Kissinger Takes Off On Mid-East Mission

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew to Israel today, charged with the delicate task of keeping the American peace initiative in the Middle East alive with a new agreement between Egypt and Israel.

"Good luck, Henry. God bless you," President Ford told Kissinger at the ramp of the secretary's plane before takeoff from Washington.

A senior official aboard Kissinger's plane said the nine-country, 10-day trip was "extremely important and extremely delicate."

He said, his nose red with the cold, the President accompanied Kissinger and his wife to the plane, followed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and other cabinet members.

It was an extraordinary sendoff from the President and obviously designed to counter Democratic party criticism of Kissinger.

Ford said 213 million Americans who look at Kissinger's record recognize his accomplishments in achieving Middle East peace.

Kissinger's blue and silver Air Force jet touched down at Rhein-Main U.S. Air Force base in Frankfurt today before continuing on to Israel, where it landed at Ben Gurion international airport outside Tel Aviv.

Before he left, Kissinger reportedly assessed at better than 50-50 his chances of finding room for agreement between Israel and Egypt for another partial withdrawal of Israeli troops east of the Suez Canal.

In Moscow, the Tass news agency said today Kissinger's Middle East tour is motivated by a desire to prolong efforts for a peace settlement.

In a brief report on the start of Kissinger's tour, Tass said Kissinger would attempt another "so-called step-by-step settlement" of the Arab-Israeli dispute.

"Behind this formula is the United States' support for Tel Aviv's striving to prolong the settlement process through intermediate steps and other half measures," Tass said.

On his way home, Kissinger will meet Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Geneva to try to reconcile the rival approaches. The Russians, with considerable Arab support and even that of some Israelis, want to take the dispute back to a Geneva conference where the Soviets would be represented along with all the parties.

BIGGEST PEACETIME DEFICIT

Lynn Assumes Position Of Overseeing Budget

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Preparing to depart on another trip to sell his economic-energy program, President Ford watched today as James T. Lynn assumed the job of overseeing what surely will be the nation's biggest peacetime deficit budget.

Lynn, 47, former secretary of Housing and Urban Development and one of the fastest-rising young bureaucrats in government, was sworn in as director of the Office of Management and Budget. The oath was administered by Supreme Court Associate Justice William Rehnquist.

Lynn, who succeeds Roy A. Ash, will retain his Cabinet rank but take a sizeable cut in salary, from $90,000 to $42,500.

"I know you've taken a pay cut," Ford told Lynn during the swearing-in ceremony in the Oval Office of the White House. "But you'll make up in energy what you've lost in compensation."

In his new post, Lynn will oversee all government spending programs and Ford's proposed new fiscal program for 1976, estimated to run $52 billion in the red, the biggest deficit in peacetime history.

As keeper of the federal purse strings, Lynn will have life and death power over many government programs, making him one of the most powerful persons in the bureaucracy.

Since leaving a lucrative Cleveland law practice in 1969 to join the Commerce Department as general counsel, Lynn's government career has soared. He sidestepped the pitfalls of Watergate, winning promotions to Commerce undersecretary in April, 1971 and HUD secretary in February, 1973.

After the ceremony, Ford was prepared to fly to Texas today to drum up public support for the controversial programs he has devised to stimulate jobs and conserve fuel. On Tuesday, the trip will take him to Kansas.

"I think the people he needs to sell his energy policy to are the congressmen," said M. A. Wright of Exxon, one of the oil executives Ford will see in an afternoon meeting. He has dinner scheduled with the governors of Texas, Arkansas, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

For Tuesday, Ford plans an early evening news conference and a private meeting with the governors of Kansas, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Colorado, Nebraska, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota.

The other traveler, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, left Sunday night. His job on this 10-day trip is to sell compromise to Israel and the Arabs. Egypt wants Israel to give up oil-producing territory it has captured in the Sinai desert as well as control of the strategic Gidi and Mitla passes.

Israel is seeking assurance that it will not just be faced with an unfavorable military situation if it withdraws and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has not been willing, or able, to guarantee non-belligerence.

"There isn't any fundamental change in our commitment to the security and the integrity of Israel," Ford told the Chicago Tribune Saturday in an interview.

Local Officials Explore More Federal Funding

By TEX DEWEESE
Pampa city officials were in Amarillo today exploring the possibility of obtaining additional federal funding.

Milton Saltzman, city personnel director, and David Callison, city planner, were to attend a 1 p.m. workshop session of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission in the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce conference room in the Amarillo Bldg.

The workshop, according to City Manager Mack Wofford, is designed to brief officials in cities under 50,000 population that are potential candidates for federal funds set aside under the Community Development Act of 1974 "to provide decent housing, suitable living environment and expand economic opportunities for persons of low and moderate incomes."

IN BORGER

Officers Arrest Robbery Suspect

By ALETHA DAVIS

A man charged with the aggravated robbery of the J and J Truck Stop, west of Pampa, Saturday night is in custody in Borger where he is charged with possession of an unlawful weapon.

A warrant has been issued from Gray County for the man, Andrew Charles Tillmon, 30, Borger.

He is wanted here on an aggravated robbery charge filed after the truck stop robbery which was witnessed by several persons who were in the station. The man reportedly walked in and told the attendant, Orvis Martin, "Give me your money or I'll kill you."

Martin told investigating Gray County officers he at first thought the man was kidding. Reportedly the threat convinced the attendant that the suspect was serious.

The man took approximately $50 from the cash register before fleeing in his automobile. A witness obtained a license number as the man drove off.

The attendant told officers the manager had removed most of the money from the register when he came on duty at 7 p.m. The robbery took place at 7:40 p.m. and Borger officers, manning a road block on State Highway 152, apprehended the man without incident at 8:28 p.m., Deputy Ken Keith said today.

The man is expected to be returned to Gray County after charges in Borger have been handled.

Pampa police are still searching for two suspects in the Friday night robbery of Piggy Wiggy Store in Coronado Center. Police today said store officials reported approximately $1200 was taken by the two suspects, who robbed the store shortly after 8 p.m. at gun point.

Officers are looking for the pair, described as in their late teens, both slight built with long hair. The suspect who held the gun and demanded the manager empty all the registers, was blonde and witnesses said he had a fuzzy beard and prominent front teeth. The second suspect was described as slight build with dark brown shoulder-length hair.

Detective Fred Brown said today the department is checking suspects and continuing the investigation. Pampa's first armed robbery of the year.

Only one armed robbery occurred within the city in 1974. Official files show that case was "closed."

