Mattern Safe After 23 Long Days Of Worry

Terse Message Is Received At Moscow And In United States Telling Of Safety Of Texan On World Hop

Coast Guard Cutter Ordered To Hasten To Siberian Village; Rescue Expedition By Plane Continues

(By The Associated Press)

A FIVE WORD message from Jimmie Mattern, missing for 23 days on a world solo flight, set in motion Friday night swift attempts to reach him in the isolated Siberan trading post of Anadir.

Receipt in Moscow and the United States of the terse message, saying merely the 28-year-old Texan was safe, was followed by an order to the coast guard cutter Northland to hasten to the village, a 24-hour trip.

Seek Use Of Boat

William Alexander, pilot of an expedition dispatched last week from New York to rescue Mattern announced at Prince Rupert, B. C., he would seek the use of one of several flying boats in that vicinity for a trip to Anadir.

Irving Friedman of Brooklyn, backer of the Alexander expedition, said he had received permission from Soviet authorities for the plane to land in Siberia. If weather would not permit a flight, he said, Alexander would try to reach Anadir by boat.

The trading post on the route Mattern had mapped for his attempted flight on June 14 from Khabarovsk to Nome, Alaska, is so remote that his message took two days to reach civilization. It was barren of detail.

Dictates Message

He dictated a message to Mattern's wife, his mother, his backers —the few who had not given him up for dead—awaited answers to a myriad of questions.

Did he crash or was he merely forced down?

Did he have to travel, perhaps miles, over waste lands?

Had he suffered hunger or injury?

"Now I'm the happiest woman in the world!" exclaimed his mother, Mrs. Caroline Mattern, at Freeport, Illinois.

"Jimmie always has the faculty of taking care of himself," said his wife with pride, as she received the news at Walla Walla, Wash.

Doc Trammell Fatally Wounded And Brother Is Being Held In Coleman Jail; Fugitive From Tahoka Jail

(By The Associated Press)

COLEMAN, July 7.—An intensive manhunt for two desperadoes who for the last ten days have eluded posses of rangers, county officers and citizens, and terrorized Coleman and Runnels counties with a series of hijackings, came to an abrupt end here tonight with the fatal shooting of Starkweather (Doc) Trammell and the capture of his brother, Luke.

Starkweather Trammell, about 29, died at 10:15 p. m., in a local hospital about two hours after he had received a bullet wound in the head in a brush with a posse, headed by Sheriff Frank Mills of Coleman county, under the Hord creek bridge on the Abilene road, a mile and a half northwest of town. Others in the posse were deputy George Roby, and Ralph Stubblefield and Leon Shields, citizens.

Warned To Halt

Sheriff Mills said they all opened fire after the fugitives had been warned to halt. The brothers were armed with three six-shooters, and Sheriff Mills reported the Trammells returned the officers fire.

A bullet, entering the top of the head and coming out through the nose, stopped Starkweather's flight to a brush thicket nearby, and Luke called to officers he would surrender.

The Trammell brothers had been objects of a manhunt in two counties for ten days. Starkweather Trammell was one of six men who escaped the Tahoka jail some weeks ago. Another brother, Dave Trammell, likewise was one of those who escaped.

Price Of Bread Will Be Hiked Two Cents In City

Bakery Employes To Get Increases In Present Wages

THE PRICE of bread will be hiked two cents here Sunday and employes of at least two bakeries will receive ten per cent salary increases at the same time. The price increase is concurrent with a federal processing tax on wheat.

Bakers tonight will make inventories of all flour and bread in stock and make reports, from which initial tax payments will be determined.

Nineteen Participate

Nineteen employes of two bakeries will participate in the wage increase. In one bakery, the raise will average $5 an employe per month. At present 12 persons are receiving about $612 monthly. In the other, salaries of seven persons will be affected, but the payroll total was not given.

Another baker, who has 12 employes, said that he was not increasing wages at this time because he felt he had been "paying above the average." His salaries range from $12 to $25 for regular employes.

Salesmen Get Raise

"Three salesmen, who are on a commission, automatically will receive a raise with the increase in the price of bread," he said.

Another baker said he expected the code for his industry to go into effect August 1, or soon thereafter. As tentatively drawn, the minimum wage would be $12 for a working week of 45 hours.

"In my own shop that would mean addition of four employes," he explained. "Employing of four more persons would increase the production of bread between two-thirds and three-fourths cent a loaf."

Has Heavy Stock

He said he had a heavier stock of flour on hand than usual, because under contracts he was compelled to buy the flour at this time or lose the privileges in the contracts. He said he had about 250 barrels of flour in stock.

The price of flour has increased about $3 a barrel over its lowest price, and the cost of ingredients also have increased. The processing tax, it was said, will add about $1.50 a barrel to the cost of flour, a baker pointed out.

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A message outlining in detail the plan of this government for an endeavor to raise world prices as an immediate objective for the London economic conference was drafted tonight by President Roosevelt for dispatch to the American delagation.

Gratified by the decision to continue the parley, Mr. Roosevelt hastened to put his views before the delegation to guide it in its endeavors to bring the conference behind his price boosting program.

Holds Conferences

He prepared his message outlining his views and clarifying the administration's position after two lengthy conferences with his immediate advisers.

Mr. Roosevelt was believed desirous of taking advantage of the new situation at London to press for action on what he believes should be the principle objectives.

He studied the conference agenda and the latest reports of the situation at London in two meetings. Those who conferred with him were Acting Secretaries Phillips of the state department and Acheson of the treasury, Bernard M. Baruch, economic adviser; Norman H. Davis, ambassador at large in Europe; and Frederick Liversey, a state department economic expert.

Go Over Points

"We have been going over the useful points that might be of help to our delegation," said Phillips. "Anything that is done or said will come out through our delegation at London.

Heavy Damage Reported Over Mexico Areas

No Loss Of Life Is Reported As Tropic Storm Rages In States But Property Damage Is Going Upward

Floods Expected

Roads Are Impassable Through Section And Traffic Comes To A Halt; Bridges Washed Away By Streams

(By The Associated Press)

MEXICO, D. F., July 7.—Reports from northeastern Mexico tonight indicated heavy hurricane and flood damage in the states of Tamaulipas and Neuvo Leon. No loss of life was reported, although it was feared.

These two Mexican states were lashed yesterday and most of today by high winds and a torrential downpour which brought rivers up at an alarming rate, especially at Monterrey, industrial city of northern Mexico.

Floods Expected

As all rivers in that vicinity drain into the Rio Grande between Laredo and Brownsville, floods may be expected along the lower Rio Grande. A dispatch from Monterrey reported wind and flood damage at Linares, Montemorelos, General Teran, Salbinas Hidalgo, Salinas and Ciudad Victoria, widely separated towns.

Roads were impassable throughout the section. Highway traffic between Monterrey and Saltillo was stopped by raging river floods and the suburb of Colonia De La Independencia was cut off from Monterrey this afternoon and rescue crews began taking out the residents.

Bridges were washed away and houses were flooded. The rains stopped in Monterrey in mid-afternoon but skies continued overcast. Several bus loads of passengers were isolated in a canyon west of the city.

Airplane pilots reported all villages within a 25-mile radius of Soto La Marina, on the coast north of Tampico, were levelled by the storm. It was impossible to determine if there were any casualties as the section is isolated from communication lines.

Texas Cotton Coop Gives Cotton Plan Endorsement

DALLAS, July 7. (AP)—The board of directors of the Texas Cotton Cooperative association in meeting here today gave unanimous approval to the administration's plan of curtailing production of this season's cotton crop by taking out of cultivation not less than 10,000,000 acres.

The directors resolved to "call upon the association's 45,000 members, as well as all cotton growers of the state, to cooperate with the administration, looking to the restoration of a fair price of this year's cotton production."

Curb On Production Is To Be Sought To Hasten Codes

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP) — A curb on production to prevent its leaving employment behind was sought today by President Roosevelt through hastening the completion of industrial codes.

Earlier, concern over the situation had been expressed by Hugh S. Johnson, the national recovery administrator, who urged industries to step briskly forward with agreements to restore purchasing power by putting men back to work.

LAW IS UPHELD

NEW ORLEANS, July 7 (AP)—The United States fifth circuit court of appeals here today affirmed a southern Texas district court judgment upholding the constitutionality of the Texas corporate franchise tax law as amended in 1930.

Contracts Are Approved Here

First Reports From County To State And National Agents Made Friday; More Contracts Being Received

With additional contracts for plowing under cotton in Lubbock county being received during the day, first reports of actual cotton acreage offered the federal government, were made to both Washington and College Station yesterday by O. G. Tumlinson, county agent.

One hundred and three contracts, representing 9,994 acres of which 4,009 were offered the government, were approved and the contracts forwarded.

