Helicopters collide; 16 Marines are killed

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Two Marine Corps helicopters collided in the dark early today during the largest U.S.-British war games in decades, killing 16 people, the White House said. Two Marines were rescued.

The two were taken to the hospital at Camp Lejeune in critical condition, the Pentagon said.

The collision involved a CH-46 Sea Knight and an AH-1 Cobra assault helicopter and happened at about 2 a.m. in a wooded, swampy area at the Camp Lejeune Marine Corps base.

There was some confusion about the number of people on board the helicopters. Maj. Steve Little, a spokesman at Camp Lejeune, said the copters were carrying 16 people. A senior official at Marine Corps headquarters at the Pentagon said the number ranged from 14 to 18.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said there was not yet an exact count of Marines killed, but it appeared about 14 had died.

Later, the White House said 16 people had died.

"Our hearts go out to the families, the friends, the loved ones of those who lost their lives," Clinton said at the White House.

Although the cause of the crash was not immediately known, officials at Marine Corps headquarters said the Cobra's mission was to fly ahead of the Sea Knight transport to secure a landing zone for the troop carrier. Once the Sea Knight approached the zone on a planned route, the Cobra was to swing back around. It is not clear how the choppers crossed paths.

Weather was clear and wind light overnight.

"We had half a moon last night. Visibility was good," Little said.

He could not say whether the pilots were using night vision goggles or describe other conditions at the time of the collision.

The aircraft were participating in Operation Purple Star, war games involving thousands of British and American troops massed off the North Carolina coast this week. No British troops were involved in the accident, Little said.

The woods at the crash site are so thick that Lejeune forestry crews were called to cut trees down to get to the crash site, Jacksonville radio station WJNC reported.

Rodeo Association Arena...

AJRA rodeo rides into Snyder tonight

More than a hundred young cowboys and cowgirls are set to ride and rope rodeo style as the American Junior Rodeo Association series comes to Snyder this evening.

The AJRA and Open Junior Rodeo performances will be held at the Scurry County Rodeo Association arena on Gary Brewer Road.

Tonight's 7:30 show opens the two-day event. Other performances are Saturday at 10 a.m. and 7 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children.

There are four age groups in the AJRA: 8-and-under, 9-12, 13-15 and 16-19.

Girl's events include barrels, pole bending, goat tying, breakaway roping, ribbon roping and team roping. The boys compete in barrels, poles, goat tying and breakway roping for the eight and under as well as the 9-12 year-olds. Steer or bull riding is included in 9-12.

The two oldest divisions for the boys have tiedown, breakaway and ribbon roping, junior bull riding, bull riding, steer wrestling, bareback riding, saddle bronc riding and team roping.

Individual athletes compete for points, cash and prizes on the AJRA circuit. The year culminates with the annual AJRA National Finals Rodeo, to be held July 30 through Aug. 3 in Sweetwater.

According to Dianna Riggan, there are more than a dozen local members of the AJRA. Local directors are Tim Riggan and Tommy Bynum.

The local rodeo is an AJRA Director's rodeo — directors and their spouses will be doing the work to help raise money for the end-of-year prizes.

PDU students receive diplomas

Fifteen graduates received their Associate in Arts Degree from Western Texas College Thursday in a ceremony at the Price Daniel unit.

State Sen. Tom Haywood of Wichita Falls was the commencement speaker. The former college professor commended the graduates for their achievements despite obvious obstacles.

It was the largest number of graduates since WTC began teaching college courses in the Daniel prison unit.

Receiving diplomas in a ceremony, held in the unit's new Learning Resource Center were Melvin Ford, Robert Jones, Armando Simon, Bruce Arnold, Vincente A. Estrada III, Jeffrey Fields, John Grimsley, Gary Mathews, Arturo Mendoza, Michael W. Miller, Joe Nunez Jr., Leighton Peters, David Scroggins, Michael Seward and Bobby Wright.

Candidates for graduation were presented by Bettie McQueen, WTC dean of instruction, and diplomas were presented by Dr. Harry Krenek, WTC president.

Warden T.J. Medart gave the response on behalf of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. Boyd Bush, Windham principal, offered the welcome.

A reception followed for family members and guests who attended the graduation.

House approves tax credit for adoptions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a bill today aimed at encouraging adoptions by giving middle-income families who adopt a child a $5,000 tax credit.

The bill, passed 393-15, also would outlaw "race matching" — the practice of trying to match a child with adoptive parents of the same race. Rep. Susan Molinari, R-N.Y., the bill's sponsor, said that policy can leave children languishing in foster care even though parents of another race are willing to adopt them.

Opponents, including some black social workers, have maintained that black children are better off with black parents. The National Association of Black Social Workers has said interracial adoptions should be approved only after exhaustive attempts to find a relative or black adoptive parents have failed.

About 450,000 American children live in foster care at any given moment, according to the bill, and as many as 600,000 live in foster care during the course of a given year. About 40 percent of them are black.

Complicated adoptions, particularly those involving foreign children, can cost $15,000 or more.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., introduced a similar adoption tax credit bill in the Senate last month.

"When it comes to matters involving family, I usually hold fast to the position that government should butt out and mind its own business," said Rep. Jim Bunning, R-Ky. "But making adoption simple and more affordable is one instance in which the government can and should step in to make a difference."

Rep. Gerald Solomon, R-N.Y., was one of several who spoke of their experiences as adopted or foster children.

Solomon said family circumstances forced him to live away from his mother for 15 years.

"I can still recall looking at the other kids and being envious," he said.

President Clinton endorsed both the tax credit and the elimination of race matching, but he has opposed another provision that would make it easier for anyone to adopt American Indian children.

SISD food service provider to run concessions

No longer will faculty and students run concession stands during Snyder ISD-sponsored football, basketball and volleyball games.

They'll be replaced by personnel from the district's food service provider, members of the board of trustees learned Thursday.

