

Redfish Bill Signed Into Law By Governor Clements

The much-debated bill banning commercial catches of redfish and speckled trout on the Texas Coast will become law on September 1. Governor Bill Clements signed the controversial bill on Wednesday, May 20 but commercial fishermen who have been protesting the bill for weeks say the fight against the legislation isn't over yet.

"The battle's just now started," said John Null, president of the Corpus Christi chapter of PISCES. PISCES is an organization of commercial fishermen and affiliates fighting the ban on redfish and trout.

In a telephone interview on Thursday, Null said, "It'll wind up in the courts, all the way to the Supreme Court."

The controversial pieces of legislation passed the Senate on Tuesday, May 19. By that time area protests stepped up, with peaceful boat blockades set up at several points on the Intracoastal Canal.

The new law completely bans all commercial catching of trout and redfish for the next two years, while allowing sports fishermen to catch 10 reds and 20 trout per day. The lack of any control on the sportsmen is one of the major points of contention in the fray.

Null stated that the law "has put a minority out of work," he continued, "The Reagan administration, which our governor should be a part of, does not want those people in soup lines when another group is out catching those same fish for fun."

"This is denying commercial fishermen with a license, to catch those fish and allowing another group to pay $4.50 for a license and catch all they want. If that's equal rights under the Constitution, then I don't know what the Constitution says," Null said.

Corpus Christi attorney William Bonilla, among others, has declared the bill unconstitutional. Bonilla, who has been advising Corpus Christi area fishermen, has urged them to violate the law in September to see how the effort to enforce it is made.

At that point an injunction against the state could be made and the state would not be allowed to interfere with any fishermen until the first complaint is tried and the appeal is complete.

The constitutionality of the law could then be raised as an issue in the trial of the first complaint filed by the state, according to Bonilla.

Said Null, "We'll be catching fish after September 1."

Area Sales Tax Rebates Growing

AUSTIN — Rockport's city sales tax rebates for the first five months of this year are up by 76 percent over returns for the same period in 1980, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

In Fulton, city sales tax returns — which the city has only been collecting since March of last year — are up a whopping 614 percent from the first five months of 1980.

The optional one percent city sales tax is collected along with the four percent state sales tax and is rebated monthly to the cities by Bullock's office.

Rockport's tax returns were boosted by a sizable increase in the rebates this month — the tax collected on sales in April — Bullock said.

The return on sales for April, 1981, amounted to $66,115.34, compared to a rebate of just over $19,000 for April, 1980. This pushed the city's total sales tax rebate for the year to date to $140,379.19 for the first five months, compared to $79,559.36 for the first five months of last year.

Fulton's sales tax rebate from April sales amounted to $4,024.66 compared to $973.43 for April of 1980. The city's year-to-date totals amount to $12,554.76, compared to less than $2000 last year.

Local sales tax returns compared favorably with those of other area cities. In Aransas Pass, April sales tax collections of just over $53,000 pushed the city's year-to-date totals to $157,771.40, an increase of 56 percent over last year's figures.

Port Aransas sales tax totals for the year-to-date were 72 percent above last year's, a total of $44,025.11, helped by April tax collections of $18,069.84.

Ingliside collections for April amounted to $25,524.42, a total of $57,918.10 for the year so far. This was 82 percent over last year's totals.

In Portland, sales tax collections for 1981 to date are running 81 percent above last year's, with a total of $160,932.52 rebated for the year, and in Gregory, collections are 64 percent above last year's, a five-month total of $13,494.80.

Sales tax collections in Bayside amounted to $773.71 for April.

City To Consider Adopting Building Code

A Rockport proposal to adopt the Southern Standard Building Code for construction in the city will be the topic of a meeting at City Hall Wednesday, May 27, at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting has been set by City Inspector Mike

Henry who will meet with area building contractors and other interested residents to discuss the Code and answer any questions about it.

The meeting will also give contractors an opportunity to suggest any local adaptations to the proposed Code.

Rockport's city council will consider adoption of the building code in a later meeting.

Henry said he sent letters to 12 major builders, "most from this area," inviting them to the May 27 meeting.

He added the meeting will be open to anyone else who wants to attend.

The Southern Standard

Building Code is used by cities throughout the south and southwest as the guiding ordinance for construction in the cities. The Code may be adopted as is or with modifications to fit local needs.

The City of Rockport does not presently have any building code, although Henry said, "Most building down here is pretty well up to snuff."

Request For Sewer Service To Oak Shore Inn Site Set For Rockport Council Review

A request that would provide sanitary sewer service to the area now occupied by Oak Shore Inn — tabled earlier this month — will come before Rockport's city council again Tuesday, May 26.

The meeting, which will begin with a joint public hearing between the council and the city planning and zoning commission at 7 p.m., is postponed from Monday, May 25, because of the Memorial Day holiday.

In action relating to the Oak Shore Inn request, the council expects to receive a report from Urban Engineers, the city's engineering firm, on an updated study of a city-owned pressure line on Highway 35 North.

Oliver Hensler, owner of the property on which Oak Shore Inn is located, told city officials the site will be cleared for development and requested city permission to hook onto the city-owned line.

During the joint public hearing, council and zoning board members are expected to hear a request from the Aransas County Navigation District for a blanket permit that would allow the District to give permission for certain activities to be conducted on Navigation District property.

Permission would be granted on condition that the activities would be in compliance with all city of Rockport ordinances.

Also scheduled for Tuesday's meeting is a request from Robo Car Wash for a hookup to city sanitary sewer lines that will permit construction of a Robo Wash on Highway 35 North.

Among items that could be considered Tuesday is a request by Candlestick Subdivision for permission to tie onto city sanitary sewer lines. This request

Local Fishermen Protest With Parade In Rockport Ski Basin

Some three dozen shrimp-boats and skiffs took part in a parade of protest Tuesday, May 19 following the Senate passage of the controversial redfish and trout ban.

