Shultz renews invitation to Gorbachev

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz today renewed the invitation for Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev to go to Washington for a superpower summit, but the Kremlin leader said "generally without reason I do not go anywhere, particularly to America."

At the start of a meeting with Gorbachev in an ornate hall at the Kremlin, Shultz delivered a letter from President Reagan containing the invitation to Washington.

"You're welcome to come," Shultz said. "I have a letter from the president and it says so."

Reagan and Gorbachev have held two summit meetings — in Geneva in November 1985 and in Iceland last October. They agreed informally in Geneva that Gorbachev would visit Washington to see the president last year. Reagan then would have gone to Moscow this year.

Gorbachev has not acted on the U.S. invitation, which Reagan renewed in the letter. Howard H. Baker Jr., the president's chief of staff, said Monday in California that he would not be surprised to see a decision on a superpower summit emerge from Shultz's three-day visit to Moscow.

As Gorbachev and Shultz shook hands, posing for photographs, a reporter asked the Soviet leader if he would be going to Washington this year.

"That's precisely what we are going to discuss," Gorbachev said. "We must continue the discussion and then answer your question."

The Communist Party general secretary added, speaking in Russian: "I think I have to be hopeful, and it just cannot be that I would avoid America in my travels. But generally without reason I do not go anywhere, particularly to America. This cannot be just a stroll."

The Soviet leader, who is 56, said that when he nears retirement "then I may travel just for pleasure. But now I need business."

Motioning to Shultz, who stood at his side during the picture-taking, Gorbachev said: "The secretary of state keeps silent."

Shultz, as if on cue, said "You're welcome to come" and pulled Reagan's letter from his pocket. "I have a letter from the president that says so."

Gorbachev remarked with a smile: "So, I was able to achieve it."

Panel vote calls for one state SSC site

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The Texas National Laboratory Commission passed a resolution Monday in Austin to propose only one superconducting super collider site to the U.S. Department of Energy, said Odessa commission member Charles Perry.

Commission members Morton Meyerson of Dallas, Charles Duncan, former DOE secretary, and Frank Cotton of College Station, were the major proponents of a one-site presentation with the resolution passing 7-2, said Perry, who supported the resolution.

Jerome Johnson of Amarillo and Martin Golan of San Antonio opposed the one-site resolution, he said.

Due to their experience with the federal government, the three men convinced most commission members that offering more than one site would just confuse DOE, Perry said.

Several Texas congressmen have also advised commission members that they would "dilute opportunity" by offering multiple sites, Perry said.

Gov. Bill Clements had recommended that the nine-member commission present two proposals for the multi-billion dollar lab — one to meet all of DOE's criteria and an economical site.

During an April 19 visit to Midland the governor said he was confident if two sites were presented to DOE, the economical site would be in West Texas.

Local officials have been pushing a Garden City site, about 40 miles southeast of Midland, for the subatomic particle accelerator lab.

The state commission also only has enough money to prepare one site proposal, which is expected to cost up to a million dollars, Perry said.

Despite the resolution, Perry said the commission still can present more than one site, but that possibility is unlikely.

The one-site objective now forces the commission to weigh whether DOE officials are looking mainly for a cheap site or a site based on a popular location, Perry said.

"The one-site proposal means the commission must determine in its mind whether the emphasis will be on cost or location. It has been said cost is a low priority item for the scientific review people who will make the first cut," he said.

Also during the four-hour meeting Monday, Perry was appointed to a three-member committee along with Duncan and Chairman Peter Flawn to choose between two consulting firms interviewed to prepare the state's proposal.

Stone and Webster Engineering, headquartered in Boston and the Dallas firm, Enserch, working with a Washington consulting firm of Brad-dock, Dunn and McClintock are vying for the chance to write Texas's SSC proposal, Perry said.

The three-member committee will select a consulting firm next Tuesday. On May 5, an advisory council of the commission will review state-wide proposals and make a recommendation to the commission.

Meeting on May 11 the commission is expected to take up to three days to select one of up to nine sites statewide seriously competing for the SSC project, Perry said.

Combust confident SSC project will be funded

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — U.S. Rep. Larry Combust said Monday the fact funding for the Superconducting Super Collider project was not included in a budget resolution passed by Congress last week does not mean the project won't be funded.

During a news conference in Odessa and a meeting with the chamber board of directors and members of the Industrial Development Corporation, Combust said, "I do believe overall, as you look at it as a specific project, that Congress has a fairly good track record of supporting high tech, whether it be in space technology or something of this sort, which actually will be the highest technology ever developed in the area of atomic research."

"It is my own honest opinion," Combust said, "that we will fund the project. We don't yet know what that funding will require because of the variables of potential sites."

He added, however, that the Garden City site "certainly can play into that very well, we think, just because of the cost of the site."

Questioned about whether the SSC would be outdated by the time it is operational in about seven years after construction begins, as some have suggested, Combust said "no."

"Unlike some facets of defense and space technology, the SSC will never be out of date," he said. "Scientists will be able to use the SSC from now on."

Former Midland Mayor Thane Akins, who recently was named project manager of the multi-city West Texas effort to obtain the SSC site, told chamber directors and members of the development corporation a consultant passing through the area over the weekend on his way to Phoenix was asked to look at the site and data concerning it.

Akins said the consultant was flown over and driven around the site and examined the data that will be submitted to the state selection committee by May 5.

The former Midland mayor said it was not known until later that the consultant had been instrumental in developing a siting proposal for the Fermi lab (in Illinois, one of the strong contenders for the SSC site).

After spending Sunday night looking at all the information concerning the proposed Garden City site, Akins said, "We had breakfast with him this morning and he was impressed. He said he'd never been to Midland before, but West Texas in general was well known. He was thoroughly impressed with this site and the qualifications and he gave us some good ideas on things that we can do to enhance other things. It was a very worthwhile meeting."

Ralph McLaughlin of Big Spring, who has headed up the West Texas Chamber of Commerce steering committee effort to develop the Garden City SSC site proposal, observed that vibration in the site area will be a critical factor in the SSC site selection process.

Last-minute tax returns will be handled at main post office

By JANE MARLER DEES
Staff Writer

The April 15 deadline draws near. Taxpayers who wait until 11:30 p.m. Wednesday to fill out their tax returns had better not mail them at a postal substation that night.

The main station on Wall Avenue is the only post office where one will be able to drop off a tax return by midnight Wednesday and get an April 15 cancellation stamp, an official said this morning.

The regular hours inside the Wall Avenue station will remain the same — 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. — but after those hours, one can buy stamps from the vending machines until midnight, said Stan Sartain, U.S. Post Office customer service manager.

Sartain said the post office stocks extra workers during this final tax time period, and that things usually run smoothly. He said he sees about a 10-15 percent increase in volume of mail at this time.

It is important to get the return in the mail as early as possible on April 15, Sartain said. "There's always a possibility something could go wrong and the return could end up with an April 16 cancellation."

If a postal worker sees that a tax return doesn't have enough postage, he said the it will still be sent to the Internal Revenue Service office in Austin.

If there is no postage on the return, Sartain said it is immediately returned to the sender.

However, the IRS office in Austin doesn't accept tax returns with inadequate postage, said Marlene Gaysek, an IRS public affairs officer in Dallas.

The return would be sent back to the taxpayer for additional postage, she said, adding that the person would also face a penalty for not having it in by April 15.

"If you haven't filed your tax return yet, don't wait any longer," Ms. Gaysek said.

She said one could easily facilitate the sometimes confusing process by following the instructions in the IRS instruction package.

Listed in the booklet are directions for filling out "the more complicated" 1040, 1040EZ and 1040A forms.

A toll-free "HELP" hot line — 1-800-424-1040 — will be in operation today and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. to help people with questions concerning their return.

"Just take your return line by line and it will take you through it. These forms have been tested for their exactitude. Don't ask 'why?', just do it," said Ms. Gaysek.

For those whose middle name is procrastination, Form 4868 is the form they should use.

That form is the application for the automatic, four-month filing extension.

"Just fill it out and mail it to us by April 15. You don't have to add a note telling us your dog ate your return. Those who fill the form out would not have to pay taxes until Aug. 17, 1987."

Senate approves bill allowing schools to sue athletic boosters

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — In response to the pay-for-play scandal at Southern Methodist University, the Senate Monday approved a bill that would allow universities and regional collegiate associations to sue boosters who violate NCAA rules.

The bill would give schools and associations such as the Southwest Conference the authority to seek civil damages against boosters and alumni whose actions result in sanctions against the schools, which could mean lost ticket sales or television revenues, said sponsor Sen.

John Montford.

Current National Collegiate Athletic Association rules provide no recourse for schools that suffer disciplinary sanctions because of actions by their boosters, said Montford, D-Lubbock.

"This bill will allow the institutions and associations such as the Southwest Conference to file specific lawsuits against those boosters who have violated NCAA rules by paying cash payments to athletes," Montford said.

Attack on Libya 'curb, not cure'

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — The U.S. raid on the Libyan cities of Tripoli and Benghazi succeeded in curbing but not curing terrorism, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said today on the first anniversary of the attack.

"I think the raid was unfortunately necessary, but I think that it did carry the message that it was intended to: that terrorism has a terrible cost attached to it," Weinberger said in an interview this morning on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

American warplanes dispatched from England and from two Navy aircraft carriers spent about 12 minutes over Libya that night, dropping an estimated 100 tons of bombs on five suspected terrorist facilities.

Some of the bombs missed their mark, killing civilians. One Air Force F-111 and its two-man crew were lost.

But most of the bombs found their targets. And in the process, the United States signaled its allies and enemies alike that under certain circumstances — with evidence in hand of responsibility for terrorist actions — it would unleash its military might.

Much has changed in the year since the raids were conducted. President Reagan, who rode a wave of public acclaim for ordering the mission, later was embarrassed by the disclosure of a "disinformation campaign" against Libya using the U.S. news media. He now stands damaged politically by the continuing Iran-Contra arms affair.

'Tug-of-Honor' ropes in rival Austinites

AUSTIN (AP) — Hundreds of "picante sauce-crazed" good ol' boys and "quiche-eating" yuppies plan a showdown across 700 feet of river for the honor of their side of town.

Rope will be the weapon in the Austin Tug-of-Honor across the Colorado River, the local Mason-Dixon Line between beer-drinking South Austin and wine-sipping North Austin.

"Right now the South team weighs about 11 tons. The North team weighs about 8 tons," said Charles Gandy, a lobbyist and former state representative who hopes to have 500 combatants on each side.

So far, a total of 300 have signed up for the big tug April 25, which is a benefit to raise money for a youth hostel in the Texas capital. Participants are paying $15 for a chance to pull their cross-town enemies into the Colorado.

The two sides of Austin have a deep-seated dislike for each other.

"The North considers the South the auto parts capital of the world," explained Gandy, who lives in South Austin. "The South thinks of the North as a bunch of wine-sipping, quiche-eating pantywaists."

The list of refreshments for the event is revealing. South Austinites will be munching hot dogs and drinking domestic beer and soft drinks, while North Austinites will be nibbling finger foods and slaking their thirsts with imported brew and wine coolers.

Leading the North will be former University of Texas football Coach Darrell Royal. The South's coach is John Kelso, an Austin American-Statesman columnist who has overcome his Maine Yankee roots to become the quintessential South Austinite.

Plans call for about 70 members of each team to grab each of seven ropes strung across the Colorado. The ropes will be connected by an iron rod in the river.

Supporters of state abortion bill drop parental consent provisions

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators shopping for support for their abortion bill have dropped a provision requiring pregnant minors to get parental consent for abortions.

The bill, as amended Monday, would ban abortions after the fetus has reached "viability," something that would be determined by the attending physician. Sen. Judith Zaffirini, a co-sponsor, said the viability issue is controversial enough for the abortion bill.

"We realized that the issue of parental consent and the issue of viability are two weighty matters which should be considered separately, each on its own merits," she said. Co-sponsor Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite, said the parental consent provision was removed because "I'm a political realist and I realize that with that provision in the bill I do not believe I have a chance of passing that out of this committee." A separate bill on parental consent might be filed, but Ms. Zaffirini, D-Laredo, said, "I doubt the possibility of its passage during this session." But she is convinced the viability bill can win legislative approval.

"If a person aborts a fetus that could live outside the womb, that is murder, plain and simple... I do not believe that many intelligent, responsible people could agree to abortions under such conditions," she said.

The Senate and House committees on state affairs held separate hearings Monday on similar abortion bills. Neither committee took any action.

House sponsor Mike Millsap, D-Fort Worth, changed his bill Monday to require minors to get permission from only one parent, instead of both.

LIBYA

The Pentagon's attention increasingly has been diverted to the troubled Mideast, where more Americans are now held hostage by terrorists in Lebanon, and to the Persian Gulf, where Iran and Iraq continue fighting a bloody war.

Libya's strongman leader, Col. Moammar Gadhafi, no longer appears so strong. But that is ascribed to a recent devastating military defeat at the hands of neighboring Chad.

The administration, however, still views the Libyan air raids as a major success, an action that at least temporarily threw Gadhafi and his government into turmoil and prevented a new spate of terrorism.

"I think without any question for quite a long time the terrorism acts dropped off very substantially," Weinberger said on ABC. "I don't think anyone ever felt that it cured the problem or anything of that kind."

The attack of April 14 — because of the time difference, it was 2 a.m. on April 15 in Libya — had been preceded by other military successes by the United States, including naval operations across Libya's so-called Line of Death at the rim of the Gulf of Sidra.

But the bombing raids were different. It was not suggested there was a need to protect freedom of navigation on the high seas. The motive was retaliation, to make Gadhafi "pay a price" for his sponsorship of terrorism, as Weinberger has put it.

Nine days earlier, a bomb had ripped through a West Berlin discotheque frequented by American servicemen. One soldier was killed in the blast and a second would die of his wounds.

Reagan would disclose later that U.S. intelligence agencies had gathered clear and persuasive evidence that Libya had been responsible for that attack.

America's response was "Operation El Dorado Canyon." Despite some second-guessing about the forces used in the raid — Air Force bombers had to fly 2,700 miles one-way to link up with Navy jets — the mission still is viewed within the Pentagon as the raid that went right.

"It was well planned and well carried out and had the desired effect," says Robert Sims, the Pentagon's chief spokesman.

The mission did have some problems. Five of the 18 F-111 bombers and two of the 14 A-6 attack jets sent on the mission never dropped a bomb because of mechanical or other unexplained problems.

Although Gadhafi's home was damaged in the attack, killing an infant daughter and injuring two sons, Weinberger today repeated the administration's assertion that it had no intention of killing Gadhafi himself.

"There was no attempt to do that," Weinberger said. "That was one of these myths that develops afterward."

Nonetheless, five different targets were struck by surprise, simultaneously, in the dead of night, and damage was inflicted at all five sites. The Air Force's F-111s had to refuel four times on the long flight from England under strict radio silence, before roaring in off the Mediterranean Sea at more than 575 mph less than 500 feet above the ground.

Electronic-jamming aircraft positioned off the Libyan coast were apparently so effective that Navy pilots later said dozens of Libyan missiles were fired wildly that night, straight up into the air. Other Navy fighters stood off the coast and fired missiles of their own that destroyed more than a dozen Soviet-built surface-to-air batteries.

The air strikes were done at night, at very low level and against one of the most sophisticated air defense systems outside of the Soviet Union," says John F. Lehman Jr., who stepped down last week as the Navy's secretary.

"The fact that Navy and Air Force combat units separated by nearly 3,000 miles arrived in a coordinated strike within seconds of each other tells more than words can say about the reality of truly integrated Air Force-Navy operations."

The raid, like most military operations, did leave some unresolved mysteries. Pentagon officials still are not sure what happened to the one F-111 that never made it back.

Libya also claimed in the raid's aftermath that it had recovered at least one of the bodies, but never responded to U.S. entreaties through diplomatic channels to return the remains.

Marine guards sent home from Vienna

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Five Marine guards have been sent home from the U.S. Embassy in Vienna on suspicion of having had "social contact" with East Europeans during previous assignments in the Soviet bloc, an embassy official said today.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the five left Vienna on Sunday. All served in Eastern Europe before coming to the mission in the Austrian capital, but the official refused to specify the countries involved.

Some U.S. Embassy spokesmen in the East bloc, reached by telephone from Vienna, indicated no Marines had been withdrawn from those posts so far in what appears to be a widespread investigation of mission security.

Sgt. Clayton Lonetree, one of the two Marine guards accused of espionage after fraternizing with Soviet women while serving in Moscow, was working at the U.S. Embassy in Vienna when he was arrested in December. Some Western reports have alleged Lonetree divulged plans of the U.S. Embassy in Vienna to Soviet security agents before his arrest.

In Vienna, the embassy official said this week's recall of the five Marines "is part of a continuing review of security procedures at many U.S. embassies, including the one in Vienna, following the discovery of Soviet espionage attempts at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow."

He said the embassy could not release the identities of the Marines involved nor give other details.

He said there are 22 Marine guards at the Vienna mission. Another embassy official, who also insisted on anonymity, said the five men recalled and a sixth Marine who returned to the United States on Sunday for unrelated reasons are being replaced.

The second official said the Marines would be in breach of discipline if they speak to reporters about the security review.

SHULTZ

Shultz met Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov this morning and had a working lunch at the U.S. Embassy. At the same time, arms control experts from both sides met to work on a possible agreement on removing medium-range missiles from Europe.

The secretary of state also arranged to meet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze today, their fourth meeting in two days. Shultz arrived Monday.

Shultz met for more than seven hours Monday with Shevardnadze, and a U.S. official said alleged KGB bugging of the U.S. Embassy was the first item of discussion.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Genady Gerasimov said today Shultz and Shevardnadze spent most of their time discussing security issues. He told reporters at a government briefing that the "most promising direction" in the talks was the area of medium-range missiles, but he did not elaborate.

The two sides have a tentative understanding to remove hundreds of their rockets from Europe, but negotiations are stalled over how to verify their removal and what to do about 130 Soviet shorter-range missiles.

Gerasimov said Shultz and Shevardnadze set up working groups to "discuss concrete problems and fix the stands of the sides" before the two met again.

Gerasimov refused to say if progress was made in the Shultz-Shevardnadze talks, saying it was too early. But he described the talks as "businesslike, equitable and calm" and said "the atmosphere was favorable."

Radio Moscow said today Shultz and Shevardnadze discussed "prospects for an agreement... to eliminate medium-range missiles" as well as security issues, humanitarian issues "and the working conditions of each other's embassies and missions."

A State Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said "The first item on Shultz's agenda was the question of problems created by Soviet espionage."

He refused to characterize the exchange or say how Shevardnadze reacted, except that the Soviet foreign minister "had some points to make."

Shultz has publicly accused Moscow of gathering intelligence at the embassy with the collusion of U.S. Marine guards and has said, "We're damned upset about it."

The State Department official made clear Shultz took the same approach in meeting with Shevardnadze on Monday.

NCAA

Four of nine Southwest Conference schools, including SMU, currently are on NCAA probation for related violations, he said.

"This bill is the product of over a year of research, Montford said. "We looked at the aspect of criminal penalties, we looked at all kinds of sanctions, but we felt this was the more workable approach to a very serious problem."

In February, the NCAA imposed its "death penalty" on SMU for continued violations involving improper payments to athletes. It cancelled the school's 1987 football season and limited the team's 1988 schedule to seven road games. Gov. Bill Clements later disclosed that he and other members of SMU's board of governors knew of the illicit payments and had decided to phase out, rather than stop, the payments. Clements has said he supports Montford's bill.

In a procedural move that put the bill up for final passage on the Senate floor, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby quipped: "All those in favor of engrossment, shout 'Rah, Rah!'"

Also Monday, the Senate approved a bill that would remove a requirement that a crime against a child be reported within 72 hours to enable the victim's family to seek civil damages.

The bill also would remove a restriction requiring the family of a child crime victim to file a lawsuit within one year of the crime.

"In the case of crime victims younger than 17 years of age, (such as victims of incest, rape or child abuse, the 72-hour rule has posed a problem in that most children are too intimidated to cry out for help within that time frame," Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, said in the analysis of his bill.

IRS

If the four months still aren't enough time, one can fill out Form 2688 — which is an additional extension. However, Ms. Gaysek said one had better have a good reason for needing more than four months to fill his return out — somewhere along the lines of "being in a coma in intensive care."

She said the IRS office in Austin receives less than half of its returns after April 15. Some 30-45 percent of all wait until the last two weeks to file their return, Ms. Gaysek added.

"But the average return is in excess of $900, so if that's not incentive enough to get the return filed... well, I don't know why someone wouldn't fill it out on time."

Seventy-eight percent of the people get refunds, Ms. Gaysek said, which at this point in the game, take about six to 10 weeks to get back. "All the refund checks are mailed on Friday from Austin," so people should look for their checks in their mailbox on a Saturday or Monday, Ms. Gaysek said, pending of course, the postal service.

Tips for speeding up getting that return are simple and they work, she said.

One should use the peel-off label he received in his return package from the IRS. "That helps our computer operators enter the data and it reduces their chance of making an error."

Secondly, there should only be one return enclosed in each envelope. "Some people put their, their kids' and their grandmother's return all in the same envelope."

When IRS workers are taking forms out of the envelopes, they immediately staple everything together. Ms. Gaysek said the only return that will get looked at is the one on top.

Before mailing their return, people need to remember to sign it. This is a common error found in joint returns. "The husband has just finished figuring it out and he's happy,

He signs it and mails it off forgetting that his wife hasn't signed it."

This will delay the process, but no penalties will be imposed. The IRS will send a small note to the person and ask for the missing signature to be signed on an auxiliary form, Ms. Gaysek said.

Don't forget to attach the W-2 or withholding forms to the tax return, she added. Again, no penalties will be imposed if one doesn't, but the IRS will send the taxpayer a reminder to mail them in.

Make sure the postage is correct, Ms. Gaysek said. That error will cost. One will get his return sent back to him for correct postage, and thus, will pay a late penalty.

After 10 weeks, if one hasn't received his refund, he can call 1-800-554-4477 (using only a touch tone phone) and get direct access to an operator who can advise him of his refund's status.

And finally, the correct address returns should be mailed to: IRS, Austin, Texas 73301.

Revelation on Hinckley halts hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A courtroom revelation that presidential assassin John W. Hinckley Jr. exchanged letters with serial killer Theodore Bundy has interrupted a hearing on his bid for an Easter pass from a mental hospital.

A psychiatrist testified Monday that Hinckley showed a lapse of judgment by writing Bundy, who is awaiting execution in Florida for three 1978 murders.

Hinckley, 30, recently wrote Bundy a letter "expressing his sorrow, as I understand it, his feelings of the awful position that Bundy must be in," Dr. Glenn H. Miller told U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker. The hearing will continue Wednesday.

Miller also testified that Hinckley once requested the address of mass killer Charles Manson and he received a letter from Manson follower Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, imprisoned for trying to kill President Ford in 1975.

The surprise testimony brought to a sudden halt the hearing on Hinckley's request for a 12-hour pass from St. Elizabeths Hospital, where he was sent for shooting President Reagan.

Parker abruptly called attorneys to a conference at the bench.

Out of earshot of courtroom spectators there was another revelation. Hinckley attorney Vincent J. Fuller said, "We learned this morning that there may be two letters in Mr. Hinckley's possession which relate to Bundy that he received from Bundy," according to a transcript of the bench conference.

Federal prosecutors then complained that Miller, who recommended the Easter visit, never told them about the Bundy and Fromme letters or the Manson connection.

"We talked to Dr. Miller on two occasions and we never learned of that," Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Adelman told Parker.

"We never received any of this material," Adelman added. "This is all new to us" even though "we sent a comprehensive subpoena to the hospital seeking just that information."

