Nuclear weapons support may alienate W. Germany

ROME (AP) — President Carter today won a reiteration of Italy's support for deploying middle-range American nuclear weapons in Europe — a plan that threatens to pit the United States against West Germany.

Carter, who will discuss the subject with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of West Germany in Venice on Sunday, issued a joint statement with Italian Prime Minister Francesco Cossiga restating Italy's "active support" for deploying the powerful missiles designed to offset Soviet nuclear superiority in Europe.

While American officials earlier had expressed concern that Schmidt might propose a freeze on the missile deployment, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said Thursday he expected Carter and Schmidt to find common ground in their talks now set to precede the seven-nation economic summit that brings both men to Italy.

The Carter-Cossiga statement expressed the two leaders' agreement on several issues, ranging from Afghanistan to the Middle East.

"The international situation created by the Soviet Union's armed intervention and continuing occupation of Afghanistan was examined in depth," the statement said. "It was agreed that this Soviet action, taken in flagrant violation of the United Nations Charter, constitutes a threat to peace, poses a grave challenge to the West and to its interests in Southwest Asia and the Persian Gulf, and that it has created a serious obstacle to the continuation of the process of detente."

Carter and Cossiga added it is indispensible that the Western allies carry out a comprehensive political strategy "to make clear to the Soviet Union by the application of tangible measures the necessity of a prompt and complete withdrawal of its troops from Afghanistan."

Carter spokesman Jody Powell said earlier the American president's talks with Cossiga and Italy's 83-year-old Socialist president, Alessandro Pertini, had gone very well, with Carter thanking the Italians for being among the first to call on Iran to free the American hostages.

As Carter began a week of talks in Europe, he and his aides sought to minimize their differences with America's allies over how to deal with Soviet aggression.

After the private session with Pertini in a tapestried room of the 16th century presidential palace, Carter flew by helicopter to the Villa Madama, another of this city's Renaissance palaces, for a meeting and working lunch with Prime Minister Cossiga.

During the long flight from Washington that brought Carter to this ancient capital late Thursday night, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie told reporters that he believed one potential point of major friction with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt will evaporate.

TOO LATE — Although firefighters managed to bring the flames under control, it was too late to save the building or its contents.

Senate passes synthetic fuel funding bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven years after the Arab oil embargo, the United States has taken the first big step on the road to energy independence, say supporters of a massive energy bill now heading for final congressional approval.

President Carter is likely to point out that view to allied leaders at this weekend's economic summit in Venice.

The measure, which includes a $20 billion program to launch a domestic synthetic fuels industry as an alternative to imported oil, was approved on a 78-12 vote Thursday in the Senate. It now goes to the House, where quick passage also is expected.

"The country has finally come together on the need to move on energy," said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., one of the congressional conferees who worked for six months before reaching a compromise Monday. "There's a change in mood in the country and in Congress. This bill is the first long step toward finally getting this country on the road to energy independence."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, said passage of the bill signals the U.S. intention to provide its own energy needs.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., another of the Senate conferees, said the legislation shows America is "finally beginning to treat conservation just as though it were a fuel."

Johnston and Sen. Pete V. Domenici of New Mexico, the leading Republican supporter of the bill, said the president told them in a telephone call Thursday morning from Air Force One en route to Italy that the bill would strengthen his hand at the economic summit.

"It's obvious that he (Carter) considers it to be a bold measure," Domenici said.

The bill sets a goal of producing the equivalent of 500,000 barrels of oil a day by 1987 — equal to about 4 percent of current total daily U.S. oil consumption — and 2 million barrels a day by 1992, with up to $68 billion in additional federal assistance.

TOTALLY ENGULFED — When firefighters arrived at the blaze at the Saunders Oil Equipment Company, 511 E. 1st, it was totally engulfed in flames, said Fire Marshall Jim Ryals.

Blaze of unknown origin destroys structure here

A fire of unknown origin burned the Saunders Company Oil Division building, 511 E. 1st, nearly to the ground Thursday night.

Firefighters were alerted at 11:24 p.m. Thursday, and rushed two pumpers and a booster truck to the scene. A total of 12 firefighters battled the blaze until 1:35 a.m. today.

Local Fire Marshal Jim Ryals stayed there until 5 o'clock this morning searching through the twisted, blackened skeleton of the building for a sign of what caused the fire.

"There was just too much tin and metal from the building and the equipment inside to tell how it started," said Ryals. "When we got there, the place was fully engulfed in flames."

Although most of the building and equipment was metal, the wooden floor and rafters and hydraulic hose inside fed the flames. Ruined were oilfield pipe, couplings, fittings, V-belts and a variety of pumps.

"There was no combustible fuel or anything explosive inside the building," said Ryals. "But the only thing we were able to save was the office, that had paperwork stored in a safe and some filing cabinets," he added.

Neither city officials nor Al Aton, owner, were able at this point to estimate the cost of the damage.

Clayton pleads innocent

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton today pleaded innocent and asked for a speedy trial on indictments from a federal grand jury investigation of alleged insurance kickback schemes.

Also appearing for arraignment before U.S. Magistrate Frank Waltermire were Houston labor leader L.G. Moore and two Austin attorneys, Randall Wood and Donald W. Ray.

All joined Clayton in pleading innocent.

The U.S. attorney's office filed two motions, one asking that tape recordings made of conversations involving the defendants and FBI informant Joseph Hauser be made available to defense attorneys but that none of the information on the tapes be released to the news media.

Mike Ramsey, Moore's attorney, said he did not expect the case to go to trial within the 70 days required by the federal speedy trial act.

"I'll be shocked and amazed if it does," Ramsey said.

After the hearing attorneys were asked to meet with the magistrate in closed chambers.

The indictments, handed down by a federal grand jury recently, were the first to come from the FBI undercover investigation of alleged insurance kickback schemes, a probe codenamed Brilab.

Brilab spread from the Louisiana underworld to the Texas legislature and involved Speaker Billy Clayton, one of the most powerful political figures in Texas, a man who is a Baptist deacon and who became a rich man by building the family farm into a highly producing operation and by investing in banks.

Scheduled to appear with him for arraignment are L.G. Moore, a Texas labor leader, and two Austin attorneys, Randall D. Wood and Donald W. Ray.

Clayton's attorneys are expected to ask for a speedy trial.

The speaker, who once said he would withdraw from the race for reelection to the powerful post if convicted, wants to get the legal matters settled before it is too late to make his bid for an unprecedented four consecutive term as head of the House.

The 51-year-old legislator has commented frequently on the pending indictments but after his indictment was ordered by U.S. District Judge Robert O'Conor Jr. not to discuss the charges.

His chief attorney, Roy Minton, told newsmen, "You are standing next to a man who wanted to be heard by the media."

Forsan, Luther benefit most from rains

Forsan and Luther apparently were the chief beneficiaries of Thursday's rains.

More than anything else, the clouds which visited the area served to break an extended heat wave. Temperatures exceeded the 100 degree mark before the showers moved in around 7 p.m.

Mrs. John Couch, who resides in the Luther area, said her gauge showed about 1.1 inches of moisture after the rain stopped. The Couch place has had a total of about ten inches of moisture since Jan. 1, most of which has fallen since May 1.

The Alton Ryan place, located about three miles south of the Couch farm, soaked up about .6 of an inch of moisture.

Rainfall amounts in Big Spring varied but the official fall at the U.S. Experiment Station, located at the northern perimeter of the city, was only .03 of an inch.

At Forsan, the rainfall total was .8 of an inch. Coahoma was cooled by a shower but the fall wasn't heavy. Moss Creek Lake, located six miles southeast of town, had only a brief shower.

Action/reaction: Gin feared

Q. I know a gimlet is gin and lime juice. But how did it first come to be concocted?

A. A British naval surgeon named Sir T.O. Gimlette was the father of that one. He thought straight gin was hazardous to the health. Many think likewise, many do. But diluted with lime juice, said he, the keen edge is blunted thus to protect one's innards from the terrible lacerations. Besides, some say it prevents scurvy.

JUN 20

'Juneteeth' an event for all races, ages

Young and old, black, white and Chicano — a large number of Big Spring residents turned out in Comanche Trails Park Thursday to celebrate 'Juneteenth, or Emancipation Day.

"This is to glorify the 19th of June," said Thomas Evans of the Webb Spring Lions Club. "This is our (blacks) tradition."

June 19 is the day the American black was in effect, freed from the bondage of slavery. The day is set aside in Texas as a state holiday. State offices were closed, and blacks throughout Big Spring did not have to work yesterday.

Evans pointed out that Juneteenth is not, contrary to popular conception, just a state holiday. June 19 is a holiday for blacks nationwide, he said.

"It is like the Fourth of July," Evans said, trying to draw a parallel. "This is for us. this doesn't make us different."

This is the second year that the black community in Big Spring celebrated Juneteenth.

"We enjoy it," Steve Morgan, the principal at Lakeview School, said. "It gives us a chance to fraternize with people we haven't seen in a long time."

The official celebration was sponsored by the Webb-Springs Lion Club.

"The Lions Club decided to make the 19th of June ours," Evans said. "We are trying to develop the spirit of it."

This year the extravaganza started with a barbecue, which was served from 11 a.m. to around 5 p.m. Many people went to the barbecue, Big Springers of both races.

By noon Thursday, the Lions had served about 300 people to a dinner of barbecued chicken, ribs and beef, potato salad, pinto beans and pickles and onions.

According to Nathan Green, the Lions purchased, for the dinner a total of 105 pounds of beef, 80 pounds of ribs, 30 pounds of chickens, 100 pounds of potatoes, 50 pounds of red beans, 25 pounds of onions and eight gallons of pickles.

Other events included a baseball game, dominoes, a dance and tale swapping. The dance was held between the hours of 8 p.m. and midnight.

Blacks, young and old alike, agreed the holiday is important to their community.

"I think it is something long overdue," said one young black, who is attending the University of Texas at the Permian Basin. "It has been a special day for us. People are starting to recognize it."

Son of local residents killed in auto crash

Ronald Dale Wilkerson, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Wilkerson of Big Spring, was killed about 2 a.m., Thursday when his 1980 Chevrolet was in collision with a 1980 Ford pickup driven by Jim Clayton, 27, Odessa.

Clayton was treated at Odessa Medical Center and released. A passenger in his vehicle, Patricia Wignill, 29, of Odessa was in satisfactory condition at the medical center Thursday night. She suffered burns on her hands and arms, a hospital spokesman said.

The accident occurred at the intersection of U.S. 385 and Yukon Road north of Lamesa. Wilkerson, a resident of Andrews, was northbound at the time. Clayton's pickup was headed west.

Services for Wilkerson are scheduled for 10 a.m., Saturday at Northcrest Baptist Church in Andrews, with the Rev. Jim Slocum, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Finley, Okla.

Wilkerson was employed as a roughneck by Sharp Drilling Co. He was born in Antlers, Okla. He had resided in Andrews the past four years.

Survivors, in addition to his parents, include a sister, Cynthia Diann Lunceford, Odessa.

Condemned murderer moved

ATLANTA (AP) — Condemned murderer Jack Potts has been moved to the state prison where he is to be executed July 1, officials said.

Potts arrived at the Jackson facility from the state prison near Reidsville Thursday morning, prison spokeswoman Sara Englade said.

Potts, who was convicted of murder and kidnapping in the 1975 slaying of Michael Priest , 24, of Rosewell, Ga., dropped his appeals last fall and was scheduled to be electrocuted June 5. But the execution was halted when Potts agreed to renew his appeals. Potts changed his mind last week and asked to "die while in a state of grace."

Church reaffirms stand

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in America has reaffirmed its opposition to abortion, but said it may be justified in rare cases to save the mother's life.

A spokesman for the 7-year-old, 77,500-member denomination said Thursday the assembly distinguished between abortion, which one of its members defined as the intentional killing of an unborn child, and "premature removal" intended to save both mother and child.

The action was designed to clarify votes of two previous assemblies and passed with little debate, a spokesman said.

University denies request

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Kent State University officials have denied permission for an NBC television crew to film a re-enactment of the 1970 shootings on the campus.

Kent State President Brage Golding denied the request last month because the filming "would reopen too many wounds," university Vice President Robert McCoy said Thursday.

Four students died and nine others were wounded by Ohio National Guard gunfire during an anti-war demonstration at the university on May 4, 1970. NBC plans to make a movie about the incident in August, said producer Max Keller.

Boy recovers from disease

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Officials say a 9-year-old boy has recovered from a rare and usually fatal form of spinal meningitis.

Jamie Haire, hospitalized June 4, was able to go home Wednesday because a microbiologist at Doctors Hospital had detected the rare organism at an early stage, a spokesman said Thursday. The boy is apparently only the second surviving victim of the disease in the United States.

Dr. A. Julio Martinez, an expert on the disease, said no more than 50 cases in the United States have been reported since the disease was discovered in 1965, and that no more than 150 cases have been reported worldwide.

Major dry spell feared

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas may be too dry to sizzle in this summer's heat, if Texas A&M scientists' fears of a major drought prove correct.

"Another drought is not a matter of 'if,' but a matter of 'when,'" said Dr. Jack Runkles, director of A&M's Texas Water Resources Institute.

"Statewide droughts seem to follow a cycle of every 20 to 25 years," Runkles said. "The last major drought in the state ended 23 years ago, and the threat of inadequate rainfall looms with each passing day."

The State Climatologist's Office at A&M says the areas hardest hit since last October are the High Plains, the Trans-Pecos region, the Edwards Plateau and the South Texas border area, where rainfall has been 20 to 70 percent of the normal.

