Gold mine fire kills as many as 184

EVANDER, South Africa (AP) — A raging fire one mile underground sent deadly chemical fumes billowing through a mine shaft, and officials said today as many as 184 miners died and 235 were injured in South Africa's worst gold mine disaster.

Patrick Njokwane, steward at the Kinross mine's No. 2 shaft 62 miles east of Johannesburg, said eight miners remained missing more than 24 hours after the fire broke out Tuesday morning in a welding accident.

Mine officials said there was little chance the missing workers survived.

Njokwane said six more bodies were brought up from the mine at 8 a.m. today, raising the death toll from the 170 given by officials at an early-morning news conference at the site.

The National Union of Mineworkers, which claims as members about half the gold-mining industry's 450,000 black workers, said more than 180 miners were killed.

The casualty toll was the highest reported in a gold mine accident in South Africa since the metal was discovered in the Johannesburg area 100 years ago, and the second worst mining disaster in the nation's history.

A union statement blamed "unacceptable low safety standards" and said the disaster made mining industry claims "of having the lowest fatality rate in the world absurd."

Dick Grenfell, 38, a Briton who survived the fire, said he was deeper down the mine than the worst-hit levels.

The miners at the affected levels "didn't stand a chance. They were trying to reach the shaft so they could escape in the cage, but were trapped by the smoke.

"They just ran into a wall of smoke and must have dropped like flies," Grenfell said in a telephone interview with Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency.

"The injuries of the people are terrible. Some were complaining of chest pains. They were suffering from terrible burns," Njokwane said.

Jacobus Olivier, manager of General Mining Union Corp. mines, said at least 165 of the dead miners were black and five were white.

Of the injured sent to hospitals, at least 52 were whites and 183 were blacks, he said.

Most of the underground labor force in South African mines are black men who live as migrants in hostels, while their families remain in black homelands or neighboring countries. Whites go underground in supervisory positions.

Bill Clements, Republican candidate for governor, was in Midland Tuesday campaigning and meeting with supporters. He faces incumbent Mark White in the general election.

Industry on 'razor's edge,' Clements tells oil engineers

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

"I am optimistic about the outlook for the Texas oil industry," said gubernatorial candidate and former governor Bill Clements, speaking to the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers.

In Midland for a series of meetings, Clements told the engineers that the Texas oil industry would be back with opportunities like it used to have. "It may not be back with 4,500 rigs," he warned, "but I am not so sure that wasn't an artifical situation. I am convinced we can have a viable industry with far less rigs."

Clements said he put great stock in tertiary recovery for the future of Texas. "There's no doubt that the industry in on the verge of a whole new frontier with tertiary — right on the razor's edge," he said.

He said most of the oil in Texas lends itself to tertiary recovery and that new technology in microbiological stimulation and reservoir studies using logging and geophysics could provide major breakthroughs. I am very excited about these new technologies," said the former drilling contractor and founder of Sedco.

He recalled that when he started in the industry in the thirties no one had ever heard of secondary recovery. "Look where that frontier brought us," he said. "There is no doubt the Texas petroleum industry will be alive and well as we go into the 21st century."

Prison Management Act draws candidate's fire

From Staff Reports

Republican gubernatorial nominee Bill Clements Tuesday pointed to the Texas Prison Management Act, signed into law by Gov. Mark White in 1983, as a major reason for the state's prison system crisis.

"The fact is that Mark White signed into law the Texas Prison Management Act in 1983 which automatically releases prisoners early when the Department of Corections reaches 95 percent of total capacity," Clements told reporters during a news conference at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

"The fact is Mark White signed into law a bad bill and now the state of Texas faces an emergency. Mark White's answer is early release, easy release. He is attempting to avoid hitting the 95 percent limit by speeding paroles and engaging in early release, easy release."

Clements said the number of prisoners let out on parole has skyrocketed in the last year from 9,328 to 14,470.

That represents a one-year increase of more than 55 percent, or more than 5,000 additional prisoners, he said.

At the same time, Department of Public Safety Director Jim Adams said this week that the "rate of violent crime per 100,000 population rose 26.3 percent" during the first six month of 1986 compared with the same period in 1985.

"This policy of early release, easy release is contributing to the rapid increase in major categories of crime across the state of Texas," Clements said.

"There is no doubt about it. Now the state of Texas faces another crisis because of the Texas Prison Management Act.

"Mark White has totally fumbled the issue. It's really hurting Texas," Clements said.

Pilot launches 'duplicate' of transcontinental biplane flight

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP) — Jim Lloyd today began his re-creation of the first transcontinental flight 75 years ago that almost perfectly duplicates the event — down to the itinerary, plane and public relations value.

At a signal from a television crew member, whose network broadcast the event live, Lloyd taxied down Frank Sinatra Drive for about 100 feet before lifting into the air at 7:58 a.m. A crowd of several hundred, who braved chilly temperatures, cheered and waved.

Lloyd flew a near-replica of Wright brothers plane that weighed not much more than he.

The plane's wings dipped in the breeze before Lloyd circled over the Hudson River with the Manhattan skyline in the background. Balloons were released and a Secaucus High School band played "God Bless America."

The 38-year-old IBM metallurgist, an avid flyer and airplane history buff, is following the air path of Calbraith P. Rodgers, who took off from a Brooklyn, N.Y., racetrack the morning of Sept. 17, 1911.

"You get closer to feeling like a bird in this thing than you do in a regular airplane," Lloyd said shortly before taking off. He made his comments during an interview on ABC's "Good Morning America," which aired the takeoff.

He said: "You feel like an eagle. You feel like a hawk."

Hoboken mayor Thomas Vezzetti said the re-enactment "brings Hoboken to the forefront."

"It is one of the great events in my administration," Vezzetti said.

Lloyd said Tuesday, "One of the things is to let people know there was this guy Cal Rodgers who did this in 1911, which was a very brave thing."

"I want to play Cal Rodgers for six weeks. I want to see what it was like to fly back then," he said.

Lloyd said he considers the trip "a way to fly on someone else's money and have a great vacation."

Rodgers made the trip in response to a challenge by newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst, who had offered $50,000 to the first aviator to cross the country in under 30 days.

Hearst was an aiplane buff, said David Arns, a publicist for the company sponsoring Lloyd's exploit.

That company, Armour Food Co. of Omaha, Neb., also sponsored Rodgers' flight. The concern was then known as Armour and Co.

Rodgers had heard of Hearst's challenge and approached company President J. Ogden Armour for backing. Armour agreed, providing that Rodgers helped promote the company's new product, a grape-flavored soft drink called Vin Fiz.

Fifteen crashes, 76 stops and 49 days later, Rodgers and his Wright brothers-made biplane dubbed the Vin Fiz arrived in Long Beach, Calif.

Four months later, he died in a stunt show when he crashed trying to avoid a flock of seagulls.

Lloyd, of Fishkill, N.Y., saw the original plane in a museum and thought he'd like to duplicate the feat. He wrote Armour, asking for backing.

Armour agreed, and the publicity wheels went in motion. Media packets went out, interview requests came in and Lloyd was booked on a network television show. He planned his takeoff for 7:58 a.m. at the show's request.

Make-a-Wish sends young Texas cystic fibrosis victim to Disneyland

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A 5-year-old victim of cystic fibrosis, the nation's No. 1 genetic killer of children, got her wish to visit Disneyland and see Mickey and Minnie Mouse.

Kindergartner Mia Mireles of Mission, Texas, arrived at the Magic Kingdom Tuesday morning with her father David, a junior high school teacher.

"So far she's all excited. Yesterday we went by Knott's Berry Farm (amusement park). Definitely she had a tremendous time there," Mireles said.

All she had said since arriving in Southern California on Monday was: "When are we going on the rides and (to) see Mickey?" Mireles said.

Mia's visit was sponsored by the Make-a-Wish Foundation, which grants the fondest wishes of terminally ill children.

Most children with cystic fibrosis, a disease that attacks the respiratory system, never reach their 18th birthday. Doctors say the disease is the nation's No. 1 genetic cause of death.

Mia is not in pain yet, but probably will be in the next few years as she begins to grow, doctors have said.

"My IVs hurt and it hurts when I cough," Mia said last week before leaving Texas.

"She really doesn't know what she has. All she knows is that when she gets sick she has to go see the doctor," Mireles said.

For the past five years, the Mireleses have watched as the child's condition deteriorated.

Mireles holds two jobs to make ends meet. The family also includes another daughter, 7-year-old Irene.

"This trip came just in time," Mireles said, adding that his wife, Norma, who takes care of the children, needed a vacation. "Everyone has been so wonderful to us."

Mireles said the Make-A-Wish Foundation representative asked his daughter three questions.

"They asked her where she wanted to go. First, she said she wanted to go to Disneyland; the second one was Houston, because we always go there for her checkups and her third wish was Brownsville, because that's the only other place she knows," Mireles said with a laugh.

Mia's name was referred to a recently formed local division of the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

The Mireleses said their daughter's cheerfulness, despite her illness, has given them strength.

"When we see other children, I tell my wife we really don't have any problems. There are people whose children are worse than Mia," Mireles said. "We try to live as normally as possible and not talk about Mia's illness."

Crocket County wins round one in 'finders/keepers' money fight

SAN ANGELO (AP) — More than $600,000 found in stacks of $20, $50 and $100 bills in the trunk of a car stopped for speeding has pitted government against government over who gets to keep the suspected drug-money stash.

The first round was won by Crockett County Tuesday, when Judge Halbert O. Woodward in San Angelo denied the U.S. government's motion to dismiss the county's claim on that money.

"We have a chance for the money and that is good," Crockett County Judge A.O. Fields said after the ruling. "I have no idea when things may get going to claim the money. This is a different kind of case."

Texas highway patrol officers discovered the cash on May 11 after stopping a rental car for speeding on Interstate 10 three miles east of Ozona in West Texas.

Councilwoman criticized at BAC meeting; Others refute charges

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

Claims by leaders of two of the largest black organizations in Midland — the NAACP and the Black Advisory Council (BAC) — that Midland councilwoman Oralia Corrales doesn't communicate effectively and favors Hispanic interests, have been refuted by other black and Hispanic leaders.

A meeting of about eight BAC members with Ms. Corrales Tuesday night ended in a loud discussion.

NAACP President James Fuller began the meeting's question session by asking Ms. Corrales to assess her term so far in regard to her communication with her district.

"I'm pleased but no communication system is 100 percent efficient," Ms. Corrales said.

Hurricane Earl spinning itself out in Atlantic

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Earl continued spinning itself out in the mid-Atlantic Ocean with sustained winds down to 75 mph, according to forecasters waiting for its demise.

At 10:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday, the fifth-named storm of the 1986 Atlantic hurricane season was centered near latitude 30 north, longitude 50 west or about 880 miles east-southeast of Bermuda, according to an advisory by the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables.

Reagan modifying arms demand

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, in a move to bridge differences with the Soviets despite the arrest of an American reporter, is instructing U.S. negotiators to modify his demand for a 50 percent reduction in long-range nuclear weapons on both sides, a U.S. official said.

The plan, reducing a projected ceiling on strategic bombers and missiles, will be presented by Ambassador Max M. Kempelman at the negotiating table in Geneva when the new round of talks resume in the Swiss city on Thursday.

The official, who outlined the U.S. position on condition of anonymity, said the overall result would be a 30 percent cutback and license for the Soviets to retain a larger number of the heavy land-based intercontinental missiles that are the core of their nuclear force.

However, the official stressed that Reagan's eventual goal remained to halve the total of long-range bombers, missiles and submarines on both sides.

The decision, taken over the objections of some Pentagon hard-liners, appeared to represent the president's determination to pursue a negotiated arms control agreement, despite the indictment of Nicholas Daniloff of U.S. News & World Report in Moscow on espionage charges.

Reagan and the 51-year-old correspondent have denied the charges.

Daniloff was released Friday to the custody of U.S. Ambassador Arthur A. Hartman, but Reagan's personal plea to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev that he be allowed to return home has not been heeded so far.

At the same time, the official said, the administration may be preparing to accept a Soviet offer to permit aerial observation of Red Army troop movements in Europe. The conciliatory proposal was made last month at a 35-nation conference in Europe by Marshal Sergei Akhromeyev, chief of the Soviet armed forces.

The State Department immediately praised the general's move, but challenged the Soviets to match what it called U.S. flexibility in other measures designed to ease East-West tensions in Europe.

Despite Reagan's initiative on nuclear weapons, the two sides remain far apart on "Star Wars," the potential use of space to defend against attacking missiles.

But U.S. officials insist Gorbachev advised Reagan at their "fireside" summit meeting last November in Geneva that an agreement is possible on strategic weapons and also the medium-range nuclear weapons the two sides have deployed in Europe.

Planning for a second summit has moved slowly. Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze is due to meet Friday with Secretary of State George P. Shultz at the State Department to discuss an agenda.

It was not immediately clear whether their session, which is to extend through Saturday, will be hampered by the Soviet's refusal to liberate Daniloff.

Initially, Reagan had U.S. negotiators call for a ceiling of 1,250 to 1,450 long-range missiles and 350 armed strategic bombers. The revised proposal would allow each side to deploy a combination of 1,600 missiles and bombers, the official said.

Besides giving the Soviets more leeway in their heavy missiles, the United States would be able to retain its lead in bombers.

New ceilings would be set for various categories of weapons, including a limit of 7,500 intercontinental ballistic missile warheads and cruise missiles.

U.S. to expel 25 Soviets in response to charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government plans to announce the names of 25 Soviet diplomats to be expelled from the United States as part of an effort to show U.S. resolve in the Nicholas Daniloff case, a newspaper reported today.

The State Department intended to release today the names of 25 Soviet mission employees at the United Nations who must be sent home by Oct. 1, The Washington Post said in today's editions, quoting unnamed sources.

The announcement would comply with an earlier Reagan administration directive ordering the Soviets to reduce their U.N. mission staff to 218 from 243 by Oct. 1, and further cut it back to 170 within three years.

State Department and White House spokesmen said they could not confirm the report Tuesday night.

Earlier Tuesday, Secretary of State George Shultz spoke of new American steps that were planned to press the release of Daniloff, the correspondent for U.S. News & World Report in Moscow who was arrested Aug. 30 and charged with espionage. The Soviets have released him to the U.S. Embassy in Moscow while he awaits trial, and he is forbidden to leave the country.

"We have our plan of action," Shultz told a gathering of businessmen at the State Department, adding that the United States "is not without resources" in confronting the issue.

He said it would be inappropriate to discuss public what future steps the administration has in mind.

Shultz said the Daniloff affair has made it "extremely difficult" for the United States to engage in discussions on arms control and other issues with the Soviets.

He declined to speculate about the consequences of the Daniloff issue except to say that it "obviously puts a cloud" over relations with Moscow. He specifically declined to say whether the case might scuttle efforts to arrange a superpower summit.

Earlier, during an appearance before the Senate Judiciary Committee, Shultz reiterated that there is "no equivalence" between Daniloff and Gennadiy Zakharov, the Soviet physicist employed by the United Nations who was arrested last month and charged with spying in this country.

Describing his finding of what he believes is Amelia Earheart's grave is Houston real estate executive Buddy Brennan.

Has Houston man found Amelia Earheart's grave?

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK

HOUSTON (AP) — A real estate businessman investigating the disappearance of missing aviator Amelia Earhart says he found the woman's gravesite next to a breadfruit tree on the island of Saipan.

Buddy Brennan, 62, said he excavated the gravesite about 1½ years ago and unearthed a blindfold he claims the Japanese forced Ms. Earhart to wear before she was shot twice in the chest and then buried.

Ms. Earhart, Brennan said, was executed by the Japanese in 1944 on Saipan just before U.S. forces invaded the Pacific island. Information provided by island residents led him to the discovery, he said.

"The lady who had known this for years had been afraid to say anything about it," the Houston real estate investor said Tuesday in an interview. "But her nephew, a friend of mine, convinced her she was getting so old, that she should say something now."

Brennan said the woman led him to a site next to the largest breadfruit tree on the island. The area is now a heavy equipment storage yard for utility maintenance on Saipan, which is one of the Mariana Islands.

According to the woman's account, Japanese officials took Ms. Earhart from a motorcycle sidecar, shot her twice and dumped her in a pre-dug hole, Brennan said. The woman was there because her family was farming land adjacent to the site.

"We were fortunate to get permission to dig at that spot," he said. "We just dug in with front end loader to see what we could find. It's a coral island and knew we couldn't find bones. But we found a khaki blindfold.

"It's pretty well chewed up. But there's no question what it is."

Brennan said other people he talked to knew of a woman whose plane either was shot down or crash landed in the area in 1937 on Mili, an atoll in the Marshall Islands.

Others told of a woman being imprisoned on the island, of Ms. Earhart's navigator, Fred Noonan, being treated for a leg injury suffered in the crash, and of seeing a boat transporting a silver airplane with a missing wing, Brennan said.

Ms. Earhart, the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, was attempting an around-the-world flight with Noonan in 1937 when their plane disappeared.

"Amelia, in my opinion, was on a spy mission," Brennan said. "President (Franklin) Roosevelt knew the Marshall Islands were being fortified, but the Japanese had denied the ability of the Americans to come into the Marshall Islands."

Brennan said his search for clues to Ms. Earhart's demise began in 1979, and he's spent about $100,000 on it so far.

However, the co-author of a book about Ms. Earhart says Brennan came up with nothing new.

COUNCIL

Charlie Jackson, BAC president, said the thrust of their concerns (BAC and NAACP) is that they want to be informed of what's going on.

"She promised to the district that she would take our input on issues affecting us and that hasn't taken place.

"We haven't had any 'before the fact' meetings — everything has been after (a request has been denied or cut)," Jackson said.

Jackson and Fuller asked Ms. Corrales why she hadn't initiated any "town meetings," which would harness the community into one forum so all views could be heard, as they claimed she promised during her campaign in March 1985.

"She can bring about a bigger turnout in the black community if she called the meeting instead of us," Jackson said.

The discussion also included charges that Ms. Corrales had showed "favoritism to the Hispanic community."

Fuller claimed the city council never took time to come out and survey the areas in the black community under consideration for $66,000 in federal community development money.

The request, made by the BAC, was decreased to $44,000 and Fuller said at the meeting Tuesday night she didn't even attempt to "stick it out for the $66,000."

Some in the black community have specifically raised their eyebrows to a $161,000 approval of a revolving loan fund to the Eastside Development Task Force (a group which BAC members allege she is partial to) compared with the BAC's approval of $40,000 to refurbish their part of the district.

"We were pleased to get the grant ($40,000 in community development funds), but she promised us she'd push for the full $66,000. She didn't," Jackson said.

Ms. Corrales contended $4,000 was all they were going to receive and that she was instrumental in getting it raised to $44,000.

James Bradford, a black educator in Midland, said, "I don't share totally this idea of lack of communication with the district."

Bradford, who is a resident of Ms. Corrales' 2nd district, said he didn't believe she favored Hispanic funding requests over similar black requests.

Of recent municipal requests by the black community that have either been denied or decreased, "I think one (making a request) must express credible information as to the needs and feasibility of the request."

"There are groups (such as the Hispanic Chamber) that do quite a bit of homework in preparation of selling their point of view.

"Blacks are lacking somewhat in this area. I don't think Ms. Corrales has intentionally favored any group — it may appear that way because one group is more visible than the other.

"The blacks' voice needs to be broader and louder. We need to articulate our desires better," Bradford said.

Bradford also said he felt there is not a feud in the 2nd district between blacks and Hispanics.

"It's just a member of one group being more agressive than the other," Bradford said.

"The whole idea of this meeting bothered me," Ms. Corrales said.

"It was not indicative of the entire black community.... I don't look at color when I vote.

"We had a meeting with a government employee from Houston last week that about 80 people from my district attended — black, Hispanic and white. The speaker taught them how to apply for federal and city funding for projects," Ms. Corrales said.

"Mr. Fuller and Mr. Jackson were not there," she said.

"I am positive I am doing a good job when I see attendance like that. Some of them (in attendance at the BAC meeting last night) just want a 'yes-man' they can manipulate. They don't have that in me," Ms. Corrales said.

Of the $161,000 grant, Hispanic Chamber President Roger Robles said, "The Eastside Development Task Force (which was created by the Hispanic Chamber) is composed of blacks and Hispanics.

"It's unfortunate that people feel that way (get mad) just because they can't always have 100 percent approval on all their projects.

"The EDTF wants to improve the entire east and southeast sides — not just where there are predominantly Hispanics. When the black organizations can substantiate their claims and do their homework, they'll get the grants too.

"It's not going to serve anyone (in the 2nd District) to be destructive," Robles said.

MONEY

Crockett County officials maintain the money — the largest amount ever seized in a routine traffic stop in these parts — should go to the county because the owners have not laid claim to it and it was abandoned in their county.

Woodward ruled Tuesday that the U.S. government failed to prove the money was not abandoned.

CLEMENTS

Clements attributed much of the present problems of the oil industry to the lack of a national energy policy: "We have not had a national energy policy since 1932. I challenge anyone to show me where this country has ever had a national energy policy since Roosevelt. It's not a partisan problem, because Republican and Democrats have been at fault."

He said if the nation had had a national energy policy the industry would not be subjected to radical swings in oil prices today.

To stop radical price swings, Clements favors an oil import fee and proposed such a tax in 1982, but he says President Reagan remains opposed to oil import taxes. Clements said a recent discussion with President Reagan on energy matters indicated the president was not as down on the oil industry as some would believe.

He said the president was very much in favor of retaining depletion allowances and intangible drilling costs for the industry and had made a pledge to Clements that they would not be eliminated by the Tax Reform Bill and had kept his promise.

"I would like to have all three," said Clements, "but given a choice I would take intangibles and depletion over an import fee."

He also said that Reagan is in favor of a repeal of the Fuel Use Act to get natural gas back in boilers, curbing the regulatory powers of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and total decontrol of natural gas.

Clements noted that the Texas Railroad Commission may also propose to regulate and curb Texas oil production in an effort to firm up prices.

"Production would be reduced as a conservation measure, not production conservation as with the MER (maximum effeciency rate), but conservation in the sense that Texas production is being sold for less than its replacement cost," explained the candidate.

He explained he had had discussions on the matter with Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent and that hearings were scheduled to start on the matter within a week. "It's an interesting concept," said Clements.

MINE

Olivier said the fire began during the welding of a broken rail when an acetylene gas cylinder caught fire, and flames spread to a sealing material sprayed in liquid form on wire mesh along tunnel walls and ceilings.

The sealant gives off toxic fumes when it burns but mine officials did not know it was so flammable, Olivier said.

