Battlefield to oil field: Vets look for oil jobs

By Curt Brown
Minneapolis Star Tribune

WILLISTON, N.D. — Ben Lewis was helping his crane operator dismantle another oil rig when he heard a loud snap echo across the drilling site. Turning, he joined workers scurrying to the other side of the rig.

"That's when I saw the crane boom collapse," he said.

His heart racing, his breath hard to catch, Lewis looked back and saw three men sprawled on the ground. At first, he didn't recognize any of them. Then he saw a familiar face, unconscious, hunched up against a metal storage container. It was Jake.

Lewis and his Army buddy Jacob Edgren — their friendship fortified on deployments to Afghanistan — were again facing danger at what's become a popular postwar refuge for America's job-searching veterans: North Dakota's booming oil fields.

Soldiers fresh off battlefields in Iraq and Afghanistan are coming in droves to the gold rush that's erupted on the Bakken basin. It's a perfect place for what one veteran called "the next deployment" — especially with a dearth of decent-paying jobs back home.

They're well equipped for the oil industry's grueling work and North Dakota's extreme weather — hot and stormy summers to wind-whipped, bitter winters. Vets and their families also are accustomed to long stretches away from each other.

Oil companies, meanwhile, prefer to hire employees with a proven work ethic who have cleared military background checks felony-free, unlike other ne'er-do-wells lured to the oil fields by promises of low unemployment and businesses desperate for workers.

"I find being in the military on a couple deployments makes those longer days in North Dakota a lot easier," Edgren said. "I'm more prepared mentally for what needs to be done."

Before Afghanistan, Lewis and Edgren trained for the unexpected — jittery, waiting for something to happen.

But North Dakota? They knew days would be long and conditions tough when they drove out from Minnesota a year ago. But they figured their days facing life-or-death scenarios ended when they were discharged from the Army.

Then the crane collapsed.

"When I realized it was one of my really best friends down on the ground," Lewis said, "I about had a panic attack."

He thought of Rachael, Edgren's new bride. He'd been the best man at their wedding on a summer day in Lake Elmo in 2011.

When he couldn't find better than minimum-wage work back home in Florida, Lewis called Edgren to say he was striking out for North Dakota. "I was the reason he came up here," Lewis said. "I felt like it was all on me."

Lewis and Edgren met a decade ago at a U.S. Army training center in Arizona. They became roommates the next year in the barracks at Fort Bragg, N.C. Their friendship deepened during their first deployment to Bagram Air Base in Afghanistan in 2006.

Officer pepper-sprays unruly Walmart shoppers

By Lindsay Weaver
Odessa American

ODESSA — An Odessa police officer was forced to pepper-spray unruly customers at the west side Walmart on Thanksgiving night just as Black Friday sales went live, according to Walmart spokeswoman Dianna Gee.

Odessa Police Cpl. Steve LeSueur said the night was calm except for an incident at 8 p.m. inside the Walmart, located at 2450 N.W. Loop 338, when an officer used pepper spray to control the crowd who were rushing a pallet of tablets and headphones.

According to Walmart, an 8-year-old boy was knocked down and the officer responded with pepper-spraying the crowd to gain control.

"Luckily the boy is fine and no injuries were reported," Gee said.

Jose Mancha was in the checkout line with his wife when it started getting crazy.

He said a Walmart employee was yelling out to the crowd — who were not in a line of any sort — that once they cut the plastic off the pallet each person could only take one $49 tablet.

"Then I heard them get real rowdy, so my wife told me, 'Go over there and record it,'" Mancha said on Friday by phone.

The plastic was cut, and the situation quickly got out of hand.

"It was chaotic. Ladies were getting trampled, kids were trying to get in there," Mancha said.

An officer sprayed over the pallet into the crowd, Mancha said, and created a coughing frenzy that reached the checkout line and even the cashiers. His video shows customers coughing and running away from the pallet with their shirts to their faces.

"I was shocked by it," Mancha said, but he blames Walmart for the disorganization and he said if people were put into lines, it could have been easily avoided.

Walmart also released this emailed statement on the incident: "This is one of a few isolated incidents across the country, and we don't feel it's an overall fair representation of what took place at the majority of our 4000-plus stores."

"From coast to coast, we had the safest start to Black Friday ever. With 22 million customers shopping our stores, we expect some incidents, but thankfully they were isolated and resolved quickly. Overall the number of incidents is significantly down from last year. Our safety plans worked, and we've heard great feedback from our customers and associates," Gee said.

Employees at the west-side Walmart referred all questions to the corporate headquarters in Arkansas.

Can blogger's identity be revealed so he can be sued?

By Chuck Lindell
Cox Newspapers

AUSTIN — As state law struggles to catch up to the Internet Age, the Texas Supreme Court will decide whether a computer software company can force a sharp-tongued blogger, writing under a pseudonym, to be identified by name so he could be sued.

The blogger, known online as Trooper, claims a First Amendment right to remain anonymous, calling Internet speech in blogs and chat rooms the modern equivalent of political pamphleteering and quoting a 1995 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that said "anonymity is a shield from the tyranny of the majority."

But the Ohio-based software company, Reynolds & Reynolds, known as R&R, argues that Trooper's missives — calling the firm's chairman a thief and disparaging its top product as "crap," among other criticisms — should not receive the same free-speech protection as political speech because they came from a self-described employee.

"The Supreme Court of the United States has not held that there is a right of anonymity ... where it is simply an employee complaining and griping about his employer," Grant Harvey, lawyer for the company, told the court during oral arguments in early November.

With the explosion of Internet platforms blurring the lines between professional news organizations and bloggers, commentators and pundits, the court's ruling will likely set new ground rules in a rapidly changing media arena.

Trooper began a now-discontinued blog in 2007 called "Reynolds News & Information" that was particularly critical of Robert Brockman, who had acquired R&R earlier that year for $2.8 billion and became its chairman and chief executive officer. Trooper blamed Brockman for lost customers, a sharp decline in product quality and poor employee morale at the maker of computer management systems for auto dealerships.

In 2010, R&R and Brockman filed suit in Houston to force Google, which ran the online home for Trooper's blog, to disclose the blogger's name and address so they would know who to sue for defamation, business disparagement and — if

Martha Sue Craddock Conly

Martha Sue Craddock Conly was born on February 24, 1928, in Midland, Texas to Cliff Perry Craddock and Mildred Viola Taylor Craddock. Sue is from the pioneer Craddock family that settled in Andrews County in the late 1800's; her grandfather William Thomas Craddock was the first sheriff of Andrews County. Sue's family ranched in Gaines County and New Mexico before moving to Lubbock. Sue was the second of seven children. She was reared in Gaines County, graduated from Lubbock High School in 1945 and attended Texas Technological College (Texas Tech University).

She returned to Midland in 1950. In 1953, her sister and brother-in-law, Lela and Bill Midkiff, introduced her to Bert Conly on a blind date which began a sixty plus year romance. They married on July 10, 1954 in Hobbs New Mexico and celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary earlier this year. It was family lore that Sue lost a bet and had to pay for the marriage license, which she always said was the best $10 she ever spent. That tradition continued on with her son and her granddaughter.

Based all accounts of classmates, they were in the same 6th grade class in Midland Texas.

Sue resided in Midland most of her life after 1950 except for a ten year period when she and Bert lived in Corpus Christi and Houston, returning to Midland in 1981.

While in Corpus Christi, they enjoyed deep sea fishing and their boat, the Sioux C, was named for her. She was a member of the prestigious Ocean Drive Garden Club.

Together, Sue and Bert enjoyed many things including their dance clubs, serving as officers on several occasions; and all events at the Haley Library, especially the cowboy stories. She served as President of the Midland County Republican Women and was active in the Easter Seals.

Bert always said that she had great intuition about people and she was rarely wrong when he asked her opinion of a potential business partner or associate. He said she could always tell the "good ones." Sue was Bert's beautiful and faithful companion and soul mate.

Sue was an elegant, humorous and strong West Texas woman. She loved times with her family and friends, holiday gatherings, her town, her state and her country. Sue was a supportive and kind wife, mother and grandmother. We will miss her good advice and strong direction.

At this time of Thanksgiving, we are abundantly thankful for her life, the people she touched and happiness she brought us. Now she is with our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ; please join us in a hearty thanksgiving remembrance.

Survivors include her husband, Albert Raymond Conly of Midland, Texas; sons, Albert Shannon Conly and wife Jeanie of Dallas, Texas and Gary Wayne Conly (Deceased February 26, 1978); parents, Cliff Perry Craddock of Andrews, Texas (deceased) and Mildred Viola Taylor Craddock of Andrews, Texas (deceased); brothers: Thomas Joe Craddock (deceased), Will Edwin Craddock and wife Sue Ann Craddock of Deming, New Mexico; sisters: Lela Mae Craddock Midkiff (deceased) and husband Bill Midkiff (deceased), Jean Craddock Fitzhugh (deceased) and husband Sam Fitzhugh(deceased), Mary Jane Craddock Maddux and husband Richard Maddux of Los Angeles, California, Margret Ann Craddock Long of Carthage ,Texas; grandchildren: Shannon Leigh Conly Gozal and husband Joaquin Gozal of Salta, Argentina Kendall Marie Conly of Dallas, Texas, Lindsey Briscoe Berg and husband Aaron Berg of Denver, Colorado and Mark Briscoe of Dallas, Texas.

She also leaves behind numerous nieces and nephews who included them in the Midkiff (Pete, Cindy and Tim) and Fitzhugh (Pat, Eric and Larie) family events which she enjoyed immensely and Debbie Conly Kemp and husband David Kemp of Midland, Texas and Andye Conly who stayed in constant contact.

Sue and Bert wanted to make a difference for young people seeking an education and established the Conly Family Endowed Scholarship at Hardin Simmons University. Sue truly loved receiving letters from the scholarship recipients each year. The family requests that interested parties support the Scholarship program by sending memorials to the Conly Family Endowed Scholarship, c/o Mike Hammack, 2200 Hickory, Box 16100, Abilene, Texas 79698.

IDENTITY

his status as an employee could be confirmed — for publishing corporate secrets and disparaging the company in violation of a signed employment agreement.

Trooper submitted a sworn affidavit arguing that Texas courts lacked jurisdiction because he did not live in Texas. What's more, Trooper claimed that he was not an R&R employee and could not be sued for employment-related allegations. The blogger's lawyer also offered to reveal his name in private to District Judge Robert Schaffer to verify his claims.

Schaffer refused the offer and instead ordered Google to reveal the blogger's identity. The 1st Court of Appeals in Houston affirmed Schaffer's order in 2011.

Trooper next turned to the state Supreme Court, managing to keep his identity a secret while the appeals continue.

During oral arguments before the nine Supreme Court justices, R&R lawyer Harvey said that Schaffer was justified in ordering disclosure because there was a fact question that could not be answered otherwise: Is Trooper an R&R employee, as he claimed in his blog?

"Let's be candid about what's going on here. There is one thing we know about the Trooper in this courtroom: He's a liar," Harvey said. "There are 50 (online) references to the man being an employee. ... I would submit to you that that's enough to say, wait a minute, now we get to test" his claims in court.

Chief Justice Nathan Hecht took the argument one step further.

"On the other hand, shouldn't Texas be concerned that its courts can be used to investigate any cause of action that could be brought anywhere in the United States?" Hecht asked. "Why should Texas courts just be sort of the State Bureau of Investigation?"

Judges, Harvey replied, have the discretion to determine whether the burden or cost of disclosure outweighs the need. And if Texas courts lack jurisdiction over a lawsuit, "the judge can say no," he added.

Trooper's lawyer, Shelly Skeen, argued that Texas courts must have "personal jurisdiction" over the blogger before a judge can force him to reveal his identity.

But Trooper cannot be bound by state courts because he does not live, own property or keep a bank account in Texas, Skeen said. Trooper even identified himself as a resident of Dayton, Ohio, in his blog — a detail known to R&R before it filed suit in Houston, she said.

"You go to the place where the person is," Skeen said. "They know they didn't file this here in this court in good faith."

R&R argues that Texas is an appropriate venue for its lawsuit because Brockman owned a house in Houston and the company's principal Texas office is in the city,as well.

Skeen also argued that less-intrusive options could have established that Trooper lives out of state, including geolocation software that would have shown that his computer-specific IP address is in Ohio.

"This court told lower courts that you should strictly limit and closely supervise (such disclosures) because the intrusion into otherwise private matters ... is not to be taken lightly," Skeen said. "Just because someone is on the Internet doesn't mean ... they should be hauled into court in Texas."

For its part, Google has steered a middle path through the controversy, submitting a brief describing itself as "caught in the middle." Google assured the court that it would turn over Trooper's information if ordered but said it should not be forced to do so until the free speech and jurisdictional issues are resolved.

The court has no deadline to issue a ruling in the case, In re John Doe aka Trooper, 13-0073.

Recycling over Thanksgiving weekend

The center that receives recycling is closed through Sunday, according to Keep Midland Beautiful.

Recycled items will not be picked up until next week. Leaving items outside of recycling containers is against the law and could result in a fine. Items collected for recycling could become litter if the wind blows it or stray animals get in to it.

intelligence analysts with the 82nd Airborne followed. They endured rocket-propelled grenade attacks on their Blackhawk helicopters and explosive devices detonating at the gate of their base.

Whether they were hitting the gym or the PX on posts, they became inseparable.

So when a decade of war wound down and Lewis and Edgren returned to civilian life, it was only a matter of time until fate — and a crummy economy — reunited them.

After seven years in the Army, Lewis, 28, found himself selling phones at the Verizon store in Tampa, Fla., earning just over minimum wage.

Edgren, 30, tried going to community college, but felt out of place. He was working part time at a plastics warehouse just outside the Twin Cities for $11 an hour, making roughly $400 a week.

"That was brutal," Edgren said. "I was not happy with how my life was going a year into my marriage — I wanted more for us."

So when Lewis called 14 months ago, saying he was following a friend to North Dakota, Edgren didn't hesitate: "He's like: 'Cool, come get me,'" Lewis said.

The Army buddies hadn't seen each other in a year. Not that it mattered.

"They're like brothers," said Rachael Edgren, whose relationship with Jake dates back to middle school in Andover, Minn.

Jake Edgren is a stocky 5-foot-8, with ice-blue eyes and short cropped hair. Although outgoing, he seldom talks about personal things. "But if something needs to be said," Lewis said, "he'll say it."

Lewis, on the flip side, is tall and rangy with long black hair that he's grown down to his shoulders since leaving the Army. He ties it down with a wound-up bandanna. He's the easygoing "pretty boy," Rachael said.

They like the same music (Korn and Chevelle) and video games (Madden and Halo).

Lewis flew up to the Twin Cities and the two friends drove out to North Dakota early last October, modern-day fortune seekers heading to a land bursting with more blue-collar, well-paying jobs than anywhere else in America. Thousands are making similar treks, trying to cash in.

For Edgren, migrating to North Dakota meant hugging his new wife goodbye for long stretches of a month or more some 10 hours away from her parents' home in Coon Rapids.

For Lewis, finding work in North Dakota meant leaving his girlfriend, Amy, in Florida with his golden retriever, Griffey — named after the star of the Seattle Mariners he cheered for as a kid in Spokane, Wash. Framed photos of both grace the shelf over his bed in North Dakota.

"It was nerve-racking to say the least," Lewis said. "Joining the Army, at least I knew what I was getting myself into."

Jerry Samuelson, the veteran services officer for McKenzie County, works out of a second-floor office in the brick government building in Watford City. The prairie town's population has soared from 1,500 to nearly 8,000 since the latest boom began.

"This is where the lure of the cash is," said Samuelson, who served in the Navy for 20 years. "All these veterans are getting out and they don't have the jobs like we have up here — that's why I see them flocking here."

It's hard to quantify precisely how many veterans have made the Bakken their next deployment. Samuelson guesses he has seen a doubling or tripling.

"It's not for country this time; it's for their own well-being," said Grant Carns, Williams County's veteran services coordinator in Williston. "Especially for those who are coming right out of a combat zone in Afghanistan or Iraq, the oil field right now really lends itself and caters to somebody who can tolerate being alone and isolated from family."

From vantage points such as the Watford City American Legion club, Samuelson notices a difference. "We're especially seeing more young veterans — many of whom are just getting out."

McKenzie County counted 564 veterans in the 2010 census before the boom. Samuelson "pretty much knew them all."

