AirSho to take flight

Students, seniors watch practice show

By Audrie Palmer

Permian Basin PBS' Cat in the Hat poses for pictures with students Friday at the Junior AirSho.

With their arms outstretched and raised to the sky, hundreds of sixth-grade students from seven area schools waited as "FiFi," the B-29 bomber, did a flyover Friday during a practice run for this weekend's air show.

It was part of the Junior Aces AirSho, sponsored by the Commemorative Air Force, that allowed students from schools within 60 miles of Midland International Airport to watch a preview alongside the Special Show for Special People.

The program started in 2009, and CAF's Public Relations Director Autumn Hicks said officials hoped more schools would have participated in the festivities this year. Because of budget cuts, she said not Corporate pilot Lance Sommers had asked me earlier this week if I liked roller coasters. Behind my nervous smile, I nodded and said yes.

I remember vividly taking a family vacation to Disney World in Orlando, Fla., when I was 8 years old. I stubbornly was determined not to ride a roller coaster, or anything loosely resembling one. Suddenly, I was standing in front of the 52-foot drop at the Splash Mountain log flume ride; my bony knees quivered, and I begged my parents to go on without me. Suddenly, I was "that" kid, crying under a tree as my dad tried to coax me onto the ride. He undoubtably was trying to build character and courage in his little girl; I saw it as a death sentence. I finally obliged, and ironically, I ended up asking if we could ride it again. I've been a roller coaster girl ever since.

I had no idea what Sommers had in store for me Monday morning when I was scheduled to interview him for one of my "Working for a Living" stories. I had planned to ride the Fina stunt plane Thursday in advance of the Commemorative Air Force's AirSho happening this weekend, but I thought I had a full three days to mentally prepare myself. As Sommers informed me that he planned to give me a ride in the North American SNJ parked at the CAF, I felt the once-forgotten feeling of my legs shaking below me. This ... this was no roller coaster.

OK, I thought, so I've never ridden in any planes besides commercial jets. I can do this.

Sommers explained we might do a few tricks in the air. Surely nothing crazy, right? He assured me we wouldn't pull more than 3 G's, meaning I would feel three times my weight.

I surveyed the plane's exterior as Sommers hopped in the cockpit. Fellow CAF member Brad Bond stood on the wing of the aircraft to help me maneuver — in heels — into my seat. They pulled some straps over my arms, telling me it was my parachute.

Gulp. Parachute?

"Don't worry," Bond said. "If you have to use your parachute, you're

Well blowout injures 4, is plugged late Friday

■ No details on the cause of the blowout that closed State Highway 176 north of Stanton.

By James Cannon
Staff Writer

MARTIN COUNTY — Emergency crews worked into Friday night to plug a well blowout that injured four and closed State Highway 176 on Friday.

Martin County Sheriff John Woodward said the well was plugged at 10:20 p.m., and the highway was expected to reopen by 11 p.m.

All access to the neighboring roads around the the intersection of Farm-to-Market Road 3033 and Highway 176 were blocked Friday night while the Texas Railroad Commission and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration monitored Endeavor Energy Resource's progress in plugging the leak, which started about noon east of Lenorah and north of Stanton. Heavy equipment began arriving at the scene about 2 p.m. in preparation for

Half of those summoned show up for hearings

■ Judges say many embarrassed, defer to new jury service date.

By Audrie Palmer
Staff Writer

About half of the 50 people who were summoned Friday morning to a show cause hearing showed up to testify why they did not appear for jury service last month.

While Friday's hearing was the first of several hearings expected, Judge John Hyde said he believed the hearing went well and that no one was held in contempt, fined or given jail time for missing their original jury service date.

Out of the 750 summoned for service on Sept. 26, 294 residents did not show up for their jury duty, court officials said. Summonses then were issued to a percentage of those people to appear before a panel of three judges — Hyde

HOUSTON

US oil and gas rig count up by 22

The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. climbed by 22 this week to 2,012.

Houston-based drilling product provider Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,070 rigs were exploring for oil and 935 for natural gas. Seven were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week the rig count stood at 1,671.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas gained eight rigs, Oklahoma was up six and Louisiana four. Alaska, Arkansas and Wyoming each increased by two while North Dakota, Pennsylvania and West Virginia were up one apiece.

California declined by three, Colorado by two and New Mexico one.

The rig count peaked at 4,530 in 1981. A low of 488 was recorded in 1999.

Oil workers describe floating for days in Gulf

Two U.S. oil workers who survived floating for nearly four days on a life raft in the Gulf of Mexico after a tropical storm disabled their research vessel say they experienced a nightmarish ordeal in which they saw friends and co-workers slowly die.

Ted Derise Jr. and Jeremy Parfait told the Associated Press on Friday they were pushed to the breaking point but never lost hope they would be rescued.

But the men say they still have nightmares about what happened to them.

The two were among 10 workers who had to abandon their boat in the Bay of Campeche after it was crippled on Sept. 8 by Tropical Storm Nate. Four other workers survived, but four died, including two other Americans.

National Oilwell Varco names Workman to post

Energy company National Oilwell Varco Inc. has named Robert Workman as president of distribution and transmission.

Workman has served as president of distribution services since January 2001. The distribution services and transmission groups will both report to him now, the Houston company said Friday.

Burk Ellison, senior vice president of sales and operations for distribution services, will become president of distribution services.

National Oilwell also announced that Toby Zyroll will take on the role of senior vice president of Ameron Infrastructure Products. He currently serves as managing director for corporate development.

Shares of National Oilwell fell 63 cents to $58.84 in midday trading.

Americans slain in Mexico had visited prison there

Mexican authorities say two U.S. citizens fatally shot in Ciudad Juarez last week had just picked up a released inmate at a prison when assailants opened fire on their SUV.

The Chihuahua state attorney general's office said Friday that 19-year-old Paulo Noe Williams and his mother, 35-year-old Rosa Williams, were among four who died in the Sept. 30 attack.

The U.S. consulate said Rosa Williams was born in Juarez and became a U.S. citizen in Kansas but lived in El Paso, across the border from Juarez. The El Paso Times has reported that her son just graduated from an El Paso high school.

The two were picking up 24-year-old Alberto Nieto Nieto. There was no information on why Nieto had been imprisoned. Nieto's companion, 21-year-old Alma Yesenia Flores, also died.

Woman facing new DWI after crash killed daughter

Authorities say a Houston-area woman is facing a drunken driving charge two years after she was convicted of intoxication manslaughter for an accident that killed her 4-year-old daughter.

Harris County Sheriff's Office spokesman Thomas Gilliland said 25-year-old Elena Kay Fuentes, of Spring, was arrested Wednesday after allegedly backing her car into another vehicle.

Fuentes was jailed without bond Friday. Online jail records did not list an attorney.

Fuentes received a 10-year probated sentence after pleading guilty in the 2008 crash that killed her daughter.

The Houston Chronicle reported a witness told police a speeding SUV was weaving in and out of traffic before the driver lost control. Investigators determined that the child was sitting in the front seat and likely only wearing the lap portion of the seat belt.

IRVING

Commercial Metals to cut almost 1,500 jobs

Commercial Metals Co., which has been hurt by weak construction demand, said Friday it plans to sell or close a number of facilities, leading to the loss of nearly 1,500 jobs.

The Irving company said 1,130 jobs will be lost at a steel pipe manufacturing plant in Croatia, which the company said it plans to either sell or close after it winds down production over the next several months.

The company, which makes, recycles and markets steel and metal products, said it made the decision because it would take too much time for the mill to turn a profit.

The company said it will lay off 350 more employees across its business. It will close five rebar fabricating locations — four in the U.S. and one overseas. Eight construction services locations are either in the process of being sold or have already been closed.

"We understand the impact that these decisions will have on the lives of our employees and our communities, but unfortunately market conditions have necessitated that these actions be taken at this time," the company said in a statement.

1st tenured black professor at Harvard Law dies

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Derrick Bell, a civil rights scholar and writer who was the first tenured black professor at Harvard Law School, has died. He was 80.

Bell died Wednesday night of carcinoid cancer at a Manhattan hospital, his wife, Janet Dewart Bell, said Friday. He'd been diagnosed with the disease a decade ago, she said, but was still teaching at New York University Law School as recently as last week.

The dean at NYU, Richard Revesz, said, "For more than 20 years, the law school community has been profoundly shaped by Derrick's unwavering passion for civil rights and community justice, and his leadership as a scholar, teacher and activist."

Bell was long dissatisfied with the progress of race relations in America despite his own success. He helped establish a field known as critical race theory by urging that U.S. laws be examined for racism embedded within them.

His 1973 casebook, "Race, Racism and American Law," is still in use in law schools in updated editions.

Bell attained several lofty positions in his field but more than once left them in protest.

After graduating from the University of Pittsburgh law school in 1957 — The New York Times reported that he was the only black student — he was hired at the Department of Justice's Civil Rights Division. But he resigned when he was told his membership in the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People was a conflict of interest.

He later worked at the NAACP's legal defense fund in Pittsburgh and Mississippi. He supervised more than 300 school desegregation cases in Mississippi.

In 1969, Bell was recruited by Harvard Law and two years later became its first tenured African-American professor. He left in 1980 to become dean at the University of Oregon Law School, but he left Oregon five years later to protest the school's decision not to hire an Asian-American woman.

Bell returned to Harvard, but in 1990 he took a leave of absence to protest the absence of black women on the law school faculty.

"I cannot continue to urge students to take risks for what they believe if I do not practice my own precepts," he said. He never returned to the school.

Harvard Law dean Martha Minow said Bell "inspired and challenged generations of colleagues and students with imagination, passion, and courage."

In 1998, Harvard hired its first female African-American law school professor, Lani Guinier. She said Bell "set the agenda in many ways for scholarship on race in the academy, not just the legal academy."

Bell wrote two autobiographies and a series of allegorical stories about race. One of them, "The Space Traders," was made into a movie for television.

"He's always been all about the students," Bell's wife said.

"He taught by example, by inspiration, by encouragement," she said.

Albania's last communist leader Alia dies

Associated Press

TIRANA, Albania — Albania's last communist president Ramiz Alia — credited with opening one of the world's most isolationist political systems to democracy — has died. He was 85.

Alia assumed leadership of the communist party in 1985 following the death of his longtime friend, dictator Enver Hoxha.

After a series of massive student protests, he introduced political and economic reforms that paved the way for the country's first free elections in 1991.

Arms dealer known as 'Merchant of Death' dies

Associated Press

HIALEAH, Fla. — International weapons broker Sarkis Soghanalian, who was nicknamed "The Merchant of Death" for supplying arms to dictators in Nicaragua and Iraq, has died. He was 82.

Soghanalian's son, Garo Soghanalian, said his Turkish-born father died of heart failure Wednesday. He was a Lebanese citizen and U.S. resident.

Soghanalian brokered millions of dollars in arms deals to clients including the Christian militia during the Lebanese civil war.

He was sentenced to prison in the early 1990s for conspiring to sell combat helicopters and rocket launchers to Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein during the Iran-Iraq war.

Agencies offered retirement deals to trim budgets

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Some Texas state agencies facing severe budget cuts used financial incentives ranging from $10,000 to $25,000 to entice eligible employees to retire.

Incentives have contributed to more than 5,400 retirements from state agencies this year, almost 900 more than last year, the Employee Retirement System of Texas reported.

The incentives have helped the agencies save millions, according to a report in the Austin American-Statesman.

The Department of Agriculture provided a $12,500 retirement incentive that cost $637,500. The resulting annual savings is $2.5 million.

"Faced with a 40 percent reduction in state appropriations, the Texas Department of Agriculture offered the retirement incentive to assist in meeting the budgetary needs and to provide more flexibility in an agency-wide reorganization," agency spokesman Bryan Black said.

The General Land Office offered $25,000 to people who were eligible to retire at a total cost of $1.3 million to streamline the agency. At the Texas Water Development Board, nine people took a $10,000 retirement package, saving nearly $556,000 a year.

The Legislature quashed more than 5,700 positions, or about 2 percent of the 241,000 jobs in the previous budget, as it cut $15 billion from Texas' 2012-13 budget.

Agencies were given discretion in deciding who had to go and under what circumstances.

Many of the positions were open at the time, allowing them to go unfilled rather than resulting in more layoffs. Some agencies also instituted hiring freezes in anticipation of the cuts.

At least 800 state workers have lost their jobs since the beginning of the year, according to a Statesman survey of state agencies. There is no centralized count of layoffs.

Many of the workers were given one to two months of paid leave. The 440 employees laid off from the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, however, only received their accumulated vacation and overtime, as do all state employees when they leave, spokesman Jason Clark said.

The sudden influx in new retirees and fewer employees contributing to the pension had an impact on the fund's health. Concern about the pension fund is one reason that legislators did not seriously consider a sweeping retirement incentive this time.

Even with the retirement incentive, the Water Development Board laid off 39 employees and gave each of them two months of paid leave.

"We realized the economy is bad out there. It's a difficult time for people to find jobs. We wanted to afford our employees sufficient time to find opportunities out there," said Lisa Glenn, deputy executive administrator at the Water Development Board.

Fort Worth Diocese settles priest abuse suit

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — The Catholic Diocese of Fort Worth has reached a settlement with six women who accused a Roman Catholic priest of sexual abuse while he served at churches in Arlington and Bedford.

The Fort Worth Catholic Diocese was a defendant in the case, along with the Rev. Joseph Tu, also known as Joseph Ngoc Tu Nguyen.

The diocese said the victims asked them not to disclose Thursday's settlement amount.

Bishop Kevin Vann told the women he is "deeply sorry" for any sexual abuse they may have suffered and prays they find healing.

The bishop said he wants the Diocese's child protection policies followed so future tragedies can be prevented.

Tu is accused of abusing the plaintiffs when they were girls or in their late teens. Tu previously denied wrongdoing.

Pregnancy centers sue over sign ordinance

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Four faith-based centers that counsel women with unplanned pregnancies filed lawsuits Thursday claiming Austin's sign ordinance violates their constitutionally protected rights to freedom of speech and religion.

The ordinance, which the City Council passed unanimously last year, requires centers to post signs at their entrance stating they neither offer nor refer clients to abortion or birth control services.

The centers filed two federal lawsuits to try to prevent the city from enforcing the ordinance. Anti-abortion groups are supporting their efforts.

The ordinance "is designed to criminally punish the leadership and volunteer board members of pregnancy centers for no other reason than their moral opposition to abortion," said Pam Cobern, executive director of Austin LifeCare, one of the four plaintiffs.

The center "should be allowed to serve the less fortunate in a manner consistent with their beliefs, without fear of punishment from a city government that has a political disagreement with our message," Cobern told the Austin American-Statesman.

Failure to post the 8 1/2-by-11-inch signs is a Class C misdemeanor punishable by a maximum $450 fine.

A city spokesman said no one has been cited for violating the ordinance since it went into effect in April. He declined to comment on the lawsuit because he said city lawyers still were reviewing it.

However, City Council members have said the law was meant only to clarify the services the centers offer, not penalize them for their views.

NARAL Pro-Choice Texas and other advocacy groups have said the centers try to talk clients out of having abortions and give them misleading information about the procedure.

The centers say they offer free pregnancy tests, adoption counseling, parenting classes and child care supplies to women with unplanned pregnancies and are upfront with clients about the services they offer.

Although Austin LifeCare said it has reluctantly posted the signs, the three others — Austin Pregnancy Resource Center, South Austin Pregnancy Resource Center and the Gabriel Project Life Center run by Catholic Charities of Central Texas — have not. The centers say doing so would conflict with their Christian beliefs.

While none of the centers provide abortions or refer clients to agencies that do, three of the four say they do refer married clients to doctors for birth control. None of them give single clients birth control referrals.

Southwest Airlines sees rise in traffic

Associated Press

DALLAS — Southwest Airlines Co. said Friday that its number of paying passengers increased at a faster clip than it expanded its capacity in September, making planes more full in a traditionally weak month for air travel.

The company flew paying passengers 7.9 billion miles last month, up 6.4 percent from a year earlier.

Capacity, or the number of available seats, rose 3.2 percent.

Half of Texas doctors might quit Medicare if it's cut

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — A new Texas Medical Association survey finds that half of Texas physicians would consider dropping the Medicare program if Congress allows the deep cuts planned in reimbursement payments.

Association President Dr. Bruce Malone said that would mean more elderly people would lose their doctor and have a harder time finding a new one.

The group wants federal lawmakers to fix the payment formula so it doesn't end up penalizing doctors financially.

Today in history

Today is Saturday, Oct. 8, the 281st day of 2011. There are 84 days left in the year.

Today's highlight:

On Oct. 8, 1871, the Great Chicago Fire erupted; fires also broke out in Peshtigo, Wis., and in several communities in Michigan.

On this date:

In 1956, Don Larsen pitched the only perfect game in a World Series to date as the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in Game 5, 2-0.

Ten years ago: Radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh told listeners he had become virtually deaf. (Limbaugh later had an electronic device implanted in his skull that restored much of his hearing.)

One year ago: Imprisoned Chinese dissident Liu Xiaobo won the 2010 Nobel Peace Prize, prompting a furious response from China.

Today's Birthdays: Comedian Chevy Chase is 68. Actress Sigourney Weaver is 62. Actor-screenwriter Matt Damon is 41.

AIRSHO

as many students came to the show as program officials had hoped.

The show gave students a chance to see the air performances as the pilots practiced their maneuvers and techniques in preparation for the opening of this weekend's AirSho. Students also had the opportunity to view some of the displays, including a Tuskegee airmen documentary.

It wasn't only students who got a preview of the show Friday morning. Residents of Manor Park, men and women from the Big Spring Veterans Affairs Hospital, and local residents who take care of the needs of elderly people also were given the chance to see what will be taking to the sky during the next two days.

"It's typical for air shows to have a practice show, but not all are open to the public," Hicks said. "We're happy to be able to do this for the community."

Despite a good chance of rain today and Sunday, officials said the show is expected to go on. Some of the flyovers and air performances may be delayed, but weather isn't expected to slow down the activities, Hicks said.

Gates will open at 8:30 a.m. today with a parade starting at 11:30 a.m. The grand marshals for today's parade are Midland Mayor Wes Perry and Odessa Mayor Larry Melton. The national anthem then will lead into the start of the flyovers and performances at noon.

The "Red, White and Loud" concert with Aaron Tippin will begin at 5 p.m. today at the main hangar ramp.

While air shows across the country have been making headlines recently because of accidents and fatalities, Hicks said officials continue to stress that safety is a top priority for this year's show, the 20th AirSho celebration.

"It's really important to us to be safe here," she said.

Friday's practice show also gave volunteers and staff a chance to practice for what will occur during the next two days, and officials said the opportunity helped them prepare for the thousands of people expected to attend.

"We're looking forward to a great weekend, and by (this) morning, it should all be in place. Things are coming together nicely," Hicks said.

FLYING

From 1A

having a really bad day."

Good to know.

Off we went in the "fat ballerina."

"It's graceful but it's big," Sommers had said, laughing. His voice in my headset reassured me.

First, we tried a barrel roll, which is a combination of a loop and roll. Sommers pulled up the nose of the plane, and we spiraled down gracefully. We moved onto loops, where I was able to see the horizon flip upside down as I looked out toward the wing. When the plane was completely upside down, I looked above me to see the ground, which was probably my favorite part. Next up was a full Cuban eight, which follows the path of a figure eight symbol on its side. On our way back to the runway, we performed a show pass, which was sort of the plane's way of posing for a picture.

The stunts left me with a killer headache, and as I read up on the tricks later, it was clear the gravitational force had pushed the blood downward through my body, away from my head. I kept in mind to breathe and flex my legs for the ride later that week.

I hit up my Facebook friends for more advice that might help me on my second go-around. It ranged from the helpful "don't close your eyes" to the more alarming "tell your friends and family you love them." Our online editor, John Boyd, made a fake Facebook event for a dinner in memory of Charles "Scoop" McAphrey, a fictitious former reporter at the newspaper who supposedly died in a tragic stunt plane-related accident. It was worth a chuckle, but it didn't exactly give me a boost in confidence.

When Thursday arrived, I knew I'd be more prepared. I had one mission: not to lose my lunch.

I looked in my medicine cabinet that morning for anything that might be helpful to me. I found one last Dramamine. Bingo. Expiration date: June 2010. Oh well.

I dusted off my trusty old Sea-Bands, which are wristbands that apply continuous pressure on the insides of your wrists to prevent travel sickness. I still didn't know for certain that they work, but I was taking all the help I could get.

