McNamara, Rusk Called To Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson moves closer today to Viet Nam policy decisions he has said will become known next month. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk were called to the LBJ Ranch.

Johnson announced his conference with McNamara, Rusk and national security aide McGeorge Bundy at an impromptu ranch news conference Monday.

"We will discuss defense needs rather fully," Johnson said.

The President emphasized that no big decisions have yet been made in the wake of McNamara's inspection trip to Saigon last week.

"TOO EARLY"

He did not say when the decisions would be made. However, in a statement Sunday taking issue with a Federal Reserve Board move to boost interest rates, Johnson said he wished the board had waited until January "when the nature and impact of the administration's budgetary and Viet Nam decisions are known."

Johnson did tell reporters that "until we do have peace, we are going to continue to help the people of South Viet Nam resist aggression and we are going to supply whatever men will be needed in that effort."

BUILDUP TALKED

The subject came up after a reporter reminded the President of a published report from Saigon that Viet Nam troop increases possibly matching those of the Korean war were being discussed. Some 500,000 U.S. troops were in Korea at one point, compared with 165,700 now in South Viet Nam.

"I wouldn't want to make any predictions or prognostications," Johnson said. "We no doubt between now and the first of the year will have to make plans for what changes will take place. But so far as I am aware, these plans have not been made yet, and these decisions have not been made."

HOLD OFF

All this, coupled with his Sunday statement, seemed to suggest that Johnson will wait a while before making the decisions or, at least, will keep them under his hat until Congress reconvenes next month.

U.S. Planes Pound Viet Red Facilities

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. fighters and bombers pounded suspected Red bases and supply routes in South Viet Nam today while ground fighting again slacked off.

A battle-scarred battalion of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division skirmished briefly with Communist forces on the jungle outskirts of the abandoned Michelin plantation 40 miles northwest of Saigon while both sides were apparently searching for combat dead in the big battle fought there Sunday.

The men of the "Big Red One" captured one enemy trooper who identified himself as a North Vietnamese regular in a heavy-weapons company attached to the Viet Cong regiment prowling the area, U.S. spokesmen said.

COMBAT STRIKES

Although air attacks on North Viet Nam slackened off to 11 missions on which Air Force and Navy planes unloaded 31 tons of bombs, U.S. and Vietnamese aircraft flew 408 combat strikes in the South, spokesmen announced.

A two-seat F4C Phantom jet crashed 280 miles north of Saigon, apparently killing both crewmen. Spokesmen said they did not think the supersonic plane was hit by ground fire.

ENCOUNTER CONG

The skirmish on the rubber plantation occurred as a 1st Division battalion battered in the Sunday action scoured the area for three missing American bodies. They ran into a large Viet Cong group also apparently searching for its dead.

Although the Americans were not given orders to attack — presumably because they were off their peak fighting form—shots rang out across the clearing. The Americans called for air and artillery strikes and ground reinforcements, but the Viet Cong fled, leaving behind three dead. American casualties were reported light.

A U.S. military spokesman estimated the enemy dead in the action Sunday at 231 and reported that 1st Infantrymen had found the bodies of 20 Communist snipers tied in trees at the battle site. U.S. casualties were reported as moderate, but some units suffered a heavy toll.

U.S. spokesman said two helicopters were needed to ferry out weapons and equipment left behind by the Communists.

Flawless Till Touch-Down, Tass Claims

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's fourth attempt this year to make history's first soft landing on the moon failed early today. The unmanned spaceship Luna 8 crashed into the moon's surface.

Tass said Luna 8 worked without a flaw in all stages until the touch-down.

"As a result of the flight of the station Luna 8, a further step was made toward the realization of a soft landing," Tass said in its brief dispatch.

"A NEAR SUCCESS"

Before the Tass announcement, the Jodrell Bank Observatory in England reported "some evidence of a near-success of a soft landing."

"The general impression here is that the Russians must have really come close to success," said Sir Bernard Lovell, Jodrell Bank's director.

Luna 8 weighed 3,421.5 pounds, 101.5 pounds more than its predecessor, Luna 7. This indicated that perhaps additional equipment had been installed.

SYSTEMS CHECKED

Tass described the last moments of the flight this way:

"When the station was approaching the moon, the functioning of the soft-landing systems was checked and the checking showed that the systems of the station were functioning normally at all stages of the landing except the final touch-down."

A soft landing is a prerequisite to landing a man on the moon. It is extremely difficult because the moon has no atmosphere. The Soviet space shots have used retrorockets to deal with the problem, and apparently it was a slipup in the braking mechanism that caused Luna 8 to land too hard and destroy its radio mechanism.

Gemini 6 May Go Up Sunday

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP)—Calm, confident and enjoying celestial concerts, Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James A. Lovell Jr. hurtled onward in their marathon weightless whirl today as space officials considered whether to launch Gemini 6 in pursuit a day early.

The Gemini 6 astronauts, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford, are scheduled to blast off Monday to track down and rendezvous with Gemini 7. The space agency said preparations were going so well at Cape Kennedy that a Sunday firing might be possible.

DECISION DUE

A decision is expected by Wednesday. A key will be whether a simulated flight scheduled to start Wednesday midnight can be advanced to midnight tonight.

Gemini 7 entered its 42nd orbit late this morning.

Gemini flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. said the odds of going on Sunday are about 50-50 and added: "We'll have to continue scrambling if we're going to do it.

"If we can be ready on the eighth day, I'd prefer to go then," Kraft said. "Every extra day you wait there is more of a chance of something going wrong."

LESS OPTIMISTIC

Gemini mission director William Schneider was less optimistic.

"I think," he said, "the odds are more like 50-50 for a Monday launching and less than that for Sunday."

The launch crew has until Thursday, Dec. 16, to fire Gemini 6 to accomplish the rendezvous during the planned 14-day Gemini 7 mission. Kraft said a Dec. 17 launching would be possible if Borman and Lovell can stay up a 15th day.

The decision is important to Air Force Lt. Col. Borman and Navy Cmdr. Lovell. If Sunday is selected for a Gemini 6 launching, they will have to maneuver Gemini 7 into a new orbit Wednesday instead of Friday as intended.

They presently are circling the globe on a path ranging from 138 to 199 miles high. For the rendezvous attempt, they must be on a circular course in which both the high and low points are 185 miles.

WILL CLIMB

In a preliminary move toward raising the orbit, the astronauts planned today to elevate the low point of the path to 145 miles.

Borman and Lovell remained in high spirits and confident they could complete their full mission as they sped toward their fourth day in space. They were launched Saturday afternoon.

They settled down to sleep about 10:30 p.m. (EST) after a busy day during which they spotted a Polaris missile fired from a submarine, took dozens of pictures of land, space and weather features and conducted important medical experiments.

IN UNDERWEAR

Lovell stripped off his pressurized space suit shortly before noon Monday and was still riding in his underwear this morning. Lovell was expected to don his suit later today and Borman to remove his.

The suitless experiment will provide information on design of future spacecraft which will permit crews to operate in a shirt-sleeve environment for long periods.

"It's the only way to fly," said Lovell as he rode in the relative comfort of his long johns.

The astronauts spotted and photographed the Polaris after it was launched from the submarine Benjamin Franklin off Cape Kennedy.

"We've got her and she's beautiful," Lovell said. "It's easy to track and we're right on it."

"OUR PLEASURE"

The Benjamin Franklin crew later sent a message through a tracking station to Lovell saying, "The pleasure was all ours. It's always a pleasure to help another Navy man out."

Visiting U.S. Solons Are Target Of Demonstrators

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A U.S. congressional delegation was the target of an anti-American demonstration today in Azad Kashmir, the portion of the disputed Himalayan state occupied by Pakistan.

Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., said about 100 students shouted anti-American slogans, displayed such placards as "Go Home" and "Yankees No, No" and "painted the cars of the American delegation red."

"We were a mission from a friendly country and we did not expect such treatment," said Zablocki, who heads a group of nine members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee touring the Far East.

The American group met with Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan and complained about the demonstration, which occurred in the town of Mirpur.

Zablocki said he thought local authorities could have prevented the incident had they wanted to.

Several Texas AF Bases Will Take On New Looks

WASHINGTON (AP)—Several Texas Air Force bases will take on new looks over the next several years if Defense Department plans announced Monday are carried out.

Current B52 programs at Bergstrom, Biggs, Carswell and Sheppard Air Force Bases will be eliminated and replaced with new programs expected to maintain current levels of activity at all except El Paso's Biggs Air Force Base. It will be transferred to the Army's Ft. Bliss, saving an estimated $19.6 million annually.

Bergstrom, near Austin, will become the site of the 12th Air Force headquarters, which will leave Waco by June 30, 1968. The transfer, which will complete deactivation of Connally Air Force Base, is expected to save $3 million annually. The transfer will involve 1,175 military and civilian personnel.

RECONNAISSANCE WING

In place of the Strategic Air Command B52 Bombardment Wing at Bergstrom, the Defense Department plans to install by January 1967 a tactical Air Force command tactical reconnaissance wing of three squadrons.

The B52 programs at Fort Worth's Carswell base and Wichita Falls' Sheppard base will be replaced with unannounced "major missions" expected to maintain current levels of activity.

Other losses include the F104 fighter-interceptor squadron at Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring, which will force the relocation of 246 military personnel and four civilians; the two Nike Missile bases each at Austin and Abilene; and small naval reserve training facilities in Huntsville and Bellville.

OTHER CHANGES

The Lackland Air Force Base Language Training School will be transferred to Biggs.

Company D of the 1st battalion of the 23rd Marines in Port Arthur will be transferred for training to Beaumont by October. A Navy and Marine joint reserve training operation at Beaumont will be moved to Port Arthur.

Battery G of the 2nd Battalion, 14th Marines, in Wichita Falls will be reassigned to the Marine Training Center in Fort Worth by October. The Navy reserve unit which has been training with Marines at Wichita Falls will continue in operation in Wichita Falls.

Congressional sources also said that Ellington Air Force Base at Houston would be transferred to the National Guard and that Civil Air Patrol headquarters at Ellington would be relocated at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala.

TRAINING NOT AFFECTED

331st Inactivation To Take Until '67

Local military officials still were not permitted to make any official announcement, but the dispatches from Washington had told the story that the 331st Fighter Interceptor Squadron will be among the units affected in various eliminations ordered by Secretary of Defense McNamara.

Big Springers were expressing disappointment and dismay over the projected loss of the squadron — an Air Defense Command unit stationed at Webb — which had been a part of the community since 1958.

Washington figures said 246 military personnel and four civilian workers are affected. While there was nothing official, indications were that the civilian workers would be absorbed in Webb's major mission of pilot training.

TWO YEARS

The close-out of the 331st, according to Washington, is to take nearly two years — until October 1, 1967. It was considered possible that some aircraft would be gradually assigned to other bases, and that there would be the same dispersal of military personnel to other assignments.

There had been some indication — not officially expressed or generally known — that the squadron was due for a so-called "phase-out." No official figures were given, but the squadron strength is not now as large as it was a year or more ago.

NOT AFFECTED

It was stressed that the training mission at Webb, under Air Training Command, is not affected by the order. In fact, student pilot classes have been increasing in size in recent months.

It was considered a probability that the 331st's physical plant — on the northwest side of the Base — would be adopted by the training mission, although any decision on this naturally would be some months away.

AMONG FINEST

The 331st facilities — including headquarters building, alert hangars, maintenance shops, electric laboratory and armament building — are considered among the finest of their kind anywhere in the U.S., since they have been constructed in the last few years.

The Squadron originally was located here in connection with the then-projected "SAGE" system (Semi-Automatic Ground Environment) a highly complex, electronic system of national air warning system against hostile missiles or aircraft. Later defense systems superseded this one, and a SAGE center scheduled for the West Texas area was cancelled.

The 331st's mission is to maintain a 24-hour alert against any hostile aircraft that might penetrate the southern borders of the United States to attack vital targets in the Southwest. It has support of SDC forces in the Southeast.

Fatal Blazes Hit U.S. War Carrier

MANILA (AP) — A series of fires broke out on the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk in the South China Sea Monday, but the 76,700-ton ship continued to launch planes for strikes against Communist North Viet Nam after only a brief interruption.

Two sailors died of smoke inhalation and 28 others and a civilian were overcome as heavy black smoke poured through the carrier's working and living spaces below decks, the Navy said. Nine of the injured returned to duty almost immediately, and the rest were being treated aboard the ship.

AMMO MAGAZINE

Hank Curth, a newsman for the National Broadcasting Co. who was aboard the Kitty Hawk, said fire broke out in a machinery room next to an ammunition magazine while the ship was refueling from a tanker alongside.

The ships snapped connecting lines and the Kitty Hawk veered off. The carrier, after a short time, resumed the launching of planes bound for North Viet Nam, Curth said.

BOMBS SOAKED

He reported that 500,000 tons of bombs in the ammunition magazine were flooded to prevent the fire spreading there and the sick bay was evacuated.

Planes on the hangar deck immediately over the fire in the after part of the ship were quickly moved forward, Curth added.

He said he was told the fire would not affect the ship's operation.

WHAT'S OBSCENE?

Book Sellers Watch Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court takes up today the ticklish problem of obscene literature and the delicate balance between censorship and freedom of expression.

A legal thicket that has enmeshed courts and book sellers across the land, the obscenity question comes before the court in the form of three separate appeals from lower court ban.

Book dealers and civil liberties groups will be watching to see how the court rules on the cases and whether it alters its eight-year-old standard for determining what is obscene literature.

There was no clue as the justices began the hearings as to whether a change is in the offing. But the fact that the court agreed to hear the appeals means the standard is undergoing reexamination.

Set down in the court's 1957 Roth decision, the prevailing obscenity test is "whether to the average person, applying contemporary standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to prurient interest."

LEFT GROPING

Critics of this ruling claim it has left book dealers and lower courts to grope their way through dimness, with the fate of free expression resting on varying interpretations of "the average person" and "prurient interest."

The court may end up restating its Roth opinion with greater clarity. Or it could scrap the standard and phrase a new one.

Two of the justices, William O. Douglas and Hugo L. Black, already are on record as finding defects in the Roth standard.

The Justice Department, on the other hand, has urged the Supreme Court not to tamper with its Roth ruling that some material falls outside the First Amendment free speech protection.

The consensus has long been that certain kinds of lewd material should be regulated, the government told the justices.

