Six Men And Six Women Compose Jury To Hear Alexander Pantages Case

BOX FILLED IN TRIAL OF RICH SHOW MAGNATE

Sexes Equally Represented In Group to Judge Testimony

PARENTS SELECTED

State Seeks Panel of Mothers and Fathers to Hear Charges

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2. (UP)—A jury evenly divided with six men and six women members, was selected late today to hear the trial of Alexander Pantages, the multimillionaire showman accused of attacking 17-year-old Eunice Pringle when she applied to him for booking.

JURY COMPOSED OF PARENTS SOUGHT

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2. (UP)—A prosecution attempt to obtain a jury of mothers and fathers to hear Eunice Pringle's accusation that she was assaulted by Alexander Pantages developed today as selection of a jury to try the wealthy showman continued through its second day.

District Attorney Fitts said that he felt they would be best equipped to understand the problems encountered by the 17-year-old dancer. Defense attorneys indicated they would not oppose the "parent" panel.

Parents in Box

Attorney W. I. Gilbert, of the defense, declared he believed that mothers and fathers of children would be less inclined to place credibility in the story of Miss Pringle than unmarried women and bachelors. There were six parents in the jury box this afternoon.

Gilbert's remark concerning the "credibility" of Miss Pringle's accusation that she was attacked by Pantages when she sought booking on his vaudeville circuit, was reflected in examination of prospective jurors.

Gilbert's associate, Joe Ford, asked talesmen if they would "keep in mind any motive" that the dancer may have had in telling her story of the alleged attack.

Frame-Up" Defense

This was interpreted to mean that the defense would renew Pantages' earlier charges that the incident which ended when Miss Pringle ran screaming from his secluded consultation room was a "frame-up."

The accused showman, who rose from a humble position during the Alaskan gold rush to that of one of the West's foremost theater and sporting figures, said today that he would testify in his own behalf.

"I am going to tell my story of the things that occurred on the day she says I attacked her," Pantages told newspaper reporters.

"I hope to clear myself of the charges, but that is all I have to say now."

Prolonged Hysteria Prevents Quiz Of Woman In Card Quarrel Slaying

Myrtle Bennett Asks Forgiveness

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 2. (UP)—Mrs. Myrtle Bennett who fatally shot her husband after a quarrel over a bridge game Sunday night continued to receive closest attention of jail attendants tonight after three days of almost continuous weeping and hysteria.

The 34-year-old widow slept briefly for the first time Tuesday night after her request to see her husband's body was granted. The body was sent to Carmi, Ill., Bennett's former home, for burial.

In moments of apparent sensibility, Mrs. Bennett repeated that she had been unhappy since the death of her two children at birth. Bennett was a prosperous perfume salesman whose desire for social position Mrs. Bennett said she did not share.

"Can God ever forgive me?" the widow murmured repeatedly.

J. Francis O'Sullivan, attorney for Mrs. Bennett, said no attempt would be made yet to obtain release on bond, which usually is prohibited under the charge of first degree murder.

When her husband failed to make his bid at bridge Mrs. John G Bennett shot and killed him in the quarrel that followed in their Kansas City apartment. The Bennetts, shown above, had been married 11 years She is charged with first degree murder.

SOLDIERS KEEP MARION QUIET

Three Dead, Six Dying In Latest Outbreak

MARION, N. C., Oct. 2. (AP)—Three dead, six believed dying and 10 others in the hospital here today brought state troops to Marion for the second time in two months to put a stop to textile strike troubles.

Two men were killed outright and another died several hours later as a result of riot at the gates of the Marion Manufacturing company cotton mill in East Marion this morning. Who fired the first shot was a question of dispute. Leaders of the United Textile Workers' Union asserted it was fired by sheriff's forces. The sheriff asserted a striker fired first, after officers had used tear gas guns.

The mill was the scene of a strike on nine-week's duration, which ended Sept. 11 in an agreement whereby the East Marion mill and the Clinchfield Manufacturing company's mill were reopened on a non-union basis. Members of the textile union recently claimed the agreement was not being lived up to by the East Marion mill management and at 1 o'clock this morning several score of workers of the night shift walked out in an unexpected strike.

Rev. Clark Says 'Ma' Wanted Him To Model Conduct Like Ken Ormiston

Broken Hearted Minister Brings Name of Noted Radio Man Into Balm Suit at Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 2. (UP)—The ill fated affair, whether love or not, of Mrs. Minnie (Ma) Kennedy and the Rev. H. H. Clark, who is suing her for $50,000 breach of promise, resurrected in court here today the famous kidnaping of Aimee McPherson, Mrs. Kennedy's celebrated daughter.

Clark, who wooed Mrs. Kennedy and then when he thought he had won her hand, learned according to his testimony that she only "was playing" with him, testified that she had advised him to be like Kenneth Ormiston — "he wouldn't breathe a word against Aimee."

Ken Radio Operator

Kenneth Ormiston was the radio operator whose name was linked with that of the flaming-haired evangelist, daughter of Mrs. McPherson, after her disappearance and subsequent sensational reappearance on the California desert.

"Mrs. Kennedy held up Ormiston as a model and said I should be like him," Clarke told the court.

Clark apparently was calm enough today when he resumed his story of having fallen violently in love with Mrs. Kennedy, who at one time aided her daughter in conducting the affairs of Angelus temple in Los Angeles. Yesterday Clark wept on the stand while relating the details of his suit for the hand of Mrs. Kennedy.

Known as "Mrs. Clark"

For months he said he had known her as "Mrs. Clark," that they had become acquainted principally because their names were the same and that on last Feb. 18 he heard for the first time that Mrs. Clark really was Mrs. Kennedy.

"I heard from her own lips then for the first time, 'yes, I am Ma Kennedy,'" he said.

"She called me up and asked me to meet her at the Olympic hotel. She wanted me to take a taxi to the edge of the city and talk things over."

"Did you go?" asked his counsel.

"No, indeed, I was afraid of my

VETERANS TO ELECT TODAY

Boston Wins 1930 Meeting Of American Legion

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 2. (AP)—Executing an about-face from glamorous celebrations, the American Legion went briskly to business today, selecting Boston for the 1930 convention and paving the way for the election tomorrow of a national commander and other officers.

It required only one ballot for Boston to win over Los Angeles, which had inquired in slogans seeking the convention—"orange juice or beans?" but the fact that no city announced a bid for the 1931 meeting indicated that maybe the legionnaires plan to try both.

As the polling got under way supporters of each city acknowledged votes with cheers. The final vote was 742 for Boston, 400 for Los Angeles, with Porto Rico not casting its six votes. The national executive committee will fix the date for the 12th annual convention.

With the end of their parade—the Big Bertha of the legion's period of merrymaking—the delegates settled down to internal politics. In the caucuses three names as contenders for national commander were mentioned often. They were O. L. Bodenhamer, of El Dorado, Ark.; Albert L. Cox, of Raleigh, N. C., and Ralph T. O'Neil, of Topeka, Kan. As several large delegations have not revealed their choice for commander, there is the possibility of "dark horses" entering the race.

HOOVER SHORN OF POWER TO SET TARIFFS

Senate Votes Down President's Wishes on Flexible Provision.

CONGRESS IN SADDLE

Right to Finally Determine Levies Brought Back To Legislators

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—The senate today ran counter to the wishes of President Hoover and adopted by a vote of 47 to 42 a Democratic plan restoring to congress the power to enact emergency tariff rates now enjoyed by the executive.

The proposal, a substitute for that offered by the finance committee Republicans, would change the flexible tariff policy adopted by the Republicans seven years ago and make congress instead of the president the final arbiter of the findings of the tariff commission. As a safeguard against general revision, it would limit congressional action to the rate or rates dealt with in the commission's reports.

Majority Suffers Upset

Upsetting the Republican administration majority in the first major test on the tariff bill in the senate, a combination of Democrats and Republican Independents, which is fighting the measure, showed it had the votes to write its own bill if the coalition remains intact.

Headed by Senators Borah, Idaho, and Norris, Nebraska, 13 Republicans joined 34 Democrats in overriding the president. It was the third time this session that an almost identical lineup in the senate has voted down an expressed wish of the new executive. The other two occasions were in votes on putting the export debenture plan in the farm bill.

Simultaneous Report

The Republican Independents were determined to limit the present revision to increases in agricultural rates and their leaders were hopeful tonight of obtaining this objective as a result of the victory of the coalition today. However, Republican regulars were counting on a new lineup when particular rate schedules, including increases on many industrial products, were reached.

As a substitute for the administration Republican group's plan to continue the flexible tariff policy virtually as it exists, the Democratic proposal provides that the tariff commission, after investigating differences in cost of production of foreign and domestic articles, shall report to the president and the congress simultaneously, and that congress shall say whether the rates suggested in the commission's reports are to be made effective.

At present, the president proclaims the rates or refuses to act on the commission's findings.

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 2. (AP)—Searching for three men described by Brig. Gen. Jacob Wolters as "bad actors" 10 Texas rangers and several squads of Texas national guardsmen tonight launched a series of raids in this county which Wolters characterized as "the beginning of the actual cleanup."

General Wolters indicated the raids would be general and had no particular reference to the investigation of the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes, but it was hoped that some of the prisoners taken might be able to give valuable testimony in that investigation. The three "bad actors" he said, were men with criminal records who are known to have been here very recently.

At 11 p. m., 20 men and women, two of the men being among the "bad actors" General Wolters had wanted, had been arrested. The pair was released on the understanding that an appearance before the military court tomorrow was necessary.

Unmasked Bandits Rob Wichita Filling Station at Point of Gun

Hijackers Obtain $45 From Cash Register, Then Bind Operator of Station to Bed and Flee

In the wake of several crackings and robberies in Wichita Falls during the last several days, W. L. Guthrie, proprietor of the Junction Filling station about six miles from the city on the Iowa Park road was held up by three unmasked bandits about 9:30 o'clock Wednesday night and robbed of $45 in cash.

The men drove up to the filling station just as Guthrie was closing up for the night, he told police. They asked for gasoline for their car and when the tank had been filled, they handed him a bill in payment. As he opened the cash register to obtain the change, one of the men produced a gun and ordered him to "stick 'em up and keep your mouth shut."

He obeyed and the other two emptied the cash drawer of its $45, strewing checks on the floor in their haste to obtain the cash. Then they took Guthrie into the back room of the filling station, where he had his bedroom, threw him on the bed and tied him securely with the sheets, throwing a quilt over his head so that he could not see which way they drove off.

Guthrie was not discovered until some time later when his son entered the place and found him tied. The son immediately drove to Wichita Falls and notified the police. It was then 11 o'clock, the bandits having been gone from the place for an hour and a half.

Wichitan Held for Burglary After Girl Tells of Midnight Intruder

Burglary charges were filed against W. G. (Jiggs) Merrett Wednesday morning after Miss Cora McCulley, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. McCulley, 1314 Twenty-fifth street, had told county authorities of a midnight intruder who entered her room several nights ago and stilled her outcries with the point of a knife held against her heart. In a statement made to Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, who took the complaint, the girl said she had awakened in her room to find a light flashing in her face and a knife against her heart. Noises from another part of the house eventually alarmed the intruder who is believed to have fled through a window, the parents of the girl reported. # HUNTING RULES FOUND IN LIFE

Evangelist Tells Club of Success Laws

Rules for successful hunting were recommended to members of the Optimist club as rules for successful living by Charle Taylor, evangelist, at the regular weekly meeting of the club at the Kemp hotel Wednesday noon.

"Three requisites for the good hunter are a high aim, keeping low, and retrieving his game," the speaker said. "The aimless life is the most useless thing in this world. As in hunting, you should in life make yourself a part of the scenery, or you defeat your own purposes. Life is not just a bombastic appearance. The man who delivers the goods is the one who knows the art of self-concealment. There are some who mistake ostentation for quality, but if you are any good the world soon will find it out."

Musical numbers given by the Taylor party included vocal duets by Charlie and Laurie Taylor, whistling solos by the former, and a singsong led by the evangelist. They were introduced by W. E. Young.

It was announced by Marvin Smith, president, that C. P. Brewer, University of Texas extension department professor, would speak at the next weekly meeting of the club.

Organization of the Junior Optimist club was announced by Rev. Patrick Henry, under whose direction that movement is going forward. O. R. Hartt reported a recent visit with Rev. Leslie Miller of Wichita Kan., who formerly was a member of the Optimist club here, and pastor of the Grace Methodist church.

Buck Jones

Today Wichita Falls will see the famous Buck Jones of Hollywood, an internationally known film star. He appears twice with the mammoth Robbins Bros. four-ring circus—the largest in the world giving a street parade. The street parade is given at noon and will be the only one given here this year.

Wichita Circus Fans to See Only Parade of Year at Noon Today

Even before the morning reader begins scanning his newspaper the big circus will have arrived in Wichita Falls from the west. There will be a scurrying and hurrying of the hundreds of employes of the Robbins Bros. circus to get their tents up and begin the necessary preparations for the street parade—the only one to be given in Wichita Falls this year and it takes place promptly at noon.