Lastly, I made sure to eat something light. Skipping a meal, I've been told, actually would have made me feel sicker.

Luckily, it seemed pilot Jan Collmer had the same goal of not having someone lose their lunch in his plane, even though I had a Ziploc bag stuffed securely under my seat. I boarded the Fina Extra 300L stunt plane while wearing my parachute, and I felt more at ease as I was strapped in. Collmer has been one of the CAF's featured aerobatic performers at the AirSho for years, and he told me he's given rides to about 3,000 people. The retired lieutenant commander began his career as a Navy fighter pilot in 1954 and has been performing in air shows since 1980.

Collmer and I had a great time joking around up in the air, so I laughed when he told me to take the control stick of the plane. That's when the plane started descending and Collmer said, "No, really; take it in your hand." Oh, OK. I tried to pull up the nose as he asked, and the plane jerked back to attention. The small plane was extremely sensitive to the touch, so I found myself barely steering with my fingers while clenching the control with a hand-numbing grip.

I'd be lying if I said I remembered all of the names of the stunts Collmer led us through, but I would describe most of them by saying "we did a loopty-loop and then a flip-thingy." It felt like Collmer pulled a little harder than Sommers, and I could feel the gravitational force pull on my eyelids and face.

The most exciting stunt was the hammerhead, which is like a cartwheel in the air. This maneuver allowed us to see from multiple angles the smoke the plane produced, which is generated by purposely injecting oil into the hot engine exhaust. It was a neat way to have a reference point while we were performing stunts. Collmer told me later that he was grounded during stunt plane rides in Oklahoma on Sept. 11, 2001, because the smoke created such a commotion.

After about 10 minutes of tricks, Collmer said it was time to head back.

"Already?" I chirped through the semi-functioning microphone pressed against my lips. He asked if I wanted to do more tricks; I was curious as to what else was up his sleeve.

"Well, do you feel 100 percent?" he asked.

I paused. "I feel ... 90 percent," I said.

With that, we were headed back. It was a good choice on Collmer's part because the ride back was the most difficult part to stomach. The wind at that time was coming out of the south at about 24 mph, with gusts up to 35 mph. The little plane dipped and scooted in the air with each push from Mother Nature.

"It's always too windy, or too rainy, or too hot; it's always something," Collmer said.

Despite the winds pushing us around, we had a smooth landing back at Midland Airpark. A "good" landing, Collmer said, is one where everyone makes it back safely. A "great" landing is when you can still use your equipment the next day.

"We tricked death again," he said with a smile.

I feel incredibly lucky to have had two once-in-a-lifetime experiences this week. On the other hand, I might be OK not having another one anytime soon.

BLOWOUT

the oil company to begin work to plug the blowout.

A team of four Endeavor workers were servicing the well when the head blew off. One worker was airlifted to a nearby hospital for non-life-threatening injuries, and the other three were transported to the Midland Memorial Hospital, Martin County Sheriff John Woodward said.

Because there were injuries, primary investigation of the accident is under OSHA's domain, said Ramona Nye, spokesperson for the Texas Railroad Commission. No information had been released, as of Friday, as to the severity of the workers' injuries.

There were no flames surrounding the well blowout Friday afternoon at the east roadblock at the intersection of SH 176 and FM 3033. A thick cloud of white smoke, which emergency crews on scene said was likely poisonous because it contained hydrogen sulfide gas, could be seen floating northbound across SH 176. Winds carried the thick, white cloud at sustained speeds of 20 mph with gusts as high as 31 mph, according to the National Weather Service office in Stanton.

The "well killing crew" arrived about 7 p.m. with equipment designed to depressurize the well and cap it.

The Railroad Commission had two inspectors on-site monitoring the progress because the blowout caused a breach in Endeavor's compliance with the commission's rules, Nye said. The inspectors also were in charge of monitoring the oil company's compliance with health, environment and safety standards as it plugged the well.

Endeavor corporate officials said they were unable to comment on the incident because the legal team was out of the office.

Nye added her agency also will be responsible for investigating the cause of the accident to see if any workplace violations led to the accident.

OSHA declined to comment. The investigation continues.

and county court judges Marvin L. Moore and K. Kyle Peeler — and plead their case as to why they failed to report.

Most of those summoned, Hyde said, were embarrassed and told the judges that they had simply overlooked it. A few were excused and disqualified from their service because they could not speak English, and some were exempted because they were full-time students or had medical issues.

The majority of those who came were re-assigned to future jury service dates, and many opted to serve on Dec. 5, court staff said.

For those who did not show up Friday, a second-round of summons will be sent out for a court hearing on Oct. 28 where they could be found in contempt of court and possibly fined.

"It's not our intention to punish anyone, but our obligation is to enforce what the constitution requires," Hyde said. "It isn't fair to those that do show up to put the burden all on them. Many people who show up have busy schedules, but no one says a word or complains. It shouldn't be on their shoulders only, but it's the duty of everyone to participate."

Midland County judges say the show cause hearings will continue. Those who missed their jury service this past week will be summoned before a three-judge panel on Oct. 17.

Several trials also are scheduled this upcoming week at the Midland County Courthouse, and another 750 people in Midland have been summoned for Monday.

Hyde said the judges are hoping they will have sufficient numbers next week to fill those panels and keep the trials on track.

"We know that it's an inconvenience, but it's a very important part for our system of liberty," he said of jury service. "But to protect that liberty, we must have citizen jurors. It's vital to our democracy and we have to enforce it."

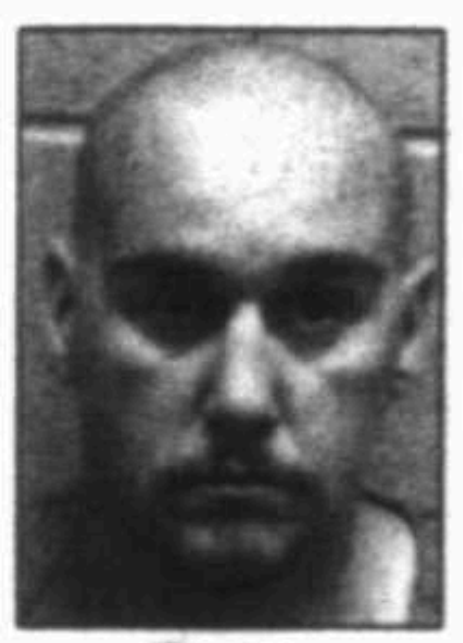
Midland man allegedly uses toy gun in carjacking

By James Cannon
Staff Writer

A Midland man was arrested early Thursday morning after allegedly carjacking a vehicle with a plastic gun and a gray ski mask.



Ryan

Robert Eugene Ryan, 24, is being held on a $100,000 bond on a first-degree felony charge of aggravated robbery.

Midland police responded to an armed robbery on the 5300 block of West Loop 250 late Wednesday night. The alleged victim told police a man, later identified as Ryan, produced a black handgun and pulled him out of his vehicle. The man said Ryan left the scene heading south on Loop 250 in his 2007 red Nissan Titan, according to Ryan's arrest report.

A city police officer spotted a truck matching the description of the stolen vehicle near the 1200 block of East Front Street sometime after the robbery occurred. After catching up to the vehicle, he confirmed the license plates were a match and waited for backup before performing a felony traffic stop, the report read.

When officers stopped the truck in the 400 block of Rhode Island Avenue, they encountered Ryan and another man, who was not involved in the robbery, according to the report.

During a search of the truck, investigators discovered a plastic handgun in the center console and a ski mask under the driver's seat. The victim later positively identified Ryan as the carjacker, the report read.

Ryan was transported to the Midland County Central Detention Center about 3 a.m. Thursday. If convicted of the first-degree felony charge, Ryan could face between five and 99 years in prison.

Opponents seek hearing on water sale

Associated Press

BAY CITY — A Texas water agency has taken no action on a private landowner's request to be able to sell groundwater to a proposed coal-fired power plant.

The Coastal Plains Groundwater Conservation District received two applications Friday for a contested hearing on the request by landowner Arthur Milberger to sell groundwater to the White Stallion Energy Center. The seven-member board decided it will hire an examiner to determine whether either of the two applicants — another landowner and the No Coal Coalition — has standing in the matter.

The board's decision means voting on Milberger's request will be delayed.

Meanwhile, the board adopted a temporary moratorium on any additional permit requests.

White Stallion announced Thursday it would use a dry cooling system at the plant, significantly decreasing water use. The company had been unable to find a supplier for the trillions of gallons of water it needed for the plant.

Ranchers, farmers and other residents have opposed plans to build the plant in the rural, pristine area, arguing there was not enough water to support the facility and the community's agricultural needs.

Many ranchers and farmers in the area fear they may not have enough water next year for their fields and livestock.

Colorado lawmaker pleads no contest in Texas crash

Associated Press

AMARILLO — A Colorado state senator involved in a crash that killed a woman in the Texas Panhandle pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor charge of driving on the wrong side of the road and paid a $200 fine.

Brianna Gomez was pregnant at the time of the crash and her son was delivered in emergency surgery before she died.

Sen. Suzanne Williams paid the fine and $68 in court costs, Hartley County Attorney Shane Turner said Thursday.

The Amarillo Globe-News reported that Texas law allowed for the dismissal of two seat-belt citations against Williams, a staunch supporter in the Colorado Legislature of seat belt laws.

Last December, Williams' SUV crossed the center line of a highway and struck a vehicle carrying the 30-year-old Gomez.

A Texas grand jury declined to indict Williams on criminal charges.

Williams did not immediately return a phone call seeking comment. Her Texas attorney Joe Marr Wilson said she instructed him not to comment.

Her Colorado attorney, David Lane, said the tragedy was overwhelming and he was glad the case was resolved.

Outdoor watering banned in some Texas cities

Associated Press

GEORGETOWN — More severe water restrictions have been issued for several Central Texas cities.

Round Rock and Georgetown have banned all outdoor watering, including yards, athletic fields and washing cars:

That's because of a problem with a 26-mile pipeline that allows the Brazos River Authority to operate two reservoirs as one system.

Lake Georgetown and Stillhouse Hollow Lake were already low because of the severe drought.

Officials said Lake Georgetown water levels will keep dropping if usage isn't reduced, because the pipeline will be out of service for at least two weeks.

The Brazos River Authority's emergency stage 3 drought declaration issued Friday also affects the Brushy Creek and Chisholm Trail utility districts.

Senator files request for info on refinery

Associated Press

FORT WORTH — A state senator has filed a legislative inquiry into a tax refund request by a San Antonio-based refinery company.

Sen. Wendy Davis, D-Fort Worth, said Friday she has filed a legislative request for documents, emails and other evidence related to Valero Energy Corp.'s 2007 request for a tax exemption.

Valero argues that it qualifies for a tax exemption under an amendment to the Texas Constitution that says industrial plants don't have to pay taxes on equipment purchased to reduce on-site pollution.

US asks court to halt Alabama's immigration law

Associated Press

ATLANTA — The federal government asked an appeals court Friday to stop Alabama officials from enforcing a strict immigration law that has already driven Hispanic students from public schools and migrant workers from towns, warning that it opens the door to discrimination against even legal residents.

The Department of Justice's filing to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals also said the law, considered by many to be the most stringent immigration measure in the country, could cause considerable fallout as immigrants flee to other states or their native countries.

A coalition of advocacy groups also filed a separate appeal Friday that claims the law has thrown Alabama into "chaos" and left some Hispanics too afraid to go to their jobs and reluctant to send their kids to school.

The court signaled in an order Friday that it wouldn't decide whether to halt the law until it reviews more arguments from both sides next week. The state must file a brief by Tuesday, and the government must respond by Wednesday. After that, the court could decide whether to intervene by issuing a preliminary injunction.

Alabama Gov. Robert Bentley said he intends to continue enforcing the hotly disputed law, which allows authorities to detain people suspected of being in the country illegally and lets officials check the immigration status of students in public schools.

Those measures took effect last week after a federal judge upheld them, and they help make the Alabama law stricter than similar laws enacted in Arizona, Utah, Indiana and Georgia. Federal judges in those states have blocked all or parts of those measures.

Justice Department attorneys outlined several problems they have with the Alabama overhaul.

They worry the law is likely to expose legal residents "to new difficulties in routine dealings" and could force federal authorities to deal with low-risk immigrants rather than the most dangerous criminals. And, they say, the attempt to drive illegal immigrants "off the grid" could disrupt both diplomatic relationships and national policy.

"Other states and their citizens are poorly served by the Alabama policy, which seeks to drive aliens from Alabama rather than achieve cooperation with the federal government to resolve a national problem," the filing said.

Immigration has become a hot-button issue in Alabama over the past decade as the state's Hispanic population has grown by 145 percent to about 185,600. U.S. Census figures show the group represents about 4 percent of the state population, but some counties in north Alabama have large Spanish-speaking communities and schools where most of the students are Hispanic.

State Republicans have long sought to clamp down on illegal immigration and passed the law earlier this year after gaining control of the Legislature for the first time since Reconstruction. Bentley soon signed the measure, saying it was crucial to protect the jobs of legal residents amid the tough economy.

Alabama House Speaker Mike Hubbard said the state was forced to act because the federal government ignored its responsibility to enforce immigration law.

"In Alabama we believe in obedience to law because it promotes fairness and protects the rights of everybody," said Hubbard, a Republican. "That's why instead of just talking about it, we took action to ensure nobody is allowed to cheat the system and ignore our laws."

The measure has had an immediate impact.

Education officials say scores of immigrant families have withdrawn their children from classes or kept them home from school. Some towns and urban areas have also reported a sudden exodus of Hispanics, some of whom told officials they planned to leave the state to avoid trouble with the law.

To cope with the labor shortage, Alabama agriculture commissioner John McMillan suggested Friday that farmers should consider hiring the 2,300 or so inmates in the state's work-release program.

U.S. District Judge Sharon Blackburn last month blocked some of the strictest portions of the crackdown, including a part that forbids drivers from stopping along a road to hire temporary workers, a ban on businesses from receiving tax deductions for wages paid to illegal workers and a provision that makes it a crime for an illegal immigrant to solicit work.

But the judge let other portions of the law stand, asserting that several groups failed to show they met the legal standards to block the law. That coalition, which filed a separate lawsuit, filed its appeal late Friday.

Judge may hold Edwards aide in contempt

Associated Press

RALEIGH, N.C. — A North Carolina judge is considering whether to hold a former aide to John Edwards in contempt in the legal fight over a purported sex tape involving the ex-U.S. senator and presidential candidate.

Superior Court Judge Michael R. Morgan signed an order Thursday finding probable cause for criminal contempt charges against Andrew Young and his wife, Cheri Young, as well as the couple's lawyers.

The Youngs and their lawyers may have violated a protective order by giving prosecutors confidential documents, including sealed depositions, from a lawsuit that Rielle Hunter filed against them, according to the order. Morgan has scheduled a hearing for Nov. 7.

The Youngs' attorney said Friday they were ordered by a federal judge to hand over the materials from the state civil case to prosecutors pursuing campaign finance charges against Edwards.

David C. Pishko, one of the lawyers defending the Youngs, said a sealed order issued by Chief U.S. District Court Judge Louise W. Flanagan during the federal investigation of Edwards directed the Youngs to turn over the documents and not to discuss the issue with anyone other than Superior Court Judge Carl R. Fox, who was then overseeing the lawsuit.

Embattled NM mayor won't run for Congress

Associated Press

LAS CRUCES, N.M. — A New Mexico mayor who admitted he was drunk when he signed contracts committing his city to $1 million in work has abandoned his plan to run for Congress.

The Albuquerque Journal reported Sunland Park Mayor Martin Resendiz made his decision in recent weeks based on recent bad publicity.

The former El Paso police officer and Sunland Park municipal judge has been mayor of the border town since 2008. Resendiz planned to seek the Democratic nomination to challenge Rep. Steve Pearce.

In August, it was reported that Resendiz admitted in a 2010 deposition for a lawsuit against the city that he signed contracts for work with an architectural design firm after drinking with company executives for several hours.

Perry backer: Romney in a 'cult,' not a Christian

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The pastor who introduced Gov. Rick Perry at a conservative gathering Friday said rival presidential candidate Mitt Romney is not a Christian and is in a cult because he is a Mormon.

Robert Jeffress, senior pastor at First Baptist Church in Dallas, endorsed Perry at the Values Voters Summit, introducing him as "a proven leader, a true conservative, and a committed follower of Christ."

After his remarks, Jeffress told reporters that Perry's religion is different from Romney's.

"Rick Perry's a Christian. He's an evangelical Christian, a follower of Jesus Christ," Jeffress said. "Mitt Romney's a good moral person, but he's not a Christian. Mormonism is not Christianity. It has always been considered a cult by the mainstream of Christianity."

Romney is a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, whose members are commonly called Mormons.

Perry's campaign said the Texas governor disagrees with Jeffress.

"The governor does not believe Mormonism is a cult," said spokesman Mark Miner.

Perry's campaign said Values Voters Summit organizers, not the campaign, chose Jeffress to introduce the Texas governor. Perry's campaign did not immediately respond to inquiries about whether the governor had agreed to have Jeffress introduce him.

Jeffress had made similar comments about Romney before, during the former Massachusetts governor's first presidential run in 2008.

"Mitt Romney is a Mormon, and don't let anybody tell you otherwise. Even though he talks about Jesus as his lord and savior, he is not a Christian," Jeffress said in a 2007 sermon. "Mormonism is not Christianity. Mormonism is a cult. And just because somebody talks about Jesus does not make them a believer."

In that sermon, Jeffress said he was frustrated that some religious leaders had backed Romney anyway, "What really distresses me is some of my ministerial friends, and even leaders in our convention, say, 'Well, he talks about Jesus, we talk about Jesus, what's the big deal?' It is a big deal."

Congress to vote on trade bills next week

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congress is set to approve free trade agreements with South Korea, Colombia and Panama next week.

The House of Representatives Rules Committee has voted on procedures for taking up the long-delayed agreements, the last step before they go to the House floor.

The House is expected to begin the debate on the three bills, along with legislation to help workers displaced by foreign competition, next Tuesday, and finish action by as early as Wednesday. The agreements are expected to pass by comfortable margins.

The Senate Finance Committee takes up the trade bills on Tuesday, and Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid said the Senate would vote on the bills Wednesday.

The trade bills were signed during the Bush administration, but the Obama administration held them up for further negotiations.

Fortunes down, Bachmann looks to evangelical vote

Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Minn. — Michele Bachmann surged into the Republican presidential race by preaching tea party fiscal conservatism. Now, as she struggles to remain relevant, the Minnesota congresswoman is trying to rally the evangelical voters who have powered most of her political career.

"Don't settle," has become Bachmann's pitch as she tells Christian conservatives they shouldn't accept a Republican nominee who isn't fully dedicated to their priorities.

Bachmann reached the high point of her campaign seven weeks ago when she won a test vote of Iowa Republicans. But as Gov. Rick Perry entered the race, Bachmann dropped in polls, replaced her top campaign staff and struggled to raise money. And even as Republicans have grown wary of Perry, polls show that it's businessman Herman Cain who's rising from Perry's slide — not Bachmann.

As she looks for a political lifeline, Bachmann has retooled her message to focus intensely on energizing conservative Christian voters, who traditionally have a heavy influence in the early voting states of Iowa and South Carolina. Bachmann's campaign still views tea party support as integral to her success, and she still talks about fiscal issues, but she's also returned to speaking in more overtly religious terms.

"It was really pretty intimate and quite personal," said the Rev. George Grant, the chancellor at New College Franklin, a Christian college in Franklin, Tenn., after hearing Bachmann speak to about 200 evangelical pastors and faith leaders gathered near Nashville.

Grant said he arrived at the speech uncommitted to a candidate but left much likelier to support Bachmann. "She was speaking to a lot of like-minded folks and she was using their language," he said.

On Thursday, Bachmann's congressional office announced she would sponsor a bill in Congress that seemed aimed directly at evangelical voters. The "Heartbeat Informed Consent Act" would require doctors who perform abortions to show the mother an ultrasound image of the baby's heartbeat before performing the procedure.

Bachmann's campaign is looking for "pastor chairmen" in all 99 Iowa counties, each charged with building support not just among churchgoers but with other ministers and church lay leaders. Similar organizing is under way in South Carolina and Florida.

"I think we're building toward having a more comprehensive evangelical outreach in Iowa than anyone's ever had before, with the possible exception of when Pat Robertson ran," said Bob Heckman, a Bachmann consultant and GOP presidential campaign veteran.

