Edison's Garters Prove Newtonian Law of Gravitation As Friends Get Him Spiffed Up for a Girly Show

Business Associates, Helping Inventor Celebrate 48th Birthday of "Canned Speech" Put Him Through Wringer of Entertainment.

WEST ORANGE, N. Y., July 11. (AP)—Business associates of Thomas A. Edison are taking him to a girly show tonight, continuing a celebration which had, among its first day's features, the flunking of a questionnaire by the inventor, his accidental proof of the law of gravity, and the presentation to him of a wonderful trunk.

A 2-Day Affair.

Celebrating the 48th birthday of canned speech, distributors of the device that utilizes the invention for business purposes, began a two-day convention yesterday at the Edison plant and the Essex county country club.

For his forthcoming vacation trip with Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone, a trunk was presented to Edison to be attached to the running board of the car. Some of its ideas. It has spaces for blankets, thermos bottles, cooking utensils and other articles.

A Wonderful Trunk.

Mrs. Edison, accepting the gift for her husband, said that in hot weather "this wonderful trunk" would prevent every extra piece of clothing attached to "the blessed man in front" being thrown back on overheated persons in the tonneau.

One of the speakers at a luncheon asked what were the seven qualifications necessary for a leader of men beginning with "C." Everybody flunked, including the inventor. The was charm, conscientiousness, character, competence, courage, celerity and caution.

Ray for Newton.

As the inventor was posing for a picture, his gartered hosiery proved the Newtonian law, and the throng was startled and amused by the shout "pull of your socks.' It came from Mrs. Edison. One has to speak loudly for the inventor to hear at all. He obeyed quickly.

Asked to play golf, the inventor refused because he said it was going to rain. He proved a good prophet. Then he had a big laugh when passed a clipping telling of a physician informing a rich patient "You are in a badly run down condition. You will have to give up golf and have a good rest at your office."

He Is 78 Years Old.

Mr. Edisons eyes are good, notwithstanding his 78 years, and every year he goes to the same Broadway musical comedy with his associates.

FORGER FROM TARRANT GETS A PEN PARDON

FROM MICHIGAN

State Officials Took Him After Northern State Got Through

FORT WORTH, July 11.—(AP)—Texas' "king of the ivories," E. L. De Patie, Tarrant county forger, who found that the easy road to fortune led to prison, was granted a conditional pardon by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson today.

The pardon for De Patie automatically silenced the piano at the state penitentiary where for two years the young forger has made life worth while for the other prisoners.

Back in 1919 when fortunes were being made over night in the oil fields and Fort Worth was packed with oil operators and investors, De Patie came to Texas.

The lure of the liquid gold proved his undoing. He forged checks for the amount of $2,500 and started down the paved road to wealth at full speed. The road led to prison.

He was tried and convicted and given a five-year suspended sentence. He admitted that he had forged the checks and declared that he had made "investments" that brought no return.

Two years later Tarrant county officials found that he was serving a three year term in the Michigan state penitentiary. Immediately upon his release in 1923 he was brought back to Texas and began serving his sentence.

Plenty of Fish For The Asking at Big Lake Sunday P. M.

"Come out and help yourself to a week's supply of meat," is the invitation extended Wichitans today by John Crawford, caretaker at Lake Kemp, who has announced that plenty of fish can be caught today—and without the formality of fishing for them with hooks.

Mr. Crawford explained that while the gates of the dam have been opened the past few days to permit filling of the diversion lake, thousands of fish from the big lake have gone through the flumes at the base of the pile. He further explains that fish naturally swim upstream and that this accounts for the fact that they can be caught just below the dam today when the water is shut off.

The gates will be closed at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and the receding waters will leave thousands of them, mostly German trout, stranded on the sands of the river.

They will die if left alone, Mr. Crawford says, and for that reason the public is welcome to come and gather up all they want. A pair of hands and a basket is all that will be needed, he asserts.

Maskat Chanters Take Fling in Movies With Niblo

Maskat Temple's chanters—Wichita Falls' premier musical organization, are continuing to spread the city's fame through the medium of their voices.

All Wichita Falls knows, of course, of their remarkable vocal powers and this recognition has now extended pretty well over Texas. One appearance is all they need to insure their winning a permanent place in the affections of any music-loving public.

But even in far distant climes the chanters have also scored decisive success. 9 year ago at the Imperial Shrine council in Kansas City the Wichita Falls men aand his divan—a concert that won unstinted praise fro ppeared in a special concert before the Imperial optentatem the head of all Shrinedom. They repeated again at Los Angeles when the 1925 Imperial session was held there.

A still further conquest was made on the west coast when the chanters were received with acclaim by the movie world. In the picture above the Wichitans are seen posing with Fred Niblo, noted movie producer who is chief director for the Metro-Goldwyn Film corporation. The "shot" was taken on a Hollywood studio ground.

BONEHEAD BY LEGISLATURE MAY REDUCE STATE TAX RATE SAYS COMPTROLLERS REPORT

AUSTIN, July 11.—(AP)—Because the 39th legislature failed to appropriate the revenue from the one cent gasoline tax to the state highway department fund and the available free school fund, as did the 38th legislature, in two years $9,000,000 will accrue to the general revenue fund. A probable reduction in taxes will result, S. H. Terrell, comptroller, said today.

Mr. Terrell is a member of the state automatic tax board. In referring to statement of former Gov. James E. Ferguson appearing in the press this week, he said that he also is of the opinion that the rate for the current year will be substantially lowered by the board at its meeting about July 20.

Comptroller Terrell said he had made a thorough survey of the reports of tax assessors throughout the state and had made a careful estimate of revenues that will accrue to the general revenue fund during the coming fiscal year beginning September 1, taking into consideration the various appropriations made by the last legislature.

"I am of the opinion that a lower tax rate than that of the past year will provide funds to properly liquidate the state's obligation," he said.

Mr. Terrell pointed out that the 38th legislature imposed the one cent gallon tax on gasoline, and approved the revenue for the state highway commission and one-fourth to the available free school fund, until September 1, 102. He said he was unable to find where the last legislature re-appropriated such tax money so the revenue will go to the general revenue fund.

Suit Is Brought To Recover Ring Given As a Loan Security

A SUIT to recover a diamond ring valued at $900 was filed Saturday in the 78th district court by Mrs. Van McPhail, joined pro forma by her husband, who complained against C. H. Featherstone and Miss Maude Stonecipher.

The petition alleges that in October, 1924, the plaintiff borrowed from the defendant Featherstone $250, giving the diamond as security. When the payment came due it could not be met, it is recited, but 60 or 90 days later the plaintiff offered the defendant, Featherstone full payment with accrued interest and demanded return of the ring. It is held that he had disposed of it to the defendant, Stonecipher and declines to retrieve it.

The plaintiffs tender the court the full payment of the amount due the defendant, plus accrued interest, and seek an order demanding return of the ring.

Gangland Law Wreaks Vengence On Third Genna But Three More Must Die To Pay For O'Banion

CHIAGO, July 11.—Toda, arked The passing of another Chicago gangster and gunman, Tony Genna, the third of the notorious Genna brothers to be claimed in a gangland feud in six weeks.

Tony's three surviving brothers were not in the limousine which accompanied the hearse to the cemetery. They are in hiding.

Tony's funeral was a marked contrast to that of his slain brother, Angello, six weeks ago, when a band headed the funeral procession, followed by limousines loaded with flowers valued at thousands of dollars, the tribute of gangland, and the body was carried to the grave in a casket of silver and bronze.

While the funeral was being held one Chicago policeman was wounded and shot his assailant to death after trying to settle a street fight. Michael Murtha, the policeman, dropped with three bullets in his leg, and from his reclining position fired five shots into the body of his unidentified assailant. The latter died in a hospital later.

The Gennas who still live may be through with the gang war that started when Dean O'Bannon died at the hands of assassins in his little flower shop on N. State street last November, but the invisible gangland powers that were controlled by O'Bannon are not yet through with either the Gennas or their allies.

There must be three more killings, the underworld believes, before the vengeance of O'Bannon, still ruling from the grave, is complete.

They will die if left alone, Mr. Crawford says, and for that reason the public is welcome to come and gather up all they want. A pair of hands and a basket is all that will be needed, he asserts.

Maskat Chanters Take Fling in Movies With Niblo

Maskat Temple's chanters—Wichita Falls' premier musical organization, are continuing to spread the city's fame through the medium of their voices.

All Wichita Falls knows, of course, of their remarkable vocal powers and this recognition has now extended pretty well over Texas. One appearance is all they need to insure their winning a permanent place in the affections of any music-loving public.

But even in far distant climes the chanters have also scored decisive success. 9 year ago at the Imperial Shrine council in Kansas City the Wichita Falls men aand his divan—a concert that won unstinted praise fro ppeared in a special concert before the Imperial optentatem the head of all Shrinedom. They repeated again at Los Angeles when the 1925 Imperial session was held there.

A still further conquest was made on the west coast when the chanters were received with acclaim by the movie world. In the picture above the Wichitans are seen posing with Fred Niblo, noted movie producer who is chief director for the Metro-Goldwyn Film corporation. The "shot" was taken on a Hollywood studio ground.

BONEHEAD BY LEGISLATURE MAY REDUCE STATE TAX RATE SAYS COMPTROLLERS REPORT

AUSTIN, July 11.—(AP)—Because the 39th legislature failed to appropriate the revenue from the one cent gasoline tax to the state highway department fund and the available free school fund, as did the 38th legislature, in two years $9,000,000 will accrue to the general revenue fund. A probable reduction in taxes will result, S. H. Terrell, comptroller, said today.

Mr. Terrell is a member of the state automatic tax board. In referring to statement of former Gov. James E. Ferguson appearing in the press this week, he said that he also is of the opinion that the rate for the current year will be substantially lowered by the board at its meeting about July 20.

Comptroller Terrell said he had made a thorough survey of the reports of tax assessors throughout the state and had made a careful estimate of revenues that will accrue to the general revenue fund during the coming fiscal year beginning September 1, taking into consideration the various appropriations made by the last legislature.

"I am of the opinion that a lower tax rate than that of the past year will provide funds to properly liquidate the state's obligation," he said.

Mr. Terrell pointed out that the 38th legislature imposed the one cent gallon tax on gasoline, and approved the revenue for the state highway commission and one-fourth to the available free school fund, until September 1, 102. He said he was unable to find where the last legislature re-appropriated such tax money so the revenue will go to the general revenue fund.

Suit Is Brought To Recover Ring Given As a Loan Security

A SUIT to recover a diamond ring valued at $900 was filed Saturday in the 78th district court by Mrs. Van McPhail, joined pro forma by her husband, who complained against C. H. Featherstone and Miss Maude Stonecipher.

The petition alleges that in October, 1924, the plaintiff borrowed from the defendant Featherstone $250, giving the diamond as security. When the payment came due it could not be met, it is recited, but 60 or 90 days later the plaintiff offered the defendant, Featherstone full payment with accrued interest and demanded return of the ring. It is held that he had disposed of it to the defendant, Stonecipher and declines to retrieve it.

The plaintiffs tender the court the full payment of the amount due the defendant, plus accrued interest, and seek an order demanding return of the ring.

Gangland Law Wreaks Vengence On Third Genna But Three More Must Die To Pay For O'Banion

CHIAGO, July 11.—Toda... arked The passing of another Chicago gangster and gunman, Tony Genna, the third of the notorious Genna brothers to be claimed in a gangland feud in six weeks.

Tony's three surviving brothers were not in the limousine which accompanied the hearse to the cemetery. They are in hiding.

Tony's funeral was a marked contrast to that of his slain brother, Angello, six weeks ago, when a band headed the funeral procession, followed by limousines loaded with flowers valued at thousands of dollars, the tribute of gangland, and the body was carried to the grave in a casket of silver and bronze.

While the funeral was being held one Chicago policeman was wounded and shot his assailant to death after trying to settle a street fight, Michael Murtha, the policeman, dropped with three bullets in his leg, and from his reclining position fired five shots into the body of his unidentified assailant. The latter died in a hospital later.

The Gennas who still live may be through with the gang war that started when Dean O'Bannon died at the hands of assassins in his little flower shop on N. State street last November, but the invisible gangland powers that were controlled by O'Bannon are not yet through with either the Gennas or their allies.

There must be three more killings, the underworld believes, before the vengeance of O'Bannon, still ruling from the grave, is complete.

North Texas Occupies Spotlight With Other Fields Quiet

DEEP TEST IN THROCKMORTON PRODUCES OIL

ADVANCE IN CRUDE

New Prices Promise More In Future for Texas Producers

FORT WORTH, July 11.—With North Texas occupying the spotlight in the drilling report, it was more or less dull elsewhere, the summer quietness having settled over many spots.

Throckmorton county, bordering Young county on the west and Shackelford county on the north, yielded its second deep production when Schimmel Oil company No. 1 Kelley, near center of the east half of block 31, Comanche Indian reserve, found a sandy lime pay at 2,990 to 2,994 feet after drilling five feet of white lime. Flowing after swabbing, it made 110 barrels in 16 hours and is at present estimated a 50-barrel well. It is likely to go deeper.

Mark to Shoot At.

It represents a mark for other tests in that district to shoot at, and there are quite a number within striking distance. It is 10 or 12 miles west of the deep pay Humble Oil and Refining company opened up last fall and Reiter-Foster Oil corporation found which Humble missed on an offset tract. The county is credited with nearly 60 barrels daily average production.

In northern Young county the Plains Production company had a fine well which extended the Litchfield pool considerably east. It was No. 1 Kilcrease, which made more than 600 barrels the third day after completion at 968 to 988 feet.

In western Archer county the Norday pool presents Archer's current large pool in development stage. Three wells there last week made it a big time proposition, for the time being at least.

Humble Oil and Refining company has a well good for 200 barrels at 1,300 to 1,309 feet in No. 1-D Waggoner, in the southeast corner of its 40-acre lease in the northwest quarter of section 50 block 14 in the Gulf pool. In the same pool Gulf Production company No. 2-R Waggoner, section 50, is flowing 200 barrels at 1,519 to 1,525 feet, west of No. 1, producing from the 1,700-foot pay.

Usual Duster.

The fault line contributed its usual duster. Humphreys Oil corporation-Kirby Petroleum company-Cranfill Brothers Oil company No. 1 M. J. Tharp, G. P. Dikes survey, southeastern Kaufman county, is dry and abandoned at 3,354 feet, giving Kaufman another dry hole to add to its string of about thirty. The Bazette district in eastern Navarro county has two wells ready for abandonment, though one has not tested the Woodbine yet thoroughly.

The Richland-Currie district of Limestone county, also in East Central Texas, had two oil wells and a gasser, none of them exciting but slightly better than the first two showed.

The bright spot aside from development was the advance in price. So far, it has failed to create a sympathetic condition in the refined market. U. S. Motor Fuel, gasoline of 58-60 gravity, 450 end point, is 12 1-8 to 12 1-4 cents, having lost about three-eighths of a cent in a week. There is plenty of material which is moving slowly.

Export gasoline, 64066 gravity, 375 end point, lost one-quarter cent, quoted at 14 3-4 cents a gallon in tank car lots now, after Carson Refining company and the Sinclair Oil company had filled the majority of their requirements in North Texas markets for their export trade.

Fuel oil in North Texas is 95 cents a barrel and strong, presenting a paradox with group three, or Oklahoma, which is 82 1-2 to 85 cents and weak. There is a strong demand and it is moving freely. Gas oil is 2 7-8 cents a gallon, kerosene is 3 7-8 cents, naptha is 11 1-2 cents. Summer gasoline is slow at 11 3-4 cents a gallon.

Smackover Field Shows Big Slump In Month of June

SHREVEPORT, La., July 11.—June marked the turn of the tide in the affairs of Smackover — it had been turning late in May but the [illegible] did not develop until early in June. When it did get under way it effected all phases, drilling, production and shipments from the field, and the average initial returns from successful completions. Once it did start down the toboggan, production went down like a plummet closing the month with a total daily average run of approximately 50 per cent of what it began with. Offsetting this rapid decline, however, was the discovery of production in a third sand, the Blossom, tapped at around 2,000 feet. A half-dozen or so wells have been drilled to this depth during the month and the probable extent of the new pay has been determined over a stretch of six miles in one direction. How wide the belt may be remains to be determined, which probably will be done during the current month. There was not much of interest in North Louisiana districts where the search for new production is suffering from the rush to Smackover. When Smackover finally settles down to the stage where Haynesville, Cotton Valley and other old Louisiana districts have been for some time, wildcatting will be more general.

June Completions Slump.

There were 24 fewer completions in the Shreveport district as a whole during June than in May, but only one less new producer. Initial production, however, dropped off 110,345 barrels. There were three less gassers with 173 million cubic feet per day, open flow, less production and fourteen more failures than in May. The figures for the month were: 298 completions; 228 new producers with 272,466 barrels less initial 13 gas wells with 22 4million cubic feet and 34 failures.

Smackover's figures show a decline of 12 in completions with a gain of three in the number of successful tests. Smackover also accounts for 109,431 barrels of the decline of 110,348 barrels in total initial completion of new wells. The field registered one more gasser than in May but 22 million feet less open flow capacity and there were 15 less failures. The summary of the month's results in the field show 201 completions, 198 new producers with 270,848 barrels initial, five gassers with 151 million cubic feet, 12 failures. The average per well for the field, practically all of them in the Graves (2,400-foot) sand in June was 1,348 barrels and in May it was 1,922 barrels.

This decline in initial production and the short life of Graves sand wells, many of which, completed early in the boom have pumped out while others not so old are making only small amounts, accounts for the drop of 1,221,756 barrels in total production of the field in June, 1,189,276 barrels of it in heavy oil.

Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil company started the new excitement June 6 when they completed No. 3 Laney in 31-15-15 Ouachita county, making 800 barrels of medium grade Smackover crude at 2,583 feet with the bottom about three feet in. Immediately arrangements were begun to deepen wells abandoned or played out in the upper sands and Laurel Oil and Gas company was the next to with a Blossom sand completion. No. 1 Houston in 12-16-16, two and one-half miles southwest of the discovery, making 100 barrels of oil at 2,610 feet. Three more wells followed in the last week of the month. Houston Oil company taking production two and one-half miles northeast of the discovery well with No. 3 Reynolds in 27-15-15 making an estimated 2,500 barrels from 2,591 feet after it had come in with 2,800 barrels after it had blown in with 10 million feet of dry gas. In between Bailey and Murray brought in B-2 Rhoten in 32-15-15 with 20 million feet of gas and 500 barrels of oil from 2,585 feet and June 21 Federal Petroleum company completed No. 7 Ballard in 10-16-15 with 3,000 barrels of fluid 300 barrels of it oil, from 2,645 feet.

A New Territory.

At present appearances this is edge well territory in the Blossom sand as well as in the Graves horizon, as the second sand wells in section 10, with one or two exceptions, have all been heavily cut by salt water as this one in the Blossom is. At that, the well gives the Blossom a width of approximately two and one-half miles due north and south.

On the Louisiana side of the state line dividing Shreveport oil territory, Cotton Valley was the most active district, registering 13 completions, all producers, with 993 barrels initial, compared with 17 in May with 2,112 barrels and a daily average run in June of 11,367 barrels compared with 10,390. Caddo parish had 12 completions, seven producers with 168 barrels initial, three gassers and two failures. The older districts of the parish accounted for most of the completions. In the Caddo end of the Waskom gas district of Harrison county, Texas, there were two gas wells with 10 million feet.

Monroe gas district, since the department of conservation showed its teeth several months ago and put an arbitrary reduction on the amount of gas to be consumed in the field for carbon making, has shown very little activity, only two wells, one in Morehouse and one in Ouachita parishes, having been completed during June, their combined capacity being only 18 million feet. The Urania district, center of excitement in late March and early April, added three more to its list of failures, and a promising wildcat in Sabine also turned out a failure after showing for 50 barrels of 42 gravity oil. DeSoto parish contributed a small producer in the Eclieu district, some distance away from nearest present production but in a territory where past experience and present indications augur well. Bossier also had a promising wildcat which ended in salt water and Claiborne parish duplicated the performance.

Much Wildcatting.

There is the usual amount of wildcatting under way throughout North Louisiana, and in Southwest Arkansas Humble Oil and Refining company is embarked upon an extensive geological study, having completed three wells in Lafayette and Miller counties with that end in view. Columbia and Nevada counties are also sharing in the campaign under way by other operators.

Of the 12 producing districts in the Shreveport group only one, Cotton Valley, showed increased output during the month, and its gain was small, 2,180 barrels for the month on a daily average run of 11,367 barrels, a gain of 437. Total production for all pools in June was 11,873,700, a drop of 1,351,737 from May's runs. Louisiana ran 1,514,460, a drop of 102,530 and Arkansas shipped 10,359,240, a decline of 1,249,206. By pools, compared with May production total and daily average, was as follows:

Louisiana — Caddo light, 270,540, lost 25,634, daily average, 9,018; Caddo heavy, 66,890, lost 9,173, daily aerage 2,229; Homer, 198,650, lost 14,806, daily average 6,622; Haynesville 391,500, lost 29,449, daily 13,050; Red River-DeSoto, 142,220, lost 7,881, daily average 4,774; Bellevue 102,660, lost 14,768, daily 3,422; Cotton Valley 341,010, gained 2,180, daily runs 11,367.

Arkansas—El Dorado 247,290, lost 20,488, daily runs 8,243; Smackover light 890,700, lost 32,480, daily runs 29,690; Smackover heavy 9,184,920 lost 1,188,278, daily runs 304,164; Stephens 85,350, lost 791, daily runs 1,845; Nevada county 40,980, lost 9,171, daily runs 1,366.

Six Cases Set for Trial First Day of Week.

Half-a-dozen criminal cases are set for trial Monday morning before Judge H. R. Wilson in the 30th district court, of them are old complaints that have been on the docket for some time. It is believed that at least a few of the cases can be tried.

Several cases in which indictments were returned by the last grand jury are set down for trial Wednesday morning.

JURY RETURNS 39 BILLS.

Making its third report in as many days, the grand jury of the 30th district court returned 15 more bills of indictment Saturday afternoon, making 39 bills in all to be returned this week. The jury adjourned indefinitely after its report yesterday but will hold itself subject to call.

NEW RAISE IN CRUDE ARGUES FOR ACTIVITY

One Pool Shows Signs Of What May Mean Something Big

With oil maintaining its price supremacy buyers out for but hand to mouth deliveries and the market ever threatening to advance as indicated by far eastern activities; the summer season for the first time in the history of Mid-Continent oil emerges from a more or less peaceful lethargy and tradition as a competitor for big honors. With the promise of big extensions to one pool which might almost be considered a rediscovery, the completion of three wells already on sand and cemented in the Norday district, the discovery of shallow sands to east of the south Vernon pool, now oil both in shallow and deep sands in Throckmorton, and another new Montague gasser are the high lights of an eventful week. A short resume of drillings and completions in the district show numerous wells both producers and failures a substantial increase of wildcating and the proving up of newly discovered areas, which taken all in all cast a more than healthy light over a season always more or less subject to the blues.

New Prices Schedule.

Of first importance is the new price schedule as posted by the Prairie Oil & Gas and although it does not materially boost local crude it casts a more than healthy light over the industry coming as it does in the season of summer production slump.

The outstanding drilling event of the week was the completion of the Plains Production companies number 1. Kilcrease located to the north and east of the Litchfield which after several days still continues to flow better than 600 barrels daily from sand at 1468-88 feet. The completion, a nice extension to an already semi-proven area, together with the owners rrefusal to sell for a comfortable fortune have stimulated activity in this district until the field takes on the glamour of boom days.

Not to be outstripped by rivals from the south the Norday pool assumed proportions that have already classed it as an area to be reckoned wi th and may be for weeks eclipse that of its bretheren, the Harmel and Swastika districts. Opening the week with but one producer the field has witnessed the completion of three wells of stellar importance. Wednesday saw Perkins and Cullums number one, Anderson put 270 barrels in the tanks, both flowing and swabbing in ten hours, and estimated to be good for at least 350. On the same day Norday's number 3, to the west of the discovery well came in for an estimated 200 barrels. The following day Empires number 1, after threatening a total failure, started flowing 300 barrels thus completing the extension of the area in three directions.

Drilling activities in the pool are even more pronounced. To the east of their number 1, Norday and associates are looking for sand on their number 2 and their offset to the south of this is rigging up, and will be drilling in the next few days. Perkins and Cullum are skidding derrick from their number 1, 300 feet south and building another on their southwest corner for number 2. To the west of the discovery well the Nc Domain are drilling in the southeast quarter of section 20. To the north of this test an da little to the east Humphries-Bass are on the sand and cemented at 1430 feet.

Humphries-Bass Test.

To the east of the Humphries-Bass test and located in the southwest corner of their 20 acre lease The Texas company are cleaning out preparatory to running casing on sand topped at 1431 feet. To the south of the New Domain test and on the Bishop land in section 52-Meade pasture, Malstead and Mook are drilling and expect sand the first of the week. To the east of Malstead and Mook and on the Anderson land in block 19, Cavin and Lowry have a sand at 1419 feet and have set and cemented. To the east of this test and offsetting Empires number 4 to the south Murchison and Fain have a location and should be spudding in the next day or so. Offsetting this test to the east McGee et al, are drilling for the sand within the week. This completes the list of actual drilling within the field proper. Approximately a mile to the south and west the Sun company together with the Prairie are fishing at 1215 feet. To the south and east of the pool Petroleum Producers are ratholing and should have sand very soon. To the north the Sun company have made a location on the south line of their Farmer lease in the Bell county school lands and will be rigging up within the week. Thus completes a district resume which might have been a credit to early Hausler days, and coming as it does at the beginning of summer cannot but forecast a season of feverish activity.

In the Wilbarger territory to the east of the south Vernon pool and in the same section as the Gulf's producer on their "B" lease, two shallow sands have been uncovered both of which have promise of nice production. In the northwest quarter of the section the Humble Oil and Refining company have the sand at 1309-1311 feet and is showing for a nice producer. To the south and to the west of their number 5, the Gulf has a sand at 1519-26 feet and the well is flowing better than 200 barrels. Number one, on this lease is producing from the 17000 foot sand.

In Throckmorton county the Texhoma Oil and Refining have a sand at 850 feet and are slowly drilling ahead with a small amount of oil in the hole. To the south and east of this test, Schimmel and associates on the Kelly farm are drilling in a sandy lime saturated with oil at 2980 feet and have better than 2000 feet of oil in the hole. This test will no doubt have a decided effect on future drilling in this area.

In Montague county Texhoma on their Reynolds lease, Comanche Indian Reservation, have a six million gasser on their Rowlands lease in the Samuel Little survey. Sand was topped at 731 feet and drilled 22 feet. The well will be shut in temporarily.

In southeast part of Young county on the Dawson survey Minnich and associates have a favorable looking sand and are bailing and cleaning out at 870 feet. This well, a rank wildcat, if a producer should make a nice shallow pool in a former very dry territory

So the week ends, eventful in development but with few if any transfers of importance. Pipe line runs showed.

Mid-Continent Crude Runs Show Increase

TULSA, July 11.—Mid-Continent refiners are still increasing their crude runs and on July 1, were running 16,400 barrels a day more than on June 1, according to a compilation by the Oil and Gas Journal. The runs to stills on July 1 were 440,350 barrels, a new big record. The reports showed 125 operating plants on July 1, as compared with 126 plants on June 1. Oklahoma refiners recorded the largest increase in runs.

In Oklahoma the 52 operating plants ran 191,700 barrels of crude through the stills, an increase of 3,925 barrels ove rthe previous period June 1. North Texas plants reported 96,400 barrels, an increase of 3,075 barrels from 37 plants in operation. Kansas better the North Texas throughout with 21 plants showing 103,400 barrels, an increase of 3,150 barrels. Arkansas showed a slight decline with nine plants running 16,950 barrels. North Louisiana gained 1,500 barrels over June 1 with six plants running 31,900 barrels. For the past three months the amount of crude run to stills has been increasing rapidly.

Marland Refining company plant at Ponca City, Okla., is listed as having established the outstanding increase in runs among individual plants with a throughout record of 19,000 barrels July 1, as compared with 15,000 barrels June 1. The 19,000 barrel record crude runs to stills at this plan is the full capacity of the plant, an unusual performance in oil refinery operation.

TAMPICO, Tampico, July 10.—In accordance with a decree recently signed by President Calles, an additional tax of 100 pesos, has been imposed for the drilling of oil wells. It was levied to help defray increased expenses of the Petroleum Bureau of the department of industry, commerce and labor.

NORTH TEXAS FIELDS SHOW SIGNS OF LIFE

Daily Average Pipe Line Runs Show Gain Of 350 Barrels

Daily average oil production in the North Texas fields showed an increase during the past week of 530 barrels over the weekly run of the preceding seven days. This is the first weekly increase since May.

