Defense Wins First Skirmish At Hickman Trial Attempt To Free Ratliff Stirs Court As Case Nears End

Iron Bar Found In Inner Cell Where Prisoner Confined

Closing Argument Expected To Consume All of Thursday; Exceptions To Judge's Charge.

OTHERS SAY RATLIFF SANTA CLAUS BANDIT

Defense Attorneys Rest the Case Without Single Witness In Behalf of Accused Man.

(By Associated Press) EASTLAND, Jan. 25.—While attorneys, jurors and court attaches waited this afternoon for the completion of Judge George L. Davenport's charge in the trial of Marshall Ratliff, for robbery with firearms, December 23 of the First National Bank of Cisco, the electrifying news became current that an attempt to liberate Ratliff, Henry Helms and another prisoner in the Eastland county jail here had been detected.

A plate on the wall of the second floor cage in which Ratliff, Helms and Paul Denison, are confined, had been loosed and an iron bar about a foot long was found in the steel enclosure. It became known immediately afterward, without the utmost vigilance was being exercised, however, and denied the possibility of a successful jail break taking place.

Ratliff and Helms, with Robert Hill, who is confined in another part of the jail, are under indictment charging robbery with firearms and murder as a result of the Cisco holdup. The prisoner, Denison, is charged with robbery with firearms as a filling station employee at Gorman several weeks ago.

Closing Argument Thursday.—It was expected that closing arguments in the trial of Ratliff, which began a week ago Monday, would consume all of Thursday following the filing of defense exceptions to the judge's charge. The state closed its case this morning at 10:30 and the defense also rested immediately afterward, without the introduction of a single witness in Ratliff's behalf. The defense de-

Cotton Acreage Reduction Boom

Moody Invites Governors Of All Southern States To Confab For Planning Reduced Planting.

(By Associated Press) ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 25.—Southern governors have been invited to meet in conference shortly to organize a campaign for reduction of cotton acreage. Governor L. D. Hardman revealed here today in making public the telegram from Gov. Dan Moody of Texas proposing the conference.

Similar messages have been sent by Governor Moody to all other chief executives of cotton producing states. Governor Hardman, who wired his endorsement of the plan to Governor Moody, said: "The Texas governor, suggesting 'some city centrally located in the South' as a meeting place, stated in his message that 'propaganda to the effect that there will be a larger acreage planted in cotton this year than last year is having a material effect upon the price of cotton and is causing a sinking market.'"

He said the proposed campaign would be aimed at reducing the 1928 cotton acreage, or at least preventing an increase over the 1927 acreage.

Oklahoma Bandit War Claims Trio In But Two Days

Two Outlaws Slain During Raids On Sooner Banks; One Banker Dead And Sheriff Badly Hurt.

(By Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 25.—A two-day war with bank bandits in Oklahoma tonight had resulted in the deaths of two outlaws and a banker, and the serious wounding of a sheriff.

An unidentified robber was killed today in the Love County National Bank at Marietta, where about $5,000 was taken by his companion, and Sheriff S. C. Long of Love county was probably fatally wounded. T. N. Rickard died at Cordell this morning after confessing that he was one of two robbers who held up the Besse State Bank at Besse yesterday and killed Ben Klehn, cashier, who had opened fire on the intruders.

The outlaw who escaped with the Marietta bank's money tonight apparently had eluded pursuit of a posse of several hundred men, recruited from Love and Carter counties and from Northern Texas. Sheriff Long was shot in the head, shoulder and abdomen when he appeared in the door of the Marietta bank in response to a call from a witness to the robbery. One of his shots killed a young outlaw, whose identity had not been learned early tonight.

Advertising Held To Be The Power Behind Business

Running Store Without Advertising Like Trying To Operate Auto Minus Gas, Erwin Declares.

LOCAL NEWSPAPERS HELD BEST MEDIUM

Home Publications Tell the Buying Portion of People What One Has to Sell, Expert Avers.

"Advertising is to a business as gas is to an automobile. It is the power," declared Pryor Erwin, nationally known retail business counselor and investigator, in his sixth lecture of the Better Business institute, which he is conducting this week under the sponsorship of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association. More than 250 merchants thronged the district court room last night to hear his talk on "Getting Returns From Advertising Expenditures."

Mr. Erwin drove home his remarks in a masterful manner, striking always at the key-note of merchandising—advertising. His talk so stimulated the live interest of those present that following his closing remarks some 30 minutes were spent in a questionnaire period in which he endeavored to answer the queries regarding advertising and its worth to business.

Examples of Profits.—Dwelling extensively on the force of advertising, he included many personal experiences of how businesses in the past had profited by the consistent use of advertising. "Advertising is the accepted method of getting customers," he said. "Trying to run your store without advertising is like trying to run your automobile without gas. You would think anyone exceptionally stupid who tried the latter, but as a matter of fact, he would be no more foolish than the former. There are many examples of fine business which do not advertise extensively, but I do not know of a single phenomenal success which is not the result of advertising at some time in the history of that business."

Here Mr. Erwin stressed the im-

$103,232,408 Left By Harkness Will

Widow of Standard Oil Co. Founder Leaves Largest Estate In New York History Despite Bequests.

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—Although she was nearly 80, Mrs. Harkness, widow of John D. Rockefeller, died today at her home in New York. She left a fortune of $103,232,408 when she died nearly a year ago, an appraisal filed today revealed.

The estate exceeded by $20,000,000 any in the history of the New York state department of taxation and finance, which dates back to 1885, officials of the department said.

Left To Son.—The residuary estate of $93,130,549 was left to Edward S. Harkness, a son, who was made sole executor of Mrs. Harkness' will.

Mrs. Harkness inherited an estate estimated at $50,000,000 from her husband, Steven V. Harkness, co-founder with John D. Rockefeller of the old Standard Oil company. A consistent rise in the value of her securities which included 364,000 shares of the common stock of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, more than doubled the size of the estate.

Cattle Men Hear Warning Against Lowering Tariff

Speakers Caution Delegates To Practice Economy, With Present Favorable Outlook.

(By Associated Press) EL PASO, Jan. 25.—Repeated warnings to cattle raisers to resist any attempt to lower the tariff on beef from South American countries marked the opening session of the annual convention of the American National Livestock association here today. Both L. C. Brite, of Texas, and W. W. Turner, of Texas, lawyer and cattleman, warned the stockmen to be on their guard to prevent such an occurrence.

Mr. Turner in his address, cautioned stockmen to be careful to practice real economy and guard their possessions. "We do not know how this prosperity will last," he said. "We should be careful; not like we were when yearlings reached $15. Then we said we would walk on velvet and buy diamonds."

No meat is consumed in the West, he said. The real meat comes from the East. "If you get out here and tell them you have so much money you do not know what to do about investing it. If

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The efforts of Senator Borah of Idaho to pin all Republican presidential candidates down on prohibition drew from Senator Curtis of Kansas, a statement today that he favored rigid enforcement of the dry laws and was opposed to repeal of either the Eighteenth Amendment or the Volstead Act. It also precipitated another prohibition debate in the senate with verbal contributions from both the wet and dry camps.

Curtis expressed his views on the prohibition question in reply to a questionnaire on the question which Borah is sending to all avowed candidates for the Republican presidential nomination.

The Kansas senator pointed to his record years ago as prosecuting attorney for Shawnee county, Kansas, in closing illicit saloons, as proof of his dry views.

Later, Senator Borah said that he was not prepared to say whether

If Ye Have Tiers Prepare to be in Style

BY HENRI BENDLER For NEA Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. —Costumes are getting themselves into a spring mood. Everywhere there is a tendency towards swaying or animated lines. The stiff straight silhouette is broken into ripples, curves, tiers and drapes and completely changed by stars, jabots, cape themes and so on.

Whether the frock be for early morning street wear or for evening, it should have the lines broken in more ways than one, if possible.

A Graceful Elaboration. Tiers prove this most graceful means of elaborating upon the straight line, retaining all the slender advantages of it and still bringing it up to date.

The tiered skirt may have circular lines for its component parts, or as if more apt to be the case, flat lines across the back, with a swerve for effectiveness, grace and fullness in its circular front tiers.

I show today three models which portray three different conceptions of what tiers can do to enhance a frock's loveliness. Each model more-over, features a different type of adjunct to the tier, in the way of neck treatment.

I have selected an orange velvet frock for the close of day—an extremely effective evening gown. It is tiered from well above the waistline clear to the hem. In fact, the tier gives much the same effect that a short bolero would.

Straight Back Circular Front. These tiers, finished with a tiny hand banding, are straight cut in back and circular in front. Moreover, all but the two upper ones wave up in front to give much fullness and an indefinite but charming grace.

From the right shoulder of this gown a flaring scarf hangs its lone end to the hemline. It can be thrown across the shoulders and over one shoulder or can hang as shoulder drapes from both sides. Utter simplicity but a wealth of silhouette mark this gown.

