you wish to bring something, please make it an item of non-perishable food that will be donated to the needy."

Van Buren

Abby, it worked! We had a heavy carload to deliver. The people at the pantry were amazed at the quantity of food we brought in. We thank you for publishing that suggestion and hope you will continue your wonderful column for a long time. — JANE LEONARD, SKOKIE, ILL.

DEAR JANE: I'm pleased that you used my idea for your 50th wedding anniversary celebration. May you and George enjoy many more anniversaries.

When all is said and done, all we really have in the end is the pleasure we receive from that which we give away.

DEAR ABBY: During the holidays, blood banks around the country face the task of providing transfusions for the many hospital patients who depend on our community blood supply. The need is so great, and you have been such a stalwart friend, Abby, that we are asking you to remind your readers once again that the need for blood never takes a holiday.

Perhaps you can also remind your readers that giving blood is safe: You can't get AIDS or any other disease from giving blood! It's simple and usually takes 30 to 40 minutes from registration through post-donation juice and crackers. And, most important, giving blood saves lives!

Last year, more than 4 million Americans received blood transfusions. Sadly, only about 5 percent of those able to donate actually give blood. Here in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, we need more than 700 units of blood every day, including Christmas and New Year's!

Abby, Americans have so many blessings to celebrate. Why not celebrate the blessings of good health by sharing it? This holiday season, visit your local blood center and give the gift that lasts a lifetime: Give blood. – WILLIAM F. HELLER, CARTER BLOOD CENTER; WILLIAM V. MILLER, M.D., WADLEY BLOOD CENTER; HAROLD KAPLAN, M.D., PARKLAND BLOOD CENTER

DEAR ABBY: At a recent party, a large bowl of dip was served with vegetables cut into small "sticks" — carrots, cucumbers, etc. To my horror, I saw people proceed to dip half-eaten vegetable sticks back into the bowl of dip!

This struck me as being very unsanitary. Am I too fussy, or not? — REPULSED IN VERMONT

DEAR REPULSED: You are not too fussy — you're sensible. When serving a dip, a spoon should be provided in order to allow the guests to spoon out the dip onto small cocktail plates.

DEAR ABBY: The first thing I look for in my newspaper is the obituary column. When the cause of death is listed as cancer, I always wonder if the deceased had been a heavy smoker.

I wish that very important fact would be included in the write-up. Am I the only person who wishes it were? — LONG ISLANDER

DEAR LONG ISLANDER: I'm sure you're not. But unless the deceased had requested that it be included in his/her obituary, which is highly unlikely, that "very important fact" will remain a mystery.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet! Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet No. 1, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Jury pools to swell as drivers' licenses qualify

DALLAS (AP) — Hundreds of thousands more Texans become eligible for jury duty next month under a new state law that lets court officials get names from lists of licensed drivers rather than registered voters.

County clerks and the Secretary of State's office have scrambled to develop the broader lists. Many clerks have just sent out their first summons under the new law.

"I'm really anxious to see what effect it will have," Linda Bierman-Davis, Tarrant County Jury Administrator, said in Fort Worth Monday.

A preliminary estimate showed the number of potential Tarrant jurors increasing by about 120,000 from the current 550,000, she said.

Texas is the largest of about a dozen states to expand jury pools using drivers' licenses and IDs.

Jury administrators note the new lists may include some drivers under 18, who do not qualify for juries because of youth, and some over 65, who are frequently scratched off pool lists because they exercise a right not to serve.

Homeless learn job skills via shelter

HOUSTON (AP) — Maybelline Mallory, homeless since her house burned three years ago, wants more than a roof over her head. She wants an education.

And she and other residents are getting it at the Star of Hope Homeless Shelter.

Ms. Mallory, 27, spends at least eight hours a week at a computer studying math, reading and language assignments at the shelter's transitional living center. She hopes to get a general equivalency diploma that eventually will lead her to a training program for a job in hospital administration.

"A lot of times I'm not right," Ms. Mallory says of her homework. "But the computer shows me how to work the problem. You know, I like that."

Ms. Mallory, who dropped out of school in the 10th grade to care for her terminally ill parents, is among about 150 center residents, including adults and children, who use the in-house computers for learning and job training skills.

Kathy Tabor, Star of Hope's director of development, said the 2-year-old computer program is very successful, sending some of its students on to college or jobs. Besides the computers at the main shelter, Ms. Tabor said Star of Hope recently added a computer learning center at its women and family emergency shelter.

"I really got excited when I saw the Star of Hope use the computers for basic GED," said Sally Shipman, director of the Coalition for the Homeless of Houston-Harris County. "We are very enthusiastic about it and we have written letters of support for Star of Hope to receive grant funds."

Ms. Shipman said 70 percent of the homeless people do not have jobs. Computer training gives people a greater chance of getting jobs that pay more than minimum wage, she said. Without a higher salary, people usually return to their homeless status, she said.

"The biggest concern is that people who don't have the skills to read and write don't have the opportunity in life to be able to choose between work and welfare," said Margaret Doughty, executive director of the READ Commission.

She said the computer program is primary to breaking the cycle of poverty for shelter residents.

Todd Sepulveda, Star of Hope's computer coordinator, said the computer learning center operates six days a week for 32 hours. He said residents trying to obtain GEDs are required to work a certain number of hours on the computers. Other residents use the computers voluntarily for job training, school work and resumes.

Sepulveda said residents participating in the program are graded, evaluated and advanced by the computer. The computer focuses on a user's weaknesses and helps build confidence, he said. Meanwhile, the shelter charts each student's progress every week and conducts an awards banquet each month for those obtaining their diplomas.

Dallas retailer sells winning lotto ticket

AUSTIN (AP) — Tickets that matched all six winning numbers from Saturday's $5 million lotto drawing were sold in Dallas and the small Central Texas town of Granite Shoals, lottery officials said Monday.

The jackpot will be split between the two winners when the prize is claimed, officials said.

No one had brought a winning ticket to lottery headquarters in Austin by early Monday, they said.

The winning tickets were purchased at Cracker Barrel Grocery in Granite Shoals and Circle K No. 1645 on South Saint Augustine in Dallas, officials said.

The retailers will be eligible for a bonus equal to 1 percent of the jackpot amount paid to each winner, if the winning tickets are validated and the prize claimed.

The numbers drawn Saturday night from a field of 50 were: 5, 17, 21, 23, 26 and 38.

The numbers are listed in sequential order, but any combination wins.

In addition to the jackpot winner, there were 362 tickets sold with five of the six numbers, with each ticket worth $424. There were 16,206 tickets with four of six numbers, with each winning $34. And there were 186,476 tickets sold with three of six numbers, with each worth an automatic $3.

Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Wednesday night's game will be $2 million.

Rights groups plan to counter Klan rally

AUSTIN (AP) — When the Ku Klux Klan rallies in Austin next month to show opposition to the state's Martin Luther King Jr. holiday, they won't be alone, according to representatives from several civil rights groups.

"Many UT students are going to be there and hopefully give the KKK some hell," said Mark Adams, coordinator for the Martin Luther King Statue Foundation at the University of Texas at Austin.

"Too many of our holidays commemorate American heroes from previous centuries," said Adams, who predicted many foundation members would attend the counterdemonstration. "Martin Luther King is just as important a hero as we have today."

An "anti-Klan hot line" to provide information on planning counterdemonstrations will be set up by The People's Anti-Racist Coalition, officials said.

The Klan has protested the holiday each year for a decade in some states, said Loretta Ross, program director at the Center for Democratic Renewal in Atlanta.

