County parks department cuts number of employees

Scurry County has restructured its parks department in order to operate more cost effectively, moving from four full-time employees to two.

Judge Ricky Fritz said notice has already been given to the employees. He also said that the county has been looking at the department for some time trying to determine the best course of action.

"We have tried working through this thing," he said. "We are looking at how we manage and maintain the parks, and we decided now is the time to restructure."

The county had four full-time people working in Winston, North and Towle Park.

"In the slow part of the year there is not enough to keep them busy, but in the busy part of the year they cannot keep up with work," Fritz said.

The judge said the county will now have two full-time, year-round park employees. In addition, it can have up to eight employees who work for $7 an hour up to 900 hours a year. "We can have more part-time people and spend the same amount of money," Fritz said.

He added that the county would not use all of the part-time employees if it is not necessary.

As for the employees who have been cut, Fritz said the county is allowing them to move into other county jobs "as available and if available."

"One of them already has filled vacancy at the courthouse," he said.

The realignment will allow the department to handle the county's parks' needs more efficiently.

"During the growing season we can be planting trees, watering and a doing a better job of weed control," he said. "We will be offering better service for the same amount of money or less. We don't want the quality to suffer. We want the parks to be greener, prettier and better maintained than they ever have been before.

"Change is always difficult, but with an increased pinch on revenue we have to find better ways of providing the service at a lesser amount of tax dollars."

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Three words are fast becoming the most beautiful words in the English language: no new messages."

Hats off to the chamber staff for hosting the Holiday Rambler RV rally at the coliseum.

If the traffic in Snyder has seemed heavier this week, it's not your imagination. Those visitors have been patronizing local businesses and have been visible all over town.

It takes a lot of work to prepare for and host the rally, but the community reaps the dividends.

And there will be more visitors, starting today.

There'll be a bunch of foot stompin' starting this evening at the Wagon Wheel Ranch Music Park. Billy Ray Browning and Tommy Allsup are producing their first bluegrass festival at the Wagon Wheel Ranch.

Billy Ray was so excited early in the week he could hardly talk, but he was still hugging.

Pretty neat!

We were impressed with the civic project the Holiday Rambler campers do when they gather.

Not only do they visit, eat and play a lot – they also work as an organization to make quilts which are donated to shelters for the homeless and abused children.

It's called momentum, and it has shifted in the direction of the Lady Tigers.

Coach Patty Grimmett and her volleyball gals defeated Estacado last Saturday and then whipped up on Andrews Tuesday to finish the first half of district play in a tie for second.

After a slow start, the Lady Tigers now have it going in the right direction as the second half of conference play begins with Snyder hosting Levelland at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Leading the Lady Tigers are Ashley Delce, Rina Geiger, Kameron Kallemeyn, Cameron Mackey, Laura Billingsley, Kate Wright, Whitney Webb and Katie Voss.

The Snyder Tigers, after a week off, begin District 4-4A play tonight with a long trip to Plainview.

Sometimes fans overlook defensive statistics, but the Tigers are second in the district in yards allowed per game, 204, and also second in points allowed, 39, in three outings.

Also Tiger senior Mark Medley is third in the conference on defense with 33 tackles, three tackles for losses and one sack.

Also tonight, Ira is back in action against Blackwell. Hermleigh, because of injuries, has cancelled tonight's game with Trent. Hermleigh still hopes to resume its grid schedule.

Top local golfer?

Could be Alton Patterson who won the men's championship last week at Snyder Country Club.

Car wash killer's fate in jury's hands

DALLAS (AP) — The fate of a fired car wash employee convicted in the slaying of two of five former co-workers is in the hands of North Texas jurors.

The panel was set to begin deliberating today whether Robert Wayne Harris should receive lethal injection or life in prison for the dual capital murder convictions.

The same jury took less than 15 minutes Tuesday find Harris guilty in the shooting deaths of Mi-T-Fine Car Wash employees cashier Rhoda Wheeler, 45, and assistant manager Augustin Villasenor, 36.

The two were shot in the back of the head just three days after Harris was fired from the business.

Also killed were Villasenor's brother, Benjamin Villasenor, 32; Roberto Jimenez Jr., 15; and 48-year-old car wash manager Dennis Lee. Harris was not tried this time for those three deaths, although he is charged in those slayings. He has also been charged in the unrelated death of an Irving woman.

Harris has confessed to the killings several times, although he pleaded innocent when the trial began Monday. His lawyers offered no witnesses in his defense.

On Thursday, defense psychiatrist Dr. Jay Crowder testified the 28-year-old Harris suffers from depression and anti-social behavior, which are compounded by a low IQ. Crowder also said Harris' stutter was the result of Tourette's syndrome, a neurological disorder characterized by exaggerated tics.

Harris' brother, William Harris, later testified about the pair's difficult upbringing, including the violent death of their father, who was strangled.

William Harris, 30, was questioned about the capital punishment being considered against his brother.

"All that I would ask you to do, as Christian people, is that you do what the Lord tells you to do," he told jurors.

Starts at 2 p.m....

CROP WALK set in Snyder Sunday

Members of Scurry County churches are making final preparations for the annual CROP WALK set Sunday, World Communion Sunday.

Participants will gather at the gazebo on the square at 2 p.m. and walk to Towle Park.

The Scurry County Ministerial Alliance again is sponsor of the event.

