FERGUSON ATTACKED IN SENATE

THREE PERSONS ARE HELD IN MOSELEY SLAYING BUT LITTLE LEARNED TO LEAD TO ARREST

SATISFACTORY ALIBI IS GIVEN OFFICERS AT TUCUMCARI

COURT OFFERS REWARD

'MA' FERGUSON ASKED TO POST REWARD FOR SLAYERS

TULIA, Jan. 24. (AP)—Persons arrested throughout the Panhandle-plains region and eastern New Mexico last night or today were questioned regarding the slaying of Sheriff John C. Moseley of Swisher county here Sunday night, but officers said little had been learned that would aid them in apprehending the gunmen.

Three men, driving a stolen car, were arrested at Tucumcari, N. M., but Amarillo police said the car was in the possession of its owner in Amarillo less than an hour before Moseley was killed, and they waved aside any possibility that the men might have been those wanted here.

Officers at Fort Morgan, Colo., also were checking the possibility that Moseley's slayers might have been connected with the robbery of a bank there recently. Pictures were being sent here for identification purposes.

L. G. McDonald, chief deputy under Moseley, said the sheriff was slain with a .45 caliber United States army automatic, and that most of the ammunition used was manufactured in 1917 or 1918. Only one empty cartridge of recent make was found at the scene of the slaying. He said a small bore weapon also was fired, but that it evidently was a revolver and no empties were ejected.

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson had been asked to post a state reward for the capture of the slayers. Swisher county commissioners have offered a reward of $500. McDonald said there was a possibility that a fund being raised by public subscription might reach $10,000 or more.

Investigation of the slaying was checked somewhat locally today while preparations were made for Moseley's funeral. Burial was to be at 2:30 p. m. in Rose Hill cemetery here.

PAMPA TOPICS OF OUR CITY
By O.E.M.

TWINKLES

People ask us if the recent sand-storm were not "about the worst ever." We grew up on the Canadian river, where soil is more transient. The answer would be obvious.

West Texans are friendly; they exchange soil every spring and sometimes in winter.

Wonder where is the "tired business man" we read so much about a few years ago? Surely he wasn't refreshed by the Hoover vacation from profits.

Hail the super-employer: Franklin D. Roosevelt. Bonus marchers called on Herbert; job herders in even larger numbers are camping on Franklin's door-step.

Pity poor Marvin Jones if the domestic allotment plan goes wrong. It is fortunate—or is it?—that he comes from a cotton-wheat country. The two commodities are the easiest to doctor, the hardest to cure.

ARE YOU HONORED?

Uncle Sam operates on the basis of who can afford to pay taxes and this year he is of the opinion that three and one-half millions of persons more than paid last year are able to help. Paradoxical as it seems, we must realize Uncle's extremity. This column, recognizing that many persons must pay the income tax for the first time, in printing a series of brief, informative articles. The first was printed yesterday.

EXEMPTIONS LOWERED

Before or by midnight of March 15, income tax returns must be filed with the nearest bureau or to a collector if the incomes are within the brackets defined by law. The exemption allowed married men and heads of families has been cut from $3,500 to $2,500, and that of single men from $1,500 to $1,000. The 25 per cent credit formerly allowed for earned income has been eliminated. Bachelors are hard hit unless they have a number of bona-fide dependents, in which case they are hard up anyway. The new tax rate, moreover, has been boosted to 4 per cent on the first $4,000 and 8 per cent on the rest. The credit allowed for each child or dependent stands unchanged at $400.

IT'S UP TO YOU

The whole responsibility is on the citizen and there are heavy penalties for evasion. One-fourth of the tax must be paid by March 15, but the rest can be paid in three equal installments—on June 15, September 15, and December 15—if desired. . . . and here's a blow: If you have been contributing to the support of relatives who are jobless, you can't deduct for that because it is no "organized charity," neither is it support of "dependents." And you will get no comfort in knowing that the income tax rate will likely be higher next year, for the government has huge fixed charges and is being asked to spend more and more for relief projects, war preparaation, veterans' benefits and the like. Meantime, just fork over

MEDIA, Pa.—Wider bedclothing might have prolonged the marital bliss of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Blansfield of Chester. Mrs. Blansfield was granted a divorce after testifying her husband "monopolized" the bed covers. She also accused him of hitting her on the ear when she pulled the clothes to her side of the bed.

EINSTEIN HAS FORMULA TOO

Mental Giants Seek 'Equation, for World Economic Recovery.

By WALTER B. CLAUSEN
Associated Press Staff Writer

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 24. (AP)—Albert Einstein, scientist, finding relativity is not applicable to every day life, went into a sort of consultation to think out a formula of what to do about the world in general and the depression in particular.

His intellectual consultants were Henry M. Robinson, banker and internationally known economist, and Prof. William B. Munro, historian.

The three thought out loud in a symposium here last night on "America and the world situation."

Their formula, expressed mathematically, is that "dispassionate analytical understanding" (Einstein), plus "elimination of fear" (Robinson) plus "adjournment of politics" (Munro), measured by the cooperation of the people, equals economic recovery.

Einstein thinks the first step necessary to dispassionate understanding is the removal of the "obstacle of the tabu." That obstacle, he explained, "lies in words and other symbols which are laden with emotion."

Bowers Home Is Burglarized Of Cash and Watch

The Bowers' residence at 519 East Kingsmill avenue was entered about 4 o'clock this morning and before occupants were aware of the invader, he had secured $14 in cash and a watch valued at $125. Members of the household gave chase as they heard the marauder leave the front door, but he outdistanced them.

City officers searched the vicinity but were unable to find any trace of the man. However, they have a good description of him. The man made entrance by cutting a piece out of a window screen and then taking it off. He was heard prowling downstairs.

Several other homes have been entered in a similar manner recently.

Excavating For Swimming Pool Begins Thursday

Teams and workmen are excavating for the municipal swimming pool, the trucking of pipe from Shamrock will begin Thursday, and pouring of concrete will start within three weeks, weather permitting.

The pipe, 1,600 feet of 6-inch for the water line, was purchased from the City of Shamrock. Bids were taken on other materials last night, but the awards will not be made until Wednesday morning by the city commission.

The city last night appointed J. N. Duncan, W. T. Fraser, and B. W. Rose to equalize tax assessments for this year.

FORD PLEA UPHELD

DETROIT, Jan. 24. (AP)—Circuit Judge Harry J. Dingeman today refused to act on a petition by attorneys for a bench warrant compelling Henry Ford to appear for testimony until a previous petition by opposing counsel in another court has been acted on.

LONG LAUGHS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP) — Huey Long of Louisiana today laughed off reports that he contemplated resigning from the senate. The reports were not carried by the Associated Press.

Man At Pawnee Is Charged With Car Theft Here

L. R. Miller of Miller-Lybrand company has gone to Pawnee, Okla., to bring back the Ford V8 automobile stolen here recently and a man named Chester McCain, who is named in a complaint of car theft in Justice W. S. Baxter's court here.

It was not known today whether the suspect will waive extradition. If he does not, he will likely be turned over to federal authorities and charged with violation of the Dyer act.

The vehicle belongs to H. C. Hopkins, an employe of the Ford agency.

FARM RELIEF PLEA HEARD AROUND ENTIRE NATION THIS YEAR

WITH mortgages being foreclosed, their farms sold for delinquent taxes and their produce bringing low prices, farmers of the nation are sending up a mighty plea for relief. State legislatures are considering a wide variety of aid measures growing out of the demands of farmers some of which are depicted above.

FIGHTING RESUMED IN JEHOL JAPS BOMBARD CITY; CHINESE TRY TO FORM 'UNITED FRONT'

LATE NEWS

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Jan. 24. (AP)—President-elect Roosevelt has given authority to Secretary Stimson to arrange separate conferences with European debtor nations who have met their obligations and are now requesting opportunity to talk over relief.

PLAINVIEW, Jan. 24. (AP)—Tom Matthews, a Lamb county deputy sheriff, today identified Jack Sullivan, on trial for the armed robbery of the Olton State bank July 15, as having been implicated in the holdup. He said Sullivan was the man who "told me to stick 'em up." Matthews, in shirt sleeves and unarmed, entered the bank while the robbery was in progress.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 24. (AP) The Oklahoma senate today voted overwhelmingly to remove Lew Wentz, opponent of Governor Murray, from the state highway commission. The action was on passage of a senate bill creating a new road board.

NEW NOTE DISPATCHED TO JAPAN ASKING WITHDRAWAL

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, Jan. 24. (AP)—A Japanese garrison established at Choayang, in Jehol province, about 20 miles west of the Manchurian border, was said in Japanese reports today to have repulsed an attack Monday night by an unidentified Chinese force after an hour's hard fighting.

Because the Chinese fought stubbornly, the Japanese assumed they were regular forces sent into Jehol province by Marshal Chang Hsiao-Liang, North China military ruler, and not Chinese volunteer forces.

Reports said that the Chinese left three dead behind and that there were no Japanese casualties. It disclosed that the Japanese have held Choayang, about 120 miles north of Chanhaikwan, since last July 18.

Air Bombardment Continues

NANKING, China, Jan. 24. (AP)—The Nationalist government foreign office to day dispatched a new note to Japan reiterating Chinese contentions that the Japanese were responsible for the Shanhaikwan clash and renewing demands that the Japanese withdraw from the city.

TOKYO, Jan. 24. (AP)—A Japanese aerial bombardment of Kailu, key city in northeast Jehol, for the third successive day, was reported today in dispatches from that Sino-Japanese front.

Fires were started in the town and Chinese troops concentrating there were reported scattered. A Chinese army, estimated by Japanese aerial observers to total about 33,000, was massed in that region.

'United Front' Urged

The purpose of the discussions, called by Gen. Chiang Kai-Srek, T. V. Soong and other government chiefs, was to organize a united front against Japana in North China. The presence of Marshal Tuan, rebel leader three years ago and long friendly with the Japanese, was regarded as significant.

Santa Fe Officer Arrests 4 Persons

Four persons arrested by Special Officer Gaither of the Santa Fe have been arraigned in justice court.

Two were charged with vagrancy and two with drunkenness. Mr. Gaither has taken over duties of A. J. Davis, special officer who is on a month's vacation.

Mrs. Roland Dauer of White Deer was a Pamp avisitor yesterday.