Another I have shown is the ideal informal frock for the woman who is not so slender as she wishes. This gives the slim lines diet have failed

BRIDE SHOWERED

Mrs. Huddleston Wright Is Honored Yesterday

Mrs. Huddleston Wright, who was Miss Thelma Worthington before her recent marriage, was honored with a pretty miscellaneous shower yesterday afternoon at 1401 Main street with Misses Myrtle Russell and Mary Louise Wood as hostesses.

Guests were received in the living room, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and ferns. As each one arrived, she placed her gift in a large basket which was adorned with a bow of blue and white tulle, in the center of which was a miniature bride and groom.

A delicious salad course was served in the dining room and the table was attractive with a wedding cake on which there was a bridal shower. White ribbons led from the cake to covers which were marked with cards. Those enjoying this occasion were the honoree and Misses Sylvia Johnson, Phyllis Burleson, Margaret McBride, Lily Mae Price, Ada Watkins and Irene Abernathy. Mesdames R. B. Bloodworth, E. Snyder, J. P. Haver, R. M. Rampey, James Kuykendall and T. R. Ivy, of San Antonio.

OFFICERS MEETING

Mrs. E. W. Camp, 2909 21st street, is to be elected to officers of her Sunday school class of the First Methodist church in an executive meeting at 6 o'clock this evening.

We read an argument that all students should be vaccinated upon entering college. Then, of course, they would all start from scratch.

to achieve. It is a dignified conception of a dressy coat dress. Two rippling tiers extend from the sides while the back is flat-tiered. A graceful ascotian pleated slip and jabots of all-white silk mouseline give the delicate touch that only white can give black.

For Spring Grace. This model shows admirably the union of tiers and jabots for spring grace. It also demonstrates that nothing can be smarter than the black-white combination, especially when the white is of exquisitely lovely fabric.

The third frock shown today is a swanky little homopit import—in a new color combination—green upper and blue lower portions. Of course the green has much blue in it, giving it a cool tone.

I want to call attention to the triple points of newness and beauty of this frock. It has a cape collar, tiered skirt and jumper, new wide necklines.

Don't Overlook It. Taking them in order, I should say that she who overlooks the cape theme this spring misses one of the prevalent tendencies. It is such a change from the tight, straight modes. It gives fullness, grace and novelty without added bulk to the figure.

In this frock the cape is a natural complement to the doubly tiered skirt and the triple tiered effect achieved by having the bottom of the jumper form the third tier.

The new necklines have a tendency to width at the shoulders—as though new fashions accept the V-neck idea but slash and shape the front and back to suit themselves.

A train load of Tennesseans headed by Gov. Henry Horton, will go to New York next month to see Grace Moore, former Jellco (Tenb) girl make her debut with the Metropolitan Opera Co. in "La Boheme." Miss Moore, who started her singing career with the choir of the First Baptist church at Jellco, was signed by the Metropolitan after a hearing last summer.

Left-Overs

And Here's How to Serve Them.

Those little dishes in the refrigerator that are filled with bits of fish and bits of that left over from the dinner table—what to do with them?

The frugal housewife dislikes to throw them away and yet they are sometimes a bit as to how they may be used to advantage. Here are a few suggestions which may prove of help.

Be sure the food is adequately covered. Aside from the fact that covering is necessary for sanitary reasons, prolonged exposure to air causes most vegetables to lose flavor and dries them to varying degrees of unpalatableness. Meat particularly becomes hard and dry if allowed to stand uncovered.

Retain the Bone. Do not trim and remove bone from roast or fowl until ready to use. The fat and skin and bone help to preserve the flavor and protect and keep moist the more delicate lean meat.

All kinds of fowl make delicious salads if combined with fruit. We usually think of celery as a needed ingredient in a meat salad but too often forget that a tart fruit adds just the piquant touch so intriguing.

Combine oranges with cold roast duck, pineapple with turkey, grape fruit sections with goose and white grapes and tangerines with guinea hen. Celery can be included also. This following proportions can of course be varied slightly to suit the taste and convenience, but form a good working basis: one cup diced fowl, 1-2 cup diced celery, 1-2 cup diced fruit. Let the ingredients marinate an hour in French dressing before mixing with mayonnaise to serve.

Cornish pastries are rather out of the ordinary and are very good.

Cornish Pastries. One and one-half cups flour, 1 tablespoon butter, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, water.

1-2 cups minced fowl, 1-2 cup diced oysters, 2-3 cup green sauce, 1-2 cup rolled crackers, crumbs, milk, salt and pepper, minced parsley.

Mix and sift flour, salt and baking powder. Rub in flour and cut in the water to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured board to about 1-4-inch thickness. Cut into six squares with a sharp knife. Combine meat, oysters, cracker crumbs and green sauce. Add enough more milk or cream to make quite moist. Place a spoonful of this mixture just to one side of the center of each square of dough. Fold over dough to make a triangle. Patch edges firmly together and bake 30 minutes in a hot oven.

The dough protects the meat enough to prevent overcooking.

Mixed Fowl on Toast. Two cups chopped fowl, 1 cup diced mushrooms, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup cream, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, parsley.

Saute mushrooms in butter for 5 minutes, keeping the pan covered and the fire low. Add meat, salt and pepper and cream. Heat slowly without letting mixture boil. Serve on triangles of toast and garnish with parsley.

—THE—
By Allene Sumner

Why is it that the prince of Wales can determine the male fashions of all Britain, but the hats of Mrs. Coolidge have no effect on the headgear of American womanhood? For instance, when Mrs. Coolidge went to church New Year's day, she wore a large droopy hat. Since this hat is a radical departure from the close little felts which are all the rage, the little felts would be quite out of it and big hats a la Grace Coolidge would be like the rage if our fashions were made that way. But they're not—perhaps it's too bad for few first ladies have dressed so well.

"SO'S YOUR—?" Well, well, well, look who's here! No one less than Judge Allen C. Southern of Circuit Court, Kansas City, Mo., who refused a divorce to Mrs. E. J. Cummings, former secretary of the Kansas Public Service commission, on the grounds that no woman with a job outside the home could be a good wife and that her public life constituted an "injury" to her husband.

"Whenever a wife participates actively in politics," said the judge, "she has instituted a regime incompatible with domestic relations."

With there were some modern expressions as much needed right now as "so's your old man" spoken with asperity and vigor.

TUE OR SHOWER? I hear that all our really up-to-snuff young people thing it's horribly old fashioned and common and vulgar to use bath tubs. Horrors! The shower's the only mechanism for ablutions which the smart young things condescend to use. Well, let 'em but as for me, I wouldn't be half worth living if there weren't nice long deep white bath tubs in which a person could loil and soak and read and rest. What can a shower offer compared to a good old-fashioned tub?

JACK'S SISTER Jack Dempsey's sister, I hear, has got a job in a stock company, but she doesn't go by her real name of Elsie Dempsey, but by Elsie Dawn. She says that she doesn't want to cash in on her famous brother's name. Wonder if Elsie would have felt the same about it a year ago? Wonder if there's much cash value in being a Miss Dempsey right now?

LIPSTICK CLUBS

These various high school clubs known by girls who pledge themselves not to use lipstick, rouge or powder, leave me cold. It seems to me it would be much more to the point if such clubs were formed to teach girls how to use lipstick and rouge and other cosmetics intelligently and artistically. These real friends of beauty and youth, may a plain girl has had life glorified for herself and associates by learning how to make herself prettier.

DINE COFFEE

They say that coffee will have to cost a dime a cup because the poor restaurant men lose money when they sell it for a nickel. Stuff and nonsense! Any woman who knows what a pound of good coffee and cream and sugar cost, and who knows too how many cups can be squeezed from one pound, knows that even with the cost of fuel and labor and service, coffee at five cents a cup means a nice fat profit. It isn't profitable, why are waitresses always trained to jog your memory

IT DRIVES OUT WORMS

The surest sign of worms in children is paleness, lack of interest in play, fretfulness, variable appetite, picking at the nose and sudden starting in sleep. When these symptoms appear it is time to give White's Cream Vermifuge. A few doses drives out the worms and puts the little one on the road to health again. White's Cream Vermifuge has a record of fifty years of successful use. Price 25c. Sold by Lubbock Drug Co.-adv.

Mrs. Allen T. Stewart Is Study Club Leader

Musical numbers were interspersed with talks yesterday afternoon making the Child Study club program more interesting than usual. The meeting was at the First Methodist church.