Bring In $42,000

These contracts would bring to tenants and farm owners over $42,000. Acres to be plowed under, without option, would represent payments of $35,247.50 while those with options would bring $7,155.50. In addition there would be 276 bales under option.

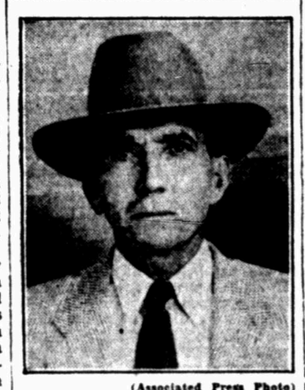

Average lint per acre was estimated at 153 pounds.

Members of the county committee met Friday in the office of the county agent to check, approve and sign contracts. F. R. Friend, Ches Merrill and Victor L. Cade comprise the committee.

"We have about 1,200 contracts in the office," Mr. Tumlinson said. "I

Body Is Found After A Flood Sweeps Resort

At Least 12 Other Persons In Area Are Reported Missing; All Bridges And Cabins In Section Demolished

(By The Associated Press)

DENVER, July 7.—One body was recovered tonight and Jefferson county authorities said at least 12 persons were missing in a flood which swept Bear Creek canyon a few miles west of Denver, demolishing one resort town and damaging another.

The body, that of a woman, was found near Morrison. It was not identified immediately.

Cabins Swept Away

All bridges and summer cabins near the creek for four miles between Idaldale and Morrison were swept away, said Ralph Keeler, correspondent for the Associated Press who was the first person through the area after the storm.

Keeler walked from Idledale, which was virtually swept away by the storm, to Morrison. He said he saw no human bodies, but that many horses and cows had perished.

Among the missing were Mrs. Silvia Soderman of Denver, W. L. Burton of Idledale, owner of a hamburger stand and three children; three persons who were riding in a car with a New Mexico license plate; and four fishermen who were reported to have been swept into the water near Idledale.

Water Comes Down

Burton was standing on the bank of the creek when a 12-foot wall of water raced unexpectedly down the canyon after a cloudburst.

The children were swept into the water with him.

The three persons in the New Mexico car were parked at Idledale and left a store building to walk to the edge of the creek just before the storm struck. They failed to return and officials said they were unable to locate the car after the storm.

Dozens of cars were stranded on the highway following the storm, many of them buried deep in mud. The fate of the occupants of many of them was not known.

Many motorists, however, clambered to safety up the mountain-side when they saw the water sweeping down the canyon.

Reduction Of Acreage Over Area Assured

Extension Of Time To Growers For Signing Of Contracts To Be Allowed; Roosevelt Well Satisfied

To Give Figures

First Official Cotton Report Of Government To Be Given Today; Private Reports See A Sharp Increase

(Copyright, 1933, by The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 7. — The cotton acreage reduction program appeared virtually certain of acceptance tonight and as a result the next six weeks will see upwards of $100,000,000 pouring into the 16 cotton states.

An extension of the time for growers to sign contracts to plow up from 25 to 30 per cent of their present crop is believed necessary by President Roosevelt, however, and this will be authorized formally tomorrow by Secretary Wallace.

President Satisfied

The president was described today as well satisfied with the progress made in obtaining agreements for producers to plow up a part of their crop in return for cash payments and options on government held cotton.

At the same time he authorizes a time extension for signing contracts, Wallace will make public the figures showing the number of acres growers have agreed to take out of production up to today. State extension directors were instructed today to forward their latest totals to the secretary.

Delays Are Caused

The campaign, under way during the last two weeks, was to have ended Saturday night but numerous delays, particularly in distributing blank forms to growers, made it impossible to give all of them a chance to act on the proposal. There are nearly 2,000,000 cotton growers and Wallace wishes to have each of them given an adequate opportunity to act before the campaign is closed.

Meantime, farm officials looked forward as keenly as operators at market centers for tomorrow's first official cotton report of this year. It will be made public by the crop reporting board at 11 a. m. e. s. t. and will provide the government's first estimate of this year's cotton acreage.

Includes No Reductions

The estimate will be as of July 1 and will not include any compilation of the offers to reduce acreage made in the cotton campaign.

Private reports have indicated a sharp increase in this year's acreage over that of July 1, last year, when it was estimated at 36,542,000 acres. Private estimates in early June were that this year's acreage was between 39,000,000 acres and 40,000,000 acres.

Mrs. Mattern Will Greet Husband In Dress She Started Knitting When He Took Off On Flight Around The World

(By The Associated Press)

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 7.—Not until Jimmie Mattern gets back to New York, will Mrs. Mattern, here since the flier began his trip around the world about a month ago, start making plans for greeting him.

"And when I do," she said here today amid smiles that showed her relief over the news that Mattern was on the Siberian coast, "I'll wear that red dress I started knitting when he started around the world.

"I am trying to catch a few winks of sleep," she replied in answer to a query as to how she celebrated the good news of her husband's safety today.

"I've lost a little sleep these nights lately, wondering," she said.

Although frequently Mrs. Mattern has given successful hunches to reporters on her husband's probable movements, she would not predict today what his next course would be.

"I'll just stay here and get the news with the rest of you," she said, "and waiting for news will be much easier now."

"It has been agonizing at times as days and days passed without any word from Jimmie, but I have remembered how isolated that wild country is and that three weeks really isn't so long up there.

"I have told myself confidentially all along that Jimmie would show up, but there were morose moments when I would wonder if I were really right in my hopes. It is dreadfully hard to stay calm for so long, even with confidence like I had. I have been waiting a long time for that news and it is wonderful."

Picnics And Other Outings Are Popular Diversions For Warm Days

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE BEAN WILSON
Avalanche Woman's Editor

TWO Lubbock girls are having the time of their lives this summer. They are Frances Campbell and Billie Smith, who went to Boston with Mr. and Mrs. Will Marr of Ralls and have been attending the Rotary International convention there. The party has visited many points of interest in the East and will return through Chicago.

• • •

Eloise, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Smith, has written that they have seen so many historical places that they all look alike now. She added, too, that New York is "just like Dallas or Fort Worth"—which probably will give New Yorkers anything except a glow of satisfaction.

• • •

She has written that one of the interesting features of the convention was meeting people from foreign nations. Interpreters were present at the convention to help foreigners and Americans in their communications.

ICE CREAM

SINCE many women have some difficulty making ice cream in an electric refrigerator, Steve Meinecke has given us a recipe which he says will work because he has tried it. Here are the ingredients and method: Two eggs, corn syrup to taste, a pinch of salt, one and one-half teaspoons of vanilla, one cup whipping cream.

Whip the cream until stiff, add egg yolk well beaten, add syrup and vanilla, fold in well-beaten egg whites. Stir well after it has been in the refrigerator 20 minutes.

THE HIGHWAY TREES

MEMBERS of the Lubbock Garden club, who planted some 4,000 trees along highways leading in to the city this spring are planning to go on a tour of inspection before long to see how many of the trees have died.

• • •

Surprising as it may seem, not so many of the trees have died and this has been the dryest season of recent years. There would have been obstacles to planting in other years so, although the percentage of loss probably will be greater because of the drouth, the club members are not regretting that they chose this season for their planting.

• • •

LAZINESS PERFECTED

THE week's best example of laziness and disregard for other people occurred on Main street Thursday evening about 8:30 o'clock. It was a carload of women sitting in front of West Texas hospital sounding a horn to summon someone from within the institution.

• • •

Most of us would suppose that the laziest person in the world would have more regard for sick people than to sit in front of a hospital and repeatedly sound a horn. That is an example of laziness and thoughtlessness perfected.

• • •

Curb service has ruined more than one person. There are stores that have curb service. They advertise it and expect to give it yet there are many people, particularly women, who abuse this courtesy. Somehow I never could have much respect for a person who would drive up in front of a place advertising curb service, and buy a nickle's worth of chewing gum. Yet those who offer this attention expect it.

• • •

Less respect is reserved for the one who drives up in front of an institution that does not offer curb service and demand it. Yet many women do simply that because they are too lazy to get out of their cars or because they don't want to dress before coming to town.

• • •

There are women, so I am told, who will drive up in front of dry goods stores and honk for a spool of thread to be brought out to them. They stop in front of grocery stores and honk for a bunch of onions or a can of soup. Then they go on a diet to reduce their hips.

• • •

One doesn't have to go to a lot of trouble to dress to come to town in Lubbock and just ordinary decency demands that clerks and others in stores be shown some courtesy. The customer has the advantage every time. No clerk is allowed to say what he thinks or reveal the contempt he feels. He must keep his job and he must do what he can to keep business—even if it means catering to the thoughtless. Then too, there is always one's reputation to keep in mind and two of the earmarks of a lady or a gentleman are common sense and consideration for others.