The Jan. 16 Klan rally in Austin, announced last month, is expected to draw about 60 members who want the King holiday repealed in Texas.

The holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader was observed this year in Texas for the first time. The holiday will be observed on Jan. 18.

Michael Lowe, grand dragon of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, said he planned the rally "so that the American public will know that not everyone will take this idea of Martin Luther King as a hero."

King was "no more than a communist, an anarchist," said Lowe, who lives in Waco and heads the Klan in Texas. "He shouldn't be made a hero (just) because he's black."

It will be the first time the Klan has demonstrated against the King holiday in Texas. In 1983, a Klan march at the Capitol drew 3,000 protesters and resulted in 11 injuries and 13 arrests.

Lt. David Sandlin of the Capitol Police, said police are preparing for the rally.

Cowboys cut Curvin Richards

Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — If you lose two fumbles in the same quarter, you're a candidate for a quick cut from Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

Backup running back Curvin Richards knows all about it.

Richards, a 5-9, 195-pound 1991 fourth round draft pick, got the axe Monday, a day after he scored a touchdown and made a fumble that cost the Cowboys a touchdown in a 27-14 victory over Chicago.

"It hit the point where I had enough," Johnson said. "Curvin has a lot of talent but he hasn't shown he can be depended upon."

■ After finishing the 1992 regular season with a second straight rushing title as well as a new Cowboy single-season rushing mark, there's only one goal left for Emmitt Smith to conquer.

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

IRVING, Texas — Emmitt Smith's next challenge is a Super Bowl jinx. No NFL rushing leader has ever taken his team to the championship game.

"That doesn't bother me in the least," Smith said. "I'm not superstitious at all."

Smith earned his second consecutive NFL rushing title Sunday as the Dallas Cowboys beat the Chicago Bears 27-14 to wrap the winningest regular season in the club's 32-year history.

"I'd say 13 wins was pretty good," Smith said. "And to win the rushing title on top of it made the day very special."

Smith gained 131 yards to finish with a club season record 1,713 yards. Smith was 23 yards ahead of Pittsburgh's Barry Foster, who had a five-yard edge when the day began. Tony Dorsett set the old club season record of 1,646 yards in 1981.

Smith capped the day with a 31-yard touchdown run.

"There were some critics who said what I did last year was a fluke," Smith said. "I wanted to show it wasn't just luck."

Smith rushed for 160 yards against Atlanta on the last day of the season in 1991 to win his first rushing title in only his second season in the league.

"The rushing title will really mean something to me if we win the Super Bowl," Smith said. "But this is sweet. This wasn't luck. It showed lightning can strike twice in the same spot."

Montana returns; 49ers win

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Joe Montana came all the way back Monday night.

Playing in his first game in nearly two years, Montana led three fourth-quarter scoring drives, bringing the crowd to its feet with TD passes of 9 yards to Brent Jones and 8 yards to Amp Lee as the San Francisco 49ers beat the Detroit Lions 24-6.

Montana, sidelined since the start of last season because of a torn right elbow tendon, played the second half in relief of starter Steve Young. Both sides coped with a slippery field and rainy conditions during the game.

■ NFL Playoffs/8C

The game had no postseason implications because the 49ers (14-2) already had wrapped up a first-round bye and home-field advantage throughout the playoffs. Detroit, which reached the NFC Championship game last season, finished at 5-11.

The 49ers, who led only 7-6 after three periods, pushed the margin to four when Mike Cofer kicked a 37-yard field goal with 13:18 to play.

The 49ers began to put the game away after Don Griffin's interception of Andre Ware's pass gave San Francisco the ball at the Detroit 26.

Montana, who finished with 15 completions in 21 attempts for 126 yards, scrambled 16 yards for a first down. Lee gained a yard and Montana threw two incompletions before finding Jones over the middle with 11:21 remaining.

Montana took the 49ers 76 yards in nine plays for the third score of the period. He found Lee open over the middle with 1:15 remaining.

Montana, who led the 49ers to four Super Bowl wins in the 1980s, last played in a game that counted on Jan. 20, 1991, when the 49ers lost to the New York Giants in the NFC Championship.

He had played in an Aug. 3, 1991, exhibition against Chicago in Berlin and his elbow gave out a few days later.

He had surgery in October 1991 to reattach the tendon and two subsequent procedures to remove scar tissue.

Montana was greeted by a standing ovation and completed his first pass, a 4-yarder to Marc Logan. The completion put him over 35,000 passing yards for his career.

Montana was also greeted by an ovation an hour before the game, when he came out to warm up with Young and Steve Bono.

Like father, like son

In fine reggae tradition, Marley has a way with words

By Rick Warner
AP Football Writer

■ The Sugar Bowl

NEW ORLEANS — Like his famous father, Miami linebacker Rohan Marley knows how to use words as weapons.

Bob Marley, the late reggae musician, sang songs with powerful social messages. Rohan, a freshman reserve for the top-ranked Hurricanes, is a skilled trash-talker who is trying to rattle No. 2 Alabama as the teams prepare to meet for the national championship in the Sugar Bowl.

After spearheading a Bourbon Street confrontation with a group of Crimson Tide players on Saturday night, Marley continued his verbal assault Monday during an informal interview session at a downtown hotel.

Among other things, Marley said Miami would "kick ass" and "knock some heads off" in the Superdome on New Year's night. He also called Alabama a "one-dimensional team" and predicted that Miami would shut out the Tide.

"We're going to beat Alabama," Marley said. "And if you don't like it, you can go to hell."

Told about the remarks, Alabama running back Derrick Lassic smiled and said: "I guess he doesn't have very good manners. Children make statements like that."

However, Lassic said he wasn't surprised because Marley had made similar derogatory comments when more than a dozen players from both teams crossed paths about 9:30 p.m. Saturday outside Pat O'Brien's bar.

"He looked at (offensive tackle) Roosevelt Patterson and said, 'You must be an offensive lineman, you fat sloppy so-and-so,'" Lassic recalled. "He also kept telling me, 'Don't run my way. Don't you dare run my way.'"

According to Lassic, Miami receiver Lamar Thomas also was a major instigator.

"He was saying, 'You know me, you know me, everybody knows me. Who are you? ... It was like he was a king or God."

Lassic, the Tide's leading rusher, said Miami players started the incident.

"They were following us down the street and making these comments," he said. "Words were exchanged and soon we were going chest to chest and nose to nose. But nobody came close to taking a swing because we all knew what would happen then."

At one point, Lassic said, a few policemen came over to break up the shouting match. But, he said, the players moved up the street and continued their verbal volleying for at least an hour.

"(Alabama receiver) Prince Wimbley finally broke it up," Lassic said. "He grabbed us and said, 'Let's go. That's just their style.'"

Lassic told the story after Miami players had left for practice, so Marley and Thomas weren't immediately available for comment.

But Wimbley, who grew up in Miami, said he wasn't upset by the trash-talk that has long been part of the Hurricanes' bad-boy image.

Reeves shown the door in Denver

Former Denver coach Dan Reeves

Associated Press

DENVER — Dan Reeves, who led the Denver Broncos to three Super Bowls, was fired Monday, the day after the team lost its season finale and missed going to the playoffs.

Reeves, 48, announced his own firing at a news conference at Broncos headquarters, and owner Pat Bowlen met with reporters later.

"Life goes on," Reeves said.

The Broncos, who reached the AFC title game last season before losing 10-7 in Buffalo, ended their season 8-8 after a 42-20 loss at Kansas City that knocked them from the playoffs. They started 7-3 but lost four straight games after quarterback John Elway was injured.

