THE PAMPA NEWS

PAMPA, TEXAS | April 23, 1995 | 50¢ DAILY/SUNDAY $1

Good Morning

AREA

PAMPA — Pre-enrollment activities for kindergarten and elementary school students in the Pampa public school system will be held this week.

Kindergarten pre-enrollment will be conducted Thursday, April 27, from 2:45 to 4 p.m. in all elementary schools. Parents or guardians are asked to bring the following items for the pre-enrollment: Birth certificate, shot records and Social Security card. All items are very important for the pre-enrollment process.

Pre-enrollment for students entering grades 1-5 will be held Monday through Thursday, April 24-27, in all elementary schools. Materials will be sent home with current students, with parents/guardians asked to make certain the forms are returned to school the next day.

New students may come to their respective elementary schools to enroll.

Transfers are reviewed and approved on a yearly basis. Parents or guardians whose child is a transfer need to fill out a new transfer form at the school the child is now attending.

MIAMI — U.S. Rep. Mac Thornberry will be visiting with Miami residents in a town hall meeting Monday.

Thornberry will be appearing at the Miami Community Center at 1:30 p.m. Monday. He will talk about the final days of the Contract With America legislative efforts and take questions from the audience on issues.

PAMPA – Another meeting on the proposed Celebration of Lights will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Heritage Room of M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium and Civic Center.

Discussions will continue on the plan to implement the stringing of lights around Pampa for the Christmas holiday season. Anyone interested in serving on committees or helping with the planning of the holiday decorations project is encouraged to attend.

WORLD

LONDON (AP) — A Beatles fan whose grandfather once lent Paul McCartney a tape recorder says he has found a 1959 tape of the group singing 16 songs, a newspaper reported.

The Sunday Times said McCartney, George Harrison and John Lennon recorded the rhythm and blues classics on the old tape recorder borrowed from the late Charles Hodgson in Liverpool when they were teenagers.

Ringo Starr hadn't joined the group, and they were performing as The Quarry Men Skiffle Group.

McCartney returned the tape recorder and it sat in Hodgson's attic until grandson Peter Hodgson, 30, was clearing the attic out last autumn, the newspaper said.

It said the 16 songs include "Hallelujah I Love Her So," by Ray Charles, and "Hello Little Girl," a Lennon and McCartney composition which the Beatles never released, but which became a hit for the 1960s band Fourmost.

The Sunday Times said a representative from the EMI record group listened to the tape.

Area schools, cities prepare for elections

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
News Editor

Panhandle residents join the rest of Texas in gearing up for elections. Area residents will choose city council members, school board trustees and consider a variety of propositions on May 6. Voting is conducted 7 a.m to 7 p.m. Early voting will continue through May 2.

City of Lefors: Three places are open in the at-large city council election. Candidates are Leonard Cain, incumbent; J.C. Callaway, incumbent; Velda (Gifford) Chadwick; Danny Gilbert; and write-in candidate Cris Brown. Voting will be at the Lefors Civic Center, 101 N. Court. Top three vote-getters fill the positions.

Lefors Independent School District: Three places are open on the seven member board. Candidates are Keith Roberson, incumbent; Barry Jackson, incumbent; Clay Lock, incumbent; and Dale Lock. Voting will be at the Lefors Civic Center. Top three vote-getters fill the positions.

Grandview-Hopkins ISD: Incumbents Troy Ritter and Greg Acker are unopposed for re-election to the seven member board. Voting will be in the school.

City of Canadian: Mayoral candidates are Valerie Clements and Jim Pollard, a current city council member. There are two positions open on the five member city council. Candidates are Robert Ezzell, incumbent; Pati Fulcher; Micah Lewis, the city's present mayor; and John Talley. Canadians will also consider a proposition adding a 1 cent sales tax with a half cent to be used for economic development and half cent to be used to lower ad valorem taxes. Voting is to be in the Canadian High School foyer, 621 S. Fifth.

Canadian ISD: Three places open on the seven member board. Candidates are Mitch Ashley, incumbent; Monte Lusby, incumbent; Ben Mathers, Roger Conn and Marty Carr.

City of Groom: Greg Lamb, incumbent mayor, is unopposed. In the race for alderman, two places are open on the five member board. Candidates are Ronny Fields, incumbent; Danny Ashford Jr., Randy Johnson and Jerry Thornton, incumbent. Groom residents will consider two propositions, which include a half cent sales and use tax dedicated to reduction of property taxes and a half cent sales and use tax to be devoted to economic development. Voting is in Groom School's superintendent's office, 304 W. Third.

Groom ISD: Three positions are open on the seven member board. Candidates are Dennis Babcock, incumbent; Adela Kotara, incumbent; Curtis Downs, and a write-in candidate, Pat Britten. Voting will be held at the Groom School.

City of Miami: Gene Hodges, incumbent mayor of Miami, is unopposed for re-election. Two incumbent city commissioners are unopposed for re-election on the five member city council. They are Joe Bill Seuhs and Raymond Bryant. Miamians will vote at the city-county building behind the Roberts County Sheriff's Office, 112 S. Main.

Miami ISD: Two positions are open on the seven member board. Candidates are Steve Hale, incumbent, and Joe Lunsford. Voting will be at the city-county building.

City of Panhandle: Three openings are to be filled in the at-large election to the five member council. Candidates are Scott J. Kennedy, Barry R. Metcalf, incumbent Carole Crawford, George Stevenson and incumbent Roy Lane. Panhandle residents will vote at Panhandle High School, 104 W. 11th.

Panhandle ISD: Two openings are available on the seven member board. Candidates are Robert O. Counts, incumbent; Billy Hoffman, incumbent; Don Bednorz, Deborah Sitz and Jay D. (Tick) Shadid. Voting will be at Panhandle High School.

April showers, spring flowers

A series of light showers throughout April have helped flowering bushes, like the lilacs above, burst forth in beauty in spite of accompanying cold weather and freezing temperatures. With more showers falling over the weekend, the way is being prepared for the numerous flowers that will be blooming in May.

Gray County video wins Golden Touch award

Gray County Adventure, the 70-minute action filled video on Gray County, won a Golden Touch award at the 13th annual Golden Nail Awards ceremony held at the Amarillo Civic Center Friday night.

The award is presented for "new, unique or innovative arts events or activities which have added a 'golden touch' to the arts fare in Amarillo and the Panhandle." Art, music and drama were emphasized throughout the video portraying Gray County history from the past to the present.

The awards ceremony, sponsored by the Arts Committee of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce, included a musical program presented by the Amarillo Symphony orchestra with vocal numbers by members of the Amarillo Opera Inc. The closing number of "God Bless America," sung by Mila Gibson, brought a standing ovation.

Other area winners included a Golden Touch award to Phillips Petroleum for "Wood on the Wing," an exhibit held at Hutchinson County Museum in Borger. Mrs. Minor Simms and Mrs. Fred Surratt of Panhandle won awards for community contributions, which included the Carson County Square House Museum.

The special award was presented to the Retired Services Volunteer Program in Amarillo, and the Summit went to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gilliland for their lifetime contributions to the arts in the Amarillo area.

Of the 300 nominations for Golden Nail awards, those from Pampa included the Pampa Civic Ballet for the annual Nutcracker production, ACT I for the many volunteer hours contributed in the three annual drama presentations; Marian Stroup, for her many contributions as leader of Bravo!, the Amarillo Opera, Inc. support group; and the M.K. Brown Foundation.

Archer scholarship

Lefors Art and Civic Club President Linda Clemmons, right, and Miss Texas Arian Archer, left, present a $100 scholarship in memory of Archer's grandmother, the late Virginia Archer of Lefors to Ginger Hannon, a Clarendon College student, Friday afternoon in the Lefors School library. The Lefors Art and Civic Club invited Archer to Lefors to present the scholarship in her grandmother's memory.

TBA head expects reforms to help banking

AMARILLO – The president of the Texas Bankers Association said this weekend that he expects to see Congress enact a variety of reforms that will help the banking industry.

Robert E. Harris, TBA president, told area bankers during their annual meeting in Amarillo this weekend that as both the state and federal lawmakers deal with banking legislation, he expects to see reforms that would be beneficial for banking. In fact, he said, during a recent lobbying trip to Washington, he was told that the banking industry wasn't asking for enough.

At the state level, Harris said that he felt a good compromise had been reached in the area of interstate banking and that legislation paving the way for home equity borrowing had cleared the Senate by a tight vote in the past week.

"We got 21 of the 21 votes needed to pass the bill," he said.

Harris said that Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives Pete Laney of Hale Center had indicated that he would not use the power of his office to fight such legislation in the lower house although he remains opposed to the concept.

The TBA president said that polls taken by the association indicate that 62 percent of the population of the state would like to vote on the home equity lending issue which is now prohibited by the Texas Constitution. Passage of the bill by the House, Harris said, would put the measure before the electorate in the November general election.

Harris encouraged bankers attending the meeting not only to contact their state legislators, but also to encourage their customers to back the proposal.

"Get your customers involved," he said.

Following the general business session Saturday morning, a golf tournament had been planned for a somewhat soggy Ross Rogers Golf Course Saturday afternoon as rain continued across the Panhandle.

The annual meeting was to conclude Saturday night with humorist Dale Minnick of Woodward, Okla., speaking at dinner and a dance to follow at the Amarillo Civic Center.

An order was entered allowing Teresa Denise Stafford to operate a motor vehicle for restricted periods.

Capitol parade draws crowd

AUSTIN (AP) – Despite muggy, soggy and overcast conditions, hundreds of Texans lined Congress Avenue south of the newly restored Capitol on Saturday for a parade honoring the rededication of the 107-year-old building.

Kids sat atop their fathers' shoulders to get a better look at the dozen floats and various equestrian groups, while others pointed and tapped their feet in time to music that ranged from marching bands to bagpipes to banjos.

Secretary of State Tony Garza led the parade, which included five floats commissioned by the State Preservation Board. The University of Texas Longhorn band was the first to march past the crowd followed by groups from as far away as Plains, Tyler and Laredo.

Asked if the weather almost made them stay away, Austin resident Rudy Montoya said, "Not when my little girl wanted to see it."

But the irony of the event's timing in the midst of "all the tragedy," Montoya said, referring to the Oklahoma City bombing this week – was not lost on him.

"I think (the parade is) real nice after all this stuff going on," Montoya said. "I think it's just part of the American spirit. We go on. We get on with our lives."

Montoya, his wife, Carol; and his 3-year-old daughter, Ashley; planned to tour the refurbished Capitol building when the parade ended.

The pink granite statehouse was rededicated Friday, punctuating a 12-year, $187-million restoration project that began in 1983 after a fire that threatened to destroy the whole building.

The other 1994-1995 NHS officer is Shanda Winton, secretary.

Principal John Kendall gave the closing remarks for the induction ceremony.

First couple interviewed under oath

WASHINGTON (AP) – Whitewater independent counsel Kenneth Starr interviewed President and Mrs. Clinton under oath at the White House on Saturday, the White House said.

"As the president has previously announced, he and Mrs. Clinton are cooperating fully with the independent counsel," said Abner J. Mikva, the White House counsel.

In a statement, Mikva declined to disclose the nature of the interviews saying Starr had asked that no disclosure be made at this time.

The president and first lady were questioned separately and for about two hours each in the residential quarters of the White House.

The private questioning occurred on a day in which the Clintons concentrated primarily on the bombing of a federal office building in Oklahoma City.

The scheduled mid-afternoon departure of a presidential golfing outing was delayed for about an hour, but it was not clear whether the unexplained postponement was related to the Whitewater questioning.

Starr took over the investigation of the Whitewater land deal in Arkansas last August from the previous independent counsel, Robert Fiske.

Starr's investigators have examined a wide variety of issues, including the possibility that money was funnelled to Clinton's Arkansas gubernatorial campaigns from banks linked to the Whitewater investment, the gunshot death of White House deputy counsel Vincent Foster and allegations of a White House cover-up.

In the past month Starr has subpoenaed 10 witnesses to testify before a federal grand jury.

FBI investigates gas attack hoax at Disneyland

WASHINGTON (AP) – The FBI is conducting a criminal investigation to find out who delivered a phony, anonymous threat that a Japanese cult planned to release deadly nerve gas at Disneyland during Easter weekend.

Justice Department spokesman Carl Stern said there was no basis for a report in Saturday's editions of The (Baltimore) Sun that authorities had stopped two Japanese men at Los Angeles International Airport a few days before the April 16 holiday and found instructions on how to make the highly toxic gas sarin.

"That just didn't happen," Stern said.

"A criminal investigation is being conducted by the FBI in an effort to identify and prosecute whoever was responsible" for carrying out the hoax against the amusement park.

Stern acknowledged that federal authorities had responded, as they do from time to time, to a reported threat at Disneyland but "this one, like others, turned out to be a false alarm."

Local and federal units, including the FBI, the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the Department of Defense, the Public Health Service and others sent people and equipment to respond to the threat, Stern said.

"It was a highly successful deployment of resources," Stern added. "As President Clinton said Friday, 'We were ready to respond, if the threat had been real'."

The Sun reported that the men were allegedly members of the Japanese cult suspected of releasing sarin in the Tokyo subway system last month, killing 12 people. The newspaper quoted federal officials who had requested anonymity.

The newspaper said authorities also found a videotape containing images about the planned attack, as well as additional evidence that the Anaheim, Calif., theme park was the target.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Congress should muzzle the FCC

Television executives, gathered in Las Vegas for a convention of the National Association of Broadcasters, have expressed justifiable concern about a new plan from President Clinton's head of the Federal Communications Commission, Reed Hundt. The FCC proposal to mandate certain kinds of programs, says one station executive, violates their First Amendment rights. The broadcasters might consider the idea that the very existence of the FCC is a violation of First Amendment rights.

The FCC has proposed a requirement that TV stations broadcast at least three hours a week of what FCC officials define as education programs for children, with the requirement ratcheting up year by year until the minimum standard is five hours per week. The cable industry would not be covered.

"I don't think Big Brother in Washington should tell broadcasters how much they should program in a given week," said Milton Maltz, chairman of a company that owns five TV stations. Mr. Maltz says his stations already air more than three hours of educational shows for kids every week, but he doesn't think the FCC is justified in imposing a mandate.