Mrs. Allen T. Stewart led a lesson on "Ideals as Represented by Washington, Jefferson and Hamilton." Mrs. F. A. Norman and son, Floyd and Sara Sue Stewart entertained with musical numbers. Mrs. L. E. Miller talked on characteristics of Washington.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

It's quite the cute and smart and "intelligent" thing to laugh at women's clubs as something futile and minor. But a rougher examination of the clubs for the past year brings forth such constructive accomplishments as building scores of sanitariums, babies' homes, medical attention given hundreds of crippled children, school lunches for under-nourished children, registration of baby campers, dental and other clinics established, and other stupendous pieces of work that organized men would never think of tackling.

Beauty!
How and Why

DON'T STRONG-ARM THE HANG NAIL.

For the fashioning of the useful little manicure instrument known as the orangewood stick, the soft yielding wood of the orange tree has been selected as being the best suited for the purpose.

We employ this stick with its cleverly shaped end, to free our finger nails from the objectionable skin which insists upon clinging too closely for beauty to the bases and edges. Hang nails, we call this skin which destroys the beautiful shape of the nail.

The fact that such a soft pliable instrument as the orangewood stick has been chosen by the manicure operators to gently push back the disfiguring hang nail, should be a broad hint to us to use persuasive rather than harsh measures in correcting this defect. Do not thicken and coarsen the bordering skin by cutting with a knife or scissor. Methods of this sort give the finger tips an unrefined and unbecoming finish.

Even the soft orangewood may, sometimes produce an irritation or inflammation at the base of the nail. Grubbs, this happen, apply a little soothing oil or cream, carefully wiping off the excess with a soft piece of cloth or absorbent cotton.

NEXT: amish luster.

Tech Turns Tables On Wildcats To Even Series, 34-32

Two Extra Periods Of Play Necessary Before Lubbock High Wins, 27-23

Hunter, Hemphill and Jennings Pace Matador Sharpshooters as Balanced Offense and Defense Feature Melee

Free Tosses Again Decide The Issue; Homelings are Better Than Ever; Durham High Score.

Flashing their best balanced offense and defense of the season thus far and paced in the scoring by Melvern Hunter, Kenneth "Andy" Cump, Hemphill and Captain Les Jennings, the Texas Tech Matadors rang up their first big time collegiate basketball win of 1928 here last night, defeating the Abilene Christians College quintet by a score of 34 to 32. The game was a nip and tuck affair throughout with the Scarlet and Black athletes pacing the way most of the time but with the lead changing hands on several occasions and the invaders always within striking distance.

Some 600 court bugs crowded the Tech gymnasium to view the tilt which was hotly contested and scintillating battle throughout. Melvern Hunter and "Andy" Hemphill led the locals in scoring with four field goals and a free throw each (for individual totals of nine points) but were tied for second place in the multiplication behind the 10 point contribution of Durham.

Durham, a guard, who led the Tech and his rival leader, Captain Les Jennings, of the Christians, paced the leaders closely for three honors with eight markers apiece.

Tech Finds Open Basket.

Ability to score free throws as the result of fouls decided the issue last night as on the previous evening, when the visiting Wildcats nosed out the homelings in an extended game, by a score of 41-40.

This time, however, it was the Scarlet and Black matadors who made the best average in free throw shooting, counting eight to the Christians' six open shots during the melee than they took themselves. Personalities continued to be a feature of play, with Referee Del Morgan calling the game closely, the Tech getting up a total of 19 to the Wildcats' 14. Before the game was over Gilbert "Doodle" White, Jim Kerr and Andy Hemphill, of the Matadors, traded from the flow with two personal fouls each and Hill, of the Wildcats, was banished with three personal fouls and an argument with Referee Morgan against his name. Hill's vehement questioning of the official's decision caused him to be removed from the visitors' bench after Coach "Bugs" Morris, of the Abilene contingent, lodged a howl to no avail.

Four Held Spotlight.

Scintillating floor work of Hunter, Durham, Powell and Jennings made up the high spots of the tilt. Time after time this quartet of rivals dribbled, side-stepped, pivoted and passed in feature fashion, leading a dash to the game which kept the spectators on their feet most of the time. Good guarding by White and Kerr was also a factor of the Tech's win.

Tech's victory was the logical climax to a season of improvement thus far. In two games with the Daniel Baker Hill Billies held here in a similar number with the West Texas Teachers at Canyon, and with the Christian Wildcats here Tuesday night the Scarlet and Black machine showed a well-oiled defense and upon each successive tilt an improved offense until last night when both departments of the game were welded together into a smooth, running machine. With a little more tutelage and practice under the direction of Coach Payne the local entry should be one of the fastest teams in Texas college circles.

The Tech band furnished music for the evening when Miss Annabelle Collins, Girls' Pep Squad, entertained the crowd between halves.

City League Tilts Scheduled Tonight

Bankers Play Producers And Armory Lads Meet With Team From Super Service Station.

The Lubbock city league schedule for this evening calls for the 11th Field Artillery versus the Super Main Service Stations, and the Bankers vs. Producers to be played in the Lubbock high school gymnasium starting promptly at 7:30 o'clock. These games will be the first exhibitions the league has played this week as the games scheduled for Tuesday evening were postponed until Friday night on account of the Texas Tech and Abilene Christian college game.

Friday evening the Wholesalers meet with the Avalanche-Journal combination and the Hemphill Price department machine clashes with the high school teachers.

WHITE DEER.—Another good high gravity oil well was added to the ever-widening Roxana-Bryan Pool last week when the hole filled with oil in 20 minutes after the well hit the oil sand in the time well 2-1 miles northwest of Roxana.

Hope springs eternal. If it doesn't everybody hopes it will, which amounts to the same thing.

All Is Ready For Basketball Tilts Of Slaton Tourney

Numerous Strong Teams To Compete In Contests To Be Held This Week-end For South Plains.

(Special To The Avalanche)

SLATON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—C. L. Slaton, Slaton, Okla., has announced that the Slaton schools say "all is ready" for the all-South Plains basketball tourney to be held here Friday and Saturday. Invitations were extended to twenty-five high school teams and a large number of responses have already been received. It is expected that the event will be more successful than was the first one held here last year.

Teams from Class A and Class B schools will participate. Rural school teams from this county will attend. Two groups will play, one Friday and one Saturday. The Friday group, as originally scheduled, includes: Southland, Wilson, Monroe, Abernathy, Sudan, Lehman, Anton, Canyon (Lubbock County), Acuff, Rosaville, Liberty and Ralston.

The Saturday group at Post, Lubbock, Midland, Littlefield, Ralls, Crosbyton, Lamesa, Brownfield, Floydada, Lamesa, Tahoka, Slaton, and Amarillo. Because of previously arranged schedules it may be impossible for all these to take part in the meet, but a large number of them have already announced they are coming.

Several strong teams are included in the list of schools named, and competition will likely be keen which means large attendance upon the games. Extra seating for the high school gymnasium was recently completed, making better accommodations for fans who attend the tourney.

Five series of games are to be played in the two days. Eight gold basketballs will be given by the Slaton schools to the winner of the Friday contest, and a Loving Cup goes to the Saturday champions.

THE NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

A man has left $50,000 for the blind. Both Mr. Barnard and Mr. Heyder, however, insist that these gentlemen are well paid.

Mr. O'Goofy, suggests that if the Braves should want to trade Hornsby, they ought to try to get a bid from Tex Rickard.

Bobby Jones refuses a $50,000 house and Von Elm says he'd rather beat Bobby Jones than make a million. Gosh, but these golfers are big-hearted guys.

Gene Tunney recently wrote an article on rowing, in which he criticized four-mile races, saying he had seen oarsmen "crumple and fall limp." This thing never happens in the cauliflower business, of course.

Carsmen wear agonized expressions, perhaps, but have you ever watched a knight of the tire tape break into smiles when told the gate didn't quite meet his guarantee?

But let us not be concerned too much about rowing. It's a shell game, anyway.

All Elements of Farce Enter Into Tex Rickard's Heavyweight Elimination

Insidious Suspicion That All Wasn't On The Square When McMahon Signed Sharkey For Bout With Risiko Latest Development In Old Ballyhoo

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The elements of a farce entered the so-called heavyweight elimination business today, with the customary details of suspense, the faked telegram and the grand climax all involved in the signing of Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risiko for a 15-round match in Madison Square Garden March 12.

The stage picture yesterday revealed Jess McMahon, Tex Rickard's matchmaker, hurrying to Boston for consultation with Sharkey's manager haggling for 24 hours over terms, finally conceding Sharkey a "shot" at Gene Tunney as the reward of victory over Risiko and, with this flourishing climax, clinching the match.

It turns out, instead, that there was no haggling except to give the appearance of prolonged controversy; that the match was ready to be signed at any time; that the reputed telegram from Tex Rickard, promising Sharkey the first bout with Tunney, was only a hoax influence Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager; and that no assurances were given to Sharkey about a title engagement.