DE Students Win Trophies

Distributive Education students from Pampa High School returned with 11 trophies from the Area VI conference at Wichita Falls held Friday and Saturday.

Troy Hester was named outstanding boy student of the year. He also placed third in the job interview event.

Nancy Monroe placed first in display contests and Phyllis Hunter gained first with her creative marketing manual.

Other local winners were: Jeri Bohlander, second place and second alternate in job interview.

Randy Turner, second place and first alternate in public speaking.

Gary Sanders, third in public speaking.

Debbie Rogers, third place, advertising.

Shelley Pilcher, second place with her manual on studies in marketing, department stores.

Troves Gilbert, second place with his manual on studies in marketing, specialty stores.

Mary Holman, third, sales demonstration.

Larry Petty, PHS junior, competed for president of Area VI.

Local DECA members will be attending the state convention March 7-8 at San Antonio. Gary Sanders will be running for state vice president.

SUPPER DECORATIONS — Mrs. Randy Reeve, left, helps steady the ladder for Cindy Alexander while decorating St. Matthew's Episcopal Parish Hall in preparation for the 20th annual Pancake Supper on Shrove Tuesday. The pancakes will be served from 5-8 p.m. Tuesday. See story this page.

Egypt Suggests Partition For Arab, Jewish State

By United Press International
Egypt has urged the United States and the Soviet Union to work for a Middle East settlement through partition of Palestine in an Arab and a Jewish state, the Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said today.

The Egyptian government memorandum, a copy of which was sent to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, calls for a return to the original U.N. resolution of 1947 which sanctioned the state of Israel but also urged creation of an Arab state in what was then Palestine.

The West Bank of Jordan was later joined to King Hussein's Trans-Jordan but conquered by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war.

The newspaper report appeared hours before Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's arrival in Israel to start negotiating a second-stage Israeli troop withdrawal agreement with Egypt in the Sinai desert.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Sunday in a Mexican television interview he was willing to meet Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "any time, any place."

Rabin told the Mexican television conglomerate Televisa's "Sunday through Sunday" program that agreement with Egypt was "the key" to harmony in the region.

"I believe that once Egypt decides to put an end to war and to establish peace with Israel then all the Arab nations — regardless of what they may think or what their desires may be — would have to follow Egypt," Rabin said.

Rabin also said a possible solution to the problem of Jerusalem was "to give jurisdiction over the Christian and Moslem holy places to the various religious authorities involved."

Rabin, Defense Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yigal Allon will conduct the talks with Kissinger, but the entire Israeli cabinet was alerted for possible special sessions to take on - the spot decisions during Kissinger's mission.

According to the Egyptian peace plan, the Palestinian people must be party to a just and durable peace and have the right to return to their homeland to live in independence and national sovereignty.

"Participation of Palestinian representatives under the leadership of the PLO at the coming peace talks at Geneva is essential for achieving a just and permanent settlement of the Middle East crisis," Al-Ahram quoted the memorandum.

Israeli opposition leaders today condemned Kissinger's step-by-step approach to Middle East peace and demanded new elections on grounds the Rabin government has no mandate to surrender more territory to Egypt.

Three leaders of the right-wing Likud party told a news conference the government cannot surrender the Mitla and Gidi passes or the Abu Rodels oil fields while a state of war exists with Egypt unless a peace treaty is offered in exchange.

Cosmonauts Gaze At Saturn Rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Russia's Apollo-Soyuz cosmonauts gazed at America's towering Saturn rocket for the first time today and promised the Apollo launch crew "we will do our best" when the Russians meet three astronauts in orbit this summer.

"I know the Apollo spacecraft is ready for flight and the Soyuz is ready for flight too," Soyuz commander Alexei A. Leonov told the gathering of ground crewmen at the big Apollo launch complex.

Leonov and flight engineer Valeri N. Kubasov began the final U.S. training session for July's unprecedented orbital rendezvous with Apollo astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton.

"I am sure our joint flight will be completely successful because we have very good engineers at the Kennedy Space Center and very good engineers at the Baikonur Space Center," Leonov said in English. "We will do our best."

Leonov then gave KSC director Lee Scherer a three-inch gold medal depicting Yuri Gagarin, the Soviet pilot who was the world's first to venture into space. He was later killed in an airplane crash.

The cosmonauts and astronauts later looked at a full scale model of the Apollo and Soyuz spacecraft, facing nose to nose as they will be in orbit. From that replica, the Russians walked to a mobile launch platform and inspected the two stage Saturn IB rocket being readied inside an assembly building for launch in five months.

Their schedule later today called for them to get a close look at the Apollo, a revamped version of the spaceship that took me to the moon, and the craft's new docking module the Russians will see again in orbit.

The Soviet and American spacemen took a breathtaking ride Sunday through swirling galaxies and shooting stars, compliments of nearby Walt Disney World, getting a greater shake from the make believe rocket than they will when they soar into orbit.

"In our country, our doctors would have installed sensors to check heart beats and perhaps they would have said some of our cosmonauts would not answer the requirements," Leonov said after the Disney ride. Kubasov, like Leonov Stafford and Brand, a spaceflight veteran, admitted to being "a little scared" when the ride began.

Leonov, Kubasov, chief cosmonaut Vladimir Shatalov and six backup cosmonauts arrived at Cape Canaveral Saturday to begin the final U.S. training sessions for history's first space linkup.

The IRS Will Survive

Unlike the CIA and the FBI, the IRS snipers will prevail over Congress.

That is a prediction, not a hope.

In the wake of Watergate, snooping is out of favor. The message in Washington is fire alarm shrill: "Don't even bug your own office!" The prestigious G-men and the CIA, which has operated like a Persian empire unto itself since the Chinese invasion of Korea, have fallen into Congressional disgrace. The same net produced another fish, the Internal Revenue Service which revealed what everyone already knew: namely, the probingest beak of them all. Why then is there reason to believe that the greatest sinner will escape while the other two will be singed over the fires of representative indignation?

The difference between the IRS and other snooping agencies, we think, is this: without Congress the IRS is dead as an institution. The Constitution provides Congress can tax without limit. Therein is the fountain of legislative power. By taxation, Congress establishes new programs. By new programs, Congressmen and Senators become noted. By notoriety (commonly called name recognition) they survive. Suicide, political or otherwise, has not yet become the national sport. Therefore, the IRS that gets the money for Congress to spend, like the poor, can be counted on to be with us always.