Other station executives complain that an FCC mandate would deprive them of programming flexibility, and still others note that they operate in large cities with many stations. and have chosen to position themselves in particular niches that appeal mainly to adult viewers.

All these complaints have merit. Requiring three hours a week of programming deemed to be good for children might not sound too onerous to many - and is designed not to sound onerous, to be portrayable as the minimum a responsible industry that serves as America's babysitter should do. But the requirement implicitly views the TV industry as a monolith to which a one-size-fits-all rule can be applied. Most sensible people would prefer to see television become more diverse.

The more fundamental question, however, should be this: How did the federal government manage to assume control over the electronic media in a country whose Constitution forbids government interference with freedom of the press, and how can we correct that historic error?

The short answer is that when radio was in its infancy, Congress declared that the new medium was not what it clearly was - the latest technology in the constant evolution of the delivery of information, which is the essence of what the founders meant by the press - but a "public resource." The same erroneous principle was then applied to television.

The result was the Federal Communications Commission, which has promoted monopoly, retarded technological innovation, and acted as nanny and censor during most of its its life. Its latest proposal is one more effort - using the attractive notion that educational programming for children is a good thing - to reassert government control over a communications industry whose technological developments keep leapfrogging beyond the grasp of frustrated and unimaginative bureaucrats.

When it returns from celebrating the glorious revolution of the Hundred Days, Congress should give serious consideration to putting the FCC out of its misery.

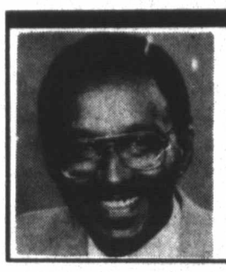
GOP could learn a few things



Walter Williams

Republicans might benefit from mistakes made by Soviet reformers. The reformers' biggest mistake was that they didn't eliminate their former Communist rulers. Their power to obstruct should have been destroyed by firing all party members, eliminating state bureaucracies and selling state-owned businesses. The reformers' second mistake was to make only incremental efforts toward the transition to free markets and private ownership of property. Their excuse was the possibility of social disruption that might have accompanied a radical transition toward liberty and privatization.

However, in the Czech Republic, Vaclav Havel and his supporters moved more radically toward a free market. And to some extent, that was true in Estonia. These reformers rightfully recognized that the sooner the transition, the less disruptive it would be in the long term and the quicker the social and economic recovery.

Republicans should profit from the communist experience and their own history. After all, 1946 saw a Republican sweep similar to 1994's with the same expectations of balanced budgets, lower taxes and less intrusive government. But as we all know, the country went rapidly in the opposite direction. If this electoral sweep is going to mean anything, Republicans must abandon all thoughts of conciliation and cooperation with Washington's tyrannical forces.

Pruning and clipping are out. Washington's bureaucracy should be viewed just as homeowners view noxious lawn weeds. If weeds are just clipped, they'll grow back stronger. You have to go after the roots. Therefore, Republicans shouldn't be talking about spending cuts here and there; they should be talking about wholesale elimination of federal agencies and programs.

For starters, Congress should eliminate the departments of: Education, Energy, Housing and Urban Development, and Health and Human Services. Not only does the U.S. Constitution not authorize most of the activities of these agencies, they've become a cancer to the nation.

A few before-and-after questions will highlight the cancer: Was student achievement higher before or after the creation of the Department of Education (1979)? Were city neighborhoods nicer and safer before or after HUD (1965) was created? Were the poor more upwardly mobile before or after the creation of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (1953)? Whatever minuscule benefits resulting from these agencies have been dwarfed by the cost.

The question is whether Republicans have the moral courage to do the right thing. We shouldn't be that optimistic. Most Republicans, particularly those in the Senate, differ little from Democrats. Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), a liberal Democrat, believes in using our earnings for handouts to cities and poor people. Sen. Robert Dole (R-Kan.), a conservative Republican, believes in using our earnings for handouts to agribusiness and banks.

The good news is that most of the freshman Republicans in the House are honest and dead serious about restoring limited and constitutional government. But even they have little understanding of our Constitution and the republican form of government it guarantees.

Look at their recent "triumphs." With just a modicum of respect for our Constitution, Republicans wouldn't have tinkered with last year's crime bill; they would have repealed it. Neither would they have voted for the recent tort reform bill. After all, our Constitution grants Congress no authority to fight street crime or set limits on monetary awards. The framers left those functions to states and local jurisdictions.

The tragedy for us is that not one congressman stands up to protest these unconstitutional acts of Congress. But worse yet is few Americans know or care.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, April 23, the 113th day of 1995. There are 252 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

April 23, 1564, is the generally accepted birthdate of the English poet and dramatist William Shakespeare. He died on the same date 52 years later.

On this date:

In 1348, King Edward III of England established the Order of the Garter.

In 1616, the Spanish poet Cervantes died in Madrid (the same day William Shakespeare died in Stratford-on-Avon, England).

In 1789, President-elect Washington and his wife moved into the first executive mansion, the Franklin House, in New York.

In 1791, the 15th president of the United States, James Buchanan, was born in Franklin County, Pa.

In 1896, the Vitascope system for projecting movies onto a screen was demonstrated at a music hall in New York City.

Is there any reason for NATO to still exist?

Charley Reese

The Russians are right about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization: It should not be expanded. In fact, it should be disbanded.

There's something very strange going on behind closed doors, which I will explain in a moment. First, let's remember what NATO is. It is a military alliance formed when the Red Army occupied Eastern Europe and when Stalin's tank and motorized rifle divisions were sitting on the border of West Germany, guns pointed west.

The Soviet Union formed its own military alliance, the Warsaw Pact, to counter NATO. You may recall, however, that the Soviet Union collapsed and is no more. The Berlin Wall came down. Germany was reunited. The Russian forces were withdrawn from Eastern Europe. The Warsaw Pact was dissolved.

So far, all is normal - on the Russian side, but a very strange thing happened on our side. NATO was not disbanded. There was not even any discussion about it. The United States and its NATO allies just kept on as if the Soviet Union had not collapsed, as if the Russian forces had not been withdrawn, so that today we have a military alliance with no enemy.

That's the first strange thing. The second strange thing was the decision to rent out, so to speak, NATO forces to the United Nations Security Council for use in the Balkan Civil War.

Surely, this must be a violation of the treaty. All it says, after all, is that if one signatory nation is attacked, the others will come to its assistance. It does not say that NATO is a separate multinational organization free to do what it pleases, including hire out as a mercenary force.

And, of course, nobody in the former Yugoslavia has invaded, said it would invade or has the capacity to invade any NATO country.

How, then, can NATO forces be lent to the United Nations? Why, in the United States at least, was there no discussion or no debate about this obvious misuse of the alliance? That's very strange. Part of the reason, of course, is that the U.S. House and Senate still have too many sheep, two-bit opportunists and internationalists. Don't retire the electoral broom yet.

Finally, the third strange thing. Again with not so much as a nod toward talking it over with the American people, the Clinton administration and other NATO countries declare that they intend to expand the alliance to include East European countries.

That's outrageous on several points. It certainly does not send a good signal to Russia that the West wants it to join the family of democratic nations. On the contrary, it is an unmistakable signal of hostile intent. Why else would a military alliance, with no enemy, be expanded to the borders of Russia?

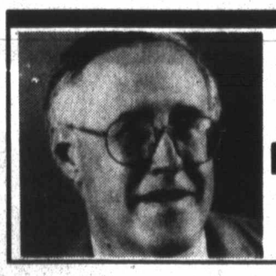
It's outrageous. How dare the U.S. government, with not so much as a by-your-leave, decide to pledge the lives of our sons and daughters to the defense of countries in Eastern Europe. Poland is a wonderful country, and God bless the Polish people, but I am not prepared to have my children die defending their borders. Our borders, yes, but not someone else's.

By just such a stupid alliance, World War II started. Britain had pledged itself to defend Poland, though it did not have the capacity to do so. Poland was taken, and 55 million lives later, the British Empire died of its wounds, and Poland was still under the iron heel of a foreign occupier, only this time it was the Soviet Union.

Europe can take care of itself. The European Union alone has 300 million people and a GNP as large as, or larger than, ours. The quarrels and entangling alliances of Europeans have twice caused world wars. Two are enough.

Americans ought to be alarmed and incensed that their own government treats them in such a cavalier manner in foreign policy matters, as if we poor peasants should have no say in what our foreign policy should be, in where our money should be spent and for what reason our sons and daughters should die.

Relating Roosevelt's legacy to the problems of today



William Murchison

The principal fascination in the half-century commemoration, of Franklin Roosevelt's death comes from the line-up of speakers - a liberal president and a conservative House speaker who claim indebtedness to him, even as they talk of dismantling his legacy.

It is some task, dismantling the Roosevelt legacy, in whole or in part. The inscription to Sir Christopher Wren in St. Paul's Cathedral comes mightily to mind: "If you seek his monument, look about you." Roosevelt's monument is everywhere. The House of Representatives, when it adjourned for Easter, had been chiseling away at it.

Nonetheless, the House Speaker directing the project regards Roosevelt as an inspiration - for his charismatic leadership, if nothing else. The first conservative post New Deal president, Ronald Reagan, is himself an FDR-admirer.

"The country we are living in today," writes a Roosevelt biographer, Ted Morgan, "is to a great extent of his making. He transformed America. The New Deal lives on in a hundred ways, from Social Security to the TVA, from subsidies to tobacco farmers to the alliance of labor with the Democratic party."

Yet the country FDR shaped is changing. The Contract With America aims punishing blows at the Roosevelt monument. Even Bill Clinton, a liberal, makes tsk-tsking sounds about dependence on government.

No less a Democrat than Chicago Mayor Richard M. Daley Jr. complains that "The Democrats are the party of Washington. They are the party of the bureaucrats. They are the party of the special interests. They are the pro-tax party."

Is this result accidental, or did Roosevelt plan it that way? Certainly he put government to work as it had never been put to work in our history, on solving problems great and small. He campaigned in 1932 as a traditional conservative Democrat but, once in the White House, found the memory of that commitment inconvenient. The New Deal expanded the power and cost of government in every direction.

Why is it so hard today to cut back that government? In large part, because of the moral mission with which Roosevelt sought to invest the lawmaking and regulatory process. It was commendable, he reasoned, for government to put the spirit over the letter of the law and succor the suffering and downtrodden. The end thoroughly justified the means - at least if he, Franklin Roosevelt, was the one saying what it "means" meant.

"Better the occasional fault of a government that lives in a spirit of charity," FDR said in 1936, "than the constant omission of a government frozen in the ice of its own indifference."

As political stances go, this one has vast appeal. Government as a super do-gooder - gee, why didn't we think of that one years ago? Actually, we did. The Founding Fathers enacted limits and restraints on government to prevent abuse of its undoubted capacity for good. Hence federalism; hence checks and balances. Roosevelt, with the New Deal, rode much of this into the dust. As long as government "did good," government was good.

That good intentions might go astray, FDR evidently found hard to imagine. Under his masterly prodding, the agencies, bureaus and departments multiplied - and so did the rules, the regulations, the guidelines. Lyndon Johnson, who claimed that FDR "was just like a Daddy to me always," took the New Deal to the next highest level of compassionate compulsion - the Great Society. The United States today is headed elsewhere, away from the suffocating cost and the moral and social disintegration fostered by good intentions run amok.

President Clinton and Speaker Newt Gingrich - the two most prominent speakers at the Warm Springs, Ga., commemoration of Roosevelt's death - make distinctive contributions to the flight from Rooseveltism: Gingrich by disassembling it, Clinton by soft-peddling his resistance to Gingrich. What is there left for unrepentant Rooseveltians? A reflection, maybe. Dingy and cracked the Roosevelt monument certainly is. But it's still the biggest thing in politics.

Letters to the editor

Still too much risk

To the editor:

Citizens of Pampa:

Some of our "civic" minded organizations along with the warden of the TDCJ - Jordan Unit have taken it upon themselves to institute a convict work program in our neighborhoods. (As of this writing the convicts have been in the Optimist Club baseball fields on two different occasions and at the Freedom Museum one time.)

I do not think the benefits of such a program outweigh the risks, even though I was repeatedly assured by the warden that these convicts were screened and did not pose a threat.

I strongly disagree with that assessment. It does not matter how many psychological evaluations, how much "good time" has been accumulated, there is always the risk that one convict who should not be in this program will be allowed to work in our neighborhoods. Apparently the Optimist Club Board of Directors and the warden think that a risk is acceptable; that is, as long as it's someone else who is at risk. I do not agree. What right do these organizations have that would allow them to jeopardize the safety of any person in our community?

If you are in agreement and do not want convicts working in our neighborhoods, speak up now, because the city commission is debating on doing the same thing that the Optimist Club and Air Museum are doing. Call all the commissioners, the mayor, the warden, the city manager and the Optimist Club directors and let them know how you feel about this matter before the upcoming city elections and before the city commission meets on April 25.

Print memorials list

To the editor:

I was sorry to hear you had decided not to print the list of addresses of agencies that receive memorials as you have done for the past several years. I feel this was a very worthy public service which many people used and appreciated.

I certainly realize the bottom line is cost, but I feel this was of more interest and use to the people of this area than some "space taking" articles released by AP (which I assume cost you money also) ... for example, March 21 Washington (AP) "Roast beef sandwiches ranks among top choices," or March 20 Crete, Il. (AP) "Teen out on bond stabs his brother ... ," or March 27 New York (AP) "Cockfight shut down by ASPCA."

I hope you will reconsider your decision. It would not need to be printed every day - a column in the Sunday paper would be helpful to many worthwhile organizations and to many individuals.

Poll: Texans split on concealed-weapons bill

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) – The slaying of Tejano music star Selena has made little change in how Texans view the concealed-weapons bill currently in the Legislature, according to a new Texas Poll.

The poll, published in Saturday's editions of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times, indicates proposals to allow Texans to obtain permits to carry concealed weapons retain the support of 46 percent, compared to 48 percent in opposition.

In January, the poll found support from 51 percent and opposition from 46 percent. However, the poll has a margin of error of 3 percentage points, leaving no clear majority in favor or opposition to the measure.

The survey included 1,004 Texans interviewed by telephone April 6-15.

"What we may be seeing is that gun attitudes are deeply held and not easily influenced by current events," said Candace Windel, the poll director.

A vote on concealed handgun permits is expected this week in the Texas House.

