President Clinton cuts his birthday cake in the State Dining Room at the White House.

Birthday wishes

WASHINGTON — President Clinton turned 48 Friday with wishes that Congress would pass his crime bill and fortune would smile just enough at summer's end to let him go on vacation. His birthday was one of the few in White House history to be celebrated during a nationally televised news conference./10A

Trimming bill

WASHINGTON — Congressional Democrats and Republicans worked feverishly Friday to devise a slimmed-down, $30 billion crime bill that could pass the House, perhaps this weekend. President Clinton endorsed the developing bill that, in the Democratic version, would see 10 percent, across-the-board cuts from the $33 billion plan put together by House and Senate conferees in late July./12A

ODESSA — One Odessa man is dead and two others were taken to Medical Center Hospital following an early Friday morning argument that ended in gunfire. U.S. halts three-decade policy for Cubans

■ Coast Guard, Navy stop refugees at sea, take them to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton abruptly halted the nation's three-decade open-door policy for Cuban refugees Friday, declaring Fidel Castro will not be allowed "to export his political and economic problems to the United States."

Alarmed by a growing exodus of Cubans to south Florida in rickety boats, Clinton ordered the Coast Guard — backed up by the Navy — to interdict the refugees at sea and take them to the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. From there, the administration hopes to quickly relocate them to other countries in the region.

Refugees who make it to U.S. shores will be detained and have their cases reviewed for eligibility to remain.

The administration refused to say how long the refugees would be held or what their eventual fate would be.

Police to seek out jurors who didn't respond

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

The number of Midlanders failing to respond to summonses for jury duty is not as large as it first appeared, but the few who did not appear may find themselves in court facing contempt of court charges.

Although only 161 potential jurors — out of the 400 who received jury summonses — reported to the Midland County Courthouse as ordered on Wednesday, most of the eligible jurors reported at least by the second day of jury selection, said District Judge Nathan White of Plano.

White is presiding in the case of the state of Texas vs. Michael Blair, 23, who is accused of kidnapping and killing 7-year-old Ashley Nicole Estell of Dallas.

Because of publicity in the Dallas area, the capital-murder trial was moved to Midland.

"The large number called is because the Legislature has provided that jury lists be made up of the rolls of registered voters and licensed drivers," White said.

"Over a period of time, many have moved from the county. In addition, some may not be U.S. citizens, some may have felony convictions. Many are over 65 . . .

"Therefore, many of the 400 advised the district clerk of their ineligibility or exempt status and were not required to

Heads up, channel surfers, 27 new series to hit TV screens

By Lynn Elber
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Excitement is rising as the fall TV season approaches, but remember — there's more in store than O.J. Simpson murder trial coverage and Ken Burns' "Baseball" epic on PBS.

While those are the obvious bets for gripping television, ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox Broadcasting Co. would appreciate a little attention for their 95 new and returning prime-time series.

None of the debut shows has evoked the naked anticipation of last season's "NYPD Blue," which might mean that the networks are feeling complacent after a fairly good 1993-94 outing.

The success rate for new series was up from the year before, with 13 shows returning, compared to seven fall 1992 survivors, according to Betsy Frank of Saatchi & Saatchi Ad-

Bush may be open to no pass, no play changes

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush on Friday suggested a public discussion over whether the no pass, no play rule is leading to an increase in gang membership.

Bush, who is challenging Democratic Gov. Ann Richards, said he supports no pass, no play. But he said he's open to potential changes if it turns out the regulation causes other problems.

"I've endorsed it (no pass, no play) and like the concept of accountability," Bush said. "But if it's led to a rise in gangs, for example, we ought to rethink the

Crowds pack city's new Wal-Mart Supercenter for grand opening

By Melia McEwen and Myra Lee Salcedo

Wal-Mart Supercenter's grand opening began with an enthusiastic crowd of employees gathering at an 8 a.m. celebration Friday and the enthusiasm never let up all day.

"All these people. It's been busy, busy, busy. It's beyond belief," said one employee as she ran down an aisle trying to find a product for a customer.

By 7 p.m., cars were backed up to the new intersection of Midland Drive and Briarwood Avenue. Security guards directed traffic as cars inched into the parking lot. Midland police officers also arrived later to help direct traffic, and had helped off and on all day.

A massive orange and yellow banner near the main entrance blared "Grand Opening."

"It's Friday night and I've got the whole family here," said Midlander "Bo" Waverly. "This place is big. I've been here 40 minutes and we haven't

Many Americans to eye Mexico's historic elections on Sunday

■ Hundreds of foreigners — mostly Americans — have been accredited to monitor presidential vote in powerful sign of increasingly close ties between U.S., Mexico.

By John Rice
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — Thousands of Mexicans passing through polling places on Sunday will see something almost unthinkable: a gringo watching them vote.

Hundreds of foreigners — mostly Americans — have been accredited to monitor the secret balloting for president in a powerful sign of the increasingly close ties between the United States and Mexico.

Never before has proudly nationalistic Mexico allowed foreigners to observe its elections.

But rarely has foreign approval been more important to Mexico. And never has a Mexican election meant more to the United States.

The North American Free Trade Agreement that took effect Jan. 1 as part of a broad free-market reform in Mexico has made its economic policies increasingly important north of the border.

"These elections will be a plebescite on economic reform and the future of economic reform," said Delal Baer, a Mexico specialist for the Center for Strategic and International Studies, an independent thinktank in Washington.

They will also be a test of President Carlos Salinas de Gortari's promise to hold the cleanest election in Mexican history. There are fears that election fraud — a tradition in Mexico — this time around could spur post-election violence and lead to a resumption of a peasant rebellion in the south.

As the American and Mexican economies become more intertwined, each country's policies affect the creation and loss of jobs in the other.

Foreign investment in Mexico has almost tripled in the past six years, and most of it comes from the United States. Telefonos de Mexico is one of the most active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange.

In May, Mexico passed Japan to become the second-largest market for U.S. products; Canada remains in first place. Mexico purchased $350 million more from the United States than it sold there that month.

Even more important is the river of migrants that has flowed back and forth across the U.S.-Mexico border throughout the century, changing the character of both nations.

Salinas says Mexico's free market policies will eventually create jobs at home. Initially, however, some Mexican businesses may fail as competition heats up, forcing more Mexicans to seek jobs north of the border.

■ Related story/8A

Gov. Lawton Chiles of Florida declared a state emergency this week as the number of Cuban refugees reached 500 a day. But U.S. border states see an average of 2,000 or more Mexican migrants crossing the border illegally daily, according to a study by the College of the Northern Border in Tijuana, Mexico.

Most migrants return home. But an estimated 130,000 to 150,000 Mexicans stayed in the north last year, a number surpassing the 1980 Mariel boatlift from Cuba and seven times greater than the total number of Cuban boat refugees to arrive in the United States in the past decade.

Despite a sometimes bitter debate over free trade here, all three leading presidential candidates endorse NAFTA, though Cuauhtemoc Cardenas of the Democratic Revolution Party has said he would like to see some changes.

The election also follows the first serious Mexican rebellion since the 1930s, a revolt by Mayan peasants in the southern state of Chiapas on Jan. 1, the day NAFTA took effect.

While the rebellion is on hold under a cease-fire, the rebels have said they might renew their struggle for democracy, land rights and other issues if the election is not clean.

That violence, or terrorist acts by rebel sympathizers elsewhere, could create instability, slowing investment.

German: Top Russians may aid atomic smugglers

■ Nuclear-smuggling network may involve some Russian officials, German intelligence chief says.

Associated Press

BONN, Germany — German police fear some Russian officials are involved in the smuggling of nuclear material, a senior aide to Chancellor Helmut Kohl said Friday.

Bernd Schmidbauer, Kohl's intelligence coordinator, made the comment in discussing why police did not notify their Russian counterparts of a sting designed to collar a suspected nuclear smuggler.

"This isn't an accusation, but rather the point that must be discussed in Moscow — working together," he said.

Schmidbauer was to fly to Moscow today with Germany's top intelligence chiefs and nuclear scientists in an effort to coordinate actions against nuclear smuggling.

Officials in Moscow have denied that weapons-grade nuclear materials have been spirited out of Russia.

In an interivew with ARD television, Schmidbauer was asked about Russian officials' charges that Germany acted irresponsibly by failing to inform them about a smuggler who allegedly boarded a Lufthansa plane in Moscow. The suspect allegedly had a suitcase with at least 10.5 ounces of highly radioactive plutonium.

The suitcase was confiscated and its owner, a Colombian businessman, arrested upon arrival in Munich on Aug. 10. It was the biggest of a string of plutonium-smuggling cases that have shaken Germany this summer.

German police did not act until the plutonium arrived in Munich "because certain offices in Moscow could have been involved, and then the arrest wouldn't have been possible and the operation wouldn't have succeeded," Schmidbauer said.

German officials have said the weapons-grade plutonium came from a Russian military plant.

A partial analysis of the material points to Russia as the source but without absolute certainty, said Wilhelm Gmelin, director of safeguards at Euratom, the European nuclear regulatory agency.

"The fingerprinting is still going on," he said in a telephone interview from his Luxembourg office.

The plutonium, which as 87.2 percent pure, could have come from a variety of Russian factories with military or civilian uses, Gmelin said. The material was powder rather than the metal usually used in making warheads. It definitely did not come from a plant in western Europe, he said.

A liberal opposition leader in Germany demanded the government clarify the role of undercover agents after news reports revealed the extent to which police agents posing as buyers are teasing radioactive material out of Russia.

Freimut Duve of the Social Democrats suggested an artificial plutonium market was being fostered to create a scare that would lead to a conservative vote in the Oct. 16 federal elections.

WEATHER WATCH

Today, 20 percent chance of rain

Staff Report

Midlanders anticipating fall's nip in the air will have to wait a little longer. It's still hot, and Friday's high temperature of 103 equaled the record high for that date, set in 1977. The good news is that a chance for rain is to increase over the weekend from 20 percent today to 30 percent on Sunday, and cloudy weather may bring lower temperatures — below 100.

Today's forecast is partly cloudy with a high in the upper 90s, a 20 percent chance of thundershowers and winds southeast 5-15 mph, changing to east in the afternoon, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight is expected to be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of rain and a low in the upper 60s, the NWS said.

Sunday's forecast is mostly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a high in the lower 90s.

Yesterday's high of 103 matched the record high of 103 set in 1977. The record low for today's date is 58, set in 1940.

STATE

Sunny skies, some brisk winds and temperatures approaching or topping the century mark dominated Texas weather Friday.

A 103-degree reading topped Lubbock's previous record for the date — 102 degrees in 1924 — and El Paso's former daily high of 101 degrees, set in 1969 and previous years.

Friday also was the 55th day of 100-degree-plus heat in El Paso, tying a record set in the summer of 1980.

It was hot and humid in South Texas. Afternoon temperatures were in the 90s and reached 99 at Junction, but high humidity made it feel hotter than 100 degrees across most of the region. The heat index was 109 at Corpus Christi.

Today's forecast called for sunny, hot and humid conditions in the region, with highs in the 90s to near 100 inland and near 90 along the coast.

Many cities across North Texas hit or passed the 100-degree mark, including the Dallas-Fort Worth area, Mineral Wells, Waco and Wichita Falls. Heat index values ranged from 100 to 110 degrees.

NATION

Severe thunderstorms with hail and high winds hit the Plains states Friday while a string of summer storms dumped heavy rain across Florida and the central United States.

In Nebraska, storms dumped more than 2 inches of rain in parts of the state. High winds overturned a tractor-trailer near Grand Island, damaged the courthouse in Geneva and tore up the roof of a mobile home in Alda. There were no reports of injuries.

A tornado watch was in effect for parts of Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa as a cold front to the north spun off thunderstorms along its southern front.

Thunderstorms along the unstable edge dropped nickel- to golf ball-size hail in parts of Wisconsin and Iowa.

Late night and early morning storms with wind gusts up to 77 mph downed trees and power lines near Hastings, Neb.

CROWD: Supercenter holds grand opening

(From 1A)

been down every aisle yet."

And big it is.

The supercenter, located at 4517 N. Midland Drive, is 204,482 square feet — 118,000 square feet larger than the original Wal-Mart — and employs 550 people — 240 additional employees.

"Next time I come I'm bringing a compass," Midlander Ed Rowland said joking.

Waverly allowed that while it was "taking forever to check out the whole store," he and his two children idled at least 15 minutes at the live lobster tank in the seafood section.

Midlander Edna Vaughn said she was "thrilled to pieces" to have the supercenter in Midland.

"People who have lived in Midland a long time appreciate the new businesses. I haven't seen so many people milling about since Outback Steakhouse opened a few weeks ago," she said, noting that there still was a crowd waiting to get into the restaurant Friday night.

Wal-Mart took on a festive air Friday evening as children wore helium-filled balloons tied to their wrists and people greeted each other as they leisurely perused the store.

As customers shopped, employees darted about speaking into walkie talkies.

"It's been very busy," said support team manager Julian Carrillo, who worked a split shift Friday. He said the last week the former site of Wal-Mart — on Loop 250 — was open, the store had huge crowds of shoppers.

"We expected it to be busy and we don't think it will really let up until after Christmas," Carrillo said.

Tom Van Vranken, director of the Midland store, said that between 70 and 80 percent of Wal-Mart's employees are full time.

The old store was closed at 10 p.m. Thursday to complete the move to the new store.

According to Van Vranken, the supercenter is the newest prototype developed by Wal-Mart. In addition to the general merchandise offered by the first Wal-Mart, the new store offers a grocery store complete with meat counter, bakery, produce, frozen foods and dairy.

Also contained in the store is a McDonald's — owned by John and Jane Hardell, who also own the McDonald's at Midkiff Road and Loop 250.

The supercenter also boasts a garden center, pharmacy, one-hour photo lab, optometrist and vision center, portrait studio, dry cleaners, hair-care salon, video rental and tire and lube express.

The Wal-Mart was built because of Midland's healthy economy and because Midlanders requested it, according to Van Vranken.

"The customers asked for larger space and wider aisles," he said. "And after they saw the other Wal-Marts, they requested a supercenter."

Mayor Bobby Burns said "Midland should be proud of this supercenter. It seems the face of Midland is changing. We're seeing the retail environment in Midland change.

"The retail and restaurant markets in Midland are going to be different . . ."

While Burns and employees and shoppers may have looked to the supercenter's opening with anticipation, small locally owned retailers may have viewed it with apprehension.

But Karl Painter, director of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin's Small Business Development Center, said small business owners need not fear Wal-Mart or any other mass marketer coming into the area.

"Overall, I think the supercenter is going to be very beneficial for the community," he said.

He said that many small businesses have coexisted with the supercenter in Odessa.

"It will bring in people from the rural areas to do additional shopping in the Permian Basin and in Midland. It will be a very nice and effective draw for people coming into Midland from rural areas and this can translate into excellent dollars for Midland merchants."

Van Vranken is quick to point out that Wal-Mart has had a $4.4 billion impact on the Texas economy alone, buying that much in merchandise from 1,800 Texas-based vendors. The Midland store, for example, buys plush toys and beanbags made by Midland-based American Toy Co.

While cautioning that small stores that try to compete head-to-head with Wal-Mart or any other mass marketer will likely lose, Painter said there are techniques that small businesses can use to survive and even thrive, including offering high quality service. Painter said the customer will remember good service and it likely will bring him back.

Another secret is effective advertising, which can draw rural customers to small retailers, Painter said.

"If small businesses are advertising properly and positioning themselves properly, when the rural customers come in to shop at Wal-Mart, you know they'll also put the other stores on their list.

"People from the rural markets come in for an entire Saturday to do all their shopping, and they'll visit several stores."

Painter concluded that "the Midland-Odessa market definitely has sufficient customers to support both mass marketers and small retailers.

"Odessans saw that when their supercenter opened to throngs of people. Yes, there were some small businesses that didn't sufficiently recognize the challenges and were hurt, but those that altered their techniques and improved their service are thriving in Odessa," he said.

"I see, quite frankly, long-term, how Wal-Mart coming to town can only help Midland because it will attract rural shoppers."

The Midland supercenter was one of 13 opened Friday and is one of 88 in the United States and 28 in Texas. The company plans to have 100 open by the end of the year and an additional 100 open next year.

"We like this Wal-Mart. It's got lots of stuff. Now we are just waiting for Wendy's (scheduled to be located near Wal-Mart) to get built," said one woman who asked not to be identified. "My husband works for a grocery store in Midland, so I better not say I was here," she said, laughing.

One elderly gentleman, pushing a full shopping cart, said, "All they need now is shuttle buses to get you back to your car."

The Small Business Development Center has planned a seminar on Aug. 31 on effective advertising and one on Sept. 27 to teach small businesses how to successfully coexist with the large chains.

position."

Bush has proposed an education reform plan in which school districts could become "home rule" entities and choose whether to follow numerous state regulations, including the no pass, no play rule.

The schools still would have to meet student performance and accountability standards.

"I don't mind school districts saying, 'Wait a minute, let's reconsider, let's think about whether or not the gang problem has arisen as a result of not enough teamwork available to them through sports, for example.' That would be a good and healthy debate," said Bush, who is managing general partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team.

"What's beginning to concern me is that gangs are beginning to rival the old team sports . . . and there needs to be a good healthy public debate to determine whether or not team sports may be able to compete with gangs," he said.

Richards has said she supports the no pass, no play rule, which was part of a 1984 education reform package. The rule prohibits failing students from participating in sports or other extracurricular activities.

There have been unsuccessful attempts in the Legislature to roll back the rule.

"I think no pass, no play serves the purpose of focusing the kids where the focus ought to be, that is toward preparing themselves for good jobs," Richards said during a stop in El Paso. "I think that sports is a good thing and I like to encourage kids to participate in sports, but I think you earn that right."

Bush spoke to reporters after visiting a fourth-grade class, where one youngster asked whether he and Richards are friends.

"Is she my friend? Yeah. I don't know her that well. I respect her as a person. I'm not going to call her silly names. But I am going to, when I think she's been wrong, I'm going to point out where she's wrong. And I'm going to treat her with respect," Bush told the child.

REFUGEES: Clinton puts halt to open-door policy

(From 1A)

"We will address those issues down the line," Attorney General Janet Reno said.

The sudden about-face in policy was intended to prevent a recurrence of the 1980 Mariel boatlift that brought 125,000 Cubans to America, overwhelming schools, law enforcement and social service agencies and deepening Jimmy Carter's political problems.

Florida Gov. Lawton Chiles, a Democrat who faces a tough reelection battle in November, welcomed Clinton's move.

But Florida's two senators — Democrat Bob Graham and Republican Connie Mack — said Clinton was too vague and did not address what they see as the primary problem — Castro. "The policy seems to be punish the rafters as opposed to punishing Fidel," Mack said.