Now, there are countless truck drivers, pipeline workers and night watchmen living in man camps with no official address. Some have their medications sent to his office. A woman who served in Afghanistan just stopped by looking for truck-driving work and housing suggestions for her family from Arizona.

Responding to the influx, the Department of Veterans Affairs has opened clinics in Williston and Dickinson, without which veterans would need to travel 400 miles to Fargo for full-service health care or wait in line to be seen at clinics in Minot or Bismarck. Appointments at the clinics are backlogged for weeks.

Edgren and Lewis crashed on the floor of the Travel Host Motel when they first arrived here, sharing a room with a friend whose company was footing the bill.

"We were eating 79-cent burritos," Edgren said. "And drinking the cheapest vodka we could find."

They hit the ground running, filling out applications at nine places along the strip of quickly slapped up metal storefront sheds north of town. They were encouraged that applications asked if they were military veterans.

"But we didn't receive one call back," Edgren said.

They insist it's a myth that you can hop off the Amtrak or Greyhound and easily land a job in the oil fields. Despite an unemployment rate of 1.7 percent in oil-producing counties, Edgren and Lewis struggled to find work — even as vets. For two weeks, they showed up for face-to-face meetings with personnel people, growing discouraged and thinking of bailing and going home.

"Then we caught a supervisor who was a former vet at the right time, just after two guys had quit," Edgren said.

They were hired as crane riggers, lifting chains, tearing down derricks and putting them back up to dig wells 2 miles deep and another 2 miles out at oil pads across western North Dakota.

The work was tough: moving 150-foot-tall rigs that look like a combination of the Eiffel Tower and the Cape Canaveral rocket launching apparatus.

A few weeks into that first job last November, they passed each other on a rig site out on the prairie. With three loud cranes groaning, they'd nearly finished moving the rig to the next drilling site.

Lewis was putting up some metal wind walls and Edgren was running around, trying to impress supervisors with his tireless work ethic.

Edgren recalled hollering, "Nice job, Cherry," a military moniker for rookies.

Edgren could see chains falling from the crane's main and whip lines. He yelled that the crane's boom was coming down before blacking out.

The collapsing crane tossed him against a metal shipping container that protected him as if he were under a bridge. Two other men were knocked out nearby. "Initially I thought they were dead because they were not moving," Lewis said.

He ran to get a stretcher and someone called for a helicopter. Then came the good news: Edgren came to, suffering only a bruised hip and side. An ambulance zipped him to a hospital in Williston. The other two men also survived.

Lewis watched as the helicopter took off and the ambulance bounced away with his friend, its lights flashing. "I knew it wasn't my fault, but I almost felt that it was."

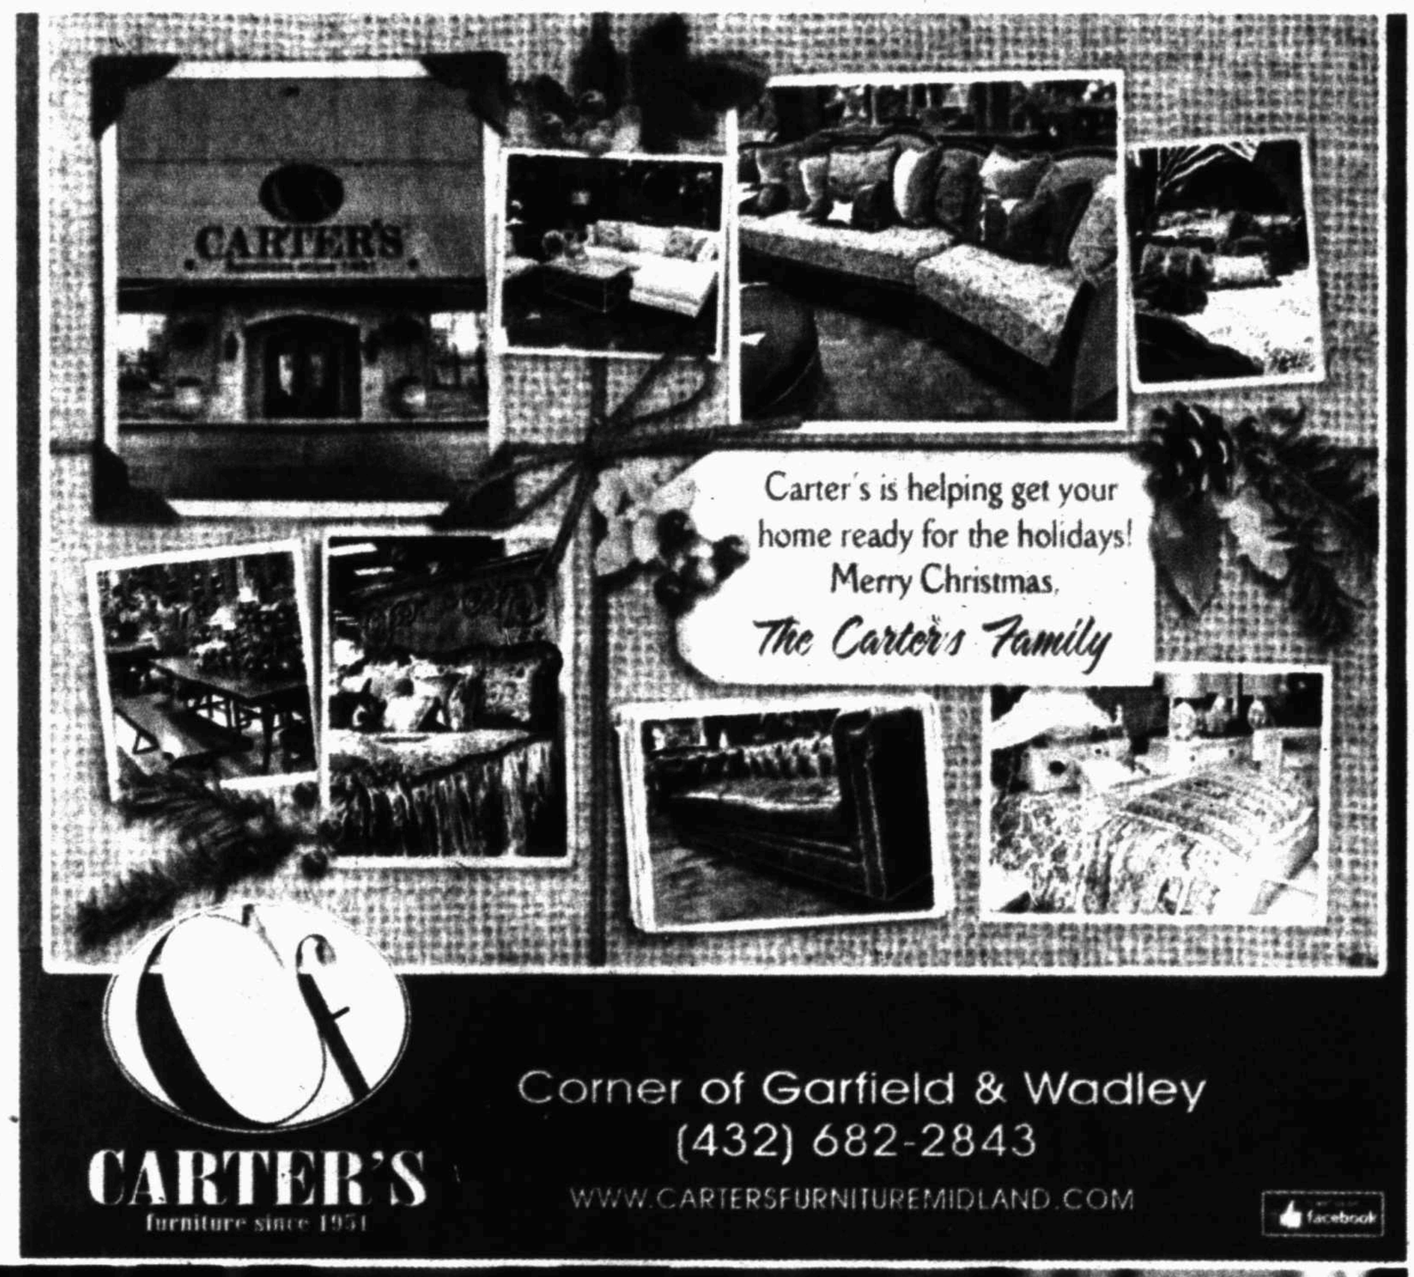

Thirty-seven workers have died on oil-related jobs in western North Dakota the past four years. That toll is roughly half the workplace fatalities the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's Bismarck office has investigated in both Dakotas since Oct. 1, 2009.

