Annual Cancer Crusade Slated Through April

The American Cancer Society will hold its annual Crusade in Collingsworth County during the month of April. Plans were announced today by Mrs. L.M. Bartlett, this year's Cancer Crusade Chairman, to raise $1,500.00 in Collingsworth County this year.

Helping with the Crusade this year are Mrs. L.M. Bartlett and Mrs. Thayne Amonett, co-chairman. Mrs. Bartlett said that the money raised will go to support Research, Public Education, and Service thru the local and State American Cancer Society organization. She reminded all organizations that films and other educational programs are available, free of charge, to anyone who is interested.

Loan of hospital equipment and numerous comfort items are also available to cancer patients, without charge, thru the Society. A phone call or letter, with physician's approval, is all that's necessary to obtain any services offered by the Society. Contact locally Mrs. L.M. Bartlett, or write American Cancer Society, 804 Bryan, Room 207, Amarillo, Texas 79106.

Last year Collingsworth County raised $1,211.30. Texas is a leader in Cancer research and for every $1.00 contributed in Texas, the Society spends $1.10 to $1.14 in the state. The extra coming from the National Societies support in research.

Returns from this investment have enabled the cure rate of cancer to rise from 1 in 3 to 1 in 2, or 50% in the last 2 years. Mrs. Bartlett said that the key to cancer cure is Early Detection and knowledge of cancer's Seven Warning Signals.

Lighting Fails, Revival Goes On

All main electrical lines leading into First Baptist Church burned off last week, leaving it to conduct revival services in semi-light, the Rev. Ted Savage pastor, reported.

First lights failed about the time the meeting opened Sunday, March 18. By Thursday, all sanctuary lights were out, leaving burning only those over the pulpit.

Revival services went on as usual, and there was no drop in attendance, although the crowd did sit nearer the front of the church, the pastor said.

Re-wiring was completed in the early hours Sunday, March 25, the closing day of the services, by Dick Pendleton and Mike Savage.

Area Artists Visit Group of Museums

Students from Dord Fitz Wellington art class were among the 76 persons from over the Panhandle and Western Oklahoma who recently visited three of the nation's major art museums.

Traveling in two chartered buses, they saw the newly opened Kimbell Art Museum, Amon Carter Museum and Ft. Worth Art Center in that city, then went on to Dallas to view collections in the Dallas Art Museum.

Going from Wellington were Mr. and Mrs. John Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sullivan, Miss Bonnie Willis, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Toft of Childress, art students, and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Henard and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Preston of Childress.

The Kimbell museum treasures are housed in the handsome and strikingly contemporary structure designed by Louis I. Kahn. As he enters this museum, the visitor comes face to face with a sample of the museum's extensive collection of 18th Century English paintings by artists that include Romney, Reynolds, Gainsborough, and others with whom the non-art student feels comfortable.

But there are also priceless

First Methodist to Hear Center Worker

Miss Barbara Sommerville, director of Guadalupe Center in Lubbock, will be the speaker at the morning hour of worship at First United Methodist Church, according to Rev. Jim Boswell, pastor.

Saturday, March 31, the Officers for the United Methodist Women were installed by Mrs. Jack Davis, the Conference President of the Wesleyan Service Guild, and a member of this local church. The two Women's organizations in the United Methodist Church, the Women's Society of Christian Service and the Wesleyan Service Guild have joined creating a new organization now known as the United Methodist Women.

As a part of the celebration of this event and in honor of the great work that has been done by the organizations, the women have invited Miss Sommerville to be their guest and speak at the morning worship hour. She was the Conference Director of Youth for several years in the Northwest Texas Conference, but in recent years has been the Director of the Guadalupe Center in Lubbock.

"This has grown during her leadership and the work has become well known in this area. It will be a great blessing to hear 'first hand' concerning the Center. The entire membership extends to everyone a 'welcome' to hear Barbara," Rev. Boswell said.

New Farming Methods Free Marginal Land

COLLEGE STATION — Vast acreages of marginal farmland once devoted to cotton production are being freed by modern agricultural technology for other uses which contribute to a better environment, says Dr. John E. Hutchinson, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Hutchinson, co-chairman of a statewide committee devoted to increasing both cotton volume and quality, the Texas Cotton Task Force, said the increased yield of a half bale an acre since 1940 is releasing nearly 10 million acres in the U.S. formerly devoted to growing cotton to other uses for which it is better suited.

In the period 1968-70 U.S. cotton farmers produced an average of 10,300,000 bales per year on 10,700,000 acres of land, an average of nearly a bale an acre (.96 of a bale to be precise.)

