Schlesinger urges against revising plan

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger today urged Congress not to tamper with major provisions of President Carter's energy program, which he called carefully balanced to "distribute benefits and burdens equitably" among Americans.

"Many groups will find in this bill provisions which will impose burdens or sacrifices upon them said Schlesinger. "The temptation to seek exemptions from burdens and sacrifices will be very strong, but the United States will solve its energy problem only if it adopts a plan that is fair and any fair plan will impose burdens on everyone."

Schlesinger also told the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee that the President's proposal for a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon, perhaps the single most controversial element of the program, "would provide a challenge to the American people to meet a common goal."

Noting that the tax would be levied in five-cent-a-gallon increments if gasoline consumption exceeds specified goals, Schlesinger said, "This represents the type of challenge Americans have been so successful in meeting in the past and will likely meet in the future."

The White House adviser also held out the possibility that the administration would consider mandatory conservation measures "such as requiring that houses be insulated before they are sold," if the nation does not respond to financial incentives to save energy.

Carter's bill would give tax breaks to home owners and businesses for insulation and solar energy. However, the program would be voluntary.

Schlesinger's testimony was the first discussion of the sweeping energy program before Congress by an administration official since the President presented it to a joint session of Congress on April 20.

Committee Chairman Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told Schlesinger, "I expect we'll report to the Senate most of those parts of the program which come to this committee."

However, Jackson said the administration must provide "convincing answers" to a number of questions about the legislation, such as how much energy it would actually save and its economic impact.

The President's program also calls for a stiff tax on gas-guzzling automobiles and corresponding rebates for fuel-efficient vehicles; new taxes on domestic oil that would allow oil prices to rise to world market levels within two years; and higher prices for natural gas.

Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., complained that the administration plan does not offer enough encouragement for increased energy production.

But Schlesinger countered that the Carter plan "would yield revenues greater than those available to oil producers anywhere in the world."

Meanwhile, another Senate panel, the Government Operations Committee, was scheduled to consider legislation that would limit Schlesinger's power as head of the proposed new department of energy.

Carter's proposals, revealed to a joint session of Congress last month, include a standby gasoline tax that could hit 50 cents a gallon if consumption continues to rise rapidly; stiff taxes on big cars that get poor gas mileage and rebates for fuel-efficient vehicles; higher prices for both oil and natural gas and tax breaks for those who insulate their homes or install solar energy devices.

In the House, the new ad hoc energy committee begins its work on Wednesday with a scheduled meeting with the President.

Carter proposed the new cabinet-level energy agency to administer the bulk of his energy program, and has said he will nominate Schlesinger to be the nation's first energy secretary once Congress gets around to creating the post and the department.

But how much power Schlesinger should have has caused considerable controversy in the Senate's Government Operations Committee.

The White House-submitted legislation would give the new energy secretary — Schlesinger — power to regulate the wellhead price of both oil and natural gas, a power the administration says is crucial to the success of the President's entire energy program.

Power grid hookup starts

By GREG THOMPSON

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Major Texas utility companies began today to reconnect the statewide power grid that protected Texans from blackouts and brownouts before it fell apart almost a year ago.

But they went into their second day of hearings today on the Texas Public Utility Commission's interim order that forced the reconnection.

One member of the PUC predicted the hearings could stretch for three months.

The commissioners voted unanimously for the order Monday, despite arguments against it by former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, representing Central Power & Light Co. and West Texas Utilities.

The Texas Interconnected System, a statewide grid to provide backup power in case of shortages, was disrupted May 4, 1976, when WTU began serving Oklahoma customers.

Houston Lighting & Power Co. and the Texas Utilities subsidiaries withdrew from the system, fearing that the Oklahoma connection might bring them under Federal Power Commission regulation.

CP&L and WTU, both subsidiaries of Delaware-based Central & South West Corp., opposed the order because it forces them to remove the Oklahoma connection and bars them from engaging in interstate commerce.

Although a Central & South West spokesman said CP&L and WTU began reconnecting Monday evening, they could seek a court injunction to halt the order. "That's just a decision we'll have to make," attorney J.D. Giller said Monday. "The order is unacceptable to us as it stands now."

Jaworski urged the PUC to delay the interim order until after Congress acts on President Carter's recent energy proposals. He argued that the commission does not have the legal authority to force reconnection of the grid system.

"Is it appropriate at this moment to go ahead in the teeth of what the President proposed and ignore it?" Jaworski asked the commmission. "We don't think that it is. I urge you to withhold any action."

One of Carter's proposals would force intrastate utilities to hook up with interstate firms in order to avoid possible power shortages.

Commissioner Al Erwin said FPC officials advised him recently that the reconnection would not throw the Texas companies into interstate commerce.

The surprise order came after attorneys announced Monday morning the failure of four-month-long negotiations aimed at allowing the Lower Colorado River Authority, Austin and San Antonio to disconnect from CP&L and WTU.

Citing unreliable service and loss of power reserves, the LCRA and the two cities said they wanted to reconnect with HL&P and the Texas Utilities subsidiaries in the other half of the disrupted grid.

The PUC had given the utilities until Monday to work out a solution among themselves and attorneys were present merely to report on the status of the negotiations.

FPC favors overland route for Alaskan gas

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Federal Power Commission recommended Monday that Alaska's rich supplies of natural gas be transported overland through Canada to the lower 48 states rather than be shipped to California in tankers.

But the FPC members failed to reach agreement on a preference between two competing pipeline proposals for moving the gas across Canada to the U.S. border. None of the four commissioners backed the proposal of the El Paso Co., which called for a trans-Alaska gas pipeline and a fleet of special tankers to carry liquefied gas to Point Conception in California.

California's leading gas utility firms and the state's Public Utilities Commission are supporting Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co. in its plans for a 4,100 mile route through Canada.

Two FPC members backed this plan in the report issued Monday, while the other two commissioners endorsed a different trans-Canadian pipeline proposed by AlCan Pipeline Co. The fifth FPC seat is vacant.

The split FPC recommendation goes to President Carter, who will present his plan on Sept. 1 for the disposition of the gas from the Prudhoe Bay fields on Alaska's North Slopes.

Congress can overturn the President's plan and substitute its own version by a majority vote in both houses.

The North Slope Reserves are large enough to supply about 5 per cent of the nation's demand for the next 25 years, the FPC said Monday.

A pipeline through Canada is the best way for shipping gas, assuming the Canadian government will make the route available on acceptable terms, the FPC said in its 500-page report to the President.

"An overland route can deliver each unit of gas more cheaply than a land and water route using liquefied natural gas technology," the FPC said. The El Paso project would have converted the gas into liquid form for shipment at extremely low temperatures in specially built tankers from Point Gravina on Alaska's southern coast to Point Concepcion.

FPC members Don S. Smith and John H. Holloman III recommended the Arctic Gas Pipeline Co. project, with the construction of 3,600 miles of new pipeline. The line would pick up gas from Prudhoe Bay in Alaska and the MacKenzie Delta in Canada and move it south through the Northwest Territories into Alberta.

German Shepherd Dogs policemen's best friends

By JIM STEINBERG

Are Joll and Caspar overgrown lapdogs, cautious sentries or the most ferocious canines in Midland?

Actually, they are a little bit of all three. Recent immigrants to the United States from Germany, the two black and rust-colored German Shepherd dogs are four-legged partners of Midland policemen Paul Jones and Oscar Strain.

And as such they form the department's "K-9" team that can track down lost children and fugitives, or control a crowd. But their biggest use is to fortify the crime fighting capabilities of the Midland Police Department during the peak hours of criminal activity between 7 p.m. to 3 a.m., police Capt. E. W. Green said.

During those high-crime hours, the "K-9" team cruise the Midland streets and are on call for situations where their special talents are needed.

The dogs are particularly useful during building searches, when there is reason to believe a burglary suspect may be hiding from police, Green explained.

Both Joll and Caspar are Ger-

Statewide convention set for city

The Texas Association of Legal Secretaries will have its 1978 annual meeting in Midland.

The group decided on Midland as the convention site Saturday at the 1977 meeting in Waco, where members of the Midland Legal Secretaries Association and representatives of the convention and visitors division of the Midland Chamber of Commerce were on hand.

Gordon Votaw, chairman of the chamber convention and visitors committee, made the presentation. He said the state association has 1,800 active members and more than 300 attended the Waco meeting. Janet Swallow, director of the chamber's convention and visitors division, was in Waco also.

Pat Kinnson, a member of the Midland Legal Secretaries Association, is second vice president of the state organization.

Next year's convention will be May 4-8 at the Midland Hilton.

Members of the Midland association present in Waco included Novella Anderson, Ellie Holmes, June Judkins, Virginia Keel, Betty Lewis, Virginia Scott and Wilma Wheat.

Maggie wants a home, but doors seem shut

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

"I've got you some good news and some bad news," the mailman told Maggie. "The bad news is underneath." He handed her two envelopes.

He was standing on the weathered porch of her ramshackled frame shack.

She was reaching toward him from the threshold of the old house — her home for the past five years.

The good news he put in her wrinkled hand was her "old folks'" pension check, as she calls it. The bad news in the other envelope was a utility bill.

But that didn't bother Maggie too much. Bills are meant to be paid, and she pays 'em.

What was bothering her caused the wrinkles in dear Maggie's face to deepen and to multiply, or so it seemed.

She was having to move out of her rent house, and she had no place to go.

"I just hate for them to tear this place down and me not have a place to go," said Maggie, who's 70 and widowed. "Now, they tell me they is going to move it."

"I just don't know what to do," she said.

The near-downtown block where Maggie lives will be cleared of its old rent houses and then turned into a productive business.

Maggie understands all that.

"This old house have got to go," said Maggie, as if to reconcile herself with a situation she cannot change, "'cause they (the houses on the block)

Airport zoning proposal gets OK

By JIM STEINBERG

A proposal that would create a new zoning pattern on four tracts of land at the Midland Regional Air Terminal received a favorable nod from the the Midland Planning and Zoning Commissiom Monday.

The proposal would reserve a "core area" near La Force Boulevard for office use, as opposed to industrial, but would also allow "certain unique activities such as scientific and research laboratories and wholesale office and sample rooms, which are compatible with office parks."

A relatively new zoning, termed IP-3, would be granted to the other areas, and would provide setbacks, landscaping regulations, provisions for parking spaces and other regulations that most common industrial park zones don't now provide, according to Richard Hennessy, city planning director.

By a 5 to 2 margin, the commissioners gave their approval to a reguest by William Hickey for a zone change from 1F-1, single family district to 1F-2, single family district, on lots 1, 2, 3, 4, block 1, Kelson Place, and lots 1 and 2, block 2, Kelson Place, and including an area bounded by W. Golf Course Road, the north line of Murray Judson Addition, Murray Street, and Ainslee Street. The change would reduce the minimum lot size from 10,000 square feet to 7,000 square feet.

Commissioners Mrs. James Purvis and George Veloz voted against the proposal.

In other action, the commissioners:

— Approved a request by John Sudderth for a zone change from 1F-1, single family district, to PD, for duplexes on West Kansas Avenue, west of A Street.

— Postponed action on a zone change request by Leo Proctor, Security Storage, and the Midland SPCA from 1F-1, single family district to C-3, commercial district, on a 4.766 acre tract of land located on Andrews Highway and Idlewild Drive.

The land will be used as an animal shelter.

Maggie wants a home, but doors seem shut

is too close to downtown. I knows that."

What Maggie would like is more time to find a suitable place. It's far from ideal, but she would be pleased with a place that rents for about $30 a month. That's what she's paying now — or was.

"I just wish they would give me time to get out," said humble Maggie. "Of course, I wants to get out. I should have already been gone."

Already gone from the block is Katie, another older widow and Maggie's neighbor for years. She has found a cheap place across the tracks in southeast Midland.

Maggie, too, is supposed to be out sometime this week. She's willing.

"I hate to be in a place where people don't want you," said a discouraged Maggie. "If they wants me out, . . . I wants to get out."

"I wants to move as badly as they wants me to move," she said.

Maggie wants to move to Stanton. She and her late husband, Ray, lived in that farming community years ago.

Maggie worked in the fields, where she pulled cotton bolls, and labored indoors, where she worked as a housemaid.

"I would like to get in Stanton," she said, "because colored people will be on one side of the tracks and white folks on the other."

But there's no room for Maggie in Stanton. The one-bedroom apartments of the Federal Housing Authority there are all filled up. And Maggie feels she could afford the rent there.

She draws about $180 per month in two welfare checks. One is Social Security; the other is the 'old folks' pension.

"The more you get the more you pay," reasoned Maggie. "And the less you get the less you have to pay."

So, she figured that her rental payments would be fairly low.

The FHA low-rent units in Midland will not be ready for occupancy until September. Maggie can't wait that long.

Even rental places "across the tracks" are hard to find . . . especially at a price Maggie can afford to pay.

"Down here in the 'flats,' there ain't no houses — just condemned places," she said of Midland's second downtown area, "colored town."

Maggie has checked with the Salvation Army in trying to find a low-rent place to stay. Then, she looked around.

"I went down to the flats, (to) colored people's town, and there's nothing down there."

Poor, sweet, innocent, child-like Maggie won't give up.

"You know," she said, "you've got to try to help yourself." She keeps on looking, hoping, worrying.

And with a little help, dear Maggie will find a place to stay, a place to rest her tired soul.

Northern Irish refuse to strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Workers poured into Northern Ireland's factories, shops and offices today in defiance of a general strike called by militant Protestants in an attempt to force the British army to open an offensive against the Irish Republican Army.

The Belfast Telegraph estimated at midmorning that 80 to 90 per cent of Belfast's workers were on the job, and the turnout was nearly 100 per cent in Londonderry, which has a large Roman Catholic population. But it said about 60 per cent of the workers heeded the strike call in some mostly Protestant areas.

Strikers and their supporters shared the streets of Belfast with strengthened police forces on the lookout for any attempt to intimidate the workers. Although there was no interference with the stream of motorists and pedestrians going to work, threats were reported.

"We are getting reports of intimidation and calls for help," reported Ciaran McKeown, an official of the Peace People campaign. "Fear is spreading very rapidly, particularly among wives with children who have been threatened if their husbands do not heed the strike call."

A police spokesman said "many persons" had telephoned police to complain about intimidation. "So far we have not been able to apprehend anyone in connection with these complaints," he said.

The strike began at midnight Monday, and shortly after, 200 workers at the big Harland and Wolff shipyard in East Belfast walked out. But no unusual number of absentees was reported from the day shift at the yard, and the Northern Ireland Chamber of Commerce reported many other factories were operating normally.

Firebombs exploded in downtown Belfast stores during the night, and a bomb ripped up a section of track on the Belfast-Bangor rail line, but there were no casualties in these incidents.

The police said platoons of strikers felled trees and telephone poles before dawn to block roads around Belfast, but the police cleared them. Strikers sabotaged scores of buses by deflating their tires or pouring sugar into their gas tanks.

FPC urges overland route for Alaska gas

Calgary, the proposed arctic gas line would split, with the western leg heading across Idaho, Washington and Oregon, across the California border to Antioch. The eastern leg would cross Montana, the Dakotas, Iowa, and terminate in Illinois.

The system would cost approximately $6.73 billion, and deliver at least 2.2 billion cubic feet of gas each day.

A rival route, proposed by the AlCan Pipeline Co., was supported by FPC Chairman Richard L. Dunham and commissioner James G. Watt. This pipeline would follow the route of the Alaska oil pipeline to a point south of Fairbanks, then move eastward into the Yukon, down British Columbia, and into Alberta. At Caroline Junction, the line would divide into east and west-bound segments, following the same routes as the Arctic project.

This system would costs approximately $6.76 billion and deliver 2.2 billion cubic feet daily.

The El Paso pipeline-tanker plan would cost $6.57 billion and deliver 2.1 billion cubic feet daily, the FPC said.

The four FPC members couldn't agree on the choice of a specific route because the Canadian National Energy Board hasn't finished its hearings on the issue, the report said. "Until the Canadian Government has made a decision whether a land route is available, it would be premature for this commission to recommend a route, unconditionally," the FPC said.

If the United States and Canada can't agree on a route for the pipeline and terms of construction, the El Paso project would be acceptable, the FPC said. Gas could be delivered under the tanker system at an "economical price," the report said.

End in sight for venerable V-8 engines

The Washington Post

DETROIT — The end is in sight for the venerable V-8 engine, 75-plus years old and a high-volume centerpiece of the auto industry for more than half a century.

General Motors Corp. has told the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) that the V-8 will most likely to be dropped in about five years as the primary power plant for family cars.

Today just under 70 per cent of all American-made cars are now being built with V-8 engines. About 20 per cent have sixcylinder engines and the remainder have four-cylinder power plants.

GM's reason for the V-8's demise is to be able to meet the federal law now on the books requiring vast improvements in the miles per gallon for all new cars sold through 1985 and after.

Oddly, the GM document was written before Persident Carter announced his tax-and-rebate program for new cars based on their fuel economy. His program could only serve to accelerate the changes envisioned in GM's statement to NHTSA.

The auto maker's document detailing the drastic alternations likely in coming U.S. cars was drawn up in response to an NHTSA query about how GM planned to meet the required fleet average boost in fuel economy.

In it, GM made these points:

—No 1984 model GM car would have a V-8, and only the 1983 Corvette would have one.

—The 3.8 litre, roughly 230 cubic inch, V-6 would be the largest engine sold in 1984 models.

GM's just-downsized, hugely successful 1977 model big cars would again be cut in size for the 1983 model year. After that they would weigh roughly 3,200 pounds — or approximately what the present compact Chevrolet Nova wieghs.

—Meeting the 1985 mileage requirement would enormously degrade acceleration and performance. None of the 1985 cars would go from a standing start to 60 miles per hour in less than 15 seconds, and most would average about 18 or 19 seconds.

—While the "drastic scenario" so carefully delineated would meet the mileage required by law, "there is no guarantee that the consumer will buy the products," GM said.

—Better radial tires should increase mileage for four-fifths of the 1985 cars by 4 per cent.

Hot, sultry weather may be broken

The hot and sultry weather found in the Permian Basin today may be broken by thunderstorms tonight and tomorrow.

The weatherman gives the area a 20 per cent chance of rain tonight and a 30 per cent chance Wednesday.

Skies should be partly cloudy through Wednesday, with a low tonight in mid-60s and a high Wednesday in upper 80s. Winds are expected to be from the southeast at 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Monday's high was 92 degrees and this morning's low was 63 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Temperatures this morning were warm in Andrews, Lamesa, Big Spring, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Crane. Skies were overcast in all of those cities.

Reports divulge campaign costs

In his unsuccessful school board campaign, Kingdon R. Hughes spent almost $11,000, compared to almost $5,000 spent by Trustee Joe Dominey.

Hughes, who ran against Dominey, spent a total of $10,714. That amount includes $1,500 of his own money in contributions and a $3,000 loan from himself which was un-repaid, according to a financial statement which was due Monday.

The reports cover expenditures and contributions from March 24 to April 27.

Trustee James Ramsoure, who was unopposed in his re-election campaign, reported total expenditures of $191 and total contributions of $160. All contributions for the reporting period were for less than $50 each.

Ramsoure spent money with Creative Printing, the U.S. Post Office, The Reporter-Telegram and Panther City Office Supply.

Dominey spent $4,879, with total contributions of $4,794. During the reporting period, he received contributions of under $50 each totaling $844. Other contributors were Murray Fasken for $1,000, Clifford H. Sherrod for $100, James L. Parude for $50, Alan B. Leeper for $100, Ted Kruger for $100 and Miller and Floyd for $50.

Expenditures during the reporting period were for advertising with The Reporter-Telegram and KMID-TV, printing from Mr. Kwik-Print and $1,655 to repay a loan from The Midland National Bank.

Hughes reported total contributions of $12,000. During the reporting period, he received contributions under $50 each totaling $1,050 and $2,115 in other contributions.

Contributions include $500 ones from Jack E. Brown and Cy Wagner Jr.; $100 contributions from Hutson Oil Co., Frank Kell Cahoon, Pomeroy Smith, Mac McCrea, J. Paul Katcher, Allegra Travel Agency and Robert L. Monahgan; a $340 contribution from the Midland Council of Concerned Citizens, and $75 from Richard O. Williams.

Hughes' expenditures during the reporting period were for advertising through Media Services costing $5,605, letters and envelopes from The Desk Top, postage, stationary from O'Bannon Printing and miscellaneous expenses for himself.

Chase leaves one dead

Dead is Rocky Lynn Howard, 20, of Crane. Joe Ralph Pierce of Crane was injured, a U.S. National Park Service official said.

Trawler captain pleads guilty

BOSTON (AP) — The first Soviet fishing trawler seized for violating the new 200-mile limit is scheduled to go back to work in the North Atlantic this week after its captain pleaded guilty to breaking American laws.

The skipper, Aleksandr Gupalov, was given a nine-month suspended sentence and fined $10,000 Monday in U.S. District Court. The Soviet government agreed to pay the United States an additional $240,000 in other fines.

The captain's sentence was on a criminal charge of violating his fishing vessel's permit. The Soviet government was fined in a civil action which the U.S.government brought against it as owner of the ship.

The captain's plea cleared the way for the release of the 275-foot Taras Shevchenko. The ship and its crew have been confined to the Coast Guard base on Boston Harbor since the vessel was seized April 10 off Nantucket Island.

The ship was taken for catching more than its limit of river herring.

When it was brought to Boston, all the ship's cargo of frozen fish was unloaded to be weighed. On Friday, longshoremen began putting the legal part of the catch back aboard.

Gupalov appeared before Judge Andrew Caffrey, the same judge who blocked settlement of the case Friday by refusing to accept a plea of no contest by the skipper.

Thomas Edwards, the Russians' lawyer, said the ship would leave Boston as soon as the cargo is reloaded. After he pleaded guilty, the captain stood in the courtroom and said through an interpreter: "I did not intentionally violate the laws of the United States."

Bike-A-Thon to be held in Midland

A Bike-A-Thon, sponsored by the American Diabetes Association, will be held May 15 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., over a 12-mile course in Midland.

Money raised by the Bike-A-Thon will be used for research and education about diabetes which is the third leading cause of disease in the U.S. behind heart disease and cancer.

An estimated 3,500 Midlanders have diabetes and half of them are not aware of it , according to an ADA spokesman.

Midland riders can win a color television, a 10-speed bicycle, an AM-FM radio and other prizes.

The 12-mile route begins at the Mid-Tex of Midland parking lot on the Andrews Highway and makes a circuit through Northwest Midland.

Information on how to participate is available at the Midland office of the American Diabetes Association.

Motion for new trial filed in Stewart case

A motion for a new trial has been filed for James W. "Bubba" Stewart, who was sentenced to seven years in the Texas pentitentiary after he was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Bobby D. Sargent.

Attorney Warren Burnett of Odessa filed the motion Friday. No date has been set for a hearing on the motion.

The motion stated that a new trial should be set on the grounds that the "court reversibly erred in excluding evidence of the defendant's reputation for truth and veracity in the community."

Stewart remains free on the $25,000 bond he posted after he was indicted.

Stewart was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter April 20. He had been charged originally with murder in connection with the shooting death of Sargent, 24, in the early morning hours of Aug. 20, 1976, at the Red Fox Lounge, 106 W. Wall Ave. Stewart owned the lounge at the time of the shooting. The lounge has since been sold to the city as part of a park project.

Fancy talkers due in Midland

Administration previews welfare reform plan

By WILLIAM CHAPMAN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Carter administration Monday announced the outlines of a welfare reform program that would guarantee jobs for people who can work and cash assistance to those who cannot.

Carter told a news conference that the present welfare system should be scrapped but said that his new one probably would not be implemented for four years.

He also laid down an edict specifying that the new system must not cost more initially than the present assortment of programs.

The President said that a three-month assessment by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare produced the conclusion that welfare now "is worse than we had anticipated.

"The most important unanimous conclusion is that the present welfare programs should be scrapped and a totally new system implemented," he said.

Although many features of the reform remain unresolved within the administration, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. and Labor Secretary Ray F. Marshall provided these details:

—Every family with a child and a member able to work would be guaranteed a job — a publicly-financed one if private employment is unavailable. Money from the present public-service jobs program would be diverted to make those jobs available.

—A number of present assistance programs would be consolidated so that recipients, who cannot work, would be eligible for a single cash payment. The assistance would follow uniform national standards, varying only by the differences in cost-of-living from area to area.

—The earned income tax credits already in the tax law would be retained to help the so-called working poor — those who hold jobs but do not make enough to live on.

During the campaign last year, Carter listed welfare reform as a priority measure and at one point indicated he expected to have a program ready early this year.

A number of problems have intervened to delay the preparation, however. There are differences within his administration over many key details.

HEW has leaned toward a program emphasizing cash assistance and expected to cost the federal government between $6 and $8 billion. Labor had pushed for a system relying mainly on creation of public-service jobs.

Congressional leaders have also made it clear they will not be able to consider welfare reform this year. The two committees with jurisdiction —House Ways and Means and Senate Finance — will be preoccupied with other pieces of Carter's legislative program, including tax reform, energy legislation, and a possible restructuring of the Social Security system.

Carter said Monday that the legislative proposal would ot be ready until August. "If the new legislation can be adopted early in 1978, an additional three years will be required to implement the program," Carter told reporters.

Potentially the most important element in what was disclosed Monday is the promise to guarantee jobs to families with children. Carter said it might involve providing as many as two million jobs. Marshall said later the actual requirement might be much less, possibly only a million.