He said other fumes came from burning cables and piping made of polyvinyl chloride plastic.

"No one would have died if it weren't for the toxic substances. No one died in the fire," Olivier said. "At this stage, I cannot say whether there was any negligence involved."

Hostages taken at second Brazilian prison

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Inmates at a prison outside Brasilia today threatened to kill hostages unless provided machine guns and getaway cars. Police said the death toll in a rebellion quelled by troops at another penitentiary rose to 14 prisoners.

The riot at the maximum security prison in the city of Presidente Venceslau began Monday when 17 inmates armed with homemade switchblades threatened to kill 14 prison employees unless provided machine guns and safe conduct, police inspector Robert Jose Escudeiro said.

After 19 hours of negotiations failed, about 600 riot troopers stormed the prison, about 500 miles south of Brasilia, the capital. All the hostages were freed, including seven who suffered minor knife wounds, Escudeiro said.

Eleven inmates died Tuesday, and three died of wounds early today at Presidente Venceslau, police said. "Eleven died from gunshot wounds. The others we don't know," said Escudeiro. The other three inmates remained hospitalized, two in serious condition, he said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of state and municipal police, prison guards and firefighters surrounded the 401-prisoner Papuda penitentiary 30 miles south of Brasilia, where negotiations continued today between officials and inmates.

That rebellion began Tuesday, when 14 inmates exercising in the yard stormed the prison's second-floor offices. They overpowered two guards and took hostage a psychologist and students in her class on inmate rehabilitation.

The inmates demanded machine guns and three getaway cars. Negotiations reportedly snagged, however, when the prisoners insisted on taking hostages with them from the facility.

During the negotiations, a female hostage got on the telephone and said, "Please, please do as they say, for the love of God."

Six gunshots were heard inside the prison and a woman screamed late Tuesday, but there were no reports of injuries.

Before dawn today, one of the 15 hostages escaped by jumping out of a window, according to the Globo TV network.

TV Manchete, a news network, showed film of the troops storming Presidente Venceslau prison, and fierce gunfire could be heard seconds after they were inside.

Mexicans celebrate their independence

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid, standing on the balcony of the National Palace joined thousands of fellow Mexicans on Tuesday in watching a military parade marking the 176th year of national independence.

The parade, filled with pomp and circumstance, followed Monday night's "grito" or shout of independence by de la Madrid from the same balcony, signaling the beginning of the independence celebration.

As the troops passed beneath him, de la Madrid, wearing his formal sash of office in the green, white and red national colors, smiled and chatted with those gathered with him on the balcony.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Filipino suspects surrender

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Two generals and 18 other soldiers charged in the assassination of President Corazon Aquino's husband surrendered today. Prosecutors said they will review evidence to see if Ferdinand E. Marcos will also be charged.

The surrenders brought to 22 the number of military men taken into custody since a judge Tuesday ordered the arrest of 26 defendants whose acquittals in the 1983 slaying of former Sen. Benigno Aquino were overturned by the Supreme Court last week.

The high court said the previous trial, which ended Dec. 2, was a "sham" orchestrated by Marcos, then Philippine president. Asked whether Marcos might now face charges in the case, prosecutor Francisco Villa replied, "Yes, of course, if the evidence so warrants."

"Whether he will be tried is another story," Villa added.

Marcos fled to Hawaii after a military-civilian revolt this February that was the culmination of 2½ years of protest set in motion by Aquino's slaying Aug. 21, 1983, when he landed at Manila airport after three years of voluntary exile in the United States.

There is no extradition treaty between the Philippines and the United States, and the Philippine constitution forbids trials in absentia.

Thatcher: Sanctions wrong

BONN, West Germany (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, reiterating her opposition to tough economic sanctions against South Africa, said she doubted new bans adopted by the Common Market would force an end to apartheid.

"They may, however, cause poverty, unemployment and starvation among many black South Africans," she said at a news conference Tuesday.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany also said the sanctions adopted earlier that day at the Common Market foreign ministers' meeting in Brussels, Belgium, would do more harm than good to the nation's black majority and neighboring black-ruled states.

"I have never hidden my skeptical attitude toward sanctions," he told reporters.

However, Kohl and Mrs. Thatcher indicated their governments would cooperate with the sanctions approved by the 12-nation European trading bloc that include a ban on new investments in South Africa and an agreement to halt imports of South African iron, steel and gold coins.

U.N. sidesteps controversy

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly won't have the discovery of America to debate at its 41st session.

The Assembly's 29-member steering committee decided without a vote Tuesday to delete the 4-year-old and surprisingly controversial item entitled "Observance of the Quincentenary of the Discovery of America."

Ghana, backed by Cuba, recommended the deletion in the interest of shortening the Assembly's original 146-item agenda because of the world body's financial crunch.

Since the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' voyage of discovery is six years off, there is still ample time for the item to be resurrected — although its reception has not been encouraging to its sponsors from the Western Hemisphere, plus Spain, Portugal and the Philippines.

The original suggestion for the Assembly to begin preparing a "dignified commemoration" of Columbus' 1492 voyage aroused anti-colonial sentiments, particularly among black African states, after Iceland's ambassador, Hodur Helgason, pressed a counter-claim of discovery on behalf of the Viking Leif Ericsson.

WHAT IS PREVENTIVE MEDICINE TODAY?

1. It is much more than the prevention of contagious diseases!
2. It is involved in treating the patient as well as the disease; it is much easier to treat the patient before the disease occurs.
3. It is improving the immune system to make it competent through dietary control, lifestyle programs, exercise programs, relief from mental stress, and early detection of disease & malignancy.
4. A competent immune system that can be maintained will avoid most of the degenerative diseases, allergic and auto immune diseases, and many forms of cancer.
5. Lifespan can be increased along with a better quality lifestyle.
6. Lenghty illnesses and pro-longed hospitalization can be avoided.

Congress trying to 'thwart' increases to Medicare patients

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is working to thwart an automatic increase that would raise to $572 the amount that Medicare patients must pay for their first day in the hospital in 1987.

Legislation under consideration would override that $80 increase and allow a more modest rise in the Medicare deductible instead.

Medicare patients now must pay $492 for their first day's stay. The House version would raise that charge to $500 for 1987; the Senate plan would set it at $520 and change the formula for future increases.

The two houses have yet to reconcile the differences in their deficit reduction packages, but congressional staff experts on Medicare said Tuesday it is a virtual certainty the $80 hike will be thwarted.

The Medicare deductible rises automatically as hospital costs go up. Last January the deductible jumped 23 percent, from $400 to $492. It was only $40 when Medicare started in 1966 and it was $180 in 1980.

The head of the Health Care Financing Administration, which announced the higher Medicare charges in the Federal Register on Monday, said it had no choice since Congress has not completed action on the Medicare measure yet.

Dr. William L. Roper, administrator of HCFA, said, "Although Congress recently has been considering legislative proposals that would limit the amount of deductible, the secretary (of health and human services) currently has no discretion in computing the inpatient hospital deductible and co-insurance amounts."

The nation's 30 million elderly or disabled people covered by the federal insurance also will face higher charges in 1987 for hospital stays lasting 61 days or more, HCFA said. The House and Senate bills would not hold down those increases.

The so-called co-insurance amount, a portion of the hospital bill the patient must pay, will jump from $123 a day to $143 a day for stays of 61 to 90 days. Those hospitalized even longer will pay $286 a day, up from $246, each time they use up one of their 60 lifetime reserve days.

Medicare pays the full bill for days two through 60 in the hospital, and also picks up the tab for the first 20 days in a skilled nursing facility.

For longer stays in such nursing homes, patients will have to pay $71.50 daily, up from $61.50, for days 21 through 100, starting on Jan. 1.

Remains found in Vietnam flown to California

WASHINGTON (AP) — The remains of four more American servicemen killed during the Vietnam war are scheduled to be flown from Hawaii to California today.

The four sets of remains have been identified by the Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

A full military honors ceremony was to be performed today at Hickam Air Force Base in Honolulu before the flight to the mainland.

The remains were among 14 recovered from the Savannakhet province in Laos last February during a crash-site excavation. The men were killed when their Air Force gunship crashed in Laos in 1972.

Efforts are continuing to positively identify the other 10 sets of remains, the Pentagon said.

The men identified Tuesday, including their rank and home of record at the time of their disappearance, were:

— Lt. Col. Irving B. Ramsower II, born Dec. 25, 1934, with a home of record of Mathis, Texas.

— Capt. Richard C. Halpin, July 23, 1946, San Diego, Calif.

— Master Sgt. Edward D. Smith Jr., Nov. 29, 1944, Red Creek, N.Y.

— Master Sgt. William A. Todd, Jan. 8, 1950, Mahopac, N.Y.

The four men and 10 others were aboard an AC-130 gunship that crashed on March 29, 1972, after being struck by a surface-to-air missile while flying over Laos.

The identification of the four brings to 21 the number of men whose remains have been repatriated from Laos and subsequently identified as Americans. The excavation of the AC-130 crash site was the second permitted by the Laotian government in as many years.

'Young Joe' wins first primary, considered natural heir apparent

BOSTON (AP) — Joseph P. Kennedy II was considered the natural heir apparent to the family's political dynasty long before he won the Democratic nomination for the congressional seat once held by his uncle, John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy watchers say "Young Joe," as the oldest male of the new generation, was groomed for politics in much the same way his elders handed the political torch from Jack to Bobby to Ted.

He won his first primary Tuesday, defeating a large slate of candidates in a district that traditionally elects the Democratic nominee to Congress in November.

Joe, who was 15 when his father, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was shot, was told of his mission early in life, according to an account in "The Kennedys: An American Drama."

"You are the oldest of all the male grandchildren," RFK wrote in a letter to his 11-year-old son the day President Kennedy was buried. "You have a special and particular responsibility now which I know you will fulfill. Remember all the things that Jack started — be kind to others that are less fortunate than we — and love our country."

Young Joe Kennedy and his sister, Kathleen, are the first of their generation to go into politics. Kathleen Kennedy Townsend won her Democratic primary for Congress last week in Maryland but faces a tough fight in November.

In the Massachusetts race, Joe Kennedy is expected to win easily in November in his heavily Democratic district for the seat held by retiring Rep. Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, the speaker of the House.

"My name is Joseph Patrick Kennedy, and I'm proud of that name, although I don't ask people in this congressional district to vote for me based on that name," Kennedy said during the campaign.

VW recalls 1985-86 Audis for engine fire problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Volkswagen of America is recalling 80,000 Audi 5000S vehicles from the 1985-86 model years to fix misadjusted fuel distributors that could lead to engine fires, according to government documents.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reported the recall in its August summary of defect investigations. The agency said it received notice of the recall on Aug. 28.

The agency, which has been conducting a low-level inquiry into the engine fires, said misadjustment of the Audi 5000S fuel distributor allows fuel to escape and be absorbed by the air filter, which can lead to fires in the engine compartment.

The agency's monthly report also revealed that NHTSA has upgraded its inquiries into alleged problems in four other groups of cars from so-called preliminary evaluations to engineering analyses. Those cars include: General Motors Corp.'s 1983-84 J-cars, seat track lock failure; 1980-83 American Motors Corp. Eagles, rear axle failure; 1985 GM A-, C-, F-, G-, and N-cars, windshield wiper failure; and 1984-85 Biturbos from Maserati Automobiles, Inc., engine compartment fires.

FAA probes 'near misses'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating incidents in which three Northwest Airlines jets were involved in two near-misses with small aircraft and one "pilot deviation" during a two-day period, says a spokesman.

Neither of the two near-midair collisions, both near the Minneapolis-St. Paul international airport on Sept. 6, "appeared to be very serious on the surface," spokesman Fred Farrar said Tuesday.

The third incident involved a Northwest jet that mistakenly began descending after an air controller at the Aurora, Ill., air traffic control center cleared another jet for descent near Dubuque, Iowa.

"It appears to be a pilot deviation," said Farrar.

He added that last year the FAA investigated some 700 near-midair collisions so this series "is not a great big thing."

Aspirin to treat heart?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although aspirin is one of the most widely used drugs, most people are unaware that it is prescribed to treat heart and blood vessel diseases, according to a public opinion survey.

A poll of 1,002 Americans, who were randomly selected, found that only 27 percent say they have heard of using aspirin to treat cardiovascular disease.

In the age group most prone to heart problems, people over age 49, only 29 percent were familiar with this use of aspirin.

The survey, conducted last May by the research firm New World Decisions, of Iselin, N.J., was commissioned by the Aspirin Foundation, an organization sponsored by companies that manufacture, process and distribute aspirin.

Spending cuts approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee has approved a Pentagon budget bill for fiscal 1987 that cuts spending for "Star Wars" research.

The bill, approved by voice vote Tuesday, was sent to the floor of the Republican-controlled Senate where it will be included in the catchall spending bill known as the continuing resolution.

The bill provides most of the $295 billion earmarked earlier this year by the Senate in a budget resolution. However, the amount is far below President Reagan's request of $320 billion for a total defense budget.

Originally, the measure would have appropriated $4.8 billion for Star Wars, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative. But by a 26-1 vote, the committee approved $3.4 billion for the program.

Missile testing successfully

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force's AMRAAM missile, which was plagued by performance and cost problems earlier in its development, has completed its third successful test in three weeks, the Pentagon says.

The test, conducted Friday over the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico, was the first in which the missile relied on its own radar system to intercept a low-flying, maneuvering drone, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

The female factor

The outcome of the recent primaries in nine states and the District of Columbia is heartening proof that women are emerging as a potent political force in this country.

Nationwide, no fewer than 98 women are vying for elective offices from various statehouses to the U.S. Senate. Most of the candidates are tough-minded professionals who are less identified with feminist causes than with the specific issues of their constituencies. The candidates' chances in the November elections are enhanced by the surge of voter registrations among women, who themselves have become increasingly interested in state and national issues.

Maryland is a case in point. There, Democratic Rep. Barbara Mikulski and Republican Linda Chavez swamped their respective rivals for the right to succeed retiring GOP Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr. The contest, which marks only the second time two women have squared off for a senate seat, promises to be an election free-for-all. Rep. Mikulski is a liberal activist and a tough campaigner. Mrs. Chavez, who won high marks as a Reagan administration aide, has come out swinging, scoring her opponent as a "left-of-center liberal who represents the failed policies of the past."

Maryland's Democratic primary also initiated the political career of Kathleen Kennedy Townsend, the daughter of the late Robert F. Kennedy, who will now challenge GOP incumbent Rep. Helen Delich Bentley. And yes, Bella Abzug is back. The former congresswoman and self-proclaimed godmother of the feminist political movement will be the Democratic standard-bearer for a House seat from New York City.

At the state level, Vermont Gov. Madeline M. Kunin was nominated in the Democratic primary for another term. Meanwhile, Connecticut Republicans selected state Rep. Julie Belaga to run for governor. Her stunning victory was all the more impressive, inasmuch as the state GOP had endorsed her primary opponent. Similarly, Carolyn Warner will be the Democratic nominee for governor in Arizona, even though Bruce Babbitt, the outgoing governor, supported her opponent in the primary.

The results of those primaries assure that some highly competent women from both political parties will emerge as new leaders. That represents a vital renewal in the democratic process — one of the most encouraging political developments in the United States.

Pornography corrupts

I was very sorry to see Bill Kent come out so strongly in favor of the right to distribute pornography. Even though he may be making money by distributing "soft core" pornography, I feel that in so doing he is promoting "hard core" pornography as well.

The President's Commission on Pornography found that pornography is available through many outlets to almost anyone, young or old. Much of this material is corrupt, perverted, rotten and sickening. It is not even possible to describe it in decent society. If open distribution of this type of material is allowed to continue it will destroy the moral fiber in the lives of many people. I am particularly concerned about our youth. I do not really believe that Bill Kent or anyone else would like to live in the kind of society depicted in much of the pornographic material the commission reviewed.

To emphasize my feelings about this I will no longer patronize Kent Kwik Stores. I regret having to take this type of action, but feel that as a Christian I must speak out in behalf of God and His revealed will. In the Bible God says, "Do you not know that the wicked will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived: Neither the sexually immoral nor idolaters nor adulterers nor male prostitutes nor homosexual offenders nor thieves nor the greedy nor drunkards nor slanderers nor swindlers will inherit the kingdom of God." I Corinthians 6:9,10.

Robert E. Blazek, Minister
Christian Church of Midland

More thought needed

Bill Kent of Kent Oil, Inc., is no defender of American values. Studies show that pornographic pictures and writing contribute to acts which break down the value found in marriage, home, family, and the innocence and psychological well-being of the young who may be victimized.

The idea that Mr. Kent is selling pornographic materials for the good of our society (so we may have a choice, he says) is laughable.

Those of you who choose to support the sale of pornography as the "American way" had best take long and serious thought as to what you are defending and supporting. Diet Coke it isn't!

There are two things we can do. We can choose to look the other way and hope that pornography stays in its ugly little corner and doesn't contribute to the injury, physically or psychologically, of someone we love or care about. Or we can take a stand against its sale, wherever that may occur.

Mr. Kent has afforded his customers a choice. We have chosen to no longer be his customers until such materials are removed from his stores.

Courtesy appreciated

Sue Hills and I would like to state our appreciation to Albertson's for the graciousness that they extended to their customers during the Western bank crisis. Even though we knew the bank had been troubled for some time, we were caught off guard when it fell suddenly that Thursday afternoon. While the future of the bank was up for grabs, Albertson's exhibited their faith and confidence in the people of Midland and continued to accept Western checks when the other stores would not.

Such thoughtfulness should not go unappreciated, neither should it be forgotten. Midland is having tough times now but as long as we can keep its spirit alive, it will not only survive but emerge stronger and better. Thank you.

In 1939, the Soviet Union invaded Poland during World War II.

In 1947, James V. Forrestal was sworn in as the first U.S. secretary of defense.

In 1949, more than 130 people, most of them U.S. citizens, died when fire gutted the Canadian passenger steamer Noronic at a pier in Toronto.

In 1983, Vanessa Williams of New York State became the first black contestant to be crowned Miss America. The following July, she also became the first Miss America to resign in the wake of the Penthouse magazine scandal.

Aspin's brother encounters fuel woes

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon has shown remarkable leniency in dealing with James Aspin, brother of the powerful House Armed Services Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., over a military fueling contract.

Jack Anderson

Federal officials and the FBI, meanwhile, are checking into the contract, which was awarded to a bankrupt company owned by James Aspin.

The company has defaulted several times on its obligation to supply fuel for Air National Guard planes at Stewart International Airport in Newberg, N.Y., 60 miles north of New York City. Aspin's firm, Air Vectors Associates, had an earlier contract with the state of New York to operate the airport, but it was canceled because of numerous safety violations and failure to pay up to $200,000 in users' fees to the state, court records show.

In the midst of a court battle over the airport contract (and after the company had filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code), Air Vectors was awarded the fueling contract by the Defense Fuel Supply Center.

Ed Biddle, deputy director of the DFSC, defended the contract award. The government isn't deterred by a bankruptcy action; performance is what counts, he said.

No evidence has been turned up that the congressman intervened in the contract award for his brother's company. But Defense Fuel Supply officials acknowledged to our reporters Corky Johnson and David Davis that an aide to Rep. Aspin did place a phone call to the agency to inquire about the contract's status after a default notice was issued to Air Vectors last November.

Les Aspin did not comment on this story when asked. The problems with his brother's defense contract could prove embarrassing, however, since the congressman is fighting off a move to oust him from the chairmanship of the Armed Services Committee on political grounds.

The $6.5 million contract was awarded in September 1985 to supply fuel for all National Guard aircraft at Stewart. Pentagon records show that contract officials waived the usual pre-award survey of the chosen company. Despite Air Vectors' ongoing fight to stave off bankruptcy, it was deemed a "responsible" supplier.

The Defense Fuel Supply Center has finally begun its own investigation by interviewing National Guard officials and top military brass at Stewart. Pentagon records show a continuing problem in the company's ability to supply the necessary fuel to the Guard's planes.

For at least six weeks during the contract term, Air Vectors has been unable to refuel planes adequately. On three occasions the government threatened to terminate the contract.

"We have been advised ... that on 14 February 1986 you were unable to refuel aircraft," officials wrote to James Aspin. "The Air National Guard required 100,000 pounds (15,000 gallons) of fuel for an exercise on this date and Air Vectors had only 1,100 gallons of fuel."

On Nov. 14, 1985, just six weeks after the contract took effect, the fuel supply center warned Aspin that he was in default and the contract would be terminated in 10 days if corrective action wasn't taken. The company asked and was granted two time extensions, and finally resumed fueling on Dec. 18.

Pentagon officials also wrote to New York state authorities, asking them to allow Aspin to subcontract its fueling obligations.

Air Vectors' failure to provide a consistent supply of aircraft fuel cost the National Guard thousands of dollars, because the fuel had to be purchased on the open market at about 25 cents a gallon more. A Pentagon letter pointed out that the company's failure would give the Guard "a financial incentive to fly fewer missions from Stewart Airport or to refuel at a different airport which has a DSFC contract in place." Either alternative, the letter noted, "would hinder the Air National Guard's effectiveness."

James Aspin blamed his failure to provide fueling services on a vendetta by the state, and said his company has a good safety record. As for any influence by his brother, he said: "I don't see how he could have influenced this contract anyway." Meanwhile, Air Vectors is seeking a contract renewal for fiscal 1987.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: "Defenestration" — throwing a victim from a high window — is a gruesome Czech tradition. When Protestant rebels did it in 1618 to a pair of royalist Catholics, it started the Thirty Years' War. When the communists did it in 1948 to Jan Masaryk, the last democratic foreign minister of Czechoslovakia, it marked the country's descent into Soviet slavery. Now the Czech government has adopted a variation, warning outspoken dissidents that they may "suffer an accident" or "fall off a bridge" if they don't behave.

DRASTIC WEEDING: There have been suggestions that the midair collision between a commercial airliner and a private plane, which rained death on El Cerrito, Calif., was the fault of air controllers. But if the Federal Aviation Administration's selection standards are any measure, the controllers are the cream of the crop. A recent study showed that out of 1,000 people who inquired about controller jobs, 500 take the written test, eight or 10 pass and are accepted for training and only five or six actually graduate.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Over the years, American farmers have grown accustomed to foreclosures by bankers. But by Uncle Sam? By the Farmers Home Administration that was set up explicitly to help out family farmers down on their luck? But that's what's happening all over the financially stricken Midwest. As the agency chief, Vance Clark, explained the foreclosures and debt-collection efforts. "We are owed a lot of money and we have the responsibility to try and collect it." Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, likened the heartless process to "drawing blood from a turnip," and he's just about right. Surely the government can afford a little compassion.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Another Soviet shove along road to Yalta

BOSTON — The new Soviet equivalent of our National Security Council staff has just scored its first victory. In the Daniloff affair, Gorbachev went eyeball-to-eyeball with Reagan and it was the American who blinked.

