At the first meeting Monday, those in attendance will decide upon what evening they wish the class to be held and various other matters of importance.

"BEN HUR" IS A GREAT PICTURE

IS TRUE PICTURIZATION OF IMMORTAL STORY OF LOVE AND ROMANCE

The magnificent plot, fine characterization and beautiful love story are among the outstanding reasons why "Ben-Hur" has gripped the imagination of America for fifty years. In the motion picture coming to the American Theatre on next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 22-23-24, the splendid portrayals of Ben-Hur by Ramon Novarro, Esther by May McAvoy, Mother of Hur by Claire McDowell, and Tirzah by Kathleen Key, add to the effect and enhance the romance. These players live the romantic side of the story, which is just as engrossing as the sea battle or even the chariot race.

Miss McAvoy is a charming Esther, daughter of the Merchant of Antioch, who secretly has saved the Hur fortune for the young heir, and Ramon Novarro in the Ben-Hur role is handsome, valiant, marked by sincerity, depth and range of feeling.

Perhaps the deepest note is struck after Ben-Hur and Esther set out to find his lost kin, who have been immured in a forgotten Roman dungeon and, unknown to him finally released as outcasts. Mother and Tirzah find the youthful Ben-Hur asleep on a bench outside the disused Palace of Hur. The sister kisses his shoe but the mother does not dare to touch him. Silently they go away to save him from the ruin which is theirs.

There are few dry eyes during the enactment of this scene. But sorrow is turned to joy after Esther discovers the outcasts in the Vale of Hinnom, takes them to the Divine Healer, Whose benediction cures them, and the happy four are reunited.

ROGERS SHIPS IN 2400 EWES

UNLOADED AT FARNSWORTH STOCK YARDS FOR DISTRIBUTION TO THE SHEEP MEN

Twenty-four hundred high grade yearling ewes were unloaded at Farnsworth last week for distribution to the sheep raisers by E. W. Rogers from some of the best blooded flocks in New Mexico and Colorado.

A large number of these ewes went to the Rogers ranch.They are all extra good breeding and are the type best suited, in Mr. Rogers' opinion, for the sheep business in this country. E. W. Rogers and his associates and neighbors in the Farnsworth community have made a pronounced success of the sheep industry. In fact, through their efforts and success, they have put Farnsworth on the map as the leading sheep town in the Panhandle. And at the same time, they have made a good profit for themselves. More power to them and may more of our farmers see the light and start in with a small flock of sheep.

CONTRACT FOR PLUMBING, HEATING AND WIRING TO LOCAL MEN

CONSTRUCTION WORK WILL START AT ONCE; EXPECT NEW BUILDING TO BE READY FOR OCCUPANCY BY NOVEMBER FIFTEENTH OR SOONER

The contract for the erection of Ochiltree County's new $100,000.00 courthouse was let by the Commissioners at their meeting on last Thursday to Corlett and Welchons of Hutchinson, Kansas. Their contract calls for everything but the heating and plumbing, electrical wiring and furniture and fixtures. The amount of this, the general contract, was $80,217.00.

Corlett and Welchons are good, reliable contractors and the awarding of the general contract to them meets with the approval of many people here. They are the firm that built the new high school building here in Perryton and the fact that they pleased the people with that job contributed to their landing of the new courthouse. Sixteen bids were submitted on the general contract, two of them being lower than Corlett and Welchons'. The bids ranged from $72,500 to $88,980.

Howard Holt of this city was awarded the contract for the installation of all plumbing and heating. His contract amounted to $3,578.00. Eight bids were submitted for this part of the work, all but one of them being higher than Mr. Holt's. The county is assured of a good job for Mr. Holt is one of the best steam fitters and plumbers in this section of the country. He has had a large and varied experience and has done considerable work on jobs of this nature. He is a home man and is entitled to the work.

J. H. Stansberry, propreitor of the Stansberry Electric Co., of this city, was the low bidder on the electrical wiring and fixture work. His contract calls for $3,000.00. Eight bids were submitted for this work. Mr. Stansberry is an expert electrician and is well equiped to carry out his contract.

George Corlett will be here personally to superintend the general contract. He expects to be here the latter part of the week and will start the excavating work at once. The building should be completed and ready for occupancy by November 15.

IMPLEMENT DEALERS MUST GET AD COPY IN EARLY NEXT WEEK

The Herald is requesting the many implement dealers in Perryton to prepare their advertising copy for the special "Better Farm Equipment" section of the Herald next week, and have it ready for the Herald representative when he calls this week end.

By getting copy in early the advertiser is assured better position, typography, and a more pleasing and better displayed advertisement. In addition, it will greatly ficilitate matters at this office by preventing a last rush.

PREPARING IMPLEMENT DISPLAY

Farmers of the Perryton trade territory will have the opportunity next Friday and Saturday, March 23 and 24, of viewing one of the largest displays of farm machinery ever exhibited in the Panhandle section.

All of the Perryton machinery and implement dealers are cooperating in this display which will include tractors, combines, and plows of various makes. This great machinery exhibition will be held in Perryton on the above dates on a lot located near the heart of the business district.

Sixteen implement manufacturers are represented in Perryton all of which will have new combines, tractors, and other equipment on display. They are the John Deere, International, J. I. Case, Holt, Advance-Rumely, Emerson-Braningham, Angell, Sanders implements, Allis-Chalmers, Rock Island implements, Caterpillar tractors, Hart-Parr, Minneapolis line, Red River special, Baldwin combines, and Fordson tractors.

CHAPTER XXII GONE!

Nothing further happened now until shortly after sunrise the next morning.

Then Burton, who had fallen into an uneasy slumber after some hours of futile watching to see that dear Larry did not die of an overdose without her knowing it, awoke and aroused him.

"What is it, dear?" he cried. "What are you doing here?"