Last night's board meeting focused primarily on informational items as members heard reports from business manager Lee McNair, school nurses Angel Duncan and Chris Bane and curriculum director Wendell Sollis.

McNair told the trustees that beginning with the fall semester, the district's food service provider will operate the concession stands during football, basketball and volleyball games.

ARA will prepare the food for the concession stands and provide the personnel during the events, said McNair. The company will receive approximately 10 percent of the sales while the remainder will be placed in a campus activity fund, administered by high school principal Larry Scott.

"We'll look at this program next year and see how it operates," said superintendant Gayle Lomax.

"This plan will get teachers and coaches out of the concession stands, and hopefully we'll be able to generate even more more from sales," said Lomax.

He added that organizations which have benefitted from the operation of the concession stands in the past will still reap the benefits, but now they will no longer have to work during events.

Through April 12 of this school year, more than $116,742 has been raised on campuses through various fund raising events, including the operation of concession stands.

Snyder High School has generated more than $75,000 while $14,577 has been raised at the junior high, said McNair.

Stanfield Elementary has raised $12,000, Northeast Elementary $8,406, West Elementary $2,500, East Elementary $2,000 and Central Elementary $1,300.

The school nurses reported on various programs they have introduced this year, including their

FCC lifts rules on AT&T; advances digital TV plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — AT&T Corp. will be able to charge whatever the marketplace allows for international calls and services just as its rivals can.

The Federal Communications Commission voted 4-0 Thursday to free AT&T Corp. from rate limits for these services, putting the company on equal regulatory footing with its main rivals, MCI and Sprint.

While the FCC agreed to lift federal rate caps, which have been in place since 1985, AT&T pledged to keep the average per minute rate for international residential calls at 1995 levels for three years.

The action is the latest move by the FCC to reduce federal regulations on AT&T given a more competitive marketplace. Last year, the FCC freed AT&T from regulations governing residential and small business long-distance charges.

The action also allows AT&T to implement a rate or service change for international offerings one day after filing a plan with the FCC — the same rule as for rivals MCI and Sprint. Previously, AT&T had to wait between 14 and 45 days, depending on the filing, to implement a rate or service change.

AT&T said the changes should let it act more competitively, which should lower rates and speed new services to the public.

AT&T has 80 million residential customers and 10 million business customers. Industry wide, 20 million people make international calls each year. In minutes, international calling for the industry is growing at 16 percent a year; domestic calling is growing at 11 percent a year.

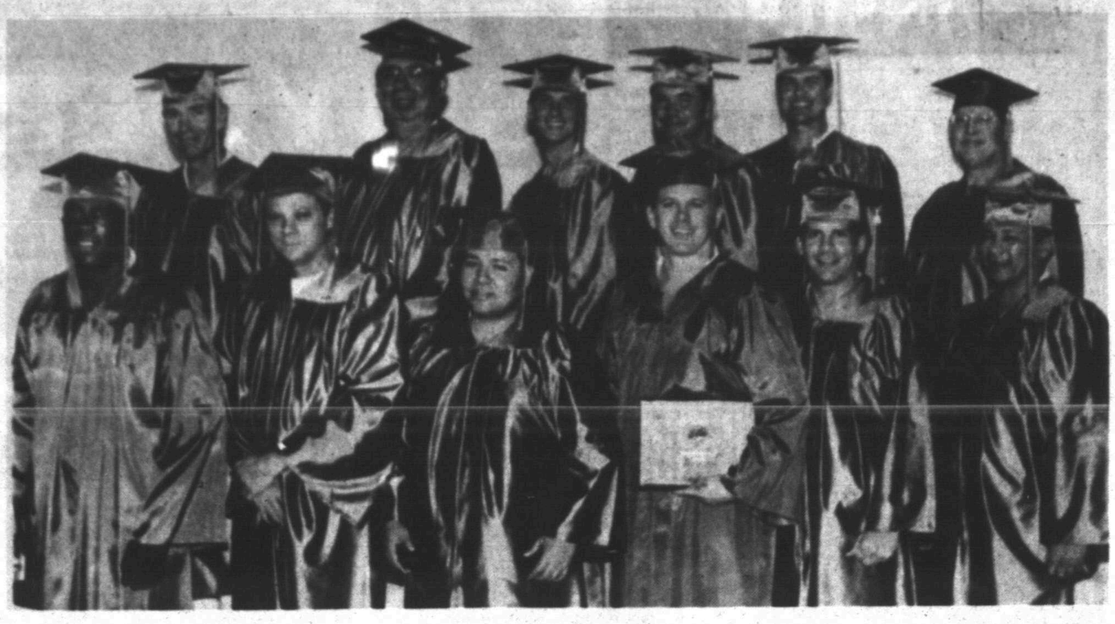

The action also would allow AT&T to implement changes to its network 35 days after filing a plan with the FCC, the same as its rivals. Currently, the FCC is under no deadline to respond to such filings by AT&T. AT&T officials said the process can take months.

In other business, the FCC:

—Proposed that a system, called the Grand Alliance, be the standard U.S. broadcasters would use to transmit in digital and an even sharper format called high definition television.

The system was developed by AT&T, General Instrument, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the David Sarnoff Research Center, Thomson Consumer Electronics, Philips Consumer Electronics and Zenith.

The system is backed by broadcasters, but Microsoft, Apple Computer and some motion picture makers have concerns about some components of the system.

Fort Worth woman convicted in fatal poisoning of her dad

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 19-year-old woman who for a year had gotten away with murder until she confided in a friend that she had stirred poison into her father's beans broke down during her trial's punishment phase.

The proceeding went directly into the punishment phase after jurors took less than an hour on Thursday to convict Dorothy Marie Robards of the 1993 murder of her father, Steven Robards, 38.

"I'm so sorry. I'm so very sorry," Miss Robards said, sobbing. She said she only meant to make him sick, not to kill him.