Group Attends Annual Outing

About 100 Expected To Go To Buffalo Springs For Study And Recreation For Groups From Baptist Church

Outings are the most popular diversion among grown-ups and the younger set. Several picnics and parties given Thursday were enjoyable affairs for church groups in the city.

Gold Hoarders Are A Problem

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Attorney General Cummings is trying to figure out what to do about the 211 gold hoarders who answered "come and get it" to requests that they put the metal in banks.

These 211 hold $1,207,087 of gold. Cummings will decide how and when to proceed against them as soon as justice department agents finish checking the list given to them by the treasury.

Last week, the anti-hoarding drive brought deposits of $1,941,835.

Man Who Claims To Be The Baby Member Of Notorious Jesse James Band About To Succumb From Senility

DENVER, July 7 (AP)—Alexander Adair, who says he was the "baby member" of the notorious Jesse James outlaw gang a half-century ago and survivor of adventures from St. Louis to 'Frisco that formed the plots of many a wild west fiction story, is near death from senility at a hospital here at the age of 83.

At 11 he ran away to "go west and join the Indians" and from that time on excitement has packed his picturesque life.

He joined a theatrical troupe as a female impersonator and traveled the west for five years before he encountered his brother, Mortimer who also had run away from home. Mortimer induced him to join the James band and young Alexander participated in the Muncie, Ind. train robbery and later went to jail after his conviction as a jewel robber.

Converted by the Salvation Army in Emporia, Kas., after he had served his prison term, Adair moved here and started a mission thirty years ago.

Of 29 military strongholds built in Ohio during the wars with the Indians and British, only one bore the name of a woman—Fort Amanda.

Recruiting Again Is Started Here

There are 70 vacancies in the first calvary division at Fort Bliss, Tex., Sergeant James G. McDermitt, local U. S. army recruiting officer here, said.

Of the places open, 37 are in the calvary, 15 in the field artillery, 14 in tht quartermaster's corps, two in the medical and two in the veterinary.

Through the efforts of Sergeant McDermitt and Technical Sergeant K. R. Lenzen, chief clerk, transportation of men enlisted here is being paid to Fort Bliss again. Since last November, and until recently, men enlisted here were required to pay their own way to the fort.

Sergeant McDermitt said he had instructions to make an intensive drive until the vacancies are filled, sending as many men as possible from Lubbock.

Texan Safe

of Chicago, two of Mattern's backers, announced they would aid him gladly in completing his flight or in financing another round-the-world journey.

"We always had confidence in Jimmie," said Jameson. "He had demonstrated at all times that he's a cool, heady flier."

Misfortune had beset Mattern's trip at frequent intervals, but every time the plucky pilot, who has been barnstormer, movie stunt man, and air mail carrier, pulled through to safety.

His very first landing on June 4—the day after he hopped off from Floyd Bennett field—was not a scheduled stop. It was at Jomfruland, a rocky island 70 miles from Oslo, Norway.

Hastens To Moscow

Eighteen hours went by before gas could be obtained and Oslo reached. Then he hastened to Moscow, rested briefly, and hopped off for Omsk, Siberia.

In the latter country his troubles piled up. On June 7 he was forced down near Prokopievsk, ill from the gas fumes in his plane.

He flew to Belovo to have his craft repaired, and then went on to Krasnoyarsk.

He landed at Beloye, Siberia, on June 9, and the net day reached Khabarovsk, which was to have been his first scheduled stop beyond Omsk.

For two days Mattern waited there in order to get his plane into topnotch condition before trying the long, dangerous hop across the Kamchatka peninsula and the icy North Pacific to the American continent.

He hopped off for Nome on June 12, but ran into a stretch of bad weather and decided to return to Khabarovsk. Two more days went by before he ventured to start again.

Cotton Plan

There have been some estimates that it was even higher than that.

The acreage of each of the cotton states as of July 1, 1932, was: Virginia, 71,000; North Carolina, 1,261,000; South Carolina, 1,678,000; Georgia, 2,705,000; Florida, 107,000; Missouri, 410,000; Tennessee, 1,081,000; Alabama, 3,061,000; Mississippi, 3,000; Louisiana, 1,702,000; Texas, 2,000; Oklahoma, 3,171,000; Arkansas, 3,436,000; New Mexico, 114,000; Arizona, 114,000; California, 000, with scattered areas in other s aggregating 18,000.

nk the committee has about 600 cked. They will meet right along d I think we will be able to clean by Tuesday with all our contracts ecked.

"J. H. Taylor, of Ralls, has been signed here as federal man to assist in checking acreage and other matters. Miss Virginia Alexander is stenographer and O. E. O'Neal is assisting in checking."

"There has been a letting up in the number of farmers calling to ask about contract problems. Committee members reporting, state there is a good percentage of contracts being signed.

"Land owners at a distance are now returning their contracts to tenants from the first reports indications are farmers are taking cash in preference to cash and cotton options.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, July 7. (AP)—The cotton market was active today and after an opening bulge of 50 cents a bale turned easy owing to persistent and heavy liquidation in advance of the government's acreage estimate due after the close tomorrow. There were occasional rallies but the close showed net losses for the day of 19 to 24 points. Weekly mill takings were larger than looked for.

The opening was firmer but disappointing considering the big advance in sterling. The market soon turned easier on pre-bureau liquidation and owing to increased margins asked for carrying contracts over the bureau period. October dropped to 10.43 by the middle of the morning and December to 10.62, down 25 points from the opening and 15 points below the previous close.

Later the market rallied 6 to 7 points on covering but in the early afternoon prices again turned easier on the showing of good Texas rains. Fluctuations followed but in the late afternoon October dropped to 10.34 and December to 10.52 or 34 to 35 points below the opening highs. There was a rally of 3 to 4 points at the end and October closed at 10.36 down 22 points net and December at 10.53 down 24 points net.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 9 penny points down.

Port receipts 28,529, for week 83,173, for season 6,707,367, last season 10,018,125. Exports 31,431, for week 160,129, for season 7,876,276. Last season 8,297,739. Port stocks 3,354,743, last year 3,573,580. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 161,692, last year 66,725. Spot sales at southern markets 14,076, last year 2,326.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—Cotton ruled strong for a time in the early trading today but failed to hold its gain.

October contracts after selling up from 10.76 on the opening demand, broke to 10.40 in the late trading and closed at 10.41 with the general market closing barely steady at net losses of 19 to 23 points.

Initial prices were up to 14 points on trade and commission house buying which included considerable demand through houses with Liverpool, continental and far eastern connections.

The advance encountered heavy realizing, however; and prices turned easier under continued profit-taking combined with some reselling by early buyers and selling through houses with southern connections.

Some stop orders were uncovered during the progress of the decline which carried the active months about 32 to 37 points off from the early highs, and the close was at or within the lowest for the day.

The failure of the advance in foreign exchange and strength of the stock market to bring in a more aggressive demand, was a disappointment to some of the early buyers and a disposition to even up long accounts was again attributed partly to an inclination to await more definite reports with reference to creage curtailment proposals and publication of the government acreage report tomorrow.

Exports today 29,252, making 8,007,539 so far this season. Port receipts 28,104. U. S. port stocks 3,389,941.

Grains

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, July 7. (AP)—All offerings on the Fort Worth cash grain market today met good demand. Wheat prices were lowered in sympathy, with the contract markets and there was some inclination to hold the grain. Estimated receipts included:

Wheat 132 cars; corn 3; oats 37, and sorghums 1.

Prices ranged as follows, basis carloads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid to destination.

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points: Wheat No. 1 hard 1.08 1-2@1.09 1-2. Barley No. 2 nominally 65@66; No. 3 nominally 64@65. Sorghums No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 1.65@1.70; No. 3 milo 1.60@1.65. No. 3 kafir per 100 pounds 1.55@1.60; No. 3 kafir 1.53@1.58.

Delivered Texas common points or group 3: Corn No. 2 mixed 76@78; No. 2 white 78@79; No. 2 yellow 77@78.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, July 7. (AP)—Speeding swiftly above $1.00 a bushel for all future deliveries, the Chicago wheat market today touched $1.10 1-4 in some transactions, and then plunged downhill.

Immense profit-taking more than wiped out wheat gains for at least the time being. The maximum advance of wheat today, 3 cents a bushel, received its chief immediate impulse from wild fluctuations in foreign currency following President Roosevelt's stand as to the money policy of the United States. Contributing to subsequent reverse action of wheat and other cereals were timely rains in the corn belt, and indications of further beneficial moisture for crops tonight.

Today's rise in grain values carried all Chicago deliveries of wheat up beyond $1.00 for the first time this season, and resulted in new season high price records not only in wheat, but also in corn, barley and rye. At the extreme top today, wheat was up 13 1-4 cents above last week's low, and corn was up 14 1-4 cents.