Her story did not take long in telling.

The narrative finished, he rose to his feet, fumbled in his pack, drew forth a revolver and holster, which he strapped to his belt.

"What are you going to do?" she asked anxiously.

"I'm going to follow the car."

"You can't hope to catch it afoot!"

"The chance is very slim," he acknowledged, "but it's the only chance, and it should be taken. Luck might play with us. The car might get stalled. Who knows? And in any case I've got to get on the wires to the lawyers right away.

He was methodically bestowing small necessaries in a rucksack.

"Please have Simmins take care of my other things," he requested. "Goodby, dear."

He opened his arms and she crept into them. They clung together for a moment.

"Be careful," she begged." You must come back to me. Don't—don't be rash, will you?"

He laughed.

"You mean the gun? No; I'm not going forth to slay. That's just in the remote case I need a convincing argument. This is a lawyer game now, and a game of get there first."

He kissed her again and strode away.

"Come back to me soon!" she called after him. "The soonest ever!" he cried back.

After his departure Burton, whose education had been coming on, made herself some coffee. About two hours later Simmins appeared, very apologetic over his tardiness.

The absence of the little car Burton had expected; but she was at first puzzled to hear that the extra cooking utensils had disappeared; as also a small quantity of provisions.

The she realized that her father was hiding out, and Burton had a shrewed suspicion that he would continue hiding out. Even a pirate chief, if not tender feeling, at least love of mental ease, and Burton realized that even this stern parent might be just as well satisfied if he did not have to face his child while things were too fresh in mind!

Simmins report that Grimstead's fishing tackle had been taken confirmed her opinion.

"You and I will probably have to wait here some days," she said, and told him what had occurred.

Shortly after noon they were astonished to see Davenport returning. Burton ran to meet him with a cry of mingled gladness and curiosity.

He replied curtly. His eye was savage, his lips compressed. She looked at him and then fell silent. As they entered camp she made an imperative gesture to Simmins of warning that he would not speak.

Larry strode to the fireside and threw down the rucksack with a slam, then turned to Burton.

"I followed the car for six or eight miles to the place the road crossed the Deep Barranca on a trestle. Part of the trestle had been carried out by the flood. Gardiner had driven the car off into the abyss."

"Killed?" cried Burton, horrified.

"Gone; swept away, disappeared completely. The stream is wide and swift and fast. I climbed down, of course, but no trace whatever remained except one seat cushion that had been thrown clear. I followed down the stream on the chance that the car might have stranded; but in that force of water it probably broke to pieces almost at once. It was of very light construction."

"What a tragedy!" cried Burton. "Poor Ross Gardiner!"

Davenport shut his lips grimly and let this pass. After a decent moment or so Burton ventured a comment.

"But there is this to say: The agreement is gone, the whole scheme headed off. You can build another battery!"

"That's just it!" cried Davenport. "I'm not sure I can do anything of the sort. All my notebooks of formulae were in that car, every scrap of paper I had in the world that had anything to do with this."

"You can copy your other battery," she pointed out.

"Oh! the first was crude. It was dismantled long ago."

"You will work it out again," she comforted. "It may be a slow task, but you'll get it."

He looked at her with something like fright in his eyes.

"I do not know!" he almost whispered. "I thought that at first, and I did not really care very much. But then all at once when I sat down to think about it I discovered that I had not one shred of memory of how to make a start at it. It's gone."

"Why, Larry!" she cried. "I hardly know you. It isn't like you to be discouraged. What does it matter if it does take time? You'll get it."

He shook his head.

"No, I'm not a quitter," he disclaimed. "I know it sounds like it. But this has become a certainty to me. It has come to me in the same way that all these other things have come to me. Perhaps it is the last of these beautiful certainties from the current of wisdom. It was given to me, and now I feel that it has been taken away. I never was more sure of anything in my life."

She stared at him, aghast.

"Such things connot happen!" she cried, all aflame.

He shook his head. In his uplifted face was no discouragement, only the sorrow of regret.

CHAPTER XXIV
Simmins Writes a Note

Unnoticed, a lank figure had crossed the meadow from the road and appeared among them.

"Hullo, folks," said he, casting a curious eye about him. "Campin' for fun, or get stuck yere by the storm?"

"Caught by the storm," replied Burton.

"I'm the stake driver between Eureka and Tecolote," he volunteered, "but I don't see no way of gettin' through now.That there redwood tree's got the road blocked for keeps. Say, she must have made some crash when she came down!"

"She did," replied Burton. An idea was forming in her brain. "Are you going back to Eureka?" she inquired

"Sure. Only place to go."

"Have you got room for two?"

"I got only the United States mails aboard. What's the idea?"

"Our car is broken," she explained rapidly. "If you will wait 10 minutes, we'll be ready."

"Lots of time," rejoined the stage driver, and sauntered over to engage the excellent Simmins.

"It is the only thing!" She urged Larry as soon as the other was out of hearing. "Can't you see it? We cannot stay here. Don't you see it?" she implored.

"I want to get out before he gets back," replied Larry bluntly. "You're right; I'll go."

"I'm going with you," she said steadily.

"What! You cannot do that!"

"You are going to need me; I know," she insisted, "it is part of my wisdom, as you call it."

The hunted, hurt look in his face softened.

"Come," he cried, almost exultantly. "There must be people who marry people up here! The world and its power and its troubles can go hang!"

"All aboard!" called Davenport to the stage driver. "Ready when you are."

"Simmins," ordered Burton "you take care of things. We will send some one out from a garage."

But Simmins, at the thought of being left alone with a marooned and exasperated Pirate Chief, lost all his pose and poise and became thoroughhuman.

"Oh, Miss Burton!" he cried. "Don't leave me here all alone!"

"Afraid of the woods, Simmins?" asked Larry mischievously.