These are the three cases the court:

1. Ralph Ginsburg, writer and publisher, is seeking reversal of his conviction by the U.S. District Court in Philadelphia on the charge that he mailed obscene material.

FINED $42,000

Ginzburg and his publishing companies were fined $42,000 for distributing Eros magazine, a $25-a-year quarterly, a newsletter called "Liaison" and a book entitled "The Housewife's Handbook on Selective Promiscuity."

2. A publisher, G.P. Putnam's Sons, is asking the court to strike down a ban Massachusetts courts have put on the book "Fanny Hill."

Formally entitled "John Cleland's Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure," this story of an 18th century London prostitute has been held obscene in New Jersey and has led to conviction of a bookseller in Illinois. Conversely, New York State courts have ruled the book merits constitutional protection.

3. An appeal asking the justices whether New York State constitutionally can outlaw publication or possession of allegedly sadistic or masochistic booklets.

A New Yorker, Edward Mishkin, was arrested when police found such literature in his basement.

Lakeview School Patrol Receives Safety Helmets

The Lakeview Patrol's new safety helmets, purchased from the Martin - Miller Co. of Madison, Wis., were bought by the students individually with money earned working after school for the clean-up campaign at the Lakeview YMCA. Three new patrol flags, arm-bands and insignias also were purchased.

The patrol, made up of students in the fifth and sixth grades, has 24 members in four squads of six each. Edward Peterson is the captain. Other officers are Joe Lopez and Senora Jasper, lieutenants, and Martha Aldridge, secretary - sergeant.

Sam Dawson, patrol supervisor, said the patrol has done a fine job during the recent cold weather by getting to school early, putting out the school signs and sacrificing time after school seeing that all primary grade students have cleared the campus and gone home. They then take down the signs and leave the school grounds themselves.

Other duties of the patrol include assisting in the lunch-line and reporting disorderly conduct on the playground to the proper authorities.

One of the highlights of the patrol's year is the annual banquet given by Lakeview Principal E. S. Morgan.

Be Careful Of Fire Hazards, Meador Warns

By JERRY ADAMS

Christmas is a time for happiness, and no time to be heedless of fire dangers.

For a natural tree (fir, spruce, pine), pick a fresh-looking, firm-needled tree, no bigger than you need. The larger a tree is, the greater a fire hazard it is also, says A. D. Meador, fire marshal. He offers the following suggestions for a fire-safe tree:

Saw off the butt at an angle an inch or more above the original cut.

The tree should be kept in water until it is ready to be taken down. The water level should be checked daily, for the tree will absorb large quantities while it is indoors.

Make sure the tree is supported firmly and that it is far away from sources of heat—radiators, stoves, fireplaces. Don't locate it where, upright or fallen, it could block escape in case of fire.

Electrical, fueled or mechanical toys should not be operated under the tree. An upset tree and fire could result.

Don't rely on chemical coatings or solutions to "flameproof" a natural tree. None of them are completely effective, Meador said.

He also recommended that the tree should be kept in the house for the shortest possible time.

Care is needed in the selection and handling of artificial trees, too. Plastic and metalized plastic trees can burn, and the type marked "slow burning materials" should be used.

Metal trees are not a fire hazard, but may be a shock hazard. Use only indirect lighting with them. If lighting strings are placed on a metal tree, it may become "charged" and dangerous.

Fire Marshal Meador also suggests using noncombustible decorating materials where possible. Untreated cotton batting, flock and paper ignite easily and may burn intensely. If combustible materials are used, make certain they are flameproof.

Don't use polystyrene foam for candle holders or for table or mantle decorations, where wax candles are used, he said.

The fireplace is not a safe place to burn gift wrappings, according to Meador. Place the wrappings in a metal-covered trash container or burn them in an incinerator as soon as possible.

SIGNIFICANT CHANGE

Soviet TV Today Depicts Oriental Face As Enemy

MOSCOW (AP) — There it was, on Moscow's television screens: A Soviet border defense soldier pointing his bayonet to the east, where a slant-eyed and unmistakably oriental figure, his hair in a pig-tail, peered over the horizon.

The program was one of folksongs, illustrated with drawings, depicting the heroism of troops who defend Soviet frontiers.

Not so long ago Soviet radio and television had songs about the friendly Chinese comrades in the east. These disappeared as the two Communist nations sank into today's bitterly hostile conflict of nationalism and ideology.

GOES DEEPER

The use of an oriental face to represent the enemy goes much deeper than the Moscow-Peking dispute.

It spans more than seven centuries of Soviet history, the complex subject of Soviet racial prejudices and a possible fear of the massive size of China's population.

It is particularly significant now in a nation that has been taught over the 48 years since the Bolshevik Revolution that the capitalistic West is the enemy.

"YELLOW PERIL"

Today an American occasionally may hear a Soviet citizen say that "we westerners" or "we white people" must stick together against a yellow peril.

This means that at least some Soviets think there are more important things than the idea of all Communists sticking together against the capitalists.

But how many Soviets? How do the Soviet people as a whole feel about the Chinese? And about uniting with Americans to oppose them?

Western-style opinion polls exist in only a limited way here, mostly unpublished. Westerners are restricted in their freedom to discuss attitudes with Soviets. So generalizations have to be cautious.

One obvious thing is a Soviet sense of history. It teaches a suspicion of orientals.

In the early 13th century, Mongols conquered Russia, laying waste cities and enslaving survivors. They ruled 250 years.

Some historians think the Mongols left a permanent mark in the Russian system of tightly centralized rule, whether Tsarist or Soviet. Karl Marx called Russia a "semi-Asiatic" country in tradition and institutions, character and conditions.

But the Soviets regard themselves as westerners. Their history is one of trying to catch up with the West. It is a history of shunning the oriental.

TOUCHY TOPIC

Racial prejudice is a touchy subject here — but the Soviets are just as human in having prejudices as most other people, despite Communist teachings that all workers are brothers.

Racial prejudice can be heard in remarks about the Chinese as well as some other non-caucasian peoples. There is reason to believe that most Soviets consider themselves superior to the Chinese — just as most Chinese consider themselves superior to anyone else.

The historic sense of danger from the East and an ingrained dislike of the Chinese were long latent. Soviet leaders have awakened it.

They picture the Chinese Communists as in a Stalinist period, which is a dirty term here now. Soviets know that Stalin expanded the borders of the Soviet Union.

In the last days of his premiership, Nikita S. Khrushchev did much to spread the idea of a Chinese danger. He publicized a longstanding Chinese claim to some 580,000 square miles of border regions held by the Soviets and he opened the door of secrecy a crack to reveal minor border clashes.

His successors have closed that door again but the Soviets are still somewhat apprehensive.

Passing remarks show a strong awareness of China's 750 million people — three times the U.S.S.R.'s population. The Soviets learned a lot of wars ago that numbers count and they have no desire to tangle with a massive, militant, menacing China.

FUTURE FOE

No one here is suggesting that a Sino-Soviet war is coming soon. It is just that many signs point to a growing feeling that the most likely future enemy is in the East rather than the West.

The Chinese themselves accuse Soviet leaders of drifting that way. They charge Soviet collaboration with the United States. The Kremlin denies it, but at the same time seeks to maintain good relations with the West.

How far will the Soviet Union go toward cooperation with the West against China? The Soviet leaders themselves probably do not know just where events might push them.

But one factor likely to be in the back of their minds is the concept of an oriental face with pig-tail looming over the border.

Rains Hamper Fall Plowing

AUSTIN (AP) — Fall plowing in Texas has been hampered by rains in most of the state, the U.S. Department of Agriculture reports.

The rains threw fall land preparations further behind schedule as many fields were becoming dry enough to plow. The moisture was welcomed by farmers with small grains and pastures.

Last week's freeze and the lack of heavy rain increased cotton harvesting. Harvest is 33 per cent complete in the High Plains and Northern Low Plains, while the Southern Low Plains crop is 60 per cent harvested. The statewide harvest is 57 per cent complete, compared to 65 per cent last year.

Sorghum combining is almost complete, and peanut digging is 85 per cent complete.

Rains boosted prospects of north, central and south Texas oats, but some poorly drained fields had plants yellowing from excessive moisture.

Flax seeding is 83 per cent complete, slightly ahead of last year.

Rain slowed movement of Rio Grande Valley vegetables, with harvest continuing of green peppers, cucumbers and cabbage. Rain also halted harvest of vegetables in the Winter Garden-San Antonio area. Harvest of the early lettuce crop at Uvalde continues.

Japanese Attack Anniversary Noted

PEARL HARBOR (AP) — Just before 8 o'clock on a sunny Sunday morning 24 years ago today, a Japanese aircraft skimmed low over Pearl Harbor.

A 23-year-old ensign aboard the USS Oklahoma, one of eight battleships moored in the harbor that day, saw it.

The young officer from Batavia, N.Y. — just 18 months out of the Naval Academy — had just gone on watch 'topside.' He gave the plane only a passing glance as it zoomed overhead. Low-flying planes were commonplace.

Then hell broke loose.

Today Capt. Sidney Sherwin was to visit the memorial straddling the sunken hulk of the battleship Arizona and pay tribute to those of his comrades who lost their lives on Dec. 7, 1941.

Sherwin, 47, now holds a top job at Pearl Harbor Naval Shipyard and lives in Honolulu with his wife, the former Jane Blewitt of Newport News, Va., and their three children. He lost 10 classmates in the 1941 attack — three on the Oklahoma and seven on the Arizona.

More than 1,100 U.S. Navy men remain entombed in the sunken Arizona. Another 900 were killed on other ships, 1,700 were injured, and eight battleships were sunk or disabled.

One of those which capsized was Sherwin's ship, the Oklahoma. Some 400 members of the crew were killed.

Sherwin, recalling the morning's events, said the plane he spotted came in so low "I could see the oil stain on the engine, and the pilot looking out over the side."

But he said he didn't see the "meatball" — the Japanese Rising Sun emblem — on the side "and I doubt whether it would have meant much at the time if I had."

Then the bombs began going off.

Sherwin said there was a lot of "milling around" but someone quickly got on the bullhorn to sound general quarters.

"We headed forward to our battle stations and got into officers' quarters," Sherwin recalled. "I felt the first explosion, then there were a number of others. We went up a ladder through an escape hatch."

Sherwin said that as he reached topside, the battleship began to roll slowly over on its side and settle in the mud. He said he neatly stacked his watch, wallet, shoes, and part of his uniform on the capsized vessel, then jumped into the oily water with two sailors.

He and one of the enlisted men, named Curtis, could swim. The other man couldn't so they towed him through the water to the battleship Maryland, moored alongside the Oklahoma at Ford Island.

Ford Island sits in the center of Pearl Harbor, and was the site of the now famed "Battleship Row."

At this point, Battleship Row was a shambles of burning, exploding ships. Oil which gushed from them left a mark on the banks of Ford Island which can still be seen today. It looks like the scum around a bathtub. Even now oil slicks occasionally appear on the calm, blue surface of Pearl Harbor above the Arizona.

Sherwin recalls arriving at the dispensary aboard the Maryland at precisely 8:15. A bomb struck the ship just afterwards. 'I remember looking at the clock," he said. "It was 18 minutes since the attack began but it seemed a lot, lot longer."

OFFICIALS BELIEVE . . .

Pearl Harbor Debacle Shortcoming Corrected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department believes it has eliminated a factor that contributed to the military debacle at Pearl Harbor — the inability to contact swiftly the top officials of the American high command.

Changes in organizational setup and in the machinery of communications which were started almost immediately after a Japanese carrier strike force blasted much of the Pacific Fleet in Pearl Harbor 24 years ago today make remote any chance of similar confusion on contacting officials, a Pentagon spokesman told a reporter.

In 1941, almost everything went wrong in the weeks preceding Dec. 7 and on the day itself.

The possibility of a Japanese attack somewhere had been foreseen for months. The United States had accomplished a dramatic breakthrough in intelligence, cracking the cipher code used by Japan. Still matters went awry.

CRACKED CODE

Using information from the cracked code, intelligence experts were able to decipher on Dec. 6 most of 13 parts of the 14-part radio messages sent by Tokyo to the Japanese Embassy in Washington.

The 13 parts contained information indicating that negotiations were be be ended and that war was to follow — but still lacked a clue as to where and when the attack would be launched. It still is not clear at what hour part 14 became available. Still another message told the embassy to destroy its code machine and all secret documents. The Tokyo government ordered the embassy to deliver the 14-part message to the American State Department at 1 p.m. EST on Dec. 7 — which was dawn at Pearl Harbor.

The late Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, and Adm. Harold P. Stark, the chief of naval operations, were not reached for delivery of the latest vital information, which showed that only hours were left before an attack.

Investigations and subsequent statements by Marshall and others seem to show that Stark was away from his home for the evening but that Marshall was at his quarters in Ft. Myer, Va., just across the Potomac River from Washington.

BOARD'S REPORT

A report by a special Army board which investigated in 1944 says that the important information reached the Army's G-2 (the intelligence division) not later than 9 p.m. on the evening of Dec. 6, was placed in a locked pounch for delivery to then Col. Bedell Smith with a warning that it contained a vitally important message. Smith was Marshall's top aide.

The board commented: "Whatever was the reason of Col. Bedell Smith for not conveying this message to Gen. Marshall on the night of Dec. 6, it was an unfortunate one. Standing operating procedures should have required delivery of this vital information to Gen. Marshall at once."

Marshall, in his initial appearances before the several investigating bodies, seemed uncertain whether he was at home that night, but subsequently said that he was.

Dr. Forrest C. Pogue, official Army historian, told a newsman Monday, "There has been no evidence that indicates he wasn't there."

Threat On LBJ Alleged

DALLAS (AP) — A Verona, N.J., man was jailed Monday on charges of threatening the life of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Edward Samel, 44, was arrested by Secret Service agents in Arlington, Tex., in connection with an alleged threat he made against the President March 22 in a Tampa, Fla., savings and loan office. Charges were filed in Tampa.

Samel was arraigned before a U.S. commissioner and ordered held in jail in lieu of $15,000 bond. Hearing is set for Dec. 16. Samel requested the hearing and asked that the court appoint a lawyer to defend him.

Opening lead: Nine of ♠ South was unwilling to double East's one-spade overcall despite the fact that he held five trumps, for the vulnerability indicated that such action might be premature. He had close to the equivalent of an opening bid himself as well as a good five-card major suit so, despite his void in partner's suit, he freely bid two hearts.