William Safire

The Soviet NSC is headed by my old friend Anatoly Dobrynin, whose 26-year experience in the U.S. was applied to the trick of gaining diplomatic equivalence for a captured Soviet spy and an American seized as hostage. His chief deputies are Georgi Kornienko, long the backbone of the Gromyko Old Guard at the Foreign Ministry, and Gen. Viktor Starodubov, the Ogarkov prot'eg'e seeking Soviet Army modernization through limitation of American strategic arms.

This heavyweight trio, with direct access to the KGB-dominated Politburo, promptly established its supremacy over the pickup band of second-string outcasts from Defense and State under John Poindexter, an inoffensive note-taker who carries the title of national security adviser but apparently has trouble getting an appointment with the White House spokesman at times of crisis.

Anatoly & Co. were thus able to seize a hostage, elicit an immediate response from the White House that this outrage would not endanger the summit and sucker our State Department into making a first offer to settle. That enabled the Russians to make a counteroffer equating their spy with our hostage, remanding both to embassies pending trials. Reagan swallowed this personal humiliation, sending a chagrined and testy George Shultz forth to pretend that what was obvious to the whole world was not so, and on that note ushered in the Third Era of Detente.

What was needed was an suspension of all visits and conferences, in a straightforward, Rooseveltian "Daniloff alive or summit dead." What was delivered was a Carteresque cave-in, as if the well-being of the hostage came before the national interest. Shultz is now reduced to pleading for the inclusion of some dissident to provide a fig leaf for what is clearly the spy-for-hostage swap. The more he insists publicly that what is true is not so, the more he erodes America's credibility and underscores the Russian triumph.

Let's face it. Reagan's ill-advised letter to Gorbachev formally testified to our hostage's innocence and the Soviet government subsequently took the position that this testimony was a lie. Never in such a personal way has a Russian leader put his thumb in the eye of an American president.

Why has Reagan reacted by blinking amiably and pretending this has not happened? Perhaps because he has been told that the Sixth Round at the Geneva talks is his last chance at peacemaking. An agreement is already in place on intermediate-range missiles, with the British and French arms to be outside the deal; the difference on delay in Star Wars testing has narrowed to two years, and on-site inspection will be introduced. Shultz, maneuvered into dealing with a second-level counterpart, will assure Foreign Secretary Shevardnadze we will boost the Soviet economy and welcome the Russians into the Middle East as the Arabs' broker.

To retire in such a blaze of detente, Reagan has been persuaded that nothing — not even the most direct slap in the face administered to this government by a Russian leader — should stand in the way of Geneva's Round Six. Dobrynin's probe has shown the newly pliant Reagan to be all too eager for a summit. the Soviet leaders, with a China rapprochement in the offing, can exploit that debilitating eagerness in shaping this generation's Yalta.

The next test of Reagan's will and of Dobrynin's skill will take place on Oct. 1. Last March, before last-quarter desperation set in, a Reagan order was issued notifying the Russians that the huge nest of spies that goes by the name of its U.N. delegation had to be reduced by 40 percent over the next few years. (The Russian spy caught making a payoff for secrets was part of this KGB branch office.) In two weeks, the first deadline for reduction comes up: of the 275 on staff, we expect 30 to be shipped home and not replaced.

Will the Russians, on a summit roll, submit to this diminution of our hospitality? In fact, as the administration plans to resist congressional cuts of our payments to the U.N., our reduction demand is all too modest and the timetable too slow. Two hundred — all likely agents — should be shipped out this year.

The Russian delegate, on orders from his KGB chauffeur, is shrugging off the Reagan order. We shall soon see if the summit-happy president is willing to accept another hard shove down the road to Yalta.

ART BUCHWALD

Lady Luck isn't smiling on the Hunt brothers!

Whenever I have no one else to feel sorry for, I ache for the Hunt brothers of Texas. The reason I cry for them is because no one else will.

Art Buchwald

Nelson Bunker, Herbert and Lamar are down on their luck, facing hard times through no fault of their own.

In 1980 the three brothers were worth more than $6 billion. But now they are barely worth $2 billion. Is there a sadder story in America today?

I am glad I wasn't sitting at the breakfast table the morning that the Hunt brothers found out they were broke.

"Gosh darn it, Bunker, I told you this would happen if you diddled in silver," Lamar said.

"You didn't complain about diddling when silver hit $50 an ounce," Bunker snorted.

"Don't you snort at me," Lamar said. "The reason we're in such bad shape, Bunker, is that you never know when to pull out of a nose dive. We must have dropped $2½ billion because you swore that Americans would kill for silver."

"What's the big deal?" Bunker shrugged. "Anyone can drop a few bucks in the futures market."

"Why are we in so much trouble for just losing $2 billion?" Herbert asked. "Daddy left us a lot more than that."

"Because, Herbert," said Bunker, "it isn't just silver we're up to our bellybuttons in. We're drowning in sugar. We bought all those refineries after the lady in Fanny Farmer told you there would be a sugar shortage. Do you know how much we're selling now? One teaspoonful a day."

"You're a financial genius, Herbert. What did the sugar cost us?" Lamar asked.

"Another billion," Bunker replied.

"Are we wiped out?" Herbert said.

"We're flat busted," said Lamar. "I figure we're down to $4 billion, give or take some change."

"How can we be down to $4 billion? We still have oil wells." Herbert said.

Bunker answered, "We put up the oil wells to borrow money from the banks on the silver we gambled on, which we couldn't even sell with sugar on it. The oil wells wouldn't have made much difference anyway."

"Why, because we drilled too many dry wells?"

"No, Lamar, because we drilled too many wet ones. We struck just when the price sank to $9 a barrel."

"Bunker, you should not have lost my money," Herbert protested.

"When you were a kid, you always cried about anything I did. It wasn't your money, it was Dad's money," Bunker told him.

"Daddy would roll over if he knew you were choking on sugar," Lamar pouted.

"Oh, shut up," Herbert said. "How bad is it?"

Bunker scribbled some figures on a pad. "It looks as if all we've got left is $2 billion."

Lamar cried, "Who can live on that?"

"Two billion isn't even a safety net," Herbert declared.

Bunker replied, "We're going to have to make do, guys. There are lots of brothers in this country living on $2 billion, and they don't complain. Remember, we're not always going to be in such sad shape. When lady luck smiles again, we'll look on these times as the happiest years of our lives."

Lawmakers hope to have budget cut agreement by week's end

STATE

AUSTIN (AP) — House and Senate negotiators say they hope to have an agreement on budget cuts for 1987 before the end of the week.

"I think we are almost there," Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, chief Senate negotiator, said after a surprisingly amicable session of the 10-member conference committee on Tuesday.

The Sunday and Monday sessions had been marked by bitter arguments over how much to cut from appropriations made by the 1985 Legislature, when the state was not in a dire financial crisis.

Rep. James Rudd, D-Brownfield, House chairman, said cuts for state colleges and universities was the only major roadblock remaining.

Rudd estimated it would take about two more days of discussions.

Speaker Gib Lewis and other House leaders have said the House, where all tax bills must originate, will not debate new taxes until legislators have agreed on budget cuts.

Both Jones and Rudd agreed at Tuesday's meeting that $505 million in cuts from 1987 appropriations was the "middle ground" for a possible compromise. Originally the House made $739 million in reductions and the Senate $413 million.

The House conferees made a compromise proposal Tuesday morning that Rudd said was 9 percent lower than the money originally appropriated for state colleges and universities. Originally the House proposed 1987 budget cuts of 13 percent for higher education.

The Senate made 2.5 percent cuts in higher education funds.

"We are looking at that (the House compromise offer)," said Jones. "and at the next meeting will probably make our proposal, something more than $505 million."

These cuts average 4 percent (less) from our original positions and we think this is a fair and reasonable cut to take over the biennium," Rudd said about the new House offer.

Rudd noted that the 9 percent average cut would mean only 3.6 percent reduction in total operating funds for the University of Texas at Austin and 4.2 percent overall for Texas A&M. Both schools have additional sources of income besides the state's general revenue spending.

Overall spending reductions for other schools would be similar.

The House compromise offer would make a $123 million reduction in general revenue funds in 1987 appropriations for general academic purposes, compared to $168.3 million in the original House bill and $103.8 in the Senate bill.

A special $15 million fund would be set up to cover expected shortages resulting from increased tuition rates. The Senate set aside $20 million.

University of Texas System medical schools would be reduced $88.3 million. The Senate wanted a $33.7 million reduction.

The House offer also would make a $35.7 million or 8 percent reduction in funds for public junior colleges, compared to the Senate's 6 percent or $26.8 million.

The House offer was the first time the 10-member conference committee has discussed their differences on higher education since this special session began Sept. 8.

Lewis will recommend tax increase

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Gib Lewis says a tax hike has become inevitable and he will recommend one during the current special session.

The speaker, who had been the prime opponent to a tax hike, said Tuesday it has become obvious that his efforts to solve the budget crisis through spending cuts will fall short.

"It's not a question of whether we will have one," he said of a tax bill. "I think it's a question of how much we will have. I think it's probably necessary, and I'll probably be recommending a tax increase to the members."

But House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Stan Schlueter said Tuesday that Lewis faces a tough battle in winning House backing for any type of tax increase. Schlueter's committee planned to hold a hearing on taxes today, but he said no specific bill would be considered.

Lewis, D-Fort Worth, said he probably would push a temporary increase in the state sales tax, but he did not know how much of a hike would be needed. Gov. Mark White wants the state sales tax raised from the current 4⅛ percent to 5¼ percent, with the increase expiring next September.

The Senate has been ready to approve a tax hike for several weeks, but Lewis has pushed a plan he said could solve the state cash-flow problem without higher taxes.

But the speaker acknowledged Tuesday that not enough of his plan will win legislative approval to avoid a tax hike.

"I think what you'll see is once we've been able to agree on a bottom line on the budget reductions (and cash management proposals), I think at this point you'll see us fall short," he said.

Schlueter, D-Killeen, said opposition to a tax bill remains strong in the House.

"I still say the vote in Ways and Means is still 10-3 (against a tax bill). There are not adequate votes on the floor to pass a tax bill," he said.

"There are a lot of different agendas moving around on the floor, and finding the necessary votes to pass a tax bill is going to be a very difficult job. I think the speaker is going to have to be very persuasive. I think it's going to be an uphill battle," he said.

Schlueter said if a tax bill proves necessary, he would favor omitting exemptions to the sales tax, rather than increasing the rate.

Lewis said House members will find a tax bill increasingly attractive when it is compared with the alternative.

"I don't think anyone on this House floor wants to see Texas write a hot check," he said. "We're not going to do that.

In West Texas, scattered thunderstorms tonight Panhandle and south plains, becoming widely scattered in the Permian Basin. Otherwise, partly cloudy area-wide. Lows tonight lower 60s mountains and Panhandle, middle 60s south plains and Permian Basin.

In South Texas, partly cloudy and warm through Thursday with widely scattered showers and thundershowers mainly coastal and Southeast Texas. Highs mostly in the 90s except upper 80s coast and around 100 Rio Grande plains. Lows tonight in the 70s, near 80s along the coast.

Partly cloudy skies expected

From Staff and Wire Reports

The National Weather Service forecast for the Midland area for Thursday calls for partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures. The high is predicted to be near the 90-degree mark.

The forecast for tonight calls for partly cloudy skies and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. A low in the middle 60s and southerly winds at five to 10 mph are predicted. Winds on Thursday will be out of the south at 10-15 mph.

Tuesday's high was 12 degrees below the record high of 99 set for that date in 1965. Today's low was 66, which was 20 degrees above the record low set for this date in 1951.

STATE

Warm, moist air flowing into Texas from the Gulf of Mexico produced showers and thunderstorms across large areas of the state this morning from the Panhandle to the Trans-Pecos.

Some of the thunderstorms in the Panhandle produced heavy rain, and another area of thunderstorms stretched along the coast in the lower Rio Grande Valley, the National Weather Service reported.

Much of the state experienced mostly cloudy to cloudy skies this morning, although some areas of the middle coastal plain, far West and North Texas had clear skies.

Winds were generally from the south or southeast at 5 to 15 mph, while a light and variable wind was reported in the Trans-Pecos, the weather service said.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s, with some 60-degree readings reported in the mountains. The 4 a.m. state temperature extremes were 60 degrees at Marfa and 84 degrees at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies statewide through Thursday with widely scattered thunderstorms. Highs should be in the 80s and 90s, with overnight lows in the 60s and 70s.

NATION

Rain spread across broad sections of the West and Midwest today amid high water warnings, while fair weather returned to the East.

Showers and thunderstorms ranged from southwest Texas and eastern New Mexico across the Texas Panhandle, the Oklahoma Panhandle, central Kansas, central and eastern Nebraska, northwest Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Heavy rain prompted a flash flood watch in southeast Kansas and the threat of flooding continued in southeastern South Dakota.

Showers were scattered from western Oregon across northwest California and rain spread across west central Missouri.

Midland High's Erin Allen returns a spike from the Midland Lee Rebels Tuesday night at the MHS gym as the District 4-5A volleyball season opened with cross town rivals meeting each other. The Bulldogs won the game.

MHS girls down Lee in 4-5A race starter

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Midland High opened the District 4-5A volleyball season at the MHS gym Tuesday night by defeating Midland Lee in straight sets, winning easily enough in the first game, 15-7, but that second game was like pulling teeth without novacaine.

It was 14-all, Lee having rallied from a 14-10 deficit when, with LaShauna Bradley serving, Amy Cummings twice set up Erin Allen spikes on identical plays to give the Bulldogs a 16-14 win.

It was Melinda Carrasco's block at the net that took the ball from Lee, giving Midland the serve and setting up the winning sequence.

With Midland leading in the second game, it looked like they might have to serve breakfast to the fans. In 15 changes of serves, only one point was managed and that came on a Sherly Spirling serve to give Midland a 12-7 lead.

Cummings played a big role in Midland's second game win. Midland took an early 2-0 lead on a Cummings spike and tap that found the floor amidst a bevy of Lee defenders.

Lee rallied to forge in front 6-2 and it was Lee 6-4 when Laverne Pratt went to the serving line for Midland. The Bulldogs reeled off four straight points, the first on an ace, then a block at the net by Spirling and Cummings twice foiled spike attempts by Lee for one point and came up with another net-block for an 8-6 Midland lead.

The Bulldogs never trailed thereafter and weren't tied until the count reached 14. Down 10-14, Lee scored three straight points on Kristi Shelton's serve and it appeared fatigue might be getting the best of MHS.

But Coach Sonja Pittman called time out and the Bulldogs regrouped for the stretch run.

In the first game, Lee seized an early 4-1 lead, but Midland took charge with Dru Wyatt at the line and Cummings, Carrasco and Spirling controlling the net.

Lee rallied to forge ahead 9-8 as Suzie Dunn either spiked or blocked four scoring or turnover points.

But that was it. With Allen serving, Midland reeled off seven straight points, Cummings' block and spike at the net providing the clincher.

The win gives Midland a 9-9 record and Lee slips to 9-10 for the season.

In the JV game, Lee won the opener 15-4, but Midland came back to take 15-14 and 15-9 wins.

Mets clinch NL East tie

Cubs now key to cork popping

Associated Press

The New York Mets, after bringing to an end the frustration of a four-game losing streak that has kept the cork in their champagne since last Friday, are heading home with the bubbly they hope to consume tonight.

And should they beat the Chicago Cubs to win the National League East — they clinched at least a tie with a 4-2 victory Tuesday night in St. Louis — at least one key operative, Manager Dave Johnson, won't be among the celebrants on the field at Shea Stadium.

"I'm not going to the mound," Johnson said after the Mets reduced their magic number to one by beating the Cardinals. "I was there in '69."

AS A member of the Baltimore Orioles, Johnson made the last out of the final game of the 1969 World Series at Shea Stadium, when the "Miracle Mets" won the only World Championship in the franchise's history.

"I was at second base, and I almost didn't get away alive," said Johnson.

The next Met victory, or a loss tonight by Philadelphia against St. Louis, would give New York its first division crown since 1973.

The Mets may have been in a celebrating mood Tuesday night, but Ray Knight —whose two-run single broke a 1-1 tie in the third inning — said the party would have to wait for the official clinching.

"We can't stop and smell the roses now. We've got to move on," Knight said. "Now that we're past this hurdle, maybe we can start playing like we did all season."

Johnson agreed, saying the Mets, who had been shut out over 25 innings by the Cardinals and Phillies Sunday and Monday, need to get their offense in gear.

"We just didn't hit," he said. "I think the thing that happened to us was that we got so far out in front that a lot of guys started losing their concentration.

"We started thinking about what we'd done instead of what we have left to do."

Knight said the team was becoming frustrated, especially when it needed to beat the Phillies just once to clinch the division title.

"Every night, after we'd lose, I'd sit in here and wonder what went wrong," he said.

Astros 6, Reds 1

Time is running out on Cincinnati, now eight games behind Houston in the West with 18 remaining for both teams.

"I'm sure Pete was thinking sweep," Astros Manager Hal Lanier said of Reds counterpart Pete Rose. "He probably told his ballclub that. I probably would have told my ballclub that if we were seven out."

Bob Knepper, 16-11, and Larry Andersen, who got his first save, combined on a four-hitter.

Glenn Davis drove in two runs and Billy Hatcher hit a tie-breaking homer to lead a 12-hit attack as Houston beat Cincinnati for the 12th time in 16 games.

The Astros got three runs on seven hits off Bill Gullickson, 13-11, who lost his third straight decision.

Phillies 9, Pirates 5

Kent Tekulve, at 39, credited consistency for making him the busiest pitcher in league history.

Tekulve, appearing in his 847th game — breaking a tie with Elroy Face of Pittsburgh — raised his record to 11-4 with 2⅔ hitless innings.

Expos 4, Cubs 1

Montreal pitcher Jay Tibbs, like a schoolboy getting bad grades, decided it was time to hit the books.

"My biggest problem this season has been my concentration, so I got a couple of books," Tibbs, 7-8, said after pitching a four-hitter. "I guess reading is good for that."

Tibbs, who won for the first time since Aug. 4, struck out four and walked three for his third complete game of the season. He beat Rick Sutcliffe, 4-14, who has not won since June 2. Sutcliffe allowed only four hits in six innings, struck out nine and walked four.

Andres Galarraga gave Tibbs all the support he needed with a three-run double to break a 1-1 tie in the sixth.

Braves 3, Dodgers 1

The Atlanta Falcons of the NFL — who played at Atlanta Stadium on Sunday — will have to be given an assist for a decisive bad-hop single by Gerald Perry that bounced over the head of Los Angeles shortstop Dave Anderson.

"Bill Fralic put a hole in the right spot," said Braves Manager Chuck Tanner, referring to the Falcons' offensive tackle. "We guys from Pittsburgh (Fralic played there as a collegian and Tanner managed the Pirates) have to stick together."

With the score tied 1-1 in the sixth inning, Ken Griffey singled and took second against Orel Hershiser, 13-12. After a hit batsman, a sacrifice and an intentional walk, Perry hit what should have been an inning-ending grounder, but it hopped past Anderson as the go-ahead runs scored.

Doyle Alexander, 5-5, allowed six hits in seven innings. Gene Garber pitched two innings of one-hit relief for his 23rd save.

Giants 4, Padres 1

Former Midland Cub Mike Krukow, the first San Francisco pitcher to win 17 games in a season since 1978, doesn't intend to stop there.

"I want to get 20 wins, but I have four tough starts left," said Krukow, 17-8, who shut out the Padres through eight innings but needed relief help from Mark Davis in the ninth."I'm now pitching with the most confidence I've ever had in my life," said the 34-year-old Krukow.

Harry Spilman hit a two-run, pinch-hit bases-loaded double in the sixth, when the Giants sent nine men to the plate and scored three runs to extend their lead to 4-0.

The Padres became the third team in major league history to use six pinch hitters in an inning in the ninth, when they scored their only run.

Estacado No. 1 in 4A

Associated Press

Lubbock Estacado, which has allowed one touchdown in two games this season, replaced West Orange-Stark in the No. 1 spot among Class 4A teams in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

San Antonio Holmes in 5A, Daingerfield in 3A, Refugio in 2A and Wheeler in A all retained their top rankings in the voting by a panel of Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Estacado, a quarter-finalist in last year's state playoffs, defeated Big Spring 56-6 last week after shutting out 5A Plainview 26-0 in its opener.

West Orange-Stark, playing without running back Brian Cleveland, was shut out 14-0 by Aldine MacArthur. It was the first time the Mustangs had been blanked since the opening game of the 1983 season.

San Antonio Holmes defeated Del Rio 47-7 and maintained a comfortable edge over runnerup Odessa Permian, which beat El Paso Ysleta 28-0. Holmes received 17 of the 28 first-place votes cast and had a 255-228 point margin over the Panthers.

Walker praised by Landry

IRVING (AP) — A big reason the Dallas Cowboys are off to a 2-0 start is No. 34 in your program.

Tony Dorsett and the rest of his teammates are playing better because of Herschel Walker, Coach Tom Landry says.

Walker, who joined the Cowboys after starring in the USFL, has had 16 carries for 115 yards and has caught 11 passes for 67 yards. He's scored three touchdowns.

With Walker in the lineup, the Cowboys lead the NFL with five rushing touchdowns and Dallas' 5.3 average yards per carry is second only to Chicago's 5.4.

"Herschel has had a big impact on the team because he has performed," Landry says. "Now they (his teammates) see what he can do. He has given us more confidence."

The Cowboys have played two solid games after an 0-5 preseason, their worst since 1962. And Walker, who has played fullback, flanker and backup tailback to Dorsett, has also inspired Dorsett, Landry says.

"Anybody will get better when you have good people behind you," Landry says. "I couldn't get Tony out of the game in the second half against Detroit and he was still limping on a sprained ankle."

Landry won't say where he plans to play Walker against the Atlanta Falcons in Texas Stadium at noon Sunday, but it won't be as a starter at tailback.

"I'll play Herschel as much as I can but I can't take away Tony's impact on the team," Landry says. "Tony is a proven 1,000-yard runner. He will get the major emphasis in our offense.

"I feel good about this team now," he added. "I have a feeling we won't be as erratic as we were last year. We have much more depth. And our offensive line is healthy and a lot more stronger."