A second point, perhaps minor, is that the IRS has put more Congressmen in jail than any other agency. Talk about having the goods, the IRS is loaded. If the U.S. Civil Service watergated a President out of office, how long do you suppose it would take the revenue men to flush the average lawmaker?

Of course, if all the solons stuck together? But who wants to organize the resistance? Moreover, stick together for what? To become extinct?

Don't look to Congress for help against the federal publicans. Lawmakers will not because (a) they will not, and (b) because they dare not.

Ecology With A Bounce

A marvelous characteristic of ecological systems is the ability to recover from disturbances or even to benefit as a result of them.

We heard that kelp, a variety of seaweed, actually improves in the vicinity of oil spills or natural secretions of oil. Our informant said the improvement has been traced to the fact that the oil is lethal to a type of sealife which otherwise snips the plant off at the base.

And this ability of nature to adapt includes not only what men do, but men themselves. The Geodetic Survey will take advantage of the Alaskan pipeline to drive stakes deep into the frozen tundra. These pegs will provide a means for measuring earth movements that are believed to be indicative of earthquakes. Five years ago, we published a UPI science report about the unusual blessings of hurricanes. U.S. geologists had found that rains associated with a dying hurricane recharges inland groundwater reserves. The same source mentioned that lightning kills people and cattle, but at the same time produces about 100 million tons of fixed nitrogen a year to enrich the soil. It termed nitrogen that has been oxidized by lightning discharges "one of nature's most powerful fertilizers."

The case isn't all one-sided. Humans can befoul their earthly habitat. Yet in the natural scheme there seems to be a capacity for men and things to work together for the benefit of both. It's a delicate balance, hardly subject for rule-making.

The ancient Greeks believed that Narcissus roots could draw out splinters.

CONSERVATIVE ADVOCATE Rocky Lair Of General Ho

By WILLIAM RUSHER

QUEMOY — For 26 years this rocky little Nationalist-held island, only ten miles long, has stuck like a bone in the throat of Amoy Harbor, defying the Communists on the Chinese mainland and serving as a vital forward base for the defense of Taiwan. To see it today, newly planted with trees and honeycombed with miles of tunnels — "a garden above ground and a fortress below" — and then to turn and head for home, where Congress is readying a "Watergate-style" investigation to torment the CIA, is to step from a world of purpose and whole-souled dedication back through the looking-glass into a feld of sick, self-destructive impulses.

A visit to Quemoy is strictly a military affair, under the jurisdiction of Nationalist China's Ministry of National Defense, and mine began at 5:30 a.m. in Taipei, when young Captain Wu arrived to accompany me to the airport. There we boarded a four-prop C-54 which (as I reminded him) was a good deal older than Captain Wu, and headed south down the west coast of Taiwan. Just about where the Tropic of Cancer bisects the island the plane turned westward, descended to 600 feet above the sea (below the effective range of the Communist radar on the mainland) and skimmed across the 100-mile-wide Strait of Formosa to Quemoy.

Waiting for us at the airstrip was Marine Major General Li Chang-hao, official spokesman of the Defense Ministry, who was to be my escort on the island. In a two-jump cavalcade, we set out for a look at Quemoy.

The military value of Quemoy is, of course, very considerable. In addition to serving as an observation post right under the noses of the Communists in Amoy, it could and would wreak havoc on any invasion attempt against Taiwan from that whole area of the Chinese compass. Together with Matsu, the Nationalist base off Poochow 150 miles to the north, it would compel any Communist invaders to circle far to the north, or south en route to Taiwan — dangerously increasing their exposure to Taiwan's modern naval and air forces.

In addition, the sheer psychological affront to Chinese Communist sensibilities represented by Quemoy is enormous. Its average distance from the mainland (which surrounds it on three sides) is about five miles; one Communist-held islet is a scant 4000 feet away. Quemoy not only beams radio broadcasts to the mainland; it can, and does, use loudspeakers. In 1949 the Communists lost 7000 men trying to capture it. Since then, they have prudently stayed away.

Touring the island (which supports a civilian population of 61,000, self-sufficient in everything but rice), one can see why. It must surely be the most heavily fortified place of its size on earth. The strength of the Nationalist garrison is of course a secret, and visual estimates are deceptive because the entire military establishment is underground: squirreled away in the hard gray rock of which the island luckily consists. But tunnel entrances, concrete barriers and camouflaged gun emplacements are everywhere, and the otherwise inviting beaches are thickly strewn with barbed wire and mines. Under the principal hill at the eastern end of the island a whole 1000-seat auditorium has been carved out of the solid rock; movies are shown to the troops there, three times a day. Somewhere else under the hill, amid a labyrinthine complex of air-conditioned tunnels, is the command post of General Ho. He is the commander of the garrison, and he doesn't intend to leave Quemoy.

All too soon it is time to go. In less than 36 hours I will be back in the good old USA, where the draft-dodgers and deserters are demanding unconditional amnesty and the FBI has been accused of failing to destroy information on the sex habits of congressmen. I am no flagellant; I am looking forward to my first meal in my favorite New York restaurant. But there is a part of me that will remain with General Ho, in his rocky lair in Amoy Harbor. He knows why he is there, and he means to stay.

FORD'S PROPOSAL Potentially Explosive Issue

By C. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Ford's proposal to open the Elk Hills, California, Navy oil reserve to ease the energy crisis is a potentially explosive political issue.

U.S. Rep. John Moss (D-Cal.) is already insisting on a thorough airing of what he calls the "exploitation" of a "$30 billion national treasury" which has been set aside for emergency military use. Moss said that the energy crisis is being used as a justification for opening it up to exploitation by major oil companies, who he characterizes as "those responsible for much of our present energy difficulty."

Moss, chairman of the major investigating subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, will have jurisdiction to investigate oil company efforts to exploit the Elk Hills area.

The fact that Elk Hills was one of the Navy oil reserves involved in the Harding Administration's infamous Teapot Dome scandals makes it particularly vulnerable to critics who see parallels with the earlier action to permit big oil to exploit a natural resource that is linked with military security.

Even before he recently won the chairmanship of the powerful investigating subcommittee, Moss had challenged Ford's Elk

Hills proposal and termed it "commercial exploitation" of the oil reserves which was "a virtual guarantee that two major oil corporations — Standard Oil of California (SOCAL) and Shell — will gain access to and possession of one of America's most priceless resources."

Moss declared that in making the proposal Ford and Interior Secretary Rogers Morton have "ignored repeated warnings from me, the Navy and the Justice Department's Antitrust Division" of probable antitrust law violations.