Joker Bobs Up

The joker in the plot, whether calculated or not, was that Buckley, zealous to help the Sharkey ballyhoo, gave out to newspapermen in Boston as authentic the text of Rickard's alleged telegram, which, in fact, had been framed by McMahon as a decoy.

Today Buckley, in Boston, had this to say:

"It may have been real or they may have sent one to themselves and put it over on me. I don't know. Of course all the contract calls for a fight with Risiko but one thing is certain, I was promised a bout with Tunney if Jack shows well against Risiko and I'll take that bout or nothing."

Here's McMahon's version: "Sharkey signed only for Risiko. No conditions or strings are attached to it about a future tilt-bout with Tunney or a match with anyone else. The Sharkey-Risiko bout has the same status in its elimination series as the Heeney-Delaney bout March 1. If Buckley took that telegram seriously it's his own funeral. We fixed it up as a decoy, but had no intention of its getting into print. I had no communication at all with Rickard. It was not necessary."

Mary Jane (the cat, not the lady) has just won her 24th first prize. The snow white Persian that carried off the honors at the recent Cincinnati show, is held here by Miss Alice Cooke, an authority on kitties.

Registrations have slowed down, according to Mr. Holland, since January 20, the date when arrests were to have started for failure to purchase licenses.

NAVIES AND NEUTRAL RIGHTS

The program for the construction of a larger navy seems to have the approval of many legislators, who seem determined to insist upon definite construction rather than an abstract authorization. While we are in general accord with the viewpoint of the administration in regard to the proposed naval increases there are some phases of the matter which we think our readers should consider.

Great Britain, which has always out-ranked modern powers, insists that its navy guarantees its living by insuring the transport of foodstuffs, and by this argument justifies its present navy. There is we admit, justice in the expression. The United States, however, has a tremendous world commerce, which is also important to this country, and for the protection of that commerce insists upon a navy equal to any, which any fair-minded man will realize is warranted by the present position of this country.

In each country the naval experts are busy figuring out what size fleets will be necessary to safeguard these interests. Each naval board, in answering the necessary questions about defense, contemplates the war strength of the other nation. In essence, if not in theory, the two nations are building navies against each other, regardless of what may be said about the improbability of a war between the English speaking peoples.

The root of the entire difficulty arises out of a failure to negotiate treaties exactly defining what rights neutrals will enjoy in the event of war and the modern practice during warfare, of strafing the enemy regardless of international law. When regulating the seaways of the world during the World War the allied fleets were just as quick to violate international law as were the Germans, although, luckily they were able to do so without taking the lives of non-combatants.

If Great Britain, the United States, France, Italy and Japan are able to agree upon the rights of neutrals and to frame a code of law for the waging of warfare that would protect these rights during a war there would be little need of bigger and better navies. Unfortunately, they have not seen fit to do so. Why should not the United States initiate such an undertaking?

The answer comes at once, that just as Great Britain and other countries, in past wars, have done whatever they were strong enough to do in regard to oceanic trade, so will other nations do in the future. Which, being interpreted means, that the nation with command of the seas will interpret, according to its interests, the rights of neutrals during the next war. In such a contingency only those nations possessing sufficient sea power to guarantee respect will get respect. That is the basis of the present demand for a navy equal to any and until some agreement is made that guarantees neutral rights the demand will continue, not only in this country but in Great Britain as well.

SAME OLD QUESTION: WHAT OF ENFORCEMENT?

Some Mississippi legislators seem disposed to use extreme measures if necessary to put an end to the grade-crossing fatalities in that state.

This objective once was thought accomplished: A law enacted four years ago, requiring that the motorist bring his car to a full stop before driving onto a railroad track, was expected to render such accidents practically impossible.

Were that regulation universally observed, obviously it would have such an effect. In practice, however, the death-toll has not been reduced, but rather has increased alarmingly.

Orange-colored placards at the crossings, readable at least 100 yards distant, command the driver to stop in the name of the law. Fully 95 per cent of the no-torists on Mississippi highways, according to an official estimate, habitually disregard this order. Most of the remaining 5 per cent are tourists or other strangers who are under the impression that the statute was enacted to be obeyed.

Doubtless having in mind the rule laid down by a Roman sage—"Remember, Caesar, whenever you are angry, to say or do nothing before you have repeated the four-and-twenty letters to yourself"—Senator Gregory of Attala county has introduced a bill which would require occupants of motor vehicles to get out and count five before crossing a railroad!

One difficulty about this proposal is that, instead of being absorbed in counting, the driver should be scanning the track, alert for an approaching locomotive. Besides, if motorists will not even halt as required by the present statute, would the mere enactment of another law induce them to stop, get out and count?

To enforce this rule would entail a traffic officer at every grade crossing. Once there he could warn drivers that a train was coming, and thus obviate the necessity of such formalities. Upon these counts, it appears, Senator Gregory is out.

PERILS OF PEACE

As the matter now stands, the Briand peace proposal, which looked so harmless when it was hatched, threatens to produce as much dissension as though it were a full-fledged peace conference. The French people, according to reports from Paris, are getting quite quarrelsome about it, because they are fearful that the Briand proposal, which was meant only to apply between France and the United States, may be extended to other nations with whom France is not particularly desirous of sealing a peace compact. France and the United States are good friends and it is unthinkable that they should be anything else; hence a peace treaty, in which each nation assures the other of its undying regard, cannot possibly do any harm. But Secretary Kellogg threatens to spoil the party by letting in all sorts of uncouth outsiders; he wants to make every nation signatory to a general treaty of permanent peace, which might prove exceedingly annoying when that much talked of "next war" comes along. The general muddle which is resulting from the situation in regard to France is just what was to be expected in the light of experience. "Peace treaties," unless couched in the most innocuous language which says nothing and pledge nothing, are trouble-breeds. Sometimes they are completely forgotten or over-looked, as witness this document signed by William Jennings Bryan when he was Secretary of State and Justerand back in 1914, providing that all points of difference between the two nations be submitted to arbitration. This treaty was completely forgotten in the talk about a renewal of the Root treaty, which expires next month and which also provides for arbitration, but makes certain important reservations not mentioned in the Bryan treaty. So long as the Bryan treaty remains in force, any other treaty is superfluous, but apparently nobody thought of that.

IMMIGRATION LAW

Some modification of the immigration laws at this session of Congress is considered probable. The principle of limited immigration is now broadly accepted as of benefit to the United States, though much disagreement remains as to the precise method by which exclusion shall be effected. There is some reason to fear that in the conflict between rival opinions as to which nations provide the most desirable material for American citizenship, little attention will be paid to needless cruelties worked by existing laws. Without increasing the total number of immigrants, or even increasing the quota of any country, it should be possible to prevent the enforced separation of husbands and wives, and of parents and children, as occasionally happens now. Attention was called not long ago to the plight of a father who had come to the United States and in due time had become a citizen, while his wife and children remained abroad. When his circumstances permitted him to summon them, he discovered that his children who had become of age could not be given priority in the quota. The family under present law is doomed to disruption for years and perhaps forever. The present law should be carefully scrutinized to remove this and similar injustices and cruelties.

DEATH TO KIDNAPERS!

The Loeb and Leopold crime was bad enough. The Hickman brutality amazed a nation. Now comes the Hotelling criminality to spread the thought that there may be others of like mind in this country.

Loeb and Leopold are in prison. So is Hotelling. Hickman faces trial, with an insanity plea, hoping to get a life term. While we dislike the idea of capital punishment, those who kidnap young children and murder them should be killed as quickly as possible.

The wrath of the Michigan citizens is easily understood. Their effort to "get" the abnormal man who murdered a five-year-old girl is, it is true, against the law, but nevertheless, easily excused. Our own notion is that the speedy execution of a few abnormalities will help some scoundrels to regain their sanity before committing such awful crimes.

OUT OUR WAY—

SO THINK WE

We think that when one begins to think there is another town somewhere that is better than Lubbock, and they believe they can do better somewhere else we believe that person should pull up stakes and go to that place. It will possibly mean a return trip to Lubbock in a short time, but when one gets to feeling that way it would be better for him that he try it out and over afterwards be satisfied with Lubbock.

We think the business men of Lubbock are showing a willingness to learn more about business if it is possible to do so. The Merchant's Institute being held here this week is something new in this section of the country, but it is certainly attracting attention of the very best business men of the community. The Retail Merchants Association possibly could not spend their money to a better advantage than to get the members of that organization to realize the importance of being progressive and at the same time be efficient.

We think that most anyone can stand on the street corner and tell how a thing should be done, but usually that kind of information is not worth any more than the fellow that is putting it out and usually he is one of that variety that sits and spits on the sidewalk while his wife is breaking her back over a wash tub or sewing machine so that the family can have something to eat and a few rags to wear.

This is the time of year for people to begin to brighten up houses and get ready for the coming of spring.