Landry says the unbeaten Falcons were a dangerous team not be taken lightly.

"I think our team will be impressed by what they see in the films," he says. "I don't think they will take Atlanta lightly after seeing what a good team the Falcons have become."

While thinking of next week

Hatching notes from around District 4-5A while thinking of next week...

The Midland High defense went seven quarters before giving up a fourth quarter touchdown to Andrews, but Odessa Permian has a string of eight consecutive quarters without being scored upon and is the only team in 4-5A which hasn't allowed a point after two games...

With former Midland Lee coaches Spike Dykes and Jack Tayrien trying to discover what the word defense means at Texas Tech after the Miami "Hurricane" of 1986, not much seems to have changed with the Rebels under new boss Earl Miller.

When the Rebels get in trouble, out comes the old "tricked-you" plays. Down 15-7 against Plainview last Friday, the Rebels pull off an end-around play with Jimmy Fennell that cuts the margin to 15-13 and you knew the Rebs were back. Brings back memories of last year's "tricked-you" game against San Angelo, doesn't it?...

Long distance dialing hasn't been a problem for either the MHS or Lee offense this year. MHS' Tyrone Oliver breaks one for 57 yards against Andrews while Lee's Rodney Johnson burns up the Memorial Stadium rug with a 51-yarder for the top two this past week...

After a 40-14 loss to Sweetwater, new Abilene High coach Larry Pullin said, "If they were the 4A state champions last year, then I'm glad I had to play against them this year."...

The Bobkitties of San Angelo have scored a league high 84 points in two games, but have given up 33 points. Look for some district horse races when district teams face Jimmie Keeling's group...

Midland High may have picked an excellent year to drop the Lubbock Estacado Matadors from the schedule. Estacado defeated Plainview by a 26-0 score and then routed Big Spring by a 56-6 margin. What I saw of Plainview Friday night, didn't leave the impression that the Bulldogs are a weak team. In fact, look for Plainview to make the playoffs in District 3-4A with Amarillo Palo Duro. Others seem to agree. Estacado was voted as the top 4A team in the state this week...

Larry Peel, the former MHS and Lee assistant coach, is having a rough Class 5A baptism as his Abilene Cooper Cougars are the only 4-5A outfit which hasn't found the win column after two weeks. Reports, however, say the Cougars looked much better in a 28-9 loss to Wichita Falls than they did in a loss to Brownwood...

New Odessa High coach Jerry Taylor got his first victory as a member of the 4-5A fraternity in a 22-13 win over El Paso Austin in his Ratliff Stadium debut...

District 4-5A has long been known as the "Little Southwest Conference," a tag the league may want to shed after the colleges took the field last Saturday.

Jackie Sherrill of A&M is now on a strict diet of Louisiana gumbo while Texas' Fred Akers is adding "good-bye" to his vocabulary. Texas Tech's David McWilliams learned to count past 60 this week so he could relate to his Raiders while Houston was glowing from playing against Open Date...

And that's it while waiting for one more week without the MHS-Lee matchup to pass...

"Tony Jeffery has the ability and potential to have any kind of game he wants. I think people may have already forgotten about me. But if they haven't, T.J. really buried me," said former TCU back Kenneth Davis, who saw Jeffery roll out 343 yards rushing against Tulane.

Today's Question: Name one of two baseball players that had their numbers reired by two different teams?

Mattingly, Boggs waging only real war that's left

Associated Press

There's still some suspense in the American League East, but it has nothing to do with the teams. It's the sizzling race between Boston's Wade Boggs and New York's Don Mattingly for the league batting title.

"This is as good as I've felt at the plate as far as knowing myself, knowing the pitchers and making small adjustments," Mattingly said Tuesday night after going 3-for-5 and boosting his batting average to .350 in an 8-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

That put him just two percentage points behind Boggs, who went 3-for-8 in the Red Sox's 2-1 and 9-3 doubleheader sweep of the Milwaukee Brewers and maintained his average at .352.

With their 14th victory in the last 17 starts, the Red Sox reduced their magic number to 9 despite victories by division runnersup New York and Toronto. Any combination of nine Boston victories and nine losses by the Yankees and the Blue Jays will give the Red Sox their first AL East championship since 1975. Boston currently holds a nine-game lead over both teams.

MATTINGLY HIT his second home run in two nights, went over the 100 RBI mark for the third straight season, and set a career mark with 213 hits, to lead the Yankees over Baltimore.

He hit a two-run homer in New York's three-run first inning, singled in the third inning and doubled and scored in front of Dave Winfield's three-run homer in the seventh. The Yankee first baseman added an RBI on a forceout in the eighth for the Yankees' final run.

The two RBI in the first inning gave Mattingly 100 for the season and the 213 hits, which lead the major leagues, were two more than the career mark he set last season.

Rookie Doug Drabek, 6-7, won his third game in a row, allowing one run on seven hits in five innings. Bob Shirley pitched the last four innings for his third save. Scott McGregor, 10-13, was the loser.

"The years he's been having are among the best," Orioles Manager Earl Weaver said of Mattingly. "Now, it's just a matter of putting the numbers on the board year after year and seeing what they look like when he retires. So far, you aren't going to beat it."

AL Roundup

Red Sox 2-9, Brewers 1-3

Dwight Evans led off the seventh inning with a tie-breaking homer and Roger Clemens scattered six hits for his 23rd victory as Boston beat Milwaukee in the first game of their doubleheader.

Clemens, 23-4, walked one and struck out 10, raising his league-leading total to 227. He has struck out 10 or more in a game eight times this season, tying the club record set by Jim Lonborg in 1967, and 12 times in his brief career.

Evans' 23rd homer in the seventh broke a 1-1 tie off rookie Juan Nieves, 10-10.

Evans also figured in the Red Sox's nightcap victory, scoring once and forcing in a run with a bases-loaded walk in a six-run eighth that snapped a 3-3 tie. Evans first scored the tie-breaker on an error by shortstop Edgar Diaz, playing in his first major league game, then walked with the bases loaded later in the inning.

Angels 6, Royals 5

Bob Boone's single in the eighth inning snapped a 5-5 tie as California beat Kansas City in a seesaw game.

Boone's two-out single off reliever Dan Quisenberry, 2-7, scored Devon White from second. White was inserted for Wally Joyner, who had pinch-hit and beat out an infield single with two away. White then stole second.

Reliever Gary Lucas, 4-0, pitched the ninth for the victory.

Detroit catcher Mike Heath does a head stand during collision with Toronto's Ernie Whitt Tuesday, but Heath's dedication produced an out. But alas, Toronto won the game, 6-4.

Bo Jackson, continuing his impressive start as a major league baseball player, tied the game with a two-run homer in the eighth inning. Jackson, the Heisman trophy-winning running back at Auburn last year, hit his second homer in eight games in the majors, blasting a pitch from Donnie Moore over the right field fence at Anaheim Stadium.

Rangers 10, A's 6

Larry Parrish hit two homers and had four RBI and Geno Petralli knocked in two runs, one of them with a single that broke a 5-5 tie in the seventh inning, as Texas defeated Oakland.

Parrish hit his first homer of the game in the fourth and his second in the ninth, giving him 26 for the season.

Petralli tripled home a run in the sixth and scored the tying run on a single by Parrish. Petralli singled in the tie-breaking run in the seventh and Parrish followed with an RBI groundout.

Oddibe McDowell and Pete O'Brien also homered for Texas, while Dwayne Murphy and Mickey Tettleton homered for the A's, who lost their fifth straight game.

Twins 7, Indians 3

Billy Beane hit a three-run homer and Mark Portugal pitched 6⅔ innings of one-run relief as Minnesota ended its nine-game road losing streak with a victory in Cleveland.

Portugal, 5-8, allowed three hits and struck out four while walking one as he snapped the Indians' four-game winning streak.

Tom Brunansky went 3-for-5, scored twice and knocked in two runs for the Twins.

Blue Jays 6, Tigers 4

Jimmy Key won his first game at home in a month and Ernie Whitt hit a solo homer to pace Toronto over Detroit, snapping the Tigers' five-game winning streak.

Key, who hadn't won at home since Aug. 16 against Texas, allowed six hits, struck out five and walked two over 6⅓ innings to improve his record to 13-10. He was chased in the seventh after the Tigers loaded the bases and Lou Whitaker delivered a run-scoring single that cut Toronto's lead to 5-2.

With the bases still full, Mark Eichhorn came on and got Alan Trammell to bounce into a run-producing fielder's choice, then gave up a two-out RBI single to pinch-hitter John Grubb that pulled Detroit within a run.

Mariners 7, White Sox 0

Mike Morgan hurled a four-hit shutout, the first of his major league career, and Scott Bradley and Harold Reynolds homered as Seattle beat Chicago.

Morgan, 11-15, allowed only four singles, walked none and struck out six for his ninth complete game of the season.

Kansas City to groom Jackson for '87 start

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — What do you do with a raw, untrained rookie who's fast enough to leg out three infield hits in a single game and powerful enough to belt 475-foot home runs?

If the player is Bo Jackson and you are the Kansas City Royals, you "give him every opportunity," General Manager John Schuerholz says.

"Everything we've seen so far from Bo has just confirmed our earlier opinions," Schuerholz says of his remarkably quick, muscular running back-turned-outfielder. "That he will be in right field when the Royals open their 1987 season is a valid possibility."

Three months ago, the very suggestion seemed preposterous. But Jackson's rapid adaptation to professional baseball has exceeded the wildest hopes of the Royals, who may have pulled off one of the greatest scouting coups of the century by snatching up the 1985 Heisman Trophy winner in the fourth round of baseball's June draft.

What they had, they said at the time, was a young man with wonderous talents who had not played a full season of baseball since his junior year at Auburn. Nobody knew what was going to happen when Jackson got his first look at professional pitching. Privately, they feared the worst.

"He's so new, he glints in the sun," one Kansas City official said.

But after hitting .277 in 53 games for the Memphis Chicks of the Class AA Southern League, Jackson was called up when major league rosters expanded on Sept. 1.

Going into Wednesday night's game at California, he was hitting .333 in eight games with 10 hits in 30 at bats, including one double, four RBI, a stolen base, an error and two home runs, one of which ranks as the longest homer in Royals Stadium history.

Facing Mike Moore of the Seattle Mariners Sunday afternoon, Jackson smashed his first major league homer — and smash is the word. The ball traveled an estimated 475 feet, landing atop the grassy knoll behind left field. Since opening in 1973, Royals Stadium has hosted two World Series, an All-Star Game and more than 1,000 regular-season contests. But nobody ever hit one quite as far as the unpolished football player with the broad shoulders and the quiet, unassuming manner.

He connected for his second homer Tuesday night, a two-run shot in the eighth inning off Angels' relief ace Donnie Moore that tied the game 5-5. California got a run in the bottom of the inning to win 6-5.

In a game a few days earlier, the 225-pound Jackson had flashed his world-class speed by beating out three infield singles. Many players his weight go through an entire season without three infield hits.

"We knew he had tremendous raw potential to play the game of baseball, and he is demonstrating that raw potential to the utmost," Schuerholz said. "Our reports when we drafted him indicated he had better speed than anybody who ever put on a baseball uniform in our organization. He's certainly demonstrated that. And that he had awesome power, perhaps more awesome power than anybody we've ever had in our organization. He has certainly demonstrated that.

Schramm's pet gets ugly scar

IRVING (AP) — Tex Schramm says the timing couldn't have been worse.

It was Monday night football with all the nation watching. And the NFL three-man instant replay crew in the press box goofed.

Schramm's pet project, the instant replay, got a big ugly scar.

Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, couldn't believe what he saw in the Denver-Pittsburgh game.

"It had all the ingredients you would want and the officials in the press box blew it," Schramm said. "It was ridiculous."

The three-man NFL replay crew was late to act on an apparent 80-yard scoring pass from running back Gerald Willhite to Steve Watson.

Willhite caught the ball on a lateral from quarterback John Elway before he threw the pass. However, the officials on the field ruled the Elway pass was forward. There can't be two forward passes on the same play.

The officials in the press box decided it was a legal play but didn't get the word to the field. Denver ran another play so the original ruling stood.

"This was your classic, ideal case of the value of instant replay," said Schramm, a member of the NFL's competition committee. "You could see immediately what needed to be done. It wasn't close."

Schramm said the NFL office told him that the technician in the booth failed to buzz the umpire on the field.

"There shouldn't have been any delay," Schramm said. "You should call down immediately and say what you've got."

Schramm admitted the goof gave opponents of the instant replay some good ammunition.

However, he added "If I'm in football I'm not going to give up something that works. I'm not going to throw it away because some people made a mistake.

"Some people will always be against it. We just need to get some things ironed out. It just mechanics."

He said instant replay of football wasn't like baseball where you have four bases.

"It's not like baseball where you have those bases and 95 percent of the things happen around there," Schramm said. "Each week we're finding things we didn't anticipate."

He said the NFL officials in the booth were too nervous.

"Some of the guys upstairs don't have the confidence they should have," Schramm said. "They don't want to make a mistake. They aren't acting spontaneously."

The NFL will decide again in March whether to have instant replay in 1987. Four teams voted against it last time. "Nobody can have a gripe about the accuracy of instant replay," Schramm said. "We're just running into cases where some people can't make decisions."

Colleges continue passing trend

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr.
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Passing yardage has exceeded rushing yardage in college football for the last three years and quarterbacks this season are continuing that trend. Division 1-A or major teams are throwing 188 yards a game while rushing 161.9 and Division 1-AA teams are passing 179 and rushing 150.7 each game.

Most fans are well aware of Vinny Testaverde of Miami, Kevin Sweeney of Fresno State, Kerwin Bell of Florida, Steve Lindsley of Brigham Young and other major college quarterbacks who will produce impressive statistics this season. But there were some big numbers posted last Saturday by lesser known quarterbacks.

For example, Towson State, a Division II team, trounced a good Division 1-AA team, Rhode Island, 35-14, because Theron Richards threw for 418 yards and four tochdowns; Richmond lost to Massachusetts by 3 points despite 389 yards passing from Bob Bleier; Virginia Tech's Eric Chapman passed for 242 yards in a 20-14 major upset of Clemson; William & Mary went to 2-0 because Ken Lambiotte connected for 279 yards and four touchdowns to beat Virginia Military, 37-22, and Bucknell's junior passer, Jim Given, threw for 303 yards and three touchdowns to beat Indiana State, 23-7.

But the biggest passing numbers by any individual are coming out of North Carolina Central in Durham where Earl Harvey, a sophomore, threw for 408 yards and four touchdowns last Saturday in a 42-18 victory over St. Paul's of Virginia. Harvey, who last year became the first freshman in National Collegiate Athletic Association history to pass over 3,000 yards, has increased his 1986 totals to 1,260 yards passing and nine touchdowns in three games.

Harvey will be throwing the football all over Yankee Stadium Saturday night when the Division II North Carolina Central team meets Division 1-A Grambling in the annual Whitney M. Young Jr. charity game.

Starting his college career with 3,190 yards passing in 1985, the 6-foot-3-inch, 205-pound Harvey has thrown for more than 300 yards in each of his last eight games and has gone over 300 yards in the air 11 times in his 13 starts as the Eagles' quarterback.

Oilers may trade No. 1 draft pick

By MICHAEL JANOFSKY
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The Houston Oilers, who picked Jim Everett of Purdue in the first round of the college draft but never signed him, have given another team permission to discuss a contract with him, Everett's agent said Monday.

If the Oilers and the other team can agree on the terms of a trade, Marvin Demoff, the agent said, a deal may be completed by the end of the week.

Demoff would not identify the other team, other than to say that one team had called him, with Houston's permission, to speak to Everett and that "it is not the 49ers." However, another source familiar with the situation identified the team as the Green Bay Packers, who are 0-2 and are known to be unsatisfied with Randy Wright as their starter. Wright has completed just 28 of 67 passes and has been intercepted six times.

NFL Report

Ladd Herzeg, the Oilers' general manager, declined to discuss the matter, other than to say that "several other teams have talked to us in the last seven days" about Everett.

The likelihood that the 49ers might be one of them increased over the weekend when the 49ers revealed the seriousness of Joe Montana's back injury. Montana, who was injured in the 49ers' victory over Tampa Bay nine days ago, underwent surgery Monday in San Francisco to repair a ruptured disk. The club said he would be unable to play the rest of the season, and the possibility existed that he might not play again.

Everett, meanwhile, remained the only 1986 first-round draft pick who had failed to reach agreement on a contract with the team that selected him. In recent weeks, he has been working out on his own and waiting.

"While he was in Florida last week, he had a conversation with Marino," said Demoff, referring to another of his clients, Dan Marino, the Miami Dolphins quarterback, who recently signed a contract worth $9 million after more than a year of negotiations between Demoff and Joe Robbie, the Dolphins' managing general partner.

"Dan just told him not to panic," Demoff said. "He told him that withstanding his frustrations in 1985 enabled him to benefit in 1986."

Several key players suffered serious injuries over the weekend. Three will be lost for the season.

Mel Kaufman, a linebacker for the Washington Redskins, and Danny Walters, a cornerback for the San Diego Chargers, each tore his Achilles' tendon. Gary Hogeboom, the quarterback acquired by the Indianapolis Colts earlier this year, suffered a separated right shoulder.

The Redskins also lost Kelvin Bryant, their fine running back, for an unspecified number of games with a knee injury.

The New Orleans Saints are concerned about Willie Tullis, a starting cornerback, whose whereabouts over the weekend were unknown to the team.

He had called the Saints Friday morning to say that he was not feeling well and that he would be unable to attend practice that day, according to Jim Finks, the general manager. Tullis was given the name and phone number of a doctor and told to make an appointment. But when the Saints called the doctor later in the day, they were told that Tullis had not been there.

"We just about had an all-points bulletin out for him," Finks said Monday.

For the next two days, the Saints had no idea where he was. It was only Monday morning that Tullis resurfaced, calling the club to say that he was at home and was all right. Finks, accompanied by several players, drove to Tullis's house to talk to him. Later in the day, at Finks's suggestion, Tullis met with a doctor.

Ankle sprains hit all ages

Ankle sprains are undoubtedly the most common sports related injury seen in a sports medicine practice. This injury can be appreciated by the three-year-old having its first season in soccer or by the octogenarian in a walking program.

The old adage "a sprain is worse than a fracture" is in a way true. When a patient has a broken or fractured ankle, great attention and time is applied to insure proper diagnosis and treatment.

If a fracture is not seen, then usually the patient and his injury are ignored. They are presented with crutches and an Ace bandage and admonished to be careful for a couple of weeks. Frequently this leads to an ankle that will "give away" or "turn" on a flat, even surface. This is the "chronically unstable ankle."

The ankle is basically a hinged joint. The hinges are the medial (inside) and lateral (outside) ligaments. The medial ligament is called the deltoid ligament. It has two layers and is very strong. Usually, in fact, should severe stress be applied to the medial side of the ankle, a fracture will result instead of tearing the deltoid ligament. In other words, on the medial side of the ankle the ligaments are stronger than the bone.

The reverse is true of the lateral ankle ligaments. They generally will stretch or tear before the fracture occurs. Anatomically, the lateral ankle is controlled by four ligaments. Severity of injury generally dictates the number of lateral ligaments injured during a strain. A mild twist will perhaps stretch one ligament; a severe twist may stretch or tear all of them.

What is the difference between stretching and tearing of a ligament? With the stretching injury, the ligament remains in continuity; it has simply been elongated in length. If healing is successful, it can regain proper length and strength. In a tear, ligamentous continuity is lost and the ligament has no functional or structural integrity.

"Hi, Bob. How are you?"

"Fine, Doc, but I have a major ankle problem."

"What happened?"

"I was playing football with the guys and went out for a pass and stepped in a hole and my ankle hurts. It just kills me. I don't want to walk on it. I can't even bear weight on it."

Bob's ankle demonstrates lateral (outside) swelling and bruising. The range of motion of his ankle is quite limited because of pain. Palpation (probing) of the deltoid ligament is mildly painful. The lateral ankle ligaments are very sensitive to the touch. The bony structures of the foot and ankle are non-tender. X-rays are negative for fracture. What now?

Several years ago an article in the American Journal of Sports Medicine demonstrated that if two or more lateral ankle ligaments have been injured, then the best treatment is cast immobilization. If a patient has injured two or more ligaments and if they are simply treated in an Ace bandage with crutches, they have a 56 per cent incidence of unstable ankle. If this patient is treated in a cast, this incidence goes down to 14 percent. So our patient, Bob, should be put in a cast.

Six to eight weeks after the injury, stress x-rays are taken to demonstrate the degree of healing. If the ligaments are working, the x-ray will show it. Strengthening and stretching exercises are begun and the patient slowly progresses back to his full activities.

The patient who has the chronically unstable ankle may be treated surgically with reconstruction of the ligaments. Often this is the only way the patient can get back to normal. This is usually quite successful. Total treatment is about four months and the patient is usually able to get back to all activities.

Walsh predicts 49ers' Montana will return next year

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Joe Montana will be back on the field next year, as good as ever, San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh predicts.

Montana was recuperating Tuesday from delicate surgery performed Monday to repair a ruptured disk in his back. Doctors had said that the condition would keep him out the rest of this season and could possibly end his career.

Walsh is already making plans to acquire a top young quarterback, either in a trade or through next year's draft, to groom for Montana's job. But the coach is not ready to concede that Montana's career is over.

"There is a time frame (for Montana's recovery) that might include Joe this year, but that's very, very unlikely," Walsh said. "But there's every reason to feel he'll play next year."

Stacks of letters from fans to Montana are piling up at 49ers headquarters. A hospital hotline set up to give updates on the quarterback's condition has been flooded by thousands of calls.

Newspapers bannered stories of his surgery on the front pages, and provided the kind of detailed medical coverage, complete with graphics, that were run when President Reagan had colon surgery.

The outpouring of concern for Montana has been enormous as the whole San Francisco Bay area pulls for his return.

Irish crack AP Top 20 despite Michigan loss

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — A brief smile betrayed Notre Dame football coach Lou Holtz' studied indifference to news the Fighting Irish had cracked the Top Twenty.

"If you win enough, the polls take care of themselves," he said Tuesday, responding to the early season plaudit.

Packing away his smile, Holtz took the pose that most polls don't matter. "Only the first one," he said. "I just want to be better than Michigan State."

Michigan State is both Notre Dame's next opponent and the team the once-beleaguered Irish displaced for the No. 20 spot in the weekly Associated Press college poll.

