Plan rejected

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department refused Monday to approve a Texas state Senate redistricting map essentially identical to a plan precleared last November. Assistant U.S. Attorney John R. Dunne said he could not preclear the plan approved in January by the Texas Legislature since a three-judge federal panel in Austin found it did not meet a key section of the Voting Rights Act. "That ruling, although challenged by the state, has not been vacated or reversed," Dunne wrote in a letter Monday to Texas Secretary of State John Hannah./3B

Israel buries Begin

JERUSALEM — Menachem Begin, a former guerrilla leader who later inflamed national passions by making peace and war as Israel's prime minister, was buried late Monday afternoon in a simple ceremony about 12 hours after he had died of heart failure. Thousands of mourners, some who rode buses into the capital from throughout the country, attended the three-minute service and the burial ceremony that lasted only slightly longer./5A

Challenge to Serb

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Tens of thousands of demonstrators on Monday accused Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic of starving his republic to wage war in Croatia and demanded he resign. "Slobo, get lost!" some chanted. It was the boldest challenge to Milosevic since March 9 of last year, when 200,000 protesters faced down tanks after police broke up an anti-government rally./4A

Term limit law

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court let a California term-limit law stand on Monday — bolstering a national movement to impose similar curbs on incumbency in other state legislatures and in Congress. The California law, approved by voters in 1990, holds members of the state assembly to a maximum of six years in office and state senators and the governor to eight years. Voters in Oklahoma and Colorado also approved term-limit initiatives in 1990, and the issue will be on the ballot this fall in 18 states, including Florida and Ohio. Without comment, the U.S. Supreme Court left intact a California Supreme Court ruling that said the controversial law — known as Proposition 140 — does not violate the constitutional rights of a citizen who wants to run for public office./7A

County braces for heavy vote

Controversial four-man sheriff's race tops local ballot

Staff Report

Midland County voters are expected to visit the polls in record numbers for today's primary election.

Sunny skies with a high in the lower 50s is forecast for election day, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

■ Polling places 2A

Polls for both Republican and Democratic primaries will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Bettye Calvert, Midland County elections administrator, predicts that as many as 45 percent of all registered voters will cast ballots by the time the polls close tonight. That would represent approximately 22,000 votes.

The most closely watched local race is for the Republican nomination for Midland County Sheriff.

The controversial race features four candidates, including the incumbent, Gary Painter. His three challengers are Melvin McEwen, Reuben Richardson and Wayne Gideon.

Since a candidate must receive a clear majority of the votes cast in order to win the nomination, a runoff between the two leading vote getters is a distinct possibility.

If a runoff is necessary, it will be held on April 14. Early voting for a runoff would be conducted April 6-10.

There are no Democrats running for sheriff, so whom-

Voters dish out primary prize plums

Associated Press

Today's 'Super Tuesday' lineup will determine nearly 40 percent of delegates needed to decide nominees.

President Bush and Democratic challenger Bill Clinton seek superiority today as Super Tuesday voters in 11 states dish out campaign 1992's biggest delegate catch. Challengers Patrick Buchanan and Paul Tsongas hope to do well enough to be able to fight on next week in Illinois and Michigan.

Florida is the Democrat's wild card, a Southern state in geography only, where Tsongas is trying to stall the regional romp coveted by Clinton.

Former California Gov. Jerry Brown, the Democratic field's insurgent maverick, doesn't expect much out of the Southern-dominated day, and like Tsongas hopes for better luck in the urban showdowns to come.

David Duke is alongside Buchanan as a challenger on several Southern GOP ballots, looking to cut into Buchanan's share of the anti-Bush protest vote. Duke, a former Ku Klux Klansman and neo-Nazi, said again he didn't want to run as a third-party candidate in the fall.

From Massachusetts to Hawaii, Delaware to Texas, voters will cast ballots in 11 Democratic and eight Republican contests.

It is a scaled-down version of the Super Tuesday that rocketed Bush to the GOP nomination four years ago but disappointed Southern Democrats who believed one of their own — notably Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore — would rise above the pack. The contests tested candidates' broad appeal in states with far different economic conditions, and distinctly diverse electorates.

In all, 783 Democratic delegates are at stake — 633 of those in the seven Southern and border states in which Clinton is the favorite.

Bush is virtually guaranteed all the 421 GOP delegates at stake because of Republican winner-take-all delegates rules. Buchanan's hope is to stay in the 30 percent range and to spring a surprise on Bush a week from today in Michigan.

"We're more than a protest candidate," Buchanan insisted Monday. "There's a tremendous movement, I think, in the country now for Buchanan for president."

"I think they are looking for presidential leadership," Bush countered on the Biloxi, Miss., television station WLOX in one of a series of suppertime satellite interviews. "I am not overly concerned."

A new ABC-Washington Post poll conducted March 4-7, however, showed Bush with a new record low approval rating, 39 percent, and showed him in a statistical dead heat when matched in a presidential election with either Clinton or

Police clubbed motorist in head, officer testifies

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A second highway patrol officer testified Monday that Rodney King was clubbed in the head repeatedly by a policeman during the videotaped beating that followed his traffic stop.

California Highway Patrol Officer Timothy Singer, whose testimony followed that of his wife and patrol partner, CHP Officer Melanie Singer, also gave a graphic account of seeing King shot twice with an electric "stun gun" by police Sgt. Stacey Koon before he was clubbed in the head at least five times by Officer Laurence Powell.

Surgeon general: Drop 'Old Joe' cigarette ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's doctors want Old Joe, the cartoon camel from the land of Reynolds tobacco, to bite the desert dust.

Led by Surgeon General Antonia Novello, they declared Monday that the dashing dromedary appeals too much to children in his ads for Camel cigarettes.

"It's time for the tobacco industry to stop preying on our nation's youth," Novello said. "It's time that cigarette companies act voluntarily and responsibly."

"In years past, R.J. Reynolds would have us walk a mile for a Camel," she said. "Today it's time that we invite 'Old Joe' himself to take a hike." The American Medical Association

Richard Kreimer

By Henry Stern
Associated Press writer

MORRISTOWN, N.J. — After more than a decade on the street, Richard Kreimer is about to become rich.

Kreimer, 42, sued a library that wanted him banned because he smelled and stared, and the police, who he said harassed him. He settled for at least $250,000.

Supporters hail him as a champion of the homeless; critics call him a money-hungry publicity hound. Kreimer just wants to retreat from the spotlight and get his life together.

"It will be the most difficult job of my entire life," he said in an interview last week. Beyond following his favorite baseball club and traveling, he said he wasn't sure what he might do with the money.

Kreimer describes himself as an avid reader who goes to the library to read newspapers, magazines ranging from People to National Geographic, and sports biographies.

Backed by the American Civil Liberties Union, he sued after the Joint Free Public Library of Morristown and Morris Township had ejected him several times because his smell and his staring had upset other patrons. He also filed a separate lawsuit accusing police of harassing him.

A judge last year overturned the library's rule that banned loitering, staring at people and hygiene that is a nuisance to other patrons. The library appealed that decision, but its insurer settled last week with Kreimer. A source close to Kreimer said the settlement was close to $100,000.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Sunny skies, low 50s on tap

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the lower 50s and northeast to east wind at 10 to 15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low around 30 to 35, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be mostly sunny with a high in the mid-60s.

After an overnight low of 42, Monday's high reached 66 compared to the record high for that date of 85 set in 1955. The record low for that date is 17 set in 1931.

STATE

An arctic front plunged temperatures below freezing as it blasted across the state Monday, spawning heavy rains and at least one small tornado.

The Rusk County sheriff's office reported no injuries from a tornado that uprooted trees and knocked around some trailer homes in the Northeast Texas county.

Flash flood warnings and tornado watches were in effect late Monday for parts of Central and Southeast Texas. West and North Texas were under freeze warnings.

As the cold front moved across the Panhandle, temperatures dropped into the 30s. Temperatures just ahead of the front were in the 50s.

NATION

A storm spread heavy snow across the Plains to the Great Lakes on Monday as cold air forced its way southward. Rain fell over the lower Mississippi Valley.

The storm spread snow from Colorado and Wyoming into Nebraska, with up to 20 inches accumulating in northeastern Colorado from Sunday into Monday. Blizzard conditions closed roads and numerous schools.

Snow also extended from the storm northeastward across southern South Dakota, northwestern Iowa, southern Minnesota and into Wisconsin, with 9 inches in parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

DROMEDARY: Drop 'Old Joe' ads, doctors say agreed. The tobacco company didn't.

(From 1A)

Joe's ugly as a camel, but he's adventuresome, chic and multitalented. He plays piano, races cars and wears dinner jackets and tuxedos, often catching the eye of a beautiful woman.

But Old Joe has been in trouble with the health community almost since RJR Nabisco Inc. introduced him as the "smooth character" in its ads for Camel cigarettes in 1988.

Last December, the Journal of the American Medical Association published studies that found the camel's image was as familiar to 6-year-olds as Mickey Mouse.

During Old Joe's tenure in the pages of America's magazines and newspapers, Camel has become the brand of choice for 32.8 percent of the smokers under age 18. That's up from just 0.5 percent three years earlier, according to the journal. In terms of money, its a boost from $6 million a year to $476 million a year.

But the tobacco industry says there's no proof that the ads influence young people to reach for a Camel.

"We reject the notion that advertising leads to initiation of smoking," R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., a division of RJR Nabisco, said in a statement responding to the call for yanking the ads. "Numerous studies around the world have shown that peer pressure and parental influence are the leading factors in underage use of tobacco products."

But the AMA said the cigarette companies are on the move to find new customers since so many old ones are expiring.

"Any industry which kills more than 435,000 of its best customers every year must find new customers," said Dr. James S. Todd, executive vice president of the AMA, and who joined Novello at a news conference. They were flanked by poster-sized copies of Old Joe's ads.

TRIAL: Second officer gives graphic testimony charged in the beating, videotaped by a man nearby. Wind, a rookie, was fired by the Los Angeles Police Department. The other three were suspended.

"I heard a popping sound and looked to my left," Singer said. "I observed Mr. King partially on the ground rising off the ground and turn toward where I was.

"I heard another popping sound," he said. "I saw Mr. King stand up the rest of the way. His face was vibrating and convulsing and he began staggering toward where I was."

At that point, he said, Powell struck King six times, five times in the head.

The videotaped beating of King, who is black, by white officers sparked national outrage and debate over police brutality.

Mrs. Singer previously testified she never saw King threaten any officers before the beating. But during five hours of pounding cross-examination by Powell's attorney earlier Monday, she conceded that one scene on the videotape indicated King was advancing toward Powell.

"You never saw Mr. King rise up, turn and charge Officer Powell?" asked attorney Michael Stone.

"No, sir," replied Mrs. Singer. "Only on the video."

Stone's cross-examination sparked objections from the prosecution, from one defense attorney and from Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg, who said the videotape should speak for itself rather than be interpreted by the witness.

Stone told reporters later he would prove that every eyewitness in the case — including Mrs. Singer — had their memory of the actual events distorted by repeatedly watching the widely televised videotape.

"This videotape, while it is a remarkable piece of evidence, is also destructive of eyewitness recollections," Stone told a news conference.

In court, Stone conducted a frame-by-frame showing of the first seconds of the videotape. The picture was blurry but Mrs. Singer was able to point out the forms she believed to be King and Powell.

ment lawsuit for $158,000. Kreimer expects to receive that money this week; the library settlement will be paid later.

Kreimer and his supporters say he fought to defend his rights to use the library and end police harassment of the homeless. Opponents say he's an opportunist who bothered library users, and lied about police harassing him.

"What the media has made him out to be is not what he is," Mayor Norman Bloch said. "He is not an advocate for the homeless. He is an advocate for Richard Kreimer."

Elaine Weil, head of the library's board of trustees, said: "Every library has a right to reasonable rules. Otherwise, it becomes part of the street.

"Richard keeps claiming his rights, but he never claims his responsibilities," she said.

Kreimer said his sudden fame had put a burden on his shoulders.

"I'm a little nervous about whether I'll be able to pull it all together," he said.

"I now represent an image of homeless people even though it's not that way. It's Richard Kreimer. I am now like a martyr for homeless persons."

Margret Brady, a former councilwoman and friend of Kreimer's, said there is "a lot of pressure" on him.

"Everyone is waiting to see what he does with the money," she said. "I think he was really looking forward to getting the money. He thought it would be the end and it's really the beginning."

Asked what he plans to do now, he talks of undergoing "lifestyle counseling" with social work professionals at Rutgers University.

COUNTY: Official predicts 45 percent turnout ever captures the GOP nomination will, in effect, be the overall winner.

Other races on today's ballot include:

■ The Republican nomination for 142nd State District Judge. Hoping to become the new judge are George D. "Jody" Gillis, Tom Bruner and Robin Malone Sams. Again, there is no Democrat running for the post, so the GOP primary will determine the overall winner.

The incumbent, Pat Baskin, is not seeking re-election.

And as with the sheriff's race, if none of the three candidates receives a clear majority, an April 14 runoff will be required.

■ County Tax Assessor-Collector: James F. Devenport and Kathy Hodge Reeves. Incumbent Frances Shuffield is retiring.

■ County Commissioner, Precinct 1: Henry E. Goulet, Durward Wright and Ron Harvel. Wright is the incumbent.

■ County Commissioner, Precinct 3: David L. Jezek Sr., and Jo Ann Carr. Democrat Louisa Valencia, a Democrat who is seeking re-election, is the incumbent.

■ Constable, Precinct 1: Ron Rice and Tom McGinnis. Rice is the incumbent.

■ Another race with strong local interest is for Railroad Commissioner. In the Republican primary, former Midlander Barry Williamson meets Carole Keeton Rylander. To underscore their commitment to the oil industry, both Williamson and Rylander made last-minute visits to Midland on Monday.

■ Local candidates running unopposed in the Republican Primary are Tom Craddick, State Representative, District 82; Al Schorre, District Attorney, 142nd Judicial District; Mark Dettman, County Attorney; Keith R. Jobe, Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Place 1; and Rick Davis Jr., County Chairman.

■ The only contested local race for Midland County Democrats is for County Commissioner, Precinct 3. Ms. Valencia is being challenged by Fernando "Freddie" Calderon. The Democratic nominee will meet the Jezek-Carr winner in the November general election.

■ Chris McCormick is running unopposed for chairman of the Midland County Democratic Party.

■ In addition to the local races, voters in the both primaries will be joining their counterparts from across the state in helping nominate presidential candidates.

Five names appear on the GOP ballot: President George Bush, Patrick Buchanan, David Duke, George A. Zimmermann and Tennie Rogers.

On the Democratic side, appearing on the ballot will be: Bill Clinton, Paul Tsongas, Jerry Brown. Although U.S. Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska and Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin withdrew have withdrawn from the race, their names remain on the ballot.

Other Democratic candidates are Rufus Higginbotham, George W. Benns, Tod Howard Hawks, Lyndon H. LaRouche Jr., Charles Woods and J. Louis McAlpine.

In the Democratic primary, incumbent Lena Guerrero is being challenged by David Young. The two winners will meet in the November general election.

Also on today's Republican ballot will be a propositon calling for limiting terms of office. The amendment would limit to two four-year terms the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, comptroller of public accounts, treasurer and commissioner of the general land office.

The amendment would limit to one six-year term the office of members of the Texas Railroad Commission.

The amendment would limit to two four-year terms members of the Texas Senate and to four two-year terms members of the Texas House of Representatives. The amendment would limit to two six-year terms Texas members of the U.S. Senate and to four two-year terms Texas members of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Correction

The "Write to Publish" workshop is scheduled for March 28, instead of this Saturday as was reported in Sunday's edition.

The Reporter-Telegram regrets the error.

Sunday's editorial failed to make clear that one of the Republican candidates for sheriff must receive a clear majority of votes cast in order to win the nomination. If no one receives a majority, a run-off will be necessary. And because there are no Democrats running for sheriff, whoever captures the GOP nomination will, in effect, be the overall winner.

PRIMARIES: Clinton, Tsongas focus on Florida on vote's eve or Tsongas. The poll of 1,030 adults had a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

This year, it appears the Super Tuesday concept would deliver the momentum for a moderate that its architects had in mind.

Clinton, the Arkansas governor, is the favorite in the seven Southern and border states holding elections: Florida, Texas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Missouri.

Only Florida is viewed as competitive, and both Clinton and Tsongas campaigned there on election eve — Clinton looking to secure a sweep, Tsongas looking to cool Clinton's Southern steam.

A big victory by Clinton today would give him a huge delegate lead and make good showings in next week's Michigan and Illinois primaries even more important for Tsongas and Brown.

"We've come a long way," Tsongas told a small group of supporters as he wrapped up his Florida effort in Orlando. "We were nowhere a month ago and how we're running a tight race. It shows that ideas count."

Clinton hopes to show organization counts as well. He has the bulk of Democratic elected officials on his side in Florida and across the South.

Clinton mixed a baseball spring-training stop with a final appeal for Florida's powerful Jewish vote, promising to be a staunch friend of Israel and suggesting Bush had picked the Arab side in the Middle East peace talks hoping for an agreement that would boost his re-election chances.

"I will never use foreign policy to play domestic politics," Clinton said.

Brown headed north, looking for votes in Rhode Island, with Massachusetts the stronghold for Tsongas, a former senator from the Bay State. Delaware's caucuses were considered a tossup, while Clinton had the edge far away in Hawaii.

"This campaign is serious — we're going all the way," Brown told a lunchtime crowd in Providence. "It will be a battle," he said of the industrial battlegrounds to come.

With Iowa Sen. Tom Harkin gone from the Democratic race, blue-collar labor support is up for grabs, and Clinton, Tsongas and Brown were scrambling to get it.

Despite past run-ins with labor, Clinton is favored to enjoy the bulk of labor support, because he has backed a ban on permanent strike replacements, a measure Tsongas opposes.

"There is no flexibility in that position," Tsongas said, vowing to take his revive-manufacturing economic message directly to workers.

"The fact is all labor wants is a job," he said.

World in brief

■ Afghan president appeals to U.S. for aid

KABUL, Afghanistan — Abandoned by his former benefactors in Moscow and cast somewhat adrift in the new politics of the region, Afghanistan's president made an impassioned appeal to the United States on Monday to help his country become a bulwark against the spread of Islamic fundamentalism in Central Asia.