We think John D. Rockefeller is right when he says that all laws good or bad should be obeyed. We are glad he said "should" for if he had perchance said "are," he would not have spoken such a great truth.

We think that if the report is true that the entire Remus jury has been offered a place in a burlesque show in New York, and the play has a jury scene, this jury would have a better filling the bill than any hand picked jury that could be found by a show operator.

We think there is something remarkably strange happened yesterday. A Lubbock tax payer came into our office and asked that we write a complimentary article to the City Commission for some work that has been done on the streets in his part of town. This is the first time in the history of our newspaper work in Lubbock to have this happen.

We think the campaign for more cotton on fewer acres must have taken effect on the crop of candidates this year in Texas. There seems to be more candidates on fewer acres this year than have ever been known, and the ladies are certainly mixing the dope with the men this year.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

During the recent years few subjects of medical investigation have aroused the interest that has been given to sleeplessness. Apparently the speeding up of American life has resulted in an increased amount of difficulty in securing rest.

Dr. E. M. Callender, in an address delivered before the Medical Society of London, points out that men can exist without sleep for about the same amount of time that they can do without food, namely, three or four weeks. But that they cannot live without it.

Vision First Sense Asleep
The sign of normal sleep is loss of consciousness due to the lessened activity of the brain. The first one of the special senses to disappear in sleep is vision and the last hearing.

During sleep, hearing is the sense most easily aroused, the sense of touch is more difficult to arouse and taste and smell practically disappear entirely. The muscles are relaxed and the breathing becomes deeper and slower.

All of the body secretions diminish in amount. When a sleepy child rubs his eyes, it does so because the amount of tears or fluid secreted is less and the eyes feel gritty.

The frequency of the pulse is lessened, the blood pressure is lowered and the reflexes that depend on the activity of the brain disappear.

Measuring Its Intensity
Various investigators have studied the intensity of sleep, using different methods of stimulation, in order to find out how difficult it would be to awaken a sleeper. These investigators agree that there is a rapid increase in the intensity of sleep during the first two hours, which reaches its highest point between the first and second hours and then drops rapidly again, the depth of sleep becoming continuously less until the person awakens.

Since the stimulation of the various senses may be responsible for disturbed sleep, Callender points out that the difficulty of sleeping the first night in a strange bed is due to unaccustomed stimulation of the skin by the bed and the bedding.

Modern street traffic, which goes on practically all through the night may be responsible for the fact that people complain nowadays of inability to sleep longer than three or four hours.

The actual noise of the traffic nowadays does not disappear until one or one-third in the morning and not infrequently lasts until three o'clock.

Seeking Quiet Place
Usually a person with this type of insomnia may be relieved by a few nights in a place where quiet occurs earlier.

Debilitated and aged persons who go to sleep early not infrequently awaken in the middle of the night. This, Callender relates, is due to the fact that they take too little food or take the evening meal too early.

An alternation in the hour at which the last meal is taken and the drinking of some hot liquid food during the middle of the night frequently acts as a producer of sleep. He relates the awakening to the fact that the blood pressure falls extremely low.

On the other hand, normal persons are likely to be sleepless following a late supper or a heavy dinner, following the taking of too much alcohol or too much tobacco, the taking of coffee or tea in the evening, overwork or constant stress on the attention until bedtime, the presence of too much cold or too much heat during the sleeping hours.

AMERICANS ARE EXTERMINATORS.

We are informed that warrants have been received by Childers county officials for several Memphis men, charged with exceeding the legal limit in catching fish from Lake Childers the past few weeks.

If this is true, and they have exceeded the limit, as set by the state and national laws, they should pay the penalty assessed. Game laws are not to curtail the activities and enjoyment of true sportsmen. They are to protect the fish and game, and allow for their proper propagation, so that the fish and game may be preserved for the future, and every true sportsman will observe the letter of the law, that his children may enjoy the same sport he is enjoying today. With no restrictions on the bag of fish or game, it would not be many years until the buffalo would be extinct, just as the buffalo is today, for all practical purposes.

In the early days, the buffalo roamed the plains and valleys of the nation in unnumbered herds. Today, save for a few protected herds in game preserves and private grounds, the buffalo is extinct. His passing was not because he was not a hardy animal, for he had roamed the country for countless ages before the coming of the white man to America. He had been hunted for ages by Indians, but the Indians are true sportsmen, who killed only what his family needed. Then came the white man, with his insatiable desire to slaughter every animal possible. The building of the first transcontinental railroad marked the doom of the buffalo. Huge parties were organized to kill the buffalo and sell the meat to the railroad for food for the workmen, and the buffalo soon went the way of many other species of game.

Wise legislators, realizing the situation, years ago passed laws regulating the seasons in which various species of game could be killed and placed a bag limit. Proper observance of these laws will perpetuate the game and fish of the nation, but disregard for them will mean extinction of the wild. The man who hunts and fishes today should realize that the man of tomorrow will enjoy the sport just as much and should help to perpetuate the wild life of the nation by proper observance of game laws and regulations.—Hill County Herald.

The Cost of War

By John Blake

To say that there is no such thing as luck is merely to lie. Don't that into the ears of young people, and sooner or later they will find out you don't know what you are talking about.

That it will be impossible to convince them of a very important truth—which is that luck or no luck, they will stand a far better chance of getting ahead if they keep their minds on their jobs, and have a purpose in life than if they do not.

It always amuses, and sometimes irritates me when I hear some pious, sentimental, old-fashioned company of young men or women on life and success, and point to him as proof that it can always be attained by following the copy book maxims.

Given a good mind and native industry, it can.

But given a poor mind, and a bad disposition, it can't—and that is that.

There are in the world plenty of people, who prosper, for one reason or another without much effort.

Some of them inherit fortunes, which are so sewed up by their benefactors that they cannot be dissipated.

Some of them merely fall into fortunes—as the accidental discoverers of oil wells or gold mines, or the buyers of country property which increase enormously in value because railroads are run through their lands, or other causes out of their control.

But first of all, and by a large, it is energy and ability which counts, and for one person who succeeds by luck there are a hundred who succeed by their own efforts.

But leave out the luck element in talking to young people, and as soon as they discover you cannot honestly leave it out, they will discount everything you say and all your advice will count for nothing with them.

Why not admit that here and there people are born with fortunes on their shoulders—with money, or with some talent which can be turned into money.

Then show them by citing many examples, that these lucky people are but few, and that even they are not sure of keeping their luck, as is proved by the example of many rich young men who squander their money as soon as they get a chance to do so.

Then make it clear that the only sure way to better one's self is to plan a course through life, but it will mean steady improvement in the condition, and greater happiness and self-satisfaction.

If you, dear reader, are lucky, so much the better. Improve your luck, and hold on to it.

If you are not lucky, no matter. There is no reason why you cannot go farther than many of the people who are, if you set to work with grim determination to reach some station in life worth gaining.

A MATTER OF STATISTICS
By James J. Montague

It set me thinking quite a lot
When recently I read
In some story publication, what
A noted man had said.

It filled me with a mild surprise
To see this person's claim,
That married men more often rise
To fortune and to fame.

Lord Bacon said, if I recall
His weighty words aright,
That married men have always all
The worst of every fight.

Providing for the kids and wife
So bows the wretched down,
They lack the time and strength
For strife and renown.

For laurels and renown.

This seems to be the saner view;
The bachelor is free
Great, brave heroic deeds to do
By land or on the sea.

The married man does not essay
On glory's fields to roam,
He has to go down town each day
And bring the bacon home.

If benedicts more often gain
The haven of success,
While those who do not wed red mail.

Unmarried, more or less,
If only three in every ten,
Unmarried men survive,
There must be far more married men

Than bachelors alive.

Honor Preacher As Best Citizen

REV. WILSON

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 2.—A preacher has just been honored as the citizen of Trenton who performed the most outstanding service to the community during 1927. He is Rev. Ollie Robb Wilson, national chaplain of the American Legion and pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Trenton.

Fifteen men and women representing leading civic organizations selected him as the recipient of a $500 silver cup.

During the last three years Trenton has made a name for itself in promoting philanthropic enterprises. Large sums have been raised for institutions for care of the sick and the poor. In this work, Rev. Wilson took a prominent part.

"He gives comfort and assistance to our poor, he visits our sick and buries our dead, with no thought of racial or religious differences. He gives of himself for Trenton," the committee of judges said in making the award.

Rev. Wilson, who is not yet 40, served with the A. E. F. flying corps during the World War. He accepted the Trenton pastorate after the armistice. His work as state commander of the American Legion attracted wide notice, and his choice as national chaplain resulted.