The CROP WALK makes a difference for the community and the world, said Rev. Nan Swanson, pastor of First Presbyterian Church. "We do the CROP WALK because others around the world walk every day for their food and shelter, for water for survival."

"As we walk, we walk with the world and for the world," Swanson said. "We walk against hunger."

She noted that at a recent UN meeting in New York where more than 150 heads of state met to discuss world problems, one of the commitments that was made was to eradicate poverty by the year 2015.

CROP WALK has been working to wipe out hunger the world over for more than 30 years. One-fourth of the money that is raised will go to the local Food Cupboard which helps between 500-1,000 people each month receive food assistance.

In addition, this year a soup kitchen was set up this summer, serving 650 children.

"Come walk with us," Swanson said. "We will walk from the gazebo to Towle Park. If you do not walk, at least donate to someone who is walking. Let's try to make this the best walk yet as a symbol that in this century, that old enemy hunger will at last be defeated."

For more information, call Rev. Swanson at 573-6915.

Third person going to pen for robbery

BLACKWELL (AP) — The third suspect in the robbery of a West Texas post office nearly a year ago has been convicted for his involvement in the crime, prosecutors said.

William Dale Griffin, of Texarkana, on Thursday pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to rob a post office before a federal judge in Lubbock.

Bush, Gore fight over energy policy

TROY, Mich. (AP) — George W. Bush and Al Gore are battling over energy costs, with the Republican hopeful trying to turn his oil industry ties into fuel for his campaign while the vice president paints Bush as an enemy of the environment.

The Texas governor, a former oil man, is pushing a $7.1 billion plan over 10 years to increase the nation's fuel sources and protect the environment. The Clinton administration, he said, has not made energy policy a priority.

Bush is casting the issue in pocketbook terms, saying U.S. dependance on foreign oil is to blame for soaring fuel costs.

"Oil consumption is increasing. Our production is dropping. Our imports of foreign oil are skyrocketing," he said in prepared remarks. "And this administration has failed to act."

But Democrat Gore was renewing his accusation that Bush's proposals, especially his support for Arctic drilling, show the Republican is beholden to an industry that used to be his employer and remains a lucrative source of campaign funds.

The vice president said Thursday that the Clinton-Gore administration's decision to release oil from the nation's stockpile this week already has lowered oil prices about $5 a barrel, to $32.

"We've got challenges ahead, but so far, it looks like it is bringing some relief not only for home heating oil, but for the high gasoline prices that accompany these short supplies there," he said on CNN's "Larry King Live," before focusing on the issue at the Audubon Naturalist Society in Maryland.

Oil prices are a powerful pocketbook issue in this dead-even race as cold weather and Election Day loom — especially here in the Midwestern battleground states where the leaves are changing as the temperature dips toward freezing.

Gore heightened the issue Sept. 21 by urging President Clinton to release several million barrels from the nation's petroleum reserve.

The president did just that 48 hours later when he authorized releasing some 30 million barrels. Bush accused the Democrats of working together "for short-term political gain." The stockpile, Bush said, was established for times of war or other disruptions. Gore says the law also allows for the release of oil in times of short supply.

The government reserve, created in 1973, contains about 571 million barrels in a series of salt domes near the Texas-Louisiana border.

Democrats say Bush favors other, more environmentally harmful solutions to soaring prices, such as drilling in an Arctic wildlife refuge.

They got help distracting Bush from his message on Thursday, when a federal grand jury indicted a key Bush supporter and oil refiner, Koch Industries, for alleged air pollution crimes in Texas.

The company and executive David Koch have donated at least $215,000 to the Republican Party this election. Its employees have chipped in $27,500 to Bush's presidential bid and the company has given $225,000 in political action committee donations to GOP congressional candidates.

But Bush says the key to lowering fuel prices is reducing the nation's dependance on foreign oil and making energy policy a top priority of his agenda. A senior campaign official late Thursday said Bush's experience working in the oil industry, along with running mate Dick Cheney's corporate experience dealing with oil producers in the Middle East, is a key selling point.

The plan would include:

—Opening the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to drilling on about 1.5 million acres, which likely contains about 10 billion barrels of oil. Gore opposes such action;

—Streamlining regulatory restrictions on refining capacity and pipeline construction;

—Giving tax credits worth $1.4 billion over 10 years for electricity produced from alternative fuels;

—Expanding by $1 billion over 10 years the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program in part with oil and gas royalties;

—Spending $2 billion over 10 years to research "clean coal" technologies to reduce emissions;

—Establishing a privately managed Northeast Home Heating Oil Reserve, spending $100 million over 10 years;

—Promoting a North American Energy Policy with Mexico and Canada and promote energy resources in non-OPEC regions, such as the Caspian Sea and parts of Africa;

—Establishing a meeting of G-8 energy ministers to promote independence from OPEC.

Abortion foes denounce decision...

FDA okays RU-486

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abortion foes bitterly denounced government approval of the abortion pill RU-486 and vowed to continue to fight a drug they called "baby poison" and a threat to women's health.

RU-486 was approved Thursday by the Food and Drug Administration, ending a battle that has involved two presidents, several countries and heated debate for 12 years.

Approval of the drug gives American women a pharmaceutical abortion method already in wide use in France, Britain, China and 10 other countries.

But since the FDA action took place in the closing weeks of a national political campaign, it drew quick and heated comments from both sides of the issue.