The bill, signed into law the next day by Governor Bill Clements, places a two-year moratorium on commercial fishing of the two species in Texas waters.

The demonstration in Rockport started around 2 p.m. and lasted until evening. Most of the boats in the parade flew American flags and several carried painted signs. One sign referred to the capital as a "whorehouse — the more you pay the more you get."

The boats moved out of Rockport Harbor and in a line, crossed the bay and took the Legget light channel into the ski basin where they circled until evening.

The majority of the protesters were Rockport shrimpers who sympathized with the fin fishermen but five or six of the fishermen were in the parade with their small skiffs. One of them, Leon Chandler, described the demonstration as, "A good deal, but two years too late. We should have started demonstrating when they first started passing all that legislation."

Freddie Joe Marshall, a shrimper who took part in the protest with his boat, the "Elsie M." said of the bill, "We've been sold out by our elected officials. I'm not involved in fin fishing, but I can say we've been sold down the river. The GCCA and the Texas Shrimp Association are hand in glove and we shrimpers are next on the list."

Chandler, like Marhsall, feels the passage of the bill "was purely political. It had nothing whatsoever to do with conservation. We killed it twice up in Austin, but we were told back when we first started that the governor wanted it passed. The governor wanted that bill and he finally got it."

Said Chandler of the effect of the bill on his fishing, "It's not going to stop me. I'm going to keep right on fishing. The bill doesn't stop us from catching other fish. Redfish and trout about 90 percent of what we catch, but that net don't know the difference. That net isn't selective, it can't tell what's a redfish and what's not and if I catch a redfish and I've got a market for it, I'm going to sell it."

Chandler continued, "Pollution can kill more fish than we can, but you get in Austin and they don't want to talk about pollution. We're the scapegoat. They've got to have somebody and I guess we're it this year."

A Boon For Lawbreakers

Earlier this week a small band of concerned commercial fishermen held an in-the-water demonstration in the form of a boat parade around the Rockport ski basin in an attempt to get the public's attention and protest the passage of a bill, which would stop the legal commercial harvesting of trout and redfish in Texas waters.

Some three dozen or more shrimp boats and fishing skiffs decorated with American flags, rebel flags and a poster proclaiming Austin to be a whorehouse "where the more you pay the more you get" paraded around the ski basin for several hours Tuesday afternoon in an effort to attract attention to the problem facing the commercial fisherman.

It is not as if this was an overnight occurrence, for the bill had been floating around the Austin legislative gin mill for some time. But recently the bill moved suddenly and swiftly through the House and Senate and Wednesday was signed by Governor Bill Clements.

The accusations in the conflict have come from all sides and waters have been muddied to the point that it is impossible for anyone to really know what the truth is and who the good guys and bad guys are.

The commercial fishermen have pointed a finger at and accused the sports fishermen of using "pocketbook politics". The sports fishermen have painted the commercial fishermen as ruthless, uncaring, lawless pirates who don't care about the future of the redfish on the Texas coast.

Almost no one has pointed a finger at the real villain in the case — the illegal netters.

The Texas Fish and Game people either can't or won't rid the state of the outlaw netters who not only are depleting the waters of redfish but who kill millions of other edible fish that are caught in unattended nets and die in a desperate struggle to free themselves.

The illegal netters sell their fish in a black market commerce and pay no taxes. And with the exception of the small amount of tax money from the gas they use in their boats they return nothing to the community.

The ineffective efforts the law enforcement people must involve themselves in is a token effort to control the illegal netters that costs the Fish and Game department thousands of lost man-hours and the taxpayer millions of dollars.

The commercial fishermen have submitted "proof" that there are plenty of redfish in the Texas waters and they are profound believers that the commercial harvesting of the redfish at an uncontrolled rate can go on forever.

The sports fishermen have presented "proof" that there is only a handful of the fish left to be found in the bays and they should only be caught on the hook of a sport fisherman.

If the Texas redfish are in trouble, laws should be passed forbidding anyone from catching them. And even if there are plenty of reds, laws should be passed setting realistic limits that would insure there will not be a future problem. Then, hopefully, there will always be plenty of redfish in Texas waters for both the commercial fisherman and the sports fisherman.

The legislators have used some questionable statistics showing that redfish are disappearing and they are handing the sports fishermen a piece of muddled, toothless legislation that makes the bays of this area the private playground for the sports fishermen while denying commercial fishermen a living.

If indeed there is empirical proof that the redfish population is in trouble and you have two groups who are their predator — one having fun and the other making a living as well as adding money to the economy — and you have to stop one of the predators, it seems logical to stop the one who is doing it for fun, not the one who is making a living.

No fewer redfish will be taken after the bill is signed than before. The commercial fishermen are going to continue to catch and harvest redfish for their living, only now most of them are going to do it illegally.

To quote commercial fisherman Ernie Butler, "We're still going to fish. I'll tell you that. I'm out to feed the public and my family and if that's against the law, I'll go to jail."

Austin At Wharf

RISKING POTENTIAL barbs from both sports and commercial fishermen I'll venture a few thoughts on the prohibition against taking redfish commercially.

With due respect to the Texas Parks and Wildlife people and the several groups of organized environmentalists, it remains in my considered opinion that they often have a tendency to go overboard, become carried away in their ardor. By the same token those who earn their livelihood from fishing are equally adamant.

Certain things which I assume to be facts stand out in my mind. I call them facts because they have been garnered from the more thoughtful people on both sides.

For example, there is no solid proof that there are less redfish in the bays today than, say 10 years ago. True enough, those wonderful catches of years ago are not what they were, but it can be rationally argued that that is because there are more and more fishermen, and in that respect the increase has been vastly greater in the ranks of the sports fishermen.

In fact I'd hazard the guess that there is little change in any year amongst those who fish for a living. A reason for this is that anyone who depends upon the sea for a living earns that living in a hard, hard way. Add to that, it is a precarious way to put bread on the table.

Even so there are those who have never known any other way of life and are untrained or too old to learn another craft or trade.

