How's that? Mosquitos

Q. Will residents living out of the city limits be fogged for mosquitos?

A. City officials have no plans to fog for mosquitos outside city limits. Road Supervisor for Howard County, Clifford Hart says his office has no plans to fog for mosquitos.

Nine killed at Fort Hood

FORT HOOD (AP) — A military helicopter crashed today during training exercises, killing nine people, authorities said.

One of the victims died at Darnall Army Community Hospital about an hour after the crash about 9:45 a.m., said base spokesman Maj. George Creach.

"So far, it looks like all of the victims are reserve officers," he said.

The UH-1 "Huey" helicopter belonged to the 49th Armored Division of the Texas National Guard, Creach said. But most of those aboard were part of the 489th Engineer Battalion based in Little Rock, Ark., which is part of the Oklahoma City-based 353rd Engineer Group, Creach said.

He said investigators could not immediately determine the cause of the crash, and there was no inclement weather at the time.

The aircraft was part of a military training exercise called Starburst '87, the 49th Armored Division annual two-week training exercise, said base spokeswoman Jeannie Kitchens. About 12,000 people take part in the exercise, she said.

The helicopter crashed in rugged terrain about a mile from the western boundary of Fort Hood, which is in Central Texas, authorities said.

"It's a utility-type helicopter. It's usually used to carry cargo," Creach said. "It usually has a crew of three, and it can carry up to eight passengers."

Court to hear Texas woman's case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, setting the stage for an important employment-discrimination ruling, agreed today to hear the appeal of a Texas woman who says she was denied promotions because she is black.

The justices are expected to use the case of Clara Watson, a bank employee in Fort Worth, to decide how some employees must try to prove their bosses are guilty of illegal bias.

The part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 known as Title VII bars on-the-job discrimination based on race and other factors.

In a key 1971 decision, the Supreme Court ruled that Title VII violations can be proved by using statistics to show that some practice or policy, although not intended to be discriminatory, unduly hurts minorities.

The court in 1971 said a company's use of written aptitude tests and its requiring high school diplomas, although intended to be racially neutral, was illegal because the practices "disproportionately excluded blacks from employment" and had no "demonstrable relationship to successful performance on the jobs" for which they were used.

In most cases, such "disparate impact" is far easier to prove than showing "disparate treatment" — intentional discrimination.

Ms. Watson went to work for the Fort Worth Bank & Trust in 1973, and in 1976 she was promoted to be a drive-in bank teller. In 1980, she was promoted to be a commercial teller in the bank's main lobby.

Over the course of the next year, Ms. Watson applied unsuccessfully four times for promotions to supervisory positions in the bank.

She sued in 1981, charging racial discrimination. In part, her lawsuit contended that the bank discriminated against all blacks when it came to filling supervisory jobs.

Her suit was dismissed by a federal trial judge, and the dismissal was upheld by a 2-1 vote of a 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel of judges.

The appeals court panel rejected Ms. Watson's argument that she had proved statistically that the bank discriminated against blacks in its promotion decisions.

"A Title VII challenge to an allegedly discretionary promotion system is properly analyzed under the disparate treatment model rather than the disparate impact model," the appeals court said.

The Supreme Court has never ruled on that issue, and other federal appeals courts have ruled that the disparate-impact approach may be used.

The Reagan administration urged the high court to resolve the conflicting opinions among the appeals courts, and argued that the 5th Circuit court panel was correct.

"Allowing plaintiffs to challenge subjective decision-making processes on a disparate impact theory will force employers either to replace those selection practices with objective ones or to eliminate any statistical disparities by using quotas," Justice Department lawyers said.

"Title VII cannot and should not be interpreted as requiring employers to institute preferential quotas to avoid liability," they added.

Tax report and budget occupy commissioners

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

Commissioners continued work on next year's budget and heard a tax report from Tax Collector/Assessor Dorothy Moore during today's meeting of the Howard County Commissioners' Court.

Moore said she has collected $3,477,885 taxes to date — $155,583 short of the total tax roll.

Beginning July 1 an additional 15 percent will be charged to taxes not yet paid, Moore said.

May's tax report indicates $131,670 has been collected from the taxable entities, she reported.

Commissioners continued work on the 1987-88 budget and discussed changes in the road and bridge budget with County Engineer Bill Mims.

Mims said it would cost the county approximately $230,000 to purchase two graders and a bulldozer. Commissioners tentatively plan to advertise bids for the equipment in August.

Mims suggested the county purchase one of the vehicles under the current budget and use $60,000 of carry over from the present budget toward the purchase.

No decision was made on the suggestion. Commissioners cut the amount allocated for equipment repairs from $60,000 to $30,000 and equipment parts from $50,000 to $25,000.

County Auditor Jackie Olson said the county had spent only 29 percent from the equipment repairs allocation, and 47.9 percent from the parts allocation. In other business the Court:

- Discussed repairs needed at the Courthouse Annex. Contractor D.D. Johnston said he will pay the cost of repairing a fire alarm that he said may have been tampered with. He said he would place a screen around the alarm for added protection. Johnston estimated repairs to the alarm would cost approximately $450.

Johnston said condensation from air conditioning units is causing ceiling tile damage and the problem worsens with heavy rain.

Commissioners also mentioned problems with a door closure in the tax office, a door in the mechanics room that does not lock properly, and the need for sealer on the south side of the Annex between the sidewalk and the building.

Johnston agreed to make all the necessary repairs.

- Agreed to raise the county law library fees from $10 to $20. The fee increase will take effect Sept. 1.
- Commissioners agreed to purchase four 14-channel scanners with digital readout at a cost of $624 each for the sheriff's office.

- Discussed a book security alarm system for the Howard County Library. County Librarian Judith Gray has asked for a refund for the present system after receiving notice that parts will no longer be available.

Firefighters battled a blaze at Moffatt Carpet and Furniture for several hours early Sunday morning before allowing it to burn itself out. No injuries were reported in the fire that destroyed the building. Investigation into the cause of the fire continues today. A related photo appears on page 2A.

Fire destroys downtown store

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Firefighters today are investigating the cause of an early Sunday morning blaze that destroyed Moffatt Carpet and Furniture, 200 Main St.

Fire Chief Carl Dorton said it is unknown whether arson played a role in the blaze — which firefighters battled until well after dawn Sunday.

The brick facade of the store appears intact, but the gaping interior full of blackened rubble can be glimpsed through the doorway, and the nauseating stench of smoke can be smelled across the street.

Smoke apparently stained a portion of the upper stories of the Permian Building, immediately west of the carpet store.

City Pawn Shop, located directly south of the destroyed carpet store, suffered smoke and water damage, but no structural damage. Pawn Shop owner Ann Weaver said.

"If it hadn't been for the firemen, we'd have lost our building too," she said, adding that her family has been ridding the store of smoke and soot.

Although the buildings touch, Dorton said separate walls required by the fire code also played a role in saving the pawn shop.

Weaver said this is the second time fire has destroyed the carpet store. The first time was around 1934, she said.

Moffatt Carpet and Furniture is owned by Linda Biden, according to the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. Weaver said the woman is of Midland. The owner could not be reached for comment this morning.

The fire department called in 60 percent of its off-duty force to help fight the blaze — about 16 firefighters, in addition to the 12 already on duty, Chief Dorton said.

He said one-half million to one million gallons of water were used.

The department received the call about 1:15 a.m. Sunday and controlled the blaze about 7 a.m., Dorton said.

"We more or less let it burn itself out," and extinguished the hot spots, after unsuccessfully attempting several strategies to save the structure, he said.

The building's basement — which limited access — made the fire difficult to fight, Dorton said. He added that the fire may have burned for several hours in the basement before it was discovered.

To say that flammable materials were involved is an understatement, Dorton said — carpets, vinyl flooring, and adhesives all are flammable.

However, he said, flammable flooring in residences and businesses should not be of major concern to owners. Fire travels up, then sideways, then down only when it runs out of fuel or is blocked from going another direction, he said.

"Very seldom do we have a carpet fire," Dorton said. "Generally, (burning) carpet is the least of your worries."

No one was injured in the blaze, but firefighters suffered minor scrapes and bruises, he said. The Salvation Army and Cousin's Convenience Store provided refreshments to the weary firefighters, he said.

Cold drinks and donuts "sure change your attitude about working five to six hours on a hot fire," he commented.

Lawmakers: Few options during special session

AUSTIN (AP) — As the Legislature's special session on the state budget crisis approached, lawmakers sought to find out what their options are.

"Darn few," said Rep. Al Luna, D-Houston, a member of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee.

Luna, appearing on a television panel prior to the start of the 30-day special session, said legislators can cut spending, broaden the sales tax base or enact a corporate or personal income tax.

Various spending proposals surfaced in the 140-day regular session that ended June 1, along with suggestions for taxes to cover increased costs, but the Legislature never got close to an agreement on an 1988-89 budget.

It was the first time since 1961 that legislators had failed to pass a spending plan in regular session.

Gov. Bill Clements called lawmakers back for a quick special session on civil judicial reform, then scheduled work on state finances to start today.

In calling today's session, Clements added several other subjects to the legislative agenda, including constitutional bans on personal or corporate income taxes.

Luna's fellow panelists on "Texas Politics" — Bill Allaway of the Texas Association of Taxpayers and John Kennedy of the Texas Research League — agreed that the Legislature would enact a corporate tax before a personal income tax.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock projects that state spending in 1988-89 will run about $5.5 billion higher than expected state income. Add to that a $1 billion deficit left from the current budget year, and lawmakers face a deficit of $6.5 billion.

Since the Legislature adjourned three weeks ago, "Very little has changed except that now our circumstances are even more urgent," says Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby.

Hobby noted in a mid-June budget briefing that there has been no spectacular comeback in Texas' petroleum industry, new markets have not suddenly opened up for agriculture and the Mexican peso is still unstable.

Hobby and the Senate offered a $39.3 billion budget. Lewis and the House recommended a $38.4 billion plan. Clements has indicated support for a budget totaling $38.1 billion.

Clements, who has vowed to veto any tax increase over $2.9 billion, said he would accept budget increases "only for selected priority programs."

"We must be vehement in our commitment against tax-and-spend philosophies," he said.

Political observers doubt SMU report harms Clements

AUSTIN (AP) — Revelations that Gov. Bill Clements' knew, but kept silent about Southern Methodist University football players receiving under-the-table payments could hurt his credibility on some fronts, but should have no real side effects in other areas, political observers say.

"Those men who conspired to protect the governor did the public and the voters of Texas a great disservice," said Bob Slagle, the state Democratic chairman.

"His credibility will be suspect through the remainder of his administration. Being a liar is like being a little pregnant — you either are a liar or you aren't," Slagle said.

One Republican lawmaker said the disclosure by an SMU bishops' committee report last week may dampen Clements' efforts to remove two Texas Supreme Court justices recently chastised for judicial impropriety.

"When you have a mark against you, you can't point a finger at someone else," said Rep. Terral Smith of Austin.

But Smith was among those who didn't think the scandal would affect upcoming

White: He was protecting ambitions

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Gov. Mark White says Gov. Bill Clements approved continuing payments to Southern Methodist University football players to protect his political ambitions.

A 48-page SMU bishops' report issued Friday said Clements, as chairman of the SMU Board of Governors, knew improper payments were being made to football players and allowed them to continue even though the school already was on probation for similar violations.

White said Sunday that the payments "were really hush money and came at a time when (Clements) was announcing for governor. SMU had already received its punishment, which was probation, and had he been looking out for SMU, he would have stopped the payments."

"But he was looking out for himself, and his political ambition was such that he was willing to sacrifice SMU for a political office. Otherwise, there was no reason to continue the payments," White told the Houston Chronicle.

Clements' press secretary, Reggie Bashur, said White's accusation is unfounded.

White said if Clements' role in the SMU scandal had been reported in 1986, he didn't think "the people of Texas would have looked favorably on him as a candidate for governor."

"I think any credibility he had is gone," Cavazos said.

Clements, before and after the election, denied knowledge of payoffs at SMU, but in March admitted he decided to gradually "phase out" the payments.