The parade will pass down the principal business thoroughfares of the city and it is a safe bet that Wichita Falls will witness a record-breaking crowd for this novelty in circus life. The first performance will begin at 2 o'clock and, in the main top, Buck Jones, the Hollywood film star, appears in person with his entire moving picture company and his moving picture horses, including the famous "Silver." His performances are the most thrilling and entertaining brought to this city in years.

CIRCUS LINE OF MARCH

The tentative line of march for the Robbins Bros. circus parade is as follows:

From circus lot near the ball park up Seventh street to Ohio, from Ohio to Eighth and from Eighth to Scott avenue, then from Scott to Seventh street. Here the plan is to turn down Seventh street back to the circus lot.

The parade is called the "Parade of Nations" and is nearly two miles long. It is led by woman rider who acts as a courier to the cavalcade. She rides astride a black charger. Then follows the luxuriant tableaux scenes, glistening in the sun with their gold leaf coatings. Each of the principal nations of the world is represented by a resplendent gold covered wagon. Performers wearing the native costumes upon each of the wagons are there in all of their colorful dresses. Then there are bands galore—six of them—huge calliopes appealing to the multitude giving a good account of themselves. The clowns are to be found in all sizes, shapes and forms.

The wild animals are all in open cages so that they can be seen plainly. These include the 30 elephants and camels and stretch down an entire block. Horses and camels appear wearing Oriental blankets and costumes of the most brilliant type. Alongside are the caretakers all fitted out in costumes that attract the eye.

The performance both afternoon and evening take up two hours. There are acrobats from foreign countries, athletes from all parts and novelty performers that give a remarkable display of their ability. The evening performance begins at 8 o'clock.

Kellogg's PEP BRAN FLAKES

BETTER BRAN FLAKES

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach and bowels, poor appetite, or lack of energy warns us that our bowels are sluggish, we risk forming the laxative habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach trouble. Its originator tried it in many thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal conditions. You can get the generous bottles of it from drug stores in any part of the world.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. Millions have proved this. That's why it is today the world's most popular laxative!

FIRE PROGRAM PLANNED HERE

Radio and Church Talks to Open Week

A program over radio station KGKO Monday night will open the annual observance of Fire Prevention week here, it was decided Wednesday night at a meeting of Junior chamber of commerce committees.

Mayor J. W. Akin, Fire Chief J. L. McClure and Mrs. Wenonah Roach Ware will give talks over the radio in connection with the week. J. V. Allred will be announcer.

Various luncheon clubs were assigned to members of the junior chamber, who will bring the observance of the week to the attention of business men by speeches at the luncheons. Several local merchants have agreed to arrange window displays presenting the plea for fire prevention. Ministers have signified their willingness to make announcements from the pulpits Sunday. Speakers will appear in the grade schools during the week to bring the observance to the attention of children of the city. Fire Chief McClure will direct fire drills in all but the Junior college during the week.

A questionnaire to be answered by school children under the direction of English teachers in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades of all schools is being prepared. Themes will be required by all English teachers, and art teachers will direct the making of posters presenting the idea of fire prevention. The junior chamber has offered a silver loving cup to the school presenting the best combination of answered questionnaire, theme and poster.

Hobbs Witness Faces Term In Training School

A 15-year-old girl who last week figured as a leading defense witness in the criminal assault trial of Art Hobbs Wednesday faced a training school sentence on a delinquency complaint filed by James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer. The girl, who styles herself "Dutch," is being held in the juvenile ward of the Wichita county jail pending her hearing before Judge W. W. Cook on Saturday.

The young girl told the Hobbs jury last week that she had been a member of the creek-bottom party which resulted last July in the filing of assault charges against the young man.

life when I knew who she was. We went to a restaurant, I told her that no self respecting man or woman could stand in a pulpit and preach purely after what we had done.

"She told me I was talking like a spoiled boy and threatened me and said she was going to have me arrested. I told her I had a revolver in my room and that I was going home to end it all. She said 'that's a nice way to talk to a lady.'"

During their wordy battle in the restaurant, said Clark, they almost made up.

"In fact," he said, "we stood up, leaned across the table and kissed, but we soon fell to quarreling again."

Silently, Mrs. Kennedy wept while her attorney read from a manuscript Clark admitted having written at the time their friendship ended. In it he pledged himself to "defend her reputation."

Her weeping continued unabated when Clark was questioned about the first time he ever went to a hotel room with Mrs. Kennedy.

"Did you resist?" he was asked.

"My resistance was broken down," he replied.

"Did you call for help or make an outcry?"

"No sir."

Postal Inspector Jails Fraud Suspect Here

Jim Carter, alias Elmer D. Barber, was arrested about 11 o'clock Wednesday morning by E. C. Wilkes, United States postoffice inspector, on a charge of using the mails to defraud. Charges were filed against the man Wednesday about noon and he was lodged in the city jail.

A date for a preliminary hearing on the charge was not set Wednesday, but if the prisoner demands a hearing, he will be taken before J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner, Friday afternoon, according to Inspector Wilkes. Bond was not set. In case he waives hearing, he will be held for the grand jury which will meet Nov. 18.

It was alleged that the man had sent several worthless checks in payment for goods ordered from mail order houses.

Women Are Free!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Legally, politically and socially woman has been emancipated from those chains which bound her. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has exploded the ridiculous theory that forced the stigma of inferiority upon a sex.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful, corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

ALL ENDS WELL FOR RICARDO

Immigrant Boy Sails for Home and Mother

By H. ALLEN SMITH

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (UP)—Ricardo Francisco's big toe was sticking woefully out of his boot as he wandered through Battery park, and there was an empty feeling in his stomach.

Ricardo is only 18, but he is a sturdy, raven-haired, black-eyed Portuguese lad, and his being here in a strange land, among strange, fast-walking people, didn't depress him in the least.

What did depress Ricardo was the thought that he had no money, save two thin dimes and the thought that he had no mother or father. Ricardo had never remembered seeing his mother or father.

Ricardo Ruminates

The Portuguese boy stopped at a hot dog stand. Laying out his two dimes, he ordered a sandwich and a glass of orangeade. And while he ate and drank, Ricardo Francisco ruminated upon the vagaries of fickle fate.

Back in Portugal Ricardo and his twin brother, Pedro lived with their uncle. And that uncle! He was a plain, unadulterated villain. A Simon Legree if ever there was one!

This uncle always told Ricardo and Pedro that their mother and father had died while the two boys were babies. Ricardo had tried to give him gratitude and obedience, in full measure. But the villainous old uncle was never satisfied. He was always throwing something at Ricardo and Pedro, or knocking them down with fists.

Finally, a year ago, Ricardo left. He sneaked away to a Portuguese seaport and sailed on a merchant vessel.

It's the very devil, Ricardo mused, not to have a mother and father, like most fellows have. But, then—

The raggedy lad wandered away from the hot dog stand and on up South street. He had heard about the seaman's church institute, where salty sailors from a thousand ports sit around and spin yarns. The institute is home to many a homeless sailor.

Reads Bulletins

Ricardo walked into the institute. He wandered over to the big bulletin board and read some of the notices. Nels Olsen's mother, back in Stockholm, wanted him to write. A purse containing $3.20 had been on the floor. Does anybody know where Jene Boskay is?

Suddenly Ricardo saw his own name; call at the desk; he dashed over to Delmar Roseberry, in charge of the mail desk. And after identifying himself by his discharge papers, black-eyed Ricardo got his letter.

It was from Pedro—good old Pedro! What's this! The old uncle is dead. Well!

Ricardo read on. His brain whirled. His eyes became misty and he swayed on his feet.

"We have got a mother, and she is fine," Pedro wrote. "Uncle told me just before he died. Our father is really dead. When he died while we were babies, uncle seized his estate and sent mother away. She has been living in poverty all these years. But she is back now, and the estate is half yours. I have sent letters to all the ports where you might be. Hurry home."

Ricardo is out on the broad Atlantic, holystoning the decks of a freighter. He'll be home before the week's out.

PASSION CRIME STIRS ITALY

Murderer of Five Marries Girl in Jail

CASSINO, Italy, Oct. 2. (UP)—One of the most amazing records of "crime passionnel" written into Italian police records in years reached a sordid and melodramatic climax today when Vincenzo de Silvestro, murderer of five persons, was married to Anna Benciveniga in the local jail as their four children and a crowd of moist-eyed convicts looked on.

De Silvestro, 44 years old, who is awaiting trial on charges of murdering the girl who jilted him, and four others, had lived with the woman who is now his wife during the score of years when he was a fugitive from justice.

He wept today—probably for the first time in his life—as the prison chaplain read the marriage ceremony which he requested in order to legalize his matrimonial position before the murder trial starts. His crime—which was committed in 1907—and the wild love which swept him from a peaceful life are glowingly described in one of the best novels of Gabriele D'Annunzio.

At the time of his crime, De Silvestro was a 22-year-old shepherd living in the open fields near Bondi. He fell madly in love with a beautiful peasant girl, Driade Disarro, who first welcomed his attentions and then rejected him for another suitor.

The quiet shepherd boy who had been so rudely jarred by life swore vengeance and nightly he crept to the straw hut in which the girl lay asleep. Awaiting an opportune moment, he shoved the point of a sawed-off gun into the wall of the hut and killed the girl. He then set fire to the hut and sat on a nearby hill, singing a love song and playing a guitar, as the little shack burned.

One of Driade's sisters, a girl friend and a man relative also were sleeping in the hut and they burned to death. Guido Dicorso, the rival lover who had supplanted De Silvestro, and Guido Disarro, the girl's brother, were nearby and saw the flames.

They ran to the scene of the fire, but as they approached the Shepherd boy shot his rival dead and wounded the other youth.

The slayer was then sentenced to life imprisonment, but officials failed to apprehend him and he started the long years of living as a fugitive—years of hiding and disguise which ended only a year ago. He lived much of the time with Anna Benciveniga and they cultivated a small field, confident that police could not discover him.

Police followed him and surrounded the house in which he was sought refuse. The fugitive attempted to escape by leaping from an upper story to an adjoining roof, but he broke both legs in the jump and was captured.

Gypsy Trip of Oil Operator and His Stenographer Revealed by Wife

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. (US)—The Gypsy trip of Arthur G. (Chico) Carruthers and Pauline (Chiquita) Dwyer, through the Southwest was pictured today in a bill for divorce filed by Mrs. Grace Carruthers.

The bill draws a vivid picture of that trip of the wealthy oil operator and his beautiful private secretary and their life on the diamond C ranch near Phoenix, Ariz.

The wife alleges that her wandering mate is guilty of conspiracy to conceal mutual property and seeks to levy on more than a million dollars' worth of property alleged to have been held in joint control.

Mrs. Carruthers said that Carruthers conspired with a local attorney and assumed the name of Mark Dalley to juggle his mortgages before "stealing" her motor car and taking Miss Dwyer on their love-tour of eight states.

Recently Mrs. Carruthers learned that the couple had been seen at the Diamond C ranch and she, accompanied by detectives raided the ranch but found only a note advising her the raid had been "tipped" and intimated that Carruthers and "Chiquita" had fled into Mexico—where they have since been reported.

DAWES VISITS HIS HOME TOWN

Ancestral Village Welcomes U. S. Ambassador

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

SUDBURY, England, Oct. 2.(US)—Gen. Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to Great Britain, returned to his "home town" Tuesday to learn that 300 years make considerable difference in the way one of his surname is received here.

It was from this mellow Suffolk town that back in 1638, William Dawes, a stone mason by trade and a Puritan by conviction, fled to seek his fortune in the new world—fled because his neighbors made life for one of his religious persuasion intolerable.

Today the descendants of these same neighbors turned out to greet the descendant of William Dawes. They filled the streets of this ancient town to welcome a man of their own stock whose forebears had helped to conquer a wilderness, and who has himself achieved one of its highest honors.

Ambassador Dawes' motor caravan passed through streets made gay with bunting up to the city hall, where Mayor Fitzgerald presented him with an illuminated scroll in a 16th century casket which gives him the freedom of the city. A silken cushion and a miniature room, of Stuart period, were given Mrs. Dawes.

In his speech of thanks Ambassador Dawes said:

"No one could have picked a better ancestor for an American family than a Puritan stone mason from Sudbury. A builder is not a destroyer. He is a constructor, not a critic, and he is a man who does not run with the crowd."

The ever growing demand for Vicks VapoRub, the external treatment for colds, has once more compelled a change in the familiar slogan.

Not long ago this slogan, made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," was raised to "21 Million." This figure too has been outgrown, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a jar for every family in the United States.

Unity Junior Members Honored At Luncheon

A brilliant society function opened the fall activities of the Unitd Junior club when Mesdames Staton Bonner, Jouette Bonner and J. L. Jackson Jr., the program committee for the year, were hostess to the personnel of the club Wednesday at the Country club in an unusually attractive luncheon.

Pink and green were the colors for the affair. The dinner cloth was covered with pink net and the lovely center was a Dresden china candelabra with tall green tapers. At each side were large Dresden china bowls filled with long sprays of queen's wreath, which formed graceful clusters and tendrils that hung over the edges of the table. Queen's wreath was also used down the center of the long table.

Little Dresden china dolls dressed in bouffant green skirts covering boxes of bonbons were individual favors. The service used was of Dresden china and green crystal.