North bided his time by rebidding three clubs; however, when South persisted to three hearts, North offered a delayed raise to game in hearts.

West opened the nine of spades and North's ace won the trick. It appeared to declarer that his best chance to win 10 tricks was via a cross-ruff. If he was able to score all of his trumps separately, he could count seven hearts in addition to the two top diamonds and one spade.

A club was led at trick two and ruffed with the deuce of hearts. South was careful to cash the king and ace of diamonds next—before one of the defenders had an opportunity to discard a diamond while some other suit was being led. A second club was led and trumped with the three of hearts.

South ruffed a spade with the six of hearts and returned a third round of clubs. East trumped in with the nine of hearts in an attempt to uppercut the declarer and promote his partner's trump holding. South overruffed with the king and led another spade. West discarded the queen of clubs and North scored the queen of hearts for declarer's eighth trick.

A club was led and East ruffed with the ten of hearts. South discarded a diamond in order to protect his remaining trumps which consisted of the ace and eight. West disposed of the ace of clubs which left him with four hearts. East led the queen of diamonds and South discarded a spade. West was obliged to ruff his partner's trick and then lead a heart from the J-7-5 into declarer's tenace. After South took his two hearts, he graciously conceded the last trick to his opponents.

A Devotional For The Day

The eyes of them that see shall not be dim, and the ears of them that hear shall hearken. (Isaiah 32:3)

PRAYER: Our Father, Thou hast kept Thy promises by sending Thy beloved Son to earth and by redeeming us through Him. Guide us to ban all earthly troubles from hindering us in our devotion to Thee. We ask this in the name of Christ. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Worth Saving

Considering the abundance of big problems, it may seem a trifle odd that anyone should worry about the fate of the whooping crane. Happily, conservationists do worry about this magnificent bird, and as a result it may be saved from extinction. The latest Department of the Interior count shows that the flock—on which experts have been keeping tabs for many years—has now risen to 44.

This gives reason to hope that efforts to preserve the whooping crane may be as successful as the recovery of Hawaii's state bird, the nene goose. Once numbered in thousands, the nene goose had dwindled to fewer than 50 a couple of decades ago. By now, conservationists have rebuilt the total population to about 500.

The importance of this is suggested in an observation made by Dr. S. Dillon Ripley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution: "In such achievements, man turns the tables on the relentless forces which he himself so often has unleashed." This is also true in the case of the whooping crane, which has been a victim of hunters and of civilization's encroachment on its haunts. If these birds can be saved from the fate of the dodo and numerous other creatures now extinct, another precious fragment of our natural heritage will have been preserved.

Turning An Overdue Corner

One development which many have felt was long overdue has taken shape in the blunt rejection by the United States of a request by Ghana for a hundred million dollars aid in American surplus food.

This is regarded as being perhaps the first warning that there is a limit to which even the patient United States can be pushed by hot-headed nationalist dictators. From the beginning, Kwame Nkrumah, who seized the reigns of the emerging of Ghana, has played footsie with the Communists while simultaneously accepting our help and kicking us in the teeth. He heaped indignity upon indignity, and now he has got around to accusing the Peace Corp of being part of the Central Intelligence Agency, the favorite whipping boy of foreign nations with a dual complex.

The theory that foreign aid should not be made to appear as a bribe or condition for help may have had a philosophical soundness, for indeed it has been the intention of this country to help rather than to compel. Thus, where our vast might was put up against the puny strength of tiny new nations, we bent over backwards to avoid even the very appearance of intimidation.

So the idea got around with the strong men of various nations, particularly those griping for a sense of national identification, that the nastier they got, the more help they would receive. Well, the message to Ghana seems to indicate we are turning that corner and none too soon.

PRESIDENTIAL ADVISOR

Around The Rim

Forever In Action

Funny, isn't it, how quickly events which at the time of their occurence were of tremendous impact, fade in the public memory?

Less than a quarter of a century ago, on this date, this nation was thrust into the greatest conflict the world has ever known by a sudden event.

FROM COAST TO COAST and from the Mexican border to Canada, Americans, young, old, black, white and of every creed, were shaken by this event as Americans have probably never before been shaken.

Twelve years after the event itself happened, it was my fortune to visit the scene where it occurred. And as I looked about me, the few physical features still left stirred a rage within me much as I had felt on the day itself.

DEC. 7, 1941—a day which President Franklin Roosevelt said would go down into history as "a day of infamy." The day that the Imperial Japanese navy sneaked near to the coast of Oahu and sent a mammoth fleet of war planes to bomb Pearl Harbor. A sneak attack made at the very time Japanese envoys in Washington were politely assuring everyone of their country's love for our country and of the certainity there would never be a war between Nippon and the United States.

Four years were to pass,—bloody, terrible years—before the warlords of Japan would have to humble themselves and surrender.

WHAT HAPPENED at Pearl Harbor was a sample of what happened on American installations in the Philippines.

The visit I made to Pearl Harbor in 1953 made the terrible tragedy of that Dec. 7 clearer and more real to me.

I THINK you have to go out on the blue waters of the harbor and examine the rusted upperstructure of the once proud USS Arizona to really understand the grimness of that day. I think you must pass close by the wreckage of the poor old USS Utah as it stands in the harbor mud to grasp a little better how dreadful was the crime of Dec. 7, 1941.

You gaze down into the clear water and can see the dim outlines of the USS Arizona's design a few feet beneath your boat.

THERE IS AN American flag flying in the breeze from the superstructure of the Arizona. They tell me now they have since erected a marker on her deck which details the story of her heroic death.

Nor for that matter was a marker really needed. All you needed to remind yourself of how sacred was the spot was to remember there are the bodies of 1,102 American seamen trapped in an eternal grave deep inside the rusting hulk.

The Navy department, soon after the attack contacted the parents of the men who had died on the Arizona. The Navy asked permission to leave the bodies of the seamen where they had died. They told me in Pearl Harbor every parent agreed.

THE USS ARIZONA is regarded by the Navy as a ship of the line. This is no sunken wreck, mouldering in the blue Pacific. This is a proud battleship the U.S. Navy — manned with her crew and officer staff. The Navy regards the Arizona and its men as still in action.

Today a lot of folk will devote a few fleeting memories to the dreadful ordeal of Dec. 7, 1941. Twenty-five more years, and there will be those who will ask "Pearl Harbor Day? What's that?" —SAM BLACKBURN

Marquis Childs

The Secretary Of State

WASHINGTON—Just five years ago a reserved, quiet mannered foundation president, whom not a single American in 10,000 had ever heard of, stepped from comfortable anonymity into the very eye of conflict and controversy. President-elect John F. Kennedy asked Dean Rusk to be Secretary of State in the Cabinet he was forming.

If Rusk ever regretted his decision he has given no sign of it. In the turmoil of an office that concentrates on the individual who occupies it and belted by the full force of every foreign policy crisis, he has continued to maintain a discreet personal reserve. Rusk, the man, is unfailingly subordinate to the dedicated public servant.

NO OFFICE except the Presidency is subject to such a glare of public interest. And the President, by reason of the eminence of his office, is often sheltered from the slings and arrows of misfortune that assail the Secretary of State. As has happened to every Secretary of State almost without exception, going back even to the quiet era when America's place in the world was on the periphery of power, Rusk is a figure of controversy.

ONE OF THE reasons Kennedy chose him was because he meant to be his own Secretary of State and the President-elect knew this was Rusk's concept of the office. He was to be an instrument carrying out the policy of the chief executive. The president of the Rockefeller Foundation, as Rusk was, wrote in Foreign Affairs in 1960: "The President, with the aid of his Secretary of State and the support of the Congress, supplies the leadership in our foreign relations."

RUSK HAS BEEN scrupulous in interpreting that definition and this is one reason for the criticism directed at him publicly by historian Arthur Schlesinger Jr., and privately by others in the Kennedy wing of the Democratic establishment. He fails to come up with initiatives. He is too neutral. No one knows where he really stands. This is the main thrust of the discontent with the Secretary of State.

But a glance at presidential history shows that Rusk, with one conspicuous exception, is in the tradition of Secretaries of State. Presidents have almost invariably asserted their constitutional right to direct foreign policy. And if the Secretary didn't like the policy set by the President he could resign, as some have done, or he could adapt his views to those of his chief, as others have done.

ON VITAL foreign policy issues such as Viet Nam Rusk's almost invariable custom is to re-state positions firmly marked out by the President. In his history of the JFK years Schlesinger quoted Kennedy as saying that he meant to drop Rusk after the 1964 election. This stirred indignant defense of the Secretary. Earlier while Kennedy was still in the White House a journalist with frequent access to the President quoted him as saying of Rusk:

"He's got guts. And his judgment is good. And in final analysis those are the qualities a Secretary of State needs. I wouldn't want to make a final decision on a vital matter involving our security until I'd heard his view. . . "

IF PRESIDENT JOHNSON had thought of replacing Rusk the Schlesinger attack assured his tenure so long as he cares to stay. Only recently Johnson let it be known that he considered Rusk the greatest Secretary of State in this century. As he gave complete loyalty to Kennedy so Rusk gives unstinting loyalty to Johnson.

Secretary of State watchers over the years have said it's an office in which you can't win. All you can hope for in a time of revolutionary troubles is to hang on, hoping for a few breaks that will even up the score.

De Gaulle's Ego Shows Through Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Big Charley lost a few inches Sunday when he failed to win re-election to a seven-year term in the French presidency, it was not his greatest failure, as he admitted, unintentionally.

From the end of the war until 1958 France was a travesty on political stability. It had so many political parties, from far left to far right. There was only government by crisis. One government after another fell.

The process was endless and France was dwindling into chaos when in 1958 it recalled Charles de Gaulle from retirement to take over. It was so flattering to his ego that he couldn't conceal it.

HE TOLD a news conference Frenchmen cried "Long live De Gaulle" instinctively when they were in anguish. He set out to give the French a new sense of destiny, a new sense of pride. And France prospered.

But, while De Gaulle can be gracious, this is not the same as graceful. And there was nothing graceful about his appeal to the French people a month ago to re-elect him.

He warned them that if he was not re-elected, the country would collapse. This was his ego again, of course: the indispensable man. But it blinded him to the significance of what his indispensability meant.

It was this: In seven years he had failed to provide the French people with, or guide them toward, a more mature political system which could save the country from the kind of instability which had almost destroyed it before he arrived.

LAST SUNDAY the French showed they didn't think he was totally indispensable. He got about 44.5 per cent of the vote and now must face his leading opponent, leftist Francois Mitterrand, supported by Socialists and Communists, in a run-off December 19.

Why did the French fail to give him the majority he needed for election Sunday? The reasons are not clear but perhaps they finally realized that, despite his dreams about the new grandeur of France, he stood for negation.

He sneered at the Anglo-Saxons — meaning Americans and British — and banned the British from the European Common Market; proposed neutralizing Southeast Asia; recognized the sovereignty of Red China; seemed well on his way to wrecking the NATO alliance; and talked of France leading a third world — between the West and communism — made up of the nations of Africa, Asia, and Latin America.

But while he was undermining the Western alliance, he was providing nothing in its place. Raymond Aron, one of France's most influential political commentators, said Europe could "not afford two De Gaulles."

Sir Winston Churchill in 1945 told President Franklin D. Roosevelt, "I am sure that in the long run no understanding will be reached with De Gaulle."

Gems From The Mailbag

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

If your child is overweight, don't just dismiss it as "baby fat." It has been found that they tend to retain their obesity in adulthood.

This will come as no surprise to Santa Claus, but chances are you don't know in what respect reindeer differ from other members of the deer family. Among reindeer both bucks and does have antlers.

THE GOOD old days? In 1851 when ice cream was first manufactured in the United States, the price ran as high as $1.25 a quart wholesale.

It isn't true that Frenchmen drink nothing but wine. A recent survey disclosed that nearly half of all French citizens drink at least some water every day.

A cultural note: Americans last year spent $580 million on rock 'n' roll records, according to Ebony magazine.

Quotable notables: "When I am dead and buried, on my tombstone I would like to have it written, 'I have arrived,' Because when you feel that you have arrived, you are dead" — Yul Brynner.

You're safer with a gun in the field than in the home. Firearms accidents in 1964 took 1,000 lives outside the home, 1,200 in the home.

KNOW YOUR language: Sofa comes for souf, the Arabic word for wool. Other words derived from Arabic include spinach, sherbet, algebra, zero, soda, alcohol, nadir, zenith, muslin, damask and syrup.

Nature lore: No wonder snakes are so grouchy. Because they have no eyelids, they have to sleep with their eyes wide open. Buffalo can run at speeds up to 40 miles an hour. If you think an elephant drinks through its trunk as if it were a straw, you're wrong. It merely fills its trunk with water, then squirts it into its mouth.

Not all dropouts fail in life. Louis Untermeyer, 80, poet, editor and author, quit high school in his sophomore year in disgust because he couldn't solve a geometry problem. In the 65 years since then he has written more than 90 books.

More Appeasement Plans

WASHINGTON—Dean Jerome Wiesner, now Dean of MIT and once a presidential advisor, is an old Pugwash hand.

THE PUGWASH Conferences, to bring together American and Soviet scientists in search of appeasement, began at the Canadian estate of the Cleveland industrialist, Cyrus Eaton, a dozen years ago. The most significant one took place in Russia between the election and inauguration of John F. Kennedy. Out of it came the New Frontier policy that we should "trust" the Soviet Union in the common interest of a peaceful century. The most conspicuous achievement of the Pugwash Conference in Moscow, attended by Wiesner as one of Kennedy's representatives, was the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. Men like Sen. Russell, Dr. Teller and Gen. LeMay have warned that we would live to regret that disarmament pact.

NOW DR. WIESNER offers another cutting from the harvests of appeasement which were sown in the Pugwash spirit. Wiesner is chairman of a 15-member committee which has just advised the White House to choose further disarmament as a means of nullifying the Russian missile threat.

The latest Wiesner proposal is for a three-year moratorium with the Russians on building anti-ballistic missiles (ABM's) which would shoot nuclear-bearing projectiles out of the sky. The argument is that if we don't set up this modern anti-aircraft system, and if the Russians promise not to do so, both the U.S.A. and U.S.S.R. will be mutually and relatively safe from attack.