The negligible opinion shift is characteristic of Texans' opinions on gun issues, Ms. Windel said.

"We've seen very little change over a decade with the opinions on guns," she said. "They remain very consistent."

Debates about the controversial legislation intensified after Selena Quintanilla Perez was killed on March 31, and a former employee of the Walter Rossler Co. killed the owner, his wife and three workers on April 3. Both incidents occurred in Corpus Christi.

A Nueces County grand jury indicted Yolanda Saldivar, former manager of the singer's clothing boutiques and fan club, for murder. Former Walter Rossler Co. metallurgist James Simpson killed himself after shooting his former co-workers.

Support for concealed handguns in South Texas fell from 44 percent in January to 40 percent in April, according to the poll.

Concealed handguns win support from 60 percent in East Texas, the highest level of support in the state. Support also stood at 51 percent in West Texas, 46 percent in North Texas and on the Gulf Coast and 41 percent in Central Texas.

Texas Hispanics offer the least support for concealed handguns, according to the poll. Only 35 percent of Hispanics favored concealed handgun permits, compared to 40 percent of blacks and 49 percent of Anglos.

Area students place in Region 1-A UIL events

LEVELLAND – Area students and teams gained a number of top honors and placed in several events during the Region 1-A University Interscholastic League Academic and One-Act Play Meet held Friday at South Plains College in Levelland.

More than 1,500 participants in eight UIL districts from Texline to near El Paso competed in the meet.

The top three winners in academic events and the top two plays at regionals will advance to the state UIL meet May 4-6 at the University of Texas in Austin.

White Deer High School's one-act play, A Doctor in Spite of Himself, directed by Gene Murray, was named one of the two plays to advance to the state meet.

Ambryn Wheeler from White Deer also was named Best Actress in the one-act play results. Other White Deer cast members Derek Epperson and Tylee Sleeker also were named to the All-Star Cast.

Serving as critic judge for the one-act plays was Charles Hukill with McMurry University in Abilene.

In the academic meet, Julie Sullivan of Miami placed first in the Lincoln-Douglas Debate, while Shawn Slayton of Shamrock placed second to earn the right to advance to the state meet.

Also earning the right to attend the state UIL meet are Amanda Freeman of White Deer, second in Prose Interpretation; Misty Walker of Briscoe, first in News Writing; Paul Garrison of Shamrock, third in Current Issues and Events (Individual); Amanda Rives of Wheeler, first, and Hugh Baxter of Miami, third, in Literary Criticism (Individual); Amanda Rives of Wheeler, third in Calculator Applications (Individual); Jonathan Lotman of Miami, top scorer in biology; and Carrie Urbanczyk of White Deer, second in Computer Applications.

Named as alternatives in their respective events (having the right to attend state in case one or more of the event winners does not go to Austin) were the following:

Kristi Tidwell of McLean, second alternate, Editorial Writing; Mary Hutsell of Groom, first alternate, Feature Writing; Amy Nicholson of Miami, first alternate, Headline Writing; Rusty Coleman of Samnorwood, second alternate, Current Issues and Events (Individual); and Halee Kotara of Groom, Accounting (Individual).

Also, Cody Mingus of Higgins, second alternate, Literary Criticism (Individual); Darla McClendon, Fred Ledford and Alexander Rapstine of White Deer, alternate, Accounting (Team); Amanda Rives, Monty Long and Julie Hampton of Wheeler, alternate, Literary Criticism (Team); and Jonathan Lotman of Miami, first alternate, Science (Individual Overall).

Minding your own Business

By Don Taylor

Talking straight stuff

I'll admit that I felt cheated. I seldom throw away money, and never intentionally. So when I purchased a small gift for my daughter that turned out to be something less than desirable, I was disappointed.

I'm hooked on little books like H. Jackson Brown's Life's Little Instructions series. I find them entertaining and uplifting. So when I saw a new little book called Cheatnotes on Life, I picked it up for a quick review.

The first few quotes and thoughts I read were positive and on target. A few statements I saw included: "Be careful what you say around children. They will listen and repeat everything," "If you want to be a better writer, keep writing" and "Vote. It's your right. It's your responsibility." Pretty good advice, wouldn't you agree? I thought this would be a perfect reminder of my trip for my daughter, Christi. So I bought the book.

Later, as I sat in an airport waiting for the connecting flight home, I got the book out to read. That's when I noticed that not all the writings were as wholesome and full of wisdom as I first thought.

For example, this little book advised, "Don't work to improve someone else's business. Work to improve yourself." Careful, I thought to myself, if you work for someone else you better be helping them improve their business, too! Otherwise, you'll end up unemployed and unimproved.

Then there's the example on Page 76. It said, "Buying retail is stupid." I guess millions of us are stupid. Because I'm careful of what I buy, I get good value and satisfaction buying at retail.

However, the statements that really made me feel cheated were those lacking any moral fibre. Mixed signals like these are why our morals are decaying in America.

These statements made me sorry I bought the book: "Do what you want, not what you are supposed to do," "Consider living together before marriage. You cannot really know someone until you live with them," "Have lots of relationships when you are young ... practice safe sex" and "There is no such thing as a right or wrong decision – only THE decision."

I believe any of you who know me well understand my disappointment. The thoughts I listed above are certainly not a message any loving, caring father would share intentionally with an 18-year-old daughter.

Straight Stuff

I can't understand why we continually confuse our young people with conflicting messages. Mixed signals never send a clear message. If our young people need anything today, they need basic knowledge of right and wrong.

For me, most issues are black and white. Yes, I am aware that many so called "ethics" courses and seminars are teaching that all of today's issues are merely shades of gray. They tell us that we must be guided by our feelings, not by God's laws or the wisdom of our forefathers.

Here's the straight stuff. There is no feel good substitute for truth, honesty and fairness. Lying is lying whether in politics or in marriage. Honesty is still the only policy. And fairness means fair to both parties, not it's fair as long as I get what I want.

We can eliminate many of the mixed signals our young people are getting by setting the example ourselves. Let's call lying, lying; not truth deficit statements. Let's call stealing, stealing; not appropriation of another's property.

Most issues are still black and white. I'd like to keep the term "the graying of America" referring to our aging population, not becoming a reference to our mixed signals and moral decay.

First American has coloring contest

First American Bank is sponsoring a home improvement coloring contest for children ages 3-10.

A bicycle will be awarded in each First American Bank community. To enter, pick up an entry form at the nearest First American banking center, color the picture and return it to any First American location no later than July 20, 1995. Winners will be selected by an independent panel of judges.

According to First American loan specialists, spring is the time of year when many homeowners take on the task of making improvements to their homes. The jobs may be as simple as adding a fresh coat of paint or putting up new wallpaper, or as complex as adding a new room or in-ground swimming pool. In either case, First American can help with a home improvement loan tailored to meet the homeowners' needs.

First American Bank offers home improvement financing for $2,500 up to $50,000 for qualified improvements being made to your home. On loans up to $7,500, First American even offers an unsecured home improvement financing option which can save customers both time and money when the loan is closed.

Once spring arrives, the volume of request for home improvement financing increases considerably. Typical qualified home improvements being made at this time of the year include room additions, kitchen remodeling, new in-ground swimming pools, new decks, patios and driveways, central heating/air conditioning, siding and fencing.

Jones & Co. ranked No. 1 brokerage firm

ST. LOUIS – Edward D. Jones & Co. was recently ranked number one in a study of the nation's 21 leading full-service brokerage houses.

The ranking was conducted by an independent financial consulting and testing service on behalf of Money magazine. Results of the survey appeared in the April 1995 issue of that publication. The survey, the largest of its kind ever conducted, was performed by interviewers posing as novice investors wishing to invest $40,000 safely.

"We're extremely pleased with the results of the survey," Roger D. David, the local Jones representative in Pampa, said. "Edward D. Jones & Co. has always believed that investors should be treated as we would like to be treated if the roles were reversed. The results reaffirm our commitment to that goal."

The study ranked the 21 financial-services firms in five categories. Edward D. Jones & Co. excelled at explaining products and mutual fund sales charges correctly and completely, asking about investors' time horizons and not pushing in-house investments. Jones, in fact, does not sell in-house products of any kind.

"The article points out the importance of doing your homework before choosing which investment representative and which firm to handle your investment dollars," said Kevin Raybon, another local Jones representative in Pampa. "After all, your financial future depends on the choices you make."

Edward D. Jones & Co. traces its roots to 1871 and is the fastest-growing investment firm in the nation. The firm's focus on the values of entrepreneurship, community involvement and personal service has helped it become the largest financial-services firm in the nation with more than 3,300 offices nationwide.

Edward D. Jones & Co. offers a variety of investments, including certificates of deposit; municipal, government and corporate bonds; mutual funds and common stock. Jones is one of only a handful of investment firms that serves more than one million customers and is the only firm that serves individual investors exclusively.

Pampa locations are 222 N. Cuyler, (806) 665-7137, and 1540 N. Hobart, (806) 665-2432.

Rig count adds 9

HOUSTON (AP) – The number of oil and gas rigs operating nationwide added nine rigs this week to 685, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday.

A year ago, the number of rigs running was 732.

Of the rigs running this week, 337 were exploring for natural gas, 334 for oil and 14 were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The count peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. It dropped to a record low of 596 in the summer of 1993, exceeding the previous low of 663 in 1986.

The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Louisiana accounted for the bulk of the increase with six. New Mexico gained three, Oklahoma and Wyoming two and Colorado one.

'Houston Life' to continue without 'Post'

HOUSTON (AP) – Houston Life magazine, which was distributed by The Houston Post, is branching out on its own and hoping to pick up the newspaper's thousands of subscribers now that The Post has shut down.

The Post announced it was closing Tuesday. Hearst Corp., owners of the rival Houston Chronicle, then bought The Post's assets.

The first 15 issues of Houston Life – a 100-plus-page magazine featuring articles on well-being, personal health, travel and the state of the city – were included in Sunday editions of the newspaper. But Houston Life was not part of The Post.

Magazine officials said Friday the publication would continue to circulate 300,000 issues as it did with The Post. A single newsstand copy will be sold for $2.95 and a yearly subscription will go for $24 beginning with next month's issue.

"Obviously it has thrown a major curve into our plan," said Houston Life publisher Mark Inabnit. "We're looking at this as a blessing in disguise."

People have flooded the magazine with requests for subscriptions, Inabnit said.

"The response from readers and advertisers has been extraordinary," Inabnit said Friday. "The great sadness over the loss of The Post has been accompanied by an equally passionate commitment to Houston Life."

Inabnit said he hoped the transition would resemble that of New York Magazine when its distributor, the New York Herald Tribune, closed decades ago. That magazine went out on its own and now circulates to more people than any other city magazine in the country, he said.

Houston Life will remain the second-largest circulation city magazine, Inabnit said.

It is owned by Gulf Communications, a private, locally-owned and operated business.

Conoco Inc. to pay $1.5 million in fines

WESTLAKE, La. (AP) – Conoco Inc., will pay more than $1.5 million in fines to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration for an October explosion and fire at its Westlake refinery.

One worker was killed and another hospitalized.

In addition to the fine, Conoco also agreed to perform a corporate-wide process safety management audit, said Joseph Dear, OSHA's Assistant Secretary of Labor.

"The settlement agreement avoids the burden of possible prolonged litigation and furthers the efforts of both OSHA and Conoco to provide safe workplaces," Dear said.

Ten contractors working at the refinery also were cited for various alleged violations as a result of the investigation. They face $175,000 in penalties.

The explosion and fire occurred Oct. 28, 1994, during startup operations on a catalytic cracking unit. A large isolation valve leaked, allowing flammable gases to reach an ignition source.

Conoco also has refineries in Ponca City, Okla.; Billings, Mont.; and Commerce City, Colo.

Chamber Communique

The Chamber Board of Directors voted to approve and support "Any Willing Provider" and the "Patient and Physician Act" legislation that would grant any physician, dentist, pharmacist or mental health care professional the right to participate in any managed care system. Letters of support were sent to the Texas House Insurance Committee members.

The Chamber Retail Committee, chaired by Rick Hall, is co-sponsoring the Pampa Part-nership Golf Tournament (May 20-21) with Mickey Piersall, Pampa Country Club, and David Teichman, Hidden Hills Golf Course. $50 T-Box and Green signs are being sold and can be ordered by calling the Chamber at 669-3241.

Desk & Derrick to meet Tuesday

The Desk and Derrick Club of Pampa will have its monthly meeting Tuesday at the Pampa Country Club.

Speaker for the evening will be Roger David with Edward D. Jones and Co. David has been an investment representative since 1986. He graduated from Hardin-Simmons University and worked in the oil and gas industry from 1973 to 1986.

David's presentation will cover natural gas prices, whether interest rates will go up or down, and the overall stock market outlook.

Social time will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, with the dinner and meeting starting at 7 p.m.

The public is invited. Reservations may be made by contacting Esther McAdoo at 665-9345 or 665-3404.

THE ETERNAL WORD OF GOD

"The voice of one saying, Cry. And one said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as of the flower of the field: the grass withereth, and the flower fadeth, because the breath of Jehovah bloweth upon it; surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth; but the Word of our God shall stand forever." (Isa. 40:6-8; I Pet. 1:24-25.) The Word of God claims to be as eternal as He is. It is yet to be proven otherwise.

It was by the eternal Word of God that all things were created (Heb. 11:3; Psa. 33:6-11.) John writes: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made through Him; and without Him was not anything made that hath been made." (Jn. 1:1-3.) "And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld His glory, glory as of the only begotten from the Father), full of grace and truth." (Jn. 1:14.)

God's eternal Word is truth (Jn. 17:17.) This is because it comes from the one, true and living God who cannot lie (Heb. 6:18; Titus 1:2.) God's eternal Word saves (Jas. 1:21.) His Word saves by revealing the things of God and the mind of God to man (I Co. 2:6-13.) through this infallible information, faith is established in the heart of man (Heb. 11:6; Jn. 20:30-31; Rom. 10:14-17.) It is God's eternal Word which informs alien sinners of what they must do to be saved (Acts 16:30-34; 2:37-38.)