Notre Dame edged into the national rankings after a strong performance in a 24-23 loss to No. 3 Michigan. It was the first time the Irish appeared in the rankings since the second week of last year under former coach Gerry Faust.

"It speaks well for the football players on Saturday (against Michigan), and I also think it speaks well for the caliber of our schedule," Holtz said. Notre Dame's fall schedule includes No. 4 Alabama, No. 5 Penn State and No. 8 LSU.

Holtz said he's never coached a team that has moved into the rankings, or advanced to a higher ranking, after a loss. His last ranked team was Minnesota, which reached No. 20 at mid-season last year, he said.

Notre Dame team captain Mike Kovaleski, named Midwest Player of the Week on defense for his 17 tackles against Michigan, brushed off the poll, too, despite his teammates' hunger for recognition after the trauma of Faust's final year stole most of the 1985 headlines.

"For me, ratings after the first game and the pre-season don't really mean anything because you've got 10 games to play," Kovaleski explained. "It's not how you begin the season; it's how you end."

The next step toward the end comes Saturday when Spartan tailback Lorenzo White, who led the nation last season in ground gaining, challenges the Notre Dame defense.

"He's not only got great physical talent, he's durable," Holtz said of White. "He carries 40 or 45 times a game, and he's not fazed. He's the same in the fourth quarter as he is in the first."

Although White carried 24 times for only 61 yards in a season-opening 20-17 loss to Arizona State, Kovaleski and the Notre Dame defensive squad structured their Monday practice around stopping the 5-foot-11, 204-pound junior.

But Holtz, who has cautiously downplayed his team's ability whenever he's had the chance, says the Irish defense can't hope to keep White on a short leash. "I think we have to concede that Lorenzo White is going to get an awful lot of yardage," he said.

The artificial turf at East Lansing only helps White speed up his quick turns and acceleration, he said. "You get on Astroturf and an individual makes a cut and you can't believe he did it. And Lorenzo White makes unbelievable cuts to begin with," Holtz said.

Against Spartan quarterback Dave Yarema, who completed 26 of 33 passes against Arizona State, and fullback Bobby Morse, who gained 56 yards receiving, including one touchdown reception, Notre Dame offers quarterback Steve Beuerlein, flanker Tim Brown and tailback Mark Green.

Beuerlein completed 23 of 33 pass attempts against Michigan, throwing for a touchdown to tight end Joel Williams, while Brown and Green each rushed for a touchdown.

Dollar slips

LONDON (AP) — The dollar opened mostly lower in slow trading today, with dealers predicting little major movement before Thursday's U.S. gross national product figures are released. Gold also was down.

The dollar gained slightly against the yen in Tokyo but fell back against the Japanese currency in later European trading. It strengthened against the British pound but retreated against other European currencies.

In Frankfurt, dealers said a growth rate of under 1 percent in the revised second-quarter GNP could weaken the dollar.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar rose to a closing 155.95 yen from Tuesday's 155.80. Later, in London, it was quoted at 155.35 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday:

-2.0355 West German marks, down from 2.0465

-1.6455 Swiss francs, down from 1.6565

-2.6675 French francs, down from 6.7050

-2.3085 Dutch guilders, down from 2.3125

-1,405.50 Italian lire, down from 1,412.75

-1.3883 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3866

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.4745, compared with $1.4775 Tuesday.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $414.00 a troy ounce, down from $415.00 late Tuesday. At midmorning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $413.60.

In Zurich, the bid price was $413.75, down from $414.50 late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell $1.67 to close at a bid $409.43.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $5.81 a troy ounce, up from Tuesday's $5.79.

Economists upbeat about 1987

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy's performance has been disappointing this year, but 1987 should see better growth with chances of a recession diminished, the nation's business economists predicted today.

The National Association of Business Economists said its latest survey of 300 of its members found them decidedly upbeat about 1987, with the consensus forecast calling for faster growth with moderate inflation.

While the economists, who work for some of the country's largest companies, were not as optimistic as the Reagan administration, they said the threat of a recession has been pushed farther into the future.

The analysts also forecast higher corporate profits next year, a slight rise in interest rates and further declines in the value of the dollar.

While continuing to be upbeat about growth in 1987, the economists scaled back their expectations for economic performance this year.

The economy, as measured by the gross national product, grew at a sluggish 2.2 percent annual rate from January through June as near-recession conditions in oil and gas drilling and the nation's manufacturing sector held back overall activity.

While three months ago the economists were forecasting growth of 3.2 percent for 1986, the new survey reduced that prediction to 2.5 percent growth for this year, when compared with the fourth quarter of 1985.

This is well below the Reagan administration's current forecast that the economy will expand at a 3.2 percent rate this year. The administration began the year forecasting growth of 4 percent.

For 1987, the business economists believe the economy will grow at a 2.9 percent annual rate, not a robust pace but at least an improvement over activity since the middle of 1984.

The pending overhaul of the tax law would have a negative impact on the economy, at least in the short run, the largest group of economists said.

Less than one-fifth said economic growth would be boosted in the next two years by passage of the law, while 45 percent said GNP growth would likely be cut by 1 percent or more because of the law's adverse impact on business capital spending.

However, almost half felt the long-term growth of the economy would be helped by the new tax law with consumer spending expected to receive the biggest boost from the changes, because the bill will shift $120 billion of the tax burden from individuals to businesses.

The survey, which was released in Washington and at the association's annual meeting in Boston, produced these other predictions:

—Almost two-thirds of the economists believe the current recovery will last at least until 1988. About one-third believe it will last until 1989 or beyond. Three months ago, 54 percent expected the next recession would start in 1987 or before.

—Consumer prices, held back this year by steep declines in energy costs, will rise at a moderate 3.7 percent annual rate in 1987, the same level being forecast by the administration.

—The unemployment rate will remain stable next year, hovering around the 7 percent level, down only slightly from where it has been for the past two years.

—The outlook for the federal deficit remains bleak, with the red ink, which will top $200 billion this year, expected to decline only slightly to $186 billion next year. This would be far above the target of $144 billion called for by the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law. Half the economists said they raised their deficit forecasts because the Supreme Court eliminated the automatic across-the-board spending cuts.

—The prime rate, the benchmark business lending rate, will rise only slightly in the next year to 8 percent, up from 7.5 percent currently.

United trims payroll by 14

By ALLEN E. HOWLAND
Business/Oil Writer

Fourteen former employees of Western Bank, originally retained by United Bank when it purchased the failed bank, were laid off Tuesday, according to United chairman and chief executive officer Wayne Merritt.

The manpower needs of a branch bank facility are simply less extensive than what is required to staff an independently chartered bank, Merritt explains.

Merritt says he regrets the need to release the former employees, "but we made our personnel evaluation as soon as possible so that we could quickly ensure those employees from Western that are being retained, that their jobs are indeed secure.

"All employees were told from the beginning that no one had a guaranteed job. It was inevitable that some personnel changes would be needed, and we elected to make these changes all at once rather than dribbling out the process, laying off a person or two a week over a longer period," he adds.

Of the 14 affected employees, four have already been offered positions by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., Merritt says. For the others, United is offering outplacement services to help employees find new jobs. In addition, the bank has offered to pay medical insurance premiums for conversion policies for former employees through the end of October.

Merritt says that of the laid-off employees he has met with, "Although no one is pleased to lose their job, they have all expressed that they prefer knowing where they stand."

While United is anxious to begin reviewing the FDIC's portfolio of former Western loans and make other operating decisions, Merritt says they thought was important to take the time initially to resolve the personnel situation before moving on to other areas.

He also notes that while 14 jobs have been lost, actually more than 30 jobs were saved through United's purchase of Western. "If the bank had not been bought, all of the jobs would have been lost."

Layoffs were 'across the board', not concentrated in any particular departments, Merritt says, and were simply the result of duplication of efforts in combining the two locations' operations.

Drilling plans set by Conoco and Japanese

HOUSTON (AP) — Conoco Inc. and a Japanese firm will spend $135 million over the next two years to drill 20 exploration wells in the United States, primarily in the Gulf of Mexico, officials announced.

Executives of Nippon Mining Co., a major Japanese oil refiner and producer, signed an agreement Tuesday with Conoco officials in Houston.

The companies' plan calls for 14 offshore and six onshore wells in five states.

All the offshore sites will be in Louisiana while the other wells will be in Texas, Montana, Colorado and Alabama.

The first well will be drilled in the Green Canyon area of the Gulf of Mexico, just west of the giant oil and gas field Conoco discovered several years ago, officials said.

If the program is successful, the Japanese firm probably will participate in other ventures with the Houston-based company, said Takashi Sakamoto, managing director of Nippon Mining.

"We've just started offshore oil exploration," he said. "We see good potential for exploration in the Gulf of Mexico."

Nippon Mining is Conoco's first international partner on domestic drilling, said Max G. Pitcher, vice president of Conoco's North American exploration operations.

"Earth Trek: Fantastic Journey with Petroleum" takes visitors from prehistoric times to a drill rig floor and through a modern refinery. "Earth Trek" opens for public viewing Sept. 23.

New home construction rises slightly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ground was broken for new homes at an annual rate of 1,822,000 in August, 0.4 percent above the revised July rate of 1,815,000, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

The revised July rate was 2 percent below that of the previous month.

The estimated actual number of homes begun in August was 166,400, down from 175,400 in July. The number is adjusted for seasonal differences and extended for 12 months to arrive at the annual rate.

Industry strength was centered on single-family housing that has benefited from low mortgage interest rates. Free-standing homes were started at an annual rate of 1,197,000 in August, up 3 percent over the July pace of 1,162,000.

Multi-family housing, hurt by high vacancy rates in rentals and the anticipated loss of tax credits on rental units, were down 8 percent from 579,000 to 534,000 in August.

During the first eight months of 1986, ground was broken on an estimated 1,273,000 homes, 8 percent higher than the same period last year. The August rate was 4.9 percent above that of August 1985.

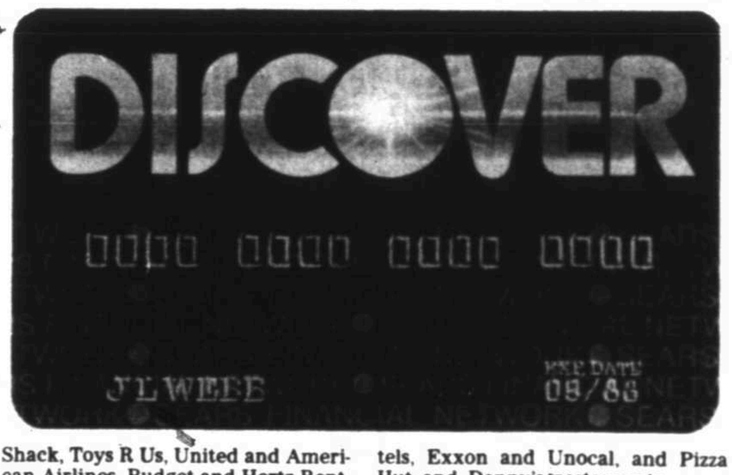
Midland part of introduction program for Discover Card

CHICAGO — Beginning this week, approximately 38,000 households in the Midland/Odessa area will receive pre-approved applications for the Discover Card, the new credit and financial services card from the Dean Witter Financial Services Group.

The mailing is part of a year-long national introduction program that began in March and has resulted in consumer acceptance of more than 4.7 million Discover Cards.

During this year, more than 22 million consumers nationwide will receive pre-approved applications offering personal lines of credit averaging $1,000 to $2,200.

The Discover Card is a transaction card that offers a revolving line of credit at merchant outlets nationwide. Among the national companies honoring the card are Dayton-Hudson, Montgomery Ward, Radio Shack, Toys R Us, United and American Airlines, Budget and Hertz Rent-A-Car, Holiday Inn and Hilton Hotels, Exxon and Unocal, and Pizza Hut and Denny's restaurants.



"But Discover Card is much more than just a credit card," according to Robert E. Wood II, chairman and chief executive officer of the consumer banking division of Dean Witter. "It is a true financial services card that will help consumers with savings and investment as well as spending."

In addition to the revolving line of credit, Discover Card offers a money market deposit account with a tiered interest rate structure. With this Discover Savers' account, the higher the savings balance, the higher the interest the account pays. Families can combine account balances to qualify for the higher rates.

The card also permits instant cash access at thousands of ATM locations and Sears stores around the country. Cardmembers can also get cash advances with Discover Card checks.

Discover Card helps consumers save by paying a Cashback Bonus on every purchase. These savings can be as high as one percent of a cardmember's total annual purchases. The dividend are paid annually and can be used as payments against outstanding credit balances, as deposits to the Discover Savers' account where deposits are doubled in some instances, or for Sears gift certificates.

According to Wood, "as the card develops, it will give consumers access to a wide variety of banking, investment and insurance options provided through the Sears Financial Network."

Wood said that Sears expects to have more than 10 million Discover Card accounts by the end of 1987. He also noted that more than 380,000 merchants nationwide have already agreed to accept the Discover Card and more continue to sign up each day.

Federal grand jury indicts Texan on 20 counts of wire, bank fraud

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a Texas businessman on 19 counts of wire fraud and one count of bank fraud in connection with an alleged bail-out plan offered to financially troubled farmers in six states, including Oklahoma.

Following a two-year investigation by the FBI and the Department of Justice, the grand jury returned the indictment Tuesday against Nasib Ed Kalliel, 60, chief executive officer and sole stockholder of First Financial Guaranty Corp. of Houston.

The indictment alleges Kalliel submitted a false financial statement to the now-defunct Rexford State Bank in Rexford, Kan., in April 1984. The statement claimed Kalliel had assets of $184,217,232 and a net worth of $1,779,345, according to the indictment.

Kalliel allegedly arranged for the Rexford bank, which was solvent and had assets of $3.2 million at the end of 1983, to get an approximately $2 million deposit from First United Fund, a Garden City, N.Y., brokerage company.

The money allegedly was used to make loans to farmers and Kalliel's companies. Kalliel signed repayment guarantees as part of the loan deals.

The indictment claims Kalliel transferred $536,000 to accounts he controlled. The rest went to farmers, but many who had signed promissory notes didn't get the full amount they had agreed to borrow, the indictment said.

When some of the notes became due in September 1984 neither the farmers nor Kalliel paid them. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. ordered the Rexford State Bank to write off all of the loans involving Kalliel. That made the bank insolvent and it was closed by federal regulators Oct. 10, 1984.

The FDIC has filed lawsuits seeking more than $1 million from Kalliel for allegedly failing to honor the loan guarantee agreements. He also has been the target of lawsuits filed the attorneys general in Kansas and Iowa.

Kansas Attorney General Robert T. Stephan won a default judgment against Kalliel in a Shawnee County District Court lawsuit claiming Kalliel's agreememts with farmers violated the state's anti-corporate farming and consumer protection laws.

Stephan got an order barring Kalliel from doing business in Kansas. Fines, penalties and attorney fees totalling $175,200 were assessed against Kalliel and First Financial Guaranty.

In Iowa, Assistant Attorney Tam Ormiston filed a lawsuit claiming Kalliel defrauded at least 18 farmers of amounts ranging from several thousand dollars to $72,000. That lawsuit still is pending, but Ormiston said Kalliel apparently has stopped doing business in Iowa. The Iowa transactions also involved 1984 loans from the Rexford bank.

C.J. Moeder, former owner and president of the Rexford bank, said 13 loans were made to seven Kansas individuals or couples. He said the rest of the Kalliel loans, said to be dozens in number, went to farmers in Iowa, Oklahoma, Colorado, Missouri and Texas.

The farmers signed individual agreements with Kalliel. Though the terms varied, authorities said basically Kalliel sought farmers near bankruptcy who could still generate some cash flow. He agreed to help furnish living expenses, operating expenses, and loan monies.

In return, the farmers said they agreed to grant him an 80 percent interest in their farms, split annual profits 50-50 with him and pay him fees for helping them obtain loans.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Federal deficit reaches record $34.7 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deficit in the broadest measure of U.S. foreign trade hit a record $34.7 billion from April through June, pushing America deeper into the hole as the world's largest debtor nation.

The Commerce Department said Tuesday that the imbalance in the current account for the second quarter was 2 percent higher than the previous record $34 billion deficit in the first three months of the year.

Winery strike hits world's largest producer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Winery workers fighting contract concessions launched a strike against E. & J. Gallo Co., the world's largest wine-producer, bringing to 10 the number of wineries hit during a monthlong walkout.

The walkout of about 1,000 Gallo union workers came Tuesday as the new harvest neared its conclusion and grape-crushing was at its height in most of California's wineries. All the struck wineries, which account for half the state's wine production, claim work is continuing with non-union personnel.

The striking members of the Winery, Distillery and Allied Workers Union Locals 186 and 45 joined about 1,200 others who since August 18 have walked out at winery operations across 350 miles from the Napa Valley to Bakersfield.

Studios to produce video shopping show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two Hollywood studios and retail giant Horn & Hardart Co. will join the fast-growing video shopping business, forming ValueTelevision to produce a syndicated home shopping show for distribution to commercial stations.

Lorimar-Telepictures Corp., which produces such shows as "Dallas," and Fox Television Stations Inc., which is creating a "fourth network" of prime time entertainment shows, announced the venture Tuesday with Horn & Hardart.

In Video shopping, catalogue items are displayed and described for viewers who can order them over the telephone and pay with credit cards.

More Hunt property posted for foreclosure

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Hunt brothers have three weeks to rework loans or seek an injunction now that banks seeking to recover part of $1.5 billion in defaulted loans have posted more properties for foreclosure.

Hunt attorney Steve Gordon said the latest posted property includes a 48-acre tract of land in Collin County owned by the personal trust funds of Bunker, William Herbert and Lamar Hunt.

Banks have also posted the Mont Belvieu, Texas, processing plant owned by Placid Refining Co., Gordon said. The plant was built in 1979 for $8.5 million.

Herbert Hunt's personal trust filed for protection from creditors, as did the Hunts' Placid Oil and a real estate subsidiary, after some of its property was posted for foreclosure last month.

The latest postings come as Bankers Trust Co. and RepublicBank Dallas seek payment on part of more than $1.5 billion in loans to Placid Oil Co. and Penrod Drilling Co., energy companies owned by the brothers' trust funds.

If the brothers can't rework the loans or get an injunction, the property will be auctioned off at the Dallas County Courthouse under Texas foreclosure laws.

The brothers filed Chapter 11 bankruptcy petitions after lenders posted more than 200 acres of Hunt property in Collin County, the brothers' one-third interest in the 50-story Thanksgiving Tower in downtown Dallas, oil and gas leases in Texas and Mississippi and the Mont Belvieu refinery.

The three brothers, their companies and trust funds have since filed suit against 23 banks, claiming the lenders tried to run their companies out of business and monopolize the worldwide offshore drilling industry.

Half-brother Ray Hunt is not part of the suits.

Attorneys for the Hunts filed under Chapter 11 in New Orleans instead of Dallas, where the flurry of legal paperwork had begun. But U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders ruled that all proceedings stemming from the Hunts' lawsuits should be heard in Dallas.

Lawyers for Placid said they filed in New Orleans because most of the company's operations are in Louisiana.

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, which last week upheld Sanders' ruling to move the proceedings to Dallas, gave no reasons at the time.

But on Tuesday, the 5th Circuit said Sanders' court "took the only action within its power by ordering the Hunt interests to take action to transfer the Chapter 11 proceedings to the bankruptcy court for the Northern District of Texas."

The appellate court said further motions to keep the filings in Louisiana would only delay the proceedings and sap the Hunts' remaining assets.

Second family trying to stay out of battle

DALLAS (AP) — While the financial spotlight shines relentlessly on three Hunt brothers battling to hold onto their fortunes, another branch of the family is busy trying to distance itself from the fray.

Lamar, Nelson Bunker and William Herbert Hunt have sought bankruptcy protection for oil, real estate and business interests in Texas and Louisiana. They've also filed suit against 23 banks trying to foreclose on those properties and recover $1.5 billion in defaulted loans.

Publicity generated by the three brothers' legal and financial problems has cast a shadow over the family's other members, spokesmen say.

"There are two different oil companies named Hunt and two different families named Hunt here in Dallas," says Hunt Oil Co. spokesman Jim Oberwetter. "That can cause difficulties for us and it has."

The first and second families separated their holdings shortly after H.L. Hunt died in 1974.

The second family is made up of Ray Hunt, his mother Ruth Hunt and his two sisters. Hunt Oil Co. is the principal holding of the second family.

The first family of four sons and two daughters abandoned their shared financial front in 1983 when Caroline Hunt Schoellkopf, Margaret Hunt Hill and eldest son Haroldson "Hassie" Hunt Jr. sold their interests in Placid Oil Co. to their three brothers.

Oberwetter said most of the queries have been for Hunt Refining Co. in Alabama, which "has a very large customer base, and the customers all read newspapers, of course."

On several occasions the company's crude oil suppliers have asked that repayments be guaranteed by banks instead of the usual credit arrangements. The suppliers have dropped their demands in every case after a time-consuming explanation, a company spokesman said.

Oberwetter said all of the second family's business associates have received letters explaining the difference.

Grandma's recipe can turn out to be lucrative

NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks and bonds aren't the only things that make hefty inheritances. Something as humble as grandma's recipe for rum butter cake can turn out to be as lucrative as any blue chip stock.

Many amateur chefs are turning pro, converting yesterday's recipes into today's gourmet delights, as well as big profits.

Take Graham Sutton, for instance. During his childhood, Sutton used to watch his grandmother, Effie, make a golden rum butter cake. He kept to her original recipe to make the golden vanilla cake he markets, and also modified it a bit to make a chocolate fudge cake, thus turning a kitchen hobby into Effie Marie's Sutton Cakes of San Francisco, which expects to triple its already impressive sales next year.

Sutton was just one of the cooks at the recent Fancy Food Show here who has taken a recipe and turned it into a commercial success.

"Everyone would like the opportunity to extend the memory of someone dear to them," says Sutton, who started baking the rum cakes for family and friends. "I wish my grandmother were alive to see this. She'd love it."

Caroline Longe, of Vermont's Clearview Farms in Enosburg Falls, Vt., uses her grandmother's recipe for sweet and sour piccalilli relish. After turning her basement into a kitchen and enlisting the "reluctant" help of her four children, she started canning — pickles, jams and relishes — to feed her family. Last year Longe processed $20,000 worth of condiments and jams — for everyone else.

And some restaurateurs have found that the family recipes made in their restaurants may do just as well on grocery store shelves.

Andy Pinkston and his wife, Karen, who run Lusco's in Greenwood, Miss., the restaurant his great-grandfather started in 1933, now peddle salad dressing, broiled shrimp sauce and fish sauce. Pinkston's grandmother developed the shrimp sauce and the fish sauce. The salad dressing comes from Pinkston's great-aunt, now 82.