Texas Gov. George W. Bush, the Republican presidential nominee, called the FDA decision "wrong" and said he feared that the availability of RU-486 "will make abortions more and more common."

Health experts, however, said abortions did not increase after the drug was introduced in Europe.

A Bush campaign spokesman said a president cannot order drugs off the market, but, if elected, Bush would appoint an FDA commissioner "to make sure the FDA considered the risk and did not take this action as a result of political pressure from the White House."

Vice President Al Gore, Bush's Democratic opponent, supported approval of the abortion pill, saying the decision was "not about politics, but the health and safety of American women and a woman's fundamental right to choose."

RU-486 was developed in France and became available there in 1988. In 1989, Bush's father, President George Bush, ordered the FDA to ban importation of the drug for personal use. In 1993, President Clinton ordered a re-evaluation of the ban and sought ways to provide RU-486 for U.S. researchers after its French manufacturer refused to supply it.

Abortion opponent Rep. Chris Smith, R-N.J., called the abortion pill "baby poison," adding that "RU-486 is not just poison for babies, it is potential poison for the mothers who take it." He said it can cause prolonged bleeding and severe cramps.

Rep. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., promised legislation calling for severe limits on which doctors could administer the abortion pill.

On the other side, Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., said the drug provides an abortion method "that avoids invasive surgery."

Houston charged with pot possession

KAILUA-KONA, Hawaii (AP) — Pop singer Whitney Houston could face 30 days in a Hawaiian jail and a $1,000 fine for allegedly possessing half an ounce of marijuana, discovered by security staff at the Keahole-Kona International Airport, police said.

The drug was found Jan. 11 in Houston's bag.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally, your hunches and intuitive perceptions are pretty much on target, but not so today. Don't put too much stock in them. You'll fare better relying on logic rather than on feelings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If caught off guard today, you might find yourself yielding to a friend who makes an unreasonable material demand upon you. Be prepared to let your better judgment prevail.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is one of those days when your image or reputation could be a trifle fragile, so be on your best behavior at all time. Avoid any erratic or inconsistent conduct.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Stick to decisions you've taken time to think through thoroughly, and don't allow yourself to deviate from them. Impulsive, last minute revisions could work to your detriment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) When it comes to undertaking a number of serious tasks today, pace yourself sensibly and don't attempt more than you can manage. If an extra pair of hands are needed, get them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) As long as you're engaged in doing the things you enjoy, your social exchanges will run smoothly. However, should the crowd deviate to other things, you could become irritated or resistant.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you invite an outsider into a domestic squabble today, you could open the door to being placed in an embarrassing position when she or he sides with the other guy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unless tactfulness and diplomacy are used at all times in your dealings with co-workers today, you may end up doing the chores all by yourself.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

MOM'S STRENGTH, FORGIVENESS STILL INSPIRE DECADES LATER

DEAR ABBY: My dear, late father read the old Baltimore News Post newspaper from cover to cover. He would put me on his lap and read the funnies or something special to keep me current and interested in the news. I have read newspapers ever since — and always your column.

The letter from the woman whose little sister was killed when a young neighbor backed her car out of the driveway brought back many memories.

I believe I knew the family. We were in our early 30s then, with two children of our own. We met the family at church functions. They carried that beautiful child on their shoulders as a trophy — and beautiful she was.

The parents owned a religious bookstore. When news of the tragic accident spread, everyone who knew them showed up at the church service and funeral. I remember the eulogies. That outpouring of love for this precious family was overwhelming.

After the service, there was a profound silence. Then a strong, beautiful singing voice began to fill the church. The song was, "Jesus loves me, this I know, for the Bible tells me so." I looked around and realized the voice was coming from the child's mother! People around me wanted to join in, but they couldn't choke back the tears.

I watched in amazement as this mother helped her husband to stand as their children followed. She led the entire church in the procession, never losing her strength or composure. Her voice soared above every other in that huge gathering.

She taught us that God loves us so much he grants supernatural strength when we need it most. Please tell this young woman that her family's example of strength and forgiveness touched my life and many others for more than 24 years. — LINDA BRESSLER, TAMPA, FLA.

DEAR LINDA: And I'm sure your letter will touch the hearts of others, as it touched mine.

DEAR ABBY: I am 11 years old and in the fifth grade. I have a problem. I have homework that sometimes I can't do. I try to ask my mom and dad, but they are unable to help. Can you tell me the best place for me and my classmates to get homework help? I need some advice. — HARD AT WORK IN FLORIDA

DEAR HARD AT WORK: I commend you for wanting help with your homework.

Ask your teacher to find an older student who has a clear understanding of the subjects with which you are having difficulty. Also, some local colleges have students who volunteer to help children who want to get ahead — like you and your classmates. Perhaps your parents or teacher can contact a college for the names of students willing to help.

DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter in your column about the wearing of wedding rings, may I offer a suggestion?

My late, beautiful wife and I always agreed we would wear our wedding rings until we passed on. However, at times this has caused some embarrassment when people asked about my wife, not knowing she has passed on.

Since I do not want to remove my ring, I asked my jeweler to cut a groove in it and to blacken the groove. Now I wear it as a mourning ring, and it looks quite distinctive. — JACK ANSPACH, VIRGINIA BEACH, VA.