The judge angrily noted that "the government shouldn't be surprised, shouldn't be aware of this testimony at the last minute."

Parker ordered the hospital to turn over any evidence it had that would shed light on Miller's testimony.

He also directed Hinckley to produce any pertinent letters in his possession.

Noting vibration would be absent from the Garden City site, he said, "That's why I can't understand why some of the other sites don't give up. They've got highways and they've got landing patterns of aircraft that are specifically in the same resonance zone that is detrimental to that project," he said. "How can they continue to say that they have a proposal with all those going against them? You just can't imagine."

Terminating the Garden City proposal "a perfect site that meets all criteria," McLaughlin said if something happens that would preclude its submission as one of the official Texas sites, the West Texas proposal will be independently submitted.

Combest said, "We feel like we have an awfully good opportunity for that best site to be located in West Texas. We've been waiting for various criteria to come forward from the Department of Energy. It has," he stated. "And, I see nothing in that, in our assessment of that and their assessment of site characteristics, that would eliminate the potential of West Texas still as an extremely good site."

Combest added, "In fact, if you begin to read between the lines very, very closely at some of the criteria, I think maybe it even enhances our chances."

Mexican man being tried in agent's death

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A Mexico City man on trial in the slaying of a federal drug agent faces a maximum sentence of life in prison, a federal prosecutor said.

The federal trial of Felipe Molina Uribe began Monday after he pleaded guilty to drug charges, said the Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Wolfe. The maximum penalty for each of those charges is a $2 million fine and 40 years in prison.

Molina is being tried on charges accusing him of murder in the New Year's Eve death of Special Agent William Ramos of the Drug Enforcement Administration and of using a firearm in the commission of a violent crime.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Christopher Milner told jurors during opening arguments that Ramos was killed during a drug bust.

Ramos was shot in the chest during a scuffle in his car with Molina, while they were in a supermarket parking lot, testified a DEA informant who participated in the marijuana bust.

DEA informant Roberto Ortiz testified Molina and Ramos were fighting over a pistol in Ramos' car when three shots were fired. Ortiz said he was in the car.

"Then I heard another shot. That's when Agent Ramos fell toward me. I felt Agent Ramos fall toward me. I put my hand there (on his chest) and it was all full of blood," Ortiz said. "I opened his shirt and he had a bullet wound in his chest."

Agents seized 300 pounds of marijuana from a van in the parking lot of the supermarket.

Ortiz said federal agents planned to meet Molina, who was living in McAllen at the time, at the grocery store, where they would exchange cash for marijuana.

He said Molina got in Ramos' car to discuss receiving payment after Ortiz and another informant inspected the marijuana in a van that arrived at the parking lot with Molina after the federal agents were stationed there.

Molina then got in the car and Ortiz saw through the rear window that the men were struggling over a gun.

"Agent Ramos yelled several times, 'Help, help,'" Ortiz said.

After he entered the car, Ortiz said he heard three shots fired while he pleaded with Molina to let go of the gun, and then a fourth after which Ramos fell into his arms.

Two other agents ran to the car after Ortiz lifted the hood of the trunk, the arrest signal, and once there one of them grabbed a gun from Molina's hand, testified Special Agent Foster Joe Watkins.

Ex-Houston researcher to head Soviet cancer lab

MOSCOW (AP) — An American cancer researcher who emigrated to the Soviet Union in September complaining of political persecution has been named to head a new cancer laboratory, the Tass news agency says.

Tass on Tuesday quoted an interview given the magazine Meditsinskaya Gazeta by Arnold Lockshin, a former cancer researcher at the Stehlin Foundation of St. Joseph Hospital in Houston.

Lockshin said when he arrived in the Soviet Union last year that he and his wife had been persecuted in the United States because of their opposition to some of the policies of President Reagan.

He also told a Moscow news conference in October that he had been a Communist Party organizer in the United States.

Lockshin had worked as chief pharmacologist at the Houston Medical Center, and Tass said he had been chosen to head a new laboratory at the Soviet Union's national cancer research center.

"Soon it will be fitted out with the necessary equipment," Tass said. "A detailed plan for research was drafted in cooperation with the center's top scientists and endorsed."

It quoted Lockshin as saying he would be working on the same problems on which he concentrated in Houston, but did not provide details.

AUSTIN — After taking a birthday spanking in the Senate Monday, Gov. Bill Clements claimed victory in the House, where lawmakers approved a measure to allow changes in state spending while the Legislature is not in session.

Clements, who turned 70 on Monday, has threatened to call legislators into special session if they do not approve so-called budget execution authority to permit a select group of lawmakers — after being summoned by the governor — to change spending patterns in various agencies. The House granted his request and approved budget execution authority, but senators said the bill is dead on their side of the Capitol.

Senators also took exception to remarks Clements, a Republican, made in an Associated Press interview late last week in which the governor referred to Senate Democrats as "prairie chickens thumping the ground."

Several Democrats blasted Clements on the Senate floor, with conservative Sen. John Montford of Lubbock saying, "I'd rather be a prairie chicken than an ostrich with his head in the ground."

"Prairie chickens are tenacious," Montford said. "They make their points known. They're not afraid to stand up for what they believe in."

Sen. Carl Parker of Port Arthur said: "A prairie chicken will kill a rattlesnake if he tries to get the eggs out of the nest."

And Fort Worth Sen. Hugh

Gov. Bill Clements talks to Rep. Charles Evans, R-Hurst, on the floor of the House Monday. Evans is sponsoring a budget execution bill that would give the governor the ability to transfer funds in an emergency without legislative approval.

Parmer, head of the Senate Democratic Caucus, said Clements' hard-line stance on the budget "will wreak havoc on the school children of Texas."

Clements said he had met senators halfway in budget negotiations and would not back off from his $36.9 billion bottom-line on the budget, despite repeated assertions by Lt. Gov.

Kemp says he plans extensive Texas campaigning

DALLAS (AP) — Republican presidential hopeful Jack Kemp said he plans to campaign heavily in Texas to counter the home-state strength of Vice President George Bush.

"I think Texas — where it is Vice President Bush's home state — there's going to be a lot of support for Jack Kemp," said the congressman from New York State Monday. "I'm going to be in Texas a lot."

"I have never felt uncomfortable in playing in someone else's ball park," Kemp told a group of reporters. "The rules are the same."

Kemp, a former pro football quarterback, said that by the time next year's Super Tuesday presidential primary rolls around on March 8, "I think it could very well be different in Texas."

Kemp, 51, who announced his candidacy April 6, was in Dallas as part of an 18-state tour to garner support for his campaign and to introduce U.S. Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Amarillo, as his state campaign chairman. Boulter also sits on Kemp's national steering committee.

Kemp said it was important to continue the "Reagan revolution" by protecting what he called family values, strengthening the economy with free enterprise and supporting the Strategic Defense Initiative, or SDI.

"I'm in this for one reason — keep the cause alive," he said.

Kemp said that he supported a repeal of the windfall profits tax and the fuel use act and deregulating the natural gas industry as ways to help the ailing domestic energy industry. However, he does not support an oil import fee.

He said a recent proposal by Bush to step up research in synthetic fuels was too costly to taxpayers.

Kemp also disagreed with President's Reagan's recent decision to place stiff tariffs on various Japanese goods in retaliation for trade agreement violations. "There is no doubt in my mind that retaliation leads to trade wars," said Kemp.

Convicted murderer granted third stay of execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Just hours before he was to die by injection, convicted killer Anthony Charles Williams was granted a stay of execution until Thursday morning.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans postponed the execution, scheduled early today, so the 27-year-old Williams could appeal to the Supreme Court.

It was third time Williams had been granted an execution stay by the courts.

Williams was 18 when he was convicted of the June 12, 1978 bludgeoning death of 13-year-old Vickie Lynn Wright of Houston. He was sent to prison on his 19th birthday.

The girl was abducted from a bowling alley parking lot and then was strangled, raped and beaten about the head with a two-by-four board.

A week ago, the Supreme Court rejected by a 7-2 vote an emergency request and formal appeal filed in Williams' behalf. A new appeal then was filed and rejected late last week by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and a federal judge in Houston.

Williams has refused recent requests for interviews but in the past insisted he was innocent. "I wouldn't even think about hitting no girl," he said.

In a statement to police at the time of his arrest, however, Williams told of abducting the girl and taking her to a field.

"She told me she was scared," he said. "I got her out of the car and hit her two or three times. I then picked up a board and hit the girl in the head and she fell back into some bushes."

The jury in the case took six minutes to convict him and nine minutes to give him the death penalty.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: New benefits come your way thanks to an individual of power and wealth. Choose your career goals carefully or you could be disappointed. This is a big year for business. The outlook is highly promising. A family problem will finally be solved. Love relationships are improved by hard work on both sides. Travel is favored this summer and in December. You begin to settle down.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: American portrait painter Charles Willson Peale, actresses Elizabeth Montgomery and Claudia Cardinale, singer Bessie Smith, Chicago Mayor Harold Washington, artist Leonardo da Vinci.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A sudden move by member of opposite sex will benefit you in business. Choose your words carefully and you will make a sale. Be more flexible or a gulf could develop between you and another.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A surge of energy helps you meet and overcome a major challenge today. Your diligent efforts put you in line for a promotion or job offer. A love relationship sustains you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be more discriminating when choosing business and romantic partners. Show off a talent you have been hiding. Financial opportunities are all around you. Keep your eyes and ears open. Investigate a hot tip.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Treasure your friendships as you do your family relationships, but do not fall in love too easily. Establish some personal goals and pursue them with a vengeance. You get a wonderful idea!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Go through old records. Something you find could turn to gold. Be your normal spontaneous self in social situations and you will have more admirers than you can handle. Travel proves inspiring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Even the most trying situations can be handled successfully if you keep your emotions under control. Take things one at a time. Answers will appear as if by magic. Reserve a romantic decision.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid wishful thinking — it can only have an adverse effect on an employment or health situation. Your financial flair produces higher profits. A relationship that had been withering is rejuvenated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be more realistic about financial matters. Agreement may become stalled or a meeting postponed. Heed your instincts when trying to find ways to get on the good side of difficult people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You could be caught off-guard by a sudden financial mishap. A friend comes to your rescue. Cur-tail expensive business entertaining — it will not impress anyone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A spur-of-the-moment trip can be highly profitable, providing you meet the right people. A school-mate plays a major role in a business or personal success. You enjoy renewing the relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial worries disappear when an unexpected check arrives. Teamwork reduces your load at office or home. Money spent on family fun will bring generous returns. Plan a special treat for loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Spend the morning putting the pieces together. Something someone says makes you nervous. Figure out why. Rely on your own efforts when trying to sort out a difficult career or personal problem.

What would you think about a book on deceptive plays that starts off with the advice: "Don't bother with them!" To illustrate his point, the author cites this hand.

The bidding is routine. North's raise to three spades is invitational and South has the minimum for acceptance.

"You lead the king of clubs and partner plays the three. There is no way you are going to beat this on high cards, but there may be a way to promote a trump trick. Three things must happen: 1. Clubs must be 4-3-3-3; 2. Partner must have the ten of spades; 3. Declarer must lead a spade from dummy to his queen.

"If all this happens, you will win the first round of spades and lead the 13th club. This will promote a trump trick. All this happening is against the odds, but something is better than nothing.

"Putting it into practice, you continue with the ace of clubs and another. Declarer wins and leads a spade to his queen and your ace.

With seven seasons, 26 Emmys
NBC's gritty police drama is over

NEW YORK (AP) — The sets were dingy, the actors unknown, the hand-held camera shots uneven. Everybody talked at once. Cop cars screeched around the corner in the rain, and the melancholy theme music began.

When "Hill Street Blues" made its debut in January 1981, it was television like television viewers had never seen before. "Make it look messy," the show's first director had advised.

After seven seasons and 26 Emmys, the gritty police drama is over, NBC announced Monday. It ends its run the most-honored show in television.

In the September 1981 issue, American Film magazine let down its artsy guard and allowed a rare article on a TV show — "TV for People Who Hate TV," it called "Hill Street Blues."

"It's a series so brilliantly written, so startling and complex in its atmosphere and methods, that it requires a new level of attention from its audience," wrote Todd Gitlin, then director of the mass communications program at the University of California at Berkeley.

"It and a few other shows have sent a message that you can do good and popular television, that those two things are not mutually exclusive," said former NBC president Grant Tinker who was head of MTM Productions when "Hill Street Blues" was created.

The man largely responsible for the unique look and feel of "Hill Street Blues" is not well-known to viewers. Robert Butler directed the pilot, for which he won an Emmy, and the first few episodes.

A veteran who started with "Gunsmoke," Butler also directed the pilots for such innovative series as "Star Trek" and the more recent "Moonlighting."

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Loni Anderson says she and actor Burt Reynolds would like to have a child but that perhaps a grandchild would be more realistic for her.

Ms. Anderson, 40, who recently moved in with Reynolds, said in an interview with McCall's magazine that Reynolds, 51, "wants a child more than anything else in the world."

"He really does believe it. Yet when Burt's around a terrible 2-year-old for any length of time, he kind of shrugs, pulls back and murmurs, 'Well, I don't know...'"

"In all my fantasies, I want to have a child very badly," she said. "But when Deedee (her 20-year-old daughter) told me she was getting married, I asked, 'So when will I be a grandmother?' Maybe a little baby, an infant in the family, will fill up the space for me more realistically."

Ms. Anderson, who is twice divorced, also said, "I love the idea of marriage," but added, "I've had no luck with it."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has entered an innocent plea on behalf of punk-rock singer Jello Biafra and four co-defendants charged with distributing harmful material to minors.

They are accused of failing to warn record stores against selling "Frankenchrist," an album by Biafra's group the Dead Kennedys, to minors because of sexually explicit posters included in the packages.

A trial date of June 1 was set Monday on the misdemeanor charge by Municipal Court Judge Jacqueline Connor.

Besides Biafra, whose real name is Eric Boucher, defendants include Mike Bonanno, Biafra's partner in Alternative Tentacles Records; Deborah Schwartz of Mordam Records; Steve Boudreau of Green World Distributors and Salvatore J. Alberti of the Alberti Record Manufacturing Co.

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP) — Advice columnist Abigail Van Buren, known to millions as Dear Abby, was a big draw for a black-tie, $150-a-plate dinner that helped save the San Marcos Boys' and Girls' Club.

The club's board of directors said Monday that the Saturday night benefit came very close to raising the club's goal of $45,000.

Van Buren donated time for the fund-raiser and chipped in $1,000.

The youth organization was facing a $45,000 deficit in its $125,000 budget for the fiscal year that ends June 30. Without the money from the benefit, the club would have had to close. The club offers after-school activities to about 650 youngsters in the northern San Diego County community.

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera star Beverly Sills, director of the City Opera, says in her soon-to-be-released autobiography that Luciano Pavarotti served pasta with a flair.

Her book, excerpted in the May issue of Ladies Home Journal, says the renowned tenor often made late supper, usually pasta and salad, for his show's cast.

Pavarotti would test the pasta "by ladling out a handful then throwing it against the ceiling. If it stuck it was ready, if not, he let the pasta cook a little more," she said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Sissy Spacek says she rejected a part in what became an Oscar-winning movie rather than leave her infant daughter.

"I got an offer for the lead role in 'Terms of Endearment' when my daughter was seven months old, but I couldn't bear to leave her," Spacek said in an excerpt from the book "Mother: A Collective Portrait" in the May issue of the Ladies Home Journal.

The movie, which starred Debra Winger, is about the relationship between a mother and daughter.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former CBS newsman Fred Graham made his debut on WKRN-TV's evening newscast with an interview of White House Chief of Staff Howard Baker.

"It's my way of starting out with a bang," Graham, who was released by CBS as part of cutbacks in the news division, said before the broadcast Monday.

The 55-year-old newsman, who is a native of Texarkana, Ark., moved to Nashville as a child and worked at The Tennessean, Nashville's morning newspaper, while attending Vanderbilt University law school.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bruce Savan, a leading theatrical talent agent whose clients included Sam Waterston, Bernadette Peters, Vanessa Redgrave and Mary Tyler Moore, died Monday. He was 59.

Since 1964, he had been vice president and head of the theatrical department of the Agency for the Performing Arts in New York.

As an agent, he helped shape the budding careers of such performers as Elvis Presley, Carol Burnett, John Richardson, Elizabeth Ashley and Blythe Danner.

A private concern

It has been a long, hard struggle, but Conrail is finally headed back to the private sector where it belongs. The dramatic sendoff took place last week on Wall Street as 59 million shares in the Consolidated Rail Corp. were sold to eager investors. Taken together, the giant transaction represented the largest initial public stock offering and the largest sale of government property in U.S. history.

The big winner is the federal government, which will receive nearly $2 billion, after underwriting fees, for its 85-percent stake in Conrail. The remaining shares of the Philadelphia-based freight railroad are owned by current and former Conrail employees. The sale, moreover, is a milestone for the corporation that was cobbled together 11 years ago from the remnants of the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad and other failing railroad lines in the Northeast and Midwest.

Since then, the federal government has spent more than $7 billion on Conrail to improve the carrier's physical facilities and to provide severance pay to more than two-thirds of its work force. A leaner, more efficient railroad under the capable leadership of L. Stanley Crane has emerged as one of the most profitable carriers east of the Mississippi River. Conrail now has a book value in excess of $4 billion. The corporation has more than $770 million cash on hand, including $550 million in a cash reserve and approximately $200 million in excess funding for the corporation's pension commitments.

Conrail's impressive balance sheet prompted Norfolk Southern Railway to make a $1.9 billion bid for the corporation last year. The Virginia-based conglomerate was all set to close the deal with the blessing of Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole when Congress balked.

And with good reason. The sweetheart deal would have permitted Norfolk Southern to sell off most of Conrail's assets, reap huge tax benefits, and gain a virtual monopoly in rail traffic throughout the Northeast and Midwest. Conversely, the public sale nets the federal government nearly $2 billion and leaves Conrail intact to provide competitive freight rates throughout the region as well as badly needed revenues to the Treasury Department.

The Conrail sale could embolden the Reagan administration to unload other federal holdings, such as the controlling interest in Amtrak, the passenger railroad, and some federal power-generating capacity. This would be in keeping with the privatization that has been evident during the last few years in Great Britain, France, and Japan where some government-owned assets have been sold to the private sector.

Conrail flourished because the government had the good sense to let it operate essentially as a private concern. Odds are that the corporation's continued success will in time enable taxpayers to receive a complete return on their investment.

Another View: Passover in Moscow

By apt chance, Secretary of State Shultz will arrive in Moscow next week just in time for Passover and he plans to celebrate the Jewish feast of deliverance at a seder with Soviet Jews. What better time for Mikhail Gorbachev to amplify on hints that his government will agree, finally, to let an estimated 11,000 Jewish "refuseniks" escape limbo and emigrate from the Soviet Union?

Pre-Gorbachev, the Soviet attitude was blunt indeed. Ethnic minorities were used as human commerce, their basic right to emigrate bartered to improve Soviet public relations. For all his glasnost, Gorbachev acts out of interest too. If the hinted-at releases materialize they will be for calculated advantage, perhaps to further warm his image in the United States. But even so they would deserve a welcome, and positive response.

The place to start is by looking afresh at that relic of the Brezhnev era, the Jackson-Vanik amendment. That legislation, overwhelmingly voted in 1974, was named for Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington and Rep. Charles Vanik of Ohio. It required that most-favored-nation trading benefits be allowed to Communist countries only if they permitted freer emigration of dissidents. In practice, the amendment may have helped mainly in Romania.

There have surely been ups and downs in Soviet emigration, but these correlate with Soviet-American relations generally. The first big outflow came in 1971, when 13,000 Soviet Jews departed. In the next two years the totals rose to 32,000 and 35,000, increases that coincided with the signing of the first strategic arms treaty, a major wheat deal and talk of more trade. In 1974, when Jackson-Vanik was voted with the hope of increasing emigration, departures fell to 21,000. The trickle continued: 13,000 in 1975, 14,000 in 1976, 17,000 in 1977.

With the signing of another wheat deal, the outflow jumped to 29,000 in 1978 and, with the second strategic arms treaty, to a record peak of 51,000 in 1979. Then came the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and an American wheat embargo: the exodus fell to 21,000. With Ronald Reagan's victory and a renewed arms race, annual Jewish emigration dwindled to less than 1,000.

Hence there was considerable skepticism last winter when Soviet officials claimed that new procedures would make emigration easier — and surprise when 470 visas were granted to Soviet Jews in March, the highest monthly total in six years. Then last week came vague Soviet assurances to U.S. Jewish leaders that by year's end visas would be given to most of the "refuseniks," the Jews who applied years ago to leave for Israel.

These hints have to be taken with caution. They have already been officially denied. But suppose Jewish departures continue to increase, rising to, say, 2,000 a month. Recognizing that the Soviet purpose is to wring maximum benefit from meager concessions, the relaxation should nonetheless occasion a favorable American response.

One such response would be to relax the Jackson-Vanik amendment. Whether or not it has affected Soviet behavior, relaxing it could offer a positive, approving gesture — and helpful, at the margin, in spurring Soviet exports to reduce a $600 million trade deficit. The legislation itself permits the President to waive its penalties, given progress toward freer emigration.

The refuseniks live, year after year, in a hollow limbo, unobtainable who are publicly reviled and permitted only menial work. Passover would be a resonant time to let these people go.

Accusations of misuse of grant money

WASHINGTON — The federal agency set up to help minority businesses is using its grant money to recruit Hispanics and blacks into the Republican Party, according to an agency official's affidavit.

Charges of political favoritism and other improprieties have swirled about the Minority Business Development Agency ever since its creation by President Nixon in 1969. Now Xavier Mena, the agency's regional director in San Francisco, has put explicit accusations in writing — and under oath — in an affidavit filed last year with federal investigators.

Mena accuses the minority business agency's director, James Richardson Gonzales, of misusing for political purposes some of the $4 million the director can use at his discretion out of the agency's annual $39 million budget. In particular, Mena pinpoints awards made in the last two years. Richardson Gonzales denies that politics has intruded into the award process for MBDA grants, though he does concede that further controls may be needed.

Commerce Department inspector general Sherman Funk cleared the director of any criminal allegations, but identified several "administrative difficulties" in the management of MBDA grants. Funk has recently made several recommendations for improving the process.

Here are the highlights of Mena's affidavit, which was obtained by our associate Stewart Harris.

One month after the Mexican American Foundation in San Diego, Calif., received $200,000 from the Minority Business Development Agency to hold a series of minority business seminars in the Southwest, the foundation's then-president switched his registration from Democrat to Republican and joined the George Bush presidential campaign.

The foundation official, Tony Valencia, said his party switch had nothing to do with the federal grant. Rather, he said, it came at the urging of his representative, Duncan Hunter, R-Calif. As for his admitted involvement in the Bush campaign, Valencia told us: "I have not contributed a single dollar."

Another $200,000 grant for minority development went to the Golden State Business League of Oakland, Calif. — because, according to Mena, the league's chairman, C.J. Patterson, is prominent in the California Black Republican Committee. Mena further alleges that an additional $75,000 was given to Patterson's group even though federal auditors were questioning the expenditure of $60,000 from the original grant.

Richardson Gonzales told us the additional money was awarded only after the league had satisfied the auditors' questions. His spokesman later told us the group agreed to repay $42,680 in 43 payments. So far, the government has received $11,000. Patterson said the grant went through proper channels and confirmed that he has held high positions within the California Republican Party.

Richardson Gonzales in 1985 targeted the California Hispanic Chamber of Commerce in Sacramento for $199,996 in special grant money before the group even submitted a proposal, according to Mena's affidavit.

