EAGLES AND TIVY WILL MEET TODAY 2:30

P.-T.A Donates Hundred Dollars Bleacher Fund

Carrying out a Thanksgiving program, the Parent-Teachers Association had its monthly meeting at 4:00 o'clock Monday afternoon at the High School, with Mrs. George R. Pepper, president, in charge. About 55 were present.

The meeting opened with the audience singing "America." Everyone joined in saying the Lord's Prayer. The fourth grade pupils sang a song for the Parents and teachers.

Miss Christine Schraub gave a reading and the Glee Club of the High School sang "The Glad Thanksgiving." "One Thanksgiving Way Out West," was the title of a reading given by Mrs. S. A. McDonald.

After the program was over the organization attended to several matters of business. One of the most important matters was the club voted to give $100 to the Athletic Fund for the erection of bleachers for the football field. When put to a vote this proposition carried almost unanimously. After voting to donate the money for the athletic fund, the P.-T. A. voted

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS FOR TOUCHDOWN

At a rousing pep rally of business men held at the school house yesterday, a subscription of $100.00 was pledged to the team for the first touchdown they make. This amount has been pledged and should the obligations be met, will be turned over to the team.

At the pep rally the men also took up a collection of $18 to pay for the admission of the Pep Squad girls to the game.

Kills Three Bears On Hunting Trip

Messrs. Carl Wolf and A. S. Rieck of Junction returned last week from a bear hunt in Old Mexico. They were gone six days, but spent only two days hunting. Mr. Wolf killed three bears and wounded another. One of the bears weighed 600 pounds and the other two weighed about 200 each.

Rieck killed one deer while on the trip. Wolf stated that they saw twelve bears while they were on the hunt. He stated that deer and turkey were plentiful also.

District Lions Meet To Be At Junction

Last Wednesday Messrs. G. H. Delano, P. C. McInnis and E. L. Smith went to Coleman to attend the District meeting of the Lions Club. They represented the Junction Lions Club.

They were good representatives, for they talked convincingly enough to bring the next meeting to Junction. This meeting will be held in March. The exact date will be announced later.

Gates To Game Open This Afternoon at 1

The gates to the High School football field will be opened at 1:00 o'clock this afternoon, according to Supt. Guy C. Moses. This step has been taken to avoid a rush at the gate, and allow the early comers to get good seats.

Eagles Have Outclassed Antlers in Past Years Football History Shows

Turning back through the leaves of football history and glancing at the results of past battles between the Junction Eagles and Tivy Antlers, some interesting football dope is brought to light. Judging from the results of former conflicts, the Kerrville bunch would rather leave this history in the dark.

Going back as far as 1921 we read where a Junction High School football team defeated Tivy by the overwhelming score of 56 to 0. In 1922 the two teams did not meet. But in 1923 the story was a little different. Kerrville won by the score of 6 to 0. But in this contest the Antlers were clearly outclassed throughout the game. Tivy did not make a single first down, but won the game, by picking up a Junction fumble and racing for a touchdown.

But in 1924 Junction came back and drubbed the Antlers 40 to 0. And in 1925 the teams did not meet. Then in 1926 when the teams faced each other again Junction again walked off with a 28 to 0 victory. Pete Blackburn and "Dutchy" Deckert played on this team. It has been said that "Dutchy" never did miss a goal for extra point. He kicked all four of them in this game.

In 1927 and 1928 Junction and Kerrville did not meet. And now we have turned the pages until we are right at the present. Some more history will be made this afternoon, because these two teams are meeting in a championship struggle, and the winner will be in possession of the pennant for the championship of District 12. When the sun sets this afternoon another page of history will have been written concerning the athletic relationship of Junction and Kerrville. The seers have prophesied what this history will be, but after the game this afternoon the "I told you so's" will have their inning.

Sheep Are Examined For Range Parasites

Last week County Agent R. E. Homann examined three different flocks of sheep for parasites of the range. His report showed that several sheep were infested with tapeworms.

This examination followed a suggestion by Dr. E. A. Tunniff who spoke in Junction on November 11. In his talk, Dr. Tunniff stated that close attention should be given to the worming of animals.

Homann stated that a mixture of Blue Stone and Black Leaf 40 is proving effective and inexpensive. Homann stated that the cost of worming 2,000 sheep cost only one and two-tenths cents per head for the drench.

County Agent Will Attend District Meet

County Agent R. E. Homann will attend the District Meeting of County Agents and Home Demonstration Agents of District 14 which will be held in Llano, Texas, December 2 and 3. The program will cover two days, and O. B. Martin, Director of Extension Service of A. & M. College, will be the principal speaker on the program. Homann will take part on the program also.

Mrs. C. T. Holekamp Kills Six Point Buck

Mr. Conrad T. Holekamp has received a lot of kidding around town as the result of a deer hunt when he let his wife outclass him at the sport.

Mrs. Holekamp brought down a six point buck. She broke the animal's back with the first shot.

While Mrs. Holekamp was getting her buck, Mr. Holekamp was out scouting around. He finally brought down an eight-pointer, but he shot at the animal six times before getting him. He is accused of having the deer in a trap, because it's a tame deer that will allow a hunter time for six shots.

Miss Virginia Browder of Memphis, Texas, is visiting Mrs. Roy Spiller.

Mr. P. C. McInnis returned Tuesday from a business trip to Waco. His mother, Mrs. J. T. McInnis, who is visiting the McInnis family here, accompanied him as far as Brownwood and visited in that city while he was in Waco.

Local Company Ships Out All Fall Wool Clip

The Junction Cable Loan Company shipped out its fall accumulation of wool Friday and Saturday, according to Mr. Conrad T. Holekamp. Approximately 400,000 pounds were shipped.

The wool was bought by Studley & Emery of Boston. Duwain E. Hughes was the buyer. Mr. Holekamp stated that the large storage house on Main Street was emptied Saturday.

One feature that the Junction Cable Loan Company has worked out in its system is the prompt returns to its customers. Mr. Holekamp stated that the deposit slips for the customers were in the mails Monday morning.

The shipment of this fall's accumulation of wool was the largest single shipment ever made from Menard, according to Mr. W. P. Riley. The wool was freighted to Menard where it was loaded on the train.

PROGRAM FOR TERRACING IS BEING FORMED

The program for the terracing of lands in Kimble County, as outlined by County Agent Homann, will start December 9.

The Commissioners' Court of Kimble County has authorized the purchase of a farm level which will be used in demonstrations given at London and other communities interested in having lands terraced.

It is hoped that approximately 5,000 acres of Kimble County land can be terraced this season.

Terracing prevents the erosion of soil, and terraced land holds all the moisture. According to figures gathered from close observation, terracing costs only from one to two and a quarter dollars per acre, and it increases the value of the land ten dollars per acre. These figures show the actual value on dollars and cents of having land terraced.

The terracing program will start in the London community, which is the biggest farming

WINNER OF TODAY'S CONTEST WILL HAVE UNDISPUTED TITLE TO CHAMPIONSHIP

TIVY ANTLERS ENTER FINALS UNDEFEATED

Game Today Will Be First Between Teams In Three Seasons

The Tivy Antlers of Kerrville have stormed through one of the most successful football seasons in the history of the school, having piled up 307 points against their opponents. Their opponents have never tied them, scored only twice for a total of 19 points, and the only team to hold Tivy to as low as 25 points was the Alamo High Class A eleven of San Antonio. The Kerrville team has made 50 touchdowns to their opponents' three.

This is a record that is equaled by few high schools or even college teams in the state.

Coach H. A. McDonald's gridsters won the district and sixth regional title last season.

Junction is the only stumbling block in the path of the Tivy Antlers, and it looms as nearly insurmountable this year.

The Eagles outweigh the Tivy Antlers nearly ten pounds to the man. Junction has the strongest team in the history of the school, having swept to the district finals with ease.

The Tivy High record for this season is as follows: Tivy 44, Pleasant 0; Tivy 25, Alamo Heights 7; Tivy 45, San Saba 0; Tivy 32, Sonora 0; Tivy 42, Menard 0; Tivy 47, Ozona 0; Tivy 32, Fredericksburg 12; Tivy 41, Bertram 0.

Nut Marketing Plans Formed

Plans are being perfected for what is hoped will become a statewide pecan marketing association according to Dr. J. Fred Burt.