It is God's eternal Word by which all men shall be judged in the last day. "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my sayings, hath one that judgeth him: the Word that I spake, the same shall judge him in the last day." (Jn. 12:48.) In the last day, when all shall stand before the judgment seat of Christ, the works of men shall be measured by the Word of God (Rev. 20:11-15.) The words of men will not avail in the day of judgment. Jesus said: "Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy by thy name, and by thy name cast out demons, and by they name do many mighty works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." (Matt. 7:22-23.) "Iniquity" means lawlessness. The only way to be saved is the Lord's way and that way is to be found in the eternal word of God.

Crime of the week

A rural Gray County burglary relieved a family of eight guns, a video cassette record and two boxes of ammunition.

A residence 14 miles east of town, located at Cockrell Cattle Co., was burglarized between Feb. 24 and 26, when thieves pried open the front door of the residence.

Taken were a Panasonic VCR, a box of 30-06 shells, a box of 222 shells, a Browning 30-06 semi automatic skeet shotgun, a 410 gauge with pistol grip and sawed off barrel, Stevens 12 gauge shotgun, Winchester .22-caliber rifle with scope, Remington .22-caliber rifle with scope (unknown brand), pellet gun (unknown brand), .22-caliber rifle, Remington 222 rifle.

Total loss is estimated at $2,100.

Pampa/Gray County Crime Stoppers wants any information leading to the arrest and indictment of the person or people responsible for this crime of any other felony crime or narcotics trafficking. Tipsters remain anonymous and are eligible to collect up to $1,000 cash reward by calling 669-2222.

HIGH SCHOOL SOCCER

PAMPA — Four boys and three girls from Pampa were named to the All-District 3 Soccer Team this season.

Joey Mendoza was a first-team pick for the Harvesters while Luke Long and Abel Del Fierro were named to the second team. David Kludt was honorable mention.

In the girls' division, Marisol Resendiz gained first-team honors. Candice Ramirez was named to the second team and Lucinda Silva was honorable mention.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL

PAMPA — The District 1-4A baseball game scheduled Saturday between Pampa and Dumas was canceled because of cold, wet weather.

The contest was rescheduled for 4:30 p.m. Monday at Harvester Field.

Pampa is tied with Randall for third place in the district standings with a 4-3 record. Dumas leads the league with a 5-1 mark.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACK

CANYON — The Groom track teams competed in a regional qualifiers meet over the weekend at Randall.

In the boys' division, Justin Ritter finished second in the 800 and Seth Ritter was third in the 200.

In the girls' division, Groom's 800-meter relay team of Stephanie Ollinger, Melissa Anthony, Martie Phillips and Sandie Conrad finished third. Conrad was third in the 200.

Amarillo High, Borger, Palo Duro, Canyon, Friona, Stratford, Randall and Panhandle were among the school entered in the all-division meet.

The Groom girls won the District 1-1A track championship this season.

PGA GOLF

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — It was hard to tell whether nerves or an angry wife were more bothersome to Jeff Sluman following a 6-under-par 66 Saturday that gave him a two-shot lead heading into the final round of the Greater Greensboro Open.

Sluman rushed to Pinehurst, a little more than an hour's drive away from Forest Oaks Country Club, for his sister-in-law's wedding following his stellar round.

"I knew I would be late" for the 6 p.m. ceremony, Sluman said. "I am going to get killed when I get there. ... Hopefully, I'll just miss the salad."

Sluman then rushed out of the post-round interview accompanied by a Guilford County sheriff's deputy.

"The state trooper said I could go 100," Sluman joked.

Sluman's scorecard did the talking for his golf game. It showed three birdies over the last four holes as he completed 54 holes at 15-under 201. Peter Jacobsen, who had a 69, was at 203.

Kirk Triplett, the second-round leader, carded a 71 and was three shots off the pace.

The 5-foot-7, 140-pound Sluman is searching for that elusive second victory after winning the PGA Championship in 1988. He entered the $1.5 million GGO riding a frustrating string of 17 straight rounds without a sub-70 score, but has gone 65-66 after opening with a 70.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist's basketball coaching search entered its second week with seven candidates but no public front runners, athletic director Jim Copeland said.

On Friday, former Dallas Mavericks' assistant Bob Weiss submitted his name to a growing list of candidates.

"I am interested in looking at that situation," said Weiss, who currently is an assistant at Seattle. "I don't know if I would be a good mix for them or if they would be a good mix for me, but I would be interested."

Coach John Shumate resigned April 13, with three years left on his contract, after coming off his sixth losing season in seven years.

Weiss said he and his family like Dallas, where he was an assistant from 1980-86.

He was a head coach for San Antonio (1986-88), Atlanta (1990-93) and the Los Angeles Clippers (1993-94) before accepting a job in November with Seattle.

Copeland returned to Dallas Friday from Pittsburgh, where he had interviewed two more candidates. Copeland said Pittsburgh was only a meeting point. He said he has seven candidates, but would not share names.

Virginia assistant Tom Perrin and North Carolina-Greensboro coach Mike Dement have confirmed being interviewed earlier this week in Greensboro. A source within the Southwest Conference told The Dallas Morning News that Duke assistant Tommy Amaker and Boston University head coach Dennis Wolff also have been interviewed.

Dement said he has had "brief conversations" with Copeland.

What's changed since baseball left?

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

The Montreal Expos, led by Marquis Grissom and Larry Walker, were the top team in baseball last summer. Bo Jackson was a star attraction in the majors, Michael Jordan was the best draw in the minors.

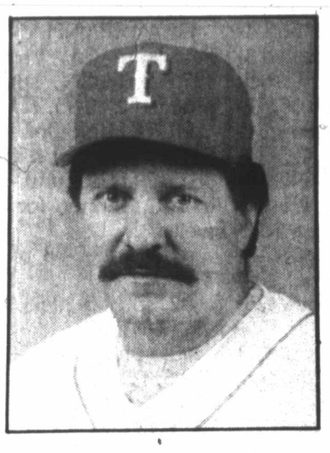
Beginning Tuesday night, baseball starts trying to make its biggest comeback since the New York Mets rallied in the 10th inning to beat the Boston Red Sox in Game 6 of the 1986 World Series.

"Welcome to the Show" is the sport's new slogan, and fans will be asked to return, as if all is forgiven after a strike that robbed them of record chases, wrecked the World Series and ruined the spring with replacement ball.

What they'll find, along with free tickets, half-price food and plenty of autographs is a game full of changes.

Five of the last seven World Series MVPs have moved on — Orel Hershiser, Dave Stewart and Pat Borders have signed with new teams, Jack Morris has retired and Frank Viola is in limbo.

The last two AL Cy Young winners — David Cone and Jack McDowell — have been traded. Four league MVPs — Jose Canseco, Terry Pendleton, Andre Dawson and Kevin Mitchell have switched clubs.



Kevin Kennedy

More than one-tenth of the major leaguers have moved since anyone last threw a pitch that mattered. There was a 12-player trade between the Houston Astros and San Diego Padres, the largest swap in 37 years, and a recent weekend in which nearly 100 players changed clubs.

Cal Ripken remained one of the few constants, entering the season 121 games short of Lou Gehrig's record string of 2,130. The Baltimore Orioles star is scheduled to break the mark Sept. 6 at Camden Yards.

The New York Yankees got McDowell, John Wetteland and Tony Fernandez, the Atlanta Braves acquired Grissom and the Toronto Blue Jays took Cone.

The Expos lost Grissom, Walker, Wetteland and Ken Hill while the Kansas City Royals traded away Cone and Brian McRae.

The Colorado Rockies spent more than $35 million for Walker and Bill Swift, and had a little left over to sign starting pitcher Omar Olivares. The Milwaukee Brewers could only afford to add injured Joe Oliver, and backups David Hulse and Fernando Vina.

"I'm sick about it," Detroit Tigers general manager Joe Klein said. "What has happened to Kansas City and Montreal is very, very unfair."

After eight months of bickering between Donald Fehr and Bud Selig led to the longest labor stoppage in U.S. sports history, this is the bind baseball is left in: the haves vs. the have-nots.

And there still isn't any kind of real agreement on revenue sharing.

"It was like someone took a Day-Glo yellow highlighter and ran it over the problem," Atlanta general manager John Schuerholz said.

Andre Dawson, Tom Browning and Benito Santiago all took pay cuts of more than $3 million. Some, like Mitchell, Julio Franco, Shane Mack and Pete Incaviglia, left for Japan.

Had they stayed, this is what they would faced as opening day approaches:

— A 144-game season, cut down from the regular 162. That's enough games to make for interesting races for the expanded playoffs, but surely not enough to allow for Ken Griffey Jr., Matt Williams and others to chase Roger Maris' home-run mark.

Not since 1972, when the players struck for two weeks, has a season started with a trimmed schedule.

This year, teams can expect to play some one-game series, and also play the day after the All-Star game in Texas. Yankees manager Buck Showalter and Montreal manager Felipe Alou will manage the the All-Star squads.

— Umpires have been locked out since Jan. 1, and crews of former major and minor league umps, plus college and high school amateurs, have been calling exhibition games. Similar crews are set to work in the regular season if the real umpires do not return.

Players indicated they won't think about going on strike again, at least until next spring. They've also been signing more autographs, talking more to fans and throwing more balls into the stands. There still is no signed agreement with owners.

— With spring training shortened to three weeks, players are rushing to get ready. Even with rosters expanded from 25 to 28 into mid-May, look for pitchers to develop some sore arms by trying to work more than five or six innings in early games.

— Bo Jackson, Kent Hrbek and Jack Morris have retired and Michael Jordan has gone back to the NBA. Doc Gooden and Darryl Strawberry are suspended.

— There are six rookie managers with new clubs: Phil Regan (Baltimore), Kevin Kennedy (Boston), Bob Boone (Kansas City), Johnny Oates (Texas Rangers), Bruce Bochy (San Diego) and Jim Riggleman (Chicago Cubs).

— The Rockies will play at 50,000-seat Coors Field. Kansas City will play on grass at Kauffman Stadium.

— Greg Maddux is aiming to extend his record streak to four straight Cy Young Awards, and Frank Thomas is bidding to become the first player ever to win three consecutive MVPs.

Dave Winfield, now with the Cleveland Indians, begins the season as the active home run leader with 463. Lee Smith, who signed with the California Angels, is the career saves leader with 434. Smith's setup man may be Mitch Williams; "The Wild Thing" lived up to his reputation right away, sending two San Francisco Giants to the hospital after hitting them in a spring game.

Getting ready for regionals are Wheeler's (l-r) Travis Stevens, Shane Sparlin, Bryan Judd, Jason Porton, Jason Bradley and Keith Rose. The Wheeler boys won the District 1-1A track title this season.

Area schools get ready for regional track meets

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Editor

WHEELER — Wheeler advances six individuals and a relay team to the Regional 1A boys track meet next week in Levelland. That's a pretty fair-sized group of qualifiers for one school, but coach Jim Verden had estimated sending a few more to regionals going into last weekend's district meet.

"We were looking to have a couple more qualify, but we're pleased with the ones we have going. We've got a good bunch," Verden said.

Wheeler outlasted Shamrock to win the district championship last weekend at Wheeler. The Mustangs finished with 128 points while the Irish came in second at 116.

The 400-meter relay turned out to be one of the key events in beating out Shamrock as Wheeler's Travis Stevens, Andy Francis, Keith Rose and Brian Judd teamed up for a 45:54 and a gold medal. Shamrock, which had won the1600 relay, placed third in the 400 relay.

Rose and Stevens also earned individual medals. Rose won both the 100 and 200 while Stevens claimed first in the pole vault.

Other Mustangs headed for regionals are Clift Fletcher in the shot, Shane Sparlin in the long jump, Jason Porton and Jarod Ledbetter in the 110 hurdles. Fletcher, Sparlin and Porten finished first in district while Ledbetter came in second. Sparlin and Jason Bradley are also alternates on the 400-meter relay team.

Verden said Fletcher, Rose and Stevens probably have the best shot at getting to the state meet.

Fletcher — who along with Ledbetter is the only senior among the regional qualifiers — is unbeaten in the shot this season.

"If Cliff can throw his usual 52 or 53, he should go to state," said Verden. "Keith should go in the 100. Travis should get out in the pole vault. That should be a very competitive event. We're looking at some 14, 15-foot vaulters entered."

The Mustangs are going to a regional qualifiers meet this weekend in Elk City, Okla.

Wheeler also has two regional qualifiers in the girls' division. Kendra Jolly in the 800 and Jese Wallace in the 100 hurdles were both winners at the District 1-A meet.

• • • • •

MIAMI — The numbers were plentiful for Miami, a district champion in the girls' division.

"We're real fortunate. We've got about 16 girls out and they do a good job," said Miami coach Dwight Rice. "Six of them will be going to regionals."

Lindsay Gill will be competing in two events at regionals, which will be Friday and Saturday in Levelland. She won the 300 hurdles and placed second in the high jump at district.

Misty Barton and Danita Kauk finished 1-2 at district in the 100 hurdles. Kauk is also an anchor for the both of Miami's regional-bound 400 and 800-meter relay teams. The 800 relayers won the gold medal at district while the 400 relay placed second.

Erin Locke, a member of the 800-meter relay team, tied a school record earlier in the year when she went 5-0 in the high jump. However, she missed out on the regionals in the high jump when she placed third in at district. Other relay team members are Kassie Seitz, Debra Williams and Tamara Williams.

Gilbert, Snead share lead in Legends tourney

LA QUINTA, CA (AP) — Gibby Gilbert and J.C. Snead fired 8-under par 64 to take a 1-stroke lead after two rounds of the $1.1 million PGA Seniors Legends team tournament on Saturday.

"J.C. and I are buddies," Gilbert said. "We play a lot of practice rounds together and it is fun to be in contention for this tournament."

Gilbert and Snead's two-day total of 129 is 15 under par over the difficult Stadium Course at PGA West. The par-72 course has been shortened to about 6,800 yards.

Al Geiberger and Dave Stockton posted a 7-under par 65 to pull into a tie with the team of Lee Trevino and Dave Hill with a two-day total of 130, one shot behind the Gilbert and Snead. Lee and Hill shot a 6-under par 66.

"We had enough wind today to make it interesting," Stockton said. "I'm really surprised at the low scores. The greens were harder than you'd expect with this many low scores."

Astro pitchers are unprepared for 1995 opener

HOUSTON (AP) — Except for No. 1 starter Doug Drabek and No. 5 Mike Hampton, the Houston Astros' rotation is not in top form as the season opener nears.