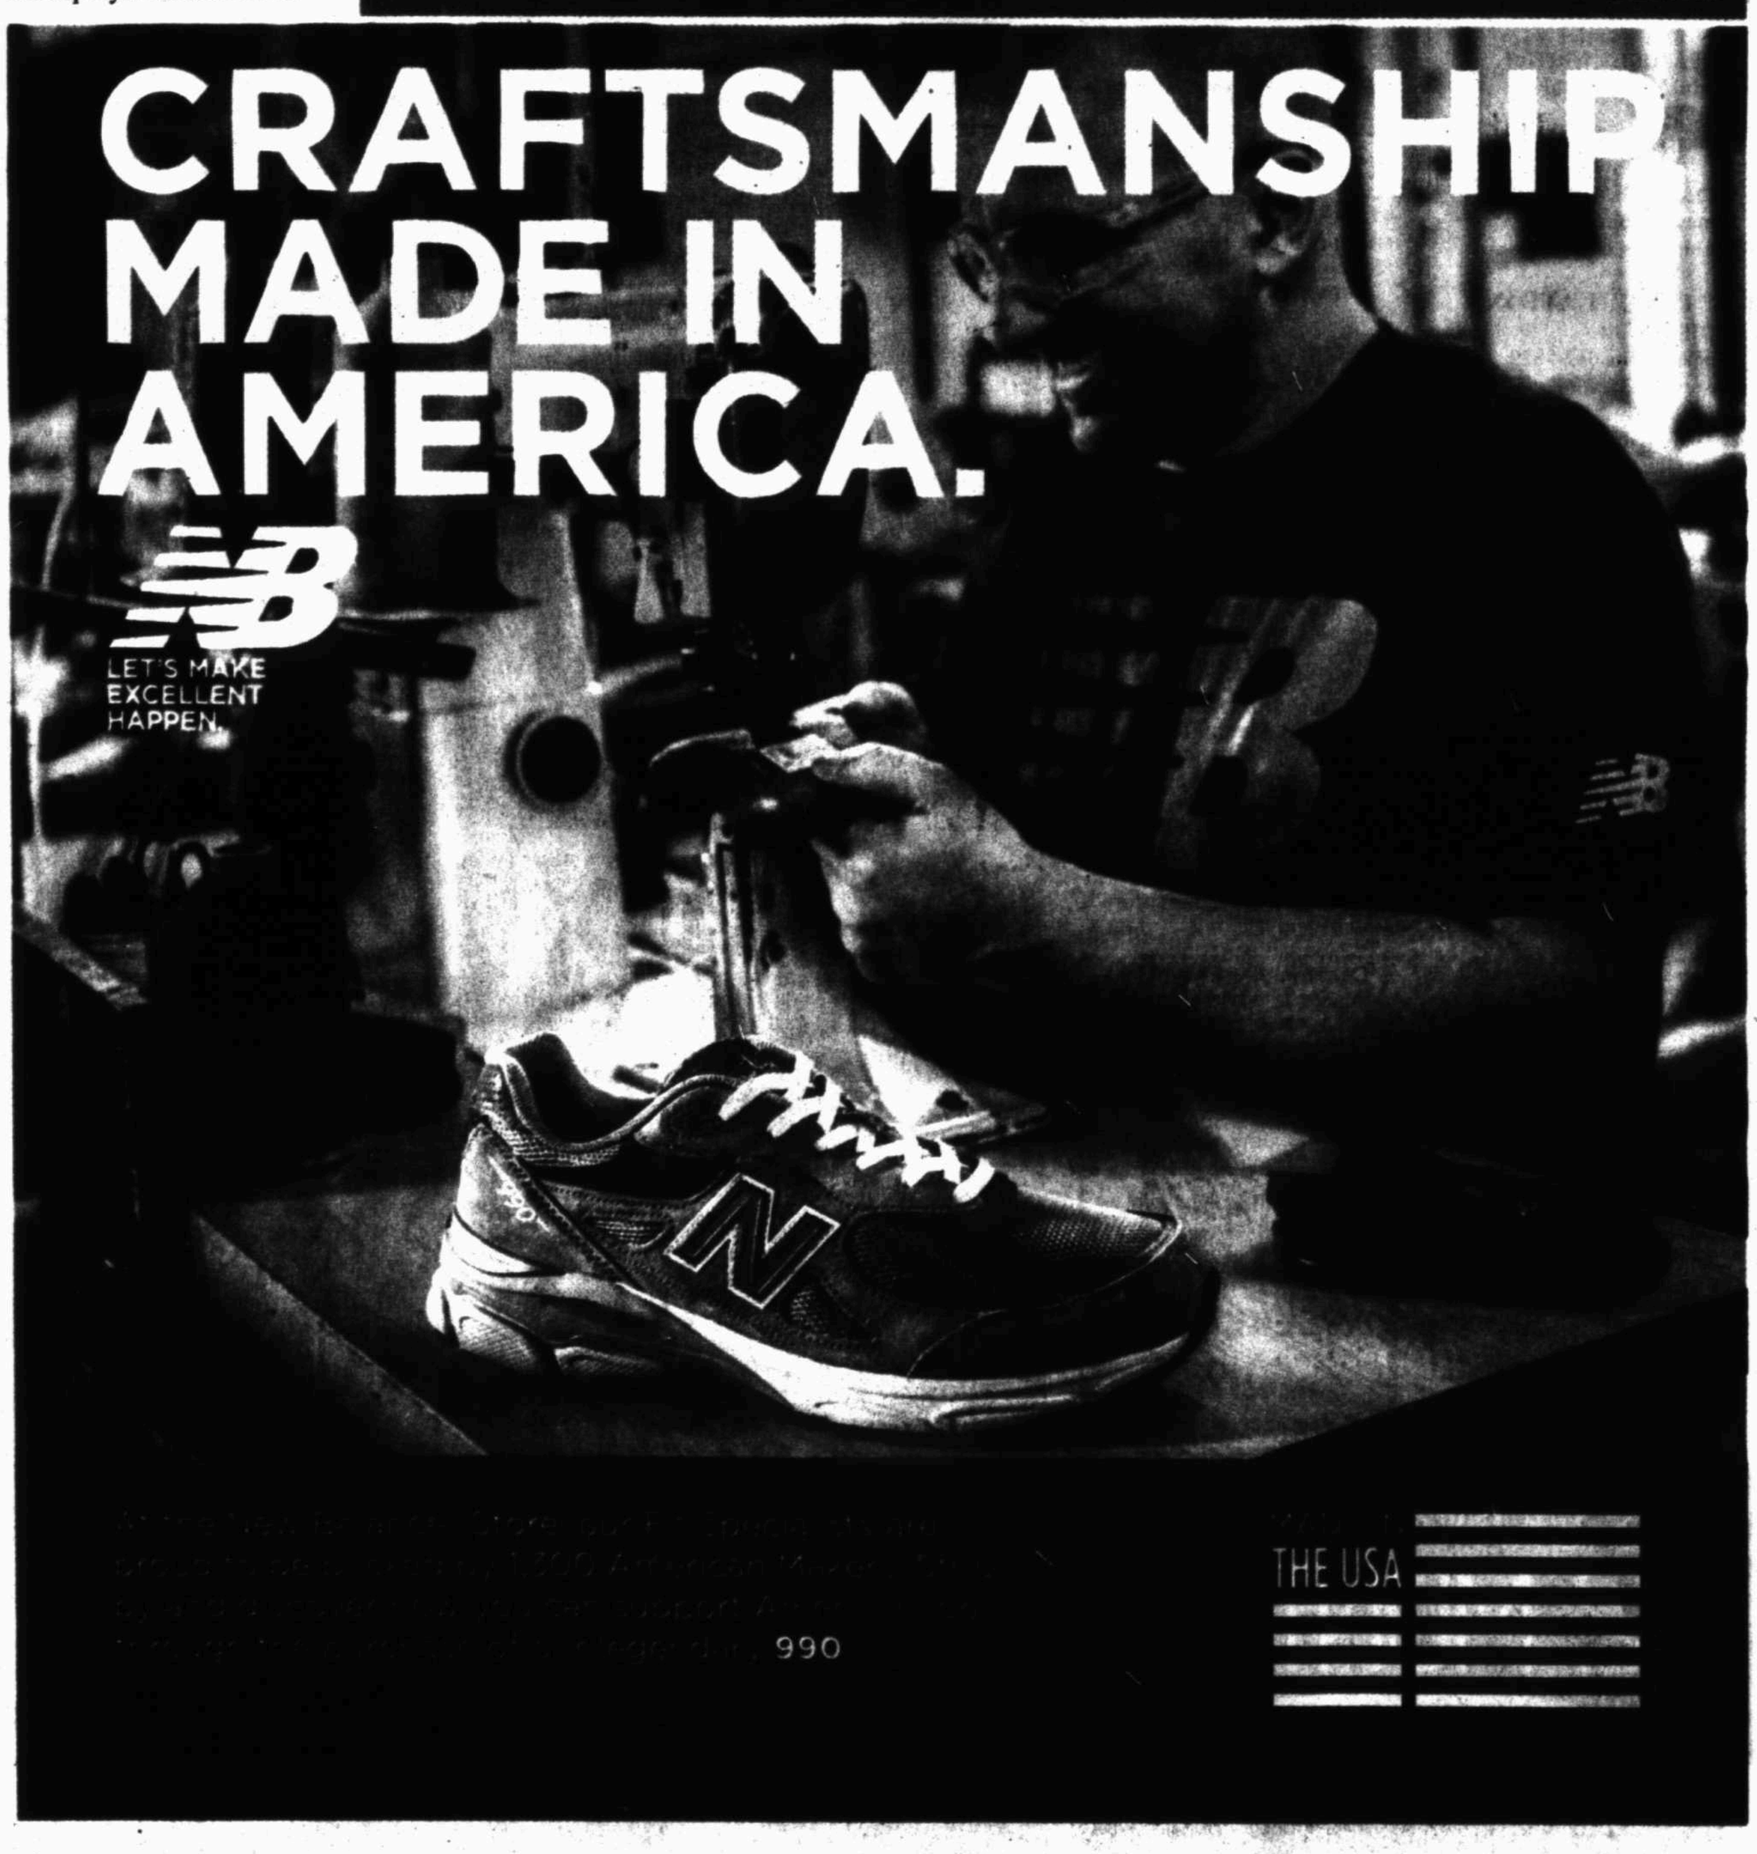

OSHA fined Halliburton $14,000 for the death of Mike Krajewski, 49, a Duluth father of three and Air Force veteran killed in January when a fracturing pipe struck his head.

Edgren dislikes talking about the crane. Dangerous things are better left unsaid. "In Afghanistan, I told my wife I worked behind a desk and never went outside the wire."

This was different. "We trained eight months for Afghanistan and were constantly waiting for something to happen because we knew it would," Edgren said. "The crane collapse was so scary because I didn't expect it. I was in shock and only later realized how close I was to dying."

Starting their second year out here, both work and living conditions are improving for Lewis and Edgren — like they are for many of the workers in North Dakota's latest oil boom.

They left crane rigging for a job fueling fracturing trucks for Thomas Petroleum. And with it, they upgraded from cheap burritos and vodka. For most of the spring and summer, they found a home at the Black Gold Lodge, a man-camp labyrinth of dimly lit metal hallways, shared bathrooms and shoebox-size sleeping quarters built out of shipping containers north of town.

Employers such as Thomas Petroleum fork out $140 a night for each worker to Black Gold — an Alaska-based oil-field logistics firm — to house and feed its workers three meals a day. The man camp houses up to 400 workers.

Some man camps live up to Old West stereotypes, with booze, brawls and prostitutes. Black Gold is all business. A guard's shack prohibits unregistered guests from entering the dirt parking lot. Anyone caught with visitors or alcohol in his room is given the steel-toed boot.

Minneapolis Star Tribune

Army veterans Ben Lewis, left, and Jake Edgren, pictured May 7 in Williston, N.D., served in Afghanistan together and the friends are now working in the Bakken oil fields together. The pair first found work dismantling and moving drilling rigs, then moved on to refueling trucks, drills, pumps and other equipment used for the hydraulic fracturing process.

Edgren and Lewis usually saw each other every day. Their rooms were a few doors apart, so even though they often worked opposite shifts, they'd grab a few minutes to talk as Lewis got off his 12-hour night shift on a drilling site near Alexander, N.D., and Edgren headed off to work at dawn.

They work more than 100 hours a week, earning $20 an hour for the first 40 hours and then bringing in time-and-a-half for the next 60-plus. Often that means getting up at 6 a.m., working as late as 10 p.m., wolfing down a bite to eat and then grabbing four hours of sleep. They work for a month and then get a week off.

By midsummer, Lewis and Edgren had left the man camp for a townhouse near the airport, paying $800 each a month with two other guys for granite countertops, their own bathroom and a weekly cleaning service.

Lewis may call it quits soon to head back to Tampa. That's one difference from military service: They can leave whenever they choose.

"I don't think I can handle another winter up here," he said. "It was brutal with winds and snowdrifts and nothing else to look at." He is hoping to parlay his military intelligence experience into a job in Washington once the car loans and debts are paid off.

Edgren is working on his commercial driver's license. He and Rachael broke ground in August on a $240,000 house near Zimmerman, Minn.

Without the oil and the paychecks, they'd still be paying off student loans and likely living where Rachael does now: with her parents. He's not sure how much longer he'll stay, joking with Rachael that another year would get her a BMW.

"It's starting to pay off now," he said during a recent week back home.

Rachael quietly wonders if her husband can soldier on without Lewis. "I don't think they would have lasted that long out there," she said, "without each other."

A special gathering of non-perishable food items wrapped in white for those in our community who are in need this Christmas season

"HOPE IS BORN"

These past few years have been exciting in Midland. The economy is good. Jobs are available. Construction is taking place. We have a large expansion to our hospital. The spirit of the city is optimistic. The future looks bright.

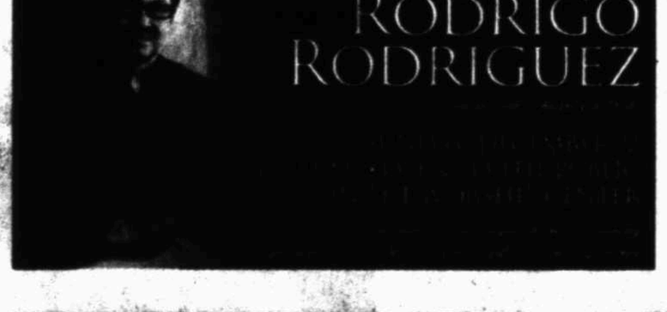

However, personal challenges still occur. We are all subject to illness and death. Our selfish nature continues to destroy our relationships. Many marriages that began with such promise have deteriorated and result in sorrow and disappointment rather than love and commitment. Conflict occurs between parents and children and within the workplace. Addictions destroy us physically, mentally and spiritually. Many continue to search aimlessly for meaning in life.

Christmas is a reminder that hope is born in Christ. When Jesus was born in the small village of Bethlehem he was God taking the form of humanity. His life was publically documented by his followers and his enemies. He became an inspiration and continues to be the most important influence in the lives of a third of folks who live today. Yet he was more than just an inspiration. His death and resurrection are proof that he is who he said he was, the Son of God.

We invite you to join with us at First Baptist Church during this Advent season to celebrate the life of Christ and experience the hope for this life and all eternity that Jesus alone can bring.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased two this week to 1,763, according to the rotary rig count report released Wednesday by Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

There were 1,391 rigs listed as searching for oil, up four; 367 as searching for natural gas, down two; and five as miscellaneous, unchanged. A year ago this week there were 1,386 rigs exploring for oil, five fewer than this week's count, and there were 424 rigs exploring for natural gas, a difference of 57.

By trajectory, there were 414 vertical drilling rigs, down four; 1,127 horizontal drilling rigs, unchanged; and 222 directional drilling rigs, up six.

At this time last year there were 1,811 rigs in the U.S.

The Permian Basin held steady at 470 rigs, while the Eagle Ford added one rig for a total of 227. The Granite Wash was up one rig for a total of 62, and the Barnett finished the week at 34 rigs, an increase of one.

Rounding out the top five states by rig count were Texas; Oklahoma with 175, up three; North Dakota with 168, up one; Louisiana with 112, up two; and New Mexico with 78, down one.

Among the other major oil- and gas-producing states, Kansas added two rigs, and Ohio and Wyoming added one each. West Virginia lost three rigs, California lost two and Alaska, Colorado and Utah lost one apiece.

In the U.S. there were 1,687 rigs listed as on land, up two; 19 as in inland waters, unchanged; and 57 as offshore, unchanged. The Gulf of Mexico held steady at 55 rigs.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada increased 17 for a total of 385. There were 215 rigs listed as searching for oil, up 15; 170 as searching for natural gas, up two; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged. There were 399 rigs in Canada at this time last year.

The total number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in North America — which includes the U.S., Gulf of Mexico and Canada — was 2,148, an increase of 19. At year ago this week there were 2,210 rigs in North America.

Oil edges up in thin post-holiday trade

Oil remained below $93 a barrel Friday, in light trading a day after the Thanksgiving holiday in the U.S.

For the week, oil fell by $2.32 a barrel.

At the gas pump, the average price of a gallon of gasoline is $3.28. That's up 4 cents from a week ago, but down 13 cents from this time last year.

The nationwide average is the cheapest for the day after Thanksgiving since 2010.

Benchmark U.S. crude for January delivery rose 42 cents to close at $92.72 a barrel Friday on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Brent crude, a benchmark for international oils, was down $1.17 at $109.69 a barrel on the ICE exchange in London.

In other energy futures trading on Nymex:

- Wholesale gasoline fell 3 cents to $2.66 a gallon.
- Heating oil fell 1 cent at $3.03 a gallon.
- Natural gas rose 5.9 cents to $3.95 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Gold rises on tensions over East China Sea

Gold logged its biggest gain in two weeks as tensions rise between China and Japan.

China launched two fighter planes Friday to investigate flights by U.S. and Japanese reconnaissance and military planes in its new maritime air defense zone over the East China Sea, state media said. Neighboring countries and the U.S. have said they won't honor the zone.

Despite slumping this year, gold is still regarded as a haven for investors.

Gold has slumped 26 percent this year and is on course for its first annual decline in 13 years, as the allure of the metal has faded amid signs that the U.S. economy is set to maintain its recovery.

On Friday, gold for February delivery rose $12.50, or 1 percent, to $1,250.40 an ounce.

Other metals also advanced.

Silver for March delivery rose 35.10 cents, or 1.8 percent, to $20.03 an ounce. Copper for the same month rose 1.5 cents, or 0.5 percent, to $3.21 a pound. Platinum for January gained $16.10, or 1.2 percent, to $1,368.80 an ounce. March palladium rose $3.70, or 0.5 percent, to $719.65 an ounce.

In agricultural trading, soybeans gained after the U.S. Department of Agriculture reported strong demand from China and other countries. Soybeans for January rose 16.5 cents, or 1.2 percent, to $13.37 a bushel.

Wheat for March delivery rose 5.25 cents, or 0.8 percent, to $6.69 a bushel. Corn for the same month fell 2 cents, or 0.5 percent, to $4.25 a bushel.

NEW YORK

S&P 500 gains for 8th straight week

The stock market fizzled Friday at the end of a holiday-shortened trading day, but still logged its longest streak of weekly gains in a decade.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index ended down one point, or 0.1 percent, to 1,805.81. The Dow Jones industrial average slipped 10 points, or 0.1 percent, to 16,086.41.

Investors watched for early trends in holiday sales as the busiest shopping day of the year, Black Friday, got underway. Retailers were one of two industry groups in the S&P 500 to rise.

Stocks overall have surged this year as the economy maintains a slow but steady recovery and corporations keep earnings growing. Demand for stocks also has been bolstered by Federal Reserve policies that have held down interest rates, making bonds less attractive investments than stocks.

Stocks rose for most of the day Friday, but petered out in the last half hour of trading. The New York Stock Exchange and the Nasdaq closed early, at 1 p.m. Eastern Time, and activity was lower than average a day after Thanksgiving. Thin trading can lead to sudden swings in markets.

Although the S&P 500 and Dow slipped, the Nasdaq composite rose 15 points, or 0.4 percent, to end at 4,059.89. The index has surged 34 percent this year, more than the other two indexes.

And even though the S&P 500 eased Friday, it still rose for an eighth straight week, its longest stretch of weekly advances in a decade.

The broad stock index saw two of its 10 industry groups rise. One of them was consumer discretionary companies as investors hoped for improved holiday sales.

More than a dozen major chains opened on Thanksgiving Day and planned to keep their doors open through Friday, the traditional start to the holiday shopping season. Crowds formed early and often throughout the two days.

Investors will be following sales trends closely to get a read on the health of retailers, as well as the wider economy. Consumer spending is a critical component of the U.S.

Institute: NKorea resumes work at old launch site

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A U.S. research institute said Friday it has detected a new construction at a North Korean missile launch site which the institute says is being upgraded to handle larger rockets.

Commercial satellite imagery shows work has resumed after a monthslong hiatus at Tonghae, on the country's northeast coast, on what looks like a rocket assembly building and a launch control center.

The findings were provided to The Associated Press ahead of publication by 38 North, the website of the U.S.-Korea Institute at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

It's the latest sign that North Korea is pressing ahead with its nuclear and missile programs despite declaring its willingness to resume aid-for-disarmament negotiations.

Overhead photos have also indicated the North restarted a mothballed plutonium reactor in late August and is working to upgrade its other main missile launch site at Sohae.

But 38 North said a rocket test doesn't appear imminent at either launch site.

Assessing the intentions of North Korea's secretive regime and the nation's technical capabilities is notoriously difficult. The conclusions are based on imagery analysis by Nick Hansen, a retired intelligence expert who closely monitors developments in the North's weapons programs.

Sohae, which lies on North Korea's west coast, has been used for its recent major launches, including the firing of a three-stage rocket into space last December. That launch was viewed by the U.S. as a worrying marker in the North's development of ballistic missile technology.

In the meantime, Tonghae has been left idle, but experts in 2012 detected construction of a new launch pad to accommodate larger rockets.

That work had appeared to be on hold since early 2013, but images taken between Sept. 16 and Nov. 18 show a roof has been built atop the new launch control center and walls erected for the rocket assembly building.

There's no sign, however, of further construction yet at the new launch pad itself and on an access road.

Completion of all the new facilities at Tonghae may take until 2017, 38 North said. But combined with construction activity at Sohae, where a new launch pad for mobile ballistic missiles appears in the works, North Korea seems to be scaling up its capabilities.

In February, the North conducted its third nuclear test explosion, which likely allowed it to make progress in miniaturizing an atomic device it could mount on a missile. It has also paraded mobile, intercontinental ballistic missiles that could potentially reach America, although there's debate about whether the missiles it displayed were just mock-ups.

Earlier this month, Adm. Samuel Locklear, the chief of U.S. forces in the Pacific, said North Korea wants the world to believe that it has such a missile, so he's bound to take that threat seriously.

Pyongyang has enshrined its drive to build a nuclear arsenal in its constitution but also said it is willing to restart international nuclear talks it withdrew from five years ago.

MCS could face stiffest test of season vs. Dallas Christian

Midland Christian's Justin Fender gets away from Tyler Grace Community's Levi Crozier during their TAPPS Division II bi-district game Nov. 15 at Mustang Field.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

Midland Christian has cruised through this season to the point that the starters playing a full four quarters has been non-existent.

All of the Mustangs' TAPPS Division II District 1 games had a running clock at one point in the second half as have both playoff games.

Even during the non-district slate in September, the Mustangs' backups were seeing significant minutes.

But coach Greg McClendon and his staff, along with the seniors, have been reminding the team that there will be a team that will challenge the Mustangs (12-0) for a full four quarters. And if it happens, the coaches and players feel they are ready.

The game

"Some people say it's getting boring, but to us it's not boring at all," junior running back/linebacker Justin Fender said. "It's what we've been working for all year, during the offseason and everything. We've been getting ready for a year like this, and we want to blow people out like this. But if we do get to play a four-quarter game we'll be happy, it will be fun."

The Mustangs may get that chance for a full game this week in a TAPPS Division II state semifinal against longtime playoff rival Dallas Christian, which is set for 4 p.m. today at Bulldog Stadium at Abilene Wylie High School.