A panel of four United Methodist bishops conducted a three-month investigation into the scandal. The bishops said Clements and several other members of the board of governors par-decide that, should he choose to run again."

But a political consultant and veteran observer of Texas politics said the issue may be moot.

"It's very difficult to do political damage to an incumbent who's not running again," said George Christian of Austin.

Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, said "it is only appropriate that the attorney general read the report and see if any state law was violated."

Slagle said the report reveals the governor "obviously had an interest in protecting himself so the voters wouldn't know about his involvement" before the November 1986 election in which Clements defeated Democratic incumbent Mark White.

Several lawmakers said the scandal could give Clements' opponents an advantage in budget negotiations that will highlight the special session, which convened Monday.

"If we don't agree on a budget solution, (Lt. Gov. Bill) Hobby will take his message to the public. And (House Speaker Gib) Lewis will take his message to the public. And so will Gov. Clements," said Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Cleburne.

"Whose message do you think the people are going to believe?"

But Rep. Patricia Hill, R-Dallas, said the report will not lessen his effectiveness while Rep. Randy Pennington, R-Houston, said any lawmaker who attempts to disrupt the budget process by raising the SMU issue would be grandstanding.

Three residents hurt in three auto crashes

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Three Big Spring residents were injured in three accidents Saturday afternoon and early Sunday, including one incident involving a police officer en route to a previous accident.

Officer Richard Lopez, 26, had entered the intersection of Owens and Third Street at 1:58 a.m. Sunday, with lights flashing and siren on, when his police car was struck by another auto, police reports said.

The second car was a 1984 silver Pontiac driven by Royce Cornell Ausbie, 27, 1408 Harding St.

A passenger, Debra Harding, 25, 2608 Hunter St., was reported injured, but no medical treatment was indicated.

Ausbie was ticketed for no liability insurance, the reports said.

Lopez was en route to an accident at N.E. 11th and Benton Streets, after which a Big Spring man was hospitalized.

Kenneth Marvin Hart, 23, 407 N.E. 11th St., is in stable condition at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said this morning.

Skid marks at the scene indicate Hart was "cutting donuts" in the intersection when he lost control of his 1980 yellow Ford Fairmont and struck a utility pole, a stop sign and a street sign, police reports said.

The accident occurred at 1:56 a.m. Sunday. Hart was charged with driving while intoxicated.

A 20-year-old Big Spring woman was injured in the third accident — at Gregg and Third Streets at 3:52 p.m. Saturday.

Regina Payne, 509 S. Johnson St., was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center, a hospital spokeswoman said.

She was a passenger in a 1972 GMC pickup driven by Yamesh Kumar, 20, 302 Settles St., who police charged with failure to yield the right-of-way, police reports said.

The reports indicate Kumar and another passenger, Raymon Torres, 31, no address listed, were wearing safety belts and were not injured. Payne was not wearing a safety belt, the reports said.

The truck and a 1982 Chevrolet van driven by Dortha Penelope Clarkson, 37, Sterling City Route A Box 33C, collided in the intersection.

Neither Clarkson nor passenger Jason Clarkson, 12, no address indicated, were injured, the reports said.

Police reports said both parties claimed they had a green light.

Sheriff's log

Alien victim of attack

An illegal alien who was assaulted Sunday has been turned over to the U.S. Border Patrol, according to sheriff records.

The man, Manuel Pineda, Chihuahua, Mexico, told sheriff deputies he was hitchhiking back to Mexico and received a ride in a vehicle containing four people. He was cut in the arm and robbed, according to records.

Thomas Reyes, 113 N.E. Ninth St., found Pineda one-half mile west of Big Spring on Andrews Highway and took him to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, according to sheriff records.

John Henry Zant, 22, 406 Douglas St. garage apartment, was released Sunday on a $1,000 bond. He was arrested by city police at 12:55 a.m. Saturday on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Jimmy Olivarez, 23, 1402 1/2 South Main St., has been transferred to the Eden Sheriff Office, according to Howard County sheriff records. He was arrested Sunday by city police on suspicion of resisting arrest.

Police investigating assault

The second sexual assault of a juvenile occurred in Big Spring, reported to police Saturday night.

Lt. Jerry Edwards said the incident is not related to a previous sexual assault of a child reported to police last week, and it is not believed related to any other crime.

The attack occurred at a north side residence, he said.

The victim, a female, knew her attacker but was not related to him, he said, adding that police have a suspect but no arrests have been made.

The previous incident was reported to police at 3:05 p.m. Tuesday at the police station, by a man who was arrested on suspicion of the crime.

Salvador Calvio Sr., 41, 1208 Lindbergh St. voluntarily came to the police station, reported the incident and was charged with aggravated sexual assault, Edwards has said. He said it was aggravated because the victim was a juvenile, but no weapons were involved.

Man avoids shark, swims 43 miles

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A diver who got lost while swimming in the Gulf of Mexico was able to fend off a small shark and swim 43 miles to safety, authorities say.

Nicholas Metke of Harlingen, an experienced diver and swimmer, disappeared shortly after noon Saturday while diving off a pleasure craft with friends near the Port Mansfield jetties. He safely reached land about 4:30 p.m. Sunday, about 35 miles south of the ranger station on Malaquite Beach, a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said.

"He said he was bothered one time by a small shark that kept bumping into him," said Joseph Rock, Coast Guard quartermaster 2nd class. "He said he kept poking at it with his spear gun, and it finally went away."

Metke drifted to shore as Coast Guard and private vessels joined in a round-the-clock search.

Weather

Forecast

West Texas - Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms are expected east of the mountains tonight, becoming mostly fair Tuesday. Continued mostly sunny days and fair at night in the far west through Tuesday. Lows tonight mid 60s north to mid 70s in the extreme south except mid 50s mountains. Highs Tuesday in the mid 90s mountains and north to near 108 in Big Bend.

State

Winds gusted to 116 mph early today when a severe thunderstorm roared through an area near the town of Quemado in northwest Maverick County in South Texas, the National Weather Service said.

There were no reports of injuries or significant damage. Another severe thunderstorm spawned a tornado funnel cloud near Clarendon in the southeast Texas Panhandle, the NWS reported. That storm also triggered marble-sized hail between Amarillo and the Oklahoma border, primarily in Hemphill and Wheeler counties.

Forecasts called for scattered showers and thunderstorms to spread over most of the state east of the mountains through Tuesday. Otherwise, skies will be mostly fair in extreme West Texas and partly to mostly cloudy through tomorrow.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 60s and 70s although some readings in the mountains of Southwest Texas may dip into the mid 50s.

Border disease feared

EL PASO (AP) — Dr. Asencion Mena worries that polio, whooping cough and other diseases once conquered through immunizations will again trouble people living along the U.S.-Mexico border.

"We're too fragmented in the county," said Mena, medical director of the La Fe Clinic in El Paso. "Patient dumping from hospitals still exists."

Mena, whose clinic saw 55,000 low-income patients last year, was one of several health officials attending a three-day conference over the weekend on border health issues.

Although some attending the conference said the federal government is growing more concerned about the health of those living along the border, others questioned the government's sincerity.

They said the government is pledging to help solve problems on one hand, while cutting programs on the other.

"There is an awareness that more needs to be done," said Herbert Ortega of the Pan American Health Organization in El Paso. "But we need to cry for help from the federal government."

Sonia Leon Reig, director of migrant health programs of the federal Health Resources and Services Administration, said the federal government is becoming more sensitive toward border health issues.

As evidence, she said, the U.S. Public Health Service plans to spend more than $2 million this fiscal year on health-related activities along the Texas-Mexico border.

Squabble turns violent

ROCKWALL (AP) — A man shot three family members, killing one and wounding the others, and then turned the gun on himself after a dispute over a will turned violent, authorities say.

Rockwall Police investigator Terry Garrett said a telephone operator who notified police of the shootings told officials she heard one of the fatal shots over the phone.

Claude Francis Fulton, 71, died at 1:22 a.m. Sunday in the emergency room at Methodist Medical Center of Dallas. He died of a gunshot wound to the head, Garrett said. Dava Lynn Williams, 23, of Dallas was found dead at the home with a gunshot wound to her head.

"She was near the phone so she probably made the call," said Garrett. The body of Ms. Williams, who police believe was Fulton's granddaughter, was transported to the Dallas County Medical Examiner for an autopsy, he said.

Mary Duvall, 71, Fulton's wife, was in serious condition in Methodist's intensive care unit, said nursing supervisor Barbara Phelps.

The operator called police at about 11:14 p.m. Saturday, Garrett said. When officials arrived at the family's Chandler's Landing home, they found Fulton, his wife and Ms. Williams in the bedroom.

S&L intervention cited

NEW YORK (AP) — House Speaker James Wright, D-Texas, intervened with federal regulators on behalf of a long-time supporter whose savings and loan association was being investigated, according to reports published Sunday.

Newsweek's June 29 issue and Monday's editions of The New York Times report that Wright has intervened several times on behalf of Texas real-estate men facing legal problems.

Though Wright is not accused of doing anything illegal, officials told the publications that Wright tried to limit federal efforts to regulate savings and loans, and blocked passage of a bill that would pump more money into an insurance fund for savings and loans.

The publications say Wright urged Edwin J. Gray, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, to re-examine the board's action against Thomas Gaubert, a Texas real estate developer, prominent Democratic fund-raiser and owner of Independent American Savings Association in Irving, Texas.

Spokesmen for Wright and Gaubert told the Times they did not dispute that Wright contacted the board on Gaubert's behalf, but said Wright was not seeking special treatment for Gaubert. They said Wright had made other efforts to protect S&Ls from what he considered questionable enforcement by the bank board.

Endangered species sought

DALLAS (AP) — Volunteers with sharp eyes, time to spare and a love of nature are being sought to scour four national forests in East Texas for an endangered species of woodpecker.

Fewer than 10,000 of the red-cockaded woodpeckers, native to the pine forests of the Southeast, are known to exist.

The U.S. Forest Service needs volunteers to help efforts to preserve the birds, which measure 8 inches from head to tail and derive their colorful name from two small tufts of red feathers, or cockades, on either side of the male's head. From afar, the tufts are just dots and the rest of the bird's plumage is fairly nondescript.

Forest Service spokesman Hal Glassman said the program, conceived by an overworked biologist at the Sam Houston forest, is a first.

Forest Service biologists will train the volunteers at the agency's Texas headquarters in Lufkin and, possibly, at ranger stations in the four national forests: the Sam Houston, near Huntsville, and the Davy Crockett, Sabine and Angelina, all near Lufkin.

Texoma flood waters recede

LAKE TEXOMA (AP) — Business owners who watched their establishments go under with rising lake levels say the water is receding in some areas and they may be in full operation for the July Fourth weekend.

Owners of Loe's Highport marina reopened their restaurant over the weekend, after being closed almost 19 days because the rain-swollen lake began flooding the business.

But the waters are receding slowly and many boat owners still must be ferried to boat slips because roads remain under water.

Business owners are hoping the lake levels drop far enough and in time for the July Fourth weekend, a big revenue raiser for the resort businesses.

Ron Berkman, whose Cedar Bayou is closed, expects to be open for the holiday weekend.

At Big Mineral, a recording tells callers there are no campsites or campgrounds open and that the resort expects to be closed for another couple of weeks.

"But call us back, it could be sooner if the water recedes fast enough," the recording says.

Police awaiting legal opinion

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — City officials say they're awaiting word from attorneys whether Farrell Tucker, acquitted Friday of murder in the death of a fellow officer, must be reinstated to the force.

Assistant City Manager Bill Donahue said the city's attorneys could issue a decision today.

The city has 30 days from the date of official court notification of the jury's verdict to decide whether to allow Tucker to return to the force. The 36-year-old suspended officer said he would discuss returning to his job with Police Chief William O. Gibson today.

A state district court jury found Tucker innocent Friday of murder in the death of Stephen Smith, his best friend. Tucker claimed self-defense in the August shooting death.