Reeves led Denver to five first-place finishes and three second-place finishes in the AFC West Division. His Bronco teams also appeared in four AFC championship games and three Super Bowls, losing all three times.

Reeves said he and Bowlen met Monday to discuss Reeves' future, but Bowlen "had his mind made up what he wanted to do" and did not give Reeves any options except to leave Denver. His five-year contract would have expired Feb. 1.

"He wanted to run this football team in a different way. He didn't want to ask me to do it in a different way. And I respect that," Reeves said.

Bowlen said he decided Sunday night not to renew Reeves' contract. He had struggled for months with the decision, but finally decided he could not be more active in running the Broncos with Reeves as coach. His decision had nothing to do with Reeves' performance as coach.

Cotton Bowl loses luster

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

Welcome to the rootin', tootin' Cotton Bowl, where, if the neon lights are blinking just a little bit dimmer than they ought to be, it's entirely understandable.

First, the folks from Dallas inherited an undefeated team when Texas A&M cruised in as Southwest Conference champion at 12-0. That's good.

The problem is there are two other undefeated teams — Miami and Alabama — sitting in front of the Aggies in the poll. That's bad. And they happen to be playing each other in the

REEVES: Coach hoped to retire in seven years

(From 1C)

"I think when you think about that, if I would have agreed to renew Dan's contract, a year from now we would have both been miserable and at each other's throats," he said. "I wish him well. I am very sad to see him go. ... However, I want to take it (the club) in a little different direction."

Bowlen said he would begin looking for a new coach when he goes to the NFL labor meetings, but did not mention the names of any possible successors. He said he expected members of the Broncos coaching staff to apply. Reeves said defensive coordinator Wade Phillips would be a good candidate and former offensive cordinator Mike Shanahan's name also has surfaced.

Shanahan is known to be a favorite of Elway.

Bowlen's decision to fire Reeves did not immediately extend to his assistant coaches. Bowlen said Reeves' successor probably would bring along his own staff, meaning some of the present assistants would lose their jobs, but he hoped others could remain.

Monday's announcement followed weeks of speculation about Reeves' future with the club.

At the beginning of this season, Reeves asked Bowlen to forego any contract negotiations after training camp began, so that he could concentrate on his coaching duties.

Since then, reports of a Reeves-Bowlen rift took on a life of their own, fueling speculation about a confrontation between the men at season's end.

Reeves had said he wanted to negotiate one more contract with Denver and then retire at age 55. Reeves earned about $950,000 during the last year of his present contract and with a 110-73-1 regular season record was the fourth-winningest active coach. Only Don Shula of Miami, Chuck Knox of the Los Angeles Rams and Washington's Joe Gibbs own better records.

But Bowlen and Reeves had disagreed about how the organization should be run, clashing over whether Reeves had too much control.

In addition to serving as head coach, Reeves was offensive coordinator and team vice president, with power over virtually all player personnel decisions.

Elway last week even had questioned whether Reeves was trying to do too much and suggested that he needed help.

Reeves expressed gratitude Monday for being able to serve as Denver's head coach for 12 years.

"I've been very lucky to be able to do what I do for a living, which is coach football, and do it in a place where you really like to live," Reeves said.

Reeves said he met with the team Monday to announce his departure.

"I told them regardless if I'm here or someone else is here, I want them to succeed," he said. "In my opinion, we have a lot of good players here. We have some great players here."

Just last year, Reeves was named AFC Coach of the Year for guiding Denver to a 12-4 season, the AFC West title and a berth in the AFC title game.

Reeves has played or coached in a record eight Super Bowls, including five appearances as a player and coach for the Dallas Cowboys, where he was a walk-on free-agent running back from South Carolina.

Oilers face rematch with Buffalo Sunday

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Oilers will find no strangers in the AFC playoffs, which begin for them at Buffalo Sunday against the same Bills team they just beat.

The Oilers (10-6) have played all five of the other AFC Conference playoffs teams. They've beaten Buffalo (11-5), Kansas City (10-6) and San Diego (11-5), lost twice to Pittsburgh (11-5) and once to Miami (11-5).

"It's not a lineup that should have any of the six teams intimidated by the others," Coach Jack Pardee said Monday.

"I think it's a wide open race at this point," Pardee said. "We've seen everyone in the playoffs and beaten them or had a chance to beat them. I don't think anyone is in awe of anyone.

"It's going to be a matter of who is hot in the playoffs."

The Oilers took advantage of the loss of quarterback Jim Kelly, who suffered a strained right knee ligament, for a 27-3 victory. They defeated Kansas City 23-20 in overtime and shut out San Diego 27-0 before the Chargers caught fire to win the AFC Western Division title.

Pardee, who has seen his team swoon several teams before making the playoffs for the sixth straight year, left no doubt he thinks his team is on the rise.

They rallied in the final three minutes two weeks ago to beat Cleveland after trailing the entire game and they took advantage of Buffalo's loss of quarterback Jim Kelly for Sunday night's victory.

The Oilers also got quarterback Warren Moon back on the field for three series in Sunday's game, his first action since receiving a broken arm Nov. 15 against Minnesota.

Moon completed six of 12 passes for 80 yards and a 17-yard touchdown pass to Haywood Jeffires in his second quarter cameo appearance.

Pardee said he had not decided if Moon or backup Cody Carlson would start against Buffalo.

"We'll know what we're going to do and hope that no one else will," Pardee said.

COTTON: Once again, Dallas bowl an also-ran

(From 1C)

Sugar Bowl. That's worse.

Then, the organizers ignored the obvious matchup of No. 4 A&M against No. 3 Florida State and went for a dash of football tradition, matching the Aggies against Headlock Holtz and No. 5 Notre Dame.

This seemed like a swell idea, Notre Dame being Notre Dame. There were, however, some folks who were not exactly thrilled with the pairing. Among them were the proprietors of the college football coalition, created to guarantee, wherever it could, the best possible bowl pairings.

The Cotton pickers had a chance for No. 3 against No. 4. They chose instead, No. 4 against No. 5 — an arithmetical anomaly.

"If we could not get 1 vs. 2, then 3 vs. 4 was not that important to us," Cotton Bowl president Bob Smith explained.

It was, though, to A&M. There is, you see, this thing about rankings.

"We wanted to play the highest-ranked team, so from that standpoint, we're disappointed," coach R.C. Slocum said when the pairing was announced.

If you're No. 4 and you beat No. 3 on New Year's Day, maybe you move up. If you're No. 4 and you beat No. 5 on New Year's Day, people shrug and say you were supposed to do that. "We hope voters keep an open mind until all the games are played on Jan. 1," Slocum said.

Jim "Hoss" Brock, team selection chairman and the man in charge of Cotton Bowl blarny, shook his head at the controversy. "This is the first time in history anybody had to defend taking a team like Notre Dame," he said.

Then there is the little matter of four A&M players, including star running back Greg Hill, being suspended for the game. It seems they may have been paid for their summer jobs by an excessively exhuberant booster using government funds, clearly an NCAA no-no.

This nasty bit of business leaves the Aggies about 1,339 yards and 15 touchdowns — Hill's production — short of full strength for Notre Dame. Also suspended were offensive linemen James Brooks and Darius Smith, and receiver Percy Singleton.

Hammerlock Holtz says it won't mean a thing, that the other Aggies will pick up the slack. You know, sort of like win one for the Hiller, or something like that.