DEAR JACK: What a loving and respectful idea. I'm sure that many widows and widowers will appreciate your helpful suggestion.

Mp3.com launches e-mail 'march' to support music bill

LOS ANGELES (AP) — MP3.com Inc. is launching a political campaign to support a bill that would make it legal to store music digitally and listen to songs over the Internet.

The bill could end a legal battle the company is facing over charges of copyright infringement.

Dubbed the "Million E-mail March," the campaign supports a bill introduced this week by Rep. Rick Boucher, D-Va., and three Republican co-sponsors.

The bill would amend federal copyright laws to make it legal to create a digital copy of a recording, known as an MP3 file, after first proving ownership of the music. Consumers would then be able to send that file over the Internet and listen to the digital copy from a remote location.

It's just that activity that resulted in a landmark legal case brought by the five major music labels against San Diego-based MP3.com. The company introduced its "My.Mp3.com" listening service earlier this year, which allowed a listener to briefly insert a compact disc into a computer to prove ownership of the CD, then listen to a digital copy of the music already stored on a computer at MP3.com's headquarters.

Mp3.com argued it should only have to buy and store one copy of a CD on its computers and allow multiple users to listen. The record companies argued the system shortchanged them and violated their copyrights because MP3.com was allowing millions of people to listen to one CD.

The My.Mp3.com service differs from the music-sharing Web site Napster, which faces legal challenges of its own, because it merely sends the music to listening devices, such as a computer or a wireless music player. Napster lets users download an actual computer file and make copies of it.

Four of the five record labels settled the case and granted MP3.com licenses to continue the service. The fifth, Universal Music Group, pursued the case.

Earlier this month, a federal judge in New York ruled that MP3.com violated copyrights of music companies and awarded Universal $25,000 per CD — a penalty that could reach as much as $250 million. The company plans to appeal, and the case is likely to reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

Boucher said Thursday that if his bill becomes law before a final ruling is issued, it could make the case against Mp3.com moot.

"The four companies that have licensed this technology understand its power and are opting to use it to their advantage," Boucher said. "One company ... has decided to pursue the extinction of this company."

Representatives of Universal did not immediately return a call for comment.

Boucher said the kind of technology developed by MP3.com and made legal by his bill would allow music buyers to listen to their stored songs in their car after satellite Internet access is perfected, in their office or from a friend's computer. The bill would only apply to music that is sent, or "streamed," not music that is downloaded.

Boucher said his bill will not be considered before Congress recesses in several weeks but he will reintroduce it when the next session convenes in January.

The MP3.com campaign is aimed at flooding Congress with e-mails in support of the bill and mobilizing music consumers to lobby candidates, the company said.

"The goal is to inform politicians that there is a huge audience of CD owners that this is an important issue to," said Michael Robertson, chairman and chief executive of MP3.com.

Gotti moved to prison hospital

NEW YORK (AP) — Imprisoned mobster John Gotti's throat cancer has returned and spread aggressively, the Daily News reported Friday.

Gotti, 59, who is serving a life sentence for racketeering and murder, was moved from the maximum-security federal prison in Marion, Ill., to a prison hospital in Springfield, Mo., on Sept. 13, the U.S. Bureau of Prisons told the newspaper.

Nearly two years ago, doctors at the prison hospital performed surgery on Gotti to remove a cancerous tumor from his neck. Gotti returned to the hospital for a routine checkup and tests showed his cancer was no longer in remission, the Daily News reported.

Once the nation's most powerful gangster as head of New York's Gambino crime family, he was convicted of racketeering and murder in 1992.

Allowing for a bad split

By Phillip Alder

It is sometimes surprising the things people view as good news. This column was written on July 27, when Ford announced that it would increase SUV gas consumption by five miles per gallon by 2005. Percentagewise, that is probably very impressive, but is no big deal. Surely it would be much better if something were done to stop the appalling pollution that gushes out of so many diesel-powered trucks. Those clouds of black soot cannot be anything but harmful.

Off my soapbox and onto the deal. For the third straight day, you are in three no-trump, West has led the spade queen, and success revolves around your handling of the club suit. What is your approach this time, or is it a guess?

You start with five tricks outside clubs: two spades, two hearts and one diamond. So, you need four club tricks. You must find the club queen. At first glance, it looks as though it is equivalent whether you cash the ace, preparing to finesse through East, or start with the king, intending to continue with the jack to finesse through West. And if the clubs split 3-2, those plays are mathematically identical. But what if they are 4-1, which they will be 28 percent of the time?

If either opponent holds the singleton queen, it doesn't matter, but if either holds queen-fourth, you can pick them up only if they are held by East. Therefore, you should start with dummy's club ace, then continue with a low club, finessing the jack if East plays low. Here, you end with nine tricks, using the spade ace or diamond ace as the dummy entry for the second club finesse.

Atlanta theater critic commits suicide

ATLANTA (AP) — Dan Hulbert, a theater critic for The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, apparently committed suicide and was found dead at a wilderness area, the newspaper reported Thursday.

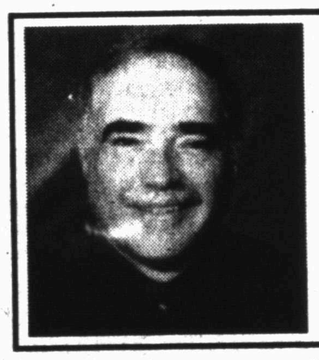

Hulbert, 46, was found Tuesday at Johns Mountain in northwest Georgia. He had suffered from depression, the newspaper said.