The judge instructed the jury to return today for deliberations on punishment. The sentence range is from probation to life in prison.

Miss Robards was a 16-year-old high school student in 1993 when her father died. Her parents were divorced, and she said she wanted to make him sick so she could move out of his east Fort Worth apartment and live with her mother, who had remarried.

Robards, a letter carrier with the U.S. Postal Service, became ill after eating dinner on Feb. 18, 1993.

"He thought he was getting a virus or food poisoning," said Sandra Lee Hugdins, a friend who was present at the time he was stricken. She also said Robards complained of being "clammy" and having pain and stiffness in his limbs.

Medical examiners ruled he died of natural causes. But 11 months later, Miss Robards and a friend were reading a scene from "Hamlet" in which a king who poisoned his brother agonizes over how he might repent.

The friend said Ms. Robards suddenly asked her, "Is it possible for a person not to have a conscience?"

The friend, who was not named, said she told Ms. Robards such a person would be one who "could look someone in the eyes in cold blood and murder them."

Ms. Robards started crying and told the friend that she put barium acetate in her father's beans and stood by as the poison began working. The friend went to police, and an exhumation of the body was ordered.

Medical examiners changed their ruling to homicide after finding 56 grams of barium acetate, which causes symptoms resembling a heart attack.

Before resting their case Wednesday, prosecutors played a taped confession in which Miss Robards said she spiked her father's take-out Mexican meal with barium acetate she had smuggled out of chemistry class in a backpack.

In a soft, tentative voice recorded less than an hour after her arrest, Miss Robards said "it was the only thing I could think of to be able to move back to where I wanted to be."

Does caffeine worsen breast pain?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does drinking regular coffee or products that contain caffeine cause VERY sore breasts? I find yearly examinations by a trained technician or my doctor very painful.

DEAR READER: For reasons that are not understood, some women are extremely sensitive to caffeine: Their breasts become quite tender and lumpy when they eat chocolate or drink caffeine-containing beverages. Also, the drug seems to worsen fibrocystic disease (isolated, sore breast masses).

I suspect that your body is giving you an unmistakable message: Avoid caffeine. Of course, you should continue to have periodic (hopefully less uncomfortable) breast examinations by a trained professional.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In 1992 my daughter had surgery for a ruptured appendix. She's now 13 and still isn't menstruating. After the surgery, we were told she might be at high risk for possible infertility. Do you have any information on this subject?

DEAR READER: If an inflamed appendix is not treated with antibiotics or surgery, it can rupture, spreading intestinal contents into the abdominal cavity. Called "peritonitis," this infection may affect organs in the pelvis, including the Fallopian tubes through which the fertilized egg passes on its way to the uterus. Peritonitis is one cause of infertility, when it produces scar tissue in the Fallopian tubes.

However, this scar tissue should not permanently affect ovulation or menstruation.

Your daughter apparently developed a serious situation at the time of her appendicitis. At this point, I believe that she needs the services of a gynecologist. Her lack of menstruation could be the result of a hormonal imbalance that is common to young teen-age girls.

On the other hand, if her Fallopian tubes are blocked (as demonstrated by special X-rays), she may need surgery to repair the obstruction. The gynecologist can carry out the required blood tests and X-rays, and will recommend therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: When people are admitted to the hospital for surgery, they have a blood work-up. Is this simply to find the patient's blood type or to test for hepatitis, AIDS and other infectious diseases to protect the staff?

DEAR READER: Routine, pre-operative blood studies vary from hospital to hospital, but the basic series usually includes a blood count and tests of cholesterol, liver function, mineral balance, and kidney efficiency.

If blood loss during surgery is anticipated, the patient's blood type is also determined. As a general rule, HIV is not tested, nor are specific tests performed to document hepatitis.

Given a reprieve

As you will presumably have gathered, I have been drawing this week's columns from a press release about the 1995 Cavendish Invitational Pairs. This year's event begins tomorrow at the Loews Hotel in New York City. The bundle contained many excellent deals, but I think I have spotted an analytical oversight.

In this deal, East opened with a weak two-bid, showing a decent six-card suit and some 6-10 high-card points. North bid five diamonds as an each-way bet: Maybe it would make, or it might be a good sacrifice.

West led a low spade. After winning with his ace, East switched to the heart eight, declarer winning with the ace. South, P-G. Eliassen from Sweden, saw that if the clubs were breaking 3-2, he could draw trumps and duck a club, making easily. But what if the clubs were 4-1?

At trick three, Eliassen cashed the diamond jack. Then he played a club to dummy's ace and a club back toward his king. If everyone followed, declarer was going to give up a club trick and claim. And when East discarded, Eliassen was still all right. He won with the king and conceded a club to West. Back came a heart, but declarer won with his king, played a trump to dummy, ruffed a club, returned to dummy with another trump and discarded his heart loser on the established club eight.

Looks good, but did anything strike you?

Right; East must ruff the second club and return a trump. Declarer doesn't have the entries to unblock the club king, establish dummy's fifth club and enjoy it. He must lose three tricks: one spade, one heart and one ruff.

Postal inspectors bust child pornography buyers in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When postal inspectors seized the child pornography collection of a Chicago man, he pleaded for its prompt return, saying he feared that otherwise he would have to molest children.

A San Diego man who ordered child porn answered his door with a handgun in his pocket and later admitted molesting children.

And when postal inspectors went to the home of a man in Reno, Nev., they found sexually explicit photos of neighborhood kids.

Today all three men are in jail, and 42 others face a variety of charges in the wake of a two-year sting operation that saw the post office in the mail-order porn business. As many as 70 more arrests are possible.

It just seemed like too good an opportunity to pass up in 1994 when inspectors shut down Overseas Male, a San Diego company offering videos of young boys. They acted after complaints from people who had received catalogs.