Few of the fields showed any great difference in pipe line runs of the two weeks, though Electra and Archer county showed increases of over 100 barrels each.

Electra, Archer county, Young county, Iowa Park, Nocona, Throckmorton and Baylor county all showed increases in their weekly report while Burkburnett, South Vernon, Clay county and Jack county showed small losses.

In detail they are:

District	Week Past	Before Week
Electra	17,235	17,005

MID-CONTINENT OIL SITUATION GROWS BETTER

Indications Are That Many Fields Will Stay Quiet

TULSA, Okla., July 10.—The light oil situation in the Mid-Continent is further improved with results of last week's operations in the fields. Appearance of water in two of the important new fields puts the damper on their production possibilities while the quiet nature of other important pools indicates a lull in activity for the present.

Shipments of Prairie Pipe Line company, usually an accuratte barometer of the crude oil sination, remained practically unchanged in June thus bearing out the statement of officials of the Prairie Oil and Gas company that it was not storing oil and was able to meet its requirements by the use of fresh oil. The Prairie company shipped 4,716,115 barrels in June as compared with 4,719,835 barrels in May, the daily average for June being 157,204 barrels as compared with 152,253 barrels in May the differences coming from the fact that June had one less day than May.

Decline in Oklahoma.

Production in Oklahoma is still going off with the decline about evenly divided between the Tonkawa, Burbank and the northern miscellaneous fields. The loss last week was slight, however, amounting to 3,000 barrels daily average. Kansas pools continue to hold up well considering that no new production of consequence has been brought in in over a month. Oklahoma is now producing 445,675 barrels and Kansas 100,350 barrels, a total of 546,025 barrels as compared with previous week's output of 450,875 barrels from both states.

The Thomas pool, northwest of Tonkawa, in Kay county, showed up better than any of the individual new fields the past week but the outstanding feature of the week was the performance of the Herbert Oil company No. 1 Community, discovery well in the Braman pool, northern part of same county, which continues to increase and at last reports was making 4,723 barrels. The No. 2 Community well, a west offset to the producer, put a damper on the new pool by making considerable water and about 50 barrels of oil. Water pressure may have something to do with the big production from the discovery well it is said though it is not making any water as yet. The Braman townsite field now looks limited in one direction but may get the big play to the north where Marland Oil company has around 700 acres in a block. About 60 wells have been startted in the Braman field and the water trouble is attributed by some to faulty drilling rather than to salt water encroachment. Still, the field does not look as encouraging as formerly.

Condemns South Field.

In the Holdenville field in Hughes county, opened by the Gypsey Oil company, the Roxana Petroleum corporation offset got into water and flowed alternately a large amount of oil and water. At last reports it was making about 825 barrels of oil and 450 barrels of water. It has been determined that the water is from below the sand and practically condemns the field to the south. In the Yeager pool opened by the Dixie Oil company with two good wells, the offset tests are also disappointing, the Independdent Oil and Gas company having missed the sand entirely in one well and having only a small amount of oil in the other. These were also south of the discovery producer.

A new sand has been found in the Garber field in the well of the Mid-Continent Petroleum corporation and Marland No. 41 school land in section 13-22-4 west which started off at 25 barrels hourly from the supposed Layton sand at 3,598 feet, the pay only penetrated two feet.

The baby girl, Garland, suffered cuts across the body and it is feared that she has been hurt internally. Mrs. Conley was badly bruised.

The accident happened near the Conley home seven miles southeast of Quanah.

News Of The Fields

Texas Anderson

In the southwest corner of block 22 of the South Anderson ranch and to the north of the Norday well the Texas company are fishing after commencing to drill in at 1,432 feet. Sand was topped at 1,431 feet, casing was set and the well bailed down showing a little oil.

Maer & Staniforth-Mills

On their Mills lease, located 300 feet to the east of their No. 1 producer in section 2428 T. E. & L. survey, Baylor county, Maer & Staniforth are drilling at 1,400 feet and expect sand within the next 50 feet.

Petroleum Producers-Lauster.

Petroleum Producers are drilling at 1,340 feet on their No. 1 Lauster, located in the southeast quarter of S. P. survey, abstract 1237, and are rathoing for sand. This well is located to the southeast of the Norday pool.

Prairie-Waggoner

The Prairie Oil & Gas have completed their No. 1 Waggoner, located in section 45, block 2, H. & T. C. survey as a 75 barrel producer from sand topped at 2,320 and drilled six feet. This well is a rank wildcat, being nearly two miles to the east of Beatty's No. 1 Waggoner in block 2, section 47 and approximately three miles south of the Gulf's "R" lease.

Prairie-Sun 1 Kevar

Among the tests being watched with a great deal of interest is that of the Prairie Oil & Gas and the Sun company on their Kovar lease, located in the northeast corner of section 2438 T. E. & L. survey, south Archer county. This well after completing a fishing job at 1,200 feet, is again drilling and below 1,320. Sand is expected about 1,375 feet and should the well make a producer, may form the connecting link between the Harmel to the south and the recently discovered Norday pool a mile to the north.

Texhoma-Burnett

On their No. 4 Burnett "E" lease, Texhoma swabbed dry from sand drilled from 1,583 to 1,585 feet and are drilling deeper. This well is located in T. & N. O. survey, section 2, Wichita, county.

SMALL RETAIL GAS BUYING IS SLOWING DOWN

Refiners Still Bothered By Small Dealers' Tactics

TULSA, Okla., July 11.—Hand-to-mouth buying of jobbers in the Mid-Continent gasoline market has eased up a bit but is still worrying refiners who are putting more crude through their stills and turning out more gasoline than ever before. Rebates on gasoline in the Standard Oil company of Indiana territory is also credited with having something to do with the present dullness in the market. Retail prices have begun to break in some sections with alleged price wars the cause but market observers do not expect gasoline to lose its strength at this time and the wholesale price may be maintained. An improved crude situation appears to help this view.

Held Up Quotations.

This rand-to-mouth buying of jobbers has held up the quoting of gasoline for delivery over July and attempt by jobbers to force concessions from the present level of prices have so far been unsuccessful. Within the last few days the market has gained added strength of its own accord and it is not believed with exception of burning oils that the refined oil commodities will go to lower levels.

New navy gasoline after holding steady at 13 cents finally yielded to the slow buying of jobbers and concessions of a quarter cent brought it down to 12 3-4 cents where it should hold and later increase its value. There is some resale material which has been disposed of and the market will be stronger for this effect. This resale material is being sold in some quarters at 12 1-2 cents. The lower grade 50-58 gasoline is bringing 12 to 12 1-4 cents while the higher gravities, 68-62 and 64-44, are quoted at 13 3-4 to 14 cents and 15 to 15 1-4 cents respectively. The latter grades are holding their own but would undoubtedly be higher but for a lull in export buying of late.

Natural gasoline has eased off to 14 3-4 to 15 cents for all grades in line with the straight run product. Less of this material was used in connection with the straight motor fuel and the hand-to-mouth buying of gasoline naturally affected the large production. Natural gasolines, however, are still very firm as compared with the straight run product which has fluctuated largely in the last several weeks.

Burning Oils Sluggish.

Burning oils are sluggish, a weakening tendency being noted in kerosene which sold below 4 cents for the first time this year. The 41-43 grade which went to 3 7-8 cents a short time ago has perked up to 4 1-8 cents with 3 7-8 cents as the bottom price. Some export inquiries were noted but brought little business. The 42-44 grade is quoted as 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 cents while distillates are being sold all the way from 3 to 3 1-4 cents. The hot weather is still a big factor in retarding the sale of this product in the agricultural regions.

Fuel oils are weaker as result of some agitation to go back to coal on the part of certain railroads and industrials but on the impending renort of a coal strike the market is gathering strength. Concessions have been made in many instances for delivery over the month and the last range of prices for the 24-26 grade is 85 to 87 1-2 cents a barrel. The higher grade 28-30 oil sells for from 90 to 95 cents a barrel. Spot business is the order of the day in this product.

THREE-POUND BABY DIES

Efforts Made to Save Quanah Infant At Dallas Fail

QUANAH, July 11.—A battle for life of a mite of humanity, kept for weeks in an incubator, was lost when the infant daughter of R. E. L. P. Patillo, county agent for Hardeman, died at the baby hospital in Dallas this week. The baby weighed less than two pounds at birth, but had gained almost a pound in the two months of its life. Mrs. Patillo died when the baby was born and the tiny infant was brought back to Quanah and buried beside its mother.

Here's a Cowboy Made Oil Magnate of Oklahoma

Matt Jones shaking hands with th e County Judge of Okfuskee County after the well shown in the pictur e blew in and gave the Court Clerk much to be happy about.

OKEMAH, Okla., July 11.—The big gusher that recently came in on the farm of Matt Jones, cowboy oil magnate, and court clerk of Okfuskee county, has been shut off while the drillers attempt to shut off a big flow of water that came in after the well was flowing 4,000 barrels a day for five days.

The location which is in the southeast of the southeast of the northeast of 15-11-8, was a rank wildcat, but Holm and Jarvis, who shared interest with the Carter Oil company, commenced drilling and at one time things looked so bad that Holm and Jarvis would have sold out for $1,000.

The well came in unexpectedly when there was 300 feet of open hole, through which the water is stated to have come and all attempts to shut off failed. Acreage and royalty that was selling around the well for $50 an acre jumped over night to $400 an acre, offered but no takers.

Six rigs are up and drilling will commence on the new locations in the next few days. That the new field attracted oil men from all over the country was shown in the excitement that waged around the well for the purchase of interest in the surrounding property.

Eight other locations habe geen made and drilling will go ahead for some time, while the big oil town of Slick has commenced to move to the field in a body.

All the big oil companies are interested in the venture, while the location, which was first discounted by geologists, has now been rechecked and shows strong for a big field, extending the Cromwell pool for many miles north.

TESTS CAUSE LEASE PLAYING NEAR ALBANY

Shackleford Area Waits Outcome of Several New Wells

That general area north of Albany, Shackelford county, West Central Texas, from two to eight miles, near the Phillips Petroleum company's deep test, is receiving quite a lease play at present with a number of tests starting or planned, the goal being up to 2,200 feet.

John G. Phillips and W. D Reynolds of Bartlesville, Okla., will drill a 2,000-foot test in the center of the southeast of the southwest of section 13, TERR survey, on the Smalley farm, an 1,820 acre block having been acquired. It will spud sometime in August.

P. K. French and J. W. Lewis are reported planning a test near the center of the west half of odd shaped section 5, ETRR survey, on a block one and one-half miles southwest of the Phillips and Reynolds wildcat.

M. L. Hays of Albany is planning two wells. One in the center of the southeast of the northwest of section 58, ETRR survey, Matthews land, will go 2,200 feet.t Another in the southeast corner of the northwest of block 545, TE&LCO survey, on the Leschber lands, will go 1,000 feet. It is a 450 foot location.

Milham Exporation company No. 1 Clansell, center of the southeast of block 587, TE&LCO lands, had a 15 barrel showing at 540 feet and is drilling at 1,000 feet at present.

In this district the following showings have been reported: In the northwest of block 568, TE&LCO lands, an old well had a five-barrel show at 1,015 feet. The old Benedum-Trees test in the northwest corner of the southwest corner of the southeast of section 50, ETRR survey, is reported to have had several shallow showings.

Texhoma's test in the northwest of block 394, TE&LCO lands, had shallow showings. Another Texhoma test in the southwest of block 501, TE &LCO lands, had 10,000,000 cubic feet of gas at 775 feet.

REPORT FIRST OIL STRUCK IN WESTERN IOWA

Report Says That Well Comes in at Depth Of 1,300 Feet

OMAHA, July 11.—(AP)—A special to the Omaha Bee from Hamburg, Iowa, says:

"Oil was struck at the Iomone Oil company's Spicer well No. 1, four and a half miles north of here, at a depth of 1,300 feet, at 12:30 this morning. Within half an hour the well had flowed between 10 and 12 barrels.

This is the first time that oil has ever been struck in western Iowa so far as oil men know.

"The Iomone Oil company began drilling the well three weeks ago, with J. P. Hawkins of Wichita, Kansas, in charge.

Salt Water In Union Parish Looks Certain, Is Report

SHREVEPORT, La., July 11. — That that part of Union parish in the vicinity of the Oakland district where Palmer and Davidson and other operators drilled 18 months ago without success except for two wells estimated good for 20 barrels of oil with salt water—just enough show to make them drill another in each of a series of tests—appears certain according to reports from Farmerville, the parish seat. According to these reports, furnished by a reliable person, several persons have plans under way for tests to begin late this year, probably in November or December.

H. G. Fields, one of those interested in the project and J. J. Kean, with whom he is associated in the enterprise, are in Detroit where, according to information from Fields, they have succeeded in interesting capital for drilling additional tests in the Oakland district, provded sufficient acreage s secured from property owners.

Pirates Cling To Slender Lead By Nosing Dodgers

Ed Hughes' Column

THAT GIANT SPIRIT.

The team that whips the Giants for the National league gonfalon will have bested a band of great-heart-fighting champions, the only genuine type of leaders. This was indisputably proved in the last clash between the McGrawites and the team that is being touted to vanquish them—the Pirates of Pittsburgh.

Probably the firt game of the series best illustrates what we are driving at. Pittsburgh started at a bewildering clip. Eddie Moore and Kiki Cuyler belted young Kent Greenfield's slants for home runs in the very first inning. It looked as if the Buccaneers were well prepped to churn the Giants into a luscious hash before the thing was over. But by the end of the fifth the National league champions had gained a 5 to 3 upper hand.

However, the Pirate cutlasses rent the air again, and when the smoke of battle had lifted on the seventh inning, McKechnie's crew led by 6 to 5. This appeared to be the turning point with the worm wriggling very severely on the Giants. But the latter once more proved that they are not merely "front runners." They are never whipped 'till the last man is dispensed of.

The real climax came in the eighth, when the Giants pushed two men over the plate, lashing by sheer desperate dogged fighting quality, the Pirates to their own masthead. And when Hank O'Day waved the last man out the baffled, beaten Buccaneer was not even straining at the strings.

GIANTS REAL FIGHTERS.

Now the Pirates may win the pennant for they have a mighty capable diamond machine. More than that, it would be a good thing for the game were such a thing to transpire. The Giants have had more than their share of pennants. The Gotham monopoly of world's series is dulling even the Giant rooters' interest in the series. Most of the New York fans have had a healthy surfeit of continued victories on the part of the McGrawites.

But mere hoping for the ideal will not bring it to pass. The team, as noted above, that smashes the Giant pennant trust must be fighters every inch. McGraw is often accused of buying pennants, and not wholly without cause. But the current game of baseball is highly commercialized everywhere and every way you figure it. Other magnates spend freely, too, but they are not blessed with the same rosy results.

Say what you will of John McGraw, there is one credit you cannot withhold from him. That is his insistence on the fighting heart in his player. No man, however talented, can long hold his job on the Giants if he has a charlotte ruse where his heart should be. We could name case after case where cardiac shortcomings have bought a player return passage on the first convenient rattler out of the Pennsylvania treminal.

* * *

IT'LL TAKE REAL FIGHTERS.

Courage, resourcefulness, daring. Those are three prime elements which every Giant member must show in satisfactory style to the "Little Corporal." The eighth inning of the first game between the champion and the hopeful Pirates, aptly portrayed the player type which is the pride of McGraw. In the crucial eighth inning, with the Pirates two runs in the van, young Freddie Lindstrom was ushered in as a pinch base runner for Snyder. The first thing he did was to steal second on the unsuspecting Long Tom Sheehan. It was a classic in boldness and base stealing skill, the play really shattered the Pirate spirit and contributed most to their defeat. It is the sort of stuff with which McGraw has achieved most of his diamond successes.

* * *

Giant Players Subjected to Rigid Disciplina.

Apart from pluck and skill, there is another element which centers wholesomely in the Giant fortunes. This is the rigid disciplne which every Giant player is subjected to. Haphazard habits off the playing field are not countenanced by McGraw. Each player's whereabouts of an evening are known to the Giant leader, albeit the time he arrives at the hotel for bed. A detective agency does a good part of the "spotting" for McGraw. Hence very few "joy parties" are given by players unbeknown to the boss.

PIRATE CHANCE DOUBTED

In defeat or in victory the same stern rules are adhered to. There is no drowning humiliation in the cool depths of the beer seidel, or in the aristocratic tinkle of the tapering champagne glass, either. Which recalls a scene of a different order a few years back, when a certain team was making a lusty bid for the supremacy held by the Giants.

The teams clashed in the bidder's own back yard. After the first two games which were won in handsome style by the Giants, we happened to drop around to one of the city's "flesh pots." And there, draped about a table, were four members of the beaten team "stewed to the gills." They won one game of the four-game series, and didn't deserve that.

The writer holds no aspersion brief for the Giants, or for McGraw either for that matter. This is not written so much as an encomium as it is a reminder of what a team must aspire to, in order to shift the scene of the world's series from New York. Frankly, we'd like to see any other outfit than the Giants "cash in" this year. But we have our doubts about the Pirates turning the trick.

Corsairs Not the Fighters.

We doubt in the first place that McKechnie's men can equal the fighting spirit injected into the Giants by John McGraw.

As for pure technical skill, we doubt too, that the Pirates have it in the abundance the Giants have. McGraw is well stocked with a magnificent array of reserves. The Pirates aren't. And reserves are as necessary to a pennant winner as the regulars themselves. Carey, for instance, who is now one of the strongest factors in the Pirate position, generally slow down in the stretch. Who can adequately replace him?

* * *

If the race determines itself into an issue of fighting spirit and reserves, we find it hard to figure Pittsburgh the winner.

The Giants, dating far back into history, have been noted for their bull-dog qualities. They have become almost a tradition, perpetuating themselves with each succeeding year.

There is no monopoly on the "red badge," of course. Many other teams other than the Giants have been fighters that knew no quit.

And it is just such a team, and only such a team, that will check the Giant string of world's series participations.

PITTSBURGH IN A LATE RALLY WINS THRILLER

Brooklyn Takes Lead In Eighth With Six Run Rush But Lose

BROOKLYN, July 11.—(AP)—After staging a rally in the 8th inning that netted six runs and put them one run in front of the Pirates, Brooklyn lost in the 9th today, 7 to 6. Triples by Marnhars and Traynor and Taylor's muff of Ford's throw to the plate gave the Pirates the winning runs in the final inning. In the eighth Wheat cleared the bases with a triple and it was followed by a home run by Fournier, which put the home team in the lead. The score:

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

MORE MONKEY BUSINESS

The Bill Bryan versus the mank battle over in Tennessee hits a temporary lull today, but our excited Spudders will continue to monkey with those insistant Felines this afternoon.

* * *

It should befall Dick Morgan's lot to attempt to make monkeys out of the Panthers. Eulas, however, may be handicapped to an extent by an index irgjury received on the recent road jaunt.

* * *

In that case they make a monkey out of him.

* * *

Speaking of that monkey business, this evolution game, there may be no relationship between man and monkey, as William Jennings eloquently jammers, but we have in mind a couple of ball players right in the middle of these invirons (nope, we don't mean amongst our noble spudders) who certainly disport themselves in ape-like fashion and, appearance, and rarely display any higher degree of intelligence than the average orang-outang.

* * *

Some ball players look no better on the paths than would the average monkey, too, no doubt about that.

* * *

In mulling over this monkey situation, we ran into a thesis by one scientist who declared that man did not originate from the monkey, but that man is related to the monk, some more so than others.

* * *

After catching an eyeful of some of the human race that seems very plausible.

* * *

Advice to Ping

Annette Kellerman, the former diving queen, has now become a "climbing Venus." Annette has followed the monkey in that she has taken to clamb-aring through trees daily by way of exercising her form into its former slimness.

* * *

We suggest this process for the nymph-like Ping Bodie. If he doesn't watch his step as he gets a ltitle older the youthful Mr. Bodie may become really somewhat plump.

* * *

Would Ping look natural slipping through the branches of a tree? Or would he not?

* * *

WHAT'S DUKE'S STATUS?

Just by way of starting an argument let us ask what is Duke Trammel's status as a fighter? We can almost hear words of some in answer to this query. There's one crowd of fans who'll tell you he's about the best in the world. Another bunch'll shout acrimoniously that he's a bum, can't fight, and has had a batch of set-ups. And, of course, there's the middle man who believes the young Fort Worth scrapper pretty good and with the possibility, by diligent training and under the guidance of some good coach, of becoming a topnotcher, not necessarily a champion, though.

* * *

The point, however, which aroused the question in the writer's mind has to do with that Padgett episode of less than two weeks back when Trammel, all but obliterated the cowboy in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder. Padgett trekked on down to San Antonio and took on Tillie Kid Herman the past week. Now Tillie stacks up as one of the upper crust in the welterweight fistic society. Padgett, they said, wouldn't stand a show any more with Herman because "he had slipped back so far, and had but a few days before been knocked out by Trammel, the mere youngster of the ring."

* * *

PADGETT MURDERS TILLIE.

Padgett stepped in and beat Herman from the start. The Colorado puncher knocked Tillie out of the ring in one round, and the promoter of the card who was referee, also, gave Herman two full minutes in which to return to the hempen square and in which to recuperate to an extent from the mauling doled out by the slugging Cowboy. In a later round, Padgett all but beat Herman out. He swung a hard right to Tillie's beezer, heretofore an aquiline affair, and knuocked the poor old proboscis all crooked-like. Broke Tillie's nose. It became a bugging match after that. Herman refused to take the count, and wily ring general that he is, he clinched and stalled his way through the remainder of the 12-round affair. Incidentally, Padgett poked Tillie through the ropes again before the fight was finished, however.

* * *

Padgett really had Herman out in that earlier round when Shelton, the promoter-referee, let him rest, according to the story carried by a San Antonio scribe.

* * *

Now just how does Dukum rate. He almost kills Padgett, and a few days after the massacre Padgett stomps all over Herman. Maybe the Fort Worth kid is underestimated in this section, huh?

* * *

White's Chances.

However, we wouldn't be a bit surprised to see Tommy White gain a decision over Trammel in their ten-rounder here Thursday night. Trammel, in our opinion, if he ever hits White very cleanly will win. But White is faster and pretty shifty, and he's a stiff infighter. Any good ring bug will tell you that an infighter, if he stays in there and pitched more than likely will best Duke.

TILDEN BEATS JONES

Tilden, II of Philadelphia easily defeated Arnold Jones of Providence and Yale, 6-2, 6-3 and 6-4 in the finals of the tennis championship this afternoon. Tilden thereby gains permanent possession of the Agawam championship silver cup, this being his third winning of it.

HOME RUNS DISASTROUS FOR CHAMPIONS IN FIRST, KNOCK OUT TANNERS IN AFTERMATH

Koney Poles Pair, Palmer Two, Sutherland, Davis, Turgeon and Williams One Each

Jacob Atz's Panthers assaulted the Spudder citadel Saturday and being repulsed in the first attack by a 7-6 score, came back with gusto for a second drive on Skipper Tanner's throwing corps, and grabbed a seven-stanza aftermath, 9 to 4.

Robert Osborn, the El Paso hurler, weathered a gale of base blows in the opening engagement and bested Ralph Head and Jimmy Walkup by the narrowest of margins. Ed Konetchy, to date the home run king of the Texas league, poled his twenty-seventh four-bagger. Pete Turgeon and Carl Williams found runners on the paths when they hit for the circuit and thereby hinges the greater portion of the yarn about how our noble pastimers stopped the famous Felines in the first set-to.

Atz used Wachtel and Pate on the hillock in the nightcap. The Cats roasted Wheeler and forced Tanner to send in Sutherland. Again extra base swats took their toll. Eddie Palmer slammed a couple of homers. Davis put one over the fence, and Koney clipped his twenty-eighth. Sutherland bruised a non-stopper, but the runways were unpopulated.

The final game of the series is billed for this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Spuds Three At Start

Bob held 'em off in the first frame of that opening embroglio, and our proud Tanner athletes busted right back at Ralph Head, the starboarder for a trio of golden scoring nuggets. The gang certainly got off on the right foot, and it was none other than the bombastic mite who produced the necessary punch, a larruping swat far over the port center barriers near the green boards.

Cal grounded out to pitcher, but Gorgeous George combed a two-cushioner to center. Our Carlos fanned. Ping drew a four-ball donation, and then Wee Peter Turgeon did his stuff, that mighty hoist to the nether regions back of the left center boards.

The gang menaced mildly in the third, but accomplished nothing more than to throw Jakie into temporary Hysteria. Freddy Dorman led away with a double down the third base line that traveled on out to the left field wall. Query sacrificed him to third. But Bob bounded out to short with no advance, and Eddie Palmer knocked down a hair-raising smash by Callaghan and cut our southpaw port gardner away at first.

Cats Four in Third

The Stockyard brigade proved itself the veritable nuisance in the third that it has been all along to seven other Texas league pennant hopes for going on six years now. The Atz outfit roughed up Robert for a quartet of markers, and the wise boys in the grandstand slumped back and began weeping. Buddy, according to the other managers, had guessed wrong again. Robert got reckless and walked little Wayne Windle. Then Doc Smith penked a one-baser to center. Head oozed one down first base way, and was tagged out by Golvin. Both Windle and Smith advanced. Stormy Davis drew a first base coupon. Then Mullen, the original Moon, made himself very unpleasant by injecting a bingle to center to tabulate Windle and Smith. Sears busted one at the box. Bob jerked off a bit of lofty acrobatics, did a jackknife and wound up on his tummy. But he chuhked Ziggy out at first. Davis held third. Palmer singled through the box to send Davis and Mullen over. Edington rolled out to Turge.

Carl Homers

But the noble Tannermen were not inconvenienced in the slightest; no, not by nary's particle, for they immediately rumbled back and took the edge on the encounter before the third frame was out. Head made the mistake of accidentally walking Distel and then pitching to Williams. Carlos caught hold of one solidly, and the sphereoid when last seen was flitting through the sparse Johnson grass growths away out in the jungle territory northeast of the Spudder plant. Head disappeared from the scene, and James Walkup, the eccentric southpaw (just as if all southpaws weren't eccentric), inherited the flinging whores. Bodie introduced James with a swishing swipe to starboard out to second. Bodie taking third. Dorman slipped another down the third base boundary for a single, and Pingus checked at the paying counter. Query bent out a single at third, and Osborn aviated to right. Wichita Falls had again assumed the lead, tagging onto a 6-4 enumeration.

Both clubs were well-behaved until the seventh although there was a feline insinuation in the fourth when Cowtowners got two on with one away, but Bob held the plate invisiate. Spudders threatened in the sixth when Callaghan led away with a double and went to third on infield out by Distel, but Cal was trapped between third and home when Williams followed with a blow to Palmer.

Koney Ties It Up

She was knotted up in the seventh because Robert let Sears single just before Koney lofted one over the left field fence. It was the big fellow's twenty-seventh non-stop slam.

The gang got over in the ninth to sew her up without giving the Cats another chance to comeback at 'em. Williams started out with a single to left. He advanced to second when Walkup walked Bodie, and kept on galloping until he arrived at the platter when Golvin grounded to Palmer who mussed up the play.

Cats Get Jump in Second

The Cats got a two-run jump right at the start in the second game. Davis led off against Wheeler with an explosive wallop over the center field boundary for non-stop passage. Mullen was kayoed at the plate, but Sears hit one to third and went to second when Dorman uncorked a jungle heave at first. Konetchy and Palmer walked. Edington flied out to center. Sears scoring after the catch. Windle rocketed to Williams in right.

The Spudders tabulated one in the second. After there was one away, Turgeon blasted a triple to right. He scored on sacrifice aviation to port by Golvin. Dorman slapped a single to center, his fifth consecutive safety, but Jonnard went out to the infield.

The Cats hunched up and clawed Ripper from the promontory in the third, incidentally scoring three more. Sears was given a pass. Then Konetchy wafted number 28 far to port. Ripper retreated in haste, and Southerland clambored atop the sacrificial altar. Edward Palmer, the Cats' kid keystoner, didn't give Suds a chance to get started, but stepped into one for duplicate of Koney's circuit hoist, Edington walked, and Windle forced him at second, Dorman to Turgeon. Williams romped over and back to make a highbrow catch of mighty maul to center by Possum Moore.

Carl Shows Punch

The Spudders drew up to within swinging distance of the enemy during the latter portion of the third. Sutherland walked. Then Callaghan singled to left, putting Suds to second. Distel struck out, but on his third poke Suds absconded with third and Cal took second. Williams followed with a sacrifice swat to the mid sector, scoring both runners. Bodie singled Carl to third, but he was held to the hot corner when Turgeon hoisted out to Edington in right. Wachtel got two balls and two strikes on Golvin, and then Atz produced the hook, sending Pate to the rubber. Joseph finished passing Walt, and Dorman rolled out to short.