The director was close friends with Sergio Manueles, the president of the organization at the time, according to the current vice president, Armando Morlos. The Commerce Department inspector general criticized the special project as "subterfuge for the institutional support needed to keep the chamber" afloat and Richardson Gonzales withdrew it. Since then, the organization got a new president who is not as friendly with Richardson Gonzales and the director will not approve another proposal, Morlos told us.

An MBDA spokesman said Richardson Gonzales had a "business relationship" with Manueles and doubted he could be swayed by any friend. Manueles, a Republican, labeled Mena's allegations "stupid." Although he said he admired Richardson Gonzales, he has never talked politics with him. Manueles also noted that friction has existed between Mena and Richardson Gonzales since he became director in 1984.

The director agreed that a personal clash may have contributed to the allegations. Richardson Gonzales said that Mena had given his stamp of approval to many of the projects he now challenges. "And, he is a grown man; no one is going to twist his arm."

Footnote: In a future column, we will report on a Commerce Department audit that criticizes the MBDA director's management of the special grant program.

"I THOUGHT REAGAN SAID OUR GOVERNMENT DOESN'T DO BUSINESS WITH TERRORISTS."

WOMEN ON THE LAND: The producers of food crops in many underdeveloped nations are overwhelmingly women, according to the House Select Committee on Hunger, yet only about 20 percent of those brought to the United States for agricultural training programs are women. In Africa, women produce 80 percent of their families' food; in Colombia, women make up four out of 10 tillers of small food plots. An Agency for International Development spokeswoman confirmed that only 20 percent of the 15,000 persons brought here for training in 1986 were women, but said this was because many women are reluctant to leave their families. AID has asked its field offices to aim for 40 percent female participation in 1990.

Stumbling blocks on way to US-USSR summit

WASHINGTON — Confounding George Shultz's campaign to put U.S.-Soviet relations back on a rising tide, Richard M. Nixon has personally warned the secretary of state that a U.S.-Soviet summit before Mikhail Gorbachev agrees to end the war in Afghanistan would be a catastrophe for the West.

Richard M. Nixon has personally warned the secretary of state that a U.S.-Soviet summit before Mikhail Gorbachev agrees to end the war in Afghanistan would be a catastrophe for the West. President Reagan's hard-core backers fully agree with that warning but are also concerned by other aspects of Shultz's handling of the Soviet account. That is reflected by Senate GOP leader Robert J. Dole's revelation Friday of a top secret 1984 cable from then-ambassador Arthur Hartman in Moscow that ridiculed an effort to improve counter-intelligence to stop Soviet spying in the U.S. embassy. Dole's bombshell exploded on Shultz as he was packing to leave for Moscow.

Nixon, invited here March 26 to discuss U.S.-Soviet relations with Shultz before his trip to Moscow, described the Afghan war as the crucible in the East-West conflict. Both Pakistan and the Persian Gulf could be destabilized if the conflict continues, with the U.S. facing the dilemma of being forced out of that region or forced into war.

No slouch at summit politics, the former president drew on his unique experience as architect of U.S.-Soviet detente in the 1970s. If Gorbachev comes to the political extravaganza of a summit in the United States without being pinned down to a deal on Afghanistan, Nixon said, the U.S. will be on exhibit as dangerously weak and incurably naive about Soviet reality. The summit drama will also numb voters to the truth, making future American actions more difficult.

Shultz listened but made no commitments. Officials familiar with his and President Reagan's views say they have a private timetable. They want Shultz to sketch out an intermediate-range (INF) Euromissile agreement in Moscow for finishing touches and signing at a U.S. summit as early as July — or, if that cannot be arranged, in the fall.

They see Senate ratification of this new INF treaty during the 1988 presidential election year. That timetable would provide the president with an escape route from the Iran-contra scandal and maybe even a Nobel Peace Prize.

But Republican conservatives, worried about a post-Iran-contra switch toward softer administration policies toward Moscow, are edgy and restive. They are moving toward an open political fight not just with Shultz, whom they long have distrusted, but perhaps with Reagan himself.

Dole's decision to go public Friday with his revelation about the Hartman cable showed just how sour this mood has grown. The cable bearing Hartman's signature was sent under a "Nodis" (no dissemination) label by a back-channel to Shultz. Although Dole said he knew only of the existence of the cable, not its exact text, we can report that the message means big trouble for the administration at a highly sensitive point in Shultz's negotiating efforts with the Kremlin.

As read by one State Department insider, the cable lashed out at counter-intelligence efforts inside the U.S. Moscow embassy as "counter-productive" and "a disgrace" to normal diplomatic procedures. The cable charged that efforts to stem anti-U.S. spying in its own embassy derived from zealots, were hurting American policy and were offending the Russians. That contradicts the conventional assumption that Soviet spies must and can be impeded.

Dole and Sen. Jesse Helms, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, have written Shultz demanding that he turn over the confidential cable to Congress but are doubtful he will comply. Coming in the midst of the embassy spy scandal amid new disclosures of lax diplomatic safeguards against Soviet espionage, the Dole-Helms attack may be the harbinger of a conservative Republican attack on Shultz and his Soviet policies.

That fits Nixon's warning against a premature summit. Officials in position to know told us that Nixon carefully explained distinctions between a summit in the U.S. and one in Geneva or Moscow. The glitter and deluge of media coverage are pervasive in an American summit extravaganza. They build an enduring mood that a real breakthrough has been achieved and peace is in the air.

But if the U.S. cannot even arrange a Soviet exit from its invasion and occupation of Afghanistan, Nixon warned Shultz, a breakthrough to peace is an illusion. That would give Gorbachev what he needs most: time to expand the Soviet economy and power. In return, the U.S. would get nothing but false hopes.

Put more focus on Congressional leaders

A fellow passed along a good idea the other day. He said the speaker of the House and the majority leader of the Senate ought to be subjected to naturally televised press conferences just like the president. He wondered why they aren't.

As the man pointed out, Congress is the guts of the federal government.

The executive branch executes the laws Congress passes. The judicial branch applies them to a given set of facts or tests them against the Constitution.

But it's the Congress which the Constitution assigns the most duties — Congress is responsible for the nation's monetary system, its defense, its budget, its taxes and nearly everything else. About the only thing the president does, except administer Congress' laws, is conduct foreign policy and even that necessarily involves the Senate.

It is logical then to ask why so much of the Washington press corps' attention seems to focus on the White House rather than on Congress.

Well, I think the answer is complex. Some newspapers do spend considerable time covering Congress. For TV networks, however, it is easier to track one man than 535. Moreover what Congress does is a long and complex process while journalists tend to like things which are short and simple. Much of what Congress does, like the lobbying and maneuvering before a big vote, occurs in ways and places that are not easily accessible to journalists.

I think, too, that many journalists, like many Americans, have a secret yearning for a king. Look how much attention they pay to visiting royalty. In the absence of a king, they have invested in the office of the president a great deal more glamour and importance than the Constitution ever intended.

It is incorrect really, for example, to say that an American president is the leader of the free world. The United States may be, but an American president has less power than a British prime minister.

In the parliamentary system, you only become prime minister when your party holds a majority of votes in the legislative branch. Therefore, a prime minister can be assured that whatever he or she decides to do, the votes are there to do it.

Our republican government, however, provides an independent Congress and quite often an American president cannot do what he wants to do. Quite often, as is now the case with Reagan, the opposition party controls Congress.

But preferences and prejudices aside, it would surely be a public good to subject the dominant party's two leaders of the legislative branch to public and open questioning. It might help educate the people about the importance of the legislative branch.

Certainly, too, House Speaker Jim Wright and Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd exercise a lot of power. People ought to be able to learn their views on various subjects in the kind of forum provided by a presidential press conference.

It may well be that the last thing in the world these two gentlemen would want is to be subjected to a barrage of questions on different topics. The relative anonymity of the legislative branch is a great attraction to certain kinds of politicians. I'm quite sure Wright would not like to have to explain on camera why he adjourned the House to avoid a vote on the congressional payroll.

It will take more than a humble columnist like me, however, to get the speaker and majority leader to hold regular press conferences.

The TV networks are the key, really, and I suspect they think they are already taking too much time away from advertising and entertainment as it is.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, April 14, the 104th day of 1987. There are 261 days left in the year. This is the first day of Passover.

Today's highlight in history: On April 14th, 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot and mortally wounded by actor John Wilkes Booth while attending the comedy "Our American Cousin" at Ford's Theater in Washington. The president died the following morning. On this date:

In 1759, George Frideric Handel died.

In 1775, the first American society for the abolition of slavery was organized by Benjamin Franklin and Benjamin Rush.

In 1828, the first edition of Noah Webster's "American Dictionary of the English Language" was published.

In 1902, J.C. Penney opened his first store in Kemmerer, Wyo.

El Paso police set up checkpoints to catch insurance dodgers

EL PASO (AP) — Police are setting up checkpoints to catch drivers who register their vehicles across the border to dodge insurance requirements here.

Drivers in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, just across the Rio Grande, are not required to have insurance when they cross over to El Paso.

So motorists involved in accidents with Juarez-registered vehicles have little chance of collecting damages, said Police Lt. J.R. Grijalva.

"Our traffic division tells us this is the second most numerous complaint we receive," said Grijalva. "The checkpoints began Monday and will continue daily, depending on the availability of officers, he said."

Drivers caught dodging insurance requirements will be issued a citation for the Class C misdemeanor, which carries fines of up to $200. A repeat offender, if found guilty by a judge, could be jailed for up to six months, he said.

"Just recently it's picked up, but people here are always complaining about this," he said. "Just the other day I was in a talk show and a couple of irate people called to complain."

Insurance rates in neighboring New Mexico are also lower than in El Paso.

Because El Paso is wedged between New Mexico and Mexico, it is easy for drivers to cross state or international lines, register their vehicles in either of those two places and get lower insurance rates or avoid paying any premiums.

In the adjacent New Mexico county of Dona Ana, a post office box will satisfy proof of residency requirements to register a vehicle.

"Sometimes they'll call and say a neighbor doesn't have insurance," said Grijalva. But police can only ask for a driver's license and proof of insurance after stopping a vehicle that's being driven on city streets.

"We can't do it while they're parked," he said.

Even with the checkpoints, it's difficult to prove a driver with out-of-state license plates actually lives in El Paso, said Grijalva.

"If they have California license plates and a valid California driver's license and they say they're just visiting, it's difficult, to say the least," he said.

Checkpoints will be spread around city streets but Grijalva said he did not know how many there would be. "The number of checkpoints depends on the workload. We'll play it by ear," Grijalva said.

There will be no checkpoints on Interstate 10 nor will checkpoints be set up during rush hour.

Mexican army returns 24 rockets to U.S.

EL PASO (AP) — Twenty-three rockets mistakenly sold to a Mexican junkyard owner as scrap lumber were returned to the United States by the Mexican army after 11 weeks of diplomatic haggling to straighten out the mix-up.

The rockets were in wooden crates that are regularly auctioned at Fort Bliss, on the outskirts of this border city, said Fort Bliss spokesman Lt. Col. James Lawson.

Pedro Salas, a regular at the auctions, purchased the crates Jan. 22. He notified authorities days later when he discovered at his junkyard in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, across the border, that some of them contained live rockets. A 24th rocket was found in crates that Salas had left behind at Fort Bliss to be picked up later.

The 4½-foot long, 2½-inch diameter rockets are designed for launching from helicopters, and spray millions of fragments upon detonation. Lawson said the rockets would have exploded if subjected to an electrical current or a fire, not if they had been dropped.

Fort Bliss authorities were escorted on Jan. 26 by the U.S. consulate general and Juarez officials to the junkyard but while they were there, a Mexican army officer arrived and confiscated the rockets.

Since then, U.S. and Mexican government officials have been negotiating for their return from the 26th Infantry Battalion in Juarez.

The rockets were finally returned Monday at one of four bridges over the Rio Grande connecting El Paso and Juarez.

The mix-up began when a unit from Fort Riley, Kan., conducted gunnery training drills at Fort Bliss, said Lawson.

Lawson said a lieutenant from Fort Riley signed a statement saying he had inspected the munition boxes and they were empty. The boxes were then strapped together with metal bands and taken to the Fort Bliss Defense Re-utilization and Marketing Office, Lawson said. The office regularly holds auctions of military castoffs.

Fort Riley spokesman Jim Stone said officers there have not decided yet whether any action will be taken against the unnamed Fort Riley lieutenant.

Lawson said more stringent procedures have been implemented in the controls of ammunition boxes and related materials since the incident.

STATE IN BRIEF

Dallas police sting escort service

DALLAS (AP) — Police posing as escorts aided in the arrests of 21 men who responded to an advertisement for a service, then stumbled into a sting operation, officers say.

"Operation I.M.A.C.," which stood for "I'm A Cop," also netted nine women who called looking for someone to broker their services, said Lt. E.W. Smith of the Dallas Vice Control Division.

Smith said Monday the 30 arrests culminated a three-week effort aimed at learning how escort services operate and discouraging those who use such services to obtain prostitutes.

The phone number in the ad had belonged to an escort service, which went out of business, said Smith. The small ad in a telephone book promised "above average escorts."

Undercover officers manned the phone since March 23, taking calls from prospective clients. Officers told callers the fee was $60 per hour for someone who would provide companionship and conversation.

"Evidently, they (callers) wanted more than an escort," said Smith. "We made cases on them almost immediately. In almost every incident, the case was made in less than 10 minutes. The offers usually were between $60 and $300."

Smith said only one of the calls received was for a legitimate escort.

Burglar caught with McGruff

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — McGruff, a hound-dog star of a crime-fight campaign, needed a little help from police himself after burglars took him from an elementary school, police say.

The 3-foot-tall hand puppet was back in a Chula Vista Elementary School classroom after being stolen for a short time Sunday by two men.

McGruff is used by a national anti-crime coalition in TV spots, booklets, posters and as a hand puppet in schools.

A local anti-crime committee supplies at least one hand puppet to each classroom in Corpus Christi elementary schools, Sgt. Mariano Manzano, of the police department's community service office, said Monday.

Police, who answered an alarm at the school about 5:30 a.m. Sunday, said they recovered the puppet after a man they were chasing dropped it.

The two men, 21 and 26, are in jail and will be charged with burglary later this week," said Lt. Ed McConley. "We haven't the slightest idea why they would want to take McGruff."

Two officers answered an alarm at the school about 5:30 a.m. Sunday and found a broken window in one of the classrooms. They then found two men trying to break into another classroom.

Tax committee members named

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby appointed two senators and two members of the public to the Select Committee on Tax Equity, which studies state and local taxation.

Hobby appointed Sen. Grant Jones, D-Temple, and Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville. He also named Frank McBee of Austin and Frank Raines of New York.

McBee is chief executive officer and chairman of the board of Austin-based Tracor Inc., an electronics firm. Raines is a general partner in a New York investment banking firm.

Jones serves as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Glasgow heads the Tax Subcommittee.

"This is a critically important task at this point in Texas history, and we need the best minds at work on the problem," Hobby said. "It is my hope that this committee will be continuously reviewing our state tax structure and recommending ways to reach greater equity."

The committee also includes State Comptroller Bob Bullock, four appointed by the governor, and two House members and two public members appointed by Speaker Gib Lewis.

Focus to be on business growth

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Henry Cisneros says he will begin focusing on the growth of small businesses because their growth is valuable.

"During the next two years you will find me seeking, experimenting and searching for new ways to help businesses here to grow," Cisneros said Sunday after taking the oath to his fourth term.

He said he hopes that by helping small businesses they will grow and remain in San Antonio. "The jobs they create will be so valuable," Cisneros said. "And the money will stay here and not be pulled out to corporate headquarters."

Cisneros, 39, also said the city must stay on track with developing its biotech industry.

TDC resumes inmate admissions

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Admissions were resumed at the Texas Department of Corrections after weekend prisoner releases dropped the inmate population below 95 percent of capacity.

It was the first time in nearly three months the prison had been opened for new admissions on a Monday.

Over the past 10 weeks, the prison system has operated under an open-and-shut system, open Tuesdays and Wednesdays and closed the rest of the week.

"We were below the rated capacity, so we opened on a Monday," said prison spokesman Charles Brown.

Brown said that as of midnight Sunday, the prison system had 37,980 prisoners, 395 prisoners below its state-mandated ceiling.

Rice school has new dean

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor has been named dean of the Weiss School of Natural Sciences at Rice University, school officials announced Monday.

James L. Kinsey, 54, has been a chemistry professor for the past 25 years at MIT. Some of his most recent research has dealt with how energy flows within laser-excited molecules.

"We're extremely pleased that Jim Kinsey has agreed to join Rice as dean," said Charles W. Duncan Jr., chairman of the Rice University Board of Governors. "In addition to being internationally recognized as an outstanding chemist, as a Rice alumnus, he is very devoted to this institution."

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upson, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight, fair and warmer. Lows in the lower 40s. Wind northwest 5 to 10 mph. Wednesday, sunny and warmer. Highs mid 80s. Wind northwest 10 to 15 mph.

Stirling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Tonight, fair and warmer with lows mid 40s. Wind northwest 5 to 10 mph. Wednesday, sunny and warmer. Highs upper 80s. Wind west 10 to 20 mph.

Sunny skies anticipated

From Staff and Wire Reports

Forecasters at the National Weather Service are predicting sunny skies and warmer temperatures for Wednesday. The high should be in the middle 80s, according to the NWS report.

The NWS forecast for tonight calls for fair skies and a low in the lower 40s. Winds will be out of the northwest at five to 10 mph tonight, increasing to 10-15 mph on Wednesday.

Monday's high of 67 was 32 degrees below the record high set for that date in 1972. Today's low was eight degrees above the record low of 29 set for this date in 1963.

STATE

An intense low-pressure system brought strong winds to North Texas and the Panhandle today and some gusts to near 45 mph raced across the Red River Valley.

Strong winds and heavy rain caused Reuel Briggs, 39, a pastor at the Abundant Life Christian Center in Paris, to lose control of his van and collide with another vehicle while traveling east on U.S. Highway 82 just west of Paris, Department of Public Safety troopers said. Briggs was pronounced dead at the scene.

Skies today were partly to mostly cloudy mainly north of a line from Lubbock through Dallas to Texarkana. High-level clouds streaked across the deep south.

It should be fair statewide through tonight except mostly cloudy and windy in northern sections near the Red River. Highs were expected in the 60s north, 70s across the greater part of the state and 80s in southern sections, mainly along the Rio Grande and southern coastal plains.

Lows Wednesday should range from the mid 30s in the northwest to 40s and 50s elsewhere.

NATION

A storm scattered rain and thunderstorms across broad sections of the Midwest and South today while strong winds pushed wind chills into the single digits in sections of the Plains and New England.

Rain and thunderstorms ranged from the western Great Lakes across Iowa and Missouri to the central Plains and northern Oklahoma; from northwest Florida through Alabama and western Georgia; and through the lower Ohio Valley.

A flash flood watch was posted in southeast Louisiana while a mixture of rain and snow prompted a livestock advisory in western Kansas.

The storm, which was over the central Plains, churned gusty northerly winds of 20 to 50 mph the lower wind chills in the central Plains into the single digits to teens.

Rural routes to become street addresses

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

An upcoming address change should be the last of several that have occurred during the past nine years for rural Midlanders, postal officials promised after county commissioners unanimously approved of changing rural routes to numbered addresses Monday.

Since 1978 many rural Midlanders have seen their addresses change at least two times, but a new numbering system beginning in June should be the last alteration, postal officials said.

The U.S. postal service will begin notifying rural areas near Midland about a change from rural routes and box numbers to a street address system during the first of June, said Stan Sartain, post office customer relations manager.

Along with approving of the numbered address system Monday, the county commissioners court also granted about 25 road and bridge employees a 10-hour, four-day workweek to save on time spent traveling to and from road sites.

Postal service officials predict it will take up to two years to change the approximate 4,400 mail boxes in the 14 rural routes around Midland to numbered addresses.

Customers will have up to 18 months to notify all their correspondences about the address change, Sartain said.

The cost of changing addresses will be "minimal" to the customers, he added.

"It shouldn't cost more than a couple of two or three dollars — just stamps to notify correspondences of their new address," Sartain said.

Fire Chief James Roberts said his department is glad to see the change.

Fire and emergency vehicles will be able to find homes easier and faster with the numbered system, he said.

In other commissioners' court action, beginning May 1 about 20 percent "dead time" is expected to be eliminated by four-day work weeks for road crews.

The road crews will work from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. for a 90-day trial period.

"This is an experimental trial program and we may find that it does not improve productivity for reasons unknown," said Commissioner Guy McCrary, who proposed the program.

McCrary hopes the shorter work weeks will increase the time spent working at sites, by cutting out the time traveling to them every day.

Road and Bridge Department Supervisor Albert Stewart said the new work week could increase productivity by 15 percent.

"A lot of the boys would like it because they would have an extra day off and they would get a three-day weekend to go fishing," Stewart said.

Family farm inhabited by exotic birds

FAIRFIELD (AP) — Linda Red says everybody wants to know how it all started.

"We kept reading about them, and they just looked real different," she said. "We just thought it would be interesting to try some."

So about two years ago, Linda and Curtis Red along with Curtis' parents, Eldred and Lula Mae Red, started the unusual collection.

They bought a pair of ostriches from an Oklahoma man. Then it was only a matter of time before their flightless flock began to expand.

Now the family owns five ostriches, six emu and three rheas.

The exotic birds roam the Reds' pastures on U.S. Highway 84 east of Fairfield and grab the attention of more than a few passing travelers.

"People are always stopping and looking," said Linda Red, who lives with her husband in Grand Prairie. They visit her husband's parents near Fairfield on weekends and help care for the peculiar pets.

Although the ostriches are large — weighing up to 350 pounds and standing as tall as eight feet — the birds basically are friendly.

Sheba and Solomon, a pair of 2-year-old redneck ostriches, often are curious and use their large beaks to poke about.

"She wants to see if you've got anything good to eat; it might be your arm," Mrs. Red said as Sheba extended her long neck. "Of course, if you've got a hat or a cap on, they'll grab it off right away and run across the field."

Sheba and Solomon are now old enough to mate.

The Reds enjoyed their first pair of ostriches so much, they decided to branch out, and in August they bought three young blue ostriches that were just a foot tall.

Two of the three, which now stand more than six feet, allow themselves to be petted.

"They have a personality — they're not just like a chicken," Mrs. Red said. "We just enjoy playing with them and having them around."

The ostriches occasionally take off running suddenly and swiftly. The birds can move as fast as 40 mph.

The Reds also are fond of their emu and rheas, also earth-bound birds, but smaller than ostriches.

One of the family's pair of emus — named Fred and Wilma after the Flintstones cartoon characters — have laid eggs. The female emu lays the eggs, but the male builds the nest and sits on the eggs to hatch them.

The same is true for the rheas, Mrs. Red said. Ostriches take turns sitting on the eggs.

Grazing the pastures alongside the Reds' feathered friends are goats and deer. But not just any deer and not just any goats.

The deer are fallow and sika and the goats are African Pygmies.

One favorite pair of twin Pygmy goats named Honey and Baby appear destined to remain tame. "I don't know if they'll ever be able to move up to the goat house," Mrs. Red said.

Midland man arrested in alleged sexual assault

From Staff Reports

A 30-year-old Midland man is in city jail after he was arrested Monday shortly after a 29-year-old woman told police she had been sexually assaulted.

According to reports, police responded to a call about 9:35 a.m., and found the victim at a residence in the 100 block of East Dormard Avenue, where she had fled. The owner of the house told police the victim, wearing only a half-slip, ran to the residence and told her she had been raped at her residence on East Spruce Avenue.