Since 1970, the Antitrust Division has been involved in an investigation of SOCAL's role in Elk Hills and has obtained internal Justice Department documents warning the White House of SOCAL's control over all oil sales if Elk Hills is opened up. He has noted that SOCAL owns 20 percent of the reserve and operates it for the Navy, and has the only pipeline outlet from Elk Hills.

"Justice questioned whether a fair market price could be obtained under such circumstances, even with a show of competitive bidding," Moss said. "Restraint of trade in the reserve's area, coupled with existing contracts, virtually ensure control of any major production to SOCAL and Shell."

Moss said that Shell holds a contract for surplus reserve production, and noted that when the contract was awarded both Shell and SOCAL submitted identical bids.

"President Nixon and then Attorney General (John)

Mitchell signed off on the agreement," Moss said, hinting that this was a questionable sign-off.

Moss said that in October, 1974, the Antitrust Division made all reports available to the White House Domestic Council staff, Morton, Undersecretary of the Interior John Whitaker (once a SOCAL employee) and Assistant Secretary of Defense for Installations and Logistics Arthur Mendola.

Yet these officials, testifying before a congressional committee, made no reference to the reports of the Antitrust Division on the opening of Elk Hills.

"Should 'commercial exploitation' commence, the Navy would be instantly forced into massive production, effectively ending the reserve's defense usefulness," Moss said. Moss also fears that SOCAL would argue that it is no longer obliged to pay $5.4 million in operating costs and oil it owes the Navy under existing agreements.

The California Democrat contends that a responsible opening up of Elk Hills requires government acquisition of SOCAL's "in holdings" on the reservation and acquisition of existing pipelines to insure competitive bidding.

Moss has already accumulated sufficient internal documents from the Justice Department and the Interior Department on past investigations and recommendations on Elk Hills to embarrass Ford if he does not take some steps to minimize SOCAL's financial hold on Elk Hills.

Dear Abby

A message of goodwill and common sense

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-Herald, Inc. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: For the last few months, I have been reading and hearing about the riots and demonstrating at the Boston schools. I wish some of them would visit my school for one week.

I am a white, senior girl at a totally integrated high school. This is our fifth year of total integration, and I guess this is the reason I cannot understand the people of Boston.

The president of our student body is black, and he chose me as his secretary. Working together, we forget the color of our skin and concentrate on the common goal of the students — to have the best school ever.

In my high school years, I have gone through many changes along with my classmates. I have learned to love according to character, not color. I have learned about life other than as an upper-middle-class white. I have made many black friends that I wouldn't trade for anything or anybody. I feel that our school has made a great step forward for our country. It's only a start, but it's an improvement.

I am asking the people of Boston to please give desegregation a chance. We live in this country together, yet you are afraid to reach out to a fellow American. Please open your eyes! This is America, and we are all free. Why can't we love each other without prejudice? Won't you help me say it, Abby? Just sign me —

STUDENT: HENRY COURTNEY SR. HIGH
MC DONOUGH, GA.

DEAR STUDENT: You've said it well. And I'm willing to give you a message of goodwill and common sense wider circulation.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the wife who had a fit when she caught her husband using her toothbrush (he couldn't find his) brought back memories.

Several years ago, when I was a young divorcee, I fell in love with a divorced man. We wanted to be married in a church by a minister, but finding one who would marry two divorced people wasn't easy in those days.

We finally found a minister who said he might perform the ceremony if we would answer some questions first. After a few minutes of chitchat, he hit us with the big question. "If you had no other choice, would you use your mate's toothbrush?"

At the time we both thought that was about the dumbest question we'd ever heard, but we thought for a few minutes and both said: "Yes."

The minister smiled and said: "Using someone else's toothbrush is positive proof of total commitment. I'll perform the ceremony." And he did.

We've laughed about it since then, but now we realize how wise he was.

HAPPY IN FORT PIERCE, FLA.

DEAR HAPPY: Thanks for brushing me up on what constitutes "total commitment." It's better than a paste in the mouth.

DEAR ABBY: Bruce and I are both in our early twenties and have been happily married for two years. A rather peculiar situation has arisen between us and I would appreciate your opinion.

Several nights in the past month I have been awakened by my husband's amorous advances, which culminate in making love. Bruce never said anything during these encounters, but was otherwise unusually loving and aggressive.

Afterwards we slept. In the morning when I made subtle comments regarding his previous night's behavior, he always seemed to miss the point, so I didn't pursue it.

Last night it happened again, just as before, but I suddenly realized what was so strange about it. Bruce had been sound asleep!

What bothers me is this: How does a woman interpret such behavior? Could it indicate infidelity (or the desire for it) on my husband's part? Sign me —

WIDE AWAKE

DEAR WIDE: Why look for interpretations? Such encounters needn't be examined for unconscious motivations. And whether they're endured or enjoyed is for you to decide.

Church News

PRAYER GROUP
 The Ruby Ashworth Mission Prayer Group met Wednesday, Feb. 5, at 10 a.m. at the church.
 Mrs. Owen Johnson, chairman, was in charge of the meeting. She reported that she had corresponded with Mrs. Ashworth, for whom the group is named. She reminded the group that the WMU Missions Fair will be next Wednesday, Feb. 12, at 6:15 p.m., at the church. She also stated that the regular monthly general meeting will be on that date at 12 noon. She informed the group that the February mission action project is to give donations to purchase advertising for the Spanish Baptist Mission here in Pampa. The ladies gave an offering for this.
 Mrs. Johnson brought the "Call to Prayer" using a Valentine heart with praying hands in the center and the names of missionaries having birthdays on this day placed around them.
 The program on "Deaf" was opened by Mrs. R.I. Edmondson. Also assisting on the program were Mmes. Tommie Grant, Lee Moore and Elmer Wilson. Then all participated in a True-False test of information about deaf people. Special needs of the deaf were presented and prayers for these needs to be met were voiced.
 Members attending were Mmes. S.E. Waters, Louis Tarpley, W.R. Morris, Ed Langford, Grant, Wilson, Moore, Edmondson and Johnson. One visitor, Mrs. Myron Porter, WMU Director, was welcomed to the prayer group.
 The meeting was dismissed with sentence prayers.
 The next meeting of this group will be March 12 at the church.