Hulbert came to Atlanta in 1987 from the Dallas Times Herald, where he also was a theater critic. In addition to covering theater, he wrote profiles, cultural essays and travel stories for the Atlanta newspaper.

"This is a truly sad day for Atlanta and the theater community," said Kenny Leon, artistic director for Atlanta's Alliance Theatre.

Survivors include Hulbert's wife, parents, sister and 9-year-old son.

A memorial service was scheduled for Tuesday at Covenant Presbyterian Church in Atlanta.

He may be leaky and even a little sneaky.
When you reach his age you get sort of creaky.
"Well that Depends" some people would say.
But one thing's for sure.....

OLYMPIC COVERAGE

Jones falters in bid for five gold medals

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Marion Jones lost out on her bid for five track and field golds by less than half a foot.

Jones stepped over the foul line on four of her six attempts in the finals of the long jump Friday. The best of her two legal jumps covered 22 feet, 81/4 inches, but that was still three inches shy of German gold medalist Heike Drechsler's best effort.

The loss crushed Jones' attempt to win five track and field gold medals in a single Olympics. No female athlete has won five track golds in an entire career.

Nobody came close to Jones in either the 100 or 200 meters, her first two races. The long jump is her weakest event. Her style has often been criticized for relying too much on pure speed, not enough on good form, and on a hot night Jones failed to deliver one of her occasional amazing jumps.

Drechsler hugged Jones, and then danced with a German flag. Italian Fiona May finished second.

"I don't regret at all saying I was going to go for five," Jones said. "I had a shot, and it just didn't pan out."

Jones will still compete in the 400- and 1,600-meter relay finals Saturday, but golds are not assured in those events, either.

World-class sprinters Gail Devers and Inger Miller each withdrew from the 400 earlier Friday because of hamstring injuries.

The United States stayed out front in the medal count Thursday with 79 (33 gold, 19 silver, 27 bronze) to Russia's 61 (20-19-22) and China's 56 (26-15-15).

— BASKETBALL: An air ball at the buzzer. That's all that separated the Dream Team from disaster.

Lithuania took the U.S. men right to edge of an enormous upset but lost 85-83 when Sarunas Jasikevicius' 3-pointer went left of the rim, allowing the Americans to escape into the finals of the Olympic tournament against France.

It was the closest game for the United States since it started stocking its Olympic team with NBA players in 1992.

Lithuania lost by nine to the Americans in round-robin play, an unimaginably close game before the 2000 Olympics. The semifinal was much tighter.

The U.S. women also found the going tough in their semifinal, but Natalie Williams' strong inside play helped the United States pull away from South Korea in the second half and win 78-65. The Americans led by only two points with less than 14 minutes to play.

The U.S. team had defeated the feisty Koreans 89-75 in a prelim round game.

Australia beat Brazil 64-52 in the other semifinal and plays the United States in Saturday's women final. The men play for the gold Sunday.

— SOCCER: The United States finished the Sydney Games with its streak intact: The Americans still have never won an Olympic men's soccer medal.

After reaching the semifinals, the U.S. men dropped two straight, including Friday's 2-0 loss to Chile in the bronze medal game.

Chilean striker Ivan Zamorano scored on a penalty kick in the 70th minute, then sealed the win with another goal in the 84th minute.

— DRUG CONTROVERSIES: More developments in the Olympic drug war.

Head of USA Track & Field Craig Masback tried to put accusations that the United States suppresses positive drug tests to rest. He said America's governing body for track should hand over its entire doping control program to an independent, international group.

Another official at the center of a drug controversy said he would resign his post. Romanian Olympic Committee president Ion Tiriac said he would quit in "two or three weeks" in the wake of the Andreea Raducan case.

The International Olympic Committee stripped Raducan of her gold medal in women's all-around gymnastics because she tested positive for a stimulant that was in an over-the-counter cold medicine she took. Romanians argued the gymnast was just following her doctor's orders.

— WATER POLO: No medal for the U.S. men's water polo team. The Americans lost 11-10 to Russia in the quarterfinals. Tony Azevdo scored three goals for the United States, but couldn't get off a shot in the closing seconds.

— TRACK: Another Olympic disappointment for the world-record holder in the mile and 1,500 meters.

Morocco's Hicham el Guerrouj came into the Sydney Games desperate to erase his bitter memories of the 1,500 at the Atlanta Games. There, he got tangled up with eventual gold medalist Noureddine Morceli of Algeria and finished last.

This time, Kenya's Noah Ngeny just out-kicked el Guerrouj down the stretch. Ngeny finished in an Olympic record 3 minutes, 32.07 seconds. El Guerrouj was second. He sat with his head down while Ngeny celebrated with Bernard Lagat, the bronze winner and a fellow Kenyan.

There was an American double in the men's pole vault. Nick Hysong captured the gold with a vault of 19 feet, 41/4 inches. U.S. teammate Lawrence Johnson won the silver and Maxim Tarasov of Russia took the bronze.