The Chargers have put together another stellar season as they are 12-0 and won TAPPS Division II, District 2.

Heartbreak for Big Spring

Thomas Metthe/Abilene Reporter-News

Big Spring running back Hunter Hill (32) is pulled down short of the goal line by Stephenville defensive back Tyler Isham (8) during the fourth quarter of Big Spring's 47-36 loss in the Region I-3A Division I regional playoff game Friday at Bulldog Stadium in Abilene.

ABILENE — Big Spring did everything it could to upset defending Class 3A Division I state champion Stephenville and even had the lead with 35 seconds left in the game and the No. 5-ranked Yellow Jackets needing to go 65 yards to win it.

But with highly-touted Jarrett Stidham at quarterback and a powerful, quick-strike offense, the Yellow Jackets are never out of a game.

Stidham did what he is expected to do and led the Yellow Jackets down the field and connected with Brock Morrison on a 22-yard touchdown pass with 4.3 seconds left in the game to give Stephenville the lead and eventually a 47-36 victory on a nice Friday afternoon in a Class 3A Division I regional game at Bulldog Stadium.

The final margin was made a little more lopsided when Tyler Vest intercepted a lateral and returned it 34 yards for a score with no time remaining.

Stephenville (11-1) moves on to the state quarterfinal round where it will face today's winner between Burnet and Lubbock Cooper in a time, day and place to be determined.

Big Spring ends its season at 9-4 but was left wondering what could have been after taking a 36-34 lead with 35 seconds remaining on a 1-yard touchdown run by quarterback Tobyn Tannehill, who had a valiant effort with 246 yards passing, 156 yards rushing and two total touchdowns.

"We're champions. Our guys deserved to win this game," said Big Spring coach Phillip Ritchey, who was trying to hold back the tears of an emotional football game. "Our kids played lights out. We deserved to win this game, but sometimes you don't get out of life what you deserve. It was a gut shot. These kids did everything we asked of them and put themselves on an elite level in this state. It'll be something they'll always remember, even though this one hurts right now."

But the inability for Big Spring to prevent Stephenville's big-play capabilities proved to be too much to overcome.

On the first play from scrimmage on SHS' game-winning drive, Stidham found Walker for a 33-yard pass, and just like Houston Texans fans hold up a sign during Sunday's game against Jacksonville in Houston.

Saddled with losing streak, Texans face tough road ahead

JOHN MCCLAIN
Houston Chronicle

HOUSTON —

In the NFL, the only good thing that comes from being bad is a high draft choice.

Unless you're the Washington Redskins, whose first-round pick belongs to St. Louis because of the trade that brought quarterback Robert Griffin III to the nation's capital.

The Texans began the year with Super Bowl dreams. They never intended to compete for the No. 1 draft pick, but that's where they are going into Sunday's game against New England — a guaranteed 10th straight loss.

"Nobody in this league would have imagined that we'd be on a nine-game losing streak," cornerback Johnathan Joseph said, lamenting that the Texans haven't won since Sept. 15, when they beat Tennessee, 30-24, in overtime.

After they lose to the Patriots, the Texans will travel to Jacksonville for a Thursday night game televised by the NFL Network. It might be the worst prime-time game in history, given how bad both teams are.

If the Texans get swept by the Jaguars, they'll become part of Houston's infamous pro football history. An 11th

Dunbar expected to have season-ending surgery

By Tom Orsborn
San Antonio Express-News

The Dallas Cowboys will have to wait until next season to see if Lance Dunbar can repeat the scintillating performance he put together Thursday.

Dunbar will undergo season-ending surgery to repair a ligament in his left knee after he was injured in the fourth quarter of the Cowboys' 31-24 win over Oakland.

"It's a tough pill to swallow," he told the Dallas Morning News. "I'm hurting right now."

The setback put a damper on the Cowboys' extended holiday weekend. Dallas (7-5) is alone in first place in the NFC East at least until Sunday, when Philadelphia (6-5) hosts Arizona (7-4).

Dunbar, the diminutive second-year running back from North Texas, rushed for 82 yards on 12 carries and caught one pass for 12 yards against the Raiders. It was a breakout day that even overshadowed starting tailback DeMarco Murray's career-best three touchdowns.

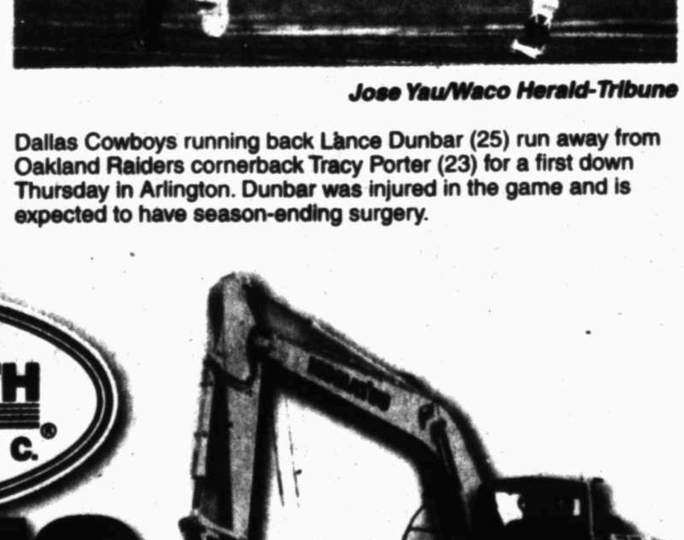

Dunbar didn't get his first carry in the Thanksgiving Day game until the third quarter. On his second attempt, he dashed 45 yards to the Oakland 25-yard line, a career-best jaunt that set up a touchdown.

But late in the fourth quarter, Dunbar went down in pain after Raiders cornerback Tracy Porter hit him in the backfield for a 5-yard loss. Dunbar walked off the field under his own power and later said in the locker room he thought he would be "all right" and would be ready to play against the Bears in Chicago on Dec. 9.

Owner Jerry Jones added to the optimistic outlook by calling Dunbar's injury a hyper-extension. But an MRI on Friday revealed something much more serious.

The Cowboys entered the season with high hopes for Dunbar, but he's battled injuries all season. He

Lady Chaps dominant in win against SWTJC

From staff reports

ODESSA — The Midland College women's basketball team had its most dominant performance of the season, blasting Southwest Texas Junior College during the first day of the Sonic Thanksgiving Classic at the OC Sports Center on Friday.

Seven different Lady Chaparrals, who led 70-14 at halftime, scored in double figures with Mattie Turner leading the way with 26 points, while Mary Savoy added 22. Nakisha Saintval put in 13, Ellyn Avery 11 and Rose Sol and Tanjanay Veiga each scored 10.

"It was an opportunity to get some girls that don't get to play a lot some minutes," MC coach Ron Jones said. "I think we tried to get that game over with as quick as we could and now we start getting ready for conference play."

The Lady Chaps play Cisco College at noon today and then move into Western Junior College Athletic Conference play at 5:45 p.m. Wednesday when they host rival Howard College at Chaparral Center.

Balanced scoring, strong defense deliver win for Chaps

From staff reports

PLANO — Four players scored in double figures as the Midland College men's basketball team cruised to a 98-56 victory against Carl Albert (Okla.) State College at the Collin County Thanksgiving Classic on Friday.

Demetric Austin and Herve Aholode each scored 19 points to lead the Chaparrals, while Kenan Guzonjic put in 16 and Darren Williams added 14.

"I'm pleased with the defensive effort and our attitude was good," MC coach Jordan Dreiling said. "It was a good overall performance for us. I think we got better (Friday night) so I'm happy with that."

The Chaps play Classic host Collin County at 8 p.m. today before beginning Western Junior College Athletic Conference play at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday against rival Howard College.

Big 2nd period leads to win for Jackalopes

From staff reports

ODESSA — Three second-period goals proved to be the difference in a 5-3 victory by the Odessa Jackalopes against the Rio Grande Valley Killer Bees at Ector County Coliseum on Friday.

With the score tied at 1-1, Alex Alger scored two goals in the second period with Leo Lumm also finding the back of the next in the frame, giving the Jacks a 4-1 advantage they wouldn't reliquish.

A goal by Razmuz Waxin-Engback midway through the third period gave the Jacks a 5-1 advantage before RGV managed to score twice in the match's final 10:40.

The Jacks (10-21, 20 points) host Corpus Christi for a pair of matches next weekend at Ector County Coliseum.

Ted Lilly retiring at 37 after 15 seasons

By Janie McCauley
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Ted Lilly would have loved to keep pitching — if his body would allow him to start every fifth day, and if he could stay off the disabled list.

Instead, the 37-year-old left-hander is retiring after 15 seasons because of further problems with his shoulder and back.

He went to winter ball in Venezuela this month with the hope his body would cooperate and he could find a major league job. But Lilly didn't feel right, and he made just one three-inning appearance during a 20-day stint in Valencia. He would have pitched again except he got food poisoning.

"It came to a point that, unfortunately, the reality set in where I was in terms of health and effectiveness," Lilly said by phone Friday. "Those combinations are what forced me to retire. If I felt I could still be productive and healthy, I would be playing, for sure. As of today, I don't think it's reasonable. I didn't believe I would be able to go out there and be productive and effective for a major league team and stay healthy to make 30 starts."

Kathy Willens/AP

Los Angeles Dodgers starting pitcher Ted Lilly winds up against the New York Mets during a game last season. Lilly announced his retirement from baseball on Friday after 15 seasons because of a troublesome shoulder and back.

He returned home to California on Wednesday night, and looks forward to spending time with his wife and two young children.

A two-time All-Star, Lilly was 130-113 with a 4.14 ERA in parts of 15 major league seasons. He pitched for Montreal, Oakland, Toronto, the New York Yankees, Chicago Cubs and Dodgers.

He has struggled with the idea of retirement for months, even though his shoulder didn't recover well. Designated for assignment by the Dodgers — the team that selected him in the 23rd round of the 1996 amateur draft — on July 25, Lily first tried rest.

Late in the season, he saw a spine specialist in Los Angeles and underwent surgery to cauterize the nerve endings in the right side of his neck. He was limited to 13 starts the past two seasons for Los Angeles because of injury problems, going 0-2 with a 5.09 ERA in five 2013 starts.

"As I sit here right now I'm OK but it's been difficult for weeks because I've had to deal with those thoughts and avoid those thoughts for a long time, and continue to talk myself into it that I could find a way to do it," he said.

"I really do not want to spend more time on the disabled list. I've spent so much time on that dreaded list. It really came down to a matter of being effective. If I believed could produce, I would still pitch. So, it was a decision that was forced on me at where I was physically in my career."

He expects to do coach down the line, probably at the youth baseball level initially.

Lilly is left to cherish the relationships and friendships he made with both teammates and opponents.

"I was so lucky, the game of baseball really changed my life," he said. "I know a lot of ex-players say that or people who are playing the game, and it's true. Baseball has been my life for so many years in some facet or the other I hope to continue to stay close to the game. It's a game that I love."

Kidd: Spilled drink was about 'trying to win'

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Jason Kidd said he was just "trying to win" when he intentionally spilled a drink on the court, a stunt that cost him $50,000.

The Brooklyn Nets coach was fined on Thursday, with the NBA saying he intentionally spilled his drink as a stall tactic.

He tried to avoid talking about it Friday, but when pressed, he relented.

"Paul (Pierce) got a great look, but the league fined me for something that I probably shouldn't have done," he said. "We'll move on."

Kidd bumped into Brooklyn reserve Tyshawn Taylor with 8.3 seconds left on Wednesday against the Lakers, causing his drink to spill. A video of the play showed Kidd seeming to ask Taylor to "hit me" as the guard walked toward the bench.

The Nets had time to draw up a play while the floor was being cleaned after the spill but still lost 99-94.

Kidd was asked if he regretted the unusual move and why he decided to go with it.

"It's about trying to win and those guys in that locker room, and I tried to put those guys in a position to get a basket, a good look and we did," he said.

blowout to the Mustangs in Abilene. Midland Christian won, 48-7, and dominated the Chargers at Shotwell Stadium a year ago.

The memory of that loss is something the Mustangs' players and coaches know will be on the Chargers' minds when the two teams face off today.

"They play hard, have a lot of pride in their program and pride in what they do," Mustang senior quarterback Mason McClendon said. "You know going in that you are going to have to play four quarters of smash mouth football the whole game. They are not going to go down easily."

Veteran Dallas Christian coach Mike Wheeler said this year's squad hasn't really thought much about last season's game because the 2012 team had 21 seniors, and this year's squad has a completely different makeup.

But he said if they are talking about the game, they are focusing on the positive aspects of it.

"Last year's game was one of the poorest games we played all year long, and you've got to give credit to Midland because they played well and we didn't execute well," Wheeler said. "But for us we don't talk about it as a negative, but look at it from the positive side. It's a new team and those guys that played last year don't even bring it up. (This year is) an opportunity for us to play a good football team."

If the Mustangs are challenged and face a tight game in the fourth quarter, McClendon said the team will be ready and will welcome that challenge.

"These guys are ready to go," McClendon said. "They are hungry for the battle. They are just going to go out and keep playing each play, and it's ingrained in them to play each play and the scoreboard doesn't matter."

TAPPS DIVISION II STATE SEMIFINAL
MIDLAND CHRISTIAN VS. DALLAS CHRISTIAN
When/where: 4 p.m. today, Bulldog Stadium, Abilene

On the web: www.midland-christianschool.org; www.bit.ly/mustangslive
Updates: www.mywest-texas.com
Records: Midland Christian 12-0, Dallas Christian 12-0
Last game: Midland Christian 46, Dallas Parish Episcopal 6; Dallas Christian 21, Fort Worth Christian 10
Last meeting/series: Midland Christian won, 48-7, in 2012 in a TAPPS Division II state semifinal. The Mustangs have won the last two meetings between the two schools.
Weather forecast: Partly cloudy with a temperature of 62 degrees expected at game time. Winds will be out of the South-Southwest at about 12 mph with no chance of precipitation.

Five things you need to know

■ Today marks the third time in the last four years the Mustangs and Chargers have met in the postseason. Midland Christian has won the two previous meetings, a 48-10 win in 2010 in the first round of the playoffs and last year's 48-7 victory in the state semifinals.

■ The Mustangs had one of their lowest scoring first quarters of the season last week against Dallas Parish Episcopal with six points, but then rebounded to score 40 in the next three quarters to complete the victory. Overall this season, the Mustangs are outscoring opponents by an average of 52-3.

■ Dallas Christian coach Mike Wheeler said that this year's squad may be one of the best teams that the Mustangs have had. "As long as you've got that guy at QB that is experienced like (Mason McClendon) and a three-year starter, you've got that leadership," Wheeler said. "That gives you a big advantage right off the bat, and they've got a lot of kids that are back from last year that are good football players."

■ Dallas Christian has a typical balanced attack this year, but have relied a little more on its rushing game this season. Junior running back Preston Nix has rushed for 1,401 yards and 23 touchdowns this season, and he's averaging just over 9.3 yards a carry. Senior quarterback Brody Frazier has completed 105 of 197 passes for 1,781 yards and 18 touchdowns with three interceptions.

■ The Chargers' defense is led by senior linebacker Stephen Forester, who has 68 tackles this season, and is a player the Mustangs are making sure they account for today. "He's one of the best players I've seen on film," quarterback Mason McClendon said.

STEERS

that the Yellow Jackets were in Big Spring territory at the 32. Stidham added a 12-yard run but faced a second-and-12 from the BSHS 22 when the quarterback was dropped for a 2-yard loss.

Stephenville coach Joseph Gillespie admitted he thought about going for the field goal try. But the coach added that if his team was going to attempt a pass, it better go to the sideline or out of bounds to stop the clock.

Instead, Stidham found a leaping Morrison in the left side of the end zone for what proved to be the game-winning touchdown with 4.3 seconds left in the game.