Lefthander Greg Swindell, the No. 2 starter, has missed much of his work with a strained rib cage on the right side. Two starters, Shane Reynolds and Darryl Kile, have endured control problems.

Still, the Astros are healthier and deeper in pitching than most National League teams.

The Philadelphia Phillies will enter the season with two of their starters, Tommy Greene and Bobby Munoz, on the disabled list and their No. 1 pitcher, Curt Schilling, hampered by elbow soreness.

New York Mets ace Bret Saberhagen has been bumped to No. 3 in the rotation because he is not deemed in condition to open the season.

Concern over Swindell is minimal because, unlike the last two springs, he has a healthy left shoulder and is not carrying 30 extra pounds.

"Being in shape made a big difference for him," manager Terry Collins said. "He and Shane were throwing a lot in Houston in simulated games so we didn't have to get his shoulder in shape."

Swindell could start the second game of the season Thursday in San Diego.

Kile, who led the league with 82 walks last year, has arm strength to spare but seems plagued by self-doubt and fleeting mechanics.

Hampton, 22, a lefty, has command of his curve and slider. His fastball has pickup up speed — to 92 mph. He has effectively mixed in a change-up that tails away from right-handed batters.

Recruited by Notre Dame as a football player, Hampton has the most rigorous training regimen on the team.

"I'd rather be in shape and not have a spring training than not be in shape and have spring training," he said.

"He's not intimidated by anyone," Collins added. "He's got that makeup. He and Shane Reynolds are the first ones in the weight room every day."

Cowboys select backup for Smith

IRVING (AP) — There was no first-round lighting from Valley Ranch on the first day of the NFL Draft.

The biggest thing the Dallas Cowboys did was get a competent backup to Emmitt Smith.

The Cowboys kept trading down Saturday, and it was almost seven hours into the draft before they selected Sherman Williams, the 5-foot-7, 190-pound running back from Alabama, who rushed for 1,341 yards last year.

The Cowboys, known for bold moves in the past under former coach Jimmy Johnson, traded out of the first round from the 28th position after the San Francisco 49ers made a stunning move to get J.J. Stokes.

Then Dallas traded again down six spots in the second round and finally picked Williams, a quick, darting runner with powerful legs and good open field moves. Williams was the 46th pick in the draft.

"We got the running back we wanted," said Dallas coach Barry Switzer. "We needed a good insurance policy. We'll keep using Emmitt like we've always used him but he had some health problems last year. Sherman is an exciting back. He's very tough."

The pick means the Cowboys won't try to sign free agent Lincoln Coleman or Blair Thomas.

NFL becomes more offensive-minded

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The NFL found a better way than tinkering with the rules to end its scoring drought.

It found better offensive players.

For the first time in 31 years, the first five names in the annual draft were offensive players, headed by Ki-Jana Carter, the Penn State running back, who ended up in Cincinnati after the Bengals traded up for the first pick with expansion Carolina.

Moreover, eight of the first 10 players chosen were on offense, and running backs went with the 17th, 18th, 19th and 21st picks of the first round, including Heisman winner Rashaan Salaam of Colorado, taken by Chicago. It came a year after ther NFL had modified a number of rules to increase scoring.

It wasn't just a surplus of offensive players that caused the run.

One of the top defenders, tackle Warren Sapp of Miami, plummeted all the way to No. 12, where he was taken by Tampa Bay. That came after reports he had tested positive six times for marijuana and once for cocaine.

Sapp confirmed Saturday that he had tested positive for marijuana in his freshman year and again this year at the league's scouting combine. But he called the other reports "ridiculous, a fabrication," and said he was "a little bitter" and "caught off balance by the reports."

And his agent, Drew Rosenhaus, said: "Anybody who thinks Warren Sapp is the 12th pick in the draft is on drugs."

Sapp had once been considered a candidate for the top overall pick and until Saturday was considered a cinch to be taken in the top six. The fall could cost him $1.5 to $2 million.

There were three defensive linemen taken ahead of him — Kevin Carter of Florida by St. Louis at No. 6, Boston College's Mike Mamula by Philadelphia at No. 7, and Florida State's Derrick Alexander by Minnesota at No. 11.

Sapp also was passed up at No. 8 by his college coach, Dennis Erickson, who now is at Seattle and used his pick on wide receiver Joey Galloway of Ohio State.

The New York Jets, at No. 9, also passed on Sapp, saying they wanted either Carter or Mamula if they were going to take a defensive player.

But Erickson, who was desperate for a wide receiver with speed, staunchly defended Sapp.

"Those allegations are untrue," he said: "I ought to know. I was there. To me, whoever put that out is harming somebody for some reason I don't know. To me, it's the most unfair thing I've ever seen."

Sapp also had an impact on the 10th pick.

Cleveland, which needs to replace Michael Dean Perry, to whom Sapp has been compared, passed him by, instead trading down with San Francisco for four draft picks.

That let the 49ers pick wide receiver J.J. Stokes of UCLA, who had the same pre-draft "negative" — a 4.6 second 40-yard dash time — as Jerry Rice. Rice, whom Stokes might eventually replace, has set a slew of NFL receiving records.

"There's a great tradition of wide receivers with the San Francisco 49ers that goes way back to the Billy Wilson, R.C. Owens days and it's something that we feel is incumbent upon us to maintain," said San Francisco coach George Seifert, who last year traded up and got standout defensive tackle Bryant Young.

Ki-Jana Carter, meanwhile, was one of three players in the first nine from Penn State's powerful offensive unit. The others were quarterback Kerry Collins, taken by Carolina with the fifth pick it obtained from Cincinnati, and tight end Kyle Brady, taken by the Jets with the ninth.

"It's sweeter than winning the Heisman," said Carter, who was runner-up for that trophy, just as Penn State, 12-0, was runner-up to Nebraska in the polls for the national collegiate championship.

"It just shows how good we were," Brady said. "I'm biased, but I think we were the best ever."

After Carter, the Jacksonville Jaguars made offensive tackle Tony Boselli — who has been compared to future Hall of Famer Anthony Munoz, who also went to Southern California — their first-ever pick. Houston followed with Steve McNair of Alcorn State, the highest any black quarterback ever has been chosen.

Then Colorado receiver Michael Westbrook went to Washington and Carolina took Collins, a player it coveted all along. The Panthers felt that Carter would get banged up early playing behind the kind of offensive line an expansion team would put on the field.

Then came defense. Of the first eight defenders taken, seven were linemen, most of whom are pass rushers.

It started with Kevin Carter, who went to the newly transplanted St. Louis Rams, and Mamula, taken by the Philadelphia Eagles in a trade up with Tampa Bay. Then it was back to offense, with Galloway to Seattle, Brady to the Jets and Stokes to the 49ers.

Minnesota took Alexander, the Bucs chose Sapp and New Orleans went for linebacker Mark Fields of Washington State.

Buffalo, rebuilding its offensive line, took Ruben Brown of Pitt, and Indianapolis selected defensive tackle Ellis Johnson of Florida.

The Jets, with their second pick of the round, took pass rusher Hugh Douglas of Central State in Ohio; the New York Giants picked running back Tyrone Wheatley of Michigan; the Los Angeles Raiders took running back Napoleon Kaufman of Washington, and Jacksonville traded up to get yet another running back, James "Little Man" Stewart of Tennessee.

Detroit then chose Luther Elliss, a defensive tackle from Utah, who was expected to go higher, and Chicago made Salaam the fourth running back to be chosen in a five-pick span.

Oilers convinced McNair was right draft choice

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers figure Alcorn State quarterback Steve McNair is the guy to take them to a Super Bowl, but Oiler fans shouldn't look for the team's first pick in Saturday's NFL draft to pay dividends any time soon.

"Steve is going to be our third quarterback," Houston coach Jeff Fisher said after the Oilers made McNair the third selection overall. "Somewhere in the second to third year he can compete for the starting job.

"It's against my philosophy to play him immediately."

Houston may have taken a gamble in McNair, who put up gaudy statistics in college but whose Division I-AA competition at Alcorn State was considered suspect by some.

"Personally, I don't think there is any difference," McNair said Saturday. "If you got the ability and the skills to be a great player, ... that is what they should look at."

McNair said he could live with whatever the Oilers have in mind, but added he would be ready as soon as possible.

"I am going in with the attitude that I can go in and be ready to play the first game with the Houston Oilers as a quarterback," he said. "If I have to sit out for a year or two, I am a team player. Whatever they need, that is what I am going to try go give them."

The Oilers, whose 2-14 mark in 1994 made them the NFL's worst team, are convinced they made the right choice but figure McNair will need tutoring from their new offensive coordinator Jerry Rhome. Among Rhome's previous coaching stops was Dallas, where he groomed quarterback Troy Aikman.

"I think it's a great pick and we're going to have a blast with him," Rhome said. "He has no limitations. The guy can use sideline to sideline. He has mobility. He can throw on the run.

"We're going to be able to do a lot of things we normally wouldn't be able to do with an offense."

Any offense for Houston in the next season would be an improvement. The Oiler offense finished 26th in the league in 1994.

While McNair is learning the faster and more defensively sophisticated NFL game, it appears ex-Rams quarterback Chris Chandler, a free agent signed by Houston earlier this year, will carry the load. Cody Carlson, who had been expected to take over for the departed Warren Moon in 1994, wound up hurt most of the year and still is recovering from knee surgery.

McNair threw for 14,496 yards and 119 touchdowns in his four-year collegiate carrier, including 44 TDs in 1994.

The 6-foot-1, 224-pounder is characterized as a tremendous athlete with Steve Young-type ability. Oiler coaches were dazzled with his cannon-like arm. In his workout for Houston, McNair threw a ball 73 yards against the wind.

"Steve is going to be in our eyes a franchise player, a franchise quarterback," Fisher said. "He's been the guy for quite some time. As you go through this process you evaluate the players by position. Steve has been our guy. We've been more convinced since the workout."

McNair, who finished third in Heisman Trophy voting, is the only player in NCAA history to gain more than 16,000 yards in total offense during his career. He holds the collegiate record by averaging 400.5 yards in total offense per game and is tops in the NCAA with an average of 8.18 yards gained per play.

Fisher said while the Oilers obviously needed help immediately, particularly in the defensive line, he was not about to seek a quick fix.

"I want to put together a winning football team for years to come," he said.

"The thing that stands out is he's a great competitor and great poise," said Oilers scout Glenn Cumbee, who has followed McNair for four years.

"He's got that Tom Landry look that you can't tell what's going on inside, but he's got fire inside. This guy has some magic. His future is so bright."

Crenshaw recalls emotional moments of Masters win

By RON SIRAK
AP Sports Writer

Back in a corner of Augusta National that crackles with beauty, lost in the brilliant azaleas and flowering dogwoods near the placid water that guards the 16th green, drowned in the cheers of an adoring gallery, Ben Crenshaw found the real rewards of friendship, loyalty and love.

It was there, in the long shadows of a glorious late Sunday afternoon, that Crenshaw first let thoughts of Harvey Penick creep into his consciousness and filter through a mind fixed on winning the Masters.

"No. 16 is a gorgeous sort of amphitheater with people on both sides, and the people were just so warm," Crenshaw said, his voice still choking when he thinks about it. "Gosh, people were standing up on both sides. It was just — I could feel that they were pulling for me."

It was No. 16 that would make or break Crenshaw's mission — his passion — to win this Masters for Penick, his trusted teacher who died a week earlier at age 90.

Davis Love III was in the clubhouse at 13 under par. Crenshaw came to the 16th tee also at 13 under.

"I was thinking birdie," Crenshaw said by telephone from Austin, Texas, after a week of rest. "I knew coming across the water at No. 15 where I stood. I knew that 16 was a birdie hole if you have the right sort of shape on the shot. It can go right to the hole."

That's exactly what his 6-iron did, landing well right of the hole and following the contour of the green to within 3 feet of the cup.

As Crenshaw walked to the green, toward the birdie putt that would give him the lead for good, the crowd, thousands of them jammed around the tiny par-3, roared. Those that were sitting stood.

They knew Crenshaw's story. They knew that Penick had been his teacher since Crenshaw was a child. They knew that the day before the Masters started, Crenshaw, 43, carried Penick's casket to its final resting place.

"They were pulling for me," Crenshaw said, "but they were pulling for so many other things. They were pulling for me to do something, if I could, in some small way to repay a man who had given me my life in golf."

That life as a golfer began at age 6 or 7, Crenshaw said.

"Harvey cut down an old mashie, an old 5-iron, and made a beautiful leather grip for me and taught me the grip," he said. "My father, who was a very fine player, started me together with Harvey.

"They placed my hands upon the club."

The lesson was simple. Feel your swing. Trust your instincts. It was the same lesson Penick gave Crenshaw a week before his death when he told him the key to putting was just to trust himself — and don't let his hands get ahead of the club head.

"They never put a complicated thought in my head," Crenshaw said of his father and Penick. "It just has to do with rhythm and timing. Harvey would always tell me to 'swing like Ben Crenshaw,' meaning, 'trust your swing.' "

Crenshaw rode that trust to as courageous a victory as anyone has ever fashioned, ranking with Ben Hogan's U.S. Open triumph in 1950, only 16 months after a near-fatal auto accident, or 46-year-old Jack Nicklaus in the 1986 Masters.

It was masterfully carved over the treacherous back nine at Augusta where Crenshaw played 35 consecutive holes without a bogey.

"There were a couple of times during the week when I could have made a bogey," Crenshaw said. "I made possibly the best two-putt I ever made at Augusta on Friday on No. 14. I was 40 feet from the hole and I had to play about 25 feet of break going over that knob."

Sen. Hutchison says two banking regulations among the ten worst

Pampa bankers Don Babcock, left, and Randy Watson, right, visit with Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison following her speech at the District 8 Texas Bankers Association annual meeting Saturday in Amarillo.

AMARILLO – U.S. Senator Kay Bailey Hutchison told area bankers this weekend in Amarillo that two of the 10 worst federal regulations identifed by the Republican Regulatory Reform Task Force apply to the banking industry.

Hutchison, co-chair of the task force, told the 8th District meeting of the Texas Bankers Association that the Truth in Lending Act and the Community Reinvestment Act are targets for immediate reform.