Since February, those areas and most of the rest of Texas received only 30 to 70 percent of normal precipitation, and levels at lakes and reservoirs as well as underground water tables are way down.

The last major Texas drought lasted from 1950 to 1957, when 235 of the state's 254 counties were declared federal disaster areas. Runkles said a drought would hit Texas harder today than it did during the '50s.

"An extended drought would mean water use restrictions in most Texas cities," he said. "Few Texas cities have any type of contingency plan in case of drought."

Government water storage reports show the state's reservoir levels have fallen from a mid-1979 high of almost 28 million acre-feet to about 25.5 million acre-feet a few weeks ago.

Heat wave bakes state

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Temperatures in North and West Texas consistently have been rising over the 100 degree mark — and summer hasn't even arrived.

Weather forecasters attribute the heat wave to a reticent mass of hot air that has settled in for the duration — similar to conditions in July 1978, when North Texas temperatures hit at least 100 for 18 days straight.

During that period, at least two dozen persons died of heat-related causes in the Dallas-Fort Worth area alone.

Dallas-Fort Worth already has experienced eight days in a row of 100-plus degree weather.

Forecaster Dick Elder of the National Weather Service office in Fort Worth said a cold front has been trying to break through the hot air for several days but has not made it south of the Red River.

"It is a summertime weather pattern. It just formed earlier than usual," Elder said.

Elder said only a disturbance in the Gulf of Mexico could break the heat.

"We can get easterly waves and tropical depressions coming up from the Gulf and the cloud cover can drop temperatures as much as 10 degrees," he said.

Parts of West Texas were also broiling in record heat. El Paso meteorologist John Chambers said high temperatures there have been 100 or higher for the past ten days, including eight days when the record was equaled or broken.

Summer is scheduled to arrive Saturday, however, so at least the heat will be legal.

Temperatures stay hot despite rains

By the Associated Press

Scattered thunderstorms were forecast for most of Texas today.

Skies were to be partly cloudy to cloudy and temperatures were to remain hot.

Highs were to be mostly in the 90s with extremes ranging from the upper 70s in Northwest Texas to near 110 in the lowlands of the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Much of North Central Texas and Northeast Texas was under a severe thunderstorm watch for several hours during the night. There were no reports of serious damage as thunderstorms, some described as heavy, roamed across Northwest Texas, North Central Texas, Northeast Texas and scattered portions of West Texas.

Rainfall amounts were generally light. Dallas-Fort Worth had .28 of an inch, Midland .24, Wink had .05 and Abilene .03. Winds gusted to 44 mph as one thunderstorm moved through Midland.

Skies were mostly cloudy from extreme Southwest Texas northeastward into Northeast Texas and clear to partly cloudy over the remainder of the state early today.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and lower 80s. Extremes ranged from 59 at Dalhart to 86 at El Paso.

Texas peaches will be more difficult to find

AUSTIN — Texas peaches won't be as scarce as hens' teeth, but they will be harder to find this summer, reports Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Figures from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service show that 313,000 bushels — less than half of last year's 750,000-bushel crop — will make it to market as the result of two March freezes which hurt most of the Central Texas crop.

Harvest has begun, however, in South and East Texas, and smaller numbers of peaches should begin appearing in retail outlets soon. Peaches in Central Texas that escaped the freezes are beginning to size.

In North Texas May hail storms destroyed fruit in some orchards that had survived earlier freezes.

"Though the crop will be smaller, buyers will still get more for their money from a Texas peach," said Brown. "The local fruit is picked when it is ripe to provide a sweeter, juicier peach. Out-of-state peaches are picked green so that they will withstand the rigors of cross-country shipping."

Sherman Cox award winner

SAN ANTONIO — The Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Restaurant Association chose Sherman Cox, owner and operator of Texas Burger in Midland as well as several other franchise outlets, as its outstanding restaurateur for 1979-80, announced Chapter President Mike Medley. Cox was officially recognized with an award presented by TRA Executive Vice-President W.H. "Buckshot" Price at an awards dinner at the 43rd Annual Convention of the Texas Restaurant Association, held at the Marriott Hotel here Wednesday, June 25.

Cox was selected by his fellow food service operators for the award given to the restaurateur judged to have been the most outstanding throughout the previous year both in business and association activities and in civic and community concerns as well.

Cox entered the food service business in 1967 when he purchased a fast-food operation in Odessa, in 1970, he opened a second store, Texas Burger, in Midland. He has since purchased a Taco Villa franchise and opened outlets in Snyder and Big Spring, and is looking for a third location.

A former Permian Basin Chapter president, Cox now serves on the TRA state Board of Directors.

Check issued for expenses

A check has been issued to County Attorney Harvey Hooser in the amount of $705.32 for the trip he, County Judge Bill Tune and County Commissioner O.L. (Louis) Brown took to New Orleans last month.

Hooser, in his new request, asked for $363.27 for hotel accommodations and two dollars for a tip. He also requested $244.70 for meals and tips incurred in New Orleans and $70.10 in taxi fares.

He also received $20 in mileage for the round trip to the Midland Terminal Airport and $5.25 in parking fees at the airport.

Clean-up drive is scheduled

FORSAN — Plans for a city-wide cleanup campaign instigated by the Forsan Study Club will crystalize Saturday with an all-day effort by all residents of the community.

Those participating will gather at the Forsan Community Center at 8 a.m. The group will break for sandwiches at 12 noon, regrouping at the Community Center.

After an afternoon of work, a barbecue will be served at the Community Center, starting at 7 p.m., as a reward for the workers who have taken time off to help Forsan qualify as a sort of "Sparkle City."

People of all ages are being encouraged to take part in the clean-up drive.

Chicken show is planned

All persons interested in forming a Bantam and Standard Chicken Club are urged to attend a meeting at the Howard County Fairbarn, Monday at 8 p.m.

There is a proposed show for the Howard County Fair in September. Also there will be a state fowl official who will be in the Big Spring area sometime in July to check all flocks for diseases.

An official of the Odessa Bantam Club will be in Big Spring Monday to help form the club. Interested persons may call Janette Fauber at 263-8728 or Kenneth Williams at 263-6458.

Myles fails to post bail

Willie Ray Myles, 1002 N. Main, was transferred to county jail this morning.

He was charged Wednesday in the office of Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin with aggravated assault against Eugene White. The complaint was filed by City Detective J.D. Carter.

Myles is in custody in lieu of $35,000 bond set by Heflin.

Officers given bravery awards

STANTON — The Silver Star Citation for Bravery was issued to three Stanton officers for saving the life of a female approximately three weeks ago.

Texas Highway Patrolman Wade Turner, and Stanton Police officers Bill Cooper and Derral Brown arrested a man attacking a woman with a knife. No one was injured.

The award, presented by the American Law Enforcement Officers Association in North Port, Fla., is a large plaque. It is the highest award possible.

The plaques were presented during lunch Thursday when a few people gathered at Stanton City Hall.

FRESH WATER FROM AN OLD WELL

In life, it is the direction one takes and not the distance he travels that counts. It is not how long we live that counts, but the way we live. It is not so much the years of our life, but the life of our years. Many people I have known in life died young, some died when old. It was not their ages which determined their success or failure. It was how they lived.

There was Raphael, the master painter, who was famous before he died, yet he died before he was forty. Mozart, who made his contribution in the world of music, passed on in his middle thirties. Keats, died in his late twenties. Jesus did his work in thirty-three years. Nathan Hale regretted he had but one life to give to his country. He lived to be only twenty-two. Joan of Arc helped mold the destiny of nations, died at age nineteen.

Today is all you have — make wise use of it.

So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.

Inconsistencies promote curiosity

The inconsistencies that life offers perhaps is what keep many of us around, wondering what will happen next. Certainly there are enough of them to promote the curiosity of most people.

Take, for instance, the decision of one Billy Jones, formerly of Louisville, Ky. This is supposed to be the age of the black man in America and should remain so for the next 150 years. So what did Billy Jones, a black, do not long ago? He surrendered his American passport to accept a South African document of residency. South Africa, of course, is a country famous for its apartheid policy.

Mr. Jones is a gainfully employed glazier and a minister in a Pentacostal church in Capetown.

THE PRODUCTION of steel from scrap metal requires 74 percent less energy than the production of steel from iron ore, so that 1,000 tons of recycled steel saves the equivalent of 140,000 gallons of gasoline.

So why haven't more old, abandoned cars, which must contain some steel, been picked up and started through the recycling process? Invariably, they are eye sores.

There are 16 historical markers in Mitchell County but most visitors never see them. Practically all are located in remote sections never frequented by occasional callers to Colorado City and environs.

They are located at Cuthbert (northwest of Colorado City), the Handley Cemetery, two are on Lone Wolf Mountain and two on the Renderbrook-Spade Ranch, Bone Hollow, on the old D.W. '80 John Wallace Place, the site of the first Westbrook School and Church, the Wulfjen 96 Ranch and in the Iatan Cemetery.

That's one way to preserve them.

WASHINGTON, D.C., because it is the seat of a government that becomes more centralized all the time, has most of the political clout in this country. Washington, need it be told, is the big winner in getting back its federal tax dollars in the form of state and local aid. It sends only 34 cents in taxes for every dollar it gets in aid. It cost Texas $1.36 for each dollar it spent in taxes. Only Indiana among the 50 states does worse than the Lone Star State in paying out more than it takes in.

Does anyone think Washington is worth the investment we make in it?

The Equal Rights for Women movement is still very much alive in this country and, for that matter, around the world operating under different guises. One of the world's most prestigious newspapers announced recently it was banning the title, "Ms.," from its stylebook, which might indicate its management was out to promote male chauvinism.

Not so. The Times explains:

"It (the title) is artificial, ugly, silly, means nothing and is rotten English. It is a faddish middle-class plaything, and far from disguising the marital status of women, as is claimed, it draws attention to it."

Feminine leaders in this country are standing by their guns. They say men would think differently about it if they had to be identified by marital status.

Carter punishes Chile

Evans, Novak,

WASHINGTON — Over anguished objections from the U.S. Navy, President Carter has blocked anti-communist Chile's participation in the 21st annual inter-American naval exercises this fall — continuing the administration's unique policy of meeting the march of communism in the Western Hemisphere.

Appeals by the Navy and prominent members of Congress have not budged the president. His policy in this instance is inflexible: Official U.S. hostility toward Chile's military regime will continue so long as Chileans accused of complicity in the Washington assassination of former Foreign Minister Orlando Letelier are neither extradited nor prosecuted.

But transcending the lingering Letelier affair is Carter's overriding Latin policy, seemingly unaffected by the end of detente. At the same time Carter was punishing Chile, he was bowing to demands by leftist President Aristedes Royo of Panama that the U.S. call off its planned amphibious operations at Guantanamo — a demand echoing Fidel Castro's position.

THE MESSAGE FOR LATIN Americans is unmistakable. Anti-communist policy in no way mitigates State Department complaints against right-wing authoritarian regimes. In contrast, whatever their shortcomings in human rights, leftist authoritarian regimes are blessed with U.S. deference (as with Panama) and aid (as with Nicaragua's new Marxist dictatorship).

Administration foes of Chile's military government, which toppled the country's Marxist regime in 1973, have artfully exploited the Letelier assassination. The Chilean supreme court, citing insufficient evidence supplied by the U.S., has refused to extradite or prosecute three Chilean secret police agents accused by the U.S. of planning the 1976 slaying. Letelier, foreign minister of the Marxist regime, kept close ties to Cuba and East Germany as a Washington-based exile.

In retaliation, the U.S. has cut back its diplomatic presence in Chile, drastically reduced military ties and banned economic development loans. Had the same standards been applied to activities of Soviet thugs here and elsewhere, diplomatic intercourse between the West and Moscow would be impossible.

On April 15, Treasury Secretary G. William Miller killed a $32 million "basic human needs" loan for Chile from the World Bank. On that same day, the U.S. vetoed a $43.5 million farm credit loan and a $32 million highway loan to Chile. All this was predicated on the Letelier case.

So was the State Department's decision in early May to exclude Chile from the inter-American naval exercises arguing that increased U.S. activity in the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean with a depleted fleet made cooperation with allies essential. Chile's navy, patrolling a 2,600-mile coastline, is one of the hemisphere's best. Defense Secretary Harold Brown rejected the appeal.

Soon after, the Pentagon indefinitely postponed the amphibious exercises scheduled off the U.S. Naval base at Guantanamo. The avowed reason was the need of U.S. Naval warships to help the Cuban refugee fleet to Florida. But one well-placed admiral privately says that is nonsense; the Pentagon was bowing to pressure.

Not much in excess

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am an older female, and take a potent calcium pill every day. It contains 1,000 milligrams of calcium. They say that as one gets older you need more calcium. Yet, I find that my legs ache when I take it. Can you comment? — Mrs. H.H.

The usual daily recommended amount of calcium is 800 milligrams. In an adult the excess is not absorbed by the body, but eliminated in the stool. Your 1,000 milligrams a day is not much in excess. I cannot relate your muscle pain to the calcium. Very high levels might cause muscle weakness, since calcium is involved in the contraction of muscles.

Yet, the best test of whether or not a medicine is a cause of symptoms lies with the patient and what he or she reports. If you stop taking the calcium and don't have the aching, that is good enough evidence that the calcium is somehow involved. Then if you take it again and have the aches, that's even stronger evidence.

I wonder why you are taking the supplements. There are plenty of natural sources of calcium. Milk and other dairy products are a few. Sardines and cornmeal are also good sources. Increased calcium and vitamin D are suggested by some authorities for women who have osteoporosis. See Mrs. A.C.'s letter (below).

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have noticed that I have a rather large lump on my back, just below my neck. I cannot wear barebacked dresses or blouses or anything without a collar because the hump looks awful. Can anything be done? I've been told hormones help. True? — Mrs. A.C.