Heckman said fiscal conservatives remain important to Bachmann's campaign, which is also looking for 99 tea-party chairmen in Iowa. Still, there is no question that Bachmann is particularly well-suited to refocus her efforts on reaching Christian conservatives: She distinguished herself in Minnesota as a politician who didn't merely align herself with the religious right, but rather rose from the heart of the movement.

"Don't settle when it comes to your relationship with Jesus Christ," Bachmann recently told an audience at Liberty University, the Virginia Christian college founded by televangelist Jerry Falwell. "He is the lord of the universe, the master, the creator, the alpha and the omega, the beginning and the end."

Bachmann repeated that theme— "don't settle" — and urged evangelicals not to choose a nominee who has strayed from their principles.

It's a shift from Bachmann's earlier emphasis on spending restraint and the federal government's overreach.

Conoco names new leaders

Associated Press

After announcing plans in July to split in two, ConocoPhillips on Friday named the executives who will head the two standalone companies created by the move.

Leading the Houston-based oil and gas exploration and production company that will remain after the oil giant spins off its refining arm will be Ryan M. Lance, ConocoPhillips' current senior vice president of international exploration and production.

Greg C. Garland, senior vice president of Americas exploration and production, will become chairman and CEO of the new independent oil refining company.

The two executives take over in the second quarter of 2012, when the separation is expected to be completed. At that point, ConocoPhillips' current Chairman and CEO Jim Mulva will retire, the company said.

Economy adds 103,000 jobs, but it's not enough

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The jobs crisis isn't getting worse. But it isn't getting much better, either.

The economy added just enough jobs last month to ease fears of a new recession. But hiring is still too weak to bring down unemployment, which has been stuck at about 9 percent for more than two years.

The nation added 103,000 jobs in September, an improvement from the month before, the Labor Department said Friday. But the total includes 45,000 Verizon workers who were rehired after going on strike and were counted as job gains.

Even counting those workers, the job gains weren't enough to get the economy going. It takes about 125,000 jobs a month just to keep up with population growth. For September, the unemployment rate stayed stuck at 9.1 percent.

"Well, the sky is not falling just yet," Joel Naroff, chief economist at Naroff Economic Advisors, said in a note to clients. But there was nothing great about the report, he added. "It's incredible how low our sights have been set."

On one hand, the unemployment report was encouraging for economists. Some of them had feared the nation would lose jobs in September, raising the risk of a painful second recession.

But everyday Americans can't take much solace from it, either. The Great Recession has been over for almost two and a half years, and while corporate profits and the stock market have bounced back in that time, unemployment is still high.

There are 14 million people counted as unemployed in the United States. An additional 9.3 million are working part time and would rather work full time. And 2.5 million more have simply given up looking for a job.

The Labor Department said the economy added more jobs than first estimated in July and August. The government's first reading had said the economy added zero jobs in August.

While the report was clearly better than feared, it also showed the economy is not gaining much momentum, said Tom Porcelli, chief U.S. economist at RBC Capital Markets.

"It moves you away from the ledge," he said.

It was also discouraging news for President Barack Obama, who will almost certainly have to wage his 2012 campaign under the highest unemployment of any president running for re-election since World War II.

Gene Sperling, a White House economic adviser, said the administration was "slightly comforted" that the jobs figure came in better than expected. But he said it was not good enough.

Obama, adopting a combative tone as he waits for the Republicans to settle on a nominee to oppose him, has challenged Congress to get behind his $447 billion jobs bill or risk being run out of Washington.

The Obama plan aims to jolt the economy by cutting taxes and increasing spending on schools, roads and other public projects.. He has proposed paying for it in part by raising taxes on the wealthy and corporations.

The report initially sent the stock market higher. Stock prices later fell after a credit rating agency downgraded Italy and Spain, adding to concern about Europe's debt crisis. The Dow Jones industrial average was flat in afternoon trading.

Jackman's 'Real Steel' is scrap metal

By David Germain
AP Movie Writer

Associated Press

In this image released by Disney/DreamWorks II, Hugh Jackman, left, and Dakota Goyo are shown in a scene from "Real Steel."

"Real Steel" dresses up a bad idea — robots boxing — with all the computer effects and heavy-metal action that Hollywood can buy. But that doesn't cover up the fact that it's a bad idea. Really bad.

And "Real Steel" is a really bad movie, with some embarrassingly awful moments for Hugh Jackman, whose silly Wolverine whiskers in the "X-Men" flicks seem quite distinguished compared to the outlandish trappings here.

A horribly predictable mash-up of "Rocky," "The Champ" and Rock 'Em Sock 'Em Robots, "Real Steel" puts director Shawn Levy (the "Night at the Museum" movies) in contention with fellow robot handler Michael Bay for the title of worst blockbuster filmmaker in show business.

With a team of executive producers that includes Steven Spielberg and Robert Zemeckis, Levy has all the resources a director could want. It all goes toward punishing noise and machine mayhem, the fight scenes stitched together by the humdrum drama of an annoying deadbeat dad connecting with his annoying young son.

Jackman's Charlie Kenton is an ex-boxer scraping by in the near future as a promoter of brawling robots, which have taken over the sport from human fighters. Charlie's on the seedy side of boxing, his secondhand 'bots trading punches at fairgrounds and other unsanctioned venues while the big boys duke it out in televised league fights at huge arenas.

A sleazebag who's built a life on skipping out on his debts and responsibilities, Charlie suddenly finds himself on the road with his 11-year-old son, Max (Dakota Goyo), after the boy's mother dies.

Short on cash and needing a new robot, Charlie heads to the junkyard to pilfer parts so he can piece together a new fighter. There, Max stumbles on Atom, an outdated sparring robot that turns out to be a diamond in the rough, a scrappy machine that becomes a sensation on the fight circuit.

From there, the drama as developed by screenwriter John Gatins and two others who share story credit goes just where you expect it to, without a ripple of surprise or originality. Father and son squawk and fight, find common ground and gradually make their way toward becoming a family, while Atom gets an underdog shot against the world champion.

It's pretty nauseating, though not as nauseating as some of the images of Jackman shadow boxing outside the ring during the climactic match. He looks quite the fool doing it, capping an uneven performance in which Jackman generally is out-acted by the robots. Jackman is overly eager at the start to show how slimy Charlie is, and that makes the guy's abrupt transformation into father-of-the-year material all the more unconvincing.

Goyo overdoes it, too, his earnestness growing tiresome and eventually cloying by the time Max becomes a ringside idol himself for his dance routines alongside Atom.

The rest of the cast is thrown in as spare parts: Evangeline Lilly as a robot mechanic and Charlie's sometime love interest; Anthony Mackie as a bookie and fight organizer; Hope Davis as an aunt aiming to adopt Max; and Kevin Durand as a rival fight promoter.

"Real Steel," a DreamWorks release distributed by Disney, is rated PG-13 for some violence, intense action and brief language. Running time: 127 minutes. One and a half stars out of four.

"The Ides of March" — When powerful people amass their armies and go to battle in a tight political race, even the most fervent political junkies may find their faith tested, if not obliterated. It is an ugly, cynical business, full of ambitious people who will do whatever they must to survive. This is the not-so-shocking point of the latest film George Clooney has directed, based on the 2008 play "Farragut North." It's meaty and weighty and relevant, but it doesn't tell us much that we didn't already know, or at least suspect, about the people we place our trust in come election time. And it features a major and distracting twist that undermines all the serious-mindedness that came before it.

Abilene Cooper hands Lee first loss

By Jordan Mason
Sports Writer

ABILENE — Abilene Cooper scored on its first three possessions to grab an early lead that even a late Lee push in the second half wasn't able to overcome as the Rebels dropped their first game of the season in a 24-14 loss in the 3-5A district opener.

Cougars	24
Rebels	14

Cooper scored two touchdowns and a field goal on its first three drives to give Lee its biggest deficit of the season heading into halftime down 17-0.

"They did a good job up front at keeping us off balance, hurt us with some screen game early," Lee coach James Morton said. "(On the) flip side, they've might've got off hot, but you've got to respond, and we didn't respond."

Lee (5-1, 0-1) dominated time of possession in non-district, but it was Cooper (4-2, 1-0) controlling the clock early as quarterback Clayton Nicholas started the game 7 of 8, calmly dropping passes underneath the Lee coverage as Cooper marched down the field.

The result was a methodical 80-yard drive to start the game, which culminated in Nicholas sneaking across the goal line on fourth-and-goal for a one-yard score with 4:56 left in the first.

"The first drive of the game was amazing," Cooper head coach Todd Moebes said. "That's a great confidence booster for our offense and really for our whole football team when we can take a ball 80 yards and still be able to execute our offense and not limit ourselves."

When Lee finally got the ball, its first drive lasted five plays, two of which resulted in negative

Panthers disrupt Bulldogs' title defense with win

By Jonathan Hull
Sports Writer

Slow starts and come-from-behind victories were a characteristic of Midland High throughout the non-district portion of the schedule. However, it's a trait Bulldogs coach Craig Yenzer would love to see the team be done with.

Panthers	28
Bulldogs	26

Odessa Permian jumped on the Bulldogs early Friday, building a quick two-touchdown lead and then held on for a 28-26 victory in the District 3-5A opener for both teams at Grande Communications Stadium. It's the Bulldogs' first loss of the season and puts a damper on their back-to-back 3-5A title hopes for now.

"I'm not bragging, but we're too strong of a team to fall behind like that," Bulldogs senior receiver Donavon Lee said. "It took the whole game for us to finally get on track. We've got to play through all of the tough things and play with some heart."

Permian (4-2, 1-0 in District 3-5A) came out of the gates with a fast-paced no-huddle offense that seemed to have the Midland High (5-1, 0-1) defense reeling. The Panthers had back-to-back scoring drives of 15 and 13 plays, respectively, and ended the opening quarter with a 14-0 advantage. The Bulldogs ran a mere six plays in the first period and didn't record their first first down until early in the second quarter.

"You can't start out games like that," MHS coach Craig Yenzer said. "Right now, I'm puzzled at how to fix our first quarter. We've gotten in this bad habit of getting back on our heels to start the game. It's hard to come back against anyone when you're falling behind like that."

Even with the bad start, the Bulldogs still had a chance to tie the Panthers at the end. MHS was down 28-20 with 1:51 to play and took over at the Permian 42-yard line after a Panthers punt got caught up in a strong wind

Whigham scores twice as Mustangs win in rout

By Tom Curtis
MRT Correspondent

NORTH RICHLAND HILLS — After a slow start, Christian Whigham rushed for 205 yards and two touchdowns to lead Midland Christian to a shutout over previously unbeaten Fort Worth Christian, 37-0, in the TAPPS Division II, District 1 opener.

Whigham scored his two touchdowns in the final three minutes of the first half to stake the Mustangs (4-2, 1-0) to a 12-0 lead.

The Midland Christian defense held Fort Worth Christian (5-1, 0-1) to 129 yards of offense and seven first downs. Of that, the Cardinals gained only 33 yards and one first down in the second half.

Tanner Dobbs also rushed for a pair of second half touchdowns.

Sophomore quarterback Mason McClendon was 14 of 23 passing for 165 yards.

On Whigham's first touchdown, the junior ran up the middle 4 yards after almost being tripped up in the backfield. It climaxed an 11-play, 62-yard drive.

The second score came with just over 30 seconds left on 4th-and-two. Again Whigham ran up the middle to the left of center as linemen began providing gaping holes. He continued to his left to complete the 25-yard scoring play for a 12-0 lead. The scoring drive was set up by an interception on a tipped pass. A diving Landon Breeding made the pickoff at the Fort Worth Christian 49 with about 1:30 remaining before intermission. Six plays later, Whigham scored.

Seminole flies past Greenwood in district opener

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

Seminole was clicking on all cylinders and Greenwood had no answers in the District 4-3A opener for both teams on Friday night.

Jacob Burtch led the high-powered Indians offense with 232 yards passing, 102 yards rushing, passed for five touchdowns, and even a caught a touchdown pass in a 48-14 rout over the Rangers at J.M. King Memorial Stadium.

With the victory, Seminole (6-1, 1-0 in district) gains a ton of momentum into next week's big showdown against fellow district power Monahans, a 40-7 winner over Fort Stockton.

"This is huge, especially to score 34 points in the first half," Burtch said. "Monahans is a great team and they know how to win. Next week is going to be a big test for us."

Greenwood drops to 4-3 and 0-1 in district and now must mull over this loss for two weeks thanks to a bye next week.

Seminole is, "a great football team," Greenwood coach Shad Hanna said. "We made some mistakes early that hurt us and we just didn't execute things. They had a good game plan against us."

Burtch had Greenwood on its heels early as he threw a pair of long touchdowns in the first quarter to give Seminole a 14-0 lead. First, Burtch found Caleb Koedyker for a 69-yard pass down the near

State CC meet is old hat for Farris, new experience for Pack

By Jonathan Hull
Sports Writer

One is a freshman who had never run cross country before this year. The other is a junior, who already has one state medal in the sport and plans on adding to his collection.

But outside of what sport they participate in and what school they represent, Katie Pack and Christian Farris have one more thing in common. Both have their sights set on a state title when they compete in the TCAF state cross country meet in Westlake today.

For Farris, having a shot at a state gold medal is nothing new. The junior won the 1,600 and 3,200 meters at last season's TCAF Track & Field Championships, setting state records in both events. He also won state silver in cross country in 2010 as well, finishing behind his teammate Connor Brock who has since graduated.

But just because he's going to be the hands-on favorite to win the event this season doesn't mean Farris is taking his preparation lightly.

"Last year, it was just me and Connor battling in the front," Farris recalled. "This year, you just never know who is going to be there. There could be a really good freshman who cames up or maybe someone transferred to another school. You just never know. I'm not sure who my top competition will be. I'm just hoping for a really good time. That's all I really look for."

Pack isn't blessed with the experience Farris has gained, but she's not short of talent. Originally, the freshman hadn't planned on running cross country as she prepared to be a member of the Trinity volleyball team. But about a month before the season started, she decided she wanted to switch sports and the decision has certainly paid off as she heads into the meet in contention for state gold.

"Katie is just a natural athlete," Trinity coach Cindy Brock said. "She excels at everything she tries. She surprised me this year. She could barely get through a mile and a half during the summer. Now she's at the front of every race she's in."

Pack hadn't even run cross country at the junior high level, making her ascension as the top Trinity girls runner impressive. A TCAF state title would be the perfect ending to an unforgettable freshman season.

"I'm nervous, but I'm also pretty confident," Pack said. "I've been doing really well in the races. I feel like at the pace I've been going and placing pretty high in all of the meets, I'm hoping and praying I can (compete for a state title). I'd really like to win for sure. It's been a goal since the beginning of the season to win a race."

Farris has similar aspirations, but says he won't be too disappointed if a state title isn't in his future.

"I just go by my time. I don't really care about placing as much," Farris said. "A state title would be pretty cool, but if I don't get it then I won't be upset as long as I run well."

MHS, Lee tennis teams back in action

From staff reports

The Midland High and Lee tennis teams will return to the court today after a nearly two-week layoff from District 3-5A team tennis play.

Lee will take on district favorite Abilene High at 11 a.m. today at the Lee High School tennis courts. Lee last played on Sept. 21 and defeated Odessa High, 11-8, at home. The Rebels are 10-6 overall this fall and 1-1 in District 3-5A play.

Against the Bronchos, the Rebels swept the girls doubles in the match as the tandems of Jordyn Willis-Caity Tarabocchia, Daniel Rubio-Josie Paz and Hope Williams-Morgan Pressley won matches.

Midland High, meanwhile, will travel to Abilene to take on Cooper also at 11 a.m. today. The Bulldogs started district play at 0-2 with losses to Abilene High and Odessa Permian. Midland High is 7-7 overall and lost to the Panthers 12-7 on Sept. 21.

The Bulldogs boys won five of the nine matches on that side in the loss to Permian.

MISD swim team opens season today

From staff reports

Midland ISD swimming coach Jennifer Mangum will make her debut as the coach of the overall program today when the Lee and Midland High swim teams travel to Lubbock for the Lubbock Relays.

Mangum has been the program's diving coach, but will head up both the swimming and diving programs this season as she will take over for John Bettina.

Today's meet is the first of six meets the two teams will compete in this season. Among the other competitions the swim team will compete in is a double dual against Odessa Permian and Odessa High on Oct. 15 at the Mabee Aquatics Center and the Midland Invitational, also at the Mabee Aquatics Center, on Nov. 11-12.

Lady Dawgs respond to first loss with sweep of Permian

By Len Hayward

Lady Dawgs	3

It took the Midland High volleyball team a little time to find its rhythm against Odessa Permian on Friday.

But once the Lady Bulldogs found that groove they were tough to stop. Midland High rolled by the Lady Panthers 27-25, 25-11, 25-14 in a District 3-5A match at the Midland High gymnasium.

The Lady Bulldogs were without one of their top hitters in Alexa Griggs, but once Midland High was able to overcome some unforced errors in the first game, it looked like the same that finished the first half of the 3-5A season undefeated.

"We had a lot of unforced errors and that's why Game 1 was close," Midland High coach Terri McColloch said. "We were trying to do smart things and they were barely missing the court."

Permian gave the Lady Bulldogs (26-15, 7-1 in District 3-5A) all they could handle in the first game and the Lady Panthers even took the lead. Permian's Tenesia Pointer laid down two kills and the end of a five-point run to help the Lady Panthers erase a three-point deficit and go up 23-21.

Midland High, though, came back to tie the game at 24 when Grimes recorded one of her team-high 10 kills off a Permian block.

MHS did have a service error, but scored three of the last four points with Riley Downing recording a kill and a block on the final two points to clinch the match.

"I think we found ourselves rebounding from our loss to Cooper," said Grimes, who also had a block in the match. "We reworked everything, and we lost Alexa and we had to get together to figure it out. We worked it out and I think we will be fine."

The struggles of the first game went away early in the second game as the Lady Bulldogs found their groove in both hitting and serving. Midland High reeled off seven straight points as Naomi Posada recorded three aces during the run and Sarah Burns, who received her first start since early this season, had two kills and Downing two to take a 19-7 lead. Burns finished the match with nine kills.

Midland High closed out that game, and then kept the momentum into the second game as they went up 24-14 before Leigh Collier and Grimes combined on a block to end the match.

"Getting Game 1 behind you after you lose on Tuesday was important, and once we settled in my setters set the ball well, and Leigh gave them some good sets," McColloch said. "People that struggled on Tuesday got back on track today, and Sarah Burns had her first start in a while and she had a great game."

ABILENE — Any momentum the Lee volleyball team may have gained with their thrilling five-game win against San Angelo Central on Tuesday was taken away on Friday night against Abilene Cooper.

The Lady Cougars (23-14, 7-1 in District 3-5A) beat Lee 25-23, 26-24, 25-27, 25-13 on Friday at home as they swept the season series between the two teams.

Cooper and Lee played three tightly contested games as Cooper won the first two, including having to have extra points to win the second one, and then Lee needed extra points to win the third game.

But Cooper put the match away with a dominating performance in the third game.

Lee is now 21-17 and 3-5 in District 3-5A and is tied with Odessa High for fourth, and a half-game ahead of Abilene High.

Stephanie Brewer led the Lady Rebels with 14 kills as Lexi Neighbors added nine, with Ciarra Sheppard record seven kills and 22 digs.

The Lady Rebels will take on Odessa High on Tuesday at the Lee HS gymnasium.

BREWERS 3, DIAMONDBACKS 2, 10 INNINGS: At Milwaukee, Saved by Chris Young's incredible catch, the Arizona Diamondbacks appeared to be on the brink of their biggest comeback yet when Willie Bloomquist's squeeze bunt tied the game in the ninth inning.

Poised to strike again, Arizona never did.

Nyjer Morgan singled home the winning run with one out in the 10th and the Milwaukee Brewers eliminated the Diamondbacks 3-2 in the deciding Game 5 of their NL division series Friday.

Trailing 2-1 in the ninth, Arizona got to closer John Axford after he had converted 43 straight regular-season save chances and another in the postseason.

CARDINALS 1, PHILLIES 0: At Philadelphia, Chris Carpenter tossed a three-hitter to outpitch old pal Roy Halladay in a duel for the ages and the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Philadelphia Phillies 1-0 Friday night in the deciding Game 5 of their NL playoff series.

The wild-card Cardinals scored in the first inning when Rafael Furcal led off with a triple and Skip Schumaker followed with a double, and that was it.

The heavily favored Phillies never broke through against Carpenter. Ryan Howard grounded out to end the game and hurt his leg coming out of the batter's box — he limped a couple of steps and then crumpled to the ground as St. Louis celebrated.