"Yes, sir" rejoined Simmins, "I am afraid of the woods; and I am afraid of Mr. Gristead."

Larry glanced at Burton, who nodded.

"All right; come along," he agreed.

He produced a pad and pencil and wrote thereon.

"I don't want to pry; but if that note is to Grimstead—" suggested Davenport.

"It is only my resignation, sir," replied Simmins.

"You are right," said Davenport. "What would you consider the proper procedure for a young lady eloping. Should she also leave some sort of written communication?"

"I took the liberty of explaining in my note that I was leaving to enter your service, sir, and that of Miss Burton; and that it is intended to send a garage man immediately," answered Simmins.

"You relieve my mind, Simmins,' murmured Larry, and hastened to join Burton and the stage driver. She looked at him with pleased surprise.

"Good!" she cried. "Your'e more like yourself!"

"It's Simmins!" Larry exploded with suppressed laughter. "He's a joy and a jewel and he's untwisted me from all my knots. Dear, never must we lose Simmins! We'll pawn the family jewels before we let him go."

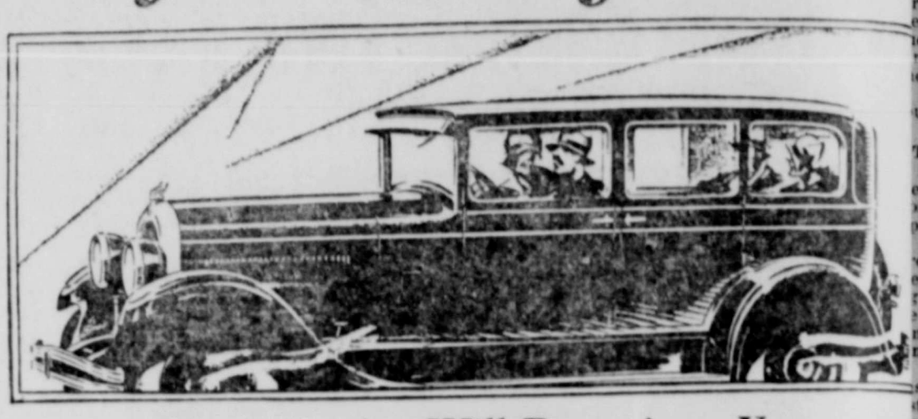

Ten minutes later Grimstead, who had heard the racket made when the long vehicle backed and filled in turning around, came curiously to see what was happening. He found himself alone with the wrecks he had made.

POULTRY FACTS

GROUND WHEAT IS GOOD FOR LAYERS

Poultrymen with home-grown wheat can often use ground wheat in the laying mash with good results. It saves buying both bran and middlings. The best results come from substituting 150 pounds of ground wheat and 50 pounds of bran for the 100 pounds of bran, plus 100 pounds of middlings. A good home-grown laying mash can be made of 100 pounds of ground corn, 100 pounds of ground oats, 100 pounds of ground wheat, 50 pounds of bran, and 100 pounds of meat scrap.

When plenty of skim milk or buttermilk is available, the amount of meat scrap in the mash can be reduced one-half. In that way the farmer raising wheat, corn, oats and milk, can make up 500 pounds of laying mash by purchasing 50 pounds of meat scrap and 50 pounds of bran.

The home-grown mash is greatly improved by adding minerals in the form of 2 per cent ground limestone, 2 per cent bone meal, and 1 per cent fine table salt. The use of minerals tends to improve the strength and quality of the egg shells, thus avoiding the egg-eating habit in the flock, as well as the production of soft-shelled eggs. Some poultrymen believe that more minerals and less meat scrap will have the tendency in making egg mashes within a few years. Their cost per pound is so small, considering their value, that they should not be omitted from the home-made mashes.

Blindness in Ducks Is Blamed on Impure Water

When ducks have access to a lake, pond or river, there are no cases of sore, festering eyes, which later may develop into blindness. The birds dip their heads deep into the water and the eyes are cleansed of any dirt or sticky feed that has gathered to them.

Ducks without a natural supply of water should be given their drinking water in deep dishes or pans so that they can rinse out their eyes whenever they drink. This also tends to rinse the nostrils and prevents the clogging with mucus which is serious if the bird catches cold about the same time. Ducklings sometimes have colds which cause a sticky discharge in the eyes. The mucus can be absorbed with small wads of tissue paper and the eyes washed with witch hazel or boric acid solution. Deep drinking dishes will help the ducks to take care of its eyes and nostrils and probably prevent the necessity of treatment.

Soft-Shelled Eggs Are Caused by Wrong Feed

Probably one of the most annoying things in the poultry business is the frequent laying of soft-shelled eggs by a group of hens, or even by one hen. It is a sign that something is unprofitably and radically wrong with the hens—something that should be righted immediately. And as for the eggs themselves, they are perfectly useless and merely represent a loss in good feed.

Nine cases out of ten a hen lays soft-shelled eggs because there is a lack of lime in her diet. Shell mineral is really pure egg-shell material. Therefore, its absence from the diet results in either soft-shelled eggs or eggs with no shell at all. Of course, calcium carbonate is generally present in the food and water given to the hen, but there is seldom enough to satisfy her needs.

POULTRY NOTES

The feeding of milk will help in the size and quality of egg.

Eggs should never be washed—washing spoils their keeping qualities.

Poultry meat has never been so low in price as to be unprofitable. Cull your flocks closely and cash in. Quit feeding the nonproducers.

Late molting hens are the laying hens and they should be saved from the market to be used as breeders.

Electric lights may be used to advantage. A warm moist mash fed in the evening, especially in cold weather, may prove beneficial.

Poultry keepers who have used the all-mash method of feeding chicks and growing pullets may continue the method for laying pullets.

If chickens begin eating their eggs it is usually because they need starch. Purchase bulk laundry starch and put it in a dish in the coop.