Anyway, all this leaves the Cotton Bowl in something of an also-ran position among the traditional New Year's Day games.

The Sugar Bowl has No. 1 Miami and No. 2 Alabama for the national championship. The Orange Bowl has Florida State, the No. 3 team in the nation. The Rose Bowl has all those pretty flowers, not to mention Michigan and Washington.

And the Cotton Bowl has Full Nelson Holtz and the four-short Aggies.

SUGAR: Marley outbursts are expected

(From 1C)

"They're always cocky and flamboyant," he said. "They talk all the time. They talk before the game, they talk during the game and they talk after the game. But you can't let it bother you because that's what they want."

Miami coach Dennis Erickson has tried to soften the Hurricanes' outlaw image, but Marley's outbursts won't help. His comments are certain to trigger stories about past problems, including the wearing of combat fatigues at the 1987 Fiesta Bowl and the 16-penalty performance at the 1991 Cotton Bowl.

Not to mention another Bourbon Street run-in between Miami and Alabama players before the 1990 Sugar Bowl. Back then, the players razzed each other by chanting the fight songs of their opponent's arch-rivals.

"People have never understood us," Miami defensive end Kevin Patrick said. "They always want to put us down, call us criminals and outlaws and hotdogs. They just have to realize that's the way we play football.

"We've never done anything to disgrace ourselves or the university. We just want to win football games and have some fun."

SMITH: RB feels Cowboys '10 times better' than '92

(From 1C)

wait for an opponent to be determined.

Dallas will host an NFL playoff game for the first time since 1977 on either Saturday Jan. 9 or Sunday Jan. 10.

The Cowboys will meet either Minnesota or the Philadelphia-New Orleans winner should Washington beat the Vikings.

Dallas finished the season with the NFL's top-rated defense and with his victory over Chicago, coach Jimmy Johnson got to .500 with a 33-33 record.

The only negative note was a sloppy finish against the Bears and a sprained knee suffered by tight end Alfredo Roberts that was expected to keep him out of the playoffs.

Smith said one of the reasons he believes the Cowboys can get into the Super Bowl is "we're 10 times better a team than we were last year."

Smith added, "We've jelled and believe in each other. Also, we've got the top defense in football. They keep getting us the ball so we can get into the flow of our offense."

When Smith won the rushing title last year, he bought his offensive line Rolex watches.

Not this time.

"That was a pretty expensive hit," Smith said. "But I'll get 'em something nice you can bet on that."

COWBOYS: Johnson indicates he couldn't count on Richards

by Chris Zorich and returned 42 yards for Bears' touchdown.

Tommie Agee will back up Emmitt Smith for the Cowboys playoff game on Jan. 10 in Texas Stadium. The Cowboys are expected to activate Derrick Gainer, a former Los Angeles Raider from Florida A&M off their practice squad. Gainer was a free agent.

The Cowboys also are looking for another tight end. Alfredo Roberts suffered a knee ligament tear in Sunday's victory and will miss the playoffs.

Pat Evans could be activated off the practice team although Johnson said he plans to look at several free agents.

Johnson said of Richards: "I want to go into the playoffs with people I can count on. I can count on Tommie Agee. I think Curvin understood. He can play in this league. My advice to him on his next stop would be to concentrate better and take a more serious approach to the game."

Richards gained 22 yards on 13 carries and scored on a 3-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter Sunday.

Richards lost three fumbles for the season in 49 carries and three pass receptions.

Lady Red Raiders down OU, 93-56

MIAMI (AP) — Sheryl Swoopes scored 11 straight points to break a first-half tie and finished with a game-high 24 to lead Texas Tech to a 93-56 win Monday over Oklahoma in the opening game of the Miami Holiday Classic.

The game was tied four times, and the Sooners led at one point by eight points. But a 21-point binge by the Lady Raiders spanning halftime put the game away.

No. 11 Texas Tech, 6-1, was ahead 37-30 at the half on the strength of Swoopes' showing. Cynthia Clinger, who finished with 17, collected seven points in the run. Krista Kirkland, ended the run with a 3-pointer and finished with 14.

Oklahoma, 2-3, was led by Sharee Mitchum with 13 and Melissa Ritchie with 11.

HOUSTON — Houston's David Diaz hit a free throw with three seconds left to lift the Cougars over the Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks 76-75 at Hofheinz Pavilion.

Houston, 5-1, rallied from an 11-point deficit in the first half as sophomore forward Jessie Drain had a career-high 19 points along with eight of his 10 rebounds in the second half. Junior guard Anthony Goldwire had 20 points, while Charles Outlaw had 10 points, 13 rebounds and four blocks. Derrick Smith added 14 points and six rebounds.

With 41 seconds left, Diaz had two freethrows, and Houston led 75-72 before Nathan Randle shot a tying 3-pointer with 19 seconds to go.

Randle had 21 of his game-high 26 points in the second half. Randle also had 10 rebounds.

Randle's freethrow at 2:02 gave Stephen F. Austin, 4-3, a 72-68 advantage. However, Goldwire exploded on two fast breaks for layups, putting Houston back on top, 73-72, with 1:32 to play.

Drain gave the Cougars their first lead since a 19-17 edge with 9:15 left in the first half when he hit a follow shot with 8:20 remaining in the game, putting Houston ahead 59-58.

■ SWC Roundup

St. Joseph's 64, Texas A&M 50

NEW ORLEANS — Mark Bass made 3-point shots that started and ended an 18-2 run in the middle of the game, and St. Joseph's went on to beat Texas A&M in the first round of the Sugar Bowl tournament.

Bass, a 5-foot-9 freshman, finished with 11 points. He made 3 of 4 3-pointers, and is 11 of 20 from long range this season.

The victory was the 100th for St. Joe's coach John Griffin. He coached four years at Siena and is in third season with the Hawks.

SMU 106, San Diego 71

DALLAS — Mike Wilson scored 23 points and Southern Methodist surpassed the 100-point mark for the third time this season in a non-conference rout of San Diego.

Gerald Lewis added 16 points and Tim Mason contributed 14, including the 1,000th of his college career, as the Mustangs improved to 4-2. Mason became the 23rd player in Southern Methodist history to surpass 1,000 points.

Pitt upsets No. 12 UCLA, 91-79

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Chris McNeal broke out of a scoring slump with 26 points and Pittsburgh used its superior quickness to offset UCLA's decided height advantage to upset the No. 12 Bruins, 91-79.

McNeal, the Panthers' leading returning scorer, had only two points in Pitt's previous two games and had seen his playing time cut substantially by coach Paul Evans.

Jerry McCullough, who finished with 19 points, had 13 in the first half and McNeal had 10 as Pitt (7-1) successfully enticed the bigger, slower Bruins into a running game to grab leads of 9-3, 15-7 and 18-9. The Panthers had double-digit leads as early as 26-15 with 10 minutes left in the half.

■ Top 25 Roundup

UCLA (7-2) was in foul trouble throughout the game, eventually losing both its big men, Richard Petruska and Jiri Zidek, late in the second half. Tyus Edney had 20 points, Shon Tarver had 15 and Petruska and Zidek had 14 each for the Bruins.

No. 3 Kentucky 89, Rutgers 67

NEW YORK — Jamal Mashburn, Rodrick Rhodes and Rick Pitino each had a successful homecoming at Madison Square Garden as Kentucky beat Rutgers in the opening game of the ECAC Holiday Festival.

Mashburn, a junior forward who grew up in Harlem and played high school ball in the Bronx, had 22 points, five rebounds and five steals in his first college game in New York City. Rhodes, a freshman from Jersey City, N.J., added 15 points in just 24 minutes.