Thirty years ago they were producing only a half bale to the acre. Which means, Hutchinson pointed out, that to produce the cotton needed today at 1938-40 yields would have required nearly twice as much land — 20,600,000 acres.

"In other words," he explained, "since World War II, new cotton production technology has made a gift of 9,900,

000 acres of marginal cottonland to the United States for diversion to pastures, forests or recreational uses to which it is better suited.

"And this is only one crop," he quickly noted. "This kind of soaring yield increase is going on across nearly the whole spectrum of farm commodities, not just cotton."

Some have been little short of phenomenal.

In 40 years grain corn production has soared from 28.4 bushels per acre to 78; wheat has climbed from 14.2 bushels in 1940 to 30.1 today; potatoes from 75.7 hundredweight an acre to 221; tobacco from 947 pounds to 2,008 pounds an acre; and grain sorghum from 13 bushels to almost 53, a 307 per cent rise.

The annual saving in acreage from all crops in 1968-70 through advanced agriculture technology as compared to 1938-40 was about 290,000, 000 acres, an area equivalent to the total cropland in the U.S. in 1970.

"Thus, for each acre tilled today another acre is available for optional uses because of advances in crop production technology," Hutchinson commented.

Director Hutchinson said the yield revolution could be largely attributed to five production factors: farm mechanization, genetically improved varieties and hybrids, improved management practices, better plant nutrition and control of damaging pests.

Other influences, he noted, include storage, transportation facilities, purchasing power, price stabilization policies and incentive.

"Nothing discourages a grower from risking the capital required for high yield more than the specter of low prices as a result of market glut at harvest time," he pointed out.

March 31 Last Day to Register All Vehicles

For all practical purposes, Saturday (March 31) will be the last day to register motor vehicles for 1973, Robert W. Townsley, director of the Motor Vehicle Division of the Texas Highway Department, said today.

Townsley noted that the law set the final registration date as April 1, which this year falls on Sunday when county tax offices are closed.

The 1973 license plates must be displayed on vehicles registered in Texas starting Monday, April 2. So they must be acquired not later than Saturday, March 31, to avoid penalty.

Townsley said many county tax officers had expressed concern that the pace of registration this year has slowed markedly. "It looks as if a great many vehicle owners are putting registration off to the last minute," he said.

Even though the easy, computerized registration system has speeded the registration process in the last few years, if too many owners wait until the last minute, long waits in long lines at county tax offices and substations seem inevitable.

Born at Chinero, he attended the University of Oklahoma. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M.H. Teutsch of Hollis.

Baptist Church Slates Film On April 4

For Pete's Sake!, a film credited as "unique in its capacity to reach out to meet the problems of people," will be shown on Wednesday, April 4, at First Baptist Church, 15th and Arlington Street.

The full-length comedy-drama, will be shown once beginning at 7:30 p.m., and is open to the public at no admission charge.

Filmed entirely on location in Denver and the Colorado Rockies, "For Pete's Sake" is the story of Pete Harper, a family man and service station owner, who is knocked flat by unexpected problems, but finds the strength to stand up again, to face life anew, said Rev. Ted Savage.

"For Pete's Sake!" has been seen nationwide by over three million persons in theatre premieres, and has been cited by one film critic as "the perfect mixture -- it's drama at its boldest, comedy at its lightest, and action at its liveliest. "For Pete's Sake" is a family film, not only because it is good family entertainment, but because through its storyline, families can see and feel exactly what is needed to develop deeper understanding and build stronger ties," explained the pastor.

"For Pete's Sake!" stars Robert Sampson, who also starred in "The Restless One," Pippa Scott, as Pete's wife, Marge, is well-known for her Broadway appearances and numerous television roles. John Milford and Sam Groom are both familiar to television audiences.

A cordial invitation is extended to all families of the community by Rev. Ted Savage, who has made arrangements for this special showing of "For Pete's Sake!"

United Methodist Women Emerges In Two-Day Period of Celebration

The two women's organizations of First United Methodist Church will become one in a two-day period of celebration Saturday and Sunday, March 31, and April 1.

The forming of one new organization, United Methodist Women, is church wide, the General Conference of the United Methodist Church having voted its approval in the summer of 1972 at Atlanta, Georgia.

The Wesleyan Service Guild and the older Women's Society of Christian Service will meet together for a brunch Saturday morning. During the business session, officers of United Methodist Women will be elected, and installed.

Mrs. Jack Davis, Northwest Texas Conference Guild chairman, will preside at the pledge service and installation.

The brunch will be at 9:30 a.m., and it is for all women of First United Methodist Church, it was pointed out. It will last about an hour and a half.