Just couldn't keep 'em away. Furious Felines counted a couple in the fourth. Mullen opened with a single to left. Sears struck out, and on the third Sears'-swing, Mullen went after second. Jonnard chased him back with a bullet chunk to Distel who pegged to Golvin at first, cutting Moon down. Then Konetchy walked, and the Palmer boy poled his second homer, another clout over the pot palisade. Edington went out, pitcher to first.

Suds Hits One Over

The Spudders scored one in the fourth. Sutherland hit himself a round tripper with the runways empty.

The gang threatened to count again in the fifth but failed to connect. Bodie led away with a double, and went to third on single by Turgeon. Pete then stole the keystone. That was all, for Golvni lined a blisterer to Windle, who snared the pill, and beat Turge back to second for a double killing. Dorman rocketed out to center.

Cats made it 8 to 4 in the sixth. Davis clipped a two-baser to right and came in on single by Mullen. Edington doubled to center in the seventh. He went to third on sacrifice bunt by Windle, and scored on fly to right by Moore. The Spudders didn't indicate in the last half of the inning.

Lamar's home run, following Cochrane's single, gave the Athletics two of their three runs. Cochrane's triple and Simmons' double gave the other. New York Winner Over Chicago, 5-3

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—A rainstorm which broke at the first of the ninth inning today ended the first game of the series between Chicago and New York in favor of the visitors, 5 to 3. Home runs by Ruth and Meusel cinched the game for the Yankees. It was Ruth's eighth four-bagger of the season and came in the sixth inning with two men on base. Mensel's drive was his 21st homer of the season and came in the seventh. Covenagros was the victim each time. Sheely also scored a circuit drive.

They Play Leader in Crucial Game Today

The American Refiners, tied for the top position in the first half of the Twilight league race, but defeated in the play-off game by Texhomas, are making a powerful bid for second half honors and subsequently another play-off with Texhomas for the league championship.

The Americans are holding down second place in the race at present, having won three and lost one game. Hugh Cotner's Security Nationals are leading the league with a quartet of victories and no losses. These two teams are scheduled to clash this afternoon on the Twilight diamond at 3 o'clock in what stacks up as one of the most crucial contests of the season.

The Sunday school leaguers schedule for the week will call for but one game, Monday, First Methodist are slated to play the Floral Heights Methodist nine. The Heights clubs has dropped from the league, thus the First Methodist will draw a forfeiture. The Presbyterian-Baptist tilt scheduled for Wednesday has been moved up, and already played. Friday the Grace Methodist and First Christians hook up to battle for second place honors.

* * *

Fats Mathis, former Ludlam and Riggs first sacker, and declared the best in the Twilight league by Bubs Mosley, should prove a strong asset to the Security Nationals in their drive for the pennant. Fats joined the bankers just recently.

* * *

Courtney, Security manager, with the aid of Hugh Cotner, business manager and league treasurer, has built up what appears to be the strongest club in the Twilight league. They all want to get with a winner, and the Bankers are leading the league, so playing material is flocking in almost every day. One of the recent newcomers is Lloyd Taylor, First Presbyterian infielder in the Sunday School league.

JIMMY FANS 66

Jimmy Parker, Sunday School league strikeout king, has run his total up to 66 whiff-whiffs in 38 innings work.

COURTNEY TELLS ONE

In the Security National bank lobby higher moguls of the Twilight league gathered to play over games of the past. The first to come up with a story was Lee Courtney himself. Lee told a tale of a nifty trick of base stealing he pulled recently in Archer City. With arunner on third base and none out Lee came to to the plate. O'Dell McDuffy was pitching for the opposing side, and decided to pass Courtney. Lee was given four wide one and he trotted down to first base. Paying no furneed to Courtney the fielders turned their attentions to the next man. Courtney increased his speed as he reached first and without stopping at the bag he set out for second, and made it safely.

* * *

Choc Thompson was the next one to be brought up in the conference between the lobby gathering. Again it was Lee Courtney that came to the front with a story of How Choc and broken up a ball game off one of his slants. The Texhoma star came up with the bags loaded. Courtney managed to get two strikes on him and then the catcher signaled for a curve ball. Lee had his mind set on a smoker, but decided the catcher was older and had more experience to back him, so Lee came through with a perfect curve over the outside corner. Thompson stepped into the ball and laced a hot single to left that counted the tying and winnings runs.

* * *

Gabe Harris and Riley Rawls then brought back to their memory a ball game played three years ago in the Sunday School loop. Riley was on third base for the South Methodists, and Gabe was pitching. A man was on first when a single went to center. The center fielder threw the ball to second, but his peg went wild and passed the catcher. Gabe backed up the maskman and hooked up the ball. The runner made a try to reach third but Gabe cut one loose for third that Swung Riley completely around, but the man was tagged and the game saved.

* * *

Len Takes Kink Out.

Len Smith stopped for a moment with the boys and dropped a hint on how he worked a kink out of his arm last year. Len is fearing retirement this year from a bad throwing arm. Last year Len came up with a bad arm before taking a run up to Medicine park. Len claims he slowly worked out the soreness by throwing stones at the scampering lizards about the park.

* * *

Blame It on Atz.

Somebody accuses Gerad Boone of watching Jakie Atz play too much baseball. In the game last Wednesday with the Grace Methodists, the First Methodist skipper was at the bat three times, laid down three sacrifice bunts, thus receiving no official times at bat.

* * *

Gabe Rattles Slugger.

Gabe Harris came through with a story of a game when he outguessed a heavy hitter who was doing most of the slugging off Gabe that day. The batter came up with the bases full in the ninth after hitting Gabe on three previous trials. With the count two and two on him Gabe stepped off the rubber, stepped back on. The batter stepped into the box and began to swing his wagon tongue. Gabe stepped off the slab again and began to rub some dirt on the ball. The game was being played on a big rodeo day in a small town. Several hundred fans were attending the game, and at the stall on Gabe's part they began to holw for him to pitch. Steping back on the mound he faced the nervous batter The latter had waited so long for Gabe that he had grown impatient and swung without results at the next pitch.

* * *

That Catch of Powel's.

Courtney came in with a lot of praise for Ben Powell, Ludlam and Riggs player, on a catch of a ball in Vernon several years ago. A husky slugger hooped one of Courtney's slants that was labeled home run. Powell raced back and charging the fence with his shoulder he took the drive just as it was about to go over the palings.

* * *

Gabe Harris gives Sid Stanfield a lot of credit for his winning games. Gabe says that one can pitch the whole game to Sid, throwing what the little fellow calls for and be a winning pitcher. Sid is a heady player and a good receiver, who is good at outguessing the batter.

Cincinnati Takes Braves for Two

BOSTON, July 11.—(AP)—Behind heavy batting Cincinnati took a double header from the Boston Braves today. Donohue twirled the opener which the Reds took 11 to 5. Rixey officiated in the second encounter. The score was 5 to 1. Caveney, Cincinnati shortstop, turned in the fielding gem of the day when he made a bare-handed catch of O'Neil's line drive in the second inning.

Caractus, 30 to 1 Shot, Runs Away From Field In Chicago Derby

DARKEST OF DARK HORSES CLIPS RECORD

King Nadi Races Second With Silver Fox Behind

CHICAGO, JULY 11.—The darkest of dark horses, Caractus, a 30 to 1 shot in the betting, raced to victory by a neck in the $20,000 Chicago derby at Hawthorne today, leaving a crowd of 30,000 to 35,000 spectators gasping in excitement at the startling upset.

King Nadi thundered across the wire in second place, two lengths ahead of Silver Fox, owned by Harry F. Sinclair, one of two highly played favorites. Rothemel finished five lengths ahead of Kentucky Cardinal Dangerous, Gifford A. Cochran's also heavily played, was sixth, four lengths ahead of Butti-in, while Arbitration, with the famed Earl Sande, America's premier jockey astride, his back finished eighth, two lengths ahead of Mark Master, in last place.

Caractus, owned by C. W. Reidinger of Lexington, Ky., was admirably ridden by Jockey Harry Thomas, traveling a mile and a quarter route in 2:04 flat, clipping a fifth of a second off the track record for the distance established by In Memoriam two years ago.

Then it Rained.

A few seconds after the last cheer of victory had echoed through the stands, a downpour of rain swept the course, drenching thousands of sweltering spectators to the skin, parallelling the finish of the Kentucky derby last May. The victory of Caractus was unexpected, as he was absolutely overlooked in the betting. The son of Great Britain—Orsen, leaped into the lead at the quarter and remained there until the finish after Silver Fox had set the early pace. There was a shifting of places right along among the horses following Caractus and generally the race looked like a wild scramble for second and third places.

Wild Scramble.

Silver Fox, leading when the parade passed the stands the first time, faded to second when the quarter was reached and the ultimate winner went into the lead. Mark Master, destined to finish a dismal last, was third when the quarter and half were checked off, but at the three-quarter Sande had moved Arbitration into second with Silver Fox third.

Coming around the turn into the stretch, Sande startled the spectators by slipping Arbitration up nearer to flying Caractus, but it was a daying effort of the fast tiring Arbitration, when the dust of the finish had settled Sande and his mount were completely out of it.

King Nadi, without a jockey until just before the race started, dubbed along in sixth and seventh place for most of the route, moving up to fourth place in the stretch, shooting ahead of Silver Fox for second place.

King Nadi Handicapped.

Jockey L. Shaefer was pressed into service to ride King Nadi just before the start and after Harry Stutts had failed to appear.

The price on King Nadi to place was 8 to 5, while the odds on Silver Fox to show were one to four.

Sande came here last year for the day and had the leg upon Larkin, from the Belmont stables but today he ran in similar luck trailing the winner. Black Gold and Gibbon led the field a year ago.

Caractus, while neglected in the betting, has run some remarkable races this year, at eastern and Kentucky tracks.

His last race was at Latonia, where he ran fourth to Broadway Jones, King Nadi and Progress, making a rather disappointing showing. This led him to be neglected in making odds today.

DePaoli and Not Bob McDonough Wins Auto Race

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP).—Peter De Paoli, Italian racer, was declared the winner after a re-check tonight of the 250-mile inaugural automobile race today at the New Baltimore-Washington speedway.

Bob McDonough, 25-year-old protege of Tommy Milton, who was first announced as winner, was found to have finished second, almost a lap behind De Paolo.

In the absence of an official statement, it is indicated that the timing devices had failed to record a lap for De Paolo. The re-check was conducted by race offici als under the supervision of Fred J. Wagner, representing the A. A. A., who promised to issue a statement later.

Veteran Murphy Tops AA Hillers

The pace in the American association proved too swift for Tyson, Louisville's slugger, and he has given way to the veteran, Eddie Murphy of Columbus. Murphy gained eight points during the week, going from sixth place to the top with .378. Zinn of Kansas City, in only 36 games, is trailing Murphy with .375, while Lebourveau, also of the Blues, is traveling at a .373 clip for 44 games. Bunny Brief of the Brewers, who was tied with Tyson a week ago, is batting .372 with Guyon of the Colonels next with .371.

Guyn has been one of the busiest athletes in the circuit. Among his accomplishments was passing Ballenger, a teammate, for the honors of scoring. Guyon has registered 87 times, two more than his buddy. He also banged out five doubles, a triple and a homer.

Reb Russell of Columbus increased his home run total to 18 by cracking out one four-bagger, while Brief poled two and is trailing the Columbus fence buster with seventeen.

Floyd Wheeler, Financial Wizard, In City On Business and Pleasure

LEAD SOCIETY PAGE.

Mr. Floyd Wheeler, known by some of his more plebian friends as "Rip," the famous right-handed flinger who resumed his connections with the Wichita Falls baseball association the past week while the team was on a road trip, has returned to Wichita Falls.

Mr. Wheeler expects to be in the city for a fortnight or so on business.

It will be recalled that newspapers carried stories to the effect that Mr. Wheeler has been absent from Wichita Falls business and social circles for the past several weeks, attending litigation of an estate in Kentucky. Incidentally, Mr. Wheeler realized as the outgrowth of a lengthy legal battle the tidy sum of $90,000.

The great pitcher, seeking recreation and rest in a manner from his business affairs, participated in a baseball game at Dallas shortly after returning to his Wichita Falls associates. The popular financial wizard and athlete defeated the Dallas team, 3 to 2, and while doing so afforded a number of interesting sidelights on the foibles and idiesyncrasies of the wealthy man, and of the ordinary type of ball player, also.

Mr. Wheeler in conversation with Sniper Conley, a man far below Mr. Wheeler's social stratum, for Conley is nothing more than an ordinary baseball team manager, he having charge of the Dallas team, afforded more than one choice insight to the character of the two men.

Horace McCoy, who himself is nothing more than a low sports writer connected with a Dallas newspaper, recounts the details of that engagement and that conversation. McCoy's article follows:

Mr. Ripper Wheeler, the Wichita Falls, right-hand pitching star, just back from a legal fight in his home state, where he got about $90,000 out of a relative's estate, and Mr. Conley met at cross paths at the stadium yesterday before the first game of the series.

"I suppose," remarked Conley, "I should congratulate you."

"Congratulate me?"

"Sure, didn't you fall heir to a fortune?"

"Nothing," Wheeler replied "nothing. A trifle." He made an effort to appear unconcerned.

"Nothing?" replied Mr. Conley, "ninety thousand nothing? Why should'a man work when he has all that money? It looks like you couldn't pitch knowing you were gonna eat regardless."

"It does look that way," admitted the visitor, as he turned and continued confidingly, "but that is the time I go best. When I am nonchalant and don't care."

He Can Duck.

Conley grunted. "You get nonchalant out there this afternoon and see what happens. Can you duck?"

"Better than anybody, but don't worry. Any club Paul Wachtel bents, I can beat. And don't forget it."

Wheeler abruptly went to the bull pen, Mr. Conley returned to his own bench.

"Boys," he declared, solemnly "this Wheeler tramp is going for them toughies today. The other day he fell heir to a fortune and I got a hunch he's too careless to win a game. So everybody bear down early and let's get a lead for Shuman."

And it was instantly agreed that Shuman would need one. True enough, Mr. Wheeler went in there to work for the visitors and for several innings it looked like he was going to win a ball game, but the Steers got ambitious and made another run in the eighth, which tied the score.

So the visitors went into the ninth with the score tied and the dangerous end of the Wichita Falls artillery up. Now Shuman had been getting along right well, eliminating the passes, and the customers settled back for an extra inning ball game. It certainly looked that way for here strode Mr. Wheeler to open the ninth. He previously had got a two-base hit and that is his allotment for the season.

He dug in and swung his bat awkwardly. "Yah, yah" berated Conley, "here's where you get yours."

Bang!

Somehow Mr. Wheeler got his bat arcund and singled and this started the explosion. It ended suddenly when the usually impeccable Mr Gross kicked Howard Fitzgerald's easy roller and George Distel scored from second base with what eventually proved to be the winning run.

Extends Invitation.

But in the ninth, our athletes came out fighting. Mr. Conley was on the base line demanding what Mr. Wheeler would do with the fortune and Teddy Kearn's high fly fell safe in center field for a single. Mr. Segrist tried to sacrifice but Walter Golvin made a fine play from first base and grabbed the foul tip.

With Mr. Billings up there, Mr. Conley continued the verbal fire at Mr. Wheeler and Mr. Billings stepped out of his box to give some sort of a signal. He was exceptionally careful, for in the last few games our signals have been delivered wrong or received wrong or been short circuited. At any rate something has happened.

Mr. Wheeler stepped back on the rubber with Mr. Billings out of the box and Mr. Conley chattered. Suddenly he ran toward the plate.

"Balk! Balk!" he screamed.

Umpire Estill's mind was open and he waved Kearns to second while the Wichita Falls players argued strenuously Conley grinned. "Here you go," he chanted, "here you go."

Mr. Billings popped out to shortstop and Mr. Brown, hitting for the pitcher, fouled out to third.

"Some time," same Mr. Wheeler to Mr. Conley, after the game, "you come up to Wichita Falls and I'll ride you in my limousine. You talked that umpire into a balk, but it didn't do any good. You come up some time and associate with a wealthy man."

All-American Grid Honors in Store For Texas Athlete

AUSTIN, July 11.—(AP)—All-American football honors are in store for Mortimer Sprague of Dallas, all-Southwest conference tackle of Texas university in 1924, in the opinion of E. J. Stewart, head coach of football at Texas university, and the man who is given much credit for Sprague's development. Sprague recently left Dallas for the United States Military Academy at West Point. His appointment was obtained by Earle Mayfield of Austin United States Senator, who is an ardent gridiron fan.

"Sprague was the most valuable football player in the southwest conference last fall," said Coach stewart. "He made his presence felt in every game, and was respected by the coaches and player of every team in the conference. I wish he was going to be eligible for competition at Texas university in 1925. He was just beginning ot come into his own when the season closed last fall. Weighing about 210 pounds, very powerful, and the acme of gameness, Sprague makes the ideal football player."

One of the most noticeable features of Sprague's play is his speed. Despite his bulk, he is faster than the average backfield performer. His going down under punts last season was one of the outstanding features of the play of Coach Stewart's men.

At West Point, Sprague will be eligible for three more years of competition. He played three years for the Longhorns, graduating at 20.

Sprague also won recognition by his work on the Texas university track team: last spring at College Station he set a new southwest conference record in the shot put, tossing the iron ball nearly 45 feet.

ADVANCE IN OIL PRICE.

FINDLAY, Ohio, July 11.—The Ohio Oil company today announced an increase in prices of six grades of central west crude oil of ten cents a barrel. The new prices are: Lima $2.33, Indiana $2.13; Illinois $2.12 Princeton $2.12, Plymouth $1.56, and Wooster $2.35.

Yale-Harvard Track Athletes Defeat Britons

Americans But Slight Edge On Oxford-Cambridge Squad

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 11.—(AP).—The combined Yale and Harvard track team defeated the Oxford-Cambridge outfit in an international track and field meet at Soldiers' Field today, 7 1-2 to 4 1-2. Under the English system of scoring only first places count, but in the event these are evenly divided the point system reverted to second places. The teams divided first places in today's meet, each winning six out of the 12 events, but the Americans had a decided edge in second place victories, winning seven outright and splitting with their opponents in another, while the invaders could do no better than win four second outrights.

Under the American system of scoring on a 5-3-1 point basis, the American athletes had a margin of their English rivals, scoring 61 points to 41 for the Oxford-Cambridge athletes. Of the 61 points scored by the combined Yale and Harvard team, Yale atheletes accounted for 36 points and Harvard 25. The meet, the seventh international contests in which Oxford and Cambridge have combined against American teams, brought out three records and two others were equaled.

In winning the pole vault, Sabin Carr of Yale shattered the meet record of 12 feet with a vault of 13 feet.

L. L. Robb of Harvard topped the sticks in the 220 yard hurdles in 25 seconds, 1-5 of a second better than the meet record established by T. Huhn of Oxford in 1922.

But the outstanding individual feature of the meet proved to be an English runner, Lowe of Cambridge, the only double winner of the meet. Lowe won the half mile in the record-breaking time of 1:53 2-5, and then gave his team an even break on first place in the final event, winning the mile in 4:21, two-fifths of a second slower than the record for this event.

Lord Burgsley of Cambridge, a member of the ancient house of Cecil, won the 120-yard hurdle event handily in 15 3-5 seconds.

Momentous Tilt Billed This Morn At Amateur Park

The Spudders are billed with the Cats this afternoon at Athletic park and Security Nationals hook up with the American Refiners in a very important Twilight league game as far as bearing on the league standing is concerned, but a contest which is expected to eclipse both of these tilts is slated for this morning at 8 o'clock on the Twilight diamond, weather permitting.

Two might ball aggregations representing the mechanical departments of the Daily Times and the Record News, after weeks of practice of the most grueling (-) sort, and after having worked throughout last night at their various tasks in putting out the two papers, are to clash this morning in mortal combat. (Please, Mr. Jupiter Pluvius, don't let it be too muddy for this titanic struggle to be enacted).

The team rosters as given the Record News sport editor are:

The Record News—Moore, the pressman, catcher; Vanderigrift, the sterotyper, first base; Giles, the something or other, second base; Nesbitt, shortstop; Thorne, third base; Berry, center field; Putnam, just another one of those sterotypers (the big bums), left field; Thompson, the linotype king, right field (they ought not to let him on the diamond); Wooten, the ad. alley representative, utility; Brown and H. Nesbitt, more utilities; and Spencer, the southpaw pressman, pitcher.

ANOTHER TAX DISPUTE

Administration and Congress At Odds on Reduction Method's

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—Another controversy between the administration and congress on the method of tax reduction is impending.

As was the case last year when the Mellon plan was returned, surtaxes will constitute the principal fighting point, with the inheritance taxes as a new element in the disagreement.

The Music House of Service

For sixteen years we have been serving music lovers of Wichita Falls. From a meager beginning to one of the largest retail music dealers in Northwest Texas is the growth of this institution. Not at any time have we resorted to any scheme of misrepresentation or tried to entice the public to thinking that they are getting two dollar valuation for the price of one. We handle only high grade standard instruments that are backed by reputable manufacturers known all over the world. It is only by fair means and honest dealings that encourages the growth of any organization. We attribute this to our present estimation of the people of this community. We are always glad to render the very best service possible and offer nothing but high grade, standard merchandise at a fair margin of profit, and we look back on the years' business relations with pleasure. We hope to maintain the same high standard degree of confidence in the future as in the past.

Among the leading musical instruments carried in stock at all times, we are glad to say, need no explanation, they are known and we will back their satisfactory service by our own reputation.

BRYAN

In a statement this afternoon, William Jennings Bryan suggested that if a law like that which furnishes the issues in the case were passed in New York and witnesses from Tennessee proposed to offer testimony their presence on the witness stand would arouse objection.

The statement given out yesterday by Attorney General Stewart represents the views of the counsel of the state, Mr. Bryan said. "The trial is a bonifide case in which the state is enforcing a law serious in its purpose.

Will Appeal It.

The case will be tried according to the rule of evidence with the possibility of appeal to higher courts. If improper evidence is offered by the defnse, objection will be made to it, and I doubt that the defense will object to any testimony offered by the prosecution if he thinks that testimony improper.

"Attorney General Stewart has pointed out that the statute which is being enforced, is perfectly clear and free from ambiguity.

"It forbids the teaching of doctrine that denies the truth of the Bible records of man's creation, and that there may be no mistaking of the law, it interprets the language used by specifying that the objectionable things is the doctrine that man is a descendant of some lower form of life.

"There is no doubt that evolution asserts man's descent from some lower form of life and no scientific specialist could change the law or its meaning, no matter who these specialists might be or how many there might be.

"If the people of Tennessee have a right to pass laws for the protection of religon of their children, then they have a right to determine for themselves what they consider injurious and dangerous to their children. No specialists from the outside are required to inform the parents of Tennessee as to what is harmful. The testimony of such experts therefore is not only incompetent, but offensive.

Tennessee vs. New York.

"If a law like this were passed in New York and witnesses were called from Tennessee to assure to the people of New York that they were unduly alarmed and that there was nothing to fear, their testimony would be objected to as offensive as well as improper.

If it would be absurd for Tennessee experts to advise the people of New York and Illinois as to what is helpful or harmful, why is it not absurd to call experts from New York and Illinois to challenge the right of the people of Tennessee to legislate as they please and according to their own sense of responsibility and their own judgment as to what is harmful and what is objectionable from a Bible standpoint."

The array of representatifre for Scopes' legal interests picnicked with newspaper men in the faternoon, joining a boatride down the Tennessee river in which the Chattanooga News was host to the visiting reporters.

Members of prosecution counsel motored to a mountain resort near Dayton in the late afternoon.

Mr. Bryan has two engagements tomorrow, the first to teach a Bible class at Sunday school in the Methodist Episcopal church, south. In the afternoon he will conduct a union service in which all the Dayton churches are joining, speaking from the band stand in the yard of the court house.

Members of the jury, evidently faithfuly observed Judge Raulston's instructions to avoid assemblies, meetings or services where any discussion of the case might take pace. Ten of the 12 who will decide the case live in the country and they were at home.

RAINS

was not visited and at Gainesville it was not even cloudy.

From the Fort Worth and Denver came information of the rain at Electra and a good shower at Vernon. It was raining steadily over most of the county at 10 o'clock and indications were it would continue. A partly overcast sky was the nearest approach to a shower Bowie and points southeast toward Fort Worth and Dallas received, the Denver said.

It was threatening all along the Wichita Valley lines, running southwest, but at 9:30 no rain had falleh. Seymour had barely a trace and Haskell had none at all, it was reported.

No rain fell along the territory penetrated by the Wichita Falls and Southern, although a severe dust storm swept southeast as far as Graham. Olney telephone operator, also, sent word last night of a cloudy sky, high winds and a bad dust storm.

Light Rain at Charley.

Out to the northeast, the telephone operator at Charley reported a very light and short rain, with strong winds and a lowering sky. No rain to speak of had fallen at 9:30 however. Waurika, Okla., had the wind and a partly cloudy sky but no rain. it was learned from the telephone office there. No dust storm was reported.

Wichita Falls caught a driving downpour just at 7:30 and although it subsided quickly, heavy black clouds and lightning flashes north and east of the city presaged more rain to come. The weather man failed to live up to predictions and at a late hour last night it was still menacing—nothing more. The storm here announced its coming some 30 minutes or more before it struck. The sky to the north and east was painted a deep purple against which a sandy blanket looked like a yellow veil.

It was almost a typical norther and when the wind struck the drop in temperature was immediately noticeable. The dust, while severe, was of brief duration and the big rain drops spattered down in a short time.

If the storm was as severe as early reports last night indicate, it will be of tremendous benefit to crops in this section of the state, according to Guy R. Jones, county agricultural agent.

"A rain of an inch in Wichita county will be of immense value," Mr. Jones declared. "Cotton was beginning to need moisture badly and last night's showers will help greatly."

Weather predictions for Sunday were for continued warm and generally fair.

San Antonio.

SAN ANTONIO, July 11.—Heavy rains Saturday afternoon broke the drouth in widely separated sections of San Antonio trade territory. The precipitation amounted to four inches at Pearsall, in Frio county, two inches at Gardendale, La Salle county, in the winter garden district. Light showers fell in San Antonio.

Pearsall reported at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon that it had rained four inches there and was still raining. The precipitation will be of inestimable value to crops and grass on the catte ranges. Millet and Von Ormy reported one inch each, Bracken three-fourths inch and Lythe one-fourth inch.

Rain at Kerrville.

Kerrville received one-fourth of an inch this afternoon, coming on top of a one-fourth inch rain Friday. Reports that an inch fell in the southern part of Kerr county and that it got heavier near Bandera.

Kenedy reported rain falling late today, with indications good for a continuation. San Marcos had only light showers but there, as generally throughout the San Antonio section, indications were reported good for a downpour during Saturday night.

Lockhart reported the "heaviest rain in four months," having fallen Friday night and Saturday morning.

Heavy at Cuero.

Cuero reported a two inch rain in the Stratton community the first precipitation of any consequence in more than a year. Good rains in De Witt county were also reported at Thomaston, Fordtran and between Edgar and Yoakum.

Gonzales reported local showers falling in that section Friday afternoon.

Showers Break.

CHICAGO, Juy 11.—(AP)—Local showers late today brought slight relief from the heat wave which embraced practically all sections of the country east of the rockies and which caused several deaths and prostrations in the middel west.

In Chicago, where the mercury jumped three degrees in half an hour, a maximum of 93 was reached at 4 o'clock. Lower temperatures followed a storm here.

Des Moines sweltered at 100 degrees and reported one death. At Minneapolis a temperatur of 80 caused two prostrations. St. Louis and Kansas City thermometer recorded 94 degrees.

250 Dogs Training For Wheeler Trials

WHEELER, Tex., July 11.—Two hundred and fifty dogs are now in this section for training in preparation for the second annual trials of the Tri-State Field Trials association, which will open August 10, on the large game preserve six miles north of Wheeler.

Trainers, handlers and owners of field trial dogs from all sections of the United States are here for the big event. The races will be run over a territory of more than 150,000 acres abounding in prairie chicken and quail. There has been no hunting on this land within the past year and a splendid crop of chickens is coming on. There appears to be nearly twice as many birds as were found last year which is due to the protection given the game and the ideal conditions during the breeding and hatching season.

Training camps have been established in Collinsworth, Gray, Roberts, Hamphill, Lipscomb and Wheeler counties.

HUNT KNAPP ON ISLAND

Authorities Plan Rigorous Search For Alleged Slayer.