The public service jobs would include employment in such occupations and areas as teachers' aides, Department of Agriculture extension service, and to the elderly, and recreation centers, Carter said.

Court reverses 'for sale' sign ban

By PHILIP HAGER
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Ordinances designed to promote stable integrated housing by banning "for sale" and "sold" signs from residential property were struck down Monday by the Supreme Court.

The ordinance before the court, enacted in Willingboro, N.J., was aimed at "white flight" and "panic selling" in a town 82 per cent white and 18 per cent black.

In an 8 to 0 decision, the justices said that, however laudable its goal, the ordinance violated the First Amendment by restricting the free flow of commercial information.

"That information...is of vital interest to Willingboro residents, since it may bear one of the most important decisions they have a right to make: where to live and raise their families," Justice Thurgood Marshall wrote in the court's opinion.

"If dissemination of this information can be restricted, then every locality in the country can suppress any facts that reflect poorly on the locality, so long as a plausible claim can be made that disclosure would cause the recipients of the information to act 'irrationally,'" Marshall said.

The Willingboro ordinance, adopted in 1974, was similar to laws passed in cities as diverse as Baltimore; Gary, Ind., and Shaker Heights, Ohio.

In 1970, about 44,000 people — 88 per cent white, 12 per cent black — resided in Willingboro, a community near Fort Dix, N.J. But in the next three years, the white population declined by almost 2,000, while the black population grew by 3,000.

The township council put the sign prohibition into effect after widespread reports of "panic selling" by whites. One real estate broker testified that the reason most sellers gave for leaving was "....the whole town was for sale and they didn't want to be caught in a bind."

The ordinance was challenged and declared unconstitutional by a federal district court. But a federal appellate court upheld the sign ban, ruling 2 to 1 that "...preservation of a desirable community impels a priority of the community's needs over commercial transactions."

The justices took a different view. They expanded First Amendment protection for "commercial speech," citing as precedents recent decisions where they struck down state laws prohibiting advertisements for legal abortions and prescription drug prices.

Marshall, the only black member of the court, noted at the outset that "there can be no question" of the importance of achieving stable, racially integrated housing.

But there was insufficient evidence to show that "substantial" panic selling actually was occurring in Willingboro, Marshall said. Nor, he added could it be established that the "for sale" signs reported in front of two per cent of the town's homes were a "major cause" of what flight existed.

European officials admit loss of oxide

By WILLIAM DROZDIAK
Special to The Washington Post

BRUSSELS — European Economic Community officials admitted Monday that a shipment of 200 tons of uranium oxide was lost on the high seas nine years ago while in transit from the port of Antwerp to Genoa and probably turned up in Israel.

Chagrined by disclosures in the American press about the missing uranium, E.E.C. officials asserted in private that the stories were "planted" to exert fresh pressures on Europe to adopt stiffer controls on the sale and transport of nuclear materials.

Several allies harbor deep misgivings about President Carter's chary approach to nuclear exports. West Germany and France still hope to conclude lucrative sales of nuclear technology to Brazil and Pakistan.

Europe and Japan intend to cut their dependence on foreign energy sources — oil from the Arabs and enriched uranium from the United States — by proceeding to develop fast breeder reactors fueled by plutonium, a move anathema to the administration's own energy policy.

A highly lethal element, plutonium is derived from spent enriched uranium. When reprocessed, it can be used as a cheap, self-generative source of nuclear fuel but also diverted to making nuclear weapons, a prospect that Carter wants to erase.

Revelations of the vanished uranium cargo and its rumored hijacking to Israel surfaced last week as the Carter Administration prepared to press for legislation that would impose strict safeguards on nuclear exports.

"If the story was leaked, it was a dirty blow," scoffed one Common Market official. "People are supposed to infer that since the uranium disappeared, terrorists will be able to steal our plutonium in the future."

Enriched uranium supplies to Europe have been blocked for several months while the United States carried out a review of its nuclear export policy.

Pentagon calms fears about beam

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The possibility that the Soviet Union "has achieved a breakthrough" in directing an energy beam to destroy missiles "is considered remote," the Pentagon said Monday.

Thomas B. Ross, assistant secretary of defense for public affairs, issued that statement in response to an Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine story which said the Soviets are far along in developing a beam of charged particles to destroy missiles and "are preparing to test" an antisatellite laser in space.

"U.S. officials are coming to a conclusion that a decisive turn in the balance of strategic power is in the making," the magazine said in its May 2 issue, "which could tip that balance heavily in the Soviets' favor through charged-particle beam development and the development of energetic strategic laser weapon."

The magazine did not name any U.S. officials who had come to that conclusion. Editor Robert Hotz, in an introductory editorial, said that recently retired Air Force intelligence chief Maj. Gen. George J. Keegan Jr. had helped verify Soviet advances in "a directed-energy beam weapon."

Keegan has been sounding the alarm in numerous public appearances since leaving the Air Force about the Soviet military threat, including beam technology.

'Refreshing victory'

Independent oil and gas operators had something to cheer about for a change last Thursday, as the United States Senate, shaking-off Treasury Department objections, approved a $30 million annual tax break for them. It was an occasion for rejoicing.

And Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen (D-Tex.) gained hero status as a result of the action.

It was Bentsen who sponsored the oil provision and pushed it through to Senate passage. The vote was 50 to 33.

The bill absolves from a special 15 per cent "mininum tax" for individuals the intangible drilling costs on successful new oil and gas wells — unless the costs exceed oil-related income.

It is a complicated tax calculation, but the net effect is to reduce taxes for independent oil firms by approximately $30 million a year.

The tax, which never should have been voted in the first place, was imposed last year. The Bentsen amendment wipes it out starting Jan. 1, 1977.

There is absolutely no doubt the independents need the extra money to finance increased exploration. Bentsen explained in introducing the measure that corporations are not subject to the same tax.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) opposed the amendment, as might have been expected.

There was a great deal of weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth — well justified — among independent firms last year when the unjust tax was imposed. There is little doubt that it curtailed exploration to a degree.

It is interesting to note that President Carter had made the tax repeal part of his energy program, which he submitted recently.

And Congressman George Mahon of this West Texas district played an important role in this particular development.

Mahon, who told The Reporter-Telegram that he was highly pleased with the Senate action in approving the Bentsen amendment, said that Charles D. Fraser of Midland, president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, and John Christmann, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, contacted him about two weeks before the President's energy message and requested that he talk with President Carter and his chief energy adviser, James Schlesinger, about this very matter.

The congressman talked to Carter and Schlesinger about including repeal of the intangible drilling cost tax in the energy proposal. Then, three or four days before the energy message was delivered, Schlesinger called Mahon to report that the President's speech would include intangible tax repeal.

Fraser, incidentally, termed the Senate action a refreshing victory for the independent operator.

At the same time he warned that the battle is not over. Since the House bill did not include such an amendment, the Senate bill now goes to conference committee where a determined fight likely will be made by opponents to remove the amendment.

Fraser is hopeful that oilmen across the country will contact their representatives, urging them to support the Bentsen amendment.

Congressman Mahon said that he would today confer with the members of the House Ways and Means Committee who will be in on the conference with the Senate, urging them to approve the amendment as part of the bill.

Hopefully, the measure will survive the conference panel scrap and will get to the President's desk for his signature.

It will be a tremendous incentive for increased exploration for new oil and gas fields.

ART BUCHWALD

Solving the empty hospital bed problem

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The real problem of hospital prices, the experts tell us, is not the patients but the empty beds. A hospital can keep down costs if it is absolutely full. But it starts to lose money if it doesn't have enough sick people to care for.

A recent news item said that Sunrise Hospital and Medical Center in Las Vegas is trying to solve the problem through a lottery. Sunrise seemed to be doing good business during the week, but it was suffering from a lack of patients on weekends. So the Las Vegas hospital came up with a unique plan.

If you check in on Friday or Saturday your name goes in a hat for a lottery. Every Monday morning, a certified public accountant draws a name from the hat and the winner is given the choice of five different Mediterranean cruises worth $4,000. The winner has a year to claim the prize, and if for some reason he or she never leaves the hospital the prize goes to the patient's estate. I did not make this up.

The director of the hospital said the lottery has been an overwhelming success and weekend admissions are up by 40 per cent.

While this is an innovative idea there are others that we can think of which would cut hospital costs and fill the empty rooms that are costing all of us so much money.

One idea would be for a hospital to hook up a hotline with all the doctors that are accredited to the hospital. Each doctor would have a quota to fill as to how many patients he must supply to the hospital. As soon as a bed became empty the doctor would be notified that a hospital patient was needed, and he would be obligated to find someone for the bed whether he needed it or not.

Suppose, for example, a patient came in with an ingrown toenail. As the doctor was treating it the hotline would ring and the administrator on the other end would say, "We need an in-patient for Room 211."

"Is it a private or semiprivate room?" the doctor would ask.

"Semiprivate, but Dr. Combs is sending over a patient with a tennis elbow so we just need one person."

"I've got a live one in my office now I can give you."

"Hurry," the administrator says, "we're losing money every minute."

The doctor goes back to the patient. "I don't know how to tell you this, but I don't like the look of this ingrown toenail. I could take it out, of course, but you might lose your toe."

"What's the alternative?"

"I'd like to put you in Our Lady of Deficits Hospital for observation. I think that with adequate hospital care and a nurse around the clock, we could observe which direction the nail is growing and possibly save the foot."

"How long will I be in the hospital?" the patient asks.

The doctor calls back the administrator. "How long do you need him?"

"I'll take him for a week," the administrator says. "Dr. Friedkin owes us three patients and he's promised us a pregnancy or whether the rabbit test is positive or negative."

The doctor goes back to the patient. "I'd like to keep you in the hospital for a week to avoid liver damage."

Of course, the quota system is not the only alternative to keeping hospitals full. Taking a leaf from Holiday Inns, the hospital could offer rooms for patients and put in cots for their children at no extra charge.

They could also offer "second honeymoon weekends" for couples wanting to get away for a few days with free Xrays and Epsom salt baths thrown in.

The main reason there are so many empty hospital beds has not been mentioned by anybody; and that is the poor quality of the food. After a meal or two is an average hospital most patients want to get dressed and leave.

There is a solution for this. Most independent surveys show there is 50 per cent more surgery done in this country than is necessary — mainly because we have 50 per cent more surgeons.

To cut down on surgery and also improve the quality of hospital food, HEW should provide retraining programs for surgeons and teach them how to cook.

Hopefully, these surgeon-chefs, once they learned their trade, could make hospital cuisine the best in the land, and patients would extend their stays in their rooms as long as their Blue Cross would let them.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Secret police operate in U.S.

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Some of the world's most sinister secret police are operating in the United States with the blessing of the Central Intelligence Agency. There is evidence that these foreign agents have arranged murders, committed burglaries, attempted kidnappings and terrorized political opponents in violation of U.S. laws.

In past columns, we have reported that the CIA has a secret understanding with such notorious foreign intelligence agencies as Chile's DINA, Iran's SAVAK and South Korea's KCIA. Not only does the CIA work closely with these police agencies; the agents operate within one another's countries by mutual consent.

Now the Senate Foreign Relations Committe has quietly started an investigation into the activities of foreign intelligence agencies in the United States. The committee is particularly curious about the CIA's role in these activities.

On the House side, Rep. Donald Fraser, D.-Minn., has also asked the CIA to divulge the details of its reciprocal arrangements with foreign intelligence agencies. The CIA has refused to cooperate.

As far back as July 17, 1975, we published charges thet the KCIA had terrorized Korean exiles, had set up illegal front groups to manipulate U.S. public opinion and had tried to buy off U.S, congressmen. We also cited documents from SAVAK's files as evidence that the Iranian secret police were intimidating opponents of the shah in this country. The documents included detailed instructions on how to burglarize homes and offices.

In our reports on the Chilean police, we warned on Nov. 16, 1975: "There is reason to believe that DINA has hired thugs to track down and assassinate prominent exiles." Ten months later, Chilean exile leader Orlando Letelier was blown up in his car on Washington's embassy row. Investigators are now convinced that DINA hired Cuban killers to murder Letelier.

As additional evidence, we have now obtained an explosive document from Dina's own files. It is a memo, dated Sept. 16, 1975, from DINA chief Manuel Contreras Sepulveda to Chilean President Augusto Pinochet.

The memo requests "an additional allotment of $600,000 for the (DINA) budget." Among four reasons for the extra money, this was the most fascinating: "Additional expenses for the neutralizing of the principal adversaries of the Government Junta in the exterior, especially in Mexico, Argentina, Costa Rica, the United States, France and Italy."

We can only speculate of course, what the phrase "neutralizing of the principal adversaries" means. But the memo was followed by an assassination attempt against Chilean dissident Bernardo Leighton on the streets of Rome. Then Letelier was dynamited to death on the streets of Washington.

The FBI also learned of murder plots against two other Chilean exiles. Gabriel Valdes and Rodomiro Tomic, who were given protection.

We hand-delivered a copy of the DINA memo to the Chilean embassy in Washington and waited a week while embassy officials examined it. A spokesman then denounced the document as "completely false." He said Contreras' signature was a "forgery." The fact that the memo was not written on a DINA letterhead, the spokesman asserted, was additional proof that the document was a fabrication.

The memo was delivered to us by sources who have been reliable in the past. For three weeks, we painstakingly checked it with a number of sources including U.S. officials. They all agreed it not only appeared genuine but was consistent with their own intelligence information.

A DINA defector now in asylum in the Italian embassy in Santiago, according to competent sources has confirmed the authenticity of the memo. We have also had access to other DINA documents, which the Chilean government has acknowledged are authentic. These resemble the disputed document in every detail. Many, incidentally, are not written on DINA letterheads.

Footnote: Interestingly, the document also requests "grants for officials of this department who are following courses in preparation of anti-guerrilla groups in the Training Center in the city of Manaus, Brazil."

LIMOUSINE COMFORT — President Carter is making life difficult for the limousine set. Not only has he deprived many government bigwigs of their chauffeur-driven limousines, but he has now ordered drivers to stop running their motors while they wait for their privileged passengers.

The big shots like their limousines to be warm in the winter and cool in the summer. Obliging chauffeurs usually idle the motors so the limousines will be comfortable when their bosses board them.

But a federal employee, writing to the National Suggestion Box, pointed out that both money and gasoline could be saved if the drivers would shut off the motors. White House aide Greg Schneiders delivered the suggestion directly to President Carter, who agreed with it.

The General Services Administration, which has the responsibility for the government motor pool, was notified. A "property management" regulation was promptly drawn up, directing all government drivers to stop idling their engines.

NICK THIMMESCH

Well, what would you have done with your rebate?

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — It's about two weeks now since Jimmy Carter took that $50 back which we hadn't even received yet. I wouldn't call him an Indian giver, for reneging on that promised $50 tax rebate, but lots of people already had made plans to spend the money, and now they feel Christmas isn't coming this year.

It takes awhile for these things to soak in, so I waited a bit to take soundings. Though he surprised us with his announcement on the day before income taxes were due, Mr. Carter probably didn't lose any popularity. Most people still believe him when he says, "I will not lie to you," although many admit that he might fib now and then.

Anyway, my son Michael told me if he got the $50, he would have bought a skateboard. Daughter Martha would have spent the money on clothes. Son Peter was thinking about a cassette-radio. One of my neighbors said he actually made a $50 down-payment on a solar-unit system, but he's going to get his money back now and show Jimmy what he thinks of him that way.

Another neighbor confided that the way things are going, he planned to just apply that $50 he didn't get to next year's taxes, which only shows how complicated government finance and tax schemes can get. Maybe we could all apply the energy rebate we think we're going to get to the higher taxes on gasoline which are also in prospect. It all winds up as confusing paperwork, doesn't it?

Fifty dollars, what in the world does it mean to different people? I got to thinking about that, too. For some, it covers a week's groceries or rent or doctor bills. For others, it's an expense-account dinner. Matter of fact, one fellow journalist told me that he would have blown the $50 at the fancy Sans Souci Restaurant here, where the Administration's mighty dine, only now the Sans Souci has a picketline outside and somebody might photograph him crossing the line, as happened this week with Art Buchwald.

It is intriguing to think of what "prominent" people would have done with the $50. James Schlesinger, who hopes he'll soon be appointed energy "czar," might have spent his on a new cheap suit (he brags about his cheap suits) or bought 80 gallons of gasoline to store away. Citizen Henry A. Kissinger, who loses his free Secret Service protection this week, could have hired a private eye to guard him for six hours. Elizabeth Taylor, who spends most of her time campaigning with her husband, John Warner, across Virginia, might have used hers to buy a round-trip ticket on Piedmont Airlines to go to a stock-car rally.

Earl Butz could well have donated his rebate to the NAACP. Former President Gerald Ford might have invested his in a book on the history of Soviet-Polish relations, 1945 to present. Vice President Walter Mondale could have bought the published works of Spiro Agnew with his rebate, only he won't get it now.

Is it possible that Joseph Califano, who gave up $550,000 in annual income for one-tenth that amount to become secretary of health, education and welfare, might have put his $50 into the bank to build up his savings account?

Or would President Carter himself, who filed his income tax report late after getting an extension, have spent his $50 on Bibles to send to certain congressmen with certain passages marked?

The way he's fuming at the President lately, I wouldn't be one bit surprised if George Meany, the chieftain of the AFL-CIO, would have bought $50 worth of voodoo dolls, pretended that they look like Jimmy Carter and spent a part of each morning sticking pins in them.

There was an unverified report here that Elizabeth Ray had planned to buy a swell goodby gift for former Congressman Wayne Hayes with her $50, but as I say, it's unverified. Washington Redskins coach George Allen, who always comes so close to glory, would have been prudent to spend his rebate on antacid tablets.

A distant cousin of mine named Elmer phoned me one night to let me know he was buying $50 worth of Pabst throw-aways and shipping them to Billy Carter in Plains as a gesture of Yankee goodwill. Alas, that generous plan fell through.

Now there are people who are downright happy or even smug that Mr. Carter canceled the $50 tax rebate. There was joyous whooping and hollering on Wall Street when the news broke in mid-April, because those worrywarts are frightened of inflation. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, was delighted, too. And Alan Greenspan, who is famous because he courts Barbara Walters, the Five Million Dollar Woman, and also because he was chairman of President Ford's council of Economic Advisers, must have planned to put his $50 in the bank as a hedge against inflation.

There's a nice lady named Mary who comes to our house once a week to help out, and I asked her what she thought about President Carter calling off the plan to give every taxpayer a rebate of $50 (or less) in 1977. She looked puzzled, thought for a moment and said: "I didn't know it was coming, so I don't miss it yet."

Home eye test fine first check

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have heard about a little chart that you can get to test a small child's eyesight at home. Do you know if such a thing exists, and how I go about finding one?—Cecile F.

Dear Cecile: You can write to the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc., 79 Madison Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016, and ask them to send you their Home Eye Test For Pre-Schoolers. It is a panel that has letter-like shapes in graduated sizes. You hang it up on the wall, seat the child 10 feet away, and let him try to make out the shapes with one eye—holding a handkerchief or tissue over the other eye. At the bottom of the panel are a set of clear guidelines, telling you how to interpret the results.

The Society estimates that one in every 20 preschool age children has a vision problem that can lead to unnecessary loss of sight if it is not corrected in good time. It says that the Home Eye Test is a fine first check, but stresses that it does not take the place of a professional eye examination—which every child should have before entering school.

The Society has a useful checklist of signs that indicate a child should have an eye examination right away. Here it is:

Appearance: Crossed eyes. Red-rimmed, encrusted or swollen eyelids. Inflamed or watery eyes. Recurring styes.

Complaints: Eyes itch, burn or feel scratchy. Cannot see well. Dizziness, nausea following close eye work, or headaches. Blurred or double vision.

Behavior: Rubs eyes excessively. Shuts or covers one eye, tilts head or thrusts head forward. Has difficulty in reading or in other work requiring close use of the eyes. Blinks more than usual or is irritable when doing close work. Stumbles over small objects. Holds books close to eyes. Is unable to see distant things clearly. Squints eyelids together—or frowns.

To R.S. of Burlington, Iowa: Northern and Central Europeans must obtain their vitamin C primarily from cabbage, because these countries don't have a Florida or California as a source of citrus fruits. These inhibitants get about twice as much vitamin C when they eat their cabbage raw as when they boil it. That's probibly the reason why they eat so much raw cabbage.

Fame eludes steam-powered wagon's inventor

TAYLORSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Henry Ford received credit for popularizing the automobile, but people here think that if a local inventor's steam wagon had received proper attention, millions of Americans would be driving "McKinleys."

Jerome Bonaparte McKinley, born Oct. 15, 1842, and the first of James and Amanda McKinley's 12 children, was always a tinkerer, said his daughter, Mrs. Frederick Burkhalter.

Mrs. Burkhalter, 94, said she remembered the steam-powered wagon that her father used to drive between here and Louisville, a distance of some 30 miles. The wagon had two wheels in the back, one in the front guided by large tricycle-type handlebars, and could seat a dozen passengers, she said.

Local history and family legend agree that McKinley constructed a small model of the steam wagon in his spare time while a storekeeper in the 1870s. He used to fire up the small engine and let it puff around on the floor of his shop to the delight of customers, so the story goes.

Mrs. Burkhalter said the model of the steam wagon was kept on her mantel for years until she gave it to a relative. The relative no longer remembers what happened to it.

The fact that McKinley's steam wagon was never recognized as the forerunner of the automobile is probably a direct result of the era in which it was invented.

Mrs. Burkhalter said citizens complained that the steam wagon frightened horses, so her father decided to let the vehicle sit idle on the street.

"I never knew of it being anywhere but on the street in Taylorsville," Mrs. Burkhalter said. "It just rusted away."

Local legend is divided on where the steam wagon was allowed to "rust away," but all sources agree that when McKinley abandoned his invention, he never went back to it.

MC law chapter formed

Midland College law enforcement students have formed a chapter of Lambda Epsiolon Chi, the Texas society for professional law enforcement.

Membership is open to students who are majoring or minoring in law enforcement. They must maintain a 2.0 cumulative grade point average and be a student in good standing at Midland College.

Officers elected are Victor Rivera of Pecos, president; Mark Mabe of Fort Stockton, first vice president; Vickie Gomendi of Woodward, Okla., second vice president; Tammy Tyler of Floydada, secretary, and Joel Murphy of Midland, treasurer.

Rivera said the purposes of the group are to advance professionalization of law enforcement, foster understanding between institutions of higher education and law enforcement agencies and to provide a unified voice for students of criminal justice in matters of professional concern to them.

Charles Carter, law enforcement instructor at the college, is faculty adviser.

FDA hearing on Laetrile evokes shouts

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The alleged anti-cancer agent Laetrile evoked emotional charges from its proponents at a court-ordered federal hearing that some described as a "kangaroo court."

"Do you really think," one witness asked, "that a quarter million physicians would let people die because they want to make money off them?"

"Yes, yes," members of the audience shouted back at him. "You said it."

The speaker was Dr. John W. Yarbro, a physician and biochemist at the University of Missouri-Columbia, testifying Monday at a hearing called by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration on the legal and scientific status of Laetrile.

The outburst to Yarbro's question exemplified the emotional nature of the hearing, with supporters of the substance jeering and heckling witnesses for the government who testified that Laetrile is worthless and toxic. The hearing was expected to last at least through today.

Laetrile, also known as amygdalin and vitamin B-17, has been promoted as an anti-cancer agent for about 25 years. It is derived from the pits of apricots, peaches and bitter almonds. The FDA was ordered by the U.S. 10th Court of Appeals to compile evidence on Laetrile, on behalf of a cancer patient seeking to obtain the substance.

Supporters of Laetrile, including such organizations as the Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancer Therapy, argued that the FDA hearing was rigged, a "kangaroo court."

But, Dr. Bayard H. Morrison, assistant director of the National Cancer Institute, said, "There is no objective evidence that Laetrile has any effect either in animal tumor systems or in human cancers."

He said claims of Laetrile's effectiveness rest on "anecdotal and testimonial evidence."

The FDA says it has found no support for claims that Laetrile can prevent or cure cancer. Proponents said Laetrile is not a drug but a vitamin, and should not be subject to federal drug laws.

Laetrile cannot be sold legally in the United States, but is smuggled in from Mexico, Canada and West Germany. There currently are efforts in a number of states to legalize it. Florida lawmakers passed a bill on Monday to permit use of Laetrile and Gov. Reubin Askew has said he will sign it.

Alaska recently legalized its use and the Indiana Legislature has overridden a veto by Gov. Otis Bowen, a doctor, of a bill permitting its use.

Florida OKs anticancer drug

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida has become the third state to legalize the drug Laetrile, banned as worthless by a federal agency but touted by some as a cancer remedy.

The Florida senate voted 36-3 Monday for a bill to allow doctors to administer Laetrile when requested by a patient.

The measure cleared the Florida House last week on a 110-9 vote. It now goes to Gov. Reubin Askew, who has said he will sign it.

Florida's action follows a vote by the Indiana legislature last Saturday to override the veto of Gov. Otis R. Bowen and approve a measure allowing the manufacture, sale and use of Laetrile.

Alaska had earlier passed a measure decriminalizing its use.

The proposed Florida law is patterned after the Alaskan measure which allows doctors to prescribe the drug but does not enter into how it can be obtained. Shipment of the drug — which is derived from the pits of apricots, peaches and bitter almonds — across state lines is banned by the U.S. Food and Drug Adminstration.