4-H Fair, Camp, Projects Is Adult Leaders Discussion

Elaine Webb presented the program at the Monday evening meeting of the 4-H Adult Leaders Association held in the Courthouse Annex, with Mrs. E.H. Brainerd, chairman, presiding.
 Miss Webb presented the demonstration on the purchase of a typewriter which won her a district title and later was presented at state.
 Her topic, "Adult - Teens Can Be Consumers," stating to make your own decision, read, look, listen and comparison buying is best.
 The 4-H Motto and Prayer, led by Miss Webb and Molly Carlton, opened the meeting. They are members of the Lefors 4-H Club and both are Gold Star 4-H Girls.
 Miss Ranette Miller and Layton Barton, newly appointed Gray County Assistant Extension Agents, were introduced and Miss Miller told of responsibilities of an adult leader stating the purposes of 4-H are to develop leadership; practice democracy; acquire knowledge and skills; develop new interests; make new friends; and have fun.
 She also gave a demonstration of a well balanced 4-H Club and in concluding stated that all club projects need to be well planned.
 Business discussed included ideas for a County Fair, suggestions for new 4-H projects and the possibilities of a Gray County summer 4-H camp, with group volunteers to inquire about available camp sites.
 The Electric Camp, scheduled for July 11 for 13 year - olds, is held annually in Cloud Croft.

N.M. Projects for this event should begin now.

The Gray County Home Demonstration Council will give a $300 scholarship to a local 4-H girl and it was announced that other scholarships for 4-H members are available and should be used.

Don Morrison reported the Gray County Livestock Show will begin Saturday, March 1, at Recreation Park. A barbecue for adult 4-H leaders, parents and guests is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Monday. The Top O' Texas Show, which includes six counties, will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Show Barn and the Livestock Sale Wednesday will terminate the event.

Two County agents and 12 adult leaders are eligible from the 22 county district to attend an adult leaders meeting April 2-5 in Brownwood, with a Feb. 24 deadline for making reservations. Contact the extension office, if interested.

Gray County Extension Agents, Mrs. Elaine Houston, Foster Whaley, and approximately 20 leaders attended the meeting. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bob Skaggs.

Dr. Long Presents PTA Council Program

The February meeting of Pampa City Council PTA was held at Carver Center, with President, Mrs. Tommy Hill, presiding.

Sam Begeri gave the devotional on the debate between Madeline Murray O'Hare and Dr. Criswell. Begeri said that we as parents today have a harder job than our parents did. Mrs. O'Hare's followers are growing, and it is our young people that are going her way. Begeri said that if he had not known differently, he could have been convinced by some of her statements. Our children need a firm religious foundation to fight these movements.

According to the February District Newsletter, there will be a meeting of the Executive Committee on Feb. 20. Founders Day will be Feb. 17. Bill Lee, District 8 President, thanked Marni Travis, and Wilson PTA's for their contributions to the President's Travel Fund. The District Spring Conference will be held in Borger on April 14 and 15.

Oklahoma PTA has challenged Texas PTA in membership enrollment. It claims it will have more new members during the 1974 - 1975 school year than Texas.

The nominating committee will report next month. Dr. Dan Long is chairman of the committee. Achievement Reports are due March 15 from the presidents.

Dr. Long presented the program, "Study of Accreditation Process in Pampa Schools." He discussed the functions of the TEA and Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Mrs. Hill announced that Texas Public School Week will be March 2-7 and urged parents to visit Pampa schools then. St. Vincent School served as hosts for the meeting.

NOTICE CLUB REPORTERS

GASLIGHTS BACK NEWPORT, R. I. (UPI)

Gaslights are being returned to the streets of the historic city where they were first used.

The first of 86 lamps was installed on Pelham Street, reportedly the site of the first gas lamp in America which stood in front of the home of David Melville in 1805.

The gas lights, donated by local groups, are Newport's first in 50 years.

SPACE RIDE ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)

Tourists heading for this Florida area will discover they don't have to go to outer space to get a ride in a moon rocket. The new RCA Space Mountain—towering 183 feet above ground—offers a spectacular "ride through space" at the Walt Disney World. Located in "Tomorrowland," it also provides a look into future electronic living and other exhibits.

Young Laborer Confesses To Torture Murders

PORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — A 24-year-old laborer, accompanied by his pastor, walked into police headquarters Sunday and confessed to the October torture murders of three women and two children. He also told police he killed two other women to death Saturday night and raped a baby sitter the same evening.

The October murders had been the homicide department's No. 1 unsolved crime ever since the bodies were discovered. But police did not know of the weekend murders until the suspect showed officers the bodies.

The laborer told police he killed his victims during sex attacks.

The suspect told police he bound the baby sitter and two children during his last attack and then tied up the children's parents when they returned home.

Homicide Lt. Oliver Ball, who has assigned every officer available to solve the Oct. 8 murders, said officers were prepared to file seven murder charges against the suspect. He also said District Attorney Tim Curry was filing charges of aggravated rape against the suspect.

Officers said the man worked at an envelope manufacturing company.

Curry said he will seek the death penalty in the case since state law prescribes the death penalty when murders are committed during rapes.

Ball said details of the arrest would be announced at a news conference today.

After the suspect turned himself over to police he led them to an apartment where officers found the victims of the Saturday night killings, Betty Williams, 24, and Vera Louise Hill, 21. They had been bound with strips of bed sheets and stabbed to death with a knife.

It's a miracle he didn't murder the baby sitter and the other people he tied up in the house, an investigator said.

"One of them was a little baby. It appears that rape was the motive behind the crimes," he said. "He claims that he raped and killed the women (in October) and that he then had to kill the two children at the Riverside Village apartment project because they were there and he had to do something with them."

On Oct. 8, a killer tortured and stabbed three women, a 3-year-old girl and a 2-year-old boy. Their hands had been tied behind their backs and rags were stuffed in the throats of the women. A bloody butcher knife was found on the floor.

On the day the five bodies were discovered last year, investigators speculated one man killed the three women and two children, hacking the women to death one-by-one with a butcher knife as they returned from a party in a nearby apartment.

The women were tied, gagged and stripped. The children were fully clothed and gagged but not bound. An investigator for the Tarrant County medical examiner said the children were stabbed as savagely and as frequently as the women, who were also mutilated.

The bodies were found at 7 a.m. Oct. 8 when Alexander

Small, a stepfather of two of the women, went to the first floor apartment to take two of the women to work at a nearby furniture store. When he failed to get an answer at the door, he went to another relative or help.