Pitino got a victory in his first game at the Garden since he left as coach of the New York Knicks after the 1988-89 season.

No. 4 Indiana 85, Colorado 65

INDIANAPOLIS — Calbert Chaeney scored 20 points and Alan Henderson had 19 in leading No. 4 Indiana to an easy victory over Colorado in the finals of the Hoosier Classic.

The Hoosiers (11-1) went on an 11-0 run to lead 13-4 early in the first half and cruised to a 49-30 halftime lead. Damon Bailey led the first-half charge, getting 15 of his 17 points, including four 3-pointers.

No. 8 Iowa 91, Texas Southern 70

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Acie Earl set an Iowa record with nine steals as the No. 8 Hawkeyes used a big second half to beat Texas Southern.

Earl and Val Barnes had 15 points and James Winters and Chris Street scored 13 apiece, with Street adding 16 rebounds for Iowa (9-0).

Iowa, which breezed to the title in last week's San Juan Shootout, looked sluggish against the Tigers (1-6). It was late in the game before the Hawkeyes finally wore down Texas Southern. In the meantime, both teams displayed plenty of sloppy play.

No. 9 Arkansas 93, Coastal Carolina 74

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Darrell Hawkins scored seven points during a 19-2 run that helped ninth-ranked Arkansas defeat Coastal Carolina.

The 3½-minute run began with less than eight minutes left in the half and the score tied 26-26. The Razorbacks (8-0) were up 24 with six minutes to play, but the Chanticleers (4-3) closed to within 11 twice in the final 2½ minutes.

Corey Beck made two free throws and Robert Shepherd, who had seven steals, scored three straight baskets in the final minute as the Razorbacks pulled away. Shepherd had 15 points.

No. 10 Georgetown 78, Hawaii Pacific 65

IRVINE, Calif. — Freshman center Othella Harrington had 26 points and 11 rebounds as the Georgetown Hoyas rallied from an early deficit to overpower the Sea Warriors in a first-round game of the Disneyland Freedom Bowl Classic.

Georgetown will face the winner of Monday night's second game between host UC Irvine and Southern California College in Wednesday night's championship game.

No. 18 Florida St. 109, Maryland-Baltimore Co. 80

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Sam Cassell scored 31 points and No. 18 Florida State gave coach Pat Kennedy his 250th career win with a victory over Maryland-Baltimore County.

The Seminoles (7-3) of the Atlantic Coast Conference played without their second-leading scorer, Doug Edwards, who dislocated a finger in pre-game warmups and could be out for up to two weeks.

No. 22 Arizona 92, Delaware St. 52

TUCSON, Ariz. — Chris Mills pumped in a half-dozen 3-pointers before halftime and No. 22 Arizona demolished Delaware State to advance to the finals of the Fiesta Bowl Classic.

The Wildcats (3-2) of the Pacific-10 have won each of their seven previous Fiesta tournaments and will face West Virginia (4-2) in the finals on Wednesday night.

No. 23 Connecticut 99, Hartford 66

HARTFORD, Conn. — Scott Burrell scored 28 points, matching his career high, as No. 23 Connecticut defeated Hartford in the first round of the Connecticut Mutual Classic.

The Huskies (5-1) will play the winner of the Towston State-Bridgeport game for the championship on Tuesday night.

No. 24 Vanderbilt 95, Air Force 50

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Billy McCaffrey scored 21 points as No. 24 Vanderbilt routed Air Force in the Music City Invitational for the Commodores' eighth straight victory.

For the third straight week, the top eight teams in the college basketball poll remained the same. That run is over.

Duke, Kansas, Kentucky, Indiana, North Carolina, Michigan, Seton Hall and Iowa held places 1-8 Monday just as in the previous two weeks. With Kansas, North Carolina and Michigan playing together this week in the Rainbow Classic, and Kentucky and Indiana meeting on Sunday at Louisville, there will be changes next week.

Two-time defending national champion Duke (7-0), which took over the No. 1 spot the first weekend of the month after knocking off then-No. 1 Michigan, received 47 first-place votes and 1,607 points from a nationwide panel of writers and broadcasters. Kansas (8-0) had the other 18 No. 1 votes and 1,569 points.

The only change in the Top Ten order was directly related to the only team change in the poll.

Oklahoma (7-1) dropped from ninth to 15th after a first-round loss in the Maui Invitational to Brigham Young, the newest member of the Top 25.

Arkansas and Georgetown each moved up one spot from last week to round out the Top Ten.

UCLA led the Second Ten and was followed by Syracuse, Purdue, Georgia Tech, Oklahoma, UNLV, Michigan State, Florida State, California and Nebraska.

The final five ranked teams were Cincinnati, Arizona, Connecticut, Vanderbilt and Brigham Young.

Duke won the Maui Invitational by beating Brigham Young (7-2) in the championship game, but the Cougars made their mark with the buzzer-beating win over Oklahoma.

Prices slump

NEW YORK — Crude oil prices settled lower Tuesday in light post-holiday trading.

West Texas Intermediate for February delivery dropped 13 cents to $19.82 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

It was the first trading session in New York since Wednesday. The market was closed on Christmas Eve and Christmas Day.

There was no news to influence trading. Crude oil futures fell late in the day in technically driven selling. Prices had been higher earlier until several traders began selling contracts.

Heating oil futures contracts fell sharply after a rally last week. The contract for January delivery of home heating oil fell 1.01 cents to 57.84 cents, erasing about half the gain from Wednesday.

Natural gas prices were lower, with February-delivery contracts falling 13.1 cents at $1.735. That erased a rally last Wednesday.

T-bills rise

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities rose in Monday's auction to the highest level in two weeks.

The Treasury Department sold $12.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.22 percent, up from 3.16 percent last week. Another $12.4 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.38 percent, up from 3.32 percent last week.

The three-month bill rate was the highest since they sold for 3.26 percent on Dec. 14. The six-month bill rate was the highest since they averaged 3.43 percent, also on Dec. 14.

Dollar gains

NEW YORK — The dollar rose against major currencies Monday, boosted by escalating tension in the Middle East. The light holiday-week trading exaggerated the size of the gain.

In New York, the dollar fetched 124.93 yen, up from 123.90 yen late Thursday.

Stocks rise

NEW YORK — The stock market finished mixed Monday following a late climb among blue chip issues.

After rising 12.70 points in an abbreviated Christmas Eve session, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 7.02 Monday to 3,333.26.

Declining issues narrowly outnumbered gainers by 6 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 992 up, 817 down and 587 unchanged.

The NYSE's composite index fell 0.22 to 241.01.

Chevron to launch Tengiz project April 1

■ Project still faces monumental challenges, but it also offers unusual opportunity because of sheer volume of oil available, official says.

By Lawrence M. Fisher
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Chevron Corp. said Monday that it expected to begin full-scale operations on April 1 in its joint venture with the Republic of Kazakhstan to develop the immense Tengiz and Korolev oil fields on the northeastern Caspian Sea coast.

Tengiz is regarded as one of the world's top 10 fields, with reserves likely to be as much as 35 billion barrels.

After two years of often tortuous negotiations, Chevron and Kazakhstan agreed in May to a 50-50 joint venture to develop the oil fields, the largest such arrangement to date between a large republic of the Commonwealth of Independent States and a leading multinational oil company.

The project envisions potential peak production of more than 700,000 barrels a day by 2010. Current Tengiz production is 65,000 barrels a day.