According to police, the man walked to her residence, knocked on the front door, then forced his way in when the victim answered. He wore a black mask during the attack, police said.

Police issued a description of the attacker, who also took the woman's car. An officer spotted a suspect in a vehicle parked near a patrol car in the 200 block of Dormard Avenue. When the suspect saw police, he backed the car up and sped away east on Dormard.

He was arrested about 10:15 a.m. after he pulled into a driveway in the 200 block of East Dengar Avenue.

Police are also investigating the burglary of a residence in the 2900 block of West Kentucky. According to reports, a refrigerator valued at $2,200, a microwave oven valued at $800, a 13-inch portable color television set valued at $450, and a vacuum cleaner valued at $50 were stolen.

In other reports, police are investigating the burglary of a vehicle parked in the 700 block of Sinclair Avenue. An AM-FM cassette deck valued at $300 was reported stolen, reports said.

Two police sergeants promoted

From Staff Reports

The Midland Police Department Monday announced the promotion of two sergeants, Johnny H. Thompson, 47, and Harry Clint Lovejoy Jr., 35, to lieutenant.

The promotions were based on seniority, a written test, and an interview board. The board consists of upper-level management personnel from the City of Midland, Odessa Police Department, Department of Public Safety, Lubbock Police Department, and Texas Employment Commission.

Thompson, a 23-year law enforcement veteran, has been with the Midland department for 20 years. He spent 11 years as a patrol officer and 12 years as a criminal investigator. For the last 7½ years, Thompson has investigated forgery cases for the department.

Service arrangements are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

Survivors include his wife, Paulita Castillo Rubio of Midland.

Pearl Watson

Pearl Watson, 1205 E. Parker, died Monday in a Midland hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services are pending with Jackson Funeral Home.

Leah Weatherall

Mrs. M.L. (Leah) Weatherall, 75, of Midland died at a local nursing home Sunday afternoon.

Rosary was to be today at 6:30 p.m. at the Ellis Chapel with the Rev. Fred Nawarskas of St. Ann's Catholic Church officiating. Mass will be Wednesday, 11 a.m., at St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Burial will follow at Resthaven North Mausoleum under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Weatherall was born May 29, 1911 in Marcus, Iowa. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. M.L. Daily of Denver City. She spent her early life in California and Arizona, moving to Texas in 1918. She lived in Wichita Falls and Vernon and in Lindsey, Okla.

She was a graduate of the Academy of Mary Immaculate in Wichita Falls. She married M.L. Weatherall Oct. 9, 1930 in Breckenridge. They made their home in Hobbs, N.M., and then moved to East Texas in 1931. They lived in Gladewater and Tyler before moving to Midland in 1935. They also lived in Denver City, Hobbs, Odessa, Stanton, McCamey, and Monahans, before returning to Midland in 1964.

She was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church.

Survivors include her husband; one son, Lt. Col. (Ret.) Marcus L. Weatherall of Norman, Okla.; one daughter, Cathy Lammons of Bedford; and six grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be J.S. Allega, W.W. Petty, J.S. Caffrey, O.R. Sharp, E.S. Hitchcock, A.J. Allen, Gordon Stone, and Cecil Goodwin.

The family requests memorials be directed to the American Cancer Society or one's favorite charity.

Hallie Scott

Hallie Mae Scott, 75, of Midland died at her home Sunday evening.

Services will be Wednesday, 2:30 p.m., at the Macedonia Baptist Church with the Rev. O.J. Archie officiating.

Burial will be at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Jackson Funeral Home.

Mrs. Scott was born Jan. 30, 1912 in McClennan County. She was reared in Gholson and attended school there.

She moved to Midland in 1937. She met and married Woodrow Scott in Midland in 1953. She worked for Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sealy for 40 years and retired in 1966.

She was a member of the Macedonia Baptist Church and the Heroines of Jericho.

Survivors include one son, Leonard J. Johnson of Midland and one granddaughter.

Pallbearers will be deacons of Macedonia Baptist Church, R.D. Caldwell, Herman Jefferson, R.J. Johnson, Ben Johnson, F.D. Nelms, and Edgar Cook.

Marie Smith

BROWNWOOD — Marie Smith, 68-year old mother of Terrisa Smith of Big Spring, died Sunday afternoon at a Brownwood hospital. She was a resident of Zephyr.

Services will be Wednesday, 10:30 a.m., at the Loop Baptist Church with the Rev. Morris Taylor officiating.

Burial will follow at the Loop Cemetery under the direction of Davis-Morris Funeral Home of Brownwood.

Mrs. Smith was a homemaker and a member of the Early Baptist Church. She had lived in Zephyr for the past 18 months.

Other survivors include her husband, D.D. Smith of Zephyr; two sons, David Smith of San Angelo and Jerry Smith of Floydada; another daughter, Malinda Shackelford of Rogers; one brother, J.D. Bennett of Lamesa; two sisters, Lavern Phillips and Alice Babb, both of Dallas; and four grandchildren.

Fire scene

Fire Marshal Jerry Petree, left, and fire investigator Cheryl Kellogg look for clues to the cause of a house fire Tuesday. According to reports, the fire broke out about 1:20 p.m. at 1209 E. Magnolia. No one was injured in the blaze.

PROMOTED

Thompson's new assignment will be the management of a patrol shift in the field operations bureau of the MPD.

Lovejoy, who has been with the Midland police for 16 years, received his basic training in Midland in 1971, and was promoted to sergeant in 1978. Lovejoy has been a sergeant in charge of a patrol shift for the past seven years. He has also been assigned to manage a patrol shift.

According to Chief Richard Czech, the promotions were made as a result of a reorganization, and the retirement of Lt. Lonnie Richardson and Lt. Dale Carlton.

Midlanders honored by Boys Club

From Staff Reports

Three Midlanders were recently honored for their contributions to the Midland Boys Club.

The annual Youth of the Year award was given to Adan Machuca; Lori Perales received the Sportsmanship Award and Karl Reagan got the Man-Boy award last Tuesday during National Boys Club Week.

The Midland Boys Club, 110 E. New Jersey, has been providing young Midlanders with a place to play, learn and grow for the past 23 years.

For more information about the Boys Club call Billie McNatt at 683-5297.

Midlander sentenced to three years in woman's shooting

From Staff Reports

A 24-year-old Midland man was sentenced to three years in state prison Monday for the shooting of an elderly woman last August.

Justin Slatton received the sentence from Judge Pat Baskin in 142nd state district court.

A jury took just over an hour on April 1 to convict Slatton of aggravated assault for the Aug. 25 shooting of Rosa Nichols, 79.

Ms. Nichols was shot once in the arm while in her upper-floor apartment at the Hillcrest Manor retirement home, 700 W. Scharbauer Dr., according to testimony in the two-day trial.

Chuck Standley, 23, of Midland, who testified against Slatton, pleaded guilty March 9 to aggravated assault. He received a two-year sentence, with at least 60 days shock probation a condition of the sentence.

Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre said Baskin decided on the punishment following a presentencing investigation.

Burglary information sought

Crime Stoppers is seeking information about the burglary of La Frontera clothing store at 800 South Terrell St.

On the weekend of March 28 and 29, investigators said someone broke out a window on the north side of the business. Once inside, they took women's clothing and men's boots valued at almost $6,000. Clothes taken included name brands such as Moni Liza, Magic, Angeles, Monaco, and Braxton. The stolen boots, which were handmade in Mexico by Comanche Boots, included two pairs made of natural goat skin with the hair left on. All of the boots taken were sizes 7 to 8½.

Crime Stoppers is offering a $1,000 cash reward, this week only, for any information that leads to the arrest and indictment of the burglars. Crime Stoppers in Midland can be reached at 694-TIPS, and in Odessa at 333-TIPS.

Linda and Curtis Red's 24-year-old son, Michael, also visits the family farm and takes an interest in the animals.

"Our son says that next we need a kangaroo and a penguin," Mrs. Red said.

When Curtis retires and they are able to spend more time with the animals, the family plans to raise wallabies.

Eldred and Lula Mae Red feed and care for the dozens of animals every day.

And Lula Mae Red is raising a newly hatched emu in a play pen in their house.

"I feel kind of like I've been through the mill sometimes at the end of the day," she said with a laugh.

Execution date set in suffocation death

HOUSTON (AP) — A May 15 execution date was set for a Houston man sentenced to die by injection for the 1983 suffocation death of an elderly woman.

State District Judge Charles Hearn set the date Monday for Edward Anthony Ellis, 33.

Ellis was convicted of capital murder in the Feb. 27, 1983, robbery-slaying of Bertie Elizabeth Eakens, 74. Evidence presented during the trial showed that Ellis had been fired as a maintenance man at the apartment complex where Ms. Eakens lived.

The trial jury took 27 minutes to hand Ellis the death penalty.

Officer charged with child molesting

DALLAS (AP) — An official in the Dallas County sheriff's department was suspended without pay following his arrest on charges he molested a 4-year-old girl he was babysitting.

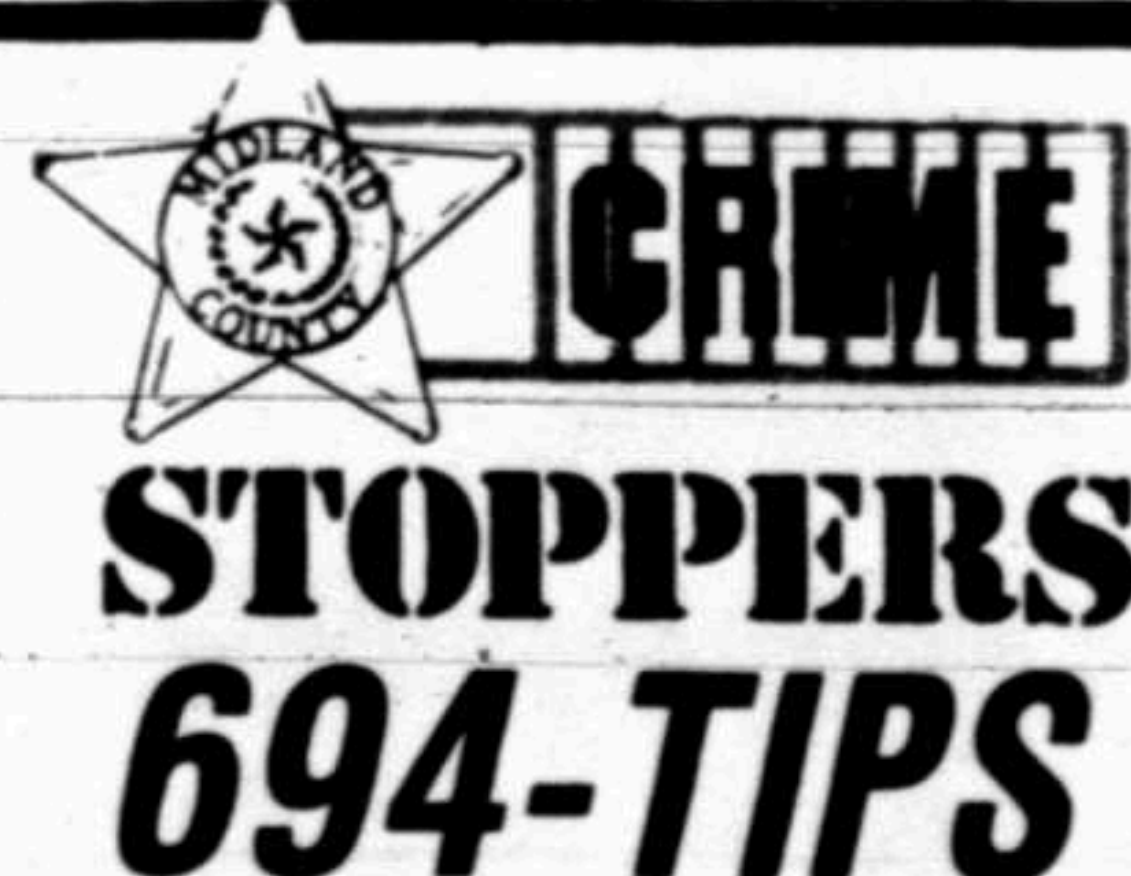

Bill Ballard, 56, who was evening lieutenant of the warrant service division, was arrested at home Monday and released later on bond. Municipal Court Judge Michael O'Neal set bond at $50,000, but Dallas County Magistrate Boyd Patterson later reduced it to $2,000.

Ballard was charged with aggravated sexual assault, a first-degree felony that carries a maximum penalty of up to life in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The girl's parents and grandparents are longtime family friends of Ballard, officials said.

Ballard has worked for the sheriff's department for 15 years, officials said. Before that, he was a career officer in the Marines with several tours of duty in Vietnam, sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell said. Ballard has held several positions with the sheriff's department, including sergeant in the criminal investigation division.

Crime Stoppers pays cash rewards for information leading to the arrest and indictment of felony crime offenders. Callers DO NOT have to reveal their identities. Crime Stoppers personnel are available 24 hours a day. Regular office hours are 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday-Friday. After 5:00 p.m. Weekends, and holidays, you can leave a message at 694-TIPS. U.S. Secretary of State George Shultz, left, talks with Soviet refusenik Vladimir Slepak during the traditional Passover dinner which was being celebrated at the American embassy in Moscow. Passover, the Jewish holiday which commemorates the Jews' flight from Egypt, began Monday evening.

Shultz tells refuseniks 'you are in our heart'

MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz told Soviet Jews at a Seder supper commemorating the ancient Israel's Passover flight from Egypt that they should never give up their quest to leave the Soviet Union.

"You are on our minds, and you are in our hearts. We think about you, pray for you," he told the 40 refuseniks gathered Monday night at the residence of U.S. Ambassador Jack Matlock. Refuseniks are those who repeatedly have been denied permission to emigrate.

Shultz, wearing the traditional Jewish skull cap, said the Soviet Union seemed to be allowing more Jews to leave for Israel, "but we don't know."

Emigration of Soviet Jews increased last month to 470, a 5½-year high, but refuseniks complain that many thousands still are denied permission to leave.

Jewish emigration reached a peak of more than 51,000 in 1979 but has fallen to about 1,000 annually over the past few years.

Most Moscow Jews celebrated the start of Passover at their home, but thousands gathered in and around a synagogue on Arkhipov Street. Authorities closed the street to traffic, and young Jews performed traditional dances to music from portable tape players.

Inside the crowded synagogue, older people followed the prayers and chants of the service in worn prayer books. People of all ages jammed the aisles, continuously filling in and out.

One young couple said they were drawn to the synagogue area by the crowd and stopped to watch the dances. A Jewish man said he came to the synagogue for the first time because he was curious.

A student in his 20s who identified himself only as Artem said he was there to meet friends and exchange holiday greetings. But he said young Jews had become increasingly interested in their religion and culture in recent years. At the Seder in Matlock's home, Jewish scientist Elazar Yousefovich told Shultz he was in the 28th day of a fast and would not break it even for the dinner. His wife, pregnant with their fifth child, sat quietly at his side.

Yousefovich said he was fasting "to save the lives of my children and my wife. It's not a pleasant step. It's one of the greatest holidays."

Shultz patted him on the back and said, "Never stop, even if hopes are disappointed. Keep on."

Shultz gave another refusenik, Vladimir Slepak, a photograph of his grandchildren that Slepak's son, Alexander, gave Shultz in Washington. Slepak ended a 17-day protest fast on Sunday.

Slepak also demonstrated Saturday at the steps of the Supreme Soviet. He said the protest was stopped by a security agent who seized him and took him away.

"I was very afraid I wouldn't be able to meet with Mr. Shultz," he said.

Soviet police took him home and guarded his house for hours, but the guard left later Saturday.

World War II veteran Lev Ovisscher spoke of many disappointments in trying to leave the Soviet Union but smiled as he told his story.

"I'm glad to see you can smile," Shultz said.

The secretary of state also talked with David and Milla Shreier, who have been informed by authorities they can leave for Vienna and Israel in 2½ weeks. Shreier is a doctor and writer and his wife is a teacher.

Contras attack farms, despite U.S. advice

By ANDREW SELSKY

PATIO GRANDE, Nicaragua (AP) — Contra rebels have attacked dozens of state-run farming cooperatives this year, sometimes killing civilians, despite admonitions by their U.S. trainers to concentrate on the Sandinista army and economic targets.

Survivors of a recent Contra attack on the Patio Grande cooperative 100 miles north of Managua say the rebels fired bullets and rockets indiscriminately and burned the farmers' only tractor.

Isidrio Gonzalez Gutierrez, a resident, said six young rebels in camouflage uniforms burst into his home just before sunset.

"I held up my Bible in front of them," Gonzalez, dressed in a tattered white shirt and patched pants, told a reporter. "I think they were going to shoot me, but when they saw the Bible, they held back."

The attack last Thursday, in which survivors say three civilians were wounded, brings into focus the U.S.-backed rebels' controversial tactic of targeting the cooperatives in their fight against Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

Human rights groups decry the attacks on cooperatives because civilian casualties frequently result. But the rebels maintain that when farmers bear arms given them by the government, they become the enemy.

Although Contra squad leaders recently trained in the United States reportedly were taught to concentrate instead on engaging the Sandinista army and destroying economic targets such as power lines and bridges, the rebels continue to attack the cooperatives.

Reporters traveling throughout the war zone have come across several instances where civilians have been killed in attacks on cooperatives this year. The attacks are part of an increase in rebel activity following receipt of some of the $100 million in Contra aid approved by Congress for this year.

The Defense Ministry says four civilians were killed in the attack at Patio Grande. However, Rogelio Estrada, the cooperative's representative to the governing Sandinista National Liberation Front, told reporters visiting this weekend that the dead were armed members of the cooperative's militia.

Estrada said nine cooperative members, including three civilians, were wounded.

Gonzalez said the rebels threatened to kill him unless he moved away from the cooperative, then burned the cooperative's only tractor, which was parked next to his home. They also burned the cooperative's only truck and a motorcycle before retreating into the jungle.

Some estimated as many as 60 rebels took part in the attack.

Gonzalez's seven children, all of them barefoot and some of them naked, played with the charred remnants of the tractor outside their home, a frame of thin pieces of lumber with plastic sheets for walls and a corrugated tin roof.

Patio Grande, a coffee- and banana-producing cooperative perched on a mountaintop in Nueva Segovia province, is in an area where government troops and Contras frequently clash.

Carlos Holman Chamorro, deputy minister of agriculture, said in a recent interview in Managua that the policy of installing cooperatives in combat zones "is an economic, political and military project. We told (the farmers), 'You are now the owners of this land — defend it!'"

Ruben Alfaro Diaz, a militiaman at Patio Grande, said the rebels poured automatic weapons fire and grenades into the cooperative, immediately overrunning its first defense lines.

"The enemy was very well-equipped," Alfaro Diaz said. "They were better armed than we were."

He said in addition to automatic rifles, the Contras had several M-79 grenade launchers and at least one RPG-2 rocket launcher. They captured the cooperative's mortar and one of its two heavy machine guns.

Estrada said the cooperative has about 100 automatic assault rifles.

The Nicaraguan government says it has more than 100,000 armed men, including the army, militia and reserves, but does not give a breakdown of the figure. The militiamen are armed by the government but have little or no military training.

Most of Patio Grande's cooperative's 350 members came from the northeastern province of Madriz, hit last year by severe drought.

Alejandro Vasquez, a militiaman, said most moved to the cooperative six months ago.

"We had houses before, but there was not enough land for all of us," he said. "The Ministry of Agrarian Reform invited us here. They said there was good land here and work for everyone."

"We knew there was war here," said Santos Ines Moreno, another militiaman. "The Contras want to intimidate us and force us to leave so they can control this area."

"We were disorganized during the fight Thursday," he said. "But we will learn from that."

Militants torch trains in black town's stations

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Black militants set fire to 10 trains at several stations in the black township of Soweto, forcing thousands of black commuters to jump from burning coaches.

The Sowetan, a daily newspaper for black readers, said an undetermined number of people returning home to Soweto from Johannesburg were injured in stampedes for safety from the blazing cars Monday night.

A government Bureau for Information spokesman said blacks set fires that damaged trains at five stations, but said he had no reports of related arrests, injuries or deaths.

Also today, the Bureau for Information reported four blacks died Monday in unrest around Johannesburg.

Sixty blacks set fire to a house in Tsakane township, east of the city, the bureau said, and two men who ran out were killed with stones and a garden fork. In Soweto, blacks fired from a moving vehicle at a security force foot patrol, the bureau reported. A man and a woman were killed when the patrol fired back.

The government-run South African Broadcasting Corp. said 250,000 commuters were late for work in Johannesburg today because the fires at the Soweto stations reduced train service by 20 percent, overloading bus and taxi services.

Elmarie Roux of the South African Transport Services said all Soweto trains operated during this morning's rush hour, but that many were late.

Deon van Loggerenberg of the Bureau for Information said "black radicals" damaged 26 coaches on 10 trains as workers returned from jobs in Johannesburg to homes in Soweto, a black township of more than 2 million people about 12 miles from the city.

He said he had no reports of arrests, injuries or deaths resulting from the fires, and did not know how the fires were set. Trains were attacked at five stations in Soweto, he said.

Dr. Neely stresses cataract prevention

The high numbers of West Texans with cataracts may be directly attributed to large amounts of ultraviolet (UV) radiation from the sun, according to Dr. Dennis Neely, Midland optometrist.

Dr. Neely, practicing in association with Dr. Marshall Jolly, is concerned about the condition of your eyes.

Cataracts, where the lens on the inside of the eye becomes cloudy or opaque, are caused by other reasons as well, he said.

Some prescription drugs, such as steroids or birth control pills, may cause a toxic effect through photosynthesis. This reaction has been known to cause cataract formation, Dr. Neely said.

A severe blow to the head or eye can lead to cataracts also, he added. The cataracts may not show up immediately, Dr. Neely explained, but they may take several months to form.

Cataract susceptibility is also played in large part by aging and heredity, Dr. Neely continued. The response to UV radiation and the onset of cataract problems is largely due to genetics.

"Cataracts are a condition, which once detected, need to be observed and followed until medical attention is necessary," he added.

Dr. Neely said that as cataracts are not fatal, immediate surgical attention is not necessary. Because cataracts cloud vision, however, a person's prescriptive needs change. Color perception is robbed, Dr. Neely said.

Eventually, Dr. Neely advises that cataracts will need to be surgically removed. "There is a finite point to where lenses will not be beneficial," he said. "When it comes to the point where symptoms downgrade the quality of life for the patient, we counsel for surgery."

Although not simple, Dr. Neely said that cataract surgery is routine because of their high incidence in West Texas. "The preferred procedure," he said, "is when the crystalline (cloudy) lens is removed, a synthetic lens replaces it." Because of this, the patient does not need to wear thick-lensed glasses or high-powered contact lenses.

What does change after the cataract surgery, according to Dr. Neely, is the patient's glasses prescription. It is important at that time to be fitted for glasses with an UV absorber.

As the lens removed by the surgeon eliminated the protection from these UV rays, new glasses need to replace the lost natural protection, he said.

UV protection can be provided with either clear or tinted lenses. Dr. Neely said a "sunscreen for glasses" is achieved when the chemical coating on the plastic lens effectively blocks out the UV rays.

People who have had cataract surgery, those with a family history of cataracts, and those who spend much time outdoors should have proper eye protection against UV rays, Dr. Neely said.

For this, sun shades are the answer. "Tinting lenses blocks out light, thus enlarging the pupils. Unless an UV absorber is used, more invisible UV light radiates the eye."

To fight this problem, Dr. Neely stocks only UV absorptive sunglasses in his dispensary. He has expanded it to include a new shipment of the latest styles. Most importantly, these glasses are the best weapon against cataracts in the sunny West Texas area.