Nine days after the bodies were discovered and shortly after Police Chief T.S. Walls organized a special task force to solve the crimes, police arrested two Mexican nationals at the apartment complex where the five were killed and held them for questioning in the case.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

of it. Put off purchases or investments until tomorrow. Your viewpoints alter overnight.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take the easiest course now by completing routines. Tidying up clears the way for sweeping changes yet to come. Don't make conclusions in advance.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Collect what is yours, round up stray possessions, review budgets, but don't get so engrossed you neglect social amenities. You receive excellent returns in later hours.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be as charming as you can, but leave serious decisions out of today's transactions. Be self-sufficient and ready to help others, but only after they've asked you.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Early advances encounter resistance and changing conditions that yield valuable experience. Save your main resources for a better opportunity soon.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Don't believe the stories you hear or what you see. As you gain perspective, you'll understand and forgive. Take one thing at a time and in good humor!

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You'll have a pleasant time unraveling mysteries of human nature and the complex patterns of relationships. Material results of your efforts are deferred another day or two.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can't ignore matters completely, although you should let well enough alone. A great benefit is heading your way but is not yet ready for use.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Keep conversations rolling and people at ease, and don't pressurize anyone to get negotiations finished. This is not quite the right moment for important commitments of any kind.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Communications flourish and involve people you hadn't even planned to include. You face romantic situations, although little progress is likely just yet.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Both the young and old people teach you something pertinent. Experiments and speculations have odd, unexpected results. You've got plenty to do tomorrow to correct today's wrong moves.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good luck is fleeting and carries responsibility. Be careful in taking advantage

Police Officers Arrest Two Burglary Suspects

Police arrested two burglary suspects at 8:30 p.m. Saturday after the silent alarm at It Faces North, 721 Montague, alerted officers the building had been entered.

Investigating officers arrested Frank Rincones Jr., 20, in a tree near the business and discovered Timothy Allen Blocker, 17, inside the business.

Police reports said the east side of the building had been entered by removal of boards across a window. Sheet rock blocking the window from inside the building also had been broken.

Explorers View Dairy Operations

The veterinary medicine post members viewed the operation and cleaning of the milking machine apparatus used on the farm.

Date of the next meeting is Wednesday, Feb. 12.

Officers also investigated a vandalism report filed by Gary James, 1618 Lincoln, at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. James told officers someone had damaged his car sometime between Feb. 7 and when he made the complaint.

Police reports said the back window of the car, parked at James' residence, had been broken with a pellet or .22 bullet. The complainant said the damage would probably amount to $50.

In another weekend incident, police checked out a burglary attempt at Frank's Royal Bar, 534 S. Cuyler. The complainant, Frank Rodriguez, owner, called police at 11:30 p.m. Sunday to report the break-in.

Reports said someone had kicked in the rear door of the bar and attempted to take money from the pool table and jukebox. The complainant advised officers 16 cans of beer and an undetermined amount of chewing gum had been stolen.

Russell's Stand May Be Knocking Himself

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Red Auerbach calls Bill Russell the finest basketball player he has ever seen, or as he puts it, "the single most devastating force in the history of the game," and Bill Russell may be all that, but by any scale of 10, this last play of his is a bummer and nets him a bignothing.

It leaves him in the awkward position of standing all by himself in mid-court with his foot in his mouth.

He's putting up a straw man to knock down, protesting an imagined injustice which really does not exist. Worst of all, he is doing the cause he espouses little good whatsoever. All he really is doing is denying people the pleasure of honoring him for his accomplishments, and the ironic part of that is he may not even be succeeding in doing that.

Among those who follow basketball, there is little question that Bill Russell was the foremost defensive player of his day, quite possibly the finest defensive performer ever to play the game.

As a youngster with the University of San Francisco, he was one of the five best players in college basketball history and later when he played under Red Auerbach with the Boston Celtics, he helped lead them to 11 NBA championships during his 13-year career. He became the first black coach of the Celtics and presently is doing a good job coaching the Seattle Sonics.

Russell will be 41 this week. He quit playing at the end of the 1969 season, and since the rules for election to Basketball's Hall of Fame are similar to those for Baseball's Hall of Fame, he didn't become eligible for the basketball shrine in Springfield, Mass., until five years after he had hung up his sneakers. That means this year.

Like Ted Williams, Stan Musial and Sandy Koufax, Bill Russell made it on his first try. Fair enough. He deserved it. Nobody's arguing that.

What Bill Russell turned around and did, though, was announced Sunday he will refuse to show up for his induction into the Basketball Hall of Fame in mid-April.

"For my own personal reasons, which I don't want to discuss, I don't want to be part of it," Russell said in Seattle Sunday.

The former Celtics' star always has felt strongly about racial matters. He has always been outspoken about them, so there is every indication he is not happy with white-black imbalance which exists in Basketball's Hall of Fame. Some people have the idea there are no black individuals in the Hall, but that isn't so. The original New York Renaissance, made up completely of black players and known more popularly as "The Rens," were elected as a team in 1961, and their owner and coach, Robert O. Douglas, also black, was voted in some years afterward.

More than that, Russell seems to have undergone a change of mind somewhere along the line.

He showed no objection to being inducted along with three others when he first was notified of his election by Lee Williams, executive director of Basketball's Hall of Fame, a few weeks ago during the NBA's All-Star game in Phoenix.

"In our election process, we notify our living electees by a night letter wire which is now called a mail-o-gram," Williams explains. "I saw Bill twice in Phoenix and asked him if he got his mail-o-gram. He said he did. I congratulated him and told him we were very happy to welcome him to this distinguished group. He said nothing at all to give me the slightest idea he objected to being inducted."

"The following day I spoke with him again and he said there would be no problem. I gave him some of the details on how we unveil the new plaques in our Honors Court."

"Now all I can do is wonder what changed his mind. He hasn't told me. We talk about this being the age of communication, but I haven't heard a word from him. I've been getting everything second hand. If he felt this strongly about it, why didn't he tell me in Phoenix?"

There are 47 men on the Board of Trustees for Basketball's Hall of Fame. Among them are such men as NBA Commissioner Walter Kennedy; former Philadelphia franchise owner Eddie Gottlieb; Jack Twyman; Wayne Embury and Bob Kurland. It is up to them now whether or not Bill Russell goes into the Hall of Fame.

Most likely they'll vote him in anyway.

What will Bill Russell do then, demand a recount?

John Wins Again

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — When Arnold Palmer was cleaning up everything in sight on the golf tour, it wasn't all that hard for the weekend hacker to identify with the new king.

Arnie swung from his tall off the tee, attacked his iron shots and putted for broke. Off the course, he wasn't much different with his easy way and infectious smile.