Now I am respectful as the next man when it comes to appreciating the significance of tourists, many of whom come to our coast to fish. They are important and — as claimed — do perhaps contribute more to our South Texas economy than the commercial fisherman. Even so I'm not sufficiently hard-boiled, selfish enough to see natives of this area deprived of the only way of life that they know.

Many of our restaurants like to boast that they serve seafood that is "fresh from the gulf today." That is seldom the literal truth, yet the seafood is usually good and only the most expert among us can tell that that broiled redfish was not caught today but yesterday.

Now it appears that before long apologetic waiters will be telling customers: "Sorry, no redfish today. Our shipment from Louisiana didn't come in."

And can't you hear the bewildered Yankee visitor's surprise: "What, you mean you don't catch fish locally?"

Altogether, with the lack of knowledge at hand regarding the fish population, I can't help but fear that the two-year moratorium is a bit harsh. And this I think is for certain: if fish become too scarce the commercial fisherman will just disappear, and long before it is too late to save the redfish.

Accordingly I am obliged to consider that rigid enforcement of existing laws is the sensible answer to protecting the life in our bays and in the gulf. Meanwhile there are and always will be greedy fishermen, sports and commercial.

A PERVERSE CHARACTER I may be. In any event I am always a bit uncomfortable when I find myself agreeing with any majority. For example, in the case of President Reagan and his budget. I approve of both and at the same time I am mindful, as the President himself warned, getting the ship of state back on an even keel will be no easy task. It will be a long slow haul.

For all of this it bothers me that general approval is so strong and widespread. And I suppose the thing that most bothers me is wondering how we as people are going to take the knocks that are bound to come.

In truth, Reagan's plan for social security is already setting off fireworks. What next? This much we know: he has surrounded himself with minds that are of the first chop. Also we know that should his budget program not succeed the nation will slowly but surely swing back to the old liberal ideals that will lead to the eventual fall of the nation. Accordingly one must hope that Reagan has not come too late.

POLITICS MAKE FOR strange bedfellows and during Reagan's campaign for election he disturbed me mightily on several counts.

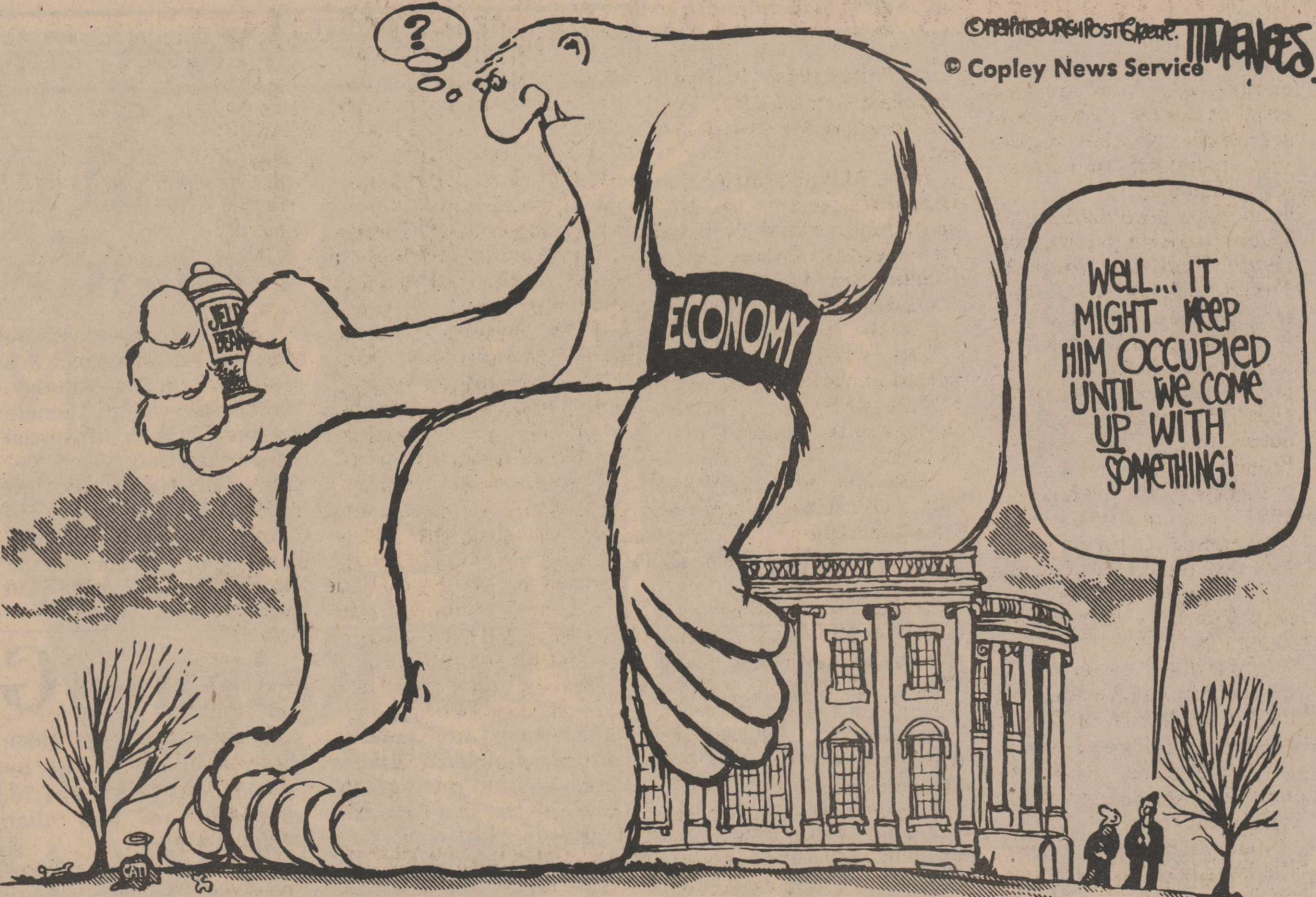

I found it distressing when he catered to, and at times seemed to almost fall into the arms of, Jerry Falwell, et al the Moral Majority.