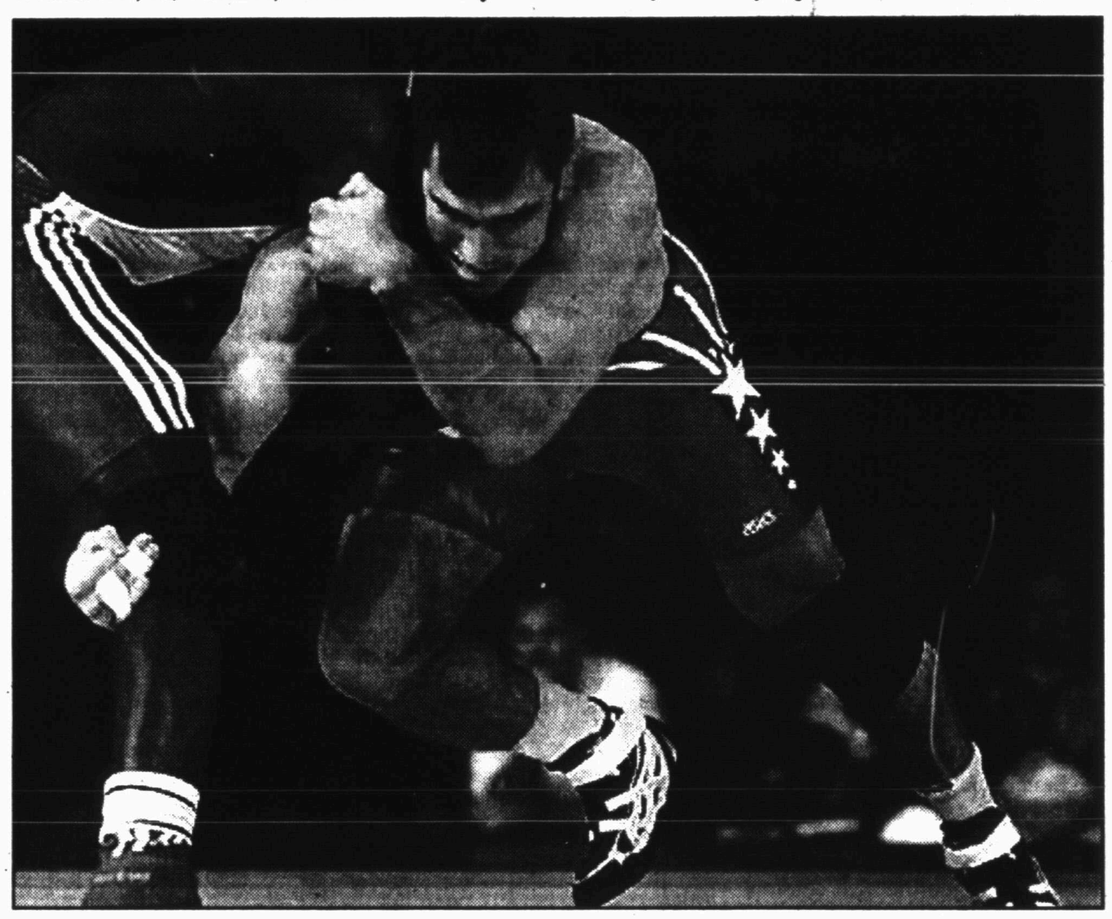

Poland's Robert Korzeniowski strolled to his second gold medal, winning the men's 50-kilometer walk in 3 hours, 42 minutes, 22 seconds on a hot Sydney morning.

— BOXING: Two Americans have a shot at boxing gold.

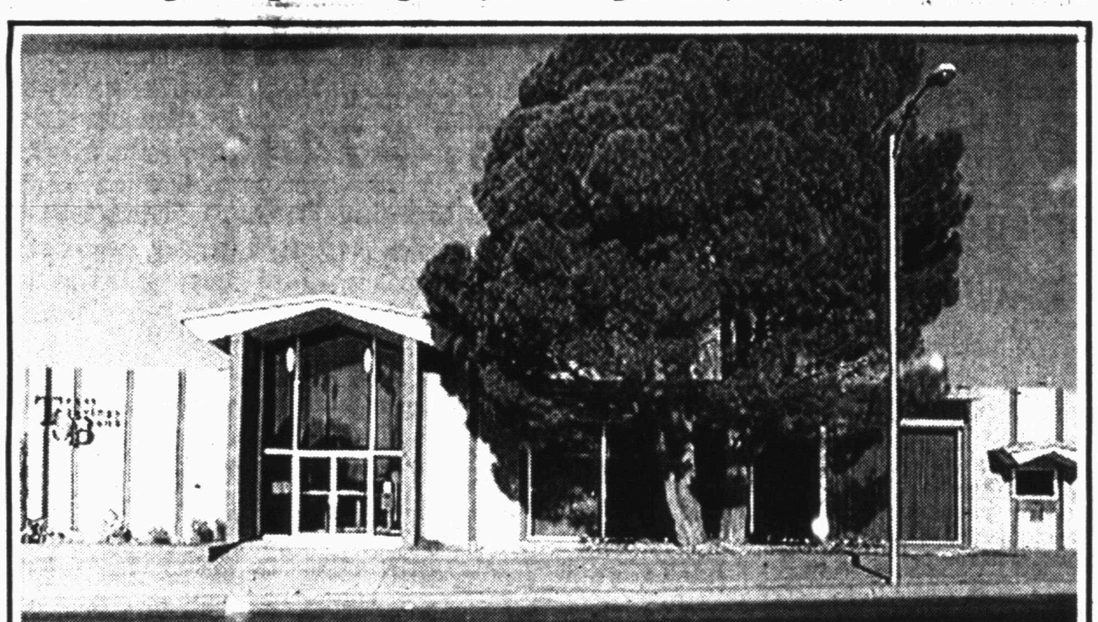

Ricardo Williams Jr. edged out Cuban Diogenes Luna 42-41 in the semifinals of the 139-pound division, while 125-pound Rocky Juarez defeated Kamil Dzamalutdinov of Russia and also made Sunday's finals.