Clinton, at an East Room news conference, said Americans "do not want to see another Mariel boatlift. They do not want to see Cuba dictate our immigration policy. They do not want to see Mr. Castro able to export his political and economic problems to the United States."

House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich denounced Clinton's action. Gingrich charged the administration had lost its "moral compass" by changing the policy that, since 1966, has routinely allowed Cubans into the United States after brief interviews with immigration officials.

There also were cries of betrayal in Miami, home of the largest Cuban population outside of Havana.

"These people have been through hell in the ocean and putting up with Castro," said Jack Canalejo, waiting with his wife for two cousins who left Cuba on a raft Wednesday. "Now they have put up with all this and they can't even see their family."

The number of Cubans risking the dangerous 90-mile crossing of the Florida Straits to Key West has surged since Aug. 5, when Castro threatened another Mariel after the worst rioting of his 35-year rule.

More than 2,700 Cuban refugees have been rescued in the straits this month. Cutters picked up 547 Cubans on Wednesday, the biggest single day since the 1980 exodus.

Agency provides loans for farmers

Staff Report

Farmers in Martin County are eligible to apply for low-interest loans to help recover from damages and losses caused by drought that has occurred since August of 1993, federal officials said.

The funding is provided by the Farmers Home Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Specifically, officials said, the low-interest loans are available to those who cannot obtain credit through normal channels.

In addition to Martin County, seven other counties were named as "contiguous counties," including Midland, Andrews, Borden, Dawson, Gaines, Glasscock and Howard.

The FmHA is charged with providing aid to the farmers and ranchers in order to assist their economic recovery from natural disasters.

Application information may be obtained through local FmHA county offices or by writing the Farmers Home Administration, Washington D.C., 20250.

attend," he said.

Many of those summoned — including those over 65 or otherwise exempt — have made contact with the district clerk's office by sending in a mailed questionnaire listing reasons for exemption or disqualification.

"The vast majority of those summoned have responded or appeared, even though it might have created hardship in their own lives," he said.

For those who failed to respond, however, writs of attachment are being issued, ordering officers with the Midland County Sheriff's Department to seek out those citizens and bring them before the judge.

The number of non-respondents may only be 25 or 30, and some of these may have moved and not received their summonses.

White wanted to clarify to Midland residents that none of those who have responded need to worry about being brought in for contempt of court.

But jury duty is an important factor of the U.S. justice system and citizens must answer the call to this duty, he said.

"During peace time, jury service is the only service required of citizens in this free country," White said.

Judge John Hyde of the 238th District Court said ordering writs of attachment is very rare. "I don't recall it ever happening here," he said.

This rarity, however, mirrors the rarity of capital murder cases, which require strict adherence to the rules, Hyde explained.

"I understand that he's got to do it," Hyde said.

"In a capital case, when the stakes are so high, the rules have got to be adhered to strictly," and each potential juror must be accounted for in some manner, he said.

There are usually some no-shows in other criminal trials in Midland, but usually not to the extent of this change-of-venue trial.

Hyde and White agreed that this problem has gotten worse since jury lists began including lists of licensed drivers.

POLICE REPORTS

Possession

Two Odessa men are being held in the Midland County Jail after federal warrants were issued for their arrests Friday.

Pablo Cardenas Guzman, 33, of 1101 N. Tom Green St., and Efren Modesto Campolla, 28, of 3715 Bowie St., were arrested for possession of a controlled substance with attempt to distribute within 1,000 feet of a school, according to Commander Tom Finley of the Permian Basin Drug Task Force.

Both suspects are being held without bond pending a detention hearing next week, Finley said.

Argument ends in gunfire, kills one

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

ODESSA — One Odessa man is dead and two others were taken to Medical Center Hospital following an early Friday morning argument that ended in gunfire.

Steve Green, 19, died from a gunshot wound that entered his left arm, penetrated his chest cavity and lodged in his spinal cord, according to autopsy reports.

Dr. A. Johnson of MCH pronounced Green dead at 6:44 a.m.

Odessa police officers responded at 4 a.m. to a call of shots being fired in the 300 block of Fitch Street, located in south Odessa.

Officers found two gunshot victims — Green and Thomas Earl Henderson, 50 — at Tom's Cadillac Club, 328 Fitch St., according to a police report.

Both victims were transported to MCH.

A third victim, Calvin Calicutt, 20, was taken to the hospital in a private vehicle.

According to investigators, two groups of individuals got into an argument in the 300 block of Fitch Street. A shotgun was fired twice; Calicutt was hit in the upper front torso and Henderson was hit in the upper back torso, police said.

In response, a medium claiber handgun was fired and struck Green in the upper left arm, before the bullet penetrated his chest cavity and lodged in his spinal cord, police said.

Calicutt and Henderson were reported in stable condition late Friday night.

Investigators retrieved a semi-automatic pistol, which will be sent to the Crime Lab in Austin to determine if it was the weapon used to kill Green.

Numerous witnesses and a suspect in the shooting were questioned late Friday night.

A Metro Homicide Unit investigator went to Lubbock Friday afternoon for Green's autopsy.

Dr. Jerry D. Spencer, chief medical examiner for Lubbock County, retrieved a medium caliber bullet during the autopsy.

"It's been turned over to homicide detectives for lab analysis," said Detective Sgt. Snow Robertson. He said Spencer determined the manner of death to be homicide and the cause of death to be a gunshot wound to the chest.

No charges had been filed as of press time.

"However, all information from this investigation will be presented to an Ector County grand jury at a later date," Robertson said.

Nigerian junta arrests leaders of opposition

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Pursuing its crackdown on critics, the military regime arrested two prominent opponents Friday, including a renowned politician who started Nigeria on the road to independence four decades ago.

There were no signs of weakening in a pro-democracy strike by oil workers that has crippled Nigeria's only significant source of foreign revenue. Gen. Sani Abacha, the junta leader, is trying to douse the movement by closing newspapers, jailing opponents and letting troops shoot at protesters.

Police entered the Lagos Sheraton Hotel during the afternoon and arrested Anthony Enahoro and Cornelius Adebayo, both leaders of the National Democratic Coalition opposition group.

Enahoro is famous for being the member of parliament who introduced a motion seeking Nigeria's independence from Britain in 1956. It began a process that led to independence four years later and is enshrined as a key moment in the history of this nation of 90 million people.

Adebayo governed Kwara state during the nation's last civilian government, which was toppled by the military in 1983.

Since independence, the oil-rich nation has tried but failed to establish stable civilian governments. Each experiment in democracy has ended abruptly with a coup by the military, which has dominated post-colonial history with a string of corrupt and inept regimes.

The latest crisis began after the military voided the results of the June 1993 presidential election that was to end a decade of military rule. The apparent winner, businessman Moshood K.O. Abiola, was jailed after he declared himself president last June to mark the first anniversary of the election.

The nation's oil workers went on strike July 4 demanding that Abiola be installed as president.

On Wednesday, Abacha declared he was firing the oil unions' leaders, but the officials went underground and there have been no signs the devastating strike will end soon.

DEATHS

Clara Turner

Graveside services for former Midlander Clara Hann Phinizy Butcher Turner, 89, of Phoenix, are to be at 3 p.m. Sunday at Resthaven Memorial Park with the Rev. Stockton Williams of Trinity Episcopal Church officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Turner died Thursday in Phoenix.

She was born Jan. 1, 1905 in Denton. She was reared and educated in Roswell, N.M.

In 1937, she married Cary Preston Butcher of Midland.

She lived in Midland for 30 years.

She was preceded in death by Butcher in 1950.

She married J.J. "Bill" Turner in 1967 and moved to Phoenix.

While in Midland, she was an active member of Trinity Episcopal Church and was an avid bridge player.

Survivors include her husband, Bill Turner of Phoenix; one son, Preston Butcher of Menlo Park, Calif.; two daughters Clara Poole of Bellevue, Wash., and Patricia Richardson of Roswell; one brother, John Allen Phinizy of Temple; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to the charity of one's choice.

Joe Faglie

GATESVILLE — Funeral services for Joe Dale Faglie, 45, of Midland have been set for 2 p.m. today at Live Oak Baptist Church with the Rev. Jack Isbell officiating. Burial will follow at the Smith Cemetery under the direction of Scott's Funeral Home in Gatesville.

Faglie died Tuesday in Midland.

He was born July 24, 1949, in Ballinger.

He served 20 years in the U.S. Army and he served in Vietnam.

He married Christine Ouell in 1975.

The couple lived in San Antonio, Gatesville and Killeen before moving to Midland in 1991.

Faglie was a member of Live Oak Baptist Church.

He was preceded in death by his father, Alvin A. Faglie.

Survivors include his wife, Christine Faglie of Midland; his daughter, Dawn O. Faglie of Midland; his son, Allen Dale Faglie of Midland; his brothers, Johnny R. Faglie of Houston, and Martin Faglie and Alvin A. Faglie, both of Midland; his mother and stepfather, Betty and Llyn Spencer of Gatesville.

Pallbearers are to be members of the armed forces.

Bessie Simpson

Graveside services for Bessie Mae Simpson, 73, are to to be at 10 a.m. today at Fairview Cemetery with the Rev. Hadley Edwards officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Baker Jackson Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday at a local hospital.

Survivors include a niece, Twanda Brown of Childress.

FALL: Networks add 27 shows to season lineup

(From 1A)

vertising. And five of last season's top 20 programs were new shows, including ABC's "NYPD Blue."

The most apt characterization is "If it ain't broke, don't fix it," says Frank, senior vice president at the New York-based ad agency.

Last season represents "a tough act to follow. And, perhaps not surprisingly, the networks have chosen to follow it very carefully, with more stability and more conservatism than one would hope," she said.

Sixty-six established programs will be back, with only 15 percent of these moving to new time slots. Twenty-seven new series are on the schedule, compared to last fall's 38.

The number of new and returning comedies is 41, representing 25 percent of total programming. That's down from last fall's 29 percent, although sitcoms still tend to lead the ratings pack.

Dramas, which enjoyed something of a renaissance last season, continue to gain strength. New and veteran hour-long dramas represent nearly 40 percent of the fall schedule.

Newsmagazine shows — likely to turn into Simpson showcases come his Sept. 19 trial in connection with the murders of his ex-wife and a friend — have remained steady at nine.

Tracking this year's fall debuts will be easier. The networks relied heavily last year on "stunting," tricks such as debuting shows in special time slots to attract viewers. There's less sleight-of-hand this season.

Speaking of magic, the networks may be wishing they could make "Baseball" disappear. The nine-part documentary, beginning Sept. 18 on PBS, could prove a serious distraction as the networks launch their new schedules.

Here's a guide to the new series debuting on the four major networks:

CBS, last season's No. 1 network, is introducing seven new series. The mix of four dramas and three comedies continues the network's emphasis on hour-long shows; less than 20 percent of its schedule is devoted to comedy, less than any other network.

"The Boys Are Back" is first out of the CBS gate with a preview 8 p.m. EDT Sunday, Sept. 11. The sitcom airs in its regular 8 p.m. EDT Wednesday time slot starting Sept. 14. Hal Linden and Suzanne Pleshette star as empty-nesters who find their three sons winging back home for shelter.

A Dudley Moore comedy and an otherwordly drama also bow Sept. 14.

Moore is left to the tender care of his three daughters when his wife leaves him for his best friend in "Daddy's Girls," which airs at 8:30 p.m. EDT Wednesdays. Roma Downey stars as an angelic do-gooder and Della Reese as the dispatcher who provides her earthly assignments in "Touched by an Angel," airing at 9 p.m. EDT.

On Friday, Sept. 16, the police drama "Under Suspicion" debuts at 9 p.m. EDT. Karen Sillas stars as Rose Phillips, a squad room's lone female detective.

"Chicago Hope," about heroic doctors Mandy Patinkin, Adam Arkin and E.G. Marshall in a high-pressure hospital, previews at 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18. It moves to its regular time slot — opposite NBC's medical drama "E.R." — Thursday, Sept. 22, at 10 p.m. EDT.

"Due South," the misalliance of a Royal Canadian Mountie and a slick Chicago policeman, premieres at 8 p.m. EDT Thursday, Sept. 22. Paul Gross and David Marciano star.

"The Five Mrs. Buchanans," an in-law comedy featuring Eileen Heckart and Judith Ivey, bows at 9 p.m. EDT Saturday, Sept. 24.

ABC is offering six freshman series, including two dramas and four comedies. Five of the shows are centered on young families, the target audience for the No. 2 network, which is close behind CBS.

"My So-Called Life," a drama about adolescent angst from "thirtysomething" creators Ed Zwick and Marshall Herskovitz, debuts at 8 p.m. EDT Thursday, Aug. 25. Claire Danes, Bess Armstrong and Tom Irwin star.

"On Our Own," which features six real-life siblings as orphans trying to avoid being farmed out to foster homes, debuts at 7:30 p.m. EDT Sunday, Sept. 11. The Smolletts, billed by ABC as "the Jacksons of the '90s," star; Ralph Harris plays eldest brother Josh.

"Blue Skies," about two friends trying to launch an L.L. Bean-like catalogue company, bows at 8:30 p.m. EDT Monday, Sept. 12. Corey Parker and Matt Roth are the pals. Julia Campbell makes it a threesome.

Chad Everett ("Medical Center") returns to series TV in "McKenna," premiering at 9 p.m. EDT Thursday, Sept. 15. Everett plays the patriarch of a clan that operates a Pacific Northwest wilderness expedition business.

"Me & the Boys," about a widower raising three sons with the help of his mother-in-law, debuts 8:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday, Sept. 20. Steve Harvey and Madge Sinclair star in the series created by Bob Myer, former "Roseanne" head writer.

A special preview of "All American Girl," a new, half-hour comedy series with comedian Margaret Cho, airs 9:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday, Sept. 14. The series about a young Korean-American living with her tradition-minded family settles into its regular time the following week, on Wednesday, Sept. 21, at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

Third-place NBC is introducing eight new series, including a quartet of comedies and three dramas.

NBC's first new series to bow is "E.R.," a hospital emergency room drama starring Anthony Edwards, Sherry Stringfield (of "NYPD Blue") and George Clooney. "E.R." debuts with a two-hour preview 9 p.m. EDT Monday, Sept. 19, then heads for its regular 10 p.m. Thursday slot on Sept. 22.

"The Martin Short Show," starring the comedian as a family man who also happens to star in a prime-time TV comedy, debuts at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 20. Catherine Hicks costars as Short's wife.

"The Cosby Mysteries," starring Bill Cosby as retired New York police criminologist Guy Hawks, begins at 8 p.m. EDT on Wednesday, Sept. 21, followed by a new hour of "Dateline NBC" at 9 p.m. EDT.

A pair of comedies, "Friends" and "Madman of the People," debut Thursday, Sept. 22. "Friends," an ensemble show about the lives of six twentysomething New Yorkers, airs at 8:30 p.m. EDT.

"Madman of the People," starring Dabney Coleman as a magazine columnist who finds himself working for his daughter (Cindy Gibb), debuts at 9:30 p.m. EDT in a cushy spot following the popular "Seinfeld."

"Sweet Justice," a legal drama starring Melissa Gilbert and Cicely Tyson as unlikely partners in a Southern law firm, premieres 9 p.m. EDT Saturday, Sept. 24.

Russian troops repulse force of Muslim invaders

DUSHANBE, Tajikistan (AP) — Some 250 Muslim militants stormed across the border from Afghanistan and attacked Russian troops in the biggest border clash this year in Tajikistan's civil war, officials said Friday.

The Russian soldiers drove back the rebels after five hours of fierce fighting that left seven Russians and about 50 militants dead, Russia's Foreign Ministry said in Moscow. Fourteen Russian troops were wounded.,

Russian forces supporting the government in the former Soviet republic will continue to take "decisive action," the ministry said.

The Tajik government defeated a loose coalition of pro-democratic forces and Islamic fundamentalists in a bloody civil war in 1992 that claimed at least 20,000 lives. Muslim rebels hoping to topple the pro-communist government periodically cross the border into Tajikistan from bases in Afghanistan.

Russian troops were sent to Tajikistan last year to stop what Moscow calls a flood of drugs, weapons and Islamic fundamentalism.

The Central Asian nation was relatively calm through the first part of this year, but rebels recently stepped up their hit-and-run attacks.

In the latest battle, the rebels heavily shelled the Russian border guards overnight from outposts in neighboring Afghanistan, then launched a predawn attack across the border, said Valentin Malyutin, a spokesman for Russia's border guards in Moscow.

The Russians were supported by artillery barrages and attacks from Russian Su-27 fighter-bombers, he said. Other reinforcements were being sent to the border.

Soldiers in one outpost repulsed 15 attacks overnight, Col. Vladimir Novikov, acting commander of Russia's border guards in Tajikistan, told the ITAR-Tass news agency.

Russia on Friday demanded the Afghan government take urgent steps to stop attacks from its side of the border. Afghanistan has denied supporting the Tajik rebels, but concedes it has little control over the rugged frontier region.

Officials said Friday's attack apparently was staged by Kori Hamidullo, a Tajik rebel commander who headed last year's attack on the same border outpost. In that attack, 25 Russian soldiers were killed.

Hardliners vow to restore old Soviet empire

MOSCOW (AP) — The third anniversary of the coup that led to the Soviet Union's collapse passed with little fanfare Friday, with no large celebrations among Russians preoccupied by the turmoil in their country.

Hard-liners swore to fight to the end to restore the old Soviet empire, and former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev announced plans to form a new democratic opposition movement. But few seemed to care.

The anniversary was even relegated to the inside pages of some of the capital's daily newspapers, displaced by stories on more immediate concerns: rising poverty, smuggled plutonium, worsening sanitary conditions.

Only a few hundred people attended a low-key evening rally behind the White House commemorating the then-heralded triumph over the putschists and honoring the memory of three young men killed by tanks.

It was outside the White House, then the Russian parliament building, that President Boris Yeltsin climbed atop a Soviet tank to lead opposition to the coup. He was in southern Russia on Friday.

About 2,000 other people showed up at the rally with placards and signs supporting the collapsed investment company MMM, trying to capitalize on the media event. But police quickly ushered them away from the small park, saying they didn't have a permit.

At a separate gathering, leaders of the failed hard-line Communist coup spoke boldly of their role and nostalgically of the Soviet era.

"We shall not retreat in guarding the interests of our motherland, the Soviet Union, our people and socialism. We shall not retreat," said Anatoly Lukyanov, the former Soviet parliament chairman.

Lukyanov was among key conspirators in the Aug. 18-21, 1991, putsch that briefly ousted Gorbachev and, in a backlash, accelerated the collapse of the Soviet Union four months later.

The top military, KGB and political figures who led the coup were granted amnesty earlier this vear by Russia's new parliament.

Mexicans in U.S. can vote on border

■ Each Mexican border town can accept 700 voters who are "in transit." Many of those are expected to be workers coming from U.S.