In an interview here, Najibullah also pleaded for immediate economic and humanitarian assistance from Washington, which long backed the Afghan fundamentalist guerrillas fighting his government. He also promised that he would release four Afghans who worked in the United States Embassy and were convicted of espionage in 1983.

The Afghan president's praise for the United States and his attempt to enlist Washington in common cause against fundamentalism marked the sharpest departure yet from the open hostility that has characterized relations between Kabul and Washington since Afghanistan's leftist coup of 1978.

■ U.S. to press India on nuclear proliferation

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration is expected to press India in high-level talks this week to drop its longstanding opposition to signing a treaty limiting the spread of nuclear arms, American officials say. New Delhi will also be asked to join in regional talks with Pakistan on controlling nuclear development.

Pakistan, whose weapons program led to a cutoff of United States aid in October 1990, has refused to sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty or to agree to international inspections and safeguards until India does.

When Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif of Pakistan, with American prompting, proposed a five-nation conference on the nuclear issue last June, the invitation was dismissed abruptly by New Delhi. The Bush administration now sees the potential for reversing or tempering that summary rejection of talks that would include Russia, China, and the United States as well as the two South Asian protagonists.

■ Ousted Haitian to seek support in U.S.

WASHINGTON — Fearing that the military will try to thwart a recently negotiated plan for his return, the exiled president of Haiti intends to bring his case for increased pressure on the Haitian junta directly to the American people this week.

"How can we ask the Haitian people to remove these criminals with their bare hands?" the exiled president, Jean-Bertrand Aristide, said in an interview by telephone on Saturday from Caracas, the capital of Venezuela, where he has lived since he was overthrown in a military coup led by Gen. Raoul Cedras on Sept. 30. "The putschists have all the weapons."

In public appearances from California to Washington, Aristide said, he will tell audiences that Haitians are proud of their sovereignty and don't want military intervention.

■ Gorbachev enjoys hero's welcome on tour

MUNICH, Germany — Mikhail S. Gorbachev, no longer beloved at home, is enjoying a hero's welcome during a triumphant eight-day tour of Germany.

Crowds have followed the former Soviet president everywhere, calling his name and showering him with flowers. Politicians have clamored to speak with him and to share the immense popularity that he enjoys here.

Gorbachev, looking healthy and relaxed, has charmed his hosts. His visit here is his first trip outside Russia since he lost power last year, and it marks an auspicious beginning for his new career as an elder statesman.

50,000 demand Serbia's president resign

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Tens of thousands of demonstrators on Monday accused Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic of starving his republic to wage war in Croatia and demanded he resign. "Slobo, get lost!" some chanted.

It was the boldest challenge to Milosevic since March 9 of last year, when 200,000 protesters faced down tanks after police broke up an anti-government rally. Two people were killed and 120 injured in that confrontation.

Monday's rally was much smaller, with journalists estimating the crowd at fewer than 50,000. It remained peaceful, if boisterous, ending without incident after three hours.

The demonstration came as a European Community-sponsored peace conference resumed in Brussels, where officials reported some progress by the six Yugoslav republics in settling disputes from the 9-month-old war over secession. Officials did not give any details.

Representatives of the main ethnic groups in Bosnia-Hercegovina also were reported closer to agreement on independence for that republic, where ethnic fighting flared last week after a secession vote boycotted by the large Serb minority.

Bosnian Muslim and Croat delegates at the talks agreed on the principle of a confederated state in which each ethnic group could effectively veto vital legislation, officials said. Serb delegates said they needed more time to study the plan.

Meanwhile, the commander of a U.N. peacepeeking force said he was ready to start deploying up to 14,000 soldiers in troubled areas of Croatia.

Lt. Gen. Satish Nambiar of India, who arrived Sunday, said that "all preparations for the beginning of the U.N. peace operation" were complete, the Tanjug news agency reported.

At least nine people died in Bosnia last week after Muslims and Croats voted for independence despite opposition by Serbs, but no major trouble was reported Monday.

Croatian battlefronts also were mostly calm, although Tanjug reported heavy artillery exchanges in Sibenik, Knin, Gospic and other Dalmation districts. There were no reports of casualties. Also, more than 100 artillery shells were fired at the eastern Croatian city of Osijek overnight, local officials said.

In Belgrade, the 15 opposition parties behind the demonstration called for new elections in Serbia, a new constitution, press freedom and fundamental economic changes.

Camouflage-clad riot police patrolled downtown, but few officers were near the demonstration. Three jeeps manned by police wearing flak jackets guarded Milosevic's house, several miles from the rally.

Downtown was unusually empty. Jewelers cleared store windows of valuables. Many parents kept their children home from school.

Milosevic and his governing Socialists, formerly the Communist Party, won elections in December 1990 and still enjoy considerable support.

Security Council prepares for showdown with Iraq

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council prepared Monday for a showdown with Saddam Hussein's senior diplomat over efforts to destroy the Iraqi nuclear weapons program and long-range missiles.

Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz, who was to arrive in New York late Monday, contends that Iraq is complying with the U.N. cease-fire resolution that ended the Gulf War and is expected to appeal for a U.N.-sanctioned trade embargo to be lifted.

Aziz is scheduled to meet today with Diego Arria, Venezuela's ambassador and president of the Security Council, and U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali. He is to face all 15 Security Council members Wednesday.

The council met behind closed doors Monday to prepare for his visit.

Aziz served as Iraq's foreign minister from 1983-1991, when he became deputy prime minister. During the Persian Gulf crisis, he was the face Saddam presented to the world as he sought to justify his Aug. 2, 1990, invasion of Kuwait.

The United States, Britain and other nations say Iraq is not cooperating with U.N. inspectors trying to identify and destroy Iraq's nuclear, chemical and biological weapons. They want to keep the trade sanctions in place, and some diplomats have hinted of possible military action against Iraq.

Aziz scheduled his trip after Iraqi officials prevented a U.N. team from destroying equipment used to manufacture long-range missiles last month. Iraq says it should be allowed to convert the equipment to other uses.

The dispute was the latest in a series of confrontations between the Iraqis and U.N. experts since the inspections began in May 1991, particularly over Baghdad's efforts to hide its program to develop nuclear weapons.

Boutros-Ghali provided new evidence of Iraqi intransigence Monday when he delivered a report to the Security Council alleging Iraq still has not agreed to plans for long-term monitoring and verification of its disarmament, or to disclosure of its weapons capabilities.

Aziz asked Jordan's King Hussein Sunday to intercede with the United States to ease the economic blockade.

Iraq's Health Ministry reported Monday that 21,772 people — including 8,081 children — had died over the past two months as a result of shortages caused by the sanctions.

Cholera epidemic breaks out in Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — A cholera epidemic has broken out in northern Brazil, and health officials appear powerless to stop the disease's spread south toward the country's major cities.

On Friday, Health Minister Adib Jatene said the disease had hit epidemic proportions in northeastern Brazil and sounded a nationwide cholera alert for the coming weeks.

The epidemic promises to expose Rio's inadequate santitation and health-care systems, just before dozens of world leaders arrive for the U.N. Earth Summit in June.

Cholera reached the Atlantic last week despite months of sanitary campaigns in the Amazon, and Jatene conceded the government lacked the money and equipment to combat the water-borne illness in the warm, tropical sea waters.

"It's harder to fight cholera in the ocean," he said. "Though cholera lasts few days in cold river water, it can survive for up to 30 days in the sea."

Cholera is carried by water contaminated by human feces. The bacteria entered Brazil last year through its Amazon jungle border with Colombia and Peru and moved 1,500 miles east through the massive Amazon river network.

Since then, 3,594 Brazilians have been stricken and 54 have died. This year alone, 21 deaths and 1,585 cases have been reported, according to official figures.

Private health agencies say the real number of victims has topped 5,000, with an additional 30 unregistered deaths.

Fernando G. "Freddie"
Calderon
Democratic Candidate for County Commissioner
Precinct #3
Tuesday, March 10th

I am Fernando G. "Freddie" Calderon, 41, Democratic Candidate for County Commissioner, Precinct #3.

I moved to East Midland in 1978 and operated a business there for 14 years. I work for Midland College as a Citizenship instructor at Casa de Amigos and, at a G.E.D. class located in the Downtown Midland County Jail.

I graduated from Abilene High School in 1968 and have accumulated 150 semester hours from The University of Texas System. I continue undertaking studies at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin. My work experience and education have provided me an invaluable insight into the needs and problems of Precinct #3. I will be undertaking studies for the rest of my life. I have an insatiable desire to learn that was instilled in me by my family. I strongly believe that a greater attainment of education by our society would help to cure many of the ills that plague it.

The solution to the crime problem involves many multidirectional approaches, which include not only law enforcement and new jails, but, in addition, we need Drug Rehabilitation Clinics and Education to join the fight against crime in our community. When the war on drugs was initiated, a portion of money was to be directed to Education and Drug Rehabilitation. I would like to see a Drug Rehabilitation Clinic built in East Midland, WHERE IT IS NEEDED!

I shall gather information that will enable Midland County to obtain funds from state, federal and/or private resources to implement needed programs in Precinct #3. For example, The National Literacy Act, enacted recently, allows a 10 percent set-aside for the education of our institutionalized. As your Commissioner, I would enthusiastically pursue the development of a consortia which includes Midland County, the Sheriff's Department, the Probation Department, County Courts and Midland College, et. al., to provide an EFFECTIVE AND MANDATORY system of education for those who are institutionalized, on probation or parole.

My membership in the Eastside Economic Development Task Force, Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce Educational Development Foundation, League of United Latin American Citizens, Texas Association of Continuing Adult Education, active involvement in Midland's Habitat for Humanity, Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and Midland Community Theater, have enlightened my vision into the needs and problems of our community.

In carrying out the duties of the office, I will always be sincere, understanding, compassionate, and empathetic to the people of Midland County.

Respectfully yours,

Fernando G. Calderon

Israel buries Menachem Begin with praise, no eulogies

Thousands of mourners attend service for former prime minister, Nobel Prize winner.

JERUSALEM (NYT) — Menachem Begin, a former guerrilla leader who later inflamed national passions by making peace and war as Israel's prime minister, was buried late Monday afternoon in a simple ceremony about 12 hours after he had died of heart failure.

Thousands of mourners, some who rode buses into the capital from throughout the country, attended the three-minute service and the burial ceremony that lasted only slightly longer.

As requested in Begin's will, there was no state funeral, and there were no eulogies or speeches.

Begin was buried next to his beloved wife Aliza, whose death in 1982 contributed heavily to the despair and depression that drove him to resign as prime minister 10 months later amid mounting casualties resulting from Israel's invasion of Lebanon.

Begin, who won the Nobel Prize for making peace with Egypt, never explained his affliction or his resignation. His death rekindled speculation about what he meant when, upon resigning, he said, "I can't do it anymore."

The square in front of the modest, glass-enclosed Sanhedria funeral chapel in West Jerusalem was jammed with admirers and onlookers as seven elderly comrades from Begin's days as head of the underground guerrilla organization, called Irgun Zva'i Leumi, bore his body from the chapel.

Begin, 78, was wrapped in a white shroud and covered by a black and white prayer shawl when he was borne from the chapel on a small wooden stretcher.

As Begin's body was carried from the chapel, his son, Zeev Benjamin Begin, said the traditional prayer for the dead. Heir to his father's staunch ultranationalist beliefs, the younger Begin, a member of parliament, has said he will seek to lead the ruling Likud party and run for prime minister whenever the leader, Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, steps down.

Begin also is survived by two daughters, Leah and Hassia, who is the wife of police minister Ronni Milo, and nine grandchildren.

There were grim faces but there was little sign of weeping as the mourners jostled with buses and police officers in jamming the four-mile stretch of road from the funeral chapel in Jewish West Jerusalem to the Mount of the Olives cemetery in Palestinian East Jerusalem.

Several thousand mourners walked the entire distance through Jewish and Arab neighborhoods and past the walled Old City to the rocky cemetery on the hill. The site offers perhaps the best view of the ancient city below, with its twisted stone streets, open markets, church spires, minarets and mosque domes and its synagogues and Jewish holy places.

As if storming the cemetery, religious and secular Jews scaled walls to avoid police and to reach the burial grounds, then swarmed over and around tombstones seeking a view of the burial. A few dozen even climbed to the roof of an adjacent mosque for a better view.

Many of the mourners knew precise details of Begin's history and were quick to summarize and agree on his accomplishments. To them, Begin was a simple man of integrity who never succumbed to the trappings of high office or the vanity of power. He was a peacemaker and a leader who healed rifts between his outcast guerrilla allies and the more dominant forces of what is now the Labor Party.

No one raised the disastrous Lebanon war or Begin's controversial behavior before independence when even mainstream Jewish fighters opposed his sometimes randomly violent tactics and called him a terrorist.

Mordechai Ruimy, a young man who carried a pistol in his belt, a rifle on his shoulder and a camera around his neck, said he went to the cemetery because Begin "is the first one to make peace with the Arabs and he opposed accepting reparations from Germany" for the Holocaust.

Rival cartel brought three 500-pound bombs to kill drug lord, authorities say

More than 200 people have been killed in the war to gain control of the New York City cocaine market.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Authorities said Monday they had uncovered an assassination plot against imprisoned Colombian drug lord Pablo Escobar Gaviria by a rival cartel. They said the plotters intended to use 500-pound bombs to blow up Escobar's prison.

The plotters apparently managed to get three of the four bombs — purchased from a Salvadoran air force officer — out of the country, the officials said.

Nine people — an air force lieutenant colonel, an air force sergeant, two Guatemalans, a Cuban and four other Salvadorans — have been arraigned in criminal court on charges of possession of and robbery of weapons of war, officials said.

El Salvador's top drug-fighting agency, the Executive Anti-Narcotics Unit, said the plotters intended to drop the bombs from helicopters onto the prison in Colombia where Escobar, the Medellin drug cartel kingpin, is held. The Armed Forces Press Committee said in a communique that the operation was masterminded by Richard Salcedo, whom it described as a Cali cartel operative.

The rival cartels are fighting for control of the cocaine market in New York City. More than 200 people have been killed in the war.

The anti-narcotics unit said three of the four bombs were loaded earlier this week aboard a light plane, which left the rural coastal strip of El Zapote, 60 miles west of San Salvador, for an unknown destination. The fourth bomb, which reportedly did not fit on the plane, was confiscated by authorities. Government agents also confiscated just over $456,000.

In Bogota, Colombia, police Gen. Jose Berrano told reporters that police were searching for the other bombs, which he said were bought for $400,000. Colombian authorities have barred all aircraft from airspace over the jail.

The armed forces communique said three members of the air force were implicated in the crime. It identified the accused lieutenant colonel as Roberto Antonio Leiva and the sergeant as Jose Luz Parada.

Both were stationed at the military sector airport of Comalapa International Airport, 25 miles southeast of the capital. It is El Salvador's main civilian airport.

The third military suspect was not identified.

Authorities identified the Guatemalan suspects as Edwin Castellanos and Luis Mario Catalan and the Cuban as Wilfredo Larrazabal. The Salvadorans were identified as Edi Nelson Comandari, Dora Comandari, Rolando Fuentes and Cesar Augusto Carillo.

Escobar surrendered to authorities last June and is awaiting trial on charges of murder and smuggling cocaine. He is being held in a custom-built hilltop prison overlooking his hometown of Envigado.

Restraint needed on weapons sales

Why should the U.S. stimulate competition to sell advanced fighter planes to the Middle East when it could instead promote international cooperation to shut down arms sales? Congress has to face that question now that the Bush administration says it intends to sell 72 F-15 fighters to Saudi Arabia.

The sensible answer is to delay the sale and instruct President Bush to seek agreement from Britain and other leading arms merchants not to sell such planes to the Middle East. That would give Bush a chance to fulfill his previous pledges to curb arms sales to that volatile region.

Days after the defeat of Iraq, Bush told Congress: "It would be tragic if the nations of the Middle East and the Persian Gulf were now, in the wake of war, to embark on a new arms race." At his urging the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council — also the leading arms suppliers to Iraq and the world — are drafting guidelines to curb sales to the region.

Yet in the year since, his administration has approved $8.6 billion in new arms sales to the region, the highest one-year total ever. That sends the wrong message to would-be buyers and sellers.

The sale of 24 F-15Hs and 48 F-15Es makes an ideal test case for restraint. The F-15H ranks as a top-of-the-line aerial combat fighter. The F-15E is America's most advanced ground-attack aircraft, never before marketed abroad.

As defense budgets decline, commercial competition has intensified. F-15 manufacturers argue that if Congress simply blocks the proposed sale, Saudi Arabia will buy the British-built Tornado instead. Whoever loses the Saudi contract may have to shut down production and lay off workers as early as 1994. That's why curbs won't work without British agreement.

Such curbs could also induce Russia to limit the size of its sale of MiG-29 fighters to Iran, a transaction that gave Saudi Arabia a new reason for wanting to add to its arsenal. Andrei Kokoshin, a Russian arms control expert, said that "if other countries would have started reducing arms deliveries, this would have some effect, but it turned out that most democratic countries are not stopping arms sales."

That point has not been lost on the Chinese, who continue marketing their missiles while calling for dollar limits on Mideast arms sales.

The F-15 is Congress's notion of an ideal weapon system: parts are produced in 346 congressional districts in 47 states. And the manufacturers' case comes down to "jobs, jobs, jobs." But there is more than jobs to consider in this deal. Washington should exercise restraint and induce other sellers to do the same.

GM plant 'deal' has 'em smiling

Texas officials all over the state are beaming broadly ...

The reason for the smiles came from Detroit, where General Motors announced that it would keep open its auto-manufacturing plant in Arlington. The good news for Texas, though, came with some bad news for autoworkers in Ypsilanti, Mich., who got word ... that GM would close that plant to cut operating costs.

The announcement preserves more than 11,000 jobs related directly or indirectly to the Arlington plant.

Gov. Ann Richards offered a glimpse of the deal she helped cut with GM to persuade the automaker to keep the plant open in Arlington. The state would help GM convert part of its plant to manufacture natural gas-operated vehicles, and the state would buy the vehicles for its fleet.