Mrs. Cecil Masten is the current president of the Women's Society of Christian Service, while Mrs. Jim Boswell heads the Wesleyan Service Guild.

The climax to this Celebration will come Sunday morning, when Miss Barbara Somerville, director of Guadalupe Center in Lubbock, is the speaker at the morning worship service.

Miss Somerville began her work with the Methodist Church as a young woman, and much of it has been concerned with its work among youth. She is tentatively scheduled to tell of her career in the church and of her work at Guadalupe Center.

The thinking behind the formation of one organization from the two presently existing in the Methodist Church goes back a number of years, but most of the action has come in the last two or three years. The older of the organizations, the Women's Society of Christian Service, grew out of the Women's Missionary Society, a pioneer in women's church organizations. The name change to Woman's Society of Christian Service indicated the enlarged scope of the society's work. With the union of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist and Methodist Protestant Church, again there was a slight change of name: from Woman's Society to Women's Society.

The Wesleyan Service Guild was organized especially to serve the need of working women, who could not attend the day-time services of the older group. Although sessions are held predominately in the evening, the Guild has drawn membership from both working and non-working groups.

Palo Duro Canyon Is Texas Spectacular

CANYON - When famed cattle baron Charles Goodnight brought his herd over a little rise in the Texas Panhandle in the 1870s, he almost had a stampede on his hands.

The cattle were suddenly confronted by Palo Duro Canyon, and they panicked. In fact, the mules pulling the chuck wagon were so frightened that they nearly dumped the entire wagon, cook and all, into the 1,000 foot canyon.

Palo Duro Canyon, located 12 miles east of the City of Canyon, is indeed a spectacular site to behold after crossing mile after mile of the monotonous rolling plains of the Texas Panhandle.

The canyon is 120 miles long and is 40 miles wide at its mouth. Because of the canyon's breathtaking scenery and its colorful history, more than 15,000 acres of it have been made into a state park.

The canyon has been in the making for 90 million years through the action of wind and water on rock. At least four geologic ages or eras are exposed by the canyon's eroded formations.

Palo Duro, a Spanish term meaning "hard wood," refers to the canyon's supply of strong cedar (juniper) brush from which the Indians made their arrows.

Probably the first European to visit Palo Duro Canyon was Francisco Vasquez de Coronado, who is generally believed to have been in the canyon in 1541.

The canyon was one of the last strongholds of the warlike Great Plains Indians until after 1874 when General Ranald MacKenzie defeated a large force of marauding Comanche Indians in the canyon, making it safe for permanent Anglo-American settlement.

The first rancher in Palo Duro Canyon was Goodnight, who, in partnership with John Adair of England, started the first cattle ranch in the canyon as well as the first ranch in the Texas Panhandle, the famous JA Ranch which is still in operation in part of the canyon.

The extraordinary terrain of the canyon is reason enough to visit Palo Duro Canyon State Park. It is, after all, a geological wonder.

But there is also a man-made attraction which has drawn visitors from all over the world. It is the outdoor stage production of "TEXAS", a musical drama depicting the early settlement of the canyon area.

"TEXAS" is held in an outdoor amphitheater of natural stone. It is a drama of man's struggle with the elements while trying to settle the untamed portions of central and northern Texas. Since its beginning in 1961, success of the drama has been as spectacular as the country and history on which the story is based.

Pulitzer Prize Winner Paul Green wrote the script, and the music was scored by Hollywood composer Isaac Van Grove. Some of the cast are students, some are housewives and many of the feature performers have professional backgrounds.

Lights playing against rugged canyon walls and special sound effects are used to heighten the drama's excitement. On stage a panorama of Panhandle history unfolds as settlers, cowboys and Indians play out the day-to-day conflicts of that colorful era.

A prairie fire rages and the settlers struggle against searing winds, dust storms and

INCOME TAX RETURNS RECORDS

COLLEGE STATION - Keep a copy of that income tax return and all supporting records.

Lynn Bourland, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, warned that supporting information will be necessary in case of an Internal Revenue Service (IRS) inquiry.

"Otherwise, information may be inaccurate, and the taxpayer may be penalized.

"Tax laws place the burden of proof on the individual to prove his returns are correct," the specialist emphasized.

"Generally, additional tax can be assessed only up to three years after the tax return date of each year, so returns and supporting documents should be kept at least that long.

"However, if a taxpayer fails to report one-fourth of his gross income for any year, the IRS can then assess tax any time up to six years after the return was due.

"In case of a fraudulent return - or one that wasn't filed - the IRS can assess and collect tax at any time, even years later," Miss Bourland said.

Supporting records and information have several other uses.