Wheat closed unsettled, 3-4 to 1 3-8 under yesterday's finish, corn 1 1-2 to 2 2-3 down, oats 3-4 to 1 3-8 off, and provisions 7 cents to 22 cents up.

Provisions advanced, responsive to the course of hog values.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, Sept. 96 3-4, 1.03@1.03 1-4; Dec. 99@99 1-8, 1.05 1-4@3-8; 1.03 5-8, 1.09 1-2. Corn, Sept. 61@61 1-8, 66 1-4@1-2; Dec. 65 3-8@5-8, 70 1-2@3-4; May 70 1-2, bids.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, July 7. (AP)—Cattle trade at midwestern markets was active with a limited supply of killing cattle selling on a firm to slightly higher basis. Choice 1,255 lb. steers in Chicago scored 6.70. St. Louis received 6.35 for a load of choice 665 lb. yearling heifers. Trade interests expect sizable shipments out of Oklahoma and Kansas pastures by the last ten days of July. Country demand for stockers and feeders has been slow this week and the supply as usual at this season limited.

Hogs found a moderately active outlet on early rounds at steady to 15 higher rates but the close at some points was dull with early gains erased. Choice offerings in Chicago and St. Louis cleared up to 4.75.

Fat lambs trade continued active with several markets reporting additional upturns of 25 to 50. Sheep and yearlings ruled steady to strong. Choice native lambs in Chicago sold up to 8.65 and at some of the river markets sorted natives realized 8.60.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, July 7. (AP)— Hardly enough cattle beside steers and yearlings offered at Fort Worth today to make a market.

Cattle 900, fed steers 1,100 pounds, 5.50. Odd bulls 1.50@1.75; fed yearlings top 5.50. Canner cows 1.35. Heavy slaughter calves 4.00@4.25.

Hogs 1,600, top 4.35. Packing sows 3.25@3.50.

Sheep 4,000; spring lambs 6.00; shorn fat aged wethers 2.25; shorn 2-year-old wethers 3.00@3.25.

Ancient Aztecs used fire beetles as lanterns to light their paths. Bundles of the insects were tied to the wrists of the night traveler.

WALL STREET REPORT

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, July 7. (AP)—A stockminded public, imbued with inflationary psychology and avid for equities, surged into the market today and bought and sold 7,034,530 shares in one of the most active trading sessions this year.

The list as a whole closed irregularly higher for late profit-taking shaved some of the early 1 to 4 point gains. The Tsociated Press-Standard Statistics closing average for 90 selected issues, however, scored a new high at 95 up nine-tenths of a point. An assortment of advances of 1 to 3 points net was nearly counter-balanced by numerous declines of similar proportions.

Foreign exchanges moved strongly against the dollar all day. Wheat and corn made a new high but closed under yesterday's final prices, and cotton was dragged down about $1 a bale. Bonds took their cue from stocks and moved into higher territory.

Inundated by a flood of rumors and reports, the trading community has definitely come to the conclusion that the administration desires a still cheaper dollar, in relation to foreign exchanges, and that something might be done to speed up the decline.

BASEBALL'S BIG 6

(By The Associated Press)

While their National league rivals from Philadelphia were idle yesterday, the three American league members of the Big Six knotted their race up in the closest tie so far with Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and Jimmie Foxx separated only by fractions of percentage points in their race for the league batting lead. Cronin also had a day off yesterday. Simmons made two hits in five times up, lifting his mark just enough to give him the lead while Foxx hit two out of four to gain two points and wind up barely behind Cronin.

Mr. Long's Newest Move

WITH press and public tired of his efforts to keep before the populace even if he has to turn handsprings in church, the Hon. Huey P. Long, senator from Louisiana, has hit upon another plan to remain within the vision, if not the hearts of his countrymen.

"At great expense to myself and my friends", as his letter points out, the gentleman from New Orleans is broadcasting copies of three speeches which he delivered in the last session of Congress. These speeches, delivered at such great expense, are printed on paper bearing the stamp of the government printing office and the accompanying letter is on stationery of the United States Senate.

Although a recipient of Senator Long's material, the Editor of The Morning Avalanche hasn't gone to the trouble of fighting his way through all the dull matter enclosed in the long envelope. He has merely read enough to note that the whole thing is a defense of the Hon. Huey's actions in the upper house.

Whenever a United States Senator has to go to the trouble of defending his actions outside his own state, there's something rotten in Denmark.

Either he's trying to build himself up, through synthetic means, as a national character or he's trying to exert public pressure from without his own state upon the voters who will either elect or defeat him in the next elections.

THE MISSING ELEMENT

One of the most fascinating discoveries of the schoolboy's chemistry course is his introduction to the table of the elements, which lists the basic materials of the universe in a graduated scale according to their measurable characteristics. Perhaps it seems to him a manufactured gradation, but its defense is that it works. It has worked well enough to indicate to scientists where elements were missing in the scale, leaving obvious gaps in the progression of atomic weights and other properties. One by one these gaps have been filled by discovery of elements whose characteristics filled the indicated requirements until there are but two vacancies in the list of 92 pure substances, which had hydrogen at one end and uranium at the other.

Now the eighty-seventh element has been detected, though not yet isolated. The name assigned to it while it was still purely theoretical is ekacaesium, and it belongs in a group which included lithium, potassium and caesium. It was known that as a member of this group it should respond to scientific treatment with certain behavior and reactions, and these have been detected in infinitesimal degree in lepidolite, a form of mica. The conclusion is that ekascaesium is hiding there.

Now there is only one member of the family missing. Number 85, a member of the halogen group, which includes chlorine, bromine and iodine, is still unaccounted for. But there is a space for it in the atomic scale, and some day the scientists will put it in its place. After which, no doubt, they will find some use for it as also for the truant ekacaesium, which has just reported its presence in the scheme of things.

UPLIFTING A HUSBAND

According to Prof. Bruno Roselli, of Vassar College, the reform movement, like charity, should begin at home. He startled the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs by suggesting that the members should take less thought for the world's worries and "devote more time to the uplift of the particular man intrusted to their care."

The ladies didn't like it. The club-woman's concern over social and political problems is real and earnest, and a mere man was on dangerous ground when he disputed or doubted its importance. But it is likely that the men won't like the idea either. No man enjoys the prospect of being uplifted, even by his wife. He enjoys even less the implication that club activities or leisure or education of anything else have placed women so measurably ahead of men in culture or intelligence that they must turn back to help the laggards along. Sometimes it may even work the other way.

If the professor had said somewhat more plainly that there are times and circumstances in which a woman might be more profitably engaged around the house than in listening to lecturers like himself, he would have found followers among his fellows. But he would have been on no safer ground so far as the ladies were concerned.

Weathering storms off the Atlantic coast must have been easy for President Roosevelt, considering the storms he has weathered in Washington since March 4.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

"If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat; and if he be thirsty, give him water to drink: for thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head and the Lord shall reward thee."—Proverbs 25:21-22.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Dürno

THE Senate Banking and Currency committee Chairman Fletcher of Fla., has indicated that some notice "may" be taken of the "Roosevelt boom market" when the committee reconvenes.

He points out that stocks have been induced to soar this past month largely by speculation on better times.

• • •

There have been some interesting angles in the stock market recently nevertheless which appear to have had nothing to do with that expected look around the corner.

Outstanding was the bull flurry in Western Union, Postal Telegraph and International Telephone & Telegraph. The short-lived updrive in these stocks accompanied a mystery move in congress to legalize a merger of Western Union and ITT, the latter controlling Postal.

Such a merger would have forced Radio Corporation of America to the wall and resulted in a monopoly of all forms of communication outside the Post Office.

It also would have thrown thousands of men and women out of work.

• • •

In early June the senate first heard a very subrosa suggestion that the Emergency Railroad Act be amended to permit the merger.

Senator Clarence Dill of Washington investigated and blocked the amendment. The Rail Act went to the House. Suddenly, without hearing or debate, the enabling clause was adopted.

The bill went back to conference. Dill stood firm. The amendment was kicked cut. Congress adjourned.

• • •

PROFITS: Here is what happened on the 'change board.

On June 5, word of the possible merger apparently hit Wall Street. Western Union, which had had a previous high for the year of 50 3-4, moved up 9 3-4 points to 58 1-8. Postal, never before above 21 3-4 this year, gained 7 3-8 to reach 27. ITT, with a past top of 17 1-2, moved 1 5-8 to 18 1-8.

The following day quotations read thusly: W. U., 62 1-2; Postal, 35 3-4; ITT, 19 3-8.

Thereafter the stocks skidded somewhat but W. U. held above 56. Postal around 27 and ITT topped 18.

On June 15 a midnight adjournment of Congress was certain. The board read as follows at close of business that day; W. U., 50 1-2; Postal, 22; ITT, 16.

A smart lot of money was turned by a clever—but not a new—play.