It is a natural for Texas. We are the largest natural-gas-producing state in the nation — with many of those reserves up and down deep East Texas.

Perhaps, too, we should applaud ourselves. East Texas, by all accounts, is going to reap some of the financial reward of the very good news coming out of Arlington.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, March 10, the 70th day of 1992. There are 296 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 10, 1876, Alexander Graham Bell made what was, in effect, the first telephone call. His assistant, located in an adjoining room in Boston, heard Bell's voice over the experimental device say to him, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you."

On this date:

In 1496, Christopher Columbus concluded his second visit to the Western Hemisphere as he left Hispaniola for Spain.

In 1629, England's King Charles I dissolved Parliament. He would not call it back for 11 years.

In 1785, Thomas Jefferson was appointed minister to France, succeeding Benjamin Franklin.

In 1848, the Senate ratified the Treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, ending the war with Mexico.

In 1864, Ulysses S. Grant became commander of the Union armies in the Civil War.

In 1880, the Salvation Army arrived in the United States from England.

UT hands multiculturalism its just fate

Multicultural education" took a lopsided licking at the University of Texas the other day. Hook 'em, Horns!

Murchison

The faculty, by mail ballot, swatted down a proposal that all students take and pass six hours' course work in non-white cultures — African-American, for example, or plain African; or Asian, Islamic, Hispanic, whatever.

Anything wrong, in this complex world, with improving our understanding of other cultures? Not one blessed thing wrong with it — save when, as at UT, the experience is peddled as sociological missionary work.

The multiculturalists, at UT and elsewhere, are out to cut Western culture down to size. The bulk of them consider the West, in one degree or another, racist, sexist and imperialist. They want to show students the moral equality, if not indeed the downright superiority, of other cultures.

The faculty ballot at UT floored them, 759-434, with the science and engineering departments weighing in heavily on the side of traditional academic concerns. This comes on top of the decision last year not to turn a freshman composition course, English 306, into a seminar on racism and sexism. UT's faculty is doing a lot better than its football teams.

A journalism professor complains that "Texas is in its normal position, bringing up the rear." If he means the rear of the multicultural movement, why, praise be! The rear of this misguided endeavor is where every decent university should aspire to be.

You have to give the multiculturalists credit — they're candid. The ad hoc committee that drew up the defeated proposal acknowledged that, at bottom, its purposes were subeducational.

One purpose, the proposal explained (quoting a faculty committee), was "the empowerment of minority faculty and students." The proposal was expected likewise to reduce "racial intolerance on campus" and help overturn "racial and gender stereotypes."

"Much of the pressure behind multicultural education," the committee confessed, "is due to a growing sense that a fair deal for minorities in this country cannot be achieved by changes in the economic and political arenas alone. Powerful instruments of culture, such as universities, museums, and libraries must also change if groups such as African-Americans and Hispanic-Americans are to feel at home in their own country without completely accommodating to what seems from the outside to be a monolithic culture derived from Northern and Western Europe."

Indeed, we do want people to feel at home here. That's one thing our common (not monolithic) culture was all about, back when we had one — intellectual unity instead of fragmentation; general appreciation of the best and truest, as contrasted with the trendiest.

Various UT profs argued that the curriculum shouldn't be weighed down with the nice but unnecessary. Multiculturalism as a supplement to Western culture? Nobel physics laureate Steven Weinberg objected that "too many (students) are not well grounded in any sort of culture at all. I find that often they have no idea of the order of events in history and no taste for the great art and literature of the past."

The larger society exposes us daily to multiculturalism, he added.

The UT debate reminds us how sterile and dangerous is all this beating up on the West — the fountainhead of our religion, science, technology, manners, morals and political theory.

Charley Reese

Jerry Brown is last hope for United States

Just tell us the truth," Paul Tsongas likes to say. Okay, Mr. Tsongas, the truth is the only candidate in either party telling the American people the truth is Jerry Brown, former governor of California.

Reese

Let's examine some of this truth, Brown is dishing out.

"Our democratic system has been the object of a hostile takeover engineered by a confederacy of corruption, careerism and campaign consulting. ... Incredible sums — literally hundreds of millions of dollars — from political action committees, lobbyists and wealthy patrons have flooded into the campaign war chests of Washington's entrenched political elite — Democrats and Republicans alike.

"And, of course, the forces of greed are rewarded richly for the campaign contributions. Unjust tax breaks are only one form of acknowledgement. Agreeing to look the other way, these politicians opened the door to the plunder of savings and loans and a merger mania which gutted some of our most respected companies," Brown said.

That's one truth. Anybody who has observed the political scene knows it is the exact truth. It's the reason why people say it doesn't matter who you vote for or which party — you get the same results. Its' the reason why campaign after campaign, promise after promise, you get a virtually identical government whether the incumbents are Republicans or Democrats or conservatives or liberals.

It is the most important political truth in the postwar era and the fate of United States depends on how many American citizens understand that and do something about it.

Brown points out that to rationalize their behavior, private greed and corrupt power champion materialism and self-interest over moral responsibility and community. "To protect their power they inject poisons into the body politic; appeals to fear and selfishness replace calls to hope and sacrifice."

That's another political truth.

"If we continue to allow our children's rightful heritage to be plundered by politicians and greedy interests, if we do not halt the auctioning off of this nation's assets to foreigners to underwrite our debts, if we force succeeding generations to sell their future to pay for our excesses, then we will certainly have betrayed our heritage ... The future of America's children and their children in nothing less than our moral test."

Brown is being pilloried by the Establishment, which fears him like an AIDS virus. Moonbeam. Weird. Loudmouth populist. That's what you're hearing, but what you're not hearing is that Jerry Brown has a higher IQ and a better education than any of the other candidates. Certainly higher and better than any Washington journalist who is doing his bit to protect the Beltway Establishment.

The stupidest criticism of Brown is that he has in the past raised millions of dollars in special interest money. Of course he has and he talks about that. He knows the system and he has rejected it.

People say politicians are all the same. I'm telling you Brown isn't. People are always saying, "What can I do?" I'm telling you to enlist as one of Brown's winter soldiers to save this nation from material collapse which will surely be followed by a loss of freedom. Call that famous number, 1-800-426-1112.

I've never before endorsed a candidate, though I always say which way I intend to vote. But I've never before lived in 1992. I've never before seen my country so close to financial collapse. I've never before seen it so corrupt. I've never before seen my countrymen so consistently propagandized. I've never before seen so much cynicism and defeatism.

This is one of those times when politics as usual can be fatal to democracy. I invite you to open your mind, make an effort to hear Brown, and decide for yourself. The other candidates are just more of the same bad medicine in different bottles.

Atlanta's Native American Tough Guys get set

Baseball season is almost upon us again and the Atlanta Braves are still the Atlanta Braves. But how long can that last?

Grizzard

Protests likely will continue alleging the name is an insult to Native Americans, previously known as Indians because Christopher Columbus didn't know a lot about geography.

Columbus sailed to the New World 500 years ago and when he landed he thought he was in India, so that's what he called the people he saw there — Indians.

Actually Columbus landed in Miami and the people he saw there were drug dealers, but since he also didn't know anything about automobiles he mistook the Mercedes convertibles they were driving for elephants, and there you are.

Personally, I don't think Native Americans is exactly right either since America got its name from an Italian.

I think The People Who Were Here First is a lot better regardless of how difficult it might be to teach kids to say, "Let's go outside and play Cowboys and The People Who Were Here First."

To be politically correct then, the Cleveland Indian baseball team would be known as The Cleveland The People Who Were Here First.

The Kansas City Chiefs' football team would be called The Kansas City The People Who Were Here First's Big Bosses, and the Washington Redskin football team would become the Washington a Slang Word for The People Who Were Here First.

The Atlanta baseball team would go by The People Who Were Here First's Tough Guys.

A newspaper in Oregon has adopted something close to that. It will no longer use the nicknames of teams that are offensive to The People Who Were Here First.

The Braves will be referred to, for instance, as "The baseball team in Atlanta."

This reminds me of what happened to the University of Georgia's band.

It had been called The Dixie Redcoat Band for as long as the university had a band. But in the '70s there came a demand to remove "Dixie" because it was insulting to blacks, currently known as African Americans.

The Georgia band became simply The Redcoat Band. My stepbrother-comedian-radio-star-philosopher Ludlow Porch wrote a letter to the Atlanta papers taking this even further.

He said the word "Red" had to do with communism and also needed to go, which left The Coat Band. Then he dealt with the entire word "Redcoat," which is what the British were called in the Revolutionary War.

"To use 'Redcoat,' " wrote Ludlow, "would be an affront to descendants of those who fought for American independence.

"Next, the word 'Band.' That brought to mind Poncho Villa and his 'band' of desperados, which glorifies criminals.

"From this point forward," Ludlow wrote, "we should refer to the University of Georgia musicians simply as 'The.' "

During the protests of the Atlanta nickname and the fact its fans showed up to cheer wearing feathers and war paint, a newsroom wit passed around a list of every major league baseball team nickname and why they could be politically incorrect.

"Dodgers" is insensitive to those who ran away to Canada to avoid the draft during the Vietnam War.

"Phillies" is an insult to women.

"Twins" is insulting to couples who can't have children.

The point here is if we really get picky we can find something politically incorrect about everything.

Meanwhile, I'll take the baseball team in San Diego to push the baseball team in Atlanta in the National League West this season, but I can't use the San Diego nickname.

It's offensive to non-Catholics, like us Methodists.

HIV-infected Haitian refugees to remain at naval base, memo shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Haitian refugees infected with the AIDS virus will be kept at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, while they apply for political asylum, according to a government memo obtained Monday.

Immigration authorities at Guantanamo were directed in the Feb. 29 memo to conduct full interviews of the more than 230 HIV-infected Haitians found to have credible claims for political asylum.

The procedure for handling the asylum claims of Haitians infected with the AIDS virus was outlined by Grover J. Rees, general counsel for the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

It was immediately assailed by refugee rights advocates, who argued that the Bush administration was denying equal treatment to the HIV-infected Haitians.

By keeping them at Guantanamo, "these people won't have access to attorneys," said Cheryl Little, an attorney for the Haitian Refugee Center in Miami.

"It is important to have legal representation at that interview," she said. "Representation in asylum claims is imperative, and statistics show that asylum is granted much more often when there is legal representation than when there isn't."

Little said that human rights groups and lawyers have generally been barred from traveling to Guantanamo Bay to interview Haitians detained at the navy base.

Haitians allowed to travel to this country to press their asylum claims can rely on lawyers or voluntary organizations to help them make their application, Little noted.

Besides having the benefit of legal counsel, Haitians seeking asylum in Florida can appeal a denial of asylum to the Board of Immigration Appeals and the federal courts, said Arthur C. Helton, of the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights.

But for the HIV-infected Haitians at Guantanamo, the "procedure really will end with the decision made by the interviewer" and "no procedural safeguards will be permitted," Helton said.

Rees declined to comment.

Since the Sept. 30 military coup that toppled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, the U.S. Coast Guard has intercepted 16,000 Haitians trying to sail to Florida in leaky boats.

They were detained at Guantanamo Bay, where 6,094 were been found eligible to travel to Florida to apply for political asylum because they had credible fears of political persecution, according to INS figures.

More than 2,500 have come to this country and the rest are still awaiting transportation to Florida.

The Coast Guard has returned 8,707 Haitians who were found not to have credible claims of political persecution. The State Department says it has found no evidence that repatriated Haitians suffered reprisals.

Supreme Court overturns death sentence

By Linda Greenhouse
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court overturned a death sentence Monday on the ground that the prosecution violated a convicted murderer's First Amendment rights by telling the jury that he belonged to a white racist prison gang called the Aryan Brotherhood.

The vote was 8 to 1, with Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist writing for the majority and Justice Clarence Thomas casting the only dissenting vote.

The convicted murderer, David Dawson, who is white, had just escaped from a state prison in Delaware when he murdered a white woman and stole her car. The prosecution introduced evidence of Dawson's membership in the Aryan Brotherhood at the sentencing phase of his trial without trying to show the information was relevant either to the crime or to Dawson's character.

In his majority opinion on Monday, Rehnquist said because the evidence indicated nothing more than Dawson's "abstract beliefs," the state violated the First Amendment's guarantee of freedom of association by providing the information to the sentencing jury.

"We have held that the First Amendment protects an individual's right to join groups and associate with others holding similar beliefs," Rehnquist said. His opinion emphasized the First Amendment would not bar the use of "associational evidence" that was relevant either to the crime itself or to an aspect of the defendant's character, such as an indication that a defendant was committed to violence and would be dangerous in the future.

But in this case, the chief justice said, Delaware failed to show Mr. Dawson's membership in the Aryan Brotherhood was relevant to his sentencing. "On the present record one is left with the feeling that the Aryan Brotherhood evidence was employed simply because the jury would find these beliefs morally reprehensible," Rehnquist said. In that circumstance, the introduction of the evidence was a "constitutional error," he said.

The First Amendment has rarely if ever been a factor in a death penalty decision. As circumscribed as the majority opinion was in this case, the outcome was still somewhat surprising from a court that has seemed in recent cases to be intent on clearing away obstacles to the death penalty.

Thomas, in his dissenting opinion, objected both to the court's discussion of relevance and to the majority's analysis of the First Amendment issue.

Dawson's membership in the Aryan Brotherhood "had relevance at sentencing," Thomas said, because a jury could have used it to draw inferences about his character.

"In my judgment, a jury reasonably could conclude from Dawson's membership in a prison gang that he had engaged in some sort of forbidden activities while in prison," Justice Thomas said. Also, he said, the evidence was relevant in countering the defense effort to portray Dawson as a kind person who had earned credit for good behavior while in prison.

Thomas said he had "difficulty seeing what the First Amendment adds to the analysis." He accused the other justices of adhering to a "double standard" in death penalty cases, in which defendants are given more leeway than prosecutors.

Justices OK California law on term limits

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court let a California term-limit law stand on Monday — bolstering a national movement to impose similar curbs on incumbency in other state legislatures and in Congress.

The California law, approved by voters in 1990, holds members of the state assembly to a maximum of six years in office and state senators and the governor to eight years. Voters in Oklahoma and Colorado also approved term-limit initiatives in 1990, and the issue will be on the ballot this fall in 18 states, including Florida and Ohio.

Without comment, the U.S. Supreme Court left intact a California Supreme Court ruling that said the controversial law — known as Proposition 140 — does not violate the constitutional rights of a citizen who wants to run for public office or to vote for any candidate.

The court's refusal to hear a challenge "gives us great encouragement," said Jim Coynes, a spokesman for Americans to Limit Congressional Terms. "It removes another hurdle to enacting term limits."

The case dealt only with state officials. The Supreme Court will likely have to rule on whether the Constitution allows states to limit the terms of their members of Congress, Coynes said.

Still, the decision "opens the path" to other states enacting term limits, he said.

In Florida, John Sowinski, executive director for the "Eight is Enough" campaign, told the Associated Press, "What the Supreme Court is saying, and what we've known all along, is term limits is good public policy. They did what was right and listened to the people."

Attorneys for the California state legislature had argued unsuccessfully that the law violated the constitutional rights of both voters and legislators.

"California's Proposition 140 steals from every citizen the right to vote for the candidate of his or her choice," they contended.

California's attorney general defended the law, arguing that it is "a proper and lawful exercise of the sovereign power of the people of California."

Under a constitutional amendment, the president of the United States is limited to serving two four-year terms and there are term limits on the governors of many states. However, this was the first time the Supreme Court had been asked to consider whether such curbs can be imposed on state legislatures through referenda.

.10% Bonus For All Team Account Customers

All three of Team Bank's new Choice CDs are so good, you might have a tough time deciding which one you want.

Our 18 month CD pays 7% the first 90 days, then for the remaining term, goes to the rate that was in effect the day your account was opened. Our 36 month CD starts out with a bonus rate of 8% for 90 days then goes to the purchase day rate for its remainder.

Then there's our Jump CD. With the Jump, your interest rate starts at the current market value. But, you have the option at any time during its 24 month term to make a one-time "jump" to a higher rate if the market rate happens to rise. When you decide to boost your rate, all you have to do is tell us.

Also, if you're looking for an IRA, no problem. All three of our CD packages are also available as tax-deferred IRA CDs.

And there's more good news if you have a Team Account. That's because all Team Account customers get an extra tenth of a percent on any Choice CD for its entire term.

So drop by Team Bank and let us tell you all about our three great Choice CDs. Then we'll give you all the time you need to come to a decision.

Prosecutors, defense lawyers work to free two inmates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Overzealous detectives framed two men for the 1973 murder of an off-duty sheriff's deputy, contend defense attorneys who Monday sought the men's release from prison after 17½ years.

And prosecutors said they'd join defense lawyers in asking a judge to free Clarence Chance and Benjamin Powell and wipe the convictions off their records. District Attorney Ira Reiner said police had held back information that could have helped acquit the men.

"A great injustice has been visited upon these people," Reiner said. "The material (police) had, they didn't turn over to prosecutors or the defense."

Chance's attorney, Barry Tarlow, said: "The stench from these convictions is so great that you hardly have to be a bloodhound to realize that this case was polluted."

A hearing on freeing the men is set for March 25.

Chance, 42, and Powell, 44, were convicted in 1975 of killing Los Angeles County Deputy David Andrews, who was gunned down in a gas station restroom. Police believed the motive was robbery.

No physical evidence tied Chance and Powell to the murder, Tarlow said, but they were convicted and sentenced to life in prison based on the testimony of three girls who claimed to have seen the men responsible for the shooting.

The three now have signed affidavits saying they falsely implicated the two because officers pressured them into lying.

Also, new evidence allegedly shows the Police Department withheld from prosecutors information that a jailhouse informant who testified against the pair may have lied.

An independent investigator, James McCloskey of Princeton, N.J., found "a shocking pattern of police intimidation and systematic use of perjured testimony," Tarlow wrote in a brief filed Monday in Superior Court.

McCloskey, 49, a Protestant lay minister, founded Centurion Ministries to provide free detective services to people who may be wrongly imprisoned because of police or prosecutor corruption, incompetent defense or human error.