IT IS THE same argument of "freeze" that prevailed when we agreed not to do any more nuclear testing above the earth or in space.

No one knows for sure whether Russia is ahead or behind in ABM development—but it's pretty certain that we have many more missiles (which is comforting) and that Russia is more vulnerable than we are. It's also pretty certain that our NIKE-X program, while not so far along as President Johnson hinted during last year's campaign, is doing very well. If we continue it, and bring it to full performance, there is the reasonable chance that we may have a protective umbrella of sorts against Russian nuclear attack—and, of course, against nuclear blackmail.

GIVE UP THIS advantage? Lay down, in effect, our defensive armament? Take a chance on our national existence that the Russians will keep their word?

Well, the Wiesner proposition is that if we slow up the "arms race" (even though we're winning it), we will somehow frustrate world communism, which has the avowed purpose of finding ways to destroy us.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

When Ambassador Averell Harriman was in Moscow this summer, the official story initially was that he was in the Soviet Union on a private vacation. It turned out substantially that he had had important talks about two of the world's most pressing problems: Viet Nam and preventing the spread of nuclear weapons.

Now another United States mission is in the Soviet capital—the five-man senatorial group led by Sen. Mike Mansfield—but nobody is pretending this time that it is there for either rest or recreation.

It can be safely assumed that the time given Sen. Mansfield and his colleagues by the Soviet leadership means they had important things to talk about. From the Russian capital, the senatorial group flies to Saigon.

All this has led to speculation that another move might be afoot to find a way toward a Viet Nam settlement—and this time with Soviet cooperation. Peking's shrill indictment of Moscow for allegedly doing just that tends to confirm that some such maneuvering is under way behind the scenes.

So long as the war continues in Viet Nam, Moscow is frustrated in its apparent desire to widen the area of accommodation with Washington. The war makes the Soviets prisoners of their own doctrinal professions — and gives the Chinese a wonderful opening for scoring exegetic points.

Could it be, then, that Moscow is genuinely trying to open the way to an acceptable Viet Nam settlement? If the Soviets were successful in this attempt, Washington would be mightily relieved. And that would probably give Moscow an excuse for asking of the United States a favor in return. What might it be? Why not a more sympathetic American ear to Soviet insistence that German fingers be definitively kept off any nuclear trigger?

What Is Colic? It's A Pain

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes colic?—MRS. G. G.

You, my dear, win the prize for the shortest letter I've ever had. Good question, too.

Colic is a sharp abdominal pain, and the word derives from the word colon. Therefore lots of things can cause colic.

We usually think of colic as an infant's problem. I suppose that is what you mean. Well, pediatricians often remark that "colic isn't a disease; it's a symptom." And that's true. It's a pain.

Adults have true colic. Passing of a stone (kidney or a gall stone) is common. Pylorospasm (spasm of the outlet of the stomach) or spasm of the bowel or colon can be exquisitely painful. Distension from "gas" is another. Some menstrual pains can fairly be called colic. And so on.

In an infant, colic is a severe bellyache. The simplest and commonest form (except as I will explain) is the pain that results from swallowing air while feeding, usually from a bottle. The poor child has "gas pains." That's whey we tuck them up over our shoulder and burp them after feeding.

Here, however, are two observations that seem to be little known except among doctors. First, colic is more common among first born babies, less common among second or third. Or thirteenth.

Second, colic in babies, while common at home, is very rare in hospitals. This is significant.

After all, how do you know that a baby has colic? Because he cries! And why does a baby cry? Not necessarily because he is in pain, or has colic, but because he is unhappy or worried or upset.

Both folklore and the inexperience of new parents ascribe a baby's cry to colic. Quite often that's wrong. Baby is crying because he wants attention, or is vaguely tense because people around him are tense and nervous. I don't say this critically. We can't all be calm and placid. But calm, easy-going parents tend to have calm babies who seldom have colic. Life's like that.

Tense, apprehensive babies, like adults, can develop nervous cramps. Colic, if you please. "Nerves" become real pain.

Cuddling in a rocking chair cures the colic of a lot of babies. Best ways to prevent colic are, besides burping a baby who happens to be an energetic air-swallower, are to be calm, affectionate, to give baby a reasonably regular schedule, to adjust his feeding schedule suitably, and to remember that every holler isn't colic. Sometimes he wails because he is lonesome, scared, feeling neglected or—well, why do all of us feel like yelling in protest at times?

Note to Mrs. E. T.: Yes, electrolysis is safe from a medical standpoint. It removes hairs permanently—but other hairs, not especially noticeable now, may become darker as time passes, so you may, subsequently, want to have more of them removed. With that in mind, electrolysis is effective.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple. Write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald for a copy of the booklet, "How To Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all mail from his readers, but because of the great volume received daily he is unable to answer individual letters. Dr. Molner uses reader's letters in his column whenever possible.

Letters To The President

WASHINGTON — It has been rumored that McGeorge Bundy, the President's White House advisor on foreign affairs, has been offered the presidency of the Ford Foundation at $75,000 a year. It has also been rumored that Mr. Bundy really doesn't want to take the job, if the President would indicate what plans he has for Mr. Bundy's future. It is further rumored that Mr. Bundy wrote a letter to Mr. Johnson telling him of the Ford offer, but so far the President has not answered the letter.

This is not the first time such a correspondence has taken place between a White House aide and the President. I have in my possession a series of letters another presidential staffer wrote to President Johnson in hopes of forcing the President's hand.

The first one said:

"DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

I have just been offered the Chancellorship of the Appalachia Success Correspondence Schools at $100,000 a year. I told them, of course, it would be out of the question to take the job when my services were so badly needed by you. They asked me to write to you and inquire whether my job in the White House was that important, and so, to please a whim, more than anything else, I am writing to you, knowing full well what your answer will be. Waiting to hear from you I remain.

Yours truly,"

The following week another letter was sent.

"DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

I know how busy you have been lately, but I was just wondering if you ever received my letter concerning the job offer made to me by the Appalachia Success Correspondence Schools. It's quite possible since Larry O'Brien took over as Postmaster General, the letter may have gotten lost.

I have assured the Appalachia people that you have something very big in store for me in the next few months, something you would rather not announce at this time, and that is probably why you hesitated to put anything in writing concerning my future. If you could just hint in a letter something to this effect without the specifics, I'm sure it would satisfy the Appalachia people and they would stop bothering me.

Oh, by the way, Mrs. Johnson was wonderful on television the other night.

Sincerely yours,"

Two weeks later a third letter was sent.

"DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

Things must be really hectic at the ranch. I've been kidding the mailman about losing a letter from the President of the United States sent to me, but he insists he's never seen one. To bring you up to date, the Appalachia Success Correspondence Schools want me to head up their program. My wife says I ought to take it, but I said my first loyalty was to you, and that you would be infuriated if I even considered it.

Could you have either Jack Valenti or Bill Moyers or someone call me just to confirm this, as the Appalachia people are starting to wonder if I really do work in the White House. I'd be very happy to stay right where I am. Unlike many White House staffers I have no ambitions other than to serve you to the best of my ability. The photographs of you at LBJ ranch are wonderful.

Your Faithful Servant,"

The final letter was sent on November 14.

"DEAR MR. PRESIDENT,

"I regret that I must submit my resignation for personal reasons. Now before you protest . . . . . "

Watts Violence Surveyors Fear Even Worse Ahead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — California's governor says he'll try to implement his riot commission's report, which suggests possible violence worse than last August's in Los Angeles if Negroes' "explosive" conditions aren't improved.

What's more, Gov. Edmund G. Brown said as he accepted the massive, 101-page study, he'll call the commission back in six months so it can check progress.

But considerable unfavorable reaction also greeted the eight civic leaders' report Monday on the deadly, destructive six days in a 46½-square-mile area including shattered Watts.

"Totally inadequate," said a labor union official. "Deeply disappointed," said a civil rights leader.

WORSE FEARED

Tucked into the graphic, 30,000-word report, 100 days in the making at a cost of $250,000, was this paragraph:

"So serious and so explosive is the situation that, unless it is checked, the August riots may seem by comparison to be only a curtain-raiser for what could blow up one day in the future."

The commission proposed "expensive and burdensome" programs in job development, education and law enforcement to prevent a recurrence of the fire-bombing, gunfire and looting that left:

Thirty-four persons dead, 1,032 injured, 3,952 arrested, property loss over $40 million, more than 600 buildings damaged, more than 200 of them destroyed.

At the height of the Aug. 11-17 violence, the commission said, perhaps 10,000 Negroes took to the streets in marauding bands.

"They looted stores, set fires, beat up white passersby whom they hauled from stopped cars, many of which were turned upside down and burned, exchanged shots with law enforcement officers and stoned and shot at firemen," the report said.

Gov. Brown asked his commissioners — educators and community leaders, including a housewife, a Negro judge and a Negro pastor — to study basic causes of the violence and suggest how best to keep it from happening again.

WHICH ONE?

Chairman John McCone, former chief of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Central Intelligence Agency, handed the report, "Violence in the City — An End or a Beginning?" to Brown Monday.

'Objects' Seen Again

Those mysterious flying objects are returning to West Texas skies.

Monday night, police officers Ruben Gonzales and William Lee said they saw a bright, green and blue object falling north of the Ramada Inn, in northwest Big Spring. They said it burst into flames near the ground.

Arvin Henry, Texas Highway Patrolman, also saw the object from his vantage point, 10 miles north of the city on SH 176. He said it appeared to be near Andrews.

The Webb AFB control tower observers did not report seeing it.

Crash Fatal To 6 On Private Plane

HINDMAN, Ky. (AP) — A private plane flying through haze and light snow flurries over the eastern Kentucky mountains crashed at the head of a hollow on Puncheon Creek, killing its six occupants, all from New York State.

The wreckage was found Monday night, three hours after the craft went down apparently without sending a distress signal.

State police said the bodies of pilot Earl S. Rumsey, Liverpool, Rusyniak, 40, Baldwindsville, N.Y. were taken to the Appalachian Regional Hospital at Harlan for an autopsy.

The four passengers were officials of the Agway Corp., a farmer sales cooperative in New York State, and were en route in the chartered plane to Chattanooga, Tenn., to undergo training in accounting methods.

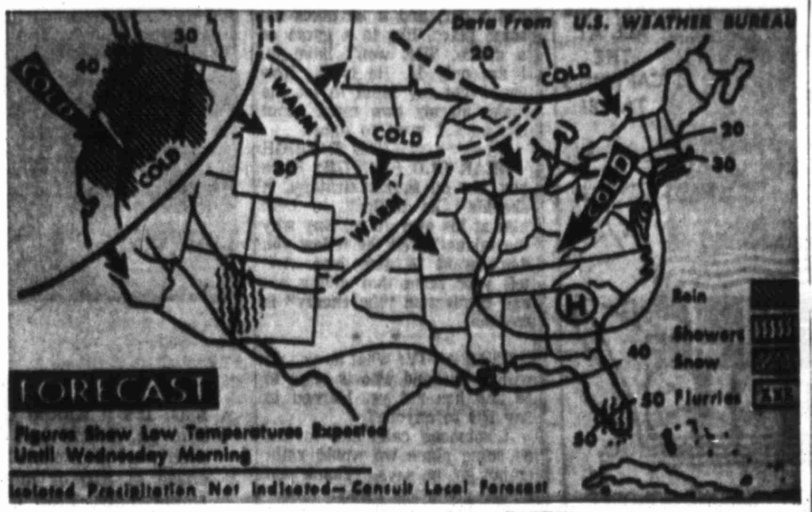

Agway officials identified them as Phil D. Stump, 47, of Fayetteville, N.Y., corporation vice president-controller; George A. Malone, 50, controller of the fertilizer division; Robert G. Bielmann, 42, general accounting office manager for the fertilizer division; and Donald Firestone, 40, employed in the controller's office, all of Ithaca

Police Check Burglary, Theft

Police checked a burglary and a theft Monday.

INTENSIFIED WAR STRATEGY

'Roving Strikes' By Copters Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. forces probably will use intensified "roving strikes" by helicopter-borne fighting men against a heavier inflow of Communist North Vietnamese troops.

Barring a major change in national policy, it is considered highly unlikely that the United States will send troops into Laos to form a fence to cut off the movement of North Vietnamese regulars into beleaguered South Viet Nam. Also, Cambodia's professed neutrality will be respected, even though U.S. officials believe Communist troops have used that country as a sanctuary.

PICTURE EMERGES

This picture emerged from interviews with top sources familiar with the planning in the growing war in Viet Nam.

There is a body of opinion in the military which favors the idea of sending U.S. troops into Laos and thus to try to sever the infiltration lines over which a growing number of North Vietnamese regulars are believed moving south.

As one source put it, "It's better to put a bucket under the faucet than to try to mop up the floor."

STRATEGIC DEFENSIVE

Within the present policy, sources said, the United States is basically fightnig a strategic defensive in its efforts to save South Viet Nam from being overrun by the Communists.

The best way to do this, experts said, is to take the tactical offensive — "to find the Communists and cut them to pieces."

This is a course of action which U.S. ground combat forces have been following for months and which apparently will be amplified.

Officials cite the recent bloody battle in the Ia Drang Valley as an example of what could be expected in the future.

In that running fight, troopers of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division and their South Vietnamese allies killed nearly 2,300 of the enemy. U.S. losses totaled less than 10 per cent of the Communist dead.

HEAVY BOMBING

There is every indication that the section of the infiltration network extending from North Viet Nam through Laos is in for some heavy aerial pounding.

Information available here suggests that the Communists have made progressive improvements over the past year in their ability to move both northward and southward through Laos.

One informant said there is "a significant amount of evidence that the roads have been improved and that the network of roads and trails has been extended."

Pythian Home To Benefit At Lodge Meet

Frontier Lodge 43 of the Knights of Pythias will have its annual roll call at 1407 Lancaster at 7:30 p.m. today, and lodge officials are urging a maximum attendance.

By tradition, members answer the roll call with gifts for the Thanksgiving - Christmas Fund to be used for the maintenance of the Texas Pythian Home for children at Weatherford.

The home has been in operation since 1909 and has served several thousand young people during that time. Virtually all have become fine citizens and many have risen to places of prominence and influence.

Hugo F. Horstmann, who has been in charge of the home for 23 years, will present a program with a number of the children from the home. He also will speak.