One of the advantages of the shed roof type of poultry house is that it is easier to keep warm. Any room with a high ceiling is likely to be drafty.

Tankage or sour milk must be fed if eggs are to be produced in satisfactory quantities. Too many hens are not laying simply because the farmer will not help them lay.

Some hens do not eat enough oyster shell. The 2 per cent limestone helps to prevent soft-shelled eggs and the leg weakness which sometimes bothers hens in the spring.

$80,000 For His Discovery

Formula for Stomach Medicine Brings Large Sum

This is G. M. Gordon, widely known Dallas, Texas, pharmacist, who spent twenty years developing "Gordon's," an Internal Antiseptic for the stomach and bowels, for which he received $80,000 for the rights to the secret process of compounding.

"The greatest obstacle to the successful treatment of stomach troubles," said Mr. Gordon, "was fermentation (souring of food matter in the stomach and bowels), which inflames and irritates these organs and produces gas that causes much distress. Fermentation can be stopped only with an antiseptic."

"Gordon's" goes right to the seat of the trouble, as it exercises a distinctly antiseptic as well as a digestive effect. It stops and prevents fermentation, soothes and heals any irritated or inflamed condition and will bring quick relief in cases of gas, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating after meals, excess acid, bad breath, constipation, sick headache, nervousness, when caused by faulty digestion, tone up the digestive organs and stimulate the stomach and bowels to their normal functions. A few doses will convince you. Sold by good druggists, $1.50 per bottle of sixty-four doses—less than three cents a dose.

HOW TO LEARN

By Dr. Frank Crane

A school-teacher in one of Dickens' stories has a pupil study the spelling of botany and then go out and work in the garden.

Thus the spelling is impressed upon his mind.

He wasn't much of a shool-teacher, but his idea was sound.

The best way to learn is to learn from doing.

All knowledge is conducted with life. The way to learn a language is connect every word with something you actually do or see. In other words, language is to be connected with life and not with literature.

There was a meeting the other day held in one of our cities to discuss the enabling of students to earn while learning. Representatives of forty-two States of the Union and one from Canada were present. Nicholas Ricciardi, President of the National Association of Vocational Education, said:

"Under the present system, students are taught various vocations, from watchmaking to hair dressing during their high school terms. When they graduate from high school they are ready to hold a position. In junior college they are permitted to work at remunerative employment during the mornings and attend classes during the afternoon. They can continue their education on through college, and then their earning power will be sufficient to pay their expenses and enable them actually to save money."

This plan is already actually carried out at Antioch, a small college town in Ohio, where the business men cooperate with the college and the student works part of the time and studies part of the time. Thus while at Princeton the average yearly outlay for a son is estimated at $1,500, while at Antioch the average freshman needs only $400 besides his earnings.

The vocational aims of students include, agriculture, architecture, art, business, engineering, medicine, economics, law, etc.

The average weekly wage while pursuing these courses is $22 in the freshman year and $35 in the senior year. They complete the Antioch course in five years.

Thus the student has already learned the most important thing of all in an education, that is, how to take care of himself.

When a man works his way through college he appreciates what education he gets, just as a horse is healthy because he has to walk after every mouthful he eats.

Business men in every community ought to cooperate with the schools in assisting boys and girls to get a practical education.

GET OKEH OF HIGHWAY COMMISSION BEFORE VOTING PAVED ROAD BONDS

The State Highway Commission suggests that any county contemplating a bond issue for the purpose of building hard surface roads, shall first take the matter up with the state highway department and get their approval of the route and the type of road before calling the election.

In view of the great number of bond issues already voted and the relation of available state funds to desirable road projects, the commission at this time discourages the voting of bond issues involving state highways, unless the above procedure has been carried out.

REPORT YOUR CHILDREN FOR SCHOLASTIC CENSUS

March is the month for taking the scholastic census and every name should be counted in order that the district may receive as much money from the state as possible. If your children have not been enumerated, you are asked to call W. B. Irvin and report the same.

If there are other families who have been missed and who have scholastics in their homes, please report therm also. You will be rendering a worthwhile service to the school and community by helping in this matter.

Be sure to see that your own children are enumerated.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla. E. R. CULLINGS, ADVERTISING MANAGER OF THE SCHENECTADY (N. Y.) UNION STAR, SAYS:

That the geographical extent of your community is circumscribed almost precisely by extent to which news and happenings of the territory covered have a common interest. With your newspaper ever reaching out and interesting folks in a constantly increasing radius, these additional families are becoming interested in what is happening in any portion of the territory covered, but particularly in the central point.

Shrewed merchants are quick to appreciate this fact as is shown by the record 1927 gains in volume of business by keen managers of department and chain stores. Intelligent and persistent advertising has aided these stores in adding new customers and making their high sales records. To have goods on the shelves is not enough, the progressive merchant must tell his world about them, and he depends more and more on his newspaper to not only reach his logical market but to add to it from month to month and year to year.

YOUR NEWSPAPER AND YOUR ADVERTISING STORE ARE PERFORMING A PUBLIC SERVICE FOR YOUR COMMUNITY BY ENLARGING ITS MARKET THROUGH INTERESTING NEW FOLKS IN THE THINGS IN WHICH THEY HAVE A VITAL INTEREST.

LABOR SAVING MACHINES EMPLOYMENT FOR ALL.
THOMAS EDISON A YOUNG MAN.
17,000 YEARS FROM STONE AGE.

"If a drop of salt water could talk it would tell the whole story of the Pacific."

One Santa Fe freight train going through the Kansas City yards to Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas grain fields told the story of progress and prosperity in this country and promised a solution of its labor problem, aggravated by immigration restrictions.

That train of thirty-one cars carried $250,000 worth of "Combine Harvesters" and will soon be followed by a thousand carloads of those labor-saving machines. They cut grain, thresh it, pile up the straw, delivering the grain in sacks or by spout to miniature grain elevators. In Kansas last year they saved the work of 40,000 men.