"They would have loved to do something like this but they didn't have the know-how," says Mrs. Pinkston.

The president — known as Madame Kuony — of The Postilion foods and owner of the family restaurant of the same name in Fond du Lac, Wis., says she thinks her mother, Elizabeth, would have liked the idea of her gourmet treats being made and sold in jars.

Kuony has 23 products on the market. The plum pudding, mincemeat, mango chutney and cognac sauce are all derived from her mother's recipes.

Beverly Buckley Stern kept her father's recipe for his English toffee, and went on to get the company its biggest accounts. She has taken over as the owner of Buckley's Original English Toffee, made in Baton Rouge, La.

She says her father, Spurgeon Buckley, now in his 70s, is still very interested in the business.

"He'll stand next to a can of toffee (which has his silhouette on it) and he'll tell people 'that's me,' " she says. "My dad started making toffee in 1958 for the local church bazaar. He made the toffee in a greenhouse which he converted into a candy kitchen. He invented his own contraption, made out of parts of a washing machine motor and a drill press, to stir the candy."

Norman J. Dinkel Jr. also took over the family business. He is president and chief executive officer of Chicago's Dinkel's Bakery. He bought the company stock from his father and took over the bakery his grandfather, Joseph, started in 1922.

The stollen the Dinkels make today has changed only slightly since the days when his grandfather made it. Norman Dinkel has branched out and now the retail bakery has turned into a gourmet mail-order business.

"I think Dad had a hard time accepting the change," says Dinkel, but adds, "I think my grandfather would be proud."

Vicky Huxtable of "Huxtable's Comestibles" of Vernon, Calif., says "My spaghetti sauce is a knockoff of my mother's. The beef stew is a knockoff of every mom's."

Crowley Cheese, of Healdville, Vt., was started by Winfield Crowley in 1882. His son George died in the 1950s and the company was inherited by George's son, Robert.

Crowley Cheese is still family-run — by the Smiths. When Robert Crowley died his brother, Alfred, sold the business to the Smiths, who were neighbors.

Four energetic women from Colquitt, Ga., make and sell Mayhaw jelly, also from a family recipe, although no one knows exactly from whose family.

"This recipe has been made by families for generations," says Dot Wainright.

Joy Jinks developed the salad dressing, and Wainright developed the cucumber jelly and the Mayhaw syrup. Their Mayhaw Tree Inc. now makes seven products.

Building permits were issued at an annual rate of 1,654,000, 6 percent below the revised July rate of 1,759,000.

The August rise in starts, the first in four months, was in line with most industry forecasts.

"I'm feeling good that housing is being such a steady performer in the economy," said Mark Obrinski, chief economist with the U.S. League of Savings Associations.

"If anything, I think maybe some analysts are surprised that (multi-family housing) hasn't fallen more than it has," he said. "There were some fears that the tax reform bill was really going to crush multi-family construction."

Obrinski said mortgage rates have fallen below 10 percent in many parts of the country and predicted they would remain fairly steady well into 1987.

Continued low rates suggest that starts for the year as a whole will be more than 1,800,000, he said, making 1986 the strongest year for the home-building industry since 1978.

Regionally the largest gain came in the Northeast where starts rose from 283,000 to 333,000 at an annual rate last month.

In Southern and Western states, where home sales had been depressed by flagging regional economies hit by low energy and farm prices, starts rose modestly after falling sharply over the last few months.

In the Midwest, starts fell from 352,000 to 296,000 in August, reversing a positive trend.

Japan may build plants along border

Japanese interested in 'maquiladoras'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Japanese companies may soon build a string of plants along the Texas-Mexico border, Japan's ambassador to the United States says.

The firms are particularly interested in the "maquiladora" plants, where products are assembled on the Mexican side of the border, Nobuo Matsunaga told the San Antonio Express-News Tuesday.

Those plants enjoy inexpensive labor and proximity to the U.S. market, and products are only taxed on the value added during assembly.

"This would be a good area to develop the business relationship between Japan, Mexico and the United States," said Matsunaga, who served as Japan's ambassador to Mexico prior to his Washington appointment.

San Antonio officials have actively courted Japanese firms in the past few years, and Mayor Henry Cisneros has traveled to Japan to promote the Alamo City.

Matsunaga asked to come to San Antonio, when making plans for a trip to Dallas for a Japan-Texas conference that concluded Tuesday.

City spokesman Robert Gonzales said the ambassador's San Antonio visit is a clear indication that Japanese firms are about to move into the area in large numbers.

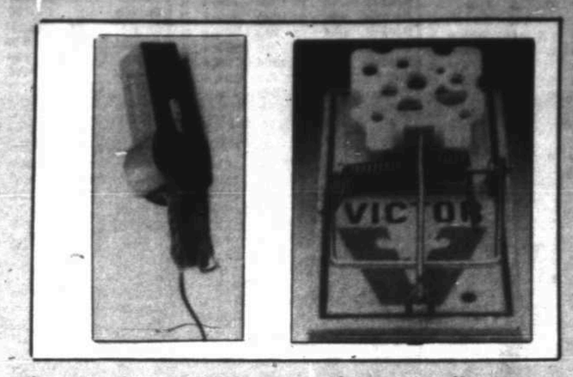
"They're not just sending tire-kickers here to visit," Gonzales said. "They are sending people who are actually looking for locations."

In addition to the border, some of those locations are in San Antonio, he added.

Japan currently has seven plants along the Texas-Mexico border, including two in Nuevo Laredo. Gonzales said several hundred Japanese companies have visited the area in the past six months.

"We are well aware of San Antonio's many efforts to develop closer ties with Japan," Matsunaga said.

WHAT'S NEW IN BUSINESS



The Woodstream Corp. is producing two 'better mouse traps' for the upcoming mouse invasion season.

A better mouse trap

"If a man can make a better mouse trap, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

If Ralph Waldo Emerson's famous words were right, the Woodstream Corp. in Lititz, Pennsylvania better get ready for a lot of strangers to come knocking.

The world's largest producer of mouse traps annually turns out more than 20 million of its familiar wood and copper Victor snap traps with the big red 'V' on them.

Company officials claim one major improvement in the familiar snap trap will have a big impact on the mouse trap market.

The star of the Victor mouse trap line is the new Easy Set trap that features the first major improvement in snap traps in more than 50 years. Where previous snap traps required a careful alignment of a copper retaining wire under a small tab on the trigger pedal, the new traps are quickly set by inserting the end of a locking bar in the slot of a large yellow plastic pedal that resembles a piece of Swiss cheese. The pedal is impregnated with a scent that tests have shown is irresistable to mice.

Realizing that there are many people who don't like the idea of killing mice, the new Havahart trap offers an alternative to the feint-of-heart. The small, plastic box-like device with an opening in one end, allows the mouse to enter. The box tips, closing the door behind the rodent and the trap can then be carried outdoors, where it can be opened, allowing the mouse to escape. The trap can also be disposed of, mouse and all.

Enriching cereals

Cheerios, the 45-year-old breakfast cereal from General Mills Inc., has been "enriched" — and it has nothing to do with fiber, protein or the ever-popular riboflavin.

Starting next week, General Mills will insert a $1 bill in one million of the next 20 million packages readied for delivery — giving Cheerio lovers a 1-in-20 chance of satisfying their monetary appetities.

Said Bill Shaffer, manager of public relations for the Minneapolis-based General Mills: "To the best of our knowledge this is the first time $1 million in cash has been distributed by a consumer goods manufacturer."

Banking to go

It's as easy as ordering a pizza delivered to the office! Now a businessman can order a bank teller to appear at his desk to take his deposit.

A Connecticut bank, The First National Bank of Stamford, has launched what it calls the nation's first bank-service pick-up and delivery system and has been operating it on a test basis for the past six months.

If you want to deposit half a dozen checks in your checking account at a bank other than ours, chances are you or your secretary will spend half an hour getting to the bank and parking and another half hour standing in a line and making the transaction.

That was the inspiration for the bank's institution of the no-charge service for check deposits. The couriers also handle loan applications, which can be approved and the cashier's check hand-delivered within one day, said Norman H. Reader, the bank's president.

"Our couriers can't handle cash becase of the risk involved," Reader notes.

"A couple of our customers have told me how much easier it is to manage their checkbook now," says Reader. "When you mail your deposits, you are losing a couple of days for 'mail-float'. The courier service eliminates that."

PINEAPPLE: The Fruit of Hospitality

GOLDEN CARGO

The rich, romantic history of pineapple is woven with names of New World explorers and Old World kings. The tale of discovery began in the fifteenth century, when Columbus came upon a beautiful fruit, shaped like a pine cone with a spiky crown and heavy shell. When sliced, it revealed a sweet aroma, juicy texture and taste like no other.

The Chinese cultivated pineapple as early as 1640, when the Emperor of China sent entire plants to Oliver Cromwell via the East India Company. It turns out he was wise to send the whole plant, as the harvested fruit lost its ripe, fresh glow and quickly deteriorated on long voyages. Today, with modern technology and large ships, pineapple can reach the market in 5 days. Pineapple has about a 21-day shelf life from harvest to consumption.

ISLAND FEVER

Outside of China, cultivation also began in royal European hot houses where pineapple was raised at great expense and served to honored guests.

But commercial, controlled growing began in Hawaii during the mid-1880s with the Smooth Cayenne variety introduced by Captain John Kidwell. It advanced rapidly as James Dole arrived fresh from Harvard to make his mark and put down his "roots" as it were. Dole persisted despite those who insisted he had a case of "island fever" when he thought he could actually make a success of the pineapple business. Of course he did, and today pineapple grown and shipped all over the world, all year, in every climate bears his name. In 1985 alone, 105,000 tons (that is 5 million cases of fresh pineapple) were harvested and brought to market! Canning also became a big part of the business.

MYTH AND REALITY

Even with all its popularity and tropical allure, fresh pineapple is still a mystery to some consumers. So, straight from the experts, here is the definitive word on selection, handling, storage, cutting and use in recipes:

1. Ripe pineapple comes in a variety of colors. It's almost impossible to judge ripeness by color alone. To ensure ripeness, the fruit is tested in the field first for the perfect sweetness to acidity ratio. Once tested for optimum ripeness, the entire field is picked. At certain times during the year, perfectly ripe pineapple has a green shell color – so don't let that determine your choice. If it's in the store, it's ripe.

2. Forget the myth about ripe pineapples with leaves that pull out easily. That doesn't mean a thing. Select a pineapple that is fresh, plump, has a bright green crown and a nice sheen. The body should be firm. "If the pineapple feels slightly soft, spongy or is leaking, it means it is overripe" caution the experts. Also, whenever possible, buy larger fruit for a greater proportion of edible flesh.

3. Pineapple is so decorative, it's tempting to keep it in the fruit bowl or on the counter too long. Please don't! Plan to use fresh pineapple as soon as possible after purchase. If you plan to keep it for three to five days, store it in the refrigerator with or without the crown, or remove the fruit from the shell and store in a covered container. When pineapple is chilled, or undergoes a quick change in temperature, sometimes brown spots appear on the fruit. Don't be alarmed, it's still good to eat!

TIPS FOR USE WITH MEAT AND DAIRY PRODUCTS

Now that you've selected the perfect pineapple, slicing is just as simple. See illustrations below.

When it comes to cooking, you should know that fresh pineapple contains bromelain, an enzyme that breaks down connective tissue in protein. Because of this, gelatin will not set and dairy products curdle if fresh pineapple is used in baking or mixed and left standing. Therefore, cottage cheese, sour cream and other dairy products should be mixed with fresh pineapple just before serving.

Also, meat and poultry salads will become mushy if left in contact with fresh pineapple longer than 30 minutes. Now you know the inside story, here are some fabulous recipes that make the best of luscious, versatile pineapple.

WELCOME TO OUR HOME

The beautiful, exotic pineapple has a long tradition as the symbol of hospitality. Early explorers to native islands in the New World learned they were welcome if a pineapple was placed by the entrance to a village. Prized as a rare fruit in 17th century England, guests were honored to be served the "fruit of kings," a great delicacy which had to be raised in hot houses. The symbolism carried to Europe and then to colonial North America, where it became the custom to carve the shape of a pineapple into the columns at the entrance of a plantation. The motif is seen on silver, china, even wooden bedposts. It is portrayed in still life paintings, etchings and patterns for all manner of kitchen items. To this day, serving pineapple is a refreshing way to say "Welcome!"

Crispy Chicken Stir-Fry

1 Fresh Pineapple
Vegetable oil
1/2 cup peanuts
1 egg
Cornstarch
Soy sauce
1 lb. chicken, skinned, boned, chunked
2 large cloves garlic, pressed
1 onion, sliced
1 tablespoon chopped ginger root
1/4 cup pale dry sherry
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 bunch broccoli, cut in flowerets
1 red bell pepper, seeded, chunked

Twist crown from pineapple. Cut fruit in half lengthwise, then into quarters. Remove fruit from shells; core and cut into chunks. Measure 2 cups for stir-fry; refrigerate remaining for another use. Heat about 1/2 inch oil in skillet. Brown peanuts in oil; remove, drain on paper towels. Combine egg, 1/3 cup cornstarch and 2 teaspoons soy sauce. Coat chicken in batter. Brown on both sides in hot oil. Drain on paper towels. Drain oil to leave 2 tablespoons in skillet. Stir-fry garlic, onion and ginger root 1 minute. Mix 1 cup water, 1/4 cup soy sauce, 2 teaspoons cornstarch, sherry, cloves and cinnamon. Stir into skillet. Add broccoli and bell pepper. Cover, simmer 1 to 2 minutes until broccoli is tender-crisp and sauce thickens. Stir in pineapple, peanuts and chicken until heated through. Serves 4.

Pineapple Poppy Seed Salad

1 Fresh Pineapple
2 kiwi fruit, peeled, sliced
2 Bananas, peeled, sliced
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 cup melon cubes or balls
Poppy Seed Dressing

Cut pineapple in half lengthwise through crown. Remove fruit with a curved knife, leaving shells intact. Cut pineapple into quarters. Trim off core and cut into chunks. Combine pineapple with remaining fruit. Toss with Poppy Seed Dressing. Marinate at least 15 minutes for the most delicious flavor. Spoon into shells to serve. Save dressing to add to each serving if desired. Serves 4 to 6.

POPPY SEED DRESSING: Combine 1/2 cup pineapple juice, 2 tablespoons lime juice, 2 tablespoons honey, 1 tablespoon poppy seeds and 1 teaspoon grated lime peel.

Sparkling Pineapple Compote

1 Fresh Pineapple
2 Oranges, peeled, chunked
1 cup berries
2 tablespoons minced crystallized ginger
Ginger ale or lemon lime soda, chilled

Twist crown from pineapple. Cut in half lengthwise then into quarters. Trim off core and cut fruit into chunks. Measure 1/2 cup pineapple and equal portions of orange, berries and ginger in 4 wine goblets or sherbet glasses. Pour ginger ale over each. Stand 5 to 10 minutes for flavors to blend. (Recipe can be easily doubled.) Serves 4.

Piña Colada Sauce

1 Fresh Pineapple
2/3 cup coconut cream
4 teaspoons rum extract
1 teaspoon cornstarch

Twist crown from pineapple. Cut pineapple in half lengthwise, then into quarters. Trim off core and chunk fruit. Measure 3 cups for sauce. Refrigerate remainder for another use. Puree 3 cups pineapple in blender. Add remaining ingredients. Whir until blended. Pour into a saucepan. Cook until sauce boils and thickens. Serve warm or cold over ice cream, pancakes, French toast, waffles or shortcake. Makes 2 cups.

Honey Ginger Chicken

1 Fresh Pineapple
2 whole chicken breasts, split, boned
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves garlic, pressed
1 small onion, chopped
1 tablespoon minced ginger root
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons pale dry sherry
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 teaspoon grated lime peel

Twist crown from pineapple. Cut pineapple lengthwise into quarters. Remove fruit from shells. Trim off core and cut into chunks. Measure 3 cups; refrigerate remaining for another use. Puree 1 cup pineapple in blender. Pound chicken to 1/2 inch. Brown chicken in oil on both sides. Add garlic, onion and ginger; saute lightly. Stir in 1/4 cup water, honey and sherry. Cover, simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Remove chicken to serving platter. Mix cornstarch with pureed pineapple. Stir into pan juices with pineapple chunks, lime juice and peel. Cook until sauce thickens. Spoon sauce and pineapple over chicken just before serving. Serves 6.

Note: Store any leftover sauce and chicken separately. The active enzyme, bromelain, will over-tenderize the chicken.

Pineapple Boat:
1. Cut pineapple in half through crown.
2. Remove fruit from shell with curved knife leaving shell intact.
3. Cut into quarters, remove core.
4. Cut into bite-size chunks.

Pineapple Quick Cut:
1. Twist off crown.
2. Cut in half, then quarters.
3. Trim off ends and core. Remove fruit from shell.
4. Cut into bite-size chunks.

Pasta's Asian past featured

Hearst News Service

Everyone knows that pasta is supposed to have come to Italy from China in the luggage of explorer Marco Polo. Beyond that, says food writer Linda Burum, pasta's Asian connection gets lost. The Western world remains largely ignorant of the myriad varieties of pasta made and enjoyed daily in the East — and available in surprising variety in the West.

"Asian people eat more pasta than Italians do. There, it's eaten as a whole meal, not just a course. It's a basic staple," Burum says. "In Japan, there are entire restaurants devoted to one type of noodle. In Italy, you don't see spaghetti restaurants and linguine restaurants."

Burum says her interest in noodles was piqued when she lived and traveled in Asia several years ago. Back home in Santa Monica, Calif., she pored over menus and combed grocery stores, questioning everyone who spoke enough English to answer: What's it made of? How do you cook it? As she began to recognize the astounding variety available, she says, "I got tired of seeing 'complete books' of pasta that had not one word about Asia in them."

The result is "Asian Pasta," an attempt to introduce the fettuccine crowd to mein, men, mee, fun, fen and bun. The book details the nature and history of the noodle products of Japan, China, Korea, Indochina, Indonesia and the Philippines, and includes many traditional recipes, as well as a chapter of Burum's own East-West concoctions.

"A big part of the book is explaining how these noodles are eaten, because they're so different," Burum says.

Contrary to Western belief, Asian noodles are not always served hot. For example, in Japan, a popular summer dish is somen, a silky-textured wheat noodle, lightly dressed and served in bowls over ice.

"In eating noodles, we're used to everything all mixed up, as in Chinese stir-fry" she says. But in Southeast Asia, many noodle dishes are served in a style we'd relate more to India than the Orient: plain or lightly seasoned, with an array of fresh and preserved condiments and sauces.

"They don't like to obliterate the noodles," she says.

For example, Vietnamese sometimes use bun (ultrathin rice vermicelli) as the central ingredient in a do-it-yourself meal. They soak the bun briefly in hot water to soften and untangle it, then serve the bland, white threads in bowls topped with highly seasoned meat or fish.

Dishes of fresh herbs, lettuce leaves, sliced vegetables and various dipping sauces are provided, and diners select their favorites to compose each bite. Or lettuce leaves may be offered, allowing diners to create fresh noodle "tacos" for dipping.

Burum's book is perhaps the first attempt to cover the scope of Asian noodles available here. Its most valuable contribution may be a graph-style pasta dictionary.

Down one side, the graph lists the varieties: dried, fresh or precooked wheat noodles; egg-and-wheat noodles; thin and thick rice vermicelli; flat dried rice noodles (rice sticks); fresh rice noodles; bean threads (glass noodles); and buckwheat noodles.

Spring roll fresh

Hearst News Service

There's no need to chew the fat with this spring roll. Here's a fresh, healthful alternative to deep-fried appetizers:

FRESH SPRING ROLLS
(makes 8-10 appetizers of three rolls each)

2 cups chicken broth
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon fish sauce (nuoc mam)
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon sugar
1 pound pork butt or boneless pork loin, partially frozen, cut into ⅜-inch by 1½-inch strips
4 ounces rice vermicelli (bun)
About 24 rice papers (bah trang)
1 bunch bronze leaf or salad bowl lettuce, stem-ends removed 12 large shrimp, shelled, deveined, cooked, cut in half lengthwise
3 large celery stalks, cut into strips ⅛-inch wide by 2 inches long
1 red onion, cut into very thin strips
1 bunch any of these: Chinese chives, coriander, celery leaves, sweet basil, purple basil, fresh dill, mint
1 carrot, cut into strips ⅛-inch wide by 2 inches long

In a large saucepan, combine the broth, fish sauce, pepper and sugar. Boil, drop in the pork strips and simmer, stirring occasionally, just until the pork is no longer pink. With a slotted spoon, transfer the pork to a plate.

Return the broth to a boil and add the vermicelli. Cook the noodles two-and-a-half to three minutes, until tender. Drain well and spread on a plate to cool. Toss to prevent sticking.

Dip two or three rice papers at a time into a large bowl of water for an instant, or brush both sides of each paper with a moistened pastry brush. Lay them flat on a work surface. When pliable, fold over one-third of the rice paper. Lay the pliable part of the lettuce leaf over the folded rice paper with about ½-inch of the frilly part extending over the fold line.

Place on the lettuce several strips of pork, half a shrimp, 1 strip of celery, 1 strip onion, assorted herbs, a few noodles and a sprinkling of carrot. Fold the bottom part of the rice paper over part of the filling, then fold one side of the ricepaper over the filling and keep rolling until it forms a cylinder. Moisten the final flap of rice paper so it will stay shut.

Cover with plastic to prevent drying.

WHAT'S COOKING

Teacher likes to 'spice up' recipes

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Darlene Hicks

In her 25 years as a home economics teacher — 23 of them with Midland High School — Darlene Hicks has learned a great deal about cooking, recipes and ways to make foods better.

"One of the things I really believe in is using herbs and spices instead of salt," she said. "High sodium intake is a real problem with adult Americans." Seasonings are "easy to use, once you get used to them." Her students are taught to "take a basic recipe and make it fit their families" through the imaginative use of herbs and spices.

Mrs. Hicks also advises "preparing simply and doing ahead as much as possible."

Home ec has changed since the days when students learned cooking one semester and sewing the other, she said. "We teach them so much more than that." Today's students learn such things as child development, consumer education and family relationships.

In fact, Mrs. Hicks said, curriculum includes "all aspects of family relationships — in my opinion that's the most important thing students can learn because they can (use it to) relate to their families now."