Chance read an article about his work in Ebony magazine and wrote him a letter, saying he had been in jail after a domestic dispute at the time Andrews was shot. Chance wrote that he was released without being charged nearly an hour after the shooting — several hours later than police paperwork said he was freed.

"We've all worked very hard on their behalf and ... now, hopefully, justice will prevail," McCloskey said.

Deputy District Attorney Peter Bozanich conducted his own inquiry when confronted with the new evidence.

"It's been clear to us for the last couple of weeks that this was not a proper conviction," Bozanich said.

Bozanich said the new evidence casts so much doubt on the case that his office won't retry Chance and Powell for Andrews' murder if they are freed.

Cmdr. Robert Gil, a police spokesman, said police investigators were reviewing the case with the district attorney's office.

Tarlow said the case "shows the best and worst of the criminal justice system."

Korean ship remains under scrutiny; no confrontation likely, officials say

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is still watching the North Korean freighter believed to be carrying Scud-C missiles to Iran or Syria, but a confrontation over the vessel does not appear imminent, officials said Monday.

President Bush said he discussed the matter of the North Korean vessel Monday morning with National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft but had "nothing to say publicly on that."

"We continue to monitor the ship, but there's been no actions taken and we wouldn't speculate on any at this point — at any time, actually," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters.

The ship has declared itself bound for Africa, but U.S. officials have said they believe it's headed for the Iranian port of Bandar Abbas.

U.S. and Israeli officials have expressed deep concern about the possible delivery of the medium-range missiles and its potential destabilizing effect on the volatile Middle East.

The Defense Department has made clear the Navy is prepared to intercept the vessel, should President Bush give the order to do so.

A senior Pentagon official stressed that no such decision has yet been made, and he didn't expect any action in the near future.

"Not today, anyway, but that doesn't rule anything in or out," he said. "We're still interested in that ship."

The official declined to pinpoint the location of the vessel. But should it enter the Persian Gulf "it could be intercepted," he said. However, he added, that didn't necessarily mean U.S. officials would board it.

The Tehran Times, which usually reflects the thinking of Iran's President Hashemi Rafsanjani, accused the United States of contemplating piracy. "In the opinion of most political observers, the legal advisers at the U.S. State Department are quite aware that what the United States is planning to do is an outright act of international piracy."

The United States is authorized by international law and by U.N. sanctions against Iraq to intercept shipping that may be destined for Iraq or for a port where goods might be transhipped to Iraq.

If the ship contains cargo bound for Iran and perhaps Syria, U.S. officials admit they have little authority to divert the vessel.

Jury indicts 3 in plant fire that killed 25

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Three officials of a chicken processing plant where fire killed 25 people were indicted Monday on involuntary manslaughter charges.

State officials have said the Imperial Food Products Inc. plant in Hamlet, 60 miles southwest of Fayetteville, had no fire alarm or sprinkler system, its exits were unmarked and doors were locked when the fire struck Sept. 3. Another 56 people were injured.

Imperial Food owner Emmett J. Roe; his son, Brad M. Roe, the plant's director of operations; and plant manager James N. Hair were indicted on 25 counts each.

Police plan program to educate public on officers' duties

■ The Citizen's Police Academy is the sixth such session the department has sponsored in three years.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

Citizen's Police Academy Six premieres in Midland next week and is expected to be held over at the Midland Police Department for 11 consecutive weeks.

The program is designed to inform the public about the intricacies of police work as practiced by Midland police officers.

"Hopefully, the people who enroll will leave with a better understanding of how the department operates and what the officer is thinking while he's on the job," said Ron Sartor, community relations officer and academy organizer.

The motto of the program, "Understanding through Education," is intended to reflect the rapport between the students and police officers.

"The officers who speak are not specialists; they simply work in the areas of what we ask them to talk about," Sartor said. "It also helps the officers learn about what the community is thinking, which helps them learn to communicate with the public better."

Students are asked to fill out surveys during the first and last sessions, testing their feelings about the department.

Sartor said the surveys, which are anonymously completed, fulfill a requirement the department must complete in the process to become accredited by four major law enforcement organizations.

Sartor anticipates an academy enrollment of about 30 students for the spring session, which is the sixth the department has had in the past three years.

Instructors will speak on a variety of topics, including narcotics, patrol procedures, criminal investigations, police training and recruiting, identification and crime analysis.

Also, Dr. David Koch, who interviews potential officers to determine how capable they will be in dealing with stress, will talk about stress management. According to Sartor, Koch's presentation has been one of the more popular speeches among past students.

"Also, Chief (Richard) Czech or a deputy chief are present at every meeting," Sartor said. "This gives the students the chance to ask questions and talk about their concerns about police department procedures."

The classes are not intended to provide formal law enforcement training, but students are given the opportunity to ride with an on-duty officer and are also provided with weapons training if desired.

According to Sartor, the diverse backgrounds of the students have been an asset of past academies.

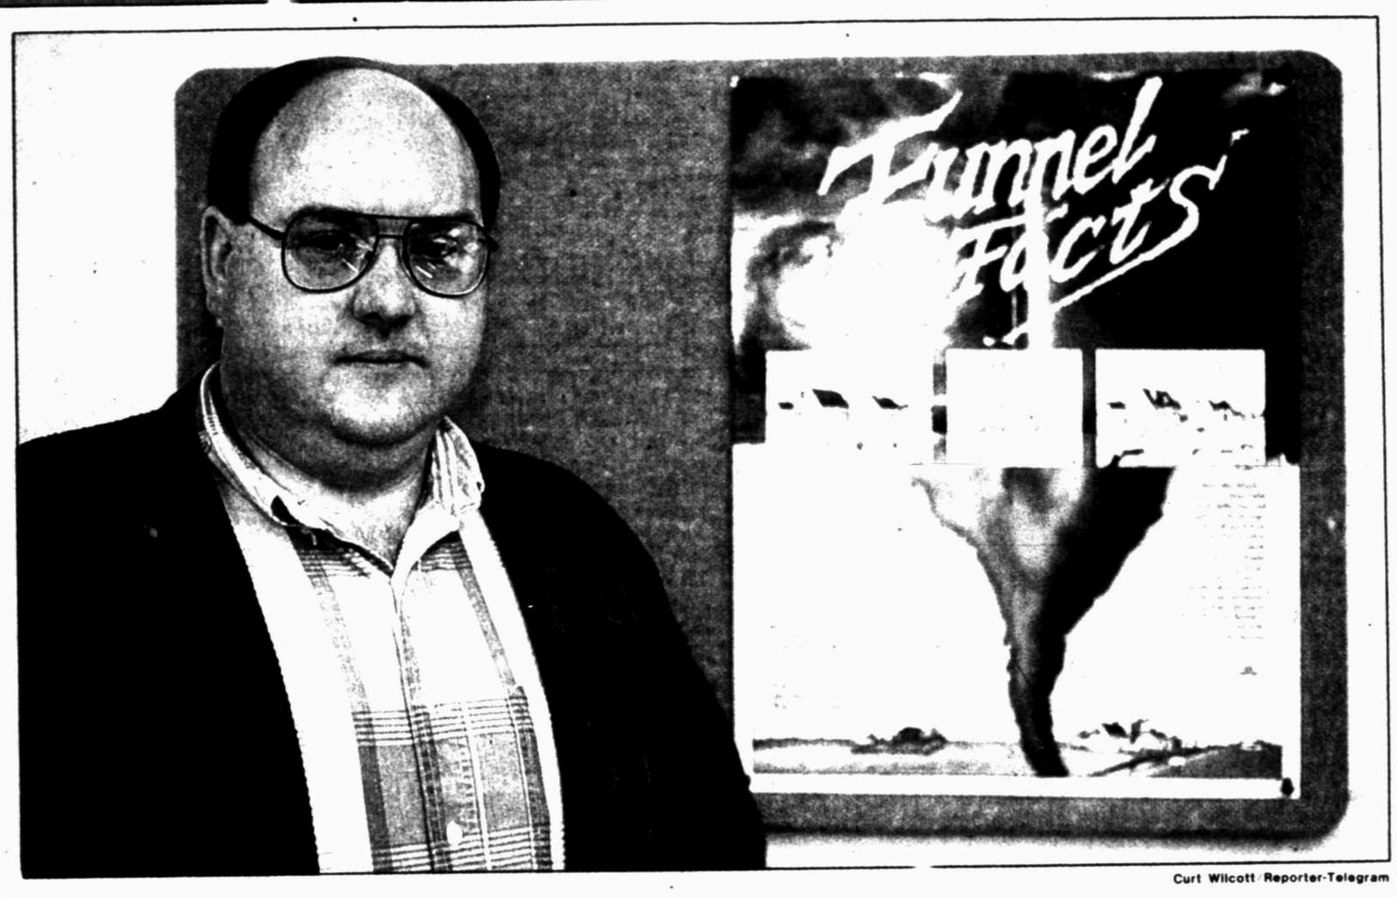
INTRODUCING ...



Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Bill Shipman, emergency management coordinator for the city of Midland, is responsible for organizing the city's response to tornadoes and other potential disasters. He also maintains the city's preparedness for such occurrences.

Coordinator plans for the worst

■ The city's emergency management leader will conduct a drill in June based on a dangerous chemical spill.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Bill Shipman is no longer a Boy Scout, but he holds onto the group's motto, "Be prepared."

As the emergency management coordinator for the city of Midland, Shipman's job is being prepared for disasters — everything from a major transportation accident to a life-threatening flood.

"One of the questions I get asked is, 'Well, nothing happens in Midland, so what do you do?'" Shipman said. "The answer is, 'we exercise all the time.'"

The exercises include regular gatherings of city leaders to plan their reactions to disaster, as well as one full-scale drill each year. In the past, simulated plane crashes and tornadoes have allowed firefighters, police and other safety and emergency personnel to practice their work. This year, the drill will revolve around a dangerous chemical spill.

"It's a good one to do because we have this stuff going through here all the time," Shipman said. "We try to exercise the different things that could actually happen here."

In June, he will lead a drill on the premise that the missile propellent nitrogen tetroxite spilled on Interstate Highway 20, forcing the evacuation of residents and a controlled cleanup effort. Trucks carrying the chemical regularly pass through Midland on the interstate enroute to White Sands, N.M.

It is Shipman's job to coordinate the emergency response and oversee the city's preparedness. He is designated to keep local emergency personnel and city leaders working together. He also maintains contact with state and federal agencies as well as service organizations like the Red Cross.

At the heart of good response to disaster is good planning, Shipman said, although luck could play a role as well.

"With a little advance warning you can be ready for something," Shipman said. "But you aren't usually that lucky." The city's response to disaster is detailed in its Emergency Operations Plan, which contains sections on every probable disaster and is updated regularly.

An emergency command center and radio room are set aside in Loraine Center, the new home of the city's Police Department and communications operations. It is there that the police and fire chiefs, city manager and others will meet during a disaster response effort.

Still, Shipman said, one can't be prepared for everything.

"Something is always going to go wrong. There's always something," he said. "But that's good, really. Then you see things don't always work out as you planned and you need to be prepared all the more."

Shipman hopes local residents and businesses will form their own disaster plans.

"People need to know how they will respond," he said. "When something happens, we'll get there as soon as we can, but we can't do everything. People need to have their own plans, to help themselves until we can get there."

He also recommends people familiarize themselves with severe weather conditions, especially the alerts for tornadoes as that

Commissioners vote to expand sheriff's funds

■ Court adds $35,000 to Gary Painter's budget.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

The Midland County Commissioners' Court on Monday amended Sheriff Gary Painter's budget by increasing it $35,000.

Additionally, the Commissioners' Court agreed to carry liability insurance on 18 additional vehicles assigned to the Sheriff's Department. Before the action, 44 of the sheriff's road-worthy fleet of 62 vehicles were insured.

"It's a prudent practice that we insure those vehicles," County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said. The annual cost of insuring the 18 additional vehicles will cost the county about $5,000, Seltzer said.

The Commissioners' Court had declined to authorize funding for maintenance and insurance for more than 44 vehicles assigned to the sheriff. But Judge Virgil Mulanax, in a Feb. 26 order, prohibited the commissioners from restricting the number of vehicles operated by the sheriff and from interfering with his day-to-day operations.

The sheriff's $35,000 budgetary increases were opposed by commissioners Guy McCrary and Louisa Valencia, who said the additional funds Painter requested in his travel account and evidence-and-obtainment account could have been transferred from other line-item accounts without bringing in new funds.

The amendment brings the sheriff's 1992 fiscal-year budget, now about half-depleted, to $4.527 million from $4.492 million.

Beique declares mayoral bid

Staff Report

Midland consulting geologist Louis Beique, announcing his candidacy for mayor, says if elected he'll support the elimination of the two at-large council seats.

Beique

"Part of my program will be to try to eliminate at-large districts belonging to another age," Beique said in a prepared release. Representatives of the local League of United Latin American Citizens have threatened a lawsuit if the council does not take action toward eliminating the at-large seats and creating six single-member districts.

Beique said he wants to reduce "top-heavy" city management and return the money saved to other city employees.

"I am distressed by our lackadaisical leadership and the poor management of our city resources," Beique said. "Instead of just 'throw the bums out,' I am willing to involve myself in the process of city government."

Beique said he has time to devote to the office and, as a long-time resident, deeply cares about the city.

He proposes cuts in spending and changes to the city charter.

Beique said he would like to see elections held each time a person resigns from the council, an issue currently the subject of question by members of the minority community. At present, seats vacated by resignation are filled by an appointment from the remaining members of the council.

Beique also advocates forcing the resignation of council members who announce they will seek another office before their current term expires.

Utility rates, Beique said, are too high while energy costs are low. He also advocates finding new methods of street repair and construction for better quality.

Mayoral elections, as well as races for district 3 and 4 council seats, are scheduled for May 2. Filing ends March 18.

Williams to head county road, bridge department

John David "Johnny" Williams, a 52-year-old native Midlander who has a background in road construction and management, has been named superintendent of Midland County's Road and Bridge Department.

Williams succeeds Albert Stewart, 65, who is retiring from the post he has held since the mid-1970s.

County Judge Charles W. "Bro" Seltzer said although Stewart will be "sorely missed, (Williams) is exactly the type of person who needs to head that department.

"The guy seems like a really aggressive, go-getter type of individual," Seltzer said after the five-member Commissioners' Court unanimously appointed him to the $34,596-a-year job.

Nutritionist stresses balance

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

At a time when some youngsters may be overweight or are not eating right and "yo-yo" diets are common among adults, maintaining a balanced diet is essential for a healthy lifestyle, according to Treva Whitehead, a nutritional consultant for the Associated Milk Producers.

"Children's nutrition is very important. Many children know about good nutrition but don't know how to put that into effect," said Ms. Whitehead, currently traveling in West Texas to speak about nutrition.

"There are many children who are not getting all the nutrients they need because they are not taking in a balanced diet," she said.

FUNDS: Court OKs increase in sheriff's budget and Win Brown and Seltzer voted for bolstering the sheriff's budget.

(From 1B)

"I see no fat in the fire," Wright said of the budget, which the Commissioners' Court considered austere in a budget study last year.

The sheriff had requested his $30,000 1992 travel budget — already expended — for transferring prisoners, serving warrants, and carrying out extraditions and other functions be supplemented by $30,000.

Last year the commissioners set Painter's travel budget at $30,000, although he had requested about $60,000.

McCrary said he wasn't convinced the $30,000 could not be found in the approximately $2.5 million remaining in the budget.

"I agree with Guy 100 percent," Ms. Valencia said. "We set a budget, and we worked hard" in trimming the budget down from the sheriff's original requests. "We are the 'bad, old guys.'"

The Commissioners' Court, Ms. Valencia said, should be able to find the money somewhere in the sheriff's various line items.

"I don't know where it is going to come from," Seltzer said.

In another budget-amendment request, Painter had requested $12,000 for his "cash-box" account from which he draws funds for his undercover agents to buy illicit drugs in efforts to arrest drug traffickers.

Under questioning by Wright, Painter said he now has $2,100 for undercover operations. Subsequently, Wright, Brown and Seltzer voted to increase the account by $5,000, not the $12,000 Painter had requested.

Again, McCrary and Ms. Valencia cast opposing votes.

In another budgetary matter, Seltzer said Painter already has spent 52.5 percent of the $110,000 vehicle-maintenance budget through the fifth month of the fiscal year.

The county's budget year starts on Oct. 1.

Seltzer advised the sheriff to examine his vehicle maintenance and operational expenses.

Painter said he suspects the double-billing of several items artificially raised his vehicle expenditures.

Wright said Monday's meeting seemed to "set up a dialogue, we can work together."

"Hopefully, we can do that," said Painter, who later noted: "We certainly appreciate the opportunity to sit down with the commissioners and have some dialogue."

DIET: Nutritionist urges balanced lifestyle to stay healthly

(From 1B)

"Many children are a little bit unfit because of poor eating habits or lack of exercise," Ms. Whitehead said.

To maintain a healthy lifestyle, youngsters need to practice what many have been taught in school: to eat daily from the four basic food groups, she said.

"I think we need to emphasize the need for balance in our lives . . . we're talking about good nutrition as well as the exercise component because they go hand in hand," Ms. Whitehead said.

Parents can help by having healthy foods at home and by setting a good example, including healthy snacking, she said.

"Snacks should provide about 20 percent of the nutrients a child gets in a day," Ms. Whitehead said.

Unbalanced diets in some children don't just equate to overweight youngsters. Sometimes not eating right is prompted by the thought of being overweight.

According to one study, about 55 percent of girls by eighth grade think they are fat compared to only 13 percent who are actually overweight, Ms. Whitehead said. And 50 percent of the girls in that study had been on a diet at one time or another, she said.

Ms. Whitehead's message of good nutrition also applies to adults, especially in the area of dieting, she said.

Ms. Whitehead cautioned against a common occurrence among dieters — yo-yo dieting.

"It refers to losing weight, gaining weight and doing so repeatedly," she said.

Weight fluctuation can adversely affect the way an individual diets, Ms. Whitehead said.

First, such weight gain/loss slows down the metabolism making it harder to lose weight, she said.

Secondly, for someone trying to lose weight, trying to keep the pounds off can lead to a lower self-esteem.

"They loose weight but gain it right back," she said.