"For example, when trading a business car or selling a business or home, a taxpayer blizzards. Simple pleasures, such as hoedowns, and "plum pickens," brighten the hard existence.

"TEXAS" is beginning its 12th year at the amphitheater. Performances this year begin June 22 and run every day except Sunday through Aug. 26.

needs information from tax records to prove the cost based on depreciation and improvements."

"Also, an individual can lose benefits from tax options - such as income averaging - if he doesn't have tax returns from the past four years.

"If the taxpayer needs a copy of his return, he can get one for a small charge from the IRS. However, they don't keep old returns indefinitely.

"Supporting records for income deductions are difficult to replace," the specialist concluded.

"Although most banks can furnish copies of statements and some businesses can furnish copies of statements or receipts, certain records are not replaceable."

Guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.P. Wyrick during the week end were her sisters, Mrs. R.B. Parkinson of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. H.I. Lynn of Lubbock.

Mr. and Mrs. Olan Moore of Lubbock spent the week end with their parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred Covey and Mr. and Mrs. D.C. Thomason.

Know Veterans Benefits, Wives Children Urged

According to J.R. Bowen, Jr., Veterans Service Officer for Collingsworth County, thousands of wives and children of veterans and servicemen are failing to take advantage of benefits and programs provided by Congress, despite intensive efforts by VA to inform each beneficiary.

Educational benefits for wives, widows and children of veterans whose total permanent disabilities, or deaths, were service-connected was cited by VA officials as one example of the many benefits available. Also eligible for educational benefits are wives and children of servicemen missing in action (MIA) or prisoners of war (POW) for more than 90 days. VA loans are available to wives of POWs and MIAs and to unmarried widows of veterans and servicemen whose deaths were service-connected.

Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) is paid by VA to widows and children if the veteran's death was service connected. Pension is paid if death was non-service-connected. In certain cases, parents may be eligible for DIC checks. Still another benefit, an additional monthly aid and attendance payment of $55 is paid to eligible wives, widows and parents who are patients in nursing homes, helpless or blind, or so nearly helpless or blind that regular assistance from another person is required.

Most VA benefits for dependents and survivors of veterans are based on at least 90 days of military service. For post-Korea and Vietnam Era veterans, at least 181 days in service is required for GI home loans and educational benefits entitlement.

Full details of these and other benefits are available from any VA office or the local veterans service officer.

ERTS Data Focuses on High Plains Area

West Lafayette, Ind. -- The Lubbock area and the High Plains have become the focus of congressional attention in Washington as a result of a Purdue University scientist's description of a project involving the 10-county Lubbock region and data obtained from it via NASA's Earth Resources Technology Satellite (ERTS).

Marion F. Baumgardner, Purdue associate professor of agronomy and a project leader at Purdue's Laboratory for the Applications of Remote Sensing (LARS), outlined the Lubbock Project for members of the House Science and Astronautics Committee, NASA Administrator James C. Fletcher, and representatives of the federal Office of Management and Budget, at a recent scientific meeting at the capital.

Baumgardner's project comprises the interpretation and analysis of data obtained over the High Plains by the satellite. Specifically, he and colleagues from LARS are developing techniques that will allow them to interpret the data to gain information on the distribution of soils, vegetation and water resources. The work reported on last week covered Lynn County.

In discussing the project, Prof. Baumgardner praised the cooperation he had received from agriculturalists throughout the area. "Although the system we are working on will eventually be more efficient and economical than direct visual examination by ground observers, it will never replace man. Observations gathered by men in the field are what the interpretation of satellite data is based on and the success of our preliminary work can be attributed in large part to the tremendous help of our volunteer ground observers," he declared.

Lynn County volunteers include Agricultural Extension Agent William B. Griffin, Tahoka; Elbert Crawford, Tom Mason and Howard Moore, also of Tahoka; Lit H. Moore and Jiggs Swann of Wilson; and Harold T. Barrett of O'Donnell.

Early findings from the analysis indicate that the techniques developed will be significant and useful. "Preliminary results," concludes Prof. Baumgardner, "suggest that with the techniques we have refined, scientists should be able to identify drought conditions, crops damaged by hailstorms, and areas of active wind erosion."

Collingsworth County FARM NEWS

By Don Reeves
County Agricultural Agent

Warmer Weather means growing lawns and gardens. It also means insect pests on the scene.

However, instead of applying a pesticide at the first sign of insect activity, use care in determining whether or not the pests are causing damage. Indiscriminate use of pesticides can be dangerous as well as expensive.

Once the need for a pesticide is determined, make sure you obtain the right material for the particular insect species. The county Extension office can offer assistance in identifying insects and in outlining a control program.