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 11.—(AP)—Authorities searching for Philip Knapp who is alleged to have killed Louis Pinella, Hempstead taxi cab driver for the "thrill" said tonight they would seek for him on Wesley Island, in the Thousand Islands, following on the receipt of information that he had formerly spent some time there.

A warant charging Knapp, who is a member of a prominent Syracuse family, with the murder of Penella, was issued today by Justice of Peace Jones at Hempstead. Knapp is believed to have planned to assume Pinella's identity after the murder and to have fled up-state.

Contractor Speaker At Realty Luncheon

W. H. Allen, building contractor of Wichita Falls, was the principal speaker yesterday noon before the Ad club luncheon. Mr. Allen went briefly into the different steps to be considered in building a home and gave some interesting facts on local building.

The first thing to be considered in building a home is an architect, according to the contractor. "An architect will insure against shoddy building and will give that indefinable something called style.

"Because ground cracks in hot weather, and Wichita Falls weather especially, re-enforced concrete should be used for foundations. Another point in favor of such foundations is that plastering is impractical without re-enforced concrete beneath the house.

"It has been found that wooden shingles are also impracticable in this climate. Roofing should be of slate, tile or asbestos shingles."

Mr. Allen stressed the necessity of carefully investigating the construction of a house before buying it. Often it turns out that the house one buys is a liability instead of a home. He expressed the conviction that a 50-foot lot is a nuisance for home sites. He stated a lot should be at least 75x145 feet, otherwise it "is a stall you live in, instead of a home."

The bungalow was condemned for Wichita Falls, the contractor stating that the houses are too hot for comfort and are merely a fad, that in time will die out. He advocated the English type of one and one-half story homes. The duplex also was criticised, Mr. Allen expressing the belief that there were too many of them in this city and that within a short time owners will find them a drug on the market.

Wichita County Club Girls End Their Annual Demonstration Camp

President of Women's Congress In Texas Urges Parent-Teacher Clubs to Enter 100% Child Drive

Wednesday is Last Day For Clubs to Enter State Contest

WEDNESDAY, July 15, is the last day in which Parent-Teacher associations can register for entrance in the $500 prize campaign in which each association will strive to enter 100 per cent perfect children in the first grade in September. The nearness of the date causes Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, state president of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association, to fear that Texas clubs will not have the time to call a meeting of their local Parent-Teacher association and get in their registrations before that time. Some clubs have registered already and Mrs. Haddocks, in the following message to affiliated clubs, urges others to enlist as she earnestly desires Texas to make a real effort in so constructive and worth-while an endeavor. She says:

Have Good Campaigns.

"Parent-Teacher associations in Texas, as well as all over the nation have been directed to one of the most constructive campaigns that has ever been sponsored by the congress, this 'Summer Round Up of the Children,' which our national President, Mrs. A. H. Reeves, conceived and suggested for the 1925 summer work of the associations and which the editor of the Delineator, Mrs. Maloney, regarded as so worthwhile that she has provided $500 in prizes for this year and next. Mrs. Reeve had nothing to offer in the way of a material reward, but felt that the work would bring its own reward, and that when the campaign was over the clubs that had undertaken it would realize that they had begun to do the thing that should be done in every grade and for all children.

"When the fact is generally known that 21 per cent of the total annual mortality in the United States is that of children under the age of five years, and of this appalling proportion, 70 per cent die from preventable causes, the organized parents of Texas will rouse themselves and will say with the national president, 'These children shall have their rights of life and health and happiness, instead of the injustice which gives them disease and death.'

"This then is the beginning of a great crusade to save our children from preventable diseases and death, to save the state and our school systems some of the expense of ungraded rooms for under privileged children, for with proper care the under privileged child, while never entirely absent from our school population while present methods and lack of knowledge of eugenics prevail, the under privileged child, will be vanishing instead of increasing. Is not this campaign then, a challenge that cannot be ignored by any thoughtful, intelligent group of parents? Do you hear the question: 'I am making my child one hundred per cent perfect for school; have you looked yours over?'

Prizes Incentive.

Prizes are great incentives. $250, $150, $100, can be used by every Parent-Teacher association in Texas for the good of the children of Texas. But what about presenting to your state and nation 100 per cent perfect children who will grow up into the kind of men and women that the world needs, well rounded, with the ideal of service and the physical health to live up to it?

"So let every Parent-Teacher association in Texas register for this work and keep the records clear. Every association carrying through the campaign will receive a 'Blue Ribbon' certificate from the national congress and will be listed in the report of the committee, with the percentage secured by it.

"Here are some general suggestions or campaign notes that may prove helpful to Parent-Teacher associations who do not know exactly how to begin such a campaign; First of all register, giving state membership, type of school (city, town or rural); president's address; total number of pupils enrolled 1924-1925; approximate number of children expected to enter first grade in 1925. (These two last points can be secured from the superintendent or principal). Other suggestions are:

Call a meeting of your association at once.

Appoint captains for each section of your school district.

Captains should appoint lieutenants if the districts are large, in order to secure the preliminary information as rapidly as possible.

Secure the active interest of men and women members of the association, local doctors, health nurses, hospital clinics, so that the health tests may be completed and accurate.

Arouse your whole community to show their real interest in your school by taking part in this campaign as a matter of civic pride. Blue Ribbons are awarded to dogs and cats and horses and hogs—and even, in some progressive communities, to children, who test high in health and general condition.

Why not blue ribbons for parents "Let us in Texas 'Carry on.'"

MRS. C. E. CRADDOCK, President. Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations.

Social Season In London Has Been A Most Strenuous One

LONDON, July 11.—(AP)—London social season now nearing its close has been the most strenuous since 1913. Although old England complains daily of the dolorous plight of its trade and that unemployment gets worse instead of better each week, money has been lavished upon entertainments in Mayfair at Ascot and other society rendezvous upon a sumptuous scale not rivalled even in days when there was no doubt about London being the center of the world's wealth.

Some of the most expensive entertainments during this social season, however, have been paid for by a little group of American hostesses who have set up establishments in Mayfair, seeking new worlds to conquer. Another factor making the 1925season a memorable one has been the unusually large number of wealthy Britons with debutnate daughters on their hands. These debs and the dowagers who entertain them will get little rest until July 22 when the season closes with a garden party at Buckingham palace to which 6,000 persons will have invitations.

When they have finished with this final social duty to their subjects and several score of alien guests King George and Queen Mary will take their vacation. They will spend the rest of the summer at Windsor, probably going on to Scotland in the early autumn so that the king can do a little grouse shooting which is his favorite sport.

Many visitors from lands where society comes to full flower in the winter time wonder why, except for the atrocious winter climate, London has its season in summer. A tradition is being carried on that had a good reason behind it a century or so ago. Society then was chiefly composed of the old country families as they were called, and since the squire of the manor could not pull himself from the joys of hunting the fox through the autumn and winter, he usually selected the summer time to give his family their longed for and much talked of stay in London.

At that time parliament contained many sires and sons of for the same reason—the members did not let politics interfere with their sport, so the whole family came to London and the summer social season is the result.

More Assistants Needed in Mass Play Efforts Now Being Directed In Wichita Falls, Say Officials

Much progress is being made in the playground work here in Wichita Falls. The groups have been growing with such rapidity that many more assistants are needed. It has even been reported that the work will have to be discontinued unless helpers are available. For those who have not ever done any of this kind of work before, and also to refresh and cultivate new ideas in the minds of experienced workers, an instruction course in playground work is given at the First Presbyterian church every Monday and Friday mornings at 11 o'clock, under the direction of C. C. Frazee and William J. Spreen, director of religious education at the First Christian church.

Something New.

Any girl over 15 years of age who would like to avail herself of the opportunity of learning this most interesting phase of community work may attend the meetings. There is no expense attached in any way. This is something new in Wichita Falls, but all over the country in the larger cities it has proven so successful that there is a big demand for young women with experience in original playground work. Therefore it will be profitable to the individual, and also to the playground groups, for any assistance offered, and attendance at the instruction meetings.

This work has been in progress for three weeks, and the nine parks that were opened with from four to ten children now require two women to handle them. Every Thursday morning the Day Nursery children join the children at Sixth street park for the hour and a half of play. Last Thursday there were 65 children present with Mrs. J. S. Pitman, assisted by Fay Goss. A regular program was carried out, opened by a sing song. Many of the children, when asked, sing alone, and much talent is shown. Response in all of the activities is prompt, and their attention undivided. A baseball team was organized which will play the team of one of the other parks next week. All games are carefully chosen and are played with the purpose of teaching the children grace, poise, generosity, and above all love for his fellow.

Acts Out Fairy Stories.

One of the favorite pastimes of the children is the actual acting out of fairy stories. An interesting example of this is the portrayal of Goldie Locks and the three bears. A big boy takes the part of the father bear, a girl the mother bear, a younger boy the baby bear, and a little girl for Goldie Locks. They take great pleasure in acting out each scene minutely, as to the drinking of the soup, the grunting of the bears, and their every action.

The following request was made by the supervisors of the playground work, "Bring your little ones to the parks every week, and you busy mothers who would like to have your little ones taken care of while you get your morning's work done, or shop may feel certain that the best of care will be taken of them and they will enjoy immensely acting out Little Red-Riding Hood, and other stories. Let us have them from 8:30 to 10 at any of the following parks: Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, Grant street, Roma McCarty in charge, 22nd and Bluff, Claudean McCarty, Buchanan, Marion Goss and Herma Ponds. Sixth street, May Goss, and Monday, Wednesday and Fridays, Belleview, Mrs. C. O. Nickell, Monroe, Kathrene Douglass, Marshall and Elizabeth, Thelma Bridges and Robbie Kemp, and Scotland, Mrs. J. S. Pitman.

Iowa Park Camp Scene of Lively Study Activity

Electra Takes off Big Portion of Contest Honors

EVEN more successful than the encampment of the year before was the Wichita County Girls' club educational encampment at Coleman Pecan Grove, three-quarters of a mile southwest of Iowa Park, July 8, 9 and 10. Representatives at the camp were Juanita Howell, Loraine Lwis, Virgie West, Lois Howell, Reba Lewis, Burkburnett; Blanche Claer, Janice Bright, Ilsa Cothran, Cordia Ousts, Ruth Bright, Gertrude Claer, Charlsie Bright, Agnes Claer, Iowa Park; Eva Purcell, Hilda Davis, Glenn Givens, Evie Swanson, Ruby Palmer, Erma Langford, Wilmina Harris, Margaret Kueckelhan, Hunter Kueckelhan, India Kueckelham, Electra; and Mary Beth Robinson, Edra Robinson, Teresa Rambo, Ada Rambo, Merle Trigg, Wichita Falls. Chaperones for the camp were Misses Ruth Wallace, Electra; Lola Haynes, Electra; Mima Stringer, Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and Ethel Louise Webb, county demonstration agent. The training and instruction was under the supervision of Miss Webb.

New Songs Learned.

In the first recreation period of the camp Wednesday afternoon, Miss Ivo Wilson, field secretary of the Y. W. C. A. here, did instructive and helpful work. New songs were learned and friendship was established among all of the girls. Smiling faces were predominant after the singing of "It Isn't Any Trouble Just to Smile," continuing on to l-a-u-g-h, g-r-i-n and ha-ha-he-he-ho. Other songs of such nature were sung that proved a great help in getting the girls to relax and have a good time. Contests of various kinds brought on lessons. After a race of two sides against each other with bean bags upon their heads, the winning side gave a yell, "2 4 6 8, Whom Do We Appreciate? The losers, the losers, the losers." As the losers were lax to respond that yell was followed by "Sick, who's sick? The losers, the losers, the losers." This caused an immediate response of "15" for the winners. In this manner sportmanship and good will were established. After rooster fights and wrestling a swim was necessary so all of the girls abandoned the camp for a nearby swimming pool, situated in the park.

The afternoon of the first day also marked the decision of the judges in the annual bread contest. Miss Webb, in her visits to the different camps in the county, instructed them in dressmaking, home improvement and cooking. At each encampment the girls bring biscuits, lightbread and dresses to be entered in the contest. In the bread contest, Ruby Palmer ranked at first place for the best biscuits, and Evie Swanson second. Both of these contestants are of the Barwise club. For lightbread, Glenn Givens of the Enterprise club held highest honors, and Ruby Palmer of Barwise next. The prizes were a Pyrex biscuit and bread pan for first places.

The camp girls were entertained Wednesday night by the Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scouts of Iowa raPk. Games were played and refreshments of lemonade, ice cream and cake were served. The Camp Fire Girls offered an interesting program and made the guests feel perfectly at home.

Besides the daily pep meetings, policing of the camp and swimming, Thursday held as the big events, the dress contest, a lecture on home improvement by Miss Webb, a talk by Miss Johnnie R. Morgan, a teacher in the junior here, instructions in tinting tieing and dyeing, and a moving picture show at night.

Dress Contest Winners.

Winners in the dress contest were: For gingham, Evie Swanson, Barwise club, first; Ida Broesch, Enterprise club, second; for voile, India Kueckelman, Barwise, first; and Evie Swanson Barwise, second. The prize for the first place in each is a trip to A. & M. college, escorted by Miss Webb, July 27 to August 1.

Miss Morgan in her talk on "Opportunities for Club Girls," gave helpful and constructive suggestions. She brought out the value of the individual and then the group. Civic pride, always connected with club work, was also impressed upon the minds of the listeners. In conclusion was the thought passed down from his grandmother and used by Edward Bok, "Make the world more beautiful because of your presence in it."

Reviving again the lost art of mixing dyes, formerly used by the Indian, Miss Webb gave illustrations and instructions in tinting, using five baths in the tinting of a scarf, using the colors yellow and orange. Actual dyeing was also done, and a lecture given on home dyeing pertaining to economy in the home. If carefully done, and the dyes used correctly, the impression was made that old clothes could be made new by this practice.

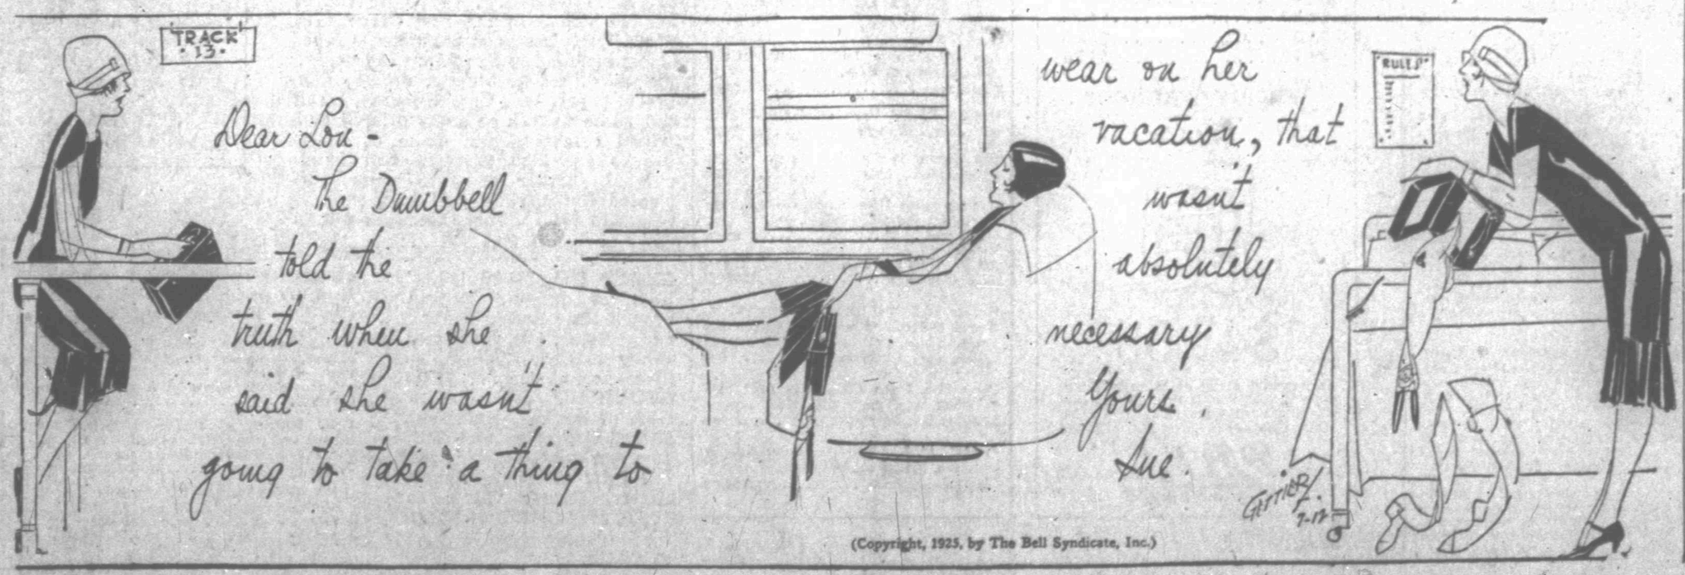

Another education lecture given during the day was that of home improvement by Miss Webb. Showing illustrations of homes that had been barren and then the decided improvement and added attraction made by the planting of flowers and shrubbery and careful care of the yard. The interior of the house was also discussed as to the furniture, rugs, pictures, wall paper, arrangement of different rooms and ventilation, sunlight and other requirements from the health standpoint.

Thursday night the camp girls entertained the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls by a free moving picture show at the Iowa Park theater. The picture was one donated by the Olympic theater of Wichita Falls, "The Little Wanderer."

Friday morning was entirely passed with recreation. After the morning swim, a treasure hunt took place. Several groups were formed and each started out upon a blazed trail in quest of the pot of gold, which turned out to be plums and quickly devoured. The morning pep meeting was followed by a watermelon feast, a treat from

PLAN A NAVIGATION SCHOOL

DUBLIN, June 11.—(AP)—A conference of shipowners, brokers and others interested, has decided to establish a school of navigation. The private school which hitherto met this need has been closed since last February. In addition to the training of seamen and ship's officers in the subjects necessary to qualify them for certificates as masters and mates, the new school is expected to provide instruction for fishermen desiring certificates as skippers and second hands, and for boys desiring to follow a sea career.

BIZZELL AND HIS NEW FIELD

Oklahoma is said to be the stepdaughter of Texas. Thousands of Texans invaded Oklahoma when Oklahoma was a territory in the long ago. They made homes when what is known as the state of Oklahoma was the Indian Territory and the Territory of Oklahoma.

These Texans were builders of a new empire. They fought for statehood and statehood won. They held many of the highest offices, including seats in the lower house of congress and the senate of the United States. They have ever been in evidence in making the laws of Oklahoma and in the development of the vast resources of the young commonwealth.

It is fitting that a Texan should be called to the presidency of the State University of Oklahoma. It is fitting that recognition should be given to Texas and Texans by these former sons and daughters of the Lone Star State.

Dr. Bizzell is a widely known Texan. As an educator his fame is not confined to Texas. It is nationwide. He is a product of Texas schools. For many years he has been the head of institutions of higher learning supported by the taxpayers of the commonwealth. He was the second president of the College of Industrial Arts, the state college for women, and the second of its kind in the world.

Even his critics admit that his service at the head of this college was of the highest order to the people. He was called from the College of Industria Arts to the presidency of the Agricutural and Mechanical College and for fourteen years he has made history as the head of this most admirable institution which ranks today among the foremost of its kind in America.

He was tendered the presidency of the University of Oklahoma by the regents of that institution, a high honor in its self, which carries with it a salary far above the one he had received and a new field of endeavor for the expansion of his ideals backed by long years of experience as an educator and administrator and a rich experience gained in all the years he has been recognized as one of the foremost school men of his state.

There is no reason why he should have remained in Texas. Texas lawmakers and Texas governors do not appear to be willing to pay living salaries to the heads of their institutionc of higher learning. They do not appear to be willing to pay legitimate salaries to the men and women trained for faculty work in the leading colleges and universities of America.

It is a high honor to be president of the University of Oklahoma. There the people and the lawmakers appear to be willing to pay for the services of educators of high rank and here in Texas the lawmakers and the people must be willing to pay higher salaries or else the colleges and universities of other states are going to drain this commonwealth of the men and women who excell as instructors and are recognized for educational and administrative ability in the ranks of the noblest of all the professions of mankind.

THE INTELLECTUALS ATTACK BORAH

A small roster of great names is presented in a letter attacking Senator Borah for his stand on the world court proposal. The weight of the signatures of a elect few is practically the only merit of this document. An argument so crassly utilitarian is advanced that it is not worth while to analyze it. The world court is upheld as a going concern, which it distinctly is not a fact, and the United States is invited to join under penalty of staying out of any kind of peace tribunal. Obviously there is no merit in contentions of this sort. But there is real grief in the plaint utterd by Professor Irving Fisher of Yale—which is quoted as the keynot of the "round robin" of protest from our intellectuals—that opponents of the world court "are moving heaven and earth to defeat it by the old device of proposing an impossible substitute."

Senator Borah may be trying to accomplish the impossible, but he is going about it in a most logical fashion. He demands the outlawing of war as a preliminary to other steps. The would follow the development of international law as a body of principles and the formation of a judicial tribunal to apply them. There is nothing intrinsically wrong with such a proceeding. It is impossible to carry it through to its concluson amply because the world neither needs nor can have a governing constitution and an authoritative court. But to assail Senator Borah for this reason is to impugn the sincerity of purpose behind the drive for our country's entry into an international court.

If we are to enter a peace tribunal actually able to enforce its decisions, it should be a tribunal clothed with real but limited powers, and one provided with a constitution to be interpreted and applied. If we are not to have a tribunal of this kind we should have no authoritative world court at all. Yet again, if there is little more than aspiration toward peace in the proposal for our adherence to the world court, that aspiration should be given proper enlargement, not suffered to perish by being too closely confined to an immediately attainable object under the presently imperfect machinery for the settlement of international disputes.

To those who grasp the aspiration only, Senator Borah's outlawing of war seems vastly more worthy as a goal to strive for than our country's entrance into the world court. President Coolidge himself has endorse the senator's propostion by frequently mentioning it in his speeches as something which the nations are disposed to progressively accept as their guiding ideal. The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, at their last annual convention called upon all countires to outlaw war in specific terms, thus adding international acclaim to the national approval pronounced by the president of the United States. Borah's boom is well on its way, and it will take more than vain protests to check it.

Texas railroads pay increased taxes, according to a Washington correspondence. Why brag about it? All the people are doing it in most of the states. Then why not the railroads.

BLAMING RUSSIA FOR EVERYTHING

Hasty commentators who look for particular causes to account for complicated situations see in the supposed efficiency of Soviet propaganda a ready explanation of the popular disturbances, factional conflicts and open warfare now prevailing in various parts of the world. In their view, the complete answer to every kind of trouble is "Russian influence." They declare Soviet Russia responsibe for the anti-foreign movement in China. Blame for the war in Morocco between the Riffians and the French is also held at her door. There has not been time to explain the Greek military revolt as a products of Russian influence, and perhaps, hasty generalizers will pause here, as it is well known that military leaders are not inclined to be communists. Yet the triumphant faction in Greece is said to be ultra-republican. That fact alone may start airy speculation.

The Soviets are not at all displeased at their supposed universal culpability. On the contrary they are gratified by the suspicion everywhere cast upon them. No higher distinction is sought by them than to be reckoned the troublers of the world. If they have not wholly deserved this honor, they are al the more eager to claim it and revel in their own ill-report. It is the ambition of the Soviets to be "evil thought of" which gives confirmation to the light opinions of superficia observers.

But reason shoud hesitate to accord the "reds" the power which they covet. It is hardy believable that, with all their ability to make mischief, they can call forth revolution where no cause for revolution exists or create wars where there is no reason for strife. No doubt they have aided in promoting disorder and conflict in many parts of the world, but it is equally certain that their trouble-making power has been greatly exaggerated. For example, it does not appear that the Soviets have done much to foster the Riff war in France, since trouble in Morocco dates back to 1921 when the Spaniards were engaged in the task of pacifying the Riffians. Having measurably disposed of one foe, the Riffs have turned on another. What Morocco has had to do with it no commentator, however suspicious of the "reds," has yet been able to explain.

The Soviet accomplishment in China is just as doubtful. There the native population has been for a ong time smarting under the exactions of foreigners who have enjoyed great privileges. A labor dispute has resulted in intense anti-foreign feeling, which has been responsible for depredations and outrages. The Soviets as usual have lent their ev influence and aggravated the situation. Having been outlawed from the family of nations, Russia has constituted herself the foster parent of every child of violence and disorder. But she has been able to do no more than any other nation might have done in her place. Indeed, any other first rank country might have done more, for Russia at present is poor, in spite of the stories we hear of great Soviet funds used for bribery. These agitators in other countries, leaders of factions and military commanders, who have been willing to accept her assistance, have said much against our "capitalistic civilization," but t is not to be supposed that they know what they are saying. Like the Soviet leaders themselves, they have been poor and without resources, and so have inveigled against the security and plenty of those who have not renounced the obligations of civilization.

THE PRESIDENT'S STARTLING REASSURANCE.

At last President Coolidge has given the parties to the latest proposed European pact for national security the reassurance which they have awaited from this country. But his method of stating that the United States will respect the special agreements entered into by the nations of the old world was a little extraordinary and the effect somewhat startling. Even European statesmen, who care only to know that the United States will give a tacit consent to their arrangements without being a party to them, must be at a loss to make out just what the president meant and what he did not mean.

Speaking at Cambridge, Mass., on the 150th anniversary of Washington's assumption of the command of the continental army, President Coolidge tacked on to an utterly unrelated discours the following general assertions respecting a particular situation in Europe: "If the people of the old world are mutually distrustful of each other, let them enter into mutual covenants for their mutual security, and when such covenants have been made let them be solemnly observed no matter what the sacrifice. If there be differences which cannot be adjusted at the moment, if there be conditions which cannot be foreseen, let them be resolved in the future by method of arbitration and by forms of judicial determination.

"While our own country should refrain from making political commitments where it does not have political interests, such covenants would always have the moral support of our government, and could not fail to have the commendation of the public opinion of the world. ..... On what other basis can there be any encouragement for a disposition to attempt to finance a revival of Europe? The world has tried war with force and has utterly failed. The only hope of success lies in peace with justice. No other principle conforms to the teaching of Washington; no other standard is worthy of the spirit of America; no other course makes so much promise for the regeneration of the world."

These stirring words seem calculated to create the impression that the United States not only respect the agreements entered into by European powers but positively urge the making of such agreements. This country is placed in the attitude of warmly advocating the very kind of alliances which it has always taken great care to avoid.

The president's statement that our interest alone holds us back from entering an arrangement which we so highly recommend to others must seem either selfish or insincere, and his attempt to make George Washington out a preacher of alliances by using the very arguments in their support which Washington advanced against them strains reason and propriety to the breaking point. What Mr. Coolidge was really discussing was the good faith of nations. But what this has to do with special agreements between distrustful powers it is difficult to discover.

ANOTHER TAX SUIT

Now the agents of the government are after Dehoney again. They say he owes the government almost $1,200,000 in back taxes growing out of one of his many oil transactions. All the members of the Dehoney family are made parties in the suit. Is Dehoney to be the goat? Or is Senator Burton K. Wheeler and his client to be made the goats? The California oil king should engage a new battery of lawyers. Those who have been representing him have failed him.

SOME CITIES OVERBUILD.

A recent report announces the steady progress of American cities in overcoming the building shortage left by the world war. Sixty-seven of the 225 cities reported overbuilding in some form. A remaining shortage of dwellings was reported by 32 per cent of the cities, a shortage of apartments by 29 per cent and a shortage of business structures by 23 per cent. There is going to be a temporary building slump in the near future in some two or three of the large cities of Texas.

"My Kingdom for a Horse," But Ring Prefers a Bicycle. Catlett Pulls Joke on Some Kiddies —By Ring Lardner

To the editor:

This week they was a big argument around the neighborhood broughten about by the parents of a young male boy wondering should they get him a horse or a bicycle for a birthday present, those being the 2 articles which he had expressed a desire for and they could not afford to give him both. They enquired amongst all the parents nearby of which they seems to be a great number and the opinions was split about even, most of the mothers declaring in favor of the horse and most of the fathers choosing the bicycle, which proves what I have always contended namely that girls will be girls.

The arguments put forth by the horse fanciers was in substance as follows:

1—That a horse gets attached to you and vice versa, whereas wile you may learn to love a bicycle the last named don't never reciprocate.

2—A horse lasts a whole lot longer than a bicycle.

3—A horse is a pet wile a bicycle is just a mechanical toy.

4—You don't half to carry a tool box with a horse and they don't never have tire trouble.

5—You can show a horse at a horse show and maybe gets a blue ribbon.

Bicycle vs. Horse.

In opposition to these arguments some of we male parents give evidence in rebuttal as follows:

1. You don't half to show a bicycle at a horse show and you can buy a blue ribbon at pretty near any notion store for 3 cents a yard.