Thirdly, once someone gets into a cycle of loosing and gaining pounds, it's not always easy to change.

"It's hard to make a person learn good lifelong eating habits," Ms. Whitehead said.

Permanently maintaining a balanced diet is the key to avoiding yo-yo diets and the unheathly results, she said.

Changes in lifestyle should include simplifying food tastes, eating smaller portions, changing food preparation (such as boiling instead of frying), and changing grocery shopping habits.

Someone living such a lifestyle can look at gradual changes and not sudden weight loss, Ms. Whitehead said.

CLINIC: Hematology/oncology office for children opens today anything."

As a precaution, the Wharffes have been taking Kayleigh for periodic check-ups to a hematology/oncology clinic in Odessa. The clinic is operated by the Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center, where the girl received treatment.

Beginning today, Kayleigh will be able go to a hematology/oncology clinic, also operated by the Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center, at Midland's Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

"I think it's wonderful." Ms. Wharff said. "We were going over to Odessa. It's not that far away but it's nice to have something close. And the doctors who will be here are the ones who treated her in Fort Worth."

In addition, the new clinic will be in more familiar surroundings for Kayleigh, her mother said.

The clinic, which will be located at the Allison Cancer Center, will be open the second Tuesday of every month and provide speciality services for children suffering from cancer or blood disorders.

Four physicians, under the direction of Dr. W. Paul Bowman, medical director of hematology/oncology at Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center, will see patients at the clinic.

The clinic will handle some of the overflow of patients who visit the Odessa clinic, said Robin Worthington, director of public relations at Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center.

The Odessa clinic serves about 125 Permian Basin area patients at a rate of approximately 30 visits a month, she said.

"We already serve a number of patients in that area," Ms. Worthington said. "This hospital (in Fort Worth) serves about a 50-county area in north central and West Texas including Midland."

The Midland clinic will serve as a diagnostic and evaluation center, but patients "will probably have to travel to Fort Worth for certain types of services," Ms. Worthington said.

The local clinic will fill a need in Midland, said a spokesperson for Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

"We don't have a doctor who specializes in children's hematology/oncology," she said. "It will be good for the area since we don't have one of these specialists here in Midland."

season approaches. March begins the seven-month period when the storms are considered likely.

"But we'll really be looking out during June, July and August," Shipman said. A tornado "watch" means conditions are right for the development of a tornado, while a tornado "warning" means one has already been sighted. Shipman said during a watch, residents should prepare to take shelter and keep an eye on weather reports, but during a warning, they should seek shelter.

"It may seem like not a lot happens here," he said. "But the danger in that is people don't think about if something did. They aren't ready."

Shipman said he is always ready, although he doesn't get tense thinking about the possibilities. Neither does he sit on pins and needles, worrying that "today would be the day."

"When it happens, you just take care of it," Shipman said. But is he cool under pressure? "You have to be, if you do what I do," he said.

Shipman said he thinks of his job like a form of insurance for the city.

"You don't think about it all the time, until you need it," he said. "But there's always that chance you will need it. That's why I'm here."

Justice Department refuses to approve redistricting map

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department refused Monday to approve a Texas state Senate redistricting map essentially identical to a plan precleared last November.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John R. Dunne said he could not preclear the plan approved in January by the Texas Legislature since a three-judge federal panel in Austin found it did not meet a key section of the Voting Rights Act.

"That ruling, although challenged by the state, has not been vacated or reversed," Dunne wrote in a letter Monday to Texas Secretary of State John Hannah.

"Accordingly, I cannot conclude, as I must under the Voting Rights Act, that the plan meets the act's preclearance requirements. Therefore, on behalf of the attorney general, I must object to the redistricting plan."

The ruling has no effect on today's state Senate primary, which will proceed as planned under the redistricting map drawn by the three-judge panel in Austin.

The Justice Department's action did not catch state officials off guard.

"Well, we're not surprised," said Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

Justice Department officials indicated Feb. 21 during a hearing in Washington that they were not likely to approve the state's plan, Dusek noted.

"We'll just have to go forward from here," he said.

The Justice Department had approved an identical plan on Nov. 18, but that plan was invalidated by the Texas Supreme Court.

The three-judge panel in Austin crafted a plan of its own and imposed it before the Legislature was able to convene in special session and officially endorse its earlier plan.

Research group shows school property taxes to increase $1 billion from last year

AUSTIN (AP) — School property tax levies for 1991-92 will total $7.5 billion — a $1 billion, 15 percent increase from last year, according to preliminary figures Monday from the Texas Research League.

Business property owners and renters generally are the ones "really feeling the increase," the private, non-profit educational research association said. The Texas Research League has about 800 mostly business members.

The league also said that if lawmakers were trying to reduce reliance on the local property tax with the new school funding law, they failed.

The local share went up from 53 percent to 55 percent, with state aid totaling $6.3 billion, the group said. That included about a $597 million state aid increase.

"However, it appears that the finance plan did more nearly equalize property tax burdens among rich and poor school districts," the league said in a written analysis.

The Texas Supreme Court has ruled unconstitutional the current school funding plan, which was designed to shift hundreds of millions of dollars from richer to poorer school districts within new education taxing regions, made up of one or several counties.

The plan was meant to meet the Supreme Court's mandate to equalize school funding. The court plan gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to come up with a new system.

The Research League said the public perception was that the reform plan amounted to massive local property tax redistribution.

However, it said that in the vast majority of districts, local schools were able to keep the amount of tax raised in that district.

Port Arthur sues Southwestern Bell Co.

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — The city of Port Arthur on Monday sued Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., claiming that the company has been underpaying for years in a franchise fee agreement with the city.

Attorneys for the city said they hoped to include over 400 municipalities across Texas with similar fee agreements with Southwestern Bell in a class action lawsuit.

In the lawsuit, filed in state district court in Beaumont, Port Arthur accuses Bell of breach of contract, fraud and misrepresentation.

The agreements in question grant the phone company the use of streets, alleys and other public properties needed to provide telecommunications services.

Under the Port Arthur pact, adopted in 1966, Southwestern Bell agreed to pay the city an annual fee equal to 2 percent of the gross receipts received by the phone company from local telephone services within city limits. The 20-year agreement was renewed in 1986.

Port Arthur claims that Southwestern Bell has excluded a significant portion of its revenues from the gross receipts used to calculate the franchise fee. In addition, the city says the company assigned some of its lucrative businesses, such as yellow page advertising, to sister subsidiaries of parent Southwestern Bell Corp. to avoid paying franchise fees on them.

Attorney Frederick Furth said although no exact calculations had been reached, the city believes Bell owes it hundreds of thousands of dollars for each of the past seven to eight years.

POLICE: Officers plan program

(From 1B)

"We've had plumbers, housewives, doctors — you name it. We get a good quality cross-cut section of the community," he said. "And there are no racial barriers or anything of the sort."

The program is open to residents at least 17-years-old who live and work in Midland.

The academy begins March 17 and continues every Tuesday until May 26. The sessions run from 7 to 10 p.m. in the third floor classroom of the Midland Police Department at 601 N. Loraine.

A graduation banquet is scheduled for May 29.

act type of individual we were looking for," Seltzer said, and will "definitely be an asset" to Midland County.

Seltzer said "Williams will bring a new, aggressive leadership to the Road and Bridge Department" and will offer "a new dimension in management and leadership."

Between March 16 and April 30 when Stewart retires, Williams will be working with his predecessor to become accustomed to the complexities of the Road and Bridge Department and to review the daily business of maintaining and repairing the county's roads.

Williams will be overseeing a crew of more than 30 workers and managing a $1.46-million budget.

Williams is a former foreman for South Texas Construction Company and former owner-president of a general dirt and paving contracting company.

Police shoot man after standoff

GARLAND (AP) — Garland police Monday fatally shot a man who pointed a rifle at a police officer after a 90-minute standoff, officials said.

Ronald Benard Pulvermacher, 29, of North Richland Hills went to the house in Garland about 2:30 p.m. and threatened to kill his ex-wife, police said in a statement.

Pulvermacher fled in his car when officers arrived and was stopped several blocks away. He threatened to kill himself if any officers approached the car, the statement said.

Comet Cleaners brings Springtime freshness to households

Comet has three convenient locations. Shown, the store at 3108 W. Cuthbert in Midland.

Spring is almost upon us, a perfect time to freshen the house, start preparing for Easter and the long, leisurely days of summer. Do it quickly and easily with a little help from Comet Cleaners.

Start with one room, gather up bedspreads, comforters, dust ruffles, pillow shams, draperies and even small rugs. Take them to Comet before 10 a.m., Monday through Saturday, and pick them up again that same afternoon.

In just one day, one room will be done and you can move on to the next.

Be sure, though, to have coordinated and matching fabrics cleaned at the same time since there can sometimes be a slight change in the color. Another hint to keep colors looking bright and new: Close shades or blinds in the hot afternoon sun to prevent discoloration of fabrics.

Remember, too, as Spring approaches and you start planning to put away your Winter wardrobe that you'll want to protect your clothing investment. Comet Cleaners can clean and mothproof your clothing.

The staff at Comet reports a lot of moth damage here in Midland — worst of all, moth damage often doesn't show until a garment is cleaned, and then it's just too late. But just ask for the mothproofing at Comet and your winter things will be safe.

If your Monday through Friday schedule is just too hectic to allow you time to take care of your dry cleaning, keep in mind the fact that Comet cleans on Saturday for your convenience. Just bring items in to any of the three locations by 9 a.m. any Saturday. Your clothes will be ready for pick up by 3 p.m.

Comet Cleaners is committed to customer satisfaction and convenience . Store hours are designed with working people in mind.

You can depend on Comet. It's been owned by Billie Jo Corbell since the first location opened in 1982.

Other Comet Cleaners special services include:

- Handy drive-through service at each location.
- Minor alterations (hems, zippers and mending) — in by 9 a.m. and out by 5 p.m.
- Major alterations and professional tailoring Monday through Friday.
- Leather and suede cleaning.
- Free minor repairs and small charges on other jobs.
- Same-day service (Monday through Saturday) and one-hour cleaning on request.
- Free personal consultation.

Comet has three locations. Stores are at 3108 W. Cuthbert; 2602 N. Midland Dr. (with one-hour service available), and 2106 N. "A" St. (package mailing and UPS available). Hours are 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays. Hours truly designed for working people.

J&S 'detective' solves 'The Case of the Shocking Shower'

If this were one of those hardboiled detective novels — the kind that feature Mickey Spillane or Mike Hammer — it would begin:

"The lady's eyes were as blue as the uniform of the cop standing beside her and as big as saucers.

" 'She nearly got electrocuted,' " the burly cop said, barely glancing up from his notepad."

Of course, this isn't a hardboiled detective novel.

It's a recent call that J&S Commercial Electric's Terry Shipman answered.

The lady of the house received the shock of her life that morning when she reached up to adjust the nozzle on her shower.

"She got 100 volts," Shipman said, who took a measurement of the electricity running to the shower head.

"If she'd been taking a bath instead of a shower, it might have killed her big time."

Shipman solved the mystery the old-fashioned way — he didn't leave a wire unchecked. He wormed his way into the crawl space under the house, them climbed into the attic to check all the house's wiring. In the end, he solved the case by grounding out the likely and unlikely culprits.

"They had just hooked up a dishwasher themselves," he said.

Do-it-yourself electrical work has its perils, according to J&S Commercial Electric's Charles Cunningham, one of the firm's three senior partners.

Terry Shipman of J&S Commercial Electric can solve electrical mysteries in your home.

"It can be very, very dangerous, especially if you take shortcuts," Cunningham said, "You may have known what you were doing, but it's the guy who comes along afterward who gets hurt."

Shipman said that home wiring and wiring new appliances should be left to professionals.

If you know how to do it correctly, then go ahead," he said. "Otherwise. . .," he left the sentence unfinished.

Some of the common electrical problems that crop up around the house are the result of the improper installation of dishwashers and disposal units.

Shipman said that the major culprit is often a shorted circuit and an improper ground.

Fortunately, this story has a happy ending.

But, as the home improvement season kicks off, the pros at J&S Commercial Electric urge homeowners unfamiliar with electrical wiring and current codes to call for help when they undertake a remodeling project.

No job is too large — Shipman can call on the resources of the firm's extensive oilfield division — or too small.

If need be, he'll track down the shocking truth and solve the mystery of a 110-volt shower head. Call 563-2209. As for Terry Shipman, private electrician.

Lewellen Construction celebrates 10 years in Midland

Bill Lewellen of Lewellen Construction Company has 16 years of experience in the siding, storm window installation and window replacement business. For the past 10 years, he has worked exclusively in the Midland-Odessa area. The craftsmen he employs all have been with him from between four and eight years. So it's no wonder area residents have come to trust and depend upon the skill, professionalism and longevity of Lewellen Construction.

"We're not only all experienced, but we've put in a lot of years together. We work very well as a team. Also, we've been here so long that our customers know we stand behind our work," Lewellen said.

Literally hundreds of Midland-Odessa residents have turned to Lewellen Construction for siding, replacement and storm windows (which are custom-built), gutters and carport construction and installation.

One of the reasons area homeowners depend on Lewellen Construction is the installation warranty that the company offers. The siding installed by Lewellen Construction not only carries a lifetime warranty on the material itself, but an installation warranty that lasts as long as the purchaser owns the home.

"Steel siding comes with a lifetime warranty," Lewellen said. "If it's properly installed, there's no reason it shouldn't last that long. That's why we've attached our own installation guarantee. I have absolute confidence in our experience and expertise."

Another Lewellen Construction enterprise is the seamless aluminum guttering that they manufacture themselves. "We build it right on the job site to custom lengths," Lewellen said. "The guttering is completely seamless from corner to corner — which, of course, eliminates leaking joints."

The guttering can be ordered in a large variety of colors to match or complement the home's color.

The benefits of guttering are obvious. It protects flower beds from too much rain and subsequent damage to plants. It protects the home itself from discoloration and deterioration. "In some homes that have no gutter, you can see the streak marks on the fascia, windows and walls," Lewellen said.

As if Lewellen Construction's experience and expertise weren't already enough to encourage homeowners to call for a free estimate, the company is offering a special incentive through April 15.

Free seamless guttering to those who order full siding and trim for their homes.

Besides 10 years in business and special offers, Bill Lewellen has even more to celebrate. His wife Melody recently joined his "team" as office manager. "I'm learning a lot and really enjoying the business," she said.

For a free estimate on siding, replacement and storm windows, guttering and/or carport installation call Lewellen at 686,8007 or 563-4520. Lewellen Construction is located at 410 East County Road 130 — just four miles south of downtown.

Bill and Melody Lewellen enjoy working together. Melody has just recently become a member of the company's staff.

French anthem finds itself under attack for bloodthirsty lyrics

By Alan Riding
N.Y. Times News Service

PARIS — Exactly 200 years after France's stirringly revolutionary national anthem was composed, "les enfants de la patrie" are once again being called to arms — this time to defend La Marseillaise against an attack by political correctness.

The offensive has taken the form of a campaign to replace the anthem's most bloodthirsty lyrics with more brotherly phrases to demonstrate that French patriots no longer dream of spilling the "impure blood" of foreigners. Instead, the new message would be kinder and gentler.

But while more than 100 prominent citizens, including France's first lady, Danielle Mitterrand, have endorsed the campaign, the response of traditionalists has been swift. Last week, a Committee for the Defense of the Marseillaise was formed to the cry of "Hands off our national anthem!"

"We should not touch it," Georges Suffert wrote in a signed editorial in Le Figaro. "It is part of our history. We should not meddle with the past. It was a Soviet speciality to change the accounts of former times according to their mood. The Marseillaise is what it is."

The idea of softening the lyrics was first raised three years ago by Abbott Pierre, a much-admired defender of human rights, but it only gathered momentum after a 10-year-old girl, Severine Dupelloux, sang the anthem at the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics in Albertville on Feb. 8.

Suddenly, the contrast between the innocence of her unaccompanied voice and the ferocity of the words — subtitled for the benefit of foreign television viewers — seemed too much. "How can one call out 'To Arms!' in an Olympic Stadium?" Charles Ferauge, a retired fire department general, asked.

In an article in Le Figaro, Ferauge described the research by a former fireman, Armand Thuair, who had studied 175 national anthems and had reached the conclusion that "France today is the only country in the world to have adopted and preserved a bellicose anthem."

He also quoted an alternative text written by Thuair in which "To Arms, Citizens" becomes "Together, Citizens" and the anthem's aim goes from mobilizing the nation to fight a treacherous enemy intent on "slaughtering sons, wives and kin" to celebrating freedom and silencing the canons.

The Committee for a Marseillaise of Fraternity, which counts singers, industrialists and politicians as well as Mrs. Mitterrand among its sponsors, has in turn proposed a competition to come up with "a text in harmony with the republican spirit of liberty, equality and fraternity and with the universal desire for peace."

The committee particularly wants the reference to "impure blood" removed because, with xenophobic sentiments on the rise in France, it seems to play into the hands of the National Front, the ultra-rightist party that has called for the expulsion of Third World immigrants.

The debate is timely because April 24 marks the 200th anniversary of the night when Capt. Claude-Joseph Rouget de Lisle wrote the music and lyrics of what he first called "The War Hymn of the Army of the Rhine" to inspire French troops under siege by Prussian soldiers in Strasbourg.

It immediately caught on and was given its present name after soldiers from Marseilles sang it on their march to Paris three months later. In 1795, it was adopted as the national anthem and, while it was abandoned for much of the 19th century, it was enshrined in the Constitution in 1879.

Since then, its melody has become enormously popular around the world, at times even sung to different lyrics by foreign political movements. In France, only the first of its seven verses and chorus is normally sung, with its fiery tone maintained until a milder final verse that was written for children.

While a poll in the Roman Catholic weekly, Le Pelerin, said 40 percent of those questioned agreed that the lyrics of the anthem are indeed bloody, only 25 percent wanted a constitutional amendment to approve a new text. And that has encouraged opponents of any change.

"It's part of our national heritage," said Robert Panraud, a former security minister who heads the Committee for the Defense of the Marseillaise. "It's like the monarchy in Britain: a bit out of date, perhaps, but important for national unity. Changing it would only create divisions in society."