Home ec classes are no longer a woman's domain, either. "All our classes are co-educational," Mrs. Hicks said. "We have quite a number of boys who take home ec, particularly consumer education. More and more are learning the importance of these skills."

Because men make up half the family, "it's important for them to learn these skills, too," she said.

The following recipes are some of Mrs. Hicks' favorites:

VANILLA CHIP CHOCOLATE COOKIES

½ cup butter
1 (12 ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate chips
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
Pinch salt
3 eggs
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 (12 ounce) package vanilla milk chips
1 cup walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Over low heat melt together butter and chocolate chips. Sift together flour, baking soda and salt; set aside.

Beat together lightly eggs, sugar and vanilla. Stir egg mixture into chocolate mixture until smooth. Pour chocolate-egg mixture into flour and blend. Cool mixture in refrigerator before adding chips.

Stir in vanilla chips and walnuts. Drop by well-rounded teaspoonfuls about 2 inches apart onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 8-10 minutes. Cookies will be fudgy when done. Makes about four to five dozen.

BAKED CHICKEN BREAST WITH ALMOND SAUCE

Garlic salt
¼ cup melted butter
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 can (3 ounces) mushrooms
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup sherry (can omit or use cranberry juice instead)
¼ cup slivered almonds
2 tablespoons flour
¼ cup milk

Salt both sides of breasts with garlic salt; dip in melted butter to which paprika and lemon juice has been added. Place in shallow baking dish; bake 30 minutes at 350 degrees. Mix remaining ingredients listed and spoon over chicken. Sprinkle with almonds and bake for 30 minutes more. Remove chicken, thicken sauce with flour and milk. Serve over chicken breasts.

MEXICAN EGG DISH

6 to 8 corn tortillas
1 can (8 ounce) tomatoes, mashed
1 clove garlic
1 cup grated cheese
½ medium onion, chopped
1 or 2 green chilies
6 eggs

Cut tortillas into strips and fry in small amount of hot fat until just limp. Drain. Saute onion and crushed garlic. Remove excess grease. Add tortillas, tomatoes, salt and chopped chilies. Cook one minute. Add slightly beaten eggs and cook until set. Top with grated cheese. Makes six servings.

SPANISH CABBAGE

1 small onion, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons bacon fat
2 or 3 fresh tomatoes, chopped
1 small cabbage, thinly sliced
1 small pepper, thinly sliced
Salt and pepper to taste

Saute onion in bacon fat; drain. Add remaining ingredients in order listed. Cover and cook over low heat until tender.

Versatile cabbage nutritious, economical, tasty

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst News Service

Cabbage, the versatile vegetable that's good raw in salads, cooked in soups and casseroles or served as a side dish, is an economical choice right now. Large heads of cabbage are selling for less than one pays for a pound of the vegetable in winter months.

A ½-cup serving of cooked cabbage provides 15 calories. A cupful of finely shredded raw vegetable adds only 20 calories. It is a good source of vitamin C and fiber.

Choose solid heads of cabbage that are heavy for their size. They may be stored in the refrigerator in plastic bags for several weeks. Stored in a tightly covered container, shredded cabbage keeps from five to seven days.

Cabbage retains more nutrients when cooked in a small amount of water. When steamed, allow 10 to 15 minutes for wedges or six to eight minutes for shredded cabbage.

POLISH CABBAGE AND NOODLES

4 ounces fine egg noodles
4 tablespoons margarine
1 large onion, sliced thin
1 pound cabbage, shredded

Cook the noodles according to package directions.

Cook the onion in 2 tablespoons margarine. Add to the noodles. Gently cook the cabbage in remaining margarine. Mix well and cover. Cook until tender-crisp. Mix with the noodles and season.

Expert says changes in marketing of beef needed

Copley News Service

The beef industry is counting on naturally raised beef to breed new life into sales. But not everyone is bullish on the idea.

Market analyst Philip Lempter says beef producers are full of hay if they think consumers will pay up to 70 percent more for "chemical-free" beef.

Lempert, the trend expert for The Lempert Report, says beef producers need only make their product more snacky to make it more marketable. He says they should push it as a finger food.

Let's face it, large portions of beef definitely aren't chic. And consumers know that too much beef can cause health problems.

Lempert says the best way for beef producers to beef up sales is to downsize portions — sell beef as nuggets or shishkebabs — and provide consumers with exciting new recipes.

Preparing lunches for school children challenge to parents

By RICHARD HARRINGTON
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Looking at my son's elementary school lunch menu — pizza, hamburgers, hot dogs, Tater Tots, assorted fruits and vegetables — I sometimes think there's not all that much there that's good for Nathaniel, but at least it's better than having too much there that's bad for him.

When you come down to it, what's being offered is mostly just OK for him, which is one good reason to mix up that menu with some sent-from-home lunches.

Of course, that's not as easy as it sounds.

First of all, the packaging is crucial. You can go two ways on this. One is to buy a lunch box, which can be a problem, particularly if you're trying to find one that's plain and unadorned. You're more likely to end up with something relating to an inane, probably violent Saturday morning cartoon program (one that your child doesn't watch anyway, at least not while you're around); a horrendously cute and cuddly animal image (which most boys wouldn't be caught dead with); or some other merchandising ploy (which alerts kids early on that you really can't get something for nothing, much less something without nothing).

There is a fall-back: the plain brown paper bag. It's utilitarian, egalitarian and, unfortunately, susceptible to being sat on, leaned on, stepped on and otherwise distended, reshaped and affected by the natural enthusiasms of sundry children with the result that, unless you packed your sandwiches and snacks in a tin box, said sandwiches and snacks tend to get uglified to the point of being inedible. No amount of persuasion will convince the average 8-year-old that any sandwich that was once half-an-inch thick can still taste good when it's been squished down to an eighth-of-an-inch thickness.

ONCE YOU'VE GOT the packaging under control, you can start worrying about what to put in it, or in some cases, what you can get away with putting in it. My son is, like me, a semi-vegetarian, meaning he eats meat when he wants to, but happily he doesn't want to much of the time. When I fix him sandwiches, they tend to be peanut butter with or without jelly, or chicken, or turkey, sometimes bologna and cheese, and never on white bread but a variety ranging from whole-wheat to pumpernickel (though in a crunch that ideal surrenders to the readily available hot-dog roll).

Another favorite is the rice cake sandwich with peanut butter and honey. This constitutes a simple, protein-heavy main course that can be embellished with fruits (grapes are a favorite, with the extras serving in a pinch as marbles), vegetables (carrots, celery) or natural cookies and other minor edibles (sunflower seeds, dry roasted peanuts).

Sometimes, there's mixing and matching: celery stalks stuffed with cheese or peanut butter. And sometimes there's the "anything goes" approach: Fruit Roll-Ups, and yo, the occasional candy bar, so that Nathaniel doesn't feel left out when his classmates are getting ice cream or a cookie with their school-bought lunches.

Peer pressure is another concern when it comes to school lunches. If on the one hand, Nathaniel gains from not having to stand in line waiting to get lunch (and also doesn't have to deal with the various fiscal infrastructures that get him into that chow line in the first place), he still has to wait until those lunches are bought before he can launch into the one he brought. And sometimes he has to deal with quizzical stares that attend anything out of the ordinary emerging from the lunch box or bag. Like sprouts.

NATHANIEL TELLS ME there's not much trading going on in the cafeteria outside of Garbage Pail Kids. Certainly not on the food level; this apparently is something that begins after the high school years, usually in ethnic restaurants. Kids don't trade main courses, anyway, just desserts.

These days Nathaniel and I have an arrangement; in the morning he looks at the menu, thinks about it for 10 seconds and then says "I'll buy" or "I'll take." Trying to guess which it will be has become something of a game, which I usually lose, particularly if we're running late and he suddenly decides, "I'll take." I try to check to see that's he's eaten everything he takes to school (after learning that there was no sense in giving him too much) and try to mix up the drinks, which range from milk to Juicy-Juice to Orangina.

And though I'm convinced that, just like me, Nathaniel could probably eat better, he seems to be continuing to grow taller, stronger and smarter, so the food input must be okay. Then again, he'd probably be doing all those things no matter what I fed him.

After-school snacks healthy

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Now that the kids have gone back to school, the annual question of what to feed them when they get back home in the afternoon arises. In this age of nutritional awareness, the traditional after-school snack — cookies and milk — has to be served up with some restrictions. Most processed cookies, nutritionists will tell you, are full of saturated fats. Better to serve homemade cookies with high-fiber, low-sugar content. And the milk, needless to say, should be the low-fat variety.

Better yet, encourage your children to plan and make their own healthful snacks. The week's worth of recipes below should get them started. Some can be prepared by grade-schoolers; others are more suited to children who have had some experience in the kitchen.

The after-school snack can help kids establish sound nutritional habits that will last a lifetime; before you know it, they'll be giving you grief when there's too much fat at the dinner table.

OATMEAL FREEZER COOKIES
1⅓ cups unbleached flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 scant teaspoon allspice
1 cup margarine or butter, softened
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups rolled oats
1 cup raisins, chopped

In bowl, mix flour, baking powder, salt and allspice. In another bowl, cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and vanilla. Mix well. Stir in dry ingredients. Add oats and raisins. Blend well.

Divide dough into 4 parts; shape each into a log, 6 inches by 1⅓ inches in diameter. Wrap in wax paper to freeze.

When ready to bake, preheat oven to 350 degrees and lightly grease baking sheet. Remove roll from freezer and slice about inch thick. Place on baking sheet; bake for about 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes about 64 cookies.

CHICKEN SOUP
Pour 4 cups chicken broth into a 2-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil. Remove from stove.

Add to the soup pot: 1 cup leftover cooked wagon-wheel pasta or macaroni and 1 cup frozen plain mixed vegetables. Reduce heat to low and simmer until vegetables are tender.

Spoon soup into a bowl; serve with whole-wheat breadsticks. Makes 4 servings. Note: Canned broth is lower in salt content than chicken bouillon, but mom's homemade is best.

Late for a scout meeting or soccer practice? Grab a homemade grape-yogurt pop from the freezer. If you want some munchies, a small bag of no-salt, whole-wheat pretzels or homemade popcorn can fit the bill.

GRAPE-YOGURT POPS
2 cups plain low-fat yogurt
1 (6-ounce) can frozen orange juice concentrate, slightly defrosted
1⅓ tablespoons sugar, optional
8 (4 ounces each) waxed-paper cups
16 seedless grapes, halved
8 popsicle sticks

Combine the yogurt, orange juice concentrate and sugar; stir until concentrate melts and sugar is dissolved. Pour into paper cups, dividing evenly. Drop handful of grape pieces into each cup. Freeze until almost firm. Insert stick in center of each cup. Freeze until firm. If made in advance, wrap each in plastic wrap to prevent dehydration. To serve, peel off paper cup. Makes 8 pops.

Pineapple salad prepared quickly

Associated Press

To trim salad-making time, buy preshredded cabbage at the produce counter. Clean and tear greens when you get home from the supermarket.

QUICK PINEAPPLE SALAD
3 cups torn salad greens
1 cup shredded green or red cabbage
1 (8-ounce) can pineapple tidbits (juice pack)
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

In a salad bowl combine greens and cabbage. Drain pineapple, reserving 2 tablespoons juice. Add pineapple to greens. In a small bowl stir together mayonnaise and reserved pineapple juice. Pour over salad. Toss to coat. Makes 4 servings.

Manufacturing makes stronger plastic bottle

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — Using less plastic for a gallon milk bottle can produce a stronger bottle.

This can happen says Phillips 66, when the manufacturing process adds plastic where extra strength is needed and subtracts plastic where it isn't. Savings for a gallon bottle can be up to 10 percent of the polyethylene material.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Now is the time to build the support systems that will push you over the top later. Financial pressures will soon subside. Be patient. Other people will react negatively if pushed too hard.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Trust your own judgment where money or a personal relationship is concerned. Get your living quarters in better order. You need to take stock of your finances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Hang tight until you can slide past a financial bump in the road. Assistance could arrive at any minute. Let partner take the lead in romance. Travel boosts your spirits.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are too hard on yourself and your loved ones. Now is the time to review your goals and decide what is really important to you. Take mate into your confidence.

Opening lead: Two of ♠

At a time of turmoil in Europe, one country's national airline exhorted us to think twice about taking a vacation there. Many people must have taken them up on that, because tourism dropped. Perhaps they should have thought carefully about that slogan.

You should always think carefully, and often twice, before adopting a line of play at the bridge table. Consider this hand where, with both sides vulnerable and having a partscore, South becomes declarer at three spades and West leads what is to everyone (except perhaps his partner) an obvious singleton. Declarer captures East's king with the ace and, obsessed about guarding against a club ruff, bangs out the ace of spades and another. West wins and leads a low heart to his partner's king. The jack of clubs return is covered by the queen, but the defenders still have two red aces and a club to take for down one.

To appreciate the folly of South's ways, let's consider what would transpire if East did indeed hold king and one spade and declarer adopted the same line. East would win the spade and lead the jack of clubs to set up a club trick for himself. He would regain the lead in whichever red suit he held the entry, and the defenders would come to one trump trick, two hearts, a diamond and a club.

In other words, declarer cannot make his contract unless the spade finesse is going to succeed! The right play at trick two, therefore, is rather plebian: Run the queen of spades. When that succeeds declarer is sure of at least six spade tricks, two club tricks and one diamond.

Hyperbaric oxygen chamber won't keep Jackson young, doctor says

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Jackson is mistaken in thinking his hyperbaric oxygen chamber will keep him young, says a medical expert who adds that the device could be hazardous.

The 28-year-old singer is having his own hyperbaric chamber made for him, said his personal manager, Frank Dileo.

Among other things, hyperbaric therapy is used to treat divers who suffer decompression sickness and to fight resistant infections. The pressurized chamber contains pure oxygen.

When administered by trained medical personnel, hyperbaric therapy is safe, said Dr. Timothy Cannis, associate medical director of the Western Center for Hyperbaric Medicine at Northridge Hospital Medical Center.

The risks to an untrained user include pulmonary oxygen toxicity, seizures and the danger of an oxygen-fed fire, Cannis said.

He also said that any notion that a chamber can increase a person's life span is unproven.

Jackson is aware of the hazards of using the device without trained medical supervision, Dileo said Tuesday.

"He's saying he hopes it will keep him young," said Dileo, who denied a report that Jackson believes the chamber will let him live to be 150 years old.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A clinic has been ordered to pay Frank Sinatra $450,000 in damages for a published claim that the singer took sheep cell injections to prolong his life.

Sinatra never took the treatment, according to evidence in Tuesday's U.S. District Court trial.

Testimony showed that officials of the Clinic La Prairie in Montreaux, Switzerland, gave a National Enquirer reporter the bogus story that Sinatra had been a patient. The tabloid published the article in 1984.

Sinatra's attorneys claimed the clinic wanted to link its name with Sinatra's for profit.

Judge Manuel Real awarded Sinatra $350,000 in compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Clinic attorneys walked out on the trial after arguing the court has no jurisdiction and the matter should be tried in Switzerland. The attorneys filed an appeal.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Nashville disc jockey Ralph Emery is launching a syndicated radio show next Monday featuring interviews with country musicians.

The shows will be broadcast on 340 stations in 17 Midwestern and Southeastern states.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Run-D.M.C. is disappointed that the mayor's office has barred it from participating in a street festival, the rap group's publicist says.

Violence broke out at four of the group's concerts this summer, injuring dozens of people.

Mayoral press secretary John Stodder announced Tuesday the group may not perform at this weekend's Los Angeles Street Scene, which attracted 1.3 million people last year.

"We have no intention of subjecting the people attending this event to any possible threat of gang violence," said a statement from Deputy Mayor Tom Houston read by Stodder.

Run-D.M.C. was disappointed by the decision because it wanted to promote anti-crack, anti-gang issues, said publicist Lori Somes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Heather Thomas, best known for her role on television's "The Fall Guy," was hit by a car while jaywalking Tuesday, and was hospitalized in fair condition, officials said.

Miss Thomas complained of head and chest pain and suffered cuts, scrapes and bruises to both legs, said police Officer Victor Curti. She was admitted in fair condition to UCLA Medical Center, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Miss Thomas was crossing busy San Vicente Boulevard in Brentwood on Tuesday afternoon when she walked into the side of a car going about 15-20 mph, Curti said. "Apparently the driver didn't see her until after the collision."

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Bernadette Chayrez underwent seven hours of surgery to treat infections Tuesday, and doctors say they hope the first recipient of two artificial hearts will recover enough to be a candidate for a new human heart.

Ms. Chayrez, 40, of Phoenix, was in critical condition late Tuesday night after the surgery, University Medical Center medical director Dr. William Scott said in a news conference.

The mother of three "survived the procedure well" and doctors were hopeful that she will recover and be able to again become a candidate for a human heart transplant, Scott said.

Tests Monday night indicated accumulation of infectious gas around the Jarvik-70 — a smaller version of the Jarvik-7 artificial heart — that she was given on Feb. 9 in her second implant operation, he said.

Ms. Chayrez received her first Jarvik-70 on Feb. 3 after her own heart was damaged by flu in mid-January. She was given the heart of a 19-year-old Texas accident victim Feb. 7, but it was rejected by her system two days later.

Ms. Chayrez was removed Friday from a list of candidates for a human heart transplant because of infection. She suffered a stroke Sept. 8, but doctors have said the stroke and infections are apparently unrelated.

Doctors elected Tuesday to treat the infection, and another in her left lung, to try to allow her to again be considered for a human heart transplant, Scott said.

DEAR ABBY

Roommates resent labels

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: All this talk we're hearing about passing bills to ban homosexuals from housing and jobs leaves me wondering. Who is to decide who is gay and who isn't? Why does everyone assume that if a woman is not having sex with a man, she's gay? This has been a problem for me for a very long time. I'm 38, and for the last 12 years, I've shared a home with another single woman. I am not gay and neither is she, but society has automatically labeled us "lesbians" because neither of us has ever been married and we have lived together for so long.

This woman and I have no obligations or commitments to each other. If I could find a man with whom I could have the same arrangement, I wouldn't mind living with him. It would be more acceptable in our society for me to live with a man than a woman.

Abby, if any kind of measures are to be taken against homosexuals, will all married people be excluded? What about married folks who get their little kicks on the side with people of their own sex? Will sanctions apply only to those who admit they are gay, and exclude those who remain in the closet? What about those of us who are not gay, but are assumed to be because of our lifestyle?

I've often wondered if there are other single straight people who have been labeled gay because society has decided they are. — NOT GAY IN THE U.S.A.

DEAR NOT GAY: According to Dr. John Money, noted sexologist and gender identification specialist at Johns Hopkins, no human can be labeled "100 percent" male or female. We are all capable of bisexuality. Some act out. Others never do.

Is one sexual encounter with a person of the same sex sufficient to label that person gay? (No.) Six encounters? (Maybe.) Is age a factor? (Yes.) Would a few same-sex encounters in boarding school make one gay? (Probably not.) How about men or women who have been incarcerated in prisons for many years? (Any port in a storm!)

Are you beginning to get the idea? So, unless a person discloses his or her sexual history, there is no way of "knowing." And, if the government demands an accounting of our bedroom behavior, we can kiss goodbye our right to privacy guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

DEAR ABBY: How petty can a person be? A woman wrote complaining that the gentleman she had been seeing is charming, world-traveled and well-educated, but he "slurps" his tea. Oh, he's 60 plus — just the right age for me. How many well-educated (I hold two degrees) single females would be simply thrilled to have the company of such a gentleman?

Please tell the slurper that there's a woman in Wichita, Kan., who would be delighted to meet him. My teapot is on, and I am waiting. — NOT PICKY IN KANSAS

DEAR NOT PICKY: As I have always said, "One woman's leftovers are another woman's banquet."

DEAR ABBY: Last week I attended a luncheon for a departing boss. There were about 10 of us there and we each paid for our own lunch. I noticed that we were also charged a "gratuity." It wasn't much, and I didn't want to make a scene, so I paid it.

I thought tipping was up to the person dining out. This is the second time this has happened and I probably will always keep quiet and pay. I just want to know if this is common practice in restaurants or what? — NORFOLK, VA.

m

DEAR NORFOLK: Gratuities are ordinarily optional, but when there's a large party with separate checks, unless a gratuity is added, the waiter or waitress tends to be forgotten.

Convict sues county third time

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A former Midland County Jail inmate who lost a $4.5-million federal lawsuit against the county seven months ago has reduced the sum $600,000 in a related suit against three federal clerks, including "John Doe."

The ex-inmate, Ronald Francis Miller, currently is serving an eight-year term in the Texas Department of Corrections for indecency with a child.

In his latest lawsuit, Miller is claiming that U.S. District Clerk Charles W. Vagner of San Antonio, Bobbye Pieper, courtroom deputy clerk for U.S. District Court Judge Lucius D. Bunton, and a courtroom clerk identified only as John Doe "failed in their duty to issue witness subpoenas" which Miller alleges he requested in the trial of his $4.5-million suit against the county last February.

Miller, 44, is seeking $200,000 from each of the three clerk-defendants for alleged violation of his constitutional rights.

Miller has filed suits against Midland County three times. He lost two; one is pending. He lost the $4.5-million suit, which is on appeal. In the second lawsuit against Midland County Attorney Mark H. Dettman, Assistant County Attorney Paul Williams, County Judge Bill Ahders and Sheriff Gary Painter, Miller claimed that they conspired to deprive him of his constitutional rights.

"He alleged we conspired to commit perjury, which, of course, is why he lost the case," Dettman said of Miller's viewpoint. That suit was related to the first. Bunton dismissed the case.

In a third suit, also related to the first, Miller is suing Midland County Jail officials for medical malpractice. That case is set for summary judgment by Bunton.

In the $4.5-million suit, which was tried last February before a five-man, one-woman jury in Bunton's court, the jury returned the verdict 10 minutes after beginning its deliberations.

It apparently was not sympathetic to his cause.

"Can the jury award the county compensatory court costs for the expense to the county of conducting this trial?" Glen Cox, jury foreman, had asked the judge.

Miller's suit against the county stemmed from his allegations that he was denied necessary medication while he was a county jail inmate in December 1983. He had been in jail for revocation of his probation for indecency with a child. He claimed that he merely was taking a shower when a boy saw him nude and apparently was offended.

"He didn't expect to get it (the $4.5-million)," said Dettman. "So, I guess he wasn't shocked when he didn't."

Miller claimed that he suffered from a heart condition called "unstable angina" and that he was prone to suffer intense chest pains if he is not administered medication. The jury decided that Miller was not denied necessary medication and that he suffered no damages.