"Simply shutting down Overseas Male wasn't enough, because those who created the demand for child pornography were still out there," Chief Postal Inspector Kenneth J. Hunter said Thursday, when the arrests were announced.

So they changed the name to Island Male, cranked up the mailing list, and went into business.

The investigators concentrated on people who sought videos involving boys ages 7 to 11.

"Let me clarify that we are not talking about adult videos someone can rent at some corner video store," Hunter said.

The videos offered by Overseas Male were "in actuality videotaped evidence of a crime taking place. They show images of children having sex with each other or with adults — children as young as 7, 8 or 9 years old being sexually abused in unthinkable ways."

In addition to those charged with buying child porn, more than 20 arrests were made for child molestation and other crimes.

Ray Leslie Opfer, 46, of Reno is now doing life for child molestation, Hunter reported. Robert H. Ellison, 65, of Chicago pleaded guilty to receiving child pornography and is in jail awaiting sentencing. Robert Eugene LaFond of San Diego was sentenced to six years for molestation.

"Pedophiles aren't always strangers in your community. They are men of every social stratum and occupation: teachers, professors, computer programmers, even sometimes members of the clergy," Hunter said.

He said his office began receiving complaints in 1993 from people who had been sent advertising for sexually explicit videos by Overseas Male.

One of the operators of that business, James Leroy Kemmish, was arrested in 1994 by customs agents as he returned from Mexico. Agents found $16,000 in cash and child pornography when they searched his baggage. He has been convicted of distributing child pornography and sentenced to five years in prison.

Hunter said that after Postal Inspectors changed the name of the business to Island Male they sent out 2,000 solicitations.

To avoid complaints that they were entrapping people, the inspectors worked with the Justice Department to set up a sales system involving several steps before people could be charged.

First they sent letters inviting people to return a card if they were interested in the videos. Customers also had the option to ask to be removed from the mailing list or of simply throwing the solicitation away.

Those who asked for more information were sent letters discussing "steamy" videos involving boys and men of various age groups. Those who showed an interest in ages 7 to 11 were targeted.

When these people finally placed an order, it was delivered by a postal inspector. If they accepted delivery, a search warrant was obtained and their home or business searched for evidence of possession of child pornography.

In all, the postal service conducted 130 searches in 36 states during its undercover operation.

Hunter said the videos sold for $50 to $290, depending on the age of the children involved. A review of Overseas Male's financial records showed it grossed $10,000 a week during one six-month period.

Nelson gets star

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a family affair as actor-director David Nelson received a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Nelson, 59, starred with his parents and brother in the 1952-66 TV comedy "The Adventures of Ozzie & Harriet." The ABC sitcom featuring the Nelsons was modeled on their life; Ozzie and Harriet played a suburban couple raising two boys.

Nelson's star, the 2,065th on the Walk of Fame, was unveiled Thursday on Vine Street next to one honoring his late brother, Rick. The star celebrating Nelson's late parents is on Hollywood Boulevard.

Booklets will be given away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Post offices nationwide today will begin offering information brochures about breast cancer.

More than 8 million copies of the booklet have been produced and are being distributed to coincide with Mother's Day, which is Sunday.

The brochures discuss breast cancer, contain stories of women who have survived the disease and include phone numbers for people to obtain more information.

The post office plans to issue a breast cancer awareness stamp in June.

Tigers begin search for treasure with Pirates

The search for treasure begins tonight when the Snyder Tigers and Granbury Pirates hook up in game one of the best-of-three bi-district series in Graham.

Game one begins at 7:30 at Steer Field, a new $500,000 baseball facility located on Highway 380 east, diagonally across from Graham Airport. The field will seat 1,700 fans.

Game two is set for 1 p.m. Saturday with game three, if needed, to follow.

The Tigers will be making their first appearance in the post season since 1986 when that season ended in Austin in the semifinals.

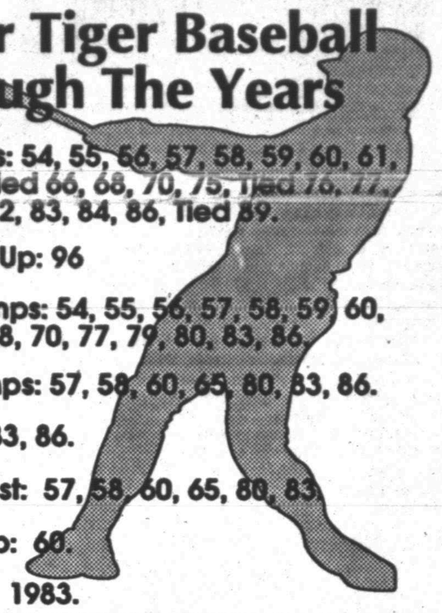

Snyder finished in a three-way tie for first in 1989, but was eliminated by Andrews in a district playoff. Last year the Tigers were knocked out by, as Snyder coach Roland Herrera put it, "the typewriter." Lamesa found an old rule that said if there is a three-way tie, if one team has won two of its games against the other, then that team advances to post season.

According to Herrera, that rule is no longer on the books.

Granbury will enter the playoffs for the second time in as many years. The Pirates stole the bi-district title away from Frenship last year before losing to Arlington Heights in a one-game area playoff.

Snyder will be looking for the school's 19th bi-district title. The Tigers have been in post season play 26 times.

Brooks masters wind for Byron Nelson lead

IRVING (AP) — Tree-bending wind, the kind that doubles over flagsticks. The kind that makes a ball wobble on the green. It's golfing heaven to Mark Brooks.

Brooks was raised in Fort Worth hitting knockdown 5-irons and wind-cheating 3-wood hooks at Diamond Oaks Country Club.

"We wouldn't play on days when the wind didn't blow," Brooks said. "It wasn't as much fun."

Well, Brooks is having fun at the Byron Nelson Classic, where winds gusting to 30 mph Thursday blew off hats and made shot-making a judgment roulette wheel on the correct club to pull from the bag.