Once you know what insect you're trying to control and obtain the correct pesticide container. Then use the material as directed, and don't add or apply a dab more for good measure.

Pesticide will do only what they are prescribed for, so don't expect miracles.

Apply pesticides in the early morning or evening when there is little wind. Avoid spraying when temperatures are high or when plants are suffering from water lack. Spray a day or two after a thorough watering, but do not spray if leaves are wet.

Keep pesticides in their original containers and store them in a locked cabinet or room.

Dispose of empty containers by burying them where they won't contaminate the water supply. Or wrap them in newspaper, crush them and place with other garbage. Do not burn pressurized cans.

Pesticide safety is just a matter of common sense.

THE WELLINGTON (TEXAS) LEADER
Thursday, March 29, 1973

AUSTIN, Tex. -- Early senate approval was forecast by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby for HB 3 to strengthen the open meetings law.

The bill was cleared by a criminal matters sub-committee of the Jurisprudence Committee last week.

The shield bill (HB 10) to protect newsmen from forced disclosure of information sources was due consideration in the criminal matters sub-committee this week. It will be expanded to include definitions contained in a U.S. Senate bill and probably amended to provide for a State Supreme Court mandamus proceeding to compel disclosure of information sources under certain cases, according to Senate sponsor, Sen. Chet Brooks of Pasadena.

Hearing was delayed until April 10 on HB 6 to broaden accessibility of information on government records pending a Legislative Budget Board estimate on the cost of the act to the state.

TAX BILL SEEN -- Legislators will be forced to write a new tax bill, due to demands of higher education and welfare, the chairman of an interim House Revenue and Tax Committee maintain.

If the regular session manages to get by with no tax bill, lawmakers will be called into special session to pass one, predicted Rep. Don Cavness of Austin. Rep. Joe Wyatt of Bloomington, co-chairman of the Committee, shared the gloomy forecast, adding that federal welfare guidelines will cost the state an extra $100 million a year.

Cavness also cited the estimated $28 million a year cost of an adult education bill and a $13 million-cost measure to insure teachers a duty-free lunch hour, plus the multi-million dollar bilingual education bill.

Both lawmakers also referred to the federal case involving validity of the state's method of financing public school education.

Texas, the Committee found ranks 40th among 50 states in tax load but has among the most regressive tax systems. The Committee recommended a permanent revenue and tax staff, increased use of bond income for appropriation, use of private collection attorneys and a monthly reporting option.

18-YEAR-OLD RIGHTS APPROVED -- Full rights of maturity for 18-20 year olds received tentative senate approval by a 19-11 vote.

The Senate also passed legislation to slow creation of new state-supported colleges by requiring prior approval of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

Still later, senators voted to extend collective bargaining rights (but not the right to strike) to policemen and firemen. Local governing bodies would have an option to grant the rights or order elections on the issue.

CRIME RATE DOWN -- Major crimes are on the decline in Texas, according to a new Department of Public Safety report.

Col. Wilson E. Speir, DPS director, said the number of crimes last year was 2.2 per cent below 1971 -- the first measurable decline since 1954.

Translated into crime rates, the 1972 figure was six per cent below the 1971 rate per 100,000 population.

The decrease, Speir said, was only the fourth since DPS began compiling its Texas Crime Report 30 years ago. Decreases were noted in

Dear Editor:

I see where the Montana house of representatives has passed a resolution declaring taxpayers and small businessmen to be endangered species, like coyotes, eagles and whooping cranes.

Which shows the Montana lawmakers are in tune with life as it really is.

And they can see that as we are headed now, everybody eventually will be on relief, in congress, or subsisting on other forms of public upkeep and the taxpayer caste will be extinct.

Service Clubs Do Work Out Of Proportion to Numbers

The county's civic clubs take just pride in the fellowship they provide their members. They are equally proud of, but say much less about, their service they render their communities and to individuals.

Taken together, this would be impressive out of all proportion to the number of people involved. Oldest of the organizations, Kiwanis, is currently involved in the Wellington scouting program, both boys and girls. There is, as well, their work with needy, especially needy children.

Rotary long has worked on projects at the hospital. The three Lions Clubs, Samnorwood, Quail, and Wellington, join other clubs in sponsoring the High Plains Eye Bank, Lions Crippled Children's Camp, to which local children have gone, as well as work in their own communities.

All winter, members of the three Wellington Clubs have put on work clothes and volunteered their abilities with hammer and saw to help put up the Volunteer Ambulance Service garage.

It is to be noted that all of these organizations get a great deal of pleasure out of their service activities. And they are the first to note that there is a need for more groups like themselves . . . to serve the community.