DEAR ABBY

Readers respond to Mom who let her son off hook

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy your column and usually agree with your advice, but today I disagreed so completely, I had to write. I refer to the letter signed "Don's Mother." It seems Don (age 14) was with some kids who were throwing rocks at passing cars, and when the police knocked on his mother's door, asking if her son had been with the rock-throwing kids, she told the police that her son had been home with her for several hours and could not possibly have been with those boys.

Van Buren

Then she wrote to you, saying she felt guilty for having lied, and you said: "Don't be so hard on yourself; you did what most mothers would have done — instinctively — to protect their children. However, had you let Don take his lumps from the police, it may have been a valuable learning experience. Tell him you'll never lie to protect him again, and insist that he avoid hanging out with kids who have to run from the police."

Abby, a better solution would have been for Don's mother to have marched her son down to the police station and stood beside him while he confessed. That way, both mother and son would have felt good about their honesty. Parents should use every opportunity to teach by example.

Sorry, Abby, you deserve a wet noodle swat for that one. — JEANNINE MILNE, HONEOYE FALLS, N.Y.

DEAR JEANNINE: A wet noodle is far too gentle. Try a 2-by-4. And lest you think that nobody else noticed, read on:

DEAR ABBY: So you think it's maternal instinct for a mother to lie to protect her son? Then you tell her to tell her son that next time she won't lie for him.

Abby, how many times do parents say "next time"? As the mother of two sons, if the police came to my door looking for my children, they would have to answer for themselves. I would be at their side to help them deal with the consequences, but it would never cross my mind to lie to the authorities. — SACRAMENTO MOM

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the boys throwing rocks at passing cars: I think your advice should have gone further than "Don't do it again." It should have been explained that breaking a windshield is no minor thing.

One Halloween evening, because some brainless kids threw a handful of eggs at my windshield, I couldn't see a thing and had a lot of trouble trying to pull off the road. Tell that stupid mother to have her son pass this information on to those stupid kids before they kill someone. — FRESNO READER

DEAR ABBY: Throwing rocks at passing cars is no minor prank. When my aunt was a teen-ager, she was in a car when some kid threw a rock at it. The rock shattered the windshield, and the glass cut deeply into one eye, leaving her blind in that eye forever. — J.J.C., MILWAUKEE

This one's for everybody, from teens to seniors! To purchase Abby's new booklet, "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It," send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Gorilla study shows higher population

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Zoological researchers have found evidence that the population of endangered mountain gorillas in equatorial Africa is twice the previous estimate.

DNA analysis of hair samples collected from the mountain gorillas in the Impenetrable Forest in Uganda indicate the group is of the same genetic stock as a group in Rwanda. If so, the population would be approximately 600 rather than the previous estimate of 310.

"Our current data indicate that there is no reason to believe that the two populations are not of the same genetic stock," said San Diego Zoo researcher Oliver A. Ryder.

LBJ cowboy hat goes for $10,000 at auction

WASHINGTON (NYT) — There's almost no limit to what a displaced Texan will spend to own a little piece of Texas.

Lynda Johnson Robb, daughter of Lyndon B. Johnson, auctioned off one of her famous father's hats at a dinner in Washington to celebrate Texas Independence Day and raise scholarship money.

About 400 University of Texas graduates packed the dining room of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel for the auction. Money from the annual event goes into a scholarship funded by the Washington Texas Exes for Washington area high school students attending UT.

Bidding on LBJ's formal gray felt cowboy hat, inscribed with a satin silk-screen Texas flag and lable from the LBJ ranch, started Monday night at $800 with a call-in from a UT graduate in Richmond, Va.

When it was over five minutes later, Nolanda Hill, a Dallas graduate, had parted with $10,000 for the stylish Texas memento.

"I came here to buy that hat," Hill said. "I'm a big fan of LBJ and I care about what he did for civil rights."

Hill's husband graduated from the University of Texas law school. "My husband has never given a dime to UT," Hill said. "Now he has."

U.S. Rep. J.J. "Jake" Pickle, D-Texas, had assured the bidders that their contributions to the Texas Exes would be tax-deductible.

The 1992 UT scholarship award will go to Kathryn Kresh, a senior at a Maryland high school.

David Gallagher, a 1988 public relations graduate, said Texas Exes around the world set aside March 2 to celebrate their state and their school. That was the date in 1836 that Texans formed a government and army under the command of Sam Houston, and four days before the fall of the Alamo.

"This is really the day of the year where Texas Exes of all ages come together to talk about their experiences," Gallagher said.

Simply living is hard work for most Americans

By Erma Bombeck

Every time I read a story where the Japanese accuse Americans of being lazy, I go nuts.

I'm reminded of the reader who wrote that she was planning a brunch for 10, yelling at her teenage son to be sure and lock the front door, and biting off a hangnail — at the same time she was making love to her husband. We are all tap-dancing as fast as we can.

Bombeck

Americans never do one thing at a time.

We listen to the news as we exercise, eat lunch at our desk and get eyeglasses made within an hour.

Instant communication is our constant companion. We are only one step away from phone implants. FAX machines have made the transition from boardroom to bedroom.

There are a lot of things that would justify Eagle bashing, but being soft on the work ethic is not one of them. Americans are driven by the need to succeed. One of the first things we do when we are felled by a virus is to crawl into the office and cough all over everyone there, thus spreading misery through the entire building.

We attack leisure like flies going after sticky buns. The football and tennis seasons run into the basketball and hockey seasons, which overlap with the opening day of baseball and the golf circuit. Men watch one game, listen to another over headphones, and read the scores of all the others flashed on a board in the stadium.

Even the athletes could retire if they wanted, but no, they use their injuries in their twilight years to sell headache remedies and Nuprin on television.

Part of the problem of assigning work hours to Americans is interpreting what is work and what is considered "living." Work to the Japanese is the time spent in a factory somewhere. The 65-hour week racked up by American women who run a home and raise a family is not considered "employment." If housework is so much fun, then how come designer Vera Wang doesn't dress us in cute skating costumes and enter us in an Olympic competition with an electric broom and Dustbuster?

If our children aren't lucky enough to do diaper commercials or get residuals from family sitcoms, they graduate from college heavily in debt.

We give a hot dog 90 seconds to cook, a pizza 30 minutes to be delivered to our door and a nasal spray 10 seconds to clear our heads.

If Japanese parliamentary leader Yoshio Sakurauchi wants to present a rebuttal to all of this, I can give him two minutes — tops. Then I have to get back to work.

REPUBLICAN VOTER ALERT!!!

DON'T VOTE FOR ANN RICHARDS' CANDIDATE!

She wants you to vote for Judge Howell's opponent. She knows the young man is unelectable in November.

Judge Howell's opponent was involved in The Minority Voter Intimidation Scandal. He went to polling places, abusing judicial authority to hang illegal signs.

In 1986, Ann Richards urged TV watchers to vote for "My friend, Oscar Mauzy." Bet on it, she'll be back in November.

A vote for conservative Judge Howell's Republican opponent plays into her hands. She'll wave those intimidating signs on TV just like Teddy Kennedy did. She'll hurt the entire ticket. What Ann Richards wants is not what you want.

Should Judge Howell's opponent win Oscar Mauzy's place on the Supreme Court, he'll have to resign his seat. Who will Ann Richards pick? "My friend, Oscar Mauzy!!" At most, your vote for Judge Howell's opponent is a vote to give Mauzy new life. A vote for Judge Howell's Republican opponent is a vote to make Democrat Oscar Mauzy Chief Justice of what the Dallas Morning News calls "Texas' largest and busiest appellate court."

REPUBLICAN VOTERS!!

Don't fall for Ann Richards' candidate and his special interest TV smile. Vote the only choice of thinking Republicans. Choose Senior Judge Charles Ben Howell.

Rebels can clinch outright

■ Midland Lee's unbeaten soccer team can claim sole possession of the District 3 title with a win over Abilene High today.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

Abilene High's chance to share the District 3 soccer championship can be snuffed today at Midland Lee, where the Rebels host the Eagles at 4:30 p.m.

While Midland High looks to maintain its third-place status with a season-ending road win at Abilene Cooper, the game at Lee could be for all the marbles.

The unranked Rebels, picked for a fourth-place finish in a preseason coaches' poll, own a spotless 13-0 season record and moved to 10-0 in district while clinching a share of the league crown with a 6-0 win Saturday at Odessa High.

The Eagles, who topped the preseason poll and are presently ranked ninth in the state, stand at 8-2 and are also playoff bound. But only a win today at Lee can keep AHS in the hunt for a share of the league title.

"These kids (Rebels) are on a mission. They don't want to share the championship, they want to win it outright," said Lee coach Eddie Bull, whose charges defeated AHS to win the pre-district Abilene Invitational and later downed the Eagles in the first round of district play.

"They have good memories, too. They remember being picked to finish fourth in the coaches' poll," he said, adding that the Lee camp is displeased that a team it has beaten on two occasions has maintained its Top 10 ranking while the undefeated Rebels have gotten no state recognition.

In order to earn co-champion status, the Eagles must win both today and in their regular-season finale on Saturday against winless OHS. AHS' formula for success also calls for a season-ending loss by the Rebels, Saturday, at San Angelo.

A longshot? Apparently not in the mind of AHS coach Randy Allen.

"I think there are at least five teams in this district capable of beating any of the other teams on a given day," Allen said following a 2-1 shootout win at MHS earlier in the season.

"I don't think Lee is that much better than the rest of the contenders," he said at the time.

But the Rebels felled Abilene Cooper that day and have given up just a single goal since. Lee has seven shutouts to its credit in league competition, and the Rebels have blanked nine teams en route to their 13-0 overall mark.

The MHS Bulldogs are 8-7 for the year and 6-5 in the loop entering today's final game (5:30 p.m.). A Bulldog win would not only assure MHS of a third-place finish and a record over the .500 mark, it would also extract a bit of revenge from the Cougars, who won the first meeting between the two teams at MHS, putting a damper on the 'Dogs playoff hopes.

San Angelo (5-5) takes on Odessa Permian (2-8) in today's other district game. OHS is idle.

Texas' Brown vows not to think so much

■ A good year from pitcher Kevin Brown might be enough to push the Rangers over the top in the American League West.

Associated Press

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — Kevin Brown is determined to lose the tag of a $2 million arm and a 10-cent head.

"I want to be aggressive," the Texas Rangers pitcher said. "Maybe in the past I was trying to pitch too fine. I'm going to make hitters put the ball in play. I have enough talent that I don't have to try to fool people."

Brown, who in the past was accused of not making good pitches when it counts, allowed one hit in three innings against the Minnesota Twins Saturday in his spring debut. Last year, Brown was 9-12 with a 4.40 ERA and walked 228 in 210 innings and had a 4.40 ERA.

"I may have been thinking too much," he said. "I'm just going to go back to pitching the way I did in college. I'm going after guys."

Brown had a fastball in the low to mid 90s. Stuff isn't his problem. Concentrating is.

"The other teams are going to have to handle my best stuff," he said. "I'm going after them and if they can beat my best stuff then that's just fine."

Helping Brown with his challenging attitude is new assistant pitching coach Ray Burris, who won 108 games in the big leagues and never had a season where walks outnumbered his strikeouts.

"Ray is a strong person," Brown said. "He makes guys work hard. He makes you understand how important it is to challenge hitters and get that first pitch over."

Texas general manager Tom Grieve said that Texas would have been closer to the first-place Minnesota Twins if Brown had a better year.

"As it was, we were only 10 games out of first place," Grieve said. "Kevin is one of the keys to our season. He has a great arm and has a great sinker. He just has to learn to throw strikes."

Brown said if the Texas pitchers can throw strikes, Texas's defense will get better. The Rangers were the worst fielding team in the AL West last year.

"It's easy for the defense to lose concentration when a pitcher isn't throwing strikes," Brown said. "And if the defense gets better, then it helps the pitcher."

Texas Ranger pitcher Kevin Brown hopes the route to a more successful season will be by becoming 'more aggressive' on the mound.

Tarpley gets shot with Wichita Falls CBA team

Associated Press

DALLAS — Roy Tarpley, banned from the NBA for refusing to take a mandatory drug test, will return to pro basketball tonight as a member of the Wichita Falls Texans of the Continental Basketball Association.

Tarpley

Tarpley arrived in Wichita Falls for practice Monday night.

"He will suit out tomorrow. Now, whether or not he plays is up to John (Trealor, coach of the minor league team)," Texans spokesman Larry Long said.

A news conference was called for 9:30 a.m. CST Tuesday at the Red River Hospital, where Tarpley will continue his drug aftercare.

"Anywhere he plays, you've got to have someone there to help him continue his aftercare treatment," Long said.

Tarpley, the most talented and troubled player in Dallas Mavericks history, was banned for two years from the NBA on Oct. 16, when he refused to take a drug test and received strike three in the NBA's anti-drug program.

He applied for CBA admission on Feb. 21 and was accepted six days later. However, Tarpley chose not to play right away, and the Texans left the door open for him to join them when he felt he was ready.

The CBA requires drug tests from players upon admittance into the league and randomly throughout the season.

The Texans, in first place in the Southern Division, play Tri-City on Tuesday night. Wichita Falls finishes the season with home games against Columbus on Thursday and Omaha on Sunday.

"I'm sure that we're going to sell a lot of tickets," Long said. "The phones are ringing off the wall right now. We expect a good crowd to say the least.

"It's a very big game for us. Besides having Roy Tarpley here in uniform, it's a crucial game for us to hold onto first place in the division."

Tarpley would be eligible for the CBA playoffs only if a teammate is called up to the NBA before the end of the regular season or during the playoffs, which begin March 19.

Tarpley, a 7-foot center-forward, and Richard Dumas, whose career at Oklahoma State was cut short by substance abuse, completed treatment programs at the John Lucas Drug Rehabilitation Center in Houston last month and were granted immediate permission to play in the CBA, a minor league with an NBA developmental contract. Dumas joined the Oklahoma City Cavalry.

Tarpley, 27, can apply for reinstatement to the NBA after the start of the 1993-94 season.

Taylor takes stand against Switzer

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Reporter Jack Taylor Jr. testified Monday that "I thought I was going to drop" after reading Barry Switzer's book, in which the former Oklahoma football coach linked Taylor to an alleged scheme to plant drugs on a football player.

"I have always abhorred drugs, and to be accused of such a heinous crime ... was absolutely appalling and horrifying," Taylor told a jury in his $30 million lawsuit against Switzer.

"I was shaking," Taylor said when he first read Switzer's account in "Bootlegger's Boy." "I thought I was going to drop."

Taylor, an award-winning investigative journalist, said Switzer's allegation has ruined his reputation, prevented him from getting a good job, and prompted a flurry of threatening and harassing telephone calls.

And Taylor said that his decision to sue Switzer for libel, slander and invasion of privacy, cost him his job at the Dallas Times Herald, forcing him to take a position with the Los Angeles Daily News, separated from his family.

"I miss my wife, my children. Most of all, I just miss someone to talk too," he said.

He said that because of financial and family health reasons his wife, Myrna, has been forced to stay in Dallas.

Under questioning from his attorney, Jack Ayres of Dallas, Taylor said he wrote several investigative stories on Switzer and the Oklahoma football team.

But, Taylor said, he held no vendetta against Switzer, and several times withheld stories because they could not be corroborated to his satisfaction, or were too "sordid," including a report about Switzer having an affair with the wife of one of assistant coaches.

Taylor, who worked at the Daily Oklahoman at the time, said the newspaper didn't publish that story, but later reported what Esquire magazine had written about the incident.

In opening arguments, Switzer's attorney Jim George told the jury that Taylor had given his notes to the Esquire writer, but on Monday Taylor denied that.

In "Bootlegger's Boy," Switzer links Taylor to a scheme to plant drugs on reserve defensive player, Brad McBride, in Miami around the 1988 Orange Bowl.

Taylor denied the allegation. Switzer's attorneys claim the facts of the chapter dealing with Taylor are "substantially true." Switzer has filed a $6 million counter suit, alleging that Taylor illegally obtained his income tax returns.

The drug conspiracy allegation revolves around a woman, Janeeo Dior, who lived with McBride, and was giving information about alleged ticket scalping and drug use on the football team to former Dallas Times Herald sports writer, Dan Langendorf.

Pirates' Van Slyke heads to Pittsburgh doctor for bad back

Associated Press

Baseball Roundup

Maybe the Pittsburgh Pirates signed the wrong outfielder when they gave Andy Van Slyke a $12.65 million, three-year extension last spring.

Van Slyke returned to Pittsburgh on Monday to have his ailing back examined.

Van Slyke was bothered by sporadic back pain last season, when he batted .265 with 17 home runs and 83 RBIs. He will be examined Tuesday by Pittsburgh team orthopedist Dr. Jack Failla, who will study a magnetic resonance imaging test performed in January.

"It's something I've had on and off for some time," Van Slyke said. "The intensity was such that it never caused me not to play. This concerns me, but it doesn't consume me. If the reports are bad, though, it may consume me."

Failla said Van Slyke may have a degenerative disk, rather than a ruptured disk — the injury that sidelined Pirates infielder Jeff King for most of last season.

"Sometimes, there's not much you can do with a degenerative disk except treat the aftereffects of the pain," Failla said.

Van Slyke was part of one of baseball's best outfields with Barry Bonds and Bobby Bonilla. Bonilla left as a free agent and signed with the New York Mets for $29 million over five seasons. Bonds is eligible for free agency this fall.

Bo Jackson, another player beset with injuries, began a week of decision by striking out once and hitting an RBI single against Rick Sutcliffe in the Baltimore Orioles' 8-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox at St. Petersburg, Fla. After limping badly to first base on the hit, Jackson left for pinch-runner Joe Hall.

"I can't go on like this," Jackson said. "It's no fun getting two at-bats and letting someone run for me. I'm selfish that way. I like to run for myself."

Jackson was placed on waivers by the White Sox last week and baseball officials said Monday that he will clear at 1 p.m. CST today unless claimed. The move is designed to allow the team more flexibility in dealing with his contact and roster status.

Jackson said he's thinking about undergoing a different rehabilitation program for his ailing hip.