I wish I could see you. "Hump" is not a lot to go on. If you are referring to "dowagers hump," a forward bending of the head with a marked prominence where the neck and back join, that is due to a loss of bone substance — osteoporosis.

It is very important to know if osteoporosis begins before or after the expected menopause, because that has a bearing on the approach to treatment. In osteoporosis, bone substance is lost and we begin to shrink and "cave in" slightly. Calcium and vitamin D, sodium flouride and female hormones have all been used to try to retard the process. But this depends on the stage of life when it starts happening. The female hormones are particularly useful when menopause begins earlier than normal.

Two benign conditions can cause unsightly large lumps at about the same area of the neck and back which you mention. One is a cyst of the sebaceous (oil) glands; the other is an accumulation of fatty tissue — a lipoma. Both are soft masses and usually non-tender. Both are easily removed.

Have someone take a look at the "hump." There are many ways to help your problem. For a discussion of the menopause links, see the booklet "Make Menopause Easier." For a copy, send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a faithful reader. Ever since I was 19 (I'm now 36) I have had bouts of dizziness. They begin with sudden, intense loss of equilibrium. This forces me to sit on the floor until it passes. There is no nausea or ringing of my ears. As time passes I am able to "practice" walking. The effects of the vertigo are like the floor moving under my feet and the sense of walls, tables, etc. moving around me. The effects linger for weeks. It's hard to even push a grocery cart.

My doctor has recommended Dramamine, but I've ignored this advice. I have consulted with a couple of neurologists and finally got the diagnosis — "benign positional vertigo." Dramamine was again recommended. The attacks are so loathsome. I wonder if I should be content with this diagnosis and continue to grin and bear it, or what? — J.B.

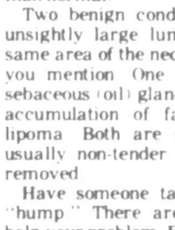

Vertigo can be a symptom of problems in the ear, the brain or even in the blood circulation system. Vertigo is often accompanied by perspiration, pallor, nausea and vomiting. It's like an attack of seasickness occurring on dry land.

Apparently, you have been well-studied over the years for any of those causes. Your kind of vertigo occurs with a change in body position, such as when lying down or sitting up. You have been assured that this is not due to a serious underlying problem. It often goes away on its own.

The antihistamine you mention (Dramamine) can afford relief. I don't think you should hesitate to try it. I would if it were to be prescribed for me and if I had your troublesome symptoms.

The booklet "Dizzy Spells" discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea, Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I notice in your meetings on television that you call people forward to make their decisions for Christ. Is coming forward the only way to become a real Christian? — L.G.

DEAR L.G.: You become a Christian by committing yourself in faith and trust to Jesus Christ as your personal Lord and Savior. This commitment can take place anywhere — from the solitude of your home to the gathering of a large crowd in an evangelistic meeting. The important thing is not the setting but the commitment you are making in your heart and mind.

If you look into the Book of Acts in the New Testament you will see this. Some people become Christians in large gatherings — such as the vast crowd on the day of Pentecost when 3,000 came to Christ. Others learned about Christ and accepted Him in smaller meetings such as when Paul or the other early Christian preachers entered a synagogue and proclaimed that Jesus was the Messiah. Still others became believers when almost no one else was around. (The Ethiopian official who became a Christian in the middle of the desert is an example; you can read about him in Acts 8:26-40).

What do all of these (and other examples) have in common? First, in each case individuals realized that they were sinners and needed God's forgiveness. Also, in each case they realized that Jesus Christ was God's means of salvation. By faith in Him, salvation is promised by God. By His death on the cross and His resurrection from the grave He conquered sin and death, and He offers salvation to us if we will trust Him alone. "Salvation is found in no one else; for there is no other name under heaven given to men by which we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

In addition, each individual responded by committing himself to Christ and taking a public stand for Him. Have you ever committed your life to Christ? If not, I urge you not to delay. Right where you are you can pray to God and ask Christ to enter your life.

Was it really rust?

Around the rim

James Werrell

It was only 7:30 in the morning, and already the thermometer read 86 degrees, according to Mr. Farenheit. I know something was wrong from the outset. I never get up at 7:30 in the morning to look at the thermometer.

I ran my fingers through my hair and came up with a handful of last night's party. The inside of my mouth felt like I had fallen asleep sucking on a sea urchin. Time to hit the showers.

I rolled out of bed and stepped on what I immediately recognized as somebody's cheek.

IT WAS Danny Reagan's cheek, and a mighty stubbled one at that. He emitted a pitiful groan, and loosened his white-knuckled grip on an empty Meszcal bottle. The worms were still smiling. I should've taken that as an omen.

"Hey," I said, popping the tab on a Pabst Blue Ribbon, "You look terrible. Here, gargle with this."

"Auuuuuuuughhhhhh!" he replied.

"Come again?" I cooly retorted.

"Waaaaaaater," he choked.

Poor kid had forgotten he was in Big Spring. The annual vacation party in his honor that always cracked the cement in the cabana had left him as dehydrated as a granddaddy peach pit with malaria. Reagan raised a cow-lick-topped head, wavered a bit and plopped back down, scattering with his slamming noggin the Pearl Light cans and other debris.

"What did you do, eat a flannel shirt before you collapsed last night?" I said, noticing that his lips looked like they belonged in the King Tut exhibit. I flicked the butts out of the bottom of a souvenir mug from the Alligator Farm in Hot Springs, Ark. that the Reagans had brought with them and walked to the tap for water.

"Water!" I never knew the word would be capable of sending cold chills down my spine as if Lionel Hampton was playing the William Tell Overtune on it. But when I turned that little knob on the sink marked "C," I knew I had really never known the meaning of nausea.

The splashing liquid that poured out of the spigot was the color of a bucket of swill that had been used to clean and gut a mess of fish. Sickening pink. Aesthetically on the same level with my wife's ham mousse, only not as green.

AS I WATCHED the glass fill up and overflow with the pinkish abhorrence, I was spellbound and didn't notice Reagan as he came into the kitchen. Moaning still, he snatched the glass from my hand and halfway downed it before I could stop him.

"My God, it's full of bloodworms!" he sputtered, dribbling the vermillion glop down his "I got crabs at Fishermen's Wharf" T-shirt.

Bloodworms! I had seen them before in the fetid tributaries of the Amazon and at the carp farms in Rangoon. Now here they were again, a long-suppressed nightmare, billions of chubby little red creatures, swarming over the top of the souvenir mug.

Luckily, Reagan was also familiar with the vermin. He had been the first to break the story of the original Bloodworm Breakout in Big Spring back in 1977.

"If we're lucky, they're still small enough to fight with conventional weapons," he coughed, now fully awake; steel-trap mind ready for action. He grabbed for a potato masher.

THEY DID look rather small. The largest was only the size of a teenage corn grub worm, but my skin still crawled. As if on cue, a full-grown bloodworm with teeth bared splurted out of the faucet, bounced once in the sink and went for Reagan's throat.

"Quick, get it off of me!" he screamed, as the creature sought vainly for his jugular. The name bloodworm was just a little too apt for comfort.

"Hey Danny," I said, a light bulb coming on over my head, "This bloodworm stuff is great 'Rim' material. You can help me write it!"

"You're right! It's a natural!" he replied, as another one of the creatures attached itself to his adam's apple.

"But you know what; if we tell the rest of the story, about how we get rid of the bloodworms and everything, Tommy Hart will probably say it's too gory for the readers," I opined. "I mean it is pretty sickening."

"You're probably right," choked Reagan. "Maybe we'd better end it here."

"Yeah, that's probably the best idea," I replied.

Dealings probed

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Sen. Donald Stewart, D-Ala., was the only member of the Senate with spunk enough to investigate the Hunt brothers' outrageous silver market manipulations. But now the senator's own financial dealings are being investigated by the FBI.

What puzzles the G-men is how a man with $200,000 in personal debts, plus escalating mortgages, could lend his campaign fund $275,000 in 1978. This is a whopping loan to squeeze out of an income which he admits was only $24,000 in 1978.

YET ON TOP of the $275,000, he also managed to make a down payment of almost $30,000 on a $150,000 Washington home and then loan his campaign another $22,000 in 1979.

At the center of the FBI's investigation is a smooth-talking darkly handsome Southern charmer and convicted con man named James Dennis. He's currently doing time in the slammer in Talladega, Ala., on fraud charges unrelated to Stewart.

But there was a connection in 1978, when Stewart accepted $22,000 in illegal campaign contributions from Dennis. The donations, many in sequentially numbered checks, earned Dennis a $36,000 fine — the largest penalty of its kind ever levied by the Federal Election Commission. (Though the fine was later cut in half, Dennis still hasn't paid a cent of it.)

Stewart claims he returned the $22,000 to Dennis when he learned the money had been donated illegally. But my associates Tony Capaccio and Jack Mitchell have discovered a curious coincidence. FEC records show that Stewart made a personal loan to $22,000 to his senatorial campaign on May 11, 1979 — the very day the illegally donated $22,000 was supposedly returned to Dennis.

The FBI is looking into the possibility that Dennis simply cashed the refund check and handed the $22,000 back to the senator in greenbacks. Stewart vehemently denies such a possibility. But a copy of the refund check, which would show when and where it was cashed, isn't in the FEC files, though there is a letter from Stewart's campaign claiming it refunded the illegal largesse.

In addition to the disputed $22,000, the senator hasn't yet returned another $1,150 which Dennis contributed in his own name. But the FEC found that the money came from corporate funds; therefore it is illegal and should be refunded.

ANOTHER CASH transaction was witnessed by a former Birmingham, Ala., newsman, according to his sworn statement.

Dear Editor:

Summer programs have begun at the YMCA and we are offering some quality programs. The biggest thrust during the summer months is our Aquatic program. Even though this is a year-round program, more children and adults participate in the activities offered in the summer. These activities include swim lessons, recreational swim times, family swim, water babies, springboard diving and an adult swim.

Because the swimming pool is a part of many families' way of life, this has opened doors to drownings. We at the YMCA are concerned with people's safety, and therefore, teach to swim for safety's sake. The primary objective of the YMCA swim program is the personal safety of the participants. Skills are taught that can be used in a dangerous situation, even to our tadpoles (3-5-year-olds).

Another objective of our swim lessons is the development of physical skills which can be carried over into recreational activities. For children, this skill development invokes a sense of an awareness of their body, a feeling of independence and a sense of success, all increasing his-her self image.

As a result of aquatic skill development, an increase in strength, muscular development, and cardiovascular fitness is obtained.

Another objective of our program is to give an understanding and ability of participants to perform elementary skills in lifesaving. This includes throwing and reaching assists. Even a three year old may be able to serve in a lifesaving role.

Our instructors are trained to teach at defferent levels in those skills. We teach to the youngest, a six month baby (emphasizing the decrease of fear) to adults. Parents need to be alert to the fact that children should never be permitted to be alone in the water because the unexpected can always happen.

To close, let me emphasize the importance of water safety for all ages. We are here to provide the community with opportunities to develop swimming skills and water safety. This is in line with the Y's philosophy to develop the whole person...body, mind and spirit.

Associate Physical Director

Workers in demand

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Earlier this year, prospective employers visited Raymond Cronin on the campus of Worcester Polytechnic Institute. In all, representatives of 21 companies gave Cronin the grand tour of New York and Massachusetts firms, and flew him to Houston, Cleveland, Detroit and Santa Clara, Calif.

The 22-year-old senior from Scituate, Mass., who was still months away from his bachelor's degree in electrical engineering when the wooing began, settled on a job with a California company at a salary "somewhere over $21,000 a year."

"I didn't think it would go as well as it did," he said, "but once I saw the the need for engineers, I got to expect it."

At a time when economic indicators point to recession, engineers, programmers and computer technicians are in demand. The boom in the high technology industry has made them the sellers in a sellers' market and has forced companies to use new recruiting tactics.

Many companies have abandoned traditional want ads in favor of television commercials, open houses, and lucrative bonuses to draft college graduates and lure help from other companies.

—When there was no response to its want ads, ASA Inc., a Boston software firm, offered free Bermuda vacations to those joining the company. The same deal was available to employees who recruited friends. ASA got eight new programmers.

—Companies like Wang Laboratories and Data General offer workers "bounties" of $200 to $300 if they bring people into the company. Wang is considering an in-company campaign exhorting employees to "Turn in Your Friends."

—Advanced Micro Devices, a Sunnyvale, Calif., semiconductor manufacturer spent over $200,000 on a "Catch the Wave" recruitment program that carried the message on billboards, television and radio and national magazines.

—Texas Instruments personnel officers invade cities rich in engineering talent for "hire-ins," held at local hotels and advertised on local television.

"It became apparent two years ago that our normal means of recruitment was not working," said Ed Haynes, a TI employment manager.

Haynes, whose Dallas office sports the sign "Recession? Hell no! We're too busy," leads teams to cities as far away as Boston in search of new talent. Such promotions cost about $70,000 each, but they get results.

"We used to take out an ad in a city, put a personnel guy and two engineers in a hotel and wait for the phone to ring," said Haynes. "We'd get 15 or 20 people and wind up hiring one or two for $15,000. Now we talk to 300 people."

Wang Laboratories turned over recruitment to its marketing department. "Everybody hires through want ads," says Ted Leonsis, Wang's public relations manager. "We thought we could get more people through marketing-oriented ads."

Recruiters are turning to the Madison Avenue approach because of the sharp competition among employers. "There is just a finite number of people out there that are trained," says John Custy, a Wang personnel officer. "If you're good, you have no problem picking your own company."