2. If you like your boy, why you may as well know that the motorists who infest these parts seems to have no compunctions vs. running into a horse whereas the instance they see anybody on a bicycle they promptly slow down to practically nothing.

3. You can get a great bicycle for $40.00 dollars; but if you buy a $40 horse onlookers is going to begin talking about you.

4. Bicycles come all ready named, whereas you half to pick out a name for a horse and sometimes it all but racks your brains and then look at the results. Like for instants a well known cartoonist friend of mine called Bud Fisher or something got hold of a horse and thought and thought and in the final analysis as they say, he named the horse Swope.

5. Now in regards to keeping a bicycle. My own kiddies has a couple of them and on rainy nights they keep them in what I jokingly call my office and when they want to use them, they take them out, without putting no harness on them or curring them or nothing. And during the time they are in there they don't never disturb me at what the critics refer to as my work.

Do you think I could work in the same office as a horse? All the time I would be saying to myself I can't work like a horse so why work at all? But I would always know that I can work as good as a bicycle because they's genally always something wrong with them, either they creak or they are rusty just like their room mate.

Walter Meant Well, Anyway.

6. On the other hand if you have got a horse you half to find room for him in a stable and personly the only place we could room a horse would be in the next stable to our cow and how do you know that a horse and cow is going to get along under the same roof? Whereas I never met a cow that couldn't remain for years on friendly terms with a bicycle.

7. Finely I have never met a horse that did not holler murder if he was kept without food or gin for 2 days at the outside, wile on the other hand I have set in my office with the bicycles all winter long and the only noise in the room was me beating away on a typewriter.

That is the gist of the argument and I would like to hear expressions whether from partisans or neutrals in regards t owhat they think of the proposition as it has become very important in our little community and maybe one of you boys or girls could advance a thesis that would put the finishing touches on the argument.

Mean wile I forgot to tell you last week another sad incidence in the life of Walter Catlett the comedian. One day he thought he would be awfully nice to his own kiddies and several of the neighbors children, so he invited them all out to a baseball game and as a comedian would, he neglected to look up the schedule and when Walter and his young visitors arrived at the Polo Grounds, they found they was no game scheduled for that day. You can imagine how tickled the kiddies was and now they have got a greater opinion than ever of Walter as a comedian.

You can show a horse at a horse show and maybe get a blue ribbon.

The only place he could room a horse would be in the next stable to our cow. ... ...

Potash and Perlmutter Discuss Heat As Temperament and Not Temperature —By Montague Glass

"Yes, Mawruss, it's always the people which are complaining when the heat in their offices or homes goes below eighty-four degrees in the winter time, y'understand, that get overcome by the heat when it reaches eighty-four degrees on the street in the summer time," Abe Potash observed the other day, "seemingly the only kind of heat which they could stand, is heat which costs a landlord fifteen dollars a ton."

"I suppose your idea is that it overcomes them when they see that the thermometer is registering eighty-four degrees without anybody getting stuck o'a coal bill for it," Morris Perlmutter suggested.

"Well, it's my idea that more people get heat-struck by looking at thermometers than by standing in the sun, Mawruss," Abe retorted, "which whenever it comes a hot spell like we had lately, Mawruss, you read in the papers a list of Hot Weather Dont's by a Public Health Commissioner whose principal medical qualification is that for many years he could deliver the entire democratic vote of the Sixteenth ward without losing a single ballot. Now these here Hot Weather Don'ts tell the public what not to do, from not eating pork and beans during the hot weather down to not wearing fur lined overcoats and heavy woolen underwear, but so far as not looking at thermometers is concerned, y'understand, you would think that either thermometers had never been invented at all, or that Public Health Commissioners sold them as a side-line."

"You mean to say that people which are overcome by the heat, generally get tipped off by looking at a thermometer?" Morris inquired. "Or do you believe that if there hadn't been a thermometer handy to consult in advance, y'understand, instead of getting sun-struck they would have had a chill?"

"What I mean is," Abe explained; "that to a feller in the raincoat business, sixty-five degrees without a cloud in the sky seems terribly hot, whereas to a feller in the palm beach and tropical clothing business, Mawruss, ninety-eight degrees ain't a bit too warm. But on the other hand, there is people in neither business which ain't going to suffer or benefit by the heat, no matter how warm it gets, y'understand, and to my way of thinking, these people are what you might call thermometer hounds. They take an interest in the heat for its own sake, and when they see that by the thermometer, it's ninety-five degrees, they get overcome by temperament and not by temperature."

"Well, at that there is a whole lot worse things about the summer heat than just getting hot," Morris remarked. "There is for instance going away to the country to escape the heat, which there is many a summer hotel and boarding house I stayed at, Abe, where I never sat down to what the proprietor considered to be meals without thinking that I wished I was back in the city getting sunstruck."

Dreams Prove Nightmares.

"Say! For that matter you can stay right here in the city and suffer terribly from the effects of the heat and fine summer night when the thermometer stands at only seventy degrees," Abe declared, "because, Mawruss, one of the worst effects of the heat in New York City is that people play the piano and sing with their windows open. Only last night I was nearly overcome by having to listen for two hours to the big song hit from Yes, Yes, Babette coming from practically every apartment on our block, and this effect of the heat, Mawruss, is going to last just so long as it is hot enough to keep such musicians from closing their windows."

"But that won't be until pretty near Christmas, Abe," Morris said, "on account it's my experience that nobody can stand as much fresh air as ladies who are taking vocal lessons. In fact you would think that if a soprano practiced her scales with the windows closed, she would become a basso or something. Other musical educations which require open windows and neighbors to worry, are violin and piano playing, Abe, which I have no doubt that there is plenty of people in Harlem and Washington Heights who have gone to the country for the summer as much to escape The Meditation from Thais as the humidity, y'understand."

"Well, as far as I personally am concerned, Mawruss, I don't mind so much all these amateur effects of the heat in the city as the professional results of the heat in the way of summer light operas and revues," Abe said. "Only last week I seen and heard probably one of the worst effects of the heat I ever looked at or listened to for three dollars and a half an orchestra seat. This here effect of the heat was called The Dregs of 1925, and it had in it a couple of comedians, Mawruss, which to my mind was the equivalence of ninety-nine degrees in the shade and one hundred per cent humidity. Furthermore, Mawruss, there was times when the music and the way it was sung, made the audience suffer a whole lot worse than if they would have been journeymen bakers working in a basement on the hottest night in August, and the theayter wasn't no warmer than ten degrees hotter than the street neither, even though the advertising did say that the management had installed a new refrigerating system, for cooling off the audience."

No Happy Medium.

"It's a wonder to me, Abe," Morris remarked, "that they don't build apartment houses with cooling-off systems too."

"If they did, Mawruss, Abe said, "the chances is the tenants would get so hot arguing with the janitor because the refrigeration wasn't working right, y'understand, that they might just as well go and take a Turkish bath and be done with it. And if the refrigeration was working right, y'understand, then it would be necessary to shut the windows so as to keep the cold in and the heat out, which some people may prefer cold stale air to hot fresh air, Mawruss, but not me. Furthermore, Mawruss, if I could take a nap in the front parlor on a hot midsummer afternoon, the worst that could happen to me now is that Rosie would call me down for ruining the sofa cushions with perspiration, but that is anyhow better than waking up to find that all my toes is frost bitten, and that I couldn't collect on my accident insurance because I wept to sleep without turning off the refrigeration."

"And anyhow, Mawruss, cheap refrigeration has done enough to make hot summers worse than they used to be," Abe continued. "When I was a young feller all you had to be proof against during a hot summer was the heat, but nowadays, you've got also to be able to stand chocolate nut sundaes, vanilla ice cream with powdered walnuts and raspberry sauce and frozen orange juice drink made out of practically everything in the drug store where the soda fountain does business—except oranges; and one way or another, Mawruss, one of the worst effects of the heat in summer comes from ice."

"But I thought you said that anybody could stand practically anything in summer time," Morris protested, "if he didn't look at the thermometer."

"So I did, and Ill stand by it, Mawruss," Abe concluded, "because to my way of thinking, Mawruss, heat is something to feel and not to look at."

"One of the worst effects of the heat in New York City is that people play and sing with their window s wide open.'

Plumbers' Bills; A Dissenting Cat; Running Wild —By Ed. Howe

H. L. Mencken refers to Ralph Waldo Emerson as senile. This is purely unfair, impolite abuse. No other American has written so well as Emerson. I do not like Emerson's type of man; I do not like the "school" to which he bplonged, but when it comes to literary matters (and Mr. Mencken is speaking of literary matters in his criticism) Emerson is our brightest star.

I am a great admirer of Mark Twain, but Emerson will live longer. He had tremendous wit, but devoted a paragraph to it, instead of a page, as Twain did.

The master writer of our day is Bernard Shaw, the Englishman. Shaw has not written as many epigrams that will live as may be credited to Emerson. Ascar Wilde was a famous writer of epigrams and freely took advantage of the scandalous and sensational. Emerson was more canable than Wilde, and clean in his life and writing.

Mr. Mencken's unjust references to Emerson is to deny the New England contention that Emerson was as great as Nietzsche. So far as talent is concerned, the two men were much alike; the marked difference between Emerson and Nietzsche is that one was a gentleman, and the other was not. I know of no "great thought" accepted by Nietzsche that Emerson did not express in a cleaner way, and without loss of power or wit.

So far as I am a student of any writer. I am a student of Nietzsche. I admire his great ability as a writer; his tremendous intelligence and information; his naturalness, which many call meanness. But I do not recall an absolutely new idea he expressed.

The work of both Nietzsche and Emerson was mainly defense of the work of men who had written long before.

And that is precisely what our best men are doing now; the controversy today is the controversy of decades and centuries ago. There has been nothing new in controversy in hundreds of years.

I have just received a book fresh from the press. It is a new discussion of an old subject. Another will appear tomorrow to oppose it.

Men like John Fiske and Dr. Holmes were captains, lieutenants; Emerson, Nitzsche, Spencer, were generals. But none of them wrote anything new.

Evolution wasn't new with Darwin: he merely elaborated an idea as old as mankind that the world and man came from natural causes. Darwin was merely the more capable investigator, and made out so good a case for the old contention that he acheived fame.

Confucius was an evolutionist, and Jesus Christ made a stir with an argument on the other side.

The Bible satisfies one school of men, and they defend it. The men of another trend of thought do not like the Bible, and tear it to pieces.

"There is nothing new under the sun," said an old observer.

Long before this man wrote, was the fact that there is nothing new under the sun.

I hope H. L. Mencken, a corporal in the literary war, does not imagne he says anything new. He is merely defending some old ideas, and abusing some others. The old leaders said nothing new; certainly their disciples have not.

In literature, we often hear of "style." That's all there is to literature. As a man has it, or lacks it, he is genius or dullard, but neither of them have new ideas.

The people everywheer have done reasonably well. The progress of the world attests the fact. But leaders of one kind and another—kings, presidents, cabinet ministers, governors, legislators, county commissioners, mayors, councilmen, school directors, township trustees — have blundered inexcusably. The main issue today is taxes, which have become so heavy as to threaten industry itself.

In looking over a recent outline of history, I noted that revolution, after revolution is attributed to intolerable taxation; it wasn't always loss of political or religious liberty that drove the people to desperation, rioting and destruction, but frequently taxation.

And in human history, taxes have not been as excessive, unreasonable and inexcusable as they are now.

The failure of statesmanship is the big question we have to contend with; if this naturally rich country is finally cursed with revolution, the responsibility will be with leaders who have dishonored the trust reposed in them.

Everything from which we suffer today is a good idea overloaded.

If an individual overloads himself, the penalty is personal; but if public men overload a good idea, we all pay the penalty.

Leaders complain that the generality of people have no sense. It is the business of the real leaders to teach the people better sense, by example. This they have failed to do.

I do not know Inez Haynes Irwin, but I am informed that she took "an outstanding part in the battle of enfranchisement of women." ..... But lately she is battling for the enfranchisement of men; she declares that women, the former slaves, have become masters, and are using the whip too freely. "Considering the life of the average American husband," says Mrs. Irwin, "the wonder is not that he marries later, but that he ever marries at all."

People always fuss about plumbers' bills. And there's a reason.....But I do not know what the reason is; plumbers are usually poor. Is the explanation that plumbers loaf on the job, and are incapable workmen when at work? And does this explanation explain in other cases?" We have many workmen who are poor, and who charge tremendous prices. Are our workmen so interested in getting big wages that they neglect good and fair work?

Gout is caused by heavy liquor drinking; rheumatism by heavy eating of rich food. There isn't much difference between gout and rheumatism....I visited lately in a small town, and was given an enormous dinner. It damaged me more than would a drunk in a big town....Sin in a small town runs more to eating than to drinking; country town saints have rheumatism as generally as big-town sinners have gout.

We have been trying for centuries to get rid of flies, but so far as I can see, flies are as numerous as ever, and as regularly find their way into every ointment.

The time I should devote to reading I devote to going through books, magazines and newspapers looking for something to read that which will benefit and interest me.

It is natural for a man to hustle for his food as it is for him to hustle for his share of lady company; there is as much food naturally provided, and it is as easily acquired, as lady company.

I saw a sentiment the other day that interested men "The selfishness of leaders, and the shiftlessness of followers."....If a banker is held up at the point of a pistol (as is being done a good deal lately) can it be said bankers are shiftless? All men pay enormous taxes, half of it unnecessary. Is this shiftlessness?

A woman at the head of a Child Welfare organization writes me "I am truly discouraged. The flapper doesn't discourage me, but her mother does." ....I have never known parents who who were not constantly trying to bring up their children properly.... My correspondent says she knows many parents who make no effort to train children at home to be truthful, honest and clean minded....I have known no such parents. I do not believe any such exist. All parents I have known, and particularly mothers, have worried and scolded because of fear their children and grandchildren will not be honest, truthful and clean minded. A universal charge against parents, by children, is that they are nuisances because of constant preaching.

I dislike condemnation....A stray cat lately adopted us, after watching us from the alley for a time. In some of his forays he lost a leg, and we are rather friendly because of this. But the cat does not like what we offer him to eat, and the manner in which he looks at me, in evident disapproval, distresses me....I like the heaven idea, because everyone will love me there; even my friends will not say "I approve of what you say, in the main, but——"

Some men seem to wish to run wild, and associate with wild people. Bernard Shaw, possibly the wisest man writing today, is tame, and believes others should be. He believes that wild men drift; civilized men steer.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

Cancer

The planetary aspects of today leave no room for doubt, as they did yesterday. They are distinctly favorable, and, as a result, there will be engendered a contented and happy feeling in keeping with the spirit of the day. All Sunday observances, recreations, or diversions will afford a pleasurable amount of enjoyment, and gatherings, either for religious or social purposes, will be productive of good results—even more so than on ordinary occasions. If, as the signs denote, there should be experienced in the afternoon a slight sense of irritation this will be of such short duration that it may, happily, pass almost unnoticed.

A boy born today will be erratic physically, and have many "ups and downs" during his early childhood. Regular nutrition and assiduous care will see him "over the top." His temperament will be just as variable as his physical condition. At times, he will be sunny and bright, at other times ill-tempered and sulky. As he grows up to manhood, the good will overcome the bad, and he will materialize into a "regular fellow." A girl born today will be normally healthy, and her disposition will be generous, kindly and winsome. She will by her charm, attract many admirers, and the one she finally accepts as the one to accompany her through life, will give her that happiness that she merits.

Is July 12th your birthday? If so, you possess much inherent ability, and your varied talents can be, if you so wish it, capitalized to a very successful degree. You are a trifle fussy, and more than usually fastidious in your tastes. In spite of these trifling weaknesses, you possess sound judgment, are very upright and strictly conscientious in all your actions, and capable of attaining a degree of perfection in anything that you set out to do, and to which you apply yourself with energy and ability. Owing to the soneness of your outlook on life, and your quick and unerring perception, your friends consider you very dependable, and often seek your advice and counsel. You are altruistic with high ideals, and you seek harmony and pleasant surroundings at all times. Discord, either inside or outside your home, is most trying to you, and your efforts to avoid such a condition are both constant and consistent.

Successful people born on this date are:

Benjamin P. Shillaber, humorist.
Daniel H. Hill, soldier.
Clara Louise Kellogg, soprano singer.
George Eastman, manufacturer.
Arthur T. Holbrook, physician.

A MISSION OFFERING

Anita Stewart Plays Frozen Role In Filming of "Baree, Son of Kazan"

Anita Stewart, the star of Vitagraph's "Baree, Son of Kazan," which opens at the Mission theater Thursday, is a thirty-third degree snow bird. She qualified for membership in that select circle of all-year-round swimmers when floating on a below zero morning down a blood-chilling back river between snow covered icicle-decorated banks in the face of an icy canyon breeze.

In the story of Baree, Nepeese, the French-Indian girl, floats, not swims, down stream to a point where she is pulled out by Tubos, an old Indian. Gazing on the icy Truckee river, in California, Miss Stewart shivered. Thoughts of the muscle-paralyzing cold restrained her for a moment. Then she laughed bravely and plunged in.

The first few yards were almost too much for endurance. They seemed like a mile. Deadening pains set in, and it was all the star could do to keep from striking for the shore. But the order was not to move arms or legs, merely letting the frigid scene bear her along as it would. She wanted to scream out in terror, but found herself breathless from the shock. It was a long time, indeed, before James O'Neill, who plays Tubos, reached out and drew her up one of the banks.

Attendants rushed Miss Stewart into a nearby tent, where a trained nurse, who was in waiting, applied restoratives. On her recovery Miss Stewart received the congratulations of David Smith, the producer, on her remarkable fortitude and her vivid portrayal of helplessness in the water.

"But I wasn't acting," cried the star. "The water was so frightfully cold I was utterly helpless and simply couldn't scream."

KENNEY BRENNA.

One of the features of the new musical comedy at the Palace this week is "The Mayor of Laughland," the famous originator of "Smaltz." Brenna is known as "The man who is funny before he speaks."

"Chickie" At Mission Next Sunday

A picture five million persons have been anxiously awaiting to see is scheduled to be presented at the Mission theater today. It is the screen version of "Chickie," Elenore Meherin's sensational newspaper serial novel which was published by newspapers throughout the country and which, it is estimated, has been read by five million newspaper readers.

John Francis Dillion, director of First National's "Flaming Youth," directed "Chickie." The entire production has been supervised by Earl Hudson, who produced First National's wonder of the screen, "The Lost World."

An all-star cast, headed by Dorothy MacKaill in the title role, contains names that are well known wherever pictures are shown. In this cast are John Bowers, Hobart Bosworth, Myrtle Stedman, Gladys Brockwell, Olive Tell, Paul Nicholson, Lora Sonderson and Louise Mackintosh.

DRAMA, ADVENTURE, COMEDY HERE

Strand Theatre Closes Until August For Repairs

With the Strand theater closed for repairs and not to be open again until August, other Wichita Falls theaters are trying to make up in quality what is lacking in quantity.

Drama again predominates, though there is plenty of adventure and comedy thrown in. The comedy of the week is offered at the Olympic today in "Lost—a Wife." The Mission gives plenty of drama in "Chickie," while the Palace and Garden offer more than enough adventure to suit even the most rabid thrill-seeker.

A feature of the week is the arrival Monday of the new musical comedy reenv at the Palace. The troupe is said to be one of the best and oldest on tour, and will give plenty of entertainment beginning tomorrow.

"Lost—A Wife."

"Lost—A Wife" is the offering of the Olympic theater today. With an all-star cast that rates far above the ordinary, with a plot that is unusually funny, the comedy promises to be one of the best shown in Wichita Falls in some time.

Adolphe Menjou, ever entertaining, plays the lead role, opposite Greta Nissen. The supporting cast is led by Robert Agnew.

The story deals with the muchly given to gambling Mr. Hamilton, played by Adolphe Menjou, who bets on anything. His ardor for the wager first gets him a wife, then loses her. The love for gambling gains her back. The story is filled with a series of humorous and laughable incidents and situations, prominent among which is the attempt of the wife to outlast the gambler at Monte Carlo. The story is handled with the skill of a great producer and promises much in the way of entertainment.

Wednesday the Olympic brings to sweltering Wichitans the cooling atmosphere of the Far North, with the dense forests and the trackless wastes where the romance of the gold rush and lawless followers of the snow their bold sway.

Rin-Tin-Tin Back.

The film, "Tracked in the Snow Country," is a great drama with the greatest of dog actors, Rin-Tin-Tin, the German police dog that has proven his unusual ability to act in several shows. June Marlowe plays the role of the heroine with David Butler as the hero.

The story concerns the secret ownership of a mine by an old man. A half-breed tries to steal the property from him and his pretty daughter and the adventure that follows brings out the life in the Far North some years ago in a realistic manner.

The show will run four days, beginning Wednesday instead of Thursday as the Olympic is in the custom of beginning their week-end show.

"Chickie" is to be the offering at the Mission for four days, beginning today. The film is a screen version of the famous novel by the same name.

An all-star cast, headed by Dorothy MacKaill, lends much to the success of the film. Plenty of comedy is seen more than enough laughs, a good romance and a drama that works out into great story.

It is said to be one of the more popular cinema offerings of the year and in the past several months has played to capacity houses throughout the country.

Thursday the Mission offers a James Oliver Kerwood novel of the Far North in "Baree, Son of Kazan." This show guarantees thrills aplenty with a great romance thrown in.

Anita Stewart takes the leading role, with James O'Neill opposite. The story deals with the life in the north, and centers around the tale of a dog. The human interest element in the film brings out the climax in such a manner that the story is pleasing to even those who ordinarily do not care for animal pictures.

The show will run at the Mission Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Hoot Gibson comes to the Palace today with all his actjng ability and daring to play the leading role in "Taming the West." Comedy is there in abundance but the film, a story of the western life of years ago, is strictly one of adventure.

Gibson, known as one of the greatest horse riders in the world, demonstrates his versatility by riding across the open plains in an auto racer. The story deals with the attempt of a wayward rich youth to make a man of himself on the ranch. He succeeds and falls in love with the daughter of a neighboring rancher. He is ordered from the girl's home, however, because of a quarrel between their parents. He kidnaps the girl, marries her and the story ends happily. The film will show at the Palace today only.

The Garden offers "O U West" for today and tomorrow. The show is a typical wild west one and features Lefty Flynn in the role of a wild and dissipated boy who comes to the west for his health and in an effort to get rid of a number of bad habits.

The manner in which he returns to his real self forms a story full of adventure with plenty of thrills for the most exacting. A good romance also is found in the thread of the story.

Hoot Gibson At Palace Today

It takes all of Hoot Gibsons ingenuity and daring to do it, but he certainly succeeds in taming the west, accompanied by thrills and laughs in his current release, "Taming the West" a Universal-Gibson special showing at the Palace theatre, today only.

Gibson, a marvelous horseman, holder for three years of the world's championship in horsemanship, attained in country-wide competition at the Pendleton rodeo, demonstrates again that he is an accomplished actor as well.

Thrilling Rides.

In "Taming the West" Gibson rides thrillingly, displaying every trick known to horsemen and a few he invented on the side. He demonstrates his versatility also in driving a racing automobile at a terrific rate over the uncharted prairie, taking many dangerous skids to fill the picture brimming with excitement.

The plot of the story is cleverly handled. It deals with a w ayward son of a rich former rancher who is a prominent business man. The son is sent to the ranch with orders to become a man. There can be no denying that the son tries valiantly and does succeed after many trying experiences at attempting to break broncos and to perform other feats.

The son falls in love with the pretty daughter of a neighboring rancher and is consternated to find that the rancher is a bitter enemy of his own father as a result of an accident for which he blames the other.

Ordered to keep away from the girl, Gibson retaliates by kidnaping her and making her his wife after a mad dash across the plains with an entire outfit of cowboys in pursuit. The fathers, witnessing the elopement, decide that their own quarrel is unimportant.

The treatment of the plot is highly original. The picture was adapted from "The Range Dwellers" by B. M. Bowers. The film adaptation was written by Isadore Bernstein and the continuity was constructed by Raymond Schrock. Arthur Rosson directed with the assistance of Jack Sullivan.

The cast includes many well known names such as Marceline Day, Edwin Booth Tilton, Francis Ford, Herbert Prior, Arthur J. Smith, Louis Hippe and Frona Hale.

ARTIST SAYS U. S. MUSICAL

Opera Manager from Berlin Compliments Americans

BERLIN, June 11.—(AP)—The American people are as musical as any in the world, according to Arthur Bodanzky of the Metropolitan opera, on a visit here. This applies to appreciation both of opera and of concert. In America, as nowhere else in the world, he observes, people sometimes go to concerts three times a day. German opera is popular in America, he said.

Fable of Four Mercenary Minxes —By George Ade

Once in the dim Days, gone beyond Recall, when Parents were not compelled to take out Licenses, there lived in an E-Flat Town on the Q. and A. H. a Quartette of Nectarines who had their Pick of all the Valetinos between Padgett's Siding and Sumac Ridge. To look at the old Photographs of them, one might suspect that they were related to Sis Hopkins, but it must be remembered that in the deadly Nineties, when every Dorothy was bangd across the Brow and had a New England Boiled Dinner sewed on to her wide Hat, the most ravishing Specimen of the only attractive Sex looked as if she had been dipped in Something and then dried in the Sun.

Now these fair Vestals were named Lib and Min and Stel and Jess and it is of Interest to note that away back, nearly 30 Years ago, before the World had been reformed into its present deplorable Fix, these Maidens slept with one Eye open, kept Tab on the Opposite Gender and, in a General Way, looked out for Number One and the Blue Ticket.

A good many Weepers will tell you that previous to 1910, when a Nice Girl was supposed to Faint if anyone saw her Ankles, every Marriage had a Background of True Love and every Deb went looking for Nobility of Character instead of an AA1 Rating at the Commercial Agency. If the Truth must come out, full many a cold Calculation was made beneath a Poke Bonnet.

Weren't Too Ambitious.

Cleopatra knew how to put a Crimp in a Check Book. When Solomon began giving Presents to the Queen of Sheba she never begged him to stop because she was afraid he could not afford it. Going a little further back, the fuzzy Gentleman who wore a Leopard Skin bias, and naught else, always had the Inside Track if his Cave was stocked with fresh Petrodactyl Meat. And, checking up on those Relatives who have been so cruelly disowned by William Jennings Bryan, can we not be certain that the gimp and enterprising Ape who climbed the highest Palms and brought down the milkiest Nuts was the White-Haired Papa of the Jungle?

When the four Dulcineas out at Musselwhite began to look around for Feathers that could be used in a Nest, they were simply running True to Form.

Of course it was a Yap Era and a Dollar would go a long Distance, whereas now it seems muscle-bound The Village Belle who was getting read yto take a Buggy Ride could hardly sleep a Wink the Night before and at a Musical Offering the Folks in the Back Rows would stand up to get a Peek at the new Triumph of Man's Ingenuity called the Saxophone.

The four conniving Cuties were not looking for Millionaires. It was no use trying to creep up on Something that wasnt' there. Each of them merely wanted a Home with a Front Yard to it and a Hired Girl and the kind of Duds that would go with a Silk Parasol.

They were real Chums and used to visit One Another and lie awake far into the Night discussing their foxy Plans for landing and stringing some Live Ones.

It will ever be a Question, in picking out the Envelope supposed to contain a Pay Check, whether it is wiser to spread the Bait for the John who already has Currency in the Mitt or troll for a Hard Worker who owns a Set of Tools.

Lib was the first to take the High Jump. After burning up many a Ton of Anthracite Coal to keep the Front Room warm through the long Winter Evenings, and holding Hands until her Fingers were blue, she finally picked out a large slow-moving Pachyderm with the very attractive name of Wes. She pinned the Ribbon on him because he had just come into 160 acres of good Land, the Improvements on the Same including a oHuse with Scroll-Work around the Eaves and $800 worth of Lightning Rods on the Barn.

Ike No Piker.

Anyone who expects to live on the Income from a Quarter Section should get ready for a Diet of Rainwater and Crackers. The Net on that much Land, after paying Taxes and making Improvements and Repairs, would not keep the average Family in Bluing. Furthermore, any time Congress gets too busy trying to do something for the Farmer by mere use of the Vocal Cords, any good Fertile Tract is apt to be a Liability instead of an Asset.

Wes thought he was rich but he was sitting on the Front Stoop of the Poor House. One cannot obtain actual Money from a Farm except by plastering a Mortgage and any Gentleman who lives in Town and wears a White Shirt with a Granite Collar Button and devotes the livelong Day to Checkers and Criticism of the Government, has a Fat Chance of battling his Way out from under an Incumbrance.

Everyone sid that Wes was smart enough but he never showed any Ambition, Initiative and deadly Resolution except when he was in a Pool Game.