Employment conditions are not satisfactory in New York State and Governor Smith instructs public officials to help "take up the slack" by putting men to work on public enterprises.

That should be, automatically, part of National and State programmes.

A farmer finds something for his farm hands and his own hands to do in winter, when the crops are in. A good farmer keeps his horses at work, earning their keep in Winter, hauling wood or otherwise.

National and State governments, all needing roads, canals, drainage, all sorts of improvements, should find work for everybody willing to work and at decent pay.

Thomas A. Edison says he is really 162 years old, because he has done two days' work every day of his eighty-one years.

He did ten thousand years' work when he changed man's lighting system from kerosene to electricity. His habit of working two days in one accounts for the fact that mentally he is forty, not eighty-one.

An active mind stays young in man or woman.

Women grow old prematurely because badly organized civilization gives them nothing to do except talk and dress when their children are grown.

Eskimos, within reach of civilization, sell their valuable furs to white traders and wear coats of leather and cheap, ready-made suits. They can sympathize with some farmers that sell cream and butter to cities and eat oleomargarine.

"Flaming youth," dancing, drinking or shooting worries other countries also. Lawyers from Japan, France and Britain are watching a Berlin murder trial. Hans Krantz, aged nineteen, helped his younger friend, Scheller, and Scheller's sister, Hildegard, to pass an evening pleasantly with dancing, tobacco and much drink. Hildegard, only sixteen, smuggled a friend, Otto Stephan, into her bedroom, and Hans, attached to Hildegard, told the girls brother he ought to kill Stephan. He did it, then killed himself.

The question is, did Krantz commit murder when he told his friend, "Avenge your sister's honor by killing the man"?

Americans talk today of many things—prosperity, politics, assorted crimes, sports.

News that will interest future generations is the fact that actual moving pictures of human beings were sent through ether, without wires, across the Atlantic Ocean.

Human beings actually saw each other separated by three thousand miles of water.

If that is done by a race only 17,000 years from the Stone Age, who can doubt that a million years hence our race will see pictures, coming through the ether, of life on other planets.

Mr. Bonfils, through his Denver Post, tells the world he wants "every family in the United States to own a home, automobile and radio," because "this would tremendously increase the happiness and prosperity of all our people."

It would have seemed preposterous in Rome to suggest that anybody but the Emperor and a few of the great should own a bathtub. There was serious protest against installing the first bathtub in the White House, on the ground that it was not democratic. The Bonfils trinity of comfort—home, automoblie and radio—for every family will be realized, plus freedom from worry in old age, more important than the other three.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, it has pleased our supreme Master to call our worthy brother, William D. Myers, from labor here to rest in the Celestial Lodge on high, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we acknowledge the wisdom and goodness of our Supreme Grand Master, and bow in humble submission to the inevitable edict from the Supreme Grand East; yet we mourn the death of our brother as of one whom we shall never meet at the alter of Masonry until we gain admission to the grand Lodge above, where he has preceded us; and we deplore his loss to the fraternity, to his family and friends, and to the community in which he lived. He was a just and upright Mason, a kind husband and father, an honorable and useful citizen, a sincere friend, a courteous and obliging neighbor, a man who endeavored to perform every duty—to his country, his family, his lodge, his neighbors and himself—honestly, faithfully and well.

Resolved—That in token of our sincere friendship and sympathy in the dark hour of this great affliction, and as a pledge of our fidelity to the memory of our deceased brother, we extend to the bereaved widow and the son and daughter and other surviving relatives, the fraternal right hand of Free and Accepted Masonry; and with it the assurance that the Great Light, given of God to man, will guide them and us safely to their spiritual building, eternal in the heavens, where their loved ones now dwell, where the broken circle shall be reunited never again to be parted, and where they shall dwell together in peaceful happiness forever and ever.

Resolved—That these resolutions be recorded on the minutes of the lodge, and that the secretary deliver a copy hereof, properly engrossed, to the widow and family of the deceased.

How Policeman Came by Nickname "Copper"

After a century or so of suppression in London the story has leaked out—how a policeman came to be called a "copper" or "cop."

"Twas evening, ah, bitter chill it was, and the policeman was courting a cook. He was devouring a feast of pie and ogling his buxom darling when her mistress was heard approaching. "'Ide! 'ide!" was her smothered cry of dismay. He hid in the only refuge he could see—the huge copper laundry vat. Alas! It seemed the mistress had come to order the fire lighted beneath that very vat, that she might have some hot water. Forced to comply, the cook soon saw her brave lover leap out and with one tense backward look of reproach, vanish into the night.

Ages ago that lover fled into the storm, but still the ghost of his scared romance follows him and he must answer to the name of "copper."

Big Handicap

The woman was playing golf one fair day, and, although her score was assuming alarming proportions, her enjoyment of the sunny weather and the invigorating exercise kept her from becoming quite too downcast.

"Well," she confided to her companion, as she trudged off into the rough after a particularly poor drive, "I understand there's a woman at the club who has a handicap of 80. I shall have to look her up."

This remark seemed to make a profound impression on the caddy, who, against all regulations, contributed his ideas on the subject.

"Holy smoke!" he cried, "she must play in de tousands!"—New York Sun.

Magisterial Wisdom

When called upon recently to settle a quarrel between two Jewish women, a London magistrate handed a copy of the Bible to the official interpreter, saying: "Take these women out of court and read them the One Hundred Thirty-third Psalm. One of the women has only a limited knowledge of English. Translate it for her into Yiddish." Later, the interpreter returned to court and reported that the magistrate's scheme had been entirely successful. The first sentence of the psalm reads: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

The Cynical Flounder

Wisdom may not be in the depths, but enough things are there to keep wise men thinking deeply, and millions of men at work, preparing potash and ammonia; drying sea weeds, to use among other things for decoration, on the Japanese New Year, as an American uses holly on his. We think of paper made from kelp and of mattresses stuffed with eel grass. Of glue and of Irish moss, "used as an ingredient in kalsomines, shoe stains, shaving soaps and cosmetics," according to Dr. Donald K. Tressler, authority on such things.