The out-going and in-coming presidents were seated as honor guests at each end of the table. Mrs. W. S. Abbott, outgoing president, made a brief but lovely talk to the club members and Mrs. Raymond Myers, incoming president, responded with as gracious a speech.

A four-course luncheon that emphasized the pink and green motif in its cocktail and dessert colors was served to Mesdames W. S. Abbott, J. H. Barnard, J. M. Bonner, J. H. F. Bonner, C. W. Cahoon, C. E. Clough, J. T. Coleman, J. L. Jackson Jr., Alfred Miller, Allan Montgomery, Raymond Myers, Skeen Staley, Leslie Stringer, Harry White and Miss Florence Sammons.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Three Spanish senoras adorned the forum Wednesday as hostesses for the Spanish tea room.

◇ ◇ ◇

Downstairs, Mrs. T. M. Conrey met the guests and showed the way to the tea room. At the tea room door, Mrs. Bernard Martin and Mrs. G. B. Smedley were awaiting them. Mrs. Martin made a splendid announcer for the Parisian promenade and Mrs. Smedley, with a lace shawl draped over her head, had no time to do anything but receive her friends' greetings. Mrs. Martin duly received their money.

◇ ◇ ◇

There were numerous parties at the forum. Who could expect otherwise, when the lovely tea room furnished quite as lovely food. And no one seemed to worry over an "in town guest cover" charge. Forum members, you know, may have meals served without a cover charge and entertain out of town guests without a cover charge, but should one wish to take a Wichita Falls woman, the whole amount of 25 cents is charged for the guest, in addition to what they eat. It pays luncheers to belong to the forum.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. A. G. Holmes modeled with Miss Thelma Fisher in the Parisian's latest styles. We rather think Mrs. Martin began the announcing because we did not know Mrs. Holmes with one of those off-the-face, ears-covered hats. Perhaps some others did not know her. Her lovely hair was hidden.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mrs. Holmes said the morning glories and moonvines were blooming at her door. One dress she modeled was in dahlia and we said it was the color of morning glories. At any rate, she looked like a flower.

◇ ◇ ◇

Miss Thelma Fisher, who was such a Parisian young lady just the other day, was a sweet school girl today. She modeled suits and coats and dresses that the girl just going away to school might have wept to own.

◇ ◇ ◇

Every day one hears of lovely things that someone is going to give to the forum for their latest dream realization. The first thing we know, the tea shop will run over into another room.

◇ ◇ ◇

We saw two or three women having lunch who have lovely silver hair. We have decided that, it is the most softening and beautifying of colors and mean to let ours grow silver just as fast as it will.

◇ ◇ ◇

So many cooks have gone to the cotton fields; that is why perhaps so many housekeepers are seen day after day in the Spanish tea room.

◇ ◇ ◇

Or perhaps, the roses tempt them. From the time one enters the foyer until they are inside the tea room, radiant roses cluster in baskets and bowls of beauty.

EAT FIVE KINDS OF FOODS

Why Noted Scientist Places Sugar and Sugary Foods in the Daily Diet

A noted scientist reminds us that the many tasteful foods in which this country abounds may be classified into: (1) Vegetables and fruits. (2) Protein foods as meat, milk and eggs. (3) Cereals. (4) Sugar and sugary foods. (5) Fats and fat foods.

He reminds us that these five groups may serve as a guide in the selection of foods and the planning of meals. He points out that sugar and sugary foods have been charged from time to time with a variety of supposedly undesirable functions. Usually, on mere hearsay evidence, it has been said that sugar is fattening, or sugar harms the teeth, or sugar cloys the appetite.

As a matter of fact, however, he goes on to say, every physiologist knows that the essential principles in our food are, for the most part, devoid of taste. Sugars alone, of the carbohydrates, have a sweet and agreeable taste. With this exception, our essential foodstuffs, when pure, would soon pall on the palate.

In order that everyone may enjoy proper foods, use a dash of sugar in the cooking of vegetables to develop their freshness and flavor. Use a sprinkling of sugar to make grapefruit and other tart, fresh fruits delicious. Use sugar to enable everyone to enjoy the needed cereals. Use sugar in the making of delicious fruit and milk desserts. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Readers Club Honors President And Bride

Mrs. W. S. Pagan, new president of the Readers club, and Mrs. Ed Bristol, charming bride of a few weeks, were jointly honored by club members at luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Dixie Mathis, Mrs. Bristol's mother. Mrs. John W. Thomas and Miss Marguerite Fisher were assisting hostesses.

While ostensibly carrying out the year book program of a president's luncheon at the Mathis home, club members contrived to unite the two occasions, complimenting at once the new leader and the latest bride.

A lovely ivory miniature, "The Spanish Dancer" was presented to Mrs. Pagan as she was welcomed to the chair. Meanwhile a bejewelled basket, laden with shower gifts for the younger honoree, was spirited into the luncheon room. The gifts were presented by Mrs. Pagan who read an original verse written for the occasion by Miss Dorothy Nolen.

The day's program included an effective burlesque of Mrs. Pagan's distinguished work in "Three Live Ghosts" a Little theater play in which the reader starred last season. The impersonations were done by Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Bristol.

Junior Travel Club Has Splendid Program

Members of the Junior Travel club met on president's day at the home of Mrs. G. K. Wilson on Tenth street Wednesday afternoon. Hostesses with Mrs. Wilson were Mesdames Grover C. Johnson, R. O. Kenley Jr. and D. O. Johnson.

At a short business meeting, the resignations of three members were acted on. Those of Mrs. G. C. McCaleb and E. G. Thornton were accepted and Miss Iva Willis was transferred from active to associate membership. Three members at large were elected active members to fill their places, Mesdames D. O. Johnson, Clyde J. Brannan and John Humphrey.

The roll call was answered with essentials of success in club study, which brought out many interesting ideas.

Mrs. G. K. Wilson, chairman of the program committee, gave an outline of the program and explained that in the year's work, a map would be before the members so they might follow their travel course.

Mrs O. T. Alles, outgoing president, made her talk on "Yesterday," saying in part: "Yesterday is no problem, for it is past. We look back and see flaws in our work, but a most perfect looking structure shields many flaws.—Club work is not an attempt at perfection, but betterment. It is how we do things, the spirit we put in what we do that counts most of all.—As I turn the office of president over to Mrs. Johnson, there is one thing that does not go with it, the wealth of memories of the past two years.—What a store of happy memories I have.—"

Mrs. Grover C. Johnson, incoming president, responded with a talk on "Today."

She spoke from memory in her brief address:

"Yesterday
Has slipped away;
Take today and do our part,
As our part is given,—
That's the way to gladness, heart;
That's the road to Heaven.

"There are two days about which I never worry. One of these is yesterday.—The other is tomorrow. Tomorrow with all its possible adversities; its failures and mistakes, is far beyond the season of my mastery. Realizing the time and effort our program committee gave to make up this splendid course of study, a star of hope gleams on the brow of tomorrow. Today I realize fully that the office which I am assuming today will not be an easy task. For me to try to follow in the careful and successful footsteps of my predecessors could not be an easy task. I need and must have the cooperation of each club member in performing this duty. This I am sure I will have."

At the close of the meeting, refreshments noted for loveliness were served. Each plate held a miniature ice cream ship tinted in colors as if just setting out on a rosy sea. Each cake was marked J. T. C. and on each plate, a tiny suit case filled with bonbons was a place favor.

Members present were Mesdames O. T. Alles, W. H. Caldwell, F. T. Datson, E. T. Duff, D. G. Gray, Sam Holliday, Grover C. Jhonson, R. O. Kenley Jr., A. L. Lane, Thelbert Martin, W. A. McCarty, J. A. McFall C. C. Myers, I. R. Sheldon, W. P. Smith, Wayne Somerville, G. H. Watson, G. K. Wilson, D. W. Wilson, D. O. Johnson, John Humphrey.

EASY--The Love Story of a Modern Girl--

By Beatrice Burton

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy wanted to be an artist. She told John Lawler, handsome son of a banker and "catch of the town" that she would never marry. But when John came in his car to take her to her father's tiny book store, Ann-Marie's heart pounded violently. Later when she knew he wanted to embrace her, she resisted.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER II

"You don't want me to do—what?" His arms tightened around her.

"I don't want you to put your arms around me like this." She pushed him away from her.

He sat still, looking at her for a minute or two more.

Then suddenly he leaned over and started the engine of his car. It leaped forward through the puddles of Front street.

"Plenty of girls in this town don't feel about me the way you do," he said sullenly when the car was turning in Pleasant street. "Jeanie and Alice don't for intance."

Jeanie and Alice were Ann Marie's sisters.

"Jeanie and Alice don't like you a bit better than I do," Ann Marie answered in her soft gentle little way, after a pause. "Just because they're always calling you up, asking you to come over to our house, you mustn't think they're crazy about you . . . They're always calling up to ask boys to come over and 'make whoopee' all over the house. They're full of pep—and I'm not. I'm the sober one of the family."

That, of course, was miles from the truth.

For Ann Marie, who got up at 6 every morning, was Pep personified. She could do a day's work—and often did!—before Alice and Jeanie were dressed. And she always looked fresh as a white-and-yellow daisy.

"I don't see why you don't get a case on Alice or Jeanie, anyway," she said slowly as the car drew up before the house "They're both so pretty and—"

"Well, I'll tell you why I don't! Because I'm crazy about you!" John's voice sounded now as if he were angry "But I'm not going to be crazy about you very much longer—Let me tell you something, Ann Marie!"

And then he told her something that some women never learn no matter how long they live.

"When a man's in love with a girl and she won't let him make love to her," Johnny Lawler began, "why, naturally, he thinks she does not care very much for him. And, if he has any sense at all, he stops wasting his time on her. He forgets her. Puts her out of his mind."

Ann Marie gave a soft little laugh. "You talk as if love could be turned off and on like a water-faucet," she said, "How can a man forget a girl that he's crazy about?"

It took Johnny a minute or two to think up an answer for her.

"Oh, he starts running around with some other girl," he said at last "You know, there are a lot of pretty girls in the world, Ann Marie."

"Girls who will let a man make love to them all he wants to, you mean?"

"Sure. Plenty of them! Johnny nodded. "Most girls expect a man to make a fuss over them, and they're disappointed if he doesn't It's a thrill to make love and who doesn't want a thrill, I ask you?"

Ann Marie sat perfectly still . . . But she knew that she, for one, had not wanted a "thrill" a few minutes ago when she had put off getting into Johnny's roadster as long as she could . . . She knew she did not want one now if a "thrill" meant being kissed by Johnny Lawler. He never would be able to thrill her!

"Hello, there, honey. I stopped in with good News. And I mean good news!"

"So that's the way a man looks at it," she said to him softly. "If the girl he loves won't won't neck—why he gives her up for the girl who will. Is that it?"

"Well, that's a crude way of putting it," Johnny answered, "But it hits the nail on the head. You see, Ann Marie, when a man's crazy about a girl he wants her to show a little pep when he's around."

He stopped the car beside the curb in front of the old shabby brown house.

The windows of the lower floor were bright with yellow lamp-light and from within came the sound of swift lively music.

In the driveway at the side of the house a car was parked—a large light-colored closed car.

"Brooke Walters' old bus," said Johnny, opening the door of his own car for Ann Marie.

"He probably brought Jeanie and Alice home from downtown. They have been shopping all afternoon—and I suppose he's been tagging Jeanie around as usual," Ann Marie answered as she stepped out into the mist of rain, "He's going to take her to the dance tomorrow night—"

She stopped suddenly, and lifted her face to Johnny Lawler's face. It was like a pearl against the gray darkness, and her smile—even in the darkness—was enchanting.

"Perhaps you won't want me to go to the dance tomorrow night, Johnny," she said, "now that we've had this quarrel."

Her spirits sank at the thought of giving up the dance and all that it meant—the country club ball room decorated with holly and fir-branches—the lights—the dance music—the gay holiday crowd. Good times did not come Ann Marie's way very often, and she looked forward to a party with the happy eagerness of a child.

"Sure I want you to go," Johnny Lawler said, and he sounded cross and impatient "You know I'm crazy to have you go with me—only I wish you wouldn't act like a Sunday school teacher all the time."

They went up the steps of the old house, side by side. Ann Marie fished in her hand-bag for her key.

"Well even if we have quarreled I feel as if we know each other better than we ever did before," she remarked as Johnny unlocked the front door and opened it for her.

Late afternoon always meant certain things in the Macys' house.

It meant the opening and closing of the big front door as the family came home, one by one, from their day of business or pleasure.

It meant the lighting of lamps and the rustle of the evening newspaper from the back-parlor where Mr. Macy read and smoked in his easy chair.

It meant the pleasant clatter of dishes and silver from the dining-room where Mrs. Leasure who had been housekeeper in the motherless home for almost 20 years, would be setting the table at this time of day. It meant the appetizing smell of supper cooking in the kitchen.

It meant, almost always, the rattle and bang of jazz-music from the upright piano in the front parlor, as Jeanie or Alice attacked it.

Jeanie played fairly well, but Alice was a wonder when it came to piano-playing. She could play "by ear," and she had a crooning voice that was just made for popular songs.