"The chief complaint with truth in lending is that it is interpreted so broadly and strictly that is has now become a vehicle for borrowers to avoid their obligations," Hutchison said. "Violations of the act are most often inadvertent technical violations. The original purpose of the bill has been lost in a mountain of excessive and unnecessary paperwork."

The second issue making the task force's worst 10 list is the Community Reinvestment Act of 1977, she said.

"Its paperwork, examination and compliance costs are out of hand. Banks are deluged in regulatory paperwork. This wastes resources and time," she said, "and it hampers rather than promotes greater community investment."

She said that other regulations listed by the task force include the Endangered Species Act, the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act and OSHA (Office of Safety and Health Administration).

The junior senator from Texas said her first major victory on the floor of the Senate was passing a moratorium on additional listing to the Endangered Species Act, a move she said which has a direct impact on the Texas Panhandle.

Hutchison said she attached the amendment to a Defense Appropriations Supplement Bill because she knew the President had to sign that bill. The result, she claimed, is that the Arkansas River shiner won't be listed until after Oct. 1, 1995, by which time she said she thinks Congress will have passed a reauthorization bill more closely defining actions that can be taken under the Endangered Species Act.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service had previously held hearings in Kansas, Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle on listing the Arkansas River shiner, a minnow-sized fish used for bait, as an endangered species. Before the passage of Hutchison's amendment calling for a six-month moratorium, the fish could have been listed in August 1995.

Hutchison also told the bankers that she expected Congress to start its march toward a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution and that she would continue to fight for term limits.

Mexico government to privatize natural gas distribution

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Foreign companies will be allowed to bid for concessions to build and operate natural gas pipelines, under a proposed reform to Mexican petroleum laws, said Energy Secretary Ignacio Pichardo.

In a press conference late Friday, Pichardo said the move would boost investor confidence in the market for secondary petrochemicals. He also said the reform would liberate the import, export and marketing of natural gas.

The state will continue to control the exploration, exploitation and processing of natural gas reserves.

Hunt continues for second bombing suspect; rain stalls efforts at rescue

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) – Holding toys from what once was a day care center, drenched and chilly rescuers searched, stopped, then searched again Saturday through the bombed-out, shaky ruins of the federal building. The second of two original suspects remained at large.

The suspect, one of the men whose sketches had been circulated worldwide, is described as square-jawed, with thick hair and a tattoo on his left arm, and he may not be the only one the FBI is seeking.

"We have at least one and there could be others," said Weldon Kennedy, special agent in charge of the investigation. "There is much work left to be done."

Much work remained at the bomb site as well.

Rescue efforts, stalled Saturday morning by stiff winds, 20-degree wind chills, lightning and steady rains, resumed at mid-morning as workers began the heartbreaking job of digging through the part of the collapsed building that had housed a day care center.

"The firefighters are picking up toys and looking at them and handing them to each other," said Jon Hansen, assistant fire chief, clutching a red plastic fire truck in the downpour.

"It's hard to describe, really, having kids in there, hope that there may be a child still alive," he said. "A broken toy is maybe a sign of broken hearts."

In the early afternoon, rescuers were ordered to leave again for fear the building was shifting. They resumed, only to be ordered out again because of an unauthorized person on the site.

The death toll remained at 78 Saturday, with another 150 people still unaccounted for. More than 400 others were injured in the blast caused by thousands of pounds of homemade explosives packed into a Ryder rental truck.

The first memorial service was held for a bombing victim. The Rev. Joe Grizzle encouraged Pamela Cleveland Argo's loved ones not to dwell on the many "why's" going through their minds and asked for prayers "for the multitudes who will sit where we sit" as scores of funerals follow.

Timothy McVeigh, who turns 27 on Sunday, was in the El Reno Federal Correctional Center pending court hearings Thursday. He was charged Friday night with "malicious damaging and destroying by means of an explosive a building or real property, whole or in part, possessed or used in the United States."

Other charges were expected to follow. The government has said it will seek the death penalty.

Brothers Terry Lynn Nichols, 40, and James Douglas Nichols were ordered held as material witnesses in separate court appearances.

In Wichita, Kan., U.S. District Judge Monti L. Belot asked Terry Nichols if he had enough time with his lawyers. Nichols said, "I don't know if I ever will. It's all a jumble to me."

An Oklahoma City judge sealed both the arrest warrant and the supporting affidavit.

In Michigan, James Nichols made a brief court appearance in Detroit and was ordered held until Tuesday, when another court date is planned.

On Saturday, authorities searched Terry Nichols' home in Herington, Kan.; a day earlier they impounded his pickup, combing it for explosives.

Authorities say McVeigh and Terry Nichols are Army acquaintances. The affidavit for James Nichols' arrest said McVeigh listed James Nichols as his next of kin when McVeigh was booked in Oklahoma.

A relative told the FBI of hearing that James Nichols was involved in constructing bombs last fall and that he had large quantities of fertilizer and fuel, the affidavit said.

In Oklahoma City, authorities, fearful the federal building would collapse, used time-lapse cameras to determine if cracks in the nine-story building were widening.

The letters "DB" were spray-painted on many places in the rubble to identify the locations of bodies.

Fire Chief Gary Marrs said four bodies had been located in another building across the street. Some had not yet been removed, he said.

He said rescue squads – working two-hour shifts – wore protective suits, and some areas were disinfected because bodies were beginning to decompose inside the building. Cool weather was keeping the problem under control, he said.

Ray Blakeney, director of operations for the state medical examiner's office, said 35 of the dead had been identified, including seven of the 13 children whose bodies have been recovered.

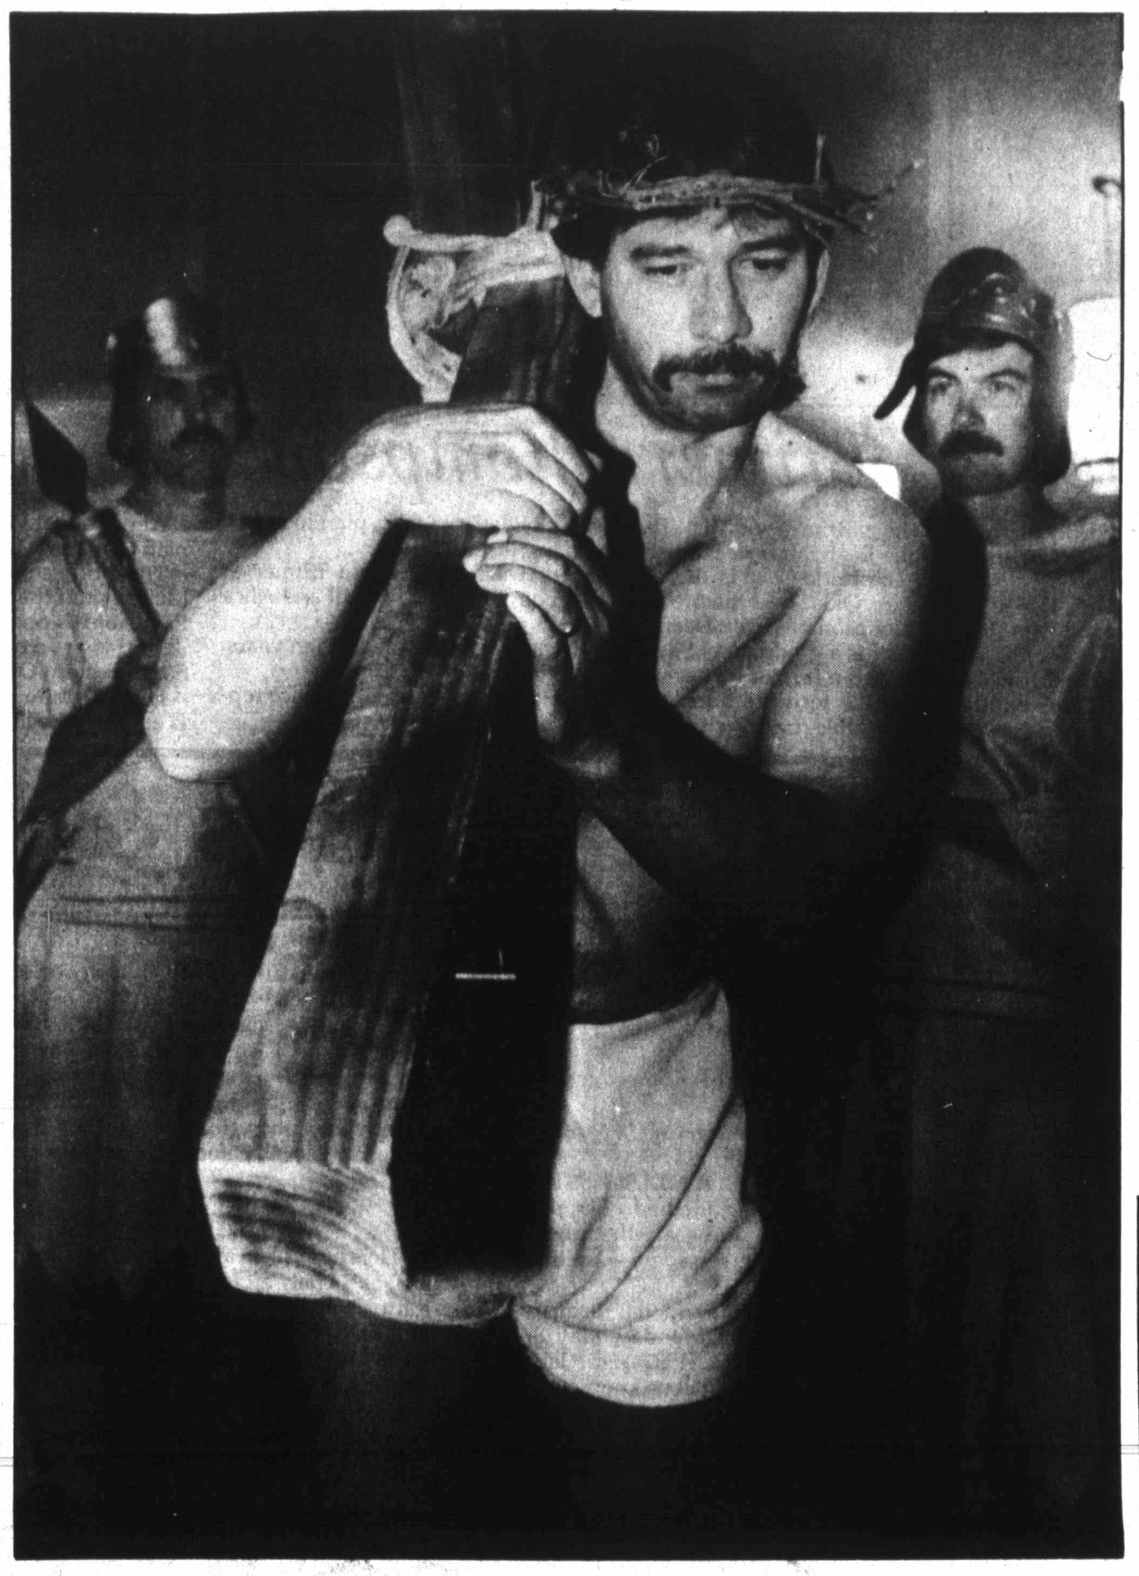
The day he wore my crown



Top left and right photos: Over 40 cast and choir members are performing in the production.

Middle photo: Mary Magdelene, portrayed by Mistie West, prays at the tomb where the body of Jesus Christ was laid to rest.

Above: Judas, played by Stan Schochler, comes to deceive Jesus Christ, played by Randy Muniz, and deliver him into the hands of the Roman soldiers.

Top middle photo: Portraying Jesus Christ in the Calvary Baptist Church production of "The Day He Wore My Crown" is Randy Muniz. The Roman soldiers are played by Bill Crook and Billy West.

Above: Rick Crosswhite plays the part of Demetrius, the character who narrates the story of the crucifixion.

Lower left: Pontius Pilate, played by Brian Wall, symbolically washes his hands of the crime of sentencing Jesus Christ to die on the cross at the insistence of the people. His servant is played by Raynor Muniz.

Lower right: Jarius, played by Jerry Mote, brings the body of his lifeless daughter who is played by Shelby Crook, to Jesus Christ (Muniz). Christ performs the miracle of bringing the child back to life.

Tonight, concludes the Calvary Baptist Church presentation of "The Day He Wore My Crown," the drama about the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ as seen through the eyes of a man named Demetrius.

The story unfolds as Jesus enters Jerusalem for His final week on Earth, followed by His arrest, crucifixion, burial and resurrection. Some parts of the drama are violent and graphic in an attempt to portray the story as it actually happened.

Scheduling conflicts are the reasons why this Easter pageant is taking place a week late but Gary Jamison, director of the production, said, "The resurrection of Christ is something people ought to think about year round."

Since early January, 40 church cast and choir members have been preparing for this production. Even included was a two-day choir retreat with "lots of intense rehearsal," said Jamison.

Portraying Jesus Christ is Randy Muniz with Rick Crosswhite as Demetrius. Brian Wall is cast as Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor who crucified Christ by the popular demand of the people.

The musical drama will be presented this evening at 6 p.m. at Calvary Baptist Church located at 900 E. 23rd.

Help a child develop positive self-esteem

Consider this quote: "A good thing to remember, A better thing to do Work with the construction gang, not with the wrecking crew." — Unknown. Are you on the construction gang or the wrecking crew in regard to self-esteem and children?

Self-esteem is a personal assessment of one's worth. It is the total of how you feel about yourself. This includes everything that is yours — your mind and ideas, your body, your possessions, your activities, your friends, and your family.

Self-esteem is one of the most critical ingredients of mental health. To a large extent, the way you feel about yourself will determine how successful you will be in life.

People who feel good about themselves are willing to take more risks, try things in different ways, look at issues from different viewpoints and are better able to cope with frustration and stress. As a result, they will h ave a greater opportunity to succeed at whatever they take on in life.

The family has a big influence on whether or not an individual develops positive self-esteem. Parents and other family members are like psychological mirrors.

Encouragement, respect, and positive feedback help children feel better about themselves. Criticism, putdowns, and constantly being told that efforts aren't good enough can tear children down. When these comments come from family members or significant others, they have even more power, whether they are justified or not.

Here are 20 ways to help children like themselves:

(1) Be a good role model. Let your children see that you feel good about yourself.