VICTORY OVER CANCER, ARTHRITIS, ALZHEIMER'S & COLDS

GOLD STAKE USER'S REPORT

The story of GOLD STAKE, a trade named mineral nutritional supplement, started with Robert E. Craig who was suffering from throat cancer beyond the reach of surgery. He had a short time to live according to his doctors. Craig, a chemist, had heard that some minerals were effective in treating skin cancer and otherwise beneficial to health when taken internally.

A biopsy by a pathologist at St. Joseph's Hospital in Burbank, Calif. showed Craig had a carcinoma on December 17, 1969. Craig returned to the lab and formulated the mineral supplement which is presently being marketed. On January 13, 1970 he returned to the same hospital for a repeat biopsy. This time the verdict was, "No evidence of malignancy." (Please note the short period between surgeries.) The only thing he had done in the interval was to take four capsules a day of the mineral supplement.

For sixteen years the product was tested and incidentally, Craig has used the product continuously with no harmful side effects.

Testimonials are the opinions of those who make them and not of Gold Stake.

DR. PAUL MONSLER, MORAGA, CALIFORNIA,

"We have found the Gold Stake elements to be extremely efficacious in catalyzing all nutrient assimilation and bypassing toxic blockages, rendering many of man's decadent afflictions harmless. Gold Stake is the most important supplement to come along in the past 75 years. It is a gift from God."

DR. LAWRENCE H. TAYLOR, M.D. OF SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA

"Having reviewed the medical records and testimonial letters from the terminal cancer patients who have taken the dietary mineral supplement with excellent results, plus my observations of positive results experienced by my own patients, I believe anyone who has cancer would greatly benefit if they took the Gold Stake mineral supplement. My 72 year old patient with terminal multiple sclerosis, unable to work, has gone back to work and says every time she sees me, 'Praise the Lord for Gold Stake.'"

Dr. Taylor said he has seen a number of critically ill patients, some with only days to live, improve or recover after taking the minerals.

CHRONIC LEUKEMIA SYMPTOMS GO COMPLETELY AWAY

I suffered poor health, mental depression, allergies, intestinal instability, diarrhea, bruises all over my arms, legs and chest, bad skin color and if I drank coffee, soft drinks or wine, I suffered weakness and trembling for as much as two weeks.

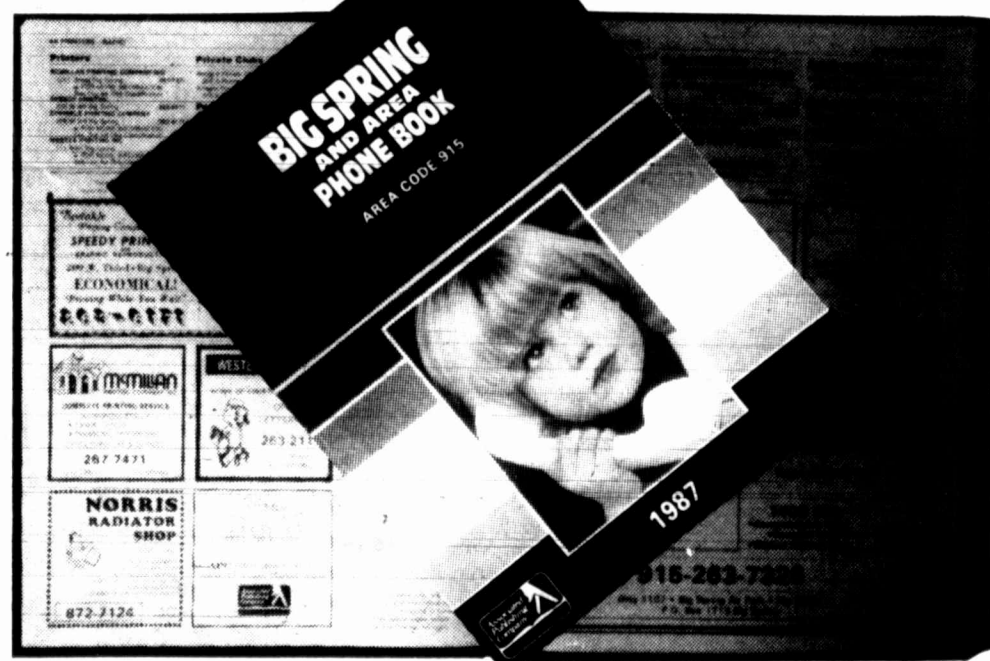

August 2, 1985, I started 4 capsules a day. In 3 days I experienced a tremendous increase in energy. My mental outlook and faculties improved 100%. My skin color became normal, no more bruises and the intestinal instability and diarrhea stopped. If I drank coffee, soft drinks or wine, no more trembling or weakness.

Suggested price: 60 capsule bottle $40.00 + $2.50 tax — 125 capsule bottle $80.00 + $5.00 tax (By mail add $1.00 Postage and Handling)

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the state.

Says Lewis holds key to session

House Speaker Gib Lewis, perhaps more than anyone else, holds the key to success in the forthcoming special session of the Legislature, which convenes on June 22.

Traditionally, measures favored by the House speaker... enjoy far more chance of success than measures not so favored.

So when Lewis says he now looks with favor upon an expanded sales tax and a state lottery as the least-objectionable ways to raise revenue and balance the budget, the signal is clear: Those measures have an excellent chance of being approved by the House during the special session.

Because some form of reasonable budgetary agreement in the forthcoming session is absolutely necessary, Lewis' endorsement of the most realistic methods of achieving one is indeed encouraging.

Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Lawmaker 'abusing his privilege'

Henry B. Gonzalez, San Antonio's longtime representative in Congress, is engaged in an ongoing abuse of congressional privilege that his colleagues should publicly deplore.

Specifically, the Democratic congressman is circumventing a court order by going on the floor of the House to say whatever he pleases about a pending San Antonio court action in which he is charged with misdemeanor assault on punching a critic at a restaurant.

Gonzalez, in using the Constitution's protective umbrella to conduct his petty vendetta on the floor of Congress with the TV cameras grinding away, is doing far more than any Republican could do to embarrass himself.

The Victoria Advocate

Urges cleaning up of dirty politics

If you are a member of that silent army of Americans who is sick of negative political advertising, complain to U.S. Sens. Phil Gramm and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas. The Senate is taking up a campaign-finance bill that would put some restrictions on negative advertising.

Negative advertising took a mean turn for the worse last year with Bill Clements and Mark White contributing mightily to the mudslinging.

Focusing on the dark side of a candidate ill-serves the public and gives all of us a generally low opinion of all the candidates.

We say cleaning up campaigns would clean up politics or at least force candidates to focus on the issues.

Advices Reagan to listen to Carter

Jimmy Carter is pretty far down the list of White House advisers. His relationship with President Reagan has never been more than cordially distant, at its best. The president could do worse than to pay attention to his predecessor now and again, though.

Carter warns that the plan to let Kuwaiti tankers fly the U.S. flag represents a serious tilt toward Iraq.

"Choosing sides" in the Gulf war is risky business indeed. If the United States is perceived as having done so, wider involvement in the continuing, and horrible, Iran-Iraq war becomes almost inevitable.

Says 'high time' for locked rates

U.S. Rep. Dean Gallo, R-N.J., has introduced sorely needed legislation aimed at preventing mortgage lenders from breaking "locked-in" loan commitments.

Gallo, who is a real estate broker, said the bill would end the all-too-common practice of raising loan rates between the time home buyers apply for money and actually get it.

It's high time for consumers to have some protection from this shoddy business practice.

Unrealistic ultimatum criticized

Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's response to criticism about major league baseball's lack of blacks in management has been as swift as a Nolan Ryan fastball.

No doubt part of the reason was that the Rev. Jesse Jackson has given baseball until June 29 to implement an affirmative action program or face a possible boycott. Moreover, Ueberroth appointed Harry Edwards, a sociologist long concerned with the treatment of black athletes, as a special assistant to aid in boosting minority employment in front-office positions.

Jackson has acknowledged these impressively prompt measures, but is withholding judgment until June 29. Keeping close tabs on this matter is Jackson's prerogative, but he should show some flexibility and push back that deadline.

Turkish water may flow thicker than Arabian oil

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Oil has swept power and prosperity over the walled enclaves of the Arab world, but the most precious liquid in that parched desert region is fresh water. It has been used to promote peace and to fuel discord; it is worth fighting wars over.

We reported more than a year ago how Libyan dictator Moammar Gadhafi planned to bring Egypt to its knees by diverting the life-giving waters of the Nile. Gadhafi's mad dream fortunately collapsed along with the price of his oil.

And in 1982, we quoted from a top-secret CIA report that suggested a key motive for Israel's invasion of Lebanon that year was to gain control of the Litani River's dependable water supply.

Now we've seen a dramatic, unpublicized plan for a water project that could actually promote peace and cooperation in the Middle East. It involves one or more pipelines that would carry significant quantities of water from southern Turkey to the thirsty cities and farmlands of Syria, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia.

The most surprising feature of the ambitious project is that a study of its feasibility was commissioned by the Turkish government. It had long been assumed by observers that Turkey would not wish to sell the water, even though huge quantities now flow unused into the Mediterranean.

The study, by the American engineering firm of Brown & Root, estimates that the Ceyhan and Seyhan rivers in central Turkey carry 34 million meters of water each day. Of this, 24 million is used by the Turks; the remaining 10 million cubic meters empty into the northeast corner of the Mediterranean.

The Turks asked Brown & Root to assess the difficulties and the cost of a pipeline project that would divert some of the 10 million cubic meters to Turkey's neighbors to the south. A complete study would have cost $1.5 million. But the U.S. company did make a preliminary report, which we have seen.

Brown & Root estimated it would cost an eventual $8 billion to reroute 3.25 million cubic meters of water a day from the two rivers into a pipeline. The first phase of the project would run a pipeline to various Syrian cities, including Damascus, the capital, through the Israeli-occupied West Bank and on the Jordanian capital, Amman.

The second phase would run a parallel pipeline through Syria to the Moslem holy cities of Mecca and Medina, in Saudi Arabia. One proposed route would follow the old desert railroad line that was repeatedly sabotaged by T.E. Lawrence and his Arab warriors in World War I.

Our disclosure of the Turkish pipeline proposal will come as a major surprise to Syria, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. None of these governments were even consulted about their reaction to the plan.

This pipeline would carry Turkish waters across the Syrian and/or Iraqi desert straight to the bone dry cities and oil sheikdoms along the Persian Gulf coast.

Can't play with white man disease

By LEWIS GRIZZARD

Everybody seems to be trying to make a federal case out of the fact that Detroit Pistons basketball star Isiah Thomas said of the Boston Celtics Larry Bird, "If he were black, he'd be just another black guy."

The truth is, Isiah Thomas, who is black, is right. What makes Bird so special is that he is one of the very few whites ever to overcome a dreaded condition known as White Man's Disease and make it as a bona fide superstar in the National Basketball Association.

What is White Man's Disease? Symptoms are the following:

- You can't jump.
- You can't run.
- You can't dunk.
- You can't change directions while still in the air.

When you try to do a high five with another white man, you occasionally miss contact.

Black basketball players are, in my opinion, the most graceful of all athletes. A black guy comes dribbling down the court at 80 miles an hour and leaps into the air at the top of the circle and comes down 10 minutes later, jamming the ball into the hoop with herculean force.

White guys can't do anything like that. That's because they have WMD and move with all the grace of a Greyhound bus.

But watch Larry Bird. He's slow and he can't jump, but somehow he manages to get the ball into the basket at a very high frequency and WMD sufferers all over the country see him and say proudly, "Look, he's one of us, but he made it anyway."

I played basketball in high school. That's because integration didn't happen until I had graduated. Otherwise, my extracurricular activities would have centered around the Spanish Club.

I know this to be true, because a black guy named Nathaniel used to drop by the outdoor court at the grammar school where we used to shoot a few hoops in the summertime.

Nathaniel was the same age and the same size as the rest of us, but he owned us on the court.

Nathaniel always was the first pick when we chose our sides. Nathaniel could shoot from anywhere and hit. He could dribble behind his back. He could jump out of his shoes. He could make the rest of us look silly.