BULLDOGS

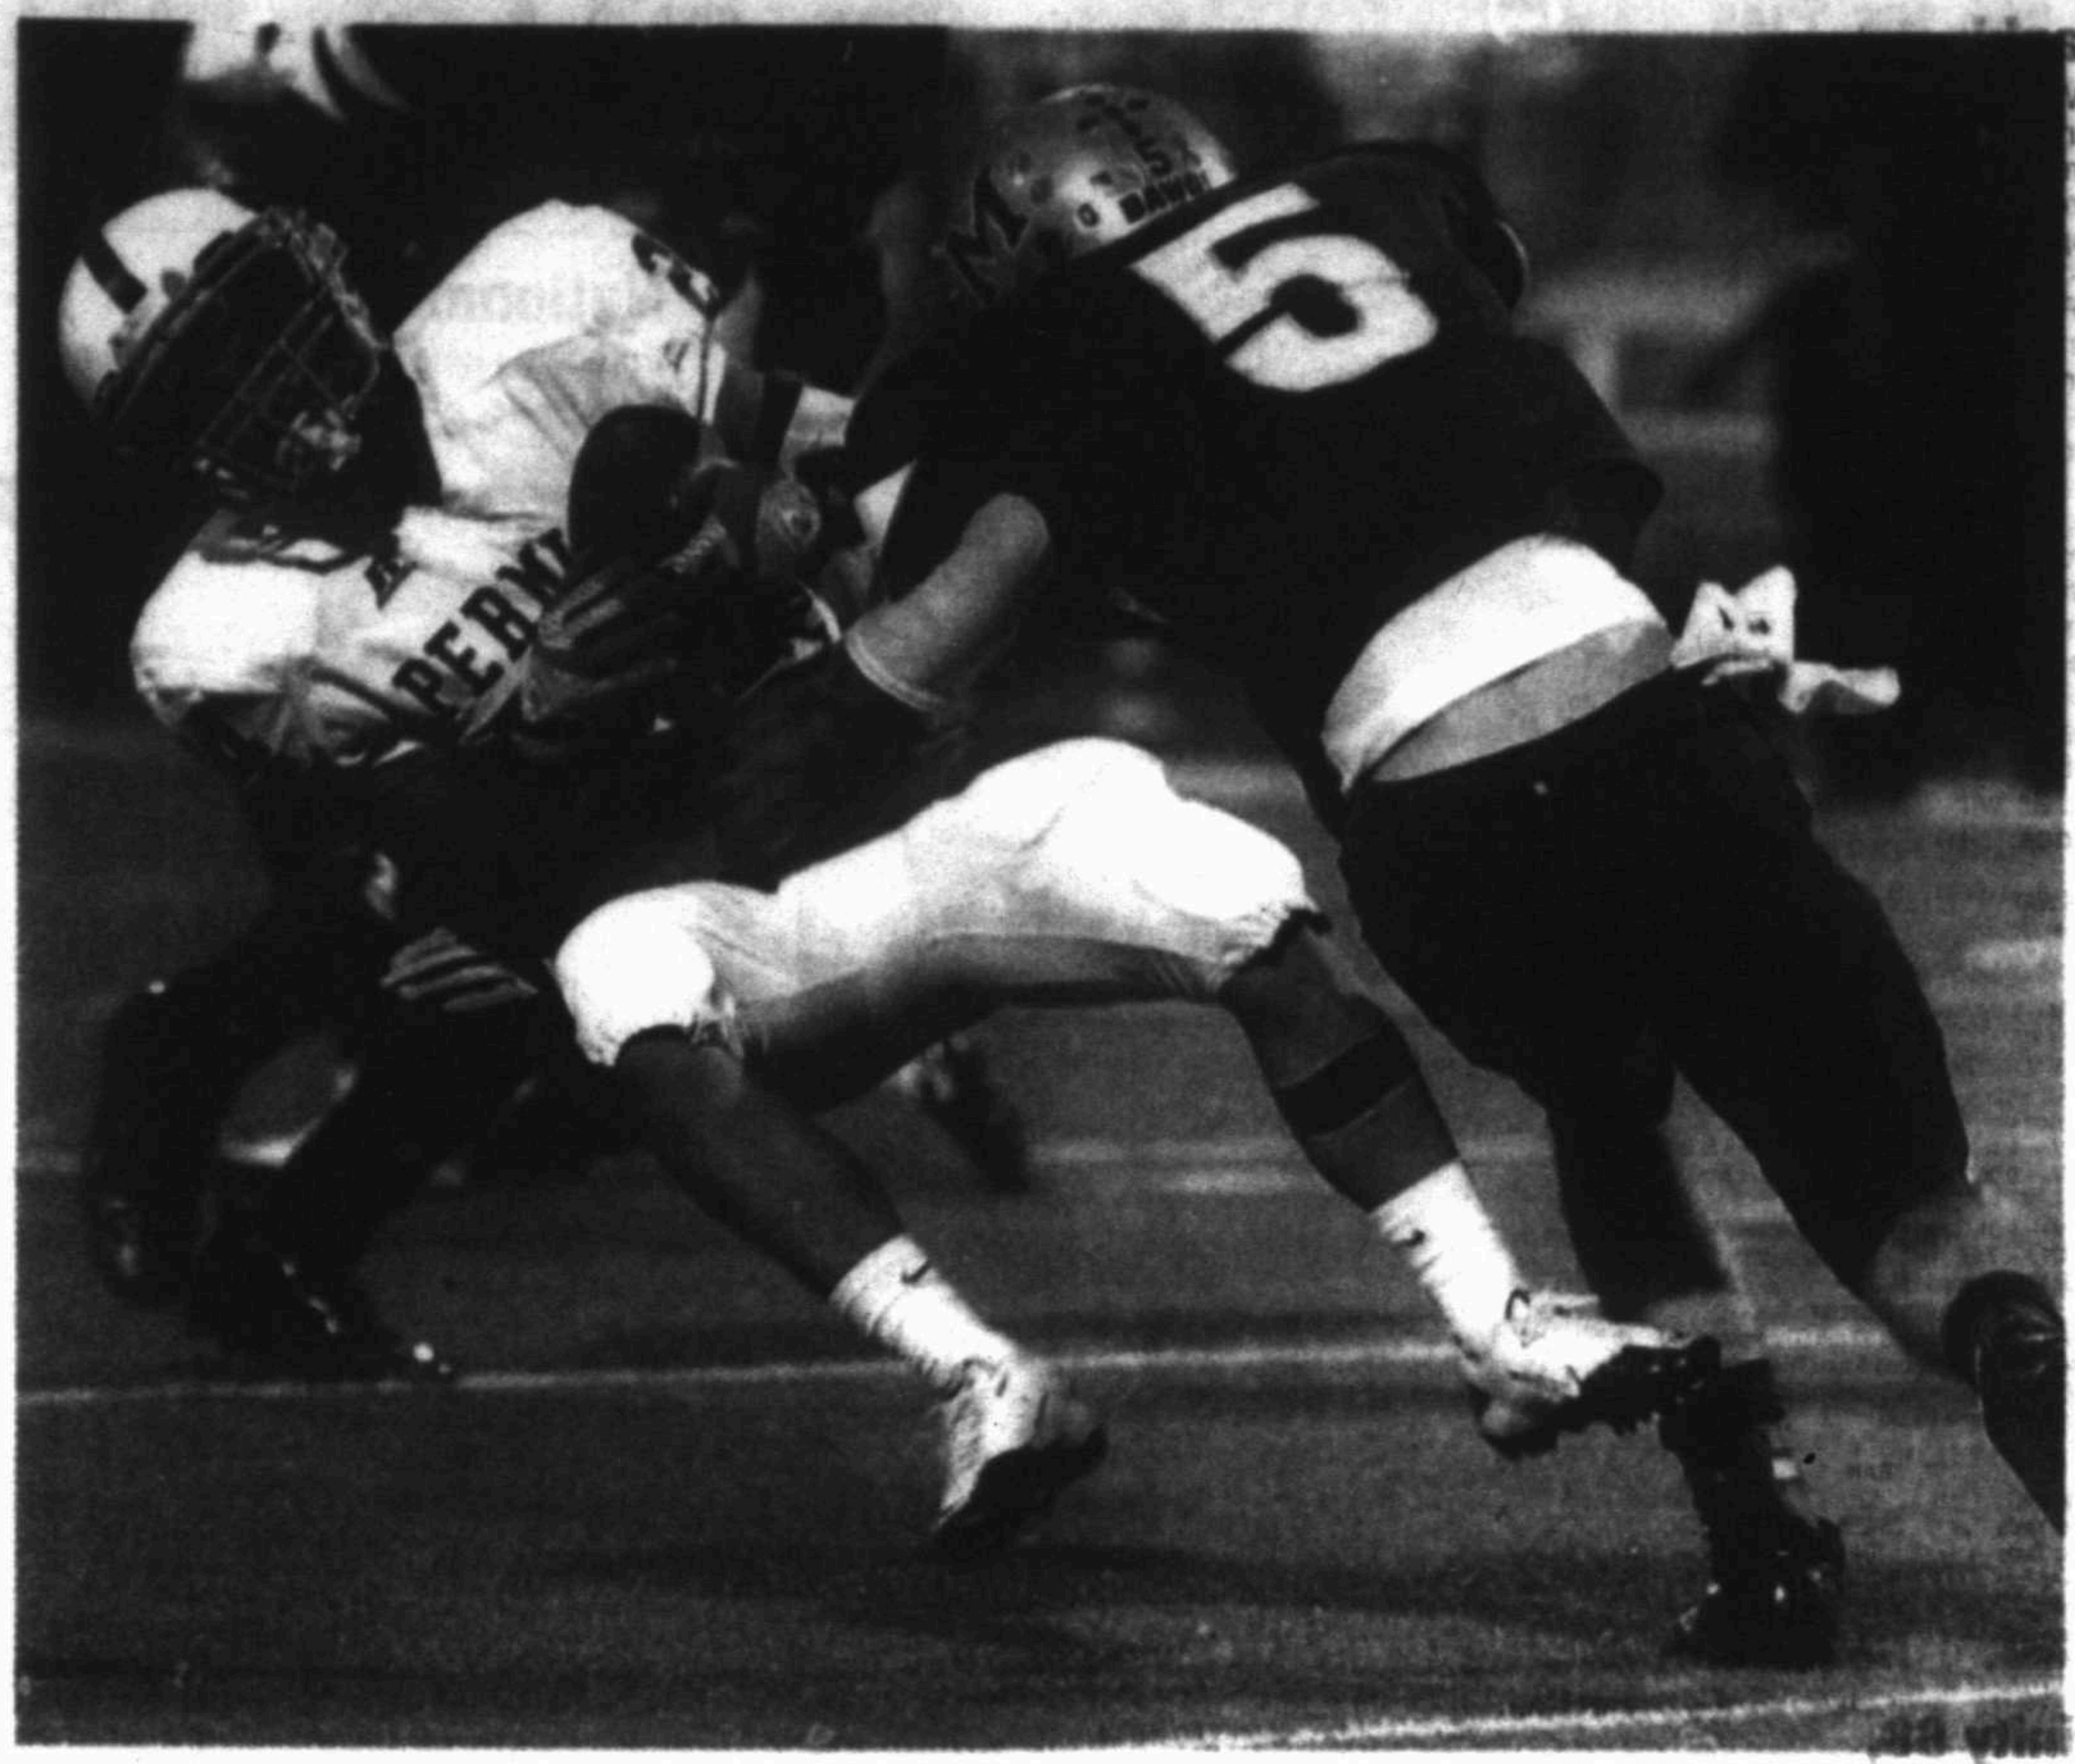
and ended up going for 1 yard.

The Bulldogs managed to push the ball down to the Permian 9 with less than 30 seconds left in the game. After missing on three straight passes, senior quarterback Tanner Culp found Lee in the middle of the field at the goal line. Lee held his ground after an initial hit, turned and dived into the end zone, pulling the Bulldogs within two points of the Panthers with 9 seconds remaining.

On the two-point conversion, Culp appeared to want to roll out to his left, but was cut off by a blitzing Jordan Leake, who forced Culp to go the other direction. Running out of time, Culp sent his pass toward the end zone, but it landed harmlessly on the turf, giving Permian the victory.

It was just one of many defensive stands for the Panthers, who came into the game with the worst statistical defense in District 3-5A. They had given up 189 points in their five non-district games, but held Midland High to 26 points and 294 yards.



Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Midland High's Brent Stewart knocks Odessa Permian's Andrew Perez backwards on a hit Friday night at Grande Communications Stadium.

"From start to finish, I think this was the best game the defense has played all year, particularly in the second half," Permian coach Gary Gaines said. "They played their tails off with a great effort. I thought we had a great open week and I think we improved. I think it showed (Friday)."

The Bulldogs recovered the ensuing onside kick with junior Phillip Fuentes coming down with the ball near the 50-yard line. However, the referees ruled Fuentes recovered the ball less than half a yard shy of the 50, meaning it didn't travel the necessary 10 yards and awarding the ball to Permian.

But even if the Bulldogs had been awarded possession, they would have needed to execute a Hail Mary attempt with 9 seconds left to play and no timeouts.

convert a fourth down. In the first half alone, Midland Christian went for it on fourth down three times and was successful twice including the second touchdown run. The other successful conversion was a 4th and 12 from the Fort Worth Christian 46 with a 14-yard pass from McClendon to Jarrod Koym. It did not lead to a score. The unconverted fourth down was a 4th-and-11 from the Fort Worth 22 that was nullified by a 15-yard penalty. The Mustangs then punted.

In the second half, the Mustangs took the opening kickoff and scored quickly. Jerry Garcia returned the kickoff 49 yards to the Fort Worth Christian 27. Four plays later and less than a minute and a half, Dobbs ran it in from 11 yards out.

Man wants to pull plug on late-night chat sessions

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating "Mindy" for a little more than a year, and mostly we get along. The one thing that is not working is Mindy likes to have long talks on the phone, usually very late into the night.

When I get sleepy and tell her I'm going to bed, she either gets upset, ignores me and continues talking, or tries to guilt me into staying up later to talk. I resent it. I have tried discussing it with her, but she doesn't seem to get it. How can I get across to Mindy that I'd like to go to bed without a fight? — NODDING OFF IN BELMONT, CALIF.

DEAR NODDING OFF: Do it by telling your chatterbox girlfriend in the bright light of day what time your bedtime is. Tell her that if she wants to have long conversations in the evening, that's fine with you — but she needs to respect what your bedtime is. As that time approaches, remind Mindy by saying, "I'm giving you five more minutes, then I'm hanging up the phone." Then do it.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance's ex-girlfriend "Amanda" has been living with his parents for more than three years. I feel cheated out of the opportunity to have a daughter-like relationship with my fiance's parents. I want her to move out.

I have discussed this with my fiance, and he talked to his mother and told her that we're getting married and it's time for Amanda to leave. Amanda also agrees it's time for her to move, but my future mother-in-law doesn't. I don't think she wants to let go of Amanda and her grandson. It's like Amanda is her daughter.

I don't like the situation. It's not normal, and I don't know what to do. Should I confront his mother or just stay quiet? I want to feel like I'm the daughter-in-law, not Amanda! Please help. — CHEATED IN HOLLAND, MICH.

DEAR CHEATED: I see nothing positive to be gained from a confrontation. Once you and your fiance are married, you WILL be the only daughter-in-law.

However, you will have to accept that Amanda's child will always be your in-laws' first grandchild. Regardless of how far or how fast Amanda moves out, her child will have a place in their hearts and their lives. Having had their grandchild living in their home for this period of time has intensified the bond. Please consider carefully how this will affect you before you marry this man, because feeling as you do, it may be a difficult adjustment.

DEAR ABBY: In our house we have a simple dress code. We ban the "three B's". If your clothing shows your butt, your boobs or your belly, you may not wear it. I just don't think it's healthy for my teenage sons (or my older son and husband) to have that in their faces as we eat dinner.

Is there a tactful way to approach the kids' friends — who are welcome at all times, but sometimes show up with their boobs hanging out? — COVERING UP IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR COVERING UP: Yes. If someone comes to the table suffering from overexposure, take the girl aside and tell her that in your house you "dress" for dinner. Then offer her a garment to cover up with.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing you with an etiquette question. If a neighbor is displaying a card, such as a get-well or thank-you card, is it OK to pick it up and read it? — JUST WONDERING IN SPRINGBORO, OHIO

DEAR JUST WONDERING: No, not without first asking permission. To do otherwise could be considered rude or even nosy.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 8, 2011:

Understand what the true cost is of heading down the same path with a key person. Obviously, this person holds a lot of your interest. Know that the bond will grow to a new level if you don't force it. A partner or dear loved one could be jealous more often than not. Be smart and consider your priorities. If you are single, this conflict might not be as serious for those who are married. Be honest with yourself and with others. You cannot turn caring on and off like a faucet. Your important person needs to be steadily watered. PISCES opens up doors to different aspects of your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ Take a little time off from all your friends and everything else that is going on. By recharging early on this weekend, you are more likely to enjoy yourself. Be willing to indulge a little. Why not schedule a massage? Tonight: A key person really loves your company.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Emphasize the positive. Don't put yourself in a negative situation. Zero in on what you want. Bring others together, and allow greater self-expression — both yours and theirs. Ask others for their feedback. Tonight: Zero in on what you want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ Understand what is happening with a boss, parent or higher-up. Your instincts come forward in a discussion with a key partner. Someone makes a gesture that tells you how deeply you are cared for. Tonight: Be leader of the gang.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Be willing to extend yourself and create much more of what you desire. A meeting could point to another approach or a different path. If you hit an obstacle, you know to turn around and take the other path. Tonight: Play the possibilities game.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ You might have intended to deal with others directly, and you will. Nevertheless, this time, though worthwhile, it could waylay a workplace responsibility. Willingly reschedule your day, remembering the importance of these people. Tonight: Say "yes" to a great idea.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Others gather around you as you seem to have the right words at the right time. Your popularity mounts as you kick back and have a good time. Allow others to believe they have control, and they do — of themselves, but nothing more. Tonight: Where people are.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Focus on achieving the necessary end results. Work is important, and you want to get as much done as possible. A partner chips in and adds to the potential of the moment. Lighten up and have a key conversation. Tonight: Choose what's most relaxing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Speak your mind; express your ideas to others in a meaningful manner. You could be surprised by the level of backing you see come forward because of your openness. Know what you need in order to make your life work. Tonight: Add more spice to your life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Stay settled as you look to positive changes. You could be very excited and inclined to be more open than usual. You might wonder which way to head with weekend plans — entertain at home or vanish with a special friend? Tonight: Order in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Make calls and schedule meetings with the hope that you can leave a clear desk. You are able to communicate the depth of your ideas and concerns to key friends and/or associates. Tonight: Hang out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Remain sensitive to your needs, too. In your effort to please others, you could veer in the wrong direction, forgetting yourself. At a certain point, if you don't give to yourself and recharge, you will be worthless to others. Tonight: Your treat.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★★ You melt barriers and make friends out of the blue. Someone who really cares about you lets you know how much you joining him or her in the next few days could mean. News from a distance puts a smile on your face. Tonight: Beam in what you want.

sideline for the first score after the drive originally started at SHS. Then, later in the quarter he threw a screen pass to Jerod Adams and then the speedy wideout cut across the field for the rest of the 41-yards for the touchdown.

"We had a good game plan," said Burtch, who started the game completing his first six pass and was 9 for 16 for the game. "We knew kind of what to do and what they were going to do in certain formations. When they man up backside we think our playmakers can make plays. Jerod and Caleb are great receivers and they get the job done. I just have to get the ball to the playmakers, deliver the mail and they make a good name for you."

Burtch helped give Seminole a 34-0 halftime lead behind touchdown passes of 23 and 5 yards to Koedyker and Adams, respectively.

Seminole coach and Jacob's father, Chris Burtch, said he was proud to see the way his junior quarterback was able to throw the ball, especially with the wind kicking up.

"We thought the wind might affect us a little bit but I was really proud of our receivers. They ran great routes and gave Jacob a chance to hit them when they were open," Chris Burtch said. "Offensive line did a great job of protecting him and Jacob put the ball where he needed to put it."

The Indians closed out the half on a little razzle dazzle when Burtch lateraled to Adams, who then found a streaking Burtch down the far sideline for a 53-yard touchdown strike as time expired for 34-0 halftime advantage. It was that kind of night for the Indians.