What caused the shortage? Haynes blames universities for not counseling students on the realities of the job market.

"You can sit in the lobby of my office and talk to the sociology and psychology majors who can't find work and have no skills," he says. "I classify it as one of the biggest consumer frauds in the country."

Others say no one could predict the boom. "Growth has been faster than anyone expected," says Custy, who expects his company to double its staff of 10,000 employees next year.

Custy and Haynes say the shortage will continue through the mid-80s.

Once they have hired workers, some companies resort to perks and self-promotion to keep employees from wandering.

Advanced Micro Devices, which boasts the lowest employee turnover in California's "Silicon Valley," offers a generous profit-sharing plan and in-company contests to employees.

AMD, which recorded $225 million in sales this year, staged a "Christmas in May" party last month, holding drawings on wall-screen televisions and Cadillac Sevilles. One worker won $20,000 a year for life.

"We developed these things because our biggest asset is our people," said George Weaver, AMD's personnel chief. "We want to retain them and encourage others to join the company."

Not all find themselves swept up in the rush. Brian Huntley, a Worcester Polytech senior from Sheepscott, Maine, opted for graduate school despite six job offers.

"It was disillusioning," he says. "Most students are used to living on $2,000 a year and suddenly they were getting fancy dinners and offers of big salaries. A lot of them were getting sidetracked from their normal selves by the green stuff."

Eckhardt amendment is endorsed

Texans on side of 'captive shipper'

WASHINGTON (AP)- Texas congressmen are promising a push on behalf of the so-called "captive shipper" when the railroad deregulation bill comes up on the House floor.

"The bill in present form would enable a monopolistic railroad to continue raising freight rates on coal," Rep. J.J. Pickle, a Democrat from Austin, said Thursday.

"I am not opposed to wholesale deregulation of railroads," he said in a statement. "But we should not rush pell-mell into accepting (the bill) without some changes."

Pickle was one of 19 Texas congressmen who signed a letter to President Carter endorsing an amendment by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, a Democrat from Houston.

The Eckhardt amendment would set a more lenient guideline, after deregulation, for allowing the Interstate Commerce Commission to examine a railroad rate case if rail transportation is the only method available for shipping a commodity.

Eckhardt and other Texas congressmen fear that deregulation would allow railroads to raise rates too high for the coal they haul without competition from western states to Texas.

Many of the coal hauling rate cases that have come before the ICC in recent years stem from the protests of Texas utilities and industries.

"Deregulation is to promote competition, and if a monopoly exists deregulation simply opens the door to exploitation," Rep. Phil Gramm, a Democrat from College Station, said at a news conference.

The letter to Carter noted that the increasing cost of rail freight rates for coal threatens the national energy policy of converting from oil and gas to coal.

"The energy inflation embodied in this bill places an unnecessary burden on coal use- and thus on utility consumers-and dampens efforts toward coal conversion," the letter said.

"We would hope that you would support our effort to make these needed changes in the bill looking toward a balanced and effective rail deregulation policy," it said.

Five of the 24 members of the state's congressional delegation did not sign. They were Republican Reps. Bill Archer of Houson, Jim Collins of Dallas and Ron Paul of Lake Jackson and Democratic Reps. Sam Hall of Marshall and E. "Kika" de la Garza of Mission.

Eckhardt predicted his amendment would get a better reception on the House floor than it did last week when it was defeated in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The House is expected to begin consideration of the railroad deregulation bill next week.

The Senate already passed a railroad deregulation bill that includes a compromise amendment allowing the ICC to investigate proposed rate increases above a certain threshold for commodities that depend on rail transportation.

Proposed wilderness areas listed in bill

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Texas Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Harris Co., has introduced a bill to designate more than 62,000 acres in east Texas as wilderness, thus preserving it from any future development.

The proposed wilderness areas are on government lands, so the cost of redesignating them wilderness areas would be nominal, Eckhardt said.

The Forest Service, mandated to inventory all their holdings, determined 78,000 acres in east Texas fit the stringent criteria necessary to designate lands wilderness.

Of this total, the Carter administration recommended that 10,000 acres in national forests be preserved for recreational use in its primitive state.

"The administration's proposal is entirely inadequate for a state the size of Texas," Eckhardt said.

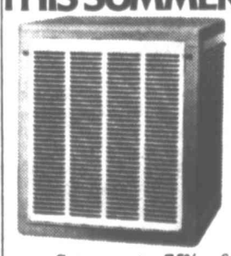

His bill would reclassify about 10 percent of the 664,000 acres of national forest in east Texas. "Considering that only 4 to 5 percent of the total annual timber harvest in Texas comes from the national forests, the amount of timber that the bill would make unavailable is small indeed," Eckhardt said.

The bill, referred to the House public lands subcommittee, includes proposals to create in wilderness areas ranging from 3,000 to 10,000 acres in size, in four national forests to the north of Houston and southwest of Dallas-Fort Worth.

Specifically, Eckhardt's bill proposes to set aside 6,200 acres for the Turkey Hill Wilderness about 30 miles east of Lufkin; 9,000 acres for the Graham Creek Wilderness 20 miles north of Woodville; 7,800 acres for the Jordan Creek Wilderness near Jasper; 3,600 acres for the Big Slough Wilderness 40 miles west of Lufkin; 3,400 for the Alabama Creek Wilderness 20 miles southwest of Lufkin.

A total of 4,500 acres for the Chambers Ferry Wilderness 15 miles north of Hemphill; 10,700 acres for the Indian Mounds Wilderness outside Hemphill; 4,900 acres for the Little Creek Lake Wilderness 20 miles northwest of Conroe; 7,200 acres for the Four Notch Wilderness near Huntsville; and 5,000 acres for the Big Creek Wilderness 15 miles north of Cleveland.

Cuban refugees receive scriptures

NEW YORK — Refugees from Castro's Cuba are being greeted on the shores of Florida and in camps with Spanish Scriptures supplied by the American Bible Society.

More than 270,000 Scriptures have been supplied to chaplains, churches, relief agencies, and individuals.

Included in this number are the ABS editions of Dios Hable Hoy, the Bible in Today's Spanish Version; Dios Llega Al Hombre, the New Testament in Today's Spanish Version, and Encuentro, a popular version of the Spanish New Testament.

ABS has also furnished Scripture Portions and Scripture Selections in Spanish to the thousands of Cuban refugees.

"It's a concerted effort to reach these people with the good news of Christ," said Alice Ball, an ABS general secretary.

"We want to show these men, women, and children coming to our shores that there is freedom not only in a political sense, but in a spiritual sense as well. It's a double portion," she said.

U.S. Air Force Chaplain Colonel Marvin Labinger, stationed at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida, requested 8,000 Spanish New Testaments to be distributed at various points throughout the state, as well as 2,000 copies of the complete Spanish Bible.

In an interview, he told ABS officials that he was "enthused about bringing the word of God to the Cuban refugees."

Other groups and individuals have requested Spanish Scriptures as well for distribution to the "Freedom Flotilla."

The National Association of Evangelicals in Wheaton, Illinois, purchased more than 40,000 ABS Portions and Selections of God's word and shipped them to the Latin American Mission (LAM) in Florida for distribution to the refugees in the camps there.

The First Baptist Church of Hollywood, Fla., which has several bi-lingual pastors on its staff, is finding a ready response to the more than 7,000 Spanish New Testaments, portions and selections being distributed. In a letter to ABS headquarters in New York Pastor D. Wayne Martin wrote: "People are arriving here, confused, anxious and with a great sense of loneliness in this new environment. A special glow comes into their eyes as our bi-lingual pastors share the Bible with them in their own tongue."

Roman Catholic Church officials in the Diocese of Miami told ABS that the reception given for the Spanish New Testaments and Gospels distributed was "terrific."

Other distributors reported that the Cuban refugees greeted the ABS scriptures with great enthusiasm as well. The Rev. George Walker, serving with the World Relief Help organization, handed out two ABS Scriptures to an elderly man who put them in his pocket, then produced a badly-worn New Testament that he had carried with him since 1970.

"He said it kept him alive," one observer reported. "It had saved his life."

Another Cuban refugee stretched out her hand to receive a Scripture and said it was the first Gospel portion she had seen in ten years.

Throughout its 164-year history, the American Bible Society has furnished Scriptures to countless spiritually-destitute people, especially to people — like the Cuban refugees — who are suffering through times of crisis and upheaval.

ABS will continue to supply Scriptures to Cuban refugees throughout the resettlement process in the hope that God's Word can provide them with strength and comfort in a difficult time.

The American Bible Society is a nonprofit, interconfessional organization whose sole purpose in the translation, publication, and distribution of the Holy Scriptures without sectrinal note or comment.

'Gen. Booth in Heaven' play honors Army founder

KANSAS CITY (AP) — They were a motley crew, ex-thieves, prostitutes, cripples and wastrels, led by a white-bearded old "soldier," besieging the gates of heaven.

"Booth came boldly with a big brass drum," Vachel Lindsay's classic poem puts it. "Are you washed in the Blood of the Lamb? The saints smiled gravely, and they said he's come. Are you washed in the Blood of the Lamb?"

The scene, with a white-robed Jesus standing on the glimmering stairs into paradise, gazing down at the besmirched lot, is the high point of the American premier of a musical drama, "The Blood of the Lamb."

It is based on Lindsay's poem, "Gen. William Booth Enters into Heaven," written at the death in 1912 of the founder of the Salvation Army. The show had its first U.S. production last week at the Army's National Centennial Congress.

"Drabs from the alleyways and drug fiends pale —" the poem portrays that battered company led toward the pearly gates by Booth. "Minds still passion ridden, soul-powers frail.

"Vermin eaten saints with mouldy breath, unwashed legions with the ways of death — Are you washed in the Blood of the Lamb?"

The musical, with that old Army song, "Are you washed ..." running through it like an echo, was staged four times at the Army gathering and filmed for television, offering a rare combination of vivacious entertainment and moving religious message.

It captures both the jolly buoyance and devoutness of the Salvationists, mirthful, peppy, dancing to their fervent songs, their trumpets blaring, drums pounding.

"Big voiced lassies made their banjos bang," the poem pictures them. "Tranced, fanatical, they shrieked and sang. Are you washed in the Blood of the Lamb?"

Lindsay, who before fame struck was a wandering vagabond who often had been fed and bedded at the Army's centers and knew its ways, metered his poem to its tunes and the beat of drums.

"Booth died blind and still by faith he trod, Eyes still dazzled by the ways of God," the lines go. "Booth led boldly and he looked the chief: Eagle countenance in sharp relief, Beard a flying, air of high command, Unabated in that holy land."

The musical starts in total silence with old black-and-white movies of Booth's jammed London funeral, the stillness broken finally by the crescending words of the poem read in the background. The gray film dissolves into a bright blue sky of soft, scudding clouds.

Then comes two hours of frolic, fun and love-in-action, of poignant scenes of Salvationists helping the outcasts, jobless, unwashed and afflicted, doing it with zestful dancing and catchy songs.

And at the end, the resonant echo, "Are YOU washed..."

Singles invited to 'Breakthru' confab

"Breakthru" is interested in attracting single adults "on the grow" to attends its "Super Saturday" conference set for July 26. The conference is geared to those single adults who are interested in enchancing their lives and in sharing their experience with other singles.

According to Warren Levingston, singles coordinator at First United Methodist Church and founder of "Breakthru," the conference will include seminars ranging in subject matter from 'You Owe It To Yourself: Learning the Art of Self-Assertiveness' to 'Auto Mechanics for the Non-Mechanical' and others.

Realizing that singles are represented by a wide variety of individuals with a wide variety of interests, needs, and goals, the conference hopes to offer subjects and speakers that will appeal to all aspects of singleness. Levingston said that the "Breakthru" organization does not act as a lonely hearts club or a group therapy program, but rather as a support group for those singles interested in a different alternative. "We provide a new alternative for people to meet people and share together in low-cost, non socially-competitive activities," he said.

The conference will follow "Breakthru's" purpose to enhance the life-style of singles through a multi-faceted approach. The purpose of the conference, he said, is to:

—help create a new awareness in the community of the large single adult population,

—provide a vehicle to encourage a more direct communication between single adult groups already existing in Lubbock and the surrounding area,

—give persons in the smaller communities of west Texas and eastern New Mexico a chance to utilize the resources presented at the seminars,

—deal with important issues of the single life-style.

The conference, he said, hopes to be a positive influence, highlighting the advantages of single adulthood, in addition to showing single persons how to grow, not just merely cope, with their life-style.

In addition to the 28 seminars, the conference will feature nationally known personalities speaking to the conference theme, The One and Only You.

The number of single adults is growing, Levingston said, with almost 50 percent of all children in the year 2000, expected to be living in single-parent homes.

Mother Teresa and Ghandi get Bibles

NEW YORK, May — Two prominent figures in India recently received Bibles from the Bible Society of India.

Mother Teresa of Calcutta and Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi were represented Bibles by local American Bible Society officials.

Mother Teresa, who was awarded the 1979 Mobel Peace Price for her 33 years of work in the slums of Calcutta; was presented with the Bible by Dr. J. Hala, vice president of the North West India Auxiliary Bible Society.

"The work of the Bible Society is good," Mother Teresa said, "I follow it."

Prime Minister Gandhi received her Scriptures recently after sending out an urgent request to the Bible Society for copies of the Bible.

Officials at the New Delhi Bible Society auxiliary responded to the call with three copies of the Bible: the Bible in Hindi, the Good News Bible, and the King James Version.

According to Mrs. Gandhi, she had given away all her own Bibles to friends and needed a new one to quote a passage from Scripture.