"Are you on the Central team?" I asked him one day. Central was where the black kids went to school.

"No," he answered. "Why not?" was my next question.

"I'm not good enough to make the team," he explained.

One day, Nathaniel and I were shooting together at the outdoor court and two older white guys walked up and challenged us to a little two-on-two.

All I did was throw the ball to Nathaniel and stand back and watch.

"You're a pretty good player to be white," Nathaniel said to me after the game. It was one of the greatest compliments I have ever been paid.

Officials join forces for impact

By JESSE TREVINO

The national media's attention shifts to Corpus Christi this coming week as eight of the country's Democratic and Republican presidential hopefuls showcase the national convention of the League of United Latin American Citizens.

But another, smaller meeting held in Laredo last week may prove more important, with ramifications extending to 1990.

The likes of Sens. Joe Biden of Delaware and Paul Simon of Illinois are coming to Corpus Christi because neither Iowa nor New Hampshire may provide Democrats with a clear frontrunner in February. Texas would then be the largest prize of the 15 southern and border states holding primaries on March 8.

A Texas win could provide invaluable momentum for the next series of primaries to the winner, especially if Texas is the only state in the South in which the Rev. Jesse Jackson does not finish first.

Alert campaign managers, judging from the calls they have been making to notable Hispanics Democrats, understand that the Texas Hispanic vote may account for as much as 30 percent of the vote on March 8 — up from 24 percent in the 1986 primaries. In a field of seven candidates, Hispanics easily could form the cornerstone of a Texas win if Mexican-Americans vote for one candidate.

These early readings of the political tea leaves have caused palpable excitement among Hispanic Democrats, who have not played an important role heretofore in presidential nomination politics.

Thus, seven nuts-and-bolts South Texas county officials — the kind which can actually deliver votes on election day — convened in Laredo last week to discuss how the South Texas and Hispanic votes can be maximized in favor of one candidate.

Jesse Trevino

Conceived by Hidalgo County Judge Edgar Ruiz, Zavala County Judge Ron Carr and Webb County Judge Andre Ramos, the meeting is significant because, if it works, it could put more than half of the Hispanic vote in one candidate's pocket.

The South Texas organizers hope to reach a consensus choice early among themselves, explain their endorsement of one candidate to their constituents and then persuade Hispanics and South Texas to stick together.

While Hispanics have generally voted as a bloc for a presidential nominee, they have done so by default. By the time the Texas May primary rolled around, the frontrunner was practically the nominee.

All this changed last year when the Texas Legislature moved the primary to March to increase Texas' role in the nomination process. With the demise of Gary Hart and the increasing number of Democratic contenders, the Hispanic vote looms significantly.

The key of the South Texas plan is to amplify the weight of the Hispanic vote of the 30 southwestern counties of the state on the day of the primary.

An analysis conducted by the Laredo group concludes that the area running from Del Rio to Corpus Christi to Brownsville — but excluding San Antonio — now casts more votes in the Democratic primary than either Houston or Dallas.

The 30 counties, which are being organized by a 100-member steering committee comprised only of county-elected officials, cast 174,000 votes in the May primary last year — compared to Harris County's 67,000 and Dallas County's 49,000.

Why the Laredo group excluded San Antonio can be summed up in two words: Henry Cisneros.

Some of these Hispanic officials feel their areas may be ignored if Cisneros acts as the power broker of the Hispanic vote. They are moving to make certain Cisneros does not take them for granted.

They are not without ammunition. The bulk of the Hispanic vote lies south of San Antonio in the same 30 counties, which cast three times as many votes as does San Antonio in a Democratic primary. If Cisneros decides to take on U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm in 1990, he will need these officials to generate a heavy South Texas vote.

But it must not have been lost on Cisneros that only seven of the 150 county judges and commissioners in this 30-county area attended his much-heralded "Future of the Region" conference in San Antonio last year.

In any election, any effective county judge could increase or decrease voter turnout in his or her county by 15 percent, an important component in any election, but more so in a crowded presidential primary or a close race for a U.S. Senate seat.

What happened in Laredo was not a run-of-the-mill media show but the beginning of serious political maneuverings which will affect the national political picture.

Jesse Trevino writes on Hispanic social and political issues.

Swaggart is accused

DALLAS — The Rev. Jimmy Swaggart and his ministry have been accused by tax officials of skimming cash from contributions, but his attorney vehemently denies the allegations.

The television evangelist and his Louisiana-based Jimmy Swaggart Ministries also are accused in court documents of ignoring court orders to produce financial information, the Texas Lawyer reported in today's edition.

The ministry's lawyer denied withholding any relevant material and denounced the allegation that Swaggart had dipped into contributions.

The papers were filed in a tax dispute between officials in South Texas' Montgomery County and Jimmy Swaggart Ministries, the Lawyer reported.

The Conroe Independent School District, the city of Shenandoah and the county say Swaggart's radio station KJOJ owes $157,000 in taxes for three properties.

Swaggart contends the properties are tax-exempt.

Two die in bus crash

CHOUDRANT, La. — A Trailways bus smashed into the rear of an 18-wheel truck today, and two people were killed, authorities said.

An undetermined number of people were injured in the 12:25 a.m. accident on Interstate 20. There were 17 people on the bus bound from Shreveport for Meridian, Miss.

State Police Sgt. Greg Gossler said the front third of the bus was crushed when it ran into the rear of the 18-wheeler.

Both the bus driver and the truck driver were to undergo blood tests, which Gossler said was routine in such cases. He said the bus driver, whose name officers did not release, may have fallen asleep.

Uninjured passengers boarded a second bus to continue their trip to Meridian.

Wrong men put in jail

OPA-LOCKA, Fla. — Two men who chased a robber from a fried chicken restaurant were arrested by police in the confusion and spent 17 days in jail before the case was dropped, a newspaper reported.

Jay Miller, 39, and Andrew Lane, 25, neither of whom had criminal records, were arrested after a May 3 robbery at a Church's Fried Chicken restaurant when a witness who gave three different versions of his name identified them as accompanying a man who made off with $52 from the cash register, the Miami Herald reported today.

The restaurant manager, Tina Warfield, said she tried to correct the witness, but Opa-locka police Officer Cheryl Odom told her to be quiet, the newspaper said.

A restaurant cashier and Miller's girlfriend, also was arrested, then later released.

One dies in tornado

A huge storm system deluged parts of Michigan today, swamping Detroit highways, after spawning a tornado that ripped through a mobile home park, killing a man and critically injuring his wife and infant son.

"After I heard a blast I looked out and could see everything going around and around — shingles, pieces of siding — it looked like squares in the air," said Dorothy Olsen, a resident of the Chateau Estates mobile home park in Novi about 30 miles northwest of Detroit.

Twenty-five to 35 of the mobile homes were severely damaged in Sunday's tornado.

A turnaround Rioters prompt meet concession

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — In a major turnaround, President Chun Doo-hwan agreed to meet with the opposition to try to end fierce anti-government protests, a top official said today.

The statement came as thousands of students clashed with riot police near college campuses in Seoul in the 13th day of large-scale protests. Scattered violence was reported elsewhere in the country, but most protests were peaceful.

Yonhap, the Korean news agency, reported that about 20,000 students took part in demonstrations at 58 universities throughout the country.

Roh Tae-woo, chairman of the governing Democratic Justice Party, said after a meeting with Chun that the president agreed to meet with Kim Young-sam, head of the Reunification Democratic Party. Chun also promised to consider the release of political detainees, Roh said.

He didn't say when the meeting would occur. "I recommended it is desirable that the president meet political elders and opposition leaders to work out settlements," Roh told reporters.

Kim has said he would meet with Chun if all those detained since nationwide protests began June 10 are released. Police say more than 8,000 people have been arrested. Most have been freed or sentenced to brief terms, but at least 300 face trial on major charges.

Kim also has demanded freedom for fellow opposition leader Kim Dae-jung, who has been under house arrest in Seoul since April 8.

Students hurled firebombs and rocks at police in vicious street battles around at least four major Seoul colleges. Police fired volley after volley of tear gas.

About 2,500 students clashed with police in the central city of Chonju and stormed a police station. Hundreds of students clashed with police in the streets of the southern city of Kwangju and about 1,000 students briefly seized part of a highway on Cheju Island off the south coast.

Pusan, the country's second largest city and scene of some of the worst anti-government protests in recent days, was largely quiet.

In recent days, the opposition has demanded direct talks between Kim and Chun as a precondition to negotiations on calling off the protests that have swept the country since June 10.

That was the day the Democratic Justice Party nominated Roh as its presidential candidate, and the opposition began a drive to force direct elections.

Roh said nothing today about the key opposition demand that the government repeal its April 13 decision to suspend talks on political reform until after the 1988 Seoul Olympics.

Chun contends the delay is necessary to safeguard national stability and the games. He has said elections later this year will be conducted by the electoral college system, which opponents charge favors the government party.

"The president also promised to give maximum consideration to preconditions set by the Reunification Democratic Party including the release of imprisoned people and the lifting of house arrest order for Kim Dae-jung," said Roh.

The government has said more than 8,000 people have been arrested since disturbances erupted June 10, with many sentenced to brief jail terms by summary courts.

Aviators break record

PARIS — The captain of a four-man crew who re-created the 1938 round-the-world flight by Howard Hughes and cut 2½ hours off the billionaire's record was so happy he couldn't even recall the flight's minor problems.

Champagne flowed and crowds cheered when the 1930s-vintage, twin-prop plane landed at 10 a.m. Sunday under cloudy skies at Le Bourget airfield north of Paris after an 88-hour, 48-minute flight.

The aviators took off Wednesday from the field hosting the biennial Paris Air Show and arrived on the show's 11th and final day.

"I've forgotten the difficult moments," said Patrick Fourtieg, the plane's captain. Fourtieg said he spent two years searching for an airplane of the same model as Hughes' craft for the re-creation. He finally found such a plane in Miami, where it was being used to transport chickens, he said.

"I discovered a new world," Henri Pescarolo, the co-pilot and navigator, said Sunday. "Finishing the flight was a great moment."

Bonn bowing to threat

BONN, West Germany — Bonn will not approve a U.S. request to extradite the alleged hijacker of a TWA jetliner, out of fear for the lives of two West German hostages in Beirut, security sources told The Associated Press today.

But Attorney General Edwin Meese is expected to visit Bonn on Tuesday in an apparent attempt to get West German officials to change their minds about a request to extradite Mohammed Ali Hamadi, said security sources speaking on condition of anonymity.

Government spokesman Friedhelm Ost said Meese would meet with Interior Minister Friedrich Zimmermann on Tuesday to discuss the Hamadi case, among other issues.

Ost refused to say what the West German government planned to tell Meese or what it planned to do with Hamadi. He said a decision on Hamadi's fate would be made at Wednesday's Cabinet meeting and announced afterward.

Shultz accuses Libya

SYDNEY, Australia — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today accused Libya of sowing "discord and subversion" in the South Pacific and said the Soviet Union is trying to undercut U.S.-Australian interests in the region.

Shultz, in a statement opening talks with Australian leaders, also sought to ease Australian concerns about U.S. agricultural subsidies viewed here as unfair tactics in a fight for world markets.

Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger held their annual consultations with their Australian counterparts at a time of growing concern about what Shultz called "outside interference" in a region dominated by the West since World War II.

Australian Foreign Minister Bill Hayden, in his opening remarks, called the region "one of the most volatile" in the world.

In recent months, Australian officials have said Libyan agents have sought to provide financial backing and training to political figures in some of the tiny independent island states in the Pacific.

Among steps taken by Australia have been expulsion of Libyan diplomats and the closing of the Libyan embassy.

Family shuns son and daughter-in-law

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a lovely woman I'll call Carole. My mother did not approve of her because she was a divorcee with two children. (We are both in our late 20s.) My brother was my best man. My family came to the church but did not go to the reception. In fact, they walked out the side door immediately following the ceremony.

My brother is getting married soon and I had already agreed to be his best man. When the wedding invitation arrived, I was shocked to see that it was addressed to me only! I asked my brother if it was some kind of oversight and he said no. Carole was not invited because Mother didn't want her there.