The outstanding pecan shipping counties in Texas have been selected as a nucleus for the organization. A meeting will be held at Bend on December 10 for the purpose of studying this subject.

Mr. O. J. Camp, who is not only a breeder of Angora goats but also an enthusiastic pecan grower, will attend the meeting from Junction. Dr. J. Fred Burt will attend also.

Schreiner-Hodges Co. Purchases Ambulance

The Schreiner-Hodges Company has purchased a National Kissel Ambulance and Funeral Coach. The coach was delivered from Dallas last Friday and is in the service of the company here now.

The coach serves both as an ambulance and a funeral coach. It is powered by an eight cylinder motor and can develop a speed of 90 miles per hour. A picture of the new coach will be printed in the next issue of this paper.

The acquisition of this new coach is in keeping with the Schreiner-Hodges policy of offering the best to the public it serves.

J. L. Wright and W. H. Shepard and wives visited in Fort Worth Thursday. They visited their daughters, Mrs. Nettie Gosney and Mrs. Oren C. Reid. They reported a pleasant trip, with the exception of an accident which bent both fenders of their car badly. No one was hurt.

The eyes of football fans in District 12 and 15 will be turned upon Junction today when the Junction Eagles and the Tivy Antlers of Kerrville meet on the Junction High School gridiron in the championship game for District 12. A record crowd is expected to attend this outstanding game of the year.

Both Teams Undeclared

Both teams will go into the game with perfect conference records. While Junction has dropped one inter-sectional game, Kerrville has gone through the season with no losses and no ties, a record that few high schools in the state can equal.

The comparative records indicate very little relative strength of the two teams. Here are their records for this year:

- Kerrville 44—Pleasanton 0
- Kerrville 25—Alamo Heights 7
- Kerrville 45—San Saba 0
- Kerrville 32—Sonora 0
- Kerrville 42—Menard 0
- Kerrville 46—Ozona 0
- Kerrville 32—Fredericksburg 12
- Kerrville 41—Bertram 0

- Junction 14—Del Rio 6
- Junction 26—Sonora 0
- Junction 71—Eldorado 0
- Junction 59—Mason 7
- Junction 0—Ballinger 7
- Junction 58—Menard 0
- Junction 31—Ozona 0
- Junction 41—Fredericksburg 0

Compiling the total scores of the games of the teams that both Junction and Kerrville have played shows that Junction has a lead of 16 points. The total of the games with Menard, Sonora, Fredericksburg and Ozona show these figures. But such comparisons just furnish something to read. Their worth is nothing.

Predict Score

Our opinion and prediction is that the score will be 13 to 7 in favor of Junction when the game ends tomorrow afternoon. We believe that Junction will make two touchdowns through the Kerrville line, and we believe that Kerrville will score a touchdown on a pass. Every body misses the results anyway, and its no harm in predicting.

The game tomorrow will probably attract the largest gathering of fans ever assembled for a football game in Junction. A grandstand which will accommodate 500 people is being

FIREMEN WILL HAVE BANQUET

Fire Chief John M. Hankins states that an invitation has been extended to fire departments of Kerrville, Mason, Menard, Sonora and Rocksprings to meet with the local fire department Friday evening, November 29, at the First Baptist Church to consider the advisability of organizing a district organization.

A banquet will be served by the ladies of the Baptist Church and Mr. Hankins believes the evening will be profitably spent. Junction has a well organized department and the more than twenty members take an enthusiastic interest in studying all problems pertaining to the work of the department.

Be Thankful For What You Haven't Got On Thanksgiving

About this time every year, people start thinking about the things they have for which they should feel thankful. But, contrary to the ordinary rule, people should be thankful for what they don't have, much more than they should for the things they have.

At best, man doesn't have much, even the richest. But when we consider that most of the things we have are the things that we do not want, this idea does not seem so strange.

Take for instance mumps, mosquitoes, pain, sickness, temper, accidents, bosses, etc. We are all thankful if we do not have these things. And it's the same way with nearly everything. When we start to recounting the things for which we are thankful, if we notice closely, we are always thankful that things are not just a bit worse. And that is not a pessimist's attitude. It's just honest truth.

But Thanksgiving Day serves the American people in an unusual manner. It tends to sober the individual; it stimulates his mind; makes him think seriously and contemplatively; and makes him pause long enough to reflect. And never in history, with the possible exception of the Roman Empire, did a people need this pause, more than the American people need it today.

Thanksgiving is a blessing to the American people.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Fay Wiese celebrated her seventh birthday Saturday afternoon with a Pilgrim party. As the guests entered they landed on Plymouth Rock. Mrs. Marx Weise, Fay's mother, told the wee pilgrims the story of the Mayflower and the landing of the Pilgrims of long ago. White Pilgrim caps were presented to the girls and Indian caps to the boys. The little folks were then invited to the dining room, where the table was covered in yellow, while the pretty yellow birthday cake, surmounted with seven tiny candles in red holders, and encircled with glowing autumn leaves, formed the centerpiece. Candy favors were hidden beneath the cake. Attached to the favors were yellow ribbons which radiated to the plates. Chicken sandwiches, ginger cookies, iced in red and bearing painted faces were served with hot chocolate and the birthday cake.

Billy Riley was the successful contestant in launching the Mayflower. He was rewarded with a bow and arrow set, while the booty went to Harbert Hardin.

Those present were Maurine Highsmith, Irma and Mary Frances Lawler, Florence Ellen Sheppard, Tommy Dean Henderson, Faye Wahl, Patricia Patterson, Barbara Clay Seerest, Maudine Taft, Billy Riley, Halbert Hardin, Max Munn, Milton Powell, Denton Ragland, Dorothy and Fay Wiese.

Mrs. Leon Powell assisted Mrs. Wiese in entertaining.

MR. AND MRS. BLACKBURN HONORED WITH PARTY

Mesdames Walter Tinsley and Otto Oxford were joint hostesses Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Blackburn, honoring Mr. and Mrs. John Blackburn.

The reception room was decorated in pink and white and pink and white carnations intermingled with fern further carried out the color scheme. Chrysanthemums and fern adorned the living room.

Mrs. C. W. McCarroll and Mr. A. S. McDonald won the turkey contest and were rewarded with miniature turkeys.

A delightful sketch humorously portraying the bride and groom was given by Misses Vernelle Tinsley and Eleanor Highsmith. Mrs. S. A. McDonald and Mr. John Blackburn won the variety contest. They received respectively, stationery and book ends.

Little Maurine Highsmith and Dorothy Wiese then entered with a huge pink and white basket, which was overflowing with packages. They gracefully presented the basket and its contents to Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn.

The guests were then invited to the dining room which was gay in Thanksgiving dress. A Thanksgiving horn of plenty filled with fruit formed the centerpiece for the table, which was laid with Thanksgiving paper cloth. Matching napkins were used.

Mesdames A. S. McDonald and J. M. Livingston poured tea. Chicken salad sandwiches, potato salad on lettuce and cake were served. Thanksgiving candy in little bags were used for plate favors.

Mrs. C. W. McCarroll played the piano during the evening. About fifty guests were present.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Albert Rieck invited a group of his playmates to Kimble Courts Friday afternoon, to help celebrate his birthday.

The little folk played games and Albert unwrapped the pretty parcels which contained birthday gifts. Later in the evening the small guests were invited into the dining room which was most attractive with bouquets of chrysanthemums. The table brought exclamations of delight from the wee folk. A big pink birthday cake bearing five pink candles formed the centerpiece. Bowls of popcorn balls, red apples, candies, and animal cookies were also on the table. The favors were Thanksgiving lollipops ornamented with turkeys. Hot chocolate was served with the cake. Pretty Thanksgiving napkins were used.

Cecil Martin Holekamp, Teddy Holekamp, Jimmie and Billy Rieck, Betty Fay Kindrick, Charles Fagan and Perry and Jack Whilden united in wishing Albert many happy returns of the day.

MRS. R. H. SPILLER IS HOSTESS AT PARTY

A delightful party was given Friday afternoon by Mrs. R. H. Spiller at the Fritz Hotel at which time she was hostess to the Ladies' Afternoon Card Club and a number of friends.

A profusion of autumn leaves and red berries decorated the lobby and dining room.