The legislature acted after cancer victims who claimed their lives had been saved by use of the drug demonstrated in front of the state capitol and crowded committee rooms in both chambers testifying to the curative powers of Laetrile.

Medical experts, including many from the American Cancer Society, are strongly opposed to legalization. They say Laetrile is worthless as a cancer cure.

Senate debate lasted only 10 minutes Monday with Richard Renick of Miami the only person speaking in opposition.

"A lot of people who could have been treated medically are going to die," he warned. "Cancer patients will be lulled into false hope that Laetrile is a cure-all."

California city fighting measles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of students have been turned away from school because they failed to get a measles vaccination ordered by health officials who are trying to cope with an epidemic.

Susan Odom, immunization program manager for the county Department of Health Services, estimated that 37,000 to 40,000 students were barred from classes Monday in the nation's most populous county.

In the Los Angeles city school system alone, a spokesman said, four per cent of the district's 596,000 students were sent to auditoriums or other waiting areas or returned home for failure to show proof that they have been vaccinated against 10-day rubeola measles.

The recent epidemic has resulted in at least two deaths, and five cases of encephalitis have been termed measles-related.

A total of 2,300 cases of measles have been reported in the county, half affecting children.

Los Angeles County has 82 school districts and 1.4 million students. The Los Angeles city school district is second only to New York in the number of pupils enrolled.

Meanwhile, county officials continued a massive effort to provide vaccinations. A Los Angeles school spokeswoman said 17 measles clinics would be conducted Wednesday. Most of the 60 county clinics will continue to offer measles vaccines today and the rest of the week, authorities reported.

Study negates grass' effect on genuineness

By RICHARD SALTUS

TORONTO (AP) — Marijuana smokers who think a joint puts them in closer touch with other people's feelings are victims of the weed's distorting powers, a study indicates.

In a test of warmth, empathy and genuineness, the stoned persons seemed "phonier" than those who did not smoke marijuana, a research team reported Monday.

A few people, however, became more communicative, although the psychiatrists couldn't say why.

The research team headed by Dr. David S. Janowski of the University of California at San Diego is among the first, he said, to explore interpersonal effects of marijuana. Other studies have tested what happens to intellectual powers and mood under the drug's influence — but not its alteration of friendship or marriage, for instance.

"One of the reasons we chose marijuana," Janowski told a session of the American Psychiatric Association's 130th Annual Meeting, "is that some therapists told us their patients would say, 'Gee, Doc, why don't you get high with us and see what it's like. You would be so much warmer and more empathetic and communicative.'"

Janowski matched 20 male mental health workers — all occasional marijuana users — with 20 females who would play the role of troubled partners. Only males can be given marijuana experimentally under federal guidelines.

Each couple held a 25-minute interview, with the woman talking about a difficult time in her life and the man attempting to be helpful. Later, the male "therapist" smoked a cigarette, which in half the cases was marijuana and in the other half an inactive substitute, and a second 25-minute interview was held.

After each talk, both partners filled out questionnaires designed to measure traits such as genuineness, warmth, empathy, acceptance of the other person.

Sample questions given the women included whether: "He respected me," "He cared for me," "He wanted to understand how I see things" and "He was truly interested in me."

In addition, a third person watched videotapes of the 25-minute sessions and rated the therapist-smoker using a psychological yardstick called the Raskin Empathy Scale.

The results showed that the troubled partners felt the men were more concerned, warm and empathetic when the cigarettes they had smoked were not marijuana.

"The therapists seemed more phony under the marijuana condition," said Janowski.

Children don't pay financially, researcher says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most parents don't expect to gain economic benefits or security from their children, a researcher says. And that's a good thing, because from a financial point of view, kids are a loss.

It costs a middle-income family $53,605 to raise a child to age 18 and a total of $64,215 to raise the child and put him or her through four years of college at a state university, according to Thomas J. Espenshade, an associate professor of economics at Florida State University.

That's in direct costs, including food, clothing, peanut butter, bandaids and everything else.

It doesn't include the $107,000 in "lost" earnings if the mother in a middle-income family gives up a part-time job to stay home with the child until age 14.

The costs are a little less steep for low-income families: $35,261 to raise a child to age 18 and a total of $44,156 to send the child to a four-year public college.

Espenshade's estimates are based on Department of Agriculture data and 1977 prices. Middle-income is defined as a family with income between $16,500 and $20,000 a year after taxes. A low-income family needs between $10,500 and $13,500 after taxes.

Espenshade's report, "The Value and Cost of Children," was published in the April bulletin of the Population Reference Bureau, Inc., a Washington-based research organization.

In a study of several hundred couples in Hawaii, Espenshade found that 94 per cent of the white middle-class parents "said they did not expect to rely at all on their children in old age." And 73 per cent of the white lower-income parents gave the same response.

Asked about the advantages of children, nearly three-quarters of the parents cited happiness, love and companionship. More than half also pointed to their own personal development and child rearing satisfactions.

Demonstration costing money

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — While 1,414 antinuclear protesters are in custody at four state armories, New Hampshire is paying about 500 National Guardsmen $35 per man per day — or close to $20,000 daily to watch over them.

Then there's the yet-to-come food bill for the demonstrators, including catering service from Burger King for a fast-food dinner Monday night, from McDonald's for breakfast today, and for assorted other costs.

And not to mention the inconvenience to Guardsmen called from their higher-paying civilian jobs to active duty. In most cases, they do not draw their civilian pay, although some provisions are made by individual employers, according to Guard officials.

The protesters, most of them in their 20s, were arrested and arraigned on charges of criminal trespassing, a misdemeanor, after refusing to end a peaceful weekend camp-in at the construction site of the Seabrook Nuclear power plant, about 50 miles east of this state capitol.

They declined to post bail, which ranged from $100 to $500. The explanation for the colossal housekeeping headache is that this small state, with a population of less than one million, does not have jail facilities for confinement of such a large group at one time.

Court authorities say hearings will be held as soon as they can be arranged.

FBI investigating possible kidnaping

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — FBI agents and local authorities, averring there still were some loose ends in the case, tried to piece together today what happened during the apparent kidnaping of a young St. Louis, Mo., woman and her 4-month-old son.

Robert Wiatt of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said late Monday night that Ethel McNier, daughter of a prominent Chattanooga, Tenn., physician, and her baby son were picked up Monday at a Bryan bank along with the alleged kidnaper. She and the infant, Howard McNier, had been missing for four days from St. Louis.

The FBI agent and Bryan police questioned Mrs. McNier and the man for at least six hours here Monday after they were picked up by police.

"We have some loose ends ...that we have to check," said Wiatt. "We still have some of the ball to unravel."

During the questioning Monday night, the baby was cared for by employes at the police station.

"We had to buy diapers and other things for the baby," said Police Chief Joe Ellisor. "Some female employes did a lot of babysitting for awhile. Its mother came out to nurse it, however."

Wiatt said Mrs. McNier, 26, daughter of Dr. Charles Suggs Jr. of Chattanooga, was spending the night in a Bryan motel with her son and her father, who arrived from Tennessee by plane.

McNier said police learned about the case after she tried to get cash at a Bryan bank by using a credit card.

"An alert bank clerk called police and we took it from there," said Ellisor. "The man was out in the car with the baby during the time she was in the bank. The man apparently had thrown the fear of God into her."

Wiatt said the man first met Mrs. McNier at a St. Louis department store Thursday afternoon, when he asked for a ride on the pretext of meeting his wife.

"Of course this was fictitious and after about five minutes in the car he pulled a revolver on her," said Wiatt.

Wiatt said the man took Mrs. McNier on a four-day trip that included overnight stops in Memphis, Tenn., Amarillo, Tex., and Bryan.

The FBI agent said that on Sunday night, according to the stories of the man and Mrs. McNier, she and the baby were taken to the trailer home of a friend of the man, where she was introduced as the man's wife.

"Apparently she went along with this," said Wiatt. "Her story was that she was afraid to do anything else."

No charges had been filed against the man, who was being held on a 1975 warrant charging him with aggravated robbery.

Wiatt said Mrs. McNier's husband, St. Louis lawyer Howard E. McNier, was not contacted during the four days his wife and son were missing. Officially, they were listed as missing persons during that time because no ransom demands were made that would indicate a kidnaping.

Sen. Meier filibuster continues

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, talked on and on today, sometimes stifling a yawn, in the first extended filibuster of the 65th Legislature.

At 9:20 a.m., the North Texas legislator passed the 18-hour mark in his attempt to change a bill that would keep firms from making computerized lists of workers' compensation claims before the Industrial Accident Board.

"This in effect would be granting an exception to the Open Records Act," said Meier to an almost empty Senate chamber.

Meier stood tall and straight, his voice vibrant and clear, amplified by a microphone around his neck. He kicked off his shoes and word a pair of blue cloth house slippers.

At his feet, assistants stacked about 100 law books each one marked with a citation Meier might want to read to back his arguments. One said the senator gave them 231 citations to obtain from the legislative law library.

Occasionally a senator would ask a long question, but Meier, under Senate rules, could not leave his desk or even lean on it.

As a new day began on the filibuster, Meier was still far short of the individual filibuster record of 42 hours and 33 minutes — set by Dallas Sen. Mike McKool in 1972.

"He's doing it honest," commented a weary senator.

House members quit before 6 p.m. for a "Speaker's Day" western dance. They scheduled their sixth day of debate today on a $15.7 billion two-year state budget.

Meanwhile, members of the Senate Finance Committee informally approved a spending proposal that they claimed left $856.7 million for public school financing, teacher pay raises and teacher retirement benefits.

Meier rested and cut down on his intake of water and other beverages over the weekend in preparing for the filibuster. All his preparations would have been wasted, however, if the Senate had not granted him an unusual courtesy.

Meier's plane ran into a heavy cloud cover in Central Texas, and he was nearly two hours late for the Monday morning session. Rather than act on the compensation bill by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, the Senate recessed until 3 p.m., awaiting Meier's arrival.

"I finally found a hole in the clouds at Llano and dropped down," said Meier, who admitted he was worried.

Another senator said Meier flew 52 miles at an altitude of 500 feet.

Meier concentrated on the availability of records kept by the Industrial Accident Board, but Farabee's bill also would:

—Raise funeral benefits for the first time since 1964, from $500 to $1,250.

—Provide that an insurance carrier is liable for replacing worn-out artificial limbs of injured employes if the devices have been properly maintained.

—Provide for a percentage reduction in a worker's benefits equal to the per cent that any prior injury contributed to the subsequent disability.

—Clarify that increases in the index used to compute maximum benefits is cumulative.

Meier described the bill as the "worst kind of special interest sellout I've seen since I've been in the Senate."

He said some lawyers, insurance companies and labor unions "cut a deal" that left out employers — "the ones paying the bill" for workers' benefits.

Meier said despite rulings by the Texas and United States supreme courts that the board's records should be available for inspection, the board "still has the audacity to say to the legislature, "Close 'em up."

Air crash victim dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.(AP) — Charles Pinkstaff, 59, of San Diego, Calif., has become the fourth person injured in the Canary Island aircraft collision to die at Brooke Army Medical Center here.

Pinkstaff died Monday at the hospital's burn center, according to a spokesman.

Three survivors of the fiery collision that killed some 570 passengers on the two planes were discharged Saturday. Three other patients remain in very serious condition.

Appropriation bill funds restored by amendments

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Efforts to trim $103.7 million from the general appropriation bill were dulled today by amendments that restored cuts proposed by the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

More than $6 million was restored to the bill in the first hour of the sixth day of debate on the $15.7 billion state budget bill.

Reps. Frank Gaston, R-Dallas, and Ron Coleman, D-El Paso, won approval of $5.9 million in "start-up funds" for junior college campuses in Dallas, Lubbock and El PVASO.

A 74-67 vote added $150,000 to help Midwestern University buy a computer. The House Appropriations Committee had recommended $300,000 but the amendment before the House would have cut that to $150,000.

"Midwestern is not a school that asks for the moon, expecting to be cut," said Rep. Dave Allred, D-Wichita Falls.

Rep. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, failed, 75-55, to add back into the bill $2.27 million in funds to help the University of Texas at San Antonio cope with expected enrollment growth.

Appropriations Committee member Walt Parker, D-Denton, said the remaining $2.27 million, plus $2 million in funds UTSA can carry over from this fiscal year, should be adequate to meet the increase.

Ford sees library, studies it

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford visits Austin today to look over the Lyndon B. Johnson Library and see if he can get any new ideas for his own library.

"We want to provide President Ford an opportunity to study the library and to be of any assistance we can in the plans for the Gerald Ford Library on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor," said Harry Middleton, library director.

The former President also will engage in an hour-long question-and-answer session this afternoon with students at the LBJ School of Public Affairs on the University of Texas campus.

Later he and Mrs. Ford will go to the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of Austin.

Hussein enters Houston hospital for physical

HOUSTON (AP)-King Hussein of Jordan entered a Houston hospital this morning for a two-day routine physical examination.

Hussein was met at St. Luke's Hospital by famed heart surgeon Dr. Denton Cooley, Dr. Robert Hall, who will conduct the medical tests, and Dr. Yousef Goussous, a Jordanian physican in training at St. Luke's.

The king attended a private dinner Monday night and The Houston Post reported Hussein later met informally with former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and former CIA director George Bush.

The meeting reportedly was at the Bush residence.

A spokesman for Bush would neither deny nor confirm the meeting but said, "It's not what you'd think. It's not as exciting as you are thinking."

Earlier Monday Hussein spoke at a meeting sponsored by several Houston civic and business organizations.

He said Israel had treated the Palestinian people "with violence and ruthless repression" and had emphasized a military stance and "an ideological fanaticism."

He said it was time the United States changed its foreign policy, which in the past had given "lopsided support for Israeli policies."

The Jordanian king, in Houston for a four-day visit, said he had "great expectations regarding the emerging policies of the new administration, with its concern for human rights and values of people everywhere."

He added, "We in Jordan are prepared to assist in any way we can to secure peace, and I have so assured President Carter."

At the end of his speech, Hussein asked the audience of leading Houston business and professional persons to stand and join him in a "toast to the President of the United States."

Hussein said there could be peace in the Middle East, but it must be based on "Israel's withdrawal from the occupied territory, recognition of the rights of the Palestinian people, and mutual guarantees for security."

Across the street from the Junior League's headquarters where Hussein spoke, 35 members of an Iranian student organization chanted anti-Hussein slogans and waved placards. A leader for the group of masked students said they were demonstrating in behalf of the Palestinian people.

Hussein, in his only public appearace during the Houston visit, said, "One must wonder whether Israel's most essential interests, as well as your own, are served by continuing unbalanced, uncritical support of an Israel whose policies have isolated her from every other country in the world.

BRIDGE

Life can be cruel at the bridge table

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes a weak man is punished just because he is weak, and not because he has done anything wrong. This may be unfair, but that is the way life is at the bridge table.

Opening lead — ♣ 4

East took the ace of clubs and returned the three of hearts. South agonized over the guess and finally played the jack.

West won with the queen of hearts and returned a heart to the ace. Now East returned the three of diamonds.

"Why is East in such a hurry to lead diamonds?" South wondered. "Is this a natural play, or is he trying some monkey business?"

If a strong East had the king of diamonds, he might be returning a diamond in the hope of talking declarer out of a normal finesse.

KNEW HIS CUSTOMER

However, South knew that East was not that strong a player. If this particular East had the king of diamonds he would lead some other suit and wait for South to tackle the diamonds by himself.

If East didn't have the king of diamonds, there was only one hope. South played the ace of diamonds and closed his eyes. When he opened his eyes the king of diamonds had dropped on the trick, and the rest was easy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT 16 to 18 points, and the next player passes. You hold: S1074, HQ1075, DK, CJ9842. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. The partnership might be better off at two clubs, but if you bid two clubs partner will have to bid. You would be happy if he bids two hearts and you would pass two spades with only slight misgivings, but what if he bids two diamonds? Your best bet is to pass him at 1 NT and hope for the best.

Students dedicated

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Future doctors to the Medical College of Ohio are a dedicated lot. First-year students had an eight-hour anatomy test scheduled early this year. Despite the 9-inch snow that closed the schools and many businesses in the area, the entire class of 115 showed up at 8:30 a.m. and took the exam.

Parker announces 3 additions

Three men have been added to the staff of Parker Engineering of Midland, Roy Parker, president of the company, has announced.

The new employes are Art Park, Jim Bundy and Chris Morphew.

Park joined the company as engineering manager in Midland. He earned B.S. and M.S. degrees at the University of Oklahoma and has had 19 years of drilling experience with Amoco.

While with Amoco, he helped develop the patented Ben-Ex Mud system and the "Op Drilling" program. He also has had seven years experience in the use of computers connected with field drilling operations and has 10 U.S. patents assigned.

Jim Bundy joines Parker as Rocky Mountain Division manager. He was graduated from the Colorado School of Mines with a B.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering.

After extensive drilling experience with Diamond Shamrock, Bundy worked with Inexco as drilling superintendent. He will headquarter in the Parker offices in Denver and manage all Parker operations in the Rocky Mountain Area.

Chris Morphew is a new engineering technician with Parker. Before joining the company he had worked in the field as a roughneck prior to joing Loffland as a drilling technician.

Morphew has had extensive well planning experience in the Delaware Basin of West Texas and New Mexico.

Completion was through Canyon perforations at 7,606-8,025 feet, following 7,000 gallons of acid and fracturing with 43,700 gallons and an unreported number of pounds of sand.

Wellsite is 892 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 13, block 33, T-5-S, T&P survey.

Reorganization plan for Pogo announced

HOUSTON — The boards of directors of Pennzoil Co. and Pennzoil Offshore Gas Operators, Inc., (Pogo), have announced their agreement on a plan of reorganization which would, in effect, establish Pogo as an independent company.

The proposed plan, subject to approval by Pogo's shareholders at a special meeting which has been scheduled for July calls for the following key elements:

Pennzoil will convert its approximately 40 per cent ownership in Pogo common shares (17,333.333) to the same per cent direct ownership of Pogo's assets and liabilities. This will establish Pogo as an independent company, terminating its affiliate relationship to Pennzoil.

Pogo will be renamed Pogo Producing Co.

Pogo will be restructured with an independent management organization and board of directors.

Existing policy restrictions on Pogo's scope of operations will be eliminated to permit the company to pursue oil and gas and other business opportunities in addition to petroleum operations offshore the United States.

J. Hugh Liedtke, chairman of Pennzoil, said that "the rapid expansion of Pogo in the development of offshore acreage has made the original arrangements for Pogo's management no longer appropriate. Pogo's potential for earnings growth in the future should not be limited to offshore oil and gas activities."

"Under the proposed plan of reorganization," Liedtke said, "the company will be free to direct its significant stream of income and cash flow from presently owned properties into any phase of the oil and gas business or to any other business opportunities deemed advantageous by its management. Pogo would not be subject to any geographical limitations, other than any provided by specific areas of interest agreements, and it will be in a position to compete anywhere with Pennzoil," Liedtke added.

Liedtke indicated that Pennzoil management has considered a merger of Pogo into Pennzoil but, after careful consideration, it was concluded that merger was not practicable because of difficult questions with respect to relative values of the securities of the companies.

Consideration also was given to the potential conflict-of-interest problems inherent in any acquisition between a controlling stockholder and an affiliate. The proposed transaction on the other hand avoids these problems because the division of assets and liabilities follow (with one relatively minor exception) exactly the respective ownership interests.

In our judgement," Liedtke said, 'this plan, if approved, will give the public shareholders of Pogo 100 per cent ownership of a business organization with substantial operating assest, a spread of undeveloped acreage in one of the most prolific oil and gas producing areas in the world, a business with a strong financial position, and a uniquely qualified management team."

At the same time, the Pennzoil chairman said, "the new arrangement will give Pennzoil direct ownership of its share of Pogo's earnings and cash flow for reinvestment as Pennzoil may choose."

NAR tests show crude

North American Royalties, Midland, No. 1-4 JK-State, Garza County exploratory test, 1½ mile northwest of the Lazy JL (Pennsylvanian) field, was bottomed at 8,600 feet, circulating, after logs were run.

Operator has released results on a series of drillstem tests on which production was indicated.

A one-hour drillstem test from 7,965-7,990 feet, using a ¾-inch bottom choke, surfaced gas in 15 minutes, stabilizing at 140,000 cubic feet per day. Recovery from the test tool was 5,308 feet of gas and 2,620 feet of oil, while the sampler recovered 2.8 cubic feet of gas and 1,280 cubic centimeters of oil.

Another test from 7,990-8,010 feet was misrun. Operator reran a two-hour test over the same interval, during which gas came to the surface in 15 minutes, no gauge reported. It recovered 6,687 feet of gas and 418 feet of 28.9-gravity oil, plus 852 feet of salt water and gas-cut salt water. The sample chamber yielded 1.2 cubic feet of gas, 580 cubic centimeters of oil and 1,220 cubic centimeters of salt water.

The final test from 8,045-8,060 feet, on which the tool was open 60 minutes, using a ¾-inch bottom choke, recovered 90 feet of salt water-cut drilling mud and 1,398 feet of slightly gas-cut salt water. Sampler contained .24 cubic foot of gas and 2,100 cubic centimeters of salt water.

The project is 1,320 feet from north and 330 feet from east lines of Scrap File 4157, abstract 1109, 15 miles southwest of Post.

New Yorkers making Houston sales pitch

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Mayor Abraham Beame is in Houston to sell New York City-to oil companies interested in offshore drilling that is.

"Now we can give certain benefits to new companies, such as tax exemptions and low-cost loans," Beame said. "We are going out for the first time to sell New York City."

Beame is leading a 27-man entourage that is attending the 10th annual Offshore Technology Conference, the world's largest oil industry meeting.

"We are moving out, we are serious and we are improving the business climate," Beame said.

Beame told a news conference Monday that New York City has the facilities, the availavble skilled labor and the mass transportation system needed to attract new business.

"We came here not to take any business away from Houston, but to speak to key people in the oil industry and get them to work at Baltimore Canyon," Beame said.

The Baltimore Canyon site is in the Atlantic Ocean about 75 miles southeast of New York.

Beame said he is optimistic that drilling will start within the next year off the Atlantic coast. The first sales of Atlantic Coast offshore drilling leases recently were voided by a New York federal judge but the case is under appeal.

Frank Drozak, vice president of Seafarers International offered assurance that the maritime unions and the building industry on the east coast are stable.

New York Deputy Mayor Osborn Elliott told the news conference the nation's largest city had an unemployment rate of about 10 per cent and had experienced a loss of 650,000 jobs recently.

"We know we are in competition with other Atlantic coast cities for the offshore drilling headquarters," Elliott said. "But we do have the facilities and we are situated perfectly for those companies. This selling of New York City should have been long before now."

Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III also is here to head a similar mission for his state.

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

Hytech purchases food firm

Hytech Energy Corp., Midland-based oil and gas exploration and production firm, has purchased management control of Tobin Packing Co., a food manufacturing firm headquartered in Rochester, N.Y.

Hytech plans to merge itself into Tobin by an exchange of stock, in order to give Hytech a public market for its stock and listing on the New York Stock Exchange, according to James W. Lacy, Hytech president.

Lacy said the meat packing operations of Tobin may be sold and the company's assets invested entirely in expansion of Hytech's oil and gas exploration and development business.

Hytech paid about $3.5 million cash for about 25 per cent of Tobin owned by the founding Tobin family and employe trusts. The remaining 600,000 shares are widely held. Several Hytech representatives are expected to be added to the Tobin board of directors to reflect the new ownership and planned changed business of the company.

Hytech is principally owned by J. B. Fuqua of Atlanta, Ga., founder and chairman of the board of Fuqua Industries, Inc. Lacy and other Hytech management personnel also are stockholders in Hytech.

Hytech, with a net income of about $4 million in 1976, has been seeking to acquire control of a public company as a means of creating a public market for its stock and for expanding its operations, Lacy said.

North Sea spill traces dissipating

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Fifteen-foot waves were reported dissipating the last traces of the North Sea oil spill from Bravo rig as the weather continued to cooperate today in the cleanup operation.

"What we need is two days of calm to skim the worst of the oil off, then a good storm to break down the rest," said a pollution expert on Saturday a few hours after the Phillips Petroleum company's runaway well in Norway's offshore Ekofisk field was capped.

The cleanup ships had two days of near calm to pump most of the thicker portions of the spill off the seas around the Ekofisk complex of rigs.

Glasscock plant set

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland has announced that it will immediately commence construction of, and be operator and 90 per cent owner of a 30 million-cubic-foot capacity cryogenics gas processing plant about seven miles east of Garden City in Glasscock County.

The plant is expected to be operational by September 1977 and is designed to serve a 20-mile area within which Adobe has an interest in 35,000 acres on which an agressive exploration program is planned.

Raw gas for the plant will initially be supplied from the Apple Creek (Wolfcamp) and Garden City (Strawn and Fusselman) fields.

Principal plant products will be propane, butane, iso-butane, ethane and gasoline.

Initial energy plan hearing begins today

By TOM RAUM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is opening its first hearing on President Carter's proposals for a comprehensive energy policy that will include conservation measures and new taxes.

White House energy adviser James R. Schlesinger was scheduled as the leadoff witness today before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

The Senate committee is beginning work on the President's sweeping proposals for stiff energy conservation measures and new energy taxes and incentives. The committee's session is the first congressional hearing on Carter's energy program.