An example of the work being done by the home is Ruth Rhoten, who is being sponsored in the home by Big Spring Knights and Pythian Sisters. This is the fourth year that Ruth has lived at the Pythian home after she was left here by her family. She is now in her first year of high school, is a member of the Weatherford High School band as a clarinetest. She has an amibition to become a nurse. Among the 82 other children at the home are Jerry Hopper and Margie Hopper, both of Colorado City.

High Court Backs FPC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court affirmed today the Federal Power Commission's authority to fix the starting price at which natural gas may be sold in interstate commerce.

The FPC can properly conclude under the National Gas Act, Justice William Douglas said for the court, "that adequate protection to the public interest requires as an interim measure that gas not enter the interstate market at prices higher than existing levels."

MAKE REFUNDS

And, Douglas continued, "the commission could properly conclude that the public interest required the producers to make refunds for the period in which they sold their gas at prices exceeding those properly determined to be in the public interest."

Justice John Harlan wrote a separate opinion that partly concurred and partly dissented from the court's action. Justice Abe Fortas took no part in the decision. The rest of the court joined with Douglas.

The power commission has said substantial quantities of gas and large sums of money are at stake in the case.

A commission certificate is required before gas producers may contract to sell to pipeline company. Generally, a commission proceeding determines if the sale is in the public interest and later changes in rates are considered in a different, more comprehensive hearing.

Back From Clinic

Dr. Harold G. Smith has returned from Houston where he participated in a clinic on developmental vision in children. The series of lecture-demonstrations was conducted at the University of Houston and dealt with visual problems in children who may be slow in reading or otherwise retarded. The studies stem from recognition that sight is a skill that must be developed just as walking, talking, etc.

Soto, Smith Go To Prison

Higinio Soto, facing 25 years in prison for robbery of the Security State Bank late in October, 1964, will be checked in at the Texas State Penitentiary in Huntsville this afternoon.

Deputies Sam Roberts and Claude Morris left early today for Huntsville. They took Soto and James Ernest Smith to the state prison.

Smith is a parole violator who was picked up here on state prison orders.

Soto has been held in jail here since a few minutes after he held up a teller at the Security State Bank and fled with several hundred dollars in cash. He was apprehended near the Big Spring State Hospital.

Tried in 118th District Court, the jury found him guilty of robbery by assault and fixed his punishment at 25 years in the state penitentiary. He filed an appeal which was turned down two weeks ago because it was imperfect.

The mandate of the appeals court reached here Monday and Sheriff A. N. Standard ordered the prisoner taken to state prison.

Morris and Roberts will go on from Huntsville to Jackson, Miss., before returning to Big Spring. They will bring back Bobby Lee Roberts. Roberts is being held in Jackson on a Howard County charge of felony theft. He has waived extradition and will be brought back here to face trial.

Patients To Go 'Shopping'

Tonight patients at the Big Spring State Hospital will make their third annual Christmas shopping visit to the F. W. Woolworth store.

Continental Trailways buses will pick up the first load of patients at the hospital at 7 p.m. These will be brought to the Woolworth store where they will be served coffee and cookies and given an opportunity to "shop" for Christmas gifts. As soon as the first bus load has been entertained, a second load will arrive. The process will be repeated until all of the patients who are able to participate have had their chance to visit the store.

Hospital staff members planned the party. The store will not be open to the general public, but only for the entertainment of the special guests.

Lions Will Host New Webb Class

Downtown Lions will meet as usual Wednesday noon at the Settles, but they will not meet on Dec. 15. Instead, they will be host Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Howard County Junior College student union building to members and wives of the new class at Webb AFB. Frosty Robison, president, urged a large attendance Wednesday so that details may be furnished on the Saturday party.

Tax Payments Run Ahead

Tax collections in the office of Zirah LeFevre, county tax assessor - collector, for November were well ahead of collections for the same month in 1964. However, it is pointed out that county tax rate is seven cents a hundred higher this year than it was in 1964.

Total collections for October and November now stand at $1,057,973. This compares with $1,018,991 for the same two months a year ago.

Collections for this past month were $33,228; for November, 1964, totals were $29,138.

During December county taxpayers who have not paid their taxes are entitled to claim a one per cent discount from the gross bill. After December, the taxes unpaid are for the face amount. In February a penalty is added.

Mrs. LeFevre said that sale of poll tax for November and October this year is lagging behind 1964. Total through Nov. 2 was 489. This compares with 651 for the same period a year ago. So far this year, 735 exemption certificates have been written, but the number of exemptions for the same months in 1964 are not available.

DEAR ABBY

Watch The Mistletoe

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can print this before Christmas. It might save a child's life. Last year I bought a package of fresh mistletoe to decorate my house for the holidays. My two-year-old daughter got into the package, which was sitting on my kitchen table. The mistletoe berries looked as though they would be good to eat, so she ate some. (No one saw her eat them, and even if I had seen her eat them I probably wouldn't have been alarmed because I didn't know mistletoe berries were poisonous.) Later that evening she became violently ill. We called a doctor and fortunately she had not eaten enough to kill her, but she was very, very ill. Please warn other mothers, Abby.

SAN BRUNO MOM

DEAR MOM: Thank you for your informative letter. I thought mistletoe was to inspire kissing. I didn't know it was the kiss of death.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I broke up with a fellow about a month ago and now he wants to go back with me, but I don't want to date him any more. My mother is on HIS side and is doing everything she can think of to help him. (She coaches him on how to get a date with me. If I tell him I'm busy she tells him to ask me for the next night, or the next, until I have a free evening.) I think the only reason she likes him is because he has a car, and if he takes me some place, like to a game or a dance, SHE won't have to. I am only 15. He is 18. How can I get my Mom to let me make up my own mind about the guys I want to date?

OLD ENOUGH

DEAR OLD ENOUGH: Since you are on to his strategy, it shouldn't be difficult to beat him at his own game. Buy why the minuet? Tell the fellow you don't want to date him. And tell your Mom that giving aid and comfort to "the enemy" is treason.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What do you do with a husband who is close to 50 and has not yet learned to say NO to anyone?

If someone calls and invites us some place we would rather not go, he says, "Thank you for the invitation, I'll ask Jane," (me) then he tells me when they call I should tell them we can't make it.

If someone asks him for a favor he is not in a position to grant, I am the one who has to turn them down and give the reason. If someone has owed him for a long time, I have to coax him to remind them because he could never bring himself to ask. I realize that kindness is a fine trait, but I wonder if that's what it is? I am tired of constantly being the "bad-y." Why can't my husband do the job? "THE BAD-Y"

DEAR BAD-Y: Because he has a wife who not only CAN do the job, but WILL. You may grumble, but he figures you are easier to handle than the others. At age 50, you aren't apt to change him. He's sensitive, gentle, kind and—SMART.

Pioneer Resident Dies, Lived In Coahoma Area

WILLIAM M. SPEARS

Services for William Monroe Spears, 90, one of the county's oldest pioneers, will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the River-Welch Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in the Trinity Memorial Park. The Rev. Bill Sanders, Lubbock, Church of God pastor, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. H. B. Graves, Coahoma.

Mr. Spears, who was born in Louisiana, Sept. 3, 1875, came to Howard County in 1889 and spent 75 years of his life as resident on a farm a mile north of Coahoma. He died at 11:20 a.m. Monday in a local hospital after a brief illness.

Mr. Spears is the son of the late J. W. Spears, who came to this county and settled the farm in 1889. In the early years, the farm was devoted to the growth of sorghum only, but later the owner began experimenting with cotton.

The family at first had to haul water from Iatan lake but after five years, a well was dug on the farm. The well was some distance from the two-story house where the family lived and the house was moved to the well. After several years, the elder Spears sold the farm to William Spears. This was about 1900.

Mr. Spears was married to Alice Annie Rice, Feb. 23, 1896, in Howard County. She died in 1952. On Aug. 24, 1953, he married Lucy Williams at Dickens, Texas, who survives him.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Lucy Spears, Coahoma; two sons, J. D. Spears, Coahoma, and Cecil Spears, San Bernardino, Calif.; six daughters, Mrs. Linnie Bills, Sweetwater, Mrs. Ada Eggleston, Odessa, Mrs. Bessie Dickson, Coahoma, Opal Spears, Dallas, Mrs. Lucille Zonker, Houston, and Mrs. Lenora Whitaker, Houston. There are 24 grandchildren and 33 great-grandchildren.

Stocks Stage Good Rebound

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebounded sharply today, recouping virtually all of the losses taken in Monday's selloff on news of higher interest rates. Trading was heavy.

The snapback was especially dramatic in the Dow Jones industrial average, which surged ahead 11.02 to 950.55 — but a six-point jump by Du Pont was a big factor. Joining in the advance were electronics, aerospace defense stocks, airlines, photographic and office equipment issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 2.4 at 353.1, almost recovering its loss of 2.6 Monday. Industrials were up .48, rails, .7 and utilities .7.

Sperry Rand made an upside breakout to a new high on a block of 90,000 shares and later traded at 21, up 1⅛ on a block of 10,000 shares.

Boeing gained 5, IBM 4, Xerox 4, Fairchild Camera 4, U.S. Smelting 3.

Up 2 or better were such issues as SCM Corp., Magnavox, Zenith, Polaroid, Douglas Aircraft, United Air Lines, Eastern Air Lines, Schering and Chrysler.

Prices advanced in heavy trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged. U.S. Treasury bonds edged higher.

Murder Case Leads Traced

FORT WORTH (AP)—A number of persons may be implicated in the slaying of attorney Robert Maclin, Texas Ranger G. W. Burks said Monday night.

Burks made the statement after conferring with two officers who gave a lie detector test during the weekend to a former Fort Worth police character who now lives out of state.

"The lie detector test and later interrogation leads us to believe that several persons know about the slaying and may have attempted to have Maclin killed," Burks said.

Burks said Haltom City police, as a result of the questioning and other investigation, have a good foundation for filing a conspiracy to commit murder charge in connection with the case.

"There is still some work to do but I think they have come up with some definite leads," the ranger said.

He said officers considered filing the conspiracy case Monday but decided to hold off pending further investigation.

Maclin was fatally wounded May 17 on a parking lot in suburban Haltom City.

Rev. Alfred Guyon Dies At Age 89

Denton Newspaper Sends Fowler To Report War

DENTON — The Denton Record-Chronicle, which has a circulation slightly in excess of 12,000 has assigned its own representative to report the war in Viet Nam.

Wick Fowler, who also covered World War II, is in Viet Nam now. He left Denton for the war zone Dec. 1.

Fowler is on an unrestricted assignment for the Record-Chronicle but will concentrate on producing news and feature stories about Texans.

Riley Cross, publisher of the Record - Chronicle, said Fowler would contact as many Texans as he could regardless of what part of the state they were from.

"Persons with friends or relatives in Viet Nam may send us the names and addresses," Cross said, "and we'll be glad to forward them to Fowler. If he can contact them he will."

The Record - Chronicle is the first Texas newspaper to have a reporter covering the Vietnamese conflict on a continuing basis. Cross said he believed the Record - Chronicle also is the smallest newspaper in the nation to do this.

In explaining the reason behind this expensive and unique undertaking, Cross said: "We feel deeply that we have an obligation to our readers to have our own representative in Viet Nam.

"Mr. Fowler is one of the best and most experienced reporters in the United States. In World War II, he reported with distinction for the Dallas News, from both the European and Pacific theaters.

"He knows what war is, from the standpoint of the foot soldier, the sailor and the airman, as well as the general.

"He will bring the people of our area a better understanding of the war, and this, we feel, will be a great public service."

Coming Oil Output Need Pointed Up

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The United States will use more oil and gas in the next 15 years than it has in all the 106-year history of the petroleum industry, the Interstate Oil Compact Commission was told today.

Onnie L. Lattu, director of the oil and gas office of the Department of the Interior, made the prediction in prepared remarks at the general session of the commission at its annual meeting in Corpus Christi.

"If the domestic industry is to supply the same proportion of this consumption that it now does," Lattu said, "and keep our reserve-to-production ratios where they now stand, we are talking about a need to add 85 billion barrels of petroleum liquids and 500 trillion cubic feet of gas to our proved reserves over the next 15 years."

An economic consultant, Richard J. Gonzalez, was the other main speaker today. He was to discuss the progress in state petroleum regulations and the advantages the industry has derived from the regulations.

H. Byron Mock, vice chairman of new public land law review commission, Monday called for industry cooperation.

Mock said his group, appointed two months ago by President Johnson, will draw on an advisory committee of 25 persons from all over the nation and the representatives of state governors "to arrive at universally acceptable solutions to problems of public lands."

Wallace Estate Is $840,000

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Henry A. Wallace, one of Franklin D. Roosevelt's vice presidents, left a will disposing of an estate valued at $840,000 and giving advice to his descendants.

Wallace, who died Nov. 18 at his farm home in South Salem, N.Y., at the age of 77, said in the will dated last July 30:

BEEN BLESSED

"I have been blessed in many ways and would like to pass some of the blessings on."

The will was filed Monday for probate in the Westchester County Surrogate Office here. It disposed of real estate valued at $150,000 and personal property, including stocks, valued at $690,000.

Wallace had served as secretary of agriculture and was known around the world as an agricultural magazine publisher, developer of hybrid Corn, and poultry breeder.

UNDER TRUMAN

His last public office was secretary of commerce in the Harry S. Truman administration.

Wallace wrote that some of his material wealth still was in the corn companies he had developed in Iowa, Illinois and Indiana. Much of the stock, he continued, had already been given to his sons, Robert of Doylestown, Pa., and Henry B. of West Des Moines, Iowa; his daughter, Jean W. Douglas of Washington; and other relatives. More will go to them ultimately from his widow's estate, he wrote.

Coahoma Urged To Lend Support To WTCC Plans

The story of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce—its history, its work to improve the business climate of West Texas and its mission of correlating the interests of West Texas — was brought to the Coahoma Lions Club meeting in Coahoma Monday evening.

Speaker was George R. Jordan of the WTCC staff, and he was accompanied to the meeting by WTCC directors from Midland, Stanton, Big Spring and Lamesa, and by John Ben Sheppard, Odessa, one of the organization's vice presidents. Sheppard asked support from Coahoma to the extent that the community may have a representative on the WTCC board. This calls for $100 in annual memberships.

Jordan reviewed the work of all WTCC committees, in such fields as agriculture and livestock, tourist development, industrial development, petroleum and chemicals, and others, and told how each of these had labored to improve the lot of the whole western region of Texas.