The name Moral Majority is of course a misnomer since to those who belong what is moral is so, but — according to their interpretation of the word.

And needless to say they by no means represent anything near a majority. Even so they are dangerous and a threat to democracy as is any group that seeks to legislate morals and thrust its concepts — no matter how good they may be — upon the state.

Since his election Reagan appears to be keeping the Falwells at a safe distance. If the truth were known I would suspect that today he must regret that he got as close to them as he did, realize that they had very little to do with his successful election. In truth they may have hurt him.

For my own part I prefer to forget that aspect of his campaign because when I do remember it my confidence weakens; I begin to have doubts about a man in whom I feel obliged to put my faith and trust. —ahab

Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grassburr ranch examines British Royalty this week.

Dear editor:

To while away the time I was reading a newspaper article about Prince Charles and the British Royalty and how out of touch with modern times the whole thing seems.

Why, the British aren't even smart enough to hire a stunt man to fall off Charles' horse for him.

In fact, the idea of "royal blood" and passing the Kingship or Queenship down from one generation to the next without even the fun of holding an election seems sort of ridiculous and I couldn't understand why the English do it, until I read that article.

According to it, the marriage of Prince Charles and Lady Diana next July is expected to bring in over a million tourists who, along with the British common folk themselves, will buy royal coat hangers and anything else tourists will go for.

One outfit has already sold 760 spots at windows overlooking the bridal parade route at $335 apiece. You can figure it, a million tourists spending an average of $1,000 apiece — including doubled hotel room rates — out of respect for Royalty, comes to a billion dollars.

Since it costs only about a million dollars a year to keep Prince Charles, that's a thousand percent return on their investment. You can see why the British people, especially hotel, restaurant and bus and airline people, support British Royalty.

It sure beats some Chamber of Commerce sponsoring a Cumquat Queen.

And not only will tourists flock to England to see the Royal wedding, they flock there even when there isn't such a block-buster event, just to see the changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace, although as far as I know the Guard has never in 400 years caught anybody trying to sneak in.

The British aren't about to give up their fondness for Royalty, as long as there are democratic tourists alive. It brings in more tourist dollars than the Grand Canyon, Disneyland or Congress — even when it's in session.

Yours faithfully, J.A.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

GOLDWATER: DUMPING STORY "FALSE"

Senator Barry Goldwater (Ariz) "...Some misinformation has appeared in the press leaving the false impression that orange growers are deliberately destroying vast amounts of fresh oranges that might be sold cheaply to customers.

"The truth is that American housewives have never had such an enormous selection of fresh oranges on the market. Prices of small sized oranges are about the same today as they were 10 years ago..."

"Over 51 percent of the total California and Arizona navel orange crop will be shipped to grocery stores and the food outlets for fresh consumption; six percent will be exported; and 33 percent will be converted to juice product. This is 90 percent of production going directly to the public.

"Of the remaining 10 percent, the fruit is not suitable for eating or juice and is being diverted to cattle feed high in nutrients."

"It is some of this fruit lying out to dry that the media mistakenly thought was left to rot..."

"This issue arises out of an all out attack by some corporate growers on the orange marketing order. The marketing order is designed to provide a steady, fairly priced supply of fresh navel Oranges. Without this order, large corporate growers could glut the domestic market, forcing small growers out of business."

"One grower who has put the marketing order discussion into its proper context is Fred LoBue Jr. of Lindsay, California, who is in partnership with other small growers, most of whom are third and fourth generation family farmers averaging only 36 acres each."

"LoBue has prepared a statement for Congress which clearly explains the financial difficulty of small growers and rebuts the charge that growers are getting rich because of the marketing order..." (Statement excerpts).

"Some facts should be interjected which are not widely known outside the citrus industry. A number of large companies have been quietly buying or contracting to farm and market large blocks of citrus acreage in Central California. Among these are a number of large oil companies, plus firms from such fields as construction, and real estate developers.

"It is from these organizations that the loudest cry to terminate the Marketing orders is originating..."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

If it's News when growers are accused of dumping oranges to the detriment of the consuming public, it's also News when new information is presented.

Our Readers Write

Dear Editor:

We are all living in a very violent time and we see witness to this time and again as the magic of the T.V. brings it so well into our own living rooms.

For many people the shooting of President Reagan was a senseless act of violence and so it was, but when we heard last Wednesday that a man had decided to shoot Pope John Paul we were all both hurt and amazed that this could happen.

But a much more amazing fact is that right here in our own "peaceful" Aransas County last April there were 152 cases of child abuse under investigation. There are from six to 12 new cases of child abuse every month and three of these involve sex abuse, all within the confines of this small county!!!

The Ministers of the different Churches were given the chance firsthand to learn of the problem from a worker from the Texas Department of Human Resources who addressed them last Thursday.

Like most everything at the local Churches we felt could do more to help both the parents and the children in this big child abuse area. We found that there are three kinds of child abuse: physical, sexual and emotional.

Physical abuse is inflicting bodily injury on a child.

Sexual abuse is using a child in or exposing him to sexual activities with or without his/her consent.

And emotional abuse is demanding that the child do more than he is able to do, severely criticizing him or her for not living up to a demand or placing upon the child such unclear requirements that the child cannot understand what he is supposed to do.

Child neglect falls into several areas. Physical neglect in providing food, clothing, shelter or medical care.

We are hoping to pass on this information to members of the St. Vincent de Paul Society that as they go out on cases they be able to recognize a home where child abuse is present and be able to do more in that case than just provide food for the table but be able to find help for both the parents and the children that are the victims of child abuse.

For readers, there is a number to call in Aransas Pass, 758-7631, and a case worker will get with it and we will have done a good deed for our fellow man.

Evaluating new administrations after the first 100 days in office has become a tradition among political commentators. That's not a magical number, but since it does serve as a useful benchmark, let's look for a moment at what the Reagan Administration and the new Congress have done in their first hundred days.