Everything was Jake and rosy, with the Couple as long as they could borrow on the Real Estate but now the Farm belongs to the Hired Hand and Wes is Floor Walker in a Grocery Store, while Lib bakes Cakes for Parties.

Just to show you that there is nothing in Dope, it may be related that Min fell into the arms of Ike after making sure his share of the Estate would be about $8,000. Well, the Wiz who ran a Tooth-Pick into a Lumber Yard and Mr. Heinze, starting with only one Pickle, were timid Pikers compared to or with Ike. He took his little Hunk of Dough up to the City and made a First Payment on some North Shore Property and then sold enough lots to pay for the Land and had over 8,000 Lots left, which is some Figuring, no matter what you say. He and Min now spend most of their time in Travel and are scared pink all the while for fear that some one will sneak the Jewel Case containing $125,000 worth of Gems Suitable for a large Lady who never had Silk next to the Skin until she was nearly 30 Years of Age. They are very unhappy.

George B. Shaw must have sized up the Human Menagerie through many Years before he invented that startling Catch Phrase, "You Never Can Tell." When Stel threw herself away on silent Si who worked at the Grain Elevator, it was the Verdict for Miles around that she had been guilty of a prize Boner. Because he said little, most of the Town Folks thought he was a Domfuddle.

Ball of Fire Upsets the Dope.

It was not generally understood in Musselwhite that any one ever cut out Idle Chatter so as to devote more time to Thinking. Stel had been keeping Cases on him and she figured that he was doing something wit hthe Bean besides using it as a support for a Derby Hat, so she crossed her Fingers and took the big Gamble.

It is now a matter of History that Si became such an Expert Accountant that finally he owned the Elevator and then began to touch up the Market by Wire and finally moved right into Chicago and became one of the most audacious, unscrupulous and nervy Hounds that ever wore horn-rimmed Glasses and dealt from the Bottom of the Deck.

They are very proud of him, back in the Old Home Town, and will tell you that he and Stel live in a very exclusive and restricted District which bars out Colored People and Apartment Houses. They have a Japanese Servant and both have been to the Mayo Institute, than which nothing could be more so.

If any of the Locals ever raise a Question as to how he acquired the princely Bank Roll some one speaks up and asks: "well, he's got it, ain't he?" What more could be said, even though Chapters were devoted to the Subject.

It was the candid Opinion of the Wise Men of Main Street, back in the Glorious Days of Free Silver, that J. Percival Trigwhiltz was the coolest and cleverest Kit of the whole gosh-blame Kit. No matter what any one said to him he was right there with a snappy Come-Back. Keener than Mustard and nothing got past him except Lightning. When Jess fell for Perce it was agreed that she had a little Ball of Fire who would cut some Streak.

He is now putting out One-Sheets for the Movie Theatre but he is still very good at Repartee when anyone duns him. Possibly the J. Percival has held him back all these Years but Jess still has Confidence in him because, when it comes to delivering Laundry Work after she gets it all done up, he is absolutely Trustworthy and always knows where he can borrow a Wheelborrow.

Moral: After talking with the Neighbors and consulting a Fortune Teller, go ahead and use your own Judgment.

Grandeur of North Woods Seen In "Tracked in the Snow Country"

The grandeur of the north woods inspires authors and poets to write of its beauty, its lawlessness and majesty. Edward Meagher's melodramatic story, "Tracked in the Snow Country," with its locale in the north woods, has caught something of the fierce elemental quality of its background. Picturized by Warner Bros., it is the current attraction at the Olympic theatre, where enthusiastic audiences are following the thrilling performance of Rin-Tin-Tin, the famous dog star, in the leading role of the production.

The popularity of actors and actresses may wane when a mediocre performance is offered in a photoplay, but Rin-Tin-Tin never fails his followers. This remarkable canine star can always be depended upon to give a thoroughly thrilling performance and in his most recent role he provides most of the big thrills and breathless moments in a story that is crammed with exciting episodes.

It deals with the secret ownership of a gold mine by an old man, which an evil half-breed attempts to steal from him and his beautiful daughter. There is a young forest ranger in love with the girl, and he aids Rin-Tin-Tin, the faithful dog of the miner, in frustrating the schemes of the villain. In the course of the story, Rin-Tin-Tin is suspected of the murder of his master; but he vindicates the charge by the ends of the production, and "Rinty's" followers hail him once more as a hero. His performance in "Tracked in the Snow Country" is easily his best, as his material is better than it was in "Where the North Begins," "Find Your Man" and "The Lighthouse by the Sea."

June Marlowe plays the lovely heroine, David Butler the hero, Charles Sellon the father and Mitchell Lewis the villain. The production, directed by Herman Raymaker, was photographed by Ray June.

Plenty of Laughs and Adventure In "O. U. West" At the Garden Today

A riot of laughter and thrills, with more comedy than the average straight laugh-maker and more suspense than many big dramatic features "O. U. West," fourth of the Harry Garson productions starring Lefty Flynn, makes its appearance on the screen at the Garden theatre Sunday, beginning a two-day run. Young Mr. Oliver U. West, a wild and dissipated boy with too much money is shipped out to his partner's ranch in the west by his father; but since the story starts on the Pacific Coast, Oliver is consigned eastward to the west, F. O. B. He renews his most recent drunk on the train, with the Pullman porter as his vis-a-vis; and the experience he undergoes when he arrives in a fine state of inebriation at the ranch are both screamingly funny and intensely serious. A fine cast supports Mr. Flynn in this delightful story from the pen of Helen Broneau, including Ann May, in the leading role and Evelyn Francisco, Milton Ross, Bill Donovan, Raymond Turner and the Burns brothers in important parts.

"Lost—A Wife" Comes to the Olympic Theatre Three Days Beginning Sunday

The new William de Mille-Paramount production, "Lost—a Wife," which comes to the Olympic theatre for a run of three days beginning today, is said tot contain more appeal and genuine comedy than any two of that director's previous pictures combined.

"Lost—a Wife," written for the screen by Clara Beranger, is an adaptation of Alfred Savoir's stage play, "Banco" which was one of the outstanding hits on Broadway during the season 1923.

Plenty of Sents.

Adolphe Menjou, Greta Nissen, Paramounts new Norwegian beauty, and Robert Agnew are featured in the picture—a marriage-comedy that offers audiences something a litttle different along tthis line of screen entertainment.

The story is one of a young American traveling in France. His one great weakness is gambling—after that, beautiful women. The picture starts right off with a laugh when Menjou, seeing Miss Nissen's name on the hotel register, bets a friend that her face is awful, without even seeing her. And then when he meets the girl—!

And this is one picture where the man rushing to stop a wedding ceremony arrives too late. Menjou comes all the way from New York to a church in France to prevent his divorced wife (Miss Nissen) from marrying a "fop" count, but the bridal party has left.

Menjou Pursues.

Menjou sets out in hot pursuit, wrecks his machine on the count's estate and, feigning a broken ankle, is invited to stay for the night. The count doesn't know who he is, of course, but when the wife learns that her ex-husband is in the house theres a real war—a battle of wits, we should say, at the end of which the young girl makes the polished American gent look silly.

The scenes at the gambling table, where Menjou continues to play over a period of 75 hours while his wife waits for him asleep in a chair outside, refusing to go home until he accompanies her, is another big laugh. There never has been anything quite like this done in pictures before.

Edgar Norton, as the count Greta Nissen marries after she divorces Menjou, heads the strong supporting cast in "Lost—a Wife." Other prominent names include Marion Harrillo, Toby Claude, Marcelle Corday.

IF DOORS COULD SPEAK.

The Most Loquacious Might Be Iron Door in Berlin.

BERLIN, July 11.—If doors could speak probably the most loquacious and interesting would be a secret iron door which is known only to a few. It connects the foreig noffice in Wilhelmstrasse with the chancellor's palace. While the walls of the two buildings come together there is no opening except at one point in the office of the chancellor's private secretary. The casual visitor thinks he sees the big door of a safe, little imagining that its every opening and closing affects German history.

Through this door no one but the foreign minister and some one accompanying him is allowed to pass. Without leaving the building, exposing him to the view of ever-alert correspondents, the foreign minister can confer with the chancellor.

The Associated Press has been informed authoritatively that this door has been used more during the security pact negotiations than perhaps ever before. Almost daily foreign Secretary Stresemann and the under secretary of foreign affairs, Herr Von Schubert, slip through it for a conference with Chancellor Luther and his political secretary, Dr. Kempner. These four men more than anybody else are guiding German's foreign political relations at the present time.

BIGGER STATE FAIR PROMISED OCT. 10-25

Broadway Musical Comedy Secured; Other Big Features

DALLAS, July 11.—Bigger and more outstanding features are to characterize the 1925 state fair of Texas, Dallas, Oct. 10-25, headed by "Sky High," the Shubert musical comedy success, which is to open the new $500,000 fair park auditorium, completed for this year's exposition.

Company of 108.

With a company of 108, including the star, Willie Howard, the production will be given under the personal direction of J. J. Shubert. Additional principals are Vinnessi, the dancer, Joyce Barbour, patrician leading lady; Ann Milburn, pert and petite comedi nenne; John Quainlan, golden voiced tenor, and many others. Feature ensembles, specialty and dancing numbers are to include "The Six Little Dippers," "The Lancashire Lassies," "The London Johnnies,55 and the song hit "Let it Rain," all of which have meen sensational successes with "Sky High" during its summer run at the Winter Garden, New York, whence it will come direct to the state fair by special train.

A famous organist is to give recitals on the wonderful $50,000 instrument installed in the new auditorium—the finest in the southwest.

Seventy-five county exhibits are expected in the agricultural department, where forty-eight county premiums will be offered. Implement and agricultural machinery distributors have planned the most all-embracing demonstrations ever given any fair.

Texas manufacturers are to maintain a state-wide demonstration in the great automobile and manufacturers' building, and the "Spanish Village," introduced last year, is to house another more complete and comprehensive showing.

Many Cattle Classes.

Many new classes have been provided in the live stock department, including boys' and girls' club competitions; the country diary herd classes and a great diary products show. The most complete poultry show ever offered is in prospect, and "ton-litter" pigs are to be a prize feature of the swine division.

One county alone is to send 1,000 boys and girls for the educational advantages the fair offers. Various counties are planning "special days," and big attendances are anticipated.

Holstein and Jersey breeders, as well as live stock folk interested in other strains, are to hold meetings, and many sessions of similar character have been scheduled for the state fair season.

Texas traveling men are to hold their big annual rally, in connection with their expressed conviction that the state fair does more than any other agency to bring national attention to the southwest.

In addition to the auditorium attractions, the amusement program will include "Rome Under Nero," a sensational fireworks offering, nightly; running races; a rodeo; the finest carnival attractions possible to procure: the "All-College Circus," a big feature last year; the fifteen permanent amusement devices maintained in the great 157-acre fair park; several major-class football contests, and countless other novel and unique details.

Swine Breeders Are Told of Fair Value

DALLAS, July 11.—A. L. Ward, swine husbandman at the A. & M. college of Texas, who will have charge of the swine department at the state fair of Texas, Dallas, Oct. 10-25, is urging upon Texas swine breeders and contestants in the "ton-litter" contest, the advantages that will come to them through exhibits at the 1925 state fair.

Mr. Ward has sent letters to all breeders interested, calling attention to the "market class" in the swine division at this year's state fair, and also to the special premiums arranged for the "ton-litter" men.

Breeders are urged to make early selections of breeding animals for the market class, and it is declared that local packing houses will take care of the sale of all market pigs desired to be disposed of.

A grand total of $540 is offered in the two special classes, made up of $45 on single barrows in six different breeds, and $45 on pens of three barrows and sows, farrowed on or after March 1, and before June 1, 1925. The six breeds in which the premiums are offered are Poland-Chinas, Duroc-Jerseys, Tamworths, Hampshires, Berkshires and Chester Whites.

In the ton-litter class any hog owner in Texas whose litter of pigs was properly entered in the contest, so certified by Mr. Ward as state leader, may enter with barrow or sow from any winning ton-litter, and hows or pens of three barrows and sows.

As a result of the early activity and the special premiums offered, state fair officials expect the most comprehensive showing ever made in the swine department.

PAINLEVE SLEEPS BUT LITTLE

PARIS, July 11.—(AP)—A quarter of an hour's sleep in an armchair is said to be sufficient to restore strength and energy to M. Painleve, France's premier and war minister, no matter how great or prolonged the exertion.

When the chamber recently discussed the fiscal measures of Minister of Finance Caillaux, M. Painleve was in his place on the ministerial bench throughout the night, calm and attentive all the while. Although it was six o'clock in the morning before the vote was taken, the premier was in the senate at 10 ready to steer the bill through the upper house. This was successfully done by six o'clock in the evening and at eight, M. Painleve reached the war ministry, where he found his entire staff awaiting him with the expectation of being dismissed for the day. But the minister said with a smile: "Go get dinner my friends and I will see you later." That night, as usual, M. Painleve worked until long after midnight.

Other numbers on the program following the delicious picnic supper was a humorous reading by Mrs. Malloy, a visiting daughter in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hamilton. A splendid song program was given by the Lions together and also in quartet by Johnny Anderson, Sydney Lee, Ray Hill and C. R. Cowles. Rev. Hamilton acted as director of the evening entertainment.

GIVE PATRIOTIC PARTY.

The monthly social meeting of the young matrons' class was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. M. Dennison at the home of Mrs. Hattie Buchanan. The decorations and color scheme was in keeping with the patriotic season, using the red, white and blue.

A brief business hour was presided over by Mrs. W. W. Estes of Bridgetown, who is the vice-president of the class organization. A game called "Coo-Coo" afforded amusement for the social period.

The gathering was concluded with a seasonable treat of cream and cake in the patriotic colors and a fitting plate favor—a tiny American flag.

T. E. L. CLASS MEETS.

On Thursday the T. E. L. class of the First Baptist church met in the home of Mrs. O. L. Clark, southwest of the city, with Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Hurd as joint hostesses. The beautiful country home of Mrs. Clark was a bower of bright flowers in growing plants and bouquets.

Mrs. W. C. Hyde, the president, called a short business session during which each members turned in a dollar, telling the method by which it was earned. The money-making stories afford a round of merry laughter for the guests.

The same "dollar plan" was continued for another month, and this money will be used for the furnishing of the class room of this organization in the new church soon to be completed.

The house hostess, Mrs. Clark, then introduced a clever contest—nuts to crack—and then it was the ladies' lamented how little they knew of this product in the vegetable kingdom.

LATE RAINS COST MOVIES

Unseasonable Downpours Hurt Crops and Retard Film Companies.

LOS ANGELES, July 11.—(AP).—Unusually late rains in southern California this spring not only damaged fruit and grain to some extent but also retarded film crops. Movie producers of Hollywood report a loss of more than $500,000 due to the unseasonable rainfall.

After the middle of April film producers, expecting clear days, prepared for outside scenes. The late rains upset all calculations, forced important "takes" to be suspended and, in some cases, compelled the use of expensive indoor sets for pictures which could have been made more economically out of doors.

VERNON BANKS PASS RECORDS OF BOOM DAYS

Deposits at June Call Go Over Totals of Five Years Ago

VERNON, July 11.—With a total of $4,460,774.94 on deposit at the call of June 30, the local banks are in the best condition for this time of the year in the history of Vernon. For the first time the deposits on June 30 exceeded the high water mark set on that date in 1920 during the oil boom. At the call on June 30 of that year the total deposits of the banks were $3,588,647.

Less Than in December.

Although the deposits are about half a million dollars less than they were at the call on December 31, 1924, when a record for all time was made with $5,200,986.55 on deposit, the difference is not as much as usual, comparatively, indicating good financial conditions in the county.

According to statements of the various banks, $2,419,181.62 in cash was in the vaults of the four banks at the time of the call, or about 55 per cent of the total deposits. This is unusual for this time of year. Only 60 per cent of the total deposits was in the vaults of the banks at the call on December 31, 1924.

The statements show that every bank has made a substantial increase in deposits since June 30 of last year. On June 30, 1924, the Waggoner National bank had $781,608.30 on deposit as compared with $1,570,343.94 at the same time this year. Deposits of the Herring National bank totaled $651,433.07 at the June call this year. While the Farmers State bank was at the foot of the list last year with $519,372.86, it had deposits totaling $1,016,008.81 on June 30 of this year.

The First Guaranty State bank increased from $532,707.60, which was on deposit last year, to $823,835.24 this year.

A fair indication of the city's growth during the past years may be obtained by a comparison of the bank deposits at the June call of each year. The following table shows the amount of money on deposit in the local banks at the June call during the past several years:

1919	1,845,813
1920	3,588,647
1921	1,891,881
1922	2,339,103
1923	2,353,455
1924	2,485,181

Many New Books For Library This Week

Many new books of fiction have been added to the Kemp public library within the past month, according to Miss Lucia Powell, librarian.

The books have been carefully chosen b ythe committee in order to care for the variod tastes of Wichita readers, Miss Powell stated. The new arrivals are only the first of several hundred books that will be placed in the library this summer.

Books that have arrived during the past wteek are:

Arrowsmith by Sinclair Lewis. Martin Arrowsmith, a country doctor, has crowded into his restless life enough material for a dozen ordinary novels. An immense range of scenes, characters, episodes and emotional situations, and the fact that this is Mr. Lewis' first novel since writing Babbitt, two and one-half years ago, makes this a most popular novel.

A China Shepherdess by Margaret Applegarth. Are you interested in China? Here are 22 stories on China, stories for all ages. Hints are given telling you when and where to use these different stories.

Desert Brew by B. M. Bower. Western life is well understood by the author and in the story of Mrs. Marshall attempting to cure her husband of the drink habit there are many western episodes given in humorous western style.

The Glory Hole by Stewart Edward White. What would you do if you inherited $12,000,000. Read this story and see what it did for Uncle Zeke, Cousin Jim, for Minnie and Zozo.

The Illiterate Digest by Will Rogers. This volume is made up of personal sketches of the Prince of Wales, Presidents Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Al Smith, Billy Sunday, William Jennings Bryan and others. There are talks on how to eat soup, on chewing gum, the oil scandals, the Hollywood scandals and a lot more. For wit and humor Will Rogers is holding a most enviable position with the public in general and it is hard to decide which part of his illiterate Digest is the best.

The Mansion House by E. M. Kelly. This is a novel of Kentucky life. It is full of people, black and white, and of dogs and hrses, too. It presents a friendship of two old men "passing the love of woman," the heart affairs of young Judith of the Mansion House and the Mansion House itself, which is almost a hero.

The Miracle by E. Temple Thurston. The scene is the west coast of Ireland and the characters are the folk of the land for whom fancy, myth, and the fairies are ever-living realities. It is the story of Mary Kirwin, who on the turn of events disappears from her home and strange whispers spread before and following her return, the belief of the village folk that the fairies have taken her makes it a strange and interesting story.

The Mother Recompense by Edith Wharton. The setting for the story is the New York society of today. Her theme is a gripping one—the love of a mother and her daughter and he many who come between them. The story of Kay Clephane, the central character a one of the author's greatest creations.

Nora Pays by Lucille Van Slyke. Nora becomes a merchant princess with a gorgeous Fifth Avenue shop. But—Nora pays for success. How? The answer makes the story—a stirring novel of love, ambition and business adventure.

Not Under the Law by Grace Livingston Hill. Mrs. Hill tells what happened when a small boy fell in love with a princess—for to Daisy Sherwell, uncared for and neglected little Grace Radwell in her delicacy and refinement seemed

SHOW IMAGE ON GLASS.

Bernard Shaw Stained Picture With Anotole France and Saint Jean

LONDON, July 11.—George Bernard Shaw, beard and all, is one of the figures portrayed in a stained glass window recently unveiled at the Ethical church in Bays Watter in the Hyde park district. Shaw's companions in the window are Anatole France and Saint Joan, the glass being intended to depict the relation of the three through the historical works of Shaw and France woven around the character and life of the Maid of Orleans.

In the window design there is also a British soldier, binding two sticks into the form of a cross in response to Joan's appeal as she was being burned, this being one of the incidents of her execution recorded in most of the lives of the fighting French heroine.

Making the Best of Your Gas Supply

Reasonable conservation of natural gas is not only a duty owed to the general public, because it prolongs a supply we know will some day be exhausted, but it is also of real financial advantage while it is being practised. Conservation does not mean avoiding the use of gas to the fullest extent for our comfort and convenience. It does mean, however, that waste should be prevented, and that users should thereby get the full benefit of the money they pay.

Natural gas wastes in the home are of three kinds—leakage, inefficient appliances, and improper use.

Leakage is far more common than most people appreciate. Little leaks are apt to occur at joints of pipes—small in themselves, yet great in their yearly volume. They are easily detected by painting the pipes with strong soapsuds. If there is a leak, the gas will bubble through.

Inefficient appliances cost gas users millions of dollars every year. No heating arrangement designed to convert stoves intended for coal or wood into gas burners is ever efficient. No dirty burner ever gives full value. No burner too far away from the heated surface can be economical. An inspection of appliances will often show easy steps to less expenditure.

Then there is something worth observing in the way gas is used. Flames that are too hot, fires left burning too long, and other points good sense will observe, may cost more than is necessary.

Make the best of the gas privilege as long as you have it!

FIVE MEN IN CITY INSURED FOR $100,000

Two of Them Have Policies Aggregating $200,000 Is Report

TEXANS INSURED FOR $100,000 OR MORE.

	No.	Amount
Houston	37	$7,745,000
Dallas	35	7,111,000
El Paso	15	3,205,000
San Antonio	11	2,259,500
Fort Worth	7	1,132,000
Wichita Falls	5	980,000

These figures taken from the Texas Index, just compiled and issued by W. A. Callaway, editor of Southland Life Insurance Co. publications, show the tremendous part being played by insurance in Texas finance and the extent to which men of great means are investing their savings in insurance both for business and personal protection.

Not Complete List.

The list of Texans, 149 in all insured for $100,000 or more does not purport to be a complete list of all Texans insured for $100,000, since only those names are used where permission has been given. Callaway estimates that at least 300 and possibly 500 are insured for that amount. Beaumont and Waco, besides the cities mentioned, have five or more insured for that amount.

The largest amount written on a single life, according to The Index, is $990,000 carried on the life of a Houston man. Another Houston man has $900,000 insurance. Two Wichita Falls men have more than $200,000. One of the smallest towns in the state has two men with more than $100,000 and the names of two women appear on the list.

Not All On List.

"Not all those whose lives are insured for $100,000 or more appear on the list," says Callaway in a foreword. "But the list is growing larger each year as policy holders realize that the forward looking man only insures his life and the Index is an object lesson to the inadequately insured. When these men, no matter what the sum of their insurance, realize the value of permitting their names to be used as advocates of a great system of self help they are rendering a distinct service to the community as well as the state as a whole.

Grand Finale.

As a grand finale was necessary, a business meeting was held in which the discussion of the many favors rendered the girls were mentioned. The interest and help offered by Robert Anglan of the Iowa Park Chamber of Commerce was discussed, and as many other people had offered assistance in so many ways, a motion was passed that a letter of appreciation be sent to all the parties who had been so thoughtful for their comfort.

After a final policeing, camp was broken and the entire group assembled at Iowa Park, where songs were sung and yells given for Miss Webb, Mr. Anglan and the Chamber of Commerce and Iowa Park. A division was then made, the groups of girls from each town gathering and leaving for their homes with a unanimous vote that the camp had been a wonderful success, and plans already in mind for the next.

Clears Complexion

"Oh! how clear and beautiful your complexion is today, my dear!"

THERE IS a certain joy—a certain pride—in knowing you are admired, whether it be from father, brother, husband or sweetheart! And back of that joy is the satisfaction of knowing all is well.

Men are fascinated by the charm of beauty. Women gaze with envy, respect, jealous, perhaps, wondering—hoping—praying for that attractiveness which is not theirs. But why the wondering—the hoping—the praying for that craved for attractiveness—that clear skin—that beauty. A clear skin—is the barometer of one's condition. A healthy skin radiates beauty. Pure, clean blood means a clear skin.

S.S.S. is waiting to help you. It will rid your blood of its impurities and give you that clear complexion. Since 1826 S.S.S. has been ridding people of blood impurities, from pimples, from blackheads, boils, eczema and from rheumatism, too. Because S.S.S. is made from fresh herbs and barks, it may be taken with perfect safety. Try it yourself. You will not only look better, but you will feel better, too.

Gulf Railroad Plans Explained at Paducah

PADUCAH, July 10.—A large and enthusiastic gathering of business men were addressed here this afternoon by Col. C. H. Powell of the Texas Panhandle and Gulf railroad, and Ireland Hampton, field manager of the T. P. & G. Finance Corporation of Fort Worth. Col Powell explained the contract and conditions under which the road would be built, and Hampton told how the finance corporation would function in safeguarding the interests of the subscribers to the stock of the railroad. This county has been allotted $300,000.00, of the 7 per cent preferred stock, and it was the sense of the meeting that this could be raised in a short while. The people of this section are thoroughly aroused to the importance of this undertaking, giving them a through line from the coal fields of New Mexico, to their natural cotton, grain and livestock market at Fort Worth.

FEET IN FILMS WATCHED

Directors Paying More Attention to Limbs Than Face.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., July 11.—(AP).—Hands and feet, how and when they move, are attracting the casting directors of one film studio here, rather than faces and their expressions.

Almost any person can be taught to register certain standard emotions, such as grief, joy and fear, according to Director Robert C. Vignola, but only a real actor knows what to do with his hands and feet and how to do it naturally.

The result has been that Vignola and his staff now are directing their first inquiring glances no higher than the waist lines of film applicants. If the hands and pedal extremities make good, then the faces are considered.

BRITISH PRINTER HONORED

King George Confers Degree on Man Who Gave Blood to Hospital

LONDON, July 11.—(AP)—Bertie Wallace Tibbie, a printer of Canonbury, North London, has been awarded the Order of the British Empire by the king, and also made a life governor of the London hospital, in recognition of his having given a pint of his blood on 51 occasions for transfusion to patients in London hospitals.

The usual fee for blood transfusion is five guineas, but Tibbie has refused payment, and he has therefore saved the hospitals an equivalent of nearly $1,335.

The official entry in the king's list of birthday honors read "O.B.E.—Tibbie, Bertie Wallace, For public services in saving life."

Lufkin, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Hawaii, that that organization bring the suggestion before the secretary of the navy. Lufkin has taken up the proposal with the executive committee of the associated chambers, and, in a letter to the governor, expresses the hope for early action.

It was learned also that Representative Burton French of Idaho, a member of the house committee on appropriations, who visited Hawaii recently, has written a personal letter to Secretary Wilbur, expressing himself in favor of the suggestion.

What's Doing

Here and There In West Texas

At Haskell

WITH THE CHURCHES.

The Hogg-Wall-Williams meeting at Haskell is drawing immense crowds both at the morning and evening services. Between fifteen and eighteen hundred people taxed the seating capacity to the limit Thursday night and work was begun Friday to prepare more seats. Provision is made for the colored people and they sang Friday night. The average attendance at the men's downtown meeting at 11 o'clock is above 55. There are daily 15 prayer meetings in the homes by the women. Rev. Hogg preaches the old-time religion and Mr. Wall leads a great choir in gospel singing. It is heard on all sides that it is the best singing Haskell folks have heard in many years.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY.

The Presbyterian Girls' auxiliary held their regular meeting Thursday afternoon from 6:15 to 7:15 o'clock at the manse. The social hour following a short business session was given in the form of a farewell party for Miss Galan Robertson, the president, who left Monday for Colorado, where she will spend the rest of the summer. In the fall Miss Galan will attend C. L. A. at Denton and in her honor and appreciation of her faithful term of office as president the members met together to show her their love and to wish her happiness during the coming days. She was presented with a lovely silk scarf by the auxiliary. During the social hour, contests were held and a colweb was followed throughout its intricate mazes all over the house, and at the end of each string the guests were rewarded with a souvenir. Banana nut ice cream and cake were served the guests.

MISSIONARY WOMEN ELECT.

The Baptist Missionary Women met in regular service and after a spiritual mission study led by Mrs. Charles Conner, assisted by Mesdames Carlton Crouch Von Bailey, Will Whitman and W. M. Lawrence, the following officers for the year were elected: President, Mrs. Sam Roberts; vice president, Mrs. D. Scott; recording secretary, Mrs. John Couch; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Mrs. John Fouts.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS.

On Wednesday evening the congregation at the big revival meeting at Haskell was largely made up of out-of-town guests. There were representatives from many places, including all nearby towns and Little Rock, Ark., Los Angeles, Calif., and Oklahoma City and Elk City, Okla., and there were 250 from Stamford.

In Childress

TEACHER SEEKING M. A.