N.Y. Times News Service

NUEVO LAREDO, MEXICO — For the first time, ballot boxes will be placed at the border to help voters coming from the United States participate in Sunday's Mexican presidential election.

Emigrant advocates have welcomed the measure because Mexico does not allow absentee voting and because many emigrants are from southern Mexico and would need all day to return to their hometowns.

If the special border booths did not exist, the only way emigrants could vote would be to return to their hometowns. Most cannot vote in the United States either because they are not U.S. citizens.

In Nuevo Laredo, just across the Rio Grande from Laredo, Texas, and about 150 miles southwest of San Antonio, voters can cast ballots at two unconventional locations: the gazebo in the Main Plaza or the bus station. Of 262 voting booths expected to be functioning Sunday in Nuevo Laredo, those two will be reserved for emigrants.

Jose Angel Gutierrez, a professor at the University of Texas at Arlington, has asked the Mexican government to set up absentee voting procedures in future elections. He said the border ballot boxes were "at least . . . halfway there" to solving what he sees as a big voter problem.

"It's closer than we've ever gotten before," he said. "They're inviting these folks to vote. They are recognizing these people."

However, others familiar with Mexican elections question whether the new booths are not just another outlet for fraud to help the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, known by its Spanish acronym PRI. It has not lost a presidential election in 65 years.

Each border town can accept 700 voters who are "in transit." Many of those are expected to be workers coming from the United States.

Cows invade New Delhi during monsoon

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Lay off the horn, slow down, and above all, don't wear red.

The cows are back on New Delhi's streets, and not by popular demand. But did that ever stop them?

Not last year, not this year. Thousands of cows have invaded the city, snarling traffic and making children pass within inches of cows and bulls as they walk to school.

"This is indeed a big problem, a big traffic hazard," said Qamar Ahmed, deputy commissioner of traffic police.

Crashing into a cow, or even nudging one aside with a bumper, is sinful for most Hindus, who worship the beasts as "go-matas," or mother cows.

They wander down New Delhi's streets all year, but during good monsoons — like the current one — they take to the warmth of the roads in great numbers to avoid their rain-soaked sheds.

Each day this week, after the rain ended, policemen would jab at cows that stood serenely at busy traffic intersections, urging them to leave. Small herds sat in or walked down the middle of many two-lane highways even during rush hour, as if they realized most drivers wouldn't hit them on purpose.

On Friday, traffic jams caused by cows doubled the 20 minutes it normally takes for Dr. Barin Palit drive home. "There are cows everywhere and even blaring the horn has no effect," he said.

Police squads have been set up to move cows off the roads, which requires poking them with nightsticks until they move or or luring them with grass. People have been advised not to let their kids wear red.

Nevertheless, the cow invasion has led to a threefold increase in accidents and fender-benders in New Delhi, where 2.2 million vehicles take to the streets each day, police say.

On Aug. 12, a police inspector died in a collision with a cow, and at least 50 vehicles were damaged that way in the past week.

"We understand that many other accident cases are not reported to the police for this simple reason — who would blame the cow?" Ahmed said.

There are an estimated 100,000 cows in greater New Delhi, a city of about 10 million, where fresh cow milk is a real treat. But many of the beasts must eat garbage after they stop providing milk and are abandoned.

Fines have been doubled for people who let their cows wander.

Blood on Goldman's shoe isn't Simpson's

■ Results, however, are not final and analysis is still being completed on other blood samples from murder scene, Simpson's home and car.

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The first DNA test on a blood drop found on murder victim Ronald Goldman's shoe tested negative for O.J. Simpson's blood and has yet to be matched to anyone else's blood, a source told The Associated Press on Friday.

In another development, Fox Broadcasting Co. announced Friday it was postponing the planned Sept. 13 broadcast of "The O.J. Simpson Story," at least until jury selection in the double murder case is completed. The trial is scheduled to start Sept. 19.

Simpson has been charged with murder in the stabbing deaths of his 35-year-old ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her 25-year-old friend Goldman. The next pretrial hearing is scheduled for Monday.

Lead defense attorney Robert Shapiro had asked Fox last week to delay broadcast of the movie until a verdict was reached. The trial is expected to last at least through Christmas.

Fox said the decision was made "after our internal assessment of the situation and after discussions with Mr. Simpson's counsel."

Citing its First Amendment rights, Fox had earlier rejected Shapiro's plea to delay the movie, which begins the night of the murders, then uses flashbacks to trace Simpson's youth, football career and relationship with Ms. Simpson.

Police and prosecutors declined comment on the DNA testing, which is being conducted by Cellmark Diagnostics of Germantown, Md. The testing could take months.

If Simpson's blood was found at the crime scene or the blood of the victims was found at Simpson's estate, the prosecution's case would be strengthened.

Shapiro wouldn't comment on preliminary DNA results, saying it was too early in the process to discuss it.

Citing their own sources close to the investigation, the Los Angeles Times reported that the first batch of preliminary results on DNA tests do not tend to implicate Simpson. However, the results are not final and analysis is still being completed on other blood samples, including those from the murder scene and Simpson's home and car, the newspaper said in Friday's editions.

Also Friday, Shapiro said there was nothing of significance in 2,000 pages of new discovery material turned over to the defense by prosecutors after Wednesday's Superior Court hearing.

Child-sex charges target congressman

CHICAGO (AP) — Rep. Mel Reynolds was indicted Friday on charges of having sex with an underage campaign volunteer and trying to get pornographic pictures of a teen-ager.

Reynolds, a Chicago Democrat, faces 20 counts of child pornography, sexual assault, aggravated sexual abuse of a child, obstruction of justice and unlawfully communicating with a witness.

Cook County State's Attorney Jack O'Malley said Reynolds began having sex with the victim during his 1992 congressional campaign, when she was 16. The relationship continued into 1993, O'Malley said.

The child pornography charges allegedly involve Reynolds asking someone to obtain for him pornographic photographs of a 15-year-old girl.

O'Malley also said Reynolds tried to influence witnesses and stop them from testifying before the grand jury. Reynolds also lied to the grand jury, the prosecutor said.

Reynolds, who revealed the investigation last week, has denied any wrongdoing and said he will be vindicated.

The 42-year-old congressman is running unopposed Nov. 8 for a second term in the 2nd District, representing part of Chicago's South Side and southern suburbs.

At a news conference last week, Reynolds said the 18-year-old woman who accused him of sexual misconduct is a lesbian who once practiced Satan worship.

Reynolds says he had tried to help a "sick and disturbed woman" and never had sex with her. He said the woman had tried to extort money from him and presented an affidavit that he sought in which the woman recanted her story.

Rep. Mel Reynolds, D-Ill., faces child pornography, sexual assault, aggravated child sex abuse charges. Reynolds, however, claims his accuser, 18, is a lesbian, ex-satan - worshipping extortionist.

According to news reports, the woman told authorities she was 16 at the time she began a consensual sexual relationship with Reynolds in June 1992 — five months before she turned 17, the age of consent in Illinois.

The woman has not been available for comment.

Prosecutors also have been investigating allegations that Reynolds mishandled campaign funds.

Last weekend, the Chicago Tribune reported that federal investigators are examining whether Reynolds failed to disclose campaign accounts and donations.

He blamed the campaign finance investigation on disgruntled former employees in league with political enemies.

Edward M. Genson, Reynolds' lawyer, said in a statement Friday that the charges "are utterly lacking in any substance."

Reynolds was elected to Congress in 1992 on his third attempt to unseat Democratic Rep. Gus Savage.

In Congress, Reynolds quickly gained a seat on the influential House Ways and Means Committee, becoming the first freshman in 14 years to be named to the panel, and has been an active supporter of gun control and the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Reynolds is the second Chicago congressman to be indicted this year.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., is fighting charges of hiring ghost employees, using his expense account to buy personal gifts, trading stamps for personal cash and misusing official vehicles. The indictment forced him to step down as Ways and Means Committee chairman.

At least three other current members of Congress are also under indictment.

Rep. Walter R. Tucker III, D-Calif., was indicted last week on extortion and tax evasion charges for allegedly extorting bribes while he was mayor of Compton, Calif.

Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-Pa., faces racketeering and conspiracy charges dating from 1992. He's accused of extracting bribes from defense contractors.

And Sen. Dave Durenberger, R-Minn., last month won an indefinite postponement of his trial on charges of concealing his ownership of a Minneapolis condominium

Woman changes tone about Chavis

■ Ex-secretary who once accused NAACP chief of making 'an unwelcomed advance' now claims NAACP board members are using her situation to 'smear Ben Chavis' who's only a 'platonic friend.'

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — In a fight to keep his job, NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Chavis brought forward his wife's former secretary Friday to dispel reports the woman was prepared to file a sexual harassment claim against him.

Chavis said critics within the NAACP had used the woman as part of "an orchestrated campaign to defame me," and he said he would expose them at a board meeting today.

Susan Tisdale, who was fired from her job, said her "employment concerns" with Chavis had been resolved without a financial settlement "or any other promise from the NAACP."

Standing with her husband, Brent, Mrs. Tisdale, 32, declined to specify what those concerns were, but said they did not involve sexual harassment or discrimination.

She casigated some NAACP board members, accusing them of trying to use her situation to "smear Ben Chavis." She described Chavis as a "platonic friend" of about two years.

"How dare you publicly drag me and my family through the mud?" she said. "It is appalling to me that certain members of the board . . . would go to such great lengths to try and publicly defame both myself and Dr. Chavis in order to advance their own political agendas."

Chavis said, "When I meet with my board tomorrow, I intend to expose those I know to be involved. . . . I'm going into the board meeting armed with the truth."

The board of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is to meet today to discuss Chavis' job performance and his settlement of a sexual harassment claim in which he committed $332,400 of the organization's funds without board approval.

That out-of-court settlement with former employee Mary Stansel was reached last year, and it has prompted several board members to call for Chavis to step down.

"We have got to find everything out now," said board member Joseph Madison, one of Chavis' leading critics. "Every day, it's something different. We have no choice but to get a handle on what's going on."

According to reports in The (Baltimore) Sun and The New York Times, Mrs. Tisdale alleged in a memo distributed to NAACP board members that she was "subjected to advances from Dr. Chavis" and asked for $100,000 in damages for emotional distress,

Mrs. Tisdale had told The Plain Dealer of Cleveland earlier that shortly after she started working at the NAACP, Chavis made "an unwelcomed advance." She declined to be more specific about the incident, but told the newspaper she felt his behavior was improper. She said he later apologized.

Chavis denied Friday that he had harassed Mrs. Tisdale: "I have been falsely accused."

Mrs. Tisdale said she and her husband had become friends with the Chavis family while they all lived in Cleveland and that Benjamin and Martha Chavis had invited her to live temporarily with them when she moved to Baltimore to work. Mrs. Chavis oversees the Women in the NAACP program.

Later, she was discharged and wrote Chavis asking him for another job, The Sun reported.

Clinton wishes for crime bill on birthday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton turned 48 Friday with wishes that Congress would pass his crime bill and fortune would smile just enough at summer's end to let him go on vacation.

His birthday was one of the few in White House history to be celebrated during a nationally televised news conference.

But later, when reporters persisted in asking even more questions during the cutting of the birthday cake in the State Dining Room, Clinton begged off.

He said he was glad the patriotic confection had no candles because, "I have expended all of my hot air on you."

The birthday news conference centered on changing policy for refugees from Cuba, his hopes of rescuing his crime bill and making progress on reforming the health-insurance system.

Someone asked if his decision to find safe havens for fleeing Cubans elsewhere in the hemisphere but to stop admitting them to the United States was just a matter of "giving in to politics."

"Now, that's one of those questions designed to spoil your birthday," a grinning Clinton said before denying the premise of the question.

At the end, Clinton got a free shot as a reporter asked if he cared to make three wishes on his birthday. His answer mixed policy, philosophy and his hopes for just a bit of summer fun.

"I woke up this morning just grateful to be here; that's what I'm feeling," he replied "I'm grateful to be alive, grateful to have my health, grateful to have my family . . . ."

He managed to put a bright face on what has been a bad month for him.

"You know, I like the tough fight, so this is an exhilarating period for me; I like the big challenges. I think we're all put on this earth to try to make a difference."

And the three wishes?

1. "I would wish for the crime bill to pass."

2. ". . . If we can open our minds and hearts to each other and play a little less politics, we can solve the health-care problem, too."

3. "And I would wish that I won't have to give up my whole vacation because I still have dreams of breaking 80 on the golf course before I'm 50."

The president and his family have a vacation haven waiting on Martha's Vineyard off Cape Cod if the press of business ever allows him to leave town.

How about birthday presents?

"I got him a huge globe," said his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton. "He wanted an updated globe because all of our globes are outdated today."

The birthday celebration was actually a White House double-header. Tipper Gore, wife of Vice President Al Gore, turned 46 Friday, and Mrs. Clinton said the party would continue on and off into the evening.

"The Gores are coming over, I think we may go bowling and watch a movie," Mrs. Clinton said.

Holding a Cuban flag, Joaquin Valdez, a Cuban resident of Key West, Fla., is ordered off federal property by U.S. military security at the U.S. Coast Guard Station in Key West Friday. Valdez was protesting Clinton's reversal of a 28-year policy that allowed Cuban refugees into the U.S.

New policy outrages U.S. Cubans

■ Future Cuban refugees plucked from sea to be taken to U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where nearly 15,000 Haitians already are being held in tent city.

Associated Press

KEY WEST, Fla. — Hundreds of Cubans who braved the open sea on homemade rafts and boats found themselves in custody Friday, detained at a hastily built camp after a reversal of U.S. policy.

About 400 refugees were held overnight at a Coast Guard station in Key West under the new policy barring their release to relatives or sponsors.

On Friday morning, they were bused to the Krome immigration detention center west of Miami, where workers put up tents to house them, said Lamar Wooley, a spokesman for the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"We're talking detention until their status is determined," Wooley said.

Wooley said Krome would be the only detention center for new Cuban refugees who reach Florida. The Coast Guard was ordered to take refugees it picks up at sea to the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where nearly 15,000 Haitians already were being held in a tent city.

One refugee who made the 90-mile crossing wept when he was told that he was among the last Cubans to be freed before the policy was changed.

With tears streaming down his cheeks, Benjamin Brenan embraced his 11-year-old son at the Cuban Refugee Transit Center near Key West.

"Thank God!" said Brenan, 38. "Can you believe it, son? We made it! We made it! We're free."

Relatives of refugees who will be detained denounced President Clinton for changing the policy that had given Cubans preferential treatment over refugees from other nations.

"We have been betrayed," said Leticia Ramos, who waited overnight in Key West in vain for two cousins who left Cuba by raft Wednesday.

"These people have been through hell in the ocean and putting up with Castro," said her husband, Jack Canalejo. "Now they have put up with all this and they can't even see their family."

Clinton's decision to change the Cuban admission policy, in effect since 1966, came after a rising tide of Cuban refugees raised fears of a replay of the Mariel boatlift in 1980, when about 125,000 Cubans overwhelmed law enforcement, schools and social service agencies.

The Coast Guard has rescued more than 2,700 Cuban refugees from the Florida Straits this month, including 547 Cubans on Wednesday, the biggest single day since the 1980 exodus. Friday's total by midafternoon was 236.

The president's decision was lauded by Gov. Lawton Chiles, who had declared an immigration emergency in Florida because of the influx and demanded more federal help.

Chiles said the policy change sends a firm signal that could slow the exodus from Cuba. Cubans should be encouraged to stay home and "bring about the fall of Castro rather than escape," he said.

New outbreak of cattle mutilations concerns ranchers in New Mexico

By Richard Benke
Associated Press

EAGLE NEST, N.M. — Reports of mutilated cattle, suggestive of cases around the nation 20 years ago, are on the rise again in northern New Mexico.

In the past 16 months, nine ranchers reported 27 cattle mutilated, the largest number near Eagle Nest, ranchers and livestock inspectors say.

They repeat stories first heard in the early 1970s:

No animal tracks are found near the carcasses, no blood. Genitals have been removed, tongues sometimes cut off at their roots, anuses often cored out, one eye usually gone. Sometimes ears are missing. Incisions seem heat-cauterized.

Some people speculate aliens might be responsible. Others blame poachers or natural predators.

State livestock inspector Jerry Valerio rules out coyotes, bears, birds, dogs and mountain lions.

"I'm not saying anything about UFOs," says Valerio. "I'm saying I don't know. But by golly if I could get a clue that I could go on, I will find out, even if it takes me a long time."

The Associated Press reported in 1985 that deputy sheriffs in Arkansas and Texas staked out carcasses and saw birds carve wounds similar to those blamed on mutilators.

But Valerio says he and ranchers have watched mutilated carcasses and found predators wouldn't go near them.

State Livestock Bureau director John Wortman of Albuquerque says he's aware of the resurgence of mutilation reports.

"If there's somebody up there that's butchering livestock, that's who we want to go after," Wortman says.

Eagle Nest rancher Eli Hronich has suffered the lion's share — 11 cattle mutilated so precisely, he and Valerio insist, that it could not have been the work of predators.

"Some people are scared and say it's predators, but it is not predators," Valerio says.

Hronich, who runs 2,500 head here, says he's seen hundreds of cows dead on the range in 25 years of ranching, and "when you see a mutilation, you know what it is." The most recent death was July 24.

Reports include one other mutilation in Eagle Nest, eight in the Jemez Mountains, two in Questa, one in Taos, one in El Prado, one in Arroyo Seco and two in an area one livestock inspector wants left unidentified pending completion of his investigation.

Some blame extractions of genitals, eyes, tongues and gored anuses on U.F.O.s or satanists, but others credit natural predators.

Rancher Kay Moore says she found a mutilated yearling steer in a pasture overlooking Eagle Nest Lake in August 1993.

"I have seen cattle killed by bear, and I've seen wildlife like deer killed by a mountain lion and coyotes. And they don't just leave them intact after they ate the anus out. They usually devour them," she says. "I think this is definitely human."

Motivation?

"I have no idea. I think it's something nobody will ever know. I'd be amazed if we did find out."

Hronich says: "I think somebody does know, somewhere. That's what bothers me. ... It's somebody that's got some money and equipment. It's a sophisticated deal."

Too high-tech, too clean, he says, for cultists.

UFOs?

"I wouldn't rule 'em out, wouldn't rule 'em in," he says.

Valerio, whose Taos-based area includes Eagle Nest, says many ranchers have clammed up about finding mutilations because previous reports went unheeded.

The only way to fight it, he says, is for ranchers to report cattle deaths — even those readily explainable by lightning, poison, predatory attack, disease or accident.

"A lot of people think if they don't say anything, it'll go away," Valerio says. "But it doesn't."

One who doesn't believe in staying silent is Gail Staehlin of Albuquerque, a volunteer mutilation sleuth fascinated by unexplained phenomena.

"It's the mystery of it," she says.