The Administration has had the cooperation of the Congress in focusing attention and energy on the critical problems facing our economy. These problems did not develop overnight and won't be solved immediately, and for that very reason it is urgent that we act now to start the healing process.

In addition, both the Administration and the Congress seem to have learned the painful lesson from past years that trying to concentrate on too many issues at the same time means nothing is accomplished.

On the economic front, the Administration proposed a plan for economic recovery which has more chance for meeting its goals than any proposal put forth in years. Broad, bipartisan support has emerged for the domestic spending cuts that form one of the two platforms on which the plan rests. These cuts were approved overwhelmingly by the Senate, Campground Owners). Everyone in Rockport, Aransas Pass and Harlingen, McAllen, Brownsville area had one of the best seasons for tourists with trailers and motor homes in history. I believe Rockport has one of the best potentials in the state for tourist business.

Hope to see you next year.

Thanks,
Calvin Hill
Dallas Hi-Ho Campground, De Soto, Tex.

and by the end of the 100-day period, prospects for passage in the House looked good.

The other platform on which the economic recovery plan is built is a three-year reduction in personal income tax rates. The tax cut faces more opposition in the Congress than the spending cuts.

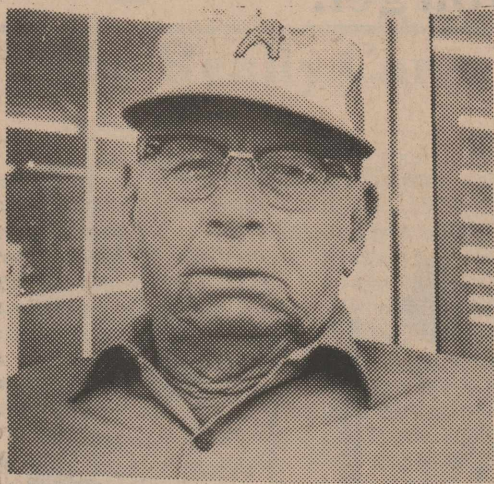

These tax cuts are essential to the program, however, because we must act to encourage hard work, savings and investment. If we don't cut tax rates, most people actually will wind up paying much more in taxes than they are now — making it even more difficult to keep up with the cost of living.

Finally, in a move of particular interest to Texas, the President lifted the grain embargo — which had unfairly burdened farmers while failing to accomplish its objective of hurting Soviet meat production.

So all in all, the first 100 days of the new Administration and the new Congress have been productive ones. But however good the beginning, it is only a start. There is much work to do. The citizenry is watching us, and we know it. I am confident we will make real strides during the rest of the Congress toward meeting the responsibilities of government.

Speaking Out

How do you feel about the passage of the "redfish" bill?

W.M. Hill
Yoakum

I don't think it's so hot, myself. It's not fair.

J.B. Easter
Rockport

I like it. I feel like we're depleting every kind of fish we got out there. The amount of fish in the bay went down drastically in the last six or seven years.

R.B. Holmes
Fulton

That's the law and if they passed the law, that's it. If we got a law you can't disobey it. If people are unhappy with it, they should try and change it instead of trying to break it. I don't think they (commercial fishermen) are going to do any good. They should just go home and shut up.

Rudy Walls
Rockport

I think they shouldn't have passed it. I don't think the fish were so short that they had to. I think it got passed because of the sports fishermen lobbying up in Austin — they just had bigger numbers than the commercial fishermen did.

Mrs. W.M. Hill
Yoakum

I think it stinks! The fishermen should be given a chance. It's going to hurt the fishermen a lot.

Fishermen Protest Redfish Bill

Null Says 'We'll Fight'

ber 1. If they lock us up, they lock us up. We'll fight in a court battle."

He agreed with Bonilla's advice, but said that Bonilla was not necessarily the lawyer that would be representing them. "I'm not saying he is or isn't," said Null. "I'm not saying who it will be, but it will be the best."

Null's estimation is that 3,000 full-time jobs will be lost under the new law and that the loss generated income will be around $46 million.

In light of the fact that Louisiana legislators are considering a similar bill, Null said he would like to see a tri-state action which would necessitate federal court involvement.

He said, "Basically the Louisiana people don't want all their redfish taken out of their state by Texas people, so they want a ban, too."

Null stated that he was not certain of the action that would be taken by fishermen in his group or when it would be taken, but added that, "One thing is for sure, the battle will not be over till the Supreme Court decides it."

Billings' Store For The Casual Shopper

Rockport's atmosphere is a casual one and Joyce and Cordie Billings' new store, Casual Closet, fits right in.

The clothing store, located at 209 Austin, opened on March 29. Says Joyce, "Business has been real good. Of course we know a lot of people in town and they know they can come in, sit down, smoke a cigarette, have some coffee and shop. We're very casual."

Joyce's sister-in-law, Cordie, explains why they opened the shop. "We wanted our own business aimed at our own Rockport population. We wanted a supply of year-round clothing to keep our prices down and to have a good selection so people wouldn't have to go to Corpus."

Joyce adds, "We have both had to shop for our kids and go all the way over to Corpus to find clothes, so we opened our store."

The store features a wide selection of jeans, a very wide selection... Says Cordie, "We specialize in jeans. We have a range from designer to $16 jeans."

Brands offered at Casual Closet include Sasson, Calvin Klein, Gloria Vanderbilt, Jordache, Britannia, Lee, Levis, Faded Glory and the list goes on and on.

Cordie explains, "If you have a desire for jeans, we hope we have something in your price range."

And Joyce says, "If we don't have what people want, we don't mind telling them where to go to find it. We want people to get the clothes they want."

The store also carries a large variety of other clothing. Shorts, and shirts from Daddy's Money, California Threads, Pacific Coast Highway and S.O.B. (Shades of Blue) are included in the Casual Closet collection.

A small line of bathing suits and lingerie, as well as belts, purses and wallets are offered, too.