Brooks, who mastered the wind to win the Shell Houston Open last week, shot a 6-under-par 64 for the first-round lead in the GTE-sponsored Nelson at Four Seasons Resort and Club.

"I grew up playing in the wind and I shaped my shot with the wind being a factor," Brooks said. "When you grow up in this part of Texas you don't have a very high shot trajectory."

Brooks played the 6,899-yard TPC Course and went out in 5-under-par 30. He had two birdies and a bogey on the back nine for 34.

Brooks, who also won the Bob Hope Classic earlier this year, proved how well he could play in the wind when he finished third in the British Open at St. Andrews last July.

"I love the kind of golf you have to play in Scotland," Brooks said. "You don't get to play that many kind of shots over here. I love it when the wind blows."

Brooks has six tour victories, but has yet to break through to win a major. He failed to make the cut at the Players Championship and the Masters this year. Brooks is sixth on the money list with $627,190.

Brooks had seven birdie putts, the longest from 18 feet. He used only 25 putts on the round.

"I'm making my share of putts," said Brooks, who made a 30-footer for birdie to beat Jeff Maggert on the first hole of a playoff at the Houston Open. "It's all confidence. I have a lot of confidence now."

Quantrill leads Jays to win over Rangers

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers were mistaken if they thought they were going to have an easy time with Toronto Blue Jays starter Paul Quantrill.

Quantrill started the night 0-4 with an 8.68 ERA in his first six starts, and the Rangers were riding a seven-game winning streak against the Blue Jays. But Quantrill turned in his first solid start of the season to help Toronto win 5-2.

"This is a big step for me," said Quantrill, acquired in an offseason trade with the Philadelphia Phillies. "The way I've been pitching lately, I really needed a solid outing."

Quantrill limited the Rangers to one run and five hits and no walks in 5 1-3 innings.

"He did what we hoped he would do," Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston said. "He held them for five-plus innings. He's capable of throwing strikes, he changed speeds well and he kept the ball down. One of his problems was that he was throwing everything at the same speed."

John Olerud provided Toronto's offensive spark with three RBIs after driving in only one run in his previous 12 games. Olerud's two-run double in the sixth inning broke up a scoreless game and snapped Ken Hill's string of 19 shutout innings.

"It's good to see him pull some balls and get the big hit," Gaston said of Olerud. "He had a good night in big situations."

Texas lost to an AL East team at home for the first time this season after an 11-0 start.

Women's Golf Association April awards

Gary and Vivian Norwood took first place in the Sunday couples play last week at the Snyder Country Club.

Second place in the low net format was Rex and Marsha Robinson while Richard and Peggy Hardin finished third.

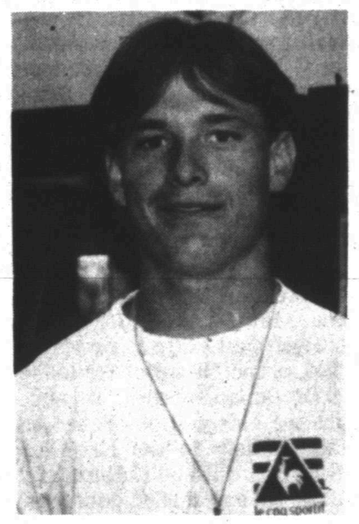

April awards from the Women's Golf Association for April 2, most one putt went to Norma Thompson with five. Doris Gard was second with four and low putter was Gard with 12.

In the April 9 blind holes, Donna Stehley took first with 33. In a tie for second with 34 were Carolyn Greene and Peggy Hardin. Low putter was Stehley with 27. Stehley also had a chip in.

Stacy Reed was first in the Queen of the Hill with a 82 gross. Gard was first in net with 68. Reed took low putter with 28 and Esther Guelker and Juanita Hester had chip ins.

In a low net twosome, Carolyn Greene and Stacy Reed took first with 138. Two shots back were Thompson and Luann Burleson. Reed was low putter and chip ins were made by Colleen Duke and Suzy Reed.

In the April 30 guess your score, five golfers missed by one stroke. They were Greene, Anita Talbott, Martha Fagin, Becky Knipe and Evelyn Thomas. Knipe was low putter with 25. Knipe along with Jo Sterling had chip ins.

4TH IN REGION—Ira High School senior Wade Wiggins finished fourth in the 110-meter hurdles at Region I 1A track meet held recently. (SDN Staff Photo)

Foursome wins Sword of Hope

The team of Rick Kahlich, James Pilgrim, Joe Femel and Bob O'Day fired a 57 for first place in the American Cancer Society Sword of Hope golf tournament last weekend on the Western Texas College golf course.

Second place with a 59 went to Robert Reyes, Joe Medrano, Juan Oretga and Kim Inoue.

Third place was decided by a scorecard draw. Wayne Monroney, Eddie Peterson, Jeral Beard and Don Johnson won the draw. The foursome shot 61.

Jacy Guynes had the long drive in the morning round while Joe Mark Femel to the afternoon round. In the closest to the pin, Billy Wayne Harris won the morning round and Rick Kahlich was the closest in the afternoon.

'Lords of Chaos' go on crime spree

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — High school band director Mark Schwebes knew the kids were up to no good when he ran into a band member and another student on school grounds late one night.

He took away the cans of peaches they were going to throw through windows and sent the youngsters home, telling them to expect a visit from the school deputy the next day.

Hours later, Schwebes answered a knock at his door and took a blast in the face from a 12-gauge shotgun.

Police say the slaying April 30 was the work of a self-described teen militia called the Lords of Chaos — a group of kids without criminal records whose lives spiraled within three weeks into arson, armed robbery and Schwebes' murder.

"It was like a vortex of bloodlust and arson. It was consuming them. They couldn't get enough," said Sheriff John McDougall.