"We are particularly interested in the economic impact of the program and its effect in stimulating energy production," Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the committee, said in a statement.

Meanwhile, another Senate panel, the Government Operations Committee, was scheduled to consider legislation that would limit Schlesinger's power as head of the proposed new department of energy.

Carter's proposals, revealed to a joint session of Congress last month, include a standby gasoline tax that could hit 50 cents a gallon if consumption continues to rise rapidly; stiff taxes on big cars that get poor gas mileage and rebates for fuel-efficient vehicles; higher prices for both oil and natural gas and tax breaks for those who insulate their homes or install solar energy devices.

In the House, the new ad hoc energy committee begins its work on Wednesday with a scheduled meeting with the President.

Carter proposed the new cabinet-level energy agency to administer the bulk of his energy program, and has said he will nominate Schlesinger to be the nation's first energy secretary once Congress gets around to creating the post and the department.

But how much power Schlesinger should have has caused considerable controversy in the Senate's Government Operations Committee.

The White House-submitted legislation would give the new energy secretary — Schlesinger — power to regulate the wellhead price of both oil and natural gas, a power the administration says is crucial to the success of the President's entire energy program.

But Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the operations panel, claims such an approach "vests too much authority in the hands of a single individual."

He has proposed as an alternative a three-member "energy regulatory board" within the new department that would have the authority to set oil and gas prices.

Power grid hookup starts

By GREG THOMPSON

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Major Texas utility companies began today to reconnect the statewide power grid that protected Texans from blackouts and brownouts before it fell apart almost a year ago.

But they went into their second day of hearings today on the Texas Public Utility Commission's interim order that forced the reconnection.

One member of the PUC predicted the hearings could stretch for three months.

The commissioners voted unanimously for the order Monday, despite arguments against it by former Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, representing Central Power & Light Co. and West Texas Utilities.

The Texas Interconnected System, a statewide grid to provide backup power in case of shortages, was disrupted May 4, 1976, when WTU began serving Oklahoma customers.

Houston Lighting & Power Co. and the Texas Utilities subsidiaries withdrew from the system, fearing that the Oklahoma connection might bring them under Federal Power Commission regulation.

CP&L and WTU, both subsidiaries of Delaware-based Central & South West Corp., opposed the order because it forces them to remove the Oklahoma connection and bars them from engaging in interstate commerce.

Although a Central & South West spokesman said CP&L and WTU began reconnecting Monday evening, they could seek a court injunction to halt the order. "That's just a decision we'll have to make," attorney J.D. Giller said Monday. "The order is unacceptable to us as it stands now."

Jaworski urged the PUC to delay the interim order until after Congress acts on President Carter's recent energy proposals. He argued that the commission does not have the legal authority to force reconnection of the grid system.

"Is it appropriate at this moment to go ahead in the teeth of what the President proposed and ignore it?" Jaworski asked the commmission. "We don't think that it is. I urge you to withhold any action."

One of Carter's proposals would force intrastate utilities to hook up with interstate firms in order to avoid possible power shortages.

Commissioner Al Erwin said FPC officials advised him recently that the reconnection would not throw the Texas companies into interstate commerce.

The surprise order came after attorneys announced Monday morning the failure of four-month-long negotiations aimed at allowing the Lower Colorado River Authority, Austin and San Antonio to disconnect from CP&L and WTU.

Citing unreliable service and loss of power reserves, the LCRA and the two cities said they wanted to reconnect with HL&P and the Texas Utilities subsidiaries in the other half of the disrupted grid.

The PUC had given the utilities until Monday to work out a solution among themselves and attorneys were present merely to report on the status of the negotiations.

Northern Irish go to work

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Workers poured into Northern Ireland's factories, shops and offices today in defiance of a general strike called by militant Protestants in an attempt to force the British army to open an offensive against the Irish Republican Army.

The Belfast Telegraph estimated at midmorning that 80 to 90 per cent of Belfast's workers were on the job, and the turnout was nearly 100 per cent in Londonderry, which has a large Roman Catholic population. But it said about 60 per cent of the workers heeded the strike call in some mostly Protestant areas.

Strikers and their supporters shared the streets of Belfast with strengthened police forces on the lookout for any attempt to intimidate the workers. Although there was no interference with the stream of motorists and pedestrians going to work, threats were reported.

"We are getting reports of intimidation and calls for help," reported

FPC favors overland route for Alaskan gas

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The Federal Power Commission recommended Monday that Alaska's rich supplies of natural gas be transported overland through Canada to the lower 48 states rather than be shipped to California in tankers.

But the FPC members failed to reach agreement on a preference between two competing pipeline proposals for moving the gas across Canada to the U.S. border. None of the four commissioners backed the proposal of the El Paso Co., which called for a trans-Alaska gas pipeline and a fleet of special tankers to carry liquefied gas to Point Conception in California.

California's leading gas utility firms and the state's Public Utilities Commission are supporting Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co. in its plans for a 4,100 mile route through Canada.

Two FPC members backed this plan in the report issued Monday, while the other two commissioners endorsed a different trans-Canadian pipeline proposed by AlCan Pipeline Co. The fifth FPC seat is vacant.

The split FPC recommendation goes to President Carter, who will present his plan on Sept. 1 for the disposition of the gas from the Prudhoe Bay fields on Alaska's North Slopes.

Congress can overturn the President's plan and substitute its own version by a majority vote in both houses.

The North Slope Reserves are large enough to supply about 5 per cent of the nation's demand for the next 25 years, the FPC said Monday.

A pipeline through Canada is the best way for shipping gas, assuming the Canadian government will make the route available on acceptable terms, the FPC said in its 500-page report to the President.

"An overland route can deliver each unit of gas more cheaply than a land and water route using liquefied natural gas technology," the FPC said. The El Paso project would have converted the gas into liquid form for shipment at extremely low temperatures in specially built tankers from Point Gravina on Alaska's southern coast to Point Concepcion.

FPC members Don S. Smith and John H. Holloman III recommended the Arctic Gas Pipeline Co. project, with the construction of 3,600 miles of new pipeline. The line would pick up gas from Prudhoe Bay in Alaska and the MacKenzie Delta in Canada and move it south through the Northwest Territories into Alberta.

Maggie wants a home, but doors seem shut

"I've got you some good news and some bad news," the mailman told Maggie. "The bad news is underneath." He handed her two envelopes.

He was standing on the weathered porch of her ramshackled frame shack.

She was reaching toward him from the threshold of the old house — her home for the past five years.

The good news he put in her wrinkled hand was her "old folks'" pension check, as she calls it. The bad news in the other envelope was a utility bill.

But that didn't bother Maggie too much. Bills are meant to be paid, and she pays 'em.

What was bothering her caused the wrinkles in dear Maggie's face to deepen and to multiply, or so it seemed.

She was having to move out of her rent house, and she had no place to go.

"I just hate for them to tear this place down and me not have a place to go," said Maggie, who's 70 and widowed. "Now, they tell me they is going to move it."

"I just don't know what to do," she said.

The near-downtown block where Maggie lives will be cleared of its old rent houses and then turned into a productive business.

Maggie understands all that.

"This old house have got to go," said Maggie, as if to reconcile herself with a situation she cannot change, "'cause they (the houses on the block)

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

German Shepherd Dogs police's best friends

By JIM STEINBERG

Are Joll and Caspar overgrown lapdogs, cautious sentries or the most ferocious canines in Midland?

Actually, they are a little bit of all three. Recent immigrants to the United States from Germany, the two black and rust-colored German Shepherd dogs are four-legged partners of Midland policemen Paul Jones and Oscar Strain.

And as such they form the department's "K-9" team that can track down lost children and fugitives, or control a crowd. But their biggest use is to fortify the crime fighting capabilities of the Midland Police Department during the peak hours of criminal activity between 7 p.m. to 3 a.m., police Capt. E. W. Green said.

During those high-crime hours, the "K-9" team cruise the Midland streets and are on call for situations where their special talents are needed.

The dogs are particularly useful during building searches, when there is reason to believe a burglary suspect may be hiding from police, Green explained.

Both Joll and Caspar are Ger-

Pat Kinnson, a member of the Midland Legal Secretaries Association, is second vice president of the state organization.

Next year's convention will be May 4-8 at the Midland Hilton.

Members of the Midland association present in Waco included Novella Anderson, Ellie Holmes, June Judkins, Virginia Keel, Betty Lewis, Virginia Scott and Wilma Wheat.

Airport zoning proposal gets OK

By JIM STEINBERG

A proposal that would create a new zoning pattern on four tracts of land at the Midland Regional Air Terminal received a favorable nod from the the Midland Planning and Zoning Commissiom Monday.

The proposal would reserve a "core area" near La Force Boulevard for office use, as opposed to industrial, but would also allow "certain unique activities such as scientific and research laboratories and wholesale office and sample rooms, which are compatible with office parks."

A relatively new zoning, termed IP-3, would be granted to the other areas, and would provide setbacks, landscaping regulations, provisions for parking spaces and other regulations that most common industrial park zones don't now provide, according to Richard Hennessy, city planning director.

By a 5 to 2 margin, the commissioners gave their approval to a reguest by William Hickey for a zone change from 1F-1, single family district to 1F-2, single family district, on lots 1, 2, 3, 4, block 1, Kelson Place, and lots 1 and 2, block 2, Kelson Place, and including an area bounded by W. Golf Course Road, the north line of Murray Judson Addition, Murray Street, and Ainslee Street. The change would reduce the minimum lot size from 10,000 square feet to 7,000 square feet.

Commissioners Mrs. James Purvis and George Veloz voted against the proposal.

In other action, the commissioners:

— Approved a request by John Sudderth for a zone change from 1F-1, single family district, to PD, for duplexes on West Kansas Avenue, west of A Street.

— Postponed action on a zone change request by Leo Proctor, Security Storage, and the Midland SPCA from 1F-1, single family district to C-3, commercial district, on a 4.766 acre tract of land located on Andrews Highway and Idlewild Drive.

The land will be used as an animal shelter.

Maggie wants a home, but doors seem shut

is too close to downtown. I knows that."

What Maggie would like is more time to find a suitable place. It's far from ideal, but she would be pleased with a place that rents for about $30 a month. That's what she's paying now — or was.

"I just wish they would give me time to get out," said humble Maggie. "Of course, I wants to get out. I should have already been gone."

Already gone from the block is Katie, another older widow and Maggie's neighbor for years. She has found a cheap place across the tracks in southeast Midland.

Maggie, too, is supposed to be out sometime this week. She's willing.

"I hate to be in a place where people don't want you," said a discouraged Maggie. "If they wants me out, . . . I wants to get out."

"I wants to move as badly as they wants me to move," she said.

Maggie wants to move to Stanton. She and her late husband, Ray, lived in that farming community years ago.

Maggie worked in the fields, where she pulled cotton bolls, and labored indoors, where she worked as a housemaid.

"I would like to get in Stanton," she said, "because colored people will be on one side of the tracks and white folks on the other."

But there's no room for Maggie in Stanton. The one-bedroom apartments of the Federal Housing Authority there are all filled up. And Maggie feels she could afford the rent there.

She draws about $180 per month in two welfare checks. One is Social Security; the other is the 'old folks' pension.

"The more you get the more you pay," reasoned Maggie. "And the less you get the less you have to pay."

So, she figured that her rental payments would be fairly low.

The FHA low-rent units in Midland will not be ready for occupancy until September. Maggie can't wait that long.

Even rental places "across the tracks" are hard to find . . . especially at a price Maggie can afford to pay.

"Down here in the 'flats,' there ain't no houses — just condemned places," she said of Midland's second downtown area, "colored town."

Maggie has checked with the Salvation Army in trying to find a low-rent place to stay. Then, she looked around.

"I went down to the flats, (to) colored people's town, and there's nothing down there."

Poor, sweet, innocent, child-like Maggie won't give up.

"You know," she said, "you've got to try to help yourself." She keeps on looking, hoping, worrying.

And with a little help, dear Maggie will find a place to stay, a place to rest her tired soul.

Ciaran McKeown, an official of the Peace People campaign. "Fear is spreading very rapidly, particularly among wives with children who have been threatened if their husbands do not heed the strike call."

A police spokesman said "many persons" had telephoned police to complain about intimidation. "So far we have not been able to apprehend anyone in connection with these complaints," he said.

The strike began at midnight Monday, and shortly after, 200 workers at the big Harland and Wolff shipyard in East Belfast walked out. But no unusual number of absentees was reported from the day shift at the yard, and the Northern Ireland Chamber of Commerce reported many other factories were operating normally.

Firebombs exploded in downtown Belfast stores during the night, and a bomb ripped up a section of track on the Belfast-Bangor rail line, but there were no casualties in these incidents.

The police said platoons of strikers felled trees and telephone poles before dawn to block roads around Belfast, but the police cleared them. Strikers sabotaged scores of buses by deflating their tires or pouring sugar into their gas tanks.

The Protestant Ulster Unionist Action Council led by the Rev. Ian Paisley called the strike. The council hoped that it would paralyze the province like a 1974 strike which torpedoed the only Protestant-Roman Catholic coalition government in Northern Ireland's history.

This time the Protestant hardliners are demanding the restoration of the Protestant-dominated provincial parliament, which the British government suspended in 1972, as well as an all-out offensive against the IRA guerrillas fighting since 1969 to reunite Ireland.

One reason for the success of the 1974 strike was the government's failure to do anything about Protestant strong-arm gangs forcing the workers to comply with the strike call. This time Roy Mason, the British cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, stressed that the security forces will not permit such intimidation.

FPC urges overland route for Alaska gas

Calgary, the proposed arctic gas line would split, with the western leg heading across Idaho, Washington and Oregon, across the California border to Antioch. The eastern leg would cross Montana, the Dakotas, Iowa, and terminate in Illinois.

The system would cost approximately $6.73 billion, and deliver at least 2.2 billion cubic feet of gas each day.

A rival route, proposed by the AlCan Pipeline Co., was supported by FPC Chairman Richard L. Dunham and commissioner James G. Watt. This pipeline would follow the route of the Alaska oil pipeline to a point south of Fairbanks, then move eastward into the Yukon, down British Columbia, and into Alberta. At Caroline Junction, the line would divide into east and west-bound segments, following the same routes as the Arctic project.

This system would costs approximately $6.76 billion and deliver 2.2 billion cubic feet daily.

The El Paso pipeline-tanker plan would cost $6.57 billion and deliver 2.1 billion cubic feet daily, the FPC said.

The four FPC members couldn't agree on the choice of a specific route because the Canadian National Energy Board hasn't finished its hearings on the issue, the report said. "Until the Canadian Government has made a decision whether a land route is available, it would be premature for this commission to recommend a route, unconditionally," the FPC said.

If the United States and Canada can't agree on a route for the pipeline and terms of construction, the El Paso project would be acceptable, the FPC said. Gas could be delivered under the tanker system at an "economical price," the report said.

U.S.-Viets opening talks today

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

PARIS (AP) — The U.S. and Vietnamese governments opened talks today amid expectations of a speedy agreement to establish diplomatic relations. But Hanoi's official newspaper indicated the agreement might not be concluded until the United States agreed to give its recent foe the help in reconstruction it has been demanding.

"The talks won't drag on," said one diplomatic source. However, Nhan Dan, the Communist party newspaper in Hanoi, commented: "Three problems remain between Vietnam and the United States: the normalization of relations, the American servicemen missing in action and the U.S. contribution to healing the wounds of war in Vietnam, and the three are inter-related."

The article said Vietnam is making efforts to speed up the search for remains of the missing Americans, and "results obtained in the process of investigation and research will be communicated to the United States as soon as possible."

But it said America's silence on war reconstruction aid "is not right and is not in line with the professed desire of the U.S. to open a new dialogue, a new era in the relations between the two countries.

"To make the current dialogue successful the attitude of the U.S. must suit realities and U.S. statements."

Richard Holbrooke, the assistant secretary of state for Southeast Asian affairs, and Vice Foreign Minister Phan Hien led the two delegations at the first meeting in the gleaming white pagoda-shaped Vietnamese embassy which Premier Pham Van Dong opened recently.

Vietnamese spokesmen said the talks would continue at their embassy on Wednesday, move to the American embassy for two days, then shift every two days as long as they continued.

The U.S. delegation also included James Rosenthal, head of the State Department's Indochina desk; Frank Sieberts, the department's director for humanitarian affairs who is responsible for information on the nearly 2,000 Americans missing in action in Vietnam; Kenneth Quinn, special assistant to Holbrooke, and Mark Pratt, first secretary at the U.S. embassy.

Hien's Vietnamese delegation included Tran Quang Co, head of the Foreign Ministry's North American department, and Vu Quang Hoang, director of the ministry's department of consular affairs.

Hoang is also a member of the North Vietnamese Office for the Search for Information on Americans Missing in Action. That office was set up as a result of the visit to Hanoi two months ago of a special mission from President Carter seeking information on U.S. servicemen missing in the Vietnam War.

Singer steps into Bryant controversy

MIAMI (AP) — Each side in Dade County's increasingly bitter controversy over homosexual rights now has its celebrity advocate.

Since the Dade County Commission approved a law prohibiting discrimination against homosexuals earlier this year, Anita Bryant, with her all-American girl, devout Christian image, has led opposition to the ordinance.

Now the homosexual groups have on their side singer-poet Rod McKuen.

McKuen came to Miami Saturday for a regularly-scheduled concert. He raised the homosexual rights issue there, causing some members of the audience to leave, demanding their money back.

Now he's scheduled several benefit concerts for the Gay Coalition — starting tonight in Miami.

"It's not a question of sexuality, it's an issue of basic human rights," McKuen said Monday at a news conference at the Gay Coalition offices.

"I am not interested in Ms. Bryant's personal life and I am convinced that there are more constructive things for her to do than to infringe on the privacy of individual American citizens."

McKuen, whose songs include "Love's Been Good to Me," "Seasons in the Sun" and "Jean," said he has cancelled several appearances outside Florida in order to campaign around the state.

The coalition is raising money to support a homosexual rights law passed by the commission earlier this year. Miss Bryant formed a group called Save Our Children, Inc. that got enough signatures on petitions to force the commission to call a special June 7 election on the law.

Save Our Children spokesman Mike Thompson called McKuen's comments at the news conference "an hysterical outburst" and an "attack on Judaism and Christianity." Thompson said that "what Mr. McKuen and his fellow perverts do in privacy is their business. What their fellow homosexuals would do in our children's classrooms is out business."

Asked if he was a homosexual, McKuen said, "I've been attracted to men and I've been attracted to women. I have a 16-year-old son. You put a label on."

Hot, sultry weather may be broken

The hot and sultry weather found in the Permian Basin today may be broken by thunderstorms tonight and tomorrow.

The weatherman gives the area a 20 per cent chance of rain tonight and a 30 per cent chance Wednesday.

Skies should be partly cloudy through Wednesday, with a low tonight in mid-60s and a high Wednesday in upper 80s. Winds are expected to be from the southeast at 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Monday's high was 92 degrees and this morning's low was 63 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Temperatures this morning were warm in Andrews, Lamesa, Big Spring, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Crane. Skies were overcast in all of those cities.

Chase leaves one dead; grass found

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK — Thirty-six kilograms of marijuana were recovered from a wrecked automobile in which one man died and one was injured following a high speed chase about 3:15 p.m. Sunday in the park.

Dead is Rocky Lynn Howard, 20, of Crane. Joe Ralph Pierce of Crane was injured, a U.S. National Park Service official said.

The two men in the car fled a U.S. Customs officer trying to question them about a suspected narcotics transaction when the crash occurred, officials said.

The accident occurred near Study Butte outside the park area, shortly after the car crashed through a roadblock.

Pierce was treated in Big Bend Memorial Hospital in Alpine.

Services for Howard were today in Crane.

Trawler captain pleads guilty

BOSTON (AP) — The first Soviet fishing trawler seized for violating the new 200-mile limit is scheduled to go back to work in the North Atlantic this week after its captain pleaded guilty to breaking American laws.

The skipper, Aleksandr Gupalov, was given a nine-month suspended sentence and fined $10,000 Monday in U.S. District Court. The Soviet government agreed to pay the United States an additional $240,000 in other fines.

The captain's sentence was on a criminal charge of violating his fishing vessel's permit. The Soviet government was fined in a civil action which the U.S. government brought against it as owner of the ship.

The captain's plea cleared the way for the release of the 275-foot Taras Shevchenko. The ship and its crew have been confined to the Coast Guard base on Boston Harbor since the vessel was seized April 10 off Nantucket Island.

The ship was taken for catching more than its limit of river herring.

When it was brought to Boston, all the ship's cargo of frozen fish was unloaded to be weighed. On Friday, longshoremen began putting the legal part of the catch back aboard.

Gupalov appeared before Judge Andrew Caffrey, the same judge who blocked settlement of the case Friday by refusing to accept a plea of no contest by the skipper.

Thomas Edwards, the Russians' lawyer, said the ship would leave Boston as soon as the cargo is reloaded. After he pleaded guilty, the captain stood in the courtroom and said through an interpreter: "I did not intentionally violate the laws of the United States."

Motion for new trial filed in Stewart case

A motion for a new trial has been filed for James W. "Bubba" Stewart, who was sentenced to seven years in the Texas pentitentiary after he was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Bobby D. Sargent.

Attorney Warren Burnett of Odessa filed the motion Friday. No date has been set for a hearing on the motion.

The motion stated that a new trial should be set on the grounds that the "court reversibly erred in excluding evidence of the defendant's reputation for truth and veracity in the community."

Stewart remains free on the $25,000 bond he posted after he was indicted.

Stewart was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter April 20. He had been charged originally with murder in connection with the shooting death of Sargent, 24, in the early morning hours of Aug. 20, 1976, at the Red Fox Lounge, 106 W. Wall Ave. Stewart owned the lounge at the time of the shooting. The lounge has since been sold to the city as part of a park project.

Study negates grass' effect on genuineness

By RICHARD SALTUS

TORONTO (AP) — Marijuana smokers who think a joint puts them in closer touch with other people's feelings are victims of the weed's distorting powers, a study indicates.

In a test of warmth, empathy and genuineness, the stoned persons seemed "phonier" than those who did not smoke marijuana, a research team reported Monday.

A few people, however, became more communicative, although the psychiatrists couldn't say why.

The research team headed by Dr. David S. Janowski of the University of California at San Diego is among the first, he said, to explore interpersonal effects of marijuana. Other studies have tested what happens to intellectual powers and mood under the drug's influence — but not its alteration of friendship or marriage, for instance.

"One of the reasons we chose marijuana," Janowski told a session of the American Psychiatric Association's 130th Annual Meeting, "is that some therapists told us their patients would say, 'Gee, Doc, why don't you get high with us and see what it's like. You would be so much warmer and more empathetic and communicative.'"

Janowski matched 20 male mental health workers — all occasional marijuana users — with 20 females who would play the role of troubled partners. Only males can be given marijuana experimentally under federal guidelines.

Each couple held a 25-minute interview, with the woman talking about a difficult time in her life and the man attempting to be helpful. Later, the male "therapist" smoked a cigarette, which in half the cases was marijuana and in the other half an inactive substitute, and a second 25-minute interview was held.

After each talk, both partners filled out questionnaires designed to measure traits such as genuineness, warmth, empathy, acceptance of the other person.

Sample questions given the women included whether: "He respected me," "He cared for me," "He wanted to understand how I see things" and "He was truly interested in me."

In addition, a third person watched videotapes of the 25-minute sessions and rated the therapist-smoker using a psychological yardstick called the Raskin Empathy Scale.

The results showed that the troubled partners felt the men were more concerned, warm and empathetic when the cigarettes they had smoked were not marijuana.

"The therapists seemed more phony under the marijuana condition," said Janowski.

Children don't pay financially, researcher says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most parents don't expect to gain economic benefits or security from their children, a researcher says. And that's a good thing, because from a financial point of view, kids are a loss.

It costs a middle-income family $53,605 to raise a child to age 18 and a total of $64,215 to raise the child and put him or her through four years of college at a state university, according to Thomas J. Espenshade, an associate professor of economics at Florida State University.

That's in direct costs, including food, clothing, peanut butter, bandaids and everything else.

It doesn't include the $107,000 in "lost" earnings if the mother in a middle-income family gives up a part-time job to stay home with the child until age 14.

The costs are a little less steep for low-income families: $35,261 to raise a child to age 18 and a total of $44,156 to send the child to a four-year public college.

Espenshade's estimates are based on Department of Agriculture data and 1977 prices. Middle-income is defined as a family with income between $16,500 and $20,000 a year after taxes. A low-income family needs between $10,500 and $13,500 after taxes.

Espenshade's report, "The Value and Cost of Children," was published in the April bulletin of the Population Reference Bureau, Inc., a Washington-based research organization.

In a study of several hundred couples in Hawaii, Espenshade found that 94 per cent of the white middle-class parents "said they did not expect to rely at all on their children in old age." And 73 per cent of the white lower-income parents gave the same response.

Asked about the advantages of children, nearly three-quarters of the parents cited happiness, love and companionship. More than half also pointed to their own personal development and child rearing satisfactions.

Demonstration costing money

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — While 1,414 antinuclear protesters are in custody at four state armories, New Hampshire is paying about 500 National Guardsmen $35 per man per day — or close to $20,000 daily to watch over them.

Then there's the yet-to-come food bill for the demonstrators, including catering service from Burger King for a fast-food dinner Monday night, from McDonald's for breakfast today, and for assorted other costs.