Bible Society officials in India reported that Mrs. Gandhi's request for a Bible was filled within 15 minutes.

The Bible Society of India is one of the most active Bible Societies in the world, last year distributing over 90 million Scriptures with a permanent staff of only 73 distributors.

Future may be bleaker than forecast

Congress acts for Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will move quickly to shore up the financially fragile Social Security system and make sure that retirement benefits continue to be paid on time, the chairman of a key House subcommittee promises.

However, an analyst for a senior citizens' group said the outlook for Social Security in the next few years may be even bleaker than the system's trustees indicated in their annual report to Congress on Thursday.

The trustees said the Old Age and Survivors trust fund, which paid out almost three-quarters of the $124.9 billion in Social Security benefits in 1979, could run out of money in late 1981 or early 1982 unless it is able to borrow from the Disability Insurance and Hospital Insurance (Medicaid) funds.

And under adverse economic circumstances, the trustees said, the three funds together might not have enough money to pay benefits on time beginning in 1983.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, chairman of the House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security, said his panel is "concerned about the report, but the word should go out that there is nothing to be alarmed about."

"The Social Security program will continue, as it has for 40 years, to pay benefits on time," he vowed. "The report is the Congress' warning signal and the Congress will act."

Pickle said the subcommittee will meet next Thursday to consider the Carter administration's proposal to allow interfund borrowing and also to shift some of the payroll tax from the burgeoning disability fund to the old-age fund.

Pickle's optimistic outlook wasn't shared by James M. Hacking, assistant legislative counsel for the American Association of Retired Persons.

"The immediate future looks rather pessimistic," he said. "What is worse, after reviewing the assumptions the trustees made, their worst case might turn out to be optimistic."

Hacking said Congress should act this year to allow interfund borrowing, then move next year to pump some general tax dollars into Social Security to repair the damage done by high inflation and unemployment.

Under the worst of three possible economic scenarios, the trustees foresaw inflation rates of 16.6 percent this year, 13.7 percent in 1981 and 11 percent in 1982 before a drop to 9.8 percent in 1985. That outlook also included declines in the real gross national product of 1.7 percent this year and 1 percent in 1981, and unemployment of 7.4 percent this year, 9.1 percent in 1981 and 6.8 percent by 1985.

The payroll tax, now 6.13 percent, already is due to climb to 6.65 percent next year, 6.7 percent in 1982, 7.05 percent in 1985 and 7.65 percent in 1990. Eventually, those higher taxes are expected to put the Old Age and Disability fund in the black for 50 years.

Disturbance instigated in El Paso

Cuban refugees headed for Atlanta

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Cuban refugees, apparently irritated by hot weather and lack of second helpings at dinner, instigated a "ruckus" at the processing center here Thursday night, Immigration and Naturalization officials said.

No one was injured in the disturbance, but "15 or 16" refugees were tagged as instigators and separated from the other Cubans, said Mike Trominski, senior district INS officer in charge.

He also said 11 refugees would be flown to Atlanta today or Saturday, but that he did not know whether the 11 were involved in the uprising.

They were being shipped to Atlanta because of their "moral turpitude," INS officials said.

Trominski said Thursday's incident occured about 6:30 p.m. CDT when the refugees were being returned to their barracks after dinner, and lasted 15 to 30 minutes.

After officers reported a "ruckus with hollering and banging about," Trominski said, about 50 support officers were called in.

The Cubans "immediately settled down and became very docile and quiet," he said.

"It was a ruckus, not a riot," he said. "There was no physical violence, no physical contact with officers."

Trominski said the Border Patrol officers carried riot gear but no guns.

The refugees apparently were upset because they "had no seconds and thirds in the chow line" and because a water fountain did not emit cold water, he said, adding the hot weather probably contributed to their irritation.

One toilet was broken and a trash barrel overturned in the barracks, Trominski said.

He added a search of the Cubans netted several sharpened metal objects.

The 60 Cubans being held here were tagged as agitators in the June 1 riots at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Four of the Cubans already were being held at the El Paso County Jail. Immigration authorities and jailers said they were among the half-dozen who had said they did not want to be in the United States in the first place. They were taken out of the detention center at the other prisoners' request.

Robert Lalley, acting head of the processing center here, said he was told the Cuban refugees here were not violent. Government officials in Washington and Arkansas contended the Cubans sent to El Paso were ringleaders and agitators in the riots that resulted in injuries of more than 100 people and the burning of several buildings.

Office exercises can beat 'fat and flabby' syndrome

Sitting in an office all day is no way to stay in shape. If you're a woman who likes to spend time on the tennis courts, in the pool or just jogging around town, a sedentary job can make you feel lethargic and gain weight.

Women who have the toughest time facing up to the need for a disciplined program of exercises, oddly enough, are the ones who were most active in athletics during college. It often comes as a shock to them to find they put on weight easily when they're confined to an office all day.

An observer of this post-athletic phenomenon is Betty Jaynes, women's basketball coach for James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Va. She has begun encouraging her students to prepare for an adjustment to their fitness and activities schedule before they leave the regulated life of a college campus.

In her role as chairwoman of the selection committee for the Kodak Women's All-American Basketball Team, she comes into contact with hundreds of these young women who are unprepared for the less vigorous 9 to 5 office routine.

"It's important to take charge of yourself early by setting aside a certain number of hours per week for a sport you enjoy," says Coach Jaynes. "Some activities burn more calories than others. Swimming, cycling and jogging are all-over conditioners because they involve legs and arms and aid muscle tone. For the greatest numbers of calories burned, choose an active sport like swimming or squash.

"If you work in an office, you probably have to stay put for most of the day. But you can join a gym or health club and fit exercise into your lunch hour. Even a half-hour of good, solid exercising leaves you with enough time to eat a salad or have a container of yogurt at your desk."

Are there warning signals that your body is getting out of shape? Jaynes says: "The first area where extra weight settles is in the hips and thighs. Later, you'll notice it in the hands, feet and face."

Understanding the problems women encounter when they find their activities restricted by the confines of an office, Jaynes has developed a series of exercises to tone and firm the muscles that can be done right at your desk.

First, if yours is a desk job, make sure you're sitting properly. Begin by standing behind the desk, in front of the chair with one foot in front of the other. Tuck your hips under and lower yourself gently into the chair while keeping your back straight. Sitting properly can keep your buttocks from spreading. Occasionally, while sitting, tighten the buttock muscles and hold for a count of 10. Repeat five times.

The best firming and strengthening exercises require the use of light weights or dumbbells. Jaynes recommends a two-pound set and a five-pound set. They can be slipped into your desk drawer and pulled out for a quick-exercise break. The weights will cost anywhere from $8 a set for iron ones to $50 for chrome-plated.

One of the best hand and arm toners is done like this: Grip the weight with palm facing upward. Rest hand holding the weight on thigh with arm extended beyond the knee. Slowly curl the hand back towards the elbow. Repeat. Rest. Practice this for a total of three minutes. Rest and reverse your hand, putting the palm downward and again, try to roll the hand back towards the elbow. Alternate.

Another exercise using weights is done while standing. Keeping your back straight, grip weight in each hand. (Slowly raise one arm, then lower alternate with other arm.) Do it steadily and continue this exercise for three to four minutes.

Ordinary office routines can be turned into muscle strengthening exercises. Just as form is essential in playing active sports, Coach Jaynes stresses the importance of becoming aware of your movements in walking, reaching and lifting.

"When you reach, use the whole body," she advises. "Don't just extend your arm to the upper file cabinet. Instead lean forward on your toes putting pressure on the balls of your feet. In silhouette, you'll look like a ballet dancer."

Just sitting with shoulders pulled back and back erect will help you feel more energetic during a long day. The familiar office worker's slump is taxing on shoulder and back muscles and can even cause headaches. Feeling good about your body and handling it with grace and ease not only can make you appear thinner and more in shape but actually serves to relax your body to do its best work.

Dear Abby

Fascination with Panties Doesn't Mean He's Gay

DEAR ABBY: I am very upset and hope you can shed some light on a problem concerning our son who is now 19. (I'll call him Mike.)

About five years ago I found several pair of girl's panties hidden under Mike's mattress. I was shocked and told my husband about it. He spoke to Mike, who explained that he and a neighbor boy had "found" them in a trash can behind an apartment building. His father told him to get rid of them, and nothing more was said about it.

All through high school Mike was active in sports, music, clubs, etc. He was very popular with boys and girls. He is now in his sophomore year at college and has been going steady with the same girl for two years. (I'm sure they're doing more than just holding hands.)

Mike is now home for summer vacation. While cleaning his closet, I found a bra, panties and garter belt stuffed into his tennis shoes! I asked him what they were doing there. He got red in the face, said they weren't his and accused me of snooping. Believe me, I was not.

Abby, I am sick. Can our son be a homosexual? He seems so normal.

Please help me. I don't know how to handle this.

WORRIED IN ST. PAUL

DEAR WORRIED: Apparently your son has had a fascination for female undergarments since adolescence. Don't be upset. It does not mean he is homosexual: Many males share this kind of behavior and function normally as men.

If your son feels that he has a problem, he should get professional help. (The University of Minnesota has an excellent Human Sexuality Department.)

And it might relieve your mind and your husband's to look into the program, too. The more you understand about a subject, the less worrried and upset you will be.

DEAR ABBY: When I became pregnant four years ago — at age 43 — I was surprised and certainly not prepared for another child. (I had three grown children.) My sister-in-law gave us an old beat-up baby bed she had had in her basement for years. My husband sanded it down and painted it, and it looked like new. We used it until our baby outgrew it, then we sold it along with some other used furniture.

When my sister-in-law heard that we had sold the bed, she demanded that we give her part of the money we got for it. Abby, that baby bed was junk when she gave it to us, and nothing was said about returning it.

Do we owe her anything?

STEAMED IN DAYTONA BEACH

DEAR STEAMED: If she gave it to you, all you owe her is a "thank-you."

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOVING SISTER IN BREMERTON, WASH. If you truly want to help your brother get well, let him know that you love him, are confident that he will recover and admire him for finally going into therapy. Offer no suggestions. To tell a person who is undergoing psychoanalysis that all he needs to get well is "common sense," and that permitting his doctor to probe into his early unhappy childhood is causing his depression, is doing him more harm than good.

CONFIDENTIAL to those who have sent for Abby's booklets: Please, please be patient. I am literally deluged with orders and am getting them out as quickly as possible.

Lanny Hamby speaks on women and the law

The Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women Association met June 16 in the fellowship hall of the First United Methodist Church.

The program was presented by Lanny Hamby who spoke on "Women and the Law."

He explained that domestic relations are an ever-present problem as he discussed the no-fault divorce, division of property and child custody.

"A will is not always necessary," continued Hamby, "as laws state how property will be divided."

He explained that wills may name an administrator which can serve without court control. Court consent is required for the selling of real estate.

According to Hamby, state inheritance tax is based on the amount of inheritance involved.

Presenting the vocational talk was Veta Calvin, a receptionist at Malone-Hogan Clinic.

New officers elected at the meeting were Nelda Colclazer, president; LaVerne Rogers, vice president; Mary Holloman, recording secretary; Margaret Wise, corresponding secretary; and Butch Cooley, treasurer.

Will teen's hair touch the floor?

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: I am a 14-year-old girl and I want to set a record by having the longest hair of any girl in school.

I'd like it to touch the floor but my mother said that hair will only grow so long and then stop. It doesn't sound right to me, so she told me to ask you. — Barbara, Gastonia, N.C.

Dear Barbara: Mother is right. Your hair will only grow about half an inch per month. After a three-year growing period, your hair goes into a resting stage for a few months, then falls out little by little to make room for the new hair.

Dr. Wallace: I am 16 and have a twin sister whom I love very much. We are very close and I hate to stick my nose in her business, but she has a problem and doesn't know it.

My twin has two friends who like the same boy. When the three girls are together, all they do is talk about this boy and completely ignore my twin. In fact they treat her like trash.

Do you have any suggestions so that I can help my sister? — Twin, Joliet, Ill.

Dear Twin: What bothers you might not bother your twin. If she complains to you, then give her your advice. If she doesn't, leave her alone.

Dr. Wallace: I'm 18 and last summer, while riding my horse, I met a young man, 24. We discoverd that we enjoyed each other's conversation, love of horses and company greatly. He is a horse trainer and a bricklayer and does quite well at both.

During his high school years he was a bit wild and our gossiping neighbors have told my naive parents that he is no good and this caused them to stop me from seeing him.

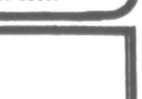

The fact is this boy has changed and is now a wonderful, sweet man. I really care for him, and riding horses with him was the most enjoyable time of my life.

It doesn't help matters that I'm 5-foot-8 and this fellow is 5-foot-5. My parents also know that his father died an alcoholic. Please help me out with my parents. — Robin, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Robin: Your problem is so common but there is no simple answer.

All I can offer is time. As time passes, parents mellow because if they don't, they risk the possibility of "losing" their son or daughter. The time has come when you, not your parents, are responsible for the company you keep and the friends you see.

Unborn baby's life takes precedence

Nevada woman makes supreme sacrifice

ORANGE, Calif. (AP) — Anita Brown knew she would lose her own race with death, but she won the battle that really mattered to her: she held her newborn son in her arms before she succumbed to cancer.

Five hours after Gregory Paul Brown's birth, the 25-year-old Jehovah's Witness died of massive hemorrhaging caused by a tumor in her jaw. She had refused chemotherapy for fear of endangering her unborn child.

"Essentially, Anita was giving her life for that of a child she had not yet had," cancer surgeon Ronald Lapin said Thursday.

"She was positive, laughing and joking until the very last," said her husband Tom Brown.