What made the crimes even more chilling was that there had been no warning that the teenagers were on the path to prison.

One of those charged with murder was a straight-A student who had just won a four-year college scholarship.

The shock was compounded by the community's own groundbreaking work to fight juvenile crime. Lee County has been working for the past year with the U.S. Justice Department to find new ways to deal with teen criminals and stop first-time offenders from getting involved in more serious crime.

"This opens a whole new chapter in criminal justice," McDougall said. "We all have to look at what their parents are going through and say, 'Could these be our kids?'"

Police said the teens admitted they had planned the "ultimate crime of chaos" for their Grad Night party at Walt Disney World. There, they planned to mug Disney characters for their costumes and shoot black tourists.

McDougall said he doesn't believe this actually would have happened because of the tight security at Disney. But he does believe the teens would have resisted violently when caught.

"They were going to make a strong statement at Disney," the sheriff said. "It would have been a bloodbath."

The group's core members were arrested three days after Schwebes' slaying. Police said they were on their way with pistols and a shotgun to rob a fast-food restaurant where two of them worked. They were prepared to kidnap the manager and shoot anyone who tried to stop them, police said.

According to police, the crime spree began three weeks earlier on April 13. Citing the teens' statements after their arrests, police gave this version of events:

The group began the weekend by burning down a supermarket construction trailer, then set fire to a Baptist church. Next they spread gasoline around a thatched-roof aviary outside a tropical-theme restaurant, set a fire and watched the exotic birds burn to death.

The next weekend, they set up propane tanks inside a historic Coca-Cola bottling plant and threw a Molotov cocktail inside. They watched from across the street as the abandoned plant was nearly destroyed.

Six days later, they dressed in ski masks and carried out an armed robbery and carjacking outside a restaurant.

On the day that Schwebes was killed, group members said, they were on their way to burn down their high school auditorium. Four of them ran when they saw Schwebes coming. Two others, carrying cans of peaches, were caught.

Police said the group's leader, Kevin Foster, 18, looked up Schwebes' address in the phone book and called to make sure he was home before heading over.

Band member Derek Shields, who knew the band director and could identify him, knocked on the door. When Schwebes answered, Shields allegedly signaled Foster to shoot him in the face.

Police said Foster then shot Schwebes in the buttocks because he believed the man was a homosexual.

After the teen-agers' arrests, police found a stockpile of weapons in their homes and cars.

Foster, Shields, 18, Peter Magnotti, 17, and Christopher Black, 18, were charged with murder. Christopher Burnett, 17, was charged with conspiracy to commit armed robbery. All five were charged with arson, as was Thomas Torrone, 16.

The only explanation McDougall has been able to offer for the crime spree is that the other teens were entranced by Foster, whom they called god.

"It's a very, very sad situation," Torrone's mother said after her son's arrest. "I can't talk about it right now."

What frightens McDougall most is that these teens weren't even part of the juvenile justice system he has been working to reform. For instance, the county is planning a center to assess teen criminals after their first offense, but these youngsters wouldn't even have been touched by that until Schwebe's slaying.

Now, he thinks assessment has to come even sooner — by teachers and parents who have daily contact with youngsters.

"Why didn't we know?" the sheriff asked. "Probably because we didn't do the things we needed to do."

Lawrence released

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Martin Lawrence is out of the hospital and could go back to work on a movie next week.

Lawrence, 30, was discharged from Cedars-Sinai Medical Center on Thursday night, two days after police found him disoriented and screaming in the middle of a busy intersection.

"He's well-rested and back on his feet," said Kim Jones, the actor's publicist. "But he needs to get some rest — he's got a lot of work to do, and a lot of responsibility, and that can get to someone."

Meanwhile, police are considering whether to file a concealed weapon charge against him for a gun officers say they found in his pants pocket.

Eye Care Program Is Focused On Low-Income Senior Citizens

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1996 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Recently you published some important information for low-income workers and their families regarding free eye examinations through Vision USA.

Another public service program, the National Eye Care Project (NECP), has offered medical eye care to America's low-income senior population for the past 10 years. Nearly 200,000 patients have received care, at no out-of-pocket cost to them.

The program is simple. Referrals are provided to an ophthalmologist (a physician trained in the medical and surgical treatment of eye disease) for those who are 65 and over and do not otherwise have access to medical eye care. We encourage senior citizens, or anyone who knows of a person over 65, who have been putting off obtaining eye care due to their financial situation to call the Helpline (800) 222-EYES (3937). Eligible callers will receive a referral to an ophthalmologist in their community.

Sponsored by the Foundation of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and the Knights Templar Eye Foundation Inc., the NECP is supported by more than 7,500 ophthalmologists who provide care at 9,300 locations across the country.

We would appreciate your passing this message along to your readers.

B. THOMAS HUTCHINSON, M.D.,
CHAIRMAN, NATIONAL
EYE CARE PROJECT

DEAR DR. HUTCHINSON: I'm delighted to spread the word about your worthwhile program. I'm sure many readers will find it helpful.

And while we're on the subject of vision, the International Association of Lions Clubs has a wonderful program that can provide a precious gift to those less fortunate. Unwanted or outdated eyeglasses, tucked away in drawers or closets, can make a tremendous difference in the life of someone in need. Lions Clubs International has designated May "Lions Recycle for Sight Month," and encourages Americans to donate their unwanted or outdated eyeglasses to people in developing nations.

For many people throughout the world, eye care is inaccessible or eyeglasses are unaffordable. (In some countries, a single eye doctor may serve a community of hundreds of thousands, and eyeglasses can cost as much as a month's wages.)

Both prescription eyeglasses and nonprescription sunglasses are needed. Although Lions Clubs have been collecting eyeglasses for more than 60 years, this is the first collaborative effort joining clubs throughout the United States and Canada.