She was singing one now, when Ann Marie and Johnny Lawler stepped into the hall and Brooke Walters was joining in the chorus:

"—I must have a miss
"Who'll long for a kiss—
"Who'll not say
"'Oh don't be so silly-o!'"

Ann Marie heard so much playing and singing from one day's end to the other that she hardly ever listened to the words of the songs that Jeanie and Alice were forever memorizing.

But she found herself listening to these words and turning them over in her mind as she took off her hat and let Johnny help her out of her coat.

"That song sounds like you, Johnny," she said to him with a little laugh. "That's what you've just been telling me—that you must have a miss who'll long for a kiss. Well good luck, I hope you pick that kind next time, old bean!"

Johnny nodded grimly, straightening his necktie before the hall mirror and running a hand over his smooth blond hair. In the glass she could see his face the mouth drawn tight and straight at the corners, his eyes narrowed.

"All right. Laugh at me all you want to, Ann Marie," he said without turning to look at her. "If you cared a hang about me you would not do it. You know how I feel. You'd know how rotten it feels to be goofy about a girl who—Oh, what's the use of talking about it any more?"

"I wasn't laughing at you, Johnny—" And then Ann Marie stopped talking and swung around as the door of the front parlor opened and her sister, Alice, stepped out into the hall.

"I thought I heard you two out here," she said brightly, facing them. "Hello, Johnny Lawler! Haven't seen you for perfect ages!"

She held out her hand to him and smiled, showing dazzling white teeth.

Everything about Alice was bright, somehow or other. The blue glint of her eyes, the crinkled gold of her hair, the scarlet of her lip-salved mouth, her polished finger nails, the sheen on her black satin dress, her black silk stockings, her patent leather slippers with their two-inch heels.

Alice made a great fuss over all men.

To be nice to them—to flatter them—to try to make them lose their heads over her was not a game with Alice but a business.

For Alice had one ambition in life. To marry and to marry well—that is, to marry money!

In the bosom of her family she made no secret of her great hope.

"The only way for a girl to get the things she wants is to marry a man with money," she often said. "And, for one, am going to see that I get everything I want that way." She was quite open and frank about it.

SHOULDER-CHIP PEDDLERS

Daily Editorial

A SENATE committee is taking the battleship lobby apart, to find what makes it tick.

The munitions octopus has gripped the world in nightmare tentacles for half a century, stimulating mutual suspicions and furnishing shoulder-chips for the various powers.

Gun makers and cruiser builders, in common with soda-pop and soap manufacturers, must promote their markets.

They "can't do business as usual" without calling on the trade. Their particular customers, however, are not supposed to hobnob with special pleaders.

Therefore, the opinion-shaping expert usually works behind scenes and under camouflage.

The Krupps thus exerted a dominant influence in pre-war Germany. Paid propaganda has always helped to shape British naval budgets, and the Bethlehem, Brown-Boveri, Newport News combination, followed the established practice when hiring a disarmament defeatist to muddle matters at Geneva and Washington.

Self-interest has been a camp follower of war, since Persian sutlers roused the jealousy of Xerxes with tales of Greek superiority, provoked an invading expedition—and sold him supplies.

It pays fleet builders and shell founders to keep governments distrusting each other. Then, they compete in scales of defense and place corresponding orders.

Fear throws treasuries wide open and spends like a drunken sailor.

And recent international debts indicate how much more money there is in peddling swords instead of plowshares.

THE EARLY Rothschilds were past masters of the game. They specialized in royal and official loans, juggled ministries and parliaments on their ledgers and goldcured the itching palms of princes, premiers and deputies.

They promoted railways, navigation lines, arsenals, or what have you, and never haggled at the cost of holding the inside track.

Baron James sat like a spider in the web of French politics and snared the favor of statesmanship with regardless bribes.

The Viennese court accepted unsecured "accommodations" from the Austrian branch of that great house, until the empire couldn't afford to adopt a foreign policy or a fiscal program without consulting the Rothschild brothers.

They vetoed and endorsed wars as their current investments dictated.

They determined ambassadorial appointments, received advance information from puppet diplomats and guided treaty-making plans.

When Spain welched on an underwriting agreement, they wrecked her Bourse.

When Vienna switched to a rival group, they spanked the exchange until it howled for quarter.

Regiments marched and truces were declared pretty much as the five Frankfurters figured the relative yields of tranquility or feuds.

The Rothschilds aren't marking acres nowadays.

But cannon and armor-plate casters are still dealing from the bottom of the deck—still confounding reduction conferences with undercover agents and forced cards.

There are a thousand Shearers between here and Tokyo—only the rest of 'em aren't blabbing on the higher-ups.

Today in Texas History

Oct. 3

1836—First congress of Republic of Texas convened at Columbia.

1895—Governor Culberson called extra session which made prize-fighting a felony in Texas.

1917—Opening sixth annual South Texas fair at Yoakum.

An ounce of silver can be drawn into a wire three miles long.

Storks have no voice.

A great many women are taking up the law, says a bulletin from an eastern college. And probably an even greater number are laying it down.

A hunting party has gone in search of the grylloblatta, an insect that lives at the foot of glaciers. That's about the only thing not included in the tariff list.

Don't Go to Bed Early

A GREAT DEAL too much has been said in praise of the old "early to bed and early to rise" slogan. To be sure, it may well lead to health. And health, possibly, may sometimes lead to wealth. But wisdom—well, that's something else again.

There are two kinds of wisdom in this world. One is the kind that enables a man to go about his daily business, keeping out of trouble, earning a living and finding ways of laying aside a little bit of extra money now and then. The other kind doesn't bring such definite rewards. It is the serener wisdom that keeps a man from getting discouraged and downcast; the soothing knowledge that the world isn't such a bad place, after all, and that most of its pitfalls are affairs that men dig for themselves.

This is the kind of wisdom that leads to contentment and peace. And, oddly enough, you can often gain it by staying up late at night.

This isn't written in support of night clubs, late parties and the like. There is precious little wisdom to be found in such activities. If you are going to get any real good out of keeping late hours, keep them alone; keep them alone, and get out of doors.

The mind works better around midnight. To be sure, there is sleepiness to contend with, at first; but after a little while this drops away, somehow, and one is able to think more clearly, to understand more easily, to find reasons for hope where none was visible before.

Then, if one picks his nights right, there is the moonlight.

Moonlight, late at night, when all of the day's noises have gone away to bed, is queer stuff. Nothing looks as it does by daylight. Familiar houses are made to look like enchanted cottages. An ordinary row of trees looks mysterious and exciting. The commonest of streets, lying deserted in this strange whiteness, becomes enticing and picturesque with a haunting sort of beauty.

Now all of this is only another way of saying that things look prettier by moonlight than they do by sunlight. Everybody, very likely, knows that. But why do we take it for granted that it is the moonlight that is false?

Maybe we're mistaken. Maybe the unattractive colors that the familiar scene wears by daylight are simply disguises, put there to deceive us. Maybe it is the sunlight and not the moonlight that puts a wrong aspect on things.

Does this sound reasonable? After midnight, when the moonlight floods your back yard, it does. Then it seems quite likely that the enchantment of moonlight is genuine. Then it is easy to believe that we have misjudged our world, and that it is infinitely more beautiful, more mysterious and more enjoyable than we generally suspect.

Maybe this notion is all a mistake. But it's a good notion to entertain, just the same. And you'll never get it if you don't stay up late at night once in a while.

It's for Our Own Good

THERE is nothing much more pleasant than that warm glow of satisfied virtue that comes when you feel that you are doing a highly righteous and praiseworthy act which you could very easily have avoided if you hadn't been so upright.

Such a feeling, it is apparent, is stealing over the American nation today as President Hoover and Premier MacDonald prepare to hold their conference on the reduction of naval armaments.

The average American seems to be convinced that this conference is being held simply because this nation is so high minded, idealistic and self-sacrificing that it can't help giving its own selfish interests a kick in the pants for the sake of the rest of the world.

It's comforting to be able to feel that way. It's nice to be able to say, "Look what we did in 1921—voluntarily cut our naval building program when there was nobody on earth that could have matched us if we'd gone ahead with it. Now we're doing it again—cutting down our armaments when it's the other fellow that needs it more than we do."

Yes, that's very soothing. It would be even more soothing if it were true.

America's action at the 1921 conference was very fine, indeed; but did you know that if that conference had not been held this country would very probably have been involved in a war with Japan in another 12 months or so? That, at any rate, is the opinion of competent diplomats. Slashing our naval program then was nothing more than a very practical means of averting trouble.

The situation is a good deal the same today. War isn't as imminent now as it was then, of course; but there's trouble in the air, and the Hoover-MacDonald conference is a level-headed means of getting it out of the way.

Milton Bronner, European correspondent for this paper, recently presented an able series of articles analyzing the European situation. He presented some quite obvious and unpleasant facts.

Bronner showed that Uncle Sam, quite literally, hasn't a real friend overseas. He showed that there is an extremely ominous mixture of suspicion, jealousy and downright hatred brewing against us on the other side of the Atlantic. In every capital the United States is viewed with marked distrust.

That being the case, Bronner demonstrates clearly that a naval agreement with England is nothing more or less than ordinary, unexalted common sense on our part.

In other words, it is highly important to us, as well as to the British, that President Hoover and Premier MacDonald reach an understanding. In agreeing to cut down our fleet we shall not be making a fine, self-sacrificing gesture; we shall simply be serving our own best interests.

It would be a good thing if we could recognize that fact. Our pose of idealistic altruism doesn't quite square with the facts.

A Form of Criticism

Because Percy Hammond's review on the play "Murder on the Second Floor" was one of the few good ones, the producer, Al Woods, clipped a sugary paragraph from it and advertised it in the Sunday papers recently. Woods, who calls everybody "Hello Sweetheart!" added to the ad: "Thanks very much, sweetheart!—Al Woods."

When the ad copy came to the Herald Tribune, for which Mr. Hammond is critic, the editor frowned on the "undignified" part and said: "Of all things! He makes Hammond look like a sissy!"

So saying, he switched the line to read: "Thanks very much, Percy!"—which, anyone will tell you, is just as bad.

Nifty

Leave it to the Broadway crowd to invent slang that tells more in a sentence than the regular language. Firinstance:

"How did Joe Doakes, the new headliner, do at the Palace yesterday?"

"Well, I hate to knock anybody, but the bases were full and he struck out."

In Fewer Words

Judge's best crack of the month: "The movies had gone from bad to words."

Oop!

Roy Hartley, the Broadway gossip columnist (see the novel "Broadway Interlude"), was gabbing with Pierre Sidell of the Sidell Sisters, a "Show Boat" duo of able dancers.

"Yes," yawned the paragrapher, "I always think of all the unkind things I've written about people before I fall asleep."

"Indeed," was the vicious retort, "and how can you do with so little sleep?"

Music Hath Charms

Debussy made me crazy
Ravel drove me mad
Beethoven called forth heavy tears
Chopin made me sad.

Tschaikowsky gave me throbbing pulse
Brahms roused the lyric muse
But now my life is Hell indeed
I've got those Gershwin blues!
—martha lee.

Sentiment

Perhaps the most beautiful sentence is the one under the glass-top desk of a local woman business executive, which reads: "To lose a friend—is to die a little."

In Case You Didn't Know

A column ago it was revealed that You Do Not Have to Accept a Dial Phone.

Readers telephoned demanding that we be more explicit. Well, it happened this way. A famous New York attorney, who just came from a hospital after a long illness, returned to his apartment to discover that the regulation telephone had been replaced by the new dial gag.

He is an old bachelor and invariably alone and is in the convalescent period. Little wonder, then, that he became infuriated (what with his frail condition) to think that if he suffered a stroke or something he would have to grope in the dark and finger the new gadjet trying to summon a physician.

When the phone phirm argued that they were sorry but wouldn't change matters he threatened court action and they immediately surrendered.

Haw!

Izzy Elinson would have you believe he actually overheard it near 42d St. and the Grandest Canyon:

"Do you think that kid will ever make a name for himself?"

"Not a chance. His mother is a double in the movies and his old man is a ghost-writer."

That's Just Too Bad!

New Yorkers who have to travel via the subway are confronted by window posters which remind them that the Interborough Rapid Transit picks up seven tons of waste paper every day in the year. This, one presumes, is a hint to passengers not to make the tube their refuse can.

The I. R. T., however, does not add that it peddles the waste paper at about $10 per ton.

So—if it sells seven tons of waste paper for 365 days at, let's say, $10 a ton, they sell 2,555 tons a year, no?

Which in subwaysee means 511,000 nickels, or in new paper money, exactly $25,550 per year.

The Comeback Swell

Eddie Cantor, the "Whoopee" star, was cornered by a cloak-and-suiter, who had been recommended to "Sweet Adeline," the new and delightful Arthur Hammerstein show.

"Well," said the grumbler, "I saw that show you told me to see, but I was disappointed in that Charlie Butterworth. He's funny, all right, but he doesn't sing and he doesn't dance. He is only a comedian."

"Say," said the fed-up Cantor, "did you ever hear of a guy named Kreisler? Well, he can't play any other instrument but a fiddle."