She gave birth Tuesday by Caesarian section to the 4-pound baby three weeks prematurely at University of California-Irvine Medical Center. The infant has no trace of cancer and is given a good chance of survival, doctors said.

Mrs. Brown's story is all the more tragic, Lapin said, because her tumor could have been removed in its early stages if she had found a surgeon who would operate — as Lapin eventually did — without using the blood transfusions barred by her religion.

The cancer came to light more than 2½ years ago, when she went to a dentist complaining of pain in her jaw. When X-rays failed to pinpoint the cause, a thin slice of tissue was examined under a microscope and the disease was discovered.

Surgeons in her native Nevada refused to operate without transfusions, so she began a fruitless quest for a cure, including trips to Mexico for Laetrile treatments.

A year and a half ago, she married Tom Brown, a hay truck driver in Nevada, who knew of her condition.

Brown finally located Lapin at Esperanza Intercommunity Hospital in Yorba Linda.

When Lapin took Mrs. Brown's case, she looked "as though a big rubber ball was blocking her mouth and protruding outside the lips by two inches, plugging up her airway...."

Lapin and his surgical team removed most of the cancerous tissue in January, using a special electric knife that sealed off blood vessels, preventing excessive bleeding by applying heat to the cut ends.

The surgeons also performed a tracheotomy, cutting a hole below the blockage in her throat so she could breathe and take in food.

Three months pregnant at the time of the operation, Mrs. Brown refused to take cancer drugs that could hurt her child.

Six months later, the tumor had grown back and she was down to 80 pounds.

"She knew she was dying and just going to live long enough to deliver this baby," Lapin said.

"That 80-pound weakling has really taught me a lesson about faith and life and what these people stand for. She's been a lift to others — a little dynamo."

A memorial service at the Esperanza hospital today was to be followed by funeral services in her native Lovelock, Nev.

Abilene oilman plans monument for buffalo

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Oilman Jack Grimm has spent part of his millions searching for the sunken Titanic and the Loch Ness monster.

Now the Abilene millionaire plans to carve a monument to the buffalo atop a 500-foot-tall mesa on his ranch about 15 miles south of here and, appropriately, near the community of Buffalo Gap.

New York sculptor Robert Berks will engrave a series of pictures 2,000 feet long and 40 feet high portraying the creature's history.

The stone carving will be the largest in the world — four to five times the width of Mt. Rushmore, Grimm said Thursday.

Grimm said the project would take about five years to complete, and estimated it would cost $2 million to $3 million.

"I've been looking at that mountain for a long time, and I just thought there should be something up there," Grimm said.

"The settlement of West Texas is closely linked with the life and death of the buffalo," he told a luncheon group at the Petroleum Club.

"Our story will be engraved into the cap rock, which has not changed for 80 million years. It will endure as the Pyramids have endured, and it will hand our story down through the millennia."

"It will make Abilene the center for the new culture, which is the Sunbelt," Berks said. "The future of our country lies in the Sunbelt. As Florence attracted the greatest artists of the Renaissance, so should Abilene attract the artists of the new culture. This is my hope."

Berks said the engravings would start out with a large herd of buffalo and then would show Indians, hunters, and pioneers, and finally a desert scene strewn with buffalo bones and two lone buffalo.

"Imagine the anthropologists of the future. By looking at this chronicle, they can know what the costumes were, who were the Indians, the pioneers. We will be leaving our historical statement in the rock," Berks said.

On the light side

In hot water after 25 years

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A 65-year-old woman has received a $1,770 electric bill that Tampa Electric Co. says is for nearly a quarter-century of hot water.

Although the bill stems from a mixup before Beatrice Fielland bought the house in the late 1950s, the utility says she has to pay it.

In the mid-1950s, TECO offered to charge a flat water heating rate to customers who installed electric water heaters. The water heater in what is now Mrs. Fielland's house was installed to conform with a flat rate — bypassing the electric meter.

Due to some mixup, however, no flat-rate bill was ever sent to the house.

Three years ago, Mrs. Fielland — thinking she was paying for the water heater on her regular electric bill — had a switch installed on her water heater so she could turn the heater off to conserve energy. When her bill did not go down, she notified TECO.

"We checked our records, and we found we had no record that this was a flat-rate water heater," Truax said. "The bill totals about $1,700 — which is what the flat rate would have been from 1958-80.

Mrs. Fielland said she would pay the bill, reluctantly.

"If this payment had been on my bills all these years ... I could have decided whether to use the hot water or not, or whether I wanted to get a more efficient heater," she said.

Bicycling back to the past

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Floyd Shafer has left for his 50-year high school reunion in Kansas City — by bicycle.

The 68-year-old graduate student at North Texas State University began the 500-mile journey Thursday on his Austro-Daimler 10-speed bike, loaded with tent, sleeping bag, fruit and cookies, water, spare tires and tubes, and a jug of ammonia for curious dogs.

He hopes to make it in five days.

"There's only one time in life a man can ride to his 50th reunion," Shafer said as he packed. "And I'm going to do it."

Shafer biked across Colorado during the 1976 "Bikecentennial" and has ridden thousands of miles across Texas and other states.

"Those who don't dare, don't learn," he said. "People who look at the difficulty of it don't try it."

Shafer lives in a student dormitory during the week and bikes 40 miles to his home in Dallas on weekends.

His wife, Florence, does not share his enthusiasm for physical fitness. She is flying to Kansas City next week to meet him.

Shafer will fly back to Denton, however, because he doesn't want to miss his classes in springboard diving.

Tower critical of plan for withholding levy

By SEN. JOHN TOWER
(Rep. Tex.)

At a time when our economy is suffering from a shortage of saved money for homeowners and businesses to borrow, it is completely absurd to take an action guaranteed to make the problem even worse. Yet that is what the Administration proposes to do — by requiring that 15 percent of interest or dividend income be withheld for income taxes before the recipient gets the money.

The people of Texas are unhappy about the proposal and I don't blame them. In fact, in the last week of May alone, I received 1,047 letters on the subject — each one individually composed by a concerned citizen. I don't remember any other single issue drawing that kind of response. I couldn't be more pleased that you see the proposal for what it is.

The rate of savings in this country has dropped to the lowest level ever. That has added to inflation in two ways. First, interest rates went up because investors had to compete more for fewer dollars available from the pool of saved money. Second, money that isn't saved or invested is spent, causing more dollars to be in circulation and driving up prices. One of the best ways to fight inflation is to encourage people to save more, not less. That's what we in Congress were trying to do when we passed a tax exemption for the small saver and investor. The Administration's proposal to withhold taxes from that income is directly contradictory to that legislation. I am at a loss to understand this apparent confusion of purpose.

Countdown near for Leonard, Duran

MONTREAL (AP) — The countdown is complete and now Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran climb into the Olympic Stadium ring tonight for one of the richest and most ballyhooed boxing showdowns in history.

At stake in this classic confrontation between the boxer and the slugger is Leonard's World Boxing Council welterweight championship.

Leonard is the boxer, a stylist with speed in both his hands and feet, undefeated in 27 professional fights since winning the Olympic gold medal for the United States in this city in 1976.

Duran is the slugger, a brawler who learned his craft fighting in the streets of Panama City where he grew up from poverty to become lightweight champion of the world.

Their long awaited meeting has created the greatest interest in non-heavyweight boxing since the days of the original Sugar Ray, Ray Robinson, and his contemporaries like Rocky Graziano, Tony Zale, Randy Turpin and Carmen Basilio.

The bout has also brought together two other longtime rivals — co-promoters Bob Arum and Don King, who are working in conjunction with the Olympic Installations Board, which operates the stadium. The board purchased the live gate rights for $3.5 million with a crowd of about 45-50,000 anticipated.

Leonard will gross $8 million or more with Duran getting $1.5 million. Much of the income is being generated by closed-circuit television with the bout to be beamed to 310 sites in the United States and Canada. Those locations vary from neighborhood movie theaters to the plush Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York, where the $100 tab includes dinner.

Leonard, who is making the second defense of the title he won from Wilfred Benitez last November, is ranked the 9-5 favorite by Las Vegas oddsmakers, although you'd never convince Duran's Panamanian countrymen that the man they call "Hands of Stone" should be an underdog. They have been parading all over town wearing buttons which say "Duran Campeon" — claiming the title for their man before the first punch is thrown — and carrying their country's flag.

Much of the anticipation over this fight has been in the contrasting styles of the two fighters. Leonard is a master boxer who has the kind of ring showmanship complete with stutter-steps and shuffles that stamped Muhammad Ali. Duran is a fighting machine, a brawler whose furious pace can be frightening in the ring. The matchup has all the qualities needed for a great fight.

Leonard has a size and age advantage. He is a natural welterweight and at 5-foot-10, he is 2½ inches taller than Duran and has a three-inch edge in reach. At 24, he is five years younger than Duran, who celebrated his 29th birthday while in training here this week.

Duran was lightweight champion from 1972 until last year when he surrendered the 135-pound crown to move up to the 147-pound class.

Both fighters seem to have a distinct dislike for one another. Duran shrugged off the size of his purse, saying, "I fight for nothing. I have no respect for Leonard. He talks too much."

As for the champion, he jolted the original press conference announcing the fight by saying, "I'll kill him." The remark was made almost in jest.

"I did it for a reason," said Leonard. "The press conference was so boring." But Duran didn't seem to appreciate the joke.

The bad feelings surfaced again at an unofficial weigh-in Wednesday. Duran taunted the champion, saying, "Leonard, two days more, two days more. Remember." Leonard responded by blowing a kiss in Duran's direction, sending the Panamanian into a rage.

The strategists for the two fighters are among the best in the boxing business. Angelo Dundee, who trained Ali, works in Leonard's corner. Freddie Brown and Ray Arcel, who together have a century or so of boxing savvy, are Duran's cornermen.

"I have never seen Duran as determined as he is for this fight," said Arcel. "Not even for De Jesus."

Duran's lone professional loss came in a non-title fight against Esteban De Jesus, who knocked him down with a left hook and outpointed him in 1972. In 1974, he knocked Duran down again with a left hook, in a title fight. But that time the champion came back to score an 11th round knockout. In a second title fight in 1978, Duran knocked De Jesus out again, this time in the 12th round.

Contrasting backgrounds make for interesting boxing styles

MONTREAL (AP) — "Old Stonehands" against the "Choirboy."

The Roberto Duran-Sugar Ray Leonard fight for the WBC version of the world welterweight championship tonight in Montreal's Olympic Stadium is doomed for disappointment.

No earthly event possibly could measure up to its advance notices and expectations — "Fight of the Century," "the Dream Bout," "Le Face a Face Historique (Confrontation for History)," as the billboards proclaim here.

The Bull and the Matador.

The Beauty and the Beast.

"The Rapier against the Meat Ax."

"The Miniature Marciano against the Watchfob Ali."

On and on they go, the endless comparisons, contrasts and antitheses.

The fight has all the ingredients of a classic destined for immortality.

The sight: the Olympic city where, in 1976, Sugar Ray, then a stringy 20-year-old, battled his way into the nation's conscious by winning an Olympic gold medal and becoming an overnight TV celebrity.

The principals: the Olympic kid with a cherubic smile, and the dour alley fighter from the slums of Panama, the jet-haired, bearded Duran, whom promoter Don King dubbed, "the little killer."

The stakes: more money than any fighter of any weight ever made for an hour's work — $8 to $10 million for Sugar Ray, $2 million for the Panamanian. But to the fighters themselves and to the watching world, intangibles far exceed the monetary considerations.

This is a contest of fierce personal pride, a faceoff of opposing backgrounds, philosophies and techniques. It's a clash of the "haves" and the "have-nots."

It has divided the populace.

The establishment has swarmed quite naturally to the camp of Leonard, the slick combination fighter-businessman, sole owner of his own corporation, Sugar Ray Inc., which deals only in million-dollar contracts.

In contrast, Duran, abandoned by his father, quit school at 14 and went into the streets to grub for nickels and dimes to keep his family in food.

He hustled and stole. He painted houses for $1.50 a day. He survived with his fists. He once did a month in the hoosegow for belting a cop.

Duran is a savage once inside the squared ring.

Like the late Marciano, who retired undefeated, he bores in constantly, holding, throwing punches from every direction, playing the ropes, intimidating his foes with force and fury.

The nickname "Manos de Piedra" (fists of stone) was given him by street pals in Panama who saw him slay a horse witn a single punch just to impress a girl.

Leonard is truly a vest-pocket Ali, a classical puncher with lightning speed in hands and feet. Yet a soporific punch in either paw. He lacks Ali's braggadocio and bombast.

"He is America's sweetheart," an Arizona promoter said. "He's another Shirley Temple. Everybody falls in love with him."

Hero versus villan, white hat against black hat. We like the mean guy in 10.

MEASURING THE SPEED — Big Spring police officer Roger Sweatt (left) uses a radar to measure the speed of pitch hurled by Herald reporter Steve Hershberger in a practice session for the real thing tomorrow afternoon at Johnny Stone Park. The radar will be used to judge the competition in one of three promotional events during the Second Annual Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Slow-Pitch Tournament. The radar is one of three events, with the other two being a baserunning contest and a home run hitting derby. Contestants need not be a member of a team competing in the tourney, but must submit one dollar per event entered in order to be eligible for a trophy. Catching the pitch in the photo is Steve Lacey.

Burns red-hot in Canadian Open

ILE BIZARD, Quebec (AP) — George Burns and Jack Nicklaus each got a surprise in the first round of the Canadian Open Golf Tournament.

Burns' was a pleasant surprise. Nicklaus' was not.

"I didn't expect anything today," Burns said. "I'm really surprised. Starting out this morning I didn't know how far I'd be able to go. I was in some pain."