Seminole's Brandon Lujan grabs a hold of Greenwood quarterback Kam Williams and brings him down Friday during the second quarter of their game at J.M. King Memorial Stadium.

"I was not expecting it," said Jacob Burtch of the trick play. "I was expecting like a reverse pass but (Coach Burtch) comes out and calls hitch throwback. I said 'all right.' (Adams) throws it back and the line did a great job of getting out in front. That was definitely a statement going into halftime."

Greenwood quarterback Kam Williams led the Rangers with 164 yards rushing and two second-half touchdowns on 18 carries, but was limited to just 53 yards on 11 of 23 passing with one interception that was deflected into the hands of Adams.

While the loss was disappointing for the Rangers, Hanna emphasized this was just one of four games his team will play in district.

"(Seminole) has an opportunity to go win a district championship," Hanna said. "We just have to regroup, put this one behind us and grow as a football team. We're a good football team too. We just didn't execute or show it tonight."

yardage, before Cooper took over at its own 20 and marched 80 yards again.

This time Nicholas hit Lorenzo Joe, who made a beautiful catch in the end zone on a ball that was thrown behind him, for an 11-yard touchdown on third-and-5 that put Cooper up 14-0 with 9:16 left in the half.

Nicholas had 15 of his 19 completions in the first half for 143 yards and both of his passing touchdowns despite a howling wind blowing at Shotwell Stadium.

"I just knew I had to put it to where our receivers could catch it," said Nicholas, a Texas Tech commit. "Everything just worked out well, no matter what the elements are, we're playing through them. "

Lee, however, gained momentum in the second half, where it shut out Nicholas and the top offense and 3-5A.

The Rebels pulled to within 17-7 when, with the third quarter winding down, Skyler Estrella went up over a defender and came down with the ball, then turned and lunged in the end zone for a 41-yard touchdown pass from Talor Nunez.

Yet Lee wasn't able to get any closer as Josh Bowman sealed the victory for Cooper with a pick in the middle of the field that he weaved up the sideline to return 56 yards for a touchdown with 1:56 to play.

Lee scored a late touchdown on a seven-yard pass from Nunez to Kendall White, but by then only seconds remained as the Rebels weren't able to overcome the early deficit, which Morton said was on him.

"We were very lethargic offensively and just never seemed to get on track until the second half," Morton said. "Early we were definitely not where we needed to be, that's my fault."

Tannehill heads back to West Texas in search of win

By Brent Zwerneman
San Antonio Express-News

No. 24 Texas A&M at Texas Tech

- When: 6 p.m. today
- Where: Jones AT&T Stadium, Lubbock
- TV: FX
- Updates: www.twitter.com/mwtsports

COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M senior quarterback Ryan Tannehill is headed home — or at least 100 miles north of it in expansive West Texas — on a trip he's dreamed about since signing with Texas A&M out of Big Spring High in 2007.

A tiny Tannehill grew up sporting a Texas Tech uniform, no surprise since his father, Tim, played receiver for the Red Raiders in the 1980s. So this weekend's trip to Lubbock is special, indeed, as Tannehill returns to his neck of the plains as the Aggies' starting quarterback, but hardly under ideal circumstances.

"It's nice to be able to go back, but this game could be anywhere in the country," Tannehill said. "I don't care where it is — we just have to go win this game."

Allow Ryan Swope, Tannehill's favorite receiver, to elaborate on what today's 6 p.m. kickoff at Jones AT&T Stadium means to the one-time pint-sized Red Raider and now full-grown (and then some) Aggie.

"This is going to be a real personal game for him," Swope said.

Why? For one reason, then-Tech coach Mike Leach didn't recruit him, as Tannehill directed a run-oriented offense at Big Spring. TCU, Houston, Tulsa and UTEP were in contention for Tannehill with A&M, and he opted to ink with then-Aggies coach Dennis Franchione.

In the fall of 2007, then-A&M offensive coordinator Les Koenning Jr. told reporters to keep an eye on the lightly-recruited Tannehill, a redshirt at the time, and Koenning has proven prophetic. Tannehill, however, has taken a route to the starting quarterback gig that not even Koenning predicted, by first starring as a receiver.

In fact, Tannehill (6-foot-4, 222 pounds) is the only player in NCAA FBS history to own both a 400-yard passing game and 200-yard receiving game, according to A&M. He set the school single-game passing record last year against his dad's old school with 449 passing yards, and Tech

Rivalry will provide some answers for Texas' off-season changes

By Jaime Aron
Associated Press

No. 3 Oklahoma vs. No. 11 Texas

- When: 11 a.m. today
- Where: Cotton Bowl, Dallas
- TV: ABC

DALLAS — Unlike the folks throwing softballs at weighted-down milk bottles or those shooting basketballs at narrow rims, Mack Brown and his No. 11 Longhorns are guaranteed to have something meaningful to take home from their trip to the State Fair of Texas this weekend.

Should Texas beat No. 3 Oklahoma in the 106th Red River rivalry, it would be the ultimate sign of progress for Brown's rebuilding from a 5-7 season.

Yet, even if the Longhorns lose today at the Cotton Bowl, Brown and his staff will find out a lot more about their squad by seeing them play the best team in their conference, and one of the best in the country.

Brown will learn whether his 4-0 club is really as good as the scoreboard indicated after the last two games — lopsided road victories over UCLA and Iowa State — or whether they're closer to the team that opened the season with a slow start against Rice and needed a late rally to beat BYU by a point at home.

"I want to see us respond," Brown said.

Coming off a year that began with big hopes and wound up being his first losing season at Texas, Brown saw turnover at both coordinator positions, then changed quarterback early this season. That much change could leave a guy queasy, but it's quite the opposite. The stomach-churning came during the collapse, leaving Brown pretty relaxed now that things are starting to fall in place.

His calm approach to this game is

Bears, Cyclones look to get back on track after losses

Iowa State at No. 25 Baylor

- When: 6 p.m. today
- Where: Floyd Casey Stadium, Waco
- TV: Fox Sports Southwest

WACO — In what had looked like a showdown between undefeated teams, No. 25 Baylor and Iowa State instead are both trying to bounce back from losing their Big 12 openers.

For Robert Griffin and the Bears (3-1, 0-1 Big 12), his only interception of the season led to a late comeback by Kansas State. The quarterback took the blame even though he still has only two more incomplete passes (20) than his NCAA-leading 18 touchdowns.

"I'm the leader of the team, that's what I'm supposed to do," said Griffin, who had his third five-TD game this season against K-State. "I'm the general out there. Coach (Art) Briles is the president, but I'm the one that has to lead the troops out there on the battlefield, and we didn't come away with the victory."

Iowa State (3-1, 0-1), on the verge of a possible Top 25 ranking, had a mistake-filled three-touchdown loss at home against 11th-ranked Texas. The Cyclones had two fumbles and an interception in the first quarter, when Texas quickly went up 13-0 on the way to a 34-0 halftime lead.

"It was more like a baseball bat hitting them and the realization of the fact that you can't play the 11th-ranked team in the country that way, that slowly to begin a football game, and expect to come back and win," Iowa State coach Paul Rhoads said. "So a heavy dose of reality, and we'll see if we can't start faster, play cleaner this week."

Baylor and Iowa State play to night.

Griffin has thrown only one interception, but it was a big one that set up the Wildcats' go-ahead field goal in the closing minutes last week. He still leads the nation completing 82 percent of his passes (93 of 113) for 1,308 yards.

THIS WEEKEND'S COLLEGE FOOTBALL

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Texas/Big 12

NO. 3 OKLAHOMA (4-0) VS. NO. 11 TEXAS (4-0) AT DALLAS, 11 A.M. (ABC)

LINE: Oklahoma by 10.

SERIES RECORD: Texas leads 59-41-5.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Golden Hat trophy, bragging rights and a leg up in the Big 12 race, and maybe the national title chase as well. It's only the second time since 2004 that both teams have made it to the Red River Rivalry undefeated, bringing even higher stakes back to the unique setting at the heart of the State Fair of Texas.

KEY MATCHUP: Texas offense vs. Oklahoma defense. Bryan Harsin, the architect of Boise State's creative offense that took down Oklahoma 43-42 in a classic Fiesta Bowl, now leads an unpredictable Longhorns offense that features two quarterbacks and plenty of motion and deception to keep the Sooners off-balance.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Oklahoma: WR Ryan Broyles. The 2010 All-American needs 13 catches to break the NCAA record of 316 career catches set by Purdue's Taylor Stubblefield between 2001 and 2004. He had a season-low 36 yards on five catches in last year's win against the Longhorns.

Texas: RB Malcolm Brown. The freshman has emerged as Texas' top rusher (82 ypg) entering a game that typically hinges on who's better in the ground game. The team with the most rushing yards has left the Cotton Bowl victorious 13 straight times in the series.

NO. 6 OKLAHOMA STATE (4-0) VS. KANSAS (2-2), 2:30 P.M.

LINE: Oklahoma State by 31½

SERIES RECORD: Oklahoma State leads 30-29-2

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Cowboys will try to get to 5-0 for the second straight season and only the 10th time in the program's history. Kansas is trying to snap a 10-game road losing streak and get Turner Gill his first road win.

KEY MATCHUP: Oklahoma State offense vs. Kansas defense. To have any chance, the Jayhawks must overcome an enormous statistical mismatch. The Cowboys are third in the nation in total offense (572 ypg) and sixth in scoring (47 ppg), while Kansas is next-to-last in total defense (545 ypg) and dead last in scoring defense (44 ppg).

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Oklahoma State: RB Joseph Randle. There's some extra meaning in this game for the little brother of former Kansas running back John Randle. And he's going up against a defense that allowed 604 yards rushing in its only other game against a ranked opponent.

Kansas: RB Brandon Bourbon. The freshman had a 51-yard touchdown run and finished with 101 yards rushing in the Jayhawks' loss to Texas Tech last week, giving Kansas a second threat in the backfield along with starter James Sims.

NO. 20 KANSAS STATE (4-0) VS. MISSOURI (2-2), 2:30 P.M. (ABC)

LINE: Missouri by 3½

SERIES RECORD: Missouri leads 60-31-5

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Wildcats are trying to start 5-0 for the first time since 2000, when they climbed to No. 2 in the nation and landed in the Cotton Bowl. The Tigers were ranked before a loss at Arizona State on Sept. 9. They lost to third-ranked Oklahoma on Sept. 24 and are trying to avoid an 0-2 start to Big 12 play.

KEY MATCHUP: Missouri QB James Franklin vs. Kansas State LB Arthur Brown. Franklin, just a sophomore, accounted for 394 yards of total offense against the Sooners. He'll be watched by Brown, who has been sensational in his first season since transferring from Miami. He picked off Baylor QB Robert Griffin III in the closing minutes last weekend to give the Wildcats a chance to kick the eventual winning field goal.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Missouri: TB Henry Josey is the Big 12's leading rusher and sixth in the NCAA at just over 133 yards per game. He began the year third on the depth chart but was pressed into duty because of injuries to De'Vion Moore and Kendial Lawrence. Moore could return Saturday against Kansas State.

Kansas State: QB Collin Klein leads the Wildcats in rushing and is improving his accuracy in the pass game, but what has really stood out to teammates is his leadership. He was unflappable in the closing minutes against Eastern Kentucky, Miami and Baylor, rallying Kansas State for victories each time.

NO. 24 TEXAS A&M (2-2) VS. TEXAS TECH (4-0), 6 P.M. (FX)

LINE: Texas A&M by 9

SERIES RECORD: Texas A&M leads 36-32-1

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Texas A&M needs to finish stronger. The Aggies have been outscored 59-35 in the second half in back-to-back losses after holding double-digit leads at halftime in those games. The Aggies were ranked eighth before a loss to then-No. 7 Oklahoma State two weeks ago. Texas Tech faces its toughest opponent this season. The Red Raiders are dealing with a polar opposite issue from the Aggies — starting slowly. Though undefeated, the Red Raiders have had to play catch-up in their last two games.

KEY MATCHUP: Texas A&M RBs Christine Michael and Cyrus Gray vs. Texas Tech defense. Michael and Gray are in the top 43 nationally and have helped the Aggies average 223 yards per game. The Red Raiders rank No. 117 against the rush and have allowed an average of 229 yards per game on the ground. They gave up 312 yards rushing two weeks ago in a 35-34 win over to Nevada.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Texas A&M: QB Ryan Tannehill. He brings a dual threat (actually, it could be three since he started his college career at receiver). The senior is averaging 30 yards a game on the ground and 285 passing yards. He'll hope to not add another interception to the six he's already thrown.

Texas Tech: QB Seth Doege. He has a lone interception this year to go with 14 TD passes. He's averaging 329 yards a game and recently set an NCAA record for pass completion percentage (90.9 percent) with at least 40 attempts. Doege is playing his first full season since he was a sophomore in high school. Injuries to both knees kept him out junior and senior years.

NO. 25 BAYLOR (3-1) VS. IOWA STATE (3-1), 6 P.M. (FSS)

LINE: Baylor by 15½.

Series Record: Iowa State leads 5-4

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Baylor suffered its first loss in crushing fashion at Kansas State last week. The Bears still have a shot at one of the best seasons in school history but losing to Iowa State at home with trips to Texas A&M and Oklahoma State on deck would kill that momentum. The Cyclones were humbled by Texas last week, 37-14, and need a good showing to get back on track.

KEY MATCHUP: Baylor WR Kendall Wright vs. Iowa State CB Leonard Johnson. Wright leads the nation with over 155 receiving yards per game, but Johnson is one of Iowa State's best cornerbacks in recent memory. Johnson won't give away much size to the 5-foot-10 Wright, but he still might be suffering the effects of a neck strain suffered in the loss to the Longhorns.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Baylor: QB Robert Griffin III: Nobody's stopped him yet. Can the Cyclones keep the dynamic Griffin contained enough to make a game of it?

Iowa State: RB James White. He's shown glimpses of speed playing behind starter Shontrelle Johnson, but his first-quarter fumble against Texas opened the floodgates for a 34-point half from the Longhorns.

EAST CAROLINA (1-3, 1-0 C-USA) AT HOUSTON (5-0, 1-0 C-USA), 6 P.M.

LINE: Houston by 9 1/2

SERIES RECORD: East Carolina leads 6-4

LAST MEETING: 2009 Conference USA championship, East Carolina 38-32

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Cougars remain on the fringe of the Top 25, and they need to keep winning to convince voters they deserve national respect. They could use an impressive victory after needing rallies on the road to beat Louisiana Tech and UTEP. The Pirates can prove they're better than their record shows, after a tough nonconference start that included losses to South Carolina, Virginia Tech and North Carolina.

KEY MATCHUP: Houston offense vs. East Carolina defense. The Cougars are back to their prolific form, leading the nation in total offense (610 yards per game) and passing offense (451.2 yards per game) and ranking eighth in scoring (45.2 points per game). This may be the best pass defense Houston has faced — East Carolina ranks 23rd in passing yards allowed (183.8).

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Houston: Keenum. The sixth-year quarterback can become the NCAA's all-time leader in total offense with a huge day. He needs 440 yards to pass Hawaii's Tim Chang (16,910, 2000-04). Keenum is also less than 1,500 passing yards from eclipsing that NCAA record, also held by Chang (17,072). Keenum has 121 career touchdown passes, 13 shy of the NCAA record set by Texas Tech's Graham Harrell from 2005-08.

East Carolina: WR Lance Lewis. The senior ranks 10th nationally with 34 catches through the first four games. He had 10 catches for a career-high 166 yards in last week's loss to North Carolina. Over his last 10 games, Lewis has 86 catches for 1,021 yards with 12 TD receptions.

TCU (3-2, 1-0 MOUNTAIN WEST) AT SAN DIEGO ST. (3-1, 0-0), 8:30 P.M. (CBS SPORTS NETWORK)

LINE: TCU by 4.

SERIES RECORD: TCU leads 6-0

LAST MEETING: 2010, TCU 40-35

WHAT'S AT STAKE: TCU looks to bounce back from its first home loss since 2007 when it goes for its 19th consecutive Mountain West Conference victory. The current 18 in a row matches BYU for the league record. San Diego State is also coming off a loss, two weeks ago at Michigan and former coach Brady Hoke.

KEY MATCHUP: San Diego State RB Ronnie Hillman vs. TCU defense. For the second week in a row, the Frogs have to deal with a standout running back — this time on the night Marshall Faulk will be honored at his alma mater. Hillman is the first Aztec runner since 1998 with four consecutive 100-yard games. Last week, SMU's Zach Line had his fourth 100-yard game of the season against TCU.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

TCU: DE Stansly Maponga is one of only three players nationally to rank in the top 10 in sacks (4 1/2 sacks) and top five in forced fumbles (four). Has forced a fumble in four different games.

San Diego State: LB Miles Burris had 10 tackles, matching a career high, in the last game against Michigan. He has 32 1/2 career tackles for losses.

MEMPHIS (1-4, 0-1 C-USA) AT RICE (1-3, 0-1 C-USA), 11:30 A.M. (CSS)

LINE: Rice by 21

SERIES RECORD: Tied 1-1

LAST MEETING: 2008, Rice 42-35

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Owls are heavily favored to win their Conference USA home opener. The schedule gets rugged after this one, starting with next week's road test at Marshall, a home date with Tulsa and a showdown with Case Keenum and high-powered Houston after that. The Tigers are trying to salvage an abysmal start, with the only victory coming against lower-division Austin Peay.

KEY MATCHUP: Memphis offense vs. Rice defense. The Tigers are averaging only 15 points per game, and were shut out 42-0 by SMU two weeks ago. But the Owls' defense ranks as one of the nation's worst, allowing 550 yards (120th) and 40 points (117th) per game. The only two previous meetings between the teams were shootouts, and the statistics point to another one on Saturday.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Memphis: QB Taylor Reed. The true freshman has started four games this season and thrown for 951 yards and five touchdowns. He's thrown only one interception in 158 attempts and has completed nine passes for 20 yards or more.

Rice: DE Scott Solomon. The senior had seven tackles, including a sack and a forced fumble in last week's loss to Southern Miss. Solomon now has 18 1/2 sacks to rank third in school history behind N.D. Kalu (20) and Brandon Green (24). Solomon has 24 tackles, including three sacks this season.

Top 25

NO. 1 LSU (5-0) VS. NO. 17 FLORIDA (4-1), 2:30 P.M. (CBS)

LINE: LSU by 13½.

SERIES RECORD: Florida leads 30-24-3.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: LSU not only needs to win to maintain its top ranking, it also wants to keep pace with unbeaten Alabama in the Southeastern Conference Western Division race. Florida, meanwhile, wants to remain in the hunt in the SEC East. With a loss, it would risk dropping behind South Carolina and Georgia, who like Florida both enter this weekend 2-1 in the league.

NO. 2 ALABAMA (5-0) VS. VANDERBILT (3-1), 6 P.M. (ESPNU)

LINE: Alabama by 29.

SERIES RECORD: Alabama 58-19-4.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Barely tested Alabama just wants to keep rolling on its collision course with No. 1 LSU. Vanderbilt would love to give first-year coach James Franklin a signature win and continue a solid start.

NO. 7 STANFORD (4-0) VS. COLORADO (1-4), 6:30 P.M. (VERSUS)

LINE: Stanford by 29½.

SERIES RECORD: Tied 3-3.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: For Stanford, style points might count as much as anything. The Cardinal have beaten San Jose State, Duke, Arizona and UCLA by a combined score of 183-46 and yet have failed to gain ground in the AP poll. Colorado is still searching for its first Pac-12 victory after blowing a 10-point lead at home against Washington State.

NO. 8 CLEMSON (5-0) VS. BOSTON COLLEGE (1-4), 2:09 P.M. (RSN)

LINE: Clemson by 21.

Series Record: Series is tied 9-9-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Clemson's surprising start has gained the team some national attention as it became the first ACC team to defeat three straight opponents ranked in the AP poll with wins over Auburn, Florida State and Virginia Tech. The Tigers have not been 6-0 since 2000. Boston College has fared well against Clemson since joining the ACC in 2005, winning four of the six conference meetings.

NO. 10 ARKANSAS (4-1) VS. NO. 15 AUBURN (4-1), 6 P.M. (ESPN)

LINE: Arkansas by 10

SERIES: Auburn leads 11-8-1

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Despite their rankings, both the Tigers and Razorbacks are looking for respect. Arkansas rallied from an 18-point halftime deficit in last week's win over Texas A&M, but the Razorbacks still feel like they have something to prove after the 38-14 drubbing at the hands of Alabama in their Southeastern Conference-opener two weeks ago. Auburn opened the season with a less-than-convincing 42-38 win over Utah State and has fought an uphill battle for respect since falling at Clemson in its third game. The Tigers already have two wins over ranked teams (Mississippi State and South Carolina), and a second-straight conference road win over a ranked team would provide plenty of confidence moving forward for a youthful team in defense of its national title.