COLUMBIA GIVES 'THE BOOT' TO SCOTT AND TECHNOCRACY

University Will Now Have Its Own Group But Not Technocrats.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—Chief Technocrat Howard Scott, shaken by revolt and secession that ousted him and technocracy from Columbia university's halls, was determined today that the "work shall go on."

Renouncing some of the "the statements and attitudes" of Scott, Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch of Columbia and three associates who had been prime movers in the technocracy group withdrew last night.

They would continue their researches into certain economic matters, they said, but not under the name technocracy.

"As far as we are concerned," said Rautenstrauch, "technocracy ceases to exist and Scott will not work here (at Columbia) any longer."

Under Scott's direction more than 100 jobless architects and engineers have been carrying on an "energy survey of North America" at Columbia, which, however, merely gave the technocrats space to work in and had no official connection with technocracy. The survey has been assisted by unemployment relief funds. The unemployed will continue research at the university as a "scholarly enterprise."

Aside from declaring that "the idea is bigger than any individual; the work will go on," Scott refused to comment.

Mrs. Purvis Wins Judgment in Suit

The 114th district court will mark time until Thursday morning, and the jury panel has been excused until that time.

A judgment for the plaintiff was returned in the suit of Mary J. Purvis against Lloyd Purvis after all issues had been eliminated except rental paid by Mr. Purvis for an apartment. The rental was placed at $20 per month. Rent of $40 had been asked.

CHARGE 2 IN TAPPING LINE FOR GASOLINE

Father And Son Held After Arrests At Hoover

Felony complaints of taking gasoline from a tap made in the Coltexo pipeline near Hoover were filed today against J. W. Reid and C. L. Reid, father and son.

They were arrested near last midnight by officers of the constable's department. A truck with nine-55-gallon gasoline drums was seized at the same time. A pump was in the truck.

Justice James Todd Jr., set their bonds at $1,000 on arraignment in his court this morning. The two men denied having made the top, but up to noon had made no formal statement of the affair. They were trying to make bond.

Constable Frank Jordan and Deputy Constable R. H. Mumford testified at the arraignment.

Duncan Tells Of Junior Chamber Formed in 1922

Memories of Pampa's first junior chamber of commerce formed about 1922 to stage a local fair when the senior body decided not to attempt the project, were given the Jaysees today at their luncheon by Judge Ivy E. Duncan.

Noting that the Jaysees were to attempt to obtain better telephone connections for people of the Grandview community, he recalled that such a project was discussed 12 years ago.

Judge Duncan's main theme, however, was the need for a highway north across the Canadian river. He promised that a graded road be opened at once and that a man with teams be employed to assist any motorist who might need help. The project has been under study by officials of several counties during the last year.

Visitors today included Morris Levine of Amarillo, Jim Hatfield, and W. B. Hamilton.

TINY TOT REVUE FRIDAY WILL FEATURE PAMPA'S CHILDREN

Daily NEWS And La Nora Theater Will Sponsor Appealing Stage Event.

Twenty-five "young ladies under 5" will strut before a La Nora theater audience at 9 p. m. Friday night at the Tiny Tot revue sponsored by the theater and the Pampa Daily NEWS.

The tots will be entered by Pampa merchants. The costumes will be determined by the mothers and the merchants.

Prizes will be a silver loving cup for first place, a gold locket for second place, and a gold ring for third place. Judging will be done by the audience, but there will be three judges of the applause, whose names will be announced soon.

The most charming children in the city are being sought by the business men, and most of the tots have been selected. They will be cleverly dressed and will appear both singly and in a group to delight the audience.

The usual film program will be shown by the theater, with slight change of schedule. The Tiny Tot revue will be briskly staged. The La Nora feature for the day will be Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe in "Hot Pepper."

114TH COURT ABOLISHED IN HOUSE BALLOT

SENATOR FIGHTS MOVE TO WITHDRAW BOARD APPOINTMENTS

FORMER RECORD IS READ

HOUSE RESOLVES NOT TO PASS 'BLANKET' APPROPRIATIONS

AUSTIN, Jan. 24. (AP)—The past record of James E. Ferguson was aired in the senate today as the long appointments controversy was continued. The senate still had not voted on whether it would grant Governor Miriam A. Ferguson's request to withdraw three appointments to the board of education made by former Governor R. S. Sterling.

Ferguson's record as clerk of the state textbook commission during his wife's former term as governor was sharply criticized by Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston who spoke in support of a motion by Senator Grady Woodruff of Decatur to deny Mrs. Ferguson's request.

Holbrook referred frequently to a report of a special legislative committee which investigated certain acts of Mrs. Ferguson's previous administration.

Charges Jim Wants Control.

"The whole 1,000 pages of this report form a dark spot on the history of Texas," the Galveston senator said.

The speaker referred specifically to a contract for spellers with the American Book company which he said was recommended by Ferguson, who was "clerk, ramrod, and general superintendent of the text book commission.

Asserting that Ferguson claimed to be a friend to the school children of Texas, Holbrook said that this contract "helped the school children by taking $112,000 out of the pockets of the people."

"If Jim Ferguson gains power, you will have the same story, the same history as that which has been written twice before," Holbrook predicted.

Pampa Court Abolished.

Members of the Texas house of representatives gave vent to criticisms of a practice, heretofore permitted by the legislature, of providing "blanket" appropriations for operation of certain departments.

A bill to abolish the 114th district court for Gray, Carson and Hutchinson counties, was passed in the house 135 to 0. It was the first district court abolition bill passed at the current session.

A resolution by Representative T. H. McGregor of Austin that the appropriations committee insist on specific designations from departmental heads in preparing the money bills brought on the discussion there. McGregor said reckless disregard of a constitutional provision that appropriations be specific had meant a loss to Texas tax payers of approximately $1,000,000 annually.

The McGregor resolution was adopted.

Gambling Losses Collected.

He read expense items from rangers, working under the adjutant general, mentioning charges of $30 and $25 made and collected for losses in "crap games." One ranger collected $50 from the state for dental work, he said, and others had been allowed hospital bills and funeral expenses from money appropriated in blanket form for support of the department.

He said the commissioner of agriculture had collected $562 in traveling expenses for trips made to Washington and other out-of-state points for conferences.

His proposal to abolish the agricultural department was cheered by house members.

DIVORCE GRANTED

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 24. (AP)—A 75-year-old woman has ben granted a divorce from her 34-year-old husband with whom she lived three days. Mrs. Sallie D. Blanchard, 75, appeared in District Judge W. W. McCrory's court and was given a divorce from her husband, C. J. Blanchard, on the grounds she had been subjected to cruel treatment.

LOAN APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP) — The house today approved the crop production loan bill making $90,000,000 of reconstruction corporation funds available for advances to farmers in 1933.

Mrs. C. L. Stine is reported doing nicely in Pampa hospital following a serious operation yesterday morning.

ECHOES IN HUMAN HEARTS

It is good to read that the people of New York got together to raise funds for destitute James W. Blake, 70-year-old author of that famous song, "The Sidewalks of New York."

Blake, of course, isn't one of the great poets of the century. An accident of politics, as much as anything, and the gay lilt of a catchy tune, have kept his song alive. But he put New York in his debt by writing it, just the same, and when he got down on his luck New York saw to it that he and his family didn't have to suffer.

And that is the sort of debt that doesn't often get acknowledged in this country.

We take our poets as a matter of course. While they're working we let them get along as best they can, and when they quit we look on them as fantastic and impractical folk who are more or less bound to wind up on their uppers and although they give us songs to sing that make life easier and more pleasant, we seldom figure that we really owe them anything.

But the world would be a darker and sadder place without its songs—even its poor ones.

Take this "Sidewalks" song, for instance. It isn't really, much of a song. No editor is likely to include it in an anthology of the nation's best verse. But it is worth having, just the same. It picks up, somehow, a trace or two of the atmosphere of a great city; now and then, beyond a doubt, it has helped some dweller in that city to imagine that his lot is a trifle more colorful and cheerful than it really it. And to do that, even if only for a few, is well worth doing.

The poet who remarked that he didn't especially care who made a nation's laws as long as he could make its songs really knew what he was about. We might, in a pinch, get along without laws; probably, some day, when the race has got a few score more centuries distant from barbarism, we shall actually be able to do so. But even in that day we'll need our songs; songs to make us forget the things we lost and hope for the things we can never get.

Let's hope the country gets straightened out on technocracq pretty soon so that everyone cane get down once more to debating pro and con on daylight saving.

In keeping with the modern tempo, a Kentucky couple hastily procured a marriage license and stood on the running board of their automobile while a minister read the vows. At such a speed, we suppose the usual probationary period accorded a bridegroom was waived and that the bride promptly climbed into the back seat to assist with the driving.

American midgets are asking protection against competition by foreign Lilliputians, contending they've felt the depression like other show people. As much as the circus fat lady, do you suppose?

Charity never seems sweeter than when you enter it in the exemptions column on an income tax return.

Oklahoma sanitary inspectors smashed 18,594 cracked dishes they found in eating places in the state. It's things like that that make pharmacists mad.

Caven Thinks Up Another Tax For Motorist To Pay

AUSTIN, Jan. 24. (AP)—Rep. Hubbard Caven of Marshall is asking the Texas legislature to enact a law which he believes would result in the collection of a half million.

Caven's proposal would require automobile owners to pay the property taxes on their cars before they could obtain license tags. Before a motorist could buy a license for his machine he would have to present a receipt showing that the property taxes had been paid.

The Marshall representative said his bill had the approval of George Sheppard, state comptroller, and Moore Lynn, state auditor. He estimated that the state was losing half a million dollars yearly through inability to collect property taxes on automobiles.

A like bill was introduced two years ago but never was reported from house committee.

Pneumatic Tubes For Mail Planned For San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 24. (AP)—An underground system which would convey San Antonio's mail through pneumatic tubes at rapid speed is in prospect, according to Mayor C. M. Chambers.

Congressman Richard M. Kleberg has agreed to submit a bill to congress to provide the necessary appropriation. The congressman is of the opinion that San Antonio is qualified for the project because of its outlying army fields, including Randolph Field, "The West Point of the Air."

Installation of the modernized system, through which all mail from rail depots and the flying fields would be conveyed to the downtown post office, would completely revolutionize the present method which utilizes a fleet of trucks.

Speeding up of air mail is considered important here, Mayor Chambers said, as it will affect mail passing through here to and from Mexico.