• • •

DAVIES: Back of this foredoomed but expert effort to tie all wire, radio and cable communication into a single bag was one Joseph E. Davies, formerly of Wisconsin, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission under Woodrow Wilson, and now a "prominent Democrat" with local law offices.

Davies is understood to have collected a large fee for his endeavors. He is further reported to have been given wide latitude in engaging outside help to lobby for the needed legislation.

At least one senator and one opposing lobbyist maintain that Davies called in Basil O'Connor, President Roosevelt's erstwhile law-partner. This is the O'Connor who figured in the forest army kit investigation and other government contract transactions.

Maybe he's just being picked on.

• • •

SKIDS: Prohibition Director A. V. Dalrymple is on the way out faster than prohibition according to those who clock goings-on from the inside.

It is whispered he committed lese majeste. The Major was an appointee of Senator McAdoo's. He got in some sort of row and is recorded as having cursed the angular California senator.

Further, Dalrymple is reported to have had words with Attorney General Cummings, who conveyed to him the thought that he needed no more recommendations for appointments.

• • •

Before any of this happened Dalrymple rubbed a group of newspapermen the wrong way.

Maybe the repeal voting tables make the job a bore.

• • •

NOTES: Somehow the senate's investigation of Kuhn, Loeb failed to stir up any fireworks. . . . It made the first page but didn't seem to arouse much righteous anger. . . . The Morgan inquiry had taken all the edge off Otto Kahn's admissions. . . . Everybody knew in advance he had a preferred list and hadn't paid any income tax recently. . . . Prospector Pecora tried valiantly though. . . . He timed his questions to give the newspaper boys one lead a little after 11 a. m. and another around closing time. . . . Kahns expertness as a publicity man pulled all the punch. . . . He stole Pecora's show.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

THE industrial control spark plugs are not firing 100 per cent. The inside gap between the views of Secretary Roper and General Johnson is reported here as widening and the spark is getting weaker. New York conservatives are watching this with close attention. A short-circuit wouldn't pass them on the mourners' bench.

Local authorities understand that General Johnson favors accepting the codes pretty much as submitted in order to get things moving. Secretary Roper is said to prefer a showdown on wage and hour questions even if it hurts industry's feelings. The question is whether fast but imperfect action is preferable to getting better results more slowly.

You will see some funny-looking codes offered to take advantage of this situation. The Tories will be out to get away with everything they can.

It looks more and more as if a mailed fist in the White House will be needed to keep the program from falling apart. Industrial talk of whole-hearted cooperation has become a smoke-screen.

• • •

UTILITIES: Utilities don't seem to have heard about the Industrial Recovery Act. At least they're not doing anything about a code. It seems they're waiting for an invitation. They will get one.

But they know exactly what they are going to say. They will express a willingness to raise wages if—and only if—the various Public Service Commissions will stop nagging them to reduce rates.

Also they will paint a poignant picture of what the new taxes are doing to their earnings. That will be their story and they'll stick with it to the end.

• • •

CREDIT: The credit expansion picture will change for the better if and when industrial control really gets going. Several New York banks have privately stated they will be much more willing to extend loans to concerns in industries protected by law against vicious price-cutting.

• • •

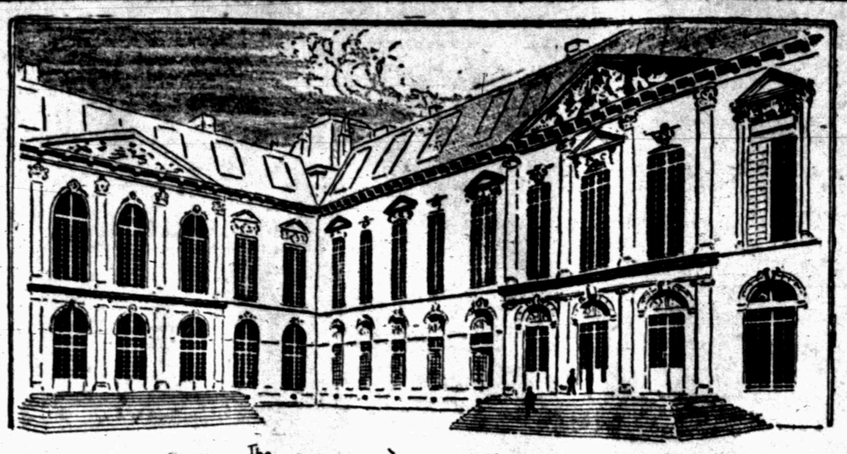

HOURS: The National Broadcasting Company is going on a five-day week as a gesture in support of the President's program. Actually it is just a gesture because they are not hiring any additional workers.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after four years, meets 20-year-old ELINOR STAFFORD and falls in love with her. Barrett is 35, wealthy and has made a name for himself as an archeologist.

Elinor's beautiful mother, LIDA STAFFORD, has kept the girl in the background, wanting attention for herself. Lida is carrying on a flirtation with VANCE CARTER and is constantly scheming to keep in the good graces of MISS ELLA SEXTON, her husband's aunt, in order to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune. Elinor hates this hyprocrisy.

Barrett's half-sister, MARCIA RADNOR, is terrified for fear her husband will learn of an unfortunate episode in her past. Years before Barrett shielded Marcia when a youthful romance ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. The boy is nine years old now. Marcia insists that if her husband learns the truth he will never forgive her.

HAROLD DEXTER, the boy's tutor, threatens blackmail. Barrett, hinting at knowledge of Dexter's past (all of which is bluff), frightens the man into promising he will not make trouble.

Barrett takes Elinor Stafford for a drive. Each time he sees her she seems more charming.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

Bentwell Stafford sat before the fire, flushed and heavy eyed. The usual decanter and glass were beside him on a small table within easy reach. For the first time that he could remember Elinor had not greeted him as he came in. Although the home-coming had left him hollow it warmed him, too. He hoped that she was out with some young people having a good time. The fact that she had so few good times made his eyes fill with those tears that rise easily from alcohol.

A little stir at the door made him turn to see Elinor, her eyes bright and shining.

"Well, child"—he offered in a rasping, low voice after the cough that was habitual.

"Dear!" she exclaimed. She came forward swiftly, stooped and kissed him, then settled on a low stool at his feet.

Her father studied her. She was beautiful—rarely undoubtedly beautiful. He didn't see how even the dullest eyes could miss that fact.

"And what?" he asked. It was a nightly ritual, one that had started back in the days when it prompted a history of her play hours and of how she had done at lessons.

"I had a ride," she replied. She was staring into the fire and trying not to smile. He saw her set her teeth on the lower lip which would turn upward, saw the dreaming languor of her eyes.

"Um!" Stafford reached for the decanter to pour another drink. He had always known it would hurt when it came; but he had never sensed the depths of the hurt. And yet he wanted Elinor to fall in love, to be happy and settled in a home of her own. Odd how reason and instinct quarrelled! He sipped his bracer, set down the glass and spoke. "And who took you riding?"

"Mr. Colvin—Mr. Barrett Colvin."

"Thought perhaps you'd gone with Bob Telfair—"

"Oh, no!"

"Like him, don't you?"

"Yes, I like him but—"

• • •

"But what?" Stafford prompted. How had anything so beautiful come to him and to Lida? So beautiful spiritually as well as physically? He never had been able to make it out.

"Well," she explained slowly, "I like him as a very good friend. You know he's helped me a lot with Cousin Phillip, going to see him when I couldn't manage to because of Mother and the way she feels. He's been a very good friend!" she ended loyally.

"Yes, I know. Poor young devil! Well, what about Colvin? You like him?"

"Very much." The response came low.

"Hum—!" Bentwell again lifted his glass.

"I had the most wonderful afternoon I've ever had in my whole life!" she confessed.

Bentwell had known it would come to her in that way; that she was built to give a whole heart and not a cautious inch of it. Suppose Colvin were damned fool enough not to realize that which was offered him?

"Do you know Mr. Colvin, Father?" she asked. She wanted to talk of Colvin, he saw. There had been a time years ago when he had wanted to talk of Lida in the same way. The time had been short, as Lida was orphaned and alone and they had married quickly. Soon after marriage he had not wanted to talk of her nor even to think of her. Elinor had his capacity for dreaming. She must not be hurt.

"I know him fairly well," he responded in his slow way. "His family have lived acros the street from Aunt Ella for more years than even I can remember. While I was still on the leash I used to be dragged there and Colvin and his sister ran in often. He's a good chap, I understand, but they say he's a hard-boiled bachelor. I think a good many women have tried to marry him. The Colvin fortune is considerable, you know."

• • •

She flushed at the words.

"I'm not going to try to marry him," Elinor admitted honestly and a trifle loudly. "But if he wanted to marry me—he'd have to do no more than snap his fingers or whistle!" She tried to make a joke of it, laughing, but she could not. After the failure she covered her face for a moment with her hands.