Analysts said that while the project's long-term potential was enormous it still faced many significant challenges. The Caspian Sea, slushy, muddy and shallow, is not navigable near the oil fields, so oil produced at Tengiz and Korolev will have to be moved through pipelines across neighboring republics or through Iran.

Moreover, the oil has a very high sulfur content, making its refinement costly and difficult. And the existing infrastructure, including roads, pipelines and utilities, needs major upgrading, they say.

"This project has a lot of problems associated with it," said William L. Randol, an analyst with Salomon Brothers. "Until someone figures out how to pipeline this stuff to a warm-water port I just can't get that excited about it."

"The internal Russian price is $3 a barrel," he added, "so this is not a real money-making proposition until you tap the export market."

Espy Price, head of Chevron Overseas Petroleum Inc.'s Commonwealth of Independent States business unit, said the project still faced monumental challenges but it also offered an unusual opportunity because of the sheer volume of oil available.

"There's lots of it there, and this is an area where Chevron can bring some expertise and benefits to the joint venture," he said.

Initially, the joint venture will exchange crude oil from Tengiz for other oil from the former Soviet Union's common pipeline system so the partners can sell it on the international market. But future volumes are expected to exceed that system's capacity, requiring an additional pipeline.

The joint venture's investments in field development and processing plants are estimated to be about $20 billion over the life of the project — estimated to be about 40 years —, with an initial investment of $1.5 billion over the first three years. As part of its involvement in the development of the joint venture, Chevron will assist Kazakhstan with improving or rebuilding roads, schools and hospitals.

"This is one of those projects that can really transform a company, even one the size of Chevron, down the road," said Constantine Fliakos, an analyst with Merrill Lynch. "The rewards are potentially very high. It's really going to be some kind of a challenge."

Poll: American optimism rises, Japanese see confidence lag

By David E. Sanger
N.Y. Times News Service

TOKYO — The Japanese are losing confidence that their nation will be the dominant economic power in the next century, while Americans see their own economy as gaining strength and view Japan as less of a long-term economic threat than before.

In a poll conducted in both countries this month by The New York Times, CBS News and the Tokyo Broadcasting System, 45 percent of Americans said the United States would be "the No. 1 economic power in the world" in the 21st century while 30 percent said Japan would be.

That is a striking reversal from only a year ago, when 30 percent of Americans said the United States would be the world's leading economy and half said Japan would be.

While 44 percent of Japanese still say their country will dominate the world economy in the next century, their certainty appears to be ebbing. Only a year ago 53 percent expressed that opinion.

"It is a very quick turnaround in perceptions," Masaru Yoshitomi, a leading Japanese economist and an adviser to the country's Economic Planning Agency said Monday.

"People's impressions of the power of the Japanese economy were inflated by the bubble economy," he said, using the term Japanese often invoke to describe the country's tremendous expansion in the late 1980s, before it began to burst two years ago. "More of a sense of reality is setting in."

Plummeting corporate profits, growing bankruptcies and the beginnings of job layoffs in Japan — all unaccustomed events in the country's remarkable postwar growth — have left the Japanese pessimistic about their country's prospects for the next few years.

In the poll, 71 percent of Japanese said the state of their economy was "fairly bad" or "very bad."

But old perceptions abroad die hard. More than half of the Americans polled rated the state of the Japanese economy "fairly good" or "very good," evidence that the two countries measure their economic performances by very different yardsticks.

MCA, CBS tie novel ads to 'Northern Exposure'

Bu Stuart Elliott
N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — Alaska has always been known for attracting pioneers. Now, a venture involving two entertainment giants is using make-believe Alaskans in pioneering an unusual approach to advertising and marketing.

For five weeks in November and December, MCA Inc. and CBS Inc. co-sponsored a joint promotion of "Northern Exposure," the hit television series set in the mythical town of Cicely, Alaska, whose picaresque characters evoke comparisons to the residents of Brigadoon, Twin Peaks and Frostbite Falls.

The comedy-drama, 14th in the Nielsen ratings so far in the 1992-93 season, is produced by MCA's Universal Television subsidiary and broadcast by CBS at 9 p.m. CST Mondays.

As part of the promotion, CBS produced and ran, either before or after the program and without charge to MCA, a 20-second commercial hawking sweatshirts bearing the "Northern Exposure" logo and the moose that wanders the streets of Cicely in the opening credits. (A commercial appearing during the series, at a more conventional 30-second length, would usually cost an advertiser about $150,000.)

For every sweatshirt sold, MCA was to donate $1 of the $24.95 price to the World Wildlife Fund. Yet the implications of the promotion extend beyond sensitivities to moose and other animals. The commercials are believed to represent the first move into so-called relationship marketing by a network, making air time available for peddling series-related products marketed by one of its major program suppliers.

"When you develop a TV show like 'Northern Exposure,' it can be viewed as a brand, with its own target audiences," said Elizabeth Gelfand, vice president of marketing at MCA/Universal Merchandising in Universal City, Calif.

The promotion is the latest in a skein of advertising and marketing efforts inspired by the series.

MCA is also selling "Northern Exposure" merchandise through retail outlets like JCPenney department stores. And the actors Rob Morrow, John Corbett and Janine Turner, who portray Cicely denizens Joel, Chris and Maggie, respectively, have participated in ads for marketers like the Gap, Chevrolet and Isuzu.

"What we try to do," Ms. Gelfand said, "is manage the brand over the life of the property — the broadcasts of the TV show — and beyond."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Private bank merger won't affect CD rates

By Bill Doyle

Q: A relatively short time ago, we obtained a three-year, $90,000 certificate of deposit at a local bank. About a month later, that bank was purchased by a larger bank.

What effect will that have on our CD's interest?

Will it be treated the same as when an insolvent bank is taken over by the government and sold to another bank, in which case the merged bank can reduce the CD's interest rate?

Doyle

If the interest rate can be reduced, will we be allowed a two-week period during which we can redeem our CD without an early-withdrawal penalty?

A: Relax. Your CD will continue to draw the same interest as before. In the order you present them, the replies to your queries are:

No effect.

No.

Does not apply. Yours is a different situation.

It's only when a failed bank is placed in receivership by the federal Resolution Trust Corp. and its accounts are transferred to another bank or savings and loan association that the institution to which the accounts are transferred gets the power to reduce interest on the CDs it thus acquired.

In such a scenario, the bank or S&L planning to reduce interest rates must give the depositors notice and a two-week grace period during which CDs can be canceled and the money obtained without an early withdrawal penalty.

These rules have been in effect since August 1989. But they do no come into play in your case, because the bank at which you opened the CD did not go belly up. Instead, it was purchased by the larger bank in a straight business transaction, without government assistance or interference.

Q: In 1991, I purchased two $30,000 CDs through a brokerage firm. The CDs were issued by a national bank but are being held by a trust company, as custodian.

I did not receive a Form 1099 for my 1991 income tax return and will soon need another one for my 1992 return. I can get no information from the broker, the bank or the trust company.

Whom can I contact to get my 1099 forms?

A: I suspect you did get a Form 1099-INT or its equivalent for 1991, listing the amount of interest received on those CDs last year. It might not have looked like the formal 1099s you're accustomed to receiving. It might have been the year-end statement sent to you by the brokerage firm, bank or trust company, whichever one credited the interest to your account.

Every payer, or "nominee" who acts for an investor, is required to send a 1099 or its equivalent to everyone who gets $10 or more of interest or dividends a year. Those forms are mailed every January, and copies go to the Internal Revenue Service.