Then came Jack Nicklaus and people found it a little difficult to see anything of themselves in him. Jack played golf perhaps the way the original Scots figured it should be — better perfect and introspectively. Off the course, he lived a rather secluded life wrapped up in his family and rarely talked about anything personal.

Now, along comes Johnny Miller, and he's a lot different than Arnie and Jack. He plays the game like a robot but probably is a little more human — a little more like the guy next door that is.

On the course, he's more like Nicklaus because he is able to shut out the crowd noise and concentrate solely on the shot at hand.

Off the course Miller is as human as your best friend. He likes to talk about family life and the problems in building a new home. He likes to go fishing and he worries a lot about where he is and where he is going. "I'm no different than before," is his favorite expression, and in many ways it's true.

Sunday's win of the Bob Hope Desert Classic was a perfect case in point.

Here, John had stayed up most of the night before with his sick infant daughter and obviously had lost a lot of sleep. Sunday morning he helped his wife, Linda, take 7-month-old Cassi to a local hospital where she is today with a case of the flu, and then he trotted off to church services before going to Bermuda Dunes for the last round.

Crowds as usual flocked around him and the clicking of cameras was endless. But Miller shut everything out when it would have been easy to lose his cool and the tournament.

Jerry Heard, Bob Murphy and Tom Shaw, his challengers, found out how tough Miller can be.

Miller shot a closing 68 to win the Hope by three strokes with a 90-hole score of 21-under-par 330.

"When I'm playing," said Miller as honestly as he could, "I shut out everything. Maybe that's the secret to my success. As for my daughter, please don't make too much of that."

Miller's victory in the Hope was the third this year, his 11th in the last 14 months and the 14th of his five-year career.

Palmer, who has won the Hope title five times, never was a factor and finished far back at 353, while defending champion Hubert Green was another two shots back.

Tulsa Surprises Cards In MVC Saturday, 82-77

By United Press International
The Louisville Cardinals may have been the third ranked team in the nation but Tulsa and its Grasshopper didn't seem too snowed by it all.

Louisville was chopped down for only the second time this season last Saturday night, dropping an 82-77 decision to the Golden Hurricane high demonstrated once again the balance usually obtained by the Missouri Valley Conference.

But despite the loss the Cardinals held on to their league lead by a half game over the New Mexico State Aggies, a team Louisville has already whipped twice.

Lurking only one game back in the loss column, however, is Drake (which has 4-3 record compared with Louisville's 7-2). The Bulldogs survived a near thing last week against Bradley and now have a chance to really make things interesting in the conference.

Drake lost in Louisville by only two points last month and next Thursday the Bulldogs catch the Cardinals again, this time in Des Moines. Louisville's first loss this season came to Bradley in Peoria after Bradley had lost by two points in Louisville.

The Cardinals, who are 16-2 for the season, became another in the long list of victims of Ken "Grasshopper" Smith in the game Saturday night.

Smith hit 26 points and the Golden Hurricane, inspired by a crowd of more than 7,000, was in control throughout the second half after opening up a 43-38 advantage after the first period.

New Mexico State won twice last week to boost its hopes for post-season play. The Aggies now have a league record of 7-3 and a season mark of 16-5. The only conference victory last week, however, came Saturday night over Wichita, 72-66, in which Dexter Hawkins and Russell Letz each scored 15 points.

Pampa Opens With Caprock

Pampa in recent years has seemed to reach its basketball peak at the end on non-conference play or early in district.

After last Friday's 61-52 win over Burger, it is evident Pampa is at its peak right now and there is nothing indicating the Harvesters are due for a let-up. Not since 1971 when Robert McPherson's Harvesters captured the 3-A AAA championship has Pampa played as well as this juncture.

Burger's losing out in the first half was very damaging to the Bulldogs since the schedule favors Pampa in the second half. Prior to the start of district, Burger was expected to win the first half and Pampa the second. New things points to a Pampa-Tascoma showdown.

"The schedule's in our favor in the second half," Pampa coach Robert McPherson said, but we have to remember to play the ball games one at a time. We can't afford a loss. Tascoma can tie for it and they're in."

The first team Pampa cannot afford to lose to is Caprock, which visits Harvester Fieldhouse Tuesday. Pampa downed the Longhorns, 69-67, when the teams met in the first half at Amarillo but Caprock has come alive in recent games.

Against Palo Duro last Tuesday, Bill White's run-and-shoot offense worked almost to perfection as Caprock whipped the Dons, 97-67, in the Amarillo Civic Center. Friday, Caprock lost to first half champ Tascoma, 63-56. In that game, Caprock trailed by only two, 57-55, with less than a minute to play.

The Pampa Shockers and Caprock junior varsity tangle at 6 p.m. Tuesday prior to the varsity contest.

A telephone call to Pioneer Natural Gas brings an air conditioning specialist to your home for a free survey and cost estimate at no obligation to you. He'll answer all your questions, and tell you what it will take to install GAS air conditioning in your home. It's the first easy step toward having your dependable GAS air conditioner installed before the first hot, windy days are here.

A GAS air conditioning system is ruggedly built to cool quietly and efficiently. There are fewer moving parts, and no compressor to break down or wear out. Heat from the steady blue flame circulates a refrigerant through the system to cool the air. It's this simple principle that gives GAS air conditioning its long life with no loss of cooling capacity and easy maintenance.

Machinists Union Strikes McDonnell

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The 12,000-member machinists union at McDonnell Douglas Corp., where Phantom fighter jets are manufactured, set up picket lines at 12:01 a.m. Monday in a strike that could spread to 18,000 other workers.

A spokesman for the International Association of Machinists Aerospace Lodge 837 said members walked picket lines in 11-degree temperature at 44 gates leading to nine different buildings at the main McDonnell complex.

In addition, the union said it had a commitment from 11,000 United Auto Workers and 7,000 members of IAM at McDonnell's six California plants to join picketing at midnight Pacific time. However, local UAW officials in Los Angeles said no walkout was planned and union members would meet Monday to decide whether to strike.

Male Nurse Had Argued With Victim

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — A male nurse charged with bludgeoning to death the wife of a relative of the Wrigley chewing gum heir reportedly had been arguing with the victim and was about to be fired from his $100-a-day job.

Dan Bedelian had been hired three months ago to take care of her husband, A. G. Atwater, 67, an invalid, who is the brother-in-law of chewing gum magnate Philip Knight Wrigley.

He was arraigned Friday on suspicion of killing Atwater's 50-year-old wife, Nancy, whose body was found Thursday in an oil drum filled with wet cement.