I sat down and wrote my brother a letter because I couldn't tell him face to face how hurt I was. I also told him that unless my wife was invited, I could not be his best man. I asked him to please come to see me so we could talk things over. I heard nothing from him, so I called and asked if he wanted to talk, and he hung up on me. I haven't heard from him since.

The last line of my letter was: "When Carole and I took our marriage vows, we two were made one, and I cannot send half of me to your wedding."

Was I wrong? Should I have gone and left my wife at home? (She told me it was my decision.)

HURT IN LYNN, MASS.

DEAR HURT: You were not wrong. I applaud your loyalty.

Dear Abby

Please greet your lucky wife for me.

DEAR ABBY: A while back you answered a woman's query about the comparison of a man's eating habits to his lovemaking. She was in love with a man who ate fast and she was concerned that his quick satisfaction of his physical need for food might prophesy a similar quick satisfaction of his physical need for sex.

You advised her not to be concerned — if she loved him, she should marry him.

At the time, I wasn't sure of your advice. Now I am. Abby, you were right on the nose. I now know what great sex is, and it's with this man who eats like he hasn't eaten in six weeks. Please print this as validation of your advice to others, who, like me, put your advice on hold.

YUM

DEAR YUM: Just common sense and good manners. A gentleman never keeps a lady waiting.

DEAR ABBY: How right you are to point out that constant tickling of a person is cruelty and should not be tolerated. My Irish mother told me at least 50 years ago of a situation that took place near her hometown in Ireland.

A neighbor had at least two wives pass away before anyone paid much attention to it. Then another neighbor reported hearing hysterical laughter coming from that house. Well, it was later learned that the man had been tying his wives to the bedpost, and tickling the soles of their bare feet with a feather? He continued until the hysteria did them in. In truth, they were tickled to death.

PAT HOLLINGSWORTH, BRITISH COLUMBIA

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for your advice to "Indiana Mother" who objected to giving condoms to teenagers. You were right to remind her that sex with the wrong partner just once could be a death sentence — and better safe than sorry.

But more important, what kind of moral values have these children been taught at home if they can be ignored just because someone hands them a free condom?

Does "Indiana Mother" think that her children are so ignorant they didn't know that condoms existed, and could be bought at the local drug or grocery store? Or does she think that one free condom will cause them to rush out and find a sex partner?

Teaching teen-agers to say "no" to sex is like teaching them to say "no" to food. It'll work until they get hungry.

TYLER SARLOW, FORT WORTH, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to marry a man (I'll call him "Tex") who was hospitalized many years ago for a mental illness. I am really afraid to marry him without knowing more about his mental illness. Tex told me it included depression and some kind of schizophrenia, which he managed to overcome with treatment.

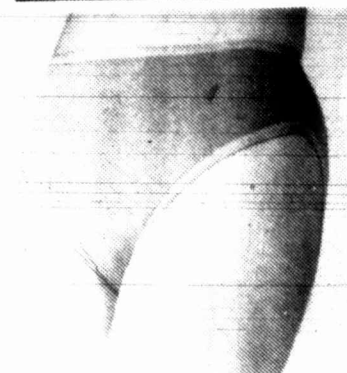

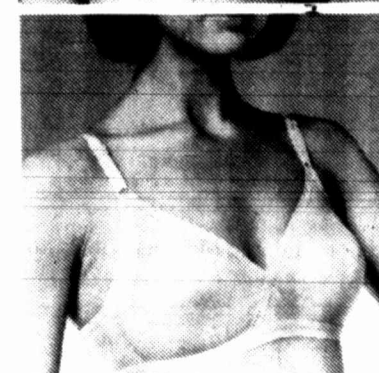

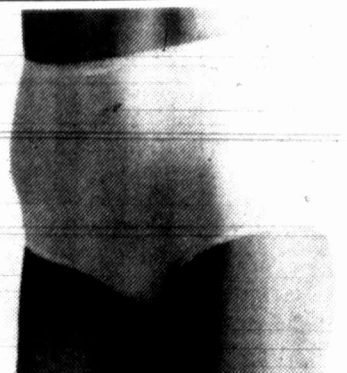

I wrote to my fiancé's psychiatrist asking if I could talk to him about my fiancé's history of mental illness. My fiancé not only approved of my doing this — he encouraged me. I stated this in my letter. The psychiatrist ignored my letter.

What do you advise?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Ask Tex to arrange a consultation for both of you with his psychiatrist. Of course the doctor is entitled to be paid for the time he spends to answer your questions. And by the way, ignoring your letter was inexcusable.

Bakkers sue to regain ministry

TEGA CAY, S.C. (AP) — Jim and Tammy Bakker have hired lawyer Melvin Belli to help them regain PTL, but the Rev. Jerry Falwell called their efforts "un-Christian shenanigans" and said God would decide the battle.

"The odds are very, very much in favor" of the Bakkers returning to the TV ministry, Belli said Sunday after meeting with the couple for four hours in the PTL-owned home they are occupying on Lake Wylie.

Bakker said Sunday for the first time that he wants to regain control of the ministry he handed over to Falwell in March amid a sex scandal.

Falwell said in a telephone interview Sunday from his home in Lynchburg, Va., that the fate of PTL, which owes $72 million, is in the hands of the bankruptcy court.

"I am sure the federal court will take into consideration that it was under Reverend Bakker's leadership that the terrible violations which brought about the virtual collapse of the ministry occurred," he said.

"Most of us who who love Reverend Bakker and who love the PTL ministry are saddened that he would put himself ahead of the survival of the ministry," he said. "However, I believe that God will overrule all this monkey business and will recover this ministry."

Falwell added that Bakker had a full week to reconsider turning the ministry over to its present board.

"It was not until some of his dissident friends encouraged him to resume leadership at PTL that all of these un-Christian shenanigans began," Falwell said.

Belli said Sunday that Bakker wasn't properly advised when he gave up the ministry he founded to Falwell. "Had we been in at the beginning of this, Jimmy never would have resigned," he said.

Calling Bakker his "finest client" in 53 years of practicing law, Belli said the defrocked Pentecostal minister's side has not been told. "We're going to tell it without venom" over the next two to three days, he said.

Belli, an Episcopalian, said he wants to meet with PTL officials and the old board of directors. He also said he would like to set up a meeting between the Bakkers and Falwell.

Belli, 79, has represented Jack Ruby, who killed John F. Kennedy's assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald; victims of the Bhopal, India, chemical leak in 1984; and families of those killed when the Soviets shot down a Korean Air Lines jet in 1983.

Bakker said Sunday he wanted to make peace but had to seek legal counsel when the ministry's new leaders filed for reorganization.

"Our desires and goal is that the ministry continue, that all creditors be paid 100 percent and that all the partners have fulfilled the vision that we gave them to have a place for retreat," Bakker said.

When asked if he expected to resume control of the ministry despite recent allegations concerning his sex life and spending practices, Bakker said, "They accused Jesus Christ of the same thing. They said he was a wine-bibber, that he went out with publicans and sinners and prostitutes. Just because people accuse you doesn't change the call of God on your life."

Mrs. Bakker added, "And that doesn't make you guilty, either."

Meanwhile, contractor Roe Messner said Saturday that he and other PTL creditors are working on a plan to reorganize the ministry in case Falwell's plan in federal bankruptcy court does not call for full payment of debts.

Messner, in a telephone interview from Wichita, Kan., said he does not care who runs PTL as long as he gets the money he is due. Messner said the ministry owes him $14 million for work he did at Heritage USA while Bakker was in charge.

PTL's business managers were given 120 days in which to present their reorganization plan to the bankruptcy court in Columbia. The plan must be accepted by a majority of the creditors, which include contractors and the TV stations that carry the ministry's program. PTL, which stands for People That Love, or Praise the Lord, listed 1,400 creditors.

FRANCE'S NEWEST MUSEUM

Any trip to France this year would be incomplete without a visit to its newest cultural attraction. The Musée d'Orsay is the culmination of a $200 million restoration of the Belle Epoque Gare d'Orsay railway station into an extraordinary museum. This turn-of-the-century landmark building now holds on display works by Cezanne, Gauguin, Manet, Monet, Pissarro, Renoir, Sisley, and Van Gogh, as well as sculptures and photographs. Virtually no other museum in the world offers such a majestic setting of towering steel and glass as a backdrop to art. The Musée d'Orsay exhibits works that are representative of the last half of the 19th and the first decade of the 20th century. It forms a time bridge between the older exhibits at the Louvre and the newer exhibits of the Centre Pompidou.

Stabbing incident casting shadow over Dallas suburb

By MICHELLE LOCKE
Associated Press Writer

UNIVERSITY PARK (AP) — A suburban Dallas enclave of expensive brick homes and impeccably kept lawns is an unlikely setting for a street knifing.

But on one of the tree-lined thoroughfares, less than a week before high school graduation, a argument involving teenagers led to the stabbing of a 17-year-old boy described as a skinny kid who usually steered clear of trouble.

The accused assailant is an 18-year-old honors student with no history of violence who police say used a pocketknife that was a graduation gift.

The stabbing, which left Garvin Donald Fitch in critical condition, shook the calm tenor of the exclusive suburb, leaving friends and school officials wondering how Fitch Sharpe, an award-winning student who sang in the choir, and Fitch, the vice president of a school club, got caught up in violence.

"We just don't have any answers," said Jim Gibson, principal of Highland Park High School, which both students attended.

Sharpe, the son of a Presbyterian church business manager and one of the winners of the Ben W. Wiseman scholarship for exemplary leadership and character, faces charges of attempted murder. He is free on $5,000 bond.

Neither he nor Fitch, vice president of the school's Field and Stream Club, had a record of misconduct or violence and apparently did not know each other, Gibson said.

Police say an egg tossed over a fence sparked the fight, although they don't know who threw it or how the seemingly harmless prank exploded into a stabbing.

"It's like a blob that grows on you," said University Park police investigator J.V. McDonnell.

"Basically, just two guys got into it. He had a discussion and one guy stabbed another," McDonnell said. "Nobody knows exactly why. I think it's just a heat of passion type deal."

Early on the morning of May 31, Fitch was driving by a house where a swimming party was being held, McDonnell said. An egg was thrown and hit Fitch's jeep. Fitch stopped, and Sharpe, a guest at the party, came out to the street, McDonnell said.

"Sharpe and Fitch got into a little altercation, a little talking loud

TODD SHARPE
... stabbing suspect

GARVIN DONALD FITCH
... stabbing victim

and a little swearing here and there and a little shoving," said the investigator.

A companion with Fitch began arguing with others at the party, distracting attention from the Sharpe-Fitch exchange, he said.

"Next thing you know, the boy was stabbed. No one actually saw the stabbing." The 2 1/2-inch blade pocketknife used in the stabbing was a graduation present to Sharpe, according to McDonnell.

The Sharpe and Fitch families declined comment. The Sharpe family's attorney, William T. Hill Jr., also refused to comment on the case.

The Fitch stabbing capped a year of tragedy at Highland Park, which has 1,400 pupils. Two students died accidentally this spring and school officials responded by setting up support groups.

After the stabbing, school officials organized a blood drive for the hospital where Fitch is staying.

The affluent University Park suburb, where houses sell for an average of $200,000, and its pricier neighbor, Highland Park, are usually quiet places. Both are replete with stately two-story brick homes and tiny flowerbeds bisecting emerald lawns.

"It's supposed to be the elite of the North Dallas area," McDonnell said.

Gibson said there were only two incidents during the school year that could be classified as fights, and neither involved serious injury.

He said students didn't routinely carry knives on campus.

"I didn't want to believe it (that) something this tragic would happen in our high school," said Glenn Crueger, 17, who sang tenor in the choir with Sharpe.

He said he thought to himself, "Todd wouldn't stab anybody. Especially a fellow student. Then I found it was true (the incident). I didn't know what to think. I've never known him to be violent."

"I think most (students) were angry at first," said Lee Hancock, Fitch's best friend. But now there is mostly sadness. "Basically I really feel bad for both families and both kids," he said.