"Suppose," Stafford said slowly, "he hasn't sense enough to know how lovely you are? Suppose he's as blind as so many damned fools?"

"Then I suppose I'll know I wasn't—nice enough."

"Don't!" Her father begged. Elinor slipped her hand into his and looked at the decanter. He had already had a good deal; more even than was usual. "We must play chess after dinner,' she said, eyes still on the decanter.

"I'd like to but I don't want to bore you, baby."

"But I'd love it! You know I love it. Father, when is Mother going?" Her voice was suddenly anxious.

"They start, I believe, tomorrow morning."

"Then—that's all right!" she said quickly, happily. She didn't want Mr. Colvin to meet her mother until she, Elinor, had had a little chance. She wouldnt have any chance at all if he met her mother, Elinor knew. It had happened before with every young man who had been attracted by Elinor, except Bobby Telfair who had remained adamant under her mother's attacks. The attacks were made, the girl understood, in order that a selfish woman might prove the fact that she could attract and enchant and rule wherever and whomever she wished. The thought of this had never before really mattered to Elinor. Now it did.

Benson appeared in the broad doorway just then to announce that dinner was served.

• • •

Elinor rose quickly, her father in his slow and cumbersome way. The dining room had been decorated under Lida's direction in what she considered an impressive manner but tonight the aged oak walls and family portraits looked down on faded roses in the center of the table and a Venetian cut-work cloth that was a little crushed. The candles, too, had been burned before.

It was the sort of thing Elinor detested. Consistent simplicity she thought to be so much more agreeable. The constant striving to impress others had become one of the meanest, although one of the smallest, of Lida's deceits.

"Mother dining out?" Elinor asked after Benson had pushed her chair under her.

"Yes," her father said. "Off somewhere with that young Carter."

"I loathe him and yet I'm sorry for him, too," Elinor stated. It was odd how she could talk and hear herself as if from a distance while all the time that new, excited feeling in her heart made her seem to be a different person.

"Father—"

"Yes, dear?"

"How are you off financially just now? I saw a dress yesterday I would like to have."

"Then get it," he answered quickly. Elinor's doing without because Lida simply "had to have" this or that had always angered him. And yet somehow he never managed to compensate Elinor for her patience with having so few frills.

"Thanks ever so much," she said. Elinor was thinking that she would try her hair a new way. Low on her neck. Her mother had seen her with it that way and called it "idiotically stagey." But her mother would be in Miami. Beautiful thought! And Tuesday when they drove up the Hudson to have dinner at the inn that he liked she'd wear her tan coat that looked quite well in spite of being so old and the little tan hat that Celeste, her mother's maid, said was becoming.

Benson appeared in the doorway. "There's a call on the telephone for you, Miss Stafford," he said. "It's Mr. Colvin."

Craig Wood And Denny Shute To Battle For British Open Crown Today

Two Stars Of U. S. Tied At 292 On Friday

Finish Of Golfing Classic At St. Andrews Is Fiercest, Most Exciting In Years; Wood Shoots A 68

BY FRANK H. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 7 (AP)—For the tenth successive year the golfing shotmakers from the United States dominated the British Open Golf championship finals today over St. Andrews' classic terrain but whether the title honors go to Craig Wood, the powerful blond from New Jersey, or to dark, slender Densmore Shute, the Philadelphia stylist, will not be known until they play off their tie at 36 holes tomorrow.

Crashing through in one of the fiercest, most exciting battles ever waged for this ancient championship, while favorites were eliminated right and left by St. Andrews' famous hazards, Wood and Shute finished in a deadlock at 292 strokes each for the 72 holes of championship conflict. Wood's dazzling 68 on his third round this morning was his decisive thrust, the best score of the entire day, and his tally showed successive rounds of 77-72-68-75. Shute had four 71's in a row, even par on every round, for one of the most consistent exhibitions ever witnessed.

Easterbrook Close Behind

Like the Ryder cup matches, however, the leaders were not safe until the last putt was hit by the last player, who, as at Southport, was Syd Easterbrook—"Syd the Saviour" they called him after he beat Shute on the home green in the deciding match of the international team series.

But the deliberate, good-looking west countryman from Bristol failed, like a dozen others today to come through in the stretch drive. His final putt failed to drop and instead of a three-cornered playoff, two young Americans with contrasting games and personality will wage the first playoff since Jock Hutchison whipped Roger Wethered in the 1921 open.

Shute Gets Sympathies

If there were any sympathies for either one of the swarming Scotch galleries, they probably shifted to Shute, not only because of his steady stylish play but also because of his British antecedents.

Easterbrook, with whom the last homebred hopes died after Henry Cotton and then Abe Mitchell had faltered badly in the last round, [illegible] for third place with two more Americans—Gene Sarazen, who saw [illegible] title fly away with a disas[illegible] eight on fourteenth hole — [illegible]x hole of the tournament—and [illegible]o Diegel, who missed a three-[illegible]ot putt on the last green. All [illegible]ree finished a stroke behind Shute [illegible]d Wood with 293.

Bunkers Are Pitfalls

Two cavernous bunkers, one at [illegible]e Eden No. 11 hole on his second [illegible]und and the other at "Hell bunk-[illegible]" on No. 14 on his final round, [illegible]st Sarazen a golden opportunity [illegible] repeat his 1932 victory. In each [illegible]e American took three wallops [illegible]th his niblick.

In one of the closest of all fin[illegible]hes for the championship, no less [illegible]an 14 players, including eight [illegible]mericans, wound up within five [illegible]trokes of each other but the car[illegible]nage was frightful among the fa[illegible]vorites, on the last round and fore[illegible]most among the victims was Walter Hagen. The American Ryder cup [illegible]captain, who had a 68 on his first [illegible]round and set the pace for two days, [illegible]began to fade on his third round, [illegible]which included a seven on No. 14, [illegible]nd he went to pieces with an 82 [illegible]n his last round for a total of 301.

Eight Tied At 54 Holes

Of the five players who were tied [illegible] the end of 54 holes this morn[illegible]ng—Henry Cotton, Abe Mitchell, [illegible]asterbrook, Joe Kirkwood and Leo [illegible]iegel—only two, Easterbrook and [illegible]iegel, were still in the fight when [illegible]he finishing holes were reached. [illegible]iegel wasted chances with a 77, [illegible]Mitchell took a 78, Cotton a 79 and [illegible]Kirkwood an 81. Easterbrook's last [illegible]ound was 77.

Diegel's final round was a heart[illegible]breaker, as his eccentric golf mixed [illegible]fives with brilliant threes, climaxed [illegible]by the failure to sink a tiny putt [illegible]on the home green. Diegel's con[illegible]tortion putting, known as "diegel[illegible]ing" will lose many imitators now, [illegible]for it failed him on a ridiculously [illegible]easy shot.

Ten Thousand Look On

It remained for Wood to go out in front, after other front runners had failed, and then the thrill after thrill as, first, Shute came through to tie and then Easterbrook failed. Shute, with a sensational 33 out in the morning, had damaged his chances with an incoming 40 the difference being chiefly that his putts didn't drop so often, but there were no signs otherwise that he had lost his smooth swing, the accuracy of his irons and cool control around the greens.

Starting his final round with two fives, Shute was "dead" to the pin for birdies on the fifth and sixth holes to keep par under control. He started back with another birdie on the 10th and his only mistake came when he took three to get down from the edge of the 46th green.

Wood's Third Round a Gem

Wood's third round 68 was a gem, sparkling with putts for birdies on six holes.

Two of the day's best rounds were shot by Olin Dutra, the big Californian, 70-72, but he had too big a deficit to overcome and finished with 294, in a tie for sixth place with Abe Mitchell, veteran British pro.

Among 72-hole scores was Joe Ezar, Waco, Tex., 226-81—307.

The title of the historic British Open golf championship today rests in the play of the two Americans above. Tied at 292 Friday in the finals, the two players meet today in a 36-hole match for the crown.

Two College Net Stars Advance In National Tourney

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 7 — Two college stars of the net world, Karl Kamrath of Texas and Gene Mako of the University of Southren California came back with rousing finishes today to join Frankie Parker of Milwaukee and Junior Coen, Kansas City, in the semi-finals of the National Clay Court singles tennis championship.

While Parker and Coen idled by the sidelines to get full advantage of a day off, Kamrath survived the battle by defeating his arch rival of the courts, John McDiarmid, Texas Christian university professor, in a stirring five-set duel, 2-6, 2-6,6-4, 6-2, 6-3. Mako submerged Lefty Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., 3-6, 6-2 6-2, 6-4.

Coen Likely To Withdraw

The two collegians meet each other in tomorrow's semi-finals on the Chicago Town and Tennis club courts but the battle of the upper-half bracket was doubtful. Coen suffered so intensely with a blistered right foot that he withdrew from the doubles competition and said he might default to Parker, thus allowing the Milwaukee school boy star to loaf into the finals.