The suspect was held on $250,000 bond pending further proceedings Thursday.

David Jacobson, who also cared for Atwater, said Mrs. Atwater and Bedelian had repeatedly argued over Bedelian's work. Jacobson said Mrs. Atwater had told him Bedelian would be fired.

Mrs. Atwater was first reported missing Wednesday morning when she failed to appear in Santa Ana Superior Court for a hearing regarding her husband's $10 million estate.

Jacobson said Bedelian told him the woman had gone out Tuesday night and had not returned. Police said Jacobson called officers after he saw the suspect painting over what he said was spilled cranberry juice on a wall.

Her body, clad in a nightgown and robe, was found in a Sun Valley, Calif. auto wrecking yard Wednesday afternoon. An autopsy revealed she died from brain damage and hemorrhaging from a blunt blow to the head. It was believed she was killed sometime early Wednesday.

Police said they confiscated a five-pound brass statuette, believed to be the death weapon, and two 14-inch knives, but they refused to discuss a possible motive for the slaying.

Bedelian, who police said is a naturalized citizen, came to the United States from Lebanon in 1957 or 1958 and got his job at the Atwater's palatial Cameo Shores home through a brother, who also once worked for the Atwaters.

The Almanac

By United Press International
Today is Monday, Feb. 10, the 41st day of 1975 with 324 to follow.
The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Mars.
The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.
American journalist William Allen White was born on Feb. 10, 1868. A famous actor-entertainer Jimmy Durante (1893) and Robert Wagner (1930) also were born on this date.

On this day in history:
In 1942, the American auto industry shut down its civilian car assembly lines for the duration of World War II and converted to military production.

In 1962, U2 spy plane pilot Francis Gary Powers was returned to the United States in exchange for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

In 1964, an Australian aircraft carrier and a U.S. destroyer collided in the Tasman Sea, killing 100 American naval men.

In 1974, Britain's 260,000 miners went on strike in a wage dispute.

A thought for the day: British writer Samuel Johnson said: "The first years of man must make provision for the last."

TEXAS SECESSION

On Feb. 1, 1861, Texas voted to secede from the Union.

No More Heart Surgery Travel?

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Texas physician said today people needing heart surgery don't have to travel thousands of miles to large medical centers when the same care is available in their home towns.

Dr. Joe A. Arrington, Jr. of Methodist Hospital said the Lubbock facility has as good a record in successful heart surgery as do medical centers in Houston, Philadelphia and New York.

"If you live 30 miles from a small community and instead of your doctor sending you 1,000 miles away, he sends you 30 miles and you get the same workup and operation, its better for you," Arrington said.

"The family doesn't have to go so far and the results are the same. It saves the average family $3,000."

Arrington told the opening session of the American College of Cardiology conference open heart surgery only requires trained physicians and proper facilities. He said the heart clinic at Methodist, which is associated with Texas Tech University School of Medicine, is a result of citizen concern.

"The community pitched in and did it all," he said. "All you need is good community spirit and you can build the facilities and bring the doctors in."

Methodist Hospital was a 25-bed facility in 1925 and is now a 549-bed hospital serving a population of 170,000, compared to the 7,500 in 1925, he said.

Arrington said the doctors at Methodist have the same training as big city heart surgeons, all certified by the American Board of Cardiology and the American Board of Cardiovascular Surgery.

"Most of us had our specialty training in New York and came back home," he said. "We brought our training back home where it is needed as badly as anywhere else. It's a simple thing. If you were going to raise your children, where would you raise them, in Philadelphia or another large city or back home?"

Arrington said doctors at Methodist have done 3,000 heart studies and 900 open heart operations the past four years.

"With this we've had the same success ratio with improvement in care, loss of pain and all the same statistics as the large centers," he said.

HEIFETZ BORN
Violinist Jascha Heifetz was born Feb. 2, 1901.

HEALTH'S-A-POPPIN'

Glaucoma can destroy sight

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Most of us secure our homes and valuables against prowlers, but if you're approaching 40 or older and aren't having regular eye examinations, you're leaving something far more precious unguarded.

In its most common form, glaucoma may gradually, painlessly destroy your sight. Early detection is the key in halting its progress and saving your vision, yet some one million Americans may have glaucoma without even realizing it. You could be one of them.

What is glaucoma? Experts say there are various types, but all are associated with a buildup of pressure within the eyeball stemming from "...either too much fluid entering or too little draining away..." This can reduce the amount of blood reaching and nourishing the optic nerve and may result in destruction of the fibers and nerve cells which make sight possible. Sometimes glaucoma strikes suddenly, but the most common type progresses gradually. Even a month's delay in detection may mean a bit more sight irretrievably lost.

Who gets glaucoma? It becomes increasingly prevalent after about age 35. The incidence is several times higher among those with a family history of the ailment. If this applies to you, alert your eye specialist.

Are there warning signs to watch for? Especially in the early stages, you may not notice any symptoms, yet glaucoma may be slowly eroding sight. For this reason, regular eye examinations at intervals recommended by your eye specialist are especially important after about age 35.

However, authorities do list several symptoms which may (but don't always) signal glaucoma and should be promptly reported to your physician. They include: (1) frequent changes of glasses without much improvement in sight; (2) a loss of side vision, often progressive, in one eye or both (however, your remaining vision may be as good as always); (3) blurring or fuzziness of vision, which may come and go; (4) trouble focusing when doing close work; (5) "...rainbow-colored rings (halos) around lights..."; (6) a hard time adjusting to darkened rooms (movie theaters, a darkened television room) or eye aches or vague headaches, especially under such viewing conditions; (7) eye changes such as eyeball hardness, change in color, clouding of the cornea.

If the diagnosis is glaucoma, how can you cooperate with your eye specialist to help safeguard your remaining sight? While no two patients are exactly alike, many can benefit from the following guidelines as applied by their ophthalmologist to their particular case.

First and most important, follow your physician's instructions carefully, especially when it comes to taking medication and returning for periodic checkups.

Try to minimize unnecessary stress. Authorities say that "...situations which make you nervous or worried can raise the pressure in the eyeball..."

Such stimulants as tea and coffee may increase pressure within the eye, and "tobacco may cause constriction of the blood vessels supplying the optic nerve..." Ask your doctor what limits you should place on the use of these items, or better yet, consider cutting them out entirely, especially tobacco.

Avoid prolonged periods of dark-room viewing (such as many hours at the movies or wearing sunglasses unnecessarily) and leave a light on during television viewing.