Mrs. A. S. Rieck made high club score in the bridge games. She was rewarded with a set of Maderia napkins. A similar prize went to Mrs. Jack Rieck.

Arizona, who made high guest score. The cut prize, a deck of cards in a leather case, went to Mrs. U. D. Kindrick. Mrs. Hugh Rieck made low score and was consoled with a tiny which broom in a leather holder.

Turkey sandwiches, nut cookies, butter sandwiches, ripe olives, potato chips salted pecans and coffee brought the afternoon to a pleasant close.

Those present were Misses Virginia Browder of Memphis, Texas, Mary and Flora Mae Spiller, Lena Cowser, Mesdames J. A. Thompson, Joe Fritz, Victor Hardeman, H. D. Taylor, H. E. Luehrs, John Phillips, H. G. Hubert, Sam Woodward, Joe Watson, Clifford Hamer, Guy Wynne, P. Joseph, Tom Butland, A. L. Mudge, Jas. Prentice, Mattie Patterson, Clay Seerest, Dorothy Westmoreland, Frank Patterson, J. M. Livingston and A. S. McDonald.

Here's an idea for a simple, inexpensive, and wholesome decoration for a child's party cake. Use any preferred cake recipe, and cover the cake with white icing. Have ready some trimmings made from gum-drops—pink, yellow and green ones. The gum-drops can be sliced thin with a sharp knife, and then cut with scissors into petal and leaf shapes to form wild roses and leaves and stems. A child's name or initials or "Happy Birthday" could be made with bits of gum-drops.

Growth of the Texas dairy industry is indicated by the fact that Texas milk plants have a daily capacity of 800,000 pounds of milk, exclusive of 250,000 additional pounds capacity in cheese making plants.

One Texas pecan tree in San Saba County has yielded as high as 1,953 pounds of nuts in one season and has furnished 5,000,000 buds for improving other trees.

Texas Stands Second in U. S. in No. Airports

Texas with 101 airports ranks second among the States in the total number of airports, being exceeded only by California, which has 161, according to Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics. He announced that there were now 1,509 airports in the United States, classified as follows: Four hundred and forty municipal, 465 commercial, 278 intermediate fields, 86 Government and 240 auxiliary. In addition to the 1,509 airports and landing fields now in operation, approximately 1,278 more airports are either proposed or in process of construction.

The aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce has prepared a complete list of all airports in the United States with their classification. The list includes only those cities which are marked and have some facilities or those which have been marked and reserved as landing fields without facilities. The intermediate fields along airways are marked and lighted by the Commerce Department. It was stated that a steady growing number of these airports are equipped with beacon lights, or partial or full equipment of flood lights for landing, flood-lighted buildings, boundary lights and construction light.

These are of record, according to the department, more than 4,000 other fields in the United States on which aircraft landings may be made. These are owned by States, municipalities, corporations, clubs, commissions and individuals. Many of these, however, are constantly changing in character with the alternation of crops and for other reasons, which makes a permanent record of variable value.

SIXTY-SIX BRICK PLANTS IN TEXAS

Production of the 66 plants in Texas manufacturing clay products during 1928 reached a volume amounting to $6,500,000, according to statistics compiled by the Bureau of Economic Geology at the University of Texas. Brick products produced including common brick, face brick, brick building tiles of various kinds, vitrified brick, stone ware and pottery. Of these common brick and face brick led in quantity of production, their combined value being $3,736,632.

"DEAD" SNAKE IS ALIVE

Colorado Springs, Colorado.—A "dead" boa constrictor in a taxidermy shop caused a panic when it came to life as the operators were starting to skin it. The twenty foot snake had been in a private Zoo on Cheyenne Mountain, where the temperature hovers about zero. The constrictor was found frozen stiff, and sent to the taxidermy shop for mounting. The heat of the shop revived the constrictor.

If your car is the kind that has mountable rims, instead of wheels, you may hear a puzzling swishing, or crushing sound that seems to come from one of the wheels. It may be that the nuts which hold the rim in the wheel have worked loose enough to permit the rim to slip. They can be easily tightened.

LIVESTOCK TRADES BRISK IN OZONA

Livestock deals involving considerations amounting to a total of $56,750 were reported here this week by Crockett County producers.

With the lamb shipping season closed and the county practically cleaned of this season's lamb crop trading in other animals is picking up, judging from reports.

The estate of the late S. E. Couch disposed of 2500 head of ewes recently, 1500 head of yearling ewes going to Frank Harris of San Angelo at $11 a head, and 100 ewes to Harry Friend at $10 a head.

Ad Harvick sold to T. A. Kincaid 100 steer calves at $40 a head. The Couch estate also sold 325 head of heifer calves at $35 a head and 350 head of steer calves at $42.50 a head, both of these consignments going to Kansas feeders.—Ozona Stockman.

KILLS TAME TURKEY

Junction has been full of hunters this week. As usual some are lucky and some return home without any game. Unfortunately some fail to heed the law against shooting from automobiles and in and along the public highways. One man ran into a drove of tame turkeys on the highway east of town and killed one of them too close to the game warden. He paid five dollars for the turkey and a heavy fine for shooting in the highway.

Cockroaches, fortunately, are easy to kill. Liberal use of sodium fluoride or sodium fluosilicate, dusted wherever the cockroaches are troublesome, will quickly eradicate them. Only rarely and in extreme cases where instant relief is essential, is it necessary to resort to fumigation.

Where parasites interfere with successful sheep raising, it is advantageous to breed ewes in time for them to lamb early in the spring. The early lambs will come before the parasites "wake up" from their winter sleep and the lambs can be marketed before the parasites get a share of the profits.

DEVIL-MAY-CARE

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE
ILLUSTRATED BY DONALD RILEY

SYNOPSIS
What Happened Before
At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clark, Lesson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lesson is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heartbreaker. Lucy tells Lesson she is going aboard his boat, the Minerva, and she accepts an order to be his "quitter." Asked if she is sorry that she went her company, Lucy says she is not and that evidently Fate has arranged it. Tim Stevens tells her to stop looking repeatedly after Lesson.

Aboard Stevens' boat, the Minerva, Stevens tells Lucy of his life. When she replies with contempt for him, he grows violently angry and she becomes afraid of him. He says he will never let her go from the Minerva until she accepts him. To escape him, she leaps into the water from her cabin window, swimming a short distance under water.

Lucy reaches land and meets Dr. Fergus Faunce on an island. He takes care of her and takes her home. Everyone is worried about her when she meets Stevens in a frantic, fearful and still ardent in protestations of love. Lesson informs Lucy that Stevens must take a quarter of a million dollars of gold to jail "at five o'clock." Lucy goes to her bank and raises the sum.

New Go On With the Story

Half an hour later her chair paused before the gate of Stevens' place, out beyond Vita Serena, in southern Palm Beach. He was in his garden, at a table on which lay something that looked like a check-book. He was writing in it, but looked up as Lucy approached, and waved away the colored servant who admitted her. He rose and stared at her.

He had shaved, had donned fresh flannels, a colored shirt, and a gay tie. He could wear clothes, she inconsequently thought, better than any man she had ever seen.

"This is a surprise," he said. She made no reply, but opened the satchel and dumped the money upon the table.

"What's it all about?" he asked.

"To save you from jail," she replied.

His eyes puckered, and a tiny crease appeared between them. "Jail?" he echoed.

"Mr. Lesson has seen me. He told me that the man who wanted to marry me was a thief. Perhaps, Tim, one reason you professed such great devotion was because of what money I possess."

She was looking right at him, but his eyes never flickered. His hand moved toward the check-book; he swept a piece of paper from it and tore it into tiny bits.

"Perhaps," he agreed calmly, "but inasmuch as I'd not marry you, I'd hardly take your money."

There was a hard finality in his voice.

"Not even to keep out of jail?" she demanded. "You're a shade better than I thought." He bowed.

"Many thanks," she said. She bit her lip.

"But Mr. Lesson said you'd be arrested this afternoon."

"Great little man—Lesson."

"I can't let you go to jail," she cried helplessly.

"And I couldn't take your money," he said.

"Then," she said slowly, "as I can't let you go to jail—"

"Why not?" he demanded. "Is it because, after all, you love me?"

"I hate you," she blazed. "That's why . . . you mustn't go to jail. You must take my money."