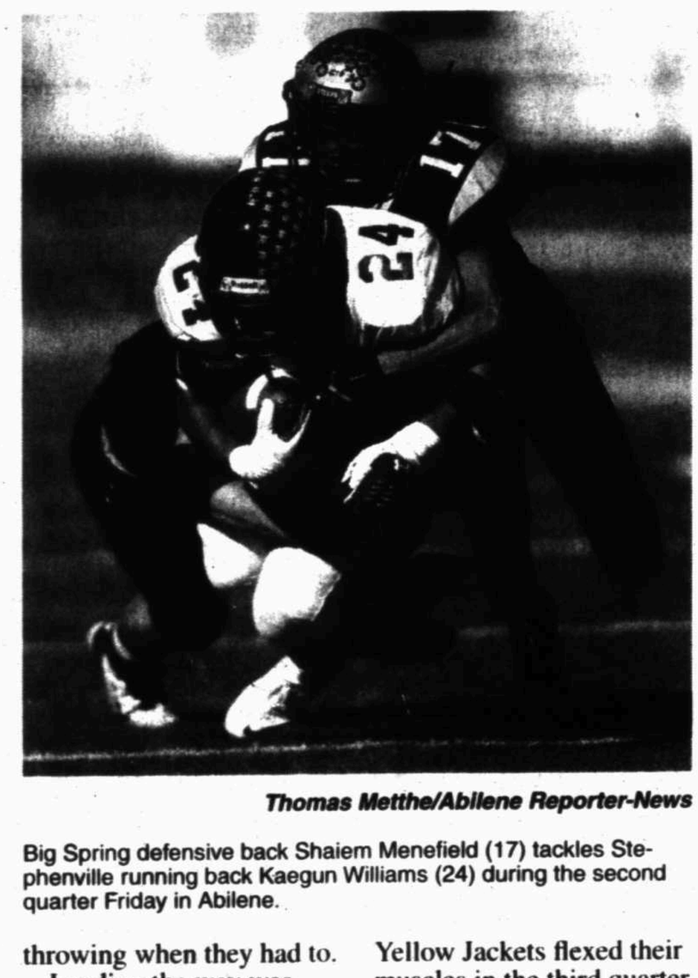

The 6-foot-4 junior quarterback said he didn't even see the touchdown grab.

"I threw it and got hit and all I saw was his foot touching down," said Stidham, who threw for 394 yards and four touchdowns. "I was like wow! I didn't think it was real. You've got under 30 seconds left in the game and you drive all the way down the field and score, that's pretty sweet."

Gillespie said his team always believes it's going to win the game, especially with Stidham at quarterback.

"He's special, but there are 10 others out there with him that gave him the opportunity," Gillespie said. "I hate it for (Big Spring) because those kids over there played their hearts out."

The Steers had the perfect game plan going into this game, and that was to keep the ball away from the Yellow Jackets by running the football and throwing when they had to.

Thomas Metthe/Abilene Reporter-News

Big Spring defensive back Shaiem Menefield (17) tackles Stephenville running back Kaegun Williams (24) during the second quarter Friday in Abilene.

Leading the way was Tannehill, who rushed for a touchdown and 108 of his yards in the first half when Big Spring took a 16-14 lead.

"He can play," said Stidham of Tannehill said. "I didn't really watch film on him so I didn't really know what to expect, but that kid can play."

Ritchey said his team had to pull out all the stops considering that his staff couldn't find any Stephenville weaknesses on film

"We just came in prepared to do everything," Ritchey said. "We had to run inside, we had to throw, the kids did it all. Somehow it wasn't enough."

Behind Stidham and freshman running back Kaegun Williams, the Yellow Jackets flexed their muscles in the third quarter as they built a 27-16 lead behind a Williams' TD reception and an 18-yard TD run.

However, the Steers fought back behind Hunter Hill, who provided some big plays, beginning with a 30-yard touchdown run late in the third quarter to pull the Steers to within 27-23.

Hill later added a 41-yard touchdown run to answer a fourth TD by Williams to pull Big Spring to within 34-30 with 10 minutes remaining.

"I really wanted to win," said Hill, who had 118 yards rushing on 11 carries. "I didn't want to stop. I just wanted to keep running, moving my feet and I wanted to score, and I did."

Big Spring added that last touchdown by Tannehill to capitalize on a Stephenville fumble at Big Spring 6, but unfortunately for the Steers, the Yellow Jackets proved to have enough firepower to overcome three turnovers inside the BSHS 10.

"They're big-play people," Ritchey said. "They can drive it down your throat and they can do it all on offense. They're a tough team to play against. You have to commit to stopping the run and you hope they don't complete the big passes, which they did some. We had it."

Ted Lilly retiring at 37 after 15 seasons

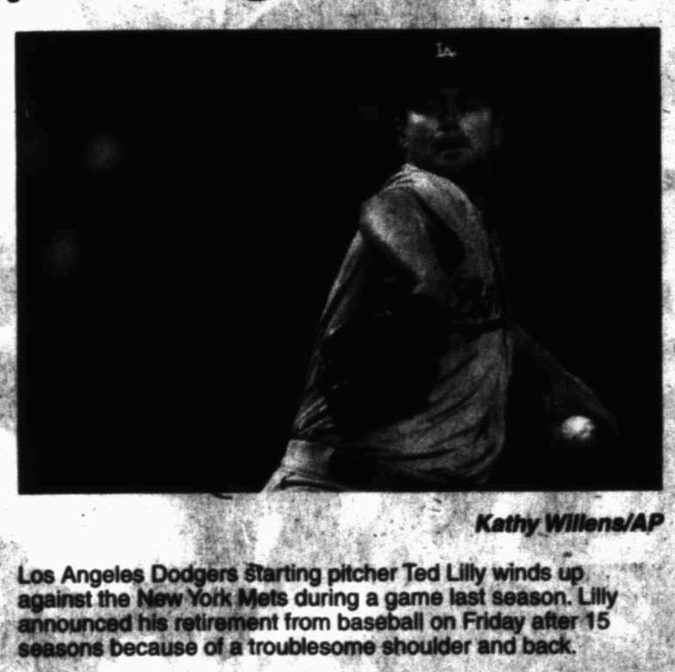

By Janie McCauley
Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Ted Lilly would have loved to keep pitching — if his body would allow him to start every fifth day, and if he could stay off the disabled list.

Instead, the 37-year-old left-hander is retiring after 15 seasons because of further problems with his shoulder and back.

He went to winter ball in Venezuela this month with the hope his body would cooperate and he could find a major league job. But Lilly didn't feel right, and he made just one three-inning appearance during a 20-day stint in Valencia. He would have pitched again except he got food poisoning.

"It came to a point that, unfortunately, the reality set in where I was in terms of health and effectiveness," Lilly said by phone Friday. "Those combinations are what forced me to retire. If I felt I could still be productive and healthy, I would be playing, for sure. As of today, I don't think it's reasonable. I didn't believe I would be able to go out there and be productive and effective for a major league team and stay healthy to make 30 starts."

Kathy Willens/AP

Los Angeles Dodgers starting pitcher Ted Lilly winds up against the New York Mets during a game last season. Lilly announced his retirement from baseball on Friday after 15 seasons because of a troublesome shoulder and back.

He returned home to California on Wednesday night, and looks forward to spending time with his wife and two young children.

A two-time All-Star, Lilly was 130-113 with a 4.14 ERA in parts of 15 major league seasons. He pitched for Montreal, Oakland, Toronto, the New York Yankees, Chicago Cubs and Dodgers.

He has struggled with the idea of retirement for months, even though his shoulder didn't recover well. Designated for assignment by the Dodgers — the team that selected him in the 23rd round of the 1996 amateur draft — on July 25, Lily first tried rest.

Late in the season, he saw a spine specialist in Los Angeles and underwent surgery to cauterize the nerve endings in the right side of his neck. He was limited to 13 starts the past two seasons for Los Angeles because of injury problems, going 0-2 with a 5.09 ERA in five 2013 starts.

"As I sit here right now I'm OK but it's been difficult for weeks because I've had to deal with those thoughts and avoid those thoughts for a long time, and continue to talk myself into it that I could find a way to do it," he said.

"I really do not want to spend more time on the disabled list. I've spent so much time on that dreaded list. It really came down to a matter of being effective. If I believed could produce, I would still pitch. So, it was a decision that was forced on me at where I was physically in my career."

He expects to do coach down the line, probably at the youth baseball level initially.

Lilly is left to cherish the relationships and friendships he made with both teammates and opponents.

"I was so lucky, the game of baseball really changed my life," he said. "I know a lot of ex-players say that or people who are playing the game, and it's true. Baseball has been my life for so many years in some facet or the other I hope to continue to stay close to the game. It's a game that I love."

Kidd: Spilled drink was about 'trying to win'

By Kristie Rieken
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Jason Kidd said he was just "trying to win" when he intentionally spilled a drink on the court, a stunt that cost him $50,000.

The Brooklyn Nets coach was fined on Thursday, with the NBA saying he intentionally spilled his drink as a stall tactic.

He tried to avoid talking about it Friday, but when pressed, he relented.

"Paul (Pierce) got a great look, but the league fined me for something that I probably shouldn't have done," he said. "We'll move on."

Kidd bumped into Brooklyn reserve Tyshawn Taylor with 8.3 seconds left on Wednesday against the Lakers, causing his drink to spill. A video of the play showed Kidd seeming to ask Taylor to "hit me" as the guard walked toward the bench.

The Nets had time to draw up a play while the floor was being cleaned after the spill but still lost 99-94.

Kidd was asked if he regretted the unusual move and why he decided to go with it.

"It's about trying to win and those guys in that locker room, and I tried to put those guys in a position to get a basket, a good look and we did," he said.

blowout to the Mustangs in Abilene. Midland Christian won, 48-7, and dominated the Chargers at Shotwell Stadium a year ago.

The memory of that loss is something the Mustangs' players and coaches know will be on the Chargers' minds when the two teams face off today.

"They play hard, have a lot of pride in their program and pride in what they do," Mustang senior quarterback Mason McClendon said. "You know going in that you are going to have to play four quarters of smash mouth football the whole game. They are not going to go down easily."

Veteran Dallas Christian coach Mike Wheeler said this year's squad hasn't really thought much about last season's game because the 2012 team had 21 seniors, and this year's squad has a completely different makeup.

But he said if they are talking about the game, they are focusing on the positive aspects of it.

"Last year's game was one of the poorest games we played all year long, and you've got to give credit to Midland because they played well and we didn't execute well," Wheeler said. "But for us we don't talk about it as a negative, but look at it from the positive side. It's a new team and those guys that played last year don't even bring it up. (This year is) an opportunity for us to play a good football team."

If the Mustangs are challenged and face a tight game in the fourth quarter, McClendon said the team will be ready and will welcome that challenge.

"These guys are ready to go," McClendon said. "They are hungry for the battle. They are just going to go out and keep playing each play, and it's ingrained in them to play each play and the scoreboard doesn't matter."

TAPPS DIVISION II STATE SEMIFINAL
MIDLAND CHRISTIAN VS. DALLAS CHRISTIAN
When/where: 4 p.m. today, Bulldog Stadium, Abilene

On the web: www.midland-christianschool.org; www.bit.ly/mustangslive
Updates: www.mywesttexas.com
Records: Midland Christian 12-0, Dallas Christian 12-0
Last game: Midland Christian 48, Dallas Parish Episcopal 6; Dallas Christian 21, Fort Worth Christian 10
Last meeting/series: Midland Christian won, 48-7, in 2012 in a TAPPS Division II state semifinal. The Mustangs have won the last two meetings between the two schools.
Weather forecast: Partly cloudy with a temperature of 62 degrees expected at game time. Winds will be out of the South-Southwest at about 12 mph with no chance of precipitation.

Five things you need to know

- Today marks the third time in the last four years the Mustangs and Chargers have met in the postseason. Midland Christian has won the two previous meetings, a 48-10 win in 2010 in the first round of the playoffs and last year's 48-7 victory in the state semifinals.
- The Mustangs had one of their lowest scoring first quarters of the season last week against Dallas Parish Episcopal with six points, but then rebounded to score 40 in the next three quarters to complete the victory. Overall this season, the Mustangs are outscoring opponents by an average of 52-3.
- Dallas Christian coach Mike Wheeler said that this year's squad may be one of the best teams that the Mustangs have had. "As long as you've got that guy at QB that is experienced like (Mason McClendon) and a three-year starter, you've got that leadership," Wheeler said. "That gives you a big advantage right off the bat, and they've got a lot of kids that are back from last year that are good football players."
- Dallas Christian has a typical balanced attack this year, but have relied a little more on its rushing game this season. Junior running back Preston Nix has rushed for 1,401 yards and 23 touchdowns this season, and he's averaging just over 9.3 yards a carry. Senior quarterback Brody Frazier has completed 105 of 197 passes for 1,781 yards and 18 touchdowns with three interceptions.
- The Chargers' defense is led by senior linebacker Stephen Forester, who has 68 tackles this season, and is a player the Mustangs are making sure they account for today. "He's one of the best players I've seen on film," quarterback Mason McClendon said.

STEERS

that the Yellow Jackets were in Big Spring territory at the 32. Stidham added a 12-yard run but faced a second-and-12 from the BSHS 22 when the quarterback was dropped for a 2-yard loss.

Stephenville coach Joseph Gillespie admitted he thought about going for the field goal try. But the coach added that if his team was going to attempt a pass, it better go to the sideline or out of bounds to stop the clock.

Instead, Stidham found a leaping Morrison in the left side of the end zone for what proved to be the game-winning touchdown with 4.3 seconds left in the game.

The 6-foot-4 junior quarterback said he didn't even see the touchdown grab.

"I threw it and got hit and all I saw was his foot touching down," said Stidham, who threw for 394 yards and four touchdowns. "I was like wow! I didn't think it was real. You've got under 30 seconds left in the game and you drive all the way down the field and score, that's pretty sweet."

Gillespie said his team always believes it's going to win the game, especially with Stidham at quarterback.

"He's special, but there are 10 others out there with him that gave him the opportunity," Gillespie said. "I hate it for (Big Spring) because those kids over there played their hearts out."

The Steers had the perfect game plan going into this game, and that was to keep the ball away from the Yellow Jackets by running the football and throwing when they had to.

Thomas Metthe/Abilene Reporter-News

Big Spring defensive back Shaiem Menefield (17) tackles Stephenville running back Kaegun Williams (24) during the second quarter Friday in Abilene.

Leading the way was Tannehill, who rushed for a touchdown and 108 of his yards in the first half when Big Spring took a 16-14 lead.

"He can play," said Stidham of Tannehill said. "I didn't really watch film on him so I didn't really know what to expect, but that kid can play."

Ritchey said his team had to pull out all the stops considering that his staff couldn't find any Stephenville weaknesses on film.

"We just came in prepared to do everything," Ritchey said. "We had to run inside, we had to throw, the kids did it all. Somehow it wasn't enough."

Behind Stidham and freshman running back Kaegun Williams, the Yellow Jackets flexed their muscles in the third quarter as they built a 27-16 lead behind a Williams' TD reception and an 18-yard TD run.

However, the Steers fought back behind Hunter Hill, who provided some big plays, beginning with a 30-yard touchdown run late in the third quarter to pull the Steers to within 27-23.

Hill later added a 41-yard touchdown run to answer a fourth TD by Williams to pull Big Spring to within 34-30 with 10 minutes remaining.

"I really wanted to win," said Hill, who had 118 yards rushing on 11 carries. "I didn't want to stop. I just wanted to keep running, moving my feet and I wanted to score, and I did."

Big Spring added that last touchdown by Tannehill to capitalize on a Stephenville fumble at Big Spring 6, but unfortunately for the Steers, the Yellow Jackets proved to have enough firepower to overcome three turnovers inside the BSHS 10.

"They're big-play people," Ritchey said. "They can drive it down your throat and they can do it all on offense. They're a tough team to play against. You have to commit to stopping the run and you hope they don't complete the big passes, which they did some. We had it."

NO. 1 MICHIGAN STATE 98 MOUNT ST. MARY'S 65

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Keith Appling came off the bench to score 17 points and Denzel Valentine and Travis Trice added 15 apiece Friday to power Michigan State to a 98-65 victory over Mount St. Mary's and help the Spartans continue their domination of non-conference opponents at home during November.

The last time the Spartans (7-0) lost at home in November was to a David Robinson-led Navy team on Nov. 29, 1986. Michigan State has won 74 straight games against unranked non-conference opponents at home.

NO. 4 ARIZONA 72 NO. 6 DUKE 66

NEW YORK — Nick Johnson scored all but two of his 15 points in the second half and No. 4 Arizona beat No. 6 Duke in the championship game of the NIT Season Tip-Off.

The game was expected to be a matchup of two of the best freshmen in the country and, although Aaron Gordon of Arizona and Jabari Parker of Duke didn't spend a lot of time covering each other, they were both key factors in the outcome.