And not to mention the inconvenience to Guardsmen called from their higher-paying civilian jobs to active duty. In most cases, they do not draw their civilian pay, although some provisions are made by individual employers, according to Guard officials.

The protesters, most of them in their 20s, were arrested and arraigned on charges of criminal trespassing, a misdemeanor, after refusing to end a peaceful weekend camp-in at the construction site of the Seabrook Nuclear power plant, about 50 miles east of this state capitol.

They declined to post bail, which ranged from $100 to $500. The explanation for the colossal housekeeping headache is that this small state, with a population of less than one million, does not have jail facilities for confinement of such a large group at one time.

Court authorities say hearings will be held as soon as they can be arranged.

FBI investigating possible kidnaping

BRYAN, Tex. (AP) — FBI agents and local authorities, averring there still were some loose ends in the case, tried to piece together today what happened during the apparent kidnaping of a young St. Louis, Mo., woman and her 4-month-old son.

Robert Wiatt of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said late Monday night that Ethel McNier, daughter of a prominent Chattanooga, Tenn., physician, and her baby son were picked up Monday at a Bryan bank along with the alleged kidnaper. She and the infant, Howard McNier, had been missing for four days from St. Louis.

The FBI agent and Bryan police questioned Mrs. McNier and the man for at least six hours here Monday after they were picked up by police.

"We have some loose ends ...that we have to check," said Wiatt. "We still have some of the ball to unravel."

During the questioning Monday night, the baby was cared for by employes at the police station.

"We had to buy diapers and other things for the baby," said Police Chief Joe Ellisor. "Some female employes did a lot of babysitting for awhile. Its mother came out to nurse it, however."

Wiatt said Mrs. McNier, 24, daughter of Dr. Charles Suggs Jr. of Chattanooga, was spending the night in a Bryan motel with her son and her father, who arrived from Tennessee by plane.

McNier said police learned about the case after she tried to get cash at a Bryan bank by using a credit card.

"An alert bank clerk called police and we took it from there," said Ellisor. "The man was out in the car with the baby during the time she was in the bank. The man apparently had thrown the fear of God into her."

Wiatt said the man first met Mrs. McNier at a St. Louis department store Thursday afternoon, when he asked for a ride on the pretext of meeting his wife.

"Of course this was fictitious and after about five minutes in the car he pulled a revolver on her," said Wiatt.

Wiatt said the man took Mrs. McNier on a four-day trip that included overnight stops in Memphis, Tenn., Amarillo, Tex., and Bryan.

The FBI agent said that on Sunday night, according to the stories of the man and Mrs. McNier, she and the baby were taken to the trailer home of a friend of the man, where she was introduced as the man's wife.

"Apparently she went along with this," said Wiatt. "Her story was that she was afraid to do anything else."

No charges had been filed against the man, who was being held on a 1975 warrant charging him with aggravated robbery.

Wiatt said Mrs. McNier's husband, St. Louis lawyer Howard E. McNier, was not contacted during the four days his wife and son were missing. Officially, they were listed as missing persons during that time because no ransom demands were made that would indicate a kidnaping.

Sen. Meier filibuster continues

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Bill Meier, his vibrant voice stifled by an occasional yawn, stretched his filibuster past the 15-hour mark today.

It was the first extended filibuster of the four-month-old legislature.

At 6:30 a.m. Meier was far short of the filibuster record of 42 hours 33 minutes — set by Dallas Sen. Mike McKool in 1972 — but his colleagues thought he was in good enough shape to go longer.

Meier, D-Euless, began stalling at 3:20 p.m. Monday on a bill prohibiting firms from compiling computerized lists of workers' compensation claims.

Asked if he could hold out until midnight Tuesday, Meier, 36, said, "I've got adequate material and, I think, adequate stamina."

Meier, unlike most who filibuster, stood straight at his desk and could be easily heard in the virtually empty chamber.

"He's doing it honest," commented a weary senator.

House members quit before 6 p.m. for a "Speaker's Day" western dance. They scheduled their sixth day of debate today on a $15.7 billion two-year state budget.

Meanwhile, members of the Senate Finance Committee informally approved a spending proposal that they claimed left $856.7 million for public school financing, teacher pay raises and teacher retirement benefits.

Meier rested and cut down on his intake of water and other beverages over the weekend in preparing for the filibuster. All his preparations would have been wasted, however, if the Senate had not granted him an unusual courtesy.

Meier's plane ran into a heavy cloud cover in Central Texas, and he was nearly two hours late for the Monday morning session. Rather than act on the compensation bill by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, the Senate recessed until 3 p.m., awaiting Meier's arrival.

"I finally found a hole in the clouds at Llano and dropped down," said Meier, who admitted he was worried.

Another senator said Meier flew 52 miles at an altitude of 500 feet.

Meier concentrated on the availability of records kept by the Industrial Accident Board, but Farabee's bill also would:

—Raise funeral benefits for the first time since 1964, from $500 to $1,250.

—Provide that an insurance carrier is liable for replacing worn-out artificial limbs of injured employes if the devices have been properly maintained.

—Provide for a percentage reduction in a worker's benefits equal to the per cent that any prior injury contributed to the subsequent disability.

—Clarify that increases in the index used to compute maximum benefits is cumulative.

Meier described the bill as the "worst kind of special interest sellout I've seen since I've been in the Senate."

He said some lawyers, insurance companies and labor unions "cut a deal" that left out employers — "the ones paying the bill" for workers' benefits.

Meier said despite rulings by the Texas and United States supreme courts that the board's records should be available for inspection, the board "still has the audacity to say to the legislature, "Close 'em up."

Farabee said the only ones prohibited from looking at the records are those who might use them to compile "blacklists" of employes who have filed injury claims.

The lawsuit against the board was filed by the Industrial Foundation of the South, which is comprised of approximately 280 employers. Meier has said he once did some legal work for the foundation.

Air crash victim dies

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.(AP) — Charles Pinkstaff, 59, of San Diego, Calif., has become the fourth person injured in the Canary Island aircraft collision to die at Brooke Army Medical Center here.

Pinkstaff died Monday at the hospital's burn center, according to a spokesman.

Three survivors of the fiery collision that killed some 570 passengers on the two planes were discharged Saturday. Three other patients remain in very serious condition.

House continues work on appropriation bill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State representatives chip away at education spending today as they go into their sixth day of work on the $15.7 billion general appropriation bill.

Before them was an "omnibus amendment" trimming out various items totaling $103.7 million — money that could be spent for such things as a teacher pay raise.

Rep. Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said that when combined with $157 million cut from the bill last week, the amendment "will leave a little over $1 billion on the table."

Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, objected to Presnal's "omnibus amendments" that take out numerous items at one time.

"We are being called upon to substitute our judgment for the judgment of the appropriations committee and we haven't heard one iota of testimony. It seems to me the appropriations committee should have come in with a bottom line bill they are able to defend," Washington said.

Presnal replied that he "sensed the members were asking us for a little direction .. . how to cut this bill."

Ford sees library, studies it

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford visits Austin today to look over the Lyndon B. Johnson Library and see if he can get any new ideas for his own library.

"We want to provide President Ford an opportunity to study the library and to be of any assistance we can in the plans for the Gerald Ford Library on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor," said Harry Middleton, library director.

The former President also will engage in an hour-long question-and-answer session this afternoon with students at the LBJ School of Public Affairs on the University of Texas campus.

Later he and Mrs. Ford will go to the LBJ Ranch, 65 miles west of Austin.

Hussein says Israel ruthless with Palestinians

HOUSTON (AP)—King Hussein of Jordan said Monday that Isreal has treated the Palestinian people "with violence and ruthless repression" and has emphasized "a military stance" and an "ideological fanaticism."

Hussein, speaking at a meeting of several Houston civic and business organizations, said he believed it was time the United States changed its foreign policy which in the past had given "lopsided support for Israeli policies."

The Jordanian king, in Houston for a four-day visit, said he had "great expectations regarding the emerging policies of the new administration, with its concern for human rights and values of people everywhere."

He added, "We in Jordan are prepared to assist in any way we can to secure peace, and I have so assured President Carter."

At the end of his speech, Hussein asked the audience of leading Houston business and professional persons to stand and join him in a "toast to the President of the United States."

Hussein said there could be peace in the Middle East, but it must be based on "Israel's withdrawal from the occupied territory, recognition of the rights of the Palestinian people, and mutual guarantees for security."

Across the street from the Junior League's headquarters where Hussein spoke, 35 members of an Iranian student organization chanted anti-Hussein slogans and waved placards. A leader for the group of masked students said they were demonstrating in behalf of the Palestinian people.

Hussein, in his only public appearace during the Houston visit, said, "One must wonder whether Israel's most essential interests, as well as your own, are served by continuing unbalanced, uncritical support of an Israel whose policies have isolated her from every other country in the world.

"The current explosive condition must be remedied. The time has come, and is long overdue, for a principled and realistic solution (to the Middle East problem)," he said.

Hussein also called for investments in Jordan from the private sector of other nations.

"If you wish to come to Jordan to explore for oil, you are welcome. We are perfectly willing to accept the oil rig as a symbol."

Hussein spent Sunday afternoon at a lavish Texas barbecue on a horse ranch owned by oilman Hugh Roy Marshall.

He was to spend Monday night at the home of J.L. Albritton, a Houston financier and owner of the Washington Star newspapers.

Hussein was to enter St. Luke's Hospital Today for a two-day routine physical examination and then leave Houston Thursday morning.

Life can be cruel at the bridge table

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sometimes a weak man is punished just because he is weak, and not because he has done anything wrong. This may be unfair, but that is the way life is at the bridge table.

Opening lead — ♠ 4

East took the ace of clubs and returned the three of hearts. South agonized over the guess and finally played the jack.

West won with the queen of hearts and returned a heart to the ace. Now East returned the three of diamonds.

"Why is East in such a hurry to lead diamonds?" South wondered. "Is this a natural play, or is he trying some monkey business?"

If a strong East had the king of diamonds, he might be returning a diamond in the hope of talking declarer out of a normal finesse.

KNEW HIS CUSTOMER

However, South knew that East was not that strong a player. If this particular East had the king of diamonds he would lead some other suit and wait for South to tackle the diamonds by himself.

If East didn't have the king of diamonds, there was only one hope. South played the ace of diamonds and closed his eyes. When he opened his eyes the king of diamonds had dropped on the trick, and the rest was easy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 1 NT 16 to 18 points, and the next player passes. You hold: S1074, HQ1075, DK, CJ9842. What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass. The partnership might be better off at two clubs, but if you bid two clubs partner will have to bid. You would be happy if he bids two hearts and you would pass two spades with only slight misgivings, but what if he bids two diamonds? Your best bet is to pass him at 1 NT and hope for the best.

Students dedicated

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Future doctors to the Medical College of Ohio are a dedicated lot. First-year students had an eight-hour anatomy test scheduled early this year. Despite the 9-inch snow that closed the schools and many businesses in the area, the entire class of 115 showed up at 8:30 a.m. and took the exam.

Parker announces 3 additions

Three men have been added to the staff of Parker Engineering of Midland, Roy Parker, president of the company, has announced.

The new employes are Art Park, Jim Bundy and Chris Morphew.

Park joined the company as engineering manager in Midland. He earned B.S. and M.S. degrees at the University of Oklahoma and has had 19 years of drilling experience with Amoco.

While with Amoco, he helped develop the patented Ben-Ex Mud system and the "Op Drilling" program. He also has had seven years experience in the use of computers connected with field drilling operations and has 10 U.S. patents assigned.

Jim Bundy joines Parker as Rocky Mountain Division manager. He was graduated from the Colorado School of Mines with a B.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering.

After extensive drilling experience with Diamond Shamrock, Bundy worked with Inexco as drilling superintendent. He will headquarter in the Parker offices in Denver and manage all Parker operations in the Rocky Mountain Area.

Chris Morphew is a new engineering technician with Parker. Before joining the company he had worked in the field as a roughneck prior to joing Loffland as a drilling technician.

Morphew has had extensive well planning experience in the Delaware Basin of West Texas and New Mexico.

New Yorkers making Houston sales pitch

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Mayor Abraham Beame is in Houston to sell New York City-to oil companies interested in offshore drilling that is.

"Now we can give certain benefits to new companies, such as tax exemptions and low-cost loans," Beame said. "We are going out for the first time to sell New York City."

Beame is leading a 27-man entourage that is attending the 10th annual Offshore Technology Conference, the world's largest oil industry meeting.

"We are moving out, we are serious and we are improving the business climate," Beame said.

Beame told a news conference Monday that New York City has the facilities, the availavble skilled labor and the mass transportation system needed to attract new business.

"We came here not to take any business away from Houston, but to speak to key people in the oil industry and get them to work at Baltimore Canyon," Beame said.

The Baltimore Canyon site is in the Atlantic Ocean about 75 miles southeast of New York.

Beame said he is optimistic that drilling will start within the next year off the Atlantic coast. The first sales of Atlantic Coast offshore drilling leases recently were voided by a New York federal judge but the case is under appeal.

Frank Drozak, vice president of Seafarers International offered assurance that the maritime unions and the building industry on the east coast are stable.

New York Deputy Mayor Osborn Elliott told the news conference the nation's largest city had an unemployment rate of about 10 per cent and had experienced a loss of 650,000 jobs recently.

"We know we are in competition with other Atlantic coast cities for the offshore drilling headquarters," Elliott said. "But we do have the facilities and we are situated perfectly for those companies. This selling of New York City should have been long before now."

Massachusetts Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III also is here to head a similar mission for his state.

Tanker accident, well blowouts intensify concern about crude

By CATHY DAVIDSON
Newsday

NEW YORK — The series of oil spills that began in December with the breakup of the tanker Argo Merchant off Nantucket and continued in April when workers lost control of an offshore oil well in the North Sea has intensified public concern about the hazards of producing and transporting petroleum.

The North Sea "blowout" took place about 160 miles from the Norwegian coast in Europe's largest offshore oil field. Thousands of gallons of crude oil were spewed more than 100 feet into the air and the escape of natural gas put the drilling platform in constant danger of exploding.

When the Liberian tanker Argo Merchant went aground and broke up in the storm-tossed waters of Nantucket Shoals a total of 7.3 million gallons of refined oil spilled into the Atlantic Ocean. Because of bad weather and brutal sea conditions, attempts to pick up the thick oil failed completely.

In 1975, the last year for which complete statistics are available more than 14 million gallons of oil entered U.S. waters from 10,141 spills. Tankers and barges were responsible for 36.2 per cent of the spillage. Only 0.5 per cent was from offshore production facilities. But the 4.2-million-gallon blowout near Santa Barbara in 1969, two major offshores fires in the Gulf of Mexico in 1970 and the North Sea incident have combined to demonstrate how serious blowouts can be. Tanker accidents like that of the Argo Merchant and two less serious ones that occurred the same month — the grounding of the Olympic Games in the Delaware River and the explosion of the Sansinena in San Pedro — spurred interest in improving tanker safety.

Adm. Owen Siler, Coast Guard commandant, says more than two billion gallons of petroleum, including some from sources other than accidents, is spilled into the oceans each year.

Where is that oil going and what effect does it have on marine life? The answers are crucial but, despite the size of the problem and the research that has been done on spills and their effects, scientists still have an imperfect understanding of what happens after spills.

No two spills are alike. Weather conditions, the location of the spill and the grade of oil involved are among the factors that affect what happens. Several computer models have been developed to combine these factors and predict where the oil will go. The models are being used with some success to plan cleanup operations.

In general, however, oil spilled onto water will first spread into a slick and part of it will evaporate. Part of the remainder may then congeal into tar balls that can sink below the surface. The balance of the spilled oil is gradually broken down by a combination of waves, sunlight and the small marine animals and micro-organisms that feed on it.

In the case of the Argo Merchant, most of the No. 6 oil drifted into the ocean. Because winds and currents would be different, the same spill in summer almost certainly would have reached Nantucket and Cape Cod.

Robert Frosch, associate director for applied oceanography at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute in Massachusetts and a former assistant secretary of the Navy, said oil has been discovered on the ocean floor around the hulk of the Argo Merchant. He also said floating fish eggs in the area were polluted by oil.

"What the large-scale significance of this is, I don't know," Frosch said. "I don't think anybody does know."

In the North Sea, the leaking Bravo platform has created a slick 25 miles long. Equipment has been brought to the scene to skim the oil from the surface of the water but it is too early to know if it will be effective. Chemical dispersants may be used if beaches and coastal areas are threatened by pollution but officials still hope to avoid pollution.

North Sea spill traces dissipating

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Fifteen-foot waves were reported dissipating the last traces of the North Sea oil spill from Bravo rig as the weather continued to cooperate today in the cleanup operation.

"What we need is two days of calm to skim the worst of the oil off, then a good storm to break down the rest," said a pollution expert on Saturday a few hours after the Phillips Petroleum company's runaway well in Norway's offshore Ekofisk field was capped.

The cleanup ships had two days of near calm to pump most of the thicker portions of the spill off the seas around the Ekofisk complex of rigs. Then the waves built up late Monday, breaking up the remaining minutely thin layer of "blue shine" which a spokesman for Phillips said "will disappear quickly under natural sea action."

The Bravo 14 well spilled an estimated 8.2 million gallons of oil into the sea during the eight-day blowout, but the light weight of the oil helped to minimize the effect on marine life and currents kept it away from the coasts of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Scotland.

The Norwegian government allowed Phillips to resume pumping 20,000 tons a day of crude oil from two other rigs in the Ekofisk field, and a crew was cleaning up Bravo rig in preparation for reopening the 15 wells that feed through it. A Phillips spokesman said damage to the rig was less than the company feared.

However, the government said its oil directorate would have to approve the company's repair plan before Bravo could resume production.

Virge sets King tests

Virge Oil Co., Wichita Falls, has scheduled two 3,500-foot prospectors in South Central King County, about 17 miles southeast of Guthrie.

No. 1 Parramore spots 467 feet from south and west lines of section 74, block F, H&TC survey.

No. 2 Parramore is 3,493 feet from south and 467 feet from west lines of the same section.

The area is about 1½ mile southeast of depleted wells in the Block F (Tannehill) field and 2¾ miles southwest of the recently opened Buggs (Tannehill) pool.

Allowable reported

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The average oil production allowable in Texas as of May 1 totaled 3,607,008 barrels a day, the railroad commission reported Tuesday.

The rate was calculated from 175,500 wells, compared with the 3,629,804 barrels allowed on April 15 when 176,136 wells were listed, the commission said.

Estimated actual production is approximately 3,060,000 barrels a day, compared with 3,162,481 in the same month last year.

Crane pool hearing set

AUSTIN — The Texas Railroad Commission has scheduled an Oil and Gas Division hearing at which the reservoir performance of the Block 31 (Devonian) field in Crane County, will be reviewed for redetermination of the most efficient rate of oil, gas and water withdrawal for each.

The hearing will commence at 9 a.m., June 28, in the Ernest O. Thompson State Building here.

The Oil and Gas Division has held hearings on four of 34 fields that are scheduled for review.

Explorers scheduled

Exploration has been slated for Eddy and Lea counties, N.M.

C. W. Trainer, Austin, Tex., filed application to drill a 13,500-foot wildcat in Lea, eight miles south of Maljamar. It is No. 1 Boyd.

A northeast twin to the Atoka oil pay opener in the Salt Lake field, it spots 830 feet from south and 2,130 feet from west lines of section 13-20s-32e.

The Eddy project is slated by Yates Petroleum Corp. of Artesia. It is No. 1-HZ State.

Drillsite is 1½ mile northeast of the Antelope Sink North (Atoka and Morrow) field, 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 22-18s-24e, 14 miles southwest of Artesia.

Beta Sigma Phi, a social, cultural and service organization for women, celebrated the 46th anniversary of its founding with a luncheon Saturday in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton. Midland's nine chapters participated in the special event.

Highlighting the luncheon was the presentation and awards to the nine chapter Girls-of-the Year announced by Sandy DeBord. Alice Williams announced and presented the special award of City Council Girl-of-the Year.

Special recognition was given Beta Delta Chapter which celebrated recently its 40th anniversary.

The anniversary of the sorority, the largest women's sorority in the world, also was observed in the 25 countries in which the organization's 250,000 members in over 12,000 chapters exist. The organization is non-academic, non-political and non-sectarian and the keynote to Beta Sigma Phi is friendship.

Chapters of five different degrees meet the growing needs of various ages and members are active in small chapter groups. Each chapter adapts the plans for social, civic and service and cultural activities to fit the interests of its members.

Internationally, the chapters have created several special funds including the International Loan Fund, through which members help one another; The International Endowment Fund, which has donated over one million dollars to cancer research, cystic fibrosis, homes for underprivileged children and many other causes; the Exemplar Fund, which helps to support Literacy Village in India, and a college scholarship fund for members or their sons or daughters.

Serving as co-chairmen for the Founders' Day activities were Jeaneal Wright and Peggy Brown. A summary of the past year's activities was given by Kay Blanck, president of Beta Sigma Phi City Council.

More home vegetable gardening expected

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Home vegetable growing will increase in 1977. That's the forecast by the National Garden Bureau on the basis of a recent conference at New Orleans.

"Several factors will conspire to cause shortages and high prices for commercially grown vegetables. We are positive that consumers will react by growing their own," said William L. Scott, president of the Bureau, a long-established home garden educational service.

Scott pointed to the drought in California and "the disastrous weather" in other parts of the country that reduced water supplies or caused flooding and delayed planting and harvesting schedules.

"If American consumers want to enjoy a wide selection of fresh vegetables at a reasonable cost this year, they'd better plan to grow much of their own needs," Scott said. "Considerably higher prices for fresh produce are inevitable; growers have to start seedlings of many vegetables in greenhouses; heating costs have doubled in some areas; increased costs for energy and labor used in cultivating, harvesting and packing commercial produce will further force prices up.

"Home food gardening is one of the most effective ways for consumers to fight rising prices," Scott added. "Best of all, they can enjoy themselves while saving money and can live better for eating lots of nutritious vegetables without having to worry about the cost."

Gardening beginners should contact their county agricultural agents for free bulletins about home food growing. Landless apartment dwellers should inquire about community garden sites.

Midland cowgirl crowned as queen

ALPINE — Lezlye Sherman, a 15-year-old Midland cowgirl, was crowned regional queen at a recent Texas State High School Rodeo Association rodeo at Alpine.

Miss Sherman, a barrel racer and pole bender, also was one of two Midlanders to qualify for the association's state finals in mid-June at Hallettsville.

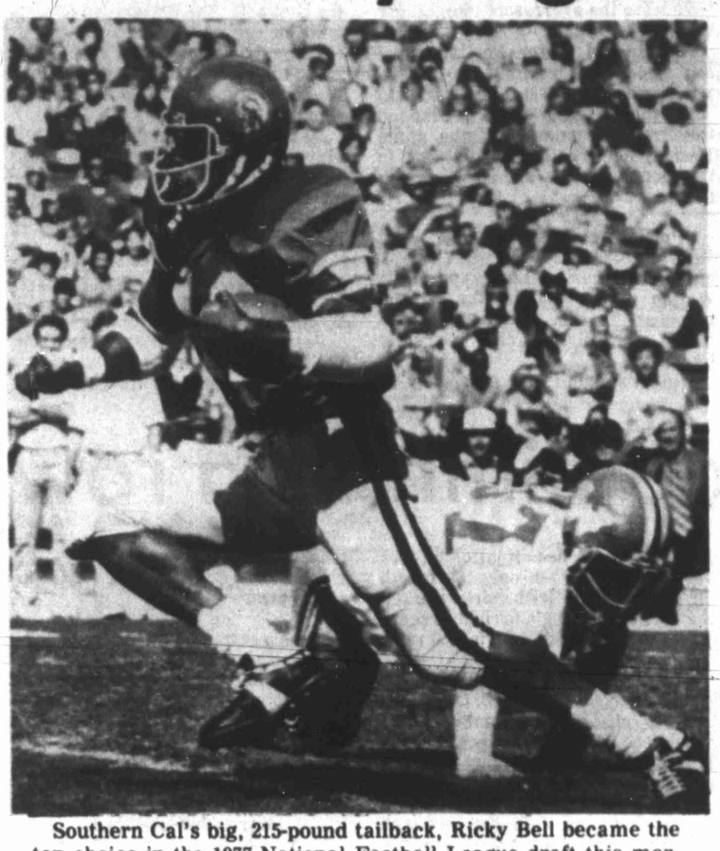
The other, Mark Fort, will compete in bull riding at the state finals. He is a student at Edison Freshman School.

The Sherman girl will be competing for state queen, as well as the championship in barrel racing and pole bending.

The West Texas region that Fort and Miss Sherman will be representing at the finals includes Midland, Odessa, Pecos, San Angelo, El Paso, Del Rio, Sonora and Alpine.

Area youth competing at the Alpine rodeo also included David Hanson, a sophomore at Midland High School, and Stormy Lovinggood, Tony Patton, Ricky Estoll, and Poyner, all of Odessa.

Cowboys get Dorsett; Bell top choice



Southern Cal's big, 215-pound tailback, Ricky Bell became the top choice in the 1977 National Football League draft this morning, when the Tampa Bay Bucaneers laid claim to the All-American. He is shown here in action last season against Washington State. (AP Laserphoto)

DALLAS (AP — The Dallas Cowboys pulled off a shocker today in the National Football League draft by obtaining AllAmerica running back Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh from the expansion Seattle Seahawks for what Dallas General Manager Tex Schramm called "a big bundle of draft choices."