The school principal said both students achieved in their own way. "It would appear totally out of character for either one of them to be involved in a stabbing incident," Gibson said.

School officials wouldn't release the students' grade point averages, but Sharpe was an honors graduate, meaning he had an A average. Fitch was "about a B" student, Hancock said.

Fitch was "kind of skinny," and had given up football because of the risk of injury, said Hancock, 17, who has known Fitch since he was 7.

"He's usually pretty conservative. If there's something everyone wants to go out and do and it doesn't sound too bright, he usually wants to go out and do something else. He's that guy in the group," Hancock said.

The students' backgrounds plus the lack of a witness to the actual stabbing has made the case more complex, but hasn't slowed the investigation, McDonnell said.

"Everybody says they're good kids and stuff like that. Everybody's trying to make the Sharpe boy look like the innocent little kid," he said.

Tom Terrific halts comeback try

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver wanted to finish his career by pitching for the New York Mets. He made it back to the Mets, but not to the mound.

Seaver was to retire today, ending his comeback try. He did not think he could pitch well enough to return to the major leagues and the Mets called a press conference to make the announcement.

"I know he wanted to help us win a championship. But I also know he's very disappointed with his progress," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said Sunday.

Seaver, 42, rejoined the Mets in late May as a free agent, answering a call by General Manager Frank Cashen to patch up the team's injury-depleted pitching staff.

Yet in an exhibition start and two simulated games, Seaver was hit hard and did not show signs of regaining the form that made him a three-time Cy Young Award winner.

Seaver pledged he would retire rather than struggle in the majors, and apparently he did not see enough improvement.

"When I spoke to him yesterday, he seemed very discouraged," Johnson said. "Tom's a perfectionist and he knows himself better than anybody else."

Seaver had not pitched in the majors since last August, when a knee injury ended his year with the Boston Red Sox. The Red Sox did not re-sign him after the season, making him a free agent.

The Mets originally hoped

Seaver, with a career record of 311-205 and a 2.86 earned run average, could make his first major-league start June 20.

But in a start against the Mets' Class AAA Tidewater team on June 11, he allowed seven runs on eight hits in 2 1/3 innings.

Last Tuesday, pitching against teammates in a simulated game, he threw 88 pitches and gave up 13 hits.

On Saturday, the day Seaver wanted to pitch for the Mets, he was again shelled in a simulated game. He threw 60 pitches and gave up four runs on 10 hits.

"There was no improvement at all," Seaver said after that outing. "I'm very disappointed, but I am not giving up yet."

At the time, Johnson said, "I would like to see him pitch twice more before we make a decision on him."

Seaver was not at Shea Stadium on Sunday for the Mets' 8-3 victory over Philadelphia.

Seaver and Cashen announced May 23 they had reached agreement on a contract for the remainder of this season. The pact was reportedly worth about $550,000. Cashen also said Seaver had the option to return in 1988.

The AP learned that Seaver had a guaranteed contract for 1987 and 1988, regardless of how well he pitched. The Mets had the option of buying out Seaver's contract after this year.

Seaver's return to the Mets, with whom he started his career in 1967 and led to prominence, was designed to bolster the starting rotation. Injuries have already finished Bob Ojeda for the season, while David Cone is sidelined until late August and Rick Aguilera is lost for six weeks.

Seaver was particularly discouraged with the velocity on his fastball in his recent workouts with the Mets.

"The ball wasn't shooting out of his arm the way he'd like and I told him that he was forcing the ball, that he just needed to build his arm strength with time," Johnson said.

Seaver was National League Rookie of the Year in 1967. He won the Cy Young Award with the Mets in 1969, 1973 and 1975. In 1969, he won 25 games and led the Mets to their first World Series championship.

Rain wins at Wimbledon's opening day

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Persistent rain delayed the start of the 101st Wimbledon tennis championships today, wiping out at least half the opening day schedule.

Midway through a dreary afternoon at the All England Club, organizers called off all third and fourth matches planned for the 17 grass courts.

Two-time defending champion Boris Becker's opening match against Karel Novacek of Czechoslovakia was one of those that survived the decision as tournament officials hoped the weather would relent in time to fit in some tennis on the show courts before nightfall.

Becker was due to play the first match on Centre Court. It was scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. London time (9 a.m. EDT) but two hours later green tarpaulins still covered all courts and rain was falling.

Ivan Lendl was opening against Christian Saceanu of Romania on Court 1 but the prospect of any play looked grim.

Not since 1969 has an opening day schedule been called off completely because of the weather. As today's rain threatened to cause a repeat, tournament referee Alan Mills said he understood how the fans felt.

Mills said the forecast was showers throughout the day, with brief periods of dry weather in between.

"If that happens, it does not look too promising for the day but as soon as we can get started, even if only for a short time, we will," he said.

Wimbledon's grass signifies only one thing for Becker and Martina Navratilova — success.

Becker has lifted the men's trophy the past two years, while Navratilova has carried off the women's title the past five years.

Becker was favored to become only the seventh man, and the third in modern times, to win three successive singles titles in the world's most prestigious tournament.

Navratilova, however, looked a bit wobbly after a winless year and a growing confidence crisis.

"I am not confident now, when will I be?" Becker said after completing his Wimbledon preparation by winning the Queens Club championships last week.

"I won Wimbledon, then I won it again, and I'm a much better player this year," Becker said.

By contrast, Navratilova hasn't gone into Wimbledon in seven years without a tournament title. She is winless this year.

Defeat in the final of the French Open by Steffi Graf, followed by another loss, this to Helena Sukova, in the championship match of the Eastbourne championships on Saturday haven't been the best preparation for the world's top-ranked woman player.

The loss to Sukova was Navratilova's first on British grass in 69 matches stretching back six years.

Wimbledon, she hopes, will put her back on the right track.

"I'm very down and not brimming with confidence but I'm still going to be the favorite to win Wimbledon," she said after losing to Sukova.

Most of the attention Monday focused on the red-haired Becker.

For the second successive year, the 19-year-old West German had the honor of playing the first match of the tournament on Centre Court, this time against Karel Novacek of Czechoslovakia.

Simpson's putter put him in lofty company

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scott Simpson was surrounded by guys with green jackets, Masters champions all.

But when the 87th U.S. Open ended Sunday, the 31-year-old Californian possessed his first major golf title. His closing round of 2-under-par 68 on the Olympic Club's Lake Course gave him a one-stroke victory over Tom Watson, the two-time Masters winner.

Spain's Seve Ballesteros, another man who has twice worn the traditional green jacket presented to Masters champions, finished five strokes behind Simpson in third.

"I'm actually surprised I won it, to tell the truth," Simpson said.

Watson was disappointed but not surprised at the outcome.

"Scott Simpson is a very fine golfer. He's proven he can come from behind and that he can win on tough golf courses. Does it surprise me? No," Watson said.

Simpson made three consecutive birdies starting at the 14th hole, going ahead to stay with his 15-foot putt for a 4 on the 609-yard 16th. He saved a par at No. 17 by coming out of a bunker and making a 10-foot putt, then parred the 18th to complete the tournament with a 3-under total of 277.

Watson had three bogeys on the first five holes but no more in his round of 70, which included three birdies. His 45-foot putt for a birdie on the 18th hole was about two inches short.

"I have to admit I was hoping it wouldn't go in. I didn't want a playoff," Simpson said.

If Watson's putt had dropped, the course would have had its third Open playoff in history today. Jack Fleck beat Ben Hogan in a Monday showdown to settle the 1955 title, and Billy Casper beat Arnold Palmer in 1966.

"It felt good to be back in the hunt again," said Watson, who has gone almost three years without winning a tournament.

"I have nothing to be ashamed about, but I am disappointed," he added.

"To beat Tom is something special. He's beaten a lot of guys down the stretch over the years and he's always aggressive," Simpson said. "He gave it his best shot, I gave it my best shot, and I was fortunate to win."

Simpson won the NCAA golf title twice at the University of Southern California, joined the PGA tour in 1979 and has won three tour events including this spring's Greater Greensboro Open.

The victory Sunday was worth $150,000 and jumped him from No. 9 to No. 1 on the tour's moneywinning list, with season earnings of $465,896. Paul Azinger and Payne Stewart, the top two on the list last week, failed to make the cut in the Open.

Ballesteros battled to within one stroke of the lead midway through Sunday's round, but fell back with bogeys at the 12th and 13th and finished with a 71 for his total of 282.

At one point there was a four-way tie for first involving Simpson and three Masters winners — Watson, Ben Crenshaw and current champ Larry Mize.

Mize, Crenshaw and Langer finished at 283, in a five-way tie with Bobby Wadkins and Curtis Strange for fourth place.

Keith Clearwater, who matched the course record with a 64 on Saturday, fell from second place to a 31st finish by shooting a 79.

Texas teams look for help today

Rockets need a guard

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Rockets didn't go into today's NBA draft expecting to solve all their problems.

Even after the Rockets make their second round pick, the 35th choice overall, there still will be many unanswered questions.

The Rockets, like all other NBA teams, can't sign the collegians they drafted today or four-fifths of last year's starting lineup because of a signing moratorium.

Ralph Sampson, who is testing the free agent market, Allen Leavell, Rodney McCray and Robert Reid did not sign contracts prior to the NBA imposed signing deadline of June 17.

"It's a new experience," Rockets General Manager Ray Patterson said. "It makes it difficult to set up your ball club because you don't know what the rules are going to be."

No signings can take place until Oct. 1 or until a collective bargaining agreement has been reached.

The Rockets hoped to bolster their guard position, depleted last season by the loss of Mitchell Wiggins and Lewis Lloyd, banned from the NBA for drug usage.

The Rockets traded their first-round draft pick to the Los Angeles Clippers for Cedric Maxwell, who helped them reach the second round of the 1987 playoffs.

The Rockets were eliminated by Seattle and now face a rebuilding program.

Patterson would like to see the Rockets make the same turnaround that Los Angeles made after losing to the Rockets in last year's playoffs.

But the Rockets' problems are greater, Patterson said.

"I have to think the Lakers' program took off when we beat them, that's when they pulled themselves together and started to move," Patterson said.

Mavs like tiny Bugsy

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks couldn't find another team that would wheel-and-deal, so they have to make the best of their 20th and 26th picks in today's NBA draft.

The Mavs offered their 20th pick in the first round and the 26th choice, which is in the second round, for the Indiana Pacers' 11th overall pick.

It was turned down as were other overtures by the Mavs to move up in the draft so they can bolster their Midwest Division championship team.

The Mavs were enthralled with UCLA's Reggie Miller, who is 6-foot-7 and can play guard or small forward. They don't believe he'll last until the 20th selection.

The Mavs may have to settle for a longshot like Tyrone "Mugsy" Bogues, a 5-foot-3 guard from Wake Forest.

The next Spud Webb has the Mavericks' curiosity up.

"He's super at pushing the ball up the court," said Personnel Director Rick Sund. "He's a good point guard. He penetrates and dishes the ball off a lot like Webb."

Webb, who can dunk the ball at 5-4, is a star with the Atlanta Hawks of the NBA and is adept at getting their offense into gear coming off the bench.

"Bogues is in our picture quite a bit," Sund said. "He made a big impact in the tryout camps."

Drafting 20th is a unique situation for the Mavs.

"In the past, we've always picked in the top 10," said Sund. "There's a big deck that will be shuffled this time before it gets around to us playing our hand."

It will be the first Dallas draft for new Coach John MacLeod, who spent 14 years with the Phoenix Suns before he was fired.

The Mavs are a team built on draft choices except for center James Donaldson.

Spurs draft for future

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Navy Center David Robinson was on line to be the first player selected in the NBA collegiate draft as San Antonio had a chance to pick the record-setter.

The Spurs, coming off their worst season, were to tab the 7-foot-1, 235-pounder, who recently graduated to be commissioned as an ensign in the U.S. Naval.

Other teams already are hoping that Robinson will abandon the Spurs' ship during his military service.