NO. 5 OKLAHOMA STATE 69 BUTLER 67

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Marcus Smart scored 17 points to help the Cowboys survive a major scare against Butler in an Old Spice Classic semifinal.

Oklahoma State (7-0) again came out flat to start the second half one day after watching a 23-point halftime lead dwindle to four with 3 minutes to play before beating Purdue 97-87. The Cowboys will play in Sunday night's championship against No. 21 Memphis, which beat LSU 76-69.

NO. 7 OHIO STATE 99 NORTH FLORIDA 64

COLUMBUS, Ohio — LaQuinton Ross broke out of a frigid shooting spell by scoring 17 points and No. 7 Ohio State rode a 19-point first-half run to a victory over North Florida.

Amir Williams and Amedeo Della each hit career highs for the Buckeyes (6-0), with 18 and 17 points, respectively. Aaron Craft added 16 points, making his first 3-pointer of the season, while Lenzelle Smith Jr. had 10.

NO. 9 LOUISVILLE 69 SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI 38

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Chris Jones came off the bench to score 18 points, including four 3-pointers, and No. 9 Louisville bounced back from its first loss to roll past Southern Mississippi.

Five days after a lackluster effort in a 93-84 loss to North Carolina, the Cardinals (6-1) got a better effort on both ends with the help of two new starters. Freshman point guard Terry Rozier got things going offensively by making his first three from beyond the arc en route to nine points, while redshirt freshman center Mangok Mathiang had seven rebounds and three blocks.

NO. 14 OREGON 85 PACIFIC 62

EUGENE, Ore. — Mike Moser scored 19 points to lead No. 14 Oregon past Pacific.

Johnathan Loyd had 13 assists, tied with four others for the second-most ever by an Oregon player.

NO. 15 FLORIDA 67 FLORIDA STATE 66

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Dorian Finney-Smith made a free throw with 1.3 seconds left, lifting No. 15 Florida over rival Florida State.

Finney-Smith struggled all night from the field, missing 10 of 12 shots, but came up big in the clutch.

NO. 21 MEMPHIS 76 LSU 69

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. — Austin Nichols scored 19 points and Chris Crawford had 17 to lead No. 21 Memphis to victory over LSU in a semifinal at the Old Spice Classic.

Chicago left wing Patrick Sharp (10) scores goal against Dallas goalie Kari Lehtonen (32) during the shootout of Friday's game in Dallas.

DALLAS — Ben Smith scored in the 11th round of a wild shootout and the Chicago Blackhawks finally beat the Dallas Stars 2-1 Friday night for their fifth straight victory.

Chicago's Patrick Sharp and Dallas' Rich Peverley had the only goals through the first 10 rounds of the tiebreaker. Each of them scored in regulation, too.

It was the longest shootout in the NHL since Tampa Bay beat the New York Rangers in 11 rounds on Dec. 23, 2010, according to STATS. The Lightning won that game 4-3 with a 3-2 edge in the tiebreaker.

Sharp tied it 1-all at 7:21 of the third period. Peverley scored at 16:40 of the first.

Stars defenseman Stephane Robidas broke his right leg in the second period. He was wheeled off the ice on a stretcher and taken to the hospital.

While helping to kill off a Dallas penalty, the 36-year-old Robidas slid hard into the boards beyond the goal line. He stayed down on the ice holding his leg just below the knee.

Robidas is in his 11th season with the Stars, the longest tenure on the team, and his 14th NHL season. In his absence, Dallas played only five defensemen.

Chicago has won six straight against the Stars, outscoring them 27-9, and five in a row at Dallas dating to Oct. 7, 2011.

Duncan Keith set up Sharp's goal with his 21st assist.

In the first period, Shawn Horcoff beat Blackhawks goalie Corey Crawford to a loose puck behind the net and passed to Peverley skating down the slot.

Crawford recovered from that goal, stopped Alex Chiasson on a penalty shot early in the second and blanked Dallas the rest of the way en route to his 100th NHL win.

Crawford and Stars goalie Kari Lehtonen combined to stop 16 consecutive shootout attempts until Smith connected.

The game was a defensive struggle.

Neither team put a shot on goal until 2 minutes into the game. Lehtonen later stopped point-blank attempts by Brent Seabrook and Smith.

Dallas' best scoring chance was on a backhand by Jamie Benn at the 13-minute mark until Peverley put the Stars ahead.

Dallas had an 11-9 advantage in shots during the first period.

After the penalty shot, the Stars had another good chance 10 1/2 minutes into the second. Crawford reached up to catch Ryan Garbutt's drive before it reached the upper right corner of the net.

No one went to the penalty box until Peverley was called for tripping at 11:31 of the second.

Each team had one shot on goal in overtime, which ended with Dallas shooting a puck wide right.

NOTES: Sharp's goal was his fifth point in two games against the Stars this season. He had four assists at Dallas on Nov. 9. ... At times, a large contingent of Chicago fans in the sold-out arena chanted "Let's go Hawks!"

DUNBAR

missed Week 1 with a foot injury left over from the preseason and missed two games last month with a gimpy hamstring.

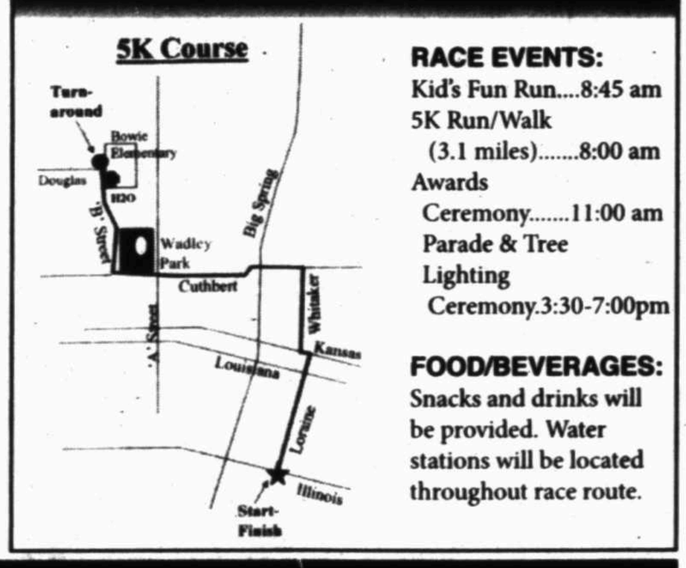

For the season, Dunbar has 150 yards on 30 carries and seven catches for 59 yards.

With Dunbar out, the Cowboys will likely turn to rookie Joseph Randle to spell Murray. A fifth-round pick from Oklahoma State, Randle started the two games in October while both Murray and Dunbar were out with injuries.

While the offense is getting thinner, the defense is expected to be bolstered next week by the return of middle linebacker Sean Lee. He said after the win over the Raiders that he would be "surprised" if he isn't ready to play against Chicago after missing the last two games with a hamstring injury.

Even without Lee, the Cowboys' last-ranked defense held the Raiders' fifth-ranked rushing attack to just 50 yards.

TEXANS

consecutive loss would tie the 1972 Oilers (1-13) and 1994 Oilers (2-14) for the longest in a single season in our city's history.

Jobs on the line

As the Texans prepare for a third game against New England in two seasons, including last season's playoff loss at Gillette Stadium, they have every intention of winning. But that's been their objective during a losing streak in which they've lost by 21, 3, 31, 25, 1, 3, 3, 5 and 7 points.

That's six defeats by seven or fewer points.

"Obviously, we've been struggling, and it's been very difficult," coach Gary Kubiak said. "We've got to work our way out of this thing. There'd be nothing better than for us to play our best (against New England), and we're going to have to. Our guys understand that. We've got some big challenges to prepare for. Trying to push through and getting ready to play these guys makes it pretty tough."

Kubiak and his assistants are coaching for their jobs. They don't want to finish with the league's worst record. Neither do their players, and not because of the embarrassment. Changes are inevitable, of course, but the worst teams undergo massive changes.

Right now, the Texans are tied with Jacksonville and Atlanta for the worst record in the league. Minnesota (2-8-1) and Washington (3-8) are close behind.

The Texans (12-4), Falcons (13-3) and Redskins (10-6) won their divisions last season, and the Vikings (10-6) earned a wild-card playoff berth.

If the draft were today, the Jaguars would own the first pick. The Texans would choose second.

Tough road ahead

The Texans have a difficult schedule. After New England and Jacksonville, they visit Indianapolis, where they've never won, before hosting Denver and closing at Tennessee.

"We've still got a lot of good teams to play," outside linebacker Brooks Reed said. "This team still has a lot of pride to play for. We're still putting it all on the line."

Of those five remaining opponents, only the Jaguars aren't competing for the playoffs.

Jacksonville has an easier schedule than the Texans. After playing at Cleveland, the Jaguars host the Texans, Bills and Titans before finishing at Indianapolis. Only the Colts have a winning record.

By the time the Jaguars play at Lucas Oil Stadium, the Colts should have the AFC South title secured and probably will rest their starters.

The Falcons, who owned home-field advantage in the NFC playoffs last season, have road games against Buffalo and Green Bay in their next two games. They host the Redskins and close at San Francisco and at home against Carolina.

The Vikings host Chicago, visit Baltimore, host Philadelphia, visit Cincinnati and host Detroit.

The Redskins host the Giants and Kansas City, travel to Atlanta, host Dallas and close at the Giants. The loudest cheers when the Redskins lose will be coming from St. Louis.

As for the Texans, there's no joy in defeat.

consecutive loss would tie the 1972 Oilers (1-13) and 1994 Oilers (2-14) for the longest in a single season in our city's history.'

Jobs on the line

As the Texans prepare for a third game against New England in two seasons, including last season's playoff loss at Gillette Stadium, they have every intention of winning. But that's been their objective during a losing streak in which they've lost by 21, 3, 31, 25, 1, 3, 3, 5 and 7 points.

That's six defeats by seven or fewer points.

"Obviously, we've been struggling, and it's been very difficult," coach Gary Kubiak said. "We've got to work our way out of this thing. There'd be nothing better than for us to play our best (against New England), and we're going to have to. Our guys understand that. We've got some big challenges to prepare for. Trying to push through and getting ready to play these guys makes it pretty tough."

Kubiak and his assistants are coaching for their jobs. They don't want to finish with the league's worst record. Neither do their players, and not because of the embarrassment. Changes are inevitable, of course, but the worst teams undergo massive changes.

Right now, the Texans are tied with Jacksonville and Atlanta for the worst record in the league. Minnesota (2-8-1) and Washington (3-8) are close behind.

The Texans (12-4), Falcons (13-3) and Redskins (10-6) won their divisions last season, and the Vikings (10-6) earned a wild-card playoff berth.

If the draft were today, the Jaguars would own the first pick. The Texans would choose second.

Tough road ahead

The Texans have a difficult schedule. After New England and Jacksonville, they visit Indianapolis, where they've never won, before hosting Denver and closing at Tennessee.

"We've still got a lot of good teams to play," outside linebacker Brooks Reed said. "This team still has a lot of pride to play for. We're still putting it all on the line."

Of those five remaining opponents, only the Jaguars aren't competing for the playoffs.

Jacksonville has an easier schedule than the Texans. After playing at Cleveland, the Jaguars host the Texans, Bills and Titans before finishing at Indianapolis. Only the Colts have a winning record.

By the time the Jaguars play at Lucas Oil Stadium, the Colts should have the AFC South title secured and probably will rest their starters.

The Falcons, who owned home-field advantage in the NFC playoffs last season, have road games against Buffalo and Green Bay in their next two games. They host the Redskins and close at San Francisco and at home against Carolina.

The Vikings host Chicago, visit Baltimore, host Philadelphia, visit Cincinnati and host Detroit.

The Redskins host the Giants and Kansas City, travel to Atlanta, host Dallas and close at the Giants. The loudest cheers when the Redskins lose will be coming from St. Louis.

As for the Texans, there's no joy in defeat.

consecutive loss would tie the 1972 Oilers (1-13) and 1994 Oilers (2-14) for the longest in a single season in our city's history.

Jobs on the line

As the Texans prepare for a third game against New England in two seasons, including last season's playoff loss at Gillette Stadium, they have every intention of winning. But that's been their objective during a losing streak in which they've lost by 21, 3, 31, 25, 1, 3, 3, 5 and 7 points.

That's six defeats by seven or fewer points.

"Obviously, we've been struggling, and it's been very difficult," coach Gary Kubiak said. "We've got to work our way out of this thing. There'd be nothing better than for us to play our best (against New England), and we're going to have to. Our guys understand that. We've got some big challenges to prepare for. Trying to push through and getting ready to play these guys makes it pretty tough."

Kubiak and his assistants are coaching for their jobs. They don't want to finish with the league's worst record. Neither do their players, and not because of the embarrassment. Changes are inevitable, of course, but the worst teams undergo massive changes.

Right now, the Texans are tied with Jacksonville and Atlanta for the worst record in the league. Minnesota (2-8-1) and Washington (3-8) are close behind.

The Texans (12-4), Falcons (13-3) and Redskins (10-6) won their divisions last season, and the Vikings (10-6) earned a wild-card playoff berth.

If the draft were today, the Jaguars would own the first pick. The Texans would choose second.

Tough road ahead

The Texans have a difficult schedule. After New England and Jacksonville, they visit Indianapolis, where they've never won, before hosting Denver and closing at Tennessee.

"We've still got a lot of good teams to play," outside linebacker Brooks Reed said. "This team still has a lot of pride to play for. We're still putting it all on the line."

Of those five remaining opponents, only the Jaguars aren't competing for the playoffs.

Jacksonville has an easier schedule than the Texans. After playing at Cleveland, the Jaguars host the Texans, Bills and Titans before finishing at Indianapolis. Only the Colts have a winning record.

By the time the Jaguars play at Lucas Oil Stadium, the Colts should have the AFC South title secured and probably will rest their starters.

The Falcons, who owned home-field advantage in the NFC playoffs last season, have road games against Buffalo and Green Bay in their next two games. They host the Redskins and close at San Francisco and at home against Carolina.

The Vikings host Chicago, visit Baltimore, host Philadelphia, visit Cincinnati and host Detroit.

The Redskins host the Giants and Kansas City, travel to Atlanta, host Dallas and close at the Giants. The loudest cheers when the Redskins lose will be coming from St. Louis.

As for the Texans, there's no joy in defeat.

consecutive loss would tie the 1972 Oilers (1-13) and 1994 Oilers (2-14) for the longest in a single season in our city's history.

Jobs on the line

As the Texans prepare for a third game against New England in two seasons, including last season's playoff loss at Gillette Stadium, they have every intention of winning. But that's been their objective during a losing streak in which they've lost by 21, 3, 31, 25, 1, 3, 3, 5 and 7 points.

That's six defeats by seven or fewer points.

"Obviously, we've been struggling, and it's been very difficult," coach Gary Kubiak said. "We've got to work our way out of this thing. There'd be nothing better than for us to play our best (against New England), and we're going to have to. Our guys understand that. We've got some big challenges to prepare for. Trying to push through and getting ready to play these guys makes it pretty tough."

Kubiak and his assistants are coaching for their jobs. They don't want to finish with the league's worst record. Neither do their players, and not because of the embarrassment. Changes are inevitable, of course, but the worst teams undergo massive changes.

Right now, the Texans are tied with Jacksonville and Atlanta for the worst record in the league. Minnesota (2-8-1) and Washington (3-8) are close behind.

The Texans (12-4), Falcons (13-3) and Redskins (10-6) won their divisions last season, and the Vikings (10-6) earned a wild-card playoff berth.

If the draft were today, the Jaguars would own the first pick. The Texans would choose second.

Tough road ahead

The Texans have a difficult schedule. After New England and Jacksonville, they visit Indianapolis, where they've never won, before hosting Denver and closing at Tennessee.

"We've still got a lot of good teams to play," outside linebacker Brooks Reed said. "This team still has a lot of pride to play for. We're still putting it all on the line."

Of those five remaining opponents, only the Jaguars aren't competing for the playoffs.

Jacksonville has an easier schedule than the Texans. After playing at Cleveland, the Jaguars host the Texans, Bills and Titans before finishing at Indianapolis. Only the Colts have a winning record.