Huts of 6,000 Years Ago Are Found in Persia

CHICAGO, Jan. 24. (AP)—Adobe huts from which evolved a civilization culminating in the palaces of Persepolis have been unearthed after six thousand years by a University of Chicago expedition in Persia.

The gathering dust of 60 centuries preserved the evidence of change for scientists who rapturously termed their find "one of the greatest and most important in achaeological research."

Dr. James Henry Breasted, head of the university's oriental institute, received the reports from Dr. Ernst Herzfeld, field director of the expendition.

Dr. Breasted said the mud houses of 4,000 B. C. were "the earliest prehistoric ancestry" of the black stone palaces which sheltered the gay court of Alexander the Great in 330 B. C.

Two miles from the ruins of Persepolis and diggers found a mound about 300 feet by 600 which, when excavated, uncovered a village of the stone age. There was a narrow street lined by adobe dwellings. The walls framed the oldest doors and windows known to modern research.

A wall seven feet high had been preserved. Water colors in red ochre stained the walls. The pottery bore polychrome designs.

The transition from adobe to the grand palace of Alexander's day was clearly outlined as the conqueror's palaces in Persepolis had disclosed rich detail of art. In these stately ruins the brick walls were varied by doors, windows and colonaded halls of stone polished like ebony.

Inscriptions believed to be of great historical value were uncovered also.

'Hole' Made In Baby's Stomach

AURORA, Ill., Jan. 24. (AP)—Eugene Robert Viola, seven days old, survived a major stomach operation, and was reported "doing well" today by his physician, Dr. R. Carl Dienst.

The baby was born without an adequate opening from the stomach into the intestine and food consequently remained stationary in the stomach. There was a very small opening, Dr Dienst said, but not sufficient to permit passage of food.

In the operation, performed Saturday, the opening was enlarged sufficiently to allow the child to take nourishment until normal growth processes correct the condition. The baby withstood the operation well, Dr. Niest said, and full recovery is expected.

CATTLE FARE WELL

COLEMAN, Jan. 24. (AP)—W. R. Hickman of this city, who ranches in Coleman and Comanche counties, said that cattle in West Texas have never wintered better, but that the prevailing price is a discouraging feature of the industry. "Nothing has had to be fed this winter," Hicgman said. "And the outlook for a good spring is very bright."

$ Buying Barbara

by Julia Cleft-Addams ♦ Author of "YOU CAN'T MARRY"

SYNOPSIS: Mark Lodely, crippled, arrogant and cruel, is the guest of Farrell Armitage, who is trying to cure him and launch him as an artist in order to permit Barbara Quentin, Mark's fiancée, to choose between them unhampered by pity for Mark. Mark has been insinuating unfair things about Farrell's love for Barbara, when suddenly he faints. Armitage's secretary, Kenneth Poole, rings for brandy.

Chapter 34

"TO OUR MEMORIES"

THE door opened to admit Thomas with the brandy decanter and glasses and, behind Thomas, a girl.

"It's very characteristic," said the girl—"how I always manage to come in on the cocktail-wagon."

Poole studied her as he advanced to meet her. He had not met Leila Cane before but he guessed that this must be she.

"This isn't going to be a revel, really," he explained when he had introduced himself. "The intoxicant is for Lodely. His heart isn't quite the thing this afternoon."

She went up to the big chair and looked down at its occupant. Supported by Thomas, he was sipping brandy. A faint color had crept back to his face. Leila smiled, a faint, bitter smile that Poole found rather attractive.

"Hullo, Mark! Got the tantrums?"

Poole took a chance.

"He's been batting Armitage," he explained. "Swords for two, you know, and brandy for one."

"If Mark needs brandy," said Leila, "Farrell must be needing an ambulance." Her bright eyes swept the room. "Where did you put him?"

"We disagreed, fundamentally, on the subject of handling women," came from Mark before Poole could make any retort. "He has just wandered out to dig a pit for himself and, in due course, to fall into it."

"What a cad you are!" commented Leila dispassionately. She took a cigarette from the case Poole offered and lit it. "Isn't he a cad, Mr. Poole? Don't you hate having him in the house?"

"On the contrary, he fascinates me! All that artistic temperament stuff—I've never met it before at close quarters."

"I don't want any more brandy," said Mark petulantly. And, as the footman withdrew — "I haven't drawn your soul yet, Leila. Have a care!"

Poole thought she flinched but in the next second she had recovered herself.

"I haven't a soul — and you've drawn all the rest of me."

"Have you sat for your portrait, then, Miss Cane?"

"No, though he pretends I did."

"Could I have painted you like that, from memory, d'you think?" protested the artist. "Who would believe it, Leila?"

"Only Barbara, bless her!" she told him steadily. "And she said you hadn't done me justice. And started her kitchen fire with it."

Poole laughed suddenly. With these two, as with Armitage and Lodely, he had the feeling that they were talking over his head. But whatever it was about, he backed this Cane girl. Never before had he seen a grown man—cripple or no—look so childishly cross.

"Barbara should have left it alone. It was mine," he muttered. "I shall tell her so the moment she comes."

"Is Barbara coming here?"

"Yes. To do me a studio that isn't a silly clutter of sofa cushions."

"When I saw her last week, she said that if she did come up, it would be to do Patsy's rooms, not yours."

"She will do them, though."

His humor apparently restored, Mark Lodely stretched up a hand and Leila, giving him hers, helped him up. Poole's "Oh, I say, let me!" came too late. Mark was already on his feet. Leila's hand still in his; before she could withdraw it, he raised it to his lips.

"To our memories, Leila!"

Poole, strolling across the room to see him out of the door, wondered. And then he wondered at himself for wondering. She was just one of a thousand others. He strolled back and found that the painful flush, that had risen under her powder, had gone again. She was elaborately composed.

"He does so hate it when you won't let him see you're impressed," she said. "Do you think genius is always as unendurable as Mark?"

"No idea! But he quite honestly doesn't impress me, except as an evil-tempered little cuss."

"He makes people, especially women, feel that if he would let them, they could heal him of his sins."

"Well, all I know is that I'd throttle the woman who tried to heal me of mine!"

He spoke quite seriously but evidently something — perhaps his whole-hearted dismay—amused her and she began to laugh. It was a friendly, jolly laugh and he liked the sound of it. He was quite sorry when she stopped. It had made him want to see her out on the moors in tweeds, with some of that paint washed off her face and one of those jolly little felt hats instead of this black, provocative thing.

"It's such a long time," she said, merriment still in her eyes, "since I met a man who could give me so ferocious a hint as that. Here's Mrs. Lodely. Hullo, Judy darling! How be ye?"

The west-country greeting linked two chains of thought in Poole's mind, Quentin, Lodely and Cane. Leila Cane. Quentin and Lodely had crashed and Cane had prospered. Hm!

"No, I'm not with Patsy Raoul any longer," Leila was announcing as and when Mrs. Lodely's laugh would allow her to make herself heard. "I'm not even at a hotel. I've just taken what Mark's lot call a 'decomposingly urgent' service flat in a Caroline Square."

"You're goin' the pace, Leila, ain't you? You can't get flats in Caroline Square for a song, though I remember 20 years ago I thought nothin' of—"

"I blackmailed father into trebling my allowance," said Leila lightly. "And if that doesn't cover it, well, I'm sorry but no living woman can do more."

"My dear gel, what things you do say!"

And then tea arrived, and Mrs. Lodely fell upon it.

Barbara received Mark's wire just as she put away her work for the night.

'Miss Quentin Way End Clipsborough. Come. Mark.'

She read it with a startled indrawing of the breath. Come, Mark. He wanted her—she must go to him.

"Any answer, miss?"

She darted to her work-table for a pencil. She needed only to say that she was coming at once. He would know that she would catch the next train or, if necessary, hire a car to Taunton Junction. She had begun to write the words when something tugged at her mind and stopped her.

She was remembering the letters she had written during the first week of his absence and the telegram she had sent asking for his advice about Miss Raoul's commission. He had not answered any of them, though his mother had reported that he has well and active.

Of course, Mark very rarely wrote to her during their separations, was contemptuous, in fact, of the whole idea behind a daily correspondence. Still—after that first week, she had written twice more and the only answer had been a post-card telling her to send his old sketchbooks by return mail.

"Any answer, miss, please?"

What was the matter with her? Again, she poised the pencil. But that something that fretted at her would not be denied. It was like a whisper in her ear—and a whisper very like Leila's. 'Mark's lazy—Mark's cruel.' An irritation, a resentment of Mark rose in her that she had not known before.

She wrote her answer, on impulse, to Judy. 'Is my immediate presence essential to Mark?'

Glancing at her watch, as the boy ran off, she saw that there was time for Judy to reply the same evening. She went to the telephone and arranged for the answer to be transmitted to her. Then she sat down and tried to discover what had come over her.

Mark had called to her and she had not gone to him. What would he think—what would he do? She began to be frightened now, to construct a hundred ways in which Judy might reply to her. Mark ill. Mark dying.

She was huddled miserably over her little oil-stove, her head and heart aching together, when her telephone rang. The message was brief. "Of course not. Stay where you are."

Barbara at last works herself up, tomorrow, to an important decision.

Ralph Cairney, former University of Washington basketball captain and All-Pacific Coast guard, is now playing with a strong independent quintet in Portland, Oregon.