Valerio says Staehlin has helped him by helping organize ranchers and encouraging them to report suspected mutilations.

Staehlin and a friend, Gene Nieri, head out on a moment's notice with video equipment when mutilations are reported.

The UFO phenomena fringe frustrates former FBI agent Ken Rommel of Santa Fe, whose government-commissioned 1980 report blamed previous mutilations on predators. Rommel says UFO buffs fan false rumors. He calls them "the garbage grapevine."

Valerio says he's still infuriated by Rommel's report 14 years later.

But Clair Hibbs, a veterinary pathologist who retired in 1989 as head of the New Mexico Agriculture Department's Veterinary Diagnostic Service, also blames most mutilations on predators attacking after cattle die.

"I have looked at these in three different states — Kansas, Nebraska and New Mexico. ... I would say over 90 percent are due to predators of some type," Hibbs says.

Denver pathologist Dr. John Altshuler says two of the recent spate of dead cattle most likely died of "massive confluent bilateral bronchopneumonia" but he doesn't know who or what may have mutilated them.

Some deaths remain unexplained for lack of information, Hibbs says, adding that thorough post-mortem examinations are necessary — preferably on entire carcasses.

Leaner crime bill takes shape through congressional cooperation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats and Republicans worked feverishly Friday to devise a slimmed-down, $30 billion crime bill that could pass the House, perhaps this weekend.

President Clinton endorsed the developing bill that would see roughly 10 percent, across-the-board cuts from the $33 billion plan put together by House and Senate conferees in late July.

The House took steps to allow a possible vote today on a compromise. Negotiators, meeting in several rooms in the Capitol, said they were edging toward a deal that would subject the bill's crime-prevention, police and prison construction programs to reductions of roughly one dollar in 10.

"We are moving toward basic agreements," said Rep. Michael Castle, R-Del., leader of a group of about 40 moderate Republicans with whom Democrats were bargaining. "I'm happy with the tone of it."

"There's a real spirit of cooperation," said Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y.

The new version would still include money to help put 100,000 more police on the streets; extend the death penalty to 50 more crimes; require life sentences for some third-time felons, and ban assault-style firearms.

Celebrating his 48th birthday, Clinton told a news conference, "If I had three wishes, I would wish for the crime bill to pass.

"This is a grass-roots, mainstream, nonpartisan issue, and so it should remain," he said. "It must be an American crime bill. We have worked hard on it, and I call upon Congress to pass it without delay."

The House shelved the $33 billion package last week by defeating a procedural measure, 225-210, that would have let it come to the floor for a vote.

Any changes made in that bill would have to win approval anew from House and Senate negotiators before going to the chambers for final action.

New version still features assault-gun ban; 100,000 more police; death penalty for 50 more crimes; life sentences for some third-time felons.

Moderate House Republicans were pleased with Democrats' support for a 10 percent across-the-board cut; "a very, very big movement on their part and they should be commended for it," in the words of Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio.

But there was an omen of troubles ahead as Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, took to the Senate floor and said: "I won't accept an across-the-board cut. I want to cut the social spending that was added to the bill."

The moderate House Republicans, with support of their leaders, negotiated late Thursday and much of Friday with Democrats after sending Clinton a letter seeking a compromise.

Unlike many Republicans and about four dozen Democrats who opposed last week's procedural vote because of the ban on assault-style firearms, Castle said dropping the ban "is a dead issue from our perspective." Many of these Republicans supported the ban in a separate May vote.

Clinton said he agreed with this group's request to strengthen a provision notifying a community when a convicted sexual predator is released.

The group also wanted the 10 percent taken specifically from the $7.6 billion in crime-prevention spending and eliminating a $10 million grant for Lamar University, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Jack Brooks' alma mater.

Brooks said opposition to the grant was based on "demagoguery, devilment."

Moderate Republicans want to lump the bill's crime-prevention money and its $8.8 billion to help fund 100,000 new community police officers into a $12 billion block-grant program, with decisions on spending left up to local officials. Another $10.5 billion would be spent on prisons.

Ironically, Republicans vehemently criticized the $1.8 billion Local Partnership Act, which essentially authorized crime prevention block grants, to be spent as local authorities deemed best.

The pending $33 billion House-Senate package would authorize $11.1 billion for state and local law enforcement, $2.8 billion for federal law enforcement, $10.5 billion for prisons, $1.3 billion for drug courts and $7.6 billion for crime prevention.

Judges: Police who beat King got off too light

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The prison sentences given two Los Angeles policemen convicted of civil rights violations in the beating of motorist Rodney King were too lenient, a federal appeals court panel ruled Friday.

The ruling by a three-judge panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals would more than double the 2½-year sentences given to Sgt. Stacey Koon and Officer Laurence Powell.

The court did not specify new sentences, leaving that to U.S. District Judge John Davies, who presided over the trial. But under standards set by the court, federal guidelines call for 70 to 87 months in prison. The two men began serving their sentences last October.

The ruling said Davies improperly reduced the sentences by finding that the officers were vulnerable to abuse in prison, that they posed no danger to the public, that they had been burdened by state and federal prosecutions, and that they were provoked by King's misconduct.

None of those factors justifies a reduction, the court said.

The ruling left Powell "sick to his stomach, just like I am," said his trial lawyer, Michael Stone.

Steve Lerman, one of King's lawyers in his civil damage lawsuits over the beating, said a longer sentence for the officers "doesn't help Rodney King get over the horrible injuries that he suffered and continues to suffer."

But, he added, "the fact that these officers were sentenced in a lenient fashion, as many people in the community so think, has further disrupted the sense of trust people, especially people in the minority community, have in the system of justice."

King, a black motorist stopped for speeding, was beaten by white police in a March 1991 incident that was videotaped by a bystander.

The acquittals of Koon, Powell and fellow officers Timothy Wind and Theodore Briseno on state assault charges touched off riots in 1992. All four were then tried in federal court on charges of violating King's civil rights by using excessive force. Wind and Briseno were again acquitted, but Koon and Powell were convicted.

Senators unveil compromise on health reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan group of senators offered a compromise health plan Friday, promising security to those with insurance, coverage for many of the uninsured, and deficit reduction of $100 billion over 10 years.

"This is a bill that can pass this year," said Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., leader of the group.

The proposal focuses on market-based insurance reforms, and includes no requirement that employers pay for workers' insurance. However, all employers would be required to offer their workers a choice of three health plans, including one in which they could see any doctor they choose.

Members of the group — whose numbers reached 20 senators at points this week — said they would aim to cover 95 percent of Americans soon after the turn of the century, but felt confident they could reach 92 percent to 93 percent coverage by that time. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell's plan aims for 95 percent by 2000.

The bipartisan proposal would seek to cover more people by phasing in federal subsidies for the poor, reaching those with incomes as high as 200 percent of the poverty level by 2004. Pregnant women and children could get subsidies until their incomes exceeded 240 percent of poverty. But senators were not yet sure if they could afford this level of subsidies.

Rich Hall to do four shows at Hilton

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

■ Comedian Rich Hall will perform four shows, Aug. 26-27 at 8 and 10 p.m., at the Midland Hilton. Tickets are $9 and $12 in advance or at the door.

He's won an Emmy for comedy writing. Hosted a comedy series on HBO. He's written five very popular alternative dictionaries and even survived a year on "Saturday Night Live" during the show's bleaker decade. Now, he's coming to Midland. Some guys have all the luck.

Rich Hall, known mostly for his anchor role on HBO's "Not Necessarily the News" and for his five-part series of "Sniglets" will play the Midland Hilton next Friday and Saturday night, Aug. 26-27, at 8 and 10 p.m. each night. Tickets are $9-$12.

What differentiates Hall from most road comics is his inclusion of local comedy. He makes certain he arrives in town at his latest stop in ample time to learn a little about the city in which he will perform. Midland, he promises, will be no exception, and Hall has, in fact, already been briefed on boot-seller Pee Wee Dalton and the recent mass eradication of pigeons in town.

'Schindler' hits home video list

■ Stephen Spielberg's masterpiece heads the week's top new home videos.

By Max McQueen
N.Y. Times News Service

Schindler's List. R, 1993. Universal, $99.98. Collector's edition (available Sept. 21) includes letterboxed cassettes, soundtrack CD, paperback novel and photo book of stills from film, $139.98.

"Whoever saves one life, saves the world entire."

If "Schindler's List" did nothing more than spread that encouraging message from the Talmud, Steven Spielberg can count his time on earth well spent.

Spielberg takes three hours and 17 minutes to walk filmgoers through the Holocaust's valley of the shadow of death. The stunning results are nothing short of monumental filmmaking in its finest storytelling and technical form.

But even in its towering sweep of the Holocaust, this Oscar-winning picture about a Nazi opportunist-turned-savior remains resolutely human and even strangely humane for all of its horror.

Anchoring "Schindler's List" is Liam Neeson's benchmark performance as Schindler, an admittedly greedy man who saved 1,100 Jews in his Krakow, Poland, factory because "there was no choice."

Neeson's work is matched by Ralph Fiennes' wretched concentration camp commandant Amon Goeth and Ben Kingsley's brilliantly restrained role as Itzhak Stern, an accountant who helps Schindler save his workers from certain death.

Every filmmaking aspect of "Schindler's List" is first rate, which is why it won seven Oscars. Particularly deserving are Spielberg's heart-wringing direction, Janusz Kaminski's haunting black and white cinematography and John Williams' score, which sounds like angels in mourning. Way back in 1915, D.W. Griffith's "Birth of a Nation" showed human kind at its very worst and its very best. "Schindler's List" ranks with that landmark film in its power to get filmgoers to think, to feel, to aspire to live better lives.

As with "Birth of a Nation," people will watch "Schindler's List" again and again, learning ever more about the human capacity to hate — and love.

Color this one bleak

Bruce Willis' latest is tepid as thriller, erotica

By Kristin Gazlay
Associated Press Writer

Pity Dr. Bob Capa. He's a psychiatrist who's as messed up as his patients — and he's selectively colorblind to boot.

The eyesight problem is courtesy of his last patient — a woman who plunged out the window of his high-rise office midhour when he offered some mild criticism. The sight of her blood on the Manhattan street below has left Dr. Bob so shaken that he no longer can see the color red.

A tortured Capa escapes to Los Angeles, and thus really begins Hollywood Pictures' "Color of Night," a would-be erotic thriller that traffics in every cliche from a nubile, mysterious young woman who sheds her skimpy dresses at the slightest provocation to a climactic warehouse shootout on a dark and stormy night.

Ah well, at least this time, the psychopath is packing a nail gun.

Once in California, Capa (Bruce Willis, with no gun — and, often, no clothes) takes up with his psychiatrist buddy, Bob Moore (Scott Bakula), who is receiving death threats and suspects the culprit is one of the five members of his Monday night group therapy session.

It doesn't take long before someone slips into Bob's office at night and stabs him more than 30 times, giving him a chance to stagger around and then impale himself — movie-style — by falling stylistically through a glass door.

Along comes the mandatory colorful, wisecracking cop, Hector Martinez (Ruben Blades, apparently desperate for work after his unsuccessful run for the presidency of his native Panama), who wants Capa to take over his friend's Monday night group to help isolate the killer.

But is it the nymphomanic (a desperately overacting Lesley Ann Warren)? The gender-confused Richie? The obsessive-compulsive lawyer? The tortured young artist? The cop whose wife and child died under unknown circumstances? Or did the butler do it?

And just who is Rose (Jane March), the woman who slams her uninsured car into the back of Capa's and, the second time they meet, pulls off her dress, revealing — surprise! — that she's wearing nothing underneath?

"Color of Night" is being marketed as a controversial, steamy film since, before cuts were made in the love scenes, the R-rated movie had been threatened with an NC-17 designation.

But there is nothing erotic in the coupling between Willis and March, who repeatedly took off her clothes in 1992's "The Lover" to much greater effect.

The movie is tepid as a thriller, too, since it's not hard to guess the killer's identity and motive. What's worse is that you don't really care about either, though it is fun to see Willis menaced several times by a red — get it? get it? — Trans Am that repeatedly tries to ram him on a crowded freeway and later lurks in a parking garage like the shark in "Jaws."

Maybe not much can be expected from executive producer Andrew G. Vajna, producers Buzz Feitshans and David Matalon or screenwriters Matthew Chapman and the seemingly-missing-a-last-name Billy Ray. And it's not hard to figure out how co-producer David Willis got his job,

Some artists may record forever (hopefully)

Close your eyes long enough these days and you just might be able to convince yourself you've returned to the 1970s. What we've got here is a resurgence of music by artists who either started out in the 1970s or had an big impact on the Disco Decade. Fortunately, none of the artists who have recently released new records are of the disco variety.

Patterson

The Eagles are back together again. A boxed set is due in October, in plenty of time for the holiday shopping season, understand. Boston released its fourth (lousy) album and with it, they may finally go away for good. Traffic is recording together. And with Elton John and Billy Joel on the road together and selling out dates right and left, could a live album be far behind? Of course it won't be long.

A few other examples, and some worthwhile music from artists who have a strong '70s connection:

■ "Voodoo Lounge," The Rolling Stones. OK, so they made their debut five or six years prior to the '70s. But they did release three of their best albums — "Some Girls," "Exile on Main Street" and "Sticky Fingers" — in the 1970s. "Voodoo Lounge" is undoubtedly their best work since those three albums. Packed with rough, raunchy, roadhouse rock, the album has three or four instant Stones classics ("Love is Strong," "I Go Wild," "Out of Tears" and "Brand New Car.") Some guys have long since given up by the time they reach their 50s. The Stones just keep adding to their legendary status. Who knows, maybe one day they'll go down as a band even more important than the Beatles. Album grade: A.

■ "Where it All Begins," The Allman Brothers. The Stones have received all the hype. Meanwhile, the Allman Brothers, who first gained prominence at Woodstock in '69, but who built on that success throughout the '70s, have recorded one of their best albums ever. "Where it All Begins" should be required listening for anyone attempting to crack into the Southern rock and blues job bank. "Back Where it All Began" and "No One To Run With" are two of the best songs these guys have ever recorded. Grade: A+

■ "Some Change," Boz Scaggs. Remember? The Plano, Texas, native, had a couple of brief flights with fame. Namely a big album in 1975, "Silk Degrees"; a big hit from that album, "Lowdown," and the only good thing to come out of the movie "Urban Cowboy," a little song called "Look What You've done to Me" in 1977. His latest album is blue-eyed soul in its top form. He can still lay down a mid-tempo soul number like the old days, but the slower songs here, "Sierra" and the phenomenal "Lost It" are two of Scaggs' best. Grade: A-

■ "For the Love of Strange Medicine," Steve Perry. Maybe he was the Michael Bolton of the '80s, but at least he's not THE Michael Bolton. The former lead vocalist of Journey, the '80s preeminent arena rock band, is just out with his second album and it's not bad. Really. OK, I admit it, I liked Journey when I was a kid. But Perry's second solo album, which follows

HALL: Comedy writing Emmy came in 1981

stuff," Hall said. "Midland is certainly not the same as, say, Pittsburgh. If you can find something local, people like that, and it doesn't look like you just breezed through town, took their money and then left, which is exactly what I'm doing."

With his experience on the satirical HBO news show, Hall says the advantage he has over other comics is "I get news so far in advance. For instance, I'll be talking about how they're going to split up Midland into East Midland and Middle Midland and West Midland. Part of the town, West Midland, is sitting on a huge pocket of oil, and the other part is sitting on, like, peanuts.

"And it's not petroleum oil, it's like foot oil. So I'll talk about the boot guy (Pee Wee Dalton) because I think there might be some dirt. I uncover the dirt."

Hall tours while in between projects. Having just completed "Self-Help for the Bleak," his seventh humor book, Hall is currently writing a show for Comedy Central. The cable comedy channel will soon send Hall and two other comedians to Viet Nam to tape an upcoming special.

Hall began his comedy career in 1978, and three years later won an Emmy for comedy writing on David Letterman's original "Morning Show." He earned national recognition as a Not Ready For Prime Time Player on SNL's 1985 season. The Emmy, Hall said, has since been converted into a hood ornament on his Cadillac Eldorado.

The "Sniglet" further advanced his comedy career.

"One of my favorite sniglets is the word used to describe those little things that form around your pancakes," Hall said. "I call them 'Jemimites.' "

A sampling of some of Hall's non-local humor on tap for the Hilton next weekend:

■ On what went wrong when General Motors made the mirror for the Hubble Telescope: "The Hubble has a Buick mirror, but some guy's driving around in a crummy car with a really great mirror ... 'Hey, honey ... I can see Venus in this mirror.' "

■ On truth in advertising for pet food: "It says for whiter teeth on Milk Bones boxes. Ya know, I don't think your dog really cares about whiter teeth. He's drinking out of the toilet."

■ On ideas to help solve the national debt: "We've got 50 states, and I don't think anyone would really miss them if we sold off North and South Dakota."

■ On the frustrating search for his perfect match: "There are 5 billion people on this earth, and with my luck, my true soul-mate is currently cooking breakfast over a dung fire in Bhutan."

Comic tries to help emotionally deflated

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

■ A Review (Sort of)

Not since the landmark "I'm OK, You're OK" has such an important book been released.

"Self-Help for the Bleak" is Rich Hall's first foray into the business of helping others help themselves, and it's obvious from the first page that Hall is a certified genius. Or maybe that's certifiable (?).

Hall never pretends to be an expert in the field of self-help. Instead, he says writing from the patient's perspective gives him a unique advantage.

"The book," Hall says, "is just a collection of anecdotes and little stories to pull people up by their boot straps so they can fall right back down again. It's a compendium of inane, useless, pithy advice for getting your four tires of living balanced."

Hall expertly theorizes in the book that "our lives rest on four essential tires: A Love Tire, A Mental-Physical Tire, a Career Tire and a Spiritual Tire," and "when it comes to the Four Tires of Living, very few of us are actually driving a blanced vehicle."

Where else are you gonna find advice like that?

Certainly not from books written by so-called doctors or TV shows hosted by the Phils and Sally Jesses and Oprahs of the world.

"All these people who know everything aren't helping anybody," Hall said. "It's time people who really need help read a book from a patient, not a therapist."

The book spent some time atop a bestseller list. Not the New York Times list, no, but it topped out at No. 1 for a couple of days on a respected ranking of books read by comedians who are hospitalized for emotional problems. So it's a start.

Hall divides "Self-Help for the Bleak" into four main sections, each of which details the four different tires of life.

Sprinkled throughout the book are sage bits of wiswom known as Tips of the Day.

A sampling of the jewels include:

■ Get up every morning with a purpose, not a reason. If you don't know the difference, picture a robbery taking place in an alley. The guy holding the gun is being "purposeful." The guy forking over his wallet is being reasonable.

■ If you're lonely and want to talk to someone, instead of paying $3 a minute to call a 900 number, try a 901 number. There are probably lots of people in Western Tennessee who wouldn't mind talking to you.