"We're going to sit down and talk to my doctors this week and make some changes," he said. "We're going to cover all aspects of the injury from A to Z, with A being a new program. If riding horses will help, then I'm going to ride the hell out of some horses."

Sutcliffe, insisted that the right shoulder that limited his playing time with the Chicago Cubs over the past two seasons was no longer a factor. But five of his 11 batters reached base Monday in the victory by the Orioles.

"Physically, everything's fine," Sutcliffe said. "I tried to throw a little bit harder than (last week), yet everything was up in the strike zone. Not a great performance, but I got some good work in."

The Orioles hope Sutcliffe, signed as a free agent in December, can help a staff that last year compiled a 4.59 ERA, highest in the majors and second-highest in club history.

"Basically, today I was just trying to get comfortable and turn up the velocity a little bit," he said. "There's still some more I need to do, though, particularly getting the ball down in the strike zone."

At Bradenton, Fla., non-roster utility infielder Luis Quinones homered twice, went 4-for-6 and drove in five runs as the Minnesota Twins beat the Pirates 11-2.

Quinones, a seven-year veteran signed as a free agent on Jan. 2, hit two-run homers off Jose Ausanio in the sixth and Mike Dalton in the ninth.

"Over my last four years, I've never had a spot for sure," Quinones said. "There's always been a lot of competition for me.

"I'd like to be a starter, but this team is pretty well set. The best I can do is go out there when I get my chances this spring and show them I can hit."

Bohanon ordered to rest arm

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. (AP) — Brian Bohanon, who has a history of arm problems, on Monday received an injection to reduce swelling in his left bicep and was ordered not to throw for five days.

Bonhanon, who felt his bicep tighten during Monday's game against St. Louis, also can't appear in a game until March 19, doctors said.

Bohanon, a left-hander, felt the twinge in the third inning of a 7-3 loss to the Cardinals. He walked two before he was taken out.

Doctors did an MRI test and discovered fluid around the bicep, but no damage to any tendons or muscles. The fluid was caused by irritation and inflammation, doctors said.

The Rangers, not wanted to take any chances, sent Bohanon immediately to the doctor when he came out of Monday's game.

"Brian said the bicep had been bothering him," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said. "I think he will be all right, but we want the doctors to tell us."

Bohanon is counted on as a possible fifth starter. Last year he underwent surgery to remove a torn cartilage from his left shoulder and started the season on the 60-day disabled list.

Cowboys sign Weatherspoon

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys on Monday signed running back Chuck Weatherspoon.

Weatherspoon, 23, a two-time All-Southwest Conference back for Houston, was drafted in the ninth round by Philadelphia in 1991. He was released by the Eagles on Aug. 19, and was claimed off waivers by Tampa Bay, where he played in the first four games.

Released by Tampa, he signed with Detroit's practice squad, where he spent the remainder of the season.

Weatherspoon rushed for 3,247 yards and caught 117 passes for 1,375 yards during his collegiate career.

Cougars fall to St. Louis, 7-1

HOUSTON (AP) — Dan Wetzel scattered eight hits over 7 2-3 innings and Tom O'Conner drove in three runs Monday as St. Louis beat Houston 7-1.

Wetzel (2-1) walked four and struck out two. Joe Moll didn't allow a hit while picking up his first save. Houston starter John Creech (0-2) suffered the loss. He was tagged for three runs on four hits in 2 2-3 innings.

The Billikens improved to 6-4, and the Cougars fell to 9-12.

X-Man controls Barkley, Knicks down Philadelphia

NBA

PHILADELPHIA — Xavier McDaniel wanted the assignment, got it and carried it out so well that the New York Knicks routed the Philadelphia 76ers.

McDaniel guarded Charles Barkley on Monday night, holding the All-Star forward scoreless in the final period as the Knicks eased past the 76ers 111-99.

"Anytime my mother picks up the paper, she says, 'Oooo, you got lit up last night.' I like to play the best forward anyway," McDaniel said. "I got a lot of help tonight. It's not like I'm afraid of a player. It's just a challenge. I know I've got to be focused because of him.

"If you are going to beat Philly, that's the way you are going to do it."

It also helps to have Patrick Ewing, who scored 35 points. And to get 20 points from McDaniel, just one fewer than Barkley managed.

Ewing shot 13-for-18 and McDaniel 9-for-15 for the Knicks, who hit 59 percent from the field.

Ewing thought defense was the main reason for the win.

"I thought we played a very good game," said the 7-foot center, who also contributed 11 rebounds and three blocked shots. "We played good defense. I wish we could have put it away earlier. We knew what we had to do and did it. If we take care of business, it will all work out."

New York won its fourth straight and snapped a four-game road losing streak. The Sixers dropped their second in a row after a three-game winning streak.

The Sixers had entered the game with a 8-2 record at home against Atlantic Division opponents.

"We stood around," coach Jim Lynam said. "It was more of our defensive inability. Their bench did a terrific job in the third quarter.

New York built a 19-point lead heading into the final quarter, but Armon Gilliam scored five points and Ron Anderson added four to bring the Sixers within 95-84 with 6:36 left. But Ewing added a pair of free throws and Mark Jackson scored on a breakaway layup.

As Philadelphia tried to close the gap, McDaniel got hot and scored six straight points.

SPC beats McLennan, 108-93

Staff Report

WACO — South Plains College ambushed 11th-ranked McLennan Community College here Monday night in the Region V junior college basketball tournament, 108-93, to advance to the finals of the today's Texas/New Mexico Junior College Championship against San Jacinto.

SPC shot a scorching 67 percent from the field, including an 8-of-14 mark from three-point range, to hold off the favored Highlanders. McLennan was as cold from the field as the Texans were hot, shooting 42 percent and a dismal 9-of-25 from beyond the arc.

The Texans were led in scoring by Terry Alexander and Kirby Williams, who both had 23 points. Shannon Brantley tried to be a one-man show for the Highlanders, scoring 26 points while hauling in seven of McLennan's 23 rebounds.

SPC moved to 24-9 for the season with the win, while McLennan fell to 28-5. The Texans face San Jac at 8 p.m. in tonight's final, a game that will be televised live by the HSE cable network.

UMass comes back for win

PHILADELPHIA — John Calipari came up with a novel approach Monday night in coaching No. 22 Massachusetts into the finals of the Atlantic 10 tournament.

Massachusetts trailed 61-58 with 5:20 left before running off 15 straight points to defeat Rhode Island 78-67.

"What happened was the kids started playing and I stopped coaching," Calipari said.

Massachusetts, which won its 11th straight game, will have the homecourt advantage in facing West Virginia on Thursday for the championship.

Calipari said he kept hammering his players with criticism throughout the game, a tactic he believes paid off with the victory.

"That's about as hard as I've been on the team all year," he said.

Massachusetts' Harper Williams led the way with 20 points, and Calipari said he provided the difference.

"We just kind of jumped on his coattail and got him the ball, and he took us to the championship game," Calipari said.

Rhode Island coach Al Skinner said the Minutemen's offense was his team's demise.

"They got the ball into the hands of the people we didn't want to have it," he said.

A steal and layup by Jason Alexander gave Rhode Island a 61-58 lead with 5:20 to play. Led by Williams, Massachusetts (27-4) then went on it 15-point run, capped by two free throws by Jim McCoy, for a 73-61 advantage with 1:10 remaining.

Massachusetts led throughout the first half and held a 37-27 lead with 18:41 left on a three-point play by Anton Brown. Rhode Island then went on a 13-3 run to tie the score at 40 on a layup by Jeff Kent.

After Massachusetts scored four straight points, Rhode Island's Andre Samuel scored six straight, giving the Rams their first lead, 46-44.

Brown added 17 points and McCoy 13 for UMass. Samuel had 18 and Kent 15 for Rhode Island (20-9).

NHL talks stall Monday

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Talks between NHL owners and players broke off Monday evening after nine hours of discussion that the union said yielded very little.

However, there was no indication that the players intend to strike right away.

"The season goes on," said Bryan Trottier of the Pittsburgh Penguins, president of the NHL Players Association.

Bob Goodenow, the NHLPA's executive director, said the two principal stumbling blocks were were changes in the free agency rules and a reduction of the entry draft from the present 12 rounds to six. He did not offer specifics, but said "we're nowhere different from where we started the day."

"We're less optimistic now than we were this morning," Trottier added.

In addition to liberalized free agency and a halving of the draft, the players want an arbitration system like baseball's, where independent arbitrators decide salary disputes. The current system uses arbitrators under league jurisdiction. The players also want a better pension plan and increased playoff money.

Owners, who met among themselves for two hours before the formal talks began, are at a disadvantage because they get the majority of their profit from the playoffs.

The players, on the other hand, get their final paychecks of the season on March 15. After that, players get from between $500 and $25,000 per man depending on how far their teams advance in the playoffs.

That led New York Islanders general manager Bill Torrey, a member of the negotiating committee, to predict a strike for March 16, the day after the players get their last paycheck. Others think a walkout could take place April 8, when the playoffs are scheduled to start.

Torrey, the only management official who has commented publicly, was silent Monday as negotiations started.

Driesell gets win No. 600

Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Given a new coaching life four years ago at James Madison, Lefty Driesell reached a milestone only few can claim — 600 victories.

With James Madison's 81-57 win over American in Sunday's Colonial Athletic Association semfinals, the 60-year-old Driesell became the third active coach and 13th overall in Division I to hit the 600-victory mark.

"It's been a nice trip," he said before the Dukes tried for Driesell's 601st in Monday's CAA title game against Old Dominion, "and I hope I can keep it rolling."

Among active coaches, only North Carolina's Dean Smith and Texas-El Paso's Don Haskins have more victories than Driesell. UNLV's Jerry Tarkanian has 625 wins, but is not included among active coaches because the school said he no longer is employed there.

In 1986, Driesell's coaching future looked to be at an end. It was the year Len Bias died of a cocaine overdose while Driesell was Maryland's coach.

Amid allegations that he instructed players and coaches to clear Bias' dorm room of evidence of drugs, Driesell went before a grand jury but was not indicted. Nonetheless, the controversy cost him his job at Maryland, where he was 348-159 in 17 years.

Instead of calling it quits after 26 years as a college coach, Driesell resurfaced in April 1988 at James Madison, a picturesque school in Harrisonburg, Va.

His 76-44 record in four seasons at James Madison pushes his career mark to 600-268. Before going to Maryland, he was 175-65 in nine seasons at Davidson, and he

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Investing in higher education will boost your earning power. Real estate purchases begin to pay off in June. Even a short summer vacation will strengthen family ties. October brings a rewarding love relationship. A change of lifestyle next December gives you new hope for the future. Launch a business partnership early in 1993. The outlook for innovative financial ventures is golden.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: journalist Bob Greene, actress Pamela Mason, playwright David Rabe, basketball coach Jim Valvano.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Become more aware of others' sensitive feelings and tone down your remarks. Work on your own, in your own fashion. A newcomer on the social scene arouses your curiosity. Introduce yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You may attract more attention than you expect at a meeting. Accept a challenge and run with it. You will leave the competition in the dust! Recent domestic pressures will subside.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Do not let a taste of success go to your head! You need to improve your act or perfect your skills. Taking an occasional time-out from work helps you stay sharp.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stick to your routine even if it sometimes bores you. If you want to update your appearance, now is the time! Make some bold changes. A new romantic interest is featured.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Secret dreams of romantic or career success can come true if you communicate your thoughts to someone in a position to help. At work, concentrate on projecting a professional image.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A conflict between home and career could arise. You may have to work overtime to bring a project in on time. Show higher-ups that your word is your bond. Meet a deadline.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Plot your next move with care. Cooperating with influential associates may be your best strategy. Attending a social event could lead to an interesting encounter.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your leadership skills shine through, allowing for smooth sailing at work. Instant rapport is possible with a newcomer. Pay more attention to current fashions when shopping for clothes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Steep yourself in creative work today. You will find that it centers you, giving you a strong sense of purpose. Someone influential expresses an interest in supporting your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It would be smart to let someone else lead today. A partner may be better at spotting trends than you are. Stick to what has proved practical in the past.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Get bill payments in the mail and tend to a credit matter you may have overlooked. You might have to shift funds around. Recheck your work to avoid embarrassing or costly mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone is willing to help you get a financial matter square[illegible]. Do not fall into the same kind of trap the next time around. Be willing to pool ideas with loved ones.

TODAY'S CHILDREN will enjoy their creature comforts without craving material possessions. A rewarding family life means everything to these loyal and affectionate Pisces. Supportive parents will help these youngsters stay on track with their schoolwork. A tendency to let things slide could have negative consequences. Creative and reliable, these Pisces can find great success in the business world by establishing their own special niche. They know how to spot and cash in on a trend.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dbl	4 ♠	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠

When you plan your campaign, make sure you have the entries to carry it out. If not, you might have to re-examine your priorities.

We like North's decision to make a takeout double of one spade despite holding only three hearts. The singleton spade means you will be taking ruffs in the short-trump hand, and if you don't act now, it might be too dangerous to start balancing later. East's leap to four spades put pressure on South, who emerged with colors flying by bidding six hearts.

A diamond lead would have given declarer no play, but West selected the queen of spades, taken in the closed hand. A trump to the queen and a trump back revealed the 3-1 break, so declarer drew the outstanding trump. Since East was marked with the king of spades by the opening lead, West could easily hold both missing club honors for the opening bid, so declarer ran the nine of clubs.

In with the queen, East found the winning defense, returning a diamond. Declarer won in dummy, but had no entry to the hand to repeat the club finesse. So declarer was forced to try to drop the club king by cashing the ace. When the monarch failed to appear, the result was down two.

Declarer was profligate with entries to the closed hand. When West showed out on the second trump, declarer should have left the last trump outstanding and taken the club finesse immediately. After winning the diamond return with the ace, declarer can then return to the closed hand with a trump to repeat the club finesse, and the slam rolls home.

Hospital orders Mayor Dinkins back for antibiotic treatments

NEW YORK — Mayor David Dinkins, who left the hospital Monday morning with what he thought was the flu, returned in the afternoon after feeling feverish during a bill-signing ceremony.

New York Hospital officials said his doctors learned shortly after the mayor's release that he had a bacterial infection. They decided to order him back for more tests and antibiotic treatments, the hospital said.

Elise Goldson of the hospital's press office said the mayor would be kept overnight.

Dinkins had admitted, "I'm not up to snuff," when he left the hospital Monday morning, but said he wanted to get back to work.

He said he felt feverish in the afternoon and was surprised but not worried to learn he had a bacterial infection and not the flu.

"My temperature was 101 an hour or so ago," he told reporters as he signed bills at City Hall.

Dinkins, 64, was hospitalized early Sunday after awakening with fever and chills.

The night before he had performed songs and jokes and ridden a horse at a local charity show.

INDIANAPOLIS — A nursing society is honoring actress Audrey Hepburn for promoting children's health around the world as UNICEF goodwill ambassador.

Hepburn

"Audrey Hepburn's humanity is an inevitable revelation that comes from her empathy with children in need," said Beth C. Vaughan-Wrobel, president of the Sigma Theta Tau International, a 160,000-member group. "She personified the sense of caring, which is an integral component of nursing."

Miss Hepburn will lecture health workers on global conditions of children's health care April 6, then will receive her distinguished lifetime achievement award April 7 at a fund-raiser for the association's library.

Miss Hepburn, 62, won an Academy Award in 1953 for her role in the film "Roman Holiday," and was nominated for "Sabrina," "The Nun's Story," "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and "Wait Until Dark."

LONDON — Queen Elizabeth II said Monday that time is running out to save the natural environment from destruction.

In her annual Commonwealth Day message, broadcast internationally, she asked all people of the Commonwealth, of which she is head, to remember they share the world with many other living things.

"The Earth is a gift to us all, whoever we are, wherever we live," she said. "But there is but one planet and all life on it is interdependent."

The Commonwealth, an association of 50 countries currently or formerly under British rule, is "responsible for one-third of this planet," the queen said. "We all share the task of ensuring that our world will remain fit for life and capable of sustaining us and those who will come after us."

The queen appealed directly to the young people of the Commonwealth.

"There is no time to spare," she said. "It is your future that is at stake."

LOS ANGELES — Actor James Marshall's portfolio photographs almost cost him his big role as Laura Palmer's boyfriend on television's "Twin Peaks."

During an interview last week promoting his new movie "Gladiator," the 25-year-old actor said "Twin Peaks" executive producer David Lynch casts from pictures — and "he didn't like my pictures."

"But at the end, he had cast everyone except James (Hurley) and Laura Palmer, and he finally agreed to see me," Marshall said. "When I came in, he was mad. He said, 'You don't look at all like your picture.' "

Marshall got the part, and some new pictures. And the "Twin Peaks" role gave him the Hollywood calling card he needed.

In "Gladiator," which opened Friday, Marshall plays Tommy Riley, a suburban kid caught up in the sleazy world of illegal boxing.

NEW YORK — Things may be tight in the city, but you would never know it to judge by the response to the 25th anniversary celebration for Phoenix House. Tickets for the party Wednesday night sold out before the invitations were even in the mail.

Now, there is a waiting list, said Tina Brown, editor of Vanity Fair magazine and a co-chairwoman of the event. "We are astonished and delighted," she said. "We thought it would be a harder sell."

Among the 600 people who plunked down $1,000 each to go to the U.S. Customs House for the dinner given by Vanity Fair are Jonathan and Laura Tisch, Robert and Blaine Trump, Oliver and Elizabeth Stone, Roy and Dorothy Lichtenstein, Ben Bradlee and Sally Quinn, Morton and Linda Janklow, Roger and Norma Ailes, and Norman Mailer and Norris Church.

HILLSDALE, Mich. — Holding on to artistic ideals can be tough in Tinseltown, but actor Jeff Daniels says there's a way.

"As an actor, you come to the point where you say, 'When do I sell out? When do I do Police Academy VI?' " Daniels, 36, said Sunday in a speech at Hillsdale College.

The answer, he said, was simple: "You don't have to do Police Academy VI."

Prices rally

NEW YORK — Oil prices rallied near the end of trading Monday, capping an otherwise slow session.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in April settled at $18.67 per barrel, up 16 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange. Lower-grade sour crude for delivery in May settled at $16.02 per barrel, up 11 cents.