Speeding the Process

One of the country's largest timber companies has announced the inauguration of the planting of more new trees in the company's forest lands than have ever been planted before in a single year by any private forestry organization. More than 100 million seedlings — the equivalent of one tree for every two persons in the United States — will be planted during 1973.

The trees will be planted in widely-scattered areas of the country, from Washington and Oregon to Arkansas and Mississippi. An official of the company said, "This massive regeneration effort is exemplary of the effort being made by industry to fully utilize the productivity of its lands and insure that there will always be timber for our use. This single company is investing about $28 million in its forest management program for 1973 to help ensure tomorrow's wood supply. Its intensified program can be gained from the fact that more than 200 million tons of wood products are consumed in the United States each year — about twice the amount of steel produced in the U.S. annually. Each year every American will require the equivalent of one 100-foot tree, or about one ton of wood. Man cannot make a tree, but he can help God speed the process.

murders, aggravated assaults and thefts. Small increases were observed in rapes, robberies and auto thefts — with a larger increase in the burglary category.

The urban crime rate overall was down 5.7 per cent, with the rural rate off 5.8 per cent.

Crime clearance rates remained at 26 per cent. Clearance rate for murder improved from 86 per cent to 89 per cent, with further improvements noted in robberies, aggravated assaults, and thefts.

Many factors are responsible, said Speir.

The DPS chief cited improved law enforcement effectiveness through training, education, more personnel and better facilities, as well as improvements in other parts of the criminal justice system and "a growing awareness and concern on the part of the public that crime must be impeded."

The crime statistics break down to one major crime every minute, a murder every five and a quarter hours, a rape every three hours and 45 minutes and a robbery every half hour.

APPOINTMENTS -- Former State Rep. Bill Bass of Canton was named to the new State Constitutional Revision Commission to replace Arlington Mayor Tom Vandergriff. A second vacancy occurred when Dallas attorney-banker Harry Shuford resigned.

SHORT SNORTS -- Gov. Dolph Briscoe submitted as emergencies 14 bills with creation of water districts and their operations.

The House passed 138-0 a bill to restrict influence on speakership elections.

The House appropriations committee chairman has proposed a four-months' welfare budget until uncertain cost factors are decided.

A House-passed comparative negligence bill has received approval of the Senate Jurisprudence Committee.

The Court of Criminal Appeals says it has the heaviest work load of any appellate court in the U.S. and is eight to nine months behind in its docket.

Cattle Feedlots Do Not Cause Pollution Problem

COLLEGE STATION -- Are cattle feedlots a major contributor to America's growing pollution problem?

The answer is an emphatic "NO!" in the opinions of Dr. Myron Paine and Dr. John Sweeten, who both have a good understanding of the situation.

Paine is located at Oklahoma State University and is a regional Extension Service feedlot waste management specialist serving a six-state area of the Southern Great Plains. Sweeten is an agricultural engineer in animal waste management for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

With some 25.5 million cattle fed in lots across the nation annually, and each animal producing about a ton of manure, the potential for waste management problems is there, admit the two engineers. But one very real reason why a mammoth problem has not been created is simply good public relations on the part of the operators.

Most operators keep the manure moved out as a matter of animal health. After they move out a load of cattle, they clean the pen. However, this soon results in a huge pile of manure, and here is the problem.

According to the specialists, most feedlot operators have solved this problem by developing close working relationships with local farmers.

They have convinced farmers to take the manure on the basis that it is valuable fertilizer. Some farmers are even paying as much as $2 a ton. But in areas where the farmers are not convinced of the fertilizer value, private deals to move the manure have been worked out in many ways.

Another reason the pollution potential of feedlots has not been reached and unlikely ever will is that only a small percentage -- research shows only about 2 percent -- of the solids reach a stream, explain Paine and Sweeten.

"If that total of 25.5 million tons produced annually went directly into a sewage system -- as do human wastes -- the effect would be devastating. But actually, one human contributes 10 times as much toward water pollution as one feedlot animal."

The specialists feel conflicting and misleading statements have posed an out-of-focus view of feedlots in the overall ecology picture.

"If all the animal wastes from one animal fell directly into a stream, that one animal would equal 16 persons in pollution contribution. But the actual fact is that manure falls on land and it's 85 percent water. This evaporates and the only way the manure gets into public waters is in case of a rainfall in excess of one inch. Then, we might get runoff into the stream."

Most of the Southern Great Plains states now have laws requiring feedlots to have a system of runoff retention structures. About 90 percent of the cattle fed in Oklahoma are in lots that are in compliance with the law, and some 95 percent of Texas feedlots with a capacity of 1,000 head or more are in compliance or moving toward compliance.