Anyone interested in donating eyeglasses should contact the local Lions Club or look for "Lions Recycle for Sight" recycling bins in area businesses throughout the month of May. Readers can also call (800) 747-4448 to learn where they can send their eyeglasses for recycling.

DEAR ABBY: My longtime friend, "Anita," had planned a large church wedding, and asked me and six other friends to be bridesmaids.

Well, two weeks before the wedding, Anita informed us that she had broken her engagement so the wedding was off.

Abby, we had already received our bridesmaid gowns, and I had mine altered, so there was no way I could return it and get my money refunded. Unfortunately, all the bridesmaids were stuck with a $155 gown.

The bride made no effort to reimburse us; she just announced that the wedding was off.

Don't you think Anita should have offered to reimburse her bridesmaids for their gowns? Or should I keep quiet and swallow the financial loss?

FRUSTRATED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If I were you, I would just swallow the financial loss. Anita has enough to "swallow" at the moment.

Police baffled by mysterious slaying of scientist, daughter

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The slayings of a prominent Alzheimer's disease researcher and his 13-year-old daughter have baffled investigators, who say they are without a suspect or a motive in the case.

Tsunao Saitoh, 46, was found dead early Wednesday slumped in his car outside his house in La Jolla, 10 miles from San Diego. His car was stopped in the street with its door flung wide open.

Police found his daughter, Loullie Saitoh, lying dead on the driveway about 20 feet away. Both had been shot several times with a handgun, police said.

"It is a complete mystery," police Lt. Glenn Breitenstein said Thursday. "The motive is still unknown, which makes this case even more difficult."

Nothing was stolen from Saitoh's car or home, and the cash he was carrying was not taken, Breitenstein said.

Neighbors said they heard popping noises Tuesday night but did not suspect gunfire.

Saitoh, a Japanese citizen with permanent resident status in the United States, was an associate professor of neuroscience at the University of California at San Diego.

The killings topped news reports in Japan, where reporters called the Saitohs the latest Japanese victims of gun violence in the United States.

In 1993, Saitoh won a $200,000 research grant from the Chicago-based Alzheimer's Association.

Saitoh's research had focused on how neurons in Alzheimer's patients' brains are destroyed. He had identified a new protein that disrupts brain cell function in patients afflicted with the degenerative disorder.

"There are more than a dozen people who work with him," said Dr. Leon J. Thal, chairman of UCSD's neurosciences department. "They're devastated."

Carl W. Cotman, director of the Institute of Brain Aging and Dementia at the University of California at Irvine, lamented the loss of a man who had opened up a "promising line of research."

THE TRAVELER, OR STRANGER IN THEIR MIDST!

AMONG THE ISRAELITES, HOSPITALITY TO STRANGERS WAS NOT ONLY A TRADITIONAL ETIQUETTE BUT IT WAS WRITTEN INTO MOSAIC LAW (EX. 22:21 23:9) (DEUT. 10:19). NO DEVOUT PERSON WOULD DELIBERATELY AVOID THE CHANCE TO HELP A STRANGER. IN A LAND THAT WAS EXTREMELY HOT AND WATER SCARCE, JUST A COOLING DRINK WAS VERY IMPORTANT TO "THE STRANGER PASSING THROUGH"! IT WAS ALSO THE ETIQUETTE OF THOSE TIMES FOR NO MAN TO DRINK FROM A WELL THAT WASN'T HIS--UNTIL HE WAS ASKED, OR OFFERED THE WATER, BY THE WELL'S OWNER. DRAWING WATER FROM THE WELL OF A TOWN WAS THE DUTY OF THE YOUNG MAIDS AND SO IT FELL TO THEM, QUITE OFTEN, TO COME TO THE AID OF A THIRSTY STRANGER. THIS LITTLE ACT OF "COMFORT TO THE TRAVELER" WAS SO INGRAINED IN THE PEOPLE, THAT WHEN JESUS CHARGED HIS DISCIPLES TO PREACH, AND TO HEAL, AND TO DO GOOD TO THE MULTITUDES, HE REFERRED TO IT AS GIVING "A CUP OF WATER IN MY NAME!" (MARK 9:41)

Severe weather leaves Panhandle

By The Associated Press

A cup of low pressure mixed with a dash of cold front and a pinch of dry line combined to create severe thunderstorm warnings and tornado watches early today in the Panhandle.

The rest of the state was considerably less active.

Partly cloudy skies progressively became cloudy over North Texas early today. Winds were southerly at 5 to 15 mph with gusts continuing over the area. Temperatures were in the 70s region wide.

The forecast calls for a chance of thunderstorms north central and west, some severe. Highs will be 83 to 87. Tonight, scattered thunderstorms may bring heavy rainfall in the north. Lows from 58 to 68. More rain expected Saturday.

Warm and muggy conditions were the rule across South Texas early today. Under mostly cloudy skies, temperatures were in the 70s with winds in the 5 to 15 mph range.

The South Texas forecast calls for a slight chance of showers or thunderstorms. Highs will be in the lower 80s to mid 90s. More rain is expected Saturday. Lows tonight will once again be in the 70s areawide.

A cold front extended across the central Texas Panhandle early today while a dryline extended along the Texas/New Mexico border and into southwest Texas.

Some very severe showers and thunderstorms developed over northern portions of the West Texas and Panhandle last night. However, only scattered showers remained in the northeast Panhandle early today.

Texas and Panhandle forecast calls for partly cloudy to mostly cloudy skies through Saturday, except for mostly clear skies over the far west.

Strong winds strike nuclear plant

By The Associated Press

Strong wind, possibly a tornado, blew the siding off buildings at an Illinois nuclear power plant early today, but no one was injured and no radiation was released, officials said.

A wave of storms extended across the Midwest, spinning off tornadoes, swelling waterways, flooding streets and stranding travelers at airports. A Chicago-area man was killed by lightning Thursday and two college students were feared drowned in east-central Illinois.