NO. 12 MICHIGAN (5-0) AT NORTHWESTERN (2-2), 6:07 P.M.

LINE: Michigan by 7½.

SERIES RECORD: Michigan leads 52-15-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Momentum. The Wolverines have it, and the Wildcats don't. Northwestern blew an 18-point lead in its Big Ten opener against Illinois for its second straight loss. Michigan is coming off lopsided wins over Eastern Michigan (31-3), San Diego State (28-7) and Minnesota (58-0) since that wild, heart-stopping 35-31 victory over Notre Dame, but it hasn't played on the road yet.

NO. 13 GEORGIA TECH (5-0) VS. MARYLAND (2-2), 11 A.M. (ESPNU)

LINE: Georgia Tech by 14.

SERIES RECORD: Georgia Tech leads 13-6.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Georgia Tech is trying to protect its best start since its 1990 national championship season. Each team is trying to avoid its first Atlantic Coast Conference loss. Georgia Tech is 2-0 in the Coastal Division. Maryland is 1-0 in the Atlantic and hasn't played a conference game since opening its season with a win over Miami. Georgia Tech is on course for a possible Top 25 showdown against Clemson on Oct. 29 in Atlanta.

NO. 14 NEBRASKA (4-1) VS. OHIO STATE (3-2), 7 P.M. (ABC)

LINE: Nebraska by 11.

SERIES RECORD: Ohio State leads 2-0.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Legends Division favorite Nebraska can't afford a setback at home after losing big at Wisconsin last week. The Cornhuskers' slumping defense has a great opportunity to rebuild confidence. The Buckeyes are out of sorts on offense and looking for something positive to happen after more NCAA rules violations cropped up this week.

NO. 16 WEST VIRGINIA (4-1) VS. CONNECTICUT (2-3), 11 A.M. (BIG EAST NETWORK)

LINE: West Virginia by 20.

SERIES RECORD: West Virginia, 6-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: West Virginia is considered an overwhelming favorite for the second straight week at home and is relishing the chance for revenge on a Connecticut team that effectively eliminated the Mountaineers from BCS bowl contention last year. The berth went to the Huskies, who are in a rebuilding year but can pull off a huge upset under first-year coach Paul Pasqualoni.

NO. 18 SOUTH CAROLINA (4-1) VS. KENTUCKY (2-3), 11:21 A.M. (SEC NETWORK)

LINE: South Carolina by 21.

SERIES RECORD: South Carolina leads 14-7-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: South Carolina's psyche after a demoralizing offensive performance in a 16-13 loss to Auburn last week. The Gamecocks managed a season-low 289 yards and struggled to move the ball against a defense that came in last in the SEC. Coach Steve Spurrier changed up quarterbacks and will use sophomore Connor Shaw over fifth-year senior Stephen Garcia this week. Kentucky has lost its opening two SEC games to Florida and LSU by a combined 83-17 score. It is trying to avoid a similar result against the Gamecocks.

NO. 19 ILLINOIS (5-0) AT INDIANA (1-4), 1:30 P.M. (BIG TEN NETWORK)

LINE: Illinois by 14½.

SERIES RECORD: Illinois leads 44-22-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Illinois has won five straight at home, enough to move into the rankings for the third straight week. If they can win on the road against reeling Indiana, the Fighting Illini have a chance to extend their best start in a half century and cement the perception that they can be a division contender. Indiana, meanwhile, is still looking for consistency on offense, an answer at quarterback and a solution to an early-season scoring funk.

NO. 21 VIRGINIA TECH (4-1) VS. MIAMI (2-2), 2:30 P.M. (ABC)

LINE: Virginia Tech by 7½.

SERIES RECORD: Miami leads, 17-11

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The longtime rivals from back when both were in the Big East each already have a loss in Atlantic Coast Conference play. In the same division as still unbeaten Georgia Tech, both are fighting to stay in championship contention in the Coastal Division.

NO. 22 ARIZONA STATE (4-1) VS. UTAH (2-2), 2:30 P.M. (FOX SPORTS NET)

LINE: Arizona State by 2.

SERIES RECORD: ASU leads 16-6.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: This is a game many thought would settle the Pac-12 South title, but now it's a chance for Arizona State to put more space between the competition and climb up the rankings. Utah is still searching for its first conference [illegible]. The Utes are coming off a tough loss at home and have an untested quarterback in Jon Hays, who's making his first major-college start. Another lopsided loss could mean a long season for a Utah team that already has lowered its expectations.

NO. 23 FLORIDA STATE (2-2) AT WAKE FOREST (3-1), 11:30 A.M. (ACC NETWORK)

LINE: Florida State by 10½.

SERIES RECORD: Florida State leads 23-5-1

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Florida State's confidence, its pride — and its national ranking. The Seminoles, the ACC's preseason favorites, have lost two straight to tumble from the top 10 and are looking to avoid their first three-game losing streak since 2009. Wake Forest has won three straight and is looking to start ACC play 3-0 for the first time in school history.

TANNEHILL

From 1C

coach Tommy Tuberville hasn't forgotten.

"We didn't know (for sure) he was going to play," Tuberville said of Tannehill earning a midseason nod over a struggling Jerrod Johnson, who was a senior. "He got off to a heck of a start against us."

The Aggies won their last five regular-season games with Tannehill starting, but since then he's 2-3 (including a loss to LSU in the Cotton Bowl). A&M began this year with victories over SMU and Idaho, but has since suffered two of the largest second-half collapses in school history against Oklahoma State and Arkansas.

The Aggies blew a 17-point lead to the Cowboys and an 18-point lead to the Razorbacks. In the aftermath of the gags, the likely future NFL quarterback and perhaps orthopedic surgeon — he's already graduated with a biology degree — has kept his poise for the 2-2 Aggies.

"Ryan has done a great job of being a leader," Swope said.

Associated Press

Texas A&M quarterback and Big Spring graduate Ryan Tannehill returns to West Texas today to lead the Aggies against Texas Tech in Lubbock.

Tannehill, too, is fighting the growing legend that A&M senior quarterbacks are somehow cursed, considering Mark Farris, Reggie McNeal, Stephen McGee and Johnson all had worse final seasons (sometimes because of injury) than junior campaigns in the past decade.

A year ago Tannehill threw for 13 touchdown passes and six interceptions, but this year he already has five interceptions to go with six touchdown passes. Under his direction the Aggies have scored 55 points in the first halves of the last two games, but only 12 after the break.

A&M lost 30-29 to OSU and 42-38 to Arkansas, meaning the No. 24 Aggies are seven points from an undefeated record and a likely top 5 ranking. It all adds up to a purposeful Tannehill angling for a victory today — whether or not it's near his hometown.

REBOUND

From 1C

The Bears are the only FBS team averaging at least 300 yards passing and 200 yards rushing.

Baylor is happy to be home again after losing in its only road game so far this season.

Briles expects his team to "fight because that's what you do when you have a little adversity in your plan. That's what we're going to do as a football team. I can guarantee you that."

The coach said his players were down after the K-State game because they played with passion and effort.

"You grow from it," Briles said. "We all learned some tough lessons the other day, and we'll move forward and be ready to go Saturday, no doubt."

"We better be because Iowa State's a good football team. I can promise you they're not concerned about what our feelings are," he said.

RIVALRY

From 1C

especially noteworthy considering its importance. Here's how season-defining it can be: Back when the Big 12 was big enough to have divisions (1996-2010), Oklahoma or Texas won the South all but twice, including the last 11 years.

"There's no doubt the pressure's also on them more than us," Brown said. "I mean, they're supposed to win and we're getting better. That's fact, whether you like it or not."

Given those options, Sooners coach Bob Stoops likes it.

Besides, Stoops knows an impressive win might be exactly what Oklahoma needs to regain the No. 1 spot it held in the preseason poll. The Sooners have been passed by SEC heavyweights LSU and Alabama.

"If there's pressure on us, I welcome it," Stoops said. "We look forward to playing it. You're more than capable of analyzing their pressure. I'm sure after all they've been through there's pressure on them, too. You can discard it all you want, but the pressure is there. Coming into this game, that's what you want. We want to be in this position, going after it."

Held at the Cotton Bowl — about 190 miles from each campus — the game remains one of college football's greatest pageants. Ask anyone who's played or coached in the game and they talk about charging out of the tunnel and into a scene that Brown described as "a bowl game in midseason."

The stadium is split 50-50, burnt orange on one side, crimson and cream on the other. There's the carnival atmosphere for everyone to enjoy on the way in and out, mostly out this year as kickoff is at 11 a.m. And there are the smells. Depending on which way the wind is blowing, fans will inhale the aroma of corny dogs and delicacies such as fried praline sweet potato poppers, or the stench of a livestock arena that's a short punt away.

"It sort of gets the hair up on the back of your neck," Stoops said. "It's exhilarating, I guess is the best way to say it. It's exciting and something you want to feel."

This spectacle is so unique and has meant so much to so many generations (it's been this way since 1932) that officials from both schools resisted movements to drag the games back to their campuses or to Cowboys Stadium in Arlington. Each of those settings might be more profitable, but, in this case, tradition trumped dollars.

It could even be argued that this game helped keep the Big 12 together. The bond between these schools turned out to be stronger than that between Texas and its other big rival, Texas A&M, as the Aggies fled to the SEC, likely ending their historic series. Their departure set off a realignment frenzy nationwide and threatened to dissolve this conference. But after looking around, UT and OU decided to stay put, helping keep the league intact.

"It's fair to say that we both complement each other really well," Stoops said. "Maybe one and one doesn't equal two with the two of us together. It may equal more like four."

This is the kind of series commentators like to hype by saying "you can throw the records out when those teams meet." Except, lately, the rankings have been a good indicator of which team is going to win.

The higher-ranked team is 9-2 since 2000, with the upper hand swinging back and forth. The Sooners won every meeting from '00-04, and by a combined score of 189-54. Back then, the pressure was mounting on Brown, and Vince Young changed everything by beating Oklahoma on the way to a national championship in '05, starting a run of four Texas victories in five years.

The Sooners won again last year, 28-20, with Landry Jones at quarterback. He got into the game as a freshman the previous year, when Sam Bradford got hurt. Now, he's returning for his third appearance in this series carrying the title of leading passer in school history. He's also fourth in the nation with 361.8 yards per game passing and fresh off throwing five touchdowns, albeit against Ball State.

Favorite target Ryan Broyles comes in 13 catches shy of the NCAA career record, but the Longhorns can't blanket him because they still have to deal with Kenny Stills. In the fourth quarter against Florida State, he kept the winning drive alive with a third-and-long catch, then made a terrific catch for a touchdown.

Dominique Whaley has emerged at running back, chugging behind an offensive line that's allowed only two sacks, while linebacker Travis Lewis leads an Oklahoma defense that's racked up 11 sacks and seven interceptions.

The Longhorns are led by a quarterback tandem of sophomore Case McCoy and freshman David Ash, and a freshman running back, Malcolm Brown. Coach Brown famously held Cedric Benson out of the lineup when he was a freshman, letting him play only a single play against Oklahoma and even that only because someone had lost a shoe and needed a replacement.

Texas is amazingly balanced on offense — 214.8 yards per game passing, 206 rushing — and the defense is keeping foes to 289 yards per game. Of course, they haven't faced an offense like this.

Even if the Longhorns don't match last year's win total in this game, and maybe not next weekend, when they face Oklahoma State, they seem poised for a quick return. Already being ranked No. 11 indicates they already have bounced back, even if they've yet to face a stiff test.

"I'm liking this team," Brown said. "They are giving us everything they've got and I do think they'll keep improving."

Saddle Club Lakes Special

Over 4400 square feet of perfection in this one of a kind property. Designed by local architect, Larry Connally, a student of Frank Welch, this four bedroom home is loaded with upgrades.

Gorgeous living room with 20 foot floor to ceiling windows, situated to enjoy the best view of the lakes, both upper and lower. Trees are planted and located strategically, to preserve your field of vision, while maintaining your privacy.

A specially designed area in the living room juts out so that your windows line up exactly with the view and create a perfect setting for your grand piano. Impeccably designed for comfort and space, the formal living area is an exquisite retreat to enjoy after a long day.

Not to be outdone, off the entry, a warm and inviting home theatre room awaits you. Large and roomy, with top of the line equipment, capable of high definition video and surround sound audio, this room will please even the most critical audio/video connoisseurs. No need to go anywhere for a movie when you can have a much finer experience at home! Best of all, the home theatre system can be completely hidden and the room used as a regular den.

The kitchen is graced with not only granite countertops, but granite floors! The designer European cabinets are made by Downsview and absolutely, are designed for the discriminating. From magnetic childproof locks to fold out pan holders, to slide out pantry shelves, they are just magnificent. A beautiful view of the lake from the breakfast area is just one more of the perks.

The formal dining area is large and gracious with easy seating for twelve and makes a perfect place for those special gatherings. Built for entertainment, you'll never lack for room for your guests in this inviting open space.

Not to be overlooked, a wonderful, private office is nestled downstairs, out of the home's pathways, and creates a secluded oasis for handling the necessary details of everyday business.

This entire home is wired for state of the art technology, including the ability to install the software for the "Smart Homes". The installed Lutron lighting system is museum quality and affords one with four different lighting settings, from everyday lighting, to party lighting, to art lighting to vacation lighting. A wonderful amenity for those who enjoy collecting and displaying fine art work.

The upstairs is graced with four beautiful, large bedrooms, each with access to a bathroom and magnificent views over the balcony to the lovely formal living area below.

Also included are the architectural designs for an addition, which include two more bedrooms and two more baths AND a design for an Infinity pool and accoutrements, is also available.

Perhaps a safer bet than the stock market, this fine home is listed at $ 845,000.

For more information on this property or to schedule a private viewing , please call Martha Manulik at Legacy Realtors, 432 618-5049.

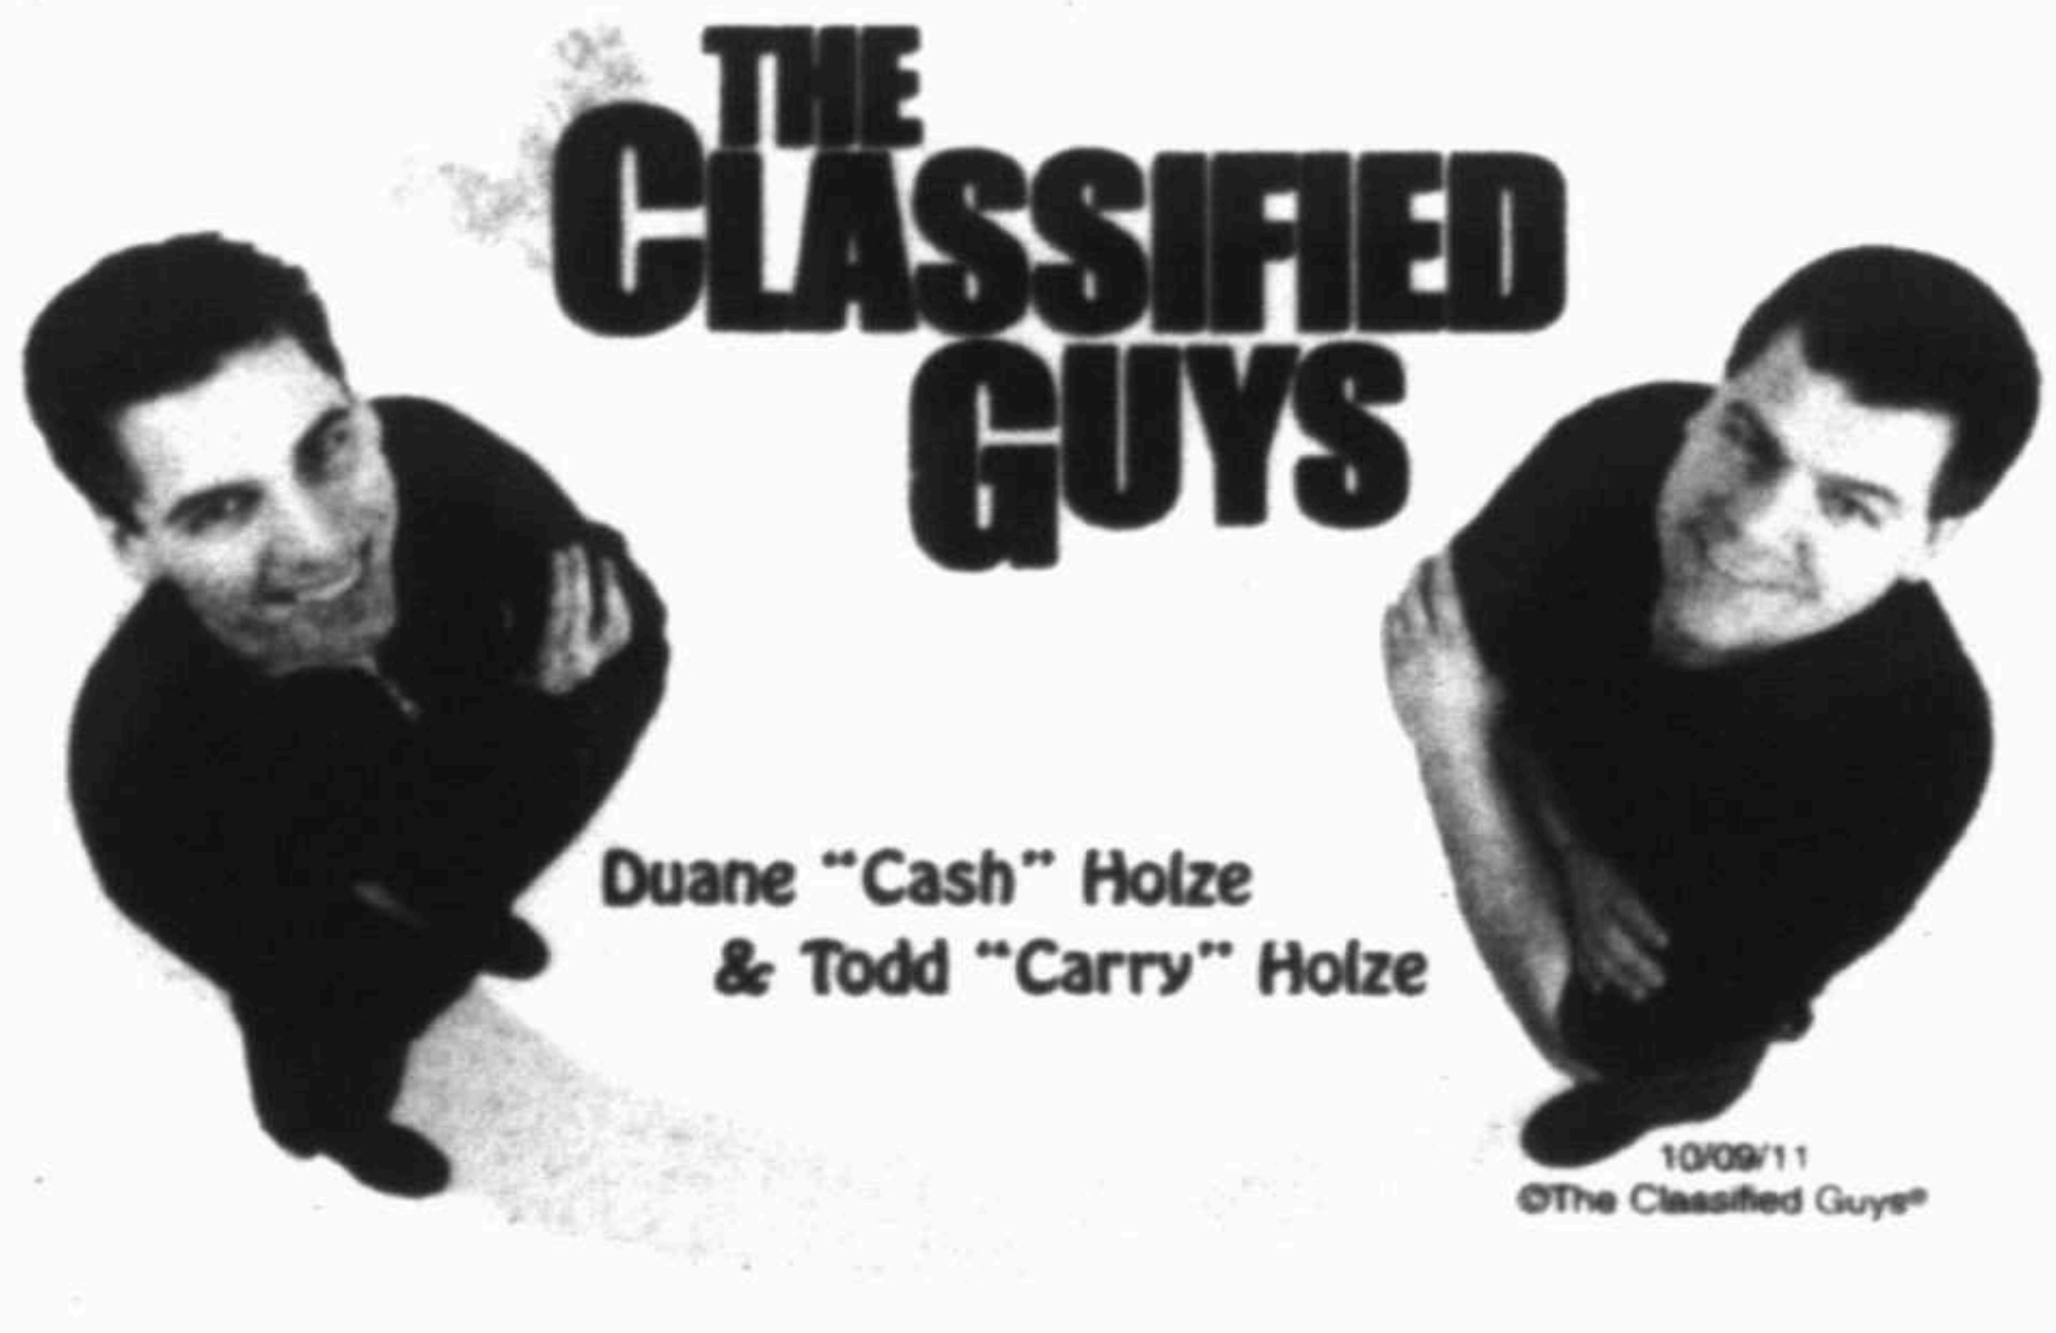
THE CLASSIFIED GUYS



Duane "Cash" Holze & Todd "Carry" Holze

10/09/11 ©The Classified Guys®

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
After being home with our newborn for the last eight months, my husband and I decided to go out for a night in the adult world. Since we didn't have any family in the area, we called a babysitting service from the newspaper. The service turned out to be a very industrious 16-year-old. She explained her resume, her certifications, rates and references. She then informed us that her next available Friday night was in 6 weeks. I was stunned. Babysitting wasn't that structured or lucrative when I was in school. What courses did she take? And her eye-popping rates, $20 per hour for 1 child, $25 for 2 and $5 for each additional child. Wow! She seems great and obviously many families must think she's reasonable. I just need a refresher course in babysitting 101? Can you help?