■ I suppose for most women, the ideal man, "Mr. Right," would be handsome, sexy, affectionate, self-assured, witty and extremely attentive to her needs. Well, good luck trying to find him, sister. Maybe you need to adjust your criteria. Try replacing "handsome" and "sexy" with "bald" and "wearing a t-shirt." Now, instead of looking for Mr. Right, you're looking for Mr. Clean which shouldn't be too much of a problem.

Darn good advice for $8.95, the price of this monumental achievement with a brand of do-it-yourself psychology that we can all understand.

Hall is also the author of five "Sniglet" books, all of which are commonly thought of as dictionaries for people with senses of humor.

Millions at stake as 'Frasier' bumps up with 'Roseanne'

By Bill Carter
N.Y. Times News Service

It will be the most anticipated face-to-face confrontation on television since Tonya vs. Nancy. But for the networks involved, the stakes will be much higher next month when "Frasier" takes on "Roseanne."

NBC's "Frasier," a series about a radio psychiatrist and his dysfunctional family, was the strongest new comedy on network television last year; ABC's "Roseanne," the chronicles of the blue-collar Connor family of Lanford, Ill., has been the most consistently popular television program of the last six years. When both return for a new season next month, they will battle each other on Tuesdays at 9 P.M.

At risk is one of the seven most cherished prizes in network television: a night. When one network dominates a night in prime time, it means millions of dollars of additional advertising revenue. Since "Roseanne" made its premiere in 1988, ABC has owned Tuesday night, in the same way NBC has owned Thursday night for longer than a decade.

NBC is moving one of its powerful Thursday-night programs ("Frasier" became a hit last season, sitting at 9:30 behind "Seinfeld") to Tuesdays with one goal in mind: to establish a beachhead on ABC's Tuesday territory.

For ABC, the threat is serious enough for its programming department to have considered shifting "Roseanne" to Wednesdays at 9 p.m. while bringing in the network's biggest weapon, "Home Improvement," the top-rated program in all of television, to counter "Frasier" on Tuesdays.

In a news conference two weeks ago, Ted Harbert, the president of ABC Entertainment, said that "all the options are open." But he said later in an interview that he would stick with "Roseanne" on Tuesdays, adding that he was confident it would easily brush off the "Frasier" challenge.

Earlier this year, ABC renewed its contract for "Roseanne" for three more seasons, at a price that has been estimated at between $2 million and $3 million an episode. That is almost three times as much as a network usually pays for an established sitcom.

"ABC is really at risk," said a senior executive of CBS, speaking on condition of anonymity. CBS was seriously pursuing "Roseanne" last winter, hoping to pry the series away from ABC.

"We would have even paid more than ABC," the executive said. "But with NBC putting 'Frasier' against it, we could have lost our shirt. 'Frasier' has become a really strong show."

NBC drew criticism in the industry when it announced the move last May, because "Frasier" seemed too new to take on the mighty "Roseanne."

Betsy Frank, senior vice president of Saatchi & Saatchi Inc., was one of several advertising executives who questioned the wisdom of breaking up a hit night like NBC's Thursday and risking so strong a new show as "Frasier" against a proven hit like "Roseanne."

But this summer, repeats of "Frasier" have consistently had higher ratings than those of "Roseanne" (though the two series are not yet head-to-head). And two weeks ago, "Frasier" was the highest-rated program in all of television.

NOLTE: Summer effort now on home format from now when "E.T.," "Jaws" and "Jurassic Park" have faded from memory, Steven Spielberg will be remembered for one thing: the man who directed "Schindler's List."

(From 1B)

Other videos available this week:

I'll Do Anything. PG-13, 1994. Columbia TriStar, $96.95.

Poor Nick Nolte. Give him great stuff and he shines, as in "Down and Out in Beverly Hills" and "The Prince of Tides." Give him inferior stuff and he sinks, as in "Another 48 Hours," "I Love Trouble" and "I'll Do Anything," now on video.

Directed by James Brooks, "I'll Do Anything" was originally a musical about a divorced actor (Nolte) who's forced to take in his 6-year-old daughter (Whittni Wright, much too eager to please).

The music has been cut. But no matter how good it might have been, we cannot imagine it salvaging this disjointed poke in Hollywood's smug face. As usual, however, veteran scene-stealer Albert Brooks is side-splitting fun as a producer with a conscience (Is there any other kind?).

Upcoming releases:

Eight Seconds, with Cynthia Geary and Luke Perry, Aug. 31.

Royce, with James Belushi and Peter Boyle, Aug. 31.

PATTERSON: JT, Allmans lead return to 1970s music

his first by 10 years, contains three or four pretty good songs. Perry quit recording for an extended time after burn out, and cared for his mother and grandfather before both died of cancer during the time between recordings. The first single off the album, "You Better Wait," is Journey, circa 1994, and it does bring to mind music from a few years back. "Young Hearts Forever" and "I Am" are also worth several listenings (if you can get by the ultra-sappy string opening on "I Am"), but it is this album's closer that is the standout song of this bunch. "Anyway" is a painfully honest tribute to Perry's days with Journey. At least "painfully honest" is the way his uniquely recognizable voice conveys the message here. Really, "Strange Medicine" is not that bad. Would I lie? Grade: B.

■ "James Taylor Live." This one's been out for almost a year, but it is still one that finds its way into this guy's disc player with great frequency. Someone wrote last year that James Taylor is one of the few singers who actually sounds better live than on record. This double-album is all the proof you need. Filled with undying musical memories and worth every dime of the $23.99 asking price you'll commonly find. Not too many entertainers come across with the shy, friendly, humble nature JT possesses. His personality makes his music what it is, and it shows time and again in the over 2 hours of magic included here. Grade: A+

■ "Hard Luck Woman," Garth Brooks. Garth Brooks grew up listening to the rock group KISS in the '70s. So now he records and old KISS song and they're playing it on country stations. This may be one of the signs of the end of the world ... Grade: F.

'Andre' a delight, not only for kids

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

■ "Andre" is playing at the UA Cine 4.

The revamped "Lassie" turned out well enough, and the new version of "Black Beauty" is — well, at least it's a nicely photographed film.

But now, with a seal-of-approval picture called "Andre," the third time seems to be the charm for the season's procession of kids-and-creatures movies.

"Andre" — originally announced as "Andre the Seal" — is based upon a more-or-less factual account of incidents in the life of an animal-loving family.

Tina Majorino, the youngster who coincidentally has another star turn opening this weekend with "Corrina, Corrina," graces "Andre" as Toni, a daughter of harbormaster Keith Carradine and devoted wife Chelsea Field. Carradine is a natural kind of guy whose fondness for animals is shared by his entire clan.

Carradine's recurring war with poachers and animal-haters in general puts him at odds with a menacing fisherman (Keith Szarabajka). Meanwhile, Toni encounters such cruelty among her schoolmates that she becomes almost a recluse.

Which is Andre's cue to enter. Injured and separated from his own kind, Andre recovers quickly and then sets out to return the favor for Carradine and his brood.

None of those shallow old good-guy/bad-guy stereotypes here for George "Snowy River" Miller, the celebrated Australian director. The screenplay by Dana Baratta takes pains to show the ungodly stresses that can afflict even the most devoted family, and to put even Keith Szarabajka's mean-spirited character in an understandable context. A densely textured sense of community renders the situations still more credible, accommodating the often hilarious extravagances of Andre's astounding performance.

Autumn movie lineup full of drama

By Bob Thomas
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES — Can Hollywood get serious and still score a record year at the box office? That's the issue facing the studios as they prepare for a fall season inordinately filled with dramas.

The flood of serious-minded movies partly is motivated by the film companies' strategy of slotting their Academy Award hopefuls toward the end of the year. The reasoning is that movies released late will be fresh in the voters' minds.

However, no one ever forgets an excellent movie screened earlier in the year: example, Oscar winner "The Silence of the Lambs," which opened in February.

The companies also have shown an increasing reluctance to send dramas into the summer marketplace. That's when out-of-schoolers and vacationers seek more mindless entertainment, mainly high-speed action and over-the-top comedy.

John Krier, whose Exhibitor Relations Co. tracks box-office performance, believes a new record is doubtful.

"The current total is about $1.9 billion, which is 1 or 2 percent ahead of last year's record, which finished at $5.2 billion," he observes.

"But in looking over the fall product, I see no potential 'Fatal Attraction,' 'Crocodile Dundee' or 'Stand by Me' — pictures that have 'legs.' Unless something surprising pops up, it's going to be a hard autumn — a lot of tough sells and too many formula pictures out there."

Here's a sampler of what ticket buyers can expect during the autumn season:

DRAMA:

■ "Nobody's Fool" — Paul Newman returns to a family he left behind. With Jessica Tandy and Melanie Griffith. Opening sometime in October.

■ "The Perez Family" — Marisa Tomei and Anjelica Huston in a story of Cuban refugees. Nov. 11.

■ "Pontiac Moon" — Ted Danson is an eccentric teacher and Mary Steenburgen his reclusive wife in a story that parallels the 1969 moon landing. Oct. 21.

■ "A Simple Twist of Fate" — Steve Martin stars in his own script about a man who struggles to keep his adopted daughter. Sept. 2.

■ "Quiz Show" — Robert Redford returns to directing with a comedy-drama about the 1950s TV quiz show scandals. Sept. 16.

■ "Ed Wood" — Tim Burton essays the strange life of the maker of schlocky movies. Johnny Depp stars. Oct. 7.

■ "The Shawshank Redemption" — Murderer Tim Robbins befriends another lifer, Morgan Freeman, in a New England prison. Sept. 23.

■ "Interview With the Vampire" — Vampire Tom Cruise gives an interview to Christian Slater telling of his 200-year travails. Nov. 18.

Senate passes appropriations package with Border Patrol funds

■ Package earmarks $475 million to implement Clinton administration's immigration reform initiative, including deployment of 950 agents on border.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate on Friday approved an appropriations package that would put hundreds of new Border Patrol officers on the U.S.-Mexican border and provide hundreds of millions of dollars to curb illegal immigration.

Only President Clinton's signature remains before the appropriations bill funding next year's operations of the Commerce, State and Justice departments becomes law. The House approved the measure Thursday.

The $27 billion package, which includes billions for crime fighting, earmarks $475 million to implement the Clinton administration's immigration reform initiative.

A key component of that initiative would allow the Border Patrol to deploy 950 agents for border enforcement activities in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Congress has set aside $55 million to hire 700 new agents and 110 new support personnel. The hiring of the support personnel would allow the Border Patrol to free up 250 agents currently on desk duty, giving them front-line assignments.

Also included in the funding package is $154 million for the Immigration and Naturalization Service to develop and put into use new technologies improving border control and registration. It also sets aside $50 million for the INS to improve its border checkpoint and station facilities, of which $10.7 million is earmarked for Texas.

Lawmakers also set aside $130 million to be divided among California, Texas and the handful of other states that incarcerate large numbers of illegal aliens convicted of crimes.

That $130 million is below the $350 million sought by the administration. The Senate last month approved an amendment by Texas GOP Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison and Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole setting aside $350 million, but the House didn't approve similar language. Earlier this week, House-Senate negotiators compromised on the $130 million figure.

Mrs. Hutchison expressed satisfaction that her funding was included in the final package, saying that it marks the first time the federal government has acknowledged its obligation to states struggling with large undocumented immigrant populations.

"We're really making great strides," she said.

California estimates it will spend $475 million this year incarcerating illegal immigrants, while Texas pegs its cost at more than $74 million.

State board votes to cancel firm's bullet train franchise

AUSTIN (AP) — Plans for building a bullet train in Texas reached the end of the line Friday, as a state board voted to revoke the franchise it earlier granted for the 200 mph railroad's construction.

The Texas High-Speed Rail Authority approved a settlement with Texas TGV Corp., which ran out of steam after failing to raise $170 million in equity financing for the $8.4 billion project.

"This has been a noble experiment," said authority board member Jim Nugent. "This experiment is at an end. We need to terminate it, wrap it up, move it out and allow whoever else out there who thinks they might be interested in it an opportunity to come forward."

The settlement could be finalized and signed within two weeks, said authority Chairman Hershel Payne, who negotiated the deal.

Although it doesn't call for Texas TGV to pay a $2.5 million bond for abandoning the project, Payne said, "No state funds have been lost in this action."

Attorney General Dan Morales had said Texas was entitled to the bond money. But several board members said they feared that insisting on the $2.5 million payment would cause a lengthy court fight and keep landowners along the train's route mired in uncertainty.

"I am concerned about the people that have had their land and their lives in limbo because of this. There is a value . . . to bringing this to an end," said board member David Bernsen.

"It is very difficult to put a dollar value on personal stress and apprehension," added board member John S. Belew.

TGV is a French-American group that had proposed using French technology to link Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio with the fast-running trains.

TGV failed, however, to meet a Dec. 31, 1993, deadline for raising equity financing. Some experts said the project couldn't be built without public finds. State law prohibited use of public money for the venture.

TGV Chairman Glenn Biggs said the company would repay the almost $640,000 balance of the $1 million cash advance approved by the Legislature.

Judge rules UT admission policy was unconstitutional

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal judge Friday upheld the need for affirmative action programs but said an admissions policy used by the University of Texas law school in 1992 unconstitutionally discriminated against white applicants.

"Commitment to affirmative action programs in educational institutions . . . does not imply that the individual rights of non-minorities should fall by the wayside or be ignored," U.S. District Judge Sam Sparks wrote.

His ruling came in a lawsuit brought by four whites who sought admission to the UT law school in 1992.

The law school already has said it is changing its admissions system, beginning with the class that enters in 1995.

Sparks said Cheryl Hopwood, Douglas Carvell, Kenneth Elliott and David Rogers are entitled to reapply to the law school for the 1995-96 school year without paying further fees.

He awarded each $1, to be paid by the University of Texas at Austin and its law school, for being denied equal treatment.

However, Sparks also said that UT produced evidence that the four likely wouldn't have been admitted even under a constitutional process. He said the would-be students didn't prove otherwise.

Terral Smith, lawyer for the four, said proving they would have been admitted is "an impossible burden, and the judge even said that in his opinion."

Smith said they likely would appeal to seek a court decision ordering the law school to admit them.

When the four previously applied, Carvell and Rogers were denied admission.

Ms. Hopwood also was effectively denied admission, even though she was offered a place on a waiting list, Sparks found. He found that Elliott, who initially was sent a denial letter, wasn't notified of a later admission offer.

In finding the admissions policy violated the constitutional prohibition against race discrimination, Sparks objected to a separate evaluation of whites and minorities.

Under the policy, more than half of each entering law school class has been admitted based on their combined grades and law school exam scores.

For the rest, discretionary factors including race, gender, age and economic background have come into play. In the second category, minority students have been compared with other minorities, and whites with whites.

The new admissions policy doesn't include such a separate evaluation, said lawyer Barry Burgdorf, representing UT.

Bentsen expresses his confidence that crime bill will pass

EL PASO (AP) — The Clinton Administration is confident it's winning the support needed for approval of a crime bill that would boost police ranks and ban assault weapons, Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen said Friday.

"I think the chances are good" that it will pass, Bentsen said during a news conference in El Paso. "I think the vote is turning around and I think the special interests that we've seen fighting some of this are going to be the losers and the country is going to be the winner."

Congressional Democrats and Republicans were working Friday to develop a $30 billion compromise bill, trimmed down from a $33 billion plan put together in July, for a possible vote in the House today.

The bill would include money to help hire 100,000 more police officers; extend the death penalty to 50 more crimes; require life sentences for some third-time felons; and, ban assault-style firearms.

Passage of the bill would not only be a positive step for the nation, but also provide a particular boon to Texas, Bentsen said.

Bentsen, a former U.S. senator from Texas, said his home state would stand to gain some $500 million and up to 6,000 new police officers if the bill passes. "It's good news for Texas," Bentsen said.

But not everyone thinks so.

Bob Starkey, an El Paso gunshop owner, said the assault weapons provision of the bill represents another government attempt to erode the rights of U.S. citizens.

"We're not so willing to equate safety with the loss of liberty," said Starkey, who was protesting outside the El Paso federal building where Bentsen held his news conference.

Beside him, a companion, Chuy Aguirre, held a sign that read in Spanish: "Solution to Crime: Real Prisons, Not Hotels."

"Controlling weapons is not controlling crime," Aguirre protested. "Controlling firearms only deprives people of their liberty."

Police arrest man accused in burning of couple

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A 29-year-old Bryan man has been arrested for allegedly throwing gasoline on a couple, then setting them afire with a cigarette lighter.

Carl Henry Blue was arrested Friday afternoon on two counts of attempted murder and was being held in the Brazos County Jail, said Richard Feenstra, public safety officer for the College Station police.

Carmen Richardson, 38, and Larence Danney Williams, 42, both suffered severe burns in the attack. According to police, one of the victims said Blue threw gasoline on them when one of the pair opened the door to leave their apartment about 8 a.m. Friday.

Ms. Richardson and Williams were taken by LifeFlight helicopter to the burn unit at Houston's Hermann Hospital, where both were listed in critical condition late Friday, hospital spokeswoman Lisa Lagrone said.

Witnesses told WTAW-KTSR in College Station that Blue was angered when Ms. Richardson ended their relationship and began dating Williams.

The fire forced about 20 residents of the Varsity II apartments out of their homes.

Cuban who fled 30 years ago by raft would do it over again

By Tom Wells
Associated Press

MIAMI — For six days, Reynaldo Cruz and four companions clung to an inner-tube raft, praying they'd make it to the United States before the heat, the hunger and the sharks circling their vessel got them.

That was 30 years ago for Cruz and his friends, who are believed to be the first to make the trip from Cuba on a homemade raft.

During the voyage, waves washed away all their food and water, and Cruz and his friends ate a sea gull raw. The blood attracted sharks that attacked their raft. They drank their own urine, and the sun burned away a lot of their skin.

Three decades later, Cruz said he would do it again. "It's difficult. It's tough," he said. "But the situation in Cuba is intolerable."

Cruz's experience has been repeated in recent days by hundreds of Cubans who risked their lives crossing the Florida Straits in small boats and rafts to reach U.S. shores.

The numbers of Cubans arriving are the largest since the Mariel exodus of 1980 brought 125,000 Cubans over a five-month period. By late Wednesday, the Coast Guard had picked up 537 Cubans, the highest single-day total since the Mariel boatlift and the third straight day this week that the record has been broken. On Tuesday, 339 Cubans were picked up and on Monday, 282.

The flood of refugees prompted Dade County Manager Joaquin Avino to ask Attorney General Janet Reno on Wednesday for more than $100 million in emergency federal aid to handle the influx.

And Gov. Lawton Chiles repeated his request to the Justice Department to make money available to help state and local governments pay for immigration costs.