Jermain Taylor will settle for a bronze after losing his semifinal fight to Yermakhan Ibraimov of Kazakstan on the 15-point rule. All semifinalists get a bronze medal in boxing.

—WRESTLING: The United States had a perfect day in freestyle wrestling. Six U.S. wrestlers combined to compile an 8-0 record. Brandon Slay at 1671/2 pounds and 119-pounder Sammie Henson each reached the gold-medal round.

Big 12 set for full slate of conference match-ups

DALLAS (AP) — Now the games will count for real in the Big 12.

The last Saturday in September brings the start of conference play, with a full slate of six Big 12 games.

Just five of the league's teams made it through the non-conference part of the schedule without a loss, and only four are ranked in the Top 25. None of the league openers involve two ranked teams or two undefeated teams.

Top-ranked Nebraska (3-0), the defending Big 12 champion, opens at home against Missouri (1-2). No. 5 Kansas State (4-0) plays at Colorado (0-3); No. 13 Texas (2-1) is home against Oklahoma State (2-1); and No. 14 Oklahoma (3-0) is home against Kansas (2-1).

In other games Saturday, Texas Tech (4-0) plays at Texas A&M (2-1); and Baylor (2-1) is home against Iowa State (3-0) plays in a matchup of the league's perennial last-place teams.

Nebraska has beaten Missouri 21 straight times, and won the 10 games in the 1990s by an average margin of 34 points. Maybe the Tigers, who were off last weekend, can take advantage of the first-ever night game in the 93-game series that dates back to 1892.

The Huskers lead the nation in rushing with 370 yards per game, and have won 99 straight games with rushing for 300-plus yards. But they can do more than run, having tied a school record with five TD passes in last week's 42-13 victory over Iowa.

Missouri, playing its third straight ranked team, is 1-24 against Top 25 teams in coach Larry Smith's seven seasons.

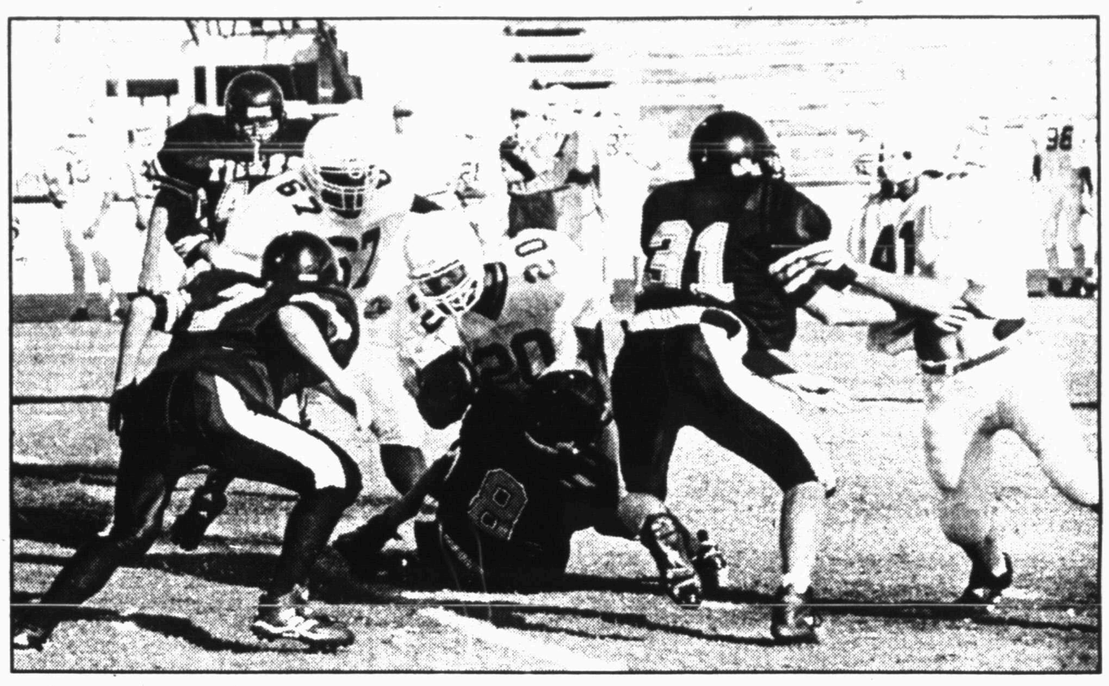

Colorado, which had a preseason No. 24 ranking, has lost its three games to ranked teams by a combined 10 points. Kansas State has three straight wins against Colorado, its longest winning streak in the 55-game series.

Oklahoma State and Texas are playing in a conference opener for the fourth time, but the first time in the Big 12. The Cowboys and Longhorns played their Southwestern Conference openers against each other in 1916, 1918 and 1922.