So he shot a 4-under-par 66, despite a painfully ailing shoulder, and set the first round pace Thursday in this national championship.

"It's funny how the pain goes away," Burns said, "when you start making some putts and shooting a good score."

Nicklaus, fresh from his dramatic triumph in last week's U.S. Open and with son Steve tagging along as his caddy, had things nicely in control going to the 18th tee.

"I'd played pretty well for a while and had it one under par and it looked like I was going to get out of it with a 69," Nicklaus said.

He looked at the pond that juts into the dogleg fairway on the left and decided to play his drive down the left.

"I don't know what possessed me," he said.

He hit it in the water and eventually finished with a double-bogey that dropped him back to 71, 1 over par on the 6,628-yard Royal Montreal Golf Club course and five shots off the pace.

"I'm coming off a high," Nicklaus said. "This wasn't a bad round; 71 is a reasonable score. If I can shoot 60-something tomorrow, I'm right back in the golf tournament."

Bob Gilder had a share of the lead until he bogeyed the last hole and finished with a 67 that left him one back and tied with Johnny Miller and Tommy Valentine.

The leading Canadians were Jim Nelford and Roger Klatt at 68. They were tied with Hale Irwin, Leonard Thompson, Jim Dent and Australian Bob Shearer.

Tom Watson, golf's leading player since 1977 and a five-time winner this year, had a 69. Defending champion Lee Trevino and South African Gary Player were with Nicklaus at 71.

Glance foresees many upsets in Olympic trials

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Sprinter Harvey Glance predicts that because of America's boycott of the 1980 Olympic Games there will be "a rash of upsets" in the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials, which begin a nine-day run Saturday.

Glance, 23, fourth in the 100-meter dash at the Montreal Olympics four years ago, Thursday said the country's collegiate athletes had "a definite advantage" over veterans such as himself.

"I feel very bitter about the situation," said the former Auburn star. "I can't help but feel bitter, can I? The Moscow Olympics have been my goal since the 1976 Olympics and now they've been taken away."

President Carter called for a boycott of the Moscow Games after the Soviet Union troops moved into Afghanistan. The U.S. Olympic Committee went along with him.

The U.S. Trials on University of Oregon's Hayward Field artificial track will begin with finals in the men's 20-kilometer walk, the women's shot put and women's pentathlon set for Saturday.

"The college guys have been running against each other all year," Glance said. "Meanwhile, us veterans have been piddling around since the boycott was announced.

"The college guys have a definite advantage. So I think you're going to see a rash of upsets here."

Glance stopped short of criticizing President Carter by name but said, "I don't think athletes like to get into politics. There's a definite line between athletics and politics. But now politicians have crossed that line and we don't like it."

University of Tennessee head Coach Stan Huntsman, 48, an assistant men's coach on the U.S. team, admitted the atmosphere in Eugene was different from the atmosphere before the 1976 U.S. Olympic Trials. He also was an assistant coach of the men's team that went to Montreal.

"I'm depressed myself," he said. "Some of the younger guys seem enthused but I don't think all the veterans feel that way. There's definitely some apathy among some of the athletes.

"The boycott appears to have been a negative factor against track and field in this country this year. Attendance has been down all over the country."

Huntsman, at Tennessee for 11 years, was head coach of the U.S. men's team that competed in the first World's Cup at Dusseldorf, West Germany, in 1978.

"Although we aren't going to Moscow," Huntsman said, "I think just making the Olympic team is enough for a lot of the athletes, though. It's the motivating factor."

"Oh, I agree with that," Glance said. "I'm here to win and I'm here to make the Olympic team. But I also kn[illegible]'m not as fired up as I should be. If we were going to Moscow, I know I'd feel a lot different."

The first three finishers in the final events qualify for the U.S. team and will be eligible to compete in six international meets in Europe.

Three will be before Moscow, and three will be after the Olympics.

Marvis Frazier defeated

ATLANTA (AP) — The boxing future of Marvis Frazier is a bit hazy after Thursday night but James Broad knows exactly where he's headed.

Broad, a sleek 6-foot-4, 215-pounder with thunder in his right hand wants to be heavyweight champion of the world.

"That is my dream," he said Thursday night after knocking out the highly touted Frazier, son of the former world heavyweight champion in only 21 seconds of the first round in a semifinal bout of the U.S. Olympic Boxing Trials.

Broad, a 22-year-old Army Spec. 4 stationed at Fort Ord, Calif., captured the All-Army, Interservice and world military heavyweight titles to qualify for the Olympic Trials. But he remained a virtual unknown to the heralded Frazier, who was the Amateur Athletic Union champion and the 1979 national Golden Gloves champ.

That all changed when Broad caught Frazier coming in with his only right of the fight — a short blow that traveled about six inches — and sent the 19-year-old Frazier down in the middle of the ring.

The son of the 1964 Olympic heavyweight champion and world champion, lay on his face unmoving for nearly three minutes before getting up. He then sat on a stool in the middle of the ring for another couple of minutes before retiring to his dressing room.

Joe Frazier, one of the first to jump into the ring after his fallen son, explained that Marvis had suffered a pinched nerve temporarily and could not move after the knockout.

"No, I wasn't scared when I couldn't move. I felt my physical condition would carry me through," said the younger Frazier.

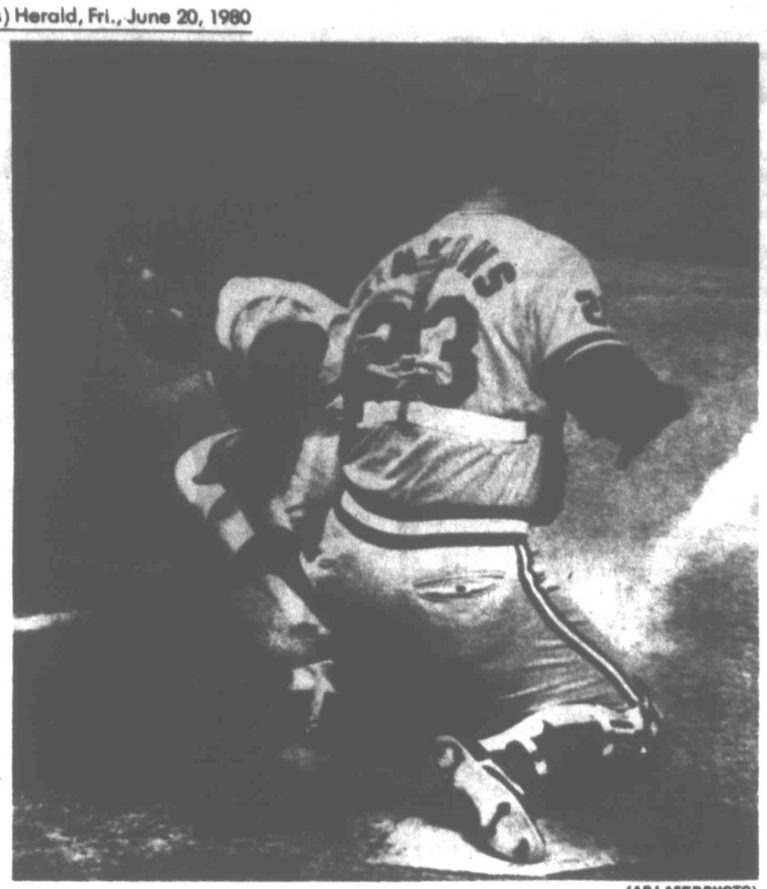

"But I am naturally upset and disgusted. Now it's back to school then maybe I'll go back into training for the 1984 Olympics or turn pro. I haven't decided yet," he said.

Broad will face Chris McDonald of Tiverton, R.I., for the heavyweight title Saturday night. McDonald earned a decision over Michael Arms of Madison, Wis.

In other semifinal bouts:

Harold Petty, St. Louis won by a third round disqualification over Myron Taylor of Philadelphia and will meet three-time AAU champion Jackie Beard of Jackson, Tenn. for the 119-pound title. Beard outpointed Kelvin Seabrook of Charlotte, N.C.

In the 165-pound class Randy Smith of Chicago decisioned Andre Schott of New Paltz, N.Y., and Charles Carter of Santa Monica, Calif. outpointed Scott Bryant of Louisville, Ky.

Sacrificial head boosts Orioles

By the Associated Press

Baltimore's John Lowenstein used his head and was carried off the field a hero...on a stretcher.

As a pinch hitter with the Orioles trailing the Oakland A's 3-2 in the seventh inning Thursday night, Lowenstein first got his bat in the way of a pitch from Rick Langford for a game-tying single. Then, he got his head in the way of a throw, allowing Al Bumbry to race home from third with the run that gave Baltimore a 4-3 victory.

Lowenstein came through after Oakland center fielder Dwayne Murphy fielded a single by Bumbry and nailed Doug DeCinces at the plate for the second out of the inning. Lowenstein's single scored Mark Corey but, as he headed for second on the throw from the outfield, he was struck in the back of the head by a throw from first baseman Jeff Newman, the cutoff man.

Bumbry advanced to third on Lowenstein's hit but stopped there until Newman's throw caromed onto the outfield grass. He then scooted home with the winning run, giving the Orioles their fifth consecutive victory.

The A's have dropped three in a row and six of their last seven games.

Yankees 7, Angels 5

Lou Piniella's pinch double drove in the tying and go-ahead runs in the sixth inning after Graig Nettles, Rick Cerone and Reggie Jackson homered in the first three innings. The Yankees' seven-game winning streak is their longest of the year and kept their AL East lead over Boston at seven games. The Angels, defending champs in the West, have dropped nine in a row and 15 of their last 16 games. Rudy May, the third Yankee pitcher, hurled 41-3 scoreless innings to pick up the victory, striking out eight while allowing two hits.

Red Sox 2, Mariners 0

Bob Stanley scattered eight hits in pitching his first shutout of the season as the Red Sox posted their third victory in a row and ninth in the last 10 games. Seattle starter Mike Parrott held Boston hitless through the first four innings and scoreless until the sixth when Fred Lynn singled and scored on a double by Tony Perez. Jim Rice singled Perez home.

Indians 5, Royals 4

Miguel Dilone collected three hits and Toby Harrah drove in two runs to lead Cleveland. Dilone, who reached base seven straight times in the two-game series, singled leading off the first inning, stole second and scored on Mike Hargrove's double. Harrah delivered a sacrifice fly in the first and singled a run across in the sixth, which proved to be the winning run when Amos Otis and Willie Wilson homered for Kansas City.

Brewers 10, Rangers 4

Sub shortstop Ed Romero, filling in for the injured Robin Yount, lashed three hits and scored three runs and Ben Oglivie blasted his 18th home run of the season. Two Ranger errors, singles by Jim Gantner, Romero and Don Money and a sacrifice fly by Cecil Cooper produced three runs in the third. Romero knocked in two runs with a double and Charlie Moore contributed an RBI single in the fourth. Oglivie hit a two-run homer in the fifth and added an RBI single in the ninth.

Twins 5, Tigers 1

Jose Morales' hit his first career grand slam in the third inning to back the strong pitching of Darrell Jackson. Morales connected off Dan Schatzeder, who was making his first start since going on the disabled list May 27. Jackson allowed six hits and no runs before giving way to Doug Corbett with two out in the eighth.

Texas League Roundup

Krug's bat sparks Midland win

By the Associated Press

Gary Krug got 5 hits in 5 trips to the plate Thursday night and drove in enough runs for the Midland Cubs to take a 9-0 Texas League baseball victory over the El Paso Diablos.

In other Texas League action, San Antonio beat Amarillo, 6-1, Jackson defeated Arkansas 7-2, and Shreveport swept a doubleheader from Tulsa, 4-1 and 3-2.

Krug drove in two runs in his five-hit performance, enough for the victory, but his teammates added 7 more in the 9-0 shutout.

Jon Perlman, 6-6, was the winning pitcher; Joel Crisler, 4-6, was the loser.

Mark Bradley slammed two homers as the San Antonio Dodgers beat the Amarillo Gold Sox, 6-1.

Bradley had a solo in the third inning and a two-run homer in the sixth. Greg Pastors had a homer for Amarillo in the fifth inning.

Ubaldo Heredia, 6-3, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Mark Thurmond.

The Jackson Mets took advantage of 6 errors by the Arkansas Travelers to score 7 unearned runs in a 7-2 victory.

Mike Lowry, 2-0, was the winning pitcher. Andy Rincon, 6-3, was the loser.

David Wiggins drove in 2 runs with a single in the first inning as Shreveport took a 3-0 lead and went on to beat the Tulsa Drillers, 4-1, in the first game of a doubleheader.

Mark Calvert, 6-7, was the winning pitcher. Chuck Lamson, 3-5, was the loser.

It took a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the 11th inning to give the Captains a 3-2 victory over Tulsa in the nightcap.

Dave Crutcher, the losing pitcher with a 2-6 record, issued the walk to Tom Reynolds, forcing home Jeff Ransom with the winning run.

Nate Snell was the winning hurler.

NL Roundup

Sick Ryan one-hits Cards

By The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan said he felt "kind of ill," but St. Louis' batters were the ones who ended up looking rather sickly.

Ryan allowed just one hit over seven innings before tiring and giving way to reliever Joe Sambito, who finished up as the Houston Astros beat the St. Louis Cardinals 2-0. It was Houston's 12th straight home victory, a club record, and kept the Astros three games ahead of Los Angeles in the National League West.

"It definitely wasn't my best outing of the year," said Ryan, who struck out seven and evened his record at 5-5. "I started feeling bad when I was warming up. I had the good fastball, but I wasn't getting the curve over."