Roger A. Burgess, the new superintendent of Childress city schools, is working on his master degree at the University of Texas. He will return to Childress about August 1 and take up the work of getting ready for the fall term.

Childress people are delighted to hear that the Childress high has received one and one-half additional credits of affiliation with the state university. This gives Childress a total of 25 1-2 credits. The additional credits were stenography 1 and solid geometry 1 1-2 credits.

The enrollment in the schools will be much larger this year as the great amount of constructive work going on is causing a large number of families to move to town. The crowded conditions will be relieved when the new $125,000 school building is erected, but there does not seem to be any chance that this will be finished until after the first of the year.

BUYS HUEY COTTON GIN.

The cotton gin at Huey, the sam name for Loco, has been bought by two Wichita Falls men, Ernest T. Westmoreland and John F. Joyce. Mr. Westmoreland was formerly a resident of Childress but moved to Wichita Falls some years ago. Huey is the name of the new present post office, and the people feel that it is a better name for this thriving little town. The gin is to be remodeled and will be ready for the cotton season. Clay F. Wilson will move to Huey and take charge of the gin.

CHILDRESS LEGION GETS QUOTA.

The American Legion at Childress has raised their quota of $550 for the relief of the widows and orphans of the ex-service men. L. L. Louiner was chairman of the endowment fund drive. Sergeant Lorimer has had a most interesting career, having served in the Boer war with the British troops. He served with the Canadian troops during the World war, reaching the rank of sergeant.

PLAN A LIONS CLUB.

Childress is planning to organize a Lion club and a field worker has been in town several days. A number of business men have signed up for membership. There is an active Rotary club here doing excellent work, but as the membership of this is limited to one member from each line of business, there is room for another service club. It is thought that a live Lions club can be organized here.

T. O. S. CLUB ENTERTAINED.

Mrs. Lee Hoshingsmith entertained the T. O. S. club at her home on Thursday. Mrs. C. Rogers won high score and received a beautiful embroidered vanity set. Those present were Mesdames I. S. Barrett, R. C. Bone, Leslie Johnson, C. Rogers, E. Abingdon, W. E. Davis, G. Harry Davis, B. Timmons, E. Sager, Misses Mary Davis, Kate Withey, Frances Long.

Bert Affleck Jr. spent a few days with his parents recently. He is a student at A. & M. college and has been doing splendid work.

Miss Carrie Mae Diggs, who is a teacher in the Therwood School of Music in Chicago, is visiting her parents, Judge and Mrs. E. E. Diggs.

W. A. Stegall, Joe Burkett and Lowe Robinson of Childress are leasing a building at Shamrock and expect to open a drug store.

WEDNESDAY BRIDGE PARTY.

Mrs. Tom Huggins gave a very pretty bridge party Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Margaret Crawford, who will be married to Joseph Munroe Davis Sunday morning at 8:30 o'clock in the Methodist church. Fifteen tables of guests were present. Mesdames Lon Alexander, W. B. Daugherty, Roy Coffey and J. M. Crews presided over the table in the dining room, where both ice cream, cake and olives were served. Mrs. E. S. Abingdon won high score. Miss Jones cut low prize. Mrs. Stepoe Bailey was second scorer. Mrs. Bailey, the honoree, drew a beautiful piece of lingerie.

JOINT HOSTESSES AT SHOWER.

Mrs. W. C. Nelson, Wade Jones, C. C. Davidson and Miss Malena Jones were joint hostesses at a very beautiful shower for Miss Della Jones at the home of Mrs. W. C. Jones. Misses Malena Jones, and Agnes Ross served punch and Mrs. E. Chestnut presided over the guest book. Mrs. Holmes, dressed as a telegraph messenger boy, brought in the gifts. FEET STOPPED MACMILLAN ON ONE PLOE DASH

Frozen Feet Prevented Him From Final Peary Dash

CHICAGO, July 11.—An indelible spirit of optimism together with a confidence in himself which has its reaction in all members of his party, are characteristics which have brought Donald B. MacMillan through many a "jam," ice and otherwise, and which figured strongly in obtaining for him two modern assets to his present artic expedition—airplanes and radio.

Impressive Qualities.

These qualities, suppremented with knowledge and experience of a region in which he has explored for 17 years, first impressed MacMillan's chief of radio, Eugene F. McDonald, Jr., who also on this trip is second in command and in charge of the Peary, one of the two ships. When McDonald had been through official Washington in quest of air service cooperation, resulting in Secretary Dilbur assigning three planes and personnel and approving the expedition for its "sound, safe planning."

MacMillan is a professor of anthropology at Bowdoin College, his alma mater, on leave of absence. It was at Bowdoin, where he figured 17 cents a day was sufficient to live on while he educated himself, that he first came in contact with Admiral Pearl, of whom he is a great student and admirer. MacMillan was with the Peary expedition in 1908 which discovered the North Pole, solely because of their college association. MacMillan's first ship on his own account was purchased with funds raised by his college chums and was named the Peary. MacMillan is unmarried.

When Peary discovered the pole MacMillan was left behind on the final dash because his feet were frozen and the warmth from Peary's naked chest had failed to aid in thawing them. MacMillan had neglected to line his boots with grass. On two nights Peary opened his garments and slept with MacMillan's feet on his chest. But it was of no avail. Peary then took with him a negro, Matt Henson, who was a man described as of physical perfection and of an exceptional ability in relations with the Eskimos. Peary to this day is the only white man to have visited the po

MacMillan became a lieutenant commander in the U. S. naval reserve on last February 7, shortly after becoming 51 years of age. He was born the son of a sea captain, in Provincetown, Mass. He later became an teacher. He was reared by a strange family. He was graduated from Bowdoin in 189 with the degree of bachelor of arts. Much of his revenue came from employment in summer hotels, doing every sort of job.

A Second Dash.

After the memorable trip with Peary in 1908-09, MacMillan made a second trip to northern Labrador in 1910, to which he again returned in 1911 and 1912. Bowdoin College in 1910 honored him with a degree of master of arts. In 1913, he headed the Crocker land expedition, intended too be in the Artic one year. He returned four years later. It was on this expedition that he proved his generalship as an artic explorer, when, short of provisions, he fed his men for nearly three years on the food of the Eskimo and brought his men out in better condition than when they started.

Bowdoin College tendered MacMillan the degree of doctor of science in 1918. He headed the Hudson Bay expedition in 1920, the Baffin land expedition in 1921 and 1922 and the North Greenland expedition during 1923 and 1924.

His present expedition, the most elaborately planned of them all, will return to civilization somewhere near October 1, if these plans are not upset. It was made possible financially by the aid of the National Geographic society and the U. S. navy, under which title the exploration is being made. MacMillan's only source of income is from his pictures and lectures, which heretofore has always been reinvested in another polar trip.

Alleged Descendants Of 10 Lost Tribes Of Israel Will Organize

AURORA, Ill., July 11.—Why Anglo-Saxons who believe they are the descendants of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel should organize into a federation is contained in a letter addressed to Christians by the Rev. George McGinnis, urging them to attend a national convention to be held in Waunita Springs, Col., August 15-18, for that purpose.

Rev. Mr. McGinnis said the federation was planned along the organization in Great Britain, where Princess Alice, a cousin of King George, is chief patron, and Lord Gisborough, president.

"The Anglo-Saxon federation will have for its object the federation of orthodox Christians of all denominations who believe the Bible to be the inspired word of God," said Rev. Mr. McGinnis, "to promulgate the belief that Anglo-Saxons are the descendants of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel; to prove that this race has been chosen of God to rule land and sea; to restore the sanctity of the Christian faith, the observance of the Sabbath and reverence for the word of God, and to demonstrate to Anglo-Saxon people the privileges and responsibilities attached to them by reason of their descent from Israel."

Rev. Mr. McGinnis declared the English federation, composed of 2,000,000 members, was preaching this doctrine and restoring faith.

Cracked Concrete Will Knit and Be Better Than Ever

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—Concrete that has been cracked until knit together again to tests just completed here by Prof. Duff A. Abrams at Lewis institute. These tests were said to be the first of this type.

Concrete cylinders once cracked and retested after eight years exposure to the weather were found to be more than two and one-quarter times as strong as they were when the original test was made. When they were examined before retesting practically all of the cracks caused by the high pressure had disappeared. It was known that concrete gained in strength with age but Prof. Abram's test gave definite knowledge concerning the healing properties of concrete which was kept moist.

The original test was made in 1917 by applying an average pressure of one and one-fifth tons per square inch to a number of 28-day old concrete cylinders, six by twelve inches, which was sufficient to cause cracking. This month another compressive strength test was made with these same cylinders which then withstood an average pressure of more than two and a half tons per square inch, a pressure 228 per cent as great as the blocks were able to bear eight years ago.

Fine cracks which appeared in a test concrete highway bridge, when it was subjected to a tremendous load, later closed up. The cracks were carefully mapped and photographed after two preliminary tests had been made. A year later when the bridge was greatly overloaded again, comparison revealed that many of the old cracks did not re-open, but new cracks appeared under the unusual strain. Prof. Abrams stated that his condition was due to the healing of the cracks and the forming of a joint even stronger than the unbroken concrete.

Skull of Primitive Man Discovered By Holy Land Explorers

JERUSALEM, July 11.—(Jewish Telegraphic Agency)—In a cave at Tabgha, near Tiberias, a primitive human skull has been unearthed among mousterian flint deposits.

The skull, discovered by a British archaeologist and an Oxford student named Turville-Petre, is characterized by a prodigious development of the supera-orbital prominences and depressed forehead, as in the chimpansee. It conforms closely with the Neanderthalx Nuropean type not previously found on the continent of Asia. Professor Garstand, director of the British school of archaeology Jerusalem, who witnessed the discovery confirmed its scientific value.

Osteopaths Against Jerking Teeth For Unknown Ailments

TORONTO, Ont., July 11.—(AP) Warning against the promiscuous pulling of patients' teeth "just because it's hard to find out what is the matter," was sounded by Dr. Jerome M. Watters of Newark, N. J., in his presidential address opening the annual convention today of the American Osteopathic Society of Opathmology and Otolaryngology. "Fight to a finish to save your teenth," he urged, "if in your judgment they should be saved."

Dr. Watters insisted that there be a thorough examination, the elimination of impacted third molars and abscessed roots and the filling of all cavities.

Citing one of his own cases, he said the patient had severed ear trouble which failed to respond to treatment. The X-ray revealed an ulcerated root in the jaw, from which all teeth had been pulled 12 years before. With the removal of the root the ear trouble disappeared.

Others who took part in today's program were Drs. Calr J. Johnson of Louisville, F. P. Millard of Toronto, Kent L. Seaman of Fort Wayne, Ind., E. C. Brann of Wichita Kan., Glenn S. Moore of Chicago and L. S. Larimore of Chicago City

RAILROADS ASK FOR RAISE IN FREIGHT RATES

Texas Lines Request a New Rate Over The State

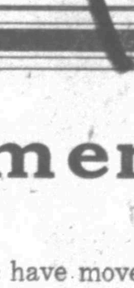

AUSTIN, July 11.—A general raise in all Texas freight rates to increase the return of railroads on their investments nearly two per cent was asked Saturday in an application filed by all railroads of the western district with the Texas railroad commission. It follows a similar petition before the interstate commerce commission and will probably be heard by the Texas board jointly with the interstate body.

The railroads recited in the petition that for 1924 their earnings were only 3.82 per cent on investment, whereas the federal government has ruled that they are entitled to 5.75 per cent. A general raise in all classes and kinds of freight rates, to bring the earnings up to the fixed basis, is asked.

TWO ARE DEAD AT LOVELAND; SLAYER TO DIE

M. L. Graham Lying In Frederick Hospital; Shot Himself

LOVELAND, Okla., July 11.—Mrs. Mel Matchins, aged 36, and daughter Laura, age 16, are dead, and M. L. Graham, age 56, transfer man of Loveland, is lying at the point of death in a Frederick hospital, as the result of a shooting affair in the yard of the Matchins' home yesterday evening shortly before 7 o'clock.

Shot Mother First.

Graham shot Mrs. Matchins and her daughter, turned the gun on a still younger child, Mildred Matchins, blowing her right thumb away, returned to his home and turned the gun on himself, a bad wound in his left side directly under the heart being the result. He also took a razor and tried to cut his left wrist. This wound, however, is not serious. Physicians state there is little hope for recovery.

The tragedy followed an alleged quarrel between Mrs. Matchins and Graham, over cows in Graham's pasture. The transfer man is said to have called Mrs. Matchins over the telephone early yesterday afternoon and told her that some of her cows were stray in his field. She told him that he was mistaken. The younger daughter told officers that the slayer then came to the Matchins home and quarreled over the cattle. Mr. Matchins was not at home at the time, being on the road to Grandfield with a load of wheat.

Mother Ran to Phone.

Graham left and returned a short time later with a .410 gauge shotgun. Seeing the Matchins family in the front yard, he is said to have opened fire without saying a word. The first shot hit Mrs. Matchins in right jaw, carrying a part of it away. The mother ran for the house as Graham turned the gun on the elder daughter. The No. 4 shot took effect in the girl's head over her left eye, killing her instantly. The third shot hit the other daughter in the right hand with no serious results. The mother managed to get to the telephone and call for help before she died. The murderer left immediately in his car.

He returned to his home several blocks away, while help was arriving at the Matchin residence. A few minutes later his wife heard a shot and rushed into the room to find her husband lying on the floor seriously wounded. It is believed that he tried to cut himself first and failing he turned the gun on himself.

Sheriff J. B. McCorkle of Frederick was called to Loveland, and took Graham under arrest. His condition was so serious that he was taken to the hospital, where he is not expected to live. He is married and has five children, none of whom are living at the home of their parents.

Late reports were that his condition was unchanged. No charges have been filed as yet, pending complete statements by eye-witnesses. County Attorney W. D. Christian states however, that charges of murder will be filed.

At the hospital late tonight Graham regained consciousness, though his condition was reported lower than at any other time during the day. He refused to talk about the affair to a reporter, but stated that "I want to die."

MOSQUITOES INVADE ENGLAND

People Demand Concerted Action by Authorities Against Pagus.

LONDON, July 11.—(AP).—Britain is getting alarmed over a plaque of mosquitoes and demands are being made all over the country for concerted action by local authorities against the unwelcome visitors.

In some districts on the east coast of Britain it has been found necessary to equip beds with mosquito netting. In other districts residents are already complaining bitterly of the inconvenience which has been caused by the mosquito bites.

PACIFIST OF PACIFIC RETIDES.

Widely Known Leader of Pan-Pacific Conference "Takes Rest."

HONOLULU, July 11.—Alexander Hume Ford, widely known in all the countries bordering on the Pacific, surprised his friends recently with the announcement that he was going to "take a rest." Ford, director of the Pan-Pacific Union and father of numerous Pan-Pacific conferences held in Honolulu in recent years, announced his early retirement from the Pan-Pacific club and asked the committees and members to carry on. He did not state what his plans were.

Kay Bible Class Plans To Widen Scope of Work May Move To The Palace

F. O. Fritz some time ago went out to California to die. In Long Beach, California, he got acquainted and became a member of the Taubman Bible class, the largest men's Bible class in America. The class and its wonderful work had a rejuvenating effect upon Mr. Fritz, because he came back to Wichita Falls well.

He is now in San Pedro, California, but as he is unable to ever forget the good work of the Taubman class, he corresponds with Oral Jones of the Kay Bible class and sends him booklets and information concerning the Taubman class. This class has a membership of 1,800 men, while the Kay class has 600 men enrolled. Therefore, geometrically, as the Taubman class is the largest class in America, the Kay class must rank third. Many good and profitable suggestions have been received through this correspondence, and much progress is planned for the Kay class.

Kay Is Back.

Judge John C. Kay has just returned from a two week visit in Colorado and New Mexico, and besides keeping the class on the go through the summer months, much new work and progress is planned for the fall. Not merely hopes, but actualities are in the anticipation for a bigger and better class than ever. In line with the progress is the unanimous desire of the men to obtain Angus Willgus, now choir leader at the First Presbyterian church, to be song leader for the Kay class. They are not certain as yet whether he will be able to leave the position that he now holds at the Presbyterian church, but they are in high hopes that he will. Mr. Willgus is considered an unusually good director and much will be done if he joins the menu's class. A special collection of songs will be published and the musical line broadened. Mr. Jones, president of the class admonishes the people of Wichita Falls to watch their step because the fall months will mark the catching fire and spreading of pep by the class in all working lines. Under headway is the plan for a budget system which will help to proportionally carry the expenses. Mr. Jones remarked that there were men in the class who would gladly carry all of the expenses alone, but as this would detract from the group element of every member doing his bit, the budget system is hoped for to be successful.

Move to Palace.

The Kay class which is now meeting in the Strand theatre will most likely move their abode temporarily to the Palace theatre as the Strand will soon be closed for remodeling. However programs that have been planned in advance will be carried on. Sunday, July 12, a quartet from the Electra Rotary club will song. Sunday week, Mrs. Earnest Edlick, a renounced concert singer who is now making her residence here, will song, and the Sunday folowing, Mayor Shepherd will be the guest of honor.

In line with the good work done by the Kay class is the employment help that is given not only to members of the class, but also other needy men. "No man will ever come to us hungry, and go away hungry," explained Mr. Jones to emphatically express their desire to help. Any man that is unable to be properly attended to by the Charity or Municipal Welfare council, will also be assisted in every way possible.

SEEK MAN FOR SUPER THRILL MURDER CASE

Member of Prominent N. Y. Family Has Warrant Against Him

MINEOLA, N. Y., July 11.—(AP)—A warrant charging Phillip Knapp 27 years old, member of a prominent Syracuse family with the murder of Louis Penella, Hempstead taxi driver was issued today at Hempstead, Knap is believed to be in hiding in the Glen Falls section, police said today.

Selection of the foot hills of northern New York as a hiding place would be consistent with the theory the police have worked out. It is the locale of coopers from a famous novel "The Last of the Mohicans" which the former Cornell student was known to have admired inordinately.

From letters left by Knapp and evidence already obtained of his attitude toward life, detectives working on the case are convinced he murdered Penella to obtain a "super thrill." The perils faced by Coopers hero were believed to have excited his admiration and a desire of evolution.

District Attorney Weeks said he would present the evidence against Knapp to the grand jury on July 27.

JANITORS FIND FOOD POISONED AT UNIVERSITY

Standford Employes Find Drug Before Eating Meal

STANFORD, UNIVERSITY, Cal., July 11.—Stanford university authorities announced today that a quantity of quick acting poison in powder form was found last night in the sugar bowls on the tables in the janitors' dining room on the university campus. The discovery was made as the janitors, 26 in number, were about to eat their evening meal and before any one had used the powder.

Police investigators characterized the poison attempt as a "crude job" and said that it was probably the work of some disgruntled employe. The janitors are obtained through the American building maintenance company of San Francisco.

The plotter was forced to work so fast that he spilled a quantity of the poison on the table.

MARMON BEST, AVERS OWNER OF TEN AUTOS

Smith Wheel President Says Car Is General All-Around Auto

Nothing proves the mechanical perfection or imperfection of an automobile so well as the use of it, day in and day out, for long tours over all kinds of roads and under all sorts of conditions, according to E. S Gorrell, vice president of the Nordyke & Marmon company. Of more than usual interest therefore is a letter which was received recently by Mr. Gorrell from Mr. Burns Lyman Smith, president of Smith Wheel, Inc., and a son of the founder of the L. C. Smith Typewriter company.

Owns 10 Autos

At the present time, Mr. Smith owns ten automobiles including several which are higher priced than the Marmon but his favorites, according to his letter, are his three Marmons.

"Without any solicitation or suggestion by anyone, I am writing this letter to you only actuated by my personal feelings and estimation of the Marmon car," Mr. Smith wrote.

"Last year about this time, I purchased a Marmon car and liked it so well that about two months later I purchased another and about three months after that a third one was delivered to me.

"I have personally driven these three cars, all told, more than 20,000 miles and I am wont to see wherein they fall short of the mark in speed, durability and other features that go to make up the desirability of the highest class of automobile, regardless of price.

Started in 1899

"In May of 1899, I started driving a car and have been driving continuously ever since; probably over 450,000 miles I have sat at the wheel. In the olden days, I drove in three Glidden tours and have driven many makes of cars. For years past, for about nine months out of the year, I have done weekly a great amount of long distance road driving. I have always had the reputation of being the fastest and hardest driver of a car in Central New York and if they will stand up under my driving they will under anyone's. All I need is one front wheel and one driving wheel on the ground to get there with and after all the abuse and grief that I have given my Marmon cars, I find them running just as well and just as free from noise as they did during the first few weeks after their purchase and with Duco finish, I cannot see wherein these cars show in appearance or service any wear at all.

"The Marmon car is a great engineering achievement that you can be justly proud of anywhere, at any time, in comparison with any other make of car."

HINDY GOES IN FOR SOCIETY.

New German President Carries On in Season.

BERLIN, July 11.—One of the greatest surprises in connection with the election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg to the presidency of Germany is aged soldiers' apparent liking for social stunts. The end of the social season has been marked by an almost uninterrupted succession of garden parties, fetes, smokers and receptions at the executive mansion, and the impressive figure of Von Hindenburg has been the center of them all.

Contrary to expectations, President Von Hindenburg also accepts social ing until midnight. While under Pres- invitations elsewhere, usually remain- ident Ebert severe simplicity marked all the presidential social affairs, Wilhelmstrasse now reverberates with military band music emanating from the executive gardens.

The president has amazed those around him by the pointed questions he puts to his guests regarding their branch of work. He appears to be fond of asking foreign guests how much German they know. His invitations include members of all the political parties, except the communist, and he does not attempt to dodge political adversaries. At a recent smoker he gathered to his personal table such political leaders as George Bernhardt. Theodore Wolff and Rudolph Hilforing, as well as a number of conservative editors.

Intimate friends of President Von Hindenburg say the best thing that ever happened to him was to force him from his seclusion at Hanover into the midst of a social maelstrom and that he appears to be growing younger every day. His political advisers declare themselves surprised at his modesty and unassuming attitude toward questions which are new to him. His favorite remark is said to be: "Well, I hope I'll learn all this in due time."

WANTED—BOOK OF ETIQUETTE

Head Waiters Blame Grey Hairs On Tourists.

PARIS, July 11. — Many French head waiters blame their premature grey hair on the exercise by American visitors of their prerogattive of eating what they like, when they like and where they like. One of the waiters was dumbfounded by the order of a trans-Atlantic visitor during the hot spell that marked the end of May. The American asked the world famed restaurant to provide as his dinner, first, strawberries, then cheese with a pot of tea and salad to finish.

That Frenchmen too, are capable og gastronomic in sins is evidenced by the action of a man at Lyons which is the home of good feeding. He was seen to sprinkle mineral water on a kidney cooked with the finest liquor and brandy. Another drank burgandy of the vintage of 1904 with tripe and sausage. But the palm has been awarded to a young American couple at Marseilles, who mixed bouillabaisse and hare in a soup tureen and ate the mixture with avidity.

WANTS WORK FOR STUDENTS

AUSTIN, July 10.—Instructions to make extraordinary efforts to find work for college students in Abilene have been issued by E. J. Crocker, state labor commissioner, to R. L. Robison, deputy labor commissioner in charge of the state free employment bureau at Abilene. There are three colleges in Abilene, Simmons, Abilene Christian and McMurray.

"I believe in giving every possible encouragement to young men and young women who are desirous of obtaining a college education," explained Mr. Crocker.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

Statistics recently made available by the United States Bureau of the Census for 1923 show these facts:

1. There are 47 cities having a population of from 15,000 to 16,500. This is the largest number in any one of the groups, ranging from 15,000 to 16,500, 16,500 to 18,500, 18,500 to 20,000, etc.

2. In the 12 cities of 500,000 and more population there is, of course, the largest population.

3. In the cities having more than 500,000 population there were 3,348 fatal accidents in 1923—the largest number in any one group—and in cities between 16,500 to 18,500 there were 117 accidents—the smallest number.

4. The cities between 22,500 and 25,000 population had the smallest number of fatal accidents—17.4 per 100,000 population, and the cities between 20,000 and 22,500 had the highest percentage, 25.9 per 100,000.

All of which will upset some popular ideas. While most accidents take place where there are the most people and the larger number of motor cars, the percentage of accidents per 100,000 population is not necessarily in those same district cities.

Regardless of the size of a city every possible precaution must be taken to prevent accidents. Nothing is more precious than human life and any means almost is justified if human lives can be saved.

The best rules are:
Always be careful.
Never take a chance.

Pierce-Arrow Coaches Are Named for Famous Race Track Luminaries

Arnold Lawson, eldest son of the late Thomas W. Lawson, financier, has recently entered the ranks of motor coach operators, having purchased two Pierce-Arrow coaches which ply between Boston and Newport, Rhode Island. These coaches are operated under the name of the Dreamwold Motorcoach company and are finished in the colors of the renowned Lawson track and stable colors, dark blue and gold, with the Dreamwold crest on the door.

Named From Horses.

Each Pierce-Arrow coach is named after famous Dreamwold horses the first on the road being christened Dreamwold Boralma, winner of the Kentucky Futurity for three-year-olds, at Lexington, Ky., in 1890. Dreamwold Boralma also won all of his four-year-old stakes, concluding with the "Transylvania" at Lexington, Ky. All of his winning stakes of $10,000 were donated to some deserving charity by the late Thomas W. Lawson, winning for Boralma the affectionate title of "Little Charity Horse."

The horse's head, modeled in bronze and set in a replica of one of his winning "Transylvania" shoes also in bronze, adorns the front of the radiator of the noted financier has been woven into the very framework of the big Dreamwold coaches which carry the Lawson colors across the roads that lead from Newport to Boston town.

After Oxford Boy.

The second coach is named after the winner of the two-year-old Kentucky Futurity in 1901 Dreamwold Oxford Boy.

Besides the racing colors and bronze replicas of the horses' heads on the radiators, the Lawson coaches contain many unique features, among them being a club smoking room with Russian tables and swivel chairs. The individual operator's compartment is an additional feature for the comfort of the passengers.

AUBURN EIGHT PROVES VALUE ON SPEEDWAY

Eight in Line Motors Are Gradually Coming Into Favor

"The American motoring public again were shown beyond question the superiority of the 8-in-line motor at the recent 500-mile classic on Memorial day," declared E. L. Cord, vice president and general manager of the Auburn automobile company.

To Better Models.

"The four and six cylinder models are fast being superceded by this type of motor on the race course because of its stamina and increased performance efficiency," continued Mr. Cord. "Everywhere the motoring public is becoming more and more familiar with the marvelous records of 8-in-line motors, and the unusual performance of this type of engine in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis was such that in 1924 and 1925 more and more cars with this type of motor will be produced and sold.

Auburn was one of the first of motor car manufacturers to realize the trend of motordom toward the economical, powerful 8-in-line motor and a year ago brought out a car of this type and at the New York show announced three new models with such distinctive body designs as to create an instant liking for their unusual appearance. Everywhere has the public accepted the Auburn 8-88's because of their unusual performance with their eight-cylinder engine and because of their distinctive body designs smacking of the much more expensive European types.

All Units Conform.

Every unit in the Auburn 8-88 line is designed in keeping with the fine powering of these cars. Performance and dependability, in addition to a distinctiveness of individual design are assured the owners of these cars. Increasing sales have greeted the 8-in-line Auburn models and the newly announced six-cylinder line, and the Auburn factory is assured of a heavier production schedule this summer than ever before in its history.

HOLIDAY ON CONTINENT.

LONDON, July 11.—Britons, like Americans, are getting more and more in the habit of taking their holidays on the continent, not so much because they are bored with their own green island but because the pound is the pound while neither the franc nor the lira looks anything like its pre-war self.

Last week, 25,000 passports were issued by the British government aand approximated 3,000, 75 per cent of them being for continental travel. Nearby France and Belgium capture most of the English, Scottish and Welsh who go abroad, but many others go farther afield into the distant parts of Europe.

FORD TRUCKS TO BE SHOWN DURING WEEK

National Ford Truck Week To be Observed In City

The coming week has been designated as National Ford Truck week and Langford Motor company, local authorized dealer, has arranged for a complete showing of Ford built truck bodies.

Entrance of the Ford Motor company into the manufacture of commercial bodies indicates a new and important advancement in this division of motor transportation since it shows that Ford is bringing into delivery and hauling services the same low cost and high value that has made the Ford passenger car the most popular in the world. The Ford truck chassis has long held the lead among light commercial vehicles and at present approximately 75 per cent of the one-tons trucks in use are Fords.

Prices Are Low.

The business man or farmer who is interested in reducing hauling costs will have the opportunity this week of becoming fully acquainted with these Ford built truck bodies which, because of the economies of Ford quantity production, are offered at low prices.