The Spurs, however, are optimistic they will be able to sign Robinson, who set 33 school records at the Naval Academy and is 10th among all-time NCAA scorers.

Spurs Coach Bob Weiss said Robinson would fit into the plan of rebuilding around young players.

Last season's attendance was low as the Spurs finished at 24-58. "Rebuilding is not an overnight thing," Weiss said. "He's a building block for the franchise. He'll be a boost, a shot in the arm, even if he's going to be away two years."

A judge or arbitrator eventually may have to resolve the dispute between Robinson and the team over the draft rights.

The NBA has said that under the collective bargaining agreement with the players association, the team that drafts Robinson would have a year to sign him, whether he plays or not.

The league also has a bylaw that would make Robinson a free agent if he hasn't signed within two years with the team that drafts him.

"San Antonio would be a good place to grow," he said. "They've got a young team and I wouldn't be thrust into a situation where we had to win immediately. With the Lakers it might be harder to come into my own."

Champion Sidekicks riding high

DALLAS (AP) — A year ago, the Dallas Sidekicks thought they might not be around for another season.

Now, they're in the spotlight after becoming the Major Indoor Soccer League's champions.

They have in mind keeping the hearts of Dallas sports fans.

"What we've done in the playoffs," said general manager Kent Russell, "is prove that we can draw big crowds and we can get the yuppie crowd down, which is the one most sponsors want us to attract."

"Now it is up to us to take what we've done up to this point and make it into something big," he said following Saturday's 4-3 win in overtime against the Tacoma Stars.

It's not bad work for a franchise that is only 3 years old and lucky to be alive after almost folding last summer.

But the Sidekicks are not slowing their pace. Already, the team scheduled summer soccer camps for youths to start in mid-June. Most of the players were still involved in the championship series but the camps opened as planned.

"We're over a thousand kids registered right now," said Russell. "Two months ago, we felt we would probably max out at a thousand. Our first camp started this week so we think we can do maybe 1,500 or 2,000 in the camp."

"Again, it is extra visibility and extra income which we didn't expect," he said.

Some of the team's success may result not only from skill on the field but from struggles of other professional sports franchises in the area.

The Mavericks' first round elimination in the NBA playoffs, the below .500 year for the Cowboys and a Rangers team that struggled this season may have left

Dallas hungry for a winner.

"Let's face it," said Russell. "There's two things. You're smart, or lucky, and you need part or both of those to be successful. Everything fell into place. But you have to take advantage of it, too."

"It wasn't because those teams went out; we opened the doors and we got 16,000. Those first two playoffs, we had 9,000 and 5,000 in the first two playoffs. We worked hard at getting those 16,000."

The chief financial backer of the franchise, Sidekicks chairman of the board Stan Finney, said the playoffs helped to almost cut in half a projected $1 million loss.

"It's always fun to be the Cinderella story," said Finney. "But it's all a tribute to (coach) Gordon Jago. You can't say enough about him as far as what he's done for the franchise."

"We really needed the recognition not only with the fans but with the media, too."

Reds, Braves series looked like hockey

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Cincinnati Reds and Atlanta Braves spent nearly as much time hitting each other as they did hitting home runs this weekend.

"It was a fairly exciting series," Buddy Bell said Sunday after his 10th-inning homer gave the Reds a 6-5 victory in Atlanta.

The teams played baseball on Saturday and Sunday, engaging in a pair of bench-clearing incidents. Both melees were triggered by batters being hit by pitches and charging the mound.

The fights may have been the product of pitchers' frustration — 12 home runs were hit in the two games.

Bell, who had not hit the ball out of the infield in his previous nine at-bats, homered into the left-field seats with one out in the 10th. His fifth home run of the season came off Gene Garber, 8-5.

Sunday's trouble came in the eighth inning after Atlanta reliever Jim Aker hit Tracy Jones with a pitch. Jones stood around rubbing his arm as Aker came within 25 feet of the plate, and Jones eventually charged.

Jones and Aker wrestled as both benches emptied. No one was hurt and Jones was the only one ejected.

"I went after the wrong person," Jones said. "What am I supposed to do when the catcher says 'go get him if you want him'?"

"I can fight one or the other but I can't fight both. I know he's not trying to hit me in that situation, but that's the second time that happened. I don't want to fight, but I can only take so much."

Aker hit Jones with a pitch last weekend in Cincinnati.

mitted he told Jones to get Aker if he wanted to, "but I just said it once."

On Saturday, the benches cleared after Atlanta's Andres Thomas rushed the mound after being hit by a pitch from Bill Gullickson.

Bell's homer was one of five hit Sunday. Virgil hit a solo home run in the second inning and hit a two-run homer — his career-high 20th in the fifth for a 5-2 lead.

Eric Davis and Dave Parker hit consecutive home runs in the first inning for Cincinnati. Davis, who also had a two-run triple, hit his 22nd homer and Parker got his 17th.

Cardinals 7, Expos 3
Unbeaten rookie Joe Magrane pitched seven strong innings and Vince Coleman's two-run triple sparked St. Louis over Montreal.

Jack Clark, leading the major leagues with 66 RBI, hit a run-scoring single in the first off Bob Sebra, 3-8.

relief as Toronto opened a one-game lead over second-place New York in the AL East.

Red Sox 4, Yankees 2
Rookie Ellis Burks hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning after Dwight Evans tied the score with a two-run shot in the seventh. Boston, held to two hits for six innings by Bob Tewksbury, finally caught up with the right-hander who was recalled from the minors on Saturday.

Boston's Wade Boggs went 3-for-4 in raising his major-league-leading batting average to .375 and extending his hitting streak to 22 games, longest this season. Roger Clemens, 6-6, allowed seven hits in pitching his seventh complete game in 15 starts.

Twins 8, White Sox 6
Tom Brunansky homered and then broke a 5-5 tie with a run-scoring double in the eighth inning. Brunansky doubled off Chicago reliever Jim Winn after Gary Gaetti reached first on third baseman Tim Lulett's fielding error and went to second on a groundout.

Blue Jays 7, Brewers 6
Lloyd Moseby, Willie Upshaw and Fred McGriff homered for Toronto and rookie Jeff Musselman earned his sixth victory with three innings of one-hit

Mets 8, Phillies 3

Dave Magadan drove home three runs and Sid Fernandez pitched four-hit ball for 5 2-3 innings as New York sent Philadelphia to its sixth straight loss.

The Phillies have lost all four games under new Manager Lee Elia, who replaced the fired John Felske on Thursday. The Mets have won four in a row.

Fernandez, 9-3, gave up two runs. He is tied for the league lead in victories. Roger McDowell pitched three innings for his eighth save.

Astros 6, Dodgers 1
Jim Deshaies won his fifth straight decision and Houston scored four runs in the first inning and went on to defeat visiting Los Angeles.

Deshaies, 7-2, gave up seven hits and one run in eight innings.

A throwing error and a wild pitch by Rick Honeycutt, 2-6, and an error by third baseman Phil Garner helped the Astros in the first inning.

Billy Hatcher hit a solo homer in the Houston fourth.

Cubs 6, Pirates 3
Keith Moreland homered and drove in three runs and Chicago beat Pittsburgh.

Steve Trout, 4-1, won his fourth straight decision and for the second time since coming off the disabled list Tuesday. He yielded three runs on seven hits in 5 2-3 innings.

Lee Smith pitched the ninth inning for his major league-leading 19th save.

Giants 11, Padres 2
Kelly Downs pitched four-hit ball for seven innings and Will Clark, Bob Brenly and Matt Williams hit home runs that led San Francisco over San Diego.

Sports Briefs

Lewis, James pace Diamonds

Stephanie Lewis socked three homers in two games to lead the Blue Jammers to two wins over the weekend in Division I girls softball play.

Lewis, Heather James and Erica Landsperry each homered, and Amanda Eggleston and Jessica Cobos added triples as the Blue Diamonds beat the Bad Jammers 20-11. Mandy Morrow got the win, and Brandy Gutierrez took the loss for the Jammers. Honey Belew and Brandy Scott had hits in the losing cause.

In the second game, Lewis homered twice and James added another round tripper to lead the Diamonds over the Red Raiders 15-14.

James picked up the win, and Laurel Shelton took the loss for the Raiders. Landsperry and Teri Gonzales each had triples for the winners, and Mandy Morrow, Cobos and Melissa Martinez added hits. Laurel Shelton and Larissa McCarver had hits for the Red Raiders.

Johnson wins Country Club crown

Donnie Johnson outdistanced second and third place finishers Len Feemster and Lee Sneed to win the championship flight at the Big Spring Country Club Invitational Golf Tournament this past weekend.

Brad Hicks won the first flight, and Scott Jones and Tom Fletcher finished second and third in that flight.

Fred Wickerson won the second flight. Richard Terry finished second and Richard Atkins was third. Tim McWilliams defeated second and third place finishers Sammy Simms and John Duffy to win the third flight; and Bill Grace won the fourth flight ahead of second and third place finishers Bob Hicks and Stan Haney.

Tubb takes two titles at Odessa

Big Spring tennis player Rocky Tubb won the boys 14-and-under singles and doubles championships at the Odessa Highway 80 Tennis Tournament held June 16-19 in Odessa. Tubb defeated Jeff Barry 4-6, 6-3, 7-6 to finish first in the 64-man draw.

He teamed with Jeff Patel to defeat Barry-Catchings 6-4, 6-1 to win the doubles crown.

Johnson, Phillips capture titles

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Both Scott Johnson and Kristie Phillips added two individual trophies onto their all-around titles in the conclusion of the U.S. Gymnastics championships.

Phillips, of Houston, finished no worse than third in the four individual events in which she competed. Johnson, who competed at the University of Nebraska, took first place in the parallel bars and still rings and was second in the pommel horse and floor exercise.

Okamoto blazes to LPGA win

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — Ayako Okamoto of Japan shot a tournament record 8-under-par 64 to win the LPGA's $300,000 Lady Keystone Open at the Hershey Country Club.

Okamoto, who started the day eight shots behind leader Ok-Hee Ku of South Korea, passed 20 players on her way to picking up the $42,500 first-place prize.

Player's 30-footer wins Seniors'

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Gary Player made a 30-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole to beat Bruce Crampton and win the $300,000 Northville Invitational seniors tournament.

Player began the final round with a three-stroke lead over Crampton, but a bogey-6 on the 17th hole gave him a 1-over 73. Crampton shot a 70 and they finished in a tie at 10-under-par 278.

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Tim Richmond won his second consecutive NASCAR Winston Cup stock car race, taking the checkered flag two seconds ahead of Ricky Rudd in the Budweiser 400-kilometer event at Riverside International Raceway.

Richmond, driving a Chevrolet, averaged 102.183 mph in the 95-lap event for his fourth victory over Riverside's 2.62-mile road circuit. Richmond won $36,450.

DENNIS THE MENACE

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 23, 1987

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Wind up business matters early so you can move on to other projects and get a firm and productive start. Short trips and meetings will help resolve arguments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Complete work early to get a start on new deals. Don't delay on handling correspondence and results will follow.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Progress in personal matters will be followed by new income potential. Encourage discussions with friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Confidence is gained from a new plan of action. Seek out and show appreciation for business tips from a clever friend.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Decide on personal goals in A.M. and work toward them. Friends can be helpful to you today.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Finish business matters, but make room for a hobby. Pleasing your employer will give you time for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Enlist the aid of someone who can help you realize your goals. A new friend can help your career possibilities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Keep promises to get them off your mind. Plan an important trip you've been putting off. This is a must.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more convincing in arriving at an agreement with a partner. Pleasing your mate will help domestically.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Finish a drawn-out project wisely before starting new matters. Build up the confidence of a co-worker.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan a fun time for later and work toward it, but deal with a health problem. Thought for a loved one is wise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Finish home affairs and please a family tie before starting a recreation. Watch your financial situation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't neglect mail and other communications. Complete essential reports before entertaining in the evening.