On the federal level, guidelines are being established by the Environmental Protection Agency relating to feedlot pollution protection. A new federal water quality law will prohibit the discharge of pollutants into water courses by 1985.

All in all, Paine and Sweeten feel the feedlot operators of the Great Plains are doing a good job of housekeeping. "They're producing beef, not pollution."

DOWN WITH BRUSH

The brush problem of mesquite has been hampering farmers and ranchers in Collingsworth County for many, many years. Where there is a problem, a solution is usually available. Mesquite can be controlled by grubbing, root plowing, tree dozing or chaining. The amount of rainfall received this year makes conditions excellent for controlling mesquite by the above methods. There are several contractors in Collingsworth County with equipment capable of doing a good job on mechanical mesquite control.

After mechanical control has been completed, it is best to seed with an adaptable grass specie. Proper management of the grass, including a deferment after seeding until an adequate stand has been obtained, and brush control will increase plant vigor and range condition. This means more grass available and a much more palatable grass for livestock to utilize.

Shin oak can be controlled effectively by deep plowing with a dozer and a disc plow. Here again an adequate amount of moisture will provide an ease in plowing. This method of control destroys the root system and provides an effective kill. After the plowing has been completed, a firm seed-bed should be prepared followed by seeding an adaptable grass. A good deferment program and proper management will provide abundant grass for livestock use.

County Ranchers At Cattlemen's Annual Meeting

FORT WORTH, -- Thirteen hundred cattlemen and their families converged on San Antonio, for the 96th annual Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers convention March 19-21, breaking all previous attendance records, said William C. Donnell, TSCRA president from Marathon.

Mr. and Mrs. L.C. Hill and Creed Hill attended from Wellington.

Officers were re-elected including Mr. Donnell, president, and Hilmar Moore of Richmond, first vice-president; J.A. Whittenburg III of Amarillo, second vice-president; and Don C. King of Fort Worth, secretary-general manager.

Headlining the slate of speakers addressing the overflowing sessions were Mrs. Anne Armstrong, wife of South Texas rancher Tobin Armstrong and newly-appointed personal counselor to President Nixon, and Governor Dolph Briscoe, a past TSCRA president and the son of a TSCRA president.

The cattlemen indicated strong support of Briscoe's pledge to prevent new taxation by reduced spending and his stand on stiffer penalties for crime in the streets. Mrs. Armstrong's proposal that women seek their best buys in the supermarkets instead of boycotting also captured their support.

The cattlemen passed strong resolutions asking Texas A&M University to appoint an incoming dean of veterinary medicine knowledgeable in large animal practice and research. They expressed concern that in the past emphasis has been placed on study areas more in tune with urban-oriented veterinarians with "dog and cat practices."

A request will also be made to Texas A&M to establish a branch of its Texas Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory in West Texas where three-fourths of feedlot cattle in Texas are located.

Miss Ann Smith spent the week end in Miami with cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Anson Parker and David Mearl. Mrs. Parker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong and granddaughter, Tonya Dawn Spear, of Lubbock joined them.

Go Down the Drain
... every time we spend a dollar somewhere else

A community such as ours is the works of many good people who have put part or all of their lives, hopes and dreams into it.

We can preserve and prosper it, and make it a better place to live and to rear proud and useful citizens for a world that always needs more of their kind.

Or we can ghost it out, as many communities like ours have been, by taking the dollars that create its life-preserving trade volume and pouring them down the drain to the great metropolitan wealth sumps.

Living Bible Best Seller During 1972

"The Living Bible," a paraphrase of the Bible in modern English, was the country's best selling book in 1972.

It tops Publishers Weekly's non-fiction list on the basis of nearly 2 million sales through Doubleday & Company, Inc. An additional 5 million copies were sold by Tyndale House Publishers. Dr. Kenneth Taylor, who paraphrased "The Living Bible," is president of Tyndale House.

"Jonathan Livingston Seagull," best seller in the fiction category, sold approximately 2 million copies to move to the top of the best-selling fiction books after a slow start.

The two lists were just released by Publishers Weekly, the leading journal of the publishing industry. "Jonathan Livingston Seagull" is a modern parable about a seagull who aspires to greater living. It has a smattering of positive thinking, a great deal of metaphysics, and a happy ending.

"The Living Bible" has all this. And more. Publishers Weekly credits "The Living Bible" with making the list from recorded Doubleday sales of 757,216 copies to the trade during the last four months of 1972.

That says nothing of the figures for the other eight months of the year.