The store hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Fridays and Saturdays, an arrangement that Joyce says is for the benefit of the "working girl."

"They can't shop on their lunch hour; it's too much of a hassle. So we give them the chance to come in after work and have some time to look around. If they come in a little late, we'll stay open till they're through," says Cordie.

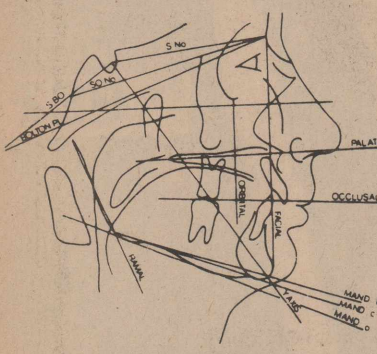

So come on down to Casual Closet and sit and visit with Joyce and Cordie, and do some casual shopping.

Who Really Cares Who's On First?

By Ted Norman

At a Little League baseball game early last week three of us, a scorekeeper, an announcer and myself were sitting in the press box at the Little League stadium in Memorial Park doing the thing that we like to believe we do best and swatting mosquitos at the same time.

It was a couple of nights after the big gulley-washer rain storm that drenched the area and the mosquitos outnumbered the people by a factor of a million to one.

Each of us must watch the game with trained, unwavering eyes in the interest of compiling accurate reports for sports readers and telling the audience what is happening if they have come back from purchasing a hot dog and have lost track of the game.

And the scores as well as each pitch and each play must be recorded accurately for posterity as well as to satisfy the Little League officials.

The press box is usually a madhouse of activity with conversation running rampant and kids entering and leaving practically at will to ask questions plus my constant trips to the pencil sharpener that is on the wrong side of the room. Or now that I think about it maybe I'm on the wrong side of the room. But anyway, the two or three dozen trips to sharpen pencils adds to the confusion in the room. And as the announcer says "Ball three", the scorekeeper put ball two on the board and, returning to my chair with a sharp pencil, I ask, "What's the count?"

We took turns fighting the mosquitos and the one not engaged in trying to eradicate the pest from the earth would tell us what was going on.

In general it sounded like the old Abbott and Costello line of who's on first, no, what's on second, except one phrase — who really cares — was added.

A batter would hit, say, a double, with the score three to two and the team has one out. I would turn to swat a mosquito, only in this case it was impossible to swat just one. You had to hit five or six at once. And when I looked up the batter was walking to the dugout and the other team was coming from the field to bat. None of us knew what happened.

The announcer just casually said, "And that retires the side." The scorekeeper wore out an eraser and chewed on her pencil and I marched to the pencil sharpener knowing there would be a big hole in my story about the game when it got to the third inning, or whatever inning this was.

The announcer was the only one in the booth who smoked and we kept encouraging him to smoke more cigarettes faster in hopes of filling the room with smoke and driving the pesty mosquitos away. It only served to almost asphyxiate the three of us. This was once in my life I wished he chewed tobacco.

We opened windows in hopes of creating a cross breeze that would blow the mosquitos out, but it only served to bring more in. Then we closed all the windows in an attempt to keep them out and we found every hole in the booth as swarms of mosquitos funnelled into the press box to get out of the wind.

We devised a method of two of us working while the third person fanned us with a piece of large cardboard. That only proved that it took two to do the job instead of three.

In the bottom of the fifth inning we were praying for a strikeout for every batter who came to the box. The scorekeeper even prayed that her own son would swing at three balls that were over the catcher's head. They didn't strike out, they only hit fouls by the dozens and prolonged the agony.

With two away in the bottom of the sixth the announcer's husband strolled smugly into the booth smelling like he had fallen into a barrel of cheap perfume and asked, "Would anyone like some Off?"

Flyers Shoot Down Bombers In 29-4 Win

By Ted Norman

In an early evening Wednesday game the Rockport Flyers literally bombed the Ingleside Bombers as the Flyers scored in every inning on their way to a 29-4 victory over the Bombers.

The Bombers scored one run in the top of the first inning and that run was to be alone on the scoreboard until the third inning.

The Flyers managed to get three runners across the plate in the bottom of the first to take a 3-1 lead and they continued to add to that lead throughout the evening.

The Bombers were stopped in the top of the second when Flyer Mary Randall caught a fly ball and threw the base runner on first out for a double play.

With the bases loaded Cindy Barrera hit a standup triple then came home on an error by the Bombers catcher and the Flyers had a 12-1 lead over the Bombers.

The Bombers were scoreless in the top of the third and the Flyers added another three in the bottom of the inning. Bombers second baseman Nancy Barrera caught a Bomber's fly ball, stepped on second and threw to Rose Herrera for a triple play to retire the Bombers. Louanna Barrera hit a double in the bottom of the inning to help the Flyers extend their lead to 15-1 over the suffering Bombers.

In the top of the fourth inning the Bombers came to life and pounded out three runs in a vain attempt to close the gap and the game was 15-4.

In the bottom of the fourth Cindy Barrera hit a home run and with that added to a single the Flyers added another two runs on the board to take a thirteen-run lead in the 17-4 game.

The Bombers made another brave attempt to get back in the game in the top of the fifth but were held in check by the Flyers and the inning was another scoreless one for the Bombers.

In the bottom of the fifth Cindy Wolfe slammed a home run on a series of errors and Mona Cowen hit a stand up triple with a runner on base. Cindy Barrera kept her hitting streak going with a double and it all added up to another six runs for the Rockport Flyers in the 23-4 game.

The top of the sixth was almost a repeat for the Bombers as they nailed another goose egg on the board. Cindy Barrera and Rose Herrera teamed up for a double play to help retire the Bombers.

In the bottom of the sixth the Flyers added another six runs on the efforts of Rose Herrera with a double, Mona Cowen with a double and a third double by Cindy Barrera. Cindy Barrera's double drove in two Flyer runners.

Nancy Barrera drove in another run with a double followed by another double off the bat of Norma Ole-man.