ANGELL

"One Way" Disc Plow

Another Carload of Angell One Way Disc Plows Just Received

The Angell One Way Disc, plows a swath 6 to 10 feet wide and 2 to 6 inches deep. It moves the soil all one way, leaving the ground level for the harvester. The draft is so light that a 15-30 tractor can pull the 10 foot plow.

The Angell thoroughly pulverizes all the soil because the discs are set close together. It is ideal for summer fallowing—killing all the weeds without going too deep.

It is also used immediately after harvester to start weeds and volunteer wheat, then later used to kill this growth.

Jesus Teaches Sincerity

Text: Mark 7:1-23

None are so despicable in the eyes of God as those who paint piety on the outsde when there's nothing real inside. Over against the Pharisaic traditions requiring strict abedience in the matter of outward ceremonies, our Lord put the need of inward purity.

Ceremonies are valuable when they are the fruit of a consecrated heart. But no perfection of exterior service can make up for the want of the life of God in the soul. Jesus had no use for ceremonial observances that were not the result of inward love.

Certain Pharisees and scribes "came down from Jerusalem" to look over the new religious sect. Seeing some of Jesus' disciples eat bread with "defiled hands,, they found fault" (v. 2). Usually those who are so clever in picking faults in others, have plenty of their own that it would not require a magnifying glass to discover.

These Pharisees, we are told, were sticklers for "the tradition of the elders" and would never eat without repeatedly washing their hands (v. 3). The Jews had built up many traditions around the Mosaic law. These were simply commentaries by some of their elders, and were looked upon as inspired interpretations. Jesus denounced their so-called inspired commentaries and doubtless would take the same course with many books today whose authors claim that their teachings are essential to the understanding of the Scriptures.

The Rabbis has added to the simple distinctions of the law, between clean and unclean foods, endless rites (v. 4) "Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders," they asked Jesus, "for they eat bread with unwashen hands." It was not that they were strong on hygiene; it was violation of outward ceremony that aroused their ire.

Our Lord answered them with a quotation from their own Scriptures. "This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." These words, declared Jesus, Isaiah wrote of YOU—"you hypocrites" (v. 6).

A clever London painter once exhibited a piece representing a worshiper. Viewed at a distance, he seemed to be in a praying attitude. Hands were clasped, eyes uplifted, a book was before him. But at close range the book turned out to be a bowl, and between his upturned hands was a lemon from which he was squeezing the juice. What a representation of a hypocrite!

"In vain do they worship me", said the Master, "teaching for doctrines the commandments of men" (v. 7). These complainers had specified an instance in which tradition had been violated by His disciples. He turns the tables and shows them how they were continually nullifying "the commandment of God" (vs. 8-9).

"Moses said, Honor thy father and thy mother and, Whoso curseth father or mother, let him die the death" (v. 10). The law made the obligation of child to parent imperative. What did these Pharisees and Scribes do? They took a traditional interpretation which gave a wilful child a way of escape, and under a religious garb.

"Ye say, If a man shall say to his father or mother, It is Corban, that is to say, a gift (I have devoted all my property to God), by whatsoever thou mightest be profited by me (whatever it is which you would receive from me); he shall be free" (v. 11). In other words, to evade the obligation of caring for aged parents, it was only necessary to say: "I have consecrated all my possessions to the temple." It was possible thus to dedicate one's property, retaining the use of it during life. This was a fair sample of their methods of interpretation.

"You make the word of God of none effect through your traditions," said Jesus (v. 13). There are those claiming to be expounders today, who manage to get around the teachings of Christ and the apostles, in much the same way.

"Hearken unto me, every one of you!" Imagine the jolt that such words would give to these stiff religionists. We are reminded of the words that came from the open heavens when Jesus was upon the Transfiguration Mount: "Hear ye Him." No matter how noted a man you've been listening to, you need to hearken unto Him. Submit many popular interpretations to a careful, personal test of the words of Christ and they'll melt into nothing. Have a care about taking all your Bible knowledge in capsule form, prepared by some "great man."

Now comes a heart-searching lesson, not only for Scribes and Pharisees, but for every one who makes a profession of acceptance of the Scriptures. "There is nothing from without a man, that entering into him (his body) can defile him" (v. 15). That which goes into the mouth is not what defiles in God's sight.

It is that which is made a part of chararter, and comes out of him. The internal translates itself into the external. Not only is corruption of heart made worse by passing into action—for the senses of shame and fear are weakened and the will confirmed in evil—but others also are defiled.

"If any man have ears to hear let him hear it" (v. 16). A great many, like the Pharisees, prefer the external in religion. Why? Because it has to do with the senses and one may fool his own heart with it. Others see his show of religion, and he gets glory to himself with it. It's easier than walking with God. The flesh is ever seeking something easy on self. It's the devil's lullaby, sending hundreds religiously to perdition.

Jesus proceeded to give a detailed explanation of his assertion. He shows that the thought-life is the real fountain of pollution, and out of it proceeds the whole list of evil actions—"adultry, fornication, murder, thefts, covetousness, wickedness, deceit, lasciviousness, evil eye, blasphemy, pride, foolishness" (v. 21-22).

What do ceremonies amount to in the sight of God, when thoughts so rotten that one would not dare mention them to his nearest friend, fill the mind? Does God take no notice of such a condition? If He judges us by what we would do if we could, by what we wish for, think about, delight in—then some people are not so religious, after all. We think we are safe. We intend to keep this evil confined to the thought life. Before we know it, a sudden impluse takes us. The thing is enacted. The world stands by and says—"Hypocrite!"