While most local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian Corp. kept their posted price at $17.25 per barrel, Phillips Petroleum Monday raised its posted price 65 cents to $17.90 per barrel.

Traders said there was no news moving the market, which was influenced mainly by technical trading factors.

Rexene CEO

DALLAS — Former Rexene Corp. chief executive Andrew J. Smith is coming back, the company said Monday.

Smith will succeed his successor, William J. Gilliam, who resigned under fire last week from the Dallas-based plastics products firm.

Smith, 50, first became chief executive in 1988. He left the company in January 1991 to become president of Itex Enterprises, a Dallas-based environmental consulting company.

T-bills mixed

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities were mixed in Monday's auction, leaving rates at the highest level since mid-December.

The Treasury Department sold $11.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.02 percent, unchanged from last week. Another $11.4 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 4.13 percent, up from 4.10 percent last week.

Market slumps

NEW YORK — The stock market was little changed Monday in the quietest session of the year to date, showing little inclination to rally after last week's decline.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 46.07 points last week, slipped another 6.48 to 3,215.12.

But advancing issues slightly outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Dollar retreats

NEW YORK — The dollar settled mostly lower in quiet profit-taking on world currency markets Monday.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 131.73 yen, up 0.10 yen from Friday's close.

In London, the British pound rose to $1.7240 from $1.7200 late Friday.

Going green wears thin for oil industry

■ Executives fire back on environmentalists who persuaded Congress to slam door on promising U.S. drilling spots.

By Anne Pearson
Hearst News Service

■ Analysis

HOUSTON — Two years ago, the oil industry was trumpeting the "decade of the environment" with Earth Day extravaganzas, slick ads touting its good works for furry creatures and gentle words for environmentalists.

But the glossy rhetoric is starting to wear off.

Today, oil executives giving after-dinner speeches are likely to be firing back at environmentalists who persuaded Congress to slam the door on the most promising spots left for drilling in America.

Oil executives are denouncing as outright foolish parts of the new Clean Air Act they say will cost them billions and do little to clean up the air.

It's not hard to understand why oil executives are irked.

Natural-gas prices have collapsed, crude prices are back in the doldrums and oil producers are struggling to stay in the black. Although refining profits are improving, they were lousy for a couple of years. Falling petrochemical prices also have taken a toll.

Nowhere was the anger and frustration more evident than in the corridors and meeting rooms of the American Petroleum Institute's convention here in November.

The message oil executives were sending at that meeting "is that they feel like they're literally being thrown out of the United States," said institute President Charles J. DiBona.

"They see increasingly large areas being cut off to them" for exploration and production, he said. Practically the only places left to drill, he added, are the western Gulf of Mexico and private land.

Sen. Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming, who co-authored the federal energy bill, told oil producers at that meeting they were nuts to keep giving money to organizations like the Audubon Society that work against them.

The industry backlash has been largely verbal — companies haven't scuttled corporate giving to environmental groups or canceled "green" programs.

To the contrary, officials with environmental groups say they've noticed green marketing programs by oil companies are still on the upswing, particularly in California, where the public is especially sensitive to environmental affronts.

Greenpeace spokesman Bill Walker said oil companies are trying to convince the public they're working in lockstep with environmental groups.

"They're still trying to position themselves as being kinder and gentler," he said.

Top oil executives admit they're losing their cool more often over what they call dirty dealing by environmental groups waging misinformation campaigns.

"These groups need conflict to raise money. You don't raise money on compromise," said C.J. "Pete" Silas, API chairman and chief executive of Phillips Petroleum.

"The dishonesty of the other side is discouraging," agreed DiBona of the petroleum institute.

Judge OKs $1.3 billion pact to resolve Drexel lawsuits

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge Monday approved a $1.3 billion settlement of all lawsuits against Michael Milken and other former Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. associates after federal thrift regulators joined the deal.

The decision cleared the way for a federal judge to approve the bankruptcy court reorganization of Drexel, the 1980s junk-bond titan that crashed in infamy after admitting criminal wrongdoing. Drexel sought bankruptcy protection 25 months ago.

The developments came after the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. agreed to back the settlement, which was criticized in Washington for leaving Milken too much money — at least $125 million, plus investments owned by his brother, wife and children.

The FDIC and the Resolution Trust Corp., which are overseeing the nation's failed thrifts, had accused Milken of causing the failure of more than 40 savings and loans through the sale of worthless or overpriced junk bonds. Milken had denied any wrongdoing.

After weekend negotiations, the thrift regulators won the right to examine the personal finances of Milken and other participants in the settlement. That had been a major sticking point in the deal.

Under the arrangement, which settles more than 150 lawsuits, Milken will contribute $900 million, former Drexel employees $300 million and Drexel insurance policies $100 million.

The government stands to receive more than $500 million under the settlement to be divided between the FDIC and the RTC.

The agencies had filed two joint lawsuits in New York and California that said Milken as head of Drexel's Bevery Hills, Calif., junk-bond division defrauded the thrifts by selling billions of dollars in risky high-yield securities.

Milken pleaded guilty to six felonies and is serving a 10-year prison term. None of the charges related to junk bonds, a debt security used widely to raise capital and finance hostile takeovers during the 1980s.

Milken's spokesman, Kenneth Lerer, said in a statement: "It's obviously very difficult to pay this sum of money when these claims have no merit. But Michael wants to get on with his life and this settlement is a step in that direction."

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Francis G. Conrad Jr. approved the Drexel reorganization plan earlier, and U.S. District Judge Milton Pollack, who oversaw the Drexel case, said he would sign an order approving it.

FDIC: Bank profits increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's banks earned $18.6 billion last year, a 15 percent increase over 1990, even though 11 big banks lost money, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said Monday.

In a preview of a report to be released later this week, the agency attributed the improvement, from $16.1 billion in 1990, entirely to an increase in gains from selling Treasury notes and other securities.

It was the industry's best performance since 1988, when it earned $24.8 billion.

However, operating income, which excludes profits from securities sales, fell slightly, to $14.8 billion from $15 billion.

"For all the pain and strain in '91, that's not so bad," FDIC Chairman William Taylor said.

A key measure of profitability — return on assets — also edged higher, from 0.49 percent in 1990 to around 0.55 percent last year, he said.

Because the prices of Treasury debt rise as interest rates fall, the country's 12,000 banks were able to earn $3 billion from securities sales in 1991 compared with $481 million a year earlier.

Taylor, in his speech, conceded that the average size of troubled banks has increased "in a pretty sizable fashion."

While the number of banks on the FDIC's problem list has held relatively steady, the amount of assets held by banks on the list has soared 51 percent between June 30 and Jan. 31 to an all-time high.

The number of institutions on the list over the seven months has risen from 1,033 to 1,071 while assets have increased from $404 billion to $613 billion.

However, Taylor said it is a mistake to say all big banks are hurting. Among the 50 largest, 23 enjoyed a healthy return on assets of 0.90 percent or higher last year, he said. Eleven lost money.

Air-traffic control

The FAA has selected Harris Corp. for a $1.6 billion project to upgrade the nation's air-traffic control voice communications network. The next-generation Voice Switching and Control System will provide complete communications between pilots and air-traffic controllers at the FAA's 22 en route control centers.

Consumer debt declines again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers continued to pay down their overall installment debt in January, but boosted their loans for automobiles for the first time in 13 months, the government said Monday.

The Federal Reserve said consumer credit decreased at a 0.3 percent annual rate, or a seasonally adjusted $183 million. Installment debt fell 0.8 percent during 1991, the first annual drop in 33 years.

Consumer credit includes all consumer loans except mortgages and home equity loans.

Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan and other economists have said the speed with which businesses and consumers pay down the mountains of debt incurred during the 1980s will determine how quickly they resume spending.

The January decline was the third straight, although it was slower than the 1.2 percent posted in December. The revised drop in December also was less than half of the 2.8 percent rate originally estimated last month.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Treasury vs. CD rate is not a valid comparison

By Bill Doyle

Q. My wife heard on the radio that interest received from U.S. Treasury notes and bonds is higher than that from certificates of deposit. The information I received from my bank is that interest from six-month, one-year and two-year CDs is somewhat higher than the interest from similar-term Treasury notes and bonds.

Doyle

Which is correct, the radio report or my bank?

A. Certificates of deposits usually pay slightly higher interest than Treasury securities with similar maturities. That makes the information you got from your bank accurate.

But few things are engraved in stone in the world of finance. There have been times when Treasury securities paid more than CDs due to mature at the same time. That could have been the source of the radio report.

However, as you relay the tales, there is a basic problem with both of them. Treasury notes and bonds are never issued with six-month and one-year maturities. T notes are issued with maturities ranging from two to 10 years; T bonds with maturities of from more than 10 to as long as 30 years.

When you want newly issued Treasury securities with short maturities, you must buy U.S. Treasury bills. They come with maturities of 13, 26 and 52 weeks.

All this makes an interest comparison between newly issued CDs and previously issued Treasury notes and bonds virtually meaningless.

Now, you can buy previously issued Treasury notes and bonds in the marketplace, by placing your order through a brokerage firm or bank. The brokerage or bank making the purchase for you will charge a commission or service fee. More important, in that market, transactions involving less than $1 million are counted as "odd lots." Unless you deal in really large numbers, you would pay a premium price when you buy and receive a discounted price when you sell. That "secondary" market for Treasury securities is best left to big institution investors.

Wise individual investors buy Treasury securities through the "Treasury Direct" system. Going that route, you open a Treasury Direct account at the Federal Reserve Bank or branch serving your section of the country. Everything is handled by mail and there is absolutely no charge.

Q. The Treasury Direct system is "book-entry," meaning no certificates are printed for U.S. Treasury bills, notes and bonds. Records of ownership are kept on computers.

Doesn't that mean investors have the same problems they have with municipal bonds in book-entry?

A. NO! Treasury direct book-entry is infinitely superior to municipal bond book-entry.

Municipal bonds in book-entry must be held through a brokerage firm or bank. Interest payments go first to the brokerage or bank intermediary. As has often been detailed in this column, some brokerages are terribly slow sending that money to investors.

Not so with Treasury Direct book-entry. An individual investor can have his or her own account through a Federal Reserve Bank or branch. Payments of interest go by wire to the investor's account at the bank, savings and loan association or credit union the investor has designated — on the very day the money is due. So does the face amount of matured Treasury securities and discounts on purchases of new securities.

Q. I wrote to my district Federal Reserve Bank and received information about Treasury Direct. I understand I am required to fill out a "tender" and send it, along with my check, in order to buy a Treasury bill, note or bond — before the security is sold through a U.S. Treasury Department auction.

But I do not know what interest I will get. Should I just settle for what ever rate is set at the auction?

A. That's the sensible way to do it. The interest yield on each such security is determined at the time it is auctioned off. By submitting a noncompetitive tender, you are sure of getting the average rate on the security you want to purchase.

Gorbachevs still living comfortably

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail and Raisa Gorbachev are very comfortable indeed by Russian standards, but there's no question their lifestyle has come down a notch.

When he was the Soviet president, they had at least three luxurious homes: a very large apartment in Moscow; a presidential dacha, or country house, just outside the capital; and a seaside vacation villa in the Crimea, where they were held captive during the failed coup last August.

Now, they have only a three-room apartment in the capital and a smaller dacha southwest of the city. They live mainly at the dacha, which one aide described as "a very nice, brick house where you can live well and feel at home."

It's reportedly the same state-owned dacha where the Gorbachevs lived before he became Communist Party chief — and where Russian President Boris Yeltsin later lived for a time.

The Gorbachevs also have been allocated a black Zil limousine and a boxy, four-door Volga sedan, plus a contingent of bodyguards.

Gorbachev's salary as president of his new think tank, the Gorbachev Foundation, has not been disclosed.

But Russia's TV news show "Vesti" estimated last week that Gorbachev's outside income, mainly from books and articles published abroad, could total as much as $10 million a year. A Western publisher said the true figure is probably far less, but easily could reach several hundred thousand dollars.

Aides said he continues to donate substantial sums each month to children's hospitals and orphanages — as he did with his cash award from the 1990 Nobel Peace Prize.

Still, while Gorbachev's pension of 4,000 rubles is huge by Russian standards, it's worth just $57 at the current exchange rate. Raisa Gorbachev gets only a 340-ruble monthly basic pension — about $5 — "even though she has slaved away for 25 years," he said.

Even though they have other sources of income, the Gorbachevs were apparently shocked to go shopping and find out how far their rubles go.

"We receive all the bills ... we pay them ... out go the checks, and last month we calculated we'd spent 3,900 rubles. That's all my pension," the former Soviet president said in a interview broadcast on British TV last week.

"As soon as I started going to the shops, I realized that was 500 rubles gone straight away. What I'm thinking now is, that's enough. It's time I earned some dollars so I can support my family," he said.

Those bitter words, however, appeared to be more of a political jab at his old rival Yeltsin than a real complaint that he is having trouble making ends meet. Yeltsin's market reforms have sent prices soaring, causing pain for many Russians.

Blizzard hits western Plains, closes highways, schools

Associated Press

A blizzard pummeled the Plains states Monday with high wind and nearly 2 feet of snow, bringing an abrupt end to a spell of mild weather and shutting down local governments, schools and businesses, and miles of highways.

Rescuers in western Nebraska found a teen-ager who had been missing outdoors in the storm since Sunday afternoon with his dog. The boy was in critical condition with hypothermia; his dog was sent home in good shape.

Two traffic deaths in Wyoming were described as possibly weather-related.

At the height of the storm, most major roads were closed by blowing, drifting snow across southeastern Wyoming, northeastern Colorado and western Nebraska. Schools were closed Monday there and in parts of western Kansas.

Snow also streamed northeastward from the main storm with accumulations up to 9 inches across southern South Dakota, the northwest corner of Iowa, southern Minnesota and into Wisconsin, making roads hazardous and shutting down some schools.

By the time the heaviest snow moved eastward over the Plains, accumulations in Colorado included 20 inches northeast of Boulder and 16 inches in the west Denver suburb of Wheat Ridge. In Wyoming, 10 inches of snow was reported at Cheyenne.

Wind gusting to 50 mph in northeastern Colorado whipped the snow into drifts several feet deep, closing schools, businesses and most major highways.

Interstate 70 was closed from Denver's eastern outskirts to Burlington, 30 miles west of the Kansas line, and I-25 was shut down from Fort Collins, Colo., to the Wyoming border and north of Colorado Springs.

The storm stranded about 200 travelers at Castle Rock Junior High School south of Denver. Custodian Mary Colby said they slept in hallways and in the cafeteria on mats and cots. "They're from all over," she said.

Only last week, Colby said she had cleaned out a closet where she had kept games and decks of cards, thinking they would not be needed. "This was something they could have used last night," he said.

Some travelers also spent the night at Denver's Stapleton International Airport after a number of flights were canceled.

The Wyoming Highway Patrol closed nearly 100 miles of I-80 from the Nebraska border to Laramie, and roughly 200 miles of I-25 from Casper to the Colorado border south of Cheyenne. Moderating temperatures helped melt some of the snow in Cheyenne; by midday, snowplows had reopened all roads in the area.

State offices in Cheyenne were closed during the morning and federal offices were on staggered starting times. Some travelers spent the night in the Cheyenne Civic Center, including a group of musicians in town for a rehearsal of the Cheyenne Symphony.

"We're calling it the 'Civic Center Motel' for at least one evening," said center director Dru Rohla.

In the Nebraska Panhandle, the storm closed about 50 miles of I-80 west of Sidney to the Wyoming state line and cut visibility to near zero in North Platte, the State Patrol said. Travel across most of northern Nebraska was discouraged.

But the storm eased enough in western Nebraska so rescuers could resume a search for 15-year-old Matt Meyers, missing since Sunday when he went for a walk with his dog, Katie, just before the storm hit.

The pilot of a small plane spotted the pair sprawled in the snow and guided rescuers to them.

Judge warns Leona Helmsley not to expect special treatment in her sentencing hearing

NEW YORK — With Leona Helmsley quietly sobbing in the front row and her lawyer arguing that a jail term would be a death sentence for Mrs. Helmsley and her husband, Harry, a federal judge warned Monday that the self-styled hotel queen would get no special treatment from him.

"It's time for you to get realistic," said the judge, Thomas P. Griesa of federal district court in Manhattan. "There is a nation out there, and a community, and my job is to take into account the nation and the community in the enforcement of the law."

"I urge you to prepare Mr. Helmsley for the probable need to be separated from you," he added during a hearing on Monday.

But her lawyer, Alan M. Dershowitz, who claims to have new evidence that would undercut Mrs. Helmsley's conviction and has asked for a new trial, told Griesa on Monday that Mrs. Helmsley "is in immediate risk of death" from acute arterial disease and that any incarceration would be a "death sentence for both of them" because Helmsley had become so dependent on his wife.

The hearing on Monday came two weeks after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected Mrs. Helmsley's appeal of her 1989 income-tax fraud conviction. The 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had earlier upheld Mrs. Helmsley's conviction on income-tax fraud but had thrown out four lesser counts. It also ordered Mrs. Helmsley resentenced.

The appeals court decision means that the government must return $850,000 in fines that were imposed on Mrs. Helmsley, a refund that Mrs. Helmsley later said was of little concern.

While Griesa did not rule on Dershowitz's motion for a new trial on Monday, he did set resentencing for March 18.

During the hearing on Monday, Dershowitz argued that Mrs. Helmsley should be spared a jail sentence because she suffered a stroke in 1990.

A BIT OF IRISH LUCK
A country home with an assumable loan This very nice three bedroom brick home has affordable financing You need to see this $45,000

It doesn't take A POT OF GOLD to put you in a Large home in a great neighborhood Very close to Parker Elementary So many "extra little touches" added by the builder, Marlin Simpson, make this home stand out But, you have to see it to appreciate how quiet, spacious and inviting it is $72,000

You might just make A POT OF GOLD when you decide to buy a duplex We have two great duplexes that are perfect for the person who wants to live in one side and rent the other Two price ranges Call for details

It appears that the builder spent A POT OF GOLD putting in all the extras and added storage and closet space in this custom home just south of Bluebird Lane But, the current owners have cut the price and you get to reap the rewards There is just so much to see here Call for details $114,900 Original design