Only one car accident was reported here Monday; there were no injuries. Elva H. Garza, 1410 Robin, driver of one car, was involved in a mishap with the parked car of Vera Sanchez, 1319 Mobile, at 1504 Robin.

Pontiff Proclaims 4 Decrees Of Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI proclaimed the last four decrees of the Vatican Ecumenical Council today and promised the questions it did not answer—such as birth control — would not be put aside after the three-year-old council ends Wednesday.

The bishops of the Roman Catholic Church took final formal votes on each of the decrees in a public council session in St. Peter's Basilica. All were approved, and the controversial documents on religious liberty and modern world problems received even bigger majorities than in earlier work sessions.

Pope Paul then promulgated the documents. The religious liberty declaration and the 36,000-word statement on modern world problems — denouncing nuclear warfare and keeping open the question of birth control — were milestones for the Roman Catholic Church. They committed it to a more open, more accommodating relationship with the world around it.

WAY OPEN

The modern world statement did not alter Roman Catholic teaching on birth control but left the way open for future changes.

Apparently alluding to this and other questions, Pope Paul said in a discourse:

"If quite a few questions raised during the course of the council itself still await appropriate answers, this shows that its labors are now coming to a close not out of weariness but in a state of vitality. . .

"In the post-conciliar period this vitality will apply, God willing, its generous and well-regulated energies to the study of such questions."

The council session was also historic in another respect. Pope Paul here and Patriarch Athenagoras in Istanbul made simultaneous declarations canceling excommunications that led to the break between the Roman and Orthodox churches nine centuries ago.

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY

The religious liberty declaration was approved by a vote of 2,308-70

A vote of 2,309-75 accepted the decree on modern world problems.

In working sessions of the council 251 prelates had opposed the modern world schema and 249 objected to the religious liberty declaration.

The other two decrees promulgated today were on missionary activity, (approved 2,394-5), and on the priestly life, (approved 2,390-4).

Safety Step For Airports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency is moving to equip the nation's major airports with a three-dimension radar technique designed to prevent accidents such as Saturday's collision of airliners over New York's Westchester County.

An FAA official said the technique has been satisfactorily developed during the past five years in a program to establish a national air space system.

But he said the highly sophisticated, computerized system — costing in the millions of dollars — won't be introduced into the busy New York area for about two years.

LOCATER SYSTEM

The plane locater system is designed for high-altitude traffic control through the use of what the FAA calls stored alpha-numerics.

Under the technique, the radar blips of an approaching airliner are electronically tagged with luminous letters and numerals called alpha-numerics. This tag instantly tells air control tower personnel the plane's identification, altitude and location in distance and direction.

A device called a transponder automatically flashes the information from the airliner to the tower radar screen. This eliminates considerable voice communication, including perhaps faulty altitude readings, between the pilot and the tower.

SHUNS SPECULATION

FAA and Civil Aeronautics Board officials declined to speculate whether the alpha-numerics technique would have prevented Saturday's collision of an Eastern Airlines Constellation and a Trans World Airline jet.

Officials are still investigating the accident, they said.

The prop-driven Constellation crashed near North Salem, N.Y., after clipping the wing of the TWA jet. Amazingly, only four of the 58 persons aboard were killed. The jet made it safely to New York's Kennedy International Airport.

Texas' Largest Newspaper Sold

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas' largest newspaper and several other properties formerly owned by the late Jesse H. Jones Sr., one of the state's greatest tycoons, have been purchased for $85 million by John W. Mecom, a relatively young oil multi-millionaire who started as an oilfield roughneck.

Included in the sale are the famous Rice Hotel, the Rice Hotel Garage, the Rice Hotel Laundry and Houston Endowment, Inc., the Houston Chronicle and stock in the Texas National Bank of Commerce.

The bank is Houston's second largest, listing deposits of more than $660 million. The endowment stock reportedly amounts to 30 per cent of the 2.4 million shares the bank has outstanding and is said to have a market value in excess of $40 million.

Mecom, 54, is a Democrat but has not publicly been active in politics. Last September, however, he met with 25 other leaders of big business at the White House to assure President Johnson of the business community's support in the 1964 election.

The group called itself the National Independent Committee for President Johnson and Sen. Humphrey.

Mecom has been a guest at the White House several times during the Johnson administration.

The Chronicle, which last reported to the audit bureau of circulation a daily figure of 269,704 and a Sunday figure of 313,592, lists itself as independent.

In presidential elections since World War II it supported: Dewey in 1948, no one in 1952, Eisenhower in 1956, Nixon in 1960, and Johnson in 1964.

Announcement of the sale was made Monday by J. H. Creekmore, president of the endowment, a philanthropic foundation created by Jones before his death in 1956.

The 17-story Rice Hotel was built by Jones in 1912 on the site of the first capitol of Texas and several successive hotels.

Jones bought into the Chronicle in 1910, nine years after it was started by Marcellus E. Foster, and bought out Foster in 1926. He held ownership until he gave it to his foundation.

Jones was head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation under both President Hoover and President Roosevelt.

Jones' grandson, John T. Jones Jr., president of the Chronicle, declined comment on Monday's sale. He pointed out that he recently stepped down as chairman of the Houston Endowment Board.

Mecom is to assume ownership "as soon as practicable." No date was mentioned.

REP. GRAHAM PURCELL

Rep. Purcell Honored At Denton Dinner

DENTON (AP) — Rep. Carl Albert, D-Okla., predicted Monday night that Congress will investigate the increase in discount rates by the Federal reserve board.

The Democratic leader, speaking at a dinner honoring Rep. Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls said:

"Appropriate committees of Congress, no doubt, will look into the increase in discount rates made yesterday by the Federal reserve board. This is a thing that affects the livelihood of us all."

Several persons, including Albert, spoke out in tribute to Purcell, a Democrat.

"He is respected by every member of the house of every political view from every section of the country," Albert said.

"He's got an abundance of good, common sense. He's a constructive, hard - working house member . . .

"He deserves re - election. I am sure you will give him what he deserves."

A telegram from President Johnson said:

"In over 30 years in Washington, I am sincere in saying that Graham Purcell is one of the most capable legislators that I have known since his election, he has earned not only my admiration but that of his colleagues.

"I cherish his friendship, and I join the people of the Denton area in this tribute to his friendship."

Selma Trial Under Way

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Two clergymen who were with the Rev. James J. Reeb when he was clubbed fatally on a Selma street nine months ago have been called to testify in the trial of three white men charged with the slaying.

The two ministers, subpoenaed as prosecution witnesses, were accompanying Reeb the night of March 9 when they were attacked by several white men. Reeb, 38-year-old Unitarian minister, was hit with a club and died two days later.

IN MARCH

The three clergymen had taken part in a Negro voting rights march.

Circuit Solicitor Blanchard McLeod, the prosecutor, said he had summoned the Rev. Orloff F. Miller of Boston, where Reeb lived, and the Rev. Clark Olson of Berkeley, Calif., the slain minister's companions. They were struck in the attack.

3 ON TRIAL

Called to trial today on first-degree murder charges were William Stanley Hoggle, 37, a salesman; his brother, Namon O'Neal Hoggle, 31, an auto mechanic, and Elmer L. Cook, 42, manager of a novelty company.

A fourth man, R. B. Kelley, 38, who was arrested but not indicted, has been subpoenaed as a prosecution witness.

Kelley and the three defendants all have been charged under a federal law with conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Reeb and his companions. No trial date has been set for the federal charges.

Auto Collision Kills Woman

SHERMAN (AP)—A prominent Sherman woman died and an Alabama airman suffered critical injuries in a two-car collision Monday night two miles east of Whitesboro in North Texas.

Mrs. Charles Dannel, 51, died before reaching a Sherman hospital. She was the widow of Charles Dannel, longtime owner of the Dannel Funeral Home here.

Reported in critical condition at the nearby Perrin Air Force Base Hospital was Airman 3.C. James Pope, 19, who is stationed at Altus AFB, Okla. Officers gave his hometown as Lillian, Ala.

Interest Rate Hike Stirs Congressional Criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board's order boosting interest rates has drawn new congressional criticism after a meeting between President Johnson and board Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. produced no change in their opposing stands on the increase.

Some Democrats who attacked the board's Sunday decision, which raised interest rates to the highest level in 35 years, suggested the possibility of curbing the board's independent status.

But indications were that critics would vent their wrath against Martin in congressional hearings next month and subside temporarily to see what happens with the economy before proceeding further.

The board looks upon the increase as an anti-inflation move. The administration says higher rates may put a damper on the economy.

"He didn't address himself to changing my mind and I didn't address myself to changing his," Johnson told a news conference after his two-hour meeting at his Texas ranch with Martin and other economic advisers.

INFLATION FEAR

Martin said that while he was optimistic about the future of the economy, he looks on the threat of inflation as "a very real one." He said the board had moved to combat inflationary pressures.

"This is a matter of judgment," the Federal Reserve Board chief said, adding that the move "was not intended in any way to defy the President or the administration. The press ought not to cast me in that role," he said.

Andy Johnson commented to reporters: "It's your job to provoke fights and my job to prevent them."

Johnson also said that "both of our positions have been clearly, fairly and accurately stated" and that he expected to continue to meet regularly with Martin.

Specifically, the Federal Reserve Board authorized an increase from 4 to 4.5 per cent in the discount rate on interest charge by regional Federal Reserve banks on loans to member commercial banks, and an increase in the maximum interest banks may pay on specified time deposits of more than 30 days from 4.5 per cent to an all-time peak of 5.5 per cent.

The administration had opposed the inereases, which are expected to have the general effect of eventually boosting borrowing costs throughout the economy — taking in such things as homes, cars and other goods bought on the installment plan.

A number of Democratic congressmen said they felt the Federal Reserve Board was trying to defy both Johnson and Congress.

Sen. Russell B. Long, the Louisiana Democrat who becomes chairman of the Senate Finance Committee when Congress meets next month, said the committee should study and act on the rate boost.

"The Federal Reserve Board action brings into question the advisability of the so-called independence of the Federal Reserve, when the board, appointed by the President . . . embarks on a policy contrary to that of the President, and a policy which cannot meet the approval of a majority in Congress, which is supposed to be responsible for the board action," Long said.

"STRIP AUTHORITY"

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, had already called for action to strip the Federal Reserve of authority "to thumb its nose" at the President.

Support for the board's action came from Republican Sen. Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, who said its "mild restraint on the increase in the money supply" was needed to head off inflation.

There were these other developments:

— The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which regulates federally insured state banks, met Monday but took no action on interest rates. It usually follows the Federal Reserve Board's lead.

TIME DEPOSITS

— Chairman John E. Horne of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which supervises federally insured savings and loan associatons, said the raising of the maximum permissible rate on time deposits raises "some serious questions" for savings and loan associations. An increase in time deposit rates might lead many savers to switch deposits from savings and loan associations to time deposits in banks.

— Initial Wall Street reaction to the increase rate boost was a sharp slump in stock prices. But a recovery later in the day halted the drop and regained nearly two-thirds of the loss, as measured by the Dow-Jones industrial average.

Legion Collects Gifts For Fighters

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey American Legion has collected $50,000 worth of gifts for American servicemen in South Viet Nam, Commander William R. Huggard says.

GI Benefits Bill Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., predicts passage of a GI benefits bill in early 1966 to cover all men now in the armed forces.

Teague, chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, made the prediction Monday after a trip to Viet Nam.

He said the GI legislation was among principal concerns of servicemen in Viet Nam. He said they also expressed concern about draft card burners and anti-Viet Nam protesters.

"These objectors back here are encouraging the enemy to fight harder, thinking the U.S. will pull out. It's time to quit talking about free speech and start talking treason," he said.

Steers To Oppose Seminole Tonight

Allen Simpson's Big Spring Steers hopped off to a 10-point lead in the opening period and held on to topple Lamesa, 61-53, in a basketball exhibition here Monday night.

The Longhorns, now 5-3 on the year, return to competition tonight, visiting Seminole for a joust with the always-strong Indians. Game time is 8 o'clock.

Lamesa's chances for a repeat victory over the Steers were diminished in the opening period when rangy Jay Thompson went out with an injured ankle. He didn't return.

The Tornadoes, who came to play, cut the Steers' margin to three-points at one stage in the second half but the Big Springers again pulled away.

Big Spring was able to control the defensive rebounds fairly well but could follow up the shots at their own bucket. For that reason, they stayed in hot-water most of the way.

Three Big Spring players hit in double figures, Robert Jackson leading the way with 15 points. Simon Terrazas and Paul Thomas each counted 12 for the winners.

Lamesa was led by sophomore Pat Fees, who solved the Steer defenses for 17 points, five of which came at the free throw line.

The Longhorns hit 22 times in 67 tries from the court for a shooting average of about 33 per cent. The locals made good on 11 of 30 tries the first half and 11 of 37 the last half.

In the rebounding department, the Longhorns were in command, pulling down 52 caroms to 41 for the visitors. Jackson also led in that department with 14 while Thomas accounted for 11.

Lamesa came here fresh from a tournament sweep in the Ysleta Eastwood meet, having beaten El Paso Bowie, 59-54, and El Paso Andress, 59-41, in that order for the title.

The defeat left Lamesa with a 5-3 record. In a previous game at Lamesa, the Tornadoes had toppled the Steers, 36-35.

In B team competition, Big Spring won by the margin of 71-64. The triumph left the Dogies with a 5-2 mark.

Wayne Johnson banged in 16 points and Danny Clendenin 15 for the Shorthorns while Joe Beaty tossed in 28 and Glenn Fleming 11 for the invaders.

Tournament Chieftains Still In Need Of Teams

Another team is needed to round out the field for the Snyder Invitational Basketball Tournament this weekend.

Brownwood had accepted an invitation, but it is still in the football race with a semifinal game coming up this weekend. Ned Underwood, Snyder coach, is anxious to obtain a replacement.

Big Spring could use another team for its 8th and 9th grade tournament this weekend, also. Colorado City, which had been entered, will not be able to send its teams here. Coaches interested may contact Allen Simpson, high school basketball coach.

In the Snyder tournament, the Big Spring Steers are ticketed to go against Brownfield at 1:30 p.m. Friday in the opening round. Should they win, they will meet the winner of the Phillips and Kermit contest (which will be played Friday at 3 p.m.) in the second round at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Should they lose, they will go into the first round of the consolations at 8 p.m. Friday against the loser of the Kermit-Phillips game.