"You're a bit incomprehensible, Lucy," he told her. "You hate me; yet you'd save me. Well, I'd take money only from the woman I was married to, and I'd hate to take it from her."

"But you would?" she asked. He shrugged.

"To avoid jail, yes."

"Then," she said, "I'll have to marry you. Today. Now!"

Had Diana, sojourning at Jupiter's palace on Olympus, slipped down the mountainside and in some wayside parsonage in Thessaly taken unto herself a husband, the scandal would have been comparable to the marriage of Devil-May-Care.

Apparently hurried weddings, among people nationally known, are bound to cause gossip. But neither he nor Lucy would have cared a whit for that. Had their marriage been one of equal love and trust, they would have been uninterested in the nasty speculations of nasty people.

But Lucy had left him. She had strolled out of his patio as unconcernedly as though she had been having tea and was now on her way home to dress for dinner. Home! She had gone home!

Devil-May-Care she was called. Well, the insouciance that defied death itself could not defy Tim Stevens. He knew his rights and he would have them. He'd force— But he slumped back in the wicker chair that protested against his twisted bulk. He'd tried to force Lucy last night and she had chosen almost certain death in preference to himself. He might as well face the facts; he was no nearer Lucy now than he was before the minister had read the marriage ceremony to them.

To marry a man who positively ravaged for her, and then coolly deny herself . . . That, he thought, was the explanation. She had no intention of coming back to him, ever. But to have loaned, given him an incredible sum of money, to have married him in order to assure his acceptance of the money, to have instilled in his heart the hope that, married, she would relent, would come to him . . . What exquisite torture was this?

CHAPTER III
South, along the Ocean Boulevard, Lucy howled along in the little Ford. Somehow, the ocean that had seemed so grim and dull a few hours ago, now, in the gathering dusk, seemed gentle and inviting.

The path through the trees to the center of the island, where Faunce's cabin was located, was easily followed. In five minutes she was upon the edge of the clearing, and her torch turned off, was standing grazing at the porch of the cabin.

Before the cabin blazed a fire. It extended beyond the confines of the fireplace, and was, quite evidently, not for purposes of cooking, but for purposes of cheerful companionship and perhaps warmth. The resinous pine logs roared and crackled, and threw a fierce light upon the face of Fergus Faunce, who sat upon his porch.

"Who's that?" he called.

"It's Lucy Harkness," she said.

"I wonder," he said, still seated in his chair, "if our thoughts evoke our friends, or if the approach of our friends evoke our thoughts. Or has the tropic moon, which has just peered over the palms, brought delightful madness to me?"

She stared at the tropic moon which now had gloriously risen. She saw, silhouetted, the lacy outlines of the palms and the pines. She could hear the eternal rustle of the trees, as the pines kissed the palms, and the palms returned the caress. Little intimate noises came from the jungle, as though the night whispered secrets hidden from the day. Afar, the wild surf wooed the sand . . . And the glory, the unutterable glory of the Florida stars . . .

"Where shall I begin?" she asked suddenly.

"Where it suits you; or nowhere," he replied.

"I'm in trouble," she said.

"Of course," he said.

"Why of course?" she demanded.

"All people are in trouble, always. They may not know it, but the fact remains."

"Well, I know it, and— Suppose I just wanted to stay here—oh, for as long as I chose, Fergus Faunce."

"Then here you shall remain," he stated flatly.

"And that reputation of yours which I have just mentioned?"

"Would be as unimportant as I have just indicated to you!" he laughed. "But your own reputation; that would be a thing not lightly to be smirched by any act, even though merely acquiescent, of mine."

"In other words, you'd leave me, lest scandal—"

He shook his head.

"No, I don't think so. You didn't come here lightly, my child. You did some thinking. I simply said I would not lightly smirch you. Let's hear your reasons."

"Suppose I choose to give none?"

"I sha'n't ask for them again. Sufficient unto the day is the Lucy thereof."

"Then I am evil?" She caught at his paraphrase.

"That was unfortunately put. Let me say that the Lord said, 'Let there be Lucy, and there was Lucy.'"

"That is better, much better," she said judicially.

She lighted another cigarette, removed her hand from his abiding-place upon his knee. She puffed at it slowly.

"Were you ever a darn fool, Fergus Faunce?" she asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"I'm glad of that," she said.

"Were you ever in a scandal, Fergus Faunce?"

"No," he replied.

"Would you mind terribly being in one?"

"Not particularly," he answered.

"Would it affect your practice?" she persisted.

"Not in the slightest. Patients come to me for my skill with a knife, not for my morals."

"I was married today," she said lazily.

She could feel his sudden rigidity. But his voice, when he spoke, was even and calm:

"Then, when I called you Lucy Harkness I called you out of your name."

"My name is Lucy Stevens," she said.

"Do I know the happy bridegroom?" he inquired.

"It was from his boat, last night, that I dived into the tide that swept me on your beach," she said.

"And, the usual obvious reason being obviously not accountable, in your case, for today's marriage, what did impel you to the act?"

"I hated him so," she murmured. "Think of him, Fergus Faunce, a bridegroom minus a bride, wandering where on earth I am—"

"But you didn't do it just to play a trick upon him, Lucy," said the doctor.

"Fergus Faunce, I don't know why I did it," she cried. "Can you tell me?"

"I'd rather not, just yet," he answered.

"Now, what do you mean by that?" she asked.

He waved the question aside.

"And what do you do next?" he asked.

"Next? It's a very sleepy Lucy that sits at your feet, Dr. Fergus Faunce. Probably I shall go to bed. I wonder, you who are willing to give life and reputation to me, what you will say if I demand your cabin?"

"It is yours already," he smiled. "Frequently I sleep in a blanket by my fire; I love the stars, the moon, the waving branches—"

"Don't be poetical," she ordered. "Get the scolding over with, Fergus Faunce."

She had turned and was looking up at him, and the rays of the moon illuminated her features. Faunce thought that he had never seen anything so offhandedly beautiful as the face of this girl. Yet his smile was not even faintly tremulous.

"There will be no scolding, my child," he told her gently. "Of the Lucy the man asks nothing save that they be. Do we scold the sun because it sulks and hides behind a cloud? Aren't we, rather, grateful for the hours when it shines upon us? The Lucys come but once in a generation, my child, and we who meet them, who are privileged to know them, cannot censure, ever."

"Fergus Faunce, why didn't I, the moment I saw you, love you?" wailed Lucy.

"I am not good enough for that, my dear," he told her.

"Too good!" she cried. "A man like you—you do really love me? You really loved me the moment you saw me?"

"I adored you," he said simply.

"I knew it—knew it this morning," she said. "And if I were anything but a silly little fool, I'd have loved you. You're everything I want to love, that I ought to love, that I need to love. Why don't I?"

He made no answer.

"I wonder if perhaps I will," she cried.

He shook his head.

"My dear, love doesn't do what we want him to. But that you should want to love me—that lifts me above the rest of the world. Lucy Harkness—Lucy Stevens, it's time you went to bed."

Wrapped in the blankets, she could hear him moving outside. Somewhere in Palm Beach Tim Stevens was crazy with anger, with worry. She smiled as she thought of Tim.

OPPORTUNITIES IN THE SEED BUSINESS
(By T. C. Richardson)

In the Southwest practically every crop adapted to temperate and sub-tropic climate is or may be grown. The gamut runs from bananas, which had their original home in the tropics, to the hardy cereals and grasses that thrive in the Siberian steppes, though, of course, the range of commercial crops is much narrower than the possibilities.

Let us analyze the situation with reference to the major crops and see where we stand in productive and highly adapted seed stocks, in commercial seed production of these sorts, and in potential demand.

Cotton—Too many "varieties," most of which are only selected strains from some older, well-established variety. This, however, has resulted in the production of good seed stocks in plenty, and the production of 700,000 to 900,000 bushels per year of State certified seed in Texas alone. Production figures for cottonseed of an equal standard in other Southwestern States and good uncertified Texas seed are not available, but an estimate of 1,500,000 bushels is perhaps not far wrong. Of the 1,000,000 farms in these States this would give each farm 1 1/2 bushels of highclass cottonseed. Broadly speaking, there may be as much as 1 bushel of good cottonseed to each 19 acres planted in 1929 in Texas and the four adjoining States.