Ready-made sun glasses are available in addition to prescription glasses.

Dr. Neely is a native West Texan. He was graduated from Odessa College, Texas Tech University and the University of Texas at the Permian Basin. He holds a doctor of optometry degree from the University of Houston, and is a member of local and national optometric associations.

Office hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday to Friday. The office is located at 2109 West Texas, Suite G.

Mr. Bill's for fence building, repairs

Spring winds can be pretty rough on a fence, and Bill's Fencecraft will repair your fence or install a new one. Now that the winds have started blowing harder, owner Bill Rodriguez suggests that you replace any broken posts or loose boards to prevent further damage.

Bill has been working in the Midland area since 1969. He is celebrating the tenth anniversary of Bill's Plumbing and Fencecraft by consolidating all of his business ventures under the name of Mr. Bill's.

Throughout the years, Bill has acquired a long list of satisfied customers.

He and his staff can build just about any kind of fence a residential or a commercial customer will need. Wood, screen, cinder block, decorative, masonry, chain link and privacy fences from four to eight feet can all be handled by the experts at Mr. Bill's. In addition, they have a new type of fence - Flexifence. If you have a chain link fence, this is ideal of screening purposes.

Bill encourages families with small children to have a decorative fence built around the pool. "You can't replace a child's life. Safety has to come first," he says.

Mr. Bill's can also help you to follow city ordinances for parking of travel trailers, motor homes and boats. These cannot be parked in front of your home. To make parking this equipment in the back more practical, Mr. Bill's can install a double gate, pour concrete to park the vehicle on and even build a protective cover. Bill will be glad to come to the location and give you a free estimate on a new fence or a repair.

Bill and his staff work with written contracts no matter how small or large a job may be. This is done to ensure that the customer knows exactly what to expect and will be satisfied.

Whether you need a fence or some other handy work done, a tree pruned or removed, alleys cleaned so that rodents or bugs do not have place to nest, or a sprinkler system adjusted or repaired-for any additional repairs around your home call Bill Rodriguez or his daughter Bernie at 697-2652 or 697-4712 for a free estimate.

Bill Rodriguez, owner of Mr. Bill's, displays one of his latest projects in fence construction. Contact Mr. Bill's soon for any fence building or repairs in addition to maintenance work.

Bell H2S Safety trains you to save lives

Call the professionals at Bell H2S Safety today and learn how you and your employees can learn basic first aid in less time, for less money.

"We all know that taking a worker off the job for 12, 16, or 18 hours of CPR and first aid training can be unnecessarily costly," says Randy Williams, Bell Safety senior sales representative. "With the Medic First Aid (MFA) program, students receive eight hours of training in the basic skills of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and basic first aid."

Medic First Aid utilizes a combination of slide-tape, lecture, and practical skills designed to be taught in approximately eight hours.

The course was designed to provide a student of average intelligence and education with a systematic approach to the rendering of care to a sick or injured person on an emergency basis until skilled medical personnel arrive.

Seven basic skills are taught in depth and practice sessions are held between each module with performance objectives each student must master in order to successfully complete the course. These skills include CPR, obstructed airway, control of severe bleeding, shock, care of the unconscious patient, patient assessment (simple vital signs and symptoms), and patient evaluation (secondary survey).

"Each of the seven modules are designed to build on previous knowledge students have learned in the course," explained David Frederick, training coordinator. "This is undoubtedly the best first aid training for first responders that we have ever seen."

Some typical students in a class might include housewives, police and safety department personnel, secretaries, office managers, nurses, waiters and paramedics.

"Thanks to the flexibility of this course, if there is a particular first aid need that may arise more frequently than something else, we can spend more time dealing with that need," said Williams. "For example, if we are teaching personnel who work around heavy machinery, we might spend more time on control of bleeding and shock management."

Skills are monitored by the instructor throughout the class, dispensing with the need for a written test. A text is provided, however reading is not essential to the course, thereby eliminating discrimination against non-reading students.

Medic First Aid is approved by the United States Department of Labor Mine Safety and Health Administration.

Call Randy Williams at 694-9653 to enroll for a class or for more information on rates. Bell H2S Safety can set up classes for your entire company, or teach key personnel to be instructors so that you can do your own in-house training.

"This is a relatively new program for this area," Williams said. "But many people already know the benefits involved with being adequately trained to administer CPR and basic first aid. As they find out more about Medic First Aid, we know they'll see even more benefits in this program."

Dale Torrans and Randy Williams of Bell H2S Safety watch as David Frederick uses a dummy to explain basic resuscitation skills. Medic First Aid, taught by trained professionals from Bell H2S Safety, can train you to respond to a medical emergency and possibly save a life.

Let Joann Gardner help you plan and coordinate your wedding

Joann Gardner brings 15 years of experience to her new bridal consulting and wedding coordination services. Call now at 694-0053 to reserve her services for your upcoming spring, summer or fall wedding.

After 15 years of coordinating weddings for many special friends, Joann Gardner announces the formation of her wedding coordination and bridal consultant services.

Joann suggests that you begin planning now for your wedding. Her services include all or any part of pre-wedding planning, the rehearsal, the rehearsal dinner, the wedding and the reception.

"My goal is to eliminate a lot of the confusion at the wedding," Joann said. "Mothers and their daughters need someone to serve as an extra pair of legs and hands to take care of all the many details."

With Joann's help, your wedding will be as perfect as possible. She does all the legwork for you and your mother to ensure you will have what you want at your wedding. "I make it possible for the mother of the bride to enjoy the day, as well," Joann said. "Responsibility for all arrangements are taken off her shoulders."

Joann's services range from initial planning to last minute details. She will serve as a liaison between you and the members of the wedding party. She can direct the rehearsal and will be available at the church, home or place of ceremony from the time you begin dressing to the end of the reception.

She will see that the organist has been paid and the flowers distributed. If your guests bring gifts to the wedding, Joann will put them in a safe place with cards attached. Another time saving service Joann can do is to get your dress and going away outfit to the wedding and/or reception.

Joann's "emergency bag" has proven to be a lifesaver many times over for brides and their wedding parties. Items that you or your attendants could need at the last minute are all planned for in advance.

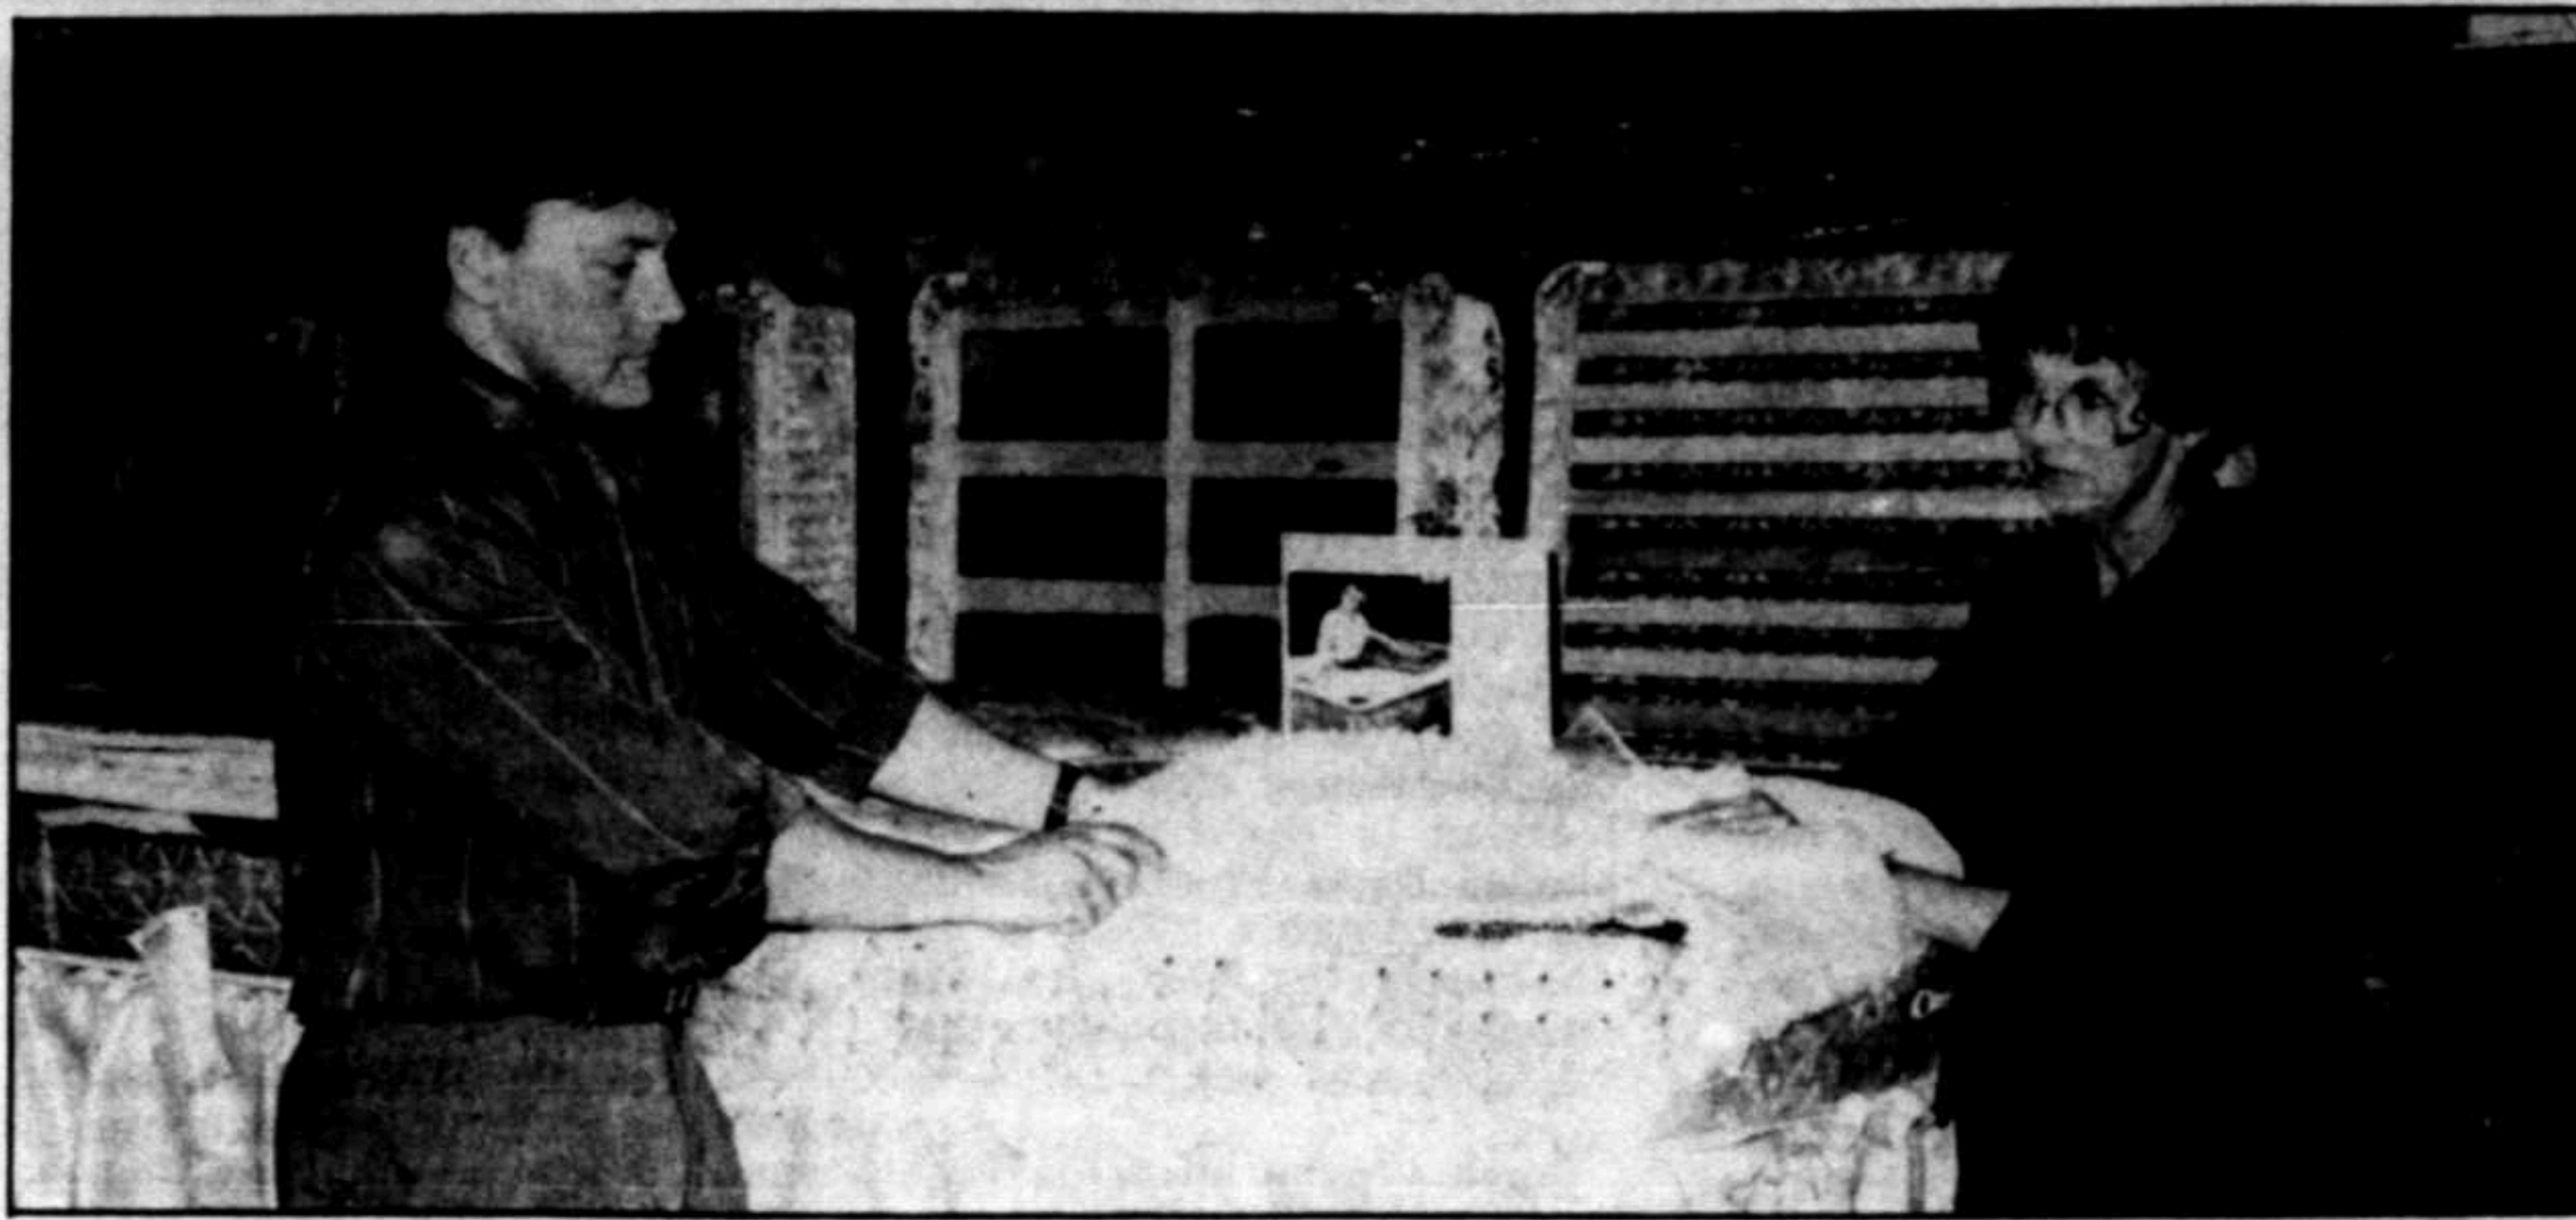

Experience has shown Joann that the things most often left at home and are needed include needles, thread, nail mender, panty hose, masking tape, and upset stomach remedies. With all of the rush before the wedding, she saves you the hassle of needlessly worrying about those last minute disasters.

Joann follows any guidelines that most churches have for weddings. Her services do not conflict with the religious ceremony or the church rules. She is willing to work side by side with the minister and/or wedding committee of each church.

References are available from Joann's previous consultations. In addition, she has "hindsight" references from people who wish they had contracted her services.

Charges are based on the services you desire. Call Joann Gardner today at 694-0053 for more information. Also, clip Joann's Business and Industry section advertisement and mail it in. You may be the lucky winner of a free consultation by Joann!

Aladdin House takes a razor blade to cut their mattress competition

Aladdin House wants to prove to you that their Eastman House Royal Crown mattresses are the best buys on the market today.

Let's face it. A mattress is a blind item.

All the important things that make a mattress good or bad are buried under the fancy cover, where you can't see them.

So what does the usual store salesman tell you to do to judge the quality of a mattress?

Sit on it. Which makes about as much sense as kicking an automobile tire to gauge the quality of a car.

What do you think will happen when you sit on the mattress? Will it explode? Will it cave in? Will it collapse, or pop a spring? Of course not. It's still new. The real test will come in a couple of years. And then it's too late, even when it comes with a "warranty."

Let us tell you something about mattress warranties.

You buy the mattress on sale for 50 percent off. (When was the last time you ever heard of anyone paying full retail price for a mattress?) Then six years pass, and the mattress poops out. You take the warranty into the store and they give you 50 percent credit on the full price of the new mattress. Which is the same as buying a new mattress on sale.

Some warranty!

Eastman House Royal Crown Sleep Sets have a non prorated warranty for 20 years — America's best warranty.

At Aladdin House, they take a razor blade to the Sealy, Simmons, King Koil and Serta top-of-the-line mattresses. And to their own Eastman House Royal Crown. So you can see what's going on inside. Their mattresses give you Coil-on-Coil support for balanced comfort.

Aladdin House gives you more than 100 layers of rich, non-allergenic cotton cushioning. And the Royal Crown construction offers extra support through the center one third where your body needs it most.

Sealy doesn't give you this. King Coil doesn't. Simmons doesn't. Serta doesn't.

Once you've seen the comparison, you'll see that there is no comparison.

Aladdin House will give you a better product, a better warranty, and a better value. So the next time you see a sale ad on mattresses, bring it in to Aladdin House, located at 3504 W. Wall. They will prove to you that the best way to judge a mattress set is with a razor blade!

Mack, Farmar team to tag 9-8 loss on Diablos

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Probably only 50 of the 288 fans who showed up at Angels Stadium on a cold and gusty Monday night saw the conclusion of Midland's 9-8 victory over the El Paso Diablos, but this ending was one worth waiting for, regardless of the weather.

At least, Midland relief pitcher Tony Mack was there to see it and that accounted for a lot.

Mack pitched the final 2 1/2 innings of shutout ball to pick up his first professional save. And that's saying something for the 5-10 righty, who has had a taste of the big leagues.

As drama would have it, Mack was facing the ever hot Joe Mitchell with two outs and Jesus Alfaro on second base in the top of the ninth inning. Mitchell, who has already hit six homers this year in seven games and hitting .526 going into the game, was the man the Diablos wanted at the plate.

Who won the battle? Well, we've already given away the score, but you might say that Mitchell won and Alfaro lost. Or you could say Midland's Damon Farmar saved one for the savor.

Mitchell ripped a single to center, but Midland's Damon Farmar cut down Alfaro at the plate where catcher Doug Davis was waiting with the game ending tag. That gave Mack his save.

"YOU KNOW El Paso had who they wanted at the plate," said Farmar. "He's been really hot. I still came in a little closer than usual, hoping to get a grounder in front of me. Anyway, if he hits another one out, there's nothing I can do about that. In that situation, I told the outfielders that we had to get the runner at the plate. We got the runner at the plate."

Despite high winds crossing the diamond from north to south, Midland and El Paso combined for 24 hits, so the fact that Mack gave up only two hits in his gritty stint, makes this one a worthy save.

"I was satisfied with my performance with the exception of one pitch. I felt like I made a mistake to Mitchell and he jumped all over it," said Mack. "I would have liked to get out of that situation without all that drama, but fortunately I had that big play behind me and sometimes you need a big play to win."

For the last two years, Mack has pitched at the AAA level as a starter. In 1985, he even got one chance at the Big Top, pitching, but losing, to the Toronto Blue Jays.

"I got a week and one start in the big leagues with the Angels, but they sent me back down to triple-A," says Mack. "I wasn't very consistent as a starter and the Angels and I talked about making me a reliever. I like it because this is my shot at getting back to the Major Leagues. I like the pressure situations."

STILL, MITCHELL raised his average to .565 with three more hits on the night, but he didn't add to his league leading homer total. For that the Angels are grateful.

Midland trailed the Diablos by an 8-4 margin after 3 1/2 innings of play, but the Angels erupted for three runs in a wild fourth inning and then won it in the fifth in a most unlikely way.

In the fifth, Farmar led off the inning with a single and scored all the way from first on a hit-and-run single by Davis. Robbie Allen then sacrificed Davis to second, leaving fans discussing the move by Angel manager Max Oliveras. With runs coming in bundles, why play for one run?

Oliveras' move paid victory dividends, however, when Brian Brady reached safely on a throwing error by pitcher Jamie Briscoe. John Hotchkiss then kissed a sacrifice fly to center to score Davis from third, and that proved to be the game winner as neither team scored the rest of the way.

Angel starter Marty Reed got his first Texas League victory, thanks to the Angel comeback. Reed, who didn't earn a decision in his first start, is now 1-0 with an unlikely 9.29 ERA. He has given up 13 runs in 12 1/2 innings. Reed, however, retired the last eight batters he faced to set up Mack's entrance. Reed left the game with what appeared to be a blister on his pitching hand after striking out Garrett Nago to open the seventh.

The two teams are 1-1 in this five-game set and play again today at 7 p.m.

Cub hurler loses no-hit bid in ninth

Associated Press

Philadelphia Phillies fans haven't had a lot to cheer about in the first week of the baseball season, so when a local boy took a no-hitter into the ninth inning, they were excited.

It hardly mattered that Jamie Moyer pitches for the Chicago Cubs.

Moyer, a 24-year-old left-hander making his 18th major-league appearance, had a no-hitter through eight innings Monday night before Juan Samuel led off the ninth with a line single to center field. The crowd of 15,366 at Veterans Stadium, where a no-hitter has never been pitched, responded with a chorus of boos.

"That's the first time I got booed for getting a hit in Philadelphia," Samuel said after the Cubs finished with a 5-2 victory, the Phillies' fifth loss in six games.

Moyer, who grew up in Souderton, Pa., and attended St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia, gave up a walk and a run-scoring single to Mike Schmidt before Lee Smith got the last three outs despite giving up an RBI single to Lance Parrish.

"I felt good, but I just wanted to get off to a good start," said Moyer, who pitched his first major-league game last June 14. "I was thinking a little bit about the no-hitter in the seventh and eighth innings, but I was more concerned about winning the game."

Chicago Cubs pitcher Jamie Moyer held a no-hitter going into the ninth against Philadelphia Monday, but Juan Samuel's lead off single spoiled his bid.

Andre Dawson and Bob Dernier supported Moyer with solo homers for Chicago. Moyer, 1-0 this season and 8-4 for his career, was fooling the Phillies all night, striking out 12, but walking six.

Cubs Manager Gene Michael said he didn't hesitate to replace Moyer with Smith.

"He was tired. He threw 150 pitches," Michael said. "Sometimes he tries to be a little too fine, but he had great stuff tonight."