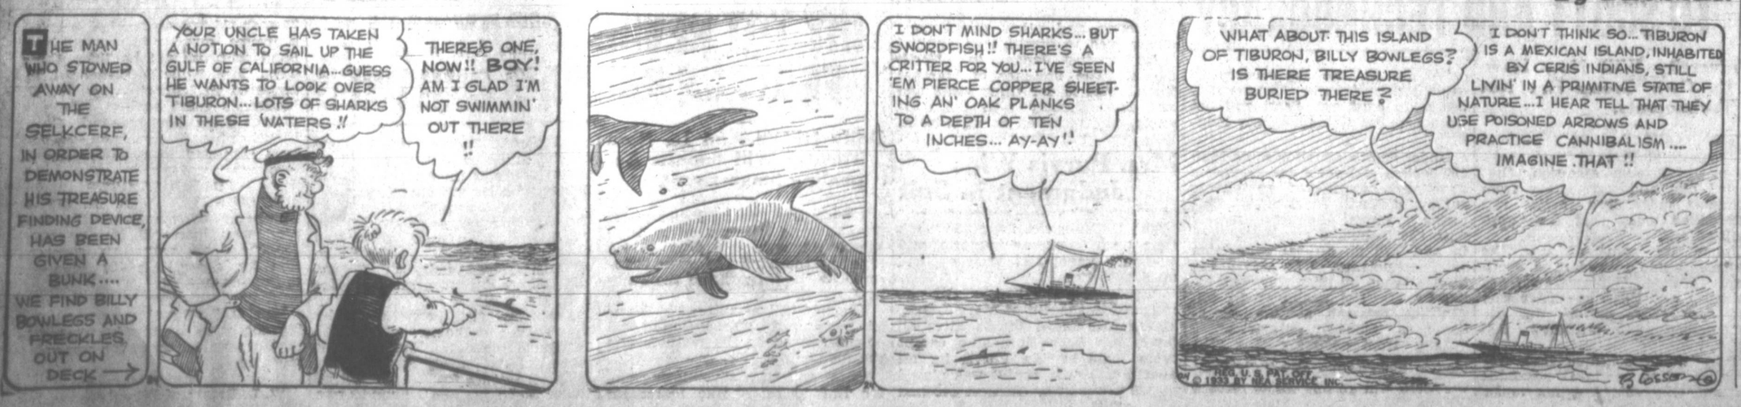

Mrs. B. E. Lary of Mobeetie shopped in the city yesterday.

Lonnie D. Kirby of Roxana was in the city last night.

Vitamins—Just What Are These Food Elements?

(Editor's note: Excerpt from a talk by W. W. Vincent, Chief, western district, Food & Drug administration, U. S. Department of agriculture, approved by the Bureau of Food & Drugs, State Department of Health, as being in conformity with Texas Food & Drug Law.

VITAMINS

What are vitamins? They are invisible food accessories essential to normal animal nutrition. The consumption of foods containing them is responsible for the prevention of the so-called "Vitamin-Deficiency Diseases." To a Polish chemist, Dr. Funk, we are indebted for the name. He isolated one, determined he had a vital substance necessary to the scheme of life. Chemically, that substance acted like one of the organic products which we term Amines. Throwing the words "vital" and "amine," together, he called the substance "Vitamines." Later it was discovered that certain of the vitamins were not amines and the final "e" was dropped.

In all, five vitamins have been definitely identified. There may be more. Absence of any one of these will manifest itself through the production of certain pathological conditions. Taking them in order we start with Vitamin A, a fat-soluble vitamin. It is the anti-ophthalmic vitamin. Its complete absence results in a lowered resistance of all mucous membrances, which shows up in the experimental animals as an eye infection. This eye infection has given its name to

SOCIAL HOURS HELD AT END OF MEETINGS

METHODISTS ATTEND DEVOTIONAL AND STUDY PERIODS

Social half-hours terminated study meetings held by the First Methodist W. M. S. circles in various homes yesterday afternoon.

Circle 1 met for the regular devotional study and social hour in the home of Mrs. S. C. Evans with Mrs. Albert Wood presiding. Mrs. Wood presented an interesting devotional program on 'tithing'. Mrs. Philip Wolfe favored the group with a vocal solo "Something for Jesus". Mrs. Paul Jensen gave an interesting reading about tithing.

A business session was then held, with members signing pledge cards.

Delicious coffee and cake was then served to the members and visitors at the close of the afternoon.

The 18 members answering the roll call were: Mesdames, Ralph Chisum, Fred Cullum, S. C. Evans, C. T. Hunkapillar, Paul Jensen, D. M. Lowrance, A. B. McAfee, C. R. Nelson, N. D. Oliver, C. E. Ward, Nels Walberg, H. L. Wilder, Albert Wood, Philip Wolfe. Four visitors, Mesdames D. E. Whittenburg, J. M. Hatfield, L. N. Atchinson, Neata Walker, attended.

Mrs. Baer Hostess

Circle 2 met in the home of Mrs. Christ Baer where an interesting program was enjoyed.

Mrs. H. T. Wohlgemuth directed the group in a devotional lesson with the subject 'What Shall I Render Unto the Lord'. Mrs. Lee Harrah spoke to the group on the subject War or Peace, Which Will It Be. Mrs. W. Purviance presented an interesting talk on Are We Through.

During the business session Mrs. Fred Cary resigned as the secretary and treasurer and Mrs. W. B. Hamilton was elected to fill her place.

A delightful social hour followed and the hostess served the group with home made ice cream and angel food cake.

Those attending the meeting were Mesdames Carl Baer, Chris Baer, Frey Cary, J. R. Evans, Siler Faulkner, Lee Harrah, W. B. Hamilton, H. E. Johnson, H. McBee, Roger McConnel, C. T. Nelson, W. H. Peters, W. Purviance, F. P. Reid, M. M. Robinson, Roy Tinsley, J. E. Ward, C. E. Waller, H. T. Wohlgemuth, Roy Kretzmeier.

Talks Are Made

A very helpful hour was enjoyed by all those attending a meeting of circle 3 in the home of Mrs. R. W. Lane. Mrs. Lane discussed What Shall I Render Unto the Lord, as the devotional subject. Mrs. Joe Shelton brought an interesting talk taken from Outlook. Mrs. A. L. Patrick made an impressive talk on I Gave My Life for Thee.

During the business session Mrs. Lane explained the pledge cards.

A social hour followed with the hostess treating everyone with dainty refreshments.

Mesdames Joe Gordon, Jim Collins, N. F. Maddux, R. Culberson, M. E. DeTar, H. F. Barnhart, Joe Shelton, A. L. Patrick, Sherman White, J. H. Marshall, Jack Spearman, Harry Hoare, Howard Neath, C. O. Seeds, R. W. Lane, R. B. Fisher, were in attendance at the meeting.

The group was pleased to have Mesdames Neal Beaver, H. A. Beaty, as new members of the society.

Mrs. Carson Leads

Circle 4 met in the parlors of the church for a study and social hour under th guidance of Mrs. H. B. Carson, chairman.

Giving was the subject discussed in the devotional given in an affective way by Mrs. Carson. Mrs. Carl Sturgeon and Mrs. F. L. Stallings favored the group with a duet Give of Your Best for the Master. Mrs. Al Lawson discussed the missionary life of Walter Lambuth.

A touching story was told by Mrs. J. M. Turner. Mrs. Rufe Thompson gave a talk on the subject Prayer.

Mrs. W. R. Ewing expressed appreciation to the circle for the inspirational program.

A business session followed with the secretary reading the reports, and giving the roll call.

Mrs. Frank Bryan and Mrs. J. M.

Thought Herself Failure—Notable Funeral Planned

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—The metropolis prepared a notable funeral yesterday for Miss Elisabeth Marbury, 76 years old, who considered herself a failure.

A leader in theatrical, literary, political, and civil life, she nevertheless believed that any one of millions of obscurde housewives was more successful than she.

When asked for her ideas about success for women, she would say:

"There is only one real success for women; that is to marry happily and have childrn and a home. In other words, to bring forth life as God intended a woman should."

Governor Herbert H. Lehman is expected to head a huge gathering of distinguished people who will go to St. Patrick's cathedral today to pay tribute to the woman who died Sunday of a heart attack.

Mrs. Sabin Opposes Blaine Amendment

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, a former member of the Republican National committee, said yesterday that one of her objections to the proposed Blaine amendment for repeal of the 18th amendment was that "it is too reminiscent of the republican platform which was overwhelmingly turned down by the American people on November 8."

Mrs. Sabin resigned from the Republican National committee early in 1929 and became founder and national chairman of the women's organization for national prohibition reform. In an address before the advisory council of the organization she analyzed repeal legislation now pending before congress.

STUDY IS DONE AT GATHERINGS FOR BAPTISTS

WITHOUT PREPARATION HOSTESS SERVES REFRESHMENTS

There are many rules for being a clever hostess, but one of the best examples is that of Mrs. C. H. Schulkey, who, without previous preparation, served refreshments at a meeting of Circle 2 of the First Baptist W. M. S.

It was not the custom of Circle 2, which met in Mrs. Schulkey's home yesterday, to serve refreshments, but at the meeting the group voted to serve said refreshments at regular intervals. Since yesterday's meeting occurred on the day set for future observance of the plan, Mrs. Schulkey stepped into the kitchen, hurriedly prepared a pot of tea, and served it with delicious cake to the following guests: Mesdames R. E. Lantz, J. A. Meek, F. Ewing Leech, Mary Binford, E. F. Brake, T. F. Morton, and Tom Perkins.

All of the circles planned visitation for next Monday and made arrangements to assist with the meeting of laymen on Friday evening. Each circle had a lesson from its study book, and Circle 3 held a social hour, during which the hostess served a salad course and gave a Valentine favor to each guest.

Mrs. C. L. Stephens was hostess to Mesdames K. T. May, J. B. Chisum, Clifford Solomon, and C. A. La Prade, all members of Circle 1.

Circle 3 met in the home of Mrs. G. D. Stockton with the following attending: Mesdames Earl Fandlin, Preston P. Briggs, J. J. Long, E. L. Billingsley, F. E. Hoffman, E. L. Anderson, J. T. Cox, and the hostess.

The meeting of Circle 4, held in the home of Mrs. T. L. Anderson, was attended by Mesdames J. B. Jameson, C. E. Lancaster, H. K. Beard, F. M. Perreraz, J. C. Barnard, W. V. Harris, J. A. Arwood, O. C. Williams, H. C. Wilkie, J. H. Dehnert, L. A. Baxter, W. M. Cella, Oscar Baker, and G. H. Covington.

Civilian Clothes Are Worn By Mrs. Womack, Colonel

MARSHALL, Jan. 24. (AP)—Mrs. Lyttleton J. Womack, recently appointed a colonel on the personal staff of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson was born and reared in Marshall. Before her marriage three years ago she was Miss Mildred Jones, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Jones. Her father is a prominent attorney of this city. Womack is a cotton buyer here.

Upon graduating from Marshall high school she attended the University of Texas, where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She also attended Sargent's school of physical education. After obtaining a B. S. degree from Columbia university, she taught physical education in State Teachers college at Huntsville. Mrs. Womack also worked in a Dallas clinic.

Among her hobbies are golfing, swimming and reading.

While Mrs. J. A. King, of San Antonio, the other woman colonel on Governor Ferguson's staff, appeared in uniform, Mrs. Womack retained her civilian attire.

In that connection, her friends explained that Mrs. Ferguson's telegram appointing her colonel had read, "Will not expect you to go to war, but will want you to counsel me to prevent war."