These States produce more than half the cotton crop of America, on an acreage, in 1929, of 28,255,000. The average yield is about 135 pounds per acre. Under average conditions well-bred adapted seed can be depended upon to produce 50 to 100 pounds more seed cotton than gin-run seed of ordinary type. Take the lower figure, and we would have 17 pounds more lint to the acre, or a total of more than 960,000 bales increased production on the same acreage.

The amount of good seed now available in the Southwest could, within one year, be multiplied to a volume sufficient to plant more than half the acreage now planted with gin-run seed or seed far removed from its parent breeding blocks. The State certified seed in Texas alone are only 1 bushel to 25 acre planted, but multiplied and kept unmixed would, in 1931, be sufficient to plant more than 10,000,000 acres, more than half of the highest acreage the State has ever had.

The experiment stations have collected data on the performance of most of the commercial varieties for several years. The information is valuable in deciding which variety or strain to adopt in a given section.

No opportunity should be overlooked to get a gin community all growing the same cotton as one means of multiplying good seed stocks in the community, avoiding cross pollination by insects flying from field to field, and preventing mixing of seed at the gin, which is the worst enemy of standard-bred cotton.

There is no excuse for anyone holding to a certain named variety if that variety, under test has not shown definitely larger yields or greater money return on account of its character. Therefore personal preference should not be allowed to stand in the way of community standardization on any variety preferred by the majority, which averages up with several other varieties in that locality.

Community standardization makes possible the maintenance of a high standard by the purchase each year of a commercial small amount of certified seed from which the seed for next year's general planting may be grown. There are many farmers who now follow this practice of buying the best seed available and growing their own seed patch, but this cannot be properly done unless the seed patch is ginned separately after cleaning the rolls, and if in too large quantities to catch on the floor, the entire conveyor system must also be carefully cleaned.

A number of commercial varieties from the same original source are so little different as to make a choice between them no more important than the toss of a coin. In Texas the "family name" of commercial varieties is given in connection with the certification of seed, thus informing the buyer of the general character of the commercial variety and avoiding confusion as to its adaptability in his territory. This is a point which should never be overlooked in considering a commercial variety which has not been tested locally.

The Southwest is fortunate in having many good cotton breeders. To add to their services we must have more farmers who will take the seed from commercial breeders and experiment stations and multiply them in such column that the entire Southwest can be supplied.

Limestone County leads Texas in the number of farms, the Census Bureau showing 6,755 in 1925. Texas leads the states with 466,395 farms.

KNOW TEXAS

Texas' investment in 1,380,000 automobiles is estimated at $1,230,000,000, about one-tenth of the state's wealth of $12,500,000,000.

During 1928 the United States built 29,252 miles of improved highways. Texas led with 2,356 miles.

Texas is producing 256,000,000 barrels of oil annually valued at $270,000,000. Oil manufactures bring the total value to nearly $700,000,000 a year.

In 1900 Texas led the Southern states in public school expenditures, total $4,465,000. In 1910 it led the South, total $11,777,000. In 1926 (estimated) it still led the south, total $65,128,019.

Sixty-nine per cent of all Texas manufactures is found in six counties—Jefferson, Harris, Dallas, Tarrant, Bexar and El Paso. The 4,065 plants listed in the 1927 Census Bureau report, employed 116,783 persons and produced $1,206,579,962 worth of goods.

The 3,850 cotton gins in Texas represent an investment of $77,000,000, according to the Texas Cotton Ginners Association.

Country Correspondence

LONDON LOCALS

Let all understand that the Christian meeting will begin Wednesday night, the 27th. No better time could have been chosen for the protracted services of a revival. The 28th should be spent by all Americans with earnest thanksgiving for the many blessings this country has received at the hand of a bountiful giver.

Let's all encourage the efforts put forward by the church in bringing men to repentance.

We are glad to note the fact that Mrs. Howard Horn is on her way to recovery after a severe operation at the Brady sanitarium. Her many friends will be glad to learn that she left the sanitarium several days ago and is staying at her mother's home at Fredonia.

We were glad to hear of the improved condition of T. S. Jones who underwent a serious operation at a San Antonio hospital. We will rejoice when Tom is again strong enough to return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Brown entertained a happy gay crowd at their ranch home last week end. Their guests were as follows: Tempie Boone, Ruby Davis, and Christine Schraub of Junction, Juanita Puckett, Eunice Brewer, Chick Williamson, Louise Price, Madge Cooper, Mona McKinney, Raymond Furr, Roland Amoon, Floyd Gentry, Charles Goodman, Rankin and Howard Kothmann of London. Their amusement was various games and exercises which gave them an appetite for the refreshments which consisted of fruit and pop corn.

Master George Amoon who is attending school at Tahoka, accompanied by his cousin, Junior Baze, is home for Thanksgiving. Master Pat says he is glad to have his little brother home for a few days.

Mr. R. T. Amberson and wife, Aunt Georgia, Mr. Tom Amberson and family and Mrs. E. R. Chandler leave to spend the Thanksgiving holidays at Grandfalls with the family of Mr. A. D. Cummins. Mrs. Cummins is the daughter of R. T. Amberson.

The Southwest telephone people are stretching a copper wire on their new set posts. We hope for better service when this work is finished.

Mr. J. F. Gentry leaves for Johnson City today. Jimmie says that it is rather unhandy to have his family at London and himself scattered between the two places all the time. Well Jim, you had better lease you a place in Kimble County. You can't stay away, you know.

There are other changes to take place in London in the near future, but we will not name them until they are an established fact.

We learn that Mrs. E. W. Brewer who is under treatment at San Angelo is much improved. Her many friends will be glad to learn of her improvement.

The gentlemen who are feeding muttons for the market report good progress and an interesting line of thought in this work. Mr. John Fritz, Mr. W. L. Kothmann and Mr. L. A. Ivy are those engaged so far in feeding. We believe these men will be well paid for their labor and receive a high price for their feed.

Now is the time to prepare the farmland for another good feed crop. The land well broken and kept harrowed will hold the rainfall and be in much better condition for early planting.

The few farms that have small grain sown look like spring time.

What does Kimble County care for the bond market. We can raise sheep, goats, cattle, mohair, wool, pecans, potatoes, pumpkins and pop corn and various other things such as fruits, vegetables, cotton and corn. We can raise our living at home and have some to spare for our New York neighbors. This is one fine section of God's universe, and what is more our citizenship is a happy, contented people.

Mr. Cecil Porter of Austin is visiting in Junction.

LITTLE SALINE SAYINGS

The Little Saline School is giving a box supper for Thanksgiving night for the benefit of the school. Everyone is invited to bring and to buy a box.

A nice shower of rain fell over this section Sunday night and Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim D'Spain were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pearl Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dodd of San Angelo spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jess Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hight and family of Yates visited Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hight Saturday night.

Mr. Oliver Hight and son, Wiley made a business trip to Junction Monday.

Mrs. John Pearl is on the sick list this week.

Mr. Raymond Martin returned home Sunday night from the Plains, where he has been working for some time.

Miss Jessie Weaver and Mrs. Otto Weaver were business visitors in Brady Saturday.

Trains on the Santa Fe's Orient extension from San Angelo to Sonora are operating as far as Christoval and will be to Sonora in December.

Equip your car with Good-years NOW while prices are low. We mount them for you. Loeffler Motor Company.

Sympathy is a good thing, but don't let it get away with you. Give to the cause of humanity all that you have in your life. Humming birds pass the winter in Central America.

AVIATION

One hundred and sixty-nine passengers flew in a single airplane over Lake Constance, Germany, forbidden by the Treaty of Versailles to build military aircraft, has outstripped the whole world in both commercial planes and dirigibles.

Armstrong, American engineer, is actually going ahead with his anchored floating islands in the Atlantic to provide landing stages for ocean flyers.

Look for regular airlines between Europe and America in another five or perhaps ten years. And look for the largest and fastest of them to bear the flag of the German republic.

Perhaps, now that the Stock Market debacle is over, the big capitalists of the United States will invest more of their funds in the development of commercial aircraft to compete with the Germans. So far, practically all of our important flying developments have been paid for by the Government.

Aviation will not become a business, and cargo and passenger carrying by air will never be efficiently done until private capital is invested in it as it is in the railroads.

Shares in the best aviation companies, bought not as speculations for a quick turn but as investments to put away for future income, ought to be good things to buy.