What the Cowboys did was switch their 14th first round pick for Seattle's plus three second round choices for Seattle's second choice in the NFL draft.

Cowboy personnel director Gil Brandt joyfully bounded into the press room with a jersey bearing Dorsett's number (33) on it and said: "Here is our draft choice."

A DELIGHTED Schramm said Dorsett is the most outstanding back since O. J. Simpson and "when you get a chance to get that type of player you make sacrifices."

The 5-11, 192-pound Dorsett gained more than 6,000 yards and three times was named to The Associated Press All-America first team.

Schramm said, "actually, it is really a good deal for Seattle because they needed a lot of quality players and they would get them from the picks that we had.

"Normally, we don't trade for a player, but it was just something we had to do. We couldn't let an opportunity like this go."

The Cowboys were desperately in need of a breakaway running back. The longest run from scrimmage by a Cowboy player was only 24 yards last year by Robert Newhouse.

The Cowboys obtained their 14th-place in the NFL draft by trading quarterback Clint Longley to San Diego last year. Dallas also collected three second place draft choices in various other transactions. But the key was getting the 14th choice because normally Dallas would have had to draft 24th.

In return for giving up its first-round pick, Seattle received Dallas' first-round choice—No. 14 overall—and three second-round selections, giving the Seahawks five picks in the first 54.

Ricky Bell walked into the packed ballroom at the Hotel Roosevelt seconds after his name was announced and strode to the microphone displaying a Tampa Bay jersey with a white No. 42, his uniform number in college.

"I waited a year-and-a-half for this day," Bell said. "I've got the ability to play in the NFL. There's no question in my mind. This is the biggest challenge of my life and the biggest challenge of the team's life to establish a winning trend.

"We can't do any worse than we did last year unless they expand the schedule to 16 games. Then we could go 0-16."

BELL REFERRED to Tampa Bay's 0-14 record last year in its initial season of NFL play, the worst mark in the league's history.

The Cincinnati Bengals, using a pick acquired from Buffalo in the Sherman White deal, went for Eddie Edwards, an AllAmerican defensive tackle from the University of Miami.

In rapid-fire succession, the New York Jets, who had hoped to get Dorsett, chose Marvin Powell, an offensive tackle from Southern California, and the New York Giants selected Powell's Southern Cal teammate, defensive tackle Gary Jeter.

That gave Southern Cal three selections in the first five overall picks, but it was well-known that the Trojans had more than a dozen seniors who were highly rated by the pro scouts.

THE ATLANTA Falcons, picking sixth, grabbed Warren Bryant, a long and lean offensive tackle from the University of Kentucky. The 6-foot-6, 249-pound Bryant was a starter since the fourth game of his freshman year.

The New Orleans Saints selected Joe Campbell, a defensive end from Maryland's Atlantic Coast Conference champions.

The eighth over-all choice was owned by Cincinnati in the Bill Bergey deal and the Bengals used it to take Wilson Whitley, a 268-pound defensive tackle from the University of Houston and winner of the Lombardi Trophy as the nation's No. 1 down lineman.

The Green Pay Packers selected Mike Butler, a 265-pound defensive tackle from the University of Kansas. The Packers, however, projected him as a defensive end.

The No. 10 pick was Kansas City's and the Chiefs selected Gary Green, a defensive back from Baylor.

Shepard's auto still big news

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Athletic Director Harry Fouke said Monday the school "intends" to investigate the process by which All-America high school football player Darrell Shepard of Odessa obtained a $9,000 car.

The car was bought by Shepard, an Odessa High School star, and financed by a Brazoria County bank, 500 miles from Odessa. The car was picked up by Shepard on Feb. 18 two days after the quarterback had signed a letter of intent to play football for the University of Houston.

Up until a day before he signed with Houston, Shepard had reportedly told Texas University Coach Fred Akers that he would sign with the Longhorns.

"There is no doubt he has a car," Fouke said. "Now we have to find out if any National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) or Southwest Conference rules were violated. I have not said any rules have been violated. Anytime in your business or anybody else's that critical accusations are made, anybody would look into it. We certainly intend to do the same to see if there is any basis of fact."

Fouke said one of the things school officials would look into is the fact that the car was bought in Odessa, but was financed in Brazoria County near Houston.

Charles Marino, board chairman of the Bank of Brazoria, is a member of the Taxi Squad, a booster organization for the Houston football team.

Mrs. Rose Shepard, the player's mother, told the Dallas Times Herald that she bought the car for Darrell as a graduation present and obtained the Brazoria bank financing because she was turned down by banks in Odessa where she is financing two other automobiles.

Bank officials said they approved the loan because Shepard had a relative in the area who vouched for him.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman, asked if he had recommended the bank to the Shepards, said: "The mother said she wanted to buy her son a car and couldn't get it financed in Odessa. She wanted to know where I could help in Houston. I said, 'if you're looking for a legitimate loan, yes'. I am sure there are 100 banks in Houston that would give car loans. I've known Charlie Marino for a long time. He's a good friend. I sure wouldn't recommend that she go to a T-sipper (University of Texas graduate) or someone else."

Marino said he checked with bank president Henry Maroul Saturday and found that the deal is a "good, hard-nosed investment. I just wish we had 100 just like it."

Amarillo topples Cubs in 14, 8-7

AMARILLO—Craig Stimac's bloop single to short center field with two out in the bottom of the 14th inning here Monday night lifted the Amarillo Gold Sox to an 8-7, three hour and 50 minute Texas League victory over the Midland Cubs.

Stimac's hit came with runners at the corner, and catcher Tony Castillo scored from third base to end the marathon contest.

The Amarillo run negated a Midland rally that had tied the contest in the ninth inning, 7-7. With two out in the ninth, Joe Hernandez legged out an infield single and Karl Pagel followed with a towering 430-foot homer, the longest hit in Amarillo this year.

The Gold Sox, however, brought Marty French out of the bullpen, and the Cubs were out of luck from that point on. French allowed only one Midland hit in 5 innings, and only two Midland runners reached base over that span. French retired the last 10 Cubs he faced.

Midland relief pitcher Andy Muhlstock pitched seven innings of scoreless ball for the Cubs, allowing only five hits while striking out eight. Larry Groover replaced Muhlstock in the 14th to absorb the loss.

Midland's only lead in the game came in the first inning when the Cubs led 2-0 after two errors by Amarillo and a key double by Hernandez, which did not plate a run, but set runners up for a two-run throwing error by Castillo.

Amarillo scored two in the second inning, one in the fifth and three in the sixth for a 7-3 lead, which finally fell with Pagel's blast.

San Antonio gives El Paso 8-6 beating

By The Associated Press

San Antonio handed El Paso only its third defeat of the season, 8-6, and Shreveport kept its winning ways in tact with a 5-3 10 inning decision over Tulsa Monday night in Texas League baseball action.

Rain washed out Jackson's scheduled encounter with Arkansas.

Five Tulsa errors contributed to the Oklahoma club's defeat although it tied the score on a two-run double by Blair Stouffer in the bottom of the ninth. Randy Brandt relieved in the ninth and claimed the mound victory for Shreveport. Four of Tulsa's six hits were contributed by Freeman Evens — a triple and three singles. Tommy Thomas singled, Harry Safewright doubled and Paul Djakonow singled for the winning Shreveport margin in the top of the 10th.

Portland eliminates Denver, 108-92

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, Johnny Davis was a little-known college junior and the Portland Trail Blazers had failed to make the National Basketball Association playoffs for the sixth straight season.

Monday night, Davis was the hero as the Blazers eliminated the Denver Nuggets from postseason play.

The 108-92 blitz was Portland's first lopsided victory in nine playoff games, and moves the Blazers into the Western Conference finals against the winner of the Golden State-Los Angeles series.

The conference finals begin Friday night, in Los Angeles if the Lakers advance and in Portland if the Warriors beat the Lakers.

The Warriors-Lakers set will be decided Wednesday night, when the teams meet at the Forum in Los Angeles in the seventh game of their series.

The home team has won each of the games so far, but the Warriors feel they can stop that trend. "When they've beaten us at the Forum, it's been like a velvet hammer," said Warriors forward Jamaal Wilkes. "They've beaten us, but not by much."

Meanwhile, Philadelphia and Houston enjoy a breather as they await the start of their series for the Eastern Conference championship. That series open Thursday night in Philadelphia.

"We were waiting to really play our game in this series, and this was it," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "We were the aggressors tonight. We weren't yesterday."

Denver had beaten Portland Sunday, 114-105 in overtime, to force a sixth game in the bestof-seven series.

But the Blazers shot to a 13-2 lead in the first four minutes of the game Monday night, built a 22-point lead in the second quarter, and coasted from there.

"Portland can beat anybody," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "If Jack can give (Maurice) Lucas and (Bill) Walton a rest and get the terrific response he did tonight from his bench, the Blazers can be really tough."

Walton's eight-foot hook shot gave Portland a 60-38 lead with 2:08 left in the first half. The Blazers led 62-45 at halftime.

Twice the Blazers led by as many as 25 points, the last time at 92-67 on Walton's 10-foot bank shot with 8:31 remaining in the game.

Denver, behind the play of 7- foot-1 Marvin Webster, closed within 99-88 with 1:46 left in the game.

But Davis hit his second straight basket the short-lived threat disappeared.

David Thompson, who sank just six of 14 field goal tries, led the Nuggets with 17 points. Dan Issel added 14 and Webster 13, nine in the final quarter.

Portland, which hit 62 per cent from the field in the first half, wound up shooting 50 per cent for the game.

Hurting Braves drop ninth in a row

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves are on a streak—only it's going the wrong way.

"We are not going to panic," Manager Dave Bristol said Monday night after the Braves lost their ninth straight game, an 11-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

One can sympathize with Bristol. His team has not only been beaten of late, but embarrassed by lopsided scores on a lot of occasions.

"He isn't going with a full deck out there," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, alluding to the absence of outfielder Gary Matthews, infielder Willie Montanez and pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dick Ruthven. "That's probably four of his top players."

Reds 3, Cardinals 2

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum singled home the tying run in the ninth inning and on the same play, Cesar Geronimo raced home on an error by St. Louis third baseman Hector Cruz to give Cincinnati its victory over the Cardinals.

Padres 4, Phillies 3

Bill Almon's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning lifted San Diego over Philadelphia and snapped an eight-game Padres' losing streak. Bobby Valentine had singled to lead off the inning and moved to second on a base hit by Gene Richards before scoring San Diego's winning run.

Rollie Fingers, 3-1, got the victory, despite giving up a run in the ninth inning. Ron Reed, 0-1, took the loss.

Dodgers 3, Mets 1

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 1

Rookie right-hander Brian Haas and two relief pitchers combined on a five-hitter to lead Milwaukee over Toronto. Haas, 1-1, gaining his first major league victory, was lifted after giving up his fourth hit with one out in the ninth inning. Bob McClure and Bill Castro both made appearances in the ninth, with McClure giving up one hit before being relieved by Castro, who retired the last two batters.

A's 2, Orioles 0

Rick Langford combined on a four-hitter with Dave Giusti to lead Oakland over Baltimore. Langford gave up only two hits in seven innings before giving way to Giusti, who blanked the Orioles on two hits the rest of the way.

The A's scored their runs in the first inning. Dick Allen laced a run-scoring single to left following one-out walks to Marty Perez and Mitchell Page. Then, after Earl Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases with two outs, May also walked Wayne Gross to force across the second run.

Royals 3, White Sox 1

Tom Poquette darted home on Lerrin LaGrow's bases loaded wild pitch in the eighth inning, and Amos Otis followed with a sacrifice fly to trigger Kansas City past Chicago. Dennis Leonard survived early-inning problems behind stellar defensive play, then checked the White Sox with a four-hitter to notch his second victory against one loss.

McGuire heads Hall inductees

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, one of five men inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame this year, says others looking for winning teams should head for the back lots and playgrounds of big cities on the East Coast.

McGuire, the only college coach ever to win more than 100 games at each of three major schools, said, "I get the New York City ball players down south."

"There's great competition in the Eastern cities—the playgrounds where you have a hundred boys waiting to get on the court, and they play basketball 12 months a year. They don't do that in the south."

Inducted during ceremonies Monday were McGuire, Elgin Baylor—one of the greatest of the game's forwards—and three stars of a past: Charles "Tarzan" Cooper, who played for 20 years as a pro; Lauren "Laddie" Gale, former Oregon star, and William G. "Skinny" Johnson, once a center for the University of Kansas.

All five were present, as were about two dozen other Hall of Fame members and a packed house of onlookers. The five raised the number of individuals in the Hall of Fame to 103. Four teams also are in the hall.

Stained glass windows bearing portraits of the five were unveiled during ceremonies hosted by sportscaster Curt Gowdy.

Standing below the window honoring him, Baylor said later he wonders if NBA teams can stand the financial strain of today's player salary demands.

"The money thing, now, well, it's made it almost impossible for owners to make a profit. I don't know if there's any club making money. Maybe there is, but I don't know."

The 6-foot-5 Baylor was selected for Hall of Fame membership in his first year of eligibility.

He ranks fifth in the all-time NBA scoring with 23,149 points, a 27.4 point per game average.

After setting nine school scoring and rebound records at the Seattle University, Baylor was the Minneapolis Lakers' firstround draft choice in 1958. He went on to be Rookie of the Year, playing on the All-Star team his first season.

It is the service that motivates me and I am interested in helping you make the right investment for you. We own several top quality rental homes here, beautifully decorated and maintained for discriminating families. They are about 30,000 to 75,000 and we screen you. Call to be put on our list.

I am in the market to buy an office. If you have an older home in "O" or commercial zone, call. We are also interested in houses or apartments or lots.

Portland eliminates Denver, 108-92

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, Johnny Davis was a little-known college junior and the Portland Trail Blazers had failed to make the National Basketball Association playoffs for the sixth straight season.

Monday night, Davis was the hero as the Blazers eliminated the Denver Nuggets from postseason play.

The 108-92 blitz was Portland's first lopsided victory in nine playoff games, and moves the Blazers into the Western Conference finals against the winner of the Golden State-Los Angeles series.

The conference finals begin Friday night, in Los Angeles if the Lakers advance and in Portland if the Warriors beat the Lakers.

The Warriors-Lakers set will be decided Wednesday night, when the teams meet at the Forum in Los Angeles in the seventh game of their series.

The home team has won each of the games so far, but the Warriors feel they can stop that trend. "When they've beaten us at the Forum, it's been like a velvet hammer," said Warriors forward Jamaal Wilkes. "They've beaten us, but not by much."

Meanwhile, Philadelphia and Houston enjoy a breather as they await the start of their series for the Eastern Conference championship. That series open Thursday night in Philadelphia.

"We were waiting to really play our game in this series, and this was it," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "We were the aggressors tonight. We weren't yesterday."

Denver had beaten Portland Sunday, 114-105 in overtime, to force a sixth game in the bestof-seven series.

But the Blazers shot to a 13-2 lead in the first four minutes of the game Monday night, built a 22-point lead in the second quarter, and coasted from there.

"Portland can beat anybody," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "If Jack can give (Maurice) Lucas and (Bill) Walton a rest and get the terrific response he did tonight from his bench, the Blazers can be really tough."

Walton's eight-foot hook shot gave Portland a 60-38 lead with 2:08 left in the first half. The Blazers led 62-45 at halftime.

Twice the Blazers led by as many as 25 points, the last time at 92-67 on Walton's 10-foot bank shot with 8:31 remaining in the game.

Denver, behind the play of 7- foot-1 Marvin Webster, closed within 99-88 with 1:46 left in the game.

But Davis hit his second straight basket the short-lived threat disappeared.

David Thompson, who sank just six of 14 field goal tries, led the Nuggets with 17 points. Dan Issel added 14 and Webster 13, nine in the final quarter.

Portland, which hit 62 per cent from the field in the first half, wound up shooting 50 per cent for the game.

Hurting Braves drop ninth in a row

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves are on a streak—only it's going the wrong way.

"We are not going to panic," Manager Dave Bristol said Monday night after the Braves lost their ninth straight game, an 11-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

One can sympathize with Bristol. His team has not only been beaten of late, but embarrassed by lopsided scores on a lot of occasions.

"He isn't going with a full deck out there," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, alluding to the absence of outfielder Gary Matthews, infielder Willie Montanez and pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dick Ruthven. "That's probably four of his top players."

Reds 3, Cardinals 2

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum singled home the tying run in the ninth inning and on the same play, Cesar Geronimo raced home on an error by St. Louis third baseman Hector Cruz to give Cincinnati its victory over the Cardinals.

Padres 4, Phillies 3

Bill Almon's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning lifted San Diego over Philadelphia and snapped an eight-game Padres' losing streak. Bobby Valentine had singled to lead off the inning and moved to second on a base hit by Gene Richards before scoring San Diego's winning run.

Rollie Fingers, 3-1, got the victory, despite giving up a run in the ninth inning. Ron Reed, 0-1, took the loss.

Dodgers 3, Mets 1

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 1

Rookie right-hander Brian Haas and two relief pitchers combined on a five-hitter to lead Milwaukee over Toronto. Haas, 1-1, gaining his first major league victory, was lifted after giving up his fourth hit with one out in the ninth inning. Bob McClure and Bill Castro both made appearances in the ninth, with McClure giving up one hit before being relieved by Castro, who retired the last two batters.

A's 2, Orioles 0

Rick Langford combined on a four-hitter with Dave Giusti to lead Oakland over Baltimore. Langford gave up only two hits in seven innings before giving way to Giusti, who blanked the Orioles on two hits the rest of the way.

The A's scored their runs in the first inning. Dick Allen laced a run-scoring single to left following one-out walks to Marty Perez and Mitchell Page. Then, after Earl Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases with two outs, May also walked Wayne Gross to force across the second run.

Royals 3, White Sox 1

Tom Poquette darted home on Lerrin LaGrow's bases loaded wild pitch in the eighth inning, and Amos Otis followed with a sacrifice fly to trigger Kansas City past Chicago. Dennis Leonard survived early-inning problems behind stellar defensive play, then checked the White Sox with a four-hitter to notch his second victory against one loss.

McGuire heads Hall inductees

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, one of five men inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame this year, says others looking for winning teams should head for the back lots and playgrounds of big cities on the East Coast.

McGuire, the only college coach ever to win more than 100 games at each of three major schools, said, "I get the New York City ball players down south."

"There's great competition in the Eastern cities—the playgrounds where you have a hundred boys waiting to get on the court, and they play basketball 12 months a year. They don't do that in the south."

Inducted during ceremonies Monday were McGuire, Elgin Baylor—one of the greatest of the game's forwards—and three stars of a past: Charles "Tarzan" Cooper, who played for 20 years as a pro; Lauren "Laddie" Gale, former Oregon star, and William G. "Skinny" Johnson, once a center for the University of Kansas.

All five were present, as were about two dozen other Hall of Fame members and a packed house of onlookers. The five raised the number of individuals in the Hall of Fame to 103. Four teams also are in the hall.

Stained glass windows bearing portraits of the five were unveiled during ceremonies hosted by sportscaster Curt Gowdy.

Standing below the window honoring him, Baylor said later he wonders if NBA teams can stand the financial strain of today's player salary demands.

"The money thing, now, well, it's made it almost impossible for owners to make a profit. I don't know if there's any club making money. Maybe there is, but I don't know."

The 6-foot-5 Baylor was selected for Hall of Fame membership in his first year of eligibility.

He ranks fifth in the all-time NBA scoring with 23,149 points, a 27.4 point per game average.

After setting nine school scoring and rebound records at the Seattle University, Baylor was the Minneapolis Lakers' firstround draft choice in 1958. He went on to be Rookie of the Year, playing on the All-Star team his first season.

HILLS & HOMES

Reid Brannon, Assc. 684-5588

Reid is the son of Ed and Sue Brannon, respected names as designer-builders of fine custom homes. He has the artistic and technical background in the industry and the personal intergrity necessary for a people-oriented service. He will benefit from my teaching, help & experience in every deal. We solicit your listing. As members of MLS, you will get full coverage and cannot get better representation. I specialize in "Hard Cases." Sixteen years experience as a dealer in Midland home sales and Hill Country land sales qualifies me to give you the extra help you need during these changing economics times. Real Estate is the basis of all prosperity and everyone needs to invest. I can help you to buy your first home or to trade a house, an apartment house or a ranch. It is the service that motivates me and I am interested in helping you make the right investment for you. We own several top quality rental homes here, beautifully decorated and maintained for discriminating families. They are about 30,000 to 75,000 and we screen you. Call to be put on our list.

I am in the market to buy an office. If you have an older home in "O" or commercial zone, call. We are also interested in houses or apartments or lots.

Trading has tax and other advantages. Besides Midland homes we have Hill Country land: a beautiful 200 acre riverfront stock farm near Menard for $200,000; a 150 acre stock farm near Junction with a new luxury home: 3480 Sq. ft., 4 br., 4 bath, 2 fireplaces. Native stone, shake shingle roof. It's beautiful; a 100 acre maize and cotton farm near Corpus. We have extensive knowledge of Menard-Mason and Junction-Kerriville properties and cooperate with any broker anywhere. Let us know your Needs!

Portland eliminates Denver, 108-92

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, Johnny Davis was a little-known college junior and the Portland Trail Blazers had failed to make the National Basketball Association playoffs for the sixth straight season.

Monday night, Davis was the hero as the Blazers eliminated the Denver Nuggets from postseason play.

The 108-92 blitz was Portland's first lopsided victory in nine playoff games, and moves the Blazers into the Western Conference finals against the winner of the Golden State-Los Angeles series.

The conference finals begin Friday night, in Los Angeles if the Lakers advance and in Portland if the Warriors beat the Lakers.

The Warriors-Lakers set will be decided Wednesday night, when the teams meet at the Forum in Los Angeles in the seventh game of their series.

The home team has won each of the games so far, but the Warriors feel they can stop that trend. "When they've beaten us at the Forum, it's been like a velvet hammer," said Warriors forward Jamaal Wilkes. "They've beaten us, but not by much."

Meanwhile, Philadelphia and Houston enjoy a breather as they await the start of their series for the Eastern Conference championship. That series open Thursday night in Philadelphia.

"We were waiting to really play our game in this series, and this was it," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "We were the aggressors tonight. We weren't yesterday."

Denver had beaten Portland Sunday, 114-105 in overtime, to force a sixth game in the bestof-seven series.

But the Blazers shot to a 13-2 lead in the first four minutes of the game Monday night, built a 22-point lead in the second quarter, and coasted from there.

"Portland can beat anybody," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "If Jack can give (Maurice) Lucas and (Bill) Walton a rest and get the terrific response he did tonight from his bench, the Blazers can be really tough."

Walton's eight-foot hook shot gave Portland a 60-38 lead with 2:08 left in the first half. The Blazers led 62-45 at halftime.

Twice the Blazers led by as many as 25 points, the last time at 92-67 on Walton's 10-foot bank shot with 8:31 remaining in the game.

Denver, behind the play of 7- foot-1 Marvin Webster, closed within 99-88 with 1:46 left in the game.

But Davis hit his second straight basket the short-lived threat disappeared.

David Thompson, who sank just six of 14 field goal tries, led the Nuggets with 17 points. Dan Issel added 14 and Webster 13, nine in the final quarter.

Portland, which hit 62 per cent from the field in the first half, wound up shooting 50 per cent for the game.

Hurting Braves drop ninth in a row

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves are on a streak—only it's going the wrong way.

"We are not going to panic," Manager Dave Bristol said Monday night after the Braves lost their ninth straight game, an 11-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

One can sympathize with Bristol. His team has not only been beaten of late, but embarrassed by lopsided scores on a lot of occasions.

"He isn't going with a full deck out there," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, alluding to the absence of outfielder Gary Matthews, infielder Willie Montanez and pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dick Ruthven. "That's probably four of his top players."

Reds 3, Cardinals 2

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum singled home the tying run in the ninth inning and on the same play, Cesar Geronimo raced home on an error by St. Louis third baseman Hector Cruz to give Cincinnati its victory over the Cardinals.

Padres 4, Phillies 3

Bill Almon's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning lifted San Diego over Philadelphia and snapped an eight-game Padres' losing streak. Bobby Valentine had singled to lead off the inning and moved to second on a base hit by Gene Richards before scoring San Diego's winning run.

Rollie Fingers, 3-1, got the victory, despite giving up a run in the ninth inning. Ron Reed, 0-1, took the loss.

Dodgers 3, Mets 1

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 1

Rookie right-hander Brian Haas and two relief pitchers combined on a five-hitter to lead Milwaukee over Toronto. Haas, 1-1, gaining his first major league victory, was lifted after giving up his fourth hit with one out in the ninth inning. Bob McClure and Bill Castro both made appearances in the ninth, with McClure giving up one hit before being relieved by Castro, who retired the last two batters.

A's 2, Orioles 0

Rick Langford combined on a four-hitter with Dave Giusti to lead Oakland over Baltimore. Langford gave up only two hits in seven innings before giving way to Giusti, who blanked the Orioles on two hits the rest of the way.

The A's scored their runs in the first inning. Dick Allen laced a run-scoring single to left following one-out walks to Marty Perez and Mitchell Page. Then, after Earl Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases with two outs, May also walked Wayne Gross to force across the second run.