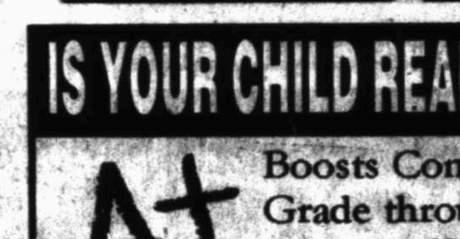

By the time the Jaguars play at Lucas Oil Stadium, the Colts should have the AFC South title secured and probably will rest their starters.

The Falcons, who owned home-field advantage in the NFC playoffs last season, have road games against Buffalo and Green Bay in their next two games. They host the Redskins and close at San Francisco and at home against Carolina.

The Vikings host Chicago, visit Baltimore, host Philadelphia, visit Cincinnati and host Detroit.

The Redskins host the Giants and Kansas City, travel to Atlanta, host Dallas and close at the Giants. The loudest cheers when the Redskins lose will be coming from St. Louis.

As for the Texans, there's no joy in defeat.

No. 9 Bears still have plenty to play for against TCU

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

FORT WORTH — The national championship dream, the school-record 13-game winning streak and unblemished record are all gone for No. 9 Baylor.

But there is still plenty to play for in the final two games for the Bears (9-1, 6-1 Big 12), who are at TCU today.

"It's nothing hard about getting refocused," coach Art Briles said.

Baylor is still in contention for its first Big 12 title and could still get into a BCS bowl, even after that stunning 49-17 loss at Oklahoma State last weekend.

"We still have a lot to play for. We've got to go out and win these next two games," quarterback Bryce Petty said. "There are still goals and ambitions that we set prior to the season that we can still accomplish."

The game

NO. 9 BAYLOR AT TCU

When: 2:30 p.m. today
Location: Amon Carter Stadium, Fort Worth
TV: ESPN2

TCU (4-7, 2-6) closes out its sophomore season in the Big 12, and will miss out on a bowl game for the first time since 2004 — their only previous losing record in coach Gary Patterson's 13 seasons. Their bowl chances ended in their last game two weeks ago at Kansas State, which kicked a game-winning field goal with 3 seconds left.

"Of course you want to end it in a bowl game, which we don't have that right now," Horned Frogs senior cornerback Jason Verrett said. "But I'd be happy with a win this Saturday."

Here are five things to watch when Baylor and TCU play for the sixth time since 2006, but as conference rivals for only the second time since 1995:

STILL ON RECORD PACE: Even after being held to 17 points last week, Baylor is averaging 56.8 points a game, still ahead of Army's NCAA record of 56.0 in 1944 and the Big 12 record 51.1 by Oklahoma in 2008. The Bears' 588 points are their most in any 10-game span in schoo ' history and more than the Bears scored in 66 of the last 68 full seasons. Their 661.6 total yards per game is ahead of the NCAA record 624.9 yards per game Houston had in 1989.

TIGHT SERIES: TCU has a 51-50-7 lead in the rivalry that dates back to a scoreless tie in 1899 when both schools were still located in Waco. The main campuses are now separated by about 100 miles. Since Baylor won the last Southwest Conference game between the two teams in 1995, TCU has won four of the last five meetings — the last two in Waco. TCU scored 21 points in the fourth quarter of a 49-21 win last season

JOHNNY FOOTBALL'S SWAN SONG?

Gerald Herbert/AP

Texas A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel scrambles for yardage as LSU defensive tackle Anthony Johnson pursues him during last week's game in Baton Rouge, La. Manziel could be playing in his final home game as an Aggie today against Missouri.

Manziel closes in on exiting (an enormous) stage left

By Brent Zwerneman
San Antonio Express-News

"I like large parties. They're so intimate. At small parties there isn't any privacy." — Jordan Baker in F. Scott Fitzgerald's The Great Gatsby.

COLLEGE STATION — While Johnny Manziel's Texas A&M teammates answered one question after another about the reigning Heisman Trophy winner, a figure with a gray hoodie pulled far over his head lurked about three first downs away in the Bright Football Complex.

Manziel hasn't attended a single A&M football weekly press conference on Tuesdays this season — in leaving all of the Manziel questions to folks not named Manziel — but he has been in the proverbial ballpark at least once. From a distance, the mysterious figure soaked in the setting several weeks ago — much as the enigmatic Jay Gatsby once did at his own get-togethers in the literary jewel — and then Manziel quietly went about his business.

The game

NO. 19 TEXAS A&M AT NO. 5 MISSOURI

When: 6:45 p.m. today
Location: Faurot Field, Columbia, Mo.
TV: ESPN

A business that's wrapping up in Aggieland, and one he's ready to lug into the NFL.

Gatsby once told a friend, "Summer's almost over. It's sad, isn't it? Makes you want to ... reach out and hold it back."

Aggieland's own Gatsby has that choice to "hold it back" and continue his college career, but all signs point to the No. 21 Aggies' 6:45 p.m. contest at No. 5 Missouri tonight as his final regular season game in an A&M uniform — primarily because he doesn't consider it a true choice, in that it's his time to give the top level of football a shot.

Manziel didn't grow up dreaming of being an A&M quarterback, he grew up in Tyler and Kerrville fantasizing about being an NFL quarterback. And despite his occasional wistfulness, and lurking in the shadows of A&M's media shindigs, he believes it's time to try and cash in on that childhood fantasy.

Manziel, whose chances for a repeat Heisman victory likely faded with the Aggies' 34-10 setback at LSU a week ago, has attended a handful of post-game press conferences, when the questions are all about the previous three hours. So, with his absence on Tuesdays, his teammates are left to talk about his previous two years.

"I love answering questions about Johnny," contended A&M senior running back Ben Malena, a press conference stalwart the entire season. "Not many people get to play with the best player in the country on a week-in, week-out basis. Every accolade and award he's won — and I know what he's about and what he works like — he deserves."

This past offseason, Manziel narrowed his goals for his sophomore swing to two words: "National championship."

That's long gone with A&M's three losses, and there's little for this team to play for outside of trying to win at least 10 games for a second consecutive season. Oh, and there's one more thing: Trying to send one of the game's best single-season players in history (he's the SEC record holder with 5,116 yards in 2012) out a winner.

Manziel, a likely first rounder in this spring's draft, addressed as much following the 24-point whipping by LSU in Baton Rouge, La.

"It's not time to get down on these guys and pack it in," Manziel vowed. "We're sitting here 8-3.

TODAY'S PREVIEW CAPSULES

FROM WIRE REPORTS

Texas

NO. 9 BAYLOR (9-1, 6-1 BIG 12) AT TCU (4-7, 2-6), 2:30 P.M. (ESPN2)

LINE: Baylor by 13.

SERIES RECORD: TCU leads 51-50-7.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Baylor's national championship hopes ended with a 49-17 loss last weekend at Oklahoma State, but the Bears can still share in their first Big 12 title — or even clinch it outright and get a Fiesta Bowl bid by winning their last two games if the Cowboys lost their season finale. The Horned Frogs will wrap up their first losing season since going 5-6 in 2004, but the last time they finished with fewer than five wins was a 1-10 record in 1997.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Baylor: QB Bryce Petty has 26 TD passes with only one interception while throwing for 3,351 yards. He is on pace to set NCAA records with 18.6 yards per completion and 10.2 yards per play. He has also run for 10 TDs.

TCU: QB Casey Pachall, who left school after four games last season and missed five games this year with a broken bone in his non-throwing arm, plays his final game for the Horned Frogs. He has thrown for 887 yards with four touchdowns and five interceptions his last three games.

NO. 19 TEXAS A&M (8-3, 4-3 SEC) AT NO. 5 MISSOURI (10-1, 6-1), 6:45 P.M. (ESPN)

LINE: Missouri by 4 1/2

SERIES RECORD: Texas A&M leads 8-5.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Missouri controls its destiny. Win, and the Tigers take the SEC East and advance to the conference championship game Dec. 7 in Atlanta. Lose, and South Carolina gets the nod based on head-to-head competition. Texas A&M seeks to right the ship and improve bowl position after getting beat 34-10 at LSU last week.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Texas A&M: WR Mike Evans. The sophomore Biletnikoff candidate was shut down by LSU freshman Rashard Robinson last week, held to four catches for 51 yards. He had 287 yards receiving against Auburn and 279 against No. 1 Alabama.

Missouri: RB Henry Josey. The senior scored two of the Tigers' three touchdowns last week. He's all the way back from a serious knee injury that caused a 659-day gap between games before this year's opener. He has four two-TD games and just missed a fourth 100-yard game last week.

Top 25

NO. 1 ALABAMA (11-0, 7-0 SEC) AT NO. 4 AUBURN (10-1, 6-1), 2:30 P.M. (CBS)

LINE: Alabama by 10 1/2.

SERIES RECORD: Alabama leads 42-34-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Bragging rights, the SEC West title and a spot in the league championship game are on the line. Alabama and Auburn are both also trying to keep their national title hopes alive in a state that has claimed the last four BCS championships.

NO. 2 FLORIDA STATE (11-0) AT FLORIDA (4-7), 11 A.M. (ESPN)

LINE: Florida State by 27 ½

SERIES RECORD: Florida leads 34-21-2

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Florida State's national championship hopes. The Seminoles are on track to play for the title, but first need to get past rival Florida and the Atlantic Coast Conference's Coastal Division champion. Florida, meanwhile, is treating this like a bowl game. The Gators have lost six consecutive games, secured their first losing season since 1979 and will miss a bowl for the first time since 1990.

NO. 3 OHIO STATE (11-0, 7-0 BIG TEN) AT MICHIGAN (7-4, 3-4), 11 A.M. (ABC)

LINE: Ohio State by 14½

SERIES RECORD: Michigan leads 58-45-6.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Ohio State needs to stay unbeaten to have a shot at playing in the BCS national championship game. Michigan is playing for pride and postseason positioning.

NO. 6 CLEMSON (10-1) AT NO. 10 SOUTH CAROLINA (9-2), 6 P.M. (ESPN2)

LINE: South Carolina by 5.

SERIES RECORD: Clemson leads 65-41-4.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Palmetto Bowl rivals need victories to shore up BCS hopes. Clemson could cement a second BCS game in three seasons with its first victory over South Carolina since 2008. Though even with a loss the Tigers could end up in the BCS. The Gamecocks would see their chances boosted with a win, although they are also still alive for the SEC East crown.

NO. 25 NOTRE DAME (8-3) AT NO. 8 STANFORD (9-2), 6 P.M. (FOX)

LINE: Stanford by 14.

SERIES RECORD: Notre Dame leads 18-9.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Pride, bragging rights and some bowl positioning. Unlike last year's matchup, both teams are already out of the national title picture, and the only way Stanford makes the Rose Bowl — or any BCS bowl — is by beating No. 13 Arizona State next week in the Pac-12 championship game.

MINNESOTA (8-3, 4-3 BIG TEN) AT NO. 11 MICHIGAN STATE (10-1, 7-0), 11 A.M. BIG TEN NETWORK

LINE: Michigan State by 14 ½.

SERIES RECORD: Michigan State leads 28-17.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Michigan State has already wrapped up the Legends Division title, and the Spartans will play Ohio State in the conference championship game. Win that, and Michigan State will finally reach the Rose Bowl again after narrowly missing out in the 2010 and 2011 seasons. Of course, the Spartans would still like to go to a prestigious bowl even if they lose the Big Ten title game — so they don't want a slip-up here against the Golden Gophers.

ARIZONA (7-4, 4-4 PAC-12) AT NO. 13 ARIZONA STATE (9-2, 7-1), 9:30 P.M. (PAC-12 NETWORKS)

LINE: Arizona State by 12.

SERIES RECORD: Arizona leads 47-38-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Both teams are coming off their biggest wins of the season, adding a level of hype to the annual battle for the Territorial Cup. The Sun Devils wrapped up the Pac-12 South Division by beating UCLA last Saturday and can host the title game against No. 8 Stanford with a win over the Wildcats, who knocked off Oregon.

PENN STATE (6-5, 3-4 BIG TEN) AT NO. 14 WISCONSIN (9-2, 6-1), 2:30 P.M. (ESPN)

LINE: Wisconsin by 24.

SERIES RECORD: Wisconsin leads, 9-7.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Unable to go to a bowl game due to NCAA sanctions, Penn State can avoid a .500 record and enter the offseason on a high note with a statement win over Wisconsin. The Badgers look to keep rolling, one spot from a top 14 BCS ranking that would make them eligible for an at-large berth in one of the big-money bowl games.

NO. 22 UCLA (8-3, 5-3 PAC-12) AT NO. 23 USC (9-3, 6-2), 7 P.M. (ABC)

LINE: USC by 3 1/2.

SERIES RECORD: USC leads 44-29-7.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Victory Bell goes to the winner of Los Angeles' annual cross-town showdown. USC attempts to solidify its resurgence under interim coach Ed Orgeron with his seventh win in eight games, while UCLA looks for a second straight win over the long-dominant Trojans.

NO. 24 DUKE (9-2, 5-2 ACC) AT NORTH CAROLINA (6-5, 4-3), 11 A.M. (ESPN2)

LINE: North Carolina by 5 1/2.

SERIES: North Carolina leads 58-36-4.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Duke can complete its surprising run to the ACC's Coastal Division championship and earn a berth in the league championship game against No. 2 Florida State with a second straight win against the rival Tar Heels. UNC has won five straight after a 1-5 start to reach bowl eligibility and can claim a share of the division title, not to mention avenge a last-second loss to the Blue Devils last year.

IRON BOWL DRAMA

Bragging rights take backseat in this year's Alabama-Auburn game

John Zenor
Associated Press

AUBURN, Ala. — Bragging rights are taking a backseat for a change in this Iron Bowl.

It's No. 1 Alabama versus No. 4 Auburn today in a rivalry game that has reached epic proportions in the state beyond even the usual craving for 364 days of rubbing it in.

The winner of only the second Top-5 matchup in the Iron Bowl's 78-year history will play for the Southeastern Conference championship, and live on in the national title derby.

"Oh man, it's going to be a battle," Crimson Tide receiver Kevin Norwood said.

If the SEC title game has been a national semifinal game during the league's seven-year run of BCS champs, welcome to what could amount to the quarterfinals. Iron Bowl style.

The Tide (11-0, 7-0 SEC) remains the national front-runner and is a 10.5-point favorite for this one. The Tigers (10-1, 6-1) have arguably been the season's biggest surprise, though unlike Alabama they'd likely still need either No. 2 Florida State or No. 3 Ohio State to lose.

Auburn has lost the past two Iron Bowls by a combined 91-14 and failed to produce an offensive touchdown in either game. Much has changed since coach Gus Malzahn's arrival.

"We've been fueled by doubt all season," Auburn tailback Tre Mason said. "A lot of guys are fired up and we like being the underdog."

It hasn't been an ideal position in this game historically. The highest ranked team has gone 42-10 in the Iron Bowl since 1955, but there have been precious few like this one.

The 1971 game pitted No. 3 Alabama versus No. 5 Auburn. The 1989 game was huge for Auburn fans as the first one played at Jordan-Hare Stadium.

Perhaps this one will end up topping them all. The Tigers haven't been under this kind of spotlight since the 2010 national championship season that helped give the state a string of four straight.

The teams are jockeying to preserve their hopes of making it five.

"We're going to try not to have that outside pressure feed in and all the media and hype that the outside people are going to bring in affect us but at the same time, we're going to bring that intensity ourselves," Auburn tight end C.J. Uzomah said.

No top-ranked Alabama team has faced an opponent ranked this high during the regular season.

Plus, it's Alabama-Auburn, a statewide obsession even in lean years. Tide coach Nick Saban says games like this boil down to execution.

"It really doesn't matter what anybody says, what anybody thinks, who's favored," Saban said. "It really doesn't matter."

Dave Martin/AP

Auburn head coach Gus Malzahn reacts during the second half of the Nov. 16 game against Georgia. Malzahn and the Tigers will take on rival Alabama in a game today that has national championship implications.

Houston crushes SMU at Reliant

HOUSTON — John O'Korn finished 25 of 41 for 245 yards and two touchdowns to lead Houston over SMU 34-0 Friday, snapping the Cougars' three-game losing streak.

Daniel Spencer caught seven passes for 100 yards and a touchdown, while Greg Ward, Jr., had five receptions for 48 yards and a touchdown. Ryan Jackson rushed seven times for 62 yards and a touchdown, and Kent Brooks added a touchdown run for the Cougars, who totaled 365 yards.

Houston forced four turnovers — three interceptions and a fumble — and also had five sacks. Zach McMillan had two interceptions.