LENGTH OF LIFE

During the middle ages the average life expectancy was 21 years; in the 18th century 26 years, in 1825, 30 years; in 1850, 40 years, in 1900, 46 years. In the United States in 1921 it was 58 years. Much of this saving has come by the prolonging of the lives of babies but a well educated person trained in the knowledge of how to care for the body should preserve his or her own life to a ripe old age.

It has been estimated that the annual cost of sickness, medicine, doctors, and loss of wages in the 48 states amounts to 32 billion dollars. We need more teaching of health in our schools.—Baptist Courier.

TURKEY CROP HIGH-PRICES

Washington.—The turkey crop this year is larger by 9 per cent than that of 1928, and most of the increases are in the Eastern and Southern states. Pennsylvania leads with a 25% increase; 25% of the crop will be ready for Thanksgiving.

Turkey prices for Thanksgiving increased from 14.4 cents per pound in 1913 to 30.8 cents in 1927.

GREAT GAMES

Football and Basketball are great games; in fact, we all like a game of any kind if it is well played. Those who become known as stars in any game have necessarily spent much time in practice and study of the finer points of the game. An untrained player would not think it possible to play a winning game against a star player, yet young men and women without a business training try to play the game of business with the result that in nine cases out of ten, they make a miserable failure. A thorough business training in one of our four colleges would reverse the order of failure to where nine out of ten should make a success. A former student of ours who has made a great success, told us the other day that the money he paid for a scholarship in our school had produced larger returns for him than any money he had ever spent.

Since our four schools have the exclusive use of the Famous Byrne Simplified Shorthand and Practical Bookkeeping and no other business college is permitted to teach them, we can graduate a thoroughly trained stenographer, secretary, bookkeeper or accountant in half the time and at half the cost of other schools. Get our free catalogue, it will make clear to you how we can soon have you in a good position, or in business for yourself.

LAZY MAN DONATES TO HUMANITY

Where, we rise poitely to inquire, would this world be if it had not been for lazy men? Had it not been for man's struggle to avoid work we should still be lighting our homes with hand-made candles instead of flooding them with brilliance by the flip of a switch. Had it not been for man's high opinion of ease, we should still be plowing with a forked stick dragged by oxen instead of turning over the loam with steel plows pulled by tractors. Had it not been for man's effort to be rid of the irksomeness of toil we would still be turning out screws tediously by hand instead of watching them drip out by the thousands from automatic machines.

All around us are great businesses, living monuments to the lazy. Combine a strong strain of indigence with a brilliant mind and you usually get an inventor. Bring together a distaste for work and a determination to do something about avoiding it and you have an organizer. Out of the slothful shall come industry. Despite these tangible tributes to the type of man who so appreciates leisure that he will work himself to death to get it, we commend in the same breath the go-getter and labor-saving devices.

This is the kernel of the thing. Work for its own sake is meaningless. It is pointless, unimportant, futile; it is the result of the expenditure of energy which counts. If one man requires 400 words to explain in a letter a business matter and another does it equally well in 200 words, the second man is more efficient and the lazier. The hustler dashes at his job, all energy and little thought. The languorous one thinks about his task, then gets it done with a minimum of effort. Follow the careers of successful men. At each step upward he has "reorganized a department" or "eliminated operations." He himself may have worked with desperate energy to help achieve for mankind a greater degree of freedom from work.—Western Electric News.

THE DOG

I've never known a dog to wag his tail in glee he didn't feel. Nor quit his old time friend to tag.

At some more influential heel. The yellowest cur I ever knew. Was, to the boy who loved him, true.

I've never known a dog to show Halfway devotion to his friend. To seek a kinder man to know. Or richer, but unto the end. The humblest dog I ever knew. Was, to the man that loved him, true.

I've never known a dog to fake Affection for a present gain. A false display of love to make. Some little favor to attain.

I've never known a Prince or Spot. That seemed to be what he was not.

But I have known a dog to fight. With all his strength to shield a friend. And whether wrong or whether right.

To stick with him until the end. And I have known a dog to bear Starvation pangs from day to day. With him who had been glad to share.

His bread and meat along the way. No dog, however mean or rude. Is guilty of ingratitude.

The dog who listed with the dumb. No voice has he to speak his creed.

His messages to humans come By faithful conduct and by deed. He shows, as seldom mortals do. A high ideal of being true.

TURKEY FEATHERS

Turkey feathers when properly prepared command good prices as potential feather dusters, feather beds, pillows, etc. The turkeys should be dry pickled and the feathers spread out to air and dry. While drying they should be turned frequently. The quill feathers should be separated from the others; sometimes it pays to separate the white feathers from the colored ones.

Let's pave Junction streets.

PEANUT POSSIBILITIES

The growing of peanuts is advised by the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the South. Peanuts are in increasing demand for the making of many peanut products, and if there is not a good market for the crop, every part of it can be utilized in feeding. For use in rotation with cotton and other crops peanuts are one of the best money crops. Peanuts, after becoming fully mature, should be dug during bright weather and allowed to dry for a few hours before stacking. Many losses have resulted from the common practice of windrowing the peanut vines for curing, says the Department of Agriculture. The only way to cure peanuts successfully is to put them in small stacks around poles to which two cross-pieces have been nailed to keep the vines off the ground. After a curing period of at least eight weeks, the seed peanuts should be picked and stored in bags in a dry place.

WHY AN AIR PORT

In the course of the average person's life, the drastic need for a municipal airport is not keenly felt. Likewise, when a person is well and healthy, the doctor is the least thought of person. But let a member of the family suddenly take sick. The first thought is to summon a good physician. In time, and that time is not far off, when someone is desperately ill, and the proper medicines are not available, the air port will loom as an important factor.

Much has been said in recent years concerning the development of aviation, but more has been done than people realize. Through continued efforts aviation has been made comparatively safe.

Junction, situated as it is, and being a logical point for a landing field, should put forth efforts to secure a safe and adequate landing field. Let's talk about airports for a while.

THANKSGIVING

By presidential decree, a day of national observance is annually set aside to the end that the American people may offer their devotions to the Creator of the Universe in special recognition of the many blessings that have been manifested to them during the year.

Our people are not unmindful of the graciousness that Providence has extended to this nation. They deeply appreciate the significance of this annual day of meditation and thanksgiving, and attest this sentiment by gathering in their respective houses of worship to voice their gratitude for the many good things that they share alike.

We, as a nation, may with entire appropriateness make every day of the year an occasion of rejoicing for the many and varied beneficences which we commonly enjoy.

Expenditures For Hoover's Term

Washington—The first budget of the Hoover administration will call for $3,830,000,000 to cover government expenses during the 1931 fiscal year, when it is submitted to congress next month.

President Hoover announced that the total was $111,000,000 less than the total government expenditures for the present—1930—fiscal year, during which $3,941,000,000 has been appropriated by congress. Both figures, however, do not include the appropriations for the Farm Board, which this year received $150,000,000, and whose requirements for next year have not been ascertained.

The first Hoover budget will call for $158,000,000 more than was asked of congress when the final Coolidge budget was submitted last December. That called for $3,672,000,000, and deficiency appropriations made during the year increased the expenditures by nearly $300,000,000.

Talking Pictures Make Advent in Kerrville

The super-screen version of the celebrated Philip Dunning George Abbott stage success "Broadway," is now playing at the Arcadia Theater in Kerrville. It is an elaborate talking, singing and musical picture with an intense drama of the underworld of hijackers, night club life and bootlegging.

The photo-drama was made on an elaborate scale, and is said to have cost $1,500,000. Much of the action is laid in a night club. The interior is said to be the most striking scene of the year. The decorations and the general arrangement and lighting of this set have set new standards in Cinematography.

The installation of the Western Electric equipment and the acoustical treatment and decoration by the King Studios represents an expenditure by the Kerrville Amusement Company of $15,000.

THE HOME

"What a beautiful house!" said someone in passing. "Who is responsible for it?"

"The Colonial design is mine," said the architect. "I built it," said the contractor.

"That's some of my work," said the excavator, the bricklayer, the cement contractor, the plumber, the electrician, the carpenter, the plasterer and the glazier.

"I made the rooms so attractive," said the interior decorator.

"I painted that white framework and the blue shutters," said the painter.

"I planted the shrubs and bushes and designed the winding brick walk," said the landscape gardener.