Cruz, now 50, has a little house in Miami, a wife, a daughter, two sons, a dog, an old boat, a vegetable garden, lots of colorful, singing birds and a shrine to St. Barbara in his front yard.

"I've never had a moment without work," said Cruz, an employee at a smoked fish processing company. "We are religious, and we thank God for what we have."

Cruz said his decision to try to cross the 90 miles from Cuba to Key West came when his mother and five others were arrested at a house where explosives and guns were found. His mother was released.

"She never told me if she was part of the anti-government group or not," Cruz said.

One of those arrested was shot; the others went to prison for up to 30 years, he said.

A day after Cruz and his four friends finally shoved off, they still were only about 10 miles off the Cuban coast. "A patrol boat went by in the distance. We all got in the water, and they didn't see us," Cruz said.

On the third day, when Cuba's mountains could still be seen, waves washed all the provisions overboard.

"We thought about going back, but the current took us northward," Cruz said.

Shooting tragedy changes woman's life

By Peter Marks
N.Y. Times News Service

MINEOLA, N.Y. — Sometimes, late at night, Carolyn McCarthy gets phone calls from strangers looking for arguments. The callers begin by offering their condolences, but soon the tone changes, and Mrs. McCarthy finds herself on the line with another person angry over her outspoken advocacy of gun control.

Mrs. McCarthy, whose husband was killed and whose son was seriously injured in the shooting last December aboard a Long Island Rail Road train that left six people dead, says she never hangs up on them. She stays on even when people become a little cruel, intimating that her motives for appearing before the television cameras are less than pure.

"They'll say, 'You're quite an actress,' " Mrs. McCarthy recounted. "I don't answer back. I'll say, 'I'm sorry you feel that way. But hopefully what I'm doing might save your wife or son someday. Because we don't want anyone else to go through this.' "

Lately, Mrs. McCarthy has been in front of the cameras a lot. Whether lobbying in Washington for President Clinton's crime bill, or urging lawmakers in Albany to ban assault weapons, she is an increasingly visible figure in the debate over gun control.

But nothing in recent months has given her more exposure than her decision to appear in a commercial for Gov. Mario Cuomo, a campaign ad that has raised her profile in New York and thrust her advocacy into the political arena.

While it is unusual for crime victims or their relatives to make political endorsements, Mrs. McCarthy says she has no second thoughts about appearing in the ad, which has been broadcast on New York stations for about a month.

In fact, she says, she was irritated when, during a recent appearance with Cuomo in her Mineola home, reporters suggested that the Cuomo campaign was using her.

"To be used, you have to feel like you're being used," Mrs. McCarthy said. "I looked at it as, 'Who's using who?' "

A campaign aide to Cuomo called Mrs. McCarthy and asked her to make the commercial after she had appeared with the governor at several events organized to muster public support for the ban on assault weapons.

Mrs. McCarthy does not recall which aide approached her about the ad, which was partly filmed in her back yard and was made without a script.

"I didn't even have to think twice about it," she said, of her decision to appear in the commercial, adding that though she is a Republican, she felt such a kinship with the Democratic governor on the assault-weapons issue that she had no ambivalence about the ad.

The commercial has become a centerpiece of the Cuomo campaign's efforts to portray him as tough on crime, and to answer Republican attacks on the governor's vetoes of bills to reinstate the death penalty in New York.

In the 60-second commercial, which was produced by David Garth, Cuomo's media adviser, Mrs. McCarthy and Thomas F. McDermott, a lawyer from Garden City who was wounded in the Dec. 7 shooting, praise Cuomo for his opposition to capital punishment and his support for an assault-weapons ban.

"Obviously, the tragedy of the railroad shooting was so shocking that I think people are really affected by what she has to say," Joel R. Benenson, a campaign spokesman, said of Mrs. McCarthy. "She's a very compelling personality."

In the eight months since the shooting, relatives and close friends have watched Mrs. McCarthy's evolution as an advocate with a mixture of admiration and awe. It is not a role she was born to: a nurse by training, Mrs. McCarthy had no previous experience in politics or public speaking.

And she has had to juggle the demands of her new calling with the more emotionally demanding job of overseeing the recovery of her only child, Kevin, 27, who was left partially paralyzed as a result of the head wounds he sustained in the shooting.

While the families of most of the other shooting victims have shied from publicity, Mrs. McCarthy said she feels compelled to agree to interviews and accept speaking engagements that she believes will advance her cause.

She has rejected, however, all requests to speak for money, or to go on the Oprah-Montel-Sally Jessy circuit. "We got lots of flowers and chocolate chip cookie cakes from them," she said with a laugh.

Carol Neary, Mrs. McCarthy's closest friend, said that Mrs. McCarthy has always been the kind of person others turned to in an emergency. But even she was amazed at her friend's capacity to hold her emotions in check and speak extemporaneously to large groups.

"She was very shy when I met her years ago," she said. "She was more of a one to one person, not talking to a whole crowd. And all of sudden, there she was in front of the media."

Researchers: Toxic chemicals are killing eagles

CRANE CREEK STATE PARK, Ohio (NYT) — Mark Shieldcastle has both arms wrapped around "V26," an angry young eagle who has just spent nine months recovering from a broken leg and dislocated hip.

Suddenly the bird lunges at Shieldcastle's hand, which already bears scars from the time another eagle's talons ripped into his palm.

Shieldcastle, a state wildlife biologist, smiles. "He's got the tools to do some damage," he says. "The fact that he's in the mood to use them shows that he's ready to be free."

Long the national symbol of freedom, the bald eagle is taking on ominous new meaning along the Great Lakes.

Eaglets are hatching with twisted beaks and other lethal deformities. Others, with no visible defects, quietly die in their nests. Many eggs never hatch. Researchers link the deaths to toxic chemicals in the Great Lakes.

The government is considering moving the birds off the "endangered" list nationally. But the plight of Ohio's lakeshore eagles illustrates that even after vast improvement, some of the nation's worst environmental problems remain unsolved.

"The eagles are telling us we still have chemicals in the food chain that are very potent at causing birth defects," said Michael Gilbertson, a biologist with the International Joint Commission, which monitors Great Lakes water quality. "People are out there eating these fish."

This year, the Ohio Department of Health released new, detailed guidelines on the consumption of Lake Erie sport fish, advising people not to eat walleye more than once a week, or coho salmon or smallmouth bass more than once every two months. Pregnant woman are most at risk, the department said.

Like canaries in a coal mine, then, the deformed or dying eaglets who eat the fish serve as a warning for humans.

Ironically, the very existence of eagles in Ohio is evidence of major environmental successes.

Lake Erie, considered virtually dead by the late 1960s, is teeming with fish and birds because of billions of dollars spent on sewage treatment plants combined with stiffened controls on lakeside industry.

Eagles are soaring overhead after an extraordinary effort by state and federal biologists and an army of nest-guarding volunteers. That program, which involves protecting habitat, releasing young birds and constructing nests, has built Ohio's eagle population from just four pairs in 1979 to 26 pairs this year.

Nationwide, the surge in eagle numbers has been equally dramatic.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Christian music festival is today

Jesus West Texas '94 is set for today at Centennial Plaza from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

This annual Christian music festival features a diversity of Christian music and children's entertainment. Area ministries are represented and will be providing information at several ministry booths and local food vendors will be on hand with food for the whole family.

This year's schedule features, among others, Mylon LeFevre, Lisa Bevil, Steve Geyer, Alex Alexander, Tammy Renae & Texas Legacy and Shekinah Glory.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for those 6 to 12 and free to those under 6. For more information call 550-5209.

■ Hope to welcome new pastor

A dinner is planned for 6 p.m. today to officially welcome the Rev. James Pearson and his wife, Bonnie, to Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St.

Pearson has accepted the call to serve Hope Lutheran Church and will preach at the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday.

The installation service for Pearson is set for 4 p.m. Aug. 28 at the church. A Potluck Dinner will follow the service in the fellowship hall.

Today's dinner also serves as an opportunity to raise funds and receive pledges for furnishings in the church's new education wing.

Lasagna or spaghetti, salad, bread and drinks will be provided. Church members are asked to bring a dessert or baked goods for the auction following the meal. Talents or "special items" will be featured in a silent auction throughout the evening. Drew Anderson will serve as the auctioneer.

The public is invited to attend. For more information call 683-1936 or 697-4384.

■ Grace Lutheran offers preaching

Robert Macina, nephew of Midlanders Bob and Sarah Macina, will preach at Grace Lutheran Church Sunday.

Macina is beginning his fourth and final year of study at Fort Wayne Seminary, Fort Wayne, Ind. The Midland congregation provides financial support to help Macina and his wife, Tracy, while he completes his seminary training.

Macina lists his hometown as Shamrock, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Macina, reside. Before enrollment at the seminary, Macina attended Austin's Concordia Lutheran College and Concordia Lutheran College in Seward, Neb. He has just completed his year of service as a vicar in Tarrington, Wy. Upon receiving his diploma this spring, he will be eligible to serve as a Lutheran minister.

Macina will preach on the topic, "The Bread of Life," during the 10:30 a.m. service. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Donald Hafemann, vacancy pastor.

After the service, members and guests will share in an old-fashioned Potluck Dinner.

■ Synagogue's bakeoff is success

ODESSA — The first annual Challah Bakeoff at Temple Beth El here was a "huge success," said synagogue president Roy Elsner.

The bakeoff took place following Sabbath services Aug. 12. Members of the synagogue were invited to bring their challah to the temple and following services all attendees were invited to sample each one and vote.

There were two categories — hand mixed and machine mixed.

Winners in the hand mixed division were Midlanders Myrna Mayron, third place, and Julie Leventhal, second place. Odessan Lois Gilden won first place in that division.

Only two winners were announced in the machine mixed division. Second place went to Norman Gould and first place to Andree Rosen, both Midlanders.

■ Man to preach his first sermon

Douglas M. Brown will preach his first sermon at 3 p.m. Aug. 28 at Trulife Christian Fellowship, 1201 Tejas.

A member of Trulife Christian Fellowship, the 23 year old has felt a calling to preach.

■ Trinity plans Sunday School

Fall Sunday School classes for Trinity Presbyterian Church begin Sunday.

Classes are available for children ad youth, ages 18 months through 12th grade. Adult classes include a continuing Bible study based on the common lectionary readings for the church year, a study of the book "Christian Doctrine" by Shirley Gutherie, and a study of selected Old and New Testament books. All classes begin at 9:30 a.m.

In addition, two weekly Bible studies for women are beginning. One will meet from 11:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Thursdays to study the book "No Wonder They Call Him the Savior" by Max Lucado. The same book will be used in another class that will meet at the same time Mondays.

A nursery will be provided for the Monday class. Those bringing their children are asked to bring a sack lunch for them.

Also, the church's Mother's Day Out and Preschool programs are registering for the fall. A limited number of openings are still available. The MDO Program from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays offers crafts, music, exercise and special guests beginning Aug. 31. Contact J'Lynn Wheeler, 682-5325, for information or to register.

Preschool classes are 9 to 11:30 a.m. Three-year-olds attend Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning Aug. 30. Four-year-olds have the option of a five-day or three-day class beginning Aug. 29. Preschool instruction includes Spanish, gymnastics, chapel and preparation for kindergarten. Contact Rhonda Braun, 682-5021, for information or to register.

Rock 'n' roll minister tries to reach MTV generation

By Amanda Covarrubias
Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — It's Christianity leavened with pop culture.

Jeans-wearing, personal computer-toting evangelist Greg Laurie is just as apt to talk about Madonna as he is about God.

Sprinkling his high-energy sermons with sound bites from prime time television, Laurie's annual Harvest Crusade now draw thousands of devoted baby boomers and Generation Xers across Southern California and the West.

The crusade came to San Diego's Jack Murphy Stadium in late July during a three-month tour that ends in October in Albuquerque, N.M.

"You can feel God here," said Cathy Fytz of Lemon Grove, who attended the crusade with her husband, Roger, and their 5-year-old son, Daniel.

The crusades, part rock concert and part old-fashioned tent revivalism, have attracted thousands of people in California, Hawaii and New Mexico since they began in 1990.

Church members hawk Harvest Crusade T-shirts and videos outside the stadium. Christian rock bands play back-up to Laurie's lead act.

Rebels begin piecing puzzle

■ Midland Lee hopes to find answers in its only test before its season opener against El Paso Eastwood today.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

VAN HORN — Since Midland Lee has lost a scrimmage with El Paso Coronado, you can't blame Rebel coach Earl Miller if he has a tone of emergency attached to his words as Lee prepares to meet El Paso Eastwood at 1:30 p.m. here today in its only pre-season scrimmage.

"We have to see where we are," Miller says. "We have a lot of spots to fill on our team right now. We basically have a whole new offense with only one true returning starter (tackle Rex Tucker)."

Inexperience is the catch phrase for the football Lee Rebels in 1994, and Miller says the only way to rid the world of that phrase is to play against some strangers — good strangers.

"We have a tougher schedule this year, and I'm really glad of that," Miller said. "It will help us in district play. Eastwood made the playoffs last year. We have El Paso Irvin on opening week and they are now one of the top teams in El Paso. We've also got (San Antonio) Marshall in the second game and they are on par with Converse Judson. In fact, I think they tied Judson last year."

Miller had hoped to have another scrimmage under the belt by the time Irvin rolled around, but it isn't going to happen. That makes today's outing extremely important for some of the Rebel players who are fighting for a job this season.

"We've had some people come along since we started pre-season workouts," noted Miller. "We have a junior center in Toby McCarthy, who has blocked everything we've put in front of him. He's shining out there and doing an excellent job so far. But that's only one guy in the line. We need some more to step forward.

"At quarterback, John Thurman and Dedrick Adams are doing well, but that job isn't won right now. If Adams wins the job, that could make our defensive secondary weaker since he started there last year. As you can see, we have some decisions to make. Jerry Stanford is back at a wide receiver and he started some for us last year and we are counting on him."

It was easy to see a year ago that the Rebels were going to be a potent offensive team from the very

Bearkats try to avoid repeat of '93

■ Garden City hopes to return to playoff form after a year absence.

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

Forget about losing seasons. In Garden City, no team fell short of the region round of the playoffs from 1988 to '91. Which made last year's 2-7 finish, the Bearkats first non-winning football campaign since '87, that much tougher to digest.

So how does a losing season sit with players accustomed to seeing the team stick around for the playoffs? Garden City head coach Dennis Bryant believes it may work to motivate the Bearkats as they enter '94 still not back to the level of recent prominence.

"These kids found out last year nobody's going to lie down for us," said Bryant, in his third season as head coach. "They're not going to fall back on the past."

And with much more experience than last year — six returning starters on offense and seven on defense — the Bearkats could be headed back to the playoffs if not for the switch they made to a district with three tough teams. But the players seem to be showing an intense interest in avoiding another 2-7 year.

"Enthusiasm and want to and the get after it is about the highest I've ever seen," said Bryant, entering his fifth season coaching at the school. "That will pay off in the long run."

So, the Bearkats are hoping, will their new offense — the wishbone. Bryant may not be dumping the I formation for the 'bone if not for Brent Seidenberger. Seidenberger, a senior quarterback, is starting at the position for the third year. He even played four games as a freshman.

That experience at quarterback plus Bryant's wanting to spread carries among his runners figured in the offensive change.

Diablos clinch pennant

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

Texas League-leading winner Sid Roberson gave his El Paso Diablo teammates a going away present Friday at Christensen Stadium.

Roberson, who pitched his last regular-season game before heading to Jacksonville, Fla. to register for classes at the University of North Florida, did what he does best: win games at all costs.

Roberson, battling Midland's flashier starter Ryan Hancock, only struck out three and walked a not-so-spectacular five, but got the job done for a complete-game 6-1 win over the Angels. Roberson, who improved to 15-8, was doused by his teammates with a jug of ice water after the two-hour and seven-minute victory in a sendoff to Florida.

The Diablos were also celebrating a Texas League second-half championship with the win, as the second-place San Antonio Missions lost a 5-4 decision to the Wichita Wranglers Friday. It is El Paso's fifth-straight second-half title and the Diablos finished the five-game series in Midland with a 4-1 mark.

"When a team goes out and gets six runs — and they've done that almost every time I've pitched — it makes it tough to lose," said Roberson.

"I feel very fortunate," he said. "When you walk five guys, you don't really expect to get the win."

It would have been difficult for a baseball fan to look at both starters' performances and have to choose a winner and a loser. Hancock struck out 10, including eight in the first four innings while holding a shutout.

After witnessing a three-and-a-half hour hit fest Thursday night, every pitcher on the mound did their best to pick up the pace. Hancock pitched to 32 batters in seven innings, just over four batters a clip. And when Bill Simas relieved Hancock in the eighth, he was perfect with two strikeouts. Dean Locklear then gave up a walk but struck out

Fabi sets track mark at Slick 50

■ Despite a record time, Midland driver Teo Fabi will not return for the Hall racing team in 1995.

Associated Press

LOUDON, N.H. — Paul Tracy posted the fastest lap in practice Friday for Sunday's Slick 50 200, a first step toward wiping out the memory of last year's disappointing IndyCar finish.

Tracy turned in a time of 172.055 mph in an afternoon run, well above the official track record of 169.247 by Nigel Mansell at the New Hampshire International Speedway.

■ Slick 50 200

Mansell posted the time in a qualifying run for last year's race and went on to win in spectacular fashion, passing Tracy in the final three laps and then outdualing him to the finish.

Eight other drivers, including Mansell, also surpassed the record Friday on the nation's newest superspeedway. Qualifying for the race begins today.

Triathlon provides families entertainment

■ Two Midland families gear up for the 11th YMCA Hoffman Tall City Triathlon.

By Bill Petitt
Staff Writer

A hectic lifestyle has made time spent with family a rare commodity. Most families find time together at the dinner table and still some try to bond with an occasional night on the town. But for two Midland families it's athletic competition that has made the family all for one and one for all.

Today's YMCA Hoffman Memorial Tall City Triathlon will give Red McKellar and Gary Covington a chance to compete with their children and spend a little time in the wide-open terrain of West Texas.

■ Tall City Triathlon

"I don't run or work ut too often with my kids," said Covington, who won the men's 45-49 division last year with a time of one hour, 5.33 seconds. "But my son and daughter have done triathlons with me before. Both like to run, to bike and swim. They both have done individual triathlons before, but I don't think they have done the Tall City."

Covington will handle the swim leg of the course while his 13-year-old son Daniel will bike 20 kilometers and daughter Darcy will run 5 kilometers.

"I'm usually a little stronger swimmer, but this is my first triathlon this year," said Gary Covington.

The McKellars — Red and son Rhett — are competing on an individual basis. Red, owner of the Texas Refreshment Company and a sponsor in the triathlon, will compete in the men's 45-49 division while Rhett will participate in the men's 18-22 division.