Another "Boy Manager" Makes Grade

Presenting Joe Cronin, Washington's sensational young pilot, and three stalwarts who are helping him make a show of the American league race. The veteran Crowder is having one of his biggest years on the mound, while Schulte and Manush are hitting at a terrific clip.

* * *

BY GAYLE TALBOT
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Clark Griffith, the man with a predelliction for "boy managers," has reached down deep and come up with another winner.

Back a few years ago it was Bucky Harris, the infant second baseman, who drove the Washington Senators to two pennants and a world championship. He represented a daring and successful experiment on Griffith's part.

Now it is Joe Cronin, an equally youthful shortstop, who fast is making the Senators the sensation of the American league. It scarcely can be termed an experiment this time. Griffith must know something.

For the last two seasons the veteran Capitol City team, under Walter Johnson, has been well liked. Many picked it to win the flag both years. But, somehow, it never quite lived up to its promise. So Griffith, in the face of popular opinion, released the "Big Train" last winter and installed his brilliant young infielder at the throttle.

Expert Opinion

"A mistake," was the verdict in many quarters. "He's ruining a great shortstop to make a poor manager. Cronin can't do justice to both jobs."

How thoroughly the young man from San Francisco has refuted these critics is best seen in the latest batch of figures. Inspired by their juvenile foreman, the Senators late in June had swept by their arch rivals, the Yankees, after a winning streak that included victories in 15 out of 16 contests and one string of eight straight triumphs.

As for Cronin, he was hitting .352 at last averages, the highest figure on the Washington club, and was fielding with his customary sparkle. It is possible, of course, that without his managerial duties Joe would be hitting around .400, but it cannot be said his present pace constitutes a handicap to the club. In one period of three weeks he boosted his average some 90 points.

Team Hitting .304

And what a group of sluggers Cronin has around him—five regulars over the .300 line and the team as a whole caressing the tomato at a .304 clip, far ahead of the skidding Yankees.

Heine Manush, always a great hitter, had an impressive mark of .345. Fred Schulte, obtained from the Browns during the winter, was hitting .350 and Goose Goslin, acquired in the same deal, .326, giving the outfield a combined average of .340. With such a wrecking crew it's easy to understand how the Senators averaged 15 hits per game for one stretch of 10 contests.

The team's veteran catcher, Luke Sewell, was hitting .309; Ossie Bluege at third .306; Joe Kuhel at first .296, and Buddy Myer, second baseman and weakest hitting regular, .276.

Arm Troubles Weaver

Pacing the team's powerful mound staff was General Alvin Crowder, with 11 victories in his first 15 games. McAfee, Russell, Whitehill and Stewart have given him stout assistance. But for a sore arm that has held back Monte Weaver, last year's freshman sensation, the Senators might have been far ahead of the pack by this time.

But they're doing very nicely with what they have, and with the Yankees showing unmistakable signs of coming apart at the seams it's no wonder Washington fans are catching the pennant fever. It looks very much like Griffith, the "Old Fox," has fooled 'em again.

Jack Crawford Is Victor Over Vines At Wimbledon

Terrific Five-Set Clash Ends In Champ's Loss

(By The Associated Press)

WIMBLEDON, England, July 7. Jack Crawford, brilliant young Australian, battered his way to the top of the men's tennis world today with a terrific five-set victory over Ellsworth Vines, defending champion from the United States, in a Wimbledon final that produced some of the greatest tennis in the history of the famous tournament.

Before packed stands so tense with excitement that gasps alone broke the stillness, the amazing youngster from down under fought his towering American rival through two bitter hours before he triumphed, 4-6, 11-9, 6-2, 2-6, and brought back to Australia the crown neither the island dominion nor any part of the British kingdom has been able to win since the days of the great Ansacs, A. F. Wilding, Norman Brookes and Gerald Patterson.

Vines Exhausted

The issue was in doubt until the very last second when Vines, worn to the point of exhaustion, drove into the net the match point that lifted Crawford to the throne seat of tennis.

With Australia favored to beat England and play the United States for the right to challenge France for the Davis cup, Crawford and Vines seem certain to renew their feud in two weeks with the international trophy itself at stake, since the seven-year reign of the French now appears to be over.

Seven times in the past year, the lanky Vines, until today the uncrowned king of the singles world, had met the young Australian who is almost his equal in size, and five times Vines had won, but today—and the situation may easily be reversed the next time—there was no question at the end of Crawford's supremacy.

He took the most terrific assault the cannon-balling Vines is capable of, weathered the onslaught, and then came back gamely, brilliantly, in the final set to wear the defending champion down to a point where he was able to break through his service at love for the final and deciding game.

Lorenzo Team Is Winner Friday In Game With Locals

For the second time this season, the hustling Lorenzo baseball club downed the Lubbock Hubbers at Lorenzo, Friday, 4 to 3. The Hubbers had previously dropped a 10 to 4 game to the Lorenzo team.

Lorenzo is claiming one of the fastest aggregations in this territory and is seeking games with any other club in the area.

The team has won 16, lost two and tied one in nineteen games played thus far this season.

STORE YOUR WHEAT

Wheat is too high to store on the ground or in out houses. We will advance the money to pay threshing and hauling if the wheat is not mortgaged and you store with us.

Factor Ordered To Stay Hidden

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—Jerome Factor was ordered by his father's friends today to remain in seclusion at his mother's hotel.

The decision to keep the 19-year-old youth, himself a victim of kidnapers three months ago, in hiding, was made by the group occupying John Factor's downtown hotel suite, whence the search for the kidnaped elder Factor was being directed.

There had been talk that the abductors might again seize Jerome, and the associates of Factor decided, it appeared, to handle the negotiations themselves. Whether they have ever actually communicated with the kidnapers, however, remained guess work.

A piece of drill pipe stuck more than two miles below the earth in an oil well near Coalinga, Cal. Dynamite was used to blow it out.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 30

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Many days it was before Tarzan recovered from his victorious battle with Terkoz, the rebellious bull ape. And then, one day, he had another encounter with three of the natives, emerging victor, taking their weapons, ornaments, and wondrous finery. The natives, now thoroughly frightened, believed him some unseen, terrible god.

"Munango-Keewati," they called him, the evil spirit of the jungle, believing that those who looked upon him died. So the king ordered arrows and food to be placed just without the village to appease him. As long as they supplied him with these, they thought, he would not harm them.

Tarzan was returning to the cabin. When he came in sight of the beach, a strange and unusual spectacle met his vision. On the placid waters of the land-locked harbor floated a great ship, and on the beach a small boat was drawn up. And men—like himself—were moving about!

He crept closer, saw the men talking loudly, gesticulating, shaking their fists. Presently a little man laid his hands upon the shoulder of a giant next him, pointing inland. As the big man turned to look, the mean-faced one shot him in the back, tumbling him forward—dead!

The report of the weapon, the first Tarzan had ever heard, filled him with wonderment. Were such white men his brothers? Presently the men launched the boat, jumped into it and rowed away toward the great ship. Then Tarzan slipped back to the cabin. Everything had been ransacked!

Caleb, The Courageous

Text: Josh. 14:6-14

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson For July 9

By Wm. E. Gilroy, D. D., Editor Of The Congregationalist

WITH Joshua is inevitably associated Caleb, called the courageous. He shared Joshua's faith in the ability of the people of Israel to conquer and possess the Promised Land when their 10 fellow spies admitted the glories of the country but assured their people that there was no hope of conquering it.

In our present lesson we have Caleb as an old man recalling to Joshua, in the presence of the people, their common service in days gone by and the promise that Moses had given to him that the land which he had trodden would be an inheritance to him and to his children because of his faithfulness and courage. The spirit of the old man had by no means waned, and he assured Joshua and the people that he was as strong as in the day when Moses had sent him to spy out the land.

• • •

POSSIBLY it was something of an old man's boast, or a matter of illusion, but we still admire his spirit and his strength. As we grow older we like to feel that the years have not ravaged us, that we have as much forcefulness and vigor of character as we had in the days of our youth; but it is not always true that a man is as young as he feels. Age leaves its marks upon us as it probably had left his mark upon Caleb.

In asking for his heritage, and in settling down in the hill country, Caleb was not seeking mere reward and an easy way. It was still his hope that he could drive out the enemy.

Perhaps that was why he chose the hill country. The hill country has always offered its challenge. If it gives invigorating atmospheres, it presents hardships and problems that are not associated with the more fertile plain, but the hill country usually develops strong characters, and Caleb was looking to the future.

• • •

THE lessons of the life of Caleb must be carried over ihto a different age and a different sphere. Most of us who read and study this lesson will not be engaged in any task of military conquest, nor even in a task of tilling or defending farms in a hilly country; yet a promised land opens up before us every day, and every experience presents opportunities which energy and heroic endeavor can turn to blessing.