My suggestion is to speak to the broker through whom you bought the CDs. The broker collected a fee from the bank that issued the CDs. The broker will be able to — and should be willing to — solve the mystery of what you say is a missing 1099.

Q: Does the Credit Union National Association act as insurer of accounts at credit unions, as the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) does for banks and savings and loan associations?

A: No. The CUNA is the principal trade association for the credit unions in this country. However, it does not insure deposits at credit unions. Nor does it regulate credit unions.

Although some are regulated by state authorities, the vast majority of credit unions are regulated by the National Credit Union Administration and insured by the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund, which is operated by the NCUA.

Mullins' 42 points, late heroics, lead Warriors

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Chris Mullin scored 42 points, including a go-ahead jumper with 8.2 seconds remaining, and the Golden State Warriors handed John Lucas his first loss as San Antonio coach, 106-105 Monday night.

Mullin hit a career-high 19 field goals in 31 attempts for the Warriors, who snapped the Spurs' four-game winning streak since Jerry Tarkanian was fired, including three with Lucas as coach.

The Spurs trailed 81-66 with 3:26 left in the third period, but they took a 98-95 lead with 4:55 left in the game with a 32-14 spurt.

David Robinson, who finished with 32 points, accounted for 19 during the rally. Dale Ellis, who scored 20 points with four 3-pointers, and Sean Elliott scored five points each in the run.

The Spurs led 102-99 on Ellis' jumper with 2:02 left, but Latrell Sprewell's jumper at 1:36 and Mullin's three-point play with 30 seconds remaining gave the Warriors a 104-102 margin.

Ellis, who became the NBA's second-leading career 3-point scorer behind Michael Adams, hit a 3-pointer with 18 seconds left, giving San Antonio a 105-104 lead.

Mullin then made his game-winning jumper from the baseline.

J.R. Reid added 17 points for the Spurs and Elliott had 12.

Cavaliers 98, Pistons 89

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Mark Price hit three baskets and passed off for three others during a 12-0 run at the start of the fourth quarter, lifting the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 98-89 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

The win was the eighth in nine games for the Cavaliers, while the Pistons lost for only the third time in their last 14 outings.

■ NBA Roundup

Detroit's Isiah Thomas missed the game to attend the funeral of his father-in-law. The Pistons also lost backup center Olden Polynice to a fractured right middle finger in the second quarter.

Price had 28 points and 12 assists and Larry Nance 27 points and 11 rebounds for Cleveland. Terry Mills and Joe Dumars each scored 23 points for the Pistons, and Dennis Rodman grabbed 18 rebounds.

The Cavaliers led by nine early in the second half before Bill Laimbeer hit five long jumpers during an 18-8 run that put the Pistons ahead by a point. They extended the margin to as many as five and still led by three entering the fourth quarter.

But Price started the final period with a 20-foot jumper, and the Pistons went cold, missing their first nine shots in the quarter. Price's 18-footer capped the Cleveland flurry, putting the Cavaliers ahead 82-73.

Detroit's Mark Aguirre sank a 3-pointer that got the Pistons within four with 3:30 left, but Price sealed it with a three-point play, a steal and a pass to Brad Daugherty for a fast-break layup.

Nets 104, Hornets 103

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Chris Morris scored 26 points and Kenny Anderson had 13 points, 11 rebounds and 11 steals in the New Jersey Nets' victory over the Charlotte Hornets.

The Nets used a 16-5 spurt in the third and fourth quarters to turn a 73-69 deficit into an 85-78 advantage. Morris and Drazen Petrovic, who finished with 22 points, each had five points in the decisive burst and Chris Dudley added a pair of baskets and two blocks.

Charlotte pulled to within 89-86 on Larry Johnson's fadeaway jumper with 7:51 left. Johnson and Alonzo Mourning each scored 27 points and Mourning added 15 rebounds.

The Nets held the Hornets without a field goal over the next 4 minutes, 29 seconds, using a 13-7 surge to take control. Petrovic and Dudley had five points apiece as New Jersey opened a 102-93 lead with 2:18 remaining.

The Hornets, who had won three straight, reeled off 10 of the next 12 points on four free throws by Alonzo Mourning and 3-pointers by Kendall Gill and Dell Curry to pull within 104-103 with 28.2 seconds to play.

Anderson's two free throws with 32.7 seconds left provided the final points for the Nets.

Magic 110, Bucks 94

ORLANDO, Fla. — Shaquille O'Neal had 21 points, 14 rebounds and five blocked shots and Orlando outrebounded Milwaukee 61-30 in a victory over the Bucks.

Dennis Scott scored 25 points, including five 3-pointers to boost his league-leading total to 60, for the Magic, which has won five of six games.

The rebounding advantage, plus 11 Orlando blocked shots, helped the Magic force another poor shooting performance from their opponent.

The Bucks, who snapped an 11-game losing streak on Saturday night, was 35 of 93 from the floor for 37.6 percent. The Magic have held their last seven opponents to a combined 40.2 percent shooting.

Blue Edwards scored 11 points the first six minutes for Milwaukee, but he finished with only 18. Eric Murdock also scored 18 for the Bucks.

Heat 107, Lakers 96

MIAMI — Harold Miner scored 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter, and the Miami Heat overcame an 18-point deficit to earn their first win ever over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Heat, now 1-10 against the Lakers in franchise history, took their first lead of the game, 86-84, with 6:11 left on a layup by Grant Long, who finished with 21 points.

After two free throws by the Lakers' Sam Perkins, a three-point play by Kevin Edwards, who scored 23 points, and another layup by Long gave Miami a 91-86 advantage at the 5:16 mark.

Bullets 97, Hawks 96

LANDOVER, Md. — Pervis Ellison connected on 1 of 2 free throws with 5.7 seconds left as the Washington Bullets broke a nine-game losing streak with a victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

The Bullets led by 13 midway through the fourth quarter, but needed Ellison's free throw to overcome a four-point play by Paul Graham that tied the score with 25 seconds left.

It was Washington's first victory since a 114-106 decision over Sacramento on Dec. 8. The loss was the sixth in eight games for the Hawks.

Jazz 114, Timberwolves 95

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone scored 21 points and John Stockton 13 points, 20 assists and seven steals as the Utah Jazz used 15-0 and 13-0 runs to hand the Minnesota Timberwolves their seventh consecutive loss.

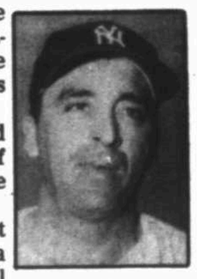
Sal 'The Barber' Maglie' dead at 75

Associated Press

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Sal "The Barber" Maglie, the menacing-looking pitcher who earned his nickname for giving batters close shaves with his brushback pitches, died Monday of pneumonia. He was 75.



Maglie

Maglie died at the Niagara Falls Memorial Nursing Home, where he had been confined since May 1987 following a stroke, nursing home spokesman Timothy Gleason said.

A curveball specialist with pinpoint control, Maglie was the loser of Don Larsen's perfect game in the fifth game of the 1956 World Series. His skill was working the inside part of the plate, which he called his "bread and butter."

When he pitched for the New York Giants, he was the nemesis of the hated rival Brooklyn Dodgers. But when his career was winding down in 1956 at age 39, he joined the Dodgers and helped pitch them to the National League pennant during the last 10 weeks of the season.

He won nine of 11 games for Brooklyn, including a no-hitter against Philadelphia on Sept. 25. In the 1956 World Series, he won the opening game against the New York Yankees, but lost 2-0 to Larsen while allowing just five hits.