WE SHOULD USE MORE COTTON SEED AT HOME

(Dr. Tait Butler in Progressive Farmer)

Denmark has 1,478,000 milk cows and imports 695,000 tons of oil meal or oil cake per year. If this were all fed to the milk cows, it would mean that each milk cow would receive about 2.6 pounds of oil cake or meal every day. Of course, not all is fed to dairy cows but most of it is. Of the total importations of oil cake, about 39 per cent is cottonseed cake, about 33 per cent sunflower seed cake, and the balance largely peanut oil cake. The last quotation available (September 1927) on prices of cottonseed cake in Denmark is $50 per ton.

If Denmark can pay $50 or more a ton for cottonseed meal to feed to dairy cows, we ought to be able to use more of it at home to feed more dairy cows.

If the 5,000,000 dairy cows in the 13 states covered by The Progressive Farmer received 2.6 pounds of cottonseed meal a day they would consume 2,375,000 tons in a year. A crop of 13,000,000 bales of cotton, if 85 per cent of the seed reach the oil mills, will not make enough cottonseed meal to give the dairy cows in the South 2.6 pounds a day and leave more than a mere taste for the beef cattle, mules and other livestock, with none left for export. We do not produce as much cottonseed meal as the livestock we already have right here in the South, should consume and yet so-called agricultural authorities advise its use as a fertilizer, direct to the soil.

With this excellent cattle feed right here at home, we ship it all over the world, and with every pound of it also ship a part of our farms, and then buy it back in the form of dairy products and meats. There is no question as to "who pays the freight" in this case.

Feed LUCKO cotton seed products to your milk cows, beef cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry.

Pamphlets may be had here giving directions for proper mixture of cotton seed meal with other feeds.

great obstacles as it was almost impossible for the tired horses to find food.

Tschiffly said he gave "Nicanor" the slip, as he didn't want to get into a revolution and lost his two fine-blooded horses. He preferred Costa Rica and Mexico above all countries through which he had passed.

The negroes in Panama horrified the teacher and he asked upon his arrival here, which route would enable him to avoid negro villages. When informed there were no Panama negro villages in the United States, he sighed his relief.

Tschiffly is 31 years old, unmarried, and of a ruddy complexion. He speaks English, German, French and Italian fluently and is of Swiss parentage.

Tschiffly has been on the road two years and a half. He left Argentina April 22, 1925. He will be here until tomorrow or next day, he announced.

State witnesses testified Ratliff was the Santa Clara bandit who scooped up $12,000 in currency and stuffed it into a sack he carried. The money and L. E. Davis of Bristow, Okla., mortally wounded bandit, were abandoned by the fleeing robbers, shortly after a gun fight which followed the hold-up. Each of the four bandits was wounded. G. E. Bedford, Cisco police chief, and G. W. Carmichael, Cisco police officers, were fatally shot and six citizens were wounded in the battle.

Testimony today included the description of the contents of a hold-up bag found on the day of the hold-up along the route of the bandit's flight, which the state contends the bandits dropped. The bag contained antiseptics, gauze, pistol cleaners, canned soup and corned beef and rubber gloves.

better cattle and more ranches."

Robert A. Wright, of Drinkwater, Canada, president of the Western Canada Livestock Union, told the association today that he believed a mistake had been made in drafting the tariff on cattle in failing to differentiate between the character of the foreign supplies and their sources and Canadian supplies, which was made up largely of thin cattle and not beef. He said he did not believe American domestic prices would have suffered if Canada had been given preferential treatment with respect to thin cattle.

"Insofar as Canadian supplies of cattle and beef are concerned," he said, "your tariff has been a revenue rather than a protective tariff." "The tariff, however," Mr. Wright continued, "has afforded the cattle raiser of the United States real protection insofar as beef is concerned, owing to the large supplies available for shipment from Argentina if there had been no duty."

Senator Curtis' reply was satisfactory as he had not had time to study his letter.

But Senator Bruce, Democrat, Maryland, a leader of the wets, declared in the senate he was more or less in accord with the Kansas reply because although it was "unquestionably dry it was not bone dry."

"Nowhere in the letter can I find that it is in favor of amending or modifying the Volstead Act by congress," declared the Maryland senator.

Sheppard Takes Hand. As the debate proceeded Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, took up the cudgels for the dries, declaring the prohibition law was "due to stay." He went to the Bible for support of his argument and asked:

"Who will deny that prohibition is not in consonance with divinity?" "Why, when prohibition came about, Adam and Eve began to see snakes," retorted Senator Bruce.

Confederate Home Official Is Fined

Grave Consequences Will Follow Court Action At Austin, Is Now Fear In State Circles.

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Jan. 25. —Grave consequences may follow the conviction of A. W. Taber, superintendent of the state Confederate home, here, fined $50 in justice court today for allegedly allowing women at the institution to work more than nine hours a day in violation of state law, R. B. Walthall, member of the board of control, said tonight.

Walthall said the verdict, from which Taber will appeal, actually may result in release of one or two women doctors in other state dispensary institutions since they are on duty more than the limited number of hours.

He conferred with the attorney-general's department about the matter and issued a statement that the board of trustees without success to prevail on the legislature to grant appropriations sufficient to retain three "shifts" of women, instead of two at each institution.

He defended Taber and declared that Governor Moody has agreed to allow a deficiency appropriation during December before arrangements to obtain a "deficiency" had been made.

Mr. Moody said that he has not directly agreed to grant a deficiency but has told the board to use funds it needs to comply with the statute.

as it is now presented, because questions that are involved would be to us domestic questions. We have, as you know, 48 states, each sovereign and each having conceded to the general government certain powers.

But the general government is bound by the Constitution of the United States. Senator Bustamante of Cuba said there were two tendencies looking to the solution of the question of prohibition of international law—a gradual progressive code and a code of a fixed code of international private law.

Mexico today supported the stand of Argentina against high tariff in inter-American commercial relations. Senator Urbina was the Mexican spokesman. He reiterated that fundamental economic problems confronting the new world were not on the agenda of the new conference.

"The most primary concern of the Pan-American conference," he declared, "should be means to check unusual avarice which is working to the detriment of the economic life of the people."

He then defended his country's proposal for reorganization of the Pan-American union. He believed that the changes suggested would give greater efficiency to the organization.

SUPER GOLD DIGGER

This Woman Trades a Kiss For a Car

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 25. (AP)—Kansas City's "super gold digger" is being sought by police tonight.

Her claim to superiority rests in her ability to trade a kiss for a motor car.

One result of her trade today was the detention by police of Owen C. Clark, 36 years old, of Pon Du Lac, Wis.

Clark told a detective he came here from Wisconsin several days ago and hired an automobile.

Questioned about the car, which the company he rented it from is looking for, he said:

"The liquor here is so terrible I've had a lapse of memory. I think I gave the machine to a girl for a kiss."

His only contribution to the possible identity of the girl was: "She had hot lips."

Acosta, on a warrant charging violation of the Connecticut aircraft laws, was held in $500 bond and will appear before Judge Frank A. Sears in borough court tomorrow.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 25. (AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Carter, 50, died at a hospital here tonight from burns alleged to have been received when her brother, Edward Fish, of Lexington, Ky., held her against an open fire until her clothing ignited.

Neither Carter nor his wife could account for Fish's action other than that his mind was unbalanced. Fish was recently released from a hospital for the insane.

Advertising

portance of local newspaper advertising, stating that it was the best medium for retail merchants as it told of their business in the homes of the trade territory. "How are you to sell to people when they don't know what you have in your store?" he asked. "Advertising in the local newspapers takes the place of the old-fashioned retail peddler who went from house to house showing his samples. The newspaper carries your stock into the homes and to the people."

"Advertising," he told his audience, "is getting the right goods before the right people at the right time through the right medium and doing it effectively. To make it effective, one must study it. Your advertisement is your message to the people. It should be written in the same straightforward manner and simple language you would employ in explaining the merits and advantage of a new tool to your friend Bill Jones, who happened to drop into your store, as you were unpacking it. Simply tell what you have, what are its merits, why your customer should want one, how much it will benefit him and then tell him how much it is, and if possible, show him a picture of it. Leave nothing to his imagination."

"Take time to properly write your advertisement," Mr. Irwin said. "If you were called upon to make a speech to a gathering of a hundred people you would spend hours in its preparation; yet many merchants sit down and dash off in three minutes an advertisement which is in reality a speech made to thousands instead of a hundred, because they are too busy to take longer."

Investment, Not Expense
"Many merchants consider their advertising as an expense, but advertising properly directed is an investment and not an expense. The thing to have in advertising is the goods, the service and the confidence of the public. In starting an advertising campaign, first determine how much you are going to spend, then go ahead and spend it with judgment and efficiency. Set aside an advertising budget and prepare a consistent program. Analyze your trade territory, the people you want to sell an ad then choose your medium, which should be in the first place, the local newspaper."