"I furnished the water, the gas, the electric light, the sewerage, the sidewalk, the paved street, and police and fire protection," said the city.

"I sold the furnishings," said the owner of the big store.

"It was all my idea and I planned the conveniences," said the wife.

"I worked hard for the money," said the husband.

"I helped you with the finances," said the banker.

"I introduced you two young people," said the maiden aunt.

"It is my home. It was built for me," said the baby.

B. M. HALBERT AND SON
PAY $70,000 FOR RANCH

B. M. Halbert, one of the leading Angora breeders of the United States, and son, B. M., Jr., are paying $70,000 for the four-section H. P. Cooper estate ranch three miles west of town. The sale was made by S. M. Mayer, administrator of the Cooper estate, subject to the approval of the county court.

Twenty-two dollars per acre is the price being paid for the land which is said to be some of the best grazing land in West Texas. Cows and bulls were purchased by the Halberts at $50 per head; bred ewes at $11 with a ten per cent cut; aged ewes at $7.50; young nannies at $6 and aged nannies at $8. The cows were sold by Mr. Halbert to R. A. Halbert of this place, while the young goats and old nannies were sold to Lum Hefflin and Gus Love respectively. Mr. Halbert will keep the sheep on the ranch.

Mr. Halbert and son will take possession of the ranch within thirty days after the sale is approved by the Sutton County court. They will, at a later date, stock the ranch with registered sheep and Angora goats.—Devil's River News.

WHAT OF AMERICA?

Today America is prosperous and progressive. Let us ardently hope and fervently pray that it may not suffer failure because of its success. This nation now has industrial and financial leadership, mental leadership toward higher and holier aims; political leadership toward purer purposes, unquestioned integrity and greater sagacity. Sane thinking and plain living must take the place of low thinking and high living. There must be a regeneration of earnest, sober thought and a revival of moral responsibility. National development is in accord with the lives of the people composing a nation. If America fails to produce men and women strongly nurtured physically, highly trained mentally and properly principled morally, our Pilgrim pioneers will have braved and dared in vain.

COWBOY

Above is the picture of Cecil Martin Hokekamp, aged 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Hokekamp of Junction. Donning his boots, cowboy hat and bandana handkerchief, Cecil Martin is a regular cowboy and judging from the smile on his face, he is ready to hit for the range.

100-YEAR-OLD COWBOY WILL RIDE NO MORE

Fort Stockton, Texas.—Steven D. George, former employee of the Western Union Beef Company and the oldest cowboy in West Texas, has forked his last horse. Up until a few days ago he was one of the best riders in the country, but at the age of 100 he has finally succumbed to rheumatism and can no longer climb on his horse. He has been one of the most daring cowboys of the country and now owns a good sized ranch and some good cattle. He is among the last of the old-time punchers who worked for the old cattle corporations financed by foreign capital.

It is just as true that little sins are real sins as that little snakes are real snakes.

The Texas wool crop this year is estimated at 33,000,000 pounds, the largest ever. Prices range around 34 cents.

COMMUNITY PROGRESS

While Junction has much to boast of as it considers past achievements, it would be sheer folly at this stage of its community development to rest content with past laurels and cease striving for further advancement.

Junction's present high standing among centers of equal population has been won by foresight and aggressive policies in the past. This generation should be just as eager to assume an enviable future for the community as were those men of former generations who often fought a stiff, up-hill fight to gain those things upon which the city's present prestige rests. Never before in its history has Junction been in such good position to go forward in rapid and substantial development as now. It has all its pristine attractions plus many of relatively recent acquisition.

Texas quarries in 1928 sold stone, mostly lime and granite, valued at $2,500,000, and a number of new projects are getting into production this year.

AUTOMOBILE FEET

When new habits or fashions are adopted new physical troubles usually make their appearance in due time. We have long suspected that so much riding in automobiles and the great decrease in the practice of walking would be reflected sooner or later in physical infirmities. Chiropractors in conference at Buffalo tell us such is already the case. In convincing figures they say that cases of arch trouble in the feet have increased 75 per cent since the auto came into general use. And they advise a walk after every ride, 10 minutes walking for every hour spent in riding.

The advice will be followed by very few, but the facts in the case should not be forgotten. Shoe makers are not the only ones suffering from the popularity of the auto. The muscles we do not use become weak, abnormal and unreliable, and those of the feet have a lot of responsibility resting on them.—The Pathfinder.

The intelligent man will prize those studies which will result in his soul's getting soberness, righteousness, and wisdom.

Texas ranks second among the states in value of exports and among the 102 countries of the world ranks eighth. New York led in 1928 with $861,000,000, Texas was second with $817,000,000 and Michigan was third with $367,000,000, less than half the total for Texas.

Ella Simon Named Editor-in-Chief

The Editorial Staff assembled in room 14 on November 20, for the purpose of deciding some very pressing business matters. The Editor-in-chief had signed her office some time before, and Miss Ella Simon, associate editor, had been carrying on the work of both.

By consent of the staff, Miss Simon will henceforth be Editor-in-chief.

Miss Ruby Davis was elected Associate Editor. Miss Simon is special feature writer, and will continue in that capacity as well as assuming the new work.

POUR IT ON TIVY

On November 19 the Fredericksburg Hill Billies met a 41 to 0 defeat at the hands of the Junction Eagles. The Hill Billies are said to have the strongest team the Eagles have played this season; but it seemed they were unable to stop the powerful Eagles.

This was the sixth conference game, and since Tivy defeated Bertram on the same day, it put the Eagles in position to play Tivy for the District 12 championship. This game will be played on the Junction gridiron at 2:30 o'clock p. m. on Turkey Day. Since it will be one of the biggest games of the season, bleachers are being erected for the occasion. Tivy has a very powerful team but with some backing it is hoped that the Eagles will "pour it on em."

For the past week the Eagles have been in a training camp on "Uncle" Billy McKee's ranch five miles from town. They have been coming to school during the day, but practicing and spending the night at camp. They have been eating the right kind of food, going to bed early, and not using cigars or "moonshine" liquor, so they are in good shape for the game.

Be sure to come Turkey Day to see the Eagles Trim Tivy!

Pep Squad Members Visit Football Camp

The members of the Pep Squad visited the football boys again last Friday night at their camp on Uncle Billie McKee's ranch. The girls showered the boys with fruit, but no cigars. Last Tuesday the Pep Squad girls marched out on the field during the half and formed an "F" for Fredericksburg and then a "J" for Junction.

The girls are practicing to help the Eagles win on Thanksgiving.

Yea, Eagles—Trim Tivy!

NINTH GRADE NOTES

The ninth grade started working on their may books Tuesday. A little boy hit Eleanor Highsmith over the head with a door, causing her to faint and fall down stairs. It was lucky that she wasn't hurt badly.

We have been writing business letters of all kinds in English.

Lost—The last button on Arl Taylor's football sweater. Finder please return, and get reward.

T. M. Tominson was absent Monday.

Gerald, Varnon, James, Arl, Harroll, Oliver Lynn, John Lewis and Schreves missed several classes the first of the week, working on the grandstand. We can afford to excuse them from a few classes, as this will be such an improvement to the campus.

Monday Mrs. Tinsley substituted for Mr. Bowers. We were all studying and thought Dick was, until he said, "Mrs. Tinsley, what is a vampire bat?" We all observed that he was looking at a dictionary. Mrs. Tinsley said "It is a bat that kills people." Dick said "Oh!" and slammed the book to.

Carlton—"What are you looking for Junior?"
Junior (looking on ground)—"I've lost the crease out of my pants and I'm trying to find it."

Basket-ball Girls Commence Practice

The Basket-Ball girls have been training diligently since they organized.

Several more girls have entered training in the last week.

There is going to be much competition among the players, as so many have come out.

It is to be hoped that we will have another "undefeated" team as we had last season.

PEP SQUAD MEMBERS PRACTICE NEW STUNTS

The Pep Squad girls have been practicing every afternoon this week on new drills and yells. R. E. Homann is assisting the chief yell leader, Ruth Sandherr, in perfecting the new drills.