SPARKLING BIG DIAMOND

FLASHING a big diamond ring these days, acording to Hollywood reports, is Susan Fleming, above, the stage dancer who is getting along in filmdom. And the ring donor? He's that strong, silent man of stage and screen, Harpo Marx the humorist. Susan and Harpo smile, say nothing, when asked about it.

"SPEND NO MONEY ON CLOTHES" URGES COMMITTEE IN CHARGE OF LOCAL DEPRESSION DANCE

Boys and girls, both youthful and elderly, who attend the Little Theater's depression dance at the Pla-Mor ballroom Thursday night are not expected to buy or rent any clothing or costumes for the affair. Mrs. Ruba McConnell and Mrs. Julian Barrett, dance committee, emphasized.

"Any sort of costume or garb will get by, but we don't expect the guests to spend any money on a costume—this is going to be a depression dance," Mrs. McConnell said. "Old clothes, old hats, discarded hose could be worn." This was taken to mean that hose with outstanding and liberal runners in them would be the "dernier cri" (in French: latest style).

Mrs. Barrett said that garments worn at a depression dance would be a combination of those selected for a tacky party, a costume dance and an artists' ball, and that the guests would have much to choose from without spending any money.

Yesterday, Mrs. McConnell was requested to send an invitation to Old Tack (Gene Howe) of Amarillo. It was indicated that he would attend the dance, and would come with Joe Norman's orchestra who will furnish the music.

During the week-end Mrs. McConnell and Mrs. Barrett, both beseiged with telephone calls for bids, sent out many invitations, but yesterday they called a halt. They will not mail any more unless "it appears that that person's presence is vitally necessary to the success of the outstanding dance of Pampa society this season."

PARTY IS TONIGHT

The True, Trusted, Tried Intermediate girls of the First Baptist church will have a party in the home of Ruth White this evening at 7:30 o'clock. They will honor Miss Lois Barrett, who will leave Friday to study in Fort Worth.

UNUSUAL TRIAL OFFER ON A MOUTHWASH AND GARGLE BY MAKERS OF VICKS VAPO-RUB

Proof of the quality and economy of the new Vicks Voratone Antiseptic—for halitosis (bad breath), oral hygiene and other antiseptic uses—is offered in an actual test.

In order that every user of a mouth-wash and gargle may test it, the makers have supplied druggists with five million bottles of a trial size at actually less than cost of manufacture. This trial size is a 25c value, but is priced at only 10c—while the supply lasts.

No extravagant claims are made for Vicks Antiseptic. It is simply the best oral antiseptic Vicks Chemists could produce. And they were aided by the scientific experts of their 16 allied organizations, here and abroad.

They examined the whole field of oral antiseptics. Some they found were too weak. A few were far too strong for regular use in the mouth. Most were very good. But all were much too expensive. So they produced a balanced antiseptic. Mild enough to use daily without risk to delicate membranes. Strong enough to do everything an oral antiseptic can and should do.

And Vicks Antiseptic has this additional unique advantage . . . born in a depression year, it is priced accordingly. The regular size is a large 10-ounce bottle—a 75c value—but is priced at only 35c. (Adav.)

PROFESSIONAL AND BUSINESS WOMEN GATHER

TO RAISE MONEY FOR BUDGET AND TO AID NEEDY

Fourteen members and five visitors attended a meeting of group 5 of the First Christian women's council last evening in the home of Mrs. Gertie Arnold, 414 Crest.

The group, composed of business and professional women, made plans for raising money for the budget and to aid needy families.

Horace Saunders, Jr., and Marjorie Ruth Gaylor entertained the group with readings, and the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Clara Hill Class Committee Meets

The absentee committee and the membership committee of the Clara Hill class, Methodist church, met Monday afternoon to outline an extensive program of visitation.

Mrs. Carl Sturgeon, president of the class, presented to the committee several plans that will be begun soon in the class. Discussion and suggestions were made by each of the committeemen and the officers planned increase membership and attendance.

Mrs. Bert Moore, Mrs. A. A. Reynolds, Mrs. W. J. Johnson, Mrs. E. L. Garrett, and Mrs. J. M. Marshall were those present.

MISS BARRETT LEAVING

Miss Lois Barrett will leave Friday for Fort Worth, where she will be a student at the Baptist Theological Seminary. She is doing most of her work in the music conservatory.

SIX DODGERS HOLDING OUT AGAINST CUT

BUSINESS MANAGER'S WOES INCREASING DAILY

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—If Ed Barrow, business manager of the New York Yankees, thinks he has any monopoly on the season's baseball holdouts, he'd better take a look at the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Already the Dodgers can point with little or not pride to a half dozen high-salaried players who are balking at terms.

William Watson Clark, southpaw, season, $12,000, but the southpaw is the latest member of the Dodger cast to reject the club's first contract. The Dodgers offered Clark the same salary he received last thinks his work entitled him to a raise. He won 20 games, the only southpaw in the National league who reached that figure.

Al Lopez, Hack Wilson, and Joe Stripp are bona-fide holdouts and Glenn Wright, veteran shortstop, is understood to be far from pleased with terms offered him. Wright insists, however, that he cannot be classed in the holdout list.

On the other side of the picture, the Dodgers have the signatures of both Lefty O'Doul and Tony Cuccinello to 1933 contracts and they expect to swing the others in line, sooner or later.

The Yankees accomplished a neat stroke of business when Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, southpaw, ended his brief campaign for more money. Gomez asked for a larger increase than the club was ready to give him but whether he got it or not was not stated.

The Yankees also signed Arndt Jorgens, second-string catcher, and two recruit pitchers, Russell Van Atta and Don Brennan. Herb Pennock went into conference with the "front office" with the idea of persuading them he should not be asked to take such a slash.

Washington's Senators, hoping to give the Yankees a battle for the American league title, got "General" Alvin Crowder's signature to a contract. Terms were not announced but it was understood he was given an increase in view of the fact that he won 26 games for the Senators last season.

BUILD NEW JAIL

FARWELL, Jan. 24. (AP)—Parmer county will build an $8,000 addition to its jail. The contract will be let early in February and work will begin immediately.

Walls of the present building will be strengthened and a second story added. A compartment for women will be arranged on the first floor.

GAMES HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Two Amarillo Teams To Play Girls and Gorillas In School Gym.

The Pampa Gorilla-Amarillo Yannigan game will be played at 7:30 o'clock Friday night in the high school gymnasium. The game between the Amarillo Sandyettes and the Pampa girls will follow the boys' encounter.

Both Coach Harry Kelley of the Harvesterettes and Coach Warren Moore of the Gorillas put their teams through hard practice sessions yesterday afternoon. Passing, screening, and guarding were stressed for nearly two hours by both coaches. They showed marked improvement over previous practices.

Several changes may be made in the Harvesterette line-up, Coach Kelley intimated. His sextet has not been clicking recently, especially in the scoring department. Captain Louise Walstad made all the points registered in the last two games played. Passing has also been weak.

The big weakness displayed was waiting to pass to a player rather than to a position. The girls appeared to forget their plays in the heat of action.

Coach Moore has practically decided on his starting line-up. His boys have been improving during the past week and should give the fast Yannigans a stiff battle.

Admission will be by season ticket or general admission, 10 cents for students and 25 cents for adults.

LeFors Ramblers Defeated 51-17 By White Deer

White Deer apparently has an independent basketball team that will bar no team in the country. They are anxious to secure games and any team in the country that wants a game may get in touch with L. N. "Irish" Brashears at the White Deer REVIEW.

Last Thursday night the White Deer boys took the fast LeFors Ramblers into camp and sent them home after a 51 to 17 defeat. The Ramblers have a smooth, fast machine but it failed to click against the White Deer aggregation.

White Deer boasts only five players. They are Roy Eury, coach of the White Deer high school team. He was Southwest conference center two years ago while playing with T. C. U. Other members are Grover Seitz, of baseball fame; Red Nations, Glen Harsh, and Custer Lowery.

Suggests Amateur And Pro Colleges

EASTON, Pa., Jan. 24. (AP)—Division of colleges in the United States into groups, amateur and professional, according to how football is conducted at each is suggested by Harvey Harman, gridiron coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

Declaing such a move would stamp out the "hypocricy" he said exists in some colleges. Harman said he would like to see every college president in the United States make an "honest" statement as to how football is conducted at his institution.

The statements, Harman said last night in an address at the annual banquet of the Lafayette college football team, should include how many scholarships are given out, how many players are subsidized, what other help football players receive, and how many hours they practice.

Miss Lillian Keahey underwent a tonsilectomy yesterday morning. She is doing nicely.

J. G. Noel is reporte ddoing nicely in Worley hospital following an operation Friday afternoon.

COACH FROWNS ON AMBITIONS THAT MAY HALT TEAM-WORK

Mitchell Trains Harvester Basketball Team To Play As Unit.

Coach Odus Mitchell has taught the Harvester basketball team that five men, not two, three or four, are required to produce a winning team. The boys have worked nearly well together all season, but in recent scrimmages and games tendencies to "hug the ball," to be the star player and failure to pass to an uncovered man have become alarmingly noticeable. More than once the team has suffered because of "grandstand plays" which amounted to nothing.

Recently, fans have been recalling instances when many a good team was ruined because one or more on the squad wanted to star. Coach Mitchell has impressed upon the boys and fans there are no stars this year; that both victories and defeats have been and will continue to be due to team-work and not the "masterful genius" of anyone of the boys.

Some of the players have been failing to take shots when the occasion presented, and as a result the number of attempts have been diminishing. Some have been shooting consistently when they shouldn't have shot at all—"grandstand" tactics. The fans are hoping and expecting a total absence of those tendencies when the Harvesters invade Amarillo Saturday night.

A week of hard practice is on schedule. Coach Mitchell put the boys through more than two hours of practice yesterday afternoon, work on plays, defense, screening, and passing came in for attention.

Saturday night will see the Harvesters home for the first time in two weeks. They will meet the fast LeFors Pirates in a return engagement. The Harvesterettes will play the LeFors girls.

The first game will start at 7:30 o'clock. Admission will be by season ticket or 10 cents for children and 25 cents for adults.

Heart Attack Kills Boy in Respirator

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—Herbert Fuchs, 15, who recovered from infantile paralysis after lying for 270 days in an airtight steel respirator, died early today of a heart attack.

He died in the respirator, to which he had been returned for a week suffering from bronchial pneumonia. He was recovering from the pneumonia attack.