Sotto Voce

David L. Levy: Rouben Mamoulian directed the "Applause" flicker, I know, and not Monta Bell, whose name is easier to spell, however.

Novelette

The town recently responded affectionately to a young newcomer whose magic and affable manner embellishes one of the current entertainments. His youth amazes auditors who are awed by his cunning and immensely clever mannerisms—it's-and-now-you-don't specialties, and perhaps it won't offend him to report that a veteran prestidigitator (magician to you!), who took a fancy to him, has been teaching him all his startling stunts.

It appears that the graying headliner (who feels that he hasn't too many more years as a drawing card, or might die at any time) is teaching the youngster the tricks so that he may follow in his success—and that if he does, and the old-timer's wife needs any help, financially or otherwise, he is leaving it to the young fellow's honor to take care of her.

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XVII

The terror of the front sinks deep down when we turn our backs upon it; we make grim, coarse jests about it; that keeps us from going mad; as long as we take it that way we maintain our own resistance.

But we do not forget. It's all rot that they put in the war news about the good humor of the troops, now they are arranging dances almost before they are out of the front line. We don't act like that because we are in a good humor; we are in a good humor because otherwise we should go to pieces. If it were not so we could not hold out much longer; our humor becomes more bitter every month.

And this I know; all these things that now, while we are still in the war, sink down in us like a stone, after the war shall waken again, and then shall begin the disentanglement of life and death.

The days, the weeks, the years out here shall come back again, and our dead comrades shall stand up again and march with us, our heads shall be clear, we shall have a purpose, and so we shall march, our dead comrades beside us, the years at the front behind us—against whom, against whom?

Some time ago there was an army theater in these parts. Colored posters of the performances are still sticking on a hoarding. With wide eyes Kropp and I stand in front of it. We can hardly credit that such things still exist. A girl in a light summer dress, with a red patent-leather belt about her hips! She is standing with one hand on a railing and with the other she holds a straw hat. She wears white stockings and white shoes, fine buckle shoes with high heels. Behind her smiles a blue lake with white horses, at the side is a bright bay. She is a lovely girl with a delicate nose, red lips, and slender legs, wonderfully clean and well cared for, she certainly bathes twice a day and never has any dirt under her nails. At most perhaps a bit of sand from the beach.

Beside her stands a man in white trousers, a blue jacket, and sailor's cap; but he interests us much less.

The girl on the poster is a wonder to us. We have quite forgotten that there are such things, and even now we hardly believe our eyes. We have seen nothing like it for years, nothing like it for happiness, beauty and joy. That is peace time, that is as it should be; we feel excited.

"Just look at those thin shoes though, she couldn't march many miles in those," I say, and then begin to feel silly, for it is absurd to stand in front of a picture like this and think of nothing but marching.

"How old would she be?" Kropp asks.

"About 22 at the most," I hasard.

"Then she would be older than us! She is not more than 17, let me tell you!"

It gives us goose-flesh.

"That would be good, Albert, what do you think?"

He nods. "I have white trousers at home too."

"White trousers," says I, "but a girl like that——"

We look askance at one another. There's not much to boast of here—two ragged, stained and dirty uniforms. It is hopeless to compete.

So we proceed to tear the young man with the white trousers off the hoarding, taking care not to damage the girl. That is something towards it.

"We could go and get deloused, anyway," Kropp then suggests.

I am not very enthusiastic because it doesn't do one's clothes any good and a man is lousy again inside two hours. But when we have considered the picture once more, I declare myself willing. I even go farther.

"We might see if we could get a clean shirt as well—"

"Socks might be better," says Albert, not without reason.

"Yes, socks, too, perhaps. Let's go and explore a bit."

Then Leer and Tjaden stroll up; they look at the poster and immediately the conversation becomes smutty. Leer was the first of our class to run wild, and he gave stirring details of it. After his fashion he enjoys himself over the picture, and Tjaden supports him nobly.

It does not distress us exactly. Who isn't smutty is no soldier; it merely does not suit us at the moment, so we edge away and march off to the delousing station with the same feeling as if it were a swell gentlemen's outfitters.

I am called to the orderly room. The company commander gives me a leave-pass and a travel-pass and wishes me a good journey. I look to see how much leave I have got. Seventeen days—14 days leave and three days for traveling. It is not enough and I ask whether I cannot have five days for traveling. Bertinck points to my pass. There I see that I am not to return to the front immediately. After my leave I have to report for a course of training to a camp on the moors.

The others congratulate me. Kat gives me good advice, and tells me I ought to try and get a base job. "If you are smart, you'll hang on to it."

I would rather not have gone for another eight days; we are to stay here that much longer and it is good here.

Naturally I have to stand the others drinks at the canteen. We are all a little bit drunk. I become gloomy; I will be away for six weeks—that is lucky of course, but what may happen before I get back? Shall I meet all these fellows again? Already Hale has gone—who will the next be?

As we drink, I look at each of them in turn. Albert sits beside me and smokes, he is silent; we have always been together—opposite squats Kat, with his drooping shoulders, his broad thumb, and calm voice—Muller with the protruding teeth and the booming laugh; Tjaden with his mousy eyes: Leer who has grown a full beard and looks at least forty.

Over us hangs a dense cloud of smoke. Where would a soldier be without tobacco? The canteen is his refuge, and beer is far more than a drink, it is a token that a man can move his limbs and stretch in safety. We do it ceremonially, we stretch our legs out in front of us and spit deliberately, that is the only way. How it all rises up before a man when he is going away the next morning!

Next morning, after I have been deloused, I go to the rail head, Albert and Kat come with me. At the halt we learn that it will be a couple of hours yet before the train leaves. The other two have to go back to duty. We take leave of one another.

"Good luck, Kat; good luck, Albert."

They go off and wave once or twice. Their figures dwindle. I know their every step and movement; I would recognize them at any distance. Then they disappear. I sit down on my pack and wait.

Suddenly I become filled with a consuming impatience to be gone.

I lie down on many a station platform; I stand before many a soup kitchen; I squat on many a bench—then at last the landscape becomes gloomy, mysterious, and familiar. It glides past the western windows with its villages, their thatched roofs like caps pulled over the white-washed, half-timbered houses, its corn fields, gleaming like mother-of-pearl in the slanting light, its orchards, its barns and old lime trees.

The names of the stations begin to take on meaning and my heart trembles. The train stamps and stamps onward, I stand at the window and hold on to the frame. These names mark the boundaries of my youth.

Smooth meadows, fields, farmyards, a solitary team moves against the sky-line along the road that runs parallel to the horizon—a barrier, before which peasants stand waiting, girls waving, children playing on the embankments, roads, leading into the country, smooth roads without artillery.

It is evening, and if the train did not rattle, I should cry out. The plain unfolds itself.

In the distance, the soft, blue silhouette of the mountain ranges begins to appear. I recognize the characteristic outline of the Dolbenberg, a jagged comb, springing up precipitously from the limit of the forests. Behind it should lie the town.

But now the sun streams through the world, dissolving everything in its golden-red light, the train swings around one curve and then another—far away, in a long line one behind the other, stand the poplars, unsubstantial, swaying and dark, fashioned out of shadow, light, and desire.

The field swings around as the train encircles it, and the intervals from behind the foremost tree and between the trees diminish; the trees become a block and for a moment I see one only—then they reappear, stand out a long line against the sky until they are hidden by the first houses.

A street crossing. I stand at the window, I cannot drag myself away. The others put their baggage ready for getting out. I repeat to myself the name of the street that we cross over—Bremerstrasse—Bremerstrasse—

Below there are cyclists, lorries, men; it is a gray street and a gray subway—it embraces me as though it were my mother.

Then the train stops and there is the station with noise and cries and sentries. I pick up my pack and fasten the straps, I take my rifle in my hand and stumble down the steps.

On the platform I look round; I know no one among the people hurrying to and fro. A Red Cross sister offers me something to drink. I turn away, she smiles at me too foolishly, so obsessed with her own importance: "Just look, I am giving a soldier coffee!"—She calls me "Comrade," but I will have none of it.

Out side in front of the station the stream roars alongside the street, it rushes foaming from the sluices of the mill bridge. There stands an old, square watch-tower, in front of it, the great mottled lime tree and behind it the evening.

Here we have often sat—how long ago it is—we have passed over this bridge and breathed the cool acid smell of stagnant water; we have leaned over the still water on this side of the lock, where the green creepers and weeds hang from the piles of the bridge—and on hot days we rejoiced in the spouting foam on the other side of the lock and told tales about our school teachers.

Stockingless Maiden Sent Home From Fire

LYNN, Mass., Oct. 2. (INS)—Carrying out Mayor Ralph S. Bauer's edict over the display of bare legs by girls over 17 years, police sent home a young woman discovered stockingless among spectators at a fire.

Later, a girl, with stockings rolled down, crossing Lynn common, was stopped by police, who took her name. She said she had not heard of the mayor's mandate.

No true vipers are found in America.

The Mississippi in flood equals eight Niagaras.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Examination of a Ship Builder on Geneva Activity

Q—Mr. Tweedgitts, do you remember sending a man named Shearer to go to Geneva?

A—What was the name?

Q—Shearer.

A—We sent a man named something to go some place, but I just can't recall the details. Shearer and Geneva sound something like the names.

Q—You paid him $25,000 for three months' work, did you not?

A—I think so.

Q—What for?

A—He had a nice kind face and we couldn't help liking him.

Q—Did he ask to go to Geneva?

A—I am quite sure that was his idea.

Q—But why should you send him there?

A—He told us he was very fond of Switzerland.

Q—Was he to do anything for you there?

A—Who, me?

Q—Yes.

A—Nothing special.

Q—Didn't you give him any instructions as to what was expected of him in return for the $25,000?

A—No. All we asked was that he send us a few souvenir postcards of the country. My company is particularly fond of post-cards showing scenes in the Swiss Alps.

Q—Did he send them?

A—I believe he did.

Q—What kind of pictures were they?

A—I never bothered to look at them.

Q—But you were intensely interested, you say, in these pictorial post-cards showing the scenic beauties of Switzerland?

A—Yes, but I was too busy to look at them.

Q—Now, isn't it a fact that Mr. Shearer was to look into certain matters while in Geneva?

A—He may have been told to give us the facts on bicycle traffic there. I am not certain.

Q—Is that all?

A—Well, I have a vague recollection he was to investigate and report to us on the edelweiss crop, giving special attention to a report the prevailing color had become yellow.

Q—Didn't you ever ascertain exactly why Mr. Shearer was to go to Geneva and what he was to do for you in return for the $25,000?

A—No. I remember it was all talked over at a meeting but I didn't hear what was said.

Q—Why not?

A—I was reading a book on how to correct a golf slice.

Q—When the meeting adjourned didn't you ask anybody what had happened?

A—Of course, I did.

Q—Then, why didn't you find out all about what Mr. Shearer was to do in Geneva?

TRACTOR FUEL IS TAX-FREE

New Oklahoma Law Goes Into Effect Today

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 2. (UP)—A form of farm relief goes into effect in Oklahoma Thursday. The law exempting gasoline used in farm tractors from the increased gasoline tax of four cents a gallon becomes effective at that time.

Another law which goes into effect Thursday is the one giving notary publics statewide jurisdiction. A notary, however, who wishes statewide jurisdiction must surrender his present commission and be recommissioned, Graves Leeper, secretary of state, explained.

It was reported that a test of the constitutionality of the tractor gasoline exemption tax would be made by Cham Jones, Waurika legislator, but no definite action had been taken today.

Statisticians in the highway department and the office of State Auditor Shaw estimate the exemption will amount to more than a $1,500,000 saving to farmers.

QUANAH GETS WATER SUPPLY

New Well Has Ample Flow For City

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Oct. 2.—What is believed to be an ample supply of good water has been located by the prospecting crews for the city water department in the well on the Gilliam tract a few miles northeast of Quanah, but it is probable another well will have to be dug before actual pumping can be proceeded with. It is stated that the rush of water coming into the 10-foot well caused the casing to buckle and the well to cave in, so it is probable another well will have to be dug and preparations made for the exceptionally strong flow of water.

Should this well be what is believed it is from present indications Quanah will have her water problem solved for some time to come. The well is located within a quarter mile of the mains from the present water supply of Red river.

FREIGHT RATES UNDER FIRE

Grain and Livestock Levies Argued

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2. (AP)—Declaring the investigation by the Interstate Commerce commission into freight rates on grain and livestock in the West presented the issue of whether the railroads are more powerful than the government, John E. Benton, general solicitor for the National Association of Railroad and Utilities commissioners, today asked the commission to reduce rates on livestock.

Arguments on the grain rates already have been held before the commission, and the livestock arguments are under way with representatives of Western railroads asking for increased rates.

In the grain and livestock cases, Benton said, the railroads are still refusing reductions and demanding increases. He protested against commission examiners' report, recommending increases in livestock rates. He contended the Hoch-Smith resolution called for a reduction of agricultural rates to the lowest possible minimum and said in minor cases the commission had determined the purpose of the resolution was to put agricultural products "in the category of most favored commodities in rate making."

"Now," he added, "the carriers are demanding that the commission change the construction it has put upon the resolution and establish maximum instead of minimum rates."