No Job For Quitter
"Advertising is no job for a quitter," he continued. "You cannot run a few feet and then lay down because you are not swamped with business. And if a consistent advertising campaign does not bring results, examine your ads and see what's wrong. Study and prepare your copy and then plan typographical arrangement and display. Use illustrations whenever possible. It's a Chinese proverb, but it's true, that one good picture is worth 300 words. Take time in preparing your ads. If you don't have time, then begin to train some young member of the organization for the work as it is the only real task in merchandising."

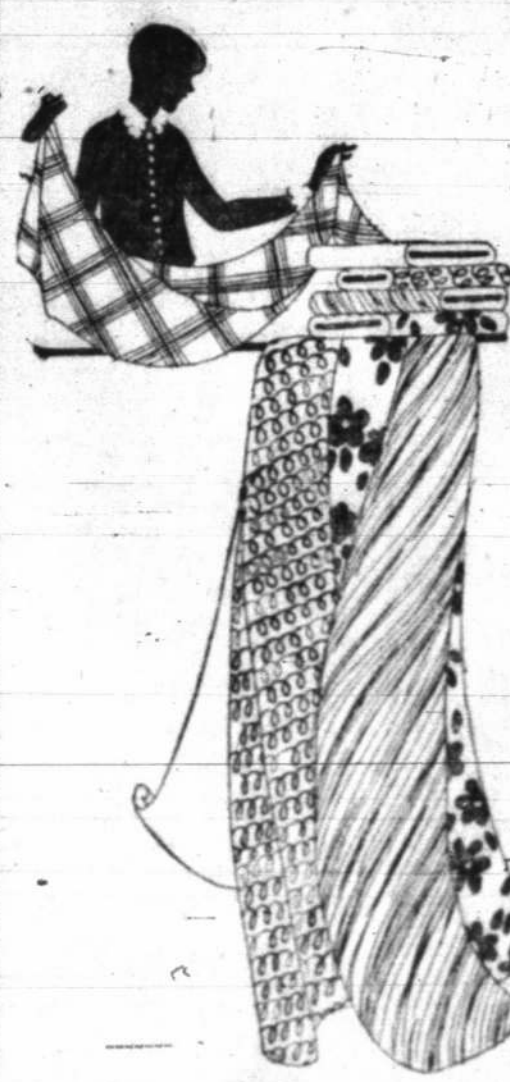

"Many people, customers, mostly, think that advertising adds to the cost of goods," the speaker continued, "but they are wrong. If the advertising is effective. The only instance where advertising costs is to the non-advertiser because the fellow who advertises gets his customer."

"Have faith in your advertising," he pleaded. "I am reminded of one fellow who said to me that his advertising did not pull for him. I told him that he meant jerk for him. Didn't he? Advertising is persuasion. It will sometimes bring customers by the droves while at other times it will have a continual drawing power. Get your organization back of your advertising also. Tie up your window displays with your newspaper ads and then follow up with some personal and direct work. The store which does not advertise is like the fellow who was all dressed up and had no place to go."

Faith Pointed Out
Mr. Irwin pointed out various faults of advertising, chief among them being the failure to advertise certain goods at the right time when they are new and profitable and another of not making the ads informative. "Tell them something about your goods," he said. "Don't deal in generalities. Make your ads so simple that the unin-

THE CANARY MURDER CASE

THE STORY THIS FAR

The gentleman came out of Miss Odell's Apartment about 11:50, and called me to call him a cab. While he was waiting Miss Odell screamed. We rushed back to her door and he knocked. She answered and said everything was all right and for him to go home. About ten minutes later someone called her on the phone and a man's voice answered from her apartment. No one else had come in, said Jessup, or gone out. The only other means of exit or entrance was the side door to the alley, and the evening before and was found that way in the morning. Yet Margaret Odell's strangled body was found in her apartment the next morning.

CHAPTER X

"But even if Doudos does identify those prints," said Markham, "we'll have to show how the owner of them got into this place last night. He'll claim, of course, they were made prior to the crime."

"Well, it's a sure thing," declared Heath stubbornly, "that there was some man in here last night when Odell got back from the theater and that he was still here until after the other man left at half past eleven. The woman's screams and the answering of the phone call at twenty minutes to twelve prove it. And since Doc Doremus said that the murder took place before midnight, there's no getting away from the fact that the guy who was hiding in here did the job."

"That appears incontrovertible," agreed Markham. "And I'm inclined to think it was some one she knew. She probably screamed when he first revealed himself, and then, recognizing him, calmed down and told the other man out in the hall that nothing was the matter. Later on he strangled her."

"And, I might suggest," added Vance, "that his place of hiding was that clothes press."

"Sure," the Sergeant concurred. "But what's bothering me is how he got in here. The day operator who was at the switchboard until ten last night told me that the man who called and took Odell out to dinner was the only visitor she had."

Markham gave a grunt of exasperation.

"Bring the day man in here," he ordered. "We've got to straighten this thing out. Somebody got in here last night, and before I leave I'm going to find out how it was done."

Vance gave him a look of patronizing amusement.

"I know, Markham," he said. "I'm not blessed with the gift of psychic inspiration, but I have one of those strange, indescribable feelings, as the minor poets say, that if you really contemplate remaining in this bedroom tonight till you've discovered how the mysterious visitor gained admittance here last night, you'd do jolly well to send for your toilet accessories and several changes of fresh linen—not to mention your pajamas. The chap who engineered this little soiree played his entrance and exit most carefully and perquisitiously."

Markham regarded Vance dubiously, but made no reply.

(Tuesday, September 11; 11:15 a. m.)

Heath had stepped out into the hall, and now returned with the day telephone operator, a sallow, thin young man who, we learned, was named Spivey.

His almost black hair, which accentuated the pallor of his face, was slicked back from his forehead with pomade; and he wore a very shallow mustache which barely extended beyond the side of his nostrils. He was dressed in an exaggeratedly dapper fashion in a dazzling chocolate-colored suit out very close to his figure, a pair of cloth-topped buttoned shoes, and a pink shirt with a stiff turn-over collar to match.

He appeared nervous, and immediately sat down in the wicker chair by the door, fingering the sharp creases of his trousers, and running the tip of his tongue over his lips.

Markham went straight to the point.

"I understand you were at the switchboard yesterday afternoon and last night until ten o'clock. Is that correct?"

Spivey swallowed hard and nodded his head. "Yes, sir."

"What time did Miss Odell go out to dinner?"

"About seven o'clock. I'd just sent to the restaurant next door for some sandwiches."

"Did she go alone?" Markham interrupted his explanation.

"No. A fella called for her."

"Did you know this fella?"

"I'd seen him a couple of times calling on Miss Odell, but I didn't know who he was."

"What did he look like?" Markham's question was uttered with hurried impatience.

Spivey's description of the girl's escort tallied with Jessup's description of the man who had accompanied her home, though Spivey was more voluble and less precise than Jessup had been. Patently, Miss Odell had gone out at seven and returned at eleven with the same man.

"Now," resumed Markham, putting an added stress on his words, "I want to know who else called on Miss Odell between the time she went out to dinner and ten o'clock when you left the switchboard."

"I don't understand," he stammered. "How could any one call on Miss Odell when she was out?"

"Some one evidently did," said Markham. "And he got into her apartment, and was there when she returned at eleven."

The youth's eyes opened wide, and his lips fell apart.

"My God, sir!" he exclaimed. "So that's how they murdered her!—I laid in wait for her!—I suddenly realizing his own proximity to the mysterious chain of events that had led up to the crime."

"But nobody got into her apartment while I was on duty," he blurted with frightened emphasis. "Nobody! I never left the board from the time she went out until quitting time."

"Couldn't any one have come in the side door?"

"What! Was it unlocked?" Spivey's tone was startled. "It never is unlocked at night. The janitor bolts it when he leaves at six."

"And you didn't unbolt it last night for any purpose?"

"No, sir, I didn't!" He shook his head earnestly.

"And you are positive that no one got into the apartment through the front door after Miss Odell left?"

"Positive! I tell you I didn't leave the board the whole time, and nobody could've got by me without my knowing it. There was only one person that called and asked for her."

"Oh, so some one did call?" snapped Markham. "When was it? And what happened?"

"It wasn't anything important," the youth assured him, genuinely frightened. "Just a fella who came in and rang her bell and went right out again."

"Never mind whether it was important or not," Markham's tone was cold and peremptory. "What time did he call?"

"About half past nine."

"And who was he?"

"A young fella I've seen come here several times to see Miss Odell. I don't know his name."

"Tell me exactly what took place," pursued Markham.

Again Spivey swallowed hard and settled his lips. "I began with effort. The fella came in and started walking down the hall, and I said to him: 'Miss Odell isn't in.' But he kept on going, and said: 'Oh, well, I'll ring the bell anyway to make sure.'"

"It was like this," he began with effort. "The fella came in and started walking down the hall, and I said to him: 'Miss Odell isn't in.' But he kept on going, and said: 'Oh, well, I'll ring the bell anyway to make sure.'"