"I've been doing triathlons for years, although I haven't done a triathlon this year because I've been too busy," said Red. "I have done this triathlon every year. It's a joy to do because you won't find too many better organized."

The triathlon, now in its 11th year, is named after former Midlander George Hoffman, who was killed after being hit by a motorist along Highway 191 while preparing for the Tall City Triathlon in 1986.

Originally the race was a one kilometer swim, a 30-mile bike

"We really have four pretty good tailbacks and we want to run the ball with them," Bryant said. "Instead of having just one guy back their (in the I formation) they can key on we'll have three guys that can run well."

The best of those should be Bryan Harp. The Bearkats hope he is the next in line of a string of excellent backs — James Soles, Jody Bradford, Stuart Wilde — for the Bearkats.

"He can definitely fill (Wilde's) shoes," Bryant said. Wilde rushed for 1,004 yards last year. "Bryan (Harp) didn't get the publicity last year that Stuart did. (He's) a different type runner. He's more hard nosed and he has more speed than Stuart Wilde."

As for Seidenberger, who made first team all-district as a defensive back, learning how to run the 'bone, Bryant said he and the rest of the team have done well in picking up the new offense.

"They picked this up ... a lot faster than I thought they would," said Bryant, who coached the wishbone as an assistant at Kermit. "(Seidenberger) has the speed to run the wishbone. He runs it just like he's run it all his life."

The talented QB has knee surgery after last season but came back in time to win district in the 200 meters.

The Bearkats move from a district with Wink and Rankin to the new 11-1A with Roscoe, Robert Lee, Sterling City, Bronte and Water Valley. Garden City played the first three of those schools last year and lost to all three. The Bearkats did play Robert Lee (12-8) and Sterling City (7-6) close. But Roscoe, the district favorite and ranked No. 8 in the Associated Press state Class 1A poll, beat them 41-14. Lee was a 12-1-1 quarterfinalist.

"I think it's one of the toughest Class A districts," Bryant said. "There's more teams capable of winning besides Wink and Rankin."

Joining Harp in the backfield will be combinations of junior Ryan Seidenberger, junior Allan Fuchs and sophomore Michael Cox, whose potential Bryant praised. Fullbacks candidates are sophomores Robert Cansino and William Hillger.

The Bearkat offensive line starts with junior center Juan Martinez, the heaviest player on the squad at 212. Junior Bill Lopez, the only other player listed over 200 pounds, will play tackle.

Unlike the offense, the defense will stay the same. Seidenberger, a first-team all-district performer at defensive back last year, leads the unit.

Other standouts on defense are Harp, a back, senior end Brandon Deireinger and senior tackle Ross Norton.

Garden City could have three sophomores starting on both sides of the ball and several players going both ways.

"Right now we have nine players going both ways," said Bryant. "We've got to have somebody step in and give those kids a rest."

Texas Football has Garden City finishing fourth in 11-1A, but Bryant thinks that's too high and puts Bronte ahead of his team.

The Bearkats are much more experienced than last year when they returned only five starters and had six seniors. They should win more than they did in '93 — four wins looks possible — but the days of playoff runs will probably have to remain a memory for one more year.

Seidenberger family adds tradition to Bearkat teams

By Mike Butts
Staff Writer

Garden City football has had more highs than lows in recent years. A good bit of that success can be traced to a single Glasscock County family.

If it seems like the Bearkats have had at least one Seidenberger on their roster over the last several years, it's because they have. The clan has put five players in Bearkat black and red the past seven seasons. Two, Brent and Ryan, are on the team now. Three others — John, Matt and Eric — have made All-West Texas teams, with Matt and Eric getting all-state honors.

Brent, a senior and Matt's brother, garnered all-district defensive back honors last year. Ryan, Brent and Matt's second cousin and the brother of Eric and John, is a junior and could be the last of two generations of Seidenbergers who have played Bearkat football. Gary and Dennis, the Seidenberger fathers, also played for Garden City.

"My father (Gary) and my cousins' father were really into sports when they were young and they kind of implanted that into us," Brent said. "My two older sisters played basketball and ran track."

Bearkat coach Dennis Bryant sees the family resemblance in the Seidenbergers he's coached.

"They could all be brothers," Bryant said. "They're all talented and intelligent kids. Everyone of them knocked the top off the grade point average."

Eric, a linebacker who graduated in '92, may have been the best Seidenberger athlete. But a stress fracture prevented him from trying out for the football team at Angelo State.

John, a '90 grad, plans to get his degree at Texas A&M in December and then pursue a master's degree in business at Texas Tech.

The Bearkats hit their Seidenberger saturation point last season with Matt, Brent and Ryan all on the team. But next year could mark the end of the Seiden-seasons when Ryan graduates.

So far none of the younger Seidenbergers has started a family. And Brent isn't sure whether he'll remain a Garden City resident.

"I really love this community a lot and everybody's great people around here," Brent said. "But I guess the time comes when you have to move."

And what if there had been a Seidenberger who hadn't played football?

"He'd be looked at like an oddball from the Seidenberger standpoint," Brent said.

FABI: Tracy turns in fastest qualifying time its with the fastest time in the morning session, 172.024.

(From 1C)

Behind him were Raul Boesel, Mansell, Mario Andretti, IndyCar series leader Al Unser Jr., Stefan Johansson, Emerson Fittipaldi and Eddie Cheever.

Tracy, the third member of this year's dominating Penske team, credited the condition of the track for the improved speeds.

"The track is much, much better than last year," he said. "We've got a lot of race track to work with. The track is in perfect condition."

Three weeks before last year's IndyCar race, a Winston Cup race tore up the one-mile oval, and repaving efforts met with mediocre success. The track was resurfaced again after this year's NASCAR race and the extra three weeks between the two races seems to have made a difference.

Tracy comes into the race trying to close the gap between himself and his two Penske teammates. Unser, with six victories in the 11 races, has 153 points and Emerson Fittipaldi 117. Tracy has 91, with Michael Andretti on his heels with 90.

Mansell, last year's series winner who has yet to win a race this year, had problems with a wall on turn two during his afternoon run on the cloudy, warm day.

"Everything was going fine and the next thing I knew I'm in the wall," he said. "I think a tire went flat. It was quite a wake-up call. I guess I was doing right around 170 miles per hour."

Mansell also noticed the improved track. "This track seems to be faster than either Milwaukee or Nazareth," he said.

Fabi also noticed.

"The track is a lot better than when we tested here a month ago," he said. "The new asphalt provides a lot more grip."

Fabi talked about the morning practice as a step toward redeeming himself.

He said Hall Racing told him a few weeks ago that he won't be with them next year.

"The last 1½ years have been very, very frustrating," he said. "It makes me very happy today to show when I have the car, I am able to perform well. It makes no difference for the future, but it is very good for myself."

ANGELS: Diablos capture second half title

(From 1C)

one for a four-batter, shutout ninth.

"The better pitcher doesn't always win," Roberson said. "Baseball's a strange game like that. He (Hancock) pitched a great game but he lost. I've been on the other side too."

The Diablos' performance at the plate, however, made it easy for the average fan to see which pitcher would end up with the "W" beside his name in the boxscore.

After recording only two hits off scorching Hancock in the first four, El Paso finally broke through with a two-run fifth. Hancock, who struck out two more in that stanza, did his best to prevent it though.

Diablo third baseman Antone Williamson led off with a single over the shortstop's head but when Mike Stefanski reached base on an error by Chris Pritchett, who was playing third base instead of his normal first base slot, things started to get hairy for Hancock.

He struck out the next two but Mike Basse drove in two runs with a single to left and Hancock was behind, even though both runs were unearned. El Paso scored another in the sixth to take a 3-0 lead before Larry Gonzales drove in Pritchett for Midland's only run of the game in the bottom of the sixth.

El Paso added three more runs on three hits in the seventh and that was enough for Hancock, who fell to 1-4 for the season.

Since both pitchers were performing well, Roberson said the win came down to whose offense and defense played the best.

"I just started to throw them (pitches) in there and let them hit it and let the outfield take care of that," said Roberson, who was the California League pitcher of the year in 1993.

REBELS: Midland Lee, Eastwood collide today

beginning. Lee belted Eastwood by a 10-1 touchdown margin in an early scrimmage. Eastwood went on to post a 9-1-1 overall record. They were 10-2 the season before, owning a bi-district championship under coach Todd Ware.

It would seem that Lee's chances of throwing another 10-1 rout on the Troopers would be slim this time around, unless the Rebels are further along than Miller thinks.

"Some people think this is a rebuilding year for us," Miller said, "but it's more than that. This is the biggest challenge we've had since I've been here. We need to be playing people. That makes this scrimmage a big one because we won't have as many opportunities to make personnel decisions with only one scrimmage to look at."

ride and a 10-kilometer run.

Since then, the Tall City has shortened its course to a 500-meter swim, 20-kilometer bike ride and a five-kilometer run.

In past years the course began at the Doug Russell Swim Center on Midland Drive, but due to heavy construction along Loop 250, the race will begin at the City of Midland Swim Complex. The bike route will go from Airpark Road to Big Spring, east on Loop 250 before turning around near the Highway 80 intersection. Then the running route goes into the neighborhood near Christensen Stadium, formerly Angels Stadium. The race ends along the infield of the stadium.

A late rush of entrants has boosted the field to 101 as of Thursday with a total of 140 athletes competing in both individual and team competition. Last year 103 participated in the individual race and 155 in all.

Back to defend their divisions are Paul Marrow (men 20-24), Joel Craig (men 30-34), Covington (men 45-49) and Jerry Vorheis (men 50-54).

In the women's division, former Midlander Karen Hagner, who won the entire women's division last year with a time of 1 hour, three minutes and 24 seconds, returns as does Sandy Jones (women (35-39) and Teri Valeres (women 40-44).

Bodine holds off charging Andrettiat Goodwrench 400

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Nine thousandths of a second is all that kept John Andretti from stealing the pole away from Geoff Bodine in Friday's opening round of qualifying for Sunday's GM Goodwrench Dealers 400.

Andretti, a NASCAR rookie making his first start for Richard Petty's team, gave Bodine a moment of trepidation when his lap time of 39.770-seconds and speed of 181.041 mph were announced near the end of time trials.

Bodine, who earlier set a Michigan International Speedway qualifying record of 181.082 with a lap clocked at 39.761 seconds on the 2-mile, high-banked oval, heard the PA drone: "Wow! Look at this. John Andretti's lap of 39-point-7 ... ."

"When they started saying the time, my heart stopped," Bodine said. "That was too close. He did a heckuva job.

"I'm happy for him," Bodine added. "I've been telling people he's a good, talented driver.

The fractional time difference gave Bodine, who drives his own Ford Thunderbirds, his third pole of the season and the 33rd of his career. Andretti, who recently lost his regular ride when Billy Hagan closed up his unsponsored team's operation, had the best qualifying effort of his budding NASCAR Winston Cup career.

NEW ORLEANS — Chris Jacke's 36-yard field goal late in the fourth quarter gave the Green Bay Packers a 13-10 victory over the New Orleans Saints on Friday night.

The Packers (2-1) spoiled the Saints (0-3) first home game of the preseason with Jacke's second field goal of the night, after a 34-yard punt by Tommy Barnhardt set Green Bay up on New Orleans' 46-yard line.

Mark Brunell, Green Bay's quarterback in the fourth quarter, scrambled 12 yards in the 28-yard drive, before Jacke came on.

Jim Everett, making his first start in the Superdome as a member of the Saints, gave New Orleans a 7-0 lead seven plays into the game. Everett passed for 56 yards in the 63-yard drive before Derek Brown plunged in for a 1-yard touchdown.

Everett completed 10 of 16 for 102 yards, threw one interception and was sacked once in the first half.

Brett Favre completed 8 of 12 for 124 yards and a touchdown in one half for the Packers, and was also sacked once.

Green Bay struggled against the Saints defense in the first quarter, picking up their only first down with 56 seconds left when Favre hit Edgar Bennett for 24 yards.

Favre kept the drive going in the second quarter, moving 74 yards on nine plays then hitting 6-foot-5 tight end Mark Chmura for a 10-yard touchdown.

The score remained 7-7 at the half, thanks to an interception by Green Bay's Corey Harris.

The Saints drove all the way to the Packers' 5-yard line. Then, with 21 seconds left, Everett threw an ill-advised pass to Torrance Small, which ended up in the hands of Harris instead.

In the third quarter, New Orleans collected its first turnover of the preseason. Vince Buck hammered the football out of Chmura's grasp and into James Williams' hands, who ran it back to the Green Bay 40.

Green Bay, which came into the game looking to improve its running game after rushing for just 199 yards in its first two preseason contests, did not find the key against the Saints.

Bennett had just 12 yards on five carries. Reggie Cobb, the free agent acquisition touted as the answer to the Packers' rushing problems, had 10 yards on three carries — giving him 43 yards on 18 carries in three games.

Brown rushed for 23 yards and a touchdown on seven carries to lead the Saints. Mario Bates added 20 yards on 10 carries.

Morten Andersen's first field goal of the preseason, a 29-yarder, put New Orleans up 10-7 in the third quarter.

Jacke's 29-yarder tied it at 10-10 in the fourth quarter.

Ty Detmer, who is battling Brunell for Green Bay's backup quarterback spot, completed 6 of 11 for 63 yards. Brunell went 5-for-6 for 16 yards.

Wade Wilson worked the third quarter for the Saints, going 5-for-8 for 53 yards, and was sacked once. Doug Nussmeier completed 3 of 8 for 29 yards with one interception in the fourth quarter.

Lions 24, Cardinals 16

PONTIAC, Mich. — Arizona had "Buddy Ball," but the Detroit Lions were too tall and that was the difference in a preseason victory over the Cardinals.

Scott Mitchell, a 6-foot-6 quarterback, completed 12 of 22 passes for 200 yards and two touchdowns, both to 6-3 Herman Moore. Together they ganged up on Arizona cornerback Aeneas Williams.

Williams, who had two interceptions for the Cardinals in 1993, is considered one of the better cornerbacks in the NFC. But at 5-foot-10, he was no match for a receiver like Moore, who had four catches for 90 yards and two TDs, catching balls from a quarterback who can see over most linemen.

Derrick Moore scored Detroit's other touchdown on a 1-yard run and Jason Hanson kicked a 42-yard field goal for the Lions, who were 10-6 in 1993 and are 2-1 this preseason.

Larry Centers caught a 5-yard TD pass from Beuerlein and added a 1-yard scoring run. Greg Davis kicked a 32-yard field goal for Arizona.

The Cardinals, 7-9 last season, slipped to 1-2 in the preseason.

Browns 28, Falcons 7

CLEVELAND — Cleveland scored 14 first-half points off turnovers and Vinny Testaverde added a 16-yard touchdown pass to Michael Jackson as the Browns beat Atlanta.

The Browns (3-0) ensured their best preseason record in four years under coach Bill Belichick. They last went 4-0 in 1986.

Atlanta (2-2) committed five turnovers and 16 penalties, ruining reasonably good performances by quarterback Jeff George (114 yards, one touchdown) and running back Erric Pegram (20 carries, 84 yards). The Falcons outgained Cleveland 271-269 yards.

The Browns played volleyball with George's first pass of the game, tipping it twice before Stevon Moore intercepted and returned it 38 yards to the Atlanta 4-yard line. Three plays later, Tommy Vardell scored to put the Browns ahead for good, and Cleveland added a two-point conversion after Atlanta jumped offsides on the PAT kick.

Matt Stover kicked two short field goals in the final 27 seconds of the half, both set up by Atlanta mistakes. Eric Turner returned Pegram's fumble 28 yards to set up the first one, and on the ensuing kickoff, Anthony Phillips' ill-advised lateral was scooped up by Greg Tremble, positioning Stover for a 27-yarder as the half expired.

The Browns, who totaled only 80 yards offense in the first half, finally got untracked in the third quarter when Testaverde completed all five of his passes on a 79-yard drive capped by Jackson's touchdown.

The 28 points were the most scored by Cleveland in a preseason game since a 30-24 overtime victory against Green Bay in 1987.

Oilers defense responds without Buddy system

■ TV: Houston vs. Buffalo, 7 p.m., ESPN.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Buddy Ryan, William Fuller and Sean Jones are gone, but the defense they left behind for new Houston Oilers defensive coordinator Jeff Fisher is humming at regular season form.

The defense will go into today's exhibition game against the Buffalo Bills in the Alamodome with a string of eight quarters without allowing a touchdown.

The Oilers beat the Dallas Cowboys 6-0 in Mexico City's muddy Aztec Stadium on Monday for their first shutout of the preseason. That followed a 31-3 victory over San Diego on Aug. 6.

The Oilers have a plus 7 in takeways and they've outscored the opposition 35-0 off turnovers.

There were dark forecasts for the Oilers defense after Ryan, who installed the 46 defense last season, left to become head coach at Arizona and Jones and Fuller became free agent casualties.

No one is worried now.

"I admit, even I was worried," cornerback Cris Dishman said. "But now I see the players we've got can play this defense. We still have great players here and we're playing together as a unit. That's the main thing."

The Oilers will get to test their defense against old nemesis Buffalo, which rallied for the biggest playoff comeback in NFL history to beat the Oilers in the playoffs two seasons ago.

Trailing by 32 points in the third quarter, the Bills rallied to a 41-38 overtime victory.

"People have to understand that this is a second-year defense and we expect them to play better," Fisher said.

The Bills broke camp early last year and made it to the Super Bowl. Coach Marv Levy decided to do the same routine this year, cutting training camp two days short.

That doesn't mean the Bills are ready for the regular season.

"We really have half of it left, an important half, because we have two games left to play," Levy said. "We haven't had enough chance to look at any position."

Aggies look to be tough despite probation

By Michael A. Lutz

■ SWC Preview

COLLEGE STATION — R.C. Slocum is trying to understand why everyone is worried about Texas A&M being motivated for the 1994 season.

Just because they're on probation, off television and out of the bowl picture doesn't mean the Aggies won't be among the top teams in the nation, Slocum says. And it doesn't mean the Aggies won't help determine who gets to take their spot in the Cotton Bowl.

There's also a love of football.

"You look at all of the 105 Division I-A schools and most of them don't go to a bowl game," Slocum said Friday. "I never went to a bowl game when I was in college, but I loved playing the game."

The Aggies have won the last three Southwest Conference titles and have a 22-game SWC winning streak to keep intact, even if they won't get to represent the league on New Year's Day.

"It's kind of like we are the underdogs," linebacker Antonio Armstrong said. "Nobody expects us to do anything this year, but nothing has changed. We want to go out and win all 11 games. We just can't win the championship."

Outsiders may have trouble understanding that the Aggies will be as motivated as ever.

"If this program had a bunch of problems and suddenly we can't go to a bowl game, maybe it would affect our motivation," Slocum said. "But our team knows what happened. We talked about it."

The Aggies were placed on five years probation in January. They are banned from bowls and television this season because five players took money from a Texas A&M booster for jobs they did not perform.