Ranger Boss Seeks Rally

NEW YORK (AP) — Emile Francis, who traded angry words with a goal judge and swapped punches with a fan two weeks ago, has a tougher fight on his hands today.

The scrappy New York Ranger general manager has the task of guiding the Blues back up the National Hockey League ladder after replacing Red Sullivan as coach Monday. It could be more easily said than done.

Francis, who has rebuilt the club with a series of major trades in the 13 months since he took over as general manager, takes command with the Rangers in the midst of a six-game winless string that has dropped them back to fifth place, only two points in front of cellar-dwelling Boston.

New York has managed just one victory in the last 10 starts and only two in the last 14. Sullivan, starting his third full season as coach, was caught in the middle of the slide, blaming first the players for not giving 60 minutes of effort in every game and then backing off and blaming himself for overworking the team.

Francis nearly precipitated a full-scale riot in Madison Square Garden two weeks ago when he raced from his side arena seat to argue with goal judge Arthur Reichert over a disputed call.

The scrappy ex-goaltender got into a squabble with some fans and a dozen Ranger players had to scale the glass partition to rescue their diminutive boss. The incident cost Francis and his players $1,800 in fines from NHL President Clarence Campbell.

Brandt Goes To Phillies

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jack Brandt, who some observers feel still hasn't lived up to his baseball potential at age 31, will have a chance to impress new bosses next season.

The Baltimore Orioles traded the veteran outfielder along with pitcher Darold Knowles to the Philadelphia Phillies Monday for relief pitcher Jack Baldschun.

After the 1964 season, when Oriole President Lee MacPhail urged Brandt to "have a good winter" the irrepressible one replied:

"I always have a good winter. It's the summers that give me trouble."

In six seasons with Baltimore, after being obtained in a trade with San Francisco, Brandt's best mark was .297 in 1961. Otherwise, he never topped .255.

Aggies Still Are Unbeaten In Cage Play

By The Associated Press

Texas fell but Texas A&M won to become the only undefeated team in Southwest Conference basketball Monday night.

The league also broke even in intersectional warfare for the second straight time.

While Texas was losing to Louisiana State 76-66 and Rice was taking a 96-87 licking from Georgia Tech, Texas Tech was winning its first game of the season, 77-72 over Arizona, and Texas Christian was doing the same, with a 77-66 trouncing of Lovola.

The conference intersectional record now is 5-11.

The Aggies came from behind to whip Southwest Texas State 76-62 and keep its slate clean in two games.

Three conference teams are in action tonight with Baylor hosting North Texas State, Southern Methodist playing Oklahoma at Dallas and Arkansas clashing with Oklahoma State at Fayetteville.

Dub Malaise, who made only 18 points in Texas Tech's first two games, to account mostly for the defeat of the Red Raiders, finally broke out with 20 points Monday night and that, coupled with the 29 Norman Reuther threw in, got the Techs on the way to a come-from-behind triumph.

Texas Christian held Loyola scoreless for the last four minuts and pulled away to break a two-game losing streak. Rich Saur and Wayne Kries pitched in 29 and 19 points respectively to pace the Frogs.

Texas A&M also did some last-minutes stuff to win over stubborn Southwest Texas which led at the half and three times tied the score.

The Aggies got 10 points in the last three minutes to win with John Beasley arching in 22 points for the night. Track star Randy Matson was held to four points but he got 15 rebounds.

Georgia Tech beat Texas at the free throw line since each team had 27 field goals. Harry Heroman put in nine of the shots on the way to high point honors of the night. He had 27.

Doug McKendrick scored 47 points for Rice but the Owls still couldn't win since Georgia Tech had four players in double figures. Mick Stenftenagel got 23 points and Charles Kenney 22 to lead the Yellow Jacket charge.

Top Golfers In 4-Ball

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer tee off as a team here Wednesday in Florida's richest tournament, the $125,000 Professional Golfers Association Four-ball Championship.

Nicklaus and Palmer are the top drawing cards in a field of 216 of the nation's top pros — the most ever assembled for a single PGA tournament in its 49-year history.

The final PGA event of the year, it will be a renewal of team competition for the first time since the 1953 Miami Beach International Four-ball Tournament won by Tommy Bolt, who is in this year's lineup.

And it will be the first time Nicklaus, top money winner of 1965, has teamed with Palmer in a PGA tournament.

There will be 108 two-man teams competing for $20,000 first-place money in the 72-hole event, to be played over two courses at the PGA National Golf Club.

In four-ball golf, the low score of the two team players on each hole becomes the team score that hole. The tournament is won by the team carding the lowest total number of strokes.

The teams will alternate using the 6,548-yard West course and the tougher and longer 6,896-yard East course during the first 36 holes.

After that, the field will be cut to the 40 low scorers and all play will be on the East course. Both courses are 36-36 par 72.

The final nine holes of play on Saturday afternoon is to be televised nationally.

Cisco Spanks Hawks, Biggers Scores 30

CISCO—A Cisco College basketball team that was on its best behavior blitzed the Howard County Junior College Jayhawks, 102-85, here Monday night.

The win helped to take some of the sting out of a 12-point defeat the Wranglers suffered at the hands of the Big Springers a couple of weeks ago and set the stage for a possible third meeting between the two quintets this weekend in the Odessa Tournament.

The red - hot Wranglers jumped out in front of the Hawks early and were never headed, although the Hawks pulled to within four points of a tie a couple of times.

The HCJC team threw the ball away 12 times the first half and was almost as generous after the intermission.

The Wranglers had three boys over the 20-point mark in scoring and four in double figures. Frank Biggers, a Colorado City product, led the way with 30 points while Preston Shearod wasn't far behind with 28.

HCJC kept in contention, thanks to a 32-point output by sophomore Kurt Papp, who has a habit of leading the Hawks in scoring. Henry Willis was almost as hot, flipping in 24 points.

The defeat left HCJC with a 4-2 record. The Hawks meet New Mexico Military Institute in first round competition at Odessa at 9 p.m. Thursday and that could be quite a game, since NMMI has been cleaning up on senior college freshman and junior college talent alike in its area.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:

CLAIR BEE, former basketball coach at Long Island University:

"The thing that kills me now is the pressure our coaches are under today. If we could just in some way get rid of this high tension recruiting, then we could all sit back and enjoy the game more. Why, now a coach has to spend all his time worrying about security rather than really getting a chance to get in the game. But for the actual play today that's different. The kids don't pass with the kids in my time, but they can sure put the ball in the basket better. The emphasis nowadays is on shooting whereas we used to worry about defending the opposition. The game in other parts of the country can catch up with the East and the North only when they have courts everywhere and boys wanting to play every day. Just look at New York, for instance. They play all the time. The environment, of course, has something to do with it. While the boys in the South are playing golf, tennis and other sports the kids up there are hitting that basketball. That plus good coaching at a young age will make the difference . . . I coached Wilt Chamberlain at one time, too. Who would I take, Wilt or Bill Russell. It'd have to be Wilt. He can score and he can rebound and he can run all day."

DUFFY DAUGHERTY

DUFFY DAUGHERTY, Michigan State football coach, whose team will meet UCLA in the Rose Bowl, commenting on UCLA's trip last weekend to Tennessee:

"Playing Tennessee in Memphis is like playing Notre Dame in Rome."

• • • •

FRANK CARVER, Pittsburgh athletic director, conceding there is a similarity between college football and show business:

"But show business people are too smart to handicap themselves with entrance exams, admission requirements and limited practice."

DARRELL ROYAL, University of Texas football coach:

"Anytime a Big Ten team goes undefeated, no one else has a chance to finish No. One."

BILL ELIAS, Navy football mentor, commenting why he played sophomore John Cartwright rather than veteran Brice Bickel to better offset the Army blitz:

"I kept thinking here is a young man who has two more years and I thought his confidence as a man was important. I wanted to preserve it."

DR. HANS KRAUS, international expert on physical fitness:

"Little League baseball does more harm than good despite all the various excuses that have been made for it."

MARION CAMPBELL, coach of the Minnesota Vikings' defensive line:

"Nobody ever really gives a defensive lineman the proper credit. They get hit on every play, no matter what it is. Figure it out for yourself, an average of 70 plays a game, 19 games a season, 1,400 times hit a year."

• • • •

FURMAN BISHER, Atlanta scribe:

"When Duke and Wake Forest played football recently, every Methodist and Baptist preacher in the state was admitted free of charge. It was only to repay them in kind, for the football coaches have been invited to church free of charges for years."

Lakers Pounded By Philadelphia

By The Associated Press

Judging from the latest whipping the Los Angeles Lakers took from the Philadelphia 76ers, one fact stands out: Elgin Baylor had better get well soon if the Lakers are to retain their Western Division title in the National Basketball Association.

NBA action returned to Charleston, W.Va., for the first time in six years Monday night with two West Virginians returning home, Jerry West of the Lakers and Philly's Hal Greer. And the 76ers pounded the Lakers for a 116-107 victory.

Staubach Signs Pro Contract

By The Associated Press

The latest name in pro football's battle of the signature is one out of the past — Roger Staubach.

The ex-Navy quarterback, who won the Heisman Trophy in 1963, signed an optional contract with Dallas of the National Football League Monday, but it will be at least four years before he can climb into a Cowboy uniform.

Royal Again Hinted On Way To Norman

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — For the second time in as many years, the head football coaching job at the University of Oklahoma is vacant and, as usual, speculation centers on Darrell Royal, the successful Texas mentor.

Royal, a former star quarterback for the Sooners, was the big name thrown in the hopper two years ago when Bud Wilkinson resigned, but the job went to long-time OU assistant Gomer Jones.

Jones resigned Monday, two days after the Sooners concluded a 3-7 season — worst in OU history — and Royal was mentioned as the leading candidate by many sources.

However, Jones retained the athletic directorship when he bowed out as coach, and he favors an outsider for the post — someone who has never been connected with Oklahoma.

"I think it's probably good for football at Oklahoma to have somebody new," Jones said. "I would imagine it would be much better to have someone who hasn't been connected with the university."

If all persons who had been connected with the school should be ruled out, the list of those knocked from consideration would include Royal, Colorado Coach Eddie Crowder, Kansas Coach Jack Mitchell and Washington Coach Jim Owens, all former OU stars.

Dr. George L. Cross, University president, said he would hesitate to rule out specific individuals, but asked what type of individual he preferred, he replied:

"It would depend on the coach, of course, but I go for the young, bright, hungry, promising fellow."

Asked if Charles (Chuck) Curtis, Southern Methodist assistant who has been mentioned as a candidate for the Oklahoma job, was the type candidate he sought, Cross said:

"I would guess this might be the type of person that might show up, but I wouldn't want to get out ahead of the athletic council or board of regents because we all have to agree in the end."

Royal, whose Texas teams have topped the Sooners for eight straight years, was not available for comment. He was out of town on business and his wife, reached at their Austin home, declined to comment.

"I'll let him answer the questions," she said.

Curtis, a former Texas Christian University quarterback, said in Dallas that he had talked to "a friend" about the OU job, but hadn't been contacted directly by anyone formally connected with the school.

Asked if the friend, whom Curtis said spoke to him about two weeks ago, had any authority to speak for OU, he said, "I'm not sure. It was sort of an inquiry-type thing — very informal".

Curtis said, other than the chat with a friend, he had no connection with the job "in any way."

Asked if he planned to be an active candidate for the post, Curtis said, he would telephone his application today. "Head coach at Oklahoma would be a step up and I will go after it aggressively and optimistically," he said.

Royal is athletic director at Texas, in addition to being head football coach, and many sources indicate he wouldn't consider accepting just the head coaching job elsewhere.

However, Royal has never made such a statement and Cross said he believed Jones is secure as athletic director.

"He could have stayed as coach if he wanted to," Cross said, "so he should be able to stay as athletic director."

Television station WKY in Oklahoma City reported Monday night that a reliable source had said Tennessee Coach Doug Dickey and two assistant coaches, Jim MacKenzie of Arkansas and Curtis were the leading candidates — in that order.

* * *

AUSTIN (AP) — Coach Darrell Royal of Texas was finally contacted — at 2 a.m. today— and asked whether he was interested in going to Oklahoma to succeed Gomer Jones as coach.

"No comment," said Royal "Have you been contacted?" he was asked.

"No comment to that either."

"How long is your contract with Texas?"

"You know, I really don't know. I was asked that the other day and planned to look it up but I've been so busy I didn't get around to it. But I'm going to do it tomorrow."

He explained that since he was voted a full professorship with tenure he hadn't thought much about the contract as coach.

To the best of his recollection he was given a new 10-year contract about four or five years ago.

Anyway, he still has some years left on his contract.

He was asked if he was happy at Texas and he said yes, it was a real good place to be. But he didn't have any comment when asked if he would like the prospect of going to Oklahoma, where he was a star football player in his college days.

He has been at Texas for nine years and beaten Oklahoma the last eight. That could be one of the reasons Oklahoma might want him as coach.

Royal apologized for being so noncommital but he said he thought it would be better that way. "I just can't say anything at this time," he said.

Local YMCA Is Buzzing With Athletic Activity

The Big Spring YMCA is buzzing with athletic activities for all ages, according to Jim Gilbert, the Y's physical director.

An adult men's basketball league is in the process of being formed. Entry fee is $65 a team, and team sign-ups will be accepted from now through Dec. 29.

League play will begin the evening of Jan. 3, and from then on every Monday and Friday evenings.

Any team interested in playing must be represented at a special meeting in the Y Dec. 28 at 7 p.m., Gilbert said.

Also being formed is a service club volleyball league. Invitations to join this league have been mailed to all the service clubs in the city. The service clubs will compete against each other, and the first game will be held Dec. 14 and each Tuesday and Thursday evenings after that.

Anyone else who is interested in forming a team for the volleyball league is also invited to do so, Gilbert said.

The representative gymnastics team, made up of youngsters who have competed among themselves for the last two years, will send ten of its members—all girls—to the gymnastic meet held at the Midland YMCA Saturday.

The Midland YMCA sponsors this event annually, and the Big Spring girls will be in competition with gymnastic teams all over the state.

Also representing the Big Spring Y at the event will be 2nd Lt. Pete Bauer of Webb Air Force Base. Lt. Bauer was formerly the captain of the gymnastic team at the University of Wisconsin and his father is the present coach of the Wisconsin gymnastic team.