With their new uniforms the Pep Squad girls make a fine appearance. They are well organized and add much color to the games. They are planning to pull some new stunts between the halves at the game tomorrow.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL REPORT

Interest in School Aid to Students

(By Ruby Davis)

The benefit we get from the extra-curricular activities is secondary only to the proverbial "reditin' and 'rithmetick." We gain poise and self-confidence by our performances and appearances before the public, which we would not gain otherwise. Then, too, to have an interest in the school activities gives one a greater pride and love for his school. This places the school in a more prominent position before the public, and gives the people an idea of the talents and ambitions that lie under the surface of a dirty face. The old adage, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," can be applied with all its truthfulness here. While the activities give recreation, they also render excellent training. There are those who would have "all work and no play," who would have us forever doing the same thing their great-granddads did, but to them we give this tip, "Civilization is a process of changing, not of stability."

JUNIOR CLASS NOTES

The Juniors were very much amused last Friday during History class, when Harry Witt and Raymond Schneider acted so much like babies; they had to stand in the corner of the room with their faces to the wall. They had stood there about a minute when the bell sounded. They seemed rather tickled.

The English III class is studying Emerson's Work this week. His work is said to stimulate the intellect but it seems to have failed to stimulate some of our intellects so far.

Everyone seems anxious for Thursday to come. They seem to be looking forward to a big turkey dinner and especially to see Tivy get trimmed properly.

Margaret Hubbell has adopted the style of wearing long dresses. The janitor approved of this style very much because she sweeps the class rooms.

FRESHMAN REPORT

The eighth grade pupils have finished their six weeks examinations. They are beginning the new term with good work. Everyone says that he can enjoy Thanksgiving as they won't get their report cards until afterwards. They say that at least they have something for which to be thankful.

We have begun work on our map books and everyone seems to enjoy this kind of work.

We'll all be at the Junction-Tivy game Thursday, November 28, to see the fight for district championship. Unless you are boosting Tivy, keep on the west side of the football field.

"Oscar," asked Mrs. Dutton, "What was it Sir Walter Raleigh said when he placed his cloak on the muddy road for the beautiful queen to walk over?"

Oscar (brightly)—"Step on it, kid."

Lost—A black fountain pen, by girl half full of ink.

Domestic Art Class Doing Good Work

The first and second year classes in sewing, under the direction of Mrs. Astor Wallace, have been having very interesting class periods.

The first year class meets on Monday, Wednesday and Friday now, but will exchange time with the second year class after the mid-term. The first year class had as their first projects night gowns, and are now completing some aprons made of checked gingham and prits, trimmed with bias tape. In addition to their projects the girls have been working on their note books, putting in samples, studying seams and out-lining chapters from their text books. There are thirteen girls in this class, which makes it rather crowded but in spite of this the girls have made rapid progress and seem interested in their work.

The second year class has completed slips as their first project and are now working on some dresses of wool and silk material. The dresses are two-piece ensembles. The girls expect to have one piece of the ensemble finished before the Thanksgiving holidays. This class isn't so crowded, which makes it easier, but the girls will be glad when they will have more time for their class periods.

Elsie Martin (in class): Miss Natalie, what kind of stitch do they use when they baste a turkey?

through which she goes.
Slick—"Well, Mr. Moses, I just can't learn this geometry."

no matter—"
Mr. Moses—"No matter who teaches it."

Slick—"I'm going to marry a girl that can take a joke."
L. E.—"Don't worry, that's the only kind you'll get."

For sale—A building for sale by a man with a marble dome.

Mr. Bowers—Mae Delle, what are the two kinds of gasses?
Mae Delle—Texaco and Magnolia.

Wanted—Any kind of work where a good hand is needed.

(By G. G. Co.)

Horns on a cow indicate her age and general characteristics, according to Luke Brito of Marfa. Level horns, he says, indicate the type of body that feeders want while upturned horns point to a narrow body. At the age of three a cow puts the first wrinkle on her horns and adds one each succeeding year. . . . A citizen of Edwards County is under arrest charged with alleged conspiracy to defraud the county of cash offered as bounty for wolf scalps. The defendant is alleged to have killed wolves in Mexico and collected bounties in Texas.

Washington dispatch states that the I. C. C. would permit construction of the Gulf and West Texas Ry. from Fredericksburg to Brady, while construction of the second unit from Eden to San Angelo would not be approved now, action being deferred until certain trackage agreements had been reached.

Woodmen of the World have been enjoined, by District Court action, from putting into effect an "old line" system of insurance, such as was decided upon by officials of the order in a meeting last summer.

In stock this week: Choice Herring rolls, in kits, spiced and ready to serve; glassed anchovies, Codfish shredded and in bricks. Gann Grocery Company. Diced carrots and mixed vegetables, in tins.

J. A. Wallace has a comfortable new home nearing completion in Junction. . . . Miss Josephine Urban of the working force at Junction State Bank was off duty Monday and Tuesday on account of illness. . . . "Pete" Johnson of Big Spring, accompanied by his wife, is visiting on the Gibbs ranch this week. Mr. Johnson is a superannuated trainmaster and a relative of Ex-Sheriff Gibbs. . . . Mrs. G. W. Farmer is recently at home on the Farmer ranch after a visit in Austin. The trip required only a few hours by automobile, whereas in 1879 when Mrs. Farmer came with her husband to Kinble County from Bastrop, the trip required twenty days over uncharted roads.

Dad Doesn't Know Everything
Kept in after school, Willie was interrogated by his father to find out the trouble, and Willie had an alibi, saying: "Well, dad, I asked you last night how much is a million dollars." "Yes." "Well, helluvadot wasn't the right answer."

Practically all Texas short wool has been sold at an average price around 19c. Junction's accumulation of approximately 400,000 lbs. was sold at that price, while the small amount of long wool brought 22c. Wool buyers are quoted as saying they look for an improved price on wool in the spring, with mohair about the same as this fall. . . . Recent New York dispatch states that business is proceeding at full speed, notwithstanding the recent stock-market upheaval; that all industries report receipts far in excess of this period in 1928, an immense building program under way throughout the country, and money—released from market speculation—amply plentiful for all legitimate business. . . . At the same time prayers for rain are being offered by 200 churches in Central California.

Kerrville, it is stated, has reserved half the grandstand space for Thursday's football game on Junction field.

Gann Grocery Company
"Everybody's Store."

Following announcement that the Carnation Milk Co. will build a milk condensery at Sulphur Springs, the Southwest Dairy Co. gives out a statement that it will establish a modern milk plant there, giving the county two good-sized plants. Hopkins County has 23,700 milk cows, according to a recent census, which helps to explain the desire of large companies to establish plants in that section.

To know what is good music, to understand it and to take part in it widens the mind and deepens the heart.

SENIOR EPWORTH LEAGUE

Wednesday evening, November 20, the members of the Senior Epworth League held a meeting at the Methodist parsonage. Ramsey Randolph, president of the League, presided and conducted the study of the League Handbook. Following the program a social hour was enjoyed when games and music provided entertainment.

Tuna fish sandwiches and hot chocolate were served to Misses Eleene Newby, Katherine Randolph, Maxine Wright, Vivian Livingston, Eleanor Highsmith, Dorothy Salter, Lela McDonald, Dr. Olin Jones, Rev. J. Virgil Davis of Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hill of San Antonio, Mr. and Mrs. Ovie Buster and Rev. and Mrs. Milton F. Hill and family.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT HAS PICNIC AT PARK

Mrs. Frank Wilson, superintendent of the primary department of the Baptist Sunday School of Junction, entertained the department with a barbecue dinner at Schreiner Park Tuesday afternoon. She was assisted by Mesdames A. B. Hodges, Jim Massey, Carl Glossbrenner and Miss Mary Willis, teachers in the department.

Barbecue, bread, pickles and cookies were served to thirty happy little boys and girls and several visitors. Mrs. Wilson and her teachers have worked faithfully with the little ones several years and have done a wonderful work.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR FOR ROTARY CLUB ELECTED

Dr. Sam G. Thompson of Kerrville has been selected as District Governor of the 41st Rotary district which comprises a large territory of southwest Texas. Dr. Thompson succeeds Judge R. L. Bobbitt, who was recently appointed Attorney General for the State of Texas. This selection pleases the Junction Rotarians as Dr. Thompson has always taken a great interest in the local club. He is a good man for the place and serve Rotary satisfactorily.

A hissing sound from the motor may indicate a compression leak around the base of a spark plug. To test for this condition, put a little oil around each plug where it screws into the cylinder.