Examine the evil things in this list. What an abyss of defilement! Yet many who are counted religious have it within them. What can be done with such a heart? It is not in a man's own power to change it. It is a superhuman work. "The blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, cleanseth from all sin." Look to Calvary and you'll see the curse of sin taken away. Yield to the Holy Spirit who stands ready to bring your thoughts into captivity to Christ. Let your mind be stored with His Holy Word, your heart filled with spiritual songs, your life busied with definite service for Him. Nothing else works.

Pith and Point

It is no use putting fine paint on rotten posts.

The formalist is like a looking-glass that represents a face that is not in it.

None are such critics of small faults as those who are guilty of grave ones (v. 2.)

God cares more for a blood-washed heart than for water-washed hands (v. 5).

There's many a religious ostrich—swallows anything that's tossed to him by some self-styled expounder (v. 14).

The real source of spiritual pollution is the spirit of a man when not controlled by the Holy Spirit (v. 15).

Evil thought is the beginning and source of all iniquities—the dress rehearsal for the show that is almost certain to follow (v. 21).

Suggestive Questions

What three expressions did Jesus use to show their disregard for the Scriptures? (V. 8, 9, 13).

What does God see in our lives before He sees our form of worship? (Psa. 139: 1-4.)

Is it possible for God to accept a man's worship when his heart is wrong? (Jas. 3:10-12; Mt. 12: 34).

What happens to the natural man when he leaves God out of his knowledge? (Rom. 1:28.)

What is the first great secret of having a polluted heart purified? (Phil. 2:5.)

How may we make the mind of the Master, the master of our minds? (Col. 3:16.)

Do we have any religious leaders today who stand in the shoes of the Pharisees? (V. 13. Cf. Jer. 8: 8-9.) What should be our attitude toward them? (Isa. 8:20.)

Golden Text Illustration.

Keep thy heart with all diligence for out of it are the issues of life (Prov. 4:23).

In some of the coal-mining sections, a little white flower is often found which has a peculiar characteristic. Although coal dust settles upon it continually, it remains perfectly white. It gives off a secretion which causes the dust to slide off as fast as it settles. Thus the soul that is rooted in Christ, and filled with the Holy Spirit, has the power to remain unsullied in the midst of the blackest surroundings.

RESOLUTIONS

(Knights of Pythias)

Whereas, an all-wise Father has removed from us our esteemed brother, John Workintine, be it

Resolved, that while we mourn the absence of one we prized, we know he has passed from labor to reward, that we will renew our fidelity to the order he loved, that his vacant chair will remind us that another link has dropped from our chain.

Resolved, that our order teaches the hope of immortality and leads us to dwell on the beautiful traits in human nature; that it assures us that the golden chain that binds us in life can not be severed in death.

Resolved, that our hearts go out in tender sympathy for the bereaved, and while we fondly cherish the memory of our departed brother we will not forget those he loved.

Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and be published in the Ochiltree County Herald, and the same be spread upon the records of the lodge.

"BARBED WIRE" TELLS DIFFERENT WAR STORY

Cast in a role that displays to the highest advantage her talent as a great emotional actress, Pola Negri is to be seen at the American Theatre where her latest Paramount starring vehicle "Barbed Wire," showing Friday and Saturday.

"Barbed Wire" is undoubtedly one of the most unusual motion pictures to come out of the war, since it deals with an angle of the great conflict hitherto untouched by motion picture producers, life behind the battle line. It was adapted from Hall Caine's novel, "The Woman of Knockaloe," considered in many critical circles as the war's greatest novel.

THERE are two kinds of high-compression motors. In one the compression ratio has been raised purposely by the car manufacturer to produce more power; the other is a high-compression condition caused by the natural formation of carbon in the combustion chamber. This condition exists, to some extent, in every motor.

But in either case there is one best fuel to release the full power caused by high compression. That fuel is Winter Conoco Ethyl Gasoline, the super-gasoline that knocks out the "knock," turns carbon into power and assures a smooth-running motor at any speed and under practically all operating conditions. It gives the extra pull you need for snow and slush and muddy roads. It is the last word in motor fuels.

Year in and out the swine herd can be d upon for revenue which mortgages and pays other and is a reliable factor in the business plan.

rmers wishing to build a well ced farm program, with rev- coming regularly, will find hogs can be used to advantage ding employment to labor not wise used," he said. "While true that hogs take relatively labor in comparison with stock, they do require some even in the summer time. In tensive farm business the rais- f winter litters may give con- able employment in a season e year when the labor of the r or of his family is not fully oyed. of Alfalfa Hay as Supplement in Winter use of a mixture of 50 pounds nkage, 25 pounds oilmeal and 25 pounds of chopped alfalfa hay as a supplement for yellow corn in winter rations has been advocated for some time. Recent trials at South Dakota have proved that high quality whole hay gives almost as good results as the chopped hay if the pigs can be induced to consume enough of the uncut feed. These results have caused hundreds of northern farmers to adopt alfalfa as a means of improving the standard corn-tankage ration.

Data from the trials at the South Dakota station show that pigs fed a ration of corn and tankage made an average daily gain of 1.32 pounds. When chopped alfalfa hay and linseed meal were fed with the corn and tankage the average daily gain was 1.54 pounds. More significant than this, however, is a saving of 16 pounds of feed for each 100 pounds of grain in the pigs fed the ration containing chopped alfalfa hay and the fact that there was a difference of 17 days in favor of the alfalfa fed pigs in reaching a weight of 200 pounds.

Big Doses of Santonin Needed When Fed Hogs

Hog raisers who have been using santonin for controlling worms will be interested in the announcement of R. F. Bourne of Colorado Agricultural college that experimental work by the United States bureau of animal industry does not uphold the claims made for it.