Cash: That 16-year-old sounds like a future CEO to me.

Carry: And a future millionaire at those rates! Although a one night break for both of you may be worth the price.

Cash: Besides if it's your first time away from the newborn, you'll probably call home every 15 minutes anyway.

Carry: There are a lot of things to consider when selecting a babysitter. Their age is just one of them. We know some people who hire the neighbor's 12-year-old, but that might be a little young.

Cash: On the contrary, we also know parents who only hire certified childcare professionals, but then they tend to pay a premium for those services as well. Choosing a babysitter comes down to finding someone who you feel is responsible enough to care for your child.

Carry: In today's world, there are accreditations for everything and babysitting is no different. Aside from professionals who have a degree in childcare, you may find others who have taken babysitting courses. If fact, the Red Cross offers such a course for children ages 11 years and older.

Cash: As for her rates, well, prices have gone up since you were a kid. It may sound like a lot of money, but it may be worth the cost if it gives you a sense of security about leaving the house.

Carry: Her rates of "$5 for each additional child" sound like a cell phone plan. Just make sure she doesn't charge you for overages if the neighbor's kids come to visit.

Fast Facts

Call Waiting

If it's your first time away from your child, you've probably left every telephone number that you can possibly be reached at in case of an emergency. However, you'd be surprised how many people forget to leave important emergency numbers for the police, fire department or even neighbors. Be sure to leave the name of a neighbor or nearby friend that can get to your house quickly in case you cannot be reached.

Parent Course

We often hear of the Red Cross helping during large catastrophes, but they also offer other programs everyday. In fact, the Red Cross even instructs a course in babysitting. They cover the basics of handling emergencies and first aid, and also teach such things as choosing age appropriate games and toys, diaper changing and even how to handle bedtime issues. Sounds like a course every parent should take. Contact the Red Cross in your area for more details.

Chaperoned

When my friend brought her son over for a play date, we sat and watched them play house in my living room.

"You be the Daddy and I'll be the Mommy," my daughter said. After a quick "okay" from the boy, he began to give my daughter things to do around the house. But she just ignored him.

After a moment or two he sat down and told her to go wash the dishes. Again my daughter just ignored him. Finally the little boy tapped her on the shoulder and said, " I'm the Dad and I'm in charge. Why aren't you listening to me?"

"I'm the Mommy," she politely replied. "It's my job to let you think you're in charge."

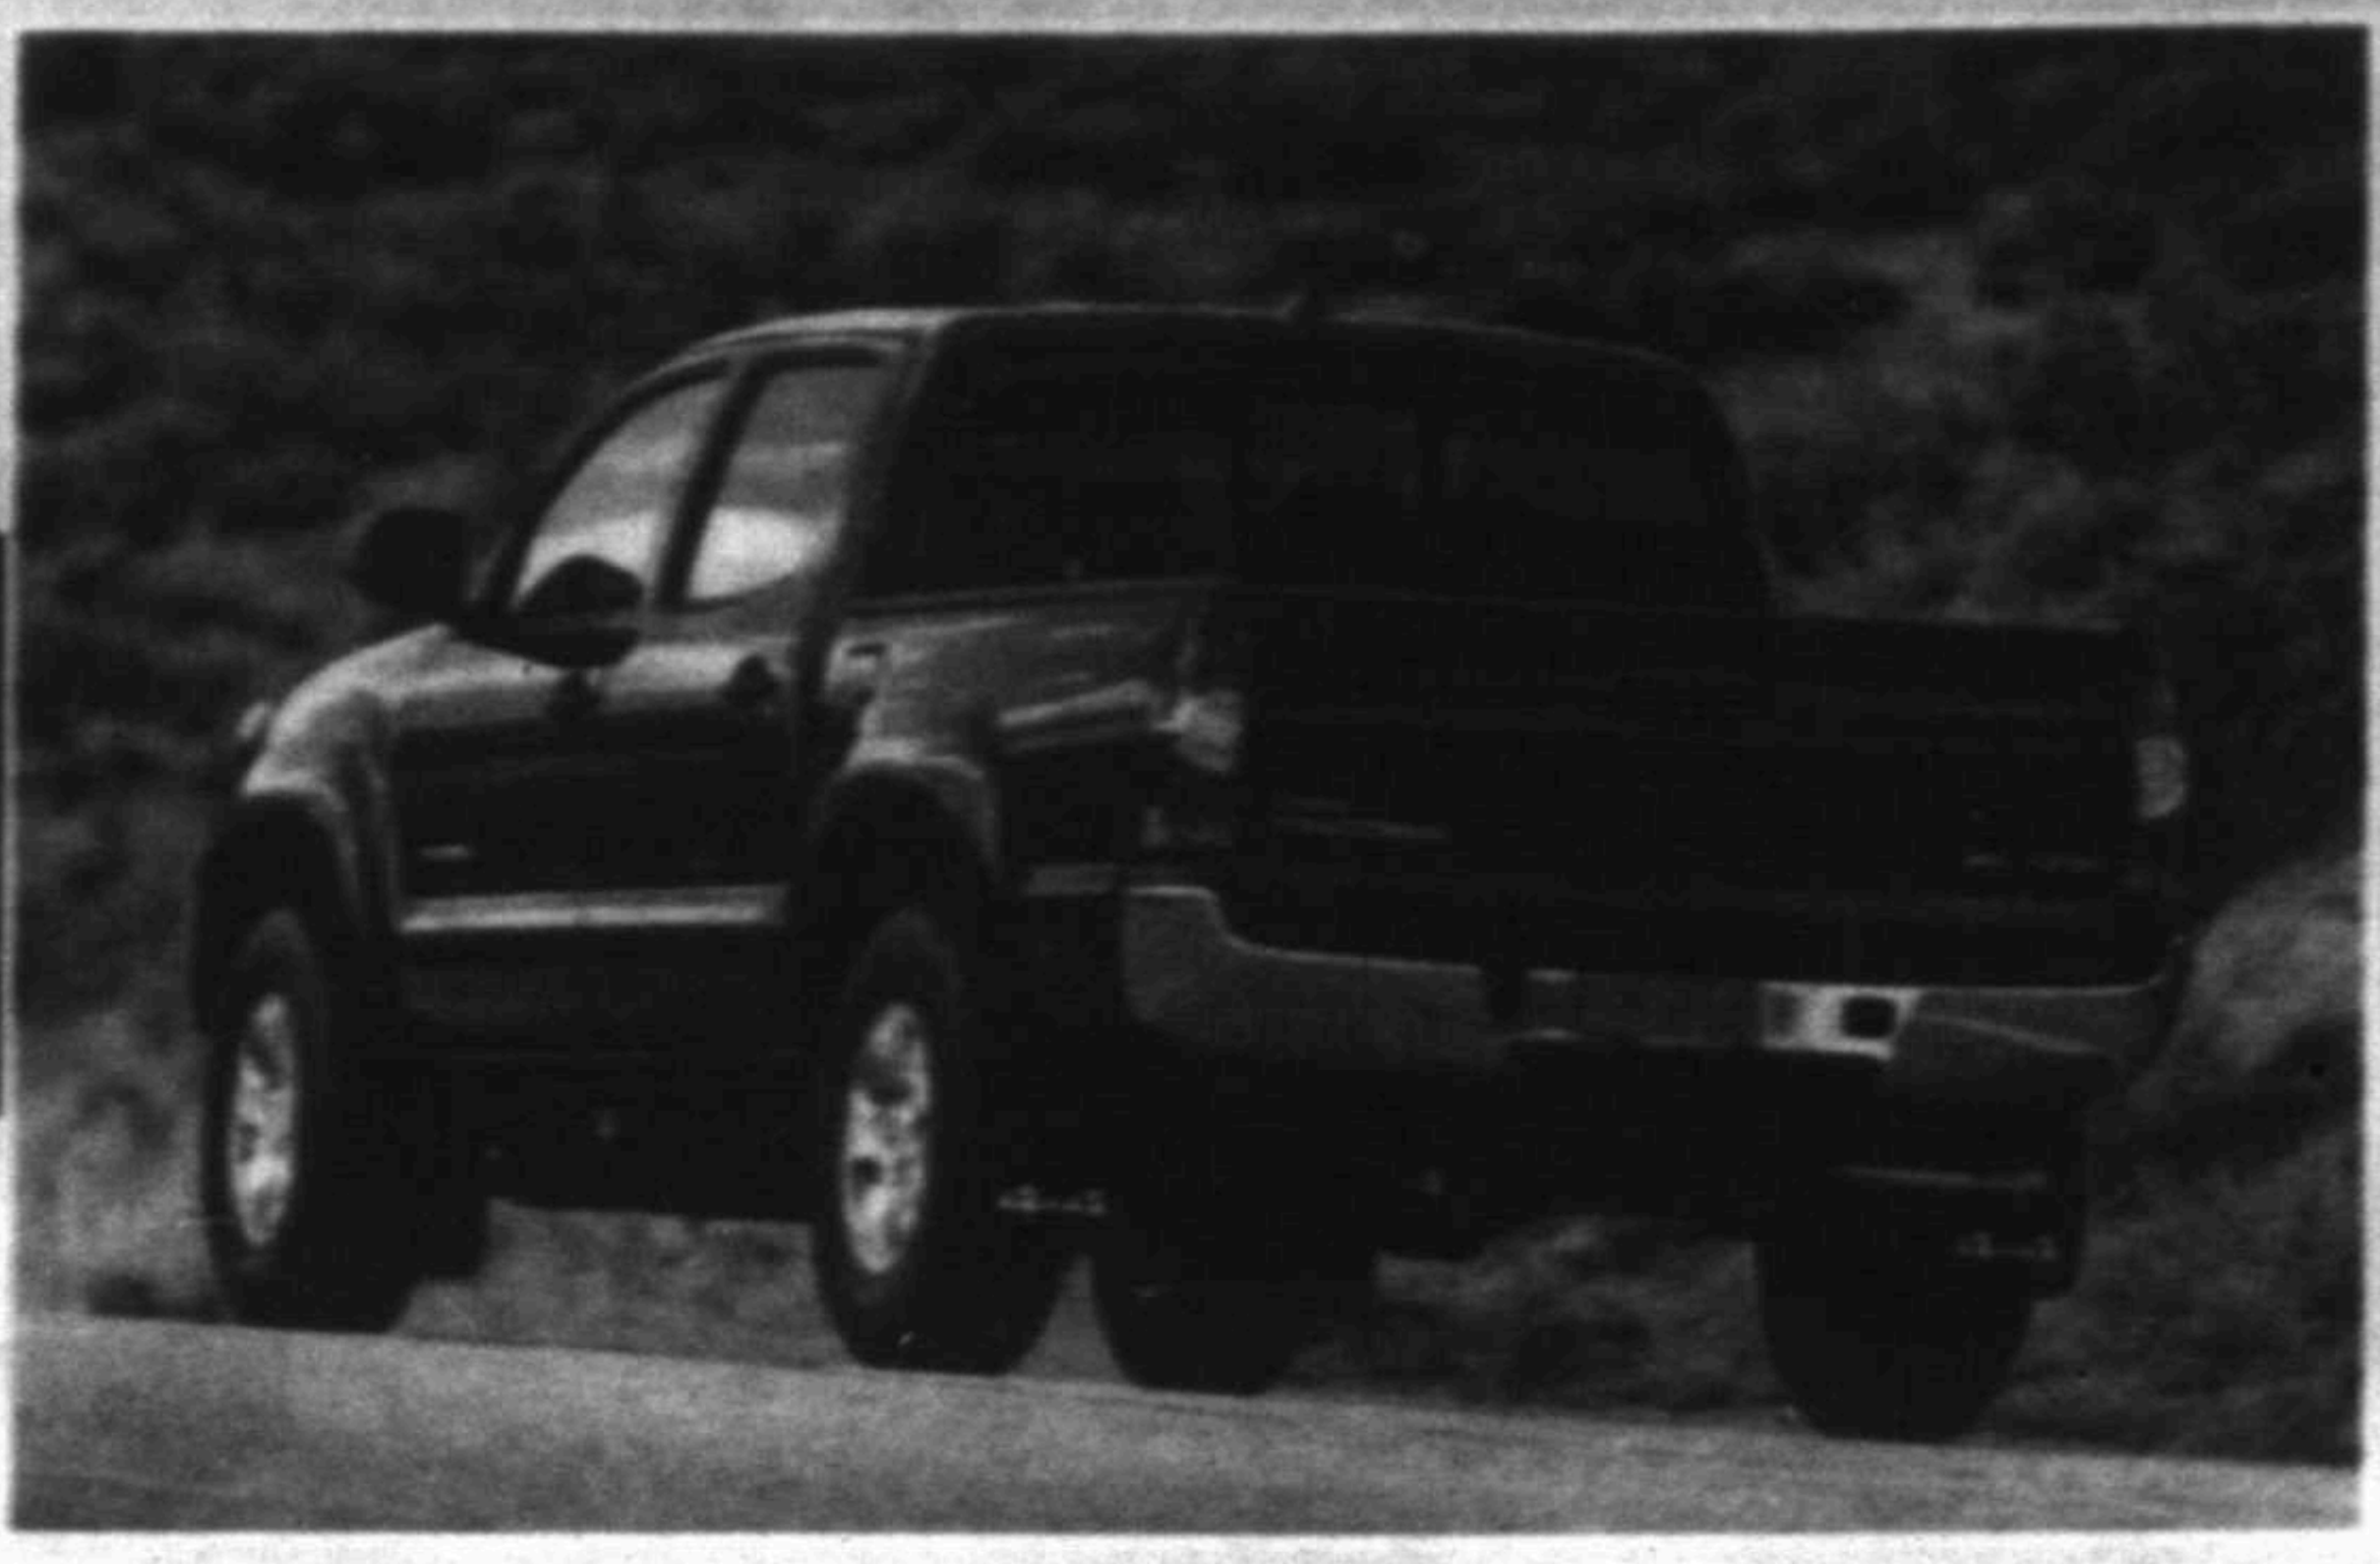
Restyled & Redesigned:
2012 Toyota Tacoma pickup truck