General reductions of approximately seven cents a hundred pounds have been proposed by midwestern railroads to become effective between Oct. 10 and 15. Their proposals were filed with the commission after the Kansas City Southern on Aug. 15 reduced its rates seven cents per 100 pounds between Kansas City and the Gulf.

In its protest the board of trade said the proposed reduction would be out of line with Kansas City rates to the gulf and should not be approved.

Railroads proposing the reduction are the Santa Fe, Rock Island, Illinois Central, Kansas City, Mexico and Orient, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Missouri Pacific, St. Louis-San Francisco, Union Pacific and the Wabash.

BARONS CLIMAX DIXIE SERIES WITH 7 TO 5 WIN OVER STEERS

2 TEAMS PLAY RAGGED GAME

Six Hurlers Perform On Mound in Turns

By ED BALL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 2. (AP)—Birmingham won the baseball championship of Dixie by defeating Dallas 7 to 5 here today in the sixth game of the Dixie series. Both teams were far below their usual playing form and loose pitching and fielding figured conspicuously in the scoring.

In defeating the Texas league champions the Barons stole a total of seven bases, two delayed double steals were completed. Six pitchers saw service and during their respective turns on the mound were accorded discouraging support afield.

The victory gave the Southern association winners their first Dixie series pennant and the second to be won from a Texas league team in the 10 years history of the playoff. Mobile won from Fort Worth in 1922 for the first Dixie championship.

The Barons settled down to the business of scoring in the first inning, two runners crossing the plate. Guy Sturdy, doubled to start the inning and after two men were down Weis singled to score Sturdy and himself accounted for a tally when Ernie Smith belted a triple into right field.

Milton Stock sent Joe Martina in to stem the tide and he held the situation well in hand during this frame after Ludolph and Gibson squeezed Klugman home for the third Baronial run.

The same reception accorded Ludolph in his second start at Dallas last week was repeated in the fourth when Country Davis tripled to lead off and scored on a single by Bischoff. Johnson forced Bischoff at second and Jeffries filed to Weis, but with two out Morse singled and Johnson scampered to third. Ludolph's control seemed to have disappeared with the play and Martina was hit by a pitched ball and Flaskamper walked. The veteran Johnny Dobbs saw his chances for the game fading and he rushed the youngster Carlos Moore to the mound. Morse and Martina scored on Rosenthal's single.

A brilliant play by Sturdy in the fifth accounted for a run which tied the score at four all. After reaching first when he forced C. Moore, Sturdy stole second and was sacrificed to third. He made a dash for home putting Bischoff in front of the plate to take the throw which he missed.

The first double steal by Birmingham was worked in the sixth by Klugman and Gibson, Klugman scoring the run. His hit, a terrific drive along the third base line was knocked down by Jeffries but he could not get the ball away from him and it went for a single. Bennett who was on first by virtue of a fielder's choice, went to second on the play, he scored on Gibson's single and Klugman halted at third. The double steal followed.

Another double steal in the seventh netted the final Baron run. Two were down when Clabaugh was hit by a pitched ball and he went to third on a hit and run, Weis coming through with a single.

Dallas scored a run in the eighth when Johnson walked and Jeffries singled causing Dobbs to remove Moore.

Hearn relieved him and Harvel, a pinch hitter beat out an infield blow, scoring Johnson.

Weis, Smith and Klugman each hit safely twice to garner six of Birmingham's nine base hits. Davis and Jeffries each hit a pair for Dallas. Sturdy, Clabaugh, Bennett, Klugman, Gibson and Bennett were the Baron base stealers. Martina committed the lone Steer theft.

Johnny Dobbs piloted the Barons to their second consecutive league pennant and accounted for his sixth time finished first as a manager in the circuit.

BIG TEN GRID ELEVENS PREP

Expect to Open Conference At Full Strength

By PAUL KING
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. (UP)—Mid-week finds most western conference football teams in shape for their Saturday conflicts.

Only minor injuries were suffered in last Saturday's games, and all conference elevens were expected to be at full strength when they go on the field to combat so-called warmup opponents.

Scrimmages, dummy tackling and signal practices composed workout sessions for a majority of the squads this week.

Especially has the training been intensive at Notre Dame and Indiana in preparation for their fray at Bloomington. The Crimson broke even in a double-header a week ago and Coach Knute Rockne refuses to regard the game as a set up for his Ramblers.

Coach Jimmy Phelan at Purdue has been putting his Boilermakers through their paces in preparation for the invasion of the Kansas Aggies.

The Boilermakers rule as pregame favorites, Phelan is taking no chances on a reverse and has drilled his squad hard for the contest.

Michigan, under the tutelage of Harry Kipke, was hard at work all week preparing for its clash with Michigan State at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines are expected to win with little difficulty.

Wisconsin is expected to continue its excellent play by disposing of Colgate in an intersectional tilt at Madison. The Badgers displayed a fast running attack as well as a well oiled defense to defeat South Dakota a week ago.

Coach Dick Hanley drove his Northwestern Wildcats through stiff drills in preparation for Butler. Hanley intimated that he was not satisfied with the showing of his eleven the past week in scrimmages with the Yearlings and said that several startling changes might be made.

Bob Zuppke's fighting Illini drilled against Kansas university plays, assimilated by the freshman squad, in preparation for the Illinois-Kansas battle at Champagne. The Kansans are expected to provide ample competition for the Illinois aggregation.

Iowa, Minnesota and Chicago went through lengthy practice sessions and are "doped" to win over their opponents with little difficulty.

Murder and Suicide Takes Three Lives

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 2. (UP)—The finding of three razor-slashed bodies in a farmhouse here today revealed a gruesome tragedy which authorities believed was a double murder and suicide.

The dead were: Mrs. Elizabeth Mosse; her son, Edward Mosse, 31, and a niece, Marion Grenough, 9. Police believed that Mosse had slain his mother and niece and then committed suicide by cutting his own throat with a razor and swallowing poison.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 2.—The Brukburnett high school gridders came out in a good condition last week in the Burk-Nocona contest and are now on tiptop shape for the second match game of the season with the powerful Ryan, Okla., eleven, which is scheduled to be played at the Burkburnett athletic field on the coming Friday.

Griffin and Garland, who have figured prominently in the local lineups during the past season, are expected to participate in Friday's contest after having been on the ineligible list for the first game against Nocona.

CUBS STAMPEDE REDS BY 7 TO 4

Hornsby Gets Two Hits In Four Trys

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2. (AP)—Jakie May proved easy for the National league champions today and the Cubs won by 7 to 4. The Cubs got three runs on four hits in the first three innings but could score only one run on four hits in the seventh This was due to a long single by Charles Grimm, which hit the bleacher wall. For a while it looked like Walker was going to make the catch and the runners on first and second did not venture off the bags.

Elwood English, Cub shortstop, was not in the lineup as the thumb of his throwing hand was stiff and sore from an injury suffered last Sunday. Rogers Hornsby got two hits in four times at bat.

Shifts Mark Lineup On Texas U. Eleven

AUSTIN, Oct. 2. (AP)—Three shifts in the Texas Longhorn eleven loomed today as the squad was drilled until darkness in preparation for Saturday's contest with the Behemothian Centenary college Gents.

Baumgarten, sophomore guard, was slated to replace Nemir in the lineup, probably on account of his greater bulk. Nona Rees, who did not start the St. Edward's game, but saw considerable service, is due to succeed Meadows as field general in the starting lineup and Dexter Shelley, the team's best triple threat man, will answer the opening whistle at half back instead of Perkins.

Weights today revealed that the Centenary line would average approximately 190, outweighing the Longhorn forward wall about 15 pounds from end to end. The Gents' backfield, averaging 170, also is heavier than Texas ball carriers.

T. J. McConville Named Industrial Inspector

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 2. (UP)—T. J. McConville of Wilburton today was appointed an inspector by the state industrial commission to succeed William Burgess, also of Wilburton.

Mrs. Nancy E. Hood, of Mangum, who was law clerk for John B. Harrison, when Harrison was a member of the state supreme court, was named statistician to succeed Miss Alice Goff, whose resignation was announced Tuesday.

The SPORTLIGHT

By GRANTLAND RICE

(Copyr't, 1929, New York Tribune Inc.; Trademark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

A Difference of Opinion

Some days ago these dispatches printed the names of 10 or 12 football teams here and there that were sure to be strong. Judging from the returns that have come in from old grads and other camp followers there will be 80 or 90 teams that will be very strong. Judging from the reports of various coaches there will hardly be one.

If any football writer cares to obtain the goat of a coach and leave it bleating far from home he can always succeed without any trouble by predicting a winning team for said coach. In the first place that puts it up to a coach somewhat stoutly. If he doesn't have a winning team for perhaps various sound reasons, then he is a mug. If he does—well, why not, with all that material?

And every football coach knows that too many things can happen in the course of a season to take anything for granted. A cracked ankle — a busted shoulder — a sprained knee—and the roseate prospects of yesterday can look a deeper blue than indigo by tomorrow.

Three Big October Games

The situation in the East is extremely interesting this season because there are so many strong looking teams—Harvard, Princeton, Army, Navy, Pittsburgh, West Virginia, Carnegie Tech and N. Y. U., to mention only a few.

This calls attention to the fact that October will carry three games that may make a large difference in eastern ranking. They follow:

Oct. 12—Pittsburgh—West Virginia, Pittsburgh.

Oct. 19—Harvard—Army, Cambridge.

Oct. 26—Princeton—Navy, Princeton.

The game between Pittsburgh and West Virginia will be one of the hardest scraps of the year. Both are unusually strong, offensively and defensively. Both have their full share of veterans back and both teams are ably coached. That game is only nine days away but it may hold an important spot in the final ranking. The Harvard-Army game a week later will be another clash of much sectional importance, so far as eastern football is concerned. Both teams are strong and apparently well match and the team that gets safely by this game will take a big jump ahead.

The same is true of the Princeton-Navy meeting a week later at Princeton. Bill Roper will have another fine team geared up if accidents and injuries don't cut him down. Bill Ingram, after a slow start last fall, came on like the wind through his last five games and he has good looking stuff ready for this fall. He has a tough one to hurdle in Baltimore next Saturday when he meets Notre Dame, for Rockne's team at this point will be close to its best before a hard schedule has left its battering mark.

Another High Mark

The same date, Oct. 26, will bring about one of the most decisive contests of the year. It will be over 3,000 miles from the Princeton-Navy meeting, the scene being set at Palo Alto where Stanford and Southern California meet.

Last fall Stanford moved on Southern California with a great team and after a whirlwind start was finally held and beaten 10 to 0. Both teams were strong then and both are strong now. This time Southern California invades Stanford's home territory in a game that might easily decide the championship of the Pacific coast.

This game will be doubly interesting on the way East since Southern California plays Notre Dame and Carnegie Tech while Stanford meets the Army again.

They lose little time now in breaking into decisive contests where October will handle as many important contests as November can show, insofar as a season's ranking may be concerned. This has been true of the Western conference for some time, and now it is being worked out along the same lines all over the country.

Today's Golf Dope

There is at least one point in Bobby Jones's putting stroke worth noting. There are other points, but they are harder to follow. The point under discussion involves the position of his hands and the working of his wrists on all putts from two to fifteen feet. You will notice that his hands are held close in against his body. You will also notice that at the finish of the putter's back swing his hands have barely moved, less than a fraction of an inch, as the bend or break of the wrists take the blade of the putter back. This makes it much simpler to keep the right line and to stroke with the blade of the club. There is also less tendency or temptation to move the body on the shorter putts. And there is less likelihood of jabbing or stabbing the ball. It is something worth trying out in odd moments until one can get the feel of the system.

Baylor, Arkansas and T. C. U. Are Favorites in S. W. Conference Race

By JOHN W. HEISMAN
Famous Coach and Football Authority
(Copy't., 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—The outlook for another fine football season in the Southwest is excellent. In the Southwestern conference the colleges with the best prospects of carrying off first honors are Baylor, at Waco, Arkansas, at Fayetteville, Ark., and T. C. U., at Fort Worth, in that order. Baylor has a collection of stars hard to match in Paradeaux, Koch, Gilliland, Witcher and Wilson, and several sophs are so good they seem to be displacing not merely lettermen but regulars, like Guard Winton, of last year.

Arkansas has three good men in Van Sickle, Gardner and Schoonover; but as Coach Thompson is new to the Razorbacks his chance is not quite so good as that of Coach Jennings at Baylor.

Texas Christian also has a new coach in Francis Schmidt, who inherited some very good material in Captain Brumblelow, Grubbs and Atkins.

All three of these teams ran up obese scores against their respective opponents last Saturday.

S. M. U. Weakened

Southern Methodist does not look to be nearly so strong as a year ago, for they have lost half a dozen of the 1928 regulars including the great Hume. They have back their peerless guard, Capt. "Choc" Sanders, and Ira Hopper, a 200-pound full back, one of the finest players ever turned out by the Dallas high schools. The remainder of the backfield will be composed of three sophs, Mason from Waco, Winters, a 207-pound half from Fort Worth, and Kattman, a 170-pound quarter from Houston. The last named played on the Rice frosh several years ago and is good. Still, with five sophs on the team, not so much is expected from S. M. U. this year. They'll be building up to turn out a team that can hold its own with Navy next year.