Publishers Weekly reminds that the Bible is considered "always the best seller" by the industry. It seldom makes the best-seller list, says the magazine, because "bookstores often neglect to report Bibles, considered staple stock."

"The Living Bible" has out-sold such non-fiction books as "I'm O.K., You're O.K." (Harper & Rowe) by Thomas Harris; "Open Marriage" (M.

Evans) by Nena and George O'Neill, and "Harry S. Truman" (Morrow) by Margaret Truman. Lower on the list was Ruth Montgomery's "A World Beyond" (Cowan, McCann & Geoghegan). "The Living Bible" also has out-sold two cookbooks and a book on weight loss.

It has outsold the fiction list - including Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "August, 1914" (Farrar, Straus & Giroux) and two best sellers by Frederick Forsyth (Viking Press), "The Odessa File" and "The Day of the Jackal."

In fifth place on the fiction list was Irvin Wallace's "The Word" (Simon & Schuster). The book deals with the fictional discovery of an ancient manuscript in Biblical Times. "Two From Galilee," Marjorie Holmes' "love story" of Mary and Joseph (Revell) ranked eighth. Lower in fiction was "My Name is Asher Lev" by Chaim Potok (Knopf) and "Semi-Tough" by Dan Jenkins (Atheneum).

"The Living Bible" is currently being translated and will be printed, by Tyndale House, in 71 other languages.

Cubs Slate Annual Rain Gutter Regatta

The annual Rain Gutter Regatta of Wellington Cub Scouts, Pack 81, will be held Thursday evening, March 29, in the American Legion Hall. The starting time is 7:30 p.m.

In this, the boys and their dads team to make the tiny boats. Two rain gutters filled with water form the course, and lung-power on the part of the youngsters provides the motivation.

All sorts of unexpected accidents may happen along the way, but the boy that gets his boat to the end of the rain gutter first win for his Den.

Boys of Dens 1, 2 and 4 and the Webelos will participate. The winning den will receive a trophy, as will the individual winner. There will be another trophy for the tiny boat judged to be of the best design.

County Probation Officer Bob Watson will be the judge. Thirty-six boys are due to participate.

Following the regatta, parents of the Cubs will remain for an organizational meeting, according to Mrs. Charles Darter, who is working with the group.

Israel Zangwill's 1908 drama of race fusion in America, "The Melting Pot," was the source from which the United States was named the "melting pot."

Deck's DIDACTICS

—by Deskins Wells

THE SUPREME COURT returned some sanity to school financing when the High Court reversed the decisions of the lower courts in the Rodriguez case. This was the case of the San Antonio School District vs Demetrio P. Rodriguez. He charged that since half of the funds for Texas public schools come from property taxes, those children living in districts with lower tax basis received inferior education. The District Court had held that this violates the equal protection clause of the constitution.

IT WOULD be difficult to imagine the plight of local school boards if the High Court had upheld the decision of the lower courts. School finances over the nation are chaotic enough without putting one more stumbling block in their rocky path. It would have made no difference in Wellington since our school is completely integrated and has only one school in the district; but it could have caused turmoil in metropolitan centers such as Dallas, San Antonio and Houston. It could have caused trouble in such places as Amarillo and Wichita Falls. Now the school boards can breathe easier for a short time or until something else pops up.

HOGS sold $3 a hundred lower Tuesday in central markets which may have been due to the boycott. Again it may have been due to the fact that the hog growers became alarmed over the threat of a government freeze of meat prices and as a result too many of them sent their hogs to market in too short a period of time. The same is true of cattle being rushed to market from the wheat fields. On the other hand there is always a seasonal fluctuation in the price of pork. The hard fact is that pork won't stay down as long as wheat, corn and grain sorghum remain at their present high prices.

ACTUALLY pork and beef are not so high when compared with some other products - say lumber and paper. The cost of lumber is terrific and is an important factor in holding down the construction of new homes. The high winds three weeks ago blew down a portion of my wooden fence. I bought four 1 x 12's thinking they would be something like $6 or $8. The price was $14 plus and I shudder when I look at the price of an unprinted box of tag content envelopes.

SINCE the end of World War II the colleges and universities have been crowded to the overflowing point by students. Now conditions are beginning to change. No longer do colleges students have a good job lined up six months before they graduate. With a growing need for more technically trained people the rosy glow surrounding a college education has grown a bit dimmer.

A FEW years ago colleges and universities were actually discouraging enrollment in some cases. At the present time they are trying to establish ways and means of attracting more students. Only the other day, the University of Texas at Arlington announced that they are contemplating means of advertising that university by using certain funds that are not appropriated by the state. The cheapest way might be to hire a Darrell Royal.