The county's physician, Dr. Patrick Leung, had testified that Miller's chest pains could be "psychosomatic" or could be caused by "a lot of things," Dettman said.

Miller, a cigarette smoker, once was an emergency medical technician in Chicago and was a bowling-alley mechanic in Midland. He logged a history of arrests from fraud to grand theft and, once arrested and jailed, was inclined to complain of chest pains and to seek hospitalization, Dettman noted.

Medical evidence indicated that Miller had suffered "no heart attack, no heart damage...and no malfunction of the heart," he said.

Miller's suit was "just an example of the ever-spiraling abuse of our justice system by convicted criminals," Dettman said. "Some of them think they've really been wronged. It's an excellent form of harassment."

Drug lab seized in Terrell County

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

SANDERSON — Narcotics agents from the Department of Public Safety in Midland participated in the arrest Monday of a man near Sanderson, and the confiscation of a suspected methamphetamine lab, marking the first time such a lab has been discovered in Terrell County, investigators said.

That arrest follows the arrest Sunday of three Austin residents accused of transporting methamphetamine.

DPS spokesman David Wells said Michael O'Hara Zurovec, 44, was arrested about 9 a.m. in a rural area 15 miles southeast of Sanderson, about 140 miles south of Midland. Wells said Terrell County Sheriff's officers, DPS agents, and agents from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration made the arrest without incident.

Wells said the officers, armed with a search warrant, found just over an ounce of methamphetamine, worth about $2,500, in a small trailer where Zurovec was living. After searching the area, officers said they discovered the lab in another trailer, complete with equipment and chemicals, just before 11 a.m.

"He had been there approximately one month, and we had been watching him," said Terrell County Deputy Sonny Holleyman. "We confiscated a complete methamphetamine lab. We haven't completed the inventory but it is a complete lab.

"It is very possibly the first arrest for a lab ever made in the county; we've busted drugs before, but we haven't until now, busted a lab," he said.

Holleyman said Zurovec was being held in the Terrell County jail in lieu of $50,000 bond. He was charged with possession of a controlled substance and Holleyman said other charges will be filed in the case. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Jannie McDoneld.

Wells said Zurovec's arrest was related to the arrest of three Austin residents Sunday at a routine checkpoint set up by the U.S. Border Patrol near Sheffield, 60 miles northeast of Sanderson.

"We were called in to assist in the case by the Border Patrol," Wells said. "At the checkpoint, they seized 107 grams of methamphetamine that was hidden behind a water container in a recreational vehicle."

Investigators said that seizure was worth more than $13,000.

A dispatcher at the Pecos County Sheriff's office said Larry Lynn Peek, 30, Tammy Rogers, 25, and Angela Leigh Flores, 25, all of Austin, were being held in lieu of $75,000 bond each at the county jail, each charged with possession of a controlled substance. Bond was set by Pecos County Justice of the Peace Fred Capers, the dispatcher said.

Bush's son: Constitution shouldn't be tinkered with

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

Although many would like to see an amendment outlawing abortion or an Equal Rights Amendment, the Constitution should not be tinkered with, said oil entrepreneur George W. Bush, addressing Midland's Daughters of the American Revolution Tuesday.

"Do we use the constitution to attack today's issues?," asked the 40-year-old son of Vice President George Bush.

"One reason the constitution has withstood 200 years of pressure is because the founding fathers have made it very difficult to change," Bush said.

Bush spoke at the DAR luncheon celebrating "Constitution Week."

Protection of individual rights is another reason why the Constitution has lasted for 200 years, he said.

"This document is really for individuals. If you're a minority, you don't have to fear the pressure of a big, heavy-handed government coming down on you," Bush said.

Most constitutions are made to be broken, ignored or changed, Bush said.

However, the U.S. constitution has endured, he said.

"Our constitution has brought a tremendous degree of stability that you don't find in other countries."

The simpleness and straight-forwardness also contributes to the Constitution's popularity, he said.

"It's readable by the American people. It's something the population can't complain about."

The dispersal of some power to the states, is another reason for the document's success, he said.

"The founders of the Constitution recognized that to survive diversification, it needed the states to have power too."

Separation of powers also lends continuing popularity to the Constitution, he said.

"Our Constitution answers the populace's desire to make sure one branch doesn't overpower the others."

While the judiciary isn't popular with many conservatives now, Bush said it lends to the stability of the Constitution.

"Maybe we'll like the Supreme Court more if the president is able to appoint some new members. But to have a court system stand independent and rule on the Constitution, adds stability."

Bush started Bush Exploration which became Spectrum 7 Energy Corp. He holds a bachelor's degree in history from Yale University and a master's in business from Harvard University.

He made a unsuccessful bid for the 21st Congressional seat in 1978.

Ranching in the blood of Peacock brothers

AP Laserphoto

The Peacock brothers, from left, Troy, Benny, Dean and George, are third generation cowboys who are likely to continue in the western tradition as long as ranchers require hands. They also perform at ranch rodeos and since they each work for a different ranch, they oftern compete against one another.

ABILENE (AP) — They're all brothers and they're all cowboys.

That's all they do — and, what's more, that's all the Peacock gang ever wants to do.

Inside and outside the rodeo arena, the Peacocks are well-known. The four brothers are third-generation cowboys who are likely to continue in the western tradition as long as ranchers hire hands.

George Peacock is manager of the Nail Ranch located northeast of Albany. He has worked there 21 years.

His brother, Troy, is foreman of the Alexander Cattle Co. The other brother, Dean, has been with the Green Ranch in Shackelford County for the past 10 months, has worked on numerous ranches throughout his life and was the first Peacock to work on the Nail Ranch. Dean has his spread in Milano.

Benny is the youngest brother and possibly the most famous of the four. He is foreman of the J.R. Green Land and Cattle Co., a 45,000-acre ranch where he has been employed the past six years.

Part of his job is running 1,100 head of cattle. He's also a rodeo crowd pleaser and is usually followed by a cheering section that seems to materialize at all of his rodeo performances.

The four brothers, who work together each year in the staging of the Fort Griffin Fandangle in Albany, often wind up competing against each other in ranch rodeos. That's because each works for a different outfit.

No doubt about it. Ranching is in the blood of this quartet. For his part, Benny says he's never done anything else except for one brief period. "Once, I worked on a roustabout crew for two weeks," he recalls. "The only reason I did that was because I was broke."

To hear Benny, the hardest part of ranching is feeding. It takes about five hours a day to feed half of the 1,100 head of cattle.

However, there are pleasurable aspects of the job.

"One of the most satisfying parts of being a cowboy is taking a young horse and training it," he says.

Troy left ranching to do some horseshoeing for a few years, then tried his luck as assistant manager for a California oil company. "I didn't like any of it," Troy recalls, "so I went back to ranching."

All of the brothers agree there isn't much money in being a cowboy these days. And they're not advising their children to go into cowboying. Eventually, they say, ranches will be run by sophisticated means, not gruff-looking, hard-working cowboys.

Already, helicopters are being used to find lost cattle, they say.

For the time being, however, the Peacocks will remain on the range, except for those special occasions when they compete in ranch rodeos.

After all, they say, "This is the fun part of being a cowboy."

Mexico commemorates its date of independence

Associated Press

Across Mexico and Texas this week, mariachis serenade in the streets, and folklorico dancers and charros queue up for parades.

All the festivities mark Sept. 16, or "Diez y Seis Septiembre," as Mexican Independence Day. On that date in 1810, a Catholic priest in Dolores organized a group of Indians and mestizos to declare independence from Spain and form a new government.

Though their rebellion was squelched and Father Miguel Hidalgo was executed, others took up the cry for freedom. Within a year, revolution erupted throughout Mexico.

Texans celebrating 150 years of independence from Mexico during 1986 might be surprised to learn that the Mexicans' own drive for independence contributed to the outcome of the Texan campaign for separation 26 years later.

Historian Arnoldo DeLeon of Angelo State University in San Angelo says that the Texans' success in the fight for independence might have surprised observers of the region before 1810.

At the end of the colonial era, New Spain, as Mexico was called, had a stable government, a solid economy based on manufacturing, agriculture and mining, and a comfortable middle class.

For several years, Mexico had been the principal source of silver for the entire world. DeLeon adds that Mexican merchants also drew revenues from contraband trades with foreigners.

AP Laserphoto

A mariachi band played at the Capitol rotunda Tuesday in an hour-long celebration commemorating Diez y Seis Septiembre — or Sept. 16 — the day of Mexico's declaration of independence against Spain.

By contrast, he says, Texas was a frontier province, far from major commercial centers. Its population was small, with 2,500 colonists in San Antonio and 1,200 in Goliad, the largest communities. Meanwhile, Mexico City had 150,000 people and Guanajato 60,000.

"(The Texas) ecomony was in an early stage of capitalism," DeLeon says, "based mainly on trade in horses and mules, and oriented toward Louisiana, where the pobladores, or settlers, engaged in illicit commerce with foreigners."

But by 1808, Napoleon had moved into Spain, and his forces deposed the Spanish monarchy. Spain's empire in the Americas began to weaken and revolutions erupted. Within two years, Mexicans launched their campaign for independence from Spain.

A decade of wars followed as Royalists and rebels struggled for control of the far-flung Mexican territory.

Although Mexico finally achieved independence in 1821, its economy and institutions were in ruins. No longer could the nation rely on its former sources of production for income.

"The most vicious fighting had taken place in Central Mexico, where the richest agricultural and mining areas of the country were situated," DeLeon explains. "Insurgents had burned farms, killed livestock, wrecked mining equipment, and brought commerce to a standstill. And Royalist forces had countered with terror of their own, devastating regions which supported the rebels."

He says the human losses were horrible. Indeed, some writers estimate that one-tenth of the population — 600,000 in all — died in the revolution.

Many wealthy families left the country, taking their money with them. Even investors who stayed were reluctant to take risks on new ventures. And the Catholic Church, a primary source of loans during the colonial era, hesitated to lend funds to groups suspected of being anticlerical.

The mining industry experienced severe destruction. Some machinery that was vandalized was too expensive to replace; other equipment had simply deteriorated beyond repair. Critical supplies were inaccessible.

Over the years of inactivity, water had seeped into mines, weakening suppports and causing cave-ins. DeLeon says that promoters could not find investors to back reopening the mines.

The textile industry and farming also took heavy losses. Trade routes had been severed. Supplies ran low. To make matters worse for textile producers, European manufacturers flooded Mexico with cleap goods, underselling local textiles.

Farmers found their former markets shrinking as unemployed workers left the cities and returned to home villages. Irrigation systems had deteriorated and livestock wandered untended, overgrazing the land.

Two years after Mexico's revolution, Anglo-Americans moved into Texas, starting with Stephen F. Austin's colonists. Their numbers grew steadily.

Though these foreign colonists provided a buffer for Mexico against French expansion on the northen frontier, they also brought ideals of democracy and enterprise based on the U.S. experiment.

Mexicans still faced a bleak future — financially, demographically and militarily..

The Mexicans' revolt had extended to Texas, but had had only a marginal impact there. Newly arrived Texans enjoyed a confident outlook. With low-cost land, they could make a fresh start.

DeLeon says that the Texan colonists set about building communities and institutions unhampered by the malaise that plagued Mexico. They shared "a familiar political past and a creative entrepreneurship," he notes.

After the Texas Revolution, they even endorsed these shared goals in their new constitution.

The revolution itself provided Texas with a distinctive identity expressed in nationalism and a new set of heroes to glorify.

For Mexico, the Texas Revolution contributed to a pattern of upheaval. The young Mexican nation saw invasions by Spain in 1829, by France in 1838 and by the U.S. in 1846-47.

Who could have guessed that this once-prosperous colony would pay such a price for its own independence, leaving it so ill-prepared for the separatist movement in this far northern province of Texas?

Few could have predicted at the beginning of the 19th century that the province would develop into the new Texas republic, cast in the mold of the Untied States.

Doctor: White passes drug test, in good health

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White's physician says the governor, who is seeking re-election this year, is in excellent health and recently passed a drug test.

The analysis came in a letter made available to The Associated Press on Tuesday.

Health reports were requested by the AP in early August from both White and his Republican challenger, Bill Clements. An aide to Clements said Tuesday that a copy of the former governor's most recent physical examination would be made available soon.

The letter from White's physician, Dr. Jerald R. Senter of Austin, said that he has performed "complete and thorough" examinations of the 46-year-old governor for many years.

"His health has always been classified as excellent," Senter reported.

According to a laboratory printout provided by White's campaign, the governor was tested on Aug. 14 for chemical substances and alcohol.

"A full drug analysis was recently done which was entirely negative," Senter wrote.

The laboratory report said no trace was found of amphetamines, barbiturates, cannabis, cocaine, codeine, propoxyphene (Darvon), methadone, opiates, phencyclidine, phenothiazines or ethanol.

Mark McKinnon, White's campaign press secretary, said the governor took the drug test so he could make available a complete health report.

"I think he also thought he ought to set an example," McKinnon said.

White in January said he believed Texans have the right to a drug-free workplace, and suggested that drug testing might be appropriate in limited instances, providing individuals receive all constitutional protections.

As for the governor's general health, Senter said physical examinations had been conducted over the years for White's "personal satisfaction and also for insurance purposes."

In all cases, the physician said, White's health has been excellent.

"All his laboratory procedures plus X-rays and electrocardiograms have been normal," Senter wrote. "This man enjoys excellent health physically, mentally and spiritually."

Reggie Bashur, Clements' press secretary, said in a telephone interview from Dallas that Clements, 69, had taken a physical examination.

A report on his condition will be made available this week, Bashur said.

Rare veneral disease appearing in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Chancroid, a rare venereal disease usually associated with the tropics, is appearing in patients in Dallas, but health officials say early detection can lead to early treatment and cure.

Dallas County Health Department officials say there have been 175 cases of chancroid reported since May, mostly in the city of Dallas. Usually, only two or three cases of the disease are reported each year in Dallas County, Dr. James Randolph Farris said Monday.

"We don't want to alarm anyone," said Farris, medical director of the Dallas County sexually transmitted disease clinic. "We want to inform them."

"If you can track it down and treat it, you can eradicate it completely," Farris said. "That's, I guess, the best part of the disease."

The disease is characterized by painful genital ulcers that can lead to swollen lymph nodes in the groin. Men are 10 times more likely than women to contract the disease.

Health officials were astonished at the number of cases diagnosed because chancroid is usually confined to the tropics, Farris said.

"You wouldn't expect to find it in this country," he said.

"When we were up to about 20 cases, we went ahead and contacted the medical society and the hospitals," he said.

No other Texas city has reported an unusual number of chancroid cases, said Bob Williams, senior public health adviser for the sexually transmitted diseases control division of the Texas Department of Health.

Fire damages Midland County home

From Staff Reports

No one was injured but heavy damage was reported after a house in southern Midland County caught fire late Tuesday.

According to Midland Fire Department reports, seven firefighters responded to a fire about 9:35 p.m. Tuesday at a residence on State Highway 349, about one-quarter of a mile south of Interstate 20.

The residence, owned by Sherlock Oil Co., was unoccupied, reports said.

The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Voters can register until Oct. 3

From Staff Reports

Midland residents who are not registered have about three weeks to register and be eligible to vote in the Nov. 4 general election, said Elections Administrator Bettye Calvert.

New residents, at least 18 years old and voters who were purged on August 16 have until Oct. 3 to register.

To vote residents must be registered 30 days before an election.

To register residents may stop by the elections office at 609 West Washington, register with a deputy registrar or call 688-1222 to receive a registration card.

Wrestler convicted of assault

FORT WORTH (AP) — Jurors convicted professional wrestler Chris Adams of assaulting an American Airlines co-pilot after a flight attendant refused to serve him any more liquor.

Jurors rejected a felony charge of interfering with a flight crew member, which carried a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $25,000 fine. A conviction on that charge also could have gotten the Great Britain native deported.

Instead, they convicted him Tuesday on a misdemeanor assault charge that could mean up to six months in jail and a $500 fine. U.S. District Judge Eldon B. Mahon is scheduled to pass sentence next month.

Adams, 31, grew irate when a flight attendant refused to serve him any more alcohol, shoved the attendant and said, "I make 25 times the money you do and no one like you is going to tell me what to do," testimony showed.

When co-pilot John Bentley was summoned from the cockpit to calm Adams, who has emerged as a headliner on the national wrestling circuit, he was head-butted three times.

Bentley suffered a cut nose but was not seriously injured. He returned to the cockpit after other wrestlers on the flight from the Caribbean to Dallas helped subdue the 235-pound Adams.

"There was no excuse for him to do what he did," Mahon told jurors after they announced their verdict. "He hurt not only himself, but professional sports. It hurts professional wrestling."

Prosecutor John Bradford had argued that the outburst was more than simple assault.

Proposed changes in food program could hurt Texans

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Proposed changes in the way the federal government gives money to the states for supplemental food to poor pregnant women, infants and children would prove costly to Texas, according to sources in Washington and Austin.

Debbie Stebino, coordinator of the state's Womens, Infants and Children (WIC) food program, said Tuesday the Health Department has asked the Texas congressional delegation to stall the program changes. "We need time to evaluate the effects on Texas," she said in a telephone interview.

The number of applications for food has increased dramatically in recent months as the state's economy went into a tailspin. As it is, the state is serving at the most 25 percent of those eligible for WIC food. In some areas, the percentage receiving supplemental food is as low as 10 percent and 64 of the 254 counties have no WIC program at all.

The food is not an "entitlement," given to everyone eligible who applies.

Instead, the state receives a limited pot of money that must be parceled out.

Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston, chairman of the Select Committee on Hunger, last week asked Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., to head off any attempt by the Reagan administration to include the formula changes in a pending omnibus spending bill intended to cover agencies whose appropriations have not cleared both houses of Congress.

The administration is proposing that leftover funds in the program at the end of the fiscal year be distributed according to states with the greatest number of high risk recipients. Presently, the leftover money goes mostly to states — like Texas and 30 others — with large numbers of unserved but eligible hungry women and children.

Texas' grant for the WIC program this year was $104.7 million, of which $84 million is being spent for high nutrition cereals, milk and fruit. The balance goes to pay health professionals who screen applicants professionals doing the screening.

Convicted murderer granted stay

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Just two hours before he was to be given a lethal injection early today, federal judges halted the scheduled execution of Raymond Riles, a Texas inmate who insisted he wanted to die.

Riles, 36, who was known to bay at the moon and who once set himself on fire in his death row cell, received the news late Tuesday.

Attorneys contended Riles was insane and should not be put to death for shooting Houston used car dealer John Thomas Henry during a $42 robbery in 1974. They also contended the death penalty discriminates against blacks convicted of killing whites. Riles is black. Henry was white.

The U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled 7-2 early in the day to proceed with the execution, later upheld an order issued by U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald of Houston.

Attorneys for the State of Texas challenged the McDonald stay, but it was upheld by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans and unanimously by the Supreme Court.

"All right!" Riles exclaimed when prison officials informed him of the decision.

However, Imam Akbar Shabazz, an Islamic chaplain who spent the day playing dominoes with Riles, said the inmate told him he preferred to die.

"He didn't want a stay, he wanted it to be the last date," Sabazz said. "He wanted this day to be his last on death row."

Riles visited with a brother and two daughters during the day, slept some of the time and declined to eat breakfast or lunch. For what he thought would be his last meal, he selected fried fish, peaches, fruit cocktail and orange juice. Although he could have picked five personal witnesses to his execution, he chose none.

While the legal activity was furious, Riles' calm demeanor on Tuesday contrasted sharply with his trial, prison behavior and history.

On Dec. 11, 1974, Riles accompanied a friend, Herbert Washington, whose girlfriend had purchased a car from Henry. Washington demanded a refund. During an ensuing argument, Henry was shot and the $42 was taken. The pair fled and were arrested after a police chase that reached 100 mph through the streets of Houston.

The capital murder conviction capped a police record that began as a juvenile and included convictions for attempted rape, robbery and burglary. Riles' first capital murder conviction was overturned and a second trial resulted in another conviction.

During trial proceedings, a psychiatrist testified Riles bayed at the moon, barked and spit at him, and tried to bite him during an examination.

Houston AIDS cases increases

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of AIDS cases diagnosed in the Houston area is increasing 30 percent every six months, a city official said.

In the first half of 1986, about 223 patients were diagnosed, up 30 percent from the 172 cases confirmed in the last six months of 1986, said Dr. Gordon Reeve, the chief epidemiologist in the Houston Department of Health and Human Services.

Some 290 people will be diagnosed with AIDS during the last six months of this year, he predicted.

Reeve attributed the increases to improved reporting and the long incubation period of the disease.

A total of 775 AIDS cases have been confirmed since 1981 in the six-county Houston area, including 481 deaths for a 62 percent fatality rate, according to the report.

Man gets life sentence in killing

FORT WORTH (AP) — Jurors sentenced a 56-year-old Fort Worth man to life in prison for gunning down his estranged wife's boyfriend in a crowded Tarrant County courtroom.

Domingo "Chico" Velasquez was also fined $10,000, the maximum allowed by law, when jurors handed down their verdict Tuesday. They had taken less than 10 minutes to convict him.

Velasquez was charged with shooting Harry Walker II, 35, on June 24 in front of 33 witnesses. Bailiffs subdued him as he tried to back out of the courtroom, holding a gun to the head of his wife, Mary Ann Velasquez.

Walker had been in the courtroom to answer a complaint that he had threatened Velsaquez' son with a shotgun.

Texas vintners show off product

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a dozen Texas vintners, accompanied by House Majority Leader Jim Wright and Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, showed off their products in the nation's capital Tuesday.

In the unlikely setting of a congressional office building, more than 100 politicians, reporters, restaurateurs and winy buyers sipped Texas' best. Wine critics, lured by Hightower's promise that they would encounter no "Chateau Bubba," generally praised the products.

"I'm very impressed," said Johnathan Genderson, a wine consultant for a Washington liquor store. "I think the wines show a lot of promise."

Wright, conceding that fine wines don't exactly fit Texas' hardscrabble image, said, "If you're one of the folks who think real men don't eat quiche, let me tell you that a good jug of Texas wine will go with catfish, cabrito and armadillo stew."

Mexican celebration recognized

AUSTIN (AP) — The House and Senate adopted resolutions Tuesday recognizing Diez y Seis Septiembre — or Sept. 16 — as "a day comparable to the Fourth of July in the United States."

The celebration observes Mexico's declaration of independence from Spain in a revolt led by Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, a parish priest in Dolores.

At noon in the Capitol rotunda on Tuesday, state Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, hosted an hour-long celebration of music, dancing and speeches.