Houston (8-4, 5-3 American) earned its first shutout since 2011 and its first conference shutout since a 64-0 win over Rice in 1989.

Neal Burcham, who started in place of Garrett Gilbert — out with a left knee sprain — finished 27 of 52 for 212 yards and threw 3 interceptions for SMU (5-6, 4-3).

Jeremy Johnson had 8 receptions for 75 yards, and Darius Joseph caught 9 passes for 52 yards, while Prescott Line rushed 17 times for 81 yards for SMU, which finished 3 of 7 on fourth downs and gained 295 yards.

The Mustangs, who entered the game averaging almost 31 points, were held to scoreless for the first time since 2004 when they were shut out 42-0 at Fresno State.

O'Korn found Spencer on Houston's first offensive play for a 67-yard touchdown pass with 13:32 left in the first quarter to open up a 7-0 lead.

Jennings rescues No. 15 LSU in win over Arkansas

Associated Press

Tigers.....31
Razorbacks.....27

BATON ROUGE, La. — Freshman backup quarterback Anthony Jennings leaned into LSU's huddle in the Tigers' end zone and delivered one quick message before calling the first play of a pressure-packed, late-game drive.

"I said, 'Let's go. It's time to go 99 yards,'" Jennings recalled. "There was no doubt in my mind we were going to do that."

Naive? Perhaps. Confident? Certainly — and how prescient.

Jennings, who'd replaced an injured Zach Mettenberger in the fourth quarter, quickly marched the 15th-ranked Tigers to mid-field, then lofted a 49-yard touchdown pass to Travin Dural with 1:15 left to pull out a 31-27 victory over Arkansas on Friday in a trophy game known as the "battle for the Golden Boot."

"I was calm and relaxed because I knew my teammates around me had my back," Jennings said. "I'll always remember this because this is my first significant time playing and I executed. I couldn't do it by myself, obviously."

Jennings entered the game with less than 7 minutes to play after Mettenberger hurt his left knee. And after Sam Irwin-Hill's 65-yard punt came to rest inside the 1, the game came down to whether Jennings could drive the Tigers the length of the field in the final 3 minutes.

He responded with a pair of clutch first-down passes to tight end Dillon Gordon and receiver Jarvis Landry, and then a 21-yard scramble to set up his winning pass that kept LSU (9-3, 5-3 Southeastern Conference) alive for a school-record fourth-straight 10-win campaign.

LSU coach Les Miles marveled at Jennings' "composure and poise," adding that it would have been disingenuous for him to say he "just expected that" from a freshman quarterback who'd seen minimal playing time.

Yet none of the Tigers doubted Jennings' ability, not after he quickly rose to second-string.

"He was calm, cool and collected — what we expect from him. He's a very mature guy," left guard Vadal Alexander said. "He took control of the huddle. The o-line knew what we had to do. ... If Anthony has time, we knew he could pick apart a defense."

Miles credited offensive coordinator Cam Cameron for calling the winning play after noticing Arkansas cornerback Jared Collins was cheating inside to help defend Landry in the slot. Sure enough, Durel was wide open.

Brandon Allen completed two touchdown passes to tight end Hunter Henry, the second giving Arkansas (3-9, 0-8) a 27-21 lead that stood most of the fourth quarter. But Jennings' heroics extended the Razorbacks' school-record losing streak to nine games and ensured Arkansas' first winless record in the SEC since joining the conference in 1992.

"This is tough for anybody. We had it there at the end and let it slip away," Allen said. "You aren't supposed to lose a kind of game like that. ... We were able to put up a few points and we for sure would like to have a few more right now."

First-year Arkansas coach Bret Bielema could relate.

"I'm numb. I'm frustrated and wanted to have some good feelings heading into the offseason," Bielema said. "I just wanted to give these seniors that Golden Boot trophy and see them run across the field. I wanted to see them celebrate. I wanted our guys to taste it.

"I grew up on a farm," Bielema continued. "You didn't want certain animals to taste blood because once they taste blood you have got to kill them, because they will keep coming back for it. I think our players will do the same once they grasp it and truly get the feeling of what beating somebody's will out of them can do to a person. It'll come, but unfortunately it won't come until next year."

BAYLOR

to end Baylor's nine-game home winning streak. "We have a tremendous amount of respect for them," Bears coach Art Briles said. "They've earned that respect from us by how they've performed against us."

CAREER ENDERS: Quarterback Casey Pachall and cornerback Jason Verrett both got their first starts for TCU in a wild 50-48 loss at Baylor in the 2011 season opener, and now play their final games against the Bears. Pachall is 17-5 as a starter, missing the final nine games last season for alcohol treatment, and being out five games this year with broken bones in his left (non-throwing) arm. Verrett has started 33 games and his 36 passes defended since last year are the most nationally. "Here's a guy that basically didn't want to come out of his room after that Baylor game," coach Gary Patterson said of Verrett.

MISSING HAGER: Baylor middle linebacker Bryce Hager has been hampered by a groin injury that forced him to miss the Oklahoma State game. Sam Holl said Hager is a fast, smart and really physical player that "definitely hard to replace." Hager was the team's leading tackler with 71 tackles before fellow linebacker had 12 tackles vs. Oklahoma State to push his season total to 78.

NOT LIKE 2004: TCU will finish with its first losing season since 2004, though coach Gary Patterson said this year's group is nothing like his only previous losing team. "I'm not tired of coaching this group," Patterson said. "Watch how we played the last two games, there's a lot of character there." The Frogs won at Iowa State on Trevone Boykin's TD run with 38 seconds left. Jaden Oberkrom kicked a go-ahead 56-yard field goal with 2:13 left at Kansas State, before the Wildcats drove for the winning kick.

MANZIEL

From 1C

We're in the SEC. It's a tough league. We've got to continue to get better, and make sure it doesn't go to 8-4."

Despite the lack of competing for a national or even division title, Manziel has more than done his part by leading the nation in total offense through 11 games with 4,202 yards.

"He's a better player than he was a year ago," Missouri coach Gary Pinkel said, "and he won the Heisman Trophy then."

A&M has the Missouri contest and then an undetermined bowl game to put the wraps on his two-season college career, and Manziel is fighting through a hurt hand (he banged it on a helmet late in a 51-41 victory over Mississippi State on Nov. 9) in trying to exit an enormous stage a winner. Meanwhile, his teammates will continue talking for him as his Aggieland run winds down.

"I love doing that for him, because he's a great guy," senior receiver Travis Labhart said. "I love being able to say good things about him, because of who he is and the kind of person he's been to me."

Four-hour commute is iffy investment in relationship

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing my boyfriend, "Casey," for a year. He has said throughout our courtship that we could get married in four to five years.

Over the past few months, he has become distant and less romantic. I drive four hours to see him almost every week, and he seems fine then, but when we're apart, he rarely texts me and seems disinterested.

On one of my recent visits, Casey said he NEVER wants to get married! When I asked what had changed his mind, his response was that he has decided that marriage is a trap. When I asked if he still wanted to be with me, he said yes.

I know I don't want to be Casey's girlfriend forever. I don't want to waste my time if he's not going to marry me, but I really want to be with him. Do you think he'll change his mind again, or is it time for me to end things? — WAITING AND HOPING IN MARYLAND

DEAR WAITING AND HOPING: If you're doing all of the four-hour commuting, you're not only waiting and hoping, you are also doing most of the work in your relationship with Casey. From your description of his attention span, when you're out of sight, you are not on his mind.

You didn't mention how old you both are, but it appears Casey has some growing up to do. Marriage isn't a trap; it's a partnership. And like any strong partnership there is commitment involved. If Casey isn't up to making a commitment and marriage is what you're after, you should save the wear and tear on your car and the expense of the gas and find a man who is less gun-shy.

DEAR ABBY: We live near my wife's sister "Bree" and her husband, "Joe." We socialize often at one of our homes or at a restaurant. They have recently become good friends with another couple, the "Russells," who are delightful.

Bree and Joe sometimes invite us over when the Russells are there. The problem is, when I try to carry on a conversation with Mr. Russell, Joe gets bent out of shape. He interrupts and changes the subject or says something to make me look bad. If that doesn't stop the discussion, Joe walks off in a huff. I think he's acting like an immature middle-schooler. (It also triggers memories I have of being bullied and excluded as a child.)

I'd like to avoid these three-couple get-togethers, but I don't know how many times I can do it without raising questions. An alternative would be to avoid the Russells and converse only with other guests who may be present. Either option, or mentioning it, risks making me look like the jealous 12-year-old instead of Joe. Any ideas? — ODD MAN OUT IN KANSAS

DEAR ODD MAN OUT: It appears that your brother-in-law is insecure, or he wouldn't behave the way he is. How sad for him.

Start limiting the time you spend as a threesome. Ask your wife to find out in advance if the Russells will be visiting when you are. If Bree asks her why, your wife should tell her that Joe seems upset when you try to carry on a conversation with the husband and you don't want to make him uncomfortable. Perhaps if she tells her husband to knock it off and grow up, he will.

However, if the problem continues, explain to the Russells that as much as you enjoy their company, you'll be seeing them less often, and why.

It isn't necessary to mention to any of them the grief you experienced in middle school because, frankly, it is none of their business. If it's any comfort to you, it appears Joe had insecurities back then, too, but he never outgrew them.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Nov. 30, 2013:

This year you open up to many new opportunities, though some of them come with quite a few hassles and difficult people. Go for what you want, but be aware that there could be some unwanted trappings. If you are single, you could meet someone who is emotionally unavailable. Unless you desire a situation like this, walk away fast. If you are attached, the two of you often sit down to have a conversation. Look for the best ways to support each other in your life goals. SCORPIO is willful; avoid arguing with him or her.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Your intuition helps you land on your feet and deal with an unexpected. This situation could involve some travel or encourage a meeting with a very offbeat person. Know that you will have the control you need if you decide to head down that path. Tonight: A must appearance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ Others come to you before you even pick up the phone to call them. Try not to get uptight about all the invitations you receive. Something you have wished for could become a reality. Refuse to get caught in a war of wills. Tonight: Talk about your path and get feedback.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ You might be back to the humdrum of your daily life, as you have so much on your plate that you need to complete. Work with a partner directly, but understand that this person could change direction at the drop of hat. You can't control this person. Tonight: Watch a movie.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Your naughtiness seems to be contagious. News from a distance might persuade you to hop the next plane. You could find it difficult to change gears as quickly as you might want. A partner or dear friend might not see the situation as you do. Tonight: Let your hair down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ Realize that you might need a day off from the intense holiday pace that is starting to build. Lounging at home seems like a good day. You might need to handle a personal issue. Some of you might decide to take a stab at the holiday frivolity. Tonight: Order in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ Take news with a grain of salt, especially if it comes to you from a child or loved one. This person might have heard only what he or she wanted to. You could be surprised by the whole story, once it become readily available to you. Tonight: Partake in some eggnog with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ No one would say anything if you took off and indulged yourself instead of everyone else. Lose any feeling of guilt, and enjoy yourself. Meet a family member or friend for a late lunch. Do not orchestrate the whole day, just go with the flow. Tonight: Swap news with a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Wherever you are, you shine. It is obvious that you are filled with confidence and are making excellent choices. Call home or check in with an older relative or parent. You might opt to adjust plans after having this conversation. Tonight: Do what pleases you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Be discreet, especially if something bothers you. Choose to be an observer and gather more information. You might not be prepared to make a change or walk in a new direction just yet. Use caution with your spending. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Zero in on what you want. You might not feel as if your desires can be realized. Think positively so that you don't jinx yourself. You might not realize just how many friends you have supporting you. Tonight: Where the gang is.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ Listen and be more direct when dealing with an older friend who always wants to have it his or her way. When you are too busy to hang out, this person tends to throw tantrums. The time has come to clear the air. Remember to honor your needs first. Tonight: Till the wee hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ You still might be trying to detach and understand a recent development in a relationship. Try imagining that you are the other party, and let go of your own inner chatter. You might need to set a stronger boundary between you and this person. Tonight: Try a new music spot.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,

As the New Year rolls around, I've made a resolution. However, it's not to lose weight or eat better, as that would take too much commitment. Instead, I've resolved to part with my money and finally get a better car. After 17 years, my trusty old Dodge has seen better days and I am a bit tired of the guys at work razzing me about the puff of smoke it leaves when I pull into the parking lot. Now I know that buying used will save me some big dollars, so I've been watching the classifieds and some of the sales from the dealers. With the New Year coming, I'm seeing a lot of ads for "certified pre-owned" vehicles. It's been a while since I bought a car, but I'm guessing they certify more than just the fact that someone else owned it? What exactly does "certified pre-owned" get me?

Cash: At least you're honest about your New Year's resolutions. Most of us vow to lose weight or eat better and never make it past the holidays!

Carry: A lot of things have changed since you bought your Dodge. In recent years certified pre-owned vehicles have been a big hit with consumers. Like you, many people realize they can get more car for the money by buying used, yet still have the feeling of driving a newer car.

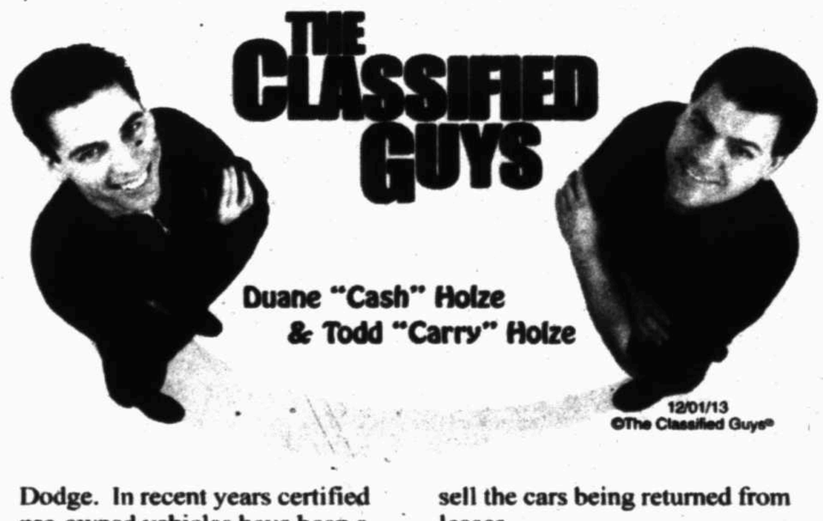

Cash: As you already guessed, certified pre-owned or certified-used is more than just a guarantee that someone else drove the car before you. The term is used to let consumers know that the car has gone through an inspection process and meets certain criteria before the sale. However, the inspection processes can be very different.

Carry: Back in the mid 1990's, dealers started using the term "certified used" as a marketing tool to sell the cars being returned from leases.

Cash: As the popularity of these cars grew, auto manufacturers began offering their own programs. Today, almost every manufacturer has a certified pre-owned program.

Carry: And as you may guess, every certified pre-owned program varies. Each manufacturer has different inspection criteria, age and mileage limitations and warranties. So be sure to do your homework before making any purchase.

Cash: Although after 17 years, the guys at work will be quite surprised when you pull up in a new ride. In fact, they may not recognize you without the smoke.

Fast Facts

Detailed

While "certified pre-owned" programs are designed to bring peace of mind to the consumer, it's very important to do your homework. Since there is no industry standard, find out who guarantees the certification. Programs offered by automakers, such as Chrysler, Honda, Toyota, etc., may be very different from those offered by the dealers themselves. For a comparison of certified pre-owned programs, you can visit www.intellichoice.com. Every year they survey the certified used car programs.

Auld Lang Syne

So what's your New Year's resolution? While more than half of the population typically make a resolution, most surveys indicate only a small fraction ever stick to it. According to Money Magazine and the market research firm ICR, there's a new trend. Their survey indicates that about one-third of resolutions involve finances. While 32% of people are planning to save more, 23% want to pay down their debt. Sadly, past surveys found that only 24% of financial resolutions were successful. Maybe it's best if we simply resolve to spend a little, eat a little and enjoy ourselves a whole lot more.

Neighborhood Watch

Recently I witnessed an accident that proved how dumb drinking and driving can be. While I was walking my dog, I saw a car go through a stop sign, jump over the curb, run through some hedges and land right into my neighbor's shed. It looked like something right out of the movies.

I immediately used my cell phone to call the police. When they arrived, the officer went over to the man who was still in the car.

As he approached I overheard him ask, "Sir, have you been drinking tonight?"

Still shaking his head, the driver replied, "I must have been. 'Cause I'm not this good of a stunt driver."