Garry Templeton had the only hit for the Cards, a third-inning double.

In other National League games, the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Montreal Expos 5-3 in 10 innings, the Atlanta Braves edged the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-3, the San Francisco Giants trimmed the New York Mets 4-3 in 10 innings, the San Diego Padres beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3, the Chicago Cubs topped the Cincinnati Reds 5-2.

Dodgers 5, Expos 3

Pinch-hitter Joe Ferguson's two-run homer with one out in the 10th inning was the winning blow for the Dodgers. It was the second homer of the year for Ferguson, who had gone into the game hitting .132.

The Dodgers had sent the game into extra innings when three pinch-hitters combined to produce a run in the bottom of the ninth. Reggie Smith doubled, Derrel Thomas laid down a bunt and was safe on a fielder's choice and Dusty Baker delivered a sacrifice fly.

Braves 4, Pirates 3

Jeff Burroughs, who hit 41 home runs in 1977, belted his first of the season as Atlanta beat Pittsburgh. Burroughs had gone 61 games without a homer, dating back to July 19, 1979.

Glenn Hubbard drove in the winning run with a sixth-inning double. It was Pittsburgh's fourth straight one-run loss.

Giants 4, Mets 3

In New Mexico recruiting scandal

Ellenberger refutes aide's testimony

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — The federal trial of former University of New Mexico basketball coach Norm Ellenberger, implicated in a recruting scandal which shook the school's athletic program late last year, was expected to go to the jury today.

Defense attorney Leon Taylor rested his case Thursday, shortly after Ellenberger had spent nearly three hours on the witness stand. During his testimony, the once highly successful coach told the jury he never intended to defraud or deceive anyone.

Ellenberger, 47, was indicted Feb. 14 by a federal grand jury on five counts of mail fraud, one count of wire fraud and one count of interstate travel in aid of racketeering.

The charges are related to a scandal involving alleged phony academic transcripts for New Mexico athletes.

Four of the counts are in connection with alleged efforts to make former Lobo basketball player Andre Logan eligible in 1978, and the other three center on alleged activities to get former recruit Craig Gilbert eligible prior to last season. Gilbert, a former California junior college standout, never played for New Mexico since he was ruled ineligible at the outbreak of the scandal.

Taylor went through the indictment count by count in his questioning of the former coach. Ellenberger refuted earlier testimony by his former assistant, Manny Goldstein.

One of the counts stems from a check sent in the mail to pay for an embossing seal of Mercer Community College in Trenton, N.J. The prosecution contends the seal was used to forge transcripts for both Logan and Gilbert.

William H. Blackstad, owner of Gordon Printing Co. in Albuquerque, testified he sent a check for the alleged phony seal to another printing firm.

Ellenberger testified he had no knowledge of how the seal was paid for.

But he said he was told Nov. 4 or possibly Nov. 5, 1978, that a seal was going to be made.

He said one or both of his assistants told him about a method to make Logan eligible. He said that at first he was appalled about having it made and said, "Hey. Whoa. Absolutely not."

He testified that later "I went for it" because he wanted to help Logan and because it would be only a "stopgap" measure.

Bob Madison announces plans for PBPA membership drive

Bob Madison of Midland visited Big Spring Wednesday to announce plans for a July membership drive by the Permian Basin Petroleum Association.

Madison perhaps is better known as an anchor man on the news staff at KMID-TV.

The PBPA was organized in 1961, with only 27 members, in Odessa. It now boasts an estimated 1,000 members.

The association is now campaigning to have small investors exempt from the windfall profits tax. Its members work for common goals of a prosperous Permian Basin, an economically viable oil and gas industry and restoration of the free enterprise system to the nation.

The PBPA recruits members from among producers, supply companies, service companies, landmen, geologists, drilling companies, trucking companies, banks, accounting firms, consultants, investors, royalty owners, engineers, publications, manufacturers and advertising agencies.

Four guilty pleas voiced

District Judge Jim Gregg heard four pleas of guilt in 118th District Court Wednesday.

They are: Henry Ortega, George Chester Cox, Kenneth Charles Crow, and Hugh Farrell Riera.

Ortega received five years in prison for burglary of Wade Brown's home on June 11. The charge was filed in the office of Justice of the Peace Bob West June 13.

George Chester Cox, 42, 1012 W. 3rd, received a five-year probated sentence to felony DWI.

Kenneth Charles Crow, received a five-year probated sentence for forgery. He wrote a check to a package store signing it Boyce Kemper. The check was written in the amount of $7.05 on May 2. The complaint was filed by Howard County Sheriff's office employee Rachel Schaffer.

Hugh Farrell Riera, El Paso, received an eight-year sentence in prison for credit abuse and escape from the alcohol ward of Veteran's Administration Medica' Center.

Controlled substance count filed

Evelyn Hanson Sherrod, Gail Route, was arrested on suspicion of acquiring a controlled substance by fraud Wednesday.

She was transferred to county jail Wednesday where she was released on $20,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Allegedly Ms. Sherrod called a pharmacy and identified herself as a doctor's nurse. She then allegedly asked for a prescription and asked someone else to pick it up for her.

The prescription was for a pain killer called synaglos DC.

A Major Crime Task Force member said the person who picked up the pills for her was unaware of the ploy.

Rodgers moved to county jail

Donny Ray Rodgers, 1510 A Sycamore, was transferred to county jail Wednesday after his arrest on a burglary charge Tuesday.

Rodgers is charged of burglary of the home of Georgia Finley, 1507 A Wood, May 31.

Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin at $15,000. Rodgers is still in sheriff's office custody.

Also charged in the burglary is Virginia King, who was released on $5,000 bond Monday set by Heflin.

Arc welding course for adult farmers scheduled

A Farm Arc Welding short course for adult farmers will be held in Coahoma July 28-29-30-31 under the sponsorship of the Coahoma High School Vocational Agriculture Department, according to Richard Souter Superintendent, and Stanley Blackwell, teacher of vocational agriculture.

Royce Hart, Arc Welding Specialist with the Vocational Agriculture Division of the Texas Education Agency, and the Department of Agricultural Engineering at Texas A&M University, will do the instructing in the course. He is headquartered at Texas A&M University.

Hart is a native of Upshur County, Texas, and was reared on an East Texas farm. He graduated from Union Hill High School near Gilmer, Texas. He received his B.S. degree in Agricultural Engineering from Texas A&M University in 1960. He was owner-manager of a truck and tractor company in Gilmer for a number of years.

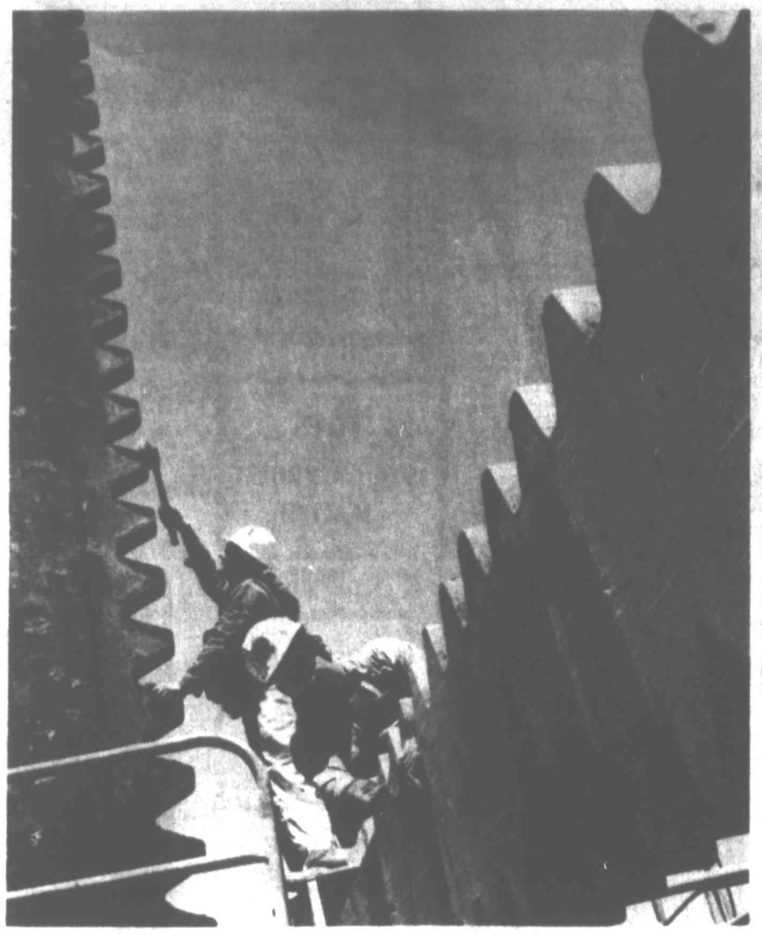

For four years Hart was involved in sales, planning and installation of feed handling and storage equipment. Prior to joining the Agricultural Education Adult Specialist Program on January 1, 1975, he participated in an intensive welding training program.

ROYCE HART

The short course at Coahoma is scheduled to begin daily at 7:30 p.m. in the vocational agriculture building. During the dates the short course is in progress, Hart will be available to assist farmers with individual problems and provide on-the-farm instruction, according to Blackwell.

Farmers interested in attending the short course should write or call Richard Souter. Coahoma's superintendent of schools, or Blackwell. Entry fee will be $10. Farm Arc Welding short course certificates will be presented to each enrollee who attends all the training sessions.

Outlook pessimistic

Skin graft surgery postponed for Pryor

SHERMAN OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Richard Pryor's doctor has postponed skin graft surgery on the critically burned comedian and has issued his most pessimistic evaluation yet of Pryor's recovery chances.

"Richard Pryor is in critical condition and very, very ill," Dr. Richard Grossman said Thursday in announcing today's surgery had been postponed. "I cannot overstress the seriousness of Mr. Pryor's injuries."

Hospital spokeswoman Nona Egan said Pryor was "no better than the day he was brought in here." At that time, doctors said Pryor had a one in three chance of surviving.

Grossman said the earliest that the skin grafts could be attempted would be Monday.

His evaluation was the most pessimistic since Pryor was admitted to the Sherman Oaks Community Hospital June 9 with third-degree burns over the upper half of his body. He suffered the burns when his clothing caught fire at his home.

Grossman said the decision to delay surgery was made when he "was not 100 percent happy" with the condition of Pryor's wounds while he observed the comedian undergoing whirlpool treatment Thursday morning.

However, the burn specialist said, "Despite extreme pain, Pryor is cooperating fully with doctors to improve his situation."

Ms. Egan said a variety of medical specialists had been called in for consultation on the 39-year-old entertainer's condition.

Nevertheless, the only visitors the hospital has allowed Pryor to see regularly — actors Jim Brown and Stan Shaw — accompanied the comedian on short walks to help improve his breathing, Grossman said.

"With burns this serious, every body organ is affected," the doctor said. "We are very concerned with complications. Pryor still has pneumonia. We have brought back the pulmonary specialist because Mr. Pryor's lung problem is difficult (to treat)."

On Tuesday, Pryor underwent surgery to remove the burned skin on the top half of his body.

The 75-minute, three-stage operation was deemed a success, according to the hospital's assistant executive director, Gary Swave, despite the fact Pryor had already contracted pneumonia.

Ms. Egan said Thursday that the earlier surgery probably resulted in more pain for Pryor because it exposed raw skin and nerves. The delayed grafting is expected to ease that pain when thin strips of skin from Pryor's legs are grafted onto his uppr body.

Dr. Jack Grossman said it will take three to five days before the skin grafts begin to adhere. "We never expect all the grafts to take," he said.

When Pryor was first brought to the hospital, reports of the incident said a cigarette lighter had exploded and ignited his clothing. Later, police said doctors had told them Pryor was mixing a cocaine derivative when ether ignited. The doctors have denied they gave police that information. Pryor's attorney said a glass of rum ignited and caused the burns.

Pryor has made several movies and many television appearances. His comedy albums have been big sellers.

Operating expenses up slightly

CRMWD budget on track

A seasonal distortion of lower expenses continued through May for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, but heavier demands of summer likely will level this out soon.

Otherwise, the monthly financial report closely tracks the budget by showing revenues of $3,063,701 as compared with a budget projection of $3,172,408 for five months. Three-fourths of this difference is in revenue from cities, which will erase the deficit during summer months. Oil and industrial revenues of $456,163 were within a few dollars of the five-month budget projection.

Operating expenditure were $1,451,968 through May, barely more than a year ago but $225,000 less than the budget estimates for the period. Lower electric energy expenses, due to less pumping, amounted to $755,606, or $230,000 less than estimated for the five months. Rising summer demands for water are expected to evaporate most of this under-run. Administrative and general expenses of $200,475 was $9,000 over budget for the period, but this was largely in earlier payment of insurance premiums. Recreation expenses of $36,847 were $1,000 under budget. Recreational revenues of $34,256 were $4,000 over estimates.

$38 million teacher salary schedule voted

ODESSA — Trustees of the Ector County Independent School District have approved a $38 million teacher salary schedule which will boost the pay of personnel in the school system an average 15.5 percent, starting with the 1980-81 school year.

The pay boost places teacher salaries here 33 percent above scale. Midland teachers were granted a 15 percent pay increase last April 30, bringing their salary to 32 percent above the state base.

A teacher with a BA degree starting in the Odessa system can now earn $12,540 annually. In five years, the same teacher can earn $15,100. After 20 years, a teacher with a bachelor's degree can earn $20,890 here.

Those with master's degrees can start at $13,420, earn $16,450 after five years and $23,000 after 20 years.

Elementary school principals will start at $25,355 and can earn as much as $32,835 a year. High school principals start at $30,000 and can receive up to $37,140.