Royals 3, White Sox 1

Tom Poquette darted home on Lerrin LaGrow's bases loaded wild pitch in the eighth inning, and Amos Otis followed with a sacrifice fly to trigger Kansas City past Chicago. Dennis Leonard survived early-inning problems behind stellar defensive play, then checked the White Sox with a four-hitter to notch his second victory against one loss.

McGuire heads Hall inductees

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — South Carolina Coach Frank McGuire, one of five men inducted into the National Basketball Hall of Fame this year, says others looking for winning teams should head for the back lots and playgrounds of big cities on the East Coast.

McGuire, the only college coach ever to win more than 100 games at each of three major schools, said, "I get the New York City ball players down south."

"There's great competition in the Eastern cities—the playgrounds where you have a hundred boys waiting to get on the court, and they play basketball 12 months a year. They don't do that in the south."

Inducted during ceremonies Monday were McGuire, Elgin Baylor—one of the greatest of the game's forwards—and three stars of a past: Charles "Tarzan" Cooper, who played for 20 years as a pro; Lauren "Laddie" Gale, former Oregon star, and William G. "Skinny" Johnson, once a center for the University of Kansas.

All five were present, as were about two dozen other Hall of Fame members and a packed house of onlookers. The five raised the number of individuals in the Hall of Fame to 103. Four teams also are in the hall.

Stained glass windows bearing portraits of the five were unveiled during ceremonies hosted by sportscaster Curt Gowdy.

Standing below the window honoring him, Baylor said later he wonders if NBA teams can stand the financial strain of today's player salary demands.

"The money thing, now, well, it's made it almost impossible for owners to make a profit. I don't know if there's any club making money. Maybe there is, but I don't know."

The 6-foot-5 Baylor was selected for Hall of Fame membership in his first year of eligibility.

He ranks fifth in the all-time NBA scoring with 23,149 points, a 27.4 point per game average.

After setting nine school scoring and rebound records at the Seattle University, Baylor was the Minneapolis Lakers' firstround draft choice in 1958. He went on to be Rookie of the Year, playing on the All-Star team his first season.

HILLS & HOMES

Reid Brannon, Assc. 694-5588

Reid is the son of Ed and Sue Brannon, respected names as designer-builders of fine custom homes. He has the artistic and technical background in the industry and the personal intergrity necessary for a people-oriented service. He will benefit from my teaching, help & experience in every deal. We solicit your listing. As members of MLS, you will get full coverage and cannot get better representation.

I specialize in "Hard Cases." Sixteen years experience as a dealer in Midland home sales and Hill Country land sales qualifies me to give you the extra help you need during these changing economics times. Real Estate is the basis of all prosperity and everyone needs to invest. I can help you to buy your first home or to trade a house, an apartment house or a ranch. It is the service that motivates me and I am interested in helping you make the right investment for you. We own several top quality rental homes here, beautifully decorated and maintained for discriminating families. They are about 30,000 to 75,000 and we screen you. Call to be put on our list.

I am in the market to buy an office. If you have an older home in "O" or commercial zone, call. We are also interested in houses or apartments or lots.

Trading has tax and other advantages. Besides Midland homes we have Hill Country land: a beautiful 200 acre riverfront stock farm near Menard for $200,000; a 150 acre stock farm near Junction with a new luxury home: 3480 Sq. ft., 4 br., 4 bath, 2 fireplaces. Native stone, shake shingle roof; it's beautiful; a 100 acre maize and cotton farm near Corpus. We have extensive knowledge of Menard-Mason and Junction-Kerriville properties and cooperate with any broker anywhere. Let us know your Needs!

DEAR ABBY

Once wealthy widow lost money to two children who abused her

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I noticed that you wrote a whole column on parents who abuse their children.

That was very nice of you, Abby, but can't you do something for parents who are abused by their children?

I am a 42-year-old mother of two. My son is 21 and my daughter is 19. Their father died two years ago and left everything to me, and believe me, it was a lot.

I loved my two children so much I gave them everything they asked for—cars, clothes, trips, boats and motorcycles. And now I have nothing. Absolutely nothing.

I lost my house, my car, my health, my looks, and now I think I am losing my mind.—ABUSED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Your husband obviously did not consult the experts in estate planning at the trust department of his bank. Pity. They would have suggested any number of plans to provide you with financial security for the rest of your life.

DEAR ABBY: How could you have been so unfeeling to that woman whose son told her she talked too much? (You said, "He did you a kindness.")

Some kindness! The poor woman is probably now downhearted, self-conscious and inhibited, when before she was merry, cheerful and uninhibited. Which kind of woman would you rather be around?

We all know people who tend to be boring because they talk too much.

My own mother was a nonstop talker. Once she talked without stopping for 42 minutes. (I timed her.) Of course she was boring, but it didn't kill me to listen.

Yours for a little more tolerance.—MRS. ANONYMOUS

DEAR MRS.: I think it's a kindness to let people know when they talk too much.

They can and should do something about it. The price paid by bores is much too high. Their friends avoid them, and so do their relatives when they can conveniently do so.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL THOSE WHO WROTE IN HOPES THAT THE SALVATION ARMY COULD LOCATE MISSING KIN: Please be patient. The response was so overwhelming, they may not get to your letter for months. And only those who sent stamped, self-addressed envelopes can be answered.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Scouts prepare for fall with school sign-ups

Midland Girl Scouts are trying to "be prepared" for the fall by having girls sign up Thursday in their neighborhood schools.

This early sign-up will make it possible for Brownie and Junior scouts to continue to meet in neighborhood troops near their homes.

All girls in grades one through six interested in joining the group or continuing in it will meet with their parents in their current school cafetoriums between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

A presentation will be given to answer questions about the scouting program. Girls currently in scouting are requested to wear their uniforms. Those who bring a friend to be registered will receive a Pick-a-Pal badge.

Girls not in scouting now may pay a $1 partial registration fee making them eligible to participate in summer activities.

Girl Scouts is designed to teach values, such as patriotism and love for mankind through learning by doing activities that are fun and rewarding.

About 1,200 girls and 360 adults are registered in the Midland program.

AT WIT'S END

Car pool would fix problems with jogging

By ERMA BOMBECK

If there is anyone more sanctimonious than a person who jogs I don't know who he is.

They all act like they've just run from Garden City, L.I., to Innsbruck with a torch in their hand.

My husband has been jogging for five years now and I'm sick of it. Every morning, he comes into the kitchen after his run, a towel around the neck of his warm-up suit and grins, "Look at these muscles. And I'm not even breathing heavily."

"Don't give me that," I said. "You almost sucked up the morning paper in your nostrils."

"You should try it, you know," he said. "It firms up your muscles, gets you going in the mornings, and besides, it gives you discipline."

"So does a war, but I don't want to run to one."

"I ran two miles this morning. How long did it take me?"

"An hour and a half."

"You're kidding."

"Let me put it this way. If you were running after a beautiful girl from a centerfold, by the time you caught her you wouldn't remember why you were chasing her."

"That's pretty much what I'd expect from a woman who organized a car pool to the garbage cans."

That did it.

The next morning, I decided to join him. Let me tell you I have never had more respect for my husband than I did from the moment I stepped into the streets.

A '71 Mustang with a bumper sticker reading "I FOUND GOD" brushed by my body, making an instant convert out of me.

From out of nowhere, a pack of dogs nipped at my heels, forcing me to set a record for broad jump I didn't know existed.

There were crowds of people everywhere — milkmen, paperboys, joggers, muggers, insomniacs — all milling around the streets. I expected any moment to see Ben Grauer with a microphone standing under a big, silver ball.

Finally, I yelled to my husband, "I have to stop a minute."

"Are you tired?" he asked.

I forced a laugh. "Tired! I just have to tie my shoestring. I keep tripping over it."

"That's your tongue," he said.

"Of my shoe?"

"Of your mouth," he said.

There's nothing wrong with jogging, I guess, that a car pool couldn't fix.

International exhibition focused on arts, crafts made by hand

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Whether to string West African bauxite beads with Egyptian murry beads and Afghanistan "fish fetish" dangles may be a decision for the fashion conscious at crafts exhibitions these days, where you may also purchase the crafts.

The Fifth International Crafts Show at New York Coliseum, which had fascinating demonstrations in copper, rug making and other crafts, was no exception. Beads — even carved olive and peach pits and a variety called Boston baked beads — and dangles seemed to be everywhere. Ditto handmade silver bracelets and rings and handsome earrings made of feathers from pheasants, turkeys, quail. The feathers were also combined in macrame necklaces.

And there were handsome handcrafts for the home. Slabs of pine made into attractive tables were shown by youthful Bill Griffith of Albertson, N.Y. Demonstrations in jute basketry, Finnish weaving and needlepoint were given and there were workshops in enamel and clay, as well as directions in the art of batik design, step by step. Rugs were made by a new shirring technique and you could buy a loom. A brass bed was made from scratch by a metals craftsman.

One unusual exhibit in copper by Louis Berczi of Australia was a crowd pleaser. He had settled near Sydney with his wife 13 years ago, he explained. Refugees from Hungary, they had spent eight years in Holland, where Berczi had worked restoring and repairing copper before emigrating to Australia. He also works with silver.

TWASO workshops explored problems, solutions

Problems encountered by every symphony guild and ways to solve them were outlined in workshops during the 1977 Texas Women's Association for Symphony Guilds state conference in the Midland Hilton.

Workshops were held on care and feeding of the volunteer, how to run a meeting, concerts for young people, rewards and responsibilities in being a board member, and successful ticket sales stories.

Speaking on volunteers were Art Cole, director of Midland Community Theatre, Pat M. Baskin and Martin L. Allday, Midland attorneys.

Cole told the audience volunteers came before the professionals and a volunteer is man's best friend. "A volunteer stands between a free society and a socialist community," he explained.

A volunteer helps to establish the proper goals, provides encouragement and gives constructive criticism.

Cole urged the volunteers not to make assumptions that they should not make waves, but to go ahead and do it.

People fall into three groups, he added. There are the few who make things happen, the few who watch things happen and the majority who don't know what is going on.

Allday stressed volunteers to be successful board members and then outlined a few rules.

These included reading the minutes of the board for several years to know what has been happening; being informed and knowing what you are talking about; speaking up and giving direction.

He summed up his talk by saying, "Don't be a piece of dead wood."

A family member can make a good volunteer was the theme of Baskin's talk. "It makes you more interested in things and makes you more interesting," he said.

He then added that the work should not be overdone, nor should the service be prompted by a desire to get away from the family. Instead, it should come from a desire to work for something the volunteer enjoys.

Experiences with concerts for young people were outlined by four panelists—Mrs. J. Fred Johnson of Amarillo, Mrs. Joe A. Young of Austin, Mrs. David Etzold of El Paso, and Bill Cormack, fine arts coordinator for Midland schools.

Mrs. Johnson described the concerts given for the children in Amarillo and explained how each member was involved. One concert entails dressing like the various instruments and telling a story about each one to the children.

Mrs. Young said Austin has started a young people's concert with the students going to the center where it is being presented. Last year's was considered a success with the large turnout, and 10 free family concerts are being given this year.

Cormack explained the program for the Midland schools, saying the Midland school district helps to pay for two concerts a year. This also includes bussing the children to the theater.

To get the children interested in the symphony, teachers are given information on the concert, its history, background on the composer and the instruments.

"The majority of the students never will see a symphony in their lifetime if they don't see one in school," he added.

Mrs. Etzold gave a history on children's concerts in El Paso, saying they were first started 40 years ago. They have gained sponsors, and the concert is given for students in grades four through eight. The school district also helps with printing programs and assigning seats.

Rewards and responsibilities of a board member were highlighted by Mrs. Earle M. Craig Jr., a trustee with the Trinity School in Midland, and Mrs. D. J. Sibley, president of the Austin Symphony Society.

Mrs. Craig suggested an orientation for new board members to acquaint them with board policies and its history. She also advised board members to attend conferences and seminars to gather ideas and to read local newspapers and national publications to keep up with current thinking and actions.

Board members are more open for suits today, she said, and they should know the Constitution, the law, court rulings and legislation. "Trustees must be aware of legal pitfalls," she warned. "It doesn't take much to be sued."

The symphony was described by Mrs. Sibley as a very abstract cause. "You hear it and see it one evening and then it's gone."

A board must consider three goals—presenting the finest quality music with the most superb performers; fulfilling an educational responsibility not only children but also to adults, and finding financial security.

"We are past the days of large endowments," she said. "Individuals do not give the large sums of money for endowments. Federal aid is our money and if we can get it back, let's get it."

A good symphony needs a board of directors, a dynamic conductor and effective management. The board must define what needs to be done. Mrs. Sibley also said it is the responsibility of the board to raise money, and that the director nor the staff should be asked to help raise money.

Giving their stories on ticket sales were Mrs. Andrew B. Carlsen/ of Amarillo, Mrs. Douglas Sanford of Lubbock, Mrs. Arch Black of San Angelo and Mrs. Noble Rumbo of Richardson.

The secret to San Angelo's success is "we get organized" said Mrs. Black. Plans are made several months ahead for the drives and involve all volunteers. She outlined how the people were contacted and added that "selling is hard, short and fast" with it being done in one week.

Mrs. Rumbo said her board is responsible for the drive and this includes coming up with the techniques to be used. One part of the publicity is printing brochures outlining the symphony's history.

The Lubbock symphony will be changing from an urban status to metropolitan when it moves to the new civic center this fall, said Mrs. Sanford.

This involves more concerts and ticket prices have risen. Since the average age of a Lubbock resident is 22, she said the volunteers are aiming at young married couples in their sales.

One technique they use is going to the junior highs, getting names of students who say they are interested in seeing the symphony, then calling the parents and saying their child wants to attend the symphony concerts. "This seems to sell season tickets pretty well," she added.

Mrs. Carlsen said the Amarillo group keeps a card file of possible season ticket holders and this file is used when the phone drive is taking place.

She advised that phones to be installed should be arranged for several months ahead of the drive, and added that a successful phone drive can fulfill a guild's goal.

Young athletes suffer from tears in muscles

NEW YORK (AP) — Young athletes engaged in track, football, basketball and other sports who complain of severe groin pain may be suffering from tears in their thigh muscles, say radiologists at New York Hospital.

The tearing injuries affect the pelvis and hips of athletes 17 to 23 years old in sports demanding wide-spreading of the legs, strenuous hip flexing, abrupt directional changes during running and severe contraction of the abdominal muscles. Sprinters, hurdlers and bowlers are also among those affected, say Dr. Robert Schneider and his associates, who recently reported on the x-ray appearance of the muscles involved.

They are called "adductors" and they help move the leg at the hip joint. They can sometimes avulse, or tear out from where they insert into the pelvic bones or leg if the leg is forced sideways or back too far when running, stretching or turning quickly and forcefully, Dr. Schneider explains.

Their five patients had experienced pain in the groin for one month to two years. X-ray studies showed changes in the bone at the point where the muscle or tendon had been ripped away. One athlete required surgery. The others were treated with local injection of corticosteroids, local anesthetics and restricted activity.

Midland's BSP chapters observe sorority's birth with awards luncheon

Beta Sigma Phi, a social, cultural and service organization for women, celebrated the 46th anniversary of its founding with a luncheon Saturday in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton. Midland's nine chapters participated in the special event.

Highlighting the luncheon was the presentation and awards to the nine chapter Girls-of-the Year announced by Sandy DeBord. Alice Williams announced and presented the special award of City Council Girl-of-the Year.

Special recognition was given Beta Delta Chapter which celebrated recently its 40th anniversary.

The anniversary of the sorority, the largest women's sorority in the world, also was observed in the 25 countries in which the organization's 250,000 members in over 12,000 chapters exist. The organization is non-academic, non-political and non-sectarian and the keynote to Beta Sigma Phi is friendship.

Chapters of five different degrees meet the growing needs of various ages and members are active in small chapter groups. Each chapter adapts the plans for social, civic and service and cultural activities to fit the interests of its members.

Internationally, the chapters have created several special funds including the International Loan Fund, through which members help one another; The International Endowment Fund, which has donated over one million dollars to cancer research, cystic fibrosis, homes for underprivileged children and many other causes; the Exemplar Fund, which helps to support Literacy Village in India, and a college scholarship fund for members or their sons or daughters.

Serving as co-chairmen for the Founders' Day activities were Jeaneal Wright and Peggy Brown. A summary of the past year's activities was given by Kay Blanck, president of Beta Sigma Phi City Council.

More home vegetable gardening expected

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Home vegetable growing will increase in 1977. That's the forecast by the National Garden Bureau on the basis of a recent conference at New Orleans.

"Several factors will conspire to cause shortages and high prices for commercially grown vegetables. We are positive that consumers will react by growing their own," said William L. Scott, president of the Bureau, a long-established home garden educational service.

Scott pointed to the drought in California and "the disastrous weather" in other parts of the country that reduced water supplies or caused flooding and delayed planting and harvesting schedules.

"If American consumers want to enjoy a wide selection of fresh vegetables at a reasonable cost this year, they'd better plan to grow much of their own needs," Scott said. "Considerably higher prices for fresh produce are inevitable; growers have to start seedlings of many vegetables in greenhouses; heating costs have doubled in some areas; increased costs for energy and labor used in cultivating, harvesting and packing commercial produce will further force prices up.

"Home food gardening is one of the most effective ways for consumers to fight rising prices," Scott added. "Best of all, they can enjoy themselves while saving money and can live better for eating lots of nutritious vegetables without having to worry about the cost."

Gardening beginners should contact their county agricultural agents for free bulletins about home food growing. Landless apartment dwellers should inquire about community garden sites.

Prices advance broadly

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices advanced broadly in the stock market today, following through on Monday's late upswing.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 3.57 at 934.79, after a 4.32 gain Monday.

Advances outnumbered declines by better than a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said buying was encouraged by the recent steady showing of the market in the face of signs that the Federal Reserve had begun to tighten credit a bit.

The report by Chairman Arthur Burns of the Fed today that the central bank had slightly reduced some of its targets for monetary expansion appeared to be in line with investors' expectations.

Texaco was the most active NYSE issue, up ⅛ at 27. A 100,000-share block traded at 26¾.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .22 to 54.15. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .13 at 112.93.

Volume on the NYSE stepped up to 9.74 million shares over the first two hours from 7.11 million in the comparable period Monday.

RCA, which projected record second quarter earnings, picked up ¼ to 30⅛ in active trading.

We congratulate Mrs. Tommie Strack on a job "well done" as chairwoman, and we're glad you'll be around another year to offer advise and condolence to our board. Congratulations to Mr. John Ochsner who will be the chairman next year, and to Mr. Byrne O'Neil—vice chairman, Mrs. Marilee Runyan—vice chairman, Mrs. Wanda Campbell—secretary and Mr. Keith Unruh—treasurer. AND we say WELCOME to Mrs. Carol Steele, Dr. Doug Brown, Dr. Jack Young, Mrs. John Mills, Mrs. John Greer, Gene Floyd and Keith Unruh, the new members of the Youth Center board.

Everything is starting to swing into action including our Rebel batmen! They traveled to Permian Saturday where they defeated those panthers 3-1. All the guys did a super job including Mike Richards and his great pitching job and Jeff Mathews great hit that brought in those last two runs. Tuesday our guys will travel to Abilene to play the eagles. Then Saturday we will play our cross-town rivals, those mangy Bulldogs. So we want to see everyone out there if not Tuesday, then for sure at our diamond Saturday!

REBELETTES: The Rebelette banquet last Tuesday night was a time to remember. It was really fantastic. We would like to tell the ladies who decorated the banquet a big THANK YOU! To the guys who put on the skit, you are really SUPER! We want you to know that we appreciate it very much. If you haven't heard, the new 1977-1978 Rebelette officers are Captain Julianne Dixon. Lieutenants: Robin Barron, Bitsy Rendall, Melinda Richardson, and Diana Scott. The Honor Squad was also announced for next year and they are: Karen Bonner, Darlyn Cross, Susan Dakil, Shauna Dwyer, Delynn Hendon, Krystal Koch, Nancy Kollaja, Debbie Kortheur, Kathy Largent, Karen Kuykendall, Lisa Libby, Becky Mouser, Dana Nipp, Anita Reagan, Madeira Shaner, Suzan Smith, Tami Sweet, Libby Watson, Aileen Whitten, and Becky Woods. Madeira Shaner was high point junior and Bonnie Atwater was honored as high point senior. Brenda Cary received an award for help in painting the "run-through" signs. We would like to extend our thanks to the speaker "Mr. Crowe." You were really GREAT! The officers of 1976-1977 would like to say to the Rebelettes, that we really enjoyed working with you this past year! You were a pleasure to work with. And to our sponsors Mrs. Sherrod and Mrs. Deffenbaugh, thanks bunches and we will love and miss ya!

Band News: Congratulations to our Rebel band. Our honors band won sweepstakes in UIL competition last Tuesday and the symphonic band placed 1st in concert and 2nd in sight reading. We are really proud of you. They will be leaving for Scottsdale, Ariz., this Thursday at 8 p.m. There the Rebel band will be competing in the Mountainside Music Festival. Good luck and we know you'll have lots of fun on your spring trip!

Also swinging into action will be our girls golf team. They will swing into state action. They will be leaving Tuesday so good luck and bring home the state title!

Our boys golf brought home a fourth in regionals this past weekend. Even though this isn't good enough to advance in the state playoffs. Our guys are still No. 1!

Spring Sports Banquet: The date has been set for the Spring Sports Banquet. It will be next Tuesday night in the Lee cafeteria. All other sports besides football will be honored there: baseball, golf, track, tennis, swimming, basketball, volleyball, and gymnastics. Outstanding Girl and Boy Athlete will be announced so all you lettermen be sure and be there!

Trackers Talk: Two of our Rebel tracksters traveled to Lubbock this weekend for the regional meet. David Skinner competed in the 880 and Jeff McGowan placed sixth in the shot put. Way to go guys!

Extra Extra Read All About It! The deadline for the Senior Wills will be May 6. There is a 100-word limit per person. Everyone be sure and listen to the date that these will go on sale. We are sure everyone will want to see what the Seniors have to say!

The Junior Class is selling T-shirts for each of the classes. They are five dollars and such a great buy so everyone be sure and get your class T-shirt!

Choo Choo: The Senior girls express really stayed on the fast moving train track. Saturday night the engineers of the Railroad moved on down the track. We hope everyone had a blast because we sure had fun planning it. We are really sorry though that it was shut down because of "certain individuals." But we're glad everyone could come. We would like to say that one of the flashing lights is missing and would you please return it if you know where it is. Thanks go to the hostess Sara Alexander, Alison Ware, Jane Hellinghausen, Jane Kauffman, Kandi Murphy, and Janis Sanders for staying up till the wee hours of the morning cleaning up the big mess! Thanks also goes to the Freemans for letting the hostesses have their breakfast in their new house! It was a night to remember! Choo-Choo-----

Guess what else the Junior Class is doing? they are planning the Junior-Senior Prom. It will be held May 21. Everybody start thinking about who you'll ask!

Midland cowgirl crowned as queen

ALPINE — Lezlye Sherman, a 15-year-old Midland cowgirl, was crowned regional queen at a recent Texas State High School Rodeo Association rodeo at Alpine.

Miss Sherman, a barrel racer and pole bender, also was one of two Midlanders to qualify for the association's state finals in mid-June at Hallettsville.

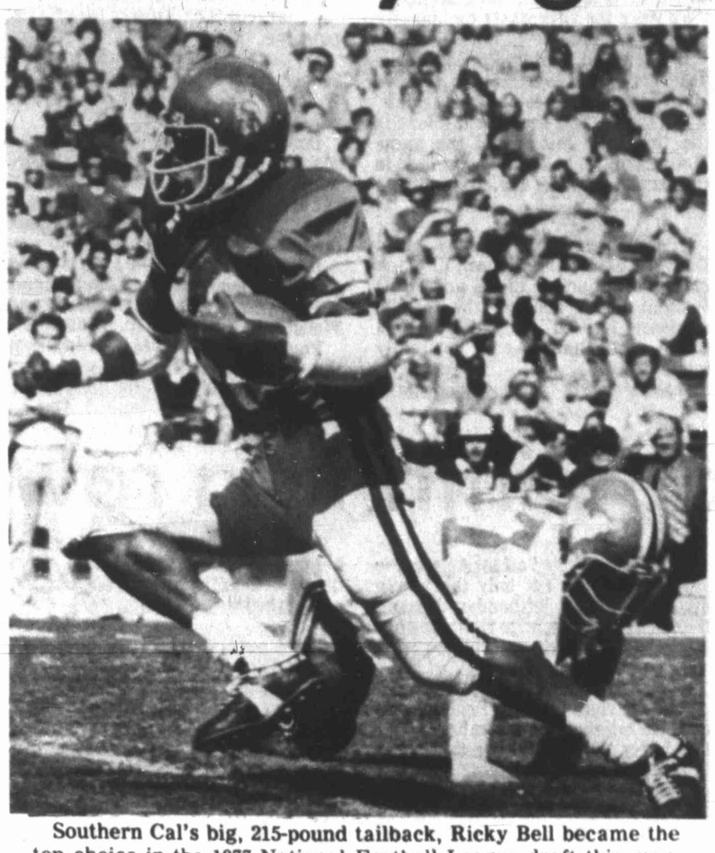
The other, Mark Fort, will compete in bull riding at the state finals. He is a student at Edison Freshman School.

The Sherman girl will be competing for state queen, as well as the championship in barrel racing and pole bending.