After spending approximately nine months in the respirator, Herbert was taken home May 29, last year. His parents promised him a trip to Europe as soon as he was strong enough to travel. He had been making excellent progress, his doctors said, until he contracted bronchial pneumonia recently.

HOOKS and SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

Prince Rides Again!

Good cheer, old pot o' tea! The Prince, is Royal 'ighness, 'as taken up fox-'unting again. And now 10,000 photographers will go back to work, and 10,000 cameras will click merrily in olde England as Edward resumes his role of champion faller-off of horses.

The Prince quit falling off of horses two years ago, curing himself of the habit by the simple expedient of not getting on any. Following the illness of his father, Edward sold his hunters, leased his hunting box at Melton and set out to shoot big game in East Africa.

Okay to Take Chance Now.

The British magazine, Brittania and Eve, offers an explanation for the Prince's absence from the sport. We quote:

"The shrewd men who advise the Prince look at it this way While it seemed as if the throne might require him tomorrow—no hunting. Eight or nine people every year are killed in the hunting field, more get crippled and scores break bones. But with the King as well as he ever was—why, some hunting again does no harm and can do much good."

It seems that the Prince's appearance at the hunt does much to invigorate the sport. If the Prince hunts, so do all the fashionable young crowd. Brittania and Eve is careful to point out that the snobs, no inconsiderable element in fox-hunting, follow the Prince's leads rather religiously, strike my eyebrows pink!

If the Prince does not a-hunting so, the snobs go back to their tiddley-winks, checkers, bridge, dominoes (dormant or galloping), or what for today, my dear Sudsbridge?

Important Poundage.

During six months of the year, the sport serves an important function in Britain. There are 180 packs of hounds in England and Wales and 10 in Scotland. When the packs are hunting the coin of the realm circulates freely in the active regions. And a neighborhood usually suffers hard times when the hounds are idle.

In a time of depression such acceleration to spending as provided by the sport is a great help. Fox-hunting spells the circulation of more than 20,000,000 pounds in agricultural districts during slack times, what with horses, hounds, wages, rents, food, entertainment and all that goes with the pastime.

An English fox-hunter is no piker. He may get by for the season on a 240-pound expenditure, but that sort of blighter has to know his way around and pick his hunt rather carefully. Many of the wealthier Britons spend 10,000 pounds on a season of the sport.

A mansion, called a hunting box, can be rented for 2400 pounds. The big shot really should have about 20 horses, at 480 pounds apiece. Suppose the hunter pays 240 pounds for his hunt subscription, and, feeling his oats, puts up a couple of thousand pounds to take over the mastership of the bloomin' hunt itself.

It all amounts up to a couple of tons!

Welker Cochran Stands at Top In Cue Tourney

CHICAGO, Jan. 24. (AP)—Walker Cochran of Hollywood, Calif., who is making his first attempt to win the world three cushion billiard championship, today stood alone at the top of the tournament standing, but the contest for second place was a mad scramble involving four players.

Cochran was safe enough today, not being scheduled for play, but two of the four stars tied for second place, had a chance of improving their positions. In the opening match, Tiff Denton of Kansas City, who was deadlocked in the four-way tie with J. N. Bozeman Jr., of Vallejo, Calif., Clarence Jackson of Detroit, and Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago southpaw and defending champion, was matched with Arthur Thurnblad, another Chicagoan. Jackson was up next with Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, as his opposition, while in the night match, Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., and Allen Hall, the third Chicago entrant, were paired.

While Cochran was idle yesterday, Jackson and Bozeman, who had shared in a three-way tie for the lead, met their first reverses. Layton upset Jackson, 50 to 39 in 54 innings, and Frank Scoville of Buffalo, N. Y., defeated Bozeman, 50 to 37 in 60 innings.

Kieckhefer squeezed into the second place tie in the night game, overcoming Hall, 50 to 48.

GOOD AT LONGEVITY

SAN MARCOS, Jan. 24. (AP)—The Vasquez family of Hays county must be considered when longevity is the topic of discussion.

Valentine Vasquez will become 100 years old February 14 if he lives. His sister died last year at the age of 105.

The Vasquez family lives on the Hays-Travis county line. Valentine owns a 150-acre from and is an active, successful farmer.

Alanreed Will Battle Hopkins Here Tomorrow

Hopkins and Alanreed basketball teams will clash for the second conferende game at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night in the LeFors high school gymnasium. Alanreed won the game played last week, 21 to 17. The Hopkins five failed to click in their usual style.

Coach Weatherred will probably start Ginn and Everett Vandeberg at forward position. Pinnell at center, and H. Mackie and Edgar Vanderberg at guard positions. His reserves will be R. Ridgeway, Husted, J. Mackie, E. Davis, and S. Davis.

A win for Alanreed would give that quintet the right to meet the other five teams in this sub-section of the Panhandle Basketball league. Should the Hopkins Whirlwinds take the game, a third encounter will be necessary.

When the league was organized, it was agreed that teams without gymnasiums would play off a separate schedule and the winner would play each of the teams with regulation gymnasiums.

Admission to the game Wednesnight will be 10 cents for students and 25 cents for adults.

Pope Will Name Three Cardinals

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 24. (AP)—Three cardinals, who will open the holy doors of three of Rome's bassilicas at innauguration of the holy year April 1, will be nominated at consistory Pope Pius XI convoked today for March 13, and possibly at the same time many of the 17 vacancies in the sacred college of cardinals will be filled.

The announcement of convocation does not carry a definite statement on the latter point, but Vatican prelates point out because of the unusual number of vacancies it would not be surprising if the pope decided to utilize the occasion for numerous promotions to the purple.

The pope will officiate at the opening of the holy door at St. Peter's April 1, where the main holy year ceremony is to be held. This door remains closed 96 years every century, being opened only during holy years, which ordinarily fall every quarter century.

Poultry Exchange Is At Gainesville

GAINESVILLE, Jan. 24. (AP)—An exchange for the distribution of pure bred hatching eggs to poultry breeders of Cooke county is to be operated through the chamber of commerce here in co-operation with the Cooke County Poultry association.

Members of the latter organization have perfected a plan whereby persons interested in building up flocks of pure bred birds may bring their common stock eggs to the chamber of commerce and exchange them at the current market price for setting eggs from ten breeds of fine chickens. The chamber of commerce will dispose of the common eggs without service charge.

To acquaint Cooke county citizens with the types of pure bred birds being raised in the county, a poultry show will be held here February 11.

Bowling Games To Be Played Tonight

Two games will be rolled in the Commercial Bowling league race tonight when the Schneider Hotel and the Country club teams meet on alleys 1 and 2 and the Thirty Footers and Cullum Motor roll on alleys 3 and 4. The Thirty Footers continue to lead the league race by a long margin.

Thursday night will see four teams from the City league in action. The Voss cleaners and Phillips will roll on alleys 1 and 2 while the Jaysees and the Kiwanis No. 1 will be in action on alleys 3 and 4. The league standing will probably be changed as a result of the games.

'Hobo' Gull Caught At Galveston Dock

GALVESTON, Jan. 24. (AP) — A green banana thrown on a pier may result in aiding the government in its study of the migratory habits of sea gulls.

While workers were unloading bananas from the British steamer Oriskany recently, a bystander picked up a green banana and tossedd it into a flock of gulls hopping about the dock. The missile found a mark—a big brown seagull. The blow stunned the bird and it lay where it fell.

Joseph Kelley, United States customs inspector, walked over and examined the gull. After removing a small metal tag from one of its legs he revived the bird by ducking it into a tub of water. The gull staggered to its fet, shook the water from its feathers and flew away.

The metal tag bore the number B-621.877 and instructed the finder to notify the United States Biological survey at Washington. Kelley said he would send the tag to the bureau.

Paraguay Fort In Gran Chaco Totters

BUENOS ARIES, Jan. 24. (AP)—The fall of the Paraguayan strong-hold Fort Nanawa in the Gran Chaco, recently renamed for President Ayala, to the Bolivians, appeared a matter of hours today as a battle which has been raging since Friday gathered intensity.

Evening newspapers in Asuncion and La Paz featured the fighting sensationally, each claiming successes, but communiques, which gave little information, indicated unofficial reports that there had been hundreds of casualties were exaggerated. Mud on the battlefield was handicapping both armies.

World War Veteran Gets 'Purple Heart'

COLEMAN, Jan. 24. (AP)—Delayed recognition has come to Fred Sackett of Coleman for meritorious service during the World War.

The secretary of war has directed that a purple heart, engraved with Sackett's name, be issued on account of wounds Sackett received in action September 14, 1918, and November 1, 1918, while serving as a first class private in Company E, 360th Infantry, in France.

Description of the decorations Sackett will receive, according to a letter, are: (A) One oak leaf cluster to be attached to the ribbon of the purple heart; (B) one purple heart service ribbon with one miniature oak leaf cluster attached.

SANDIE STOCK BOUNDS AFTER LUBBOCK GAME

VICTORY SHOWS BOYS OF AMARILLO HAVE IMPROVED

Have Amarillo's Sandie cagers improved so much in the last two weeks that they are 11 points better today than the Harvesters? Has the Pampa team been at a standstill in the last two weeks as far as improvement is concerned? And worse still, has the team retrograded?

These and similar questions, Harvester basketball fans were asking themselves and each other this morning after they read how the Amarillo Sandies went down to Lubbock last night, pounced on the Westerners and beat them on their own court, 33 to 28—only two nights after the Harvesters lost to the Lubbock quintet 29 to 23. That would make Amarillo 11 points better than Pampa, but "dope" is a flexible thing and the fight that has always been in the Harvesters obliterated consideration of mere dope when they clashed with the Sandies.

One certainty stood out this morning: if the Harvesters beat the Sandies at Amarillo Friday night they've got to play as a unit. Furthermore they've got to stop J. R. Corbitt. That little forward has hit his stride apparently. It will be up to Kelley and Patton to put a blanket over him and keep it there. Corbitt accounted for 21 of his team's 33 points last night. Fans were wondering if he would be able to get away with that Friday night. Local followers of the game KNOW that Kelley and Patton CAN smother Corbitt for they did a thorough job of it in the Amarillo game here. They also know that Marbaugh, Woodward, and Fullingim are better when they play together than the boys who play at their positions on the Amarillo team. The Pampans have the advantage of height, speed, and passing finesse. The Sandies made most of their points in the game here in free throws and long shots.