(2) Give affirmations every day, both verbal and non-verbal: smile, display their art work, etc.

(3) Emphasize the positive things children do each day, not the negative.

(4) Praise effort by giving of encouragement. Believe in your children.

(5) Give each child some one-on-one time every day: a story, a backrub before bed, time to listen to their day, etc.

(6) Take children's feelings and thoughts seriously; never belittle them. Listen and empathize.

(7) Help children understand their own feelings and acknowledge that we do not all have the same feelings.

(8) Assign meaningful and appropriate tasks to do. This helps children feel capable and develops a sense of accomplishment.

(9) Help create situations in which your children can experience success. Provide lessons or opportunities where they can develop a sense of accomplishment.

(10) Recognize the uniqueness of each child, expressing your love and acceptance "just for being you."

(11) Have reasonable expectations for your children and help them to set reasonable goals for themselves.

(12) Set limits and give boundaries; this helps children feel safe and make sense out of their world. Define rules clearly and enforce them consistently.

(13) Spend time together; participate in shared activities together.

(14) Treat your children with respect.

(15) Show children how much you care for them by giving hugs, winks, smiles, and telling them how much you love them.

(16) Discuss problems with our children without using judgment or blame.

(17) Talk with your children about their activities and what is important to them. Show them you are interested in them by attending their games, school events, award ceremonies, etc.

(18) Be available. Be someone your children can count on for support when they need it.

(19) Have a family special plate or placemat to be used on special occasions and days of special recognition.

(20) Keep a photo album on each child; look through it with your child occasionally.

(21) Make a periodic cassette recording of your children.

(22) Use humor when possible.

(23) Leave notes for your children in secret places for them to discover, giving encouragement, expressing love, etc.

(24) Write thank you notes for a gift received or a job well done. Read them to your children if needed.

(25) Give some undivided attention to your children's play once in a while. This might be the only setting in which some children

Valorey Foreman (left), Amy Knutson, Nicolle Brown, Cindy Young, Casey Lanham, Ana Anguiano, Angel Grant and Christy Woodall will graduate May 11 from the secretarial science business program at Clarendon College — Pampa Center. With them is Jan Haynes (center).

The secretarial science business certificate program

It was in the fall of 1982 that the Secretarial Science Program was initiated at Clarendon College — Pampa Center. The program is a vocational program designed to benefit both students and employers in need for an updated training in secretarial skills. The secretarial course is offered to students of all ages. The age range of the students are from 17 to 6 0.

The students have varied backgrounds, ages and goals. The program reflects the individual approach (specific courses may be taken in specialized units) but the primary objective of the program is to provide professional preparation for persons intending to occupy secretarial positions in the business offices of the greater Pampa area.

All students will be proficient at the end of the nine months in courses such as bookkeeping, typing, receptionist skills, business math, business English, computational skills, records management and business communication skills.

Advanced computer applications such as Word Perfect, and Lotus 1-2-3 are also taught.

Since 1984, the school has produced approximately 165 graduates that completed all phases of the program. Many others have attended taking specific courses in certain phases such as word processing or Lotus.

The complete program consist of four phases of nine weeks each. The students attend classes Monday thru Thursday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Free placement of any Secretarial Science student is available all businesses in Pampa and surrounding areas. Businessmen may call the college at anytime to inquire about availability of secretaries or list their job openings.

The graduates listed will be available to go to work May 12, 1995. The next Secretarial Science class will begin August 4. Contact Jan Haynes at the college for more information.

Congratulations, Clarendon College — Pampa Center graduates of 1995!

Public speaker is peeved about place on the program

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: I am a public speaker. I am usually asked well in advance, and I spend many hours organizing my presentation. The groups for whom I speak often meet at night and at some distance from my hometown. I never ask for a fee.

So what happens when I arrive? I sit through a long, drawn-out business meeting, listening to the treasurer's report, the minutes of the last meeting, and the strategic planning for next month's bazaar.

After every item of business has been handled, I'm finally introduced to a weary group of clock-watchers.

The experience that capped them all was the time I was asked to tell about my trip to Europe. Immediately after my introduction, one member jumped up and said, "I went there in 1948, and it was just wonderful..."; then she went on and on. The chairperson made no effort to interrupt her, although she kept glancing apologetically at me. I never did get to deliver my talk.

Abby, why can't the speaker be told how much time is allotted, and then be put on the program first, as a matter of simple courtesy?

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: The speaker is traditionally the last on the program — "the icing on the cake."

If I were a guest speaker at a dinner where the business meeting went on and on, I would pass a note to the program chairman letting him (or her) know that I would hate to reduce my speech by half its length, but if I were not introduced within five minutes, I would have no other choice.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: As a concerned mother and a person who reads your column faithfully, I greatly respect your ability to obtain accurate information on a vast range of subjects. Please check with your resources and tell me if there is such a condition as habitual lying. Can it be cured? Is it hereditary? Can it be overcome with age and maturity? I have heard that there is such a condition, and that medication is available. Is this true?

EDIE MILLER, GUYMON, OKLA.

DEAR EDIE: People lie for a variety of reasons, but the trait is not necessarily inherited. This is not to be confused with exaggerating, which is stretching the truth or embellishing it to make a better story.

If your child has an ongoing problem with lying, you and your husband should take him (or her) to a child psychologist to see what makes the child prefer avoiding the truth. I have been told that anti-depressants are somewhat effective, but the cure is psychotherapy.

* * *

DEAR READERS: One of the most rewarding benefits of being Dear Abby is that I learn something new every day. Today's lesson: The author of "A Dog Named Sex," which I published on April 7, is Morty Storm of Brooklyn, N.Y. I have enjoyed that wonderful essay for years, and never knew to whom to attribute it. Thanks, Eppie!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Major achievements are indicated today, especially when you're motivated by unselfish purposes. In doing for others, you'll advance your own cause as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your words will carry more weight than you realize today, especially for a pal who is in dire need of encouragement. Make time to be his/her booster.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You have two assets that can be profitably utilized today. One is your commercial instinct for public needs; the other is an awareness of where the market is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You shouldn't attempt to do everything single-handedly today if you have back-up people who could help. Success is more likely if the efforts are collective.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Too much playtime today will not gratify your restlessness. To feel fulfilled, you must do things that are both productive and constructive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) All work and no play could get you in a rut today. If you keep your nose to the grindstone in the early hours, spend time in the evening relaxing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This will be a good day to take care of assignments with deadlines. You will be a strong finisher today and you can finalize several critical chores.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you feel restless today, why not briefly visit two friends you haven't seen for a while? It will give you much pleasure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Persistence will pay off today in arrangements that could contribute to your material security. Your goals in these areas are achievable at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This will be your kind of day. In situations where you call the shots, excellent results are probable. However, don't add any dead weight to your team.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be your own person and do your own thing today. In situations where you perform independently, significant progress can be made.

Andy Richter is sitting pretty on the couch for 'Late Night'

By FRAZIER MOORE
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) – His office door at NBC headquarters says "Telly Savalas," but, no, there's not a shred of doubt the occupant is really Andy Richter, all 28 years and six feet, two inches of him, relaxing after a Late Night taping.

Richter may be the last of a dying breed: the couch-stationed talk-show sidekick. That couch is at the right hand of red-haired, even taller Conan O'Brien, who inherited Late Night from David Letterman in September 1993.

Back then, before the O.J. Simpson trial made instant celebrities of half the population of Los Angeles, both O'Brien and Richter seemed remarkable for their abrupt, TV-generated fame.

All the more remarkable was the pounding Richter took from critics, who singled him out for many of Late Night's perceived sins.

No sweat, says Richter, recalling those early days with something not unlike pleasure: "It was exciting even to be on TV and have BAD reviews written about you."

Fortunately, that brand of excitement is mostly behind him.

Just mark the thundering chant of the audience in Studio 6A when Richter is introduced: "An-DEE! An-DEE!"

"What's great about Andy is, when he does something, you really notice," says Cynthia Gill, who edits a monthly Late Night with Conan O'Brien fan magazine from her home in Canon City, Colo. "Andy's not just a yes-man. When he needs to, he can shine."

The ratings are up 6 percent over last season's, and averaging 1.8 million households since January (against 1.5 million for its CBS challenger at 12:35 a.m. weeknights, The Late Late Show with Tom Snyder).

"A show like ours is all referential to something we've done before," Richter says, "so I can see why in our first few weeks people would turn us on and go, 'What the hell IS this?'

"We just needed a little time. Like with a friendship: You laugh at things your friends say because you know 'em."

Bits that crack up Late Night cognoscenti (and leave others just shaking their heads) include "Things We Didn't Get to Make Fun Of," "In the Year 2000," "Staring Contest," "Andy Richter's Self-Help Tapes" and "Right Side-Wrong Side" – during which viewers playing the Official "Late Night" Drinking Game get to take a swig each time Conan calls Andy "the spawn of Satan." Cheers!

Andy Richter poses on the set of NBC's 'Late Night with Conan O'Brien.'

By all indications not the spawn of Satan, the oddly cherubic Richter grew up in Yorkville, Ill., outside Chicago.

After film school and a stretch as a production assistant for TV commercials, he enrolled in an improvisation class. "But not to get into Second City and then move on to Saturday Night Live," he cautions. "I just felt, 'This would be fun.' "

It was, and so was playing Mike Brady onstage in The Real Brady Bunch and joining Chris Elliott in his film Cabin Boy.

Then, in Los Angeles two short years ago, Richter was filling out job applications when he got a phone call from New York.

"Getting hired for Late Night," he says gratefully, "saved me from interviewing to be an assistant manager at a movie theater in Westwood."

"I get to be the guy on the couch. I also get to be a sketch-comedy performer. I also get to be the smart-ass Ed Bradley type and tape remote bits, shoving a mike into people's faces at the Miss America pageant or the NBA Finals."

And after all that, he gets to go home to his wife of one year, writer-actress Sarah Thyre, with whom he hopes to have children "and a really nice family life."

"I have a great job," he says, but sounding very Andy, adds, "to me it's still a job. And if there were some horrible power failure which meant we couldn't do the show one day and we had to put on a rerun, I'd say, 'Ahhhh, that's too bad.'

"But I'd be in the next cab home, and happy to be going."

Rock 101 by New York's strangest success story

By EILEEN LOH
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – How to Become a Rock Star.

Lesson One: Form a band. Practice for a few months. Then glean a gig in one of New York's trendiest clubs. Get invited back.

Catch the eye of the club's taciturn owner, and watch him swoop in with cash support and record company contacts.

Voila! You're signed by a major label!

Right. Keep dreaming, kid.

It really did happen like that last year, to Fossil. The New Jersey quartet had been together only six months when Hilly Kristal, owner of the Lower East Side punk launchpad CBGB's, saw them play twice and offered to manage them.

One year later, the band is under Kristal's golden wing, promoting its self-titled album and watching the video for its single, "Moon," climb the alternative-video charts.

The Cinderella story does have a few snags, lead singer Bob O'Gureck says.

"We don't really have any money; we're sponging money off Hilly right now." "We didn't have a huge advance."

The first gig at CBGB's was less than sensational. Club management, says O'Gureck, "said we needed to practice."

"But our demo tape piqued their interest enough," and one month later Kristal summoned them to his office.

"He said, 'Are you guys interested in getting a record deal?' We were like, YES! ... But we only had seven or eight songs at the time," O'Gureck recalled. "So he told us to keep writing."

Sire Records' subsidiary, hifi recordings, snapped them up and released their four-song EP, Crumb, in November. The full-length "Fossil" followed in January.

It's been a big year for Fossil.

They've gone from playing dive bars to appearing regularly at CBGB's. They've gained the respect of other musicians and attention from media types.

Not bad for someone who had to support himself as a "cuisine transport coordinator" in a Jersey restaurant, O'Gureck says.

After college, O'Gureck and guitarist Randy Staley joined a "very techno" combo called The Clowns. "It was basically a programming band. All keyboards, no guitar ... real cheezola."

Food For Thought by Danny Bainum

Elegant chicken salad for a special lunch combines grilled chicken breast halves, a little diced ham and gorgonzola for richness. The crunch comes from matchsticks of red and yellow peppers, water chestnuts, red onion rounds and crisp-tender asparagus.

Defrosting in the microwave? At medium-low-30 percent power - figure on five minutes for each pound of food.

• • •

Almost any fruit tastes better when it's baked under a crumb topping. Combine 1 cup less 2 Tbs. flour, 1/3 cup brown sugar, 4 tsp. white sugar and 1/4 tsp. cinnamon. Cut in 1/3 cup butter. Top 4 cups of cut-up apples or pears with crumbs and bake 40 to 45 minutes at 400.

Lightly pickled fruit or vegetables are a nice counterpoint with meat or chicken. Empty a drained can of beets or cling peaches into 1/2 cup sweet-pickle liquid; cover and refrigerate an hour or more.

The Market Forecaster

By George Kleinman

WHEAT - (BULL)

Outlook: The big news of the past week was the below freezing temps in portions of Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma. The exact extent of the loss will not be known for many weeks now – this is the mystery of winter kill.

Some experts believe it could be major and some feel it was minor. My belief is the wheat crop is advanced enough for this to have caused significant damage and yield loss. In any case, whether real or imagined this modifies one of the bearish fundamentals – that of a beautiful winter wheat crop across the belt. Export demand is still weaker than I'd like to see, but rising price expectations have a way of changing that picture – sometimes overnight.

The seasonal tendency also supports higher prices at this time since wheat generally moves higher to mid May, then will break into the summer. Plus, with world supplies as tight as they are, this market really can't afford to lose production from any front.

Strategy: Hedgers: While I feel prices will still work higher, with prices now more than 30¢ off the recent lows, it's time to start considering new crop wheat hedges. I would use put options, as they allow for unlimited upside potential, but will place a price "floor" for you under the market.

July 360 puts look good at 13¢ or lower in Chicago, and about a penny cheaper in K.C. Hedge 25 percent of anticipated production at this time using the puts.

Traders: When you received last week's issue, you should have easily been able to buy May Chicago at $3.52 or even lower. I was pleased to see the May start to lead the market again, since this is the way a bull should act. Place your risk point at 347 3/4 for an objective of $3.72.

CORN - (BULL)

Outlook: Since we first issued our "buy signal" in the corn last November, this market has rallied over 20¢/bushel. Is December corn still as bullish in the 260s as it was in the 240s?