'Devo' saves Angels in 10th

Associated Press

SEATTLE — Rookie Devon White won the game with his first home run in the top of the 10th and then saved the game with a fine running catch on a foul ball that he turned into a double play.

Angels Manager Gene Mauch was impressed with all three plays of the former Midland Angel the call "Devo," now Mauch's right fielder.

"It was a three-way tie. It took more athletic ability to make the catch," said Mauch after the Angels' 5-3 win over the Seattle Mariners Monday night. "But we wouldn't have won without the home run."

White had earlier saved a run when he cut off Alvin Davis' double in the gap and then relayed the ball to fellow rookie Mark McLemore, also an ex-Midland Angel, who threw out Phil Bradley at the plate.

"Being an ex-infielder, I was able to pick up the ball after it came out of the lights and then made an off balance throw to first," said White, who picked off the Mariners' Jim Presley to end the game with a double play.

White was also pleased with how Mauch showed his confidence in him in the top of the 10th after McLemore had opened the inning with a single. McLemore collected three hits on the night.

"Gene Mauch gave me a lot of self-esteem when he had Brian Downing bunting in front of me," continued White.

Donnie Moore, 1-0, the third Angels pitcher who had allowed the tying run to score in the bottom of the ninth, picked up the win by pitching a hitless 10th inning.

Seattle rallied to tie the score at 3-3 in the ninth, when John Moses hit a triple that barely eluded center fielder Gary Pettis and scored on a single by Scott Bradley.

Wally Joyner had doubled with the bases loaded in the fifth inning to give the Angels a 3-0 lead.

Brewers 6, Orioles 3

Cecil Cooper, who had been on the disabled list for the first six games of the season, came back to knock in two runs, including the game-winning, as the undefeated Brewers posted their seventh straight victory.

Cooper twice hit the first pitch to drive in the runs, the second sacrifice fly coming with the bases loaded in the eighth inning to snap a 3-3 tie. The streak is the best start in Brewers' history.

"It was a funny feeling, sitting and watching everyone contributing," said the 37-year-old designated hitter.

Cooper had been placed on the disabled list in spring training after pulling a muscle in batting practice. The winner was Chris Bosio, 2-0, the third Milwaukee pitcher, who allowed three hits over the final 3 2/3 innings. The loser was Scott McGreer, 0-1.

Yankees 11, Indians 3

Willie Randolph drove in five runs with four hits and emergency starter Charles Hudson pitched a three-hit game as the Yankees won their home opener.

Randolph, 4-for-20 this season entering the game, tied single-game career highs for RBIs and hits. He had a three-run-double in the fourth inning that gave the Yankees a 6-1 lead and a two-run double in the fifth.

Hudson, 2-0, acquired in the off-season from Philadelphia, made his first American League start after Tommy John came down with a stomach virus. Hudson allowed only home runs to Mel Hall in the second inning. Brook Jacoby in the fifth and Joe Carter in the ninth while striking out 10 and walking two.

Dave Winfield homered and Don Mattingly and Ron Kittle added two-run singles among New York's 15 hits off Greg Swindell, 0-2, and three relievers.

Athletics 6, Twins 3

Reggie Jackson opened an eighth-inning rally with a pinch-hit single and Carney Lansford sent Oakland ahead with a two-run single as the Athletics downed Minnesota.

Lansford got his second game-winning hit in two days with the bases loaded. It gave him three RBI for the night and seven in two games for the Athletics, who were winless before Sunday.

Oakland reliever Jay Howell, 1-1, got the victory with two hitless innings. In two previous appearances he gave up five runs in 1 1/3 innings. George Frazier was the loser.

The Twins' Kirby Puckett hit his fourth homer in four games, and No. 5 this season, on the first pitch of the eighth to tie the score 3-3.

OU's Bosworth a no-show for regular NFL draft

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — While it may have appeared that Brian Bosworth's decision to forego the National Football League draft was made long ago, the Oklahoma linebacker's father says that is not the case.

"When I talked to him Sunday he was still very much undecided about what to do," Foster Bosworth said Monday night from his Irving, Texas, home. "I guess he just decided there are other avenues to approach."

Bosworth, who was in Midland Friday and Saturday, said his father will act as his agent, should he decide to turn pro this year.

By not notifying the NFL in writing by the Monday deadline, Bosworth automatically became ineligible for the regular April 28 draft. The two-time All-American can participate in next summer's supplemental draft or can return to Oklahoma for his final year of eligibility.

Bosworth said Monday morning that he was still undecided about what decision to make. Repeated attempts to reach Bosworth at his Norman, Okla., residence later Monday were unsuccessful.

"I kind of got an inkling of what he might do Sunday when we didn't sit down and draft anything up," the elder Bosworth said. "If it's a plan, it's his own plan. I am not telling him what he should do or needs to do. He is his own man and can make up his own mind."

The NFL said Monday that it had not heard from the linebacker, either.

"We don't have anything, and it has to be in writing," said Joel Bussert, director of player personnel for the NFL. "A phone call would not be sufficient."

Had he heard from Bosworth at all?

"No," Bussert said late Monday afternoon, shortly before his office closed.

Bosworth, 6-feet-2 and 240 pounds, was expected to be one of the first five players drafted. His reluctance to enter the draft centered mainly on his wish not to play for the Indianapolis Colts or Buffalo Bills, who have the second and third picks, respectively.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who pick first, will take Miami quarterback Vinny Testaverde. The Heisman Trophy winner has already signed a contract with the Buccaneers.

While Bosworth can avoid being chosen by the Colts or Bills in the regular draft, there is still a good chance a poor team will get him in the supplemental draft. In that process, Tampa Bay will get to toss 28 slips of paper into the hopper. Indianapolis will get 27, Buffalo 26, etc., with the Super Bowl champion New York Giants getting one slip of paper.

Names will then be pulled from the hopper to determine order of the draft.

Bosworth has said he prefers to play on a grass field instead of artificial turf, and that he wants to play with a winner or in a high-profile city such as New York or

Los Angeles.

He was interested in playing with the Philadelphia Eagles and their coach, Buddy Ryan. The Eagles play on artificial turf and won only five games last year, but Ryan is recognized as an outstanding defensive coach.

"He has said he'd like to play here," said Joe Wooley, the Eagles' player personnel director. "I think our situation would be very good for him. We play a 4-3 defense, and that features the middle linebacker. With a 3-4 team, he's just the other inside linebacker."

The Eagles, who pick ninth, made what Wooley called "a very substantial offer" to Indianapolis in an effort to acquire the Colts' spot in the draft. The Colts refused.

If Bosworth returns to school, however, it probably won't be to play football. Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer has said Bosworth will not be back, and the linebacker has not taken part in spring drills.

Mantle still in fair condition

IRVING (AP) — Mickey Mantle is to undergo tests to determine the condition of the Hall of Famer's heart following his hospitalization for treatment of chest pains.

Mantle, who is in the intermediate coronary care unit at Irving Community Hospital, was in fair condition, said hospital spokeswoman Sharon Peters.

Ms. Peters said Mantle, 55, was scheduled today for cardiac catheterization, a diagnostic procedure which allows doctors to examine heart chambers for any abnormalities that might exist.

Mantle, who lives in Dallas, experienced chest pain late Sunday while on a Delta Airlines flight bound for Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport from LaGuardia Airport in New York, said Ramona Bevir, a hospital spokeswoman.

She said doctors confirmed that Mantle did not suffer a heart attack.

Paramedics were called to meet the plane, Delta spokesman Jim Ewing said at the company's headquarters in Atlanta.

The former New York Yankees' great released a brief statement through hospital officials.

"I'm tired, but I'm feeling fine," he said. Ms. Peters said Mantle indicated he would have no other comment.

IN DECEMBER, Mantle ended his association with Del Webb's Claridge Hotel Casino at Atlantic City, N.J., where he was director of sports promotions, primarily handling public relations work and playing golf with casino customers.

At that time, hotel officials said Mantle needed more time to pursue his other business interests.

Mantle was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1974.

Mantle broke in with the Yankees in 1951, replacing Joe DiMaggio in center field. He won the American League Triple Crown in 1956 with 52 home runs, 130 runs batted in and a .353 batting average. He won three Most Valuable Player Awards and four American League home run titles.

1910 — Washington Senator Walter Johnson pitchers a one-hit 3-0 victory against the Philadelphia A's while Frank Smith of the Chicago White Sox duplicates the feat against the St. Louis Browns.

1917 — Ed Cicotte of the Chicago White Sox pitched an 11-0 no-hitter over the St. Louis Browns.

1925 — The Cleveland Indians opened the season with a 21-14 triumph over the St. Louis Browns, the most runs scored by one club on opening day. The Indians scored 12 runs in the eighth inning with the aid of five errors by the Browns. St. Louis first baseman George Sisler committed four errors in the game.

Jordan's 50 stops the Bucks

Associated Press

Michael Jordan doesn't have to score 50 points to impress Chicago Bulls Coach Doug Collins.

When Jordan did just that Monday night, his seventh 50-point game of the NBA season and second in two nights, Collins found other things to be pleased about.

"In my estimation, he's the greatest player in the NBA right now," Collins said after the Bulls beat Milwaukee 114-107. "He came back at the end of the game and got the big rebound, stepped in and made the free throws and dished for a dunk. There's not much more I can say. His performance speaks for itself."

Jordan's performance virtually assured that he will become the second player in NBA history to score 3,000 points in a season. Jordan needs 37 points, his single-game average, in Chicago's last two games to join Wilt Chamberlain, who had more than 3,000 three times, in that exclusive club.

Jordan said his main concern late in the season is getting the Bulls into sixth place in the Eastern Conference, the highest playoff spot they still can attain.

"If I get it, I get it," Jordan said of his chase for 3,000. "My 50 points is not as big a factor as us getting the respect we deserve."

NBA Roundup

Jordan had 16 fourth-quarter points, made 16 of 31 field goals and 18 of 22 free throws and had nine rebounds as the Bulls improved their record to 40-40, a half-game behind sixth-place Washington and a half-game ahead of Indiana.

Jordan scored 16 points in the fourth quarter as the Bulls outscored the Bucks 36-24 to overcome an 83-78 deficit after three quarters. Jordan's steal and basket with 8:02 left gave the Bulls the lead for good at 88-86.

Hawks 102, Pacers 101

Atlanta, trying to earn the home-court advantage in the first three rounds of the playoffs, pulled within a game of Boston in the Eastern Conference standings as Dominique Wilkins scored 28 of his 34 points in the second half against Indiana.

The Hawks, who won their seventh straight game, trailed by nine points in the second quarter, but they got within six at halftime and closed the deficit to 75-72 after three periods.

Pistons 120, Knicks 100

Detroit beat New York for its 50th victory, only the second time in franchise history the Pistons have won that many.

Adrian Dantley scored 30 points and Isiah Thomas added 21 for the Pistons. Dantley had nine points as they increased an eight-point half-time lead to 94-75 at the end of three quarters by outscoring New York 32-21 in the third period. Detroit, which won 52 games in 1973-74, went on to lead by as many as 24 points in the fourth quarter.

76ers, 113, Bullets 105

Cliff Robinson scored 22 points and Maurice Cheeks added 15 points and a season-high 19 assists as Philadelphia clinched fifth place in the Eastern Conference by beating Washington.

A basket by Robinson completed an 8-0 run and gave the 76ers a 105-93 lead with 2:16 remaining in the game. Washington got no closer than seven points in the final two minutes.

Kings 123, Spurs 118

Reggie Theus had 28 points and 10 assists and Otis Thorpe added 22 points as Sacramento handed San Antonio its 10th consecutive loss, extending a club record.

The Spurs tied the game 116-116 with 1:16 left when Anthony Jones, who scored 24 points, hit his second 3-point basket.

Raiders get Pack's Lofton

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Wide receiver James Lofton, the all-time leading pass-catcher in Green Bay Packers history, has been traded to the Los Angeles Raiders a month before his scheduled trial on a sexual assault charge.

The Packers announced late Monday that the 30-year-old Lofton, a former all-pro who has spent his entire nine-year career with Green Bay, was traded for a third-round choice in the upcoming NFL draft, plus an undisclosed conditional choice in 1988.

Green Bay coach Forrest Gregg said he thought the Packers got firm offers from two teams and inquiries from six, but he declined to name them.

"Other teams were interested in Lofton, but nobody was interested in giving us what we thought would be beneficial to this football team," Gregg said.

Based on what the "market value" would bear, the Packers got a fair deal for Lofton, Gregg said. He said he was determined not to trade Lofton unless the Packers got something that would help the team.

Acquiring the 15th pick in the third round of the April 28 draft will give the Packers four of the first 70 players to be chosen. They already had the fourth choice in the first round, third in the second round and a fifth choice in the third round.

However, Raiders spokesman Steve Hartman said there were "provisions" in the deal linked with the outcome of the case.

"The trade has been made. But yes, you can assume there are provisions pending the outcome of the trial," Hartman said, refusing to elaborate.

Lofton, a California native and No. 1 draft choice of the Packers from Stanford in 1978, last year became the 15th player in pro football history to catch 500 or more passes.

Clemens, Bosox make it official

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens, the American League's 1986 Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner, signed a two-year contract worth more than $2 million with the Red Sox on Monday, just two days after being shelled in his first start of the 1987 season.

"I'm extremely happy and I'm ready to go out there and do the things I've always wanted — and that's winning," the 24-year-old right-hander said.

Just two days after he gave up four runs in four innings in Boston's 11-1 loss to Toronto, Clemens and the Red Sox reached agreement on a contract for 1987 and 1988.

In keeping with club policy, the Red Sox refused to disclose terms. However, the two-year contract reportedly was worth about $2 million. And General Manager Lou Gorman conceded the pact contained incentive clauses which would add bonus money.

After a 29-day boycott of the Florida exhibition season in a bitter salary dispute, Clemens conceded he faced a struggle in starting the season.

"I might get my lumps here and there in my first couple of outings, but I still think I'm ready to pitch," he said. "I'm looking forward to pitching Thursday."

On April 4, shortly after the Red Sox had broken camp and left Winter Haven, Clemens returned, ready to go back to work after agreeing in principle to a two-year contract.

Only two batters came close to getting a hit before the ninth, both in the fourth inning. With one out, Schmidt hit a high drive to deep center field that Bob Dernier caught at the wall. After Parrish walked, Glenn Wilson barely missed beating out a slow roller to third.

Dodgers 4, Astros 2

Los Angeles handed Houston its first loss in seven games, with a pair of rookies playing the key roles.

Tracy Woodson hit his first major-league homer on the first pitch he had ever seen from all-time strikeout king Nolan Ryan, and Brian Holton allowed one run in five innings of relief for the Dodgers.

Holton, 1-0, entered the game after the fourth inning when starter Rick Honeycutt suffered a pulled muscle in his right side. Holton, who has 18 major-league appearances, allowed four hits, including Phil Garner's homer with two outs in the ninth.

Reds 7, Braves 2

Cincinnati won for the fifth time in six games as Eric Davis and Tracy Jones had three hits apiece and an RBI double.

Davis' grounder over the third base bag keyed a two-run fifth inning that broke a 2-2 tie. The Reds added two runs in the eighth on Jones' RBI double, his stolen base and a sacrifice fly by Dave Concepcion.

Bill Gullickson, 2-0, allowed six hits, including Ken Griffey's solo homer, in seven innings. Loser Zane Smith is now 0-8 since he last won on July 2, 1986.

Cardinals 8, Pirates 4

St. Louis, shut out for five innings, scored four runs in both the sixth and eighth innings to beat Pittsburgh.

The Pirates led 1-0 after five innings on Johnny Ray's RBI single in the first as Doug Drabek, 0-1, limited the Cardinals to two hits.

But Tommy Herr hit an RBI double in the sixth, Jack Clark followed with his second homer of the season and, one batter later, Jim Lindeman hit his third. Willie McGee keyed the four-run eighth with a bases-loaded triple.

Giants 13, Padres 6

San Francisco hit four homers, including a grand slam by Robby Thompson, to overcome a record homer binge by San Diego.

The Padres established a major-league record when the first three batters in the bottom of the first inning — Marvell Wynne, Tony Gwynn and John Kruk — homered off San Francisco starter Roger Mason. Twenty-seven times in baseball history a team had gotten homers from its first two batters in a game.

Thompson, who had five RBI in the game, overcame that homer barrage by himself with his grand slam in the seventh inning.

Texaco filing clouds Pennzoil's future

By THOMAS C. HAYES
New York Times News Service

Liedtke

Kinnear

HOUSTON (NYT) — Not many people ever have the chance to accept a peace offering of $2 billion from an embittered, implacable foe — let alone turn such a deal down.

Yet that is what J. Hugh Liedtke, chairman of the Pennzoil Co., did when he turned a cold shoulder last week to the bid by Texaco Inc. to settle the $10.53 billion legal dispute between the two oil companies.

In doing so, he took what was probably a historic gamble. Texaco called his bluff and filed for bankruptcy. Texaco indicated Monday that it would be less inclined to settle now. And it is uncertain whether the company can sustain the vitality of its operations because of creditors' doubts.

Pennzoil insists that Texaco's bankruptcy actually increases its ability to obtain the judgment from Texaco, but Wall Street obviously saw Pennzoil as having lost an important bargaining chip Sunday. Texaco's stock fell $3.375 Monday, to $28.50, having recovered from a low of $27.375. Pennzoil's stock plummeted $15.25, to $77. In total market value, it lost $2.2 billion, just about what Texaco had been offering to settle Texaco officials told analysts at a crowded meeting in New York that the bankruptcy filing would strengthen the company's bargaining position against Pennzoil. Many analysts attributed the rebound in Texaco shares to Texaco's persuasive arguments that its bargaining edge against Pennzoil had been bolstered by the bankruptcy filing.

"Pennzoil has lost the initiative," said Sanford L. Margoshes, an analyst with Shearson Lehman Brothers in New York. "My reading is Texaco has bought the time and tranquility to move its appeal through the courts."

James W. Kinnear, Texaco's chief executive, said his company would be able to build cash reserves while continuing its appeal of the 1985 jury award of $10.53 billion to Pennzoil.

The jury said Texaco had unlawfully acquired Getty Oil after Pennzoil had agreed to acquire three-sevenths of Getty. A Texas appellate court upheld the verdict on Feb. 12 but reduced the award to $8.53 billion. Including interest, the award now amounts to about $10.3 billion.

In refusing to accept $2 billion from Texaco, Liedtke and Pennzoil are gambling either that Texaco will later agree to the higher amount Liedtke proposed last weekend or that Pennzoil will ultimately prevail through all of Texaco's appeals and recover enough from Texaco in the bankruptcy reorganization to make its wait worthwhile.

To come out ahead, that probably would have to come to more than $3 billion. Assuming that it could be invested in the money markets at a conservative interest rate of 8 percent for the next four years, the $2 billion Liedtke turned down last week would be worth more than $2.7 billion. Bankruptcy experts said it might take four years or more to resolve the Texaco bankruptcy, the biggest ever.

Baine P. Kerr, chairman of Pennzoil's executive committee, said, however, that Pennzoil would have been pilloried by its stockholders if it had accepted the $2 billion offer.

"On what basis can you say you should have settled for what in effect was 20 cents on the dollar," Kerr said. "I don't see how we possibly could have justified it."

He said that Texaco's $2 billion offer, which he termed "substantially higher" than any previous Texaco proposal, was made after Liedtke told a Wall Street audience last month that Pennzoil would not accept a $2 billion proposal. "They knew he wouldn't accept it," Kerr said.

The Pennzoil executive argued that, instead of losing bargaining leverage to Texaco in the bankruptcy action, Pennzoil's position actually improves. The combination of regular cash flows and elimination of dividends and interest and principal payments on nearly $7 billion of debt brighten the prospects for all Texaco creditors to be repaid in full, he said.

With the bankruptcy filing, Texaco "took an action that preserves their assets much more effectively than what we were proposing," Kerr said. He was referring to the request Pennzoil made to the state appellate court last Friday that Texaco cut its dividend payments in half while securing half of the $10 billion judgment with collateral to continue its appeal.

Pennzoil and Texaco agreed in court documents filed in Houston last week that Texaco's total assets, more than $34 billion, were more than adequate to pay $10 billion to Pennzoil if Texaco loses its appeals.

Both Texaco's assets and net worth, currently more than $13 billion, could erode, however, if what could be thousands of jittery Texaco suppliers are slow to renew credit to Texaco after the bankruptcy filing.

Weak dollar, climbing interest rates push stocks to fourth largest dive

By PETER COY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Bond prices plunged to their lowest levels in more than a year and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks registered its fourth-biggest point drop on record as the weaker dollar frightened traders.

The dollar's sharp decline is good for the trade deficit but has raised fears of inflation and higher interest rates. It has also caused hardship to the United States' major trading partners, something that economists say could potentially escalate into a worldwide recession.

On Monday, the Treasury's key 30-year bond tumbled 1 1/4 points, or about $17.50 per $1,000 in face amount after its yield rocketed to 8.35 percent from 8.18 percent late Friday.

The Dow Jones industrials fell 51.71 to 2,287.07 in a late decline accelerated by computerized trading programs. Declining issues outpaced advancing ones nearly 7 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

"It's a belated reaction to rising interest rates," said Raymond DeVoe, of Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc. "There has been some uneasiness that the market was behaving as well as it has in the wake of the bond market's worries about inflation and the free fall of the dollar.

The dollar's decline is beginning to shrink the trade gap by making U.S. exports cheaper and imports more expensive, but progress has been slow.

The dollar came under pressure again Monday as currency traders anticipated more bad news about the trade imbalance. The dollar was quoted at 142.60 yen in late New York trading, down slightly from 142.90 on Friday.

In Tokyo, the dollar dipped to a close of 141.35 yen today, its lowest close against the yen since the late 1940s. The previous record of 142.50 yen was set Friday and matched Monday.

Gold and silver prices rose, boosted by the weakened U.S. currency, traders said. At the Republic National Bank, gold bullion was bid at $436.75 a troy ounce at 4 p.m. Monday, up from $432.50 on Friday.

The free-falling dollar has prompted inflation fears, because it makes foreign goods more expensive here. It also has heightened concerns that the Fed will push up interest rates to keep inflation in check and restore investors' confidence in the dollar.

The decline in Treasury bond prices was the biggest one-day slide in seven months, according to an index of Treasury bond prices maintained by the investment firm Shearson Lehman Brothers.

Witnesses: Tariffs will hurt consumers

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Users of Japanese electronics Monday warned of financial losses, layoffs and even a negative impact on public safety if certain targeted goods are hit by punitive tariffs that the Reagan administration is preparing to impose later this week.

Crowded hearings in the Commerce Department's main auditorium gave the public the first chance to comment on sanctions the White House is aiming at Japan for failure to comply with an eight-month-old semiconductor agreement.

On to the stage of the auditorium, in front of blinding television lights came one witness after another to describe before a panel of government examiners from a half-dozen agencies the impact of the planned action on their operations.

The testimony included appeals from the Los Angeles and other law enforcement agencies worried that higher costs of Japanese-made automated fingerprint identification systems will weaken crime fighting in this country.

"This city will suffer a substantial financial loss, but the more significant concern is that the promise of improved crime solving, so desperately needed, may become short-lived," said Rose Ochi, director of the Criminal Justice Planning Office of the City of Los Angeles.

One of the witnesses, Harry L. Slam, the senior vice president for sales of an Irvine, Calif., maker of video display terminals, wound a sumo wrestler's kerchief around his head as he spoke, saying he was "defending his village."

The administration has published a list of more than 20 products, representing annual import volume of $1.8 billion, that could be hit by duties of as much as 100 percent.

The purpose of the hearings, at which more than 70 witnesses have signed up to testify, is to help trade officials winnow the list down to goods representing import volume of $300 million — the amount the White House said it would target in what would be the first postwar trade sanctions invoked against Japan.