Maglie's best years were with Giants. In 1950, he led the NL with an .818 winning percentage on an 18-4 record. He pitched four consecutive shutouts, including 45 straight scoreless innings, just 1 1-3 innings short of Carl Hubbell's NL record at the time.

In 1951, Maglie led the league with 23 wins, while losing six as the Giants won a memorable three-game playoff against the Dodgers, capped by Bobby Thomson's "Shot Heard 'Round the World."

Hall of Famer Monte Irvin, a teammate with the Giants, said Maglie was underrated. "During those years, if I wanted a ball game won, I wanted Sal Maglie pitching," Irvin said. "He was a money pitcher. He had that great curve ball. And when you started looking for the curve, he would come in with the fastball, keeping you completely confused."

Maglie had three types of curve — a slider, a big roundhouse curve, and a sharp breaking one. Once, Irvin recalled, he used each of them to strike out Pee Wee Reese three times in a game.

"Pee Wee said to Sal, 'I'm glad you didn't have a fourth kind of curve ball because you would have struck me out four times,'" Irvin said.

Salvatore Anthony Maglie was born at Niagara Falls on April 26, 1917. He worked a a pipe-fitter before signing a contract for $275 a month with Buffalo of the International League and pitched six minor league seasons before making it to the major leagues with the Giants in 1945.

But in 1946, he jumped to the newly formed Mexican League, signing a contract with Puebla for $5,000. It was there, under manager Dolph Luque, a former big league pitcher, that Maglie mastered his craft.

Dallas rated tops entering playoffs

Cowboys lead pack in wide open NFL playoff puzzle

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

We know that no team with the rushing champion has ever gone to the Super Bowl, something Emmitt Smith and Dallas Cowboys will try to rectify in the next few weeks.

But the more pertinent questions hanging over the most wide-open NFL playoffs in a decade involve flaws, not strengths on just about every team in the playoffs.

To wit:

■ Can Buffalo, San Diego, Houston and Pittsburgh win with backup or banged-up quarterbacks, emulating Jeff Hostetler's victory two years ago?

■ Can Minnesota win with an itinerant quarterback from Southern California? (Could the Raiders have made the playoffs if they'd gone all year with Vince Evans?)

■ Can Miami, with one of the best quarterbacks of all, find an offense?

■ Can Kansas City win with a career hot-and-cold quarterback who needs to stay hot for four games? Or can their defense carry them? Ditto for New Orleans.

■ Can Philadelphia, 3-5 on the road this year, win three road games to carry them to Pasadena?

■ Can the San Francisco secondary cover anyone?

And, most pertinently:

■ Can any AFC team even challenge the winner from the NFC, which has won the last eight Super Bowls? Four NFC teams seem stronger than any AFC teams, particularly since Buffalo, which has beaten the 49ers and Saints, has to play with Frank Reich instead of Jim Kelly.

Here's a team-by-team ranking going into the playoffs:

■ Analysis

1, Dallas

Fewest weaknesses, hence the top rating. The secondary is still suspect, but less so with the emergence of rookie Kevin Smith and the acquisition of Thomas Everett. Yes, no defenders made the Pro Bowl, but that only proves that Dave Wannstedt has forged a unit in which the whole is greater than the sum of its parts.

Smith, Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith, Jay Novacek and a good line make the offense hard to contain. The biggest question is experience — in a showdown with the 49ers, do San Francisco's four Super Bowls make the difference? Or are these the 1981 Cowboys and Niners in reverse?

2, (or 1a if you'd like) San Francisco

Home field never means that much to the Niners, who win everywhere. They rank behind Dallas here simply because other than Don Griffin, there's nobody in the secondary.

The other problem could be on the offensive line, where Harris Barton has to get healthy. There's been no depth there for four years, but Barton's injury is the first. It could be fatal.

3, Philadelphia

The kind of team that can ride a hot streak, like the 4-0 start, particularly if the defense gets revved and Randall Cunningham is allowed to be Randall again. Still, the loss of the late Jerome Brown in the middle of the defensive line showed up late against the run and the offensive line remains less than championship caliber.

One of those teams, however, that can score on defense and turns games with it.

4, New Orleans

The Eagles haven't won a playoff game since 1980. The Saints have never won one. So something has to give when they meet Sunday.

The question here is Bobby Hebert. He couldn't get the Saints in the end zone when he needed to in two games against the 49ers, which is why they're playing this week and the Niners are off.

The defense? None better, which gives them a shot to go all the way.

5, Buffalo

Maybe not being home with hyper-critical fans is a good thing.

Injuries don't help — Kelly's out because of a knee injury — but Reich is one of the more capable backups in the league. Bruce Smith, Shane Conlan, Darrell Talley and Cornelius Bennett have all been banged up. Surprisingly, until Sunday night, the defense has held up better than the past two years.

And maybe that 27-3 loss in Houston was to be expected. The Bills lose their final game every year — they usually just don't mean anything.

6, Houston

Maybe. If the Oilers can win Sunday at Buffalo.

That's a big if. The run-and-shoot is not made for the climate at Rich Stadium.

Talent's there, but the consistency isn't and the system seems wrong.

7. Kansas City

Defense (see above) if it plays like it did against Denver Sunday. How else can you explain 42 points with an offense that gets 220 total yards and drives just once beyond midfield?

Dave Krieg, who can get very hot, needs to for three straight games. If he gets very cold, as he also can, the Chiefs are gone in one.

8, Minnesota

Defense again.

But it's difficult to see Sean Salisbury getting anyone to the Super Bowl. Or Rich Gannon if Salisbury fails.

9, Washington

The coaching and the experience are there.

So are the injuries.

And losing to Vince Evans and the Raiders at RFK Saturday demonstrated clearly that this is the rule, not the exception — you just don't repeat in the NFL.

10, Pittsburgh

Yes, the home field in the AFC.

But Bubby Brister can't carry a team through the playoffs and Neil O'Donnell is still hurting. If, say, Kansas City comes to visit the first week, they could be in for a tough time.

11, San Diego

No respect because of a last-place schedule, although they certainly have first-place players: Junior Seau, Leslie O'Neal, Anthony Miller and Ronnie Harmon, who dropped a pass that cost the Bills a playoff game in Cleveland three years ago but was a quiet star this year. They move up if Stan Humphries plays, but can you really get to the Super Bowl with Bob Gagliano? Jeff Hostetler, he isn't.

12, Miami

Dan Marino isn't Jeff Hostetler either; he's a lot better. But the offense has gone ... (well, in this case make it north). How else do you explain wins by a total of five points the last two games over the Jets and Patriots (combined record 6-26)?

WHAT! NEWSPAPER ROUTES?

That's right...one of the best part-time income supplements around. Doesn't conflict with your "day job." Doesn't require day care. And it's dependable income.

Fact: 95% of our Distributors NOW are ADULTS supplementing their income with Route Distributorships!

Fact: Our Distributors make from $400-$800 monthly AFTER expenses, some even more!

The catch? You've gotta be able to handle early mornings and weekends! And when you take a few days off, you'll need to find a substitute for yourself.

So...are you serious about MOONLIGHTING, or what? If you are, and you have dependable transportation and can put up a $100 deposit...

Call 688-2700 and start making that extra car payment today!

WEEKLY & MONTHLY INCOME

The Midland Reporter-Telegram will have an opening January 1 on one of its few "special allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday, in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Washington Park area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work. $100 deposit required

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for housewives/ mothers, senior citizens, college students, or any other adult wanting to "moonlight".