Kansas, which is 0-12 in Big 12 road games under fourth-year coach Terry Allen, has to go to Oklahoma. The 12 road losses by the Jayhawks under Allen are by an average margin of 24 points, with only one by less than 10 points.

Baylor, which has lost 13 straight conference games, and Iowa State have a combined 7-57 Big 12 record in the league's first four seasons. Neither team has ever won more than one Big 12 game in the same season, both going 1-7 every year except for Baylor's 0-8 record last season.

Texas Tech and Texas A&M play in the only Big 12 opener in which both teams are coming off open dates. Mike Leach is the first Tech coach to win his first four games since Dell Morgan started 5-0 in 1941. A&M, just 1-3 against the Red Raiders since the Big 12 began, hasn't lost at home since Tech won 13-10 at Kyle Field in 1996.

JV, freshmen suffer setbacks to Bulldogs

Snyder's junior varsity and freshman football squads suffered a pair of setbacks to Plainview Thursday night.

Snyder JV tried to rally before falling, 28-20, while the SHS freshmen came out on the short end of a 37-8 final tally.

In the junior varsity match-up, Snyder took its only lead of the night in the first quarter when Tyler Pollard hauled in a 12-yard touchdown pass from Logan Hill, and Clay Williams dove across for the two-point conversion.

After Plainview built a 28-8 lead in the second quarter, the Tigers trimmed the deficit just before halftime. Colby Driggers plunged in from a yard out to make it 28-14 at the break.

Snyder held the Bulldogs scoreless over the final two quarters.

The Tigers final touchdown came with 6:36 left in the game on a 3-yard run by Williams.

In the freshman contest, Snyder opened the scoring on the third play of the game. Isaac Ramon broke loose on a 35-yard touchdown sprint, then hauled in the two-point conversion from Marcus Villarreal for an 8-0 Tiger advantage.

Plainview's defense stiffened for the remainder of the game, as the Bulldogs scored 37 unanswered points for the 37-8 victory.

Both Snyder squads will be in action again Thursday against Frenship.

SJHS squads roll over Merkel

MERKEL — Snyder Junior High had no problems taming the Merkel Badgers.

Snyder swept all three games from Merkel by a combined score of 60-8 in Thursday's junior high football action.

Snyder 7th Gold 22, Merkel 8

Chris Smith anchored the Tigers effort with a touchdown on both sides of the ball. Smith carried the ball nine times for 75 yards and a score, with another touchdown coming on a 40-yard interception return.

Matt Reigh registered Snyder's other score on an 8-yard run. Smith and Eric Martinez notched two-point conversions.

Snyder 8th Black 18, Merkel 0

The Tigers used a stingy defensive effort to blank the Badgers, 18-0. Snyder held Merkel without a first down for the entire game.

Jody Costillo, Luis Silva and Jason Ramos all posted touchdown runs for the Tigers.

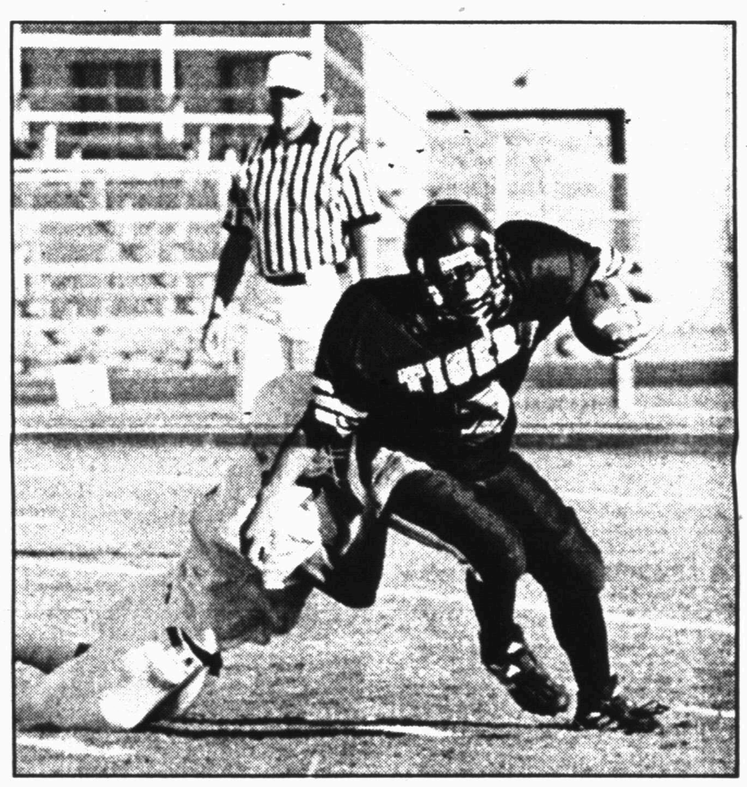

Snyder 8th Gold 20, Merkel 0

D'Angelo Davis rolled up 109 yards on 10 carries and scored two touchdowns in the Tigers' 20-0 rout.

Israel Alvarado added 47 yards on the ground, and a two-point conversion.

Through the air, Alex Neal hauled in a 25-yard touchdown strike from Hadley Hirt. Quarterbacks Hirt and Lico Castillo combined to go 3 of 4 for 53 yards.

Defensively for the Tigers, Cody Smith and Zach Garcia registered a sack and recovered a fumble.