"The public's perception of what happened is that some fat-cat booster paid players," Slocum said. "What happened was we had some players who found a way to beat the system and skipped out on their summer jobs."

The players will remain motivated because most of them did nothing wrong and still have a chance to win on the field, Slocum said.

"The problem that happened to us could have happened to any other team in the country," Slocum said. "None of the other 105 schools can monitor what all of their kids do in the summer.

"I'm not going to walk around with my head down because we did everything that we could do."

Slocum thinks the Aggies' ban from television is unfair to both A&M and to some of their opponents who won't get television money. Those affected include Oklahoma, Texas and Louisville.

"I've always felt that the punishment should go to the people responsible," Slocum said.

Americans shine at Van Damme meet

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Linford Christie continued his reign over the 100 meters in the Van Damme Memorial on Friday as Mike Powell and Colin Jackson moved within a victory of sharing a pot of gold.

In the women's 100, Gwen Torrence edged Russia's Irina Privalova, who had been unbeatable since the U.S. star beat her in the Goodwill Games.

Powell provided the best drama, with a comeback victory over compatriot Kareem Streete-Thompson to keep his perfect record in the Golden Four meets alive with only Berlin to come.

Jackson cruised to an easy victory in the 110 hurdles. After winning in Oslo and Zurich, victory in Berlin on Aug. 30 will give him at least half of 20 kilos in gold.

Four athletes went into the Van Damme with a shot at gold, but American Derrick Adkins finished fourth in the 400 hurdles and Kenya's Wilson Kipketer was beaten at the tape by countryman Patrick Konchellah in the 800.

After winning a highly-charged 100 in Zurich on Wednesday, Christie reconfirmed his supremacy over Americans Dennis Mitchell and Jon Drummond in a time of 10.03 seconds even though he was slow out of the blocks. Once he was fully upright, he ran away from the field in the last 50 meters.

"If the conditions are better, I can run a lot faster," Christie said.

Lowery's 7 birdies give him International lead

Associated Press

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. — Showing little fear of sand and little regard for his better-known competitors, Steve Lowery carded seven birdies in a bogey-free round Friday to take the lead at the halfway point of the International.

Lowery, whose best finish in seven seasons on the PGA Tour was a second at San Diego earlier this year, earned 14 points and had a two-round total of 21 points under the modified Stableford system.

"It was one of the best rounds I've played all year," said Lowery, 33.

Lowery didn't have a "5" on his card, birdieing all four of the par-5s. On three of them, he hit his second shot into sand bordering the green and got up-and-down for birdie.

"I wouldn't say sand play is the strength of my game," Lowery said, "but it was good today. I was fortunate that on all of those bunker shots, I had room to land the ball.

"Making seven birdies, obviously I was putting well, and I drove the ball really well, too."

Equaling Lowery's plus-14 as the day's best score was Dave Stockton Jr., who was at plus-20 along with Mike Reid. Keith Clearwater had 19 points, Tom Lehman 17 and Tom Kite 16.

Hale Irwin, who holed out a pitching wedge at the par-4 15th for an eagle worth 5 points, was in a group at 15.

First-round leader Bruce Lietzke, who began the day with 16 points, was at 14.

Masters champion Jose Maria Olazabal vaulted into contention with an eagle and two birdies — worth 9 points — in a span of four holes to finish at plus-13 along with 1986 International champion Ken Green.

U.S. Open winner Ernie Els had 7 points for a plus-12 total.

Defending champion Phil Mickelson, rallying from zero points Thursday, had 11 on Friday. Tom Watson and Fred Couples also were in contention with 9 and 8, respectively.

Among those missing the cut were John Daly and 1987 International winner John Cook.

Under the scoring system, a player receives 8 points for a double eagle, 5 for eagle, 2 for birdie, zero for par, minus-1 for bogey and minus-3 for double bogey or worse.

Points are cumulative over all four rounds, with the 144-player field being reduced to 72 for the third round and to 24 for the final round.

LPGA Chicago Challenge

NAPERVILLE, Ill. — Ellie Gibson didn't get a chance to attempt a 25-foot birdie putt for the lead on the final hole Friday because lightning and the threat of a tornado forced the suspension of play at the LPGA Chicago Challenge.,

Gibson, who began the day a shot behind first-round leader Katie Peterson-Parker, was among 11 players scheduled to complete the second round Saturday morning on the White Eagle Golf Club course.

She was set to finish the round before the weather siren sounded but backed off her ball when she was distracted by playing partner Connie Chillemi.

Peterson-Parker, who shot a 72, was tied with Kathryn Marshall, Janice Gibson, Michelle Estill, Dale Eggeling and Jane Geddes at 137.

Marshall, a 27-year-old Scot who has earned just $24,069 this season on the LPGA Tour, had the day's best round with a bogey-free 66 in the windy conditions.

"I'm used to it over there," Marshall said. "If there is a good wind this weekend, it would be great."

Janice Gibson, Estill and Eggeling shot 67s and Geddes had a 69.

Kim Shipman (69), Barb Mucha (70), Cathy Johnston-Forbes (70), Margaret Platt Platt (70), Michelle McGann (71) and Susie Redman (71) were two back at 139.

Defending champion Cindy Schreyer shot an 82 to miss the cut with a 158 total.

Seniors-Burnet

COON RAPIDS, Minn. — Partly because of his son's advice — and partly despite it — Dick Rhyan had a rare view from the top of a Senior PGA Tour leaderboard.

With his golf pro son, Tad, serving as his caddy, Rhyan shot a 6-under-par 66 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the first round of the Burnet Senior Classic.

"Tad was on the (PGA) Tour last year but he lost his card. He's getting ready to go to tour qualifying school," Rhyan said.

Tom Weiskopf and George Archer were one stroke back. Dave Stockton, Bob E. Smith and Jim Dent were two behind the leader. Jim Albus, Larry Gilbert and Bob Brue each shot 69 at the 6,909-yard Bunker Hills Golf Course. Defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez, who hasn't won since last year's Burnet, remained in his slump with a 73.

Jose Maria Olazabal pitches out of the sand during the second round of the International at Castle Rock, Colo., Friday. Olazabal finished the day with 13 points which qualified him for the third round.

Nike Texarkana

TEXARKANA, Ark. — Mike Brisky closed with three consecutive birdies for a 7-under-par 65 and a two-stroke lead over Sonny Skinner and David Kirkpatrick after the second round of the Nike Texarkana Open on Friday.

"I worked on slowing up my swing and it really felt a lot better than yesterday," said Brisky, who had a 13-under 131 total on the Texarkana Country Club course. "I putted quite well again. I feel good on the greens and the grain seems to be treating me right."

Kirkpatrick shot a 65 and Skinner had a 66.

Stich survives scare at Volvo tourney

Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — No. 1 seed Michael Stich dropped a set for the first time in the Volvo International but still beat No. 8 Patrick Rafter 6-2, 5-7, 6-1 on Friday in a tournament disrupted by rain a third straight day.

Stich was leading Rafter 6-2, 5-4 when the match, which started 90 minutes late because of the first rain-delay of the day, was stopped when it started to rain again.

After a 15-minute delay, Stich lost his service and the set. But he broke Rafter early in the third and went on to become the first player to advance to the semifinals before play was suspended a third time about 4 p.m. EDT.

No. 6 Yevgeny Kafelnikov was leading unseeded Marc Goellner 7-6 (7-2), 5-7, 3-1, and No. 3 Boris Becker led No. 11 MaliVai Washington 3-0 when play was stopped. No. 2 Andrei Medvedev and No. 7 Marc Rosset were scheduled to play a night match.

RCA Championships

Edberg lost 1-6, 6-2, 6-4, leaving seventh-seeded Wayne Ferreira of South Africa the only seed left at the Indianapolis Tennis Center.

"I had no legs today," said Edberg, who less than 18 hours earlier looked good in a victory over Richard Krajicek of The Netherlands.

AP Laserphoto

Olivier Delaitre bested Jonathan Stark 6-4, 7-6 (10-8) to advance into the semifinals at the RCA Championships Friday.

Earlier, Ferreira posted a straight-set victory over Thomas Enqvist of Sweden, 6-2, 6-2, to advance to the semifinals, where he will face Corretja.

Olivier Delaitre continued his impressive run with a 6-4, 7-6 victory over Jonathan Stark of Seattle.

Bronx Pro Classic

NEW YORK — Thierry Champion of France upset third-seeded Neil Borwick of Australia 6-3, 6-2 Friday to advance to the semifinals of the USTA Bronx Pro Classic.

Matinee

MONTREAL — Steffi Graf shrugged off a poor start and won the final 11 games to beat Gabriela Sabatini 7-5, 6-0 Friday in the Matinee International tournament.

The top-seeded Graf, whose sore back caused her to stop play twice for treatment on Wednesday, started slowly against Sabatini, training 5-2 at one point with Sabatini serving at 30-love.

But Graf won the next five games to take the first set.

Teen swimmer shines at championships

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Whitney Phelps established herself as one of America's rising female swimming stars Friday by winning the 200-meter butterfly in 2 minutes, 11.04 seconds at the National Swimming Championships.

The 14-year-old's time was the third best in the world this year. Only Limin Liu and Zhu Hong, both of China, have gone faster.

Phelps, who will be a freshman at Towson High School this fall and represents the North Baltimore Aquatic Club, won her championship in a final that included four former national champions in the event. Sarah Anderson, who had the fastest qualifying time but was last after the first 50 meters, finished second in 2:12.83 and Michelle Griglione, the recent Goodwill Games champion who won the event in this year's spring nationals was third in 2:13.00.

"I knew that I had a chance to win. I didn't think about the competition," Phelps said.

"I felt really good. I wasn't that nervous," added Phelps, who was selected the meet's top rookie when she finished second in both butterfly races last year. "I just felt smooth and loose."

Other winners determined Friday on the final day to qualify for next month's World Championships at Rome included Olympic silver medalist Greg Burgess, 200 individual medley, 2:00.90; Amy Van Dyken, 50 freestyle, 25.37; three-time national mile champion Carlton Bruner, 1,500 free, 15:12.37; and Barbara Bedford, 200 back, 2:11.29.

The meet at the Indiana University Natatorium ends Saturday with the women's 1,500 freestyle and the men's 800 freestyle — two non-Olympic events which are not included in the World Championships.

Burgess was under the world record pace of Tamas Darnyi of Hungary at the midway point and was challenging the American record of 2:00.11 with 50 meters to go. But, he had a 29.69 split for the final segment of the race while posting the second fastest time in the world for the event this year.

"I'm probably not in the best shape," said Burgess, who graduated from Florida this spring. "I've had a couple of problems training this summer. ... I'm feeling that all my strokes are pretty well and my technique is really good."

The 22-year-old was third after the opening segment of the race and took the lead for good on the second segment.

"I just didn't feel that I trained as hard as I should this summer," Burgess said. "It's something that happens to a lot of athletes. Hopefully, I'll be able to get back on track for the Olympics."

Lee, MHS falter in v-ball tourney

MONAHANS — Midland High and Midland Lee both faltered in pool play Friday in the 21st Annual Monahans Volleyball Tournament and moved to the consolation round where both teams will have morning matches today.

There were four round robin pools of four teams each and each team played three shortened matches that do not count toward overall records. The teams played two games in the match starting each at a 4-4 tie and the winner is the first to 15 points.

Lee, the District 4-5A runnerup last year, lost their first five games and then defeated Big Spring in the second game of that match to finish with a 1-5 pool play record. The Lady Rebels will play defending 4-5A champ San Angelo Central at 8 a.m. Midland High was one of three teams with a 4-2 record in its pool but was still placed in the consolation bracket where the Lady Bulldogs will play Crane at 9 a.m.

Also in the consolation bracket was 4-5A third-place team Odessa High. The consolation semifinals begin at noon while the championship match will be played at 3 p.m. Today's matches will be regulation length and will count towards the season record.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, AUGUST 20, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A promising relationship continues to grow. Get business on a sound financial footing and the tensions affecting a partnership will subside. Creative projects prove especially rewarding in late fall. Romance is another source of deep satisfaction. Family members reconcile during the winter holidays. Early in 1995, encourage young adults to live up to their potential. A hasty marriage or business alliance could prove short-lived. Weigh your choices carefully.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: news anchor Connie Chung, dancer Carla Fracci, baseball player Tom Brunansky, musician Isaac Hayes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A flurry of activity during the early hours will be followed by a lull. This should give you time to prepare for tomorrow. A picnic or trip to the beach provides an inexpensive diversion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not dismiss a generous offer or constructive suggestion out of hand. It may contain hidden gold. A calm, confident attitude will put you in the driver's seat where romance is concerned. Avoid acting insecure.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Share your specialized knowledge with those who need it most. A humanitarian gesture will never be regretted. Renewing old ties proves rewarding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Someone may be trying to put the cart before the horse in a business deal. Step in and straighten things out if you want to win points with influential people. Nurture an important friendship.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Heed a desire to help others. Promoting a creative idea or educational project will convince loved ones you are tops! Plan inexpensive entertainment by inviting neighbors and friends to a barbecue or potluck supper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You find the inspiration that you felt was missing! Forge ahead with a new plan. Everywhere you go, you will find allies. A regular racquetball or tennis date will help you shed unwanted pounds.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not let the memory of a failure prevent you from trying again. The situation has changed greatly. Guard against romantic upheavals. Asking for more than you can give would be a mistake. Go slow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Indulge a longing to get away from daily tensions. Whether you decide to enjoy the seclusion of your own home or escape to the countryside, listen to some good music. Read an entertaining book.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Recent events may have caused a creative block. Try to sort out your emotions. Philosophy, poetry and painting all hold special appeal this weekend. Enjoy a day or night on the town.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lending a helping hand could boost a teen-ager's self-confidence. Be supportive. A business decision must be reached without further delay. Make a choice you know you can live with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be more considerate of mate or partner. A phone call or letter rekindles your interest in the past. Self-discipline is essential to good health. Curb a tendency to eat or drink too much.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stop feeling sorry for yourself. Go after what you want! Old friends and family ties mean more to you than ever. Say "no" to additional debts. Consider taking classes in writing or public speaking.

Chelsea Clinton tries to hide out during sailing lessons

NEWPORT, R.I. — Chelsea Clinton has been learning to tack, jibe and reef during an intensive series of sailing lessons.

A brisk wind propelled the president's 14-year-old daughter through day four of a beginner's course Thursday on Narragansett Bay.

Chelsea's visit was a well-kept secret, until rumors of her presence began circulating after a few sightings.

With her braided hair tucked under a blue Iowa Cubs baseball cap, she stepped nimbly across the foredeck to untie lines and haul down sails.

"We've tried to treat her just as any student and work her just as hard, and she's been super," said Geoffrey Clifford, director of Newport's J-World sailing school.

NEW YORK — Guess the answer: How did Robert Redford try to get extra cash as a struggling young actor? Time's up: He appeared on a quiz show.

"This was not to be a contestant, but someone the contestants were supposed to guess about," Redford says in the Aug. 21 issue of The New York Times Magazine. "I was told I'd get paid $75 for being on the show."

As struggling actor, Robert Redford appeared on a quiz show for extra cash.

Redford, who directed the movie "Quiz Show" due out next month, stood behind a screen with two other men. Contestants looked at their profiles and tried to guess which one was the twin brother of another man on the show. They picked Redford.

"When the show was over I went to get my pay and they handed me a fishing rod," Redford told the magazine. "I said, 'Where's my $75?' They said, 'The fishing rod is worth $75 — it's from Abercrombie & Fitch.' "

That was his first "payment" in show business, Redford recalled.

ATLANTA — Sorry, ladies, no more Diet Coke breaks.

Lucky Vanous doesn't think he'll do another television commercial as the bare-chested construction worker ogled by eager women.

"How could you top it?" Vanous said a recent mall appearance. "It would be difficult for lightning to strike twice."'

About 300 women crowded the mall for a glimpse of Vanous. "He's even better-looking in person than he is on TV!" said Celia Snyder as Vanous strolled by.

Three women who got lucky in a contest won a lunch with Vanous at a mall restaurant.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — If tomorrow never comes, Garth Brooks' managers won't be splitting up. But they've decided to end their seven-year partnership at year's end.

Under the guidance of Pam Lewis and Bob Doyle, the singer-songwriter from Oklahoma became a household name. Brooks' 1991 album, "Ropin' the Wind," was the first ever to make its debut at No. 1 simultaneously on the country and pop album charts. His hits include "If Tomorrow Never Comes" and "Friends in Low Places."

Doyle owns a publishing company. Lewis is chief executive officer of a newly formed record label that's about to release an album by Brooks' sister, Betsy Smittle.

Lewis said she doesn't know what impact the split will have on Brooks, who was in Australia with Doyle and wasn't available to comment.

"Garth is going to re-evaluate everything when he gets back from Europe at the end of his international tour," she said. "I'm hoping to do some other projects down the road with Garth, but right now he just wants to regroup, and, I think, take a breather, frankly."

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Who wants pie? Dennis Miller enjoys being a homebody here since he moved away from Los Angeles last year.

"It's paradise," Miller said this week to promote two shows Saturday at the Ventura Concert Theatre. "I mean L.A. makes the 'Blade Runner' look like a Norman Rockwell painting.

"It was time to get out before it all came tumbling down."

The "Saturday Night Live" alum, nominated for two Emmys for his HBO series, loves to train his acidic wit on the social condition.

His favorite target?

"The hologram that is Bill Clinton. But Clinton, I know, is intelligent enough to know that he is full of it."

NOTICE

Proposal to contract with TDPRS for the provision of Preparation for Adult Living training services to teenagers in substitute care in the conseratorship of TDPRS.

The Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services (TDPRS) will issue a "Request for Proposal" (RFP) 02-94-02 on August 22, 1994, for the provision of "Preparation for Adult Living" training services to teenagers living in substitute care during the period November 1, 1994 through October 31, 1995. Services will be contracted for the following counties: Archer, Baylor, Clay, Cottle, Foard, Hardeman, Jack, Knox, Montague, Throckmorton, Wichita, Wilbarger, Young.

Proposals must cover the entire area listed in the RFP in order to be considered. Persons interested in submitting an offer must have experience working with TDPRS Child Protective Services clients.

If you would like to receive a copy of the proposal requirements for this RFP, please write to Elaine Holt, Administrative Tech, Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services, P.O. Box 6635, Abilene, Texas 79608, or call 915/672-6814, extension 210. There is an Offeror's Conference scheduled at 10:00 a.m. on September 14, 1994, at 901 South 4th, Abilene, Texas, on the second floor in Conference Room C. The deadline for acceptance of proposals is 5:00 p.m., October 3, 1994.

The Department of Protective and Regulatory Services reserves the right to refuse or reject all proposals or to accept the proposal most advantageous to the State of Texas.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?

Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?

Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?

A small deposit is required.