More important, however, Langford Motor company will be prepared to give demonstrations of any of these units and those interested are invited to enter their requests for demonstrations as early as possible.

The Ford-built body combinations for the famous Ford one-ton truck chassis include the open express type, the express type with either screen sides and canopy top or with top alone, and the stake body and platform body. This latter body also is of particular interest, to the farmer and truck gardener, for it is adaptable to every agricultural hauling requirement as it may be used with either grain or cattle sides. With stakes it provides unusual space for carting garden produce.

A Closed Cab.

A closed cab, adaptable for use with any of these bodies, also is provided and has grown greatly in popularity since its introduction. It is of all-steel construction, roomy, with removable panels in the back and affords complete protection for the driver in inclement weather, with ample ventilating facilities.

The displays also will include the new pick-up body, which is mounted on the rear of the Ford runabout, providing a light delivery car which meets a variety of requirements where quick delivery is an important factor.

At Langford Motor Co.

This is the Ford-built stake body and closed cab mounted on the Ford one-ton truck Chassis which is rapidly growing in popularity. The body may also be used as a platform or, as a haulage unit for farmers, may be used with grain or cattle sides. Other Ford truck equipment includes the open express type body and the express body with screen sides and canopy top.

CHEVROLET CO. OPENS OFFICES TO MEET RUSH

Two New Zone Offices Are Established This Year

The Chevrolet sales organization, endeavoring to keep pace with demand for the new car, has opened two more zone offices, one at Indianapolis, Ind., and another at Jacksonville, Fla., as additional connecting links between factory and dealer.

The company now has 26 zone offices in the United States. During the summer the Jacksonville branch will erect a large brick storage building.

The Indianapolis offic, known as Zone Office 25, has been established at 54 Monument Circle, Indianapolis. It is in charge of Charles R. Lee, who will assume the responsibilities previously spread between three zone offices in adjoining states, his jurisdiction covering all except one or two counties of Indiana. Because of the geographical convenience of nearby Chevrolet parts and car stocks, the Indianapolis office carries no stock.

According to C. S. Dawson, assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, increasing volume of sales throughout Indiana necessitated establishment of the Indianapolis office to assure prompt attention to the needs of the 87 direct dealers and the 34 associate dealers now included in the zone.

The new factory branch at Jacksonville, now in temporary quarters at 916 Main street, was opened recently as Zone Office 26 when it became apparent that the facilities of the Atlanta, Ga., zone office were inadequate for the rapidly increasing Florida trade. Under the direction of Zone Sales Manager Chester A. Smith, it will serve as the distribution center for Florida and southern Georgia.

Plans are being drawn for a two-story building to provide reserve storage for cars and a $50,000 stock of parts.

GENERAL TIRE WARNS AGAINST OVER STOCKING

Buying Fever Over Country Cause Warning To Dealers

The General Tire and Rubber company has sent word to its distributors throughout the country, warning them against overstocking with tires now that prices are rising. The warning includes an intimation that by buying more tires now than are needed for normal requirements, the manufacturers are forced to buy rubber at a high price, and dealers automatically raise prices on themselves and on the public.

Third Warning.

This is the third warning General has issued in a very few years, for the protection of dealers, the public and the industry. The first was in 1920, when there was a rising market because of boom conditions and a rise in cotton fabric just before the collapse. Dealers everywhere were intent upon buying all the stock they could, because they believed the boom would long continue and prices would continue to soar. General at that time made a rule that no General dealer could buy in advance for a three months' period more than one-fourth his purchases of the previous year. There was serious rebellion against such a rule, but the company took and kept the stand that there was no room for speculative buying in the tire industry; that there was just so much business a dealer could do in his community in a given time, and that overstocking would in the end mean necessity of serious price cuts, special sales and other artificial devices for getting rid of surplus tires to raise money. Even the rebels admitted within the year that General was right.

In 1922 there was another flurry due to the condition of the crude rubber market. Crude went up from 18 to 38 cents a pound; tires were advanced; dealers caught the old fever for buying because it was a rising market, and such tire manufacturers as permitted their dealers to overstock seriously imperiled those dealers, because the price tide ebbed as promptly as it had flowed and many were caught with larger stocks than they had any use for.

The present buying fever is again based on the advance in the price of crude rubber, which has gone from 18 to nearly 90 cents a pound in less than a year.

An unusual thing about the present price flurry is the fact that consumers as well as dealers have contracted the buying fever. By consumers are meant owners and operators of fleets of busses and trucks, in this instance.

General tire officials regard the present high price of crude rubber as temporary and due to a speculative demand, in addition to a legitimate demand caused by the introduction of more sizes because of the general adoption of the balloon tire. According to the same officials there is no sign of an immediate subsidence of the strain on the crude rubber market, and higher priced tires are likely to continue for some time.

The General factory is today behind on orders, even with the safeguards the company is trying to set up against over-buying. This, despite the fact that the factory's capacity has been increased fifty per cent within a year, indicates that there has been a very substantial, normal growth of the business in that period. Even with conditions as they are, officials point out, tires are much cheaper in first cost than they were ten years ago—and are several times as efficient in face of the fact that the cost of living has risen over 60 per cent.

FORD OUTPUT NOW AVERAGES 8125 PER DAY

Factory Shows Tremendous Gain in Last Few Months

World production of Ford cars and trucks is now averaging slightly above 8125 a day, a daily output greater than that at any previous time in the history of the Ford organization.

Astonishing Record.

This is the astonishing record of Ford accomplishment as revealed in figures just given out at the general offices in Detroit covering the combined production of domestic assembly plants, foreign plants and associated companies and the Ford Motor company of Canada, Ltd. It is not only significant as indicating the growth of the automobile industry both here and abroad, but it presents the world-wide acceptance of motor car transportation, for, while domestic plants of the company have for the last few weeks been setting new production records, foreign plants also have attained to new marks.

7,200 Daily Output.

Since the first of May the Ford assembly plants in the United States have been averaging a daily output of more than 7,200 cars and trucks and this in the face of several days when operations at one or more plants were more or less curtailed due to delays in arrival of parts.

During the same time plants in Europe and South America likewise set new records and these with the daily output of Ford cars of Canada, which supplies Canada and the British colonial possessions, have added a daily average of 925 cars and trucks to the production figure, bringing the total up above 8,125 a day.

On May 19, last, when the domestic plants went to the new high mark 7,858 cars and trucks, foreign plants and the Canadian company produced 892, setting as the record for all the remarkable total of 8,750 Ford cars and trucks.

Star Salesmen Not Needed in Selling Star Autos, Dealer

"What is a star salesman?"

This question was put up to Robert P. Fite, sales manager of the Star Motor company of California, Los Angeles branch, and developed the fact that in this organization, which has the distinction of selling more automobiles at retail than any other individual automotive firm in Southern California, hasn't a single star salesman on its staff.

"Volume production and the increasing number of buyers for new cars," says Fite, "have changed the status of the old-time star salesman. The average man today knows more about how his automobile is built and how it performs than the salesman who sells it to him.

"Factories are not depending on clever technical talkers with an overpowering knowledge of mechanics, like they used to. They follow the trend of popular demand by providing automobiles of sound merchandising value.

"This condition has spelled the doom of the 'star salesman' because the man who sells cars nowadays has only to state his case briefly, pointing out the features which other cars do not have, together with good reason why these features are necessary or desirable."

Hudson Brougham Is Favorite on Western Coast, Claim Dealers

That the newest Hudson arrival, the four-door custom built brougham, has met with instant favor here, is the claim of Stanley W. Smith, president of the Stanley W. Smith, Inc., Los Angeles, retail dealers for the Hudson-Essex, who reports that during the past week hundreds of visitors to both Los Angeles and Hollywood show rooms of his concern have viewed the new model.

"A novel manner of introducing the new brougham to the Hollywood motoring public was hit upon by the sales officials of our headquarters in that community," remarked Mr. Smith. "Utilizing the beautiful landscape patio in the foreground of the Hollywood plant as a show floor, the brougham was displayed in the full view of the thousands of motorists who daily pass the building while motoring along Sunset boulevard.

"This unique manner of showing the brougham has attracted unusual attention and many passing motorists have stopped during the past week, parking their cars near and dropping over for a glimpse of the newest Hudson."

Firestone Tires In Race Victory Shown

Crowds are seen daily in front of the display windows of the Los Angeles branch of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, where there is on exhibition one of the balloon tires taken from a car that was in the money at the Decoration day 500-mile race on the Indianapolis speedway.

Naturally a great deal of interest is attached to this casing, which participated in a contest where a new record for speed was established and when balloon tires were tested for the first time in this speedway classic.

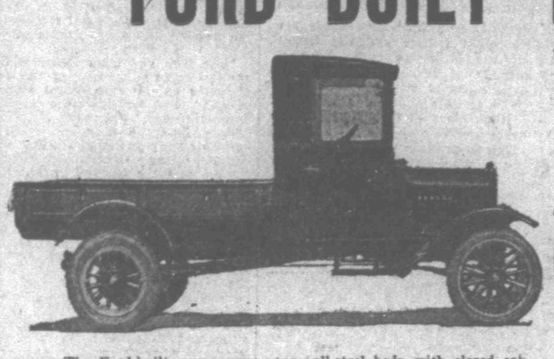

Peter De Paolo, winner of the gruelling tire battle, made the extraordinary average speed of 101.13 miles per hour, while one lap of the race was covered at better than 106 miles per hour. After the race De Paolo said that in the exciting contest he felt just as safe on the Firestone balloons on the treacherous turns as on the straightaway. And he said he finished without the usual physical exhaustion he had felt on high-pressure tires.

NATIONAL FORD AND TRUCK WEEK

SPECIAL SHOWING and DEMONSTRATION

FORD BUILT TRUCK BODIES

The Ford-built open express type all-steel body with closed cab and mounted on the Ford one-truck chassis is one of the most popular of the Ford commercial cars as it meets a wide variety of hauling requirements. Other Ford equipment includes the express body with screen sides and canopy top and the stake body which also may be used as a platform or with cattle or grain sides.

This Ford truck body provides full protection for merchandise and is meeting high favor with firms requiring this kind of delivery unit. Canopy top and side curtains protect the load from weather and the screen sides and end doors protect it from theft. Other Ford truck equipment includes the open express type body and the stake body which may be converted into a platform and for farm use is adaptable to either cattle or grain sides. The closed cab on all the bodies affords comfort and protection to the driver.

The coming week has been designated as National Ford Truck Week, and, the Langford Motor Co., as other Ford Dealers, will offer special demonstration in the Ford Built Truck Bodies.

Entrance of the Ford Motor Company into the manufacture of commercial built bodies indicates a new and important advancement in this division of motor transportation since it shows that Ford is bringing into delivery and hauling service the same low cost and high value that has made the Ford passenger car the most popular in the world.

A special invitation is extended to come in and see the displays and demonstration of the new Ford Built Truck Bodies.

RICKENBACKER ANNOUNCES CUT IN ALL MODELS

Both "Sixes" and "Eights" Included in Big Reductions

DETROIT, Mich., July 11.—A "double header" announcement just made by Rickenbacker Motor company, really marks an epoch in the progression of motor car values in that, simultaneously, this dynamic young concern announces new models and price reductions which are, to say the least, startling.

Advanced Car.

Not only that but these price reductions are on the most advanced type of car made by this concern—the "Vertical-8-Superfine."

These nice reductions range from $600.00 in the case of the Sedan to $200.00 in the open phaeton model, and $400.00 in the 5-passenger Brougham.

Increased production together with the certainty of still greater increased demand, as the result of these price reductions, enables us to anticipate a lower production cost and thus complete the "beneficient circle" which places this greater value within the reach of the buyer," says Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales.

"In this regard, the Rickenbacker policy, as exemplified in this move is just in line with oure desire to lead and maintain leadership.

"Heretofore it has been considered the correct policy to maintain a much higher price on the finer of two models made by one concern. We are, however, applying the same policy to the "Eight" as to the "Six"—the same percentage of profit precisely. This is a marked departure from conventional rules.

"We do not, of course, expect the "Eight" to take the place of the "Six," or to compete directly with it, but we do anticipate that these prices will create for the Vertical-8 a demand entirely it's own. This demand of course, will be recruited from other types of cars which heretofore have sold for about the price of our "Vertical-S."

"Six" to Stay.

"That the 'Six' will always hold it's own is a certainty. In fact, we contemplate a production of 75 per cent of "Sixes" and 25 per cent "Eights.'

"Thanks to the fact that many essential parts of the two motors are interchangeable, and even some parts of the chassis, we are able to standardize on the production of the two models quite as easily as on either.

"For the same reason, we are able to vary the percentages and to increase, or decrease, volume on either one or the other, without in the slightest affecting our overhead.

"In bringing out new body designs at this time, we are simply following the routine which has been created by custom in the past. This calls for change of body styles in July.

"The price reductions just happened to come co-incidentally—for the policy of standardizing on "Sixes" and "Eights," and of applying precisely the same measuring stick to the prices also went into effect at this time.

"It was our good fortune," says Captain Rickenbacker "to be able to feature these two important items at this time, which makes it a matter of absorbingly interesting news value to all motorists."

Crude Rubber Prices Move Up Once More

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP)—Crude rubber prices again moved up sharply today. Spot ribbed was quoted at $1.05 5-8, an advance of about 4 cents over last night's close. Futures also advanced to new high levels. Buyers are increasingly cautious and very little business was done in the local market.

Sermons by Radio Brings Down Wrath Of English Vicar

ADDLESTONE, Surrey, Eng., July 11.—(AP)—What he describes as "the lazy habit of wireless" has been strongly denounced by the Rev. A. Cuming, vicar of Addlestone, in his parish magazine. "There is no longer the packed church to which we have been accustomed during Lent," asserts the vicar, "and the reason for this is the wireless.

"Anybody who thinks he can worship God by lolling back in an easy arm chair and listening by radio to the beautiful singing of the choir at St. So-and-So's, or the oratorical effects of the 'Bishop of Kamchatka,' is simply living in a fool's paradise. People who are too lazy to go upstairs and put their things on and come to the House of God on God's day, are grossly neglecting their duty.

"We must face the fact that in wireless has been found another powerful recruit added to the phalanx of counter attractions which, in their various ways, continue to keep the people out of the churches."

The British Broadcasting company, which controls most of the wireless entertainment in the London area, has recently declined to broadcast Sunday sermons, excepting on rare occasions because of the objections of ministers that their congregations would be materially reduced if the practice was followed generally.

OLDS SHOWS BIG GAIN IN A HALF YEAR

Monthly Sales Said to Exceed Records of Last Year

Retail sales of Oldsmobiles were larger during June than any month this year and greatly exceeded the monthly average for 1924, which was a banner year for the automobile industry. This record is in keeping with the steady increase in Oldsmobile sales every month since the first of the year.

"It is more than gratifying that June has proven our big month in retail sales," says D. S. Eddins, sales manager of Olds Motor works. "This is because our exceptional retail business was made during a month which automotive authorities predicted would see a slight falling off in demand for motor cars.

"Our June sales were 31 per cent greater than the best previous month we have had this year and total 52 per cent more than the average month's business in 1924.

"Export shipments for the first six months of this year total almost as much as for the entire year of 1924. Every month since January 1 has shown an increase over the previous month, and all indications point to 1925 as the best export year Olds Motor works has had since it began shipping the little one-cylinder curved dash 'Merry Oldsmobiles' overseas in 1900."

Mr. Spence said plans were being made for the installation of municipal laboratory to test water and milk.

OVERLAND CUT CAUSES FLOOD OF BUSINESS

Orders Literally Swamp Factory, Dealers Report

A flood of orders at the Willys-Overland factory following the announcement of big price reduction on the Overland Standard Six sedan from $985 to $895, and the heavy initial production schedule for the new Overland Four Standard sedan, has necessitated a greatly increased production schedule on the models for the summer months, according to company officials.

Hire More Men.

Although Willy-Overland has maintained a production schedule since January 1 that is well above the production records of similar periods in other years, the increased business at the Toledo factory has necessitated the hiring of more men and greatly increased production.

Never before in the company's history has there been such a heavy demand for a single model as has followed the showing of the Overland Six at the eastern automobile shows last January. At every show in the country dealers booked more orders for this popular six cylinder Overland model than the factory was able to produce, resulting in a shortage on this model that has been really acute. Plant officials, however, determined to meet this special demand, have steadily increased production with 250 Overland sixes per day as their immediate production schedule. And dealers all over the country, according to factory officials, are crying for cars and hundreds of them are unable to stock Overland Six line on their showroom floors.

Lines Are Popular.

The Overland Standard Six sedan's popularity, officials believe, is due to the exceptional lines of the car, and the wonderfully efficient power plant under its hood. The car, done in a beautiful dark blue Duco finish, has the smart beaded effect at the waistline, so noticeable in the costlier makes of European cars, is further enhanced in appearance by the longer and narrower windows, deeper and narrower hood and its lowness to the road, giving greater riding qualities.

Every day finds purchasers at the Willys-Overland factory in Toledo by the dozens to drive home their new Overland Six which has the famous new Overland Six motor developing 38 horsepower. This car is built on a 112 3-4 inch wheelbase, giving ease of riding and short turning radius. Standard equipment includes heavy multipleply Fisk balloon tires, light but strong reciprocating parts and a heavy duty crankshaft, finger type throttle and spark control which, together with horn button, are mounted on the steering post, and windshield wiper.

With the increased business coming into the factory following the price reduction on the Overland Standard Six sedan, officials believe the Willys-Overland will maintain throughout the summer months the busiest production schedule in the company's history.

WEALTH HOPES LOST AS MEN ARE ARRESTED

Three Oakland Men Held For Alleged Fraud In Oil

OAKLAND, July 11.—(AP)—Three prominent Oakland, Calif., business men were in the city jail today and hundreds of stockholders in their proposed $8,000,000 oil merger which the police have branded as a "fake," are losing their dreams of wealth and affluence.

They are F. P. Davis, president of the National Patent Egg Case company; Edward P. Reeves, vice president of the company and C. E. Peacock, office man for the organization. They are held without formal charges until police complete a preliminary investigation.

For three years, according to District Attorney Earl Warren of Alameda, the three men have been selling shares in the fictitious organization which they said was backed by many prominent oil men and included practically all of the oil companies of California, excepting the Shell, Standard and Associated.

The Holding Company was to be known as the "Goleit Oil Company" and was to be the Holding Company into which all the others would pour their assets, police said.

The three men are accused of obtaining from investors $300,000, but police say that the amount may be doubled when the final check up is completed. Receipts only were given for the money invested.

The promoters, police say, told prospective investors that Great Britain was behind the merger in an attempt to secure a foothold in California oil fields.

MISSING BANK FUND STORY IS LOST IN DEATH

Bank Head a Victim Of Slow Suicide After Bank Failure

KANSAS CITY, July 10.—(AP)—A victim of slow suicide, Joseph R. Gant, banker and once a civic leader of Kansas City, died early today without revealing what became of $633,000 which he was charged with having embezzled from the defunct Centropolic State bank of which he was president.

Secrets to Grave.

With Gant's lips sealed forever, the secret of his alleged defalcations apparently will go with him to his grave.

Since the closing of the bank November 14, 1924, with losses to 2,750 small merchants and working men in the Centropolic industrial district, all efforts of state banking officials to find trace of the embezzled money have failed.

The Gant institution was a "one man" bank and examiners declared only Gant could solve the riddle of where the shortage went, but Gant refused to talk despite all pleas of officials and he maintained silence until he died.

Wasted Away.

The banker, a leader in civic affairs, disintegrated when the blow to his prestige was struck with the closing of the bank. A big man weighing 220 pounds, he wasted away until at leath his weight was only 110 pounds.

Gant took to his bed when the crash came and was irrational for long periods. During lucid intervals he reiterated that he had no desire to live and declared that he was being "crucified." He would not discuss the bank's affairs, although several times he promised that he would clear up everything.

Physicians and members of his family agreed that his death was the result of his determination not to live.

Only Two of Arctic Crew Will Not Have To Take Wheel Turn

CHICAGO, July 11.—The cook and engineer of the Bowdoin, which, with the Peary, are carrying the MacMillan-Navy party to the Arctic region for exploration, are alone of its complement who will not have to take his turn at the wheel. The Bowdoin, of the auxiliary schooner type has a passenger list of ten men. The Peary has a crew of 13 men and a personnel of 13 navy officers and men.

All members of the crew and the complement are volunteers. The crew was selected principally from three viewpoints: personality, which was ranked first; physique and ability. It requires a good personality to withstand the rigors of Arctic isolation as much as good physical condition.

Commander MacMillan is in charge of the Bowdoin, Commander Eugene E. McDonald Jr. in charge of the Peary, and Commander R. E. Byrd, U. S. N., in charge of the navy personnel and planes. McDonald also is chief of radio on the expedition.

The planes are fothe amphibian type and numbered NA-1, NA-2 and NA-3. They will have a maximum flying distance of 1,200 miles but will not be required to fly further than 500 miles from their Arctic bases at any time. They will also carry carrier pigeons and smoke bombs.

Heretofore, Arctic explorers have figured out their compass variations by the relation of the North Pole to the magnetic pole. At the suggestion of Secretary Wilbur, this expedition is armed with a new chart which makes the magnetic pole the chief factor and provides a set of variations of the compass with the North Pole playing second hand. This may simplify observations, calculations and navigation.

"I may have come from an ape, but I want legal proof," one witness said today.

GORGEOUS STUFF - By FANNIE HURST

Copyright, 1925, by
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummux", "Humoresque"

Jenny thought an UNLUCKY STAR hung over her life.

No Wonder. Things had gone pretty consistently against Jenny for a long time.

There was Tod's tragic death. And her struggle to keep things going for Toddles. And the long night hours spent addressing envelopes. No luck at the agencies.

Those were LONG, BITTER years for Jenny.

And then the LUCK CHANGED.

And, because Toddles came into her own, the years of PRIVATION and DISAPPOINTMENT slipped off Jenny's shoulder like an outworn coat.

Of such GORGEOUS STUFF are mothers made.

JENNY had reached the stage where she said that an unlucky star hung over her life.

She used to be bitter about it and cry and wad her handkerchief up into a knot and keep her head averted from Toddles, who was five, so that he should not see her wry lips and throbbing throat.

It did seem as though things had gone pretty consistently against Jenny.

Jenny was so pretty then. Her hair grew in a red aura that gave her the highly individual, exotic look of some Parisian apache.

As a matter of fact, Jenny was the simplest little soul imaginable, born and reared in Brooklyn and sent to a dancing school by an old aunt who paid the tuition.

But the startling, exotic effect of her personality helped.

When she came on the stage she was as strange looking as some tropical orchid.

It was a gay marriage, hers with Tod.

They did it one day after a matinee, with a group known as The Australian Trio for witnesses and afterward they all motored to Coney Island and ate tamales and shot the chutes.

Then the very next week Jenny and Tod started in rehearsing for the act they had dreamed and planned and Tod, practicing one of his triple contortionist somersaults, one day missed the improvised net and, poor fellow, broke his neck.

It was curious. Literally, Jenny went out like a light. Her very hair, from its flame color, seemed to pale and the green glint in her eyes to disappear. Almost overnight, as it were, Jenny became plain. In a commonplace way. Just a slimpy girl with a saddle of freckles across her nose and untidy reddish hair that she did not know how to arrange.

Eight months later her baby was born.

They were bitter years. Those six years of her life after Tod's death.

There was simply no luck in engagements. And then with a baby, too. Even if you left it at a nursing home, there had to be a job first and, with or without the baby, Jenny's luck was equally negative.

Those five years after Toddles was born, Jenny literally must have covered hundreds of miles of city blocks and stairs, haunting the theatrical offices and agencies, trying out for "acts", applying for bits here, there, anywhere.

There was only one sure way Jenny had of knowing the rent on her tiny room could be met. Addressing envelopes at night. Often, after tramping all day, little Toddles left in the care of this or that landlady, Jenny addressed envelopes far into the night—indeed into the dawn. Until her neck in the back was like a fiery furnace and splotches swam before her eyes.

More and more in those years Jenny's beauty receded.

And then, when the conviction was upon her to bitterness, that an unlucky star hung over her destiny, a girl she had known in "small time" took her to a motion picture studio. And for one month at five dollars a day Jenny worked. She was in a mob scene in a great spectacle, and when the picture was finally shown you could not find Jenny at all, but for the first time in five years Jenny had a solid month's work.

That was the month, of course, that she bought Toddles a lace picture hat with a little blue plume and the kind of blue silk socks and a net coat over blue she had dreamed of for her.

For one month things went well with Jenny. But then big spectacle pictures requiring hundreds of "extras" are not made every day, and after the month of feast there set in months of famine without precedent.

Months that frightened Jenny.

The days waiting around the studios and the evenings addressing the envelopes began to tell. Jenny began to feel faint in public places, and once, during the long hours of sitting in an anteroom awaiting a casting director, she did faint outright, in a little huddle that frightened Toddles, who was with her, so that she went into hysteria.

Poor, lovely, little Toddles, in her lace picture hat with the blue plume and the silk socks that Jenny had so painfully mended.

Geddes, the casting director, came in by chance upon that scene. One of the waiting applicants for a job had Jenny's head in her lap holding a glass of water against her teeth, and little Toddles was kissing her mother's hands and pleading:

"Mumsie, get well. Mumsie, my darling, get well."

"Gee whizz," said Geddes, the casting director, "that kid has temperament. Funny little kid with a phizz like Sara Bernhardt."

That was Geddes' way of announcing an interest in Toddles. And on those words, Jenny who was so tired, so soul-tired, opened her eyes And there was some of the green back in them some of the old green glint!

"Come here," said the casting director "now that your little mother has come through all right, and let me see you dance!"

Of course Toddles could dance, in a dear inimitable, little way Jenny had taught her. A dance that was dear to Jenny because Tod had loved it.

"Gad," said the casting director again, "that kid's got something!"

And Jenny, with years of privation and disappointment behind her, wanted to faint a but didn't. Instead she followed Toddl Geddes, the director, into a leather-padde and for almost an hour, while the dozens c cants waited outside in the room where Je had so often waited, Toddles was put through h paces. The dear little paces that Jenny h taught her. Not with an eye to any immediat professional future for the child, but out of the love of teaching this bit of loveliness which was all she had to make her life endurable.

In Geddes' mind there was no mistaking the extraordinary talent and beauty of this child.

And he was right.

Toddles was to become first a child prodigy and later a young girl in rapid ascent toward stardom.

It was simply extraordinary the way the hard cold years suddenly seemed to justify themselves with Jenny. They fell off of her like an old drab wrap. Some of her beauty came back. Not enough to enable her to get much of a foothold in pictures but enough to give her verve and enthusiasm for her capacity as mother of a shining little star.

Yes, the years justified themselves.

Jenny no longer regarded herself as born under an unlucky star.

All that she had missed she beheld now flowering in the form of her child.

And if she had been asked which of the two she would have preferred, her own ascendency or that of her child, unquestionably Jenny's retort would have been in Toddles' favor.

Jenny thought an UNLUCKY STAR hung over her life.

No Wonder. Things had gone pretty consistently against Jenny for a long time.

There was Tod's tragic death. And her struggle to keep things going for Toddles. And the long night hours spent addressing envelopes. No luck at the agencies.

Those were LONG, BITTER years for Jenny.

And then the LUCK CHANGED.

And, because Toddles came into her own, the years of PRIVATION and DISAPPOINTMENT slipped off Jenny's shoulder like an outworn coat.

Of such GORGEOUS STUFF are mothers made.

JENNY had reached the stage where she said that an unlucky star hung over her life.

She used to be bitter about it and cry and wad her handkerchief up into a knot and keep her head averted from Toddles, who was five, so that he should not see her wry lips and throbbing throat.

It did seem as though things had gone pretty consistently against Jenny.

At twenty Jenny had sung quite a part in a vaudeville act, shown quite a bit of promise as a dancer, and when Tod Sloane out of that same vaudeville act married her, their dream had been to stage a head-line song-and-dance act, with a bit of Tod's inimitable double-jointed contortionings thrown in.

Jenny was so pretty then. Her hair grew in a red aura that gave her the highly individual, exotic look of some Parisian apache.

As a matter of fact, Jenny was the simplest little soul imaginable, born and reared in Brooklyn and sent to a dancing school by an old aunt who paid the tuition.

But the startling, exotic effect of her personality helped.

When she came on the stage she was as strange looking as some tropical orchid.

It was a gay marriage, hers with Tod.

They did it one day after a matinee, with a group known as The Australian Trio for witnesses and afterward they all motored to Coney Island and ate tamales and shot the chutes.

Then the very next week Jenny and Tod started in rehearsing for the act they had dreamed and planned and Tod, practicing one of his triple contortionist somersaults, one day missed the improvised net and, poor fellow, broke his neck.