The Bombers failed to score in their last attempt in the top of the seventh and the Rockport Flyers won 29-4.

Mary Randle was the starting pitcher for the Flyers and she was relieved by Cindy Barrera in the fourth inning.

Cardinals Beat Astros 17-16

The Astros and Cardinals met in a fast-moving, high-scoring game Wednesday evening at Memorial Park and after both teams scored in every inning with the exception of a scoreless second inning for the Cardinals, the Cardinals walked away the winners in the 17-16 game.

The Cardinals lead off in the visiting team slot and took a big first inning five-run advantage but the Astros came back with four runs in the bottom of the inning to stay in the game.

The Cardinals pounded out three runs in the top of the second and held the Astros scoreless in the bottom of the inning and the Cardinals were in the driver's seat with a four-run lead in an 8-4 game.

The Astros fought back in the top of the third inning to hold the Cardinals to a single score and then slammed in four badly-needed runs in the bottom of the inning to make it a 9-8 game.

The top of the fourth found the Cardinals able to scratch out only two runs while the Astros garnished four more to take the lead for the first time and the game was 12-11 with the Astros trying to move into the driver's seat.

In the fifth and final inning the Cardinals drove six men across the plate and held the Astros to a four-run inning and the Cardinals notched a 17-16 victory in the win column.

Larry Avilla hit a double for the Astros with the bases loaded for three runs while Rene Vega slammed a triple for the Cardinals to drive in two runs.

Area Fishing Report

Key Allegro — Everything has been shut down most of the week because of the wind but things look good for the weekend and there is plenty of bait ready. Frozen shrimp, squid, crab bait and offshore bait are available.

Kliene's — James Klienes got ten reds and two trout on a gold spoon while wade fishing. "So many fish have been caught I can't keep track of them." Wednesday Bernie DeForest caught plenty of drum, trout and reds, he had a big stringer of fish. Only frozen bait is available.

St. Charles Bay — The winds have made things kind of nasty on the bay but the weekend looks good. Plenty of frozen bait.

Sea Gun — At present a southeast wind has the water muddied but it is expected to lay down and things look good for the weekend. The bait situation is excellent with both live and dead bait being available.

Palm Harbor — Fishing has been pretty good during the first part of the week with lots of reds, trout and flounder being taken. Bait is plentiful, fish are biting both worms and live bait but live bait has produced the best results.

Fulton Beach Marina — The waters are very choppy and muddy because of the strong southeast wind.

Fulton Harbor Bait — There isn't much happening when the winds blows but if the wind is calm fishing is very good. Most fishing is early in the morning and late afternoon with many people leaving with full stringers. Fresh dead bait and live shrimp are available. Also an excellent supply of feel.

Love Is An Eternal Spring-Time

Scriptures selected by The American Bible Society

For some it is!
But for others it can be a searing summer
... an early fall ... a chilling winter.

All depends on the two people who leave the church ... and the road Donna and David Daugherty choose for their journey together.

For, when love comes to the altar, it is full of hope ... and faith ... and promise.

And, if love will return to the altar — week after week — it can discover God's unceasing renewal of those blessings which first endowed its sacred vows with eternal meaning.

But it isn't quite so simple as praying together and staying together.

It is a boy and girl's unending quest for every spiritual insight that will enable them to understand ... to appreciate ... to cherish ... each other! And God!

Presbyterian Women Have Hootenanny

The annual birthday-anniversary of the First Presbyterian "Women In Church" was a big success this year. A "hootenanny" theme was carried out and Chairman Billie Franklin (Minne Pearl) arranged seven skits including a visit by Dolly Parton, actually Susan Phillips.

Country attire was worn by everyone and the decorations carried the theme further. Checkered tablecloths, bales of hay, stoneware jugs, a plow and a large scarecrow were included in the decorating scheme. Margaret Gill at the piano led the sing-along and accompanied the skits and refreshments of cookies and lemonade were served later. On the serious side, President Jeannie White conducted the brief business meeting at which new constitution and by-laws were adopted. Officers were also elected and the new vice president is Gertrude Alvord; Susan Phillips is secretary and Ecumenical Mission and Relations officer is Marvane Wix.

Blue Water Marine Holds Dealer Record

If you walk in the Blue Water Marine showroom to buy a boat or just talk about boats your in the right place because the only thing better than selling boats is talking about boats.

"Boats have always been my hobby," says the owner of the areas newest and largest boat dealer Steve Franklin.

Blue Water Marine is the area dealer for such marine products as Evinrude outboards, OMC & Mercruiser sterndrives, Galaxie boats, AMF sailboats, Polarcraft as well as being the nations largest Hydra-Sport dealer.

Franklin says his nearest Hydra-Sport competitor is in Florida and he is $45,000 behind Blue Water Marine in sales.

Hydra-Sports are made in Nashville, Tennessee and the company exports to nine countries and Franklin is proud to say that he is the largest dealer in this country. And it is apparent he wants to be the largest Hydra-Sport dealer in all countries.

Franklin spent eight years in management with Sears and decided that his love of boats was too great to overcome and he purchased Coburn Marine in Corpus Christi. And just as he was getting things going the way he wanted them to be Hurricane Allen, "Wipes us off the face of the earth," said Franklin.

That may have been the end of what he had re-named Steve's Marine but it was the beginning of Blue Water Marine.

Franklin is obviously pleased with his association with the Hydra-Sport boats and is always eager to tell anyone who will listen about the boats and the features he believes makes them so special.

According to Franklin the Hydra-Sport boats are not fiberglass boats, rather they are made from a new formula developed by DuPont called Duralite.

Duralite is a trademark term for a new laminate for boat construction, developed by Hydra-Sports' research department. The primary benefit of Duralite is weight reduction with no sacrifice in strength, stiffness or impact resistance.

The Hydra-Sport line includes seven sizes of boats ranging from 16' to 24' in length with the 24' model being designed in both outboard and stern drive models.