In Nebraska, heavy rain flooded streets in Beatrice, which received at least $10 million in damage from a tornado late Wednesday. Scattered flooding also struck east-central Ohio, northern Indiana and southern Michigan.

"We can't take any more of this. If it rains more, I don't know what we're going to do," said Joyce Lane, a resident of the central Ohio village of Buckeye Lake. Two-foot-deep water was lapping at about 125 homes and gas and electric services were cut off as a precaution.

The damage at the Quad Cities Nuclear Power Station near Cordova in northwestern Illinois prompted an alert from Commonweath Edison Co. But there was "absolutely no danger to the public," said Chris Tamminga, a spokeswoman for the state Emergency Management Agency.

ComEd spokesman Art Massa said power generation was uninterrupted and there was and no safety risk to workers when the high wind blew metal panels off three buildings.

One of the buildings stores oil, another stores low-level radioactive waste such as used clothing and tools and the third is the secondary containment building, a warehouse-like structure that surrounds the main containment building that encloses the two nuclear reactors, Massa said.

"All these buildings were built to withstand tornadoes. It's built into the design of all power plants across the country," Massa said.

The National Weather Service said it did not immediately know whether the storm that struck the plant was a tornado.

"It does appear from all indications at this time that a tornado did more through the area, but we have no confirmation of that yet," said meteorologist Charles Fenley.

Record drought, temperature swings affecting wheat harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) — A record drought in the Plains and temperature swings in the Midwest will cause a winter wheat harvest of just 1.36 billion bushels, down 12 percent from last year and the lowest since 1978, the Agriculture Department reported today.

The low forecast, the first for the soon-to-be harvested crop, shows that many growers abandoned acres that had been damaged by the driest winter since 1896. The report assures higher prices and tight supplies throughout the year and into the 1997 harvest.

There were other records. Growers walked away from 11.2 million acres, the highest since a government program in 1983. That left 37.9 million acres in winter wheat, the lowest since 1972.

In an accompanying report, the department projected a corn crop this year of 9.4 billion bushels, up 27 percent from last year, because of increased acreage. The forecast is based on trends and planted acres, not on real conditions.

The supply of corn coming into the September harvest season shrank further to 317 million bushels, the lowest in nearly 50 years, making a good harvest critical. Likewise, world grain supplies further tightened.

The department expects corn plantings will be higher than first indicated in March because growers will try corn on some abandoned wheat acres in the Midwest. The figure rose from 79.9 million to 81 million acres.

The department projected an easing of corn prices in the marketing year that starts Sept. 1 because of higher production.

Despite being slowed by high prices for corn and other feed, red meat and poultry production should rise in 1996 and again in 1997, although high feed prices are slowing increases this spring and summer.

Former rebel leads in early election returns in Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The former rebel leader whose 10-year rule returned order to Uganda held a strong lead today with half the ballots counted in the country's first presidential vote since independence 34 years ago.

Incumbent Yoweri Museveni appeared headed toward an easy victory, winning 82.7 percent of the votes counted so far. Veteran politician Paul Ssemogerere and university administrator Muhammad Mayanja split the remainder.

Final results were not expected until Saturday. The partial returns indicated a high turnout of the country's 8.46 million registered voters. Uganda has 18 million people.

Votes were being counted at 15,600 polling stations around the country.

Numerous calls keep area law officers busy

Three people were arrested at Municipal Court Thursday to lay out fines for various offenses.

Taken into custody at 10:10 a.m. to lay out fines were a 17-year-old male for no driver's license and no liability insurance, a 17-year-old male for no driver's license and a 32-year-old male for public intoxication.

At 3:12 p.m., officers arrested a 17-year-old male in the 2800 block of 23rd Steet on an outstanding warrant for Class B criminal mischief.

work with students with Attention Deficit Disorders. They also said both are now qualified to teach CPR and classes are being scheduled to teach the life-saving course to district personnel.

Sollis reported on the recent TAAS results which indicated Snyder tenth graders exceeded the state average in reading and writing, but fell one point short of the state average in math.

Action taken by the board included the approval on second reading of the district's employee leaves and absences policy, the appointment of Geraldine Parker to be the district's representative to the Texas Association of School Boards Delegate Assembly in September and the swearing in of board members Glenn Clarady, Mark McCormick and Janet Stribling.

Charles Anderson was re-elected president of the board while McCormick was selected as the vice president and Janet Stribling as secretary.

Lomax also reminded board members of a special meeting of the board set for 11 a.m. on Tuesday, May 14, to discuss the findings of the Community Facility Task Force. Lomax said this morning that the administration will present several options concerning improving the district's facilities at the workshop.

Anderson presided at Thursday's meeting. Trustees in attendance were McCormick, Clarady, Stribling, Parker and Richard Chambers. Luann Burleson was absent.

In mid-escape, prisoner decides to break back in COLORADO CITY (AP) — An inmate at the "80 John" Wallace Unit discovered some flaws in his escape plan at an inopportune moment, officials said.

Steven Ray Lampley already had scaled the first set of fences surrounding the correction facility about 12:30 a.m. Wednesday when he found numerous unexpected "armed pickets" covering the ground in front of the next fence he had to get over, Warden Rodney Cooper said.

Lampley rightly concluded that escaping could actually lead to getting shot and altered his plans, Cooper said.

"He decided he'd better get back in," Cooper said Thursday. "He went back over the fence. Unfortunately, he broke one ankle and sprained the other. He also got cut a little."

Lampley was treated and released that same morning by prison medical personnel.

Missouri City man claims Lotto

AUSTIN (AP)— A Missouri City retiree has claimed the first installment of his winning $7.6 million lotto jackpot.

Roosevelt Brown, who bought his winning ticket in Houston, was presented with a check for $390,299 Thursday. He's due another $380,000 annually for the next two decades.

Brown requested minimal publicity, according to the Texas Lottery Commission, which released no further details.