Skeptical About T. U.

Texas U won the conference championship last year, but not too much is thought of their ability to repeat. They still have back "Big Un" Rose at end and Vining, who played end on Rice fresh in 1926 and, at tackle, a very wonderful player in Capt. Gordy Brown. Ed-Beular is a very exceptional senior back who has been hampered by injuries all through his college career, but if he is all right this year he will prove an obstreperous young man for gentlemen on the other side of the neutral zone to handle. Other promising backs of more limited experience are Meadows from Waco, Perkins from Bastrop and Shelley, a fullback. With these men friends of Texas are certain the team will have at least a couple of good scraps in its system.

Texas A. & M. won the championship in 1927 and has been rebuilding since then. Few in Texas think she can land near the top this year, especially as Coach Bell (Centre college) is new to the Aggies. However he has a team possessed of great composite speed and, with a good coach, that usually spells scores. Certainly they showed their heels to Daniel Baker time and again last Saturday. I predict that the Aggies will not be the lowest ranking team in the conference at the end of the season.

Only Intersectional

The only intersectional game to be played by any member of the Southwestern this season will be that which takes place on Oct. 5, at Lincoln, Neb., between S. M. U. and Nebraska. The latter should win this handily despite the fact that Dana Bible is in his first year as coach at Nebraska. The Cornhuskers have lost a lot of men also but they have more replacement material than the Dallas team and they will have another of their enormous lines.

Next year S. M. U. will again come East this time to try conclusions with the Navy, while in 1931 Texas U. will take the 2,000-mile trip to Cambridge to try their strength and skill against Harvard. In other words Southwestern football is beginning to come out of its shell. No doubt eastern fans have wondered much, since S. M. U. made her startlingly fine showing last fall against Army, whether there are other teams in the southwest that can play as good ball as did S. M. U. having spent four years in Texas as coach of Rice I feel I am in position to enlighten readers to the extent of saying that there are at least four other institutions in Texas that are right in that same class as Texas U., Texas Aggies, Texas C. U. and Baylor. They have the men, the coaches, the student bodies, the interest and the organization.

S. M. U. has a fine stadium that now seats 35,000. By 1931 it is planned to have it seat 85,000. They want Harvard to go down and help dedicate it with a game.

Texas' stadium also seats 35,000, Texas Aggies' 25,000, T. C. U.'s 20,000.

The Texas conference (not Southwestern) embraces Simmons, Howard Payne, Trinity, Daniel Baker, Austin and Southwestern. The two first named would seem to have the best outlook to capture the championship of that association.

H. S. GRIDDERS IN HARD GRIND

Coach Holton Stressing Fundamentals

New equipment was issued the squad yesterday by Coach Holton and the Wichita Falls High school football squad prepared to settle down to some real work in preparation for the game with Ardmore High Saturday. Strenous workouts on signals and offensive work comprised the session yesterday with the first squad drilling almost entirely on light scrimmage and play perfection. Both the defensive and offensive departments were weak against Lawton last week and Coach Holton is dwelling on the fundamentals a wee bit more this week.

Coach Holton's proteges will meet the Ardmore, Okla., aggregation here at Spudder park on Saturday, Oct. 5. This will be the second game of the year for the pack and the squad is expected to be in better condition than at the Wolverine game.

The gymnasium team, composed of the smaller boys and inexperienced in the football game, is improving rapidly and some real promising youngsters are being uncovered each day by Coech and Gymnasium Instructor C. C. Frazee. Those who attend these workouts in the fundamentals of football will be ready for service next fall. This is part of Coach Holton's plan to teach football to the younger boys in order to have plenty of material next year.

Texas A. & M. won the championship in 1927 and has been rebuilding since then. Few in Texas think she can land near the top this year, especially as Coach Bell (Centre college) is new to the Aggies. However he has a team possessed of great composite speed and, with a good coach, that usually spells scores. Certainly they showed their heels to Daniel Baker time and again last Saturday. ## TRIBE PERFECT AERIAL ATTACK

Brief Skull Practice; Stiff Workout

Coach Baggett gave his Indians a staff workout yesterday and went through all his plays in an effort to place a team on the field next Saturday at Lawton that will equal any Junior college eleven in the state. A brief skull practice was followed by fundamentals with the line working on tackling and blocking while the backs perfected their passing game which is recognized as one of the best in the state. Following a short period of signal practice, the tribe was to engage the high school in a few minutes of scrimmage.

The Redskins journey to Lawton next Saturday to take on Penn Dickson's Cameron Aggies, this team being rated as the strongest junior college team in the state of Oklahoma and the home lads are likely to lose their second game in two starts. Coach Baggett believes that he can put a formidable team on the field and with his men in better condition than they were last week the tribe has high hopes of victory.

Pep squad leaders were selected for the Junior college yesterday with Nannae Mae Snoddy and Phillip Kouri being selected as the best pair in the tryouts. With a large pep making body the Junior college will have more pep than in several years.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

(Copyright 1929 by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

PROPER QUANTITIES OF DIFFERENT FOODS

This is the third of a series of articles giving condensed food classifications and rules for their use.

Protein Foods

These foods are perhaps the most important of any used by the body. The nitrogenous material contained in protein foods, together with their salts and vitamins, supply most of the tissue-building material in the body. The over-use of these foods has led to the exaggerated statements in favor of vegetarianism. However, there is no reason why the abuses in their use should induce anyone to prohibit them entirely. Temperance in the use of proteins as with all other foods is an important thing to be taken into consideration!

Most adults should have a daily intake of enough to supply nitrogenous material equal to that contained in one or two eggs and about one-fourth of a pound of meat, fish or fowl. Those doing hard, muscular labor may use as much as a half pound of meat daily besides one or two eggs. As sedentary workers do not use up much muscular tissue, it is wise for them to keep their limit of protein to about the minimum of one egg and one-fourth of a pound of meat daily.

Starches

Pure starches are really unnecessary to the body's growth but, of course, many of the starchy foods contain other elements which the body can use. Most of my patients are denied all starchy food while under an intensive diet treatment. But our appetites have been developed so much for these foods that it seems wise to outline the best rules to be observed whenever starches are eaten. A good rule for everyone to follow in this regard is to use a very limited amount of starches and to confine their use to one meal in a day, such as, possibly at luncheon, when a small amount of one kind of starch may be used, together with one or more cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables. No acid fruit or proteins should be used at this meal.

Non-Starchy Vegetables

All of the foods listed as non-starchy may be used in large quantities. It is even often advisable to actually "stuff" on these foods in order to supply a large amount of bulk for the intestines to assist in overcoming constipation, which is such a universal cause of disease. I often advise patients to use one of the cooked, non-starchy vegetables with their breakfast, with such foods as eggs and stewed fruit. This takes the place of toast or bread, and supplies the needed amount of bulk.

Fats and Oils

These are good foods to be used in limited quantities with any of the other meals of the day.

Acid Fruits

One acid fruit meal a day may be used, but only one kind of fruit should be used at any one meal.

Stewed Fruit

One dish of stewed fruit daily is the minimum to be used, and the maximum not over two fair sized dishes, one dish to be used at each of two meals in a day.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Stiff Neck

Question: I. F. writes—"I am bothered off and on with stiff neck. I have used various ointments which serve to relieve temporarily, but in a day or two it is the same. I should be glad to have your advice."

Answer—You either have some form of rheumatism, or you actually get your neck vertebrae out of place. The next time this happens, go to an osteopath or chiropractor, and if one of two of these treatments do not relieve you, send for some special articles which I have prepared on rheumatism.

Canned Spinach

Question: Mrs. J. F. S. writes—"I have heard that a certain mineral or element contained in spinach attacks the can (in the canned product) and draws off objectionable matter which makes it difficult for the kidneys to eliminate. Please explain, if this is so."

Answer—I do not know of any injurious element which is developed in canned spinach. Of course, there have been many beliefs and rumors about all canned goods, but my investigations have shown that these reports have very little foundation in fact.

Eye Trouble

Question: J. H. writes—"For some time I have been trouble with a swelling at the corner of my left eye. When I press at the side or under it there is a discharge which seems to come from a pinpoint opening in my lower lid just as though there was a hair out. I have very little pain from it, but I would like if you could tell me what to do, as I am afraid it might cause some disease of the bone of my cheek or nose."

Answer—It would be wise for you to consult an oculist and have him give his opinion about the cause of your trouble. If the treatment which he suggests does not help, write me again, giving me his diagnosis, and I will make whatever suggestions I think best.

Electra to Pick Football Queen

Special to The Record News

ELECTRA, Texas, Oct. 2.—The seniors met Tuesday afternoon in their study hall with the president, Ralph Prince, in charge of the meeting. The class selected five girls, Neva Heard, Eloise Wofford, Ocilee Terry, Mary Brown and Belva Hannah, and from these girls the class expects to choose its candidate for football queen to run against the girls selected by the other classes.

The seniors have already selected their rings, which are like those of last year except they will have an old old finish instead of a military finish. The classes last year selected a standard ring.

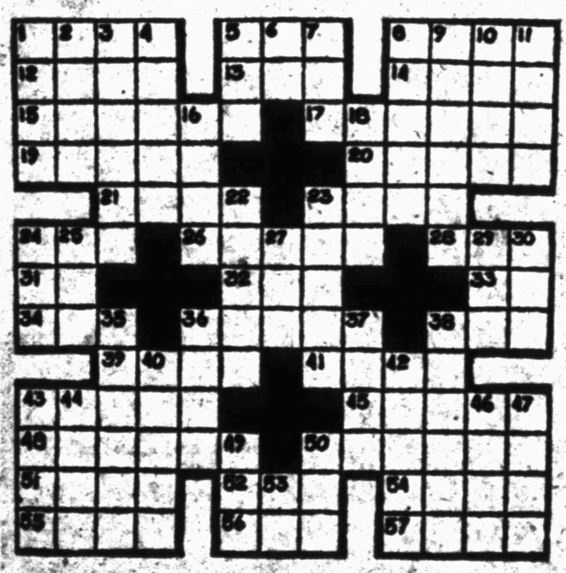

Much class rivalry has already been shown between the different classes in the high school, due to the contest to determine the football queen. Each class intends to select its candidate in the near future and sell tickets to football games to put their candidate over.

STUDENTS WED

NORMAN, Okla., Oct. 2. (UP)—University of Oklahoma students today received the news of another wedding of Sooner campus leaders.

It was the wedding of Miss Vera Shielder, Pawhuska, and George Connell, Milwaukee, Wis., which took place Tuesday in Pawhuska. Neither will return to school.

GRAND JURY SUMMONS 76

Officials Reveal Charge Against Thornton

Preparations for the work of the 30th district grand jury, to be impaneled here on Monday of next week, Wednesday afternoon involved the summoning of 76 witnesses who are to give evidence in connection with 26 formal complaints now on file, according to compilations completed by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney.

Among the complaints to be submitted for the action of the investigating body is one charging Elmer Thornton, former city detective, with assault with intent to kill in connection with the wounding of Perry Cowan on Sept. 22. Cowan was shot in the arm as he fled into the darkness when Thornton and other city officers raided an alleged crap game at the new Scott avenue bridge. Thornton was released from the service on the day following the shooting.

The complaint against the officer was signed by Dena Anderson, a relative of the wounded man. Announcement of Thornton's arrest and his release under a $1,000 bond was withheld by members of the sheriff's department until it was revealed from other sources Wednesday.

Cases of Contagious Disease Show Decrease

The number of contagious disease cases in Wichita Falls during the month of September showed a large decrease, with six cases quarantined and seven released, according to the monthly report of the city health department issued Wednesday. The only serious cases were diphtheria, with one quarantined and three released, and scarlet fever with three quarantined and one released. Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief inspector, reported that he had inspected 39 cattle, 247 calves, 318 hogs, nine sheep and had condemned 109 livers during the month.

This represented an increase in daily average production of 51,000 barrels over the preceding month.

Production of crude petroleum in California increased nearly 6,000,000 barrels in August as the result of successful drilling at Santa Fe Springs.

The members of the pep club have chosen for a club name, "Red Peppers." The Peppers chose Mitchell Aboussie as yell leader, Ruth Wilson for song leader and Viola Gambill for assistant yell leader.

Those who were elected to the "Red Peppers" are: Violet York, Morris Roberts, Ruth Wilson, Ray Burgett, Cloma Johnson, Mitchell Aboussie, Alma Hall, Otis Hall, Marsella Ward, Mattie Neal Gardner, Willard Fitzharrald, Dorothy Crowder, Lune Jenkins, Bert Jones, Marie Doran, Stella Haskew, Ruth Essary, Noma Whorton, Viola Bambill, Cloma Cunningham, Fowler Poling, Olive Richardson, Viola Garrison, Joemeda Parks and Virginia Pease.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP)—Some overnight buying orders attracted by the advance of the previous day were readily supplied by realizing and southern selling in cotton today. The market eased in the later trading. December contracts declined from 19.10 to 18.86, and closed at that figure with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 16 to 20 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 2 points on October, but generally 2 to 5 points higher on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement which was promoted by reports of further rains in the eastern belt and the fairly steady ruling of liverpool. More active positions sold about 5 to 6 points net higher during the first few minutes, but prices soon turned easier.