Well, let's put it this way – it's still bullish. Exports have been terrific. Japan can steal our corn due to the strong yen, and they have been using this advantage. China will be a net importer of corn – in past years they were Asia's largest exporter. Animal units in the U.S., the primary corn user, remain record high. Look at the inevitable price corrections to come as buying opportunities.

Strategy: Hedgers: You sold your cash corn when the basis was strong last December, and regained ownership via the purchase of the July $2.50 corn calls for about 7¢/bushel. This strategy limits your risk as well as saves storage costs and interest expense. It also allows you to benefit from upside potential.

Traders: We own July corn under $2.46. Risk to $2.40 and hold tight!

CATTLE - (BULL/BEAR)

Outlook: Welcome to the roller coaster ride known as the cattle market. One day cattle are worth $66, the next $70, a week later back to the lows.

What's going on? My suspicion is this market is attempting to make a bottom – wild swings are often associated with important lows. On the other hand, we can't lose sight of the fact there is plenty of meat around. The cattle numbers coming to market will be higher than they are today this spring and all throughout the summer. Add pork and poultry, and you're looking at record meat supplies. However exports for beef to Japan could be record high as well.

Bottom line, the market will set the tone. I look for the recent low in the June futures of 6040 to be a major low [but if it's ultimately taken out this would mean supplies are quite burdensome and we could go much lower].

Strategy: Hedgers: You are 100 percent hedged in April futures with an average price of 74. You've been cashing in on futures profits as you market your cattle. For June protection we also own the 68 puts, purchased for less than $2. Feeders can look to purchase October feeder cattle futures under 66 to hedge fall replacement needs.

Cow/calf operators: You own the April and May $66 put options. These will provide downside protection should the market head south again, yet still leave your upside potential open.

Traders: Last week we were stopped out of long April futures, and also were able to enter the following spread position; long the October feeders and short the February live cattle at a difference of 180 points or less. Hold.

Survey: Young farmers are conservative, concerned about environmental issues

WASHINGTON (AP) – Today's young farmers are politically conservative, describe themselves as middle class and are very concerned about environmental issues, a recent survey found.

Despite the long hours and financial obstacles facing this group of farmers, they generally are ambitious and upbeat about their futures, according to the survey by the farm publication Top Producer.

The high cost of land and farm equipment that is becoming increasingly high-tech remains a major hurdle for farmers 20 to 35 years old, and they aren't sure land is a good investment, the survey found.

Fewer than half of those surveyed, 42 percent, said that owning land promises higher returns than renting, and 32 percent said they were neutral on the subject. Just one in four said land-owning would mean higher returns.

The Agriculture Department estimates that 44 percent of the land owned by farmers under age 35 is bought from relatives, inherited or obtained as a gift, according to the magazine, which published its findings in its April issue.

USDA also estimates that at least half the farmers now 55 years or older will leave the business within the next decade, clearing the way for the younger generation to assume the assets and leadership of the industry.

Top Producer and Rockwood Research surveyed 1,225 randomly selected farmers ages 20 to 35 in January. The survey's margin of error was less than 3 percentage points.

The young farmers showed an aversion to debt, with three out of four saying they pay cash whenever they can for capital improvements or expansion. Most said they prefer to pay off their loans as quickly as possible and 84 percent said they prepay principal when they can.

Among the lowest priorities were contracting specialty crops, 7 percent; investing in value-added processing ventures like ethanol, 5 percent; and contracting livestock, 4 percent.

Young farmers also are a frugal group, the survey found. Three of four respondents said price was the overriding factor in their equipment-buying decisions, more important than proximity to the dealership, loyalty to hometown dealer and brand name.

Two-thirds of those surveyed described themselves as politically conservative, and 26 percent said they were moderates. Fifty-six percent identified with the Republican Party, while 14 percent were Democrats.

Some 57 percent considered themselves middle class and 16 percent said they were upper middle class, while 24 percent said they were lower middle class. Two percent said they were lower class and 1 percent considered themselves upper class.

On environmental issues, 83 percent said environmental regulations will have a drastic effect on future farm costs, and 62 percent said they were very concerned about the effect of crop chemicals on the environment.

Seventy-three percent said they were "very concerned about the safety of handling crop chemicals."

Perry issues warnings on mail-order pesticide sales

AUSTIN – Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry has warned farmers, ranchers and all other pesticide consumers to beware of pesticide sales that are conducted through mail-order businesses, over the telephone or by direct contact with a sales person.

"Nearly every year we have cases where unwary consumers buy diluted pesticides that contain a fraction of the active ingredient needed to be effective," Perry said.

"To ensure the pesticide you are buying is a registered product in the state, check the label for a U.S. Environment Protection Agency registration number and call the Texas Department of Agriculture at 1-800-TELL TDA."

Pesticides must be registered with EPA and TDA before they can be legally used in state. TDA inspectors ensure that products sold from dealerships meet these requirements, but unregistered products may be sold by salespeople who directly contact a business or solicit customers over the phone, Perry said.

Thanks Old Farm

In the beginning you were just part of the earth,
But the plow and barbed wire gave you new birth.
Folks needed work and folks needed bread,
So you became known as a homestead.
On your broad back our family was raised,
Songs were sung and The Good Lord was praised.
There was work for all, each one was needed,
as the land was tilled and crops were seeded.

Some years we thought you would blow away
But we learned how to live from day to day.
Now the winds of change are the winds that blow,
What made us stay now makes us go.
What lifted us up now pulls us down,
So you will be sold; we will move to town.
Soon another name will appear on your deed,
You will be bought by folks with a different need.

No more a child rocking on a grand parent's knee,
Hearing stories of how things used to be.
A different song must now be sung,
A home for the old, day-care for the young.
No more the sound of a child's happy laugh,
Or the hungry bawl of a milk cow's calf.
Efficiency and volume are what count now,
Drive a bigger tractor, pull a bigger plow.

You will just be some numbers on a computer screen,
How much profit or loss is all you will mean.
Memories will fade and the past slip away,
But there are some things that will always stay.
You were there when needed, you were our friend,
And it stayed that way until the very end.
Our needs you provided, we were sheltered from harm,
Now it is time to say good-bye – thanks old farm.

USDA officials say Mexico still good for exports

WASHINGTON (AP) – The long-term market for farm exports to Mexico holds promise despite the peso's current troubles, Agriculture Department economists say.

Because of the peso's fall, the department expects a 12 percent decline this fiscal year in the value of U.S. farm exports to Mexico – a drop from $4.1 billion to $3.6 billion in the 12 months ending Sept. 30.

But the long-term trade will benefit from Mexico's growing population, closeness to the United States and trading relationships that have been built up as a result of the North American Free Trade Agreement, analysts at the Foreign Agricultural Service say.

In calendar 1994, the first year of NAFTA, agricultural exports from the United States to Mexico reached an all-time high of $4.5 billion, a 27 percent increase over 1993, USDA reported.

The exports dropped sharply in January, the first full month after devaluation. Exports were valued at $275 million in January this year, a 21 percent decline from the $346 million recorded in January 1994, and below the pre-NAFTA level of $293 million in January 1993.

High-value products such as fresh fruit and red meats took the biggest hit, and are likely to suffer most.

"Perhaps you sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent a funeral spray, if so we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, as any friend could say; perhaps you were not there at all, just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts, we thank you so much whatever the part."

We wish to express our sincere appreciation and deep gratitude to Rev. M.B. Smith and many friends & families for their words of comfort and deeds of kindness at the loss of our father Virgle E. Cummings. May Gods richest blessing rest upon you.

The 'Big Three' are becoming fast friends

By MICHAEL HOLMES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) – One is a Republican, two are Democrats. Two have roamed the halls of government for decades. One has been there for 14 weeks.

One is in his 40s, one his 50s, one his 60s. Two are native Texans, one was born in Connecticut.

Two went to Texas colleges, one to the Ivy League. One farms, one has spent a career in government, one was in oil and baseball.

But through the elected offices each holds, they are the Big Three.

And Gov. George W. Bush, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Pete Laney say they've become fast friends.

"One of the most amazing things about this session, I think, is the relationship between the speaker and the governor and the lieutenant governor. ... We're real good friends. We all work together," Bullock said.

Now 65, Bullock entered the Capitol as an elected official in 1957, serving in the Texas House. He's also been assistant attorney general, a gubernatorial aide, secretary of state and state comptroller.

Laney, 52, a Panhandle farmer, first was elected to the House in 1972. He chaired committees and rose to the top House job after the retirement of 10-year Speaker Gib Lewis in 1993.

"I think all of us desire to do what's best for the people of Texas," Laney said. "We're working together to accomplish that."

The newcomer and lone Republican in the bunch is Bush, 48, who never held elective office before defeating incumbent Ann Richards last November.

Inaugurated Jan. 17, the former managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team says he had a lot to learn but brings the necessary tools to the job – a mandate from voters and an ear for lawmakers of either party.

"I beat a very popular person. And I won it on specific issues and philosophy," Bush said.

"The thing you've got to do is bury partisanship. What makes this easy in Texas is ... we're mainly a conservative state. And the (legislative) bodies here inside the Capitol reflect that."

Certainly, this year's legislative agenda reflects that.

Both Laney and Bullock had pledged no new taxes, music to the governor's ears.

Bush's four key campaign themes – education decontrol, lawsuit reform, tougher juvenile crime laws, welfare reform – are four top priorities of the 1995 Legislature. Bills on each are moving briskly and seem likely to become law.

The Big Three say they talk all the time. They hold weekly breakfast meetings – rotating between the Governor's Mansion, speaker's office in the Capitol's west wing and lieutenant governor's office in the east wing.

"Nobody's missed a single meeting yet," Bullock said.

Laney said the sessions allow each leader to outline his position on issues and learn where the others stand.

Laney said Bush, eldest son of the former president, is a fast learner. "He's never been involved in state politics at this juncture, but he's been involved with politics all his life. I think that probably made him a quick study of the situation here."

Bush said their chats aren't just for breakfast.

"We meet weekly, but also more than that, much more than that. I've already spoken to both before noon today," he said during a recent interview.

"If they have a problem on anything, they know than can call me up on the phone. And vice versa. I've always felt like, rather than let things fester, it's best to get things out in the open.

"We've got a good relationship. Not every meeting is pleasant. But every meeting is instructive," the governor said.

'Furthermore, I just plain like the guy [Bush]. He's just one of the most likeable fellows I ever got to deal with in my life.' – Bullock

Rather than submit his own budget to the Legislature, Bush directed his budget aides to sit in on House and Senate budget-writing committee sessions.

Both Laney and Bullock applauded the idea.

"Some governors in the past submitted budgets. Most of them are used for doorstops and things like that," Laney said. "I think he probably saved a lot of trees as well as being able to get up to speed."

Asked how Bush compares with his predecessor, Laney is politic: "Everybody's style is different."

Bullock is more blunt: "In all honesty, I'd have to tell you that he has been the most accessible and most cooperative governor that I have worked under."

That attitude spills over in public. Speaking last month to newspaper publishers, Bullock had nothing but praise for his counterparts.

"My friend Pete Laney is the best speaker that ever served in the Texas Legislature," he said.

And Bush? "I find him to be a man of integrity and honesty. A hands-on governor. ... Furthermore, I just plain like the guy. He's just one of the most likeable fellows I ever got to deal with in my life."

New prison board chairman sees restoration of public confidence as his top goal

FBy MICHAEL GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer

HUNTSVILLE (AP) – Allan Polunsky's idea of fun is to walk up unannounced outside a state prison in the middle of the night and ask to look around the place.

"Most times I visit a unit I just show up," Polunsky says. "I think it's the best way to see things."

Polunsky has the clout to do so.

The 46-year-old real estate attorney from San Antonio is Gov. George W. Bush's choice to head the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, the panel which oversees the state's prison system, a sprawling collection of penitentiaries that in March passed the 100,000-inmate mark.

A spot on the nine-person board is not new for Polunsky, who has served as a board member for the past 7 1/2 years, initially appointed by then-Gov. Bill Clements.

After four years of Democrat control that eventually left Polunsky the lone Republican on the board, the election of Bush, also a Republican, paved the way for Polunsky's ascension to the chairman's job.

"Initially I really was not of the mind set to continue on," he said in an interview at the department headquarters in Huntsville. "After Gov. Bush's election, a number of people had asked me to consider staying on to provide continuity and to be helpful to Gov. Bush and his administration.

"It seemed like a good idea, so I agreed. I'm looking forward to other things we can do."

Since Polunsky joined the board, the prison system embarked on a billion-dollar-plus expansion to more than double its size, grappled with and successfully eased constraints of federal court control, and endured embarrassing incidents where inmates released because the system had no room went on to commit atrocious crimes.

Polunsky sees his overall assignment as restoring public confidence in the state's criminal justice system.

"I don't think it's there, and perhaps rightfully so," he says. "We have experienced a number of years where confidence has eroded because of a number of factors, one of which was the revolving door that took place in the Texas prison system."

He notes that every time an inmate was released early because of the pressures of limited capacity, the public's confidence in the system deteriorated.

"I just think it's taken a number of years for us to get to the situation where the public has become very jaded with respect to their opinion of the criminal justice system and it may take us a while to get back to the level of confidence the public deserves," he says. "I think it will get there."

The first thing he did after taking over was tighten restrictions on so-called "good time," a complicated formula that allows inmates to get out of prison early.

"Every time people see a news story about somebody who was released early and committed a heinous crime, it's like a dagger in the heart of the system," he says. "But I think we're going to be at a point here very shortly where early releases and the real farce that had taken place over the years with respect to percentages of sentence served will be behind us.

Prison construction in progress will push capacity to nearly 150,000 beds by early 1996, vaulting Texas past California as the nation's largest prison system.

"The money being spent in the criminal justice system is a firm commitment that state has made," he says.

"In the long term, we're going to need to address other issues, such as education, the drug situation and other items that contribute to the environment that produces these thousands of people in white uniforms that are outside here," he said, pointing out a window toward nearby prisons.

He acknowledges it may be difficult to pull new construction money from lawmakers working with a tight state treasury.

"They have a tough job to allocate limited resources," he says. "But I think when it's all said and done they will make the correct decisions and give us the additional capacity that we need, which is in everybody's best interest, including theirs.

"The bottom line is: We can't be lulled into complacency."