To have the spirit of Caleb, to feel in the presence of gigantic difficulties our own strength and the greatness of the spiritual resources upon which we can draw, to attack our difficulties and our problems without fear and without hesitation, that is the way of achievement and satisfaction today as it was in the day when Caleb recalled his years of service and turned to his hilltop farm.

To live with the faithful and the courageous so intimately that the contagion of their spirit lays hold of our lives — that is the purpose and the benefit of these studies in the life and religion of the past.

Opposition To Sale Is Shown

Stanard-Tilton Company Has Lowest Bid But Creditors Of Plainview Mill Declare Amount Is Too Low

Strong opposition to sale of the assets of the Harvest Queen Mill and Elevator company's plant to the Stanard-Tilton Milling company of St. Louis, developed when the receiver's report of his sale Thursday was presented in United States district court Friday afternoon. Highest bid was $161,500.

The receiver, H. G. Stinnett, jr., Amarillo, filed his report showing three bids submitted for the mill property, with the St. Louis concern having made the highest offer. Strong opposition developed among creditors who held the figures were too low. The bids on the mill in Plainview were separate from other assets of the concern.

Attorneys In Case

Jonier and Cook, Plainview attorneys, represent the receiver. Orville Bullington of Bullington, Umphreys and King, Wichita Falls, represent the milling concern and Byran, Stone, Wade and Agerton Fort Worth, the Fort Worth National bank, W. D. Girand, referee in bankruptcy, also sat in on the case.

Williams and Day, Plainview; Peyton Randolph, Plainview, and Porter Underwood, Amarillo, represent creditors. Mr. Underwood represents the federal land bank. Webster Atwell, Dallas and Maurice Purnell of Locke, Locke, Stroud and Randolph, Dallas also are interested in the case. Mr. Purnell represents the Federal Reserve bank.

Three Bids Made

Three bids for the Plainview properties were offered: Stanard-Tilton Milling company, St. Louis, $161,500; Tex-O-Kan Milling Co., Wichita, Kans., $159,000; Kay Kimbell, Fort Worth, $155,500.

Bids of the three exclude the open accounts, listed at $218,000 in an inventory, and the mill bags.

The bidders offered to accept the grain on hand as of the market price at date of sale. This grain included: 105,641 bushels of wheat, 5,138 pounds of corn, 457,817 pounds of milo maize, 280,210 pounds of kafir; 3,400 pounds red top cane, and 13,032 pounds of sudan.

Other properties on which bids were taken and the highest bidder included:

Crosbyton lots and elevator, $1,000 by Henry Edwards; Lorenzo lots and elevator, $1,000; Petersburg lots and elevator, $4,500 by Kay Kimbell.

No offer was made for the Ralls property or for the lots in Plainview exclusive of those on which the mill is located.

Suspended Term Revoked In City

Filure to stay within the law after receiving a suspended sentence cost Vester Ritchie, 20, of Lubbock, 18 months of freedom, he learned Friday afternoon in United States district court. Ritchie, June 27, had received a two-year sentence, suspended for three years, upon a plea of guilty of two counts in a counterfeit case.

Upon presentation of evidence showing Ritchie had been arrested for two misdemeanor offenses since being released on good behavior under suspended sentence, Judge James C. Wilson in United States court here Friday afternoon set aside Ritchie's probation, sentenced him to 18 months in the new United States reformatory at El Reno, Okla., for possession of a counterfeit bill, and added a two-year suspended sentence for passing the bill.

Ritchie, July 1, had been arrested by police here for drunkenness and fighting, and subsequently pleaded guilty of both. John Alderman, probation officer, of Fort Worth presented evidence of the offense. Mr. Alderman said the fighting charge resulted from Ritchie's expressed intention of thrashing a man who was a witness for the prosecution in the counterfeit case.

Chamal Ranch Hit By Storm

Pilot Flies Over Scene And Later Reports Big House At Ranch Damaged; Plane Also Is Said Down

BROWNSVILLE, July 7 (AP)—Chamal Ranch, 120 miles south of Brownsville in Mexico, was hard hit by the tropical storm which apparently centered in that area late yesterday, according to reports received by Pan-American Airways from one of its pilots today. He reported the big ranch house was damaged badly and twenty or more smaller structures demolished. No signs of life were visible.

The pilot also reported a trimotor plane belonging to a commercial fishing venture was seen overturned and damaged badly on the beach at Bova Ciega, 150 miles south of here. No members of a fishing party consisting of J. P. Putegnat, T. Crixell, jr., H. L Kindred, pilot, and W. P. Irvin, mechanic, were seen near the plane, but the pilot believed they mgiht have been among three persons who signalled for help from farther down the beach earlier in the day.

George Mansur, of the Brownsville Red Cross, accompanied by two physicians, left by small plane to survey the Chamal ranch, carrying an emergency kit to be dropped near survivors if unable to land.

Tons Of Garbage Are Hauled Off Daily; Work Is Heavier

More than 500 tons of garbage is being hauled off daily from Lubbock by the city sanitary department in an effort to keep the city clean during the summer months, Dr. J. W. Rollo, city health officer said yesterday.

The city's garbage is heavier during the summer. In addition, refuse from cowlots is being removed by truckers on contracts from the owners of the lots. A city ordinance requires that the lots be kept clean.

An inspector has been employed by the city to see that lots are clean, in an effort to keep down flies. Doctor Rollo said there are fewer flies this summer, due probably to drier weather.

Capitol Chatter

By Charles E. Simons

Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, July 7. (AP) — Maury Hughes of Dallas, chairman of the Texas Democratic executive committee, is a firm believer in party regularity and discipline but it is said he has not found the duty of applying the party yardstick of regularity a congenial task.

Shortly after the Lubbock convention, the executive committee passed a resolution directing that only those who had not bolted the 1928 presidential ticket and remained faithful to party candidates in the 1932 presidential and state elections should receive any of the party's patronage. Hughes was directed by the committee to carry out the resolution and to protest to the appointing powers the nomination of anyone whose fealty was questioned.

It appears there were many protests filed by committeemen against candidates for the numerous public offices. They caused, Hughes said, no end of bother and trouble and required several trips to Washington to confer with high party officials. Also it proved embarrassing at times he said, because protests were lodged against some of Hughes' friends and he was required to present these along with others.

Hughes termed the task "odious" and said that he would like to have a special committee appointed from ship to aid him in handling the protests.

The wish was granted immediately. Appointed to the "bolter" committee were Dr. J. H. McLean of Fort Worth, L. J. Sulak of La Grange and W. I. Hooks of Itasca.

Dr. McLean, who was made chairman, remarked: "There's a Democratic office holder in North Texas who is going to be glad when he hears I have been named to this committee." He indicated he would take delight in striking this person from the list of prospective appointees.

"It may be distasteful at times, but I believe I'll enjoy giving the axe to some of the political turncoats," commented Sulak.

"You can put me on that committee," said Hooks. "I think I'll enjoy the work."

Court Upholding Moratorium Law

ST. PAUL, July 7 (AP)—The Minnesota state supreme court in a six to one decision today upheld as constitutional the two-year emergency mortgage foreclosure relief act passed by the 1933 legislature.

Economic conditions justified the law, the court ruled, even though it runs counter to article one of the federal constitution.

In upholding the mortgage foreclosure relief act, the court reversed two cases brought on appeal from lower courts in Minneapolis and St. Paul which had ruled the law unconstitutional.

The law upheld provides three remedies for the relief of owners of land sold on mortgage foreclosures. They are: the owner of the land may, by court order, stop foreclosure by advertisement and compel the foreclosure to proceed under the protection of the court; the land owner may by court order secure extension of the time allowed by law for redemption to a date not later than May 1, 1935; and suits cannot be brought for deficiency judgments during the time allowed for redemptions.

Youth Facing Murder Count

Argument Over A Belt Proves Fatal For One; Brother Is Held In Jail; Sister Is An Eye-Witness

JEFFERSON, July 7 (AP)—A charge of murder was filed against Jodie Wallace, 19, today in connection with the fatal shooting of his brother, Carl W. Wallace, 27, last night, resulting from an argument over a leather belt. Jodie Wallace was held in Marion county jail without bail.

The shooting occurred at the Wallace farm, 11 miles from Jefferson. M. E. Henderson told officers he was in the home when an argument started between the brothers over Carl wearing a belt Jodie claimed was his. Henderson said he saw Jodie hit Carl over the head with an iron bar. Henderson ran to summon neighbors.

When officers and neighbors reached the Wallace home, Carl was found shot through the heart and his head crushed. A little sister of the brothers was said by officers to have witnessed the slaying.

The dead man and imprisoned youth are two of seven sons of Mrs. P. J. Wallace who has resided in Marion county for many years.