While the Harvesters are in Amarillo, the Harvesterettes and Gorillas will be entertaining Amarillo teams here.

"You said it—we need a Big Car!"
SAYS HARRY D. EDWARDS, LARCHMONT, NEW YORK

"We picked Plymouth because it's so BIG in Size . . . and Value"

MAYBE you haven't got a big family like Harry D. Edwards, but you certainly want plenty of room in your car.

You'll find that people who want comfort . . . who want to relax . . . who want driving to be real fun . . . are picking Plymouth. Because it's a full-sized car . . . and because it's the only low-priced Six that is free of all vibration . . . the only one with Floating Power engine mountings!

What do people think of it? Ask Mr. Edwards. He's an engineer. He says: "In my opinion, any car is behind the times without Floating Power! Or, for that matter, without Hydraulic Brakes or a safety-steel body!"

Ask your dealer for a Floating Power ride in the new Plymouth. Also ride in the other two low-priced cars. Then decide!

New Gasoline Goes On Sale at Conoco Filling Stations

Conoco refining chemists have produced a new gasoline that they believe will be a boon to motorists. The new gasoline went on sale at local stations this morning. It is a high test gasoline but will sell at the price of white gasoline.

However, the company must have a title for the gasoline and is offering $5,000 in cash for the name. The company is also offering $5,000 for a slogan. It will be divided into 74 individual prizes.

The difference in the new fuel can be noticed instantly, according to those who have tried in their cars and trucks. It is quick starting and has a fast pick-up.

The contest will close February 23. Persons may enter as many slogans and names as they desire. Entry blanks are available at all Conoco filling stations. The names must not have more than 12 letters and slogans not more than 12 words. If more than one person submits the winning name, each will be given the full cash prize.

Nichols also entered birds in the show but failto win prizes.

Final Tryouts For Declamation Due February 6

Work in the literary events for the Interscholastic League is well under way, and the one-act play, "The High Heart", will be held February 6, beginning at 7 o'clock. The tryouts will be judged by Mr. Bachelder of West Texas State Teacher's college and a small admission will be charged.

The pamphlets for the spelling contest have come and about twelve students are now practicing under the direction of Miss Brannon. Those interested in the essay contest are asked to report to Miss Latimer.

Practice on the typewriting contest will be begun next month. The team will have five members and will not compete in the county, but will go directly to Canyon. There will also be a team of individuals. There will also be a bookkeeping team, and there may be a secretarial contest.

The subejtc "Resolved: That at least one-half of all State and local revenues should be derived from sources other than tangible property" is being studied by seven students under the direction of Miss May. They plan to enter the tournament at McLean, February 10 and 11, and the Amarillo Speech Arts Tournament, in addition to fulfilling the annual contracts with Panhandle and Amarillo and entering the county and district meets.

Hedley Looms As Sectional Foe Of Harvesters

The Harvesters meet several strong teams this week in decisive games. Amarillo will play host on Friday night. LeFors comes here Saturday in a sub-section. demanding return payment for the defeat of last Saturday.

Next week features three games with Allison, McLean, and Lubbock, those with Allison and McLean being sub-section games. If the Harvesters should win any two of these, the sub-section championship will be corraled as a laurel of P. H. S.

This district is divided into two sections of which the Harvesters and Hedley are potential champions. The Hedley boys are taking everything by storm in their district and if they win, the district championship will be decided by a two out of three games.

Enrolment For Semester Ends

Classes of both the morning and afternoon sessions were cut short fifteen minutes yesterday so that enrolment might be completed for those who failed to get in last week and so that necessary changes in schedule might be made.

Changes in schedule were not made last week but were ordered held over until yesterday by Principal L. L. Sone. He explained that this was to prevent unnecessary misinderstanding and to restrict needless changes.

In explaining his reasons for holding changes yesterday Mr. Sone said that it gave all a fair chance and saved the office staff an enormous amount of work. He made clear the announcemnt that yesterday was the last day on which such changes would be allowed unless the change was requested by the student's parents or a faculty member.

JUST FACTS

A Band Mother's club will be organized this month.

T. B. Barton, a member of the high school band is leaving Pampa.

Several band members have the "flu."

Ella Faye O'Keefe is working on a trombone solo which she will present at the Tri-State contest in Amarillo in March.

The orchestra will play for chapel Wednesday.

Three trombone players will join the band next week.

Pampa high school is offering a course in free violin lessons. Miss Clarice Branon is the instructor.

One-Act Play, 'Sounding Brass' To Be Presented in Chapel Tomorrow

"Sounding Brass", a one-act play, one of the five recently contested, will be presented in chapel tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with the following cast:

John ..... Clinton Evans
Mrs. Calvin ..... Lois Maness
Walter ..... Jim Arndt
Mr. King ..... Charles Frost

The play is a prison story and is a tragedy. The public is cordially invited to attend chapel.

DENVER WOMAN HERE

Mrs. Jordan of Colorado Woman's college at Denver spoke to the Senior girls in the library Friday afternoon. She discussed the courses, costs, the recreational advantages, and the environment that school offers. Frances Finley, a member of last year's graduating class, is attending Colorado Woman's college.

Helmeted Raider Inflicts Jitters On Rusk Family

RUSK, Jan. 24. (AP)—Two members of the police force and the family of Rev. M. A. Roberts are recovering from the nervous strain of trailing one of the most mysterious prowlers ever known in Jacksonville.

Left alone while the rest of the family went to church, Mrs. Roberts and a sick daughter heard some one apparently trying to unlatch a window screen. Soon after the return of the churchgoers, steps were heard on the back porch. Mr. Roberts investigated but no one could be seen. Then sounds were heard in the basement, and officials aid was summoned.

Two policemen, armed for trouble, stole cautiously to the basement entrance followed by the family. Their flashlight refused to work. Matches were procured and the party again advanced. One officer made a grab and had the intruder in his hand. In the light of a match he proved to be a hungry cat with his head helmeted in a salmon can.

Only three safeties were scored in the Rocky mountain football conference last season. Conference teams scored 144 touchdowns, but converted on only 35 attempts for the extra point.

Kelley Finds No Solace in Adage

"So history repeats itself. Well whoever said that, I hope his wife plays bridge." Those were the words of Mr. Kelley, Harvesterette coach, after two very disastrous games with Allison and LeFors.

LeFors will come to Pampa Saturday and give the Harvesterettes a chance for vengeance. The Amarillo girls will play here Friday night.

In the meantime Mr. Kelley is singing his basketball coach's lament and hopes there are members of the fair sex that will answer his call. The song has no special time, but here are the words:

"Every freshman girl in Pampa high school that thinks she might ever want to play basketball anytime in the future, please come out for practice or see me or Miss Perry."

SO CARELESS OF HIM

VERONA, Italy—When a tailor forgot to remove his needle from an overcoat he made for a customer he nearly signed the death sentence of Carlo Pollorini.

Coming around a corner, Pollorini and the wearer of the overcoat collided and the needle was forced between two of Pollorini's ribs, near the heart.

At a hospital, surgical aid saved Pollorini's life. The tailor got official reprimand.

NOTABLE NOTHINGS OF PHS

By the Nimble Nitwits

We're the nimble nitwits,
A merry bunch are we,
We chew our gum and wag our ears
And see what you can't see.

We have our snooopless snooper,
And snooping he never goes,
But sits around, his feet on a desk
And blows and blows and blows.

We have our witty sayings,
And some are quite serene
But one comparison we never could stand
Was to a freshman English theme.

Miles M. says that one reason they lost the Lubbock game was 190 miles of road and candy.

Mrs. Roberts, registrar, nearly fainted the other day when a freshman appeared in the office and asked for a night-letter stamp.

Heard on the short-wave police calls—"Vacant house on corner; Someone in it." Sounds like a case for defamation of character.

The reason for George Keahey's studious map is that a teacher, during his freshman year, told him thta if his brains were turned to nothing, he would not have anything. The question is, "Is it an insult or a compliment?"

Texas Is 17th State To Vote Amendment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP) — Virginia was the first state to ratify the twentieth or "lame duck" amendment, and Missouri, the 36th, completed the job.

Proclamation of the ratification will not take place until all the 36 states approval resolutions are deposited at the state department here.

After Virginia's action on March 4, 1932, the day after the amendment was proposed, the states acted in the following order:

March, 1932: New York, Mississippi, Arkansas, Kentucky, New Jersey, South Carolina, and Michigan.
April, 1932: Maine, Rhode Island, and Illinois.
June, 1932: Louisiana.
July, 1932: West Virginia.
August, 1932: Pennsylvania and Indiana.
September, 1932: Texas and Alabama.
January, 4, 1933: North Carolina and California.

Since then this month the following have ratified in the order given: Oklahoma, North Dakota, Montana, Arizona, Oregon, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Iowa, Delaware, Washington, Tennessee, South Dakota, Idaho, and New Mexico, and yesterday, by Missouri.

'Wandering Boys' Are New Problem

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24. (AP)—A "new army of transients" moving across the country was described before a senate committee today by Grace Abbott, chief of the children's bureau, as a growing relief problem.

The exact number of needy transients is hard to determine, she said, appearing in behalf of the bill of Senator Cutting (R., N. M.), for a $15,000,000 relief fund to be given the states through the reconstruction corporation.

Along the route of the Southern Pacific in Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona, Miss Abbott said, checks at small towns in the three states showed 200 transients a day, most of them youths.

On the Santa Fe railroad, she continued, a check at Albuquerque, New Mexico, showed 75 daily.

1. Names must be not more than 12 letters; slogans not more than 12 words. Submit either or both on single sheet; plain white paper; one side only; but preferably on official contest information-and-entry blank, free at Conoco dealers and stations. Elaborate presentations receive no extra credit.
2. Contest closes midnight, February 23, 1933. Entries must be postmarked before that date and hour.
3. Continental employees, members of their families and others connected directly or indirectly cannot compete.
4. Should more than one person submit exactly the same name or slogan, each will receive full amount of any prize such entry may win. All entries become Continental Oil Company property, and none will be returned.
5. The Company reserves prior rights to phrases and slogans of its own creation, already in prepared advertising. Also it reserves the names "Continental" or "Conoco" gasoline, "Conogas", and "101" gasoline. Whether or not the winning contest name is adopted, prize money will be paid; but the Company reserves the right to use a name of its own creation if decided more suitable and more protectable under trade-mark laws.
6. No purchase is required of contestants. Continental Oil Company executives will be the judges and their decisions final. Winners will be announced over radio, and prize money paid as soon as possible after contest closes.