Christopher Parlin, an official in the general counsel's office of the Office of the United States Trade Representative, and co-chairman of the hearing, said the judgment of an interagency body that will make the recommendations to the president would be based on "the degree of impact on United States consumers."

Can German tourism give Basin a boost?

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business, Oil Editor

In its pursuit to diversify Texas — particularly West Texas — may be overlooking a multibillion dollar tourist market, says Ulrich Neck, a German tour guide, who was in Midland this weekend.

A lieutenant colonel in the German Air Force attached to the NATO Air Defense, Neck provides personal tours of West Texas and the Southwest in his time off, and feels there is potential for greatly expanding German tourism to Texas.

"There are many built-in inducements for attracting German tourists to this area that have not been capitalized upon," he explained. He listed the wide-open spaces of West Texas, Germans' love for western lore, appeal of German author Karl May and new inexpensive air fares as inducements that could be promoted to bring more Germans to West Texas and Midland.

He added that many would make the trip just for the privilege of seeing a working drilling rig or being on a working cattle ranch. Neck and his tour, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R.F. "Buddy" Fort of Midland. A longtime friend, Fort planned a visit to a working rig for the group. "They got on the floor, watched the crew make a connection, and were absolutely fascinated," said Fort.

From Midland, the group of four including Wilhelm Meissen, a tax advisor, Heinz Meissen, an independent furniture maker and Margret Friedrich, an insurance vice manager, will travel to El Paso making stops at Carlsbad Caverns and historical stops along the way. Historical stops will include Salt Flats, Guadalupe Peak and the ruins of the Pinery Stage Stop of the Butterfield Overland Stage Lines.

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Texaco reports Strawn discovery

From Staff Reports

TEXACO, INC., Midland, has recorded a modest Strawn discovery with completion of a rank wildcat in Mitchell County.

On potential test, the No. 1 H.G. Ison pumped 35 barrels of 38.6 gravity crude, 77 Mcfd and eight barrels of water from perforations 7,156 to 7,184 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,100 gallons of 15 percent HCl acid and fractured with 14,000 gallons of gel and 17,000 lbs. 20/40 sand. Gas-oil ratio is 2,200:1.

Permitted as an 8,000 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 7,800 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 7,310 ft.

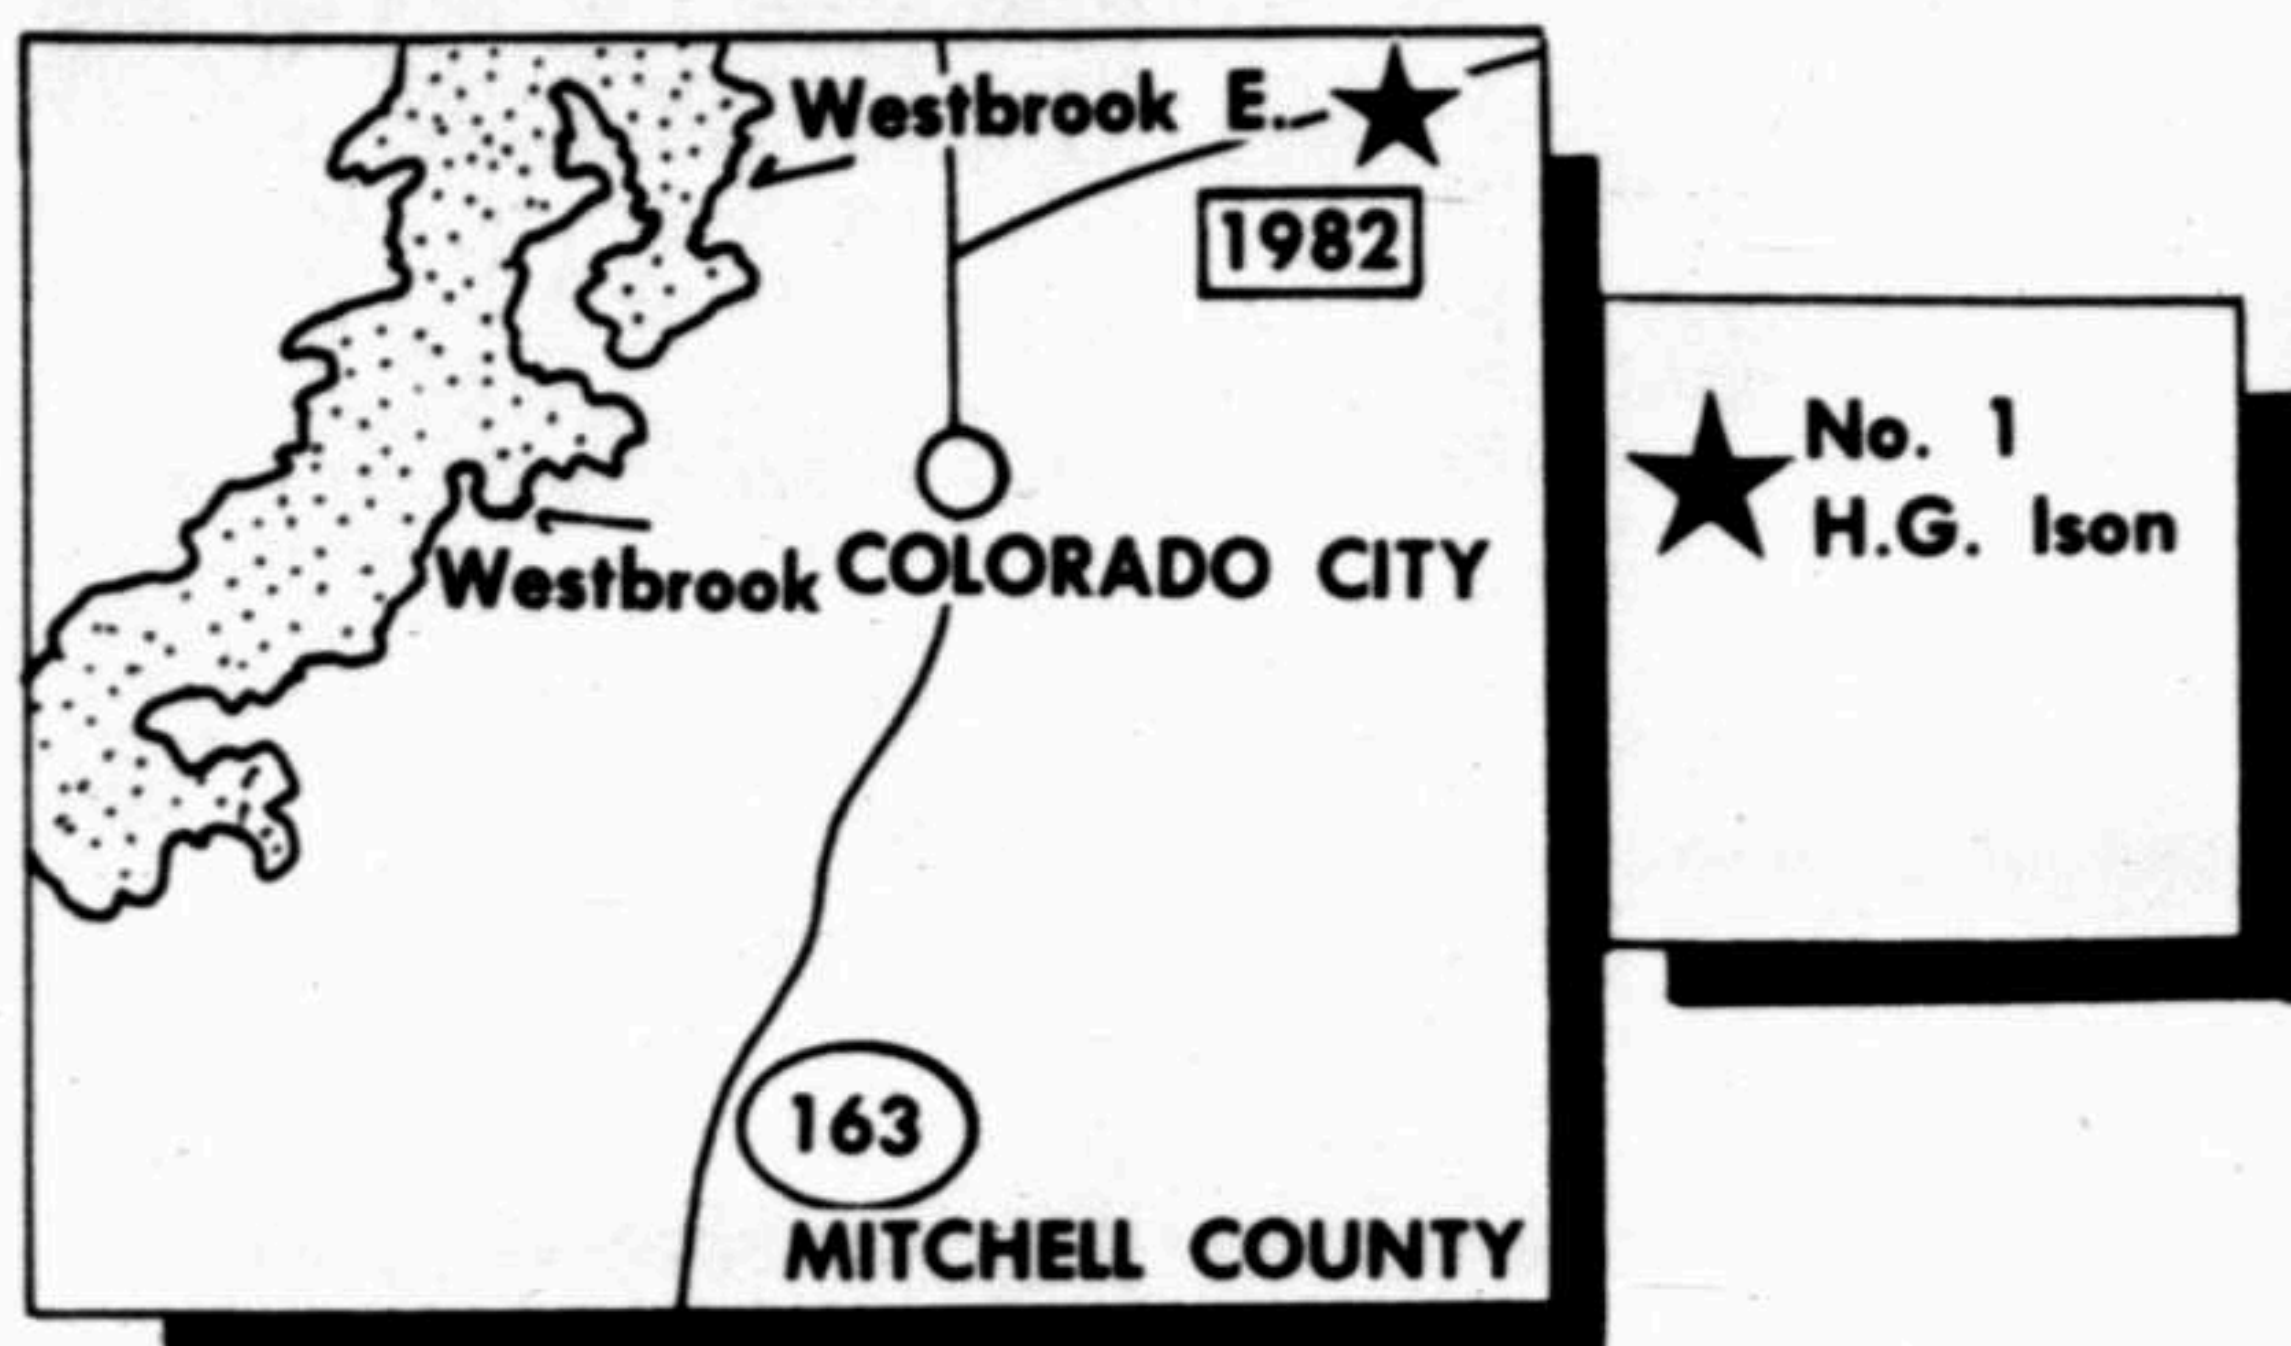

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,320 ft., include the Vale Shale at 2,835 ft., Wolfcamp Lime at 5,080, Strawn at 7,045, Mississippian at 7,230, and the Ellenburger at 7,275 ft. Pay was topped at 7,156 ft.

Location is 657 ft. from north and 660 ft. from west lines of Section 26, Block Y, T&P survey, seven miles north of Lorraine.

Drilling continues in Midland Farms area

Development continues in the Midland Farms field of Andrews County, with AMOCO PRODUCTION CO., Andrews, adding a new Wolfcamp producer to the field.

The No. 175 Midland Farms Deep Unit was finished to pump 27 barrels of crude, 17 Mcfd and three barrels of water from perforations 8,570 to 8,586 ft. The interval was acidized with 1,500 gallons of 15 percent Ne-

FeHCL acid and fractured with 30,000 gallons of frac. Gas-oil ratio is 630:1.

Permitted as a 12,800 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 9,200 ft. and plugged back to 9,189 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 9,199 ft.

On ground elevation of 3,056 ft., formation tops include the Yates at 3,025 ft., Queen at 4,080, Grayburg at 4,480, Clear Fork at 6,825, Wolfcamp at 8,650, and the Pennsylvanian at 9,180 ft. Pay was topped at 8,570 ft.

Location is 8,067 ft. from north and 510 ft. from east lines of Section 48, Block 41, T-2-N, G&MMB&A survey, 16 miles southeast of Andrews.

Ward South producer pumps 15 barrels oil

A new Grand Falls producer has been added to the Ward South field of Ward County.

SUNSET ENERGY OF TEXAS,

INC., Dallas, tested the No. 1 Buckles to pump 159 barrels of 36.8 gravity crude, 145 Mcfd and 60 barrels of water from perforations 2,308 to 2,529 ft. The interval was treated with 70,000 gallons of gel and 398,000 lbs. 16/30 sand. Gas-oil ratio is 912:1.

The well was drilled to 2,650 ft. and plugged back to 2,611 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 2,645 ft.

The well topped the Grand Falls at 2,306 ft. and the Pennsylvanian at 2,502 ft. on ground elevation of 2,521 ft. Pay was topped at 2,306 ft.

Location is 330 ft. from southeast and northeast lines of Section 18, Block 34, H&TC survey, seven miles northwest of Grand Falls.

Andrews producer pumps 150 barrels

UNION OIL CO. OF CALIFORNIA, Midland, has added a new Pennsylvanian producer to the Parker West (Penn) field of Andrews County.

The No. 1 Bessie O. Parker was completed to pump 150 barrels of 48 gravity crude, 83 Mcfd and 14 barrels of water from perforations 8,606 to 9,163 ft. The interval was acidized with 8,200 gallons of 15 percent HCL acid. Gas-oil ratio is 553:1.

Total depth was 9,210 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and the well was plugged back to 9,177 ft.

The well topped the Wolfcamp at 8,557 ft. and the Pennsylvanian at 8,725 ft. on ground elevation of 3,200 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from east and 661 ft. from south lines of Section 12, Block A-43, PSL survey, three miles southwest of Andrews.

Rendova adds two to Ector County field

Two new Queen producers have been added to the Concho Bluff North (Queen) field of Ector County by RENDOVA OIL CO. Both are on the Jennifer "A" lease, located in Sections 2 and 3, Block 42, T-4-S, T&P survey, 10 miles southeast of Odessa.

The No. 17 Jennifer "A" was potential to pump 103.4 barrels of 30.7 gravity crude from perforations 4,456 to 4,494 ft. Gas production was too small to measure.

Rendova also finished the No. 18 Jennifer "A" to pump 102.7 barrels of 31.9 gravity crude from perforations 4,456 to 4,494 ft. Gas production was too small to measure.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Standard lets contract for offshore platform

HOUSTON (SWN) — Standard Oil Production Co. has awarded a contract to CBS Engineering Inc., Houston, for detailed design and procurement of a drilling and production platform and facilities to be installed in Ewing Bank Block 826 in the Gulf of Mexico.

Standard Oil Production will operate the platform, which will develop a 1985 discovery.

"The facilities are being designed for 15,000 barrels of oil per day and 50 million cubic feet of gas per day," said Bill Sears, Continental & Offshore Division vice-president and general manager.

Triton: Paris Basin reserves up 39 percent

DALLAS (SWN) — Triton Energy Corp. announced that gross proved oil reserves from the Paris Basin Villeperdue oil field increased 39 percent, from 48.7 million barrels at May 31, 1986 to 67.5 million barrels at March 1, 1987. The increased proved reserves, in a report by independent petroleum engineering consultants DeGolyer and McNaughton of Dallas, Texas, resulted from continuing development drilling and improved field performance.

Villeperdue, located 50 miles east of Paris, produces 15,000 barrels of oil per day from the Jurassic age Dogger limestone at depths between 5,500 to 6,000 feet. The field is owned jointly by TOTAL Exploration, S.A. (operator) and Triton France, S.A., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Triton Energy. Triton France discovered Villeperdue in 1982.

Sun completes North Dakota discovery well

DALLAS (SWN) — Sun Exploration and Production Co., managing general partner for Sun Energy Partners, has announced a discovery well in North Dakota's Williston Basin that flowed both oil and gas.

The O. M. Seal Federal No. 1, in section 32, T135N-R103W, Williams County, North Dakota, flowed at a daily rate of 660 barrels of oil and 581,000 cubic feet of natural gas through a 13/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,025 pounds per square inch. Production is from perforations between 13,188 and 13,204 feet in the Red River Formation.

Sun, the operator, has a 50-percent interest in the well. Comdisco Resources, Inc. also has a 50-percent interest. Plans for an offset well are currently under consideration.

Union Texas acquires leases in Wyoming basin

HOUSTON (SWN) — Union Texas Petroleum reported that it has recently acquired leases covering approximately 15,000 acres in the Minnelusa trend of the Powder River Basin in Campbell County, Wyoming. The total price for the five-year-term leases, which were acquired from private landowners, exceeded $1.3 million.

With these new leases, Union Texas now has interests in more than 50,000 acres in the Powder River Basin. Overall, the company has over 1.4 million net acres of developed and undeveloped leaseholdings both onshore and offshore the U.S.

Exxon expands introduction of new unleaded gasoline

HOUSTON (SWN) — Exxon Company, U.S.A. is expanding the introduction of its new mid-grade unleaded gasoline into major metropolitan areas on the East Coast. As the new product, called Exxon Plus, is added to Exxon's gasoline offering at its service stations, Exxon's regular leaded product will be discontinued.

Changeover to new Exxon Plus will begin in late April and early May in major markets in Virginia, Maryland, Florida and the District of Columbia. The new unleaded fuel will be phased in as supplies of leaded gasoline are depleted at individual locations and new shipments of Exxon Plus are delivered.

With the introduction of its new mid-grade unleaded, Exxon will no longer offer a leaded gasoline in these markets, except in some rural areas where leaded gasoline will be made available to Exxon distributors who have a substantial need for leaded product to serve farmers and other customers whose vehicles and equipment were designed for this product. Over the past decade, consumer demand for leaded gasoline has steadily declined because cars and light trucks built after 1974 have been designed for unleaded fuel.

Larkins said that most of the vehicles currently on the road can operate satisfactorily on an unleaded gasoline.

GERMANS

The group will be traveling what Neck calls the "Trail of Karl May." May, who wrote in the 1920s, is Germany's most celebrated author; his books rank second in sales only to the Bible. "Every German school child was raised with his books," said Neck. He said about one-third of May's books were about the Southwest and the cowboys and Indians, which instilled a great mystique for the Southwest in Germans.

Neck said he met a German couple at D/FW Airport who were on their way to Mexico. "When I told her we were on the trail of Karl May, her eyes lit up." He said the western appeal was so strong in Germany that there were even cowboy clubs, where western buffs dress the part and talk about western things.

Another appeal is the wide open spaces, says Neck. "You cannot imagine how awed Germans are of our wide open spaces. We are a nation with a population density of 300 per square mile, and to come here and find areas with less than 300 people in a hundred square miles is like a breath of fresh air. There are thousands of Germans eager for the western experience in the wide open spaces." He said the western experience could be greatly enhanced by participation in such activities as a working roundup or trail ride.

A student of Southwestern history, Neck lived for four years in El Paso while engaged in NATO missile training at Fort Bliss, and spent all of his spare time touring West Texas, New Mexico and Arizona. He said he plans to have a second home somewhere in the Southwest when he retires from the military.

Neck described Germany as a nation of vacationers, of which 16 million — in a total population of 80 million — go abroad each year. He said Spain is the most popular German playground with Turkey becoming more popular, but new low air fares could open great possibilities for the Southwest. The group traveled from Frankfurt to Dallas for only $600 on British Caledonia Airlines, according to the tour leader.

He said there has been a 250 percent increase in German-American tourism in recent years and it is still increasing. He said most of the trade is now going to California and other tourist attractions simply because the Southwest has not been promoted properly. He suggested that West Texas chambers of commerce become actively involved in working with German tourist agencies and embassy to promote West Texas.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Cashing treasury coupons can be personal or by mail

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have a U.S. Treasury bond in "bearer" form, with interest coupons attached. I was unable to change this bond to the new direct interest payment arrangement, due to the age of the bond.

I opened an account at a local Federal Reserve Bank, just for the purpose of redeeming these semiannual interest coupons. That bank now charges a $7.50 fee for redeeming $125 of coupons and attributes the fee to the cost of sending the coupons by registered mail.

Is it possible for me to send off these coupons by registered mail, to save that fee?

Doyle

A. Yes. You can redeem each coupon as it comes due by presenting it to a Federal Reserve Bank or branch or to the U.S. Treasury Department in Washington, D.C. You can do that in person or by mail — registered, for safety sake. The registered mail cost would be less than that bank fee.

You're somewhat confused about the local bank at which you have an account. It is not a Federal Reserve Bank. You're undoubtedly dealing with a commercial bank, which is a member of the Federal Reserve System. There are more than 6,000 such banks around the country.

However, there are only 12 district Federal Reserve Banks and 25 branches. Your local bank can give you the address of the Fed bank or branch serving the area in which you live.

Now for some good news. You can have your Treasury bond changed from bearer to registered form. To accomplish that, your bearer bond certificate must be sent to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. A new bond certificate, registered in your name, will be sent to you. After that's done, the semiannual interest checks will be mailed to you and you won't have to fuss with clipping and cashing coupons.

At this time, you cannot have your bond put into the new "Treasury Direct" program. Only those Treasury bonds and notes issued since August 1987 now are in Treasury Direct. The Treasury Department plans to allow owners of older Treasury bonds and notes to place their securities in Treasury Direct in the future. But no timetable has been set.

No certificates are issued for bonds and notes in the Treasury Direct program. Instead, ownership is in "book-entry" — recorded on computers. Interest payments are sent electronically to bond and notes owners' bank accounts.

Q. Several of my U.S. Treasury notes will mature next month. These are registered notes and I receive interest checks every six months. Will I receive a final interest check at maturity? How do I redeem the notes for their face value? Can I handle the redemption myself?

A. The final interest check will be mailed to you, just as the previous checks have been.

Matured Treasury notes and bonds can be redeemed at any Federal Reserve Bank or branch. Some Fed banks and branches require a redemption form to accompany the maturing note or bond certificate. Some will accept a letter of instructions, in lieu of a redemption form. Check that with the Fed bank or branch serving your area.

Be sure to provide your name and correct address on either the redemption form or letter. Fed officials relate some very sorry stories about people sending in note and/or bond certificates for redemption, without addresses.

You can do it yourself. If you use the mails, make sure it's registered, return receipt requested.