October sold off to 18.76 and March to 19.76 making net declines of 16 to 20 points on active positions and the close was at the lowest.

Two private crop reports were published The first placed the condition in 12 leading cotton states at 53.2 per cent with an indicated crop of 14,948,000 bales. The other made the condition 53.7 and the indicated crop 14,505,000 bales.

Liverpool cables reported Continental and Bombay buying in the market and said the larger inquiry for cotton cloths in Manchester was maintained.

Port receipts today 59,230. U. S. port stocks, 1,253,845. Exports 44,122, making 1,018,674 so far this season.

Declining Call Rate Tends to Bolster Wavering Stock Issues

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (US)—Easing call money influenced rally in the stock market today. The rate dropped from renewal of 9 to 7 per cent and influenced some short covering and a little new buying. Except for a few issues influenced by individual developments, however, the recovery was uninspiring and most issues held to advance of a point or less. Steel finished 1¼ higher, General Electric gained 3¾, Standard of New Jersey 2, American Can 3, Public Service of New Jersey 3¾, Electric Autolite 9½ and Westinghouse 2. Combustion remained under constant pressure and lost 5¼ more while General Motors dropped a point in a generally unsettled motor group. Rails were firmer but very quiet. Turnover remained close to the 3,000,000 share level.

The street is "guessing" the reserve statement tomorrow will show a drop in loans of a hundred million or more. From the action of the market in the last hour there is reason to hope that the "guess" is right this week. On several Wednesday afternoons recently there has been heavy selling influenced by brokerage loan "guesses" that subsequently proved surprisingly accurate. There were a few brokers who advised clients that loans "might show an increase," basing their opinion on the fact that the Bethlehem Steel payment fell due during the week as well as payment for stock in one of the new investment trusts. A decline of $100,000,000 in loans would not be overly bullish in view of the rapid rate of increase in recent months but it would be of assistance in carrying the technical rally in the market a little further.

Announcement of the increased operations at the Steel Corporation's plants enhanced the influence of short covering. Steel men have not been worrying about the outlook and the one worry of experienced stock market people has been as to the length of time the steel bankers would hold off from the market. With completion of its refunding of bonds early next year the Steel Corporation will be in a position to apply a much greater proportion of earnings to dividends so that a slight falling off in business would make no difference. In the opinion of leaders of the steel trade the trend of business for the next six months will depend on whether improvement is experienced in the motor industry.

White Motors was helped by talk of negotiations for merger with Mack Truck. It will be remembered that this report has been heard at intervals for the last five years. Thus far those in control have been unable to agree as to price. Columbia Graphaphone pool work took on a more aggressive form with those interested reviving the oft-told tale of merger with the Radio Corporation which the radio interests denied again. Those who were responsible for the last outstanding advance in Murray Body were taking a more aggressive attitude toward the stock. Timken reflect quiet accumulation as it is expected that its merger announcement will be made before long. Special activity was seen in Gillette coincident with expectation that the company would have an important merchandizing announcement to make soon.

Automobile stocks and the automobile business is giving more worry to market students than money conditions and loans. The latest episode of interest was the estimate as to third quarter earnings issued by Mr. Chrysler. During the late lamented boom period the official quarterly reports were regarded as sufficient information for stockholders. Holders of motor stocks are not as interested in this quarter's results as they are in what will happen over the next six months. If the slowing down in the industry continues there is no telling what may be the effect of general business. The mysterious rumors concerning Ford's plans are not helping to bring improvement in sales of other companies.

MUSIC NIGHT AT REVIVAL

Laurie Taylor to Give 30-Minute Concert

Laurie Taylor, pianist of the Taylor evangelical party which is conducting a revival at the First Baptist church, will give a 30-minute musical program at the opening of the services Thursday night. Mr. Taylor, student of Gallico, Olga Steeb, and a pupil of Godowsky, has chosen a Mozart sonata, a Scarlatti pastorale, selections from Beethoven, Gluck and Mendelssohn for the program.

The musical numbers will be followed by a sermon on "God's Masterpiece" from Evangelist Charlie Taylor.

Wednesday night's sermon contained the speaker's three interpretations of the words "Thy Day." Reverend Taylor applied the text to the sinner, to the backslider and to the Christian, giving to each its separate implication.

Today — At the Theaters
By W. L. UNDERWOOD

MAJESTIC: Last day of "Charming Sinners." Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook getting over a good punch at divorce. Talking comedy. Vitaphone vaudeville. Paramount sound news.

Strand: "A Dangerous Woman," with Baclanova, Clive Brook, and Neil Hamilton. A Good play if you guess accurately at what they say. Talking comedy. Vitaphone vaudeville. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Sally O'Neill in "The Girl on the Barge." Comedy. Pathe review. Lillian Murray company in burlesque.

GEM: Clara Bow in "The Wild Party" and comedy.

Persons who seize their pens and with great earnestness express to theatrical columns their reactions to current stage and screen entertainment probably would not classify strictly as of the intelligentsia. Members of that mythical superstratum are presumed to possess inhibitions prohibitive of such plebian habits as speaking through "the voice of the people". But nevertheless and at the same time, both the applause and complaints which impulsively flow into those letters probably are representative of the theater-going public generally. Some of them have the good fortune to agree with opinions voiced heretofore in this column, and are accordingly rewarded with admission as follows:

From J. J. N.: "To what may we attribute the success of 'the talkies? To the ever-growing laziness of the public's power of visualization and imagination. Even with the silent movies, the only possible place where initiative in thinking could be utilized was in speculating as to the manner in which the players spoke—their expression, tone, and articulation.

"Then came the talkies—and here nothing is left—we see and hear everything in its entirety. As an invention, it is wonderful but its spectacular success thus far is due largely to its capability for catering to the public's laxity of imagination."

And from B. G.: "I for one am fed up on these behind-the-scene stage reviews such as 'Broadway Melody,' 'Rainbow Man,' 'Fox Movietone Follies,' 'On With the Show,' 'Innocents of Paris,' and 'Dance of Life.' These would all be very entertaining if we didn't have them so often. I thoroughly enjoy talkies but like variety. In a picture theater, where the screen is small, we see either the whole review indistinctly from a distance, or a close-up showing a few legs. This effect is not real. I see that 'Drag' is coming, and would not be surprised to find it like the others, with a back-stage plot. It is a pleasure to see a dialog drama like 'Coquette,' or a sound comedy like 'The Duke Steps out.' Let the talkies have some variety."

But in this case it's "Illusion," not the "Drag," which hovers in the offing. It will open Friday at the Majestic with the alluring Nancy Carroll and Buddy Rogers—children who pair very effectively for the screen. But it is apparent from the following review from Hollywood, written following the premier showing there, that the producers have bungled again in their feverish haste to capitalize on any individual, idea, or play which has formerly proven popular:

"If you really can believe that a young vaudeville actor, half of a mystery act, leaves his poor furnished lodgings to be the dinner partner of a visiting queen at an exclusive society function, you will follow with warm approval the further course of our hero as he makes the startling discovery that true love is better than riches. If you can't believe that, you won't see the rest of the picture anyhow. Despite the title, there is no illusion about the plot. Nowadays when we see two struggling players practicing their 'act' while they plan for the day when they make 'the big time' and 'knock 'em over,' we know the man-half of the act is going to wander away and return in time for the happy ending.

"But the heavy dramatics connected with wandering do not suit Buddy Rogers. Emotion of the more adult sort makes his face seem heavy, almost destroys his boyish beauty and charm. Nancy Carroll plays the formula of the girl-half of the mystery act so exasperating well that one can only wish it were worthier of her real talent."

Will Rogers' recent release "They Had to See Paris," a talking picture, promises a novel element. Advance reports of the public's response to the famous comedian's first talkie indicate that one of the minor characters boomerangs with disastrous effects to some of Will's wisecracks. Ivan Lebedeff, playing the count for whom Will's playdaughter trims her sails, imparts to the production an air of romanticism so genuine that her papa's Oklahoma humor meets a chilly resentment on the part of the audience. If this be true, the Claremore flag must be placed at half-mast.

HATCHITT RAPS TARIFF TALK

Lions Contribute to Fund For Coyotes

Protective tariffs were indicted as the forerunners of low wages by Joe B. Hatchitt, local attorney, in an address before the Lions club in its weekly meeting at the Kemp hotel Wednesday noon.

"Contrary to the arguments advanced by proponents of tariff protection of industry, wage scales in industries so protected run from 25 to 50 per cent lower than is paid for the same work in unprotected industries," the speaker said. "As to the claim that American industries would vanish but for protective tariffs, the unprotected industries manage to prosper even while paying their workers higher wages."

Members of the Lions club made voluntary contributions Wednesday to help defray expenses of a preseason training camp conducted by Coach Barry Holton for members of the high school football squad.

W. P. Bolding and Walter Taylor, captains of opposing sides in an attendance contest, the loser of which will banquet the entire club, made brief talks with reference to their campaigns.

Entertainment was furnished by Misses Lucile Crouch and Lucile Snyder, violinists, accompanied by Mrs. J. H. Crouch.

Negro Injured When Car Falls on Head

Sherman Hillman, negro, employe of the Fox Chevrolet company, suffered severe injuries about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when an automobile which he was helping to unload from a freight car in the railroad yards fell on him, striking his head with great force after dropping about three feet.

The injured man was taken to the Wichita General hospital in an Albert's company ambulance. Attendants stated that he has sustained severe scalp wounds, cuts around the face and head and great shock from the force of the blow. He was reported resting well Wednesday night.

ROTARY CLUB

Members of the Rotary club will meet at the Kemp hotel Thursday at 12 o'clock for the regular weekly luncheon. Jack Barnard, program chairman, has arranged a surprise program for the luncheon, he announced.

Negro Held Here Confesses Dozen Robberies in 10 Texas Cities

"And the last job was when I robbed a cafe in Abilene."

City Detective Fred Fountain paused in his questioning of a 19-year-old negro held at the city jail Wednesday in connection with an attempt to rob the Davis drug store, 205½ Park street. He had just heard the negro confess to 12 robberies in 10 widely separated Texas cities and had run out of paper in taking the confession.

The negro was given into the custody of county authorities. Charges of attempted robbery were filed against him Wednesday in connection with the robbery here and he was held at the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond, according to Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney. His confession was complete in every detail, including the amounts taken in each case, the disposal of the loot and the sequence of his travels from town to town.

He told Detective Fountain that he had spent two years in the boys' training school at Gatesville on a former charge and that he had been out only five months, having been going from town to town and robbing stores since that time. He started with two stores and a garage at Corsicana and traveled and robbed in sequence a fruit store at Rockwall, a store at Hillsboro, another at Vernon, another at Memphis, another at Marshall, a pressing shop at Mineola, a cafe at Longview, a cafe at Abilene and was caught in the attempt at the drug store here. Telegrams to several of the towns confirmed the negro's story, officers said.

Modern Witnesses to Christ's Saving 'Dead to Social Set,' Says Evangelist

"The supreme need of the hour in the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ is to have true witnesses to the Lord's saving and healing grace," declared Evangelist Albert E. Davis at the Wichita Falls Gospel tabernacle Wednesday night.

"In bygone days the word 'witness' in the Anglo Saxon language meant 'martyr,' or 'death.' To be a true witness of the Lord Jesus today does not mean any less.

"Regardless of the development and the high culture of civilization, the attitude of the world is still a foe to grace. Jesus said: 'Ye are my witnesses.' In bygone days it meant death to the physical. But when they were feeding saints to the lions, there were thousands which were added daily to the church. In these days to be a real witness for the Christ means that we are dead to the kin-folks which are about us. Also to the social set, who in many instances classify us as 'old fogies.' When we, as representatives of Jesus get to the place where neither 'loving friends nor foes can hurt us,' we are alive only to the plaudits of our Lord Jesus. With His commendation we are content. When we are dead to the opinions of people about us it is easy to suffer martrydom, if need be for the cause of the Lord Jesus."

Sunday night's subject will be "Why I Believe in Divine Healing." Mrs. Harriett M. Davis, wife of the evangelist, has charge of the healing section.

Feel Better, Look Younger and Have Steadier Nerves

If you only knew—you rundown, anemic women—who are dragging yourself around on your "nerve"—what a wonderful increase in strength and health Tanlac will give you, you wouldn't hesitate a moment about going to your druggist and getting a big bottle of this splendid medicine.

Mrs. A. M. Owens, of 1716 Taylor St., Rt. 5, Box 34, Little Rock, Ark., says: "I was so weak I couldn't walk across the floor. I had spent a fortune trying to get well and would be in my grave if it weren't for Tanlac. Now I eat and sleep fine and have gained 22 lbs."

Tanlac is as free from harmful drugs as the water you drink—only Nature's own medicinal tonic herbs. Druggists know this and for the past 10 years have recommended it to men and women who need a quick "pick up" that will put them on their feet and give them a new interest in life.

So confident are the makers of Tanlac that if you are not helped by it, you get your money back on request.