SCRIP MONEY BEING WIDELY USED FOR CLOSING GAP BETWEEN FOOD AND JOBLESS

No Competition With Present Business Is Intended In New Development.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last of three articles discussing the growth of barter and scrip in the United States.)

By J. R. BRACKETT

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. (AP)—What stands between the unemployed and the nation's idle factories and surplus food?

While governments and economists have sought the answer to that enigma, the unemployed themselves have undertaken to answer it—in part, at least—not only by bartering their labor for goods and services, but by establishing their own currencies for use primarily among themselves.

About 150 groups of unemployed, directly aiding 500,000 persons, have organized into barter exchanges. These organizations as yet have no national organization and may not have, but it is the minds of some of their leaders to provide for barter on a nationwide scale, perhaps even with a nationwide currency.

Developments Legal So Far

Such an organization could develop in numerous ways. It might simply evolve in a more or less opportunistic fashion as exchanges of goods between the groups in different localities developed. The scrip money would not have to be exchanged, simple trades being arranged. Probably also money accredited by so many different organizations would have too variable a value for use in any but a single group.

On the authority of a government official it can be said that developments thus far have been legal. Scrip money, unless its acceptance is forced, does not interfere with legal currency which must be accepted in payment for goods and services.

In the view of a leading banking economist, government objection might arise if the element of compulsion, such as community pressure, were present. This economist believes neither banks nor government will object to more or less localized use of scrip.

Would Use Idle Factories

As for deliberate national organization of barter, the plan of Prof. Frank D. Graham of Princeton university, a directory of the Emergency Exchange Association, which is aiding in the formation of barter exchanges in the east and elsewhere, has received wide notice.

Professor Graham's plan is based on the simple statement that the best way to cure unemployment is to provide work. He would put the unemployed to work in idle or only partly operated factories, distributing the produce to the unemployed in proportion to their share in its production.

The workers, under his plan, would be paid in consumption certificates having value for one transaction only and losing purchasing value at the rate of 5 per cent a month, which would hurry their spending and insure the immediate absorption of the special production.

Raw materials would be purchased with the consumption certificates, and factories either could be paid in scrip or in shares of the production of the "unemployed" worker. The goods produced by the factories would be placed either on the shelves of stores or in special emergency stores, and those supplying the raw materials, as well as the workers, could buy the finished products with the consumption certificates.

The plan envisages no competition whatsoever with existing business, since it gives the unemployed what they want without the expenditure of money and releases funds now used in relief for normal purchasing.

Professor Graham believes such an organization should be nationwide if possible, but could be developed in states and regions. It would be strictly an emergency proposition, and, since the workers get subsistence only, it would tend to disappear as recovery progressed.

In an effort to break the barrier that is keeping America's unemployed from working, the jobless are organizing barter exchanges and developing their own money. Some persons interested in the movement believe barter and scrip can be extended nationally.

Having introduced the subject for the week's series of brief articles, we present installment 2:

Forms for filing returns of income for 1932 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time, on or before March 15 if the return is made on the calendar year basis, as is the case with most individuals. Lowering of the personal exemption will require many hundreds of thousands of individuals to file returns this year who did not do so in 1932.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1932 was received chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on Form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons whose net income was in excess of $5,000, or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form, 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is empasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business or profession from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 15, 1933. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

FARMERS—

In far western states taxation relief transcends almost every other approach to the farm problem, but the legislatures of other states have had no lack of measures intended to lift some of the tax burden off the farmer's shoulders.

These proposals mainly are of two kinds—those intended to aid the farmer by developing sources of revenue to replace the ad valorem property tax, and those intended to grant the farmer respite through installment tax payments, postponement of payments, cancelling or reduction of penalties, moratoria on tax sales, and similar methods.

State Sales Tax Urged

Texas is one of many states considering a state sales tax. Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson having proposed a three per cent sales tax to replace the real property tax. Indiana considers sales, income and intangibles taxes, and has sent to the governor a proposal for a one-year moratorium on tax sales.

An Ohio bill would ban sheriff's tax sales for two years, and other bills would provide for installment payment of taxes and the exemption of personal property.

Michigan considers a proposal for spreading delinquent tax payments over 10 years. South Carolina has a sales tax proposal, and North Carolina is asked to take the 15-cent school levy off real property. A Tennessee proposal would cancel penalties and interest on delinquent taxes from 1925 to 1931 inclusive, if principal is paid by next January 1.

Bills before Iowa solons would prohibit delinquent tax sales altogether, and reduce interest on delinquent taxes.

Other states consider a host of similar bills presented as "farm measures." Their range is shown by the following incomplete list:

Bills to make real estate assessments more frequent; to permit only real estate owners to vote on bonds; to impose a sales tax exempting farm products; to eliminate state taxes on farm trucks; to refinance irrigation districts; to eliminate farm ureaus, agricultural departments and extension services in the interest of economy; to exempt from tax the gasoline used by farmers; to appropriate a fund for free garden seed; to reassess real estate at 80 per cent of its former value; to reduce the legal interest rate from 10 to 6 per cent; to exempt owner-occupied homes from taxation.

In addition to these, a great variety of general ecenomy bills have strong farmer support as methods of tax-reduction.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 24. (AP)—Cotton fluctuated uncertainly at the opening today. Liverpool came in considerably lower than due but sterling was higher and silver showed a sharp advance. First trades here were 5 to 6 points down in sympathy with the decline in Liverpool, but the market soon rallied on New York's firmer opening. There were also a few trade buying orders.

The market was dull all morning with prices fluctuating within a point or two and without going outside the early range. There were a few trade buying orders but very little hedge-selling and at noon March was trading at 6.14, May at 6.27 and July at 6.39, unchanged to two points down from yesterday's close. Trading was at a snail's pace.

SOCIAL MEETING TONIGHT

A combined social meeting will be held this evening by the Parent-Teacher associations of Hopkins schools.

Vitamin A. It is relatively abundant in green vegetables such as spinach, lettuce, cabbage, tomatoes and carrots; also in butter, egg yolks, cod liver oil, milk and the liver, heart and kidneys of animals. Nature distributed it abundantly and a well balanced diet gives an adequate supply of Vitamin A.

Has Two Vitamins

The next is Vitamin B. The vitamin which was originally known as Vitamin B is now known to contain at least two vitamins, known as F or B-1, and G or B-2. B-1 or F is known as the anti-neuritic vitamin. Its complete absence causes polyneuritis and is associated with berri berri. It is abundant in whole cereal grains, legumes (beans and peas), brewers' yeast, tomatoes, and oranges. In fact, it is the most widely distributed of all the vitamins. The B-2 or G factor is sometimes called P. P. or pellagra preventative, since its absence in the diet is manifested in pellagra. This vitamin is present in animal livers, eggs, milk, yeast, and the legumes. It is claimed that a lack of sufficient vitamin B in the diet will result in loss of appetite, fatigue, nervousness, and constitpation.

Vitamin C is the fourth, someties called the anti-scurvy or anti-scorbutic vitamin. It is less stable than some of the others, heat rapidly destroying it, especially in the presence of air or oxygen. It is abundant in raw cabbage, citrus fruits, tomatoes, lettuce, raw spinach. The absence of these fresh fruits and vegetables has been responsible for the appearance of scurvy among sailors, soldiers, and explorers who, for long periods of time, may not be able to receive fresh fruits and vegetables.

Here's an interesting fact. Cereal grains in the dry state are practically devoid of Vitamin C but, when germination or sprouting takes place, the vitamin is synthesized within the product, and the British Army has upon occasion taken advantage of this fact and required that sprouted lentils be fed to their troops in those districts where fresh fruits and vegetables were unattainable. Children receiving insufficient quantities of Vitamin C will probably manifest the condition by such symptoms as a bleeding at the edge of the gums, perhaps looseness of the teeth, and a tendency to fragility of bones, accompanied by a profound specific anemia.

For the Teeth

Vitamin D is the fifth, the anti-rachitic vitamin. A deficiency of this vitamin in the growing animal results in rickets, poor teeth, and soft bones. The assimilation of calcium and phosphorus for the development of bone depends upon the presence of this vitamin. By the subjection to rays of ultra-violet light, certain food materials which contain a substance called ergosterol will take on Vitamin D properties. The best food sources for your Vitamin D are to be found in butter, egg yolk, and animal livers. It has recently been found that certain canned fish, such as salmon and sardines, are good sources of Vitamin D. You will also get Vitamin D by exposure of your body to sunshine, and artifically produced ultra-violet rays. Cod liver oil, however, is about your best source for both Vitamin A and D, if you feel you have to bolster up a deficiency in either of these, or both.

You may hear of another vitamin called Vitamin E, or the antisterility vitamin. The existence of this vitamin has been disputed by many experts on the subject. It is supposed to influence reproduction and is said to be found in oats, corn, wheat, fresh lettuce and other green leaf materials, and also in most vegetable oils.

The presence of vitamins, as such, is not determined in laboratory test tubes. Their presence and amount in various food products are established through experimentation on animals. People and animals are unable to provide vitamins within their bodies, so it is therefore incumbent upon you, if you would get sufficient quantity, to partake of a well-balanced diet. It has been said that when the importance of vitamins is fully recognized and given due weight in the planning of food supplies there will probably be but rare occasion for the purchase of vitamins in any other form than in that of staple foods. The vitamin-deficiency diseases are somewhat of a rarity in this country, most frequently encountered in the poorer sections of our larger cities where economic conditions perhaps prevent the inclusion of sufficient fresh vegetables in the diet.

They're SAFE on Wards Riversides!

Why? Because every Ward Tire has 15 to 19 layers of cord fabric and rubber. Furthermore . . . It has a non-skid center-traction tread . . . AT EVERY PRICE.

Size 29x4.40-21
$3.53 Each When Bought in Pairs

Your family is safe on Riversides. We have seen to it that even our lowest priced Riverside has 15 layers. 15 to 19 layers of latex treated Cord, special toughened rubber, give real protection. In addition, Riversides are the only tires which at every price have a block tread for quicker stopping. When your brakes lock your wheels, these deep-cut, sharp-edged blocks in the center of the tread fight both a side slip and a forward slide on winter roads.

Riverside Rambler 4-Ply (6 plies under the tread)