Hart Hired By Panthers

By The Associated Press

Gomer Jones is out at Oklahoma, Dave Hart is in at Pitt and the annual game of musical chairs in the football coaching ranks is well under way.

Jones resigned at Oklahoma and Hart, a Navy assistant, was hired at Pitt in rapid-fire order Monday, while Dartmouth's Bob Blackman continued to weigh the possibilities of a shift to Iowa.

All of which just pointed up the annual post-season shifting of major college coaching jobs, just getting under way this season.

Here's a thumbnail sketch of the situation at the moment:

Pitt—John Michelosen was fired Nov. 24 after a miserable 3-7 season. Hart, an assistant at Navy, was hired to fill the vacancy Monday.

Oklahoma—Jones quit Monday after a 3-7 record that was the worst in the school's history. He remains as athletic director. Job is open.

Iowa—Jerry Burns and his entire staff were fired Nov. 16 — with one game still to go — after losing all seven Big Ten games in a 1-1 season. Job is open, and Dartmouth's Blackman appears to have the inside track.

Duke—Bill Murray quit Nov. 20 moments after Blue Devils whipped North Carolina 34-7 for a 6-4 record. Job is open.

Tulane—Tommy O'Boyle quit Nov. 24 after disastrous 62-0 rout by Louisiana State in season finale. Job is open.

Hart, 38, was given a three-year contract at Pitt. Salary terms were not disclosed. Pitt Athletic Director Frank Carver said Hart was picked "because he is aggressive and articulate."

Michelosen, who had a 55-49-7 record in his 11 years as head coach, has been offered another job at Pitt, his alma mater.

Carver said Bud Wilkinson, former Oklahoma coach and now a sportscaster, has been offered the job but declined. Wilkinson's name also cropped up in speculation after Jones quit as the Sooners' coach.

Asked about reports he might be interested in returning to coaching, Wilkinson chuckled and said: "I've been asked that question or the reverse of it for 25 years. All the years I was coaching, people asked me when I was going to quit. Now that I've quit, they want to know when I'm going to go into coaching again."

Jones' resignation came as a surprise.

"I'm doing it for the good of the university and its football program," he said.

"I just got tired of the criticism and of constantly reading and listening to all the untrue rumors concerning my position as head coach here."

Jones, for many years an assistant to Wilkinson, took over as head coach in 1964 when Wilkinson resigned to make an unsuccessful attempt for the U. S. Senate.

Duke Stunned By Gamecocks

By The Associated Press

South Carolina's Frank McGuire is baiting his fish hook today after making the first big catch of the college basketball season.

McGuire's Gamecocks stunned Duke, the nation's third-ranked team, 73-71 Monday night and jubilant South Carolina students showed their appreciation by cutting down the nets at each basket and presenting them to the coach.

"Now I can go fishing," quipped McGuire, who has started his second season at South Carolina with a 30 mark after a dismal 6-17 finish last winter.

Czar Is Slow To Take Over

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. William D. Eckert's first exposure as commissioner to the climate of professional baseball last week was far from a rousing success.

Newsmen covering the major-minor league convention at Fort Lauderdale and Miami Beach appeared sceptical over the club owners' choice to succeed Ford Frick as baseball's chief executive.

Specifically, the press was critical of the 55-year-old retired Air Force officer largely because of his use of cue cards in his talks and interviews, whether formal or informal.

The feeling is that the general's evaluation by the working community has been absolutely hasty, probably unfair and possibly wrong.

Admittedly, the new commissioner did not come across as forceful or informed or even interesting in his first face-to-face meeting with the press, but neither did he give the appearance of being bewildered by his strange surroundings, unable to cope with the new faces, new task and new problems.

Despite his obvious nervousness, he was approachable, eager to be friendly, amenable to suggestions.

Gen. Eckert may never win any prizes as a public speaker but he gets his point across in an unmistaken if unspectacular manner.

Dance Group Holds Formal

Red starburst lights illuminated the ballroom of Cosden Country Club Saturday evening as over 200 members and guests of the Wednesday Night Dance Club danced to the music of the Johnny Long orchestra.

The dancing began at 9 p.m. and continued until 1 a.m. when breakfast was served from the buffet.

Host chairmen were Mr. and Mrs. George McAlister. Other host couples were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Beauvais, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. G. Cowper, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Currie, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Eyssen, Mr. and Mrs. John Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Hutto, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kasch, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Meek, Mr. and Mrs. Al Milch, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Worth Peeler, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. Wes Shouse, Mr. and Mrs. Wally Slate and Mr. and Mrs. A. Swartz.

Long evening wear was predominant among the holiday gowns that brightened the ballroom. Mrs. W. E. Ramsey was among several who chose gowns baring one shoulder in the Grecian manner. Her shrimp-pink crepe dress was draped at the bodice and featured only one narrow strap. At the same table, Mrs. Joe Gunning's long black crepe sheath bared one shoulder prettily with a circle of ostrich feathers, and Mrs. Fred Lurting looked regal in a short lime green chiffon gown with the one-shoulder effect accented with a drape.

The slender sheath skirts with elegant shell tops were worn by several women. The white and champagne tones were chosen by Mrs. Carroll Davidson, Mrs. Hank Gwynn, Mrs. James Edwards and Mrs. R. B. G. Cowper. All wore the full-length sheaths or topped a skirt with a sparkling jeweled shell. Mrs. C. B. Marcum wore a long black skirt with black jeweled shell, and Mrs. R. S. Galbraith's long black dress was bared on one shoulder. The long black silhouette was favored, also, by Mrs. Jerry Spence, and Mrs. Wally Slate was seen in a smart black ribbon knit skirt with jewel-encrusted shell. A short cocktail dress of red silk brocade was the choice of Mrs. Vance Lebkowsky, and Mrs. Gil Gingold's theater ensemble was a brocade in shades of blue and green accented with a fur lapel collar.

A pale blue metallic sheath complimented the blondness of Mrs. Bill Reed, and Mrs. Quin Grigsby danced in an oyster brocade cocktail suit. Mrs. Bill Currie's costume was styled in an interesting lattice effect, and Mrs. R. W. Whipkey's pale pink gown featured a jeweled and sequined bodice. A warmer shade of pink was worn by Mrs. Tommy Hutto in a short crepe skirt and blouson sequined top, while at the same table, Mrs. Jack Irons was pretty in a cocktail dress of pale blue. Solid sequins in the brightest of blues formed the V-necked sheath worn by Mrs. Bennett Brooke, and Mrs. Joe Moss topped a long, slender skirt with a coordinated shell, diamond-patterned in deeper shades.

Mrs. Horace Garrett wore an elegant Empire gown, formal-length, in burnt sugar satin, the bodice lavishly encrusted with beads, sequins and pearls. In the same party, Mrs. A. Swartz wore a pale yellow imported two-piece ensemble, slender and shimmering with an all-over crust of beading. She topped the gown with a full-length evening coat, touched with beading and accented with a brown sable collar.

Mrs. Bill French attracted attention in her gold lame sheath dotted with cherry red roses, with which she wore gold glitter slippers and carried a cherry red satin bag. Mrs. Truman Jones was beautiful in black crepe, and Mrs. Fred Kasch chose contrasting white for her short sheath.

St. Anne's Guild Welcomes Five New Members

Five new members were welcomed at the Friday evening meeting of the St. Anne's Guild of Webb AFB. The members met at the chapel annex for a covered dish supper.

New members are Mrs. Frank Irizarry, Mrs. C. T. Pajot, Mrs. N. E. Roll, Mrs. Adam Hermann and Mrs. H. W. Clark.

The attendance prize was won by Mrs. Frank Martinez, and Mrs. Victor Reale reported on the five baskets of food that were distributed to needy families during Thanksgiving holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quigley were guests, and Quigley demonstrated several methods of making home decorations with flowers. Two of his illustrations were a corsage made with holly and gold pine cones, and a centerpiece formed with silvered leaves surrounding a madonna.

The next meeting will be Jan. 7 at the chapel annex following the 6 p.m. mass.

Legal Secretaries Plan Holiday Box

Plans for a Christmas basket for a needy family were discussed at the Friday luncheon of the Howard County Legal Secretaries Association. The members met at the Downtown Tea Room with Mrs. George Thomas presiding. The members also planned their next meeting for Dec. 20 at the office of George Thomas.

LOW BACK DISORDERS

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.

There is so little need for suffering with low back disorders and there are so many who suffer constantly without getting relief.

This office treated a number of new patients last week and there were those usual low back complaints who had enough so they came to see what Chiropractic could do for them.

This woman really was suffering, couldn't hardly walk, get up or down in a chair and trying to get into bed was a matter of pain. She was easy somewhat when lying down but who can take care of a house and family while lying in bed? Normal and routine examination located the area of disturbance and the "out of place" vertebrae was located. The treatment was rendered and she walked out a great deal like her old self. No. 3046.

This man was twisted in the typical position and he didn't like either the feeling of the position he was in. "These low back pains are for the birds," and we agreed with him. Again routine examination found the slipped and mis-aligned vertebrae and now the trouble has gone away — like the birds go away in the winter. No. 3050.

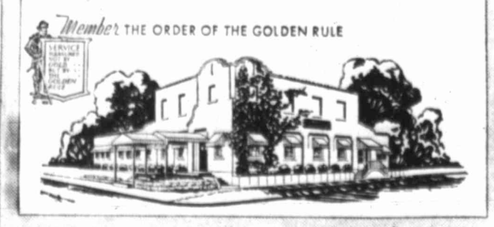

Don't suffer needlessly! Investigate what Chiropractic can do for you! Hansen Chiropractic Clinic across from Piggly Wiggly on Eleventh Place. —Adv.

'ROUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

There's always a first time, and Sunday was the first time I have ever been to a Christmas party where I could stand in the terrace of the home and look upon cotton ready for harvesting. Such was the case at the home of MRS. D. S. PHILLIPS north of Coahoma.

Hundreds of friends, most of whom wore red dresses, called during the tea hours and were delighted with the view from the terrace where many sat in the bright sunshine or at tables to sip their tea. The fields were filled with the whitest of cotton. Mrs. Phillips says she and her husband are old-time cotton farmers and the idea of not having the harvest in by this time of year is not their idea of cotton farming.

In addition to being surprised at seeing all that cotton, all of the guests were surprised at how many different designs and shades of red the women could come up with. MRS. TOM HARRIS wore a bright red, large-brimmed sailor with her red suit and MRS. R. L. NALL topped her red creation with a white small hat. MRS. HERK AGEE wore a Christmasy-appearing high crown number with metallic thread woven through red and green design . . . most of the guests didn't wear hats in deference to their hair-do. MRS. P. D. O'BRIEN of Houston who was here for the First Baptist Church services Sunday, was having a good time seeing a number of longtime friends . . . MRS. ROY MINEAR from Midland came out with her mother, MRS. E. D. MERRILL and their good friend, MRS. J. L. TERRY . . . Everyone enjoyed the handiwork of the the many hostesses who had fashioned beautiful decorations for the house and delicious refreshments for the sixth annual party.

• • •

The CARLTON CHAPMAN family was here over the weekend to visit their daughter, CARLA, who remained here for school when the family moved to Wolforth.

• • •

MRS. E. V. SPENCE is in Corpus Christi where she will be with relatives until after the first of the year.

• • •

Another recipe to put in the files of things that are good to eat but terribly caloric is the "Hello Dolly" cake. It takes a stick of melted margarine, a cup of crushed vanilla wafers, a cup of coconut, a cup of chocolate chips, a cup of nuts and a can of sweetened condensed milk. Melt the margarine in the baking pan then put in the crumbs and cover them with the chips, then the nuts and the coconut. Drizzle the condensed milk over the concoction and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

• • •

Remember when your boys and girls were first in school and each day they came home with the buttonholes torn out of their new shirts and the buttons and bows mostly off? This happens to the youngsters now, too, but they have another hazard added that is hard on the parent's pocketbook and mothers' tempers. The boys and girls entertain themselves by jerking the loops off the back of the boys shirts and the girls blouses. When the loop doesn't break clean it tears the garment . . . It's very trying, this trying to keep a level head with clothing being torn for the fun of it. It's good they go through only a year or so of enjoying this particular fun game.

MRS. CAL GUILLIAMS has returned from Wichita Falls where she visited her son-in-law and daughter, DR. and MRS. JIM BARRINGTON, and their children.

It's really pleasant to shop in the downtown area this Christmas season with those pesky meters not ticking away while your brain is ticking away trying to get the right gift for the right person. If the weather just stays cool enough to make the season seem Christmasy we'll all enjoy it more.

St. Thomas Societies Plan Holiday Events

The societies at St. Thomas Catholic Church will meet Dec. 22 for a Christmas party in the church basement. The plans were completed at the Monday evening meeting of the Altar Society with Mrs. Leo Gonzales presiding. Committees will be announced for the refreshments, decorations and musical program.

Mrs. I. Montanez and Mrs. Ray Leos will be in charge of serving at the Veterans Administration Hospital on Christmas Eve morning when a choir from the society will present a brief musical program. The society will also present gifts to the patients.

The Rev. Robert J. McDermott spoke on the Lady of Guadalupe and described how she had influenced the lives of the people of Mexico.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Henry Guzman, Mrs. G. Franco, Mrs. Leo Gomez and Mrs. Gonzales.

A mass was said for the late P. Cortez, father of Mrs. H. Moreno, and a card was sent to Mrs. Moreno.

Refreshments were served to the 20 attending and the next meeting scheduled Jan. 3.

Miss Adams is an honor graduate of New Richmond High School, New Richmond, Ohio, and attended Ohio State University College of Education and School of Journalism. A reporter for the Big Spring Daily Herald, she formerly was associated with the editorial department of the Clermont Sun newspapers, Batavia, Ohio.

Auxiliary Hears Gift Shop Report

A report on the progress of the gift shop at the Veterans Administration Hospital was heard at the Monday evening meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary at the legion hut.

Mrs. Tim Jones reported that the Junior Auxiliary will be volunteer workers in the afternoons at the gift shop.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Foster Kemp was elected treasurer, and Dec. 13 was set for the family night and Christmas party.

The members also made plans for a Dec. 20 party for the patients at the State Hospital and for a Dec. 23 Christmas party at the VA Hospital.

Mrs. John Littlejohn won the attendance prize.