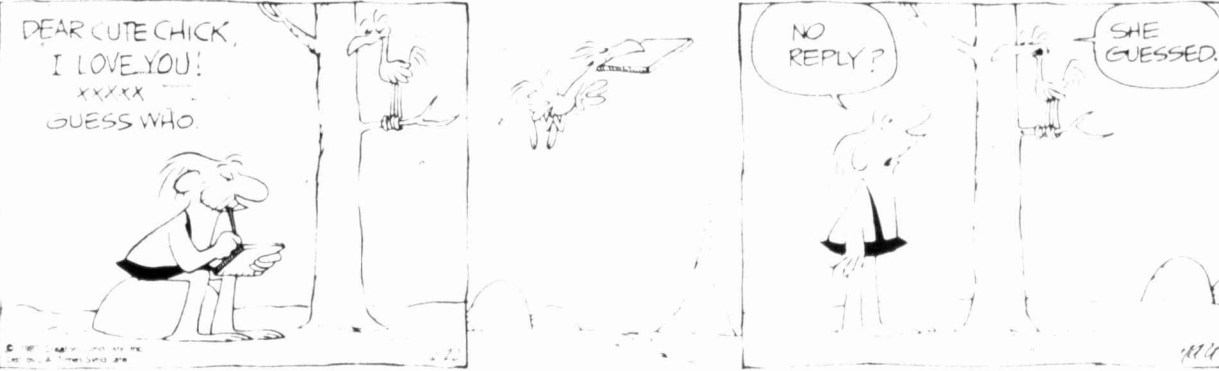

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will display early financial skill and later make a fine salesperson, writer or lecturer. Your child may be somewhat opinionated as a youth, but age will bring flexibility. A strong education in practical matters and sports involvement are indicated.

The Living Bank educating organ donors

HOUSTON (AP) — Howard Pierce was one of the lucky ones. Doctors gave the 48-year-old Texaco Inc. employee six months to live unless he received a heart transplant. Six weeks later, he had a new heart.

The quick response was made possible through The Living Bank, a national organ donor registry and referral service based in Houston.

"It's a shame so many organs go unused," Pierce says. "It's remarkable for them (family members) to think of someone during their time of grief."

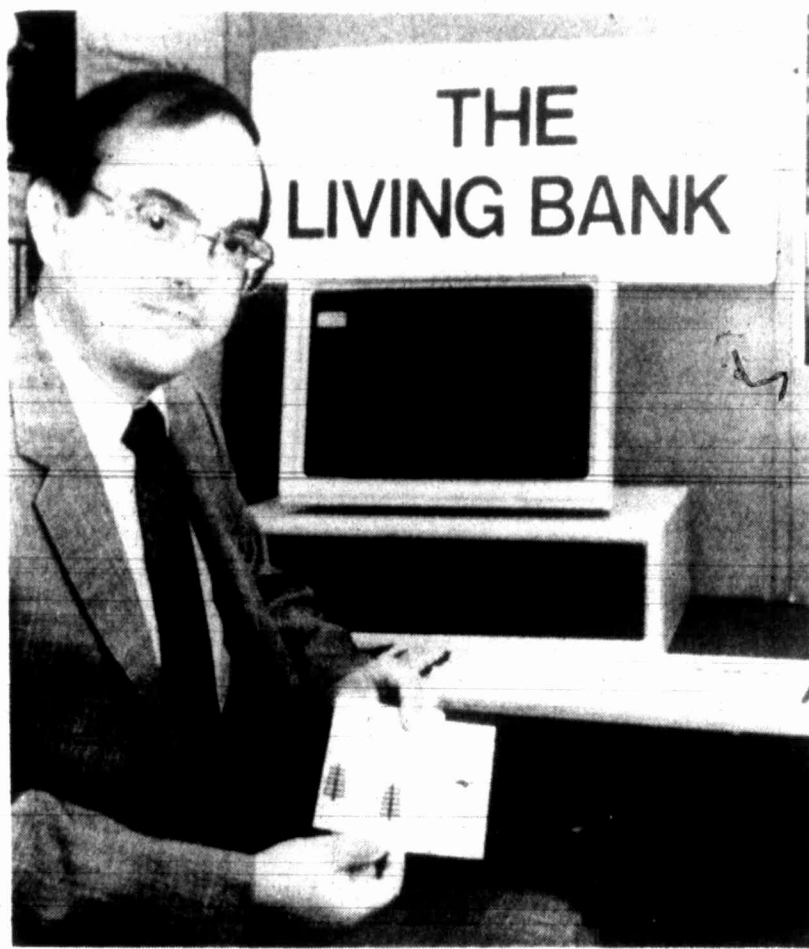

Each year, an estimated 18,000 to 22,000 potential donors will die and with those deaths comes the loss of thousands of livers, hearts, kidneys, corneas, bones and pancreas, which could save many lives, said W.P. Wear, board president for The Living Bank.

When it was founded in 1968, the The Living Bank was housed in a 40-foot trailer and had only 20 members. Now more than 200,000 people are registered, says William D. Brewster, executive director of the non-profit organization.

"The primary reason for starting The Living Bank was that they had just had heart transplants, but there was a great need for education about donors," Brewster says.

Glen Karsten had done volunteer work at the Texas Medical Center and a friend called her one day asking about organ donations. Mrs. Karsten didn't know the answer, but promised to find out.

What she discovered was a void of information about organ dona-

William D. Brewster, executive director of The Living Bank based in Houston, says when the bank was founded in 1968 the organization was housed in a 40-foot trailer and had only 20 members. Now more than 200,000 are registered.

tion since transplants were relatively new to medicine, Brewster said.

"In 1968 during all the heart transplants, I thought it was unfair to go to people when in shock and in grief and ask for their loved one's heart," Mrs. Karsten said. "One of my friends said there should be some way to plan ahead of time while you're young and healthy."

The result of Mrs. Karsten's investigation was The Living Bank. After a story about the organization appeared in "Reader's Digest" in 1969, about 32,000 letters came with questions about organ donations, she said.

"The theme to the letters was this is something I've wanted to do and didn't know how," Mrs. Karsten said.

Twenty years later, transplants are common and The Living Bank wants organ donations to be just as routine.

As Brewster describes his mission: "Make organ donations the usual, not the unusual."

The bank has provided 1,599 organs or tissues during the past three years, including 889 whole eyes and 380 corneas, Brewster said.

The Living Bank registers members by having them fill out applications designating specific organs for donation. The potential donor, the next of kin and another witness also must sign the application.

The donor gets a membership card and a sticker for their driver's license indicating they want their organs donated.

When the donor dies, the next of kin is notified to approve the donation. The Living Bank then contacts a procurement agency to handle the matter from there on.

"If the next of kin says no, then that's it," Brewster says.

The organization provides public education, handles a national registry of organ donors and is a referral service for procurement agencies.

For the past two years, the organization — which does not advertise — has received publicity from heart recipient Pierce, who frequently speaks to groups about organ donations and his experience.

"I encourage people to make their wishes known to their family because if your survivors aren't agreeable to making that donation, all the papers you sign mean nothing," he says.

Adds Brewster, "Lots of entire families are signed up. We have members as young as less than a year old and old as 100."

Before he needed a heart, Pierce was not a member of The Living Bank. Now he is, along with his wife, son-in-law and three daughters.

The organization drew the attention of President Reagan, who mentioned the bank during one of his weekly radio addresses. And Vice President George Bush and his wife, Barbara, signed organ donors cards in January.

The Living Bank, with a staff of seven plus volunteers, receives no federal money and relies solely on contributions from individuals, corporations and foundations, Brewster says.

Ten years of controversy precedes nuclear loading

BAY CITY (AP) — After more than a decade of sometimes controversial construction on the South Texas Nuclear Project, officials plan to load fuel into the first unit this week.

"I've put 10 years of my life into this and this is what we have been waiting for," said Gary Parkey, plant engineering manager. "Now we can finally start putting all our training and practice into use."

Plans for the project near Bay City were first announced in 1973, and construction began in late 1975.

The original cost was estimated at less than $1 billion, but that figure has increased to about $5.5 billion. Completion of the site was first expected to be in 1980-81.

STNP's management notified the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in late May that it expected to start loading fuel sometime between June 23 and June 30. Parkey said it could begin Tuesday.

It will take about 10 days to move 193 nuclear fuel assemblies, each worth about $400,000, from storage in a fuel-handling building into the Unit 1 reactor vessel inside the silo-like containment building, he said.

Houston Lighting & Power Co. officials said the NRC license to load fuel, expected to be issued shortly, also will permit firing up the nuclear reactor to no more than 5 percent of full power.

There will be at least a month of final checks after the fuel is loaded before the reactor is turned on for the first time, officials said.

Unit 1 then will begin producing Texas' first nuclear electricity, probably sometime in August. The 1,250-megawatt unit will go to higher levels of power until it qualifies for full commercial operation, scheduled in December.

The utility claims the plant will save $24 billion in fuel costs over its 40-year lifetime. But the process has had its problems.

"There were thoughts like, 'When is it going to get there?'" said Terry Puckett, project manager for one of the partners, Central Power & Light Co. of Corpus Christi.

In 1979, 1980 and 1981, the project was hurt by disclosures of poor construction, inadequate quality-control and organizational disarray. HL&P was fined $100,000 by the NRC for poor management, and the original contractor, Brown and Root Inc., was booted from the project.

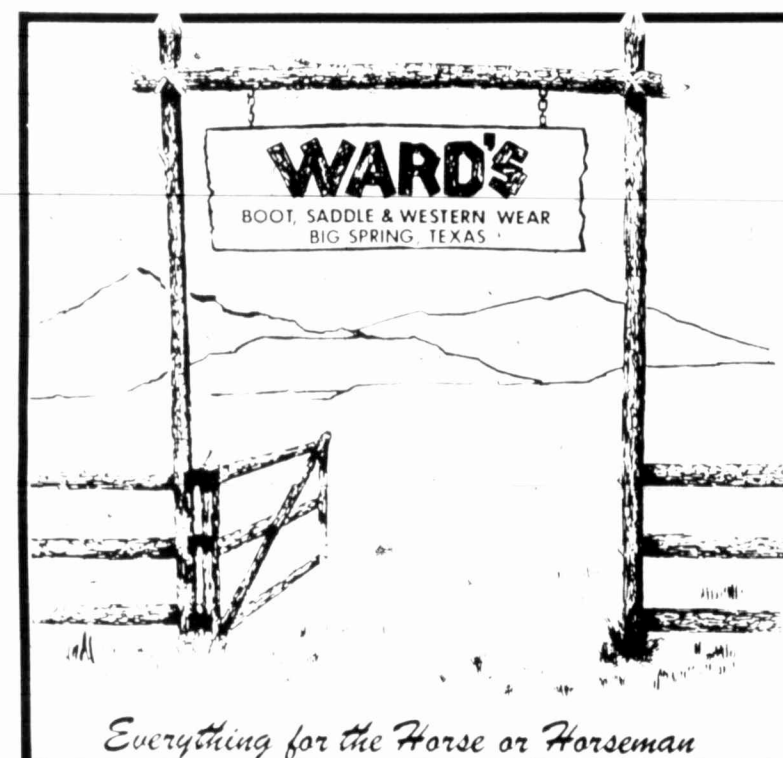

For almost a year, in 1981 and 1982, work was at a virtual standstill while HL&P brought in a new architect-engineer, Bechtel Power Corp., and builder, Ebasco Services Inc.

The partners sued Brown & Root, settling for $750 million. But now the city of Austin is suing HL&P, seeking a refund and release from the project or damages as high as $1.5 billion.

Meanwhile, the plant's Unit 2 is 76 percent complete and not scheduled for fuel load until December 1988. Jerome Goldberg, a nuclear industry veteran and vice president of nuclear operations for HL&P, said there will be considerable effort involved in bringing Unit 1 from fuel load and low-power testing up to full-power commercial operation.

"Ultimately, the record will show that this is more than just a nuclear plant that got finished," Goldberg said. "This is a first-class facility."

When they're not working for us, these — and many more electric company employees — put in overtime as volunteers. They do it because they want to help. And because they care. And that's something we think deserves a little recognition. So, to everyone who gives a helping hand, we'd like to offer our words of thanks.