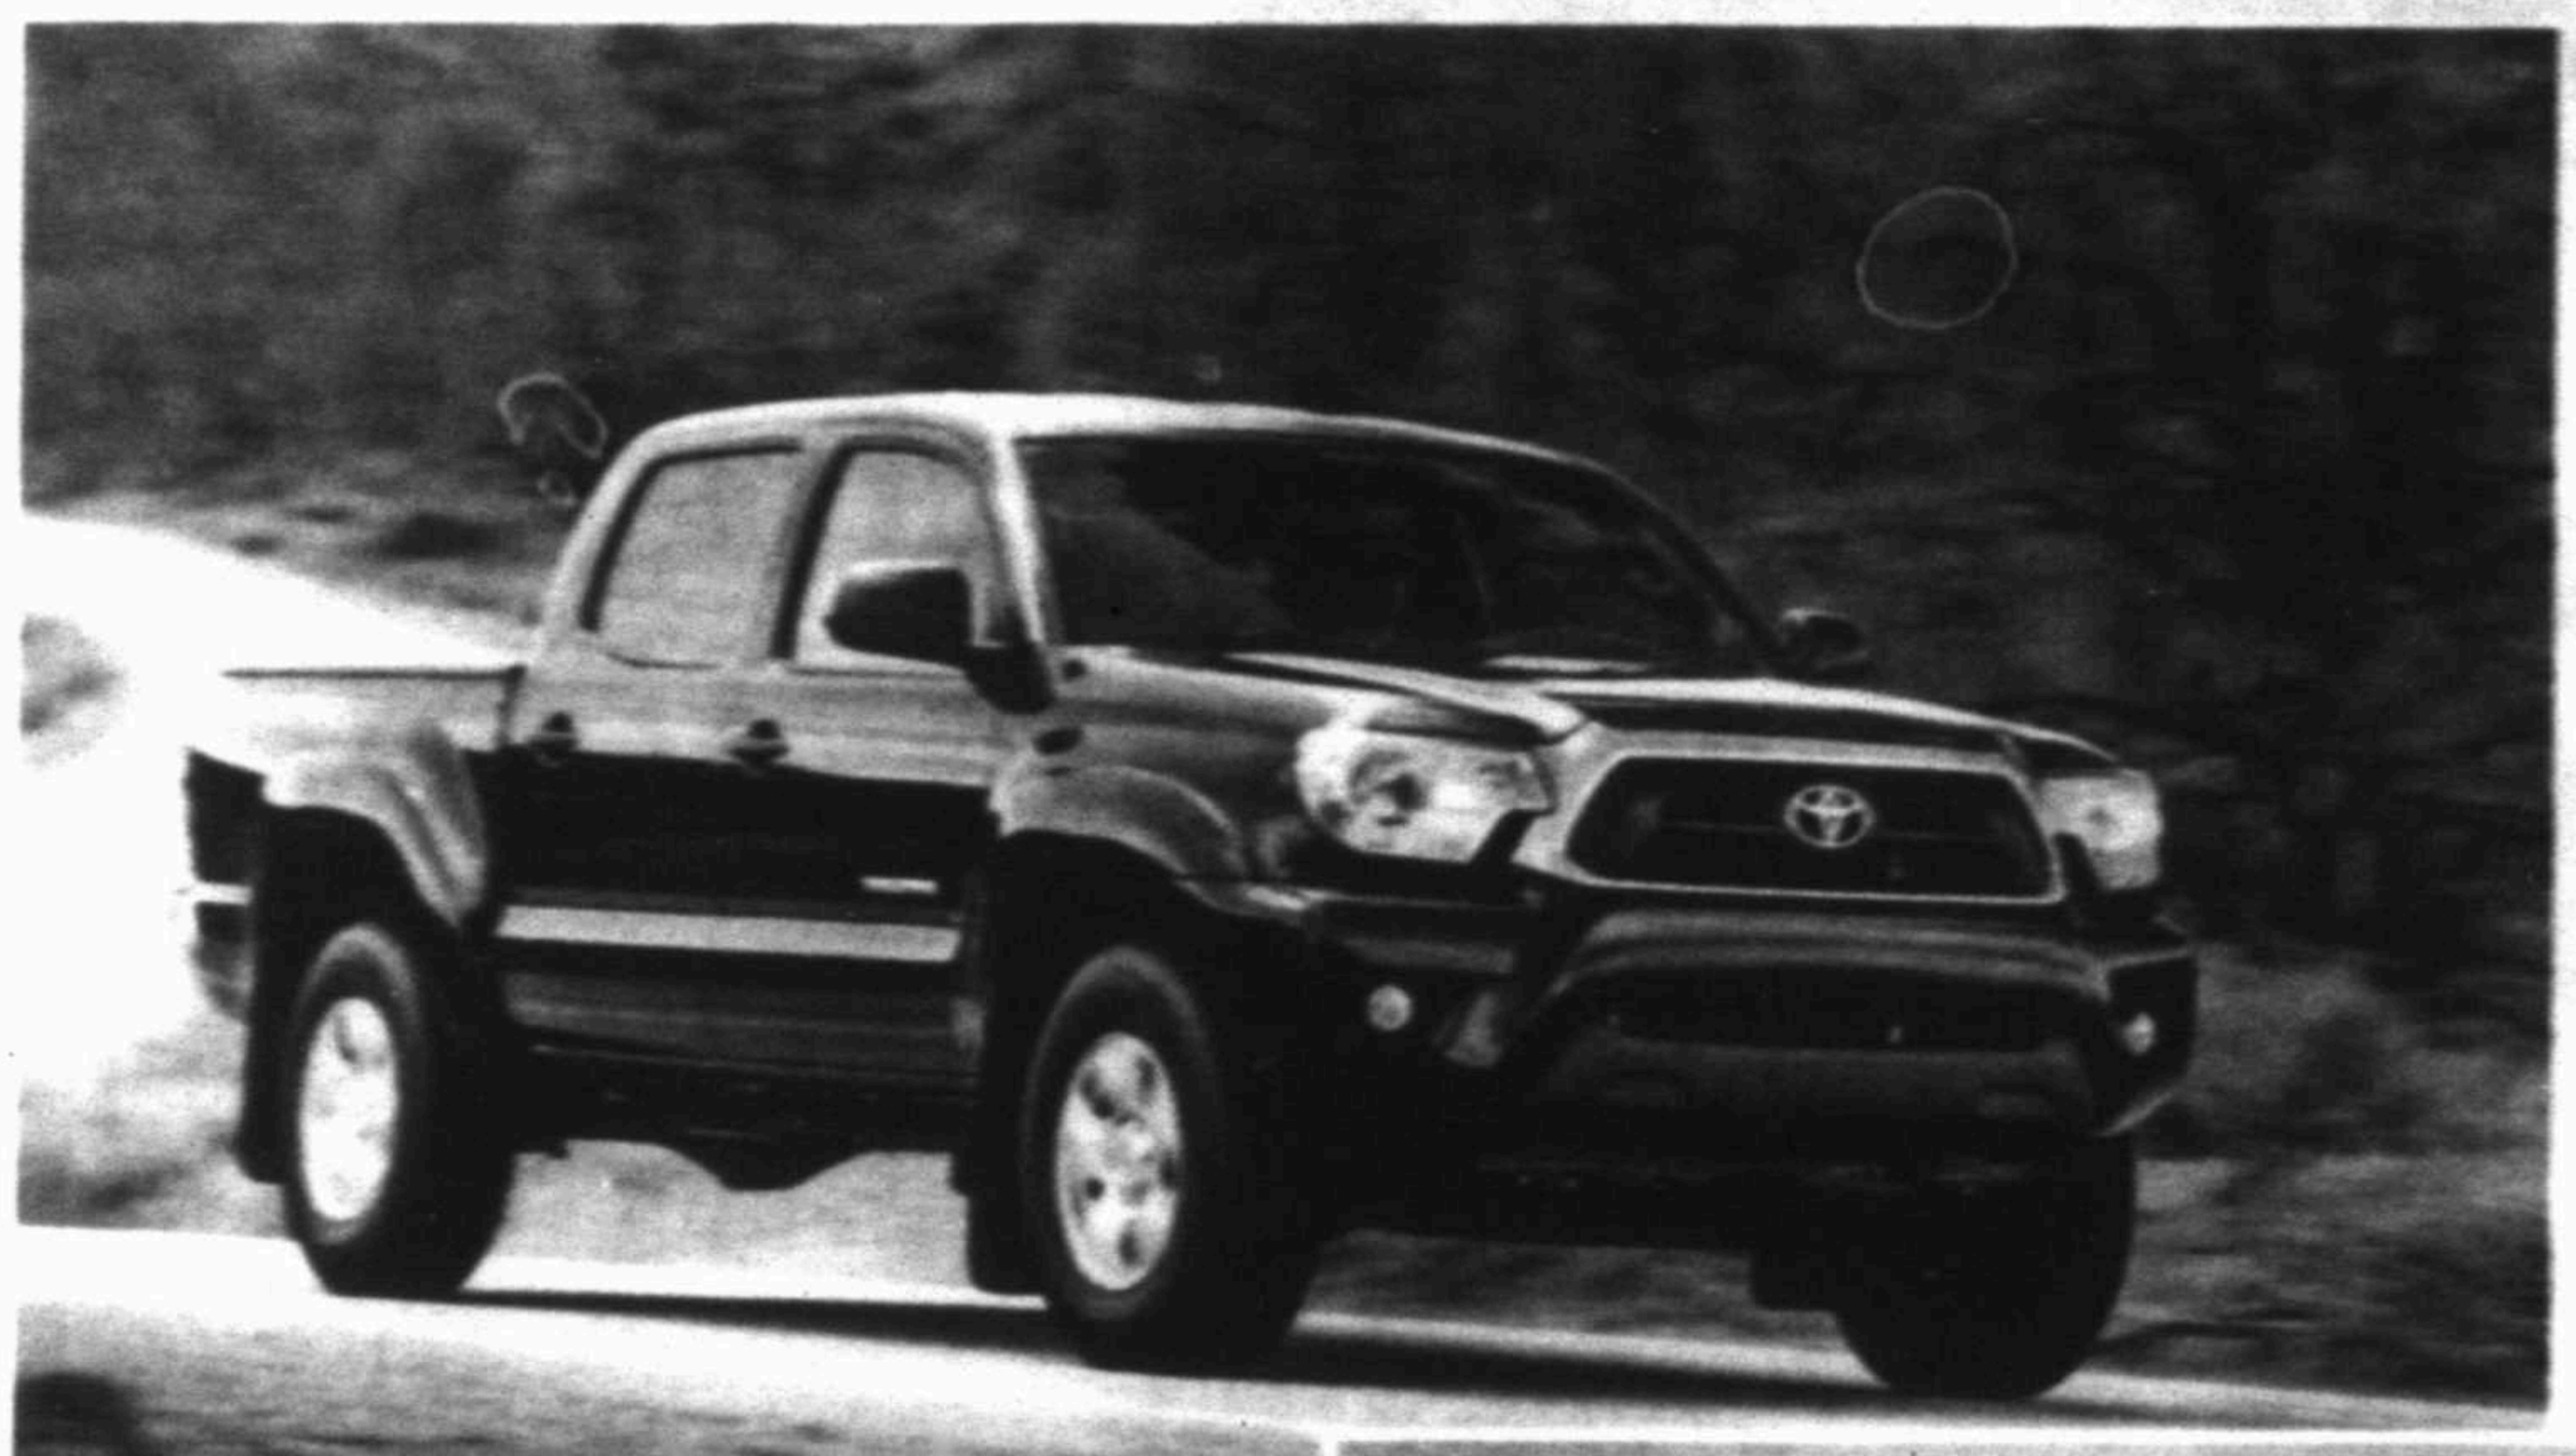


First Look

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Motor News Media Corporation

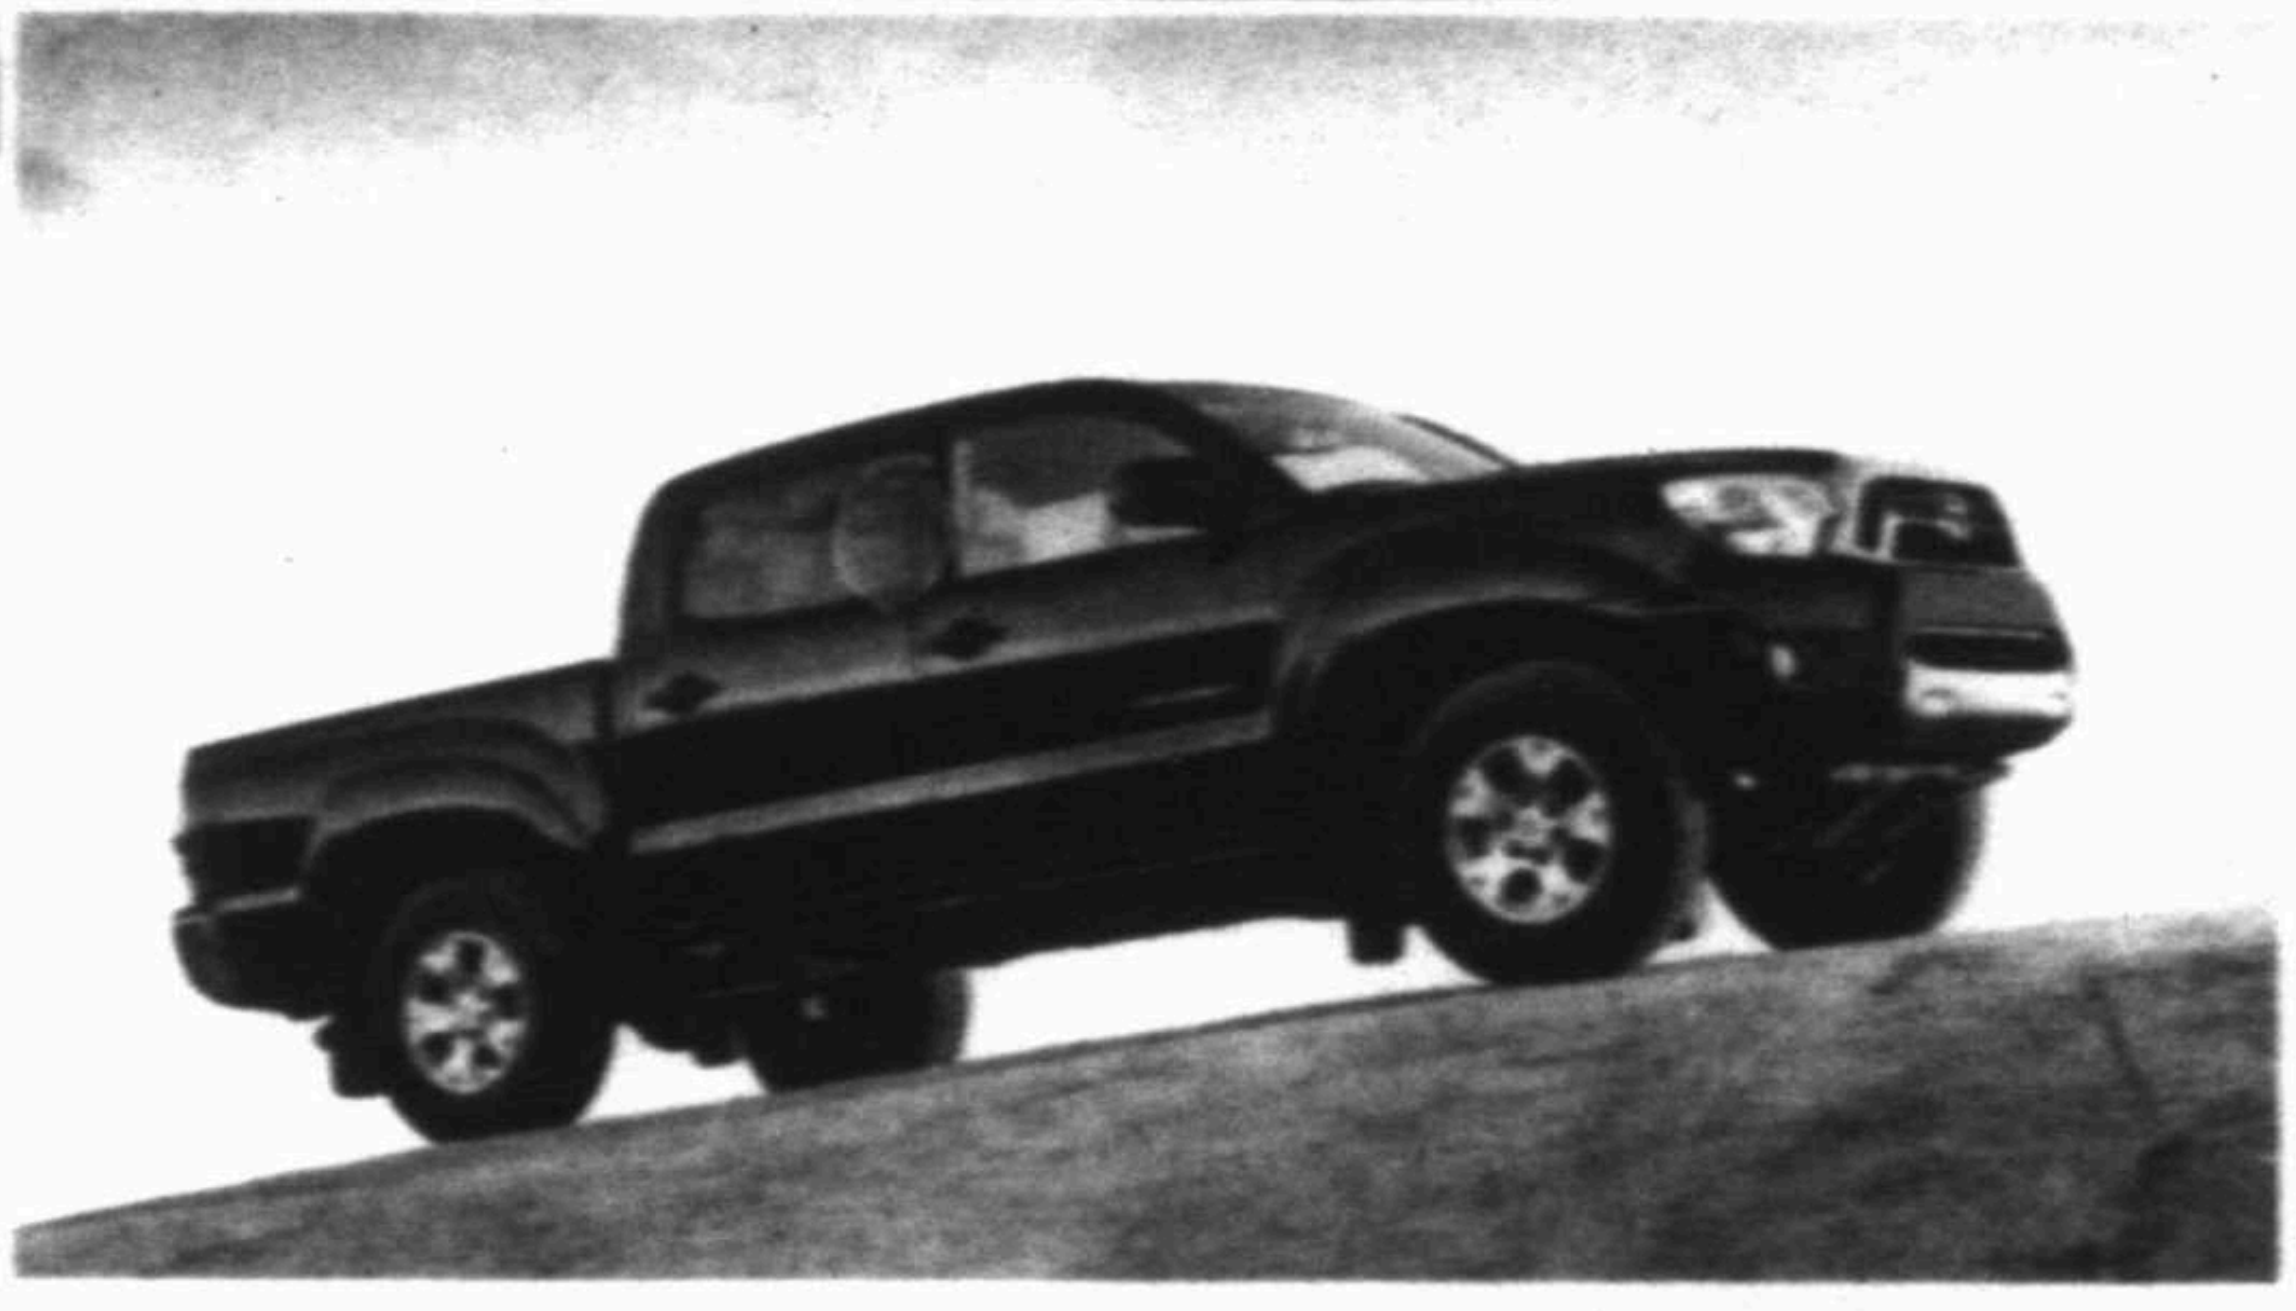
The Toyota Tacoma pickup truck offers drivers a restyled exterior look and a redesigned, upgraded interior-in all models this model year. New changes add comfort, usability and audio/infotainment performance. The 2012 Tacoma has a new look from the A-pillar forward, with new front grilles on all grades. In addition to a new hood, Tacoma also receives new headlamps, new upper and lower bumper areas including an updated fog lamp housing.



The Tacoma is available in a wide variety of configurations and models including a choice between four-cylinder and V6 engines, and 2WD and 4WD drivetrains. Power for the Tacoma is generated by one of two engines: a 2.7L four-cylinder and a 4.0L V6. In both engines, variable valve timing with intelligence (VVT-i) provides strong low-end and mid-range torque. An Electronic Throttle Control System with intelligence helps optimize performance and fuel economy. The V6 can be teamed with either a six-speed manual or a five-speed automatic transmission. Four-cylinder models offer a choice between a five-speed manual gearbox or a four-speed automatic transmission.

To take performance even higher, TRD offers a 4.0L V6 supercharger kit capable of generating 304 horsepower and 334 lbs.-ft. of torque also available for other Tacoma V6 models.

Tacoma configurations are based on three cab types: Regular Cab, Access Cab, and the four-door Double Cab. The rear doors on Access Cab models open to 80 degrees to give passengers easy ingress and egress. Bold overfenders distinguish PreRunner and 4x4 models.



PreRunner models combine the 4x2 drivetrain with the 4x4's raised riding stance and styling. Double Cab models offer a roof rack system with crossbars that deploy from the roof rails.

The Tacoma X-Runner performance truck, unique in the entire compact truck category, returns for 2012 and features the 4.0L V6 engine bolted to a six-speed manual gearbox and specially tuned chassis. The X-Runner's Access Cab design incorporates a full body kit, a hood scoop and integrated fog lamps. The color-keyed monochromatic exterior comes in three colors – Barcelona Red, Black Sand Pearl and Nautica Blue Metallic, which is new for 2012.

Inside the passenger cabin, customers will find a new center-instrument panel design with a revised gauge cluster, along with a new steering wheel. A redesigned center stack adds new air conditioner/heater controls and power point locations. The new Tacoma interior also gets a new look with a black high-contrast center console, switch plate covers, dash and upper door trim, while the SR5 grade features a new seat fabric design.

Details that add up to more comfort and function include a larger, higher-resolution display for the available back-up camera (3.3-inch vs. 2.4-inch), a new temperature gauge, available rear-view mirror with compass and HomeLink, vanity lamps added to sun visors, an additional overhead storage compartment and, on Access Cab models, a new rear-console storage box. All models now feature two front-deck "D" rings for added versatility.

With owners using their trucks for hard work and hard play, Tacoma offers new heavy-duty all-weather flooring in the 2012 Tacoma Access and Double Cab models, while the more specialized TRD Sport and Off-Road models offer new water-resistant fabric protection seats.