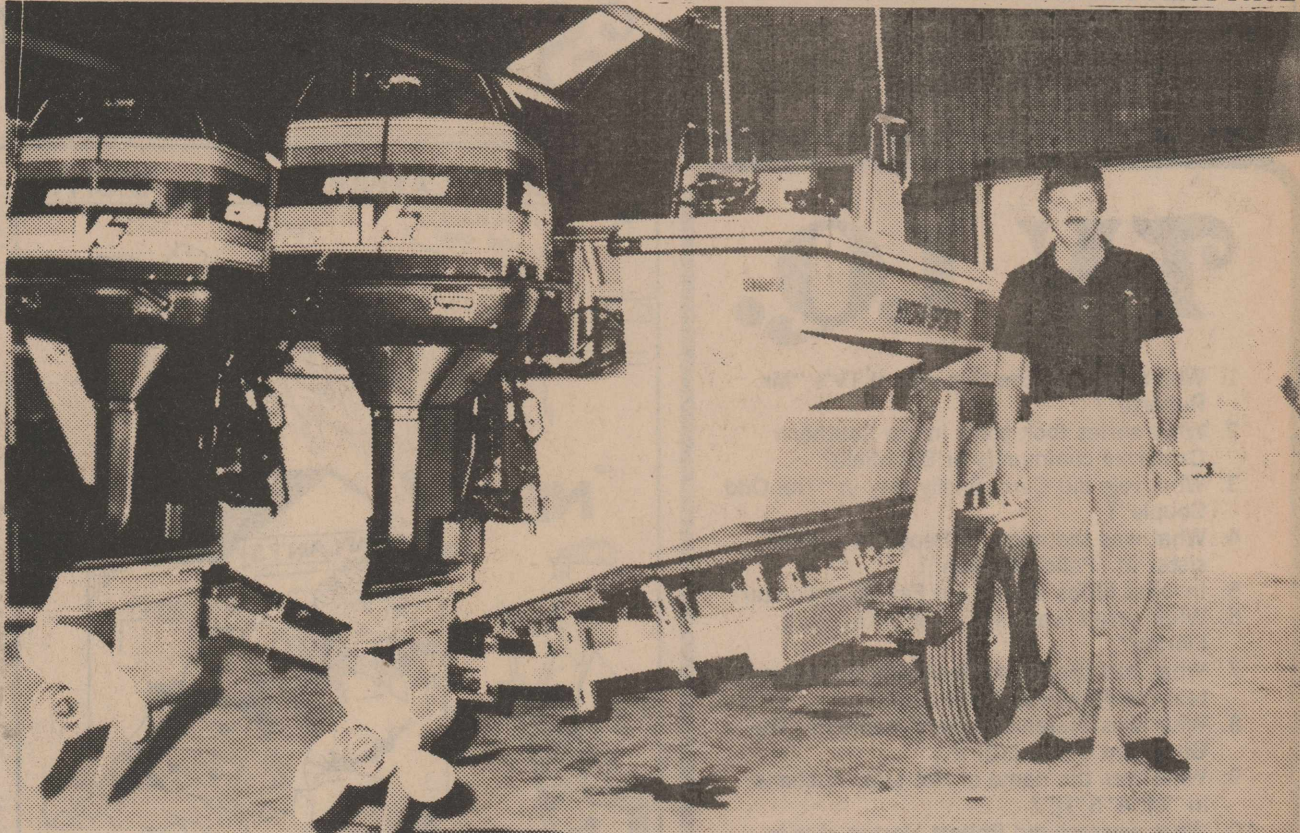

Franklin points out that his Hydra-Sport boats weigh one-third less than a fiberglass boat of the same size and he quickly explains the savings in both towing the boat and using the boat under its own power. The boats can be propelled with smaller engines than fiberglass boats of the same size.

Franklin is obviously very proud of his store and his impressive line of boats and his complete stock of parts and supplies. But it is the service and service personnel that Franklin speaks so highly of.

Blue Water Marine has four factory trained mechanics and Franklin says he has ordered a dynamometer so his mechanics will be able to give customers' engine the finest tuneup service in the area. Franklin said that three of his mechanics are presently in Dallas for refresher courses.

It only takes a brief visit with Franklin or one of his associates to know that you are with people who like boats and are in the business because they have feelings for the products.

Pet Talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a graduate of Baltimore City College and Texas A&M University. He specializes in small and exotic animal practice. He was an instructor of small animal diseases and surgery in the Veterinary School at Texas A&M and was in private practice in Waco for 25 years.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dear Dr. Lutz,

I have a cute little three-month-old male, calico kitten. Do I need to give heartworm preventive tablets to my kitten?—Lois (age 8)

Dear Lois,

Heartworms are not a health problem to kittens or adult cats, so you do not give the heartworm preventive tablets to them. However, to insure good health for your kitten, be sure to have a veterinarian examine a stool specimen microscopically.

Then you can be certain he does not have internal parasites. If there are parasites present, he can demonstrate the parasite to you under the microscope and give the proper medication. He will also immunize your kitten against distemper and rabies by injection.

THE HOT DOG VENDOR

There was a man who lived by the side of the road and sold hot dogs.

He sold very good hot dogs.

He put up signs along the highway and advertised in the newspaper telling how good they were.

He stood on the side of the road and cried:

"Buy a hot dog, Mister?"

And people bought.

He increased his meat and bun orders.

He bought a bigger stove to take care of his trade.

He finally got his son home from college to help him out.

But then something happened.

His son said, "Father, haven't you been listening to the radio and watching TV?"

There's a big depression.

The foreign situation is terrible.

The domestic situation is worse."

Whereupon the father thought,

"Well, my son's been to college, he listens to the radio and watches TV and he ought to know."

So the father cut down on his meat and bun orders, took down his signs and cancelled his newspaper ads and no longer bothered to stand out on the highway to sell his hot dogs.

And his hot dog sales fell almost overnight.

"You're right, son" the father said to the boy.

"We certainly are in the middle of a great depression."