If this drug is used at all, advises Doctor Bourne, it is highly recommended that it be given after a fast of 18 to 20 hours, and in larger than the usual doses, repeated on several consecutive days. When proper preventive measures are taken, he states, it is apparent that the necessity for treating infected pigs as well as serious losses in health and condition is minimized.

Kiddies' Evening Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Sandman's Objections

It was quite late and Nick and Nancy were in their two little white beds.

They were sleepy, for they had been playing hard all day, but they wouldn't admit that to Daddy, because they were afraid he wouldn't tell them his usual evening story.

Of course, they occasionally did fall asleep before the end of a story, but then that happened very seldom and was an accident.

Daddy saw without being told how sleepy they were, so he decided to tell them the story about old Mr. Sandman, who lives forever and who sees every night that all the little children in the world rub their eyes and then crawl into their snug, comfy beds.

So Daddy began:

"Once the Queen of the Fairies was getting ready for a very fine ball.

"She told all the little fairies that they must go to bed as soon as she left them, for even little fairies have to sleep, too.

"But the little fairies were wide awake, and also feeling very naughty, for they thought it would be such fun to play for hours and hours, for the queen would not be home until midnight.

"So they began to plan the game they would play first. They decided on 'hide and seek,' as it would be such an especially wide-awake game.

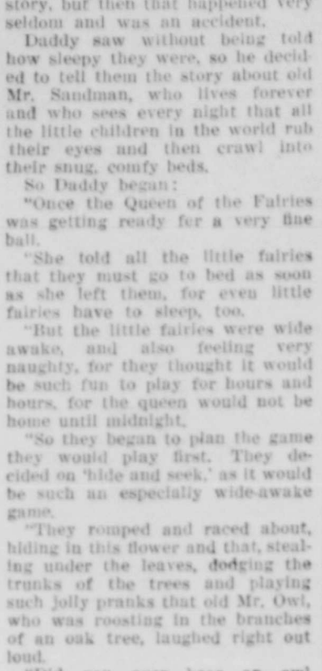

"They romped and raced about, hiding in this flower and that, stealing under the leaves, dodging the trunks of the trees and playing such jolly pranks that old Mr. Owl, who was roosting in the branches of an oak tree, laughed right out loud.

"Did you ever hear an owl laugh? Well, it is a very queer sort of laugh, and the fairies had to stop their game and laugh at Mr. Owl's laughter.

"But Mr. Sandman never goes to balls or parties of any kind, for he knows how hard children have been playing all day and how much they need their cozy beds at night.

"He had just started on his nightly rounds to see that all his little friends were going quickly into the land of sweet dreams when he spied the little fairies playing on the mossy grass in the moonlight.

"He said to himself: 'Here is some work for me to do,' and without being seen he waved in the air his magic nightcap.

Hide and Seek.

"One by one the little fairies yawned and rubbed their sleepy eyes, and the game became quieter and quieter.

"Finally one very brave fairy—for it is brave to admit you are sleepy, said:

"'I must lie down on this bed of moss; I am so sleepy.' Soon all the little fairies followed suit and dropped off into the Land of Nod to dream of the other fairies that live in all the countless stars.

"When Mr. Sandman saw them all sleeping soundly he winked his right eye, which meant he felt very pleased, and said to himself:

"'Now I must see that some more of the little tots have pleasant dreams.'

"'But I do object when people speak of me in a mean way, or rather when they speak to children, so that they can hate me.

"Sometimes they say in such an unkind fashion to children:

"'"I guess Old Man Sandman is around," and they say it so that the little children feel quite uncomfortable.

"'There is more than one way of saying a thing. I object to anything that is said in a mean, making-fun spirit.'"

And just then, sure enough, Daddy looked and saw that Nick and Nancy both had fallen fast asleep.

Port Arthur, Texas.—"When I was a girl my health got very poor. My stomach was weak and I became melancholy. Some one advised my father to give me Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and the 'Favorite Prescription.' One Man Control—The operator—and only one is needed—rides high on the machine out of the noise and dirt with every control at his finger tips and with the machine and the header in full view.

This is the combine that has:

Hyatt, Timken or Ball Bearings at every main bearing point—32 in all.

PERRYTON GETS A CHAUTAUQUA

FIFTY CITIZENS GUARANTEE ATTRACTION THIS SUMMER; GOOD PROGRAM SCHEDULED

Perryton is to have a chautauqua this summer. A contract was signed by a group of Perryton citizens and the Associated Chautauqua of America. The contract insures that Perryton will be one of the towns on the Vincent circuit, a part of the Associated Chautauquas.

The project is being supported by a group of Perryton townspeople who favor clean, educational, and thoroughly enjoyable entertainment, which appeals to all ages. The program is to consist of nine programs during five days.

The Associated Chautauquas of America, which includes the Vincent circuit, is the largest single chautauqua organization in the world. The company has been built from one small circuit to its controlling position during the ten years since the war, a period when most companies found it difficult to break even. This success is in a large measure the result of the high standard which the company sets for all of its programs.

The headlines of the Vincent circuit this season will be one of the current dramas now playing in New York and Chicago. There will also be speakers of national reputation, orchestras, singers and other attractions.

A number of nationally-known social and civic leaders are now working on a plan to raise five million dollars as an endowment to make chautaugua a permanent institution. Heading this movement are Otto Kahn, Henry Morganthal, General Samual McRobert, Edward Bok, Ethel Barrymore, Margaret Anglin, Mrs. George Horace Lorimer, Mrs. Medill McCormick, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Parkes Cadman and many others.

Perryton citizens who signed the 1928 contract and are supporting the chautauqua are W. B. Irvin, W. B. LaMaster, C. E. Woods, B. B. Kent, W. E. McMillen, F P. Rogers, R. T. Correll, C. E.