The West Texas region that Fort and Miss Sherman will be representing at the finals includes Midland, Odessa, Pecos, San Angelo, El Paso, Del Rio, Sonora and Alpine.

Area youth competing at the Alpine rodeo also included David Hanson, a sophomore at Midland High School, and Stormy Lovinggood, Tony Patton, Ricky Estoll, and Poyner, all of Odessa.

Cowboys get Dorsett; Bell top choice



Southern Cal's big, 215-pound tailback, Ricky Bell became the top choice in the 1977 National Football League draft this morning, when the Tampa Bay Bucaneers laid claim to the All-American. He is shown here in action last season against Washington State. (AP Laserphoto)

DALLAS (AP) — As expected, the Tampa Bay Bucaneers selected Ricky Bell, Southern California's 218-pound running back, as the number one pick in the National Football League's draft of college talent Tuesday, but it was the Dallas Cowboys who pulled off the shocker of the first round, by obtaining Heisman Trophy winner Tony Dorsett from the Seattle Seahawks in exchange for what Dallas General Manager Tex Schramm called "a big bundle of draft choices."

What the Cowboys did was switch their 14th first round pick for Seattle's plus three second round choices for Seattle's second choice in the NFL draft.

Cowboy personnel director Gil Brandt joyfully bounded into the press room with a jersey bearing Dorsett's number (33) on it and said: "Here is our draft choice."

A DELIGHTED Schramm said Dorsett is the most outstanding back since O. J. Simpson and "when you get a chance to get that type of player you make sacrifices."

The 5-11, 192-pound Dorsett gained more than 6,000 yards and three times was named to The Associated Press All-America first team.

Schramm said, "actually, it is really a good deal for Seattle because they needed a lot of quality players and they would get them from the picks that we had.

"Normally, we don't trade for a player, but it was just something we had to do. We couldn't let an opportunity like this go."

The Cowboys were desperately in need of a breakaway running back. The longest run from scrimmage by a Cowboy player was only 24 yards last year by Robert Newhouse.

The Cowboys obtained their 14th-place in the NFL draft by trading quarterback Clint Longley to San Diego last year. Dallas also collected three second place draft choices in various other transactions. But the key was getting the 14th choice because normally Dallas would have had to draft 24th.

In return for giving up its first-round pick, Seattle received Dallas' first-round choice—No. 14 overall—and three second-round selections, giving the Seahawks five picks in the first 54.

SPORTS

The Cincinnati Bengals, using a pick acquired from Buffalo in the Sherman White deal, went for Eddie Edwards, an AllAmerican defensive tackle from the University of Miami.

In rapid-fire succession, the New York Jets, who had hoped to get Dorsett, chose Marvin Powell, an offensive tackle from Southern California, and the New York Giants selected Powell's Southern Cal teammate, defensive tackle Gary Jeter.

That gave Southern Cal three selections in the first five overall picks, but it was well-known that the Trojans had more than a dozen seniors who were highly rated by the pro scouts.

THE ATLANTA Falcons, picking sixth, grabbed Warren Bryant, a long and lean offensive tackle from the University of Kentucky. The 6-foot-6, 249-pound Bryant was a starter since the fourth game of his freshman year.

The New Orleans Saints selected Joe Campbell, a defensive end from Maryland's Atlantic Coast Conference champions.

The eighth over-all choice was owned by Cincinnati in the Bill Bergey deal and the Bengals used it to take Wilson Whitley, a 268-pound defensive tackle from the University of Houston and winner of the Lombardi Trophy as the nation's No. 1 down lineman.

The Green Pay Packers selected Mike Butler, a 265-pound defensive tackle from the University of Kansas. The Packers, however, projected him as a defensive end.

The No. 10 pick was Kansas City's and the Chiefs selected Gary Green, a defensive back from Baylor.

The Houston Oilers picked Morris Towns, a 260-pound offensive tackle from Missouri, who held his own against Oklahoma's Leroy Selmon in a 1975 match-up. Selmon was last year's No. 1 NFL draft pick.

Powell, a 265-pound offensive tackle, is one of less than a dozen players who have ever been selected to the Pacific-8's all-conference team three years in a row since it was formed in 1959.

Jeter, who weighs 255 pounds, was Southern Cal's first four-year starter since the mid1940s. He became a regular in the third game of his freshman season and also made all-conference three times.

That gave Southern Cal three draftees among the first five, equaling the record set by Michigan State in 1967 when Bubba Smith, Clint Jones and George Webster were taken first, second and fifth, respectively.

Oklahoma State's Phillip Dokes, a 260-pound tackle, became the sixth defensive linemen in the first dozen selections when he was picked by the Buffalo Bills, using a choice acquired from Detroit in the J.D. Hill deal.

In addition, three offensive linemen had been chosen. It was known that this was a good year for senior linemen on both sides of the balls.

The other first-round picks at this point consisted of two running backs—Bell and Dorsett, the 1-2 over-all picks, and one defensive back.

The Miami Dolphins went for still another defensive lineman, A.J. Duhe, a baby-faced 250-pound tackle

Amarillo topples Cubs in 14, 8-7

AMARILLO—Craig Stimac's bloop single to short center field with two-out in the bottom of the 14th inning here Monday night lifted the Amarillo Gold Sox to an 8-7, three hour and 50 minute Texas League victory over the Midland Cubs.

Stimac's hit came with runners at the corner, and catcher Tony Castillo scored from third base to end the marathon contest.

The Amarillo run negated a Midland rally that had tied the contest in the ninth inning, 7-7. With two out in the ninth, Joe Hernandez legged out an infield single and Karl Pagel followed with a towering 430-foot homer, the longest hit in Amarillo this year.

The Gold Sox, however, brought Marty French out of the bullpen, and the Cubs were out of luck from that point on. French allowed only one Midland hit in 5 innings, and only two Midland rumners reached base over that span. French retired the last 10 Cubs he faced.

Midland relief pitcher Andy Muhlstock pitched seven innings of scoreless ball for the Cubs, allowing only five hits while striking out eight. Larry Groover replaced Muhlstock in the 14th to absorb the loss.

Midland's only lead in the game came in the first inning when the Cubs led 2-0 after two errors by Amarillo and a key double by Hernandez, which did not plate a run, but set runners up for a two-run throwing error by Castillo.

Amarillo scored two in the second inning, one in the fifth and three in the sixth for a 7-3 lead, which finally fell with Pagel's blast.

Shepard's auto still big news

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Athletic Director Harry Fouke said Monday the school "intends" to investigate the process by which All-America high school football player Darrell Shepard of Odessa obtained a $9,000 car.

The car was bought by Shepard, an Odessa High School star, and financed by a Brazoria County bank, 500 miles from Odessa. The car was picked up by Shepard on Feb. 18 two days after the quarterback had signed a letter of intent to play football for the University of Houston.

Up until a day before he signed with Houston, Shepard had reportedly told Texas University Coach Fred Akers that he would sign with the Longhorns.

"There is no doubt he has a car," Fouke said. "Now we have to find out if any National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) or Southwest Conference rules were violated. I have not said any rules have been violated. Anytime in your business or anybody else's that critical accusations are made, anybody would look into it. We certainly intend to do the same to see if there is any basis of fact."

Fouke said one of the things school officials would look into is the fact that the car was bought in Odessa, but was financed in Brazoria County near Houston.

Charles Marino, board chairman of the Bank of Brazoria, is a member of the Taxi Squad, a booster organization for the Houston football team.

Mrs. Rose Shepard, the player's mother, told the Dallas Times Herald that she bought the car for Darrell as a graduation present and obtained the Brazoria bank financing because she was turned down by banks in Odessa where she is financing two other automobiles.

Bank officials said they approved the loan because Shepard had a relative in the area who vouched for him.

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman, asked if he had recommended the bank to the Shepards, said: "The mother said she wanted to buy her son a car and couldn't get it financed in Odessa. She wanted to know where I could help in Houston. I said, 'if you're looking for a legitimate loan, yes'. I am sure there are 100 banks in Houston that would give car loans. I've known Charlie Marino for a long time. He's a good friend. I sure wouldn't recommend that she go to a T-sipper (University of Texas graduate) or someone else."

Rangers obtain Marshall

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves have sold Mike Marshall, the only relief pitcher ever to capture the Cy Young Award, to the Texas Rangers for the $20,000 waiver price.

San Antonio gives El Paso 8-6 beating

By The Associated Press

San Antonio handed El Paso only its third defeat of the season, 8-6, and Shreveport kept its winning ways in tact with a 5-3 10 inning decision over Tulsa Monday night in Texas League baseball action.

Rain washed out Jackson's scheduled encounter with Arkansas.

Five Tulsa errors contributed to the Oklahoma club's defeat although it tied the score on a two-run double by Blair Stouffer in the bottom of the ninth. Randy Brandt relieved in the ninth and claimed the mound victory for Shreveport. Four of Tulsa's six hits were contributed by Freeman Evens — a triple and three singles. Tommy Thomas singled, Harry Safewright doubled and Paul Djakonow singled for the winning Shreveport margin in the top of the 10th.

Portland eliminates Denver, 108-92

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A year ago, Johnny Davis was a little-known college junior and the Portland Trail Blazers had failed to make the National Basketball Association playoffs for the sixth straight season.

Monday night, Davis was the hero as the Blazers eliminated the Denver Nuggets from postseason play.

The 108-92 blitz was Portland's first lopsided victory in nine playoff games, and moves the Blazers into the Western Conference finals against the winner of the Golden State-Los Angeles series.

The conference finals begin Friday night, in Los Angeles if the Lakers advance and in Portland if the Warriors beat the Lakers.

The Warriors-Lakers set will be decided Wednesday night, when the teams meet at the Forum in Los Angeles in the seventh game of their series.

The home team has won each of the games so far, but the Warriors feel they can stop that trend. "When they've beaten us at the Forum, it's been like a velvet hammer," said Warriors forward Jamaal Wilkes. "They've beaten us, but not by much."

Meanwhile, Philadelphia and Houston enjoy a breather as they await the start of their series for the Eastern Conference championship. That series open Thursday night in Philadelphia.

"We were waiting to really play our game in this series, and this was it," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "We were the aggressors tonight. We weren't yesterday."

Denver had beaten Portland Sunday, 114-105 in overtime, to force a sixth game in the bestof-seven series.

But the Blazers shot to a 13-2 lead in the first four minutes of the game Monday night, built a 22-point lead in the second quarter, and coasted from there.

"Portland can beat anybody," said Denver Coach Larry Brown. "If Jack can give (Maurice) Lucas and (Bill) Walton a rest and get the terrific response he did tonight from his bench, the Blazers can be really tough."

Walton's eight-foot hook shot gave Portland a 60-38 lead with 2:08 left in the first half. The Blazers led 62-45 at halftime.

Twice the Blazers led by as many as 25 points, the last time at 92-67 on Walton's 10-foot bank shot with 8:31 remaining in the game.

Denver, behind the play of 7- foot-1 Marvin Webster, closed within 99-88 with 1:46 left in the game.

But Davis hit his second straight basket the short-lived threat disappeared.

David Thompson, who sank just six of 14 field goal tries, led the Nuggets with 17 points. Dan Issel added 14 and Webster 13, nine in the final quarter.

Portland, which hit 62 per cent from the field in the first half, wound up shooting 50 per cent for the game.

Hurting Braves drop ninth in a row

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Braves are on a streak—only it's going the wrong way.

"We are not going to panic," Manager Dave Bristol said Monday night after the Braves lost their ninth straight game, an 11-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

One can sympathize with Bristol. His team has not only been beaten of late, but embarrassed by lopsided scores on a lot of occasions.

"He isn't going with a full deck out there," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner, alluding to the absence of outfielder Gary Matthews, infielder Willie Montanez and pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dick Ruthven. "That's probably four of his top players."

Reds 3, Cardinals 2

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum singled home the tying run in the ninth inning and on the same play, Cesar Geronimo raced home on an error by St. Louis third baseman Hector Cruz to give Cincinnati its victory over the Cardinals.

Padres 4, Phillies 3

Bill Almon's run-scoring single with two out in the ninth inning lifted San Diego over Philadelphia and snapped an eight-game Padres' losing streak. Bobby Valentine had singled to lead off the inning and moved to second on a base hit by Gene Richards before scoring San Diego's winning run.

Rollie Fingers, 3-1, got the victory, despite giving up a run in the ninth inning. Ron Reed, 0-1, took the loss.

Dodgers 3, Mets 1

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 1

Rookie right-hander Brian Haas and two relief pitchers combined on a five-hitter to lead Milwaukee over Toronto. Haas, 1-1, gaining his first major league victory, was lifted after giving up his fourth hit with one out in the ninth inning. Bob McClure and Bill Castro both made appearances in the ninth, with McClure giving up one hit before being relieved by Castro, who retired the last two batters.

A's 2, Orioles 0

Rick Langford combined on a four-hitter with Dave Giusti to lead Oakland over Baltimore. Langford gave up only two hits in seven innings before giving way to Giusti, who blanked the Orioles on two hits the rest of the way.

The A's scored their runs in the first inning. Dick Allen laced a run-scoring single to left following one-out walks to Marty Perez and Mitchell Page. Then, after Earl Williams was intentionally walked to load the bases with two outs, May also walked Wayne Gross to force across the second run.

Royals 3, White Sox 1

Tom Poquette darted home on Lerrin LaGrow's bases loaded wild pitch in the eighth inning, and Amos Otis followed with a sacrifice fly to trigger Kansas City past Chicago. Dennis Leonard survived early-inning problems behind stellar defensive play, then checked the White Sox with a four-hitter to notch his second victory against one loss.

from Louisiana State. He hails from the Mississippi River community of Reserve, La., and speaks in the Cajun dialect of his home town.

The 14th pick belonged to Seattle, one of four picks in the first two rounds acquired from Dallas in the Dorsett trade. The selection originally belonged to San Diego, which sent it to Dallas a year ago for quarterback Clint Longley.

The Seahawks, after using most of the 15 minutes allotted for the first three rounds, chose Steve August, a 243-pound offensive guard from the University of Tulsa, who was known more for basketball than football in high school in Jeanette, Pa.

The Chicago Bears bypassed the available quarterbacks and selected Ted Albrecht, a 250 pound All-American offensive tackle from the University of California, who played five sports in high school and runs the 40 in 4.8.

The New England Patriots, with one of the many picks acquired from San Francisco in last year's trade for quarterback Jim Plunkett, grabbed Raymond Clayborn, a speedy defensive back from the University of Texas.

The Patriots used up 14 minutes and 34 seconds before selecting Clayborn, one of Texas' most versatile and best athletes. Clayborn played offense as a sophomore but stuck to defense the last two years. He's an excellent kick returner, too, who has been a member of the school's 440 and mile relay teams.

Robert Jackson, a 230-pound All-American from Texas A&M, became the first linebacker to be drafted when he was taken by the Cleveland Browns as the No. 17 pick.

The Denver Broncos, who recently acquired quarterback Craig Morton from the Giants, drafted Steve Schindler, a 260-pound guard from Boston College, to protect him.

The St. Louis Cardinals, using a choice obtained from Washington in a deal that sent Dave Butz to the Redskins, went for a quarterback, Missouri's Steve Pisarkiewicz. He was the first quarterback to go in the draft.

Pisarkiewicz is a 6-2, 205-pounder who missed a good portion of the 1976 season with an injury. As a junior, he set a school record against Oklahoma State by completing 20 of 27 passes for 371 yards. He also led Missouri to an openinggame upset of Alabama that season.

The Falcons had a second opening-round pick thanks to a deal in which they sent John Zook to St. Louis. They selected Wilson Faumuina, a 275-pound defensive tackle from San Jose State with surprising agility.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, selecting 21st, chose Robin Cole, a 226-pound outside linebacker from New Mexico. In college, Cole was listed as a defensive end on a five-man line.

Senate OKs jobs funds

By SPENCER RICH
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Senate approved a $20.4 billion special money bill Monday to fund President Carter's jobs and economic stimulus program over the next two years. The vote was 63 to 15.

"Nearly one million new jobs will be directly created by the funds appropriated by this bill and a considerable number will result from the multplier effect," the Appropriations Committee said in its report.

The bill now goes to conference with the House which has passed a similar measure carrying $23.3 billion. Most of the extra House money was to pay for part of the $50 tax rebate which President Carter recently has abandoned. The rebate funds will be dropped in conferences.

While most of the money in the bill was for the Carter stimulus program, some was for ongoing programs which weren't funded in regular appropriations bills last year. Here are the key provisions:

—$4 billion for construction of job-creating local public works projects in fiscal 1977-78, estimated to create about 300,000 jobs, a Carter stimulus request.

—$7.9 billion to expand the public service jobs program from 310,000 jobs to 725,000, another major request.

—$1.4 billion requested for special new job programs for youth, veterans and persons in need of new skills, and $59 million for community service employment for the elderly.

—$925 million for the remainder of this year for the existing "countercyclical" revenue-sharing program, which pays out money to states and local governments whenever unemployment tops 6 per cent. Also requested by Carter.

—$4.99 billion for the regular, ongoing revenue sharing program for the rest of fiscal 1977.

Sens. Harry Flood Byrd (Ind-Va.), Milton R. Young (R-N.D.) and others worried that the bill would spur inflation, with Byrd calling it "midguided policy ... virtually every sign indicates inflation is being stimulated."

The only major atempt to slash the bill failed, when the Senate rejected, 46 to 33, an amendment by Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.) to keep public services jobs at 310,000 and cut the funds from $7.9 billion to $4 billion.

Far from cutting the bill, the Senate added $300 million, not sought by the administration but proposed by Gaylord Nelson (D-Wis.) to pay off communities for sewage plant spending from 1966 to 1972, for which the federal government still hasn't reimbursed them. It also added $225 million for drought aid.

Schweiker contended the public service jobs program simply isn't working properly, and the money is often used to replace money the states and localities would have spent anyhow on similar jobs — instead of expanding employment.

Harrison A. Williams (D-N.J.), Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.), Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass.) and others said program changes are being made to prevent such "substitution."

Hush money charge false, attorney says

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Former President Nixon's lawyer Monday labeled as "false" reports published last weekend that Nixon discussed Watergate "hush money" with his special counsel, Charles W. Colson, on Jan. 8, 1973.

Herbert J. Miller, the Nixon lawyer, said in a letter to The Washington Post that records of the Watergate special prosecutor confirm that a second version of the transcript of the Nixon-Colson meeting shows there was no hush money discussion.

Spokesman for Watergate Special Prosecutor Charles Ruff Monday night denied Miller's claim. The spokesman would say only that there are at least two versions in transcript form of the particular Nixon-Colson meeting and that Ruff has not told anyone which of these, if either, conforms with records in his office.

Colson also said Monday that the version quoting Nixon inquiring about hush money is incorrect.

The quotation as reported in the press this weekend had Nixon telling Colson: " ... ---- hush money, uh, how are we going to; (unintelligible). How do we get this stuff (unintelligible) ... "

Colson said he had listened to the tape two years ago for many hours and the discussion "hush money" was not in the conversation. In addition, Colson said that two of his lawyers agreed with him that there was no "hush money" discussion.

Two official sources involved in preparing the tapes and who have listened to the Jan. 8, 1973, conversation however, said that the tape has a discussion of "hush money." One specifically recalled that Nixon had used the phrase "... ---- hush money."

The transcript obtained by The Washington Post and identified as the final version contains the discussion of "hush money."

Colson disagreed Monday saying that he was "absolutely certain I am right on this .... I listened to that tape for hours because it impugned my credibility." Colson always has maintained that there were no discussions of "hush money" with Nixon.

The passage in dispute is in a portion of a transcript that was not introduced in evidence at the Watergate trial but was used by prosecutors preparing the case and circulated to prospective defendants, witnesses and their lawyers.

The unreleased segments of the transcripts were obtained by The Washington Post a week ago from sources unconnected with the David Frost interview with Richard Nixon to be televised Wednesday.

Beckworth still jailed in McManus case

HOUSTON (AP) — an ex-convict remained jailed on $50,000 bond and a Baytown woman was free on $1,000 bond today on charges they provided the car capital murder defendant Vernon McManus was driving when arrested in Florida Saturday.

Charged are Betty Jean Bodiford Plaskett, 46, and Lester Beckworth, 43, both of the same address in Baytown. Donald Plaskett, the woman's husband also lives at the same address but was not charged in the case.

Donald Plaskett said police arrived at his apartment last week and demanded to know what happened to his car. "I shook my head, sighed and told them 'I guess it's stolen,'" Plaskett said.

McManus, charged in connection with the strangulation-beating deaths of a Baytown couple, was scheduled to go on trial April 25 but disappeared the day before the trial.

McManus was arrested at a motel in Jacksonville Beach. He waived extradition proceedings and was returned here where he remains jailed without bond.

Beckworth's bond was increased from $10,000 to $50,000 when prosecutors cited a former prison sentence for three grocery store robberies in Pasadena.

State Dist. Judge I.D. McMaster met with attorneys in the McManus case and rescheduled the start of trial for Monday.

McManus is charged with murder in the deaths of Paul and Mary Cantrell last July 25 in an alleged scheme to collect insurance money with their daughter, Paula Cantrell Derese, 26.

Mrs. Derese has pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of murder and is scheduled to testify for the state at McManus' trial. Mrs. Derese is awaiting sentencing.

Mondale to help British in Rhodesia transition

By JAMES GERSTENZANG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale will lend U.S. support to British efforts to smooth transition to a black majority government in Rhodesia when he meets later this month with South African Prime Minister John Vorster.

Mondale, in his role as the Carter administration's African expert, will not be taking any new American initiatives to Vienna where he is to meet with the South African leader, administration sources report.

Plans for the vice president's European trip, which will include stops in Yugoslavia, London, Spain and Portugal, were expected to be officially announced today.

The trip will be his second since taking office, a reflection of the increased role being given to the vice president, particularly in the foreign policy field.

President Carter in March assigned Mondale the task of overseeing development of U.S. policy toward Africa. The vice president has been spending time recently reviewing developments there with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young and Carter's national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Three days after Mondale and Carter were sworn in, Mondale embarked on a 10-day trip to Western Europe and Japan for talks with allies.

Mondale's next trip was described as still in the planning stage. There were no plans for him to go to Africa from Europe.

In Vienna, the vice president will hold strategy talks with Vorster, going over plans for, among other things, black rule in Rhodesia. They will also discuss Namibia, the predominantly black territory controlled by South Africa.

Vorster has said his government would not give in to pressure from the outside to push Rhodesia into accepting a joint Anglo-American plan for black majority rule.

The United States has supported the British effort, spearheaded by British Foreign Secretary David Owen, to arrange a Rhodesian conference. One source said Mondale's trip was to demonstrate U.S. backing for that effort.

David Aaron, Brzezinski's deputy and a former Mondale staff member, visited with Owen after the Briton returned from a tour of southern Africa. Vance will meet with Owen on Friday while accompanying Carter to the economic summit there. They will talk about prospects for a Rhodesian conference.

South Africa has been playing an important role in the Rhodesian situation. Rhodesia is economically dependent on South Africa and R.F. Bothe, formerly the South African ambassador here and now South Africa's foreign minister, has been working with the Carter administration.

Governor to agree

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Women in Connecticut bars have been breaking the law for years, just by being there, but that's probably about to change.

The state legislature approved Thursday a bill that would change a phrase in the law that prohibits minors, drunkards and women from "loitering" in bars.

The minors and drunkards would still be banned.

The section on women has not been enforced for decades, and the governor, who must sign the bill, is not expected to object. She's Democrat Ella Grasso.

Lee foreign language festival slated

Foreign foods, games, crafts and swimming will be featured at the sixth annual foreign language festival from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday at Midland Lee High School.

The event is sponsored by secondary school foreign language teachers. Its purpose is to give foreign language students an opportunity to learn about the culture of other countries and to raise money for foreign language clubs.

Food booth, run by French, German, Latin and Spanish students, will feature foreign and American food. Games, skits and crafts will be located on the patio, and swimming is available for 50 cents. The event is open to the public.

HILLS & HOMES

Reid Brannon, Assc. 684-5588

Reid is the son of Ed and Sue Brannon, respected names as designer-builders of fine custom homes. He has the artistic and technical background in the industry and the personal intergrity necessary for a people-oriented service. He will benefit from my teaching, help & experience in every deal. We solicit your listing. As members of MLS, you will get full coverage and cannot get better representation.

I specialize in "Hard Cases." Sixteen years experience as a dealer in Midland home sales and Hill Country land sales qualifies me to give you the extra help you need during these changing economics times. Real Estate is the basis of all prosperity and everyone needs to invest. I can help you to buy your first home or to trade a house, an apartment house or a ranch. It is the service that motivates me and I am interested in helping you make the right investment for you. We own several top quality rental homes here, beautifully decorated and maintained for discriminating families. They are about 30,000 to 75,000 and we screen you. Call to be put on our list.

I am in the market to buy an office. If you have an older home in "O" or commercial zone, call. We are also interested in houses or apartments or lots.

Trading has tax and other advantages. Besides Midland homes we have Hill Country land: a beautiful 200 acre riverfront stock farm near Menard for $200,000; a 150 acre stock farm near Junction with a new luxury home: 3480 Sq. ft., 4 br., 4 bath, 2 fireplaces. Native stone, shake shingle roof, it's beautiful; a 100 acre maize and cotton farm near Corpus. We have extensive knowledge of Menard-Mason and Junction-Kerriville properties and cooperate with any broker anywhere. Let us know your Needs!