Q. My bank raised the fee it charges for redeeming U.S. Treasury securities from $30 to $45 to $60 and now to $75. When I protested, the cashier said, "It's because of the high fees the Federal Reserve charges us when we cash Treasuries for customers." What's your reaction to that?

A. The bank is entitled to be compensated for the time, effort, paperwork and resulting expenses involved. But the cashier was wrong. Here's a quote from Federal Reserve regulations:

"No fees will be imposed (by Federal Reserve Banks or branches) for... the payment of principal and interest on U.S. government and federal agency securities."

"Tourism is instant money," he reminded. "It is brought into a community and put on the table without having to pass through an army of middle men as in international trade."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

GenCorp stock dumped after failed takeover

WASHINGTON — General Partners, an investment group consisting of Wagner & Brown and AFG Industries, has sold all but a tiny fraction of its 8.6 percent stake in GenCorp Inc. Last week the investors terminated their $100-a-share, or $2.2 billion, hostile takeover bid after GenCorp announced that it would pay $130 a share for 54 percent of its stock.

In a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, the investment group said it had sold nearly 2.2 million shares in two open-market transactions for $118.25 and $118.50 a share. The filing did not indicate who had purchased the shares. General Partners told the SEC that it still held 108 GenCorp shares.

Dillard's purchases two Allied Stores divisions

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Dillard Department Stores Inc. officials say they agreed to buy two divisions of Allied Stores Corp., including the Dallas-based Joske's retail chain, for about $255 million in cash.

Joske's, which operates 26 stores in Texas and one in Phoenix, is the largest division being sold by Allied under its current restructuring program.

Dillard said it also was buying Allied's Cain-Sloan division, which operates four stores in Nashville, Tenn.

InterFirst has $18.9 million loss in first quarter

DALLAS (SWN) — InterFirst Corp. reported a consolidated net loss of $18.9 million ($28 per share) in the first quarter of 1987. This compares to net income of $2.1 million ($3 cents per share) in the corresponding quarter last year and to a loss of $49.6 million ($74 per share) in fourth-quarter 1986.

InterFirst Corp. announced on Dec. 16, 1986, that a definitive agreement had been reached to merge with RepublicBank Corp. The merger agreement, subject to regulatory and shareholder approval, is expected to close during the second quarter of 1987.

Weak economy slows Dallas housing market

DALLAS (AP) — The spring and summer housing market in Dallas is struggling due to a weak economy and overbuilding that has provided a surplus of houses.

The changes in the home market follow years of steadily rising home prices in Dallas. Now, buyers can choose from a record 32,000 houses, both new and older homes and the cost of an average home dropped by 6.5 percent in 1986.

The average selling period for a pre-owned home has more than doubled in some affluent neighborhoods. In the Park Cities, it now takes an average of 216 days to sell a home, compared with about three months last spring.

First City introduces IRA plus

The IRA with high opening interest plus the opportunity to go higher.

First City Bank's exclusive IRA Plus is an exciting new addition to our wide range of IRA investment services. The First City IRA Plus gives you a high opening rate on a 2-year to 5-year CD, plus the chance to earn even more if the cost of living goes up.

Every April 1st, beginning next year, we'll compare your IRA Plus opening rate to the cost-of-living index. And whichever rate is higher — that's your rate for the next year. But that's not all. The new First City IRA Plus gives you one plus after another.

Plus Rate protection. You'll never earn less than your opening rate.

Plus You can open your IRA Plus with as little as $100.

Plus You can make additional deposits of $100 or more through December 31st, 1987.

Plus You pay no fees or charges.

Plus You'll receive detailed quarterly statements.

Plus You have the security of FDIC insurance.

Remember — the April 15th tax deadline may be your last chance to claim an IRA deduction. So, call First City or come in today for full details about the new First City IRA Plus.

We'll also be glad to discuss with you our other IRA investment services, which include our 6-month and 12-month CDs, Money Market Savings and Self-Directed IRAs.

*The cost-of-living index is the previous year's percent change in the annual average consumer price index (CPI) plus 0.5%. Rates are subject to change without notice. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Available at participating First City Banks. This offer is subject to cancellation without notice. Member FDIC. © 1987 FCBOT.

...the cleaning of a reactor in the Soviet Union.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told reporters any increased radiation did not originate in his country, and that Soviet radiation detectors showed nothing unusual.

The Soviets were criticized after the Chernobyl nuclear disaster because they initially failed to report the power plant accident, which killed 31 Soviets and sent radiation around the world.

Claudia Conrad of the West German Environment Ministry said the increased radioactivity measured in March "posed no danger" to people in West Germany or Sweden.

Ms. Conrad said the problem because was a Soviet nuclear plant accident, although she said she could not rule out radiation from an underground nuclear weapons test.

Chilean rebels take over stations

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Three armed leftist guerrillas entered The Associated Press Bureau Monday and announced the end of a self-declared truce they said had been called for the visit of Pope John Paul II.

Police reported later that similar actions were carried out by guerrillas, condemning Chile's military government, at five radio stations. In all cases the guerrillas fled and there were no injuries, according to officials.

The men who entered the AP bureau brandished handguns, wore red handkerchiefs over the lower half of their faces and said they were members of the Manuel Rodriguez Patriotic Front, a pro-communist group that has claimed responsibility for several terrorist attacks.

The attacks included an assassination attempt against President Augusto Pinochet, the army commander, in September.

GLENWOOD PSYCHIATRIC HOSPITAL

The lobby at Glenwood, left, provides a warm reception for new patients and visitors. Each unit or wing at the psychiatric hospital is equipped with a sitting and entertainment area where patients can relax or watch television.

Glenwood offers psychiatric help

From Staff Reports

Glenwood, a 64-bed private, free-standing psychiatric hospital, is located on ten acres of land midway between Midland and Odessa.

The 44,000 square foot facility provides psychiatric services for children, adolescents and adults from Texas and the southwestern United States.

Glenwood's architectural design maximizes the effectiveness of the therapeutic milieu.

Facilities will include patient living units with nourishment, laundry and activity areas; classrooms; an activity courtyard and an administrative complex.

Services provided by Glenwood include diagnosis and evaluation; inpatient psychiatric treatment; emergency psychiatric services; psychiatric intensive care; discharge planning and referral; partial hospitalization and follow-along services.

Glenwood recognizes that the admission process is a critical time for both the patient and the family. Consequently, care is taken to make them comfortable and to respond to any questions or concerns they may have about treatment programs and services.

The patient's history is evaluated with the family prior to and during admission and helps determine the selection of the appropriate treatment unit. The history provides the foundation for the development of the initial treatment plan. Based on the assessment of the physical, emotional and behavioral status of the patient, the plan is implemented by the interdisciplinary team under the direct supervision of a credentialed psychiatrist.

It is during the evaluation period that a full battery of tests is administered to determine specific physical, emotional, social, recreational, occupational/vocational or educational strengths and deficits. As a result of these comprehensive in-depth assessments, more effective treatment choices are made.

Each day's activities are organized and structured to provide maximum opportunities for growth and development, while attending to the emotional needs of the patient.

Glenwood stresses the importance of family involvement in the treatment of the patient beginning with participation in the preadmission and admission process. The hospital regularly involves the family in the patient's treatment through family therapy, counseling and communication.

Prior to the patient's leaving Glenwood thorough aftercare planning with referral sources, community resources and the family is provided. Additionally, the staff at Glenwood conducts follow-ups with patients on a regular basis after discharge.

The hospital has an open medical staff. Psychiatrists on the medical staff admit and attend their own patients. The clinical services provided to each patient is prescribed by the attending physician in an individual treatment plan.

Glenwood offers separate treatment programs for adults, children aged 5 to 12-years-old; adolescents 13 to 18-years-old; and individuals in psychiatric crises.

A multi-disciplinary team develops specific treatment objectives in response to the patient's needs and condition. For every patient the goals of treatment include movement to a less restrictive environment and return to the community.

Preparation for return to community living usually involves the resolution of emotional conflicts, the development of adaptive behaviors and the acquisition of independent living skills.

Individual and group psychotherapies; family therapy; occupational and expressive arts therapies; physical therapy; and speech and language services also are available.

The hospital also offers a fully-accredited educational program for school-aged patients.

Glenwood is licensed by the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation as a private psychiatric hospital. The hospital opened in February 1987.

Hospital offers free phone counseling service

From Staff Reports

CounselLine, a free telephone counseling service offered by Glenwood Hospital, is now available in Midland-Odessa.

This new community service offers 3- to 5-minute prerecorded messages which provide information on topics promoting positive mental and emotional health.

The CounselLine tape library provides a varied selection of topics covering issues such as alcohol and drugs; anxiety and stress; depression; marriage; family and parents; and suicide.

To use CounselLine select a tape from those listed and call the CounselLine phone number, 915-563-2561. A touch-tone phone must be used.

After a short prerecorded introduction, enter the number of the tape you want to hear. (Tape numbers are listed before the tape's title below.) The tape will soon begin to play.

CounselLine will be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. All calls are confidential. One need not give his name.

Firm now operates 21 psychiatric facilities

From Staff Reports

Glenwood Psychiatric Hospital is owned by Healthcare International, Inc., a national healthcare company offering a broad range of healing and rehabilitative services. The company now operates 21 facilities in nine states.

Healthcare International's growth is built on the foundation of The Brown Schools. Over its 46-year history, The Brown Schools has earned a reputation for providing quality mental health services in psychiatric hospitals, residential treatment centers and group homes.

The Brown Schools has developed innovative programs to accommodate patients for whom few services are available, resulting in a referral base which includes all 50 states and more than 10 countries.

In August 1979, the Brown Schools formed Healthcare International to develop and operate new health care facilities in communities identified as having the need for such services. In February 1982, Healthcare International acquired The Brown Schools and became the parent organization, owned principally by the management of the company.

Hatpin holders prized by collectors

By LINDA ROSENKRANTZ
Copley News Service

The vintage hatpin, in all its infinite variety, has a companion collectible, the hatpin holder.

The stands made for the storage and display of hatpins came in materials almost as varied as the hatpins themselves. Especially prized today are those in sterling silver, cut, carnival and art glass and fine porcelain, most specifically Rose Tapestry (Royal Bayreuth), Kewpie (German Jasperware), S&V mark of Schaffer & Vater (Volkstedt-Rudolstadt area), Staffordshire (England), Carnival glass (America) and R.S. Prussia (Red Mark). Other desirable hatpin holders can be found in gold, copper and ivory.

According to Lillian Baker, author of the authoritative "Hatpins and Hatpin Holders," early Nippon examples have taken one of the highest leaps in value, especially those with hand-painted scenes and those embellished with gold and moriage work. Hallmarked figural stands, which are extremely difficult to come by, have always brought high prices and continue to do so.

One of the key factors in hatpin holder collecting and identification is that they can be easily confused with other receptacles bearing holes on top, but which were created for entirely different purposes. Most common among these are the muffinier, salt cellar, sugar shaker and the pounce pot. How to differentiate? Usually the shape of the object and the number and size of the holes will tell you. Muffiniers, for example, have a rotund form (whereas most hatpin holders are tall and slender), a raised dome and large holes. Most condiment holders have a corked hole at the bottom, while the hatpin holder would not. Pounce pots — which were used to shake a finely ground black sand (or pounce) over ink for blotting purposes — are especially open to confusion, as they have solid bases and several holes in the top. Hatpin holders generally have six to 12 pinholes on top. The clues this time, according to Baker are the barrel shape of pounce pots and the fact that they are too light to remain steady when hatpins are inserted into their outer holes. Also beware of dealers offering pomadours or pomanders as hatpin holders; also covered porcelain dishes with small holes in their covers — they were actually made to hold perfumed soap.

There are some hatpin holders on the market for $50 and under, but choice examples run considerably higher. What follows is a sampling of current prices:

■ 5 1/4-inch Jasperware hatpin holder in lilac, art nouveau, woman's face with elaborate hairstyle, gold trim — $125.

■ Royal Bayreuth Poppy, iridescent — $350.

■ 5 1/4-inch Schaffer & Vater purple bisque with jewels, raised cameo head — $145.

■ Purple Carnival Glass, Grape and Cable — $175.

■ Royal Doulton hand-painted with man on horseback, 4 1/4-inch high, circa 1902-1922 — $95 to $145.

■ 4 1/4-inch unmarked souvenir hatpin holder of pearlized porcelain with commemorative ceramic transfer portrait of King George V, circa 1910 — $75-$95.

■ 6 1/4-inch Crown & Sunburst "R" (S&V mark) wall-hanging bisque hatpin holder with a white cameo, fancy reticulated top — $125-$145.

■ 7 1/4-inch chocolate glass hatpin holder, attributed to Indiana-Greentown or Fenton Glass by Rosenthal, circa 1905 — $295-$350.

New York hat designer bucks new trend

By JOHN POMFRET
Associated Press

NEW YORK — To Marsha Akins, Popeye Doyle is about as cool as they come.

So cool, in fact, that Doyle, the New York City detective who broke the French Connection heroin case, and his scrunched-down porkpie hat set the theme for Ms. Akins' newest line of men's headwear.

Ms. Akins designs hats, and in a time when men's fashion hats have been replaced by baseball caps tout-ing broads, beer and booze, she's one of the bright spots in men's upscale headwear.

For an industry that reached its highwater mark in the 1910s, that's no mean feat.

Fashion haters across the nation sold about 36 million items a year in that decade. Now only several million are sold annually, according to Roy Langenberg, a headwear industry specialist and the owner of Langenberg Hat Co. of Washington, Miss., the oldest hat company in the United States.

Indeed, only 20 percent of the $1 billion spent last year for hats went to the fashion end, he said.

"Fashion hats have become a costume. It's no longer part of your wardrobe," said Jack Hyde, head of the Menswear Design and Marketing Department at New York's Fashion Institute of Technology. "The big kick in the pants came at the end of World War II. All those GIs came home, and none of them wore hats."

"The 1960s further added to the downfall with its focus on long hair. 'Who was going to notice all those golden locks if you hid them under a hat?' Hyde asked.

Americans moved further away from fashion headwear in the 1970s and '80s as the nation's leisure time expanded, Langenberg said.

"Outdoorsmen's hats, backpacking hats, tennis hats — those are the things that sell," Langenberg said. "Fancy hats, fashion hats are a thing of the past."

But Ms. Akins has bucked the trend. Using high-quality goods and classic designs with a modern twist, Ms. Akins has carved a niche in "fashion-forward" wear for the head.

"It's frivolous. Hats are just frivolous," said Ms. Akins. "I used to think, 'How am I going to change the world making hats?' But I'm doing

Ms. Akins started her Makins Hats Co. in September 1974 in a dingy, fourth-floor, walk-up apartment in Manhattan's East 20s, using an unemployment check of $90 as her first investment.

"I'd get up when the quiz shows started on TV, around 10. And when 'Give Us This Day' rolled around at about 6 in the morning, I'd lay down," she said. "But I was young, in my 20s, and when you want something bad you just do it."

Her days were filled with steam, hat blocks, felt and leather. She used her oven to bake the hats and a hock-shop sewing machine to stitch them.

"It was Indian summer when I started. It was 90 degrees outside and 190 inside," she said. "I lost a lot of weight."

After two months of hustling, the orders began coming in. By December of that year, she had her first factory.

Three years later she won a now-defunct COTY American Fashion Critics Award "for injecting excitement into the long-dormant category of men's headwear." In 1983, she won a Cutty Sark Fashion Award for accessory designing.

Her hats are all hand-made, pulled and stretched over a wood block by skilled craftsmen, with each one slightly different than the next.

"I train my employees, try and teach them a craft. We work a lot with ex-convicts and poorer folks. That's where I can have a little effect," said the former political activist and self-described "child of the '60s."

From the little apartment in the East 20s, Makins Hats has grown to a company of 17 employees, with hats featured in Bloomingdale's, Marshall Fields, Nieman Marcus and Bergdorf Goodman, among other retail outlets.

Makins' newest line, a series of about a dozen black hats, takes its inspiration from Popeye Doyle, the after hours club in Harlem in the 1960s and the French "film noir" movement. It evokes an urban melancholy of rain-soaked alleyways and men in dark coats smoking cigarettes under street lamps.

"The future in hats is here," she said, pointing to the collection. "It's not in baseball caps. If hats are going to survive, they've got to evolve."

Hatpins: A reflector of feminine style

Copley News Service

When confronted with the word hatpin, the modern mind is apt to conjure up the image of a simple long pin, topped by an elongated, badly simulated pearl.

Collectors in the field, however, know that the hatpin in its heyday was a vehicle for some of the finest jewelers and other craftsmen of their time, that it represented the major design movement from Victorian to art deco, that it was produced in an enormous variety of materials and that it was a reflector of feminine style in millinery and coiffure, recalling elaborate pompadour and bouffant hairdos, Gainsborough hats, Gibson Girl boaters and flapper cloches.

Hatpins, which were used primarily from 1850 to 1930, took on, in addition to their obvious utilitarian function, a certain symbolic significance as well. Moving from the bonnet, with its restrictive ties under the chin, to the stringless hat, was seen as an evidence of independence, bringing women closer to equality with men. Not to mention the fact that the suffragettes sometimes saw the hatpin as a defensive weapon.

The varied types of hatpins produced suggests a number of collecting subcategories. High on the list are vintage Victorian and Edwardian examples, often quite baroque in feeling, with formal scrolls and filigree work. The art nouveau period also yielded extraordinary examples, created by such renowned masters as Rene Lalique (one of his hatpins is displayed in the Kunstindustrimuseet in Copenhagen) and, in New York, Louis Comfort Tiffany. These were followed by art deco designs in the teens and '20s, reflecting influences from Egyptian art to the new Machine Age.

Other collectors prefer to focus on a particular material: sterling silver, gold (often gem-encrusted), hand-painted porcelain, Carnival glass, ivory or celluloid. One interesting specialty is Japanese Satsuma ware, a hard glazed yellow-beige porcelain featuring finely painted miniatures embellished with tracings of gold.

Another highly collectible type is the Pique work hatpin: tortoiseshell inlaid with designs of gold or silver beading. These are quite rare and can run up to $225 a pair.

Others prefer more figurative types; there was a vogue for sporting subjects, and hatpins in the forms of tennis rackets, golf clubs and footballs can be found, as well as shepherds' crooks, cupids, classical and other heads, animals and insects, flowers and fruit.

The price range for hatpins is quite wide, reflecting, of course, age, condition, rarity and material. In the under-$100 range might be found:

- Purple carnival glass with zigzag pattern — $50.
- 1 1/4-inch celluloid Betty Boop — $35.
- Silver-plated tennis racket — $25.
- Gold shamrock-shaped, with seed pearls — $95.
- Mercury glass, silver, teardrop, 2 inches long, 10-inch shank — $75.
- Romantic scene with rhinestone border, 9 1/4-inch shank — $55.
- Satsuma Geisha girl, 14-inch shank — $25.
- Art nouveau sterling silver woman's head with flowing hair — $35.

DEAR ABBY

Son's daily visit driving mom out of home, mind

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son, 26 years old, married three years, is attending college full time. The college is located near our home. He and his wife live in a small but very nice mobile home. She works. Now the problem: Our son comes to our house every day for lunch, which I have to make. Then he goes back to school for classes, and returns here to lift weights and exercise in our basement. (He hasn't space for his exercise gear in his mobile home.) He plays loud rock music (nerve-wracking to me) while exercising.

He is a sensitive and well-meaning person, and he would be hurt if he knew how much I resent this daily intrusion on my privacy.

Abby, each day I fix his lunch, give him a hug, then go "somewhere" just to get away from all that racket. I feel as though I'm being driven out of my own home. My husband says if we say anything to him, he'll be hurt, but close friends say I'm foolish for putting up with it. What do you say? — IMPOSED UPON

DEAR IMPOSED: I say tell your son you love him, but his daily routine — lunching and exercising to loud music in your home — is more than you can handle. The alternative is to keep quiet and let your resentment grow and fester, which in my view would be a sorry choice.

DEAR ABBY: While standing on a corner in downtown St. Paul one afternoon, I saw a man in a brown car. He was the best-looking man I have ever seen. I don't know what came over me, but I smiled at him, and when he smiled back at me I thought I was going to faint! I got on the bus thinking I would never see this man again, but I was wrong. I saw him five days later in a shopping mall. This time he was not alone and neither was I. We looked at each other. He didn't smile this time, but I know he remembered me. I cannot get this man's face out of my mind. He is the image of the man I have always dreamed I would marry.

Abby, do you believe in love at first sight? — HAUNTED IN MINNESOTA

DEAR HAUNTED: No. But I believe in physical attraction at first sight. You were bowled over by the appearance of this man because he fit the physical description of your preconceived dream man. If to you "physical attraction" means "falling in love," then you have indeed fallen in love.

DEAR ABBY: My lady and I were introduced last year by mutual friends, and our relationship has grown to where we are seriously discussing marriage.

While we both appear to be in above-average physical condition, due to our respective ages, plus the fact that both of us have lost our spouses to cancer, the suggestion that we have complete physicals appeared to be in order. Both her doctor and mine concluded that we would probably be around for some time to come.

I am in my 60s, she is in her 70s, and that is her only concern impeding a total commitment on her part. My view is that even if we were to receive a revelation that one of us would be gone in five years, I would rather spend those years with her in loving marriage than to remain apart. Neither of us would consider a "live-in" arrangement.

Your views would be appreciated. — YOUNG AT HEART IN PASADENA

DEAR YOUNG: If you need someone to say "Go for it," you've written to the right person. All good wishes, and do not waste another precious day.

(For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.)

AT WIT'S END

Americans enjoy parties celebrating all occasions

By ERMA BOMBECK

Americans are notoriously party animals.

They celebrate everything with a party. Not just sentimental anniversaries, designated holidays and festive occasions, but disasters. When prophets predicted a Revolutionary War approaching, party-revelers threw a "theme" party in the Boston Harbor. (BYOTB: Bring Your Own Tea Bag.)

And there was nothing that got everyone into town in a gala mood more than a necktie party in the Old West. (Bring a covered dish. String tie optional.)

Americans can dance around a cracked Liberty Bell for a couple of hundred years, celebrate the invention of the telephone while Mr. Watson sits there with acid burning through his trousers, and have a run on T-shirts proclaiming, "I SURVIVED THREE-MILE ISLAND."

Few disasters have escaped the optimism of the American people with the exception of April 15 — the day when we file our income tax returns. To my knowledge, no one has laughed on this day since the 16th Amendment was ratified in 1913. Last year on the 11 o'clock news on April 15, I watched a group of party-people gathered around a mailbox at the downtown post office. They were waving the American flag in one hand, their tax return in the other and removing a cork from a bottle in their teeth. I've heard Lincoln jokes about the Ford Theater and the woman on the Titanic who screamed, "I knew I should have had the dessert," but this was really sick.

Some carried bagsful of nickels and dimes to pay the government what they owed. Most were dressed in raggy shirts and barrels.

I forgot about it until a couple of weeks ago when my husband, the jogger, received an official entry form for a 1040K run. The entry blank was a replica of a tax return and labeled "U.S. Individual Income Tax Run." There was a long run of 6.2 miles and a short form of a 1-mile fun run.

The directions were written in taxese: "You must mail this form with your check prior to 4/15/87 and on line 5 deduct $1 for each member of family or three or more registering at the same time before 4/15/87. Be sure to note that on line 7 is a contribution to benefit scholarship fund of CPA's and to record contribution, add to total. Map of running course provided on request or keep going until you get to Switzerland."

I'm not an astute observer of humor, but I think something is going on here. A groundswell, so to speak. Maybe we are still chips off the old H & R Block of the party animals at Boston.

If this is true, parties like this usually precede a major revolution. What do you wear to a revolution?