"A telephone call came through just then, and I let him go on. He rang the bell and knocked on the door, but of course, there wasn't any answer, and pretty soon he came back and said: 'I guess you were right. Then he fessed me half a dollar, and went out.'"

"You actually saw him go out?" There was a note of disappointment in Markham's voice.

"Sure, I saw him go out. He stopped just inside the front door and lit a cigarette. Then he opened the door and turned toward Broadway."

"One by one the rosy petals fall," came Vance's indolent voice. "A most amusing situation!"

Markham was loath to relinquish his hope in the criminal possibilities of this one caller who had come and gone at half past nine.

"What was this man like?" he asked. "Can you describe him?"

Spivey sat up straight, and when he answered, it was with an enthusiasm that showed he had taken special note of the visitor.

"He was good-looking, not so old—maybe thirty. And he had on a full-dress suit and patent-leather pumps, and a pinstriped shirt."

"What, what?" demanded Vance in simulated disbelief, leaning over the back of the davenport. "A silk shirt with evening dress! Most extraordinary!"

"Oh, a lot of the best dressers are wearing them," Spivey explained, with condescending pride. "It's all the fashion for dancing."

"You don't say—really!" Vance appeared dumbfounded. "I must look into this. And, by the way, when this Beau Brummel of the silk shirt passed by the front door did he take his cigarette from a long flat silver case carried in his lower waistcoat pocket?"

"The youth looked at Vance in admiring astonishment.

"How did you know?" he exclaimed.

"Simple deduction," Vance explained, resuming his recumbent posture. "Large metal cigarette cases carried in the waistcoat pocket somehow go with silk shirts for evening wear."

GONE "HOG WILD"

This Is Verdict About Taylor County Youth

ABILENE, Jan. 25.—"Taylor county boys and girls are going 'hog wild,'" declared W. R. Keeble, local banker.

In making that statement Keeble did not refer to the talked of tendency of some of the younger generation to take after all manner of pastimes, but he was speaking of the interest being taken in the pigs clubs which have been organized at nine rural schools of the county since January 1.

Already more than 100 boys and girls of the county have enrolled in the clubs which have been formed at Bradshaw, Iberis, Ovalo, Potot, North Park, Pleasant Hill, Buffalo Gap, Caps, Wylie, Hamby and Tuscola, and another 100 or possibly more are clamoring for a chance "to show their stuff," in the county-wide feeding contest being conducted in connection with the Pig Clubs, by the Abilene Chamber of Commerce.

Each of the eleven clubs so far constituted are full of pep and interest. J. R. Masterson county agent says and he is planning to start clubs at several of the other rural schools during the next two weeks.

Lockney Farmers Plant Pure Seed

Greater Profits Made. Is Conclusion Arrived At By Farmers of Floyd County Section.

LOCKNEY, Jan. 25.—Many farmers of this section are now planting pure cotton and grain sorghum seed and find that greater profits are made even though the products are sold for commercial purposes. They state, the pure seed contains fewer weed seeds, thus reducing the cost of cultivation; the yield per acre is much larger; the maturing date earlier and the product more uniform.

T. J. Gilbert, who lives four miles northeast of Lockney, planted 35 acres in standard, purebred milo maize on June 18, 19 and 20, a total of 67.180 pounds were threshed, bringing him $123 per hundred, making a return from the 35 acres $1,972.31 or $30.61 per acre.

Gilbert states that a farm cannot be operated at a profit unless plenty of feed is raised on that farm.

3 HURT AT SLATON

Two Crashes Occur Near Town Yesterday

SLATON, Jan. 25.—Three persons injured and three damaged cars were the toll of two accidents occurring on the Slaton-Lubbock highway within an hour yesterday afternoon. A Nash sedan driven by R. H. Taylor of Slaton collided with a Ford touring in which Martin and Howard Smith, cousins of Union community were riding about 4 in the afternoon, both cars being badly damaged and both of the Smith youths gashed by flying glass.

A few minutes later, within a hundred yards of the same spot, a Ford speedster driven by Albert Hoffman of Slaton, plunged into the ditch while passing another car. A youth named Denton, who was with Hoffman, suffered a fractured arm.

It took Lindbergh 33 hours 21 minutes to fly from New York to Paris.

DAILY MARKETS

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—A sweeping reaction in stock prices was Wall Street's response to the raising of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rate. Extreme declines, which ran from 2 to nearly 8 points in stores of issues, were partially recovered in a series of brief rallies. Total sales ran above 2,800,000 shares.

Having advanced almost steadily for five consecutive days, the market was in a vulnerable position for selling attacks at the opening this morning. "Bear traders" who have tried unsuccessfully in recent weeks to bring about a major reaction were quick to take advantage of the situation and their offerings swelled the volume of liquidation which came, from frightened speculators and investors.

The sharpest declines came in the high priced stock specialties. Midland steel products preferred, American Express, American Railway Express, Borden, Case Threshing, Dupont, Greene Cananea Copper, International Harvester, International Silver, Montgomery Ward, and U. S. Steel Iron Pipe all sold down 4 to 8 points, and most of them closed near the bottom. U. S. Steel common sold down to 144 1/8 but rallied to 146 1/4, off 2 5/8 net, and General Motors showed a net loss of 2 1/2 at 123 3/4 after selling down to 123.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 2 points and after quickly showing net losses of 5 to 10 points under near month liquidation incident to the circulation of a few January notices, steadied on covering. The decline to 18 1/4 for May brought in a little more trade buying.

The late selling was accompanied by continued talk of prospective increases in acreage and a disappointing trade demand, while there may have been a little nervousness over the labor situation in Fall River as mill employees were expected to meet tonight to discuss the proposed reduction in wages. Some local brokers thought the failure of demand to broaden materially on the rally from the early decline disappointed holders of contracts which may have been as much responsible for the renewal of the day's news.

Exports today were 23,812 bales, making 4,501,467 so far this season. Port receipts 25,716 U. S. Port stocks 2,375,946.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—The cottonseed oil market was quite active and easier today, closing 5 to 15 points net lower. May, July and August deliveries selling into new low ground for the season. Marines Ready On Nicaragua Drive Thousand In Reinforcing Detachment to Replace Fifth Regiment Now In The Field.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 25.—The 1,000 American marine reinforcements of the Eleventh regiment now marching into northern Nicaragua to take the field against Augustino Sandino, rebel chieftain, will replace the detachments of the Fifth regiment which have been on duty in the department of Nueva Segovia for the last six months.

In the American campaign to stamp out the Sandino movement, all important towns and villages in the affected region will be garrisoned by Americans and Nicaraguan national guards. It is hoped eventually all the rebels will be forced out of the district as well as scattered bands of guerrillas who have been operating independently, taking advantage of the unsettled conditions.

Colonel Robert H. Dunlap will command the troops in the field having his headquarters in Octal which was the scene last summer of a desperate fight between the Marines and the Sandino forces.

The American marines of the Eleventh regiment, which left Leon Sunday for their 130 mile hike to the north, must pass over rough country, the roads and trails becoming more difficult as they penetrate into the remote mountain and jungle country.

The construction of a road between Leon near the coast and Octal, principally for the use of military forces, was begun last week by J. A. Willey, an American engineer.

Indians Hauling Pyote for Rites

Banned by Federal Law From Express Cars, the Tribesmen Use Auto to Transfer Material.

(By Associated Press)
FORT WORTH, Jan. 25.—Chief Baldwin Parker was in Fort Worth Monday en route from the Rio Grande Valley to Indianola, Okla., with an automobile load of pyote, the small cactus-like plant which is used by the Indians in the sacramental rites of their religion.

While here Chief Baldwin and the three Comanches who accompanied him on the annual pilgrimage to the Valley were visitors at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce where they conferred with E. H. Whitehead, publicity director of the organization on the progress of their fight to secure permission from the United States government to send the pyote through the mails.

President R. W. Haynie of Abilene, who was made a chieftain in the tribe in a ceremonial last summer, has been pushing the fight to have the embargo against expressing the pyote lifted. Chief Parker stopped in Abilene for a conference with Haynie en route back from the Rio Grande valley. A state charter for the use of the pyote has been taken out in Oklahoma. The native American church is the body to which the charter was granted.

"The sixty ninth session of the United States congress passed a bill granting an appropriation of $25,000 to suppress the drug, narcotic, liquor and pyote traffic," Chief Wilbur Pewo, Apache, Okla., explained.

He has appeared before a number of government hearings granted to consider the Indians' protest. "Laws have been passed by congress against the use of drugs, narcotics and liquor, but pyote has never been legislated against," Pewo said.

The Indians claim the same right to the use of pyote that churches are granted in respect to sacramental wine. The white plant is eaten by them during the ceremony. It is not made into a liquor.
